In Libyan Arranged Cease-Fire

Syria Agrees To Limited Withdrawl Measures

By MICHAEL ROSS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Libyan mediators announced a cease-fire Saturday between the Syrian army and Palestinian guerrillas. Moslem leftists charged Syria broke the truce by moving more troops and tanks toward their positions in the south.

Damascus Radio reported Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, who announced the cease-fire, said Syria agreed to withdraw "limited numbers" of troops from the Beirut airport area and to lift part of the blockade on the capital. Food supplies have run short in Beirut, which has been under siege for two weeks.

In Cairo, Egypt's President Anwar Sadat said Syria would be "committing suicide" and would face the "same destiny America faced in Vietnam" if it does not withdraw its troops from Lebanon. His interview with an Iranian newspaper was distributed by the Middle East News Agency.

Jalloud said Syrian-Libyan observation teams will supervise the cease-fire at four points now held by Syrian-controlled Saiqa forces along the airport road.

If the airport road truce succeeds, other reports circulating in Beirut said, the two main groups of Syrian armored troops—at Sofar, 15 miles east of Beirut in the mountains overlooking the capital, and at the southern port of Sidon—will withdraw three days later into the eastern Bekaa valley, where the bulk of Syria's 15,000 troops are stationed.

Jalloud, who spent eight days shuttling between Beirut and Damascus mediating the accord, made no mention of further withdrawals, however. He said the replacement of some of the Saiqa forces by observation teams was a "first step that will make it possible to move toward a final settlement of the conflict."

The main Sidon and Sofar warfronts were reported quiet Saturday. However, it was too early to tell whether this was due to the cease-fire accord.

Rather than preparing to withdraw, leftist sources said, the Syrians were moving up more troops, including a column of tanks and infantry that were reported to have crossed into "Fatahland" — the lower Arkoub region of south Lebanon — for the first time. The reports could not be immediately confirmed.

A lull has been in effect on both war fronts since Monday, when the Syrians halted their advance. The Damascus troops regrouped following heavy casualties inflicted on them by Palestinians and leftists entrenched around Sidon and Bhamdoun, three miles west of Sofar on the Damascus-Beirut mountain highway.

Sugg Chosen Delegation Chairman

Unity Marks Demo Convention

By JOHN PERRY

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina Democrats, determined to the avoid the divisiveness of 1972, put on a show of unity at their state convention Saturday.

The 2,000 delegates overwhelmingly accepted the party leadership's nominees for national convention delegates and accepted its broadly written platform with only one major exception, an endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Speaker after speaker throughout the long and hot session in unairconditioned Dorton Arena at the state fairgrounds issued pleas for Democrats to stay united whatever the result of the August primary elections.

State party chairman James R. Sugg said Democrats cannot be beaten by Republicans — "we can only defeat ourselves as we did in 1972."

The delegates to the national convention elected Sugg as chairman of the delegation. Sugg beat Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., 46-42 in a secret ballot. The vote came after Morgan told the delegates that he was the highest-ranking elected official in the state and that, by tradition, the chairmanship has always gone to the person in that position.

Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten said flatly the loss of the governorship to the GOP for the first time in 75 years was "because we in the Democratic party allowed it to happen.

"Don't let that happen again," said Edmisten.

The delegates roared approval for the cries for unity and decisively approved the slate nominated for the final 15 berths on the national convention delegation.

The added delegates, all chosen from slates approved by either Jimmy Carter or George Wallace, raised from 10 to 21 the number of women and blacks on the 61-member delegation.

There were two nominations from the floor for the Carter berths, but three quarters of the way through a roll call vote, the leadership's slate clinched the election and were declared approved by acclamation.

Three floor nominations for Wallace berths were soundly defeated on voice votes.

The 25-page party platform, crafted so broadly that almost any Democrat nominated in August could run on it, received only one major revision.

The Democratic Women's Caucus, led by Martha McKay of Chapel Hill, succeeded in adding support for the Equal Rights Amendment. The original document had made no mention of ERA, defeated again in the last legislature.

Despite support from the convention for ERA, Ms. McKay said it's far too early to start feeling confident about the amendment's chances in the next general assembly, which will be elected this fall.

"We just have to start all over again," she said.

But the delegates rejected support for such hot issues as abolition of capital punishment, preferring to stick with the original draft's statement that the party would favor "only in extreme cases" if the U.S. Supreme Court upholds it.

Sugg sounded the note of unity almost as soon as the opening gavel fell by noting that the party had "come a long way from the division and difficulties of 1972" when it lost the governorship and a U.S. Senate seat.

And he said Democrats stand "on the threshold" of victories this fall that will "return the White House in Washington and the governor's mansion in Raleigh to Democratic control."

"The price we pay for dissension is far too high," he said. "Remain true to the party's traditions — fight hard, but fight clean, in the primaries."

The Democrats were also told that the appeal of Carter and fellow presidential contender Edmund G. Brown Jr. lies in America's desire for a different kind of leader.

Refugees Released

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — All 25 political refugees from right-wing Latin-American regimes who had been abducted Friday were released United Nations officials said. Some had broken ribs and all had bruises.

The refugees, 23 Chileans and one each from Paraguay and Uruguay, said they had been tortured by their unidentified captors and given 48 hours to leave the country.

It was the latest incident in a series of abductions and murders of foreigners seeking asylum here.

The refugees were taken from hotels Friday morning. They said they were blindfolded and had no idea where they had been kept during their 24 hours of captivity.

They were dropped off from trucks around the city about 4 a.m. and left to find their way home. Some were unable to walk because of their injuries.

Ford Met With Busing, Anti-Busing Advocates

By RICHARD E. LERNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford met Saturday with 11 scholars who told him court-ordered busing to integrate schools is "doomed to failure." The scholars said Ford told them he "would be the first to sign" an antibusing statement they read to him.

No signature actually was requested or given, but the ad hoc group, which asked for the meeting with Ford, read a statement at a two-hour White House luncheon hosted by the President, saying: "We believe that court-ordered busing is workable only under very special circumstances.

"In many circumstances, court-ordered busing has not achieved the purposes its partisans intend. In many circumstances, it has had exactly the opposite effects."

Henry Marcheschi of Pasadena, Calif., president of the American Freedom Foundation and spokesman for the group, said when he finished reading the statement — "Integration and Quality Education: The Moral Case" — that Ford responded he "would be the first to sign it."

Ford had lunch with the antibusing academicians after meeting with five probusing community leaders from Louisville, Omaha, Dallas, Kansas City, Mo., and Pontiac, Mich., and gave them his view about busing: "It's different when you have to live with it."

Attorney General Edward H. Levi and HEW Secretary David Mathews sat in on Ford's meeting wih leaders from Omaha, Dallas, Kansas City, Mo., Louisville and Pontiac, Mich., who are trying to ease their communities into busing. The cabinet officers have drafted legislation Ford will send to Congress to limit the ability of federal courts to order busing for racial balance in schools.

That group said it told Ford he and other candidates were "making our job a little harder" with statements about busing in an election year. The anti-busing academics gave Ford an opposite view about the value of busing:

"We deplore the assumption that neighborhood schools cannot, if they are black, attain high levels of excellence. But we believe strongly that opportunity to choose freely to send one's childrento schools outside the neighborhood should be open to every family, of whatever race, in this nation."

The leaders of the probusing group agreed with Dale Tekolste, head of a court-appointed interracial committee in Omaha, who said election-year politics were hurting efforts to settle disputes about busing.

New Sex Case Is Revealed

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of the Justice Department's criminal division says the department will look into the newest congressional payroll-playmate scandal, but a decision to launch a full-fledged investigation will depend on what facts are turned up.

The scandal involves 59-year-old John Young, a 10-term Democratic congressman from Corpus Christi, Tex.

Young said Friday that if the Justice Department and House ethics committee do not begin a probe of charges by a former staff member that she was required to have sex with Young, her boss, he would request an investigation himself.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard Thornburgh said Friday his criminal division, already looking into the sex scandal swirling around Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, doesn't have any "hot and heavy" investigation of Young in the works.

The revelations about Hays and Elizabeth Ray produced a clamor on Capitol Hill for an ethics committee probe, but no such reaction developed Friday after the allegations about Young and Colleen Gardner, a 30-year-old divorced mother, first surfaced.

Mrs. Gardner said through her attorney, Sol Rosen, that Young "made known to her indirectly and through subtle pressure ... that her submitting to sexual advances was a job requirement."

"And that if she didn't do it her options were either to take his personal abuse or quit, and her salary was raised commensurately with the amount of sexual services that she performed for him and the amount of gratification he felt he received," Rosen asserted.

Mrs. Gardner's salary was $26,000 a year.

Young denied that Mrs. Gardner had been placed on his payroll for sexual services, but refused to answer specific allegations.

Young had nothing but praise for Mrs. Gardner's office skills.

He said that in addition to doing secretarial work, Mrs.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Former Democratic gubernatorial nominee Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles Saturday endorsed George Wood for the 1976 nomination, calling him a "born and proven leader."

Though he said the state had "several fine people" running for governor, Bowles also cautioned, "What we don't need are young faces on old politicians."

The 1972 Democratic nominee, who lost to Republican Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., would not specify what candidate he meant.

Cut In Social Program Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The state Department of Human Resources has ordered a 5 per cent reduction in county governments' share of federal funds earmarked for social programs so it can increase the state's share by the same amount.

The total funds in question coming into the state from the federal government amount to $63.3 million for the next fiscal year.

The state plans to take $20 million, leaving the state's 100 counties about $43.3 million. The counties had expected about $45.5 million.

The reduction has prompted objections from some counties, which may have to trim some social service programs, and from the state Social Services Commission.

The bus was carrying 31 pupils from Frink Junior High School in La Grange when the accident occurred about one mile east of the town, Edwards said.

Campaign Developments

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Democratic frontrunner Jimmy Carter began his task of party fence-mending Saturday by pronouncing himself "very grateful" to Gov. George C. Wallace for having endorsed him.

"We've now gone past 1,650 delegates who are pledged to us," Carter told reporters prior to his meeting with Wallace in the governor's mansion. Only 1,505 delegates are needed for the nomination.

Carter said the two men planned to talk about the party's platform but would not go into details.

"There won't be any incompatability," he said, adding that both men were primarily concerned with party unity.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri Republicans gave 18 out of 19 GOP convention delegates to Ronald Reagan Saturday, a significant victory for Reagan over President Ford in their race for the presidential nomination.

Only Gov. Christopher Bond, a strong Ford supporter, was elected as a Ford at-large delegate to the August convention in Kansas City.

The selection of the at-large Missouri delegates at the state convention still left Reagan behind Ford in the UPI convention delegate count — 985 to 882. But it was significant in that it was the first faceoff between the two candidates since the primaries in their new quest for GOP delegates in 13 states.

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Illinois Republicans voted Saturday to give all of the state's five at-large national convention delegates to President Ford's supporters, turning back a challenge from backers of Ronald Reagan.

After the challenges, the state Republican convention approved the five Ford delegates by voice vote. They were Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.; State Republican Chairman Donald Adams; State Republican Chairwoman Teddi Inman, National Comitteman Cliffard Carlson and National Committeewoman Hope McCormick.

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter won Connecticut Gov. Ella T. Grasso's support and 24 of the state's Democratic National Convention delegates Saturday and others seemed likely to soon jump on his bandwagon.

Mrs. Grasso, originally a supporter of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., announced her expected switch at an afternoon news conference as the state's 51 convention delegates were named.

Republican Leaders Say

'Most Problems Solved'

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Southern Republican chairmen meeting with top national GOP officials have agreed that "most" major national problems have been solved and a continued Republican administration "will be a mopping-up of the minor problems we have left."

Robert Shaw, the North Carolina chairman, said Saturday that was the concensus reached after closed meetings of the GOP chiefs.

North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser was host for the weekend meeting attended by 13 members of the Association of Southern Republican Chairmen plus representatives of the White House and campaign organizations backing President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

One of the most important topics discussed was developing a strategy to use against former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, the frontrunner in the Democratic presidential nomination race.

Shaw said discussion of the Ford-Reagan contest was avoided during meetings.

The chairmen were generally optimistic Saturday about the party's chances in November in both national and state races.

Overall, the chairmen indicated they thought their best shot at getting a high Republican vote in the South in November would be to portray Carter as a liberal. The chairmen were unwilling to discuss details of their strategy.

Gene Anderson, an aide to Holshouser, said the chairmen were "in a lot higher spirits than I would have thought." The chairmen, he said, "see Carter as being vulnerable...(with) support a mile wide and an inch deep. In these states they've got four or five particular issues they plan to zero in on already."

Issues Anderson said the chairmen believe Carter would be vulnerable to in the South include his middle of the road stand on repeal of federal tolerance of state "right to work" laws; handgun registration; national health insurance and federal assurance of jobs.

Senate Subcommittee Wants News Reports On Ft. Bragg

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The investigative counsel for a U.S. Senate subcommittee has requested copies of copyrighted articles on alleged food inspection abuses at Ft. Bragg, the nation's largest military installation.

Lt. Gen. Henry Emerson, the post commander, has ordered a full investigation of problems in the base's food inspection system as depicted in the series of articles by The Fayetteville Times.

A spokesman for Emerson said the request for an investigation was made "to ensure that the operations...are in compliance with regulations and fully considerate of the health and welfare of all personnel served by this installation."

Food inspectors claim problems leading to the "Boston meat scandal" are rampant at Ft. Bragg, the Times said in its Friday editions.

Meat inspectors at other installations also have said they received payments and gratuities in return for conducting loose inspections.

The Times said Ft. Bragg inspectors cited lack of experienced supervisors in the Veterinary Inspection Service, as well as a shortage of properly trained inspectors.

They were also quoted as saying inferior meat storage facilities and improper auditing of meat supplies at the base result in a waste of tax dollars.

Earlier, the Times said a lieutenant colonel who heads Ft. Bragg's food inspection program officially reprimanded commissary officials for "unsatsfactory" conditions that "could easily endanger the health of consumers."

The Times also reported that it was contacted by an aide to Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., seeking information about the inspection articles.

The aide was quoted as saying, "If we are getting ripped off and it's a health hazard, it's something we want to look into. We want to know as much about it as we can."

A spokesman for the Senate subcommittee on government spending practices said results of the military probe will determine the extent of an investigation by the Senate panel.

"It depends, in part, upon the extent to which the Army cleans up its inspections and food-handling procedures and the extent to which the Army merely patches over old systems," the spokesman said.

Case Of Mistaken Identity

MIAMI (AP)—The two men who gunned down accused narcotics smuggler Harold Derber in front of his apartment here last month may have been the same ones who earlier killed a man in North Carolina in a case of mistaken identity.

Miami Homicide Detectivs James Carpenter says he passed on to North Carolina authorities last month information he received from an informant about a shotgun killing in a trailer last fell near Mesic, a small fishing village off Pamlico Sound.

Acting on the tip, police found the remains of a still unidentified man, in his 50s, buried in a shallow grave.

Carpenter said the tipster told him that two men burst into the trailer where three men were sleeping and demanded, "Where's Derber?."

Before they could answer, the informant explained, one of the killers fired a shotgun at one of the three. The victim, who resembled Derber, was almost decapitated by the blast.

Derber, 50, was shot eight times by two armed men on March 22.

Carpenter described Derber as a big-time smuggler who brought tons of marijuana into the United States aboard cargo ships he owned.

Derber was also under investigation by several state and federal agencies for possible stock manipulation and other activities.

Neither the North Carolina trailer victim nor the other two men in the trailer have been publicly identified. Carpenter said they were believed to have been at the trailer while awaiting a drug delivery.

The slaying occurred on the same property where 10 men, including former Hallandale, Fla., Mayor John D. Steel and his son, were arrested in January.

Federal agents say they caught them unloading 22 tons of Colombian marijuana from a fishing trawler.

Carpenter said the two men who gunned down Derber have not been identified and are also still at large.

Claims Responsibility

By NAT GIBSON

LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — A soldier of fortune accused of ordering the execution of men under his command said Saturday he alone was responsible for the actions of 12 mercenaries on trial for their lives.

"Once they were in Angola, they were under my orders," said Costas Georgiou, a Greek Cypriot known as "Col. Callan."

"Anything they are charged with was my responsibility," he testified.

Georgiou testified for 10 minutes, without answering the charge that he ordered death for 18 soldiers who wanted to leave the war and return to their homes in Britain. Another defendant has testified that Georgiou himself killed one of the men.

The president of the five-man revolutionary tribunal allowed him to leave the witness stand.

Georgiou's admission of responsibility appeared to cover the three American prisoners, although he commanded only the nine Britons charged as mercenaries. The Angolan government has asked the court to order death by firing squad for the 12 men.

Four of the 18 men whom Georgiou allegedly ordered killed are defendants in the trial.

Andrew McKenzie, another Briton who testified, admitted he participated in the execution.

"I took part under orders. I didn't want to do it," McKenzie said nervously. "I told the sergeant major it was stupid to kill our own people and we could never go back to England. He told me if I didn't do it I would be joining them."

The British troops' sergeant major, Sam Copeland, was court martialed and shot by the National Front for the Liberation of Angola, the mercenaries' employer.

The three Americans in the trial are Gary Acker, 21, of Sacramento, Daniel Gearhart, 34, of Kensington, Md., and Gustavo Grillo, an Argentinian-born Vietnam veteran from Jersey City, N.J.

STRUGGLING FOR CITIZENSHIP—Hope Cooke, shown in 1971, has been trying to persuade Congress to restore her American citizenship for the past year but the attempt has been futile since several members of the House Immigration, Citizenship and International Law Subcommittee are offended that she voluntarily renounced her U.S. citizenship to marry Palden Thondup Namgyal, the King of Sikkim 11 years ago. Mexican Proposals

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The possibility of a swap of U.S. citizens imprisoned on drug charges in Mexico for Mexican drug offenders held in the United States has been raised in talks here between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Mexican officials.

The idea, it was learned, was one of "a number of rather ingenious and interesting proposals," Kissinger said he received Friday from the Mexicans. "Intensive discussions" on the prisoner exchange were to begin shortly.

Mexican authorities have been accused of mistreating the 500 Americans imprisoned in Mexico and of preventing access for U.S. consular officials and attorneys.

Near Approval On Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is near approval of a $6.7-billion foreign military aid bill after Sen. James Allen succeeded in reducing aid to southern African nations and deleting funds for Mozambique. A final vote on the bill was set for Monday.

Allen's amendments had the effect of cutting $35 million from the $85 million sought by President Ford to support the new African policy enunciated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Demo Busing Plank Prooposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal that would make the Democratic party "an active ally" of communities that want to achieve school desegregation without busing is being considered by a party platform subcommittee.

The proposal, which recognizes the use of busing to achieve racial integration in schools as a last resort, and another plank calling for jobs for all adults who want them, were before the Democrats' platform drafting subcommittee Saturday.

Approves Tax-Cut Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has approved tax-cut legislation aftertacking on a provision for a special tax break to help pay the costs of higher education.

The full Senate will start work next Tuesday on the massive tax bill, which extends the antirecession tax cuts enacted last year and limits the ability of wealthy investors to use tax-avoidance schemes.

Assassination Attempt

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — At least 10 persons were killed in a grenade assassination attempt against President Idi Amin and the Ugandan leader was slightly injured, a Kenyan newspaper said Saturday.

In a front-page story from Kampala, the Sunday editions of the newspaper The Nation said Amin was superficially wounded and spent the night in a hospital following the assassination attempt Thursday night.

Young acknowledged registering at a motel near the Pentagon under that name. But he said he did it to meet Pentagon staff members offering information in secret about contracts affecting military installations in his district.

Partnership Insurance

The death of a partner can often precipitate a serious crisis for a business. A "buy and sell" agreement funded with life insurance protects the partners and the business. It can provide the cash to buy a partner's share of the business at an agreed upon price should the unexpected happen.

Nothing can be taken for granted. What you believe will never happen, sometimes does. A good reason to consider the possibility of partnership insurance for your own business.

Apparently Has It Wrapped Up

Last week had to be THE week for Jimmy Carter of Georgia. It was undoubtedly the week that the surprising former governor virtually wrapped up the Democratic nomination for president.

Carter made an excellent showing in Ohio and shortly thereafter he picked up the support of George C. Wallace, Mayor Daley of Chicago and Henry Jackson. Thereafter, Sen. Humphrey, Sen. Frank Church and Rep. Morris Udall, all of whom had been considered presidential possibilities, acknowledged that Carter's nomination was almost assured.

Only Gov. Brown of California, who won his state's primary, still held out the hope that he could take the nomination away from the amazing Carter — and most observers believed that Brown was merely playing for influence in a Democratic party which will soon choose Carter as its candidate.

Nothing is absolutely certain in politics until the voters are actually counted, but it appeared at week's end that Jimmy Carter had the presidential nomination wrapped up. Next, he must decide who he will choose as his vice-presidential running mate, a choice that will be important as the Democrats attempt to wreste the White House from the Republicans.

Carter will undoubtedly look outside the south for a running mate and his choice could very well be among his recent opponents in the various Democratic primaries.

Brown, Church, Udall or Jackson could be among the names to be considered, with the final choice not becoming known until after the presidential nomination is made at the convention.

It's been a gruelling and unusual year in Democratic Party politics but the end of the road insofar as choosing the presidential nominee is at hand.

Republican Choice Is Far From Settled

If the Democratic presidential nominee is all but settled, that doesn't yet appear to be true in the Republican race.

Despite the fact that the GOP has a president in office in Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan is still hot on his heels in delegate count .

It is possible, of course, that being in office, Ford will have a better chance of lining up uncommitted delegates. On the other hand the Republican convention may be wide open. There could even be a deadlock between Ford and Reagan forcing the delegates to turn to a compromise candidate. It could be interesting.

THIS AFTERNOON

Activity Isn't All Public

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — If you ever wonder what a candidate for a high state office means by "full-time campaigning," it doesn't mean that most of the work is done in public.

Certainly, the public sees enough of the candidate on the stump—at fund-raising pig-pickings, shopping center handshakings, and party conclaves.

But a speech here and a meeting there doesn't constitute full-time employment.

Raising money and lining up the "local organization" does, however.

That is how most of the time is spent, in private meetings across the state talking with rich and-or powerful individuals.

A typical day would go this way:

Many Calls

The candidate has a civic club talk scheduled for 6 o'clock in a Piedmont town, but he doesn't stay around Raleigh until time to drive there.

Probably with the sun, he hits the city limits for breakfast with his county chairman—generally a longtime friend who has agreed to be the local contact man, either out front or behind scenes.

A list of "local leaders" is provided the candidate, and he sets out on his rounds, much like any other visiting traveling salesman new in twon—except the product is promises and the currency is votes.

Generally alone at this early stage of the game—although sometimes accompanied by his local organizer just to make the introductions—the candidate starts on his calls.

He has to do it himself. You can't send a staff aide to to this hard job. And like all business transactions, the talk must be plain and open.

First, the candidate himself must ask those on the local list for their individual votes. Not in hesitating or wondering terms, but straightour: "Will you or won't you vote for me?"

Then, if the answer is positive, "Will you or won't you talk me up to your friends and associates?" Again, blessed positively, the candidate will (indeed, must) get to the final straight question: "We can't win without money . . . how much will you put in?"

Around Town

So the day goes, with obligatory calls on the town's bankers, industrial and business leaders, newspaper, radio and TV stations, and other influential people. Often the calls are made on a schedule prepared ahead of time. But many candidates find it more effective to just "pop in." That impresses the local recipient of the call much more than a telephone call from an underling some days beforehand.

A successful day in the life of a candidate on the trail in North Carolina ends, then not with resounding applause at the local hotel, but when he goes back over his list and figures out how many promises of votes, public support, and dollars he got.

Some races make the job easier—a candidate for governor or lieutenant governor represents the elite; his introductions and entry to local people is simple. But raising money, even in that his race, is difficult this year, most candidates s a y .

As you go down the list of Council of State and lower races, the scheduling gets harder. Few local citizens have a great deal of interest in, time for, or moeny to give to some races.

There is, after all, little that the State Auditor can offer in exchange—the public jsut doesn't have a big interest or commitment in that race, for instance.

The hours are long, the work is hard, and most of it is not glamorous receptions or press conferences. There's little room for timidity or shyness—only commitments get results.

And that, typically, is how a candidate will spend a lot of days between now and next November.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Post-Primary Campaigning

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Badly outorganized and slightly outnumbered, the two shining young lights of the Missouri Republican party — Gov. Kit Bond and state Atty. Gen. John Danforth — took to their telephones this week to open the crucial post-primary phase of the Ford-Reagan struggle with a message of party-splitting volatility.

The calls, about 60 each from Bond and Danforth, went to delegates to the June 12 Republican state convention in Springfield, Mo., who are still undecided. Their message was tough:

If you want me to win in November — Bond for reelection as governor and Danforth for the U.S. Senate — do not nominate Ronald Reagan for President; he would guarantee my defeat. Nominate Gerald R. Ford.

The contention that Reagan means Republican catastrophe, while infuriating the Reaganite hard core, is the principal Ford tactic in the post-primary delegate search. The hard-nosed line by Bond and Danforth comes straight from President Ford Committee (PFC) headquarters in Washington as the way to frighten grass roots conservative diehards into ignoring their hearts and following their appointed President.

Missouri is a test case. Although the state's district caucuses gave President Ford a lead in national convention delegates (15 to 12, with three undecided), Reagan now has a slight edge at the state convention for election of 19 at-large national convention delegates. Such a Reagan win in a state generally conceded to Mr. Ford would be shattering.

So significant are those 19 delegates that Mr. Ford made a late Friday round-trip to Springfield to shake hands with state convention delegates at Gov. Bond's convention-eve reception. Reagan long ago was scheduled not only to arrive Friday night but to address the convention Saturday morning.

An incumbent President scheduling a 1,812-mile one-day round-trip for a paltry 19 delegates attests the closeness of his delegates chase with Reagan. Equally important, it also is needed to compensate for inexcusable past failures of his campaign. Yet, Missouri is not only a test case but the prototype of Ford-Reagan state contests still being waged across the country.

In Missouri as elsewhere, the PFC quickly signed up all the big names, from Bond and Danforth on down. Shunned by the party establishment, Reagan found his state chairman in John Powell, a 50-year-old lumber yard owner whose highest political office was membership on the state central committee. Reagan's first endorsement by a Missouri Republican of any reputation came only last week from Tom Curtis, former Congressman and just resigned chairman of the Federal Election Commission.

Having signed up the establishment, the PFC then characteristically forgot all about Missouri — to its misfortune. While the establishment slept, Reaganites derailed plans to hold the state convention in the university town of Columbia and scheduled it instead at the southwest Missouri metropolis of Springfield, smack in the heart of traditionally rock-ribbed Republican territory and currently Reagan country. "The fact we're going to be in Springfield is a sign of how much we've blundered," a Ford operative conceded.

Strength For Today

TO LIVE SPELLED BACKWARD

When we spell the word "live" backward it comes out "evil." There is something here for us to think about. Evil is life lived backward.

Just as cancer is tissue which has somehow become perverted in its growth, so evil is normal life which has become twisted and lived backwards. If we choose virtue and reject vice, decide for honesty and spurn dishonesty, take our stand on behalf of mercy and turn our backs on revenge—if we do these things, life is a thrilling pilgrimage. But if we do the opposite, life is a dreadful, bitter, abnormal experience in which there is never any real happiness.

Evil is simply motion in the wrong direction. It is the perversion of God's plan. As long as we allow ourselves to be fascinating by any temptation or broken upon the wheel of its evil practice, we are at variance with the tur course of life. We have switched life about and are living it backwards.

Sunday Morning Notes

The pretty girl was musing as to what she would like to do with her life.

"I think I want to move out on a farm," she reflected, "and raise chickens."

"Then you would have to kill the chickens," someone said, "and you couldn't bear to to that."

A frown crossed her face. Then she brightened. "It would be an egg farm."

And a local university student says her parents were livid over the long distance calls which were showing up on her monthly phone bill.

"They've threatened to rip the phone off the wall, take me out of school and put me in a convent!" she said.

Let's put he blame where it should be—on Alexander Graham Bell.

It was becoming obvious that Jimmy Carter was rapidly closing in on a first ballot nomination at the Democratic national convention following Tuesday's Ohio, New Jersey and California primaries.

ALVIN TAYLOR

The next day Chicago Mayor Daly's support and that of fellow southern Goerge C. Wallace fell Carter's way.

One observer expressed awe at how Carter was wrapping things up.

"That's real Peanut Power," was the observation.

A pretty and fashionable young lady who was working with one of the political candidates campaigns was in town for the Young Democratic Clubs installation banquet last weekend. She obviously had attended the best schools and had the best social training.

The subject of the many miles of driving which is involved in getting around the state working for the candidates came up—and that led to discussion of learning to drive in the first place.

Everyone had a different experience, but the refined young lady finally volunteered, "Actually I learned to drive on a tractor."

Well, that's in the North Carolina tradition.

Other Editors Say Killing The Goose

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A "capital force" can expand enormously the productive power of the "labor force." And it is labor—that is, people who work—who benefit the most from the increase in productivity. This way of looking at a federal tax structure which discourages savings and prevents capital from flowing into productive capacity was put before the Senate Finance Committee in testimony by Lowell Harriss, Columbia professor of economics, and economic consultant to Tax Foundation.

Capital takes loads off our backs. All of us who work need productive tools—a "capital force" often of tens of thousands of dollars per person—to realize the potential of our abilities.

As taxes reduce the capital which the employer can use to improve the ability to produce, the damage falls on flesh-and-blood human beings, not merely on some industrial giant. Antagonist argue that such benefits would go to huge and impersonal entities, not to the men, women and children who are consumers, employes and owners.

Can we not defuse the adversary aspects of tax debate to emphasize elements of common interest? More capital means more real income, better living standards. Realtively, those who do not themselves do the saving benefit the most in rising productivity, more housing, energy sources, prevention of inflation, stronger competition in world markets and so on.

Even government depends on the productivity of the private economy to generate taxes for its programs. But the tax laws have not given heavy weighting to concern about saving.

As a result we face capital needs of an almost incomprehensible magnitude. Whatever the figure—and it is trillions of dollars over the next 10 to 15 years—the American people will expect a level of living which requires capital in increasingly large amounts.

A "tilt" of tax policy to aid private investment in production facilities can help to convert distress into a sense of accomplishment. Unless tax relief is afforded in this direction, the government will eventually kill the goose that, up to now, has laid many golden eggs for America.

40 Years Ago Today

A refusal by Senator Borah of Idaho to say whether he would support the Republican presidential nominee, Alf Landon of Kansas, coincidended today with an assertion by Senator Norris, a veteran Nebraska Republican, that he was confident President Roosevelt would be reelected.

Playing under threatening clouds at Third Street Stadium yesterday, the Greenville Greenies nosed out a 7-6 win over Snow Hill, the seventh consecutive victory for the Greenville team.

Silver Lake's Serpent

By DICK USIAK

PERRY, N.Y. (UPI) — Loch Ness in Scotland may have its famed Nessie, but a sea serpent once created quite a stir in this rural Western New York community.

Except the "Silver Lake Sea Serpent" turned out to be something quite different.

The monster ruled the lake for a time, coincidentally, when business was slow in this rural western New York village at the tip of the Silver Lake in Wyoming County. Townspeople wanted to attract tourists.

The creature was first sighted on the evening of July 13, 1855, by a group of "honest, temperate and industrious" men and boys who were fishing on the lake, according to a newspaper account.

The group, the report said, rowed their boat to shore and escaped with their lives as the 60-foot monster went after them.

After the initial sighting, others began to report having seen something in the lake.

The serpent was described as between 60 and 100 feet, shiny, dark green with yellow spots, flaming red eyes and a mouth and huge fins.

There were some reports that the serpent could rise 12 feet out of the water and move like a snake.

The "sightings" led to several "fishing" expeditions launched by local businessmen in an attempt to capture the monster. Thousands of persons from throughout the state flooded the Perry area to take a crack at capturing the elusive monster alive.

All efforts failed. The monster disappeared.

Then, two years later, on Dec. 19, 1857, the Walker House, a local hotel, burned down. Firemen who fought the blaze found the remains of the "serpent."

The instigators soon confessed.

Truman S. Gillett and A.B. Walker, owner of the Walker House, said there had been a sea serpent all right. They had built it.

They said they constructed the serpent from waterproof canvas, paint and wire. Forced air through a hose connected to the "monster" caused it to

A Social And Financial Issue

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a social issue and a financial issue in the redlining regulation which affects mortgage lenders beginning Sept. 30, and there may be an irresolvable conflict between them.

After that date many of the larger home mortgage lenders will have to post information on where they lend funds, broken down by census tracts, which correspond generally to neighborhoods.

Publicity of this type, required by the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act, is expected to make many institutions reconsider a sometimes prevalent view that mortgage money not be invested in blighted areas.

Thus the conflict. Are lenders, who are guardians of other people's money, supposed to make their investment decisions on the basis of safety and return or in pursuit of social goals?

The new law presents a dilemma for lenders.

As it reads now, the major consequence for them is that the information might be used by a community to greenline the lender, or deny it the use of the savings that accumulate in the community.

Fears exist, however, that pressure could develop for a change in the law that would utilize the information to penalize lenders or coerce them into investing in inner city areas that don't meet investment criteria.

Redlining is an old practice used by many companies and institutions besides lenders. Door-to-door sales companies, for example, have for years marked off certain areas as forbidden territory to their salesmen.

