Severe Quake Rocks China; Toll Unknown

By BARRY J. SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — A strong new earth tremor jolted northeastern China today after the world's most powerful quake in 12 years struck the region before dawn, causing heavy damage and probably many casualties in the coastal metropolis of Tientsin.

The Italian news agency ANSA said the new tremor was felt in the Chinese capital of Peking at 6:50 p.m. (6:50 a.m. EDT) and sent residents into the streets for safety. There was no immediate word of casualties or damage.

The U.S. Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., recorded the magnitude of the aftershock at 7.9 on the Richter scale, almost as strong as the overnight quake and capable of massive damage.

The original scale, recorded by the Denver center at 8.2 on the Richter scale, also shook Peking. At least several major buildings were reported damaged there.

Former Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, who was visiting Tientsin with his wife, said the Chinese told him after the first quake that there were fatalities in that city but that they did not know the precise number, the Italian news agency reported.

"It is something certainly very serious," Whitlam was quoted as saying. He said he saw buildings collapse and "fold down like accordions" in Tientsin, a city of four million people.

The Japan Broadcasting Corp. quoted the Japanese embassy in Peking as saying one Japanese employe was reported killed and six persons injured in the first quake at a Japanese manufacturing plant in Tangshan, an industrial area near Tientsin.

The Chinese did not issue any immediate official reports on casualties.

ANSA quoted Chinese authorities as saying the quake struck without warning. The Chinese recently had been able to predict some earthquakes.

The Chinese foreign ministry told the Australian embassy the epicenter of the first quake was about 90 miles east-southeast of Peking and 40 miles north of Tientsin, the capital of Hopeh province.

Among the badly damaged buildings in Peking were the Hsin Hsiao Hotel, the old wing of the Peking Hotel, buildings in the embassies quarter, a wing of the railway station and a large department store in the center of the city, Ansa reported.

Whitlam said many buildings in Tientsin, including his hotel, were heavily damaged. He said he saw Chinese searching through mounds of debris.

Greenville Buses To Be Rolling Thursday

By BARBARA MATHEWS

The results of almost 22 months of research, study and planning will materialize tomorrow morning as the Greenville Area Transit (GREAT) buses roll officially for the first time.

Free introductory bus service will be offered tomorrow, Friday and Saturday to acquaint the citizens of Greenville with the new system, according to city planner John Schofield.

"The free rides will introduce people to our system," said Schofield.

"Then, beginning Monday, August 2, a fare of 25 cents which will include a free transfer, will be charged."

According to Schofield, the three main transfer points will be in the central business district, where five buses will run per hour, Pitt Plaza, where three buses will run each hour, and Pitt Memorial Hospital, with two buses running per hour.

One free transfer will be given per trip if bus riders cannot reach their destinations on the bus they originally pick up.

The city purchased four 22-passenger Mercedes-Benz buses in June to serve three routes.

Route 1 will serve Meadowbrook, areas on the north side of the river, Tar River Estates, the central business district and neighborhoods adjacent to Elm Street, according to Schofield. From Elm Street, the bus will go to Pitt Plaza. The Route 1 bus will be the only one with a one-half hour frequency.

It will leave the downtown area at 7:12 a.m. and conclude its schedule the same point at 5:52 p.m. The main stop will be at Fourth Street and Evans Street.

The Route 2 bus will depart from downtown at 6:15 a.m. and finish at 6:02 p.m. at Third Street and Evans Street. It will run along Third Street by the Department of Social Services, down Fifth Street adjacent to ECU, then out to Pitt Plaza by way of Charles Street.

From Pitt Plaza, the second bus will go to King's department store and the Social Security office. It will go through Brentwood, South Greenville, Kearney Park, Glendale Courts and Lakewood Terrace. It will go to the West End Shopping Center by way of Arlington Boulevard and Memorial Drive, then will travel up Dickinson Avenue to the Higgs neighborhood.

From there, the Route 2 bus will go to Pitt Memorial Hospital by way of Village Drive, traveling through the Moyewood section. From the hospital, the bus will return downtown by way of Fleming Street and Roosevelt Street.

Route 3 will depart from Fourth Street and Evans Street at 6:20 a.m. and will complete its run there at 6:13 p.m. It will travel from the central business district to the hospital by way of W. Third Street and W. Fourth Street, going through the Moyewood section. From the hospital the bus will go out W. Sixth Street down Memorial Drive, Watauga Street and Myrtle Avenue.

The third bus will turn onto Fourteenth Street by the New Town housing project and go to Evans Street, Lakewood Pines, Nichols' department store, Lynndale and Pitt Plaza. From Pitt Plaza, the bus will travel back to the downtown area b,

'Indicators' Signal Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to anticipate economic trends registered its eighth consecutive monthly increase in June on the strength of a surge in business spending, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said its composite index of leading indicators advanced three-tenths of a per cent last month, compared with a seven-tenths of a per cent increase in May.

The June increase was the smallest in seven months. The May figure originally had been reported as a 1.4 per cent increase but was scaled down in the latest report.

The over-all signal from the indicator was for continued growth in economic activity, although perhaps at a relatively slower pace in the months ahead.

The index advance was particularly encouraging for economic prospects because most of the upward influence came from a 13.6 per cent jump in the volume of contracts and orders for plant and equipment placed by business.

The economy has been pulled out of the recession so far primarily by consumer spending, but most econoists consider a revival of basiness spending essential if the recovery is to continue and the economy is to generate additional jobs and higher incomes for Americans.

But the June increase was the most solid signal yet of increased spending plans by business.

A Bit Of Mars Is Scooped By Viking

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The robot arm of Viking 1 made its first mark in Martian soil today, scooping up a handful of the Red Planet to see if it holds any sign of life.

It would be several more hours before other data would be radioed back with proof that the dirt sample had actually been placed by the arm into Viking's automated biology lab. And it will be much longer — probably several weeks — before the experiments provide any answers about life on Mars.

As the picture appeared line by line on television monitors at the Viking control center, the small trench could be seen over the top of the lander.

"That looks like pretty good confirmation that the scooper scooped," said a Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman.

The landing of Viking on Mars a week ago was a milestone in itself, but the pouring of dirt into the miniature "rooms" of Viking's laboratory has even greater import. It marks the first time science has reached into another planet's crust to look for life.

Although no movie cameras were aboard Viking to record the historic sample digging, a film of a duplicate lander at Jet Propulsion Laboratory carrying out the process showed how it is done.

The telescoping arm snakes out of a gold-painted housing on the side of Viking. The arm is a tube about an inch and a half in diameter, tipped with a sharp-edged tool for digging.

Touching the red-varnished soil, the scoop plows beneath the surface, pressing with a 30-pound force if necessary. Quickly, a cover snaps shut over the handful-sized dirt sample.

With another whirring noise, the arm retracts and swivels to position the little shovel — called the collector head — over a silvery funnel leading to the biology lab inside Viking.

TICKET DELAY

On June 18, 1976, I requested eight box seat tickets for the Houston Oilers football game with the New York Giants in the Astrodome on Saturday evening, Aug. 14, 1976. I used the proper envelope requisition form and enclosed a certified N.C.N.B. bank cashier's check in payment as requested. Almost one month has passed, but still I have received no tickets, with the game one month away. E. W.

We wrote to the address you gave us, Ticket Agent, Houston Oilers, P.O. Box 1516, 6910 Fannin St., Houston, Texas 77001. We asked that the tickets be sent to you or, if they were not available, that you be informed of the problem.

You have called to say that you received the tickets in time — about two weeks before the game.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

ABOUT $800

Contributions to help the David Beacham family in their expenses related to their son, David Jr.'s congenital health problems have amounted to about $800, Parker's Chapel Church reports. $352 of this amount was raised by the Pitt County REACT Team No. 3313 during a coffee break July 5 and 6.

The family asked Hotline which appealed on their behalf June 29, to clarify one point — much of the expense of Junior's three operations during his 21 months of life have been borne by the Crippled Children's Fund of North Carolina and kind doctors. The funds raised through Parker's Chapel are being used to defray related expenses and to enable them to stay in Chapel Hill as much as possible during the time when Junior undergoes kidney surgery. He went for tests there July 12 and is due to go back Aug. 8. More tests will be made then, and the family understands he probably will undergo surgery during his August hospitalization.

The Beacham family expresses appreciation to every person who had helped out and expressed concerned for them and their son. They asked that special thanks be given to the people of Parker's Chapel Church and to the members of the Pitt County React Team.

N.C. Reaganites Ponder Tactics At Convention

RALEIGH (AP) — The possibility of witholding first ballot votes at the Republican National Convention to which President Ford is legally entitled has been discussed by some Ronald Reagan supporters on North Carolina's national convention delegation.

State law says the delegation must cast its first ballot votes based on the outcome of the state's presidential primary. This gave 28 votes for Reagan, 25 votes for Ford and one uncommitted.

However interviews with some Reagan backers indicate several possibilities of circumventing the law are being considered as a last ditch effort to stave off a Ford victory or set the stage for a second ballot.

There are 51 Reagan backers among the 54 members of the Tar Heel delegation.

"How can you break a North Carolina law in Missouri?" asked Malcolm J. Howard, a Greenville attorney and first district delegate.

Ford backers, meanwhile, are studying the North Carolina election laws, hoping to counteract any convention maneuver Reagan supporters might make in an effort to deny Ford any or all of the 25 votes.

"We have searched the law," said Jack S. Childs, press secretary to Gov. Jim Holshouser, Ford's Southern campaign chairman.

A number of delegates interviewed said the possibilities being discussed was whether the Reagan loyalists might simply withhold their votes on the first ballot or cast their ballots for Reagan.

The more likely option, they said, would be for the North Carolina delegation to abstain on the first ballot. The strategy would be designed to prevent any candidate from getting the 1,130 delegates votes needed for nomination on the first ballot, forcing the convention to a second ballot. North Carolina delegates are legally free to vote their preferences after the first ballot, and 51 of the 54 delegates prefer Reagan.

Sharp N.C. Impact From Natural Gas Boost

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The higher prices for natural gas ordered Tuesday will mean a rate increase of $15 to $22.50 year for a typical home in North Carolina using the fuel for heat and hot water. A customer now paying an average of $18.50 a month would pay about $20.

It also may mean additional gas to help ease a severe shortage for the state this winter.

Raymond J. Nery, gas specialist for the state Utilities commission, made the estimate of the affect on residential consumers. They would pay 5 to 7½ per cent more. The present average bill is about $300 a year.

The Federal Power Commission more than doubled the federally regulated wellhead price of gas from new wells to $1.01 and .42 per 1,000 cubic feet from 52 cents. Industry officials said the higher prices would produce long-term benefits by encouraging more exploraton and drilling.

"This is the best news in five years," said Forrest Collier, a spokesman for the Piedmont Natural Gas Co. of Charlotte. "It means we now have a fighting chance to get some gas that we couldn't touch with a 10-foot pole." North Carolina has been short on natural gas since 1971.

Henry Stewart, communications director for Piedmont, said the new ruling changes everything. He earlier had forecast a shortage this winter that would interrupt service to at least 170 large commercial and small industrial customers who had never before had their supply interupted.

Stewart said Piedmont officials will talk to executives of Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Inc. (Transco), the sole natural gas supplier for North Carolina, to learn how much more gas may be available.

He said the higher prices will encourage producers to sell increased amounts to Transco for use outside producing states.

Piedmont serves a 14-county area in North Carolina and a portion of South Carolina. Public Service Co. of North Carolina, based in Gastonia, and North Carolina Natural Gas Co. of Fayetteville, provide service for North Rarolina customers.

Jack Knox, vice president for consumer affairs with Public Service Co., said increases to consumers would be gradual. "Contracts (with producers) are normally over 20 years, and increases would come as they expire and new contracts are made at the higher price," Knox said.

Frank Barragan Jr., president of North Carolina Natural Gas, said he expected the ruling will make producers more active in drilling. Barragan said he could not tell immediaty whether supplies would be more plentiful in North Carolina this winter.

Gen. John J. Tolson, chairman of the governor's energy panel in Raleigh, said the price increase was more than he had expected. He predicted it will cause industries capable of using other fuels to make the change.

'Good Job' At ECU: New UNC Board Chairman

by STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

LILLINGTON — William A. Johnson, the new chairman of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors said Tuesday that in his view, development of the medical school at East Carolina University is "moving along at a very good pace now. Hopefully we'll be ready to admit the first class in September 1977."

During an interview, the Lillington attorney said, "I don't think many people realize the magnitude of the undertaking initially," and emphasized, "the people at East Carolina have done a good job in preparing for admission of the first class."

Johnson continued, "I have no doubt in my own mind. . .and it's going to take time. . .it will be a first class institution. We can't afford to let it be anything else."

Talking of the progress of the university system under the Board of Governors (Johnson, 55, has served on the board since it's reorganization in 1972 and a member of its predecessor since 1962) the UNC-Chapel Hill law school graduate said "the development of the five-year plan. . .the study of the five historically black institutions," and "getting the East Carolina University School of Medicine issue finally resolved and the development of a first class institution there," are major accomplishments of the board.

"I think we have developed an approach to the use of the state's resources to enable us to get greater value for our dollars," he added.

"If you've read our long-range plan, you know what we're shooting toward," Johnson noted. "I suppose our major long range goal is to improve the quality of education available to our young people at all of these institutions, and to increase the utilization of resources available for educational purposes."

The chairman said, "We need to strengthen all of our institutions, and at the same time. . .be certain we don't dilute or impair any programs of excellence already existing at any of the institutions."

One of the major problems facing the board, Johnson said, is how to "increase the sensitivity among the public and also the legislators on the need to strengthen the total system of higher education. I think that's more nearly a goal than a problem. But I

Miss Thomas, Mr. Hansen Speak Vows On Sunday

GRIFTON — The First Baptist Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Dawn Marie Thomas and Richard Allen Hansen. The Rev. William S. Brown performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Linwood E. Thomas of Grifton. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William T. Holland of Annandale, Va., and the late Mr. Ralph Arthur Hansen.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal gown of polyester organza and pearl trimmed Venise lace fashioned with a V-neckline and natural waistline. The bodice was overlaid with sculptured lace flower designs and the lace motifs were repeated on the long bishop sleeves, A-line skirt, hemline and around the built-in chapel length train. A rippled bow and streamers were centered in the back of the waistline.

Her Juliet cap of matching lace was attached to a lace bordered mantilla of silk illusion and flowed into a chapel length train. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and baby's breath centered with a white georgiana orchid with pink sweethearts, showered with bridal ribbons.

The matron of honor was Debra Houston of Grifton. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Stancill and Mrs. Jackie Edwards, both of Ayden, and Miss Sandra Register of Grifton. The attendants wore floor length gowns of mixed pastel floral prints in orchid, yellow and orange on a background of pink. The original style was accentuated with a cape of matching fabric which featured a ring collar and flowed to the waist. They each carried one long-stemmed pink rose.

The flower girl was Missy Rose, who wore a green dress with a matching ribbon in her hair. She carried a white basket with pink and white daisies with green ribbon.

The ring bearer was Danny Bleezeffer of Grifton. The best man was Phil Houston of Grifton. Serving as ushers were Lin Thomas of Grifton, brother of the bride, Ron Ellison of Raleigh, and Julian Vanwright of Myrtle Beach, S.C..

MRS. RICHARD ALLEN HANSEN

A program of wedding music was presented by Tony Carraway of Grifton, organist, and Mrs. Bennie Bass of Wilmington, vocalist, who sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "Wedding Prayer."

Terry Baker of Grifton presided at the register.

After a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla., the couple will reside in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and Electronic Computer Programming Institute, Raleigh. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Electronic Computer Programming Institute and and is employed as the food and beverage director, Sheraton Inn, Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mrs. C. W. Leonard.

Mrs. Billy Sutton, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mrs. Frank Rollins, aunt of the bride, poured punch. The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of flowers and candles.

After the rehearsal, a dinner was give in honor of the bridal couple and members of the wedding party by the bridegroom's parents in Kinston.

Mrs. Floyd Harris of Grifton entertained at a luncheon for the bride and bridesmaids Saturday.

An informal party was given for the bride last week in Goldsboro by Mrs. Doris Farmer, cousin of the bride.

Austrian Children Portray The United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine-year-old Claudia Schmid sees the United States as a series of multi-eyed skyscrapers. Christa Ganzara, 14, sees a busload of camera-laden sightseers busily photographing a modern-day Indian village.

Claudia and Christa are both Austrian schoolchildren. Their views of life in America are part of an exhibition of 76 paintings and drawings created by Austrian schoolchildren as a bicentennial gift to the United States.

Titled "How Do I See the U.S.A.?", the exhibition is being shown this summer and fall during a national tour after being officially presented to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in Washington.

Some of the portrayals are slightly offbeat. Katja Unterluggauer, 9, depicts a broadly smiling Statue of Liberty with Orphan Annie eyes, one arm jauntily poised on her hip, while the other holds aloft a torch filled with colorful streamers.

Thirteen-year-old Dieter Wimmer's entry shows Chicago at sunset — with a structure bearing a strange resemblance to the Golden Gate Bridge in the foreground. Horst Schappelwein, 13, chose America's colorful past as his subject. The painting is called "Abandoned Gold Digger's Town."

Big cities in general were a favorite subject for the paintings. They show the city at night, from the air, as a series of car-choked streets, with people-filled buildings. Two of the more unusual entries dealt with New York. One shows the city burning; the other depicts skyscrapers with eyes instead of windows.

Paintings touch on many subjects. Ida Schwinger, 15, called her entry, "Dreamland America." It shows both city and country and a view of Las Vegas with the American flag in the background.

Thirteen-year-old Joseph Moosmueller's "Inhabitant of Industrial Pittsburgh" shows a green-faced woman who looks as if she needs a long vacation in the country.

CHILD'S EYE VIEW—Statue of Liberty as seen by one of the Austrian schoolchildren portraying their view of the U.S.A.

The exhibit was initiated to reflect Austria's gratitude for American help received since the end of World War II and is being sponsored by SOS-Kinderdorf International, a worldwide childcare organization, with the cooperation of the Austrian federal government.

More than 5,000 paintings were produced by Austrian elementary and high school students. The best 76 were selected by Friedensreich Hundertwasser, a noted Viennese painter, and will be shown in a series of exhibits throughout the year in Washington, Chicago, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and New York.

Too Many Boys, Not Enough Honesty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two very pretty and popular daughters. One is 16 and the other is 17.

The older girl is stringing three boys along at once. She wears a friendship ring from one, an I.D. bracelet from another and an Indian necklace from a third. None of these boys knows about the others, and when one calls here and she is out with another, I have to lie to keep from hurting the caller's feelings.

The younger one is going with two boys. Each thinks he is the only one. One is so jealous he has threatened to do bodily harm to any other boy who comes near "his" girl. She is getting tired of them both, but doesn't want to hurt either one, so I have to lie to them when they call.

I have always taught the girls to be kind and avoid hurting feelings, so I suppose it's my fault that they're involved with so many boys.

How does a mother get uninvolved? If I were to tell these boys the truth, they'd be terribly hurt.

MOM IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MOM: It's commendable to teach your daughters to be kind, but you should also teach them to be honest. Stringing boys along is dishonest. You're setting a bad example. Start telling it like it is, Mom, and encourage your daughters to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: WANTS EQUALITY maintains, "It's still a man's world," and she lists some reasons why, but she forgot to mention one.

If a man is outside on the sidewalk (just walking by) and he happens to see a woman undressing through a window, he's a peeping Tom.

However, if a woman sees a man undressing through a window, HE'S an exhibitionist!

J.E.E.

DEAR J.E.E.: Not exactly: If a person happens to come upon a view of someone undressing, and he or she hangs around to enjoy it, that person is a voyeur.

DEAR ABBY: With your wide audience, perhaps you can appeal to towns and cities to rechristen the names of some of their streets.

My cousin had a bad fire in his house, and the firemen went to three addresses before they got to his. In his town, which already has a Lake Street, Lake Court, Lake Avenue and Lake Terrace, they are building an old age complex to be called "Lake Side."

In another town near here, the Rescue Squad had a most difficult time finding the right place because there are four streets with similar names that are constantly mistaken for one another.

I hope you think this is worth printing.

MRS. M.C.: LYNN, MASS.

DEAR MRS. C.: It is, and I did.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DRIVEN UP A WALL" IN BROOKVILLE, PA.: How much clutter can a man make with "a lot of little notes he has written to himself"? Sitting in an uncluttered living room while your husband is cluttering up someone else's living room with his little notes will not bring you the peace of mind you seek. Get off his back, dear.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Forthcoming Activities Are Planned

Forthcoming activities were discussed at the meeting of the Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held Thursday night at the Post Home.

It was announced that Buddy Poppy days will be Oct. 29-30 with Mrs. Alice Moseley as chairman. A yard sale will be held Saturday, Sept. 11, at the Post Home on Mumford Road.

The auxiliary and post members will have an outdoor supper Thursday at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Carrie West, president, introduced Mrs. Sallie Beamen, president of the VFW Auxiliary, Farmville. Mrs. Loretta Willoughby was enrolled as a new member.

Mrs. West reported on the District II meeting held in Washington recently. She was presented 12 awards for the local auxiliary for having met all requirements in all state programs. Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Ruth Evans, Mrs. Merle Austin, Mrs. Doris Oakley, Mrs. Myrtle Meeks, Mrs. Marjorie Angstadt and Mrs. West.

