Black Rhodesian Leader Returns In Triumph

By JACQUES CLAFIN

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Black Rhodesian leader Joshua Nkomo returned in triumph Saturday and told a crowd of 1,200 singing and dancing supporters the black nationalist movement should unify its divided ranks to accept rule from Rhodesia's whites.

Nkomo returned from a four-month, three-continent tour only one day after Prime Minister Ian Smith announced the white minority regime's conditional acceptance of handing over rule to the black majority within two years.

Smith, announcing his acceptance of a plan forged by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Britain, said he would meet unnamed Rhodesian black leaders to set up an interim government composed of both blacks and whites. Government sources said Smith planned to meet the black leaders sometime next week.

Smith did not name the black leaders with whom he would meet, but one was almost certain to be Nkomo, leader of the internal wing of the African National Council.

An estimated 1,200 supporters greeted Nkomo on his return Saturday, cheering and singing over the breakthrough in Rhdesia at a rally.

Nkomo said that his internal wing of the Council should now try to form an alliance with the rival and more militant external wing and that he had a list of names of leaders within the rival faction who would be willing to open talks with him on resolving their differences.

"We have reached the stage now where we have to recognize whether we identify certain similarities" between the rival factions, Nkomo said.

Nkomo said the list of names of rival blacks who would be willing to talk with his more moderate faction on healing the rift did not include the names of Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the president of the external wing, nor that of the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, a former external wing leader who has since formed his own Zimbabwe National Union.

Nkomo was asked if the list included the name of Robert Mugabe, a young rising star in the external wing. Mugabe is in self-exile in Mozambique, the neighboring Marxist country which supports black guerrillas staging raids on Rhodesia.

"I think I recognize the name," replied Nkomo, lending credence to belief that Mugabe has moved into a key position of leadership within the ANC external wing.

The rift between the two factions results not only from animosity between its leaders but also from the fact that the external wing has promoted the guerrilla effort while Nkomo has leaned towards a political approach.

The rift appeared to be potentially the greatest obstacle in working towards the majority rule set-up to which Smith has finally agreed. Smith accepted the principle of black

Ford In South, Carter West On Campaign Trail

By United Press International

President Ford ventured into Jimmy Carter's southern territory aboard a Mississippi riverboat Saturday and warned Carter to "watch his own backyard" because Ford was picking up southern votes.

The Democratic presidential nominee was stumping vote-rich California, which will cast more electoral votes than any other state. He praised Cesar Chavez and his farmworkers' union and pledged to stop nuclear fuel sales to nations making atomic weapons.

Ford's running mate, Robert Dole, was also in Southern California. He met with former Texas Gov. John Connally and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan to help solidify Ford's support on the right. Reagan advised Dole to hit Carter where he is vulnerable, suggesting to reporters one of these areas was "his demagoguery about the tax structure."

Carter joined Chavez at an East Los Angeles gathering and said the farm leader is "courageous, fights for the causes, has the confidence of his people and has been an inspiration to the nation."

Ford, clearly enjoying his six-hour trip down the Mississippi aboard a sternwheeler, told a New Orleans crowd "we will carry some (southern) states — more than my opponent thinks. He'd better get down here and do some campaigning. He'd better watch his own backyard."

Meanwhile, the New York Times disclosed that the Watergate Special Prosecutor's office is investigating whether funds from two maritime unions were secretly paid to Ford during his days as a congressman. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said he had seen nothing to comment on about the report.

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — Stumping vote-rich California, Jimmy Carter pledged Saturday to stop nuclear fuel sales to nations building atomic crowd ons and got a fairground crowd to chant "We do!" in answer to the question: Who pays unfair taxes?

Carter returned to California for the second time in a month, starting the day in San Diego where he hit the nuclear export issue he and President Ford clashed on during their first presidential debate Thursday.

Carter said in San Diego he would not sell nuclear technology or fuel to nations that refuse to stop developing atomic explosives. He also called for "an international retroactive moratorium" on the sale or purchase of nuclear reprocessing plants, which produce weapons-grade plutonium.

The Democratic nominee later flew to Ontario and went by motorcade to the nearby Los Angeles County Fair, where he strolled through a midway jammed with thousands of persons and visited a square dance.

At each stop, he attacked "those terrible statistics" of inflation and unemployment which he blames on Ford's policies.

At one point, he asked the crowd, who pays income taxes so that "big shots", corporations and special interest groups can pay less than their share?

"We do!" they shouted in chorus.

Carter Spent $12,232,767

ATLANTA (AP) –A financial disclosure report released by the Jimmy Carter campaign Saturday shows his campaign committee spent $12,232,767 as of Aug. 31 on primary election expenses.

This sum does not include any money spent toward winning the general election, a Carter spokesman said, because that funding is provided and limited by the federal government.

The report shows the committee spent $1,112,819 in August.

The report also says the committee has spent $878,591 on fund-raising activities thus far.

Jewish Holiday Began Friday

Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, began Friday night and will continue through today.

The Jewish holidays will conclude October 4 with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

On Yom Kippur, the most holy holiday of Jewish religions, forgiveness is asked for sins committed during the past year.

Convenes Meeting

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda Saturday convened a meeting of four black presidents to consider ending the guerrilla war against Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime in neighboring Rhodesia.

Zambian government sources were optimistic that the presidents would agree to withdraw support for the insurgency, but a spokesman for the Marxist government of Mozambique renewed his country's pledge to continued guerrilla warfare.

Smith Friday accepted a U.S. British plan for a transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia within two years.

However, he made his agreement conditional upon an immediate end to the warfare in which the Salisbury government claims about 1,600 guerrillas and 150 Rhodesian troops have been killed since 1972.

The meeting was due to begin late Saturday and continue today.

Zambian government sources said Smith had adhered to the settlement formula presented to him last weekend in South Africa by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

"Therefore, there is no reason why the Lusaka meeting should not endorse" the agreements and fulfil the African side of the bargain, the sources said.

No Trace Of Woman Kidnaped In Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The FBI said Saturday afternoon that it concluded the massive search of the Ocala National Forest at 3 p.m. without finding any trace of kidnaped socialite Sheri Linda Jaffa.

The FBI said it had no leads in the case, but agents said they wanted to question a greying, paunchy man who might have witnessed the 35-year-old woman's abduction. The man was reported seen near the place where the woman's car was found empty.

Art Nehrbass, special agent in charge of the Jacksonville FBI office, released a description of a 45-to 50-year-old man, whom is he said is not considered a suspect. The man was about 5-foot-11 and weighed about 200 pounds with a protruding stomach. He had grey hair and was last seen wearing a red-and-white striped pullover shirt.

The man could perhaps be a witness in the case, Nehrbass said.

Real estate developer Richard Jaffa, 36, remained at home waiting for a call from the kidnaper. He had made a tearful television appeal to the abductor on Friday saying he had the $200,000 ransom and wanted the safe return of his wife.

"He's remained quite calm under the circumstances," Nehrbass said Saturday. "He's very composed and holding up well."

Hundreds of volunteers, communicating via citizens' band radios, scoured the west edge of the huge forest in four-wheel drive cars and trucks earlier Saturday for some trace of Mrs. Jaffa or the unidentified caller who had demanded the ransom.

Nehrbass said the terrain was searched near the tiny community of Lynn, about 10 miles east of the Florida thoroughbred horse capital of Ocala. Agents also inquired at the few scattered houses in the area.

The pine woods and lake shores area is located about 90 miles from the Jacksonville home from which Mrs. Jaffa, a petite socialite matron and mother of two, vanished Wednesday.

Taking part were about 100 vehicles from the Jacksonville Four Wheel Drive Posse, a group of deputized civilian volunteers; a similar group from Marion County, in which the National Forest is located; Duval County sheriff's deputies and FBI agents.

Jaffa last saw his wife when he left the family's $60,000 home in Jacksonville's Beau Clerc district to go to his office Wednesday morning.

HOPING A KIDNAPER HEARS—Richard Jaffa (right), Jacksonville contractor, looks at a box of $100 bills totalling $200,000 he says he is willing to pay in ransom for his wife, Sheri, 35, missing since Wednesday morning. Jaffa said a man called his office demanding $200,000 for her release and $50,000 was left at a designated spot but not picked up. He appealed Friday for a new contact with the kidnaper. Beside him are their children. (AP Wirephoto)

NAACP Seeks Bond Waiver

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The financially-plagued NAACP, admitting it cannot raise $1.5 million in seven days to fight an adverse court ruling, has asked a Mississippi court to waive the bonding requirement.

On Aug. 19, Hind County Chancellor George Haynes ordered the civil rights organization to pay damages of $1.2 million to a group of white merchants in the Southwest Mississippi town of Port Gibson because of an early 1960s boycott waged by blacks in the state.

The $1.5 million bond must be posted by Oct. 2 before the NAACP can appeal Haynes' order under a state law that requires an appeal bond amounting to 125 per cent of the damage award.

Demo Women Officers Named

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Angie Elkins of Durham was elected president of the Democratic Women of North Carolina during the organization's annual meeting here Friday and Saturday.

Also elected by the organization were Queen Little of Burlington, first vice president; Marie Colton of Asheville, second vice president; Lucy Hancock of Raleigh, third vice president; Norma Turnage of Rocky Mount, secretary; and Ruth Starnes of Monroe, treasurer.

Files $2.3 Million Suit

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Winston-Salem attorney has filed a $2.3 million lawsuit in federal court charging that the promoters of a recent Virginia bluegrass music festival absconded with ticket receipts and left the festival site in shambles.

F. Mickey Andrews filed the suit in U.S. Middle District Court here against Cactus Productions Inc. of Nevada and four of its officers.

Andrews contends in the suit that the promoters of "Stompin' 76" in Carroll County, Va. last month conspired to conceal the amount of ticket sales from him and left $50,000 in damages at the festival site.

Seeks Accreditation

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Youth Services Commission has endorsed a three to five-year drive to gain full accreditation for the state's six juvenile training schools.

They are now "as far from meeting the (accreditation) standards as the East is from the West," said Raymond T. Shurling, state director of youth services."

The schools house and educate some 800 juvenile offenders.

Accreditation from the state Department of Public Instruction and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools would help make the training school teaching programs "equal or superior to the public schools," Shurling said.

Fine Response To Town Meeting

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

Over 150 Greenville residents participated yesterday in the Greenville Town Meeting, one of 5,000 one-day community forums comprising Town Meeting '76 across the nation.

According to the Rev. James H. Bailey, chairman of the steering committee for the meeting, the response to the program was "really great.

"People are excited about the chance to speak on issues that concern them," he said.

"Some of the politicians that attended said that for the first time they were hearing some real ground-level thought."

The purpose of the meeting was to involve a cross-section of the population in a problem-solving session to clarify goals for Greenville's future.

"The cross-section we had was great," said Rev. Bailey. "We had everyone from Ph.D.'s to people who cannot read and write. Few of the participants were Greenville natives. The people were all so positive. They feel a real affection for Greenville."

The day-long forum was divided into two sessions: a morning meeting for identifying the present challenges the city is facing, and an afternoon meeting to suggest solutions for those problems.

Challenges discerned by the group included improving racial equality, city beautification, allocation of resources between city and county governments, political apathy, youth education and cross-cultural communication.

Specific proposals suggested were job training for the handicapped and disadvantaged; implementation of citizen input through a citizens' council; development of a Beauty in Greenville Committee and a series of follow-up mini-town meetings.

Participants in the meeting also wrote a town slogan ("Get on the Move: Put the E-ager Back in Greenville"), a town symbol, and a town song.

Representatives fo the Institute of Cultural Affairs acted as consultants for the meeting. Billy and Sandra Stinson of Greenville provided entertainment during the lunch hour.

Rev. Bailey expressed gratitude to the merchants and businesses who contributed to the event. "We've had great cooperation for this event," he said. "And it has been a success. You do not have to have large numbers of people to hear the voice of the people."

Two Projects Approved

BETHEL—The Town of Bethel has been notified of the approval of two police projects—a first year Crime Prevention Program and a continuation Manpower Project, according to the Mid-East Commission.

Funds provided by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration will pay for each project on a one year basis, utilizing $19,175 for crime prevention and $4,988 to continue the salary of one patrolman for the Town of Bethel.

The crime prevention unit will attempt to initiate programs which involve police officers and local citizens in a partnership aimed at reducing the increasing number of property crimes in Bethel.

Additional responsibilities of the designated officer will include: conducting security inspections in places of business; using hardware displays to maintain security information centers; continuing a record system for property crimes; and assuming some patrol and investigative duties.

Bethel's Crime Prevention Program will have a three year funding lifetime at a declining Federal share.

Bethel's Manpower Project, funded for a second year, will ensure that the town continues to retain salaried employee Lindsey Ebron as a patrolman.

Bethel's second year manpower project will extend through September 30, 1977 and has the possibility of being refunded for a third and final year with a reduced Federal dollar amount.

Two Arrested

A 12-year-old juvenile and a 21-year-old man, both of Greenville, were arrested Saturday on unrelated charges of assault with a deadly weapon and marijuana possesion, according to the Greenville Police Dept.

The juvenile was charged with assault about noon at the Carolina Grill, Dickinson Ave., following an alleged offense about 10:30 a.m. at his home.

Wayne Michael Weatherman, 201 Azalea Dr., was arrested for simple possession of marijuana about 2 a.m. at Cotanche and Fourth streets.

He was also charged with public drunkeness. Bail was set at $500 and the case will be heard Oct. 11 in District Court.

Youth Dead In Fire

ELKIN, N.C. (AP) — A 17-year-old Wilkes County youth died early this morning when he tried to extinguish a fire that broke out in his mobile home, authorities said.

The victim was identified as Floyd Dewitt Roberts of Rt. 2, Elkin.

Redevelopment Comm. Office Relocation

The Redevelopment Commission is relocating from its downtown offices on Evans Mall to the central offices of the commission and Housing Authority located at 316 E. Roundtree Drive.

Executive director Joe Laney announced that the move will be made Monday.

Laney pointed out that retail space has become a premium on the Mall with no vacancies currently open for new business. He said that the commission is moving in order for a retail store to locate at the 319 Evans Mall address.

The details of the new retail outlet will be announced by the owners at a later date, he added

Some work will be done on the building in order to meet the requirements of the new business, he explained.

The central offices will provide ample room for the consolidation of the Housing and Redevelopment staff, Laney said, and the move will mark the first time both agencies have occupied the same location.

The Redevelopment Commission has operated out of offices on Evans Street for several years, including some four years at the present address and approximately four years in the Proctor Hotel.

Laney said that the Redevelopment Commission is happy to make the move in order to allow for another new business to locate in the downtown area.

After A Small, Quiet Walk

Frinks Receives Parks Award

A TIRED FRINKS . . . SCLC leader Golden Frinks, apparently tired, used a megaphone Friday afternoon to make a few remarks to about 25 people who took part in the local segment of a national walk. (Reflector photo by Tommy Forrest)

All along it was a subdued affair. From the time the approximately 25 marchers approached Greenville's city limits near Pitt Tech Institute, until their arrival at the Pitt County Courthouse just before 5 p.m. Friday, the group walked quietly, not hurrying their pace.

The occasion was the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) sponsored "Continental Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice," of which Golden Frinks said this walk is one of 31 different sections which will end in Washington (D.C.) in October.

Earlier in the week, at the time the permit to march was granted the group, the march application had a notation that up to 1,000 persons might be involved.

Two ministers, Father Hugh C. Mulholland of Greenville, and Rev. Fred D. Taylor, currently based in Atlanta, arrived with the small contingent when they settled on the steps of the courthouse.

Rev. Taylor, Director of Chapters and Affiliates of SCLC, spoke briefly on the causes behind the Continental Walk. "Ford and Carter are both content to have 17 million unemployed, and 20 million hungry," Taylor remarked.

"They're both good men in their own way," he stated, "but we're marching now because we don't want America's need to be overlooked. We're able to feed all. It's not that we can't afford it, it's just that we don't have the will."

Taylor said SCLC, in this walk, was trying to emphasize the national needs to combat hunger, inadequate medical care, poor education and housing, and to de-esclate the high cost of America's military establishment.

Following remarks by Taylor, Frinks, a native North Carolinian who is now SCLC's National Program Director, thanked those who had joined in the local walk, asking them to "keep the faith."

Like Taylor, he appeared tired and resorted to using a megaphone while he spoke.

Answering questions about the remaining portions of the Continental Walk, Frinks said "from here we'll go back to Concord or Salisbury and pick up the Tennessee group for the walk to Richmond.

"The group I've marched with originated in New Orleans," he commented. "In all there's 31 different sections covering the nation from west to east. We'll end up in Washington in October."

Asked about the absence of the large metal medallion that has long been a Frinks trademark, he smiled. "That's back in Atlanta. Rev. Abernathy felt the chains were going to our heads. So they're hanging up on hooks at headquarters. Like in a museum," he added.

At 7:30 p.m. Friday, Frinks was honored at a banquet held at West Greenville Recreation Center (the former Eppes High School).

A large audience was on hand to see Frinks receive the Rosa Parks Memorial Award, the highest SCLC award given to workers in the organization's movement.

Guest speaker for the event was Rev. Bernard Lee, Acting Director of SCLC during Rev. Abernathy's current illness.

A number of other awards were also presented at the banquet.

Lebanese Peace Step

Karami, Cabinet Resigns

By MICHAEL ROSS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — President Elias Sarkis Saturday accepted the resignation of Premier Rashid Karami and his cabinet as the first step toward putting together the first real government Lebanon has had in six months.

Sarkis, in office only three days, met with militant rightwing Christian leaders in hopes of securing acceptance of a truce offered by Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and talked with Arab League mediator Hassan Sabry el Kholy about a new peace plan.

On the battlefronts, the war slackened in some areas but intensified in others, including Beirut, where Christian gunners shelled the western sector during the afternoon.

Sarkis asked Karami to stay on in a caretaker capacity until he finds a successor. Although Karami's resignation was mandatory, it left Sarkis with the problem of finding a premier capable of putting together a cabinet acceptable to Lebanon's plethora of political parties and militias.

Practically speaking, there has been no government in Lebanon for more than six months. Sarkis' task will be to select one that can maintain at least a facade of authority without which peace talks could be difficult to arrange.

In view of the deep divisions between Christians and Moslems, putting together a government that could bring an end to more than 17 months of civil war will not be easy.

Political sources said he would try to do this in one of two ways—by seeking a "cabinet of technocrats" without political coloration or a cabinet of "national unity," comprising militants from both sides.

Sarkis was reported to have planned a crossing into the western sector of Beirut Saturday for talks with Arafat and leftist leaders, but rightist shelling of the area apparently forced a postponement.

Auto Talks

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Top bargainers for the United Auto Workers and the Ford Motor Co. huddled for just over two hours Saturday, trying to break an impasse in negotiations to end a nearly two-week-old strike by 170,000 workers.

The only discussions Saturday were between UAW President Leonard Woodcock, Vice President Ken Bannon and a top aide for the UAW and Ford Labor Vice President Sidney McKenna and two top aides for the company. Because of their numerous "top-level" meetings since the strike began, newsmen have termed them the "Dearborn Six."

In a short printed statement handed out by a Ford spokesman, McKenna made his first comment in a week, saying the negotiations "continue to progress on both economic and non-economic matters."

"A great many tough issues remain to be resolved, and we are working diligently toward that goal," McKenna said.

But both McKenna and Woodcock, who have at least said hello to newsmen in encounters since contract talks formally resumed Monday, went out of their way Saturday to avoid reporters waiting in the nearly deserted halls of the Ford world headquarters in suburban Dearborn.

Sources indicated the No. 2 automaker has had a new contract proposal, or at least a "modification" of earlier offers, ready to place on the bargaining table since Friday. But it was reported the union has balked at Ford's plan to make the offer public, saying it would be like "bargaining in a fishbowl."

'Warm Winter' Blondes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Put away your long johns. The wooly bear caterpillar report is out and it's the "year of the blonde" for the furry little creatures, indicating a mild winter.

Herbert Krone, 82, who claims the color of the wooly bear forecasts winter weather, says this year's crop is the lightest he's seen in more than a half century.

"This is the year of the blonde," Krone said Friday in a telephone interview from his home in Lancaster. "It's the first time I've ever seen real platinum blonde wooly bears. It must indicate we're in for a real mild winter."

Krone's annual wooly bear report isn't as widely known as Groundhog Day observations — another Pennsylvania weather barometer that originated in Punxsutawney — but he claims 97 per cent accuracy for it.

"Wooly bears are generally light at the front end, dark in the middle and light at the rear end," Krone said. "That means we're in for an average winter, warm in the fall, turning cold by winter, then going back warm again in the spring."

The wooly bears appear in late September or early October. This year's crop is all pale, meaning an extremely mild winter, Krone said, adding that almost all he had seen so far were female.

CHECKING THE WEATHER VIA WOOLLY WORM—Herbert Krone of Lancaster, Pa., examines a caterpillar in his annual prediction of the coming winter. This year's crop of woolly worms is uniformly blonde, indicating to Krone that the winter will be mild. (AP Wirephoto)

Former Sen. Douglas Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. Paul H. Douglas, an often lonely maverick who advocated an ambitious reach of social and economic legislation, has died at his home.

The death Friday of the former Illinois Democrat at the age of 84 was attributed to respiratory arrest. He had suffered three strokes since 1969.

In 18 years in the Senate Douglas pushed civil rights legislation and worked tirelessly for financial disclosure by public officials, the concept of one man, one-vote, Medicare, federal aid to education, public housing, truth-in-lending, and giving the vote to 18-year-olds.

Comments On Debate Rules

NEW YORK (AP) — Edwin Newman, moderator of the first Ford-Carter debate, says a change in the ground rules and questions that are provocative and unexpected would liven up future confrontations.

Though pleased on the whole with the meeting between President Ford and Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter of Georgia, Newman said he was disappointed that some controversial subjects such as busing, equal rights and Carter's Playboy magazine interview, did not arise.

Ford's relationship with U.S.—Steel and control of intelligence agencies would have legitimate areas for questioning, in Newman's view.

Against 'Free Hearst' Motion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A government prosecutor says he will fight a motion to free convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst on bail while lawyers appeal her seven-year jail sentence.

In imposing sentence, U.S. District Court Judge William H. Orrick Jr. told Miss Hearst, "The violent nature of your conduct cannot be condoned."

Miss Hearst, 22, stood silent Friday as Orrick noted that while he had "the deepest compassion" for her, a jury found that she "freely and voluntarily participated in an armed bank robbery" on April 15, 1974.

Orrick ordered her to serve seven years for bank robbery and two years for using a weapon in the holdup. He said the two sentences would run concurrently and gave Miss Hearst credit for the 371 days she has spent in jail since her arrest on Sept. 18, 1975. She will be eligible for parole in 16 months.

New Fairgrounds A Good Deal

The Pitt American Legion Fair, Inc. has announced the purchase of a new 32-acre site on the Eastern bypass at Ram Horn Road.

President Les Turnage said an enlarged fairground will be constructed on the site.

"We will start from scratch out there, he said and Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham will assist in developing a master plan for a "model" agricultural fair.

Among the plans for the new site is the restoration of an old log tobacco barn and developing other items of agricultural significance. In short the plans are to develop something more than "just a carnival" for the Pitt County Fair. The new site will be more than double the 14-acre site on U. S. 13 and Airport Road.

The fair is operated by the Greenville, Farmville and Ayden American Legion Posts.

We think the move will be beneficial to the county as a whole. The old fairgrounds site, which will still be used for a couple more years, is in an area which is becoming more and more congested. The new site will have adequate highway access through the Eastern bypass and other roads.

The biggest benefit, however, will be that a fair can be developed which will be truly worthwhile to the county.

Best of all, a fine permenent exhibit of farm buildings and equipment can be developed on the site which might be an attraction all year — just as the Country Doctor Museum has been in Bailey.

Maybe Beach Property In Pitt County

There is an old joke about buying choice beach property in eastern Pitt County to prepare for the day when the ocean covers the low lands of coastal North Carolina.

Now we face the possibility that it might happen — or worse. A UNC professor sees the possibility of flooded coastal areas within 75 years if air pollution creates a warming trend which would melt the polar ice caps.

The oceanic inundation is only a possibility, mind you, but there are indications that way.

If it did, maybe we would have beach property in Pitt County — or maybe we wouldn't even be here. It's an interesting — and perhaps disastrous — possibility.

"As these Great Debates begin, both candidates appear to be quite confident...!"

Issues Show Future Shape

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—If you thought public education had changed a lot in recent years, the immediate future really holds some shockers.

Top school leaders foresee some revolutionary winds blowing through the halls of local public schools, and "Some of these are already being noticed and felt in this state. And many of them are beginning to trickle down to the local level of administration," says State Schools Supt. A. Craig Phillips.

"Changes in public education are really just beginning," he believes. Before stepping down from his post as U.S. Commissioner of Education and returning to Utah, Terrence Bell drew up a list of the major issues facing public education.

"There are at least 15 crucial national public education issues that are facing those of us who help make decisions," Phillips told local school superintendents from across North Carolina at a recent gathering in Asheville.

The List

In outlining Bell's list, Phillips said many of the predictions have immediate and far-reaching implications for North Carolina:

—In a few years, teachers will merge into one large union; collective bargaining will spread and be universal. Courts are expected to accelerate moves toward forced negotiations, and in North Carolina there will be new employee relations for the 40,000 people who make up the educational support group.

—Teacher certification would be done by professional associations rather than the state; and a push for retirement incentives is growing with the prime argument being to encourage early retirement to open up new jobs, get new blood.

—State legislatures and the U.S. Congress are setting more education policy: which textbooks can be used, what courses shall be taught, opening and closing dates for schools. Continued attacks will be made on local control of schools, and local decision making by local board and administrators will drastically erode. Further, courts are rapidly getting into school decisions, shaping policy in finance, equal rights, employee relations, etc.

—The public is demanding specific student performance data; problems will result from enrollment declines in secondary schools; public day care raises questions of the schools' role; private schools seek separate boards, teacher certification; a cabinet-level public education post federally and other possibilities should mean improved federal support; improved technology is becoming more available and cheaper; and new directions in treating with the handicapped are among other items on the list.

At Hand

Phillips said he sees signs of many of the issues or potential problems on the state level—growing nearer and nearer.

"As we grope for solutions of current issues, we must be prepared to begin thinking and preparing for these others which are sure to come . . . it is only a question of when," he said.

On The Road

Ever wonder why you see so many trucks and mobile homes moving about at night and on weekends? Part of that has to do with avoiding the state's various inspection and enforcement programs.

One such is the little-known function of the State Utilities Commission which oversees, safety inspections, and enforcement against illegal, unlicensed, unauthorized operators or movements in motor freight transportation.

The Commission will seek to double its inspection force next year to accomplish a 24-hour per day, seven days per week enforcement program. The 27 agents would be on the road seeking out violations and bringing charges against offenders.

Sunday Morning Notes

There was some discussion at a recent council meeting of the Environmental Protection Agency's concern with the noise of rock music.

Tim Sullivan, who is ECU Student body president, attends the council meetings.

"I wish you'd quit picking on rock music," he quipped. "My parents listen to Boots Randolph and I can't tell any difference."

Maybe music in general is injurious to your health.

And among the 49,700 fans who attended last week's ECU-N.C. State football game, there was at least one who supports the Grifton Shad Festival.

He had on a T shirt which read: "Eat Mo' Shad, Grifton Shad Festival."

A group downtown was discussing the now famous Jimmy Carter Playboy interview which used some frank language about sex and sin.

It came time for Rep. Horton Roundtree to express his opinion.

"Well, I don't think he would have expressed it quite the same way for The Biblical Recorder," Rountree commented.

A fan headed to the ECU-N. C. State game commented. "I don't know what the State people will think. I'm driving a Carolina blue car with an ECU sticker."

It'll really confuse the Carolina people.

Spotted one car with a Carolina sticker and a Leo sticker alongside it.

Don't know whether that was the astrological sign or whether it stood for Leo Jenkins.

ALVIN TAYLOR

For the N. C. State game, many fans brought picnic lunches and dined in the parking lot at Carter stadium in order to be on time for the game.

The candles were red, by the way.

On the Friday night prior to the ECU-N. C. State football game Coach Dye's team went to see the movie "The Bad News Bears" at the Pitt, a story about a Little League team which gets psyched up and starts winning its games.

As is known, the Pirates won the next day. As this is written I don't know how the Pirates did against William and Mary last night, but here's hoping the magic holds.

Public Forum

To the editor:

As a Greenville High School alumnus, class of '34, and also a graduate of N.C. State, I was shocked, though not necessarily sad, to see that my alma mater was beaten by East Carolina University (ECTC to me). Also this was before the largest night crowd to see a game in Raleigh.

I remember the first game East Carolina played. This was on a field back of the Third Street School, before a handful of people. They played the N. C. State freshmen and were beaten by some fantastic score — about 81 to zip. As I write this I can feel the ghost of old Wilson Hall breathing down my neck.

Congratulations and best of luck to my old hometown and its fine university.

Fix-It Man Is Happy

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer ...

CHENOA, Ill. (AP) — Housewives for miles around are taking their broken appliances to Loyal (Slim) Augspurger, who does fine repair work and hates to get paid for it.

Since Slim, 72, opened a fix-it shop three years ago in the basement of his home in this central Illinois community, he has repaired several thousand appliances — small ones like toasters, electric irons, fans, blenders, coffee makers and vacuum cleaners. He has a backlog of more than 100 awaiting repairs.

"I don't like to take money for what I like to do," he says. "I charge just enough to pay for some replacement parts and now and then to replace a tool. For instance, a broken $15 or $20 appliance, I'll make it run like new for around $2.50 even if I have to spend four or

40 Years Ago Today

Sept. 26, 1936

Leading world foreign exchange centers were at a standstill today as the French government prepared to summon an extraordinary session of parliament Monday to cut the value of her currency by approximately one-quarter to one-third.

Security prices in the New York Stock Exchange—the major world market open—tended upward, however, as Wall Street experts hailed the French move as constructive and London bankers for revival of world trade.

The decision to devalue the franc appeared virtually to have ended the European gold bloc. But the Netherlands authorities indicated they would continue to maintain the parity of their currency.

Farmers from some 35 eastern North Carolina counties who have sold tobacco on the Greenville market this season have been paid more than $3 million, yesterday's money paid out having brought the figures to $3,006,050.58.

The money paid to farmers was for 13,993,436 pounds of the golden weed and provided a general average for this year of $21.48.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Fearful Of Self-Destruct

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

PITTSBURGH — Political leaders, labor union officials and money men of the Democratic party joylessly downed stiff drinks at the William Penn Hotel here late Monday night and pondered for the first time whether Jimmy Carter might blunder into defeat.

They had just finished 15 hours of whistle-stopping from New York to Pittsburgh conceived by Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss as a merry celebration of imminent victory. Instead, it began with Carter's gaffe on tax reform, ended with the embarrassing furor over his Playboy magazine interview and was featured in between by a leaden candidate on the stump.

The weary day on the train posed these questions: Do Carter's stumbles on taxes and sex reveal an unavoidable tendency to self-destruct? If he still cannot define the issues at the end of September, can he do so by Nov. 2?

One widely respected Democratic politician pulled his thoughts together at day's end to reach these conclusions: the problem is not the shaky though correctable campaign organization but the candidate himself; the election will turn on whether Carter's idiosyncrasies reverse the strong national desire for change in the White House.

The whistle-stop tour that spawned such doubts was intended to bring together Carter's newcomers and the party old guard, who arranged the train ride. But the mixture was imperfect. Carter spent most of the ride alone in his private car, a solitude broken by perfunctory visits from VIP passengers and one quick walk through the train's 13 cars.

More important, the train began with the Carter aides and old guardsmen disagreeing sharply on the politcial meaning of Carter's tax reform statements in his Associated Press interview. Far from being dismayed, Carter's top advisers were grateful that President Ford's attack had defined an area aligning Republicans with "the special interests" against "the people." But many of Carter's fellow passengers disagreed—especially those who paid $2,500 for the ride.

These well-heeled Democrats, assuming Carter as President would foster investment tax incentives, were shaken not only by the AP interview but by whistle-stop oratory attacking the "special interests." When one rich businessman personally voiced his conern in Carter's private car, he was reassured by the candidate and spread the word to other apprehensive money men aboard.

What worried politicians was the impact of Carter's words on Democrats unable to raise $2,500. Pennsylvania leaders waiting at Harrisburg for Carter had been chilled by insinuations, generated by Carter's imprecise remarks, of tax reform benefitting the poor at the expense of everybody else—including the middle class. Their chill soon turned to a deep freeze.

At earlier stops in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, Carter repeated his month-long emphasis on the Roosevelt-Truman Democratic tradition but stirred little audience response. A large crowd at the state capitol in Harrisburg seemed eager to respond but was deadened by a faulty loudspeaker system and the rapid-fire monotone of an apathetic Carter. After four minutes dwelling on the exploits of Roosevelt and Truman, Carter made his soak-the-rich tax pitch but quit after an 11-minute speech when the rain started.

Carter managed to perk up himself and the crowd at later stations, particularly during an exuberant stop in Johnstown. But by then, copies of his astounding interview with Playboy circulated through the train.

That this interview was a dreadful mistake the old guard and Carter's inner

Misery's Company

(Laurinburg Exchange)

Many people in the property-casualty insurance business in North Carolina have complained all during the nearly 4-year tenure of State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram. When he won nomination to another term over their candidate at the August Democratic primary, their hopes for a commissioner they could better work with were dashed.

In all this extended hassle between insurance agents and their companies and the state commissioner, the public has been mostly perplexed. They have seen things they like and dislike in Mr. Ingram. They have experienced mixed feelings over charges by insurance spokesmen that they are going broke or that companies are being forced to withdraw from the state because of low rates.

According to Forbes magazine, there are other states where problems between insurance commissioners and insurance companies seem as great or greater than in North Carolina. New Jersey is the worst state for "rate adequacy," says Forbes. During a recent year that state's assigned risk plan lost $34 million, or $101 per insured car, because of inadequate rates, the report states.

Other states where regulators have been creating problems for insurance people include Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New York, California and Michigan.

North Carolina somehow wasn't mentioned directly. But while those in the casualty and property insurance business in North Carolina wait for more court reversals of Mr. Ingram's decisions and for the next meeting of the General Assembly to hopefully aid their cause with new legislation, they seem to have plenty of miserable company across the land.

PREACHING

St. Francis of Assisi once promided one of his monks that he would take him along the next time he went preaching. So on a certain day he called the monk to him and told him that he had decided to preach in the streets of Assisi on that day.

Francis first went to the market place. Here he hailed several merchants and talked with them pleasantly about their wares and inquired whether business was good or bad. He paused to have a cheerful word with a little old woman who sold flowers. He talked with several people in the street about their families, and tactfully inquired about the condition of their souls.

And then St. Francis and his monk started back home. "But Brother Francis," said the monk, "when are we going to preach and where?"

"We have been preaching," replied Francis. "Our Lord's command was, 'As ye go, preach.' One does not need a pulpit in order to preach. We can witness to the Lord and His gentleness anywhere we happen to be."

Peanuts Suddenly A Big Thing

CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

NORTHFIELD, Ill. (AP) — In the world of nuts, the unpretentious peanut has become a big nut, not so much in increased sales, but in image, says an industry leader.

The new image, brought on by the Jimmy Carter connection, has had an effect on George Hartnett, a peanut broker whose business is one of the country's biggest.

They used to laugh when Hartnett said he was in peanuts. That's all changed now, he says.

"I've never seen so many people so well informed about the peanut," said Hartnett after returning this week from a trip to offices in Suffolk, Va., and Albany, Ga. "It was sort of a joke before. When I said I was in the peanut business, people would ask how things were going in the upper deck at Wrigley Field."

Hartnett said any increase in sales of the peanut because of its new stature "would be just a drop in the bucket."

"There are some 3.5 billion pounds of peanuts produced in the United States each year. That's an awful lot of peanuts, but actually the U.S. raises only about 9 per cent of the world's crop. India, China and African nations plant the most."

"So, the Carter connection has made no real sales impact. He isn't that big in the industry," said Hartnett. "Actually, he primarily is in seed rather than commercial trade channels. But peanuts certainly are on people's minds because of him."

Peanuts even are on T-shirts, "Peanut Power," and are a growing theme for bumper stickers and signs, "Warning! Peanuts are dangerous to Elephants." ... "E pluribus Peanut."... "Peanut Butter Spread Is What You Get From Eating Between Meals."

Hartnett said in his travels through peanut land, "everybody wants to know what Carter is like."

"They assume I know Jimmy as well as my father," said Hartnett. "But most of our dealings have been with Billy Carter, his brother. Billy very much is running the Carter Warehouse in Plains (Ga.). He is the fellow who is getting everything done. He is a fine businessman and really knows the people down there."

Hartnett said he has noticed some excitement among peanut men.

"Some are excited to buy a carload of peanuts in Plains just to get a receipt signed by the Carter Warehouse," he said.

Evangelical Aura Strong

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — The dramatic rise to political prominence of Jimmy Carter, a "born again" Christian, has focused attention on the evangelical movement in America.

The latest nationwide Gallup survey shows one person in three (34 per cent) saying he or she has been "born again" — that is, has had a turning point in his or her life when they committed themselves to Jesus Christ. This figure projects to nearly 50 million Americans, 18 and over.

Among Protestants alone, nearly half (48 per cent) say they are "born again" Christians, which projects to 43 million adults.

"Born again" Christians, accounting for one-third of the electorate, represent the core of Carter's support. Although this group tends to be more conservative in political ideology than the electorate as a whole, they currently support Carter over President Gerald Ford by a wide 58-33 per cent margin.

Although a wide range of churches define themselves as "evangelical," a "born again" fundamentalist has an outlook or state of mind which pervades the membership of many churches, including the Roman Catholic church. About one in five (18 per cent) of Catholics says he or she has had a "born again" experience.

Evangelical Beliefs

A high proportion of "born again" Christians also have a literal interpretation of the Bible and a belief that one has an urgent duty to spread the faith — to witness. An evangelical or "born again" Christian also places great emphasis on the personal relationship between the individual and God. In addition, they believe in a strict moral code.

The survey shows four in 10 persons nationwide (38 per cent, nearly one-half of Protestants (46 per cent), and about one-third of Catholics (31 per cent) believing the Bible to be the actual word of God and to be taken literally. These results indicate that fundamentalism is still a very powerful force in religion in America.

Converting Others

To measure conversion efforts, or witnessing, the Gallup Poll asked a sample of the nation's adults if they have ever tried to encourage someone to believe in Jesus Christ or to accept Him as their Savior.

A remarkably high proportion answered in the affirmative — 47 per cent. The figure is even higher among Protestants alone — 58 per cent.

A far higher proportion of persons of the evangelical group of churches than among the non-evangelical or mainline denominations have had a "born again" experience, hold a literal interpretation of the Bible, and witness to their faith.

The greater missionary zeal of the evangelical group of churches may be an important reason why these churches are experiencing a spectacular growth in membership while certain mainline churches are experiencing serious membership losses.

This question was asked first:

"Would you say that you have been 'born again' or have had a 'born again' experience — that is, a turning point in your life when you committed yourself to Christ?"

Here are the results nationwide and by key groups:

Have Had 'Born Again' Experience

The following question was then asked to determine the respondent's interpretation of the Bible:

"Which one of these statements comes closest to describing your feelings about the Bible?" (Respondents were handed a card with the following statements: A. The Bible is the actual word of God and is to be taken literally, word for word; B. The Bible is the inspired word of God but not everything in it should be taken literally, word for word; C. The Bible is an ancient book of fables, legends, history and moral precepts recorded by men.)

The 'Hard Core' Evangelist

A "hard core' evangelist could perhaps be defined as one who has all three basic characteristics — that is, has bad a "born again" experience, believes in the literal interpretation of the Bible, and witnesses to his or her faith. Of the total national sample, 18 per cent can be classified as "hard core" evangelists.

The results of today's survey are based on in-person interviews with 1,553 adults, 18 and over, interviewed in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period, Aug. 27 to 30.

A Conservative View

Businessmen Should Be Concerned By Carter

Jimmy Carter sat down the other day with two business reporters, Philip Greer and Myron Kandel, and gave them a little Southern sweet-talk. American businessmen, said the Democratic nominee, would have nothing to fear from a Carter administration. Businessmen, indeed, would have "a friend in the White House."

Greer and Kandel reported this cane syrup stuff deadpan, which is what good reporters ought to do, but it will take more than sorghum rhetoric to reassure those who have followed the Carter record. The prospect of a Carter administration should give most businessmen — and most working people as well — a serious case of the heebie-jeebies.

That Carter is the candidate of organized labor, no one should doubt. Four years ago George Meany sulked out the McGovern campaign; this time the AFL-CIO's president is up and moving. Carter has the endorsement of the National Education Association, the largest of the teacher unions, and will have help from other public unions as well. For such support, a quid pro quo most certainly will be asked. Carter has promised to deliver.

Meany wants two bills enacted into law, and he wants them right away. One would repeal Section 14(b) of Taft-Hartley, thus nullifying the right-to-work laws of 19 states. The other would authorize common site picketing, and thus overturn the Supreme Court's 1951 ruling that secondary boycotts constitute an unfair labor practice.

Neither of the bills presents a legislative problem. A single sentence would suffice for 14(b). It would take but a moment to dust off the common site bill that Congress passed last December and President Ford vetoed in January. Carter is absolutely committed to signing both of them. The consequences for non-union workers, who comprise 75 to 78 percent of the labor force, are plain for anyone to see. The impact on the construction industry requires no elaboration. If Carter may be counted on these two bills alone as a "friend in the White House," we may well inquire: Who needs enemies?

We may glean some further indications of Carter's attitudes from his letter to the Democratic Platform Committee. The letter was dated June 16, 1976, barely three months ago. Surely Carter has not abandoned the considered recommendations he made so recently.

"The first priority," he said, "must be a rapid reduction of unemployment." Toward that end, "we must assure support for the Full Employment Act of 1976." This is the famous Humphrey-Hawkins proposal for the virtual regimentation of American business and industry.

In this same letter, Carter called for "strict anti-trust and consumer protection enforcement." He called for standby wage and price controls. He called for changes in the Federal Reserve Act that would make the chairman of the Fed the president's political stooge. He said he would oppose efforts to deregulate the price of old oil. He supported some form of divestiture for petroleum companies. He promised to "hold fast against efforts to lower clean air requirements," and he supported "strict enforcement of the non-degradation clause of the Clean Air Act." He said he would oppose efforts to weaken the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. He advocated greater protection against noise pollution.

"Major reforms are necessary," said Carter, "to protect the consumers of this country. First, we must institutionalize the consumer's role through the creation of a Consumer Protection Agency. Second, we should establish a strong nationwide program of consumer education, to give the consumer the knowledge to protect himself in the marketplace. Third, we should make class actions by consumers more easily available."

Carter went on to endorse full product labeling, strict truth-in-advertising laws, greater protection against dangerous products, enforcement of stringent flammability standards for clothing, and so on, and so on. And when Ralph Nader made his pilgrimage to Plains, Carter sealed his promises with a kiss.

Sure, the candidate has made some murmuring noises about free enterprise, reduced red tape, production incentives, and all the rest. But to judge from his own written words, Carter is no friend to business or to the non-union worker. Such voters ought to remember in November what the gentleman said in June.

Facing South

Committed Artisan In Sweetgrass Basketry

MT. PLEASANT, S.C. — Mary Jane Bennett is a sweet-grass basketmaker, as were her mother and grandmother before her. She is linked to the land by the natural materials she uses in her craft, and to the past by a chain of basketmakers stretching beyond the first generation of West African slaves brought here to work coastal plantations.

Mary Jane makes the baskets with colored sweetgrass, brown pine needles and strips from palmetto fronds. She combines these, weaving small, round fruit baskets, hand-serving trays, large, flat ricewinnowing "fanner" baskets, and tall, stately swing baskets. Each piece is as functional as it is beautiful.

Mary Jane describes sewing of the wrapped-coil baskets as a "sit still kind of work." The quality of her baskets evidences the patience she has developed as a lifelong artisan.

But she combines this handicraft patience with a pragmatic, modern dynamism which is less "sit-still," more get-up-and-go. A crafts revival is gathering momentum in the U.S., a revival which is increasingly affecting the rural South. And Mary Jane Bennett is one of a growing number of traditional crafts-people willing to travel and talk (to both large groups and small, live and on TV) to aggressively promote and market their work. An active Pentecostal evangelist, Mary Jane has a persuasive public presence. She couples this with a business acumen she first developed selling baskets for her family as a child.

At 52, Mary Jane Bennett is hard put to say exactly when she first began sewing sweetgrass baskets.

"I can't remember, but I can realize from about seven-year-old or less, cause I remember making just the bottom part, like a hot pad; and my mother or aunt they build it up, you know, and fix it in the shapes, different shapes."

With a laugh, she explains that she didn't learn the craft voluntarily. "I had to make the baskets. Your mother get them switches and she say she want so much of that, and you'd better get that much."

Sweetgrass baskets were originally made for domestic use, but by Mary Jane's childhood they had become more valuable as commodities, saleable to affluent city dwellers and occasional tourists. "The baskets were too expensive to use at home. We made them to sell for groceries and clothes."

Until two years ago, Mary Jane was selling her baskets almost solely from her roadside stand on Highway 17, several miles north of Charleston. Thirty or so women sit and weave in front of wooden display stands scattered out over a three-mile stretch of road. Since the early 1930s, most baskets have been marketed in this way.

In the summer of 1974, Mary Jane became the primary resource for a videotape on basketmaking. "Some people are camera-shy," she says. "But I've been talking to the congregation so long it don't bother me none." The tape was produced by the S.C. Arts Commission's Charleston Communication Center. The Arts Commission later hired her to hold basketmaking workshops in small towns around the state as part of a traveling folk arts exhibit.

Other opportunities followed. Her husband Jesse was a retired long-haul truck driver; going on the road was no problem. So dressed in a long, colorful dress, often wearing a turban, always willing to "talk baskets," Mary Jane became a familiar figure at the ever-proliferating local and regional crafts fairs held throughout the Southeast.

She recently returned from a week in Washington, D.C., at the Smithsonian Institute's Festival of American Folklife. "That was the big one," she says.

Sweetgrass basketry is often presented as an endangered, if not dying, craft. Sea "sweet" grass, the prime material, is becoming scarce as its coastal habitat falls victim to land developers. Some say community interest in learning basketmaking is lagging.

But despite these problems, in the hands of Mary Jane Bennett, committed artisan and astute businesswoman, the ancient craft seems alive and well.

circle basically agreed. His advisers privately expressed fear that press secretary Jody Powell's laudable policy of universal access to the candidate had backfired. The old guardsmen felt more disbelief than fear. "I cannot believe this," commented one nationally prominent Democrat as he read the Playboy tearsheet. "I have to think I'll wake up and find it's a hoax."

Putting the best light on the bizarre day, Carter's fellow passengers rationalized over drinks at the William Penn Hotel that the tax fiasco had been obscured by the Bible and sex controversy which in turn would be obscured by the first presidential debate. In the next breath, however, they wondered about new indiscretions.

Indeed, old political comrades of Lyndon B. Johnson (some aboard the train) were appalled by reading Carter's Playboy magazine description of a "lying" and "cheating" President Johnson at the same time they were listening to Carter's rear platform praise of the last Democratic President. LBJ loyalists, warning this might cost Carter Texas, demanded an apology.

Lyndon Johnson's probity consequently joined the political power of Catholic bishops, abortion, Clarence Kelley's valances, the Burger court, redistribution of income through tax reform and sexual mores as extraneous issues obscuring Democratic discontent, with the economy and Republican administration. While Democratic politicians still believe those issues are strong enough to defeat Mr. Ford, Carter's performance has introduced an element of doubt.

THE MAO LEGACY!

Weightlifting Is Not A True Test Of Strength

By GAIL MICHAELS

Remember that article in the newspaper a couple of years ago about the woman in Florida who was refused a job with one of the big corporations down there because the job involved lifting weights of over 35 pounds? That article reduced millions of women, at least the ones who weren't crying, to hysterical laughter. That woman had seven kids — what were 35 pounds to her?! Her home routine would undoubtedly have made Charles Atlas look like a 68 pound weakling.

For all those men who still insist on designating women as the weaker sex, I've devised a true test of strength, not one of those namby-pamby weight-lifting contests. I might even try to have this test incorporated into the Olympics. Any man who wants to win a gold medal in this event must be capable of doing the following:

1. Carrying a full diaper pail from an upstairs bedroom to a basement washing machine.

2. Getting up at 3 a.m. four nights in a row to walk a sick toddler back to sleep in an area the size of Todie Fields' dress.

3. Moving a sofa once a week to cover up the stains left by a not-quite-potty-trained child's freshest accident.

4. Vacuuming a rug with a baby under one arm and a cat clinging to the skin on the back of your neck.

5. Carrying a load of soggy towels to the laundromat after the washer breaks down in mid-cycle.

6. Parting (with your bare hands) two kids and one cookie.

7. Grabbing the groceries up in a hurried attempt to get inside before the phone starts ringing and finding that cunning little bag boy packed all the cans in one sack.

8. Being pregnant for nine months, three weeks, two days, four hours, ten minutes, and 53 seconds (without having a nervous breakdown).

9. Riding for 11 hours in the back seat of a Toyota while a restless baby does the polka on your stomach.

10. Driving a carpool. This entails the extra requirement of steering with your feet while using one hand to remove a chocolate bar from your eye and using the other hand to prevent a child in the back seat from making an obscene gesture out the window.

