Farm Price Drop Offsets Industrial Goods Increase

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices remained stable in January as another big drop in farm prices offset increases for industrial goods, the government said today.

The Labor Department said prices actually rose four-tenths of a per cent last month but after adjustment for seasonal variations, the wholesale price index was unchanged.

Since rising 1.8 per cent in October, wholesale prices showed no change in November and declined an adjusted four-tenths of a per cent in December. Over the past three months, they have declined at an adjusted annual rate of 1.7 per cent.

This continued moderation of inflationary pressures and the report last week of a sharp drop in the nation's unemployment rate gives support to the Ford administration's forecast of continued economic recovery in the new year.

It also offered consumers the prospect of an easing in retail prices in the coming months, as trends in wholesale prices usually are reflected later at the retail level.

In January, the wholesale price index for farm products, processed foods and feeds fell 1.8 per cent following declines of 2.5 per cent in December and 1.2 per cent in November.
The decline in agricultural products offset a four-tenths of a per cent increase in industrial commodities.

Over the past 12 months, wholesale prices were up 4.4 per cent. The index stood at 179.4, meaning that it cost $179.40 to purchase a variety of goods that sold at wholesale for $100 in the 1967 base period.
Declining prices for live poultry, cattle, eggs and fresh vegetables led a 2.8 per cent drop in farm prices last month. The index for processed foods and feeds dropped 1.5 per cent after declining 2.9 per cent in December.

The government said prices for processed poultry, beef, veal and dairy products dropped in January, offsetting increases for manufactured animal feeds, sugar and confectionary products.
Wholesale prices for consumer finished foods — those ready for sale on supermarket shelves — declined for the third straight month, dropping 2.2 per cent in January after declining 1.3 per cent in December and four-tenths of a per cent in November.

Consumer finished goods other than food rose three-tenths of a per cent, the same as in December.
Fuel prices, including coal, gas and refined petroleum products, fell last month, offsetting increases for electric power, crude petroleum and coke.

Boeing Co. Investigated For Possible Bribe Role

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as the waves from an international bribery scandal involving Lockheed Aircraft spread across the globe, the government has disclosed it is investigating whether the Boeing Co. engaged in similar activities.

The Securities and Exchange Commission said Thursday it has received information that Boeing "may have made illegal payments to certain foreign government officials in connection with Boeing's foreign operations."

A spokesman for Boeing said in Seattle that the company denies any wrongdoing either in this country or abroad.

Lockheed's board of directors scheduled a meeting today in Los Angeles for discussion of disclosures of international payoffs by the firm. There were reports that two top company executives would resign.

Meanwhile, a business research group said Thursday that about 75 per cent of American companies it surveyed reported pressures to make payoffs to foreign government officials, customers and others.

The Conference Board, an independent nonprofit business research organization, said its study was made of 73 top level executives of representative business firms.

"Cited as the most commonly requested payments are kickbacks and other payoffs to customers and bribes to government officials to overcome red tape," the report said. It said the practice is most widespread in Latin America and the Middle East, with the Far East and Africa "not far behind."

The SEC said in documents filed in U.S. District Court here that Boeing and its president, M.T. Stamper, have declined to turn over information subpoenaed for the probe of possible company payoffs.

The firm asked a U.S. District Court in Seattle for an order to protect its records. The company said it fears the information might be released by the SEC to third parties. Boeing said the information is proprietary and must be protected from needless disclosure.

Judge Thomas A. Flannery ordered Boeing to appear on Feb. 20 to show cause why it has not complied with the SEC subpoena.

Lockheed and one other major aerospace company, Northrop Corp., already have admitted to making millions of dollars in payments to foreign officials and not revealing the payments in their financial statements to the SEC and the public.

Foreign payments are not, in themselves, illegal in this country but failure to mention them in financial statements is unlawful, the SEC says. Domestic political contributions by corporations are illegal.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry said in Tokyo it wants the U.S. government to provide the names of Japanese officials who allegedly received Lockheed payoffs. The firm's payoffs in Japan alone are said to total about $12 million.

A former lawyer for Lockheed in Zurich, Hubert Weisbrod, said he would cooperate fully with a Dutch government investigation into an alleged payment of $1 million to Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands.

Weisbrod said he made payments for Lockheed into Swiss bank accounts upon orders of the company but that he didn't know how the money was used.

Nigeria Again Taken Over In Military Coup

NIAMEY, Niger (AP) — Broadcasts from Lagos today announced the second military coup in less than seven months in Nigeria.

A lieutenant colonel whose name could not be understood announced the overthrow of Brig. Murtala Muhammed. He said the government had been dissolved, travel was forbidden and a curfew from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. was ordered.

"We are all together," the broadcast said.

The South African radio also reported the coup but gave no details.

It was the fourth military coup in Nigeria, Africa's most populous nation and one of its richest in natural resources, since it got its independence from Britain in 1960.

Muhammed took over the government from Gen. Yakubu Gowon in a bloodless coup last July 29 while Gowon was attending a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity in Kampala, Uganda.

Gowon himself came to power in a coup in July, 1966, six months after the military overthrew the civilian parliamentary government which the British left behind.

A Lagos broadcast monitored by the British Foreign Office in London said the coup was the work of "young revolutionaries."

A Foreign Office spokesman said the coup occurred about 9:30 a.m. and reports were filtering in from the British High Commission in Lagos, the Nigerian capital. But the spokesman said the Foreign Office did not know yet whether there had been any violence or what condition were like in Lagos.

DEMOCRATS MEET—Pitt County Democrats met last night for the annual precinct meetings. Elections of officers and delegates to the Pitt County convention were the main topics of business. Many Demos Still Are Uncommitted RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—There were indications today that many Democratic regulars will go to their party's county conventions March 6 without being committed as to presidential candidates.

This was evidenced by a sampling of Democratic precinct caucuses held Thursday night.

The sampling indicated attendance at the caucuses was much lighter than in 1972. Then the caucus results were an important factor in the selection of national convention delegates.

However, delegates will be apportioned in each Congressional district this year according to the votes the presidential candidates get in the March 23 primary.

The delegates will be selected from lists approved by the candidates. For this reason strength at the precinct caucuses will have little or nothing to do with the selection process.

As a result, local issues became more important to those attending the caucuses. For example the eight Democrats at predominantly black precinct 35 in Raleigh voted unanimously to send an uncommitted group to the county convention. They were mainly concerned about preserving seats of the four black members on the county executive committee.

"I'm not excited enough about any of the presidential candidates to give up the bargaining power we can get by going uncommitted," said precinct chairman George Jones.

In predominantly white precinct 7 in Raleigh, eight people said they were uncommitted while the rest divided among former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

A preliminary check in Fayetteville showed that 154 of the 348 delegates elected to the Cumberland County convention were going uncommitted. No candidate had more than a handful of supporters.

Jane Patterson, Guilford

County chairman, said she had received word around 11 p.m. from about 15 of the county's 80 precincts. She said that about 75 per cent of delegates selected in these precincts were uncommitted and the remaining 25 per cent were fairly evenly divided among five of the presidential candidates.

Many uncommitted delegates were selected in Durham County.

Since the caucuses were not directly related to delegate selection, none of the major candidates made a strong effort to pack them with supporters.

VETO

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today vetoed a $6.1 billion public works employment bill, saying it would "do little to create jobs for the unemployed" and perhaps cost in excess of $25,000 per job.

He said the claims of the bill's sponsors that it would create 600,000 to 800,000 new jobs were "badly exaggerated."

Ford said administration experts estimated that at most, some 250,000 jobs would be created over a period of several years and the impact would come in late 1977 or 1978.

At that point, he said, the total would come to no more than 100,000 to 120,000 new jobs "barely a one-tenth of one per cent improvement in the unemployment rate."

PRODUCE MARKET?

I'd be interested in growing more produce if there were a ready market for it in this area. What are the chances for a state market in the East similar to the one in Raleigh? If they're slim, how do I make arrangements to sell in Raleigh? R. T.

Charles Murray, manager of the State Farmers Market in Raleigh, said he knows of no plans for a state market in this area, though certain legislators in the western part of the state have provided for starting one in Asheville. He said your best bet would probably be to contract directly with a processor or to attend auctions like the one in Faison during the growing season.

He said many Chambers of Commerce and similar groups throughout the state are setting up fairly small consumer's markets, say on a vacant block in a town, where farmers can back their trucks in and sell. The state market in Raleigh is both a farmer's market and a terminal wholesale market where producers from other states, as well as N.C. sell to grocers and to consumers alike.

If you want to use the Raleigh market, all you must do is come on, he said. The fee to sell is $1 per day.

Produce sellers are also welcome at the Greenville Livestock Auction on Highway 30, says the manager, D. M. Owens. Auctions are held each Wednesday, and produce may be sold at auction for a 15 per cent fee or sellers may set up on the grounds and sell all they wish at their own price for a $3 to $5 fee.

Wallace Delays Visits

RALEIGH (AP)—A decision under which Alabama Gov. George Wallace is not scheduled to campaign personally in North Carolina until the week before North Carolina's March 23 primary was announced Thursday by Wallace's national headquarters.

The announcement said previously planned Wallace appearances in Charlotte on Feb. 20 and in Raleigh on Feb. 23 have been canceled.

Price Stone of the headquarters scheduling staff said Wallace had decided to spend more time in Massachusetts and Florida which will hold primaries before North Carolina's.

Two other candidates in the North Carolina primary, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., are scheduled to visit North Carolina soon.

Jackson is due in Asheville next Tuesday for what has proved to be a weekly series of campaign stops in North Carolina.

Meanwhile, the Carter campaign has scheduled a fund-raising dinner in Greensboro on Feb. 29 with Carter as the principal speaker.

