

U.S. Personnel In Lebanon May Use Helicopters To Evacuate

By EDWARD K. DeLONG
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is considering a helicopter evacuation of Americans from Lebanon if fighting continues to block the overland escape route to Syria, administration sources said Saturday.

rescue airlift because it poses the risk of U.S. military involvement in war-torn Lebanon. The Beirut airport has been closed, and Marine helicopters would have to be used.

The White House has said in recent days no U.S. troops will be used in Lebanon and no U.S. air cover was anticipated. But heavy shelling on the road to Damascus kept an evacuation caravan of hundreds of Americans and Britons from leaving Beirut Saturday, and Ford met with his White House crisis team.

and administration officials in Washington said an airlift was under consideration.

A Pentagon spokesman refused to discuss the possibility of an airlift would be launched. But one military source told UPI: "It depends entirely on the situation on the ground (along the 100-mile escape route to Damascus)."

Warships from the U.S. Sixth Fleet, including the aircraft carrier America and the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal, are steaming in the eastern Mediterranean off the Lebanese coast.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Guadalcanal has 15 to 20 large helicopters that could be thrown into the evacuation effort if the President gave the order.

"Elements of the Sixth Fleet have been for some time and will remain in a position to assist in the evacuation of Americans from Lebanon if that should become necessary," the spokesman said. "We have the forces available if they are needed. They are able to do the job if they have to."

The Pentagon refused to give the airlift capability of the Guadalcanal for security reasons. But a spokesman said the 15 to 20 helicopters aboard the ship were a mixture of CH53s with a capacity of 30 people each, and CH46s with a capacity of 16 each.

It would be relatively easy for the helicopters to set up a shuttle between the Guadalcanal, 50 miles or less off the Lebanese coast, and a pickup point in Beirut. If necessary, Marine and Navy fighters from the America could provide air cover.

There are 1,100 to 1,400 American citizens in Lebanon. Administration officials said they were unsure how many might want to flee, but 120 Americans were among the 300 persons who assembled at the British Embassy Saturday.

American and British spokesmen said the convoy would be reassembled for a second try at 1 a.m. EDT today.

"This may be the last convoy organized on an intercommunal basis and therefore everyone is urged with the utmost urgency to take it," a British official said.

Bodies Returned

By HENRY KEYS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Air Force jet returned the bodies of two murdered U.S. diplomats from Lebanon Saturday amid reports President Ford was considering an airlift to rescue hundreds of other Americans from war-torn Beirut.

Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and other senior State Department officials joined in the mournful arrival ceremonies at Andrews Air Force Base. Ford said the slain men had been "ruthlessly murdered in the service of America ... searching for peace."

An honor guard fired a 19-gun salute as the flag-draped coffins of U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy and Economics Counselor Robert O. Waring were removed from the plane by Army, Navy and Air Force pallbearers. The Navy band played a hymn.

Meloy, Waring and their Lebanese chauffeur were kidnapped and shot by terrorists Wednesday in Beirut.

"The tragedy that befell them has struck deep in the hearts of the American people," said Ford, who left the White House and his anxious watch over an abortive overland evacuation effort Saturday to pay homage to the murdered diplomats.

"This is a moment of sadness for Americans. Unfortunately, there are too many places ... where there is an advantage to destroy the peace."

Lebanon was once a place of peace, Ford said, but "those times have been replaced by fear, destruction and loss of hope."

The bodies of the diplomats were taken by convoy Friday from Beirut to Damascus, then flown to Greece.

Waring's widow, Irene, boarded the blue-and-white C135 jet transport at Athens to fly home with her husband's body. Two of her children, Michele and Richard, and her husband's brother, the Rev. Olaf Waring, were with her.

The body of Meloy, a bachelor, was accompanied by his brother David and two friends — L. Dean Brown, recently the special envoy to Lebanon, and Frank Valeo, secretary of the U.S. Senate.

Sweden's King Carl Weds German Woman

By EMIL SVEILIS
STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — King Carl XVI Gustaf made Silvia Sommerlath of West Germany his queen Saturday in a wedding with the commoner with whom it was "love at first sight" at the 1972 Olympics.

Carl Gustaf and Queen Silvia were leaving for a two-week safari honeymoon in Kenya shortly after the wedding luncheon.

The glittering royal ceremony was the first wedding of a Swedish monarch since 1797 and took place before 1,400 mostly dignitary guests.

"Yes," said the king and then his queen, when asked by Swedish Lutheran Archbishop Olof Sundby if they would take each other in holy wedlock, "for better or for worse."

Then the new queen and Carl Gustaf walked up the aisle of the 700-year-old Great Church hand-in-hand.

The bride wore a simple but elegant white satin wedding gown from Dior and trailed a 10-foot long train made from velvet and family heirloom lace. On her head she wore a tiara in red gold with cameos and pearls which belonged to the late Princess Sibylla, the King's mother, and carried a bouquet of jasmines and orchids.

The King wore his admiral's uniform with one decoration around his neck and two grand stars. In accordance with German tradition, it was a single ring ceremony, with Silvia's diamond wedding ring carried on a velvet cushion by a bridesmaid.

The Swedish Broadcasting Corp. said the wedding was seen on live television by about 400 million persons around the world. Police said 200,000 persons lined the streets of Stockholm to catch a glimpse of the royal couple as their cortege snaked through the streets after the ceremony.

Ford Within Eighty Votes

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International President Ford got within 80 delegate votes of the Republican nomination Saturday, taking a slim majority of Iowa's 36 GOP convention delegates and taking at least one more delegate than expected in Ronald Reagan-dominated Washington state.

Although Reagan was expected to get as many as 31 of Washington's 38 delegates and gain an advantage over Ford in the number of delegates chosen Saturday, Ford was still well ahead in the race to get the 1,130 delegates needed for nomination.

Canadian Air Strike

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association Saturday directed its 2,800 pilots across the country to cease all operations at 3 a.m. EDT today because of "rapidly deteriorating air traffic control" brought on by a dispute over the use of French in flight communications.

The move will bring air line traffic to a virtual standstill, and came only hours after a federal court injunction prohibiting a strike by air traffic controllers.

In addition to Ford's 19-17 victory in Iowa, the President won 13 of 17 delegates in Delaware, with the other four uncommitted, and won seven of the first 21 selected in Washington. He had been expected to do no better than six. Reagan also won four in Texas and three in Colorado.

With 17 Washington delegates remaining to be chosen Saturday night, Ford had a total of 1,052 delegates to 933 for Reagan and 96 uncommitted.

It takes 1,130 delegates to win the nomination and Ford was 78 short with 161 to be chosen after Washington.

Ford also appeared to be making inroads among West Virginia's 28 officially uncommitted delegates. He met with Gov. Arch Moore at the White House and was told 20 delegates are supporting him — which is one more than previously credited to the President.

Jimmy Carter, the prospective Democratic nominee, addressed two church groups Saturday and picked up 20 more delegates from Texas. He also was likely to gain support at the Utah Democratic convention, although he originally won only four of the 18 delegate slots.

Carter now has at least 1,559 delegates, 54 more than needed for the nomination.

Pitt Skydivers In Scout Event

Two Greenville men were in on the celebration ceremonies Saturday morning at Halifax when the Tuscarora Boy Scout Council ended their 100-mile Bicentennial pilgrimage.

Glen Sanderson and Jamie Guin were among four skydivers from the Mount Olive Sport Parachute Club who jumped into the pilgrimage campsite about 9 a.m. Also involved were T-Sgt. Earl Imes and First Lt. Kim Koehn, both of Goldsboro.

Sanderson has over 220 jumps and Guin has about 450. Sanderson is employed as a computer operator at U.S. Industries in Farmville. Guin is a junior at East Carolina University, the youngest member of the parachute team.

The team members have a combined total of about 1,300 jumps.

The skydiving event was one of the highlights of the scouts' week-long trek, which began last weekend in Fremont.

Both Guin and Sanderson were excited about their jump from 4,500 feet.

The Boy Scouts were not the only ones entertained by the parachutists. Saturday's ceremonies were attended by Air Force Gen. Daniel James and Lt. Col. Ray Schrupp, a former prisoner of war in Vietnam who marched with the scouts. A U.S. Marine Corps Band from Cherry Point led the boys back into Halifax Saturday.

Troop 660 of Smithfield presented the Halifax Pageant at 4 p.m. Saturday, a story of the events leading up to the signing of the Halifax Resolves, which distinguished North Carolina as the first colony to approve independence from England. The pageant was written and directed by Jim Smith of Goldsboro, a former professional actor.

School Board Meets Monday

The regular June meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education will be held Monday, June 21 at 8 p.m. in the multipurpose room at South Greenville Elementary School.

Primary interest items on the agenda include those in the category of budget-finance and consideration of facilities.

Collected 110 Pints

Friday's Bloodmobile visit to Procter & Gamble Co., the first blood drive at the new Greenville plant, resulted in a gratifying 110 pints of blood donated, according to acting Blood chairman Billy Ross.

Ross said that 11 persons were rejected during the donation period for various health reasons.

He said that both Bloodmobile and plant officials were pleased with the company's first blood drive here and thanks were expressed to the emergency medical training team at Procter & Gamble for its sponsorship of the visit.

Ross also thanked the Greenville Service League women for their help during the visit and Procter & Gamble for making the facilities available.

A special Bloodmobile visit is scheduled for July 7 at Wright Auditorium at East Carolina University. The visit will be open to the general public, it was pointed out, as the local Blood program attempts to meet the always heavy summer blood demand.

Holshouser Rejected As Convention Delegate

By ELIOT BRENNER

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — A state GOP convention dominated by Ronald Reagan backers rejected Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. Saturday and refused to seat him in the state's delegation to the Republican national convention.

On a vote of 2,303 to 1,463, the convention delegates approved a slate of 21 at-large delegates offered by the Reagan faction, which earlier won a procedural battle to allow swifter introduction of its slate.

The election of the pro-Reagan slate will not affect the first ballot cast by the state at the national convention, but control of those delegates will give Reagan added leverage on convention committees.

Holshouser, however, will still be going to the Kansas City convention to work for Ford.

He was Ford's Southern campaign coordinator.

"I'll be on the floor at Kansas City," said Holshouser.

The governor was booed when he rose to oppose a change in the rules, allowing the Reagan forces earlier introduction of their slate.

"I have to admit that in my mind, it reminds me of the old saying that 'the best form of government is a benevolent dictatorship or monarchy,'" he said.

The Ford backers cheered him, while the Reagan forces booed him.

Also rejected was 9th district Rep. James Martin.

The vote on the rule change, signaling the strength on the Reagan forces, was 2,308 to 1,568.

In a conciliatory move, Holshouser nominated one of Reagan's staunchest allies, Sen. Jesse Helms, saying, "Perhaps the olive branch is the most important weapon in politics."

Convention members applauded his move. However, Helms in a letter, said he wanted his name withdrawn if he was nominated.

Introduction of the Reagan slate by Dr. John Hall of Guilford County sparked some bitter floor debate with Ford backers claiming they would be denied a voice at the convention.

One of the 21 persons on the slate is state Chairman Robert Shaw, who was expected later in the day to be named head of the state's delegation.

Shaw was expected to be the state's one uncommitted delegate and vowed, "I ain't going to vote for either one of them" (Continued on page A-2)

Stringent Policy Adopted On Overdue Library Items

A policy of stringent efforts to recover books, records, and other materials long overdue at Sheppard Memorial Library has been placed into effect.

Miss Elizabeth Copeland, director of the Greenville Library System and librarian at Sheppard, said the Library Board of Trustees several weeks ago formulated the new, more stringent policy to seek return of library materials. Their decision followed consideration of the best way to try to eliminate this increasingly costly problem.

"The estimate established of material not returned was above $15,000," Miss Copeland said in reference to a survey made by the library staff. "The campaign to press return of material is meeting with some success," she noted. "About $1,000 worth of books and other material has been returned, some from as far away as California and Florida."

A form letter has been sent to patrons with a record of overdue materials. Approved by the Board of Trustees, the letter reads:

"Our Sheppard Memorial Library Board of Trustees and staff are concerned at the number of books and other materials people have borrowed and not returned. We have sent bills for anything a month overdue. Because of the increasing number of delinquent borrowers, the library board has voted to take stringent action.

"All names of people holding overdue books will be turned over to an attorney who will take legal action to settle the account. "You are listed among the people holding books and material belonging to Sheppard Memorial Library. This letter is to notify you of our new policy and to give you the opportunity to clear your account before other action is taken.

"If you will return the material with this letter, no fines will be charged. May we hear from you soon? Thank you very much."

The letter is signed by Miss Copeland as the library director.

"Beginning in the very near future, action definitely will be taken against those who do not bring or return books or other materials," Miss Copeland stated. "Because of the increasing numbers of people involved and the high cost of books and other library materials, we have no other choice."

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Thirty members of a gospel singing troupe received minor injuries Saturday when a bus overturned while carrying them to a church meeting in Boston, authorities said.

A Yale-New Haven Hospital spokesman said 27 of the 40 passengers were treated for injuries, including two who were admitted and listed in fair condition. The 25 others were released after treatment of minor injuries.

Officials identified the two patients in fair condition as Ruth Timberlake of Durham, N.C. and Lola Thornton of Oxford, N.C. A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Timberlake, 47, received abdominal injuries in the accident and Mrs. Thornton, 57, received multiple injuries.

A St. Raphael's Hospital official said three other persons received treatment there for cuts and bruises and were released. State police said the accident on Interstate 95 occurred in heavy rain and fog just before dawn. The bus driver apparently mistook a left-hand exit for the main road and then tried to return to the right, causing the bus to fall down an embankment and roll onto its side, police said.

The bus was chartered by the New Hope Baptist Church in Oxford, N.C., a passenger said. The singers were traveling from Oxford to Boston for a meeting Sunday at a Baptist church.

The driver, John Wright, 73, of Littleton, N.C., was charged with failing to drive in an established lane and operating without a license, police said.

He was released on $70 bond. Police said the owner of the charter bus was Theodore Williams of Albany, Va.

Several other people were arrested at the scene for interfering with the rescue operation, officials said.

After the crash, the uninjured passengers were taken to a nearby American Red Cross facility until they were reunited with those who received minor injuries.

The singing group later continued its journey to Boston aboard a bus owned by the New Haven-based Short Line Bus Co., officials said.

Temporary Reprieve On Welfare Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — To the relief of worried welfare directors around the state, county social service programs will continue to be funded at current levels through September.

The programs were granted a temporary reprieve from a five per cent fund cut by the state Social Services Commission. It voted Friday to continue current funding levels through September and to ask Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk to assign the state's 100 counties a greater share of federal funds than had been advised by his Division of Social Services.

The social services division had recommended that state's counties receive $43.3 million of the $63.3 million of federal funds pledged to North Carolina for the coming year under Title 20 of the Social Securities Act. That was five per cent less than they were promised by the division in March, the social service departments charged. Counties would have had to raise taxes or cut back their programs to bridge the gap.

The $63.3 million is to be divided between the state and the counties. The state will use its share to fund mental health programs, blind services, and such private contractors as United Cerebral Palsy and Easter Seals.

The counties would pay for programs like legal aid, day care and referral services.

The move to aid the panicky county directors by granting the funding extension was led by Commissioner Phillip Gerdess of Charlotte. He also moved that the six-member policy-making commission appeal to Kirk for a revision of the funding plan for the 12 months beginning Oct. 1.

should the Kansas City convention go to a second ballot. Shaw said he does not expect it to get past the first ballot, however.

Raleigh attorney Thomas Ellis, state coordinator of Citizens for Reagan and a Reagan delegate, said, "Shaw gave his assurance that he would do nothing at Kansas City to hurt the candidacy of Ronald Reagan."

Reagan, a former California governor, won North Carolina's March 23 primary, getting 28 delegates to Ford's 25. One of the state's 54 delegates is uncommitted and state law requires that the first ballot vote reflect the election results.

Holshouser said in an interview he carried the Ford banner though there had been "more and more in-fighting" because he wanted to present Ford's position. Martin expressed similar views.

Viking Into Mars Orbit

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor
PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Viking 1 space robot rocketed flawlessly into an egg-shaped orbit around Mars Saturday for a Bicentennial landing in two weeks to search for life in a mysterious martian desert.

"We have a very magnificent spacecraft," said project engineer Peter Lyman. Soon after Viking's main engine put on the brakes to end its 440-million mile journey from Earth, the cloverleaf-shaped probe twisted and turned as programmed and locked its orientation sensors on the sun and the star Canopus. Viking's looping orbit whipped it quickly around the planet and the spacecraft started climbing toward its high point at midday Sunday. It will wait until Tuesday before starting orbital reconnaissance of its landing area.

The crucial orbit maneuver began at 6:21 p.m. EDT when Viking's computers ignited the main engine. While project officials waited anxiously at the control center, the firing lasted 38 minutes until the computers sensed the ship had slowed enough.

The resulting thrust slowed Viking by more than 2,000 miles an hour—enough to keep it from missing Mars and achieve the delicate balance between speed and gravity needed to hold it in orbit for decades.

Viking 1 was the fifth spacecraft to orbit Mars. America's Mariner 9 did it first in 1971 followed by three Russian spacecraft.

The two-section probe was on its own for the crucial orbital insertion maneuver because it takes 17.5 minutes for a radio signal to travel the 195 million miles between Earth and Mars.

Viking 1, and a twin 6.7 million miles behind, represent a billion dollar effort to put a nuclear-powered science station on the red planet for the first time. They will look at, feel, smell and even taste the martian surroundings.

The initial looping orbit was so planned that the landing site will be underneath in late afternoon daylight on Monday.

A brief engine firing then will switch Viking into an orbit to pass over the landing area every day at the same time. This will allow the craft's twin cameras to take the stereoscopic pictures scientists need to make sure the site is free of large obstacles.

The lander is to separate and descend July 4 to a place called Chryse which, to the ancient Greeks, meant land of gold. Viking 2 is due to land farther north Sept. 4.

From pictures taken by America's first Mars orbiter, the Viking 1 landing area appears to have been the drainage basin for several rivers from a time when Mars may have had a denser, wetter and more mild atmosphere.

Mars now has an atmosphere, mostly of carbon dioxide, 100 times less dense than Earth's. Viking 1 already has confirmed the planet has a small amount of water vapor and some scientists believe there may be more water locked in permafrost beneath the planet's surface.

By JOHN PLATTER
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police roadblocks penned in rioters Saturday in South Africa's smoldering black towns, growing short of food in the fourth day of the worst racial clashes in the republic's history.

The wave of violence, concentrated in the industrial suburbs ringing Johannesburg, has spread throughout the country's black enclaves. However, police said some calm was restored to most areas.

There were reports that crowds in the black communities turned to mob justice to stop the looting and arson, which has wrecked most of the commercial areas of Soweto and Alexandra, the country's two largest black townships.

A mob stormed a black university Saturday at Natal, near Durban, about 400 miles to the southeast on the Indian Ocean. Police said the rioters tried to burn down a building on the campus, the third college that has been besieged. Another march by students on Durban's city center also was turned back.

At least 97 persons have died, and more than 1,000 others were injured in the turmoil. The casualty toll was unofficial, and many authorities said they expected the true count was much higher.

Justice Minister Jimmy Kruger said in a television interview that 22 of the blacks who died were killed "by bullets not of a caliber used by police." He said an official casualty list would be released as soon as possible.

At the United Nations, the Security Council met to debate a resolution condemning South Africa for the "the callous shooting of African people, including schoolchildren and students." Western diplomats said the resolution, introduced by black African nations, was more moderate than had been expected, and they expected the Council would adopt it.

Wild looting of shops and arson attacks that gutted scores of government buildings have caused millions of dollars in damages. The pillage from wrecked liquor stores fueled the mobs, police said, and they carried off furniture, phonographs and clothing.

Prime Minister John Vorster said the outbreak was an organized uprising against whites, although police spokesmen said most of the injuries and damage were due to mobs that roamed without any apparent direction.

Vorster left for West Germany for meetings with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on Wednesday and Thursday. He repeated his order to police to "use all means at their disposal" to contain the riots. Police reservists also have been called up to bolster the regular force.

Police reported a backlash against the rioters Saturday in the country's black communities. One report said a crowd beat to death two blacks caught looting a shop.

A screen of security forces cordoned off the riot areas in eight black townships surrounding Johannesburg. Police carrying automatic rifles, and some in armored cars, checked blacks leaving their wreckage-littered townships.

Only a few blacks left their enclaves Saturday, and police said they expected little trouble. The radio broadcast a police request that liquor store owners in white neighborhoods refused to sell to blacks in a move to "sober up" the townships, which have run dry.

Rep. Jones Bill On Food Stamp Abuses

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Agriculture Committee of the House of Representatives unanimously passed a bill sponsored by Congressman Walter Jones that would correct an abuse in the present food stamp program.

Jones said the legislation was aimed at persons who distribute food stamps to and collect money from recipients, and then improperly use the funds for private use.

The Jones bill, known as the Emergency Food Stamp Vendor Accountability Act, is identical to legislation sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms which was passed earlier this year by the Senate.

Jones said the full House is expected to approve the Vendor Bill in the immediate future and send it to the White House for the president's signature.

The congressman observed, "Recently it has been discovered that some vendors have not properly turned in to the government the money they receive for food stamps. Over $12 million was improperly handled. Some vendors," he added, "in effect are writing themselves interest free loans at the taxpayers' expense."

Jones concluded, "Incredible as it may seem, there are no effective criminal penalties for this. My bill will set strict accounting and reporting requirements for vendors, and subject those vendors who disregard their responsibility to taxpayers to fines and jail terms."

News Briefs

Samarkand Director Ousted

RALEIGH (AP) — A dispute over disciplinary procedures apparently has brought about the ouster of Samarkand Manor Training School Director Thomas Grey.

State Youth Services Director Ray Shurling said Friday that Grey was fired "because of the apparent deterioration of staff morale and growing community apprehension regarding runaways."

According to regional youth services director George Hicks, nearby Eagle Springs, Candor and Southern Pines were upset by a recent rash of student runaways who vandalized the communities.

Eight Arrested On Drug Charges

VASS, N.C. (AP) — Six men and two women were arrested on drug charges in a raid Thursday on a house and motel in Fayetteville. Authorities, culminating two weeks of undercover work, then raided on Friday what they called the elaborate hideout of the drug and theft ring in a forest near Vass in southeastern Moore County.

Moore County and Ft. Bragg authorities confiscated a large quantity of military equipment at the headquarters. The equipment included weapons, two radar sets, hundreds of dollars worth of tools.

Judge Halts Subsidy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, halting Ford administration efforts to take food subsidy benefits away from 4.14 million families, says the Department of Agriculture has no authority to design a widespread reorganization of the U.S. food stamp program.

The ruling, upholding a preliminary injunction against implementing the new regulations, is likely to be followed by a permanent injunction, predicted Judge John Lewis Smith in U.S. District Court.

Political Violence In Italy

ROME (UPI) — Scattered political violence erupted across Italy Saturday in a prelude to what have been rated as the most crucial elections in Europe since World War II.

More than a score were injured in fights in Rome, Naples, Milan, Turin, Bari and San Remo in which police traded gunfire with some demonstrators and Communists and neo-Fascists battled in the streets.

Accused Of False Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators say four giant U.S. corporations are in a position to manipulate world grain prices by their control of the data used to set the prices.

They made public Friday a nine-year-old memo in which an Agriculture Department attache in Europe accused the multinational companies of supplying false data in order to influence pricing decisions.

Staff members of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, which conducted the investigations, said the companies have denied the allegations.

Pitt Harvest Season Underway

CUCUMBER HARVESTING . . . Workers harvest cucumbers on the Fred Weathering farm near Winterville. (Reflector photo by Tommy Forrest)

With summer officially coming up, Pitt County Farmers have already begun harvesting crops. Cucumbers are presently being harvested in the county, according to Agriculture Extension Agent Ed Yancey.

"The cucumber crop got off to a slow start but is coming along fine now. The recent rain will also help. Buyers agree that while the cucumber yield had been short until now, the area cucumber crops are some of the best ever," Yancey said.

"Tobacco is being harvested in the Ballards Crossroad area and it's possible that farmers in the Farmville area are also harvesting already," Yancey said.

"The tobacco seems to be evening up and filling out now.

Most of the crop seems to be in generally good condition. Weather-fleck, which was a problem about ten days ago, is not such a problem now. Plants are outgrowing the disease," Yancey added.

Other crops in the county including corn, peanuts, and soybeans are in good condition, according to Yancey.

"We don't have such a good stand of peanuts because of the cold weather, but they are in good condition," he said.

Presidential Candidate

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Tom Anderson, a conservative political writer from Tennessee, was nominated Friday night as the American party's presidential candidate.

Anderson, 64, the party's chairman, was selected on the first ballot with 160 votes among 262 delegates to the party's third national convention. The party has allotted 535 delegate seats, but less than half showed up.

To Attend Gay Parade

Several members of the local Eastern Gay Alliance will be attending the Christopher Street South Gay Price Parade on Saturday, June 26, in Atlanta, according to Ms. Judi Willis.

Ms. Willis, coordinator of the North Carolina Gay Union, said that members from Pitt and adjacent counties, as well as members of various gay organizations in the state will be attending.

The Atlanta parade is being planned by groups such as Dignity, Integrity, Atlanta Gay Center, and the Atlanta Metropolitan Community Church.

Persons interested in more information on the parade should write Gay Pride Week '76, Suite 1976, 20 Fourth St., N. E., Atlanta, Ga. 30308.

Fathers Hold It All Together

(Editor's Note—The following was written by Steve Mitchell, columnist for the Palm Beach Post. Mitchell is the son of Mrs. Charles Mitchell, 1601 First St., Apt. 9. The column was included in a book of Mitchell's columns entitled "You Can't Multiply Letters," published in 1974 when Mitchell was associate editor of the Palm Beach Times. A native of North Carolina, Mitchell has worked as a reporter for the Winston-Salem Journal and the Augusta (Ga.) Herald.)

Like Mother's Day and most other holidays on the books, Father's Day has pretty much become a commercial farce. Perhaps it is best observed by pausing to reflect for a while on just what a father is.

Basically, he's the one who holds it all together. He's the man who does what has to be done. So does the mother, but legally and morally, it's all on Dad's shoulders.

He works, often at a hard, dirty, unromantic and unrewarding job. And he listens to the young ones as they talk earnestly of self-fulfillment and finding themselves and doing their own thing and he understands it much better than they can imagine, but there is work to be done. And Daddy must do it.

There is work to be done because there are bills that have to be paid — house payments or rent, doctors, dentists, television repairs, food bills, clothing bills, car payments, telephone bills, electric bills, college bills. They come in a never-ending stream every month of the year, and it is Daddy who must pay them.

He is the Fix-It Man, too. When the toy breaks and the tears stream down the chubby cheeks, the childish voice says, "Fix it, Daddy" because all children know Daddy can fix anything. And Daddy tries to maintain that childish trust as long as he can, because they find out soon enough that some things get broken that even Daddies can't fix — hearts, for example.

And when the young ones grow older and tell him that war is a dark and bloody insanity, he knows it is true. But he also knows that when madness is abroad in the world, somebody eventually has to fight back before it engulfs the women and the children. It is the fathers — and the young men who may never live to become fathers — who must do what has to be done.

He is a teacher, because he must teach the children by his example. He knows that much is expected of him and he knows he cannot possibly live up to the expectations, but he tries. Every day, he tries.

He must be the comforter and the rock, because without him it all comes apart. The children and the women are permitted the merciful release of tears, but he cannot cry. He is the father.

John Steinbeck said it best in a very fine book called "The Grapes of Wrath." When the dust storms swept away the tiny Oklahoma farms in the depths of the depression, families could only stand and watch as the precious soil whirled away on the hot, dry winds.

The men could only shake their fists and curse the implacable fates, and the women and children studied the faces of the men fearfully to see if they would crack. Because if the men did not crack, then maybe it would all come right somehow. They did not crack. They were fathers.

So much is expected, but it comes down to what Robert E. Lee called the most sublime word in the English language — duty. Duty means doing what has to be done — working, paying the bills, fixing the toys, setting the example and bearing the heavy responsibility that can be shared, but not evaded.

It is a test that a man must meet every day. There are $40,000-a-year fathers who fall far short of meeting it, and there are $5,000-a-year fathers who meet it superbly.

And sometimes the fathers reflect on how much easier it would be if there were no responsibilities. It is tempting to think of throwing it all off, living for yourself alone, doing what you want to do for a change instead of doing what has to be done. There is not a father alive who hasn't wondered at some point whether it's all worth it or not.

But then the little arms twine around his neck, stronger than bands of steel, and the voice whispers, "I love you, Daddy," and he knows that yes, it is worth it. Being a father is worth it all.

"The clock doth strike the eleventh hour, and, 'All is well!' reports the tower."

Strain Is At The Top

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writer
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) —

"It's nice to have the pressure off," David Germany said as he leaned back on the bed in his Princeton University dormitory room after his last exam.

His mind was pulling into focus the impressions of his four years at Princeton, which he later condensed into a thousand words for his valedictory address — a duty of the university's top-ranked graduate.

"I will give a speech and after that I will not be the valedictorian," he said quietly. "I was the valedictorian. It implies nothing about who I am or what I'll be in the future."

Across the tree-shaded campus, Susan Hurley, this year's salutatorian, was leaving her room to find the professor who was translating her commencement greeting into the Latin she used to deliver it, an old Princeton tradition at June commencement.

"Intellect is really very important to me," she says. "But I think there are too many people who get too caught up in it."

Although their thoughts are turning now from what has been to what will come, each of these 21-year-olds speaks freely but modestly of past achievement. If their experience is any indication, honors graduates at America's top universities are strongly motivated, practical, often introspective, pleased but not overwhelmed by academic excellence, and easily diverted by music and other pastimes.

Princeton's top two students — they had nearly all A's all four years — also are concerned that being labeled valedictorian or salutatorian may increase the pressures on them to succeed.

He didn't expect academic superiority four years ago. Now he is aiming for a doctor of philosophy degree in economics, his major, at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"There are many things that are beyond me. Applied math, calculus, things like that always came pretty easy to me. But I got into a course that started teaching math theory and I just sat there lost, dazed and confused. And there was a 15-year-old behind me who thought it was simple.

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — At a time when state and local governmental officials have been busy vowing to cut spending and hold the line and do all those things they can to bring about efficiency and economy in government, payrolls have continued to grow.

The federal government has kept its word. Zero growth in numbers of employees over the past year, and an actual decline of minor proportions are reflected in employment statistics compiled by the North Carolina Employment Security Commission.

But state and local government have continued to expand, with education leading the way. Of more than two million North Carolinians employed, 329,100 are governmental employees.

Federal employees number 46,300. State employees total 104,200, including those in state-paid education jobs, which number 49,300. That covers state colleges and universities, too.

Local government employees number 178,600, including 107,400 in education. Most public school teachers are locally employed even though paid from state funds.

Here is how employment grew between April, 1975, and April, 1976:

Local government up 4.1 per cent overall; education up 3.2 per cent.

State government up 4.1 per cent overall; education up 3.2 per cent.

State government employment up 3.8 per cent; education up 5.3 per cent.

With salary and fringe benefit money comprising the bulk of spending in labor-intensive governmental operations, it is clear that spending cuts will prove difficult at a time when employment continues to expand.

If state officials, and some local leaders, had not announced that employment was being frozen as a result of revenue losses from the recession, it is obvious that governmental hiring would have accelerated even more than it did.

Fire Ants Here

South American fire ants are now found in 13 southeastern Coastal Plain counties in North Carolina, with farmers reporting livestock killed, workers refusing to work some fields, and machinery unable to harvest crops due to the pest.

Building a mound up to 18 inches tall — and with up to 40 such mounds per acre in some sections — the fire ants are costing Tar Heel farmers an average $300 yearly in the heavily infested area, according to a survey done by Tom Hunt, entomologist at N. C. State University.

Columbus County is hardest hit, with a third of the farmers there leaving soybeans in the field because the mounds interfere with harvest. Six farmers in Columbus County lost 78 pigs from fire ant stings, and one lost a calf.

School Promotions
Those who have thought the schools promote just about every student these days aren't far from wrong.

From a total of 1,147,904 students in school on the last day of the term in 1975, all except 44,737 were promoted to the next grade, or graduated.

That means only 3.9 per cent of the public school students failed a grade. In 1965-66 those not promoted represented 6.17 per cent of the students enrolled.

Researchers who compiled the figures in the 1976 edition of Statistical Profile of North Carolina Public Schools commented, "This trend probably reflects a change in promotion and non-promotion policies."

It is common, now, for school people to ask the parent for permission to keep a child back a grade for specific reasons; if the parent objects, the promotion takes place.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Bloody-Nose Limitations

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SPRINGFIELD, MO. — President Ford's humiliating rebuff by the Missouri Republican convention carried this warning for his managers back in Washington: organizational failures cannot be cured by bloody-nose power politics.

In fact, Mr. Ford's loss to Ronald Reagan of all but one of 19 at-large Missouri delegates could have been much worse. Trying to save the day for the President by unseating hundreds of legally-chosen Reagan state convention delegates, Ford operatives came within a hair of creating a party schism that would have brought convulsions among Republicans everywhere.

