Geneva Conferees In Power Struggle

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — One of four key black nationalist leaders today called for a national election in two weeks to choose an interim prime minister for Rhodesia.

The plan for a one-man, one-vote, plebiscite, outlined by Bishop Abel Muzorewa at the British-sponsored talks on Rhodesia's future, was immediately disowned by rival black Rhodesian factions.

Patriotic Front of Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe called the Muzorewa proposal "simply his own selfish plan." The spokesman, Willie Musurwa, said the bishop, who heads one faction of the split African National Council — ANC — "did not consult us about this. It is a political gimmick and for practical reasons it is impossible."

Bishop Muzorewa, speaking at a news conference, also appealed to U.S. President-elect Jimmy Carter to "stand with the people who are seeking majority rule (in Rhodesia) because I believe that (Americans) support majority rule."

As he offered his pre-independence election plan, conference legal experts were meeting to discuss purely technical problems created by various possible timetables for Rhodesian independence and black majority rule.

The conference, which also includes a British, a white Rhodesian and another black Rhodesian delegation — has stalled on the question of when the white-ruled breakaway British colony should be given formal independence. The white government of Prime Minister Ian Smith favors a two-year timetable, and the blacks want statehood within one year.

The Nkomo-Mugabe group also favors independence first, followed by elections.

Sources in the black delegations said Nkomo and Mugabe fear that many unsophisticated blacks unaware of the power struggle among the nationalists might vote for Bishop Muzorewa as interim prime minister in the belief that he is still over-all head of the ANC. He held that position when the ANC was unified.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Victorious challenger Jimmy Carter and vanquished President Gerald R. Ford, both exhausted by their battle for the White House, are planning vacations before the rites of passage that mark the transfer of presidential power.

Carter was meeting today with Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale, who scheduled a flight to Plains, Ga., for their first conference since the election.

Carter's paper-thin margin of 272 electoral votes — only two more than the minimum required for victory — increased today as Ohio fell into the Democratic camp with its 25 electoral votes.

With Oregon the only race still too close to call, Carter had 297 electoral votes to Ford's 235.

The 52-year-old Georgia peanut farmer and former governor, who spent nearly two years in his pursuit of the White House, said as he claimed his victory in the wee hours of Wednesday morning that he was pledging himself to "the unification of our country."

It will be up to the two winners, their staffs and the staff of Ford's White House to work out details of the transfer of the control of government from the defeated Republican president to the victorious president-elect.

While the principals in the fight for the right to lead the United States into its third century accepted the results of Tuesday's election and planned for the orderly transfer of power, vote counting continued in widely scattered areas.

Ohio went for Carter this morning with the secretary of state reporting a vote margin of 6,300 votes and the National Election Service reporting an edge for Carter of 7,575. About 750 absentee ballots remain uncounted, mostly in the Cleveland area.

In Oregon, which has six electoral votes, Carter was trailing Ford by 662 votes with about 9,000 absentee ballots to be counted. The final count may not be completed until Friday.

Carter carried 23 states and the District of Columbia. Ford carried 26 states.

Here was the popular vote total with all the nation's precincts reporting:

Carter 40,263,549 or 51 per cent.

Ford 38,512,666 or 48 per cent. The numbers indicated that 53 per cent of the Americans who were eligible to vote in Tuesday's election cast ballots, contradicting predictions that apathy was the ruling factor and projections that voter turnout would be a record low.

The number of voters who did show up at the polls turned out to be the smallest number since 1948.

Ford and Carter, showing the strain of the long campaign, began their holidays this weekend.

Carter said his first task would be "the unification of our country after a close and hard-fought election." He expressed his gratitude for Ford's pledge of "complete and whole-hearted support." Meanwhile, Carter planned to receive a blueprint made up by his key advisers to ease the change of administrations.

Among the recommendations is that Carter desert his Plains home for most of each week and set up offices almost at once in Washington.

Carter already has said he plans to set up a transitional office in Washington right away.

President Ford publicly conceded defeat shortly after noon on Wednesday. Earlier in the day he had called Carter in Plains to congratulate him.

But Ford supporters said the President's voice was so hoarse from his campaign efforts that expressed my admiration for his chief of staff, Richard Cheney, had to relay the message. Carter, in a statement from that he ran."

Plains, said, "I deeply appreciate the President's call and advantage of Ford's offer of his gracious expression of congratulations and cooperation. I period.

Wholesale Prices Rose In October

By ROBERT A. DOOBKIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher costs for automobiles, fuel and other industrial goods boosted wholesale prices by six-tenths of a per cent in October, marking the second consecutive big monthly increase, the government said today.

