

Doctor Warns 30,000 Will Die Within Three Days No Relief For Besieged Camp

By MICHAEL ROSS
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian sources said Saturday leftists kidnaped the Roman Catholic archbishop of Sidon in retaliation for Christian refusal to allow thousands of wounded to be evacuated from the besieged Tal Zatar Palestinian camp. The Red Cross called off its sixth attempt to take wounded out of the camp, and one Swedish doctor warned, "We will all die in three days" unless medicine and water reach the surrounded leftist defenders, under siege by Christian guns for 41 days. Sources from both the Moslem leftist and Christian rightist factions said Msgr. Ibrahim Helou, the archbishop of the ancient port of Sidon, now in leftist hands, had been kidnaped in an effort to force the Christian to allow the evacuation of Tal Zatar. The report could not be immediately confirmed by independent sources. Sidon, an ancient seaport where the Apostle Paul stopped on his way back to Rome as prisoner, has been a Catholic bishopric since 1683. The Red Cross said it had postponed its latest attempt to enter the camp because Christian forces besieging the camp since June 22 imposed terms "which add too much risk to the operation," a spokesman said. "They came up with a condition which said we could not go beyond a certain point (into the camp)," he said. "We cannot accept that. It would mean the wounded would have to come to us."

Dr. Lars Smedmalm, one of three Swedish medical personnel trapped in the siege, reported 30,000 persons at Tal Zatar would die in three days without water and medicine. "They are dying, they are dying," Smedmalm, speaking in an anguished, cracked voice, told reporters over two-way radio. He said 1,400 had died in the past month and another 4,000 wounded were "lying on top of one another" in basement shelters. "There is no water left save in a few wells," Smedmalm said.

"The Christians watch these wells and whenever we try to bring water from them, they shell us. We lose about 25 persons each day for that reason alone. "Soon, in three days, people will be dying of dehydration. If you don't come, we will all die in three days," he said. "Do you hear me?" he screamed. "We will all be dead in three days!"

Ransom Was Apparent Motive

By DONALD B. THACKREY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Authorities said Saturday a straight cash-for-kids ransom was the apparent motive in the kidnaping of 26 Chowchilla, Calif., school children and their bus driver. The conclusion was based on documents found on the 100-acre family estate of one of the three rich young suspects arrested in the July 15 mass abduction, Fred Newhall Woods, investigators said. The documents, including a rough draft of a $5 million ransom note, a list of the victims' names written on a paper bag and an outline of a plan to kidnap a busload of children and hold them for money, were expected to be unsealed Monday in Chowchilla. A 10-day gag order on details was imposed by the San Mateo County Court, near the suspects' homes south of San Francisco, when the search warrant was issued for the Woods estate. According to authorities, the $5 million ransom note was accompanied by demands that the cash be dropped by air in a shatter-proof container in a rough, desolate area of the Santa Cruz mountains. These rugged mountains have been used for years as a hideout for drug dealers and others in trouble with the law. After a rash of killings in the area, an official dubbed it "the murder capital of the world." Woods, 24, was captured by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Thursday in Vancouver, Canada, and was flown back to California from Seattle Friday night. He was held Saturday in Sacramento County Jail pending transfer to authorities in Alameda County, east of San Francisco, where the two other suspects, James Schoenfeld, 24, and his brother, Richard, 22, are imprisoned. James was seized in Menlo Park, near his home, the same day as Woods' capture. Richard surrendered voluntarily eight days ago. The three suspects are being held under $1 million bail each on the 43 charges of kidnaping and robbery. They are scheduled to appear together in Chowchilla Justice Court Wednesday for bail reduction motions. It was there that the younger Schoenfeld brother, known as Rick, pleaded innocent Thursday before parents and friends of the victims who were buried in a moving van in a quarry for 16 hours before escaping. The quarry, in Livermore, Calif., east of San Francisco, is owned by Woods' father. William Gagen, attorney for the Schoenfeld brothers, said their parents "are very supportive." He said Richard told him by phone "he wants to see his family." The Schoenfelds' father is a wealthy Atherton, Calif., foot doctor. Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins said he can think of no other motive in the crime than extortion, and that there is a strong case against the young trio. Investigators said the significance of the "paper bag list" is that the victims were forced to give their abductors their names and personal items as they went down one-by-one into their underground prison. The list reportedly has the names in the same order as the captives' descent. In Spokane, Wash., FBI agent Les Dieckman said a newspaper classified ad helped authorities capture James Schoenfeld. Dieckman said that by checking the ads of northern Idaho papers, agents found the name of a Coeur D'Alene man who sold Schoenfeld the van in which he was seized. The check began after Schoenfeld abandoned a car in Coeur D'Alene.

Staying On

MONTREAL (UPI) — A winking and sheepishly grinning Soviet press agent announced Saturday morning that his nation would not withdraw from the last two days of Olympic competition despite a political brouhaha over the "disappearance" of a young Russian diver. Mihail Efimov, chief press attache for the Soviet delegation, was fully aware of the irony of his situation. Just 10 minutes earlier he had told an American reporter and three overseas television crews the USSR was reserving the right to pack up and go home if the Canadians did not reply to the Soviet demand that an alleged underground defector, 17-year-old Sergei Nemtsanov, be returned to the Olympic Village.

Provisional Accreditation Granted To ECU Program

By BETTY SANDERSON
Reflector Staff Writer
The Family Practice Residency Program, a part of the Eastern Area Health Education (AHEC) Center Program, has been accredited on a provisional basis to offer three years of graduate medical education in family practice. The announcement of accreditation was made Friday afternoon by Dr. F. M. Simmons Patterson, executive director of the Eastern AHEC Center Program, and by Dr. William Laupus, Dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine. The residency program will be administered by the ECU medical school. Teaching faculty physicians are currently being recruited. Dr. James Jones is director of the local Family Practice Residency Program, which is now operating in a temporary facility close to the present Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Plans are under way for a permanent $2,000,000 facility which will also encompass the permanent Eastern AHEC offices. This building will be adjacent to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital and the ECU School of Medicine. "This is really a great step forward," said Dr. Patterson. "We have hoped and eagerly anticipated that our Family Practice Residency Program would be approved. "Now that accreditation has been granted, we will begin active recruitment for physicians to begin, on January 1, 1977, a three-year training program in the specialty of family practice. "We are extremely gratified," he added, "that our efforts to obtain accreditation for this program have been successful."

The first residents are expected to begin their training Jan. 1, 1977, even if the medical school is not open by that time, Dr. Patterson noted. Recommendations were made to the Liaison Committee on Graduate Medical Education several months ago by the Residency Review Committee, which is composed of representatives of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the American Board of Family Practice and the American Medical Association Council on Medical Education. The Liaison Committee reviewed these recommendations and then accredited the program on a provisional basis. All new programs receive provisional accreditation and are resurveyed after one year.

New Quake Imminent?

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese officials warned diplomats and other foreign residents of Peking Saturday a powerful new earthquake was imminent in the same region devastated by a quake and aftershock last week, Peking diplomatic sources said. The sources told UPI by telephone that water and electricity still had not been restored in all sections of the Chinese capital and some embassies were planning to evacuate part of their staffs to Hong Kong or Tokyo. Foreign visitors and other non-permanent residents, mainly businessmen, were leaving the capital as rapidly as possible at the behest of the Chinese.

The Chinese told the foreigners it could be a week or longer before the danger of aftershocks in the region only 100 miles southeast of Peking subsided, the sources said. China Saturday issued its first official report on the quake, which it called "a grave natural calamity." The statement by the Communist party central committee said the earthquake "caused great losses to people's lives and property"—a rare admission for the Chinese. But the report, broadcast by Peking Radio, gave no casualty figures. Estimates put forth by diplomats and other foreigners in the Chinese capital have said the death toll could run to 100,000 or higher. Because of the large area affected and the virtual devastation of Tangshan, a city of about a million persons located at the center of the quake, it was almost certain Chinese authorities still had no accurate casualty count. One of the nation's largest coal mine complexes, at Kailuan, is located near the quake epicenter. Diplomatic sources said the complex is operated around the clock and thousands of miners could have been killed or trapped. The Chinese Red Army, which celebrates its 49th

Enthusiastic About Use Of Local Buses

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer
Transit officials are "very enthusiastic" about the success of the Greenville Area Transit (GREAT) bus service, initiated on a free introductory basis Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "The turnout has been much better than we expected," said city planner John Schofield. "It looks like the few kinks we found in the system will be easily corrected. We're looking forward to Monday, when paid service begins." A charge of 25 cents, which will include one free transfer, will be made for the service beginning August 2. Schofield said 596 riders had taken advantage of the free service Thursday, with 1,076 Friday and an estimated 1,400 Saturday.

All buses had had at least 100 passengers by 12:30 p.m. Friday. Schofield predicted that Saturday ridership should total over 1,000 passengers. Schofield noted that the routes were "tight", referring to their time schedules, but were still convenient. "We knew the routes would be tight, time-wise," he said. "But they seem to be convenient for most of the people. We have had some time problems, largely due to picking people up along the way, but none seem to be major. "Once we get the signs out at the bus stops and people start using them, we should not have any time problems."

three-day trial period was higher than anticipated. "Right now, we seem to have more demand than service," he said. "That is a very good indication of the need for transit in Greenville and the acceptance of it by the citizenry. "The enthusiasm shown toward GREAT has been very encouraging." Tallo noted that authorities have been receiving calls from people living outside the area served by the system requesting service. "The major thrust of our efforts now will be maintaining the enthusiasm in GREAT that we have seen," said Tallo. "We hope to be providing more and better service in the future."

chapter's annual board meeting at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. During the meeting, the chapter's executive secretary Mrs. Ruth Taylor, who is in charge of service to military families, reported that the Red Cross here assisted 186 servicemen and their families during the year. Acting Blood program chairman Billy Ross told board members that the chapter exceeded its quota of 2,450 pints this year by collecting 3,102 pints of blood or 652 over the annual quota. Ross reported that the county's quota for the coming year is 3,194 pints of blood. The 19 scheduled visits in the new year will result in a per-visit quota of 170 pints, he added. The safety programs report indicated that 28 first aid courses were taught during the past year with 538 participants receiving certificates. Some 22 swimming and life saving courses were completed with 294 persons earning certificates. Dowd presided during the annual session.

Lee Stresses Need For Legislative Leadership

By BETTY SANDERSON

Howard Lee, candidate for lieutenant governor campaigned in Greenville and Pitt County Saturday and stressed the need for legislative leadership. "The most important part of the lieutenant governor's duties is to provide legislative leadership, even when the General Assembly is not in session," said Lee. "The lieutenant governor is the only state-wide elected officer in the General Assembly. He should help create an opportunity for committees to function even out of session. "As lieutenant governor, I would clearly define the office, to make it function as part of the state leadership team.

"Making the office a part-time position would be a bad idea," he noted. "It would be a step backwards. The office of lieutenant governor can be made more than a full-time job in terms of the duties and responsibilities." Lee also proposed serious review of the current bail-bond system for possible improvements such as a pre-trial release program. "The pre-trial release program," he said, "would allow a person with solid roots in the community to be released before trial on his own recognizance, based on an interview at the time of his arrest. It is unfair to make a person spend money for bail and bond if he would have come to court anyway." Lee said he expects good support from the Pitt County area. "I feel I am going to run quite well in Pitt," he stated. "Pitt is a key county. It is good for me because of its diverse nature, because I have many friends here and because the people here are more familiar with my record in Chapel Hill." He named his greatest accomplishment as mayor of Chapel Hill as "making the office function in its proper fashion—to provide leadership to Chapel Hill." He also noted the establishment of a transportation system as an equally important accomplishment, one for which he was "severely criticized" by many persons until the system proved successful.

Man Dead In Plane Crash

CANDOR, N.C. (UPI) — A man was killed and a youth injured Saturday afternoon when a single-engine private plane crashed and burst into flame alongside a rural paved road, Montgomery County Sheriff E.R. Wallace said.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of relatives.

The sheriff said the plane went down about 4:40 p.m., apparently while on a pleasure flight from a private airstrip near Troy. One wing partly blocked the rural road between Candor and Troy.

Poison Gas Hits Italian Village

By SILVANA FOA

ROME (UPI) — For days, Silvana Marcassa and her neighbors watched their gardens and fields wither and their pets and livestock die with blood running from their mouths and noses.

Then, their children began to vomit inexplicably and break out in lurid skin rashes.

Today, Silvana is only one of nearly 1,000 townsfolk of Seveso and nearby villages who have deserted their homes, their belongings, their farms.

They do not know when they may be able to return, and pregnant women among them have been thrown into panic by warnings their babies could be deformed.

The tragedy of Seveso began in the early afternoon of July 10 when a safety valve at a Swiss-owned ICMESA plant burst, leaking 1,000 pounds of stinking, white vapor into the atmosphere.

The cloud, which quickly spread over a three-mile-long, 700-yard-wide area, was composed mostly of trichlorophenol—a chemical relatively innocuous to humans which is used in the production of both weed and bacteria killers.

Unfortunately, for the people of this small industrial center just north of Milan, the vapor also contained an estimated 4.4

pounds of TCDD—a particularly deadly poison which has no known antidote.

"We saw this great white cloud that covered the sky and then we shut ourselves in our houses because the stench was unbearable," Signora Marcassa said.

"The leaves on trees turned yellow but we didn't think the thing was so serious. We started to worry when, two days later, the first animals died and the children began to feel ill."

Little is known about TCDD (tetrachlorodibenzo-dioxine) but it has been found as a trace impurity in herbicides—including Agent Orange which the United States used as a defoliant in Vietnam.

Health officials were pushed into action by a strike of the 210 ICMESA workers who had become frightened by the deaths of their animals and the skin rashes and vomiting of their children and were demanding an explanation.

Unexpected Martian Discovery

By JAMES J. DOYLE
PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1 scientists reported Saturday the discovery of something in Martian soil suggesting either the possibility of life on Mars or an unexpected chemical reaction that mimics biological activity.

The scientists said it was far too soon to reach any conclusions about what they were seeing from one of three life detection experiments aboard the three-legged robot. They said the data must be viewed "very, very carefully."

The unexplained finding was a large amount of oxygen found in an incubation chamber to which Mars "air", water vapor and a nutrient were added to one cubic centimeter of Martian soil.

The oxygen could have been produced by photosynthesis — the process on Earth by which plants form carbohydrates by taking in carbon dioxide and water and releasing oxygen.

Another test made of the sample gases in the chamber the next day, he said, showed about 30 per cent more oxygen.

Scientists said there were chemical reactions that could produce the response seen in the data radioed back from Viking 1.

"We cannot reach any conclusion about whether there is a biological response," said Gilbert Levin, biologist in charge of the experiment that produced the surprising finding.

"We can say it is a very interesting response."

However, Klein said:

"At present, there is no way you can rule out the data as being due to biology. However, if it is a biological response, it is stronger than we have obtained from terrestrial soil. It would mean that biology on Mars is highly developed, more intense, than life on Earth."

The levels of other gases detected were about as expected, he said. They included neon, nitrogen, argon, carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide along with the krypton, carbon dioxide and helium that had been injected into the chamber.

He said another biology investigation using radioactivity showed a higher than expected level of radioactivity "which to a first approximation looks very much like a biological sign," Klein said.

But he said the results must be viewed very carefully to determine if it is biological or nonbiological.

"We have a long way to go," he said.

"We must emphasize it is entirely feasible that it (the abundant oxygen) is the result of one or more of the radioactive nutrients added in this experiment, and what we are seeing results from activated compounds or oxygen itself in the soil."

Project manager James Martin cautioned that the results were preliminary and the investigations difficult to read.

"The biology instruments are complex," he said. "Mars is a complex planet and we have seen many things we do not understand."

Scientists studying data from another Viking experiment, one that analyses the inorganic chemistry of the Martian soil, also reported finding some "striking features" in the soil.

Dr. Priestly Toulmin said there were not enough data to know the exact amount of the various elements in the tiny sample of soil analyzed in the chemistry experiment. He said he had expected to find large amounts of trace elements.

"It's somewhat unusual to find such a low response to the trace elements," he said. "It's a striking feature of the spectrum unlike most of the Earth materials we have reference to."

The soil sample contained iron oxide along with silicon, calcium, aluminum and titanium and traces of rubidium, strontium and zirconium.

Cannery Strike Ended

By United Press International
Thousands of California cannery workers, their 11-day harvest time strike ended, were called back to their jobs Saturday, and an announcement from a U.S. District Judge in Pennsylvania gave hope for an end to a growing protest strike by 80,000 United Mine Workers.

Although it was Saturday and not normally a working day, canneries faced with a backlog of ripening crops—some of which spoiled during the walkout—geared up quickly to recall their work forces. "All plants are anxious to catch up," said a canneries spokesman.

At this peak time of year, cannery workers total about 60,000, and all were expected back by Monday. They are represented by the California Council of Food Processing Unions, a Teamsters affiliate.

"Cannery operations are normal," said Harry Reed, personnel manager at a Del Monte plant in Emeryville. "This is the first day so it's a little slow. Otherwise, everything's going smoothly."

Some planned to start work on the night shift, and Cameron Gilton, general manager of the California Canning Pear Association, said canneries "will be instructing growers to commence harvesting today."

Judge Dennis Knapp, in Charleston, W. Va., said he would dismiss civil and criminal contempt charges against a United Mine Workers local in Kanawha County, W. Va., if its members returned to work "within a reasonable time, hopefully Monday."

Sabotage Caused Blackout

GREENSBORO, N.C. AP—The power blackout of 6,000 Greensboro households early Friday morning was caused by sabotage, police say.

They are seeking the vandals who opened valves on transformers and drained oil to cool the high-voltage equipment at two Duke Power Co. substations.

Duke maintenance crews were alerted by automatic alarms and prevented major damage to the transformers. Power was restored to the blacked-out areas by switching them to other substations.

Trustees Agree On Money Use

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — Trustees of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have agreed to spend the $32 million it will get from the sale of university utilities to build a library and improve two others on the campus.

Although the sales of the electric, telephone, water and sewer facilities has not yet been approved officially, Chancellor Ferebee Taylor told the trustees he expects approval next week.

There was no dissent as the trustees approved Taylor's recommendation that $22 million be used to construct a new central library, $2.8 million be used to add three floors to the Health Affairs Library and $5.6 million be used for renovations at the graduate library.

Suits Against Officials

GREENSBORO (AP) — Suits alleging violations of constitutional rights have been brought against Greensboro and Winston-Salem officials by the U. S. Labor party.

The party is challenging restrictions on outdoor public meetings in Winston-Salem and on the volume of public address systems in Greensboro.

William G. Pfefferkorn, attorney for the Labor Party, argued in U. S. District Court Thursday that the Winston-Salem ordinance is unconstitutional because it requires permits for most rallies, but allows public officials and candidates for public office to hold rallies without permits.

Funds For Soul City Cut

RALEIGH (AP) — The health clinic in Soul City fired five of 23 staff members this week because of cuts in funding by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, HEW officials said Friday.

HEW officials said they had extended funding to the controversial Health Co. Inc. clinic in Soul City at a reduced level through August 31 and said renewals would be made on a month-by-month basis.

Charged With NLR Violations

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A printers union has charged the News and Observer Publishing Co. in Raleigh with violating the National Labor Relations Act.

A spokesman for the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) office here said attorneys for the Raleigh Typographical Union No. 54 filed charges Thursday.

According to this spokesman, the union accused the company of "bargaining in bad faith and making changes in employees' working conditions without consulting the union."

The company publishes the Raleigh News and Observer and the Raleigh Times.

Marijuana On Right Of Way

TROY, N. C. (AP) — Authorities uprooted Friday 1,360 pounds of marijuana growing in a long strip totaling two acres along a telephone cable right of way.

Montgomery County Sheriff Eben Wallace said the marijuana had been spotted from the air in May. Authorities had watched the area intermittently since then, and continuously for the last few days. They moved in after no one appeared.

Hot Weather Ups Beer Sales

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Beer drinking, something that puts several million dollars a year into North Carolina coffers, seems to be rising with the July temperatures.

Brewers and distributors say business is flourishing.

"I'd say our business is up by about 50 per cent in July and August over January and February," says Al Kneeland, general manager of Cunningham Wholesale distributing company in Charlotte.

Sales change in the summer, with more beer being sold for home consumption than in lounges or bars, say beer distributors.

FBI Ass't Admits Wrongdoing

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley fired his top assistant for alleged wrongdoing. Now the replacement Kelley named two weeks ago is admitting responsibility for improper operations.

Associate FBI Director Richard G. Held acknowledged Friday that he was responsible for disruptive counterintelligence tactics against political militants in the Minneapolis area while he was running the FBI office there.

No Records Without Court Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional subcommittee may not force the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to turn over records that give details of secret government wiretaps installed without court warrants, a federal judge says.

U. S. District Court Judge Oliver Gasch, in a decision Friday, said the risk of disclosing highly sensitive national security information would be too great if a House oversight and investigation subcommittee was allowed to see the telephone company's records.

Withdraws

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — O.W. (Bill) Godwin has withdrawn as a candidate for the North Carolina House to work in the gubernatorial campaign of Coy Privette and the presidential campaign of Ronald Reagan.

Godwin, chairman of the Harnett County Republican Executive Committee, was the only Republican seeking a House seat in the 18th District.

"We believe there is something in the surface, some chemical or physical entity, which is affording the surface material great activity and may mimic — let me emphasize that — may mimic biological activity," said Harold Klein, chief of Viking's biology experiments.

"The oxygen concentration was much higher — 15 times higher — than that expected from the trapped Martian atmosphere alone," he told a news conference.