Mrs. Rosa Lee Williams, Mrs. Elroy Highsmith, Mrs. Mildred Murrell and Mrs. Modaline Vincent served refreshments.

CREAMED TURNIP GREENS

Two 10-ounce packages frozen chopped turnip greens
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 egg yolks slightly beaten with ¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook turnip greens according to package directions but increase boiling time to about one hour if you want them really tender; drain. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and 1 cup milk; gradually stir in the egg-yolk mixture; stir constantly over low heat to allow to thicken slightly — do not boil. Stir in turnip greens, lemon juice and salt and pepper. Reheat without boiling. Makes 6 servings.

Bridge Winners Announced

Duplicate bridge winners Saturday at First Federal included:

North-South: Elizabeth Lewis and Nancy Pate, first; Lillian Horton and Sue Dudley, second; Pittman and Felton, third.

Other winners last week were: North-South: Mrs. J. S. Rhodes and Mrs. Roger Critcher, first; Etta Bloom and Jo Bynum, second; Mrs. Frank Moseley and Claude Goodman, third.

East-West: John Cotty and Neil Bellinger, first; Ann Forbes and Helen Harris, second; Jim Bell and Dave Proctor, third.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dean Sawyer honored Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Jollie on their 25th wedding anniversary at the home of the couple Sunday afternoon.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Jollie and invited into the den for the presentation of gifts.

Mrs. Gail Morgan invited guests to the refreshment table. The tables were accented with silver and decorated with an arrangement of yellow, orange and white summer flowers. The wedding cake was served by Mrs. Sawyer and Mrs. Morgan poured punch.

Throughout the house were wedding bell decorations and arrangements of flowers.

Guests were invited to sign the register before leaving.

Challenging Natural Gas Price Action

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission's new $1.5-billion increase in the nation's gas bill faces immediate challenge from consumer advocates, who call it too high and too hasty.

Energy Action, a consumer organization, planned to ask the commission and the U.S. Court of Appeals not only for reconsideration of the rate hike, but also to stop it from taking effect in the meantime.

The FPC announced on Tuesday it was increasing the nationwide ceiling prices for natural gas in sales by producers to interstate pipelines. The impact of the rate hike on natural gas consumers was expected to vary according to weather, distance from gas-producing areas and other factors. However, the average annual residential gas bill would go up 6 per cent or $15.60, according to some estimates.

Following the FPC decision, Energy Action said it plans to appeal and said other consumer groups and some state regulators may join it.

Already in their favor is the dissenting opinion of FPC commissioner Don S. Smith who said the new ceiling price schedule is too high and is not justified by the cost of producing gas.

Tom Girard, a spokesman for Energy Action, said his group also objected to the FCC procedure in reaching the decision and to the absence of any requirement that gas producers reinvest the proceeds of the higher rates to search for new gas supplies. The need for more incentives to develop new gas resources is one of the main justifications for the increase.

The FPC action was praised by the American Gas Association, a trade organization of gas pipeline companies, which said "the new higher prices will help some and, we hope, substantially."

But the AGA said it is still necessary to remove federal regulation entirely from interstate natural gas sales.

The FPC does not regulate gas prices at the consumer level, in general, but regulates the prices paid by interstate pipelines to the gas producers for gas to be sold outside the state of origin.

Gas sold inside the state where it is produced, "intrastate gas," is not subject to FPC regulation.

While the FPC has maintained a ceiling price of 52 cents per thousand cubic feet on gas brought into the interstate market since Jan. 1, 1973, unregulated gas sold on the intrastate market recently has commanded an average of $.55 per thousand cubic feet.

One effect of this price difference has been to encourage intrastate gas sales, which might deprive interstate pipelines, distant states and their gas consumers of needed supplies.

To make interstate pipelines more competitive for available gas supplies, the FPC authorized a new national ceiling price of $1.42 per thousand cubic feet in Tuesday's decision, with additional increases of one cent every three months.

This maximum applies to the newest gas supplies, brought into the market after Dec. 31, 1974. Gas supplies dating to 1973 and 1974 were assigned a new price ceiling of $1.01 per thousand cubic feet.

May Need Permit

By MICHAEL E. REGANS
Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent

The Federal Water Pollution Control Act prohibits any person from discharging pollutants into a water way from a point source unless his discharge is authorized by a permit issued either by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or by an approved State agency. The N.C. Division of Natural and Economic Resources, Division of Environmental Management has the responsibility to issue permits for concentrated animal feeding operations specified in this law by September 1.

A permit is required for operation with over 1,000 animal units and a discharge and operations with 300 to 1,000 animals units which have a stream, accessible to animals running through the feedlot, or a man-made conveyance, such as a ditch or pipe to allow discharge.

A permit will not be required for operations with less than 300 animal units. The number of animal units is determined by multiplying the number of animals in an operation by a multiplier for each species of livestock. As examples, 200 dairy cattle equal 260 animal units while 500 swine over 55 pounds in weight equal 200 animal units. A discharge includes overflow from a lagoon and runoff from rain on an area with unsustained vegetation.

For further information or assistance in applying for a permit, contact Mike Regans at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196 or 203 W. Third Street, Greenville.

Establish A New ECU Scholarship

A scholarship has been established at East Carolina University by Carroll H., Donald Y., and Turner C. Leggett Jr. The grant was established in honor of the parents of these three men, Ruby Harden Leggett and the late Turner C. Leggett Sr.

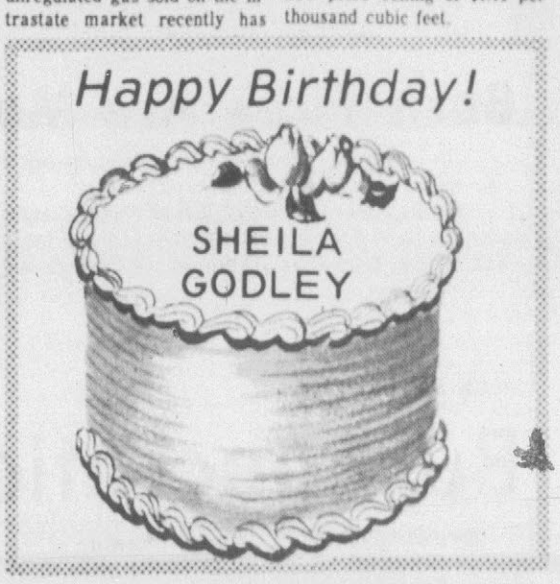

A sum of $450 will be awarded annually to an undergraduate student. Recipients will be selected by the ECU Scholarships, Fellowships, and Financial Aid Committee with the following priorities as guidelines: (1) need; (2) citizenship; (3) scholarship.

Mr. and Mrs. Leggett were natives of Bertie County, and Mrs. Leggett, having remarried, is now Ruby Harden Lanier and resides in Buies Creek.

Her son, Carroll, is an administrative aide to U.S. Senator Robert B. Morgan and resides in Alexandria, Va.

Don is Director of Alumni Affairs & Foundations at East Carolina University and resides in Greenville.

Turner is in the fuel oil business—being associated with Blackstone Fuel and Supply Company in Blackstone, Va. He is also a resident of Blackstone.

Top Honors For Recruiter Team

RALEIGH . . . Sgt. lc Russ Cappello, Sgt. lc Raymond McCombs, Sgt. lc Marlon Haddock, and Sgt. Phil Murphy, Army recruiters stationed in Greenville, are members of a team of recruiters that has recently earned the distinction of being named the top recruiting team in the southeastern United States for the period July, 1975 through June, 1976.

The team that comprises the U.S. Army Raleigh District Recruiting Command, under which the Greenville Recruiting Station comes, competed with 11 other recruiting commands assigned to the Southeastern Regional Recruiting Command, headquartered in College Park, Georgia, in vying for the top award. Competition was based upon the number of new Active Duty plus Delayed Entry Program enlistments. For July, 1975 through June, 1976, the Raleigh District Recruiting Command had 3,554 new accessions, averaging 296.2 per month with each recruiter averaging 81 for the year.

The Raleigh District Recruiting Command has recruiting responsibility for North Carolina's 53 eastern counties. The recruiting stations in the counties are divided into three areas: Fayetteville, Raleigh, and Greenville. Among the awards presented annually is that for the most outstanding area of the three. For the period July, 1975 through June, 1976, the recipient was the Greenville Area, comprised of recruiting stations in Elizabeth City, Goldsboro, Greenville, Jacksonville, Kinston, New Bern and Roanoke Rapids.

Cappello, McCombs, Haddock and Murphy were among the recruiters in this area who were cited for their outstanding achievements and high standard of excellence and for making one of the most significant contributions to the Army's recruiting effort in eastern North Carolina.

Deny Age Cause Of 4 Firings

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Durham Herald Co. says it fired four circulation department employes for good cause, not because of their age.

A Daring Bid For Delegates

Ronald Reagan took the surprising move of naming U. S. Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania as his vice presidential choice if Reagan, himself, is nominated.

The announcement was made even as Reagan and President Ford were still engaged in a neck-and-neck race for the Republican presidential nomination.

Schweiker is regarded as a GOP liberal, in sharp contrast to Reagan's conservative image and the strong conservative support of the former California governor.

As could be expected the Schweiker choice was condemned and praised by various factions of the Republican party. Schweiker, himself said, "This bold, unprecedented action dramatizes the leadership, the courage and the openness which Gov. Reagan will bring to the White House."

Schweiker's liberism was hard for conservative Republicans to swallow, but Reagan said Schweiker's beliefs were "compatible with my own."

It has to be obvious, of course, that Reagan is making a play for delegates votes in his virtually deadlocked race with President Ford for the GOP presidential nomination. He must hope to pick up some support in the Pennsylvania delegation by choosing that state's senator as his running mate. It would also gain him some other votes among northeastern Republican liberals. The gamble is whether it will cost him votes in strongly conservative delegations like Mississippi's. The odds are that it won't since the conservatives really have no other place to turn.

Only time will tell whether Reagan's choice of Sen. Schweiker as his running mate is a brilliant political move or disaster for his campaign. Announcing his vice presidential choice early was a bold move, though, which added further interest to the already lively Republican presidential campaign.

"What? Debate you at the convention, Ronnie?"

Barn Fires Are Major Loss To Farmers

Pitt Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner reported eight tobacco barn fires during the weekend and there had been 27 barn fires for the season through last weekend. All but two of the fires were the old type barns with the others being bulk barns.

Farmers should watch their barns as closely as possible to avoid fires. Particularly is this necessary for the older type barns.

Bureaucratic Games Hurt

By BILL NOBLITT (Second Of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — At a recent session of the Governor's Law and Order Commission, the funnel through which federal funds are poured into state and local programs, the bureaucratic games being played with juvenile treatment programs become obvious.

There were several displays of wrangling over money and control involving the state Department of Corrections (which runs the prisons); the Department of Human Resources (which runs the juvenile training schools); and the Administrative Office of the Court (where the judges operate who sentence youngsters, and which operates probation and after-care programs once a child is released from either training school or community treatment facilities).

At one point, a local project was shot down because someone observed that federal law prohibits sexual discrimination. The project was a group home for girls.

Wrangling

At another pont, an experimental camping program for work and recreation to help children upon release from training school was rejected because the courts are supposed to handle the children after release from the programs.

Some communities have managed to come up with good local programs, both residential and nonresidential — often with little or no aid from the state. But federal, local, or private funding sources are not permanent, and the local people are turning to the state, only to become unhappy and discouraged over what the state is offering, says Mason P. Thomas, Jr., a member of the faculty at the Institute of Government.

The complexities of the situation are fairly well summed up in this situation: The Department of Human Resources has $300,000 in federal money for community-based programs for committed delinquents, for use in finding community programs for children inappropriately committed by the courts and for non-criminial children sent to training school. But the money cannot be used to divert juvenile offenders from the courts to start with; or for delinquency prevention activities.

Three state agencies (Justice, Human Resources, and Courts) have $900,000 in federal money for training juvenile justice personnel — but it must be done on an inter-agency basis, and spent in one year. Thomas thinks so much money and the short time will result in a gap between intent and capacity to implement.

Meanwhile, a survey of District Court judges who handle juvenile cases shows up the weaknesses in a state law which was adopted in 1975 to encourage specialization and training in that field.

Judges Respond

Of 40 judges who responded to a questionnaire from the N. C. Division of Mental Health, more than half had never visited a facility to which they were committing children who came before them.

Ten had visited a training school within one year; seven within the past seven years; one more than five years previously; and 19 had never been to one of the institutions.

More said they had visited mental hospitals: 14 within the past year; six within five years; and eight — never.

That same survey found that many juvenile offenders are in state mental hospitals, while many emotionally disburbed children are in training schools.

The judges did not express a great deal of confidence in either institution: Do training schools provide the services the children need: Seven judges believe they do; 17 said the schools do not; nine said they don't know; and four didn't answer that question.

As for mental hospitals, the judges put it this way: 13 felt the institutions provide the proper services; eight said they did not feel the services were proper; and 16 either didn't know or were uncertain.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Connally Role Is Advanced

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When Edwin M. (Buz) Schwenk, the conservative Republican leader of New York's Suffolk County, slipped into the Oval Office July 13 with a careful 20-minute sales pitch for John B. Connally as Mr. Ford's running mate, the President's response cut to the heart of the Connally problem.

"How would they react to him in the North?" Mr. Ford asked.

Schwenk's reply: Connally was clearly the best possible vice-presidential candidate, North or South, from the standpoint of "bringing the Carter-Mondale ticket down to ground level" in a hard-hitting campaign. There was no disagreement from the President, and none from Rogers Morton, Ford campaign chairman, or Richard Cheney, White House staff chief, both of whom sat in on the Ford-Schwenk conversation.

Indeed, a consensus is developing among highly placed powers in the Republican party that Mr. Ford has now positioned Connally at or very near the top of his list of preferred running mates — if, as seems likely, he wins out over Ronald Reagan and Reagan does not want the second spot for himself.

Yet, except for an occasional maverick like Buz Schwenk, the Northeast and northern Midwest contain few visible Connally vice-presidential advocates, which was why Mr. Ford asked Schwenk his question about reaction in the North. Just five days later, for example, Market Opinion Research of Detroit (whose part-owner, Robert Teetor, is chief pollster of the President Ford Committee) showed Connally's apparent vulnerability in the President's home state of Michigan.

In a survey published by the Detroit News July 18, Market Opinion Research sample 700 Michigan voters just before the Democratic convention and came up with these stunning findings: alone against Jimmy Carter, Mr. Ford squeaked out a close 3-point margin. With Reagan as his running mate against Jimmy Carter and an unnamed running mate, Ford-Reagan lost by 42 to 39 per cent (balance undecided).

But when matched with Connally against Carter-Blank, the Ford-Connally ticket lost by 44 to 34 per cent (22 per cent undecided) — powerful reinforcement for the President's concern over Connally's impact in the North.

Several compelling factors, however, are softening this impact in the White House and maintaining Connally's leverage as one of Mr. Ford's top prospects for running mate.

In the first place, it is Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's opinion, specifically conveyed in private talks to the President, that New York state would be well beyond Mr. Ford's reach in November even if Rockefeller himself were on the ticket. What is true for New York is probably also true for most of the Northeast and northern Midwest, with the possible exception of the President's home state of Michigan.

That means the South, Southwest and West offer Mr. Ford his best and perhaps only opportunity, and it is in the South at Connally's star shines brightest. Pollster Louis Harris, for example, is finding Connally's popularlity far broader and deeper in the South than any other potential Ford running mate, including Reagan.

THE NATURE OF CRISIS

The Chinese character for the word "crisis" is made up of two other characters which mean "danger" and "opportunity."

We can learn much by studing the derivation of these words. Crisis, said the ancient Chinese, is a situation fraught on the one hand with danger and on the other with opportunity. There is never a crisis, no matter how mild it may be, which does not involve a certain jeopardy. No one of us ever faces a crisis in the home, in business matters, or in decisions about health, which does not involve some hazard.

But every crisis is also an opportunity. We come to a crossroads, and while there is danger that we may choose the wrong way, there is also opportunity to choose aright.

This opportunity should lead us to God. he has a provendential plan for everyone one of us, and that plan will lead through the crisis to a happier life on the other side.

Paper Once A Luxury

By Dr. H.G.JONES, Curator
North Carolina Collection
Written for Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Twentieth-century North Carolinians, inundated by oceans of paper in the form of laws, regulations, reports, government red tape, and junk mail, might occasionally look back upon the "good old days" when paper was an expensive luxury. During the American Revolution, for instance.

There really was a time when paper was scarce. In 1776, for example, Gen. Griffith Rutherford entreated the Council of Safety to rush him a quire of paper so that he could write his dispatches during his march against the Cherokees. Four years later printer James Davis complained that the cost of paper—a hundred dollars per ream—would prevent him from breaking even in the printing of the session laws.

The situation worsened. In 1781, Col. Robert Rowan wrote Governor Burke from Campbellton, "The scarcity of paper is such here that it was with difficulty I could procure even this scrap," and the governor himself begged an official to send him a ream of paper for which he would pay dearly in tobacco or money.

The next year the quartermaster general notified Burke, "I have not at this time one quire of paper nor the means of procuring it." Lt. Col. Hardee Murfree, however, discovered a portion of a ream of paper at Winton and promised to send it to Brigadier General Jethro Sumner so the officer could write his reports.

Why such a dire shortage of paper in North Carolina? Simply because prior to the Revolution no paper mill had apparently been built in the colony. Southerners had imported paper from England and from the northern colonies, but now, during war with Great Britain, both sources had been virtually cut off because of the interruption of water transportation.

As early as September, 1775, the Provincial Congress of North Carolina passed a resolution offering a 250-pound bounty to anyone who built a paper mill and manufactured thirty reams each of brown, white, and writing paper.

There apparently were no

Felt 'Round The World

To: Boris Onischenko
Soviet Fencer
Moscow, U.S.S.R. (or Siberia)

Dear Boris,

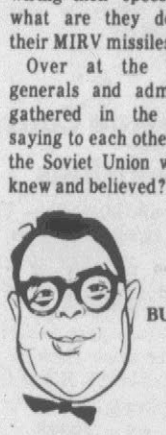

You can imagine how shocked I was to read in the newspapers last week that you were caught cheating in the fencing competition at the Olympics in Montreal last week.

How could you do it, Boris? How could you rig your epee electrically so you would be given credit for touching your opponent when you were actually stabbing thin air? What possessed you to throw away a gold medal and a promising career by wiring your sword on AC when the rules called for you to be on DC?

Your action has caused terrible anguish here in America because no one in his wildest dreams could ever imagine a Russian resorting to tricks to win an athletic competition. But the ramifications go far beyond sports. Boris, do you know what you've done by your action? You've sown seeds of distrust and despair.

There are some people in this country who feel that because of your sword, we can no longer trust the Soviets on SALT and disarmament. At this very moment, as I write to you, Henry Kissinger is sitting in his State Department office saying to himself, "If they're wiring their epees illegally, what are they doing with their MIRV missiles?"

Over at the Pentagon generals and admirals are gathered in the hallways saying to each other, "Is this the Soviet Union we always knew and believed?"

ART BUCHWALD

And on houseboats all over the Potomac, congressmen and senators are saying to their secretaries, "Honey, you and I are going to have to take another peek at detente."

Yes, Boris, when you plugged in your epee last week, you sent an electric shock felt round the world. Every country is asking itself, "How many Onischenkos are there in the Soviet Union waiting to fence with us with a phony sword?" In the United Nations, the Third World powers are asking, "Can we vote with a country that condones bad wiring up its athlete's sleeve?"

I know you must have an explanation for what you've done. They certainly didn't each you cheating at the Karl done. They certainly didn't teach you cheating at the Karl Marx Elementary School in Kiev. And God knows your Communist teachers never taught it at the First of May High School in Leningrad. And certainly they had an honor code at Engels Military Academy in

Ford Veto Record

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

President Ford has an interesting record in his veto battle with Congress, since he became President.

The enactment of the $3.9 billion public-works employment bill by Congress last Thursday marked the ninth time it has overriden a Ford veto. But Ford, who has vetoed 53 measures since taking office 23 months ago, has been sustained 15 times.

In the other cases, Congress had either already adjourned or its leadership had decided against trying to override.

While Ford was overriden on the jobs bill, he was sustained on a military construction bill last week. Both were important, and Congress would have been wise to have sustained his veto of the jobs bill.

Simple economics tells us that makework employment, financed by tax dollars, is not a sound policy. To begin with, it will not do what Congress claims it will: create real jobs and thereby reduce unemployment, thus aiding the economy.

Such jobs, artifically created, do not contribute to the overall gross national product. The late President Roosevelt tr[illegible] it during the Depression, yet unemployment in this country was almost as bad when he ran for his third term in 1940 as it was when he first took office.

War production for the allies was the only thing that reduced unemployment in the United States at that time.

Yet, the Democrats are using the employment gimmick as an old election-year trick. It sounds great, and who can be against full employment?

We agree with Ford who commented on the jobs bill: "Congress would rather create $4 billion worth of temporary, government-funded jobs than let those same dollars go to work in the private sector to produce real, rewarding, lasting jobs."

He branded the bill for what it was: "election-year pork barrel" legislation.

40 Years Ago Today

July 28, 1936

Pitt County residents sweltered in the heat, but the thermometer did not register the highest recording of the year today.

R. T. Clark, local weather bureau official, reported that the temperature yesterday was 98 degrees. Today, the mercury climbed to 99.5 degrees.

But according to Clark, the highest reading so far this year was taken on the last day of June, when the temperature rose to 103.