What happened here is not isolated. The attempt at an eleventh-hour victory here through bloody-nose politics reflects the inclination of distraught national Ford strategists to use the national convention machinery to stage questionable raids on Reagan delegations. Thus, the carnage barely avoided in the steam bath of Springfield's Abdul Ben Adhem Shrine mosque could be achieved over national television at Kansas City in August.

The organizational headstart given Reagan by nameless grass-roots workers against the Missouri party establishment was aggravated by the absence of Stuart Spencer, the most experienced operative functioning for the President Ford Committee (PFC).

Gov. Christopher (Kit) Bond, the state's top Ford backer, has not forgotten that Spencer managed Gene McNary's campaign against him for the Republican governor's nomination in 1972. Blaming that campaign's strident anti-Bond attacks on Spencer, Bond told the White House he did not want Spencer setting foot in Missouri. To complicate matters, McNary (now a St. Louis County supervisor) was named chairman of the Missouri PFC.

When it became clear two weeks ago that Reagan had a clear lead in delegates to the state convention, Ford operations began on two tracks — a Bond (upper) track and a McNary (lower) track. Neither proved any match for hard Reagan delegate strength.

Bond's track consisted of efforts to convince Missouri delegates that Reagan on top of the state ticket would bring

Strength For Today

THE BIG AND THE LITTLE CROSS

Very often we hear the statement that Christ died for our sins, but seldom do people add the equally important truth that we never enjoy the benefits of Christ's sacrifice until we, ourselves, are willing to sacrifice.

If you have given up something, or bear some heavy load, think about it as a service to the sacrificing Christ. He did everything for us; we can do a little thing for him. He bore a great cross for us at Calvary. You and I only enter into the benefits of that cross when we bear some little cross for him in our homes, in our churches, or in our places of business. It may be a terrible and heavy cross to bear, but it is a very little cross compared with the cross that Christ bore.

When we vicariously bear the cross of Christ the sustaining strength of the unseen will enter into our lives. We will be conscious of a new spiritual power which we did not have before.

Sunday Morning Notes

A hammock sent by a local firm as a bicentennial gift to President and Mrs. Ford has been placed on display in Washington, D. C., according to Walter Perkins, president of Hatteras Hammocks.

The red, white and blue hammock is displayed along with other bicentennial gifts in the Great Hall of the Commerce Building in Washington.

Perkins received a thank-you letter informing him of the honor recently.

The letter, signed by Milton E. Mitler, deputy special assistant, also included a bicentennial message from President Ford.

Hatteras Hammocks is located at 513 W. Tenth St. in Greenville.

Some old timers appeared nostalgic at an antique auto show on the Crabtree Valley Mall last week.

One man chuckled as he looked at a Model T Ford.

"My father had a car like that," he recalled. "He was a farm man who moved to town and got a car. He was somebody!"

The man said he recalled a later model Ford which still had a hand crank. "The owner was cranking it at church one Sunday. It backfired and broke his arm."

Two other older men were eyeing a 1932 Chevy.

"Does your age take you back that far?" one asked. "Yeah," the second man answered.

The questioner gazed at the Chevy again. "Mine, too," he said.

The forerunner of air conditioning might have been found on that '32 Chevy. A crank allowed the raising of the windshield a couple of inches to allow cooling breezes on a summer day's ride.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

I am incensed by the ravaging of the lot on the corner of Tenth and Cotanche where a few weeks ago stood the beautiful C. Heber Forbe's home surrounded with lovely trees. Anyone who has driven by in the Spring knows what a fairyland existed from all the flowering dogwoods. Now what is left? A stark piece of muck awaits an asphalt parking lot and neon signs! Today I noticed that the large sign erected proclaims that a McDonald's will be here. What a pity. I for one will refuse to patronize any businesses who pay astronomical prices to destroy our history and beautiful surroundings.

When will we as citizens protest to save our heritage through preservation of our older homes and buildings as well as to protect our life sustaining plants and trees? You, as citizens, complain when peripheral areas are used for high density purposes and you allow the center of your city to "die" without raising concern. The city is people; without them, it will die.

It is a disgrace that the city of Greenville is allowing the older residential sections of downtown to be used commercially. If we do have to develop these, why can't the trees and plants be left? Why can't we recycle these older homes and buildings? This would certainly be an improvement over the starkness of pavement, neon and golden arches.

Mayor Cox and the City Council: I challenge you to look into your hearts and evaluate what good this ravaging is accomplishing for Greenville.

Citizens of Greenville: I challenge you to boycott such establishments and to come together to create a preservation organization to prevent this. Would you not like future generations to be allowed to partake in our history and beauty? Citizens of Greenville-United and voice your opinions.

Earlier cars, of course had windshields that swung forward.

We wouldn't recommend trying it on modern day cars.

A disheveled man climbed into a truck at North Hills Shopping Center parking lot. He started the engine and raced it wildly.

A pedestrian approached an officer and told him he didn't think the man was any condition to drive.

The officer ran over and stopped the driver just as he backed it out of the parking place and aimed it at another parked car, motor racing.

The policeman ordered the man to stop truck right there and get out and walk a line. After that little test, it was off to a call box to bring a patrol car to the scene.

40 Years Ago Today

Frank Parker, federal-state crop statistician, said today general rains over most of central and eastern North Carolina since June 10 had caused "very fine recovery of crops which had suffered seriously from drought."

After a trip into the Piedmont section this week and from reports on conditions in the east, Parker said he thought the drought had definitely been broken except in scattered areas.

Wally, a six-ton elephant "convicted" of killing his keeper in a sudden rage, was executed today by a firing squad in a San Francisco zoo.

The Greenies remain tied with the Ayden Aces for first place in the Coastal Plain League. Both teams have a 10-5 record for the season.

Housing Starts Are Below Needs

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is difficult to become enthusiastic about the slight increase in housing starts during April since it still brings the annual rate to only 1.4 million units, far below the nation's needs.

Still, any increase at all in this measure of our national well being does contain an iota of encouragement, because the price obstacles — down payment, taxes, interest among them — are formidable.

The cost of a new single-family house is about twice what it was a decade ago. Interest rates are about 50 per cent higher, taxes 70 per cent, utility bills 80 per cent. Over-all, costs have risen far more than incomes.

Transportation costs have added to the bill. Not only does gasoline for the car cost more, but so does public transportation into the city from the more distant sites to which buyers and builders have fled in search of economies.

But the pressure of prices is producing one result that might prove rewarding for both the individual buyer and communities in general.

It is this: Since nobody seems to have an answer to the problem of rising housing costs except to build the product smaller and otherwise less adequately than before, many couples are forced to reconsider existing housing.

Much of this housing is substantial but often it is also run down. Much of it is in communities from which people once used to think they graduated as their incomes rose. Now it is being viewed differently.

Adding to its appeal is that such housing offers conveniences that often take years to develop in new communities, such as existing churches, schools, stores, public transportation, entertainment.

Billions of dollars of such infrastructure lies almost abandoned in some cities as people flee to the suburbs or to smaller towns, even though it remains essentially sound.

The era of the throwaway house therefore could gradually blend into another era, that of the rediscovered older house.

While builders of new homes were going bankrupt in 1975, many real estate salesmen were reporting record high sales because of existing-home sales. Some mortgage lenders had one of their biggest years ever, for the same reason.

Owners of some existing houses also reconsidered and changed their plans to sell.

Expenditures for residential additions and alterations on owner-occupied, single-family properties averaged less than $6 billion a year from 1971 to 1973, but jumped to $6.4 billion in 1974 and $8.5 billion in 1975.

Some of this increase can be attributed to inflation, but not all. The 31 per cent rise during 1975 suggests that many home owners renovated rather than ran, decided to hold on rather than throw away.

How far this latest tendency will go and how long it will last is difficult to forecast, because it exists within a larger and perhaps more powerful trend, that of discarding rather than renovating older homes.

Observations From Editorial Columns

The Decline

It may well be that in the weep of history, the decline of civilization will be linked with the development of the computer, and surely there are those who are prepared to make the judgement even now.

That is, anyone with the slightest sensitivity to human-computer relationships should have some idea of what we as a civilization have done to ourselves in grabbing the technological tiger by the tail. In our own case the desperate decline has never been more poignantly demonstrated than now, in receipt, in one day, of two mailings to this office from the venerable and oh-so-civilized Smithsonian Institution, which, alas, apparently has surrendered, or has been captured. The Smithsonian computer is peddling memberships, in our case variously addressed to "Mr. Editorial Page" or "Dear Mr. Page," or in another case simply "Dear J. Edit."

Neither Mr. Page nor Mr. Edit proposes to respond to this personal invitation, although the computer says it is "looking for a person who sensitive to beauty, open to new experiences . . . adventurous in an intelligent fashion." That's pretty faltering, all right, but both Page and Edit tell us they are prepared to resist temptation a little longer.

Time For Titamuses

You know what a titamus is? A montopus? A poscerous? We do, but it's just because we've got kids who are in school again. They're the result of an assignment to combine two animals and see what you get.

A titamus is the cross between a tiger and a hippopotamus. A montopus is the offspring of a money and an octopus. A poscerous is a cross between a possum and a rhinoceros.

Naming them is the easy part. The kids have got to describe them, too. Can you imagine the characteristics of a cross between a possum and a rhinoceros? . . .

Good luck on these assignments, kids. And we sure hope none of you get a kitshee as a teacher this year.

That's one who purrs like a kitten while everything is going smoothly in the classroom, but she screams like a banshee when the going gets rough.

Look Out For Asteroids

Eleanor Helin could have gone another thousand years or so without telling us about her new-found asteroid and we'd all be just as well off.

Mrs. Helin, who is affiliated with the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, has discovered an asteroid more than a mile wide that sort of hops and skips in and out of the earth's orbit. She says there's a 75 per cent chance that the mini-planet will smash into the earth within 24 million years, creating a crater 20 miles wide.

Another Cal Tech spokesman says there's a 50 per cent chance the asteroid will land in the ocean, in which case we can look for the granddaddy of all tidal waves. From a guy who lives less than five miles from the Atlantic, Mrs. Helin, thanks a bunch.

How does she expect us to sleep for the next 24 million years, not knowing when the big hunk of rock is going to smash into our planet, sending mountains of water crashing across our lawn?

Isn't it enough that we have to worry about the possibility of some itchy-fingered Russian poking a button and sending nuclear missiles heading our way? Or an inscrutable Chinese diplomat smuggling an H-bomb into the country in his diplomatic pouch? Or an international terrorist hijacking us to Baghdad on our next Piedmont flight to Greensboro?

Well, Mrs. Helin, you've implanted the feat in us. The least you can do is to forewarn us now each time your asteroid is making a pass toward the earth. That way we'll only have to worry one day out of the year. The rest of the time we can relax with more manageable worries—like the rising crime rate, the fluctuations of the progress of detente, the jungle warfare in Angola, the civil war in Lebanon, the inflation, unemployment, Norfolk Gardens, etc. etc. etc.

Two Cents Worth?

Under study by the U.S. Treasury is a plan to mint two-cent pieces, starting next year.

That would take some of the pressure off pennies. Something like the same argument is used for revival of the two-dollar bill.

What's really needed, of course, is a dollar which can be stretched by the citizens to reduce the pressure of inflation.

A Conservative View

Out Of The Mouths Of Two Psychology Profs

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Two professors of psychology, to their own surprise, have come up with some solid empirical evidence on this business of racial-balance busing. Parents and other laymen will not be at all surprised by what the evidence demonstrates: Racial-balance busing doesn't work.

The professors are Norman Miller, of the University of Southern California, and Harold B. Grier, of the University of California in Los Angeles. They report their findings in the current issue of Psychology Today.

Ten years ago, the public schools of Riverside, Calif., embarked upon a voluntary program of desegregation. On paper, at least, every favorable factor was present: effective black leadership, a liberal school board, a forward-looking administration, sympathetic parents and teachers. The pupils were approximately 83 per cent white, 11 per cent Mexican-American, and 6 per cent black. There were no court orders to arouse antagonism, no political fights to provoke passions.

The Riverside school board thus embarked happily on a busing plan intended to distribute the children in a nice balance among the 22 public schools. The authors do not get into the logistics, but we may surmise that in a city of only 150,000, the bus rides were not excessively long. Given these conditions, if busing were to succeed anywhere, it should have succeeded in Riverside. That is exactly what Professors Miller and Gerard believed would happen.

"When we began," they report, "we expected to document the successes of the whole program: busing to achieve ethnic balance in school, the rising competence and ambition of minority children, and their subsequent academic rise to equality with whites."

"We have been profoundly disappointed. The reason, we believe, lies in our original naivete. We were naive in a way that much of the country was naive. We expected much greater social progress than has resulted."

As part of their study, the two professors formed one sample that included virtually all of the district's 900 minority children, plus their parents. They formed a second matching sample of 900 white children and their parents. Through personal interviews, standard attitude tests, and other familiar techniques of psychology, they established benchmarks from which they expected some favorable development could be measured.

Miller and Gerard were predisposed toward all the fashionable assumptions. They believed the achievement gap between white and minority students resulted from differences in motivation or orientation. They assumed that these differences in motivation were reversible. They thought that contact between races would cause minority students to become more similar to the white majority in their personalities, values, beliefs, and behavior. They imagined that teachers would teach to the level of the white children, and that the Mexican-Americans and blacks would bootstrap themselves to the higher level.

Alas, repeated tests "showed very few of these expected results." Indeed, "most of the personality, attitudinal, and value changes were in the wrong direction." The minority children appeared to develop greater anxiety; they experienced growing self-doubts. "The facts of academic achievement were bad news as well."

"Overall, the minority children did not gain in achievement, either absolutely or relative to national norms. After five years of desegregation, they were about where they would have been if they had not been desegregated."

As I remarked at the outset, these professional findings will come as no surprise to non-professional observers. It does not take a doctoral degree in psychology — it takes no more than a sensitive seat of the pants — to impel an ordinary layman to the same conclusions. Nevertheless, it is gratifying to learn of a ten-year study that documents the dismal story.

When will the Supreme Court accept such evidence? When will the Court abandon its obstinate and wrong-headed position? Members of the Court are human; they are as reluctant as other men to confess error and to acknowledge a blunder. But the Court is "supreme." Until retreats, this costly, wasteful, damaging nonsense will continue. But one asks: How long, O Lord, how long?

OUTSIDE HELP!

By GAIL MICHAELS

Greenville's Priorities Can't Please Everybody

By GAIL MICHAELS

Several years ago the town I come from, Roswell, Ga., celebrated its bicentennial. There were tours of the numerous antebellum homes, and there were worship services in the church which Sherman used as a hospital during the Battle of Atlanta. Restoration work on the home in which Teddy Roosevelt's grandmother lived and on the old town square was in full swing.

Last year Greenville celebrated its bicentennial, too. Bicentennial headquarters were in one of the oldest buildings in Greenville—an abandoned service station. A parade was held on the only thing that even suggests that Greenville was here 200 years ago—the streets. There was even some restoration work done—someone painted the fire hydrants on First Street red, white, and blue.

A couple of weeks ago, Phillip and I were riding through town, and we began to discuss Greenville's origins. "If you ask me," I said, "Greenville didn't really have any town fathers. I think the town is actually the result of a cement mixer with diarrhea. Every month or so, it squats, and we get a new parking lot."

"That's an intriguing theory," Phillip answered, "but what about the new mall? Maybe the city has changed its priorities."

"Ha! Don't count on it. It would take ten new malls to make up for the number of old houses and trees they've torn down."

"Shhhh!" he hissed. "Someone might hear you and think you're a tree nut. You know how people around here feel about tree lovers!"

"I know I'm a radical subversive," I sighed. "But I can't help it. For some reason a strip of asphalt just doesn't fire my imagination like a tree does. I don't know what's wrong with me. When they tore down all those trees on Tenth Street a few years ago, I cried for a whole week."

"Yeah, I know what you mean. It's the same feeling I got when they annihilated the old schoolyard in Bethel for a parking lot. I guess we're a couple of sentimental fools."

"I guess we are," I agreed. "The only thing that pulled me through the Tenth Street deal was looking at the Heber Forbes property. Somehow it's managed to survive the onslaught of civilization. All those gorgeous dogwoods and azaleas and that lovely home. It's like an oasis in a desert of concrete."

Just at that moment we happened to stop for the light at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche, and I looked expectantly to my left. What I saw, however, was not the verdant splendor of the Heber Forbes property but a bulldozed mound of brown muck.

"What happened?!" I cried. "What have they done?"

"It's McDonalds," Phillip answered. "You know, they do it all for you—or to you, as the case may be. Anyway, they're building another Golden Arches there."

"Just what Greenville needs," I moaned. "Another burger place. 'We've only got ten.'"

"Well," Phillip said, "Maybe McDonald's won't get off to a good footing here after what they've done."

I looked up hopefully. "Yeah," I said. "I hope their arches fall."

Rationale For A Community College In Martin County

By LESLIE W. BAILEY
WILLIAMSTON — In recent weeks some citizens of Martin County have expressed concern over the wisdom of changing the mission of Martin Technical Institute to that of a comprehensive community college. This concern and the many thought-provoking questions relating to it are good, because when correctly answered, they will provide a better understanding and appreciation of the need for a community college in Martin County and for the educational role it will fulfill in the lives of all of our citizens.

In order to achieve such a better understanding one might consider a few historical background facts concerning Martin Technical Institute and how it fits into the organizational structure of the other technical institutes and community colleges in North Carolina.

At present Martin Technical Institute is one of 57 technical institutes and community colleges scattered geographically throughout North Carolina, all of which are administered through joint policies, rules and regulations published by the Department of Community Colleges and the State Board of Education in Raleigh. Local control over each technical institute and community college is authorized and maintained through a president appointed by a twelve-member Board of Trustees, each of whom serves for a term of eight years. Four of these trustees are appointed by the Martin County Board of Education, four by the Martin County Board of Commissioners, and four by the governor of North Carolina.

Since its humble beginnings in 1968, Martin Technical Institute has experienced a period of rapid and dynamic growth which has resulted in its expansion from its original home in an antiquated and abandoned elementary school building in Everetts, into its present modern physical facilities. These consist of a green, grass covered, pine-clad campus of some 65 acres with five modern, air-conditioned buildings of red brick and white stone with a total floor space of over 132,000 square feet. Presently the annual on- and off-campus enrollment of Martin Technical Institute from September to May averages over 700 curriculum students.

In North Carolina, units of the Community College System have normally started out modestly as small technical institutes with the two-fold mission of establishing sound vocational and technical programs, specifically tailored to train and educate and students both to fill available jobs in the local area and also to meet their career needs and aspirations, with the expectation that the mission would later become threefold by the addition of college-transfer curriculums to those already existing vocational and technical programs. In fact some studies show that technical institutes which become community colleges often experience increased enrollments in their vocational and technical programs.

In a larger sense such a change in mission will greatly benefit all concerned, since it will add quality and flexibility to the choices of fered to all students by increasing the number of programs available to them. Also it would make the first two of years of college available at a reasonable cost to many people in the area who wish to pursue college courses for two years, but cannot afford to pay the high tuition rates of a four-year college or university. For example: A comparison of costs shows that a student could attend a nine-month session at Martin Community College at a total cost of approximately $315.00 for tuition, required fees and books, but would probably need to pay more than $1,000.00 per nine-month session at even the most reasonable four-year college or university.

Commencing with school year 1976-77, in addition to the technical and vocational courses presently offered, Martin Community College plans to offer a General Education curriculum, one in Pre-Liberal Arts, one in Pre-Business Administration, one in Pre-Business Education, one in Pre-Social Science, one in Pre-Primary Education, and one in Pre-Secondary Education. A total of 96 quarter hours will be required in each of these curriculums to graduate from Martin Community College.

Vacationers Advised To Let Pitt Officers Know

Pitt County Sheriff Department Crime Prevention Officer Gordon Edwards is urging vacationers to let him and other sheriff's officers conduct free twice-daily house checks for them while they're away from home.

"No matter where you live in the county, I'll be glad to go by some time during the day and check your house and someone will check it during the night, also," he said. "We want to prevent break-ins, not investigate them."

He offered other suggestions for vacationers, some of which can also be used for those must stay home:

—Stop newspaper deliveries, so piled-up papers on your lawn

—Don't tell anyone but your closest friends and relatives that you will be away and don't put in a newspaper personal column, either, of course. Do tell your next door neighbor if you know him well, so he can be alert to anything strange going on at your house, and have close friends or relatives go in and check around every so often.

—If you're going on an extended trip, arrange to have your grass cut occasionally while you're gone.

—Have shrubs around windows trimmed, so officers can get a good look at the house and also to eliminate hiding places for burglars.

—Before you leave, have the sheriff department come out and make a security check for you, engraving all your belongings and putting signs at entrances to indicate to would-be burglars that every item of value in and around your house is marked for law enforcement identification.

—Make sure portable items like CB radios and antennae and tape players are also engraved for law enforcement identification. A sheriff's officer will go out and do this for you or you may visit the Sheriff Department in the Courthouse and have it done. Stickers may be attached to your car or truck, too, indicating that all equipment in the car is marked.

The Greenville Police Department offers virtually the same service and the Pitt County Farm Bureau loans engravers and provides stickers for doors to its members.

Edwards said he has now engraved belongings for the residents of more than 900 Pitt County homes. He said that so far the Department has never investigated a break-in at a home that did have belongings engraved.

CB radios are apparently easily fenced now, and are the prime targets for theft, he reminded, replacing color television sets and guns as the most likely items to be stolen.

PCA Officials At Conference

Officials of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association have returned from Lake Buena Vista, Fla. where they attended the annual conference for directors and presidents of Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Bank Associations in the Carolinas, Florida, and Georgia.

Federal Land Bank of Columbia, S.C. The theme of the conference was "Together We'll Serve." Program topics presented at the conference included services and operations of the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Land Bank Associations, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and Production Credit Associations.

Pitt-Greene officials who attended the conference are as follows: F.L. Little, Jr., president of the association; Alton Gardner of Rt. 2, Ayden, chairman of the board; David Harold Smith of Rt. 2, Ayden, vice chairman; Wayne Stokes of Rt. 3, Greenville, director; James E. Manning of Rt. 2, Walstonburg, director and T. Weldon Shingleton of Rt. 2, Stanstonsburg, director.

The Pitt-Greene PCA is currently serving 1,258 farmers and rural homeowners with loans totaling $38,655,316 in Pitt and Greene Counties. The association's home office is located in Greenville and the branch office is located in Snow Hill.

College with an Associate in Arts or Associate in General Education degree. It is expected that credits earned in the College Transfer curriculums will be transferable hour for hour up to a maximum of 96 hours to four-year colleges and universities in all parts of the U.S. which are accredited by their regional accrediting associations.

In addition to continuing to offer its full core curriculums of Vocational, Technical, College Transfer, and General Education Martin Community College will continue to offer a wide variety of Adult Education and Extension Programs whose aim is "to afford each individual the opportunity to develop to his fullest potential in whatever areas of vocational and cultural levels that he desires."

Also Martin Community College plans to continue its widely used Learning Resources facilities to assist all adults who need them in obtaining Adult High School Diplomas when they satisfactorily complete requirements in the Martin Community College High School Program as approved by the State Board of Education.

In summarizing its plans for the future, Martin Community College has every reason to expect that under its new name it will continue to carry out and expand the mission of Martin Technical Institute which was so clearly and emphatically expressed in the words of the chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and mayors of the ten incorporated towns of Martin County in a joint proclamation which they signed on May 23, 1976:

"—Martin Technical Institute has become an increasingly vital force in providing higher educational goals, developing their skills and helping our citizens to enjoy a more abundant life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"—

"—the continued growth, expansion and widening of the influence of Martin Technical Institute offers an ever increasing potential to the continuing industrial growth and economic development of Martin County by providing an ever increasing reservoir of skilled, trained and intelligent manpower—" understand our simple procedure. Yet, she tells me she's happy now that "since I know Mrs. Birch by name, she talks to me more openly."

The little bits of cooperation are unobvious but regular. Every Thursday, John, a university student, rushes away ten minutes early from the school where he is interning and picks up our deposit bag from the bank. Lillian sits on a cold, metal chair and hands out grapefruit even though she's eight months pregnant and has 3 hours of reading to do for a blind student later that evening.

Theo, the jolly English teacher, often tells me with his Texas drawl that this experience each week is an important education and a great joy for his tired, troubled brain. I remember times when a buyer, angry at the way things were being done, would come to Theo to complain. He'd put his hands on his hips, rock back and forth and say, "Look buddy, I'm not paid to deal with insults from you. None of us are. We're all doing the best we can. If you don't like something, you come and help us change it." Some complainers would roar away with a screech of tires; some would take the challenge. Seth did, and now our bank deposits are much more organized.

We only meet from 5 to 7 o'clock once a week. It's fun to watch Vincent, the organist dance around the circle of vegetables as he speaks to his friends. I like the little boy who comes with his mother and puts their food in his red wagon. I've become friends with Mr. Johnson, who loves potatoes and comes to the co-op because it helps him make ends meet on his Social Security check. It's like Steve Slovik, a retired servicemen said: "You know, Betsy, I miss this when I can't come to help out. It's my social event of the week."

No Limits To Motel Thefts

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) —

Tourists with kleptomaniac tendencies are driving motel managers here to despair.

Their report yearly theft losses from $2,500 to more than $20,000.

"Anything that's not nailed down, somebody will take it sometime," said Ed Cashion, a manager. Television sets at the motel were bolted down, he said, but that had not stopped people from taking off with them.

Jim Gooch, another manager, said, "We lose sheets and pillow cases, and sometimes a chair or a table. I've had them go so far as to take the entire bed — mattress, box springs and all."

Marines At Ease

(M-Sgt., U.S. Army, Retired)

Traditionally, the image of American Marines is that of men who spend much of their time keeping themselves mentally disciplined and in top physical form. While this concept of the typical Marine is fundamentally true, even the most dedicated have their moments of relaxation, times when (figuratively speaking) they let their hair down.

These photographs, taken at Camp Lejeune, show several Marines "at ease." Some are enjoying a cherished military custom, "break time." Others are engaged in activities that give them a refreshing change from the daily routine of rugged Marine training.

MAN! HOW GOOD IT IS! . . . Any serviceman will tell you it's a Number One treat to get a short nap during break time. The sleeping Marine is

Cpl. Albert Martinez of H and S, 106 Platoon. Two of Martinez's buddies take their break time propped against trees.

Shy Students

Are Invited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shy students at the Claremont Colleges are invited to overcome their shyness in special workshops by staff psychologist Dorothy Smith.

Aided by a student co-leader, Miss Smith, who has a master's degree in clinical psychology, works with groups of 10 students.

So far, she has had students from each of the six Claremont colleges, an equal number of men and women. Students' shyness ranges from speaking out in class and asking for a date to saying hello to other students on campus, Miss Smith said.

Cottonwood

EFFICIENT FLOOR PLAN, ENGAGING EXTERIOR

RANCH STYLE PLAN DISPLAYS EFFECTIVE USE OF SPACE

By Jerry Bishop

Simple lines and charming accents mark the exterior of the Cottonwood, a three bedroom ranch style plan. Inside, a workable floor plan manages to conserve space while including extras like the first floor laundry room.

Layered with brick and trimmed with diamond light windows and cross-buck front door, the Cottonwood radiates a homey appeal. A no-nonsense floor plan is dominated by the large tiled foyer which directs traffic to the living room at right or to the central hallway for easy access to bedrooms or family room.

Besides its obvious accessibility, the living room also merits a sizable area for entertaining and extensive wall space for furniture placement.

Informality reigns in the adjoining family room, a airy spot for family dining or conversation. It furnishes a snack bar, joining the room to the kitchen, and sliding glass doors that connect to the 40-ft. terrace. The kitchen itself is functional, and it offers a handy entry from the garage.

Bordering the kitchen is the laundry, an uncluttered area favored with 96 sq. ft. of space and direct access to the back yard. The room shows a built-in counter, broom closet, and storage closet and is large enough to consider adding pantry shelves.

Bedrooms are clustered to the left of the foyer and include three ample rooms and plenty of closet space. The master bedroom is well-supplied with natural light and features double closets and private bath.

Additional storage and workshop space abounds in the basement, where plans call for 1290 sq. ft. of space, and the oversized double garage may also be used for storage.

The subject may be distasteful to some persons, but there's no denying the fact that rats are following people to the suburbs.

Rats go where there is food — and where there are people, there is food. Any time garbage cans are uncovered or have loose covers, pet food is left outside in dishes, bread or seeds are spread on the ground for birds, crawl spaces are uncovered or there is easy access to the house, rats will be attracted to the scene.

Unfortunately, while the individual home owner can take the necessary precautions to keep rats out of his house or off his property, it takes a community effort to solve a neighborhood problem. Since a rat prevention and control program requires specialized knowledge, the aid of the local health department should always be enlisted.

About 30 years ago, it was discovered that warfarin, an anticoagulant chemical, was an effective toxicant. It reduced the clotting ability of the rodent's blood and produced extreme dehydration, causing it to seek water. When fatal hemorrhaging occurred, it was outside a building, eliminating the need to handle or dispose of the carcass.

Warfarin continued to be the most widely used toxicant throughout the years. But it had one drawback. Its odor and taste caused rats to refuse to eat it. According to the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, a government-approved research and testing laboratory, that problem recently was overcome through the development of a process by which each warfarin granule is coated with material that hides the flavor and aroma. Extensive testing indicates that the new encapsulated warfarin is 3 to 10 times more acceptable to rodents than uncoated material. The bait used in the test was made in accordance with a formulation suggested by the Environmental Protection Agency and, as now manufactured, meets or exceeds the EPA standards.

Similar tests with the encapsulated warfarin produced similar results with mice. It is said to be completely safe when used as directed. The dosage in commercially prepared bait of this type is nonlethal to humans and pets, but should it be consumed by a nontarget species, an effective antidote, described on the product label, is available, in contrast to some "quick-kill" sources.

Meanwhile, home owners can assist community programs to eliminate rats by taking every precaution to keep food away from them and not giving them a place to hide.

(Thirty five do-it-yourself problems are discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Q—We have been having trouble lately with water in our basement. It has been suggested that this can be prevented with a sump pump. Can you tell us if this is an effective method of solving our problem?

A—A sump pump has nothing whatever to do with preventing water from entering a basement. When installed, its job is to remove the water that gets into the basement. Like an aspirin, it relieves a headache. That's all.

Q—I have to replace a section of the concrete walkway leading from our house. I plan to use one of the prepared mixes that require only the addition of water. How can I smooth the surface so that it will match the degree of roughness in the rest of the walkway?

A—If you want a smooth surface, use a metal trowel. For a slightly rough surface, use a wood float. For a rougher surface, use the wood float, then go over the concrete mixture with one of those brooms that have short, fairly stiff bristles. Move it across the mixture with a light touch.

using varnish said the varnish should be warmed a bit before using. Is this true and how do I go about warming it?

A—Some professionals place the can of varnish in a pot of moderately hot water for a few minutes before using, the theory being that it makes the varnish flow easier. Others skip this step and say it isn't necessary. More important, varnish should never be shaken or the contents stirred as you might do with paint. When this is done, the varnish has a tendency to form small bubbles, which sometimes show up on the surface of the material being finished.

Q—In doing hand sanding, should the paper be backed by a metal or wood block?

A—For coarse sanding, metal is better. For medium, use wood. For very fine sanding, a rubber or felt pad is excellent.

(For either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Wood Finishing in the Home" or "Simple Plumbing Repairs," send 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743. Questions can not be answered individually.)

First Editions

Rarely Valuable

CHICAGO (AP) — A first edition book does not necessarily have special value.

The American Library Assn. says, "Indeed, for the majority of books, the first edition was the only edition. First printings of great works of literature, art, and science are usually sought by collectors, but scarcity and market demand determine the value."

Land-Use Zoning Issue Mounts

By NEIL BIBLER

Associated Press Writer
EUCLID, Ohio (AP) — It seemed such a logical stand to the governing body of this village. A town government ought to be able to decide, for the common good, where to allow a factory, a shop, a home.

To a property-owning real estate developer, it seemed equally logical in a freedom-loving republic that no government should dictate to a citizen what he may or may not build on his own land.

The Supreme Court resolved that dilemma a half-century ago in a landmark decision giving the village of Euclid and thousands of other American communities the right to fashion zoning laws.

Today, 50 years later, Euclid is once again mired in land-use questions—along with other cities across the nation.

One notable recent case was that of Petaluma, Cal., which, to the outrage of developers, called a housing moratorium followed by a strict limit of 500 new houses a year for five years. The Supreme Court upheld Petaluma's right to limit its growth.

Euclid, a suburb of Cleveland, is a city of 72,000.

Zoning issues occupy its attention almost daily: fights over high rise apartments, a shopping center and over what to build on one of the last parcels of city land remaining.

But Euclid's pioneering concern over orderly development through zoning has apparently paid off.

Euclid's residential areas aren't decayed, its parklands aren't unkempt and dwindling, and its water lines don't run dry in chronic shortage while sewage treatment centers overflow.

The result is a quiet Lake Erie shoreline community where quiet homes nestle live with bustling industry.

But to at least one Euclid family, Charles and Sheri Kaue, the question is whether residents can keep their city the way they built it and want it. And the Kaues fear the answer is no.

