

Tobacco Official Fears Loan Imbalance Result

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal tobacco official said today there has been a considerable imbalance in the amount of low-stalk flue-cured tobacco placed under the government loan program in relation to its demand.

Robert H. Miller of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service said about 80 per cent of the loan volume last year and this year was in the less desirable, low-stalk tobacco groups.

He made his comments in a prepared talk at the 18th annual meeting of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee.

"At current support levels, these tobaccos have little market overseas and U.S. manufacturers can import similar tobacco more economically," Miller said. "Pricing each grade of tobacco for price support is a special art because it provides signals for both growers and buyers."

He said it appears that USDA will have to continue to add a larger share of the increase of price supports on the upper stalk tobaccos that have sold well above government loan rates in recent years.

Lower portions of the tobacco stalk contain tobaccos that are not as desirable for cigarette manufacture as the more flavorful, heavily bodied upper stalk tobacco.

Miller told the group price support levels on tobacco went up nearly 14 per cent this season, "a rise that outstrips the production cost hike." He added, "Indications are that support may go up by 7 per cent next season and 7 per cent the following year."

E. Leon Moore of the USDA's agricultural research service said that from 1955 to 1975 there was a reduction of 58 per cent in tar and 57 per cent in nicotine content in American cigarettes.

As part of the research to modify cigarettes, tobacco substitutes have been developed by commercial companies, Moore said. He added, "These will eventually have some impact on tobacco production and sales in the U.S."

He noted that in the United Kingdom, a $30 million factory has been built to produce a man-made supplement or new smoking material for cigarettes. He said similar materials have been introduced into two or three brands of cigarettes in West Germany and Switzerland. A U.S. company has developed a similar material. A factory for its manufacture has been built in Maryland and is expected to turn out nine million pounds of the substitute material annually.

Mondale And Dole In Once-Only Performance

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men who have argued many times in the U.S. Senate are staging an argument in a Texas theater tonight in a once-only campaign performance for national television.

Democrat Walter Mondale says it won't be a dull show when he and Republican Bob Dole tangle in Houston's Alley Theater, beginning at 9:30 p.m. EDT. But Dole keeps saying he might go to a high school football game instead.

Their 75-minute debate is a short subject spaced between the second and third debates pitting Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter against Republican President Ford.

Both vice presidential nominees arrived in Houston on Thursday.

They planned today to look at the theater where they'll debate and to rest and study.

Dole said Thursday he was edgy about the confrontation. But he said he would "try to do my best and hope I don't forget my lines."

Mondale said he hopes the session won't be dull and that he is looking forward to it as a chance to hammer at some important issues.

"I don't think it's going to be dull, but of course I don't know how (Dole) plans to perform," said Mondale.

Mondale said he hopes to keep the conversation on "unemployment, runaway inflation and mismanagement of the economy" under the Ford administration and on "a foreign policy that does not reflect the values of the American people."

Because he won the toss of a coin, Dole makes his opening statement first.

The format of the debate is different from that of the presidential debates. It will provide additional opportunities for the candidates to respond to each other's statements.

After one candidate answers the question posed by a member of the panel of reporters, the other candidate will be allowed to comment on that response. Then the first candidate can respond to the opponent's response.

Dole warmed up for the debate with a Republican rally on Thursday, where he was joined by former Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and John Connally of Texas.

Dole was warming up, too, on the plane flight from Washington. He practiced his opening two-minute statement, timing himself with a watch borrowed from an aide.

Although Dole tends to discount the importance of tonight's debate, Mondale said the encounter gives the candidates a chance to publicly discuss differences in their tickets and platforms.

Mondale said he had not consulted with Carter on debate strategy. And Dole said Ford had not told him what to say.

Tonight's debate, like the presidential debates, is sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Guards Shot In 4 Arrests

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Three guards were shot and killed during the arrest of four Chinese radical leaders, including the widow of Mao Tse-tung, but neither she nor the others arrested were harmed, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported today in a dispatch from China.

Quoting what it called reliable sources, the agency reported the four had plotted a coup and relied on the help of Chen Hsi-lin, the commander of the Peking garrison, but the military leader informed Premier Hua Kuo-feng. Hua has since been named to succeed Mao as China's top leader, according to various reports.

In Tokyo Japan's Kyodo news service reported wall posters denouncing the four had appeared in Shanghai, marking the first public censure of them. There has been no official confirmation of the purge which reportedly began Oct. 7.

In addition to the arrest of the four leaders, others were arrested at the Peking universities of Peita and Tsinghua, Tanjug said.

Tanjung said Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, had prepared the coup while her husband was still alive. She also sought assistance from navy officers but failed, the report said.

After Mao's death, a meeting of party leaders proposed Hua as the new chairman, but the four who were later arrested — Chang Chung-chiao, Wang Hung-wen, and Yao Wen-yuan, in addition to Chiang Ching — opposed the move.

No Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The Nobel committee of the Norwegian parliament has decided not to award the 1976 Nobel Peace Prize, it was announced today.

The record $160,000 prize money will be reserved for 1977, the committee said. It is the 10th time the committee has reserved the money for the following year since World War II.

In six out of the 10 times the committee has reserved the prize money for a year it has ended up back in the main fund.

In 1953, Dr. Albert Schweitzer was awarded the peace prize for 1952; in 1955 the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees received the 1954 prize; in 1961, South African Albert Lutuli got the prize reserved from 1960, and in 1963 American Linus Pauling was awarded the 1962 prize.

According to the rules of the Nobel Foundation, the prize must be awarded at least once every five years.

Nobel Institute director Tim Greve had said earlier 50 candidates were being considered for this year's peace prize.

It was known that campaigns were undertaken on behalf of Mexican President Luis Echeverria, nominated for his efforts toward a new world economic order, and the Roman Catholic nun Mother Theresa for her work among the poor in Calcutta, India.

Air Show Group Exploded Device

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported Monday that a U.S. Army demolition team detonated an atomic bomb simulator during a re-enactment of the bombing of Hiroshima, Japan, at a Confederate Air Force (CAF) air show.

The CAF says it detonated the device, although members of the Army and National Guard were present to add realism to the show.

BAD NEWS

My husband was selected to have his name appear in the 1976 edition of "Who's Who in North Carolina." We sent the Gold Leaf Publishing Company in Atlanta Ga. a $35 check Feb. 1 to cover the cost of a personal copy of the book. We got a letter stating that the books would be released in August. "We've written since then and have heard nothing. Mrs. F. C.

Hotline wrote to the address you gave us and had our letter returned "undeliverable." We then called Atlanta Directory Assistance and found no listing. So we called the Atlanta Better Business Bureau and got bad news for you.

The Mr. Allen we talked to in the BBB office said, in his opinion, there is absolutely no hope that you will ever recover your money or get anything for it. The company has gone out of business owing more than one printing company large sums of money. One company had been given the go-ahead to print the books but another went to court and got an injunction against their doing. So He gave us the name and phone number of Gold Leaf's attorney, but said you'd probably only spend more money if you tried to pursue the matter at all.

It's his opinion that all such who/who type publications do not give good measure for one's money. When he's asked in advance he advises against ever signing a contract with any of them, he said.

U.S. Personal Income Grew In September

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Americans' personal income expanded at the quickened pace of one-half of one per cent in September thanks to a payroll surge in commodity producing industries, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said personal income grew $6.8 billion over the month, a rate which, seasonally adjusted, would put total annual income at $1.39 trillion. That compared to a $4.6 billion expansion in August, or three-tenths of 1 per cent, but was still behind the July hike of $10.4 billion.

Personal income represents all money received by individuals as wages, salaries, pensions and other payments after allowance for Social Security taxes.

In a sense, it reflects the basic level of demand in the economy. Growth of personal income at a pace faster than inflation is essential if the economy is to continue creating job opportunities.

The September figure represented growth of 9 per cent over the same month a year ago, putting it ahead of the 5.6 per cent inflation in those 12 months.

On a per capita basis, the September personal income worked out to $6,463 a year, compared to $6,435 when the August figure is applied.

Commerce also released statistics showing that inventories held by manufacturers and merchants grew by the second largest amount for nearly two years in August. The department pegged the advance at $2.7 billion, following a jump of $1.7 billion in July and the largest since June's $3.7 billion growth.

Charge Another In Fraud Case

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that another man has been charged in connection with a fraud investigation at the Fred Webb Inc. grain elevator firm on North Greene Street.

Cannon said George Prayer Jr., 34 of Route 1, Ayden was arrested yesterday on four false pretense charges in connection with the case.

According to the Chief, Prayer allegedly received checks from the Webb firm on September 9, 10, 16 and 25 for corn he allegedly delivered to the firm.

The checks, for corn that allegedly was never delivered, totaled several thousand dollars, Cannon noted.

Human Bait Waits For Border Gangs' Attack

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — In the bushes and canyons along the north side of the Mexican border, policemen are waiting to be attacked with rocks and knives.

They are volunteers — officers willing to wear the dirty, ill-fitting clothes and wide-brimmed hats of illegal aliens.

The nine men led by Sgt. Jesus Manuel Lopez, 29, want to be mistaken for aliens trying to slip into the United States.

They're part of an experimental force aimed at stopping the bands of border bandits who have been preying on the aliens in increasing numbers, raping, robbing and occasionally killing.

The number of such attacks by roving gangs has quadrupled in the past two years, authorities report.

"The border bandit is basically a coward of the worst sort," Lopez said in an interview Thursday after the first five days of the new duty. "He has to operate in a pack, attack helpless victims, prey on people who have almost nothing to begin with."

"Some are Mexicans out of Tijuana, some are other aliens, some are Americans, many of whom speak Spanish and have a Mexican heritage themselves."

"Many are young, most are ruthless and some are twisted mentally. They torture and hurt for pleasure."

So the 10-man task force assigned by the San Diego Police Department, which takes in the border town of San Ysidro across from Tijuana, waits in the dark for an unknown enemy.

Lopez picked the counter-bandits himself. "Some of us begged to be a part of it," he said.

The first results showed how frustrating the duty may become. Lopez said three men from San Diego were captured as they tried to rob the camouflaged officers by hitting them with rocks.

On Wednesday, two days later, the men were released for what prosecutors said was lack of evidence.

Investigator Of Kepone Describes Experiences

By CAROL TYER

Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Robert Jackson, who visited environmental education groups at East Carolina University yesterday afternoon and last night, is known in his home state of Virginia as "Capt. Kepone."

Kepone, a highly toxic chlorinated hydrocarbon compound made by Life Science Products, in conjunction with Allied Chemical Corporation, has kept him busy for many months. He is the head epidemiologist of the Virginia State Health Department, and it was he who called for the initial tests on employees of the company that brought about the kepone investigation.

He got a report in March, 1975 he related, from a neurologist who was seeing a man who had lost 40 pounds in a short while and was so "shaky" he could no longer use his hands, speak distinctly, nor walk steadily. A test of his blood revealed an inordinately high level of the pesticide, Kepone. Dr. Jackson then posted himself at the gate of Life Science Products, a small plant in a converted gas station in Hopewell, Va., and took 10 blood samples. Seven out of 10 of the persons tested already had the same neurological disease the man did. As soon as the lab tests were complete, Dr. Jackson asked his boss, "Can we close them down?" "We sure can," was the reply and within an hour the gates were closed, under emergency powers of the state health department, never to be opened for production again.