The rise was smaller than the nine-tenths of a per cent increase in September, but still was the third-sharpest monthly increase this year and by no means good news for the incoming Carter administration.

Only a decline in agricultural prices kept the wholesale price index from rising more sharply.

The Labor Department said industrial prices surged 1 per cent higher last month, the largest one-month increase since last October when they rose 1.2 per cent. Three prices have continued rising at a rapid rate since last June.

Economists are usually more concerned about price trends for industrial commodities as an indication of the underlying inflationary pressures in the economy since they are less volatile than farm prices.

Farm prices were down 1.2 per cent in October after rising 1.9 per cent in September. They had declined in both July and August. Prices for processed foods and feeds also dropped in October, declining seven-tenths of a per cent.

The Wholesale Price Index stood at 185.2 in October, meaning that goods selling for $100 at wholesale in 1967 now cost $185.20. Wholesale price changes usually are reflected, after a lag, in consumer prices, although the linkage is not precise.

October's six-tenths of a per cent increase, adjusted for seasonal factors, translate into an annual rate of 7.4 per cent. In absolute terms, wholesale prices rose three-tenths of a per cent last month.

The latest price report indicated that inflationary pressures are still strong in the economy.

Most economists believe that inflation as measured by consumer prices will increase about 5 to 6 per cent this year. That would be a slight improvement from the 7 per cent rate in 1975 but still would be high by historic standards.

The surge in industrial prices reflected hikes in transportation equipment, especially the 1977 model cars and trucks. Most vehicles and other equipment rose in cost 3.6 per cent last month, the government said.

Sharp increases also were reported for fuel products, including crude petroleum and natural gas. Prices also rose for lumber and wood products, rubber, machinery and metal products.

Declining prices for hogs and grains led the 1.2 per cent drop in farm prices. Oil seeds and cocoa bean prices also declined last month following big increases in September. These more than offset increases for cattle, eggs, coffee and fruits and vegetables.

Especially significant for future trends was the 4 per cent price increase for crude materials in October. Price movements for these materials, the first step in the price chain, usually signal broader trends several months in advance.

Wholesale prices of consumer foods — basically the prices paid by supermarkets — declined four-tenths of a per cent following an increase in September and three consecutive months of decline in the summer.

Over the past 12 months, wholesale prices have risen 3.5 per cent, the smallest 12-month increase since November, 1971, when they rose 3.3 per cent during a period of government controls.

Industrial prices have risen 6.6 per cent over the past year while farm prices were 5.4 per cent lower and processed foods and feeds were down 6.1 per cent.

N.C. Businessmen See No Early Impact By Carter On Economy

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina businessmen believe Jimmy Carter's election would not have great impact on the economy for the near term, through the first half of next year, because forces already in motion will prevail. But the businessmen are unsure after that, a survey shows.

T. J. Norman, president of Engraff Inc. of Charlotte, a packaging and printing concern, said, "For the long term, I'm pessimistic, because of the growth of government, and the tendency to adopt policies and practices that lead to inflation. I'm fearful that unless there is some severe restraint on deficit spending, we're going to be heading back into a period of high inflation, which I think is one of the most unjust taxes created by government."

The chairman of the North Carolina National Bank, Luther Hodges Jr., said he saw no reason for businessmen to be pessimistic about Carter's election as president. "I am one of the few businessmen I know who voted for Carter," Hodges said. "I'm not bullish about what his election means for business. But I happen to feel from talking with others and with him that he had to be far more liberal in the campaign than he is. He hasn't made any proposals that are going to necessarily be anymore inflationary, anymore than anyone else has."

Hodges said he hoped the business community would "not get paranoid" about a Carter administration.

Another banker, John Medlin, president and chief executive officer of the Wachovia Corp., said the economic outlook will depend on how well Carter and the Congress "can work together in restraining spending and containing inflation while expanding employment."

"I don't think his problems in meeting these challenging objectives are going to be any easier than those that would have been faced by Mr. Ford."

"The next four years are going to be tough, regardless of who won. And it's going to take all our people working together to make it."

Body In Bay Is Identified

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Coast Guard today identified a body found in the Chesapeake Bay as that of Bruce Fourney of Washington, D.C., pilot of a commercial plane carrying four persons that disappeared Oct. 20.

The body was discovered Wednesday by occupants of a cabin cruiser.

United Fund Drive Sees A Rapid Pace

The Pitt United Fund is "progressing at a rapid rate," according to campaign chairman Don Parrott, who announced that the drive now stands at approximately 70 per cent of the goal.

Parrott and Melvin Moore, division vice president and general manager of Fieldcrest Mills here, announced that company participation in the United Fund this year helped push the current pledges and contributions up to the 70 per cent mark.