They chose Euclid for their two-story brick home 13 years ago. They liked its strong schools, green streets, stable population and convenience to shopping and jobs.

Today, Charlie Kaue, 50, feels uneasy about heavy traffic, schools facing financial problems and young apartment-dwellers with no ties.

The industrial belt — now valued at about $41.6 million — combines with commercial property for a total tax value of $101 million.

In Euclid's northern section, the lakeshore today has drawn a "Gold Coast" of high-rise apartments and condominiums. On the southern side of the industrial belt, a hilly residential area gives privacy and views of the lake. The Kaues have their home here.

But the belt may have become too tight, and there may be no more notches to permit expansion. Some of the sprawling, well-landscaped manufacturing centers say their campus-like acreage is too small for the future. They speak of moving. Already several hundred jobs have been lost in the last three years as scattered industries have closed, moved or laid off workers. The outward trickle continues.

When Euclid won the right to restrict the uses of land within its borders, it was only a village. Today it is a city and the master zoning plan basically has remained the same for half a century.

But not uncontented. A residential pressure group recently succeeded in persuading a developer to cut four floors off what was to have been a nine-story motel. Home owners, the Kaues among them, feared it would ruin their hillside view of Lake Erie. Ultimately, the builder canceled the whole project.

Until 1974, industry paid about 60 per cent of Euclid's taxes. This made possible adequately financed schools and city services despite the housing boom of the '50s. In the last two years, however, changes in state law have reduced industry's percentage of Euclid's tax load. Homeowners have felt the pressure and have voted three times in the past two years to reject tax increases.

Chuck and Sheri Kaue voice concern about the future. They speak of a growing number of apartment residents on welfare, and the possibilities that black students might be bused from other communities to achieve racial integration of schools in the area.

Former Mayor Harry Knuth, on the other hand, calls Euclid a great place to live.

"I've seen this city grow from a village, and it is not a dying city," says the mayor, who left office last year. "Everything needed in a community is here."

Colonists Had Bumpy Roads

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — American revolutionaries may have won life and liberty, but if the pursuit of happiness occurred on colonial roads their problems were far from over.

No one wanted to spend hard-earned money for a transportation system that would only send horsemen tramping all over their land, so roads were allowed to degenerate. King George III could have used taxes to ameliorate the situation, but perhaps he saw the wisdom of keeping his dissatisfied subjects apart.

The king also took responsibility for constructing and maintaining township roads through the country court system, but the roads were adequate only for tax rounds, not public travel.

In determining their routes, colonists tended to avoid trail blazing by sticking with Indian trails. The Indians apparently had also valued convenience above haste, for their trails were circuitous and narrow, frequently following animal runs and almost always on high ground and avoiding swamps, marshes and wide river crossings.

A good example of road building as the path of least resistance was the Danbury-to-Norwalk route believed established by area Indians to get to Long Island Sound. The route followed high ground at all costs and was beaten down in following years by Danburians taking their beans to market in Norwalk.

Visiting a friend or relative in another town was a real mark of commitment because where the town ended so did the road. The king's highways connecting townships were mediocre at best and the logs and trunks that served as bridges were allowed to rot and wash away.

Water transportation consisted of a scow with sails and oars, a rather slow and cumbersome means of travel, but better than the long canoes preceding them. Steam ferries didn't improve matters until 1835.

Answers Timely
Gardening Questions

Q. Does it help to remove old blooms from annuals? (Mrs. S.D., Raleigh)

A. Yes. Flowers on a plant are produced for the purpose of forming seed. When seed form, annuals tend to decline. Much "energy" of the plant goes into seed production. You can delay this "aging process" by clipping off blooms as they fade. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. I bought some scientific dirt for my garden. After raising one crop, do I add fertilizer or is scientific dirt always fertile? (J.P., Chapel Hill)

A. I don't know what "scientific dirt" is. It is probably a loamy soil that has been sterilized. In any case, the fertility of a given soil is most likely used up or severely lowered by growing a crop in it. Thus, fertilizer needs to be added, as with any soil. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

My apple trees have millions of bugs on the new growth, which is causing the leaves to curl up and die. What can I do? (S.C., Randleman)

A. Your apple trees have aphids or plant lice. Apple aphids suck the sap from the leaves causing a curling and discoloration of developing foliage. High populations may stunt tree growth, and in some cases, result in deformed fruit. Lady beetles, syrphid flies and aphids often build up faster than these beneficial insects. Hence an application of malathion is suggested. Follow label directions and make sure the spray is directed towards the underside of the leaves, using high pressure. (Kenneth A. Sorensen, extension entomologist)

Q. I've heard that it is best to plant root crops during the dark of the moon. Is this true? (F.D., Winston-Salem)

A. To my knowledge phases of the moon have nothing to do with the quality of root crops. Plant them when you and the soil are ready. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

'76 'Lost Colony' Opens Tomorrow

MANTEO — A Monday night sunset over Roanoke Sound here will briefly illuminate a flurry of activity in one of the sandy ravines at the Fort Raleigh National Historic Site.

At the Waterside Theatre there, Monday, June 21 is opening night for the 36th production season of Paul Green's symphonic drama, "The Lost Colony." "The Lost Colony" plays every night except Sunday from June 21 to August 28 this year, marking its 1,879th performance with this season's opening night of America's oldest outdoor drama, and the longest-running.

Directed and choreographed by Joe Layton, with scenic and costume design by Fred Voelpel and lighting designed by Nannanne Porcher, "The Lost Colony" has seen many changes since its inception in 1937.

This year, much of the music in the first act of the two-act drama has been rewritten and arranged by Rosalind MacEnulty, music director of Theatre Jacksonville, and a professor of Music History and Theory at Jacksonville (Florida) University.

The new music will be projected over a new seven speaker sound system, controlled by banks of new consoles in the renovated light shack.

A new Rodgers Trio organ will add to the voices of the choir, and the entire cast will play before set changes initiated by Voelpel.

Marion Fitz-Simons returns this year in the role of Queen Elizabeth, while her husband, Foster Fitz-Simons plays the role of Governor Dare.

Stephen Carlson returns to the role of Sir Walter Raleigh, and Carl Dukes is back aged in the role of John Borden. Chondra Wolle plays the role of Eleanor Dare.

Ticket prices are $4.25 for center section, $3.75 for side section, and $2 for children under 12. Group discount rates are available for groups of 15 or more people. Reservations, which are encouraged, can be made by contacting "The Lost Colony" ticket office in Manteo, N.C., at 473-3414.

This year, playwright Paul Green will be the guest of honor at a reception following the opening night performance. He is expected to speak briefly to the audience prior to the performance.

Today's 'Sunday In The Park'

"Yes, the sky pilot said it, you've got to give him credit, for a son-of-a-gun of a gunner was he, shouting . . . 'Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition,' all aboard, we're not a goin' fishing. . . ." These lyrics, from a World War II song of 1942 about Air Force fighting men, familiar to those who followed popular music back in those days, are to be heard again in Greenville today.

"Praise The Lord And Pass The Ammunition" is one of a big collection of American songs to be heard in the "Sunday in the Park" program beginning today at 7 p.m. on the slope east of Reade Street between Third and Fourth Streets.

Musicians being featured today are those of the Greenville Bicentennial Wind Ensemble under the direction of ECU's Barry Shank. Steve Koch, a Rose High School faculty musician, will direct the chorale.

Other selections to be heard range from the early days of America up to recent times and include the Navy hymn, "God of Our Fathers," an old favorite, "Yankee Doodle," and "American Civil War Fantasy," based on popular tunes of the mid-19th century.

Antonio Vivaldi's "Concerto in C Major" for piccolo and band will feature Ann Searl, and the band will perform John Sousa's rousing "Liberty Bell March."

"The World Is Waiting For The Sunrise," "Rock Around The Clock," and "Hurting Each Other" are also listed for today's program.

The chorale will perform Irving Berlin's "This Is A Great Country," and the chorale, narrator and band will join in a cantata, "Ask Not What Your Country Can Do For You."

A performance of the anthem from Ernest Bloch's "America," featuring the band and the chorale, will close today's program.

The weekly summer "Sunday in the Park" programs are sponsored by the City of Greenville and the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department. There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

In the event of rain, the concert will be held in Wright Auditorium.

Mosaic Unearthed

By KERIN HOPE

ATHENS (UPI) — American archeologists excavating at the sanctuary of the sea god Poseidon have unearthed what is believed to be the largest mosaic yet found in Greece.

The mosaic floor was part of a Roman period bath-house dating from the 1st Century A.D. at Isthmia, near Corinth, once the site of athletic contests similar to the ancient Olympics.

It measures 79 by 31 feet and has been described as an "exceptional" find by Paul Clement, professor emeritus of classical archeology at the University of California at Los Angeles, who directs the excavation.

The floor of black and white marble cubes about the size of a fingernail depicts an underwater scene of nereids, sea nymphs in Greek mythology, riding ichthyocentaurs — exotic sea monsters with men's heads, horses' forelegs or wings, and long sea serpents' tails.

In the background are octopods, cuttlefish and other fish found in the Aegean Sea. The design is bordered with panels of dolphins and floral motifs in diamond-shaped panels.

"I don't recollect anything of this date that is quite as large or elegant in its simplicity," Clement said. "It is very sophisticated in style and technique. But we are not yet clear about whether the floor was part of a room or an open courtyard at the center of the bath complex."

The baths were part of the facilities for festivals at the sanctuary where the Isthmian games were staged every two years. Other remains at the site include two stadia and two temples, also dug by U.S. archeologists working under the auspices of the American School of Classical Studies, Athens.

"They would have been used by athletes and visitors to the festivals at Isthmia when the games were restored after Julius Caesar re-founded Corinth in 46 B.C. — a century after its destruction by Marius, another Roman conqueror," Clement said.

"The baths were a social as well as cleansing center where the Greeks would pass the time of day or perhaps listen to a lecture in a setting like the area of our mosaic."

Mosaic floors, patterned with scenes from nature or mythology, decorated private homes and public buildings from the 4th Century B.C. onwards, the professor said. Made of natural pebbles or cubes of sawn marble called tesserae, they were sometime laid in several colors with semi-precious stones or colored glass used to pick out details.

When Alaric and the Visigoths threatened Greece from the north at the start of the 5th Century A.D., the baths at Isthmia were incorporated into a massive fortification wall built across the Isthmus of Corinth, the narrow neck of land separating central Greece from Peloponnesus.

It is not clear whether the bath complex remained useable after the huge defense wall was constructed. A later earthquake certainly would have put an end to its use. The quake left ripples in the surface of the mosaic, which will slow the job of repairing and stabilizing the floor.

Eventually the area will be roofed and visitors will be allowed to view the mosaic, Clement said.

'Country Music USA' Is New VOA Program

The Voice of America has a new Saturday night show called "Country Music, USA." The weekly, half-hour program in English will be beamed to listeners in East Asia and the Pacific, South Asia, Europe and the Middle East.

Producer and host of "Country Music, USA" will be Phil Irwin, a 23-year broadcast veteran who, after a five-year stint in Europe, joined VOA in 1961. Irwin is a host (alternating with Pat Gates) of VOA's worldwide "Breakfast Show," which claims perhaps the largest regular audience in international broadcasting. Since 1962, Irwin has included Country Music as a part of the daily variety of American pop music on the Breakfast Show. The new program is the first time VOA has programmed an exclusively Country and Western music format. Listeners indicate a growing popularity of this uniquely American music in many parts of the world.

Irwin plans to program the country classics, bluegrass, western swing and gospel along with today's favorites. Country and Western recording artists will be welcome to visit the VOA Washington studios, week-day's to make guest appearances on the show. Irwin hopes record manufacturers will take note of this worldwide outlet and consider "Country Music, USA" for single and album releases.

N.C. Cultural Resources Subject Of Directory

By Nancy Szokan

The N.C. Arts Council and the N.C. Extension Homemakers Association are compiling for the first time a directory of cultural resources in North Carolina — and finding out just how numerous and diverse those resources are.

From the Southeastern Oratorio Society to the N.C. School of the Arts, and from the annual Hollerin' Contest to the Society for Creative Anachronisms, more than 800 non-profit, public service cultural organizations have already been listed.

Research is almost complete, and the directory is due to be published in the fall.

"We've always called North Carolina 'the state of the arts,'" said arts council director Halsey North. "Now this survey is helping demonstrate just how true that characterization is."

The homemakers association, with its 24,000 members statewide, began last February to seek out and identify arts organizations in every county in North Carolina, plus the Cherokee Indian Reservation.

Linda Haac, a program administrator and consultant working under an arts council grant, designed the survey and is supervising it from the agricultural extension offices at N.C. State University in Raleigh.

"One of the hardest parts of designing the survey," Ms. Haac said, "was getting across that we were looking for every kind of cultural activity — not just museums and music clubs."

The directory, she said, will include listings of fairs and festivals, area craft guilds, community theatres and choruses and many other organizations.

Even state arts council staff members, accustomed to dealing with cultural groups throughout the state, have been surprised at the number and diversity of responses the homemakers have received.

One of the organizations even director North didn't know about was Milo Holt's "Memory Lane Western Fan Club" near Siler City.

"Nostalgia is my hobby, and I want to share my collection of movies, old radio programs, books, etc., with others," Holt wrote of the club.

Holt runs the "Memory Mobile" — a converted mobile home containing old-time silent and sound movies and radio programs of the 30's and 40's. But the memorabilia he collects isn't all that's nostalgic about his museum: as Holt's brochure notes, "It's free, and that's also a thing of the past."

The survey of course includes such major cultural organizations as the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra, which puts on more than 150 performances a year for a total audience of about 98,000 in Charlotte and surrounding communities.

But it also includes such special-interest organizations as the Society for Creative Anachronisms in Raleigh. Existing to "encourage the practice and study of skills and crafts of the middle ages," the society stages a Feast of the Lusty Month in May and a Tourney of Ymir in February.

The listings in the directory may be divided by category. If they are, fairs and festivals will include everything from the annual State Fair in Raleigh to the Southeastern Crafts Fair at Lake Waccamaw.

Dance groups from mountain cloggers to the N.C. Dance Theatre will be listed. Music organizations will include the Hertford Fifes and Drums as well as the N.C. Symphony.

Film buffs will find listings of the state's few filmmakers' societies, a Charlotte photographers association called The Light Factory, Inc., and North State Video of Chapel Hill.

Literary groups will include the state's many small presses, including Unicorn Press of Greensboro which produces hand-crafted books with the help of local volunteers.

Organizations that exist to promote cultural activities of others, such as local and regional arts councils, will also be listed.

Ms. Haac has tried to insure a complete list by cross-indexing the homemakers' survey with lists from the arts council, the extension service, and the state museums council; and with pamphlets from the Bicentennial Commission, the Travel and Promotion section of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, and other organizations.

But she is still concerned that some small or unpublicized groups may have been missed so far.

"We're hoping that people from these smaller organizations will hear about the directory and get in touch with us," Ms. Haac said.

She said she is most concerned that groups may have been passed over in Mecklenburg, Gaston, Avery, Buncombe, Transylvania, Beaufort, Pitt, Lee, Johnston, Moore, New Hanover, Cumberland, Robeson and Craven counties.

(Members of organizations wishing to be sure they will be listed in the directory can reach Ms. Haac at P.O. Box 5097, N.C. State University, Raleigh 27607 or at 919-737-2781.)

Any group may be listed in the directory if it meets certain basic conditions.

The primary requirements are that it support the cultural arts in some form, be non-profit and serve the community or a specified need within the community.

Thereafter, the group must meet three of the following six conditions: involving at least 25 people; having a board of directors; sponsoring at least one event a year; having an annual budget of at least $500; having been in existence for at least a year; being legally incorporated as a non-profit organization.

These criteria, Ms. Haac said, were set up in an attempt to exclude profit-oriented, limited membership, or temporary organizations from being listed in the directory.

The arts council has awarded a grant of $5,000 for the directory's publication costs. The final date for organizations to get in touch with Ms. Haac or the arts council to insure being listed is June 30.

—Summer Porches—

THE ART OF SUMMER PORCHES . . . In past years, porches were an integral part of the art of leisurely summer living in the South. A front porch and a back porch was the general rule. Sometimes, homeowners had porches built that completely surrounded their houses. Architectural art also played a role in porch designs, as can be seen in these two photographs, both taken at the Penny Hill House on the Belvoir Highway in Pitt County. The photograph at top is a view of the front porch; and the one below shows a detail of the wood trim on a side porch of the house. (Reflector Photos by Jerry Raynor)

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

One new, long-awaited book at Sheppard Memorial Library is Spandau: The Secret Diaries by Albert Speer. It is the story written on bits of paper, tobacco wrappings, and calendars of how he attempted to survive his twenty years of near solitary confinement for his war crimes during World War II. Along with his continuing story of Nazi Germany, are his psychological insights into the effects of imprisonment and the use and loss of power. He relates in vivid detail conversations and actions of his fellow inmates; Hess, Raeder, Schirach, Runk, Neurath, and Donitz; such as their pointless arguments, their strict adherence to rules in dealing with each other, and their plans to outwit the guards. He tries to analyze how the Third Reich came about, Hitler's personality and appeal, and the strategies of the people in power in Nazi Germany.

A second book is The Super-Doctors by Roger Rapaport. These are the doctors who are in the top of their fields, the ones who can stop government action, hush-up undesirable reports, and change the eating and child-rearing habits of the nation. They become princes as they make movie stars and government heads wait for their services. People do wait because they have proved their skill and knowledge time and time again. Doctors included are such names as Benjamin Spock (pediatrician), Arnold Hutschnecker (Nixon's psychotherapist), Rex Kennamer (Marlon Brando, Peter Sellers and Zsa Zsa Gabor's internist-cardiologist), Thomas Noguchi (who did autopsies on Marilyn Monroe, Janis Joplin, Robert Kennedy and Sharon Tate), Charistiaan Bernard (heart transplant pioneer), and Robert Franklin (plastic surgeon). They play God because they say people want someone who can. They are the power, wealth, and fame of the medical profession.

A third new book which deserves special attention is World Of Our Fathers — The Journey Of The East European Jews To America And The Life They Found and Made by Irving Howe. The title is a good summary of the contents of the book. It describes how approximately two million Jews settled in large cities primarily on the East Side of New York during the years 1800 - 1920 and how they tried to keep their culture while attempting to survive in a different society. It is a broad history of the times told by individual personal narratives. Each one has something different about which to tell — the old country village (shtetl), the Yiddish press and theatre, the synagogue (shul), the Hebrew school (heder), the family, the tenements, and other sweatshops and garment unions. Howe tells of American art and movements that were originally Jewish and the effects of the Jewish culture on contemporary humor, the musicals, American Jewish novel, and the entertainers. Every aspect and impulse of the Jewish life has been covered.

American, English Art Re-Installed

The N. C. Museum of Art in Raleigh has re-installed its American and English collections for public viewing on the museum's third floor.

Most of the paintings and sculptures in these collections have been stored for several months for lack of display space.

The collections form an interesting summer exhibition for state capital bicentennial visitors for their historic as well as artistic value.

Many of the best known pieces relate to the Revolutionary War period, although these collections include works dating from the 16th to the 20th century.

Children's Films

Four is the number of films to be shown during the coming week in the children's film series at the city's libraries.

The quartet leads off with The Clowns, an animated film about a clown who tries to get himself and his props together to perform a trick. Caterpillar is another animated film, one about a young boy who accompanies a dancing caterpillar on the harmonica. The other films are Wynken, Blynken, and Nod; and Niok.

Show times are: Carver, 4 p.m., Tuesday; Sheppard (Children's Room), 7 p.m., Thursday; and East Branch, 4 p.m., Friday.

They include Rembrandt Peale's famous "porthole portrait" of George Washington; portraits of the English King George III and his consort, Queen Charlotte; Thomas Gainsborough's portrait of John Scrimgeour, painted in 1778; and Sir Joshua Reynolds' portrait of Sir William Blackett, Baronet, painted in the late 18th century.

Other artists represented in the collections include Winslow Homer, George Inness and Ralph Blakelock.

Although the museum has lent 40 works from its American collection to the Asheville Art Museum's inaugural opening, 35 paintings and five sculptures from the collection remain on view in Raleigh. Twenty-eight paintings and one sculpture from the English collection are displayed.

Clara Flanagan Featured On WBTV

Clara Flanagan, an artist from Farmville, was recently featured by Charlotte's WBTV in that station's series of salutes to North Carolina artists.

Miss Flanagan's work has been shown at the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte, at Winston-Salem's Southeastern Art Show, and in one-artist shows. She has also exhibited in New York, Houston and other cities.

Ms. Flanagan teaches painting classes in Rocky Mount, Farmville and Kinston.

Pots-Prints Show

Pots and prints are the items being shown in the current Piedmont Craftsmen, Inc. show, through July 3, in Winston-Salem.

Jim Pringle has a selection of pots, and Gerald Johnson is showing prints. Johnson was until recently a faculty member at the School of Art, East Carolina University.

Tryon Palace Carpets Featured In Magazine

Two valuable antique carpets in New Bern's Tryon Palace are featured in "The Magazine Antiques," a nationally circulated New York magazine with full color illustrations.

In an article, "Oriental Carpets in Seventeenth and Eighteenth-Century America," Sarah B. Sherrill features two items from the prized carpet collection of the Tryon Palace Restoration Complex, with color plate illustrations.

An English carpet in Governor Tryon's bedroom is shown as a "Turkey carpet," and the Palace dining room carpet is described as an "English carpet with neoclassical field design and a pseudo-Oriental border." Both carpets were made in the 18th century.

The author was supplied information on the carpets by Grace C. Ipock, Tryon Palace registrar, and the photographs were made for the magazine by Bradford L. Rauschenberg of the staff of the Old Salem restoration, utilizing specially constructed frames to permit camera-coverage.

Trying To Meet EPA Standards

By BETTY HATCH
Reflector Staff Writer
Efforts have been and are being made to comply with Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) standards for the level of suspended solids in Greenville's sewage wastewater, according to Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne.

The Greenville Utilities Commission was recently notified by the EPA that suspended solids in its wastewater exceeded 30 parts per million (ppm), (a federal limit enforced by the EPA), during the months of January and February, said Horne.

The problem has arisen, according to Horne, because new facilities for holding waste sludge to allow gradual release will not be finished until the end of the year. In the meantime the EPA has already notified Horne that suspended solids cannot be released into the river, so they must go into the city sewage system. For the past 50 to 70 years, Horne said, these solids have been dumped back into the river from which they came without any major harmful effects.

The holding facilities (Water Plant Wastewater Control System) will cost $180,000, to be taken from city funds and-or bond issue funds (with water rates paying for the bonds).

The GUC requested deference of compliance with the EPA standards until the holding facilities could be built, said Horne. The EPA did not grant this request and sent the GUC a notification of non-compliance. The EPA now has the option of a fine or possibly a lawsuit (if non-compliance continues) or dropping all action (if compliance occurs or if the EPA is satisfied with the GUC's efforts).

W.D. (Wadie) Lewis, superintendent of the Water and Sewer Dept., has written a letter to the EPA to advise them of present and past efforts to correct the problem. He lists the efforts as:

1) current program of monitoring and analyzing wastewater of their largest industrial contributor, Burroughs-Wellcome;

2) efforts to complete the new holding facilities;

3) current study of all stages of wastewater treatment (an Intense Unit Process Study of facilities) expected to be completed about June 25;

4) replacement of corroded weir plates on a secondary water clarifier in late April;

5) attempts to increase the efficiency of a process of adding polymers to wastewater (particularly to take the water out of sludge containing alum).

Horne noted that, with recent efforts, the daily average of suspended solids for the first 15 days of July was down to 27.2 ppm. He said he expects the level to stay below EPA standards after completion of the holding facilities and to possibly be below the required level in the meantime as a result of recent and current efforts.

The July statistics are expected to be below the April level of 36 ppm. and the May level of 33 ppm.

A routine jar-test of influent waste to the secondary clarifiers will begin July 6 and will continue until the new holding facilities are operational.

Vermont American To Enlarge Pitt Plant

Construction is underway on a major expansion of the Vermont American Corp. plant here that will double the present size of the facility.

Harold M. "Bud" Priestley, plant manager, reported that construction plans call for the addition of 27,000 square feet at the rear section of the plant, located on County Road 1579 just north of Greenville.

Addition of the 27,000 square feet will give the plant a total area of some 54,000 square feet, Priestley point out.

The plant manager said that the expansion, which is part of a $351,000 construction package, will enable Vermont American to increase production on its present line of drill bits as well as add a new product to the plant's manufacturing capability.

According to Priestley, the new section will also be utilized to begin a packaging operation for locally produced products, a production phase not utilized in the past here.

In addition to the cost of expanding the physical plant, major expenses will be incurred with the purchase and installation of additional equipment to meet the increased production role, he said.

Renovation of the plant's office facilities will also be handled in conjunction with the expansion program, he added, with a completion target date for the plant work set for approximately Nov. 1.

J. H. Hudson Inc. of Greenville is the general contractor for the expansion.

Vermont American, headquartered in Louisville, Ky., has operated a plant in Greenville for some ten years. The present construction marks the first major expansion of the plant since it opened here.

Lee Thomas is president of the corporation, which manufactures precision cutting tools for the consumer and industrial markets.

Grants To Schools

Pitt County Schools and Greenville City Schools have been awarded leadership grants to be used to enable public school teachers, administrators and office personnel to become more effective and efficient.

The grant, approved by the State Board of Education in May, is funded under Title IV-C of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA). Pitt County Schools received $9,070.50 and Greenville City School received $9,434.20.

The Pitt County Schools will be using the funds to develop better leadership programs according to Superintendent Ott Alford. The administrative and central office staff members will attend a five day workshop in Greensboro at the Center for Creative Leadership to learn utilization of group resources and develop team skills. Planning team workshops will be held and periodic sessions on group dynamics and organizational development will also be conducted during the school year.

The Greenville City Schools will be using the grant to help organize the leadership and planning of the reading instruction in grades Kindergarten through third grade, according to Charles Ross, director of Elementary Education. Some of the teachers and the principals from the elementary schools will attend workshops to develop a better program in the schools by studying criterion reference assessment programs used by other school units. The teachers will be learning to better assess students' needs and student progress.

Both Pitt County Schools and the Greenville City Schools will be utilizing the leadership grant funds during the 1976-77 school year.

Foster Scores Reds' Winner In Seventh

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I just hit it out of his reach," said George Foster of his slicing fly ball to right field for a seventh-inning triple that turned out to be the key hit for the Cincinnati Reds in their 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

That's not the way Phillies Manager Danny Ozark saw the play.

"The ball should have been caught, no question about it," said Ozark. "A right-hander usually slices when he hits the ball that way."

Foster scored the winning run when the next hitter, Tony Perez, hit a sacrifice fly. Reliever Rawly Eastwick protected the lead for two innings to earn his eighth save.

Eastwick retired six batters after replacing winning pitcher Gary Nolan, 7-3, in the eighth.

Jay Johnstone, the Phillies' right fielder, almost caught up with Foster's drive but said he had trouble seeing the ball.

Foster said the pitch from reliever Ron Reed, 5-2, was a fast ball.

"He (Reed) got it where he wanted," Foster said. "I thought Johnstone might get to it. But I saw it bounce. Now I'm thinking triple so a fly ball can get us the run."

Foster churned into third well ahead of Johnstone's throw after the outfielder finally recovered the ball.

Foster is on a tear with an eight-game hitting streak during which he has 14 hits in 32 at-bats for a .438 average. He has had three home runs and six RBI during the surge.

The 28-year old Nolan, who came back last season to win 15 games after being sidelined for two years with an ailing shoulder, said he wasn't upset at not getting his fourth straight complete game, something he has never done before.

"I was a little rocky out there, struggling, not making good pitches," said Nolan, who gave up six extra-base blows of the eight hits he allowed in seven innings. Nolan struck out six and walked none, extending his no-walk streak to 34 innings.

The triumph snapped a two game losing streak for the Reds, who haven't dropped more than two in a row all season, and also ended Philadelphia's four-game winning streak.

Steve Carlton worked five innings for the Phillies and left trailing 3-2. Reliever Ron Reed, 5-2, took the loss, allowing the winning run after the Phillies tied the score 3-3 in the sixth on Mike Schmidt's 19th home run of the season and third in three games.

The Reds picked up a run in the first inning when Carlton lost his control. After Pete Rose grounded out to start the game, Dave Concepcion singled. Foster flied out but Carlton walked Perez, Johnny Bench and Bob Bailey to force home a run.

Carlton retired the first two batters in the second but Rose singled and Concepcion doubled to make it 2-0. The Reds boosted their lead to 3-0 in the third, Perez leading off with a double and scoring on Doug Flynn's two-out single.

The Phillies struck back for a pair in the third on a double by Garry Maddox, Tim McCarver's triple and a double by Dave Cash.

The victory in the nationally televised contest, coupled with Los Angeles' loss to Montreal, boosted Cincinnati's lead to 3½ games over the Dodgers in the National League West. The Philadelphia lead rained-out Pittsburgh by seven in the NL East.

Nolan retired the Phillies in order in the first inning. In the second, Greg Luzinski led off with what may have been the longest single of the season, a line drive off the screen in left that missed going over by a few feet. Luzinski never advanced as Dick Allen struck out

Union Carbide Helps Optimists

Union Carbide gave the Optimists a present Saturday. The Optimists won the North State Little League title as Union Carbide knocked the Jaycees out of the race, 8-5.

The Jaycees were the only team with a chance to catch the Optimists but had to win both of their remaining games to do it. Union Carbide scored four in the first and two in the fifth and two in the seventh to do it.

David Moon's double in the first highlighted Union Carbide's rally and drove in the first two runs. Jon Cattlett reached on an error scoring the other two runs.

The Jaycees cut the lead to 4-2 in the bottom of the inning when Crowell Pope homered with Scott Johnson aboard.

Chris Joyner doubled in the fifth driving in Greg Wright and

Giants Snap String On 5-0 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Marty Perez slammed a home run, double and single and drove in three runs Saturday, helping the San Francisco Giants snap a seven-game losing streak by defeating the New York Mets 5-0 behind Jim Barr's seven-hit pitching.

Perez, obtained last Sunday in a deal with Atlanta and installed at shortstop in place of the slumping Chris Speier, singled home a run during a two-run second-inning uprising against loser Mickey Lolich, 3-9.

In the fourth, after Marc Hill doubled, Perez hit his second home run of the season and his first as a Giant, making it 4-0.

Leading off the sixth against Bob Apodaca, Perez doubled and scored on Larry Herndon's double.

Barr, 5-5, turned in his second complete game and first shutout of the season. Lolich, whose only victory in the last

Cards Squeek To 1-0 Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John Curtis and Bill Grief combined on a four-hitter and Don Kessinger drove in a fifth-inning run, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 1-0 triumph over the San Diego Padres Saturday night.

Curtis, 5-6, posted his second victory over the Padres this season with ninth-inning help from Grief after Willie Davis singled and Dave Winfield walked.

Curtis, who struck out one and walked three, permitted San Diego two baserunners only in the fourth, when Willie Davis doubled with two outs and Dave Winfield walked.

Mahaffey Struggles To Retain Two Shot Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — John Mahaffey, a baby-faced battler wielding his mother's putter, lost four strokes of a once-commanding lead but, with grit, hard-won 69 still retained a two shot advantage Saturday in the storm-delayed and darkness-threatened third round of the United States Open Golf Championship.

Mahaffey, an embittered and almost destroyed playoff loser in this national championship a year ago, was delayed almost two hours on his tee time and posted his 207 total, three under par on the soaked and soggy Atlanta Athletic Club course only moments before darkness settled.

Rookie pro Jerry Pate, who engineered a four stroke swing on the leader with an eagle three, moved into second place with a second consecutive 69 that put him at 209, the only other score under par after three rounds.

Veteran Al Geiberger, who once closed to within two strokes of the front-running Mahaffey, hit one in the water on the 18th hole, made bogey and had to settle for a 71 that left him in third at 210, even par and three strokes back.

Tom Weiskopf was next with a 68-211 and issued a warning: "I'm in very good position. I'm playing very well. I'm very confident. And I like the golf course. It just seems to suit the way I play very well."

Ben Crenshaw, the dynamic young man who scored consecutive victories earlier this year, veteran Rod Funseth and non-winners Mike Morley and Lyn Lott—who got into this event as an alternate when Lee Trevino withdrew with an aching back—followed at 212. Lott and Morley shot 70s, Crenshaw and Funseth 72s.

Hubert Green, the year's leading money-winner, was next with 71-213, six strokes behind.

Johnny Miller shot an almost-overlooked 69 for 215 and Tom Watson, the British Open champion, had 68-214. Masters champion Ray Floyd was 71-216, defending U.S. Open champ Lou Graham 72-221, Gary Player 73-222, Hale Irwin 75-222 and Arnold Palmer had a third consecutive 75 and 225.

Jack Nicklaus finally made a birdie, but had his worst round of the tournament he was favored to win, a 75. The holder of a record 14 major professional championships, he appeared out of title contention in this one at 219, 12 shots back.

Nicklaus hit a nine iron only three feet from the flag on the 13th hole and made the putt for his first birdie in this championship. Almost incredibly, the man generally considered to be the finest player in the world had gone 56 holes—going back to his last previous start—without making a birdie.