Ankle-Deep

Investigation soon revealed that the company, prior to some cleanup work called for by the State Water Control Board the previous year, had been having its employees literally ankle-deep in kepone as they worked. There was no curb to keep it from running into the street, there was no fence to keep children and animals out, and nothing to keep the powder from drifting throughout the area including to a plant which crushed ice on a porch about 75 feet away. The company willingly did all it was asked to do, however, so no action was taken to close them down until the employees did start becoming ill.

The state undertook to raze the company site 7 1/2 inches of soil,

Mother Of Two To Graduate

Gail Inita Hoyle Weaver, Rocky Mount, B.S. degree in business administration, East Carolina University, August, 1976. Magna Cum Laude.

That's the official record but just a small part of the story.

To earn this degree with highest honors, accounting major Gail Weaver spent most of the past three years driving 80 miles a day to and from classes at ECU, studying with enough diligence to achieve a perfect 4.0 grade point average and all the while being wife, homemaker and mother of two small children.

"There were times I didn't think I'd make it through and get that degree," Gail says. "There were those long nights that I'd be up very late, knowing how soon I'd have to get ready and truck down the highway."

The attractive brunette native of Valdese, — a 1968 graduate of Valdese High School — came to know that highway, N.C. 43, by heart, traveling it in all kinds of weather. But now her mind is set in another direction — becoming a Certified Public Accountant (CPA).

She will take the CPA examinations next month but CPA status also requires working experience in accounting. So she is job hunting.

Gail is married to John Weaver, also a native of Valdese, who is employed in Rocky Mount, and they are parents of two daughters, ages two and six.

Weaver, who is son of the production manager of the famous Waldensian Bakeries Inc. Valdese, served five years in the U.S. Marine Corps and was a helicopter pilot stationed at New River Marine Air Facility, when Gail first entered

Gail H. Weaver

East Carolina University "because of the good reputation of the school and because a lot of my friends came here." Also, she says, her high school guidance counselor recommended ECU.

Mrs. Weaver also does some counseling of her own in a way. She teaches a Sunday School class of high schoolers at First United Methodist Church, Rocky Mount.

Of her experiences in earning the magna cum laude degree at ECU, she says, "It's been hard at times. But so interesting. Very challenging. And, now, rewarding."

Abby Advises: He's Dangerous

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the girl who spent most of her honeymoon writing thank-you notes for her wedding gifts. Well, I've got that one beat.

On my wedding night the dude I married sat up all night loading and unloading shotguns. When I finally got him to come to bed, all he did was fall asleep.

I should have known he was a dingbat right then and there, but he'd been awfully good to me before we were married; he was a perfect gentleman, and he never laid a hand on me.

He's a millionaire and hardly ever works. He bought me a car, a real fur coat and a diamond watch. I think he's a dope eater because he's high for a spell then fades fast. He's 40 and I'm 24, and have my whole life ahead of me. The big problem is that he doesn't care one thing about sex and I do. He swore if he ever caught me with another dude, he'd kill me. I'm his fifth wife. Should I stick around or not?

EVERYTHING BUT LOVE

DEAR EVERYTHING: So far, your marriage reads like a Hitchcock thriller, but you'll have to write the ending yourself. Stick around if you like, but a man who threatens to kill is more than a dingbat. He's dangerous.

DEAR ABBY: While watching a baseball game with two of my girlfriends, some boys from another town asked us how old we were.

One girl said she was 13, and the other said she was 14. They're both 12.

The girl who said she was 14 was trying to get a boyfriend. I think if a girl wants a boyfriend she should give her right age, don't you?

TWELVE AND HONEST

DEAR TWELVE: Honesty is always the best policy. Lying about one's age can become habit-forming. Teen-agers add a year or two, but after 40, they start subtracting.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to the letter from the woman who said she liked her neighbors but was satisfied with her own religion and resented their trying to sell her on theirs (Mormon).

That sweet woman had only to say to the young missionaries, "Thank you, but no thank you," and that would have been the end of it.

We as members are asked to extend friendship to neighbors, to tell them about the Gospel and to be missionaries wherever we are, in the way we live and act — by example.

Our missionaries apply no pressure, knowing that man was given his free agency to choose his own religion.

We are converts to the Church of Jesus Christ Latterday Saints, and can attest to the fact that our conversion has brought harmony, happiness and fulfillment to our entire family.

Judge Backs Big Penalty

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A $72,500 judgement against Mecklenburg County Sheriff Donald Stahl has been upheld by U.S. District Court Judge James McMillan.

Stahl was ordered earlier this year to pay $65,000 to former deputy Everett "Sam" McCollum and $7,500 to former deputy Ray Crist.

McCullum, 30, was fired Nov. 6, 1974, for voting against Stahl, who is a Republican. Crist, 38, was fired the same day for protesting McCollum's dismissal.

Stahl was convicted of the misdemeanor of voter intimidation in January, 1975, fined $500, and told to put McCollum back to work. McCollum later sued, saying he was harassed during the 15 months he worked for the sheriff's department after being rehired.

McMillan denied Stahl's request that the judgement be nullified. McMillan said, "The court finds nothing unreasonable in the verdict, which reflects on the part of the jurors that the violation of constitutional rights merits substantial damages and should not be encouraged."

Stahl had no comment on McMillan's actions Thursday.

McCullum, who is now a Newton police officer, said through his attorney that he is willing to settle for $15,000 from Stahl because of the "difficulty in collecting $65,000 from Sheriff Stahl." Stahl earns $21,624 a year as sheriff.

Put Him In Wrong Grave

ATHOL, Mass. (AP) — Henry Chaisson, of 61 Smith St., had a problem in life that followed him to the grave. Unfortunately, it was the wrong grave.

His problem was that just a few doors from him, at 65 Smith St., lived another man named Henry Chaisson.

A shipment of coal went to the wrong Chaisson. It had to be shoveled out of the basement and moved down the block. Mail often went to the wrong house as did phone calls and bills.

The two Henry's sons had the same problem. There was an Eddy and a Raymond Chaisson in both families.

Henry from 61 Smith St. died Sunday at age 77.

The grave mixup was discovered when the living Henry's son, Raymond, mentioned that the cemetery plot his father has picked out was located near to the other's burial site.

Sons of the late Henry found this strange, so they checked the cemetery record. They found that a secretary had made an error, and their father was buried in his friend's grave.

Two hours later, Henry Chaisson was reburied.

Panty Check

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The Bank of Oklahoma received an unusual item in its teller drawers Thursday: Drawers.

A pair of woman's panties, in fact, with a check form printed on their light-blue backside.

The panty-check for $10.85, drawn on a California bank, was endorsed and made payable to Shell Oil Co.

It arrived without comment in a bag of "uncollectables" from Shell's accounting department, said Jean Walker, the bank's supervisor for collections.

Although the panties say "100 per cent cotton," the check is negotiable if there's enough money in the account.

Bank officials weren't too happy with the irregular check form, but they said the panties will be cashed in California and credited to Shell's account.

Fall Colors 'Below Par'

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Blue Ridge Parkway Naturalist Bob Bruce says the autumnal colors in the mountains are below average this year but, "any fall around here is still pretty spectacular."

"We've still got good color displays until the end of the month," Bruce said, but "it seems the cold rain and wind has adversely affected the color season."

He says fans of the mountain hues should not delay in making their trips because the splashes of color will soon begin to melt away.

Traffic was heavy last week and expected to be heavier this weekend, with motels in the mountains bracing for capacity crowds and travelers stranded without reservations.

"It will be slow going, but I don't see any serious problem," Bruce said.

He said fall color is generally at about 50 to 60 per cent of its full display this week. Mt. Pisgah has "pretty good" color, he said, adding that about 75 per cent of the leaves have turned along the parkway from Grandfather Mountain to the Virginia line, and about 50 per cent have turned in the Balsam Gap area.

"This weekend will be the peak for colors in the higher elevations and next weekend in the lower elevations."

A spokesman at the Great Smoky Mountains National Park said the colors are expected to peak by the weekend or the first of the week.

Depression Hits Aged

NEW YORK (AP) — "Depression is far more common than we recognize. Like acne in a youngster, we take it as natural rather than something that should be recognized and treated," Dr. Daniel Gianturco, a Duke University researcher, said Thursday in New York.

Gianturco delivered a paper, "Neurotic Reactions in Old Age," at the 29th annual meeting of the Gerontological Society.

Old persons who are functioning well in their communities still may suffer from moderately severe depression, Gianturco said, adding that the immediate cause of such depression is often different for men and women.

Depression in women is likely to be caused by financial worries, he said, while men tend to succumb over loss of physical functioning.

"The legacy of a long life appears to be a confrontation and struggle with the value of living," he said. "The issue for older people may well be not just survival, but meaningful and purposeful existence."

$25,000 Given Stadium Drive

STADIUM GIFT . . . Wally Howard, (left) of Greenville, regional executive for Wachovia Bank and Trust Company presents an advance gift to Dr. Leo Jenkins, to be used for the expansion of Ficklen Stadium. The funds were provided through the Wachovia Foundation. (ECU News Bureau photo.)

The fund drive to expand Ficklen Stadium at East Carolina University has received a $25,000 advance gift contribution from the Wachovia Foundation.

Wally Howard of Greenville, regional executive for Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., announced the Wachovia gift in ceremonies attended by ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, a leader in the stadium fund drive, and other officials. The drive to raise $2.5 million to enable ECU to nearly double the seating size and improve facilities at Ficklen began about two weeks ago.

Howard said there is a "pleasing and harmonious" relationship between the Wachovia organization and East Carolina.

"This gift is part of our continuous effort to support East Carolina University which means so much to the Eastern region and the entire state," he said.

Jenkins said the gift was one of the largest, single contributions to the stadium drive received thus far.

Bette Davis To Receive Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two-time Academy Award-winner Bette Davis will become the first woman to receive the American Film Institute's Life Achievement Award.

The award will be presented at a dinner here on March 1, 1977, in a nationally televised ceremony, a spokesman said. Past winners of the AFI's Life Achievement Award were director William Wyler, actor-director Orson Welles, actor James Cagney and the late director John Ford.

The spokesman said the AFI's highest honor goes to a person "whose talent has contributed to the film-making art ... and whose work has stood the test of time."

The cross-burning incident, reported to police Monday, occurred at 1218 South Evans St., rather than at 1217 South Evans St. as reported in Monday's edition of The Daily Reflector.

Chief Glenn Cannon said investigation of the incident is continuing.

Elected Board Plan Is Sound

The City Council is moving in the direction of an elected city school board, as opposed to the appointed board which has been the system for many years.

The council has accepted the recommendation of a council committee for the election procedure. Council member Mildred McGrath reported on the procedure recommendations, which the council accepted. It provides for a nine member non-partisan school board. Three nominations would be on an at large basis and six nominations would be made from various wards in the city. For the first election the five candidates receiving the highest votes would serve four year terms. The lowest four candidates would have to seek re-election after two years. From then on the elections would be for four year terms on a staggered basis. A local bill will have to be introduced into the next Legislature meeting in January to implement the plan. We see nothing wrong with the plan which has been accepted by the council. We don't think the appointed city board of education has performed badly; in fact the appointed board has successfully wrestled with some of the monumental problems of education of this century. Still an elected board may give the individual citizens a feeling of more direct participation in the operation of the city school. From that standpoint the election of the school board will be good.