11. Getting medicine down a cat. This can involve either of three methods. You can grind it up in The cats food, then hold his head in it till he passes out. You can grind it up in peanut butter and smear it over his body while he makes needle tracks on the inside of your arms. Or you can give it to him whole after wrapping him in three towels and two sheets and hope that he doesn't bite through your garden gloves. You cannot take him back to the vets every day for a shot.

Now, don't you all think that watching these events on TV would be a whole lot more fun than watching a bunch of chubbies drop barbells on their toes?

five hours on it. If they took it to a big store the minimum would be $6 to $8.

"I just enjoy doing it. The name of the game isn't money, it's being happy doing what you're doing. I don't need money, so I don't try to make it. I don't have the time to fool around with it, anyway," he says.

Augspurger, who is on Social Security, says there was no pension plan when he retired after 27 years as a stone quarry superintendent. His son, Marlow, left an appliance store to open his own repair shop for large household items like refrigerators. He gave his dad an assortment of small parts.

"He left me 100 drawers and jars full of tubes, screws, transistors and other things," says Slim, who stands 6-feet-2 and zeighs 150 pounds. "So I had to learn how to fix things. I just started out and learned as I went along.

"I've never had a dissatisfied customer. In fact," he adds, "some of them were so happy with my work they thought I undercharged them and mailed me more money."

Slim says his most difficult job was repairing the corroded wiring of an electric pot that a housewife had tried to clean by submerging it in a basin of water and detergent. "It took me about 10 hours to fix it. I charged $5. Such a thing is a challenge for an older person. Part of the joy of fixing is helping people in trouble out of it."

Slim also gets personal satisfaction collecting old fans with brass blades. He has 17 of them, one from 1898. "I fixed them all. It was just lovely," he said.

Election Season A Tough Time On Wall Street

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A quiz for stock market investors:

With the Nov. 2 presidential election only weeks away, the market,

a) being traditionally a bastion of Republican sentiment, and comfortable with President Ford as a known quantity and a persistent inflation fighter, would do well if he were reelected.

b) Having suffered severely in the last few years because of Watergate and a deep recession, would welcome Jimmy Carter's election as a fresh start for the nation and the economy.

c) Either of the above.

d) Neither of the above.

Whichever answer you checked, give yourself full credit. You would have no trouble finding an expert to agree.

The peak season for politics has arrived on Wall Street. But a number of experts there say investors should pay less attention to day-to-day developments in the presidential campaign than to longer-term political trends.

Stock prices may jump around as the presidential campaign nears its end. But to keep on top of such swings, an investor must outguess or anticipate Carter, Ford, the electorate and investor sentiment.

"In this 'knee jerk' world in which we live, there is an inclination to reduce complex situations into black and white status when actually the true color is a mottled gray," said Bache Halsey Stuart in a recent look at the campaign's meaning for the market.

"The simplistic approach is that a Democratic victory on Nov. 2 will lead to the beginning of a total revamping of the federal government when Mr. Carter assumes office ...one does not take apart a $1.5 trillion apparatus and change it overnight.

"Indeed there is a real question if Mr. Carter is the winner: will his impact be felt at all until the fiscal 1978 budget year?

"If Carter wins there will be a transition period and then the State of the Union message in January that will set the initial theme for the new administration. Therefore, let us conclude that regardless of whether the Republicans or the Democrats are triumphant, nothing meaningful is going to happen until the first quarter of 1977."

The past contains numerous examples of "smart money" that got fooled by the market during times of change in Washington.

William LeFevre at Wall Street's Granger & Co. recalls that the Dow Jones industrial average fell 1.8 per cent from early June through late October in 1960 as traders anticipated the election of John F. Kennedy, who was expected to be bad for the market.

But a couple of weeks before Kennedy's election victory, a rally began that carried the Dow up 168 points over the next 13½ months.

In August 1974, many market traders who anticipated President Nixon's resignation figured a rally would follow.

Traders ran the Dow up 45 points in three days before Nixon's resignation. But the average reversed itself and fell from 777 as Ford was being sworn in to 585 less than two months later.

Since then, the market has done very well under Ford. But numerous long-term studies debunk the myth that investors should look forward to Republican eras and fear the Democrats.

John Wright, an investment adviser based in Bridgeport, Conn., calculates that stock prices rose at an annual rate of 5.1 per cent in 16 Republican years since World War II, against 8 per cent in the last 12 Democratic years.

And Granger & Co.'s LeFevre notes the three biggest point declines ever in the Dow came in Republican eras — 1929-32, 1968-70 and 1973-74.

The market can have trouble with Democrats, too, as any investor who remembers Kennedy's showdown with U.S. Steel over price increases in 1962 will attest. Stock prices fell 13 per cent that year.

Should an investor then ignore politics entirely? That seems hardly practical in view of Washington's profound impact on the economy.

Former Sweethearts Take A Sentimental Journey

By CLARENCE ZAITZ

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — To the tune of "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," Maurice Kingston and Neoma May Myers have taken a sentimental journey into 1941.

They hope it will last the rest of their lives.

For 35 years Kingston, married and living in Southport, England, carried the name of Neoma May in his memory.

On Oct. 11 the two will leave for Southport to be married.

Kingston met Neoma May in Oakland, Calif., 35 years ago when his British warship, the H.M.S. Liverpool, docked for war-damage repair. They met in Sweet's Ballroom and they had a couple of happy months together before he sailed out of her life.

She married, had three children but was later divorced. He married, had a daughter but in 1975 his wife died.

In an interview Kingston recalled it all started with "one sentimental mood one night in 1974" when the tune of "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" on the radio took him into the past with Neoma.

"Suddenly, there I was, in her car, and the radio was playing that song. I've never forgotten her. She was the first girlfriend in my life."

He wrote a letter to the Oakland Tribune and friends of Neoma sent her clippings in San Diego.

She was intrigued, but didn't know how to find him until several months later when she came across a long-forgotten address book which contained the address of Kingston's mother. She sent a Christmas card and a note, then forgot about the matter.

Kingston got that card on his birthday in December 1974. They exchanged some "nice, friendly letters." When his wife died the letters became tape recordings.

Kingston proposed marriage before he saw Neoma, and she accepted even before taking a vacation trip to England in May. "There was still a chance," she said, "that we wouldn't hit it off."

But they did, and Kingston said that when his daughter and Neoma met "they hit it off straight away."

"Up until then I hadn't said anything to my family (mother, two sons and a daughter)," Neoma said. "They'd have thought I was out of my mind. In fact they didn't even know I went to England."

But when she returned, convinced she would marry the former British sailor, Neoma called the family together and told them. "It came as quite a shock," she said. "They were happy in some ways, but sorry I was leaving the country."

Kingston arrived in California Sept. 1 and the couple made a sentimental journey to San Francisco and visited "all the places he remembered...he even persuaded me to dance, even though I hadn't danced in years."

Bear Stalks Camping Party

By DAVID LAWSKY

SEATTLE (UPI) — "The bear was coming fast—loping, not just walking. Like any cornered animals, we screamed at him and tried to be aggressive rather than afraid."

Dr. Charles Jackson, a researcher at the University of Washington, and three other campers were stalked by a killer—an Alaska brown bear believed to be the animal that mauled to death an Illinois man in Glacier Bay National Park.

Jackson, 31, had gone to the Alaska park with Dr. Peter Talbot, Colin Miller and Lani Vega, all of Seattle.

Last Thursday, the four were dropped by a park boat and hiked to a small lake, where they set up camp. They carried no weapons because they had been told there were no bears around.

They settled down to a lunch of soup and hot chocolate. And then they noticed a bear ambling towards camp.

"He was sniffing his way," Jackson recalled. "We tried to frighten him by banging pots. He didn't stop his advance."

Taking their food with them, the group left and hiked up to a ridge. They stopped, looked down and saw the bear ripping through their camp and tents.

And then the bear started to stalk them.

"He began following our trail. Where we had turned, he turned. Where we had stopped to tie the food away from him, he stopped and sniffed around, and then followed our trail," said Jackson.

University of Alaska biologist Fred Dean, a specialist in bears, told Jackson later it was bizarre behavior for a bear to track people.

The party of four zig-zagged through the woods to try to lose the bear, but the animal gained on them.

"The bear was coming fast, loping, not just walking. We all started running up the hill," Jackson said.

Out of breath, the party turned and made a stand with the bear only 12 feet away, facing them across a ditch.

"We threw fist-size stones at him and he stopped briefly."

The bear retreated and the four retreated. But they dared not move off their knoll. Every time they began to move the bear showed renewed interest.

After an hour, another couple who had planned to meet the Washington party came within shouting distance and convinced the group to move slowly away from the bear.

They crept away. The bear moved to where they had been, but did not follow them.

The group finally reached park rangers searching for Lee Precup of Aurora, Ill., who had been dropped off by a boat Sept. 10 and had failed to meet his return boat three days later.

An hour after the group met the rangers, word was received by radio that Precup's camp had been found—destroyed by a bear. The next day rangers found Precup's body, apparently mauled to death by the animal.

Jackson said that as of Saturday, the bear had not been destroyed. But using hair found at the camp and using his photos as guides, park rangers were pursuing the killer.

One Cares, One Doesn't

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — The Libetarian party candidate is upset over a ruling that will eliminate him from the planned gubernatorial debates, but the American party candidate for governor says he couldn't care less.

Democrat James B. Hunt Jr. and Republican David T. Flaherty are scheduled for a televised debate Oct. 5 at the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters convention.

The Federal Communications Commission has ruled that the two can debate without television stations being required to grant equal time to minor party candidates.

Lawrence Name Editor Of Charlotte Observer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — David Lawrence Jr. has been named as editor of the Charlotte Observer, Publisher Rolfe Neill announced Saturday.

Lawrence, 34, succeeds C.A. "Pete" McKnight who was named associate publisher. The changes are effective Oct. 1.

Lawrence joined the Observer in August, 1975, as executive editor. Prior to that he was managing editor of the Philadelphia Daily News for five years. That paper, like the Observer, is a member of the Knight-Ridder group.

It was also announced that Reese Cleghorn, editor of the Observer's editorial pages, will become associate editor of the Detroit Free Press, another Knight-Ridder newspaper. The change is effective Oct. 1. Cleghorn has been editor of the editorial pages at the Observer since July, 1971.

As editor, Lawrence will be the chief news and editorial executive and will determine editorial page policy. He will be responsible for the 115-member news and editorial staff and report to Neill.

Phase IV

Phase IV of Greenville Utilities' Operation Flush, a program designed to rid the city's water mains of unwanted sediment, will be held Sept. 27 through Oct. 1.

Wadie Lewis, superintendent of GUCO's Water and Sewer Department, announced that the fourth phase of the project will be conducted in an area bounded by S. Evans Street on the west, 14th Street on the north, and Arlington Boulevard and Red Banks Road on the south.

Phase IV will follow the same format as the previous stages, Lewis pointed out, with flushing operations scheduled to be conducted between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. in an effort to minimize the number of customers affected.

The superintendent said that GUCO has been pleased with the results of the first three phases.

—A Mother And Child, And A Water Beauty—

Gabel, the current international ballooning champion, plans to make a predawn ascension from here Monday, equipped with a four-day survival kit, a goose down sleeping bag and an aircraft radio.

His flight plans calls for him to go to Cherokee, N.C., passing near Mt. LeConte, the second highest point in Tennessee at 6,593 feet.

"I guess you would look at this as being dangerous, but I've made about 900 flights in hot-air balloons. I'm well prepared for it," Gabel said. "I know my own limitations."

The Lookout Mountain, Tenn., native may have to maneuver his craft through inversions and downdrafts as he makes his way above the rugged terrain to the other side of the mountains.

"Once I get up there, I'll have to distinguish the severe downdrafts, keep the balloon straight and level and get it in the right current," Gabel said.

He said he may have to wait for the right weather conditions before making the estimated eight hour trek across 40 miles of wilderness.

"We're set up to wait if that's what it takes," Gabel said. "The Knoxville flight service station is helping brief us and give us immediate weather conditions because we're concerned about winds aloft."

Gabel said he will have to solo in order to conserve enough fuel to lift the eight-story balloon above the trees and over the mountains.

He said he will try to make a controlled, rapid ascent at a rate of 350 feet a minute to an altitude of about 6,500 feet before starting a slow descent.

"I'd love to be tree-top level, aesthetically," Gabel said.

Jerry Eubanks, assistant park superintendent, said the flight has not been authorized, but rangers will attempt to rescue Gabel if the Rock City-sponsored balloon goes down.

"I suppose we would have a moral obligation to get to him if he's within the forest," Eubanks said. "I think we'd go in on foot."

Gabel said he will have four crew members at the launch site, two at an undetermined touchdown area and a spotter plane standing by in case of emergency.

The AX-7 international size balloon must travel 100 miles over the mountains and drift back toward a landing area, Gabel said.

"The winds will more than likely be blowing into the mountains on the North Carolina side," he said. "We'll have to go further over and blow back in the direction of the landing spot."

Gabel, who also was the 1973 national balloon champion, will stow a first aid kit, three gallons of water and a four-day ration of dry foods aboard the world's hottest burning craft.

He said he will make a tent out of the balloon fabric and wait for rescue personnel if he crashes in the wilderness.

Gabel said he is looking forward to the sudden sunrise as he drifts upward from the west and tries to guide the Thunder balloon with a 77,500 cubic foot volume.

Once above the mountains, the balloon could drift aimlessly.

"That's one of the appeals of ballooning. You don't know where you're going," said Gabel. "You can't get that feeling now unless you're a wino or something."

Little Liberation Achieved

NEW YORK (AP) — Changing attitudes toward sex in the past decade did little to liberate men or women, according to a four-year study of female sexuality in the United States.

The new morality put increased pressure on men and women to have more intercourse and lessened the importance of relationships, according to "The Hite Report." It made saying "no" to sexual advances difficult for most women and it denied women and men the freedom to explore their own sexuality, said the study.

Big Pumpkins Draw Crowds

WHYNOT, N.C. (AP) — Bascomb Craven, Randolph County's prize-winning pumpkin grower, once crossed a pumpkin with a giant squash in his search for a better product.

"It turned out like a long yaller banana, four feet long, and wasn't much good for nothin'," said the Randolph County "Punkin' Man."

A Cliff-Hanging Close Call

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A freight-laden DC-3 airplane teetered on the brink of a 50-foot drop at the edge of Gastonia Municipal Airport's runway this week after it's brakes failed to retract.

"I could see we weren't going to get it stopped," said Walt McCreary, pilot of the plane. "There was nothing we could do. It was a no-win situation."

McCreary and co-pilot John Gray, both of Dallas, Tex., said they were shaken by the narrow escape Wednesday afternoon but unhurt.

Suspending Gas Lead Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is suspending its drive to lower the amount of lead in gasoline because studies show it would lead to gasoline shortages in the next two years.

Lead is used to boost gasoline octane. Without lead more crude oil would have to be used to obtain the same octane level.

The agency's announcement Friday came one week before regulations were to go into effect calling for a sharp reduction of lead content over the next three years.

Three Ton Virgin Dead At 45

BROOKFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Minnie was a proud and virtuous old lady who despite her weight — three tons — attracted the affections of an amorous male, whose love she rejected.

Her last days were sad ones for the grand old woman of Brookfield Zoo. She was arthritic and had surrendered the reins of leadership of the zoo's elephant pack.

Zoo officials said Minnie was still an old maid when she died Wednesday at the age of 45.

"She spurned the only courtship we tried to arrange," zoo director Dr. George B. Rabb recalled Friday.

Minnie lived for two months with the tempestuous Ziggy, the huge rogue elephant who died at age 55 last year. Minnie didn't allow Ziggy to take any liberties with her, and after snubbing him, she never got another date.

"That was in 1972 and Minnie wasn't receptive," said Rabb, who is studying results of an autopsy to determine the cause of Minnie's death.

Unlike Ziggy, Minnie led a mostly uneventful life at the zoo. She went there in 1934 after appearing in an exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair.

Her only escapade came as a young girl on a cold January night in 1938. Zoo officials said she lifted a door bolt with her tusks and sneaked out through the kitchen of the elephant house, taking three doors and a railing with her. Outside she slipped on a patch of ice, and keepers found Minnie the next morning unhurt but bewildered because she couldn't get up.

The death of Minnie leaves the zoo with only four elephants, all females — a situation described as a harem without a sultan. One of the four, an elephant named Babe, was sent to the Portland, Ore., zoo in 1971 in an attempt to mate her with a male elephant there, "but she didn't cooperate," Rabb said.

Kate's The Only Mule In Four Day Festival

BENSON, N.C. (AP) — With only one mule as a local resident, horses have been pressed into service for the annual four-day long "Mule Days" observance here.

The supply of available mules has been dwindling ever since some 300 showed up for the first Benson Mule Days event in 1950. Last year only 33 appeared, and it may be fewer this weekend.

The sole remaining mule-resident is Kate, 26, and townfolks say they may have to use horses to fill out the planned parade.

Kate,'s owner, Garland McLamb, who began the whole thing years ago, still boasts of the mule's advantages over tractors.

"A pair of $1,000 mules will produce a $5,000 crop, and it costs $5,000 just to buy a tractor," he said.

McLamb sold thousands of mules to local farmers in earlier days, starting in 1926. When he saw that the noble mule was going to lose its battle with the tractor, he created the Mule Days celebration.

"My mules got many a family around here through the Depression," he said. "So I figured we ought to do something every year so folks would always remember the mule."

McLamb recalls that he ordered one shipment too many when the mule decline set in. Despite a sagging trade, he ordered one more shipment from Tennessee in 1952.

"I was determiined that the year would never come that I didn't bring in a shipment of mules," he said.

But the farmers didn't buy them and McLamb had to sell the $400 animals to be killed for dog food.

Police Chief Sentenced

BELHAVEN, N.C. (AP) — Rudolph Hall, former Belhaven police chief, has been given a one-year suspended sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretences.

Beaufort County court officials said Hall, 45, also was placed on probation for three years.

Hall was indicted last Monday on a charge of feloniously obtaining $588.63 in checks from the town by falsifying overtime work sheets.

Western Movie No Longer Money-Making Product

EDITOR'S NOTE — "You can't go on shooting people on the screen without drawing adverse reaction from the audience," says a producer trying to explain why western movies no longer make money.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lo the poor western — is it headed for the last roundup? Or will it rise from the campfire ashes and regain its place as a unique American art form?

There can be no doubt the movie western has fallen on bad times. Two major productions now in release have failed and another was withdrawn this summer after disappointing results.

In Variety's list of the moneymaking films of 1975, nary a western placed in the top 45. Losers included "Bite the Bullet," with Gene Hackman and Candice Bergen; the John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn "Rooster Cogburn," and "The Master Gunfighter," from the organization that made "Billy Jack."

No western has achieved blockbuster status since "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" in 1969.

Consider this season's wreckage: His fans hoped that in "Buffalo Bill and the Indians," Robert Altman would do for western history what he did for army life in "MASH" and country music in "Nashville." But the finished product prompted heated arguments between the director and producer Dino DiLaurentis and got Altman fired as director of "Ragtime." Despite Paul Newman, "Buffalo Bill" was scalped at the box-office.

"The Missouri Breaks" held the high promise of an acting duel between Marlon Brando and Jack Nicholson under the astute direction of Arthur Penn ("Bonnie and Clyde" and "Little Big Man"). United Artists spent $3 million on pre-release publicity. Rentals are expected to be $12 million, but "Missouri Breaks" cost $8.6 million to make, including about $2.5 million in stars' salaries. Result: a deficit. Because of the distribution and normal advertising, a movie's revenue must double its pre-release cost to show a profit.

"It's not hard to see why those two films failed," observes Charlton Heston. "Negative films on any subject will always fail. The audience wants to see something positive."

Heston himself has been caught in the western slump. His 20th Century-Fox film, "The Last Hard Men," was withdrawn from distribution during the summer. Said the actor: "Results of a Texas release were disappointing. Then for some inexplicable reason it was opened in New York City without paid advertising. Understandably the showing was not impressive. Now Fox is mulling the proper way to present the film."

Other disappointments: "Breakheart Pass," with Charles Bronson; "The Great Scout and Cathouse Thursday," with Lee Marvin; "The Dutchess and the Dirtwater Fox," with George Segal and Goldie Hawn. The only western to make money in today's market has been Clint Eastwood's "The Outlaw, Josey Wales."

The downward trend has prompted the western's critics to launch attacks. "The western is in trouble," wrote John Simon, the acerbic reviewer of New York Magazine. "Hailed by various Bicentennial hacks as the great American myth or great American art form, it could prove to be the great American embarrassment."

The western has been basic to the American film ever since "The Great Train Robbery" electrified audiences in 1903. Broncho Billy Anderson and William S. Hart established the code of the West in their silent films, and the pattern was followed in such epics as "The Covered Wagon" and "The Iron Horse."

Hollywood turned out program westerns by the hundreds in the 1930s, making heroes of Tom Mix, Buck Jones, Tim McCoy, Ken Maynard, William Boyd and Gene Autry. With one astonishing achievement, "Stagecoach" in 1939, John Ford achieved respectability for the western.

Over the years it has waxed with milestone films like "High Noon," "Shane," "Red River," "Broken Arrow;" and waned with over-ambitious epics, a glut of TV westerns and violent foreign imitations ("spaghetti westerns").

"Westerns have been having a rough time for two reasons," says Mike Frankovich, a producer of westerns. "One is the hangover from saturation on TV, years and years of the home screen crowded with cowboys. Two is the spaghetti western, which saturated the theater market with lots of action and laughs and a heavy load of violence.

"You can't go on killing people on the screen without drawing adverse reaction from the audience. Americans are too concerned about their own personal safety; they don't want to see unlimited mayhem in movies."

Clint Eastwood comments: "I've had good luck with westerns . .. (But) we'll never see a return of the massive program of westerns that we grew up on ... What you need to make a good one is imagination."

You also need a superstar, argues Dino DiLaurentis, who pioneered the spaghetti western in Italy and has sponsored such American-made films as "Buffalo Bill" and "White Buffalo," with Charles Bronson.

"You can make pictures like 'Mandigo' and 'Serpico' without big names, but a western requires a big star," says the transplanted Italian. "The audience needs to identify with the hero, and they can do that best with someone they know, like Bronson or McQueen."

With the western decline — only one western series has been scheduled on the TV networks for next season — a Hollywood sub-industry has dwindled. Stables have thinned down their herds of horses; wranglers, riders and Indians have sought other employment. But there is always a gleam of hope for the future.

"The western is obviously one of the classic genres of film expression," says Charlton Heston. "Perhaps the western is in one of its periodic slumps. But it will come back."

Backgammon Champ, Booster, Is Challenged By Ali The Great

By EDWARD W. BASSETT

NEW YORK (UPI) — An ex-jet fighter pilot, he bought his first title, won a second and has been challenged by Muhammad Ali.

His game is backgammon. He's the world champion. That's the title he won. "Baron" is the one he bought. Now he's opening promoting his backgammon title by playing celebrities.

"If you were the world champion of something, wouldn't you want people to know?"

"The interesting thing about the game is that a beginner can take a champion — once," said the Baron. "That's because the game is 75 per cent luck and 25 per cent skill.

"In the long run or a tournament, however, the good player will win," says Ball, who has challenged the Russians to put up a champion and has put his title on the line for $100,000."

A Boris Spaasky-Bobby Fisher type match would give the game worldwide visibility, says the 45-year-old hotel owner from St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. What is more, he figures the publicity "would benefit me as well as help the game."

So Ball has challenged the Russians to put up a champion. He has put his title on the line — for $100,000.

Of his desire to play Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, he says, "I hear she plays an excellent game of backgammon and she's always doing things for charity, so the proceeds could go to the charity of her choice if she wins."

He feels he can get sponsors to put up $25,000 to $50,000 for such a match.

The tanned, lean resort owner has pulled other stunts. In 1970 he bought his first title — that of Baron — for $13,000 from an impoverished Italian "just for a lark." More recently, he staged what he says was the world's first underwater backgammon game in the waters of St. Thomas.

He became champion of the world's oldest recorded game last January, beating top pros, many of whom had been playing for 40 years.

"I had only been playing for just over two years at the time," he said. "So if I can do it, anyone can."

About the same time he met Ali and taught him the basics of the game, only to have the world heavyweight boxing champion turn around and challenge him to a money match which hasn't been played yet.

He once agreed to a money match of backgammon followed by a tennis match with "Bobby Riggs, the great hustler himself," but "it started raining and we had to cancel," said Ball, who was once a rated tennis player.

"It's an addictive game that completely absorbs me when I play," he said while scratching his bushy mustache. "I usually have one cigarette in my mouth and one going in the ashtray."

The backgammon boom has spread to college campuses and neighborhood bars, says Ball. He estimates there are at least two million players in the country. He says "There are at least six new backgammon clubs in New York City this year."

"I think the game deserves the promotion," says the Baron. His current promotions include a display his expertise in a forthcoming film, "The Great Balloon Race," and a pro-celebrity tournament in Mexico featuring Lucile Ball, George Plimpton and Polly Bergen.

Another Big Class Of Freshmen In Next Congress

. . .By MIKE FEINSILBER. . .

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Much can be said already about the new Congress that will be elected in November and take its seat in January.

That's because so many members of the outgoing 94th Congress have decided not to come back.

Chary of the increasing workload, tired of suffering under the public's low esteem, lured by a pension system designed to make retirement attractive ($20,000 a year after 20 years' service), enchanted with the prospect of higher office, more congressmen than ever are calling it quits.

In the 435-member House, 52 members are leaving. Twenty-eight announced their retirement, 21 went after other offices, three were defeated for renominatiin in primaries. Three more who were quitting died, bringing the total to 55.

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D-Minn., 55, spokes of the "huge burdens" in Congress when he announced his retirement. Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Mo., 53, said he had lost "the passion" for public life, saying his duties had "increased dramatically, exceeded only by public dissatisfaction with Congress."

Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Va., 57, complained that his children "have grown to adulthood without knowing the reassuring presence of a devoted father."

Even if most incumbents seeking another term manage to hold their seats the vast majority usually do, the heavy departure rate makes it certain another big freshman class will take office in January.

The 75 Democratic freshmen elected in Watergate's wake in 1974 organized as a voting bloc and managed to weaken the seniority system, oust three chairmen and play an unusually strong role in shaping legislation.

Another big freshman class this time means more than half the House membership will have been elected since 1972.

This time, departures are creating vacancies at the top.

House Speaker Carl Albert, 68, is quitting (to "return to the scenes of my childhood in Oklahoma") and so are the two top leaders in the Senate — Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana, 73, and GOP leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, 75.

Albert's certain successor is House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts. While there may be battles to succeed Mansfield and Scott, Democrat Robert Byrd of West Virginia and Republican Robert Griffin of Michigan appear to have the inside track.

Retirements are dissipating some states delegations in an institution where seniority has not lost all its clout. Missouri is losing five of its 10 congressmen; Georgia three of 10; Pennsylvania six of 25, plus a senator; Michigan four of 19, plus a senator.

Two of Arizona's four congressmen and both of Hawaii's two congressmen are giving up safe House seats in hopes of winning nomination and election to the Senate.

The chairmen of six House committees are throwing in the towel. Among them is Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., a supporter of a bipartisan foreign policy in his 18 years as chairman of the International Relations Committee.

Morgan, 69, a physician, will return home to Fredericktown, Pa., population 1,067.

A seventh chairman, Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., of the Rules Committee and the only octogenarian in the House, was denied renomination in a primary in which his age was a big issue.

"You simply burn yourself out," said David N. Henderson, D-N.C., 55, chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, when he announced he was leaving after only a year as chairman. "Either your health suffers of your constituents suffer."

The late Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., announced his retirement before he died in March. He was one of the chairmen deposed by the Democrats in 1974. Another, F. Edward Hebert, D-La., also decided to quit after losing his Armed Services chairmanship.

Of the 19 women in the House, two are leaving.

Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., the only woman member to oppose the equal rights amendment, called it quits at age 72.

Democrats Patsy Mink and Spark Matsunaga, Hawaii's two congressmen, are fighting for the right to run for the Senate seat being vacated by Republican Sen. Hiram Fong, 68, who has served since Hawaii was admitted to the union 17 years ago.

Of those departing, 16 congressmen and four senators are Republicans. Some Republicans are said to despair of waiting until the GOP wins a majority to claim the chairmanships from the Democrats.

Blames Desert Growth On Man

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT

GENEVA (UPI) — The world's deserts are on the move, encroaching on vast tracts of land which could be used to grow food for an expanding population.

But scientists blame man more than nature for the steady loss of fertile land, which with the sea, is his most precious resource.

As it is, only 30 per cent of the world's total land area is suitable for growing food to support its current population of four billion. The other 70 per cent is too dry, cold, steep or shallow in soil.

Most of the manmade damage is in the developing countries where forests are cut down, leaving hillsides exposed to wind and water. Animals graze on marginal land, eating the vegetation which protects the soil from erosion. Poorly-designed and operated drainage systems cause salinization.

"Shifting cultivation, involving a burn and plant system, is probably practiced by more than 200 million people," according to the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization. "The forest is lost in the process, the soils are exposed to the elements, frequently worthless thorny scrub takes over. •

In Africa south of the Sahara, the FAO said, at least 247 million acres of tropic forest have disappeared. In Asia, 19.8 million acres have been lost and in Latin America, 12.4 to 24.8 million acres is lost every year.

But erosion is not limited to the developing countries. The industrialized nations are also destroying foodlands.

Heavy farm machinery has in many places wrecked the structure of the soil, making it impenetrable for plants and water.

"Hedges have been cut down to make room for large new farm machinery and, without windbreaks, valuable top soil has been blown away," the FAO said. •

Of the world's agricultural land, it warned, 15 per cent is now seriously effected by erosion.

A new word — desertification — has been coined to describe the loss of vital farmlands.

The U.N. Environment Program will hold a conference on desertification from Aug. 29 to Sept. 9 next year, probably at its Nairobi headquarters. •

"Deserts can advance by 10 kilometers (6.2 miles) or even by as much as 50 kilometers (31 miles) a year," according to UNEP Executive Director Mostafa K. Tolba of Egypt. "And man is more to blame than nature.

"Desertification is caused by climate aggravated by the activities of man such as overgrazing and the misuse of land.

"People irrigate land without proper drainage — another form of desertification. They must be taught proper land use such as how many cattle, goats or sheep should be allowed to graze in a certain area, what machinery is best for the certain kind of land and what plants and trees can be planted to stabilize sand dunes." •

The 1977 conference was prompted by the disastrous four-year drought in the Sahel region of Africa but Tolba says it will have a bearing on what is happening throughout the world.

The objective is "a world plan of action to combat desertification."

Feasibility studies are currently underway on arresting and reversing the desertification process, including extension of the "Saharan green belt" from Egypt to Morocco, use of satellite monitoring techniques and livestock management.

U.N. funds are financing other scientific studies on land waterlogging and salinization in the Indus and Tigrus-Euphrates valleys, on advancing deserts in Northern Chile, southern Tunisia, northwest India and in Niger.

Reports of success in at least partly halting the process will come from western Australia, southeast Oregon, northeast Iran, the Negev in Israel, from the Soviet Union and from China.

"There must be programs, worldwide, to reforest and fix dunes before land is lost for ever," Tolba warned.

Fight Decline In Old Newark Homes

By JUDI HASSON

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Mention Newark, and someone will recall the 1967 and 1969 riots that rocked the city and the stories of its decay, ghettos and crimed.

But close to the decaying urban core is a middle-class community of once-elegant mansions owned by people dedicated to keeping their roots in Newark.

The mostly white residents of Forest Hill, a 10-block area overlooking downtown Newark and lower Manhattan, live in huge Victorian and Tudor homes. Their prices would be out of their reach if the address was not "Newark."

The 23,000 people who call Forest Hill home, including their most famous resident, Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., want to remain in New Jersey's largest city. They like their life in there.

"We are determined to stay in this neighborhood," said Elizabeth Del Tufo, a Forest Hill resident since 1958. "It's the kind of place where you can take your dog out for a walk and it takes you two hours because you run into so many people you know."

Once home for the city's wealthiest residents, Mrs. Del Tufo says Forest Hill now attracts middle-class buyers who can pay $50,000 for a house that sells for $200,000 anywhere else.

Dr. Marvin Kraushar lives in a house with six fireplaces, mosaic floors and a marble kitchen.

"My house has things you couldn't buy anywhere else for any price," said Kraushar, who commutes to his New York City practice.

The wide, tree-lined streets also attract people who like to live and work in the same community, who can walk to the store when they need something.

"We live in Newark so my husband doesn't have to commute. I don't need a car because everything is within walking distance," said one woman. "And we live here because we believe that Newark will, one day, be revitalized. I don't think it's a dying city."

City officials admit the number of middle-and upper-income families has declined in Newark over the last 10 years. But they claim the exodus to the suburbs has eased because people are attracted to places like Forest Hill.

"We're like a small town in the middle of the city," says George Wilson, acting president of the North Ward Property Owners Association.

The community is not without its problems. Residents fear their homes and their roots are threatened.

One woman, who lives in a 16-room house, says she doesn't let her children ride their bikes in the streets because of the "crime" problem.

"We just put a fence around our house and if I have to, I'll build a brick wall and fortify it," said the woman who declined to be identified.

In May, five Newark City Councilmen vowed to go to jail rather than vote to authorize revaluation of the city's 49,000 taxable properties which now pay one of the highest tax rates in the country.

The most vocal opposition came from residents in Forest Hill who would be adversely affected by the revaluation since 67 per cent of the city's property is tax exempt.

"The tax rate makes the area almost prohibitive to live here already," says Wilson. "We can not attract people here so our revaluation can not be judged against the value of homes in the suburbs."

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne signed a six-month moratorium on revaluation but residents still fear the tax value of their property will be priced beyond their reach.

"No one is buying now and some people are thinking about selling," said City Councilman Anthony Carrino. With most residents already paying between $2,100 and $2,600 a year, he estimates revaluation could increase taxes anywhere from 80 to 250 per cent.

Publishes Research On Math Of Blood Flow

Research in applied mathematics on blood flow in humans and animals, considered a highly significant work, has been published by Dr. Lokenath Debnath, professor of Mathematics at East Carolina University.

The Debnath research is reported in an article, "On a Micocontinuum Model of Pulsatile Blood Flow," in the 1976 issue of ACTA MECHANICA a joint U.S. — German publication. In this paper, Dr. Debnath develops a mathematical model of complex blood flow phenomena in human or animal body and discusses the importance of the structure and function of the blood and blood vessels.

The work is significant because the structure and function of blood including its flow processes are widely used for the diagnosis of disease and gradual development of pathological patterns in human or animal physiology.

The Debnath analysis also provides further means of understanding various aspects of blood flow useful for diagnostic and clinical purposes.

In another diverse area of applied mathematics, Debnath's work on "Anisotropic Transient Wave Motions in a Conducting Fluid Under Uniform Magnetic and Current Fields" appeared in the 1976, No. 3 issue of APPLICABLE ANALYSIS which is published in the United States. This paper deals with the generation and propagation of destructive waves in oceans by thunderstorms. Its results may relate to the development of coastal regions, design and building of coastal and marine structures. Also it may be used for providing more effective protection from thunderstorms and winds.

Students Named To Committees

Five students in the East Carolina University Department of Library Science have been elected to departmental committees for the academic year 1976-77.

At a recent gathering of ECU library science students and faculty members, the following students were selected for departmental responsibilities:

Betsy Postel of Raeford and Darlene Benton of Greenville, members of the Undergraduate Committee; John Barker of Wilmington and Denese Lacks of Whiteville, Graduate Committee; and Dale Holmes of New Bern, Student Advisory Council representative to the dean of the ECU Graduate School.

Before a person can be elected to the U.S. Hall of Fame he must have been in government service for 25 years or more. Elections for entry to the Hall are held every five years.

Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. When is the best time to plant onion sets? (J.C., Goldsboro)

A. Mid-September to mid-October is the best time to plant onion sets in the open for green bunch onions in the fall and winter. Onion tops will withstand light frosts but not hard freezes. Some folks protect their onions by covering them with straw or putting the sets in a coldframe. (A. A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. What is a Hoya plant? (Mrs. P.N., Lattimore)

A. Perhaps you know Hoya by the name your grandmother gave it—Wax Plant, or Wax Vine. This twining evergreen vine, with green and cream variegated leaves, bears light pink blooms that appear in clusters. Leaves and flowers are thick, as if dipped in parrafin. Most Hoyas have a silvery sheen over the leaves. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Each year I plant peas in my sweet corn. Then after the corn is harvested the pea vines can run on the corn stalks. But this year the peas didn't run. Why? (J.H., Angier)

A. You probably planted one of the newer varieties such as Mississippi Silver, Princess Anne, Dixilee or Colossus. These varieties of southern peas have more bushy growth habit. They are more prolific and generally preferred by gardeners with limited space. However, you may want to stick with an older variety such as Red Ripper, Gray Crowder or Whippoorwill if you need a vining type. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. My muscadine grape vine has two crops of grapes—one ripe and the other green and about half grown. Why? Will the green ones ripen before frost? (P. B., Clayton)

A. More than likely part of the first crop was destroyed by a late spring frost. When this happens grape vines have "secondary" buds that grow and set a late crop. Generally they mature late and may not ripen if we have an early frost. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Thailand Massage School No 'Trap'

BANGKOK (UPI) — Bangkok's renowned massage parlors really are more than just the flesh pots described by satiated male tourists.

The present day tourist traps, which draw eager male visitors by the thousands each year, had their origin in Thailand's centuries-old medical massage treatments.

The Temple of the Reclining Buddha, Wat Po, Thailand's first medical school, recently began a school of massage incorporating the expertise of the many thousands who practice the ancient art on a professional basis.

Wat Po temple, built about 200 years ago when Bangkok became the capital, has inscribed on its walls hundreds of formulas and potions for every imaginable ailment, and also the proper methods of massage.

Wat Po administrators, recognizing the rich tradition of massage in Thailand, hired expert masseurs and masseuses to add their special knowledge to the difficult-to-translate inscriptions on the walls of the temple.

Prasop Hetrakul, 52, an instructor at the school, said the intracacies of massage are passed on from teacher to student through demonstrations and a detailed study of the human anatomy.

"We give lessons almost free of charge to people who really want to learn massage and make a living from it. The school of local medicine does the same. We charge each student about $25 per year, mostly for maintenance," Prasop said.

"We have all kinds of students, women and men of all ages and all levels of education. After they learn all the required techniques, we issue a certificate which allows them to practice massage," he said.

"We also have some farang (foreign) students," Prasop said, pointing to three Europeans. One of the men was on his back receiving a practice treatment from the other two.

"I had not heard about the Thai massage method before," said Robert Sue, 30, a doctor from Paris visiting Bangkok for the first time.

"I cannot tell whether the treatment is good or not because I just had it for the first time. There is more to learn about it."

Sue added that it appeared to him the treatment could be dangerous, too, "if the masseuse twists the wrong muscle or presses the wrong area of the body."

Instructor Prasop said students who have completed the course — usually about two years depending on how often they attend regular sessions — can expect to earn about $150 a month, a relatively high wage in Thailand.

Now Mechanical Harvester Tried For Blueberries

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer

ELLSWORTH, Maine (AP) — The mechanical age is dawning on the blueberry barrens of eastern Maine, where pickers bend and stoop to harvest the wild fruit the same way they did a century ago.

A mechanical harvester, used for 25 years on the cranberry bogs of Massachusetts, has been modified to pick low-bush blueberries. Thirty of the machines were tried out this past summer in Maine.

Agricultural engineers at the University of Maine, meanwhile, have designed a larger tractor-drawn machine which has gone through initial tests and could be ready for commercial use within a few years.

Industry officials say the time has come to begin replacing the rigorous and increasingly expensive hand labor that has always been used to pick the 20,000 acres of berries harvested each year in Maine.

The move toward mechanization has gained momentum from the recurrent problems in lining up sufficient hand pickers, as well as from grower annoyance at the number of government regulations affecting farm labor.

The cranberry harvesters, called "Darlington Pickers" for coinventor Tom Darlington, are manufactured in Wareham, Mass., and distributed in Maine by Del Merrill of Ellsworth. He sold 25 and is using five others in his family's blue berry growing and packing business. ~~ing and packing business.~~

"It's certainly going to revolutionize the blueberry industry," said Merrill, who expects to have orders for another 100 machines next year.

The self-propelled machines, resembling giant lawnmowers, require a minor modification to the rotating picking head before they can harvest blueberries instead of cranberries.

Merrill said the machine can harvest 40 to 50 bushels per day, or roughly twice the output of a top-flight hand raker.

Twenty-five years ago, when the Darlington picker was being tested on the bogs of Cape Cod, Merrill tried to adapt it for harvesting blueberries.

"We decided then that it wasn't feasible," he recalled. "But this year we thought it was time that the picker be brought in because of labor problems and the difference in the fields."

Scientific growing methods have become more widespread in recent years, he explained, resulting in well-groomed, weed-free fields suited to mechanical harvesting. The machine does not work well on hilly fields, and Merrill said these are likely to require hand labor.

Merrill said that at $1,500, the machines are inexpensive enough to be used by small and medium-sized growars, some of whom have been considering giving up blueberry production because of labor costs.

Much of the hand raking is done by local people, although Indians from Maine and the Canadian Maritimes have traditionally participated in the five-week-long harvest. With some growers paying $4 per bushel, a good picker can earn as much as $300 a week.

Turn-On By False Sun

NEW YORK (UPI) — Independent researchers have discovered that the quality of light has a great deal to do with the quality of living — including an animal's appetite for the basics of life.

Jozsef Laszlo of the Reptile Department of the Houston Zoological Gardens used this information and some full-spectrum Vita-Lite fluorescent lights, man's closest simulation of sunlight, to turn a fasting viper on — to food.

Donald Bruning, ornithologist affiliated with the New York Zoological Gardens, used these full-spectrum lights to induce Tufted Puffin birds to develop adult plumage and lay eggs, the first known to hatch in captivity.

And researchers at the University of the Pacific, Tufts University and the Veterans Administration Outpatient Clinic in Boston discovered that golden hamsters raised under fluorescent lights had five times fewer dental cavities when the lights were full spectrum.

City School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus in the Greenville elementary schools for the coming week have been announced as follow:

Tuesday—beef stew with vegetables, buttered corn, rolls, cherry cobbler, milk;

Wednesday—barbecue on bun, french fries, cole slaw, stewed apples, milk;

Thursday—country fried steak, whipped potatoes with gravy, green beans, apple sauce, rolls, milk;

FAVORITE FARE

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Grazing Ozark Mountain deer in Southern Missouri favor cinquefoil in April, white elm in May, red clover in June, winter grape in July, Korean lespedeza in August and winter grape again in September, according to state Department of Conservation researchers.

Police Decoy Nabs Males

POLICE DECOY — Seven years ago Cynthia Kane wouldn't have dressed as a prostitute, but today men offering to pay her for sex are shuttled off to jail. (UPI Photo)

By ED ROGERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has reported big increases in the number of men arrested on vice charges across the country but has no way of knowing whether the suspects are vice operators or prostitutes' clients, a spokesman says.

The reason is that police departments that contribute local statistics to the crime report are required to list both types of arrests in a single category called "prostitution and commercial vice," the spokesman said.

The FBI's Uniform Crime Report for the calendar year 1975 shows the number of females arrested in this category remained about the same for five years — 34,985 in 1975 compared to 34,998 in 1970.

But arrests of males in the prostitution and commercial vice category rose 51.7 per cent — from 7,995 in 1970 to 12,125 in 1975 the FBI report showed.

The FBI spokesman believes there is no way of knowing how many prostitutes' customers — called "johns" in street lingo — are among those arrested without checking police records, city by city.

However, the National Organization for Women believes there has been increasing use of decoys to arrest the johns and that the women's rights movement has had something to do with it.

"My impression from traveling around the country is that it is happening more and more all over the country — the west coast, east coast and midwest," said Melissa Thompson, NOW's legislative coordinator.

"Some of it is in response to feminist demands that the customer be arrested too."

Ms. Thompson said one court jurisdiction in California has thrown out cases against the prostitutes because the customers were not given the same arrest treatment.

"Cases (against prostitutes) were thrown out of a local municipal court because the police department had a history of arresting the prostitute but not the customer," she said. "I know that is being raised as a defense in many areas."

But Ms. Thompson said the customers' defense that he has been entrapped by the police decoy is not helping the men in many jurisdictions.

"My impression is that the arrests have been standing up in court."

"I'm waiting for the day they publish the names of the male customers as readily as they publish the names of arrested prostitutes in the newspaper."

"If the customers were treated equally with the prostitutes, prostitution would soon be decriminalized. The male customers are well established white businessmen. It would be interesting."

"My observation is that some of the public opponents of prostitution do themselves make use of prostitution."

Making Ice For Office

HAMBURG, Pa. (UPI) — An office building here is freezing 15,000 pounds of ice nightly to keep office workers cool during the day.

The project is part of a thermal storage project being conducted by General Public Utilities Corporation to demonstrate the use of electricity during off-peak nighttime hours for daytime air-conditioning.

The "ice builder" takes about 12 hours to freeze the 15,000 pounds of ice, explained William G. Kuhns, GPU chairman. During the day, water is circulated over the ice. The chilled water moves through the coils. Air is blown over the coils and circulated through the building to provide air-conditioning.

Moving the heavy "ice-making load" to night hours also cuts peak daytime loads, which in turn reduces the need to build expensive new generating plants to meet growing public demand for electricity, Kuhns says.

ANNUAL REPORT. . . . . .

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 110-member airlines of the International Air Transport Association carried a total of 316 million scheduled domestic and international passengers in 1975, according to the annual IATA World Airway Transport statistics report.

Unhappy Ending For Fairy Tale Lives

By MINDY YOCHELSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of American women are conditioned to lead fairy tale lives, say authors of a recently published self-help book for women.

These women are Cinderellas, Mother Hubbards, Little Red Riding Hoods, Sleeping Beauties, all destined to follow story book scripts with unhappy endings, according to Dorothy Jongerward and Dru Scott. Both are doctors of psychology and coauthors of "Women as Winners — Transactional Analysis for Personal Growth" (Addison-Wesley).

"Many women live out scripts which resemble the stories found in folklore, fairy tales and mythology," they said. "Literature depicts women as playing such parts as poor little match girls, babes in the woods, wicked witches, tyrannical step-mothers, would-be princesses and young innocents."

The authors defined some roles in the fairy tale syndrome as:

Cinderella, who learns to accept suffering while doing menial chores as she looks for a man who will rescue her from her awful drudgery;

Mother Hubbard, who learns to take care of everyone else's needs, but neglects her own and consequently seeks solace for herself from her cupboard or refrigerator;

Little Red Riding Hood, who learns to entice men and then rebuke them as she treads her way through forests, parks or lonely streets;

And Sleeping Beauty, who learns to think of herself only as a future mother and, by the age of 14 to 16, is asleep to the rest of life's possibilities.

The book provides specific techniques that the authors say will help women break out of their confining fairy tale lives and overcome futile existences.

A woman can become a winner by understanding ... why she got the compulsions she got," Mrs. Jongeward said in an interview.

The 52-year-old San Francisco marriage counselor and mother of two teen-agers also said:

"Pressures bore down on women to conform, to be who other people wanted them to be, to be who other people thought they should be. I was hoping this book would lessen the need for therapy of some women."

The authors said women are not alone in following psychological blueprints.

"Every person plays a role we learn early in childhood. Fairy tale roles have male versions, including Cinderfellas, Little Lame Princes, and Horatio Algers," Mrs. Jongeward said.

Coauthor Dru Scott is 34, single, and heads her own management consulting group in San Francisco. They have been working together since they met nine years ago. Their first book, "Affirmative Action for Women," was written for women in paid employment.

"Women as Winners" is for "working women, those who have chosen to be homemakers, and also for men who are interested in dealing more effectively with what is happening with women," Miss Scott said.

"Eric Berne, the founder of TA, identified the fact that many people live lives reflected in fairy tales. We've expanded that. There are themes and most people have a little bit of a mix in them," she said.

Each author has worked with thousands of women through training seminars, organizational settings, marriage and family counseling, she said.

"I think a big way men will be encouraged to think in new ways about women is by having a woman they care about go up to them and say, will you read the book, can we talk about these things. I think men will be thinking in new ways primarily on a one-to-one basis," Miss Scott said.

She advises women "... be really aware of your feelings. If you are angry, say — I am angry. Tell people what you want constructively."

Once a woman becomes herself, without responding in predetermined, rigid ways, she also becomes a winner," the authors conclude.

Haute Cuisine In Restaurant

TORONTO (UPI) — Diners in the newly opened revolving restaurant near the top of the 1,815-foot-tall CN Tower here may not realize it but their meals travel 1,200 feet to reach their tables.

According to the chef, while there is a small kitchen in the restaurant for preparing steaks and to-order dishes, the majority of the meals are prepared in the central kitchen located in the basement.

Field Goal Helps Bucs Nip Indians

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Maybe ordinary teams lose the close when they're not quite ready to play, but thanks to a late interception by Ernest Madison, East Carolina's Pirates managed to eke out a 20-19 win over William & Mary yesterday.

Neither team had breathing room all afternoon. and for much of it, Indian quarterback Tom Rozantz seemed to be able to pick apart the Pirate's highly regarded pass defense. That coupled with a good ground attack actually gave the Indians an advantage in the statistics.

But key field goals by Pete Conaty of 35 and 36 yards pulled the Bucs from behind twice, after William & Mary had twice overcome East Carolina leads.

Raymond Jones scored two touchdowns, both on one yard plunges, and Conaty added PATs after each.

Rozantz twice found end Ken Cloud open for scores, on passes of 13 and 14 yards. Kicker Steve Libassi kicked two field goals of 35 and 47 yards, but missed on one of his two PAT kicks and that was the difference in the game.

