Carter And Ford Rack Up Big Illinois Victories

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) —

President Ford and Jimmy Carter emerged from Illinois with victory today, as winners and losers alike turned to North Carolina, next week's stop on the trail of the Republican and Democratic presidential nominations.

Ford fashioned a runaway victory over Ronald Reagan, his fifth win in as many primary outings over the conservative GOP challenger.

Carter, firmly established as the Democratic front-runner, got an added bonus in a surprising haul of delegates from Tuesday's primary. The former Georgia governor trounced George C. Wallace, Sargent Shriver and Fred Harris and Shriver suspended active campaigning.

Neither Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who defeated Carter in Massachusetts, nor U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall was on the Illinois ballot.

Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss said Carter's victory in the Northern, industrial state showed "that a Southerner can be viewed as a national candidate."

There was another winner:

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, trying to restore his political clout in the race closest to home. Daley's candidate for governor, Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, won the Democratic nomination over incumbent Daniel Walker, longtime Daley foe.

With 93 per cent of the vote in the preferential primary or "beauty contest" counted, Ford had 436,171 or 59 per cent of the vote to 295,188 or 40 per cent for Reagan. Perennial Illinois candidate Lars Daly got the other 1 per cent of the vote.

Among Democrats, with 95 per cent of the vote counted, the tally was:

Carter 592,813 — 48 per cent
Wallace 339,564 — 28 per cent

Shriver 197,394 — 16 per cent

Harris 92,774 — 8 per cent
The race measures popularity, but nets the winner no delegates.

The big surprise, in separate voting for delegates, was the block of 60 that Carter was winning with 64 per cent of the vote counted. His supporters had said that getting just 25 would be a "massive achievement."

Daley was winning 87 committed to Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, who is not a candidate. Wallace had three delegates.

Among the Republicans, with 66 per cent of the votes counted, Ford had 64 delegates, Reagan 14 and 14 were uncommitted.

Reagan, in California as the votes came in, said he had achieved his goal and again stressed that his strength lies in Western and Southern states still to be counted. He prepared for a campaign trip to North Carolina today.

Wallace said he was "glad to be second in Illinois." The Alabama governor, paralyzed from the waist down because of an assassination attempt in 1972, said the question of his health was hurting him, although he repeated that he's in fine shape.

Wilton Duke Re-Elected Chairman Of Hospital Bd.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Wilton R. Duke of Farmville was re-elected chairman of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees last night. He and all the other officers recommended by the Board Nominating Committee were unanimously elected. Kenneth Dews of Winterville is vice chairman; Glenn Hardee of Greenville, secretary; J. H. Moye of Greenville, treasurer; and Delton Perry of Bethel, assistant treasurer.

Members of the executive committee are Duke, Dews, and Hardee by virtue of their offices, plus Eugene James of Belvoir, G. Henry Leslie of Greenville, Martha Walston of Wilson, and Hal Tanner of Goldsboro, all four elected at large.

Hospital Director Jack Richardson introduced the administrative staff to the new members.

The Board approved the idea of the hospital's undertaking 24-hour emergency room coverage. Richardson said the hospital will have to guarantee each physician hired for the program $50,000 a year, and that four probably will be needed. It is believed that this, and other expense of the program can be covered by the emergency room charge of $15 per visit. From 20,000 to 22,000 persons are now using the emergency room each year, the Board was told.

Referral of non-emergency patients to area physicians the next day will be part of the 24-hour coverage concept, the administrator said. Some referrals are already being made to the Family Practice Center, which opened March 1 in temporary quarters on the hospital grounds.

Board of Education members, County Commissioners, ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins, education professionals, teachers, principals, state representatives and guests Tuesday attended a luncheon meeting honoring 125 accreditation team members representing the Commission of Elementary Schools of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Tuesday at the Ramada Inn.

The luncheon meeting began the two day visit of the accreditation teams in the 17 Pitt County elementary schools.

Pitt County Superintendent Ott Alford described the event as the "Most important day in the history of the Pitt County Schools."

"Much rerouting and reprogramming have taken place to develop the best programs available for the youngsters have culminated from this activity," Alford said. "Pitt County Schools and ECU have grown together," said Chancellor Leo Jenkins, one of the five guest speakers.

"ECU works closely with the Pitt School system. We presently have 1,561 Pitt County students attending ECU and over 35,000 students from this county have attended ECU, ECC, and ECTC in the past. Our university faculty serves as consultants and works with special projects in the schools."

"Private accreditation is a good thing. Doing it ourselves is the American way," Jenkins said.

"I commend the Pitt County Board of Education for the steps it has taken in seeking accreditation through the Southern Association for 17 elementary schools in this county and I commend these schools to the Southern Association visiting team. Let me assure both the association and the schools that ECU is interested in this endeavor and offers its encouragement and its support toward the goal of accreditation," Jenkins said.

Dr. W.C. Sanderson, a consultant to the Pitt County Schools and an ECU staff member explained accreditation.

"It is the sincere desire to improve all parts of the schools. Accreditation does not mean we have arrived; it is a place to start. It gives us the stamp of approval that we are doing many things well. It means doing some things better, that you're doing well now."

Sanderson commended Kathryn Lewis, pupil personnel director, for her work in coordinating the accreditation programs in the schools.

John McKnight, Director of Testing and Research in Pitt County Schools explained the curriculum improvements in the past three years.

"Since 1973 resources have been restructured to develop a local approach to instruction in Pitt County," he said.

"A fully equipped set of curriculum guides for the county is not ready but will be completed," said McKnight.

"The Southern Association is an 11 state accrediting agency including North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, and Texas," said Dr. Madeline Tripp of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

"The criteria for improved instruction that the Southern Association is concerned with includes eight areas, the community, the children, what do we believe about education, who does the job, facilities, curriculum, school-community relations, and what do we know," she said.

Ruth Hoyle, assistant superintendent of Craven County Schools and the county chairman of the visiting committee explained that the accreditation process. "It is a supreme effort on the part of the people to make improvements and their dreams to do more."

Mrs. Hoyle also introduced county visiting team chairpersons.

Following the luncheon, visiting team members went to

CHECK DELIVERED

I have been receiving bills from Pitt Memorial Hospital for an emergency room treatment that was supposed to be covered by insurance. I wrote them two or three times about this and sent the bill back. I have got nothing from them but continuous computer printout bills. I'm providing you with my patient number and my insurance policy number. G.C.

Hotline called Buck Sitterson, assistant administrator for finance, at the hospital. He checked and found that no payment had been received by the hospital. He then checked with your insurance company and found that a check had been sent in late January by the company to their agent here in Greenville made out to Pitt Memorial Hospital. He, for some reason, had attempted to send the check to you in Raleigh, but it had come back addressee unknown and he's been holding it ever since. Sitterson asked the agent, since the check was made out to the hospital anyway, to bring it to him, and he did. Your account is now paid in full and the computer should send you no more bills.

In Ireland They Wonder At American Hoopla

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—For everyone who's not Irish, who forgot to wear green or doesn't have a shamrock today, don't worry. The annual St. Patrick's Day hoopla is a hoax, an American invention, an Irish American says.

Dr. Fergus O'Foghluadh—now, that's Irish!—says St. Patrick's Day traditionally exempted Catholics from the rigors of their Lenten fast in the weeks between Ash Wednesday and Easter. "It has always been a kind of station break during the period of self-denial, a time when people could get plastered without feeling guilty," he said.

O'Foghluadh developed his expertise on Ireland through experience, not book learning.

While he's considered Duke University's resident expert on the Irish, he earns his pay as a professor of radiation physics at Duke's Medical Center.

In Ireland, he said, St. Patrick's Day is no big deal and the Irish wonder what Americans are so excited about. The Irish are also baffled by the American craving for shamrocks and green clothing.

Irish do wear shamrocks on St. Patrick's Day to honor their patron saint, but outside of tourist shops, that's the only time they are seen, he said, adding that the harp is Ireland's symbol, not the shamrock.

The man who introduced Christianity to Ireland and is credited with driving out the snakes and toads was actually an Englishman or Welshman captured as a slave around 432, O'Foghluadh said, adding that the Irish don't stress that point.

It's unlikely that anyone actually rid the island of snakes or toads as Ireland probably never had any because it was separated from the mainland before such creatures evolved, he said.

In other observations about the Irish, O'Foghluadh said:

—"No self-respecting Irishman would be caught dead kissing the Blarney Stone (reputed to give one the gift of gab). That's left for foreigners."

—"No one in Ireland says 'blarney' (meaning flattery or nonsense). They say 'blather' instead. —"It's foreigners who call Ireland the 'Emerald Isle'."

—"The Irish really don't have a lot of children." Since the famine in the mid-1800s, the population has remained stable. Irish also marry later than Americans customarily do.

—"The Irish don't consider themselves particularly lucky people."

—"In rural districts many people do still believe in leprechauns. I won't say I actually believe in leprechauns, but you won't catch me speaking ill of them either. You don't take any chances with the little people. You wouldn't want to offend them."

Hearst Trial Nearing Jury

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With her father among the final witnesses, Patricia Hearst's trial for bank robbery appears all but assured of reaching the jury by week's end.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter hinted Tuesday that he would reject efforts by either U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. or defense counsel F. Lee Bailey to carry testimony beyond today.

"You've both had two chances now and that's it," Carter said, referring to each side's main case and rebuttal presentations.

Bailey told the judge he had "one more witness for sure" and indicated outside court that it was the defendant's mother, Catherine Hearst. Her father, San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, testified Tuesday.

Browning suggested in court that he would seek to reopen the government's case to answer the defense's latest testimony.

"I will rule preliminarily on that right now," Carter replied, "and the answer is no." The trial is now in its eighth week.

Carter has set aside one full day for closing arguments and that could come Thursday, followed by the judge's instructions to the jury.

Carter has told the jurors, who have been sequestered since Feb. 4, that they should "deliberate through the week-end," if necessary.

Bailey spent most of Tuesday attempting to discredit two psychiatric experts who testified for the government.

Dr. Joel Fort of San Francisco and Dr. Harry Kozol of Boston each said Miss Hearst, 22, was a willing convert to terrorism when she and her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers robbed a bank on April 15, 1974.

She herself has testified she was still a hostage and that her captors ordered her to participate or be killed.

In a surprise move, Bailey also called Miss Hearst's longtime friend, Patricia Tobin, who described her chum from schooldays as "not the same person" when she was captured last Sept. 18.

Miss Tobin's appearance in the courtroom was greeted by a warm smile from Miss Hearst. Both women smiled frequently and, at least twice, Miss Hearst appeared to be stifling a giggle.

Bailey also called to the stand the defendant's father, who described his daughter as "strong-willed."

Hearst, 60, spoke slowly but firmly as he took issue with Kozol's testimony that his daughter had been bored, bitter and restless in the weeks before her Feb. 4, 1974, abduction.

Occasionally clearing his throat and with his hand grasping a glass of water, Hearst said his daughter was "a very bright girl, pretty. She was strong-willed, I think, and independent. She was fun to be with."

Bailey asked if Kozol had been accurate in portraying Miss Hearst as a rebel who found her cause in the terrorist underground. "No," he swiftly replied.

Wallace Lashes Out At Key Rival's Integrity

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, facing the possibility of a third straight loss to Jimmy Carter, has lashed out with an attack on the Georgian's integrity.

The personal assault on Carter was only one of several major changes Wallace made Tuesday in his campaign style as he sought to recapture his winning touch in North Carolina, a state he carried in 1972 but now appears in danger of losing.

Wallace also raised and tried to rebut the issue of his physical capabilities. And he portrayed himself as a "New Southerner," a label previously applied to Carter.

Wallace's disparaging remarks about Carter included a charge that Carter reneged on a pledge to support Wallace at the 1972 Democratic convention. A Carter campaign aide said later that the charge was unfounded.

"We shook hands on him casting his vote for me if I got to the convention with more than 300 votes and did not run delegates against his slate in the Georgia precinct caucuses," Wallace said.

"Well, I got out of a hospital bed and went to the convention with more than 400 delegates. But when my aides called Governor Carter, he said he was sorry but he had to vote for Scoop Jackson," Wallace said.

Carter was in New York and could not immediately be reached for comment. Press aide Rex Grannum in Atlanta said, "No such arrangement was ever made or even discussed. Governor Wallace's statements are totally without foundation."

Wallace also accused Carter of being a "warmed over McGovern," citing the fact that two 1972 staff members for Sen. George McGovern—pollster Patrick Caddell and fund-raiser Morris Dees—now work for Carter.

"In our organization we have people who supported Sen. McGovern and we're glad to have them, just as we're pleased to have people who could not immediately be supported George Wallace," Grannum said.

Tell Friend You Know Of Shenanigans

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-H. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about a person who would accept a lovely, hand-crocheted gift and then enter it in a handicraft show as her own creation? She even removed my "especially handmade" label from it.

HURT AND FURIOUS

DEAR HURT: She can't be playing with a full deck. Let her know that YOU know of her shenanigans.

DEAR ABBY: Since we have returned from our Christmas vacation, I have needed to get something off my chest.

Every year my husband insists that we take our children to visit his parents over the holidays because they are so eager to see the grandchildren and they'd be "hurt" if we didn't. This involves a four-day automobile trip, which we make only once a year.

