To date in the 8th of December
We'll give you a welcome both cordial and warm.
And a choice of good things, remember.

With it's contents so dainty and fine.

That will just suit the Santa Claus time.
We've beautiful things and useful ones, too:
Of refreshments, a tempting display,
Turkey, salads and oysters, and sweets of kinds
'Twill pay you to lunch there each day.
We ask of your friends, both near and afar,
To help us in this undertaking;
Just send us some money, or if you prefer
An article of your own making.
We'll thank you sincerely for little or much
That you feel you can willingly give

"'Tis more blessed to give than receive."

WASHING MACHINE AGAIN.

Suit for Recovery of Notes Decided Against Payment.

There are people in Pitt county whom the mere mention of washing machine rights gives a bad taste in the mouth. A fellow named Crooker came through this section a few years ago selling washing machine rights and not a few people bit at, and got bit by, his slick scheme. The thing turned out to be one of the rankest frauds imaginable, but in the meantime not a few people had given their notes for the purchase of a right. It became too warm hereabouts for the said Crooker and he slipped away to other pastures. Efforts were made to capture him and bring him back, and once he was actually arrested in the western part of the State, but he put up a cash bond and forfeited it rather than face the music in Pitt county.

The next step on the part of those who had been fooled into the deals for washing machine rights was to resist payment of the notes that had been given. At almost every civil term of court recently there has been some suit trying to recover on these notes. An interesting case of this nature was disposed of Wednesday, the case being W. C. Rodman against Calvin McLawhorn. The plaintiff Rodman made claim that he had purchased the note as an innocent party, but the evidence showed that the note was obtained by fraud, that plaintiff came in possession of the note before it was due and with the knowledge that the washing machine right business was fraudulent. Upon this the jury answered all the issues in the case in favor of the defendant.

"For fifteen years I have watched the work of Bucklen's Arnica Salve; and it has never failed to cure any sore, burn or wound to which it was applied. It has saved me many a doctor bill." says A. F. Hardy of East Wilton Maine, 25c at Jno. L. Wooten's drug store.

Two Marriages

Justice of the Peace H. Harding, who has quite a reputation as a dispenser of matrimonial happiness, was called on to perform a double ceremony in the office of the register of deeds Monday afternoon. He joined both the couples, who were colored, in his usual good style, in the presence of a few interested witnesses. When the major told the two grooms they could salute their brides, as it was a time honored custom to seal all such contracts with a kiss, there were only grins on their faces with nothing doing on their part. An old woman present, the mother of the two brides who had come along to see the performance well done, said "I kin do dat fer'm" and forthwith proceeded to osculate the whole quarette, much to the amusement of the spectators.

The Persians.

Every traveler from Morier onward has descanted on the physical cowardice of the Persians. But there are mysteries about the valor of Asiatics which no European historian has yet set himself to solve. It was currently said in the early eighties among Englishmen that the Egyptians were cowards, yet under Mehemet Ali they defeated Turkish armies and Wahabi fanatics and would have overthrown the Turkish empire if Europe had not intervened. There are similar passages in Persian history.—London Nation.

THE CURIOUS SNAIL.

Strange Facts About the Peculiar Cold Blooded Animal.

If one wishes to examine a snail he should place the specimen on a piece of glass. The snail is a cold blooded animal, and contact with a warm hand probably induces in him the feeling which would result in us from placing the hand or body on top of the kitchen range. The coolness of the glass will be agreeable to his snailship, and he will travel peacefully along, rapidly expanding and contracting his broad, suckerlike foot.

His horns are protracted in an inquiring manner, and if a finger is placed in front of him he will probably walk on until these feelers come in contact with it. Then the tentacles are withdrawn and waved about in the effort to see the obstruction more clearly, for each feeler contains at its end a small, imperfect, but still discernible, eye, which is capable of distinguishing between light and darkness.

A snail's manner of withdrawing his horns is very curious. He does not pull them back bodily into their receptacle, but turns them inside out, just as one turns the fingers of a glove in drawing it off backward.

The fussy little creature has a sense of smell and also a fairly well developed ear, which lies close to the roots of his horns. His breathing apparatus is of the simplest description. Looking carefully at his right side, one may see that a distinct hole occasionally appears there, remains open a few moments and then closes again. This is simply a cavity in the snail's body, into which he allows a certain quantity of air to enter, "whether he thinks of it," as one might say.

When air has thus found its way into his interior he keeps it there until its oxygen is exhausted by his vital processes. What remains, laden with carbonic acid, is allowed to escape by reopening the little trapdoor, and the receptacle is filled by another supply of fresh air.

The snail's mouth is armed with a sawlike tongue, which resembles a long, narrow ribbon, coiled up in such a manner that only a part of it comes into use at once. Distributed over the surface of this ribbon are tiny teeth, one animal sometimes having as many as 50,000.

As one set of teeth becomes worn away by feeding another section of ribbon is uncoiled, and the teeth which before were wrapped up at the back of the mouth come forward to take their turn in pressing the food against the horny upper surface of the mouth and thus cutting it in clean incisions.

The shell of the snail is a horny covering that serves to protect him against his numerous foes. Slugs are simply snails that live a retired life and consequently need no covering at all. The snail's shell is built up from lime in the plants on which it feeds, and the creatures are never found on soil which produces no lime.—Philadelphia Record.

THE GUILLOTINE.

It Was Not Invented by the Man Whose Name It Bears.

In a book published by Hector Malcolm in Germany the story of the origin of the instrument of execution which was named for Dr. Guillotin in the days of the reign of terror is fairly decked. "There is no truth in the story, so long believed," he says, "that the genial old physician invented the machine which was named for him and by means of which he is said to have lost his life shortly after its adoption. Guillotin, in keeping with the spirit of his time, proposed on Oct. 1, 1789, that all criminals, regardless of their birth or station, should be dealt with alike by the law, and six months later he proposed to the government that convicted murderers should be beheaded by means of a simple apparatus. The mechanism of which he and no one else had any idea at that time was spoken of as the 'simple apparatus' by the humorists of the day, and the phrase was used to make its proposer ridiculous, so that when a machine finally was adopted the wits of the Egyptians were cowards, yet under Mehemet Ali they defeated Turkish armies and Wahabi fanatics and would have overthrown the Turkish empire if Europe had not intervened. There are similar passages in Persian history.—London Nation.

A LETTER FROM MR. HUTCHINGS

EXPRESSES VIEWS ON N. CAROLINA TOBACCO MARKET.

Says General Assembly Should be Cautious in Legislating Against Large Tobacco Interests.

(CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK)

Admit the principles of the A. T. Co., have been wrong, it certainly has been legal until declared otherwise and if this is done, then let us as a people hold out the laurel leaf and say to these men, boys you have done wrong, but we forgive you, now come home, we need you to buy these plants when sold and push our North Carolina tobaccos. We do need just such brains to do business in our State and hold the supremacy of our goods.

Let these plants fall into the hands of some sharper and let the brands of these factories begin to be lowered and doctored to gain a few quick millions for other people, and just so soon you would see our goods begin to depreciate and too soon we might be supplying practically local trade, then what would become of our North Carolina tobacco industry.

In days before the trusts buyers used to ring on sales. Just now the Japanese business is practically a ring by a subdivision of markets to interested parties. This class of buying is called a combine, to which the market has always been subject.

So let us not be so ready to stone these people, but act with judgment and prudence, the heritage of North Carolinians.

Let us as a people take for our guidance the greatest lesson that was ever handed down to mankind, that of charity. The Book says, speaking of the many virtues, "the greatest of these is charity."

I have never defended trust principles, they made a mistake in lowering prices several years. Along about 1903 the farmers could have been paid more for tobacco and the consumer should have paid more and shared in making dividend money. If this had been done night riders would never have been in existence. But the last several crops have sold well and as a rule farmers have been pleased.