It is perhaps an inconvenience not to be able to buy magazines or brushes or encyclopedias at the front door, but it is a denial of great social significance when you cannot obtain funds to buy or improve property.

Social activists and others say it is the reason neighborhoods decay. Lenders invariably contend that the neighborhood was in decline before the funds were denied. Which came first? Probably some of each.

In years past, residents seldom had much statistical evidence of where a bank was investing in mortgages. It was largely a personal experience: they applied, were denied, and reacted by withdrawing their savings.

For the first time they will now have the figures to demonstrate or disprove their contentions. Entire communities will be in a position to greenline, to react en masse, to retaliate against the reluctant lender. But will establish the criterion for how funds should be loaned out?

Lenders generally have expressed the view that the problem of the inner city is a complex one involving a lot more than the lack of funds. Some of them conceivably, but by no means certainly, could be forced to withdraw altogether.

This, of course, is looking at only the negative side of the issue. It remains a possibility that the investment of mortgage money in some neighborhoods could lead to their rehabilitation.

But that still leaves a question begging for an answer: What is the criterion to be used by lenders of other people's money— social good or investment return?

Ford Appeal Unchanged

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Ford's popularity rating remains unchaged in the latest survey, but falls far below President Richard Nixon's rating at this time in the presidential election year of 1972.

In the latest survey, 47 per cent approve of the way Ford is handling his job as President, 38 per cent disapprove, and 15 per cent are undecided. In the previous measurement (early April), 48 per cent approved, 41 per cent disapproved, and 11 per cent were undecided.

The President's popularity line has been remarkably stable since the beginning of the year, with little fluctuation in approval between surveys. His present score of 47 per cent approval is also his average rating for the current year.

But Nixon Had 62 Per Cent Rating In 1972

Nixon's rating at the same time in the presidential election year of 1972, however, was 15 percentage points higher. Nixon, it will be recalled, went on to a decisive victory over Sen. George McGovern in the November election, winning by the landslide margin of 62 to 38 per vent.

A key factor in Ford's lower rating is the fact that as many as one-fourth of Republicans currently express disapproval of his performance in office.

The lastest survey shows 64 per cent of the President's fellow party members expressing approval, 24 per cent disapproval and 12 per cent undecided.

In contrast, Nixon at this time in 1972 was accorded an approval rating from 89 per cent of his fellow Republicans. He also had higher scores among Democrats and independents.

LBJ Had 74 Per Cent Rating In Election Year Of '64

The previous time an incumbent President ran for election was in the presidential election year of 1964.

At a comparable time in that year, President Lyndon Johnson had a popularity rating of 74 per cent, with 13 per cent expressing disapproval and 13 per cent undecided. Johnson went on to defeat GOP candidate Sen. Barry Goldwater by the landslide margin of 61.3 per cnet to 38.7 per cent.

At approximately this time in the election year of 1956, Republican President Dwight Eisenhower had an approval rating of 69 per cent. Eisenhower, who had an overwhelming vote of approval from Republican voters, went on to a smashing victory that November over Adlai Stevenson, winning by the margin of 57.8 per cent ho 42.2 per cent.

Here is the question that has been asked to determine the President's popularity since Franklin Roosevelt's administration and the trend so far this year:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way (name of incumbent) is handling his job as President?"

Here is the trend since the beginning of this year:

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion
LATEST	47%	38%	15%
April 9-12	48	41	11
Mar. 19-22	50	36	14
Feb. 27-Mar. 1	50	39	11
Jan. 30-Feb. 2	46	40	14
Jan. 23-26	45	45	10
Jan. 2-5	46	42	12

The latest results reported today are based on 1,543 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localites across the nation during the period May 21-24.

surface and ropes were used to tow it to various corners of the lake's shoreline.

The town's current mayor, Arthur Parmiter, also the former village historian, says the monster was dreamed up to drum up business in the community.

"The sea serpent, of course, is a long-time myth or hoax, or whatever you want to call it," Parmiter said.

The myth emerged again in 1952 when the Perry Jaycees tried to reconstruct the monster to Gillett's and Walker's specifications.

But the new serpent was too heavy. It sank promptly when launched. They finally settled on a "monster" made of paper mache and fiberglass whirh floated.

A year later a barn in which the new serpent was stored also burned. Again the thing was destroyed.

The Jaycees constructed two more serpents. Both were destroyed under mysterious circumstances. No further attempts have been made to rebuild it.

Real or not, the original Silver Lake Sea Serpent caused quite a stir and a business boom back in 1855.

"It dragged thousands of people into the Perry area," Parmiter says. "It was a fantastic hoax from the simple point that business was lousy in this community.

Perry still holds an annual week-long Sea Serpent Festival during which time a Sea Serpent queen is crowned. This year's festival will be held in conjunction with Perry's bicentennial celebration.

"As time goes by it becomes more and more of a happier story," Parmiter said.

That Curious Encounter In Old Williamsburg

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WILLIAMSBURG, VA. A visitor to Williamsburg, having dined not wisely but entirely too well, awoke from his troubled sleep a little before 3 a.m. on a night not long ago. Thinking to ease his discomfort, he dressed and went for a walk down Duke of Gloucester Street. There he experienced a strange encounter.

The old cobblestone street was deserted, of course. The last of the evening's tourists had given up long ago; the morning battalions were yet to arrive. Not even the tread of the night watch could be heard. There was only the rustle of leaves in the mulberry trees, and the far-off bark of a distant dog. It had turned cool, and the lampposts were shawled in lace.

Passing the King's Arms, our visitor perceived through the mist that he was not alone after all. A poetly old gentleman, his hair quite white, was taking his ease on the tavern steps. It was apparent at once that this was no ordinary gentleman, for though he was dressed neatly in ruffled shirt, black coat and homespun britches, the steps could be clearly seen through his body. This was, in truth, a ghost. Our visitor, who had indulged himself unwisesly in Williamsburg before, clutched for support on a hitching post. Then he managed a hoarse hello.

"How fare the fundamental principles?" inquired the ghost. The spectral figure spoke in the sonorous speech of the trained lawyer, accustomed to debate in the House of Burgesses just down the street. "Have a free government and the blessings of liberty been preserved?"

These are, to be sure, the very questions one expects to encounter at 3 o'clock of a foggy morning on Duke of Gloucester Street. Our visitor, gathering his wits, parried the question with a question of his own. "Do I have the honor, sir, of addressing the late George Mason?"

"At your service," replied the amiable shade, rising from the steps and bowing slightly through the railing. "I return now and then to see what has become of my Virginia Declaration of Rights. You will recall that the Declaration was adopted by the House just 200 years ago this week. Tell me, sir, if you will, do the Americans of 1976 frequently recur to fundamental principles?"

Our visitor paused to reflect. Only that afternoon he had read the Declaration of Rights, a copy of which he had found on his bureau at the Inn. He recalled some of the famous sixteen assertions: That men have a right to the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possession property; that public officials are the trustees and the servants of the people; that the three branches of government must be kept separate from each other; that the rights of a criminally accused must be secured; that freedom of religion and of the press are indispensable to a free society; that men should not hold too long to public office lest they forget "burthens of the people."

Then he recalled that in the fifteenth assertion, Mason had declared that "no free government, or the blessings of liberty, can be preserved to any people but by a firm adherence to Justice, Moderation, Temperance, Frugality, and Virtue, and by frequent recurrence to Fundamental Principles."

Our visitor peered through the mist. The portly gentleman was waiting impatiently for an answer.

"It's hard to say," our visitor replied at last. "Our press is still free. You don't hear much about religion anymore. The rights of a defendant have been made so secure that the rights of society tend to get overlooked. Many of our legislators seem to want to stay in office forever, and the principle that public officials are trustees and servants appears to be almost lost. The legislative and executive branches are too intertwined to untangle, and judges are making most of the law that matters."

The spectral figure sighed. "What of Frugality?" asked Mason.

"It was last seen in Washington forty-four years ago," our visitor said. "And as for Virture . . ."

The conversation ended there, for the gentleman dissolved in the mist. Our visitor, his composure even more unsettled by this odd encounter, walked slowly back to the Inn. The distant dog was still barking faintly— or was it a dog? It may have been the voice of a vanished Virginian, crying for principles too precious ever to be lost: Recur! Recur! Recur!

Janette Carter Trying Keep This Music Alive

MACES SPRINGS, Va. — It is those cool endless summer evenings that Janette Carter remembers so clearly.

She remembers her neighbors gathering on the front porch of her parents' small home here in Southwest Virginia's fertile Poor Valley. In the peace of the oncoming evening, they visited and sang and played music native to this beautiful, rugged region of the Southern Appalachians.

Today, nearly 40 years later, 52-year-old Janette is bringing life back to those memories while carrying out the dreams of her famous parents and aunt, known to millions as The Carter Family. Every Saturday night, well over 200 die-hard music fans crowd into the tiny white frame building that was A. P. Carter's store; they stomp their feet, clap their hands and just plain enjoy some of the finest old-time bluegrass music played today.

"I guess I'm just trying to carry out his plans," Janette says of the father she "idolized." And as if just realizing it herself, she adds, "Maybe I'm wanting to relive my childhood, when you'd go to someone's house on an evenin', sit down and just listen— I can remember that clearly. They would all gather, the young and the old, and play and listen to music. That's want I'm trying to do."

But more than simply bringing back the memories of her youth, Janette and her husband, Jack, have established in the old A. P. Carter Store a place where the music of her parents' day can thrive.

It was here in the hollows nestled at the foot of the imposing Clinch Mountains that the seeds of today's giant country music industry were carefully nutured; here, in this valley, those seeds took root and grew. Janette's parents — A. P. and Sarah — and Sarah's first cousin, Maybelle, journeyed with their songs, two guitars and an autoharp 35 miles east to Bristol in August, 1927, and met a representative of the Victor Talking Machine Co.

They signed a contract and for the next decade the fame of the Carter Family spread like fire across the country. More than 300 of their songs were eventually copyrighted, including "You are my Wildwood Rose," "The Wabash Cannonball," and "I'm Thinking Tonight of My Blue-eyes."

And with the Carter Family grew America's unique country music sound. Over the years, the sound has changed and has evolved into a multibillion dollar industry in Nashville.

"Daddy and Mommy, they paved a great big road for a lot of people to walk behind. I know they paved it for me," Janette says in her pleasant, rythmical mountain accent. "And this old time music, if people don't do something, it's gonna die. What I'm really trying to do is to keep this music alive."

So, two summers ago, Janette removed all the old counters, lined up some seats and built a small stage in the old grocery store, opening the doors again to the sound of country music. In her spare time, after a full day's work as a cook in a nearby school, she had booked some of the finest local and regional talent in the traditional, non-amplified music world. From one show a month to the current one and sometimes two shows every week, the get-togethers are increasingly popolar with a diverse group of fans, from valley neighbors to college students in nearby cities.

"I add different artists to my probrams to make a change from just "hoe-down' music. I try to keep interest. Some don't care for this, some do. But I can tell a change in the audience," she says, "I feel I am educating them to all kinds of old time music, and it's taking hold."

But accompanying Janette's satisfaction with the success of the get-togethers is a certain uneasy reservation. Because of the crowds, she and her brother are planning to build a new 500-seat capacity music hall on the lot next to the old store. The store would then become a Carter Family historical museum.

She worries that the new music hall may lose that "intangible something" the smaller store possesses every time musicians and music lovers gather there. She is afraid that in the push to grow, some of the simple vitality of the event will be lost. "I worry about that a lot," Janette says.

Reaganites control some convention machinery, including the credentials committee. Most important, Reagan has the superior organization at a time when it is too late for the President's big names to catch up.

The result: Out of 1,439 state convention delegates, Reagan has the backing of up to 620 to Mr. Ford's 629 with at least 150 uncommitted.

To reduce that margin with less than a week remaining and with Reagan's victory in California posing a convention cliffhanger, Bond and Danforth began telephoning state convention delegates to sound the alarm that Reagan heading the ticket means disaster for the entire ticket — a warning intensified by the overblown Rhodesia flap.

But that technique is highly questionable not only in Missouri but nationwide because of what's really going on inside the Republican party. In forging their remarkable successes in an overwhelmingly Democratic state, liberal young Republicans led by Bond, 37, and Danforth, 40, have not forged a true alliance of the spirit with grizzled old conservative stalwarts. Just how much their appeal for help will sway delegates is at least debatable, particularly since Bond is given an unsurpassable lead in November and Danforth a comfortable one.

Moreover, the stalwarts argue that Reagan will run much better than Mr. Ford in Republican southwest Missouri, where a huge plurality would be needed to defeat Jimmy Carter statewide and where Reagan's blunder on Rhodesia presumably counts for little.

Nobody is sure whether arguments over which Republicans can run best in Missouri will have much impact on Fred Whaley, the "old bear" of Missouri Republicans who leads the officially uncommitted 3rd District (suburban St. Louis County) delegation. At this writing, nobody can even guess — whither Whaley? Yet, following the multi-million-dollar, four-month chase from New Hampshire to California, the struggle for the soul of the Republican party now pivots on Fred Whaley of Missouri and his counterparts in a dozen other states with critical "undecideds."

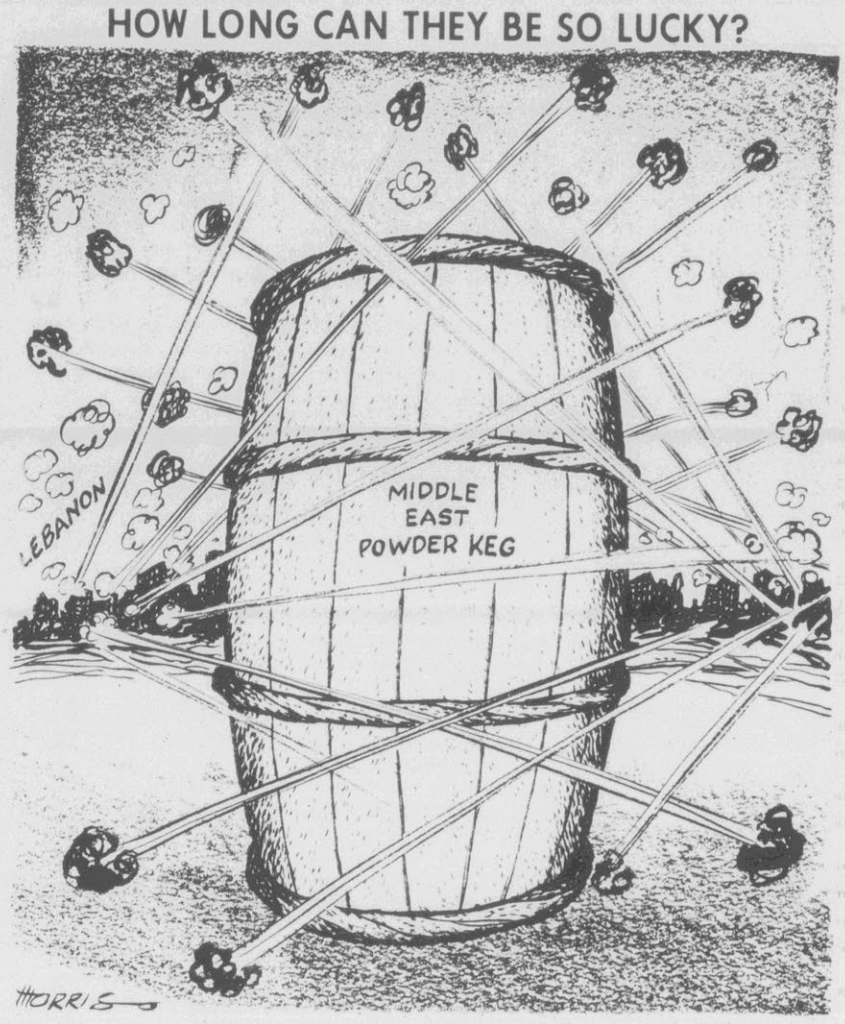
HOW LONG CAN THEY BE SO LUCKY?



By GAIL MICHAELS

If We Were In Atlanta She'd Look Like Mama

No matter how much two people love each other, there's always a little competition between them after the first baby is born. Daddy is jealous because Mama gets to spend more time with the baby. Mama is jealous because Daddy wouldn't know how to wash a diaper if she dumped the pail over his head.

The families foster this competition, too. From the first time each grandparent sees that innocent little bundle in the nursery window, he or she begins picking it apart feature by feature to see which side it resembles. This process was especially difficult for me when my daughter arrived - after fifteen minutes of concentrated study, my mother looked up from the bassinet and gleefully announced, "She has Gail's navel."

I have to admit that there's a marked resemblance between Meg amd her dad. But did "Da-Da" have to be her first word? As my friend, Frances, once warned me, it's disgusting. You feed them, bathe them, stumble out of bed at 3 a.m. for them, and them they reward you by saying "Da-Da." For a long time I simmered while Phillip simpered, but I finally gave up. Now I answer to "Hi dere," "bye-bye," "kitty," and an occasional, affectionate raspberry.

The other day Phillip walked in while Meg and I were having our daily vocabulary lesson. "Mama," I instructed. "Say maaa-maaaaa."

"You sound like a goat," Phillip said smugly, taking the baby. "You know she's a daddy's girl."

"Just because she looks a little bit like you," I snapped, "doesn't mean . . ."

"A little bit?!" he gloated. "Why, she looks just like me."

"That's because we live near your parents. If we were in Atlanta, she'd look like me. Everybody whose not in your family says she does."

"Yeah, she has your coloring, your exzema, and your temper. She has my nose, my eyes, my mouth. . ."

"Right, and your legs. She should make a great soccer player."

"Don't be nasty. She can't help it if she's her daddy's girl."

"Would you stop saying that?" I muttered from behind clenched teeth. "If she's such a daddy's girl, why is it that she'll only hold her arms out to me?"

"You're her food supply. She's got to butter you up a little. After all, she's smart. She gets that from her daddy, too."

Steam was beginning tofill the room. I couldn't tell whether it was from my reaching my boiling point or from all Phillip's hot air. Just at that moment Meg held out her arms and cooed, "Mamamamamama."

"Did you hear that?" Phillip exclaimed. "You smart little devil, you know who your mama is!"

"But a minute ago . . ." I said in confusion, my blood pressure still at an all time high.

"Oh, I was just teasing," he laughed. "You can take a little teasing can't you? Besides, I told you she got her brains from her daddy."

Meg and I both gave him the raspberry.

John Adams Served As The Floor Manager For Independence

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

John Adams was the floor manager of independence. He brought it along slowly, carefully, counting and courting votes until a nation was ready to be born.

"Be silent and patient," he cautioned the friends of liberty. "And time will bring forth, after the usual groans, throes and pains upon such occasions, a fine child."

Adams was a painfully impatient man, impatient with delay, impatient with the equivocation of fellow patriots, impatient with the reluctant and the cowardly.

But his own self-control, with its moderating balm on his more radical cohorts, and his consummate skill at the legislative art led 13 angry but aimless colonies to unity and purpose and nationhood.

Adams learned his art in the public affairs of Braintree, Mass., where he was born on Oct. 19, 1735. John Adams Sr. was a man of modest property, a lieutenant in the militia, a selectman of the town and deacon of the church.

The boy went regularly with his father to the town meeting and learned the slow process of legislative consensus, the politics of compromise, the gift of persuasion.

In Braintree, where everyone went to church at least twice each Sunday, young John also absorbed the religious preoccupation that would shape his politics and give him the sense of mission that later in life drove him to greatness.

He was a reluctant scholar, preferring sports, play, the outdoors and girls. Graduating school at 19 with no idea where his destiny would lead, he became a schoolmaster in Worcester and was bored.

A sense of responsibility followed him all his life. He never enjoyed a vacation or holiday for fretting over the wasted time.

But the young pedagogue found to his mortification that his best intentions for scholarly and pious study suffered from a greater attraction to the social and intellectual circles of Worcester.

When he could stand the classroom no longer, Adams apprenticed himself to the town lawyer. Later he went to Boston and was admitted to practice before the Superior Court of the colony.

Having an active mind and ambitious spirit, the fledgling lawyer fell in with the rising legal stars of his day. He became absorbed in their politics as well as their law.

The turning point of his life came in 1761 when he heard his new friend, James Otis, argue against the general writs sought by customs agents to search at will. Adams listened as Otis argued that a man's home is his castle, that any Englishman has the right to security from intrusion without valid warrant.

If Parliament had approved such writs, then Parliament was wrong, Otis dared, because such a thing was contrary to the British constitution.

Morality, thought Adams, who was ever guided by it, must be on the side of the colonists. The young man with a stunning sense of divine calling, who had been struggling in search of his mission, was finding it.

"Every man ... appeared to me to go away, as I did, ready to take arms against writs of assistance," he concluded. "American independence was then and there born."

But despite his growing devotion to the cause, Adams continued to be torn between the forces of moral crusade and conservatism.

It was the Stamp Act that finally brought John Adams to his destiny. He urged Braintree to instruct its legislative delegation to protest the act. As selectman of the town he was named to the committee which would draw up the instructions.

Adams said it was "inconsistent with the spirit of the common law and of the essential fundamental principles of the British constitution," that colonists should be subject to a tax imposed by the British Parliament without being represented in that assembly.

Towns all over New England used Adams' work as a model for their own instructions. And later when the tiff with customs officials culminated in the seizure of one of John Hancock's ships, Adams was picked to draft instructions of protests for the Boston delegation.

Adams said Americans were determined "to assert and vindicate our dear and invaluable rights and liberties, at the utmost hazard of our lives and fortunes."

When the colonies began to unite for action, Adams was sent to the Continental Congress and appointed to the Committee on Colonial Rights and Grievances.

War came almost as a relief of his embattled conscience, turning him toward the inevitable solution of independence from British tyranny.

Adams began pushing for the individual colonies to recognize de facto independence by creating their own governments to replace the banished British. Congress rejected his call.

But he was more successful in urging Congress to assume responsibility for the motley troops besieging Boston. Then he talked it into creating an official American army and later a navy.

He successfully promoted Virginian George Washington for command of the Continental forces—assuring Southern support and bringing the colonies closer to unity and national identity than ever.

In the spring of 1776 he finally convinced Congress to call on the states to set up governments to replace British administrations. He knew that once he could get the colonies to taste the nectar of total self-government, they would not turn back.

Having accomplished passage of the resolution, he cunningly came back with a preamble tantamount to a declaration of independence.

Crown and parliament had excluded the colonies from their protection, rejected their petitions, hired foreign mercenaries and seemed determined on their destruction, Adams wrote.

The question now was whether the individual colonies would renounce the last vestiges of British government, set up their own and perhaps even go so far as to call themselves independent.

As soon as the resolution passed, Richard Henry Lee, Adams' Virginia accomplice, sped to Williamsburg to urge the largest colony to take the lead. He arrived to find that Virginia already had resolved to draft a constitution and petition Congress to proclaim a new nation.

On June 7, 1776, acting on the Virginia instructions, Lee moved that "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states." Adams jumped up to second the motion.

As the debate grew hot, Adams wisely allowed the conservatives to play their last trump, a delay until July 1. Thought Adams, this would serve to let the wavering colonies "ripen" to independence.

In the meantime Adams was busy counting heads, cultivating support, sending for absent delegates. As debate resumed, there was a final persuasive plea for caution, a warning of the perils. Then all eyes turned to John Adams.

Thomas Jefferson noted that his friend "was not graceful nor eloquent, nor remarkably fluent. But he came out occasionally with a power of thought and expression that moved us from our seats."

Nine states were for independence, four held out. It was not the unity needed to launch a nation. Through the night Adams lobbied until he got a vote of 12 colonies, one abstaining.

Two days later a formal declaration was approved by all 13 states. Adams was a member of the drafting committee for the Declaration of Independence but insisted that Jefferson of Virginia write the big one for the obvious political advantages.

Consequently, Jefferson became America's national hero of independence, but he recognized that the man who made it happen was John Adams, "our Colossus of the floor."

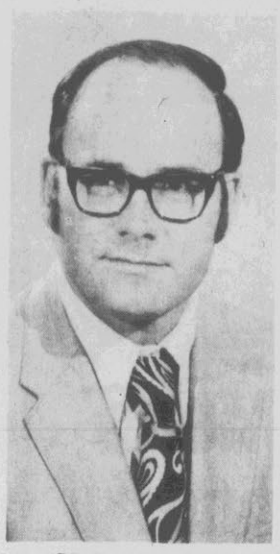
2 Chairmen Named By Dr. Bearden

Dean James H. Bearden has announced the appointment of Dr. Danny Hines as chairman of the Department of Accounting and Finance and the promotion of Dr. Frank Close to chairman of the Department of Business Administration in the East Carolina University School of Business.



DR. FRANK CLOSE

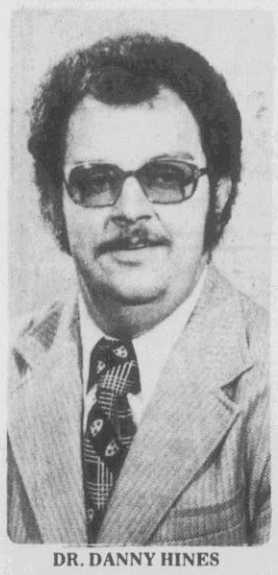
Dr. Close has served as acting chairman of Business Administration, the largest department in the School of Business, for the past year. The department has nearly 1,000 majors and offers programs in the areas of marketing, management, general business and real estate.

"As Dr. Close assumes this new role of leadership, I am confident that the Department will continue to grow and mature in ways that will benefit the many students who seek degree programs in the department," Dr. Bearden said.

He said the appointment "reflects the confidence which Dr. (Chancellor) Jenkins and faculty members" have in Dr. Close.

Dr. Bearden said "the field of accounting represents one of the fastest growing areas in higher education in business.

"Of all the fields of business, it seems to have been the one in most demand by employers as they have looked at our students over the past few years.



DR. DANNY HINES

"Dr. Hines has a background in practical accounting having successfully sat for the CPA examination several years ago and more recently having received a Ph. D in accounting.

"Thus he brings together the practical as well as the theoretical as he asumes this important leadership role in the School of Business."

The Boys' State program allows participants to take active roles in simulated government situations. Boys perform activities and fill positions in government, both appointive and elective. They also hear lectures and discussions by public officials, faculty officials and Legionnaires.

Middleton is the son of Dr. and Mrs. David J. Middleton. His school activities include Junior class president, the Key Club and the baseball team. He is a member of the Teen Democrats, class representative of Jarvis Memorial United Youth Fellowship, a member of the Jarvis Youth Choir and the church's Education Commission, and is senior leadership patrol leader of Boy Scout Troop 205.

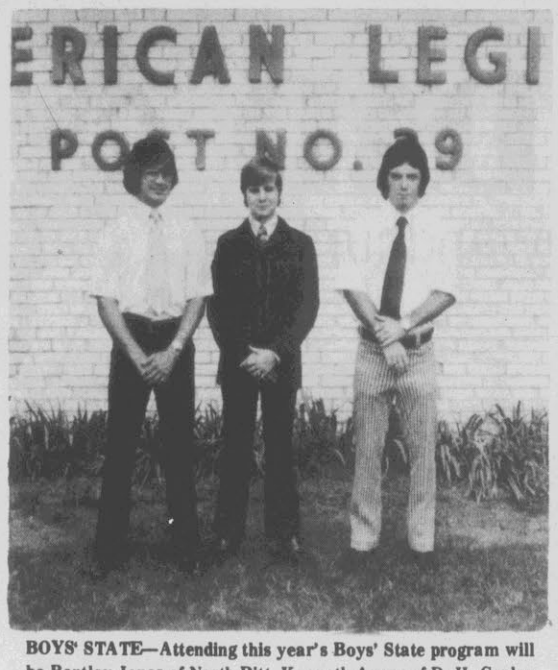
Hooks, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Wright Hooks, Jr., is a member of the varsity football and baseball teams. He attends First Presbyterian Church and is on the American Legion baseball team.

Johnson is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Milam F. Johnson. His school activities include the French Club, Science Club, Ecology Club and Chess Club (two years as president). He is an Eagle Scout, attends Oakmont Baptist Church, and has played the violin for two years and the piano for three. He also composes songs for area Boy Scouts.

Avery is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Russell, Rt. 7, Greenville. He is a member of his school's Junior A.R.O.T.C., National Honor Society, and Student Government Association. He has served as a marshal for three years and attends Trinity Baptist Church.

Jones, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Jones of Rt. 4, Greenville, participates in varsity football, baseball and track. He is a member of the Mongram Club, Junior Council, Teen Democrats, Quill and Scroll, yearbook staff, and is vice-president of the North Pitt chapter of the National Honor society.

Hemingway is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hemingway of Rt. 1, Bethel. He is vice-president of the Spanish Club and a member of the Monogram Club, Senior Science Club and Teen Democrats. He plays varsity football and baseball and is a member of an extracurricular weight-lifting club. He attends Mt. Pleasant Christian Church.



BOYS' STATE—Attending this year's Boys' State program will be Bentley Jones of North Pitt, Kenneth Avery of D. H. Conley and Eddy Hemingway of North Pitt.

Mesic Board Restrained From Selling Tax Liens

By TILLIE KNOWLES
Editor, Pamlico County News

BEAUFORT—A temporary order restraining members of the Mesic Town Board and the town of Mesic from selling tax liens placed against real property has been issued.

At a hearing held Friday, June 11 in the Carteret County Courthouse, Judge Robert Rouse issued the order that affects about 100 taxpayers in the small Pamlico County fishing-farming town.

The restraining order was issued pending the outcome of a Special Court session set for July 19 to be held in Pamlico County on a $13 million dollar law suit brought against the Mesic Town Board members and the town of Mesic on June 2.

In the suit, property owners claim that the town was illegally incorporated in 1971 and a large amount of additional property illegally annexed in 1974.

(Mesic, with a population of about 365, now comprises a total area of 12 square miles. In comparison, the nearest large town, New Bern, has more than 16,000 people but is less half the size of Mesic, with 5.6 square miles).

Notice of sale of tax liens, set for June 28, is for 1974 and 1975 taxes which the majority of Mesic residents have refused to pay. The notice of sale was placed in an out-of-county paper, but was not placed in the county's one weekly paper.

Referring to the complaints of the protesting property owners, Judge Rouse said they were "extremely serious"

The judge asked attorney Jim Ragan, representing the defendants "if the Mesic Board has an attorney?" On being told it now does, although it had not had one on a regular basis since the town was incorporated in 1971, the judge questioned how a town could possibly function without an attorney.

In arranging for the Special Court session in Bayboro on July 19, during which no other case will be heard, Judge Rouse expressed an opinion that the case should go directly to the merit of the matter

The petition for a permanent injunction seeking a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction, presented by C. K. McCotter and Hiram Mayo, Jr., attorneys for the plaintiffs, also seeks other actions.

These are an order restraining members of the Mesic Town Board from exercising any of the powers of a municipality pending a final hearing in the case; action to declare the ad valorem taxes null and void; a declaration that the June 1971 incorporation is unconstitutional; and a request that the town charter be declared null and void.

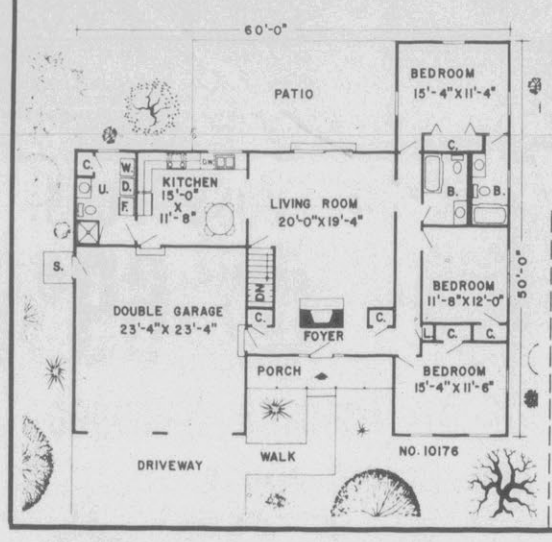
MEDIUM-SIZED HOME SHOWS THREE BEDROOMS, THREE BATHS

UNIQUE RANCH STYLE AIMS FOR CONVENIENCE



By Jerry Bishop

With an emphasis on convenience, the Brandon, an appealing one level plan, provides an all-purpose living room, accessible bedrooms, and three full baths. Only 1608 sq. ft. of living space are covered by this efficient plan.

The neatly trimmed exterior is accented by the brick chimney and columned front porch, a decorative and practical addition. The design can be entered from three sides and displays a desirable connection between garage and foyer.

Visitors enter across the front porch and into an elongated foyer, flanked by two coat closets. Directly ahead is the central living room, easily reached from all areas of the home. Expansive and thoughtfully planned, the living room features a wood-burning fireplace and, on the opposite side, sliding glass doors to the patio. A full bath is only steps away, and, for parties, the neighboring kitchen is conveniently located.

The kitchen, which outlines an entry directly into the garage, allots a sizable area for family dining. Bordering the kitchen is the utility room, combining laundry center and full bath with shower. A storage closet is included.

At right of the foyer is the sleeping wing. Three comfortable bedrooms and two full baths are nestled in the area, set off by a hallway for privacy.

The Brandon is complete in itself but does offer expansion possibilities. The full basement takes the 1608 sq. ft. of potential living space and might be finished at a later date to include a family room if desired. A front entry double garage, large enough for storage, is also outlined.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A screwdriver is considered one of the basic hand tools, like a hammer or pliers. Theoretically, a quality screwdriver should last what is loosely called a lifetime. It rarely does, simply because most persons at one time or another use it as a substitute for some other tool.