Mahaffey, using the putter he'd given to his mother as a present then retrieved last winter on a visit to Kerrville, Tex., one-putted six times over the first nine holes, played that side in 32 and had a six stroke lead when the national television cameras ended their coverage for the day.

At that point it appeared he was on the way to a rout. He was the only man under par at that point. He had a shot at a score in the mid-60s. He needed only to par in from that point to match the Open scoring record.

But it changed swiftly as the summer lightning that threatened to wipe out the whole day's activity arrived.

Mahaffey dropped an eight-foot putt to save par on the 10th. Then, on the troublesome, controversial 11th, a par four that's 480 yards in length and 10 more than the U.S.G.A. standard for par fours, he drove into the rough. He had no

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pat Dobson pitched a one-hitter for seven innings before leaving with an injury and the Cleveland Indians stopped the red hot Kansas City Royals 3-0 Saturday night.

Dobson, 8-5, was removed after the seventh because of a possible torn cartilage in his right rib cage. Jim Kern pitched the final two innings, earning his third save of the season as he worked his way out of a two-on, two-out jam in the eighth.

The Indians scored runs in the third, sixth and seventh innings, one coming home on a throwing error, the second on a single by Rico Carty and the third on Duane Kuiper's fielder's choice grounder. Kuiper's grounder chased Kansas City starter Al Fitzmorris, 8-3.

Fitzmorris, who had a personal three-game winning streak broken, gave up eight hits and all three Cleveland runs.

It was the seventh victory in nine games for the Indians and only the second loss in the last 10 for the Royals. Kansas City

A's Rally In Fifth To Win, 7-4

OAKLAND (AP) — Successive homers by Don Baylor and Billy Williams in the first inning started the Oakland A's to a 7-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Despite the early homers off loser Jim Colborn, 3-9, the A's trailed 3-2 going into the fifth inning when they scored four runs on four hits.

A bases-loaded walk to Gene Tenace forced in one run, another scored on a single by Bill

North and Larry Haney scored one with a sacrifice fly.

The A's stole six bases. Baylor and Williams each had two and Phil Garner and Bert Campaneris had one each.

Hank Aaron accounted for one of the Milwaukee runs with his 751st career homer. It was his sixth of the season and fourth in the last six games.

The victory went to Glenn Abbott, 1-1.

Brown Praises Smith's Cagers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — You can take it from Coach Larry Brown of the Denver Nuggets. The U.S. Olympic basketball team is "going to be great."

Brown, a former North Carolina star, made his appraisal after the Olympians defeated his National Basketball Association team 98-85 Friday night.

"They played unselfishly, with style, and enthusiasm," Brown said. "If you utilize 12 people and are flexible, you can accomplish a lot."

The victory avenged a 108-100 loss to the Nuggets Thursday night in Greensboro, N.C.

"I thought we were a lot more poised and had better execution," Olympic Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina said. "But I wouldn't let this get us prosperous. I don't think Denver played nearly as well" as in Greensboro. "After not playing for a month, they were not in the shape we were in, nor were they as deep."

The Olympians play the Israel Olympic team Sunday night in College Park, Md. Smith has indicated he would like to have the 15-man squad cut to 12 by then, but isn't sure it will be possible.

"The sooner the better," said Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee.

"The whole team will draw even closer together after the final cut."

North Carolina's Tommy LaGarde led the attack in the second game against Denver with 18 points and six rebounds. North Carolina State's Kenny Carr turned in his best performance with 16 points and six rebounds.

"The public has been giving coach Smith a lot of grief," said LaGarde. "Now's the time for it to stop. He has been unfairly criticized and people ought to be realizing it by now."

He was referring to the criticism Smith has received for four of his Tar Heels being on the 15-man Olympic squad.

Denver star David Thompson, who blazed to fame at North Carolina State, had words of praise for the Olympic team. "They played well, real well. They shot better, played with more control and took the game to us."

Thompson said it was hot in Reynolds Coliseum "and we're out of shape. Some of us hadn't played a game since the (American Basketball Association) playoffs until Thursday night."

Bradley Battles Into Breezy Lead

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — Pat Bradley stayed out of danger and captured the second-round lead by two strokes Saturday in the wind-blown Ladies Professional Golf Association Hoosier Classic.

The 25-year-old Arlington, Mass., golfer finished the first round early Saturday morning after rain postponed conclusion of the opening round on Friday on the par-72 Plymouth Country Club course.

"Five-thirty a.m., this morning came awfully early," laughed Miss Bradley, who had to play 22 holes Saturday.

She wound up with a 69 for the opening round and 71 on the second for a 36-hole total of four-under-par 140, two strokes ahead of 1974 Hoosier Classic champion JoAnne Carner, this year's fourth-leading money winner on the LPGA tour.

"I just played a controlled game," said Miss Bradley, who had two birdies and one bogey.

"I wasn't in any danger. People did have trouble on the par-threes because of the wind. With the wind blowing, they were really deceiving. I was having a hard time judging what the wind would do."

She parred three of the par-threes and bogeyed the other one.

"I'd rather play in the wind than rain," she said, "but you have to be alert or the wind will hurt you. After a while it gets mentally tiring."

Miss Carner had the best round Saturday with a 70 to leave her two-under par entering Sunday's third and final round of play in the $50,000 tournament.

Because of the winds, gusting up to 25 miles per hour, the course played extremely difficult and many golfers had trouble selecting the proper club.

Tied for third, three strokes behind Miss Bradley, were Sally Little and Debbie Austin, both at one-under-par 143.

Janet Aulisi, Sandra Palmer and LPGA leading money winner Judy Rankin were next at par 144. Seven were tied at 145, and another seven were knotted at 146.

Sixty-five golfers made the cut at 154 for Sunday's final round. The top prize is about $7,000.

Williams Suffers Injured Muscle

By DAN BERGER

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Sprinter Steve Williams succumbed to a hamstring injury and failed to qualify for the U.S. Olympic 100-meter dash Saturday as the 1976 Olympic Track and Field trials opened at the University of Oregon.

The tall, lean Williams, co-holder of the world record for 100 meters, barely qualified in the first race of the day when his right thigh began to hurt him. His thigh was wrapped heavily for the second of four races 100-meter runners must race.

After 40 meters, however, Williams pulled up, immediately took off his shoes as America's finest sprinter retained hopes of making the team in the 200 or perhaps on a relay team. The injury was apparently unrelated to the one he suffered one week ago in Los Angeles, which forced him out of the national AAU championships.

Williams said the injury hurt from his buttocks down to the back of his knee and "it didn't get any worse, it all just spasmed up again. I'll be back for the 200."

Meet officials said there is no precedent for adding Williams to the Olympic team—"it's all based on this competition," said meet Director Bob Newland.

Williams said, "there's no way any of those dudes can beat me in the 100. I know that," but he conceded he would settle for a berth in another event.

Todd Scully earned his first Olympic berth by capturing a confusion-shortened 20-kilometer walk. The 27-year-old former school teacher from Big Island, Va., and three-time Olympic veteran Ron Laird both will compete in Montreal, but third place was left open and will be decided in a walk-off one week from Sunday. Larry Walker of Los Angeles finished third, but a protest over the length of the race prompted officials to order a walk-off.

Scully was timed in 1:25:28.6 for the approximately 19 kilometers and at that pace his time would have been about the six fastest ever by an American in the 20 kilometers.

Babashoff Cracks Third Mark, Two Others Fall

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Babashoff smashed her third American record in the United States Olympic trials Saturday and men set two others.

Miss Babashoff, 19, of Mission Viejo, Calif., swam the 800-meter freestyle in 8 minutes, 46 seconds in qualifying for the final and bettered the 8:46.51 record owned by Heather Greenwood.

Earlier in the trials, Miss Babashoff had bettered the American records in the 200- and 400-meter freestyle races and won the 400-meter individual medley.

John Naber, the 6-foot-6 star of the University of Southern California, lowered his own American mark to 2:02.46 in the 200-meter backstroke. Eighteen-year-old Bill Forrester of Jacksonville, Fla., sped to a 1:59.70 in the butterfly.

The three records came in heats that qualified eight swimmers each to final events—the women's 800 not scheduled until Monday.

Miss Greenwood, of Fresno, Calif., gets a chance to win back her record as she qualified sixth and made the final.

Forrester's time was the second fastest ever in world swimming, eclipsed only by the 1:59.63 by East Germany's Roger Pytell in that nation's Olympic trials earlier this month.

Both times smashed the official world record of 2:00.70 set by Mark Spitz of the United States when he won seven Olympic gold medals in 1972 and his time also stood as the American record.

Mike Bruner of Cupertino, Calif., also bettered two minutes with 1:59.73 in finishing second to Forrester. Bruner's was the third fastest time ever in the world.

Through four days of competition, eight American records have fallen—three to Babashoff and five to male swimmers.

Naber's 200 backstroke just did go under his previous record of 2:02.52. Earlier the USC swimmer from Ladera Oaks, Calif., had beaten his American 100-meter backstroke record with a time of 56.82 and had also qualified for the U.S. team in the 200-meter freestyle.

In addition to the quartet of American records, 17-year-old Brian Goodell of Mission Viejo, Calif., shattered the world record in the 400-meter freestyle at 3:53.08 in Friday night's final and the United States appears to be putting together its strongest men's Olympic swimming team ever.

Peter Rocca of Concord, Calif., who finished second to Naber in the 100-meter finals, finished the qualifying heats of the 200 with the second best time at 2:03.34. Times for Naber and Rocca were the fastest in the world this year and approach the world record of 2:01.87 set by East Germany's Roland Matthes in 1973.

Melissa Belote of Silver Springs, Md., who won the women's 200-meter backstroke Olympic gold medal in 1972 with a time of 2:19.19, led the heat qualifiers Saturday with a time of 2:18.38 just off her own American record of 2:18.16.

Second fastest qualifier was Maryanne Graham of Mission Viejo.

Karen Moe Thornton of Los Angeles who won the gold medal in the women's 200 butterfly at the Munich Olympics four years ago, also turned in a fastest time in the qualifying heats at 2:15.45. Donnalee Wennerstrom of Canoga Park, Calif., was second best at 2:17.14.

Valerie Lee of Mission Viejo, holder of the American record in the butterfly at 2:14.89, competed just 15 days after undergoing major surgery, but failed to qualify for the finals. The 18-year-old finished last in her heat at 2:26.85 but her effort drew a huge ovation from the crowd of 2,000 at the Belmont Plaza pool.

Farmville Takes Lead

FARMVILLE—Farmville took a 6-1 Babe Ruth league victory over Chicod Friday to move into sole possession of the first place in the Pitt County league.

Don Holloman was the winning pitcher. He gave up three hits and struck out 10. Jeff Tyson and Eugene Joyner had homers for Farmville while Holloman and Phillip Gordon had two hits each.

Petty Wins Pole To Break String

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP)—Heavy-footed Richard Petty who had not won a pole position in his last 14 tries finally made it Saturday as he got the inside spot for the eighth running of the Motor City 400 Sunday.

Petty drove a Dodge at a 158.569 miles per hour clip on the Michigan International Speedway, barely nosing out Bobby Allison of Huey Town, Ala., who was timed at 158.234. "It really surprised me to win the pole," Petty said, "but I guess one out of 15 is not bad when you're having the kind of year I am having."

Petty has not won a race since February. He said it was the first time in his racing career that he had gone three months without a victory.

Allison had the fastest car on the MIS straightaways but said he lost time to Petty on the corners. He said his car was running a bit rough. A 36-car field will start the race which has a purse of $117,695 including first place money of $13,595. The weatherman's prediction of warm, cloudy weather was expected to draw 55,000 fans.

When You Need A Homer Just Call Henry

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When you need a home run, it's nice to have baseball's all-time home run king stepping to the plate.

"I was looking for a homer; that's what we needed in that situation," Hank Aaron said about his trip to the plate in the ninth inning of a tie game Friday night.

Having belted 749 previous home runs in his career, Aaron certainly had enough experience.

"I knew what I was supposed to do, and I did it," he said after drilling a pitch from Oakland's Jim Todd for his 750th homer, giving the Milwaukee Brewers a 3-2 triumph over the A's.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees outlasted the Chicago White Sox 3-2 in 14 innings, the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Texas Rangers 9-4, the Boston Red Sox shaded the California Angels 3-1, the Kansas City Royals downed the Cleveland Indians 5-3 and the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2.

Yankees 3, White Sox 2

New York ran its winning streak to four in a row and handed Chicago its eighth straight setback with a run in the 14th inning on Fred Stanley's single, a bunt hit by Mickey Rivers, a throwing error by losing pitcher Dave Hamilton and Roy White's sacrifice fly.

Ken Holtzman, making his debut with the Yankees after being acquired from Baltimore in a 10-player trade earlier in the week, allowed both Chicago runs while pitching 7 1-3 innings. Grant Jackson, who came from Baltimore with Holtzman, picked up the win by hurling three scoreless innings and working out of a jam in the bottom of the 14th.

Orioles 9, Rangers 4

While Holtzman was pitching to no decision, Rudy May—one of the players who went from the Yankees to the Orioles—hurled eight strong innings while Lee May and Andres Mora slugged three-run homers and Reggie Jackson added a solo shot as Baltimore crushed the Rangers for its fourth consecutive victory.

Red Sox 3, Angels 1

Boston snapped a tie with two out in the ninth inning, scoring twice on Carl Yastrzemski's single, Jim Rice's RBI double and a single by Rico Petrocelli. The runs saddled California's Andy Hassler with his 15th consecutive setback since his last win on April 29, 1975. The American League record is 19 consecutive losses.

Royals 5, Indians 3

Cookie Rojas drove in three runs with a single, double and sacrifice fly as the Royals beat the Indians and boosted their lead over Texas in the AL West to five games. Tom Poquette led off the seventh with a single and scored the tie-breaking run on Rojas' long double off reliever Stan Thomas. Kansas City added an insurance run in the ninth when Poquette tripled and scored on Rojas' deep fly.

Tigers 4, Twins 2

Bill Freehan collected three hits, including a home run, and Dave Roberts scattered 11 hits, helping the Tigers beat the Twins. Rusty Staub singled home Detroit's first run and scored the Tigers' final run on a single by Alex Johnson after doubling.

Eleanor Holm Once Suspended For Breaking Training Rules

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — "I drove old Avery up the wall," Eleanor Holm said with a gleeful chuckle. "He didn't mind pinching the breads but he was a blue nose about drinking."

"All those Olympic bags were just jealous of me because they saw me having a good time up in the first-class quarters with the newspapermen."

The "Champagne Girl" of the 1936 Olympics, now Mrs. Thomas Whalen of Miami Beach, Fla., recalls with unbridled good humor—and no bitterness—her celebrated suspension from the U.S. team for failure to follow training rules.

The incident was the most sensational "cause celebre" in the history of the Games.

The villain in the piece, at least in the view of all red-blooded lovers of high jinx, was the late Avery Brundage, then president of the U. S. Olympic Committee and later iron-fisted czar of the International Olympic Committee. Eleanor was cast as a poor, misunderstood child.

"As soon as we got on the boat," Eleanor said, "the officials got us all together and gave us a big speech. 'We can't provide each of you with an individual coach,' they said. 'You know your routine. Follow it.'"

"Well, I knew my routine. I was married to Art Jarrett, the band leader, and I had been performing with his band. For us, periodic sips of champagne were a way of life. So I just followed my routine."

The onetime glamour queen of the Olympics is now 61, an interior decorator by avocation, still a striking beauty who plays tennis regularly and swims 10 laps a day in the apartment house swimming pool on Biscayne Bay. After tempestuous marriages with Jarrett and Broadway entrepreneur Billy Rose, she says she at last has found happiness with Whelan, a retired oil drilling executive whom she married three years ago.

"We had been engaged for 23 years," she noted.

Eleanor was born in Brooklyn. As a teen-ager, she found herself blessed with remarkable good looks, a vivacious personality and a natural aptitude for the water.

At 14, she competed in her first Olympics. At 16, she was offered a job as a Ziegfeld Follies girl. At 18, she swam the 100-meter backstroke in one minute, 19.4 seconds for a world record and an Olympic gold medal in the 1932 Games at Los Angeles.

She signed a movie contract that paid her $500 a week. Her drama coach was Clark Gable's first wife, Josephine Dillon. She found Hollywood life exciting—parties, celebrities, male attention—but she gave it all up when her amateur status was threatened. Her goal was to set more records and win more medals in the Olympic Games.

Eleanor married Jarrett in 1933 and began touring the country with the crooner's band. She swam every day and continued in competition, setting more records. She was ebullient and confident when she joined other U.S. athletes on the S.S. Manhattan in July 1936 for the long voyage across the Atlantic.

The naturally outgoing Mrs. Jarrett quickly became bored in her third-class quarters, where she occupied a tiny stateroom with two younger swimmers. The male and female athletes were segregated.

"I started going up to the first-class lounge and sitting around with the reporters," Eleanor recalled. "Sure, I would drink a little champagne but anybody with any sense would know I didn't drink all the time. I trained every day."

"After all, I had a contract that promised me $15,000 a week singing with the band if I won the gold medal. I wasn't about to blow that."

Olympic officials insisted that Mrs. Jarrett was repeatedly warned about the rule which said all athletes should refrain "from smoking and the use of intoxicating drinks."

Eleanor said Brundage, whom she passionately disliked, never said a word to her but the women's chaperone once came upon her in the first-class lounge and ordered her back below decks.

"You're not allowed here," the chaperone said.

"Why not?" asked Eleanor.

"You're an athlete," the chaperone insisted.

"You can't discriminate against me just because I am an athlete," Eleanor retorted. She stayed.

The day before the boat was scheduled to dock in Bremerhaven, newsmen threw a humdinger of a party and everybody, according to reports, got pleasantly aroused. Mrs. Jarrett was caught by Mrs. Ada T. Sackett, the team chaperone, as the swimmer was returning to her quarters.

"The next day when we reached Berlin I was not allowed to go to the (Olympic) Village with the rest of the team," Eleanor recalled. "Brundage ordered me taken to the Avlon Hotel, accompanied by the chaperone, and instructed that I be sent home immediately."

The suspension had a cataclysmic effect. It was headlined in U.S. newspapers. Other team members circulated a petition, signed by 220, urging Eleanor's reinstatement. Brundage refused to budge.

"I didn't go home," Mrs. Jarrett said. "I got a job writing a column. I had some of the best writers in the world helping me—Paul Gallico, Alan Gould of The Associated Press and Charles MacArthur (husband of Helen Hayes)."

"I sat right behind Hitler. I interviewed him and Hermann Goering. I went to all the VIP

Optimists Ice Tie With Win

Jon House's single in the bottom of the third drove in Sammy Hodges with the eventual winning run and the Optimists added five more to ice an 8-2 win over Coca-Cola, yesterday.

The win assured the Optimists of no worse than a tie for the North State Little League title. The only team that can catch them is the Jaycees. The Optimists have a game left and the Jaycees two with the final game being against each other.

The Optimists took a 2-0 lead in the first. Andy Holloman walked and a wild pitch moved him to second. Kenny Kirkland singled him over and Kirkland later scored on an out.

Coke got a run back in the third as Jeff Camp walked and came over on an out.

Hodges led off the third with an Optimist single and a wild pitch put him on second. He took third on an out and scored on House's safety. Tony Heath singled and an error on the hit let House score.

Kirkland's run-scoring double in the fourth highlighted the four-run fourth giving the Optimists an 8-1 lead. Coke got its other run in the fifth as Chuck Allen scored on Billy Brannigan's single.

Brannigan had two hits for Coke while Holloman and Kirkland had two each for the Optimists.

Timmy Norris pitched the victory striking out four, walking seven and giving up three hits. Rodrick Harrell led the hitting with three and Gordon Douglas had a pair of singles for Exchange.

Alison Taylor led off the first with a walk followed by one to Chip Cayton. Harrell singled loading the bases and a hit by Douglas scored Taylor. Norris walked in Cayton and a walk to Hunter forced in Harrell. Billy Mitchell singled driving in Douglas and a walk to Taylor scored Norris.

Exchange got three more in the second. Two scored on errors and a third was walked in.

The Graniteers cut the lead to 8-2 in the third. Tim Patterson walked and Stevie Holloman singled. A sacrifice scored Patterson and a passed ball scored Holloman.

Pirates Bomb Campbell

By WILLIE PATRICK
Special To The Reflector
BOONE TRAIL—This writer doesn't think he will be able to find folks any friendlier than the ones here where the East Carolina University Pirates played Campbell College Friday night.

The Pirates probably won't find a team more hospitable and gracious, either, much to the chagrin of Camel coach Sam White.

Aided by 17 hits and eight errors, the Pirates blasted Campbell 14-4 in summer baseball play. The win moved ECU to a 6-5 league mark, and dropped the hosts to 5-7.

Macon Moye started the fireworks for the visitors in the first inning, belting a triple to the far reaches of right center. Sonny Wooten's grounder to first was misplayed allowing Moye to score the first run.

Campbell tied it up in the first. John Lippert smacked a single off Pirate starter, finisher, and winner Terry Durham (3-1) moved to third on a wrong field double by lefthanded hitting Tony Naumann and scored on a wild pitch.

Neither team scored in the second, but the visitors broke it open in the third. Following a walk to Robert Brinkley, Moye singled and back-to-back doubles by Wooten and Glenn Card plated three runs.

Campbell came back with one in the third, the Pirates got another in the fourth and then added five in the fifth to two for the hosts to break the game open for good. Charlie Stevens walked with one out and stole second. Howard McCullough was hit by a pitch and a walk to Pete Paradossi loaded the bases. Brinkley and Moye singled to score runs and Wooten doubled again to score two more.

The Pirates added single runs in the sixth and seventh (Wooten hit a 390-ft. solo home run) and two in the eighth to end the onslaught.

ECU has a break in the schedule until Thursday when it hosts the University of North Carolina. Gametime is 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Carolina Dairy won once and Home Builders won twice Friday night in Babe Ruth League baseball games.

Home Builders beat College View twice finishing a game that had been called because of darkness a couple weeks back the Builders took it 14-13 and in Friday's regularly scheduled game, Home Builders held off a late rally for a 5-4 win.

Carolina Dairy rallied for five in the seventh to a 7-2 win over Pepsi.

In the continuation game, Home Builders scored twice in the top of the seventh breaking a 12-12 tie. College View picked up a run in the bottom of the inning.

College View took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning of the second game. H.L. Austin walked and Patrick Wilson reached on an error. Both were sacrificed up and a single by Lindsey Winstead scored Austin.

An error on the play scored Wilson.

The Builders took the lead in the third. Selby got a hit and Doug Nichol walked. Both moved up on an out and Jay Wood singled them both over.

Jeff Worthington singled in the fourth and Micky McGrath reached on a fielder's choice. A single by Selby scored them both with the winning run.

College View picked up a run in the sixth on a bases loaded walk and did likewise in the seventh.

Pepsi scored first in the afterpiece when Bob Morehead scored on Will Sanderson's ground out. Carolina Dairy tied it in the second, however, as Bobby Wornoff walked forcing in Rufus Sutton who had doubled.

After walking and moving around on a hit and an out, Mike Williams scored on Marshall Heath's sacrifice giving Carolina Dairy a 2-1 lead.

Pepsi tied it in the sixth, 2-2, but the bottom fell out in the seventh as Carolina Dairy rallied for five to win it. Peter Pace singled and scored on Williams's double. Sutton was walked and Heath singled. George Wilson singled in Williams and a walk to David Carroll forced in Sutton. Heath scored on a wild pitch and Wilson on an error.

Kuhn May Have Sent Baseball Back To Court

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's landmark decision, voiding the $3.5 million sale of three Oakland A's players, seems certain to land baseball back into the nation's courtrooms—a playing field where the game has not fared terribly well recently.

"We will be taking it to court Monday," stormed Oakland Owner Charles O. Finley, who called Kuhn's decision "very stupid," and said the commissioner "sounds like the village idiot."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said he also might take legal action.

"We're considering it," he said. "Obviously, we're not going to stand still while the powers that be attempt to ruin the careers of three players."

Kuhn acknowledged that he expected his decision returning pitchers Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the A's would be tested in court.

"There is a clear-cut possibility of litigation," said Kuhn, looking strained after two days of wrestling with the sales of Blue to the New York Yankees and Fingers and Rudi to the Boston Red Sox. "Both New York and Oakland have indictated they would test the decision by litigation."

"We went by the baseball rule book," said Dick O'Connell, general manager of the Red Sox. "How he can go against it is incomprehensible. In the future, when clubs want to make a player deal, who do you contact?"

Publicly, the Yankees had no official comment on Kuhn's decision which the commissioner made under the broad interpretation of his authority to act in the game's best interests as outlined in Article 1, Section 4 of the Major League Agreement.

But Finley, who has tangled with Kuhn repeatedly, had plenty to say.

Finley said his attorneys were preparing for legal actions against Kuhn.

The commissioner said he decided to void the deals because of his concern for maintaining public confidence in the integrity of baseball.

"I am concerned over the prospect of affluent clubs such as Boston and New York acquiring for sums as high as $3½ million, players in the prime of their careers," he said. "Inevitably there are all kinds of suspicions when players change hands for such large sums."

The commissioner called his decision "an effort to maintain the equality of competition." Without Blue, Fingers and Rudi, he said he would be concerned about "the skills of the Oakland ball club and the competitive factor in the game."

Kuhn made his decision after summoning Finley, O'Connell and owner George Steinbrenner and President Gabe Paul of the New York Yankees to a Thursday hearing. Also attending the hearing were attorneys for all sides as well as Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, and Miller, head of the players union.

LaGarde, Carr Davis Lead Team

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina's Tommy LaGarde and Walter Davis and North Carolina State's Kenny Carr combined for 48 points Friday night to lead the U. S. Olympic team to a 98-85 exhibition basketball victory over the Denver Nuggets of the National Basketball Association.

LaGarde and Davis, co-starters at North Carolina, scored 18 and 14 points respectively while N.C. State Carr, playing on his home court in Reynolds Coliseum, tossed in 16.

Denver was lead by Marvin Webster with 16 points and 12 rebounds.

The game was close during the early part, but with seven minutes and 36 seconds remaining in the first half, USA coach Dean Smith put North Carolina's Phil Ford, Indiana's Scott May and Michigan's Phil Hubbard on the court with LaGarde and Davis. With the score tied 20-20, those five outscored the Nuggets 27-19 the remainder of the half and the USA held a 47-39 halftime lead.

As the second half opened, the USA boosted its lead to 16 points by outscoring Denver 14 to six in the next four and a half minutes. Carr scored six of the USA's points during that span.

Denver's attempt to come back late in the game failed as the Nuggets could pull to only seven, 92-85 with one minute 18 seconds left on the clock.

Smith attributed the win to two things. "Denver was super last night and they were tired tonight. I don't think Denver plays as well as they did last night. We were more poised and together tonight. We were trying very hard to execute well in front of the crowd."

With less than a minute on the clock and the USA leading 96-85 Smith, the University of North Carolina head coach, installed LaGarde, Davis and Ford and Mitch Kupchak all members of Smith's Tarheel team, along with National Player of the Year May. At the same time, Smith installed his famed four-corner offer (Olympic rules have a 30-second clock). When asked if he would use the four-corners in the Olympics, Smith responded, "We'll do it with a minute to play and 11-point lead. We haven't worked on it. We'll use it with 30 seconds to go in the half of the game and then get the shot clock down to 23 seconds and the shot."

"I'm happy with the attitude of the team," he said. "They're playing hard and passing well. I don't know when I'll cut the squad to 12."

The Olympic team travels to College Park, Maryland Sunday night to play the Israeli team. When asked how many he would take to College Park, Smith responded, "I haven't thought about that."

He said he was pleased with the progress of the team after having just three actual days of practice and then starting an exhibition tour.

Mahaffey Determined To Win This Time Around

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — John Mahaffey got his dander up when a fellow golfer pro told him he was "chicken."

"I was boiling mad at first—then I said maybe the guy is right," said the baby-faced Texan, who shot into the halfway lead of the 76th United States Open Friday with a 70-68-138.

"I started getting more aggressive, going for the pins more and not leaving so many putts short. I am more determined than ever to win this tournament. I can't forget that I had it in my hands and let it slip away."

Mahaffey, 28, is slightly built, a precision striker of the ball in the mold of Ben Hogan. He tied for the Open a year ago at Medinah in Chicago and then lost in an 18-hole playoff to Lou Graham.

Attacking the 7,015-yard, par 70 Atlanta Athletic Club course with all his vigor, Mahaffey seized the lead with a near-perfect round that included four birdies and two bogeys.

As the balloon burst for the intriguing, 21-year-old amateur,

Mike Reid, whose 67 gave him a three-stroke lead after the first round, lanky Al Geiberger moved into second place behind Mahaffey with 70-69. They were followed by two of Mahaffey's fellow "young lions," Ben Crenshaw and Jerry Pate, plus 10-year pro Rod Funseth, all tied at 140.

There was a cluster tied at 142, including Hubert Green, J.C. Snead, Lyn Lott, Mike Morley and Butch Baird, while most of the game's super stars were strung out in the rear.

The perennial man to beat, Jack Nicklaus, reeled off 18 consecutive pars for a 70 and, coupled with Thursday's birdieless round of 74, challenged from six shots back at 144.

The slender, low-key Reid, just out of Brigham Young University, took triple bogeys on the ninth and 18th holes in shooting an 81-14 strokes over his blazing start—and suddenly discovered fame is fleeting.

Mahaffey, a Houston University product out of Little Ker-ville, Tex., was paired with two fellow Texans, Crenshaw and Tom Kite, Jr., who missed the cut. The handsome, 24-year-old Crenshaw matched Mahaffey's 68 although he was as wild as John was steady.

Geiberger, of Santa Barbara, Calif., who went into a mysterious eight-year slump after winning the PGA title in 1966, munched protein bars as he cranked out his steady 69.

Pate, 22, former U.S. amateur champion out of Pensacola, Fla., and the University of Alabama, was going for the lead when he three-putted the last two holes.

Scores of 151 and better survived the cutoff of low 60 and ties. The biggest casualty was two-time winner Bill Casper, now a rancher in Utah.

Graham, the almost forgotten defending champion, sneaked in with 75-74-149 as did Arnold Palmer, 75-75-150, and Gary Player, 72-77-149.

Madlock's Smash Gives Cubs Win

ATLANTA (AP) —Atlanta righthander Carl Morton, frustrated in his 15th attempt this season to win a National League game by a 6-4 defeat at the hands of the Chicago Cubs, has begun to look askance at the Braves' bullpen.

"I'm supposed to work seven or eight innings and they're supposed to work one or two," Morton said after leaving the game Friday night with a 3-1 edge and three men on in the seventh inning.

"That's what relievers are paid for," he added. "But it hasn't worked out that way."

Bill Madlock came on to face righthanded reliever Max Leon and blasted a grand slam home run, his second of the season and the fifth homer, crushing Morton's hopes and giving him a 0-6 record. Last year this time, Morton was 8-6.

"It's difficult to come out, but I got tired tonight and knew I needed to come out," he said. "There were times earlier in the season when I thought the starting pitchers were being taken out too soon."

Rick Reuschel, 7-4, was Chicago's winner.

Madlock said the homer, besides putting the Cubs over the top, help him break out of a personal slump.

"It came at a good time because I hadn't been doing anything recently," he said. "I realize it was barely over and barely fair, but I'm not going to throw it back."

Morton started the seventh by walking Dave Rosello and pinchhitter John Summers and then gave up a bases-loaded single to Jose Cardenal before being pulled.

Steve Swisher led off the Cubs' fifth with a single and later scored the game's first run on Cardenal's hit. Swisher added the final run in the eighth with a sacrifice fly, scoring Pete LaCock, who led off the inning with a double.

The Braves' initial run came in the fifth when Jerry Royster extended his hitting streak to 22 games by hitting a single. He scored all the way from first on Morton's single when Cubs' right fielder Jerry Morales bobbled the ball.

Right fielder Ken Henderson forced Lacy at the plate, and catcher Earl Williams struck out before shortstop Darrel Chaney came through with a two-run double to make it a 3-1 game with the Braves leading.

Atlanta faces the Cubs again tonight in a doubleheader, with pitchers Andy Messersmith, 5-5, and Phil Niekro, 4-4, scheduled to duel the Cubs' Ray Burris, 3-8, and Joe Coleman, 0-1.

Office, reflecting on his hitting streak, expressed displeasure.

Seaver Whips Giants, 3-2

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver hasn't been the same since he came back from Los Angeles—and it's a good thing for the New York Mets.

Seaver started off the season in a slump, but since an adjustment to his pitching style in California two weeks ago, he appears to be as strong as ever.

"I certainly can win 20 games if I keep pitching the way I have been lately," Seaver said after hurling a two-hitter Friday night to lead the Mets to a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The victory was Seaver's second in five days over San Francisco and his seventh of the season against five losses. His splendid pitching was supported by home runs by Ed Kranepool and John Milner.

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies nipped the Cincinnati Reds 6-5; the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Houston Astros 7-3; the St. Louis Cardinals downed the San Diego Padres 7-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the Montreal Expos 6-5 and the Chicago Cubs beat the Atlanta Braves 6-4.