Casting aside the trust question as an issue, leaving it to our national government, the fact turns up boldly that our North Carolina tobaccos have been placed in a high standing position before the world; and I believe with these three plants behind our North Carolina tobaccos, we are in better shape than any other tobacco raising State in the union.

I think such men as have done so much for North Carolina tobaccos should be honored rather than kicked out of our State. They have gone forth and conquered the world in the tobacco war and the old North State has come out on top. Then I am ready to give them credit for it, and if I am the only friend they have in North Carolina (and they have others) I am ready to extend a welcome hand and say come, home boys.

Every factory that has been bought has been used in a great measure to enhance the value of North Carolina tobaccos, then let us use this advantage. There is much more that could be said to draw out the facts, but I think the mere allusions will give an insight into the situation sufficient to say that we should be careful in our legislation. And I am going to close this article by calling the farmers' attention to the situation, and ask them to be on the lookout, and keep an eye open to our interest and the interest of our state. I ask every farmer who reads this article to study the situation carefully and see if I am right and if so should I call upon them, I want them to stand by me and we will see that our North Carolina tobacco is cared for in the future.

I might add that I have talked to the farmers on organization, and now we need intelligent organization, as our trade is in such shape that it is possible to say how much North Carolina tobacco do you need and we can make a deal to sell 100 million pounds or even more at stipulated prices per grades. It is not impossible, and we must stand together. Not half of our state raises tobacco, so it is the duty of our tobacco belt to look out for North Carolina tobacco.

You will hear some people making criticism and saying that I have sold out to the trust.

You just tell them that Hutchings has studied it for years, has always been conservative and has faithfully served the farmers and on the lookout for the tobacco interest, and now sees a danger ahead and has not consulted a human being (trust or no trust) on earth and is simply giving utterance in regard to facts that concern every tobacco farmer in North Carolina and is urging consideration, conservatism, and proper guidance in dealing with one of the greatest industries in our State, from his own standpoint and own personal opinion, and stands ready to cooperate with the tobacco farmers and battle every inch of ground in defence of this great industry.

Yours truly,
J. R. Hutchings.

STRUCK THE WRONG MAN.

Negro Strikes White Man a Serious Blow.

Saturday night there was some trouble at Stokes between a white man named Bullock and a negro named Mal Brown. After some words between them Bullock turned away and went in a store. The negro Brown got an axe and waited outside the store for Bullock to come out. While Brown was waiting another white man named Dave Whitehurst came out of the store, and the negro mistaking him for Bullock slipped up behind Whitehurst and struck him a murderous blow on the head with the axe. Brown was caught during the night and brought here and placed in jail. Mr. Whitehurst is reported in a critical condition with only slight chances of his recovery.

Small Fire.

About 10.30 o'clock Sunday morning a small fire occurred at No. 408 Front street. The building which was owned by Charles Patrick and occupied by Charles Williams, both colored, had caught on the inside under the tin roof, and supposed to have started from a stove in the kitchen. The hose reel from the station near the court house was hurried to the scene and the fire was put out in short order. Only a little damage was done to the building.

RESULTS INFINITE

Suggestions How to Advertise the City and Surrounding Coummunity.

Greenville, N. C., Nov. 19.

Editor Reflector:—

While business men in this community are talking about parcels post laws, improving and advertising the city, I would like to have a word or two through the columns of your paper.

Monday night at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, after the election and installation of officers for the coming year, etc., a very important matter was brought up—a matter that every public spirited citizen in the community should take an interest in—advertising the town.

All of us know the good to be derived from advertising. But how to advertise is the question that confronts most of us. Some people sail in and do it blindly, and getting poor results sour on the method of publicity used. Having observed a great deal along this line and hearing the suggestions made at the meeting leads me to offer my ideas on the subject, thinking perhaps they will be of benefit possibly to the city and community, the progress of which I am very much interested in.

I think advertising in the local newspaper, together with other forms, which I will mention, the very best. The local paper reflects what the community really is, and as a man is sized up by his face so is a town sized up by the thrift displayed by its business men through the advertising columns of the local newspaper. Good, bad or indifferent, the newspaper reflects the town (you have given your paper the right name) and unless the business men advertise in and help make something of their local paper it will show their lack of interest in one of the most vital factors of the community, and going out into the world the paper will counteract any other advertising they may do. Every merchant and business man of whatever calling should have a good, snappy ad, no matter how small, in the paper. It will help him immensely and will greatly help the community.

Then the Chamber of Commerce or Board of Aldermen should take a large space from time to time, set forth the advantages and needs of the town and community, keeping on hand a number of the papers containing the ad to send to inquirers, leaving the special editions of papers in neighboring towns alone, for they will never realize one iota of good from them. The combined ads in the local paper, showing that all their needs can be supplied, may lead dozens of new families to move to the town.

The suggestion to issue a booklet is a good one. A nice one, gotten up in good style, setting forth the great advantages and giving a short sketch of the town, will accomplish a great deal by being sent out to inquirers.

After the above has been done I would suggest, to get the inquirers, that they take a space in the Sunday edition of some northern or western newspaper or a widely read magazine from time to time, telling what they have to offer. Then as the answers come send the local paper and booklet.

In the meantime the merchants and other business men of the town and community will be getting direct results. The results of such advertising are infinite. Advertiser.

A. D. HUNTER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Cuts His Throat With a Razor and is Found Dead.

Cary, N. C., Nov. 23.—Rev. A. D. Hunter, a Baptist minister, committed suicide at his home here this morning by cutting his throat with a razor. Rev. Hunter has been depressed for several weeks, due to financial troubles and no other reason can be given for his act. He was in Mr. Jones' store this morning settling with a tenant and requested Mr. Jones to straighten his accounts out as he was in trouble and could not. About 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Hunter were walking in the back yard of their home together. Mrs. Hunter went over to a neighbor's next door, Mrs. Jordans, and Mr. Hunter went into the woodhouse. At 11:30 he was missed and a search was made. The cook, an old woman, found him lying on his back in the woodhouse with his throat cut, the razor still clutched in his right hand.

Mr. Hunter returned from one of his churches yesterday evening and the family noticed last night and this morning that he was in trouble, yet not a word of reason did he leave. Mr. Hunter has been married three times and leaves one daughter by his first wife, Miss Elsie Hunter; three boys and one daughter by his second, and two small children by his present wife, who was Miss Rodwell, of Macon. Mr. Hunter was a candidate in the late primary for treasurer of Wake county.

In the early 90's Mr. Hunter was pastor of Memorial Baptist church in Greenville for some years, and is well remembered by many of our people.

FOR WIVES AND WIDOWS.

Daughters of Confederacy Proposed to Erect a Home for These.

The North Carolina Daughters of the Confederacy have in view an enterprise which is to provide a home for the wives and widows of the heroes who once wore the grey, who may have need of this.

An officer of the State organization has written to Dr. B. F. Dixon, the State auditor, in relation to this enterprise, which was given a start at the recent meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy in Goldsboro.

The purpose of the Daughters of the Confederacy is to raise such a sum as to make it possible to erect on the grounds of the Confederate Soldiers Home at Raleigh, a building that will be a home for the aged wives and widows of Confederate soldiers.

Dr. Dixon is greatly pleased with the purpose to do this and hopes that it may be carried forward to success. He says that he heartily endorses the plan, and that he thinks a good work will be done, that many of the noble women who suffered and kept the home during the war are now in needy circumstances, and that they should be cared for. The entire State would endorse so noble a work as that which is proposed to be undertaken by the Daughters of the Confederacy.—Raleigh News and Observer.

We are offering our entire line of boys' and children's clothing at cost, as we will discontinue this line. Pul ey & Bowen.

PYTHIANS TO HAVE ORPHANAGE.

Greenville Should Bid for the Location.

The grand lodge of Knights of Pythias of North Carolina have decided to establish an orphanage at some convenient location in the State, and a committee has been appointed to take charge of the matter and receive offers from the towns that want to put in bids for the orphanage.