Among the improper uses for a screwdriver are to unstick balky windows, pry up staples, stir paint, punch holes in metal, loosen can covers, chisel wood and dozens of other quickie purposes. Not to mention the damage that screwdriver tips suffer when the blades are inserted into screw slots that are too large or too small.

It is a mistake to have only a single screwdriver. Obviously, not even a professional can keep on hand even a small percentage of the hundreds of types, sizes and designs on the market. Yet even a home workshop should have at least three or four different kinds; preferably, five or six.

You need three so-called standard-tip screwdrivers; one for small screws, one for medium-sized and one for large. The tips should be straight and nearly parallel-sided. And, very important, the handle of each screwdriver should feel comfortable when you hold it in your hand. When the diameter of the handle is too small, it may feel as though you don't have a firm grip on it, which means it will be even more uncomfortable when driving and removing screws.

Besides the three standard-tip screwdrivers, you should own at least one Phillips model for use with Phillips screws, and one offset type for reaching into awkward locations. If you get a sixth, make it one of the stubby kinds that have short handles. Depending on the extent of your do-it-yourself activities, you can get other varieties and sizes as you need them. These include rachet offsets, spirals, push-pulls, bits for braces, drivers for electric drills and those that hold the tips inside the screw slots until the screws are started.

When a screwdriver tip is too small for the screw slot, it can damage the screw and often make it impossible to drive it all the way. When it is too large, it can mean a damaged work surface or an injured hand or both.

To use a screwdriver properly, hold the handle in the palm of your right hand (assuming you are right-handed) with the thumb and forefinger near the ferrule. Steady the blade with your left hand and turn with the right until the screw has taken hold. When it has — and you are sure the screw is going in straight — remove your left hand and continue the operation.

Before driving a screw into wood, especially if it is hardwood, make a small starting hole with an awl. With hardwood, the possibility of splitting the wood can be eliminated if you first drill a hole about the diameter of the body of the screw and no longer than it. In the same place, drill a second hole slightly smaller than the diameter of the threaded part of the screw. The total depth of the two should be about the full length of the screw.

Q. I have planted some "scarlet runner beans" primarily for foliage. Can they be eaten also? (Mrs. J. G., Durham)

A. Yes, but I doubt if you will be happy with either the flavor or pod texture. (George Huges, extension horticulturist)

Q. Have you heard of feeding red devil lye to nut trees, especially pecans? (E.P., Lumberton)

A. The use of lye has been suggested by some lye salesman, but I can't find any research data to support the practice. North Carolina is the most northern of the 11 states that produce pecans commercially. We also have the lowest number of trees and lose a crop most often due to weather. Pecans generally produce every other year. So, with this cultural habit along with weather conditions, I feel it would take more than lye to produce a crop. (Melvin H. Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Real Estate Not For Neophyte

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International

It is tempting for the homeowner who may have seen his property double or triple in value to look to other real estate ventures for a profitable place to put his extra dollars.

Over the years, real estate has proved as wise an investment as any, and better than most — for the knowledgeable.

There is money to be made, not only for those with millions, but for the middle-income investor. But, the neophyte should start small, and with careful preparation.

In his "New Investor's Guide to Making Money in Real Estate," (Grossett and Dunlap $4.95) Walter Stern covers in detail the various aspects of the many fields open to non-professionals of limited means.

Just how active or passive an investor you desire to be will determine the area of investment you should investigate, Stern says.

"If you relish the role of an active landlord, you may reap great satisfaction from operating a property on a day-to-day basis and do so quite profitably. At the other end of the spectrum there is the purchase of shares in a real estate corporation or investment trust, or partnership in a syndicated real estate venture."

For many, combining family living with investment is a good route.

The two-family house is a logical first step, one which Stern says requires least of all special efforts normally associated with investing in real estate.

"Oddly enough," he says, "this investment results in a bit of reverse English. Only rarely does it provide the owner with direct extra income. What it really does is reduce his own housing outlays, sometimes even eliminating them altogether. Living for almost nothing, you can then apply these savings to a better way of life — a boat, vacations, or children's college educations."

It is not a step to be taken lightly. First, it is not an investment for those who desire exclusivity above security. Two-family homes usually are not found in the most posh sections of town. And the privacy of a single family home is sacrificed.

The business of having a tenant is a serious business, Stern emphasizes. A tenant in a two-family house means fairly close contact. It is important to choose carefully one whose personal habits and consideration for property and neighbors meet your own and to spell out carefully the obligations of both tenant and landlord.

A larger multi-family house, Stern said, can be an actual income producer, particularly if the investor is willing and able to devote time to management and maintenance.

A possibility for the family who desires the privacy of a single-family home is a house with extra land having investment potential.

"Land as an investment in this context could be an extra plot or even excess acreage adjacent to the family residence," Stern says. "Obviously, this imposes an added selection process on the home seeker..."

Finding a house for resale with an adjacent buildable plot is largely a matter of happy coincidence, Stern says. One possibility is to find a residential street which has not been fully developed and purchase enough land on it for two, three, or more houses and then build your own on the site of your choice.

If you are somewhat more financially ambitious, you may consider a large old house set in sufficient acreage that can be developed at a later date. If you buy in an area where land values are increasing rapidly, Stern noted, by judicious and timely disposal of plots at the fringes of the property you can get back your big purchase price and have the big secluded house besides.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — We will be moving within a few months and have started to pack many of our things, which we will be taking to our new home in one of those hauling trailers. The only problem is that we have a piano which is on the second floor. Can you tell us the professional way to hoist the piano down from upstairs through a window? Our two teen-age sons will help us with this.

A. — Forget about undertaking this portion of your moving project. First, most pianos will not fit through a conventional window. Even if your piano could, you'd be risking life, limb and the piano trying to lower it to the ground. Unless there are unusual circumstances, even professionals prefer to take a piano down a flight of stairs — and sometimes a moving company has to hire experts at this line of work.

Q. — Will a large attic fan work best if installed in the ceiling of the hall below the attic or if it is mounted directly alongside one of the louvers?

A. — In the ceiling of the hall.

Q. In one of the old houses we have looked at recently (we are thinking about moving), there is a damp spot on the second-floor ceiling of a bedroom. It was there the first time we inspected the house and was still there a week later when we looked a second time. It's not a very big spot, perhaps no larger than a silver dollar, but we wonder what is causing it. Do you think it is serious?

A. — Have you asked either the house owner or the real estate broker? When you're buying a house, it's not very wise to be reticent about asking questions. In any case, the dampness is not likely to be condensation, since it is in such a small area. That leaves two possibilities — a leak in the roof or a drip from a pipe running through the ceiling. If the house suits you in all other respects, you can probably arrange with the owner to fix the leak or pay for the repair. Be sure any arrangement you make is in writing.

Q. — I have some caulking to do on the outside of my house. Some of the gaps are very large and I understand there are materials to fill them in before the final caulking is done. What are they?

A. — The filler materials include oakum, sponge rubber, caulking cotton and glass fiber.

Experiments In Aquaculture Encourage

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — In April last year, 16,000 coho salmon the size of your finger slithered down a spillway at Oregon Aqua Foods to uncertain futures in the Pacific Ocean.

They were seedlings, so to speak, in a fish farming operation, a form of farming that is gaining popularity in the United States.

Most of these seedlings were never seen again. Some died of starvation, and disease got some. So did bigger fish and fishermen.

But that November, 160 salmon from the experimental release returned to the spillway as immature but harvestable fish, driven by a mysterious force that brings salmon and a few other species back to spawn where they were raised.

A one per cent return. Your banker would have a stroke.

But Jack Donaldson, a former fisheries professor who ran the sea-ranching operation until recently, was encouraged.

"They were all males," he said. "We call them 'jack' or 'precocious' salmon that return ahead of schedule to spawn."

Next November, he estimates, another four or five per cent of the coho will be back as mature, marketable 10-pound fish.

He spoke of releases of up to 40 million salmon, with a return of two million a year, within 10 years. He said Oregon Aqua Foods and similar commercial operations could re-establish the salmon runs that have been all but wiped out by hydroelectric dams, pollution, and other man-made factors.

The practice of fish farming is more than 2,000 years old in Asia, where populations are dense and farmland critically short. Only in the past decade has it expanded in the United States.

While a constant protein shortage has been a factor in aquaculture expansion abroad, the domestic focus so far has been on filling an increasing demand for diminishing supplies of luxury items, such as shrimp and salmon.

U.S. fish and shellfish production is now 70,000 tons or more annually out of a worldwide total of seven million tons. The Japanese are the leaders in aquaculture with 500,000 tons.

Besides shrimp and salmon, 16,000 commercial catfish farms dot the South. They'll produce 50,000 tons of fish on 75,000 acres of landlocked ponds this year. In 1960, about 150 tons of catfish were raised on 400 acres.

Biologists in Maine, Massachusetts and California are experimenting with warm-water rearing ponds for lobsters. They are using water from power plants to cut in half the five to seven years it takes nature to make one lobster market-ready.

Purina and Ralston have experimental shrimp farms in Latin America and Marifarm, Inc., has the largest shrimp farm in the world - 3,100 acres in Pana City, Fla. There also are a number of small commercial shrimp farms in the country.

Frost and Sullivan, a New York business research firm, recently concluded that it's possible to raise more than one ton of shrimp per acre per year under ideal conditions. Shrimp farms now produce less than 500 pounds per acre annually.

Trout farming is enjoying a growth in parts of the Northwest, and the California Institute of Technology has experimented with kelp plantations on the open sea. Kelp, a seaweed capable of growing two feet a day, can be mixed with bacteria and converted to methane gas.

In the Cal Tech experiment off the California coast, water from beneath the ocean surface was pumped to the surface for the kelp. Dr. Wheeler North found that deep water contains 30 times the nitrates of surface water, and he and his colleagues concluded that kelp farms at sea can produce great quantities quickly and efficiently.

The aquaculture industry is developing as the American appetite for fish increases beyond what the domestic fishing industry supplies. About two-thirds of the fish eaten by Americans is imported; the rest is caught by U.S. fishermen.

And there's the energy problem, especially fuel for fishing vessels.

"The world is running out of petroleum faster than most people think," says Hal Goodwin, recently retired as deputy director of the federal Sea Grant program, which promotes aquaculture research.

"You not only have to consider the cost of the protein, but how you are going to get it."

For example, he said, krill, a shrimp-like organism, exists by the millions of tons in Antarctic waters, and is harvested to some extent by the Soviets and Japanese.

"But the cost of sending a fleet after it is high in terms of energy. Krill is a good source of protein, but it's a poor source in terms of energy costs."

"If it works in Chile, it'll work any place there are krill," said Goodwin. "There will come a time when we'll have to go to aquaculture ... Aquatic resources are good, cheap animal protein."

Goodwin is enthusiastic, but also cautious. "It's not going to feed the whole world," he said. Optimists say it might provide 20 per cent of the world's protein when fully developed, he added.

For now, it's a capital-intensive industry, and many of the experimental operations are owned by large companies. Oregon Aqua Foods, for example, is owned by Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., one of the world's largest wood products firms.

To the north, in Washington's Puget Sound, Domesea, owned by Union Carbide, raises salmon to pan size in huge net pens in the sound. It hopes to sell a million pounds of fish this year. Domesea hasn't shown a profit yet.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has found that a name change often helps introduce an unfamiliar species into the American market.

Blowfish tails, for example. The fisheries service changed the name to sea squabs. And they sold like hotcakes.

Firm Rewards Five Quitters

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Five employes of a glass firm snuffed out their smoking habit and received a combined cash reward of $1,440 from the firm.

In an incentive program devised by Eugene Kadish, 35, president of the firm and president of the Arizona chapter of a national anti-organization, the employes agreed a year ago to quit smoking and let the company deduct from their paychecks an amount equal to what they would have been spending on cigarettes. Kadish agreed to match that and pay it all back a year later.

"We deducted a total of $1,440 and we are paying it back plus $1,440 more," Kadish said.

Japan's fishing industry is the largest in the world, with a total catch of more than 4 million tons annually.

Summer electric rates are here again...

. . . and, unfortunately, there is little we can do about it. Summer rates are higher to cover the cost of extra facilities necessary to carry the heavy demands for electricity created by hot weather during the months of June, July, August and September.

We also have to pass along VEPCO's Approved Fuel Charge. And, we don't like it any better than you do.

Fortunately the higher rates are only in effect for the four summer months. Substantially lower winter rates will return in October.

To compare winter and summer costs and to estimate the size of your summer electric bills simply study the figures beside your estimated monthly usage in the table shown below.

KWH	Cost During Summer 1975 Including Average FFC Of ($0.00932) KWH	Cost During May 1976 Including AFC of ($0.00065) KWH	Cost In June 1976 Including Estimated AFC of ($0.00100) KWH

Viking On Schedule For July 4 Landing On Mars

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Viking 1, a three-legged stand-in for scientists 195 million miles away, will rendezvous with Mars Saturday and begin a year-long search for life on the mysterious fourth planet out from the sun.

The four-ton spacecraft will orbit Mars first, using twin cameras to reconnoiter a place called Chryse where it is scheduled to land on July 4 in a tribute to America's 200th birthday.

The probe, and a twin due to reach Mars in August, are the most complicated unmanned spacecraft ever built. Each is crammed with instruments to look at, feel, smell and even taste the Martian surroundings.

By the time the main engine fires to place Viking in orbit, it will have traveled a curved 421 million-mile path. It was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., last August after nine days of delays caused by technical troubles.

One of three little ovens designed to heat soil samples for chemical analysis has since failed aboard Viking 1, but otherwise the craft has been working well during its interplanetary journey.

It already has started its picture taking, snapping Mars from 7 million miles out a month ago to calibrate its cameras. The initial picture showed a brightly illuminated haze over the planet's south pole. Viking will be taking more detailed shots as it approaches Mars during the next few days.

There are 13 experiments aboard Viking 1, but the key is a biological laboratory designed to conduct the first search for life on Mars. In one container no larger than a bread box is enough gear to do the job of 40 technicians using four rooms of equipment in an Earth lab.

The robot, representing a $500 million investment, has a mechanical arm that will reach out and scoop up soil samples for the biology and chemistry instruments to examine.

Viking 1's landing site is particularly intriguing to biologists. It is a broad, low basin lying at the mouth of a long valley that appears to have been sculptured by running water some time in its past. Several other channels that resemble dry river beds also feed into the area.

Mars now appears to be in an ice age, possibly with water locked in a permafrost layer beneath the surface. But if the planet harbors life — or did during a wetter, warmer, more hospitable climate — scientists believe Chyrse is a good place to start looking for signs of life.

The landing could be delayed if the surface pictures taken from orbit reveal some previously undetected obstacle and force scientists to opt for an alternate landing site. But if Chryse looks safe, controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., will send a "go" signal to Viking to commit it to a landing.

Viking then will split apart. One section will remain in orbit to continue to survey the planet far below and double as a radio relay station for the lander's communications with Earth. The other unit will begin a perilous descent to the surface.

First there will be a 20-minute firing of three rocket engines to break the delicate balance between speed and gravity that held the craft in orbit. Once the descent has started, it will take the Viking lander three hours to reach the upper wisps of Mars' thin atmopshere.

When it does, a heat shield will begin to slow it. Then a supersonic parachute will pop out and further decelerate the the craft. Finally, since the mostly carbon dioxide atmosphere is 100 times thinner than Earth's, the three rocket engines will have to fire again to ease the robot to the surface.

Because it takes 18 minutes for radio signals traveling at the speed of light to bridge the gap between Mars and Earth, Viking's computers are programmed to fly itself down without aid from engineers back on Earth.

An automated landing on another planet is difficult enough in itself, but increasing the anxiety of project officials is the knowledge that two Russian spacecraft failed just before and just after a Mars touchdown. This raises the possibility of an unexpected hazard.

"Is there something special about the Martian environment which makes landing on that planet particularly difficult?" asked Cornell University astronomer Carl Sagan, a member of the Viking landing site selection team.

But if all goes well, it will be 9:58 p.m. EDT on the Fourth of July when word of landing reaches JPL. It will be 4 in the afternoon on Mars with plenty of sunlight for the first photographs taken from the Martian surface.

Twenty-five seconds after touchdown, one of the lander's two facsimile cameras will take a closeup picture of one of the robot's footpads and the soil around it. The picture, expected to show as much detail as a person sitting on Viking would see, will be sent back to Earth line by line.

A panoramic picture then will be taken before radio contact is lost for the day. Although Viking's cameras can take color photographs, the first shots will be in black and white because they can be taken quicker.

The odds of finding life on Mars are slim at best, and if there is life there, most scientists expect it to be microscopic. But it is possible that there are larger creatures on Mars and the Viking cameras will be able to show anything ranging in size from an ant to an elephant.

"We do not know what Viking will find," Sagan said. "But our previous space experience is that every time we look more closely at Mars we find astonishments and delights."

Until July 15, 1965, Mars was a world where imagination reigned. Its reddish color suggested blood and fire to ancient civilizations, hence its name Ares in Greek for the god of war and the equivalent Mars to the Romans.

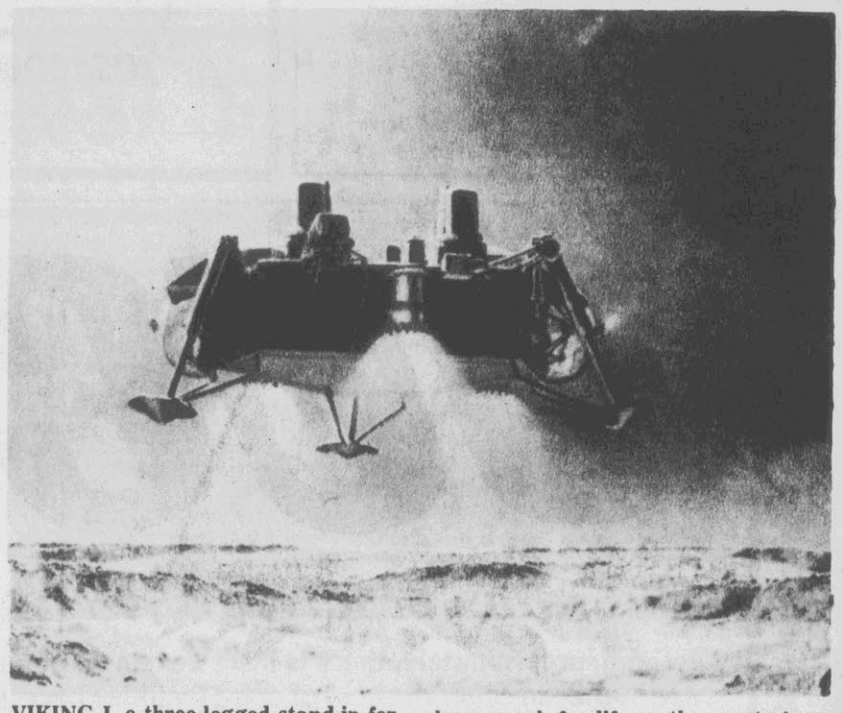
The invention of the telescope in 1608 opened the era of scientific observations of the planet. Its polar caps (now known to be mostly frozen carbon dioxide) were spotted quickly and then over the next three centuries more features — real and imagined — were described.

The first purported evidence of life on Mars came in 1877 when an Italian astronomer reported sighting a network of lines crisscrossing the planet. He called them canali which in Italian means channels or groves. The word was mistranslated in English to canals.

American mathematician-turned astronomer Percival Lowell was convinced Mars was inhabited by intelligent beings who built the canals in a planet-wide irrigation system to keep their planet fertile.

That idea caught the imagination of the people of Earth. And, with the help of authors Edgar Rice Burroughs and H. G. Wells, Mars continued to fascinate the public well into the 20th Century.

Fanciful observations were replaced by 21 photographs taken on July 15, 1965, by the small Mariner 4 spacecraft from a distance of 6,300 miles as it flew by Mars. Its surprising pictures showed a heavily cratered Martian surface that resembled the moon. There was no sign of the famous canals, nor any other evidence of life.



VIKING I, a three-legged stand-in for scientists 198 million miles away, will redezvous with Mars and begin a year-long search for life on the mysterious planet. (UPI Photo)

Involvement Said Needed

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Unless Americans get more involved as citizens, the country will see a continuing erosion of individual liberties, an increase in legislative and regulatory totalitarianism and further politicizing of science for partisan ends, according to Cornell Maier, president and chief executive of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corporation.

Citing a Roper poll reporting that 71 per cent of the people believe the country is on the wrong track, Maier told the American Business Press annual meeting that "in one sense, this could be an encouraging report. It might just mean that the American people are about ready to say 'enough of this foolishness' and themselves get on with the job of getting this country rolling again."

The current lack of citizen involvement, said Maier, has spawned a group he called the "dismantlers." This group, he said, would tear down the American system and establish a new one based on their ideas of what's best fo the nation.

WOOD CHIPS

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — A University Missouri professor says wood chips from the state's many sawmills is a valuable energy source now being overlooked.

Dr. Kent Adair of the School of Forestry said the burning of wood becomes feasible as the price of coal increases.

Greensboro Group In Today's 'Sunday In The Park'

HOST . . . Clarinet virtuosos Benny Goodman will host and narrate "Echoes Bright and Clear: A Discovery of American Music," a Bicentennial music special featuring over 400 bandsmen and singers from Indiana University. The event will be televised over PBS (Channel 25 Greenville) at 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 16 and will be rebroadcast on Monday, June 21 at 7 p.m. The program is made possible by a grant from the J. C. Penney Company.

The Greensboro Parks and Recreation Department's "Bicentennial Revue" an hour and twenty minutes of singing and dancing by young people saluting America's past, will be featured in today's "Sunday in the Park."

Based on historical speeches and time periods from the Revoluntionary period up thte 1970's, the show uses folk music, spiritual, rag time and current pop tunes to set the show's mood.

The group, eight men and 12 women, have dance numbers throughout the show. Historical periods covered include Independence, Immigrantion, the Civil War and the Roaring Twenties with such numbers as "Dixie," "Swing Low Sweet Chariott," "Oaklahoma," and "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

Director-Choreographer is Carole Lindsey, and the Music Director is Debbie Overton. The "Bicentennial Revue" was written by Michale Hale Gray.

The Greensboro Parks and Recreation performers will begin their "Sunday in the Park" performance today at 7 p.m. at the outdoor site between 3rd and 4th Streets east of Reade Street.

There is no admission charge and the public is encouraged to attend and to bring pillows and blankets for more comfortable sitting on the grassy slope.

In being named a major orchestra, the North Carolina Symphony joins the ranks of such prestigious orchestras as the New York and Los Angeles Philharmonic, Chicago Symphony and Philadelphia Orchestra.

In reporting the development from the Boston Convention site, North Carolina Symphony General Manager Ralph Guthrie stated "the lions share of the credit of the orchestra's accomplishment goes to John Gosling for his commitment to artistic excellence." For the last four season, Maestro Gosling has served as the Symphony's Artistic Director and Conductor, guiding its development into a fully professional orchestra of 70 musicians with an annual budget of $1.5 million.

More Than 20 Artists In The 'Greenville Art Show'

The current show at the Greenville Art Center is a mixed bag of good and not so good things from a large cast of youthful Greenville based artists. More than 20 artists are showing in this exhibit entitled "Greenville Art Show."

On a smaller scale then most of his work in the past several years Jim Whalen's miniature constructions prove that whether he works big or little, he has an inimitable touch in transforming a few selected items into a valid art form. His constructions have something more than the mere pleasing whimsy that often marks constructed works. Whalen also shows a few pots which are fine examples of simplicity.

Eddie Smith is another local artist who is exhibiting in more than one media—ceramics, drawings, textiles. Best known for his pots, ceramic figures and huge dyed wall hangings, Smith also displays several sketchpads and individual pages. Several of the pencil sketches, some with touches of color, are lyrical studies of line and space.

Drawings are a strong point in this late-season show. It's always rewarding to see Betsy Ross' work, and the few examples she exhibits is another affirmation of her talent as one of the finest draftsman (?draftsperson, draftswoman?) on the local scene today. Robin Rust is another who shows a number of drawings—terse, sparse, nervously jotted details that contrast sharply with Ross' muted, poetic compositions.

Easily overlooked is the cabinet in the upstairs gallery that is filled with John Harvey's glass work. These shimmering, light reflecting pieces have the iridescent quality of a bubble just before it bursts.

Artists taking part in this early summer show, which has been coordinated by Jim Whalen, are: Judi Bradford, Annette and Fred Brooks, Diane Davis, Joseph Dudasik, Christine Fisher, Brent Funderburk, Charles Goforth, John Harvey, Gladice Hughes, Jim Howe, Benjamin Jenkins, James Jordan, Livy Kaze.

Also Larry Lean, Perri Morgan, John Mizell, Betsy Ross, Robin Rust, Eddie Smith, Peter Sprague, and Win Utermohlen.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

Your ticket for some cool reading these hot summer days includes the following titles of mystery and suspense.

In Lesley Eagan's SCENES OF CRIME, Lt. O'Connor of the Glendale, California police headquarters begins his day by discovering the horribly mutilated bodies of three children. Then there is the familiar rapist who whispers, "Remember Maggie Walters" to his victims. And then there are two young women, one holding a baby, on a shopping spree, using a gun to pay for their purchases. All in all, it's quite a day!

The weapons are stored, ready for the final American Revolution. Strike Date: July 4, 1976. Name: Urban Guerrilla Warfare. Method: Terror in the streets. Leader: Lawyer Agatha Teel, beautiful, smart, black. Funding: Heroin, from plant to vein. THE WHISPER OF THE AXE by Richard Condon is an electrifying reading experience about what could happen if all the world's good causes were taken to their ultimate terrorists consequences. The truth will hit all readers - none of us want to die in any cause, not even our own.

THE TURNCOAT by Jack Lynn is the story of Gerald Howard Hawthorne, a Korean War veteran who defected to Red China and returned to America years later with information so volatile it could change the course of history. This disastrous evidence has made him a human time bomb which, in a matter of days could bring an entire country to its knees. And the heart-stopping race to get this man befoe he talks make THE TURNCOAT an exceptional experience that readers will talk about long after they have finished the book.

In New York City, on Saturday after Thanksgiving, the row of handsome brownstones on 9th Street drowsed in the sun, until 12:01 precisely when Number 9 blew up. In THE HOUSE ON 9TH STREET by John Stephen Strange, it is to solve the horrifying entangled story behind the blast that our old friend Barney Gantt returns after all these years, with his wife Muriel, in a story perhaps too typical of our times. As Muriel saying to Barney, "We have a box seat at a new play, and what it's all about we don't know. But you'll find out. You always do."

A very readable police novel, SARATOGA LONGSHOT by Stephen Dobyns, introduces Charles Bradshaw, a police sergeant in Saratoga Springs. He comes to New York to investigate (on his own) the disappearance of the son of an old flame. The son, Sam Cheney, is a nasty piece of work, a petty drug dealer; why should anyone care if he disappears? But pushed by his mother, Charlei lets himself get involved in a tangle of relationships where nothing is clear and everyone is against him, as it becomes apparent that Sam Cheney has involved himself in a drugs operation where the stakes are as high as winning or dying.

Children's Library Films

An animal film is to be featured this week in the series of children's film at the Greenville public libraries. The Crafty Animal Caper is a nonverbal live action film about a pet raven and a pet raccoon who go out on the town while their young mistress is in school.

Show times are: Carver Library, Tuesday, 4 p.m. Sheppard Memorial Library, Thursday, 7 p.m.; and East Branch Library, Friday, 4 p.m.

A Magazine On The American Past

From time to time I'm asked, "is there a magazine that covers old-fashioned America?" or "what can I get from the newsstand to make me forget today's problems?"

For reading that is basically designed to entertain and to meet the need for printed nostalgia, the monthly magazine Good Old Days is ideal.

Now ten years old, Good Old Days is dedicated to a lightweight, often frankly sentimental look at long ago and not so long ago. Poems, cartoons, old-time ads, old-time comics, reminiscences on yesterday's Hollywood, are all standard features in each monthly issue.

In the July 1976 issue, Harry Wilkinson's "Looking Hollywood Way" summarizes Canada's contribution to the roster of famous names in the American film industry. For many readers, there'll be some surprises—Glenn Ford, Mitzi Gaynor, Ruby Keeler, Fay Wray, Alexis Smith, Mary Pickford, David Manners, etc. He also brings in Canadian born non-film entertainers such as Guy Lombardo, Percy Faith, Barbara Ann Scott, Lorne Greene, Art Linkletter, etc. Awkwardly written, the article nonetheless is informative.

Other articles in the current issue include "The Packard" (car); "Store-boughten Dress;" "Dream Sewing Machine Shop; "Early Recollections—Work, Work;" "Those Wild Texas Kids;" and "The Great Mud Turtle Supper." A good array of old photographs and some illustrations add to the reading enjoyment.

Good Old Days is available on newsstands or by subscription from P.O. Box 428, Seabrook, N.H 03874, at $4.50 per year.

Current 'New East' Is Bicentennial Issue

The new issue of The New East is a special Bicentennial Edition. Among feature stories in the current issue are Donald Lennon's "Cape Fear's General Robert Howe;" "The True Story of The Slave Trade," by Robert L. Bunger, Jr.; "Edenton's Tempest Over Tea," by Mary Rose Griffin; and "The Story of Flora MacDonald," by Betsy White.

In addition, Nancy Patterson tells about "Cooking, Colonial Style," Kay Moss writes about how to "Celebrate the Bicentennial the Authentic Family Way;" and Claire Pittman outlines a suggested eastern North Carolina water tour in "A Bicentennial Cruise."

Regular columns include "The Mysterious East;" "Carolina Folkways;" the "Editor's Bookshelf;" "Tar Heel Tales;" and "Market Place East."

Copies are available on newsstands or by subscription, $6.00 annually from: The New East, Inc., Wilcar Executive Center, 223 W. 10th Street, Greenville N.C., 27834.

$35,000 Foundation Grant For Historic Preservation Fund

A $35,000 grant to establish a statewide revolving fund for historic preservation has been awarded to the Historic Preservation Fund of North Carolina, Inc.

The Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation of Winston-Salem awarded the grant to "be used for the direct purchase of historic properties to be held for resale with preservation covenants, the acquisition of options that can be used to hold property off the market until a sympathetic purchaser can be located, and for loans to local preservation groups," according to Dr. Banks C. Talley Jr., president of the Historic Preservation Society of North Carolina.

The Historic Preservation Fund is a subsidiary organization of the Historic Preservation Society of North Carolina. It was established in November of 1975 as a result of a Preservation Society study that "recommended the establishment of such a revolving fund. According to Dr. Larry E. Tise, director of the division of Archives and History, North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources, at least 100 of the 725 North Carolina properties now listed on the National Register of Historic Places are in imminent danger of destruction.

The funds provided by the Babcock Foundation will be used as start-up money by the Historic Preservation Fund. The grant will last for one year, at which time the Fund hopes to have generated enough interest and income to continue on a permanent basis.

Taxicabs As Art

EDITORS NOTE — Taxicabs of the future go on display this week at the Museum of Modern Art in New York But will auto manufacturers ever build them?

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Museum of Modern Art normally shows paintings by the likes of Picasso, Braque and Warhol. But this month it's showing taxicabs as well — by the likes of Volvo and Volkswagen.

Not just ordinary taxis, either.

These minisize but spacious cabs are prototypes built to specifications drawn up by the museum's department of design. They take up less space, use less fuel, produce less pollution and are safer and more comfortable than today's cabs, the museum says.

"The point was not to have a good idea, but to put it into practice," says curator Emilio Ambasz. "The practice in this case was to have taxis that would actually be put into use."

Volvo and Volkswagen, with U.S. plants planned or under construction, submitted working models, but won't commit themselves to production unless they're satisfied there's a market. Alfa Romeo built a model, too, without being invited to do so. And two U.S. companies constructed steam taxis under government contract.

Detroit auto manufacturers declined to participate. So Ambasz went to the federal Department of Transportation, which was mandated by Congress in 1973 to develop taxis as rapid transit vehicles.

The government sought bids along the lines of the museum's specifications and gave $1 million each to American Machine and Foundry and Steam Power Systems Inc. Their steam-driven models will be tested when the museum show ends.

"They are a real gem," says William Raithel, of the Transportaton Department. "What we're seeing here is something that can be done, and this is what it looks like."

Raithel said American car manufacturers didn't bid probably because the cab doesn't have the promise of mass production and because 1974 (when the bids were sought) was a bad year for Detroit.

KC Hopes End Cow Town Image

By PATRICK A. MALONE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Sharing the river bottoms west of Kansas City's skyscrapers are warehouses of mud-red brick and rusty corrugated sidings, noisy, rank-smelling stockyards and lonely boxcars the railroads seem to have forgotten.

Only one thing disturbs the uniform dreariness of the neighborhood — the $21 million Kemper Arena, site of the 1976 Republican National Convention.

Shaped like an Easter hatbox, pristine in the unblemished white of its steel sides but wrapped around the top with an ungainly network of tubular girders, the arena is a monument to Kansas City's cowtown past and—officials hope—its convention center future.

No building is more important to the Texas-style plans of city boosters.

If the Republicans come and go without any hitches, and the hordes of politicians, reporters and gawkers are favorably impressed, the city stands to reap a bonanza of publicity that money could never buy in conventions, industries and jobs.