Phillies 6, Reds 5
Mike Schmidt's three-run homer and a solo blast by Dick Allen triggered Philadelphia over Cincinnati. George Foster belted two homers for the Reds to increase his National League-leading RBI to 59.

An exceptional play by shortstop Larry Bowa in the ninth inning saved the game for Philadelphia. Bowa raced five feet to his right, came up with Tony Perez' hard smash and while off balance, threw out the Cincinnati slugger by an eyelash.

Pirates 7, Astros 3
Al Oliver and Manny Sanguillen each drove in two runs to lead Pittsburgh over Houston. It was the sixth loss in a row for the Astros, who committed three errors.

Cardinals 7, Padres 4
Rookie Hector Cruz and veteran Lou Brock pounded inside-the-park home runs, both with two out and a runner on base, and lifted St. Louis over San Diego.

The Cardinals' victory came at the expense of Padre left-hander Randy Jones, 12-3, who had won seven straight games since he was beaten by the New York Mets on May 7.

Dodgers 6, Expos 5
Run-scoring singles by Bill Buckner, Steve Garvey and Ron Cey broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning and Los Angeles held on to beat Montreal. The Dodgers' three-run rally came after the Expos had come back to tie the score with three runs in the bottom of the seventh.

Charlie Hough, who pitched the last two innings, posted his fifth save of the season.

Cubs 6, Braves 4
Bill Madlock smashed a grand slam home run in the seventh inning, lifting Chicago over Atlanta. Madlock's homer, which barely cleared the fence a few feet inside the left-field foul pole, was his fifth of the season.

Shaw Loses Record But Wins Position

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Gritty Tim Shaw lost his final world record in what he termed a fair exchange for a spot on the United States Olympic swimming team.

The 18-year-old Sullivan Award winner of 1975, who has suffered from anemia the past month, then added his hope that the U.S. men can score a one-two-three sweep in the 400-meter freestyle race at the Olympiad in Montreal.

Brian Goodell, a 17-year-old from Mission Viejo, Calif., took Shaw's record in the 400 at the Olympic Trials on Friday night with a winning time of 3:53.08 in the fastest metric quarter mile ever swum.

But despite being tired in the final 50 meters, Shaw held on to post a 3:53.52 and take his place on the squad. A year ago, when Shaw held world records from 200 to 1,500 meters, he posted 3:53.31 as the fastest ever.

Actually, he may swim in the 1,500 and perhaps the 200-backstroke, but the 400 is his best race and he'd already missed in the 200 freestyle when he finished fifth.

Casey Converse from Mission Viejo beat out early pace setter John Naber for the third place and spot on the team as he swam 3:53.70.

Those top times compare well with the Olympic record of 4:00.27 set by Bradford Cooper of Australia in 1972. And all eight of the finalists were under the U.S. Olympic trials record of 4:00.11 by Tom McBreen, also in 1972.

Shirley Babashoff continued her torrid swimming with her second American record and third trials victory in as many nights. This time, in the 400, she lowered her own American record to 4:12.85 from 4:14.76.

Barbara Krause of East Germany took Miss Babashoff's world record when she swam a 4:11.69 at the Communist nation's Olympic trials earlier this month.

"So there remains a challenge," the California 19-year-old declared. "I think I can go faster if someone fast is in the race with me."

Her third victory opened the door for Donnalee Wennerstrom of Canoga Park, Calif., to join the U.S. team. Donnalee placed third in the 400-meter individual medley on Friday night. Although only two automatically qualify from that event, there is a provision for a third in case any of the girls make the team in two events.

Miss Babashoff set an American record in the 200 freestyle at 2:00.69 and also won the medley in 4:57.11.

Ted Williams figured in the scoring of seven runs when the American League beat the National 12-0 in the 1946 All-Star game.

Guthrie Enters Grand National

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Janet Guthrie, the first woman to compete in a major stock car race, has entered another, the National 500 Grand National Oct. 10.

"We have a definite commitment from Janet to return here in the National 500 and she may drive in the World Service Life 300 on Oct. 9," Bobby Batson, spokesman for the Charlotte Motor Speedway, said Friday.

"One of the big reasons that she may race in the 300 is the $125,000 purse that it will offer this year," Batson said.

The World Service Life is a 300-mile event for NASCAR's Late Model Sportsman division. Batson said Miss Guthrie will enter the same Chevrolet she drove in the World 600 last month. The car, once driven by A.J. Foyt in the Daytona 500, was purchased from Hoss Ellington by Lynda Ferreri, public relations executive of a Charlotte bank. It was prepared for Miss Guthrie by engine builder Ralph Moody of Charlotte. The sponsor of Miss Guthrie's car for the National 500 will be announced next week, Batson said.

The 38-year-old physicist from New York drove the entire 600-miles in the World 600 and finished 15th after starting 27th in the 40-car field. She entered the World 600 after failing to qualify for the Indianapolis 500 because of mechanical problems. She had hoped to become the first woman to compete in that race.

Bicentennial Freak Collects 'Schlock'

By HERB WEBER
BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — During the past school year, Prof. Jesse Lemisch of the State University at Buffalo asked his class on the history of the Bicentennial to bring in what he calls "Bicentennial Schlock."

Now, the historian says, "it's about to run me out of my office."

"Basically, what we did was try to figure out what the Bicentennial was all about," Lemisch explains. "As an intended serious part of the course, I asked students to gather what we decided to call 'Bicentennial Schlock.'"

Not only did his students respond overwhelmingly to the project, but he has been getting examples from friends all over the country. More has come from people who heard about the project.

"It's all around us and we know what it is," Lemisch says. "The students took to it with great enthusiasm. After every class, I found myself overwhelmed with shopping bags that I had to tote clear across campus."

Lemisch confesses he is fascinated by the stuff.

"As a historian, I found that Centennial material from 1876 apparently languished at low value for about 99.5 years," he said. But he has discovered that as the current Bicentennial got going "the value of the Centennial stuff increased."

"And there was a lot of schlock in 1876," he said with some emphasis.

"I do feel a lot of this stuff will vanish very quickly, but I'm a terminal Bicentennial freak myself," he said. "I'm decorating my house with it. I love this stuff."

He says there "tends to be a lot of snobbery and condescension about this material. There's an assumption that people are really taken in by this. But, as I understand it, nobody thinks this is other than a joke and that's it."

But Lemisch also feels it is somewhat "tragic in the sense that people with patriotic feelings are not finding in the Bicentennial any adequate vehicles to attach this feeling to."

What schlock fills his shopping bags?

— A plastic bag with the "original" Declaration of Independence on it, made in Sweden.

— Paper dinnerware with Patrick Henry's speech.

— Menus and recipes, including a menu offering a "Betsy Ross special."

— Napkins and place mats.

— A plastic version of an "original Benjamin Franklin Kite, which also contains a reproduction of Declaration of Independence."

— Wool dolls from Germany dressed up like the "Spirit of '76."

— Clothes, pens and pencils and even a coat hanger with a Bicentennial theme.

"My pants came back from the cleaners with a plastic wrap with a Bicentennial theme," he said. "I have a wrapper from a Big Boy hamburger with a Bicentennial theme."

Lemisch plans to put it all — well, as much as he can — on display on the university campus in October. Right now, he is dividing it into categories.

"One major category is Bicen-for-eating. We have Bicentennial beer and soda pop bottles and cans. We can produce three square meals and then some with this."

When he gets Bicentennial wrapped food stuffs, he said, "I find it impossible to prevent myself from eating it, and I save the wrapper."

He thinks one box he got was empty because "I probably would remember eating a Peter Patriot hollow chocolate rabbit."

Another category: health and cleanliness.

There are Bicentennial wet-naps for cleaning up, for example. "One of the most extraordinary examples in that, or any other, category came in the mail yesterday," he said. "It was a Bicentennial sani-bag for disposal of sanitary napkins."

Most, he believes, is of very limited value.

"I asked the students to make a point of getting the stuff, if not free, really very cheap, under $1. Essentially, what we've got is empty containers."

"One of the great heritages of the Bicentennial," he said, "is empty containers, such as garbage bags, soda bottles and so on. Most of this is free, but we also have an ad for a Bicentennial wedding. With champagne it's $1.976 dollars, and without $1.776."

Hopes Raised By Industries

By ERICA WAHA
ZELTWEG, Austria (AP) — Coal mining used to be the link-to-life in the area surrounding this southeast Austrian town. When the demand for coal dropped, gloom settled in the wide valley between two towering Alpine ranges.

But the Zeltweg area benefited from the fact that it was in such bad shape.

Asked recently why the Austrian government spent some two billion Schillings ($111 million) to rehabilitate the area, State Secretary for Economic Questions Eugen Veselsky replied, "The people here were the worst hit."

There had been a virtual exodus from here as miners and others began to look for jobs elsewhere. The government program reversed the trend.

According to Veselsky, the government wanted to make a model case out of the Zeltweg situation. The problem was how to restore life to a depressed area which had lost its main economic support — coal, in the Zeltweg case.

The solution was to attract new industries.

Ecology was no problem. People used to coal mining are not likely to complain about environmental problems and there was a large available labor force.

A number of years ago when coal mining was on the decline, there was an atmosphere of widespread worry.

The coal miners knew they would not starve in a welfare state such as Austria, but they did not know where they would work and where they would live. Many had houses here, and many came from families that had worked in the coal mines for generations.

Now there is a clear change. The new program has already created 2,000 jobs. People who had gone to work elsewhere have come back. Others, who had worked in lower-paying jobs, have better ones.

"I was a salesgirl in a store," a factory worker said.

Free Medical Service Given

VIENNA (AP) — Included in the broad range of medical care provided by the city of Vienna are free annual check-ups for every school child in the Austrian capital.

Mothers may take advantage of clinics throughout the city where children up to the age of 6 get vaccinations, hearing and vision tests and other medical attention.

A visiting nurse service makes house calls to old people and hospital out-patients, checking on diets, administering medication and changing dressings.

"I now make much more money with shorter hours." She was working in a brand-new electrical appliances plant. The factory hall was wide, clean and well lit.

The government attracted the factory here by offering a number of advantages to the West German concern that built it.

"I would say working morale is higher here than at home," the West German manager said. "We have no problem finding good people: the pay is somewhat lower than in West Germany, but higher than the local average."

There are 93,000 inhabitants in the area called the Aichfeld-Murboden region. Of them, 36,735 have jobs. This is still somewhat lower than the Austrian average of 43,388 jobs for the same number of people.

Veselsky said the program has not yet been completed. It calls for additional industry to move here, and for the construction of more workers' apartments and of new schools, including vocational schools.

Superfathers Are Recorded

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Who's the champion father of all time? The most likely contender is King Solomon the Wise, ruler of Israel in the 10th century B.C. and son of King David, surmise Hallmark historians doing research on Father's Day. Solomon had 700 wives and 300 concubines, but there is no record of how many children he fathered.

Another prolific father was Emperor Moulay Ismail of Morocco, known as "The Blood-thirsty." Ismail, born in 1672, is said to have left 548 sons and 340 daughters when he died in 1727 at the age of 55. The emperor, reversing Solomon's situation, had 300 wives and 700 concubines.

In more recent times Fyodor Vassiliev (1816-72) of Moscow, is reported to have had 69 children by his first wife, including twins, triplets and quadruplets.

Early Finds In New Mexico

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The first commercial production of petroleum in New Mexico began in 1924 from wells in the northwestern part of the state.

Although oil was first discovered in New Mexico in 1911, the first pool large enough for commercial production was not discovered until Sept. 24, 1922. The first discovery of gas in commercial supply was also made in northwestern New Mexico in 1921.

Come and see an outstanding luxury car that won't cost a small fortune.

1976 LANCIA BETA COUPE
Serial No. 603292

You owe it to yourself to look at one of Europe's great luxury cars. The new Lancia Beta.

It has a 4-cylinder twin overhead cam engine for good performance. A 5-speed overdrive transmission for greater engine efficiency. Front-wheel drive, rack-and-pinion steering and disc brakes on all four wheels, designed for superb handling and sure, straight stops. And Lancia's sophisticated, fully independent suspension is engineered for an incredibly smooth ride.

The interior of the Lancia Beta is equally impressive. It has reclining bucket seats, which in the Coupe are real leather. An adjustable steering column. An electronic clock. And deep pile carpeting. When you drive the Lancia, you'll understand why Lancia is a legendary name in well-engineered automobiles. That's why we suggest you arrange for a test drive.

We think you'll discover that the Lancia Beta is the intelligent alternative to an overpriced European luxury car or a Detroit status symbol.

By BARRY JAMES
MOSCOW (UPI) — Author Lev Kopelev could become the biggest cause celebre in Russian literature since Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn as a result of his new book criticizing the Soviet armed forces.

Kopelev, 64, an army major in World War II, deals with a subject never mentioned here — the alleged atrocities committed by Soviet troops in Germany in 1945.

Propaganda here has always depicted the Soviet soldier as morally superior to others. But Kopelev said he saw with his own eyes murders, massacres, rapes, plunder and looting carried out by the Red army. The book, "Khranit Vechno" (Preserve Forever) has appeared in a Russian-language version in the United States and the German translation already is on the best-seller list in West Germany. Kopelev expects an English translation to appear later this summer.

Why wait 31 years to publish? Mainly because at the time Kopelev was a dedicated Stalinist and in general agreed with Soviet policies, despite what he had seen.

Even after serving most of a 10-year prison camp sentence after the war, he successfully sought reinstatement in the Communist party. He was still a Communist when, in 1960, he began the 12-year task of writing the book.

"At first I had no thought of publishing it," he said in an interview at his Moscow apartment. "I wrote it for my children and grandchildren so that they might understand."

He described the book as a personal catharsis.

"I wanted to make my own role quite clear," he said. "I wanted not to forget."

"I wanted to remember the good men for whom there is no monument and sometimes not even a grave marker, and I wanted to remember the bad people as well — so in one sense the book is an act of judgment, of revenge."

Already, Kopelev said, a campaign of harassing and threatening telephone calls has begun against him, and he recently was attacked in a Bulgarian literary magazine as a "traitor and slanderer who helps German revanchism."

Asked if was afraid of worse attacks, and perhaps arrest, Kopelev replied:

"I try not to think about it. One thing I have learned in life is that there will be plenty of time to think about the bad things when they arrive. Until then, I can do nothing to change them."

There are many similarities between Kopelev and his close friend, Solzhenitsyn.

Both were army officers in the war. Both had studied German and were thus better placed to understand the struggle in which they were involved. Both were dedicated Communists who were arrested at the front because of criticism of Soviet power. Both were swallowed into the maw of the Gulag archipelago.

Kopelev said he tried to speak out as best he could against atrocities but instead was arrested and charged with "propaganda on behalf of bourgeois humanism, pity for the enemy and slander of our own troops."

Kopelev is not indiscriminate in his criticism.

"I do not think the murdering was the work of true soldiers," he said. "It was done by the rascals from the rear," referring to security and political officers. "The real soldiers had no time for that kind of killing."

Like others swept by the millions into prison camps, Kopelev's dossier bore the stamp "preserve forever" — hence the title of the book.

After the death of dictator Josef Stalin, Kopelev was released, rehabilitated and reinstated into the party. But he was expelled again in 1968 for writing protests against the trials of intellectuals and the incursion of the KGB political police into cultural life.

He also was criticized for writing an article in an Austrian Communist newspaper about the danger of resurgent Stalinism in the Soviet Union.

"I am not a Communist any longer, neither by card nor by inclination," said Kopelev, who looks like a Russian Orthodox monk with twinkling brown eyes and a bushy, white spade beard.

A Jew from Kiev in the Ukraine, Kopelev specializes in German language and literature. "Khranit Vechno" is his first political book.

His decision to publish hardened after the persecution of Solzhenitsyn. He thought the book could contribute to international tolerance.

"It is the most important thing for mankind today," he said. "In this country, we have believed too long that we possess the only saving ideology and that we alone can judge the past and future of peoples. Such pretensions, when accompanied by militancy and intolerance, are most dangerous."

LEV KOPELEV could become the biggest cause celebre in Russian literature since Solzhenitsyn as a result of his new book. (UPI Photo)

Miss Sandra Downing Weds John West Barber

Miss Sandra Louise Downing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edward Downing of Greenville, became the bride of John West Barber Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in a ceremony performed in the Oakmont Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Barber of Greenville are parents of the bridegroom.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Gordon Conklin and the Rev. John W. Brooks of Falcon, grandfather of the bride. Pre-nuptial music was presented by Dr. Robert Irwin, organist, and Ann Searl, flutist, both of Greenville. Soloist during the ceremony was Steve Estes of Baltimore with guitar accompaniment.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white silken organza over peau de soie. The gown was styled with Queen Ann collar, trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace which continued on the front and natural waistline. The long sheer fitted sleeves ended in a calla point of lace and closed with bridal buttons. The full circular skirt flowed into a chapel length train bordered with scallops of lace.

She chose a matching chapel length mantilla of silk illusion and re-embroidered alencon lace fashioned by Priscilla of Boston. The mantilla was attached to a Camelot headpiece of matching lace. The bride carried a cascade of miniature roses and Stephanotis centered with white orchids.

The bride is a graduate of Salem College, Winston-Salem, with a B.S. degree in piano performance. She will be teaching piano in Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S.C., with a B.S. degree in Biblical studies. For the past year, he has been serving as youth pastor at the Westover Presbyterian Church, Greensboro. He will be a sales representative at the Fixture House, Greenville, before entering seminary in graduate studies.

The maid of honor was Cathy Downing of Greenville, sister of the bride. She was dressed in a formal gown of green poly knit designed with a V-neckline, capelet sleeves and empire bodice. The A-line skirt was styled with a diamond shaped insert. She carried a cascade of yellow daisies sprinkled with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Annie

Young Clark and Nancy Barber, sister of the bridegroom, both of Greenville, Lucy Rose of Goldsboro and Debbie Knight of Fayetteville. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried nosegays of yellow daisies with baby's breath and Greenery.

Honorary bridesmaids were Margaret Stevens and Debbie Dausman, both of Greenville, and Kash Burch of Reidsville. They carried a single long-stemmed yellow rose.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of yellow poly knit with a cape of chiffon. The mother of the bridegroom selected a princess gown of blue chiffon accented by a bolero of alencon lace. Both mothers wore corsages of miniature orchids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Chuck and Jeff Barber, brothers of the bridegroom, Joey Downing, brother of the bride, all of Greenville, and Steve Estes of Baltimore, Md.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. William Wiggs of Wilson.

The bridal couple and wedding guests were entertained at a reception immediately following the ceremony.

The table was covered with a white embroidered linen cloth with an arrangement of mixed flowers gracing the center. Mrs. James Reece of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Charles Flowers of Wilson poured punch. Cake was served by Mrs. William Bost Jr. and Mrs. James Bowman of Greenville. Mrs. Cecil Hinnant of Greenville assisted in serving. Mrs. William Barnes registered guests and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Downing of Wilson said good-byes.

A brunch was given by Miss Annie Clark and Dr. and Mrs. Badger Clark for the bridesmaids and others of the wedding party Saturday morning at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

A dinner at the Candlewick Inn was given before the rehearsal Friday evening by the parents of the bridegroom. Members of the bridal party were guests.

For a wedding trip to Florida and southern states, the bride changed into a street length dress of melon Indian muslin.

Tyler-Clark Vows Solemnized In Saturday Ceremony

Cathy Manning Clark and Gerald Lee Tyler were united in marriage Saturday at St. James Methodist Church at 12 noon. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. F.R. Randolph.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Alton Ray James of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lloyd Tyler of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white English net and silkened organza designed by Priscilla of Boston. The gown was styled with a high neckline and long sheer sleeves featuring a flounce. The molded bodice continued into an A-line skirt and a self-train flowed from the waist. A trim of chantilly and Venise lace was used at the neck and on the bodice and sleeves. The skirt and train were scattered with chantilly appliques and Venise daisies. The back of the gown was fastened with traditional buttons.

To complete her attire, the bride wore a Camelot cap of alencon lace and pearls attached to an illusion veil of chapel length. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow daisies mixed with baby's breath.

Mrs. Debbie McLeod of Kinston served her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Theresa Braswell of Durham, cousin of the bride, Miss Wanda Bogue of Fremont, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Molly Kay James of Greenville, sister of the bride.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of floral print knit fabric in watercolor shades of mint green, pink, blue and yellow. The gowns were styled with open V-necklines and full flared skirts. The sleeveless gowns were complemented by formal length drapes of voile fabric printed in the matching floral pattern, designed with high fitted necklines and outlined in a ruffle of self-fabric. Each attendant carried a long-stemmed yellow rose.

Teenager Refuses To Hurt An Insect

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 14, and she loves animals. She is not just your ordinary animal lover, Abby, she is fanatic about it.

She thinks it is wrong to kill an insect, a mouse or any kind of bug or rodent.

When she sees one of us kill a fly or a cockroach, she carries on like a crazy person.

If we try to set traps to catch mice, she goes into hysterics. How can I convince her that flies and mice carry germs, and it is better to get rid of them?

Please help me. Sometimes I wonder if this child is normal.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Your daughter's concern for the "sanctity of life" is admirable. But you can explain to her that unless humans exterminate creatures that carry disease and destruction, there will be no life for HUMANS!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married two months ago. It was the second marriage for both of us.

Yesterday one of my husband's so-called friends called and told me things about my husband's past that upset me. She said that he had had psychiatric treatment for suicidal tendencies shortly before we met. (I had had psychiatric treatment for the same reason, but I told him about it before we were married. I wonder why he didn't tell me?)

What, if anything, should I do? My primary concern is that my husband should know that this woman is not worthy of his trust. Also, do you think that his secrecy about his past is a sign that our marriage is in trouble? We have gotten along so well, I can't believe it.

There is a possibility, of course, that this woman's stories are untrue. It's hard for me to understand why some people will go out of their way to cause others pain.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Rather than live with doubts, you should tell your husband what this "friend" told you and give him a chance to respond. True or false, it will clear the air. And you'd do well to avoid this woman. She's bad news.

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, energetic, fun-loving divorcee who likes a good time, which sometimes gets me into trouble.

While my neighbor was in the hospital having a baby, I sort of lived it up with her husband.

She found out about it, and my life hasn't been the same since. She has called me every name in the book and has even threatened to "get even" with me if it's the last thing she does.

She insists that I talked her husband into it, which is not true. He was as willing as I was. Now her husband is blaming me because his wife is carrying on like a maniac.

I am twice-divorced and know what it's like to have a woman steal her husband. I am no home-wrecker, but what's another slice off a loaf that's already been cut?

How can I get this woman to realize I don't want her husband, I was only having a little fun?

ALL IN FUN

DEAR ALL: Living it up with another woman's husband is hard to live down. Don't try to explain your harmless intentions. And stay out of her way.

Diaphanuos Saris Pass Into History

By RAMESH C. PANDE

LUCKNOW, India (UPI) — Chikuns, the sheer muslin saris that once draped the beautiful concubines of the royal Moghul harems, have passed, with the harems, into Arabian Nights history.

Demand for the delicate saris has nearly vanished. At $1,300 for a six-yard piece — the normal length of an Indian sari — there are few Indian women who can afford them. And at wages of $25 per sari, there are few young craftsmen willing to master the fine art of embroidering a Chikun.

Lucknow is the home of the Chikun, which in the Urdu language means "praiseworthy." The Moghul emperors who ruled here in the 16th Century gave it that name in appreciation of the fine embroidery and weaving.

At 95, Habib Khan is the doyen of Chikun makers in this ancient Moghul city.

Looking back at 85 years of fashioning the diaphanous garments, he recalls how the Moslem playboys of the Oudh (former name of Lucknow) empire liked to see their women in transparent dresses. Introducing the sari — originally only worn by Hindu women — to their Moslem concubines, they asked the dresses be made from muslin as thin as onion skin. Thus was born the Chikun-style of sari making.

According to Khan, the quality of a Chikun sari was determined by the number of yards of material that could be passed through the eye of a ring. Fifty yards of a very fine piece could be contained in the palm of the hand, he said.

But Khan said he has few customers for his craft these days: "Customers ordering a 10,000-rupee saree can be counted on finger tips."

His decades of embroidering the thin cloth have been "a long battle between the eyes and the needle," he said.

Khan admitted, "I have yet to embroider a masterpiece. But will anyone pay me for it?" It takes him nearly a month of eye-straining thread-work to fashion a Chikun. And the earnings aren't attractive — $25 per month for stitching round the clock in a dimly-lit attic.

Khan learned Chikun-work from his father but has drawn inspiration from old masters. His prize possession is a richly embroidered piece which according to him is "a relic

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Everyone seemed amazed that when the traditional "Gentlemen, start your motors" resounded at Indianapolis this year, Janet Guthrie was stomping to start hers.

Janet made racing car history by being the first woman to survive the time trial for the 500.

As a woman who once belonged to eight car pools, I find Janet's 171.429 miles per hour on a wet track rather unimpressive.

I could name dozens of women who have topped that with one arm on the wheel and the other pulling in a kid waving like a flag from the radio antenna.

There's Wanda Fletcher, who averaged 210.057 on a dirt road when it was discovered one of her passengers checked the soft drink bottle on the way home from camp . . . and the snake was missing.

There's Phyllis Startle, who braked a car going 55 mph on an expressway when a kid in the back seat announced she was going to throw up in the door pocket.

And who could forget the cool driving skill of Beth Grit, who drove eight Girl Scouts through traffic at 5 p.m. with a wad of chewing gum in her ear and an open umbrella in her kidney?

I personally volunteered to drive six boys home from a ballgame one night, which makes Miss Guthrie's 20 laps around a two-and-a-half-mile track seem like she was standing still.

One swore his house had moved. Another knew a short cut which took in three states. Another said we had passed his house three times, but he didn't mention it because he didn't want to miss a story his buddy was telling. By the time I got home my clothes had gone out of style.

The old myth about women not from the nuptial bed of Emperor Shah Jehan and Empress Mumtaz," in whose memory the emperor built the famous Taj Mahal.

Each time Khan digs out the filmy cloth from his rusty tin box, tears well his eyes.

"Can anyone embroider like this now?" he asks.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Mrs. Robert H. Daniel of Greenville is featured in an article in this month's issue of "Carolina Country" magazine. She was also featured in a photograph on the cover of the first issue of the publication in 1946.

"Carolina Country" is the official publication of North Carolina's rural electric cooperatives. This month's issue is the 30th anniversary edition and includes several special articles focusing on its history.

The article on Mrs. Daniel explains the circumstances which led to her role as the first cover girl for what was then known as "The Carolina Farmer." The magazine's name was changed in 1969.

Raleigh photographer Lewis Watson was looking for a photo subject to grace the cover of the new farm publication, then headquartered in Greensboro. He remembered Mrs. Daniel—then Miss Rae Watson of Elm City. He had met her at her parents' home while photographing some renovations which had been made at the home for the Home Demonstration Club.

He gave her a call and the two of them went to Montgomery County's peach orchards to make the picture.

Mrs. Daniel is married to Robert Harris Daniel and they have three children, Mrs. Betsy Bullock, Harris and David.

A friend of Betsy's, Marge Howell, who now works for the magazine recognized Mrs. Daniel's name while the magazine staff was working on the anniversary issue and gave her a call.

Mrs. Daniel attended UNC at Greensboro and graduated from Atlantic Christian College with a degree in history.

Mrs. Daniel is a member of the Greenville Service League and Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, where she is active in the church circle.

The First Baptist Church, Farmville, will be the scene of the July 31 wedding of Laura Turnage and Frank McNair.

The bride-elect teaches at East Forsyth Senior High School, Winston-Salem. She is a 1974 cum laude graduate of Salem College. Her fiancé graduated from UNC-CH in 1974 and was a Morehead Scholar. He will enter Babcock School of Business at Wake Forest University this fall.

Cathy Long and Garland Edward Warren Jr. will exchange wedding vows Aug. 1 in the Everetts Christian Church.

A graduate of the Beaufort Technical Institute School of Nursing, Cathy is presently employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital as a registered nurse.

Her fiancé is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he received a B.A. degree in chemistry. He is presently employed by the Town of Robersonville.

Pat Cavendish and John Conway became engaged December, 1975, but have been dating for nine years. They were riding down Fifth Street here when he presented her with an engagement ring. Pat, who was eating an apple, became so excited that she just pitched the apple out the car window.

She is a graduate of Meredith College with a degree in French. John is studying radiological technology, will enter nursing school at Wake Tech in the fall and then plans to study anesthesiology.

The couple will wed Aug. 21 in the First Christian Church.

Old, New Crafts Taught In Books

Tatted dollies and antimacassars may be due for a revival.

Recent craft books include "Tatted Dollies" by Elvira Nicholls (Scribners $9.95), an illustrated instruction book on a thread-knotting technique that was developed, like macrame (decorative rope-knotting), by sailors on long voyages before the steamship era. It was popular as a womanly pastime in the 19th and early 20th century. Tatted also differs from macrame in that it is worked with a shuttle instead of fingers alone.

Another old-fashioned needlecraft apt to have broader appeal is described and pictured with charm and skill in "Deerfield Embroidery" by Margery Burnham Howe (Scribners $17.50). The embroidery is named for the Deerfield Society of Blue and White Needlework in Deerfield, Mass., whose members used traditional colonial designs of the state. Each pattern is pictured in original size. The society was founded around the turn of the century.

More modern crafts represented with good books include "Sand Art" by Ellen Appel (Crown $4.95 paper). The technique uses colored sand to create designs in clear glass containers for decoration only or as bases for terrarium soil and plants. The tools are mostly common household utensils: a skewer, a plastic fork with all but one tine removed, a spoon bent into ladle shape, a flat coffee stirrer, among others.

Barbara Walker's "Mosaic Knitting" (Scribners $17.95) should challenge experienced knitters. It contains 200 designs that would make dramatic wearing apparel, accessories and home furnishings. A clever crafter could even adapt them for needlepoint.

Most designs in Margaret

Boyle's "American Indian Needlepoint Workbook" (Collier Books $4.95 paper) were adapted from tribal bead and quill work to use as pillows, belts and other accessories, and are easy to follow.

Advanced needlepointers looking for new challenges will find dozens of beauties in Carolyn Ambuter's "Needlepoint Celebrations" (Quadrangle $14.95), commemorating weddings, engagements, graduations and other festive occasions. Our favorites are a clockface pillow and an American primitive sampler showing parents and two small children before a wood-burning fireplace in an old-fashioned living room.

Other commendable new craft books include:

"Batik" by John Houston and Noel Dyrenforth (Bobbs-Merrill $9.95): high style designs for fashions and home furnishings. Houston, a curator of craft collections, worked with designer Dyrenforth, using the traditional South Pacific wax and dye process for imprinting cotton fabric with abstract and representational designs.

"Pillow People" by Bill Bragdon and Jeanne Harrison (Hawthorn $5.95 paper): 40 needlepoint doll pillows ranging from cuddly to grotesque.

"Hope Hanley's Patterns for Needlepoint" (Scribners $14.95): geometric designs that strongly resemble bargello, or Florentine needlework, but using traditional needlepoint stitches, which are shorter than bargello.

Marion Broome Pakula's "New Ideas for Needlepoint" (Crown $7.95): plaids, houndstooth checks and letters, small to large, plain and ornate, all clearly charted and described.

"Pincushions" by Averil Colby (Scribners $10) and "Modern Stitchery" by B. Kay Fraser (Crown $6.95): good projects for crafters who are short on patience, time and money and seeking good ideas for small articles for gift-giving or selling at community and church bazaars and women's exchanges. The books themselves would make good gifts for shut-ins or hospital patients.

Prolific Author Turns Out Twenty Books In Year's Time

By JANE SEE WHITE
NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Cartland spends a good deal of her time in the 19th century.

She likes it there, and with good reason: Miss Cartland is the world's best-selling author of romantic 19th century fiction.

She has written more than 180 books during the last 50 years and, at 74, she is still going strong. Her two most recent books are "Passions in the Sand" and "No Time for Love."

"I prefer the 19th century because all my heroines are virgins and they were so much more common then," she said in an interview during a visit here. "And in the 19th century it's so much easier to have an adventure, what with all the exciting things that were happening then."

Miss Cartland believes she set a world's record in creative productivity in 1975. Working at her 350-acre estate, Camfield Place in England, she turned out 19 novels and "one cookery book."

"The idea for a plot comes to me just out of the blue, you know, and it suddenly all falls into shape," Miss Cartland said. "It is absolutely a miracle to me — I don't know how it happens."

Once the plot has taken shape in her mind, she stretches out on a divan, dog in her lap, and spends two hours a day dictating the tale to a secretary.

What she does is close her eyes and she is transported into her 19th century setting. As the story unfolds, she simply tells her secretary what she sees.

"And of course it is believable because I have been to all the houses and places I describe," she said.

Dictating a 7,000-word chapter a day, Miss Cartland can turn out a book every seven days or so when the Muse is with her. Each book runs about 185 pages in paperback. The style is short paragraphs, punctuated with a good deal of conversation between the characters.

"I asked my secretaries what they do when they are reading and they come upon a long paragraph," she said. "And they said, 'Why, skip it, of course.' So I don't write long paragraphs."