The Politician Scene

By FLOYD H. NORRIS
JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — President Ford gained support in the Mississippi Republican delegation Saturday following his visit to the state.

A UPI poll of delegates and alternates showed he was in a neck-and-neck race with Ronald Reagan, who until recently counted on all 30 delegates.

Thirty of the 60 delegates and alternates, each with a half vote, said they were supporting or leaning toward Ford, 22 said they were supporting or leaning toward Reagan, and 8 said they were uncommitted.

Because of the unit rule, UPI continued to count the 30 votes as uncommitted in its national survey, which shows Ford just 9 delegates under the 1,130 needed for the nomination. Reagan has 1,028 and there are 110 uncommitted, included the Mississippians.

Much of Ford's strength in Mississippi is among alternates, and if the unit rule is abandoned and only the 30 delegates voted individually, Reagan would get 13 and Ford 12 with 5 uncommitted, according to the survey.

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
PIERRE, S.D. (UPI) — Democratic vice presidential nominee Walter Mondale said Saturday a Carter-Mondale administration would give top priority to the problems of rural America and use food instead of weapons to promote the nation's image abroad.

In his first major issues speech since he was picked as Jimmy Carter's running mate, Mondale told about 600 persons attending the South Dakota Democratic convention that one of Carter's first actions would be to oust Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and to replace him with a person who understands the needs of small farmers and ranchers.

It was considered highly unlikely that any current Cabinet members would be asked to stay in a Carter administration, but Mondale used Butz as a target of his attack on Ford administration farm policy.

"I'd like to see not just a Congress that works to help rural America, I'd like to see a president and a secretary of agriculture start to work to help," Mondale said. "We need a pro-rural-America president and we haven't got one."

He called for new leadership to bring the farmers into their rightful place in government programs and said, "I don't want to break your hearts with this move, but Mr. Butz will not be the secretary of agriculture."

The South Dakotans, many of them farmers and ranchers suffering from the worst drought in 40 years, responded with cheers and applause.

Searching For 2 Men

GRAHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Alamance County authorities Saturday were searching for two men seen leaving a motel shortly before the body of a Saxapahaw man was discovered in one of the rooms.

The body of Homer Gladstone Wheeler, 48, was found Friday evening after authorities were contacted.

Authorities said he died from apparent knife wounds. His throat had been cut.

Robbery was being considered as the primary motive for the slaying, officials said.

Car Burns After Wreck

A Friday evening accident near Winterville resulted in minor injuries to three persons.

According to Highway Patrolman Mark Johnson, a car driven by Willie Ivy Barker of Rt. 1, Winterville had stopped at an intersection on rural paved road 1125 when the vehicle was struck in the rear by a car driven by Jesse Ray Smith, Fire Chief of the Greenville Fire Department.

The investigator said that in addition to the two drivers, a passenger in the Baker vehicle, Evelyn Baker was also injured.

The Baker vehicle caught fire shortly after impact of the collision. Members of the Winterville Fire Department were called to extinguish the blaze.

Patrolman Johnson said that Smith has been charged with a safe movement violation and driving under the influence. Investigation into the accident is continuing.

Good Start By Transit System

GREAT — Greenville's new municipal transit system — has had its shake down runs Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Monday the area transit system will begin its work in earnest with the buses running each day from 6:15 a.m. until 6:13 p.m.

And while the rides were free last week to acquaint the public with the new system, a 25 cents charge will be made beginning Monday. This charge seems reasonable to us and it certainly will not come close to covering the full operating costs of the area transit system.

Overall, authorities seemed pleased with the operation of the three bus routes which are served by 22-passenger Mercedes-Benz buses after the first three days of trial operation. The operation got off to a slow start Thursday morning with few riders taking advantage of the service. As the day went on, however, more and more people crowded on to the buses for trips around the city.

There was some novelty, of course, in riding the buses on the first day, and without charge, but many of the riders indicated in interviews that they planned to make regular use of the system to get to shopping areas, to school and to work.

Most of the riders were pleased with the air conditioned buses with their wide windows, and employees of the system seemed to be doing all they could to be helpful, as citizens tried out the vehicles.

The Greenville Area Transit system seems to have gotten off to a good start last week. The real test will come in the weeks ahead. The buses must run on schedule and be kept clean, and our citizens must make use of them if we are to have a successful operation. Judging by the start we think the future is bright for GREAT.

Connally Support Can Only Be Helpful

The extremely lively race for the Republican presidential nomination saw John B. Connally move into the camp of President Ford last week.

The colorful Connally was, himself, considered a presidential possibility when he was converted to the Republican party. The problems of Watergate changed all that, and now Connally seems a most likely potential choice as vice presidential running mate to President Ford.

John Connally is extremely durable politically, and there is little doubt that his support will be helpful to Ford in his quest for the GOP nomination.

Trans-State Bikers' Map

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The Great Bicycle Race from Manteo to Murphy died aborning, but the idea of biking 'cross-state continues to be appealing to serious enthusiasts.

So much so that state transportation people are putting together a map so the individual bike rider can safely make that trip on his own.

Curtis B. Yates, coordinator of the bicycle program in the North Carolina Department of Transportation, says the map is being printed in 22 segments of about 30 miles each, detailing points of interest, food service establishments, lodging facilities and other information.

Is such a trip safe on a bike?

Safety Factor

Anytime cars and two-wheelers mix, the cyclist is not totally safe. But the transportation people have selected state roads considered "bicycle highways" because of traffic volume, shoulder conditions, and type of pavement. Bikes, incidentally, qualify as vehicles and have all the rights of larger ones — except they are not allowed on interstate routes.

Transportation planners find more and more people wanting to get on the open road with their bikes, and a survey recently completed shows a sizable portion of the bike riders are adults. There are no reliable statistics on numbers of bike riders in North Carolina.

Accident statistics, however, reflect the activity: In 1974, 30 bike riders were killed and more than 1,200 injured. In 1975, 31 were killed and more than 1,100 injured. By mid-year this year, 15 cyclists have been killed.

Milk Improvement

Early concern that the dairy industry in North Carolina was in danger of dying has been replaced by optimism.

"The financial turnaround in dairying which begun last year appears to be continuing," says R. C. Wells, economist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

Wells, has a contract to provide the State Milk Commission periodic reports on the cost and returns of producing milk in this state, based on samples of Grade A Dairies.

In his most recent report, Wells finds the dairy farms improving with production costs stable during the first quarter of 1976, while the average price dairymen received for milk rose 47 cents per hundred pounds.

Fewer dairymen are going out of business; purchases of replacement cattle have increased; production is up and retail sales are strong, Wells reports.

Dairymen got an average of $10.87 per hundred pounds in the first quarter of this year, compared to $10.40 in 1975.

The difference between success and failure on the farm is similar to that anywhere else — management.

Some dairymen do exceedingly well; some poorly. The net cost of producing milk in the first quarter ranged from a low of $7 to over $17 per hundred pounds. Some 38 per cent of the state's dairymen had production costs below the state average of $9.84 — and they produced 50 per cent of the state's milk.

Dairy farmers averaged a six per cent rate of return this year compared to 3.6 per cent last year. Some exceeded the average with a few going as high as 10 and 12 per cent.

That, the study shows, is a return competitive with other farm and non-farm investments.

The big difference, according to the economic study, is in how well the farms are managed — with low milk yields per cow continuing to be the major management problem on many farms.

Sunday Morning Notes

Bill Stanley and Jim Black, brokers at Interstate Securities, preserved the Great city bus line schedules which were printed in the newspaper last week.

They observed that a bus left downtown for Pitt Plaza at 12:49 and they could return on another bus within an hour. So the two brokers decided they would ride the bus and have lunch at Ballentine's.

They left downtown precisely on schedule and Black and Stanley were pleased to note that Mayor Percy Cox and City Manager Jim Caldwell were both riding the same bus for the same purpose.

All waited until well past the scheduled arrival time and then it dawned on someone that the bus had already come and gone.

The city manager arranged for other city transportation to take the mayor and himself back and graciously offered the two stranded stock brokers a ride.

Even that operation had problems, however. A train crossing at Evans Street held up the returning group for a few minutes.

Well, after all the rides were free the first day. No refund to the mayor the city manager, Black and Stanley will be forthcoming.

"Wetting down hogs is something we've never been called on to do before," Farmville Fire Chief H. P. Norman said, "but we're thankful we could be of service."

A truck from the Trenton Livestock Company on its way to Smithfield, Va. broke down on Highway 284 near the Fields Street entrance to Farmville Tuesday afternoon. It became apparent that the hogs crowded on the truck were suffering and beginning to panic in the heat of the stalled vehicle. The Farmville rural fire truck was dispatched about 6 p.m. and soon the animals' distress was relieved by a gentle spray of cool water. In the meantime another truck was sent from Trenton. The hogs were transferred about 7:30 p.m. and continued on their way to become Smithfield hams.

If early preparation denotes a high degree of efficiency, the Pitt County School Superintendent's office must be close to the top. This week The Daily Reflector received lunchroom menus for the county schools. The menus are for August 31 and all of September. That is really looking ahead!

The reservations we have about the otherwise laudable Mathews reform plan consist of: First, skepticism that he can do all he says he will do with an entrenched army of 135,000 bureaucrats and, second, wariness that the new rules for rulemaking may spawn another layer of red tape and paperwork — which the Ford administration devoutly wishes to pare down.

But Secretary Mathews' concept is sound and his apparent determination is enormous. The public and the rest of the federal government should take note.

Other Editors Say Rules On Rules

(Greensboro Daily News)

One of the functions of today's jumbo government is to make the rules by which the law of the land is followed. From Washington every year there issue forth some 40,000 pages of them — regulations, guidelines, procedures, policies, and all the red tape politicians are running against this year.

Every once in a while — take the ban on single-sex school banquets last month, for instance — a rule causes a flap: the people are outraged, the President is incensed, the rule is suspended. But most of the time is left to a very few to read the rules in the Federal Register, to understand them, and to apply them as best they can. Much of the time that routine task requires the patience of Job.

The Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who runs the largest federal department save the Pentagon and spends $128 billion a year on everything from day care to social security, is one prominent person who believes none of that has to happen — neither the voluminous output of scarcely decipherable rules nor the occasional blunders. The other day Secretary David Mathews proclaimed sweeping reforms in his department's rule-making and rule-writing methods.

No longer, says Secretary Mathews, will his department's rules be adopted without extensive consultation with the public to be affected by them — the bureaucrats call it input. HEW will conduct advertising campaigns, information blitzes, and even town meetings when a new group of rules is about to be implemented. Mathews says his department will offer a number of optional forms a rule might take, and submit them to a kind of public critique. The ensuing regulations, ideally will reflect a consensus of sorts. Secretary Mathews also promised to put forthcoming rules in the English language, another bureaucratic precedent.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Desperate Reagan Gamble

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The chilling evidence of disaster in Ronald Reagan's unveiling of an ultra-liberal running mate came not from public denunciations on Capitol Hill but from private anguish of Republican state chairman Clarke Reed of Mississippi.

Having just staved off a raid by President Ford's agents attempting to capture all 30 Mississippi delegates under the unit rule, Reed was suddenly disillusioned and sickened by the selection of Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania. Without any guarantee of delegates from the Northeast, the Schweiker gamble had very nearly done what months of ardent courtship from the White House failed to do: turn Reed into a Ford booster.

The imminent loss of Reed seems to have collapsed the strategy inherent in picking Schweiker. Believing that Reagan's conservatives would grumble but not defect, campaign manager John Sears hoped the balanced ticket would finally pry loose delegates in the Northeastern states. It was an act of folly but of desperation in the losing guest for those delegates.

Contrary to claims by Sears of some 40 covert delegates salted away in the Northeastern states, the rising sense of an inevitable Ford nomination had stymied the Reagan delegate hunt. While recognizing intense dangers, the Reagan high command decided that the Reagan-Schweiker ticket was the only hope for a breakthrough.

To keep Reagan's strong right flank intact, his agents on Sunday night began placing calls to supporters around the country to give them the unwelcome news. To soften the blow, they neglected to mention Schweiker's 100 per cent AFL-CIO voting record and increasingly soft line on national security policy and, instead, declared him a blood brother of Reagan opposing gun controls and abortion.

Some important Reaganites in still contested Southern delegations gamely accepted the strange ticket. Gov. James Edwards of South Carolina grimaced but went along. So did Richard Obenshain, the Virginia conservative leader. Roger Milliken, South Carolina textile millionaire and ardent Reagan supporter, was even a little enthusiastic: "What I've found out about Schweiker makes me feel this was a very good move."

Most important was Sen. Jesse Helms, an uncompromising conservative whose support for Reagan in North Carolina prevented Mr. Ford from clinching the nomination last March. Reagan personally telephoned Helms at 9:05 p.m. Sunday. Helms noted the hour because "I wanted to record for posterity the exact time I received the shock of my life." Shocked though he was, Helms went along and stood beside Schweiker at Monday's news conference.

But in Mississippi, Reed proved less cooperative. Long courted by the White House (for example, as one of the few politicians invited to the Queen Elizabeth state dinner), Reed resisted the impulse to leap on the Ford bandwagon. While doubtful of Reagan's prospects, Reed last week decided he would not be the conservative who finally did in Ronald Reagan. Thanks to Reed, the Ford delegate raid on Mississippi was turned back Sunday.

It was also Sunday that Reed was told about Schweiker. Busy with keeping his delegation officially uncommitted, he failed to perceive what the news meant. When it sank in Monday morning, Reed was so outraged that he nearly endorsed Mr. Ford then and there. On second thought, he arranged conferences with fellow Mississippi conservatives, all in a similar state of shock.

GOOD REPUTATION

Some people, when faced with criticism of their character or their motives, shrug their shoulders and say, "My conscience is clear; I don't care what anyone thinks about me."

Nothing, of course, is as important to a person as a clear conscience. But it is also desirable to have a good reputation. St. Paul speaks of taking thought, for things honorable, "not in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of man." There is an ancient Chinese proverb which says, "In a field of melons, do not stoop to tie your shoe." The inference is that if you do so, you may be suspected of stealing your neighbor's melons.

So the Bible very wisely counsels us not only to avoid evil, but to avoid the appearance of evil. We should consider not only what God will think about us and what we shall think about ourselves, but what others will think about us also.

Carter Shares Views

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — His early statements on defense show that Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter generally parallels broad Ford administration positions.

Carter even has adopted Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld's term "rough equivalence" to describe the U.S.-Soviet military balance.

Talking with newsmen in Plains, Ga., Carter said earlier this week that the United States is not in second place. That is what the Ford administration has been saying.

Carter said that "in some

The accurate tracing of a sheet of stationery landed a 16-year-old farm boy, in jail today, charged with threatening the life of tiny screen star Shirley Temple in a $25,000 extortion plot.

Operations of federal agents led late yesterday to the arrest of the youth at his farm home in Nebraska.

Sheriff H. Bechtel said the young man told him he conceived the fantastic scheme after seeing a movie based on kidnapping, but "never meant to go through with it."

The Neuse River flooded adjoining lands in the Smithfield area today and the Cape Fear started leaving its banks at Elizabethtown due to torrential rains in the state the middle of the week. Little damage was reported.

New Example Of Legerdemain

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With the announcement this week of the latest index of leading economic indicators, Americans received another illustration of statistical legerdemain.

The index, which is supposed to portend future economic activity, rose in June by 0.3 per cent over May, its eighth consecutive monthly advance. But let's examine that advance.

A month ago, when the May advance was announced, the Commerce Department put it at 1.4 per cent, suggesting that such a strong gain was mighty good news for the future. Don't forget, it's a forecast tool.

But then, and without adequate explanation, it cut the advance in half, to 0.7 per cent. And from that level of activity it then calculated the 0.3 per cent gain for June.

The June gain does not follow a 1.4 per cent advance in May. It comes atop only a 0.7 per cent advance. If that May figure had been left as originally announced, there might not have been a June advance at all.

Ignore the revisions and you get the impression of an economy surging ahead month by month. Note the revisions — few people do — and you get the impression of an economy marching two steps forward and one back, and occasionally two back and one forward, averaging out to a moderate advance.

Don't take the June figure for granted either. The index is based on incomplete data for one-half the components. One is missing altogether.

Next month you may be sure the June figure also will be revised.

In fact, although the Index is for forecast purposes, it is revised month after month. The first figure announced, often with considerable publicity, usually is the least accurate.

One might question, therefore, why such forecast numbers should be produced at all, but that leads nowhere. Business, government and the public in general demands a look into the future, and the demand must be met.

The forecasts generally do give some indication of the direction of future activity, although sometimes they fail in this too. But direction is general and these numbers are very specific.

The public cannot be blamed for thinking that digits split into tenths are mathematically precise and firm, and therefore for thinking they are antiseptic, free from flaws or human error.

The truth is that these numbers are based on many arbitrary judgments, incomplete data, no data, revised data, adjustments, estimates and long series of calculations, each involving small margins of error.

From these and other government statistics, however, the public makes many judgments, including investment decisions and voting choices, often ignorant of the fact that later revisions might change the numbers.

With the nation trying to make up its mind on a chief executive, the impact of those arbitrary tenths of one per cent are a awesome.

Singapore's Welfare System Is The Last Resort

By KOH HAN THUAN
SINGAPORE (UPI) — There hasn't been a case of welfare cheating in this tightly run island nation in the last decade. Public welfare is strictly a last-resort measure, and being down and out in Singapore is the surest way known to find yourself swiftly back in the ranks of the gainfully employed.

For the past decade Singapore has enjoyed a boom-town economy which has forced the government to import over 50,000 expatriate workers from neighboring Malaysia to meet local labor needs in shipbuilding, construction, textile and electronics industries.

Reflecting that happy situation, the number of families requiring public welfare assistance — known locally by the British term "the dole" — has dropped from 24,800 in 1965 to only 7,031 in 1974.

That is out of a total population in excess of 2.2 million.

Singapore's total expenditure on public welfare consequently has fallen from $4.3 million in 1965 to $1.1 million in 1974.

Welfare assistance at the rate of $16 a month for the head of a destitute family is generally reserved for the aged poor and the chronically sick and disabled.

Welfare officers can approve additional rent-payment grants in extreme cases.

But an able-bodied man or woman — even a mother with eight children — applying for the dole will be back on the job in a matter of days.

To most of Singapore's Chinese, unemployment is an unnatural state of affairs and welfare is what you seek from your family or your clan.

"Our people turn first to their relatives for help. If there are no relatives, then they turn to their clan association," one Chinese resident, Wong Kok-Kom, said.

For more than 150 years the network of over 400 clan associations has been the first stop and the last stop for Chinese immigrants to Singapore.

"You get advice on how to get ahead here, a job from a fellow clansman, a loan to set up your own business, support if things go bad, a funeral if you die," Wong said.

Wong, 79, began receiving welfare assistance over 30 years ago after he came down with tuberculosis and was forced to give up his job as a cook in the British community.

Wong draws $22 a month from the government and lives in a rented room paid for by his Hainanese clan association.

"I prefer to stay here rather than in a home for the aged," Wong says.

"Although the money I get from the Social Welfare department is not enough, our clansmen are very kind and sympathetic and they give me money now and then."

Wong said he has a wife and married daughter still living on Hainan island in the south China Sea, but he cannot go back to them because he is ashamed of his plight.

Adiya, a 50-year-old Indian woman, said she was forced into welfare when her husband lost his job and was unable to work. They had eight children at the time.

The Social Welfare Department offered Adiya her choice of three jobs — and she chose to become a grass cutter in a public housing development.

Now with her income, public assistance and the help three of her employed children provide, Adiya has managed to buy a cheap government housing flat on easy payments.

"It was hard when my husband became jobless and we had to turn to public assistance," Adiya said. "But within one month I got a job through the department and somehow we managed to survive. I hope to pay off the flat purchase with the extra income of my children eventually."

Singapore's welfare system discourages the idea that something can be had for nothing.

Even the elderly poor are placed in light part-time jobs to supplement their welfare income. This gives them the assurance that they are useful and self-supporting.

The elders become traffic wardens at busy intersections or go to work as elevator operators or parking lot attendants in the huge public housing estates where more than 50 per cent of Singapore's people live.

The government provides free child care centers for mothers who must work to support their families.

And to encourage young adults to support their aged parents, the government provides tax incentives and special help in obtaining public housing flats.

Summer Work On City Schools

Chamber Name

LEAKAGE... and the resultant damages to ceilings and walls is one of the problems being faced at Agnes Fullilove School, the facility in West Greenville used for Greenville's seventh graders. (Photo by Tommy Forrest)

The summer of '76 will be remembered in Greenville as a period of frantic rush, at least for everyone connected with the Greenville City Schools at least.

Following a jolting revelation in late May that one school, Third Street, was unfit for human habitation and that two other schools, Agnes Fullilove and E.B. Aycock Junior High, were in dire need of extensive repairs, school board members met in frequent and long sessions in efforts to find solutions.

To help in the unforeseen situation, Pitt County Commissioners approved additional capital outlay funds to make possible essential repairs and renovations.

As a result, the summer months around these three school sites are hot days filled with the sounds of buzzing saws, hammers, drill and conversations of workmen as they push ahead daily in a race against time. If all goes well, these men will be able to finish their work in time for students to be back in school in late August.

PLYWOOD... covers weak and rotted sections of flooring at Third Street School. This school, condemned shortly before the end of the 1975-76 school year, is to undergo major repairs and renovations before being re-opened to students for the 1977-78 school year.