Rumors Shouldn't Decide Presidency

Special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff has done the right thing to complete an investigation into campaign financing in President Ford's home county prior to the election. The president was cleared of wrong doing in the matter. The rumors of the investigation have been damaging to Ford, and they also raised questions about whether the investigation was politically inspired. Rumors shouldn't decide any presidential campaign, and we are glad these have been laid to rest.

THIS AFTERNOON 'Guidelines' For Schooling

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Top-level educators from the State Department of Public Instruction are quietly passing a "bomb" to local school officials, teachers, and college experts: a proposed outline of a standard course of study for North Carolina public schools. The explosion will come in January when the State Board of Education gets a final version of the book, after it has been reviewed by some 1,500 people, rewritten, and put in the form of a proposal to be endorsed by the state board. This will be the first time that parents, teachers, and educators would have at their fingertips a complete guide to what ought to be taught every school child in the state—from kindergarten through grade 12. What Courses? The heart of the approach is the question whether the child from a mountain cove or an Outer Banks island should have access to the same education available to a student in populous, wealthy Mecklenburg. The working draft "Course of Study" runs 282 closely printed pages, outlining essential content in the subject areas and courses included in the curriculum of the state's elementary and secondary schools. The guide is broken down into primary grades, intermediate grades, middle school, and high school. For each segment, major curriculum areas (cultural arts, language arts, foreign languages, health, library/media skills, mathematics, occupational education, reading, science, social studies, driver education, and physical education) are presented with a statement of purpose and philosophy, and overview of that particular subject in the context of the total learning effort. Then, the specific courses to be taught to meet the purpose are listed in exhaustive detail, along with more elaborate description wherever new directions appear to be indicated. So far, the "Course of Study" involves a mere listing of all the courses which ought to be offered to all the students of North Carolina. It does not speak to minimum performance standards either for students or educators. And that is where part of the explosiveness of the approach lies. It is known that several members of the State Board of Education are interested in establishing such minimum standards—mandating the bare minimums which the schools can offer; mandating the bare minimums which students must accomplish to gain promotion and graduation. State Control The other part of the bomb is in local hands: does the state intend to mandate everything? Right down to every course taught? George A. Kahdy, assistant state superintendent for instructional services, is the man primarily responsible for the "Course of Study" project. He expects minimum standards to follow the present effort, but only after much debate and work in future years. At present, the "Course of Study" approach does not mandate minimums: "We will set the guidelines, and local units will have the flexibility to meet those requirements or not. But it ought to be encouraged," Kahdy says. "You can't have a standard that will fit every school... but at the least you will have an outline of what ought to be. The people, parents and teachers, school board members, will at least know what minimum offerings should be and aspire toward them... by whatever means: consolidation, organizational changes..." Kahdy said. He sees the "Course of Study" as a mechanism for aspiring to excellence over a period of time, but obviously not possible everywhere immediately. For example, the outline suggests sophisticated computer programs. "Perhaps they can't have computer science on Ocracoke Island... but if a student out there needs that, it ought to be available somewhere in that school system."

By ART BUCHWALD Poland Is Finally Free

WASHINGTON — Probably the country most affected by last week's presidential debates was Poland. President Ford in his startling statement on Russian influence in Eastern Europe said, among other things, that Poland was not dominated by the Soviet Union and would remain free as long as he was President. The Polish people received the news with joy, and a friend in Warsaw told me on the telephone it has changed their lives overnight. As soon as I heard the news I called my friend Woljijowicz in Warsaw. (This is not his real name as I don't want to get him in trouble.) He told me, "This has been a great week for us. The day my brother-in-law Simcowitz heard the news we were free he drank half a bottle of Vodka and went out in the street and told a Russian soldier to get the hell out of the country." "That's wonderful," I said. "Let me speak with Simcowitz." "You can't. He was hauled off to jail for insulting a foreign tourist." "That's too bad," I said. "It's the price you have to pay for being in a free country," Woljijowicz said. "My friend Bedicoviz wrote an editorial in the newspaper, Red Truth, pointing out that Simcowitz should not have been arrested because, according to Mr. Ford, Poland was an independent, autonomous nation." "I'll bet Bedicoviz got a good reaction to the editorial."

Avoids Direct Reply

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has not directly contradicted John Dean's allegations that Ford conferred with a former Nixon lobbyist about blocking an early investigation of the Watergate break-in. At his news conference Thursday night, Ford sidestepped several questions on whether he met with a lobbyist for former President Nixon, as alleged this week by Dean, a former Nixon aide. Dean's statement led to calls by three congressional Democrats for Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff to investigate whether Ford lied at a 1973 hearing on his confirmation as vice president. Ford said at the hearing that he had not conferred with Nixon administration representatives on the matter. The Nixon lobbyist named by Dean, Richard K. Cook, has denied that such meetings took place. Ford, replying to a news conference question of whether he had talked to Cook about blocking the probe, said, "I responded fully" at the confirmation hearing. Ford noted that he was exhaustively investigated before he was confirmed as vice president and said congressional committees "came to the conclusion that there was no substance to those allegations." Later, a reporter suggested Ford had not answered the query on the Dean claim. Ford again noted that his confirmation hearings had looked into his role in ending the House committee probe. He added, "I am not going to pass judgment on what Mr. Dean Soviet Russia renewed the heavy pressure to force the Spanish military aid issue today amid gathering grape perplexities on European security. Ambassador Ivan M. Maisky of the Soviet Union and M. Kaga, Russian member of the "hands off Spain" committee, descended again upon Lord Plymouth, harassed secretary of the non-intervention group. They pressed him a second time to convoke the committee immediately to act on their demand for a virtual blockage of Portuguese ports to stop fascist arms shipments to Spain. Addressing his presidential campaign to Indiana farmers, Governor Alf M. Landon asserted today it is the farmers and the workers that eventually will "play Santa Claus" to "the New Deal's program of reckless extravagance." "I am opposed to that extravagance and debt because I am opposed to the ultimate confiscation of farms and homes, the Republican nominee said in opening his drive for Indiana's 14 electoral votes at Kendallville, first of seven scheduled stops in Indiana. —Barbara Mathews

THE INSIDE REPORT

Is Ford Soft On SALT?

By ROWLANDEVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Turgid though they were, President Ford's debate No. 2 comments on a SALT II agreement suffocated all lingering hope among hard-liners that he would toughen his stand on this life-and-death question before the election. What Mr. Ford said about a new strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) agreement, imprecise even when translated into plain English, was couched in arms control jargon which surely baffled ordinary voters. But to critics, the President's meaning was clear: he is intent on a SALT II agreement with the Soviets considered dangerous by policymakers at the Defense Department and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). Moreover, Mr. Ford's comments in San Francisco renewed speculation he might seek a pre-election agreement to stave off defeat by Jimmy Carter. Carter passed up a chance to rebut the President on SALT. Indeed, it is doubtful whether he fully understands the issue, much less has a coherent policy. Nevertheless, some hard-liners prefer an unknown quantity to a known negative, a view buttressed by Mr. Ford's performance in debate No. 2. The question asked Mr. Ford by Henry Trehwitt of the Baltimore Sun pointed to the problem blocking a SALT II agreement: what new weapons shall be included in the limit of 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles each for the two superpowers agreed to by President Ford and Secretary Leonid Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974? The Soviet Backfire bomber? U. S. cruise missiles? The Soviet SS-20 missile? Mr. Ford could have finessed this question, as he did others in San Francisco, with indirection or rhetoric. Instead, he plowed ahead with a detailed answer, much of it in untranslated jargon. That indicated the depth of Mr. Ford's commitment to the SALT policy of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. In discussing the Backfire, Mr. Ford assumed a superficially neutral position: "There has developed the problem of the Soviet Backfire... which they say is not a long-range aircraft and which some of our people say is an intercontinental aircraft." Actually, this position is anything but neutral. The President was implying that only "some of our people" stubbornly insist the Backfire is a strategic weapon which must be included in the 2,400 limit. Actually, "some people" include unified opinion at the Pentagon (including Secretary of Defense Donald

(Raleigh Times)
One of the top priorities of the next governor of North Carolina should be a thorough investigation of the state highway patrol and the naming of a commander who can restore morale and efficiency lost during the past four years. No department within state government cries out for attention more than the patrol. The recent announcement by Transportation Secretary Perry Greene that the patrol's promotion policy is being suspended because of favoritism is but another indication of the deep rot of patrol politics. Greene's investigation disclosed, among other things, that patrol members preparing for promotion exams have had the answers in advance. This is but another in a long and continuing series of disturbing incidents occurring within the patrol. Charges that the Governor has used the patrol as a taxi and babysitting services for his family, as well as the incident in which Patrol Commander E. W. Jones was stopped by one of his troopers for speeding but was not given a ticket, and misconduct charges against several officers have kept the patrol in the limelight of adverse publicity. And Governor Holshouser has become personally involved in the weird case in which Trooper T. Frank Holman has been harassed from pillar to post as a result of an investigation which began with an item of graffiti on a bathroom wall alleging a trooper was having an affair with a department secretary. Although Holman was not the trooper named, he was included in the ensuing investigation but was never charged with a crime. As a result an exceptionally competent commander with an inordinate amount of perception and skill will be essential if the morale and efficiency of the patrol, once a national law enforcement showpiece, are to be restored.

"What did the Soviet Consulate say?" "They said the Polish lawyer should be in an insane asylum and referred him back to the Minister of the Interior." "What did the minister say?" "He put the lawyer in an asylum for his own good." "That's terrible." Woljijowicz said, "When the other lawyers in Warsaw heard about it they petitioned the chairman of the Communist Party to have their colleague released from the asylum." "And he released him?" I asked. "No, he tore up the petition and warned them that if they kept up their agitation the Soviets would demand that they all be sent to asylums too." "That's terrible," I said. "Living in a free country doesn't mean you can yell 'Soviet pig' in a crowded movie theater." "Did anyone yell 'Soviet pig' in a movie theater?" "A Soviet political attache said someone did, and he warned the chairman of the Polish Communist Party that if he heard it again Moscow would have to take drastic steps to protect its friendship with the Polish people."