Reports to the state department today indicated that Americans who have been sheltered from Spain's civil strife in the embassy at Madrid still faced the ordeal of flight to the sea.

In a brief message, Eric Wendelin, third secretary at the embassy, said the Americans would be sent to Alicante or Valencia on Spain's eastern coast, presumably by train.

It Wasn't Executives' Money

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AL) — "What's overlooked in all this business about illegal corporate gifts and bribes," the man was saying, "is that the money handed out was the stockholders' money. It didn't belong to the executives."

He declined to be identified, but he is responsible, intelligent, hardworking and possessed of other attributes we tend to respect. And he is a stockholder.

He might even be safely called a typical small investor. He has a few thousand dollars to invest, generally for the long term. He doesn't ask much, just fair dividends and the prospect for growth, which he feels comes with good management.

When he spoke he was angry, bitter, disaffected, but he'll get over it — or will he? "Sometimes I wonder if we're not beingripped off by management," he said.

"They give the stockholders' money away and then when they get caught they charge us again for the lawyers to defend them. They offend my ethics, my sense of fairness, my politics, and then my finances. It's too much to accept."

The reference was to the management of Occidental Petroleum, whose chairman, Armand Hammer, was convicted of having made illegal payments of corporate funds to the 1972 presidential caopaign of Richard M. Nixon.

"They," he said of the company's management, "spent at least $850,000 of stockholders' money to defend themselves. First they give away the money illegally and then they follow it with more to hire lawyers."

Occidental, he conceded, has been profitable under the creative management of Hammer, even though the stock sells today for less than half its 1968 price. He thought that Lockheed's use of company assets was less forgiveable.

Lockheed, you might recall, sought and obtained a $250 million loan guarantee from the U.S. government in order to stay in business. Then came revelations of payoffs to influential foreigners.

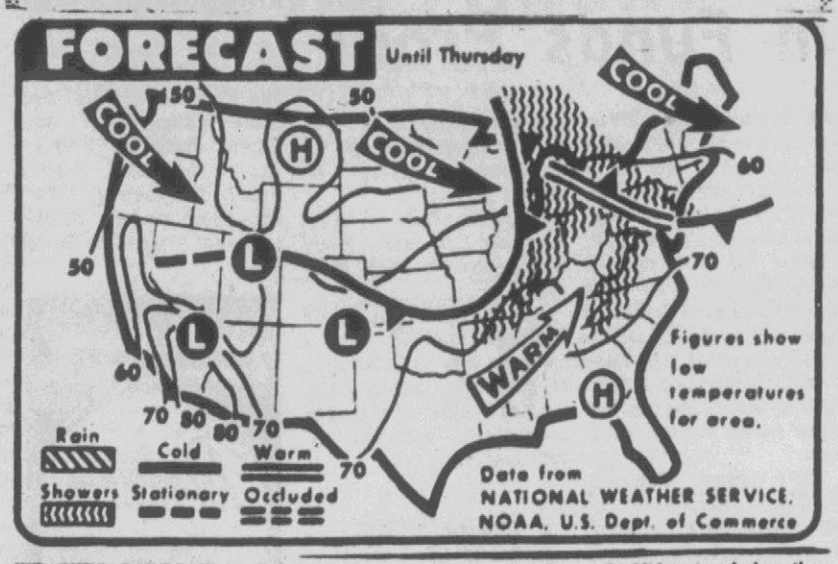

During the disclosures, Lockheed's chairman and chief executive, Donald J. Haughton, and its vice chairman and chief operating officer, Carl Kotchian, resigned. Regardless, they remain on the payroll, probably into the 190s.

According to papers filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the two officers each are to be paid $100,000 a year for five years, and $50,000 each for another five, as "senior advisers."

Said the typical investor: "Financial troubles, then bribery, and who gets penalyzed? The innocent shareholders, and who gets rewarded? The people who managed to get the company into the mess."

The Wall Street Journal, he noted, recently looked into similar consultancies and found they are aimed more at easing retirements or saving the face of the ousted, and that often little work is involved. "A ripoff," he said.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Somewhat cooler weather is due today for the northern border states but most of the country is expected to be warm. Showers are forecast from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Midwest and along the Appalachians to Pennsylvania and western. New York. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Scattered thundershowers fell today over North Carolina, but they were too light to relieve the water shortage in the central part of the state.

Highs were in the the 80s in the mountains and the upper 80s to low 90s elsewhere. It will be warm and humid through the weekend.

The combination of warm, moist air and an upper-level trough of low pressure set off the thundershowers, which also are expected Thursday.

Lows tonight will dip to around 70, except for some low and mid 60s in the mountains.

There is a continued chance of showers and thundershowers through the weekend, with little temperature change expected.

Scattered thundershowers broke out early Tuesday morning in the western portions of the state. They continued into early this morning in the southern coastal region. Only light amounts of rain were reported. Charlotte, New Bern and Cherry Point had around one-tenth of an inch in the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning. Around a quarter of an inch was reported at Jacksonville and Hickory.

High temperatures Tuesday were abnormal, with the western portion warmer than the east. Typical highs were 87 at Asheville and 92 at Greensboro. Cherry Point made it to only 82.

takers until late 1777 when John Holgan (later spelled Hogan) of Hillsborough petitioned the General Assembly for an extension of eight months in order that he might meet the qualifications for the bounty.

In the North Carolina Gazette, he advertised that his mill was ready to begin making paper for the state provided a sufficient quantity of rags could be purchased.

He requested "the favor of the Public, and more particularly the Mistresses of Families and the Ladies in general, whose more peculiar Province it is" to sell him their "Rags and scraps of Linen of all Sorts old Thread Stocking, Thrums from their Liner Looms, and every kind of Linen. . . ."

Noting that "good Matrons" might think the saving of rags beneath their dignity, he appealed that they "consider they are aiding and assisting in a necessary manufacture, and when the young Ladies are assured, that by sending to the Paper Mill an old Handkerchief, no longer fit to cover their snowy Breasts, there is a Possibility of its returning to them again in the more pleasing form of a Billet Doux from their Lovers, the Proprietors flatter themselves with great Success."

This emotional appeal apparently brought favorable response from the matrons and agents were appointed in several towns and counties for the purchase of rags.

But nature did not cooperate, and the following year was especially dry. So dry, in fact, that Holgan reported to the legislature that "through want of water" his mill had been unable to make the quantity of paper required for him to obtain the premium. He was given an extension until February 1, 1779.

Whether or not Holgan received his bounty, it is obvious that he was unable to supply the state with the amount of paper it needed, for in 1782 General Butler in Orange County was begging Governor Burke for paper.

Only a highway historical marker now calls attention to North Carolina's first paper mill near Hillsborough.

ministration, his 1973 conversion from Democrat to Republican and his 1975 acquittal of political bribery charges, rests on two pillars: Reaganite support and what one Republican strategist calls the lack of serious competition anywhere else.

White House aide William Seidman, a long-time Ford crony, has privately told friends that Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld is Mr. Ford's sentimental choice for a running mate. But Mr. Ford correctly worries that Rumsfeld might be rejected by a convention in which one-half the delegates will be Reaganites.

Other prospects seem insubstantial. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, for example, has been privately downgraded inside the White House by Morton as a nice guy who would add nothing to the ticket. Anne Armstrong, the capable U.S. ambassador at the Court of St. James, is not taken seriously. More important, none of these would strengthen a Ford ticket in the South and Southwest as much as Connally, a fact that is moving Republicans as diverse as Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas and Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio into the Connally camp.

Accordingly, blessed by many Southerners and an occasional maverick in the North, Connally is maneuvering into the vice-presidential vacuum with the stealthy skill of a master politician for whom a political vacuum holds irresistible attraction. Despite Mr. Ford's concern about his standing in the North, and assuming Reagan's disinterest, Connally is now emerging as the frontrunner.

Smolensk. So the idea must have come to you from some other sources.

Perhaps you had a coach who told you, "Winning is everything," or a mother who said to you in Russian, "Nice guys finish last."

It's not for me to conjecture where you picked up your bad habits, Boris. All I can tell you is that we Americans must now face up to the facts of life and insist on safeguards we never dreamed of before. These include on-site inspection of all your nuclear warheads, a renegotiation of any future what deals and a new look at your intentions in the Middle East.

We would never have thought of these things had we not been witness to your deceit in Canada.

I'm sorry I had to lay it on the line, Boris, but I thought you'd rather hear it from me than from one of your own people. We Americans are trusting souls. But we can be pushed just so far. When we see a fencing match on television and lights flashing when no one has been touched, even we know there is something rotten in Montreal.

I don't know how you can redeem yourself. If you were Japanese, I'd suggest you put on a ceremonial robe, remove the cotton tip and fall on your epee.

But since you're a Russian, you're going to have to figure out some other way of reclaiming your honor. Perhaps you can find yourself a good honest electrician in Moscow and get yourself rewired in time for the 1980 Olympics. I hope so, for your sake as well as ours.

Have a nice day.

Your friend,
A.B.

Avers No Punitive Provisions In Hatch Act Political Curbs

RALEIGH (AP) — A Civil Service Commission spokesman said that the Hatch Act under which two Republican state officials withdrew from this fall's political races contains no punitive provisions.

Lynn Collins, an attorney for the Commission, said Tuesday in a telephone interview that the law forbids an appointed state official who oversees federal grants to run for partisan political office. Collins was asked for comment on the cases in which Natural and Economic Resources Secretary George Little stepped down as a candidate for insurance commissioner and Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk withdrew as a candidate for superintendent of public instruction.

Since they are appointed officials and their agencies have a number of federal grants they found they were covered by the Hatch Act, and they had a choice of quitting their jobs, withdrawing from the race or face the possibility of action being taken by the Civil Service Commission.

The law has no punishment provision, Collins said. Had both stayed in office and not quit their races, there would have been an investigation, then a hearing and then a determination by the Civil Service Commission whether the law had been violated.

If the commission had found a violation, the worst that could have happened would have been the commission withholding federal money from the state amounting to twice the salary of the person who violated the law unless the state removed that person from office, Collins said.

Had Kirk and Little been elected officials rather than appointed, they would have been exempt from the law, Collins said.

Both men said they quit the races because of the Hatch Act, a law that forbids any political activity by federal workers and some political activity by state and local employes who handle federal funds.

Kirk said the matter came to light when a friend told him he might be violating the Hatch Act. He investigated and was told he was in violation of the law, he said.

Little then investigated to see if he was also in violation and decided he was.

Both men have said they were confident they could win the Nov. 2 election and decided to stay in office because they were involved with a number of unfinished programs.

"It's not unusual for it (the law) to involve someone at that level," Collins said, noting that such officeholders are commonly interested in seeking elected office.

Acquittal Ends Another Chapter In Funds Probe

BY MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than two dozen corporations and their executives have been prosecuted on federal campaign law charges, but only a handful of politicians who benefited from corporate contributions were ever touched by three years of investigation.

In the latest and last of the corporate fund cases pressed by the special Watergate prosecutor, former Gulf Oil lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr. was acquitted Tuesday by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Waddy.

Wild admitted making a $5,000 cash gift to the re-election campaign of Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii. But he testified the money was handed over in cash more than three years before his indictment by a grand jury on March 12, 1976, and he successfully contended before Waddy that the three-year statute of limitations had expired.

Inouye was never called to testify before the same grand jury and was never questioned under oath by the special Watergate prosecutor until Wild's trial. The senator said he never knew the $5,000 came from corporate sources and was thus illegal.

Wild's attorney, William G. Hundley, characterized Inouye's testimony at the trial as "seriously lacking in credibility."

While the money for Inouye's 1974 primary re-election campaign was requested and accepted by his administrative assistant, $1,200 of it went directly in cash to Inouye for out-of-pocket campaign expenses.

Inouye testified he never questioned his aide, Henry Giugini, about the source of the cash.

Over 13 years as Gulf's Washington lobbyist, Wild is known to have controlled up to $4 million in political funds, much of it disbursed directly or indirectly to politicians and their campaigns.

Wild's testimony and statements in various government investigations have disclosed contributions to the campaigns of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania; Sen. Russell Long, D-La.; Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev.; Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.; Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.; Rep. H. John Heinz III, D-Pa.; Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M.; and about 20 others on Capitol Hill.

Ervin Favors Death Penalty

ATLANTA (AP) — Capital punishment is the only punishment that can deter some criminals, former U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin said Tuesday.

The death penalty should be kept for "crimes so atrocious that the community will take punishment into its own hands if the law doesn't," he said, adding he agreed with the recent Supreme Court decision upholding the death penalty.

Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee in 1973, also said he feels President Ford's pardon of former President Richard Nixon will be a factor in this year's election.

The North Carolina Democrat spoke at a news conference while in the city to address the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

The duty of the citizen is simple," he told the attorneys. "It is to obey all laws without regard to whether he deems them just or unjust."

He contended that a clergyman or civil rights activist has no more right to disobey laws than an arsonist or murderer.

The duty of the lawyer, he said, is to know the law, to be loyal to his client and maintain his own integrity.

A lawyer needn't be convinced his client's case is just, Ervin said. But "it is the very essence of the system that every man shall have his day in court and be represented by a lawyer learned in the law and trained in the art of advocacy."

The duty of the judge, he said, is to insure fair trials. It is a task that sometimes requires great courage and wisdom as in the cases in which "the government seeks to make the litigant a victim of political purpose or an angry mob clamors for his blood," Ervin said.

He noted that "the best way to use resources is a very difficult problem, not only in terms of the number and types of programs in public institutions, but also with respect to how public funds are to be used to aid private institutions or aid students attending private institutions."

Johnson continued, "while it isn't a problem with the board . . . one that we have jurisdiction over . . . it is a deep concern or ours. . . students coming out of high school who need remedial work before being able to do college level work." He said it is "a question of resources . . .money. . .faculty, in doing remedial work to get them in a position to do the work. It's one of the more serious problems we face," he said.

Johnson said, too, that "in time" the board, depending on resources, "has to make a decision with respect to the School of Veterinary Medicine. Perhaps that is some distance on the horizon . . .when and in what manner, of course, will depend on the availability of funds."

The board chairman also said, "I think we have certainly got to develop procedures and approaches to keep duplication of effort to a minimum among the public institutions, and of course aiding the institutions which have weaknesses in their programs and the correction of those weaknesses.

Johnson said the Area Health Education Center program "is one of the finest programs that we have underway. Of course, we know from past experience this program has already made a tremendous contribution. There's no question it will multiply and increase.

"In fact," he continued, "a lot of states have been looking at our AHEC program and it is nationally recognized as a very innovative program."

Johnson, a former superior court judge and a former commissioner of revenue, succeeded William A. Dees Jr. of Goldsboro, as head of the Board of Governors.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Offerings Tuesday on the Farmville Tobacco Market showed an increase in volume of lug grades, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"Primings and nondescript grades accounted for most of the volume. The quality was about the same as Monday," Williams said.

"Prices on all grades was steady Tuesday. Demand by companies showed some gain over the previous day," he added.

The Farmville Tobacco Market sold 388,270 pounds for $358,018 Tuesday for an average of $92.21 per 100 pounds. To date 2,347,666 pounds have been sold at an average of $90.83 per 100 pounds.

Legislator To Take China Tour

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Maine state Senate Majority Leader Jerrold B. Speers said he will leave today on an 11-day visit to the Peoples' Republic of China.

Speers, a Republican, announced last month that he would take the trip. He is one of 20 state legislators from around the country who are making the trip and the only one from northern New England.

They will visit Peking, Nanking, Soochow, Shanghai and Kwangchow, Speers said Tuesday.

The trip is sponsored by the National Conference of State Legislatures, but the individual lawmakers are paying their own expenses.

Grub In Alaska Is Great, But Mind The Grizzly

By RICHARD McNEILL

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — Trans-Alaska pipeline caterers, seven firms with multimillion dollar contracts in their coffers and job orders that strain the imagination, are finding competition where it's least expected.

At the pipeline's half-completed Pump Station 4, about 150 miles north of the Arctic Circle, a grizzly bear dropped by for lunch.

At Prudhoe Bay, where the largest oil field in North America is buried, whales cleaned out a labor supply.

"It's gotten tight," said Bob Ryan of Universal Services, "but we've always made it through."

The trans-Alaska pipeline is the largest privately financed engineering project in the world. More than 20,000 men and women are employed on it. They occupy 20 camps and their assignments stretch across 800 miles of the most rugged terrain in the world, frozen at least nine months of the year.

Most of the caterers' problems are logistical. They ship about 10 pounds of supplies per man per day to remote base camps.

But there are other problems, unforeseen adventures.

Fred Mayer, a baker for Universal Services who works just north of the Brooks Range at Pump Station 4, took his usual run for supplies to an onsite warehouse last summer but was stopped short of the oatmeal by a grizzly.

The bear had wandered through a loosely latched warehouse door and helped himself to six five-pound bags of brownie mix, two five-pound bags of cake mix, one fivepound bag of gingerbread mix, one box of grits, a 50-pound bag of Honey Wheat Ranch Mix and a 50-pound bag of Danish donut mix.

Mayer made a quick exit and camp security was put on a full alert "bear watch."

The next day, the bear returned to the warehouse, ripped out a section of corrugated steel siding and helped himself again.

Brad Esary, who helps supply Campco catering operations on the North Slope oil field, is more likely to brush with a polar bear than a grizzly. But it was a whale migration that set him back when he started a worker-recruitment drive to Barrow on the Beaufort Sea.

Esary was ready to go to Barrow where he hoped to find Eskimos willing to work at a Prudhoe Bay base camp. Hiring natives would help satisfy federal employment regulations, and the firm needed workers compatible with the frigid climate.

"But I got a call from my man up there, who said there wasn't a male Eskimo left in town," Esagy said. "When the whales are running, I guess they just head out after them."

The Eskimos call the whale meat "muktuk." It's a delicacy. Campco, however, does not include muktuk on its menu.

Typical breakfast at any of the camps includes juices, fresh fruit, eggs cooked to order, hash browns, bacon, ham, sausage, rolls, toast, biscuits, honey, jams, hot cereal, cold cereal, hot cakes and coffee.

The worker can have as much as he wants of anything he wants. For free, of course.

For lunch he can stuff a brown bag with seven kinds of sandwiches, three kinds of cheese, four desserts, yogurts, chips, pastries, puddings, apples, oranges and fruit punch.

The entrees: New York cut sirloin steak with mushrooms, or deep-fried scallops with tartar sauce, cocktail sauce and lemon wedge. A chef's special is the third alternative.

Entrees are changed every day on a 28-day cycle.

"Everybody wants a little bit of something," said Ryan. Universal tries to give it to them, he said, by throwing together a Philadelphia scrapple or corn bread and fresh string beans on occasion.

According to Campco chef Ole Jensen, cornbread, creamed corn and black-eyed peas — favorites of the Southern workers — find their way into his menu with regularity.

Shopping day comes twice a month at most camps. For firms as large as Universal, Campco, Greyhound Support Services and Boatel, it takes a computer.

Other firms catering to pipeline camps are ARA Services Inc., ITT Arctic Services, and a native corporation, Nana.

Besides food, the firms also maintain the workers' quarters and, in some cases, provide recreation equipment.

Their contracts run as high as $40 million. When crude oil from Prudhoe Bay begins to flow in mid-1977, the camps will close and Alaska's catering boom will be over.

JFK's Sister On N.Y. Council

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey has appointed Jean Kennedy Smith, sister of the late President Kennedy, as chairwoman of a new state Council for Mental Hygiene Planning.

"Mrs. Smith and other members of her family have demonstrated a deep concern for the welfare of the mentally disabled," Carey said Monday in announcing the appointment of Mrs. Smith, a New York City resident who has a mentally retarded sister.

The new 15-member council will develop statewide goals for the state Department of Mental Hygiene. Its members include the commissioner of mental hygiene and 14 others appointed by the governor.

Mrs. Smith's appointment is subject to Senate confirmation.

Carter Undecided As To Replacing Of CIA Chief

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter says he has not decided whether he would replace George Bush as CIA director if he is elected president.

Bush arrives in Plains today to brief the Democratic presidential nominee and Sen. Walter Mondale, Carter's running mate, on national security matters.

Carter told reporters Tuesday he had asked the CIA to brief him on confidential information concerning Lebanon and the Middle East, Rhodesia, South Africa and and South Korea, plus the interrelationships between the United States, the Soviet Union and China.

Although Bush previously has been involved in Republican politics, he has "brought the CIA a good background as former United Nationals ambassador and U.S. representative to China," Carter said.

He added that his choice for CIA head would be a person "with stature with the American people, whose integrity was beyond doubt and with some analytical ability."

On Tuesday, Carter and Mondale were briefed on economic issues by nine experts representing a wide spectrum of thought.

Several were top officials in previous Democratic administrations.

Carter had scheduled a briefing for reporters midway through the economic session, but postponed it at the last minute because he was upset by a television news report about his press conference on a defense briefing he and Mondale were given Monday.

The Democratic ticket had interrupted the defense briefing 1½ hours after it started to talk to reporters, and a CBS report included shots of Carter saying he did not know the answers or could not comment on various questions put by reporters.

The CBS report "just made fun of the briefing that we tried to give," Carter said. He called the report "frivolous" and "unfair," but said that "in general, I think the press has been very fair to me."

The former Georgia governor rescheduled his news conference on the economic briefing for today to give him and Mondale time to go over their notes and think more deeply about what had been discussed, he said.