The writing is somewhat simplified because there are certain key elements in every Barbara Cartland romantic tale.

Every heroine is, indeed, a virgin. She prays, reads a good deal and often has an aptitude for languages. And Miss Cartland's heroines "always think of other people, and they are kind to children and old ladies and dogs."

"Young girls are very impressionable, you know, and I think it's important that they don't think a pretty face alone can win a man and keep him," she explained.

There is a good deal of kissing in a Barbara Cartland story, but never anything more risqué.

And every single one of the nearly 200 Cartland tales has a happy ending. Count on it: The girl always gets her man.

"I wrote one novel with an unhappy ending and then I had a letter from a woman in Australia who wrote, 'If the duke doesn't marry her, I shall commit suicide.' Well, I changed that ending and I've never written an unhappy ending since."

Miss Cartland is as romantic as any 15-year-old schoolgirl herself. Her entire wardrobe for a recent tour of the United States was in shades of light blue and pink.

During the interview she was wearing a pink dress — with toenails and fingernails painted to match — four strings of pearls hung around her neck and her hands and wrists glittered with diamonds.

"I am always in love with my heroes," she said. "If they thrill me, they will jolly well thrill the people who read about them."

Miss Cartland's first book was published in 1923 and she remembers it as successful.

"But, because the duke kissed the girl on page 200, my great aunts never spoke to me again, because they said, 'It must be experience.' But of course I had never met a duke."

Cartland romances are tremendously popular today. One of her three U.S. publishers reports that each Cartland title sells about half a million copies. She has 30 different publishers around the world. "There is a romantic explosion the world over, which is due entirely to pornography," Miss Cartland said. "It is quite obvious that there is a swing of the pendulum back to romantic things."

("Passions in the Sand" and "No Time for Love" are published by Bantam.)

Prints Have Big Impact

FAIR LAWN, N. J. (AP) — What started as a fad with T-shirts several years ago is having a sizzling impact on the fashion industry today. It could change the way you dress, says an expert on fabric dyes who has watched Heat Transfer Printing (HTP) go from Beethoven sweatshirts to haute couture fashion.

With HTP, claims W.J. Ferracane, manufacturers can economically turn out smaller quantities of clothes, featuring an almost limitless array of print designs, with incredible speed.

"They can get a new line on the street in as little as 10 days, where it used to take weeks or months working with conventional techniques," says Ferracane, vice president of Crompton & Knowles Corp., a manufacturer of dyes used for HTP.

And because their inventory doesn't pile up the way it does with the big runs, he adds, they can save money — passing the saving on to the customer.

"What it all means to the average woman," says Ferracane, "is that she will have an enormous selection of pleasing fabrics, printed with some really astonishing designs."

During the remainder of 1976, the big news is paisleys, florals, plaids, stripes and scenic designs.

Just what is Heat Transfer Printing? Ferracane explains it: "If the term makes you think of pressing transfers onto kids' clothing with an iron, you're right. But it's a very sophisticated process now. Even name designers such as Yves St. Laurent are working with HTP and we're way past the T-shirt image."

This is how it works. Ink containing special dyes prints the design on special paper. The paper is then pressed under very high heat onto the fabric. "That, basically, is all there is to it," says Ferracane, "although special machines, production know-how and high quality dyes are necessary."

The biggest use of HTP so far is on women's clothes — both outerwear and innerwear — plus men's sportswear and shirts. But heat transfer printing is also finding its way into nonapparel uses, such as tote bags, upholstery fabrics, draperies and rugs.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A consumer information specialist says fats and oils in food products soon must be specifically identified.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said a recent Food and Drug Administration decision will require that all fats and oils be identified by origin on food labels by Jan. 1, 1978.

She said the new procedures have been urged by persons with medical or religious dietary restrictions.

Industry Digs Deep For Olympics

VELODROME—The Olympic Velodrome will be the sight of both Judo and cycling competition when ABC-TV unfolds the 1976 Olympic Games from Montreal, Canada. Thirteen telecasts will originate from the Olympic Velodrome: seven for cycling and six for Judo.

Chancellor Joins Brinkley

John Chancellor has been joined by David Brinkley as co-anchor of "NBC Nightly News" for the remainder of the political year.

NBC News' primary coverage from New Hampshire to California has attracted more viewers than either of the other two networks, with Chancellor and Brinkley anchoring special half-hour primary reports.

In making the announcement, Richard C. Wald, President, NBC News, said: "We want to maintain the momentum we have gained from our excellent primary coverage during this very active political year right on through the conventions and the election." Wald said the television audience for the primaries had made a clear-cut choice of the Chancellor-Brinkley team, "and it seems logical to expand this success by having David join John on a nightly basis."

Since Aug. 16, 1971, Brinkley has anchored a series of special reports and commentary on and about the news in "David Brinkley's Journal," presented on "NBC Nightly News."

Previously, Brinkley was co-anchor of "NBC Nightly News," which began Aug. 1, 1970, when "The Huntley-Brinkley Report" was expanded to seven days a week under this new title. Chancellor, who had been associated with Brinkley and Frank McGee as co-anchors of the program, became the Chief Reporter and Writer of "NBC Nightly News" Aug. 16, 1971, and has occupied that position ever since.

Early last year and this spring, Brinkley made several trips across the country and overseas gathering material for three NBC News specials designed to study the American experience during the last 200 years. The special programs, "Life," "Liberty" and "The Pursuit of Happiness," were presented as Bicentennial programs in prime time.

For Brinkley, who will celebrate his 33rd anniversary with NBC News this year, this will be his sixth assignment as a convention co-anchor. Before Chancellor joined him in the booth in 1972, Brinkley had been teamed with the late Chet Huntley as co-anchors for NBC's coverage of the 1956, 1960, 1964, and 1968 national conventions and elections, and the Presidential inaugurations which followed.

Disney Salutes All Fathers

"The Wonderful World of Disney" pays homage to father with "Goofy's Salute to Father," airing Sunday, June 20, 7 to 8 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28.

Win a few, lose a few, that's old George (Goofy) . . . a carefree bachelor on the loose. Surfing at the beach in the summer, grand-standing on the playing fields in the winter, but not allowing anything to interfere with nightclubbing when the sun goes down. Unless, of course, a poker game is in progress or George can hear the dice clicking in a crap game. And if everything else seems dull, he can always bet a few bob on the horses.

Then, one day, George takes a good look at himself. What is life without a mate, a loving wife to share this wonderful life? So how does he find the perfect partner? By learning to dance.

A few frantic nights of tripping the light fantastic leads George and his sweetheart straight to the altar, and presto! — our hero's leisure time is consumed by baby bottles and diapers.

"George . . . the bottle," doesn't mean a shot of red eye he soon discovers.

"As soon as Junior grows out of the infant stage, I can take it easy," says George.

Dad doesn't get to take it easy, but he does witness the wonderful sight of a child growing up . . . Junior's first word — "Where did that kid learn such language . . . certainly not from me," says Papa.

Junior's first tooth — George gets his finger bitten.

Junior's first step — right in the soup.

Finally the day comes when Dad can lie around the house in his old clothes and relax, Father's Day. What Papa doesn't know is that Mama has him scheduled for a day at the beach with Junior.

Millions of dollars in goods and services are being donated by Canadian companies—many of them allied to U.S. business—to help defray the cost of the 1976 Summer Olympic Games in Montreal.

Corporate contributions are coming in all shapes and sizes, from airplane tickets to basketball shoes, thanks to the efforts of businessmen whose goal is at least $34 million in company donations, and to a dynamic executive of the Olympic Organizing Committee, Gerry Snyder.

The man who brought major league baseball to Montreal, Snyder is smooth but tough. His powers of persuasion are confirmed by his own progress report: "We haven't been turned down by a corporation yet."

Montreal's Olympic fund-raisers offer three options for corporate support: supplies, such as food for the 11,000 athletes and officials taking part in the Summer Games; sponsorship, by which a company provides funds to stage a specific Olympic event, and promotion, involving a company seeking to boost attendance for a particular sport or event.

The committee's shopping list already shows check marks after many important entries. For instance, General Motors of Canada solved the problem of transportation by providing 1,000 cars, 100 trucks and a few buses to move athletes, officials and supplies between the 27 Olympic venues.

Tilden Rent-a-Car is picking up whatever transport problems may remain with $25,000 worth of free rentals.

All sorts of sporting equipment are pouring into organizing committee's warehouses—8,600 pairs of canvas shoes and 6,300 uniforms from Adidas (Canada); 1,000 field hockey balls from Hans Raj Mahajan & Sons; 1,000 volley balls from Tachikara Co.; 250 bicycles from Stelber Industries; 33 boats from Alcan; outboard motors and spare parts from Outboard Marine; plus assorted skeet and trap equipment, portable basketball backstops, parallel bars, pole vault and high jump pits, wrestling and gymnastic mats.

When they are not training or competing, the Olympians can sit around and listen to music, assuming someone at Olympic Village can wring tunes out of the five grand pianos that Yamaha Canada Music Ltd. is providing.

Air Canada and CB Air are supplying plane tickets with a combined value of $450,000; Coca-Cola Ltd. came through with soft drinks and vending machines valued at $1.3 million; and Kodak Canada and Canon are providing photographic materials and services.

To help feed the athletes and officials lodged at Olympic Village, a long list of suppliers have anted up—confectionery products from Cadbury Schweppes Powell; grape juice, jams and jellies from Welch; sugar from Redpath; salt and pepper from Canadian Salt; dairy goods from Quebec-Lait; fruit juices from Rolf H. Dittmeyer; coffee from General Foods; flour from Robin Hood; tea bags and tea-brewing equipments from Tetley; egg beaters and corn oil from Standard Brands; you-know-what from Ovaltine; and Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co. Ltd. is making sure the Olympians have all the chewing gum they desire.

Companies in the sponsorship program include Canadian National Railways, which made a cash donation of $70,000; Shell Canada Ltd., whose $30,000 gift will provide dinghies for sailing events; the Royal Bank of Canada, which contributed $150,000 for an Olympic film to be shown worldwide; and Reynolds Aluminum and Hydro-Quebec which are funding books about Montreal and the Summer Games of 1976.

When the opening fanfare sounds July 17 for the XXI Olympiad, Canada's corporate community will have already posted a hefty investment, probably upwards of $20 million, to insure the success of the first Olympics ever held in their nation.

WHADJABRINGME?!—Not even a "hi, dad," welcomes Goofy home from a hard day's work as Walt Disney's comic character headlines a one-hour comedy tribute to fathers everywhere on Father's Day 1976, in "Goofy's Salute to Father," airing Sunday, June 20 (7-8 p.m.) on "The Wonderful World of Disney," on NBC Channels 6-7.

'A Gathering Of One' To Be Broadcast Sunday

A salutary sideline of our Bicentennial celebration is an increased interest in our nation's history and the people who helped to make it. "A Gathering of One," colorcast as a National Council of Churches program Sunday, June 20, 5 to 6 p.m., on NBC-TV, is a portrait of one such figure, Jonathan Edwards, the controversial eighteenth century theologian and metaphysician. In our national mythology, Edwards has come to represent an important dimension. It has been said, we cannot understand Colonial America without studying Jonathan Edwards. He has been called "the last Medieval American" and the first modern one, with "an insight into science and psychology ... ahead of his time." A fire-breathing evangelist, he played a significant role in shaping the Great Awakening, a period that brought about the most deeply felt social upheaval in American civilization before the Revolutionary War.

He died in 1758 — at 54 years of age — from a faulty smallpox inoculation. The paradoxical nature of his death is in keeping with the quality of drama that marked his entire life. Edwards lived intensely, never doing anything by halves.

"A Gathering of One" illuminates the characteristics for which this authentic American genius is best known. It also shows us Edwards the human being, a loving husband and father, a faithful friend, a stubborn eccentric, a profound thinker unable to cope with the destructive pettiness of small-minded men.

The son and grandson of ministers, he was a precocious child, strong of mind but wracked by ailments that continued to torment him during his lifetime. The only boy in a family of 11, he himself produced as many children and enjoyed a happy relationship with his beautiful wife, Sarah. Within the Calvinistic framework of his thought and his commitment to the Puritan tradition of piety, he revitalized the idea for the American people to be the redeemers of history.

Turned out of his pulpit in Northampton, Mass., in 1775, Edwards became a preacher in Stockbridge, Mass., a frontier site of a mission to the Housatonic Indians. During this backwoods assignment, Edwards had time to devote to his writing in which God became "being" in general, simply considered. And beauty, not salvation, became the leading religious experience.

Featured in the cast are Lee Richardson as Jonathan Edwards; Rita Gam as his wife, Sarah; and Roy Poole as McKenzie, friend and defender of Edwards in his confrontation with his congregation. Others in the company of players are Clarence Felder as Joseph Hawley and Addison Powell as Major Seth Pomeroy.

Jack Cassidy stood center stage and moved his finger nimbly as he practiced a newly learned thimble trick for his role as a magician — The Great Cantini — in "Now You See Him," a "Columbo" drama to be rebroadcast on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" June 20, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7,28.

Then he picked up a deck of cards, expertly fanning them as a sly smile appeared on his face. Next, he performed the disappearing dollar trick, demonstrating that the hand is, indeed, quicker than the eye.

"Ah, I just loved this role," said Cassidy, who makes his third appearance on "Columbo" as the 'guest villain.' "I like this role better than the other two because it affords me the opportunity to do something I've always wanted to do — magic."

Looking relaxed as he continued to practice his tricks, Cassidy recalled an incident that took place 30 years ago.

"I was a chorus boy in 1946 and Orson Welles was the star of the show. I was also an understudy. Enzo Stuarti was supposed to disappear in a grand illusion that Welles did in the show. But Enzo became ill and with great excitement, I mentally planned my appearance on center stage," Cassidy recalled.

But Orson had a surprise for the young chorus boy.

"Orson did both roles cheating me out of my moment of grandeur. But he was marvelous," Jack said with a smile.

Ironically, 30 years later, Cassidy does a grand illusion act and finally gets to disappear.

DEADLY MAGIC— Jack Cassidy stars as a magician who is locked in a case at the time that a business associate is slain in "Now You See Him," a "Columbo" segment of "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" to be rebroadcast on June 20 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

Musician Strikes The Right Note With Telly

Someone once said that life is a series of initiations. Whatever your past experience, there is always a new area to conquer in which you are a beginner.

John Cacavas, who composes, conducts and arranges the music for the majority of the "Kojak" episodes broadcast Wednesdays (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11, is well aware of this.

After having established himself in New York City in all areas of music, including writing an oratorio, at age 21, for the NBC Symphony Orchestra, and composing many published works for concert band, marching band, orchestra and choir, as well as for television commercials, recording stars and live television shows, Cacavas decided he wanted to write for films. However, he found the opportunity lacking in the United States.

"I decided to move to London," Cacavas says, "because there seemed to be more opportunity there."

His assumption was correct. He quickly found himself very much in demand, and soon scored the music for five films.

two of which starred Telly Savalas, star of the "Kojak" series.

That association proved beneficial to both men. Upon learning of Cacavas' background, Savalas expressed his unfulfilled desire to sing. Cacavas agreed to help. Savalas' first album thus far has been released only in Europe, where it has been very popular.

Savalas returned the favor by introducing Cacavas to several motion picture and television producers in Hollywood. "A friend can open some doors for you," Cacavas noted, "but you're on your own after that."

DOWNBACK TO NBC RADIO

Hugh Downs will return to the NBC Radio network in a new series of twice-weekly programs devoted to personal health care. The series, "Feeling Fit," premiered June 15, and will be broadcast every Tuesday and Thursday.

Jane Goodall Special Presented Sunday

An absorbing and myth-shattering study of the king of beasts is the subject for the ABC News special, "Jane Goodall and the World of Animal Behavior — Lions of the Serengeti," a presentation in the Emmy Award-winning series which will air Sunday, June 20, 7 to 8 p.m., on Channel 3W-12.

Filmed over a period of several months on East Africa's Serengeti plain, by Miss Goodall and her ex-husband, producer-director-photographer Hugo van Lawick, the special examines the day-by-day existence — the rearing, mating and hunting habits and survival techniques — of a pride of lions.

The pride consisted of two males, four females and 16 cubs. Personalities emerged, including Banjo, the plucky runt of the pride; Viola, the most maternal and protective of the females; Zither, a female and the best hunter; and Drum and Gong, who shared executive duties.

It became clear that the males rule the pride — but the females sustain it. The males sleep and rest up to 20 hours a day. The females are better hunters, but they have their problems. Lacking the speed and stamina of most of their prey, they must depend upon surprise and a quick rush. Most of the time, they miss. When they're successful in obtaining food for themselves and the cubs, the possibility exists that it might be stolen by packs of hyenas, or by a male lion.

But lions are adapted to lives of feast and famine and can endure starvation diets. And they have developed a social structure that enables them to cope with a demanding existence. They survive.

Gigantic Undertaking

Live television drama is about as hard to find these days as a piece of penny candy. Videotaping has all but completely obliterated it from our viewing. Gone are the actor's blurps, cameras off-focus, and awkward time lapses.

The two hold-outs in the almost forgotten art of live daytime drama are "The Edge of Night" (ABC) and "As the World Turns" (CBS). These two shows have endured the stress and strain of changing times, the constant interweaving of story lines, and a steady stream of characters who glide in and out of the plot.

Despite the popularity of daytime serials, the 'soaps' have traditionally been given short shrift by factions who feel it is their duty to protect artistic taste and sanity. These critics seem to overlook the fact, however, that these 'soaps' are the training ground for actors and actresses as well as a much coveted spot for established performers who desire a position with 'banker's hours.'

Regardless of what one thinks of their content, however, coming up with 60 minutes of live drama on TV five days a week, fifty-two weeks a year, is an extraordinary undertaking.

Other than a brief script reading the day before, there are no actual rehearsals until the day of the show. That means all the stage directions, camera positionings, timing and run-throughs must be done in a single morning.

Goes From 'Lucy' To 'Rhoda'

RHODA—Vivian Vance (right) guest stars as a new neighbor of Rhoda (series star Valerie Harper) who poses a threat to Rhoda's mother, in "Rhoda," Monday, June 21 (8-8:30 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Vivian Vance's return to television situation comedy after six years will be rebroadcast on "Rhoda," Monday, June 21, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"When I quit television comedy, I really quit," she says. "I wanted to have a home life with my husband in Connecticut." Miss Vance is married to publishing executive John Dodds who will now be a West Coast editor for a book firm, giving her the chance to go back to her real love.

"Back East, I did a lot of stock and dinner theaters, but now, since we will be living on the West Coast, I can do television comedies again. I'm at home on a television set where I spent many years doing the Lucille Ball shows."

The veteran comedienne and Miss Ball's old sidekick says that when she made her return to television she really came back on top.

"Doing 'Rhoda' was a joyous surprise," she says. "I was tickled to death because when I returned to California, I didn't know what I really wanted to do." Beaming, she added, "When I was called for this guest appearance, I thought with such a hit show, what better way to make a comeback."

Besides being happily married to a wonderful man, Miss Vance says her added bonus is having a husband involved with books.

"I love books and respect writers highly. You can be an excellent actress, but without good material, you can't win."

"I am working on my first book, an autobiography entitled 'Go Home, Your Eyes Are Too Close Together,'" she reveals. The book was titled in line with advice given her by a Hollywood agent after she left her New York home to pursue her career as an actress.

"He said that I couldn't possibly be photographed, and for years that complex stayed with me."

"Despite my complex and his horrible insult, I stayed with my desire to become an actress, which led to my long run with Lucy," says Miss Vance.

As a part-time lecturer to college dramatic classes, Miss Vance emphasizes to her students that stumbling blocks, such as her incident with the Hollywood agent, can hurt a good actor if he doesn't have determination and confidence in himself.

"For years I've heard from my family and friends, 'Don't make a fool of yourself, Vivian.'" She concludes, with a chuckle, "And, look how rich I got making a fool of myself!"

Super-Humans Emerging

First came the westerns. TV viewers developed saddle sores, western drawls and choked on the dust kicked up by the horses of determined vigilantes in hot pursuit of wild-eyed renegades. Then came the detective series with private eyes, sensuous secretaries, hair-raising chases, roof-top jumps—just about anything a writer with a wild imagination could conjure up.

Now another trend is emerging. It's a mini-trend at this time, but it's emerging just the same. This trend consists of heroes and-or heroines with superhuman powers, and it began with "The Six Million Dollar Man," starring Lee Majors.

It started out with a relatively small flurry and was shunted around to various time slots. But, suddenly last fall "The Six Million Dollar Man" took off and wound up in the top ten, sometimes reaching upwards into the top five.

Then came his distaff, "The Bionic Woman," starring Lindsay Wagner. She, too, hit the top ten by the end of the season.

Not to be outdone by ABC-TV who fathered these two, NBC-TV is following suit next season with "The Gemini Man," which will star Ben Murphy. This is a remake of "The Invisible Man" (which bombed last year), and the new version sees the hero endowed with that superpower element—a flick of his watch and he vanishes.

Gernreich Talks Fashion

The women in the cast of "Promise to Kill," the "Jigsaw John" episode to be rebroadcast Monday, June 21, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV, were all ears when guest star Rudi Gernreich began to expound on the direction of tomorrow's fashions.

Gernreich, a California-based designer who travels the world in connection with his career in fashion, has a cameo role as a designer in the drama. Some sequences in the program were shot in his salon.

Between takes, he had time to chat with the performers.

"Haute couture is dead," he stated flatly. "Women still like to wear designer clothes but the idea of somebody 'way up there' ruling what somebody 'way down here' is going to put on is passe. Today's fashions start on the street rather than the reverse. People's values have changed so much in the past two decades that it is unthinkable that there should be an elite class searing strange, impractical clothes just to prove they have money. Worthwhile project reject it. Today, realism rules—in fabric, in design and in concept."

Asked if he thought skirts would return, making slacks for women outmoded, Gernreich replied: "I always hesitate to make a sweeping statement that something could never happen, fashion being what it is. But I seriously doubt if slacks ever again will be out of fashion. The only difference this year, at least in my collection, is that they are worn tucked into boots."

Granting that unisex clothes allowed greater similarity between women's jumpsuit fashions and men's leisure suit fashions, Gernreich said he doesn't see the reverse being true. "The only style men wear today which women might wear, is the caftan, worn at home. They're comfortable, they're enough like bathrobes that men don't feel they're wearing a skirt. In fact, I don't think the day will come when unisex moves that far."

What about togas? "That was a long time ago!"

The pervasive quest for new therapies and spiritual systems for achievement of peace of mind or "self-awareness" will be explored in "The Search for Something Else," Tuesday, June 22, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28.

Joan Konner is producer of the program, which is being filmed at many locations throughout the country. NBC News correspondent Jack Perkins will be the reporter.

"The search for peace of mind in an uncertain society is spurring the exploration of an internal New World—the world of consciousness," Konner says. "This world is mind-shaking, and full of promise and possible dangers for mankind."

As outlined by Konner, the program will look at the mini-explosion of "self-awareness" movements in this country today—est, Zen, Yoga, TM among them. It will look at the realistic experiments in biofeedback and other processes which show that "mind over matter" is more than a phrase. It will ask what "mind" and "matter" really are and what their relationship is. And it will look at the prospects for the future.

"If science taps hidden mental energies that relieve stress and aggression," Konner says, "then our troubled human race may have the key not only to individual health and fulfillment, but to social and international peace. But if powers of mind-control can be used within the present power structure of the world to create human robots, then we may be horrifyingly close to 1984 instead of Utopia."

Figuring prominently in the program will be Werner Erhard, founder of est (Erhard Seminar Training); Jerry Jarvis, president of TM (Transcendental Meditation); Mike Love, a Beach Boy who is a TM teacher; Michael Murphy, founder of Esalen Institute at Big Sur, Calif.; George Leonard, former editor of Look magazine who now teaches the martial art of aikido; Swami Mukhtananda, guru of the Oakland, Calif., ashram of Siddha Yoga Dham; Wally Ali, leader of the mystical Sufi movement; Baba Ram Dass, spiritual leader and teacher who formerly was Richard Alpert, a Harvard University psychologist; Dr. Herbert Benson, associate professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School who is author of "The Relaxation Response."

The program also will focus on the research or consciousness being done by Dr. Robert Orenstein at the Langley Porter Institute in San Francisco and Dr. Charles Tart at the University of California at Davis, as well as the research on biofeedback being done at the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan.

Cameras also filmed at a Biofeedback Training Center in Chicago; at a spiritual commune, Kripalu Yoga Ashram, in Summerville, Pa., and at est events in Denver and Los Angeles.

Cancer Politics

Decisions being made—or not made—in Washington right now may determine whether or not you get cancer in 20 years, according to CBS REPORTS: "The Politics of Cancer," on Tuesday, June 22 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS Channels 9-11.

The broadcast, reported by Correspondent Lesley Stahl, notes that increased chemical contamination of our air, water and food is contributing to soaring cancer rates, birth defects and other chronic and deadly diseases. Yet, at the three regulatory agencies most concerned with cancer—the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Food and Drug Administration—there's an apparent spirit of indecisiveness. The consciences of these agencies are caught in cross-currents of American Society.

'Happy Days' Spent
With Teenagers

It's a good thing actress Marion Ross digs teenagers, because the vivacious red-head, who co-stars as Richie Cunningham's mother in "Happy Days," is immersed in two worlds of teens which are 20 years apart.

As Marion Cunningham in the series, which airs Tuesdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12, she is "mom" to three growing youngsters growing up in the family-oriented '50s. In real life, she is engrossed in rearing son Jim, who is 16, and daughter Ellen, 13.

Of the series, she commented, "It is not only about the '50s, but about adolescent Richie Cunningham and his problems, and that involves dealing with his family."

In this week's segment of "Happy Days," titled "Dance Contest," Marion herself creates problems when she, unknown to her family enters a dance contest and persuades Fonzie to be her partner. Her husband and children are upset over Mom's hours away from home, but the mystery is solved—happily so—the night of the contest.

In her own home, Ms. Ross, veteran of numerous television and motion picture roles, is trying to help her two youngsters learn self-reliance, she said.

"Problems of teenagers in the '70s are many," she admitted. "But in magazine articles, then and now, dealing with raising adolescents, basic problems like dating, cars and school grades remain the same."

Janssen Stars In Drama

David Janssen plays an escaped prisoner who is out to even up some scores but finds himself up against a woman bent on getting revenge, in the western adventure drama, "Macho Callahan," to be shown for the first time on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Friday, June 25, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Also starring in the film are Jean Seberg and Lee J. Cobb, with David Caradine and Diane Ladd in supporting roles.

Callahan escapes from his solitary confinement in a squalid Confederate prison with one thought in his mind. He is determined to settle accounts with the man he holds responsible for putting him behind bars. He guns the man down in front of his bride, Alexandra, and she sets out to avenge her husband's death. Alexandra enlists the aid of Duffy, and the two try to trap their prey. But Callahan turns the tables when he rescues Alexandra from a wild bear.

DAVID JANSSEN portrays an escaped prisoner who finds himself protecting a woman (Jean Seberg) who would like to see him dead, in the western adventure, "Macho Callahan," to be aired for the first time on "The CBS Friday Night Movie," Friday, June 25, (9-11 p.m.) on channels 9-11.

MALDEN'S NEWSIDEKICK

Richard Hatch will replace Michael Douglas as the policeman sidekick to Karl Malden as ABC-TV's "Streets of San Francisco" moves into its fifth season in September. Douglas quit the show to go into film production.

Silliphant Prescribes More Dialogue

"A realistic look at medicine from the viewpoint of a surgical resident in a hospital," is Stirling Silliphant's description of his original screenplay, "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant," the ABC Wednesday Movie of the Week, airing June 23, at 11:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

An Academy Award - winner for his screenplay, "In the Heat of the Night," and a prolific television and motion picture writer, Silliphant is executive producer of the production starring Scott Hylands in the title role of Dr. Chris Durant.

Long interested in the field of medicine, Silliphant stated, "I wrote this screenplay out of concern that the tendency to put doctors on a pedestal is sort of dangerous in that it creates a lack of dialogue between the patient — whose body it is — and the physician. Doctors are human. Despite all their training and precautions, they can make mistakes. Sometimes with tragic consequences. No one is more aware of that than doctors themselves."

However, he stressed, "This show is very pro-medicine and pro-doctor as young Durant moves through his first 36 hours on call as a surgical resident at a metropolitan hospital and takes a small step forward in his career."

CARPENTERS SLATED

Richard and Karen Carpenter will headline their first special on ABC-TV during the Christmas Season.

Silliphant's numerous television credits include "Route 66," which he co-created and for which he wrote 71 scripts; "Naked City" and "Longstreet" on which he also served as executive producer. Among his motion picture credits are "The Towering Inferno," "Shaft," and "The Poseidon Adventure." Silliphant said that the "thematic inspiration" for "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant" came from a book, "Year of the Resident" by Dr. Robin Cook, that was brought to his attention. He later met Cook, now a senior resident at a Boston hospital, to discuss the project. Noting that he has many friends who are doctors, Silliphant said, "I know their frustrations, the problems they have."

Asked how long he had been involved in medical research, the writer smiled. "Over 15 years," he replied. "I even enjoy taking Merck's Manual (a compendium of medical information) along to read at lunch."

Poignant Drama Airs

Patricia Neal, Jack Albertson (in his Oscar - winning performance) and Martin Sheen star in "The Subject Was Roses," a poignant drama to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Late Movie," Monday, June 21 at 11:30 p.m. on Channels 9-11.

Sheen and Albertson recreate their Broadway stage roles in the film based on Frank Gilroy's Pulitzer Prize - winning play. Albertson won an Academy Award in 1968 as Best Supporting Actor.

Tim Cleary (Sheen), home after three years in the Army during World War II, is disillusioned as he slowly becomes aware of the discord between his parents, John (Albertson) and Nettie (Miss Neal).

DICK CLARK PENS BOOK

Dick Clark, with Richard Robinson, has written a semi-autobiographical manuscript on the first decade of rock.

"Rock, Roll & Remember" traces the years 1954-64, contains 100 photographs and will be released this summer by Thomas Y. Crowell publishers.

A New Face To Appear On 'All My Children'

Eileen Herlie, the distinguished stage actress, has joined the cast of ABC's daytime dramatic series, "All My Children." Miss Herlie is portraying the role of Mrs. Lum, a colorful new character in the serial's continuing storyline.

Miss Herlie won critical acclaim last season for her portrayal of Queen Mary in the Broadway hit, "Crown Matrimonial," and during the 1974-75 Broadway season for her role as Countess Matilda opposite Rex Harrison in "Emperor Henry IV." Those were but two of the gallery of regal roles that have contributed to her great reputation in the theatre.

Miss Herlie made her Broadway debut as the vivacious Mrs. Molloy in Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker," directed by Tyrone Guthrie. She then starred in Mr. Guthrie's production of "The Makropoulos Secret" before moving on to the Stratford Ontario Festival productions of "The Winter's Tale" and "Much Ado About NOTHING." She returned to Broadway to display her unusual versatility in John Osborne's "Epitaph of George Dillon"; in two musicals, opposite Jackie Gleason in "Take Me Along" and Roy Bolger in "All American"; in "Photo Finish" with Peter Ustinov and in Mr. Ustinov's production of the comedy, "Halfway Up the Tree," in which she co-starred with Anthony Quayle. Sir John Gielgud then sought her out to play Queen Gertrude in his memorable Broadway revival of "Hamlet," starring Richard Burton.

Of Scots-Irish ancestry, Miss Herlie was born in Glasgow and made her professional acting debut with the Scottish National Players in "Sweet Aloes." A tour in "Rebecca" brought her to London's Ambassador Theatre and led to starring roles in "Peg O' My Heart," "The Little Foxes," as Regina and "The Corn is Green," as Miss Moffatt. With the Old Vic she played such roles as Queen Gertrude in "Hamlet," Anna in "Anna Christie" and Lady Sneerwell in "The School of Scandal."

KORMAN IN FILM

Harvey Korman has been added to the cast of Blake Edwards' "The Pink Panther Strikes Again," now being filmed in London. He will play Inspector Clouseau's disguise maker.

Actor Scott Hylands is elated that some of his 'good qualities' are finally being filmed.

"I did six years of television and motion picture heavies," Hylands revealed, "so I was really surprised when this role came along."

Attractive and personable without the menacing look he has had to assume, Hylands stars as the idealistic young surgical resident in the title role of "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant," the ABC Wednesday Movie of the Week, airing June 23, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Describing the role as "prime happiness," the Canadian-born actor explained, "The fact that Durant is a good character permits the actor to be 'the guy you want to be' and show some positive qualities. It becomes wearing playing heavies."

In the screenplay by Stirling Silliphant, Dr. Chris Durant, a new surgical resident, confronts the realities of medical ethics with a life and a career at stake during his first hectic 36 hours on call.

"My mother is very happy about this casting. She was a nurse for 20 years before she started her second career. She now teaches high school math and physics in the Vancouver public school system. Her name is Ruth Douglas," Hylands said with pride.

He was born Scott Hylands Douglas at Yellowknife in the Canadian Northwest Territory, where his father, a Spitfire pilot for the R.C.A.F., was stationed prior to his death in World War II.