During the eight days we were there this year, the grandparents left us and our children four times to babysit for their daughter while she and her husband attended some holiday parties!

I didn't expect my husband's parents to stay home all the time we were there, but I did resent them spending so much time with their daughter, who lives right in town and sees them the rest of the year.

Since I don't have the nerve to point this out to them, I hope you'll print this as a reminder to grandparents that when their children and grandchildren make such a special effort to visit them, they should limit their outside activities.

Thanks. It's very hard to discuss in-law problems with a husband.

FEELS BETTER

DEAR FEELS: Don't rely on the in-laws to see this and mend their ways. The solution to your problem can be found through some honest dialogue with your husband. You have a legitimate beef. Start talking.

ECU Sociologist Co-Authors Article

The increased desire for satisfying careers among the nation's young married women is the topic of a current "Modern Bride" magazine article by East Carolina University sociologist David Knox and Loyola University sociologist Jack Wright.

The article, "Two Careers in One Marriage?" says two statistics indicate that more brides will wish to pursue careers: the current low birth rate and the fact that about 90 percent of all wives work at some time during marriage.

Drs. Knox and Wright draw distinctions between the terms "career" and "job".

"Jobs," which can be part-time enterprises, permit flexible movement in and out of employment and are less demanding after working hours.

"Careers" require extensive training and education, and involve considerable pressure and responsibility.

The benefits of a career, as opposed to most jobs, are personal satisfaction, prestige and good salaries. They quote from interviews with married women in management and top professional positions, who affirm the sense of accomplishment and pride they derive from career success. Most believe they would not be happy in the role of housewife.

Many women who enjoy careers said their husband's support is vital to happiness in marriage. Husbands who support and encourage their wives' careers also derive benefits, other than financial rewards, say Knox and Wright.

The article also explores the possibility of pursuing a career and managing a family and household, and again, emphasizes the husband's supportive role.

Bringing Up Baby Safety

This year between 1 and 2 million inedible items are expected to be swallowed by children under five years of age, occasionally with tragic results.

Parents can do a great deal to lessen a child's chances of becoming one of the year's accident statistics by taking a number of simple precautions, says the Health Insurance Institute.

Start by applying safety measures in the crib and playpen areas. Ideally a baby's toys should be soft, cuddly and too large to be swallowed, with no detachable parts such as buttons or eyes to nibble on.

Also make sure that the paint on toys and any furniture that the child comes in contact with, such as crib, does not contain lead.

The list of precautions multiplies as baby starts toddling. One of the main hazard areas is the kitchen. Here, all the household items which are potentially poisonous such as detergents and cleaners should be kept out of reach of little hands and stored in high cabinets or behind fastened doors.

Pills or medications, should never be put in a refrigerator within easy reach of a child who may assume that everything there is edible. If medicine must be kept under refrigeration, it should be in a "childproof" container.

Also, don't leave pills, medications, liquid, cream or powder cosmetics in a bureau or desk drawer or a handbag within sampled to identify the poison and estimate how much was swallowed. Without this vital information, a doctor's course of action could be delayed.

If you cannot reach your doctor readily, call the Duke Poison Control Center in Durham (684-8111), the local hospital, or the police. It is a good idea to keep the phone number of these facilities close by the phone at all times.

A good precautionary move, according to poison control experts, is to keep handy an ounce bottle of syrup of ipecac — to induce vomiting if that is what the doctor advises.

While National Poison Prevention Week is observed between March 21 and 27, guarding against poisoning is a year-round job for parents of small children.

Sadat Recognized The Danger

In one of its few setbacks of recent years, the Soviet Union saw a slippage of its power in the Middle East, notably Egypt, sometime back.

Now President Anwar Sadat has widened the gap by announcing that he is tearing up a 1971 Soviet-Egyptian treaty of friendship and cooperation.

Sadat said the "Soviet Union is exerting military and economic pressures on Egypt to force me to bow to their demands, something that I will not do."

He said Soviet refusal to supply parts for military equipment would reduce that equipment to "scrap" in a year or 18 months.

"In view of all this, the treaty has become a scrap of paper and I propose its cancellation," Sadat said.

A sticking point between the two countries seemed to be Sadat's participation with U.S. Sec. of State Henry Kissinger in Arab-Israeli peace talks.

The Soviets have made progress in extending their influence in Southeast Asia, and in Africa. Fortunately the Soviets are running into real problems in the Middle East.

President Sadat has learned the hard way that accepting aid from the Soviet Union carries with it a terrific price. To continue its Soviet dependence would have meant that Egypt would become a part of the Soviet sphere and dominated, just as the Eastern European countries now are.

It is to Anwar Sadat's credit that he recognized what was happening before it was too late.

Back Into Power-Production Business?

Most North Carolina municipally owned electrics long ago got out of the generating business and now purchase all their power needs from private firms.

This may change soon, however. The municipals on the Virginia Electric system are discussing purchasing or building a plant which would generate peak electric loads, the most expensive to buy.

The projects show that a savings can be realized and if this proves out, we are all for it.

THIS AFTERNOON

Going For The Big Bucks

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Job training, attitude adjustment, placement of the unemployed, and under-employed, and the upgrading of skills through federal manpower programs is big business in North Carolina.

In this fiscal year a total of $117 million in federal funds are being spent in this state by dozens of state and local governmental officials and private contractors.

That is, there are $117 million in known dollars. The system is such that nobody truly knows how many others may be pouring in through unmonitored channels.

The state manpower office has a handle on $81 million which comes through that channel. The money goes into state programs as well as local programs in 87 counties, operated variously by city or county agencies, community action agencies, regional councils of government, etc.

The Pipeline
Another $36 million is doled directly from the feds to 13

sponsors who deal direct, bypassing the state agency. Those sponsors include Alamance County, Wake County, Raleigh, Onslow County, Winston-Salem and Forsyth County; Greensboro and Guilford County; Gaston County; Durham and Orange County; Charlotte-Mecklenburg; Cumberland County and Buncombe County.

The money, typically, is broken down into "Titles" under federal regulations. The biggest is Title Six—the emergency employment act providing $36.8 million for short-term jobs in local or state public service functions to relieve the impact of unemployment caused by the recession. Congress voted to fund that another fiscal year ($6 billion nationally) but President Gerald Ford vetoed.

How many people employed? Nobody knows. The records are in a mess, and state officials concede that local officials don't accurately keep account. It is known that administrative cost is $395,000.

Next largest is Title One, the standard on-job-training and in-school training effort funded at $19.3 million. Administration takes $1.3 million.

Out of that also comes the governor's discretionary fund of $1.3 million which is spent for special projects and innovative things. Some $97,000 has been skimmed from that for administrative costs.

Title Two provides $9.1 million for public service employment in state or local government; administration eats up $717,000 of that.

Title Three is special things. North Carolina Indians are getting $3 million; migrant workers $6 million; summer jobs for youth gets $9.4 million.

Who Was Helped?
How many people were helped? Again, officials don't know. They say the programs, all told, have touched 15,917 people. How many of those were still in training, quit, never got a job, or what, nobody knows.

The answers regarding problems in the system are varied, having to do with the problems of shifting from federal to state to local control; with gearing up and hiring people and planning and setting up computer programs; with trying to correct old habits and set up new patterns; and with the typical bureaucratic propensity to protect oneself and the nature of man who would not normally attempt to destroy his own job by upsetting the system.

State manpower officials candidly admit they can't put their fingers on anything to either prove or disprove charges of poor performance and poor management. The dollar figures coming in are accurately recorded, they say, because that, after all, is what is important.

The people figures are not accurately recorded because the agencies get the money, but don't follow up. It is, after all, only federal money and if we don't get it, somebody else will—so goes the standard bureaucratic response.

INSIDE REPORT

McGovernites Aid Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
CHICAGO—As Jimmy Carter hurried through Chicago in a 15-hour campaign day prior to the Illinois Democratic primary, constantly at his side was a left-wing politician and reformer named James Wall—a fact central to Carter's intricately wrought plan to become President.

Wall, a Methodist clergyman and editor of the super-liberal Christian Century, was Illinois state chairman for Sen. George McGovern in 1972 and plays the same role for Carter in 1976. He is not alone. Erstwhile McGovernites dominate Carter's organization in Illinois and elsewhere (especially Florida, scene of his most impressive victory).

Yet, Carter still straddles issues with devout ideological agnosticism. He is, therefore, attempting a tour de force in keeping a McGovernite cadre while avoiding the pure left positions fatal to McGovern with the electorate four years ago.

This feat could well nominate the smiling little peanut farmer from Georgia. While nationally prominent liberals distrust Carter and demand more clearly enunciated positions, former state-level McGovernite activists are on the ground floor of his campaign and, therefore, willing to shed an ideological scruple to enter the halls of power. That means significant Carter sentiment on the party left not only against Sen. Henry M. Jackson but even Sen. Hubert Humphrey as a brokered candidate.

Accordingly, when Carter arrived here after his Florida triumph, he made no slight change in his ideologically nondescript posture.

Carefully reciting his memorized formulations balancing himself on all issues, Carter told us he would not tailor his rhetoric to woo the left. He was willing to endure a little booing at college campuses in Chicago and Champaign last week when he favored "blanket pardon" and opposed "blanket amnesty" for Vietnam draft dodgers; better angry students than an angry Middle America.

While avoiding McGovern's follies, Carter was seeking McGovern's blessing. McGovern has privately confided he so distrusts Carter that he might prefer even hawk Scoop Jackson in a Hobson's Choice. So, Carter recently telephoned McGovern with this plea: call me on the campaign trail if you are ever displeased with me or have any suggestions. Friends now believe McGovern would end up with Carter in a Carter-Jackson showdown.

One reason he might is the presence of so many McGovernite foot troops under the Carter tent as a result of long, quiet proselytizing. It began in Chicago last May when prominent McGovernites were invited to lunch with Carter at Maxim's. One immediate recruit:

millionaire Chicago lawyer Louis Manilow, past contributor to McGovern and other liberal candidates and now Carter's chief Illinois fund-raiser.

But Carter's base goes well beyond McGovern's. Co-host with Manilow at a $250-a-ticket cocktail party for Carter at the posh Metropolitan Club last week was ex-Atlanta Braves owner Bill Bartholomay, a rich Chicago businessman with vaguely Republican antecedents. Thus, the party mixed McGovernite veterans and Republican neophytes. One Republican lawyer, who never before had supported a Democrat for President or contributed to any political candidate, told us he expected a President Carter to "cut hell out of the bureaucracy" in Washington.

Nor does Carter pursue the old liberal baiting of Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization. Although Carter is widely supported by anti-Daley reformers, he has pledged to Daley that any Carter delegates elected in Illinois will vote for the mayor to head the state's convention delegation.

Hearing erroneous reports that Daley was supporting ex-Chicagoan Sargent Shriver in the four-man presidential

IT CUTS OFF POWER
The opening in the nose of the jet through which the fuel of a diesel engine has to pass is very small—not much larger than a pin-point. Diesel engines are of course very powerful, yet a small speck of dirt, almost invisible to the eye, cut shut off the power and render the engine useless.

People sometimes wonder why it is that despite the fact that they apparently live upright lives they do not derive any real satisfaction from this type of life. They seem to lack spiritual power. There may be many causes for this feeling, but one is that sometimes a hidden fault or sin as small as a speck of dirt which can clog a diesel jet, impedes flow of divine power from God to the soul.

Jealousy, envy, pride, cynicism, convetouness—it takes only a very little of these faults to shut down the divine power in our souls and cut off our relationship with God.

Fingering Gun Control

WASHINGTON—The House Judiciary Committee in its infinite wisdom sent the latest handgun control bill back to a subcommittee for further "revision," thus probably killing it for another year. After a committee vote of 18 to 14 to send it to the floor, the National Rifle Assn. put on so much pressure that three congressmen reversed their previous positions and that was the end of this year's hope for a safer and saner America.

When my friend Mindermann heard the news on the radio he called me. "You owe me $5. I told you Congress was too yellow to pass a gun control bill."

"That is not nice to say. The committee probably voted their consciences," I said.

"Well, you're going to think I'm crazy, but I have an idea. You cut off everybody's trigger finger at birth."

"You are crazy."

"Hear me out. We can't do anything with the present generation, but we can save future generations from killing each other through accidents and anger and despair."

"But you can't cut off someone's trigger finger at birth," I protested.

"Why not? The Constitution gives everyone the right to bear arms, which is the main argument the NRA throws at us all the time. But there is nothing in the Constitution that says an American has to have 10 fingers."

"But, Mindermann," I said, "it sounds so gory."

"It's a simple operation. Any doctor can perform it. The baby would never know it. When he got old enough the parents could explain to him or her that since Congress would never pass a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of guns, the only road open to them was to pass one forbidding any American to have a trigger finger."

"But the gun manufacturers and the NRA would be up in arms if you tried something like that."

"Why would they? We're not saying they can't sell guns or ammunition. They can do anything they damn please."

"But what good would a gun or ammunition be if no one has a finger to squeeze the trigger?"

Mindermann said, "Now you're getting the point. Listen, I've researched this thing. I took a poll of the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate, and not one of them had any strong feeling about fingers. There is no finger lobby to speak of. In fact, everyone I talked to said they couldn't see any reason for the constituents to object to having one finger removed providing the government paid for it under Medicare."