Among those briefing the candidates were Charles Schultze, former director of the Bureau of the Budget under Lyndon Johnson; Lawrence Klein, Carter's chief economic advisor and president-elect of the American Economics Association, and Arthur Okun, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

The week-long series of briefings for Carter and Mondale will conclude Thursday with a session on foreign policy.

Although the candidates would not discuss Tuesday's session, Carter press secretary Jody Powell outlined some of the major topics, including the current economic situation and trend, and the economic policies of the Ford-Nixon administration.

Inflation, unemployment, fiscal and monetary policy, tax reform and the possibility of new social programs within federal budget limitations were also discussed, Powell said.

He described the meeting as "a very informal sort of discussion, with some differences of opinion, all politely expressed."

On a more political note, Carter told reporters that former Texas Gov. John Connally's endorsement of President Ford probably would help Ford in his fight with Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination.

If Ford should choose Connally as his running mate, Carter added, "I have no doubt that in Texas it would be much more difficult for me. But that would be the only state I would be worried about."

Commenting further on Monday's defense briefing, the nominee said neither the Soviet Union nor the United States could have a first-strike nuclear capability that would prevent a massive retaliatory strike on the country that first dropped the bomb.

It is impossible for either country to knock out the other's entire fleet of nuclear submarines and bombers, he added.

As president, Carter said, he would move to reduce the sale of U.S. arms abroad and also would improve the quality of the U.S. reserves, which he called ineffective.

He said that the readiness of the reserve forces for combat was doubtful and the quality of their weapons was "almost completely absent."

Carter and Mondale also said they do not favor construction of the controversial B1 bomber now, but felt that research and development on it should be continued and that it should be regarded as a "potential weapon."

CHANNELS FORMED BY RAINWATER?—This photomosaic of a Mars area in the sourthern highlands was taken by the Viking Orbiter and released Tuesday by JPL. The area is veined with channels that a scientist said may have been formed by rainwater that may have fallen on Mars at some time in the ancient past. Some of the channels appear to have many tributaries. (AP Wirephoto)

Had An 'Unappreciated' Feeling, Kills 3 People

CHICAGO (AP) — A "stable, friendly, hard-working" toy designer took a gun to work, killed three persons, shot two more and then killed himself. Police found notes on his body indicating he thought his coworkers were plotting to destroy him.

"Paranoia?" read one note. "No. Now you will know why I am doing all this."

Police said Tuesday that Albert Keller, 33, recently complained to his supervisor that he felt unappreciated in his job. The supervisor told police he thought he had convinced Keller his work was valued.

In addition to himself, Keller killed two partners of Marvin Glass & Associates and another designer. One employe was hospitalized in guarded condition and another in satisfactory condition.

Keller was a husband and father. Friends and employers later described him as friendly and compassionate. A neighbor said he "cared about people." And a spokesman for the firm said he was "a well-liked, stable, friendly, hard-working, creative designer."

Police, however, said that Keller was "going through a terrible mental process. He just wrote all kinds of names down — anyone who looked at him wrong — and license numbers."

A note hidden in the designer's sock indicated he originally intended to kill 14 persons, including the victims, authorities said.

Keller's wife reportedly told police that her husband left home in the morning with a 9mm pistol and told her, "Someone at work is trying to kill me, but everything will be okay."

Investigators said this was the sequence of events that followed:

At about 9:30 a.m., Keller arrived at the near North Side firm.

A half hour later, he walked into the office of Anson Isaacson, 56, senior managing partner, and shot him in the head. Isaacson died.

He then shot and killed Joseph Callan, 54, a partner also in the office.

He apparently left by a side door, walked down a hallway and ducked into other offices. "He shot at everybody he passed," a police official said.

He shot designer Kathy Dunn, 33, who died two hours later at a hospital, and Donald F. Nix, 32, who was later in satisfactory condition at a hospital.

He paused to reload, then shot Douglas Montague, 45. Montague was hospitalized in guarded condition with wounds in the abdomen.

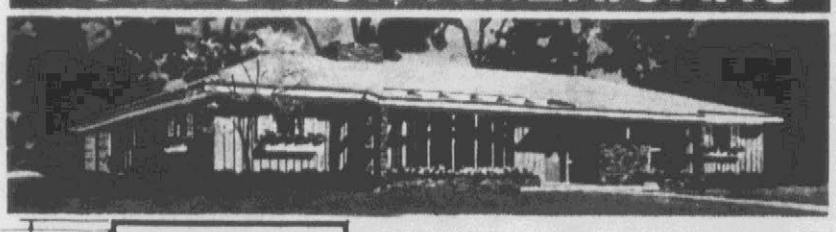

About 75 feet beyond where the shooting started, Keller stopped outside his own office.

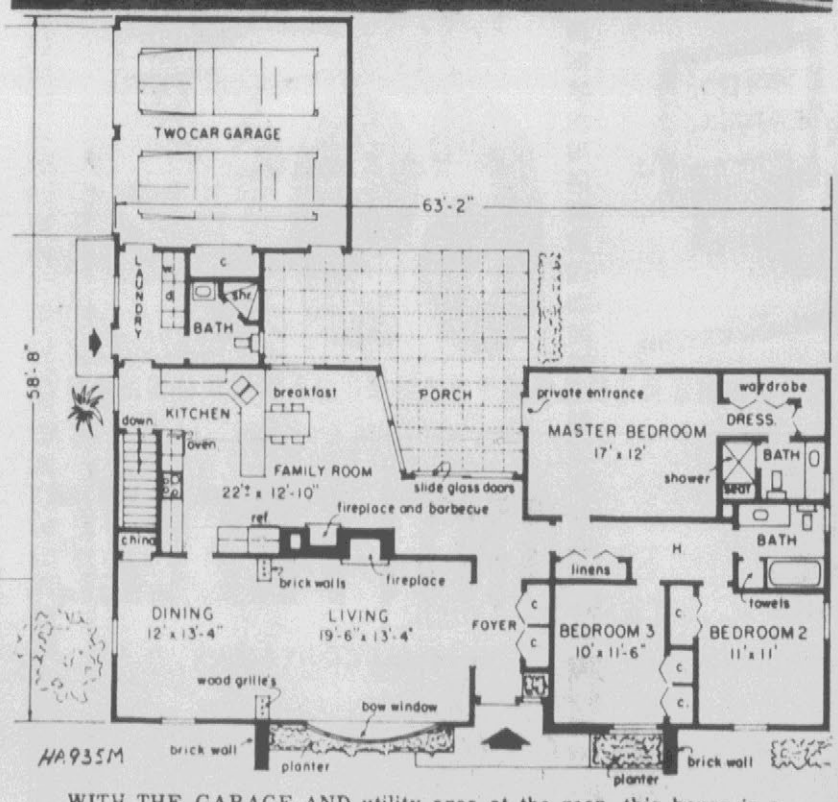

He put the gun to his neck and pulled the trigger, then shot himself a second time in the temple.

Burton Meyer, an employe whom Keller shot at twice but missed, later said that when he first saw the pistol, he thought it was a toy.

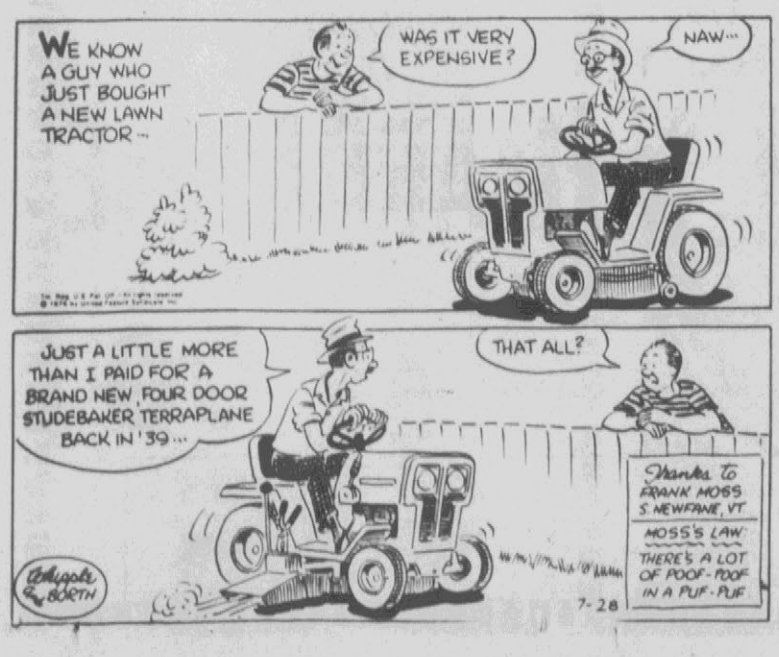

Ironically, the company hasn't designed a gun in years. "The company has had a publicly avowed position since 1962 of not designing guns or war toys of any type," said a spoksman.

Alaska Has One Airplane For Every 48 Citizens

By W.P. DOUGHERTY
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — On a sunny summer afternoon swarms of tiny, brightly colored planes buzz in the air above Anchorage's municipal airport, one of the nation's busiest.

Depending on the weather, as many as 1,600 aircraft a day land or take off on Merrill Field's four runways. On the field itself nearly 800 of the stubby-nosed machines sit strapped to the pavement.

People who know about such things refer to Alaska as the nation's "flyingest" state. And they back up that characterization with a handful of Federal Aviation Administration statistics:

— There is one plane for every 48 Alaskans, a figure 12 times the national average.

— Alaska, with a statewide population less than that of most metropolitan areas in the Lower 48, is the home of 8,000 of the 700,000 certified pilots in the country — one pilot for every 48 Alaskans.

— Of the 12,700 FAA monitored airports in the country, 530 are in Alaska.

— Anchorage's Lake Hood is the largest seaplane base in the country.

Cliff Cernick, a local FAA spokesman, says the immense size of Alaska and its harsh climate have all but precluded development of highway-oriented transportation.

Cernick points out that 4,300 miles of highway serve a state of more than 586,40 square miles, Anchorage' the largest city in the state, has only two highways coming into it, one from the north and another from the south.

Transportation in Alaska, Cernick says, evolved directly from dog sleds to airplanes.

The bush pilot, pioneer of the Alaskan air age, remains the personification of the state's dependence on air transportation.

Beginning in the 1920s, the now-legendary pilots launched their primitive aircraft on missions over the mountain-and-swamp interior. Sometimes fighting treacherously unpredictable weather they carried supplies to the remotest parts of the state.

FAA navigational aid systems now crisscross the state, making small-plane travel less risky than in the heyday of the bush pilot. Still, 29 persons died in Alaska last year in 212 general aviation accidents.

The FAA official said the accident rate for Alaskan fliers is "appreciably higher" than for those elsewhere.

"It's because of the terrain and the weather. Alaska has all kinds of terrain and longer periods of bad weather. Severe temperatures are also a factor in the rescue rate," he said.

"This is a very independent breed of pilot. I think some of them come here to get away from regulatory agencies. (Their independence) is sort of the legacy of the bush pilot," Cernick said.

Former bush pilot Ken Lythgoe used to run mail through the Wrangell Mountains and fly float planes around Prince William Sound.

Nowadays, Lythgoe has taken a pen in hand rather than a throttle and concerned himself with the maintenance, development and planning of the traffic-burdened Merrill Field.

He sits in the spacious airport manager's office, the picture window behind him framing a seemingly endless procession of throbbing light planes. On the desk in front of him the airport budget is spread from one end to the other.

"The bush pilot is slowly becoming outdated, but I don't think I'll see the end of them in my lifetime. As long as there are small strips and rough airports we'll need them," he said.

Merrill Field, named for a civic-minded bush pilot killed in a crash, handles only helicopters, light planes and an occasional small jet. Major commercial air lines all operate out of the state-run Anchorage International Airport farther from downtown.

A visitor asked if the job of managing the nation's 24th busiest airport is a difficult one.

"We moved up last month," he said, "now we're the 17th busiest.

"There is a tremendous demand for aviation facilities up here, but no supply. Demand for them goes up daily. Our number of (takeoffs and landings) goes up 10 per cent annually," he said.

Last year 350,000 landings and takeoffs were recorded at Merrill, an average of slightly less than 1,000 a day in a place where winter weather can ground almost everything except large commercial jets for days at a time.

Lythgoe says he can see no end in sight for the surge in private and small-commercial operation flying.

He said nearly 70 per cent of the traffic at Merrill is generated by flying schools. The six schools based at the field have about 800 students.

"The pilots have to keep their eyes open, and they do a pretty good job around here," Lythgoe said. "They know it's busy and they pay attention."

Hickle Has Big Role As Developer

By SUZAN NIGHTINGALE
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A consummate businessman, astute politico and articulate spokesman on energy and the environment, Walter Hickel is a one-man microcosm of the key issues besetting the 49th state.

As Secretary of the Interior from 1969 to 1970, Hickel built a nationwide reputation as a conservationist. Most Alaskans, however, know him as a millionaire developer.

One of many drawn to the "last frontier" for its wide-open spaces and wilderness, Hickel stayed on to make a fortune developing that land.

He arrived in Anchorage in 1941 with 37 cents and a firm belief in the free enterprise system. Today, he commands Hiikel Investment Company, an empire of hotels, motels, shopping centers and real estate.

Despite his longtime residence, some "sourdoughs" view Hickel as an interloper, out to further his fortune at the expense of the landscape. They cite his enthusiastic support of the trans-Alaska pipeline, a project that has brought people, congestion — and dollars — to Anchorage.

While Hickel is concerned about Alaska's unique environment, he parts from some conservationists in his support of the pipeline. He doesn't think sound conservation and good business are mutually exclusive. Copies of "National Wildlife" magazine vie with "Alaska Industry" on Hickel's coffee table.

"They should build three more pipelines," he says. "The pipeline is not just good for Alaska. It's a necessity for America.

"We can depend on other countries for TV sets and watches," he says, "but when you're talking about energy, you're talking about the one nation in the world that must maintain its freedom."

Oil played a big part in Hickel's two-year stint as Secretary of the Interior when an oil drilling platform blew out in the Santa Barbara Channel in 1969. Offshore drilling regulations were tightened as a result.

Looking back, Hickel says his proudest accomplishment in the Interior post was "not anything I did for the environment but clearing up the relationship between government and big business."

The governor of Alaska from 1966 to 1969, Hickel says the principles of business can be applied to government "although government's role is different. It doesn't have to make a profit — although it does have to be managed well."

Two years ago Hickel made a second bid for the governorship but lost the Republican nomination to the unorthodox Jay Hammond. The bearded former hunting guide, a study in contrast to Hickel, was elected.

Does Hickel — a prolific speech maker who sends copies of his scripts to the media — have further political aspirations?

"None that are apparent to me," he hedges. "Nothing clear."

Yet, he admits he "thought about running for president in 1976, but we have a presidential candidate." Hickel will be a Ford delegate at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City.

In his mid-50s, Hickel has no plans to retire soon. "It's not any fun," he says, wide-eyed at the suggestion. "To retire without doing anything couldn't fit my temperament."

Hickel spends his days now meeting what he calls "my social, political and financial obligations."

He likes "the movement of travel," but gets restless in one place. Cruising his boat in Prince William Sound with his wife, Ermalee, is a favorite pastime.

A self-described homebody, Hickel enjoys working in his yard and visiting with any combination of his six sons who are in and out.

But surprises still pop up in the orderly existence of Walter Hickel. When he resigned as Secretary of the Interior in 1970, Hickel criticized the White House staff that blocked his access to Richard Nixon. Last week, "out of the blue," he received a novel autographed by it's author. The inscription read, "With warm affection, John Ehrlichman."

Offshore Oil To Create Jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A survey by the American Petroleum Institute says development of petroleum beds off the East Coast would mean creation of at least 28,000 jobs. The survey, conducted by Woodard Clyde Consultants, indicated that about half the jobs would be directly related to the industry.

Ford Builds Delegate Strategy

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is aiming a two-pronged attack at Ronald Reagan's conservative Southern supporters, hoping to snare GOP delegates disenchanted with Reagan's choice of a liberal northeastern senator as a running mate.

Reagan leaders in Mississippi said Tuesday they feared the Ford strategy might succeed in their state. And Ford backers were gleefully suggesting there could be dramatic changes almost at once.

Doug Shanks, Ford's Mississippi chairman, said there have been switches from Reagan to Ford, suggesting there are enough to move the delegation behind Ford. "We picked up more people ... and Wednesday there will be announcements of enough to do it," he said.

White House officials also indicated they expected an announcement today about the Mississippi delegation.

If Ford captures the state's 30 uncommitted votes, he would be within five delegates of the 1,130 he needs for the nomination at the Kansas City convention next month.

Reagan's selection of Sen. Richard Schweiker for vice president did shake a bare handful of Pennsylvania delegates — previously counted as Ford backers — into the uncommitted ranks.

But those switches were partially offset by an uncommitted South Carolina delegate coming out for Ford and one Reagan delegate from Colorado saying he is now uncommitted.

Ford now has 1,095 delegates legally bound and publicly committed to him, while Reagan has 1,024, the continuing Associated Press delegate survey shows. The remaining 141 are uncommitted.

The first thrust of Ford's counterattack was endorsement by former Texas Gov. John Connally, long a favorite of many Reagan supporters.

"I think it's quite clear between the two men that the President is unmistakably the better choice, not only for the party but for the country," Connally said.

Connally, a former Nixon administration official, was the first choice for vice president of Reagan delegates expressing an opinion, the AP delegate survey found.

Ford's second line of attack is avisit to Mississippi on Friday. Ford Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that, as far as he knew, the trip had no relation to the effect of the Schweiker decision.

The Mississippi delegation has been considered a Reagan stronghold, but the week's events may have shattered that solidarity, Reagan backers said.

As Republicans continued their battle to decide on a nominee, the Democratic ticket spent the day in briefings on economic issues.

Jimmy Carter and Sen. Walter Mondale talked in Plains, Ga., with a busload of experts about the nation's economic prospects.

Ford, appearing with Connally outside the White House, did not publicly change his stance on Connally as a possible running mate. "The future will speak for itself," Ford said. "I don't exclude any potential Republicans."

Reagan also lost the support os two leading conservative Republican spokesmen — Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio and Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire. And there was an indication that Joseph Coors, a longtime Reagan backer, might be reconsidering his position.

A New York delegate and two others in Pennsylvania who had been for Ford said they are now uncommitted as a result of the Schweiker move. They joined another Pennsylvanian who had done the same Monday.

Dr. Inez Eddings, a South Carolina uncommitted who had leaned to Reagan, said she is now for Ford because she could not accept Reagan going "to that extreme end of the spectrum, to choose someone on the other end of the scale."

Ashbrook, the conservative who ran against Richard Nixon for the GOP nomination in 1972, said he has stopped working for Reagan.

"Reagan has lost a great amount of credibility and has made a very bad mistake," Ashbrook said. "The choice of Schweiker is more apt to cost him the nomination than to give it to him. If Reagan does get the nomination, I'll support him but I'll no longer work for him."

Thomson, once a fervent Reagan backer, called the choice of Schweiker a "crass political manuever. I will not assist in selling this opportunistic team to Republican delegates."

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you are likely to feel tied down to conditions you would like to have changed. The best course of action is to do the work that has to be done and postpone making any changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Schedule your time and efforts intelligently and carry through with those policy decisions reached earlier in the day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan recreations with family early so there is more harmony at home. Don't permit troublemakers to make things difficult for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get the machinery working that will make your home more comfortable. Stay within your budget. Use extreme care in motion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to gain the aid of associates for those financial affairs you are working on. Don't neglect important communications.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ask an expert for advice about something you have planned to do. Don't jump into it blindly. Make important monetary decisions tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep that promise you have made to associates and get the right results with it. Don't fail to handle regular routines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Come to a real understanding with a friend if you want to have a worthwhile relationship. Handle arrangements for a social event of importance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some obligation of a business nature can be solved nicely with the aid of a good friend. Being more cheerful can help you in your career.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A new idea you have should be discussed with a higher-up for approval before you try to put it in operation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make certain your credit standing is in order so that you are more respected by others. Show increased devotion to mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you keep promises made to associates. A civic matter crops up that needs quick action, so be sure to give it.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If properly attuned astrologically, you should be concerned with improving your environment. Take better care of your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be capable of handling almost any task but will need encouragement since the habit of procrastination is strong in this chart. The ability to solve difficult problems is excellent here. Give ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Ga.-Fla. Mart Volume Down

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Prices were steady to slightly higher at Georgia-Florida fluecured tobacco markets Tuesday with grade prices up about one dollar per hundredweight.

Volume was down almost one million pounds from Monday.

Offerings of 6.3 million pounds sold at an average price of $114.41 per hundredweight, bringing the season total to 76.58 million pounds at an average price of $102.68 per hundredweight.

Hamilton Horton Is Taking 'Sabbatical'

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Hamilton C. Horton, 45, considered by many as a rising figure in the state Republican party, has taken a sabbatical from politics.

"People are like plants. Every once in a while they have to be re-potted," Horton said.

Horton's repotting concerns more than just bowing out of the 1976 elections. He also has ended his law practice and refused appointment as a district attorney for the Pilau Islands in the South Pacific.

One former political associate says Horton "couldn't have picked two better elections in history to miss than the last two at the state level."

A three-term legislator from Forsyth County, Horton was mentioned as a possible contender for U.S. Rep. Stephen L. Neal's 5th District seat, the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and various local offices.

Instead, he has said "the chances are very small" that he ever will reenter politics.

Barring such a reentry, Horton's plans for the future are vague. He says he always has been "buggy about nature," indicating he might continue his efforts to stop damming of the New River by Appalachian Power Co.