It was a gutty performance by both teams. While the Pirates did not quite appear to be ready for the contest, they were able to do what they wanted when it became necessary for victory.

The victory kept the Bucs unbeaten in three starts und extended their winning streak to nine in a row over the past two years. It was the first loss for William & Mary, now 2-1.

More important, it got the Bucs off to a 1-0 start against Southern Conference competition. The Indians are 1-1 in the league.

The Pirates got away to a quick lead, and it looked like they might make it a runaway. After stopping the Indians for no yards on the first series. Then, when Joe Agee bobbled the snap on the punt, his kick was partially blocked and the Bucs took over on the Indian 41.

Eddie Hicks and Willie Hawkins each got six yards after Jones opened with three. Hawkins carried twice more for 16 yards to the ten. Weaver kept to the five, and after Hicks added three, Jones kicked through the middle for a 7-0 lead with 9:03 left.

The Indians came right back and proved it wasn't going to be easy. They drove the ball right down the field, and only a dropped pass on fourth down at the five turned the ball over.

On the final play before the period ended, the Indians got it back at their own 48 after a punt. Jim Kruis started the drive with two lugs for eight yards. Clarence Gaines added nine, and a Rozantz' pass to Rob Muscalus rode it to the 13. From there, Rozantz hit Cloud for the score and Libassi's kick tied it at 7-7 with 12:15 left in the period.

The Bucs then got a big defensive play from Zack Valentine, who burst through to block an Agee punt at the 50, and the ball rolled all the way to the 11 before Fred Chavis recovered it for the Buds.

Jones got five through the middle and Hicks went around the left side for five, putting the ball on the one. Jones got it in from there, and Conaty's kick made it 14-7 with 4:40 to go.

The Indians quickly struck back, however. Starting from their own 38, Rozantz guided a quick drive. He hit three passes along the way for 28 yards, and the rest was picked up on short runs, putting it on the 14. Rozantz again hit Cloud as the ball went right through safety Jim Bolding's hands into the receiver's for the score.

But this time, Libassi's kick was wide of the mark, and the Bucs took a 14-13 lead into halftime.

On their first possession of the second half, William & Mary drove for the go-ahead field goal. They got the ball on a fumble at the Buc 34. Kruis picked up a first down at the 23, but the Indians could not get another first down, and Libassi kicked a 35-yarder for a 16-14 lead with 12:40 left in the period.

It was time to act, so the Bucs went to work. From their own 28, they drove behind the hard-running Jones, slowly working the ball downfield. But after reaching the nine, Weaver was thrown for a loss on third down, and Conaty's 35-yarder put the Bucs back up, 17-16 with 8:56 left in the quarter.

Early in the final period, the Indians got off their final drive. Working from their own 17, they drove, with a break keeping them going. After a Rozantz pass picked up a first down at the 44, he lofted the ball to Tom Butler. Reggie Pinkney, defending, almost picked it off, but it bounced off his hands, and into Butler's at the Pirate 31.

An offensive pass interference penalty hurt the Indians, however, two plays later, but they got Libassi's 47-yarder with 8:02 to go, giving them a 19-17 edge.

And for the second time, the Pirates rose up and pushed it down the field. From their own 32, Jones broke through for 15 yards. Weaver later scrambled for 10 and a first down at the Indian 41. Jones got nine and Hicks eight, but Weaver, trying to work the option was knocked out of bounds and left the game. Two more plays got it to the 19, where Conaty kicked his fateful field goal with 3:22 left.

Weaver suffered a cramp and was declared okay.

The Indians had to pass from there, and after moving from their 10 to the 45, Madison picked off the final pass and closed the door.

Gilbert Roars Into Kaiser Lead

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Gibby Gilbert dropped six putts in the 10-to 12-foot range on the way to a 65, barged past erratic Johnny Miller and took a one-stroke lead after Saturday's third round of the $175,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

"Now Johnny Miller has to catch me," Gilbert said after posting a 54-hole total of 205, 11 strokes under par on the 6,849-yard north course at the Silverado Country Club.

Miller, who owns a home on this course, has won this title the last two years and led or shared the lead through the first two rounds. But he blew to a another par 72 Saturday in the mild, sunny weather that graced the California wine country.

That's nine strokes higher than the course-record 63 which Miller shot in Thursday's first round and sent him reeling back to fourth at 207, two strokes off the pace going into Sunday's final round of this chase for a $35,000 first prize.

Veteran Miller Barber, a former winner of this event, and J.C. Snead moved into a tie for second at 206, just one shot back. Barber had a five-under-par 67 and Snead a 70.

Tar Heels Slip Past Army Cadets By Two, 34-32

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Mike Voight scored two of his four touchdowns less than two minutes apart following Army fumbles in the first period, and unbeaten North Carolina survived a record passing attack by Leamon Hall to edge the underdog Cadets 34-32 in college football Saturday.

Quarterback Bernie Menapace scored after Ronnie Dowdy returned an intercepted pass 33 yards to the Army one-yard line, and Voight added two more short scoring runs as the 16th-ranked Tar Heels boosted their record to 4-0 for the first time since 1971.

Army, a 17-point underdog, is 2-1 but gave North Carolina fits with its passing. After falling behind 14-0 after the first eight minutes, the Cadets surged to within 20-18 early in the third quarter as Hall threw touchdown strikes of seven and 10 yards to Jim Merriken, and Mike Castelli kicked field goals of 26 and 38 yards.

Hall, a 6-foot-5 junior, set Army records by hurling 55 passes and completing 28 for 385 yards. Tight end Clennie Brundidge, the nation's leading receiver, caught eight for 122 yards, including an eight-yard touchdown with 8:47 to go.

Alan Caldwell, North Carolina's strong safety, preserved the triumph by intercepting a third-down pass by Hall at the nine and bringing it out to the 42 with just over seven minutes left after Army's Ray Beverley recovered Voight's fumble at the Tar Heels' 23.

That was Army's fifth turnover, and North Carolina again took advantage. The Tar Heels used up almost five minutes on a 58-yard drive capped by Voight's fourth touchdown. Voight carried 32 times for 168 yards and scored all his touchdowns on three-yard runs.

After Brundidge returned the kickoff 15 yards to his own 42, Hall threw two incomplete passes and then lofted a bomb to Don Briggs at the Carolina 11. On the next play, he fired to Tom Kuchar for a touchdown.

Hall's fourth scoring pass tied the West Point record. Arnold Galiffa did it against Fordham and Columbia in 1949 and Joe Caldwell equaled the mark against Boston College in 1959.

After Hall's touchdown pass to Kuchar, Army attempted an onside kick and Phil Macklin recovered for the Cadets. However, the official ruled he touched the ball after it traveled only nine yards, one short of the required distance, and North Carolina retained possession for the final 1:41.

The Tar Heels had to cover only 29 and 16 yards for their first two scores following Army fumbles by Greg King and Hall, the latter on a wild pitchout. But just when Carolina appeared ready to blow Army out, Hall got hot after connecting on only one of his first five passes.

Despite their frantic comebacks, the Cadets never got closer than two points. Besides two lost fumbles and three interceptions, they wasted a second down on the North Carolina two with 46 seconds to go in the first half.

Army had no more time-outs after King plowed to within inches of the goal line. Tony Pyne lost a yard on a no-huddle rush and Hall's hurried fourth-down pass with the clock running was picked off by middle guard Roger Shonosky at the five as the half ended.

It was the third meeting between the two teams in a wild series. Army won 46-0 in 1944 and North Carolina took a 56-32 decision two years ago as Voight rushed for 172 yards and three touchdowns.

Shell Navy By 70-14

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Rick Leach ran for two touchdowns and passed for two others Saturday to lead No. 1 Michigan to a 70-14 rout of Navy in college football.

The point total was the largest by Michigan since the Wolverines overwhelmed Chicago 85-0 in 1939. The Wolverines seemed to have all they could handle in the first half, but it was a different story in the second half. Michigan scored four touchdowns in the third quarter for their third victory without a loss. Navy is 1-2.

The Midshipmen had taken a 14-12 lead late in the second quarter before the Wolverines scored 58 unanswered points. Leach hit wingback Jim Smith with a 31-yard TD pass 27 seconds before intermission, scored on runs of six and seven yards in the third quarter and hit tight end Gene Johnson with a five-yard scoring pass in the period.

Johnson's score was set up when Leach, who doesn't usually pass much, hit Smith with a 45-yard pass. Leach's seven-yard score was set up by his 44-yard toss to Smith.

Wake Forest Rolls Up 13-0 Win Over Kansas St.

MANHATTAN, KAN. (AP)— Wake Forest swept 32 yards to a late touchdown after recovering a fumble Saturday, clinching a 13-0 victory over Kansas State's punchless Wildcats.

The touchdown, coming with just over three minutes to play, settled a defensive duel in which the victorious Deacons had been able to convert only two second-quarter field goals.

The toothless Kansas State offense managed just one serious threat. The Wildcats, now 1-2, drove 59 yards in a race with the clock just before halftime. But Bill Sinovic missed a 41-yard attempt at a field goal.

Wake Forest, now 2-2, managed its first shutout in 10 years.

Michigan State Battles To 31-31 Tie With NCSU

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Ed Smith threw three touchdown passes as Michigan State battled from behind four times to tie North Carolina State 31-31 Saturday night in an intersectional college football game.

A crowd of 38,300 saw N.C. State halfback Ted Brown set the tempo of the explosive game with an 81-yard touchdown run on the second play. Brown scored again on a one-yard run in the third quarter to climax a 72-yard drive.

Smith fired touchdown passes of 63 and 37 yards to Curt Gibson. The first came in the third quarter and the second in the fourth period and enabled the Spartans to tie the score at 31 with 2:53 left to play. Smith's other touchdown pass was a three-yarder to Eugene Byrd midway through the final quarter.

N.C. State, beaten in its first three outings, went ahead 10-7 in the second quarter on Jay Sherrill's 39-yard field goal. However, the Spartans tied it 19 seconds before the half on Hans Nielsen's 46-yard field goal.

Michigan State went ahead early in the third period on the long pass from Smith to Gibson. N.C. State, however, came back with two touchdown drives to go ahead 24-17. The first came on Brown's run and the second on a four-yard run by Scott Wade.

Duke Smashes Cavs Behind Dunn, Benjamin

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Quarterback Mike Dunn and fullback Tony Benjamin provided the offensive fireworks as Duke scored on its first two possessions and went on to smother Virginia 21-6 in Atlantic Coast Conference football Saturday.

Dunn accounted for one Blue Devil touchdown as he ran for 118 yards on 14 carries and completed 7 of 11 passes for another 107 yards.

Benjamin also had a touchdown as he piled up 100 yards on 18 carries.

In getting its conference campaign off with a victory and posting its second victory in three outings this season, Duke piled up 416 total yards against only 182 for Virginia.

The Cavaliers, now 0-3 in 1976, extended their losing streak to 12 games. Virginia had to settle for field goals of 35 and 47 yards by Joe Jenkins.

Virginia has not scored a touchdown in its last nine quarters of play.

Tailback Mike Barney scored Duke's first touchdown on a one-yard plunge as Duke paraded 77 yards following the opening kickoff. Benjamin set up the score, bursting 31 yards to the Virginia 30 on a third down play.

Benjamin then got the second Duke touchdown, muscling in from the one shortly after Virginia failed to get off a fourth down punt and turned over the ball on its own 33.

The Blue Devils got their other touchdown late in the third period as Dunn went in from three yards out to cap a 79-yard march. He put Duke into scoring position with a 38-yard pass.

Fullback Billy Copeland, accounting for more than half the total Cavaliers' offense with 96 yards on 18 carries, gave Virginia its best chance for a touchdown when he raced 41 yards to the Blue Devil 29 midway the third period. But after pushing to a first down on the 14, the Cavaliers were frustrated by a holding penalty and had to settle for Jenkins' second field goal, a 47-yarder.

Jenkins' first field goal came with 12:03 left in the first half and followed Virginia's only show of offense during the first 30 minutes of play.

Richmond Smashes VMI As Spiders Take Win

By PAT BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Larry Shaw threw two touchdown passes and ran for another as Richmond's Spiders bombed Virginia Military Institute's Keydets 43-0 in Southern Conference football Saturday.

It was the 10th straight game in which the Spiders have defeated the Keydets. VMI's last victory over Richmond came in 1966.

With 53 seconds left before halftime, Shaw hit Ed Kreilis with a 10-yard scoring pass. The score came after safety Jeff Nixon intercepted a Clark pass on the VMI 40 and returned it 26 yards.

The Spiders went up 31-0 when Shaw went in from 14 yards with 7:12 left in the third period.

Jones second field goal of the day came following Marshall Shelton's recovery of Kim Glidewell's fumble on the Keydets 15.

Following the field goal, Jones kicked off into the end zone and Andre Gibson returned it to the 13. Quarterback Mark Lambert went back to pass and was tackled in the end zone by Dennis Lambert.

Shaw completed five of nine passes for 76 yards. The Spiders rushed for 224 yards with Kreilis getting 120 yards on 16 carries.

The punchless Keydets managed only 119 yards on the ground and 13 passing.

Gibson was VMI's leading rusher with 42 yards on 15 carries.

Terp Crush Winless Orange

SYRACUSE N.Y. (AP) — Tailback Steve Atkins ran for 215 yards and scored three touchdowns as No. 8 Maryland beat winless Syracuse 42-28 in college football Saturday.

Atkins clinched Maryland's third stright victory with three minutes left in the game when he broke off tackle for a 76-yard TD run. Earlier, he scored on runs of one and 11 yards.

Quarterback Mark Manges directed five Maryland scoring drives, completing five of nine passes for 85 yards, including a 29-yard touchdown pass to Vince Kinney. Manges also ran for 80 yards.

Syracuse Coach Frank Maloney used three quarterbacks to keep his Orangemen within a touchdown of Maryland until Atkins' final score.

Maryland also had touchdowns from Tim Wilson, who scored on a one-yard run and John Sanford, who ran back an intercepted pass 24 yards.

Maloney started freshman quarterback Ron Farneski, who completed three of 14 attempts, all to Mike Jones, for 43 yards and one TD.

Syracuse tailback Bob Avery scored on runs of two and 11 yards and Hurley scored once on a five-yard run.

Maryland gained 313 yards on the ground and had a total offensive output of 398. Syracuse was held to 165 on the ground and a total of 208 yards.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Southern California tailback Ricky Bell rushed for 177 yards and one touchdown Saturday, and quarterback Vince Evans passed for 168 yards and another score to lead the Trojans to a 31-13 college football victory over the Purdue.

American Beats Bucs In OT, 7-3

NORFOLK, VA. — American University's Chuck Banknell scored one goal in regulation and four goals in overtime to pace a 7-3 win over the East Carolina University soccer team yesterday.

Pete Angus scored the first goal of the game for the Pirates in the first half, but Bucknell and Jim Piedmont scored goals for AU to give them a 2-1 halftime lead. Assists on the AU goals were given by Scott Turner and John Pasela.

Louis Martin scored on an assist from John Pasela to up AU's lead to 3-1 in the second half before Jeff Karpovich and Phil Martin scored for ECU to tie the game 3-3 at the end of regulation play. Assists were given by Angus and Karpovich.

Two ten-minute overtimes were played to decide the contest and Banknell scored one goal in the first and three in the second. He was given two assists by Caldron, one by Turner and one by Larry Miller.

The loss to American University, who were ranked seventh in the South, dropped the Pirate record to 0-5. They play again on Tuesday when they travel to Durham for a match with Duke.

Hunter Scores Twice In Victory

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Rick Slager hurled three touchdown passes, including a 70-yard strike to Tom Domin Saturday, and Notre Dame rode to a 48-0 football victory over undermanned Northwestern.

Slager completed 12 of 14 passes for 231 yards to set a Notre Dame completion percentage record of 85.7 and Al Hunter ripped off touchdown runs of 16 and 37 yards.

The previous record of 13 of 16 passes for an 81.3 percentage was set by Bob Williams in 1949 against Michigan State.

Despite the rout, Notre Dame didn't get on the board until 11:39 remaining in the half when Hunter went 16 yards for a touchdown after Slager had hit Ken MacAfee with a 15-yard pass.

Slager connected on an eight-yard scoring pass to freshman Willard Browner to give the Irish a 14-0 halftime lead.

Seven plays into the second half, Slager threw deep to Domin, who gathered in the pass on the 25 and ran the rest of the way.

On Notre Dame's next possession, Hunter went 37 yards to make the score 28-0 before Slager hit MacAfee with a seven-yard touchdown pass to make it 35-0 after three quarters.

Defensive end Ross Browner recovered a Northwestern fumble on the Wildcats 43 early in the fourth quarter and seven plays later substitute quarterback Russ Lisch scored from the four.

Late in the final period, linebacker Leroy Leopold stole a pass and returned 57 yards for Notre Dame's final touchdown.

Jacksonville Blanks Rampants By 17-0

WHOA THERE!—Jacksonville's Nat Wigfall (6-4, 253) puts a halft on Rose High School's Mac Washington during Friday night action in Ficklen Stadium. Joining in the attack is an unidentified Cardinal tackle and Bennie Raindrop (23). Jacksonville came away with a 17-0 victory in the game. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Rose High School opened the game Friday night with a drive from their own 35, and it looked like the Rampants might be going to flex their muscles.

But a fumble at the Jacksonville five took all the wind out of their sails, and the Cardinals went on to win an uninspired 17-0 victory.

As a spectator game it was stricktly ho-hum. For the coaches, especially the Rampant staff, it must have been a nightmare.

Jacksonville's Tommy Peacock did most of the scoring for the Cardinals. He fell on a blocked punt in the end zone for a touchdown, kicked two extra points and a 28-yard field goal. The other score was by Willie Venters, who bulled in to the end zone from the two.

For Rose, it was a night of frustration. Following its opening drive, Rose was unable to do anything—even get a first down—until the final period. That came near the midpoint of the quarter.

And not until the closing four minutes did they get into Jacksonville territory again, moving from their own 17 to the Card 22 before fumbling it away again.

One last time, in the last 36 seconds, Rose had field position, getting the ball on the Cardinal 44 following a short punt, but the Rampants couldn't push it in.

Jacksonville had several other scoring opportunities, one killed by a stout defensive effort at the one yard line, and one touchdown was called back by a penalty.

Rose opened strong, driving from its own 35 toward what looked like a sure score. Four plays netted 24 yards and two first downs, and put the ball on the Card 41. A fumble there almost caught the ball, and cost Rose 10 yards, but a personal foul on the tackle pushed it to the 36.

On third and 14 from the 34, quarterback Jeff Aldridge hit Cliff Randolph for a first down at the 15. Jacksonville was again penalized on the first down play, putting the ball on the seven. But after picking up a first down on the five, Rose fumbled and Donald Hancock recovered on the six for the Cards.

Until late in the game, Rose's offense went on vacation then.

Late in the period, Rose was forced to punt, and Russell Henderson pulled it in on the Card 41 and raced 59 yards to an apparent touchdown, only to have it nullified by a clip at the 48.

Still, from the 33 after the penalty, Jacksovnille drove down to the 19 before fumbling it to Ronnie Chapman of Rose at the eight.

Rose was then forced to kick from there, but Johnny Hagen ran it back erasing the kick entirely, putting the ball on the eight once more. But once more Jacksonville coughed it up, with Rocky Butler recovering the fumble on the four.

Rose was unable to move it, and when Aldridge had to kick from the 12, a host of Cards burst through and blocked the kick, which rolled into the end zone, where Peacock came up with it.

His PAT kick put the Cards up, 7-0, with 2:58 left in the half.

Early in the second half, Jacksonville took over after a punt on the 50. Walter James hit Thomas Maxwell for 19 yards to the 31, and after three plays put it on the 21, Venters broke away for 13 to the eight. The Rampant defenders, however, put it together, and in three plays grudgingly game up six yards. On fourth down, the Cards sent Bennie Raindrop into the middle of the line, but he was stacked up at the one and Rose took over.

But again, the punting game cost Rose. Aldridge's punt bounced off the back of his blocker and Jacksonville got it at the nine.

A penalty put the Cards back on the 14, but James hit Maxwell again at the two, and Venters pushed in from there with 1:10 left in the third period. Peacock's kick upped the lead to 14-0.

After holding Rose, Jacksonville got the ball on its own 47 and drove down to the Rose 11 before electing to go for a field goal on a fourth and four situation. Peacock's kick from 28 yards out was good and with 8:40 left in the game, the Cards held a 17-0 lead.

The Cards later drove once more, to the Rose 30, following an interception and a return to the Rampant 45. The Rampants forced a punt, however, and got off a drive from their own 17 to the Card 22 before fumbling it away—and with it their final chance for a score.

Mets Take 5-2 Win Over Cubs

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Baldwin and Felix Millan each stroked three hits and drove in a total of three runs Saturday, leading the New York Mets to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Baldwin, who won Friday night's game with a ninth inning pinch homer, smashed a triple, double and single Saturday.

Millan singled off loser Steve Renko, 7-12, in the first inning and went to third when Dave Kingman also singled. Baldwin drove in both runners with a triple and then scored on Jerry Grote's triple.

Millan's third single of the game knocked in another Mets run in the seventh when Bruce Sutter was the victim of two unearned runs.

Craig Swan held the Cubs to five hits before being relieved by Skip Lockwood after walking leadoff batter Rick Monday in the eighth.

East Carolina rushed for 216 yards, and added 62 through the air for a total of 278 yards. The Indians had 154 rushing and 178 passing for 333 yards.

Penalties also played a key role, as the Bucs were socked with 114 yards and the Indians with just 36.

Defensive end Cary Godette sat out the game with a leg injury, although Coach Pat Dye said he could have played.

"We didn't have a pass rush, anyway," he added. "Zack Valentine was the only one on the defensive line who showed any emotion. He made some good plays."

"(Jim) Root did a great job getting William & Mary ready. They played hard and they didn't get what they deserved. They were the best team today.

"I was proud of our comeback. It would have been easy to loss. We weren't ready, and it was the coaches' fault. We were unemotional, listless and unenthusiastic.

Yanks Sew Up At Least A Tie For First In East

By The Associated Press

The New York Yankees, without a pennant since 1964, clinched at least a tie for the American League East Saturday, while the Philadelphia Phillies, trying for their first title since 1950, assured themselves of at least a tie for the National League East crown.

The Yankees stretched their AL East lead to 7½ games over Baltimore by outslugging the Detroit Tigers 10-6 with a six-run first-inning and homers by Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss.

One more Baltimore loss—the Orioles played Boston Saturday night—or one more New York victory would give the Yankees the championship.

Philadelphia had to wait at least until Sunday to clinch its third pennant in history. The Phils beat Montreal 6-5 while second-place Pittsburgh lost to the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0, giving Philadelphia a seven-game lead over the Pirates.

In other NL afternoon games, the New York Mets downed the Chicago Cubs 5-2, Cincinnati edged Los Angeles 4-3 and San Francisco walloped Houston 10-0 with the help of Gary Matthews' three home runs.

In the AL, Minnesota blanked California 6-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Dave Goltz, overshadowing a record performance by Nolan Ryan, who reached the 300-strikeout mark for the fourth time in his career.

In the Yanks' big first-inning, Fred Stanley and Willie Randolph each singled in two runs. Chuck Scrivener hit a three-run homer for Detroit in the sixth.

Jerry Martin's two-run single in the fifth broke a 4-4 tie and lifted the Phillies past Montreal. Martin's hit followed a double by pitcher Wayne Twitchell and a single by Dave Cash. Cash also singled in the first inning and scored on Mike Schmidt's 37th homer of the season.

St. Louis' Lynn McGlothen put Pittsburgh on the brink of elimination, shackling the Pirates on four hits, three by Richie Zisk. McGlothen also singled in the third inning and scored the Cards' first run.

Billy Baldwin and Felix Millan each collected three hits and drove in a total of three runs, helping the Mets to victory. Baldwin tripled in two runs in the first inning then scored on Jerry Grote's triple.

Cincinnati broke Los Angeles' five-game winning streak, beating the Dodgers on run-scoring singles by Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan in the eighth inning. Tony Perez homered in the seventh for the first two Cincinnati runs. Dave Lopes and Reggie Smith homered for the Dodgers in the first.

Matthews' three homers against Houston produced five San Francisco runs, and Jim Barr blanked Houston on six hits for his 15th victory. The homers gave Matthews a career high of 19 and made him the first Giants player to hit three homers in a game in 10 years.

Goltz allowed the Angels only a first-inning infield single by Dave Collins and a ninth-inning single by Mario Guerrero. Ryan, who surpassed the 300-strikeout mark in 1972, 1973 and 1974, increased his total to 302 by striking out 11 Twins batters.

In other AL night games, it was Milwaukee at Cleveland, Kansas City at Texas and Oakland at Chicago. In the only NL night game, San Diego was at Atlanta.

Missouri Defeats No.2 Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Substitute quarterback Pete Woods, a junior making his first college football start, ran across the deciding two points with 10 seconds to play Saturday, providing Missouri with a 22-21 upset of second-ranked Ohio State.

Woods starting in place of injured Steve Pisarkiequicz, failed on his first try for the two points when he overthrew a pass. However, Ohio State was called for devensive holding and Woods made good on his second try.

The Tigers, bouncing back from a 31-6 loss to Illinois last week, ended the Buckeyes' 25-game home winning streak and handed Ohio State its first loss in three starts this college football season.

Tailback Curt Brown ran the final two yards to move the Big Eight team within one point, The Tigers drove 80 yards in the last five minutes for the crucial third touchdown.

Missouri's dramatic rally overshadowed a three-touchdown performance by Pete Johnson, Ohio State's 239-pound fullback. Johnson's touchdowns all came from two yards.

Woods, a 6-foot-4, 210-pounder, had been involved in just 10 plays in Missouri's 1-1 start before the upset of the early 1976 season.

Woods passed 31 yards to Joe Stewart to pull Missouri even 7-7 early in the second quarter. He led the Tigers on a 47-yard drive early in the third period, a march that was climaxed by Brown's four-yard scoring run The drive was set up when linebacker Chris Garlich intercepted a Rod Gerald pass.

Woods either passed or ran eight of Missouri's 15 plays in its third touchdown drive as Ohio Stadium's third largest crowd of 87,936 sat stunned.

Brown, a 200-pound senior, set up the closing score with a 31-yard run to the Ohio State nine-yard line. Two plays later Woods found Lewis in the left corner of the end zone. He led his split end perfectly, lofting the ball over the outstretched arms of Ohio State cornerback Joe Allegro. Lewis juggled the ball as he left the end zone, but an official signaled it was a touchdown.

On the first try for the decisive two extra points, Woods was pressured by Buckeye defensive end Bob Brudzinski and overthrew Brown.

Football Scoreboard

Alabama 42, Vanderbilt 14

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Quarterback Jack O'Rear got his Alabama teammates off to a roaring start then sat out the rest of the game as the Crimson Tide swamped Vanderbilt 42-14 Saturday in a Southeastern Conference football game.

Auburn 38, Tennessee 28

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Phil Gargis equally effective passing and running, directed a suddenly explosive Auburn team to a 38-28 Southeastern Conference football decision over Tennessee to give Coach Doug Barfield his first victory.

Gargis ran for one touchdown and threw for three as Auburn needed all the points it could get to offset the work of the Volunteer quarterback, Randy Wallace.

Nebraska 64, TCU 10

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Quarterback Vince Ferragamo tossed four touchdown passes, matching a school record, and led No. 6 Nebraska to a 64-10 football victory over Texas Christian University in a steady rain Saturday.

Iowa Upsets Penn State

Baylor Upsets Illinois, 34-10

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Baylor tailback Cleveland Franklin staged a frenzied one-man football exhibition Saturday, scoring all four Bear touchdowns and humiliating No. 14 Illinois, 34-19, in a regionally-televised, non-conference game.

It was a bizarre turn of events for the Illini, who on the previous Saturday upset Missouri, ranked sixth at the time, 31-6.

Oklahoma 24, Fla. St. 9

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Halfback Horace Ivory blazed for two long-range touchdowns and safety Zack Henderson came up with a couple of crucial defensive plays Saturday as fourth-ranked Oklahoma huffed and puffed to a 24-9 college football victory over inspired Florida State.

Ladies Split

The Lady Bucs were defeated by the Washington Club team in the first match, 2-1. Kathy Zwigard scored ECU's goal in the game while Judy Young and Sharron Connner scored for Washington. Washington had 11 shots on goal to nine for the Lady Bucs.

East Carolina came back in the second game to down Catawba, 3-0. Kathy Zwigard scored twice for the Bucs and Linda Christinan scored once. ECU led in shots on goal, 13-2.

Conley Battles Past North Lenoir, 12-8

North Lenoir opened the scoring in the second quarter on Bud Redman's 27-pass reception from Ronnie Chapman. Michael Gardner ran over for a two-point conversion following the touchdown.

The Vikings came back with a touchdown late in the second quarter to pull the score to 8-6 when Tim McClanahan hauled in a 41-yard pass from Jeff McDaniel. McDaniel was sacked on the extra-point pass attempt.

Conley scored again on the last play from scrimmage of the third quarter when McDaniel went over his right guard from the one. McDaniel was thrown for a loss on the extra-point attempt.

Neither team was able to move the ball with much authority as turnovers plagued both teams. The Vikings lost three fumbles and had one pass intercepted while the North Lenoir Hawks lost four fumbles and had three passes picked off.

The teams exchanged punts until late in the first quarter when the Vikings recovered a Hawk fumble at the Conley 47. From there they drove to the Lenoir eight with Nuggie Worthington doing most of the work, including a 22-yarder up the middle.

A McDaniel pitch was bobbled by Bernard Hawkins on third and four from the eight however, and Hawkins was thrown for a loss at the 20. From there, North Lenoir took over on downs.

North Lenoir's scoring drive began when the Hawks recovered a fumble at their own 44. Two Conley penalties moved the ball to the 26.

The Vikings lost the ball on a fumble on the first play following the kick but were able to hold the Hawks on downs and take over at their own 36 with about four minutes left in the first half.

Runs by McDaniel, Worthington and Phillips moved the ball to the Lenoir 41 where McDaniel connected with McClanahan for a touchdown with 1:11 left in the half.

Fumbles hurt both teams in the third quarter and neither team was able to hold on to the ball long enough to sustain a drive until Viking Gary Congleton recovered a Hawk fumble at the Conley 40 and ran it to the 43.

Runs by Worthington and two personal foul penalties helped the Vikings move the ball in for their second touchdown. McDaniel went over from the one on a fourth and inches play with 20 seconds left in the third quarter.

North Lenoir moved the ball to the Conley 40 following the kick-off but the Vikings held on downs.

North Lenoir forced the Vikings to kick again with 57 seconds left in the game and moved from their own 29 to Conley's 47, mainly via a 19-yard pass to Redman from Chapman.

Phillips intercepted at the Conley 35 on the next play to seal the victory for the Vikings.

The game upped Conley's record to 3-1 for the year and 1-0 in the conference. They face the possible loss for the year of Lorenzo Carmon, however, who was injured in the game with what is thought to be a shoulder separation. North Lenoir fell to 0-4 overall and 0-1 in the conference.

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Manager Billy Martin said "it was no chewing out session," but apparently it had some impression on the New York Yankees.

After losing the first game of a doubleheader 3-0 to the Detroit Tigers Friday night, Martin called a summit meeting. The Yankees came out and took the second game 8-0, scoring more than twice as many runs as they had in the previous four games, and broke a six-game losing streak.

Martin would not be specific about what he told the players, but Grant Jackson, who pitched his first complete game since 1970 in only his second start in six years, said Martin told the team "to stop fooling around and go out and win, that's all."

Jackson allowed only five hits in the shutout.

The victory snapped the longest Yankee losing streak of the season and kept New York seven games ahead of Baltimore in the American League East. The Yankees' magic number to clinch the division now is two games.

In their losing streak, the Yankees had been shut out twice and had scored only three runs in their last four games.

Orioles 3, Red Sox 0

Wayne Garland, 19-7, allowed seven hits in blanking Boston for his 13th complete game.

Royals 2, Rangers 1

Hal McRae slashed a two-out single in the top of 14th to give Kansas City its extra-inning victory. McRae's sacrifice fly in the sixth had tied the game.

The win, coupled with Oakland's loss to Chicago, lifted the Royals six games ahead of the A's in the AL West. Kansas City's magic number to clinch the division now is three.

White Sox 4, A's 2

Francisco Barrios, 5-8, tossed a six-hitter and Jorge Orta's bases-loaded single in the eighth inning scored two runners to boost Chicago past Oakland.

Indians 2, Brewers 0

Cleveland right-hander Dennis Eckersley, 12-12, struck out 10 and gave up seven hits, and Tommy Smith singled and scored twice as the Indians blanked Milwaukee.

Farmville Central Slams Greene Central, 34-0

SNOW HILL — Farmville Central opened its quest for an Eastern Carolina Conference football title with a 34-0 whipping of Greene Central last night.

Carroll Griffin sparked the Jaguars with three touchdown passes, with another added on a short run by the quarterback. Ted Dunn booted through four extra points and two field goals to round out the scoring.

Neither team seemed able to get the ball into the end zone during the first half, Greene Central lost out on one drive turning the ball over on downs, and the Rams also foiled a couple of Jaguar attacks.

But after a punt late in the half, the Jaguars started it going. Griffin moved them with passes of 27 and 17 yards. Then, after a six-yard run, Griffin hit Keno Farrow from the 20 for the touchdown with 37 seconds left in the half. Dunn's kick gave the Jaguars a 7-0 lead at intermission.

Two plays after the second half kickoff, Greene Central fumbled the ball away. On the first play from the five, Griffin hit Dunn for the score, and raised the lead to 14-0.

Later in the period, following a 25-yard punt return, Griffin struck again. Just four plays into the series, Griffin again connected with Farrow, this time for 14 yards, and the Jaguars had another seven points. That made it 21-0 with 8:23 left in the quarter.

David Winborn's second interception of the night set up the final touchdown, a two yard run by Griffin.

In the final period, Dunn kicked his two field goals, of 24 and 33 yards.

Farmville is now 2-2 overall and 1-0 in league play. Greene Central is 0-4 and 0-1. The Jaguars entertain Southern Nash, while Greene Central hosts Conley on Friday.

West Edgecombe Picks Up Fourth With 12-6 Win

ROCKY MOUNT — West Edgecombe got two touchdowns from Alan Gay in the second quarter and the WE defense held Roanoke to only six points and picked its fourth straight win, 12-6, Friday night.

West Edgecombe rolled up 165 yards rushing and 45 passing while holding the defending 2-A state champs to just 177 yards in total offense.

Gay broke the ice in the second quarter with a 13 yard run. A few minutes later he made it 12-0 with a two-yard plunge.

Roanoke's only score came in the fourth quarter when Charlie Smith scored on a four-yard run.

Recovered Fumble Helps Williamston Get Win

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Ronnie Horton recovered a Roanoke Rapids fumble at the Williamston four yard line and returned it 96 yards for a TD giving Williamston its fifth straight win, 22-14.

The game was tied at the time with Roanoke Rapids threatening at the Tiger two-inch line. Roanoke Rapids came to the line and on the snap the ball popped up. Horton came down out of the air with it and down the field giving Williamston the game winning points. Tim Hardison passed to Barry Wallace for the Conversion.

Williamston had opened the scoring in the second quarter on a 63 yard pass from Hardison to Wallace and Wallace took a pass from Jerry Howell for the PAT.

Earlier in the first period, Roanoke Rapids had driven to the Williamston 22 on its first possession but the march was stopped on an interception by Mike Koesy.

Williamston made it 14-0 with 11 seconds left in the half as Koesy ran in from the two.

But in the second half, Roanoke Rapids began to come back. David Butts capped a five play 55-yard drive going 37 yards for the first RR score. He had intercepted a Tiger pass to turn the tide.

Williamston's winning score came with 4:34 left to play.

Williamston was held in check the whole game as the Tigers got only 92 yards rushing. RR rolled up 181.

Aycock Blanks Panthers, 14-0

PIKEVILLE — C.B. Aycock came up on the short end of the rushing, first downs and passing yardage sticks Friday night but came out on the long end of the scoring stick.

North Pitt bettered the Falcons in just about every statistic except touchdowns. Aycock pushed in two in the second period and held Panthers scoreless for a 14-0 win.

The win was the first in Eastern Carolina Conference play for the Falcons and the first loop loss for the Panthers.

After a scoreless first period, Rex Pennington hurled a 30 scoring pass to Jackie Dunn and Pennington passed to Dunn for the conversion and an eight point lead.

Later in the same period, Shelton Robins returned a North Pitt punt 70 yards for the second TD.

Win Soccer Match

NORFOLK, Va. — Old Dominion, the host team, kicked East Carolina's soccer team, 4-0, in the opening game of the Harbor Front Kiwanis Classic Tournament Friday night.

The game was scoreless for the first 20 minutes before Chris Achilleos scored on a goal, assisted by Mike Valantassis. That was followed by another goal by Mike Edmonds, assisted by Sean Fahey.

The Bucs were to meet American, a 6-5 overtime loser to Princeton in the other tournament game, Saturday night.

Tennis Finals Set Today

The two top-seeded teams in the Greenville Tennis Club's annual men's doubles tournament advanced to the finals today while the third-seeded team was eliminated in second-round action.

Teh top-seeded team of Jim Bailey and Jim Gaskins defeated Mat Matthews and Norm Rosenfeld 6-3, 6-1 in the second round. Second-seeded Doug Getsinger and Wes Hankins defeated John Hill and Tim Toates 6-0, 6-2 in the second round to advance to the finals.

The third-seeded team of Bryant Kittrell and Jim Ward won their first round match but were defeated by Gil Hengsen and Ed Spiegel in the second round 6-3, 7-5.

Also advancing to the finals was the team of Tom Sayetta and Madhu Balachandran. They defeated Gray Dempsey and Mike Murad in the second round 6-4, 6-3.

The final round of the tournament will get underway at 1:30 this afternoon at the Elm Street Courts.

Chargers Roll Behind West

SPRING HOPE — William West scored three times on runs of eight, 15 and six yards and Ayden-Grifton added four other TD's en route to its first win, a 44-6 rout of Southern Nash, Friday night.

West got the Chargers on the boards in the first period on his eight yard run and David Prattt added the PAT. West made the lead 13-0 later in the period dashing 15 yards and the kick failed.

Markham Wheatley raced 29 yards for a second quarter score and Al Butts took a 24 yard pass from Pratt to all but ice the game.

West ran in his third TD in the third period.

Terry Morris ran two yards in the fourth period and added an 11 yard run later in the period to close out the scoring.

Ayden-Grifton rolled up 268 yards rushing while holding the Firebirds' wishbone to 100. The Firebirds picked up 138 passing; however; to just 58 for A-G.

Miller Complains, But Still Tied

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — "I dogged it," Johnny Miller said. "If I'd been playing Johnny Miller, I'd have lost by four strokes.

"I threw away so many shots I feel like I missed the cut."

But he didn't. He had a scrambly, erratic round of par 72 that left him still in a tie for the lead with unawed Forrest Fezler after two rounds of the $175,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament, an event Miller has won for the last two years.

They shared the top spot going into today's third round with 135 totals, nine under par after one round each on the north and south courses at the Siverado Country Club, where Miller makes his home.

Fezler had a solid, four-under-par 68 in Friday's second round.

Miller, winner of two American events and the British Open earlier in the season, appeared poised to make a runaway of this event after his opening 63 which set a set a course record on the 6,849-yard north course, which will be the site of the final two rounds. But he suffered various lapses Friday, including a bogey six on the relatively easy, 498-yard 13th hole on the south course.

His second shot hit the green and bounced over, into a bunker. His explosion shot from the sand went across the green and it took him three more to get down.

That opened it up to a host of challengers. Among them are 46-year-old Don January, J.C. Snead and long-hitting Jim Dent, tied at 136, just one shot out. Dent had a 69, Snead 70 and January 71 in the beautiful, early-autumn weather that graced the picturesque, rolling hills of the California wine country.

Tom Watson, with a 70, and Lyn Lott, with a 67, were at 137, just two back. Lee Trevino's 67 matched the best score of the day and put him in contention at 139. Nicklaus and Ben Crenshaw, the season's leading money-winner, are not competing.

Miller's erratic effort included two birdies an eagle three—a four iron second shot out of the rough to 20 feet—and four bogeys. The key was the fat six that hurt as much as the eagle helped.

ECU Takes Match, 7-2

East Carolina University's women's tennis team evened its record at 1-1 for the season with a 7-2 victory over Atlantic Christian College Friday afternoon.

The Pirates dropped the number one singles and the number two doubles as they sewed up the victory in the individual matches.

The Bucettes return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Raleigh to take on N.C. State.

Summary:

Cathy Portwood (EC) defeated Phyllis Parish, 6-1, 6-3.

Jones Wins 22nd As He Beats Braves By Two

ATLANTA (AP) — Randy Jones' luck turned a bit Friday night, and the 22nd mark in his win column may have moved him closer to the Cy Young award.

"I'd been pitching so well in the second half of the season, and still losing, that it seems funny to give up a few runs tonight and still win," Jones said after beating the Atlanta Braves 6-4 to run his league-leading record to 22-14.

"I definitely think I deserve the Cy Young award," which goes to the league's best pitcher, the left-handed hurler said. "I've never been more consistent over six months. It's the best year I've ever had.

"Of course there's always doubt" about wheather he'll win the award, "but I'm not worried about it. I've done my job and won 22 games and they can't take that away from me."

Jones allowed eight hits and four runs in seven innings Friday night.

"I made two bad pitches to (Willie) Montanez that cost me three runs, which is something I usually don't do over the course of a year," he said.

"It seems like when the hits come, they come in bunches," said Montanez, whose trio includes a two-run homer, his 10th.

"A 200-hit season is the only thing I've been missing in this league," said Montanez, who now has 198 hits. "I think I've got a good shot at it."

The Padres opened the scoring in the second when Doug Rader scored on a wild pitch by Braves starter Jamie Easterly.

Montanez' homer came in the fifth.

Marshall To Play In 225th Game

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Jim Marshall's mind and body will have their weekly pre-game conference Sunday and then the Minnesota Vikings veteran defensive end will go out and break the National Football League iron-man record.

In a sport where injuries are commonplace, Marshall will play in his 225th consecutive game when the Vikings meet the Detroit Lions. And that will break the consecutive game record he currently shares with retired placekicker George Blanda.

Marshall has started every game Minnesota has played since the Vikings were added to the NFL in 1961. Marshall, who will be 39 in December, started his career a year before the Vikings arrived, playing 12 games for Cleveland in 1960 before going to Minnesota.

After his rookie season with Cleveland, he contracted encephalitis at an Army reserve camp and he thought his football career might be over, then and there.

In 1964, he was involved in a fatal automobile accident but walked away from it with only minor scrapes. Another time, he suffered a minor, self-inflicted gunshot wound while cleaning a weapon.

And then there was his adventure in the mountains.

He was on a cross-country trail trip on snowmobiles when a raging, blinding blizzard struck, killing one member of the party and stranding the others for more than 24 hours. Marshall and a friend kept warm by burning money, among other things.

Six of the NFL teams matched this weekend wouldn't know about adversity. At least not this season. They're all unbeaten.

St. Louis and San Diego are both coming off shutout victories, The Cardinals blanked Green Bay 29-0 with five field goals from Jim Bakken last Sunday and San Diego defeated Tampa Bay 23-0.

Baltimore kept its perfect record intact with a one-point victory over Cincinnati as Bert Jones hurled three touchdown passes to Roger Carr. Dallas had an easier time, whipping New Orleans 24-6.

Houston hasn't surrendered a touchdown yet in two victories and Oakland, with 55 points in two games, will test that Oiler defense.

The other NFL unbeatens are Chicago and Washington, with two victories each, and Los Angeles and Minnesota, who played to a 10-10 tie last week following opening game victories.

Missed Field Goal Ends Catawba Hopes

PROPST CROSSROADS, N.C. (AP) — The hopes of this Catawba County community fell short Friday night as a last minute, 22-yard field goal attempt went wide, sealing the 50th consecutive football loss for Fred T. Foard High School.

The Tigers came as close to victory as they have this season, losing 8-6 to another county team, St. Stephens.

"We don't have a bad football team," said Coach Troy Leatherman. "It's just the kids' attitude after losing so many games. They begin to wonder whether they ever can win."

Although records have not been kept, officials of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association say they can't recall a longer string of losses than Foard's. "It must be a national record," says Mrs. Vida Huffman, a Foard fan who operates a grocery store near the school. "And I just can't understand it."

The Tigers came close to breaking the string against St. Stephens, scoring in the first quarter on a two-yard run by Randy Frye. A kick by Frye for the extra point failed, and St. Stephens later scored a touchdown and a two-point conversion run.

Foard had a last chance, however, finding itself with a first down at the St. Stephens 21 in the final minutes. Three plays moved the ball to 4th and 1 at the 12 with 34 seconds left, and Frye's field goal attempt failed.

Foard's football problems cannot explained by the school's size. The school has 825 students and is the second largest in the county behind St. Stephens. A local sports editor blames the losses on the lack of junior varsity team and feeder programs for developing football skills in younger players.

Leatherman said the jayvee team was scrapped because only 39 players turned out for this year's squad. Eight of the players are seniors with no previous football experience, and the team starts three freshmen on defense.

"They try to convince us that they believe they can win, but after the other team scores, you can almost see them let down a little and say, 'Well, here we go again,'" Leatherman said. "We can go out Monday through Thursday and they'll beat each other's brains out. But something happens on Friday nights."

Losing has its affects on players off the field though, says senior Buster Carpenter, a three-year starter at guard. "A lot of them think it's a big joke, but they don't realize that we work just as hard as the teams that win."

Earl Harrist hurled two no-hitters for Syracuse in the International League in 1946.

Waltrip Races To Win Despite Where Purse Is

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, it's said, would still race to win if all the money was on second place.

"Yeah," Waltrip conceded after some thought. "I guess that's right."

David Pearson, on the other hand, is not so sure.

"The only time this season that David ran the kind of race I know he can was at Charlotte," said the 29-year-old Waltrip, who is on the verge of joining Pearson as one of stock car racing's superstars. "He won the pole, led every lap he could and won the race."

Pearson, listening, replied: "That's because they paid money to win the pole, money to lead the race besides to win."

Waltrip, who probably doesn't know how to lay back, didn't know what to make of it.

"I'll say one thing. David's always around when they pay the money," Waltrip said.

Pearson has made plenty of money this season, over $220,000, and has won nine races by knowing when to lay back and be conservative and when the stand on the gas.

Waltrip, on the other hand, has won only once, and that happens to have been at Martinsville Speedway earlier this year.

Waltrip starts on the pole position in Sunday's $100,000 Old Dominion 500 Grand National race at the .525-mile oval and he predicts his style is the right one for another victory.

"You can go flat out all the way," he said after breaking the track record with a speed of 86.484 miles per hour. "Starting on the pole is important because of the $5,000 bonus that goes to the driver who leads the most laps.

"By starting up front you get a real jump on that. If you start at the back you have to fight your way up and you abuse your car as well as having to worry about wrecks."

Pearson realizes money is on the line and that starting fifth, as he is, he can't afford to lay back too far behind the leaders.

"Everybody is going to have to drive his own race and we'll see what happens," Pearson said.

Greenville Golf News

They include Eleanor Ruffin, 44; Dan White Jr., 36; and Honey Ball, 55.

A number of clinics have been held recently, and some chipping and putting contests were held following them.

In a beginning ladies clinic, Letha Raper took first place in a putting contest. Margaret Capwell took second, followed by a tie between Joyce House and Barbara Barnes. Barbara Barnes won first in chipping, along with Margaret Capwell.

In a boys ages 10-15 putting contest, the team of Jack Mann and David White took first, followed by Hunter Bost and Andy Holloman.

In a 6-9 chipping contest, Leslie House won first, Anne Lynne Davis was second among the girls, while Michael Gavigan was first and Rob Barnes second in the boys' division. Scott Davis was first and Rob Barnes second in boys' putting, Susan Taylor was first, Martha Taylor second and Anne Lynne Davis third.

Sarah Barnes was first, while Suzanne Brewer and Drock Vincent tied for second in 3-5 putting.

A Captain's Choice Mixed Tournament will be held at the club on November 7. A 2 p.m. start is planned with a pig-picking to follow. Signups are now underway in the clubhouse.

Georgia 20 S. Carolina 12

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Split end Steve Davis set up the go-ahead touchdown with a brilliant catch of a 50-yard pass Saturday as seventh-ranked Georgia trimmed South Carolina 20-12 in a battle of undefeated college football teams.

Davis reached high in the air while streaking down the right sideline to pull in the long pass from Matt Robinson at the South Carolina nine, and three plays later Robinson fired a six-yard touchdown pass to Al Pollard that gave Georgia a 13-12 lead.

The Bulldogs, now 3-0, built their lead to 20-12 with only four minutes left in the game on a one-yard plunge by Keven McLee, who also scored Georgia's first touchdown on a one-yard run in the first quarter.

Can Certification Stop Incompetent Mechanics?

By FRED T. FERGUSON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your friendly neighborhood auto mechanic has a problem. Your car has gotten so complex, his experience around the garage may not be enough to fix it.

In fact, a lot of motorists are unhappy with the job mechanics are doing. Complaints about automotive repair work are second only to mail order fraud on the list of most frequent consumer complaints compiled by the White House Office of Consumer Affairs.

Stan Stephenson heads a program to train and certify mechanics at a time when he says "the shade tree mechanic may soon be extinct."

Admitting it is touchy ground, Stephenson talks of "mechanic incompetence" as possibly the number one reason for dissatisfaction with automotive repairs. He cites a California State Auto Repair Bureau report that of 44,000 complaints most related to poor quality control in the work or "misunderstandings" about what work was needed. Less than one per cent related to fraud.