AT AYCOCK JUNIOR HIGH... the flat roof has been a source of recurring problems almost from the day the school was first opened for the 1969-70 school year. Before it can meet building standards to re-open for the coming school year, a new roof covering must be completed at a cost of about $150,000. Arrow points to an area that has already been extensively repaired.

The board of directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, meeting this past week, proposed a name change for the organization that will be presented at the next meeting of the Chamber members.

The new name suggested for the local Chamber, and approved by the board, is "Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Inc." and would replace the old name of Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association Inc.

Ed Walker, new executive vice president, said that the main purpose of the name change is to "more realistically represent the responsibility of the local Chamber in that it serves the Greenville area as well as the city of Greenville."

Presently, he added, the Chamber's 463 members reside in Greenville, Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Winterville, and in other areas of the county.

Board members voted to join the U.S. Chamber of Commerce as well as the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives. The national association involves over 2,500 chambers and other organizations that form the federation's base of about 3,500 chapters, with an underlying membership in the millions, Walker reported.

Committee appointments approved by the board included the naming of Art Gayla as chairman of by-laws committee, and Curtis Hendrix as chairman of the accreditation committee. The chamber's monthly newsletter committee will be headed by president-elect Lawton Nisbet.

Walker was introduced to the board by Nisbet who served as chairman of the selection committee.

Don Collier, president, announced that board meetings for the remainder of the year will be held the last Friday of each month at Greenville Golf and Country Club. Meeting times will be 12:30 p.m.

Help Is Needed

Volunteer Greenville announces the following volunteer opportunities:

Easter Seal Society needs volunteers every Thursday afternoon to assist in a bowling program for the elderly and the handicapped. The program is located at the Hillcrest Lanes and meets from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m.

The Pitt County Boys' Club needs individuals interested in working with boys of all ages. A volunteer would work in a recreational type of setting which includes - basketball, arts and crafts, camping, football, and other activities.

Volunteer Greenville needs individuals interested in assisting in office work. Volunteers are needed to help with typing, filing, and other office duties.

Further information on these and other volunteer opportunities may be obtained by calling Volunteer Greenville at 752-4137 (Extension 255) or by visiting the office at 1710 West Third Street.

Low-Key Strickland Campaign

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Democrat Thomas Strickland is running a down home campaign for governor.

Strickland's state headquarters are not in Raleigh but in his home town of Goldsboro, in a little pink bungalow on the outskirts of town.

The reason for the location is simple: the pool of volunteer labor available to help the low-budget campaign.

"These people are all volunteers, all from Wayne County, and all, I guess you could say, lifetime friends," said the candidate proudly as he gave a reporter a tour through the four room building.

The house was clogged with friends and relatives. Some sat outside, smoking cigars and rocking on the porch swing.

Other candidates keep their mailing lists in the memory of a computer. Strickland's are stored in three shoeboxes. Others have hired aides to help them campaign. Strickland waited until school was out and enlisted his son Larry as his driver and traveling staff.

It is not the type of campaign that inspires respect among professional political hand-cappers, and Strickland acknowledges that his relative lack of money is not an advantage. He worries that he will not be able to gain the attention of the press enough to get his message across.

Strickland put $10,000 of his own money into the campaign and that's as far as he intends to go. If the donations came in, he will buy advertising. But he will not borrow, as other candidates have done. "We're going to run on a pay-as-you-go basis. I decided early I wouldn't wind up owing any money," he said.

Strickland's underdog campaign is in keeping with his style in the state senate, where he developed a reputation as a man of firm convictions who did and said what he thought he should, regardless of political realities.

At 46, Strickland's hair is graying and his body is getting rounder. He is soft-spoken, and his general demeanor belies the doggedness with which he fought against initiatives like no-fault insurance and land use planning.

Strickland labels himself a conservative, defining it as one who believes that the powers of the government should be dispersed and limited.

He opposes, for example, giving the veto power or the right of succession to North Carolina's governor, the most constitutionally weak chief executive in the 50 states.

Strickland fought bitterly against the 1974 Coastal Area Management Act. He considered it an effort to establish "a new layer of government that can control property without a vote of the people concerned."

His involvement against the Coastal Act brought him the admiration of the Raleigh John Birch Society. He spoke to one of their meetings about the threat posed by land use planning.

Strickland said at the time he had no qualms about speaking before a group that felt as he did about land use planning. He said he didn't necessarily agree with their other positions.

Yet although he considers himself a conservative, Strickland has some ideas in common with activist groups like Common Cause. He sponsored the legislation that gave North Carolina a presidential primary and helped defeat efforts to abolish the primary last year.

He is also the sponsor of the electronic scoreboards that record all Senate votes on computer printouts. "I was ahead of Common Cause on that one," he noted with pride.

Strickland's gubernatorial campaign, characteristically, offers few innovative policy proposals.

"I'm about the same as the last three or four governors," he replied in response to a question about his highway building priorities. (He would like to finish the four-lane link from the mountains to the coast.)

He does not recommend any change in the state tax structure, and he is almost alone among the gubernatorial candidates in believing that the state's industry hunters should be left in the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

He takes pride in his honesty when he says there is little or nothing government can do about some problems on which his rivals are issuing position papers and making promises.

Strickland said, for example that he was concerned about the lack of discipline in the schools and would try to back up teachers and principals in their disciplinary actions.

"But the problem," he added, "is that the discipline isn't there from the home. If people don't send disciplined kids to school, the government can't do much about it."

Reelected Chairman

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — Walter Davis of Kill Devil Hills and Midland, Texas, has been reelected chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Also reelected during a meeting at Kill Devil Hills Friday were Ralph Strayhorn of Durham as vice chairman; Margaret Harper of Southport, secretary, and Virginia Dunlap of Chapel Hill as assistant secretary.

Second Summer Session

A second summer session of classroom studies in the Driver Education program begins at Rose High on Monday, August 2 and will run daily for a three week period, ending on August 20.

In announcing the second classroom session, Robert Alligood, principal at Rose High, said the additional training period is being offered to provide learners who were not able to attend the first session an opportunity to get this phase of training completed.

Persons 15 years old and older are eligible to enroll. Enrollment will be at 2 p.m. Monday. Classes will run from 2 to 4 p.m. daily Monday through Friday. There is no fee being charged for the classes.

Two More Deaths By Spotted Fever

RALEIGH (AP) — Two more North Carolinians have died from Rocky Mountain spotted fever, bringing the 1976 death toll in the state to four, a state health official says.

According to Dr. Peter Rogers of the state Division of Health Services, the latest victims died in Wake Medical Center in Raleigh after being admitted in a dying condition.

Rogers said the two were a 25-year-old Atlantic Beach man and a 64 year-old Raleigh man. He did not have their names available.

So far this year, 107 cases of the fever have been reported in North Carolina, which generally leads the nation in the number of reported cases. Earlier this year, a 7-year-old Rocky Mount boy and a 49-year old Ahsokie man died from the disease.

Rogers said the tick-borne fever is easily diagnosed and cured if caught in time.

Hannibal led a huge army against the Romans in 202 B.C., but the great Carthaginian general was defeated.

Patti Wants One More Hit

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After 30 years in show business, Patti Page has just one goal left.

"I'd really like to have just one more hit record, so my kids and their friends would know who I am," says the 48-year-old vocalist, known to the 1950s as "The singing rage, Miss Patti Page."

"I couldn't even begin to guess how many records I've cut, but three years ago somebody figured out they sold more than 70 million copies," she said during a break in a recent shot at the Fairmont Hotel.

Heading her list of 13 gold records was "The Tennessee Waltz," seven million singles sold. But tastes and the record industry have changed drastically since she recorded her first hit, popularizing many on her own national television shows.

There used to be only a half-dozen record companies, and a relative handful of nationally known female vocalists, she said. Now she describes the public's tastes as fickle, and the business is divided among dozens of companies and a steady flood of performers.

Miss Page pointed to her adopted children, a 12-year-old son and 13-year-old daughter, as young people with changeable musical tastes.

"They're crazy about a song or a singer one day, and toss it aside the next day for something else," she said. "They don't have the standards. They're fickle."

"My daughter told me one day, 'People are always telling you how much they liked one of your songs. What am I going to have to remember?'"

Miss Page says she doesn't expect her career to benefit from the wave of musical nostalgia sweeping the country. "They're only interested in the few who started rock," she said.

Divorced three years ago after 17 years of marriage to dance director Charles O'Curran, Miss Page says she has been working ever since breaking into show business on a Tulsa, Okla., radio program in 1946 at the age of 18.

Now she plays Nevada casinos, major hotels, fairs and television talk shows. She has no plans for movies or major television shows, "and I don't think anybody has any such plans for me either."

"I'm singing primarily because I like to sing, and I have to support two children," she said, adding that she averages $20,000 to $25,000 per week these days but doesn't work every week.

"Singing has made me wealthy time after time, and the government even wealthier," she said, smiling.

SHE WANTS ONE MORE HIT RECORD — Singer Patti Page, pictured in San Francisco during an interview, says after 30 years in show business she has just one goal left. "I'd really like to have just one more hit record, so my kids and their friends would know who I am," says the 48-year-old vocalist.

Soprano Posner In NCMA Concert Today

Katherine Kaufman Posner, a soprano and artistic director of the North Carolina Lyric Opera, will sing at the N.C. museum of Art at 3 p.m. today. Admission is free.

Mrs. Posner performed with the Metropolitan Opera of New York City for a year, and toured the U.S. for four years as a leading soprano with the Goldovsky Opera Theatre.

She will sing eight songs by Schumann, "Frauenliebe und leben"; two arias with flute from cantatas by Bach; two Puccini arias; and five songs from various composers based on American and English folk songs.

Mrs. Posner will be accompanied by pianist John Ruggero and flutist Pam Whitlow. Ruggero, who won the first North Carolina Composer's Contest at the age of 13, has a master's degree from the Juilliard School of Music. He now teaches music in Raleigh and at Duke University.

No More Tickets

The Elvis Presley appearances, scheduled in Fayetteville for August 3-5, has been sold out and no more tickets are available, according to the public relations director at the Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium Arena.

Wizard At Kinston

The stage adaptation of a favorite film, The Wizard of Oz is the play being offered by the Kinston Summer Theater as their last production of the 1976 season.

The Wizard of Oz is to be presented August 5 through August 10 at 8 p.m. nightly at Emma Webb Park.

In the staged production, the musical score is the same as that of the film, including the memorable popular song, "Over the Rainbow." Also retained are the characters—The winsome young girl Dorothy, the cowardly lion, the clumsy scarecrow, the tin man and the wicked witch.

Tickets will be on sale at the door or can be reserved in advance by calling 523-3252.

Jaycees Sponsoring IWA Match At Conley

Canadian champion Johnny Powers is one of the stars in the line-up of wrestlers making their debut in an International Wrestling Association (IWA) event being held at D. H. Conley High School Gym on Thursday, August 5, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees, the event is a fund-raising project with proceeds to go to the Jaycees' Community Project Fund

Five big bouts are on the Thursday line-up. In the first part of a double main event attraction, Sonny "The Cat" King takes on Butcher Brannigan, the Louisiana Brawler.

Powers faces Abdul Zaatar, the Arabian Sheik. Zaatar will be accompanied by his manager-advisor, Mike "The Hippie" Boyette.

In another action, Luis "Ariba" Martinez is pitted against veteran Tony Romano. The opening bout has Mike Boyette matched against Tinker Todd.

Advance tickets are now on sale with ringside seats priced at $5 each. General admission (door) prices are $3.50. Admission for children under 12 is $2.00. Tickets can be purchased in advance from Western Auto, Greenville; Bob's TV and Appliances, Greenville and Ayden; and Dixie Queen Restaurant and Seafood, Winterville. Advance tickets are also available from members of the Jaycees.

CANADIAN CHAMPION . . . Johnny Powers is one of the wrestlers being featured in a Jaycee sponsored event to be held Thursday, August 5, at 8:30 p.m. at D. H. Conley High School.

Hospitality House

"Hospitality House," airing today from noon until 1 p.m. over WITN-TV Channel 7, has hostess Kay Currie interviewing a number of people in several fields of achievement.

First on the show is Gladys Crisp, award winning ceramist, who helps Kay finish a bicentennial plate. This is followed by Stan Rumley and Cathy DuPree, representing the State Championship baseball event of August 4-6.

From Kenasville, discussion focuses on "The Liberty Cart," a lavishly costumed outdoor drama being presented in a new amphitheater seating 1,000 people.

Others on the "Hospitality House" show today include Chris Wood, associate director of Kinston's upcoming production of The Wizard of Oz, along with cast members David Henderson, Stacy Bice, Jay Finch, Karen Cannette and Keith Archuleta; and from Stantonsburg, Alice Padgett, introducing fashion and health tips.

Children's Film Schedule

Two films have been scheduled for showing this week in the children's film series at the city libraries.

One is Giuseppina-Giuseppina, about a little girl in a small northern Italian town whose father operates a service station. The girl is entertained by the world of people who come to the station as customers. The second film is Bicycle Clown, which deals with bicycle safety.

Show times are: Carver Library, Tuesday, 4 p.m.; Sheppard Memorial Library, Thursday, 7 p.m., and East Branch Library, Friday 4 p.m.

Students Publish Journal

"Research and Independent Study, (RIS), is an elective for those students who have interests not offered in the school curriculum, want to develop and refine their research skills, need an outlet for creative expression, want to enrich experiences in other courses, and want to exercise their ability to direct their own learning."

This is the first sentence in Wende Allen's forward to an 82 page mimeographed publication, Journal of Research and Independent Study (Opening to New Worlds of Knowledge), Vol. 1, No. 1, Spring 1976, published at Rose High School.

Ms. Allen is RIS instructor at Rose High. The publication is a compilation of articles by 17 students who worked in five separate approaches or categories — independent studies; research studies; school and community projects; tutoring; and skills development.

Subject matter for topics chosen by the 17 students (all were in the top ten per cent in their grades) cover a varied range in scientific, cultural and historical fields.

In the first category, "Independent Studies," contributors and their topics are: James Shoe, Karl Marx and Communism; Margie Peoples, Music Theory; Scales; Larry Bellis, The Mayas; Tom Johnson, The Involvement of North Carolina in the Secession Movement; and Curtis Ebbs, The Abominable Snowman.

Four students chose their work in the "Research Studies" category. These and their subject of study are: Charles Hayek, The Effects of Temperature on the Growth of Yeast Cells; Peter Varlashkin (with supervision by Dr. James Joyce), Proton Induced X-Ray Elemental Analysis of Leaves; Vicky Wilkerson, Experimental Epidemic: An Investigation; and Timothy Caspar, The Distortions Produced by the Pseudo-rotation of One Coordinate Axis. For his paper, Caspar took first place in the Senior Mathematics Category of the 1976 N.C. Student Academy of Science state meeting.

For the "School and Community Projects" division, Charles Kernan produced a study on Astrophotography; and Wanda James looked into the local work being done in Cerebral Palsy.

"Tutoring" is the fourth category. In this section four students wrote papers. These are Gene Pittman, Tutoring; Jennifer O'Neal, Teaching Violin to Young Children; Janet Vultee, Yes, It is Worthwhile to Take RIS!; and Tammy Levey, Autistic Children.

The final category of subject selection available to Rose students in the RIS program is that of "Skills Development." Two Rose students chose this category — Liza White, Wheel-Thrown Pottery: Studying It Individually; and Janie Paul, Research and Independent Study Projects.

The first IRS publication clearly indicates the fine research and writing skills of a number of local young students. With an implied promise that this is the first of a series of annual RIS spring issues, these publications should provide an insight into the skills and abilities of serious students to perform research and write about their findings.

There's one thing very much evident—a student taking part in the Rose High RIS program has a fascinating array of subjects to choose from.

In the final page of the publication is a list of "Additional RIS Topics and Projects. The list includes: Pyramidology, Lycanthropy, Charles Mason and The Family, Do Sharks Have A Cancer Shield? Why Do Black Students at Rose High School Not Elect Phase I English?, Crown Gall Tumors in Carrot Plants, Antibiotic-Resistant Mutants of Escherichia coli, and Learning How to Fiddle.

Kinston To Dedicate Giant Mural Thursday

THE KINSTON MURAL... Greenville artist Wade Hobgood has designed a two panel outdoor mural for the Sutton Mini-Park in downtown Kinston, which is to be dedicated in a ceremony on

At 4:30 on Thursday afternoon, August 4, a ceremony of presentation and dedication will be held at the Sutton Place Mini-Park in downtown Kinston. At that time, the Downtown Kinston Association will present a Bicentennial present to the city—a super 20 by 80 foot graphic in two parts by Greenville artist Wade Hobgood.

Elliott Frank, guitarist and artist in residence at Lenoir Community College will perform a selection of music, and the Kinston Arts Council, under the direction of Third Centry artist Susan Moore Patterson, will provide several creative impressions.

Designed in an op art style by Hobgood, the graphic is in Bicentennial red, white and blue. Painted on the walls of two buildings flanking the rectangular park, the crisp colors of the brilliant wall paint contrast with the softer colors of beds of white and scarlet petunias flourishing in the sunlit square. Bicentennial colors are picked up in a minor theme in freshly painted red, white and blue benches.

Hobgood, a candidate for the masters degree in art at East Carolina University, was given free reign with the design. His choice is flag-inspired design that incorporates the name "Kinston" on the left building (left facing the square from the street) and "1782," the date of the city's charter, on the right wall.

The Sutton project, developed over the last two years as an inner city mini-park in conjunction with several other downtown beautification projects, has resulted in Kinston's being awarded a first place in the "Keep North Carolina Beautiful" contest this year.

Kinston is also a nominee city for a national award.

Mrs. Sharon Larkins, president of the Downtown Kinston Association, fostered the idea of the dual mural to provide a colorful frame to the flower beds, paths and benches in the mini-park. She notes that the Thursday dedication will be exactly 95 years to the day that the Governor Caswell statue, a gift to the city, was dedicated in 1881. She feels the super graphic is as representative of the art of today as the original statue was of its time 95 years ago.

Mayor Simon Sitterson, members of the City Council and Dr. Jesse McDaniel, chairman of the Lenoir County Bicentennial Commission are scheduled to take part in the dedicatory ceremonies Thursday. The public is invited to attend.

New Show At EEii's Today

From one until five today, Elizabeth Shelton Smith, a native of Washington, N.C. will be at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in Belhaven to greet guests at her exhibition of paintings.

Now living in South Carolina, she was recently elected as the 1976 Teacher-of-the-Year for the State of South Carolina. She is being presented by her first art teacher, Effie Raye Bateman, who taught her while she attended Washington High School.

Mrs. Smith received her B.A. degree in Art and Religion at Meredith College and her M.Ed. degree from Clemson University.

Exhibitions, of her paintings include the North Carolina Museum of Art and the Gibbs Gallery in Charleston.

Beginning her art career in Raleigh, Mrs. Smith taught in the Raleigh School System. She worked as a free lace artist, served as a volunteer art teacher for the St. Andrews School in Columbia (S.C.), and directed summer Art Workshops. She has also taught at the University of South Carolina, and for the past six years she has been teaching art at the D.W. Daniel High School in Central, S.C.

The artist says, "I paint in oils, acrylics, and watercolors. Much of my subject matter evidences my love of the seashore and things from the sea. I also find great interest in the human face and figure. My painting style could be termed Symbolic Realism."

The show will be at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in Belhaven for the month of August. Her work will be a major highlight of the Beaufort County Bicentennial Year at the gallery. The public is invited

ILLUMINA Poop Art Reception

To enliven the late summer weeks when the art world in Greenville has gone into a state of vacation neglect, ILLUMINA is staging "The Great American Bicentennial Poop Art Show and Contest" at Mendenhall Student Center on campus at East Carolina University.

To open with a "Poop Art Party" at 8 p.m. Wednesday, August 4, "The Great American Bicentennial Poop Art Show" will be on view there through August 19.

Brent Funderbook, chairman of ILLUMINA (the East Carolina University Student Union Art Exhibition Committee), says the public is invited though one stipulation has been set up for admittance — persons attending "must wear something red, white, and blue as the price of admission."

Billed as a fun show, students, faculty and staff people at ECU have been invited to enter "any piece of humorous, intriguing or just plain American folk, assembly line, or art object." This can include items such as "pink flamingos or patriotic jokes" as well as more conventional poop art.

The Wednesday night opening event will include an amateur film "America On/No Parade." Also for opening night a 200 candle birthday cake will be served and music will be provided. An awards ceremony will take place for the best entries.

Don Dubbins Returns To Flat Rock Playhouse

By W. C. Burton
Don Dubbins is back home again at Flat Rock Playhouse. He, his wife Jean and son Bobby now live in Pacific Palisades, California, where they have a view of the ocean. They're between Malibu and Santa Monica just west of Hollywood.

There Dobbins has for better than two decades pursued a busy career as a motion picture and television actor, with some writing and directing thrown in.

James Cagney listed Dubbins as one of his favorite young actors and co-starred him in "Tribute to a Bad Man." He has appeared in featured roles in a number of other films but has spent most of his acting time recently as guest star in a double-handful of television series films.

Flat Rock Playhouse is a very special home to Don Dubbins. He started his professional theatre career there with Robrov Farquhar's Vagabond Players. During the seasons of 1949, 1950 and 1951 he played with the Vagabonds at their old Lake Summit Playhouse.

He was a great favorite with the audiences and an even greater favorite with certain younger female members. In those days girls at the giggle-and-wriggle age were named after short socks. The bobbie-socks brigade was mad about Don Dubbins. Robbie Farquhar remembers that "We couldn't keep a picture of Don on the looby board." Bobbie-

Socks bandits kept purloining the pictures and hauling them home in their blouses.