Greenville might get active in this direction. The Pythians are strong here, we have one of the best and healthiest towns in the State, and it would be an ideal location for the orphanage. Our people should get busy and put in a bid for it. What is done must be done quickly, as bids will be closed Feb. 15th, 1909.

Our millinery line is complete and we are prepared to fil orders immediately for any kind of hat. 11 26 6td 1tw Pulley & Bowen.

Wholesale Charity is Dispensed.

Approximately, four-fifths of a million people are fed in New York City on Christmas day. Baskets are sent to one hundred thousand homes; meals in public halls and missions amount to three hundred thousand dollars, and thirty-five thousand poor are fed, besides those in the free wards of the hospitals, in asylums, reformatories, jails, penitentiaries and institutions of all kinds. The Salvation Army supplies twenty thousand baskets on this day, besides the dinner they give annually to five thousand poor in the Grand Central Palace, and Uncle Sam through the public charities, is host to fourteen thousand more.—The December Designer.

Taxes For Negro Schools.

In his recent report Hon. J. Y. Joyner, State superintendent of education, gives the following information in regard to the taxes for negro schools, which is of interest:

"In justice to the negro and for the information of some of our people who have been misled into thinking that a large part of the taxes that the white people pay is being spent for the education of the negro, it may be well at the outset to give a brief statement of the facts in regard to the apportionment of the school fund . . .

The constitution directs that in the distribution of the fund no discrimination shall be made in favor of either race. This report shows that in 1905 the negroes of the city and rural districts received for teachers' salaries and building schoolhouses $301,095.82 for 225,976 children of school age. The whites received for the same purposes for 453,616 children of school age $1,277,422.22. The negroes therefore constitute about one-third of the population and receive an apportionment for the same purposes as the whites of less than one-fifth of the school money. This report shows that the negroes paid for rural schools in taxes on their property and polls about $106,142.03, or nearly one half of all that they receive for school purpose. Add to this their just share of liquor licenses and fines, forfeitures and penalties, most of which they really pay, and their share of the large school tax paid by corporations, to which they are entitled under the constitution by every dictate of reason and it will be apparent that it any part of the taxes actually paid by individual white men ever reaches the negroes for school purposes, the amount is so small that one hardly would begrudge it or complain about it or even be ashamed of himself. In the face of these facts, any unprejudiced man must see that we are in no danger of giving the negroes more than they are entitled to by every dictate of justice, wisdom, humanity and Christianity."

Truth in Preference to Fiction

GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY NOV. 27 1908.

THANKSGIVING.

The season has again arrived when it is fitting to pause in the march of life, and with thoughts lifted up to the Giver of all good render thanks for the many blessings He has bestowed. While we should not cease to be thankful daily for blessings and mercies enjoyed, it is appropriate that once a year for one day we should lay aside the cares of life and the perplexities of business, and spend the day in thanksgiving to God. Our custom as a nation to observe the day is a beautiful one, and it is the duty of every true citizen to take part in the. All should recognize God and His watchcare over us, and should not withhold the praise that is due Him.

Take a mental inventory of the blessings that have been yours during the year, and you will find enough to cause your heart to swell with gratitude and your lips to exclaim "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits." There is not one so poor in this world's goods who cannot yet find much to be thankful for. There are none who have suffered but who can see there is much they have been spared. There are none who have had sorrow in the midst of which a Comforter was not sent. There is so much for which we should be thankful, and let our thoughts be on these.

And in the midst of our thanksgiving let our gratitude not end in meditation and praise, but may it find expression in the practice of that precept "it is more blessed to give than to receive." God has given us much, and we can best show our appreciation and gratitude to Him by doing something for others. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Open your heart liberally to the poor and the orphan and make it a season of real thanksgiving to them.

Two men together can carry a load more than twice as heavy as one can carry alone. One man may lack just a little strength sufficient to turn a wheel, when that little added by another starts the wheel and keeps it going. You see the point? "In unity there is strength." If you find a man trying to push Greenville forward, join hands with him and the united effort may accomplish wonders. At any rate don't hinder, but help. Help by patronizing each other, by keeping everything possible at home, by saying an encouraging word. Touch shoulders with the other fellow and let him feel that there is somebody standing by him.

That was a big deal the American Tobacco Company made in paying $14,000,000 for the tobacco stored in Kentucky. It promises to put an end to the "night rider" troubles in that State.

Let us all try to make Greenville better looking.

Make up your mind that business is better and you will find it better.

It is getting time some other big enterprise was launched for Greenville.

You can easily read between the lines that Mr. Roosevelt would like to have the job again after awhile.

General J. S. Carr, of Durham, has donated $2,500 for the endowment fund of Greensboro Female College.

There is hardly a matter that Greenville could get really interested in to more advantage than water transportation.

In his testimony Mr. Rockefeller is getting in a lot of free advertising for Standard oil. The old man is far from being a fool.

A New Jersey woman was frightened to death at the sight of a mouse. An elephant would not have alarmed her in the least.

If the sugar trust has to shell out the $3,000,000 for which the government is suing, there will be an advance in the price of sweetening.

Which will be the bigger man in the management of the government Mr. Taft or Mr. Cannon—remains to be seen after the 4th of March.

The matter of who is to be the candidate in 1912 might well be deferred until 1912 comes, and let the country have some rest in the meantime.

If you started out to find a good citizen you would not select the man who runs a "moonshine" still.

With street and sidewalk paving finished for the time being, Greenville must get busy on something else.

With prohibition carrying this State by 40,000 majority, it will be folly to have any further agitation of the question in the next legislature.

It is said to have cost a million and a half dollars to get Taft elected. He is never going to be worth anything like that sum to the country.

The big railroad systems are helping to bring prosperity by making a 3 per cent. advance in freight rates. Prosperity for themselves, you see.

Numerous hunting parties are being planned for Thanksgiving day. It is to be hoped the hunters will be careful to shoot nothing but game.

There are some good lots around Greenville that ought to have buildings on them. These lots can be bought cheaper now than a year hence.

There is much interest in both this State and Virginia in the football games to be played in Richmond and Norfolk on on Thanksgiving day.

Now here comes a Buffalo doctor who accuses a cabbage and lettuce worm of being the cause of cancer. First thing you know we will have to stop eating.

That splendid afternoon paper, the Greensboro Record, has just completed its eighteenth year. The Record is a credit to Greensboro and to the State.

It crops out that it was the Greensboro Industrial News itself, and not its creditors, that made the application to have the paper declared bankrupt.

The Reflector is waiting to issue a call for the women to meet and organize a civic pride club. Just say the word, ladies, and our columns are at your service.

The season has opened for shooting men through mistake for wild turkeys and other game. A man who cannot tell his game has no business going out with a gun.

New York is boasting that there is less suffering in that city this winter than last. But this winter has hardly begun yet and it is very early to make comparisons.

The fixing and unfixing of the Abruzzi-Elkins marriage comes along about as regularly as do the newspapers. One day it is all arranged and the next day it is not arranged at all.

That is a peculiar state of affairs in Fayetteville. Detectives went there to hunt for blind tigers, and one of the detectives has been arrested for selling liquor himself.

Cannon will get a hard knock against re-election for speaker if President-elect Taft opposes him, as now looks likely to be done. Mr. Taft regards Mr. Cannon as an obstructionist to legislation.

Mr. Roosevelt is credited with saying that if it had been himself running for president he would have broken the solid South. We do not believe he would have made as good a run as Mr. Taft did.

Some of the guests of President Roosevelt's labor dinner in the White House, a few nights ago, declared it was a "bully dinner." Doubtless that expression about it delighted the president.

If we don't have but a quarter we are going to be thankful for that much, but will be more thankful if subscribers in arrears will round up a few dollars and roll them our way by Thanksgiving day.