Kansas City knew there was money to be made and prestige to be won when it sent Ray Bennison, director of its convention and visitors bureau, to bid for the GOP convention.

The awesome economic impact of Bennison's successful mission is just beginning to sink in.

"The city will profit enormously in money from the convention," said Josephine Good, convention director on the Republican national staff in Washington. "There's bound to be a profit for practically anybody."

Some aspects of what she is talking about:

— The 20,000 delegates, news media representatives and guests at the Aug. 16-20 convention are expected to spend between $5 million and $8 million on food, drinks, hotels and entertainment.

—The GOP itself plans to spend $2 million, not only for operating expenses during convention week but the voluminous paperwork and physical preparations beforehand. The party's budget does not reflect the $500,000 the city is spending to prepare the convention site.

— Each of the three major television networks plans to send 500 to 600 persons to Kansas City and spend an estimated $1 million to $1.5 million on convention coverage, including weeks of advance preparations. Part of the networks' costs will be installation of a new, brighter lighting system in the arena to replace one that is barely a year old.

— Convention security is budgeted at $2.6 million. The biggest chunk will go for overtime pay for the police (more than $600 for each Kansas City officer), whose spending will further enrich the local economy.

— Convention publicity already has generated $50 million in new convention business for the next five years, Bennison said. That represents 200,000 delegates coming to Kansas City.

"It's going to put us on the map for national and international conventions," said Bennison, a glad-handing but serious man who never seems to stop moving.

His goal is to put Kansas City among the 10 leading U.S. convention cities by 1981 (it now ranks 17th) and the top five by 1986.

The GOP convention's long-term influence on Kansas City commerce is hard to guess, but officials are no less optimistic.

"What it boils down to is, if we come off good — which we will — it will be a positive factor in our future growth," said Bruce Hicks of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Kansas City.

Bennison says the convention publicity alone is worth $10 million to the city. Someone joked that nothing short of hosting World War III could have brought Kansas City as much attention from the news media.

But the publicity is a double-edged sword.

"If the conditions in Kansas City are good, it should help the city for future conventions unbelievably, but it can also hurt if it's not good," Miss Good said.

The city is busy solving a myriad of logistical problems before the first convention delegate arrives.

Restaurateurs will expand their hours and hire extra employes to handle the crowds. They speak enthusiastically of selling as many as 250,000 Kansas City strip steaks that week. At 20 strips to a steer, that would require a herd of 12,500 cattle, about as many as pass through the stockyards adjacent to the arena in an average week.

Stores in such elegant shopping areas as Crown Center and Country Club Plaza also will be open longer hours, with liberalized check-cashing policies to entice Republican souvenir buyers.

Liquor distributors are laying on extra drivers as required for emergency deliveries.

The telephone company is well under way with plans to install 10,000 extra telephones, thousands of private lines, teletypes, switchboards, and 44 video channels and 180 audio channels for broadcasters. It will all be enough to equip a town the size of Hannibal, Mo. (population 19,000), whose most famous native, Mark Twain, once said, "I do not know much about politics and am not sitting up nights to learn."

Still, the Republican staff says it is 4,700 short of the 16,000 hotel rooms required for the convention. Some large state delegations have been forced to take rooms in several hotels, which will make caucuses more difficult.

"Every hotel of any kind — good, bad or indifferent — will be used," Miss Good said.

Another question mark is how to transport everybody between hotels and arena. No hotel is within walking distance of the arena, and transportation arrangements still are unsettled.

The prevailing mood, though, is optimism — a feeling that with typical Midwestern friendliness and a little luck, everything will run smoothly for what looks like a close, exciting convention battle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

The convention notwithstanding, Charles Jennings, president of the Kansas City Stock Yards Co., wants the city to promote itself as the agribusiness capital of the world.

"We're always trying to shed our cow town image," he said. "There's some good about the cow town image. Let's be what we are."

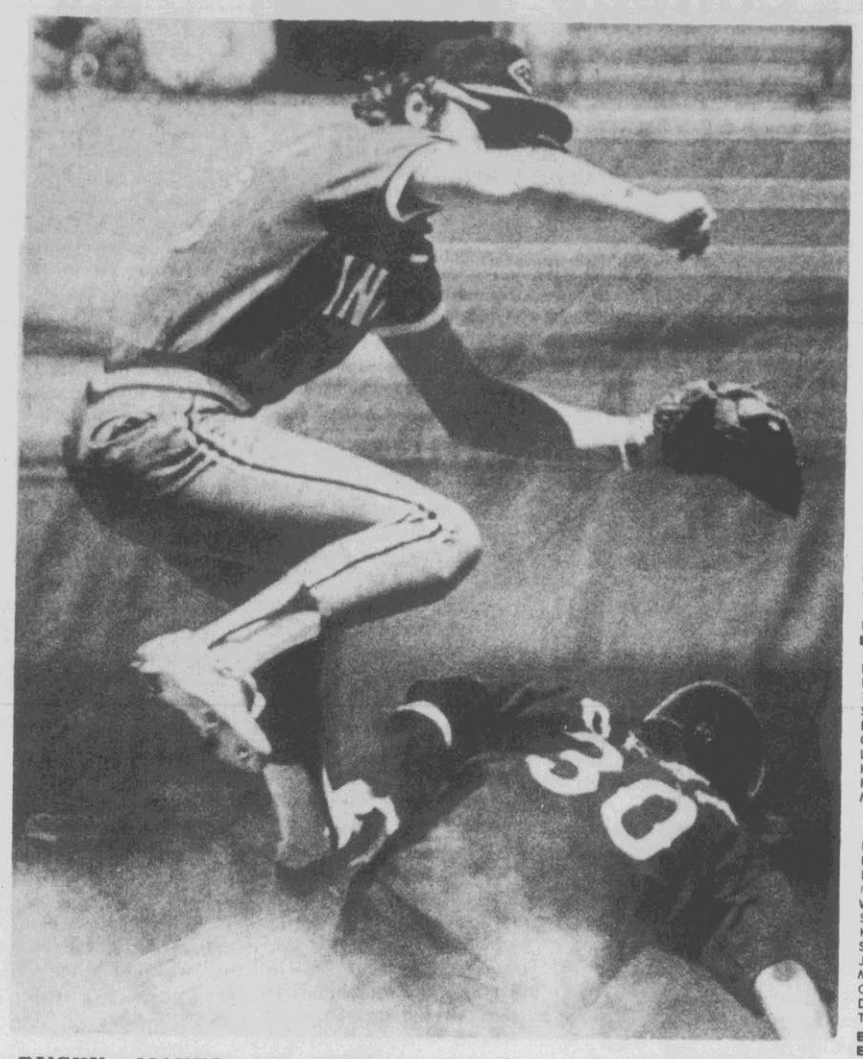
Pirates Stomp Elon Twice, 17-2, 7-1



BUCKY MAKES NO DENT—Cleveland Indian Duane Kuiper completes the double play ahead of Bucky Dent of the Chicago White Sox Saturday at the Cleveland Stadium. The Tribe won its second game from the Sox in as many days, 3-0. (AP Wirephoto)

BURLINGTON—Thursday night East Carolina couldn't get a ball through the Elon defense as the Pirates and Christians met at Harrington Field. By the time Elon recorded a 6-1 victory, the Bucs had picked up just one hit against their pitching.

But last night, the Bucs payed a return visit to Elon, this time facing the Christians in a doubleheader, and it must have seemed like the Roman Circus was opened up again.

The Bucs threw the Christians to the lions with glee, battering their pitching for 34 hits in 14 innings of play. The Bucs ran off a 17-2 victory in the opener, then came back to record a 7-1 win in the nightcap.

The two wins combined to lift the Pirates to a 5-3 record and give them a three-game winning streak to carry into a three-day layoff. Elon, atop the league going into the game, suddenly found itself down and out with a 3-4 mark.

Among the 34 hits were six doubles and a triple, all but one two-bagger coming in the opening game. Bobby Supel had two doubles, while Jeff Joyner, Macon Moye and Pete Paradossi added one each. Moye came back with another in the second game. Sonny Wooten had the triple.

Elon set its sights on a second straight victory over the Pirates by pushing over a run in the first inning of the opener. That came when Phil Baskerville walked, stole second and scored on Charlie Gamble's hit.

But the Bucs tied it up with one in the second. Sonny Wooten reached on an error and hits by Glenn Card and Rick Koryda loaded the bases. Howard McCullough drew a walk to force in Wooten for a 1-1 tie.

Then, in the third, the Pirates broke it open with seven runs. Robert Brinkley led off with a single and scored when Wooten tripled. Card brought Wooten in with a sacrifice fly. Koryda got things going again with a walk and Bobby Supel doubled him home. Jeff Joyner walked and McCullough singled in Supel. Pete Paradossi doubled in Joyner, and a hit by Brinkley brought in the final two runs for an 8-1 lead.

The fifth saw the Pirates pick up five more. Supel doubled and came in on McCullough's hit. Brinkley singled and both he and McCullough scored on Macon Moye's double. Wooten singled in Moye, and Card plated Wooten with a hit. Koryda reached on an error, scoring Card.

Elon added one more run in the fourth, while East Carolina got one in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

The Pirates broke the second game open with five big runs in the second inning. Supel, Koryda and Charlie Stevens all hit first pitch singles, loading the bases. Joyner waited until the seco pitch to get another hit, drivi in Supel. McCullough banged two runs with a hit, and Moye single followed up with two mo runs.

The lone Elon run came in t bottom of the second. Lar Colson singled, moved up on error, took third on a fielder choice and scored on anoth error.

The Bucs added their final tw runs in the seventh. Moy doubled, scoring on Supel' single. Koryda and Stevens g hits to load them up, and a infield hit by Joyner brought i Supel with the final run of th night.

East Carolina is idle unti when the Bucs travel to Camp bell for a doubleheader.

Royals Outlast Birds

By The Associated Press

John Mayberry blasted his fourth home run in four games and scored twice Saturday, powering the Kansas City Royals to a 7-6 victory over the staggering Baltimore Orioles in a nationally televised game.

It was the eighth straight loss for the Orioles, who pulled within a run in the ninth on a two-out, three-run homer over the centerfield fence by Reggie Jackson.

Mayberry, the big first baseman who started slowly after signing a five-year contract calling for $200,000 a year, jolted Doyle Alexander with a solo homer in the third that put the Royals in front 4-1.

In the second inning, Ken Singleton had doubled off Steve Busby, 3-1, to drive home Doug DeCinces with Baltimore's first run in 23 innings.

The Royals jumped ahead 2-1 in the second on Tom Poquette's RBI single and Fred Patek's bases-loaded grounder. Kansas City added a run in the third on the first of two sacrifice flies by George Brett. In the eighth, the Royals added two runs when Hal McRae scored on a squeeze bunt and Buck Martinez tripled home Fred Patek.

In other afternoon American League games, the Cleveland Indians blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0, the Detroit Tigers pounded the California Angels 10-4, and the Boston Red Sox whipped the Minnesota Twins 5-2. In National League games, the Chicago Cubs outscored the Houston Astros 5-2 and the New York Mets turned back the San Francisco Giants 3-1.

Frank Duffy drove in two runs with a bunt and a sacrifice fly and Rick Waits and Jim Bibby combined on an 11-hitter as Cleveland beat Chicago. Alex Johnson's three-run homer keyed a six-run fourth inning, leading Detroit over California.

Dwight Evans slammed homer and a run-scoring tripl and Luis Tiant won his eight game of the season in Boston' victory over Minnesota.

Jerry Morales hit a two-ru homer and Jose Cardenal co lected four hits, leading Ch cago over Houston. New York limited to two hits, took advar tage of John D'Acquisto's wilc ness in beating San Francisco.

Schools Meeting Wednesday To Discuss 'Common Goals'

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

A meeting which could lead to the formation of a new major collegiate athletic conference is scheduled for Richmond, Va., on Wednesday.

East Carolina University chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins has been one of the prime movers for the meeting, which is expected to attract schools from the Mason-Dixon line to southern Florida.

According to Col. Dick Blake, assistant to Dr. Jenkins, at least seven schools are expected to be in attendance, and several others have asked to be kept informed on what occurs.

Among those expected to attend are one former Southern Conference member, Richmond, and three others who are now in the league. They include East Carolina, which will leave at the end of the coming academic year, and William & Mary and Virginia Military Institute, both of which have indicated they are studying withdrawal from the conference.

Florida State, South Carolina and Southern Mississippi are expected to attend also, while invitations also went to West Virginia and Virginia Tech. The latter two are not expected to be present, however, but have stated that they will be interested in seeing what happens. The University of Miami also has asked to be kept informed of progress from the meeting.

The meeting will get underway Wednesday at the Hyatt House in Richmond with a luncheon. At the following meeting, the schools in attendance are expected to let the others know of their athletic objectives, their facilities and their upcoming plans on both of these. "We want to see if there is a common bond between us," Blake said. "We expect the meeting to be a loose one to explore the feelings of those there."

Blake added that he would hope that the group would name a committee to study the feasibility of forming a new conference, what criteria it would have, and what facilities would be necessary for member schools. "Possibly another meeting could be held in the fall to go over this committee's findings, with other schools invited to attend also," Blake said.

The meeting was brought about by the proposed Division I, I-A setup in football by the NCAA, and the withdrawal from the Southern of Richmond and East Carolina, coupled with the seeming intention of the Atlantic Coast Conference to not expand in the near future.

Planning to attend from East Carolina are Dr. Jenkins, Blake, Athletic Director Bill Cain, and faculty athletic chairman Cliff Moore.

East Carolina Football Is Awarded Division I Status

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) has listed East Carolina University among the Division I schools for the proposed realignment of the old Division I, it was learned Saturday.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of the university, said the Pirate football program was one of two Southern Conference programs that would be listed among the Division I schools. Under the original plan, all of the Southern Conference schools were to be listed under the Division I-A listing or the smaller group.

"This is a big step forward in our football program;" Dr. Jenkins said. "It puts us in the upper bracket of programs."

Jenkins said that all but one of the school invited to attend a meeting in Richmond next Wednesday to talk about a new conference were listed in the Division I group; which includes 97 football schools from across the country.

Along with East Carolina, Willaim & Mary was also listed in the elite group. Richmond, which withdrew from the Southern this spring, also was given Division I status. East Carolina has announced that it will leave the Southern next summer, and William & Mary has also stated that it is considering such a move.

Under the original NCAA plan, voted down at last year's convention, entire conferences were listed either I or I-A, but modifications allowed individual schools to be judged on their program rather that the conferences as a whole.

East Carolina, William & Mary, and another Southern member, VMI, are to be among those represented at the meeting Wednesday, along with Richmond, Southern Mississippi, Florida State, and South Carolina to talk about the possibility of forming a new strong conference in the Southeast.

Kathy McMillan Soars To New American Record In Long Jump

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Young Kathy McMillan set an American record and posted the best long jump series of any United States woman in history Saturday at the 88th National AAU Track and Field Championships.

The 17-year-old high school senior from North Carolina leaped 22 feet, 3 inches on the third and final day of this track carnival. Miss McMillan, who attends Hoke County High School in Raeford, N.C., also had a jump of 22-0½.

She thus bettered her own pending women's long jump mark of 22-1¾ as well as the listed mark of 21-4¾ set by Martha Watson in 1974.

Miss McMillan started the day with a 21-10½ jump, followed it with 21-9¼, and her winning jump was just 8¼ inches off the world mark held by East Germany's Sigrun Siegel-Thon three weeks ago.

Second was Sherron Walker of Seattle at 21-4¼ and third was three-time defending champion Miss Watson at 20-11¾.

Willye White, who has competed on four Olympic teams, finished fourth.

The second woman to win a title Saturday was surprising Arthurene Gainer of Prairie View A&M. She won the 400-meter hurdles in an American record 57.24 seconds.

The mark was the fifth fastest ever recorded in this event which is not contested in the Olympics. The old American mark of 57.3 was set by Debbie Esser of Ohio State last year. Miss Esser was second here.

Then, almost simultaneously, American record holder Kathy Schmidt set the third American mark within a 30-minute span when she threw the javelin 218-3.

Coca-Cola Crushes Kiwanis By 18-4

Two big rallies and two three-run homers powered Coca-Cola to a 18-4 victory over winless Kiwanis in the North State Little League yesterday.

Coke rallied for five runs in the second and got ten more in the fourth. Curtis Evans and Skip Cannon pitched the win for Coke striking out six, walking four and giving up six hits between them.

Coke got the lead in the first on a three-run homer by Chuck Allen after Jeff Camp and Terry Smith had singled.

Kiwanis put four men on in the second but failed to score. In the bottom of the inning, Coke erupted for five runs.

A single and two walks loaded the bases. Terry Smith hit into a fielder's choice scoring a run and Allen forced a run in on a fielder's choice. Jonathan McGee singled to reload the bases and a double by Raynor Casey scored Smith and Allen. McGee scored on a single by Billy Brannigan.

Kiwanis got two in the third when John Jordan stole home and Brian Hill scored on an outfield error. The Kiwanians added another pair in the fourth and Jordan drew a bases-loaded walk and Spencer Mayo singled in a run.

Coke opened the bottom of the fourth with four straight hits bringing in two runs. A fifth hit, by Todd Lovette, scored Brannigan who had hit in a run. Camp reached on a fielder's choice scoring Skip Cannon and an error scored Lovette and Camp as Allen reached base. A single by McGee moved Allen to third and Allen scored on Casey's double. Both McGee and Casey scored when Brannigan hit his third home run in as many games.

McGee and Brannigan had three hits apiece, Cannon, Casey and Camp two each for the winners. John Parnell had two for Kiwanis.

Grier Jones' Hot Putter Brings Stroke Lead In Kemper Open

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Grier Jones, trying to fight his way out of a long, dismal slump, one-putted 12 times on his way to a 65 that staked him to a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

A six-foot putt for birdie—his third in a row—that hung for several anxious, tantalizing seconds on lip of the cup on the 11th hole before finally dropping. It made the difference in his three-round total of 205 and the 206 composed by chipper Joe Inman.

Jones—a former national collegiate champion, the 1969 rookie of the year and winner of two titles in 1972 but a slump-ridden struggler since 1974—stood still in his tracks for a few seconds when his birdie putt on the 11th came to rest, hanging on the rim of the hole. He took two strides forward to tap it in, and the ball fell.

"That's what the hole is there for," Jones grinned later.

His seven-under-par effort, the best of the hot, humid, hazy day, gave him an 11-under-par total after 54 holes over the 7,160-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course.

The outgoing, talkative Inman, seeking his first victory in three full years of tour activity, shot a 66 that left him just one back in a closely bunched pack that saw seven different players either hold the lead or share it before Jones took command with his brilliant putting.

Mark Hayes, the quiet young man who won the Byron Nelson classic in Dallas earlier in the spring, had a 69 that left him two shots back at 207.

"That's about what I was shooting for, a 69," said Hayes. "I'd like to have had better, but I'm satisfied with my position."

Tom Weiskopf, a two-time winner of this tournament, fashioned a solid, five-under-par 67 that put him in strong contention at 208.

The half-dozen at 209—which put 10 men within four strokes of each other going to the last 18 holes of play—included U.S. Open champion Lou Graham, J.C. Snead, Bob Murphy, Charles Coody, Tom Purtzer and Lon Hinkle. Graham and Murphy shot 68s, Snead had a 69, Hinkle 70, Coody 71 and Purtzer a 73.

Masters champion and defending title-holder Ray Floyd could do no better than match par 72 and was seven shots back at 212. Arnold Palmer had a 74 and a 218 total.

Jones, winner of only $15,000 last season, has acquired almost $25,000 in his last four starts with two eighth-place finishes, a seventh and 18th.

"After playing so bad so long, I'm just happy to be playing good again," he said.

Exchange Ices Tie For Title

The Exchange clinched a tie for the Tar Heel Little League regular season title yesterday with a 7-4 victory over First Federal.

The win boosted the Exchange to a 10-2 record. A single win by the team, or a single loss to both First Federal and Big Value Drugs would give the title to Exchange outright.

Billy Kittrell hurled the victory, scattering three hits.

The Exchange picked up two runs in the second inning. Jimmie Jones walked and Roderick Harrell cracked out a home run, making it 2-0.

First Federal came right back in the top of the third to push over all four of its runs. Mont Brown was hit by a pitch and Mont Carter doubled. Mike Holloman followed with a double, driving in two runs. Horace Barrett finished up the scoring and the hitting for First Federal with a two-run homer giving the team a 4-2 lead.

But it didn't last long.

The Exchange came right back to score five in the bottom of the third to wrap it up. Gordon Douglas singled and Allison Taylor reached on a fielder's choice. Jones provided the punch for the lead, hitting a three-run homer.

Timmy Norris kept the rally going by reaching on an error and Harrell finished it up with another two-run homer.

Harrell led the Exchange hitting with three, while Douglas picked up a pair. No one had more than one for First Federal.

Simpson Said Headed West

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills, said he has agreed to trade superstar running back O.J. Simpson to a National Football League team on the West Coast.

After a four-hour meeting with Simpson in a Los Angeles restaurant, Wilson told Melvin Durslag, syndicated columnist of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, that he agreed to find a team on the West Coast for Simpson, who has two years left on his contract with the Bills.

Wilson said, however, he wanted to be able to bargain with more than one team. He told Durslag that he has not yet talked to any of the four NFL teams located on the West Coast but planned to talk with officials of the Oakland Raiders, Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers and, possibly, the San Diego Chargers at an NFL owners meeting this week in New York.

Wilson said he offered Simpson $1 million for two years, $440,000 more than he was to receive the next two years, according to his contract. But Simspon said he didn't want to discuss money.

Simpson, 29, was quoted as saying in the Buffalo Evening News, "I definitely will not play in Buffalo again.

"It has nothing to do with money or a new contract with me," Simpson said. "It has to do with a number of things, mainly wanting to stay near my family and not be separated for another football season."

Meanwhile, ABC sportcaster Howard Cosell said Saturday he had recceived a phone call from Simspon on Friday because the star running back was concerned that his desire to return to the West Coast, scene of his record-setting college career at Southern California, would be misconstrued.

Cosell said Simspon's only motivation was that he did not want to be separated from his family for another season.

Wilson said he made it clear to Simpson that he wanted fair value in return in any trade involving Simspon, the NFL's leading rusher last season.

Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom said his team has had no contact with the Bills or Simpson over a possible trade.

Rosenbloom issued the following statement:

"No one associated with the Rams, including myself, has talked with Ralph Wilson or anyone from the Buffalo Bills about O.J. Simpson, nor have we talked with Simpson.

"Certainly we'd be interested in someone of O.J.'s caliber, but the question I would ask is, 'Does O.J. really want to play for anyone?'"

Cox Edges By Pitt Plaza, 5-3

Cox Realty kept within striking distance of the league-leading Graniteers in the Babe Ruth Prep League with a 5-3 win over Pitt Plaza Saturday.

Cox is now 6-2, while the Graniteers lead the loop with a 7-1 mark. Pitt Plaza is now 1-8.

Pitt Plaza pushed into the opening lead in the first inning, scoring a run. Steve Hall reached on an error and moved up on an error on Kelly Kee's grounder. A wild pitch scored Hall.

Cox came right back to take the lead with three runs in the bottom of the first. Junior Neal singled and scored when Steve Erwin doubled. Mark Sasser singled, scoring Erwin. Mike Thurber walked, and moved up on two passed balls. Sasser was put out trying to score, and Thurber later scored on an out.

In the third, Cox added the other two of its runs. Neal walked and moved to third on passed balls. Erwin walked and a balk scored Neal. Grant Stackhouse singled, driving in Erwin.

Pitt Plaza got its other two in the fifth. Hall doubled and took third on a passed ball. Andy Smith walked and Kee's out scored Hall and put Smith on second. He took third on another out and scored when Reggie Morris reached on an error.

Hall had two hits for Pitt Plaza, while Neal had a pair for Cox.

Carolina Dairy, Pepsi, College View In Wins

Carolina Dairy held onto first place easily, while Pepsi-Cola took over sole possession of second and College View got some company in the cellar in Babe Ruth League action yesterday.

Carolina Dairy (5-1) embarrassed NCNB (3-3) by a lopsided 16-0 score, while Pepsi-Cola (4-2) nipped Home Builders (2-4), 4-3. College View (2-4) downed Planters Bank (2-4) by an 8-6 margin.

In the first game, Carolina Dairy virtually ended it with a nine-run outburst in the opening frame, helped along by seven NCNB errors.

Bobby Woronoff led off, reaching on an error. He stole second, and moved to third on an error on the play. Peter Pace walked and Mike Willams arrived on an error, scoring Woronoff. Howard Tucker singled to load them up. Rufus Sutton was safe on another error, scoring Pace. George Wilson's fly to left was dropped, but Williams was forced at the plate on the play.

Marshall Heath reached on another error, scoring Tucker, and another error on the play let Sutton score. Mitch Meeks walked, and Wayne Stokes singled in Wilson. Woronoff's grounder was errored, scoring Heath, and Williams doubled in both Meeks and Stokes. A passed ball let Woronoff in for the 9-0 lead.

Carolina Dairy went on to add four more in the second and three in the third before going down in order in the fourth.

College View pushed over two runs in the second inning to take the lead in the second game. Steve Hawkins walked and Patrick Wilson singled. Eric Deal reached on an error, loading the bases. Marshall Crumpler singled in Hawkins, and H. L. Austin got a hit to plate Wilson.

Planters came back to tie the lead with three third inning runs. Mac Stokes walked and stole second. William Sneed also walked and Miccah Dixon singled in to score Stokes. David Holley singled and a hit by Charles Daise brought in Sneed. Dixon scored on a passed ball.

College View tied it up with one in the fourth. Wilson walked and Deal reached on an error. Crumpler also reached on an error, scoring Wilson.

In the fifth, College View again took the lead, scoring four runs. Lindsey Winstead singled and took second on an error. Hawkins singled and Deal got a hit to score Winstead. Crumpler reached on an error, scoring Hawkins, and a double by Austin brought in Deal and Crumpler.

The final run came over in the sixth. Hawkins reached on a fielder's choice and Wilson doubled. Deal was safe on an error, scoring Hawkins.

Planters came back with three in the sixth, but it wasn't enough. Jim Kernon was hit by a pitch and Stokes singled. Sneed walked, and an error let Kernon and Stokes score. Dixon singled in Sneed, but the rally died there.

Home Builders pushed ahead in the first inning of the third game, scoring three runs. Terry Skinner walked and stole second. Ronnie Chapman singled and Reggie Selby reached on an error, scoring Skinner. Chapman scored on a passed ball, and an error let Selby cross.

Pepsi tied it up with three of their own in the bottom of the frame. Robert Morehead singled and stole up. Marty Worthington singled and a balk scored Morehead. Will Sanderson reached on an error, and Mike Norfleet's fly ball brought in Worthington. Al Shackleford singled in Sanderson.

The winning run came over in the sixth. Calvin Parker was hit by a pitch and stole second. Norfleet singled him to third and Shackleford drove him in with a hit.

Chapman had three of the four hits Shackleford allowed Home Builders, while the Pepsi hurler had two hits to pace his own team.

Williamston Retains State 3-A Crown

NO RELAY—Clemson's Steve Tucker goes into second base with enough force to break up a potential double play, as Auburn second baseman Mickey Miller hangs onto the ball. Tucker was forced on Bill Foley's grounder to short in the sixth inning of the first NCAA College World Series game. Clemson moved up in the winner's bracket with a 9-4 victory. (AP Wirephoto)

HICKORY—Williamston High School's Tigers reign again as the State 3-A Baseball Champions for the secons straight year following Friday night's 3-2 victory over Fred T. Foard.

The game took 11 innings for Williamston to finally pull out their second straight win in the best-of-three series, avoiding the third game of the series.

Tim Hardison provided the key hit, blasting a bases-loaded hit in the bottom of the frame.

Tommy Gardner, the man who done the job all year long for the Tigers, got the victory, his 14th of the season, coming on in relief of Artie Rogers in the eighth inning. He also won the Thursday night game, going all the way.

Several times during the late innings, Gardner had to pitch his way out of trouble as the Foard Tigers kept constant threats to push over another go-ahead run.

Williamston never led in the game until the game-ending run crossed the plate in the 11th. Foard had twice punched in runs to take the lead, but each time, Williamston came back in the bottom of the same frame to tie it up.

Foard gained its initial lead in the third inning with a run. Jeff Price led off with a single and Kevin Caldwell reached on a bunt single. Both moved up on an out, and Brad Simpson singled to drive in Price.

But Williamson bounced right back to tie it. Ken Herman singled, but was cut down at second on a fielder's choice on Hardison's grounder. Butch Davis sacrificed Hardison up, and he scored when Lee Pearson slapped a triple.

Foard inched back out into the lead in the seventh inning. Mike Fowler reached on an infield single and moved up when the attempt to get him at first was off-target. Price followed with another hit, also errored, and Fowler crossed on the play.

But again, the Tigers came back to push over the tieing run. Hardison got a double and then scored when Davis followed with a single.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the 11th, as Williamston spoiled several Foard attempts at pulling it out.

Greg Roberson led off the 11th with a double down the left field line. Gardner was intentionally walked to set up a force situation and it nearly worked.

Mike Koesy grounded back to first, and the first baseman went for Gardner on the force, hoping for a relay in time for a double play. But his throw hit Gardner in the back, leading all three runners safe.

That brought up Hardison, and he calmly poked the ball over the center fielder's head, easily scoring Roberson with the game-ending run.

Tim Whitener, who absorbed the opening night loss in a four-inning stint, came back to go all the way in the second game—again coming out with a defeat.

Williamston closed out the second straight title year with a 22-3 record, while Foard finished at 15-8. For Coach Dink Mills, it was a third championship in baseball. He earlier won a 2-A title at Williamston in 1969.

Pirates Stop Loss String

East Carolina University broke a three-game losing streak in summer baseball play Friday night, riding the three-hit pitching of Billy Davis to a 6-2 win over Campbell College.

Davis, in making his first start, held the Camels to three walks while fanning five. He received plate help from Macon Moye (two for three) and Glenn Card (three for four).

Prior to Friday's game the Pirates had scored three runs in the last 27 innings of play.

The Pirates opened the scoring in the second. After a walk to Rick Koryda, back-to-back doubles hit in extreme opposite directions by Bobby Supel and Griff Garner produced two runs.

Campbell scored an unearned run in the third, coming on a throwing error, a hit batter, a single and a fielder's choice.

Moye singled in the third and, after stealing second, raced home on Card's triple to deep center.

A walk, a stolen base and a two-base throwing error produced the Pirate run in the fourth and single tallies were added for good measure in the seventh and eighth.

Paul Rappa led off the Campbell eighth with a walk, advanced to third on a single by Mo Toner and scored when Tony Nauman hit a high bouncer behind the mound, Davis making the play at first.

ECU, 3-3, travelled to Burlington last night for a 6 p.m. doubleheader with Elon Vollege.

Carolina Dairy And Pepsi Take Ruth Wins

Carolina Dairy and Pepsi-Cola gained victories in the Babe Ruth League Friday night. Carolina Dairy's 9-4 win over Home Builders kept it in first place in the league, while Pepsi's 6-5 win over Planters Bank moved it into a second place tie with NCNB.

Carolina Dairy pushed over a run in the top of the first. Bobby Woronoff led off with a double and scored on a hit by Howard Tucker.

In the second, the Dairymen added four more. Marshall Heath walked and Mitch Meeks singled. Skip Hill reached on an error, and a hit by Woronoff scored a run. Peter Pace singled in a run, and an error let another score. Woronoff scored the fourth run of the frame on Mike Williams' ground out.

Carolina Dairy got two more in the fourth to up its lead to 7-0. Williams walked and scored on Tucker's hit after getting a stolen base. Rufus Sutton walked and George Wilson singled in Williams. Tucker scored on a fielder's choice on Heath's grounder.

Home Builders broke the ice in the bottom of the fourth with a run. Ronnie Chapman walked and moved to third on an error, scoring on a wild pitch.

Carolina Dairy got another run in the fifth. Woronoff reached on a fielder's choice, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Pace's triple. The other run came in the sixth. Wilson walked, moved to third on an error on Krage Gardiner's grounder, and scored on Hill's hit.

ABC Granted Winter Rights

MONTREAL (AP) — Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, said he was confident all along that his television net work would wind up with exclusive rights to the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y.

"Our position from the start was that there was no way they could get the Games, but they could cause a lot of mischief," he said Friday of CBS and NBC.

And indeed, they did. ABC and Lake Placid organizers agreed to a contract of some $10 million last February. But the other networks cried foul, and the International Olympic Committee decided to investigate.

On Friday, the IOC announced from Lausanne, Switzerland that it had given the nod to ABC. "This decision substantiates the choice made by the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee in favor of ABC and is taken after the IOC Finance Commission has given ample opportunity to the other two American networks, CBS and NBC, to make an offer.

"After the two networks said they would were willing to pay more money than ABC but were not given the chance, they met in Paris with the IOC money men in April. And two IOC executives traveled to Lake Placid to check out the charges."

Arledge, in Montreal to promote ABC's coverage of the Summer Olympics, said that despite being on sound legal grounds in its rights to Lake Placid, the network increased its offer twice. He said it was increased at the request of organizers and again in an effort to seal the deal without futher delay.

Totals of the final agreement were not disclosed, but ABC said it would provide a world signal, or feed film for foreign networks' use.