"I'll have to admit it sounds simpler than trying to get a handgun control bill through Congress."

"It's the only answer to the

Costly 'Leak' Search

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If the House Ethics Committee would settle for satirist Mark Russell's word on who leaked the leak that Daniel Schorr leaked, it could save the taxpayers $350,000 or more.

That's the amount being begged by Chairman John J. Flynt, D-Ga., to launch a hunt he says may go to "remote parts of the country or the world" to find the one man or woman who handed Schorr a secret congressional report on the CIA.

Russell, on the other hand, insists that CBS correspondent Schorr was a beneficiary of the "Leak Fairy," a sort of governmental gremlin who hides out in remote parts of Xerox machines.

And it is clear that some members of Congress are as skeptical about that answer as they are about the approach envisioned by Flynt, who took his funding plea before a House administration panel Tuesday.

"I'm appalled by a figure of $350,000 above what the committee is already allowed" for routine operations, said Rep. Mendel J. Davis, D-S.C., a administration committee member.

"We hope," drawled Flynt, "that this can be done for a fraction of what we are asking." But he added that "some have suggested we could spend $1 million ... we don't know whether this is going to take one day or from now until next Jan. 3."

Similarly, he said, "The first question of the first witness could conclude this investigation. But we anticipate that 300 to 400 persons could be called upon to answer questions or appear as witnesses."

Asked if the probe could finish by July 31, or before the national political conventions, Flynt replied: "We would hope so."

Flynt's panel has been ordered by the full House to make "findings and recommendations" about the publication of the CIA report by the Village Voice, a New York weekly newspaper. Schorr, based in Washington, has acknowledged that the paper got the report from him, though he has de-

40 Years Ago Today

March 19, 1936
Dr. John F. Condon, the famous "Jafsie," go-between in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, returning to New York from a Panama vacation, was quoted by a fellow passenger today as being "very" willing to discuss the case with Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey.

Condon declined to comment at all on the last month's efforts of Bruno Richard Hauptmann to escape execution for the kidnap-murder of the Linbergh baby.

He was quoted as saying, however, "I will be very glad to receive Governor Hoffman at my home in the Bronx, which would be a very lovely place now that spring is here, and give him a good dinner and talk with him over the cigars as long as he pleases, but I don't see any reason why I should go to New Jersey."

Few Resort To IRA Shelters

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Wage earners not covered by a qualified private or government retirement plan — excluding Social Security and Railroad Retirement — are now entitled to set aside substantial sums on which no immediate federal tax is incurred.

This is the basic provision of Individual Retirement Accounts, which permit such workers to deduct up to 15 percent from their gross taxable income to a maximum of $1,500. Taxes are deferred until retirement, when tax brackets usually are lower.

IRAs were introduced last year with great publicity, but unfortunately the publicity sometimes confused rather than educated.

Some insurers, who offered plans preapproved by the Internal Revenue Service, failed to inform their clients that agent fees were deducted "up front," that is, before the client's account benefited.

Some banks suggested that it was easy to retire wealthy, but they based their figures on extremely high interest rates, which they guaranteed for months and sometimes years, but not for the 35 years on which projections were made.

These are among the reasons why, according to some private studies, only 1 percent of all those eligible for the tax-deferred retirement program signed up in the first year.

There were other reasons too: The shaky economy discouraged financial commitments, some agents — such as banks, insurers, mutual funds — were themselves unenthusiastic, and the product was, after all, brand new.

Said Earl McGuire, vice president of the Bank of Asheville, N.C., and chairman of the American Bankers Association IRA Workshop Committee:

"We were dealing with the classic new product, to be used by those who had never used a similar product before. We were beginning from ground zero. We had to educate the customer first."

McGuire, through both the ABA and his own bank, has helped conduct seminars on IRAs and to develop much of the educational literature disseminated by bankers and others.

He offers this extreme illustration of how $100,000, accumulated at $1,500 a year for 23½ years to age 65 at 7.5 percent interest, might turn into payouts of $305,818 for a husband and wife in retirement.

The $100,000—which would have been much less had taxes been required — is not drawn upon until age 70, five years after retirement. In those five years it has grown to $146,263. A withdrawal of $7,992 is made.

For the next several years an increasing amount is withdrawn annually, but in the 11th year of retirement, when the couple is 75, the account balance has grown to $155,458, thanks to tax-free interest.

Thereafter, as larger and larger annual withdrawals are made, the account begins to shrink. In the 21st year, when the couple is 85, it is down to $82,507, but the withdrawal that year is $25,002.

The goal, required by law, is to seek depletion of the

Two Wrecks On Tuesday

An estimated $800 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday morning.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 9:55 a.m. collision on First Street, 155 feet west of the Holly Street intersection and involved vehicles driven by Redden Taylor Jones of 115 Holliday Ct. and Norman Eason Rogerson of 106 North Summit St.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage to the Jones truck at $275 and set damage to the Rogerson car at $250.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 9:03 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Maxwell Street involving cars driven by Wanda Terry Porter of Route 2, Greenville and Bonnie Owens Singleton of 200 Fairland Rd.

Police estimated damage at $250 to the Porter car and $25 to the Singleton vehicle.

CONVICTED—Manson family members Susan Murphy, left, and Sandra Good leave Federal Court in Sacramento, Calif. Tuesday evening after being convicted of conspiring to mail death threats to business and public officials. They will be sentenced at a later date.

Holding Annual N.C. Convention

The North Carolina Association of Educational Office Personnel will hold their 25th annual state convention in Asheville, March 18 through March 20, at the Great Smokies Hilton.

Approximately 750 members are registered to attend the two and one-half day workshop; with 950 members and bosses expected for the banquet on Friday. Members from the Greenville City Schools, and Pitt Technical Institute will be attending.

primary here (in fact, the mayor is neutral), a Carter campaign underling placed a complaining telephone call to Daley's office. Wishing no trouble at City Hall, Wall quickly placed a second call reassuring the Daley camp the complaint was totally unauthorized. That satisfied the Daley aide, who never realized this was the same Jim Wall who had long been Daley's hairshirt in suburban Dupage County.

Among sophisticated liberals who have not succumbed to Carter's Southern charm, there is apprehension over his non-positions on abortion, busing, defense, health and energy. When Carter straddled the amnesty issue last week, some McGovernites here said they wanted out. Nor were reformers overjoyed by newspaper pictures of Carter breakfasting with Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, a young lion of the Daley organization detested by Carter's liberal supporters.

But fund-raiser Lou Manilow typifies new flexibility on the left which permits Carter to seek "moderate middle courses to unite the country." Manilow accepts "blanket pardon" instead of "blanket amnesty" which would be unacceptable to most voters.

In wooing the left, Carter has characteristically worked quietly in the hinterlands while ignoring liberal doyens based in Washington and New York. Although those national figures may insist on Carter removing the ideological mush from his mouth, provincial foot-soldiers of the left seem content with being in charge of his campaign no matter what Jimmy says.

problem," Mindermann said. "The slogan for the bill would be, 'If you can't take the trigger out of the gun, take the trigger finger out of the boy.'"

"I'll make a deal with you, Mindermann. I'll suggest it in my column, but you have to answer the mail."

"Deal. And don't forget to send the $5."

A team composed of three Chicago women from the Dartnell Institute of Management will present a one clined to name his own source. CBS News has suspended him, pending the outcome of the probe.

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Calif., of the administration committee demanded to know why Flynt's request includes $120,000 in travel and per diem funds for investigators, since "everything that happened, happened in Washington and New York."

"We have been informed," said Flynt, "that there is information to be gathered on this matter from people far removed from Washington. They may be in remote parts of the country or the world."

"The world?" asked Burton.

"Absolutely," said Flynt.

That apparently struck Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., chairman of the panel, as a bit much. "Well if you go to Paris," he snapped, "try the ... (inaudible) Cafe. I recommend duck and the Chateau La-fite '59."

Burton then wanted to know if the entire issue couldn't be settled "if Mr. Schorr would come in and say I got the report from (former CIA Director William) Colby."

"Nothing would please the Ethics Committee more than for Mr. Schorr to say in answer to our first question where he got that information," said Flynt.

Early Morning Fire At Home

A fire at a Winterville residence caused severe damage early this morning.

According to fire officials, the home of Vera Rose was heavily damaged when a fire apparently ignited around a heater.

Damage was estimated at $2,500. The house was owned by Hoyt Hammond. The occupants of the home escaped without injury officials added.

Members of the Winterville Fire Department responded to the 7:27 alarm.

account on an actuarial basis. At the same time, the retirees seek to keep the maximum amount sheltered from taxes. Taxes are paid only on what is withdrawn.

The withdrawals continue to get larger and the account balance smaller until, in the 24th year of retirement, at age 88, it is depleted after total payouts of $305,818.

Please note that this is an extreme example. It is based on 7.5 per cent interest, which may or may not continue. It assumes the couple will have other income between ages 65 and 70. It assumes longer-than-average life.

But it does also serve to illustrate that IRAs can be used flexibly, and very profitably, provided people obtain the guidance. Using the tax system, which is what an IRA does, is to a great extent the secret of liquidity.

Separation Said Ahead

SEPARATING — Princess Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II of Britain and her husband, Lord Snowdon, right, plan a legal separation the Daily Express, a London newspaper reported in Wednesday editions. (AP Wirephoto)

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express reported today that Princess Margaret and her photographer husband, the Earl of Snowdon, plan to separate. The Daily Mirror said they have begun divorce proceedings.

The Mirror said Queen Elizabeth II was expected to announce the breakup of her younger sister's 15½-year marriage shortly. Divorces within the royal family must have the monarch's approval.

A spokesman at Buckingham Palace told newsmen, "Obviously the situation has been discussed by the royal family. But I am not in a position to say what decision, if any, has been reached."

Lord Snowdon, 46, told reporters as he left for Australia to put on a photographic exhibition, "I never discuss my private life."

The 45-year-old princess, a white gown setting off her sun-tan from a Caribbean vacation, attended the opening of the National Theater's new home on the south bank of the Thames and saw Albert Finney in an uncut, four-hour production of "Hamlet."

She and Snowdon have two children, David Viscount Linley, 14, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 11.

Reports of marital problems between the Snowdons have circulated for years. There was a new outbreak of speculation recently when the princess vacationed on the Caribbean island of Mustique without her husband and with 27-year-old Roddy Llewellyn, whose father heads the Whitbread brewery. She also visited Llewellyn recently at a resort he runs near Bath.

The traditional opposition to divorce in the royal family has relaxed a great deal since King Edward VIII was forced to abdicate in 1936 to marry an American divorcee. But there was speculation that Margaret would have to renounce her right of succession to the throne because the monarch is the head of the Church of England and the church is opposed to divorce.

Margaret is fifth in the line of succession but unlikely ever to occupy the throne since she is preceded by the queen's four healthy children.

Margaret and the former Antony Armstrong-Jones were married in a state wedding on May 6, 1960, five years after pressure from the royal family and the Church of England forced her to break off a romance with a World War II fighter ace, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, because he was divorced.

The queen made her commoner brother-in-law an earl in 1961.

The Daily Mirror said Snowdon initiated the reported marital breakup. It quoted a palace official as saying, "Everything possible has been done to make the couple patch up their differences. But the situation has become untenable. It has caused great distress to the queen."

Arrested On Drug Charges

Donald Roland Saunders, 22, of Route 7, Asheboro, and 81 Riverbluff Apts. has been arrested by Greenville Police on two drug charges stemming from a January 23 incident at his local apartment, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

The chief said Saunders has been charged with possession of Phencyclidine and possession of Diazepam (Valium). The drugs were allegedly found in his apartment following a January search of the dwelling.

Navy Cutback Plans Readied

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon plans to close or reduce more than 70 Navy bases, many of them small Naval Reserve centers.

The cutbacks to be announced today are the second stage of reductions by the Defense Department this year, and more are anticipated. The announcement involves planned cutbacks, and these are subject to change.

Also to be announced are some other defense agency and Army cutbacks.

Civilian and military job reductions in the Navy action will total about 5,000. The total of military and civilian job cuts will be nearly 7,000 if all go through, including 764 military positions. There also will be around 7,000 transfers and relocations of civilian and military people in the Navy move.

The Pentagon expects to save more than $40 million a year, and four naval air stations will either be closed or reduced, congressional sources said.
These are at Key West, Fla.;
Memphis, Tenn.; Corpus
Christi, Tex.; and Saufley
Field, Fla.

Sources also say that the Navy hopes to consolidate helicopter training now at Whiting

Field, Fla., with the Army.
Also, congressional sources say the Philadelphia Naval Hospital is expected to be reduced or closed.

None of these decisions can be final until a long process is completed, including an environmental impact statement.

Last week, the Air Force announced closings, reductions and other changes at 51 bases involving a reduction of 10,500 military and civilian jobs and claimed savings of $150 million a year.

The Army will come along with its list later.

Plan All-Out Reagan Push

RALEIGH (AP)—The American Conservative Union (ACU) has announced it will make an all-out effort in former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's behalf in the North Carolina primary.

Emphasis of the effort will be on newspaper and radio advertising in strong Republican areas of the state, said James Roberts, executive director of the Washington-based organization of conservative activists. The ads are to begin today, he said in a news release.