Moore said that 96 per cent of the employees at the company's Karastan Worsted plant contributed a fair share while 91 per cent of the Karastan Spinning Mill employees gave on a fair share basis.

The Fieldcrest campaigns here were headed by Jan Vincent, manager of the Worsted plant, and by Luby Skinner, manager at the Spinning Mill.

The United Fund has set an overall goal for the campaign of $248,418.45, Parrott noted.

Study Done On Infant Death

Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) in North Carolina is more likely to occur among American Indian babies than any other ethnic group, according to an East Carolina University geographer.

Dr. Jack Blok recently completed the nation's first epidemiological study of SIDS covering an entire state. Previous studies have been limited to a few major metropolitan areas.

In 1972-74 North Carolina's overall SIDS rate per thousand live births was 2.06. Among whites it was found to be lowest, with a rate of 1.23 per thousand live births. The SIDS rate for blacks was 3.75, and among Indians, 5.65.

The Blok study of occurrences by county revealed SIDS rates ranging from zero to a high 6.6 in Robeson County, where Indians make up a large proportion of the population.

Popularly known as "crib death," Sudden Infant Death Syndrome remains a mystery to doctors, despite a recent increase of medical research in this area.

SIDS has been associated with respiratory difficulties, and some researchers theorize genetic or environmental causes, but none of these hypotheses has been conclusively proven.

Dr. Blok presented results of his three-year analysis of the American Public Health Association in Miami Beach last week. The gathering drew about 9,000 public health professionals representing world, national, state and local health care organizations.

The Blok study is the first which accurately maps SIDS occurrences throughout a state, with incidence rates outlined for counties and cities as well as ethnic or socio-economic groups.

It was found that there existed a considerable variability among locations in the degrees of risk faced by infants, Blok said.

"Among the state's cities with populations of more than 10,000 the SIDS rates ranged from zero to 10.6. For whites living in these cities, the rates ranged from zero to a high of 6.2," he noted.

"Although North Carolina's total infant mortality rate has been declining in recent years, the SIDS rate has remained quite stable."

The result of this is that of infant deaths which occur past the newborn stage, a growing proportion are attributable to the mysterious Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

In 1972 North Carolina's post-neonatal infant deaths attributed to SIDS comprised about 30 percent of the total. In 1974, about 36 percent of these infant deaths were attributed to SIDS.

A native of Rotterdam in the Netherlands, Dr. Blok has degrees from the University of California at Los Angeles and Oregon State University. He has been an assistant professor in the ECU Department of Geography since 1973.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I don't know about any other women, but I'm exhausted from reading novels that awaken me sexually and intellectually.

I want to shout, "Knock it off! I'm awake already."

As I nodded over a current novel the other night in bed, my husband nudged me and said, "What are you reading?"

I blinked myself awake. "It's a sensual discovery manual that says I am consumed with self-loathing and misdirected aggressions. Is there any popcorn left or did you eat it all?"

"Only the burnt ones are left. Doesn't that upset you? All that self-analysis?"

"Not really. I have to search for the wool and warp of my own existence."

"What does that mean?"

"I'm not sure, but I'm hungry all the time."

He picked up the book and for a couple of minutes was engrossed in it. Then he put it down and said, "This reminds me, did the part come in for my lawn sweeper?"

"No, I have to check again Tuesday. Incidentally, are you reading anything I can take out of town with me next weekend?"

"What's wrong with this book?"

"Are you crazy? Do you want the entire plane to know I am being sexually and intellectually stimulated?"

"Where does it say that?"

"Men don't read all this stuff. How come women do?"

"Because we used to read trashy novels and that was bad for us."

"What's the difference between a trash novel and this?"

"Two things. The dirty words

Ignore Gossip And Take In Sitter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widower, age 41, with two small boys, ages 6 and 11. My wife was killed three years ago in an auto accident and because I was driving, I needed professional help to get over the feeling of guilt.

I have recently hired a young babysitter to look after the house and boys. Her name is Maria and she is a very sensible, intelligent and mature 15-year-old.

Maria's mother, who has never been married, plans to marry next month. She came to see me and begged me to let Maria live in my home because her future husband refuses to have Maria live with them after they're married. She said Maria is willing to live with me. I said I would have to think it over.

Maria is a lovely girl, but she looks like a 20-year-old woman, if you know what I mean. I fear that if I let her live here, my reputation and hers might be ruined by evil-minded people. My parish priest advised me to take her in, and not to worry about evil-minded people. My mother-in-law, who is too old and sick to look after the boys, agreed with the priest.

The boys love Maria, and I must confess that I adore her in a fatherly way. Would I be inviting trouble to take Maria in? I have more than enough money to send her to college when the time comes. She wants to be a doctor.