However, he said, politics "is the highest calling. Governing my fellow man is the highest of endeavors."

"We'll see him running for election again," said Ed M. Armfield, a local Republican leader.

Richard H. Ziglar, who knew Horton at the University of North Carolina, agreed.

"Politics is his place in life," Ziglar said. "I think he's bound to miss it."

At 78, He's For College

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — "I'm doing it for the pleasure of it," says 78-year-old John H. McDaniel of his enrollment at Lenoir Rhyne College.

Yes, 78. And what's more McDaniel goes to the same school where his grandson is studying music and his son, Michael, is chairman of the college's humanities division.

McDaniel is a retired teacher, a former state senator from Cabarrus County, a former insurance salesman and jack-of-all trades who has schooling in his blood.

"In my day a college education was a real prize enjoyed by a limited number of persons," said McDaniel, who graduated from Wittenburg College in Ohio in 1923.

"Nowdays a great number of students go, and I wonder if they appreciate the true value of what they are getting. I think many are motivated by a desire to make money.

"I don't need the credits for anything because I'm not working for any degree," he said. "I don't see how it could do me any good anymore."

McDaniel came to Hickory after being injured in a wreck in April of last year.

He audited an American history course during the summer session and plans to take an English literature course in the fall. He pays a $45 tuition for each course.

After retirement and the automobile accident, McDaniel found himself sitting around the house with little to do. He decided to go back to college, McDaniel said, for the same reason he enrolled at Wittenburg more than 50 years ago.

"College teaches one how to enjoy the good and beautiful things in life. That's why I'm going," he said.

Rubinstein May Have Played His Last

ARTHUR RUBINSTEIN has played what he says "probably" was his last concert at a London benefit. (UPI Photo)

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS, July 00 (UPI) — Arthur Rubinstein, his eyesight and hearing dimmed at 89, has played what he says "probably" was his last concert. The pianist observed 70 years of performing this year by playing at a benefit concert in London.

"I was terrified not to see the piano keys," said Rubinstein in the coolness of his luxurious Paris townhouse. "I couldn't see the entrance of the Schumann concerto.

"I never thought of that concert to be the last one. But probably I will not play any more.

"I can't read, I can't write. I have vision out of the sides of my eyes but not the center. I still see the piano keys. But I don't want to be nervous like I was at the last two or three concerts."

Retire? He laughed. "At 89 you don't 'retire' because retirement for me is to the tomb. Why, I'm very busy."

First of all, Rubinstein is dictating to a young scholar the second volume of his memoirs. It will be the sequel to his bestseller "My Young Years" which, Rubinstein being a prolific storyteller and talker with a photographic memory, took him only to age 17.

In addition, Rubinstein, despite his failing eyesight, still is the same active, vital person passionately in love with living, once called by a New York Times music critic "a shining example of the civilized universal man."

His infimity has not dimmed his talent for sparkling conversation and witty stories. Even in his handicap of fading eyesight he finds virtue.

"I'm without eyes, but instead of getting despair, I write away. And I am starting to enjoy other things. Listening to records I never had the time to listen to. I hated radio but now my wife has given me a set and I hear music with pleasure. I love music, classical, romantic, jazz. There are only two categories of music, good or bad. I love Cole Porter, Jerome Kern. I cry over George Gershwin.

"Before when I saw a tree I didn't give a hoot about it. Now when one comes into my (peripheral) view it is something in life."

He mused, "We don't know happiness without unhappiness, gaiety without sadness. And happiness can only be felt if you don't set any conditions.

"After reading many philosophers, the one theory I support is life. Life is accessible around us, what we can grasp with out five senses. All the other things, life after death and so on, are guesses. We have to suffer through life. Let's take it as it is. The good side nobody can take away from us: love, ideas, wishes, pleasures, music, poetry, painting.

"I prove it to myself now at 89," he said briskly, quickly combing his luxuriant, white hair. "I am a passionate lover of life, unconditionally.

"I'm frightfully handicapped but I can walk alone, I can travel alone, I can find my own way. My wife and I are going soon to our house in Marbella (Spain) with our four children from America for the summer."

Rubinstein still lives up to his reputation as a citizen of the world. A Polish-born naturalized American, he has homes in Marbella, New York, Geneva, and Paris.

"I have lived in Paris since World War I and in this house since 1938. During the war the Germans occupied it and stole my paintings."

In every room are paintings — Rouault, Picasso, Dufy, Chagall — and mementos of his seven decades of playing an average 100 concerts a year: a medal given him by U.S. President Gerald Ford at the White House earlier this year, photographs of friends Albert Einstein and Arturo Toscanini.

Rubinstein speaks eight languages. Yet he has never ignored his mother tongue. Polish magazines rested on the piano and his secretary came into the room to speak in Polish close to the pianist's ear.

Watching this exuberant man it is difficult to realize he was born in 1887 ("the biographies that say 1889 are not correct"), that he played his first major concert 70 years ago with the Philadelphia symphony.

His secret of a long life? "If I had a formula, I'd sell it," he roared.

Then, more serious, he said, "I married only at 43. Before that I never went to bed until 4 in the morning. I drank champagne, running around with pretty girls, I was a bad boy. I always have liked good wine, good food."

Waving his ever present Havana cigar, he added, "Cigars are good for the health, you don't inhale."

Rubinstein's inexhaustible repertoire of stories includes one about his visit to a doctor in anxiety over whether his beloved cigars were causing a persistent cough and hoarseness.

After two examinations, the doctor was ominously silent.

"I can stand the truth. What's wrong with me?" pleaded the pianist.

Second Trip To Altar At 76

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "I never thought I'd be a bride again," said Annie Mae Slayton Smalling, who at 76 made a second trip to the altar recently.

Widowed three years ago ago after 52 years of marriage, she was wedded to Noah Ervin Smalling, an 80-year-old widower, and long-time friend of her and her late husband, Coy Slayton.

The bride wore a floor-length blue dress and a corsage of pink roses for the ceremony.

"The minister's wife played the wedding march even though I've told them we didn't need anything like that at our ages," the new Mrs. Smalling said.

Self-Help Gets An Assist By New Institute

By C. G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The self-help groups that are booming across the country are getting a little help themselves — from a new institute established to study the trend.

"Suddenly out of the woodwork you get these little groups nobody ever heard about," said Dr. Leonard D. Borman, director of the Self-Help Institute, affiliated with the Center for Urban Affairs at Northwestern University.

Borman, an anthropologist, said the institute plans to gather data about self-help groups and provide training and a clearinghouse for information to help the groups become more effective.

No one knows how many self-help groups there are, although some estimates place the figure at a half-million tax-exempt organizations.

Alcoholics Anonymous, which Borman calls "the grandaddy of self-help organizations," was founded in 1935 and is estimated to have 800,000 members. In the decade from 1962 to 1972, the number of AA chapters doubled — from 9,000 to 18,000, Borman says.

Recovery, Inc., an association of nervous and former mental patients, was established in 1937 and now has 15,000 members meeting weekly for mutual support in 1,000 groups in the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and Ireland.

The development and growth of Synanon, which Borman says has had "a remarkable impact on drug addiction," reflects concern over a comparatively recently social problem. It was formed in 1958 by a former AA member.

Other groups include such organizations as Parents Anonymous, made up of parents who have abused their children; Gamblers Anonymous, for those trying to overcome that problem; TOPS — Take Off Pounds Sensibly — a weight-reduction organization; the Fortune Society, made up of former convicts; and Reach to Recovery, for women who have had mastectomies.

The growth of health-related self-help groups has been a striking development over the past decade, Borman said.

He noted that Mended Hearts, a national group for persons who had had heart surgery, is growing at the rate of 200 new members a month.

Other organizations include the blind, the deaf, arthritics and cancer patients who share their anxieties and concerns with each other and offer encouragement and support.

Borman said a different type of self-help group is represented by the food-buying clubs formed by consumers to save money.

There also are groups for widows, new mothers who breast-feed, homosexuals and the elderly. Women's consciousness-raising organizations fall into the category of self-help.

"These groups seem to have the key to problems their people face," Borman said.

One common characteristic they share, he said, is that they were developed outside of established institutions. Their development, in part, represents an antiprofessional attitude, he added.

"Many persons who participate in these groups want help from somebody who has been down the line," Borman said.

Heroine Loses Her $100 Bill

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Janet Calmels, a dental assistant, was waiting for a street car when she heard a scream and saw a young man run off with an elderly woman's purse.

Miss Calmels gave chase. She and a man who joined the chase caught the snatcher and were holding him for the police when a friend of the snatcher came along, wrestled him free and they both escaped. Miss Calmels, however, managed to recover the woman's purse and return it to her.

Then she discovered something. During the chase a $100 bill she had put in her knee stock for safekeeping and slipped out and disappeared.

Coy Privette Offers New Blood

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Coy Privette is putting one of the better batting averages in statewide politics on the line as he seeks the Republican gubernatorial nomination in North Carolina.

Privette, a Baptist minister from Kannapolis, led the forces of the Christian Action League into battle against the forces of liquor by the drink in 1973. They emerged with a smashing, 2-1 victory in a statewide referendum.

Some ministers might find the day-to-day grind of a political campaign foreign to their natures, but not Privette. He is bluff, gregarious, and hardly an ascetic.

He observes the niceties of his profession by avoiding the common profanities and substituting his own. Asked about a nasty political rumor, he denied it and added, "I wonder where in the squat that's coming from."

Privette is a former football player, a guard at Wake Forest. Although no one has accused him of playing too much football without a helmet, his nose betrays the fact that he played before helmets had face guards.

In seeking the governor's chair, Privette found himself thinking that it might be harder to be nominated than to win the election.

Democratic party territory was well staked out. Besides, Privette was a registered Republican. But he had never been a very active Republican.

His opponents, David Flaherty and Jacob Alexander, have attacked Privette on the question of party loyalty.

In 1974, a member of Privette's congregation in Kannapolis, William Hefner, ran for Congress as a Democrat, challenging incumbent Earl Ruth, a Republican. Hefner won, and many Republicans were bitter at Privette's role in Hefner's campaign.

Privette gave the invocation at a Hefner rally. And his picture appeared on 50,000 mailed records Hefner sent throughout the district. With him was Hefner, and printed below was a message from Privette praising Hefner.

Privette says now that he did not actually endorse Hefner. He went to his rally out of his pastoral duty. He "didn't know" what the picture was going to be used for. "And I endorsed the type of person he is, not his candidacy."

Privette says the question of his activity and loyalty within the party is not as important as the fact that he is "the only Republican who can win in November and help to build a strong Republican party. We've got to have some new blood, new leadership."

Privette's past activities did not deter conservative party wheelhorses like Frank Rouse of Kinston and Sim DeLapp of Lexington; they saw in Privette's following in the Christian Action League and Baptist State Convention a strong tie to the conservative Democratic votes a Republican must have to win in North Carolina.

Equally important, Privette had no ties to Gov. Jim Holshouser. Privette says he is not bothered by the fact that Rouse pleaded no contest last year to charges of illegally contributing corporate funds to a Republican candidate in 1974. He said Rouse realizes he made a mistake.

While cementing his ties to the GOP's conservative wing, Privette has abandoned his 1974 support of a controversial tax reform package backed by many Democratic liberals.

The package would repeal the sales tax on food and replace it with higher levies against the wealthy, mainly in the form of higher income tax rates for the upper brackets.

Privette says he now is uncommitted on that notion and would assign it to a tax study commission. He now favors a package that would appeal to manufacturers, merchants, and those with sizable holdings in savings, stocks, or bonds.

Privette proposes phasing out the tax on inventories for merchants and manufacturers. He maintains that he would stimulate the state's economy enough by doing so to replace the lost revenues. He also favors outright repeal of the intangibles tax on savings, stocks and bonds, and increasing the inheritance tax exemption from $10,000 to $50,000, to keep small farms together.

The package would cost the state more than $35 million the first year and an additional $7.5 million per year for the next nine years, while the inventory taxes are phased out. The revenue loss would come at a time when state revenues are not expected to be abundant.

That does not bother Privette. He is confident that "there's a lot of waste in state government." He thinks he will be able to find it and cut it out, although he doesn't know now where it is.

"I'm not zeroing in on the fat now. But it's there. Too many folks have said, 'Coy, after you're elected, I'll show you where the fat is in my department,' " he said.

Privette has maintained the opposition to liquor that launched his political career, but he says he accepts the principle that the decision to have liquor stores should be left to the counties. He still opposes local option for liquor by the drink.

Privette sees no conflict between his religious role and his political one. "My moral convictions are based on religious principles and the last thing we want to divorce from government is moral principles," he said.

And what guarantee does Privette give that his campaign pledges will all be fullfilled.

"If you're disappointed in me after four years I'll give you a credit to take a good running start and give me the hardest kick you've ever given anybody," he laughed.

Rabbi Wants Israel To Aid Palestinian State

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A strong sense of justice inherent in his Jewish faith leads Rabbi Jerome W. Grollman to believe Israel should help the Palestinians set up their own state in the Middle East — or at least not stand in their way.

"I cannot deny to another what I ask for myself," he says. "This is what I believe is at the heart of being Jewish."

Grollman looks back at the obstacles Zionists had to overcome to establish Israel, and he thinks Israel should work with the Palestinians, including the Palestinian Liberation Organization if necessary, to overcome those same obstacles to statehood.

In return, he said, Israel should demand Arab assurances that Israel will survive.

Grollman, 54, who has served for 28 years at United Hebrew Temple, oldest Jewish congregation west of the Mississippi River, is afraid time may be running out for Israel and it must take the initiative in helping the Palestinians.

Since the Palestinians have declared themselves to be a people, he said in an interview, no one has the right to deny them that status any more than anyone had the right to deny statehood to the Zionists in 1948.

"The point is not so critical what kind of a people they are, but are they a people, and who decides," Grollman said. "They've decided it — they are a people, they want to be a people, they plan to be a people living in their own land with their own culture.

"They're going to make the decision," he said. "We're not going to make it for them, and we shouldn't."

Grollman, a three-time president of the St. Louis Rabbinical Association, says he has felt this way as far back as the rash of Middle East hijackings a few years ago.

He remembers watching hostages being held "on that stifling, suffocating desert airstrip" and thinking that, yes, the Palestinians have the right to self-determination — but not at the expense of the Israelis or the sacrifice of Israel.

Grollman made his feelings known in a recent sermon, drawing parallels between the Palestinians and the Zionists, complete with the Jewish extremists and terrorists who bombed the King David Hotel in Jerusalem.

He said his views have drawn mixed reaction, mostly favorable but some negative. Some critics frown upon anything less than unanimity in Jewish viewpoints on the Middle East, while others think his view is an ideal that the Arabs could not be trusted to live up to.

Grollman discounts these criticisms, saying on the one hand that free expression is at the heart of Jewish thought and all views must be heard, and saying on the other that the pathway to peace must be found and Israel should take the initiative.

A positive step by Israel would put the onus on the Arabs to respond constructively, he said.

Giving the Palestinians a land of their own would help cut down on terrorism, he said.

"Give a person a parcel of land. Give him a home. Let him support a family. Let him have a job," he reasoned. "He is no longer a terrorist. He has too much at stake. It's desperation that creates terrorists."

A reduction of tension in the Middle East also will allow Israel to escape becoming a garrison state and use its resources for peaceful development, he said.

"It won't have a chance to develop what it wants to develop — what I want it to develop — unless it takes this route," Grollman said. "I think it's getting more critical every day."

Grollman has visited Israel five times and says he is second to no one in his support for the Jewish state. "I feel thoroughly devoted to Israel, and I'm not going to make any apologies, be defensive or try to prove my sympathies," he says.

"I feel very strongly and deeply for Israel, and that's why I speak this way."

Atlantic City's Basin Offers New Beginning

By WILLIAM M. BOOMBE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The queen of the Atlantic Ocean resorts has had a hard time keeping up her spirits lately.

Old age has taken its toll of this city that was once the belle of the beaches. Decaying neighborhoods, rising crime and the decline of the once stately hotels hurt Atlantic City's image and economy.

The city flirted with the idea of legalizing gambling casinos to restore her vitality. But the casino proposal was defeated in a statewide referendum in 1974.

Atlantic City started looking around for something else to save the tourist industry.

Eight business leaders, with an eye on the success of Connecticut's Mystic Seaport, thought of restoring a neglected lagoon and turning it into a 19th Century-style fishing village.

They went ahead with the project, named it Historic Gardner's Basin and welcomed their first visitors July 10.

For the opening, they couldn't have come up with a better publicity stunt — Christopher Columbus sailing aboard the Santa Maria into the Atlantic City harbor.

Martha Mason, who left a job as a builder with the U.S. Home Corp. to take over as executive director of the Basin, says the project may be more of a boom to Atlantic City than the Miss America Pageant.

"This is a tremendous thing for Atlantic City," she said. "This is the beginning of bringing something back."

Mayor Joseph Lazarow agrees.

"This is the most important non-commercial project in Atlantic City in the past 25 years," he said.

Actually, there is nothing historic about Gardner's Basin itself. It is just a three-block-long inlet named after a former mayor. But the Basin has drawn inspiration from southern New Jersey's rich nautical past.

Historic Gardner's Basin is a $750,000 investment in Atlantic City's future. Most of the money has come from public conservation project funds, but the city formed a non-profit Historic Waterfront Foundation to raise money in the future.

Atlantic City has no claim to historical significance compared with the seaports of New York, Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia. But that didn't stop the civic leaders from dreaming about ways to attract tourists.

They arranged to bring in a replica of Christopher Columbus' "Santa Maria," built earlier this year in St. Petersburg, Fla., at a cost of $250,000. To make the arrival of the "Santa Maria" complete, they found a direct descendent of Columbus serving in the Spanish navy.

Christoper Columbus XVIII agreed to attend the opening ceremonies and sail into the harbor aboard the "Santa Maria."

The "Santa Maria" will be berthed at the Basin this summer and next alongside a fleet of historic vessels permanently on exhibit. They include a replica of the "Flying Cloud" sailing ship that holds the New York-to-San Francisco speed record; a lightship; a schooner; a clam boat, and a two-man submarine.

The Basin also features an old clam shack that will be turned into a tarvern, and turn-of-the-century houses that will serve as arts and crafts shops. Later this year, the Basin hopes to add a Navy destroyer and a maritime museum.

Third Century America Expo Popular

By G. Michael Harmon
Associated Press Writer

KENNEDY SPACE CENTER, Fla. (AP) — Trumpeted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, 16 other federal agencies and a batch of big defense-space contractors, the message of the "Third Century America" exposition is subtly presented but pervasive: tax dollars for science and technology are tax dollars well spent.

"That's part of the whole theme," conceded Miles Ross, space center deputy director and general manager of the $5-million exposition, the only government-sponsored entry in the bicentennial bonanza. "We want to show the public what they are getting for their tax dollars."

Ross goes to great lengths to stress the fact that "this is not a NASA show," but it's clear that the space program's part of the exhibition is drawing the biggest crowd, which could total 500,000 by the time the show ends Sept. 7.

NASA, which is having to fight to maintain its budget for the space shuttle project, is using the exposition to open up its mammoth Vehicle Assembly Building (VAB) and adjoining Launch Control Center to the public for the first time.

In the cavernous VAB, visitors can test their coordination and responses on astronaut training devices, manipulate the controls of a lunar lander, follow the path of astronauts across a spacecraft access arm into a "white room," have their picture taken in a lunar rover or use a computerized scale which gives their weight on the moon and the planets.

The VAB is also loaded with models of the shuttle, the only manned project on the NASA drawing boards; the European-built space lab, which will be carried into orbit inside the shuttle; a cornucopia of spacecraft models; and the message.

As vicitors stand on an elevated visitors m at the rear of the room, row upon row of computer consoles familiar to millions of television viewers come afire in a dazzling blaze of light and sound.

The show blends motion pictures and slides of the historic 1969 launch on four large screens with taped voices of the launch time, the astronauts and mission control.

But visitors do not escape the message. In a recording, space center director Lee Scherer gives an emotional pitch for the shuttle as one of "the early big events of our nation's third century."

The industrial exhibits — including contributions from such giants as General Dynamics, Lockheed, McDonnel Douglas, Rockwell and Grumman Aerospace — and exhibits from other participating government agencies are housed in 15 geodesic domes strung out around the VAB.

Overshadowing it all is an actual 363-foot-long Saturn V rocket.

The exhibits of other government agencies, the cost of which is not included in the exhibition's $5-million price tag, don't equal the NASA displays in dramatic impact, but do include some informative and entertaining surprises.

The Department of Agriculture dome includes an experimental laser beam device used to cut lumber, and another futuristic machine that allows ranchers to check the age and physical condition of cattle as the animals walk by.

Visitors to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare exhibit can undergo on-the-spot tests for high blood pressure, hypertension, and other health problems. The tests are performed by new computerized diagnostic equipment.

The Department of Defense (DOD) dome comes closest to matching NASA in showmanship, treating visitors to the marvels of the latest advancements in weaponry but softening the deadly purpose of the machines with the strains of soft rock music.

Tourists can mint their own bicentennial coin in the Treasury Department exhibit and purchase bicentennial stamps in the U.S. Postal Service display.

In one refreshingly candid exhibit, an Environmental Protection Agency display examines the degree to which science and technology cause environmental problems as well as the ways in which they contribute to solutions.