The family car, Stephenson says, is just too complicated for a situation in which anyone who declares himself a mechanic can set out to fix a mechanical monster of 12,000 to 16,000 parts, at least 3,500 of them moving. He compares the car with a five-passenger, single-engine airplane's 1,500 parts, as few as 500 of which move.

"Two specially trained and certified mechanics are required to maintain the plane with its relatively primitive braking, steering and control systems. The auto mechanic has to deal with sophisticated electronic fuel injection, automatic transmission, hydraulic brake circuits, and complex steering and suspension systems."

Gordon Lewis agrees. An exception among mechanics, Lewis is one of the relatively few mechanics with a formal certificate that he is trained to do the job. He believes such training should be standard in the industry.

"I know of people who borrowed $5,000, bought a service station and put out a sign, 'mechanic on duty,'" said Lewis, owner of Gordie's Auto Shop, West Chester, Pa.

"I know of people who have paid good money to have shoddy work done on their cars. Then they come to me and have to have it done all over again."

Stephenson's program, called the Certified Automotive Repairmen's Society of Radnor, Pa., goes by the acronym, CARS.

Formed in 1968, CARS operated experimentally for several years and only recently began certification on a mass scale.

As a result only 350 mechanics have CARS certification. But 2,000 mechanics now are taking CARS' course for general automotive mechanic certificates.

"We are getting between 50 and 60 new applications for the program each week," Stephenson said.

CARS, a nonprofit firm set up by the Chilton Company, publishers of automotive repair manuals, serves the independent mechanic from some 300,000 shops around the country.

To be accepted for the course, the mechanic first must prove he or she has either four years of current on-the-job experience in an auto repair shop or two years of vocational school training and two years on-the-job.

Then the student takes a comprehensive course of 65 lessons by mail. The course must be completed within a year. To get diploma, wall plaque and arm patch, the student must get at least eight of the 10 questions right on a quiz he submits for computer grading on each of the lessons. A makeup test is provided in event of failure.

The course, which costs $90, is geared to an 11th grade reading comprehension level since those whose bent admittedly is to machines often care little for scholastics. The student keeps the study material for on-the-job reference.

Starting this fall, there will be a recertification program so mechanics can keep up with such new technology as catalytic converters. Designed to be taken every three years, it will cost $25.

There is one other certification program. It tests, but neither trains nor requires, previous experience.

Organized and funded by the auto manufacturing industry, it primarily serves the mechanics who work for the nation's 23,800 car dealers. Called the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, it arranges for tests several times annually in different parts of the country that certify mechanics in specialties.

Lewis and Stephenson agree both serve to promote a higher level of skill. But the few thousand mechanics certified by the two programs are a drop in the bucket of one million mechanics attempting to keep 123 million cars rolling on the American road.

For his part, Lewis says the programs alone are not enough.

"Voluntary certification hasn't worked. It should be required by law.

"But," he said, "I don't think government should do the certification. There should be accredited schools just as in other professions."

Stephenson believes government licensing would mean "just another business tax." He says there is growing support for voluntary certification, partly to avoid just such government control.

In addition to manufacturers, such support already has come from the Automotive Service Councils of America, the National Automobile Dealers Association and major auto parts makers. The Auto Service Councils of Pennsylvania has adopted certification as an official program. Several other state professional groups are considering doing so.

From the mechanic's point of view, Lewis said, "it's a good deal.

"Anybody that has taken the CARS course has to be a better mechanic after he's done. He can fix a car faster and better and make more money. He has a diploma and finds people want to use a man that has proof he is qualified."

Admittedly a status symbol, Stephenson said it also helps lead to better jobs. Many of the certified mechanics have been promoted to "chief wrench" in their shops or, like Lewis, acquired shops of their own.

"And," Lewis said, "it's got to be good for the motorist, too."

The motorist collectively spends $55 billion a year on auto maintenance and repairs, more than the total spent annually on new cars.

"If you go to some strange doctor, just knowing he's had to pass a test to be allowed to practice gives you some confidence in him," Lewis said. "It's the same with mechanics."

Reporter A Boss Censor

EDITOR'S NOTE — What makes a TV newsman become a TV censor? "I was interested in doing something else in broadcasting," says the convert. "I'm not clever enough to be a salesman, probably not creative enough to produce entertainment program .. . sort of view my new job" as that of an editor.

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's the nature of reporters to abhor censorship in any form. So what does a guy with 17 years in the news business say when picked to be chief censor at the CBS Television network?

"I don't approach this job as the censor," is what Van Gordon Sauter says. He's CBS' new vice president for program practices, the top yea or nay-sayer on the content of its entertainment shows.

"I'm here to represent the interests of the network and the viewer," adds the 40-year-old executive, head of the CBS News bureau in Paris when named to his non-news job last July. "And I like to think I can do that and still deal with the creative people in a way that doesn't end with my being postured as 'the censor.'"

Sauter's background makes him unique in the world of network censordom. His predecessor, Thomas J. Swafford, who held the program practices chair at CBS for 4½ years until he was replaced by the network brass, came to his job from various administrative posts at CBS and two of its stations.

Alfred Schneider, the top ABC censor, has a legal, business and administrative background. Herminio Traviesas, NBC's man, has a background in sales and administration, plus experience in the 1950s overseeing shows for a large advertising agency.

Sauter's career has involved nothing but news — starting in 1959 when he was a reporter at the Standard-Times in New Bedford, Mass.

An Ohio State graduate with a master's degree in journalism from the University of Missouri, Sauter worked on three newspapers before joining CBS in May 1968.

After New Bedford, he wrote for the Detroit Free Press. Then he was a Chicago Daily News reporter and feature writer.

He got into broadcast journalism at CBS-owned WBBM in Chicago, then worked for the CBS Radio news network, and in 1972 went into television news as news director of WBBM-TV. He also worked there as an anchorman before leaving to head CBS News' Paris bureau in 1975.

The man who hired him at WBBM-TV was Robert Wussler, then the station's general manager, now the head of CBS-TV. And it was Wussler who picked Sauter as his new chief program censor.

Why did Sauter take this most improbable of posts for a newsman?

"Well, I've been in news for quite some time and I was interested in doing something else in broadcasting," he said during a trip here to say hello to those who make shows for CBS.

"I'm not clever enough to be a salesman, probably not creative enough to produce entertainment programs. But I thought this job had many of the same values and standards of journalism.

"I sort of view my job as an editor of a magazine or newspaper or good book house. I'm not here to be Dr. No ... I see us as trying to find ways a good editor would to allow the creative persons to achieve their goals.

"But we have to say, 'Look, we have concerns about this issue here. How can we get what you want to do without violating our concerns?'"

He declined to discuss a major Hollywood concern — the "family viewing" concept CBS pushed and the networks all adopted. The concept now is being fought in a federal court suit brought by entertainment unions and several producers, among them Norman Lear.

Sauter said CBS barristers had advised network executives against publicly discussing "family viewing" until the suit is decided.

However, he agreed that as the CBS censor he will have his disagreements with Hollywood's creative community about program content, and already has had a few minor skirmishes.

"I'm sure there'll be more pronounced ones as we go along," he said. "And inevitably there'll be circumstances where we say, 'No, you're not going to do that.'"

"But I'd like to think that after we've said that to the producer or writer or performer, we could back off with a sense of respect, a sense they know what my concerns are and I know what theirs are."

He said he hopes to avoid the kind of bitter debate that attended his abrupt departure from the Chicago Daily News, "when I wanted to get a story in the paper and the city editor said no.

"It became a matter of principle for me. I told him to cram the job up his ... " At this point, the new censor was censored.

"And four days later the managing editor of the paper came in and tried to patch things up. At that point it was way too late.

"If he'd been in a position at the very beginning to sit with the editor, sit with the writer, and say, 'Okay, here's what the writer wants to do and here's what the editor's concerns are, how can we work this out?' ... we would have worked it out.

"And I like to think that we in program practices — me, specifically — can resolve things in an effective way when one of my editors gets involved in a fight with a producer."

Sauter also worries about commercials, an incredible number of them.

"I think we're probably going to hit 40,000 commercials this year," he said of the potentially record-breaking number of 15 and 30-second product pitches he'll eyeball for acceptability by CBS.

Such pitches are first presented to him in "story board form," as scripts or sketches or both, "and generally a third of them are rejected outright," Sauter said. He was asked why.

"It isn't consistent with our sense of taste," he replied. "Or it doesn't meet NAB (National Association of Broadcasters) code standards. Or there are some questions about it with regard to the Food and Drug Administration or the Federal Trade Commission."

Sauter, who said his reportorial background helps a lot in checking product claims, says he now spends slightly more than half his working hours scrutinizing commercials proposed to CBS.

And he expects that workload to grow "because advertising is becoming far more specific in things it deals with."

Van Gordon Sauter, the newsman who gave up a nice overseas post to worry about what goes into entertainment shows and commercials, laughed when asked how he felt when hit with his first batch of commercials.

"I sort of said, 'Why am I not in Paris?'" he sighed.

Flood Insurance Study Ready For City's Study

The City of Greenville has been notified by the Federal Insurance Administration that the final draft of the Greenville Flood Insurance Study has been completed.

The study will be presented to the City Council and city staff on Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 4 p.m. in the Council chambers at city hall.

Representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which prepared the study under contract with the FIA, will be in attendance to explain the results of the report.

A copy of the study is on file in the city manager's office and city clerk's office for those citizens would like to review the report prior to the meeting.

The city urged all affected property owners to attend the session.

OIL EXPORTS

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — Ecuador's oil exports declined 11.6 per cent in 1975 from 59,230,891 barrels of crude to 52,359,354 barrels. In 1974, the decline over the previous year had been 16.7 per cent, from 71,125,551 to 59,230,891 barrels.

PUCKER UP

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Ozark Mountain deer in Southern Missouri eat unripened persimmons, which state Department of Conservation officials consider an astonishing feat because of the mouth-puckering effect of green persimmons on humans.

Student Union Sponsoring Black Arts Festival

The East Carolina University Student Union has announced plans for a Black Arts Cultural Festival. Several committes will combine their efforts to produce a full week of attractions. The festival is scheduled for October 3 through 9.

—On Sunday, October 3, the festival will open with a gospel music program. Four groups will appear on this program: The Revelation Singers of Goldsboro, The Carrie Harrison Singers of Roanoke Rapids, The Interdenominational Choir of Farmville, and The Andrew A. Best Choral of Greenville. The program will begin at 6:00 p.m. and will be held in Mendenhall Student Center Theatre. No admission will be charged.

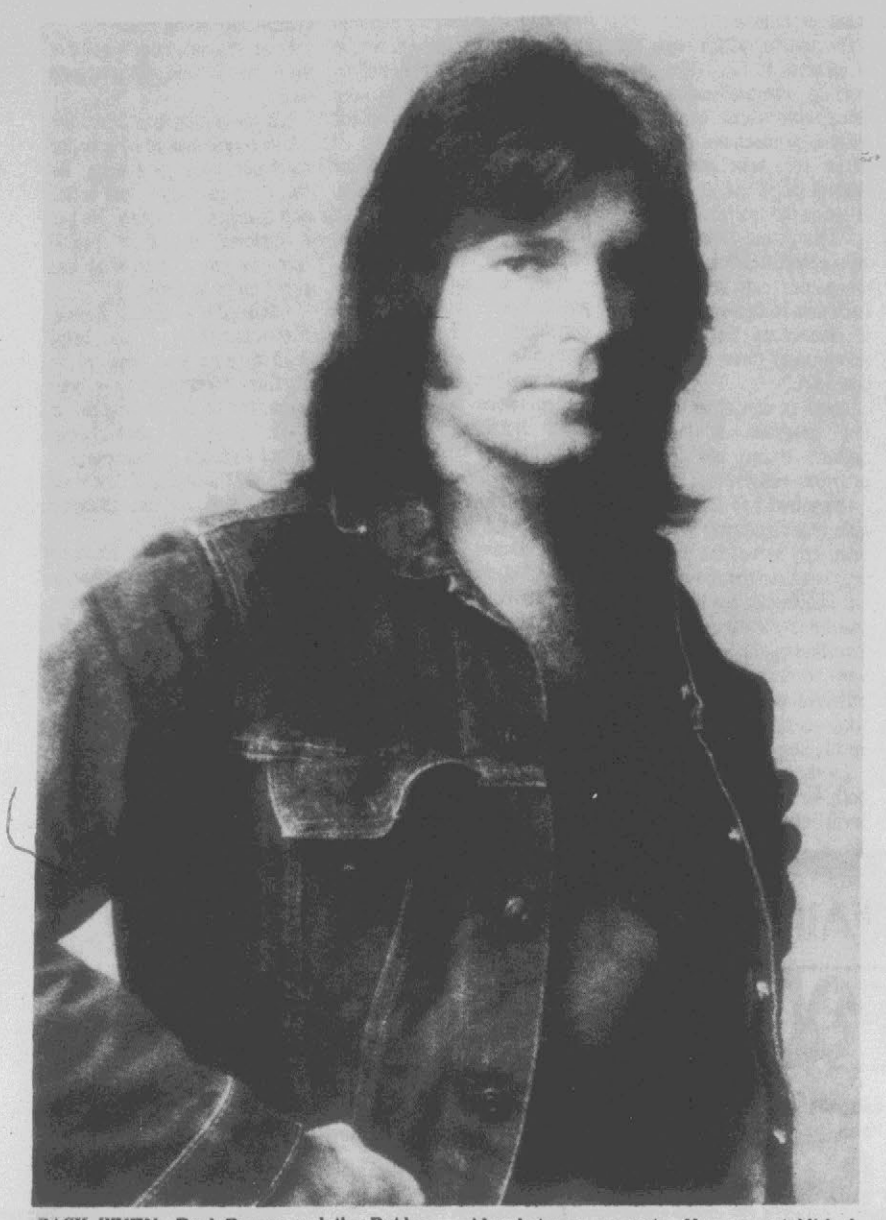
—An African Foods and Dance Symposium is slated for 7:30 p.m. on Monday, October 4. Various African dishes will be available for sampling. Several African rhythmical dances will be demonstrated and taught. Admission for the symposium, which will be held in the Multi-Purpose Room of Mendenhall, will be 25 cents.

—On Tuesday, October 5 at 8:00 p.m., Donald Bogle will present a lecture on "A History of Blacks in the Cinema." In his lecture-slide program, Bogle will discuss the stereotypes that blacks portray. His book, Toms, Coons, Mulattoes, Mamies, and Bucks, won the Theatre Library Association Award for the best film book of the year in 1973. The lecture will be held in the Student Center Theatre. Admission will be $2.00 for the public.

—The Award-winning Broadway musical Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope will be presented on Thursday, October 7 at 8:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. With a three-year run on Broadway, this production has won numerous top theatrical awards. Public tickets are $5.00.

—The festival will conclude on Saturday, October 9 with a disco jam victory dance. The dance will begin at 10:00 p.m. following the ECU-Southern Illinois football game. Music will be by the Soulful Strutters. Admission for the dance, which will be held in Wright Auditorium, will be $2.00.

Other events exploring the black cultural experience which have been planned for the festival include two films and an art exhibition.



BACK WHEN—Paul Revere and the Raiders were a hot rock act of the '60s, the band's guitarist, Freddy Weller, amused himself playing and singing country tunes on the long bus rides between concerts. Now an established country singer, the Atlanta-born Weller admits he wasn't much of a fan of the Raiders' music at the time. (UPI)

Patricia Hiss Recital To Premiere Songs

Soprano Patricia Hawkins Hiss will perform a variety of songs and arias in a recital at East Carolina University Sunday, Sept. 26, at 8:15 p.m. in the A.J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

The program is free and open to the public and will include works by Giulio Caccini, Jacopo Peri, Henry Purcell, Hector Berlioz, Leslie Kondorossy, Bela Bartok and Benjamin Britten.

Ellen Reithmaier Nagode of the ECU piano faculty will be accompanist for the recital.

Mrs. Hiss will begin her recital with a selection of early music, a Caccini song and arias from Peri's Euridice and Purcell's The Libertine, followed by the Berlioz Les Nuits d'Ete, Opus 7, based on texts by Theophile Gautier.

The second half of the program will feature the first performance in the original Hungarian language of music by Leslie Kondorossy, Budapest native now an American citizen living in Cleveland, Ohio.

One of the two Kondorossy compositions, Szabadon, has lyrics by Maxim Tabory, a native Hungarian, graduate of ECU, who now lives in Kinston. Also on this part of Mrs. Hiss' program are folk songs from the Mikrokozmosz by Bela Bartok and songs by Benjamin Britten.

An alumna of St. Oalf Christiansen Choir School in Minnesota, Patricia Hawkins Hiss did post-graduate study at the University of Illinois in Urbana.

She has been active in productions of the ECU Opera Theatre, which is directed by her husband, Dr. Clyde Hiss. In addition to performing in operatic productions, she has designed costumes used in the annual spring Opera Theatre performances for the past several years.

Grandeur Of Spain Next Travel Film

"The Grandeur of Spain," a documentary film featuring the cities, culture, lifestyles, economy and geographical wonders of the Iberian nation, will open the 1976-77 East Carolina University Travel-Adventure Film Series.

The film, part of a series sponsored by the ECU Student Union, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 29, in the Mendenhall Student Center Theatre. It will be personally narrated by Art Wilson, the film's producer.

Among the highlights of the film are scenes from Madrid and surrounding areas, such as the Plaza de Espana, Puerto del Sol, the Valley of the Fallen and the Prado Museum.

Other cities featured include Barcelona and its Church of the Holy Family.

Personal insights into the life of the Spanish people are provided by a filmed visit to the home of a Spanish family and footage of the May festival of Cordoba, featuring traditional Andalusian costumes.

Other noteworthy items covered in the film are the agricultural aspect of the Spanish economy, the National Institute of Industry and a visit to the Pyrenees.

Public tickets at $1 each may be purchased from the ECU Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center.

Tar Heel Dissent Is Subject Of PBS Film

Dissent gave birth to the United States and two ensuing centuries of dissent have molded its character. How it happened and what effects it has had in North Carolina is explored in Majority Of One, Saturday, October 2 at 7:00 p.m. on Channel 25, Greenville.

Produced by the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, the 30-minute film will be followed by a panel discussion hosted by Richard W. Hatch, producer of public affairs programming for UNC-TV. Entitled Whatever Happened To Dissent?, the followup will probe what has happened to the issues of recent decades and what is the future of dissent.

Beginning with a reenactment of Cornelius Harnett's reading of the Declaration of Independence for the first time in N.C., the Majority Of One film examines dissenting North Carolinians through the years.

L.W. Hine's child labor photographs, the labor strikes at Gastonia and Marion and a Moravian worship service at Bethabara are some of the records and historic events shown.

Interviews incorporated in the film look at some of the issues which dissent can pose in a democratic society. The six North Carolinians interviewed include Tom Wicker, associate editor of the New York Times, expressing his views on the role of the news media in reporting dissent; Lyle and Susan Snider, two Quakers who refused to pay their federal income tax in protest against military spending for the Vietnam War; and David Dansby, a Greensboro lawyer who participated in the civil rights movement of Chapel Hill in 1963-64. Also interviewed are Senator Sam Ervin, who speaks on the constitutional guarantees of dissent, and Martha McKay, founder of the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus.

Richard II Try-Outs Announced

East Carolina Playhouse announces open auditions for the Shakespearean tragedy, Richard II, The try-outs are scheduled for Thursday, September 30 at 7:00 p.m. in the Studio Theatre on the campus of East Carolina University.

Richard II is based on the actual story of King Richard and how he lost the English crown to Henry IV. Like numerous other Elizabethean classics, this chronicle play by Shakespeare progresses from an initial major problem. Richard makes a capricious decision in settling an accusation of conspiracy between two noblemen. Richard's continued poor judgement ultimately leads to his own death. English history buffs remember the incident as the start of the dispute between the houses of Lancaster and Plantegenet.

Edgar R. Loessin, who will direct the play, says the show requires a large cast of men and women in major, minor, and non-speaking, roles. Scripts for Richard II are on reserve at the ECU Joyner Library. Interested persons are encouraged to read the play and, if possible, prepare a speech or a scene of approximately three minutes. People from the community and university and urged to audition.

Hospitality House

Members of the Seymour Johnson Air Force Base cast of the musical "1776" will be featured on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today, over WITN-TV, Channel 7, from 11:30 a.m. until noon.

Ms. Le Bane Houston, director; Mary Scarbrough, publicity director; Steve Hunter, singer who appears in the role of Rutledge; and pianist Trixie Smith are all guests on the show today. Hunter will sing "Molasses to Rum." The Seymour Johnson staging of "1776" will take place October 8-9-10 at Kitty Hawk Theater on the base at Goldsboro.

Arthur Edmondson, president of the Edgecombe Historial Society, is another guest on "Hospitality House" today. He will talk about the "Old Homes Tour" and dedication of the old cotton press slated for Tarboro on Saturday, October 2.

A film made by Ms. Currie in Philadelphia, where she interviews the Director of Corning Glassware Center will also be shown.

Beginning Band Sign-Up

Registration for a new Beginning Band class will take place Monday evening, September 27 at 8:00 p.m. in the Rose High School band room.

All interested fifth and sixth grade students and their parents are invited to attend.

At this time parents will receive information concerning the band program and will have the opportunity to rent or purchase an instrument for their child.

Band directors will also be at the band room between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. to enroll those children whose parents cannot attend the evening meeting.

Anyone having questions or problems should contact Dottie Jo Knight at 756-6062.

ECU Faculty In ACC Exhibition

An exhibition by three faculty members of the School of Art, East Carolina University, is currently on view at The Hines Gallery, Rocky Mount Arts and Crafts Center.

The three showing are Ray Elmore, drawings; Arthur Haney, pottery; and Henry Stindt, photogrpahy.

The show, which opened on September 12, will remain on view through September.

Chorus Meeting Set

The first meeting of the 1976-77 season of the Greenville Community Chorus will take place Tuesday, September 28 at 8 p.m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, in the church's choir room.

At this first meeting, election of new officers and a discussion of plans for the upcoming season will take place. Those attending will also decide on the weekly date for the chorus' rehearsal time.

Current members of the chorus as well as prospective new members are urged to attend this first meeting. A new director, Edward Glenn, will be with the chorus this year.

Auditions Coming Up

People from the community and East Carolina University are invited to audition for two one-act plays by Tennessee Williams. The plays will be produced by the Deaprtment of Drama and Speech at ECU. Faculty member, Steve Finnan, will direct Hello From Bertha and The Lady of Larkspur Lotion for performance November 4-6. The auditions will be held later this week. To obtain specific times, call the Department of Drama and Speech at 757-6390.

Recital Set

A faculty recital by baritone Clyde Hiss and pianist Ellen R. Nagode will take place at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, October 3 in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Building.

Complete details on the event will appear in next Sunday's paper.

Art Center's Permanent Collection On View

For the first time in several years, the entire permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center is being displayed at the Greenville Art Center, 802 Evans Street.

Even to those generally familiar with the collection, the scope and variety of the more than 225 items now in the permanent collection comes as something of a surprise.

Paintings, drawings, prints, watercolors, wood and metal sculptures, ceramics, weavings and glassware are all represented in varying degrees. A substantial portion of the collection are works purchased from the proceeds of the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation fund,.

In fairness it can be noted. that some of the best work in the collection are those purchased through this fund.

Although no rigid policy exists governing purchases and acceptance of works of art through gifts or directly from the artist, the collection does represent a fair cross-section of 20th century North Carolina artists, including some of well-known names — Francis and Sara Blakeslee Speight, Philip Moose, Ed Reep, Claude Howell, Hobson Pittman, Mary Ann Keel Jenkins, Donald Sexauer, Wes Crawley, etc.

Other notable segments of the collection include a complete (50 prints) of the Louis Orr series of etchings of North Carolina scenes (in the upstairs hallway); some 30 pieces of North Carolina Jugtown pottery, reportedly the third largest collection of this type pottery in the state; and an almost complete portfolio of Ben Shan prints.

The collection also includes at least one work each by noted artists Josef Albers, Harold Altman, Anna Hyatt Huntington and Raphael Soyer.

A fortunate early and important multiple acquisition is that of about a dozen and a half WPA project works. This group was acquired through the efforts of Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp, the late Mrs. Rachel Maxwell Moore and members of the Greenville Woman's Club, all of whom were instrumental in fostering and keeping alive early efforts to establish a Greenville Art Center.

Seeing the permanent collection in its entirety, the flaws as well as the strong points become obvious. One shortcoming is a preponderance of black and white prints and drawings with a resultant need for more color in the collection. Absent from the collection are representative works by any number of excellent area and East Carolina University faculty artists, especially younger talent in their formative years.

In using the phrase "complete permanent collection" in the opening of this article, a note of qualification is needed. This show is the complete collection with the exception of four or five works on loan to the Greenville Utilities Commission; and the Bicentennial Gift of six prints by Praphan Sriousta which are not yet framed. (Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the art center, notes that a volunteer donor to undertake the expense of haying these framed would be a most welcome gesture).

Area citizens interested in seeing the art that is a part of their contemporary heritage should not miss this opportunity. The exhibit which will be up through October, covers both downstairs gallery, the downstairs hall area, the Rachel Maxwell Moore Memorial Room, two upstairs gallery and the upstairs hall.

—Jerry Raynor

Writers To Meet Tuesday

The second meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for the month of September will be held Tuesday night at 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Oral Parks, 1609 Oaklawn Drive.

Persons interested in any form of creative writing (with the exception of poetry) are invited to attend the twice-monthly meetings. No charge or membership obligations are involved.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JUNE PARKER

Sheppard Memorial Library has in several new books that are old-fashioned good reading. The first is GALVESTON by Suzanne Morris. In this her first novel, she weaves a tale which covers a period from 1877 until 1920. The first of the story centers around Claire Becker, who is the narrator. Claire has married her lover's brother and has moved to Galveston to make new start. Here, she is attracted to Reverend Garret and begins a feud with his wife who loses a baby and her wits in an "accident". The second episode is narrated by Serena, the Garrets' adopted daughter. This story takes place in 1920 and concerns another adopted girl, Willa, who leaves home the night before her wedding in order to trace clues to her real parents that she had found in a carpet bag belonging to Serena. In this book, strong character interest holds the reader spellbound throughout the story,

Another good tale is THE DEEP by Peter Benchley. This story takes place in Bermuda where there are two shipwrecks, on e upon the other. The top ship contains morphine and artillery shells and the bottom one stores a wealth of jewelry. The problem is how to destroy the drugs and raise the jewelry without setting off the shells. The plot is full of tension with the good guys working against the bad guys and both working against time. This book is good escapist adventure by the author of JAWS.

THE FAMILY ARSENAL is a real thriller by Paul Theroux, the author of THE RAILWAY BAZAAR. The central character is Valentine Hood who is the essence of the hero of modern fiction. He is very personal with a code of ethics which allows him both to help and to hurt. He is an ex-consul with the American consulate in Vietnam who feels that he has seen the worst of the world in Vietnam. His family includes Mayo, a female thief, and two streetwise waifs. The plot involves IRA terrorists, opium addicts, and ignorant toughs in a glittering but corrupt world of London's seamier side. The style, pace, and tone work together beautifully to establish further Theroux as one of America's best young writers.

The last book is THE WEST END HORROR, A POSTHUMOUS MEMOIR OF JOHN H. WATSON, M.D. by Nicholas Meyer. This second Meyer book in his Sherlock Holmes series is full of the same disarming inpudence as his first, THE SEVEN-PER-CENT SOLUTION. Holmes and Watson are called upon by George Bernard Shaw to solve a murder concerning people in the threatre. The first murder leads to a second when a beautiful, young actress is found with her throat slashed. Different people of the time keep popping up such as Oscar Wilde, Sir William Gilbert, Arthur Sullivan, and Bram Stoker. Meyer blends these personalities with those of Holmes and Watson to create a delightful tale which will satisfy all Sherlock Holmes' enthusiasts.

Audubon Bird Prints In NCMA Exhibit

The N. C. Museum of Art will hold an exhibition of selected prints from John James Audubon's famed portfolio "The Birds of America" beginning today and continuing Oct. 17.

The show both honors the well known naturalist and artist and effectively displays for the first time a treasure the people of North Carolina have owned for 130 years.

The treasure is a rare "double elephant" folio of "The Birds of America"—one of a limited edition of fewer than 200 copies produced between 1827 and 1838, which was purchased for the N.C. State Library in 1846.

The folio is called "double elephant" because of its size: each print measures approximately 29 by 40 inches. There are 435 prints in all, bound in four volumes weighing 80 pounds apiece. Originally, Audubon sold subscriptions for the complete set at $1,000—a sum so vast in the early 19th century that the Rosthschild family is said to have hesitated before subscribing.

The North Carolina set remained in the State Library until 1974, when it was transferred to the art museum because it has facilities for displaying and guarding the books, now worth more than 100 times Audubon's original price.

The four volumes were displayed, each open to one page in a glass case, in the "Recent Acquistions" exhibition in 1975. The current show, however, shows 25 selected prints which have been removed from their bindings, cleaned, restored, matted and framed.

Some were selected for the significanceof the birds they portray: the American bald eagle, the cardinal—state bird of North Carolina—and the now extinct Carolina parakeet and passenger pigeon.

Others were chosen to show the range of Audubon's style and technique, and the skill of the folio's engravers: the black-bellied darter and the golden-eye duck, the snowy egret and probably the most famous Audubon print, the wild turkey.

The prints were made by the London firm Robert Havell and Son, using a combination of the engraving, aquatint and teching techniques. At one time as many as 50 colorists were employed to hand-color the engravings after Audubon's water-color models.

Audubon himself acted as artist, publisher and salesman, for the double elephant folio, traveling back and forth across the Atlantic, painting American birds and selling subscriptions from London.

A catalogue will accompany the show with an introduction and notes written by author Charlotte Hilton Green.

Arts Council Seeking Films

The N. C. Arts Council, in cooperation with the South Carolina Arts Commission, is seeking films by independent filmmakers from this state to include in a 90-minute sample reel of southern films.

North Carolina filmmakers have until Oct. 15 to submit preview prints to be considered for the reel. Those films that are selected will be purchased.

Prints submitted for the reel must be 16 mm with with a silent or optical soundtrack, and no more than 30 minutes long. Individuals can submit as many films as they wish, but all works must be free from commercial sponsorship or corporate influence. Prints will be returned after they are screened.

Before submitting preview prints, filmmakers should request an application form by writing or calling Bill Olsen, S.C. Arts Commission, 829 Richland Street, Columbia, S.C. 29201; (803) 758-3442. Further information can also be obtained by writing or calling Alan Cooper, N.C. Arts Council, Raleigh, N.C. 27611; (919) 829-7897.

Director

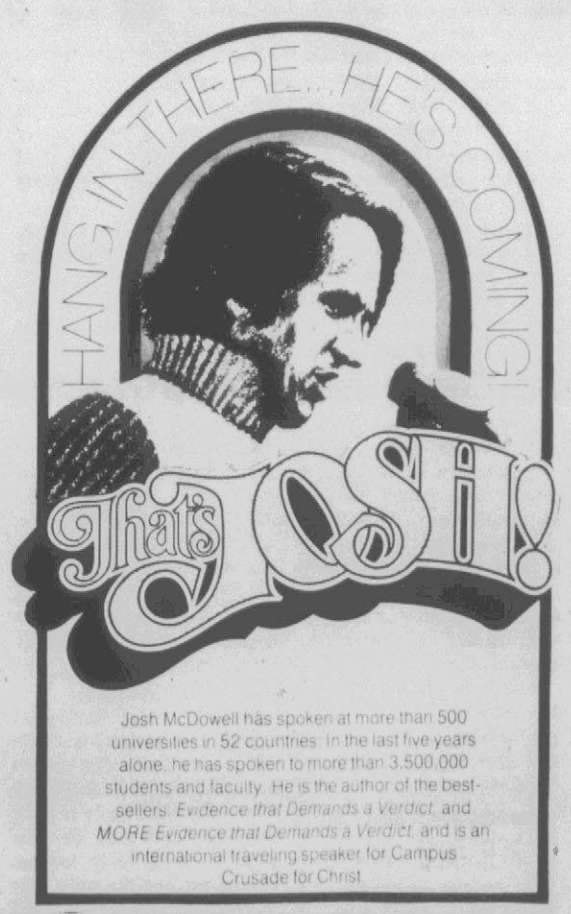
Mary B. Regan, associate director of the North Carolina Arts Council, has been named director of the council, effective Sept. 1.

Ms. Regan succeeds Halsey North, who is leaving to become director of the Arts and Science Council of Charlott-Mecklenburg.

Ms. Regan joined the council in November, 1972, as community associate director.

She also has worked as an editorial trainee for The New Yorker and as a feature writer for the Raleigh News and Observer. For several years, Ms. Regan has traveled and worked in Europe, Africa, Asia and Central and South America.

Ms. Regan, 34, a native of St. Pauls, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She also attended the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.



Josh McDowell has spoken at more than 500 universities in 52 countries. In the last five years alone, he has spoken to more than 3,500,000 students and faculty. He is the author of the best-sellers: Evidence that Demands a Verdict, and MORE Evidence that Demands a Verdict, and is an international traveling speaker for Campus Crusade for Christ.

French Modern Art Museum Compared To Exposed Plumbing

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The world's newest art museum looks to some critics like exposed plumbing.

The families of three renowned artists are so upset over the building and what will be in it that they refuse to allow their collections inside the door.

Nonetheless, Paris's new Musee d'Art Moderne will open in January as part of a supercolossal cultural complex, Le Centre National d'Art et de Culture Georges Pompidou.

On Sept. 14 the old gray stone Musee d'Art Moderne closed its doors on the quiet, luxurious Avenue du President Wilson where it has served as the modern "wing" of the Louvre museum since 1947.

In January, a newly independent Musee d'Art Moderne will explode on the art scene with an entirely different concept of art-for-the-masses in a wildly modern building in a low income section of eastern Paris.

The museum — the first major one to open since Los Angeles' J. Paul Getty museum in 1974 — still will show its Picassos and Chagalls. But it will lean more heavily than before on postwar contemporary art including abstracts, and more international art instead of mainly French works.

The old museum under the administration of the staid Louvre paid scant attention to op, pop and other "in" trends.

Even more controversial, the "old" modern masters and the pop-op-abstracts will be mixed in a museum which will be only part of a several-sided spectacle at the Pompidou center, geared to hit the widest possible audience.

The center houses the Museum, an Industrial Design Center, Paris's (astonishingly) first public library for contemporary writing, an institute of music research and acoustics where visitors can play records and tapes, a "cinemateque" theater showing old films, and more theaters inside and on a tree-covered mall for modern music, drama, poetry-readings, ballet and other spectacles.

The heirs of Rouault, Laurens and Braque who donated nearly 1,000 works to the old Musee d'Art Moderne announced they will have nothing to do with the new "fair". Some Roualt and Braque will be shown in the new museum, according to museum curator German Viatte. But the bulk of works remains in the old museum which will open in 1977 as the Early 20th Century Museum devoted to turn of the century items which have been stored unseen for decades in the overstuffed Louvre and old Musee d'Art Moderne.

Isabelle Rouault, daughter of the artist, explained that the rebel group did not want their family paintings mixed in with op and pop. Claude Laurens, who withdrew the sculptures of father Henri Laurens from the new museum, said that after World War II artists began "using fundamentally different materials" from spark plugs to old shoes to form sculptures.

The $130 million center, spread over five acres, consists of a box of glass and steel tubes with a shiny red stairway zigzagging up one outside wall.

The center was scooped out of one of the oldest quarters of Paris between Les Halles, the old market area, and the Place de la Bastille. The sight of steel tubes and glass amidst shutters, iron balconies and slanted roofs is startling.

City environmentalists succeeded in keeping the 18th and 19th century buildings surrounding the center from being demolished in favor of high-rise modern apartments. Moreover the center's height was limited to six levels and it does not radically alter the Paris skyline as do the capital's new skyscrapers.

The new museum will open with a Marcel Duchamps show and a special Paris-New York exchange exhibition. Under the new set-up the museum is independent of the Louvre and can buy and borrow what it pleases.

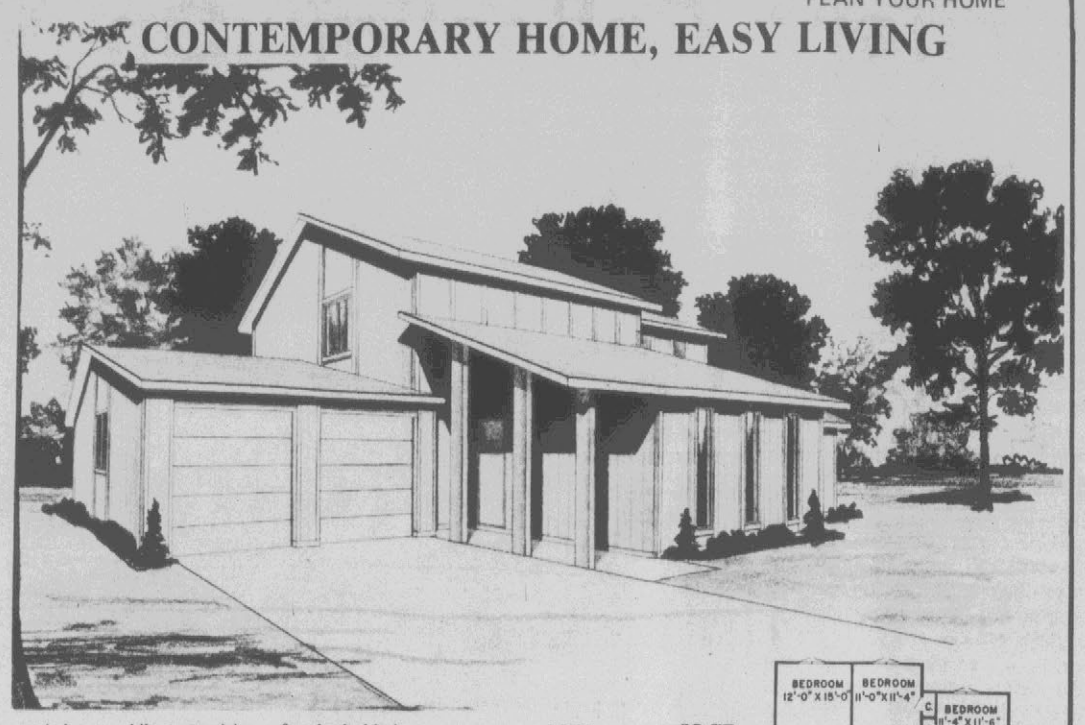
PLAN YOUR HOME

CONTEMPORARY HOME, EASY LIVING

By Jerry Bishop



Everyday chores are disposed of easily when a home is designed for efficiency. Today's featured home design, the Catskill, is one of those no-nonsense plans that simplify work, leaving more time for play.

Strong vertical lines dominate the exterior of this attractive contemporary. Inside, the floor plan stresses simplicity. Basically, it zones formal areas at front and family areas at rear and places a half bath equally close to both. The entry gives access to the second floor, self-zoned for sleeping, and a practical upper level bath saves money without sacrificing convenience.

Ideally, the main entrance to a home in this car-centered society should be near the garage. In the Catskill, the front door meets the garage door and is shaded by an overhang. In bad weather, another entrance connects garage and utility room.

Set at right of entry, the living room juts out at the front of the design and opts for brightness, with tall, light-absorbing windows and a partial glass interior wall. A similar effect is achieved in the dining room, exposed to the outdoors on two sides. The living and dining rooms are neither too big nor too small, and can handle intimate dinners as well as lively crowds.

For day-to-day family living, the areas at rear manage to be enjoyable but highly functional. Kitchen, dining area and family room are integrated in a way that allows meal preparation or cleanup to be carried out while supervising children or watching television. For relaxation, sliding glass doors open to the patio.

Other well-designed features include the utility room, supplied with closet space and serviceable as a mud room, and the windowed shop, a haven for the hobbyist.

Upstairs, the large, compartmented bath with double sinks is a workable arrangement. It can be entered from the hallway or directly from the master bedroom, and three spacious bedrooms are outlined.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

By the end of this year, more than 2 million chain saws will have been sold since January 1st.

About 66 per cent will have been sold to non-professionals, nearly all of them home owners.

About 316,000 of the saws will have been sold to women!

Those are interesting industry figures — with the most intriguing the statistics about female purchasers. They just didn't seem correct. More than 316,000 women in the United States using chain saws? It couldn't be. Then the light dawned. There weren't that many women using such saws; merely that many buying them, which is a far different thing.

Anyway, let's check and find out. A telephone call to Homelite brings a clarification from the company's marketing vice president, Franklin Maddux.

"Yes," he says, "it has been discovered that 24 per cent of all consumer chain saws are being purchased by women. That's where those 316,000 figures come from. Naturally, the majority of women making the purchases are buying them for their husbands or men friends. But more and more women are using chain saws themselves to cut firewood and to clear away storm damage. We know that from the reports sent in by our dealers."

How come?

"It's just part of the trend of the age. Women are finding out that they can use power tools as easily and skillfully as men. Sales have skyrocketed since the advent of chain saws weighing less than 10 pounds and costing from $100 to $150. Also, more and more safety devices are being built into these saws. One of the latest is a simple device, weighing about an ounce, that is fitted over the nose section of the guide bar covering the sensitive area of the bar and chain where kickback reaction is generated. This eliminates kickback as a potential cause of injury."

After the phone call, a check showed that 300,000 chain saws had been sold in 1963, nearly all of them to men who made their living by cutting wood. Much earlier, lumberjacks used a type of chain saw that weighed a couple of hundred pounds and had to be handled by two men. In the late 1940s, smaller chain saws were made for use by one man, but even these weighed 30 pounds or more and had to be handled by a muscular operator. It wasn't until 12-pound models were put out that the market for chain saws began to broaden, with the less-than-10 pounders bringing even more home owners into the purchasing field.

Windows Are Best 'Heat Trap'

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Capturing the sun may be the newest architectural game. People are building everything from makeshift contraptions to expensive solar housing to help collect the energy of the sun.

But the average home long has had its own built-in solar energy system — windows. They are among the best heat traps we have and can help cut the consumption of fuel as sunshine is brought into the home, the Federal Energy Administration reminds us.

What we do about corraling the sun for heat, however, may be the key to the efficiency of the windows. Maximum efficiency depends on where the windows are placed, the kind of windows, how they are draped and how the outdoors relates to them. How much space we allot to windows is another consideration, the agency points out in its publication, "Energy Conservation with Windows," prepared with the National Bureau of Standards.

"A window, unlike a wall, can transmit sunlight into a room, then trap its heat," the FEA states. "In many instances this solar heat gain can exceed the window's total conductive heat loss for the day. Thus the window can actually provide heat in winter."

It is something to consider before one chooses to have more wall space in that new or remodeled home. We don't really want to live in a cave-like atmosphere when we can have more light, air and sunshine, even as we tap the sun for energy.

And if the opportunity exists for choice, south exposures should have the greatest window area, the agency suggests. Windows facing east and west enjoy the sun's rays only part of the day, and the side of the house facing north gets no sun and should have the least number of windows.

It is something to think about when a house is being positioned on a site when there is still time to decide which rooms will be used most during the day and require the most warmth.

"Cold air leaking through cracks in a well-insulated house can account for 30 per cent of the load on the heating system, a figure that could be reduced by as much as 50 per cent by making windows and doors tighter," points out the energy administration, which suggests installing weather stripping and tight-fitting storm sashes in existing homes.

New and more efficient weather-stripping systems have been developed. A spokesman for one window manufacturer (Anderson Corp.) says that when these systems are applied in factories under quality control conditions, the windows should greatly reduce the amount of heat loss through air infiltration in comparison with loose-fitting windows, whether old or new.

To reduce air infiltration to a minimum in order to achieve best fuel conservation results, the FEA suggests that windows should be double-glazed — two panes with air space in between. The trapped air serves as a relatively good insulator. Windows with double-pane insulating glass simplify maintenance chores while providing the insulating benefits of tight-fitting storm sashes over double-glazed windows.

Maximum use of windows as energy savers requires examining conditions surrounding the windows. In a new house there is an opportunity to plant deciduous trees near the windows to permit leafy coolness in summer and the sun's rays to enter the home in winter. If heavy foliage screens an existing home from sun in winter, perhaps ruthless pruning would clear the area for the solar objective.

Many years ago Americans took advantage of opportunities to manipulate their windows to suit their needs. They screened out bugs, used awnings to control the sun even as they permitted cool breezes to enter a window. In winter they used heavy draperies to keep out cold at night. In the day they enjoyed the warming effects of the sun. Small houses were often heated comfortably only with fireplaces. We should give more thought to the kind of energy that may be available without investing large sums of money.

Q. — We had our septic tank cleaned out six months ago. The cleaner said it would last two years. Now there is a seepage above ground between the house and the septic tank, closer to the house than the tank. There is no backup of sewage into the basement plumbing fixtures. Can you tell me what is causing the seepage?

A. — An on-the-spot analysis is the only way the exact cause can be determined and even that will depend on some probing and digging. But the fact that the seepage is occurring closer to the house than the tank — and presumably on the line where the house pipe to the tank is located — is a fair indication that there is a break in the underground pipe.

Q. — In putting up a wall of mirror tiles, some of the tiles will have to be cut to fit around certain obstructions. Do I need a special tool for cutting these tiles?

A. — No. Use an ordinary, inexpensive glass cutter, the same kind used to cut out glass for windows. If you haven't used such a cutter in the past, better practice first on scrap glass. Hold the cutter almost perpendicular to the glass while cutting.

Q. — I intend to put up solid board panels in our basement by nailing them directly to studs with finishing nails. How long should the nails be?

A. — Long enough to extend at least ¾ths of an inch into the studs.

Q. — I have recently taken up decoupage, which I am sure you know is cutting out and pasting pictures to various objects. I have been using white glue, as recommended in a book on the subject. Most of the time I get good results, using a mixture of shellac and denatured alcohol as the first coat, then putting on three coats of varnish. Every so often, I find that, after pasting on the picture, there are air bubbles in it. What causes this and what can I do about it?

A. — To get good contact between the paper and the object, use pressure at the center, then work out toward the edges. This is true whether you use a roller or your hands. When a bubble forms, despite your best efforts, make a slit in the paper with a razor blade at the center of the bubble. Apply a little glue to the end of a toothpick and very carefully rub the glue under the cut edges of the paper. Press down firmly. It is important that not too much glue be applied; better too little than too much.

Q. — What's the difference between a "snake" and a steel spring auger used for cleaning drains?

A. — The term "snake" is used for the long wire with a hook at one end. The auger is much the same except that it has a crank handle at one end. When the corkscrew end is pushed into the drain opening, the crank handle is turned clockwise, producing a boring action. The words "snake" and auger are often used interchangeably.

Spain Seeing Turbulence

By PETER UEBERSAX

MADRID (UPI) — Political violence in Spain has claimed more lives in the nine months since the death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco than in the nearly 2-½ years of turbulent political change in neighboring Portugal.

When Francisco Javier Verdejo, an 18-year-old member of the Maoist Young Red Guards, was killed by a police bullet in the southeastern town of Almeria last month, he was the 30th Spaniard to die in violence involving extremists of both the left and the right and Spain's police forces.

Hundreds of persons have been injured in politically motivated incidents during the nine months that Spain has been traveling the road from Franco's authoritarian regime to the democracy promised by King Juan Carlos.

In Portugal, 21 lives have been claimed by political violence since the military coup on April 24, 1974, according to unofficial tabulations.

The reason why politics in Spain are bloodier than in Portugal is generally explained by the more violent nature of Spaniards and the existence of old hatreds generated by the 1936-39 civil war.

One major source of violence is the existence of a guerrilla movement in the northern Basque provinces. Most of the bloodshed has occurred in the Basque region — a reflection of the strong political tensions in that independent-minded part of the nation.

Eleven of the 30 post-Franco deaths — among them four policemen — fell victim to terrorist acts by "Basque Homeland and Liberty" (ETA), the guerrilla arm of the Basque separatists. Another 11 persons died as a result of police action, and eight in other violence directly or indirectly connected with politics.

The bloodiest incident of the post-Franco era so far occurred last March in the basque town of Vitoria during an illegal two-month strike by thousands of steel workers who, the government said, were led by a former Catholic priest turned Marxist revolutionary.

Police dropped tear gas and smoke flares into a church where 5,000 strikers were meeting, then used their submachineguns as the crowd surged from the church and engulfed police. Five workers died and about 100 persons — among them many police — were injured.

Violence also was sparked by the escape in April of 40 left-wing prisoners — among them many convicted terrorists — from a maximum-security jail in Segovia.

Hidden under a double floor of a trailer truck, the prisoners made it to the French border, but then lost their way in the fot. In a series of shootouts along the smuggler trails of the Pyrenees mountains, police recaptured all but four of them. One prisoner was killed and several injured.

ETA, in turn, killed three policemen with boobytrapped Basque flags whose display is illegal and automatically results in removal by police. Another victim of the Basque guerrillas was industrialist Angel Berazadi who was kidnaped and later slain — despite the announced willingness of his family to pay a $3 million ransom.

Two bombers — alleged by police to be members of a far left revolutionary movement — died in a nationwide wave of bombings of government buildings and civil war monuments last July when the bomb they were carrying blew up prematurely.

In recent months, police action resulting in the death of street demonstrators or left-wing militants has caused increasing public protests and demands that the government restrict the use of firearms by the civil guards and armed police, the two forces responsible for maintaining law and order.

The death of Verdejo stirred public protests throughout the nation and Premier Adolfo Suarez personally visited his parents to express his condolences.