MUST KNOW

DEAR MUST KNOW: Maria sounds like a serious-minded, ambitious, intelligent girl. If you're certain that your attitude toward her is fatherly, don't worry about what evil-minded people think.

DEAR ABBY: Seems to me I've read a lot lately about people "dying" for a few minutes, coming back to life and living for years. I've been wondering how many people have been buried alive, which has developed a fear in me that I might be buried alive one day. It's giving me nightmares!

Abby, who is supposed to make absolutely sure a person is dead before he's buried? The doctor or the mortician?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Most state laws require that a death certificate be signed by either a medical doctor or the county coroner, and the latter are being replaced in some states by "medical investigators," who must be licensed physicians. Relax. Your chances for being buried alive are zilch.

DEAR ABBIGAIL VAN BUREN: Again it's come up in your column! I refer to the confusing business of the proper use of "Ms."

Why not just drop the Ms., Miss or Mrs., and simply address the person by name as I have done in addressing you? In this day of liberated womanhood and personal rights for everybody, why can't we be who we are without the gobbledygook of Mr., Ms., Miss or Mrs?

The Mr. before a man's name is useless since it applies to both married men and single men. And to label a woman by her marital status is an invasion of her privacy. Whose business is it whether she's married, single or using the "Ms." to disguise one or the other?

FRANKLY FRANK

DEAR FRANK: Thanks for a sensible suggestion.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

The Majority Believed Jimmy

President Jimmy Carter of Plains, Ga. With the exception of Carter himself and a few devotees, hardly anyone would have predicted it a year ago. He had ahead of him a withering campaign in the various state primaries before he would win the Democratic presidential nomination. Then there was the campaign against Gerald Ford before the office of president was to finally belong to Carter.

Only a year or so back, Jimmy Carter was relatively unknown to the nation, a southerner whose main political credentials were that he had served as governor of the state of Georgia.

Carter had only a burning desire to win the Democratic nomination and then to go on and win the presidency in the general election. Step-by-step he won over persons in all walks of life with his message of honesty in government and love of one human for another. He gave promise of healing the wounds of the nation and creating a better society for all of us.

It was obviously appealing to the majority of the nation. If any one thing can be responsible for Carter's victory, other than his own personal magnetism, it would have to be that the electorate was looking for someone away from the Washington scene to serve as their president.

There had been too many scandals and too much deception in the White House and on Capitol Hill for the average American to stomach. And because of it all the people were looking elsewhere for the leadership that they felt was needed to carry this nation forward. Jimmy Carter told them candidly that he was offering them that new leadership, and the majority of the voters believed what he said.

We might not all like it, but we can expect new spending programs under a Carter administration. He has said as much and with a Democratic Congress behind him we can anticipate that he will get his programs approved. But we also have a promise that he will balance the federal budget during this term. Those of us who feel that huge federal deficits are irresponsible should hold Jimmy Carter to this promise. His zero-budgeting plan which would require federal agencies to justify their spending programs at regular intervals should be implemented and we voters should bring the pressure to see that this is carried out.

We feel President-Elect Carter offers something new to the nation—and it comes at a time when we sorely need a fresh outlook in Washington. We look forward to a productive four years under his administration.

THIS AFTERNOON

Assembly's Critical Year

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Time, now, for North Carolinians to pause after the heat and sound of the election to consider what lies ahead.

The 1977 session of the General Assembly could produce some of the most significant and far-reaching changes in the state in recent decades. The issues are well defined, and some are critical in nature demanding prompt and serious attention. Many have been the subject of scrutiny by legislative study commissions now preparing final reports and proposed law changes (or new law).

Here is a general overview: Public Schools—A rewrite of the law including how to select state superintendent and school board, career education and alternative schooling, equalization of state funding, major changes in teacher tenure to achieve balance in dismissing incompetents, special classes (even schools) for dissident students who create discipline problems, merger of school districts into one per county.

Teachers — minimum competency requirements, changed preparation at teacher colleges, classroom size reduction, and major push by teacher organization for public employee bargaining rights with local school boards, and state.

Courts—limit discretion of judges in sentencing, merit selection of judges rather than election, prescribed sentences for specific crimes, speedy trials, decriminalization of victimless offenses (auto violations, public drunkenness, non-support, minor drug possession, bad check, etc.).

State Employees—limits on bureaucratic growth, salaries (employees want 20 per cent-plus), ethics for decision-makers.

Crime—to seek Constitutional death penalty, or not; trend is toward sentencing trial following conviction trial. Salaries and training requirements for law officers, more community orientation in crime fight.

