in bad standing, or who having been in bad standing may have paid up their arrears in full.

Section 5. It shall be the duty of the Critic of the Society to keep the speeches, deliberations and all exercises of said body upon as high a literary plane as possible by pointing out errors in grammar, logic, punctuation parliamentary use, state appearance and general deportment of this body. She shall not only point out the errors in her criticism but shall call special attention to their merit.

Section 6. It shall be the duty of the ~~Sargeant-at-arms~~ door-keeper to see that none other than the members of this Society enter the hall during the meetings of this body. She shall always be near the door during the meetings receive all parties having business with the body, protect our deliberations from intruders, enforce order when demanded by the Chair.

~~Section 7. abolished~~ It shall be the duty of the Auditor to examine from time to time the books and all documents of the Society kept by the several officers of the Society, see that they are properly kept and perform such other duties as the Society may require and make a semi-annual report to the Society, the last report to be made not later than one week after the last regular meeting of the Society for the scholastic year.

abolished