Verdejo was killed when police surprised him painting the words "Bread, Work and Liberty" on a housewall. A police statement said a police gun discharged accidentally when the officer pursuing Verdejo stumbled in the darkness.

Expanding Facilities

Don Collier, district commercial manager for Carolina Telephone, announced today that a $129,000 project is now underway to expand the company's Hooker Road central office local dial equipment here.

The program will provide facilities not only to serve new subscribers in this area, but also to permit higher grades of service for existing subscribers.

"Recently," Collier said, "the growth of Greenville has accelerated the demand for telephone service. As a result, the maximum capacity of present equipment has nearly been reached."

In the past 10 years, for example, telephones in service here have increased from 9,850 to more than 33,800.

"The expansion project here was engineered to enable the company to meet future growth requirements," Collier noted.

Texas Descision Is Tax-Saver

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — An economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says a recent Texas Supreme Court decision could save part-time farmers and ranchers tax money.

The court ruled farmers and ranchers may qualify for agricultural tax exemptions on farm real estate even if they earn more than half their income from other sources.

NEW DIVISIONS

Dr. Charles F. Fogarty, chairman and chief executive officer of Texasgulf Inc., announced the formation of two new corporate divisions, the Agricultural Chemical Division and the Industrial Chemicals Division.

Fogarty said that the Agricultural Chemicals Divisions will include the Production and sale of the company's phosphate, potash and dicalcium phosphate products.

The Industrial Chemicals Division will include production and sale of all Frasch Sulphur and recovered sulphur from operations in Canada, Mexico, and the United States and soda ash from operations at Texasgulf's new mine near Granger in southwestern Wyoming.

DECLARED EXEMPT

Pitt County REACT Team and all other U.S. Citizens Band radio emergency teams affiliated with REACT International Inc., have been declared exempt from federal income taxes and eligible to receive tax deductible contributions as charitable and educational organizations under a recent ruling by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service.

Pitt REACT Team president Billy J. Helms said that the ruling will permit the local team to accept the public support that is required to organize and carry out programs to meet the needs of the CB user population.

He noted that the ruling also affects individual REACT members who may now deduct their out-of-pocket costs of REACT participation from their personal federal income tax returns.

LOANS DOWN

According to the weekly survey conducted by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, gross loans at 27 of the large commercial banks in the Fifth Federal Reserve District decreased $24,237,000 during the week ending Sept. 15, lowering the total outstanding to $16,725,474,000.

Loans to domestic commercial banks decreased $74,428,000 while loans other than those to domestic commercial banks, or loans adjusted, gained $50,191,000. Demand deposits increased $20,931,000 and time deposits rose $3,544,000. Investments climbed $54,841,000.

OFFER APPROVED

Servomation Corp. announced that its board of directors has approved a proposed offer to purchase 700,000 shares of its common stock at $17.50 per share net to the seller in cash.

On Sept. 14, the closing sale price of Servomation stock on the New York Stock Exchange consolidated tape was $15 and one-eighth per share, and there were 4,779,161 shares of Servomation Common stock outstanding.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

The board of First Union Corp. declared the regular quarterly cash dividend of 23 cents a share, payable Dec. 20 to shareholders of record Nov. 15.

The dividend is equal to the last quarterly dividend paid on Sept. 20, and to the dividend paid on Dec. 15.

First Union Corp. is a one-bank holding company, whose principal subsidiaries are First Union National Bank and Cameron-Brown Co.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, fortified by hopes for easier money, cracked through the 1,000 level in the Dow Jones industrial average this past week in the busiest trading in nearly six months.

The closely watched Dow, made up of 30 blue chip stocks, rose 14.21 to 1,009.31, hitting a 3½-year closing high of 1,014.79 along the way.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed .53 to 106.80, and the New York Stock Exchange's composite index of more than 1,50 common stocks gained .33 to 57.02.

The primary subject of attention on Wall Street was the monthly meeting on Tuesday of the Federal Reserve's policy-setting Open Market Committee.

What actually happened at the meeting wasn't known, of course, since the committee doesn't reveal its decisions until several weeks after they are made.

But many traders were going on the theory that the Fed might be inclined to relax its credit policy a bit, encouraging a decline in interest rates, in order to give the economic recovery a boost.

Those hopes flagged a bit late in the week with the issuance of the Fed's weekly money and banking report, which showed a record jump in the basic measure of the money supply.

But after a brief round of selling Friday morning, the market steadied, reassured by the continuing spread of a quarter-point reduction in the bank prime lending rate to 6¾ per cent despite the Fed figures.

The Dow posted a net gain in only one of the week's five trading sessions — on Tuesday as the Open Market Committee met. But that one gain was a 20.28-point jump, the best daily showing by the average in more than a year.

And it easily outweighed fractional declines Monday and Wednesday, a 3-point loss on Thursday and a 1.49 drop Friday.

An important factor in the hesitant trend late in the week was the government's report that new orders for civilian capital goods such as factory machines, as well as for other durable goods, declined last month.

The capital-goods data came as an unpleasant surprise to traders who had been looking for an upsurge in corporations' spending for new plants and equipment.

Not surprisingly, stocks of companies that produce factory machinery encountered some selling on the news.

Another issue hit by selling pressure was Standard Brands, which said it didn't expect its earnings this year to show any appreciable gain over 1975.

The weekly tally of NYSE issues showed 1,139 gainers and 673 losers among the 2,096 traded.

Mexico Imposes Price Controls

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government has imposed new price controls and recommended hefty wage hikes to offset the instant inflation that hit Mexico with the devaluation of the peso. As a result, organized labor has called off a general strike.

The economic package ordered Friday by President Luis Echeverria means prices that have risen 20 per cent or more in the past month will be rolled back to 10 per cent increases, while workers receive wage boosts of 16 to 23 per cent.

Echeverria's program to stabilize the national economy came as Mexico's labor unions were threatening a nationwide strike for next Tuesday because their wages could not keep up with the rampaging inflation.

On Aug. 31, Echeverria decided to let the Mexican peso "float" on international money markets after it had been tied at a set exchange rate with the U.S. dollar for 22 years. The peso's value plunged from 12.50 to 19.90 to the dollar, jolting the Mexican economy.

The devaluation was aimed at boosting exports and tourism by making Mexican goods and services cheaper for buyers with foreign currencies. But it induced an almost overnight inflation by making imported goods considerably more expensive.

Shopkeepers marked up prices sharply, and labor leaders immediately demanded pay boosts to meet the skyrocketing cost of living.

The new pay guidelines, "strongly recommended" by Echeverria and expected to be followed by most employers, are retroactive to Sept. 1.

Workers receiving the equivalent of $118 to $502 a month will get 23 per cent raises, those making $503 to $1,005 will get 21 per cent increases, and those in the highest bracket will received 16 per cent.

This means that a factory worker earning the federal minimum wage of $3.93 a day — or $118 a month — will get 90 cents a day more.

Leaders of labor and business organizations said they were unhappy with the new program but would go along with it.

After the government announcement, the rubber workers' unions immediately signed a contract with the nation's five tire manufacturers. Other unions were expected to follow suit.

The new price controls permit only a 10 per cent maximum increase over Aug. 30 prices for an expanded list of essential goods and services.

Echeverria broadened a previous list of 34 controlled items to 117, including most basic foodstuffs and such diverse items as funeral parlor rates, cement, explosives and household appliances. The government said the new controls would be strictly enforced and violators could receive jail terms of up to three months and fines of up to $2,500.

The new controls mean, for example, that the price of a pound of ground meat, which since Aug. 31 has risen to 12 pesos from 10 pesos, would be cut back to 11 pesos.

Yugo Tourism

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Yugoslavia took in $216 million from tourists in the first five months of the year, 12 per cent more than during the same period in 1975, the Tourism Ministry said.

This Communist nation earned a record $780 million from tourism in 1975 and ministry officials are predicting a similar influx of hard currency from tourists this year.

Book On Petroleum

Geologists, environmentalists, businessmen and concerned laymen will be interested in a book consisting of compilations of official argument about the American Oil Industry.

Published by the American Petroleum Institute, The Future of American Oil: The Experts Testify, contains articles by 14 authorities—professors, economists, financial experts—from leading universities and from other major American institutions.

Material in this book has been gathered in original form from testimony given before a Congressional body on two major issues—a bill to legalize divestiture/disemberment of integrated oil companies in the U.S., which would limit these companies to only one aspect of petroleum development; and a proposal to prevent the oil companies from participating in developing other sources of engery.

Tables, charts and graphs and a generous index clarify this technical work on a subject of primary and continuing interest.

Interested persons can order a copy from: American Petroleum Institute, 2101 L. Street, Northwest, Washington, DC 20037. The price is $6.95.

Pioneer In Solar Heating Of Homes

DISTRICT HEIGHTS, Md. (UPI) — Harry Thomason is a crusading solar pioneer, father of perhaps the first economical system to heat houses with sunlight.

Thomason — wiry, intense and graying a bit at the age of 55 — lives in a four-bedroom rambler in this Washington suburb that looks like it has a greenhouse on top.

That "greenhouse" is a bank of solar heat collectors 16 feet high and 60 feet long on the tall, sloping south roof. It provides from 75 to 90 per cent of the house's heat, keeping it a comfortable 68 degrees Fahrenheit even in freezing weather. Supplemental heat comes from an oil furnace, but even at today's high prices Thomason's winter fuel bill stays under $100.

The house and its solar heating system are Thomason's own design. Since that house was completed he has built three others in the Washington area, each better than the last. The newest needs only an oil-fired water heater to supplement the solar panels.

There are almost 200 other Thomason-designed homes scattered across the nation from Bend, Ore., to Colorado Springs, Col., to Woonsocket, R.I.

Some were built by individuals who bought the plans for as little as $25 through the Edmund Scientific Corp. Others were put up by developers who passed Thomason's rigid screening to win their licenses.

Royalties from the licenses, from the plans, from solar seminars and from books he has written bring Thomason an income of about $25,000 a year. But it was an uphill battle to get where he is today.

Bureaucrats and industrialists scoffed at Thomason's inventions. Even today he is a controversial figure within the solar community.

"At first the government disbelieved what Thomason was trying to tell us," William Hirsch of the Energy Research and Development Administration told UPI. "But as time goes on, it's beginning to look like he really has something."

Dashing into a barn to escape the cold rain, he felt warm water dribbling from the rusty sheet metal roof onto his head. The idea was born like "a flash of genius," he said. Run water down a sun-baked surface, catch it in a container and use its warmth to heat a house.

New Entry In Bidding For Stately Home Funds

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The Stately Home League season is drawing to a close and one of the comparative newcomers, the Marquess of Hertford, is happy to report a new record attendance for his magnificent mansion, Ragley Hall in Warwickshire.

The Stately Home League consists of those great country houses whose owners have opened their gates to paying visitors to meet expenses never foreseen when their ancestors built on a scale that branded anything under 50 rooms a bungalow.

In this small coterie, where blood lines intermingle like a tourist road map and names are rarely spoken the way they are written, Hugh Edward Conway Seymour (pronounced Seamer), Marquess of Hertford (pronounced Harford) is not yet a threat to the giants.

But Lord Montagu at Beaulieu (pronounced Bewley) and the Marquess of Tavistock at Woburn (pronounced Woo-burn) Abbey, the league leaders, are keeping a sharp eye on him. And with good reason.

They know his family history of dukes, marquesses and earls as well as he knows theirs — all part of the history of England, you see — and they know the Seymours are a romantic lot who even took the motto, "By Faith and Love." They were rich because they were around, 800 years ago or thereabouts, and acquired vast landholdings.

But businessmen? Never.

The first Earl of Hertford infuriated Queen Elizabeth I by marrying Lady Katharine Grey, sister of the unhappy Jane Grey, the "Nine Day Queen" and he and his wife were imprisoned in the Tower of London where she died and he eventually got free by paying the then enormous fine of 15,000 pounds sterling.

Nothing daunted, the impetuous second Earl eloped with Arabella Stuart, cousin of King James, who sent a fast ship in pursuit of her slow boat to France. They were also clapped into the Tower where Arabella died. Hertford was later freed.

The present (and eighth) Marquess winces when he talks about Richard, the fourth Marquess, who held the title from 1842-1870. He fathered an illegitimate son, Richard Wallace, and on his death left him everything except Ragley, a castle in Wales and some property. Wallace then ignored the family and left his inheritance to the nation. It is regarded as one of the most valuable single gifts ever made by an individual to his country.

Had Wallace done the decent thing and turned the estate back to the Seymours they might never have had to open 300-year-old Ragley Hall on a regular business basis although many of the great houses have permitted visitors for generations. Woburn has been showing folks around since 1780 but in the old days it was everywhere by appointment or invitation only.

"Wallace's bequest is now known as the Wallace Collection and a mansion in London to house it went with the gift," said the present Marquess. "I would hesitate to put a value on it but I suppose something around 100 million pounds ($180 million).

"Of course," he said, brightening a bit, "death duties nowadays would probably be so high you would only inherit about one million pounds ($1.8 million)."

He is amusingly informative about his family. The wife of the 2nd Marquess was apparently more than a friend to King George IV but was unable to see herself in that light.

"Intimately as I have known the King," she once said, "he has never ventured to talk to me about his mistresses." The third Marquess was immoral and debauched and his Italian wife was a great heiress because two rich men each thought they had fathered her.

And, of course, there were some who were powerful in their time — Lady Jane Seymour, one of the six wives of King Henry VIII; Thomas Seymour, Lord High Admiral of England, beheaded for treason on the orders of his brother, Somerset, who himself died on the scaffold soon afterwards. They now lie together under the altar of the Chapel of the Tower of London.

So when the present Marquess and his wife, the Princess de Chimay, announced their intention of restoring Ragley to its old glory and opening it to the public the rest of the owners of historic houses mindful of the above were not impressed.

"We passed our record of 70,000 with 10 days left of the season," said the 45-year-old Marquess.

He knows the competition is keen. Woburn has one of the finest private zoos in the world. Lord Beaulieu has a famous museum of antique motor cars. The Duke of Marlborough (pronounced Maulbro) at Blenheim (pronounced Blenem) Palace has the room in which his kinsman Winston Churchill was born. Carnivals, wild west shows, simulated battles, cafes, restaurants, brochures — the methods of converting tourists to cash are legion.

Ragley Hall is basically a beautiful house with fine paintings, treasures and lovely grounds around a lake.

The Marquess serves meals and teas in a restaurant or cafeteria. Prices range from 35 cents for children's admission to $85 for dinner, bed and breakfast. You can have dinner in the State Dining Room for about $36 a head and in the Great Hall for $45 a head.

"We rent out the Great Hall for daytime or evening functions at from $180 to $450," he said, "which is reasonable compared to the $1800 it costs for a marquee. On a smaller scale I've started selling fishing permits for the lake at $1.40 a day. I was pleasantly surprised to find this brought in $1800," he said.

The stately homes have suffered in the general recession but Hertford is undaunted.

"In the atmosphere of gloom and despondency that seems to prevail among the owners of historic houses faced with inflationary costs and shattering new taxation," he said, "I seem to be almost alone in remaining optimistic.

"But as my financial advisers frequently remind me I must have been optimistic to the point of extreme folly when my wife and I began the restoration of over 100 derelict rooms exactly 20 years ago."

Another reason for his optimism might have been the fact that under six acres he owns near Ragley are Roman ruins the government wishes to preserve. The talk is that he will get $360,000 in compensation.

Mine Still Run By Prospector

NEW MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — "People look down on prospectors in Connecticut," says an 86-year-old man who has been operating the Merryall Mine for the last 32 years.

"They think it's an old man with a mule. I'll show you the mule we got," said Howard Hewitt, pointing to a large backhoe digging a drainage ditch through the open-pit mine in New Milford.

The mine, also known as the George Roebling Mine, is a fairly quiet place now compared with other periods in its nearly 100-year history.

At one time, 35 men worked there. Now there is Hewitt, a part-time backhoe operator and Joe Courtright of Haddam, who has worked there for 18 years.

The mine was opened in 1880 for feldspar and mica. In 1886 and 1887, about 4,000 semi-precious gems were cut. Hewitt said sales of beryl, a crystal, from the mine have been spotty lately.

"He's trying to prove a point," said Courtright. "There's good stuff here and I believe it. There's good beryl here, vital to the country."

He and Hewitt claim the Vietnam war was fought over U.S. mining interests in beryl. And Hewitt, a New Jersey resident, said whoever runs out of beryl first will lose World War III. Beryl is the base for a variety of metals used in spaceships.

Hewitt was the eldest of 16 children. After his father died and his mother was confined to a wheelchair, he raised his brothers and sisters. He sold mining journals and began prospecting for oil and beryl.

Operations at the mine lapsed after 1900 and the mine caved in three years later. Work resumed in 1936 when about one ton of beryl was taken from the mine. Hewitt took over the mine in 1944.

Blasting in the past ruined a lot of beryl and now it is sometimes found in rock junkpiles. Hewitt said he used to sell a lot of beryl to the government.

He said electric companies bought minerals taken from the mine. He also said he got some income from feldspar, used to keep pottery and china from cracking with age.

Hewitt's age and infirmities keep him from going into the mine pit so he uses a cane fitted with a scoop to poke around on the surface.

"It's his life," said Courtright. "We all become a slave to something, I guess, and this is his."

Family Size Is Deciding Factor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Family size rather than family income often is the determining factor in the amount of electricity used by the average household, according to a survey of some 60,000 customers of General Public Utilities Corporation in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

It was found that the average size of families using 200 or less kilowatt hours of electricity a month was 2.1 people, compared with 3.5 people in families using 500 to 750 kilowatt hours a month, and four people in families consuming over 1,000 kilowatt hours monthly.

The survey also showed that substantial numbers of high-income families use less electricity than many low-income families, largely because of family size.

Art Included In Ranch Book

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas A and M University Press has published a book, "Old Ranches of the Texas Plains," which includes 80 paintings by West Texas artist Mondel Rogers.

The publication is the first in the Joe and Betty Moore Texas Art Series. The Moores contributed $75,000 to A and M's scholarly press.

Stereo Induces Most Patents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More inventions are being patented for quadraphonic or four-channel stereo sound than for any other technology, according to a study here.

During the 1973-75 period, patent activity in this field grew at an annual rate of 112.2 per cent, or about 49 times the average for all other technologies combined, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., a nonprofit edducational group dedicated to preserving patent rights as an incentive to innovation and creativity.

Art Of Bonsai Reflects Oriental Heritage

Of the many Oriental arts, one of the most esthetically rewarding is "bonsai," a method of dwarfing trees which can produce an exact replica of a full-grown tree in miniature.

The art of bonsai is a very exact one, having developed over several centuries. The result is a plant (often a tree) which looks far more ancient than its true biological age.

Bob McKnight of Sunshine Garden Center creates bonsai plants for sale and is familiar with the art itself.

"Japan was so heavily populated (when bonsai started) that there was little space," McKnight said, discussing the origin of bonsai. "To commune with nature they had to dwarf it so they could fit it into their surroundings."

This dwarfing of nature led to the art of saikei, the recreation of nature in a scene (trees by a stream, plants complemented with rocks, etc.) Bonsai itself is the miniaturization of plants only.

A third related art is bonkei, the recreation of a landscape or seascape with less emphasis on the use of living plants.

Even in 1847 the art was spreading to the West. A report from Robert Fortune, an agent for the Royal Horticultural Society, included this:

"The dwarfed trees of the Chinese and Japanese have been noticed by every author who has written upon these countries and all have attempted to give some description of the methods by which the effect is produced. The process is in reality a very simple one . . . We all know that anything which retards in any way the free circulation of the sap, also prevents to a certain extent the formation of wood and leaves. This may be accomplished by grafting, by confining the roots, withholding water, bending the branches, or in a hundred other ways, which all proceed from the same principles. This is perfectly understood by the Chinese and they make nature subservient to this particular whim."

"Bonsai, Saikei and Bonkei," by Robert L. Behme (published by William Morrow and Co.), is an excellent source of cultural history on bonsai. For instance, he suggests that the art began before the 11th century in China, where the plants were called "p'en tsai." Bonsai trees were depicted in 13th and 14th century scrolls.

The term "bonsai," according to Behme, originated in a famous nursery center near Tokyo, Azakusa Park, in the mid-1800's. Growers there also began turning to nature for inspiration in styling and shaping trees.

Among the earliest Western exhibitions were those in London and New York in 1909, Behme notes. This was probably the first time most Americans had seen bonsai trees.

He adds that the bonsai method is based on growing a plant in a minimal amount of soil with fast drainage, carefully planned pruning and sometimes wiring of the branches or trunks.

Method

McKnight said he does little wiring and generally only trims a plant's roots once. He usually starts with a partially grown tree, or sometimes a young plant if he is using a houseplant. With ordinary garden tools he clips and trims the tree until it ages before an observer's eyes. He uses a "sixth sense" to decide what the most pleasing shape would be, then molds the tree to his mental image. A pot or tray is selected to complement the bonsai tree.

"Some people don't have the esthetic eye to look at something and decide what it ought to look like when they get done," McKnight said. "What a bonsai is is an illusion of nature. The age is told by the tree, not by how long it has been potted or wired."

McKnight uses junipers and pines for most of his bonsai trees because they can be kept inside easily. He chooses a shrub which he thinks will make a good bonsai, then shapes it to imitate the tree in its larger, more mature form. If wire is used to shape a tree, it is generally to produce a gnarled, more aged effect. However, for a tree to properly retain a shape created by wire, the tree should remain wired in that position for at least eight to ten years, depending on the type of tree used.

McKnight doesn't use wire very often, and part of the reason is the time element. When he creates a bonsai tree he tries to keep it in his workshop for 30 to 45 days to be sure the plant will remain healthy and will continue to grow. But many times a plant marked with a "not for sale" sign has been sold to an eager customer before its "observation" period is up.

Most of McKnight's bonsai plants are in the $10 to $30 range. A bonsai may cost as much as $2,500, he said, if it has been tended for generations. A jade plant may cost $8 or $9, a juniper about $25 and a maple $15 to $18.

Personal Formula

His personal formula for care is "empathy for the plant," a sense of the plant's individual requirements. Most bonsai need to be watered often but do not require misting.

"Before you buy one you should have a sixth sense to tell what a plant needs," he remarked. However, customers are generally given a sufficient amount of instruction in bonsai care when they buy his creations.

"They are fairly hardy," he added, dispelling a popular belief that bonsai are extremely delicate. "Usually the species itself (such as a pine) is very hardy. But they need to be watered every day or every other day, and the deciduous ones should be kept outside."

He noted that bonsai plants do not have to have their roots clipped constantly for the plants to stay about the same size and shape. Transplanting should not be done either, as it tends to increase growth considerably.

McKnight, although first introduced to the art of bonsai while living in the Far East, learned the techniques he uses from a book. He has practiced the art about four years but does not try to keep up with current bonsai clubs such as the American Bonsai Society, Bonsai Clubs International and Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

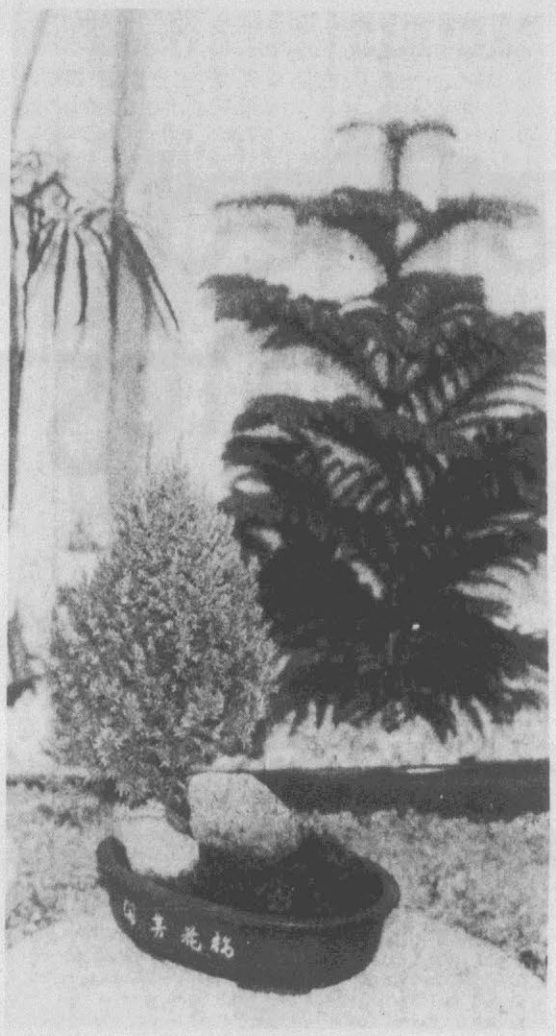
Al Ross of Charlotte, considered one of the outstanding bonsai experts, has made two lectures in Greenville, including demonstrations of how he uses copper wire to shape bonsai trees.

McKnight expects the bonsai business to pick up in the fall and winter, following a general trend in the plant business.

"This winter it will be the bulk of my work," he explained. "During the winter there is more control over temperature and humidity (in greenhouses and some homes). Bonsai is a large part of my duties."

He added that any plant which will do well in this area is an acceptable choice for a bonsai. However, a person should be well-informed on the art of bonsai before attempting to train and mold a seedling, shrub or young plant. Several books are available on the subject, including Behme's book; "Bonsai: The Art of Dwarfing Trees," by Ann Kimball Pipe; "Bonsai for Americans," by George F. Hull; "The Art of Growing Miniature Trees, Plants and Landscapes," by Tatsuo Ishimoto; "Bonsai for Beginners," by H.J. Larkin; and "Bonsai: Culture and Care of Miniature Trees" (two editions), by the editors of Sunset Books and Sunset Magazine.

BEFORE AND AFTER—These three plants are all the same type of juniper, yet the one in front on the left is now a bonsai. To start a bonsai from scratch, one might take a shrub like the two potted junipers and then clip the branches and roots to the desired shape. Sometimes wire is used to shape trunks and limbs by wrapping the wire around the part to be shaped and perhaps anchoring the wire in the potting soil.



BONSAI IN FORMAL STYLE—This bonsai tree, planted in an oval dish, is a juniper shaped in an upright formal style. Upright plants grow vertical from the ground. A formal style is distinguished by symmetrical branches which usually taper at the top. In the background is a Norfolk Island pine, which would probably make a good bonsai because pines survive well in this area.

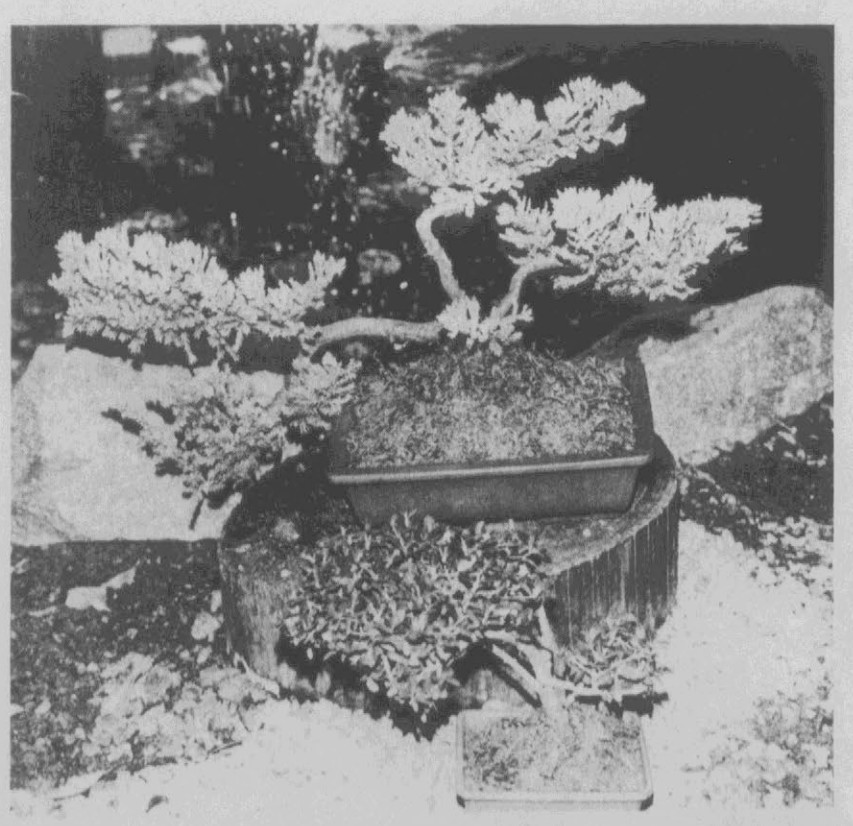
ORIENTAL HERITAGE—The art of bonsai is an ancient one, dating back several centuries. It began in the Orient but has gradually spread to the Western world. The juniper shown here is in the slanting category, with its curved trunk growing at an angle to the rectangular dish in which it grows. Junipers are considered hardy subjects for bonsai.



SAME STYLES—These two bonsai trees are both in the slanting category. The juniper (top) has three main trunks growing at angles to the contained; the center trunk is similar to an informal style, which features an S-shaped curve. The Japanese holly (foreground) is also a slanting bonsai, but it has only one trunk.

THE BEAUTY OF BONSAI—These three bonsai represent the variety of bonsai available to a potential buyer. The ming aralia (left) grows tall and graceful, with delicate leaves, from its hexagonal dish; it is strictly a houseplant. The Japanese red maple (background) also grows at an upright angle from a hexagonal container like the ming aralia, but it is shorter and its leaves are more symmetrical. The Japanese holly (foreground, left) should be able to live outdoors, as most holly trees would.

Common Sponge Now Used In Medicine

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The housewife's common plastic sponge is getting to be as useful in medicine as it is in the kitchen.

To form these sponges, polyvinyl alcohol is converted into a sponge-like substance by foaming agents and then hardened with formaldehyde. The material is inert, compressible by 10-15 to 1 when wet and has a plastic memory so it can resume its original shape when not under pressure. It is compatible with human tissues and the body won't reject it.

The latest application in medicine was devised by three radiologists at the University of Minnesota Hospitals here. Tiny amounts of the sponge are placed on the tip of a catheter and, under x-ray control, inserted in a blood vessel to halt bleeding or to rob a tumor of its blood supply.

Physicians have also used the plastic sponge material as a skin substitute in burn patients, as a nonsurgical closure of a heart channel in newborn babies and as a synthetic material in the early days of heart surgery.

Miss Kathy Harrington Weds Saturday Evening

Miss Kathy Lou Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jasper Harrington of Greenville, and Richard Lynn Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clay Black of Durham, were united in marriage Saturday.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard Kennedy at 8:00 p.m. in the Temple Free Will Baptist Church. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bobby Harrington, sister-in-law of the bride, organist, and Mrs. Doug Randlett, who sang "We've Only Just Begun."

The church altar featured two twenty branch candelabra holding arrangements of white gladioli, chrysanthemums, pom pons and carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of ivory organza over ivory taffeta featuring a Victorian neckline and antique lace trimmed in miniature Venise lace. The bodice was designed with a bib effect of antique lace outlined in ruffled cluny lace and the Venise lace trim and centered with hand-sewn pearl beads in a scalloped pattern with miniature Venise lace flower appliques centered with pearls. The long fitted lace sleeves were beaded in the same pattern with ruffled cuffs of cluny lace trimmed in Venise lace. The princess line gown featured an attached cathedral train with the hemline bordered in a flounce of scalloped antique lace trimmed in Venise lace. Sprays of floral Venise lace appliques centered with pearls trimmed the skirt front and train.

Debbie Goodson of Greenville was the honor attendant and wore a formal length gown of shrimp chiffon over shrimp taffeta designed with an open V-neckline accentuated by a double capelet collar. The sleeveless gown featured a cascading ruffle of chiffon that extended down one side of the flared A-line skirt. The hemline was edged in a ruffle flounce of chiffon. She carried a single tropicana rose with matching ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Janet Fisher and Ginnie Anderson of Greenville, and Deborah Black of Durham, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed like the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Kenneth Black of Durham, brother of the bridegroom, Stevie Harrington of Greenville, nephew of the bride, Worley Warren of Robersonville, and Joe Ayers of Oak City.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of aqua mist chiffon with long sleeves and V-neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length gown of beige polyester with a sheer chiffon jacket with floral embroidery.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride graduated from Rose High School and attended ECU. The bridegroom graduated from Durham High School and attended NCSU.

Punch was poured by Mrs. Don May and cake was served by Mrs. Roscoe Heath. Mrs. Norman Hardee presided at the register.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

One doesn't like to make trouble among the sexes, but I firmly believe mothers of sons age faster.

That information comes right out of the aging mouths of mothers of sons. According to them, boy babies are born with an extra gene. You would recognize the technical name right away if I told you, but generically it's called the "Drive You Nuts!" gene (DYN)

The DYN gene is fully developed at birth, allowing a 50-pound toddler to pull over an entire bookcase, heave a bowl of cereal 500 feet and flush a pair of orthopedic shoes down the commode.

The DYN never stops working. One mother of 11 sons (a young woman—she looked like Jane Goodall left out in the sun for dead) said she never had a moment's peace from the time they rode a wagon down the front stairs and broke two steps to lifting the lid of the washer and discovering 27 soggy worms and one empty band-aid can. She confessed she kept a pint of bourbon in the trash compacter since she knew the boys would never discover it there.

Another mother of a 17-year-old with an overactive DYN gene said her son ran over a teacher's car . . . with his feet. One day the P.E. class had a race to the field. When he saw the top of the car (which was parked on a lower level) he used it as a shortcut and walked over the roof. Later, his 13½ shoe size and 157 pounds matched the $267 worth of damages perfectly. If something like this could happen when he's on foot, she mused, think what will happen when he starts to drive the car.

And what mother of a son with a DYN gene has not cringed when her son was hired in a fancy restaurant as a bus boy. One reported the specialty of the restaurant that employed her son was fish, lobster, shrimp, crab, etc., all served in a bucket for two. He dropped it right in the lap of an elderly gentleman.

"The customer was great about it," she said. "Excused himself and came back 10 minutes later completely dressed in a change of clothes. It made me wonder how this man knew he was going to meet my son."

What these women are saying about sons is true. The aging process is stepped up when a boy child is born. If mothers of daughters want to challenge that statement, they're welcome.

But I should know. I have two sons. As to why I look so eternally young . . . I eternally lie.

On The Young Side

By JANET GANTT

The homecoming spirit has already captured many students at Rose High School. An election to select a theme for the festivities kicked off preparations for the event and various float committees have already begun to work on their designs.

The theme selected for the 1976 homecoming was comic strip characters, which has endless possibilities for floats and the homecoming assembly. Work will culminate Oct. 22, when the Rampants challenge the Northern Nash Knights before the gathered alumni and fans.

Magazine sales for the Student Government Association have not had a large response thus far, but the representatives are confident that sales will increase. The funds that are earned will be used to support homecoming, the junior-senior prom, and other activities of the SGA. Special encouragement was given the student body this week in an effort to increase sales.

NHS MEETING

The National Honor Society held its first organizational meeting of the school year this week. Planning for future projects and formulating a fund-raising drive were the main business topics. Members of the organization are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service and character. The participants anticipate a service project for the school or community in the near future.

The agenda began for Le Circle Francais, the French Club, as the organization met for their initial meeting of the year. A primary purpose of the club is to enlighten its members as they learn more about the French people and their customs.

The Spanish Club also held its first meeting of the year. Activities are conducted throughout the year to promote a knowledge of Spanish culture.

Interested persons in the field of construction or industrial design are invited to join the Industrial Arts Club. An organizational meeting was held by the club during the week, but membership is still open to those who are interested.

Would-Be Suicide Credits Abby

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just can't believe that you took the time to write me a personal letter. I know it wasn't a form letter because you addressed me by my name several times and even referred to people I told you about in my letter. And when you said, "Please write again. I care," I cried.

Abby, why would anyone want to help me straighten out my rotten mixed-up life? I don't deserve it. Five times people saved me from suicide. Sometimes I wish they'd have let me die—it's so hard to keep saying "thank you."

I am a registered nurse and should be helping people, but instead people are helping me, which makes me feel so guilty.

I have a fantastic new psychiatrist who acts as though he really cares about me. I don't know why anyone would care if I lived or died. I'm not pretty or smart or productive. I'm a burden and a problem to everyone who knows me. But this doctor makes me feel so great.

Is life worth living to feel great for only one hour a week? Help me.

FINISHED AT 24

DEAR "24": You're far from finished. You're just beginning to realize how precious life is. Every human being who reaches out for help wants it—and deserves it. It's always darkest just before the dawn. Hang in there, and don't let your doctor (or yourself) down. You can make it if you try. I'm counting on you.

DEAR ABBY: My father is a minister and has been associated with Alcoholics Anonymous, so I am familiar with the effects of drinking. Consequently, I have developed a bias against alcohol in any form. I will not drink it or pay for it at any time. Since I am a male college student who enjoys dating and patronizing good restaurants, this presents a problem.

As soon as I enter a restaurant with a date, the waiter asks if we want a cocktail. When we order dinner, the waiter asks if we want wine. After dinner, an afterdinner drink is suggested. I don't want any, but what about my date?

Do I tell her that if she wants to drink she will have to pay for it herself? Or must I compromise my principles for her "benefit"?

TEXAS TEETOTALER

DEAR TEET: Refusing to pay for alcoholic beverages as a matter of principle is your right, but you should explain this to your date in advance. You may lose a few girls who don't share your bias, but I guarantee you'll wind up with another teetotaler in the end.

CAMEL RIDE — Arlene Murphy was treated to a camel ride on the island of Rhodes, Greece. She was in the city of Dodecanese on a trip with other ECU alumni. In the background is a modern seashore area. The side of the island where she was pictured is about 15 miles from Turkey.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"Experience is the best teacher."

That may become Arlene Murphy's motto, but she has added a new meaning to it. Ms. Murphy is a sixth grade social studies teacher at Stokes-Pactolus School who is now teaching a unit on Greece by applying her own personal experiences — in Greece.

Since the school year started she has spent many hours recreating her trip for her pupils with pictures, slides, books and a logbook she kept on the trip. The students are now working on projects of their own — booklets, map studies, displays, bulletin boards, etc. The students will also present their information to the other sixth through eighth grade classes at Stokes-Pactolus.

"The response has been overwhelming," Ms. Murphy said recently. "The kids have been to Greece with me. They have been so excited about Greece."

The students' projects are based on her experiences plus their own research. The approach is a unique one, although she has been teaching Greece as her first unit for eight years.

She became interested in the trip, as a former history major, through a brochure sent out by the ECU Alumni Association. The brochure offered a group trip to Greece and made it sound so enticing that she decided to go with them (as an ECU alumna).

The trip, from Aug. 22-31, included four days in Athens, a cruise of four Aegean islands and then one more day in Athens.

"It was my first trip abroad," she explained. "I was very excited. The experience overwhelmed me. Each time I saw something new, I wished my loved ones could see it, too."

The ECU group met several other groups in Baltimore, where they left (about 250 persons in all) for Athens. The flight took 11½ hours, with a refueling and recatering stop in Ireland.

Once in Athens, they checked into the Grande Bretagne Hotel in the downtown section. They exchanged their American money for "drachma" and were briefed on customs, etc.

On the first night they traveled by cablecar to a restaurant overlooking the city of Athens. "It was a beautiful sight," she remarked. "For dinner we had stuffed vine leaves, which were delicious, with baby lamb, various vegetables, Greek salad and bread. I tried the Greek coffee, which is very thick and sweet, but I didn't like it. It was either that or Nescafe."

She visited the Parthenon the next day. "It stands like a crown on top of the hill of the Acropolis," she said. "It dominates Athens. To be standing there was breath-taking. From the Acropolis you can see the modern city and the ancient city with its monuments and ruins." That night dinner was squid, octopus and barbecued red snapper at a seafood restaurant.

She shopped in the "flea market" with its narrow streets lined with shops selling various articles. She bought a pair of size 40 sandals there for 120 drachma (size 9, about $3.60).

At one meal she tried the native drink "ouzo" which tasted, in her opinion, like licorice-flavored paregoric.

In the city of Delphi she visited the temple of Apollo, the Sacred Way (a pathway leading to the temple) and a museum.

During her last night in Athens she visited the Plaka area, went to several taverns and restaurants and was entertained by native dances and music.

Her island cruise took her first to Mykonos, famous for attracting international artists with its beautiful scenery. The second island stop was Rhodes, where she saw the Medieval City, the Palace of the Grand Masters and a ceramic tile factory in which tiles are hand-painted.

On ship that night she received a special invitation to dine at the captain's table, along with many others from places all over the world. "He spoke English and was really a card," she laughed. "He was very nice." After dinner the ship's stewards performed native dances in one of the lounges. (She later got seasick because of turbulence due to a storm.)

On the island of Crete she went to the palace of Knossos, excavated ruins. Her last stop was on "the most unique island I've ever seen," Santorini. The edge of the island is a steep cliff and there were only two ways to get up — walk the one and half miles, or ride a donkey. She and the members of her group chose donkeys and were in for a thrilling ride. The white stucco buildings at the top looked like snow from a distance, she said, and the island is reportedly visited by the "jet set" frequently.

She spent a final day in Athens and then headed back for home. One slight mix-up in flights was handled "beautifully" by ECU Alumni Director Don Leggett.

By the time she got back home school had already started. But for the next few days she was "still flying."

Now that she has shared her trip with her students, she said, the experiences are more meaningful and she has re-lived the whole trip. She will use the logbook she kept on the trip as part of the renewal credit for her teaching certificate; she will also write a paper about why the trip benefited her teaching career.

So all in all Ms. Murphy feels the money was well spent. She also hopes to visit Greece again, as well as other countries.

Tripp-Wall Vows Said In Ceremony Friday Night

VANCEBORO—Epworth United Methodist Church was the scene of a candlelight wedding service Friday night at seven o'clock uniting Freddie Sue Wall and William Roger Tripp.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Carson Tyson. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Mable Joyner, organist, and Keitt Sawyer, who sang "O Perfect Love" and the "Wedding Prayer" for the benediction.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wall of Ayden, the bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Wall. She wore a floor length gown of white satin which featured an empire bodice with a scoop neckline. The gown was accentuated with appliques of white lace embellished with seed pearls and sequins. The detachable chapel train was edged in matching lace appliques.

Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to orange blossom petals edged in seed pearls, lace and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby's breath with long white streamers.

The church was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and mums with a fifteen branch candelabra entwined with ivy. The windows featured lighted candles and ivy.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Naomi Cannon of Grifton, and the late Mr. William Tripp. He is now stationed at Fort Eustis, Va.

The maid of honor was Miss Donna Lambert and bridesmaid was Eleanor Wall, niece of the bride. The flower girl was Kimerly Wall, niece of the bride. The attendants wore floor length gowns of flowered organza over pastel colors of blue, yellow and green. They carried matching mums and baby's breath tied with white ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length dress of blue knit with ruffled neck and sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom chose a red and white floor length dress of dotted swiss and white eyelet. The mothers and grandmothers were honored with carnation corsages.

The best man was Ronnie Pate of Vanceboro, and ushers were Harry M. Truman of West Virginia and Kelly Wall of Ayden.

The refreshment table was covered with a yellow linen and lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow mums and daisies with greenery. The three tiered cake was served by Mrs. Doris Wall and Mrs. Gloria Wall poured punch.

Earlinda Meekins Weds Ernest C. Adams Jr.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Laquetta Dawson, organist and vocalist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Meekins Jr. of Greenville, S. C., the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white long sleeved wedding dress with a scooped neckline trimmed in pearls and lace. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a crown trimmed with pearls with lace flowing down the sides. The bride carried a bouquet of white mums.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carlton Adams Sr. of Greenville, N.C.

The honor attendants were Miss Cassandra Griffith of Greenville, S. C., and Mrs. Stephanye Greene of Chapel Hill, N. C. They were dressed in peach empire dresses with matching long ruffled capes.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Lloyd of Durham, N. C., Miss Lavalle Adams of Greenville, N. C., sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Irish Thompson, sister of the bride, Miss Donnetta Ham and Mrs. Treva Irby, cousins of the bride, Miss Henrietta Sweeney and Miss Misty Nance, all of Greenville, S. C. They wore apricot empire dresses with matching long ruffled capes.

Miss Lorinda Tarrant of Greenville, S. C., cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white dress with a ruffled hemline and matching short white cape with an apricot ribbon trimming the waist. The ring bearer was Tracy Griffith of Greenville, S. C.

The bridegroom's best men were Walter P. Smith Jr. of Raleigh, N. C., and James Churchman Jr. of Jersey City, N. J. Ushers were Daniel Worthington of Washington, D. C., David Smith, William Dudley, Darrell Davis and Jay Hagans, and Jimmy Hagans, cousins of the bridegroom, all of Greenville, N.C., and Kenneth Ham of Greenville, S. C., cousin of the bride.

After a wedding trip to West Virginia, the couple will reside in Greenville, N. C. Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of UNC-CH with B.S. degrees in business administration. The bridegroom is a graduate of McAlister Institute, New York City, with a degree in mortuary science. He is employed by Norcott and Co. Funeral Home.

Silos Built Town's Prosperity

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

VESTABURG, Mich. (AP) — This is Silo City, U.S.A., by proclamation of its citizens.

Nobody knows how many people this tiny community near Mount Pleasant really has. Some guess 400, others 700 or 1,500.

But they know it's made plenty of silos in the past few decades.

Theresa is the granddaughter of Harry and Elsie Throop, who back in 1936 started the company that came to be known as the Vestaburg Silo Co. At the pinnacle of its success in the post-World War II agricultural boom, the company's 60 employes built 300 silos a summer.

More important, it trained young men in the right way to build silos. They were hard-working men whom other silo companies in Michigan and the Midwest later would hire to work for them or to sell their silos in Michigan.

Town veterans say almost all of Michigan's silo companies plus others from Wisconsin and Indiana have sales representatives here, most of whom got their start at Vestaburg Silo Co.

The company was sold two years ago. It now makes concrete products and builds no more silos. But former crew members have gone on to start their own companies.

Recently Vestaburg celebrated its annual Oldtimers Day, when oldtimers come back to their hometown. It was at an Oldtimers' Day two years ago that bumper stickers proclaiming Vestaburg "Silo City U.S.A." first appeared, and the name has stuck.

Because the silo staves are the town's biggest industry, visitors see swimming pools, cottages, a band shell and even a recording studio built in the shape of silos from the blocks, which are 30 by 12 by 2½ inches.

The recording silos, called Monotone Studio, are owned by Sid and Bonna Stubbs, who also run Statewide Silo Repair, one of the three silo companies in Vestaburg.

"We figured a round building would hold the sound better, and it does a beautiful job," says Sid Stubbs. His wife acknowledges the studio doesn't keep them too busy since they refuse to record anything but gospel music.

Sid Stubbs' main competitor, Michigan Silo Repair, is run by Arthur Throop, old Harry's son. Both got their training at the Vestaburg Silo Co.

Its crew men, Vestaburg folk say, were mostly single, between 18 and 30, who had to be away from home a lot in the summertime and were unemployed in the winter. They were strong, and had good arm muscles to carry the 74-to-94-pound concrete staves that make a silo.

And, they had only a small fear of heights.

"It was a business a little bit unique," says Ross Throop, who ran his dad's business for almost 20 years after Harry died in 1957.

"It offered a guy who wanted to go to college a chance to work during the summer and earn the next year's expenses. When he got out of high school, he's got maybe $30 in his pocket and hopes to buy a new car. So he gets on a building crew and earns good wages.

"And when he's out there working daylight to dark, he isn't spending any money. So in a few years' time he's accomplished some of what he wanted, and maybe a little quicker that way than working in a shop," says Throop.

Throop, 52, left the silo business and sold the company in 1974, partly on doctors' orders and partly because business went downhill after 1963 as more farmers left the fields and those who stayed built bigger but fewer silos.

In the years before he sold, Throop says, the company was building only 75 silos a summer. Instead of buying a new silo or having a used one moved and rebuilt, farmers took to storing their silage in huge bunkers at a fraction of a silo's cost, Throop said.

Stubbs' sole business is ripping silos down, trucking them sometimes across the state, then putting them back together again.

Throop and Stubbs refuse to predict doom for the silo business, perhaps because they've lived it all their lives. They say there'll always be a living in carting one man's silo across the state to another man's land, in waterproofing a silo or fixing a roof.

Maine Adopts Lobster Sport

By JOAN DEPPA

SPRUCE HEAD, Maine (UPI) — Take 25 lobster traps, those weathered crates used to lure the shellfish into captivity and eventually to gourmet feasts, string them together and float them across the water.

Fill the first eight with seaweed and the rest with lively lobsters. Then see how far you can run across the top of the floating traps.

That's how the new sport invented in Maine this fall got started, although some old timers along Maine's coast claim it's more of a revival than an invention.

Mike Ball, 17, of Spruce Head, who emerged as the record holder in what is believed to be the first organized lobster trap race, said it requires balance and speed.

"When I hit the first traps with the lobsters, they sank a lot quicker and I had to run faster to stay up," the young fisherman said.

He was dumped unceremoniously into the cold waters off Spruce Head Island at the 20th lobster trap, but that was farther than anyone else had run. His nearest rival only made it to the 18th trap.

Ball said the key to staying up is hitting the trap dead center and running fast before it has a chance to tip.

The event was the brainchild of Diane Atwood, 30, whose husband William is a lobster dealer.

"He told me the children were trying to run on the traps (in which he stores lobsters) and said he always wanted to see how far he could run on them," Mrs. Atwood said.

So she suggested they set up the race. It was divided into separate categories for men and women, boys and girls, with 18 years of age as the dividing line. The event had to be postponed twice because of bad weather, but when it finally got underway there was a big crowd of spectators and 16 contestants.

Mrs. Atwood said next year the event will be held much earlier in the year and she wants to try it herself.