At the Flat Rock Playhouse, Don Dubbins will be the guest star in the next two comedies on the Flat Rock bill. The first, running this week, Tuesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. nightly with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, 2:30 p.m. is tale of two innocents in the Washington woods and bureaucratic bushes.

Following that he will star in "Move Over, Mrs.

Photo Contest

Chimney Rock Park is offering a $500 first prize and $100 second prize for best color or black and white photo of any feature in the Park.

The photo contest will be judged on the basis of "capturing the beauty or the drama of the wonders of Nature in Chimney Rock Park."

The contest is open to amateurs and professionals and will be an annual event. This year's contest closes December 15th, 1976.

Submit entries to: Photo Contest, Chimney Rock Park, Chimney Rock, North Carolina 28720. If you wish photos returned, include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Winning entries become the property of Chimney Rock Park for publication with credit line.

Markham."with Dubbins as Mr. Markham.

Don came "home" in 1969, after 19 years away, to appear in "Make a Million. He returned in 1972 to appear again with another Vagabond veteran of those earlier days, the lovely Peggy Deane Redish, who had been an ingenue when he was a juvenile lead. The play was 40 Carats. In 1973 he portrayed Ralph Waldo Emerson in the Lawrence and Lee play The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail and also as Sakini in John Patrick's prize-winning play The Teahouse of the August Moon.

During the past year Don has appeared in segments of Movin' on Run, Joe Run, Mobile One, Barnaby Jones, The Rookies, Adam 12 and Cannon, in which Television audiences saw him as a moonshiner, a reporter, a drunk, a press photographer and a by-the-book cop among other things. He has also written and directed an anti-war short subject and directed a mental health short with Marty Allen as star.

On Broadway he was Ensign Pulver in Mr. Roberts. He played opposite Deborah Kerr in Tea and Sympathy under Eliz Kazan's direction.

The hardworking Dubbins is also busy with plans to produce and direct his own feature film, A Unicorn Ain't a Horse. He wrote the script from a story line supplied by collaborator and old friend Fred Griffith of Knoxville, Tenn. Present plans are to film it in North Carolina.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

For armchair travel and adventure, the following books take us to distant places and to another period of time.

ARABESQUE by Theresa de Kerpela is a touching love story, one of the best in ages. Set in the period between 1927 and 1938, mostly in Middle Europe, the whole panorama of life in a certain circle - with the hint of the war to come always in the background - is brilliantly portrayed. The narrator, Joanna Crest, a reserved young Englishwoman, is married to a British diplomat. Seeking friends outside the usual diplomatic circles, Julian and Joanna Crest meet some unusual people who involve the young couple in their own bizarre relationships. In the midst of the decadent glitter of diplomatic life in Europe's capitals, Joanna, at first the detached observer, is compelled to try to make sense of the interlacing patterns that form the arabesque that her world has become. And as her own marriage begins to crumble, Joanna is forced to recognize the many disguises of love, and what lies beneath them. No longer an observer, she is led inescapably to confront herself.

Another novel with period color and conflict is SUMMER STATION by Maud Lang. It introduces lonely Isabel Sinclair, whose only thought is survival when her young husband dies on shipboard in route to Australia. This strong, sure sense of survival drives Isabel from the relative comfort of Sidney into the untamed interior, where lusty men with towering energies wrestle with the rigors of life in the Outback. And Isabel soon learns that she must shed the shackles of her strict Scots upbringing if she is to survive in her adopted land. SUMMER STATION marks the debut of a gifted young novelist with a superb sense of period detail and great narrative flair.

In TISHA, Robert Specht tells the true story of Anne Hobbs, who became a teacher in the remote gold-rush settlement of Chicken, Alaska in 1926. Full of energy and ideals, her adventure pits her against the relentless Alaskan winter and the equally relentless, sometimes savage, colorful lot of Chickenites. Three men court Anne favors: Joe Temple, handsome and cynical; Cabaret Jackson, brawling whiskey-runner; and Fred Purdy, warm, generous and half-Eskimo. Her neighbors' openhearted welcome cools as Anne's friendship with Fred Purdy grows stronger. It evaporates when she seats little Chuck in class with her white students. And when Anne gets her backup, hostility erupts. But Anne makes the most of the real joys of life in the North Country. Her story is filled with warmth and with violence and sudden death, with prejudice and finally triumph. Now 70, Ms. Hobbs still lives in Chicken, Alaska.

Admiralty Island in Alaska houses the largest concentration of bald eagles in the United States. Scientists working on the island have counted more than 750 nesting pairs of the rare bird.

The Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico contain a room with a ceiling about 22 stories high, according to National Geographic. The room's floor is equivalent to the size of 14 football fields.

Americans Pound Out Five Gold Medals

By ED SCHUYLER, JR.
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — The Spinks brothers — middleweight Mike and light heavyweight Leon — and three other Americans won gold medals Saturday night while Cuba's Teofilo Stevenson became the first two-time heavyweight champion in Olympic boxing history.

With Ramon Castro, a brother of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, looking on, Stevenson crashed a right to the jaw to knock down and stop Mircea Simon of Romania with just 25 seconds left in the third round.

But the night belonged to the American boxers who turned in the finest U.S. performance since an amateur middleweight named Floyd Patterson led a parade of five American gold winners in 1952. That year, though, the U.S. team added no silver or bronze medals. This year they got one of each.

Joining the Spinks brothers as American champions were flyweight Leo Randolph, a Tacoma, Wash. high school student; lightweight Howard Davis of Glen Cove, N.Y., and light-welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md. The only U.S. boxer to lose Saturday night was bantamweight Charles Mooney, an Army sergeant from Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Leon Spinks capped the U.S. gold-medal avalanche with a devastating performance against Sixto Soria which gave the Americans victories in all three of their finals against Cubans.

The Marine corporal from Camp Lejeune, N.C., kept the pressure on the hard-hitting Cuban, who had scored two one-round knockouts. He knocked Soria down in the first round with two crunching rights to the head and floored him again in the third with a smashing right to the temple. Soria got up after the second knockdown but the referee ruled he was unable to continue and the fight was halted at 1:09 of the third.

Mike Spinks gave his mother, who was on hand from St. Louis to watch the biggest night her family ever will experience, just as impressive a performance as his older brother.

Mike knocked down world 165-pound champion Rufat Riskiev in the first round and stopped him at 1:54 of the third. The Russian was given two standing counts in the third round and, after the second one, complained he had been hit low. The referee ruled otherwise and the fight was stopped.

"It didn't hit his trunks," Mike said of the blow that was supposed to have been foul. "He wanted to stop so bad he had to make an excuse."

Randolph, an 18-year-old who still has a year to go in high school, started the U.S. victory parade by scoring well against Ramon Duvalon of Cuba in the second and third rounds with quick punches to the head. His accuracy earned him the vote of three of the five judges and made him the 112-pound champion and the big man on campus at Wilson High School.

Davis, who was going to turn pro, added the Olympic 132-pound Tribe Takes Win Over Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Bibby and Jim Kern combined on a six-hitter and Frank Duffy's fourth-inning RBI single provided the winning run as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 2-0 in the first game of a two-night doubleheader Saturday.

Duffy's single to left scored Buddy Bell, who had walked and moved up on another walk to Ron Pruitt. The Indians added an unearned run in the eighth with the help of two passed balls.

Bibby, 7-3, needed relief help from Kern after giving up two hits in the ninth.

McCauley Leads Colts

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Don McCauley rushed for two touchdowns and Howard Stevens scored on a 74-yard punt return as the Baltimore Colts defeated the Cleveland Browns 21-0 in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday.

Armbrister Keys Reds' Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sel-don-used Ed Armbrister drove in three runs with four hits to power the Cincinnati Reds to a 12-1 victory over San Diego Saturday night as Fred Norman won his 10th game with a four-hitter.

Armbrister, a .202 lifetime hitter who was starting for right fielder Ken Griffey, boosted his batting average to .425 with his night's work that included his second and third career home runs.

Norman, 10-2, lowered his National League earned run average to 2.27 as the Reds widened their West Division lead to 9½ games over runnerup Los Angeles.

McLendon In One-Shot Lead

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Veteran Mac McLendon charged in front with four birdies and then turned conservative in protecting a one-stroke lead over surging Lee Elder Saturday after 54 holes in the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

McLendon parred each of the final nine holes after seizing the lead to finish the third round with a four-under par 67 and a 54-hole total of 204, nine strokes under regulation for the distance on the 7,119-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Elder, who tuned up for his visit by playing a friendly game with President Ford last Sunday, started the third round two strokes off the pace but quickly made up ground. He had six birdies and one bogey in his 66, sending him into the final round with a score of 205.

Bob Menne, a former club pro in nearby Andover, and Bud Allin joined in the birdie spree to remain in close contention. Menne equalled the course record of 65 with six birdies without a bogey for a 207 total. Allin carded a respectable 68 for 207 and a tie with Menne.

Rex Caldwell, a second year pro tourist, and Ben Crenshaw, the leading money winner on the circuit this year, managed no better than par 71 and slipped from a share of the 36-hole lead. They reached the 54-hole stage with 208s, locked in a tie with Bruce Lietzke, who had a 68, and Tom Jenkins, who had a 69.

Track Athletes Have 22 Medal Performance

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States' fleet men's relay teams won gold medals in the 400-meter and 1,600-meter races Saturday, but marathoner Frank Shorter and high jumper Dwight Stones were upset as the blue-ribbon Olympic track and field competition ended.

The Americans finished with 22 medals — 19 for the men — including six golds, and three medals for the women, two silvers and a bronze. The gold medals, the total medals and the split between the men's and women's teams were the same as four years ago at the Munich Games.

Shorter, the 1972 Olympic champion, was heavily favored to repeat in the marathon and match the feat of the late Ethiopian, Abebe Bikila, the only two-time winner of the grueling 26-mile, 385-yard race.

But Shorter had to settle for second place behind little-known Waldemar Cierpinski of East Germany. Cierpinski, who will be 28 years old on Tuesday, slogged through the streets and hills of Montreal in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 55 seconds, the fastest Olympic marathon in history.

Stones, also a heavy choice in the high jump in which he owns the world record of 7-feet, 7 inches, wound up third at 7-3.

Jacek Wszola, a 19-year-old from Poland, won the gold medal at 7-4½ and Greg Joy of Canada, a student at the University of Texas-El Paso, took the silver at 7-3¼.

Meanwhile, John Walker of New Zealand, the world mile record holder, won the prestigious 1,500-meter race in the relatively slow time of 3:39.17. The race was marred, however, by the absence of Tanzania's Filbert Bayi, the world record holder who could not compete because his country and 28 other African nations withdrew in a political squabble concerning New Zealand's sports ties with racist South Africa.

East Germany won both of the women's relays, the 1,600 meters in world-record 3:19.23 and the 400 in an Olympic-record 42.55.

The American men's winning team in the 400 of Harvey

North State Loses, 2-1

SWANQUARTER — Greenville's North State All-Stars were eliminated from further play Little League Friday losing to Brunswick, 2-1. Roger Williams pitched the loss for Greenville and scored the only Greenville run which came over in the second as Williams scored on a hit by Jeff Porter.

Greenville had two on in the last of the sixth but failed to score.

Glance of Auburn University, Johnny Jones of Lampasas, Tex.; Millard Hampton of UCLA and Steve Riddick of Philadelphia finished in 38.33. The winning U.S. 1,600 men's relay team of Herman Frazier of Arizona State, Benny Brown of Los Angeles, Fred Newhouse of Baton Rouge, La., and Maxie Fox of Los Angeles clocked 2:58.65, the second-fastest time in history.

The day's other gold medal went to Ivanka Khristova of Bulgaria with an Olympic-record 69-foot, 5-inch throw in the women's shot put.

Cierpinski, who works out at the same club in East Germany as swimming star Kornelia Ender, had received little world-wide recognition before his stunning victory in the exhausting marathon.

Shorter, the 28-year-old former Yale star and now a lawyer in Boulder, Colo., held the lead for most of the early part of the race. But the dogged Cierpinski forged ahead with about 3¼ miles to go and steadily pulled away in the rain.

Shorter, who appeared to be in some discomfort, was timed in 2:10:45.8. Karel Lismont of Belgium was third in 2:11:12.6.

Don Kardong of Spokane, Wash., came in fourth in the gruelling race in 2:11:15.8, and Finland's amazing Lasse Viren, winner both the 5,000 and 10,000 meters, wound up fifth in 2:13:10.8 in his first marathon. Viren, thwarted in his attempt to duplicate the Herculean feat of Czechoslovakia's Emil Zatopek, who won the 5,000, 10,000 and marathon in 1952, said, "At the 15-mile mark, the hills got to me. I was very tired in the last few miles."

The skinny Finn, a policeman in a little town north of Helsinki, kept pace with Shorter at the outset of the race. But both he and the American wilted under the pressure put on by the steady Cierpinski.

The East German's time was just short of the best ever recorded, 2:08:34.0 by Derek Clayton of Australia in 1969 at Antwerp, Belgium. However, no official world records are kept for the marathon because every course is different.

This one ran through the streets of Montreal, St. Leonard, Montreal North, the Town of Mount Royal and Outremont, with the start and finish in the Olympic Stadium, which was nearly filled to capacity with a crowd of some 67,000.

When Cierpinski entered the stadium, nearly 200 meters ahead of Shorter, he received a loud ovation from the crowd.

Shorter was entered in both the marathon and the 10,000 meters, in which he had finished fifth four years ago at Munich. But he withdrew from the 10,000 to concentrate on the marathon. His efforts, however, were not enough.

championship to his world title at 126 with a brilliant performance that carried him to a unanimous decision over European champion Simion Cutov of Romania.

Davis teased the Romanian with left jabs and teed off on him with right hands in dominating the fight. Davis registered a standing knockdown in the second round and, at one point, fired seven straight unanswered rights to the head.

"This medal right here is for my mother," said Davis, whose mother died the Thursday before the Games opened.

Leonard, staying away from throwing his sore right hand for most of the fight, unloaded it in the third round to score two standing knockdowns and outpoint Cuban left-hander Andres Aldama for the 140-pound title.

Leonard's strategy was to stay inside and he did for most of the fight. Sugar Ray also scored a second-round knockdown with a short left en route to his unanimous decision.

Mooney, suffering from a chest cold, faded in the third round of the 119-pound final and lost the unanimous decision to Yong Jo Gu of North Korea. Mooney scored well with right jabs at the beginning but, as the fight wore on, Gu strength and power took their toll.

"I thought that the first two rounds were even, but I couldn't perform like I wanted to in the third," said Mooney, who admitted he felt the effects of the cold and of the cold medication.

Cuba got the first of its three gold medals when world 106-pound champion Jorge Hernandez scored a 3-1 decision over Byong Uk Li of North Korea.

The second Cuban gold came in the 126-pound class when Angel Herrera knocked out Richard Nowakowski with a smashing left in the second round.

In the other two finals Jochin Bachfeld of East Germany scored 3-2 decision over Pedro J. Gamarro of Venezuela at 147 pounds and Jerry Rybicki of Poland scored a unanimous verdict over Tadija Kacar of Yugoslavia.

The Bachfeld decision was the only unpopular one of the night. A crowd of about 15,000 at the Forum boomed for a good 10 minutes when the decision was announced and booed again when the East German got his gold medal.

Houston Edges Atlanta, 2-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cruz scored both Houston runs and went three-for-four at the plate as the Houston Astros trimmed the Atlanta Braves 2-1 in the first game of a doubleheader Saturday.

Houston starter J.R. Richard, 12-11, checked the Braves on four hits in pitching his eighth complete game of the season.

The Braves scored in the first on a walk to Jerry Royster, a stolen base, an infield grounder and Houston catcher Ed Herrmann's passed ball.

Houston tied it in the first on a single by Cruz, a stolen base and Rob Andrews' RBI single off losing pitcher Dick Ruthven.

11-9. The winning run for Houston came home in the sixth on Cruz' double, a wild pitch and Herrmann's fielder's choice.

Cubs Rally To Beat Cards, 6-2

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Madlock's tie-breaking double, his third hit of the game, and rookie Wayne Tyrone's two-run pinch-single featured a four-run uprising in the eighth inning Saturday that gave the Chicago Cubs a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Joe Wallis and Jose Cardenal singled off loser Lynn McGlothlen, 9-10, before Madlock doubled to crack a 2-2 tie. After an intentional walk loaded the bases, Tyrone singled off reliever Al Hrabosky.

George Mitterwald delivered the final run with a sacrifice fly.

Steve Renko, 4-6, went the distance for the Cubs, scattering nine hits. It was his first complete game of the year.

Murcer Helps Count Win 10th

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bobby Murcer drove in three runs, two on a first-inning home run, to lead the San Francisco Giants past the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3 Saturday.

The Giants reeled off five consecutive hits and scored four runs in the opening inning off Doug Rau, 10-7.

John Montefusco, 10-9, went the distance for the victory, limiting the Dodgers to 11 hits.

Murcer's 14th homer of the season came after Marty Perez doubled and Gary Matthews singled to produce the first San Francisco run. In the second, Murcer was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to drive in another run.

Paradosi Triples In Winner In ECU Win

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Pete Paradosi slammed a triple to deep right center in the fourth inning driving home Charlie Stevens with the winning run as East Carolina University took a 3-2 decision over UNC-Wilmington last night.

Stevens had singled with two in the fourth and moved into scoring position stealing second base. Paradosi then lined a pitch through the gap.

Wilmington had taken the lead in the second pushing in its only two tallies. The Seahawks had plenty of chances to score leaving 12 men on the base paths and having three more cut down trying to score.

Richard King started things off in the second with a one out single and moved up on a walk to Paul Stevens. Both runners, scored when Larry Dove tripled to left center. Wilmington tried a suicide but Ray Toler popped up his bunt and Dove was forced at third for an inning ending double play.

Wilmington put men on in every inning but scored only in the second. The Hawks collected seven hits off Pirate pitcher Terry Durham who eventually got the win, his eighth of the season. Wilmington walked seven times and struck out eight times.

ECU got its first man on in the first as Rick Koryda led off with a single. Paradosi picked off stealing second.

Paradosi had a hand in the second inning scoring pie leading off the frame with a single and stealing second. Koryda doubled him home and Koryda scored when Robert Brinkley's hit to left got away from Dove.

ECU got the game winner in the next frame.

ECU showed its offense in the second and third. Wilmington kept the pressure on Durham, however, making Durham pitch out of two bases loaded situations and two-on threats.

Durham walked three on in the fourth but got a strike out to end the frame. A single and two more walks loaded the bases in the fifth but the Buc defense came up with a double play. Wilmington put two on in the sixth but Durham sent two Hawks down swinging.

Paradosi threatened in the eighth when Stevens reached third on Dove's errored grounder. Stevens was thrown out, however, trying to score on Tolar's bunt.

ECU catcher Howard McCullough saved the game a second time in the ninth tagging Randy Bernhardt at the plate as Bernhardt tried to slide in on Mike Good's grounder to Sonny Wooten at first.

Bernhardt had two hits for Wilmington while Koryda, Brinkley and Paradosi had two each for ECU.

The Pirates close the regular season with a game in Chapel Hill tonight with the Tar Heels and they begin the tournament Tuesday, probably in Chapel Hill.

Looking For Best Season

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton begins his 16th season in the National Football League as a stronger, faster, wiser and more durable player than when he was a rookie.

"I think I can play better than ever," said the 36-year-old Tarkenton. "I'm in the best shape of my career."

Tarkenton, the NFL's Most Valuable Player last year, reported to the Viking training camp at 185 pounds and recorded his fastest 40-yard dash ever. "And, hopefully, I've learned something since I was 21," he said with a smile.

"Francis' enthusiasm is one of his main assets," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "He'll probably go down as the greatest quarterback to play pro football, but he still comes to play every week, every day."

Tarkenton, who has already thrown a record 291 touchdown passes, begins a three-year, $1 million contract this fall. He will add to his own mark of 2,931 completion and about midway through the year should surpass John Unitas' NFL mark of 40,239 passing yards.

"There's no magic to success," said Tarkenton. "God doesn't look down more favorably upon one person or another... he's got more important things to do than that, I'm sure."

Tarkenton says all the great players stumble and fall somewhere along the line.

"The ones who keep going have persevered," continued Tarkenton. "You don't hear a successful person say, 'What if...'"

When Tarkenton began his career in the NFL, his uninhibited style of quarterbacking attracted criticism from pro football insiders.

"It's healthy to have change," continued Tarkenton. "It's not all bad to oppose change or change slowly either, and that's probably why I was criticized. Maybe I was the symbol of the moving quarterback."

The 6-foot Tarkenton's elusiveness has protected him from serious injury and he's never missed a regular season assignment because being hurt.

"Inactivity brings on atrophy," Tarkenton said. "I've heard a lot about the potential of man. I'm doing a lot more today than I did 10 years ago and I still want to do more."

Despite all the records, Tarkenton wants to lead Minnesota to a Super Bowl victory.

"We have a tremendous amount of talent here," said Tarkenton. "We're starting with more depth than we've ever had before."

"I've never called a perfect game... never came close," said Tarkenton, who has guided Minnesota to a 34-8 record and two Super Bowl appearances in the last three years. "There will always be room for improvement."

Montgomery Leads Boston To Win Over Yanks

By PHIL CANNADAY
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Bob Montgomery homered and had a perfect day at the plate, powering the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 victory Saturday over the

New York Yankees in the first game of a day-night double-header.

Boston was scheduled to pitch Reggie Cleveland, 4-5, against Jim Catfish Hunter, 12-9, in the nightcap.