Man Killed By A Falling Tree

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Sol Williams Jr. of Rocky Mount was killed Thursday when struck on the head by a falling tree as he worked at a logging site near Lucama, about 10 miles south of Wilson.

Williams was struck from behind by a tree felled by another worker.

Candy-Time

VALENTINE'S DAY IS HERE AGAIN—Hearts, flowers, and candies are a girl's treat on Valentine's day, Saturday. Stores in Greenville have been decorated for the last few weeks with large boxes of candies and brightly colored cards for the occasion. Terry Jackson holds one of the many boxes of candy on sale for Valentine's day. One merchant said the larger box of five pounds was one of his best sellers. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Drowned In Sound

BAYBORO, N.C. (AP)—A New Bern youth who struck out on an adventure with a friend last Friday drowned in Pamlico Sound, according to Pamlico County authorities.

The body of Robert Lauren Frazier, 14, was recovered in the sound about 9 a.m. today.

A spokesman for the Craven County Sheriff's Department said Frazier and Johnny Baker, 14, also of New Bern, ran away from their homes last Friday, stole a boat and headed into the Pamlico Sound.

They were reported missing last Friday and authorities searched for them during the week.

The boat ran aground Tuesday on a small island, Baker told authorities.

Baker said Frazier started swimming the two miles to the mainland. Baker, who remained on the island, said he later found Frazier's lifejacket but did not see the youth again.

Baker was found by two Pamlico County deputies Thursday. He was hospitalized in New Bern, and doctors said he was suffering from exposure to cold and wind.

Children Neglect Elderly Mother

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have an elderly mother who has been in a nursing home for the last four years. I am one of her three children. (One son and two daughters.) We all live within a 45-minute drive from the nursing home, and all of us contribute equally toward the expenses, but I am the only one who visits her. I go there every day.

My brother goes once in four months. He says, "I just can't take it. That place is so depressing!" Can you believe it? He calls Mamma on the phone maybe once a week and keeps asking her if she "needs" anything. (All she needs is for him to visit once in a while.)

My sister runs over there once a month for five minutes. She doesn't even sit down. She tells me the "smell" of that place makes her sick. How is that for an excuse?

Although Mamma gets confused once in a while, she is far from senile. I know she's hurt, but there's nothing I can do about it.

Please print this. The shoe will fit both a woman, size 6, and a man, size 10. Let them wear it!

HAD IT IN DETROIT

DEAR HAD IT: The shoe for this situation has no size. One size fits all.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem and I need help. I have been married for six years, and my husband still acts as though we have been married only a few days.

He won't keep his hands off me. We can have marital relations for an hour straight, and he is ready to go again in 15 minutes. I don't ever reach a climax.

Should my husband see a doctor, or should I get some energy pills?

MRS. A. IN KILGORE, TEX.

DEAR MRS. A.: Energy pills won't help. You need professional help.

(P.S. Too bad your husband wasn't born during Biblical times when a man could have as many wives as he could support.)

Convert Garage Into Apartment

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures Writer

Trying to find inexpensive housing to accommodate your ma and pa?

Converting a garage into living space might be the answer and it could make a good fall and winter project.

If you can do without the garage, it can make a cozy home for parents or it might be used as a guest cottage or even provide an income in areas where zoning regulations permit such rentals.

One remodeled garage seen recently is an example of what can be done with a 20 by 20 space. Originally a one-car garage, an additional five feet had been added.

The unit was converted into living and sleeping quarters for two and has ample clothes and storage closets, a handsome bathroom and a complete efficiency kitchen which includes a washing machine. It also has a small heating and air-conditioning unit in the wall paneling. Outside, a small patio was created by erecting a fence of saplings which provides privacy from the main house.

The front of the garage became an entranceway with a doorway on one side and two full-size windows. About four feet from the door is a divider which separates the kitchen from view as you enter. To the left of the entranceway created by the divider is the opening into the living area. The efficiency kitchen is separated from the living area by a short wall with a four-foot opening into the living room.

A two-and-a-half-foot-deep efficiency area includes a washing machine, a range, a stainless steel sink with drains and a small cutting board counter top in its approximately 10 feet. Below are a good size base cabinet, a roomy refrigerator as well as a storage cabinet with shelves placed under the cutting board. On the walls separated by a window over the stainless steel sink unit are two double-hanging cupboards. Two and a half feet width of floor space is provided.

A door from the kitchen leads to a bathroom which is about 7 feet by 5 feet. To the left as you enter, recessed into a right angle of the living area, is the bathtub. Facing the bathroom door is a wash basin with a mirrored, built-in cabinet with shelves above it. To the right of the basin is a floor-to-ceiling closet. This fits snugly into the area next to the window which is on the right wall above the water closet.

In the living area the right angle created by the bathroom wall serves on one side as a convenient place for a chest of drawers and on its other side with the kitchen wall as a cozy eating niche that accommodates a round table and from four to six chairs.

A two-closet wall extends 13 feet across the rear of the building and meets the bathroom wall. Two feet deep, there is a storage closet with a door that provides deep shelves to the left and enough floor space to accommodate vacuum cleaner, broom and other cleaning utensils. To the right of it is a clothes closet with sliding doors, perhaps 8 feet long. A long shelf extends across it.

The long sleeping wall has two 6-foot-plus studio lounges separated by a chest of drawers with room to open the storage closet door, which is directly adjacent to the sliding doors.

All windows have upper and lower shutters that were stained brown to match the grooved wallboard in the living and kitchen area, the most difficult part of the project, the owner said. The good insulation and carpeted living and kitchen floors give a sense of quietude, coziness and spaciousness.

When the garage was extended to accommodate the kitchen, bath and entranceway, the lower ceiling added to the coziness while the pitched roof in the living area was complimented by three boxed beams below it that gave the room an illusion of a cathedral ceiling. (It also provides a good place to stash 11-foot fishing rods.) Another boxed beam goes from kitchen area across the entranceway to the front of the house.

Between the two front windows is a small drop-leaf occasional table with two chairs on either side of it. Another window in the entranceway wall provides additional light. In the kitchen there is a recessed ceiling light. A hanging ceiling light might improve the living area, which uses only two lamps.

Cheerful yellow fixtures and a shuttered window in the yellow bathroom provide another plus in the converted garage where every inch of space was well-planned and put to good use. It is a project to put on paper before you begin, advises the owner. It takes time to find the appliances, cabinets and all the rest that will fit into the amount of space one has. Space must be figured for insulation, walls and so on. In small spaces one important consideration must be that doors open successfully.

Behind this converted garage is a small room that houses the oil burner which has its switch between the storage and clothes closets. A good-looking heating and air-conditioning unit takes up little space and is recessed into the wall above the chest of drawers between studio beds.

A lighter paneling, perhaps in a pickled white finish, would provide the same easy maintenance as the darker paneling and should be more cheerful.

Students Of School On Wheels Use Country As Their Classroom

KILLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — The odometer of the Trailside Country School bus recently turned over and once again the mileage read as a row of zeroes. This was the tenth time it had done so, signifying that in the past seven years students in the unusual school on wheels have traveled one million miles.

"It's our sixth bus," said the school's organizer and director, Mike Cohen, of the vehicle that brought to that total the mileage covered in the ecology and environmental studies travel program.

"The school is based on the idea that direct experience and confrontation with natural and social phenomena are a valid form of education," Cohen explains.

The school year begins in September on Trailside's 200-acre wildlife sanctuary in Killington. Here the students meet each other for the first time and spend a week "orienting" themselves to the lakes, woods, caves and fauna of the Northern hardwood forest, as well as to one another.

After Vermont it's off to the White Mountains of New Hampshire for life zone study and hiking; Acadia National Park, Maine, to study the tide pools, and Martha's Vineyard for 10 days of bicycling and geology. The New England stay is completed with a week at Sturbridge Village, Mass., studying the life and ecology of the Federalist period.

From there 20 or so students and staff of three or four go to Bowmansville, Pa., for an anthropological look into Amish community life while participating in farm work. The they go south to Florida and the Virgin Islands for study of ornithology, tropical ecology and for reef exploration.

The next four months are spent backpacking, hiking, exploring caves, studying archaeology, looking for fossils, visiting museums and observatories and exploring in Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, California, Idaho and Washington.

"All this is interspersed with about seven weeks of vacation and independent study breaks in which the students can go home and try out some of the ideas and concepts about group living and relating that they've acquired," Cohen says. "It is also a time for reading, writing critical essays and other projects."

These have included building a dulcimer, making a quilt, constructing a loom, building an old-fashioned rocking chair, hand binding a book and conducting a seminar on how birds fly, notes the director.

"The main object is for our students to learn to live closer to nature and to be less dependent on modern technology," explains Diana Cohen, Mike's wife and codirector of the school. "Learning to comfortably camp out wherever we are — tropics, deserts, woodlands, alpine areas — in all seasons and weather-conditions helps achieve independence."

"We utilize private and public campgrounds as well as wilderness areas. We've tented in the tropical forests of the Virgin Islands in January and in Colorado plateau blizzards in March. When we travel long distances we stop at night and camp out."

The students resolve the problem of food purchasing and cooking out through a rotating committee system. "Many learn to be excellent cooks and dietitians by the end of the year even though they are using only portable gas stoves," says Mrs. Cohen.

Sign Language Would Open TV Entertainment

By WILLIAM CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Turn off the sound on your television set for a while, and you'll see what Timothy Medina's getting at.

He puts the news into sign language for the deaf each day at noon on a local television station (WTTG, Metromedia), and would like to see the practice extended to the whole range of television programming.