Ball said since setting his record, he's talked to a lot of old timers who say the sport isn't all that new.

"They used to do it when they was kids. It's quite fun."

X-Ray Can't Show Snaps

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dr. J. Dutney Hayes, chief of radiology at St. Clair Memorial Hospital, says X-ray pictures do not detect accidently swallowed snap top aluminum closures from beverage cans.

Hayes said within one week this past summer two persons who had swallowed the tops underwent emergency treatment at the hospital, and X-rays failed to reveal their presence.

Dr. Anthony C. Canterna, the emergency physician on duty at the time, decided to test a snap top for density after reviewing the negative reports. He taped one on a patient and had him X-rayed. The report came back negative.

Hayes said some persons deposit the top in the can before drinking from it. If it is swallowed, perforation of the bowel wall can result.

Hays warns people to dispose of the snap top instead of dropping it in the can, and recommends that manufacturers using cans for liquids stamp snap tops with a substance to give them sufficient density to be picked up by X-rays.

Committee Keeps Eye On New Words

INDIANA, Pa. (UPI) — When you come across a new word while reading, the chances are an English professor at Indiana University of Pennsylvania also has noticed it and is tracking it down.

Richard Ray is among 10 members of the American Dialect Society's new word committee. Each member looks for occurrences of new words, or neologisms, in newspapers, magazines, books and on radio and television.

Once a word is noticed it must be checked in four or five dictionaries. If it does not appear in any dictionary, the researcher adds it to his file.

"One night I noticed the word 'celage' in the Indiana Evening Gazette, and it seemed like a word that I had not seen before," Ray said.

"So I checked five dictionaries and didn't find it listed. After looking over the sentence again for the context, I concluded that celage was definitely a new word, a portmanteau (combination) of the words cellulose and silage."

Not all words Ray finds are so new.

"I had come across the word 'Kwanzaa' ... and I thought it seemed like a wonderful word," Ray said. "Eventually I was quite disappointed to find out that though the word was new to me, to Afro-Americans the Kwanzaa is an equivalent of the Christmas holiday."

Those of Ray's students who are interested in his project look for neologisms on their own. He appreciates their interest when they realize that English is not a dead language, but is changing all the time.

"Consider the word 'marathon,'" Ray said. "At one time that was a new word, but now the last two syllables of that word are listed separately under A in the dictionary.

"A-thon has become the ending for everything from dance-a-thon to bounce-a-thon at many college campuses and other places."

Urban Renewal Success On Boston's Waterfront

By STEWART POWELL

BOSTON (UPI) — Gone are the ragged wooden wharves, the jostling, sweating merchants, the smells and men and darkness that put the waterfront of this bustling harbor town off limits for decades.

Scarred, rotten docks that served wooden clipper ships and steel hulled luxury liners alike for two centuries have been repaired.

Government, private enterprise and $140 million have taken the waterfront from the past and given it to the future.

Nearby marketplaces where fresh produce has been sold for 250 years have been restored.

Change for the 104-acre harborfront, including 40 wharves and warehouses, began a decade ago. Most buildings were gutted and modernized from within, leaving red-brick exteriors untouched.

Many visitors to the area express astonishment as they wander through evidence of urban renewal at its best.

For investors, the long awaited harvest has just begun.

"I just don't believe this place," said Bostonian Ken Gurvin, glancing at greenhouse-style glass enclosing merchants' wheel-to-wheel push carts along the outside walls of 150-year-old Quincy Market.

"It's just incredible."

Shops and conflicting smells from adjacent cafe-style food counters crowd the 500-foot long interior of the granite market building, replacing the musty, cluttered butcher shops and wholesalers that packed the building for decades.

The city's second mayor, Josiah Quincy, had the green copper domed market built in 1926 as an "improvement, unexampled in its general character and not to be paralleled for its public utility." Some called it the nation's first urban renewal project.

New construction may not have ignited higher prices for Bostonians then, but the $9.5 million renovation in 1976 has.

Gold plated price tags are common at the market and along the waterfront now that the 20th century and antique chic have arrived.

"I don't know if I'd shop here," said Gurvin, a young financial analyst, "but it's a great place to visit."

The uninhabited warehouse district and the men in tee-shirts that worked it have been replaced by posh apartments housing well heeled men and women tailored collar to cuff.

A harbor view, two-bedroom condomimium in a renovated warehouse with a yacht mooring below may cost $100,000 or more. A one bedroom walkup nearby may cost $450 a month.

The district's population, less than 1,000 six years ago, now numbers more than 3,400.

Low priced, after work cocktail hours at new waterfront restaurants draw customers from business districts blocks away. Many stay in the area for dinner, rather than hike to the center of town for less expensive meals.

A steady stream of interest in the district, evident over the past two years, has turned into a torrent in recent weeks.

On the first weekend the Quincy market was open in late August, thousands of city dwellers dodged thunderstorms to sample the results of years of careful planning. Whether they return remains uncertain.

"I can't afford any of this stuff," complained Marvin Carter, as he headed from the red-bricked sidewalks outside the new market to the familiar, crate cluttered Haymarket vegetable market across the street.

Contrast exists between the new market and the Haymarket, a crowded outdoor market that has served the area for decades.

"They cater to different kinds of people as far as I can see," says Louis Jackson, a construction worker with six children who travels weekly from the Mattapan section to haggle at the outdoor market. "I think the two places compliment each other well."

Prices and styles compete. Apples selling for 25 cents a pound at the Haymarket sell for 25 cents a piece across the street at the new Quincy market.

Food is the mainstay of Haymarket. Antiques, bric-a-brac and handicrafts fill the tables outside the renovated market.

The prices at Haymarket are shouted and haggled as they have been along the waterfront for centuries.

Easy Street In North Carolina

EASY STREET, N.C. (AP) — There is an Easy Street. It's in eastern North Carolina and it got its name years ago from the looks of men lolling and chatting at a country store, something they still do.

Find the intersection of North Carolina 96 and 55 in northern Sampson County, walk into Godwin's store — the unofficial town hall — and you are in Easy Street. The soft drink sign on the store proclaims the name of the community, although there is no highway sign marking it, it's not on the official state map, although it would like to be. "About 40 years ago," says Alphonzo Godwin, the community's unofficial mayor, "I had another store right over yonder and Uncle Frank Maynard walked in one day and there was about a dozen boys lying around taking it easy.

"Well, Uncle Frank said, 'This must be Easy Street,' and the name just stuck after that."

The approximately 200 residents of Easy Street have to work for a living just like everybody else.

"My wife runs this store, and I farm, and between the both of us working, we get by," said Godwin. "Most folks around here farm for a living."

He added that most folks enjoy life in Easy Street. And since it is unincorporated, there are no town taxes to pay.

There's one problem — no official sign.

"Timothy's (another community) got one and there ain't a dozen people over there," Godwin said. "I don't know why the county won't put us up a sign here so we can get on the map."

A number of folks were in the store taking it easy.

At first, Godwin himself was napping with his Boston terrier curled up beside him. Lola Godwin was watching a soap opera.

The "assistant mayor", Jimmy Denning, was swapping tales with the unofficial policeman, Bruce Lee. Several other men were sitting nearby.

"You going to work now, or are you going to have another drink?", one of the men asked Chris Baggett.

"I think I'll have another drink first," said Baggett. He slipped the empty into a rack and opened a cooler for a full bottle.

The slamming door woke Godwin up.

ECU Institute Receives Grant

The Departmenf of Home Economics Education, East Carolina University, School of Home Economics, has been awarded a grant of $45,886 to develop and conduct a Consumer Education Institute for Junior and Senior High School teachers.

The purpose of the grant, according to Dr. Vila Rosenfeld, Program Director, and Mrs. Mary Jo Nason, Coordinator, is to teach selected consumer education concepts to high school teachers who in turn will teach these concepts in their classes as is appropriate.

Germans Are Still United In Field Of Overeating

By EDELGARD SIMON

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Divided the Germans live, but united they eat — to be precise, they overeat, whether they live in the capitalist west or the communist east.

Thirty years after the super powers divided Germany into two rival states, the men and women on either side of the barbed wire and mine death strips that ribbon the demarcation line have little left in common. But eating habits are an exception.

West Germans, say Public Health officials in Bonn, on the average eat about 20 per cent more calories than they need.

Officials in East Berlin say residents of Communist-ruled East Germany overeat by 11 per cent.

The third "Report on Nutrition" recently published by the West German Health Ministry termed every second West German overweight, although it said statistics do show that the higher a West German climbs up the social ladder the slimmer he tends to become.

Dr. Harald Klingler-Mandig, a nutrition specialist in an East German clinic near Potsdam, declared in an article in the "Neue Berliner Illustrierte" that "obesity has taken on epidemic proportions" in the Communist German state.

He reckoned that 40 per cent of the women, 20 per cent of the men and 15 per cent of the children in East Germany weigh more than they should.

In both Germanies, however, overweight is not merely an aesthetic problem but also a costly medical one.

West German health insurance schemes spend an average 17 billion marks ($6.8 billion) annually to treat illnesses resulting from or connected with obesity, with heart and circulatory disorders topping the list.

East Germany, with only one-third as large a population as West Germany, spends about three billion marks ($1.2) billion) on such treatment per year although, unlike the West German statistic, this figure does not include hospitalization, which is listed separately.

The two states also define being overweight differently.

Bonn's "Report on Nutrition" stamps an overweight label on any person who is at least one pound heavier than his ideal weight. Ideal weight is the height of a person in centimeters less 100, with the difference being what one should weigh in kilograms. Thus a man six feet (1.83 meters) tall should weigh no more than 83 kilograms or 183 pounds.

But the East German experts say overweight begins only after one exceeds his ideal weight by about 20 pounds.

The Germans have broken with their political past, but their ties to traditional German cooking remain strong. Women on both sides of of the demarcation line generally tend to cook rich and starchy foods, as did their mothers and grandmothers.

The highest praise a housewife can pay her husband or son often is that "he is a good eater."

In West Germany, the Federal Ministry of Health stuffs mailboxes with brochures extolling the benefits of low calorie, high-protein meals. A few employers have refused to hire overweight applicants. But no political stigma attaches to an overweight West German.

In East Germany, however, the Communist regime says a person who is overweight contributes to rising medical costs and production shortfalls, and appeals to the "social conscience" of citizens to eat no more than they require.

But almost all East German workers and children in school and kindergarten eat their noon meal in state-operated canteens, whose cuisine is hardly conducive to slimming.

"Cabbage soup, cabbage rolls and sauerkraut, that's what my children get," says Barbara Wohlers, who heads a kindergarten with about 100 youngsters in a small East German town near Halle.

"When they get home, they gobble cakes and sweets," Mrs. Wohlers complains.

Adults confronted with the same canteen food react much the same way, particularly as East Germany is short of other consumer goods on which to spend money.

Most housewives in East Germany also work at some job for eight hours a day. Then they have to stand in line at the stores.

"After that, I am too tired to think about dieting," says Christine Engemann of East Berlin.

And some East German fatties stay that way to spite the Communist state.

"I know it sounds childish and I know I ought to lose several pounds," says Guenther Nagel of East Berlin. "But I will be damned if I do. The state meddles in just about everything we do. I am not going to let anyone tell me what to eat."

Faith And Art 'Hand-In-Hand'

KAMEOKA, Japan (AP) — Twenty-three foreigners, ranging in age from 17 to 42, have wound up a month's intensive study of Japanese culture here in a seminar sponsored by a religion which believes faith and art go hand in hand.

The religion is the Oomoto religious sect, founded by a woman, Nao Deguchi, near the turn of the century. Its headquarters here are on the picturesque ruins of an ancient castle.

Her fifth daughter, Sumiko, married a painter named Onisaburo who took the family name and became one of the leaders of Japanese contemporary art.

Onisaburo Deguchi, who died in 1948 at the age of 77, started with Chinese ink painting then turned to pottery, producing a luminous ware called the Yowan tea bowls, which became internationally appreciated following exhibitions in Europe and the United States.

The sect's present leader is Naohi Deguchi, who commissioned American author and antique dealer David Kidd to serve as director of its first international seminar.

Kidd, a Chinese scholar and former contributor to the New Yorker magazine, said the school's main purpose "is simply to teach the practice of the traditional arts of Japan, rather than to theorize or intellectualize about them."

The 28 students — there were five Japanese — not only studied but practiced such exotic arts as the Noh drama, calligraphy, martial arts, weaving, the tea ceremony and Shinto ritual from early morning until late at night.

The youngest of the foreign participants was 17-year-old Diane Barraclough, an English student. The oldest was 42-year-old Robert D.D. Haas, a Dutch business consultant. Computer programmers, teachers, housewives, librarians, art collectors, sculptors, a professor and a postal employe were among the others. They came from France, the United States, Holland, Brazil, Britain, Canada and Thailand.

Though they did not study it, the model international language, Esperanto, was visible to them in the printed announcements they received. Onisaburo Deguchi introduced it to the sect in 1923.

Kidd, who said the seminar will be an annual one, said: "Oomoto is convinced that the practice of these arts, whether conscientiously spiritual or not, has the power to transform every act of life into art. I myself see a thread running thus to all these arts which links them not only to each other, but to all the traditional arts of the world. That thread is the absence of self..."

With A Dedication And Historic Sites Tour

Big Celebrations Saturday In Tarboro

PARKER-CHESHIRE-HOWELL HOUSE . . . on East Church Street was built by Theophilus Parker about 1810. One of the homes included in "Old Homes and Gardens of North Carolina," the house is now owned by Mrs. W. B. Howell.

PENDER MUSEUM . . . built by Silas Everett near Conetoe. The building was moved to Tarboro and restored by the Edgecombe County Historical Society in 1969. It contains furnishings and artifacts of the area.

Saturday, October 2 will be a banner day in the town of Tarboro, with a morning ceremony marking the completion of restoration work on the old cotton press and a tour of several historic sites.

In a 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. program sponsored jointly by the Edgecombe County Historical Society and the Edgecombe County Bicentennial Commission, the highlight of the day will be the 11:30 a.m. ceremony to observe the completion of the restoration of the cotton press and the Philips dependency.

Now located on the west end of Town Common, the old cotton press restoration was started in the autumn of 1971 under the sponsorship of the Edgecombe County Historical Society and the Town of Tarboro Redevelopment Commission. Financial support for the project came from the Holderness Foundation and from private donations.

More than a century old, the old cotton press was built by Isaac Norfleet, a planter who moved to Edgecombe from Chowan County in the early 1800's.

The Norfleet plantation was on the Wilson road near the present highway. According to the late Dr. L. E. Norfleet, the old press was originally used for many years as a cider and wine press, as at the time of its construction cotton was a minor crop—and remained so until Eli Whitney invented the gin.

Reports are that the conversion of the press from cider to cotton perhaps took place before the middle of the 19th century. From that time on until it ceased to be used, the press was used both for cider and cotton.

Again referring to information supplied by the late Dr. Norfleet, he wrote: "There was a circular trough made from hollowed-out oak logs—in 12 sections made so carefully that they fitted together to form a perfect circle.

"Attached to the long sweeps were rollers. Mules were hitched to thesweeps and drew them around, rolling the apples into a pulp. The pulp was bagged, and then pressed under the screw."

He noted the first juice to flow from the pressed apples was muddy and tasteless. "But," the doctor wrote, "the last drippings were too fine to talk about—how I would like a gallon of it now!"

At the end of a week's time the juice would become hard cider, and to make it stronger, a rusty nail was dropped in, which reportedly ruined the taste but readied the brew for a final step—distillation into brandy.

When the old press was moved from its original site into Tarboro several years ago, it was discovered that the old shingle roof, its most charming feature, was too rotted to use. As a temporary measure, a makeshift "topknot" was built to preserve the great wooden screw of the press.

As years passed, the old cumbersome wooden machine began to show the ravages of time. It was nearing the brink of collapse as well as becoming an eyesore on the Town Common at the time the Edgecombe County Historical Society amd the Tarboro Development Commission came to the rescue.

Through the skills of Merkle Pulley and his assistants, Don Corbett and Russell Brown, the old relic was slowly resurrected. The three made wooden shingles for the roof from cypress logs and replaced rotting timbers.

The restoration of the old cotton press is another accomplishment in restoration work achieved by Pulley. In 1971 he was the recipient of the N.C. Chapter of the American Institute of architects "Craftsmanship Award" for his work on the Taylor-Brinson-Aycock Law Office; the Pender Museum; "The Barracks," and the Norfleet-Jenkins House.

Bicentennial Events Set For Four Days

Edgecombe County's Bicentennial Pageant, which starts today at 8 p.m. in C.B. Martin Stadium here, is rapidly taking shape. The pageant, The Edgecombe Story will feature a cast of over 300 people from all sections of the county; and will depict many local and national historical highlights.

The event will run for four nights, from tonight through Wednesday, with rain dates set for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.It is being produced by the John B. Rogers Co. of Ohio, and directed by Gary Welz. Costumes and special lighting effects are featured in the historical extravaganza.

The project is under the sponsorship of the Edgecombe County Bicentennial Commission, headed by Mrs. V.H. Creech, Jr.

Attendance is expected to be not only from this county, but from many of the surrounding counties. Adequate parking is available at the stadium for all performances.

Admission prices are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

THE RESTORED COTTON PRESS . . . on the west end of the Town Common in Tarboro is being dedicated on Saturday, October 2 in a ceremony to be held at 11:30 a.m. Also being dedicated is the Philips dependency, an adjacent building not shown in this photograph.

Tour To Cover Nine Sites

As part of Saturday's observances, a Tour of Historic Sites is being conducted that will include nine sites in addition to the restored cotton press.

Five of these places are listed in the National Register of Historic Places—"The Barracks;" Coolmore, The Grove Comunity House; Calvary Church and Churchyard; and Pender Museum.

The places scheduled to be included on the day's tour and a brief note about each are:

—Norfleet-Jenkins House—At 1100 Main Street, this is a one story residence designed by Robert Norfleet in 1858. It contains a decorative painting by Edward Zoeller. Restored by Pulley, the house is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clark Jenkins.

—Cotten-Howard-Brinson House—Four of the rooms contained in this house were built prior to 1829 by Spencer Cotten. During the 1850's it became the T. R. Owens School, and in the 1860's was enlarged and Victorianized by Judge George Howard. The house is now owned by Sarah Manning Brinson. It is located at 210 East Church Street.

—Parker-Cheshire-Howell House—At 302 East Church, was built about 1810 by Theophilus Parker. Parker, a merchant and planter, was alsopart owner of the privateer "Snap Dragon" which served in the War of 1812. This house is included in the book, Old Homes and Gardens of North Carolina, and is now owned by Mrs. W. B. Howell.

—Lone Pine—Situated on State Road 1207, Lone Pine is one-half mile south of U.S. 64. Originally built on a bluff overlooking the Tar River near "Bell's Bridge," it was dismantled and moved to its present site and rebuilt about 1859. In 1892, it was the home of William Smith Battle

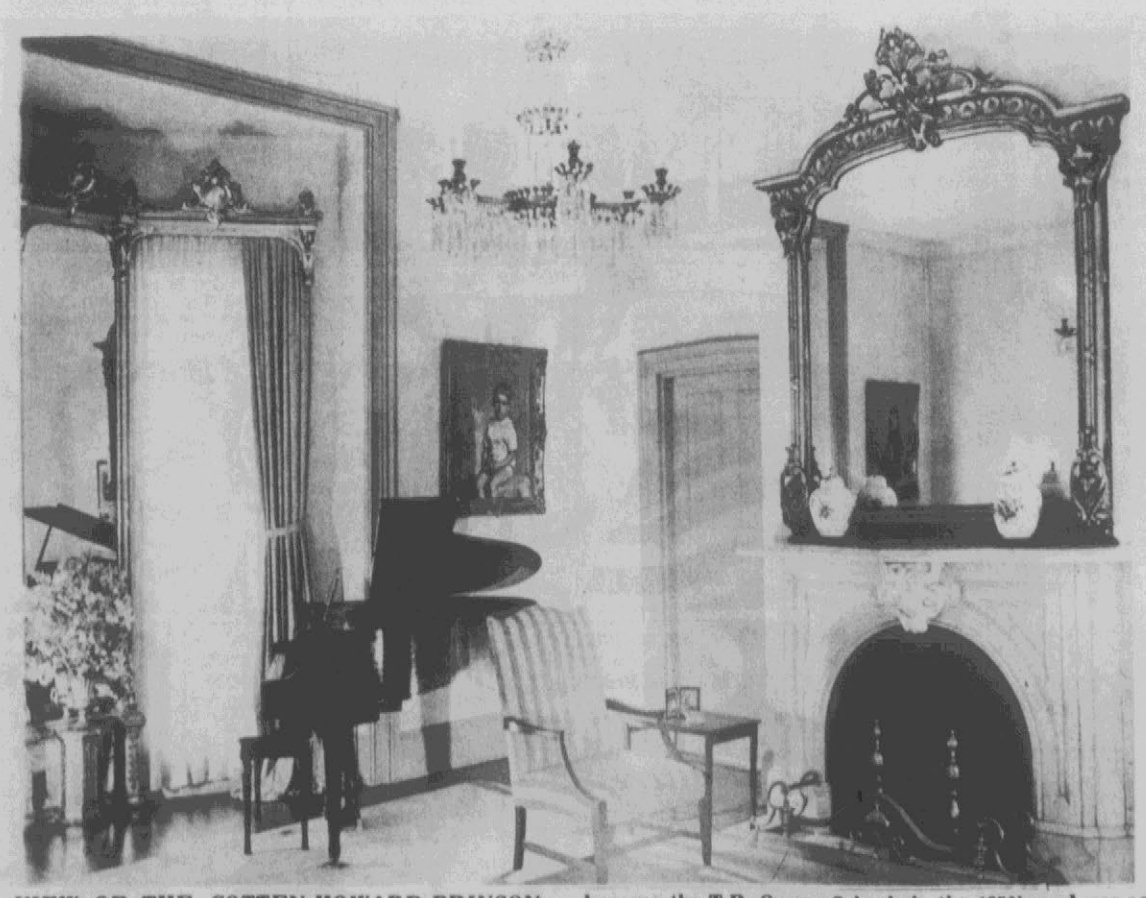
Coolmore—On U.S. 64, one and one-half miles west of Tarboro, is a two story Italianate plantation house built by Dr. J. J. W. Powell in 1857. A polychromed ceiling by Edward Zoeller is a feature in the entrance hall. Still owned by the Powell family, the home has original furnishings and numerous old outbuildings.

The Grove Community House—at 130 Bridgers Street is the home of two generals and a colonel. Built about 1810 by General Thomas Blount, it was later the residence of General Louis D. Wilson and Colonel John L. Bridgers. At this time it is the administrative offices of the Tarboro City School system.

Calvary Church and Churchyard—The church building, designed by William Pervical and constructed by Thomas Coats, was begun in 1860, completed in 1867. The churchyard, an arboretum of foreign and domestic trees, was planted by the Rev. Joseph Blount Cheshire. The church and churchyard are located at 411 East Church Street.

—Pender Museum—Now located at 1018 St. Andrew Street, the Pender Museum was built about 1810 by Silas Everett at an original site near the village of Conetoe. In 1969, the house was moved and restored by the Edgecombe County Historical Society. Furnishings and artifacts of the eastern North Carolina area are contained in the museum, which is open to the public on Sundays and by appointment at other times.

Tickets for the tour are $5.00 per person and are available from the tour headquarters at Pender Museum.



INTERIOR VIEW OF THE COTTEN-HOWARD-BRINSON HOUSE . . . This house is one of two historic Tarboro homes bearing three family names. Built prior to 1829 by Spencer Cotten, it became the T.R. FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, SEPT. 26, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There is marked inability to accomplish the things you would like early in the day, but later you are able to make considerable progress. Consult trusted friends and exchange ideas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find the right means by which you can handle an annoying problem. Strive to have more understanding with loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may disagree with an ally over a matter but later you see eye to eye. Be alert to whatever develops and handle it sensibly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to show appreciation to one who has done you many favors in the past. Plan how to have greater abundance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find a better way to handle a personal matter that means a great deal to you. Show increased devotion to mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use tact at home, otherwise harsh words could be exchanged. Steer clear of whatever has caused friction in the past. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to engage in civic matters and add to prestige. Try to please kin and friends more, and understand your neighbors better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do some careful planning where finances are concerned and make the future brighter. Later study new interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A new philosophical outlook now can easily remove a depressed feeling. Look to the future with more optimism.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Meditation will reveal how best to proceed now and become happier and more successful. Be careful in motion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is the best time for deep study. Afternoon is ideal for visiting friends. Make long-range plans for the future tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid a confrontation with a troublemaker who is jealous of you. Look over your surroundings and make plans for improvement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get together with intelligent persons and listen to their ideas which can be helpful to you. Evening is fine for making plans for the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will gain much valuable experience early in life. Give the finest education you can since there is much depth of thought and understanding here. Difficult problems can be solved easily by your gifted offspring. Don't neglect religious training.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Some news you have been expecting arrives this morning which enables you to make plans for the future. This leaves you with free time in the afternoon and evening to do what interests you.

ARIES [Mar. 21 to Apr. 19] Take care of responsibilities early in the day and then look into new outlets that will help you to advance. Become better informed -- study whatever is of interest to you.

TAURUS [Apr. 20 to May 20] Try to come to a better understanding with partners so that there is more mutual success in the future. Get into some civic work that adds appreciably to your prestige.

GEMINI [May 21 to June 21] Get an early start on the work ahead of you so that you have free time later to be with someone you like. Take care of health matters.

MOON CHILDREN [June 22 to July 21] Morning is best time for enjoyment; then you can tackle chores with new vigor and get them done efficiently. Pleasing a loved one is important now. Avoid one who holds you back.

LEO [July 22 to Aug. 21] Begin week properly by first showing devotion to family and loved ones; then you all share in mutual pleasures in the evening. Any new interest should be studied carefully before getting into it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get out early to keep appointments you have made. Later, you find that the situation at home will become most pleasant. Take care of correspondence and run errands, clear up problems.

LIBRA [Sept. 23 to Oct. 22] You can handle a financial problem candidly and well now. Later, you can enjoy the company of good friends. Aim for more security in life.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23 to Nov. 21] Take extra time in personal grooming so that you make an excellent impression on bigwigs you meet today. Evening is fine for entertaining.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 22 to Dec. 21] Morning hours are fine for reflection and meditation and planning how to improve your position in life. Then full speed ahead on such. Evening is best for improving appearance, rebuilding your energies.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22 to Jan. 20] Take care of business matters early in the day. Then meet with friends. Evening is fine for conferring with a capable adviser.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 21 to Feb. 19] Get pressing business matters out of the way early and you have time left over for being with pals. Credit affairs can be worked out satisfactorily, also.

PISCES [Feb. 20 to Mar. 20] You have some good ideas for a new project you have in mind, but first discuss them with bigwigs. Gain from their ideas.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a persistent person who will make plans for the future early in life. Make sure to give the right ethical and religious training in order to trend the life in the right direction.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Japanese Live In Fear Of A Traffic Accident

By MARIANNA OHE

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese are more frightened of war than burglars, but the thing they fear most is traffic accidents, according to a recent survey.

The poll was conducted by Leisure Development Center, a character rather than talent. Tokyo think tank. It shows almost 60 per cent of all Japanese leave their doors unlocked, but take out life or casualty insurance policies.

They believe defense expenditures are necessary for national security and that politicians should be judged according to

The company sent questionnaires to 3,500 Japanese men and women between the ages of 20 and 70. Replies were received from 1,808.

About 50 per cent of those polled said defense expenditures are a barometer of national security.

Eighty-eight per cent said traffic accidents, viewed as a kind of modern natural disaster, are a menace to life and limb. Eighty-five per cent expressed fear of fire, 77 per cent earthquakes, 68 per cent inflation, 62 per cent typhoons, 62 per cent air pollution, 55 per cent a food crisis and 50 per cent war.

Half of those polled said they fear water shortage, 46 per cent burglary and thunder, 37 per cent epidemics, 33 per cent fascism and 25 per cent discrimination.

The survey showed the Japanese value harmonious personal relations over individuality and independence. Seven out of 10 surveyed said they would think twice about carrying out plans that could be detrimental to the interests of their family.

The same number said good personal relations with clients are essential to successful business, and mutual trust is more important than laws and regulations in solving problems.

A whopping 90 per cent said teachers, judges and politicians should be judged according to their humanity rather than their talent.

The Japanese dislike secrets. Nearly half of the respondents said they are ready to share their personal confidences with whomever they trust, while 75 per cent want business enterprises to be open about their operations.

KY RELAXES — Nguyen Cao Ky, the former South Vietnamese premier, relaxes at his Huntington Beach, Calif., home as he tells a reporter his plan for a communal farm for Vietnamese refugees is off, but he's going to continue speech-making and may get into the restaurant business. (AP Wirephoto)

conserve energy and save money

The amount of money you pay to operate an appliance depends on its wattage. This means that your dollar savings from energy conservation is greater for higher wattage. If you burn a 100-watt light for 10 hours, you use one kilowatt-hour. You can burn a 50-watt bulb for 20 hours for the same cost.

For example, you can burn a 50-watt bulb all night for a penny or two. A 200-watt bulb would cost exactly four times as much.

WE ALSO INCLUDE THE ORIGINAL TARHEEL TOYOTA NEW CAR GUARANTEE 100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS

Every car dealer in the country is talking "dependability" these days. At Tarheel Toyota we've decided to do something about it. A new car warranty that's longer than any other warranty in the world. (exclusively for Tarheel Toyota) Bill Draper can tell you why: "Nobody else in the world has a car like this. I've been in the factory in Japan, I've seen how the Toyota is made, the quality of the workmanship, the integrity and the craftsmanship that go into this car. I know the Toyota inside and out."

Until now most new car warranties haven't been much more than discounts on the car repairs you knew you'd need. Our warranty is our guarantee of faith in the Toyota.

"Nobody else in the world can put this kind of warranty on their car. My faith and my knowledge and experience with Toyota tell me I can do it. Toyota builds an automobile to last."

Our knowledge of the Toyota comes from research, from first hand information from our service department and from a great number of satisfied Toyota customers. For 100,000 miles or 3 years from the day you purchase your new Toyota, we guarantee to replace or repair your motor, transmission and rear end, if they fail under normal driving conditions.

We'll ask you to keep the vehicle properly maintained and we'll ask that you bring it back to Tarheel Toyota for any repairs covered by this warranty. We're offering the 100,000 miles, 3 year warranty in addition to the new car warranty offered by Toyota Motor Sales, USA. It's a promise, a guarantee of Toyota quality. Toyota dependability.

TARHEEL TOYOTA

109 Trade St./Greenville, N.C./Dealer License 3035

OPEN TODAY 1-5 P.M.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel Toyota when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel Toyota and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Asterisk denotes warranted car.)

BROWN & WOOD, INC.

1205 DICKINSON AVENUE
GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA
(919) 752-7111

In 1963, the legend began. Pontiac introduced an entirely new kind of luxury sport. Grand Prix.

And yet even for 1977, Grand Prix is in a class by itself. Because now you can get all the things that made this car great at a surprisingly affordable price.

You can get Grand Prix styling. This year, with a bold, new vertical-design grille and rectangular headlamps. Formal roofline with tastefully monogrammed rear quarter windows. Even an available hatch roof with removable panels that provides you with a ceiling of sky.

You can get Grand Prix comfort. Sink-back full-width seats or available buckets. Driver-angled instrument panel. New luxury steering wheel that's squeezably soft. And deep cut-pile carpeting that extends up the lower door panels.

Best yet, you can get Grand Prix's special brand of performance and handling. Turbo Hydra-matic. Variable-ratio power steering. Power front disc brakes. Radial Tuned Suspension. And Pontiac's all-new 5.0 litre (301 CID) V-8* that incorporates the latest design technology for smooth, quiet response. All this at a price that gives a whole new dimension to the Grand Prix legend.

You can get even more by ordering Grand Prix's luxurious "LJ" or sporty "SJ" models.

Whoever said America's love affair with cars is over has obviously never driven a Pontiac Firebird.

Now in its eleventh year, this great American sport continues to turn casual drivers into raving enthusiasts.

Whether it's the lowest-priced Firebird. The super plush Firebird Esprit. The racy Formula. Or our ultimate sport, Firebird Trans Am. The reaction's the same.

And speaking of Trans Am, just looking at it is enough to make your goose bumps rise. That aggressive new blacked-out grille. All those air dams, spoilers, extractors and deflectors. On our special-edition model, you can even order a sky-opening hatch roof with removable panels.

The excitement builds as you lift the new shaker hood. Because Trans Am sports a bold 6.6 litre 4-bbl. V-8. And if you're looking for something more, there's the available new T/A 6.6.* It has the horsepower of last year's 455 V-8 over a broader rpm range.

But what really hooks you is when you open the door. You sit back in deep-contoured Morrokide or newly available velour cloth bucket seats.

You look over a gleaming machine-turned dash with full rally gauges, clock and tachometer. You get a grip on a thickly padded Formula steering wheel. You turn the key. And suddenly, you discover the moves that have made Trans Am one of the most popular road cars built in America.

Trans Am. One of four great Firebirds to get enthused about for 1977. See them all.

For over a decade, Firebird's been turning drivers into enthusiasts.

Back in 1959, Pontiac was startling the industry with Wide-Track. An important innovation that gave its full-sized cars a smooth, stable ride. A Pontiac trademark ever since.

But even the impact of Wide-Track can't compare with the dramatic changes in Pontiac's all-new full-sized cars for 1977.

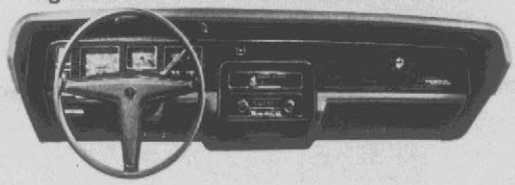
These are totally new automobiles. From the wheels up. Reflecting the most forward-thinking approach to full-sized cars in Pontiac history. And nowhere are these changes more apparent than on our new top-of-the-line Bonneville Brougham.

The look is elegantly trim. With a sloping new hood for great road visibility. Sophisticated new grille. And an available richly padded cordova top. But don't let the trim look fool you.

Inside Bonneville Brougham, there's even more front headroom and rear legroom than last year. And what luxury!

You'll find a comfortable 60/40 split full-width seat in your choice of crushed velour or soft Morrokide. A beautiful new dash with easy-to-read gauges. A new luxury cushion steering wheel. And much more.

Bonneville Brougham's performance signals a new wave of the future for Pontiac.



Announcing the most exciting Pontiacs since Wide Track.

Pontiac Bonneville Brougham

Especially the all-new Pontiac 5.0 litre (301 CID) V-8.* Its low-friction design and favorable horsepower-to-weight ratio combine for smooth, responsive operation.

If you're interested in the future of full-sized station wagons, look to our all-new top-of-the-line Grand Safari.

Like our Bonneville coupes and sedans, it's stylishly trim outside. But open our new three-way tailgate and you're in for a surprise! Because this new Safari is loaded with roominess.

Ready to handle a gang of neighborhood kids or a den's worth of 4' x 8' panels. There's even additional space with lockable underfloor and side compartments.

The way this Grand Safari moves is another nice surprise. Nimbly. Easily. With Pontiac's Turbo Hydra-matic transmission. Variable-ratio power steering. Power front disc brakes. And famous Radial Tuned Suspension with steel-belted radials.

For easy servicing, Pontiac has built in two on-board diagnostic connectors that help pinpoint electrical problems quickly and easily.

And to help make sure these cars look good for years to come, Pontiac is using the most corrosion-resistant materials in its history.

It's a whole new era for full-sized cars. And nobody's got 'em like Pontiac's got 'em.

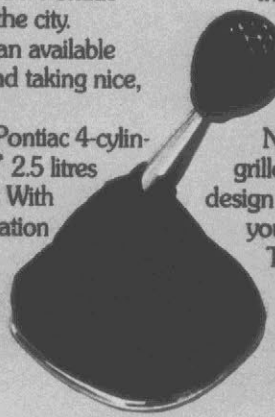
Pontiac Grand Safari Wagon

Pontiac's legacy of great styling, performance and engineering shows up in even our smallest cars.

Take the sporty new little Astre. Pontiac designed it to do great things in the city. Like zipping through traffic with an available 5-speed manual transmission. And taking nice, neat 35.8′ diameter U-turns.

We also made a brand new Pontiac 4-cylinder engine available in this Astre.* 2.5 litres (151 CID) of cast iron toughness. With the kind of smooth, quiet acceleration Pontiac is famous for.

And to smooth out those waits in traffic, we made Astre comfortable. With soft-to-the-touch Morrokide bucket seats. Rich rosewood vinyl applique on the dash. Cut-pile carpeting. A newly available console. And more.



Astre's styling makes it a genuine stoplight celebrity. Now with a sporty new grille. And new exclusive-design cast aluminum wheels you can order.

The new '77 Sunbird is our latest in a tradition of great Pontiac sport coupes. With styling that's clean and uncluttered and comfort that reminds you of a luxury sport. Fine tailored cloth and Morrokide bucket seats. Thick, cut-pile carpeting. Instrument panel vinyl with the look of lacquered rosewood. And a new cushioned 3-spoke steering wheel.

Sunbird shows Pontiac dependability, too. With High Energy Electronic Ignition. New "Freedom" battery that's maintenance free. And the all-new 2.5 litre (151 CID) L-4 engine that will amaze you with its quick response.

With a heritage like this, it's no wonder Pontiac makes great small cars, too.

The sporty Astre.

First American production cars with Radial Tuned Suspension. First with standard Hurst shifters. Ram Air induction. And the amazing Endura bumper.

But this year's top-of-the-line Pontiac Grand LeMans is a comparison shopper's dream.

Consider styling. Grand LeMans lures you with a strong Pontiac look. This year with a distinctive new grille. Jewel-like hood ornament. And a wide choice of available wheels—including new wire wheel covers you can order.

Consider mid-sized comfort. Grand LeMans offers interior appointments you'd expect to find only on cars like Grand Prix. A wraparound instrument panel with handsome rosewood vinyl applique. Available bucket seats in crushed velour. Padded upper door panels.

Consider performance and handling. Grand LeMans moves you with a new 3.8 litre (231 CID) V-6 that's nicely responsive to the times. Turbo Hydra-matic. And Pontiac's famed Radial Tuned Suspension.

What's more, our new mid-sized Grand LeMans gives you all this at a price you can handle.

Ventura: The only American compact you can get with a 4-cylinder engine–from Pontiac, of course.

If anyone else were to offer you a four in a compact-sized car, you might hesitate.

The engine's all Pontiac, too. It's our exciting new 2.5 litre (151 CID) L-4* you can specify. With all the smooth, eager acceleration and ruggedness Pontiac is famous for.

There's nothing sluggish about Ventura's looks, either. You get a new, richly detailed grille. Elegant lines. And beautifully sculptured rear styling.

'Butch Cassidy And The Sundance Kid' Makes TV Premiere

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," the smash box - office hit which first starred Paul Newman and Robert Redford together, will make its premiere TV appearance Sunday, Sept. 26, 9 to 11 p.m., leading off the fall movie lineup on ABC-TV.

The movie, which was nominated for an Academy Award in 1969, was immediately applauded by critics and audiences alike for what Cue magazine called the "magnetism of its star performers."

Charles Champlin of the Los Angeles Times wrote, "'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid' looks to be one of the larger successes of the year, and this is as it should be .... the movie belongs almost wholly to Newman and Redford and to the bantering, low - key relationship which William Goldman's script has established for them."

The movie also features music composed and conducted by Burt Bacharach, including the theme song, "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head," which he wrote in collaboration with lyricist Hal David. The song was also nominated for an Oscar.

Of novelist William Goldman, who wrote the screenplay, Judith Crist of New York magazine said, ". . (he makes the stuff of legendary human." She predicted viewers would find in retrospect that the movie was "more than the first rate 'entertainment' it is in the watching."

Goldman reportedly spent six years researching the two real - life bandits of the early 20th century on whom his characters are patterned. Newman, as the affable Butch Cassidy, is the leader of the Hole - in - the - Wall Gang and an outlaw who is always dreaming of new continents to explore. Redford, as his sidekick, is the quick - draw brains of the outfit. They are accompanied through a series of sometimes zany robberies and other escapades by Sundance's girl, Etta, played by Katharine Ross. Their travels take them from the Old West to New York City and from there to South America and an oddly appropriate denouement.

Walker Plays Talent Agent

Nancy Kitteridge is a diminutive dynamo — and so is the brilliant comedienne who stars in the new ABC comedy series, "The Nancy Walker Show," premiering Thursday, Sept. 30, 9:30 to 10 p.m., on Channel 3-5- 12. She is the only performer ever to win nominations for continuing portrayals in two series in the same season: "Rhoda," a comedy, and "McMillan and Wife," a drama.

Nancy Kitteridge is a successful talent agent to whom guiding and promoting young performers is both agony and ecstasy. According to her less-than dynamic married daughter, Lorraine, Nancy's motherly instincts are reversed for her clients.

Nancy loves her husband, Kenneth, a career Naval officer who's been away at sea for ten months out of every year for the last 29 years. Actually, this has worked out beautifully. They are together for such short periods that the "first fine, careless rapture" has had no chance to erode into a humdrum relationship before Kenneth is off to sea again, keeping the couple on a perpetual honeymoon, and allowing Nancy to pursue the career she loves without being cramped by domesticity, which she loathes.

Suddenly the sailor is home from sea, announcing his retirement from the Navy! This sudden shock to their life styles, forcing them to face their vividly contrasting personalities, has hilarious results. Kenneth would like Nancy to see their daughter and grandchildren more. She won't. He'd like her to stay home and cook and clean. She won't. He'd like her to become better organized and get rid of her male secretary (who lives in). She won't. He's used to running a tight ship — but Nancy's insists she's still the captain of her soul. For Nancy and Kenneth the seas of matrimony may be stormy, but love and a sense of humor always manage to calm the troubled waters.

Ms. Walker was pursuing a career as a serious vocalist when she auditioned for the Broadway production, "Best Foot Forward" and producer George Abbott realized her true forte was comedy. He not only advised the teenager to try for a different role in "Blind Date," but also expanded it from five lines to a lead for Nancy, who was then "discovered" overnight.

She then went to Hollywood and signed a long-term contract with MGM and appeared in many boxoffice successes.

As actress, comedienne, singer and dancer, Nancy has appeared on virtually every major TV program. She has also directed two segments of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," a "Rhoda" episode, and three stage plays.

She lives in Studio City, Calif., with her husband David Craig musical theater coach. They have one daughter, Miranda, now a resident of New York.

Carson Recalls Memories

"What a great way to learn!" says Johnny Carson. "So much of what I had been doing proved to be excellent training for 'The Tonight Show.' I got into TV in the experimentation days — you did it all then."

Carson was reflecting on his 14 years as host of NBC's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" with a special program, Friday, Oct. 1, 11:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.

"When I did 'Who Do You Trust?" on ABC in 1956, we did comedy interviews much like Groucho did. And just to show you how really young TV was, we went on at 3:30 p.m. and we were the second show on the network, which opened up at 3 p.m.

'Before that, I was on the first 'All Star Revue' to come from Hollywood, in the early 1950s, with Walter O'Keefe and did a sketch about 'Your Lucky Operation.' It seems like whatever we did in live TV was a stepping stone for 'Tonight.'

"When I was working on WOW, in Omaha, in the late 1940s, a performer did everything at the station. I announced, did kid shows, lead-ins to films, a cooking show, and noon interview shows. The money was nothing. The unions hadn't come into TV yet, so you could work 20 hours a day and seven days a week. At the same time I was doing all this on TV, I did 40 hours a week on radio!"

Carson thinks that young people today have more or less the same opportunities to learn.

"I'm sure there are many small stations in this country where you could begin by doing what I was doing, even if you start as the guy or gal who sweeps up. It takes a lot of hours and a willingness to learn — without being a clock watcher."

Carson was reminded of his first trip to Los Angeles. "I was driving to L. A. and was going to work for KTSL, the local CBS station. So all across the country, I practiced saying KTSL — you know, different inflections and all that. Well, when I arrived, I learned the call letters had been changed to KNXT. And I had practiced so hard . . ."

Scenes from memorable shows of the past years will be spotlighted by Carson during the special colorcast. Ed Ames, Robert Blake, Steve Lawrence, Burt Reynolds, Don Rickles and Jack Webb are among those in past segments which have been selected.

Athlete Dances To Fame

Everybody calls him Eddie. Eddie from Bayside, Queens. When he comes on stage to loosen up, wearing a blue robe with a towel around his neck, his black hair swept back, he bears an amazing tough - guy - from - New York look, like a former Golden Gloves boxer.

Eddie is Edward Villella, principal dancer with the New York City Ballet, who choreographed and dances in the "Dance of the Athletes" special series Sunday, Sept. 26, 5 to 6 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Appearing with Villella are athletes Tom Seaver and Jerry Grote, pitcher and catcher, respectively, for the New York Mets; Virginia Wade, former U. S. Open tennis champion; George McGinnis, forward with the Philadelphia 76ers; Muriel Grossfeld, former Olympic gymnast; and Bob Griese, quarterback with the Miami Dolphins. Each will demonstrate the athleticism shared by dancers and athletes.

That Villella looks like an athlete is no fluke. Back in high school, he won a letter in baseball. In college (New York Maritime Academy, Class of 1959) he was welterweight champion. And little wonder. He'd been in dance training since the age of nine, so by the time he got to high school his body was superbly conditioned.

"I had a great sense of my body," he says. The awareness has not been lost in his spectacular career as a dancer. He has been called by critics "one of the best male dancers in the world" and "a great athlete, perhaps one of the world's greatest."

In his childhood, Villella recalls, he dreamed of becoming "a great boxer." For years, he followed boxing, but has since been put off by it. "It's a show today, an extravaganza," he says. But he's still big on baseball. "When I'm home on a summer weekend, I place myself in front of a TV set with a six - pack and, wow, that's heaven!"

He feels that a TV show like "Dance of the Athletes" was inevitable, explaining: "The similarities between athletes and dancers are centuries old. Both are involved in physical possibilities. We're all concerned with timing, the toning of muscles and coordination."

Yet, Vielliella considers dancers probably more highly disciplined than athletes. "The technique," he holds, "is very intense. Every movement has to be exact.

"And, on top of everything else, you have to be an artist. A guy can hit 46 home runs, and he doesn't have to point his toes, he doesn't have to wear tights or have a well-turned calf."

MARJ DUSAY SET FOR PARTS

Marj Dusay will play Gregory Peck's wife in "MacArthur," and will also play Robert Stack's wife in "Most Wanted," a new TV series. But she's still assuring her real-life husband, Tom Pereine, that he's Number One.

Everybody's Invited To 'The Big Party' Sunday

EVENT-FULL DOUBLE TREAT—"Earthquake," (top) part one, the Academy Award-winning film with an all-star cast headed by Charlton Heston and Ava Gardner, and "The Big Party," a 21-camera salute to the new sports, performing arts and motion picture seasons, will be the double-feature premiere of NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Sunday, Sept. 26. "Earthquake," will be colorcast from 8-9:30 p.m. and "The Big Party," will be presented live 9:30 to 11 p.m. on Channels 6-7.

Aretha Franklin, Leonard Nimoy, Hal Linden, Ethel Merman and the comedy team of Bob and Ray will be among the performers on "The Big Party," the live 21-camera salute to the new sports, performing arts and motion picture seasons that will be part of the premiere of NBC-TV's "The Big Event," Sunday, Sept. 26, 9:30 to 11 p.m.

Three gala parties will take place at famous locations in New York City.

"If the excitement and enthusiasm among the people from the sports and entertainment worlds coming to 'The Big Party' is any indicator, then we can expect to have the greatest number of celebrities entertaining and being entertained at all three parties," said Alvin Cooperman, Executive-in-Charge of "The Big Event."

"The television audience will have a front-row seat at all three galas as NBC's mobile color cameras take them from party to party."

Hal Linden and Ethel Merman will be among those entertaining at the Performing Arts Party, to be held in Sardi's restaurant and Shubert Alley, and a live performance by the cast of the all-black hit Broadway revival, "Guys and Dolls," will help celebrate the occasion as well.

Aretha Franklin will do her thing at the Garden Party — in Madison Square Garden — which will also feature an array of outstanding sports figures gathered to honor Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton before their championship fight in New York Sept. 28.

Leonard Nimoy, Mr. Spock on TV's "Star Trek," will be one of the hosts of the Motion Picture Party — which will be attended by top film personalities and feature preview scenes from new major movies — at the Top of the Park in the Gulf & Western Building.

Bob and Ray will be the "Men in the Blimp," offering their wry and humorous comments about the three parties as they soar from one to the other.

"The Big Party" will be part of a double-feature treat on the premiere of "The Big Event." It will follow part one of "Earthquake" (8 to 9:30 p.m.), the Academy Award-winning film starring Charlton Heston, Ava Gardner and George Kennedy. Part two of "Earthquake" will be colorcast on "The Big Event" Sunday, Oct. 3.

Co-Star Upstages Garner

Normally, a crafty, imaginative and charming actor like James Garner is able to avoid being upstaged by his co-stars in a motion picture. But this was not the case in Walt Disney Productions' western comedy-adventure, "One Little Indian," in which he stars as a corporal who is charged with mutiny when he tries to help Indian women and children during a cavalry raid.

Garner and his female co-star help "One Little Indian" make its television debut in two parts and open the 23rd season of "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings, Sept. 26 and Oct. 3, at 7 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7-28.

Teenage Runaway Story Reviewed In Movie

Once - glamorous Hollywood Boulevard has, through the years, lost the gloss and glow that made it one of the world's best known thoroughfares. Now it, and the neighborhood surrounding it, have become tawdry and grim, inhabited by a subculture undreamed of in the great days of the film capital.