Prison — Overcrowding persists, and money will be sought ($50 million) to rebuild Central and build smaller, single-cell units across the state; also, legislative action to set prison philosophy and policy for implementation by employees.

Bureaucracy—a sunset law to allow agency to expire if it can't prove worth, a sunshine law to open more meetings to the public, an ethics law for major employees who make regulatory decision, a shuffle of the reorganization of state government to attack departments which are really collections of still-feuding and semi-independent agencies.

Land Management—required statewide land classification system (developing, urban, rural, protected) and mapping, a commission to oversee land use.

Local—end personal property tax; require auto registration at county tax office so that tax will be collected; require all counties to map, computerize, and speed up property revaluations; push for local income tax and motel room tax by some local officials; refinement of regional approach to government to relieve local fears of "third-level" encroachment; aid from state to set up minimum standards and salaries for law enforcement, building inspection. Bond issues ahead for road-building, sewerage systems.

Power—continued struggle between governor and Legislature involving appointments, budget, program initiation; major debate over allowing the governor to run for second term, and have veto power with legislative override provision. Ethics legislation rework for elected state officials (and appointed), and extension to local officials in sight.

Other — Medicaid skyrocketing costs, Equal Rights Amendment action, liquor-by-the-drink local option, revise campaign finance reporting law, change primary election dates, landlord-tenant legislation, no-fault insurance, utilities commission (change, peak-load pricing), state revenue (speed up collections to get more income) and bond issue for state buildings.

But Call It Propaganda

This is shop talk, in a sense, for it deals with the news business. But in calling attention to this month's UNESCO meeting in Nairobi, perhaps a newsman may be forgiven for talking about his craft. In Nairobi the fix is on; and this is everybody's business.

UNESCO, of course, is the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization. It is the one big umbrella that shelters much of the pretentious folly that keeps the UN busy. As their 19th annual conference in Nairobi, delegates will consider a Soviet-backed resolution of potentially large concern.

The purpose of the resolution is to cut off the free flow of news from the Third World. To be sure, the purpose is not stated so bluntly.

The sponsors have swathed their purpose in a gummy cocoon of lofty phrases. They profess to want only "the freer and wider dissemination of information through the mass media."

They want to exchange news of "the aims, aspirations, needs and culture of each nation."

The Soviet resolution hints at a new mechanism to achieve these aims — a kind of Third World Press Association with total control over the gathering and dissemination of news in member countries. But this would not be a press association in the fashion of the Associated Press or United Press International. Neither would it be concerned with news as we know it. The government-controlled agency would call its product news. It would be pure propaganda instead.

This prospect emerges from the gauzy wording of the resolution. "Since the international exchange of information is fundamental to the strengthening of peace and international understanding, States and information media have the right to diffuse reports of national events beyond their borders." Translation: Third World nations have the right, and the power, to control the flow of news.

"It is a responsibility of the mass media to avoid any justification or encouragement of the evils of war, violence, apartheid and other forms of national, racial, or religious hatred." Translation: Foreign newsmen must not cover or comment upon things we do not want them to cover or comment upon.

"Similarly," the resolution continues, "the mass media have a duty to make widely known among the peoples of the world the objectives of equity, sovereign equality, interdependence, common interest and cooperation among all States." Translated from the UN's

To the editor:

I had not quite finished my report about the attention which I attracted by my research paper at the 28th Southeast Regional Meeting of the American Chemical Society, when my wife pointed to the front page of The Daily Reflector of October 29. Two familiar faces on a rooftop and a provoking title attracted my interest. I finished reading with a loud laugh. Why?

Dear fellow citizens of Greenville, do not expect that our city will be renamed to Pisa-Greenville. Take a bomb squad "certified" cannon ball, fill a balloon to identical size with air and another balloon with helium as used in blimps. If you intend to drop all three objects, you know that the cannon ball will smack into the ground, the air balloon will gently descend, and the helium filled balloon will escape your view in the skies. Would you seriously believe that Galileo did not know about these facts?

Freshman text books are no reference material for professors. The books often contain incredible errors. An experienced professor writes to the publisher and requests corrections. In most cases he will be rewarded financially for his service as I experienced. Furthermore, before a scientist can claim that his fellow is wrong, he must have studied the original work of the author. For that simple purpose, as you know, universities maintain libraries. Galileo definitely did not publish his findings in English, but you expect from a professor that he can manage to read the foreign language or that he finds a certified translation.

Dear fellow citizens, you may calm down your expectation about "Pisa-Greenville" but you know it anyhow: Before one goes to the rooftop, one better pays a visit first to the library.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter: Humble Or Not?