The National Association of the Deaf, where Medina works as a sign language teacher, says 40 to 45 commercial television stations across the country broadcast captioned or sign language programs on a regular basis for deaf viewers, including news, variety, religious and educational programs.

In addition, it said, 132 stations of the Public Broadcasting Service are regularly carrying a captioned version of the ABC Evening News on late night broadcasts.

Medina would like television programmers to see their medium in silence.

"I would want to get them to see programs without the audio," he told an interviewer. "They could see how little one can get out of them that way."

He says educational, entertainment, even musical programs can be presented in sign language.

Musically, he said, "we do rhythmic signs, and the whole body flows with the music."

Born 29 years ago in Rawlins, Wyo., Medina was 17 when he lost his hearing as a result of a scuba diving accident that left his ears permanently damaged by infection.

Medina learned to communicate by sign language. Luckily, he already knew how to speak, unlike those who have been deaf since birth or early childhood.

On television, his speaking voice is normal except for a touch of staccato, which he attributes to "signing" words and reading simultaneously from a script or prompter.

The deaf cannot follow the action on television simply by reading lips because many words do not come across that clearly, Medina said.

"The words 'variety,' 'Friday' and 'fried egg' look very much alike," he said.

The sign language for those words is quite different.

"Variety" is made with the two index fingers facing each other and making a rapping motion. "Friday" is putting thumb and forefinger together, with the other fingers sticking up, and then rotating the hand. "Fried" is spelled out, and "egg" is a gesture of both hands with index and second finger held together.

Medina spells out proper names. There is a sign for "President," for example, but "Ford" has to be spelled out, "F-o-r-d."

"That slows me down," he said.

Medina's sign language speed is about 180 words a minute, just as fast as most broadcasters speak.

He prefers reading news items at the same time he "signs," rather than having a broadcaster read aloud to his sign language.

"Eye contact is important to deaf persons," he said.

Medina estimates his potential local deaf audience totals 164,000 persons. Nationally, he said, there are more than 13 million Americans with some loss of hearing who would enjoy signed or captioned programs.

Retail sales of yard goods for apparel rose from 636 million square yards in 1965 to 1,355 million square yards in 1974.

Highway Realignment Achieved

A long expected realignment of the area highways has been accomplished by the Department of Transportation.

U. S. 264, which for as long as anyone can remember, has followed a route east of Greenville to Grimesland and Chocowinity, where it joined U. S. 17 to Washington.

Now U. S. 264 has been moved from that route to the Pactolus Highway. The change would not have been possible without the completion of the Eastern bypass, which furnishes a dual lane route on the east side of Greenville across the Tar River.

In addition to that change N. C. 33 has been moved from the Pactolus Highway to the Grimesland Chocowinity Road. West of Greenville N.C. 33 has been extended along the Penny Hill Road to U. S. 64 near Tarboro.

Finally the old section of N. C. 33 from Pactolus to Bethel has been renumbered as N.C. 30.

A dual lane route will be available to U. S. 264 traffic on both approaches to Greenville, when the section now under construction on the Pactolus Highway is completed.

The U. S. 264 route is not ideal along Greenville Boulevard where the various shopping areas are located, but this problem was the same before the rerouting took place and something will have to be done in the next few years to alleviate this congestion.

But the new 264 route via Pactolus is a better, straighter road eastward for U. S. 264.

The business and towns along the old U. S. 264 route will be losing the traffic that route offered. On the other hand the extension of N.C. 33 to U. S. 64 should bring additional traffic on this route. N. C. 33 now runs to Aurora and the growth occasioned by phosphate mining is well known. Thus this could become a busy route indeed in the years ahead.

Moving a major highway designation is not something that is lightly done since maps have to be changed and new travel habits have to be adopted by the motoring public.

We think in this case the Department of Transportation has made a wise move and that everyone will eventually benefit from the area highway changes.

Health Systems Agency Established

A convener group charged with establishment of a governing board for Health Services Area VI has adopted a permanent 53 seat board.

The board includes 51 percent consumers, 49 percent providers, with 33 percent elected officials (from the consumer, provider total).

Establishment of the Health Systems Agency for this 29-county area got off to a rocky start. It's work will be important, however, and we hope that the new board will function smoothly.

Election 'Crusade' Opens

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It is more to him than just an election, says the Reverend Coy C. Privette of his bid for the Republican nomination to run for governor next November.

Privette sees his campaign as a "crusade to return confidence and morality to government," and even though Baptist preachers generally make a move only when "called," the Kananapolis minister says in this case he has not felt moved by the Lord to enter politics.

Currently president of the North Carolina Baptist Convention, and for a long time active in leadership and president of the statewide Christian Action League, Privette is quick to claim a broad base of support in church circles.

I have been preaching, and others have as well, that Christians ought to get involved. I've told my congregation that, and some have responded.

Get Involved

"Now, it is time for me to get involved. . . sure, I see this as a crusade to restore confidence and morality in government," Privette said. The Christian Action League represents 12 denominations, and has been growingly politically active under Privette's leadership.

Isn't the Christian Action League somewhat akin to the private interest groups which Privette is denouncing in his campaign?

"Yes, it is a special interest group, but members do this out of personal conviction, and not as paid lobbyists. . . our past practice in government has been that those doing the winning and the dining usually carry the weight," Privette said.

It is time, now, for the grassroots people to put the pressure on politicians to do the right things. And even as a Republican governor with a Democratic General Assembly, as would be the case should he win, Privette feels that "120 legislators may be against a particular people-oriented proposal, but if the people are on my side, we can get it passed."

The hardest part of his campaign will be winning support of the rank-and-file Republican voter to survive the August primary. By most counts, his GOP opponent will be David T. Flaherty, present secretary of the State Department of Human Resources.

Flaherty will no doubt have the support of the Republican hierarchy and the party machinery. Privette faces additional problems from his active work for more than one Democratic candidate in the past.

Which Party?

In fact, he had what he termed "strong encouragement" to run for governor as a Democrat, Privette said, and to those who wonder if he can gain widespread Republican primary endorsement, he says, "we have to look past the primary, to next November. . . to consider who can win in the election if nominated."

"I believe the people are looking for somebody to trust and put their confidence in."

His most important asset Privette feels is credibility; he is not a professional politician, and he is widely known and trusted in the suburban and rural churches of the state where the liquor-by-the-drink battle was fought and won under his leadership. It is from those same grassroots people he will seek support in the coming campaign, Privette said.

The central theme in his campaign will be battle against pet governmental projects and legislation enacted to satisfy "special and vested interest groups," Privette says, and adds that the growing governmental bureaucracy "has become insensitive to the needs of people and has lost its conscience."

He promises fuller development of other campaign issues as time goes by, but right away took a stance on two: he is for capital punishment because "when an individual deliberately takes the life of another individual, he forfeits his right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;" and he would establish a tax study panel of citizens, not legislators, to review the tax structure and propose changes.

REPLICAS ABOUND

Liberty Bells In 50 States

By CHRIS ROBERTS

Associated Press Writer

Full-scale replicas of the Liberty Bell, presented to each state in 1950 to promote a U.S. Savings Bond drive, are clanging, as best they can, for a new cause — America's 200th birthday.

Over the years, the bells had been forgotten. Some were misplaced.

Now, with the country celebrating the Bicentennial, they are being liberated from warehouses and state house basements across the land and used again, although some of the 25-year-old replicas have not held up as well as their great-great-great-granddaddy in Philadelphia.

Oregonians last July 4 rang their bell with a hammer. The clapper, stowed in a storeroom some years back by a forgetful soul, couldn't be located.

Today, the clapper is back in place. And this year on the Fourth, Oregon's bell-ringing will be more traditional.

Georgia's bell has languished on a concrete slab in a back corner of the state capitol since 1950, but there's a move afoot to hoist it to a park across the street in time for July 4.

The restoration is part of a national campaign by the American Bell Association, people interested in rescuing bells in distress. The gong lovers hope to marshal the replicas for a five-minute unison chiming on Independence Day.

Not only were some of the bells misplaced over the years (South Carolina's was found last summer in the tunnels of the state house), but some were appropriated.

Illinois officials began a search for their bell after overhearing the brass from other states discussing the replicas at a recent conference.

"We began asking around and finally got a tip from someone that it was out at the fire station" at the fairgrounds north of Springfield, explains Norbert Johnson, the man charged with the bell's restoration.

Last spring, Illinois Secretary of State Michael Howlett had the bell placed on a flatbed trailer. Since July 31 it's traveled more than 10,000 miles to 150 Illinois communities to be viewed at schools, shopping centers and town squares to promote Bicentennial spirit.

Other states also are taking their bells to meet the people. Nebraska's bell, hitched to a National Guard truck, is expected to have visited 300 communities by year's end. Kentucky's was retrieved from a warehouse last year and likewise put on tour until year's end.

Unlike the real McCoy, the replicas are not cracked. Cast in Ancey, France, at a cost of approximately $2,200 each, they weigh about 2,000 pounds apiece. The U.S. Treasury Department presented the bells to each state for the U.S. Savings Bond Independence Day Drive in 1950, but did not pay for them. Six copper companies did.

The real bell, also weighing about 2,000 pounds, is now housed in a modern viewing

How Sara Lee Started

"Rep. Bella Abzug said last week that the recent Supreme Court ruling on campaign expenditures would make it harder than ever for women to run for public office.

"The reason, she said, is that most women candidates simply do not have ties to multimillionaires who can put unlimited amounts of money into political advertising under the court's decision." —New York Times item.

What Ms. Abzug says is probably true. But there is a certain type of woman who does have access to multimillionaires, and who might decide to run for public office.

The scene is an apartment on Park Avenue. Huddleston Theabody III has just arrived.

"Sara Lee. Where's my little cheesecake hiding?" he yells.