Out of this culture has emerged one of the most troubled — and troublesome — societies in America today, the teenage runaways and those who prey on them — the hustlers and the hustled, misfits of all ages.

It is this milieu that a young actor named Leigh J. McCloskey entered while filming "Dawn: Portrait of a Teenage Runaway," airing Monday, Sept. 27, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"I've lived in Southern California all of my life but I had no idea that so many people my own age were in so much trouble," McCloskey said. McCloskey and his co-star Eve Plumb met many of the street walkers and lost souls who have become a conspicuous part of our urban culture. The young actors were struck by how afraid the runaways were. "They started hanging around the set," McCloskey recalls, "but only after they were sure that we would respect their privacy. We wanted to help, but what could we do?"

They felt that their performances in 'Dawn' would help parents and children understand each other better. "We wanted to get involved and stay involved even after the filming was completed," Leigh says. "We put out the word that we were available to do anything necessary."

Enter Operation Peace of Mind, a Texas - based organization geared to helping run - aways. Operation Peace of Mind has a national toll-free phone number which gives youngsters a chance to call and leave messages for their parents. "It was exactly what we were looking for. Think how important it is for these kids to be able to talk to their parents, too. We were asked to make public service messages that would go on television and radio all over the country," McCloskey continued. "I know these kids watch a lot of TV and listen to the radio all of the time, so this would be the perfect way to get the message to them. Now all they have to do to get in touch with their parents is call (800) 231-6946."

TROUBLED TEENS—Eve Plumb learns to survive by hustling on the streets of Los Angeles in the Douglas S. Cramer production of "Dawn: Portrait of a Teenage Runaway," the premiere presentation of NBC-TV's "Monday Night at the Movies." The controversial show, also starring Leigh J. McCloskey, Georg Stanford Brown and Bo Hopkins, airs Monday, Sept. 27 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

Hotel Lobby Served As A Backyard

A few years ago, Kay Thompson wrote a book about "Eloise," a mythical child who lived in a New York hotel. There was a real-life counterpart of Eloise in Los Angeles and his name was, and is, Richard Crenna, who now stars in "All's Fair," the new comedy series seen Mondays, 9:30 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Growing up in downtown Los Angeles during the Depression years, Crenna met enough real-life "characters" to make a casting director weep with envy. His parents owned and managed a series of small residential hotels, so Crenna's backyard was usually a hotel lobby.

Looking back on it, Crenna reflects: "They say that if you bring up a kid in a certain environment, he'll turn out that way. In that case, I should be a gambler, an alcoholic, a thief, a tout, a bookie or a pimp, because that's what most of those hotel residents were in those days."

From the age of 11, when he made his radio debut as an actor, Crenna spent most of his childhood riding streetcars wo work in the fantasy-land of network radio, then home again to the Runyonesque world of his parents' hotel.

Crenna has no regrets. "For a kid with a tremendous curiosity about people, it was great to grow up in the middle of the city and meet this great cross-section of humanity who seem to huddle in the downtown areas of big cities."

"Going to school downtown meant mixing with all types of kids and all races," Crenna recalls. "And we all got along beautifully. I don't ever remember being aware that there was supposed to be much of a difference between us."

The two or three hotels Crenna grew up in were filled with strange, but interesting types. He remembers being taught to fight by ex-boxers, taught to play cards by an ex-card shark on a gambling ship, and learning all about shoplifting—but having the sense not to put the information to use—by a man who once stole a canoe out of a large New York store and went back the next day and took the paddles.

He also remembers the time a famous gangland figure was murdered. The next day, 70 of the hotel's 74 rooms were empty. "That gives you an idea of our clientele in that hotel," Crenna laughs.

Heroines Forgotten?

The heroines of the Revolutionary War are forgotten women. Almost. In the television special, "The Fight to be Remembered," Monday, Sept. 27, at 10 p.m. on UNC-TV, the stories of six little-known heroines are celebrated.

There was Winifred McCowan, a Revolutionary War camp retainer, who wanted to do something "just for herself," and stole the town bull. She rode it through the town, "causing the bull to be killed," and received on hundred lashes and three months in jail.

Judith Sargent Murray, whose manuscripts rotted in an attic after her death, was the first American woman to write on the equality of the sexes. Her plays were profesionally produced in Boston, but — according to her nephew — nothing she wrote could compare with her cooking.

Molly Ludwig Hays, better known as Molly Pitcher, was pregnant when her husband was wounded manning his gun. She took his place.

Elizabeth Freeman was the first black woman to sue for and win her freedom in a Massachusetts court.

Deborah Sampson served as a private in the Fourth Masschusetts Regiment — disguised as a man. Later, after she was wounded in combat, she became the first woman lecturer in the United States.

Series Is An Absorbing Drama

As a mini - series, "Family" provided viewers with six hours of absorbing drama, which were warmly received by both audiences and critics. The Lawrence family, vital middle - class people in Pasadena, Calif., generated a warmth that captivated over 14 million households during "Family's" limited run.

"Family" returns this fall as a regular series (Tuesdays, 10 to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV), exploring the complexities of modern living through the eyes of the Lawrence family — Kate and Doug and their children — Nancy, who is divorced and returns home to live and to rebuild her young life; Willie, who at 19 is still searching for what he wants to do with his life, and 12-year-old "Buddy" (Lititia) who suffers the pangs of typical adolescent.

Starring in "Family" is a highly skilled cast. Sada Thompson and James Broderick head the cast as Kate and Doug Lawrence. Their off-spring are played by Gary Frank (Willie) and Kristy McNichol (Buddy). Meredith Baxter Birney, as Nancy, is a new addition to "Family," along with Mary Grace Canfield, who plays their housekeeper, Mrs. Hanley.

Viewers may think it ironic that a show titled "Family" is not in a 'family hour' time slot, but co-star Broderick thinks that the reason was because of the pilot.

"In the pilot, which was the opening show last spring, there was infidelity on the part of the son - in - law, but none of the other five shows came anywhere near that," he said.

"We are careful about how we speak. There are no four - lettered words, maybe a 'damn' now and then, but that's all," he adds. "This show is strictly about the importance of the family as a unit. They have respect for each other in spite of any differences they might have. It's a bright family," Broderick commented.

Is the Lawrence family affluent?

"It was at one time, but now in the middle income range. I was a big corporation lawyer at one time, but left that to settle down with some work that brings less income. We are not living quite as high, now. We are well - to - do, but not rich," he said.

Among the subjects episodes of "Family" will deal with is Willie's new romance in conflict with an old one. Other segments will be centered around Buddy's first crush; homosexuality; jealousy, in short, many of the same situations American families face.

FAMILY—The Family gathers for the premiere telecast of the favorite series on Tuesday, Sept. 28 (10-11 p.m.) on ABC Channels 3W-5-12. The parents are portrayed by Sada Thompson and James Broderick with Meredith Baxter Birney, Gary Frank and Kristy McNichol starring as their children.

'America's Last King' Is A Hit

That's how a London newspaper headlined its review last spring of the British telecast of "America's Last King." It proved to be an on-target comment, as American viewers can see Tuesday, Sept. 28, at 8 p.m. on PBS.

The program is a filmed conversation between Britain's Prince Charles and historian-journalist Alistair Cooke about King George III.

The 27-year-old Prince Charles 'scores 10 out of 10 as a historian' in discussing his royal ancestor — Britain's ruler during the American Revolution — noted the London reviewer, and "He comes out tops too as a TV personality."

An established TV personality since he was host of the 1950's "Omnibus" series, Cooke wrote and narrated his personal view of American history.

Earthquake Airs Sunday

Spectacular special affects and an exciting plotline make the destruction of Los Angeles a believable disaster in "Earthquake," airing as part of NBC-TV's new series, "The Big Event." The film will air in two parts on Sunday, Sept. 23, and Oct. 3, 8 to 9:30 p.m. on both evenings.

Charlton Heston and Ava Gardner head a large cast including Lorne Greene, Genevieve Bujold, George Kennedy, Richard Roundtree, Marjoe Gortner and Barry Sullivan.

By this time, maneuvering people out of a sinking ship or a crippled airplane might be the sort of thing that movie-going audiences can take in their stride, but "Earthquake" literally shook viewers out of their complacency and into one of the most spectacularly involving natural catastrophe films ever.

Bolstered by a new special effects process called Sensurround which sent low frequency vibrations into the audience during the major tremors, the drama interweaves the personal lives of its characters against the backdrop of Los Angeles' virtual destruction.

The first hour of the film establishes a wide cast of characters, their interrelationships, the minor earth tremor that serves to announce the major one, and the gradual positioning of everyone for the final, awesome quake.

Heston portrays "the best engineer in California," whose marriage to Ms. Gardner is shakier than the area's initial tremor; Lorne Greene is Ava's father, Heston's boss and a master builder of quake-proof skyscrapers; Genevieve Bujold as the young widowed mother who briefly becomes Heston's mistress; and George Kennedy as the hardnosed, committed cop who turns benevolent.

Rounding out the cast are Richard Roundtree as an aspiring motorcycle daredevil; Victoria Principal as his manager's sister who is later subjected to the demands of demented National Guardsman Marjoe Gortner; Barry Sullivan as a cautious old-timer at the Seismological Institute and young Kip Niven as the graduate student whose predictions of a major tremblor are laughed off by the oldsters, only to leave them jangled in the wreckage.

Epic Novel Opens Series

"Captains and the Kings," Taylor Caldwell's epic story of the destiny of three generations of an Irish-American immigrant family in the 19th and 20th centuries, will be colorcast as the first property on "Best Sellers," the anthology series which will premiere with a special two-hour presentation Thursday, Sept. 23, at 9 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Seven one-hour editions of the drama will follow on consecutive Thursdays.

A novel on The New York Times best-seller list for eight months, "Captains and the Kings" relates the story of a ruthless young man who amasses a huge fortune and gains political power that grows with his wealth as he heads a dynasty from generation to generation. The story focuses on his efforts to have his son elected President of the United States.

The drama follows Joseph Armagh, a 14-year-old who emigrates to New York in 1857 with his family. When his mother dies as a result of the rigors of the trip and he is unable to find his father, who came to America a year earlier, he places his younger brother and sister in an orphanage and finds work.

Soon, the young man's ambition leads him to seek a financial killing in the oil business, at a time when the Civil War has just begun.

A shrewd manipulator, he manages to impress the powerful men he meets and gradually becomes associated with - and respected by - influential groups.

Ultimately, the self-made businessman's lust for power leads to confrontations with both his family and those he meets on his determined trek to the top.

BEST SELLERS—NBC fights rating game with several of the most popular works of fiction in recent memory—Taylor Caldwell's "Captains and the Kings"; Anton Myrer's "Once An Eagle"; Suzanne Morris's "Galveston" and Thornton Wilder's "The Eighth Day"—which will be colorcast on NBC's Best Sellers" Thursdays beginning Sept. 30 with "Captains and the Kings," on Channels 6-7.

Along the way he is cursed by a Senator he attempts to blackmail, and though his wealth remains, tragic events in his personal life cause him to be haunted by the politician's threat.

Starring as Armagh is Richard Jordan. Others appearing in the early segments are Ray Bolger, as Mr. Squibbs, a grain merchant; Celeste Holm as Sister Angela, head of an orphanage; Ann Southern as Mrs. Finch, a boarding house owner; Charles Durning as Ed Healey, an oil baron; Beverly D'Angelo as Healey's teen-age lover; Barbara Parkins as Martinque, a seductive maid; Neville Branc as O'Herlihy, an unemployed immigrant who aids the young Armagh; and Peter Donat as Clair Montrose, a soldier of fortune.

In a cameo role, Henry Fonda portrays Senator Bassett, who confronts Armagh over support for a key immigration bill.

'California Kid' Is Late Movie

After seven speeders have deliberately been sent to their deaths by a psychotic sheriff in a small town speed trap, the brother of a recent victim rolls into town in a powerful hot rod and forces the lawman into a final high - speed duel in "The California Kid," "The CBS Late Night Movie" Friday, Oct. 1, at 11:30 p.m.

Martin Sheen and Vic Morrow star as the two antagonists in the movie which also stars Michelle Phillips, Stuart Margolin and Nick Nolte.

The small town of Clarksburg is a well - known speed trap: seven persons have been killed trying to outrun Sheriff Roy Childress (Morrow). One day Michael McCord (Sheen) drives into town in his high - powered hot rod, named The California Kid.

Farentino Stars In 'Cool Million'

According to James Farentino, an actor lives for many people, and the extent to which he gives an audience a vicarious trip through life determines his success.

Farentino pursues his philosophy in the roles he accepts, and it is reflected in his role as an American abroad who accepts a fee of one million dollars to solve any problem.

"Cool Million," the $1,000,000 misunderstanding to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Late Show" Tuesday, Sept. 28, at 12:30 p.m., showcases the handsome actor at his adventuresome best.

"Most people today are crowded into big cities," says Farentino. "Statistics show that the average city dweller only travels about six miles a day, and that is in a circumscribed area.

"The days of the frontier are gone, and the kind of restricted life we lead today makes us seek an outlet in entertainment.

"In a movie like 'Cool Million,' I am a free soul living an exciting, adventurous life in countries like Italy and Greece. There naturally is travel, beautiful girls, intrigue and danger . . . . all the components that can lift a person out of a hum-drum existence.

"As an actor, knowing that millions of people can identify with me as I move through the swift action, I feel doubly excited about the performance."

The candid actor, a starring regular for three seasons in the Lawyers segments of Universal's series, "The Bold Ones," adds: "And don't think I don't get a kick out of imagining such roles are real. Can you envision getting a million dollar paycheck for a job well done? And having pure fun doing the job?

U-2 Spy Incident Dramatized

SPY STORY—Lee Majors stars in the title role as the American pilot who was shot down while on a flight over the Soviet Union and put on trial as a spy in "Francis Gary Powers: The True Story of the U-2 Spy Incident," an NBC World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Movie of the Week," Wednesday, Sept. 29 (8-10 p.m.) on Channel 7.

The intensely personal story of one of the most notorious diplomatic incidents of the cold war between the Soviet Union and the United States is dramatized in "Francis Gary Powers: The True Story of the U-2 Spy Incident," a World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Movie of the Week" Wednesday, Sept. 29, 8 to 10 p.m., on Channel 7.

Lee Majors stars as Francis Gary Powers in this dramatization of the events surrounding the shooting down of the American spy plane over the Soviet Union in May of 1960. The film details the story of Powers's capture, trial and subsequent conviction of espionage and his nearly two years in a Siberian workcamp, before he was released in a carefully executed prisoner exchange.

But the real story is the fear, frustration, and the isolation of being unable to tell his wife and family of his supersecret espionage flights as a civilian employee of the CIA.

Based on the book, "Operation Overflight," by Powers, the history-making incident is put into perspective as it is woven into the tragic personal story of its effect on Power's marriage and on his parents.

Powers says that quite a bit has happened to him in the last 14 years, "But it's not covered in the film. It ends with the exchange on the bridge, and I'm free again. Briefly, after that, I worked for the CIA another eight months. Then, I went to work for Lockheed as an engineer-test pilot and stayed until 1970.

"My book came out that year, and in 1973 I became a 'Spy in the Sky,' giving morning and evening rush-hour traffic reports for a radio station. I'm still doing this," he concluded.

Portraying Mrs. Powers is Brooke Bundy, Lew Ayrs is Alan Dulles, and Jim McMullen plays the role of Robert Kennedy.

NOTHING BUT THE BEST

No mere baubles and beads for Richard Burton's bride Suzie. Thus far, he's bought from Cartier's a $40,000 set of earrings, an $80,000 diamond ring, and has ordered a $300,000 diamond necklace.

Cheyenne Language Used In 'Quest'

In the old days in Hollywood, the dialogue for Indians consisted of a little pidgin English interspersed with a few well-placed, "Hows."

The new authentic western series "The Quest," seen Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV, is changing that old tradition in a "um heap big way." For the first time in the history of western filmmaking the Cheyenne language used by the actors is not only completely authentic but also printed in the script, according to linguist Danny Alford, an expert in the Cheyenne language, hired to translate the dialogue.

"Until recently Cheyenne was almost totally a spoken language, with no practical written alphabet," Alford explains. Over the last several years, I have been working with a bilingual staff of Cheyennes to develop a 14-letter alphabet with three extra pronunciation marks to aid in learning the language."

Of course, an actor faced with a line of dialogue that looks like "Ne-eve-tonese- he ho? eose - hetsene?" might throw up his hands in despair. So Alford is also teaching the actors correct pronunciation.

Alford, who supervised the writing of the only English - Northern Cheyenne dictionary in existence, worked and taught among the tribe in Lame Deer, Montana, for over four years. His work has led him to love the beauty of one of the oldest native American tongues.

"In Cheyenne language, all words were really descriptive terms," he states. "For example, their word for coffee literally means black soup; salt is white dirt and a cow was called a white man's buffalo."

Alford, who uses a tape recorder to aid the actors in learning the dialogue, has words of praise for Kurt Russell, the series star who portrays Two Persons, a white man raised by the Indians.

Eva Marie Saint Stars In Comedy

"The play was written in 1946, but it's so little different from what we go through today that it could just as easily be 1976."

That was oscar-winning actress Eva Marie Saint's reaction to George Kelly's comedy, "The Fatal Weakness," premiering on "Hollywood Television Theatre," Thursday, Sept. 30, on PBS.

Miss Saint, who stars in the production, was discussing her role with Norman Lloyd, who produced and directed the two-hour comedy of a hyper-romantic woman who receives an anonymous letter disclosing her husband's infidelity.

"This woman I portray could be any well brought up girl who suddenly realizes that marriage can become nothing more than a habit. In a sense, she's a woman who becomes liberated. I'm sure that wasn't the thought in 1946, but today, that could be the conclusion," says Miss Saint.

"The Fatal Weakness," starring Ina Claire, opened on the New York stage thirty years ago. It is the story of a middle-aged couple in suburbia. All seems well until a good deal of totally cockeyed detective work — produces a genuinely funny evening of entertainment.

The contrast between the overly protected heroine of "The Fatal Weakness" and the real Eva Marie Saint is great.

"I hold on for dear life to the things I love," explains Miss Saint. "I've had twenty agents, but just one husband for 24 years." A cowboy hat that she wore in the film "North by Northwest" still hangs in the closet, and may be part of her costume for a new western television series she's considering.

She originally studied to be a teacher, but a school play role led her into drama. She recalls pounding the streets of New York trying to find jobs in commercials when she was first starting. The thrill of going to Hollywood, she remembers primarily as a protective terror about her eyebrows and hair. "I thought they were going to try to make me look like everyone else, shave my eyebrows off, and dye my hair strawberry red," she laughs.

But they didn't, and for her motion picture debut in "On the Waterfront" she won an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress. There was no danger of anyone trying to make her look like someone else after that.

HOLLYWOOD—"Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" continues to be a trendsetter. During it's new season, Greg Mullavey, in his role as Tom, will become a salesman, but more significantly the actor says, "Tom and Mary will show the public how to instill romance in a marriage. It won't be graphic, but it'll be something never before shown on a series. Their relationships will vastly improve this year."

Don Chastain is still another new face on ABC's "General Hospital," the daytime soaper. Don plays Dr. Tom Baldwin. The actor joins the cast with an extensive background in nighttime and New York stage work, as well as a short run on daytime's "As the World Turns."

Lisa Mordente promises to be a bright spot during the new TV season in her role as the receptionist on CBS' "Doc." Lisa is just one of several new cast members on the series, and says in her energetic-filled manner, "It's just terrific!"

Ben Murphy admits to having just two interests in his life. His new series for NBC, "Gemini Man," and tennis. Ben is a genuine tennis fanatic. He trains constantly, attends tennis classes and hopes to become an above-average amateur player.

Reportedly, Glen Campbell's new bride, Sarah, agreed to a nominal divorce settlement with ex-husband Mac-Davis in order to have her divorce by the same time Glen obtained his so they could keep their planned wedding date.

Look for the TV nighttime serialization of the book "Roots" to surpass "Rich Man, Poor Man" in popularity and ratings when it airs later this season. "Roots" has an all-star cast portraying an incredible story.

Cindy Williams of "Laverne & Shirley" apparently has a new boyfriend in the person of Rob Levine, and allegedly John Travolta from "Welcome Back, Kotter" is dating Julie Strassman, young sister of Marcia Strassman, who plays Gabe Kaplan's wife on the series.

Hong Kong Is Setting

When a battered, nearly drowned Steve McGarrett, played by series star Jack Lord, is pulled aboard a sampan from the waters of Hong Kong harbor in the two-hour episode which opens the ninth "Hawaii Five-O" season, viewers will get a glimpse of Hong Kong's colorful boat people — "tanka," as they are called in Cantonese.

Most of the two-hour program, which will be broadcast Thursday, Sept. 30, 9 to 11 p.m. on CBS Channel 3N-9-11, was filmed in Hong Kong, a 'first' for "Hawaii Five-O," which is customarily filmed in Hawaii. Among the many fascinating aspect of Hong Kong are the tanka, the almost 90,000 people who live permanently aboard the 15,000 junks and sampans that jam the bays, coves, nooks and crannies of the harbor.

Many of the boats never move from their mooring, being used solely as floating homes. Many more serve the men, women and children who inhabit them as work vehicles, as well.

Almost 7,500 of the boats, housing 60,000 people, constitute the local fishing fleet. Another 2,100 boats serve as a flotilla of lighters, and their 15,000 inhabitants as the force of stevedores who load and unload the horde of cargo ships that always crowd the harbor, a crossroads for international shipping.

It is two of the tanka, a young girl and an elderly man — in this case, real boat people who work in Hong Kong as actors from time to time.

Chico Has New Neighbor

"Chico and the Man," now entering its third season on NBC-TV (Fridays at 8:30 p.m.), is a half-hour comedy series revolving around the quarrelsome owner of a one-man, rundown garage in the barrio of East Los Angeles and a young Chicano - Mexican - American, who joins him in a stormy partnership.

This season Albertson and Prinze are joined by singer Della Reese, who is featured in the role of Della, the proprietor of a local diner who is heavily involved in civic affairs.

Della's singing has earned her the admiration of millions of fans around the world, and over the past few yers her accomplishments on television and in movies have made her a much sought-after actress.

She began singing at age 6 in a Detroit church choir, and at the age of 13 she was hired by the late Mahalia Jackson to sing with her group. This association lasted for five years.

While at Wayne State University, where she majored in psychology, Della formed her own gospel group, "The Meditation Singers." As a singer at Detroit's famed "Flame Showbar," she was exposed to the talents and styles of such great singers as Ella Fitzgerald, Dinah Washington, Billie Holiday, Al Hibbler and Billy Eckstine.

Della made her acting debut in 1958 in "Let's Rock." She has made guest appearances on "Sanford and Son," "McCloud," "The Rookies," "The Mike Douglas Show" and "The Merv Griffin Show" and has been guest host of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

CROOKED FOURSOME—A quartet of jewel robbers (l to r, Barbara Rhoades, Jake Hoopai, Sheldon Leonard and Greg Morris) creates some problems for Fred Sanford (Redd Foxx) in "The Hawaiian Connection," (Part II) Friday, Oct. 1 (8-8:30 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

'California Kid' Airs Friday

"Anytime you work on a film that involves cars and stunt driving, it is a calculated risk, both in front of and behind the cameras."

The man making that statement is Terry Meade, one of the top cameramen in films and the cinemotographer on "The California Kid," the "CBS Late Movie" airing Friday, Oct. 1, at 11:30 p.m. And Terry can back up his feelings — on film.

One of the several exciting car chase scenes in the movie, which stars Martin Sheen and Vic Morrow, involves two young kids in a speeding car being chased by a psychotic sheriff in a high-powered patrol car.

"The script called for the victims' car to be forced off the road, skid on the dirt and flip over and roll down an embankment," says Meade. "However, after two run-throughs, I realized that once the driver hit the dirt, he couldn't control the car to where it would miss one of the two cameras I had set up to photograph the action."

So Terry pulled his camera operator away from the camera in question, which was to capture the chase, skid and flip from a head-on angle, and decided to run it by remote control. A wise decision.

"On the first take the car began too late and crashed right into and through the camera, tripod and all," reveals Terry. "The $8,000 camera was smashed but the film magazine was knocked loose and hurled across the highway with the film intact. The camera had remained turning right up until the car hit it, so you will see exactly what the camera saw — a flipping car headed right for you until the screen goes black — and that's when it hit."

This isn't Terry's first brush with a "calculated risk." During filming of the motion picture, "The Outside Man," Terry had set his camera low to catch a car speeding up a ramp and rolling over. On the actual shot, the car hit a small spot where it had dropped some oil during a rehearsal and slipped into the ramp, hitting the camera and the operator, injuring the man rather badly.

"Since then, if there is any question of possible injury to any of my camera crew, I'll take them away from the camera and go remote," says Terry, who is no stranger to danger. He was a cameraman for another network covering the Vietnam War, the India-China border scrap and the Belgian Congo fighting. Ironically, Terry's father, also a cameraman, was badly injured while filming a movie car crash sequence many years ago.

And what does a man like Terry Meade do for relaxation after a day of 'calculated risks'?

"I'm taking up flying and have my sights on becoming a pilot," says the inteprid Mr. Meade.

'Sundance Woman' Wanted

Katharine Ross, who co-starred in the hit motion picture, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," appears again as the notorious Etta Place in "Wanted: The Sundance Woman," a world premiere on "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Oct. 1, 9 to 11 p.m.

The new, suspenseful action films picks up the adventures of the beautiful fugitive when she is left alone and desperate following the deaths of Sundance and Cassidy. On the run from detective Charlie Siringo, she seeks help from the revolutionary, Pancho Villa.

When Dave Riley is jailed by Siringo for harboring her, Etta Place appeals to Pancho Villa — who is more interested in her beauty than her problem — to arrange a jailbreak.

When he refuses to help Dave, Etta bargains with Villa, telling him she can get him guns and ammunition being sent by rail to Mexico for President Diaz. Villa finally agrees.

ANOTHER REAL-LIFE ROLE

Susan Clark will star in another real-life role if Universal Studios gets their way. Susan, who has already portrayed Babe Didrickson Zaharias and Amelia Earhart, has been asked to dramatize the life of couturiere Coco Chanel in another TV movie.

WATCH FOR IT!

Remind yourself to watch "Hawaii Five-O" in Jan. for a segment titled "Top of the World." Jack Lord will direct this episode which stars Rich Little in his first straight dramatic role.

As a psychopathic killer, Rich believes himself to be the reel characters essayed by James Cagney in his "The Roaring' Twenties," "Public Enemy" and "White Heat." Clips from these films are set to be intercut to set the stage of Rich's psychotic visions as he systematically exterminates drug pushers. Little also plans to do impressions of Bogart, Robinson, Raft and Bette Davis in the chiller-thriller.

Delvecchio Heeds Plea

"Delvecchio," a new police adventure series starring Judd Hirsch in the title role as a perceptive, outspoken metropolitan police detective, will have its regular season premiere Sunday, Sept. 26, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11.

Hirsch, star of the Emmy Award - winning television movie, "The Law," last season and the mini-series of the same title that followed, is supported in the new series' regular cast by Charles Haid, as Delvecchio's burly partner, Shonski; Michael Conrad as Delvecchio's boss, Lieutenant Macavan; and Mario Gallo as Delvecchio's old fashioned, straight-laced father, Tomaso.

Frigntened, Harry Wilson, a police informant who wants to leave town and give up his life in the underworld so as to prevent his own murder, finds in Detective Sgt. Dominick Delvecchio a man capable of granting his wishes, in the series' premiere episode which was directed by Walter Doniger from a script by Joseph Polizzi.

Delvecchio takes Harry at his word and proceeds to work with him in an attempt to trap both the hit-man who is after Harry and the hoodlum who has put out a contract on the hapless stoolie.

'Supershow' Airs On Saturdays

SUPER WOMEN—Electra Woman (Diedra Hall, r) and Dynagirl (Judy Strangis, l) combat evildoers as part of ABC's unique 90-minute children's program, "The Kroffts Supershow," colorcast on Saturdays (10:30 a.m.-12 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

"The Kroffts Supershow" is a unique 90-minute live - action show which is seen Saturdays, 10:30 to 11:55 a.m. on ABC-TV. The show, featuring a variety of appealing and imaginative characters created by Sid and Marty Krofft, is a happy blend of four program elements. One stars three youngsters in a comedy - adventure series in which their "wheels," affectionately known as "Schlepcar," is a modified dune - buggy with magical properties which turn it into a supercar: "Wonderbug" — which gives the segment its name.

"Electrawoman" is a funny, campy, live adventure, the serialized story of Lori and Mara, two young magazine reporters who become Electrawoman and Dynagirl whenever they run into evildoers who need to be straightened out.

"Dr. Shriner" is a suspenseful adventure with comedy highlights about three teenagers, stranded on a mysterious island, who are miniaturized and manipulated by the larger - than - life villain, "Dr. Shrinker," an evil scientist.

And, already introduced to the young television audience who took them to their hearts, are Fi and Fum, those two bumbling, lovable androids from another planet, played by Ruth Buzzi and Jim Nabors. They star, along with Alice Playten and Jarrod Johnson as a boy and his teenage baby - sitter, in the comedy sci-fi adventures of "The Lost Saucer."

Holding the hour - and - a - half together are a great musical group who are equally adept at comedy; Kaptain Kool and the Kongs — five gifted and ingratiating young people in spectacular makeup and costumes.

Another production plus is that as much of the action as possible takes place in Atlanta's new amusement complex, The World of Sid and Marty Krofft.

TWO SUPER HOSTS

Gene Kelly and Henry Winkler will host "America Salutes Richard Rodgers," Dec. 9. The two-hour special will air on CBS-TV.

Festival Hosts Firefighters

"Firefighters," a film from England about a boy who becomes a member of the junior brigade at a British fire station and gets involved in a rather explosive situation with two thieves, will be broadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, Oct. 2, 1 to 2 p.m.

The story and screenplay by Pennington Richards are based on an idea by Rosamund Davies. The film was directed by Jonathan Ingrams and produced by Frank Godwin.

Shortly after young Bob Grant, who lives with his sister and brother next door to the Bremley fire station, is finally given an official junior fire brigade badge, he is lauded for his alertness in saving from destruction a factory set on fire by two thieves. From then on, the thieves make life miserable for the youngster by planting evidence that makes him look like an arsonist.

Bob is played by Simon Gipps-Kent. His sister, Sally, and brother, Tim, who assist him in his troubles, are portrayed by Sharon Fussey and Vincent Hall. The parents are played by Glyn Owen and Anne Stallybrass.

BLOOD, SWEAT & TEARS RECORDS 'MUGGSY' THEME

The theme, "Keepin' It Together," has lyrics by J. Philip Miller, one of the principal directors of the series, and music by David Collins.

The music, as recorded by the popular group, will open each of the weekly half-hour shows, which are set in a run down area of a large city.

Hill Takes Pride In His Job

Winston Hill is one of the few athletes in the world today who does not go around patting himself on the back. He is a quiet introspective man who takes great pride in doing a good job. And he will probably be doing his usual best against the Dolphins when they meet the Jets on Sunday, Sept. 26, at 1 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Hill has been described as an outstanding offensive tackle who does his job effectively and quietly. The 6-4, 270-pound guy has also been one of the less injury - prone members of the New York Jets team.

Having started every regular game for the Jets since his professional debut in 1963, the durable Hill has played in a total of 181 consecutive games. He has battled numerous nagging and minor injuries but — at the same time — was always there to protect quarterback Joe Namath.

When Hill is asked about his personal accomplishments, he has very little to say, and he views all his accomplishments in respect to the team effort. As he puts it: "All I want to do is block my man. I don't think about anything else except carrying out my assignment. If you want to be one of the best pro - football players in the world, and that's what we (the Jets) all want, you have to keep your mind on the job."

Winston Hill, now in his fourteenth season, remains a guiding force and an excellent teacher of younger players in the Jet offensive line, a vital contribution which new Head Coach Lou Holtz was quick to recognize.

Holtz has spoken of using a sprint - out passing attack, which could hasten the development of rookie quarterback Richard Todd, who ran as well as he passed in college. Hill's contribution will again be most valuable as the big man has developed his run-blocking to a high level of efficiency en route to his eight All-Pro selections over the past thirteen seasons.

While Hill has established himself as a consistent and talented performer, you would never find that out in conversation with him. Through all the awards and honors, he remains a quiet and humble tackle, always willing to do his best in the trenches for a Jet victory.

WINSTON HILL—plays the position of offensive tackle for the New York Jets and he plays his position very well. He is one of the top all-time protectors of quarterback Joe Namath. On Sunday, Sept. 26 at 1 p.m. on NBC-TV, Hill will take his place on the field protecting quarterback Namath and adding another game to his record.

Fight Aired On ABC

Undefeated Duane Bobick and Chuck Wepner, two of the world's top ten challengers for the heavyweight boxing title held currently by Muhammad Ali, will fight each other for the first time in a ten-round bout to be televised live on "ABC's Wide World of Sports," Saturday, Oct. 2, 5 to 6:30 p.m. (The program may air at an earlier time, depending on the late scheduling of air times for "NCAA Football.")

The Bobick - Wepner match, to be held in the Utica (N.Y.) Memorial Auditorium, figures to be a fight involving contrasting styles, Bobick offering more pure boxing skills and Wepner displaying the hard - punching form and ability to absorb punches as he did against Ali in their 1975 title fight in Cleveland in which, surprisingly, he made it to the final round with the champion.

Bobick, the No. 4 ranking heavyweight challenger, has a 35-0 log since he turned professional in 1973, and 32 of those victories have come through knockouts. Included in his record are a ninth - round knockout of former British champion Bunny Johnson and ten-round decisions over Scott LeDoux and Larry Middletown, both former ranking challengers for the crown.

The 6-3, 213-pound Bobick, whose brother, Rodney, has been Ali's sparring partner, is being tutored by former world heavyweight champ Joe Frazier and hails from Bowlus, Minn.

Wepner, the 6-5, 225-pounder from Bayonne, N.J., who has a significent number of fans who follow him to wherever he competes, has a record of 41-9, which includes 20 knockouts. The No. 9-ranked title challenger has been the New Jersey State Champion the past eight years and had won eight consecutive fights until he was defeated by Ali last year.

That loss to Ali in the title fight represents Wepner's lone setback since 1971.

Also included among Wepner's tougher opponents are Ernie Terrell, whom he defeated for the American championship, and Sonny Liston, who knocked out the "Bayonne Brawler" in the final round.

Young Is 'Super Eagle'

Charles Young is a strong motivating factor in the Philadelphia Eagles' offensive, and he feels that he is the most talented tight-end currently playing the game. He claims that there is a little of him in every good tight-end. He says, "Take Riley Odoms — Riley is known for his blocking. Charlie Sanders is known for his receiving, Rich Caster for his speed, Jim Mitchell for his aggressiveness, and Ted Kwalick and Bob Tucker for a combination of things. Now, put all those guys together, and you have me."

Young and the other Eagles will meet the Washington Redskins Sept. 27, on ABC's "Monday Night Football," beginning at 9 p.m.

Contrary to popular belief, Young feels he doesn't have an exaggerated opinion of himself. "There's nothing I've ever said that I didn't back up." Young claims that he has always been good at athletics. And he is very willing to tell his story of excellence to anyone who is willing to listen. As Young puts it, "Let me tell you about this: It's an extraordinary story.

"My senior year in high school, I played five sports — football, basketball, baseball, track and tennis. Remember, I played five sports and maintained a 3.0 grade average, was in every school activity you could get into, made All-American football, All-American in basketball, was scouted by the San Francisco Giant — who wanted me to sign a baseball contract — and I also played tennis and ran track."

Young's idea of being multi-talented still carries over to his life today. Recently, Young inquired as to whether he would be eligible for the '76 Olympics. As Young relates the story; "There was a guy I used to work out with at Southern Cal. He told me I could become a world-class sprinter if I trained hard enough. I thought about it after last season. A few months ago I inquired whether I could be eligible for the Olympics. They said I couldn't because I was a paid athlete."

With all this confidence, it is quite clear that Young does not like to lose, and his main goal is to see the Eagles go to the Superbowl.

At 6-4, 240-pounds, Young is very proud of his nickname, "Tree." He and his wife, Colleen, a high school sweetheart, live in a condominium at the Malibu Bay Club, about 30 miles from Los Angeles. As the Eagles meet the Redskins, 'The Tree' will be pulling down as many passes as he possibly can.

Women's Tennis

The singles final of the $200,000 Colgate Inaugural, the richest tournament in the history of women's tennis, will be telecast Saturday, Oct. 23, on NBC-TV.

The Colgate Inaugural, designed as a tournament of champions, will be the first event in a new international series linking women's tournaments throughout the world by way of a point system.

Carrying a top singles prize of $45,000, the Colgate Inaugural, to be contest at the Mission Hills Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif., will attract the game's top women players. Chris Evert, winner of Wimbledon, the Colgate Eastbourne and the U.S. Open; Evonne Goolagóne, victor in the Virginia Slims tourney, and Billie Jean King, who triumphed in the Federation Cup, are all eligible for the $200,000 Inaugural.

Other international stars vying for the record prize money will be Virginia Wade, Olga Morozova, Rosemary Casals, Martina Navratilova, Francoise Durr, Maria Bueono and Betty Stove.

East Meets West

At long last, Americans will get a chance to see East versus Midwest on national television.

No, it's not a football game; rather, a collision of cultures which will occur weekly on the new comedy series, "Mr. T and Tina," seen Saturdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on ABC.

"Mr. T and Tina" is the story of the Takahashi family after they move from Tokyo to Chicago. It tells how they adjust to Chicago and how Chicago adjusts to them.

Pat Morita, a fantastically funny comedian and actor, stars as Taro Takahashi, a brilliant inventor who bears the brunt of this clash of cultures.

When Taro, a widower, moves to Chicago, he brings with him his sister-in-law, Michi (Pat Suzuki), his Uncle Matsu (Jerry Fujikawa) and his two children, Sachi (June Angela) and Aki (Gene Profanato).

His first mistake is to allow Tina Kelly (Susan Blanchard) to hire herself as governess for his children. Why, he wonders, is he, a man of science, logic and executive ability, unable to fire this corn-fed Mary Poppins? She isn't a governess at all, but a Caucasian thorn in his side. It is Tina, after all, who is helping his children adapt quickly to their new life style — a little too quickly for the proper Taro, who nervously wonders if centuries of Japanese culture are being smothered by French Fries and a Big Mac!

Further complicating his life is the manager of his apartment building, Miss Lelwellyn (Miriam Byrd Nethery), a fluttering Southern lady who is not too sure what to do about her new tenants who seem to be of-un-another ethnic persuasion. Then there is Harvard (Ted Lange), the internal maintenance engineer for the building. Harvard tolerates Miss Llewellyn likes Tina, Taro, Michi and the children, and is a buddy to Uncle Matsu, whom he treats like a soul brother.

These and other problems often drive Taro to his haven, the local Japanese bathhouse where he can make his decisions in a dignified manner in peaceful and familiar surroundings.

Although a comedy, "Mr. T. and Tina" presents a predicament common to any man from another country who needs to retain many of his old and cherished traditions while, at the same time, being forced to adjust to the somewhat strange ways of his new home. And, like all comedy, the process involves quite a bit of pain.

Bronson Stars In 'Breakout'

Charles Bronson stars as a Texas bush pilot who accepts the challenge of freeing an American from a Mexican prison in an intricately timed and risky escape plan in "Breakout," an adventure drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Oct. 2, 9 to 11 p.m. Robert Duvall and Jill Ireland also star.

Nick Colton, an adventuresome pilot, is impressed by the determination of Ann Wagner to free her husband, Jay, from jail. Even after several attempts have proven unsuccessful, Ann continues to seek help in reaching her goal.

Despite the doubts of his partner, Hawk, Colton agrees to land his small plane on a road where a work crew is gathered. Forced to take off under heavy gunfire, Colton begins to suspect that this attempt and all the others have failed because the authorities have been tipped off.

Colton convinces an acquaintance to teach him how to fly a helicopter and then borrows the flying machine for an unorthodox aerial rescue attempt that will net him $250,000 if he succeeds.

'SUPER BOWL' SHOW RENEWED

CBS-TV has exercised its option to renew the "Super Night at the Super Bowl" special for its second year. The 90-minute, live telecast is scheduled for airing Jan. 8.

Cowboys V.S. Colts

On Sunday, Sept. 26, at 4 p.m. on NBC-TV, the Dallas Cowboys will host the Baltimore Colts.

Roger Staubach will be looking to improve upon his superb 56-9 percent completion average for 2,666 yards and 17 TDs, while leading all NFC quarterbacks in rushing last season. Roger is constantly striving for greatness. In discussing what he felt it took to attain that plateau, he said, "I'm still searching for it. When you talk about great quarterbacks in the NFL, you talk about consistency — your Bart Starrs, Johnny Unitases, and Otto Grahams.

FOR LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN, NBA Commissioner

Did you learn anything from Watergate that helped you in your present job?—Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● As the victim of the original Watergate break-in, to this day I'm somewhat disbelieving that it occurred. Nevertheless, never again will I assume that what I took for granted prior to Watergate—all the contentions regarding individual liberty and the rights of citizens in a democracy– is valid. Only constant vigilance and hard work make them valid. Reflecting on this, I've recognized that my present role does not significantly differ from positions I previously held in government and politics. It is one of human relations. So I try to apply the same democratic principles inherent in our society to my daily relationships with associates and with the public.

FOR MICK JAGGER

Why do you keep touring? You have plenty of cash, so it can't be for the money.—J.M., Savannah, Ga.

● It's the way I choose to make a living, so it is for the money. I've got to keep it up. It's also for pleasure. I enjoy it. But I don't do it nonstop, the way I used to.

FOR DINA MERRILL

When did you first feel you had finally made it as a star?—E.S., Aberdeen, S.D.

● When my kids saw the movie I made with Jerry Lewis, "Don't Give Up the Ship." "Wow," they said. "A picture with Jerry Lewis!" That was when I felt I'd arrived.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of "The Last Chance"

I know that actors are superstitious. Are writers that way, too?—A.S., Galveston, Texas

● I certainly am. It seems that every time I've based a character on someone I knew in real life, the things I made happen to that character later happened to the real person. I'm not saying I'm clairvoyant, because I know people follow the dictates of their own personalities, but now I never make anything bad happen to anyone I know. And I'll never, never "kill off" a friend.

FOR GEN. WILLIAM WESTMORELAND, former Army Chief of Staff

What do you think of women at West Point?—John Mason, Pittsfield, Mass.

● I think it's silly. They're depriving young men of the limited places that are there. The purpose of West Point is to train combat officers, and women are not physically able to lead in combat. Maybe you could find one woman in 10,000 who could lead in combat, but she would be a freak, and the Military Academy is not being run for freaks.

FOR GENE WILDER, actor

I bet someone that you're an Aquarius. Do I win?—M.P., New Milford, Conn.

● You lose–I'm a Gemini.

FOR VIKKI CARR

What's your real name, and why did you change it?—Mrs. Vivian Ralls, Uniontown, Kan.

● My given name is Florencia Bisenta de Casillas Martinez Cardona. There wasn't a theater marquee large enough to take all that, and it was suggested to me very early that I should shorten and change it.

FOR LESLIE UGGAMS

Are you related to Nancy Wilson or Diahann Carroll?—J.R., Gastonia, N.C.

● We used to hang out together, but there's no blood relationship. You're not the only one to confuse me with them. After I was approached for the umpteenth time and asked if I was Nancy or Diahann, I said, "Neither. I'm Ella Fitzgerald." It was in a restaurant. The woman looked startled, peered at my dinner plate, and said, "You wear well. Must be what you eat."

FOR THOMAS A. MURPHY, Chairman of General Motors

Wouldn't our unemployment problem be helped if we put a quota on the number of foreign cars allowed into the U.S.?—Myron A. Pylpec, Hyattsville, Md.

● I don't think so. Many of our products are exported to countries throughout the world. It is estimated that the jobs of 51,000 G.M. employees in the U.S. alone were related to 1974 exports from this country. Were the U.S. to adopt a restrictive trade policy, it could invite retaliation, limit our exports and result in more unemployment.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I'm annoyed with Ted Bessell, who played Mary Tyler Moore's boyfriend last season. I've written to him many times to ask if he's married, but he won't answer. What gives?—M.G., Scranton, Pa.

● We're surprised, because Ted is usually very good at answering mail. Could be you didn't hear from him because a few months ago he moved from Hollywood to New York, where he's starring on Broadway in "Same Time Next Year," and his mail is still catching up with him. Ted is not married. He's a bachelor, romantically involved right now (he won't identify the lady) and gloats over the fact that he's always been lucky with his stage and screen leading ladies (Mary Tyler Moore, Marlo Thomas, Loretta Swit, Sandy Dennis). He has often said his "Mary Tyler Moore" boyfriend role comes closest to the way he is in real life.

America's Changing Mood

How You Voted on Our "Timely Issues Survey"

By Jerry Flint

Our readers have sent a message to the Presidential candidates. The message comes from the Timely Issues Survey that FAMILY WEEKLY ran last April, and to which 75,000 readers replied, their answers as clear as the clamor of Joshua's trumpets.

They aren't satisfied. They don't believe that either of this year's candidates is equal to the leaders of the past. Sixty percent of the respondents of FAMILY WEEKLY's poll felt that way, and in any vote, that's a landslide. And the vote varied only moderately among men and women, young and old, Easterners, Westerners, Northerners and Southerners.

There are other messages, too. FAMILY WEEKLY's readers want change. Some would say that they want to go back, that they're conservative. But what is "conservative" and what is "liberal"? The words have changed meaning. Two hundred years ago, when our Revolution was fought, a liberal wanted less government interference, a conservative wanted more. But in the past decades, those marching under the liberal banner have wanted—and gotten—more government, while the conservatives have called for less.

One thing was true 200 years ago and 20 years ago; the liberals wanted change, the conservatives wanted more of the same. Readers of FAMILY WEEKLY want change. Does this make them liberal? They want less government control of their lives. Does that make them conservative? The words may not be clear any more, but the readers' vote is:

- 52 percent of the total felt the Government was doing enough for the unemployed, against 39 percent who thought more should be done.
- 78 percent felt social-welfare programs, not the military, should bear the brunt of inflation-fighting spending cuts.
- 82 percent were against quota hiring to atone for past race and sex discrimination.
- 85 percent said tougher sentencing and the death penalty would help reduce crime.

There were surprises. Despite the almost universal condemnation of intelligence agencies in the press and Congress, 59 percent in FAMILY WEEKLY's poll said the C.I.A. should not be curbed, against only 27 percent calling for such a curb. And an even stronger 74 percent said the U.S. is justified in using the C.I.A. and military techniques to disrupt Communist takeovers abroad.

Legalization of marijuana was rejected by 68 percent, although among those under 25 years of age the rejection vote was much smaller (46 percent against, 41 percent in favor). Taxpayer-supported day-care centers for pre-schoolers were opposed, too, with a strong 68 percent "no" vote and a 25 percent "yes" vote.

F.P.G.

"85 percent said tougher sentencing and the death penalty would help reduce crime."

"Legalization of marijuana was rejected by 68 percent."

F.P.G.

"51 percent said compulsory retirement should be abolished."

Yet FAMILY WEEKY readers aren't rejecting the social revolution of the past decade. Indeed, their answers indicate an effort to reconcile change with traditional morality.

For example, 45 percent said it was wrong for American firms to pay "commissions" to win business (against 40 percent who voted "yes"). And while 80 percent favored banning explicit sex scenes and obscenities from TV, a much smaller 49 percent favored such censoring in movies. Some 59 percent were against young people being able to get abortions without parental knowledge, yet the "right to life" movement's strong anti-abortion stance was rejected by 45 to 37 with 17 percent voting "unsure."

By 2-to-1, the respondents favored banning homosexuals from certain professions, yet by a slim majority they also favored more encouragement to women to seek careers.

Among the surprises in the Timely Issues poll:

- 51 percent said compulsory retirement should be abolished, with even the youngest voters agreeing.
- 54 percent said the Government would be justified in levying extra energy taxes on energy-expensive vehicles and appliances.
- 51 percent believe that the United States should develop high-speed, efficient train service, even though most of the readers are auto owners.

But on foreign policy there were fewer surprises.

Détente as an effective foreign policy was rejected 2-to-1, and strong support for the U.N. was thumbed down 48 percent to 39 percent. Continued strong support of Israel won 51 percent of the votes, against 32 percent who said no. (Interestingly, the strongest support for that embattled nation came from the South and the West.) And by a 4-to-1 margin, recognition of the Palestinian Liberation Organization was rejected.

When asked to choose the factors on which the future of the human race depended, FAMILY WEEKLY readers pragmatically voted military preparedness and military balance first and second, respectively, and world religious feeling third.

The sharpest division in the answers was between those under 25 and those older. The under 25's opposed the majority's rejection of more aid to the unemployed, opposed their support of the C.I.A., their rejection of homosexuals, and even their distaste for the U.N.

Often the under 25's voted with the majority—but in much less strength on issues such as cutting social services, quota hiring, sex in movies (a larger percentage of youngsters approve of it), day-care centers and even recognition of the P.L.O.

Some believe the views of today's youth will be the position of tomorrow's majority. But the FAMILY WEEKLY poll shows that views change with age. Thus the votes of those 25 to 34 were noticeably more conservative than those under 25.

"Détente was rejected 2-to-1."

Perhaps the most disturbing element in the poll was anxiety about the future.

In answer to the question of whether problems such as racial strife and sexual revolt would fade and leave a more pleasant society, 45 percent said "no" and only 34 percent said "yes," with a strong 20 percent voting "unsure."