Admission to the exposition is $3 for adults, $2 for youths 12 to 18 and $1 for children 3 to 11.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in a continued uneasy response to indications of a tightening of Federal Reserve credit policy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gave up nearly 2 points in the early going, and losers took a 2-1 lead over gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

On Tuesday Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the House Banking Committee the Fed had reduced its target for growth rates of two measures of the nation's money supply.

Investors evidently saw that news as increasing the chances of future steps to restrict credit by the central bank.

Today's early prices included Eastman Kodak, off ⅛ at 94; Brockway Glass, down ½ at 32⅛; USLIFE, unchanged at 14, and Texaco, up ⅛ at 27½.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.38 to 984.13.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index dropped .31 to 55.31.

Farmville Boy On Bike Hurt In Accident

FARMVILLE—A Farmville boy was critically injured yesterday afternoon when he apparently rode his bicycle into the path of a Farmville Street Department truck.

Farmville Police said Louis Franklin Strickland, nine, was listed in critical condition at Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning, following surgery last night for injuries suffered in the accident yesterday afternoon at the corner of Church and Waverly Streets here.

The driver of the town truck was identified as Rufus Beaman. Investigation is continuing, but Police Officer Jennie Childers quoted witnesses as saying the child's bicycle ran out in front of the truck.

CT&T Accord Reached

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the bargaining committee of the Communications Workers of America have reached agreement for a 10 per cent wage increase over 15 months, averting a strike.

The company said the committee had unanimously accepted its proposal Tuesday. There will be an 8 per cent increase for the 12 months from June 30, 1976, and an additional 2 per cent on present wages for the following three months.

The proposed agreement will be recommended to the union membership for ratification. Voting is expected to be completed on Aug. 12.

The company said its first proposal of a 7.75 per cent pay boost for 12 months was rejected by the union. A later proposal of 8.2 per cent for 15 months also was rejected, but it was restructured to produce the final proposal.

The company estimated that basic wage payments will be increased by about $2.9 million over the 15 months.

The conferees agreed to extend the present three-year contract for three months, the company said.

About 3,100 of the company's 4,500 employes are represented by the union.

Will Conduct A Mass. Workshop

Dr. Alfred S. King, coordinator of Driver and Traffic Safety Education at East Carolina University will conduct a Motorcycle Safety Workshop at Worcester College, Worcester, Mass., August 2-7.

The workshop, sponsored by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, is designed to prepare teachers to instruct motorcycle safety classes in high schools throughout the state of Massachusetts.

Dr. King introduced Motorcycle Safety Education classes to ECU students during the Summer of 1974. Since that time, this course has become extremely popular at ECU and has received state and national acclaim.

The Motorcycle Safety Foundation is a national organization sponsored by the Motorcycle Industry.

Aides Feted At Peking Banquet

TOKYO (AP) — American congressional committee aides were feted at a banquet in Peking given by Ko Po-nien, vice president of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs, a Peking broadcast said.

The Hsinhua news agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, said the U.S. delegation was led by Pat M. Holt, chief of staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Marian A. Czarnecki, chief of staff of the House International Relations Committee.

Also present at the Tuesday night banquet were Thomas S. Gates, Jr., and David Dean, chief and deputy chief of the U.S. liaison office in Peking, it said.

The U.S. delegation arrived in Peking on Monday, Hsinhua said.

Cite Mine Violations

RALEIGH (AP) — Labor Commissioner Avery Nye said today notices of violations have been issued in the operation of a gem mine at Hiddenite where two men died July 11 when walls caved in on them.

Nyde said in a prepared statement at a news conference that the Rist Mine is closed and "will not be authorized to reopen until the necessary corrective measures are taken."

He said violations concerned safety and health standards and that appropriate periods of time had been set for correcting the problem. He added a through inspection had been made of the mine.

Nye said his department is stepping up inspections of all similiar tourist-oriented mines in North Carolina.

"And," he said, "I have instructed all of our inspectors to issue notices of violation for any and all infractions of the safety and health standards and hazards observed.

"We believe the safety and health standards presently in effect are sufficient to properly inspect these operations. However, I am going to ask the Mine Safety and Health Advisory Board to study this situation in depth. If experience shows that additional standards are needed they will be developed and promulgated."

PWP Activities Are Announced

The Greenville Area Chapter of Parents Without Partners announces its activities for the rest of this month.

Wednesday at 8 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church an informal discussion will be led by Probation Officer Donna Alligood on "Problems of Teenagers."

Friday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. it's family bowling at Hillcrest Lanes. Saturday at 2 p.m. there will be an adult pool party at Oakmont Square Apartments. Participants should meet at Apartment E-6 at 2 p.m.

All single, divorced, separated, or widowed parents are eligible for membership in PWP, an international organization. Prospective members are invited to attend any PWP activity and may attend three functions without obligation to join.

Again 'Short' On Medicaid Money

RALEIGH (AP) — The private contractor handling North Carolina's Medicaid program has run short of funds to pay claims from doctors, hospitals and nursing homes that treat low-income patients for the third time in as many months.

Health Application Systems (HAS), the California company that has been seeking more money to do the job, told the Department of Human Resources Tuesday it has $9.5 million in checks ready to send out, but no funds to cover them.

Last May, the company announced that it might be forced to cancel its two-year contract with North Carolina because costs had risen beyond expectatons. The state has been advancing the firm millions of dollars in early payments since that time.

It appeared Tuesday, though, that it would take more than an advance to carry the company through August.

Bleecker Cooke, vice president of HAS, said the backlog of Medicaid claims is expected to be as high as $13 million by the time the state deposits funds for the company's next monthly payment on Aug. 3.

North Carolina pays HAS $16.6 million a month to process and pay all Medicaid claims from doctors and institutions which provide health care for low-income patients under the contract signed last year.

If Cooke's projections are correct, HAS would have less than $4 million left to pay claims submitted during the remainder of August—unless the contract is substantially changed.

Meanwhile, nursing home operators—especially those heavily dependent on Medicaid patients—are beginning to call the state Department of Human Resources about the delayed payments.

"They want them before Aug. 3," said Roy L. Holley, the department controller.

The last check run sent out by HAS was on July 12. Cooke said no further payments would be made "until the state releases more funds."

Buses To Roll...

way of Stratford subdivision and Evans Street. At the edge of the downtown area, the bus will turn up Fifth Street to Meade Street, and will then go to First Street Reade Street and back downtown.

"The schedules aren't really as hard as they look," he said.

"People need to be at their appointed stop a few minutes before the bus is due.

"The schedules also show only the major stops. If people can be at the intersections near a major stop a few minutes before the scheduled departure, the bus should be able to pick them up.

Don't be afraid to ask the bus driver for directions or transfer information. That's what they're there for."

Schofield said a cost analysis had been done to show how economical the bus travel would be.

"If, for example, you lived in the vicinity of First Street and Elm Street and needed to go to the hospital, taking the bus would save you money," he said.

"To drive a standard-size car that distance would cost you 41 cents. To drive a compact, your cost would be 34 cents, and for a sub-compact it would cost you 29 cents.

"But you could ride the bus for a quarter."

According to Schofield, departure times will be posted at the major transfer points, and take-out schedules are now being printed for distribution for individual use.

"I think we're the only town in the state that is putting together a bus system using local money," he said.

"I really hope the system will be well-used. If so, we'll look at long-range needs, so we can provide transit service throughout the town.

"We are also the only city in the state to use the Mercedes-Benz buses, which should be cheaper to use. A number of towns are going to be looking at our success with these buses.

"We've become a testing ground in North Carolina for the bus system."

Schofield said the city has spent a lot of time trying to work up the bus system.

"During that time, we tried to look at every possible alternative," he said.

"This is the first step toward helping to provide transportation for all citizens. I hope everybody rides it."

Mrs. Linda Hix, chairman of the Transit Commission, also urged the citizens to take advantage of the bus system.

"There has been a tremendous amount of planning, studying and research done in trying to set up the system," she said.

"We hope we can meet the needs of as many people as possible. I strongly urge the people to ride the buses."

According to transit manager Robert Tallo, it is in the best interests of the citizens to use the buses.

"It's more expensive to drive a car around town than it is to ride the bus," he said.

"Our system is very convenient, and it's in the community's best interest. We're doing anything we can to make it useful.

"We made arrangements so that people working the first shift at the hospital could get to work. We considered the times of class changes at the University.

"We have made it available to the people."

Tallo said he plans to speak to various employees' groups about the system.

"It's all a matter of communication," he said.

"I have to explain to people who haven't had a system for 30 years how to use one.

"Once it becomes apparent to people how to use the buses to their best advantage, they will use them. I believe we've made it convenient, so they will be used."

Dantley, Ford, Buckner Lead US Assault

US-YUGOSLAVIA BASKETBALL — Phil Ford of Rocky Mount, N.C. left, scrambles for the ball Tuesday as the U.S. basketball team goes against Yugoslavia in the finals. The U.S. beat the Yugoslavians to regain the gold medal which was lost at Munich in 1972. (AP Wirephoto)

MONTREAL (AP) — The gold medal in Olympic basketball has been returned to America by a dozen young men filled with emotion, not over their country's heart-breaking loss to Russia four years ago, but by the insistence of many that they could not win without several All-American players who chose not to compete.

"I think America should be grateful for the job we've done," said Scott May after the United States turned in a devastating performance to crush Yugoslavia 95-74 for the championship.

"I'm sure a lot of people wanted us to play Russia," said Quinn Buckner. "I just wanted to play for a gold medal. I didn't care who we had to beat. I just wanted it."

And, as 16,000 fans who jammed the Montreal Forum began chanting "USA All The Way" during the final seconds, no one could doubt how this U.S. team felt.

With Buckner clutching the ball to his stomach, May triggered a victory dance by the other four players on the court and the substitutes began pouring off the bench to join them.

The crowd rose, and roared its approval in a prolonged ovation. The American players were almost standing at attention, some smiling, some wearing serious expressions. Finally a few waved to the crowd and it brought an even louder cheer.

As the teams marched away from the medal ceremony, someone tossed some tiny American Flags at the U.S. players, who scoped them off the floor and waved them joyfully.

"I thought if we won it, a lot of fans would give us a standing ovation, which they did," said May. "We deserved it. A lot of people didn't think we could win it, but we did."

Mitch Kupchak, the big center from North Carolina, was especially gratified because he had borne the brunt of most of the written criticism concerning the team selection.

"Everybody kept writing about those who were not here, not those who were," he said.

The game itself was almost never in doubt. The Americans charged to a quick 8-0 lead and built that to 20 points after only 13 minutes of action.

Adrian Dantley, the Notre Dame All-American, provided the scoring, getting 18 of his game-high 30 points in the opening half. Phil Ford, the backcourt speedster from North Carolina, joined Buckner to lead a ball-hawking defense that produced 10 steals and forced the Yugoslavs into 19 turnovers.

"It will take seven stitches, but it's all right," Dantley said. "I'm tough. Besides, this is the biggest thrill of my life."

The European power made several runs at the Americans in the second half, but could never get closer than 10 points. Phil Hubbard, who just finished his freshman year at Michigan, hit 10 quick points in the second half to offset one charge.

Russia, which claimed the bronze medal this time with a 100-72 triumph over Canada, wasn't in the finals so a revenge game wasn't possible. Yugoslavia had upset the Soviets 89-84 in the semifinals Monday.

"They lost," May said. "That's their problem. We didn't care who we played."

There can, however, be no doubt that most Americans wanted the Russians because of the controversial one-point victory in the finals at Munich four years ago, one in which the Soviets played the final three seconds three times, hitting the winning basket the last time.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, coaching the youngest team in Olympic history, was moved to tears by the outpouring of emotion for his squad.

"I was so happy for them," he said. "There were tears in my eyes. I'm sure the players felt the same.

"When you've grown up in the United States and they raise that flag and play the National Anthem...that's really something."

Physicals This Sunday

KANSAS CITY (AP) — One of the most promising rookies in the training camp of the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League has called it a career and gone into coaching.

Pat McNeil, a 17th-round draft choice from Baylor who had surprised and pleased coaches in two scrimmages, left to accept a high school job in Waco, Tex.

"I think he had a good shot at making the team and I told him so," said offensive coordinator Chet Franklin.

"He came in to talk to me about his situation Sunday night and I would have guessed he would stay."

Clinic For Referees

There will be a football officiating clinic this Thursday night at the Elm Street Gym beginning at 7:00. All area officials are asked to attend and any prospective football officials should also attend the meeting.

Pirates Stop Daniels, 'Canes To Take 4-1 Baseball Victory

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina spotted Louisburg a run in the first and came back in the bottom of the inning to take a 2-0 lead and the Bucs added two more taking a 4-1 win over the second-place Hurricanes, last night.

The win gives ECU a 21-14 record. Louisburg is 25-15.

Larry Daughtridge picked up his second win against two defeats going the distance for the Pirates. He walked four, struck out five and gave up five hits. Daughtridge held Summer League batting leader J.C. Daniels in check giving up only one hit in five times to Daniels.

But that one hit helped give Louisburg its early lead. Daniels bounced the game's first pitch off the right field fence for a triple and Max Raynor sacrificed him over.

Rick Koryda walked to open the bottom of the ECU first and Macon Moye walked. The Hurricanes tried to pick Moye off at first but the ball hit Moye as he dove back in. Koryda went to third on the mix-up. Sonny Wooten singled to right scoring Koryda and hit by Bobby Supel scored Moye.

Louisburg put two on in the fourth when Nick Dunn walked and Ron Peoples singled but they failed to score. A double by Lynn Bradlye and a single by Tommy Warrich opened the top of the Hurricane fifth but the rally fizzled as Daughtridge retired the side without a run scoring.

Louisburg put two on in the eightn and got a man to third in the ninth but again, the Hurricanes failed to score.

Messersmith Going Against Los Angeles

ATLANTA (AP) — Andy Messersmith is set to test his injured leg again tonight when the Atlanta Braves host the Los Angeles Dodgers in the wrapup of a rain-shortened three-game series.

Tuesday night's contest was called after three scoreless innings.

Messersmith, the former Dodgers star, hasn't been himself since the All-Star break. He passed up a chance to play in that game because of a pulled hamstring muscle.

His last time out, a six-inning stint against Cincinnati, he held the Big Red Machine to two runs and looked more like the hero imagined when the Braves brought him to the East Coast.

He doesn't like to talk about injuries — especially the hamstring pull that kept him out of baseball's midseason classic.

Braves manager Dave Bristol admits he's thought about benching Messersmith for one pitchingturn to give the tissues a change to heal.

"But he wouldn't have any of that," Bristol said. "He's the most competitive guy I've run across in a long, long time. That's why it still disturbs me that he had to take all that stuff over the All-Star thing. It was unfair. He didn't deserve it."

Bristol said Messersmith, 9-9, will decide if he's able to play. He'll pitch against the Dodgers' Tommy John, 6-6, tonight.

If he can't make it, he'll tell me," said Bristol. "And you can take his word to the bank. It's that good."

"I'll be glad when this year is over "Messersmith said of a season that began with the free-agent controversy and his signing a multi-year, million-dollar contract with the Braves.

Then came the All-Star controversy.

"That stuff's already hit the fan. Let's just forget it," he said. "Nothing was said when Ted Simmons couldn't play last year. What good would it have done to have gone there and sat. This is more important, right here. These are the people who pay me."

But I feel good now. I'm fine," he said.

He said he never was asked to go to the game and sit on the bench.

Braves owner Ted Turner said Monday Messersmith should not have had to take the criticism from the media that he took berause of his failure to play.

"It was poorly handled from our end," Turner said. "I'll take the responsibility. I didn't know it would have such repercussions."

"Next year, if we have an all-star," Turner said, "he'll go to the game—dead or alive."

US Boxers Angered Over Judges Decision

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — "We're doing it now not for ourselves but for Davey Amrstrong," says Sugar Ray Leonard.

If the U.S. Olympic boxing team needed a rallying cry, it got one. It grew out of defeat, and not from the success the American fighters have been experiencing with a frequency matched only by the Cubans.

The Americans and Cuba were to try today to add four victories apiece and boost their semifinalists to eight each. Boxers from the two teams could collide in the finals of the 112, 140, 165 and 178 pound classes and in the semifinal of the heavyweight class, pitting John Tate of Knoxville, Tenn., against Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba.

Tate was to fight a quarter-final match today against West German Peter Hussing while Stevenson, trying to become the first two-time Olympic heavyweight champion, was to fight Pekka Ruokola of Finland.

The U.S. winners Tuesday night were light welterweight Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md.; lightweight Howard Davis of Glen Cove, N.Y.; bantamweight Charles Mooney, an Army sergeant at Fort Bragg, N.C., and flyweight Leo Randolph of Tacoma, Wash.

Armstrong, of Puyallup, Wash., the only team member who was in the 1972 Olympics, was narrowly outpointed in his 126-pound bout by Cuban lefthander Angel Herrera on a decision that was criticized by Armstrong's teammates and team manager Rollie Schwartz.

Armstrong seemed to land the sharper punches but the Cuban kept the pressure on, forcing the American to the ropes and landing well to the body. Three of the five judges scored it for Herrera, with one calling it 59-59 on points and then giving it to the Cuban on aggression.

"Davey Armstrong won the fight in my opinion," said Leonard. "It makes me sad because he trained so hard."

Leonard won his 140-pound bout against East German Ulrich Beyer. Sugar Ray landed almost at will to Beyer's head and kept him off balance until near the end of the fight when the rugged German began to score as Leonard tired.

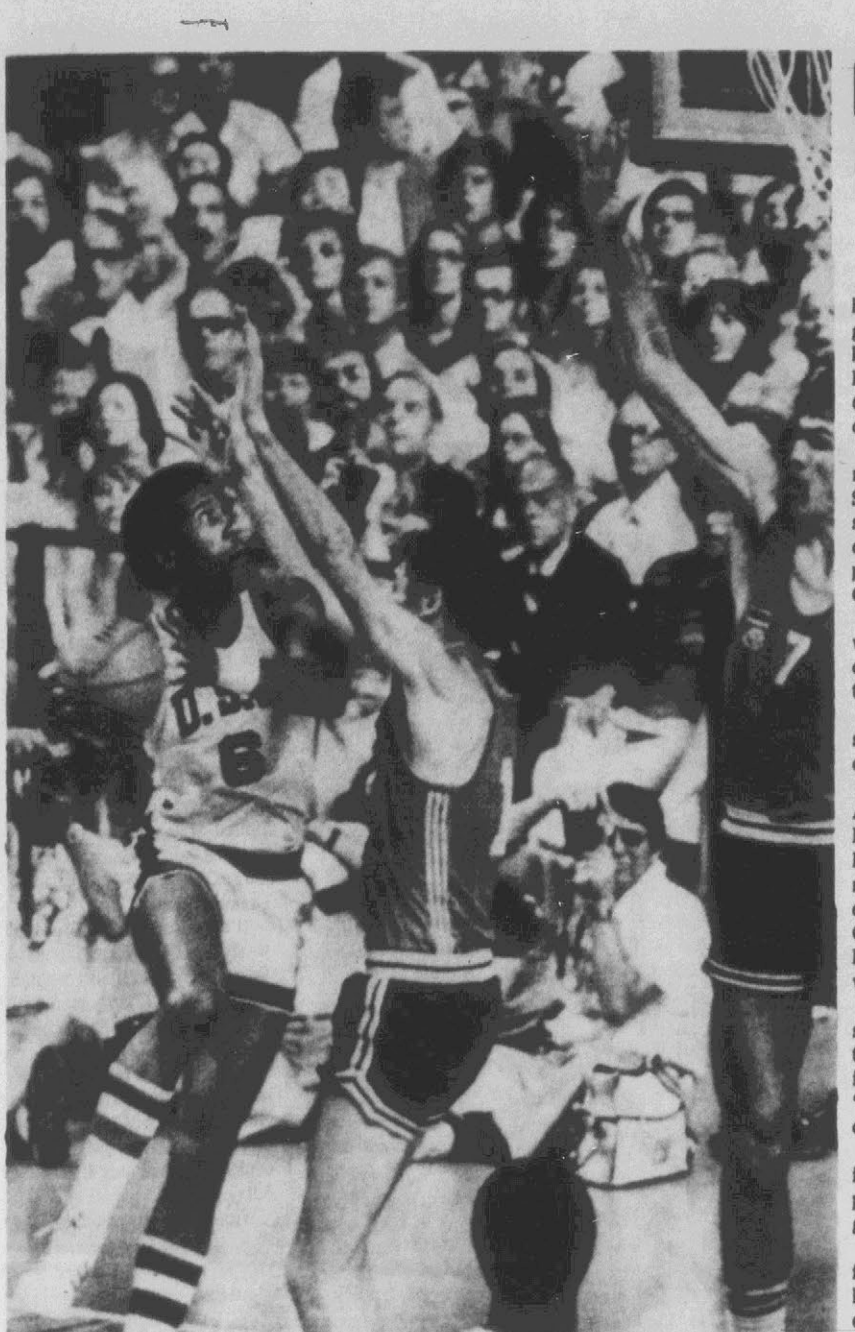

Davis got immediate inspiration for his 132-pound bout against Tzvetvan Tzvetkov of Bulgaria, stopping him in the third round.

"A lot of people think I can't hit," said the 1974 world 126-pound champion with the fancy movess. "But I didn't go out to prove that. I saw Davey get robbed. I thought he won every round. So, I thought I better go out there and show them something so it wouldn't happen to me."