"Here I am, Tiger," says Sara Lee, running out in her black negligee and throwing her arms around him. "Did my Tiger have a tough day at the office?"

"Tiger had a marvelous day. The stock market went up 20 points. The reason I'm late is that I stopped by Tiffany's and bought my little Sara Lee a present." He hands her a box.

She opens it and takes out a diamond bracelet.

"It's very nice," she says. "Nice? It cost me a bundle. Don't you like it?"

Sara Lee takes Huddleston over to the couch and cuddles up to him. "I don't want jewelry any more."

"A fur coat then! Go to Bergdorf's tomorrow and pick up a fur coat. Anything my little cheesecake wants."

"I don't want a fur coat. I have five already," she says, chewing on his ear.

"A trip? Would you like to go to Paris? I'll say I have to go to Europe for the firm."

"No, I don't want to go on a trip."

"Well, what do you want?"

Sara Lee, as she unbuttons Huddleston's shirt, says, "I want to run for the Senate from New York."

"You want to do what?"

"I want to run for the Senate. It would be a lot of fun, and it's something that would make me think of you all the time. Is my big strong Tiger going to let me run?"

"Now wait. Diamonds and fur coats are one thing, but financing a Senate campaign is another."

"I'll bet if that skeleton wife of yours wanted to run for the Senate you'd give her the money," Sara Lee pouts.

"That isn't true. I'm not sure I want to put up money for anyone running for public office. Look, how would you like a new Aston Martin to go with your Mercedes Benz 450?"

Sara Lee moves to the other end of the couch. "I don't want another car. I want to serve my country. If you really cared for me, you'd let me announce your candidacy."

"I love you," Huddleston protests. "I'd do anything for you. But if I give you the money to run for public office, I'm going to have to declare it. My wife is going to ask me why I'm supporting you. Where are you going?"

"I'm getting into something less comfortable."

"Little cheesecake," Huddleston jumps up, trying to grab her. "Would you like a town house instead of an apartment?"

"Unhand me, you brute."

Sara Lee pushed him away. "I've never asked you for a thing, and finally when all I want for my itty bitty self is a

To the Editor:

The Federal government has required all states to develop, through local efforts, a program to reach the poor, the near poor, and the working poor with information about the availability and benefits of the Food Stamp Program. This effort is called Project Reach II.

Project Reach II is an attempt to find those Pitt County residents that are eligible but not enrolled in the Food Stamp Program. This project seeks to ensure that a lack of understanding or information is not the reason for lack of participation. To accomplish the goals of Project Reach II, volunteers are needed.

Using the 1970 Census figures provided by Mrs. Bet Rouse, Food Stamp Coordinator with the Department of Social Services, approximately 24,500 people in Pitt County were living below poverty level. Of that number it is estimated 15,000 would be eligible for food stamp assistance. Currently, there are only about 10,000 enrolled in the Pitt County Food Stamp Program. That leaves at least 5,000 people who are eligible, but not receiving food stamp assistance.

The volunteer effort is locally coordinated by Barbara Turner of the VISTA Project, with the cooperation of Mrs. Rouse of the Department of Social Services. Please call the VISTA office (758-2030) and offer a contribution of your time.

It is appropriate to remind ourselves that an inadequate diet for a pregnant woman can cause irrevocable damage to the unborn child. Young children will never develop to their mental or physical potential without an adequate diet. Adults will not maintain their strength and their productivity and interest in life will falter. An inadequate diet will shorten the remaining years of the elderly.

Good reasons to volunteer a few hours of our time.

Soviet Arms To Zambia

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union reportedly has delivered new tanks and other military equipment to Zambia, which until now has backed anti-Soviet forces in the Angolan civil war, according to U.S. intelligence sources.

The Soviet military shipments were disclosed after Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said representatives of Zambia and Zaire have indicated that their countries are ready to accept a victory by the pro-Soviet Popular Movement in neighboring Angola.

The intelligence report of recent Soviet arms shipments to Zambia did not link that development with any shift in the Zambian position on Angola. It said simply that Zambia recently received eight Soviet T54 tanks and 20 amphibious scout cars. Zambia has accepted some Soviet military aid in the past, but not since 1974 so far as is known.

Popular Movement troops, spearheaded by Cuban soldiers and tanks, have been scoring major gains against western-backed Angolan forces, and there has been growing evidence that the war may end soon, at least in terms of a conventional fight. Leaders of the pro-Western factions have threatened to turn to guerrilla warfare.

Deputy Defense Secretary Robert Ellsworth told Congress last week that "Zaire and Zambia . . . could be exposed to the dangers of active Soviet-supported insurgency as a consequence of their assistance" to the factions backed by Western nations.

In a statement issued by his office here, Tunney said he met last week with representatives from Zambia and Zaire and that both called for a political solution to the Angolan civil war.

With Zambia and Zaire apparently changing their positions, Tunney said the Ford administration is alone in its Angola stand. The senator said this policy displays "a singular lack of common sense."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told a news conference Thursday the United States has no objection to the Popular Movement by itself, but rather

40 Years Ago Today

In the aftermath of political fires, kindled on Lincoln Day by both major parties, the New Dealers and their foes warmed up today for impending primary and election struggles.

While Republicans, led by former President Hoover, assailed the administration, the New Deal leadership moved quietly about the business of crystallizing plans for the June convention at Philadelphia.

All intercollegiate athletic contests scheduled for North Carolina State College this week were cancelled today upon orders of Dr. A. C. Bulla, Wake County health officer, due to a case of meningitis and the prevalence of meningitis among the students.

The action resulted in the calling off of the State-Carolina basketball game set for tomorrow night.

Numbers Do Not Mean Reality

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In this economy of statistics we are conditioned to believe that the cold, hard numbers really do depict reality, despite the questioning and even opposition of our own instincts.

Why the numbers have to be reality, don't they? Isn't it the numbers that determine economic policy, make the stock market go up and down, tell us if we are rich or poor, better or worse? Of course.

It is disquieting, therefore, to look into the numbers and fail to find reality, but instead a maze of equations and subjective assumptions, most of them seasonally and otherwise adjusted and revised.

We see 1.3 million people not counted as unemployed because they are too disheartened to look for work. We are almost prepared to accept as logical reasoning that, seasonally adjusted, nobody in America needs a furnace or an air conditioner, and Lake Erie never freezes.

Today there are new figures to contemplate, the retail sales figures for the final two months of the year. The "preliminary" December figure came out Tuesday, almost unobserved.

To obtain perspective, one must measure the November performance first. It wasn't a very good month. Sales were flat. The weekly retail sales figures released each Thursday demonstrated that.

However, on Dec. 10 the government came forth on schedule with its "advance" monthly report on November sales. This report, issued in the midst of the Christmas selling season, showed a surge in November sales.

You might recall how electrifying this news was. It was greeted by retailers and consumers and investors and government officials as evidence of renewed consumer confidence, as evidence that the economy was moving ahead.

Statistical confirmation of this came in the December weekly retail sales figures which indicated sales for the final month would indeed be strong.

On Jan. 10 we find that the November sales figures were revised downward to show very little gain at all over October. However, this set the stage for the December "advance" figures, announced simultaneously. The latter showed an enormous 3.4 per cent jump over November sales.

Once again the news was proclaimed as evidence of a much stronger economy than we had dared hope for.

Meanwhile, the December weekly figures were being revised downward. Then on Feb. 10 we received the "preliminary" December figures; they showed another downward revision. Some $400 million was dropped, to bring the advance down to 2.7 per cent from 3.4 per cent. Few people noticed.

It is interesting to observe that, while January "advance" retail sales fell three-tenths of one per cent from the downward revised "preliminary" December figures, a Treasury economist commented that later revisions will show no downturn at all.

to "outside imposition of a government in Angola," meaning Soviet and Cuban support for the Popular Movement.

The current year's U.S. aid program includes $19 million in arms sales credits for Zaire. Zambia never has received U.S. military aid.

Meanwhile, President Ford said Thursday that if the Soviets or Cuba tried to make a colony of Angola, he will ask Congress to "meet the challenge without the utilization of American military personnel." He did not elaborate.

And Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., referring to Ford's previous statement that Congress "has lost its guts" on the Angolan issue, said it might be "more appropriate to think that the President was losing his mind."

Liberty Bells...

pavilion across from Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

It hasn't rung since 1846, when its famous crack grew while the bell was peeling on George Washington's birthday. A powerful clap 11 years earlier at the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall first split the shell.

The replica bells were built to toll and in some states have been tolling for years.

"If there's a reason for it we let anybody ring it," says Floyd Williams, a state buildings official in Arizona. "It almost knocks the dome off the capitol."

Missouri, perhaps, has had the biggest flap over a replica bell, and that fuss concerned the bell's dedication at a new location.

The bell sat in a corner of the capitol in Jefferson City until 1966. That fall it was moved outside to a brass and red pagoda-like structure overlooking the Missouri River.

Many citizens felt the bell's new home was in appalling contrast to the nearby white stone capitol, prompting a Kansas City newspaper to observe, "The dedication of the Liberty Bell reminded viewers of their freedom to disagree."

Although there were only 48 states when the replicas were delivered, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Hawaii and Alaska also got bells. So did the District of Columbia.

Hawaii's probably has logged more miles than the rest.

After reception on July 4, 1950, it was taken by ship to each of the Hawaiian islands for display in public schools.

In 1956, the bell was shipped to the West Coast for a ceremonial journey to Washington. Along the way it was "rung for liberty" to promote Hawaii's desire for statehood, realized three years later.

After the trip to the nation's capital, 5,000 miles away, the bell was returned to Honolulu and put on display in the state office building. Last fall, it was moved to a courtyard in front of the federal building in downtown Honolulu.