HAPPY WHERE WE ARE
Probably many people would prefer some other type of work than the work they are doing. Many of these people feel that they can never be happy as long as they are tied down to these tasks. But one of the best prescriptions for happiness is constantly to cultivate a love for the things we have to do. There are some tasks in the careers of all of us which are unpleasant and can never be made into anything else. Life is never a placid stream for

See U.S.-Japan Discord Ahead

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Ford's assertion that U.S. relations with Japan "have never been better," American officials see a turbulent period ahead because of the question of Japanese fishing operations in U.S. coastal waters. Another potentially disruptive problem is that the Japanese surplus in its U.S. trade this year may exceed the $4.1-billion record set a few years ago. Japanese officials are worried that the March 1 extension of U.S. jurisdiction to 200 miles offshore will result in a sharp reduction in the Japanese fish catch, causing both unemployment and inflation in Japan. On the U.S. side, officials are bracing themselves for anti-American demonstrations in Japan when negotiations for a new bilateral fishing agreement are resumed next month. Those negotiations are required by the new American law extending the U.S. fishing limit from 12 miles to 200 miles. Existing fishing agreements can be continued under the law, but the State Department is responsible for renegotiating them to conform with the conservation policies set forth in the statutes. In his debate last week with Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, Ford cited Japan as a model example of how his administration has reinforced links with traditional U.S. allies. One official said Ford would have been wise to select an ally other than Japan. Fish is an emotional issue with the Japanese, and Tokyo is clearly upset with the prospect of the partial loss of a traditional supply source. After March 1, regional councils in various U.S.

coastal regions will set quotas for foreign fishermen within the 200-mile zone with a view toward conserving marine resources. Japan is worried that the council responsible for the Northern Pacific Zone will set arbitrarily low quotas. U.S. officials estimate that 15 per cent of Japan's fish catch comes from within the prospective zone, but Japanese sources say the figure is somewhat higher. Japan says the United States has no right to unilaterally declare a 200-mile economic zone. This same position had been embraced for years by the United States, but American officials now say that changing international sentiment justifies the U.S. action. Virtually all coastal states in the Western Hemisphere, Europe, Africa and Asia have already extended their fisheries jurisdictions or are in the process of doing so. Informed sources say Japan has notified the United States that American inflexibility on the 200-mile question could complicate relations in other areas. But U.S. legislation extending the fisheries zone is written in such a way that State Department negotiators are in no position to grant special concessions to Japan. U.S. officials are more optimistic about solving the problem of Japan's sizable trade surplus with the United States. Over the first eight months of this year, the U.S. deficit with Japan was running at $3.5 billion, about $2 billion more than the figure for a comparable period a year ago. Officials attribute this deficit to the fact that the U.S. economic recovery has been more rapid than Japan's, resulting in greater demand for Japanese products. But they said that some corre

Rap Promise By Carter Staff

Hospital Plans Adopt Military Time System

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A promise by the Jimmy Carter campaign staff to give the Wilmington 10 case "the attention it deserves" and a condemnation of "racist injustice" has aroused a Republican criticism that Carter is leaning toward interfering in a state's business.

Carter's campaign staff sent a letter to the National Wilmington 10 Defense Committee which said the Democratic candidate would "not tolerate the kind of racist injustice that has so often put civil rights leaders in prison."

The Wilmington 10 is composed of the Rev. Ben Chavis and eight other black men and a white woman now in prison on conviction of burning a white-owned store during a Wilmington racial disturbance in 1971.

The Wilmington 10 Defense Committee had asked Carter and President Ford to take a stand on the case. Responses to the request were released this a talk with him last week, was interested in "a realistic and sound compromise" — scarcely the viewpoint with which to confront the world's toughest bargainers. Contending that failure to reach a new agreement "will unleash again an all-out nuclear arms race with the potential of a nuclear holocaust of unbelievable dimensions," Mr. Ford begins bargaining by suggesting a bad agreement is better than none at all.

In rebuttal, Carter snapped off some snide remarks denigrating Mr. Ford's competence, then abruptly began a memorized lecture on nuclear proliferation. Carter probably sidestepped SALT, his advisers say, because he wanted to beat the President to the anti-proliferation punch.

More plausible reasons, however, are Carter's lack of expertise and opinions in the wretchedly complicated SALT field. Nobody knows the outcome of an eventual confrontation between Carter's hard-line instincts and soft-line advisers (recently augmented by Robert Hunter, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's super-soft foreign policy aide).

This leftward staff bias was redressed a bit with a pre-debate briefing from former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, a cogent critic of the Ford-Kissinger line. How much influence on the candidate will be exerted by Dr. Schlesinger remains to be seen. But barring a change of tone by the President, many hard-liners prefer the unformed views of Jimmy Carter to views which Gerald Ford showed in debate No. 2 are all too permanently frozen.

week by Imani Kazana, committee coordinator.

When the letter became public, North Carolina Republicans seized it as an issue. Ed Powell, GOP candidate for attorney general, said he was amazed that such a letter would come from Carter's staff.

"No president should interfere with any state's judicial proceedings," Powell said in a statement. While the state Ford campaign has taken no stand, a campaign spokesman on Ford's Tar Heel staff helped Powell compose the statement.

The letter was written by the candidate's issues staff in Atlanta and was intended as a general statement and not a position in the Wilmington 10 now alleges."

Asked if he would oppose the investigation proposed by the three Democrats, Ford said, "That is a decision for the special prosecutor to make."

Ford in 1973 acknowledged supporting the effort by Nixon forces to block an inquiry by the House Banking Committee into the Watergate break-in. Ford, then House GOP leader, said in sworn testimony that he did so on his own, not at the behest of the White House.

That House investigation eventually was thwarted by a refusal to give the committee subpoena power.

In a statement his press conference, Ford said he hoped Ruff's statement "will elevate the presidential campaign to a level befitting the American people and the American political tradition."

Ruff said the probe centered on allegations by an informant that contributions from "certain named unions" had been transmitted to political committees in Ford's district "with the understanding that they would be passed on to Mr. Ford for his personal use."

The prosecutor said, "The matter has now been closed and counsel for the President has been so advised."

The Environmental Health Division of the Pitt County Health Department, for the second year, is offering inspection of microwave ovens.

"The inspection is to determine if radiation leakage exists," Environmental Health Director Willie Pate said. These services will be offered between Oct. 18 and Nov. 15.

Carter's campaign staff told the committee that "if he is elected president, Gov. Carter will give the Wilmington 10 case the attention it deserves."

Samuel A. Bleicher, a member of Carter's issues staff, said the letter was intended to assure the committee that a Carter administration would decide such cases on merits. If there was no federal jurisdiction, the Carter administration would not pursue the matter any further, he said.

Agreeing that Carter had made no promises, Ms. Kazana said she released the letter hoping the publicity would "help the case along." She also said the letter was important because it showed "that a presidential candidate's office would be concerned or sensitive to the problem."

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Fire and smoke go together — but not in Iowa City.

The city's fire chief issued a blanket open burning permit earlier this week to allow residents to clean up gardens and fallen leaves. But the next day, some residents complained about smoke from a leaf fire.

Firemen told the offending resident he could burn leaves — as long as he didn't make smoke.

Autumn leaves, after they've fallen . . . ants at a picnic . . . rain when you've wished for sun. Life is full of such tangles.

But it's how you approach them that counts. Upbeat, or downbeat?

You can rake leaves, enjoying the golden quiet of an October afternoon. You can brush aside the ants and enjoy the picnic. You can settle in for a book on a rainy afternoon.

The choice is yours—for the best of things, or for the worst of things. Like going to church . . . it's up to you!

Why not try the upbeat way there, too?

North Carolina 'Outlaw' Statute Is Struck Down

RALEIGH (AP) — A panel of three federal judges has struck down as unconstitutional North Carolina's outlaw statute. The law allowed a citizen to shoot a designated fugitive who fails to stop on orders.

Saying the statute gives the public a license to kill, the judges ruled that it leaves the fugitive without his constitutionally guaranteed rights of due process and equal protection of the law.

The ruling came on a suit by Gerald W. Autry who was declared an outlaw Aug. 14, 1974, but surrendered to police the same day.

Whether the ruling will be appealed will be decided by the state attorney general's office after it is studied, a spokesman said.

Members of the panel, which heard the case in Wilmington last August, were 4th Circuit Court of Appeals Judge J. Braxton Craven and district judges John D. Larkins Jr. and Franklin T. Dupree.

Attempts in the General Assembly to repeal the law have been fruitless even though sponsors of repeal warned that they believed the statute was unconstitutional and eventually would be struck down.

The voided statute provides that a Superior Court judge could issue an outlaw proclamation if the person evading arrest has committed a felony. The law allows a citizen to capture the outlaw, but if the person resists or fails to surrender after warning, the citizen "may lay him without any accusation of any crime."

Autry was being sought on charges of first degree rape, felonious assault, robbery and assault and battery when he was declared an outlaw. He surrendered and was later convicted and sentenced to 18 years in prison.

Autry's suit also complained that the outlaw statute amounted to cruel and unusual punishment but the panel of judges did not rule on that aspect of the suit.

Under the outlaw statute, the judges ruled, anyone could file an affidavit against a person and the judge must issue the proclamation without the accused having a chance to answer the charge or to show he is not dangerous.

"Indeed, as the statute is drawn, the judge does not act as a judge but acts ministerially and is required to issue the proclamation upon presentation of a facially sufficient affidavit. The effect of the proclamation is to license the public to kill the accused felon if he runs after being called on to surrender," the judges ruled.

Among flaws in the statute cited were that an impartial judge is not the one to decide if a felony has been committed or that the proposed outlaw probably committed it; that no arrest warrant or grand jury indictment is required; that the outlaw has no chance to hear notice of the action or opportunity to be heard.

Also, the judges said, the only difference between an outlaw and thousands of other fleeing accused felons is that someone took out a proclamation.

Dawn And Gary Shared A Deathbed Wedding

By DAN TEDRICK
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Death parted Dawn and Gary Lee Arnold on their wedding day. Originally, they had set the ceremony for Christmas. Dawn's 7-year-old son, Jeff, was to be best man.

But last Friday, Dawn was hit by a car as she dashed across the street to catch a bus.

The injuries, mostly internal, left her in critical condition. Arnold stayed near her bedside in Sharp Memorial Hospital. Although Dawn could only squeeze her fiancé's hand slightly and move her eyelids, Arnold said they decided Tuesday not to delay their marriage.

"It was what she wanted and what I wanted," he said.

California law permits marriage without a license for couples living together if a clergyman performs the ceremony and if the couple signs an affidavit in front of witnesses. The signing was waived for Dawn.

A doctor said the wedding might help Dawn psychologically. A woman friend of the couple said, "Dawn's marriage to Lee was so important to her, I know. She was so much in love."

There was "definite communication between them, however impossible that may seem," said the friend, who witnessed the wedding Wednesday while Dawn lay motionless.

The Rev. Glen Anderson, a Baptist minister, asked "Do you take this man as your lawfully wedded husband?" Dawn

Goats To Fight Forest Fires

NICE, France (AP) — Officials in southern France are trying a new weapon to fight forest fires — goats.

In a controlled experiment, a herd of 50 goats will be used to cut firebreaks in the rugged forestland along the French Riviera which is swept by fires each summer.

Kept in line by electric fences, the goats will munch the underbrush for the next three years in a closely watched area.

Louis Perrin, a local farmer, came up with the idea. He has used 60 goats and 50 sheep to keep some 250 acres of undergrowth on his property under control since 1951.

Leaf Prices Said Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices of the Farmville Tobacco Market Thursday were steady compared with the Wednesday sales, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"Top price of $1.75 per pound was paid by companies for wrapper grades. Offerings consisted of more nondescript grades than any day this week. Leaf and smoking leaf accounted for most of the volume. Stabilization was lighter Thursday than Wednesday," Williams said.

Thursday the Farmville Market sold 353,832 pounds for $430,304 for an average of $1.24.44 per 100 pounds. To date, the Farmville Market has sold 26,829,664 pounds for $31,159,877 for a season average of $1.16.14 per 100 pounds as compared to a season average of $100.57 per 100 pounds on the same sale day last year.

Campaign Begun With Beethoven

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — American conductor Leonard Bernstein says he chose an all-Beethoven program for a concert to open a worldwide "Year of the Political Prisoner 1977" campaign because "when you talk about freedom, you immediately think of Beethoven."

Bernstein said Thursday that Sunday's concert kicking off the fund-raising drive for Amnesty International will be the first of several he will conduct without charge for the campaign.