"I started the team off and set an example," said Randolph, an 18-year-old high school senior after using some crisp head punching to score a 4-1 verdict over David Larmour of Ireland.

DANTLEY'S UP — Adrain Dantley of Washington, D.C. goes up for a shot in Tuesday's Final's match against Yugolsavia at the Montreal Olympics. Dantley was high scorer for the game with 30 points and he led the team to the victory and the gold medal. (AP Wirephoto)

Decision Pays In Gold Medals

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Perhaps no player on America's gold medal championship basketball team was more maligned before the Olympic Games than center Mitch Kupchak.

And perhaps no player was more satisfied after the United States' 95-74 victory over Yugoslavia Tuesday night than the curly haired, 6-foot-10, 229-pound University of North Carolina graduate.

"It was a pretty good feat with only four players," he quipped after the emotional triumph.

Asked what he meant, he said, "Well, we didn't have a center, did we?"

Kupchak, a second-team All-American last season while leading the Tarheels to the Atlantic Coast Conference title, nevertheless was regarded as a desperation choice for the Olympic team after more highly regarded centers declined invitations to the U.S. tryouts.

Kupchak said he also thought seriously about skipping the trials. "I knew it could jeopardize my career," he explained. "Going to the Olympics could endanger my pro value.

"What would have happened if I sat on the bench or didn't play well? Or suppose, I had gotten hurt? What then?"

Kupchak, whose Olympic performance will no doubt boost his pro value, said he did not decide until two days before the trials to go out for the 12-man squad, and his decision was made in the office of his coach, Dean Smith, who also happened to be the Olympic coach.

Kupchak, who scored 14 points in the final game and 75 in the Americans' six games, remembered thinking, "Do I want to go out and win a gold medal, or do I want to watch it on TV. When you come down to it, there was really no decision.

"My parents and my coaches didn't tell me what to do. They let me make the decision myself."

The 22-year-old youngster from Brentwood, N.Y., admitted there was extreme pressure on him because of the written abuse poured on him.

"It got to me," he confessed. "But when it was written, the All-Americans, Scott (May) and Adrian (Dantley) told me, 'Don't believe it. We can do it.' And other guys came up to me, even our other center, Tommy (LaGarde)."

Kupchak said he was so elated after the game that he felt "three chills going up and down my body. The first was when I stood up on the podium (for the victory ceremony). No. 2 was when they played the National Anthem, and the third was after the National Anthem."

Kupchak, No. 1 draft choice of the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association, said the Americans fully expected to play the defending champion Soviet Union in the final—"I'd be lying if I said we didn't.

Allison Hoping To Be Ready For Pocono Race

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Bobby Allison can't bend his toes these days. And he doesn't like to take a deep breath or cinch his belt too tight. Some of his old friends might not recognize him since he's grown a mustache to cover a few scars.

While most men would have spent the last two weeks in a hospital, Allison has been hobbling around in special cast-like shoes, getting ready to win a race on the only Grand National track at which he's been completely shut out.

"That situation should be remedied within about five days," said Allison, who took a frightful beating in a head-on crash into a cinder block wall earlier this month at Elko, Minn. He's one of several dozen entries for Sunday's $135,000 500-miler here.

Allison, and protege Neil Bonnett, tested his Roger Penske-prepared Mercury last week on Pocono International Raceway's 2½-mile oval and "went pretty fast."

"I should be feeling pretty good for Pocono," Allison said. "I'm still a little banged up, though. On my left foot I broke a couple of toes. I have three broken bones in the arch of my right foot.

"But they've made me a special shoe that's supposed to be better than a cast. It's a lace-up shoe with a steel inner liner and a contact pad for my heel, toes and arch. We've got a full size gas pedal in the car, too, so that helps.

"I've also got some broken ribs. That's nothing to pass off lightly but its really not in the category of a lot of other injuries. They're one thing unfortunately I've had a lot of in my career.

"I also have some little bone fractures in my face—count 'em if you're keeping score. I had some pretty bad cuts on my face, but a plastic surgeon has done a real good job patching those up. I had some bad ones on my lip, but I grew a mustache to cover those up."

Is that all?

"Oh, it was just another one of those little intersection problems I've had," Allison said of his Minnesota escapade. About this particular wall—"I've had a lot of them jump out and get me in my career."

He added, "The car just impaled itself on it. It didn't move, it didn't jump, it didn't twist. It just stopped.

"The impact compressed the car 27 inches in front. And it didn't even scratch the paint on the wall. That wall is 50 times stronger than the wall end I hit at Riverside."

Allison's whole season has been tough, not just this month. He switched from a Matador to a Mercury this season, and is still looking for victory No. 1 with the new car. He's been close, but there always seems to be a problem.

"One car was destroyed at Rockingham. That really set us back. That car was really a cut above the rest. The other Mercurys we've built have been good, but that one had something special about it," he said. "And the crash really beat my body up. It took a long time to get feeling good again after that. For a long time I still hurt, really hurt—my right side and the middle of my chest.

"At Minnesota, that was really an abrupt stop. But it didn't seem to bother me internally at all."

Allison, who insists he won't curtail his busy schedule because "I do what I do because I enjoy it," was back racing a week after that crash, although Bonnett took over on the first lap.

The 38-year-old Allison, one of four of stock car racing's millionaires, compares this season with 1969.

"I had three really bad crashes that year that sort of took all the success out of the season for me. We won some short track races, went to Darlington, led all day, then crashed real bad with four laps to go. We went to Daytona and destroyed the car there. Then tore up the car pretty bad again in a race Thanksgiving Day."

Besides the Rockingham and Minnesota crashes this year, Allison has also literally run into trouble at Darlington, Martinsville and a couple of other places.

Still, Allison considers the Mercury's development is progressing. A series of good finishes have kept him in the thick of the season point standings with Cale Yarborough and Richard Petty. And a victory Sunday would give the entire team a boost.

Jenkins Posts 200th With 8-7 Win Over Bosox

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It's been a disappointing season thus far for Ferguson Jenkins but it took a turn for the better Tuesday night.

The 32-year-old right-hander, who broke in with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1965 and is now with his fourth club, became the 72nd pitcher in major league history to post 200 victories.

Jenkins, who has pitched 39 career shutouts, reached the 200-victory milestone with a far-from-classic performance. He allowed 14 hits and seven runs in seven innings-plus as Boston held on to beat Cleveland 8-7 and snap a six-game losing streak.

"Hitting 200 is like getting a mink coat for the first time," Jenkins said. "You want it, but you never think you'll get it. This doesn't make up for the season and it's just my ninth win, but there's been a lot of innings and pitches for those 200 wins."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Oakland A's nipped the Chicago White Sox 1-0, the California Angels edged the Kansas City Royals 2-1, the Baltimore Orioles whipped the New York Yankees 4-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Detroit Tigers 6-4. The Texas-Minnesota game was rained out.

Fred Lynn drove in a pair of runs and scored three times and Boston survived a 16-hit attack. Boston's Carlton Fisk slammed his 10th home run of the season — his first since June 17 — and Cleveland's George Hendrick got his 18th.

A's 1, White Sox 0

Vida Blue scattered 10 hits in pitching his second straight shutout and the A's scored off Rich Gossage in the seventh inning on a double by Claudell Washington and Ken McMullen's single. The victory lifted the second-place A's within seven games of Kansas City in the AL West, the closest they've been since June 8.

Angels 2, Royals 1

Frank Tanana made Andy Etchebarren's two-run double in the fifth inning stand up with a four-hit 2-1 victory as the Angels snapped Paul Splittorff's Kansas City club record eight-game winning streak. The complete game was Tanana's 15th of the season, tops in the league, and gave Norm Sherry, the Angels' new manager, his fourth victory in five starts.

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Baltimore used four New York errors and a bad-hop single to score three tainted runs and Al Bumbry homered as Jim Palmer became the AL's first 14-game winner. Palmer, who has won eight of his last nine decisons, blanked the Yankees until the ninth when they scored on a hit batsman, a stolen base and Roy White's single, their fourth hit.

Brewers 6, Tigers 4

Mike Hegan singled home two runs and Detroit relievers let in two more with a wild pitch and a throwing error during a three-run seventh-inning Milwaukee rally. The Brewers overcame a 4-3 deficit in the seventh after loading the bases on a walk, a single by Von Joshua, a sacrifice and an intentional walk. Darrell Porter's sacrifice fly tied the score and two more runs came in on Steve Grilli's wild pitch and Bill Laxton's low throw to first on a pickoff attempt.

Brook Valley Holds Tourneys

The teams of Dena and Doug Morgan and Sue and Wilbur Castellow tied with Joyce and Harry Hastings and Sandra and Bill Smith to win a recent Jack and Jill mixed nine-hole tournament held at the Brook Valley Country Club.

The teams shot equal 33's. Jeanette Cox, Tommy Little and Carolyn and Wayne Chapman took second with a 34 and the team of Elsie and Willard Wilson-Evelyn and Gene Ward tied with Harriett and Louis Clark-Jean and Ted Hale for third with 35's.

J. B. Boyd, Joe Lamotte, Jim Grauer and John Calhoun won the Men's Team Championship held this weekend shooting a 105. The team of Charles Burkey, Brion Burkey, Joe Wilson and Ed Clark took second with a 110 and the team of Lee Alcorn, Carl Woxman, Jr., Clarence Kelsey and Jim Finch took third with a 112.

Sign-up sheets are on the Club House bulletin board for the following tournaments: Aug. 1: Guest Couple Mixed; Aug. 7-8: Father-son; Aug. 10-11: Junior Championship; Aug. 14-15: Member-Member.

In individual feats, Curtis McCormick scored his first ace recently when he hit a three-iron in on the 189-yard 18th. He was playing Charles Moye, Dorsett Ward, Robbie Piner and Paul McMahon.

Ann Moon had her best round-an 89; Patrick Wilson shot his best nine, a 40 and Tommy Little sank a seven iron on the 15th for an eagle.

Watson Watson Takes, Gives

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Bob Watson showed that he could take it as well as dish it out.

And, boy, did he have to take it Tuesday night.

The Houston slugger was hit in the face by a pitch and then battered in the back with a throw. But while the San Diego Padres were hurting Watson a little with the ball, he was hurting them a lot with his bat — driving in four runs to pace a 4-1 Houston victory.

"The ball hit the rim of my glasses," said Watson of the pitch from Rich Folkers that drove his glasses into his nose. "I sort of expected to get hit by the pitch."

The brush-back pitch occurred in the seventh, after Watson had done all his damage in the first five innings. Then, moments later, Watson was hit by the ball again — this time while trying to break up a potential double play.

When Watson slid hard into second on a ground ball, San Diego shortstop Enzo Hernandez threw his relay at the burly Houston runner and touched off a bench-clearing brawl. Watson and Hernandez started fighting before the rest of the players came on the field.

In the other National League games, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1; the San Francisco Giants routed the Cincinnati Reds 9-4; the New York Mets whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-1 and the Chicago Cubs blanked the Montreal Expos 5-0. Rain postponed the Los Angeles-Atlanta game.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 1

Frank Taveras scored the winning run on Willie Stargell's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, leading Pittsburgh over St. Louis.

Taveras' run snapped a 1-1 pitching duel between the Cards' Pete Falcone, 6-11, and the Pirates' Bruce Kison, 8-6, who survived 11 St. Louis hits with the aid of two double plays.

Giants 9, Reds 4

San Francisco battered Jack Billingham after being held hitless for four innings, scoring six runs in the fifth inning, and crushed Cincinnati behind Darrell Evans' three hits and three RBI.

Evans included a two-run homer in his night's work to support Jim Barr's pitching. Barr, the only San Francisco starter with a winning record, boosted his record to 9-6, allowing seven hits and four runs in 7 2-3 innings.

Mets 4, Phillies 1

Roy Staiger keyed two New York rallies and the Mets used only six hits to beat Philadelphia. Staiger singled and scored the first New York run in the fifth, when the Mets scored twice. The Mets added two more runs in the sixth with Staiger delivering a sacrifice fly.

Bob Myrick, 1-0, the second of three Mets' pitchers, earned the victory while Tom Underwood, 6-3, took the loss.

Cubs 5, Expos 0

Ray Burris tossed a three-hitter and Chicago scored four runs in the first inning as the Cubs snapped a four-game losing streak by blanking Montreal.

Burris, 6-11, faced a minimum 18 batters through the first six innings as Wayne Garrett, who singled in the first, was erased on a double play. The Chicago hurler did not allow another runner until Garrett singled with one out in the seventh.

Coke Nears Title

Coca-Cola defeated J.H. Hudson, 28-8 to inch closer to the season championship of the Junior Putter Association last night.

Coke was led by Hayes Finnegan and Rob Ericson with five each. Hudson was led by John Langley and Sueis Hudson each with three.

Buck's Gulf remained in second with a 27½-8½ over Jefferson Standard. Buck's was led by Irving Bennett, Ryner Bullock and Troy Fleming each with five points. Alan Parks had three for Jefferson.

Jerry's lost its chance at the title but won over Smith-Waldrop, 22-10. Leading Jerry's Joe Mauger with 5½ and Gordon Clark and Jerry Butts with five each. S-W was led by Eric Lee with six.

Coke is 10-4-2, Buck's is 10-5-1, Jerry's 10-6-0, Hudson is 7-9-0, Jefferson is 5-10-1 and S-W is 4-12-0.

Smith Carries Team To Gold

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MONTREAL (AP) — The long ordeal is ended for Dean Smith, the little Kansas-born court tactician who turned a mountain of headaches into a cascade of gold medals for the American basketball team.

"Now, after six months, maybe I can get in a round of golf," the University of North Carolina coach said after directing the U.S. fuzz kids to the Olympic championship with a 95-74 victory over Yugoslavia.

Smith, pale, and showing signs of strain from 16-hour days, carping criticism and the responsibility of having to restore America's basketball prestige, heaved a big sigh of relief.

"No, I don't think I would want this job again," he acknowledged. "I think the Olympic basketball coach, like the members of the team, should be changed every four years."

It's been a tormenting grind, but it ended at the foot of a rainbow.

"Just before the semifinal game with Canada, I thought the pressure was really getting to me," he added, "but, even with the tremendous stake, I felt more at ease in the final."

He admitted he couldn't restrain tears during the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

"My other coaches cried, too," he said, referring to John Thompson of Georgetown (D.C.) University and Bill Guthridge, one of his aides at North Carolina.

Smith won with the youngest team ever to play in the Olympic Games. One, Phil Tubbard of Michigan, is only 19. Three are 20 and five 21.

Against the Yugoslavs, they played older men—four over 26, all well-seasoned. They have played together as a national team for years.

Smith's was a team that was ridiculed before it ever stepped on the floor.

The experts, including pro scouts, said it was weak up the middle, lacking a strong center in Mitch KUPCHAK OF North Carolina after more highly rated pivot men became unavailable—by choice or otherwise.

Smith was roundly assailed because there were four of his North Carolina proteges on the team as well as three others from his conference, the Atlantic Coast.

"I wouldn't swap the 12 guys over there," he said, pointing to the team marching into the interview area, "for any other 12 guys that could have been picked. They proved themselves."

Kent Benson of Indiana, rated one of the country's best college centers, could not play because of an injured wrist but two others, Leon Douglas of Alabama and Robert Parish of Centenarz, spurned Olympic bids rather than jeopardize pro careers. Richard Washington of UCLA also chose not to play.

Smith said he personally got more satisfaction out of seeing his team redeem itself in the face of this widespread criticism than in the vindication of the "Great Munich Court Robbery" of 1972.

It was in the final at Munich that the United States lost its first basketball game in Olympic history, a 52-51 loss to the Russians after officials twice ordered replay of the final three seconds and the Soviets won on a goal by Alexander Belov.

The Americans protested bitterly, took their complaint to the highest councils without satisfaction. Finally, the U.S. players voted to turn down the silver medals.

Now they have a dozen golds, which they didn't refuse. Ironically, the coach doesn't get one, despite all the hours and sweat he poured into the campaign.

"It doesn't matter," Smith said. "I got all the satisfaction I needed from watching those guys win. They were stupendous."

It was, indeed, a remarkable effort by the scrappy youngsters. It was a rough, physical game. Yugoslavia's top guard, Zoran Slavic, went out in the first half with an ankle injury. Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, who led the U.S. scoring with 30 points, suffered a gash over his right eye but, after undergoing stitches, returned to finish the game.

One of the North Carolinians, Phil Ford, 6-2 and 170 pounds among giants, was a buzz saw, figuring in four steals and 12 assists. The two Indiana stars, Quinn Buckner and Scott May, gave outstanding performances.

"I don't think anyone can second-guess this team," the coach said.

Smith, 45, son of a former high school coach in Emporia, Kan., and once an aide of Dr. Phog Allen at Kansas, is an intense man by nature. He smokes two packs of cigarettes a day and often works 16 or 17 hours.

While the Forum rocked with the cheers of a predominantly pro-American crowd of 16,000, he was jittery as a caterpillar on a cook stove. He hitched his trousers, fiddled with his tie, leaped to his feet like a jack in the box at every crucial play. He was a battered, weary warrior when it was all over—but a happy one.

"Phog Allen had a hand in introducing basketball to the Olympic program in 1936. I'm glad I had a chance to bring the championship back to America," he said. "But we mustn't let our guard down. No one realizes how good these teams are—the Yugoslavs, the Russians, the Czechs. They could give anybody—Phoenix or the Celtics—trouble."

Florida State Moves Into Metro Conference

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State University will be admitted to the Metro Six Conference, according to a university administrator.

University officials called a news conference for today, and the president of Metro Six was expected to make the announcement of FSU's admission then.

FSU Executive Vice President Bernard Sliger said the six members of the conference were polled on admitting Florida State and "it looked pretty good."

Admission to the conference will fulfill a dream for Florida State athletic officials, who have won national recognition for the Seminole basketball team.

Traditionally strong in basketball, the Seminoles were 21-6 last year, but FSU has had scheduling and recognition problems as an independent.

Seminole basketball Coach Hugh Durham said earlier that conference officials have indicated FSU would be admitted if several government agencies agreed to build a suitable arena for the university's basketball teams.

The Board of Regents, Tallahassee City Commission and Leon County Commission have agreed to build a $25-million civic center which would seat about 12,000 persons for basketball games.

Construction work is scheduled to begin soon. The Seminoles now play in Tully Gym, which seats less than 4,000.

The six charter members of the Metro Six are Louisville, Tulane, Cincinnati, Memphis State, Georgia Tech and St. Louis.

The conference was formed as a basketball league, but members have considered competition in football and other sports.

Beck Leads Qualifiers

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Chip Beck, 19-year-old sensation from Fayetteville who finished second in the Southern Amateur in Memphis last week, took medalist honors Tuesday in qualifying for the 62nd Carolinas Golf Association men's amateur championship, which opens today.

Beck beat Tim Saylor of Wake Forest University and East Bend and Skip Dunaway of Charlotte on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff by sinking a four-foot putt. The trio was tied with two-under-par 70s on the 6,957-yard Carmel Country Club south course.

Beck's round included five birdies and three bogeys. Two of the bogeys were on the opening holes.

Beck, a rising junior at the University of Georgia, earned the second seed in the tournament behind defending champion Jim Holmes of Aiken, S.C.

Beck will meet Bill Wall, of Jamestown, who qualified with a 75, in the lower half to today's match play. Holmes will face Wylie Ramsey, of Marion, N.C., who carded a 75 Tuesday, in the upper half.

Thirty-two matches were set for today. Two rounds Thursday will reduce the field to quarterfinals Fridaz. Semifinals will be played Saturday and the 36-hole finals Sunday.

Four golfers finished at one-under-par 71, one stroke behind the leaders. There were Charles Lynch Jr. of Raleigh, Bob Cunningham of North Augusta, S.C., John Bunn of Raleigh and Todd Smith of Charlotte.

The cut came at 77, and 16 golfers played for the last ten places in the 64-man championship flight.

Among those making the field were Bill Harvey of Jamestown with 73, Scott Hoch of Raleigh with 74, John Leslie of Easley, S.C., with 72, Vance Heafner of Cary with 72, and defending Atlantic Coast champion Parker Moore of Clemson University and Laurens, S.C., with 72.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia will not participate in the 1978 Commonwealth Games in Edmonton, Canada, if New Zealand continues to maintain sports relations with South Africa and takes part in the Games. Hamzah Abu Samah, the Olympic Council of Malaysia president and trade mininster, made the announcement today.

On the boycott of the Montreal Olympics by 23 African countries, Hamzah said that although Malaysia strongly opposed apartheid, it did not boycott the Games because the situation did not warrant it.

OTTAWA (AP) — Quarterback Tom Clements and halfback Art Green triggered the Ottawa Rough Riders to a 38-27 Canadian Football League victory over the Winnipeg Blue Bombers Tuesday night. Clements threw two touchdown passes and ran for a third while Green scored a pair of TDs.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears of the National Football League have slimmed their roster to 61 by cutting six players, including former Cincinnati Bengals Champ Henson and Brad Cousino.

Also cut Tuesday were linebacker Jim Hovey, defensive end Bill Hoban, and defensive backs Jeff Tryon and Gary Evans. All four were free agents.

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Coach Chuck Knox says James Harris will be the Los Angeles Rams' starting quarterback — at least for the team's National Football League exhibition opener against Tampa Bay on Saturday night.

Knox said Tuesday that Harris will start and play the first half against Tampa, with Ron Jaworksi taking over in the third quarter and Pat Haden the fourth.

Jaworski, who's battling Harris for the quarterback job, however, will start against Dallas Saturday of next week, Knox said.