"We feel the Reagan campaign must have a win in North Carolina to restore the momentum that is necessary to gain the nomination," Roberts said.
Reagan has lost all five primaries in which he ran against President Ford.

"Gerald Ford is a nice guy, but a phony conservative. His rhetoric is fine, but his record on amnesty, appointments to federal office, detente, energy deregulation and busing is a disaster," Roberts said.

Rules Result In Inflated Costs, Waste And Delay

By BROOKS JACKSON and EVANS WITT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of federal regulation, it costs almost twice as much to fly from Chicago to Minneapolis as it does to fly between San Francisco and Los Angeles, even though the trips cover about the same distance.

A New Jersey company wastes 90,000 gallons of fuel a year because the government won't let the parent company's trucks carry goods for its Florida subsidiary.

Two groups filed competing applications for a radio station license in California's Central Valley 26 years ago, but the government hasn't made up its mind which application to approve.

In 1972, growers left 14,000 tons of cherries to rot in orchards because of a federal marketing order designed to keep prices up.

Inflated prices, waste, delay: these are the price Americans pay for federal agencies to regulate prices and control competition in private business.

These agencies' defenders — including generally the industries they regulate — say the costs of regulation are justified by providing services to sparsely populated areas, stabilizing prices and preventing strong firms from squeezing weaker ones out of business.

But an odd alliance of consumer advocates and conservatives reject these arguments and say many agencies' powers should be drastically cut. Ralph Nader and Ronald Reagan, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and President Ford are among those who have called for massive changes at the Interstate Commerce Commission, Civil Aeronautics Board and other agencies.

The Costs of Flying
Perhaps the clearest example of the costs of economic regulation comes with the interstate airlines, which are regulated as to fares and routes by the CAB. Airlines that fly solely within a state are not subject to the CAB.

Pacific Southwest Airlines flies thousands of people every day between San Francisco and Los Angeles for $25.50 one way. That's a 347-mile trip within the state of California.

The Northwest Orient fare between Chicago and Minneapolis — about 355 miles — is $45.37. Thus, that fare, controlled by the CAB, is close to twice the fare regulated only by a state government.

"Public Service"

The CAB and major airlines argue that the concept of "public service" must be added to the cost equation. They say many smaller cities and towns would lose air service — or have it only at the higher rates — because such service is not profitable. The CAB now requires carriers to fly such routes, and the carriers argue that the profits from other routes must support the money-losing ones.

"If you think those major airlines make any money by going into those little towns, of course, they don't," says Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. "But it's part of a service. It's like Rural Free Delivery. We've got a lot of city slickers that don't think farmers ought to get their mail either."

Since there is little or no competition in fares among the airlines, the competition is reduced to expensive, but not necessarily significant areas — free champagne or drinks, stewardesses' uniforms and the variety of meals. In general, the airlines which stay within a state do not offer such frills — another reason for their lower rates.

Delays, Delays
A regulatory decision can mean millions of dollars for a company and touch thousands of people. Because of the complexity of the issues and the constitutional mandate to hear all sides, agencies often take years to decide cases.

But sometimes the cases stretch interminably.

The Federal Communications Commission has been thinking about a petition from West End Radio Co. in Tracy, Calif., for a radio station license since Aug. 31, 1950. And it's also been considering the competing application from Olympia Broadcasting in Carmichael, Calif.

The FCC's file on the applications is thick, but it lacks one item: a final decision.

At the ICC, it's been 13 years since the Union Pacific Railroad asked to merge with the Rock Island line, which was in financial trouble. Thousands of pages of testimony have been taken on the issues.

But now the Rock Island line is bankrupt, and Union Pacific really doesn't want to merge any more.

On Jan. 12, the ICC once again extended the time limits for another six months for anyone interested in the case to express an opinion.

Waste Not?

Just complying with agencies' intricate regulations on price and competition often costs money, fuel or other limited materials.

For example, a Department of Transportation study discovered that a big manufacturer of building materials in New Jersey ships three truckloads of goods a week from its main plant to Tampa, Fla. The trucks make the return trip empty.

This company has a subsidiary in southern Florida that sends three truckloads of goods a week to eastern Pennsylvania. But the subsidiary's trucks make the return trip south empty — because the ICC will not let a subsidiary's trucks carry goods for the parent company or vice versa.

The DOT study, which did not name the firm, concluded that this one company could save 360,000 miles of useless travel and 90,000 gallons of fuel a year just by running trucks in a circuit from New Jersey to Tampa to southern Florida to eastern Pennsylvania.

The ICC won't allow it. The rationale is that allowing different firms to carry one another's goods — even when they are commonly owned — would undercut the for-hire truckers.

ICC regulation of the trucking industry is required by law to eliminate destructive or unfair competition among the "common carriers," the firms that haul goods for hire.

The ICC tells truckers precisely what kinds of goods they can carry, precisely what highways they can use and what they can charge.

The ICC also limits competition by denying thousands of applications each by truckers desiring to offer new services.

The major trucking firms band together in "rate bureaus" that decide what to charge for hauling. These carrels, exempt from antitrust prosecution, then challenge any attempts to have lower rates approved by the ICC.

This keeps shipping prices higher than they could be.

An Agriculture Department study found that shipping rates for frozen fruits and vegetables dropped 18 per cent when the courts ruled those products exempt from ICC oversight. Another Agriculture study showed rates for dressed poultry plummeted 33 per cent when ICC regulation was lifted.

Food Prices

The American farmer has often been the subject of praise and promises of support on the floor of Congress.

But Congress has done more than just talk about supporting farmers: federal law allows price-fixing and strict limits on competition in the production and sale of many agricultural products, mainly milk, fruit, nuts and vegetables.

In the harsh years of the Dust Bowl and the Depression, when farmers were at the mercy of plunging prices and middlemen, Congress opened loopholes in federal antitrust laws to allow farmers to band together in cooperatives. Without the exemption, such co-ops would be illegal.

But now many co-ops are big businesses that work closely with arms of government called "marketing orders," which commonly control production, quality, the flow of produce to the market and sometimes even prices.

Associated Milk Producers Inc., which controls up to 90 per cent of the market in some Midwestern areas, is a $1.4-billion-a-year giant that ranks 141st on the Fortune 500 list of industrial corporations.

Ocean Spray controls 85 per cent of the nation's cranberry sales. Sunkist Growers Inc. controls 75 per cent of the oranges and 88 per cent of the fresh lemons grown in California and Arizona.

The secretary of agriculture, who oversees the marketing orders, is required by law to protect consumers from price-gouging increases by the co-ops. Yet the government has never penalized a co-op for boosting prices, even though some dairy co-ops have charged prices up to 22 cents a gallon above the federal minimums for milk.

Sheer waste can be the result of the federal marketing orders, since supplies are often held low to keep prices high.

In 1970, about one-quarter of the California cling peach crop was destroyed intentionally and 8,600 acres of trees pulled up. In 1972, Ocean Spray reported 600,896 barrels of cranberries that had been held off the market were "lost due to shrinkage."

Farmers and Agriculture Department economists argue that these government restrictions, in the long run, help to even out what would otherwise be "boom-and-bust" cycles of low prices and ruinous competition alternating with short supplies and high prices.

But other economists disagree.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability says a new study shows milk prices would fall 4.5 cents a gallon if marketing orders were wiped out. For all dairy products, consumers would save $100 million to $150 million a year. And the council adds that farmers' income would fall only $50 million to $100 million, because of the waste in the current system.

Better Taste In Bottled Water

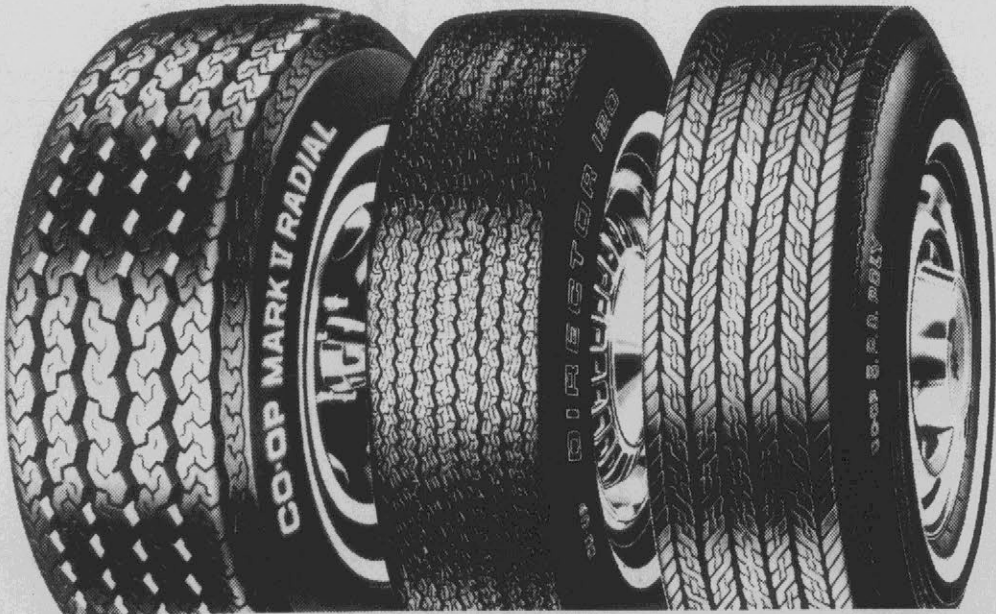

EVIAN, France (UPI) — A key to making better tasting coffee, tea, formulated frozen citrus juices, soups and even ice cubes for chilling drinks is to use bottled natural mountain spring water, report Evian water staff home economists located here at the world famous spa.

Discussing health values as well as good taste, the home economists also point out that the mineral balance and purity of bottled water recommend it for use in the preparation of baby formulas.

The FCC's file on the appli-

'Unemployable' Today Heads His Own Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years ago, Surinder Dhillon was so severely handicapped by injuries sustained in an automobile accident that he was confined to a wheelchair at home. Even to the District of Columbia vocational rehabilitation agency he was considered "unemployable."

Today, Dhillon is met at home each weekday morning by a modified van equipped to handle his motorized wheelchair. He is driven to his modern offices in the Virginia suburbs of Washington, where he heads a computer software firm with 90 employees, which last year grossed over $2 million.

Life changed dramatically for 28-year-old Dhillon in 1970, when he enrolled in a demonstration program at George Washington University funded by the Rehabilitation Services Administration of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The goal of the project was to determine if people who were severely disabled could be trained to work at home, despite the fact that they had previously been turned down for vocational rehabilitation services as "unemployable."

Dhillon was assisted in learning computer programming right in his own living room by use of a personalized instruction manual augmented by a time sharing computer. He learned the mysteries of "computer talk" and with a contract from the National Aeronautics & Space Administration in Washington opened his own firm in 1972.

In tribute to the rehabilitation agencies which are trying to help handicapped people, Dhillon named his company Rehab Computer Inc.

Rehab Computer started business in a spare room in Dhillon's basement. His company provides computer software services, and research and development in training and employment of the handicapped.

In 1973, its first full year of operation, Rehab Computer grossed nearly $100,000 and paid over $65,000 in salaries to nine full-time employees, seven of them severely disabled. Today, with gross sales approaching $2,200,000, Dhillon looks forward to continued expansion of his own business, with job opportunities for still more "unemployable" handicapped people.

"I want to see disabled people using their minds and talents in challenging jobs," Dhillon says, "and not the kind of menial tasks frequently given us in sheltered workshops or 'token' programs of hiring the handicapped. By creating challenging jobs, we give the handicapped a chance not only to be independent, but the opportunity to maintain their dignity and self-respect."

Handicapped people who are considered "homebound disabled" need to get out of the house and into the community to enjoy normal social and business contacts, says Dhillon, who has formed a small company to provide transportation for handicapped people. It has seven vans equipped to take people in wheelchairs to and from work, and to other appointments. Five of his staff, previously homebound by their handicaps, now regularly report to work at the office.

But jobs can also be designed so that people can work at home, he maintains. Recently Dhillon's company designed an information retrieval system that has enabled two disabled people to work for HEW in the data processing field, by using computer terminals placed in their own homes.

Other handicapped people who "graduated" from the George Washington University project have also benefited greatly from the program. Most were public welfare clients, and all considered too handicapped for conventional vocation rehabilitation programs, even though many of them had job experience, intelligence, education and youth.

Of the 34 people eventually employed, 21 are wheelchair-bound. Six of the project participants have married since graduating from the program, one purchased a home, six bought cars, and ten are no longer "homebound."

NEW LIFE—Surinder Dhillon, left, who was once considered "unemployable," talks with employee Ed Powell at his computer software firm in suburban Washington D.C., where he heads a staff of 90 and has made it a company policy to hire and train handicapped workers.

Boys Town Back To Family Style

By EDWARD C. NICHOLLS
Associated Press Writer
BOYS TOWN, Neb. (AP) — Boys Town, made famous by a 1938 film and made wealthy by people with a soft spot for kids, is returning to the family type environment envisioned by its founder, Father Edward Flanagan. Consultant Jim Brown said Tuesday that Boys Town is building 16 cottages on its main campus here to serve 10 boys each with live-in parents. With remodeling of existing facilities into similar units, the campus will eventually serve up to 500 boys.