Amnesty International's latest annual report documents human rights violations in 112 countries. The organization wants signatures on a petition demanding freedom for all political prisoners, which it will present to next autumn's session of the U.N. General Assembly.

Bookstore Takes A New Approach

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — "A Mind of Your Own" is one bookstore where little girls don't play with dolls and Mommy isn't always home while Daddy works.

Instead, the children's books the store carries picture girls with wrenches or fixing pipes. Boys do the cooking.

"We tried to choose books that offered children more options," said Bill Anderson, a day-care worker who volunteers at the nonprofit store.

"They show that girls don't have to be just mothers, or some man's possession," he said in an interview. "And there are books that show little boys crying or playing with dolls, all in a very positive light."

Judy Brunk, head of the board of directors that runs the store, said, "We also carry books dealing with problems children go through, such as death or living with a single parent."

"There was a need for an alternative bookstore in Des Moines to provide books people couldn't get in other stores, especially children's literature."

In selecting books, staffers look for those that don't stereotype women and for books written by women about their experiences, said Joyce Drury, coordinator of elderly services for Iowa Children and Family Services.

The store carries a wide selection of fiction and poetry. It also offers medical and sociological literature, with books on natural childbirth, abortion and battered wives.

Board Backs Joint School

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board passed a resolution to endorse the proposal for a combined Ayden-Grifton Middle School at its meeting Tuesday night.

After much discussion of the issue, board members decided to support the proposal. Citizens of Grifton were present at the meeting and voiced their opinions about the proposal.

The board also adopted a minimum sewer charge and water charge for meters not in operation or not hooked up and kept the policy of basing the sewer charge on actual use of water when the water meter is functioning.

Central Paving Company was awarded the low bid for paving Lenoir Street and Mill Branch Circle.

The board also passed on to the planning board a request by J. V. Broselow of Pine Villa to allow his mobile home to remain in his yard while he makes repairs on it.

Big Turnout For Market

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Some 1,300 furniture manufacturers, trying to attract as many buyers as the usually larger spring markets, gathered in High Point Wednesday for the opening of the October furniture market.

The manufacturers were "showing more new merchandise than ever before," said Robert Gruenberg, general manager of the Southern Furniture Market.

Representatives from around the country, including former professional tennis star Bobby Riggs, were expected to total around 35,000.

Max Meeks, manager of the furniture Plaza Display Center in High Point, said one trend in the new showings is a variety of multiple-use furniture such as a desk which can be converted into a dining room table.

The market, which includes displays in High Point, Thomasville, Lexington, Lenoir and Hickory, shows manufacturers are getting away from velvet fabrics and returning to prints, linens and decorative weaves, Meeks said.

The market also includes displays of lamps, wall hangings, pictures and other accessories so representatives can "see the accessories with the furniture they are purchasing," Meeks said.

Riggs, a former tennis professional who lost a much-publicized match to Billy Jean King, is representing Lea Furniture. Visitors can challenge him to a tennis match and earn expensive prizes if they win.

Answered 35 Fire Alarms

VMI Tests Bucs In Conference Clash

Split End Terry Gallaher

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For many people, a trip up to Lexington, Virginia, to play VMI might be considered a holiday. But Coach Pat Dye is hopeful that nobody on the East Carolina football team feels that way.

"They're capable of beating anyone," Dye warned of the Keydets. "It's Parents' Day, and there are a lot of factors involved in the game that make it a dangerous one. They are a very capable team."

The Pirates will be looking for their sixth straight victory during the 1976 season, and their 12th consecutive over the past two years. The streak is the second longest in the country at the time, with only Rutgers, winner of 12 in a row, ahead of the Pirates.

Perhaps the biggest factor involved in the game—while one Dye and his staff are playing down—is that the Bucs play the University of North Carolina next week.

"I hope we won't have any trouble looking ahead. We're not talking about it. It would be silly to look ahead and then get beat by VMI. That would ruin everything we've worked for," Dye said.

What the Pirates are working for are the goals of a Southern Conference championship during the final year of membership in the league. And a defeat would seriously hamper any thoughts of the title.

Currently 2-0 in league, the Bucs got some help from VMI in the Keydets' lone win in a 1-4 season so far. That win was a 17-3 upset of Furman, and was the only win in three league starts. The Keydets have also bowed to Appalachian State, 31-12, and William & Mary, 34-20. In contrast, the Bucs have played just one of those opponents, nipping the Indians of William & Mary, 20-19.

"We've had a fine practice so far," Dye said. "I think we're approaching every game now with the proper attitude. William & Mary helped us in that respect. Every indication seems to be positive."

Dye notes that the Keydets have moved the ball well and played good defense. He rates their most dangerous man as Gary McNeel, ranked eighth in punt returns in the country.

"They have a very good quarterback in Robby Clark, and a good runner in tailback Andre Gibson," Dye said. "John Willison, a linebacker, leads their defensive unit."

Dye added that everyone on the Pirate schedule is capable of beating the Bucs. "It all depends on how well we execute."

The Bucs should be ready physically. Gerald Hall, who sat out last week's game, is expected to return to his safety position, while Mike Weaver is expected to be at full strength after resting most of last week's game.

VMI's offense has been led by Clark, who's rushed for 207 yards and passed for 201, a 408 yard total. He's hit just 17 of 50 passes, however, but is known to make them count. Flanker John Garnett is the chief target, catching ten for 143 yards.

Gibson is the top rusher with 274 yards, and a hefty 5.3 yard average. Kicker Craig Jones is the leading scorer with 26 points. East Carolina's rushing is led by Eddie Hicks with 402 yards, while Willie Hawkins has 383, Raymond Jones had 251, and Weaver had 236. Weaver's hit 17 of 33 passes for 301 yards.

Pete Conaty leads the scoring with 54 points.

Overall, the Bucs are picking up 387.4 yards a game, while allowing 193. VMI is gaining 203.6 per game and allowing 329.6. On the ground, ECU is running for 323.6, fourth in the nation, and allowing 92.4, also fourth in the nation. VMI is giving up just 70 yards a game through the air.

The game remains important since it is a Southern Conference game, and another step toward a championship—and a perfect season—for the Pirates.

"We're expecting a tough game from VMI," Dye said. "We've got to be ready for them. Patents' Day makes it especially tough, not to mention the fact that they'd love to knock us off any other day for that matter."

Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. at Alumni Memorial Stadium.

Missing Kick Was No Big Thing To Conaty

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Last Saturday night, Pete Conaty went into the Southern Illinois game to try a 42-yard field goal into a stiff wind, and when he just missed it, some people criticized the decision to send him in.

The criticism was because that miss broke a ten-kick streak in field goals for the Pirate senior, leaving him one short of tying a national record.

But Conaty doesn't feel that the criticism is justified—and neither does his coach, Pat Dye.

"There was no excuse for my missing the extra point earlier in the game," Conaty said. That miss snapped an 11-kick streak in that department. "And it (the miss) probably had an effect on the field goal. I didn't hit the PAT well, and I think I concentrated more on hitting the field goal well than in playing the wind. As it was, the kick just missed. I never thought about missing. I was sure I could do it. I just kicked it too high and the wind carried it."

Conaty still turned into a hero in the game, scoring a touchdown, two two-point conversions, and three one-point conversions, for a total of 13 points. That kept him high in the national statistics, fourth in the country in scoring with a 10.8 average.

Pete had come into the game to replace Mike Weaver, suffering from a pulled muscle. Conaty guided the team from there, from a 12-0 lead to the final 49-14 margin.

"I thought I might get to play a little more since Mike had not been feeling well, but I didn't know I'd play that much," Conaty said. "I think it's the best game I've had here—I know it's the best I've had running the ball." Pete rushed for 103 yards in 10 carries.

A non-wishbone quarterback in high school, Conaty didn't run the ball much then. "Last year, I got used to running until I got hurt (broken collarbone against The Citadel). Getting used to the option takes some repetition."

As to his national ranking, he's surprised. Not only is he fourth in scoring, he's tied for first in field goal kicking and has already set a new ECU season record of 11 field goals. "I'm more surprised that I'm still tied for first in field goals since I didn't kick any in the game."

Conaty believes that the fact that he has kicked so many is due to the increased confidence the coaches have in him as a kicker. Several times they've gone to him in short yardage situations where in the past they might have gone for the yardage. "I think this helps me, as well as the team. It makes me even more confident."

Despite the records and lofty standings, Conaty has no goals for the year other than the team goals of a perfect season and a Southern Conference championship. "If the team has a good season, it stands to reason that individuals will too," he added.

Conaty is thinking of the possibilities of a pro tryout, but isn't sure because of the transition he'd have to make in two areas. The pros don't use a kicking tee on field goals, and they do not allow the kicker to tie up his toes—both of which he's used to doing. "I'm going to play baseball again in the spring, and maybe there could be a future there for me too."

Conaty's off-field activities take him far afield. "I like to ski—not water ski—snow ski. Some of the other players and me get together and go later in the winter."

For now, Conaty is happy to keep kicking—as well as maybe getting in a little more playing time at quarterback. "We've got to get ready for VMI. It's a big game for them, and an important one for us. We've got to win to keep our goals in sight, so we'll be ready."

Pirates, Bertie Picks Of Panel

The race tightened up a little bit last week. Oh, not at the top—at the bottom.

Right now, our panel of experts has a four-way tie for what George Holland and this writer refer to as "the basement." Our other four experts call it "third place."

Nevertheless, we find this writer atop the heap with a 45-12-3 mark, followed by Holland at 42-15-3. The rest, Tom Baines, Barbara Mathews, Joe Jenkins and Jack Whichard are at 41-16-3.

But there could be some changes this week. Only two cards are alike—Jenkins and Mathews.

On the high school level, we turned in a 6-1 record last week for a 32-11 overall mark.

We start off with a key Eastern Carolina Conference game at Farmville. There the Jaguars of Farmville Central meet C. B. Aycock. The winner will likely find only Ayden-Grifton between them and the league title. It should be quite a game, and we'll go with Farmville Central to win.

Conley is at Southern Nash, trying to get back on track after two straight losses. The Vikes should be able to turn things around this week, however, and we pick them to win.

Greene Central is at Ayden-Grifton. Like the Falcons and Jaguars, Ayden-Grifton is sharing the lead in the league. Greene Central always gives them a good game, but the Chargers should win.

North Lenoir visits North Pitt in a game that will probably decide last place. North Lenoir has been showing some muscle lately. But if North Pitt can get going, they can win. I'll go with the Panthers.

Manteo visits Jamesville in the Tobacco Belt. The Bullets nearly pulled off their second win last week. They might do it this week, but we think not.

Williamston goes to Ahoskie in a key game for the Tigers. They must win to keep their title hopes alive—not to mention their seven game victory streak. But you can't go against a winner—Williamston to win.

Finally, Roanoke is at North Edgecombe. Unless the Redskins are thinking of something else, there should be no problems here. Roanoke should win this one.

Our panel looks first to the Rose High-Bertie contest. Neither team has been impressive so far. Perhaps the home field advantage is the biggest thing. Rose needs the win badly if they are to salvage anything this year.

The panel, however, gives Bertie a 4-2 nod.

The Pirates travel to Lexington, Va., to meet the Keydets of VMI. East Carolina, on paper, looks to be the easy victor, but the Keydets have been known to foil up the works before.

Still, the panel has Purple Pride. It's a 6-0 vote for the Bucs.