If President-elect Taft's brother got all that was charged out of that Panama canal deal, he could well afford to contribute a hundred and sixty thousand to the campaign fund, and then have plenty left to get along on.

If you want to see a Greater Greenville you must work to that end, and a good way to work for it is not to send your money away for anything you can get at home. Patronize your home enterprises.

Walter Williams, of proposed arctic expedition fame, has had his feelings hurt, and has brought suit against a magazine publishing company for $100,000 for criticising his expedition. If he wins that will pay much better than looking for the North Pole.

The Johnson county citizen who offered to be one of two hundred to subscribe $50 a year each to keep the Greensboro Industrial News going, is on the right line. That is the kind of interest that helps a newspaper to be of good service to the people it serves Governor-elect Kitchin has appointed Mr. Alex. J. Field, of Raleigh, to be his private secretary when he is inaugurated. Mr. Field has for several years been secretary of the State Democratic executive committee, and Governor Kitchin has made a good selection.

Hobson keeps having spasms over what he thinks is inevitable war between this country and Japan, and is urging the president to keep our battleships at a convenient place in the Pacific waters. First thing you know a commission inquirendo lunatico will be needed for Hobson.

Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, who is suing for divorce from her husband, asked for $120,000 a year alimony, and said she could not get along on less. How a woman can blow in that much money in a year is hard to understand. The court must have taken that view of it also, for she was allowed only $25,000

In the last election Republicans elected three congressmen in North Carolina, and the information is sent out from Greensboro that there will likely be a contest for the fourth. J. A. Smith, who ran against Congressman Webb in the ninth, is claiming that he was cheated out of it.

You do not help conditions any by complaining. Business is not going to the bad if you will do your part to keep it on the up grade. Be a booster and do not pull backward. Everybody put his shoulder to the wheel and push.

At a New York infirmary thirty-six nurses and forty-five patients were made quite sick by eating "fricassed chicken and chicken hash served with piquant sauce." Too bad that chicken should also come under the ban of things not to eat. Next thing you know they will be finding some fault with 'possum and yam 'taters.

A negro was hanged in Charlotte Friday for the crime of murder, After the execution the man's father took charge of the body and placed it on exhibition at 5 cents a peep. It caught the curious negroes and the old man gathered a pile of nickels.

Ex-Judge Montgomery has entered suit against the Raleigh News and Observer for $50,000 for publishing the letter which Thomas Dixon, Jr., wrote about him. If the Judge could recover the sums asked for out of both Mr. Dixon and the News and Observer, he would have enough to get along on for awhile. But he will hardly do it.

The treasurer of the Republican national campaign committee has given out his report showing about $1,700,000 expended to secure the election of Taft. The largest contributor was Charles Taft, a brother of the president-elect, who gave $160,000. Nothing is said about how much of the contributions the treasurer failed to report.

THE MATTER OF THE PRIMARY.

The Newton Enterprise, discussing the announcement that State Chairman Eller will soon appoint a committee of five members of the State executive committee to formulate changes in the Democratic plan of organization to be submitted later to the full committee, says, with its accustomed good sense:

"The aim should be to minimize and not to accentuate the importance of the primaries. If we could get rid of the voting between Democrats and Democrats altogether and get back to the old system of appointing uninstructed delegates to the State convention, it would be better for the party. The arraying of Democrats against Democrats at the ballot box makes breaches in the party that cannot be bridged over before the election and have served as prolific recruiting stations for the Republican party.

"But if the committee decides to retain the primary elections in any form, let the people now resolve, while the incidents of of the last one are fresh in their minds and while there are no candidates in sight to whom any personal application can be made, that they will not stand another speaking campaign by candidates for Governor, Senator or any other important office or headquarters from which money is distributed and active work is carried on to boost one man and assassinate another. The next man who undertakes to inaugurate this system and force his rivals to follow suit, should be ostracized and excommunicated."

The mail which brought The Enterprise brought also the Rutherfordton Sun, a paper of equal intelligence, which says the same thing on the same subject and says it well. Thus:

"The Sun [referring to another matter] believes this to be true; and one of these sources of weakness which it may safely point out now while other sources are held for future demonstration, is the adoption for the last four years of the party primary. Its effect upon party organization is demoralizing and we had almost said pernicious. Employing against party friends methods of electioneering that would not be honorable even if employed against party enemies, can result only in destroying party enthusiasm if not endangering party loyalty. The intention of the party primary may be all right; but so far as expediency and practice go, it is usually associated with much that is wrong. The old precinct meetings and county conventions may have been open to abuses and perhaps were so; but they did not furnish one opportunity for machine manipulation where the primary furnishes a score. Nor did they generate party feuds and fraternal strife, to be fostered and fed until they become destructive all through the campaign of that free spirit of liberty and loyalty without which no party contest can be won. Honor and honesty, truth and justice, are cardinal virtues; and so long as they are emblazoned upon our party standards may we go forth confidently to battle. But we cannot employ against a party brother any narrow, under-hand method of party competition, and then in the end expect him to prove himself a saint where we have been a sinner."

If the Democratic party of North Carolina does not realize the truth of these sayings without argument, then argument would be useless. It may, however, be added that in remembrance of the character of the ante-primary campaign preceding the State convention in June of this year, it is amazing that the party made in the recent election as good a showing as it did, and that it cannot safely take the chances on another such exhibition. The fidelity of the minority in the party under the circumstances inspires new confidence in the good faith of humanity, but there is a point beyond which, under frequent tests, it will not endure.—Charlotte Observer.

Nervous Break-Down

When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely, cure you. Try it.

"My nervous system gave away completely, and left me on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy." MRS. W. L. BUDKER, Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

OYSTERS.

How They Are Nursed and Reared and Prepared For Market.

Oystermen nowadays are farmers of the deep. They own their artificial beds and seed them down and cultivate them carefully and watch their crops and scarecrow off the predatory hordes, both men and fish, that otherwise would prey upon them, just as the careful husbandman labors in his fields. Such an oyster bed as this may comprise a sea covered patch of anywhere from 50 to 300 acres of "bottom," floored preferably with good, clean sand or broken rock or shell, yet frequently devoid at the start of all natural growth of the oysters.

On the natural beds the oysters spawn tremendously in the first warm months of summer. The spawn attaches itself like millions of freckles to anything affording a foothold—anything sharp, like broken shells, old bottles, other oysters and rocks. With incredible rapidity these freckles expand, becoming "spats"—small finger nail oysters, already housed in walls of line.

Now comes the oysterman, he of the schooner with its two big iron dredges, and he in the skiff with his tongs. Both begin to pillage the beds in long, hard days of application. They fetch up tons of baby oysters, pitch back tons and tons of rock or broken shell for the foothold of oysters yet to be and, sailing away to their stated out farms, scatter all this "seed" beneath the waves.

Not only are the private oyster beds carefully divided one from another by the best of good stable hedges, but each holding is subdivided again into many smaller fields to facilitate the work. This becomes necessary from the fact that the seed must be permitted to grow for fully three seasons before marketable oysters can be harvested. Therefore when, with the advent of September, the reason for bivalves has begun the schooners are manned with oystermen proper, who go down to dredge out a three-year-old crop for the towns.

They are dredged from the beds just as rapidly as men and machine can fetch them forth. The dredge comes up from the deep like a rolling cage of steel. Its cargo upon its arrival is dumped upon the deck, and over it goes for another. Meanwhile a crew of fingerly workingmen are busily culling at the heap. Scores of the orders come up in lumpy colonies, where six, eight, ten or more of the oysters are cemented together in a group. These men, armed with hammer and skillful at the work, give one group a crack and separate it into spats. A breck all is made apart. A few blows might serve to fill many oysters.

Having loaded her decks, the schooner comes home, off to the charge with all possible speed and laden reels to her labors. At the docks in the meantime equally arduous employment is abundant. The oysters are forked like so much coke upon, especially constructed floats, which, crowded with tanks to enhance them, are lowered at once below the ebb tide level, where they "drink" and fatten for at least three changes of the tide, hence watched like nursing babies. The moment they are just exactly right another hurried business is on hand.