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — This was the most frequently asked question here once it became clear that Jimmy Carter had won the Electoral College: would this dangerously narrow victory, the product not so much of popularity as of organized labor's muscle and awesome support from Southern blacks, chasten the President-elect?

The degree to which influential figures in both parties devoutly wish, for the country's sake, that the answer to this question is yes is clear from the following evidence.

Item: As Carter's electoral vote total remained stalled just short of the necessary 270 around 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, one of his most enthusiastic supporters among old-line Democratic politicians prayed that he would win—but not by much.

"He'll be a lot better off that way," the politician said.

Item: On election day, a liberal Republican who had broken with President Ford to provide private support and counsel to Carter contacted one of Carter's most intimate advisers with this advice since the result is going to be close, name a broad-based cabinet that includes all shades of opinion—including Republicans.

Items: William Simon, Mr. Ford's conservative Secretary of the Treasury, would like to meet Carter to urge this: name a Republican—a conservative Republican—at that—as my successor at the Treasury if you want to give confidence to the money markets and avoid a freeze in capital investment.

Hopes that Carter will heed such advice are fanned not only by his tight squeeze through the Electoral College but by the chastening experience of the campaign's last two weeks. When panic gripped Carter general headquarters in Atlanta as the Ford surge began in mid-October, Democratic professionals perceived a new awareness (and perhaps even a new humility) within the Carter inner circle of its desperate dependence on the regular machinery of the party across the country.

Nevertheless, those who know the Carter operation best are dubious—skeptical, buttressed by a seemingly trivial incident election night. Ever since Carter's nomination—clinching primary victory in Pennsylvania April 27, Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss has tirelessly sold Carter to doubtful party pros. Yet, when Strauss in Washington tried to contact Carter in Atlanta Tuesday night, the call went unanswered.

That might have been one of the meaningless oversights which abound in all political campaigns. Or it might have reflected the sentiment advice by Carter's more ardent liberal supporters the past week: that campaign manager Hamilton Jordan erred seriously in persuading Carter to keep Strauss as national chairman and to play ball with Richard Daley, George Meany and the rest of the old guard.

Moreover, the Carter inner circle is unusually tightly knit and impervious to outside influence. That raises the possibility that the President-elect and his insiders may soon forget how narrowly he escaped defeat.

The nature of Carter's victory is shown by the indispensable role of the recently voteless Southern blacks in insuring that the Old Confederacy would stand by the first citizen of the Deep South nominated for President in 128 years. The unprecedented black vote in the South compensated for the substantial rural white defections and gave Carter a Southern electoral vote total which made futile Mr. Ford's impressive performance in Northern industrial states.

Mississippi, which put Mr. Carter over the top early Wednesday with about 50.7 per cent of the state vote, is a dramatic illustration. White rural Mississippians had come to perceive Carter as a liberal, so much so that about 60 per cent of them are estimated to have voted for Mr. Ford. The state was

Strength For Today

A POOR EXCUSE
Some people have had their religious faith destroyed by discovering that some man or woman prominent in religious work was a hypocrite.

That a discovery of this sort is shocking no one can deny. But why should it affect one's faith in the Christian gospel or turn one from the Christian way of life? The Christian gospel stands on its own feet. The Christian way of life has been demonstrated by experience to be the best way in which men can walk. And all this is true even though every professing Christian should turn out to be a hypocrite.

We make a great mistake when we fail to differentiate between persons and the truth they profess to follow. The fact that they are not following that truth does not mean that this truth is not sound. It means only that the people concerned and their characters are not sound.

The soundness of any truth is in no way affected by what people say, do, or think in reference to this truth.

Foreign Policy Idling

By KENNETH J. FREED

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's failure to win election issues that languished under the pressure of vote gathering now will stagnate during the remaining 12 weeks of Ford's lame-duck administration.

U.S. officials said the goal of Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will be to hold things together while working to create an impression that business will go on as usual.

But there will be no new initiatives taken and no new commitments made, the officials said, not only because Jimmy Carter would object, but because few if any foreign governments will be willing to deal on crucial matters with an administration on its way out.

Kissinger himself is expected to stay in office until Carter takes over next Jan. 20, but many other State Department officials and ambassadors probably will be leaving.

Already Richard M. Helms, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has resigned as ambassador to Iran. One key Kissinger aide who has labored for the secretary since 1969 is preparing to leave soon, first to take a long vacation and then to seek outside employment.

"This will be the time of the 'actors,'" said one State Department source, meaning that as high-level officials leave, they will be replaced by "acting" officials.

Mentioned prominently among those retiring early or leaving the Foreign Service are Deputy Secretary Charles Robinson, Counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt, Under Secretary for Economic Affairs William D. Rogers and director of Policy Planning Winston Lord.