The program will be expanded to other cities and the ultimate enrollment at satellite units around the nation will be limited only by the "financial resources we have to build them and maintain them,"

Brown said.

Brown's comments came as Boys Town made public an audit showing that its total assets in 1975 climbed to $242,102,166 — which totals nearly $608,000 for each of the 398 boys it presently serves.

That net worth is up sharply from the $191.4 million disclosed in a Pulitzer Prize-winning story by the Sun News-papers of Omaha in 1972. At that time, the private Roman Catholic institution had an average enrollment of 695 youngsters.

Brown said the resident population at the main Boys Town campus has dropped "first and foremost because we get fewer referrals of the type of boy who can profit from the Boys Town experience."

He said referral agencies "for some time now have had the philosophy that a kid is better off in a family residence than he is in an institution, which Boys Town traditionally was. We had basically dormitory living here in an institutional-type environment."

Brown said Boys Town could have continued to receive hard core delinquents from referral agencies but "they could not profit from the Boys Town experience. We would have been putting some rotten apples in to spoil the entire barrel."

Founded in 1917, Boys Town achieved recognition in the 1938 movie of the same name starring Mickey Rooney and Spencer Tracy.

New Year For Baha'i Members

A new year begins for members of the Baha'i Faith Sunday, the first day of spring and the beginning of the year 133 B.E.

The letters B.E. mean Baha'i Era, the Baha'i calendar dates from the time of the religion's origin in 1844 in Iran. Since that date, the Baha'i Faith has been established in over 300 countries and territories.

For the Baha'is, New Year's Day is a holy day and Baha'is all over the world call it by its Persian name, Naw-Ruz and it is one of the nine Baha'i holy days on which they suspend work.

The Baha'is of Greenville will hold a pot luck supper at 7 p.m. Saturday at 300 Contentnea St., home of Ms. Ludi Johnson, to celebrate Naw-Ruz.

The program will consist of a brief film entitled "One and One-Half Dreams" on the United Nations and will be open to the public.

Japanese Prime Minister Takashi Hari was assassinated Nov. 4, 1921.

Realtors Plan Civic Project

Proceeds from the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors' "everything goes" rummage sale on Saturday, April 17 will be used to fund a community service project effort, the organization announced.

The rummage sale will launch the Board of Realtors' 1976 Private Property Week, scheduled to run from April 18 through the 24th.

The sale will be conducted from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at 900 Greenville Boulevard, across the street from the East Carolina University football schedule sign at the Charles Boulevard intersection.

Connally Branch of the Board of Realtors said that the organization is requesting community cooperation in selecting a "gift for Greenville" as part of the project.

Branch said that one idea that has been suggested involves the placement of "Welcome to Greenville" signs at the city entrances. The signs could contain historical information about Greenville, including founding dates, he added.

Branch requested that local citizens return their ideas for the community service project on the form which appears elsewhere on this page.

Local Realtors will donate various items for the rummage sale, it was pointed out.

He invited the community to participate in the sale and observed, "If you don't like our prices, make us an offer."

A New London, Tex., school blew up, March 18, 1937, killing 24.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market stepped ahead briskly today as investors drew encouragement from several optimistic economic reports. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up more than two points after opening trades and New York Stock Exchange issues advancing in price held a 3-1 lead on those declining. Trading was active.

Several bullish economic reports from the government Tuesday had helped the market swing out of its decline after reaching the 1,000 point mark in the Dow average on Thursday.

The Commerce Department said housing starts jumped 27 per cent in February from the month before.

Business sales were reported to be 1.1 per cent higher in January and inventories were .5 per cent higher.

Early prices today included American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/4 to 57; Reynolds Metals, up 3/8 to 37 3/4; and U.S. Steel, up 1/4 to 83 3/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.97 to 983.47, recovering from its 28.81 slide in the two previous sessions.

New York Stock Exchange issues advancing in price led those declining by a 5-3 margin. Volume on the Big Board reached 22.78 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .23 at 103.62. And the NASDAQ composite index of over the counter trading close .14 higher at 89.86.

Goldwater Raps Double Standard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen can attend two dinners a night, seven nights a week, says Sen. Barry Goldwater, and they ought to look at who is picking up the tab before they start criticizing defense officials who accept hunting trips from government contractors.

In a Senate speech, the Arizona Republican asked Tuesday if there wasn't some purpose behind the dinners to which congressmen are invited.

"And isn't that purpose exactly what the people of large corporations are supposed to be at when they take a member of the military goose-hunting?" he said.

Goldwater said a Defense Department rule requiring officials to turn down invitations from contractors was foolish.

Approval was given for the purchase of $9,500 worth of microfilming equipment for the Medical Records Department. The plan is to have most of the hospital's tons and tons of records microfilmed before the move to the new building. It is hoped that all but about two years of records can be filmed before the move. This same equipment plus some older items can be used in the new hospital.

Some $134,909 in Medicaid money is now owed to Pitt Memorial, the Board was told. Reimbursement Specialist Warren McRoy was said by Richardson to be working hard to get this figure lowered.

The Duke Endowment recently has contributed $12,085 to the hospital, it was told. The same Endowment has put $750,000 in the new hospital building, the second largest contribution it ever has made to a single hospital construction project.

Members were invited to attend a County Computer utilization meeting Tuesday, Mar. 23, at 5 p.m., if they wish.

Dr. Eric Fearrington brought greeting from the hospital staff to the new Board members, and said the visit of the Joint Committee on Hospital Accreditation went well last week.

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the ECU School of Medicine, reported that the visit of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education representatives recently pointed out that the Med School is "not far enough along to request the meeting that would call for students to enter this fall." Needed, he

Advise Now Is The Time For Proposals

Now is the best time for citizens to contact their city and county officials to communicate how they feel city and county funds should be spent during the next fiscal year, according to Reginald Gray, County Manager of Pitt County, and Al Averett, Finance Director of Greenville.

Gray and Averett spoke last night at a meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters at the First Presbyterian Church.

The two said that a citizen should first determine which local governmental department would have the authority to request funds for the purpose in which he is interested. (Such information can be obtained by calling the offices of the Greenville City Manager or the Pitt County Manager.)

He should then contact the proper department head promptly, since all city and county department heads are now in the process of drawings up their budgets and requests for funds for the next fiscal year (July 1, 1976-June 30, 1977).

Arrested Here In Clinton Crimes

The purpose of the study tour is fourfold: to gain an understanding of the functions and operations of the United Nations and the United States government; to provide the opportunity to participate in discussion of current world affairs; to discuss the Christian's responsibility and the role of the church in the issues raised before the U.N. and the federal government; and to discuss how United Methodist youth can determine his Christian responsibility in these issues.

Miss Hayes is a senior at Rose High School and a member of St. James United Methodist Church.

A public hearing will be held for each budget around June 1, at which time citizens will be given further opportunity to comment on the budget. The Pitt County Commissioners will vote approval of the final budget ordinance of Pitt County and the Greenville City Council will do likewise for the final budget ordinance of Greenville.

Gray said that the items given priority in formulating the Pitt County budget ordinance are: education; social services; health; and protection of life and property. Consideration of a new program is based on how badly it is needed, how many citizens it would serve, and how many citizens support it.

The best way to influence how funds are spent, Gray said, is to understand the budget process and to contact the proper department heads. Interested citizens should also attend the public hearings and give their input as to how they think funds should be spent.

Baseball Season Is Now In Jeopardy

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The players association's executive board was expected to rubber-stamp today chief negotiator Marvin Miller's denunciation of the baseball owners' "final" proposal to settle the prolonged labor dispute.

Now, not only spring training — delayed by the owners since March 1 — was in danger, but so was the scheduled April 8 start of the season.

"It (the season opening) is getting close and every hour it is more in jeopardy," said American League President Lee MacPhail after Miller tore apart the owners' proposal and charged the baseball executives with a mammoth publicity ploy.

"I'm shocked," said John Gaherin, management's chief negotiator. "He (Miller) has put this thing in some position."

MacPhail said the owners were adamant on what they considered a far-reaching proposal that would change the face of baseball for years to come.

"We won't change a colon, not a semicolon," MacPhail said. And then to emphasize their determination, the owners' committee packed its bags and went home.

"Miller will telephone Mr.

Gaherin in New York tomorrow (Wednesday) with the Executive Board's decision," said MacPhail, who appeared weary and bleary eyed after six days of fruitless negotiating.

"Will there be a season?" MacPhail was asked. "I don't know," murmured the American League boss.

Gaherin, too, appeared tired and admitted disappointment at the turn of events. He and the owners felt they had whipped together an offer the players couldn't refuse — one that gave the players the controversial one-and-one option rights, but with built-in safeguards to protect balanced competition in baseball.

"Their tone was a tone of rejection," Gaherin said after Tuesday's negotiating session with Miller and some 25 of baseball's brightest stars.

Gaherin was asked if the almost certain rejection by the players' Executive Board meant that talks had collapsed.

"I'm not going to say collapsed," he replied. "But our offer will be withdrawn. It won't hinder the (future) bargaining."

Both Gaherin and MacPhail emphasized that the owners' 10-page proposal delivered Tuesday was a "take-all, leave-all" proposition.

MacPhail said the Tuesday talks concerned clarification of some of the owners' proposals, not the merits of the offer. They answered questions from the players and from Miller.

Earlier, Miller held a news conference along with the players and chipped away at the owners' proposals.

He said in effect the owners' version of the one-and-one option was a farce.

"The players would not be free agents in the Messersmith sense," Miller said. "Nor has the issue of liability been settled. It's been reduced."

The Messersmith reference was to an arbitrator's decision last December in the case of pitcher Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers. The arbitrator ruled the reserve clause in the standard player contract enabled the player to play one year with a contract, then not sign the following season and play out his option, becoming a free agent the following season.

Under the arbitrator's ruling, subsequently upheld by two federal courts, Messersmith became eligible Tuesday to sell his services to any of the 24 major league clubs.

The owners, in their proposal, offered a one-and-one option for the next several years, but they added that free agents could deal only with a maximum of eight clubs, selected in the inverse order of the previous season's standings. If the eight clubs pass, then the player could try and sell himself to the rest of the teams.

"It's a new kind of free agent draft," said Miller. "Messersmith is free to all 24 clubs, the other players with a maximum of eight."

Then, Miller turned his guns on Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Miller pointed out that Kuhn had promised to open the spring training camps if the commissioner felt progress was being made in the negotiations.

"I think progress has been made," Miller said. "They (the owners) have come a distance toward our proposal. This is progress."

Miller added: "Now I'm wondering if this is progress. Obviously, Kuhn doesn't. The camps are still closed."

Miller contended the owners are concentrating more on public opinion than negotiations.

"Always that is a part of collective bargaining, but they've gone overboard," Miller said.

Miller said he had promised to present the proposal to the association's Executive Board but said he would do so with a recommendation that the board reject the offer.

"This offer is peculiar," said Miller, "because I've never seen a proposed agreement that has a raft of matters still to be discussed, some of which have never been negotiated."

Miller said there were an awful lot of "contract hookers" in the agreement. He cited that the owners wanted a four-year agreement but with the unilateral right to reopen after two years.

Miller said he had no doubt the owners' proposal would be defeated by the executive board.

"I have a reading from the players that they are opposed to it in its present form," Miller said.

ler explained. "Personally, I will recommend rejection."

Tom Seaver, New York Mets' pitching star and a negotiator, said the players are of the same mind as Miller. "Marvin said it well," Seaver advised.

Many of the players appealed to Kuhn to use his authority to open the training camps in the best interests of baseball.

During the long day of talk, talk, talk, someone even got in a lick for the guy who in the long haul will pay for the final settlement — the fan.

"What shall we tell the fans?" a reporter asked MacPhail.

"Tell them, don't give up on us," MacPhail replied.

It was the only optimistic note of the day.

Roenker Goes To Bat With A Goal In Mind

By WILLIE PATRICK
Special To The Reflector

Joe Roenker tends to keep his baseball hitting philosophy as simple as possible.

Ask him why he hits fastballs great distances, and he will talk of "concentration and watching the ball."

Ask him why he will often look bad when attacking an off-speed pitch and he has a solid answer for that, too.

"You have to be an aggressive hitter at the plate," said Roenker. "Some guys go to the plate with the idea of not making an out, and to be a defensive hitter. I go up with the intention of getting a hit or hitting the ball out of the park, so I am an offensive hitter."

What has this got to do with off-speed pitching? Roenker said that a good curve has been known to fool him on an occasion, but that is no one's fault but his own. He related an incident of the Pirates' opening game against Maryland and compared it to one at Furman on Saturday.

"Ferris, the Maryland pitcher, was about as good as pitcher as I have ever seen," said Roenker, who whiffed four times against the righthander. "His curve moved and he could throw the fastball by you, so you just couldn't adjust."

"But as far as then going to Furman and getting all those hits, I really don't know what to say except that I am a streak hitter—some days I have it, some days I don't."

The first four games of the Pirate season in which Roenker was a participant provided quite a study in contrasts. After contributing to the chill factor in Harrington Field during the first game, the Pirate leftfielder banged out five hits in seven trips against the Paladins, then went two-for-two with three walks against Western Carolina. Together, Roenker is hitting .500 to lead the Pirates into Thursday's doubleheader at N. C. State.