The tanks are pumped out, up come the floats, and men descend upon them like rubber booted demons to shovel them swiftly to a scow. And now, being absolutely at their finest, they must all be rushed to market.—Philip Verrill Mighels in Harper's.

Letting Him Off Easy.

"Before I agree to undertake your defense," said the eminent criminal lawyer who had been called in, "you will have to be perfectly frank with me and tell me the whole truth. Did you embezzle the £20,000 you are accused of having taken?"

"Yes, sir," replied the accused man. "I'll not attempt to conceal the fact from you. I stole every penny of it."

"How much of it have you left?"

"It's all gone but about £10."

"Young man," said the eminent lawyer, putting on his gloves, "you'd better plead guilty and throw yourself on the mercy of the court."

"I'll do it if you say so, sir. What are you going to charge me for the advice?"

"Ten pounds."—London King.

Definite at Least.

A calm, blue eyed, self possessed young lady in a village down east received a long call from a spinster, who, after prolonging her call beyond the young lady's endurance, came to the main question that had brought her thither.

"I've been asked a good many times if you were engaged to Dr. C. Now, if they ask me again what will I tell them I think?"

"Tell them," answered the young lady, fixing her calm blue eyes in unblushing steadiness on the inquisitive features of the spinster, "tell them that you think you don't know and you are sure that it is none of your business."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Aesop in "Little Italy."

A schoolteacher in the Italian quarter of an American city told her children the story of Aesop and the grapes. They were very lively delighted with the story and eagerly sought his chum, Joe, who was in another class. By good luck the teacher overheard Tony's version.

In his version, Joe said, Aesop had told the fable much as it is written until he came to the end. This was his rendering of the climax:

"Ho-oola Ho-ke-ney! Ta-ste-ne no good, eat-ten all-ready! I-gnore I go-ta de-lunch!"

Excited Individual — See here, sir, Brown, you're a scoundrel or the first water! When I hurled that horse I said I would give you a good mount, but he's spavined and blind and not the slightest use! I want to know what you're going to do about it?

Brown—Something ought to be done, that's a fact.

Excited Individual — Well, I should see there ought!

Brown—Well, I'll give you the name of a good veterinary surgeon. It's a shame to allow the horse to suffer in that way.

The Clown Eclipsed.

For the third day in succession the golf tyro strode forth, determined to best his record for the eighteen holes, which was 172. A villager and his little son stood by while the sportsman placed his ball on a tee high tee.

Swish! Whack! (More turf and a little pebbles.)

Swish! Whack! (Being a high tee-ener, we cannot point his remarks.)

A TEMPERANCE UNION.

Members Limited to Fourteen Drinks of Liquor Daily.

"Signing the pledge" is no new thing, as is proved by researches in Italy. Interesting particulars of what would appear to be the earliest examples of written pledges to abstain from gambling and excessive drinking are given in the Corriere Della Sera by Signor Girolamo Biscaro, who has discovered three such documents in the archives of Milan. The first of these records is an oath sworn on the gospels by Giacomo Pasquali and Armanino Daca to the effect that for two years they will abstain from gambling in Pavia and within three miles thereof and will likewise refrain from inducing others to gamble on their behalf. The penalty for any breach of this oath is fixed at 5 soldi, payable to Papio Bovatorio.

In the second document Permo de Bono promises Pierre de Prato to abstain from gambling for a certain period, exception being made on behalf of the game of bismentino, at which, however, he was not to lose more than 2 denari on any one day. Further, he undertakes not to visit any inn for drinking purposes before the hour of vespers on Monday. A breach of either clause of the pledge involves the payment of 5 soldi to De Proto. By the third document Sileto Ferrario expressed his willingness to pay Ercanio to his brother Lamperio should he be persuaded to play for money in any place of public resort or to spend more than 2 denari on intoxicants in any one day.

The motive for these contracts is not stated, but it is presumed that they were entered into by employees whose masters wished to keep their possibilities in check. There is nothing in the documents to suggest the existence of any organization for the promotion of temperance. The honor of being first in the field in this respect therefore still rests with Germany, where two temperance societies were founded in the sixteenth century.

Of these the Order of St. Christopher was formed by Sigismund de Dietrichstein on Jan. 18, 1517, and the Order of Temperance by the Landgrave of Hesse on Dec. 25, 1600. The members of the one order were pledged to abstain from toast drinking, and the members of the other undertook not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time, and that not oftener than twice a day.—Chicago News.

A PARISIAN RUSE.

The Dressmaker's Lure That Ensnared the Americans.

Grace Margaret Gould tells in the September Women's Home Companion some of the ways the Parisian dressmaking establishments sell their wares to American women. Here is one ruse that she saw worked in one of the biggest establishments in Paris:

There was a sudden and evident commotion among the employees. "The princess! The princess! She has arrived!" they cried.

American eyes began to bulge.

Out from a mahogany-and-copper stepped a recently married grand duke, followed by footmen and maid and received by the whole bowing establishment, to the neglect of all other customers. A princess was in a goodly mood this day and easy to be pleased, praising their neat efforts and selecting several of their new creations without regard to cost. After she had made her decisions and like considerate princes were wont to do, she noticed there was no need of the sales woman bothering her head over some goodies. Every American woman present wanted a gown copied from the one the princess had bought, and she got it after much pleading and at a price far beyond the limit she had set.

And the point of this fable is this: The princess was no princess, but an employee of the house.

Every French gown has two prices—an American price and a French price. It is needless to say which is the greater price.

Just before about April the cry goes up, "The Americans are coming!" and then the prices go up too.

About about November, when the Americans have left, you might almost say they are giving away gowns, only the Frenchman never does give away anything. Then it is that the French woman in general and the French actress in particular selects her wardrobe.

The End Spot.

An Irishman one day was told to put up a signboard on which were the words, "To Motorists—This Hill Is Dangerous."

Away went Mike with the signboard and placed it at the bottom of a very steep hill. A few days later his employer went to see how the board was put up and, finding it at the bottom of the hill, sought and found Mike.

"You blundering fool!" he cried. "Why didn't you put that sign in the right place?"

"Shure and ain't it?" asked Mike. "Don't all the accidents happen at the bottom?"—Harper's Weekly.

A FAMOUS CEMETERY

Pere Lachaise Is One of the Landmarks of Paris.

IT HAS A STORMY HISTORY.

This Picturesque Burial Place Has Served as a Battleground as well as a Graveyard—Its Monuments, Lovers and Disconsolate Widows.

Pere Lachaise is the largest and quite the most interesting of the Paris cemeteries and named after the Jesuit confessor of Louis XIV., whose country seat occupied the site of the present chapel until the ground was made a cemetery in 1804. It covers 110 acres of ground, is picturesque, but quite unlovely. Here wrote about the tombs that "weight was their chief peculiarity and that all the monuments looked as if each family had tried to pile as much marble as possible on to their deceased relatives."

Pere Lachaise has a stormy history. In 1814 the Russians fought the French there and gave them a beating. During the commune the Versailists and Communards fought several pitched battles among the tombstones and did considerable damage. But it is not so much with the history of the cemetery as with the people buried in it that we have to deal. A volume might be filled with the mere list of all the celebrated men and women buried in it, for, as Victor Hugo wrote, "being buried in Pere Lachaise is like having mahogany furniture—a sign of elegance."

In Pere Lachaise the monument which attracts most visitors is that of Abelard and Heloise, the two most famous lovers in the world. The monument was first erected 637 years after their death and brought to Pere Lachaise in 1817 from the museum where it had been during the revolution. Another famous lover, Alfred de Musset, lies buried not far from the two will-lovers ever the graves of Heloise and Abelard. David, the painter; Rachel, the actress; Balzac, Scribe, Mirabeau and many other well known folk lie near at hand. Admiral Sir Sydney Smith, Lord Seymour and other well known Englishmen are to be found in other portions of the cemetery, while literature is represented not only by great authors, but by Lesueurs, the victim of Dubosc in the famous local Lyons Mail imbroglio.