Figures quoted Friday by Lake Placid organizers for such world signals were $40 million in Innsbruck for the 1976 Winter Games and $57 million for Montreal. Arledge said those figures were too high but "clearly it is going to cost us a lot more to produce Lake Placid and Montreal."

Lost Rule May Bring Protest

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

"A ball lodging in the catcher's mask, protector or uniform is a live ball and in play," — Rule 5.09, official baseball rulebook.

The problem was that no one in the crowded umpires' dressing room at Milwaukee's County Stadium could find it, and a protest of the A's-Brewers game may follow as a result.

An eighth-inning pitch thrown by Oakland reliever Paul Lindblad bounced in front of the plate, caromed off catcher Tim Hosley's throat and lodged in the backstop's chest protector, with Milwaukee's Sixto Lezcano on third base and the score 3-2 in the Brewers' favor.

"Time," said plate umpire Dave Phillips, waving Lezcano home for a reason apparently still unknown to A's Manager Chuck Tanner, Oakland owner Charlie Finley and catcher Hosley.

"I know you can't win a protest over an umpire's judgement, but you can win a protest if their decision is not in the rulebook," said Tanner after the Brewers—with the unusual insurance run—scored a 4-2 victory Friday night.

In more staid American League action Friday night, Cleveland nipped Chicago 5-4 in 13 innings, New York topped Texas 7-5, Kansas City blanked Baltimore 4-0, Minnesota bombed Boston 10-4 and Detroit edged California 4-3.

Indians 5, White Sox 4

Player-Manager Frank Robinson hit a two-out, two-run pinch home run in the 13th inning to give Cleveland its victory over Chicago.

The Sox had scored a run in the top of the 13th off winner Jim Kern, 5-2, on an infield single by Bill Stein. But the Indians came back when Larvell Blanks led off with a single—his fourth hit of the night—and Robinson hit his first homer of the season.

Yankees 7, Rangers 5

Graig Nettles hit two homers and had five RBI to pace New York's triumph over Texas. Bert Blyleven, going for his 100th career victory, ended up with his seventh loss in 11 decisions this year.

Royals 4, Orioles 0

Al Cowens drove in two runs to back a combined four-hitter by Doug Bird and Mark Littell and hand Baltimore its seventh straight loss. Bird, who pitched seven innings, hasn't walked a batter in his last 31 innings.

Twins 10, Red Sox 4

Steve Braun's two-run single capped the six-run Minnesota first inning which helped the Twins overcome opening-frame homers by Red Sox Fred Lynn and Jim Rice.

Reliever Tom Burgmeier quieted the Boston bats on two hits over the last six innings, lowering his league-leading earned run average to 0.70 after taking over for Bill Singer.

Tigers 4, Angels 3

A throwing error by California second baseman Jerry Remy in the bottom of the ninth inning allowed Ron LeFlore to score the winning run for Detroit. LeFlore, who had beaten out a hit and taken second on a wild pickoff throw, went to third on Alex Johnson's grounder and scored when Remy's throw was wild on the same play.

Angry Perez Making Other Clubs Suffer

AP Sports Writer

Tony Perez is "mad" at Sparky Anderson and National League pitchers are paying for it.

Unhappy to be spending more time on the bench this year than in previous seasons, the Cincinnati first baseman has turned his rage into an RBI rampage.

Perez' three-run homer in the ninth inning Friday night carried the Reds to an 8-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and boosted his RBI total this year to 45—an astronomical figure considering his dwindling playing time.

In the other National League games, the San Francisco Giants beat the Montreal Expos 5-0, the Los Angeles Dodgers stopped the Montreal Expos 7-4, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the San Diego Padres 4-2, the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Atlanta Braves 6-2 and the Chicago Cubs outscored the Houston Astros 8-3.

The Reds, who trailed 5-0 after the first inning, went into the ninth down 7-5. Ken Griffey led off with a single, Joe Morgan walked and Perez drilled his eighth home run of the season to give the Reds their 15th victory in the last 20 games.

Giants 5, Mets 0

Right-hander John Montefusco fired a three-hitter for his third shutout of the season and Bobby Murcer and Marc Hill blasted homers, powering San Francisco over New York. Montefusco, winning for the first time in two weeks, struck out nine and never allowed more than one hit an inning while raising his record to 7-5 and lowering his ERA to 2.65.

Dodgers 7, Expos 4

Steve Garvey drove in three runs with a triple, double and single to lead Los Angeles over Montreal. The Dodgers used two errors by Larry Parrish to jump to a 5-1 lead after two innings as Don Sutton, with help from Charlie Hough, squared his season record at 6-6.

Phillies 4, Padres 2

Jay Johnstone's leadoff homer in the eighth inning ignited a four-run rally and led Philadelphia past San Diego. Johnstone's third homer of the season tied the game at 1-1 and the Phillies then surged ahead off Padres reliever Butch Metzger on an RBI single by Garry Maddox and a two-run double by Mike Schmidt.

Pirates 6, Braves 2

Bill Robinson, Richie Zisk and relief pitcher Bob Moose smashed home runs as Pittsburgh snapped a three-game losing streak with a victory over Atlanta. Pittsburgh scored twice in the fifth inning. Al Oliver beat out an infield single and went to third on Robinson's double. Oliver scored on Rennie Stennett's grounder and then Robinson scored on a wild pitch by Roger Moret, 2-2.

Cubs 8, Astros 3

George Mitterwald hit four singles and drove in two runs to pace Chicago over Houston. Mitterwald singled and scored the Cubs' first run in the second inning, singled and drove in a run in the Cubs' four-run fifth and singled in a run in the seventh when the Cubs wrapped up the game with three more runs.

Bill Bonham, 5-3, gained the victory.

The Graniteers got six hits but the Moose got 11 off Pittman, Pittman won the game going all the way. He struck out four and walked two.

The Graniteers jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first. Lance Searle was hit by a pitch and an error let him move to third and Stevie Holloman reach base. Ellis reached on an error scoring Searle, Holloman scored on a wild pitch and Bubba Briley single driving in Ellis.

The Moose got the runs back and took a 4-3 lead in the bottom of the inning. Singles by Curt Lorimer, Donnie Daughtridge and Keith Stancil loaded the bases. Mac Wilkins Heaves Discus Long 230 Feet

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mac Wilkins doesn't wonder who's the world's best discus thrower: He knows he is and he spent Friday proving it.

The 6-foot-5, 260-pounder from Oregon captured the event with a mighty heave of 230 feet in the second of three days of the national AAU track and field championships at UCLA. And all six throws were magnificent, averaging 227-2.

Since no other man in history has ever thrown 227-2, Wilkins knows he's good. "The big battle is within myself," said the bearded giant.

"If I win that, I'll be all right, although I do think a lot about Wolfgang Schmidt."

He said Schmidt, the East German who beat him a month ago, "will be impressed with these marks."

Using an experimental discus, which operates like a gyroscope and will not be permitted in the Olympics, Wilkins had no throw less than 224-1 and he said if the wind had been stronger the throw might have been 245. His world record is 232-6.

"I'm looking forward to going home to Eugene for the Olympic trials. I want to do well for the home crowd, but I want to save the emotion for Montreal."

Hampton, only 19, was the day's biggest upset winner, taking the 200 in 20.89 seconds over experienced James Gilkes.

Stones' 7-4¼ gave him his third high jump title in the last four years; Miss Morehead ran 22.94 to win the 200; Miss Frederick cruised to a fast 13.29 in taking the women's 100-meter turldes; Robinson long-jumped 27-3½ to equal the best mark in the world this year, his own, and won his fourth AAU crown, and Hart threw the hammer 225-10 for his first title.

Dick Buerkle won the 5,000 in 13:31.2 when Marty Liquori suffered a muscle injury in his left leg. "I hate to win a race that way," said Buerkle, who won this event in 1974.

Greenville's Port Terminal

—In past years, a link in the Greenville business structure. Today, an area oriented to the possibility of recreation—

Photographs By Charles Bissette

Text By Jerry Raynor

Today, the riverfront site just outside and east of Greenville on the Tar River, commonly known as the Port Terminal area, is administered by a joint Pitt County-Greenville body, the Tar River Port Commission.

Charles Bissette, local businessman and an avid photographer, has furnished photographs of the port terminal taken during the peak days of its operation.

"I understand that one of the main reasons the port facility was built was because of high freight rates for the South," Bissette commented. "We were discriminated against in freight rates at that time. So it was figured if we got water freight in, it would help affect all other freight rates."

Bruce Sugg, Jr., for a number of years chairman of the Tar River Port Commission, recalled that the "prime effort to get a port facility for Greenville was made by the late Nat Harrison. He had a dream of a railroad running down from the town to where the ships were coming in," Sugg said, "and spent years working on the project. After the barges quit running, the terminal was used for a few years as a storage point."

Sugg stated that with him on the commission were Guy Evans and the late Brantley Speight. "Some years back I turned the funds of the commission over to Pitt County Commissioners and after that the city and county appointed a new commission with Tom Rivers as chairman."

Sugg also mentioned that he remembered sugar as being one of the major products brought in by river boats to the terminal. Also, the terminal was used as a point for shipping out tobacco.

J. B. Kittrell, Jr. said that his father, J. B. Kittrell, Sr. "made use of the terminal for a couple of years, just before World War II, to have sugar shipped in. Later, shipments of sugar came by boat as far as Washington, and we sent trucks to bring the sugar on to Greenville." The Kittrell father-son team are still actively engaged in the firm J. B. Kittrell and Company, Inc., a Greenville sugar brokerage.

Tom Rivers is currently chairman of Tar River Port Commission. Also serving as commission members are W. W. Speight and Charlie Lee Hardee. Sydney Dunn is secretary-treasurer.

"At this time," Rivers remarked, it looks like the port terminal facility is recreationally oriented. In all sincerety, I think the proper thing for the city and county to do is to realize that area will be needed for more recreation usage."

Rivers said the area comprises about 40 acres. "Two years ago we contacted the Wildlife Commission. Bill Jansen, an engineer of the commission, suggested use of the area as a wildlife access point to his board. They leased the property and built a $35,000 docking and parking facility in the access area."

A more recent development, Rivers pointed out, "is a lease to a law-enforcement, non-profit group. This is roughly for half an acre to build a recreation facility for themselves, one which in turn can be used by other non-profit groups.

"We're keeping the door open to all possibilities," Rivers added. "Things such as the possibility of petroleum tankers using the terminal for a distribution point for oil products.

"But," he concluded, "the overall development scheme leans more toward using the area as one for recreation."

Less Foreign Steel And Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less foreign steel and oil will be entering the United States in the near future.

The Ford administration said Friday it would impose quotas on imports of stainless steel, while the Canadian government announced that it is cutting oil exports to the U.S.

In other economic news:

—Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said a new increase in the price of Canadian natural gas will cost U.S. consumers another $322 million a year;

—A government report concludes that recent price increases in the steel industry apprear justified by higher costs; and —Another report says borrowing to finance budget deficits last year triggered the fastest growing federal debt since World War II.

In imposing a three-year quota system on imports of lower-priced stainless steels from abroad the Ford administration gave consumers a break by leaving razor blade steel free from the restrictions. Since razor blade steel is not manufactured in the U.S. at all, its exemption from quotas will benefit consumers without undermining the quota program, administration officials said.

Even so, the quotas, which one official said would result in a 15 per cent drop in the current rate of imports, could result in a few additional cents added to the price of many household goods.

In recent months, major U.S. steel producers have announced price increases of 6 to 9 per cent for a variety of finished steel products. But William Killey III, acting director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, says such price hikes were necessitated by cost increases which have reduced profit levels to below the average of all manufacturers.

The current price of $1.60 per thousand cubic feet for Canadian natural gas is scheduled to increase to $1.80 next September. FEA head Zarb says the main impact of the higher price will be felt in California, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, New York and Vermont.

The volume of Canadian oil going to the U.S. is scheduled to be cut by 12 per cent next month as part of a series of gradual oil export reductions. The cut will mean a 60,000 barrel a day difference in the amount of Canadian oil going to refineries in the northern parts of Midwestern states.

A report by the Commerce Department says that despite the fast growth in federal borrowing, the federal debt remains at a historically low level.

John Davis Is The Frisbee King

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — Jon Davis is a big man with big ideas about little things.

Here in the heart of Copper Country in Michigan's Upper Peninsula they call Davis "the Frisbee King." A portion of the small plastic disc has even been named in his honor, or so he says.

"The inside ridge of a Frisbee is known as 'The Ditch of Davis' to the real Frisbee heavies," Davis says with a chuckle and a wink.

The 39-year-old son of a downstate circuit court judge came to this pictaresque college town to attend Michigan Technological University but decided innkeeping suited his skills more than mechanical engineering.

He bought an old two-story tavern across from the Mining Gazette known as the Board of Trade & Palm Gardens Cafe. He promptly renamed it The Library and has been here ever since.

These days — in addition to overseeing the popular watering hole — he also serves as president of the Chamber of Commerce, cohosts a weekly radio talk show and is the driving force behind a Frisbee tournament that brings thousands flocking to the shores of Lake Superior every summer.

The 19th Annual International Frisbee Tournament, July 17 through 18, will be fun to watch, but it's no game for gramps and the kids on a family picnic.

"They call it 'Guts Frisbee,' and it's just what the name implies," Davis says. "Two five-man teams stand 15 yards apart and throw as hard as they can at one another.

"The object is to throw so hard the other team can't catch it in one hand cleanly."

Speeds of 90 m.p.h. have been clocked in guts Frisbee, Davis says.

Davis counts himself among the purists, although he cannot deny he is pleased that last year's tournament drew 64 teams from around the country and thousands of fans, who left behind considerable amounts of money—all very good for the economy.

Davis invited a team from China to attend in 1971. They declined.

The winning team gets its name inscribed on the base of a cup made from a couple of tin cans with a pair of handcuffs mounted on top.

"The cup contains a penny, so nobody can say it's worthless," he says. "Sometimes it (the cup) disappears — handcuffs and all."

Davis' tournament, which is sanctioned by the International Frisbee Association, is a prelude to the World Frisbee Tournament, which is held in California later in the year.

Hiring Of Handicapped Pushed By Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) A little known section of the nation's vocational rehabilitation act promises to give a substantial boost to job prospects for handicapped people, according to Stanley B. Thomas, HEW's Assistant Secretary for Human Development, whose office supervises the vocational rehabilitation program.

"Section 503 of the act requires any company contracting for more than $2,500 a year in business with the federal government to have an affirmative action plan to hire and advance the handicapped," says Thomas. "A conservative estimate by the U.S. Department of Labor places the number of handicapped Americans able to work at 7.2 million, with 1 million contractors doing over $2,500 worth of business with the federal government.

Many employers still believe that hiring the handicapped will cause their insurance rates to rise, Thomas noted. "But the facts are that insurance companies in this country are leaders in rehabilitating and hiring the handicapped, and that insurance rates do not rise when handicapped workers are hired."

Another myth is that there is a higher injury rate among the handicapped than there is among the average nonhandicapped worker, Thomas said. But Department of Labor surveys have shown that "impaired persons" have fewer disabling injuries than the average worker exposed to the same work hazards.

Some handicapped persons have succeeded despite barriers raised by employers' negative attitudes against hiring and promotions, but far more have failed, Thomas said.

New regulations, recently issued by the Department of Labor and designed to implement Section 503, require that government contractors undertake positive recruitment activities, including changing the attitudes toward handicapped employes by managers, supervisors and all employes.

Recruiting resources such as vocational rehabilitation agencies, state employment services, sheltered workshops and organizations serving handicapped people are to be utilized.

While the Department of Labor is charged with the responsibility for monitoring the law, Thomas pointed out that there are agencies within his Office of Human Development which serve as advocates for the handicapped.

The Rehabilitation Services Administration, Office of Handicapped Individuals, Developmental Disabilities Office, Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board, and President's Committee on Mental Retardation work with a variety of public and private institutions, organizations, handicapped persons and the public to advocate and create opportunities for rehabilitation.

Progress is being made not only in rehabilitating and training the handicapped for useful roles in society, but also in training industry personnel in the basics of how to interview handicapped job applicants. Thomas noted that, thus far, 79 training seminars and workshops had been held throughout the United States.

A typical example is the Pennsylvania Rehabilitation Center in Johnston, Pa., which held training seminars for personnel specialists from such companies as ALCOA, Bethlehem Steel and Westinghouse during 1975.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to any sports cars, high performance engines, air cooled engines or 4-speed transmissions (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a better used car, come out and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed.

'Big Apple' Being Polished For Demo Convention

By WILLIAM M. REILLY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fiscally-strapped New York City is dressing up in its best bicentennial red, white and blue to host next month's Democratic National Convention in hopes of taking in plenty of green and polishing up its tarnished image.

The city is spending $3.5 million at the modernistic Madison Square Garden in midtown Manhattan just to cover rental, insurance and construction of the podium, seating for the 5,100 delegates and alternates and the press area for the four-day hoopla beginning July 12.

New York also expects to shell out $2.6 million in police overtime, most of which is covered by grants from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and about $100,000 each in such categories as parking sites for delegate buses and sanitation work.

"Most of the police work will be in security at the Garden and the hotels of the delegates," says Asst. Police Chief Daniel J. Courtenay, who is in charge of security. "We now plan to have about 1,000 men in the area of the Garden."

Courtenay says much of the overtime cost for the police force will be to control demonstrations. In just one of them, some 130,000 demonstrators are expected in a "Right to Life" march the day before the convention opens. The same day there also will be a large "gay rights" march.

"We are not against anybody making their views known and we don't expect any trouble," Courtenay said. "There have been a lot of groups who have come to us seeking cooperation. We hope to work out mutually agreeable arrangements with all."

While the overall cost of the convention is expected to hit the $6 million mark — with the federal government picking up $2.82 million of that amount — the 25,000-35,000 visitors are expected to spend $8 million.

That estimate comes from Preston Robert Tisch, president of the Citizens Committee for the Democratic National Convention, who says the money probably will be turned over "roughly three times, so we will come up with a total in the neighborhood of $25 million."

Additionally, the three major television networks will spend "millions of dollars" for convention coverage, according to spokesmen.

The enthusiastic but apolitical Citizen's Committee, already has raised $200,000 to polish up the Big Apple, entertain delegates and lecture the locals on what the convention means to the city.

It has engaged an advertising agency and launched an ad campaign: "New York is having a party this summer. A Democratic Party to be exact."

"There will be over 8,000 members of the domestic and foreign press here to cover it," the subway car cards and radio-TV copy reads. "In plain truth it's going to be the biggest thing to happen to the Big Apple in a long, long time."

With the media focus on New York during the convention, the citizen's committee hopes to sell the world on the city and consequently pick up its sagging tourist industry.

Charles Gillett, president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau says "this is by no means the biggest convention of the year — it ranks about seventh or eighth — but the publicity value is 1,000 times more valuable."

The gaudy Times Square area, ripe with pimps, prostitutes and porn shops, is being cleaned up. A separate committee of area businessmen has been set up just for that purpose, and they are on the move.

Along with the police, committee members are working to shutter the seedy shops and shift the streetwalkers and flashy procurers to areas where the visitors are less likely to go.

Still, the hookers are hoping to make a bundle. Two psychiatrists at a Miami Beach convention last month delivered a paper based on interviews with 42 call girls across the country. The report concluded that national political conventions will be their major revenue sources.

However, such "action" won't directly help the city's tax coffers. Any benefits the city would get would be in the "turnover" area, when the ladies of the night spend their money.

The Citizen's Committee has plans for colorful plantings along Fifth and Sixth Avenues — main arteries the delegates will be traveling — placing bunting on buildings and bathing a portion of the Empire State Building in red white and blue lights.

Miss Helen R. Moseley Weds Stephen J. Chasson

WILMINGTON — Miss Helen Russell Moseley and Stephen Joseph Chasson were united in marriage Saturday at twelve noon in a small garden ceremony at her grandmother's summer home, The Sound House, on Masonboro Sound here.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. D. White of Laurinburg. Jennifer Lee Flowers of Hamlet provided trumpet music.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bancroft Ficklen Moseley, of Greenville, and the late Mr. Moseley. Parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Albert Leon Chasson of Raleigh.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Fred Hollis Reardon of Fayetteville, the bride wore an antique white princess dress of Italian crinkle gauze over peau de soie. Italian lace enhanced the portrait neckline, waist, and gathered tiered skirt. The bride wore her grandmother's seed pearl earrings. Her hair was caught back with a cluster of daisies.

The bride's bouquet was of mixed field flowers, daisies, marguerites, and baby's breath.

Miss Nell Glasgow Moseley of Greenville was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a long dress of pastel blue Italian crinkle gauze. The high neckline, sleevess dress was trimmed with antique white Italian lace.

Miss Elizabeth Pannill Moseley of Greenville, sister of the bride, wore an apricot dress identical to that of the maid of honor. Mr. Benjamin Earl Winstead III of Rocky Mount, wore a smiliar dress of pale green. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of mixed field flowers.

Alan Lee Knight of Raleigh was best man. Ushers were Robert Alan Ray, of Winston-Salem, and Eric Stokes Romeiser, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Following the ceremony, the mother of the bride entertained at breakfast on the lawn. The house and garden were decorated with hanging baskets and field flowers.

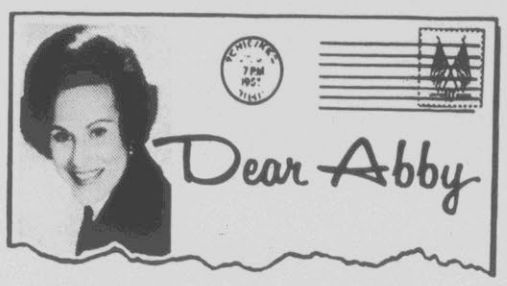
Mrs. Glasgow Hicks Jr. and Mrs. John R. Hicks, aunts of the bride, served the three-tiered wedding cake. The table was decorated with field flowers and an Italian cutwork cloth.

On Friday night, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Chasson entertained the couple at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hicks on Greenville Sound.

Friends of the bride hosted a garden cocktail buffet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Van Calvin Fleming of Orton Drive. The house and garden were decorated with arrangements of spring flowers.

Both the bride and the bridegroom are graduates of St. Andrews Presbyterian College, Laurinburg.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will make their home in Wilmington.



Letter Wouldn't Help Situation

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N. Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: Last summer we sent Jimmy, our 12-year-old son, back east to visit both sets of grandparents. They live within 15 minutes of one another, and Jimmy had a wonderful time visiting back and forth.

When he came home, he said he was very upset when his paternal grandparents told him stories about how "stupid" his father had been in school and what a "cry baby" and "sissy" he had been as a boy. This hurt my husband's feelings, and it took us a long time to explain to Jimmy that his grandparents shouldn't have put down his father—who's a wonderful man and deserves respect.

Jimmy wants to go back this summer, but we don't want him exposed again to derogatory tales about his father. Should I write a note asking those grandparents to please refrain from telling such stories? They are very thoughtless and insensitive people, but there is no excuse for ignorance.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: I doubt if anything you write to your in-laws will help the situation—and it may worsen it. (They probably thought they were being "entertaining.") Tell Jimmy that if his grandparents resume such stories of his father's boyhood, to tell them politely that no matter what kind of boy their son was, he is now a wonderful man and a super father, and he (Jimmy) would rather not hear about his faults as a child.

DEAR ABBY: When a woman and a man have a very intimate relationship, and are in each other's company constantly, but are not married, I know that the lady is called his "mistress," but what is the gentleman called?

Please print your reply because this word is needed in almost every conversation in this community.

VIRGINIA BEACH READER

DEAR READER: He is called her "friend." And she is called his "friend." "Mistress," like "paramour," seems stilted and outdated.

DEAR ABBY: Doesn't it say in the Bible that if a person does you wrong, you have the right to reciprocate in the same way? In other words, whatever he does to you, you can do to him. Summed up, it is "an eye for an eye."

Please print your answer. I want to show it to someone.

A WRONGED CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: You took the "eye for an eye" out of context. I quote:

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth:

"But I say unto you, that ye resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.

"And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain.

"Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I was in an airport coffee shop in Burbank recently when my companion pointed out that Mary Tyler Moore had just slipped into the next booth.

I quickly grabbed a menu and ducked behind it. "Oh, Lord, I hope she doesn't recognize me. Is she looking?"

He stole a glance, "No, she's poking around her handbag. Why do yo think Mary Tyler Moore would recognize you?"

"Television. Since I've been a regular on ABC's 'Good Morning, America,' I've had no life of my own. I belong to all the little people now."

A waitress said, "What'll it be, sir?"

I stiffened. "I'll have a hamburger, well done."

"The burgers won't be finished for another 20 minutes," she said flatly, grabbing the menu. "You wanta wait?" I nodded.

"Perhaps if we changed seats," I said. "I feel like I'm center stage out here in the aisle. Oh no! Here it comes again. Someone is coming over to the table. As soon as I give them the autograph, interrupt nicely but firmly, take my arm and say, 'Erma adores her public and would love to spend hours talking with you, but we've got a plane to make.'Got it?"

"Pardon me," said intruder, "but will you be using this extra chair?" We shook our heads.

"Do you get many of these admirers who stalk you?"

"You wouldn't believe it," I said. "Once, in a public restroom, mind you, a woman looked under the door, rattled it and said, 'Sorry, but your feet looked familiar,' I empathize with Marilyn Monroe, I really do. People tugging and pulling at your clothes—and that's just in the fitting room."

"Look, Mary Tyler Moore is leaving . . . and she's looking straight at you," said my companion. "And she's walking . . . right past you and out the door. How do you figure that?"

I smiled knowingly, "She understands. She knows if she stopped by, everyone else in this restaurant would figure, 'If Mary Tyler Whatshername can interrupt Erma, so can we.' Good old Mare . . . does her worshipping from afar. I like that. That's real class."

"She should get another Emmy for that performance," said my friend. "I would have been willing to bet she didn't even know you."

The waitress appeared with the check and I handed her my American Express card. She looked at it and said, "You got any other I.D.'s?"

I touched her hand and smiled at our little joke. She probably said the same thing to William Miller, Barry Goldwater's running-mate in 1964.

Program On Green Beanie Given WOTM

The Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308, heard a talk on the significance of the Green Beanie and the needed qualifications for obtaining this honor at a chapter night program Thursday at the Moose Temple.

Mrs. Wilma Turner, senior regent, who presided, said that new officers will be installed June 24. A practice session for the installation is planned June 15 at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Turner also reminded WOTM members of the chapter's annual Spring Party at the lodge June 26. A social hour is planned, followed by a buffet dinner, and dancing from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. to the music of the Monitors.

Chapter members were also reminded of a reception June 27 in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Baldree. Baldree resigned his position as secretary-manager of the Greenville Moose Lodge May 1 after serving the organization 18 years.

Mrs. Virginia Vandiford, a new member, was enrolled at the night meeting, after which WOTM members had refreshments.

Her Camelot headpiece was three-quarter length and fashioned with lace and pearls. The bride carried a formal cascade of white orchids, yellow sweetheart roses and sprays of green ivy.

Junior bridesmaids were twin sisters of the bride, Lee and Lynn Boyd of Greenville. They were attired in yellow dotted swiss dresses flounched with a flowing ruffle. They wore wide brim white hats encircled by yellow satin ribbon and carried nosegays of yellow and white daisies and blue corn flowers tied with yellow satin bows and long streamers.

The flower girl was Carey Kruger of Greenville, who wore a white dotted swiss dress flounced with a flowing ruffle. Her headpiece consisted of an array of flowers and she carried a white basket filled with petals tied with a yellow bow.

The ring bearer was David Hall of Fairfox, Va., who carried a white heart shaped pillow with a spray of yellow and white flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Hunter Poore and Greg Arnold, both of Washington, and Buddy Boyd of Greenville, brother of the bride.

A program of wedding music was presented by Joe Goodwin, organist, and Sammy Pittman, who sang "Love Story, "More," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The mother of the bride chose a mint green chiffon formal ensemble and the mother of the bridegroom wore an aqua silk formal. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages. The grandmother of the bride wore a cameo formal and a white carnation corsage.

Mrs. Carol Powell directed the wedding.

The church was decorated with a background of candelabra, greenery and bouquets of white gladioli. At the altar was a prie-dieu with greenery and white satin bowls. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

COMMITTEE MEETING

SPICETOP MUFFINS

Perfect for a group because this hot bread tastes best fresh from the oven, not reheated.

1½ cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring 2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 cup quick-cooking oats
½ cup raisins
¼ cup chopped (medium-fine) pecans or walnuts
1 cup milk
1-3rd cup salad oil
1 egg, slightly beaten
Topping, see below

In a large mixing bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in oats, raisins and nuts. Add milk, oil and egg; stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill buttered muffin-pan cups (each 1-3rd cup capacity) two-thirds full. Sprinkle with the Topping. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 12 to 15 minutes. Serve at once with butter. Makes 16.

Topping: Stir together ¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar, ¼ cup finely chopped pecans or walnuts and ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Do-It-Yourself Sweater Duo

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

More than 60 North Carolina nurses attended the 1976 convention of the American Nurses' Association held last week in Atlantic City, N.J.

The Tar Heel delegation was headed by Rebecca H. Taylor of Greensboro, NCNA president.

The House of Delegates, ANA's top policy-making boyd, met throughout the week to consider questions facing nursing and society, including nurse manpower, continuing education, certification, ethnocentrism, accountability, collective bargaining and clinical concerns.

A variety of special programs were built around the convention theme "A Past to Remember—A Future to Shape." ANA saluted 200 years of nursing history and introduced the ANA Nursing Hall of Fame honoring 15 nurse pioneers.

A total registration of about 10,000 was expected.

At 7:30 a.m. every Saturday, the O Block of North Front Street, Wilmington, becomes a beehive of activity.

Vendors begin arriving and getting ready for another day of operation. Craftsmen are setting up booths and tables, trucks are coming in with fresh produce, homebaked goods are arriving and plants and plant hangers of all types are being displayed.

It is the start of another day for the Wilmington Saturday Market, a non-profit group that was organized to provide a sales outlet for local vendors as well as offering homegrown produce, baked or canned goods, crafts, flowers, metal and wooden wares and anything else that is homemade, homegrown or handmade.

The organizers would like to see more participation by the local residents such as vendors, shoppers or visitors. The market was organized for the people's enjoyment and convenience.

Entertainment is being sought and several groups have indicated they will perform for the fun of being a part of the activity. For the past two weeks, Gregg Morris has played his banjo and sang. There was dancing in the street of the downtown mall.

The market is open from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. each Saturday.

For further information write Open-Air Market, P. O. Box 2001, Wilmington.

Miss Phillips Entertained

The hostesses, Mrs. Casey and her daughter, Betty Jo, greeted the guests. Special guests included the honoree's mother, Mrs. Ruby Phillips.

The gift table, draped in white linen, was centered with a miniature bride. A motif of green and yellow with white wedding bells and magnolia leaves accentuated the refreshments table. Guests were served by Mrs. Jean M. Wells and Miss Lynn Howard.

82-Year-Old Gets Degree

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — By his own account, it took J. Melvin Gessleman 60 years to go through college.

That's not quite accurate.

Gessleman completed a two-year program in physical education at Temple University in 1917. He enlisted then in the U.S. Ambulance Service and served in France during World War I.

After a sabbatical of nearly 60 years — while he was physical education director of a Philadelphia boys' club, sold cars and real estate and worked in private business — Gessleman returned to Temple to finish the four-year course leading to a Bachelor of Science degree in physical education.

Completing his work with a "B" average, Gessleman has become the oldest recipient of a bachelor's degree in Temple's history, according to a check of university records.

He is 82.

"He didn't miss a class," said Dr. Ira Shapiro, assistant dean of Temple's College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

'Love Among The Ruins' Encores

THEY WALKED AWAY WITH SIX EMMYS — Katharine Hepburn and Sir Laurence Olivier return to television Sunday, June 13, on the "ABC Theatre" drame "Love Among The Ruins," (10-11 p.m.) on Channels 3W-5-12. The romantic comedy won six Emmys in 1975, including one each for Miss Hepburn, Lord Olivier, director George Cukor and playwright James Costigan.

The romantic comedy that swept the 1975 Emmy competition will return Sunday, June 13, 9 to 11 p.m., ABC Channel 3-5-12, when "Love Among the Ruins," starring Katharine Hepburn and Sir Laurence Olivier, encores. The special won six Emmy Awards — including one each for Miss Hepburn, Lord Olivier, director George Cukor and playwright James Costigan. The film also won a Peabody Award.

Set in Edwardian England, "Love Among the Ruins" tells the story of a prominent barrister (Lord Olivier) who finds himself in the position of defending a beautiful widow (Miss Hepburn), with whom he had a love affair some 50 years earlier, against a suit for breach of promise brought by a man young enough to be her son. For almost half a century, the barrister has lived with the memory of their interlude together — an affair the widow does not seem to remember at all. The question is: does she or doesn't she? That mystery becomes the issue in a brilliant battle of wites.

"Love Among the Ruins" was originally written for Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine and when it proved impossible for them to do it, the script was sent to Miss Hepburn. Throughout her career, Katharine Hepburn had wanted to work with Laurence Olivier and she saw "Love Among the Ruins" as her opportunity. To describe her as a woman of action would be an understatement; within a few short months she got a commitment from Lord Olivier, secured the services of George Cukor to direct, and made all necessary arrangements for filming to begin in London.