Other concensus picks see Richmond over The Citadel; Southwest Louisiana over Furman; Duke over Clemson; North Carolina over N.C. Breaks Might Give Giants Push They Need To Topple Minnesota

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Minnesota Vikings Coach Bud Grant is wary of the breaks. He probably knows it's the only way the undefeated Vikings could lose to the winless New York Giants on Sunday.

"Teams like this are coming up and beating good teams," Grant says. "We're scared to death they could beat us."

Although the Vikings didn't look frightened as they went 4-0-1 through the toughest part of their National Football League schedule, Grant reminds them that the Giants "were actually ahead of the (Los Angeles) Rams in the fourth quarter and they had their game against Washington won. The Giants really haven't gotten any breaks in their season so far."

If the Giants get a break, it will be with Norm Snead calling the signals, not Craig Morton. Coach Bill Arnsparger opted for the quarterback change after his Giants lost their fifth straight game, 24-14 to Dallas.

"I don't want Craig to be the scapegoat because I don't think he is," said Arnsparger.

"Norm is my relief pitcher," Arnsparger said. "He was in my bullpen and now my starting pitcher has been taken out."

The rest of the Sunday schedule has Dallas at St. Louis, Kansas City at Miami, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Washington, Cleveland at Atlanta, Baltimore at Buffalo, Philadelphia at Green Bay, Oakland at Denver, Chicago at Los Angeles, Houston at San Diego and New Orleans at San Francisco. In Monday night's televised game, the New York Jets take on New England at Foxboro, Mass.

The Dallas Cowboys, the NFL's only other undefeated team, will have a tougher time protecting their 5-0 record when they meet the Cards, who have lost only once in five tries.

The Cards, defending National Conference East champions, are looking forward to the return of running back Terry Metcalf, who sat out last Sunday's 33-14 win over Philadelphia with an injured knee.

In two other matchups, both Miami and Pittsburgh will be trying to keep alive playoff hopes which seem to grow slimmer each weekend.

The Dolphins, 2-3, lost a playoff bid last season when they lost to Baltimore in their last game. This year, they may accomplish the feat much earlier.

Miami is coming off a 28-14 loss to Baltimore in which quarterback Bob Griese had to sit out the second half after complaining of dizziness. Meanwhile, Kansas City was winning its first game of the season, 33-30 over Washington, with the use of a "flea-flicker" play and the quarterbacking of Mike Livingston, who completed 15 of 29 passes for 332 yards.

Pittsburgh will have to beat Cincinnati, tied for the American Conference Central lead, in order to avoid losing four straight, something the Steelers haven't done since the 1970-71 season. And they'll have to do it without Terry Bradshaw, who received neck and back injuries in a 18-16 loss to Cleveland.

Detroit Coach Tommy Hudspeth is coming off his first win as an NFL coach, over New England, and only the second win in five games for the Lions.

The Redskins, 3-2, will try to recoup from their loss to ansas City without Bill Kilmer, who has an injured right shoulder. Joe Theisman probably will start.

Both Cleveland, 2-3, and Atlanta, 1-4, will be going with backup quarterbacks. Brian Sipe, subbing for injured Mike Phipps, will be back in the lineup for the Browns after suffering a mild concussion against the Steelers last weekend and being replaced by David Mays. Kim McQuiken replaces Steve Bartkowski, who banged up his left knee.

Baltimore, 4-1 and in the AFC East lead, faces a 2-3 Buffalo team whose juice seems to be drying up. In last Sunday's 17-14 loss to the Jets, the Bills' O.J. Simpson could manage only 53 yards rushing.

Green Bay, 2-3, has only lost three times to Philadelphia in 20 meetings. And the Packers, winners of two in a row, now are getting some unexpected help from Lynn Dickey's passing.

Oakland, 4-1, goes into Denver holding a one-game advantage over the Broncos, 3-2, in the AFC West. Ken Stabler completed 20 of 26 passes for 339 yards last weekend as the Raiders became the AFC's top offensive team.

Los Angeles is without QB James Harris who injured his left shoulder, and Chicago will probably play without Bob Avellini, who has tendinitis in his right wrist. Ron Jaworski or Pat Haden will replace Harris, and the Bears will probably start Virgil Carter.

Houston, 4-1 and leading the AFC Central, takes the league's No. 1 defense into San Diego, 3-2, where the Chargers will counter with the passing of Dan Fouts.

The San Francisco Giants, 4-1, will be facing a 2-3 New Orleans team that probably will see little or no action from running back Chuck Muncie.

The Tampa Bay-Seattle matchup will get at least one of the NFL's winless teams out of the loss column.

East Carolina-VMI Clash Only One In League; Rest Go Outside

By The Associated Press

Although Virginia Military has won only once this season, East Carolina Coach Pat Dye says he doesn't think his Pirates "will be looking ahead to North Carolina the following week" when they meet the Keydets in a key Southern Conference football game Saturday.

"VMI beat Furman and I don't care what they've done otherwise, beating Furman means they could beat anyone on their schedule. I know Furman has a fine football team," says Dye.

A victory in the game at VMI would boost East Carolina to 3-0 in the conference and give the Pirates a commanding lead over Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 1-0-1.

The Pirates, 5-0 over-all, take an 11-game winning streak into the clash, the only one this weekend matching two league teams. VMI is 1-2 in the conference, 1-4 over-all.

Afternoon nonleague action has William & Mary's Indians, 3-2, at Navy; title-eligible Davidson, 0-2-1, at home against Madison, 4-2; new member Marshall, 3-2, playing host to Dayton; and new member Western Carolina, 4-2, at East Tennessee State.

The feature of four night games against nonleague foes has The Citadel's Bulldogs, 3-2, playing host to Richmond's 1975 champion Spiders, 2-3, no longer conference members.

Appalachian, 4-1-1, goes to Lenoir Rhyne; Furman's Paladins, 3-2-1, play at Southwest Louisiana; and new member Tennessee-Chattanooga, 2-3, entertains Jacksonville State.

East Carolina, operating from the Wishbone, leads the conference in rushing with Eddie Hicks, Willie Hawkins and Raymond Jones among the top 10 runners. VMI, which gave up 372 yards to Virginia Tech's Wishbone last week, is last in rushing defense.

Recalling the 43-0 whipping by Richmond three weeks ago from which his Keydets rebounded to upset Furman 17-3, VMI Coach Bob Thalman says "we are faced with the same situation. . . We picked up the pieces then and we can do it again."

William and Mary is coming off a 15-13 defeat by Delaware in a game the Indians led 13-0 at halftime. Navy lost to Air Force 13-3.

"Our game with Navy is always a battle. They have a solid defense, and I guess both of us are looking for more from our offense after last week," says Indian Coach Jim Root.

Over the past five seasons, Oklahoma football teams led in scoring with a 37.9 point per game average. During that time the Sooners won 51, lost three and tied one.

Dick Dent's job was made in Belgium.

Dick and his family live at 2905 Phillips St. in South Charleston, West Virginia.

He works just ten minutes away at the local Union Carbide plant.

But his job was created thousands of miles away.

You see, Dick's job is to make special chemicals called catalysts.

These catalysts are shipped to Belgium and other countries where Union Carbide plants depend on them to make petrochemicals that are sold abroad.

This interdependence is not unusual in the countries where Union Carbide and its affiliates work.

By manufacturing abroad we have actually increased the foreign demand for many products we make here at home.

This in turn has created more jobs here at home. A recent study shows our investment overseas has directly created at least 2,500 jobs in our plants in the U.S.

Still, we manufacture abroad only when it becomes unfeasible to supply and maintain a market from the U.S.

In fact, we export products from America to 100 foreign countries.

All of which is another way of saying that our international investment is helping improve the standard of living for people abroad and at home.

Including Dick Dent and his family.

Chambliss' Homer Lets Yankees Win

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees are back in the World Series for the first time since 1964, thrust there on a dramatic home run by Chris Chambliss that decided the American League pennant in the ninth inning of the fifth and final playoff game.

The series opens Saturday in Cincinnati and, after their emotional 7-6 victory over Kansas City, the Yankees could have that intangible called momentum on their side.

Certainly there was no fear of the awesome Big Red Machine as the Yankees spilled their first champagne in a dozen years Thursday night.

"The Reds are beatable," said Manager Billy Martin. "We have five or six hitters who can rip the ball. Their pitching is light. I think our pitching is better than theirs and it's over the hump now and will do a better job in the World Series."

Martin said he would name his first game pitcher today with Dock Ellis or Ken Holtzman the most likely candidates. "Catfish Hunter will probably go in Game 2," the Yankee skipper said.

World Series pitching very nearly wasn't a problem for Martin. That's because the Yankees came ever so close to blowing the pennant, squandering a three-run lead in the eighth inning of Game 5 when George Brett slugged a dramatic home run to tie the score.

Then, a controversial call at second base ended a Royals rally in the ninth with Brett, the American League batting champion, waiting for one more swing. He never got it because Chambliss ended the tension with one swish of his bat on the first pitch from reliever Mark Littell in the bottom of the ninth.

The Yankees had constructed a 6-3 lead after seven innings, mostly on the hitting of Mickey Rivers, who ripped four hits and scored three runs, and Thurman Munson, who had three singles and drove in two runs.

With the crowd of 56,821 sending a pennant approaching, Ed Figueroa went to work in the eighth. But he didn't last long. When Al Cowens opened with a single, Martin came out to get his starter.

"Figueroa was just out of gas," the manager explained. "We had hoped for five innings tonight from him and he gave us more."

Grant Jackson was the relief-er and pinch-hitter Jim Wohlford looped a single to right, bringing up Brett, the American League's leading hitter this season. He drilled Jackson's second pitch into the lower stands in right field and suddenly the score was tied.

An inning later, the Royals tried to take the lead. With two out, Buck Martinez collected his third hit of the game and Cowens walked. Wohlford hit a bouncer and third baseman Graig Nettles charged the ball. He threw to second and Cowens was called out by umpire Joe Brinkman although television replays seemed to show the runner beating the ball.

But, the Royals didn't argue and a few moments later, there was nothing left to argue about after Chambliss connected for his home run.

Chambliss' homer was a soaring drive that dropped just in front of the right-center field bleachers, near the 385-foot sign.

"I hit the ball and I knew it was a good one," he said. "I stayed at the plate for just a second or two to watch the ball."

When it dropped out of sight, Chambliss thrust his arms in the air and bedlam broke loose.

Fans overran the field as he tried to run out his pennant-winning homer.

"I was roughed up pretty good going around and fell down, I think, between first and second, again at about shortstop and a third time past third base. I think I touched all the bases, but there might have been somebody laying on them at the time."

When he got to the dressing room, Chambliss had no time to celebrate. As soon as he jumped into Figueroa's arms, coach Ellie Howard came after him, screaming at the hero to go back and touch home plate. He did, using a pair of cops to convoy him through the crowd that had completely enveloped the field by that time.

The scene was reminiscent of the celebrations New Yorkers had staged when the Mets won the world championship in 1969 and the National League pennant in 1973. The emotional outburst seemed every bit as sincere by the Yankee fans, who waited 12 years for a winner.

In the champagne-soaked dressing room, Martin paid tribute to his team, comparing it with the Casey Stengel dynasties of the 1950s that produced 10 pennants and seven world championships in 12 years. Martin has worn a black mourning band on his uniform in memory of the late Stengel all year and dedicated the season to his old manager.