But Pere Lachaise has more romance than its tombstones. Chatting one day with one of the old soldiers who are the keepers of this grim park, I learned some curious facts about it.

"We never have a dull moment," the man said. "You may think that our time here is monotonous, but you are quite wrong if you do so. To begin with, there are the burglars. Our cemetery is overrun with them. There are three kinds of burglars. There are the connoisseurs who often and away with valuable prices, for you will be surprised at the works of art of small size which people put in their chapels. The window is broken, a sill-k slipped through the hole, and sorts of things worth having are taken out; then the bronze dealers, who take away as much as they can carry in their special pockets and make from 15 to 25 francs a day at the game until we catch them.

"A little while ago a boat weighing forty pounds was taken out of the cemetery over one of the walls. But the most curious form of robbery is, perhaps, that of the pearl wreaths. Women are the principal offenders. They select the new ones, with fresh and weather stained, then drop them with their books against the tombstone, slip them under their dresses, and when they have got away with them twe have no right to search even suspicious looking customers sell them to dealers, to whom they tell the well worn story of a poor workwoman who has need of food.

"You would hardly believe it, but Pere Lachaise," said the keeper, "is a favorite meeting place for lovers. We get lovers of all ages, and perhaps more schoolboys and schoolgirls than anything else. But the three most curious things we see here in the cemetery are the forlorn widows, the letter boxes and the safe." "The safe?" I asked. "Yes. There are hundreds of people in Paris who refuse to believe that their dead do not enjoy after death the good things they used to like when they were alive. Mothers bring apples and sweets and leave them on the tombstones of their children. People bring wine and glasses, and there is one old gentleman who leaves a potato salad on his son's tombstone regularly every Sunday. Of course the children soon find out these things, and we have never been able to convince the people who bring them of the absurdity of doing so. It is a very harmless superstition, after all."

"And the letter boxes?" I asked. "Lovers' letter boxes?" said the guardian. "There are dozens of them in all parts of Pere Lachaise. Sometimes they are holes in the trunks of trees, sometimes they are little hollows under stones.

"The inconsolable widow is a frequent visitor. She is a pretty woman, and black suits her. She kneels down by a tombstone, rarely the same one, and when a likely looking mourner of the other sex appears bursts into tears. He consoles her pretty soon, and the two leave the cemetery arm in arm. One of these widows invited me to her wedding six months ago, and last month I was called to give evidence about her meetings with her victim for she had seven other husbands living."—St. James' Gazette.

AN INGENIOUS SWINDLER.

The Daring Scheme That Was Worked by a German Doctor.

Near a small village in one of the lake states lived a western millionaire and a few servants. The child was afflicted with a rare cerebro spinal complaint, a most unpleasant manifestation of which was a frequent hiccough, and eminent physicians, both in America and Europe, had pronounced the case organic and incurable.

Later there came to live in the village a widow with a little girl affected similar to the millionaire's daughter. This child was a delicate, flower faced creature, wistful from the isolation that must have been her sad lot, and the peculiar hark-like hiccough which she made at once attracted the millionaire's attention, and, being a big hearted if rather ignorant man, he gave the mother employment about his home and showered the afflicted child with presents.

Perhaps four months after the widow's advent an eccentric German doctor settled in the village, and, his services being sought by the widow, he gave her child treatment, with the result that it was completely cured.

The millionaire immediately sought to place his own daughter under the German's care, but the latter flatly refused to take the case. He was a socialist of a violent type and would have nothing to do with a man whose wealth exceeded the sum of $10 but fixed upon as the lawful limit of material possession.

Finally, however, after the father had pathetically begged the sympathetic ears the German consented to give the afflicted child treatment on condition that the other would first deed over a large tract of land in Texas for a poor cripple colony and that for his fee a sum little short of $50,000. This the millionaire did, but as soon as the doctor had cashed the check he disappeared with the widow and her child, and the wealthy man realized that, blinded by paternal love, he had been made the victim of an insane swindle.

The doctor and girl of the widow had been taught to simulate a disease, and the German was no doubt her father. He was subsequently located in Buenos Aires, but he injured man not wishing his daughter's affliction published broadcast, dropped the prosecution.—Dun Mark Lemon in Behman Magazine.

EXECUTING MAZEPPA.

Peter the Great's Odd Way of Punishing a Traitor.

Peter the Great, czar of Russia, published a traitor on a notable occasion in a way that the numerous victims of the present czar's wrath might well wish were still in vogue.

Mazeppa, chieftain of the Cossacks had asserted to the king of Sweden with whom Peter was at war. Mazeppa was at once tried by court martial and formal guilty on high treason. Sentence of death was passed upon him.

Mazeppa, however, was safely in the camp of the Swedish king, but the fact was not permitted to stand in the way of the carrying out of the sentence of the czar. A wooden effigy of Mazeppa was made, and the punishments were inflicted upon the Cossack chieftain's substitute.

The effigy was first dressed in Mazeppa's uniform, and upon its breast were pinned all of the medals, ribbons and other decorations that the real original had won.

While the commanding general and a squadron of cavalry stood near an officer advanced to the wooden man and read the sentence. Then another officer wrenched off the effigy's pelisse of knighthood and his other decorations, tore them up and trampled upon them. This done, he struck the wooden gentleman a powerful blow in the pit of the stomach, knocking him over. Next a hangman appeared. While the others stood he threw a noose over the imitation Mazeppa's head and dragged the effigy to a nearby gallows where it was "hanged by the neck until it was dead."—Scrap Book.

Could Handle a Shovel.

The foreman of a Chicago iron mill once employed a tramp who had been a college baseball champion. Their acquaintance began in a way that showed the tramp still to be game and cheery. It was a cold autumn dawn, and the tramp had slept in front of a furnace on a warm stone. The foreman, being short of laborers, on his morning tour of inspection spied the fellow and thought he would give him a job.

"My man," he said, "can you do anything with a shovel?"

"Well, I could fry a piece of hair on it."—Minneapolis Journal.

The Pompous Man.

I do not like the pompous man. I do not wish him for a friend. He's built on such a gorgeous plan that he can only condescend, and when he bows his neck is sprained. He walks as though he owned the earth—as though his vest and shirt contained all that there is of sterling worth. With scared joy I see him tread upon a stray banana rind and slide a furlong on his head and leave a trail of smoke behind.—Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

From Limb to Limb.

Housewife—Why don't you get a job and keep it? Hobo—I'm like de little bird dat keeps flyin' from limb to limb. Housewife—G'wan, you're only a bum! How could you fly from limb to limb? Hobo—I mean de Holts o' de law mum!—Kansas City Independent.

Criticism often takes from the tree caterpillars and blossoms together.—Richter.

The Cellar Stairs.

A man who once had a bad fall when going down his cellar stairs now has a broad strip of white painted on the floor at the end of the last step. This is easily seen, even if the cellar be dark, and many a nasty accident is avoided. If the house is rented and you do not like to paint the boards a piece of white oilcloth can be tacked to the floor at the foot of the stairs. See that the tacking is securely done or a worse fall may follow than from a misguaged step.—Philadelphia Press.

Modern version.

"Then you will be ever at my beck and call?" inquired Aladdin.

"With the exception of Tuesday and Friday afternoons, Monday and Saturday evenings and every other Sunday," firmly replied the genie.—Washington Herald.

Nothing Doing.

"I've walked many miles to see you, sir," began the tramp, "because people told me you was very kind to poor chaps like me."

"Indeed?" said the genial white haired old man. "And you are going back the same way?"

"Yes, sir."