Montgomery, playing in place of the injured Carlton Fisk, also had a run-scoring single and a bunt single in helping Ferguson Jenkins, 10-8, pick up his 201st career victory in the nationally televised day game.

Butch Hobson, called up from the minors to play third base for the Red Sox, had an RBI triple for Boston and also scored a run.

Yankees starter Ken Holtzman, 8-7, took the loss. He left with the bases loaded in the seventh inning, and the Red Sox sacrificed in a run off reliever Dick Tidrow to cap the scoring.

New York jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Roy White walked, stole second and went on to third when Montgomery's throw went into center field. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Thurman Munson.

The Red Sox went ahead 2-1 in the second when Hobson tripled home Bobby Darwin, who had singled, and scored on a wild pitch by Holtzman.

The Yankees tied the score in the fourth when Mickey Rivers slapped a single to center, driving in Graig Nettles, who had singled to open the inning.

Montgomery's homer, his first of the season, snapped a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning. It landed in the netting above the left field wall.

NCNB, Home Builders Close Season Victorious

Skip Topping fired a no-hitter Saturday night to pace NCNB to a 3-2 win over Planters Bank in the final Babe Ruth baseball game of the 1976 season. In an earlier contest, Home Builders clipped Pepsi Cola, 10-7.

Topping, in his first start on the mound, fanned 10, walked six and hit one batter. NCNB jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first when Will Barrett walked, stole second and scored when Don McGlohon lined a single through the middle.

Planters tied the contest in the second when Perry Worthington reached on an error, went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a passed ball.

NCNB had scoring opportunities in the fourth and fifth before connecting for two more in the sixth. Cliff Fearrington struck out and reached on a passed ball. After Fearrington stole second, Marc Sasser sacrificed him to third. Fearrington scored on a passed ball as Mac Stocks walked, with Stocks moving to second on the play. Stocks then stole third and scored when Mark Shank ripped a double to right field.

PNB came back in the seventh. With one out, William Sneed walked. NCNB got another out, but Topping walked the next three batters to plate Sneed. Fearrington ended the game and the season for the league though by making a spectacular diving catch in left field.

In the early game, Home Builders took advantage of a multitude of Pepsi Cola errors to take a 1-0 first inning lead. Pepsi tied it up in the first when Billy Dough walked, stole second and went to third on the throw. Dough scored on a throwing error moments later.

Home Builders got hits from Shelton Wilson and Norwood Still, along with a single by Darryl Allen in the second inning, plus help from two errors to score four runs. Wilson, Still and Allen Clark had hits in the fifth as Home Builders added four more. Wilson ripped a third hit in the sixth to help the visitors finish the scoring with a single run.

Pepsi took advantage of three walks and a single by Dough in the sixth to score four runs, with the help of Home Builders' errors and then countered with two more in the seventh.

In Friday night action, College View dropped a forfeit to Planters Bank and Carolina Dairy nipped NCNB, 4-2.

Shorter Is Upset In Bid

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Lightly regarded Waldemar Cierpinski of East Germany conquered the hills of Montreal and a steady rain Saturday to capture the exhausting 26-mile, 385-yard marathon, ending Frank Shorter's dream of winning the Olympic gold medal for a second consecutive Games.

The 5-foot-7, 130-pound Cierpinski pulled away from Shorter, the early leader, with about 3 1/2 miles to go and entered the Olympic Stadium 200 meters in front of Shorter with only two laps of the track to go.

Shorter, of Boulder, Colo., could not challenge and settled for the silver medal. Belgium's Karel Lismont came in third for the bronze to go along with his silver which he won in 1972 in Munich behind Shorter.

Don Kardong of Spokane, Wash., finished fourth and amazing Lasse Viren of Finland was fifth as his attempt to win three gold medals in the same Games — to go with his triumphs in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters — came to a shattering halt in the grueling race.

The rain, which began shortly after the start of the race through the streets of Montreal, slowed down what had been a rather fast pace.

However, Cierpinski, running smoothly with no strain on his face, never wavered after taking the lead. He stepped up the tempo and finished in an Olympic record time of 2 hours, nine minutes, 55 seconds. That bettered the Olympic mark of 2:12:12 set by Abebe Bikila of Ethiopia in 1964 at Tokyo.

Cierpinski's time came within

1:22.0 of the best mark in history set by Derek Clayton of Australia in 1969.

Shorter, an attorney, had said he wanted to set a fast pace but the hilly course, the slick streets, and rain in his face forced the 28-year-old Yale graduate to remain with a group of about 10 halfway through the race. However, the early pace-setter, Bill Rodgers of Melrose, Mass., faded at the 30-kilometer mark of the 42.2-kilometer race.

Cierpinski followed Shorter for two miles before moving ahead slowly and, at 35 kilometers, was about 100 meters in front.

At that point Shorter had pain written on his face. His legs appeared leaden and his last attempt to catch the East German student died when Cierpinski picked up the pace as soon as he came within sight of the packed Olympic Stadium.

Shorter was the leader at the 20-kilometer mark, just under halfway through the race, as he pulled away from East Germany's Waldemar Cierpinski.

Shorter's time of 1:01:48 was not as fast as he ran in winning four years ago in Munich, his birthplace, but the slick streets and the constant rain had taken its toll.

At the 20-kilometer mark, Viren had dropped far off the pace as his dreams of winning three gold medals in one Olympics faded.

Cierpinski, who will be 26 on Tuesday, had been considered somewhat of a long shot but he remained on Shorter's shoulder at 22 meters.

Surprisingly, virtually unknown Shivnath Singh of India passed Rodgers into third as Rodgers faded into a group some 100 meters behind.

With nine miles left, Shorter, Cierpinski and Singh maintained the pace as all three splashed through puddles and wiped moisture from their foreheads.

Former Boston Red Sox catcher Matt Batts is managing the Baton Rouge, La., team in the Gulf States League.

S. Pitt Into State Finals

GRIFTON—Kevin Battle and Bernard Ricciarelli pitched a one-hitter as the Southern Pitt Little League stars beat Jamesville, 8-0, for the district Little Tar Heel baseball league title, Friday.

The South Pitt team will advance to the state tournament to be held in Washington beginning Wednesday.

The two pitchers worked three innings each striking out 12 batters. Dixon Page led the SP hitting with a double and a homer and Tyrone Gay slapped a two-run double.

Not Many Laugh At Martin Now

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — They laughed when Billy Martin said he'd win in Minnesota.

They laughed when Billy Martin said he'd win in Detroit. They laughed when Billy Martin said he'd win in Texas. Oh, how they laughed when Billy Martin said he'd win in New York.

"They laughed at me in every town I've been in when I said we'd win," the fiery Martin remembers...unsmiling. "I don't know why. Maybe some day they'll stop laughing."

They have...in Minnesota, Detroit, Texas and New York. "Every time I said we were gonna win we either won or came in second, so I can't be too far wrong," Martin points out.

In his first major league managerial job, Martin won the American League West in 1969 with the Minnesota Twins, who had finished seventh in a 10-team league one year earlier.

In 1971, he brought the Detroit Tigers home second in the AL East and won the title the following season. The Tigers had finished fourth in a six-team division in 1970.

In 1974, he took the Texas Rangers from the 1973 cellar to a second-place finish behind the Oakland A's.

Last August, he inherited a third-place Yankee team which hadn't won anything since their dynasty crumbled in 1964 and has them comfortably out in front of the AL East.

But now that everyone is conceding him the flag, Martin is acting coy.

"I figured it would be a race right down to the end," he says. "But it's early yet, two more months to go."

Although the Yankees came out like highway robbers in deals that put Mickey Rivers, Ed Figueroa, Willie Randolph, Dock Ellis and Oscar Gamble in pinstripes to join the likes of Catfish Hunter, Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles, Chris Chambliss and Roy White, there's more to the team's sudden return to prominence than just successful trading.

"It was an overhauling job from the basic foundation," says Martin, who didn't like what he saw last season.

"The last two months I was an observer," he says. "I didn't like the execution on the field and I didn't like what was going on in the clubhouse."

"On the field, the execution and discipline was very poor. They missed the cutoff man all the time, so often it was unbelievable. And they were bringing every Tom, Dick and Harry into the clubhouse. It was chaos."

Martin improved the execution by stressing fundamentals every day during the abbreviated spring training.

"We didn't miss a day. We worked on fundamentals even on days we played a game. They're playing together as a team, that's the biggest improvement. Last year they were a bunch of individuals."

And he also cut down on the number of locker room guests, as well as barring members of the media from the clubhouse and dugout 20 minutes before game time. The TV and radio also goes off during those 20 minutes.

"Discipline has got to start in the clubhouse," Martin says. "You can't have a country club clubhouse. Last year, the game would start and some of the players would come out to bench an inning later. Now, the players fine each other if they're not out there for the anthem and the guys who aren't playing aren't complaining and moaning. That's the way it is with a winning club."

Jenner Best All-Around; Viren Best Distance Man

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Bruce Jenner claimed the title of world's greatest athlete, Lasse Viren claimed the title of world's greatest distance runner and a couple of Soviet athletes won gold medals and got lost in the excitement.

It was an almost classic day of track and field Friday at the Olympic Stadium, one which may only be surpassed by today when eight final events are scheduled — events in which Americans can optimistically count as many as nine medals.

Jenner won the rugged two-day test of strength, speed and stamina, the decathlon, and his total of 8,618 points, a world record, came on five lifetime bests in the 10 events. The total bettered the record of 8,454 set by 1972 champ Nikolay Avilov of the Soviet Union.

Viren became the greatest Olympic distance runner in recent times by capturing a tactical 5,000-meter race in 13:24.8, giving the wiry Finn his fourth gold medal in the last two Olympics. Earlier he won the 10,000, the same double he won in 1972.

Now he plans to run the marathon today, a plan he says he's had for a long time.

Meanwhile, Viktor Saneyev won an unprecedented third gold medal in the triple jump and his Soviet countrywoman Tatiana Kazankina captured her second gold medal of the Games, two of the finest performances in Olympic history, but Jenner and Viren stole the hearts of the crowd of 70,000.

Miss Kazankina, who set a world record of 3:56 in the women's 1,500-meter run only six weeks ago, was content to win this 1,500 in a slow 4:05.5. Gunhild Hoffmeister of East Germany, the bronze medal winner in the 800 in 1972, ran second and another East German, Ulrike Klapezyski, was third.

American Jan Merrill finished seventh in 4:08.54.

Saneyev broke the "two Olympic" pattern of the triple jump. Adhemar da Silva of Brazil and Josef Schmidt of Poland each had won two golds in a row. Saneyev earned his third straight with the coolness of a professional.

James Butts of Los Angeles took the lead on his fourth jump. Saneyev's fifth leap was 56 feet 8 3/4 inches, 4 1/4 inches ahead of Butts, who earned the silver.

Jenner scored his best first-day total of 4,298 on Thursday. He was third behind East Germany's Guido Kratschmer and Avilov, but Jenner holds the world record of 4,341 for a second-day performance and when he equaled his lifetime best of 15-9 in the pole vault, he all but cinched the gold medal.

His fast 4:12.6 in the final event, the agonizing 1,500 beat Kratschmer's 8,411 points and Avilov's 8,369.

Viren brought the crowd to its feet earlier when he won a stretch battle with New Zealanders Dick Quax and Rod Dixon and Klaus-Peter Hildenbrand of West Germany. Quax ran second in 13:25.2. Hildenbrand dove across the finish line ahead of Dixon in 13:25.4 for the bronze.

Randy Warrick's three-run homer in the top of the fourth highlighted a five-run rally that regained the lead for Carolina and the University of North Carolina Tar Heels added one in the sixth in posting an 8-5 victory over East Carolina, Friday night.

The blast came after ECU had changed pitchers in the fourth. UNC had taken a 2-0 lead in the first but ECU blew in front with a five-run surge in the third.

The Heels finally sent Pirate starter Billy Davis to the showers with three singles and a walk in the top of the fourth that cut the lead to 5-4. Larry Daughtridge served up the home run pitch to Warrick who obligingly parked it over the left field fence.

David had gone the first three innings walking two and fanning two while giving up six hits. Daughtridge went three more giving up four hits, two runs and striking out three. Pete Conaty finished the game throwing two innings of perfect ball.

Mike Fox led off the Tar Heel first with a single and Keven Haeblerle walked. Warrick beat out an infield hit. A sacrifice scored Fox and a wild pitch scored Haeblerle.

ECU broke UNC starter Matt Wilson's string of no-hit ball with two singles in the second but Charlie Steven was thrown out trying to score on Pete Paradosi's hit to left.

Howard McCullough walked with one out in the third as did Rick Koryda. Robert Brinkley singled in Glen Card running for McCullough and a hit by Macon Moye loaded the bases. Sonny Wooten singled in Koryda. A walk to Bobby Supel and a two-run single by Paradosi made it 5-2 for the Pirates.

But the lead was quickly dissipated. Keven Caddell singled and scored from first on a hit to right by P.J. Gay when the ball was played to the wrong base. Fox walked and a single by Haeblerle drove in Gay. Warrick put Carolina back ahead with the homer.

Greg Norris, who relieved Wilson in the third, completely shut off the Pirates for the rest of the game allowing only one other runner to reach base, giving up a walk to Koryda in the fourth. He fanned seven in a row over three innings and 12 in his six-and-a-third innings.

Carolina's eighth run came in the sixth when Warrick singled in Gay who had led off the frame with a walk.

Warrick led the hitting with three hits in five trips and four RBI's. Jim Atkinson had two for the Heels. Paradosi had a pair for ECU.

ECU was scheduled to close out the regular summer season last night hosting UNC-Wilmington.

Messersmith Hurls Braves Past Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Andy Messersmith says he is feeling better physically but it appears he could beat the Astros regardless of how he felt.

Messersmith, 10-9, fired a five-hitter for his first victory since July 6 as the Atlanta Braves topped the Astros 3-2 Friday night.

The victory was Messersmith's 11th triumph over the Astros in 13 career decisions.

"This is the best I've felt in a long time," said Messersmith, who has been bothered with leg and shoulder ailments.

"For a while I thought I was going to miss a turn in the starting rotation but being a pro means going out and doing the job."

The Astros opened the scoring in the first inning on Enos Cabell's base hit, a stolen base and Cesar Cedeño's run scoring single.

Atlanta took a 2-1 lead in the fifth on doubles by Vic Correll and Messersmith and Jimmy Wynn's RBI single off losing pitcher Dan Larson, 1-2.

The Braves other run came home in the eighth on Rod Gilbreath's first home run of the season.

Houston added a run in the ninth inning on singles by Bob Watson and Jose Cruz and shortstop Darrel Chaney's throwing error.

Houston put up a scoring threat in the fourth when Watson doubled to lead off the inning but Messersmith escaped unharmed by retiring the next three Astros in order.

"The fourth inning gave me a lot of confidence," said Messersmith. "That's the sign of good pitching strength."

Yarborough Gains Pocono Pole Slot

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Cale Yarborough led an assault on the track record Saturday and won the pole position for Sunday's $135,000 500-mile stock car race at Pocono International Raceway, the first National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National 500-miler since mid-May.

Yarborough toured the 2 1/2-mile oval in his Chevrolet at an average speed of 147.865 miles per hour, less than a half-second faster than last year's winner David Pearson, whose Mercury took the outside front row position in the 40-car lineup at 147.330 m.p.h.

Bobby Allison, still hobbled by extensive injuries suffered in a crash three weeks ago, nailed down the third starting position at 147.159 m.p.h. Allison is shooting for a victory here that would give him a career victory at every Grand National track.

The next three qualifiers, Buddy Baker in a Ford, Richard Petty in a Dodge and Darrell Waltrip in a Chevrolet, all exceeded Allison's former track record of 146.491 m.p.h. in qualifying.

Pearson beat Petty by four seconds here last year, and Petty won the year before. Baker, third and second in the two previous NASCAR races here, needs only $5,721 to top the $1 million mark in career NASCAR winnings. A finish of third or better will do the trick.

Yarborough, Pearson, Petty and Allison are the only other current millionaires club members.

Sunday's race, scheduled for a 1 p.m. start, breaks an unusual string of 12 weeks without a 500-mile race on the circuit, although there was a 600-miler at Charlotte, N.C., May 30. The last one was at Dover, Del., May 16. That tidbit is said to reflect a trend toward shorter races on the Grand National tour.

A previous 400-miler at Riverside, Calif., in June was shortened to 400 kilometers, 250 miles, this year. Short track races at Bristol, Tenn., and Richmond, Va., were also trimmed this season. Several races were cut down two years ago during the height of the fuel crisis.

Tigers Cry 'May Day' As May Carries Orioles

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
The calendar said July 30, but Friday really was May Day in the American League.

Lee May walloped a three-run homer that broke open a tight game and powered the streaking Baltimore Orioles to a 7-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

And just when it appeared the Orioles were going to chop another game off New York's lead in the AL East, little brother Carlos May delivered a three-run shot of his own that capped a late rally and lifted the Yankees to a 6-4 triumph over the Boston Red Sox, keeping them 11 lengths in front of Baltimore.

In other games, the Kansas City Royals edged the Texas Rangers 2-1, the Minnesota Twins nipped the Oakland A's 8-7, the California Angels blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the Cleveland Indians downed the Milwaukee Brewers 7-2 in a rain-shortened seven-inning game.

Asked about catching the Yankees, Lee May, who collected a pair of singles to go with his 19th home run, said: "I haven't given it any thought. I'm just playing day-by-day and hoping we can make up the difference."

Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles while Mickey Stanley drove in all the Detroit runs with a pair of homers.

Royals 2, Rangers 1
Tom Poquette sprayed three singles, including a tie-breaking hit in the fifth inning following a triple by Frank White. Dennis Leonard limited the Rangers to three hits, two of them infield grounders, before he left with one out in the ninth after developing a blister.

The Royals are short of pitching these days with Steve Busby and Paul Splittorff sidelined. Hopefully, Leonard, 12-4, won't have to miss a turn.

Twins 8, A's 7
Rookie Butch Wynegar ignited Minnesota's comeback from a 7-1 deficit with his first major league grand slam home run in the fifth inning and Larry Hise's eighth-inning sacrifice fly drove in the winner. Pinch hitter Steve Braun tied the game with a single off A's relief ace Rollie Fingers before Hise's game-winning fly. The setback dropped the A's nine games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

Angels 3, White Sox 0
Nolan Ryan fired a three-hitter and struck out 10 to end a personal four-game losing streak. The only Chicago hits were infield singles by Ralph Garr in the first and fourth innings and a clean single by Jorge Orta in the ninth. Singles by Ron Jackson, Dave Collins and Jerry Remy accounted for the first of three seventh-inning runs off Ken Brett and Bobby Bonds doubled home the other two.

Indians 7, Brewers 2
Rick Manning's two-run double capped Cleveland's four-run fourth inning and Milwaukee aided the Indians' cause by committing five errors in the game. Cleveland starter Dennis Eckersley struck out 12 in the rain-shortened game.

Repay Mets With 12th Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Earlier this season, the New York Mets wanted to put Jerry Koosman on relief. Now, they're happy they found work for him.

Koosman has repaid the Mets' faith. He's on the way to one of his best seasons with 12 victories, including Friday night's 3-2 four-hitter of the Philadelphia Phillies.

In addition to an impressive 12-7 record, Koosman has a 3.33 earned run average with 104 strikeouts in 145 2-3 innings.

Friday night's performance against the National League East leaders was a typical Koosman job: low hit, high tension.

In the other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds took a doubleheader from the San Diego Padres 13-8 and 4-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the Montreal Expos 4-3 in 13 innings; the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Houston Astros 3-2; the Chicago Cubs stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 and the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3.

Reds 13-4, Padres 8-2
Johnny Bench drove in four runs and reliever Manny Sarmiento, called up from the minors earlier in the day, registered his first major league victory as Cincinnati outslugged

San Diego in the first game of their doubleheader.

Bench hit his 250th career homer in the nightcap and George Foster belted his 22nd of the season as the Reds swept San Diego behind Gary Nolan's 10-hitter.

Pirates 4, Expos 3
Manny Sanguillen's bases-

loaded single with one out in the 13th inning gave Pittsburgh its victory over Montreal. Montreal had tied the score at 3-3 in the seventh when Gary Carter doubled and came home on a single by Jose Morales.

Braves 3, Astros 2
Andy Messersmith fired a five-hitter and drove in a run with a fifth-inning double as Atlanta beat Houston. Messersmith, 10-9, continued his career mastery over Houston as he picked up his 11th victory in 13 decisions with the Astros.

Cubs 7, Cardinals 6
Pete LaCock's three-run homer in the sixth inning and George Mitterwald's eighth-inning blast lifted Chicago over St. Louis. LaCock's homer came after loser Bob Forsch, 5-6, walked Bill Madlock and Jerry Morales with one out and the Cubs trailing 4-2. The Cubs added another run in the inning on Manny Trillo's double and Mick Kelleher's run-scoring single.

Mitterwald's eighth-inning home run provided the Cubs' winning run.

Giants 5, Dodgers 3
Gary Matthews hit a three-run homer, climaxing a five-run rally in the third inning that carried San Francisco past Los Angeles.

Chris Speier and Dave Rader opened the Giants third with singles off Burt Hooton, 6-11. Hooton then hit Giant pitcher Charlie Williams, 2-0, with a pitch to load the bases. Gary Thomasson smacked a two-run single to center, and after a sacrifice by Marty Perez, Matthews slugged his 12th homer of the season.

Use Light Tackle For Surf Fishing Thrills

By JIM DEAN

When spinning tackle was first adapted to salt water fishing back in the early 1950's, it rapidly began to replace the conventional, revolving spool outfits in use at that time. Stated simply, spinning tackle was more versatile, easier to use, capable of longer casts and generally superior for most kinds of surf and pier fishing.