Critics were almost universal in their acclaim for the production, and the encore presentation gives viewers a second chance to see one of the most romantically delightful shows ever produced for television.

"Love Among the Ruins" was a happy project from start to finish for Costigan: it was his first opportunity to work with Ms. Hepburn, Olivier and Cukor, and he enjoyed all three of them immensely. "I found myself surrounded by more youth and vitality than I'd ever experienced before. Cukor, Kate, Olivier . . . . they're among the most energetic, vibrant people I've ever met."

Costigan believes this vitality is partially responsible for the acclaim with which the special was greeted. "It was a happy, exciting experience for all of us and I think that comes through on the film," he says.

Parents, Practice, Talent Make Jackson Five Successful

The Jacksons, headed by Joe and Katherine, were making family music long before their music was making money.

Mother Katherine had played clarinet in high school, but she wasn't the primary musical influence in the family, eight members of which will star in the fast-paced musical-variety half-hour summer series, "The Jacksons," to be presented for four consecutive weeks beginning Wednesday, June 16, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11. Sonny Bono guest stars on the premiere show.

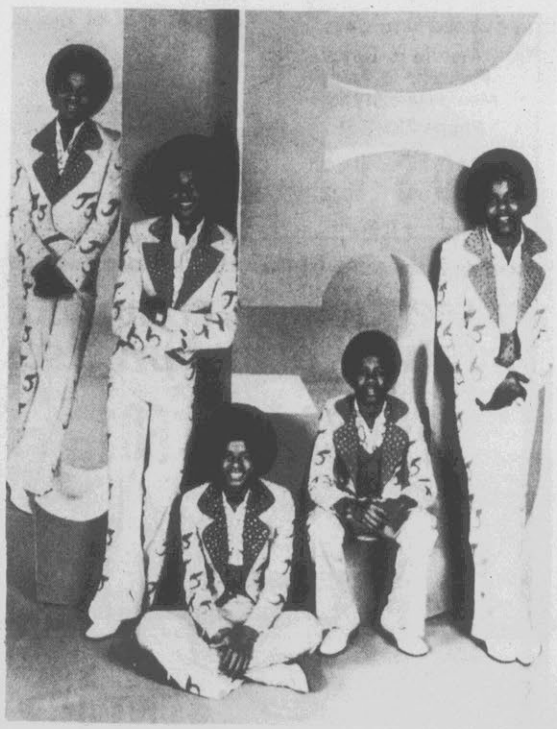
Father Joe, who as a youth had sung and played guitar with a local group called The Falcons, set the basic musical example for the nine Jackson children. On weekends, in the 1960's, the entire family, with daughter Maureen (Rebie) on piano, would gather and sing, with Joe playing the chords on guitar.

It was Tito who got the idea they should be a formal group, when his brother Michael was only six.

The Jackson group was formed officially in 1970. From the very beginning, they proved to be a million-record-seller success. The original five Jackson members were Michael, Marlon, Jermaine, Tito and Jackie. Randy joined his brothers on the concert circuit in 1973, and sisters Latoya, Rebie and Janet came along in 1974.

Michael has the history of the group down pat: "We all began singing together after Tito started messin' with Dad's guitar and singin' with the radio. It was Tito who decided we should form a group, and we did — and we practiced a lot. Then we started entering talent shows, and we won every one we entered."

Eight members of the now famous Jackson family are starring in "The Jacksons" summer series. Only Jermaine is not appearing.



JACKSON 5 — Members of the popular singing and dancing artists The Jackson Family (which started out as The Jackson 5 and grew) will star in a half-hour, musical-variet summer series, "The Jacksons," airing for four consecutive weeks starting Wednesday, June 16 (8-8:30 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11. From left to right, are Marlon, Jackie, Michael, Randy and Tito.

'The Outlaw Cats' Shows Sunday On Disney

A pair of playful bobkittens, full of curiosity and hi-jinks, turn up as the runaway stars of The Wonderful World of Disney's "The Outlaw Cats of Colossal Cave," airing Sunday, June 13, from 7 to 8 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7, but the pair almost didn't make it in front of the cameras.

Hank Schloss, veteran Disney nature film-maker, had expected to find kittens in the area of Arizona's Colossal Cave itself, a prevalent wild cat area. The plan was to trap and train some younsters to use.

"We didn't anticipate a drought, however," says director Schloss," which cut the birthrate drastically last summer when we filmed the show."

A change in the game laws prohibiting the picking up of young animals also inhibited the possibility of getting animals locally. So Schloss sent word out for some kittens for the show.

"We got word that a pair of six-week old kittens was on the way. We already had three adult bobcats from which to choose to play the mother, and we were ready to start shotting."

But when the six-week old kittens arrived, it turned out that they were only six days old.

"We were really upset. The kittens were much too young to have been separated from their mother and shipped to us. We had strong words for the supplier," says Schloss, who was obviously angered at the ploy.

The baby kittens were rushed to the Sonora Desert Museum outside of Tucson, about 35 miles from the caves where they were immediately placed in an incubator in the museum's wildlife nursery.

'It was a month before they could be taken away from the nursery for some limited shooting," relates Schloss. In the meantime, the company filmed around the kittens.

"It was worth waiting for. The kittens became an instant hit with everyone once we started filming with them. They were natural hams."

Elvis Stars In 'Charro'

Elvis Presley plays a reformed gunman turned lawman in "Charro!," a western adventure drama on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies," June 19, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7-28.

Ex-desperado Jess Wade (Presley), in response to an urgent message from a former girlfriend by his former outlaw friends, led by Vince (Victor French) and Billy Roy (Solomon Sturges).

The bunch have stolen Mexico's famous gold and silver Victory Gun — the weapon that fired the last shot against Maximilian and freed the country — and plan to sell it to the highest bidder.

Refusing to be part of their scheme, Jess escapes to a village on the United States side of the border, where his old friend Sheriff Ramsey (James Almazar) deputizes him, just in time to defend the town against an onslaught by Vince and Billy Roy.

'Today' Sale Salutes America

Last year, NBC-TV's "Today" began a special American Revolution Bicentennial observance that has consistently held viewers' interest. Starting last July 4, "Today" has devoted one telecast a week to a salute to each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and the United States territories.

Members of the special unit assigned to this mammoth task have traveled many thousands of miles on survey tours and production The end result has been impressive. Included in these two-hour telecasts have been remote segments, film stories, historical reports, interviews from Washington, D.C., or the state capitol, interviews with outstanding native sons, entertainment by the state's most noted performers, and music indigenous to each state.

"Today," which has been on the air since Jan. 14, 1952, offers as broad scope and large turnover of material. It provides news, weather reports, interviews, topical discussions, exhibitions, demonstrations, reviews and other features of all kinds.

Timeliness is the program's keynote. Executive producer Stuart Schulberg said: "We have never changed the basic format but we have updated the program to keep pace with current- and often controversial- issues. We are truly 'today,' not 'yesterday' or 'the day before yesterday'."

Long-time co-host Barbara Walters is leaving the "Today" staff for ABC-TV. Ms. Walters has been with the show since 1961 when she joined the writing staff.

Host Jim Hartz is a veteran of NBC News whose assignments as a reporter and anchorman ranged from reporting moon landings and the Middle East War to transit strikes and civil disturbances.

Gene Shalit has been described as "that man in the morning with a head of hair like an untended vineyard and a mustache bigger than a hedgerow." He is a man of diverse talents, eminently qualified to be a panelist on "Today."

Shalit has been a book and movie critic, a sports and general columnist, and before he replaced Joe Garagiola in '73 as a regular on the program, he was familiar to early morning viewers as a book reviewer who was seen periodically from 1969.

Lew Wood, whose experience in broadcast journalism spans more than two decades, became the newscaster for "Today" in March, 1974. The assisgnment marked a return to NBC after a three-year absence.

On his previous tour of duty with the network Wood was a correspondent in Vietnam and covered general assignments in the New York area. He also covered events following the assassination of President Kennedy, the Democratic convention in 1964, the revolution in the Dominican Republic and the Cuban crisis.

Gardenia Is Misplaced Cop

Vincent Gardenia waited patiently in the Las Vegas casino, as chips, cards and coins shuffled between new and old owners, while the "Kojak" film crew moved its equipment for a new camera angle.

"Kojak" in Las Vegas? well, Gardenia was playing a former member of Kojak's staff, now with the Las Vegas police, who arrests a fugitive sought by his former New York boss. The episode, filmed on location in Las Vegas and inside various casinos, will be rebroadcast Sunday, June 13, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

As Gardenia waited, a friend began to brush ashes from the narrow lapels of the actor's out - of - style suit. "Don't do that," Gardenia said. "That's part of my character. They want me to look sloppy. There already are too many neat detectives." The last gibe was an obvious reference to Kojak's noted sartorial splendor.

In his varied career, besides an Oscar nomination for his performance in the film "Bang the Drum Slowly," Gardenia has won a Tony Award and two Obie Awards for work in the New York Theater. In 1974, he had a recurring role as Archie Bunker's neighbor on "All in the Family."

"My role in 'Family' was great," Gardenia commented, "except that it was all comedy. In this 'Kojak' episode, I do comedy and drama. That's a good combination."'

KOJAK — Telly Savalas (1) as Lt. Kojak, confers with an old department buddy, played by Vincent Gardenia, on a counterfieting case that threatens to mushroom, in "Kojak," Sunday, June 13 (9-10 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

ANNE BAXTER JOINS CAST

Academy Award-winning actress Anne Baxter, star of 47 Hollywood films, will co-star in "The Money changers," the six-and-a-half-hour NBC World Premiere movie based on Arthur Hailey's best-selling novel.

She will portray Edwina Dorsey, manager of the flagship bank of the First Merchantile American.

Ms. Baxter joins an all-star cast that includes Kirk Douglas (as Alex Vandervoort), Christopher Plummer (as Roscoe Heyward), Timothy Bottoms (as Miles Easton) and Susan Flannery (as Margo Brack).

Stapleton Cast In Drama

Tony and Emmy Awards winner Maureen Stapleton, praised for her interpretations of heroines in Tennessee William's dramas, will co-star with Laurence Olivier, Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner in the new, two-hour adaptation of William's "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof," to be colorcast on NBC-TV next season.

Ms. Stapleton will play Big Mama opposite Oliver's Big Daddy. Ms. Wood is to portray Margaret (Maggie the Cat) and Wagner is cast as Maggie's husband, Brick. This Pulitzer Prize-winning drama is the first play selected for "A Tribute to American Theatre," the series of major specials drawn from the works of leading 20th century American playwrights.

Ms. Stapleton attained stardom on Broadway in a Williams play, "The Rose Tattoo," and has acted in stage productions of his "27 Wagons Full of Cotton," "Orpheus Descending" and "The Glass Menagerie." She won a Tony Award for her performance in Neil Simon's "Gingerbread Lady." Her stage credits also include: "Detective Story," "The Seagull," "Toys in the Attic" and "Plaza Suite."

She received an Emmy Award for her starring role in "Among the Paths to Eden." Ms. Stapleton also starred in the special, "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom," and in a made-for-TV movie, "Tell Me Where It Hurts." Her motion picture include "The Fugitive Kind," "A View From the Bridge," "Bye, Bye Birdie," "Airport" and the film version of "Plaza Suite."

Durante Is Guest Star On 'First Fifty Years' Special

Researching NBC-TV's "The First Fifty Years" and viewing many hours of tapes, kinescopes and film, continues to revive stories about the fabled entertainers who appeared on the Network.

"The First Fifty Years," saluting NBC's 50 years of broadcasting, will be colorcast Sunday, Nov. 21. Orson Welles is the narrator and Greg Garrison is the executive producer.

When Jimmy Durante was originating his shows from New York, in the early 1950s, he used a line in a particular song that went: "Can Iturbi play the piano?" and Jimmy would holler: "NO!" "Can Barrymore play the piano?" Again, "NO!" "Can Toscanini play the piano?" Another "NO!" "Can Durante play the piano?" Then an enthusiastic "YES!"

One day Durante was riding in an elevator in 30 Rockefeller Plaza, where NBC has its New York headquarters. The car was crowded and Jimmy did not notice a grey - haired man standing near him. On a floor below Jimmy's, the man got out, stopped, turned to the comedian and said: "Mr. Durante, I'd just like you to know I DO play the piano!" "Who was that?" Jimmy asked aloud. "That was Toscanini," he was told. Years later, Jimmy recalled: "I felt kinda embarrassed about it, maybe I hurt his feelin's."

The energetic performer who made many millions laugh with his songs and antics until he became ill in 1972, will be among many who will be seen on "The First Fifty Years."

IT REALLY HAPPENED

Earl Holliman, the cop on "Police Woman," found the shoe on the other foot not long ago. On his way to Dodger Stadium to present the Medal of Valor tributes to Los Angeles police heros, Earl was given a ticket for speeding.

'Getting Married' Airs Monday

"Getting Married" will air Monday, June 14, from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on ABC's "Wide World of Entertainment." Narrated by Cloris Leachman, the special takes viewers to actutual weddings as well as behind the scenes for a look at what goes on in Washington preliminaries.

"Getting Married" will feature a bridal fashion and merchandise show, an outdoor wedding in Hawaii, a California couple's wedding preparations (including the blood test and Tuxedo rentals), Modern Bride Magazine and its personnel, a young Jewish couple's wedding in Westchester, N. Y., and the honeymoon hotel Cove Haven in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania.

"The original idea," said producer Chuck Braverman, "was to follow two couples around . . a very big wedding, very ritzy hotsy-totsy—Beverly Hills Hotel or Fontainebleau, and then a very small, down-home kind of wedding.

"But the more we researched and the more we did, we found that there was so much more to the subject than just two weddings. In the meantime, we heard about Doug Kershaw (Cajun rock star) getting married in Houston (in the astrodome)."

Braverman and his crew went to Houston and filmed Kershaw's wedding; on the way back from Houston they stopped in Las Vegas and made a sequence on the wedding chapels on the Strip.

A onetime freelance news cameraman, Braverman has produced TV specials, corporation films and even the titles for the "Rhoda" and "Phyllis" TV series.

Putting the special together was no easy job because of the small, limited latenight budget. "We were shooting another film for another company in New York and that's how we got our crew and transportation to New York. We had a week's lay-over in New York, so we went to film the Westchester wedding and then went to Cove Haven. The Modern Bride Magazine, photography session (of bridal models) and factory sequences were also shot in New York.

"Otherwise, the show could not have been done, because most of the late-night shows have been shot in two or three days. We were working on "Getting Married" off and on for five or six months," Braverman concluded.

WEDDINGS STUDIED — Cloris Leachman is the hostess of "Getting Married," a "Monday Night Special" which examines the jobs and tribulations of taking the step into marriage and focusing on the experiences of actual couples, on ABC Channels 3W-5-12.

Sprightly Ghosts

Sid Caesar and Vera Miles find their new vacation home already inhabited-by a trio of very sprightly ghosts - in "The Spirit Is Willing," the "CBS Late Movie" airing Wednesday, June 16, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 3N-9-11.

Barry Gordon, John McGiver, Cass Daley, Jill Townsend and John Astin are also starred in the movie.

In "The Spirit Is Willing," a peaceful New England vacation planned by Ben and Kate Powell (Casesar and Miss Miles) and their son Steve (Gordon), is quickly shattered by a trio of playful poltergeists (Miss Townsend, Miss Daley, and Bob Donner), who have had the house to themselves for a couple of hundred years.

These high-spirited haunts welcome the visitors with great clouds of colored smoke, pots thrown through windows, unexpected appearances, and a variety of other events. When the sensible parents become convinced that their son Steve is to blame for the whole thing they call in a psychiatrist (Astin), who eventually winds up in search of a psychiatrist himself.

After the resident ghosts extend their area of activity to sinking two yachts, young Steve decides to hold a costume party to lure them into the open and prove they're not in his imagination. At the party the spirits (formerly human), with the aid of great quantities of spirits (formerly bottled), behave like people, putting an abrupt end to the quiet family vacation.

Donny, Marie

Anne Meara, Milton Berle, Nipsey Russell, the Ice Vanities and special guest star Paul Lynde are spotlighted on "Donny & Marie," the musical-variety hour airing Friday, June 18, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Uncle Miltie joins Donny and Marie Osmond in a comedy version of the Arabian nights, in which Berle as a female genie, grants them a $6.00 wish. Later, Paul Lynde, as a real estate agent, tries to sell a midget's house to a witch.

Anne Meara, as a housewife who adores celebrities, tries to detain Donny and Marie long enough for an autograph and a picture.

Meara Cast In 'Rhoda'

Anne Meara has been signed for a recurring role in the "Rhoda" series, which stars Valerie Harper in the title role. Miss Meara will portray Sally Gallagher, a 39-year-old airline stewardess and a strong-willed lady who offers a wealth of opinions to her friends.

The series, which returns to production June 14 at CBS Studio, is broadcast Mondays, 8 to 8:30 p.m.

Miss Meara is the distaff member of Stiller and Meara. She and her husband, Jerry Stiller, are noted for their comedy work in clubs and on variety programs. This past season Miss Meara starred in the "Kate McShane" series and her role won her an Emmy nomination. She has appeared in the feature films "Lovers and Other Strangers" and "The Out of Towners".

In addition to her success as a comedienne, Miss Meara has an interest in serious drama and has a number of dramatic credits, including a role in Off Broadway's "The House of Blue Leaves."

Roberts, Lewis Combine Talents

Few people question anymore that evangelist Oral Roberts is blessed with a very special charisma. Neither do many deny the magic of Jerry Lewis. He's a special kind of nut. When the charisma of Roberts meets the magic of Lewis, you get a sensational sort of chemistry that explodes into ninety minutes of spectacular television. Oral Roberts' latest production, "We The People," is the happy result of such chemistry. The evangelist's first 90-minute special is scheduled for release on Mon., June 14, Channel 9, at 9:30 p.m.

The dyed - in - the - wool Lewis fan will delight in the many faces of Jerry presented on the Roberts special. He is at his zany best as he clowns his way through his impression of an operatic aria and stumbles to his typewriter keyboard (imaginary) for a bit that is nothing short of a masterpiece of timing.

But this special shows another side of Jerry Lewis seldom seen by the general public. In dialogue with Oral and Evelyn Roberts, and accompanied by his delightful wife of 32 years, Patti, Jerry shares some of the motives behind his extensive charity work.

'I've Got A Secret' Will Return To TV Tuesday

"I've Got a Secret," one of television's most popular game shows, which enjoyed a run from 1952 to 1967, launhes a four-week summer session when it premieres Tuesay, June 15, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9.

The original "I've Got a Secret" went on the air in June of 1952 and was one of the top-ten rated programs for ten straight seasons.

Bill Cullen, who will emcee the show, has compiled one of broadcasting's longest winning steaks - he has never been unemployed since he entered the medium at the age of 19.

The witty and personable performer began his broadcasting career in his native Pittsburgh, when he took a job at a local radio station while enrolled as a pre-med student at the Univerisity of Pittsburgh. Quickly realizing that a radio career was what he really wanted. Bill quit school after a year as a student.

In 1944, Cullen moved to New York and snared a position as a staff announcer on NBC. His first game show was "Winner Take All," which was on radio from 1946 to 1950, when it moved to television.

Never at a loss for words or the bestowing of prizes, Bill is perhaps best remembered for the very successful show, "The Price Is Right," which he hosted for nine years. He also hosted "Eye Guess," "Three on a Match," "The $25,000 Pyramid" and "Winning Streak."

An unusual indication of Cullen's popularity and professionalism is that at one period during the 1960's he was appearing on all three networks - "Eye Guess" on NBC-TV, "The Price IS Right" on ABC-TV and "I've Got a Secret" on CBS-TV.

In addition to his rather busy schedule in broadcasting, Bill has managed to maintain a varied assortment of hobbies and interests. He is a qualified pilot, an experienced sailor and an avid collector of reference books and paintings. His other activities include photography, auto racing and watching professional football games.

Along with Cullen on "I've Got a Secret" this summer will be Richard Dawson, a regular on "Match Game '76," as a regular panelist. Henry Morgan, Elaine Joyce, and Pat Collins, Arts Editor for WCBS News, New York, will be featured as recurring panelists.

The panelists will try each week to ferret out, by cross-examination, the 'secret' panel during the question-and-answer sessions. Slides reveal each 'secret' to the viewing audience before the questioning begins.

SECRET? — I've Got a Secret — the popular game show, will return to television in prime time Tuesday, June 15 (8-8:30 p.m.) on CBS-TV. Bill Cullen will emcee the series — with Richard Dawson as a regular panelist. Henry Morgan, Elaine Joyce and Pat Collins will be featured as recurring panelists.

'The Gong Show' Premieres Monday

"The Gong Show," a fun-filled half hour combining the best elements of game, talent and variety entertainment, premieres Monday, June 14, 12:30 to 12:55 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Madeline David, Vice President, Daytime Programs, NBC-TV, said: "With this series we are bringing back a once very successful television form — the talent show — but in a zany, contemporary format. Amateur performers will get their chance to be seen by millions and perhaps make it big in show business.

"Each contestant performs for a panel of celebrity judges and a studio audience and is rated by the panel on a scale of one - to - 10. If a judge decides the talent is below certain acceptable standards during the performance, the act gets "The Gong" and is rejected. You can expect a lot of humor in this show. The talent that will be featured will be as wide-ranging and varied as the delightful performers everyone enjoyed on the 'Major Bowes Amateur Hour' — bell ringers, cellists, rock groups, singers, impersonators, etc."

The winning performer each day will receive valuable prizes and will have the opportunity to return to compete against other winners for the top prize — a professional engagement at a club or cabaret.

John Barbour, Emmy-winning critic - at - large of "Newscenter 4," the NBC-TV station in Los Angeles, will be host of the show which will air Monday through Friday.

Rogers Hates To Spend Money

"I am known all over town for being tight-but only with myself," says Wayne Rogers, a financial expert and star of "City of Angels" Tuesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

In the series, Rogers appears as Jake Axminster, a penny-pinching private detective of the Depression era.

In real life he is a financial expert with sizable investments in real estate-commercial and residential complexes, oil wells, Canadian forest land, a computer company and a vineyard-and his advice is sought by investors, including a number of the nation's wealthiest financiers, friends and stars such as James Caan and Peter Falk.

'Lannigan's Rabbi' Airs

Stuart Margolin, who frustrates Jim Rockford (James Garner) from time to time as ex-convict Angel Martin on "The Rockford Files," appears in a more pious role — Rabbi David Small — in "Lanigan's Rabbi," an NBC World Premiere movie and program development project on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" June 17, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7-28.

Before filming got under way, Stuart was happy to learn that co-starring as his wife would be his friend, Janet Margolin, who is not related to him.

Inevitably, there were comments about Stuart and Janet playing the Smalls.

"They would say, "Oh Stu, we didn't know you were married,' and things like that," Stuart said.

But something good came out of this "family" affair.

Stuart has always pronounced his name MarGOlin, with the accent on the second syllable, while Janet has always said MARgolin, with the accent on the first syllable.

"Coming from Texas that's how people pronounced it," said the actor.

"Coming from New York, that's how we always pronounced it," the actress said. "But in Hollywood, it's always pronounced incorrectly."

The actor said: "I think the way Janet says it is correct."

No Ego Hangups For Veteran Star

During a production lull in the filming of "Murder or Mercy," airing on the "Wednesday Movie of the Week," June 16, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12, a pretty young extra said to a tall grey-haired man: "You look like someone important." To which the man answered, "I guess I am — I'm playing a famous doctor in this film." The extra asked, "Oh. What's your name?" "Melvyn Douglas," was the answer.

Douglas tells this and other anecdotes about himself with wry amusement. The veteran actor, whose great talent won him an Oscar for the motion picture, "Hud," and who starred in the Emmy-winning "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night," has no ego hangups.

Douglas long ago stopped calling the West Coast home. He and his wife have a house in Fairlee, Vermont, where they spend about six months a year, and an apartment on New York's Riverside Drive.

The powerful dramatic role of Paul Harelson, MD., doctor-writer, was strong enough to bring Douglas to Hollywood, then on to San Diego, where much of "Murder or Mercy" was filmed.

The 90-minute movie stars Bradford Dillman and Denver Pyle as Sam Champion and his father, Amos, a pair of attorneys who call Nashville, Tenn., home base but who fly to the West Coast to defend Harelson.

In the story, Douglas, as Harelson can no longer withstand the anguished pleading in the eyes of his terminally-ill wife (Mildred Dunnock) and gives her a lethal shot of morphine to end the suffering and indiginities she is undergoing.

"I'm well aware that such a subject is a highly personal and controversial one," says Douglas, "but I'm glad it is being brought out in the open for discussion."

Douglas is used to being confused with Walter Cronkite (and vice versa) and seldom disillusions anyone who calls out, "Hi, Walter." "Why disappoint them?" he asks. "I just 'hi' back."

He well remembers his first movie, "Tonight or Never" (1931), in which he co-starred with Gloria Swanson, because "That's when I met my wife."

As for the glamorous Gloria, Douglas says, "She is an amazing woman. She was married to the Marquis de la Falaise at that time and during the filming discovered she was pregnant. We had more than the usual share of rest periods.

Car Theft Scanned

Have you heard the joke about the guy who bought a set of tires from a stranger in a bar only to discover that he had paid for rubber he already owned? It is not a joke. This sort of thing does happen, and ways to avoid it are illustrated on "Street Safety and Car Theft," the fourth program in ETV's "Burglar - Proofing" series, Tuesday, June 15, at 10 p.m. on UNC-TV.

TV host Kene Holliday, assisted by ex-burglars Pete and Fred, explains techniques that are effective in protecting valuables locked in an automobile and demonstrates ways to deter a thief from lifting the car itself.

In his expose, Holliday mentions some startling statistics which point to owner carelessness as a prime inspiration for auto rustlers. For example, "40 percent of all car thefts are encouraged by car owners who leave their keys in the ignition," and "25 percent are due to invitations like unlocked doors and open or cracked windows."

In the second part of the program Holliday shifts gears and focuses on street safety, with the aid of Baltimore policewoman Linda Weinstein.

DIANA ROSS HITS CHART MARK

Diana Ross, Motown Records artist, has the distinction of being the only female singer who has ever scored a total of four No. 1 records on the Billboard charts.

Her chart-toppers are "Love Hangover," "Theme From Mahogany," "Touch Me in the Morning" and "Ain't No Mountain High Enough."

Winfield Won't Forget The Night

TEACHER— Paul Winfield, starring as the Rev. J. A. Delaine, urges a teacher in a rural black school (Ethel Ayler) to help him in his struggle for civil liberties, in "With All Deliberate Speed," on "The American Parade," airing Wednesday, June 16 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Paul Winfield won't soon forget the night of Saturday, Nov. 8, 1975. The actor has a memento to remind him of it: a scar resulting from nine stitches taken in his right eyebrow. Moreover, he will recall that was also the night CBS Burned the house down.

The occasion was the filming of "With All Deliberate Speed," a special program in "The American Parade" series, to be shown Wednesday, June 16, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-Channel 9-11.

The special dramatizes a little-known civil-rights legal battle which took place in South Carolina in the late 1940's and went on to become the cornerstone of the historic 1954 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that all American public schools be desegregated "with all deliberate speed."

In the film, Winfield, who was nominated for an Oscar for his role in "Sounder," plays the minister who was the prime mover in that struggle.

The first of two scenes being filmed that night in rural north Florida called for the Rev. DeLaine (Winfield) to be sitting in his house when he hears gunshots; he lunges to the floor, a bullet shatters the window, and he returns the fire with his own rifle.

On the fifth take, about 10:30 p.m., the timing between Winfield's dive to the floor and the remote-controlled breaking of the window by a special-effects device was just a fraction of a second off and shared of glass caught him above the eye. Winfield was rushed to the nearest hospital, in Thomasville, Ga., about 25 miles away.

When he returned about 1 a.m., stitched, bandaged and the corner of his fact swollen like a bird's egg, Winfield pronounced himself fit enough to continue work and the next scene was set up.

That scene called for the house to be burned to the ground and for DeLaine to save his family from the flames and plead with firemen to save the house.

The ramshackle house had been purchased, and arrangements made, by CBS News for just that purpose. Now, with a fire truck from the Monticello (Fla.) Fire Department standing by — along with a couple hundred local residents who had heard of unusual goings on and had gathered from miles around to watch — the biggest bonfire in Jefferson County history was ignited.

While the cameras kept rolling, the actors went through the dramatic scene over and over without stopping. By 2 a.m. the house was charred, smoking heap and the unrepeatable footage was safely on film.

Because of the logistics of filmmaking, scenes are shot out of consecutive order. Thus a scene to be shot next Monday, with Winfield's face swollen and discolored.

'Monteith Show' Premieres

Kelly Monteith welcomes his "old friend" Freddie Prinze as his guest for the premiere episode of "The Kelly Monteith Show," Wednesday, June 16, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV. Also appearing on the summer half-hour comedy-variety series are regulars Nellie Bellflower and Harry Corden.

The title star, a noted monologist, has appeared with Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin and Mike Douglas, and in Las Vegas and other nightclubs in the nation. Making his debut as star of his own television series, he is spotlighted in comedy routines and sketches accompanied by his engaging monologues.

In the premiere episode, Monteith and his guest star sing a duet, "Show Biz," and wrap up the song by discussing the pitfalls of the entertainment industry. Prinze plays a maharishi who tries his best to conduct a meditation with his followers but is constantly interrupted by Monteith, a well-meaning but irratating aide, in a comedy sketch, "Maharishi Go Boom." In another sketch, Monteith, Ms. Bellflower and Corden tackle the red tape of bureaucracy in trying to correct a misspelled name on a marriage license less than an hour before the ceremony is scheduled.

He Thinks He's Sherlock

Bumbling police officer Sherman Holmes (Larry Hagman) has a slight run-in with a motorcycle, and as the result of a concussion, believes he is the legendary detective Sherlock Holmes, in "The Return of the World's Greatest Detective," a World Premiere movie to be colorcast Wednesday, June 16, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

JOHN LINDSAY— former Mayor of New York City, will be host and narrator of "ABC News Closeup: Portraits" on Thursday, June 17 (10-11 p.m.) on Channels 3W-12. In a magazine-type format the program will present portraits of current events and personalities in the news.

Lindsay Hosts 'Closeup'

The "ABC News Closeup" series will depart from its regular format to present a single, one - hour magazine program with John V. Lindsay as host and narrator, Thursday, June 17, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-12.

The announcement was made by Marlene Sanders, ABC News Vice President and Director of Television Documentaries. Mr. Lindsay, New York's former Mayor, also conducts interviews worldwide for the network's "Good Morning America." "ABC News Closeup: Magazine" will be produced by Pamela Hill.

Ms. Sanders said the program will present the first United States television portrait of the great Soviet classical ballet dancer, Mikhail Baryshnikov, who has triumphed in modern roles created for him by American choreographers. "ABC News Closeup: Magazine" further examines how government agencies, including the Pentagon and State Department, have helped create a climate favorable to corporate bribery overseas. The program also includes a newsmaker interview and a report exploring the inequities and obstacles faced by American women athletes — even those who will compete in the 1976 Summer Olympic Games.

"We believe this program," Ms. Sanders commented, "will provide an exciting balance of topical news, powerful human interest and investigative journalism. Mr. Lindsay will be an important asset. I am delighted that he is taking on the assignment as host-narrator."

The new hero of American dance is Mikhail Baryshnikov, who left his homeland at great personal cost because he thought his growth as a dancer demanded that he come here. He is now a member of the American Ballet Theatre. ABC News cameras follow him through class and rehearsal to his American Ballet Theatre triumphs and in informal discussions about his art.

The report on government and bribery shows how United States officials looked the other way when confronted with information on bribery and did nothing in the face of requests for help by American corporations overseas to avoid corrupt practices.

There'll be movies, movies, and more movies airing on TV next year. Among the films NBC will be showing in '76-'77 are "Gone With the Wind," "Airport 1975," "Front Page," "Camelot," "Sometimes a Great Notion," "Breakout," "Big Jake" and "McQ."

W. Coop," "The Long Goodbye," "The Paper Chase," "The Seven-Ups," "Sleuth," "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams," "Stepford Wives" and "Walking Tall II."

You might just be asking yourself what could be left for CBS. Plenty. Hit movies seen on CBS will be "Chinatown," "Paper Moon," "Juggernaut," "Death Wish," "Play It Again, Sam," "Save the Tiger," "Report To The Commissioner," "Terminal Man," "Badlands," "Brannigan," "McCabe & Mrs. Miller" and "Scarecrow."

Rodney Plays 'Little Dynamo'

At eight-years -old he owns a record company and a million-dollar smile that has been mass-produced onto T-shifts, sweatshirts, talking dolls, coloring books, crayons and jig-saw puzzles.

He's been a superstar for half his life — ever since he tackled the jumbo jack on the tube and increased Jack-in-the-Box sales more than $140 million.

The credits don't stop there. His movie debut was in "Blazing Saddles." Rodney Music has produced a hit single — "Take Life a Little Easier," and Rodney has been a hit on almost every talk show, upstaging personalities ranging from movie star James Garner to Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

The Rodney Allen Rippy operation, sweeping the nation faster than his account can handle, has their namesake guest-starring in "50 cents. First ½ Hour, $1.75 All Day," the episode airing on "Police Story" Friday, June 18, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7.

"He's sweet and quiet and gentle," says Freda Payne, who guest-starred along with Rodney on "Police Story."