In answer to the question asking whether our children and grandchildren will lead more satisfying lives than today's generation, a strong 2-to-1 voted "no." Even those under 25 voted "no" by the same margin.

And while an impressive 85 percent of those replying said America was the best place to live today, only 60 percent felt this nation would be the best place to live in the next half-century. Among those under 25, 38 percent voted "unsure."

This, then, is the challenge the readers of FAMILY WEEKLY send to the Presidential candidates: Provide the leadership and the wisdom that our country needs.

Perhaps our next President might recall the words of Thomas Jefferson upon his inaugural.

"Fellow citizens," Jefferson said, "a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good Government."

The 7 Stages of Woman

Joan Bingham

By Gail Sheehy
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Gail Sheehy is the author of "Passages," the best seller about adult life from which this outline of women's life stages has been condensed. Her painstaking research, drawn from in-depth interviews with 115 men and women from all parts of the country, whose stories are mirrors of our common experience, brings together recent studies by more than 30 behavioral scientists.

Adulthood, like childhood, takes us through a series of stages, each marked by a different outlook on life and different behavior. Between the more stable stages are passages. Each passage is a turning point, during which we are exposed and vulnerable, but also yeasty and embryonic again, capable of stretching in ways we hadn't known before.

Here is the briefest outline of the developmental ladder for women. Do not take the ages too seriously. The stages are the thing, and most particularly the sequence:

PULLING UP ROOTS
(Ages 18 to 22)

The struggle to break away from parents begins in earnest. Even as one part of us seeks to be an individual, another part longs to restore the safety and comfort of merging with another. The two forces are at odds within all of us. But until recently, most of the seeking has been done by young men and most of the merging by young women.

One of the most popular myths of this passage is that we can piggyback our development by attaching ourselves to a Stronger One—be it a spiritual leader who demands total allegiance or a mate whom we think will "take care of" us. If a young woman does tie up to a supposed Stronger One, if she doesn't allow herself her own identity crisis at this point, it will erupt during a later transition, when the penalties may be harder to bear. A stormy passage through the Pulling Up Roots years generally aids the normal progression of the adult life cycle.

THE TRYING TWENTIES
(Ages 22 to 28)

During this period, the focus shifts from the interior turmoils of late adolescence to the process of trying on life's uniforms (and various partners) in search of the perfect fit. Doing what we "should" is the most pervasive theme of this longer and more stable period. Depending on family models, economic conditions and the current prejudices of our peers, the "shoulds" might come out as:

- I should work to change the system.
- I should be married by now.
- I should definitely wait to get married until I've finished my training.
- I should be able to combine marriage, career and motherhood.

The exhilaration of trying ourselves out in the adult world is balanced by the fear that whatever course we choose, once it's taken, it can never be changed. The choices we make in our 20's are not irrevocable, but they do set in motion a life pattern that will powerfully affect the questions raised by later passages.

> "As she approaches her 30's, whatever course a woman has pursued, she will now feel somewhat narrow and restricted by her earlier choices.... Almost everyone who is married feels a discontent."

CATCH-30
(Ages 28 to 32)

Impatient with devoting ourselves to the "shoulds," a new vitality springs from within as we approach the passage into the 30's. Whatever course a woman has pursued, she will now feel somewhat narrow and restricted by her earlier choices. The woman who was previously content at home with children chafes to venture into the world. The woman who has been out pursuing a career feels a longing for emotional attachments. The woman who has remained determinedly childless is suddenly intrigued by the mysteries of giving birth. And almost everyone who is married feels a discontent.

During this passage new commitments are made, old ones broken or renewed. One common response is the tearing up of the life we spent most of our 20's putting together. Divorce is common. If Americans get divorced, the most likely time for them to do so is seven years after marriage—when the man is about 30 and the woman 28. This has been true for the past half-century.

If the woman at home does not act on her own impulse to broaden during this passage, the bind doubles. Sensing that to give vent to any solid ambition —to devote the time, love and discipline to make it work—will invite a jealous backlash from her husband, she often retreats instead to the safety of her previous stage. She then tries to reel him back in with her. But he senses that as a trap. What he formerly saw as safety, he now retreats from as danger. Now her whole effort is to hang on to the arrangement and resent him. This is the classic Catch-30.

The seven-year cycle shows up in a different form for the woman who chose to become an "achiever" in her 20's. Of 1,500 achievers randomly selected from "Who's Who of American Women," more than half have married—but not until the Catch-30 passage. Once they had their bachelor degrees, they devoted an average of seven years' undivided attention to their careers.

ROOTING AND EXTENDING
(The Early 30's)

Moving out of the Catch-30 passage into the period of equilibrium that follows, life becomes less provisional, more rational and orderly. We begin to settle down in the full sense. Most of us begin putting down roots and sending out new shoots. Houses are bought, apartments renovated. Connections to our past and the influences of our parents become more clear, now that we are less absorbed in trying to prove ourselves unique.

THE AGE 35 SURVEY

Women sense the inner crossroads leading to midlife earlier than men do. The time pinch often prompts a woman to stop and take an all-points survey at 35. Whatever options she has already played out, she feels a "last chance" urgency to review those options she has set aside and those that aging and biology will close off in the now foreseeable future.

A half-dozen facts of female life combine to bring the sense of deadline to the fore at this particular age:

• Thirty-five is the age at which the average mother sends her last child off to school.

• Thirty-five is when the average American woman reenters the working world. She can then expect to be part of the labor force for the next quarter of a century.

• Thirty-five begins the dangerous age of infidelity. The desire for a torrid experience coincides with a woman's sexual peak, which is usually reached in the late 30's. Finding a new husband is usually not the point. The idea is: "This is my last chance to have a fling before I lose my looks."

• Thirty-five is the most common age of the runaway wife. Although most are economically well-off, their husbands have stopped thinking of them as individuals. Runaway wives, whose numbers are growing dramatically, are women who feel this is their "last chance" to change their lives before they're deserted.

• Thirty-five brings the biological boundary into sight. The greatest number of single-mother adoptions are made by women between 35 and 39. Women who have been single-minded about their careers up to this time often marry and become stepmothers.

• Around age 35 is when the divorced woman is likely to take a new husband.

The "Age 35 Survey" is sometimes precipitated by a painful outer event: a parent dies; a husband takes a younger companion. Such an event often speeds up the process of moving through the midlife crisis—letting go of earlier illusions, discarding stereotyped roles, taking oneself apart in order to make room for a broader, more authentic self. But the process can Plant Now . . . Step Back . . . and Watch Out!

Amazing Super-Growing Species Soars Into A Magnificent Tree IN JUST ONE YEAR!

And if you think that's startling — just wait 'til you see the spectacular show when it starts to flower — Actually smothers itself in such lavish masses of bouquets, its branches appear to bend from the sheer mass and weight of the magnificent blooms.

That's the kind of wondrous results reported by Gov't. Plant Research Stations . . . Botanical Gardens . . . and University Plant Scientists on what is undoubtedly the most fantastic flowering shade tree ever introduced in America — the incredibly beautiful Paulownia . . . the only flowering shade tree in all of nature that can do all of this and more:

READ WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY ABOUT THE INCREDIBLE PAULOWNIA . . . THE FASTEST GROWING FLOWERING SHADE TREE EVER DISCOVERED!

HEIGHT: Plant Scientists and Government Experts report a growth rate of 15 to 18 feet under less than optimum conditions and even as much as 18 to 22 feet of growth the very first year on specimen trees.

That's more growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE SEASON than even a fully matured 15-year-old flowering dogwood, or prize star magnolia.

SPREAD: University Researchers report beautiful ornamental spread of nearly 35 feet at maturity . . . packed with thousands of magnificent flowers. Think of it. It not only surges skyward in the most spectacular burst of beauty you've ever seen . . . but, also arches out in a magazine-cover display of color-drenched branches.

EASE: Leading editors report: . . . grows in almost any soil . . . and below-zero root-hardy, too. Yes, because nature has endowed this landscape-artist's "dream-tree" with super-growing strength . . . because it is virtually resistant to most every common disease . . . requires practically no care at all. You simply plant it and forget it . . . it's as simple as that.

A TOWER OF BEAUTY IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

Yes, who says you have to spend a small fortune for a flowering shade tree? — and then spend half a lifetime waiting for it to grow? It used to be that way — BUT NOT ANY LONGER. Not since we have finally tracked down the one single tree in all of nature that hoists itself high, so fast you can literally measure the difference in both height and spread from week to week . . . or take a yardstick and measure the incredible difference in feet from month to month!

GROWS IN ANY SOIL — REQUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE — SOARS INTO A MASTERPIECE OF LUSH, GREEN BEAUTY IN JUST A MATTER OF MONTHS!

Best of all, unlike most trees that demand constant pampering . . . the only thing you do when you plant Paulownia is water it and enjoy it. That's why leading botanical gardens . . . landscape artists . . . garden editors . . . recommend it again and again for home-owners who want a stunning display of both beauty and shade . . . and with practically no more work than a couple of sprinkles a season.

VITAL STATISTICS FROM LEADING EXPERTS

MATURE GROWTH SIZE — 40 to 45 feet, even as much as 60 feet

MATURE GROWTH SPREAD — 35 to 50 feet

ZONE OF HARDINESS — completely root-hardy from deepest south to as far north as Montreal, Canada. Flowers even after 10 below zero winter freeze.

ONE YEAR GROWTH RATE — Experts report growth range of up to 22 feet the first year after planting specimen trees under optimum conditions, up to 13 to 15 feet under poorer conditions when pruned for foliage growth only.

FLOWERS — When tree is a blooming size, you'll enjoy thick panicles of fragrant lavender blooms. Highly recommended by landscape artists as specimen planting for front lawn.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS — Natural strength and vigor allow it to soar full forth in even poor soil. You can plant it anywhere.

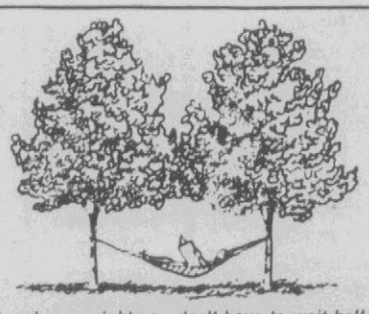
CARE — No special care whatsover. No spraying. No dusting. No special feeding. Naturally resistant to most every disease, pest or insect.

TAKES BUT 10 MINUTES TO PLANT — REWARDS YOU WITH A LIFETIME OF BEAUTY STARTING THIS VERY YEAR!

SUPPLIES EXTREMELY SHORT . . . ONCE GONE, OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON — SO ACT NOW!

Now, the price of this super-growing shade tree is not $20 or $30 but a mere $3.95 . . . yes, only $3.95 for this magnificent shade tree that rewards you with such a glorious display of growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

However, supplies are going fast. All orders filled on a First-come First-shipped basis. You must act now!



Here's a luxury sight you don't have to wait half a lifetime growing — a matched pair of flowering showpieces, so strong and sturdy you can actually sling a hammock between them.

Never Has There Been a Faster-Growing, Flowering Shade Tree Introduced To America — Royal Paulownia

Yes, plant this season — see it soar forth in a tower of beauty in just one year! It's the most spectacular splurge of both growth and beauty of any shade tree ever brought to this country. And it's so easy to grow even a child can do it!

The 7 Stages of Woman

THE DEADLINE DECADE
(Ages 35 to 45)

Gradually, an altogether new perspective on life and time, on oneself and others, emerges over the next 10 years. This is called the Deadline Decade. It would be an unimaginative perspective to the 25-year-old woman who believes that life will go on forever and that not to be loved is the worst thing in the world. The view from midlife is this:

Life does end. Time is short. Each of us travels alone. No one can always keep us safe. And there are some parts of our personality that we cannot change or ignore—even when the price may be separation and loss—if eventually we are to find unity within ourselves.

The most difficult task for a dependent wife in midlife is to see, to feel, and finally to know that none of us can aspire to fulfillment through someone else. For all her qualms about where to start looking for a new future, she usually enjoys an exhilaration of release. Assertiveness begins rising. There are still so many firsts ahead.

RENEWAL OR RESIGNATION
(Ages 45 to 60)

A new stability is achieved coming out of the midlife passage. If a woman has refused to change and expand during the Deadline Decade, her sense of staleness will calcify into resignation. Imperiled by widowhood, she will be concerned over the body-monitoring of her husband. Out of a job once her children leave home, she may feel valueless. Career women who remain dependent on their superiors are usually frozen in middle management.

If, however, a woman has confronted herself in the midlife passage and found a renewal of purpose, these may well be the best years. Personal happiness takes a sharp turn upward for partners who can now see each other more as a valuable source of companionship, rather than as a substitute parent. The career woman who has challenged her superior and has come to believe in her own authority will be more likely to advance.

"At 50, there is a new warmth and mellowing. Friends become more important than ever, but so does privacy."

At 50, there is a new warmth and mellowing. Friends become more important than ever, but so does privacy. The woman who has achieved an independent identity will feel free to say what she really thinks. And once she knows without a doubt that she will never have another child, her creativity is often redirected with a burst of post-menopausal zest.

The New

The handwriting was on the wall.

It clearly said that the time had come for a new kind of six-passenger car. One that would use fuel and space more sparingly, yet still provide the kind of room and ride you've found so comfortable and comforting in our popular full-size '76 Chevys.

The car is here.

It's called The New Chevrolet.

More head room

Inside, there's a little more clearance for heads and hats and hairdos, both in the back seat and up front.

More leg room in back

We've increased the rear-seat leg room by an inch in The Sedan (below) and by nearly two inches in The Coupe.

It will make a significant difference in riding comfort, especially on trips.

The straight-up styling of the car makes it easier to climb into and out of, too.

More trunk room

More efficient

The New Chevrolet is, by design, a very lean but very strong automobile. We eliminated excess inches and ounces everywhere we could.

And it pays off at the gas pump, with improved EPA mileage figures compared to '76 full-size Chevys.

For example, The New Chevrolet is EPA rated at 22 mpg highway, 17 mpg city with the new standard Six, auto. trans. and 2.73 axle. Remember, EPA figures are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and available equipment.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Your Mind's Eye – And How It Reflects on You

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who are addicted to Pollyannaism (psychologists define this as "the attempt to believe that 'all is well' despite one's actual dissatisfaction") are likely to have neurotic tendencies and end up "talking to the trees."

2. People who see themselves as unique or "different" are always worrying about what others think about them.

3. If you feel that the world is giving you a bad deal, that's exactly what you're liable to get.

4. Some people can be in a terrifying situation involving extreme danger–and not feel the slightest fear.

5. The extent to which you perceive life to have purpose and meaning tells a lot about your character.

True or False? People who see themselves as unique or "different" are always worrying about what others think about them. (See No. 2)

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health show good personality adjustment, together with a liking for close personal relationships "is associated with a general Pollyannaism concerning all aspects of the person's world." This finding suggests that it's better to cultivate an optimistic outlook and expect only the best.

2. False. Psychological studies at the University of Michigan have shown that people who think of themselves as unique or different, are the least concerned with others' approval. They have their own set of standards, and as long as they live up to them, they couldn't care less about what other people think.

3. True. Psychiatric studies show that many people go around "feeling abused" with no cause other than the idea that life should be handed them on a silver platter. What specialists call the "abused feelings syndrome" is described as "one of the strongest forces that lay people open to really being abused; in fact the inner feeling often invites the facts."

4. True. Some people, in times of stress, completely disassociate themselves from the event. Psychologists call this depersonalization, a feeling of detachment as though the experience were happening to someone else. Studies show this frequently occurs in times of extreme danger. ("I wasn't really frightened, though it might have killed me. It felt like it was happening to someone else.")

5. True. In an interesting study conducted by a team of University of Idaho investigators, men and women undergraduates were given a so-called "Purpose-in-Life Test." It was found that those who made low scores on the test attributed sigificantly greater importance "to the values of pleasure, excitement and comfort." As one behavior specialist observes: A direct focusing on pleasure and happiness tends to be self-defeating; it works against a sense of fulfillment, against finding meaning and purpose and, instead, tends to promote an existential vacuum. On the other hand, those who scored high on the test seemed to focus on the importance of peace of mind and spiritual values.

You can't be turned down for this Insurance if you're 50 to 80!

Here is a life insurance policy that can be yours for the asking if you inquire before October 31st. No ifs, ands, or buts! Not only is no physical examination required, but the policy is actually issued to you without a single health question!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS® is an individual life insurance policy that guarantees to accept every man and woman between 50 and 80 who applies during the guaranteed acceptance period—regardless of any other insurance carried.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is underwritten by Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, specialists in serving the specific needs of America's older population. This protection is recommended to their members by two of America's highly respected national nonprofit organizations of the mature: the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA) and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

A Protection Breakthrough for Every Older Person!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is a distinctive concept of life insurance, achieved as a result of the years of effort Colonial Penn has devoted to meeting the insurance needs of mature people.

Our goal was a life insurance policy we can make available to all mature people—a policy whose cost would be reasonable and whose benefits would be worthwhile. With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS, the Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company has succeeded.

Here's How PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS Can Do This For You:

During the first two years that your policy is in effect, your coverage is reduced. If you should die during the first policy year, the benefit paid to your beneficiary is $100. If death occurs during the second policy year, your beneficiary receives $250. Once two years have passed, you are covered for the full face amount of the policy.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS enables the older person to obtain worthwhile benefits for his insurance dollar—and, at the same time, guarantees acceptance for all applicants—even those who ordinarily wouldn't qualify for life insurance.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year.

The Cost? JUST $6.95 A MONTH.

No matter what your age, your sex, or the condition of your health, you pay just $6.95 a month. The amount of coverage you receive is based on your sex and age. However, once you are insured the amount of your insurance will never go down, and your payments will never go up!

Act Now—You Have Nothing to Lose!

To obtain full information on PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS in time to take advantage of this opportunity to become insured, please mail the coupon before October 31st. Between guaranteed acceptance periods, you may be required to meet the company's underwriting requirements in order to obtain this protection.

With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS insurance . . .

- Everyone between 50 and 80 can get this life insurance—no one will be refused!
- You receive a policy created for the needs of mature persons!
- There are no health questions!
- There is no physical examination!
- This policy provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year!
- Your insurance cannot be cancelled for any reason as long as you maintain your premium payments!
- You know that this policy has been recommended to their members by both the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons!

REMEMBER—To take advantage of this guaranteed opportunity to obtain PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS without answering any questions about your health, please mail the coupon before Sunday, October 31, 1976. Full information and your guaranteed issue application will be on their way to you at once by mail.

No broker or agent will visit you and you will be under no obligation to purchase the policy.

Even if you are not old enough for this insurance, you may want the information for another member of your family or for a friend.

FREE 1976 SOCIAL SECURITY HANDBOOK

To introduce you to our PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS life insurance policy, we'll mail you "YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY HANDBOOK FOR 1976" absolutely FREE, whether you apply for the insurance or not.

This informative 32 page booklet explains the most recent revisions and describes the rates, benefits, disability payments, family and widow's payments, Medicare and many other important facts you should know.

We, at Colonial Penn, are very interested in the welfare and security of America's older citizens and we will be delighted to send you "YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY HANDBOOK FOR 1976" together with information about PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS. Simply mail us the coupon below.

THIS POLICY IS ONLY AVAILABLE DURING GUARANTEED ACCEPTANCE PERIODS IN THE FOLLOWING STATES: NORTH CAROLINA, SOUTH CAROLINA AND KANSAS.

North Dakota residents, acceptance is not guaranteed, but a few health questions and liberal underwriting assume acceptance of most applicants.

This offer is available in all states except: Ark.; Mich.; Mo.; N.J.; N.Y.; Pa.; D.C.; W. Va.

FLA. AND TEX. RESIDENTS—The program we offer in your state is described in the information we will send you.

"Eat and Grow Younger!" says leading Research Doctor!

PHYSICIAN "DE-AGES" PATIENTS WITH INEXPENSIVE "SUPERFOODS"!

EXCLUSIVE!

First Release to the Public in a new book by Dr. Benjamin Frank! About this breakthrough work by Dr. Frank, Dr. Sheldon H. Hendler, Ph.D., Chairman, Division of Basic Sciences, University of Baja, California says: "I know of no other medical person or nutritionist who has continuously stressed the dietary importance of nucleic acids as has Dr. Benjamin Frank . . . he has opened the doors, to the general public, to the substances which form the very essence of life in a way that is edible, tasty, and very easily digested."

Based on the recent discovery of the "Key of Life"! You've read about the startling discovery of the Double-Helix, the substance in your genes that instructs your body cells how to reproduce themselves. Since then, fantastic strides have been made in research on the substances called ATP, DNA, and RNA. Dr. Frank's own studies suggested to him a startling theory . . .

The Reason People Age Is That Their Body Cells "Forget" How to Renew Themselves!

ATP is the fundamental fuel of life — a magic molecule we need to throw a ball, make love, feel alive. DNA is the "program" nature builds into every cell in your body, to tell it whether to become a part of your heart, your muscles, or your fingernails. RNA is the "messenger" that instructs each cell what to do to carry out Nature's program. All these superfoods are what science calls nucleic acids.

Dr. Frank theorized that as people get older, these programs become faulty. The DNA "forgets" some part of the program, or the RNA "forgets" to give the cell the complete instructions. As a result, your new skin cells aren't quite as good as your old cells. The skin loses its resiliency and wrinkles develop. Your muscles lose some of their capability and grow less strong. Your heart, your lungs, even your brain, start to be made up of new cells which haven't the perfection your cells had when you were young. So, that's how human life has always been, you say. What can you do about it?

Dr. Frank's startling idea is: Don't let the cells forget. Correct the energy loss in aging — restore the energy required for repair of this forgetful DNA! Teach them how to be young again by feeding the body more nucleic acids. He tried it, first by injecting nucleic acid into mice, then with a group of human beings. It produced spectacular results – often as early as the second or third day after treatment! And it is exciting medical researchers all over the world!

Wrinkles disappeared. Skin looked 10 years younger. Dr. Frank's patients also followed a diet of superfoods rich in nucleic acid. Within the first or second week, the patients' faces had a healthier, rosier appearance. The skin seemed smoother! Soon lines and wrinkles began to diminish! As described in his book, with 16 patients of both sexes, aged from 25 to 60, skin resiliency improved dramatically in weeks. The older they were, the more dramatic the changes were! On the average, the entire group looked 10 years younger! (Similar results are reported to have been obtained by Dr. Frank with thousands of patients in his private practice.)

After Dr. Frank wrote and published professional papers on the experiment, more researchers became excited. Now at last, Dr. Frank has written a book for the layman . . . a book which may be the most important breakthrough of the 20th century for anyone 40 or older! In it he reveals his special nucleic acid diet — a diet of superfoods you can follow at home — that features certain easily obtainable foods rich in the magic nutrients that instruct your "forgetful" body cells how to "reproduce themselves young"!

Dr. Benjamin S. Frank, a physician engaged in private practice in New York, is the author of such professional books as A New Approach to Degenerative Disease and Aging, and Nucleic Acid Therapy in Aging and Degenerative Disease. This is his first book detailing hs work for the layman, written with Philip Meile, Professor of Communication Arts, New York Institute of Technology.

THE SURPRISING LIST OF SUPERFOODS

The first time you read the list of foods Dr. Frank has found to be richest in their ability to "teach" the body to produce fresh young cells, you will be astounded.

Included is a totally unexpected "food from the seas" which is even richer in these precious nucleic acids when canned than it is when fresh!

Another whole group of foods rich in nucleic acids are at their very peak of value when they are dried! This means you can save money with Dr. Frank's No-Aging Diet!

This sensational book is not written for doctors as Dr. Frank's first books were. This book is for you, and it includes everything you need to follow this diet of superfoods at home:

1. Some Walking Miracles
2. A Revolution in the Making
3. New Energy for Our Cells
4. The No-Aging Diet
5. It Shows on Your Face
6. Helpful Nutrition for Drug Addicts and Alcoholics
7. Eat Your Way to Health
8. Eat Better: You'll Breathe Easier
9. New Hope for Victims of Heart Disease
10. Cholesterol and the No-Aging Diet
11. A New Approach to Diabetes
12. How the No-Aging Diet Can Help Osteoarthritis
13. A No-Aging Diet for Vegetarians
14. Make Up Your Own No-Aging Diet
15. Some Other Theories of Aging
16. Toward a Healthier Future
17. Recipes for the No-Aging Diet

Fascinating Case Histories Bring New Hope for Younger Looks to All!

Read about the 76-year-old licensed pilot who looks like a vigorous man in his mid-fifties! "The truth is" he says, "I'm younger now than I was five years ago." At the age of 71, Edward W. Stitt was bald, arthritic, suffering from failing eyesight, had painful diverticulitis, and chronic fatigue. After superfood therapy from Dr. Frank, he reads telephone directories without glasses, his arthritis and diverticulitis have completely disappeared and there is a thin growth of hair on his once-bald head!

What are the foods that made "walking miracles" of Dr. Frank's patients? That's the most exciting news of all! They aren't strange foods — or peculiar potions you have to choke down — they are foods you probably eat anyway! You simply aren't getting enough of them, because in proper quantities Dr. Frank's research indicates they work wonders!

Why this diet of superfoods can work for you. If you are already in superb health and look young for your age, the diet will probably not make you look younger, says Dr. Frank. But it will act as a powerful preventive measure, delaying the onset of age, helping guard you against degenerative diseases. And teenage patients with acne in Dr. Frank's tests showed marked improvement. But if you are like most American adults, the diet will . . .

. . . smooth away wrinkles on the face, neck and hands . . .

. . . lessen or even reverse the ravages of degenerative diseases . . .

Bjorn Borg is the world's No.-1 tennis player and the world's No.-1 attraction for teeny-boppers who besiege him at tennis tournaments around the world. A good-looking, 20-year-old with long, curly, blond hair, Borg has become Sweden's most prominent international celebrity since Ingrid Bergman. In fact, he led Sweden to victory in the international Davis Cup competition last year. He clinched his No.-1 status when he won the World Championship Tennis tourney early this year, and then became the youngest player in 45 years to win at Wimbledon. His victories brought him an estimated $300,000 last year, and he may be able to go over the million mark this year when his prize money is added to a lucrative income from commercial endorsement. . . . Borg is the son of a clothing salesman who played amateur table tennis in Sweden. One night the elder Borg brought home a tennis racket he'd won in a tournament. Bjorn, who was 9, picked up the racket and began hitting tennis balls against the garage wall. He soon became obsessed with the game and began to practice indoors through Sweden's long winter months. . . . By the time he was 14, Bjorn had won all the scholastic tennis titles in Sweden. A year later, he dropped out of school. "I wanted to become a world tennis champion," he recalls, "and I felt the only way to do it was to give the game full time." When the money began to roll in, he was able to satisfy his father's lifelong ambition of buying a grocery store. . . . The teeny-boppers first discovered Bjorn when he came to England at 16 to play at Wimbledon. They have been pursuing him in hysterical swarms ever since. Bjorn admits he likes to be the center of female attention, but complains when they distract him from his sport. During the 1976 Wimbledon tourney, he lived a monastic existence outside of London to escape the mobs of admirers. Though he likes girls, he says he has no interest in becoming a "swinger," and he doesn't intend to get married until he's 25.

People and You

If You Believe In UFOs, Will You Also Believe In Ghosts?

Not necessarily. Psychology researcher Kathy Murphy compared people's belief in telepathy, UFOs, ghosts, omens, reincarnation, tarot, I Ching, graphology, palmistry, clairvoyance and precognition. She discovered that people pick and choose. Belief in UFOs was high, in graphology relatively low. Your sex seems to make little difference in what you believe, but your personality and your age do seem to matter. Extraverts tend to believe in all the phenomena (except graphology and ghosts) more than introverts do. And the younger you are, the more likely you are to have faith in everything except ghosts. For example, almost three-quarters of all those 19 and younger were sure there are UFOs, compared with 48 percent for people 25 and up. However, for some unexplained reasons, one person in five between ages 20-25 is certain he or she has met a ghost. The number of people older than 25 who will admit to having seen a ghost drops to 5.9 percent, while only 3.9 percent of those 19 and younger have had the pleasure. Not surprisingly, the study, which was reported in an important research journal, found that you are most likely to believe in the supernatural if you feel you have had an experience with it!

Cucumber and Beauty

by ANA MAHER

Every woman, at some time in her life, faces the spectre of an aging skin. Most women never solve the problem, and finally become resigned. A fortunate few find the answer and are rewarded with a complexion that remains fresh and youthful all their lives.

Ten years ago, I had this skin problem. Nothing very serious, but when I took my mirror over to a bright light, I could detect evidence of dryness and tell-tale signs of advancing years. And I didn't like it. I knew that these were danger signals that warned of an aging skin.

I was also very bewildered. I had always taken the best care of my skin. And no matter what I did, my complexion showed no improvement. Finally I became resigned. After all, everybody gets older and most of us show our age.

Then one day I had a visit from an elderly widowed neighbor. This charming lady was about seventy, but she had the most beautiful, moist, youthful skin. I remarked about it and mentioned my own skin problem.

She told me she used a marvelous cream which had been formulated by her late husband, a physician, and that she made it herself. "Try it," she said, and then she left and returned with a jar of this cream.

So I tried using my neighbor's cream.

In only three weeks, I began to see a marked improvement. My skin was fresher, clearer, smoother. After two months, my former dry, dull skin was revitalized. My skin now had a youthful, almost translucent quality. I was thrilled with my neighbor's formula.

For six years, this kind lady kept me supplied with this cream. And I want to tell you that my skin was more vital and younger looking than it had been when I first started to use it, six years before.

Then my neighbor died suddenly—and with her went that wonderful cream and its secret ingredients. I was saddened by the loss of a good friend—and dejected by the loss of a miracle cream. Her family told me that her personal papers revealed no formulas of any kind. I was desperate. But I did have three jars left from the last batch she had made.

So I took the cream to one of the best known analytical cosmetic chemists. The cost of the analysis was enormous, but I got what I wanted. I had the wonder cream formula.

It had a base of pure cucumber juice, two super-moisturizers, three natural lubricants, and a special component to keep the cucumber juice fresh. My chemist told me that the formula consisted of only safe, pure ingredients—no hormones, estrogens or steroids.

I made a batch of cream for myself, following the chemist's instructions. Then my friends and relatives began using it. And in every case, the results were absolutely astounding.

Soon friends began insisting that the cream should be made known and available to all women, since the problem of aging skin is universal.

So my cream was put on the market four years ago, with the financial help of an uncle. It is called Cucumbre Frost.

The same wonderful results experienced by me, my friends and relatives were repeated time and time again by women all over the country. I have in my file hundreds of letters from grateful women telling of the remarkable results obtained with Cucumbre Frost.

Treatment is not a complicated ritual. I don't have time for that and the chances are you don't, either. You apply Cucumbre Frost at bedtime. Leave it on all night. It feeds, protects and nourishes your skin while you sleep.

I know what Cucumbre Frost can do for you. Therefore, I offer you this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Try it. See for yourself in your own mirror how, after a few treatments, Cucumbre Frost helps revitalize dull, dry, aging skin. How, when used regularly, Cucumbre Frost helps facial skin to regain lost smoothness, moistness and freshness. Many women wrote me of astonishing results after only two weeks. Some take longer. But I say this to you: If, for any reason, you are not delighted with Cucumbre Frost—return the unused portion to me for a complete refund. No questions asked.

You have the opportunity to have a vital, youthful, lovely skin—at no risk. Cucumbre Frost can be purchased only by ordering it directly from me. Simply fill out the coupon and mail today.

Ralph Waite:

The Real-Life "Father Walton" Has Had Some Hard Times of His Own

"I feel the quality of loving that I may have as an actor is a gift, not a talent. One should not turn his back on a gift."

When I met Ralph Waite he immediately impressed me with his quiet dignity and strength and the substance of what he said. Not surprising when you consider his background . . .

FAMILY WEEKLY: Are you like Father Walton?

RALPH: I've had a much more troubled life. I've been divorced; I've lost one child who died of leukemia when she was 9; I've known what it is to be mixed up emotionally. I had a drinking problem and needed therapy—I didn't know how to handle myself or my life. But throughout, part of me has been the protector, friend, father. My parents died young, and I raised my two brothers and sisters. I worked as a social worker and cared for 75 families, then went into the ministry and led 2,000 people. So there is something in me that propels me to guide and help others. But the other side of my being is a driving, conceited person with a big ego—a person who wants a career and needs success. I've had to recall and strengthen the first part of my personality for my role in "The Waltons."

FW: What made you decide to go into the ministry? Were you brought up in a religious way?

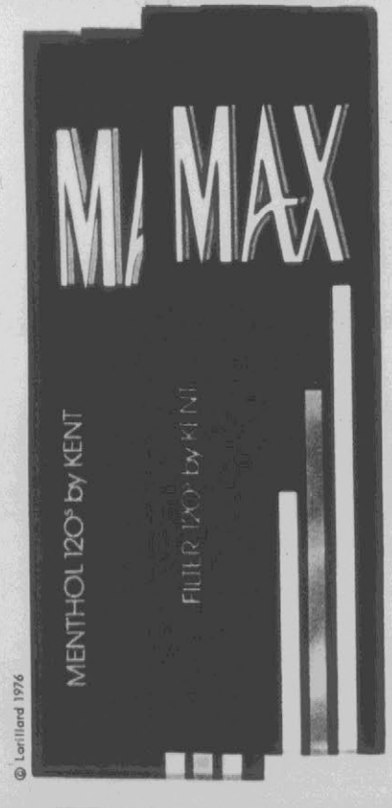
RALPH: Not really. My father was a construction engineer. In fact, there was a time when I didn't even know what it meant to be a Christian. I was an agnostic when I met my wife in college. Then there was a period when I read a lot of books. There was one by Reinhold Niebuhr that had a tremendous effect on me. I became so infatuated with it that I drove up to see Niebuhr in Westchester County [N.Y.] and had a long talk with him. That chat made me decide to study for the ministry at Yale.

FW: Was your wife religious?

RALPH: Very. When I was in the Philosophy Club, she was head of a Christian organization, and we used to debate constantly.

FW: And you fell in love?

RALPH: We sure did. But I'm afraid we're divorced now. She lives in Carmel Valley with our two daughters. They're 15 and 18 and very beautiful.



Max 120's.
Long, lean, delicious. They take longer to smoke so you don't light up as often.

Regular: 17 mg. "tar," 1.2 mg. nicotine; Menthol: 17 mg. "tar," 1.3 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Report April 1976.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

© Lorillard 1976

FW: Does either of them want to go into show business?

RALPH: I don't think so. I think both would like to get married and settle down and live a more ordinary life than I do.

FW: Why did you give up the ministry?

RALPH: I didn't. I'm still a minister, but it has been a long time since I performed any official function. The last time I married a couple was back in Garden City, N.Y., where I served a little Congregationalist church. Recently, however, a friend got me to preach in front of a congregation—the first time in 10 years. It felt pretty good.

FW: Why didn't you continue your ministry?

RALPH: It just wasn't for me any more. I felt the Church was too far behind the times. Too slow, not in time with the social revolution, not sufficiently involved with blacks. I now realize I was impatient and overcritical. I blamed the Church for problems that were really my own personal problems.

FW: How did you get involved in acting?

RALPH: First there was an evening acting class, then a classmate who suggested I read for José Quintero. I did, and got a job as understudy for $25 a week. A couple of days later—before I had a chance to learn his part—the star got sick and I had to step in. I didn't know what I was doing.

FW: How did it come off?

RALPH: The leading lady got so upset she walked off stage in the middle of the performance—that's how it came off! I vowed I'd never do that again, and within six weeks I was able to do all the roles.

"I seem to be a one-woman man. I don't like to go out with a lot of different girls."

FW: Did being a minister help you as an actor?

RALPH: Probably. As a minister you have a certain authority and you're not as easily intimidated. Being older helped, too. By the time I got into acting, I wasn't just a frightened kid.

FW: What did you do to survive until you could make a living as an actor?

RALPH: At first I was an editor of religious books. Then I was a social worker in Westchester County. Then I was a waiter in a home for foster children. I drove cabs and even worked as a bartender.

FW: Was it strange for a minister to be a bartender?

RALPH: Well, I remember an embarrassing moment when one of my customers turned out to be a church deacon I had served under!

FW: What was your wife doing all this time?

RALPH: She managed the foreign students' house at New York University and was in charge of the students' kitchen. We got a free apartment out of that. Somehow she always sneaked enough leftovers upstairs for our kids. Without her help and her father's financial help, I don't know how we would have managed.

FW: What did her father do?

RALPH: At the time, he edited "War Cry," the Salvation Army paper. Later he became an editor at "Reader's Digest."

FW: Why did your marriage break up?

RALPH: We simply grew apart. At 35 you are not the same person you were at 20. When we finally realized what was happening, we couldn't face it. We took our marriage very seriously, and for six years after it was really over, we tried to stay together and make it work.

FW: Do you ever want to get married again?

RALPH: I honestly don't know. I've had a few relationships in my life, but each lasted a very long time. I seem to be a one-woman man. I don't like to go out with a lot of different girls, so after having been with one woman for so long, it's difficult to get used to someone else.

FW: How do you live now?

RALPH: I have a nice three-bedroom home on top of the mountains that divide Hollywood from the San Fernando Valley. It's totally private. That's what I like about it. On weekends I don't even answer the telephone. I have someone who comes in once a week to clean. The rest of the time, I take care of it myself, but after being married for 15 years, I'm not very good at housekeeping, particularly cooking—but I try.

FW: Don't you get lonely being on your own?

RALPH: It's funny, but I don't. For the first time in my life, I have a daily job from seven in the morning until seven at night. I like the discipline of it. My life is structured for a change. After 14 years of haphazard life as an actor, I now have security and permanence and organization.

FW: What do you do with your free time?

RALPH: I like to be by myself. I read, garden, write and think. When I first had a little extra money, I was so geared up that I'd hop on a plane and go to Europe or around the world. Now I'm very happy staying home by myself. I am very jealous of my private time.

FW: How well do you get along with your co-stars?

RALPH: Amazingly well after four years of spending 12 hours a day together, five days a week. We're together more than any real-life family, I'm sure.

FW: Do you see each other socially after work?

RALPH: Not me. I'm not the social kind. Richard Thomas (John Boy) does, and so does Michael Learned (who plays Ralph's wife). I tend to get involved in other things.

FW: Like what?

RALPH: I worked on Tom Hayden's campaign for the Senate. [Hayden lost the Democratic primary to incumbent John V. Tunney.] And then, there's my theater.

FW: Is that why you announced you were leaving "The Waltons"?

RALPH: Yes. I started a theater, which wound up costing me $25,000 a show because I insisted on paying every member of the cast. I asked the studio either to raise my salary or give money to the theater to keep it going. They wouldn't do either. Finally I gave in and went back to work.

FW: What did the public say when you left the series?

RALPH: I got a lot of letters from people who said they'd never written fan letters before, but I was serving an important function in their homes as a father figure, and they wanted me to stay on. They stressed the quality of love and caring for each other that we show on "The Waltons." I feel the quality of loving that I may have as an actor is a gift, not a talent. One should not turn his back on a gift. It should be used.

Smart Cooking For Special Occasions

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a savory company chicken borrowed from Richard Grausman, an instructor from Le Cordon Bleu, the famous French cooking school. "Follow these step-by-step instructions," says Marilyn, "and your dinner guests will be complimenting you for days!"

This Delicious Chicken Will Make You a Gourmet!

Elizabeth Gee

POULET PORTUGAIS
(Portuguese Chicken)

4 tablespoons sweet butter
3½-4 lbs. chicken, cut into 8 pieces
2 medium onions, chopped
1-2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 shallots, finely chopped
5 tablespoons flour
1 cup dry white wine
2 cups beef stock
Bouquet garni: 1 parsley sprig; 1 rib celery; 1 bay leaf; 1 teaspoon thyme leaves
1 rounded teaspoon tomato paste
Salt
Pepper
Garniture: ¾ lb. mushrooms, quartered and sautéed; 4 tomatoes, peeled and quartered; 3 ozs. pitted green olives, blanched*; 3 ozs. pitted black olives

1. Heat butter in large sauté pan. Add chicken and brown on both sides over medium heat.
2. Add onion and cook until golden. Add garlic and shallots; cook, stirring until lightly browned.
3. Add flour and stir into butter and drippings. Cook for several minutes.
4. Add wine and stock, stirring.
5. Fold parsley over celery rib with bay leaf and thyme. Add to chicken along with tomato paste. Season with salt and pepper. (Do not add salt if using canned beef stock.) Taste the result.
6. Heat to boiling point, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 25-35 minutes. If preparing Poulet Portugais the day before, transfer to covered casserole at this point and refrigerate.
7. Before serving, prepare garniture as described. Add to chicken mixture, heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Remove bouquet garni and serve. Makes 4-6 servings

RIZ PILAF
(Seasoned Rice)

1 tablespoon sweet butter
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 cup uncooked white rice
2 cups boiling beef or chicken stock
Few leaves saffron
Salt
Pepper

1. In heavy saucepan, heat butter until hot but not smoking. Add onion and cook, stirring over medium heat until clear.
2. Add rice* and cook for about 2-3 minutes, stirring, over medium-high heat until rice turns opaque.
3. Pour in hot stock; add saffron and stir. Heat to boiling, then cover. Place in preheated 350° F. oven for 18 minutes or cook on top of stove over low heat until liquid is absorbed, about 18-20 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste.
Makes 4-6 servings

What's Smart: Our menu contains simple foods that one can buy anywhere. It's the special touch of putting certain foods together that makes the difference in just plain cooking and cooking with class, in Le Cordon Bleu manner. We all love chicken, and most cooks welcome a different way to prepare it.

Rice is another food we frequently take for granted. Knowing how to make a flavorful rice pilaf using varied cooking liquids and seasonings is an excellent way to cook rice that adapts to many menus.

What in the World!

LARRY AND PAT KELLEY
World's most untogether couple

Is their marriage on the rocks? Larry and Pat Kelley say it's more like on "Cloud Nine." She's an airline stewardess, based in Washington, D.C. He's an industrial engineer, working in Courtland, Ala. Their schedule looks like this: She takes off most Monday mornings for the 700-mile commute to her job in Washington. He takes off every morning for the 25-mile ride to his job in Courtland. When Larry's driving home in the afternoon, Pat's jetting off to far-off places. Some nights she flies to Las Vegas; he goes to night classes at a nearby university. While she's at 20,000 feet, he goes bowling. It's that way until Thursday, when Pat flies home to Alabama and Larry comes home to find a hot meal on the table. The Kelley's arrangement takes a lot of trust, and they've got it. "I can't worry about what he's doing when I'm gone," Pat says. "And I can't worry about what Pat's doing in Las Vegas," Larry adds. Just for the record, neither one is worrying. "When we're together," the Kelleys agree, "it's the best time possible."

MODEL-TURNED-DESIGNER FONTAYNE
You even get a written guarantee

Lemon Meringue, The Dip, Parfait, Strawberry & Lemonade, . . . No, they're not scrumptious concoctions dreamed up by an inventive soda jerk; they're the brainchildren of designer Fontayne. Fontayne ignores the dictates of Paris, New York and London; disregards trends ("My clothes are timeless; put them away for five years, bring them out, they're still in style.") and is involved in every facet of her creations from when her pen hits the sketch board until she models the end product herself. In fact, Fontayne began as a model. All of Fontayne's clothes are "one of a kind." She won't permit her styles to be mass-produced and will give a written guarantee of exclusivity. So if you want to make sure you don't come face to face with someone audacious enough to be wearing "your" dress when you go to that special event, Fontayne is the one to see.

Betty Friedan, the tenacious mother of feminism, thinks the women's movement is strangely threatening to those few career women who defied the "feminine mystique" long ago and made it in a man's world. She tells about her experience with one such "Queen Bee": "I was on the television program "Girl Talk" when the hostess, Virginia Graham, turned to the camera and said to the studio audience and the women out there, 'Girls, how many of us really need bylines? What better thing can we do with our lives than to do the dishes for those we love?' Well, I knew for a fact that her agent fought for every inch of the size of her byline on the television screen, and I wondered when was the last time she'd done the dishes for someone she loved. I turned to the camera and said, 'Women, don't listen to her. She needs you out there doing the dishes, or she wouldn't have the captive audience for this television program, whose byline she doesn't want you to compete for.' I realized then that this kind of "career woman" didn't really identify with other women at all. For her, there were three kinds of people in the world—men, other women and herself." From "It Changed My Life," by Betty Friedan (Random House, $10).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

GOPHER BROKE

I've never seen him, but alas,
I've seen his homework in our grass.
A ceaseless digger, never loafer.
I've tried some poison, tried a trap,
But neither stops that wily chap.
I've tried to drown him but, part otter,
He seems to thrive upon the water.
Though it may seem a bit absurd,
I'd like to put in one good word:
Instead of what he does, you see,
I wish this worker worked for me.

An exasperated teacher walked into a noisy classroom, slammed shut the door, smacked one hand on his desk and ordered: "I demand a little pandemonium here!" The startled pupils settled down at once.

"It isn't what you ask for," he told a colleague at lunch, "it's how you ask for it."

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

I recently took my 5-year-old daughter, Melissa, to a local carnival. At the admission gate, I was told it would cost 75 cents. Finding that I did not have the amount in loose change, I began to dig in my purse for a dollar bill. My daughter turned to the gentleman and said very seriously, "She's not a rich woman, you know!"

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THE SOUND OF RIOTING BRINGS VAL FROM HIS BED. IN THE TOWN BELOW SOME OF THE MERCENARY SOLDIERS ARE LOOTING THE STORES.

THEY HAVE RECEIVED NO PAY SINCE THE WAR ENDED AND ARE IN A SULLEN MOOD. KING TELAMON SEALS OFF THE TROUBLED AREA WITH HIS GUARDS, TO KEEP THE DANGER FROM BECOMING WIDESPREAD, FOR THE MERCENARIES OUTNUMBER THE GUARDS.

THEN HE ORDERS A CASK OF WINE SET OUT, AND THE THREAT OF RIOTING FADES. TWO MORE DAYS OF PEACE ARE GAINED. ONE WHILE THE CASK IS BEING EMPTIED, AND ONE TO RECOVER FROM ITS EFFECTS.

TIME ENOUGH FOR VAL TO OFFER HIS PLAN: "BECAUSE OF THE ANCIENT ENMITY BETWEEN THESE TWO CITIES, THE RICH MEADOWS BETWEEN THEM HAVE LAIN FALLOW. WHY NOT OFFER THE MERCENARIES LAND INSTEAD OF MONEY?"

TELAMON LIKES THE IDEA SO WELL THAT BEFORE DAY'S END MEN ARE LAYING OUT FARMS, ROADS AND VILLAGES.

HERALDS ANNOUNCE THAT KING TELAMON WILL MEET THE MERCENARIES AT THE TOWN SQUARE. HERE HE EXPLAINS HIS PLAN. ALTHOUGH SOME OF THE OLDER VETERANS ARE THOUGHTFUL, THE YOUNG ONES SHOUT THE KING DOWN. "GIVE US THE GOLD. YOU KEEP THE DIRT!"

STEVE CANYON

MILTON CANIFF

SUMMER CANYON HAS VANISHED!

STEVE, IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE — WITH ALL OUR CIVILIAN, MILITARY AND VOLUNTEER SOURCES

WE HAVE NOT FOUND A TRACE OF SUMMER'S WHEREABOUTS!

...TO DATE WE KNOW ONLY THAT SUMMER LEFT HOME IN THE DIRECTION OF THE BUS LINE — AND HAS NOT BEEN SEEN OR HEARD FROM SINCE!

STEVE, YOU ARE FREE TO TAKE TIME OFF AND SEARCH FOR SUMMER

OR YOU MAY LEAVE THAT TO THE EXPERTS — AND PLUNGE INTO YOUR WORK

WHY — I — ... AH...

MAYBE YOU'D LIKE TO THINK ABOUT IT — AND CALL ME BACK!

WHY — UH — I GUESS SO...

THAT SUPPORTS THE THEORY...

THAT IF OUR FRIENDLY ENEMIES MERELY DIVIDE OUR AGENTS' PRIVATE THOUGHTS BY THE NO-CLUE DISAPPEARANCE OF A DEAR ONE...

THEY HAVE LOWERED OUR POST-WATERGATE HALF-EFFICIENCY BY MANY POINTS — AND WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT!

PERHAPS IT WOULD HELP...

TO GIVE CANYON A RUGGED JOB — AS A DIVERSION

THINK THIS ONE WOULD TAKE STEVE'S MIND OFF HIS TROUBLES?

PONYTAIL ◇◇ BY LEE HOLLEY

KNOCK KNOCK

OH, HELLO, WANDA!

HI! HEY, WHAT'S GOING ON IN THERE?

OH, IT'S JUST MY PARENTS...

THEY'RE HAVING AN ARGUMENT!

SOUNDS JUST LIKE MY PARENTS!

COME ON... IT'S A GOOD TIME TO BE ELSEWHERE!

I WONDER WHY THEY ARGUE

I HATE TO FIGHT!

ME TOO... IT DOESN'T PROVE ANYTHING!

LEE HOLLEY

WELL, I NEVER WANT TO SEE YOU AGAIN!!

HI, HONEY...

DON'T YOU 'HONEY' ME!

A FINE TIME TO BE COMING HOME!! IT'S HALF-PAST SUMMER!

I'M SORRY

YOU SAID YOU WERE GOING TO SACK RUSSIA AND COME RIGHT HOME!!

WELL, YOU SEE...

WAIT A MINUTE!! WHAT'S THAT ON YOUR SHOULDER?!!

I COULDN'T HELP IT... I GOT HUNGRY