The first surf fishing outfit I owned was a nine-foot stick with a big reel filled with 20-pound test monofilament. For years, it doubled as a bottom-fishing surf rod (capable of handling up to four-ounce sinkers) and a plugging rod which worked very efficiently for blues, Spanish mackerel and trout.

I've still got that outfit (it's well over 20 years old now), and I use it frequently. Indeed, similar outfits are popular today, though lighter lines are often used. Some anglers merely buy an extra spool for their reels and use 17-20 pound test mono for bottom fishing and 12-14 pound test for plugging. It's a practical arrangement for the casual surf fisherman who wants one rod to serve both purposes.

However, in recent years, I've noticed an increasing tendency to use lighter tackle for many kinds of surf and pier fishing. Surf rods in the eight-foot class are common now.

And yet, many surf fishermen still have not realized that even lighter tackle can be practical—not to mention more fun.

My son Scott, who is 10, and daughter Susan, 7, fished with me one recent weekend at the coast, and although we only fished the surf for such small fry as spots, pompano, flounder, snapper, blues and sea mullet, we had a super time because we left our big surf rods in the cottage.

Instead of eight-and nine-foot salt water tackle, we used freshwater spinning gear. The heaviest outfit was seven-foot rod and reel filled with 10-pound test line and a two-hook bottom rig with a one-ounce sinker.

A hand-sized spot doesn't offer much sport when he's caught on a stiff nine-foot rod. Most of the "fight" comes from the four-ounce pyramid sinker.

But on light freshwater tackle, small bottom fish provide real thrills. One of the big mullet I caught ran like a five-pound bluefish and I had a real tussle getting him on the beach.

We have even experimented with true ultralight spinning tackle and four-pound test line. I used such a rod exclusively one day when the surf was relatively calm and had a ball with about 30 spots and mullet.

Of course, you can't use a pyramid sinker with ultralight spinning tackle, but we found that we could fish effectively by simply pinching two or three split shot on the bottom rig. Instead of anchoring the rig in one place, the split shot drifts with the tide. Still, by keeping a tight line, you can easily detect the "bites," and when you get a hookup, it's just you and the fish with little added weight.

Of course, you can use the same bait you'd use with heavier outfits, including bloodworms, shrimp, squid, peeler crab and sandbugs or mole crabs (usually called sand fleas). In my opinion, bloodworms are the most effective bait day in and day out, and I have seen them produce fish when nothing else worked. Unfortunately, they are expensive. The going price this year is $2.25 a dozen where we fished; however, it should be pointed out that each cut-up worm should yield at least five or six small pieces of bait and often more than one fish can be caught on each piece.

If you're planning a beach vacation this summer or fall, I suggest you try some of this light tackle. I think you'll agree that even small spots are fun to catch.

In A Variety Of Activities Thousands Enjoy Recreation In Greenville

CONCENTRATION . . . is given to a game of miniature pool by these youngsters.

RECREATION . . . can also be a solitary pleasure, when you can soar alone . . . and dream.

Long summer days bring thoughts of sandlot baseball, children splashing in a pool, lazy picnic lunches and endless games under the trees.

In June alone, more than 30,000 people celebrated the summer season by participating in activities made possible by the Greenville Recreation and Parks department, according to a departmental report.

The department maintains approximately 14 different recreation areas in the city, numbering 400-500 acres of land, and according to Recreation and Parks director Boyd Lee, changes are constantly being made to upgrade the program.

"In 1972, the city planner and I did a study of the recreational facilities here and compared them with other similar cities in North Carolina," said Lee.

"We compared them with the national standard also, and compiled a five-year plan to remedy our situation.

"Since 1972, we've done a great deal to bring ourselves up to standards."

According to Lee, one of the greatest needs found in the study was for improvement in programs for special populations: the blind, the retarded, the handicapped.

Now over 100 people participate in activities planned for these special populations.

Alice Keene, coordinator of programs for exceptional children and adults, cited the success of Camp Sunshine, a four-week day camp for the developmentally disabled, as one of the department's greatest strides forward.

"Camp Sunshine is one of the biggest things we do," she said.

"A lot of our kids are learning the basics of swimming. And that's a big achievement.

"A lot of people don't realize that physically handicapped kids are more mobile in the water. We can take them out of the wheel chair, put an inner tube around them, and let them go.

"It's such good exercise for their legs. And they enjoy the water."

Ms. Keene said Camp Sunshine, which ended Friday, provided activities including swimming, putt-putt golf, arts and crafts, music and field trips for the handicapped children.

And it laid the groundwork for year-round programming for special populations.

"We also have a swimming for the developmentally disabled," she said.

"We have activities for the visually handicapped, such as arts and crafts, picnics and field trips. Earlier this summer, we took the visually handicapped on an outing to Atlantic Beach.

"Later, we hope to provide activities for the people in the nursing homes. We may also begin to include other handicapped individuals in our swimming programs."

Ms. Keene, who is trained in therapeutic recreation, urges more of Greenville's handicapped to participate in the activities.

"I know there are handicapped people out there who can't get to us," she said.

"I would urge parents to involve their handicapped children in our programs. And we always welcome the public to come out and see what we're doing for these kids."

Other changes have been implemented to satisfy the demands of the 1972 study, according to Boyd Lee.

"We've tried hard to put more emphasis on girls' activities," he said.

"Before that time, all our attention was on recreational programs for males. We now have programs for females, too.

"We pushed hard to get programs in the arts going over the past few years. We started a community theater, a children's theater and a real fine year-round arts and crafts program.

"Our most successful program has been the 'Sunday in the Park' series. We've also hired art and music instructors to go around to the parks during the summer so the children would be exposed to more than just games."

Personnel changes have also helped improve the Recreation and Parks department.

"We've been able to hire people who are specialists in various areas, thereby getting better-quality programming," said Lee.

"The Recreation and Parks department now employs 31 full-time people funded under the Recreation and Parks budget, and 5 full-time people paid under the Emergency Employment Act.

"Fourteen of our employees have at least a B.S. degree in recreation or a related field. During the year, we hire approximately 100 different part-time people for special functions.

"We now have an assistant director of parks, who is in charge of maintenance of the parks and facilities, and an assistant director of recreation. This has given us more efficient administration."

Lee said the city council has been "very receptive" to the needs of recreation, and state-wide legislation has helped the Recreation and Parks department in their quest for funds.

"In 1973, there was a state-wide law making recreation a necessary expense of city government function, much like police and fire protection," he said.

"Before the law was enacted, we could not receive tax funds from the city without a vote of the public.

"The law enabled us to vie for the tax dollar like any other department of the city. It untied the hands of the city council to be able to appropriate more funds."

According to Boyd Lee, the most popular park in the city is Elm Street Park.

"Elm Street is the oldest park in the city in terms of its facilities," he said.

"It offers more of a variety of facilities, and it is where the main recreational office was established.

"The two other main recreation centers are the South Greenville center and the West Greenville center. Federal funds have helped us buy park land to build Jaycee Park and Evans Park and construct the swimming pool."

What lies in the future for Greenville's parks?

"We'll soon need to do another study to see how we are doing," said Lee.

"Our number-one project now is the construction of a new recreation-library complex.

"It will be a joint venture between the recreation department and the library. It will contain a branch library and an auditorium for children's and community theater, and would house our arts and crafts and our handicapped projects.

"The architectural drawings have been done. We are now trying to work on a site for the building."

In the meantime, the traditional joys of summer will be preserved for the citizens of Greenville - all of them.

IN THE COOL SHADE . . . A Recreation staffer provides a musical interlude to the day's activities.

PAYMENT SITES

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph announced that beginning Aug. 2, subscribers may pay their telephone bills at North Carolina National Bank's four Greenville locations.

Don A. Collier, district commercial manager for Carolina Telephone, said that payments may be made at NCNB's main office at 201 W. First Street, East End office at 284 Bypass, West End office at West End Shopping Center, and downtown office at Five Points.

Payments will be received by the agent for regular telephone bills and accepted only if accompanied by the telephone bill, it was explained. Payments may be made Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and on Friday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

CLIMB NOTED

Carolina Power & Light Co. reported earnings of $2.73 per share of common stock for the 12 months ended June 30.

President Shearon Harris said the figure is up three cents a share from earnings for the 12 months ended March 31, and is a gain of 29 cents a share from $2.44 per share recorded in the 12 months ended June 30, 1975.

Earnings for the second quarter were 61 cents a share, up from 56 cents for the second quarter of last year. Net income for the 12 months ended June 30 was $111.3 million on an average of $30.9 million shares outstanding.

JOINS FIRM

Ginger Hackett and Jean Tripp, co-owners of Hackett-Tripp Realty Inc. here, announced the association of Charlotte Flanagan with their firm.

Mrs. Flanagan, a native of Oklahoma, received her B.A. degree from Oklahoma State University where she majored in language arts. She has been a Greenville resident for two years. The new associate and her husband, a chemist with Du Pont, reside with their two children at 215 Beledere Drive.

REELECTED PRESIDENT

Gratz Norcott Jr., local mortician, owner and operator of The Norcott & Co. Funeral Homes in Ayden and Greenville, was reelected president of the Funeral Directors and Morticians Association of North Carolina for 1976-77 at the group's 49th annual convention in Wilmington.

Mrs. Mattie M. Norcott, co-owner and financial directress of the Norcott facilities, received the Woman of the Year Award for District Three of the National association.

Mrs. Norcott received the award at the annual convention from District Governor J. C. Sarborough of Durham. District Three includes North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

QUARTERLY TOTALS

Fieldcrest Mills Inc. announced that the company achieved record sales and earnings for the fourth consecutive quarter.

Net earnings for the second quarter of 1976 were $2,977,000 or 81 cents per share compared with $1,640,000 or 45 cents per share last year, an increase of 82 per cent. Second quarter sales increased 16 per cent to

Boys Choirs Under Fire

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An elementary school's all-boy choir, whose singers have not yet matured into tenors and baritone is under fire from the federal government for discriminating against little girls.

The Office of Civil Rights in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says the all-boy choir of fifth and sixth graders in Wethersfield, Conn., violates a rule barring single-sex choruses.

The only justification for such a group would be "requirements based on vocal range and quality," the government says, but in this case the boys' voices are as high as the girls'.

HEW found itself at odds with President Ford in another recent controversy over sex discrimination. In that case, the department ruled that father-son and mother-daughter dinners held in Scottsdale, Ariz., schools were discriminatory.

Ford ordered the ruling suspended and threatened to seek an amendment to the law if an HEW review upheld the original interpretation.

"This looks like a case of bureaucratic interference in a legitimate educational program," Rep. William Cotter, D-Conn., said Friday about the all-boy singing group.

He said the ruling "may illustrate what happens when well-meaning but overzealous bureaucrats get hold of a good law and make it absurd."

HEW said it is reviewing the matter.

"We didn't want to be in a position of non-compliance," Howland said.

The school started its boys' choir to entice some youngsters who shied away from co-educational music groups. The choir meets after school and receives no money from the town.

Cotter charged that the government's ruling in the Wethersfield case "goes beyond the intent of Congress" in Title IX regulations passed to give girls parity with their male schoolmates.

He said that in this case "the regulations have succeeded in interfering with the system's music program without doing much for advancing the goals of non-discrimination."

Ex-Executive Happier Now

PLAYED CARDS RIGHT — Richard Berger is known as Mr. Ric, and is owner-operator of three card parlors in San Bruno, a small community south of San Francisco. (AP Wirephoto)

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP) — Richard Berger is one man who played his cards right when the chips were down.

Four years ago, Berger was making $45,000 a year as a corporation executive, complete with three-piece suits, attache case and long lunches.

One problem: Berger spent his long lunches playing cards instead of golf or drinking Martinis. He says it cost him his job after 14 years with one company, and now he's never been happier.

Since his "termination" — as the company described it — he shaved his head, sported a thick, white beard, stuck a gold ring in his ear, and took over ownership of three public card parlors.

Berger, 45, who now calls himself Mr. Ric, figures cards were the logical comeback path after his career crisis.

"Instead of going down to the local bar and having a couple of friendly drinks with someone or maybe playing golf," the rakishly dressed Mr. Ric remembers now, "I chose to go to a card room over in Emeryville."

"I found that I could meet with the same people that I met at Rotary Club or Administrative Management Society. I ran into the same people sitting there doing the same thing I was doing," he says.

But the ax fell nonetheless. After a few morose months as a handyman, Berger decided to turn to his ace in the hole.

"I did a lot of soul searching," he says. "I felt, hell, I'd thrown away a career because instead of playing golf I was playing cards. If I found it so interesting, maybe I should stick to that."

With his savings and a loan from his parents, Berger leased a storefront building and went into business in this community south of San Francisco, working 16 hours a day, seven days a week. In San Bruno, as in many California communities, public poker parlors are legal. "I found early in my career as a card room operator you don't just open the doors and have all the players from some other card room come charging in. The task is to set out to develop your business."

Exit button-down shirts and gray suits. Enter wild-colored sports shirts, shaved head, ear ring and beard.

Prefer Homes

BOSTON (AP) — Contrary to popular opinion, most single women do not prefer to live in socially-oriented "singles" complexes, according to Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. (IMIC), with headquarters here.

"The average unmarried woman may settle for less but, in her heart, she really wants to live in a single-family home — one she can call her own," says Goss, who bases his assumption on a recent IMIC-sponsored poll of more than a thousand single women.

The coast-to-coast survey revealed that approximately three out of five opted for single-family homes over the much publicized, often swinging high-rise apartment dwellings, he said.

"At the present time, there are some 8½ million single women in the labor force — their impact is, and will continue to be, felt in the housing sector. There is an unprecedented demand for small homes within this group," he says.

"More than 750,000 of these singles are in a five-figure income bracket — almost double the number that earned this kind of money five years ago. They are in a good financial position to buy a home."

Welfare Reform Shapes Up As Big Political Issue

Dr. Murray Recalls He Gave Jimmy Carter A High Grade In Course

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Dr. Paul Murray, retired East Carolina University professor, says he gave Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter a B-plus in social studies in 1941.

"Jimmy took an introductory social studies course under me winter quarter of the school year, 1941-42, at Georgia Southwestern College," he said. "He was a conscientious student. He didn't stand out in my mind because he wasn't a troublemaker and didn't need extra attention to keep up with his work. He was the son of a good family of the Sumter County who was expected to do well, and did do well."

Dr. Murray's roll book shows that Jimmy earned the second highest grade in a class of 29 students. An Evelyn Carter made the only A. Carter attended class all but two days, the record shows, and made mostly 4's and 5's on the five-point daily tests that Professor Murray gave on the reading material of the night before.

"I also taught Roselyn Smith, Jimmy's future wife, a year or two later," he said. Asked what he remembers about her, he said, "Nothing. She apparently was a good student, also, but not one that raised enough ruckus for her to stand out in my mind after all these years."

Americus, Dr. Murray explained, is the county seat of Sumter County, the county in which Carter's hometown of Plains is located. The two towns are about 14 miles apart.

Murray said Jimmy came to Southwestern from Plains School, a good community school of about 200 students—grades 1-11, Murray said. Every third door in Plains is a Carter's, he said. "I didn't know his family personally, but I knew there were and still are a lot of Carters in Plains."

Dr. Murray is from Dooly County across the Flint River from Sumter County, and has much the same background as Carter. He came to East Carolina College in 1945 from Georgia Southwestern. He retired in 1968. He and Mrs. Murray live on Meade Street here.

Asked if he supporting Carter for president, he said, "I certainly am. It's been a maelstrom to me the way he's made it to where he is in the past few months. I'd just as soon trust a man whose roots are in a Georgia small town as one who's from a small town in Minnesota or New York State or wherever. I think the United States is in a transition period now, and, I think Jimmy may be just the man to bring us through it."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If they agree on any issue, the three leading presidential candidates certainly agree that "welfare is a mess."

Beyond that, of course, Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter part company. A good welfare debate always spices a presidential campaign.

Still, it's a different kind of debate since former President Nixon in 1969 proposed his ill-fated Family Assistance Plan that, for the first time, would have guaranteed a minimum annual income below which no American family would have to live.

The phrase "guaranteed annual income" stirred supporters and opponents alike, and FAP, as it became known, twice passed the House before dying in the Senate.

Despite FAP's failure, welfare "reform," or rebuilding the welfare system, has grown steadily in popularity, not just among politicians but among such diverse interests as conservative businessmen and welfare professionals. Even the "think tank" liberals who lined up behind Nixon's plan and later fell back to proposing a more modest tinkering with the system support some change.

The system they all want to "reform" will cost taxpayers about $32 billion in fiscal year 1977 to support or provide services to 29 million of their fellow Americans, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The amount of public assistance provided to an individual depends on such eligibility criteria as where they live, extent of disability, size of family, outside income, need for medical services, and age.

Choice of residence has as much to do with the level of welfare payments as anything.

The 3.5 million welfare families on the rolls last February — latest month reported by HEW — received an average $227.13 in Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Yet among the states which administer AFDC, payments ranged from $48.49 a month for a family in Mississippi to $344.35 in New York.

Since 1965 the family welfare caseload has grown from 4.4 million children and adults receiving $1.7 billion a year to 11.5 million persons receiving $9.8 billion.

Medicaid, or medical care for the needy, is the fastest growing type of welfare and is conceded by HEW's chief welfare administrator to be a "major public management issue" because of its skyrocketing budget. In 1966 Medicaid cost taxpayers $2.3 billion. Next year it will top $16.6 billion.

Add to the Medicaid tab $9.8 billion for AFDC, $3.2 billion for welfare services like family planning, and $2.3 billion for emergency aid, administration, training, research and evaluation, and the bill for major welfare programs approaches $32 billion a year.

This doesn't include the federalized welfare program for 4.3 million aged, blind and disabled persons, Supplemental Security Income, for which the federal government put up $5.2 billion in fiscal 1976 and states added additional funds.

But cost is not the only issue prompting welfare "reform" appeals.

What about the working family who earns less than welfare provides? Should the federal or state governments take over administration of welfare programs that now is divided? How do you encourage families to stay together when incentives exist for the father to leave home so his family can get money for food?

These and other vexing welfare questions bring Republicans Ford and Reagan and Democrat Carter to sharing the view expressed by President Ford that welfare "is a mess and something has to be done about it."

Ford has not gone much beyond that declaration. An aide told UPI the President "is searching for the answers."

Ford has asked HEW to make recommendations by the end of this calendar year on "whether you can really sufficiently improve a hodgepodge program or whether you ought to go to something like a family assistance program, with minimum benefit levels and work requirements."

However, the President declared in Birmingham, Ala.,

on May 3 that "I have never believed that a guaranteed annual income was the answer to any of our problems. But that doesn't mean under any circumstances that I am in agreement with our present welfare program."

In his quest for the Republican presidential nomination, Reagan has attacked Ford for hinting at support of "a FAWike program" that, Reagan said, would have added 12 million persons to welfare rolls and guaranteed everybody an annual income whether or not they work.

"He (Ford) might talk with men and women who would have to foot the bill for the guaranteed annual income, the producing taxpayers, to find out what they think of the idea," Reagan said in Texas last April.

Reagan wants welfare turned over to the states, cheaters removed from the rolls, and able-bodied persons put to work.

"Voices that are raised now and then urging a federalization of welfare don't realize that the failure of welfare is due to federal interference," the former California governor declared in a March 31 nationwide television address.

In a similar address earlier this month Reagan said most people on welfare would like to be self-supporting. "They may be fed and sheltered by welfare but, as human beings, they are being destroyed by it," he said. "There is a giant bureaucratic complex that thinks of them as 'clients' to be permanently maintained as government dependents."

Carter, whose party platform urges an "income floor" for welfare recipients, also has attacked the Washington welfare bureaucracy.

"Welfare cheaters flourish in the morass," says a Carter campaign position paper on welfare.

But Carter supports a limited federal takeover of welfare, creation of public jobs for able-bodied recipients, simplification of the system, and "an adequate, fairly uniform" level of assistance for families and individuals.

"We have been promised welfare reform for over a generation," the Carter campaign statement said. "We do not yet have such a program because of a lack of political courage."

For Carter, welfare recipients would be divided into two groups — the 10 per cent he says are able to work and the 90 per cent who aren't, with incentives for each group to achieve dignity, self-respect and self-sufficiency.

Encouragement Fails Spur Soviet Birth Rate

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Cash prizes, state honors, marriage bureaus and an official encouragement of sex at an early age can only do so much.

The Soviet birth rate continues to drop.

And a recent survey of Moscow women reported by the Literary Gazette shows that most of them have no intention of raising larger families.

"For developed countries, small families are becoming typical," said the Gazette, which once announced that increasing the birth rate was one of the nation's most urgent tasks. "We are forced to concede that this trend has not passed us by."

With a constant labor shortage and a vast empty heartland still being developed, the Soviet Union has no worries about over-population.

It is seriously worried, however, by the rapid drop in the birth rate of ethnic Russians as compared to a continuing population explosion in the central Asian republics.

The Soviet government is dominated by ethnic Russians, with their capital in Moscow, but the day may be at hand when the Russians become a minority in their own nation.

The birth rate for the entire Soviet Union has been dropping steadily, from 31.2 births per thousand population in 1940 to 26.7 in 1950 to 18.0 in 1974, when the latest figures were collected.

The birth rate in the Russian republic has been dropping much more steeply than the national average, from 33 per thousand in 1940 to 15.6 in 1974. In central Asia, meanwhile, the birth rate also stood at about 33 per thousand in 1940, but it had dropped only to about 27 in 1974.