40 Years Ago Today

November 4, 1936

The people have returned the New Deal to office for four years more by an electoral plurality which may be the greatest in American history.

Riding a great flood tide of ballots, Franklin D. Roosevelt was leading for reelection early today in 45 of the 48 states. A possibility remained that he might capture the 46th.

His Republican opponent, Governor Alf M. Landon, conceded defeat and congratulated the victor in a message declaring, "Every American will accept the verdict and work for the common cause—for the good of our country."

Early returns indicated a majority of 10 million for President Roosevelt in the popular vote.

As the Governor's message clicked over the wires eastward, his electoral fortunes were at the lowest ebb touched by the candidate of a major party in generations. He had less than Hoover had in 1932 — just comfortable in the states of Maine and Vermont and a more precarious margin in New Hampshire. At that moment, if the indicated state totals held, Roosevelt would have 519 electoral votes and Landon 12.

Wall Street Not Yet Decided

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't look for the immediate stock market reaction to necessarily represent approval or censure of the presidential election winner.

A possibility, say many analysts of market behavior, is that stocks might rally briefly in any event, simply as an expression of relief from indecision. Uncertainty usually weakens the market.

There is the chance too that the market might shrug off the election results, being once again unable to make a sharp determination of whether the news is good or bad. It wouldn't be the first time this year it has happened.

Reviewing the thoughts of the market letter writers, one can detect the confusion.

A good many analysts, for example, have assumed uncritically that a Ford victory was good for business and therefore for stocks. Others, however, recall how it seems to be that stock markets rise when Democrats are in power.

The betting seems to be with those who insist that the current market, locked into a monotonously limited range since last February, is looking for any news event as an excuse to become more active. Capital gains can only be made — and lost — when stocks move.

In that context, the election event could provide the reason for some of the large institutions to promote activity, hoping that the general public then will join in the excitement and generate a spasm of trading.

Such emotions have been arisen throughout the year, but never have they been sustained, another illustration it is said of the reluctance of Americans to commit themselves to an uncertain future.

This attitude has been evident in various ways. Industry, to cite one instance, has been wary of spending for capital expansion, that is, for the improvement and enlarging and equipping of production facilities.

This failure of industry to enlarge its capital commitments, especially since borrowing costs have dropped sharply from last year's levels, has distressed many economists and investors, who fear that if business doesn't lead can consumers be blamed if they don't follow.

Individuals too have been less than eager to invest. Money that in more exuberant times might have gone into the market has been going instead into the least risky of ventures, such as savings accounts.

This is a typical phenomenon of a society whose confidence is low, and those who measure that confidence agree that up to now it has never fully recovered from the deep recession of 1974.

Whether the doubts and the wariness are the result of consumer attitudes mainly about the future financial picture, or whether they also represent reservations about political leadership, is debatable. But it is there.

views will be their hopes for a new U.S.-Soviet treaty limiting offensive nuclear weapons and, on a wider plane, detente with Russia.

Because of charges by conservative Republicans as well as Carter that Kissinger was not strong enough with the Russians, the Ford administration has been dormant since last spring in negotiating a second-phase strategic arms limitation treaty.

Kissinger also canceled meetings last summer of U.S.-Soviet commissions on trade and other matters when Ford was under strong challenge for the Republican nomination by conservative Ronald Reagan, who charged the administration with being soft on Moscow.

Another important issue on which the administration has been marking time is the Middle East. The administration was reluctant to move in such a touchy area pending the election.

U.S. officials laughed when asked if negotiations on a new Panama Canal treaty would be finished before Ford leaves. The canal issue would have been sensitive even if Ford had won, they said.

In all these areas; SALT, detente, the Middle East and Panama, Carter has indicated that he has his own ideas on how to proceed, even if he plans no major policy changes.

saved for Carter by a massive black vote that runs close to 35 per cent of the total.

The vital 26 electoral votes of Texas, biggest of the Southern states, were guaranteed less by Carter's hold on the country towns than by the Democratic party's registration of minority voters and labor's help in getting them to the

Abused Pup Finds Home

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)

—A blind but now healthy puppy that was tortured and later made a ward of the Cumberland County dog pound was flown to a new home in Ohio Wednesday.

The mongrel pup was tortured by electrical shocks by its owner, who said he was trying to break it of disobedience. The owner was fined $250 and cannot own a dog for three years by court order.

Brenda Dabbelt of Mason, Ohio, heard about the puppy's plight on an Ohio radio station and she decided to try to adopt it.

"It upset me so much," she said by telephone Wednesday. "I felt I had to do something."

Fayetteville officials were looking for a good home for the puppy and they figured that anybody who would pay $28 to have it transported to Ohio would provide a good home for it.