Ironically, it was against Maryland that Roenker had one of his greatest days as a Pirate. No, not this year, but last season when the Virginia Beach, Va., native hit a triple and a home run against the Terps. Roenker doesn't know if there is a hex of some sort involved, but he does know he is capable of going from the powerful to the weak in terms of hitting the ball.

"I have hit three home runs and struck out three times in the same game," said Roenker. "It is a hard thing to explain, so I don't worry about it. I just take my lumps when I can."

While he admits the season is still young, Roenker said that some of his added help this year may be coming from his wife, Karen. Roenker is one of two married players on the club, a factor he said may be aiding his concentration.

"Living in the dormitories makes it hard for someone to study, think about baseball and have a good time, too," said Roenker. "Karen knows a little bit about baseball, though, and sometimes she can tell when I'm too tense or doing something wrong."

Roenker, in summary, claims to be a believer in concentration, aggressiveness and watching the ball as keys to baseball hitting prowess. But he also knows that a player has to develop all of his talents to be a real contribution to a ballclub.

"Last year, I didn't think I was contributing much because I got off to a slow start," said Roenker. "Hitting the ball this early is nice, though knowing how I hit in streaks, I just hope the streak is a long one."

So does the team, Joe, so does the team.

Phillips' Play Sparks Wildcats

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky's game is inside basketball and for a while, the Wildcats didn't have any "Mr. Inside" to play it.
Kentucky musclemen Mike Phillips sprained his right foot and had to leave in the first half of Tuesday night's National Invitation Tournament game with Providence.
"I was hurt going up for a rebound," the 6-10 center said. "I got my legs all tangled up and twisted my ankle real good."
Some tape fixed it and then Phillips fixed Kansas State in the second half, providing the proper remedy for Kentucky's 81-78 quarter-final victory.
"We took Kansas State inside," said Phillips. "It's a better percentage shot. I thought if we did that, beat them inside, that we'd eventually wear them out."
Phillips, who had scored but four points in the first half, poured in 13 once entering the contest with seven minutes gone in the game, and led the Wildcats back from a 63-51 deficit.
"Phillips had an ankle injury and I thought we could sneak by without him in the second half," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "I almost waited too long once I decided to put him back in. I made sure that the other players would get the ball to him."

Kentucky advanced to Thursday night's semifinals against Providence, which defeated Louisville 73-67 in the opener of a doubleheader Tuesday night. North Carolina State and surprising North Carolina-Charlotte, who won quarter-final games Monday night, will play in the other semifinal game.
As soon as Phillips came into the game, he was a help to his team. Within a minute, he had his first basket and by the time he was finished scoring, Kentucky had a 76-70 lead with 5:10 to play. James Lee later hit two free throws with 1:18 remaining to provide the Wildcats of the Southeastern Conference with an 80-74 lead and their eventual winning points.
Bruce Campbell and Bill Eason each hit four big foul shots in the last three minutes to lead Providence over Louisville. The Cardinals had scored four straight points and moved within 59-57 of the Friars at the 4:18 mark before the team from New England used the foul shot to wrap up the tense game.

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — The National Football League owners have awarded Super Bowl XII to New Orleans, set the dates of veteran and collegiate drafts and decided not to expand this season.
The action Tuesday settles some questions but leaves Memphis and Birmingham still without franchises.
Memphis particularly staged an active campaign to gain admission to the league but Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the clubs decided there could be no expansion at this time past the 28 clubs that will be active in 1978.
The commissioner said the clubs reaffirmed a desire to expand to 30 clubs eventually but would not make the move until "they see what the future holds."
The owners set March 30-31 for the long-delayed veteran draft for the new clubs at Tampa Bay and Seattle. The collegiate draft will be April 8-9.

New Orleans was awarded the Super Bowl XII for Jan. 15, 1978.
The new superdome in the Louisiana city won on the fourth ballot, gaining the required 21 votes.
The 1977 Super Bowl will be held at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena.
Rozelle said he could not comment on the class action suit filed Tuesday by players claiming they had been damaged by the league's compensation rule.
Under the so-called "Rozelle Rule" a team losing a player who played out his option has been compensated by which-ever team signs him.
The commissioner said Dick Anderson, president of the players association, would come to the owners' meeting Thursday to discuss further the problems of a contract.
There has been no overall pact between the owners and players in the past two years.

Warriors Ice Crown In Pacific Division

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Rick Barry has earned himself, and his teammates, a little rest.
Barry, playing despite a painful hip pointer, scored 14 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Warriors to a 110-101 victory over Detroit Tuesday night. That triumph clinched the Pacific Division title for the defending National Basketball Association champion Warriors, the first team in the league to win a division crown.
"We will give some people some time off now that we have clinched the title," said Warriors Coach Al Attles. "There won't be any complete games off, but we'll just get them out of there a little earlier than usual."

That should be music to Barry's ear. He did not play in Golden State's 118-103 loss at New Orleans Sunday night because of the bruised hip, and did not didn't know until five minutes before gametime whether he'd be able to go against the Pistons.
"It was very painful, but he wanted to help if he could," said Attles.

He could. After scoring just two points in the first half, he came up with 18 after intermission. His three free throws put the Warriors ahead 93-89 with 7:52 to play and they slowly pulled away.
Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Los Angeles 109, Cleveland 105; Houston 116, New York 111; Chicago 120, Phoenix 87, and Buffalo 112, Portland 95.
The Warriors now lead second-place Los Angeles in the Pacific Division by 14 games, with just 13 to play.
Phil Smith kept Golden State in contention in the first half when he scored 19 of his game-high 31 points. Jamaal Wilkes equaled Barry's total of 20.
Center Bob Lanier scored 22 for Detroit, which has lost five of its last six games and dropped one-half game behind idle Kansas City in the battle for second place in the Midwest Division — and a playoff spot.
Lakers 109, Cavaliers 105
Los Angeles climbed one game above the 500 mark and one game ahead of Seattle in the race for second place in the Pacific Division with its third consecutive victory. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar topped the Lakers with 32 points, 20 in the second half, and Gail Goodrich added 25.
Rockets 116, Knicks 111
Guards Calvin Murphy and Mike Newpin scored 26 points apiece to lead the Houston attack.
Bulls 120, Suns 87
Chicago jumped to a 55-34 lead as Phoenix hit just 28 per cent of its shots from the field in the first half. The Bulls extended it to 90-63 after three periods and coasted home, something they have not been able to do very often this season.
Norm Van Lier and John Laskowski led the Bulls with 20 and 19 points, respectively.
Braves 112, Blazers 95
Bob McAdoo poured in 29 points and Randy Smith added 28 to lead Buffalo past Portland. The game was tied mid-way through the third period, but the Braves reeled off seven points in a row and then gradually extended their margin.

Talley Named As Top Player

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Talley, the dangerous long-range bomber from Salem College, is The Associated Press' 1976 College Division Basketball Player of the Year.
Talley, who set a season scoring record in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics this season with 1,347 points, won the honor in a landslide vote by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.
The 6-foot-1 guard collected 309 votes in far outdistancing his closest competitor, Alcorn State backcourtman John McGill, who had 142 points. Old Dominion center Wilson Washington gained 114 votes for Player of the Year, while Albany State center Major Jones pulled down 97 and forward Gerald Cunningham of Kentucky State rounded out the top five with 87 votes.
Other players receiving consideration from the voters for Player of the Year included: Bayard Forest of Grand Canyon; Wayne Golden, Tennessee-Chattanooga; Jeff Covington, Youngstown State; Emory Sammon, Philadelphia Textile, and Elisha McSweeney of Mankato State.
Talley, McGill and Washington all made The AP's first team All-America earlier while Jones and Cunningham were named to the Second Team by a nationwide panel of voters.
Joining Talley, McGill and Washington on the blue-ribbon team were forward Gary Cole of Wisconsin-Parkside and guard Larry Wright of Grambling.

Talley was a point-a-minute scorer for Salem this season, averaging 41 points per game in winning the NAIA scoring crown. The exciting senior broke 15 national and school offensive records, including Earl Monroe's scoring mark of 1,329 at Winston-Salem State in 1967.
In addition, Talley finished his 35 games this season with 577 field goals, breaking the old NAIA record of 539 set by Kentucky State's Travis Grant in 1972, and 1,172 field goal attempts, shattering the record of

Douglas Gets Chance At May On Thursday

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Leon Douglas, who overwhelmed a second-team All-American last time out, gets a chance to take on No. 1 Thursday night.
Douglas, the 6-foot-10 senior of sixth-ranked Alabama, goes against first-team All-American Kent Benson in the key matchup as the Crimson Tide meets unbeaten and top-rated Indiana in a Midwest Regional semifinal of the NCAA basketball tournament at Baton Rouge, La.
"I'm looking forward to Indiana," said Douglas, who was the catalyst in Alabama's 79-64 upset of North Carolina last Saturday, scoring 35 points and grabbing 17 rebounds against Tar Heels center Mitch Kupchak. "I like a challenge. I'd rather play against the best."
"All-American stuff doesn't bother me," added Douglas, a third-team All-American. "I just want to play a game — and win."
Douglas may have a slight edge in quickness over Benson, a 6-foot-11 junior, although the Indiana center appears to be a bit more physical. "I feel I have to outkick my opponents," said Douglas. "My speed is my best asset."
Both coaches, meanwhile, are approaching the game apprehensively.

"We will be playing a truly outstanding basketball team, well-coached and with exceptional ability," said Indiana's Bobby Knight. "Leon Douglas is the finest center we will have faced, and he has teammates who complement his abilities and give the team many dimensions. It is a unique team in that it has great quickness without sacrificing size and strength."
"We are greatly impressed by them. We will have to play our very best to maintain a chance to win."
And that's the favorite talking point.
C.M. Newton, coach of underdog Alabama, said, "To have gone unbeaten over the past two regular seasons like Indiana has done is mind-boggling. But if we do our part, it will be a good game."
In the other Midwest Regional semifinal, second-ranked Marquette puts its 22-game winning streak on the line against Western Michigan.
Defending champion UCLA, which won the national title 10 of the past 12 years under John Wooden, will have a home-court advantage in the West Regional as it goes for its first crown under Coach Gene Bartow. The fifth-ranked Bruins will meet Pepperdine in one semifinal of the West Regional at Pauley Pavilion, while third-rated Nevada-Las Vegas, the highest scoring team in the nation, will oppose Arizona.

Fourth-ranked Rutgers, which struggled to a one-point victory over Princeton in the first round of the NCAA tournament, will try to stretch its season record to 30-0 against Connecticut in an East Regional semifinal at Greensboro, N.C. DePaul meets VMI in the other game.
Michigan and Notre Dame, both of whom posted first-round victories on baskets in the closing seconds, will meet in a Midwest Regional semifinal at Louisville. Missouri and Texas Tech collide in the other pairing.
The regional semifinal winners meet Saturday to determine the final four, who will battle for the national title in Philadelphia March 27 and 29.

Bidding Starts On Messersmith

By The Associated Press
The Andy Messersmith auction is expected to heat up today as more major league clubs make their pitch for the free agent who won 39 games for the Los Angeles Dodgers the past two seasons.
The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals phoned their offers for Messersmith's services to the 30-year-old right-hander's agent, Herb Osmond, on Tuesday, while Ted Turner, the new owner of the Atlanta Braves, tendered his bid personally.
The San Diego Padres have said they plan to make an offer and a host of others are expected to follow suit in the auction which could bring back memories of last winter's Catfish Hunter sweepstakes, won by the New York Yankees for $3.75 million.
"I anticipate a lot of action," Osmond told The Associated Press from his offices in Newport Beach, Calif. "Andy's still a hell of a pitcher, and he's the only free agent around right now. Some teams could obviously use him."
One which could use him but apparently won't get the chance is Los Angeles, which refused to grant Messersmith's request for a no-trade clause a year ago. He played the 1975 season without signing a contract and over the winter was ruled a free agent by a panel which included arbitrator Peter Seitz. That decision was twice upheld in the courts, setting the stage for the bidding which began this week.

The Dodgers had offered Messersmith a three-year, $500,000 contract in an attempt to retain his services, but the pitching ace turned them down. Asked whether Los Angeles stood a chance in the current talks, Osmond replied, "I doubt it."
Osmond would not be specific about what it will take to get Messersmith's signature on a contract.
"We've got a few things that basically we'd like, involving taxes and that sort of stuff," he said. "We'll listen to what they have to say."
Are there any limitations on places Messersmith would consider?
"Either league, either coast," said Osmond. "He's pitched in both leagues, so familiarity with the hitters wouldn't be a factor."
Messersmith spent five years with the California Angels of the American League before being traded three years ago to the Dodgers of the National League in a seven-man swap. There were reports the Angels would be entering the bidding, but Osmond said Tuesday he had not heard from them as yet.

Holshouser Defends Role

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser says a project near his hometown of Boone is only one of a number of worthwhile highway projects in the state that he has tried to free from "unnecessary" delays.

"I certainly wouldn't discriminate against my hometown simply because the road happens to be there," Holshouser said Tuesday.

A news report said the governor had interceded late last year to have the project near his hometown speeded up. The $9.3 million project calls for four-laning U.S. 321 in Watauga County from Blowing Rock to Boone.