So while official encouragement of big families continues, the government appears to be quietly seeking ways to curb the central Asian population growth with birth control and an employment program for women who might otherwise be at home bearing children.

Official encouragement of big families has continued for years, with the Soviet state offering cash grants to women after their third and fourth child, and the title of "Mother Heroine" going to any woman who bears 10 or more children.

Marriage bureaus have long been in operation to help young people find mates, and the official Soviet press has advocated younger marriages and even premarital sex as an inducement to marriage.

These programs have failed to stop the trend.

In the survey reported recently by the Gazette, 60 per cent of Russian married women said they believe that the ideal family has no more than two children, despite decades of propaganda to the contrary.

Frequent Target Of Lightning

HOUSTON (UPI) — Lightning is a secondary effect of electrification within a thunderstorm cloud system.

According to scientists with the National Weather Service, the distribution of electricity in a thunderstorm cloud is usually a concentration of positive charge in the frozen upper layers, and a large negative charge around a positive area in the lower portions of the clouds.

The earth is normally negatively charged with respect to the atmosphere. It is estimated that some 1,800 thunderstorms are in progress over the earth's surface at any given moment, and that lightning strikes the earth 100 times each second.

Debutante Ball To Be Held In Early Fall

Catherine Elizabeth Deyton Catherine Elizabeth (Cassie) Deyton, a 19-year-old Greenville debutante, is spending most of her summer in Thoreau, New Mexico, at the Cottonwood Gulch Foundation camp as the cooking and clean-up supervisor.

"It will be fun," she said before she left Greenville, "plus I'll be able to do other activities, too," such as hiking, crafts and archaeological digs.

Cassie Deyton is no newcomer to the camp, having been there last summer. She expects to stay about eight weeks and be home by late August. She will then return to Duke University in Durham, where she will be a sophomore. She is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority there and is considering a career in accounting or some branch of medicine.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Deyton, Jr., 207 Dalebrook Circle. She has four sisters and one brother — Melinda, 22; Nancy, 20; Grayson, 17; and twins Kara and Rob, 9.

Her father, a gynecologist and obstetrician whose office is located in the Physicians' Quadrangle, will serve as her chief marshal. Her assisting marshal will be Ward Simonton of Griffin, Ga.

Cassie Deyton is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School, where she served as editor of the yearbook. She was a member of the National Honor Society, the tennis team, the Kiwanettes, Quill and Scroll, and the Science and Ecology Clubs.

She has lived in Greenville about 14 years, a native of Anchorage, Alaska. She and her family have also lived in Goldsboro, N. C., and Atlanta, Ga.

Helen Ruth Fleming

Now that she has completed a summer school session at ECU, Helen Ruth Fleming is looking forward to a trip to Myrtle Beach with her family, various debutante activities — and a possible involvement in politics.

"I may be helping my cousin (Greenville attorney Tom Taft) with the Hunt gubernatorial campaign," she said.

"I'm interested in politics. I enjoyed working as a Senate page in high school, and since I can vote for the first time this year, I like knowing all the people who are running. I enjoy seeing how the government works."

The 19-year-old is a rising sophomore at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she is considering a major in public health.

At school, Miss Fleming is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority and is involved with the YWCA. She enjoys outdoors activities and likes to play tennis, ride horses and water ski.

She is thinking about taking her junior year in college abroad. "I think it would be the perfect opportunity to travel in Europe, see the countryside and meet other people," she said.

"I've never been to Europe before, and I'd really like to see how other people live."

Miss Fleming's older sister, Marguerite Elaine, made her debut in 1970. Her mother was also a debutante.

Her father will serve as her chief marshal when she makes her debut in Raleigh in September. She has not yet selected an assisting marshal.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van C. Fleming of 301 Orton Dr. in Greenville.

Catherine Elizabeth Garrett Catherine Elizabeth Garrett is spending her summer studying. The 19-year-old debutante has completed a 4-week summer session at St. Mary's in Raleigh, and plans to take a course at ECU during the second summer session.

Miss Garrett hopes to go into recreational work after she finishes her education.

"I would like to supervise camps and parks," she said. "I like to be around little children."

After she completes her studies at St. Mary's, Miss Garrett hopes to attend ECU or another girls' school.

"I wanted to go to a girls' school," she said. "I like the idea of a small school where you can meet more people and get to know them better."

Catherine Garrett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dwight Garrett of 121 Longmeadow Rd. in Greenville. She has two younger sisters and two younger brothers.

Her father will be her chief marshal when she makes her bow in Raleigh. Jordy Whichard, a rising sophomore at UNC-Ch, will serve as her assisting marshal. Her mother, the former Martha Hardy, was also a debutante.

Miss Garrett enjoys tennis, swimming, oil painting and running track "for exercise." She wrote freelance articles for the campus paper at St. Mary's, and participated in the intramural sports program there in bowling, archery and badminton.

Karen Elizabeth Green ROBERSONVILLE—A trip to Kansas City, Mo., will be a highlight of this summer for debutante Beth Green. Her father, William M. Green, is an alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention.

"Our family will be attending some of the sessions during the convention, which will begin Aug. 16. We will also do some sightseeing including a trip to Hallmark Crown Center and the Truman Library," she said.

The Greens will be driving to Missouri and are still making plans for the trip.

When asked if she were interested in politics, Miss Green replied, "I have some interest, but nothing definite right now."

Miss Green attends the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She graduated from high school at St. Mary's, Raleigh. "I had always wanted to attend Carolina and my father graduated from there," she noted.

She is majoring in biology with a possible eye on doing research following her college graduation.

This debutante is spending the summer at home and also at the family's summer home, which is located on the Albemarle Sound.

She is also playing a lot of tennis and enjoys bicycling, water skiing, sailing, doing needlepoint and playing the piano for her own enjoyment.

Her father will be her chief marshal when she makes her formal bow in Raleigh at the Debutante Ball Sept. 10. Her assistant marshal is Clark Everett of Robersonville. He is a rising senior student at UNC-CH.

Mary Glen Peele WILLIAMSTON — A rising sophomore at Duke University, Mary Glenn Peele is a history major with emphasis on the Renaissance period. She is also working for a secondary education teaching degree.

When asked why she chose to attend at Duke, Miss Peele said, "It was a lifelong dream. My father graduated from there and I have always supported the school programs and athletics."

"In my opinion, the university has good departments in all areas of study. As a history major, the study abroad program was appealing."

She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority, which was rechartered last year. Her other activities included working at the Duke Hospital Rehabilitation Center, through the sorority, and being a member of the History Majors Union. During next year, she will serve in a guidance capacity for about 20 freshmen students through the FAC program.

In discussing plans for her future career Miss Peele added, "I would like to work with a museum in its research projects."

The summer months are indeed busy ones for the Williamston debutante. She attended the summer session at Duke, taking courses in education and music. She is now working in her father's office doing secretarial and bookkeeping duties. Her father is engaged in farming and owns and operates a wholesale florist business.

Miss Peele also works in tobacco about one day a week, looping on a tobacco harvester. "It would not seem natural if I didn't work during summer vacations. I started working in tobacco when I was eight-years-old," she continued.

She will be spending some of the summer with her family at Nags Head.

Miss Peele listed some of her favorite pastimes as reading and is beginning her 13th year in studying piano. She enjoys cooking for her family that includes an older brother, Ed, and three younger brothers, William, Bob and John. "As the only girl, it was a necessity that I learn how to cook," she said. She also taught herself how to crochet.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Oscar Peele Jr. of Rt. 2, Greenfield, Williamston, her father will be her chief marshal. James E. Hartman of Williamston, who is a rising senior at N. C. State University, will be her assisting marshal.

Helen Faye Rogers

Helen Faye Rogers recently took a few days off from her job in tobacco to take a trip — to Mexico.

"I spent eight days there with some relatives," said the 19-year-old debutante from Bear Grass.

Helen Rogers is a rising sophomore at East Carolina University and she expects to be back in the fall. Her intended major is some type of wildlife program and she hopes to be able to work in a park someday.

She was on the Honor Roll spring quarter.

A native of Beaufort County, she has lived in Bear Grass most of her life, except for about four years spent in Williamston. She has one sister, Anne, age 17. Her father, J. H. Rogers, sells agricultural chemicals for Coastal Chemical Corp. of Greenville. Her mother, Rhoda Faye Rogers, is a part-time bookkeeper.

"I enjoy any outdoor activity," she said, including horseback riding. She also plays the piano.

In high school she was a member of the Beta Club for five years, president of the Future Homemakers of America and the Library Club, and treasurer of the Student Council and the Sophomore Class. She served as assistant manager and scorekeeper for the basketball and baseball teams.

"I enjoy meeting everybody," she related as the main reward of being a debutante. "I like to get together with people at parties. I have met all the debts from this (three-county) area and a few of the others."

Sarah Cassandra Sugg Greenville debutante Sally Sugg has named her father, Benjamin Bruce Sugg Jr., as her chief marshal when she makes her formal bow to society in Raleigh.

The 50th annual N.C. Debutante Ball, sponsored by the Terpsichorean Club, will be held Sept. 10.

Miss Sugg has been attending Lenoir Community College, Kinston, this summer, where she is also a regular student. She is studying for a major in English. Although she has not yet decided on future career plans, she said that she hopes to continue to write.

In addition to writing, she enjoys swimming and restoring antiques.

Last summer, she worked for MacKenzie Security. Miss Sugg's sister, Martha, made her debut in Raleigh in 1972.

Her parents reside at 236 Churchill Dr., Greenville.

Margaret Anne Watson Margaret Anne Watson enjoys some unique and fascinating hobbies. A student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Miss Watson likes horseback riding and showing, pottery, jewelry design, tennis, golf, fencing, quilting, collecting antiques and refinishing furniture.

She is studying business administration and political science at UNC-CH, and hopes to attend law school there.

Asked why she chose UNC-CH, she replied, "We are a Carolina family! My father received his B. S. degree there and his J. D. from the Carolina Law School."

"I saw what a beautiful campus it was on frequent visits to see my brother and to attend the football games and special events there."

She is a sister of Delta Delta Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

This summer, she is attending both summer sessions at UNC-CH. She is currently studying economics and sociology.

She worked in a local ladies' clothing store last summer.

Margaret Anne Watson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henley Watson of 108 Christenbury Drive in Greenville. Her father will serve as her chief marshal when she debuts in Raleigh.

Her brother, William Henley Watson, Jr., a senior at Chapel Hill, will be her assisting marshal. He will be commissioned an ensign in the United States Navy in December.

Kathryn Elizabeth Wilson ROBERSONVILLE — Debutante Kathy Wilson is working as a cashier in a small grocery store in Kill Devil Hills this summer.

"I love the beach and always have. I grew up dreaming of spending a whole summer at the beach. I selected the Outer Banks because I like the atmosphere there and it's one beach that has not become so commercialized."

"I like my job, too. It's not too hard or tiring and my hours are so that I have plenty of time on the beach. I am living with my best friend from home, who is working as a lifeguard at the Duck Woods Country Club. Her grandparents have a cottage at Kill Devil Hills and that is where we are living," commented Miss Wilson.

Continuing Miss Wilson said, "I am attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Carolina is sort of a tradition in my family. My father, two uncles, my brother and two of my first cousins all went to and are going to Carolina. I've been a Tar Heel fan as long as I can remember and have been going to Chapel Hill to football games since I was a baby. At the time I was applying to colleges, I was seriously considering going into journalism and the School of Journalism at Carolina is excellent."

"I love Chapel Hill — it's my idea of what a college town should be. The town is built around the university and not vice versa as in the case in large cities."

Miss Wilson said her major is a little unusual, interdisciplinary studies. As quoted from Carolina's Undergraduate Bulletin, "The Interdisciplinary Studies major offers the student a chance to create his own program outside normal departmental lines. He can take up a topic (or a set of related topics) and work out a major for junior-senior years which involves work in several departments but without meeting the requirements for a major in any one of them."

"The two areas I want to go into are music and journalism. I would like to be a music critic or an entertainment editor for a newspaper or magazine or anything else that would require a musical and journalism background. Maybe I could work in public relations for a symphony orchestra. Anything in which I would be working around music," she added.

The debutante explained that she likes classical music and has been studying piano for 10 years, continuing her studying at Carolina.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude R. Wilson, her father will be her chief marshal.

Mary Virginia Winslow HAMILTON—A student at Meredith College, Raleigh debutante Mary Winslow is a member of Astrotekton. Through the society, members work with the Governor Morehead School, Cerebral Palsy and rehabilitation centers as well as school activities.

In the fall, Miss Winslow will serve as a student advisor and will be working with seven freshmen. "I will help them with their schedules, orientate them to the school, adjusting to college life and being away from home," she said.

Miss Winslow returned home last Friday after attending the second and third summer sessions at Meredith, where she took courses in intermediate French.

When asked why she chose to attend Meredith, she said, "In my opinion, the college has a community atmosphere and I like Raleigh."

Although she has not declared a college major, she is interested in social science. Her plans for the future possibly include attending graduate school, after college graduation, and then working.

During the remainder of the summer, Miss Winslow plans to relax and spend some time at the beach with friends.

Doing decoupage, working in the yard and reading are some of the things Miss Winslow enjoys.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown Winslow, Rainbow Farm, Hamilton, her father will be serving as her chief marshal. Her sister, Nancy Elizabeth, made her debut to society in Raleigh in 1974.

Last summer, Miss Winslow worked with the ESEA Migrant Program in Martin County. She also drove a school bus and served as a teacher's aide.

Cultured Pearls Adorn Liberty Bell Replica

NEW YORK (AP) — The crack in the Liberty Bell is made of blue pearls in a replica of America's famous symbol of independence, reproduced in cultured pearls, one third the size of the original in Philadelphia.

The Mikimoto Liberty Bell, made in Japan and exhibited at the New York World's Fair in 1939, has been returned to this country for display during the nation's bicentennial.

The hand-wrought bell was created with 12,250 cultured pearls ranging in size from 5 to 9 millimeters on the body to an 11 millimeter pearl at the tip of the clapper.

In addition, there are 368 small diamonds and 37 pounds of silver in the sculpture, which is 32 inches high and weighs 110 pounds.

The base is made of white mother of pearl and the support structure is of black mother of pearl; the two arms are finished in Japanese lacquer and decorated with carved mother of pearl.

The inscription on the original bell, "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof," is reproduced in seed pearls, and the date is outlined in diamonds.

The reproduction, which is insured, cost $50,000 when it was made 40 years ago. But it has a much higher value now, according to Toshiaki Homma, president of K. Mikimoto, a Tokyo-based cultured pearl firm. Homma was in New York in connection with the bell's display in the company's Fifth Avenue shop here.

The bell was shipped here by air in wooden crates in five separate pieces. After showings in Washington, New York City and Long Island it goes to Memphis and in fall will be returned to Pearl Island, near Toba, Japan, where it is displayed on special occasions.

WASHABLE FELT

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new polyester felt that is completely washable was introduced to fashion editors during the semiannual fall fashion weeks here. The colorfast, crush resistant nonwoven material was designed and engineered for use in the arts, crafts, home decoration and fashion accessories. It is available by the yard (72 inches wide) and in three variety packets of 9-by-12 cuts. It can be machine washed or dry cleaned.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A letter from a reader the other day did a pretty good job on me. She wanted to know if I got paid for this drivel. Said she wouldn't blame my children and my husband if they left home and never came back. Felt sorry for me because I was obviously godless and would some day be left alone to repent for all my sins. Apologized for having to tell me all this, but everyone else was thinking it. She ended with a gummed yellow label above her signature with a half smile that implored, "HAVE A GOOD DAY."

The good Lord knows I tried, but after that I didn't get too far with it. Maybe I'm suspicious, but I felt she wasn't sincere in her greeting. Frankly, "Have a good day" is beginning to get on my nerves anyway.

Don't get me wrong. It's not the sentiment that bothers me, it's the mechanical, wooden way in which people say it when they don't really mean it. Funeral directors say it. IRS men say it. Traffic policemen say it. Bankers say it. Auto mechanics say it. Dentists say it. Clearly, it has become one of the most abused phrases in the English language.

Take the words "thank you." Thank you used to carry a lot of clout. It meant something. Nowadays, people automatically say "thank you" without a thought. They say thank you for the time of day — when it's a recording. They say thank you when the washer repairman gives them a bill for $43.25 for taking a pair of training pants out of the house. They say thank you when a soft drink machine spits out a bottle.

I have often wondered how my favorite character, Elwood P. Dowd, the beautiful, uncomplicated, fuzzy man from "Harvey," would have responded to "Have a good day."

He would probably have said, "Compared to what?"

Elwood would then have pinned him down with, "Is there another choice or is that it?"

"Uh... just the two... good or bad."

"Then I'd be an idiot to choose the bad one, right? So, why do I need reminding?"

Good wishes are too important to become cliches — and sentiments too special to come pre-assembled. Besides, they make people skeptical.

The other day my husband pulled up to a car with a bumper sticker that invited, "HONK IF YOU LOVE JESUS."

He laid on his horn and two minutes later, a man appeared at his window and threatened to rearrange his nose.

That's the trouble when you don't write your own material. A lot can be lost in the translation.

Miss Turnage Weds At High Noon

FARMVILLE—Miss Laura Lee Turnage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Benjamin Turnage of Farmville, was married Saturday at high noon to John Franklin McNair IV in the First Baptist Church here.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin McNair III of Winston-Salem.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl W. Holmes, of Wilson, maternal grandfather of the bride, and the Rev. Ronald L. Davis of Farmville.

W. Lee Hendricks of Greenville presented a program of music prior to the ceremony. Miss Kathryn Finklea of Greenville sang "O Lord Most Holy." The Worship Choir of the church sang "The Lord Bless You and Keep You" with the Sevenfold Amen by Peter C. Lutkin for the benediction response.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory alencon lace designed with a high lace banded neckline embroidered with pearls and beads. The short pony lace sleeves enhanced the raised bodice of lace which was accented with pearls and beads. The modified cut front skirt, ending with a full chapel train, was edged with lace scallops which began at the waist and centered the front of the gown. She wore a chapel length veil of silk illusion edged with a wide border of matching alencon lace which was attached to a lace cap. To complement her wedding gown, she carried a formal cascade bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, white daisies, and baby's breath tied with ivory ribbon.

Miss Elizabeth Turnage, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Fowler McMair, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Harry Lee Davis, Jr. of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Duncan Alexander Hutchinson of Cullowhee, Miss Katherine Roberson of Tarboro, and Miss Mary Denton Roberts of Winston-Salem.

The attendants wore gowns of aqua silk chiffon. The raised fitted bodice had a high neck with an overlay of chiffon which was short in front and draped down the back of the dress. The gowns were designed with a flared skirt. They wore aqua picture hats of hairbraid with an aqua rose and maline streamers, and carried nosegays of yellow daisies and baby's breath.

The father of the groom, was best man. The groomsmen were Theodore Carlyle Turnage II, brother of the bride, David Hooks Armstrong II of Bladenboro, George Andrew Crowell of Lexington, Samuel Hewitt Fulton III of Laurinburg, John Murdock McLaurin Jr. of Hamlet, and Marvin Seaton Womble of Laurinburg.

Mrs. Turnage's selection was a floor length gown of miniature floral patterned chiffon in shades of green and accented with touches of aqua, yellow, and red. Pinned to her bag were yellow cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. McNair wore a gown of jade green chiffon in a tiered affect. The soft roll collar was accented at the shoulder by a matching rosette.

Mrs. Harold Allred and Mrs. Cedric Davis of Farmville directed the wedding.

For the wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the bride changed into a three-piece jersey ensemble in white, lavender, and teal stripes.

The bride is a cum laude graduate of Salem College, Winston-Salem. She teaches in the English department of East Forsyth County High School.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he was a Morehead Scholar. He will enter Babcock School of Management at Wake Forest University in the fall.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a wedding breakfast at the D.A.R. Chapter House, Farmville. The mantles upstairs and downstairs were decorated with green smilax and magnolia, and arrangements of pastel summer flowers were used throughout the downstairs area.

The banquet table on the upper floor was centered with a tiered crystal and silver container that held an arrangement of white roses, chrysanthemums, stock, snapdragons, and baby's breath. The five tiered wedding cake was placed on an individual round table covered with a full satin cloth.

The parents of the bridegroom and Miss Elizabeth Fowler McMair entertained the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at a dinner on Friday evening at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

A dance honoring Miss Laura Lee Turnage and John Franklin McNair was held at the Candlewick Manor on Friday evening, after the rehearsal dinner.

Home Economics Group Head Sees Need Of Prevention

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Helping prevent family problems, instead of waiting until treatment is needed, is the direction Dr. Beverly Crabtree sees for home economists nationally.

She recently took office as president-elect of the American Home Economics Association at its annual meeting here. The 56,554 members of the organization work with families and individuals, or with businesses, agencies and organizations that provide goods, services and educational programs to help enhance the quality of life.

Seeing the family as the focus of home economics, Dr. Crabtree believes the family will in the future become an even more important social institution than now, with implications for home economists.

"I believe the responsibility of college is to prepare men and women as professional home economists to help families direct change, decide if change is desired, and, if so, decide the direction of change," says Dr. Crabtree, Dean of home economics at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, Okla.

She feels home economists should be advocates for the family, taking positions on many issues and interpreting those positions to appropriate individuals, agencies and organizations.

"Besides the traditional family, we're seeing more one person households, more childless households and more families headed by females. We're also seeing more men and women sharing roles in families as wage earners, parents and homemakers as well as family roles being interchanged with more egalitarian family styles emerging.