The Rams, continuing to trim their squad, asked waivers Tuesday on offensive lineman Mike Ballew, a free agent from the University of Washington.

WILMINGTON, OHIO (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals wide receiver Pat McInally, who missed all of last season with a broken leg, will be out 10-14 days in his current effort to make the team.

McInally, the fifth-round draft choice from Harvard last year, was injured in Saturday's intrasquad scrimmage. X rays for a possible shoulder separation proved negative, but he also suffered a mild concussion.

A total of 4,428 golfers filed entries for the 1976 U.S. Open.

By mid-June, Judy Rankin had won more than $79,000 on the Ladies PGA gf tour. Her closest rival, Betty Burfeindt, was more than $30,000 behind of her.

Southpaw pitcher Jon Matlack of the New York Mets won eight of his first nine decisions this season.

Bobick Says Stevenson Can Be Beaten Easily

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — He looks bored, lazy and sloppy. An assembly line worker 10 minutes before quitting time, a car wash guy sloshing his 12 millionth fender.

He's Teofilo Stevenson, the big Cuban heavyweight who is defending his gold medal here with eyes drooping into terminal ennui. He seems to want to be someplace else. The odor of a fighter-who-can-be-had is everywhere around him.

"Boxing is something he'd like to get over with," says somebody who knew Teofilo when.

The comment comes from Duane Bobick, the great American gold medal hope in Munich, who ran into a live Stevenson and his then-deadly jab the same day Black September massacred 11 Israeli team members.

"I would annihilate him now," says Bobick, now undefeated in 36 pro fights. "He hasn't advanced. His head isn't in it. My head was so messed up that day in Munich and I never got started. I think the Cubans force him into a lot of things he doesn't want to do, thinking he's invincible. When I spoke to him last he was really into the youth movement down there, the government thing."

Bobick, who fights out of Philadelphia, watched Stevenson on television Monday against Mamadou Drame, a Senegalese whose shoes were too big and his jaw too immobile. Stevenson got a second-round knockout but the impression he gave was of total lethargy, the day laborer from the worker's paradise who can't stand his job.

Stevenson fights Pekka Ruokola from Finland Wednesday, and the few minutes against Draoe — "a guy who couldn't do anybody any damage" — showed Bobick how reachable Stevenson is.

"His jab looks even slower than before. It looks like his attitude is shot and you see vulnerability all over him. Needless to say I wasn't impressed."

Bobick said he thought Big John Tate, the American heavy, could do the job on Stevenson, or for that matter some heavyweight he didn't know. "If they keep Tate moving away from him, he can do it. It's a slim chance, okay, but it's a real one."

Stevenson talked to reporters in his slightly arrogant style after beating Drame. He said he never heard of Tate; no, he wasn't bored; that he's fighting for the Cuban people and Fidel; that, sure, he's improved, and that no fights are easy.

He made faces at his manager that read like, "Get me out of here," and was just about to go when a reporter asked about his record. "It's 134 and two, with 95 KOs," he said.

Stevenson had forgotten a couple of losses in the bargain, including a knockout defeat in March to a Russian.

Bobick, who once beat Stevenson in the Pan American Games, sympathized with him and the loss of memory. He said, "You think it's easy to go on like that? What's he got to win? Another gold medal? And if he wins that, then they'll start bugging him about Moscow in four years. Stevenson can be had — now — and I sympathize with him. Tell him hello from me."

TWO FOR TEA

Cut out either coupon for your choice of 4 big ways to save on Tetley Tea Bags.

Tetley, the tea with the big tea taste, is now at your supermarket in a big way. To make it easy—and economical—for you to enjoy it, we give you your choice of two coupons. Cut along the solid lines, and you'll have a store coupon good for 30¢ off on 100 Tetley Tea Bags or 24 Family Size Tea Bags. Or, cut along the dotted lines for a 20¢ savings on either 48 Tetley Tea Bags or 12 Family Size Tea Bags. Every Tetley tea bag, packed with tiny little tea leaves, is packed with big tea taste which makes Tetley the perfect tea for iced tea. You can see by the deeper, richer color that Tetley's flavor is big enough to stand up to ice, right down to the last refreshing sip. So be sure to cut out either one of these coupons —for savings on a package of Tetley that will suit you to a "T."

Overall Drop In Building

Building permits valued at $2,171,065 were issued in Greenville during May, according to North Carolina Commissioner of Labor Avery Nye.

Nye said the Greenville total was part of the overall $49,261,915 in permits issued in North Carolina by 38 cities. The May total for the state was down 25.1 per cent from the $65,784,800 recorded for May of 1975.

Greenville was one of four cities in the state to exceed $2 million in permits, it was noted, while five cities were over $1 million. Winston-Salem led the 38 cities in May with permits totaling $10.3 million.

According to the commissioner, new home building permits continued to be issued at a brisk pace in May as a total of 651 such permits were issued in the state for single family dwellings, an increase of 31 per cent over last May's 496 permits.

Total building permit value for the first five months of 1976 in the 38 cities was $243,780,125, Nye noted, gaining 2.7 per cent over the $237,345,384 reported for the first five months of 1975.

Area city totals for May included: Elizabeth City, $232,800; Goldsboro, $375,000; Jacksonville, $386,701; Kinston, $721,500; New Bern, $473,714; Roanoke Rapids, $949,698; Rocky Mount, $1,178,954; and Wilson, $1,178,010.

Mom Follows Her Daughters

Her daughters are Joan Reed, who graduated from the Methodist school and is now a nurse at another hospital, and Jean Reed, who graduated from the school recently and will continue there as a graduate nurse.

Mrs. Reed, who teaches anatomy and physiology at the University of Tennessee Center for the Health Sciences, said she became a part-time nursing student because she needed practical experiences around the hospital to rewrite her published book on physiology for nursing students.

Jupiter is so large that it alone makes up nearly three-fourths of the entire mass of planets and moons in the solar system, says National Geographic.

A HAM AND EGGS — This little fellow hamming it up for the camera is a male jaw fish and he's carrying his family-to-be in his mouth, as is the custom of the jaw fish. This fish, about 3 inches long, has the eggs deposited in his mouth by the female and carries them to their burrow. This individual has been living at Sea World, in Orlando, Fla., for almost a year-and-a-half before breeding. (AP Wirephoto)

Texas Song Has Scene 'Changed'

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In 1974, Jim Cowen and David Anderson wrote "Texas Is My Home," but like the majority of country music written, it never got beyond the reception room of a record producer's office.

"It never went anywhere because by then everybody had been Texased to death," said Cowen, a native of Rogers, Tex.

While Cowen was trying to sell the song, Zeke Sheppard was playing rhythm guitar and harmonica in Canadian one-nighters, many times on the same bill with Gordon Lightfoot or David Clayton Thomas.

But Sheppard, who did many after hour jams with Lightfoot, decided he would have to migrate to Nashville in order to make it in country music.

Since 1974, Cowen has written several more songs, played a lot of gigs, and had all but forgotten about the song.

Sheppard has been playing sideman for such artists as Mel Street and Tommy Jennings, Waylon's brother, and looking for the right song.

Cowen agrees, saying, "It's a good way to get to know the right people."

Earlier this year, record producer Scott Turner asked fellow Canadian Sheppard if he would like to record "Texas Is My Home."

"Scotty played it for me and I flipped out over it," Sheppard said. "There's a lot of lyric content that I associate with; I just feel its a great song."

A Canadian law, requiring one-third of the music played on radio stations be of Canadian subject matter, gave rise to an unprecedented idea.

Sheppard and Turner changed a word or two here and there, moving the locale of the song from Texas to Canada, virtually guaranteeing air play in the provinces.

San Antonio was replaced with Peggy's Cove and Lone Star Beer fell to Moosehead Ale. But the basic storyline and music remained unchanged.

The result: "Cape Breton Is My Home." Cowen admits he didn't like the idea at first.

"I had the same reaction as any songwriter. I didn't like the idea," Cowen said. "But after hearing the changes, I realized it just added to the song."

Sheppard recorded both versions of the song, adding his harmonica to the mix. Plans call for the song to be released simultaneously in the United States and Canada in September.

Marker Placed On Invasion Site

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A historical marker commemorating the Woll Invasion, Mexico's last raid on the Republic of Texas, has been placed on the Main Plaza Building.

The building, located near the site of the invasion and ensuing battle, was selected as the site for the marker by the Bexar County Historical Commission.

Gen. Adrian Woll, commanding a Mexican army of 1,400 men, invaded San Antonio in September, 1842. He held the city for nine days.

How Tar Heel Senators And Representatives Voted

By Roll Call Report

House

JOBLESS PAY Passed, 237 for and 157 against, a bill (HR 10210) extending coverage of the federal-state unemployment compensation program to about nice million additional workers and increasing employer-paid taxes to replenish trust fund reserves depleted by the recession. The bill was sent to the Senate.

Covered by unemployment compensation for the first time would be state and local government employes, agricultural workers and some domestic workers. The bill would also establish a commission to study long-term needs of the program.

Also, federal employer taxes would be increased to point-seven per cent (.7 per cent) of the first $6,000 earned by an employe. The present rate is point-five per cent (.5 per cent) of the first $4,200. This federal rate is in addition to the employer's state unemployment tax rate, which in most states is a maximum of 2.7 per cent.

Rep. William Steiger (R-Wis.), a supporter, said the bill "makes significant improvements in the present unemployment compensation system and takes steps to return the system to a fiscally sound basis."

Rep. Virginia Smith (R-Neb.), an opponent, called the bill "another case of congressional overkill," and said its provisions will "greatly increase the burdens of small business without coming to grips with our unemployment problems."

Rep. Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), Stephen Neal (D-5), Charles Rose (D-7) W.G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9) James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

Rep. Ike Andrews (D-4) did not vote.

DEBT COLLECTORS Failed, 201 for and 175 against, to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to suspend certain rules and pass HR 13720. The bill would regulate the practices of professional debt collectors. Failure of this motion means that the bill now must be brought to the floor under normal parliamentary procedure.

The bill would prohibit debt collectors from misrepresenting themselves and from harassing debtors through such means as threats or publication of debtor lists. The bill also would limit how often and at what times of day debt collectors may contact debtors. Enforcement responsibility would lie primarily with the Federal Trade Commission.

Rep. Frank Annunzio (D-Ill.), a supporter, said that the bill is needed because "for far too long, debt collectors have been collecting money from consumers by use of harassment, abuse and deceptive tactics." He said that state laws on debt collection are inadequate and are not unifrom.

Rep. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa), an opponent, said the bill is "so restrictive that even the honest, conscientious debt collector is going to have a great deal of difficulty in doing his job." Also, Grassley said, the bill does not cover retailers who collect debts from their customers.

Fountain did not vote.

OCS passed, 247 for and 140 against, a bill (HR 6218) strengthening the regulatory framwork for leasing federal oil and gas reserves off U.S. coasts on the Outer Continental Shelf. The bill was sent to conference with the Senate.

The bill provides in part for state involvement in Interior Department decision-making on leasing the reserves, a new emphasis on bidding for leases and new rules for fixing liability for damage from oil spills.

The measure is supported by environmental groups and coastal states, and is opposed by the Ford Administration and major oil companies.

Rep. John Murphy (D-N.Y.), a supporter, said the bill meets "the need for state involvement in the planning process, the need to reverse our growing dependence on imports of foreign oil and the need to protect our marine environment."

Rep. Charles Wiggins (R-Calif.), an opponent, said that the complexity of off-shore oil and gas exploration is "much like going to the Moon," and that "it is terribly unwise . . . to attempt to write, chisel into stone, as it were, the rules, the regulations and the procedures under which we are going to undertake that very uncertain and expensive business."

Henderson and Martin voted "nay."

Senate

PUBLIC WORKS Overrode, 73 for and 24 against, President Ford's veto of S 3201, a $3.95 billion Democratic-sponsored bill aimed at curbing unemployment and stimulating the economy, by means of fiscal 1977 grants for local public works and pollution control projects and special revenue-sharing payments to governments in high unemployment areas. A two-thirds majority was needed to override the veto. The bill became law when the House also overrode the veto.

The bill authorizes $2 billion for general public works projects, $1.25 billion in additional revenue sharing funds and $700 million for sewage treatment grants under the Water Pollution Control Act.

Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), a supporter of the veto override, said that $3.95 billion for the programs "is a realistic amount which can bring postive results to our whole economic development plan."

Opponents generally agreed with President Ford that the bill si too costly and inflationary. "Our efforts to remove the last vestiges of the recession should not throw us back into the boom and bust cycle that created the turmoil of the last few years," said Sen. James McClure (R-Idaho).

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) did not vote.

TAX CUTS Adopted, 66 for and 28 against, an amendment extending the $35 per-person federal income tax credit and certain other income tax cuts through calendar 1977. The amendment was attached to HR 10612, a pending tax reform bill.

The Senate Finance Committee had recommended that the tax cuts be allowed to expire next June, to keep revenues in accord with congressional budget projections. Extending the cuts an additional six months would cost the Treasury an estimated $3.6 billion in revenues. Congress enacted the cuts last year to stimulate the economy.

Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) said he supported the tax cut extension "becuause to do less would be to produce a tax increse of major proportions."

Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.), an opponent, said that extending the cuts would upset Senate Budget Committee fiscal 1977 revenue estimates, and would erode the committee's role in "controlling expenditures and requiring enough revenue . . ."

Helms voted "yea."

Specialist Says Orchid Takes Time And Work

NO GREEN THUMB—It takes dedication to grow orchids, says Dr. Jelle De Boer of Albuquerque, N.M., shown with catalaya orchid blooms.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — "A green thumb is a lot of baloney," says Dr. Jelle De Boer, a civilian employe at Kirtland AFB, whose hobby is orchid growing. "It's not a green thumb, or any other magical power that makes a person successful at horticulture, but work, and plenty of it."

De Boer spends at least two hours a day trimming, feeding and repotting his orchid plants.

"I know people who make a lot of weekend pleasure trips," says the Air Force Weapons Laboratory scientist. "And when they get back home, they expect to find their plants flourishing and producing abundantly.

"Well, it just doesn't come out that way. If you work with plants, you get good blooms and, if you don't, you won't."

De Boer began growing orchids in 1962. He says he had never been particularly interested in flowers, but a friend was throwing away some old orchid bulbs and he figured it would be a challenge to see what he could do with them.

The more he worked with the flowers, the more he enjoyed it. He now has a collection of 200 plants comprising eight species and 20 varieties.

For anyone who might like to grow orchids, De Boer has this advice:

"First of all, get a book on the subject from the library. It always pays to find out as much as possible about the plant you are trying to grow, no matter if it's orchids or some other kind."

Whether orchids are started from seeds or bulbs, the three most important things to watch are temperature, humidity and light, De Boer points out.

Some orchids can stand temperatures as low as 40 degrees, but for most of them, especially one of the more common species, catalayas, the temperature should not get below 50 degrees.

To cope with the need for high humidity, De Boer's greenhouse is equipped with a watering device that turns on automatically whenever the humidity gets below 75 per cent. The thermostat is set at a minimum of 55 degrees and his greenhouse is well ventilated, "because orchids like air."

For people who don't have the space, or can't afford a greenhouse, a window sill works almost as well, he says. "Just be sure the temperature is above 55 degrees and there's plenty of light. If you live in a place where you don't have much sunlight, fluorescent lights can be used. For humidity, the flowers can be placed on a tray filled with water."

Orchids are grown in pots filled with redwood chips and fir bark, with good drainage in the bottom. They should be fed rather heavily once a week until they start blooming, after which they can be fed lightly. It is best to repot an orchid plant at least every two years. Also,keep dead leaves trimmed away from the plants.

If a plant is started from seed, De Boer explains, the first bloom appears in five or six years. But it only takes two years for the first bloom from a good-sized bulb.

BUT DOES HE BITE? — A sign on the door of a Baton Rouge restaurant warns potential burglars there's more in the kitchen than apple pie. The wry invitation seems to put some teeth into the establishment's defense against break-ins. (AP Wirephoto)

There's One Big Catch To 3-D Television In U.S.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Three dimensional television is now being developed, but the illusion of depth requires the viewer to wear special glasses. Millions of these glasses would have to be distributed to American homes.

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three dimensional television is coming.

Three-D movies are old hat, of course, but the process has never made the transition to television because the Federal Communications Commission dictates that all TV pictures be of high quality for every viewer.

That was impossible under the 3-D process used to make such movies as "House of Wax" and "Bwana Devil" because double images appeared on the screen and the viewer had to wear special glasses to make sense of it all.

Now a process has been invented that for the first time presents a normal, flat picture to the naked eye; a picture that transforms into an illusionary world of depth when viewed with special glasses.

All you have to do to see it is move to Japan.

Two animated series made with the new 3-D process will begin airing there in January, one a science-fiction adventure and the other a fairy tale.

Yutaka Fujioka, president of Tokyo Movie Co., "is selecting with very great care stories that will have international appeal," says John Rocknowski, the company's American representative. "We have definite plans to begin a very aggressive marketing program here as soon as the pilots are available."

But a warning: "Don't expect objects to come flying out of the screen at you as they seemed to do in those old 3-D movies. The illusion of depth is created, as evidenced in a three-minute test film Dudley has, but it isn't of a startling, dramatic nature.

There is another limitation to Dudley's process. He says it is economically practical only for animation. Production costs would be prohibitive for a live action program, he explains, but with cartoons, where every movement on screen can be controlled, the cost would increase only 10 to 15 per cent.

Yet even three-dimensional cartoons would be exciting and valuable, argues Dudley, a 3-D pioneer who gave his first film demonstration with it in London in 1935. He moved to Los Angeles in 1959.

Three-dimensional photography dates back more than 100 years and Dudley has worked with it in a variety of forms, ranging from films to X-rays to pictures taken in outer space. He is credited with developing the technique that led to the 3-D movie boom of the early 1950s.

A company called Video West says it is ready to market a small device which, when placed in a camera lens, will produce film that can be viewed in 3-D with special glasses, or one-dimensionally without them.

Dudley, however, has read of the Video WEST system and maintains that it does not meet the FCC's stringent quality standards and thus will not be used for television.

His new system for TV, called Stereochrome, is something quite different, Dudley says, the result of 31 years of work in his spare time.

With investor's caution, though, Dudley declines to discuss how it works. He will only say that there are five separate optical processes involved, and the illusion of depth is produced subjectively with special glasses.

There's still the matter of getting those special viewing glasses distributed. It's one thing to hand them out as people walk into a movie theater; it's quite another to get them into viewers' homes.

Tokyo Mogie Co. has turned to a popular Japanese children's magazine with a huge circulation to do the job. For three months before the series go on the air, each copy of the publication will contain a pair of glasses along with articles to promote viewer interest.

That approach probably wouldn't work in the United States. Instead, both Dudley and Wales envision major TV sponsors, such as breakfast cereal companies or auto manufacturers, tying in with a 3-D show. The sponsors could then base entire advertising campaigns on 3-D and distribute glasses in the process.

The upshot of that, of course, is that commercials would be in 3-D, too.

It is not often that one particular hand can be singled out as determining the results of a world championship. However, that was the case at the recent World Team Olympiad in Monte Carlo.

Going into the last round, defending champion Italy needed only a tie against Greece to assure themselves of a fourth straight title. Greece was not given much of a chance against the might of Italy, but they surprised the spectators in the Vu-Graph room by taking the lead on the very first board and holding on to it. When this hand turned up, the Greek North-South pair got to four spades and made it comfortably, losing only a trick in each black suit.

Italy reached the excellent contract of six diamonds, and the audience knew that if declarer made his contract, the champions would win the match and with it the championship. Had the lead been anything but a club, declarer would perhaps have been able to play for a double squeeze with clubs as the middle suit.

Declarer ducked the first trick, and a club continuation forced the ace and put an end to the hopes for the double squeeze. There were two lines of play available. One was a dummy reversal. For this to succeed, declarer would need a 3-2 trump division and a modicum of luck in the heart suit so that he could ruff two hearts and a club in his hand, leaving the dummy hand high. A glance at the diagram shows that this line would have succeeded.

Declarer chose an alternate line. He drew three rounds of trumps, cashed the ace-king of hearts and ruffed a heart in his hand. Now he led his remaining trump, discarding a spade from dummy. Had spades divided 3-3, or had the hand with four spades also held four hearts and so been caught in a major suit squeeze, the contract would have rolled home. Unfortunately, the spades did not split evenly and no squeeze developed. As a result, declarer was down one. Italy lost 13 International Match Points instead of gaining 12. Greece won the match and Brazil became Olympiad champions.

Bonanza In Restoration

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Digging during the restoration of an 18th century Quaker meeting house has turned up an 1852 penny and Indian arrowheads, some estimated as dating back to 1600 B.C..

John Bauckman, director of the High Point Museum, is overseeing the restoration of a church built in 1819 and a store built six years later. Both structures are on their original sities, now within High Point City Lake Park.

Bauckman said the soil layers in the area reflect definite historical periods.

The U.S. penny, found this week by students working at the dig, was about the size of a half-dollar. Collectors estimated its value at about $450.

The arrowheads along with other finds will be displayed at the museum.

Restoration of the buildings will complete a five-building project undertaken by the museum. The first three, also on museum grounds, are two cabins and a blacksmith shop built 200 years ago.

The meeting house and store were built by John C. Mendenhall, a member of a large and wealthy family in the early 19th century. The church is considered one of the earliest examples of Federalist period architecture in the state.