Transportation Secretary Jacob F. Alexander confirmed Tuesday that he had a conversation with Holshouser about the project.

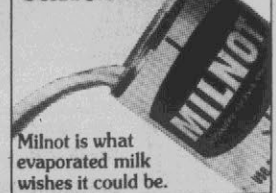

Highway Administrator Bill Rose said the project has already been moved up for bidding in November this year, rather than in late 1977 when bids otherwise would have been let.

Alexander said that while Holshouser "didn't ask me (specifically) to do something about it...I usually don't have to ask if that's a request."

He added Holshouser had made a half dozen similar requests for roads elsewhere in the state during the 12 months he has been secretary.

Moonshiners A Dying Breed; 'Strongholds' Quiet

EDITOR'S NOTE — The "revenuers" seized less than 1,000 stills last year nationwide. In 1968 they seized 20,000. The moonshiner is a dying breed.

STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
GLEN DANIEL, W. Va. (AP) — Woodrow Cook has done a lot of things in his life but nothing he's liked better than making moonshine. Unless, maybe, it was drinking some.

"Why, I'd have to have a calculator to figure how much whiskey I've drunk, or made," he said one snowy winter afternoon from the couch in his tiny, hillside home. He was nursing a hangover he said was caused by drinking "store-bought corn whiskey." Moonshine would never do that, he said.

A stocky man now in his early 60s, Cook will either have to learn to live with hangovers or stop drinking. He doesn't make moonshine anymore.

"In fact," he said, "I don't know anybody who makes liquor these days."

The statistics bear him out. Last year, the nation's Treasury agents — known more familiarly hereabouts as "revenuers" — seized 800 stills nationwide. This compares with 20,000 stills grabbed in 1968 and more than 25,000 in 1956. The 1975 figure represents the fewest number of stills seized since the repeal of Prohibition in 1933.

But Woodrow doesn't need statistics to see it's all over for him and the other moonshiners. "No," he said after a moment, "things sure aren't the same around here anymore. Used to be that everybody had 'em a barrel. Why, my granddaddy, the one that came over from Ireland, came into these hills from Virginia when he was a young man, and he was carrying a still on his back.

Time moved on, and things began changing in the hills. Prohibition ended. There were more jobs. Then there were fewer, and thousands of men poured out of the hills and into the cities, leaving behind the knowledge brought over to this country by their Scotch-Irish ancestors.

And Woodrow Cook, and others like him, found themselves members of a dying breed.

Moonshining is now all but dead in such former stronghold states as West Virginia and Kentucky. The rest of the nation isn't far behind. Georgia led the country last year with just 185 arrests, followed by Alabama with 162, North Carolina 152, Tennessee 56, South Carolina 52, Mississippi 43, Virginia 28 and Florida 11.

Rex Davis, director of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, attributes the decline to the dedication of his agents and to the high conviction rate. But he also admits that the increased costs of making moonshine — such as the price of sugar — are a prime factor.

Woodrow Cook couldn't agree more.

"Sugar's better than $23 a hundred right now," he said. "And corn, corn's gone plumb out of sight. It costs you more to make liquor now than you can sell it for."

Cracked corn and sugar are moonshine's prime ingredients, along with a little yeast to hasten the fermentation process. Once this concoction — called "mash" — has reached the proper stage of fermentation, the moonshiners put it into big copper cookers and bring it to a boil.

When the mash has reached the boiling point, the alcohol turns to steam and escapes through a copper coil known affectionately as "the worm." This steam then cools, condenses and comes out of the worm as a crystal-clear, highly potent alcohol which long ago earned the nickname "white lightning."

Although Cook insists his whiskey "never made anybody sick," hundreds of people have been blinded and killed by bad whiskey over the years. The federal agents have done a good job of making the public aware of the possible effects of such whiskey, and this educational process is another reason for moonshine's decline.

"You wouldn't believe the filth I've seen around stills," says Glenn Burner, an agent who has spent most of the past 20 years chasing West Virginia moonshiners. "Rats are a particular problem because they are attracted by the rotting mash."

"I have been shot at," he added, "but I don't think the shots were meant to hit me. Many people in the mountains used to feel that moonshining was a God-given right."

Woodrow Cook had that feeling, but that didn't save him from making repeated trips to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. Jesse Cook takes a dim view of the 13 years his father spent behind bars.

"I've thought about making whiskey," he admitted, "but I'm afraid of it. The risk is just too great."

Woodrow Cook nodded approvingly.

"That's right," he said. "I've kept him away from it. There'll be no more whiskey-making in this family. The line has ended ..."

Couple Aid 44 Refugees

By LASZLO K. DOMJAN
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Harry J. Boston has cared for 44 Vietnamese refugees in recent months. At one time he had 22 refugees under one roof — his own.

Boston, his wife and 16-year-old daughter live in an average-size, three-bedroom suburban home which Boston notes "has a very large basement."

Boston, 52, retired five years ago as a hardware store clerk because of physical disability. He gets no tax writeoffs or deductions for his generosity.

"I felt this was the best investment I could make, and I'm not talking in terms of profit or loss," he said.

"I'm not gushy with words. But I know this is a sure bet. I have so much confidence in these people. They are very industrious and will be self-sufficient in a very short time."

When the refugee crowd got too big, Boston mortgaged his own house to buy an eight-room house for an extended family of 10. The family, which moved in Christmas Eve, pays minimal rent to Boston.

"The day I make the final payment, I'll turn over the deed to them and the house will be all theirs," Boston said.

The number of refugees staying with the Bostons now is down to the original four, the family of Le Thanh Canh, who arrived in St. Louis last August.

The family — a couple and their two young daughters — help handle the frequent telephone calls from throughout the area from Vietnamese in need of guidance about American ways.

Boston found five of the refugees jobs at Christian Hospital Northeast, and he drives some of them to work daily. The others ride the four miles to the hospital with Mrs. Boston, who works there to supplement the family's disability income.

"The hospital's personnel director and the supervisor in the food processing section tell me they are excellent workers," Boston said. "They tell me, 'Send me more.'"

Although the house and apartments where the refugees have located are within a mile of the Boston home, their biggest problem is transportation for shopping and other chores.

"I sometimes feel I'm operating a taxi service," Boston said.

"The irony is that the adults can all drive, but they can't get their Missouri driver's licenses because they have trouble understanding the written exam. And they can't even cash a check without a driver's license for identification."

The Boston family volunteered to sponsor just "three or four" Vietnamese refugees in May after watching television reports about the Communist takeover of South Vietnam. They were sent the Le Thanh Canh family in August.

"My wife and I were in the Army and both stationed in Europe just after World War II," Boston said. "We remember what the European refugees had gone through."

In the fall the Bostons took their refugee family back to the Fort Chaffee, Ark., resettlement camp to visit Canh's wife's family.

"There was a mother and father and grandmother and seven children of the mother and father," Boston said. "Then there was an aunt who had three children and a married daughter with her husband and four children."

"To make a long story short, by Thanksgiving we had in our home 25 in all — 22 Vietnamese and my wife, daughter and myself."

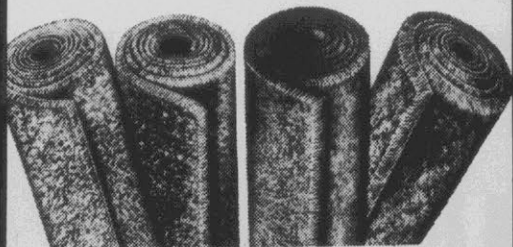

Boston also helped find sponsors for other refugees. In all, 44 persons have been processed through the Boston refugee center and the remaining four plan to move into an apartment shortly.

"We plan to stay in close contact for as long as they can use our help," Boston said. "And, of course, we have made lifelong friends."

"They all call us Mom and Dad."

Area Plagued By Blackflies

HEAVENLY NOTES — Reflections from the sun on the camera's lens make it appear this bagpipe player's notes are reaching to the heavens. He was participating in a pre-Saint Patrick's Day parade in Washington, D.C. (AP Wirephoto)

BULLHEAD CITY, Ariz. (AP) — It's the season in these parts for a despicable insect called the blackfly and a desperate human gesture called the "Bullhead City salute." The blackfly, or Buffalo gnat, has descended on this northern Arizona community in winny, buzzing hordes, driving residents to distraction with itchy red bites and even driving some of them out of town. The "salute" is a flailing motion performed — without much success — to shoo them away. More resourceful residents wear head nets outdoors. On many days the blood-sucking insects are "so bad that you don't want to do anything," said Dr. Gordon L. Ritter, who has treated up to 25 people a week for bites. "I live on the golf course, but some days it would be insane to go play golf," he added. Chuck West, a bank manager who heads a committee to fight the problem, said, "You should see the front of people's cars when they don't wash them — it's just a solid mass" of gnats. "We know people that have left because of these gnats," West said. The blackflies breed in a 30-mile stretch of the Colorado River, said Dr. Mir Mulla, an entomology professor at the University of California-Riverside. "The oldtimers tell us the gnats were there even before the river was dammed up. But the problem has been more intense in the past five or six years," and is worst from about November to April when the gnats fly away from the river in both directions, Mulla said. In the hot summer months, they tend to stay close to the water. Blackfly invasions taper off when the wind reaches more than five miles per hour and the temperature is below 60 degrees, Mulla said. Ritter said what "has alarmed us all around here is that three or four years ago, the reaction (to the bites) was relatively mild. ... We've seen much more severe reactions" recently. He fears that "greater sensitivity" to the bites will develop among some residents and possibly lead to anaphylactic reactions — the fatal reaction a few people experience when stung by a bee. Gov. Raul Castro has tabled the unincorporated city's request for emergency funds to put chemicals in the river to kill gnat larvae. No one knows what has made the gnat invasions worse in recent years. But Mulla said he thinks the cause lies in "the interaction between man and the river. Something has changed in the ecology of the river, but we don't know what this is."

Family Tests Solar Heating In San Diego

By RON HUTCHERSON
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — John and Marilyn Linn's new suburban house is the guinea pig for a San Diego Gas & Electric Co. experiment in solar heating and cooling.

The system the utility installed in the Linn's two-story Lemon Grove home cost $17,000, and the company hopes it will reduce energy needed for heating and cooling by 70 to 80 per cent.

The plant uses a 450-square-foot grid of solar absorber panels on the roof, a heat exchange device and two buried 1,500-gallon water tanks — one for hot water and one for cold water.

"While harnessing the sun's energy isn't a new concept, solar-powered equipment now may hold promise as a practical energy source," utility vice president John E. Hamrick said at a news conference at the solar demonstration house.

"San Diego Gas & Electric been actively involved in the research and development of solar energy since 1973. The data we obtain from monitoring this house during the next two years will demonstrate the level of performance that can be expected from this and similarly designed solar systems."

San Diego Gas and Electric and Solar Utilities Co. collaborated in the design of the system. It operates on water circulated through the rooftop solar panel, a grid of 27 Revere solar absorber vaneles, each measuring 34 by 72 inches.

On sunny days water circulated through the panel is heated by the sun and returned to the underground hot water tank. At night water from the second storage tank is circulated through the grid for chilling via re-radiation.

Pumps from a fan coil unit are used to extract warm or cool air from the water and circulate it through the five bedroom house. Besides heating the air, the hot water is fed into the hot water heater for household use.

Auxiliary heating and chilling units are built into the system to cover extended cloudy periods or hot nights.

To reduce energy loss and maintain ideal interior temperature, the utility had special double-glazed insulated windows installed.

"We hope to achieve a 70 to 80 per cent savings of the energy normally required for heating and cooling through the design of the system," Hamrick said.

The Linn's, parents of Michelle, 15, Laure, 14, Vanessa, 11 and John, 9, will move into the 2,600-square-foot house this month.

"The utility was particularly anxious that the owners of this house would make full use of the heating, cooling and hot water systems," said Linn, business assistant for the Chula Vista Elementary School District. "They won't have to worry. With four children, two of them teenage girls, everything will get used plenty."

After two years of monitoring, the system will become the property of the Linn's under their agreement with the utility. If the system proves inefficient, the gas and light company will replace it with a conventional heat pump at no cost to the Linn's.

Linn, whose job involves planning and supervising new school district facilities, said he was convinced "that in the next five or 10 years we'll have to give strong thought to the use of solar energy in public as well as private facilities."

"We're moving into a new era of energy use."

Delinquency Workshop

"Planning Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Programs," a two-day workshop program for juvenile officers of law enforcement agencies and other personnel with special interests or responsibilities concerning the problems of juvenile delinquency, will be offered here April 2-3.

The program is sponsored by the East Carolina University Dept. of Social Work and Correctional Services and the ECU Division of Continuing Education in cooperation with the N.C. Juvenile Justice Coordinating Committee.

Workshop leaders will be William Formby and William Smith, members of the ECU correctional services faculty. Both are experienced in aspects of law enforcement and corrections.