"Ah, well, just contradict that rumor as you go, will you? Good morning."—Bonds in Bagdad.

Brilliant Fish Hues.

Like birds, many fishes assume their brightest hue when they wish to attract the opposite sex of their species. The colors of the male common pike become exceedingly intense, brilliant and iridescent in the breeding season. The eel also puts on an intense silvery hue at the breeding time which is very noticeable and at one time caused naturalists to distinguish it as a distinct species. The males of the tench, roach and perch also show a marked increase in brilliancy in the breeding season.

Mental Arithmetic.

"Two years ago I asked Aunt Jane to visit us for a fortnight, and she has not gone home yet."

"It's a blessing."

"What's a blessing?"

"That you didn't invite her for a month."—Harper's Weekly.

Uncovered.

Horace—I can't understand you girls. Now, you hate Mabel, and yet you just kissed her. Hetty—I know, but just see how the freckles show where I kissed the powder off.—London Tatler.

Domestic Politics.

"Whom did you support during the last campaign?"

"A wife, two children and a mother-in-law and kept up my life insurance at the same time."—Puck.

The Way of the Bill Dodger.

The man who hotly resents the attempt of a tradesman to collect what is due his establishment is usually one who does into intend to treat the tradesman fairly and squarely. There are persons who seem to believe that they have at once a right to ignore their financial obligations and the right to demand that their tradesmen, and others who are acquainted with their attitude, accord them a degree of courtesy that is accorded to persons who recognize their obligations and do their utmost to discharge them promptly. Such persons, rather than collectors who are sent to solicit settlements, are 'undesirable citizens' and a public nuisance. That the exasperated bill collector does not use violence in such cases is to the credit of his calling.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Drank and Remembered.

A porter in a big New York warehouse in Greenwich street was recently discharged for getting drunk and losing a valuable parcel. The discharge sobered him instantly, coming as a sudden hard shock. He said he would take the oath never to touch liquor again, but his pleadings for reinstatement were unheeded. He searched everywhere for the parcel, but could not recollect what disposition he had made of it. Of his honesty there had never been a question in twenty years. Overcome by the loss of his place, he got violently drunk and while in this condition recollected where he had left the parcel and went and recovered it.—New York Times.

Mrs. Chopsticks—No, professor, I have not seen him since 10 o'clock, and I can't imagine what has become of him. In fact, I am very much worried about him. Professor—Well, seeing Martha pour me out that glass of water just now reminded me of something that I had on my mind to tell you some time ago, but which unfortunately escaped my memory. It was just about 10 o'clock, I think, that I saw little Willie fall down the well.—Atlanta Constitution.

WORK OF THE HOME PAPER.

How it Draws Attention to the Town And Gets Other people Interested.

The Reflector is in receipt of the following letter from a business man in Massachusetts, that shows how a local paper attracts the attention of people and gets them interested in its town. We frequently receive requests for sample copies of the paper from people in other states who want to know something about Greenville and this section of the State, and these people judge the town larzely by the paper.

The letter referred to reads:

Editor Reflector:
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir:

I wish heartily to thank you for the copy of Daily and of Weekly Reflector of recent date kindly sent me at request.

My reason for asking was that I hope to take a little vacation trip next winter, and had some desire to see some parts of the eastern section of North Carolina. I am not prospecting with a view of locating; but from prints, especially some of the N. & S. R. R., and some similar leaflets became interested to see the region and enjoy the pleasant climate. And, because I thought that I might gain some interesting points from some local papers I sent to you and to a very few others. I was glad to see your little articles with reference to Mr. Bryan; I had but dimly hoped he might be elected, and I voted for him. Though born in Boston, I had a home in Georgia from the time I was six years old until I was grown, and have lived in other Southern states a number of years besides.

Permit me to say that you alone sent me a copy of both Daily and weekly; the others—save one—sent weekly. And, I have no hestitation in telling you that yours is a far better paper editorially than any of the others that came. I note that very soon you are to have a trade edition; probably that will have a good deal that would interest a stranger, and I request you to send me a copy.

If you know of any little publication that describes minutely or in good detail that section of country and the points interesting to visit, or the ways of reaching different points, I will thank you to tell me of it and of the price of the little book. Railway official guides show all railway routes and schedules and all through steamship lines. They are not descriptive. And they do not give much about inland waterways of travel. Yet, I have, as noted above, some prints that are partially descriptive and I know about some of the boat lines and have some hotel rates listed in some of the little folders, &c."

A Word to Subscribers.

It is December now, and so far not many of our subscribers have paid for The Reflector. Knowing that money was tight we have not said much about payment during the fall but the year is now near out, and money is so much needed in this establishment, that we ask all to let us have what they owe. To our good subscribers we believe this simple statement is sufficient.

The man who is wise and loves his wife
Will carry enough insurance on his life.
So that when he is dead,
She won't suffer for cloth and bread.

CHAIRMAN ELLER'S COMMENTS.

Result of 1908 Election in N. C. Showing Great Gain in Democracy.

Gain in Democratic vote on State ticket over the vote in 1906, 21,630, over the vote 1904, 16,341.

Glenn received in 1904, 128,761 votes.

McNeill received in 1906, 123,272 votes.

Kitchin received in 1908, 145,102 votes.

The State ticket carried the fifth district by 1,875 majority.

The State ticket lost the eighth district by 903 majority.

The State ticket lost the tenth district by 134 majority.

Except on presidential years, the 8th district is Democracic. Barring a colossal corruption fund, the 10th district is safely Democratic. Apart from local and personal contests, that may come to any party at any time, the 5th district is a rock-ribbed stronghold of Democracy and will remain so.

The Republican vote this year is a mere spurt. It is abnormal and cannot be maintained. It was their last opportunity to fool and frighten the illiterate vote about the suffrage amendment. It was their last and golden opportunity to practice duplicity in regard to both railroad and prohibition legislation. It was their year to use the power of commercialism in politics to frighten the honest and timid and to purchase the purchasable.

The Democratic gain this year, great as it appears, is normal, and will be maintained. The Democratic party is accustomed to cast a large vote each election, because it has worthy measures and men to be voted for. Not so with the Republicans. Since 1896 thousands of Republicans have refused to vote beause they had no stomach for their party. This time they were able to sit up and take their medicine even in company with a large increase of the brother-in black.

The Democrats have taken notice and are glad to know just what the utmost strength of their opponents is. They are glad for the people of North Carolina to know that they are safe only so long as the true Democracy remains true, true to principle, true to party unity and true at the ballot box. They are glad for the people to be reminded how easily the benefits of white supremacy can be lost, lost irreparably the moment the negroes present themselves to their old allies in charge of the registration and election laws.

The chief boast of the Republicans is that Bryan's majority is only 22,043. In 1900 it was only 24,000, with a much smaller vote than he received this year. Judge Parker had a larger majority in 1904, but his vote that year was 124,121. Mr. Bryan's vote this year is 136,927, a gain for Mr. Bryan on the presidential vote of 12,806.

What hope for Republicans or fear Democrats springs from the see-saw record of the 8th and 10th districts? Examine the table:

	Eighth dist.	Tenth dist.
1900	Republican	Republican
1902	Democratic	Democratic
1904	Republican	Democratic
1906	Democratic	Democratic
1908	Republican	Republican

What Republican is so bold as to count on victory; what Democrat so timid as to fear defeat in the legislature with the following table before him?

Year	Senate	House	Joint
	39	101	140	Dem.
	8	17	25	Rep.
	3	2	5	Pop.
	43	103	146	Dem.
1902	6	17	23	Rep.
	1	1		Ind.
1904	44	99	143	Dem.
	6	21	27	Rep.
1906	46	98	144	Dem.
	4	22	26	Rep.
1908	41	95	136	Dem.
	9	25	34	Rep.

The legislature of 1882 was lost to the Democrats of this State following the prohibition lection of 1881. In Ohio and Indiana the Republicans this year had to bear the brunt of a prohibition election, and they went down in defeat. Rock ribbed Maine barely escaped.