"About one family in three in this country needs help in understanding factors shaping its future," she says, citing some causes of emotional pressures in daily living:

Changing roles and responsibilities of men and women; changing attitudes toward parenting; increasing mobility with ties lost between generations; increasing expansion of knowledge, particularly scientific; increasing use of energy and materials; increasing demand by family members for rights, including equality.

"Because of the energy situation, the economy and worldwide interdependence on resources, families are experiencing crises. But home economists can and should help families maximize their resources," she says.

"We certainly can contribute in such areas as nutritional status of families, aging programs, early childhood and parent education, housing for families and conservation of resources. And we can help solve problems of providing food, clothing, shelter and emotional support for individuals and thus for the family."

Besides helping influence legislation affecting families, Dr. Crabtree says, home economists should help individuals and families get information and skills needed to make intelligent decisions in areas having impact on their well-being.

"The emphasis in home economics on interrelationships between families and environments has recently been labeled the family ecosystem," she notes.

"By increasing the family's knowledge and understanding of its near environment, including the physical, social and cultural dimensions, home economists can help individuals and families maintain human dignity and a meaningful life in the midst of rapid social, economic and technological changes.

"Needs of individuals and families in the social environment of the time have determined major emphases of the home economics profession. Even though lifestyles and forms have changed over the years, the family is not dying, but tremendously changing," she says.

Dr. Crabtree, 39, and her husband, Dr. Jewell Crabtree, a soil scientist in the OSU agronomy department, have two children, Greg, 14, and Karen, 6.

Couple Weds On Saturday

Miss Margaret Earle Carson and Irvin Henry Greer Jr., both of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday at St. James United Methodist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed at 4 p.m. by the Rev. R. T. Commander.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Earl Carson and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Henry Greer Sr., all of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Bill Cain, organist, and Mrs. Norman Wilkerson, soloist, who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight knit, designed by the bride and made by her mother. The sweetheart neckline was outlined in lace medallions and seed pearls, which also trimmed the empire waist and flared sleeves. Motifs of lace appliques accented the gored skirt, which extended into a self-train bordered with Venise lace and seed pearls.

The two-tiered veil of illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap topped with a Spanish lace mantilla belonging to her great-grandmother. The bride carried a bouquet of daisies and miniature carnations.

Miss Anna Carson of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of pink crepe with a high waist gathered into a front band. She also wore a cape of matching fabric and a pink garden hat. She carried a basket of summer flowers.

Bridesmaids were Kathrine Clark and Sharon Lautares, both of Greenville. Honor attendants were Becky Smith, Camille Smith and Laurie Smith, all of Greenville. They wore dresses of yellow floral print styled identical to that of the maid of honor. Each carried a basket of summer flowers and wore a yellow hat.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Danny Ray Gaylor, Tommy Lyn Gaylor and Joe Scheipers, all of Greenville.

The bride's mother wore a formal length blue chiffon gown with a daisy corsage. The mother of the bridegroom chose a pink knit dress with white lace appliques, accented by a daisy corsage.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents, sister and grandmothers in the church narthex.

The serving table was decorated with summer flowers in a silver wine cooler and three candelabra. Mrs. John H. Pollock of Trenton, aunt of the bride, served the three tiered cake. The punch was poured by Mrs. Hilray Everett of Bath, aunt of the bride.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is employed by Kentucky Fried Chicken. She is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute in early childhood education and attended East Carolina University.

The bridegroom is employed by Stoneham Cleaning Service.

An after-rehearsal party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Smith. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stell and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Turner.

Today's Brides Slightly Older

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's brides are slightly older than their counterparts five years ago, according to a survey of its readers by Bride's Magazine, which shows women are now marrying at an average age of 21.5 years compared with 20.6 in 1971.

They appear to be more traditional, with 81 per cent saying they used engraved wedding announcements and 61 per cent using the services of a wedding gift registry.

The general desire was for 12 five-piece place settings of fine china, silver and crystal as opposed to only eight settings of casual tableware previously.

Brides also spent a third more on outfitting their first home — $4,808 average compared with $3,460. All expect to have stereo equipment and 80 per cent expect to have color television.

Of those responding to the survey, 95 per cent plan to work for four or five years after marriage. Five years ago the respondents expected to continue working for only three years.

Davis-Turner Vows Said In Ceremony On Saturday

MRS. CARL RANDALL DAVIS

LEXINGTON — Miss Victoria Jean Turner of Clemmons and Carl Randall Davis of Greenville were married Saturday at 3 p.m. at Arcadia United Methodist Church here. The Rev. John Cagle performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Lee Turner Jr. of Rt. 2, Clemmons. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Davis of Roxboro.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Kenneth Craver, organist, and Allen Yelverton, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "Walk Hand in Hand With Me" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an organza gown designed with a high neckline and cuffed bishop sleeves. Tiny Venise lace appliques were scattered over the sheer yoke. Lace trimmed the empire waistline and above the wide flounce at the hem. The full skirt fell into a sweep length train.

The bride also wore a long veil attached to a Camelot cap trimmed with lace appliques. She carried a nosegay of white stephanotis and pink miniature roses, tied with white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Wayne Peterson of Charlotte served as her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jane Woodley of Creswell, Kathy Tew of Williamston, Cathy Briley of Oxford, Rene Stone of Winston-Salem, and Joanne Davis of Roxboro, sister of the bridegroom. They wore halter-style gowns of green floral print and short, tied capelets with narrow ruffles. Each carried a cluster of long-stemmed turquoise asters with baby's breath and velvet streamers.

Flowers girls were Beth Kearns and Marilee Kearns, both of High Point. They wore long mint green dresses with white ruffled pinafores. They carried white fireside baskets of asters, pom poms and baby's breath in shades of turquoise and white.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Serving as ushers were Jimmy Davis, Kenneth Davis and Tim Davis of Roxboro, brothers of the bridegroom, Bill Dallas of Roxboro and Randy Adams of Sumter, S.C. The ring bearer was Kevin Turner of Clemmons, brother of the bride.

Jim Davis of Roxboro, nephew of the bridegroom, was acolyte. Rebecca Hobbs Tyner served at the register.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. William McBride of Winston-Salem, aunt of the bride.

A reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. William McBride of Winston-Salem in the church fellowship hall. Assisting were Mrs. Chesley Austin of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Wayne Allen Sr. of Lexington, also aunts of the bride. The centerpiece featured yellow and white snapdragons, asters and iris.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in education. The bridegroom, a buyer at Eaton Corp., attended ECU.

The bride was honored at a bridal luncheon Friday at the Town Steak House, Winston-Salem, hosted by Cathy Briley, Kathy Tew and Jane Woodley.

The couple was honored at a rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Leonard of Lexington.

Dear Abby

Parents Try To Cope When Kids 'Go Wrong'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We have three grown children, all raised in a good Christian home with good examples to follow. But there's not one we can brag about. They're all college graduates, but they might just as well have been high school dropouts for all the good their education has done them.

The oldest, a son, 30, plays guitar with a rock group. He dresses like a bum, his eyes are always bloodshot, he's a vegetarian, skinny as a beanpole, and he's always dead tired. He has no plans for the future, and the only good thing we can say for him is he never asks us for money.

The two girls are another story. The 27-year-old lives in Mexico with a married man. She says he's an artist. She's supposed to be teaching English to Mexicans, but she always needs money. We send her half of what she asks for because I can't sleep nights thinking she may be hungry.

The 24-year-old is living with a group of people who are into some far-out religious cult. They meditate a lot, don't believe in working for money, but she's always asking for "donations" to feed herself and her "brothers and sisters" who seem to have her hypnotized.

Where did we go wrong? And what do we tell people who ask about our children?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You didn't necessarily go "wrong"; your children may have. And when people ask about them, tell them the truth, or if that's too painful, tell them (truthfully) you would rather not talk about them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who has a crush on a 15-year-old guy named Billy.

My problem is I don't know who Billy comes over here to see because I have a twin brother and an older brother who is 16, and when Billy comes over he is friendly with all of them.

Once he came over and spent the whole time talking to my mother while she did the ironing. I was in my room and he didn't even ask where I was.

I really like this guy, but I don't want him to know it. How can I find out for sure who Billy comes here so much to see?

LIKES BILLY

DEAR LIKES: If Billy is 15, I'd say the one he pays the least attention to is the one he comes to see.

DEAR ABBY: I recently told my 10-year-old daughter the facts of life, and I gave it to her straight. She took it all with the attitude we have about sex—it is sacred in marriage, never dirty, but easily cheapened. I was a little nervous, but I won't be when it's time to talk to her two younger sisters.

I hope she will always be able to talk freely to me about everything. I thought of an idea you might want to pass on to your readers.

We bought a folder and labeled it "Teen References." Into this folder will go every letter you print about premarital sex, drugs, liquor, early marriage, overprotective or absent or uncaring parents, etc. For every letter from a teen who advocates sex or drugs will be a letter from a teen who learned the hard way.

She thinks this is a great idea. What do you think?

MRS. J.B.

DEAR MRS. J.B.: You are some wise mama. I'll pass your flattering suggestion on.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Frugal Cook Turns Out Tasty Meals

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Find intriguing names for menus planned around low-cost cuts of meat that you cook in new ways and watch the family lap it up.

That's the advice of world-famous restaurateur Victor Bergeron, 74, who uses yummy-sounding names for dishes of chicken wings and legs, lamb cheeks and fish on some of his menus. And it sells.

"You can have a delicious barbecue with boned breast of lamb that has been marinated in soy sauce and charcoaled about four minutes on each side. But many American women think they must use expensive cuts of meat or the meal will not be a hit.

"Take time to learn to cook with cheaper cuts. There are recipes in every good cookbook," he says.

Bergeron was indoctrinated early in a frugal kitchen. At 7 he was hopping about - he had lost a leg the year before - helping his French-born mother in the kitchen. Sometimes he would go to a local slaughterhouse in Oakland, Calif., and load his little wagon with brains, sweetbreads, tripe, liver, tongue and the cheeks of animals, for maybe $1.50. Even then people did not use these nutritional parts of animals, he says.

His father, a French Canadian, cooked tripe, oxtails, brains and offal in Canadian country style. But his dish of ham, eggs, bananas and pineapple is called Ham and Eggs Hawaiian and appears on the menus of Bergeron's 23 restaurants over the world.

"My mother also was a good cook. Some people are put off by such meats as lamb cheeks because there is a little gelatinous vein that seems slippery on the tongue, but it is good protein and she made some delicious stews and other dishes with it. It, too, appears on our menus."

There is a great relationship between gustatorial anticipation and palate enjoyment, one reason foods "should be talked up," he explained. Flaming foods with fruit juices is another play the family chef might use for eye appeal.

His menu descriptions include "Five Fragrant Spices Chicken Wings with Chinese Sauerkraut and Fried Monkey Leaves," which are leaves of bok choy, he explained. A "Drunken Mahi Mahi" is a fish "livened with a little vermouth and other influences." The low-cost menus were devised to attract the young crowd "who can't afford expensive lunches and dinners."

In 1934 Bergeron opened the first of his restaurants in Oakland with $500 and a loan of $25 from his brother for a cash register, and groceries from his father's store. He and his wife did the cooking.

"In that first restaurant lunches were 20 cents. Now they range from $4 to $8. But it was 15 years before a second Trader Vic's opened in Seattle. The whole operation is family and employe owned."

Chefs are men — Chinese because they cook in the Chinese manner — "but women would be superior chefs if they could stand the strain. The job requires that you work like hell."

By LEON DANIEL
HONG KONG (UPI) — If the wages of the wars America fought in Asia were death, the payoff also included life, in the form of uncounted thousands of mixed-race children born into a world that did not want them.

Sired by American GIs and born out of wedlock to Asian women, these fatherless youngsters are the tragic legacies of war.

It is impossible to count them, just as it is impossible to measure the sadness in their eyes.

The first time I saw one — in a Vietnamese village a decade ago — it was his eyes that held me.

He was a toddler, perhaps three years old. He stood apart from the other children and kept his eyes on us, the foreigners. It may have been the first time he had seen hair and eyes like his own.

His hair was brown and straight, his eyes blue. But he was also unmistakably Vietnamese, with high cheekbones achieving prominence on a face somehow too old for a boy still a baby.

As the helicopter lifted us away from the village, I grinned at the solemn youngster and gave him the thumbs-up sign. He continued to stare deep into my eyes but did not respond.

In the years that followed I sometimes saw other such children, on teeming Tokyo streets, in the slums of Bangkok and Manila and in Korean villages.

Some, born during World War II and the Korean war, are now adults. Others are babies who play in the gutters of the hony-tonk towns on the outskirts of the dwindling American military bases left in Asia.

Their stories vary. But there can be no doubt they have been dealt with harshly as reminders of wars many Americans would like to forget but the Asians cannot.

In many parts of Asia, the half-black children suffer the most acute discrimination because, as a Japanese social worker expressed it, they are "more visible than the half-whites."

The situation is perhaps worst in South Korea, a nation with a highly structured, homogeneous society where mixed-race children refer to themselves as "half-persons."

Lee Jung-soo, 21, whose Korean mother told him he was sired by a black sergeant in the U.S. Air Force, said he hated school because he was taunted by his classmates for his dark skin and Negroid features.

"Every day was like hell," he told UPI Correspondent Paul Shin in Seoul. "By the time I was in the fifth grade I was an outcast. I was ridiculed everywhere. I didn't want to meet anyone."

At the age of 10, Lee ran away from home and, with the help of an American GI, settled near a U.S. Army unit. At 12, he was placed in an orphanage with about 120 other mixed-race children.

"I was happy in the orphanage," Lee said. "Nobody teased me there."

The taunting, however, began again in high school. When a teacher complimented Lee on his ability to read English, other children sarcastically attributed it to his "Ameri-

blood."

"After that I made mistakes intentionally so I wouldn't be teased," he said.

"Another problem was my desire for a girl friend. I never tried to make friends with girls because I thought none of them would like me."

After high school Lee quit several low-paying jobs because he could not bear the taunts of fellow workers. Currently he is receiving vocational training and hopes some day to operate heavy machinery.

"After many years of hardship I have learned to control myself to a certain degree," he said. "But I am still unstable." As for the future, "I will do my best."

According to a survey conducted by Dr. Carroll B. Hodges, director of the American Kor-Asian Foundation, which tries to help mixed-race youngsters, there are about 2,550 such children in South Korea, almost 30 per cent of them fathered by blacks.

"Culturally, these children are Korean," Hodges told me in an interview in Seoul. "Few of them speak English."

Hodges' program emphasizes vocational training, but he claims no ultimate solutions for the problems of the children and doubts they would have an easier life in the United States.

The greatest number of mixed-race children probably are in Vietnam, scene of the longest U.S. military intervention in a foreign war.

A few days before Vietnam fell to the Communists in April, 1975, a Saigon prostitute told me she feared the victors would "kill my baby because he is white."

In the 3½ weeks I remained in Saigon after the war's end, I found no evidence mixed-race children had been harmed by the Communists.

UPI Correspondent Alan Dawson, who remained in Communist Saigon five months, said many Vietnamese mothers hid their half-American children until it became clear there was not "any kind of bloodbath, at least in Saigon."

"UPI correspondents visiting orphanages when Viet Cong or North Vietnamese Army officers were there found them fascinated by the flaxen-haired kids, and singling them out for attention — candy, small toys, whatever, and a lot of affection," Dawson said.

"It appeared they had not seen tow-haired kids before, and the only eyewitness reports we ever got indicated they were treating those kids especially well."

Dawson remembers a Vietnamese woman trying to give away her handsome blond-haired son, about six or seven years old, because she could not support him.

The woman brought the boy into the lobby of a Saigon hotel where Viet Cong cadre were staying.

"She wept, the child wept and many present wept as she sobbed that she was unable to feed her son, let alone herself, because she had no money and no source of income," Dawson recalled.

"A uniformed soldier offered to take the child, put him in a school and bring him up 'as a nephew of Uncle Ho Chi Minh,'" said Dawson, who believes the soldier took the boy with him when the cadre moved out the next day.

Perhaps no Asian nation accepts mixed-race children more easily than the Philippines, where many Filipinos are proud of their Spanish blood. But for Tom Rosales, 15, a skinny youngster with red hair and a shy smile, life is not what it could be.

Tom goes to high school in Manila. He gets some financial help from the Pearl Buck foundation, another organization which aids the children's famous founder, author Pearl Buck, dubbed "Amerasians."

*Tom goes to school because he wants to be a meteorologist some day, but school, for children who are different, can be a painful experience.

"It's worse for the half-Negro kids," Tom told UPI correspondent Kate Webb. "They discriminate against them. There are seven of us at the school. The other kids make jokes about us sometimes."

"They, well, they mistake our parents for people who work in bars," he said. "We feel bitter sometimes. Sometimes we worry. I guess I try to think of the future. Sometimes I ask my mother about my father, but then she doesn't answer me. I wonder about him, but I know nothing."

The Pearl Buck Foundation estimates there are more than 50,000 mixed-race children in the Philippines as a result of the long U.S. military presence in the island nation and a half million such children in all of Southeast Asia.

Other experts say the foundation's estimates are far too high.

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Because most people seem to know more about the inside of their car than their own bodily makeup, a medical school graduate has conceived a magazine to help them learn.

The pilot edition of the quarterly magazine, "Medical Self-care," delves into such subjects as "how to be your own doctor, sometimes," female sexuality, teaching medicine to children and how to deal with physicians.

Editor Tom Ferguson, who has just graduated from the Yale medical school, said the publication was designed to help people stay well and to cope with illness when it strikes.

"I don't know if my colleagues will be outraged or not at the idea of encouraging people to care for their own health," he said.

The first edition consisted almost entirely of excerpts and comments on informative medical publications but future issues are planned to include more instructions about "basic paramedical clinic skills," he said.

Ferguson, 32, said his only goal in medical school until last February was becoming a fam-

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime gives you some excellent moments when you will be able to express a more cooperative attitude by which to get along better with others. Avoid any controversies.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can reach a far better understanding with the one you love early in the day. Engage in favorite hobby in the afternoon.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take the time to improve your surroundings. Take the health treatments that tone up your system. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) After philosophical studies engage in recreational activities that appeal to you. Steer clear of persons who want to waste your time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Home activities are your best bet during the day. Later study some new interest that is appealing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Morning studies can bring good results and then you can enjoy good friends you have not seen in a long time. Don't neglect correspondence.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You need to get your practical life improved and serious study will make it possible. Plan how to have greater income in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend the services of your choice in the morning. In the afternoon study and plan the coming week's activities. Be helpful to a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact an adviser and obtain the information you need for a new project. Come to a far better understanding with loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Cultivate certain friends that you want to be in your life in the future. Take time to pursue a secret aim.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) More thought for those you love is important today and tonight. Plan how to have increased income in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Obtain the data you need to get ahead faster in your line of endeavor. Relegate dull duties to the evening. Plan the coming week.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Giving attention to whatever means a great deal to you is your best mode of procedure today. Come to a better understanding with a neighbor.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have many fine talents, plus an unusual charm that appeals to all. Be sure your progeny receives the best education possible. A fine chart for the lawyer and later a judge. Don't neglect religious training early in life.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This can be a difficult day until sundown since everyone is very much wrapped up in their own problems and will do little to be cooperative. However, checking information you need can be productive.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do not argue with others on any promises you have made, but show you are able to carry them out efficiently. Mate is not very cooperative, but say nothing. The mood changes tomorrow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Arguing with others can cause a scene that is best avoided now. Don't upset one who has not been friendly lately, or you could have further trouble. Take no chances with credit, either.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although your work may seem boring, get it done, or you could get into trouble with bigwigs. Co-workers may be irritable, so handle with care.

New England Is Not Top Choice

CHICAGO (UPI) — In this Bicentennial year, New England — the area that led U.S. independence from Britain — would seem to be No. 1 on places to visit this year. However, a survey by the National Restaurant Association shows that 23 per cent of the country's vacationers planned to travel to Florida and the South Atlantic area, while 21 per cent were set to head for New England.

Twenty Million In Fringe Cults

CHICAGO (AP) — Twenty million Americans are in "fringe religious cults" such as spiritualism, Hare Krishna and Scientology, says a University of Chicago anthropologist. Irving Zaretsky, after a 10-year study of the fringe religious phenomenon, says the number may be larger, since participation often is an "occasional 'one-shot' experience."

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Some recreation you have in mind would not be enjoyable and would be very expensive at that, so forget it. Do not take a loved one so much for granted. Be more thoughtful, kind.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Starting an argument at home could have disastrous results, so take it easy. Get into that which is of a constructive nature instead. Not the right time to take on any new interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Drive with utmost care this morning and evening since there could be danger. Avoid arguments with loved one and good things happen for you. Be wary of one who wants to make trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Not a good day to make any changes in your monetary affairs, but studying financial reports is fine. Plan how to cut down on expenses. Forget luxuries.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't harass others because you feel irritable. Get at the cause of your upsetment and rid yourself of it. Improve appearance, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't confide in others who could either be annoyed or work against you today. Catch up with routine work. Showing more affection for family is wise in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put aside your personal aims; they will be easier to attain later. Avoid friends who are in a belligerent mood today, tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to raise your standing in the community instead of tearing it down. A credit problem may seem hard to solve, but be persistent and it will work out.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your present setup bores you and you want to tackle something new, but this would be bad for you. Not a good day to seek new friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those interesting young persons who can see solutions to problems quickly and easily and should have the education slanted along trouble-shooting lines. Permit to indulge in sports that are both healthful and teach fair play, comradeship.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