Some of the bells have, needed repair or have been defaced over the years.

Several yokes rotted away and had to be replaced. Kansas' bell bears signatures, carved on the bell's interior by visitors. In Utah, placard-happy protesters occasionally find the bell a convenient place to advertise a cause.

The bell that ended up with perhaps the prettiest spot is New Mexico's.

It rests in a Bicentennial garden at the state fairgrounds in Albuquerque, surrounded by straw flowers, black-eyed Susans, and 48 other plant varieties that were popular 200 years ago.

Tommy Dean Hager, 29, of Mooresville, foreman of the crew laying sewer pipe to a school under construction, was killed. He was buried alive, and rescuers didn't free him until more than an hour later.

Integration Goals Not Met By 3 Campuses

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—A report says all of the University of North Carolina's 16 campuses but three have surpassed interim goals for integration of their student bodies.

According to the 200-page report UNC prepared for the U.S. Office of Civil Rights, the three schools that failed to reach their goals were predominantly black—Elizabeth City State University, Fayetteville State University and N.C. Central University.

The report was dated Jan. 31 and released Thursday. It outlines the progress the UNC system has made in meeting commitments made in the desegregation plan it submitted to OCR in 1974.

The report said the proportion of white students in UNC's five predominantly black campuses increased from 5.9 per cent in the fall of 1973 to 7.5 per cent last fall, but failed to reach the plan's goal of 8.2 per cent set. It said that out of a total of 15,803 students in the five schools last fall, 1,193 were non-blacks.

According to the report, the system's 11 predominantly white campuses enrolled 5.2 per cent blacks last fall. This surpassed the plan's goal of 4.1 per cent. The predominantly white schools enrolled 3.7 per cent blacks in the fall of 1973. In the fall of 1975, they enrolled 4,627 blacks out of a total enrollment of 88,742.

John Sanders, UNC vice president for planning, said in an interview that the university had received no written notice of OCR's assessment of UNC's desegregation efforts since the agency last summer threatened to initiate enforcement proceedings. Such proceedings could have led to the loss of some $100 million the UNC system receives in federal funds each year.

During a meeting with UNC officials in Washington later, OCR withdrew the threat, but Sanders said the withdrawal has never been put in writing. The threat came after UNC decided to build a school of veterinary medicine at predominantly white N.C. State University in Raleigh rather than at predominantly black N.C. Agricultural and Technical University in Greensboro.

No mention of the veterinary school was made in the report.

The report stated that increasing numbers of blacks were being hired in administrative and teaching jobs at predominantly white schools while fewer were being hired in secretarial and service positions. Similarly, the predominantly black schools are hiring more whites in low level positions as well as in teaching and administrative positions.

In the report, the university acknowledged that its promised program of exchanging faculty members between predominantly white and predominantly black campuses had failed. It said "there appears to be little faculty interest in this program." An "alternative arrangement" was promised by midyear.

Babies In Church Argued Pro And Con

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
"Ban the babies from church," urges an Ohio clergyman. "Bawling babies unrestrained or unmoved by rude parents are the greatest obstacle to the people of God hearing the Word of God since the barbarians invaded Christendom in the fifth century." But there has been a stiff outcry of rebuttal to his suggestion. He should "pick on somebody his own size instead of innocent children and parents of them," says the Rev. James Thurman of Kenosha, Wis.

"Suffer the little children to come unto me," reminds Rose Ann Dantone of Peoria, Ill., quoting Jesus. The seriocomic controversy was sparked by the Rev. Frank

E. Fortkamp of Columbus, Ohio, in an article in U.S. Catholic, a national magazine published by the Claretian Fathers. He says it's time to stop the "infant invasion of the churches."

we'll ever know." Instead of banning babies, says Domenica Moorman of Smithtown, N.Y., "we should ban dull homilies (sermons)."

On the other hand, Father Fortkamp's sortie also had its supporters. "Bellowing babies distract the congregation," writes Vola Burakowski of Norfolk, Va. The message gets "lost in the 'din'.... I love kids, but don't think it is fair for the parents to drag all the kids along." The Rev. William R. Mayers of Blaine, Ohio, says the sermon deserves to "be free from this commonplace distraction" by youngsters. "The efforts should be to exclude the crying little ones until ... they're church-broken."

In a statistical breakdown of reaction, the magazine found that 54 per cent consider crying babies an annoying distraction but that less than half — 46 per cent — favored an outright exclusion. Fifty per cent said parents should bring all their children to church, but the largest percentage, 57 per cent, favored provision for a "cry-room" to which to retreat when the infant decibels rise.

Another Report Finds Little Or No Harm From Marijuana

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't fret about their health if your teen-agers are experimenting with marijuana. The majority of them are these days and it's safer than booze or cigarettes, says Dr. Robert L. DuPont of the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

pot himself when he was younger and didn't know better.

Not that DuPont, a physician, is a marijuana advocate. Quite the contrary, he told newsmen Thursday. "If it was up to me I would stop use of all of these drugs (marijuana, alcohol and tobacco) at the wave of my hand," he said.

But kids will be kids, he said, and it's important for parents

"not to get so uptight" if their youngsters try pot a few times. The most recent survey shows that for the first time a majority of 53 per cent of youths in the 18 to 25 age group admitted trying marijuana and 12 per cent of the 14 and 15 years olds are current users.

DuPont's advice to youths is: Don't take it up if you haven't already because it's expensive, messy and does pose some health risks.

But the hazards are not as serious as cigarettes and alcohol, he said.

"Alcohol really does kill people from overdoses," he said, "but it is virtually impossible to die from marijuana."

Cigarettes cause cancer and respiratory and heart disease, he added, but marijuana doesn't even cause bronchitis except among very heavy smokers. And the institute's fifth marijuana report to Congress contains no evidence it causes permanent biological harm, he said.

If you smoke pot and are determined to continue, DuPont said, "use as little as possible and as responsibly as possible."

Marijuana intoxication can impair your reflexes and judgment just the same as too much beer, wine or liquor and presents a "clear and present danger" to auto drivers and machinery operators, he said. And, he added, there's still a lot scientists don't know about marijuana's effects on the body's chemistry and what they do know might be thrown out the window when more potent varieties of marijuana and hashish oil are used.

DuPont said he personally favors a $25 fine rather than jail sentences for simple possession of small amounts of marijuana. That would provide a signal that pot smoking is "prohibited behavior," he said, and imprisonment would be reserved for dealers in the drug.

Mrs. Roger Steidel, of North Royalton, Ohio, says "the church is God's house and God loves the children more than

"Ban the babies!"

But a contrary chorus came from those who disagreed. It's "very important for the family to participate" as a group, including the young, says Sister Eugenia Brown of Guthrie, Okla. "Prayer and Christianity are 'caught more than taught.'"

"Fie on Father Fortkamp," says the Rev. James J. Doyle of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. He said babies are "here to stay. My plan: Let's outshoot them! Let our motto be Preacher Power!"

Mrs. Roger Steidel, of North Royalton, Ohio, says "the church is God's house and God loves the children more than

1776 1976

In our nation's infancy, it was George Washington who showed us the power of faith. Faith gave him the courage to fight on while others fell in despair. Faith sustained him through the dark days of Valley Forge. He never doubted that right would ultimately prevail.

In our own troubled times, we too need the same deep, abiding faith.

The Church now—as in Washington's day—is eager to ease our doubts and to sustain our spiritual needs. With God's help, we shall persevere.

Hearst Defense Ready To Take Floor

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With the prosecution ready to rest its case, Patricia Hearst's attorneys planned to call her ex-fiance today to recount the night of the kidnaping that ultimately led to her trial for bank robbery.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said he would wrap up his case against the 21-year-old newspaper heiress today when he resumed questioning FBI agent Thomas J. Padden, "our final witness."

Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey said he would immediately begin reconstructing Miss Hearst's kidnaping by calling her former fiance, Steven Weed, to the stand.

Weed was left beaten and bleeding at their Berkeley apartment the chilly night of Feb. 4, 1974, when the Symphonese Liberation Army abducted Miss Hearst. He and the defendant have not met since the kidnaping. Miss Hearst was captured here Sept. 18.

The defense maintains that Miss Hearst took part in the bank robbery two months after her kidnaping out of fear for her life.

Browning based his case on Miss Hearst's own words and actions during her bizarre 19-month odyssey through the terrorist underground and on testimony of witnesses who saw her during that time.

The evidence he offered included bank camera photos of her during a San Francisco robbery two months after the kidnaping and a tape recording in which she proclaimed allegiance to the SLA.

Browning called 32 witnesses, including law enforcement officers, persons at the scene of the bank robbery and a Los Angeles area teen-ager who was kidnaped and spent a night with Miss Hearst and SLA members William and Emily Harris.

Bailey has secured U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter's approval to take the jury to two hideouts where Miss Hearst was kept in closets in the weeks just after her kidnaping.

They also will visit the bank that Miss Hearst and the SLA robbed on April 15, 1974.

Bailey said the excursion will be Monday. There will be no courtroom session because of a legal holiday.

The 13th day of the trial ended emotionally for the pale defendant Thursday as the government played for the jury a tape from the SLA featuring Miss Hearst saying she voluntarily joined her captors in the bank heist.

The frail young woman wept when she heard the strident, angry voice of SLA chieftain Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze spew a cold, militaristic account of the bank robbery.

Her shoulders shook visibly, and tears rolled down her face. She seemed to slightly regain her composure when a voice now identified as Harris railed about the news media and authorities fanning racism.

However, when her voice, soft but brimming with disdain, spoke as "Tania, a soldier in the people's army" she bowed her head and nervously rubbed her temple and lips.

