Disclaimers:

By reproducing materials for a patron, Digital Collections does not waive any ownership, copyright, trademark or patent right, protection or restriction that it may have or that may be retained by the donor, lender, or creator of any collection materials; nor does it grant any permission to sell, reproduce, publish, or donate any such collection materials to any other individual or organization. The patron assumes all responsibility for possible infringement of copyrights and/or literary property rights in the act of copying or in the subsequent use of the materials copies.

By purchasing reproductions of materials from Digital Collections, patrons agree to properly cite such materials whenever they appear in any format, published or unpublished. Persons wishing to reproduce, publish, or cite materials must make a separate request to Digital Collections at the address shown below for each reproduction, publication, and citation. The Department will supply suggested citations upon request.

Digital Collections will serve each request for reproduction in a timely manner, in the order received, considering the limitations of staff time and availability. Digital Collections will deliver no order before payment is received. Digital Collections reserves the right to refuse requests to reproduce:

1. entire collections; or
2. more than 30 reproductions per order.