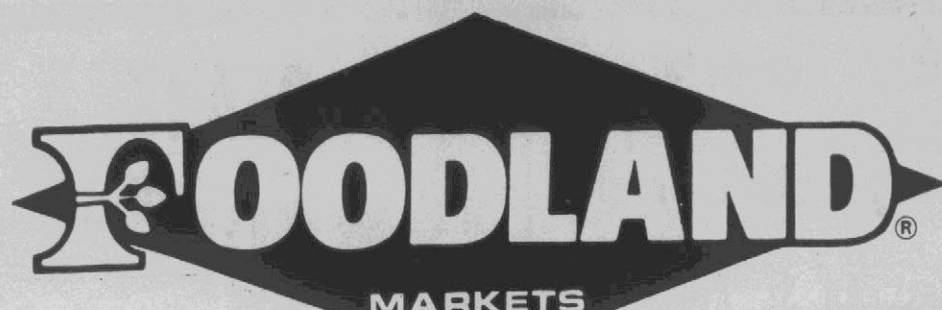

Further information and registration materials are available from the Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C. 27834. Registrations must be returned to ECU by March 26.

Research Seeks Utilize Wastes

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Researchers now are devising ways to turn nuisance waste products into materials which can help alleviate some of the world's energy problems.

Two microbiologists in the Texas A&M Department of Veterinary Microbiology, Drs. Donald Lewis and Richard Hidalgo, are working on processes to turn municipal sewage and animal waste products into methane, a flammable gas that is the major constituent of natural gas.

Searching For U.S. Pilot He Helped In War

By MARIANNA OHE
TOKYO (UPI) — A Polish journalist based in Tokyo still wonders what became of the unconscious American pilot he carried to safety across the Pyrenees from France to Spain during World War II.

Tadeusz Rubach, correspondent for the Polish press agency (PAP) in Japan, was working for the Polish resistance in France in 1943, helping British and American pilots shot down escape into Spain and then on to England.

The young American, whose false French papers identified him as Jean Du Rand, a deaf mute electrician, lay unconscious in the Pyrenees snow when Rubach, then 22, found him.

"It was November, 1943, and I was coming back from Spain to France through the mountains with a Spanish guide," Rubach recalls.

"We encountered a (French resistance) group going the other way. Half an hour later we found another member of the group, left unconscious in the snow, his fingers and toes frozen. He had French papers saying he was a deaf mute, and wore the yellow arm band required of deaf mutes."

Rubach says his one thought was that he must save the man's life.

"We took him on our shoulders and went back to Spain, through snow to our knees," he says. "Toward the end of the journey he gained consciousness briefly and told us he had been shot down somewhere in the north of France, and that the French had given him papers. In the village of Puigcerda we turned him over to a Spanish doctor who took care of him."

Rubach says he kept the false papers when he returned to France the next day because he thought they might be useful in the future.

"We were both the same dimensions — blond hair, blue eyes, born in the same year, 1921," he says.

Rubach, a Polish soldier in France at the time of the German invasion, was interned in Switzerland and one year later escaped back into France.

EVA (for evacuation), the six-member resistance group he worked for, was organized at the beginning of 1943 in Grenoble. It received money from the Polish government in exile in London.

Using French and Spanish guides, EVA smuggled more than 1,000 persons into Spain, including 40 to 50 British and American pilots.

"Every week we took from six to 50 people through the mountains," Rubach said.

"We had to walk two days and two nights, because there was a 30-kilometer (19-mile) zone along the border which only residents could enter. Many, many people died in the mountains. They need great physical effort to make the journey, especially after being in prison camps, undernourished, badly clothed."

Rubach says the guides earned about 50,000 French francs per head, about $700 to $800 in current value.

"But the guides had not the right to leave anyone in the mountains," he said. "They were paid upon delivery of the entire party. If one was missing, they were paid nothing."

Rubach, who finished his studies in France after the war before returning to Poland to become a journalist, has written book in Polish about his experiences with the resistance.

Published in Warsaw in 1973 by Czytelnik Press, the book is called "Z 'Ewa' Przez Pireneje" (with EVA Through the Pyrenees).

"I don't know his real name, or where he came from, but it would be interesting to find this American, to see what has become of him today," he says.

Has Article In New Text

An article by East Carolina University faculty psychologist Victor Mallenbaum appears in a newly published training text for growth group leaders and group psychotherapists.

Dr. Mallenbaum's "The Chair and the Johnson Grass: Authority and Murder in a Personal Growth Group," first printed in "Voices: The Art and Science of Psychotherapy," is now included in "The Critical Incident in Growth Groups."

The article is a vivid account of critical events in a part of the life of one growth group. Love, power and belonging are illustrated as major driving forces and areas of conflict.

The leader's personal involvement and attempt to retain his perspective as a major intervener is revealed in the encounters of group members, with him and with each other.

In addition to his present duties as a member of the ECU psychology faculty, Dr. Mallenbaum has served as consultant to the Pitt County Mental Health Center's programs in group psychotherapy and as a trainer of psychology interns.

He has also been a staff member of personal growth and community leadership workshops for governmental, industrial, educational and religious agencies.

Oyster Reefs Being Affected

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says unusually low tides along the Texas Coast are adversely affecting shallow oyster reefs and causing fish to move away from shallow flats into deeper bays.

Terry Leary, director of the department's shellfish program, says the uncharacteristically low tides, estimated to be between one-half foot and three feet below normal are causing oyster reefs near shore to become exposed and die.

Some Old Films Still In Vault

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the sale of "Gone With the Wind" for a showing on NBC this year, it seemed that every old movie had been sold to television. Not quite.

There are still a few hold-outs, and they range from Disney cartoon features to X-rated flicks.

The film trade believed that MGM would never release "Gone with the Wind," since the company could always make millions by rereleasing it in theaters. So it was a surprise last year when MGM announced the $5 million, one-showing deal with NBC.

A survey of the major film companies discloses that perhaps a half-hundred films that have completed normal theatrical releases still remain unsold to TV. Walt Disney Productions has the largest number, and president Card Walker explained why:

"We believe that all of our negatives have a great potential value, and so we are very careful about which ones we release to television. We're interested in this company as an institution as far in the future as we can see. Perhaps we could make some quick money by selling our classics to television. But we would also be harming their future value in theaters.

"Why sell 'Snow White' to TV when its current release — the sixth time around — will bring in rentals in this country alone of $10-12 million? Look at 'Alice in Wonderland.' It was disappointing when it was released in 1951, earning only $2.3 million domestic. It was on television five times from 1954 to 1964. In 1974 we released it to theaters and it brought $3.6 million in rentals."

Disney now holds onto all its cartoon features and classics like "Mary Poppins" and "Swiss Family Robinson." It has released to television contemporary subjects like "The Parent Trap," also "The Absent-Minded Professor" because it was filmed in black and white.

Twentieth Century-Fox has only two backlog pictures that haven't made the switch to television. The reason is obvious: both "Myra Breckinridge" and "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls" were X-rated.

United Artists also has a pair: the X-rated "Last Tango in Paris" and last year's "Lenny," which was rated R but contains too much of Lenny Bruce's four-letter language to make the home screen.

Can't Afford A Paid Staff

RALEIGH (AP)—State Sen. Thomas E. Strickland of Wayne County says he is running his campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination with volunteer help because of money problems.

"I can't begin to raise the money (for a paid staff)," Strickland said Tuesday. "I don't think money is around in large quantities for anybody."

Strickland told a news conference his state campaign manager, Raleigh real estate agent Patrick Burns, had stepped down as a result of differences over how the campaign should be run.

"We just disagreed over how we should run this," Strickland said. He added there would be no immediate replacement for Burns. For the next few months his campaign will be directed by two managers, Strickland said. Sam McLawhorn, a Pitt County tobacco farmer and former minor league pitcher, will serve as manager for eastern North Carolina. A western manager is to be named later.

Strickland said Jerry Mobley of Greensboro will join the campaign as press secretary at the end of the month.

Before Burns left the campaign last weekend, he and Hazel Cooper were the only two paid staff members. Mrs. Cooper served as Strickland's secretary in the General Assembly.

But, says a United Artists executive, "I predict that some time in the future standards will change so that both pictures can play on TV."

Ed Bleier, Warner Brothers vice president for Television in New York, reported that "A Clockwork Orange" had not been offered to TV. Not because of its sex and violence, but "because the networks don't buy nonlinear films" — the kind that don't tell a story in the normal beginning-to-end manner. Also, filmmaker Stanley Kubrick has contract restrictions about the release of his movies to TV.

"Although it was a big hit in theaters, 'Woodstock' has not sold to the network," said Bleier. "It has a little nudity and some drugs, which could be eliminated not TV. Even so, the networks say they think the film may be too specialized."

CBS bought Luchino Visconti's "The Damned" from Warner Brothers and showed it late at night with 30 minutes cut — the X rating dropped to PG. Still unsold is Visconti's "Death in Venice." "Performance" with Mick Jagger, and "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas," which concerned marijuana brownies.

Universal Pictures has not yet sold "Anne of the Thousand Days" to television; the studio is waiting for the right terms.

Now that "Gone with the Wind" and "Doctor Zhivago" have gone to TV, the only unsold MGM film is "2001: A Space Odyssey." Says a studio spokesman: "Both MGM and the networks are reluctant, because we don't know how well a film of such scope will translate to the small screen."

Shakespeare In Unlikely Arena

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Next month, an unlikely arena for the works of William Shakespeare — "CBS Radio Mystery Theater" — will celebrate the bard's 412th birthday with adaptations of seven of his best-known plays.

They'll be aired from April 19 through April 25 on more than 200 stations, but you won't find them listed under their original titles.

The leadoff show is "Murder Most Foul," which in its day was called "Macbeth." "Julius Caesar" will be known as "The Assassination," "Hamlet" will be "Long Live the King Is Dead" and so on.

While the original plot lines will remain intact, considerable compression of same has been done to fit each show to the radio series' 53-minute time limit. Parts of the dialogue will be rewritten to make Shakespeare's words more understandable to those with only a nodding acquaintance with his works.

The man doing the adaptations and risking the wrath of Shakespeare purists is Ian Martin, 63, a Scotland-born, New York-raised veteran of more than 40 years of acting and writing for radio.

He said he came up with the idea of adapting the Shakespeare plays while pondering the fact that while most people study them in high school, few ever understand them because of the rich poetry, imagery and all that.

"It suddenly occurred to me that the tragedies — and we're doing six of them — are all as full of mystery and mayhem and they certainly fit our programs as stories," he said.

Not many who struggled through Shakespeare remember "he was a magnificent story teller," he added. "So I thought we could bring the stories to the people as a kind of reintroduction to Shakespeare."

He said he retitled the plays he selected because they only are adaptations and he didn't want to mislead anyone.

"On the other hand, every familiar quote is in there," he said. "Maybe they won't be the exact words — and the scholars might jump at this — but basically it's all there."

Martin conceded that Shakespeare buffs may accuse him of bastardizing the bard, but "I think that'll come from very short-sighted people. I've already had that from one actor who said, 'Single-handedly, you've ruined Shakespeare.' Now this is ludicrous."

He said the plays he selected "are very good stories and should be heard. But I think that while Shakespeare is entitled to the profoundest respect, he's also entitled to be understood."

Opening lead: Jack of ♦.

Quite often you can make a hand simply by guessing correctly. However, the art of declarer play is to try to avoid guesswork. Consider this hand.

North-South conducted an orderly auction to reach a good club slam. After North gave a jump preference to four clubs, South probed for a possible grand slam with his four heart cue-bid in the hope of hearing his partner cue-bid the king of spades at a later turn. However, North had bid full value when he jumped, so he now signed off with five clubs, and South settled in the small slam.

West leads the jack of spades, and you might like to take a few seconds to consider your line of play.

The first step is to cover the queen, for it costs nothing to see if, by some quirk,

West has elected to lead away from the king of spades. East puts up the king and you win the ace. You now have a spade loser, and you have the trump suit to worry about. So you postpone playing trumps to cash three rounds of diamonds, discarding your spade. When this goes through, you can concentrate on trumps.

If someone had ruffed the third round of diamonds and you had to bring in the trump suit with no losers, it would be correct to take the finesse. However, you can afford to lose one trump, so you should take the safety play of leading a club to the ace. Had only small clubs appeared on the ace, you should ruff the losing heart and lead a second round of clubs from the dummy. The ace drops the jack, however, so it is a simple matter to lead another trump and claim the contract.

Your good technique is rewarded, for you would have gone down had you taken the trump finesse. West would win the king of trumps and lead his fourth diamond. East would complete the uppercut by ruffing with the nine, forcing you to overruff with the ace. West's jack of clubs would now be promoted and would score the setting trick.

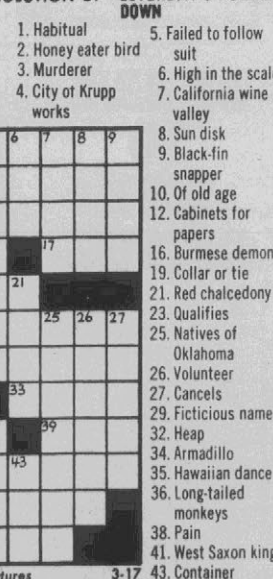

Learn the secrets of winning more points! Charles Goren explains the "art" of doubling in his latest book. For your copy, write to "Goren's Doubles," c/o the newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648, enclosing $1.25 in cash or check, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

LONG CAMPAIGN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Muir, the naturalist, started a campaign in 1891 to gain federal protection for the 7,000 Sequoias in what is now Kings Canyon National Park. It was not until 1940, however, that the area was so designated.