Carter stared at the defendant when she referred to Weed on the tape as a "sexist, ageist pig" and then turned toward the recording machine again.

Her father, San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst, stiffened when she called him "Adolf," presumably a reference to Adolf Hitler.

Her mother, Catherine, sat stone-faced, but the seven women and five men on the jury appeared enraptured as they followed her words with a government-prepared transcript.

The jury must decide whether Miss Hearst was forced under threat of death to rob the bank and make the dramatic tape, as she has testified outside their presence.

Browning originally intended to play only the portion containing Miss Hearst's speech, but Bailey insisted that the jury hear the entire reel.

DeFreeze and five other SLA members were killed in a gun battle with Los Angeles police a month later. The Harrises are in custody in Los Angeles.

Bailey fought long and bitterly to have the tape barred from her trial, contending that "words forced from her should not be used to convict her."

Miss Hearst, at a special two-day hearing this week on whether to admit the tape, testified that her boastful revolutionary words were written by slain SLA member Angela Atwood.

If she had refused to make the recording, she said, "I was told that I would be killed."

Bailey contended the SLA was angered that four of them were charged with bank robbery and Miss Hearst was only named as a material witness. The prime purpose of the hold-up, he said, was to make the defendant "an outlaw."

Less than two months later, a grand jury indicted Miss Hearst on bank robbery charges.

The government won a crucial victory when it convinced the judge there was a preponderance of evidence that Miss Hearst had joined the terrorists and was in the bank of her own volition. Carter overruled Bailey's objections and allowed the jury to hear the 15-minute reel.

The dramatic scene in the hushed courtroom came only hours after Hearst had been summoned from his front-row seat and told by defense attorney Al Johnson that a bomb had ripped a wall in a guest house at the seaside castle of his late father, William Randolph Hearst, 150 miles south of San Francisco.

Hearst said he was concerned about the safety of his family and assailed the blast as a "stupid and vicious thing to do to the people of California."

The magnificent hilltop estate was given to the state as a public park in the 1950s.

Activist Is Studying Bid

RALEIGH (AP)—Civil rights activist Leon White says he may enter the race for the Democratic nomination for governor this year.

White, a United Church of Christ minister who is executive director of the North Carolina-Virginia Commission for Racial Justice, said Thursday if he runs he would raise such issues as abolition of the death penalty. He said this is an issue other prospective candidates have not addressed.

The entry of another minister into the gubernatorial race, Republican Coy Privette, sparked his interest, White said. Privette, he noted, favors the death penalty.

White, a native of Franklin County, said he believes he could organize blacks and white liberals into a coalition that would give him a strong base of support.

Plan Classes In Sign Language

People's Baptist Temple, located at 2020 W. Greenville Blvd., is establishing a new program for the deaf and hard of hearing in the Greenville area.

For the next two weeks people of the church will be studying sign language each evening for two hours. The classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at the church Monday through Friday, Feb. 9-20. During the two weeks the people will learn a basic vocabulary in sign language and will study the basic principles of teaching and interpreting for the deaf.

DON CABBAGE
People's Baptist Temple will have a complete program for deaf people. The people at the church, who are learning the sign language will be able to interpret for the deaf and heard of hearing in various situations. When deaf people need an interpreter for a doctor, lawyer, employment interview or any other situation, the church will be able to supply help.

The pastor, who is also studying the language, will be able to provide personal and family counseling for deaf people. The program at the church will include classes for both adults and children, who are deaf. Hard of hearing children who have been orally trained will be able to attend classes which are taught by the use of lip reading if parents prefer.

Evangelist Don Cabbage, from the Bill Rice Ranch, Murfreesboro, Tenn., is teaching the class. Rev. Cabbage learned sign language while he was in college after meeting, his wife. It was because of his wife's deafness that her parents established the Bill Rice Ranch which invites deaf young people to attend camp at the ranch each summer free of charge a week.

The Bill Rice Ranch also has one week for deaf adults and two weeks during which people are trained to speak in the sign language and work with the deaf. The camp is on a 1,500 acre horse ranch in middle Tennessee.

The sign language classes at the church are open to the public. If relatives or friends of deaf people want to attend the class they may do so at no charge. For more information about the program, call the pastor, Dr. Barry N. Bagwell, 756-2822.

Fed Up By Wrangling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The company that produces the controversial fire ant killer Mirex says it is tired of wrangling with the federal government over whether the chemical is dangerous and no longer will manufacture it.

In a letter to the U.S. Department of Agriculture Thursday, Allied Chemical Corp. said, "We have been defending the registration of Mirex for nearly five years at considerable time and expense and can no longer justify further efforts in that regard."

The Environmental Protection Agency has said laboratory studies show Mirex could produce cancer.

Allied is the only company that manufactures it.

Production was suspended last July at Allied's Aberdeen, Miss., plant. Allied said Thursday the plant would be closed.

In Georgia, where the pests plague farmers, Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said the loss of Mirex could be "disastrous to two-thirds of the land area of America."

Fire ants build mounds that damage crops, and their bites are a hazard to livestock and other small animals.

No Ticket For Speeding Chief

RALEIGH (AP)—Highway Patrol sources say a trooper stopped Col. E.W. Jones, patrol commander, for speeding 69 miles per hour recently, but did not issue him a ticket.

A top official of the State Department of Transportation said that Jones, who recently ordered a crackdown on speeding, was stopped on Interstate 40 in Davie County after being clocked at 69 miles per hour in a 55 mph zone. The official, who asked that his name not be used, said no citation or warning was issued.

Transportation Secretary Jacob Alexander, said he had been informed of the incident. He said he would make an inquiry to determine if Jones had been favored because of his position.

"Beyond that, I'm not going to comment," Alexander said. Jones' office said he was out of the city Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

Sgt. W.R. Wooten, supervisor of the five patrolmen assigned to Davie County, confirmed the incident but would not elaborate.

"I understand that he (a trooper) did stop him (the colonel)," said Wooten.

Wooten said the man who stopped the colonel was a Trooper Grooms who was identified by the Patrol personnel office as Patrolman W.D. Grooms of Mocksville, a five-year patrol veteran. Grooms was off duty Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

First Sgt. R.W. Rawls, Wooten's immediate superior, would not discuss the incident. "That's a question I'm not going to answer," he said when asked about it. Capt. L.S. Meigs, commander of patrol troop E, which includes Davie, said he was unaware of Jones being stopped in his area.

Last November, Jones ordered a vigorous crackdown on speeders. In a written directive to the patrol's 1,100 members, he called for action on every speeding violation, either in the form of a citation or a warning.

Pirates Host Appalachian In Key Game

East Carolina University's hopes of a fourth place finish ride on tomorrow night's home game with Appalachian State University, which gets underway at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

East Carolina must beat the Mountaineers, and needs to win by at least three points to have a shot at the position and the home court advantage for the tournament it carries with it.

ASU won the first game between the two, 50-48, and Assistant Coach Butch Estes said he wouldn't be surprised if it's just as close this time—and as low scoring. Estes spoke for Coach Dave Patton, sick with the flu.

"They'll be sky high coming in here," Estes said of the Mountaineers. "They are the hottest team in the league right now, and this is probably the biggest game of their season. They have a chance to have their best finish in the conference, and to pull even in their overall record."

If Appalachian wins, that would clinch fourth place for them, giving ASU a 7-4 record with just one game left, a road trip to VMI. A win for the Pirates would keep the Bucs in the race for the position. Then, if VMI topped Appalachian, East Carolina could take fourth either by beating Furman in its final league game—or by winning by more than two points against AUS. If two teams tie for a position, the tie is broken by their point spread in their two meetings.

But it all hinges on what happens tomorrow night.

"I think they'll try a control type game," Estes said. "They've got a lot of motivation, that's for sure. But we feel that if we can do the things we want to do, then we can beat them. We are going to have to play well to beat them, however. We need to get five guys clicking together out there."

The Bucs have done that on occasions, but generally they haven't. The players, however, definitely feel that they can still make this year successful.

The reasons for the problems this year are varied according to the players. Reggie Lee feels that there is a different attitude among the players this year, as compared to last year. "We've had a lot of bad breaks too," he said, and most joined him in saying this. "It's really hard to put your finger on any one thing. It just seems when one thing goes wrong, everything else does too."

"We just haven't jelled as a team," Al Edwards said. "We're playing good in spots, but we've had too many breakdowns, and not recovering from them. I think everyone wants to win, and while different people act differently after a loss, I think we all hurt inside. I know I do."

Larry Hunt sees it as a lack of communication. "We just don't seem to get the message to help someone out when they get in trouble on the floor. We've got some new faces this year, too. We've got a lot of individual talent, but we haven't got the contribution from everyone we got last year, even though we may be more talented."

Wade Henkel felt that the Bucs haven't gotten the floor leadership they needed. "Last year, we have four seniors who really ran things on the court. This year, no one has really been willing to take over. And I don't mean it would have to be the seniors."

Earl Garner added, that, like the coaching staff feels, the start the Bucs had was one of the problems. "It didn't help us at all. It's just been one year when the breaks haven't come our way."

Garner added that while the Bucs have played some games like the team people thought they would be, perhaps they got a little complacent. "We may have said to ourselves, we've done it, we've got it made, and it just didn't work out like that."

All of the Bucs, however, believe that the season can be redeemed. "We've got two conference games left, and I think we can still win the tournament," one said.

Hunt said the team is planning a meeting tonight to talk about their season and what can be done in the games remaining. "We've got to get ready mentally. It's an important game, and we have to realize what it means and concentrate. I think the fan and press reaction to our play really is a challenge to us. We've just got to get together and keep trying. We're still optimistic."