"Wouldn't Casey be happy?" yald Martin as the celebration continued. "I'd love for him to be here. I guess he's smiling somewhere in the sky."

All Seven ACC Members Play League Games—How? Read On

By The Associated Press
All seven Atlantic Coast Conference teams will be involved in league games this Saturday. That's not bad arithmetic — merely a bit of sleight of hand by league officials.

Virginia's clash with Virginia Tech will go down in the league records because the Cavaliers, for the second year in a row, face only four ACC game. So conference officials declared the Gobblers' trip to Charlottesville Saturday a league game in order to give the Cavaliers the required five games to be eligible for the championship.

The remainder of the schedule shows North Carolina State at North Carolina as their annual rivalry fires up, Duke at Clemson and Wake Forest at Maryland.

Willis Casey, N.C. State athletic director, has denied speculation that a loss to the Tar Heels Saturday would jeopardize head coach Bo Rein's job. The Wolfpack takes a 1-4-1 record to Chapel Hill, where a capacity crowd is expected for the clash.

North Carolina holds a 43-16-6 advantage in the series, but each school has won five of the last ten encounters.

Casey, who was asked about Rein's job, pointed out that Rein has a three-year contract and that N.C. State has not fired a football or basketball coach since joining the ACC in 1953.

Clemson coach Red Parker said Thursday that Tiger running back Warren Ratchford will play against Duke despite disciplinary action following Ratchford's arrest on disorderly conduct charges.

The sophomore starter was arrested late Saturday outside a Clemson tavern. Parker said Clemson officials placed Ratchford on probation but that the episode would "in no way" affect Ratchford's position on the team.

Both Clemson and Duke have posted similar rushing averages but the Tigers have an edge on passing. On defense, Clemson is giving up 363.6 yards per game compared with Duke's 352 yards.

Wake Forest, with conference wins over N.C. State and Clemson, will put its position as league-leader on the line Saturday as the Deacons take on fifth-ranked Maryland at College Park. Maryland leads the league in all major team statistics, but has had only one conference game so far this season.

Golfers Defeated

The University of North Carolina defeated East Carolina in a women's golf match in Chapel Hill Thursday. In the match scored on total strokes with the low score winning, the Tar Heels defeated the Lady Pirate golfers 340-404. Sally Austin was the medalist in the dual match, covering the 18 holes with a 79. Stephanie Kornegay of UNC took second at 83.

The low score for ECU was Marsha Person who came in with an 85 for third place in the match.

Other ECU scores:

Heather Jones	93
Jill Carney	102
Lynn Copeland	124

The next event for the Lady Pirate golfers will be the NCAAIAW tournament beginning October 27 in Chapel Hill.

Kickers In Victory

The East Carolina soccer team scored four goals in the second half to easily topple Pembroke State 4-1 here at the Minges Soccer Field Thursday afternoon.

East Carolina is now 3-7-1 for the season while Pembroke State dropped to 2-8.

After being held scoreless in the first half, halfback Pete Angus got the Pirates first goal early in the second half to put East Carolina ahead 1-0 and they never trailed.

Jeff Karpovich scored the Pirates second goal three minutes later on an assist from Angus. Angus and Karpovich each added a goal apiece to make the final score 4-0.

Pembroke's Eric Ricioppo got the Braves only goal in the second half on an indirect kick.

East Carolina had 35 shots on goal while Pembroke only managed nine.

The Pirates travel to Charleston, S.C. Saturday to face The Citadel in another important conference battle. East Carolina's next home match will be against VMI on Saturday Oct. 23.

Colts In Grid Win

The Charger Colts scored a touchdown in each quarter of the game. Newton scored the first TD pm am 18-yard run.

Greene Central came back in the second quarter to tie the game at 6-6 when the Lambs recovered a fumble in Ayden-Grifton's end zone.

Sheldon McCarter took a nine-yard pass from Brady Quinn in the third quarter to put the Charger Colts back on top and Newton scored again in the fourth quarter on a four-yard run.

Ayden-Grifton is undefeated for the season with a 6-0 record. The Charger Colts travel to Farmville next week to take on the Farmville Central jayvees, who are also undefeated, for the conference championship.

Shaw Grabs Lead In Texas

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Tom Shaw, ever-smiling through five years of adversity, got a tip from an old friend in Las Vegas a couple of weeks ago that has turned around his golfing fortunes.

"This old friend, Jim Chenowith, a club pro in Las Vegas, followed me during a round at the Sahara," Shaw said, "and then he told me, 'Hey, you're not putting like you used to.' And he worked with me, changed my stance, moved my hands, everything."

"I started hitting the putts solid for the first time in a long time. I just can't believe it. Actually, it kind of scares me. The putting stroke is working, but I don't trust it yet. I keep expecting to going back to the way I was putting before."

Shaw, once one of pro golf's brightest young stars but a struggling also-ran for the last five years, was required to use that new-old putting stroke only 29 times Thursday on his way to a six-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open.

"It was the best putting round I've had in a long, long time," said Shaw, who ranks a distant 128th on the year's money-winning list with only $12,462. "It was just one of those days when everything went right."

He missed only one green, didn't make a bogey and birdied three of his last four holes in establishing a one-stroke lead over England's Peter Oosterhuis, Babe Hiskey and Frank Conner, tied for second at 67.

The 18 players at 68, just two shots out, included Miller Barber, Tom Kite, Jim Colbert and Rod Funseth.

Defending champion Don

January had a one-under-par 71 in the mild, hazy weather while Ben Crenshaw had a 69 that left him three back.

Crenshaw, trailed by the biggest gallery of the day, finished with a four-under-par 32 on the back nine that included birdies on four of five holes at one stretch.

Shaw, winner of four titles in the 1969-71 period, has been in a slump ever since.

"And this is the worst year I've ever had," he said. "I haven't made $13,000 for the year and what I have made, well, most of it came in one tournament (fourth in the Los Angeles Open eight months ago). My putting hasn't been good and my driving has been awful. I can't find it half the time."

Shaw missed only one green and chipped close for an easy save there. He birdied the first hole from 12 feet, wedged to less than two feet on the fifth, ripped a four-iron shot to within four feet for a deuce on the 12th, then took the lead with his strong finish.

"Thirty-nine feet," he said of the birdie putt on the 15th hole. "I know. I stepped it off. It was a 13-stepper."

He wedged to three feet on the 17th and holed a 15-foot, downhill effort on the final hole.

The bidding:
North East South West
1♠ 1♦ 1NT Pass
2NT Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

When you need time to establish your long suit, it is often sound policy to hold up on the first lead of the defenders' suit even if you have two stoppers. South ignored this principle to his cost.

North-South bid intelligently to their no trump game. North was better than minimum for his opening bid, so he invited game by raising his partner's free response to two no trump. Since South had a near maximum for his bid, he was happy to accept.

West led his top diamond, East played the queen and declarer, noting that his J-10 combination guaranteed a second trick in the suit, won the ace and returned a club. West bounced up with the king and continued a diamond. East forced out declarer's stopper in the suit and, when he got in with the ace of clubs, he took just enough diamond tricks to set the contract.

Since East surely had both high diamonds on the bidding, declarer can secure the contract, on the actual layout, by allowing the queen to hold the first trick. Assume East continues with a low diamond. Declarer wins the jack and leads a club. If West grabs the king, he cannot continue diamonds because he hasn't any, so declarer will have the time he needs to knock out East's ace of clubs while he still controls the diamond suit. Alternatively, if East wins the first club, he can remove declarer's last diamond stopper, but he has no entry to cash his good diamonds.

Does this mean that the contract is ironclad? Certainly not! East can use the duck as effectively as declarer can. Look what happens if East simply passes the eight of diamonds to declarer's jack. Declarer must take the first diamond or give up his second stopper in the suit. Now West can win the first club lead while he still has a diamond to lead, which forces out declarer's second stopper in the suit. Eventually East must gain the lead with the ace of clubs and cash his established diamonds to defeat the hand.

Another Robert Stack Series Arrives Sunday

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barring a last-minute arrival of something like "My Mother, The Car," the last regularly scheduled new series of the new season arrives Saturday night on ABC.

It is called "Most Wanted," lasts an hour, and stars Robert Stack as Police Capt. Linc Evers. Linc. What a name. It conveys a jut-jawed image. Wonder why they don't just use Jutjaw.

Anyhow, the former crime-buster of "The Untouchables" now heads an "elite" — look out, gang, there's a SWAT team in the wings — police unit that "deals with perpetrators of crimes of such magnitude as to make the Mayor's 'Most Wanted' list."

That's what ABC says and I still don't understand it.

In Saturday's premiere show, it seems a perpetrator and two buddies armed with automatic weapons and grenades have taken over a Boeing 707 jetliner with 32 persons aboard.

Said perpetrator, played with a fine, coldly casual air by Harris Yulin, forces the plane to land, which is a switch.

He wants words with a Congressman Celli who, we learn, is a former hard-charging prosecutor who sent him up for the murder of a union rival and the latter's family.

Linc arrives by Lear jet to handle the situation, meeting a SWAT team arriving by van. The solon arrives by helicopter.

The solon asks how the baddie got out of prison. Linc's terse reply: "Some of his enforcers left over from syndicate days. They literally blew him out."

The baddie wants and gets Celli aboard the plane. In exchange, he releases all but 12 passengers. They're the "jury" for a subsequent aerial "trial" of the solon on charges of framing the baddie on the murder rap.

You know Linc has to board the plane before it takes off. So he has the tower pass word a new crew is needed, as the plane's current crew is "exhausted" after 20 hours on the job.

Any villain who doesn't realize airlines don't allow 20-hour work days by pilots has to be zero-zero upstairs. This one is.

Add Linc, disguised as a pilot, and a real pilot board the bird, along with a lady cop (Jo Ann Harris). She is disguised as a stewardess and has a gat in her garter.

(Linc secretly tells the pilot his flying experience is zilch, limited to a few Navy years. When the lady cop asks Linc if he really can fly a 707, he says, "Well, we'll find out, won't we?"

(Keep all this in mind. It sets the stage for an industrial-strength miracle at the end.)

The aerial trial is interesting. But the show's start and finale are so strained one wonders if executive producer Quinn Martin lacked funds for a plot truss.

GOSPELSING

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to accept a chance now present to get your practical affairs in better condition. But you will have to make the effort and carry through wisely yourself since others are preoccupied with their own problems to be of much help.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle financial affairs wisely now or they could be very troublesome later. Avoid a troublemaker who is out to make problems.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handling personal affairs early in the day is best. Steer clear of arguments in the evening. See a good friend during spare time. Avoid the temptation of spending more than you can afford.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find right method through which to add to present income and don't do anything that will spoil present security. Many others advise you, but use only the finest suggestions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle practical affairs early and then be sure that your personal matters are in better order. Some important aim can be reached through the aid of a good friend.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study every phase of your private aims and you know how to improve them. Listen to what an adviser has to suggest and use best ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Ideal day to be with good friends and gain their cooperation. Show affection and relax in evening. Avoid one who is two-faced.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to get a bigwig to help you gain important aims by showing your finest talents. Handle a credit matter very carefully. Take time for recreation that you need to relieve tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Carry through with that new idea you have since it can meet with fine success in the future. A new friend you make today can be of help to you in the days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuition is keen in the morning and should be used to fullest advantage. Rely only on your good judgment in the evening, though. Handle responsibilities wisely in the daytime.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get together with allies with whom you can work out joint projects but don't neglect to get into details. Do whatever will improve your standing with the public. Take it easy tonight and have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to complete tasks that have been left undone. Come to a better understanding with co-workers, also. Plan time for treatments that give you better health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Relax and relieve tensions that will make you feel better. Avoid temptation to spend more than you can afford.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand early how to have harmony at home, as well as how to have romantic happiness. Be sure to slant education along lines of psychology, humanitarianism and the like, since your progeny could become a great boon to humanity. Give proper discipline early so that a martyr complex does not develop.