But a photographer on the set offered another view. "He handed me his sweater and told me to put it away. And when I came in for a closeup he went after the shutter release. Other than that he's great to photograph. A real ham."

Rodney also gave a visiting reporter a little trouble when he decided to take command of the tape recorder. And then all he wanted to talk about was his dog. But at least he stayed around long enough to talk. He can get restless and no one gets in his way then. He likes the attention but only as long as he wants it, and then he'll let you know.

"He'll usually tell people he's gotta go play now," says his mother, Flossie Rippy. When and where the Rodney operation finds time to play isn't answered yet.

In addition to his guest appearances on the major talk shows, Rodney has appeared on "American Bandstand," "NBC Follies," "90 Tonight," and "The Shape of Things," a TV special in which he matched his three-foot height against that of towering basketball star Wilt Chamberlain.

Rodney is a fast-growing 45" tall, weighs an ever-increasing 45 pounds, and has an over-abundance of talent that should last him a lifetime.

RODNEY AND FRIEND — Rodney Allan Rippy portrays a youngster whose mother is killed in the "Police Story" colorcast of "$.50 the First Half Hour. $1.75 All Day" Friday, June 18 (10-11 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

'Olympic Visions' Airs

The ageless human drama of athletes trained to a fine edge, competing against each other and themselves, is examined through the searching eyes of five major moviemakers in "Olympic Visions," a unique memory of the 1972 Olympic Games making its television premiere on "The ABC Friday Night Movie" June 18, 9 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.

The cinematic artists who turned their cameras on the action and the humor of the international competition are Milos Foreman (director of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"), John Schlesinger ("Midnight Cowboy"), Russia's Juri Ozerov, Sweden's Mai Zatterling, and West Germany's Michael Pfleghar.

Juri Ozerov, presenting "The Beginning," combines an impressive array of statistics with a human look at the emotional tensions and preparations of the contestants. Pfleghar concentrates on the women in a number of events, with emphasis on the grace and beauty of Soviet gymnast Ludmila Tourischeva.

Mai Zatterling, in her widely praised entry (called "The Strongest"), provides the film's funniest moments with her look at the massive preparations for the weightlifting events (which included the consumption of 1.1 million eggs by the athletes and the use of six soldiers and a fork-lift truck to move their equipment.

Grimes Plays In Western

Gary Grimes stars in the story of a youngster whose confrontation with cattle rustlers and killers turns into a fight for his life, in "The Culpepper Cattle Company," western adventure to be shown for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," June 18, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

Grimes portrays young Ben Mockridge, whose goal is to become a cowboy. He thinks his dreams are answered when he persuades Frank Culpepper to hire him as cook's assistant. Rapidly, however, Ben learns that the life is severe and brutal. Cattle are restled, and retribution is fast and ruthless. The boy can barely keep up with the chain of events that finally force him to fight for his life.

The film was produced by Paul A. Helmich, directed by Dick Richards, and written by Eric Bercovici and Gregory Prentiss for 20th Century-Fox release.

Actress On The Most Wanted List

People talk about "getting away from it all" but few do it with such style as pretty Broadway singer-dancer Leland Palmer, one of the resident company of new-to-television talent appearong on "Dinah and Her New Best Friends," a new summer series broadcast Saturdays 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Miss Palmer, who once considered becoming a veterinarian before turning to Broadway, was in the process of driving a tractor and planting barley on a friend's farm — which happens to be located near the Arctic Circle — when she got the word from a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman that she was "wanted immediately" in Hollywood for the new summer series which stars Dinah Shore. Since the telephones in that remote area were temporarily out of order, Miss Palmer's business associate Sally Saunders prevailed upon the Mounties to deliver the message.

During another vacation the two-time Tony Award nominee hitchhiked through Europe en route to Israel for seven months, spending three months on a kibbutz, training horses and teaching dancing to children. Upon her return to Broadway, Miss Palmer said of her adventures: "My perceptions of life are keener, richer now — and enhance wonderfully my growth as a performer."

Miss Palmer displayed her versatility when she portrayed an amputee in the television movie "James Dean: Portrait of a Friend." As one of Dinah's "new friends," she hopes to enlarge her circle of fans that till now have only seen her mostly on the stage.

Benny Goodman Plays On PBS Wednesday

Benny Goodman, America's popular clarinet virtuoso, hosts and narrates a one-hour public television bicentennial music special with 403 Indiana University School of Music instrumentalists and singers, Wednesday, June 16, at 8 p.m. on PBS.

"Echoes Bright and Clear: A Discovery of American Music," features performances by many of the Indiana school's famous musical organizations and choral groups. Among them are the Philharmonic Orchestra. Symphonic Wind Ensemble, University Singers, Jazz Ensemble, Belles of Indiana, Chamber Singers and Singing Hoosiers.

The program includes just about every type of music in America's 200-year history — marches, folk songs, spirituals, orchestral suites, and jazz. Goodman introduces numbers ranging from William Billings' "America," composed in 1770, to David Baker's "The Soul of '76," composed in 1975 for jazz-rock-blues ensembles.

Other pieces include James Hewitt's rousing work, "The Battle of Trenton;" John Philip Sousa's recently rediscovered march for President Garfield's inauguration; Patrick Gilmore's lively 1957 composition, "The Norwich Cadets;" colonial-Revolutionary period songs; and 19th century folk songs.

Also included are three contemporary compositions: Pulitzer Prize winning composer Norman Dello Joio's 'Notes From Tom Paine;" Adolphus C. Hailstork's orchestral work "Celebration!," and Roger Nixon's "Music for a Civic Celebration," a musical salute to America's heritage of religious freedom.

"Echoes Bright and Clear: A Discovery of American Music, the largest and one of the foremost schools of its kind in the United States.

Betty Furness has joined Jim Hartz as temporary co-host during the summer on the "Today" program.

A nationally known radio and television personality, Ms. Furness previously has been special assistant to President Johnson for consumer affairs; chairman of the New York State Consumer Protection Board; and commissioner of New York City's Bureau of Consumer Affairs. For the last two years, she has been the consumer affairs reporter for "Newscenter 4," a news program on WNBC-TV, the NBC affiliate in New York.

ANOTHER WAY TO DELAY TOOTH DECAY

Thrush Jane Kennedy, now doing nicely with TV commercials and acting ("Black Coffee"), partners with Muhammad Ali on a kiddie LP album to be titled, "Muhammad Ali Fights Tooth Decay." Ali, of course, has the most effective way yet to forestall tooth decay—he punches out the teeth!

Mary Tyler Moore is an ardent player of word games and is addicted to crossword puzzles. While in Moscow recently, she received a copy of a New York Times crossword puzzle she had mizzed. She was amused to find the entry for number one, across in the puzzle was "author of Uncle Vanya." The famous Russian play was, of course, written by Anton Chekhov. Miss Moore felt Moscow was a particularly appropriate place to fill in the answer to a Russian literary question.

Test Yourself

Test yourself. Here are a few off-beat posers culled from Curt Gowdy's bag of sticky situations, any of which could pop up during the current season of baseball colorcasts.

(1) The batter strikes out and heads for the dugout not realizing the catcher has allowed the third strike to roll to the backstop. Entering the dugout, the batter learns what has happened and sets out for first base. The catcher retrieves the ball and throws it into rightfield, allowing the batter to make it all the way to third. Is that his legal resting place?

(2) A knuckleballer is pitching. There are two strikes on the batter, who swings and misses the next pitch. As does the catcher. The ball strikes the catcher's shinguard, then pops up into his mitt. Is the batter out?

(3) One out, runners on second and third, 3 and 2 on the batter. Next pitch is strike three. Catcher thinks there are three outs instead of two. He flips ball to the plate umpire and walks away. The umpire catches the ball and rolls it toward the mound as the runners on base streak across the plate. What happens now?

ANSWERS

(1) No, third base is not his legal resting place. Once a batter-runner enters the dugout in such a situation, he is automatically out. Had he realized his mistake before reaching the dugout steps, he could have tried for first base.

(2) Batter is out, even though it's an unusual catch.

(3) The runs count. Fact that umpire handled the ball makes no difference. Same situation as if he had been struck accidentally by a thrown ball. In both cases, ball remains in play.

Taylor Stars In 'Only Game In Town'

Elizabeth Taylor and Warren Beatty star in "The Only Game in Town," a romantic comedy concerning a Las Vegas showgirl with a fondness for men and a musician with a weakness for gambling, airing on "The ABC Movie Special" Wednesday, June 16, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

George Stevens, who won Oscars when he directed Miss Taylor in "A Place in the Sun" and "Giant," was her director again for the Frank D. Gilroy screenplay, based on Gilroy's Broadway hit.

In the story, Fran (Miss Taylor) has a lover who can't marry her because he's trapped by the wife he already has, and Joe (Beatty) has a yen to leave Las Vegas which he can't follow because he's trapped by the gambling debts he's amassed.

After the two meet, they decide to share living quarters, with "no strings, no obligations," but their pleasant life together is soon spoiled by the strings leading from Joe's hand to the dice and the obligation Fran feels to her lover — who suddenly shows up divorced.

Sports Spectacular Emphasizes Speed

Speed will be the key word when the CBS Sports Spectacular airs Saturday, June 19, at 4:30 p.m. Two automobile races and one harness horse race are to be featured on the program, where speed is of the essence.

Stirling Moss, former world champion race car driver, will provide commentary for highlights of the Swedish Grand Prix. After the Indianapolis 500, racers like champion Johnny Rutherford, A. J. Foyt and Al and Bobby Unser could be entered. The favorite will most surely be Niki Lauda, the veteran racer who has taken the Grand Prix circuit by storm.

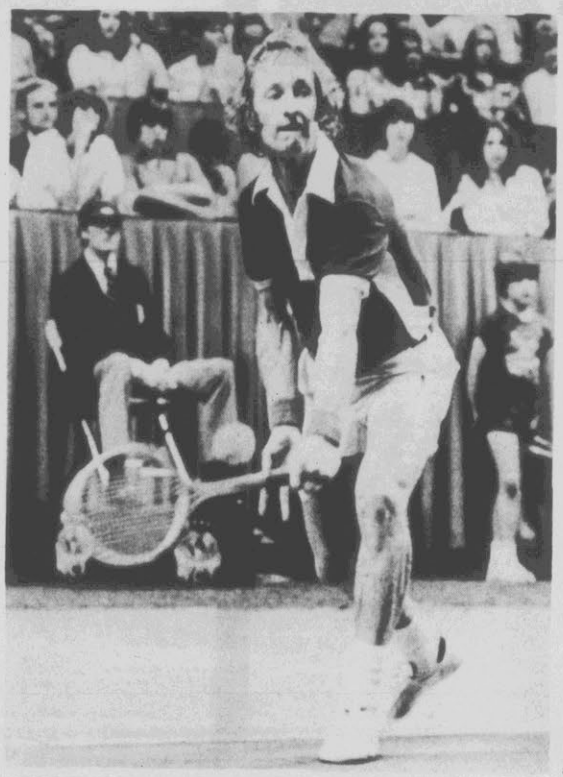
The Ascot Race Course in Epsom Downs, England will provide a naturally beautiful setting for the Royal Ascot, an unusual feature to the American sporting public. Jack Whitaker will be the commentator for this ancient, traditional event.

Also televised will be the Riverside 400, one of the fiery legs on the NASCAR circuit. Ken Squier reports on the race, along with "King" Richard Petty, the winningest driver in the history of stock car racing.

The accomplishments of King Richard over his asphalt-topped domains are indeed legendary. He has won six Winston Cup Gran National championships, with a staggering total of 177 overall wins. 1975 saw the Randleman, North Carolina native pocket an astounding $378,865, posting the best money year in stock car racing history.

The 38-year-old superstar, who has run his internationally famous STP Dodge to more consecutive victories, more "top five" finishes, and more Daytona 500 wins than anyone, attributes much of his success to his dedicated pit crew .

TV Tennis Booming



TENNIS— Veteran Rod Laver will team his left-handed tennis arm with Bjorn Borg when they meet Ilie Nastase and Arthur Ashe on the WCT Classic, Sunday, June 13, at 4:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

After a seemingly endless pattern of the same people competing against each other, professional tennis is at the media crossroads. Huge successes have been chalked up in the ratings war, but how long can it continue?

ABC will televise another exciting World Invitational Tennis Match on Sunday, June 13, at 4:30 p.m. Men's doubles are featured, with Rod Laver and Bjorn Borg challenging Ilie Nastase and Arthur Ashe.

Most confusing and distressing to fans are the tremendous assortment of play on every network, with the same players often playing on different stations at the same time! This occurs when the networks tape the tennis matches, a frequent situation that leaves even the most level - headed viewer in a constant state of bewilderment.

The massive growth in the sport, especially on a spectator basis, accounts for the huge number of tennis matches that are presently being lobbed at the fan. Every network, including the Public Broadcasting System, has gotten in on the action.

Chet Simmons, NBC's vice - president of sports operations, explains the dilemma:

"Tennis would be a very difficult sport for the networks to fight a ratings war over," says Simmons. "Its history is filled with internal squabbling, and fragmentation remains the game's biggest problem. A fan can pick up a newspaper any day and see so many tennis results coming at him from so many directions that he has to be bewildered. It isn't at all like golf, where a Johnny Miller suddenly gets hot and everybody can keep up with what he's doing. Tennis is a sport going off in different directions.

Fragmentation, as Chet mentions, is a serious problem. What with blue, green and red groups in the WCT, as well as World Team and World Invitational meets, the average fan gets lost in league titles, as well as an overdone number of "classics."

"We've got to get coordinated," hints Billie Jean King. "With taped matches you're liable to see somebody playing two or three guys in different tournaments the same day at the same time."

Still, tennis provides a constant barrage of exciting individual and doubles encounters.

Letter "Opened" Way

A special kind of excitement began pervading the membership of the Atlanta (Ga.) Athletic Club in the fall of 1972 when that club was awarded this year's U. S. Open, which will be televised exclusively by ABC Sports, Friday, June 18 (10:30 to 11 p.m.), Saturday, June 19 (4:30 to 6:30 p.m.), and Sunday, June 20 (3:30 to 6:30 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

For the members, this U. S. Open carries special significance. The Atlanta Athletic Club was the home club of Bobby Jones, one of the greatest golfers of all times. And a U. S. Open has never before been held in the South.

"It was one of his last wishes that the U. S. Open be held at his club," notes Tournament Director Nancy Jupp. "All the members have dedicated themslevest to making this the finest Open in his honor."

Indeed it was one of the great golfer's last wishes. He died in December, 1971, and during the previous month he suggested to the United States Golf Association that the U.S. Open be held at his club in 1975. The realization of his dream is taking place one year after the date he had envisioned.

In a letter to Robert K. Howse, who was then a USGA Vice President and Chairman of the Championship, Jones wrote:

"My home club, the Atlanta Athletic Club, has recently built a new country club consisting of two golf courses, each of 18 holes and the four nines being so designed that they permit consecutive play. The layout also embraces a spacious clubhouse and several ponds of some beauty.

"Although you will understand that I am not likely to take much part in a golf tournament in 1975, our membership is most eager to be awarded the privilege of entertaining the USGA Open Championship for that year; and I should be most happy if my old club should become host for my favorite golf tournament

Graham Recalls Victory

Recognition in the competitive world of professional golf never comes easy - unless, of course, you happen to win the U.S. Open. For Lou Graham, there will never quite be another week like the one last June at the Medinah Country Club in suburban Chicago. Lou captured the famed Open in 1975, assuring that his name would forever be etched in the PGA record books.

ABC Sports will once again televise exciting third-round coverage of the U.S. Open golf championship on Saturday, June 19, beginning at 4:30 p.m. The site of this year's Open will be the Atlanta Athletic Club in Atlanta, Georgia.

The soft-spoken golfer from Nashville, Tenn., has maintained a low profile on the pro circuit, but he has developed noticeable consistency that enables him to finish in the money on a week-to-week basis. Before the Open victory, Graham had won only two tournaments within eleven years on the tour.

Nevertheless, the victory at Medinah was truly unforgettable. "It really is hard for me to sit here and think I'm the U.S. Open champion," he said softly after winning. "It's the dream of a lifetime. Every kid, when he starts playing golf, dreams of winning the U.S. Open."

The win certainly didn't come easily for Lou, as he defeated young John Mahaffey in an eighteen-hole playoff. Graham and Mahaffey had tied at the end of regulation, 72-hole play with two 87's. People like Pat Fitzsimmons, Tom Watson, Frank Beard, Ben Crenshaw, and even the near-invincible Jack Nicklaus faded over the final 18 holes when it appeared that it was anyone's match.

However, only John and Lou prevailed, both participating in what many people termed the "no-name playoff." In the extra 18, Mahaffey failed to sink any birdies, losing to Graham 73 to 71.

The National Championship win helped Lou Graham to a 15th-place finish in the 1975.

GOLF— Lou Graham, surprise winner of the 1975 U. S. Open, will bring his consistent stroke to the Atlanta Athletic Club for this year's National Championship. ABC Sports will televise third round coverage on Saturday, June 19 at 4:30 p.m.

Daytime Show

"Sanford and Son," the NBC-TV's highest - rated prime - time series for the last four seasons, will join the daytime schedule Monday, June 14, 10 to 10:30 a.m.

"The Fun Factory" and "The Gong Show" will have their premiere colorcasts that same day. The scheduling of "Sanford and Son" will result in the shift of "Celebrity Sweepstakes" to 10:30 to 11 a.m.

"Sanford and Son" stars Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson as America's best - known junk dealers, Fred and Lamont Sanford. The daytime series will consist of repeat presentations from the prime - time series, which premiered in January, 1972.

"The Fun Factory" is a new comedy - variety game show with singing, dancing, sketches and audience participation for money, fun and prizes. Regulars Betty Thomas, Deborah Harmon, Doug Steckler and Dick Blasucci will assist in the show's free wheeling format.

"The Gong Show" is a version of a once-popular form — the talent show — but in a more 'now' style.

Go USA

Jack, a cabin boy comes to the aid of Captain Sand, commander of an American privateer in the war of 1812, as members of the crew mutiny in British waters, in "The Winning Side," a fictional drama on NBC's Bicentennial series "GO-USA," Saturday, June 19, 12:30 to 1 p.m.

The seamen, expecting to capture British merchant ships as prizes of war, mutiny when they are told that they may have to fight the Royal Navy. Then, with the rebellion in full swing, a British gunboat is sighted and Jack rallies the crew and saves the ship.

Portraying Jack Allen is Craig Wasson and Chip Lucia fills the role of the bosun. Jim Oyster is Captain Sand and Roger Serbagi, Paul Avery and Robert Chamberlain are cast in supporting roles.

Gilliam Plays Freeman

Helen Wainwright is a sharp, no-nonsense lawyer's wife from Manhattan who has found her "dream house" in an affluent Connecticut suburb. Freeman is a funky black dude who claims the same house belongs to him — and who just happens to be a ghost.

The comic sparks fly when the two meet on "Freeman," a special half-hour comedy presentation airing Saturday, June 19, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Helen came to Darien with her husband, Dwight, and street - wise son, Timmy, from the sophisticated upper East Side of New York. Freeman came there from the ghetto when a novelty invention gave him the means to live his version of the upper middle class life.

Unfortunately for Freeman, he died three days after moving into his new home. Unfortunately for Helen, he came back as the hippiest ghost ever to haunt a house.

Freeman is determined to reclaim his digs — and make life miserable for the Wainwrights in the process. Helen is equally committed to not giving in to her ghostly house guest. She hires a slightly - cracked spiritualist to convince Freeman to disappear permanently, but the hip spector manages to turn the tables — and the chairs, the pictures and the flowerpots — on her plan.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LOUISE LASSER,

star of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman"

Are you anything like Mary Hartman?—N.S., Washington, D.C.

● Even though I've never spent a lot of time in a kitchen, the way Mary Hartman does, I certainly have experienced her boredom and despair. I think we're both survivalists in a world that may not be worth surviving in. We're both fighters, but I think I have more hostility in me—maybe from all those years in New York City. Mary Hartman is a sad, goofy lady who probably doesn't even know she wears her dresses a size too small.

FOR SUSAN ST. JAMES, star of "MacMillan and Wife"

At the beginning of the 1974 TV season, your character, Mrs. MacMillan, gave birth to a child. The baby was mentioned only once after that. What happened?—Janice Richard, Port Arthur, Tex.

● The producers of the series decided against using the baby as a regular series character. At that time, I was pregnant with my own baby and the producers had no choice but to write the pregnancy into the scripts. Off screen, I had a boy, Harmony Lucas, born Nov. 10, 1974.

FOR ELTON JOHN

Why do you wear such outrageous clothes?—C.T., Hutchinson, Kans.

● Since I can't wear those tight-fitting leather pants like most of the rock singers do (I'm too short and wide), I go to the other extreme. Don't take my get-ups, glasses and hair too seriously. It's all a put-on. What I'm trying to say is, "Rock 'n' roll is fun. Let's have a good laugh and enjoy ourselves."

FOR BURT REYNOLDS

If you could change one feature on your beautiful face, what would it be?—Susan Ward, Savannah, Ga.

● Nothing! Otherwise, I would have.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON

Is it true that at age 15 you introduced yourself to Jimmy Brown, the Cleveland Browns' fullback, and told him you were going to be a pro star?—Jeff Thomas, Johnson City, Tenn.

● Yes, it was in a soda shop in San Francisco. And I told him that I was going to break his record for yardage gained in one season. After I broke it in 1974, I did not hear from him.

FOR ROBERT WELCH, founder of the John Birch Society

Your society seems to have quieted down. Right or wrong? A. Kravitz, New York, N.Y.

● We're more active and influential now than at any time in our 17-year existence. If it seems we've "quieted down," it's because we don't get as much attention from the media. Our aims—"less government, more responsibility and, with God's help, a better world"—are unchanged. In order to bring about the better world we seek, we're working to expose and destroy the Communist conspiracy.

FOR BARBARA WALTERS

What's your most valuable beauty aid?—N.D., Manchester, N.H.

● Electric curlers, especially those with the big rollers. They're a great gadget—fast and efficient. They're especially marvelous for me because I get up so early and haven't got that much time.

FOR JANIS IAN

Do you think your kind of singing and music will endure? —T.M., Hartford, Conn.

● Definitely not. It gets boring after awhile; so if I get bored, I imagine audiences feel the same way. Nor do I have that much of a style, so I can't modify or change it to fit new trends.

FOR SEN. BIRCH BAYH (D-Ind.)

You said Ted Kennedy told you he definitely would not run for President. Do you feel he might come in at the last moment? Would he agree to be a Vice-Presidential candidate?—Robert Langley, Waco, Tex.

● I take Senator Kennedy at his word. I don't believe he'll become a candidate this year under any circumstances. I seriously doubt he has any desire to serve as Vice President.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

How do the British feel about Princess Margaret's broken marriage?—S.P., Ogden, Utah

● At first the British press was behind Margaret. Then they started to criticize her. They asked if her zest for excitement fit in with royal traditions. They called her the least active member of the Royal Family and said she shirked her duties. Her state allowance of $70,000 annually was questioned. Sympathy turned to Lord Snowden when he tearfully stated in Australia he was "desperately sad" at the separation and asked for his two children's understanding. Veteran British actress Hermione Gingold said she sided with Lord Snowden: "I hope they don't get together again. Seems to me they've already been apart for years."

More Views on the Issues of Campaign '76 From Interviews by the Editors of FAMILY WEEKLY

It is FAMILY WEEKLY'S belief that the ideas expressed by the Presidential hopefuls of Campaign '76 deserve a longer, more thoughtful life than a mere candidacy in which to be measured. We went to most of the candidates for their views on the issues. These men prove that the victors and vanquished alike leave a lasting legacy of opinion.

Reagan, Church, Brown: A Fascinating Compendium

"I believe the Equal Rights Amendment would cause a variety of new problems that might benefit lawyers but few others. That's why I am opposed to the ERA."—Ronald Reagan

Ronald Reagan

Republican

On Selling Wheat to Russia: I wouldn't place curbs on the sale of wheat to Russia as long as they can buy wheat elsewhere on the world market. I would insist, however, that the Russians pay cash for any wheat they buy from us because the money they spend on wheat they can't spend on arms.

On the U.N.: I'm not in favor of our pulling out at this time. The U.N. is badly in need of reform, but any new organization that we would support to replace it would eventually face the same problems. However, I agree with former U.N. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan that we shouldn't take any abuse from other U.N. members. We should also reassess our financial support to make sure that other nations are paying their fair share, and we should review the channeling of our foreign aid through the U.N.

On the CIA: If the CIA has created problems it is only because the Congress and the last few administrations have not lived up to their responsibilities. It is not enough for them to wait for a major scandal to break and then to overreact. Intelligence agencies must not go beyond their charters. At the same time, we all must realize that our nation will not long survive if we destroy our intelligence capabilities.

On Education: One of the strengths of our educational system was its diversity. But as the Federal Government has seized more and more control in this area, we have lost that diversity, and the level of learning has declined. I have proposed turning back to the states the tax sources the Federal Government has usurped to fund education. In this way, the people of each state and community would regain the right to say what sort of education their children should receive.

On Women's Rights: I believe in equal rights for all persons, but I believe these rights can be protected through both state and federal laws passed under the Constitution as it now stands. I believe the Equal Rights Amendment would cause a variety of new problems that might benefit lawyers but few others. That's why I am opposed to passage of the Equal Rights Amendment.

On Secretary Kissinger: I don't think that Secretary Kissinger has abused his power,

"When small or medium-sized businesses go bankrupt, the Federal Government doesn't step in to save them. Why should there be socialism for the rich and free enterprise for the poor?"—Sen. Frank Church

Sen. Frank Church

Democrat

On Medical Care: I believe that a national health-insurance plan will eventually cover all citizens. But the hard truth is that we have not yet adequately covered the elderly, whose Medicare benefits have fallen from 50 percent to 38 percent. Until we learn how to properly care for the elderly, we don't have a workable model for the country as a whole. We must reform Medicare and Medicaid. One kind of insurance that we should adopt immediately is public insurance for all citizens against medical catastrophes.

On the Economy: Until we are much closer to full employment, there must be temporary Federally funded public works and job programs, geared as much as possible to local needs and local decision-making. We must halt the Federal subsidizing of exporting jobs that are needed here at home. Discouraging inflation requires greater competition in the marketplace. This can be accomplished by more vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws, by revising regulatory codes that either stifle business or give others an unfair competitive advantage and by restoring the viability of small businesses.

On Secretary Kissinger: Secretary Kissinger's faults have come to outweigh his virtues. His primary shortcoming is his apparent inability to realize that a successful foreign policy rests upon the consent of the Congress and the people. As President, I would select a new Secretary of State.

On Military Spending: We should vigorously pursue arms talks to reduce the nuclear arsenals that have been built up around the world. We must also encourage the development of a leaner, stronger military by establishing a ceiling on military spending and enforcing the services to work within that limit. The bloated manpower of the Pentagon must be reduced as well. There are 924,000 civilians working at the Department of Defense—that's almost one civilian for every two in uniform. And their payroll has increased 119 percent since 1964.

On the CIA: If the CIA cannot be made responsive to our elected Government officials, it should be dismantled. Nothing could be more dangerous to constitutional government than a powerful intelligence agency

"We must take the long view, rather than following the needs of multinational corporations. The question before all of us is the survival of the human species."—Gov. Jerry Brown

Gov. Jerry Brown

On Military Spending: I take the same skeptical view of the military budget as I do of all the Federal departments' budgets. I think there's a tendency on the part of every bureaucracy to expand, and I'd like to challenge certain assumptions on which the military budget grows and grows and grows.

On Tax Reform: Certainly I think those who make the most ought to pay taxes accordingly, and I'm in favor of limiting loopholes where possible, but talk of tax reforms tends to be nothing more than rhetoric. Dramatic changes in the income-tax system are unlikely.

On Jerry Brown: The virtue of my candidacy is that I represent a new generation, that I'm not encumbered by the baggage of the past and I'm prepared to review and clean house in all the Federal departments and agencies. I think I could bring to the office of President a spirit of honesty and, hopefully, recreate the momentum America had in former years.

On Women's Lib: The Equal Rights Amendment symbolizes a development that has occurred in recent years and will continue to develop—the role of women in our society is changing. Their prominence in the work force is quite evident, and the ERA will enshrine in Constitutional language a principle whose time has come. I support the ERA.

On Secretary Kissinger: His actions in some areas of our foreign policy have been commendable, but he's reaching the point where his effectiveness is limited. It's time for a new Administration and a new generation of leadership. America needs a more profound policy statement of where we and the rest of the world are headed. We have to get away from our simplistic chess-board approach. And I haven't seen in Kissinger a broad enough view of the planetary realism that I think is required of us at this point.

On Busing: In order to bring about the integration that we all need, and without which the country is going to be very unhappy in the future, we must concentrate on: adjustments of attendance boundaries so that pupils from different backgrounds, who live in the same geographical area, can have the same educational experience; "magnet schools"; voluntary busing; and the opening up of

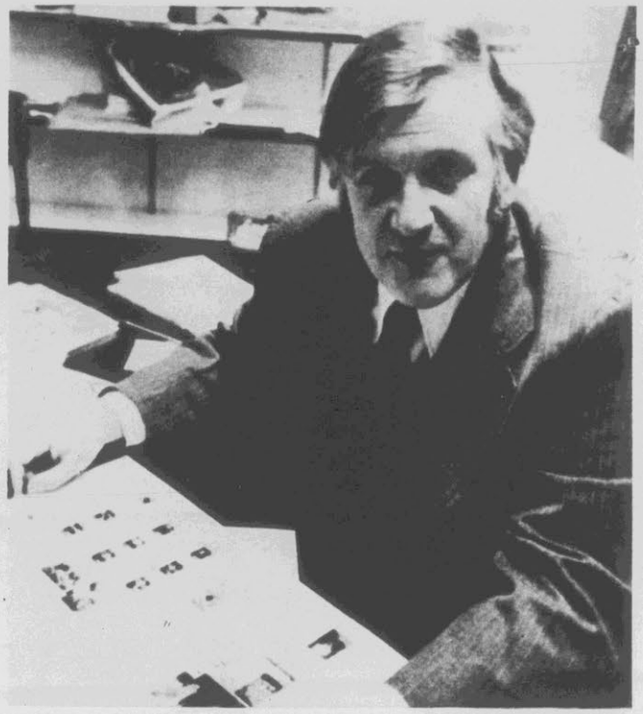
"We're looking for people to write children's books."

If you ever wanted to write and be published this is your opportunity.

by Francis Gemme



Francis Gemme, a Founder of the Institute of Children's Literature, is the President and Publisher of Gallery Books and former President of Young Reader's Press.

We need writers. There are over 150 publishers of books for children and more than 250 magazines, all of which have a need for writers.

We know that many people could help fill this need for children's writers if they could only get started. Are you one of those people? Do you have the urge to write and the ambition to work at it but are unable to get professional training? Are you tied to your home or job? Perhaps you lack confidence in your ability?

Have you ever read a children's story and said, "I can do better than that"? Have you ever deplored the lack of good new literature for young readers? Do you love children? Do you want to do something important with your life? Do you want the personal satisfaction and the rewards that come with writing for children? That very attitude may be the clue that you can do it, for the desire to write must come first.

Stories only you can write.

Once you learn to use the basic writing techniques, writing for children may be easier than you think. Your personal experiences, fantasies, personality traits, and hobbies all lend themselves to good subjects. Many of these subjects have been written about—plainly and simply—and have been published. You probably have within yourself many children's stories that only you can write.

A new kind of school.

At the Institute of Children's Literature top writers and publishers have worked together to create a professional course to teach you to write for young children and for teenagers. They include people like Lee Wyndham, a teacher and author of forty-eight books, including Writing for Children and Teenagers, Hardie Gramatky, author and illustrator of many famous children's books like Little Toot, and John Ledes, President of Astor Honor Books and publisher of many award-winning children's books. In total, these professional writers have published hundreds and hundreds of books and magazine articles for young readers. They know how to write—how to teach—and how to help you get your writing published.

Learning to write and to sell.

This course will train you step-by-step from the writing of the opening sentence through the polishing of a finished manuscript. Yes, you will have completed a manuscript suitable for submission to a publisher when you finish this course.

The success of this course has been demonstrated time and again by people who simply knew in their hearts that they could write in a way that would enrich children's reading experiences.

Your own instructor.

Because writing is a very personal experience, we believe that the teaching of writing must also be personalized. That is why, in addition to writing materials, textbooks, instruction, and assignments, you will receive personal guidance on every lesson from your own instructor.

The instructor chosen for you will be a professional writer who will remain with you throughout the course. He will show you how to use your personal feelings, experiences, imagination, and interests to write for children—in your spare time at home.

Work at your own pace.

A writing course is most effective when you can work at the time you feel most like working. With this course, there is no bell to end the class and no interruptions from other students. You and your instructor can work together at the pace most suitable for you. This flexible schedule allows more time for each student than is possible in a classroom situation.

You mail your completed work to your instructor who carefully reads and edits each assignment. He then writes you a long personal letter explaining in detail his corrections and makes specific recommendations. You receive professional advice and guidance while you work where you want—when you want.

The rewards.

Although many writers of children's books earn $10,000 to $15,000 and more a year, the benefits of a career in writing also include the challenge, the excitement, and the great satisfaction of doing something important with your life. When you complete this course, you will be a trained writer with a future. And what a future!