"My first assignment was as a stand-in for Jason Robards, in a one-night benefit performance of 'Soldier's Tale' at the Waldorf Astoria," he said. After performing in "Billy Liar," followed by an understudy position for the Broadway production, "Things That Go Bump in the Night," he joined the American conservatory Theatre for a season of repertory in Pittsburgh. He rejoined ACT in 1966 for a national tour which concluded in San Francisco where it became the resident theatre company.

"I did extraordinary and preposterous roles, as one does in repertory, got over some of my self-doubt and worked with superb actors."

Through a screen test for another project, the actor was invited by director Mark Robson to go to Hollywood where he was signed to play the quietly chilling baby snatcher in "Daddy's Gone A-Hunting." His other feature films include "Win" which was filmed in Europe, "Folls" and "Earthquake."

"But it's been primarily television heavies these past few years, so Dr. Chris Durant is an exciting change," Hylands commented. "My feelings are: a big vote for the good person role."

CLOWN—Karl Malden, (left) as he appears when he plays a circus clown in the rebroadcast of "Clown of Death" episode of "The Streets of San Francisco" airing Thursday, June 24 on Channels 3W-12.

Malden Dons Clown's Attire

Karl Malden appears in one of the most unusual roles he's ever played when he stars as a circus clown in the "Clown of Death" episode of "The Streets of San Francisco," to be rebroadcast Thursday, June 24, on ABC Channel 3-12. Michael Douglas co-star.

The program was filmed during several performances of the U. S. National Circus when it played at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

Guest stars in the episode are David Birney, Michael Strong, Madlyn Rue and Dick Van Patten, with Lynne Marta as special guest star. The script was written by Arthur Row and directed by Virgil Vogel.

For the filming, Malden joined the traditional opening parade of "joey's" before the Cow Palace audiences, who were not told in advance of his participation. A specially - assigned cameraman followed Malden closely during the parade and he, too, was dressed and made up as a clown. The result was that Malden and the cameraman gave the impression of performing a typical clown routine rather than revealing the filming of the "Streets" episode.

The role of the circus ringmaster is played by Parley Baer, one of Hollywood's best known character actors. In real life, Baer has been appearing as a ringmaster for more than 30 years.

Mudd Gets Degree

When CBS News Congressional Correspondent Roger Mudd returned to his alma mater, Washington and Lee University, earlier this month to receive an honorary Doctorate of Letters degree, he and the public were reminded that it was on the Lexington, Virginia, campus where "Boomer" Mudd's abilities as a thorough investigative reporter first surfaced.

The citation accompanying Mudd's degree recalled, "It was on this campus, after all, that he began to develop his uncanny gift for interpreting events in such a way as to give us a new level of understanding and insight. One has only to think, for example, of his notorious performance in the 1949 Varsity Show, when he told us things about our faculty that we had never suspected before; or, again, of his famous in-depth commentaries about 'Life Under a Swedish Crew Coach.'"

Helen Hayes Signed For Role

Helen Hayes has been signed as a special guest star in "The Moneychangers," the six-and-a-half-hour NBC World Premiere movie now in production.

Miss Hayes, long recognized as the "first lady of the American theater," will portray Dr. McCartney, the psychiatrist treating Alex Vandervoort's (Kirk Douglas) wife. Producer Ross Hunter coaxed Miss Hayes out of retirement in 1968 to play the little old lady stowaway in the film "Airport." She won an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actress for her performance. She also won an Oscar for her first film, "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," released in 1931.

Pike's Peeks

HOLLYWOOD — The Fall future of "Baretta" is definitely in jeopardy due to a breach of contract dispute between series star Robert Blake and Universal Studios. Production has been delayed indefinitely until the differences can be resolved, which at this time seems sometime in the distant future.

There's the possibility that Julie Kavner's projected series may materialize soon now, because Valerie Harper's role as "Rhoda" will be enlarged with her TV divorce from David Groh. As Brenda, Julie's been doing the things Val used to do, but as a single woman again, Rhoda's antics will overshadow Brenda. Thus the decision to possibly give Julie her own series.

Susan Oliver, who replaced Susan Flannery as Laura Horton on "Days of Our Lives," has left the daytime series to produce and star in a movie. NBC is now searching for someone to replace Ms. Oliver.

Bob Keeshan, better known to youngsters and their mothers as Captain Kangaroo, has been honored by the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce with his own "star" along Hollywood's "Walk of Fame." Those stars are implanted in the sidewalks of Hollywood.

Donnelly Rhodes, ex-Philip Chancellor of "The Young and the Restless," is to co-star in "Goldenrod," a special two-hour film which will air on CBS-TV. He'll be a rancher in the western which also stars Tony LoBianco and Gloria Carlin.

Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson winged their way to Hawaii for filming of the season's premiere of "Sanford and Son." The episode, "The Hawaiian Connection," will air in two parts — the premiere a special one-hour telecast, followed the next week by a 30-minute presentation.

Jaime Tirelli, co-starring in the new comedy series, "Ball Four," took himself a wife — Wendy Sue Ziecheck, an aspiring ballerina. Tirelli is in the film, "Marathon Man," currently making the rounds.

Mom's Dreams Come True

Mothers dream many dreams where their children are concerned. Sometimes these dreams come true, but most of the time they don't. An exception to this rule is the dream of Dorothy Kaplan. Well, it's almost an exception, anyway.

You see, her son is Gabe Kaplan, star of "Welcome Back, Kotter," which is seen Thursdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12. When Gabe first began to seriously consider a career as an actor and comedian, his parents were somewhat less than enthusiastic.

"My mother thought I didn't have any talent, and she didn't think comedy was the right thing for me to do," he said. "She wanted me to do something civilized, like be a doctor, or lawyer, or a teacher."

Mrs. Kaplan has gotten her wish — in a round-about-way — because Gabe is a highly successful TV teacher.

Gabe and Alan Sacks created the series, and the characters:

Ghetto Gang Helped Research

Like any other conscientious actor, Robert Walden wanted to do the best job possible in his starring role as one of a trio of young punks who hold up the passengers of a New York commuter train club car in "Panic on the 5:22," the second movie on ABC Friday, June 25, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

"The character of Eddie that I play is very familiar to me," points out Walden, a native New Yorker. "I've seen hundreds of Eddies on the streets of New York. But I've never really known an Eddie."

"Eddie is a product of a New York gang—hard, bitter, tough, nervous. What I wanted to do was to get to know some gang members, study their actions, reactions, the way they talk, move, think."

It seemed like a big order, but through some friends of friends Walden was introduced to the leader of a gang in a ghetto section of the city.

"I thought the guy would resent me and tell me to drop dead when he learned what I wanted to do," continues Walden. "But he was intrigued with my being an actor and, like his counterparts, wanted to be sure he was shown off in the best light."

For two weeks Walden literally lived with the gang (one promise he made was not to reveal the name of the gang or any member's name). He learned one important thing about portraying this sort of character.

"They talk with their bodies as much as with their mouths," he points out. "Hands, shoulders, torso and legs seem always to be in concert with their dialogue." He inserted many of these mannerisms into his portrayal of Eddie.

"They were authentic 'dese,' 'dem' and 'dose' guys," recalls Walden. "But I really picked up a lot of helpful hints for 'Eddie.'"

That the gang accepted Walden was shown the day he left to return to Hollywood. They gave him a medallion that belonged to one of them ("I wear it in the movie"), an identification bracelet, property of another member, and a very unique gift—a ski mask actually used by one of the gang in a robbery.

"I also wear it in the film," adds Walden. "It was sort of spooky wearing it the first time, but it does lend authenticity to the role."

PANIC—One of a trio of gunmen holds the passengers of a swank commuter train club car at gunpoint during a holdup in "Panic on the 5:22," the second movie on ABC-TV Friday, June 25, (9:30-11:00 p.m.) on Channels 3-5-12.

Martin To Be Guest On 'First Fifty Years'

Dean Martin made his network television debut in 1950 on "The Colgate Comedy Hour" when that show was originating from New York.

Now under contract to NBC-TV, the singer-actor-comedian will appear as one of the hosts of "The First Fifty Years," the special saluting NBC on 50 years of broadcasting which will be colorcast in November, with Orson Welles narrating and Greg Garrison as executive producer.

When Dean, along with his former partner Jerry Lewis, went on television the medium was still in its infancy and was well suited for the madcap antics of Martin and Lewis—considered the top comedy team in the history of show business until its break-up in 1955.

"When Jerry and I agreed to star on the 'Comedy Hour,'" Dean recalled, "we knew television was really made for us, yet we weren't really sure how we could convert our act for TV."

"In a night club, we had complete freedom of action and material. Look, in a club like the ones we played in Atlantic City or Slapsy Maxie's in Los Angeles, we not only had a stage but we worked in the audience."

"And we ad-libbed, too. We always had sort of a pattern in our act, but we had what really was the luxury to ad-lib. If a piece of business developed in the audience, we played there. So you can see that by going on TV, we thought we might be limited and if we were, then our comedy might suffer."

"We made some adjustments to working on TV because we knew the TV cameras could only do so much. But we discovered that when we ad-libbed on TV, audiences loved it when the cameras had a hard time trying to follow us. The spontaneity of us doing something out of camera range, and then the cameras hurriedly trying to 'find' us, give us more freedom than we first thought."

Those who remember the early Martin and Lewis television shows also recall that absolutely nothing could disturb them once the show went on the air.

"A good example," Dean pointed out, "was on one show where we did a sketch in a prison cell. We were supposed to nail something on the wall. We did but the wall fell down. Today if that happened, we'd probably stop taping, reset it and start the skit over. Then, we called out the propman who nailed the wall right on the air—live—and we just went from there. The audiences loved it."

"It didn't bother us that millions of people were watching us right as we were doing it. We'd worked a long time in many clubs and it would have taken a lot more than that to throw us. Those were wild days—I loved 'em.'"

Lancaster, Merrill Star In Drama

Burt Lancaster and Dina Merrill star in "The Young Savages," a drama on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies," Thursday, June 24, (9-11 p.m.). Shelley Winters and Edward Andrews co-star. (This motion picture was filmed in black and white.)

Assistant District Attorney Hank Bell (Lancaster) prepares to prosecute three teen-age gang members for the slaying of 15-year-old Robert Escalante (Jose Perez). District Attorney Dan Cole (Andrews) wants a first-degree murder conviction to help him win the governorship.

Bell's political future will benefit also, but his wife, Karen (Merrill) doesn't approve of seeking the death penalty for the three teen-agers.

Faced with a dilemma, Hank begins a quest for the full truth that eventually threatens to damage his political career.

'Desperate Miles' Is Moving Drama

Jim McKay, the son of a former WAC staff sergeant and Army corporal, dropped out of high school to join the Army. Two months after being sent to Vietnam, he stepped on a land mine, which severed his right leg below the knee, blasted two toes off his left foot and permanently lodged shrapnel in his right wrist. It also ended his plans to become a career serviceman.

But the strapping Mayo—6'2", 170 lbs.—after months of hospitalization, did not dwell on the past. "I concentrated on staying alive," he says. All in all, Jim spent seven years in and out of hospitals. Although he is now able to use crutches for short periods of time, he is usually confined to a manually operated wheelchair.

In an effort to call attention to the fact that a disabled person can do anything if he puts his mind to it, Mayo made a dramatic journey, via wheelchair, from his home in Long Beach to San Diego, a distance of 130 miles.

His trip was widely covered in the national press and in the news magazines. He became a momentary celebrity. That, however, was not the reason he craved the spotlight.

He did it to prove something—not to himself, but to others. "A lot of so-called disabled people just sit around feeling sorry for themselves. I figured if I could do something dramatic and arduous, so could they," he told a reporter from a national magazine, in referring to his pilgrimage.

Landon Is One Of Finest

Oscar-winning actress Patricia Neal (Best Actress, "Hud," 1963) has worked with some of the world's top directors, and she has just found a new one she places right near the top.

Patricia, who will guest-star in a two-hour presentation, "Remember Me," to be rebroadcast on "Little House on the Prairie" Wednesday, June 23, 8 to 10 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28, admits she was a bit concerned when she found out that Michael Landon, who stars in the series, is also the executive producer of the script—and would also direct it.

"I don't know how one man can do all that and do it well," she said, "but he fooled me good. The man is one of the finest directors I have ever worked with."

"I can't tell you exactly what makes a great director, but I know when I'm working with one, Mike is beautiful. He knows how to get right inside my head and help me during a difficult scene. He understands actors and he understands people."

"When you can look past the camera in a sad, touching scene and see that there are tears in the director's eyes, you know you're working with a man of great feeling. I'd rank him among the top four or five directors in the country. I love him."

Linden Hosts Series

Hal Linden, Tony Award-winner and star of the series, "Barney Miller," has been signed to host "Animals Animals Animals," a new and unique series of children's programs premiering this fall.

"We're excited that Mr. Linden will be working in another series for ABC," said ABC News Vice President Walter J. Pfister, Jr. His great talent and concern for the development and education of children are sure to help make "Animals Animals Animals" a huge success," said Pfister.

This new series is written and directed by executive producer Lester Cooper and produced by Peter Weinberg, the same team that won a Peabody and an Emmy for the "Make a Wish" series. "Animals Animals Animals" will premiere Sunday, Sept. 12.

"I have four children of my own and have seen them grow up with television. My involvement with 'Animals' gives me the opportunity to make a contribution to quality children's programming," said Linden.

"Animals Animals Animals" is a radical departure from the conventional "survival of the fittest" nature programs. Because Cooper feels that the "survival" programs represent a fundamental violence, he was determined to come up with an idea that could deal with the animals and avoid the violence.

Each program explores the relationship of animal and man and focuses on a particular animal, tracing it from the beginning of time through such subjects as art, history, mythology, literature, humor, music and religion with animation, graphics and live

TO S. PATTERSON, ROCK HILL, S. C.: Former Monkee Mickey Dolenz, who now heads Dolenz Productions, recently taped a TV special tentatively titled "The Great Golden Hits of The Monkees Show by the Guys Who Sang 'em and the Guys Who Wrote 'em." The 30-minute program has the same variety format the newly established group launched last summer when they toured the U.S.

TO B.W., DANVILLE, VA.: Barbara Eden, now 41, starred in numerous films and two TV series—"How To Marry a Millionaire" and "I Dream of Jeannie." Write to her in care of CMA, 8899 Beverly Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif. 90048.

TO C. SEYMOUR, GOLDSBORO, N.C.: Oliver Reed played the part of Ivan Drago in "Assassination Bureau, Lt.," a film that aired recently on TV. The burly British actor who is usually cast in sullen roles, is 38.

TO M. WALTERS, GREENVILLE, N.C.: Paul Ford played in the short-lived TV series "Baileys of Balboa" with Judy Carne and Clint Howard.

TO D.K., FLORENCE, S.C.: Ed Nelson played gangsters, brothers-in-law and boy friends in many 'B' films before finding a secure niche in TV's "Peyton Place" (1963 to '68). "The Orange Watering Cart," a film from Hungary which fancifully treats a simple event in the lives of three children suffering the pangs of growing up, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, June 26, 1 to 2 p.m.

The story revolves around three schoolchildren — Oma, a tall, moody, intelligent boy with a natural inclination toward leadership; Bori, a pretty girl on whom he has a crush, but who does not return his romantic feelings; and their mutual friend, Totyi — and an orange watering cart, a popular vehicle used in Hungary to water down the streets. "The Orange Watering Cart," a 1973 production of the MAFILM Film studio and the Hungarian Film laboratories, was directed by Zolt Kezdi Kovacs.

Golf Invades Sports

On Friday, June 11, the invasion began - ABC Sports' invasion of the Atlanta (Ga.) Athletic Club's Highlands course, site of the 76th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

A week later, 50,000 feet of camera cable had been laid and everything had been set up for 5½ hours of exclusive coverage of the event - coverage with the expertise, flair and innovative touch that earned ABC Sports' golf telecasts an Emmy nomination as the Outstanding Live Sports Series.

A look at what is involved in producing the U.S. Open telecasts - the final round will be aired Sunday, June 20, 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. - helps to explain why ABC Sports' golf coverage is so highly regarded.

Through the use of five mobile remote units, the network is covering holes 6 to 8 with color cameras. Two hand-held roving cameras will be employed on the fairways, a technique ABC Sports introduced years ago to provide the accurate visual shot descriptions by allowing viewers to assume the golfers' point of view.

One camera was positioned atop each of two 85-foot high ladder towers to provide panoramic camera shots and enable viewers to measure the motion and height of the ball on fairway shots.

For reporting new development among the tournament leaders as they occur, two of ABC's seven commentators will be walking among the leading groups throughout the final round.

The Arvin frame storage device, which ABC Sports introduced recently on "ABC's Monday Night Baseball," two videotape machines, one slow motion machine and the chiron computer typewriter, used for graphic presentations, is playing an important role in the coverage.

ABC Sports has 88 engineers on the scene, and by the time the Open ends, they will have logged nearly 10,000 work hours while at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

There are 13 production people on hand, including producer Chuck Howard and directors Terry Jastrow, Andy Sidaris, Jim Jennett and Roger Goodman. Gary Nenner is the unit manager, responsible for coordinating logistics and budgetary matters and serving as a liaison between ABC Sports and ABC Broadcast Operations and Engineering.

In addition, there are approximately 100 other individuals working as spotters, scorers and runners.

It took a week for ABC Sports to set up across the Highlands Golf Course of the Atlanta Athletic Club. But planning for televising the U.S. Open began last September, another reason the golf coverage is cited as one of the best live sports series on TV.

LATE MILLIONAIRE INSPIRED SONG

The late Howard Hughes, whose career touched most facets of show business, has now dipped into the song writing area via "The Ballad of Howard Hughes' Will (Or, Who Said You Can't Take It With You?)." The song is a new Dot Records single release by singer Glenn Martin. To date, some 24 wills have turned up since Hughes' death in April.

Swim Meet Determines Entries

SHIRLEY BABASHOFF, the skinny 15-year-old who won a gold medal on the United States 400-meter freestyle relay team and added two silvers in individual events at the 1972 Munich Olympics has emerged as the foundation of U.S. swimming aspirations. ABC sports will televise the U.S. Men's and Women's Olympic Swimming Trials from Long Beach, Calif. on Sunday, June 20 at 9:30 p.m.

Who will represent the United States in the various swimming events in the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal? That question will be answered when ABC Sports presents the "U.S. Men's and Women's Olympic Swimming Trials," Sunday, June 20, at 9:30 p.m.

The United States has probably fared better in the swimming portion of the Olympics over the years than in any other sport. In fact, the women captured eight of a possible 14 gold medals in the Munich competition in 1972. However, the medals may be more evenly distributed this year, with heavy competition coming from the East German ladies.

In April, at the national AAU championships, the East Germans gave the American girls all they could handle. The AAU meet was held in Long Beach, Calif., at the Belmont Plaza pool, site of this year's Olympic Trials.

Shirley Babashoff is the leader of the U.S. women's team, holding the only world record in the 400-meter freestyle. Kornelia Ender and Ulrike Richter are both East Germans, and both hold numerous records that the Americans did not even approach in the AAU Championships. Only Babashoff shined, as she won the 400 and 200-meter freestyle events, finishing a second off her own record in the 400 and only three-tenths of a second off of Kornelia Ender's record in the 200.

Nevertheless, Shirley is confident that the U.S. women will fare well in Montreal.

"I think the American girls are going to surprise people at Montreal," she stated. "We're going to do better than anybody thinks."

Thus, the main competition in the women's swimming events at Montreal promise to come from Shirley and Ms. Ender. Babashoff indicates how their styles differ.

"Kornelia's a drop-dead sprinter," Shirley said. "She goes out hard and tries to hold on. I'll wait a while, and then blast it home."

In the men's competition, Long Beach State's Tim Shaw is the shining star. However, he was soundly beaten in the AAU, and Southern Cal's John Naber emerged victorious in the backstroke and 100-meter events.

Wimbledon Meets The World

Celerating its ninety-ninth anniversary as a great social as well as sporting occasion, a national celebration of the rites of summer, the Wimbledon open tennis championship will be televised on Saturday, June 26, at 5 p.m. on NBC. Wimbledon has long served as the most prestigious tournament in the world.

During the last week in June and the first week in July, more than 300,000 spectators will jam the shrine which serves as the most impressive physical plant in tennis. Centre Court, the most hallowed tennis arena in the world, seats 10,650 and has standing room for 3,000. The famed No. 1 Court, a dozier, less exalted version of Centre Court, can accommodate 5,100 fans with seats and 1,500 standing. Fifteen outside courts with various booths, buffets and other stations comprise the complex.

Wimbledon has long been in the unique and enviable position of being the only major tournament in the world capable of turning a nice profit on gate receipts alone. Centre Court and No. 1 Court are sold out months in advance. There is such a demand that tickets must be allocated by lottery. Even during the inflationary economy of prize money (since 1967, the Wimbledon purse increased from zero to $250,000), the tournament was profitable without sponsorship.

Wimbledon is the fiscal backbone of all the British tennis. The Law Tennis Association (LTA), the governing body of the sport in Britain, derives almost its entire support ($150,000 annually) from Wimbledon. Very few tournaments other than Wimbledon realize a profit at all for the Association. Money received by the LTA in membership fees is hardly enough to support the administrative functions and other projects of organization.

Nearly the entire structure of British tennis - school and county organizations, clubs (which need LTA-backed loans for refurbishing their facilities) and national teams - depend heavily on the Wimbledon money.

In view of the role Wimbledon plays in the British game, the tournament was under much pressure to make changes. Officials had long thought it wrong for the tournament to depend on gate receipts alone and spurn the numerous overtures made by potential sponsors wishing to associate themselves with Wimbledon in one way or another.

Yet, Wimbledon continued in a fashion of supremacy to worldliness by: paying $40,000 a year for a fleet of limousines and drivers to transport players between their accommodations and the club; paying for the tennis ball which Slazenger capitalized on by advertising the ball used at Wimbledon since 1902; receiving no fees from Robinson's Barley Water, which was visible to everyone as the drink provided for competitors at court-side; paying Town and Country Catering for the privilege of having exclusive rights to supply food and beverages on the grounds.

All of these and many more longstanding arrangements were throwbacks to the days when Wimbledon's business was conducted by a gentlemen's agreement. It was just a matter of time before the more mundane forces of economics would dictate changes for Wimbledon.

In 1973, one of the first cracks came when British Leyland Motors agreed to supply a fleet of automobiles and chauffeurs at no cost.

Tomlin Is Host

The "NBC's Saturday Night" program hosted by Emmy and Grammy Award winner Lily Tomlin, of which The New York Times said, "Lily Tomlin's sustained characterizations fit the format brilliantly," will be repeated June 26, 11:55 p.m. to 1:25 a.m., on Channel 7.

Ms. Tomlin's wide-ranging talents are explored on the show. In her opening monologue, she lets the audience in on random notes she has made to herself. As Edith Ann, one of her established characters, she is featured in an ice-skating sequence. And in a musical segment, she sings "St. James Infirmary," accompanied by the show's resident orchestra (the "All-Nurse Band" for this selection) led by Howard Shore.

With repertory company members (the Not Ready for Prime Time Players), Ms. Tomlin is featured in comedy sketches including "Jaws III," a parody of the movie, and "Hard Hats," in which she plays the instructor in a female-dominated class for construction workers.

Among other sketches by the Not Ready for Prime Time Players are "Hotel Bellhop" and "Beethoven," in which John Belushi plays a somewhat unusual version of the composer.

Also presented on the program are Jim Henson's Muppets and a film by Albert Brooks.

"NBC's Saturday Night" is produced by Lorne Michaels and directed by Dave Wilson. The repertory company's cast comprises Danny Aykroyd, John Belushi, Chevy Chase, Jane Curtin, Garrett Morris, Laraine Newman and Gilda Radner.

When members of his family visit Nelson, his paramour quarrels with the Admiral's flag captain and refuses to drink to the King's health. Less than a month after he returned home, Nelson is called again to sea, where he signs a will leaving his wealth to Emma. Later that day, October 21, 1805, he is felled on ship by a sniper's bullet.

'The Nelson Affair' To Be Colorcast On NBC

Academy Award winner Glenda Jackson ("Women in Love, 1970; "A Touch of Class," 1973) and Oscar nominee Peter Finch ("Sunday Bloody Sunday," 1971) star as a couple whose love defined the propriety of English nobility, in "The Nelson Affair," a historical romantic drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" June 26, 9 to 11:25 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Two of England's most acclaimed screen personalities, Jackson and Finch starred together to overwhelming critical praise in "Sunday Bloody Sunday," two years before "The Nelson Affair," a 1973 Universal film, was released.

Finch stars as Admiral Lord Nelson, who returns to England August 19, 1805, after more than two years at sea chasing the French fleet. He is rushed off to the Admiralty by an old friend and granted leave to spend time with "a certain lady."

Nelson, who has been estranged from his wife for four years, has a rapturous reunion with Emma, Lady Hamilton.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR REP. LES ASPIN (D.-Wis.)

You're probably the most effective critic of wasteful military spending. How do you get your information?—Robert Barney, San Antonio, Tex.

● I get tips and documents—and I ask the right questions. Tips come in letters from soldiers who want to blow the whistle on things like Gen. Alexander Haig's dog getting a chauffered limo ride across Germany. The General Accounting Office is a good digging agency, and it grinds out many reports that help us. And the Pentagon turns out reams of material. The real information often is in the footnotes or hidden between the lines. You can come up with some gems buried in all that bureaucratic prose. If you pin down the Pentagon with a precise question, you'll get a factual answer. But the first rule is knowing the right question.

FOR JEAN STAPLETON

Are you as funny off TV as you are on it?—R.B., Grand Rapids, Mich.

● No. In fact, I find it hard to raise laughs at home. That's because my husband Bill is much funnier than I am. He keeps us in stitches. And John, my son, is a natural-born comic. When I'm not working, I want my family to entertain me—not the other way around.

FOR EVEL KNIEVEL

Why did you choose motorcycle riding and daredevil stunts as a career?—Gerald Daus, New Milford, N.Y.

● Ever since I was 15, my real love has been the speed and thrills that only a motorcycle can offer. After I watched an auto daredevil group drive a car up a ramp at high speed and sail over a parked car below them, I decided to work up an act doing the same thing—with one exception: I would use a motorcycle instead of a car.

FOR BOBBY RIGGS

Do you still think of yourself as a ladies' man?—D.M., Decatur, Ill.

● Certainly. As long as I'm alive, romance will never die.

FOR KATE SMITH

Have you set a date for your retirement?—A.B., Santa Monica, Calif.

● No way. The thought is repulsive. I wouldn't know what to do with myself. After 44 years of work, you get into the habit—and why stop if there's no reason to? As a matter of fact, one of these days I hope to do something I've always wanted to do—a dramatic opera on TV (interested producers please note!).

FOR LIONEL HAMPTON

Was your recent cataract operation the kind that allows you to return to work the next day?—C.L., Las Vegas, Nev.

● Yes. As a matter of fact, you can be back on your feet in a matter of hours after the operation, which was developed by Dr. Charles Kelman of New York. He uses an ultrasonic needle to dissolve the cataract. It worked fine with me, but I suggest people check with their own doctors to find out whether it's right for them.

FOR RICH LITTLE

When, where and what was your first impression?—Loretta Braendle, Austin, Tex.

● I first started doing impressions in junior high school. I did impressions of the teacher. When my teacher called on me, I'd give my answer using the voice and mannerism of the teacher. The other kids loved it, and the teacher didn't catch on. I did this with other teachers, too. After awhile, when they caught on to what I was doing, they became very self-conscious whenever they saw me coming.

FOR MONTY HALL, host of "Let's Make a Deal"

How are the contestants on your program chosen?—Julie Corvari, Ventnor, N.J.

● We pick 31 people from the line at the studio door. And we use intuition, or try to, so we can avoid the obvious exhibitionists and people who jump up and down and scream to get attention. We want nice, average people—people who wear clothes that aren't outlandish and who aren't hiding their faces. We ignore race, color and creed. And we try to pick the ones who'll be interesting—without getting crazy.

FOR SALLY FIELD, star of "Stay Hungry"

You seemed so sweet and innocent on the "Flying Nun" TV series. Are you?—J.T., Trenton, N.J.

● Nobody can be that sugary and darling—including me. The minute you meet someone who looks as though butter can't melt in her mouth, watch out! I'm the reverse of what I appear to be—slightly crazy and full of different emotions. People think I'm sunny and outgoing. I'm not. I'm shy and introverted—something of a hermit in fact.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Tell me about Jackie Onassis' new job as a designer?—J.F., Oceanside, Calif.

● It's not Jackie who has become a designer, but her younger sister Lee Radziwill, 42. Jackie is an editor with Viking Press, where she is reported to make $200 a week. Lee has had quite a few jobs, all different. She was fashion editor at "Vogue" and "Harper's Bazaar," an actress, a TV interviewer, and began her real life "job" as Princess when she married Prince Stanislas Radziwill in 1959. (They were divorced in 1974 after 15 years). Lee admits she has no experience in decorating for pay, but she has fixed up her own homes and those of friends. She's confident it'll all work out all right because of her background in art. She's probably right: her first attempt was creating a model room for Lord & Taylor department store in New York—and it was a huge success at its recent unveiling.

"When I discussed Joey's low marks with her math teacher, her teacher told me, 'The way she looks, she won't need to add.'"
—Ray Heatherton

RAY HEATHERTON TALKS ABOUT HIS DAUGHTER JOEY:

Bandleader Ray was aware very early that Joey was destined for show business: "I could see dancing was in her blood because the only stars she admired were hoofers—Debbie Reynolds, Fred Astaire, Eleanor Powell. At four, she entertained real or imaginary audiences. She taught her friends how to dance in our basement. And I knew she had acting ability the day she fidgeted nervously in line at her first communion and had an 'accident.' She stared at the puddle on the floor, stepped back, tapped the shoulder of the girl ahead and said innocently, 'I think you did something.'

Claiming the most wonderful time of his life came when Joey was little, the bandleader said: "She poured out warmth and affection. That was how she let me know she was glad I was her dad. She had womanly guile at two. But she was a normal kid who ate well and got into scrapes. She took pride in her room, which she had fixed up herself. All her friends continued using Joey's room as their headquarters when they got older.

"At school, she was good at what she liked (French and history); fair at what she didn't ('enduring' math). When I discussed her low marks with her math teacher, her teacher told me, 'The way she looks, she won't need to add.' Sometimes the kids teased her about me and said she got special attention because of who she was. Had Joey not been so reticent, she'd have fought back. But she didn't open her mouth, and that made the kids taunt her all the more."

Now that Joey is grown up, has their relationship changed? "Our careers take us in opposite directions, so we don't see each other as much as I'd like, but when we're both in New York, we visit frequently. She communicates with all ages and doesn't know the meaning of a generation gap. I'm getting slightly less square—and she, more conservative."

Joey's dad describes her as a very private person: "She doesn't air her problems. Even when she had marital difficulties [Joey divorced Lance Rentzel five years ago] she never came home crying." But Joey does confide in her dad, does seek guidance. Areas in which Joey turns her back on parental advice concern money and energy and some amenities. "She's extravagant. She goes on clothes-buying sprees that would make your head spin. Also, she knows no stop when she's working—keeps going until she verges on collapse. And she lets her correspondence lag. I believe in the

Ray tries not to clash with his daughter too often because she's endowed with a temper: "She takes the position she's a big girl now, which, loosely translated, means 'mind your own business.' She's very volatile." But Ray has a temper, too. He still remembers four years ago being aroused by a woman who gave Joey an insulting review. "I was livid. I took an example from Truman and sent off a stiff letter about the unjust criticism. I never got an answer—but I got it off my chest, and that was good."

Ray watches his daughter go through her paces with mixed emotions: "I'm objective. I try to be one of the audience. But I burst with pride when she comes on stage." Would Joey have been as successful without the asset of the Heather-ton name? "If she had started out as 'Mary Zilch,' she'd be no bigger or smaller a star than she is now. Joey always had great determination and drive. I never wanted to put her in a position where she'd think I was responsible for her success or failure. All I did was instill a sense of responsibility and a knowledge of correct professional behavior. I wanted her to make it or break it on her own."

ROBERT ALDA TALKS ABOUT HIS SON ALAN:

I had no burning desire for Alan to go into show business. I tried to steer him toward medicine, but it was hopeless. He'd developed his own passion—writing. At 16, Alan wrote 'Love's the Ticket,' a school play. He made money from it and thought that made him an instant success. He wanted to skip college and go straight into show business. We had a heart-to-heart talk. I told him entertaining was not a bed of roses. I said if he had enough guts and stamina, I'd help him all the way, provided he finished college. Which he did."

Robert, 20 years Alan's senior, said their relationship is that of brothers, not father-son. "We were drawn close by Alan's polio at age seven. That was a tremendous blow. We had visions of him being confined to a wheel chair the rest of his life. We'd just moved to L.A., where I was about to do the 'Rhapsody in Blue' movie. The polio took agonizing ages to diagnose—but we pulled him through."

"Because of the polio, Alan had private tutoring at home. Swimming was a must, and Alan spent eight to ten hours a day in the pool. He even had his lunch in the water. As well as being concerned about his health, I was also worried that he might turn into a spoiled brat. To compensate for his being sick, I gave him everything he wanted."