Estes agreed. "Our team goal, not the coaches' goal, but the team's goal, is to win the tournament. This can still be done. The tournament is a whole new season."

But an important part of the tournament is the home court advantage for the first round. Whether the Bucs have a shot at a home court berth or not will be decided tomorrow night.

Don't Look Now; UCLA Is Back

By The Associated Press

Here's bad — and familiar — news for seven teams in the Pacific-8:

"We're starting to peak," said Gene Bartow.

George Raveling said, "The people who have been criticizing Gene Bartow and the Bruins are going to have to eat crow when the season is done."

Raveling had just watched Bartow's UCLA Bruins dismantle his Washington State basketball team 104-78 Thursday night, and he was duly impressed.

So was Bartow, who frequently this season has shown displeasure with the play of his sixth-ranked Bruins, who upped their record to 18-3.

"We played our best 10 minutes of the year in the first half," Bartow said after the Bruins had built their conference-leading mark to 7-1.

Marques Johnson, who scored 19 points to lead the Bruins against Washington State, echoed his coach's comments.

"Since the Notre Dame and USC games we've played very well," Johnson remarked, "and I knew it would come."

The Bruins used a balanced scoring attack to whip the Cougars, with Andre McCarter chipping in 13 points, and Richard Washington and Gavin Smith 12 each.

The ninth-ranked Washington Huskies, who meet the Bruins in Pauley Pavilion Saturday afternoon, lurk just a game back of UCLA in the Pac-8 standings, and have an impressive 19-2 record in all games.

Thursday night, Washington bombed hapless Southern Cal, which has yet to win a conference game, 93-75.

Seven-foot center James Edwards poured in 20 points to spark the Washington victory, and teammates Kim Stewart and Ken Lombard added 15 points each.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Al Weston and Joe Whelan combined for 50 points to lead the University of Connecticut to an 86-79 victory over

Women Rally To Stop Georgia In Tournament

ROCK HILL, S.C.—East Carolina University's women's basketball team rallied for an 80-66 victory over the University of Georgia last night in the first round of the Winthrop Invitational Tournament.

The Bucettes, down by as much as five in the first half and seven in the second half, used the foul line to great advantage in overcoming the Lady Bulldogs.

The win boosted East Carolina into the winners' bracket of the 12-team double elimination tournament. They were to face the College of Charleston this morning, with another game slated later today, regardless of the outcome.

The Bucettes went through a poor first half offensively, but their defense held Georgia close. East Carolina held an early lead, but lost it, then caught up again. They trailed, however, 34-29, at the end of the half.

Foul shots played a big role in the second half comeback of the Lady Pirates. They hit 17 of 23 chances at the line, while Georgia failed to produce a point at the line. Susan Manning led the free throw shooting, hitting eight of 10.

Meanwhile, Rosie Thompson was throwing in 17 of her 26 points, and Debbie Freeman was celebrating her birthday with 14 of her 18. Manning added four more as the three combined for 42 of the team's 51 second half points.

Down by 56-49 midway through the half, East Carolina ran off eight straight points to take a 57-56 lead. The two teams swapped points until the Bucs held a 63-62 lead. Then, the Bucettes ran off 16 more in a row, running their lead to 79-62, wrapping up the game.

The tall Georgia team had three to foul out in the closing minutes.

Bunny Fuller led the Georgia scoring with 24 points, while 6-2 Debbie Culpepper had 20 and Tina Price had 14.

Marcis, Waltrip Take 125-Mile Qualifiers

By F.T. MacFEELY
Associated Press Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "I guess you've got two cheaters in Victory Lane," Dave Marcis quipped after he and Darrell Waltrip won a pair of 125-mile qualifying races for Sunday's $350,000 Daytona 500 stock car classic.

Those two young rising stars of National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National racing were set down for rules violations after posting some of the fastest times in pole position qualifying last Sunday.

Officials ruled that the cars of Marcis, Waltrip, A.J. Foyt and Bruce Hill were speeded up by "non-approved" equipment. They had to make changes, re-qualify and start back in the pack for the 125-milers Thursday.

"It didn't hurt Dave and me much as it turned out," Waltrip said. "We just lost a position or two for Sunday. Justice will prevail, and I guess it did."

Foyt, whose Chevrolet developed mechanical trouble and lasted only nine laps, will start in 31st place. As fastest on Sunday, at 187.477 miles per hour, he would have been on the pole and $5,000 richer if his speed had not been disallowed.

Hill's Chevrolet made only four laps in the qualifier and he'll start 33rd.

The Marcis Dodge and Waltrip Chevrolet will start in the second row behind new faces Ramo Stott and Terry Ryan in a pair of Chevrolets. Stott and Ryan, whose cars were legal, inherited the inside and outside pole because of the three disallowed speeds.

Stott's car malfunctioned at the start of the first 125-miler and made only 35 of the 50 laps. Ryan was competitive and finished third behind Waltrip and Richard Petty's Dodge in the second qualifying event.

Speed Weeks attention turned today to the windup of the International Race of Champions series with Foyt favored to take the $50,000 winner's prize. After three previous races in Michigan and California, Foyt leads the nine top drivers chosen from Formula 1, NASCAR and Indianapolis type cars.

In fact, Foyt with 31 points needed only to finish sixth or better to win the series. Bobby Allison with 25 points and Mario Andretti with 23 are the only ones who could beat him.

A 200-mile race around the 3.84-mile road course for NASCAR modified stock cars also was on today's program. A 300-mile event for NASCAR Late Model Sportsman stock cars will be run Saturday as a build-up for Sunday's richest stock car race ever run.

A favorable weather forecast is expected to draw more than 110,000 for Sunday's events. Nearly 60,000 were on hand for Thursday's qualifying races.

Mittermaier Fails In Ski Sweep Bid

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Canada's Kathy Kreiner edged Rosi Mittermaier by 12-hundredths of a second in the giant slalom today, ending the West German's bid for an unprecedented sweep of the three women's Alpine skiing events. And the United States, blanked through the first three events, waited in expectation of a gold medal performance by Dorothy Hamill at the 12th Winter Olympics.

Miss Hamill, the 19-year-old from Riverside, Conn., took a commanding lead over Dianne de Leeuw, a Californian skating for The Netherlands, into tonight's final leg of the figure skating — the freestyle.

Jan Egil Storholt of Norway won the gold medal in the 1,500-meter speed skating and the Soviet Union picked up a gold in the 30-kilometer (18.6 miles) biathlon relay as these Games moved through the next-to-last full day of competition.

Also scheduled for today were the first two of four runs in the four-man bobsled event and three Group B hockey games.

With only the figure skating remaining among the finals on today's schedule, the Soviet Union led the medal standings with 12 gold and 26 total medals, followed by East Germany with six gold and 15 medals over-all.

Rose Girls Are Beaten

WILSON — Wilson High School gained a 36-24 victory over Rose High School's girls' basketball team yesterday. It was the seventh straight loss for the Rampant girls, playing their first season.

Wilson jumped off to an 8-4 lead in the opening period, and never trailed again. They outthit the Rampants by 13-2, in the second period for a 21-6 halftime lead.

Rose came back in the third period, outscoring Wilson, 12-7, but still trailed 28-18. Wilson outthit Rose, 8-6, in the final quarter.

Barnes led Wilson with 10 points, but Rose's Cheryl Taylor was the high scorer with 12.

The Rampant lassies return to action on Monday, traveling to Northeastern of Elizabeth City.

Rose — Jeffreys & C. Taylor 12, Carney 2, Jenkins 2, P. Taylor, Hackelf, Leggett, R. Cox, Woolen, Scott, J. Daniels. Wilson — Hester & Barnes 10, Eason 2, Smith 4, Carlin & Davis 2, Hancock 3, Gordon 1, Cuddell, Payne, Sherrod, Hargrove, Rodri, Salley. Rose Wilson 4 2 12 4-24 4 13 7 6-34

Chicod In Two Wins

CHOCOD—Chicod took a pair of games from Ayden yesterday. In the girls' game, Chicod downed Ayden, 21-17. Diann Cannon led Chicod with eight points, while Alberition led Ayden with seven.

The Chicod boys gained a 47-29 win in their game. Carl Arnold led Chicod with 14, while Frankie Pollard had 12 and Curtis Spencer hit 11. Ellis led Ayden with 16, while Allen hit 11.

The United States was third with two golds and a total of nine, three short of its all-time total of 12 won in 1932 at Lake Placid, N.Y. Prospects for breaking that record dimmed considerably today when Americans failed to crack the top three in the day's first three events.

Dan Carroll's fifth-place finish in the 1,500 and Lindy Cochran's 13th in the giant slalom were the top American finishes.

Miss Kreiner, who hadn't won a big race since 1974, flashed down the icy trail over the Headl Mountain course with its 49 gates in 1 minute 29.13 seconds to give Canada its first gold of these Games. Miss Mittermaier took the silver in 1:29.25 and Daniele Debernard of France won the bronze in 1:29.95.

Miss Mittermaier, the personable 25-year-old veteran of the European ski wars, lost her chance to become the first woman ever to capture the three Alpine ski events. She won the downhill Sunday and the slalom Wednesday. Only two men have ever won the triple, Toni Sailer of Austria in 1956 and Jean-Claude Killy of France in 1968.

"There were a lot of people here who may have expected me to win three gold medals, but I am very happy with two golds and a silver," said Miss Mittermaier. "I had not expected anything like this before the Olympics."

Asked if she had regrets about depriving the popular Miss Mittermaier of her third gold, Miss Kreiner said: "No regrets at all. I think there was some room in there for me."