The market is enormous. Editors and publishers of children's literature are searching for talented writers.

Last year, more than 30 million children's books were published, producing total sales of over 170 million dollars! And over 250 periodicals for children with a combined circulation of over 60,000,000 were published. Books and magazine articles for children are frequently adapted for television and for the movies. In addition, there are twenty-six children's book clubs and a rapidly expanding children's paperback market.

Writing is truly satisfying only when your work is published and, for writers of children's literature, there have never been more publishers.

Will you take the first step?

You may be a teacher, be taking care of a home, or be a concerned grandparent. You may not even believe that you have the necessary background to become a successful writer. But, as an author, you will be judged solely on your ability to write—not on your age, sex, education, or previous writing experience.

For example, female authors appear on the best sellers list as frequently as do male authors and, in the field of children's literature, there are as many female editors as there are male editors.

Free test.

To find qualified men and women with an aptitude for writing, the Faculty and Consultants of the Institute have prepared a special Aptitude Test. It is offered free of charge and will be evaluated at no charge to you by members of our staff.

but it appears that he has lost faith in the ability of our democracy to compete with the totalitarian system of the Soviet Union. He apparently is willing to settle for second best. I am not. Second best means last if we want to preserve freedom. I believe America must take whatever steps are necessary to remain strong, free and independent. As President, I would choose a Secretary of State who felt the same way.

On the Vice Presidency: I have long believed that the Vice President is a member of the executive branch and should not serve as President of the Senate. The Vice President should be an assistant to the President serving much as an executive vice president does in the corporate world.

On Our Tax System: There is no simple answer to solving the problems of our present system, but an answer must be sought to make our entire tax system fairer. One approach would be to limit the percentage of a person's income that the Government could take. This would give Government a much-needed incentive to be more efficient and to set priorities in its spending. I think the system should also be simplified so legal help isn't required to find out how much a taxpayer owes.

On Military Spending: I believe the U.S. should spend whatever amount is necessary to insure that we have military superiority. Only if we are free from the threat of outside aggression can we build a better, freer society at home.

On Freedom of the Press: Freedom of the press is vital to the maintenance of a free society. There is an old saying that applies especially to those in public life—if you can't stand the heat get out of the kitchen. It's possible to guarantee freedom of the press; it's not possible to guarantee that a free press will always be unbiased, totally responsible and completely accurate. Most Americans understand this. Certainly most people in public life do. We must never take away the press' right to expose or criticize, even if it sometimes goes astray.

On Medical Care: There is no such thing as "free health care," as some have advocated. We can do better privately or at the state level in our present pluralistic system. I think we can alter the private medical insurance system, perhaps with some individual Government financing, so that all Americans can receive adequate medical care. I think it would also be possible to make "catastrophic illness" insurance available at a price any family could afford.

out of control. I think the CIA can be fully controlled if the President does his job and if the Congress exercises continuing oversight through the establishment of a permanent intelligence committee.

On a Federal Welfare Program: Washington cannot save the cities of America simply by substituting Federal money for municipal money. Whether it goes through Federal channels or local channels, all the money eventually comes from the people. The notion that municipal problems would be solved by a raid on the Federal treasury—which some seem to believe is an unlimited fount—is not the solution. What our next President must do is revitalize the private sector to bring employment, especially blue-collar jobs, back into those cities where jobless rates have soared.

On the Presidency: We must do away with the pomp and pageantry of the Presidency. The White House should become once more a people's house. The functions need not be exclusive and ostentatious affairs of state. Making the White House less of a ceremonial center would be especially good for the President because it would keep him in much broader contact with those he serves. And in Bicentennial 1976, it would be reassuring to know that our newly elected President has cut through the imperial trappings at the White House to rediscover America.

On Federal Aid to Defense Contractors: Once we start down this road, we abandon the foundations of free enterprise—

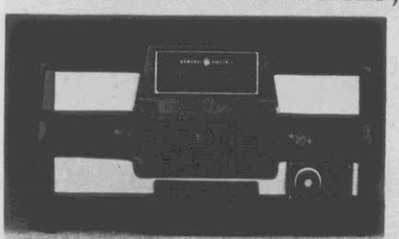
There are two sides to this broiling story. Broil both sides at once with GE's Broil-R-Grill.

The GE Broil-R-Grill broils closed, broils both sides at once. Two-sided broiling is faster. It's virtually smokeless and spatter-free. And it sears in meat juices and seals in flavor, too.

The Broil-R-Grill broils just about anything:



steaks, hamburgers, shish kebob, chicken, fish, tomatoes, bacon. And it opens flat for one-sided broiling, too, so you can broil twice as much. Grease drains into a tray, and the tray and non-stick grids go right in the dishwasher.

See for yourself how different broiling can be, when you broil with the 2-sided Broil-R-Grill from GE.

Surprising Beauty Advice By Salon Experts

The inside story on hair, skin and nail care

By Rosalyn Abrevaya
Senior Editor

HAIR: The Secret Is in Your Fingers

Stylists frequently have decreed "hands off" to running your fingers through your hair, which, they say, makes it limp and ruins the shape. But Richard Stein, one of New York's top hairstylists, believes that women should use a helping hand along with a lightweight dryer to find and train natural waves and to bend bone-straight hair into curves. The hands are good styling tools because they "feel," never tear or break the hair. When teamed with varying amounts of air from a powerful dryer (the one used here: Remington's Super Brush) hand-styling can lift hair and give it body, height and width without making it look stiff or set.

How to: First dry hair until slightly damp, then catch hair between the first two fingers of one hand, palm down. Twist the ends around the forefinger, turning the palm over so that your fingers act like a tiny roller. To give height to long hair, as the hair begins to dry, bring it all forward and aim the dryer at the base of the hair, starting at the nape of the neck. Then brush hair back into place.

SKIN: Myths Versus Facts

Christine Valmy, a pioneer in skin care, says, "Most women rely on a set of myths without understanding how the skin really works." To wit:

Myth No. 1: Wash oily skin as often as possible to reduce oil. Actually, frequent washing stimulates oil production, which is a natural skin defense against weather and heat. Instead, wash only twice a day and blot with slightly cool water in between.

Myth No. 2: Dry skin needs heavy doses of moisturizer. Too much oil drowns dry skin and forms a greasy raincoat. Dry skin glands are lazy and need to be teased into action. A little cream, no more than the size of a bean, nourishes without suffocating.

Myth No. 3: Always wash face with hot water, followed by a cold rinse. Fast temperature changes abuse the delicate skin tissues and can even break capillaries. The best skin awakener is a gentle massage with a soft complexion brush or a washcloth to slough off the top layer of dead, dulling skin.

Myth No. 4: A tan makes you look as great as you feel. Tanning is an aging and toughening process. Every month of deep tanning adds about a year to the age of the face. If you're 30, you'll look 32 next year, instead of 31. The reason is that the heat makes the skin lose moisture and causes deepening lines and furrows.

NAILS: How to Keep Them Growing

Women love long nails, says nail expert Ann Keane, but they aren't willing to protect them with rubber gloves every time they use detergents. Chemical nail building, which has become popular in the last few years, can weaken the nail bed and cause fungus growth. As an alternative, Ms. Keane suggests nail wrapping, a simple, centuries-old art to protect and strengthen natural nails. Nail wrapping in the salon or at home protects against cracks and strengthens nails to let them grow to new lengths.

First, the nail is coated with a layer of protective glue. A tiny bit of strong porous paper is pressed on the free edge of the nail with an orange stick. The surface is then smoothed to remove air bubbles. The paper is cut about an eighth of an inch beyond the nail and flipped underneath to form a tiny diaper. After seven minutes, the nail is ready for a full manicure. To wrap at home, Max Factor and Revlon nail-wrapping kits are available in most drugstores and department stores. "I just celebrated my 62nd birthday and most people take me for 42, thanks to you."

AT LAST!

Natural Face Lifting By Exercise!

Now, from Hollywood, California, comes what may be the most important beauty news of the decade. A proven, minutes-a-day method of facial muscle shortening—done in your own home with your own ten fingers—that has been called, "perhaps the only method in the world by which one can lift a face naturally"

For What Is Loose, Aging, Flabby Skin Really? Merely STRETCHED-OUT MUSCLES, That The Years Have Caused To Lose Their Ability To Hold Themselves Tight And Firm!

As Madame Rungé says, it is not the skin, but the firmness or looseness of the muscle flesh beneath that skin that really portrays a man's or woman's age.

In fact, as she points out, the collapse of the upper cheek muscles alone may cause more than 50 per cent of the aging appearance in the face. As she so vividly states:

"Between the ages of 21 and 40, for instance, the upper cheek muscles may have sagged as much as half an inch; and by the age of 60 by as much as one inch, which means that we have an inch too much hanging over the lower part of the face. This results in hollowness in the upper cheeks below the cheek bones, fullness and flabbiness in the lower cheeks, pouches from the mouth to the chin, folds above the laugh line, drooping mouth corners and jowls."

"In addition, the muscles of the upper eyelids may sag as much as half an inch or more between the ages of 20 and 60, causing eyebrows to shift down and upper eyelids to overlap lashes, making the eyes appear smaller. And those muscles attached to our throat skin may sag as much as two inches, resulting in what is termed a "turkey neck."

Thus, She Says, Since The Cause Of This Facial Aging Is Muscle Sagging, "It Stands To Reason That To Remedy It, WE HAVE TO SHORTEN THE MUSCLE GROUP RESPONSIBLE"!

"Flabby and droopy flesh is caused by muscles which have been ignored... My method of isometric facial exercises remedies the cause of the aging process of the face by tightening these sagging muscles... thereby producing a firming where the face appears flabby, and a filling out by rebuilding atrophying muscle tissues. All in a natural and healthy way, thus providing a natural youthful face which may be retained throughout life."

"And the skin itself will always adapt to the size of its underlying foundation... The skin is merely a thin covering over the flesh that has to return to the size of the muscle flesh when it is shortened through isometric exercise."

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, Read This One Paragraph—

"You cannot help but see yourself looking younger, since each correctly applied exercise in this book has the power to turn your clock back regardless of age. And, if you can afford to eliminate 20 years from your appearance, this book can teach you how to do this in 3 to 4 months."

And Says Madame Rungé: This NATURAL Way To Lift The Face Is Much More ENDURING Than Even The Finest Face Lift Through Plastic Surgery!

"Surgery can never restore the tone to either skin or muscles... It should be understood that no plastic surgeon, and in fact nothing but exercises, can tighten up unelastic muscles.

"For example, even the result from peeling off the wrinkled surface skin lasts only temporarily, since the poor muscle condition beneath the skin very soon causes the same wrinkles to form."

"A woman whose career depended on public performances consulted me at the recommendation of her plastic surgeon, after he had performed surgical skin tightening on her neck eight times."

"The new tight skin (from plastic surgery) does hold the contour of the face somewhat up, consequently giving it a rejuvenated look. Unfortunately, however, the collapsed muscle structure beneath it soon pushes the new skin downward again, which makes it necessary to repeat the 'lift.'"

But Now These Temporary, Artificial Methods, Can Be Replaced By Simple, Natural Exercise, Says Madame Rungé, WITH RESULTS LIKE THESE:

"Some people I knew were practicing grimaces, and foolishly believed they were exercising their facial muscles. But reason and logic tell us that grimacing merely misforms muscles into lines, furrows and ugly features."

"The actual application of every one of these exercises takes only about one minute. The process causes to tighten and to shorten specific muscles, by expanding them to their fullest natural limit. In this natural way, neither muscles nor skin can be overexpanded. In fact, the skin also benefits from the increased circulation."

Consequently "YOU MUST SEE INSTANT RESULTS FROM EVERY ISOMETRIC PERFORMANCE...because if you do not see results, it tells you that you have done something incorrectly."

"Each exercise takes only about (60 seconds), and has to be repeated three times in succession. With this technique, models removed wrinkles from under the eyes, crow's feet, scowl and frown lines in just a few minutes right in front of the TV camera."

"Puffiness in the upper and lower eyelids containing fluid cannot be removed surgically. For its remedy refer to the eye exercise."

"A contour fault may be eliminated in a relatively short time. However, it usually takes from three to four months to restore sufficient tone to those muscles, to enable them to HOLD the acquired condition without having to exercise every day. (After that) perhaps two or three times a week will be sufficient."

"If my exercises are applied as instructed, the results are nothing short of amazing at any age. Most of my exercises if done correctly, produce instantaneous results, especially in areas where muscles are attached to the skin – as on the forehead, underneath the eyes, and in the crow's feet area. But we also get marvelous results on parts where the muscles lie deeper, as in the cheeks and jowls, which produces an immediate lift."

Prove Every Word Of It Yourself – At Our Risk!

Try this revolutionary, proven method for one full month, entirely at our risk. If you don't see results that astound you – from the very first day...if you are not completely delighted, simply return the book for every cent of your money back!

CAN MADAME RUNGE TAKE UP TO 20 YEARS OFF THE APPEARANCE OF YOUR FACE...AS SHE HAS DONE FOR THOUSANDS OF OTHERS!

Senta Maria Rungé first introduced her FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE method through a four-and-a-half page, cover-line article in Vogue Magazine.

After the overwhelming success of this article, Madame Rungé conducted a daily half-hour television program, demonstrating to Southern Californians the amazing effectiveness of her natural method. On this live program, right before their very eyes, women all over California saw almost "unbelieveable" transformations take place in the facial contours of her mature models – and were able to duplicate these transformations, at the same time, in their own homes.

Soon, the walls of her Hollywood salon were literally covered with testimonials she received from approximately 12,000 viewers who followed the simple, step-by-step instructions given them on their television screens.

And now she has released this exact same FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE method to women all over America!

"People say to me, "What happened to you? Truly I already look 10 years younger."–O. R., Big Bear, Calif.

"My friends look at me and compliment me...I am 56 years old and like to take pride in my youthful appearance." –Mrs. T. K., Pacific Pallisades, Calif.

"I met a woman a month ago, who had the most beautiful face. She looked about 25 or 26. She told us she was 46 years old. She also told us about your method." – S. H., North Hollywood, Calif.

FROM A PLASTIC SURGEON:

As a practicing plastic surgeon for over thirty years, I have found that your work can play an important role in facial rehabilitation: and even the avoidance of excessive wrinkling and sagging.

The surgical face-lift is the only procedure that can remove the excess sagging skin in advanced cases; but even after the most complete lift, it is not long before the vertical folds on the neck and under the chin reappear.

The facial exercises as advocated by you offer promise to prevent this recurrence after the surgical lift, and possibly in many cases effect sufficient improvement that the lift could be postponed indefinitely.

The Importance Of Being Rock Hudson At 50:

"The older I get, the more independent I become. I imagine I'll probably become a crotchety old man!"

By Helen Dorsey

The last time I spoke with Rock Hudson was in his beautiful Mediterranean-style house in the hills above Los Angeles. The house is filled with antiques, and the patio contains a jungle of potted plants, many of which Rock has grown himself in his own greenhouse. That was nine years ago.

Now, as I looked at him seated in his dressing-room trailer, casually comfortable in blue jeans, I was struck by how far the 50-year-old actor has come since being a gangling kid from Winnetka, Ill. Maturity has given his face character, and his hair is just beginning to show strands of gray. He has never been known as Hollywood's easiest talker, but I found him relaxed, witty and quietly amusing.

FAMILY WEEKLY: One time you said you wanted to become an architect . . .

HUDSON: A landscape architect, actually. My interest in that kind of evolved because, as a kid, I was always growing things and working on farms. During the war, I had a victory garden. Until a couple of years ago, I had never thought about a rose being anything but a flower you send to somebody. Now I'd like to grow roses.

FW: Why do you enjoy gardening?

HUDSON: Working with my hands helps me to think. If I get uptight or upset about something, I'll immediately go to the garden and do something. If I sit in the house, I just brood and stew. I remember years ago, when I was getting a divorce, I had a new sailboat. Instead of brooding, I got out on the sailboat. I found that nothing mattered except the water and the sun. They're a great leveler.

FW: What makes you happy?

HUDSON: I'm happy because I don't really analyze anything. I haven't got time for that. There are watchers and there are doers. The doers don't analyze. I am put through too much analyzing in the kind of work I do: trying to figure out a scene, analyzing what makes it come alive. Answering the questions, Why this? Why that?

FW: Is being independent important to you?

HUDSON: Yes, I like to be independent. The older I get, the more independent I become. I imagine I'll probably become a crotchety old man!

FW: Are change and variety important to you in acting?

HUDSON: Very! Do you remember a picture that Doris Day and I did called "Pillow Talk"? The year after that film was made, I was sent scripts with a note saying, "It's another 'Pillow Talk.'" I didn't even read the scripts. Why make a repeat? Furthermore, because of "Pillow Talk," I did comedy after comedy. I got bored with that. One thing that comedy requires is enthusiasm to really do it well. I had no enthusiasm, which is exactly why I did the movie "Seconds." It was a complete reverse. It was a kind of high-class horror film.

FW: What are your secret faults?

HUDSON: Practically everything! [huge

The Four Seasons

by Norman Rockwell

A Limited Edition in Solid Sterling Silver

Spring

Summer

Autumn

Winter

(medals illustrated actual size)

OVER THE YEARS, THE ART OF NORMAN ROCKWELL has brought joy to millions of Americans both young and old. Now, for the first time, four original works of art in solid sterling silver, nostalgically recapture The Four Seasons by Norman Rockwell. Each is made available under the authorization of The Saturday Evening Post.

These beloved artworks—rich in detail and overflowing with Rockwell's tender humor—will be sculpted and minted to the uncompromising standards of The Hamilton Mint. And, each will bear the famous signature of Norman Rockwell.

Rockwell's interpretation of the four seasons is unmatched by contemporary artists. He sees the seasons as they illuminate the lives of everyday people: the puppy love of spring, summer's lazy days, twilight in autumn, and the crisp exuberance of winter. It's easy to see why these four works are rated among his most popular and may well become treasured heirlooms for future generations.

Limited Opportunity

To preserve the full importance of each work of art, the medals will measure a full 39 mm (1½") and contain 480 grains of solid sterling silver. Issued in a strictly limited edition at $14 per medal, each piece will be struck from highly polished proof dies. The fine detail of each sculptured work of art will be finely frosted to allow it to stand out dramatically against the mirror-like background of the medal. Each collection will be accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity attesting to the purity of the medals and their limited edition status. A framed plaque suitable for displaying the collection will be sent to each subscriber at no additional cost.

There is a strict limit of one complete set per subscriber. This is the only time charter subscription applications will be accepted for this collection.

The Hamilton Mint will contract for a sufficient amount of silver to guarantee the favorable price of $14 per medal to all charter subscribers whose subscriptions are postmarked by July 31, 1976. After that date, the Mint will refuse and return any or all orders received from this announcement. You are therefore urged to act promptly while this opportunity is before you.

Rock Hudson At 50

laugh] I remember years ago, I used to be painfully shy, painfully non-aggressive. There was a small part I wanted in a film being made at Universal. I went to see the casting executive. I told the man, "I would like very much to play that role." He said, "Why?" I didn't have an answer! I turned around and walked out. And why, for God's sake? I said to myself I would never be that way again.

FW: Would you describe yourself as "rather average"?

HUDSON: Yeah, absolutely. Tall, but rather average!

FW: Let's talk about your tastes in reading.

HUDSON: I'm not too well read. I've never studied Shakespeare, but I have had to read so much—reading scripts, learning lines—that I don't really get to read that much for pleasure. It's like I don't like to ride horses any more. It's too much hard work to do a Western.

FW: Are people really interested in the most intimate details of your life?

HUDSON: I don't think so. Years ago, it was much more important to report what the stars did at play. I'm free from that, but privacy is rather important to me. I keep my home very private, and it's nobody's damn business what goes on there! Years ago, I used to do "at-home" articles with writers. I remember one article that was meant to be used in a magazine. Then the photographer, without telling me, sold it to another magazine. It was never supposed to appear that way. If I'm not careful, fan magazines would be writing, "Here Is How Rock Peels His Onions" or "Here Is How Rock Brushes His Teeth." No sir!

FW: That's a good example of where you have asserted your independence. . . .

HUDSON: Yeah, sure, in my private life! Years ago, I gave interview after interview. A lot of these interviews would be in my dressing room between takes, and I would have to say to the interviewer, "Would you please excuse me? I have to change my clothes." Finally I said to my agent, "Wouldn't it be nice if I could have a larger dressing room with a partition so I wouldn't have to ask the interviewer to leave?" He went to the studio manager and said, "Could we have a little larger trailer for Rock?" The man answered, "Who the hell does he think he is, Clark Gable?" My agent said, "That's right! And he wants a kitchen and an icebox, too, or he doesn't come to work!" So I got a great big trailer. When other people like Charlton Heston, Tony Curtis, Jimmy Stewart and Lana Turner saw my trailer, they said, "Aha!" By the time they all put their demands in, it must have cost the studio a good $2 millon!

FW: Are friends and family important to you?

HUDSON: Apparently not. Had family been important to me, I'd have had a family. My mother is important to me.

FW: Your mother must be quite a remarkable woman.

HUDSON: She's tremendously independent. She's the exact opposite of a "stage" mother. She could break her ribs and not let me find out about it. I'll hear about it from somebody else. I'll ask her, "Why didn't you tell me?" She doesn't like being referred to as a movie star's mother except when she needs it! [laughing]

FW: Do you and Doris Day ever plan to do a serious drama together?

HUDSON: We both would like to. The material would have to be carefully chosen because reteaming can be very dangerous! We can't hope to retrogress to what we did 15 years ago. We're older now. So I think it would have to be something where we are our own ages and not 21-year-olds who fall in love at first sight.

We're too old for that.

What It Means to "Find Yourself"

By John E. Gibson

True or False? People who have found themselves—who have discovered their talents and abilities and the means of expressing them—tend to choose each other as mates. (See number 5.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The popular terms "finding oneself" and "self-actualization" sound impressive—but nobody knows quite what they mean.

2. People who are self-actualizing—who have discovered who and what they are in terms of their true potential—are easy to spot because they have specific characteristics in common.

3. The ability to find yourself depends to a large extent on how physically fit you are.

4. Most people agree on the most effective ways of attaining self-actualization.

5. People who have found themselves—who have discovered their talents and abilities and the means of expressing them—tend to choose each other as mates.

ANSWERS

1. False. They are succinctly defined by behavior specialists as a "balanced and harmonious development of all aspects of your personality; and fulfillment of personal potentialities." As psychologist Abraham H. Maslow has observed, "Self-actualization means working to do well the thing one wants to do. To become a second-rate physician is not a good path to self-actualization. You should want to be first-rate." It's further pointed out that learning what one is not good at also helps in discovering what one is.

2. True. Psychologist Maslow has characterized self-actualizing individuals as follows: "They listen to their own voices, take responsibility, are honest, and they work hard. They find out who and what they are, not only in terms of their mission in life but also in terms of what they wear, what they eat and whether they will stay up all night if they drink too much beer. All this is what the real self means."

3. False—according to the findings of a team of University of Wisconsin investigators who compared groups of physically disabled veterans with the nondisabled. Each individual took a psychological test that measured self-actualization. Conclusion: The theoretical assumption that physical disability hampers growth toward self-actualization was not supported. It's also significant that in overcoming a more common handicap—that of an undistinguished appearance—many a person has generated enough horsepower to achieve whatever goals he may have set for himself.

4. True. In a University of California survey, it was found that "although most of the subjects denied questioning their own identities, very few were unable to answer questions about how one finds out who he really is." Sixty-eight percent agreed that one discovers who he really is by helping someone who needs assistance, and 64 percent agreed that working hard at a difficult task is a way. Only 23.2 percent agreed that one finds one's identity by forgetting duties and inhibitions.

5. True. Studies at Duquesne University indicate that "self-actualizing people choose other self-actualizers as mates." FW

SOME COMMEMORATIVE MEDALS ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT IN GOLD. OURS IS WORTH EVEN MORE.

Our medal—the official Bicentennial medal of the Sons of the Revolution—is struck in solid .999 platinum. Platinum—called the 'king' of precious metals—is scarcer and more costly than gold. It retains its gleaming brilliance year after year. Medallic issues in platinum are seldom offered, which makes this medal of particular interest to collectors.

Offered at cost of platinum alone.

As a special one-time offer to promote platinum, this medal is being sold at the cost of the platinum it contains, based on the current producer price of $155 per ounce. It is available in three sizes: ½ oz. (1" diam.), 1 oz. (1¼" diam.), and 3 oz. (2" diam.).

Limited edition.

The medal will be double-struck from hand polished dies by the prestigious Medallic Art Company (producer of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Pulitzer Prize Medal and six of the last seven Official Presidential Inaugural Medals).

This is a strictly limited edition—with the 3 oz. medal limited to 1000, the 1 oz. medal limited to 2500 and the ½ oz. medal limited to 10,000. The medal will not be reissued.

Official medal.

This is the official Bicentennial medal of the Sons of the Revolution. The obverse features a portrait of George Washington after the C. C. Wright Independence Medal based on the famous Houdon bust. The reverse, from Hintermeister's classic painting, depicts Washington bidding farewell to his officers at Fraunces Tavern in New York. The Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York own Fraunces Tavern, and have maintained it as a museum since 1904.

Investment potential.

We believe this medal offers outstanding investment potential. Because of the extreme scarcity of platinum medallic issues, and the historical significance and classic beauty of its design, it should enjoy considerable demand among current and future collectors.

In addition, the medal represents an investment in solid platinum—a commodity which America's largest investment house is currently recommending to its clients.

No dealer orders will be accepted. The medal comes in an elegant, velvet-lined jewelers case. Allow 30 to 60 days for delivery. Offer may be withdrawn any time.

SOLID PLATINUM. A SOLID INVESTMENT.

the basic principle that private business must assume the risk for success or failure, profit or loss, in the competitive marketplace. When small or medium-sized businesses go bankrupt, the Federal Government doesn't step in to save them. Why should there be socialism for the rich and free enterprise for the poor?

On Foreign Policy: We must stand strong in those parts of the world where our vital interests are at stake, like Western Europe, Israel and the Middle East and the outer reaches of the Pacific. As far as the Third World goes, those new countries won't stay subjugated under any foreign rule for very long, whether it's Cuban- or Russian-based. We don't need to get involved in every African or Asian war that comes along.

On Détente: The part of détente I object to has to do with big American corporations trying to develop the resources of the Soviet Union on American credit and then having the whole thing underwritten by the U.S. Government. That kind of aid is really American aid in disguise, and I oppose it.

Brown

job opportunities in a very serious way.

On Crime: The Federal Government can aid in reducing crime by providing an environment of job opportunity. It can break down the barriers to job entry, encourage more skilled training and help in making the cities more livable overall. After many years of the Law Enforcement Administration and great rhetoric about crime in the streets, the Federal effort has been shown to be of limited success—prison and police problems are local responsibilities.

On the Economy: Inflation is moderating, so we should begin to look at other priorities, the first of which is taking initiatives to provide greater job opportunities to those Americans who don't have any right now. If inflation returns, I think the President needs standby authority to restrain price increases.

On the U.N.: The U.N. has a lot of problems, but those problems just reflect the confusion all over the world—the maldistribution of wealth and goods, so many new nations, imperialism, overreach, the narrow interest of so many countries and all sorts of other "human" problems. I think that America with her power and place in the world could provide a leadership-directive toward a more peaceful resolution of these problems. We haven't done well in the U.N. in recent years because our policy has been so unimaginative, because we lack a forward vision of where this country and this planet are going. We must redefine our role in the U.N. as we must redefine our foreign policy.

On Selling Wheat to Russia: By selling wheat to Russia we have enabled the Soviets to divert their gross national product into military products, and this comes back as a threat to us. I think that grain sales and other economic benefits to the Russians should be part of an overall negotiation, taking into account what the Soviets are doing around the world. I think wheat sales to the Russians can be used as an important tool in our diplomacy.

On Foreign Policy: Instead of having a foreign policy that's sterile and reactive, I'd like to see us regain some initiative. As it stands, we don't engender enthusiasm for it at home nor have our policies earned the respect of the rest of the world. We have been operating on the chess-board theory that each piece that moves left requires our intervention. Well, that didn't work in Southeast Asia, and it didn't work in Angola. I'd like to see a foreign policy that's based on realism. We must take the long view: The question is the survival of the human species. Nuclear proliferation, overpopulation, the food crisis, ecological collapse—these are potential risks that, either separately or in combination, threaten the continued viability of man. To come to terms with these problems, I'd like to see a freer exchange of ideas between America and the rest of the world. FW

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieves Pain & Itch...

Gives prompt temporary relief in many cases from hemorrhoidal pain and burning itch in such tissues.

There's an exclusive medication which actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. And in many cases it gives prompt relief for hours from rectal itching and pain in such tissues.

Tests by doctors on patients showed while it gently relieved such pain, it also helped reduce swelling of these tissues.

The medication used in the tests was Preparation H®. No prescription is needed for Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Does Your Antacid Upset Your Low-Salt Diet?

The leading antacid roll tablet may be giving you more than half your daily sodium allowance. Here's what to do!

If you're worried about salt in your diet—a case of heartburn or acid indigestion can present a real problem.

You should know that just five tablets of the leading roll antacid taken during the day would exceed more than half the allowance of sodium many doctors recommend for strict low-salt diets.

That's playing it pretty close. And that's why you ought to know about a tablet that absorbs more excess acid than the leading roll brand—yet contains far less sodium. Its name is Bisodol® Tablets. (Bisodol Powder does contain sodium bicarbonate for people not concerned with low-salt diets.)

Bisodol Tablets quickly relieve that miserable heartburn and acid indigestion, and it's good to know you can take them whenever you need them—without worrying about sodium.

Remember, Bisodol Tablets... are low in sodium—high in antacid power.

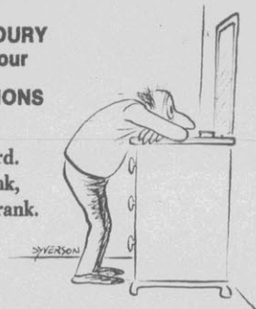
SOBER REFLECTIONS

A mirror doesn't say a word,
At least one I have never heard.
And yet a mirror I should thank,
For I've no friend who is so frank.
A mirror doesn't hesitate,
I haven't any need to wait.
Unflinchingly it does its duty



And lets me know that I'm no beauty,
That I've a nose that gets attention
But no one has the nerve to mention,
That if I've hair at all, it's thin,
That I could use a bit more chin.
All this and more from it I've learnt:
I know it's right but wish it weren't.

Kissing is a means of getting two people so close together that they can't see anything wrong with each other. —Gene Yasenak

Last Saturday night we were going out, so my wife put on her five-inch-heeled shoes, a blond wig, blue eye shadow, false eyelashes and silver lipstick. Then she went into the kids' room and said, "Now drink your milk, go to bed at nine, and I don't want to hear from the baby sitter that you caused any trouble!" She blew them a kiss and left. One kid turned to the other and said, "Who was that?"

Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

After his mother had scolded him, my 5-year-old grandson said he was going to run away from home. Thinking to get the better of him, his mother replied, "That's wonderful." But he shot back a final threat: "And I'm going to come back, too!" —Helen LaMance

JACQUELINE ONASSIS
A Firm Handshake, Too

In no way did she mean it as a criticism of Jackie Onassis, said singer Tina Turner, who met Jackie recently in New York and related: "She's got peach fuzz. It's all along her chin and jaw line. And her face is enormous. She also has a lot of hair. Too much. But she has a nice smile, a firm handshake and is a good dresser. I liked her overall look." And how does Jackie stay so slim? It's a mystery according to restaurateur Stephen Bruce, whose chic New York establishment, Serendipity, Jackie frequents. Bruce talking: "Jackie almost always orders an omelet with caviar and sour cream. With it, she has a frozen hot chocolate. Her son, John, is usually with her and he has a foot-long hot dog with chili, onions and parsley on it; and he sips a frozen apricot 'smush.' Her bill, even with taxes and tip, is normally under $15 for lunch."

Tina Turner

Great "inside" baseball story: "It was two days after the 1973 World Series. Dick Williams had managed Oakland to the championship, then resigned. At the time, Charlie O. Finley, the flamboyant Oakland owner, gave his blessings. He had another manager in mind. He made a long-distance call to the Reds' manager, Sparky Anderson. 'I'd like you to manage my ball team,' said Finley, his deep, gruff voice making it sound more like an order than an offer. Anderson cut him short. 'I'm not interested at this time,' Anderson said to Finley. 'You do flatter me, telling me I'm the first man you offered the job to, but I'll never leave Bob Howsman [the Reds' general manager]. He brought me to the big leagues. He gave me a helluva club. I owe everything to him. I'll never even consider another offer until he tells me I'm through.' Finley didn't seem shocked. To the contrary, he answered, 'I'm sure glad there's still someone with integrity left in this game.' A few days later Finley filed suit to keep Williams as his manager, successfully preventing him from taking a job as manager of the New York Yankees." DEEPNELL WEIGHS IN
He's not to be toyed with

Pekingese dogs are notably tiny, but Deepnell Tookee-toee-toee barely tips the scales at half a pound. Deepnell is thought to be the world's smallest "toy" dog—in fact, the only big thing about him is his Oriental name. "All his brothers and sisters are at least twice his size," said owner Lisa Gray. "But while he may be the world's smallest runt, he's more than just a ball of fur. Pekingese make excellent house pets and their protective instincts will surprise you."