That the Democracy of North Carolina has grappled with this problem and with the other great problem of regulating public service corporations and has emerged from the conflict with its vote increased 21,830 over two years ago (17¾ per cent.), and with its great majority in the legislature unscathed, may well cause our critics to pause and ask themselves if the wish is not father to the thought when they talk about Democratic defeat.

AN INTERESTING SUNDAY.

At Three of the Town's Churches—Prospective Preacher Preached.

Sunday was a day of especial interest to three of the churches and their large congregations of worshippers.

At Jarvis Memorial church, besides a good sermon by the pastor, Rev. M. T. Pyler, the singing was much enjoyed, Mr. J. Wesley White, of Wilmington, being with the choir at the morning service. He sang a beautiful selection for the offertory.

At the Presbyterian church, Rev. G. W. Belk, a missionary, preached in the morning. At this service a splendid new organ purchased by the church, was used for the first time. At night Rev. J. N. H. Summerell preached. He is to serve this church one Sunday night in each month. He has served the church before and is esteemed highly by Greenville people.

At Memorial Baptist church Rev. Leland W. Smith, of Louisville, Ky., preached both morning and evening. This church recently invited Mr. Smith to become its pastor, and while having the matter under consideration he decided to make the church a visit. His sermon made a deep impression on our people and many expressed the opinion that the church and the community will be fortunate to secure such an able preacher. It is earnestly hoped that his dicision will be to accept the call. The choir gave splendid music at both services.

At the Christian church Rev. D. W. Arnold preached as usual at the morning hour for service. Neither this church nor the Methodist church had service at night, both the pastors attending the service in the Baptist church. The spirit of Christian fellowship between the churches of Greenville is very strong.

AUCTION SALE OF LOTS.

To Be Held in Greenville at Early Date.

Greenville is soon to have a grand auction sale of some of her beautiful city lots, the date of which will be announced in these columns later. Mr. L. C. Arthur has consigned to the Southern Land and Auction Co., of Raleigh, 90 beautiful dwelling house lots, which will be sold at auction to the highest bidder, which means at your own price, let the owner make or lose—and on terms so easy that anybody can own a lot.

This company is composed of the State's best business men whose character and reputation is unquestioned, and is capitalized at $100,000.

Hon. James H. Pou is president, Mr. Albert L. Murray, vice president and treasurer and Mr. David F. Fort, Jr., is secretary.

Mr. Murray and Mr. Fort are acknowledged by all to be among the best real estate men in the entire State, as the results of these operations will show. Let everybody make arrangements now to attend this grand sale, and see the biggest land sale ever held in Pitt county.

At this sale they will give away absolutely free a choice lot, $25 in gold and a bag of silver. The best auctioneers in the South will sell this land, and all who attend will hear a good band free.

Wanted - A College Song.

At the last regular annual meeting of the alumnae Association of the State Normal and Industrial College of North Carolina, a committee of alumnae was appointed to select a song that may be adopted and used by the college as distinctively her own.

The committee, therefore, offers a prize of ten dollars in gold to the person who shall write the most appropriate song. Any one desiring to do so may compete for this prize, but the committee reserves the right to reject any and every poem that does not adequately represent the spirit of the college.

The literary value of the songs sent to the committee will be passed upon by competent judges. If any contribution is accepted as worthy to be made the college song, the writer will be notified of his success as early as possible after the judges' decision is reached.

In the event of the author's desiring to set his own words to an original musical composition, such a composition will be carefully judged by musical critics, with the understanding that the committee of alumnae may reject any or all of such contributions.

In order that the song may be introduced, the name of the author announced, and the prize awarded at the college commencement in May, 1909, all competitors for the prize are urged to have their contributions in the hands of the committee before April 1st, 1909.

MILLIONAIRE NEW YORKERS.

What They do for the Poor at Christmas—Philanthropy is Extended.

William Waldorf Astor provides the newsboy's lodging with a Thanksgiving or a Christmas dinner. E. H Harriman, mas dinner. E. H Harriman, that figure of the financial world upon whom so much vituperation and praise is alternately hurled, is found to be the mainstay of the Boys' Club, and furnishes eight hundred dinners every Christmas day. Mrs. William Sloane and Mrs. William E. Dodge are both women with whom the reading world is familiar through the newspapers as leaders of society and fashion. Mrs. Sloane is known among the poor as the fairy godmother who erected the handsome Sixth Street industrial school and who supplies over a thousand children each Christmas with a Christmas dinner, a tree, clothing, toys and candy. Mrs. Dodge is the patron saint of the Boys' Lodge, on Second Avenue, to the members of which she gives a Christmas dinner and warm clothing and blankets for the winter.

The West Side Lodging House has a membership of some nine hundred and eighty boys. Last Christmas each received the present of a handsome shirt, besides the usual Christmas trinkets, the donors in this instance being Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson. The Rhinelander School is the special interest of Miss Rhinelander, who is one of its founders, and of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie is a woman of wide philanthropy. We find her connected with many homes, schools and institutes, and always willing to lend a listening ear and ready sympathy and aid to the unfortunate. An evidence that she posesses one of the family characteristics was shown in her gift last Christmas to the Rhinelander School of a library of some two hundred books. Mrs. Beverly Robinson has her especial interest in the West Side School, to which she presented two hundred flannel shirts at Christmas, and to which, during the past winter, she has given fifteen hundred other garments. Among other social leaders we find Mrs. Osborn, Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes and Mrs. Philip Sands, looking out for the Phelps Industrial School; Mr. and Mrs. Temple Bowdoin for the East River School, and Mrs. Richard Irvin, Mrs. R. E. Shirmer and Mrs. Frank Browne Keech prominent among the managers of the Virginia Day Nursesy.—The Designer for December.

HOUSE BREAKERS CAPTURED.

Blood Hounds do Good Work in Chasing the Criminals.

Recently Mr. R. A. Nichols, of Beaver Dam township, has been considerably annoyed by thieves breaking into an outhouse near his residence and stealing articles which he kept stored there. Twice the house was entered and the thieves got away without detection. A few nights ago there was another robbery, and Mr. Nichols being tired of such annoyance and loss came to Greenville to get Mr. W. C. Hines' blood hounds to hunt for the thieves. The dogs were taken to the scene and struck trails which they readily followed to the homes of colored people living in the neighborhood. Four arrests followed, and two of the negroes at a preliminary hearing gave bond for appearance at court, and the other two were brought to jail. The two in jail are Jim Holloway and Fred Washington, and we learn they have made confession of the part they took in the house breaking.

Turkish Tobacco in North Car lina.

A letter which must mean a great deal to North Carolina was received to-day by Governor Glenn and was immediately turned over to the Agricultural Department. It is from Notara Bros., New York tobacco importers and cigarette manufacturers, who are Turks and handle Turkish tobacco and make Egyptian cigarettes. The firm informs the Governor that for twelve years it has been manufacturing these cigarettes; that when it first began business the imports of Turkish tobacco aggregated only $25,000 in value, but this year they reached the great figure of four million dollars. Hence Notara Bros. say they believe it will not be long before the Turkish tobacco will entirely replace American tobacco for cigarettes. The firm tells the Governor that it finds that in all probability North Carolina is the best situation in which to grow this tobacco in the United States and say that it will pay far better to raise it than the ordinary leaf. The firm, therefore, desires to know whether any persons in the State could give the use of 50 acres of suitable land for a test of this Turkish tobacco. If a tender of such land is made the firm will send a representative to North Carolina to reside and to give thorough instruction as to the growth and curing of such tobacco, the methods being entirely different from those in use here curing leaf. The firm has had years of personal experience in cultivating and curing the Turkish leaf. This is a very important matter and Commissioner of Agriculture Graham is naturally much interested in it.—Raleigh Cor. Charlotte Observer.