"The polio also curtailed his social life, so I became more his friend than his dad. We lived on a miniature farm,

Based on Road & Track magazine's consideration of hundreds of 1975 cars:

THERE'S ONLY ONE "BEST CAR IN THE WORLD FOR UNDER $3500."

It's not Toyota.
It's not Datsun.
It's not Vega.
It's not Pinto.
It's not Honda.
It's not Fiat.

What makes the Volkswagen Rabbit a winner?

Just about everything.

No other car will give you the combination of economy, performance and interior roominess that you'll find in a Rabbit.

What about economy? 39 miles per gallon on the highway, 25 miles per gallon in the city.

These are the highly impressive EPA estimates of what the Rabbit got with standard transmission in the 1976 EPA tests.

(The mileage you get can vary, depending on how and where you drive, optional equipment, and the condition of your car.)

What about performance?

We didn't name it the Rabbit for nothing.

You're propelled from 0 to 50 in only 8.2 seconds.

At that range, a Datsun B-210 is 60% slower than our Rabbit.[†]

Roominess?

As Road & Track put it:

"Its space for passengers and luggage is remarkable."

87% of the space in the car is devoted to functional room. That means the Rabbit has as much head and leg room as some "mid-sized" cars.

Open the large Hatchback, put the rear seat down, and you have more luggage space than in the trunk of a Cadillac Fleetwood.

Economy.
Performance.
Roominess.

There's only one car that can give you the best of all three worlds.

What Your Reading Habits Reveal (Read On)

True or False?

Comic strips are read mainly by less-educated people.
(See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The earlier you learn to read, the greater your capacity for achievement is likely to be.
2. Most top executives are so busy, they have little time to read—and consequently aren't as well read as the average person.
3. Comic strips are read mainly by less-educated people.
4. A child's proficiency is largely influenced by the kind of parents he has.
5. Creative people tend to be poor readers. They are more interested in developing and expressing their own concepts and ideas than in reading about somebody else's.
6. The average person reads largely to pass the time and alleviate boredom. He derives little practical value from literature.

ANSWERS

1. True—as indicated by studies at the University of Illinois to determine whether early readers achieve more than equally intelligent late readers. Early readers were determined by children's scores on primary reading and vocabulary tests when entering first grade. The subjects were then given IQ and achievement tests. Results: Early readers demonstrated consistently higher achievement.
2. False. A study of the top leaders of American institutions conducted by the Bureau of Applied Social Research showed that these men of power are avid readers and that their reading runs a wide gamut, including newspapers, news-magazines, general and specialized periodicals and other media. The findings suggest that the more valuable a man's time is, the more valuable he considers the knowledge and information he obtains through reading.

3. False. Investigations have shown that IQ or education rarely causes a person to lose interest in his favorite comic strips. A University of Michigan study has shown, however, that "university students prefer humor comic strips to adventure strips."
4. True. A university study has shown that the parents of good readers tended to have the following characteristics in common: "They used the libraries, read books on various subjects, bought quality magazines and newspapers, enjoyed classical music, went on trips to historical places and museums, were satisfied with the amount of reading their children did and expected good grades from their children."
5. False. Investigations have shown that creative people tend to be avid readers—to have a strong interest in the thoughts, feelings and ideas of others. Psychological studies at Tufts University show that this is equally true of creative children. In tests on fifth- and sixth-graders it was found that the higher the level of reading proficiency, the higher the scores were on tests designed to measure creativity.
6. False. A National Literature Assessment Survey of a cross-section of Americans provides a profile of the reading habits of the nation's men and women. The vast majority reported that literature had great value for them, and they were able to explain just what the values were. The values were found to embrace six categories: "(1) exposes the reader to other points of view; (2) leads to greater self-awareness; (3) helps to create an ability to evaluate critically; (4) teaches people to think; (5) is entertaining; and (6) helps build vocabulary and writing skills."

Family Weekly's COOKBOOK Presents:

FAMILY WEEKLY visits the famous James Beard Cooking School—and comes back with recipes for an all-American feast!

HAM EN CROUTE

- 1 country ham, about 13-14 lbs.
- Water
- 4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. lard or solid all-vegetable shortening
- $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups liquid, preferably Madeira wine
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup dark brown sugar, packed
- 2 tablespoons powdered mustard
- 1 egg yolk
- 3 tablespoons cream

1. Soak ham in water 24-48 hours.
2. Drain ham, cover with fresh water, bring it to a boil and boil 5 minutes or so, removing any scum that forms on the top. Allow to simmer for exactly 2½ hours, then let cool completely in the liquid.
3. Make a pastry using the flour, lard and Madeira, or you can use part water and part Madeira, or sherry, or part vinegar and white wine. (Cut lard into flour with pastry blender until crumbly, adding Madeira as necessary to make a pliant dough.)
4. Wrap dough in waxed paper and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes.
5. In the meantime, remove the skin from the shank end of the ham with a sharp knife and reserve. Scrape the fat smooth. Rub ham well with mixture of brown sugar and dry mustard.
6. Roll dough out into a $\frac{3}{8}$ inch-thick oval, large enough to drape over the ham easily. No pastry goes on the bottom.
7. Place the reserved skin on the bottom of a shallow roasting pan, top with the ham and

8. Mix egg yolk and cream and brush the pastry. Cut leftover pastry into rounds and strips and use your fingers to shape into flower petals, oval leaves and stems. Attach to the pastry with some of the egg wash and bake the ham in a 350°F. oven 1¼-1½ hours.

9. Carve the ham lengthwise toward the shank in thin slices. Leave the slices in place, restore the crust. Serve a bit of crust with each portion of ham.

James Beard On How We Eat

Elizabeth Gee

James Beard has written 18 books, taught cooking for well over 20 years and is one of America's foremost food authorities. Here is what he has to say about the way Americans cook today:

"The basis of American food is the ethnic food of many countries that people brought with them, made with the basic ingredients that were here. Some of the foods that we consider most 'American'—such as clam chowder, apple pie and gingerbread—actually have their origins in Europe.

"But home bread-baking, home curing of meats and home canning and preserving are among the innovations that have developed and matured here. On the other hand, we haven't been terribly inventive with the things we have. For example, corn and cornmeal, which we got from the Indians, haven't been maintained on that great a scale.

"There is evidence that a growing element of our society wants and will pay for better quality in food. And there seem to be more people who wish to eat more simply, enjoying more vegetarian-based meals with an emphasis on fish, vegetables and fruits."

Write to him and James Beard will send you the brochure of his cooking school at 167 West 12th Street, New York, N.Y. 10011. Each fall, winter and spring, classes are conducted there in American, French and other important cuisines.

then remove the dough to a floured board for about 2 minutes of kneading by hand.

5. Place the dough in a buttered bowl and turn to coat the dough with butter. Cover and set in a warm spot to rise until more than doubled in bulk. Punch down the dough, remove to a floured board and knead for two minutes.

6. Set aside dough for several minutes, until you are able to roll it out to a thickness of $\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

7. Cut out rounds of dough with a round 2- or $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch cutter or with a water glass dipped in flour. (The odd bits of leftover dough can be reworked into a ball, rolled out and cut.)

8. Brush the center of each round with melted butter. Take a pencil, a chopstick or any cylinder of similar size and make a deep indentation in the center of the circle without breaking through the dough. Fold over one-third of each round and press down to seal. Arrange folded rolls on a buttered baking sheet about $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch apart.

9. Brush again with melted butter and allow the rolls to rise until almost doubled in size. They will probably touch each other.

10. Brush them with the egg wash* and bake in a preheated 350°F. oven until lightly browned, about 20 minutes, depending on size.

11. Remove rolls to a cooling rack or serve piping hot right from the oven, with plenty of butter and preserves or honey, if desired.

Makes 4 dozen rolls

DEVILED EGGS

- 12 hard-boiled eggs
- 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon Tabasco
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- Mayonnaise
- Paprika

1. Peel eggs and cut them into halves vertically, horizontally or diagonally. Carefully transfer the yolks to a bowl.

2. Mash yolks with fork and combine with mustard, Tabasco, salt, pepper and grated onion. Add enough mayonnaise to bind mixture into smooth paste.

3. Stuff the whites with the aid of a pastry tube fitted with a large rosette tube or spoon in the filling, smooth it off and garnish with a sprinkle of paprika.

Jim's Method to Boil Eggs

Place eggs in cold water and let them come to a boil. Remove from heat and allow to stand for 30 seconds for very soft eggs and 1 minute for firmer eggs. For hard-cooked eggs, let them boil for 3 minutes. Remove from heat and allow to stand in hot water for 20 minutes. Then plunge into cold water. If you stir the eggs gently during cooking, especially at the beginning, yolks will be better centered.

FRIED QUAIL

- 6 quail*
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 6-9 thick slices bacon
- Parsley sprigs
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Tabasco

1. Split quail and shake them in a plastic bag with flour, salt and pepper.

2. Cook bacon in a heavy skillet till just crisp. Transfer to absorbent paper and keep hot in low oven or warming oven.

3. Sauté the quail in the bacon fat over medium-high heat until nicely browned on both sides. Reduce heat and let them cook, turning once or twice, till just tender.

4. Transfer to a hot platter, top with bacon slices and garnish with parsley sprigs.

5. To make gravy for serving with quail: remove all but 3 tablespoons fat from the skillet and add two tablespoons flour. Mix well with the fat and pan juices over medium heat and stir well until thoroughly blended and smooth.

6. Gradually stir in the milk and continue to stir until the mixture is thickened. Season to taste with salt, pepper and Smoking.

What are you going to do about it?

Many people are against cigarettes. You've heard their arguments.

And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact:

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it may well be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking.

Vantage. It's the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

We suggest you try a pack.

Marinated Green Bean Salad, garnished with cherry tomatoes, shares the spotlight with Deviled Eggs.

GREEN BEAN SALAD

- 2 lbs. fresh green beans
- Boiling water
- Salt
- 8 tablespoons oil, olive oil if you prefer
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice
- Crisp lettuce leaves
- 1 lb. cherry tomatoes
- Chopped chives

1. Trim ends of beans, but leave whole. Cook in boiling, salted water about 8-10 minutes or until crisp-tender. Drain well.
2. Make Vinaigrette Sauce by combining oil, salt, pepper, Dijon mustard and vinegar; blend well. Pour Vinaigrette Sauce over cooked beans, cover and refrigerate.
3. Just before serving, line a serving plate with lettuce leaves. Arrange marinated green beans in center; surround with cherry tomatoes. Sprinkle with finely chopped chives.

Makes 6-8 servings

ANGEL FOOD CAKE

- 1 cup sifted cake flour
- 1 1/2 cups fine granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups egg whites (about 12 large)
- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 tablespoon water or part water and part lemon juice
- 1 cup fine granulated sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla or 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1/2 teaspoon almond extract

1. Make sure the egg whites are allowed to warm to room temperature. Preheat the oven to 350°F.
2. Sift the flour, measure and sift 5-6 more times with 1/2 cup sugar and salt. Hold sifter high when sifting to incorporate as much air as possible.
3. Beat the egg whites in a large, very clean bowl. A frilled whip, rotary beater or electric beater can be used.
4. When egg whites are foamy, add cream of tartar and beat in the liquid.
5. When bubbles are uniform, start adding 1 cup sugar, a few tablespoons at a time. Add the flavoring. Beat until the egg whites will hold stiff peaks and the sugar is dissolved.
6. Fold in the flour while sifting or spooning it over the egg whites. This can be done with a rubber spatula or frilled whip, using a down-the-side and up-through-the-batter motion. Turn the bowl to incorporate evenly.

7. When the flour is fully combined but not overmixed, turn the batter into a 10-inch tube pan. The pan must be absolutely free of grease, for the cake must cling to the sides as it rises.

8. Bake the cake about 50-55 minutes. Test by pressing lightly in the center. If the cake springs back, it is done.

9. Remove from oven and invert the pan until the cake cools. Many pans are equipped with legs for this purpose. Otherwise, you can hang the pan upside down over the neck of a bottle.

10. When the cake is cool, it can be removed by pulling from the sides of the pan with a fork. Frost or leave plain, as you prefer. To serve the cake, pierce it with a fork at intervals to mark the portions, then pull apart with two forks. The cake will mash if cut in the usual fashion.

Makes 10-12 servings

Karen's latest movie is Alfred Hitchcock's "The Family Plot" for Universal.

By Karen Black
As told to Helen Dorsey

My husband (Kit Carson) is rather picky. I have to make him good things or he won't eat! We never have time to entertain, but if I did I would serve spinach lasagne, cheese soufflé and chiles rellenos. I learned how to make rellenos watching the Mexican maid when I worked on a movie in Mexico. The only trouble is, you'll never get cheese as good as they have in Mexico!

KAREN'S CHILES RELLENOS (Stuffed Peppers)

- 6 fresh long green chili peppers or 6 small bell peppers
- About ½ lb. Mexican cheese or Monterey Jack or soft Cheddar, cut in pieces
- 3 egg whites
- 2 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon whole wheat flour
- Salt to taste, optional
- Vegetable oil for deep frying
- 1 chicken bouillon cube, mashed
- 1 cup tomato sauce
- ½ can green chile salsa (available in most supermarkets)

1. Wash peppers. Hold over gas flame by stem until skin begins to blister (or roast in preheated 450°F. oven 10 minutes). Wrap peppers in damp towel a few minutes to steam. Skin, slit and remove seeds. Leave stems on.
2. Fill each chili with cheese; close.
3. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Beat egg yolks until thick; stir in flour and salt. Fold in egg whites.
4. Dip chilies in egg batter; fry in hot oil until golden. Drain on paper towels.
5. Stack chilies in heatproof casserole. Mash bouillon cube with mixture of tomato sauce and green chile salsa. Pour sauce over stuffed chilies. Cover, heat in preheated 350°F. oven 20 minutes or until piping hot. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings

NOTE: Dish can be prepared in advance; heated just before serving. Deliciously different and inexpensive, too!

English Trifle— A Tradition in Elegance

Trifle—a kind of puddingy cake-in-a-bowl—is probably the most classic English dessert. Enjoyed by our forefathers, it is particularly suitable for the Bicentennial.

1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
Additional strawberry jam, fresh strawberries
2 tablespoons chopped walnuts

1. In 2-qt. glass serving bowl, arrange a layer of lady fingers. Sprinkle them with about ½ cup sherry.
2. In a bowl, combine strawberry jam, honey and lemon rind.
3. Spoon a layer of strawberry than unwhipped margarines.

Miracle Brand Margarine is whipped. Which means more pats per pound. 36 more, to be exact. And that's enough to spread two extra loaves of bread at 18 slices per loaf.

In these times, that's a small miracle in itself.

CUSTARD SAUCE

½ teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract

1. In double boiler over hot, not boiling water, with wire whisk, beat egg yolks, sugar and salt until blended.
2. Gradually stir in milk and cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and coats a spoon; about 25 minutes.
3. Stir in vanilla extract. Cover surface with lightly buttered waxed paper and refrigerate.

Makes about 3½ cups

QUICK CUSTARD SAUCE (A "Shortcut")

2 pkgs. (3¼ ozs. each) instant vanilla pudding mix 3½ cups cold milk

1. Beat pudding and milk together smoothly. Let stand until thick.

Makes about 3½ cups

Tips for Successful Trifle

1. Traditional Trifle was the invention of a thrifty, imaginative cook for the express purpose of using up stale cake. By soaking the cake in a favorite sherry or liqueur and layering with creamy custard and jam, a delicious concoction evolved. Crumbled poundcake or sponge cake will serve equally as well.
2. Strawberry jam or preserves are especially good in Trifle. But apricot jam or seedless red raspberry jam would be appropriate, too.
3. We give you two choices of custard: the classic soft "boiled" custard and a "custard" made with today's pantry staple: instant vanilla pudding.

FATHER'S DAY

so he was never bored. There's always something to do on 12 acres. He still has a great love for animals, is a good horseman (loves to ride bareback), and at one point I thought he'd end up as a vet."

Growing up in the pre-TV era, Alan's interest in radio was directed toward comedy. He never missed Jack Benny and Bob Hope. In high school and college, his attention turned to girls. "Although he wasn't nervous with the ladies," said his father, "neither was he too self-assured. He could take them or leave them."

The all-important question: How far could Alan have gone had he not been an Alda? "All I did was open one or two doors and give him some intros to stock companies. Beyond that, it was his ambition and tenacity that got him where he is today. Naturally, I tried to do what I could. What father wouldn't? If I had a shoe factory, I'd have left it to him. But the only legacy I could really pass on was my name. And the one thing I was always adamant about was that he never use me as a means for obtaining personal favors."

Calling his son "a man's man who knows what he wants," Robert says his son is affectionate, has a great sense of humor—plus a controllable temper. "It comes to the fore when he's frustrated. He has a couple of screaming bursts, then it's all over."

What does he have in common with Alan? "A fondness of gourmet foods and the knowledge of how to watch our diet and calories. We share a love of cooking; we can both bake Irish bread. When we eat out, we usually choose pasta, pizza or barbecued ribs, with salad. And we both have tireless energy," said Robert Alda whose current films are "I Will, I Will... For Now," and "Drum." "Each of us keeps going, even when he knows he should stop."

BERT BACHARACH TALKS ABOUT HIS SON BURT:

Although Burt Bacharach's musical talent was apparent at five (he picked out the correct notes of the Marine Hymn on the piano), as a child he wanted to be everything but a composer. Reported his father, syndicated columnist-author Bert Bacharach: "Burt's first love was sports. He dreamed of being a jockey or a quarterback, or a disc jockey or an artist. The one thing we did know was that he'd never be a great scholar. He had no use for history or math. In fact, my wife Irma and I were amazed he made it through high school! His mind was always in the clouds."

"At 11, Burt and his pals formed a combo. Their first job was playing at a Catholic school dance. For some reason, Burt was on drums. He rapidly came to the conclusion there was no future in that when he saw that all the cute girls hung around the piano player.

"We decided that as long as Burt wanted to study music, he could not go out to play football until he completed his practicing. We weren't tyrants, but as soon as we saw Burt was headed for a career in music, we felt he shouldn't waste time fooling around—he should get on with it."

"I was the lenient one. Irma was tough. It was my rotten job to get him up in the morning for school. He always asked for an extra five minutes, and I always gave it to him. Dragging him out of bed spoiled my whole day. That and getting him to eat his breakfast. He was a dreadful eater. Getting food down him was a battle. And since I hated making him practice, his mother was the one who made all the decisions about when he could goof off if football conflicted with his music lessons."

Burt, who's been married to Angie Dickinson for 11 years, is said by his father to have developed an early interest in the opposite sex. "Whenever he saw an attractive girl, he'd remark, 'Gee, I'd like to marry her!' When he was 12, he came back from ice skating and told us about a girl he'd met, who was gorgeous, and that he'd like to marry her." We asked what she looked like, and he said, "She was a brunette." Then he added, "Dad, what's a brunette?"

As a child, Burt idolized athletes. "He's an autograph hunter, and almost his entire collection is composed of sportsmen. He loved to go to the Polo Grounds (where the New York Giants played) because it was an autograph bonanza. When he was 12, he saw a picture of FDR throwing out the first ball on opening day in Washington. He said enviously, 'It must be great to be President. He can get all the ballplayers' autographs he wants!'"

There's a great bond between Burt (an only child) and his parents. Said Bert: "We raised Burt the way I was—with loads of affection. I was never embarrassed to embrace my father in public. Nor is Burt." Unlike most fathers whose children confidently tread in their footsteps, Bert could not give Burt an assisting hand: "Actors can pass on tricks of the trade to their offspring, but there was no way I could show Burt how to write a song. The only similarity between us is that he tapped on the piano and I on the typewriter."

The help Bert extends to his son is of a personal nature: "We're not qualified to discuss his complex business affairs. But private matters are our domain." Bert's eyes glisten when he speaks about seeing his son on stage. "I applaud as loud as everyone else. That's all. I'd like to clap the loudest and the longest—but I don't dare..."

Let me say this bluntly— YOU CAN MANAGE ALMOST ALL BUT THE MOST GRIEVOUS ILLNESSES ENTIRELY BY YOURSELF

Without drugs . . . without cost . . . without painful apparatus . . . and (except in rare instances) entirely without the services of a doctor!

says Marsh Morrison, Doctor of Chiropractic

How? Primarily By Learning How To STOP INTERFERING WITH THE FLOW OF LIFE FORCES THROUGHOUT YOUR BODY—As Effortlessly As This:

Yes, Dear Friend—
I say again bluntly, based on FORTY YEARS as a healing practitioner:
The human system wants to be well!
Men and women become sick because their bodies suffer from certain mechanical breakdowns—primarily blocked or pinched nerves in their spinal cords, that prevent healing life forces from being transmitted to one or more of their vital organs!
If these mechanical breakdowns—if these nerve blockages—these illnesses will go on for years! And if these people turn, in their agony, to drug-dispensing doctors—who try to treat these mechanical ailments by such chemical means—the results will be, in case after case, exactly what I have seen over the past forty years! These people will continue to remain sick!

But If You Are Suffering From Any Of The Racking Diseases Listed Below, I SAY THIS HONESTLY TO YOU:

You can unblock these pinched nerve pathways YOURSELF!
Once you are shown how, you, in your own home, without medical help at all, can free hitherto blocked nerve lines! And therefore allow them to transmit again the healing life force, and the proper "get-back-to-work" power to those sick organs!

Yes, the renewed-health answers to all these agonizing diseases are ridiculously simple . . . almost effortless . . . natural and effective . . . and I must say it again and again! by-pass the doctor except in the most extreme cases!

For example:
I say that better nerve supply is so powerful in cases of baldness that I have treated, that (to give just one instance) it turned a bald bandleader into a man who actually looked as hairy as a hippie! And I give you full details of this proof on page 24 of my new book!

I say that better nerve supply is a nearly foolproof aid to shoulder and upper arm neuritis and bursitis. And I give you full proof—plus instant instructions—on page 34 of my book!

I say that better nerve supply—gained in your own home by one simple mechanical adjustment that I show you—allows full life force to come through once again to that most vital organ of your entire body ... your heart! That it is the first, almost effortless step, in a "New Heart Program," that ends up by actually building you extra arteries to take the load off those that have already been narrowed or even blocked completely!

MY FILES ARE FILLED WITH CASES THAT READ LIKE MIRACLES . . . TO GIVE JUST A FEW!

RELIEF FROM EMPHYSEMA—Mr. Patrick J. had a severe and long-standing case of emphysema. One day, he coughed so uncontrollably hard that his dentures came loose and almost choked him. I showed him 3 simple MIRACLE Secrets—and the results were immediate and magnificent. Suddenly, he could breathe more freely and easily. He said he even felt like hiking again—an urge he hadn't felt for years!

SERIOUS HEART AILMENT RELIEVED—Mr. Whitney S. was a man with a serious heart ailment, truly a cardiac cripple.
He could hardly walk without wheezing and puffing. The first thing I did was to take all his medicines and flush them down the drain. Then I gave him the special heart-healing secrets of THE MIRACLE BODY TUNE-UP . . . to relieve pinched nerves to the heart so that they were free to transmit functional power.
"Say, I enjoy this," Mr. S. enthused, "I don't have to wheeze
... I'm breathing easier." Eventually, he felt so good he was able to do push-ups!

"I'm mad as hops!" he exploded. "After all that money I spent on doctors! This is like a miracle."
EXCRUCIATING LEG PAIN RELIEVED—Dr. R., a university professor, had a truly violent case of sciatica. The pain was so great that beads of perspiration dripped from his forehead as he attempted to stand, much less walk. He was groggy from drugs that doctors had given him. I showed him how to relieve the pressure of his sciatic nerve—which was rubbing against bone —and he experienced immediate relief. "This does it!" he exclaimed. "I've got no pain at all—for the first time!"

ASTHMA AND VARICOSE VEINS RELIEVED—Helen B. was a stout lady in her 40's with chronic bronchial asthma and legs bulging with varicose veins. I quickly showed her two MIRACLE secrets that brought her blessed relief from her leg problem. Her asthma was even simpler to relieve—perhaps the simplest of all. Just as she was having an attack, I showed her another MIRACLE secret which relieved it at once, to her great sign of relief!

A MIRACLE THAT CAN WORK FOR YOU!!!
To me it's all quite common. I see it every day. To others, it's a miracle. But the miracle is not mine. I do not claim my methods heal—no physician can claim that. The body itself does the healing. All you do is let it take over . . . the way I show you!
As with all methods of self-treatment, if the guidance suggested in Dr. Morrison's new book does not bring you the relief you desire after a reasonable period of time, we suggest that you then consult your doctor.

Yes, I say that better nerve supply—the simple techniques of easily, safely, painlessly unblocking pinched nerves all over your body—is the Gold Key to getting rid of lumbago and sciatica, sacroiliac and backaches, curvatures, disc problems and swaybacks (see page 49) . . .
to revitalizing the digestive system in as little as 20 short days, and therefore keeping waste products from breaking out in ugly skin problems, or agonizing, waste-caused arthritis (see page 79 on) . . . to instantly treat even such conditions as tortuous trifacial neuralgia, loss of hearing, facial rash, drooping eyelids, eye and cheek tics, and especially headaches of almost any kind, including migraines not amenable to any other treatment!

But Freeing Blocked Nerves Is Only The First Great Step To Rejuvenating Your Health! There Are 4 More— All Just As Easy—All Just As Powerful—All Making The Most At Last OF YOUR BODY'S NATURAL HEALING POWERS!

They include such ridiculously simple "wonder-workers" as pulling the poisons out of your blood stream . . . using natural food-medicines to duplicate the effects of dangerous drugs, without the side effects of these drugs, and therefore conquer many painful ailments, simply by enjoying your meals . . . even a special way to walk, for a few minutes a day, that reverses at last the gravitational down-pull that, right now, is making you old years before your time!

Using these simple, natural, mechanical ways to treat illness—without cost, without drugs, and without doctors—I have produced the following immediate results! And so can you!

Permit slipped disc to work its way back into place, naturally, without pain!

Provide remarkable help for fuzzy hearing—simply by lying in an ingenious way on your own bed!

Correct visual defects—such as astigmatism and myopia—so much that your glasses may actually become too much for you!

A surprisingly simple technique for ridding yourself of sinus pain!
An ingenious little way to strengthen throat muscles, so they have the power and resistance from that moment on to ward off sore throats!

How to cope successfully with emphysema! Strengthen the muscles of breathing! Improve the lungs remaining capacity for breathing!

How To Increase Your Body's Oxygenating Capacity! Burn Up Toxins In The System! Affect All Sub-Oxydation Conditions—Such As Asthma, Hay Fever, Bronchial Congestion, And Wheezing!

Why asthma is easy to help—once you know these facts! Several simple rules must be followed, then you are free of enslavement to adrenalin and other bronchial antispasmodics and drugs!

(I remember vividly one patient heaving a huge sigh of relief, as she got rid of breath that was trapped and couldn't get out before! Then, only moments later, I made her breathe as easily as a baby! See page 167 for step-by-step details.)

How to de-compress the "intervertebral discs" of your back, and avoid getting shorter as you get older!

How to let one quarter-hour of complete rest—my way—equal several hours of delicious sleep as far as the energy it gives you!

Why I have never yet seen a skin ailment in a person with a free and uninterrupted nerve supply to all his digestive organs. And how you can treat your skin through your nerves—this easy way.

How To Regain The Full Potential Of Your Liver, Kidneys, Pancreas And Gall Bladder—For That "Totally Alive" Feeling!

Yes, we now know how to correct most, if not all liver and kidney and gall bladder ailments. And how to do it naturally—not with expensive doctoring methods, but with sensible and effective adjustments that you can apply at home!

In fact, we even have ways to avoid surgery in most cases of common bile duct congestion and even outright obstruction! See page 92 for full details!

How an ordinary, common, inexpensive food—eaten in the correct way—is often enough to eliminate the need for insulin in my diabetic patients!

How the sun can increase your sexual vigor! How to soften a hardened prostate gland at home, in minutes, without even touching it! Or, if it is inflamed and very enlarged, how to reduce it in just 15 minutes to a size where urination is easy again!

How to swiftly restore youthful vigor to your legs and feet, by overcoming varicose veins, flat feet, painful sciatica, and similar ills! (For example, rebuild fallen arches—all by yourself!)

How to relieve painful knees . . . re-shape ugly legs . . . eat your way out of low back pain!

How an ordinary ice cube shuts off hiccup attacks, instantly!

How to control leaking bladder . . . all by yourself! Handle insomnia
... all by yourself, without drugs! De-congest your sinus . . . all by yourself!

How to find out if you are "leaking" energy, needlessly! And shut off that leak . . . all by yourself!

How to help sagging upper-arm flesh . . . pull in a fallen stomach or protruding abdomen, naturally . . . feel a delightful pickup of a prolapsed

BING CROSBY

"I'm not very good at small talk"

Is Bing Crosby really a loner? Bing answers: "My conception of a loner is a fellow who's a recluse. I associate with everybody. Always have. Of course, I like to be alone once in a while. You think better when you're alone; you can't think when you're talking. I can go any place alone—entertain myself. I don't have to have people, but I enjoy company when there's something to do, something to say. I don't like small talk. I'm not very good at it. I do have a failing that I'm quite aware of—I don't seem to be able to do anything about it, either! If someone's talking to me and after a while it becomes uninteresting and dull, I sometimes get a glazed look on my face, and my thoughts turn elsewhere. I am probably trying to think how I can improve my golf swing or whether I'll go to the races that day or something of that nature. Also, I'm not a very effusive person. I'm not very demonstrative. My mother was that way. I may think a lot of a person, but I seldom tell them so. I'll tell them about their ability; whether I think they're good performers; whether I like the song they sang or the act they did. But I've never told a friend 'I love you' or 'I like you.' What it all boils down to is that I'm very undemonstrative, and that problem has given rise to the belief that I'm a loner and that I live behind an 'ice curtain.'" From "Bing," by Charles Thompson (McKay, $8.95).

ACTRESS SHIRLEY STOLER RELAXING ON AND OFF CAMERA
Fighting the typecasting battle

A few words from a classic "heavy": Shirley Stoler, who plays the 250-pound, cigar-puffing concentration camp commandant in Lina Wertmuller's much-acclaimed film, "Seven Beauties," feels that she's discriminated against because of her weight. Stoler talking: "Most actresses are unemployed much of the time. But I've got one problem that most actresses don't—I'm not a great beauty, and my size works against me. I get tired of playing the heavy, the powerhouse. In Europe, you don't have to look like a goddess to play Medea, but in America, everybody's typecast. It's a shame

because that's part of the challenge of being an actor—trying a diversity of roles." So what keeps Shirley in the movie business? "When I was a child, I wrote a poem, the last line of which read, 'I wish my arms were long enough to encompass the whole world.' From the time I can remember, I have been in search of adventure. I have loved people to the point of obsession, and there has been a feverish excitement running through my system. That's true of all actors. We are the greatest fighters, the greatest believers and the most incurable romantics."

I call him. He sleeps in a wooden bed that my father made for him. At night we leave the kitchen window open so he can have a run outdoors. He's pretty domesticated. He even drinks tea. One of his favorite spots is my head. I don't mind, but my mother isn't too keen about it because she says that eventually Frankie will turn nasty like all other squirrels. But I don't think so. Sometimes he runs off—maybe just to prove to himself that he's still a wild animal. But he always comes back."

He's a tea drinker

Bringing up Frankie, the gray squirrel who entered the Frankland home as a baby some months ago trying to escape a neighborhood cat, has been a wonderful experience for 12-year-old Linda Frankland, a British lass, who says, "He must be exceptional among squirrels, for he's perfectly house-trained, and he always comes when

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

COLD STORAGE

Our house is as neat as most houses—
No neater, but just as neat.
It's about as well-kept and tidy
As any you're likely to meet.

That is, till one door you open
And gaze on a scandalous scene.
Have you guessed what you're looking into?
Our refrigerator, I mean.

I know, for I've searched for some item
And pawed, ever more agitated, Till what has been cold is warmish
And I am refrigerated.

MERIT!

'Enriched Flavor' process prompts unprecedented response to taste of new low tar MERIT.

Smokers are talking about a new kind of cigarette.

It's MERIT. The remarkable new low tar cigarette made with the 'Enriched Flavor'™ process.

MERIT has only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Yet, taste tests proved that MERIT delivers as much—or more—flavor than cigarettes having up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke, you'll be interested in what people like yourself are writing to us about MERIT.

"Are you sure Merit is a low tar cigarette? It is the best I've ever smoked. It has all those good things other cigarettes promise."

HÄGAR The Horrible

by DIK BROWNE

I DON'T UNDERSTAND PEOPLE ANYMORE

I THINK WE SHOULD PAINT THE HOUSE

IT WASN'T THIS WAY YEARS AGO

BUT NOT WHITE... I'M SICK OF WHITE!

PEOPLE HELPED EACH OTHER

WHITE SHOWS EVERY SPECK OF DIRT

BUT ARE PEOPLE ANY HAPPIER TODAY?

MAYBE A PINK, BUT NOT TOO LOUD...

YOU KNOW WHAT THE TROUBLE IS? I'LL TELL YOU!

MAYBE A VIOLET OR A BEIGE OR EVEN A PUCE...