Miss Cochran, 22, of Richmond, Vt., completed her 12th-place run in 1:31.33. Mary Seaton, 19, of Hancock, Mich., was 17th in 1:31.58. Cindy Nelson, 20, of Lutsen, Minn., the bronze medalist in the downhill and considered the top U.S. hope for a medal in the giant slalom, wound up a disappointing 21st in 2:02.02. Leslie Smith, 17, of Killington, Vt., rounded out the American contingent in 27th place in 1:34.54.

Storholt, giving Norway its second gold of the Games, won the 1,500 in Olympic record time of 1 minute 59.38 seconds. Yuri Kondakov of the Soviet Union was second in 1:59.95 and Hans Van Helden of The Netherlands was third in 2:00.87.

Peter Mueller, who won a gold Thursday at 1,000 meters, was scheduled to go in the last pairing in the race but pulled out with what a U.S. official called an emotional letdown. Dan Immerfall, who took a bronze in the 500 Tuesday, was not entered.

Heiden was entered in this race because Charles Gilmore, of Anaheim, Calif., withdrew during the recent qualifying controversy, saying Heiden was better in the 1,500.

Heiden said he was pleased with his seventh. "I was happy I did as well as I did," he said. "If it had not been so windy I am sure my time would have been better."

In the biathlon relay, an event which combines cross country skiing and marksmanship, the Soviet quartet of Aleksandr Elizarov, Ivan Biakov, Nikolay Kruglov and Aleksandr Thonov toured the course in 1 hour 57 minutes 55.64 seconds. Finland took the silver in 2:01:45.58 and East Germany, edging West Germany by a scant two meters, was third in 2:04:08.61.

The U.S. team of Lyle Nelson, 27, of Boise, Idaho, Dennis Donahue, 31, of Worcester, Vt., Street, Smith's Hearing downed the Sheltered Workshop, 70-59, overcoming a 31-30 halftime deficit. Randall Brooks led Smith's with 20 points, while Tom Henderson had 16 and Jeff Daniel had 14. Bobby Thompson led ECSW with 21, while Sam Barrett had 15, Cliff Barrett had 12 and Bill Twine had 10.

Farmville Gets Sweep

STOKES—Farmville gained a couple of victories over Stokes-Pactolus yesterday.

The Farmville girls, now 7-0, downed Stokes, 43-31. Diana Gordon led Farmville with 17, while Ella Price had 13. Cecilia Brewer led Stokes with 16.

In the boys' game, Farmville gained a 67-46 win. Donald Reid led Farmville with 19, and Jeff Tyson added 15, Mike Horne, 14, and Harold Phillips, 12. For Stokes, Milton Hardy had 13 and Reggie Knight 12. Farmville is now 8-1.

Swim Meet Scheduled

The Atlantic Seaboard Swimming and Diving Championships get underway Saturday in Minges Coliseum with a new format. The meet, for high school teams, is annually hosted by East Carolina University.

This year, for the first time, girls' teams will be entered, with a boys' and girls' division. Each division will have 10 swimming and one diving event.

A total of 38 teams have entered the boys' division, and for the first time in years, defending champion Calvert Hall (Maryland) is not favored. Coach Ray Scharf of ECU looks to Petty High School of New Jersey to be the team to beat.

The girls' have a total of 43 teams entered. Bishop Ireton-St. Mary's (Virginia) is listed as the favorite, while Walt Whitman (Maryland), Herndon (Virginia) and Hoggard (North Carolina) could take the title.

Trials are slated to begin at 12 noon Saturday in the Natatorium, with the finals at 7 p.m. "We may move these up to 6 p.m.," Scharf said. "With twice as many events to run this year, we may find that an earlier start is better."

Teams from five states, North Carolina, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia and Florida, will take part.

New Twist To Awards Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television abounds with forgettable music awards shows, but there's a truly unique one coming up this weekend on public TV that you'll enjoy. We say it's unique because:
—John Denver doesn't appear on it.
—It salutes only jazz artists, specifically some past and present winners of the annual Down Beat magazine reader's poll awards. It's co-hosted by composer-musicians Quincy Jones and Chick Corea.
Its title, "Down Beat — The 1975 Reader's Poll Awards," is a bit misleading if you're expecting another awards show featuring lots of plaques, speeches and renditions of played-to-death hits.
It's not that at all. True, six of the 10 featured musicians are winners of last year's Down Beat awards. But no plaques are awarded, no speeches are made and the full list of award winners doesn't appear until the end of the show, popping up along with the credits.

Most of the hour is spent on just playing good jazz, with brief introductory remarks by the co-hosts.
There is some ensemble work, but all the featured artists get individual turns before the camera. And what musicians — trumpeter Freddie Hubbard, trombonist Bill Watrous, flutist Hubert Laws and guitarist George Benson, to name a few.
The sound reproduction, which commercial TV rarely gets right, is uniformly excellent. It even makes Hubbard's trumpet work — and trumpet solos usually sound thin and tinny on those wee TV speakers — come out as pleasant and mellow as on his albums.
The show is produced by station WTTW in Chicago. Down Beat should give the producers an award simply for showing they care enough about jazz to give the ears of viewers the very best.

CBS tonight is opening a new series called "Sara," but we fear it is not the very best, despite the fine acting of Brenda Vaccaro in the title role.

Sara is a Philadelphia-born schoolmarm who comes to Colorado in 1870 to teach the sons and daughters of the pioneers reading, writing and all that in a one-room schoolhouse just outside of town.
Perhaps young members of the family will enjoy it. But we suspect grown-ups will be looking elsewhere for dramatic sustenance.

Students Reacting To Theft Of Equipment

To show their concern over the recent loss of approximately $500 to $600 worth of classroom equipment, students of the Extended School Program operated by the Greenville City Schools are sponsoring an Extended School Program Baby Contest to be held at 5 p.m. Sunday in the Third Street Auditorium.
The equipment was stolen from the classrooms when vandals broke into Third Street Elementary School, location of the program.
The Extended School Program is one for students 16 years old or older who for one or another reason are not currently enrolled in the regular school system. These older students are given a chance through the Extended School Program to attend special classes at Third Street School that will eventually permit them to earn a high school diploma or a certificate of equivalency.

Tony Gray, school social worker with Greenville school students, said the idea of a Extended School Program Baby Contest was put forth by some of the students who are mothers of infant children.
"They're really working hard to raise money to replace the stolen equipment," Gray said. "They're selling tickets at 25 cents each."

Gray explained that the king of the baby contest will be the infant son whose mother sells the most tickets; and that the queen will be the infant daughter of the student mother selling the largest number of tickets.
The public is invited to attend the program, and to help raise money for the fund. Tickets will be available at the beginning period of the program.

Wild Horse Herds Are Topic For Hot Debate

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is pushing legislation to make it easier to round up and get rid of wild horses. But opponents say the measure would turn the animals into dog food.

The legislation is a response to ranchers and federal land managers who say the wild herds are growing fast under federal protection and are taking public grass out of the mouths of cattle and sheep.

In the heat of the issue, friends of the horses say the administration's plan amounts to "mechanized massacre" and a return to the evils of the days of the old mustangers.

Wild burros also would be affected by the legislation.

The issue pits ranchers who run their stock on public lands against a widening ring of conservation groups who think the 20 per cent of the nation's land owned by the public should be used for other purposes, such as recreation, wilderness and horses.

The nation's wild horse herd has grown to 50,000 head and is growing at a rate of 20 per cent annually, ranchers say.

A rancher can run cattle on open federal range for $1 per head per month. In Nevada, for example, federal land accounts for 96 per cent of the seventh largest state.

A 1971 law bans aircraft and motor vehicles in hunting wild horses and requires the Bureau of Land Management to find a good home for any animals that are caught. They cannot be slaughtered.

The bureau, the chief agency for the public lands, has led about a half-dozen roundups in the 10 Western states under the 1971 law in response to complaints from ranchers. About 700 wild horses were captured.

In the old days, hunters for the wild horses would use pick-up trucks and aircraft to herd the animals. Once caught, most were shipped off to be made into dog food. In the West, mustang was a quick way to earn a few extra dollars on a weekend.

Under the administration-backed legislation, the use of vehicles and aircraft would be allowed to transfer ownership of the horses with no questions asked.

That means dog food, the conservationists say. The administration claims the current law is cumbersome and expensive. It says it costs an average of $550 to catch each horse. Besides, two men were hurt in a high-speed mounted chase, and vehicles would be safer, the administration says.

Horse groups say the administration estimate is exaggerated. They say the number of grazing permits should be cut back to protect the range. In Utah, they say, the government allows 600,000 cattle and sheep on public land while the wild horses there are estimated at only 1,500 head.

Mobile Bay, which extends into southwest Alabama, is 35 miles long.

CALLING NEW BOYCOTT—United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez told reporters in Sacramento Wednesday he has called for a new UFW international boycott against selected raisin, grape and fruit growers because of their opposition to California's farm labor board. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market posted a moderate decline in profit taking today, showing little response to the government's report that wholesale prices held steady last month.

Trading was active, but lagged behind the heavy pace of earlier in the week with some investors evidently taking an extended holiday weekend.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.33 at 962.45. Losers outpaced gainers by about a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the opening, the Labor Department reported that its wholesale price index was unchanged in January after adjusting for seasonal factors.

But some brokers said investors seemed to be concerned that inflationary pressures might pick up again in the months ahead—in particular because of the possible impact of adverse weather on the winter wheat crop in the Grain Belt.

Eastman Kodak dropped 1 1/2 to 109 1/2 following the company's posting of lower fourth quarter earnings late Thursday. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .19 to 53.36 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .09 at 99.15.

Houston Oil & Minerals rose 1/4 to 42 1/2 in active trading on the Amex. The company raised its cash dividend and declared a 25 cent stock dividend—the equivalent of a 5-for-4 split.