86-Year-Old Plans Deep Dive

KORISIA, Greece (AP) — An 86-year-old British woman has started training for deep-sea dives in one of Jacques Cousteau's minisubs. She hopes to explore the hospital ship whose sinking she survived 60 years ago.

Scholarships For Survivors

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "It may sound altruistic, but we really, sincerely believe in the betterment of our employees," said Ronald J. Zera, explaining why the tragic deaths of four steel company employees led to a college scholarship program for every employee's children.

Zera said the company, Nucor, based in Charlotte, is paying scholarships to truck-driving schools, mortuary schools, hairstyling schools and colleges and universities.

"As far as we know, we're the only company in the country that pays up to $1,000 a year for every child of every employee to go to college," said F. Kenneth Iverson, company president.

The company employs about 2,500 persons nationwide. The program began in 1972 after an accident at the Nucor steel mill in Darlington, S.C., in which four men died and two others were injured. The four dead men had a total of 12 or 13 children, Iverson said. A scholarship plan for the victims' children was later expanded to include the children of all employees.

The only prerequisite is that an employee be with the company at least two years. There is no minimum scholastic achievement requirement and the student needs only stay in school.

Students agree to consider joining the company upon graduation and Nucor gives first consideration for employment to employees' children. But there is no binding agreement on the student's part, Iverson said.

"Some companies may make charitable contributions, give money to the opera or something," said Iverson. "Those are important, but we believe charity begins at home, so if we are going to do something with our money, we'll give it to our employees first."

down to a depth of 50 255' for limited periods Thursday in a bathyscaphe. A spokesman for ocean-rover Cousteau said the man, who walks with the aid of crutches, had trouble breathing and got seasick.

"She found the going very difficult," he said. Miss Mitchell was a 26-year-old nurse aboard the 46,000-ton converted liner Britannic when it sank in the Aegean Sea off Kea island on Nov. 21, 1916. It was believed that a German submarine torpedoed the ship.

The woman said that when the Britannic, a sister ship of the ill-fated Titanic, started to sink, "we panicked initially, but somehow managed to get everyone away with no major losses. I don't know what to believe as to who did it. At that time we had no doubt whatsoever it was a German submarine." The 21 dead were lost because their lifeboat was carried under by a whirlpool created by the sinking ship. Cousteau discovered the wreck during a filming project earlier this year. He appealed recently for survivors or their relatives to advise him during an underwater exploration. Miss Mitchell, a Scot who lives in Bolton, England, answered his appeal and joined the expedition last weekend.

Although only 21 of the 1,061 persons aboard the ship were lost, Miss Mitchell is the only survivor known to be alive.

The ship is three miles off Kea island at a depth of 360 feet. "The conducted tour will take place sooner or later," said the famed French oceanographer. "There are lots of difficulties, and I won't take unnecessary risks with Miss Mitchell." After it sank, there were suggestions that the ship hit a mine. And there were also suspicions that the Allies staged the sinking and blamed it on the Germans to arouse anti-German sentiment in Greece, which had not yet entered the war.

Cousteau said a 150-foot hole in the side of the wreck strengthens the argument that a torpedo sank the Britannic. He said the hole was too big to have been caused by a mine.

Miss Mitchell said she wanted to return to the Britannic "to help get things right for history's sake. And also to retrieve a few personal belongings I left behind in my cabin No. 237, especially an antique family alarm clock of great sentimental value to me."

Gardening Enthusiasts Get Circus Fertilizer

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Writer CHICAGO (AP) — They came to the circus with wheelbarrows, baskets and plastic bags, eager to shovel up what the performing tigers, llamas and elephants had left.

About 100 gardening enthusiasts turned out Thursday as Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus pitched its props in the International Amphitheater and announced that it had half a ton of mineral-rich, organic fertilizer to give away.

"We got the surprise of our lives," a spokesman said of the turnout. He said the crowd consisted of "mothers and their children, old men, old women, young men, young women. All had green thumbs."

Circus officials said that every Thursday from 10 a.m. until noon the collection of droppings will be given away to anyone who brings his own container. The idea is to help defray the estimated $6,000 expense of hiring a scavenger service.

An elderly man who said he had a small garden smiled gratefully: "This stuff is so good those circus people could be selling it. Just goes to show that a sucker is born every minute." Appropriately, he was paraphrasing a remark of the late P.T. Barnum.

The circus spokesman said the manure is "pure, unadulterated fertilizer, not sprayed with any harmful chemicals. It is superior to others because of the rich and varied diet of the animals. And the price is right."

Wallace Yost, 55, said he got the idea to collect the manure six years ago when the circus came to town.

"I remember going there early one day and bribing a fellow to let me in by giving him a cake," said Yost. "He's let me in each year since. Now everybody is in on the take. But there is plenty for everyone."

"I've found it ideal for my pear and apple trees. The fruit grows bigger. I sometimes would bring a bag of apples to feed to the elephants, starting a cycle, you might say."

Mary Bandemer had six plastic bags. "It's good for my rose bushes," she said.

Pauline Huddy and her 8-year-old granddaughter filled up two bushel baskets. "Everything in my yard and garden should grow better with this," she said.

Ford Talks Family Finances At News Conference

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gerald Ford family finances involve lots of checks and a number of bank accounts, and the President says he once had to move money back and forth between accounts to pay for a family vacation.

During his Thursday night news conference, Ford gave a nationally broadcast lesson in his household finances as he talked of a special political account, the cost of his golfing outings and how to live on $5 a week in cash.

Ford repeatedly emphasized that several investigations have found no improprieties in his personal finances. He also said he has never overdrawn his checking accounts.

"I think a few people in this country have written checks and then waited until the end of the month and then mailed the checks — maybe you haven't done it, but I suspect a few people have," he said.

Ford said that was exactly what he did with a $1,167 check on his personal account that was to repay a political bank account.

A check from the political account, dated Nov. 30, 1972, had paid for the Ford family ski vacation to Vail, Colo., for Christmas 1972. Ford wrote a check on his personal bank account, dated Dec. 16, 1972, to repay the political account.

But Ford said he didn't mail the check until later when he knew his pay check had been deposited in his personal account.

"It is a perfectly legitimate thing and there has never been an overdraft in my account," he said.

Thus, Ford in effect borrowed the money from the political bank account and repaid it with a personal bank account check dated within 16 days.

Ford indicated that he wrote out the repayment check but didn't have it cashed right away. Instead, he waited until his next paycheck from Congress had been deposited in his personal account.

"I think a few people in this country have written checks and then waited until the end of the month and then mailed the checks," Ford observed. It was not immediately clear why Ford dated the check Dec. 16 when his account didn't have the funds to cover it at the time.

Later, Ford firmly rejected a reporter's characterization of this process as check kiting, the term for creating a false bank balance by manipulating deposit accounts.

Ford also claimed that he repaid the Gerald R. Ford Fifth District Account at a Grand Rapids, Mich., bank for $871.44 paid for clothes for himself and Mrs. Ford for the 1972 Republican National Convention. However, an Internal Revenue Service audit and Ford's own presentations to the Senate committee that approved his nomination to be vice president found that Ford did not repay that amount. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said later that Ford meant to refer only to the cost of plane tickets that were paid for the same way.

The IRS assessed, and Ford paid, $435.77 in additional taxes on the money spent for clothes.

The political account, according to the IRS audit, was funded by honorariums for Ford speeches, reimbursements for his travel expenses for speeches and campaign trips and "some political contributions."

Ford was asked several times about reports that corporations where a corporation or an executive paid for a golfing trip other than those already reported.

And Ford said he has taken no such trips since leaving Congress.

William Whyte, a long-time

Ford family friend and U.S. Steel Corp. lobbyist, has said he took Ford on three golfing trips paid for by the company and hosted him twice in a company-owned house in Florida.

White House spokesmen have also said Ford played golf on courses owned by Alcoa Aluminum, Bethlehem Steel and Firestone Tire and Rubber, although the spokesmen said it was not known who paid for the outings.

"I have not accepted such a trip since I have been vice president or President," Ford said.

Another finding of the IRS audit of Ford's taxes for 1967-1972 was referred to several times during the news conference. That finding was that Ford lived on less than $5 cash a week for out-of-pocket expenses in 1972.

Ford's explanation was straightforward.

"I write checks," he declared.

In a discussion with IRS agents about the tax audit, the audit quotes Ford as saying that his congressional re-election organization picked up many of his day-to-day expenses when he was campaign-

Chilean Economy Sees A Gradual Improvement

By WILLIAM R. LONG
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Many of the severe economic problems that have preoccupied Chile's military government are on the wane, according to the latest official statistics.

They show that three-digit inflation and double-digit unemployment rates are going down. The statistics also show that depressed industrial activity apparently is reviving and a troublesome trade deficit is gone. While foreign investment has been slow in coming, loans from abroad are now abundant.

"Our economic reactivation has begun," said President Augusto Pinochet in a review of his right-wing regime's three years in power.

"The central problems of the economy have been overcome," said the chairman of the government's central bank.

Independent experts do not speak with such high optimism, but they agree that the signs are good.

"I am still very cautious, but I think we have arrived at a point where a certain reactivation can be noted," a foreign banker in Santiago said. Economists expressed similar outlooks, stressing that there still are major obstacles to Chilean economic recovery.

A major element in the government's plans for recovery is foreign investment. But economic sources say risk capital has trickled in at disappointingly low rates.

They say periodic dips in world prices of copper, Chile's chief export, and other minerals may have discouraged foreign investment in Chilean mining and refining. Other potential investors are said to have shied away because of international concern over human rights under Pinochet's regime.

"A Chilean economy on the rise, rather than on the decline as in late 1974 and 1975, should spur greater investor interest," said a U.S. State Department report on the Chilean economy. But the report added: "Potential investor firms will still be concerned about the political situation and particularly about the effect that an investment in Chile may have on their own image. In a recent visit to Chile, Secretary of the Treasury (William) Simon pointed out that closer economic relations between the United States and Chile will depend on progress toward ensuring human rights in Chile."

Meanwhile, U.S. government loans and loan guarantees are playing a significant role in the Chilean economy. The U.S. Agency for International Development guaranteed private loans of $30 million in 1975 and $25 million in 1976 for housing construction in Chile.

'Ducks Unlimited' Dinner Wednesday

Last year, the area chapter had its most successful meeting ever on behalf of the northern waterfowl conservation program as members combined to raise some $22,000. All money contributed locally is sent to the national DU fund for the overall program.

Tickets to the dinner are available from Smith, Joe Albee, Dr. Ed Clement, Roger Collins III, Coffman's Men's Wear, John Farley, Graham Flanagan, Dr. Charles Gilbert, Melvin Hoot, H. L.