Betty McHargue, who runs the local dog pound, said Mrs. Dabbelt "must have called six times. She really sounded like she'd give the dog a good home."

Mrs. Dabbelt wired the money and the abused puppy, now healthy, left Fayetteville via polls. To an even larger extent, the party and labor enabled Carter to carry New York and Ohio despite heavy Catholic defections to Mr. Ford.

Although humility is rare and sometimes inappropriate for victorious presidential candidates, it might soften two frequent criticisms of the next President: arrogance and insularity. Jimmy Carter's performance in the critical weeks of transition offers the first opportunity to put it on display.

Mrs. Dabbelt wired the money and the abused puppy, now healthy, left Fayetteville via Piedmont Airlines for its new home in Mason, Ohio.

"We had him examined thoroughly by a veterinarian," said Mrs. McHargue. "He's in good shape though he is blind."

Mrs. Dabbelt knows the dog can't see but feels maybe a veterinarian can restore its sight.

She has one dog already and has been around dogs all her life, she said. But, "I've never shipped one this far before," she said.

Newspeak, that means that Western journalists have an obligation to disseminate Third World propaganda in the guise of news.

The resolution asserts that member States "are responsible for the activities in the international sphere of all mass media under their jurisdiction." This means licensing, accrediting, and censoring.

Over this past weekend, Tanzania's ambassador to UNESCO put pretense to one side. "We don't want Western journalists in our countries," said Abbas Sykes. "They should take their news from us."

Our own National News Council, an entirely private and voluntary agency, summed up the Western position in a firm statement last month: "An absolutely fundamental principle of freedom of the press is that no government official or unit of government, high or low, can decide what a newspaper or other news collection and distributing agency, whether print or electronic, may or may not report for the information of the people so to be served. Where the government possesses such a control the press is not free and one of the primary conditions of dictatorship is in force."

The United States will be represented at the Nairobi conference. Our delegation of course will oppose the Soviet resolution. To their credit, some Third World spokesmen have expressed their own grave reservations about the pending resolution. Delegates from Tunisia and Venezuela are seeking a compromise that would stop short of Third World control of national news.

Even so, it is probable that something close to the Soviet draft resolution will win approval at Nairobi. If the resolution then is implemented, much of the world may be effectively closed to the kind of free press we cherish. At Nairobi in 1976, we move significantly closer to Orwell's 1984.

Offer College On Weekends

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A weekend college begins Friday at Central Piedmont Community College.

People unable to commit themselves to a schedule during the week will be able to concentrate on a single subject during the weekend college. This will allow them to complete a course in two to six weeks, instead of the 11 weeks most courses require.

The community college has asked four-year colleges in the Charlotte area to join in the venture with advanced and graduate courses. Some have expressed interest, and say they will study the idea.

HUSBAND PUTTING WIFE THROUGH SCHOOL WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. Two Officers To Buy Firm

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Two officers of the Superior Cable manufacturing corporation have reached agreement to buy the company for about $14.75 million from the Continental Telephone Co.

Superior Cable has plants in Hickory and Rocky Mount, N.C., and in Texas and New York City. It has 800 employees. About half of them are in Hickory, where it also operates the Hickory Brand telephone cord company.

The company is being acquired by the president and chairman, Robert C. Pittman, and the senior vice president for finance, A.L. Viles.

Viles said the new management intends to establish an employee stock ownership plan.

Swine Flu Shots Inching Ahead

ATLANTA (AP) — The national swine flu vaccination program picked up a bit more speed last week, "but you would hardly call it a juggernaut," a spokesman for the federal Center for Disease Control said today.

Vaccinations last week totaled 3,897,786, bringing the October total to 9,613,029, the spokesman said.

Just over 3 million Americans had been vaccinated the previous week — most of them elderly or chronically ill persons believed to have a high risk of contracting swine flu if an outbreak should occur this winter.

Most states have begun giving monovalent vaccinations against swine flu, whereas the earlier shots were to protect "high risk" persons against both swine flu and the A-Victoria flu strain common last winter.

"There does not seem to be an urgency as far as the general public is concerned, but there is a definite, steady interest in the program," the CDC spokesman said.

"We feel an urgency, and we would, of course, like to get the program completed by the end of December."

The federal agency had hoped to vaccinate as many as 200 million Americans before the flu season this winter. The program was delayed by problems in manufacturing the vaccine and by the question of governmental liability in possible vaccination side effect lawsuits.

The program hit another stumbling block last month with reports of more than 40 deaths after vaccinations. The CDC and other officials have said repeatedly that those deaths were not connected with the vaccine and could have been expected from any group of elderly or ill persons, whether they had had shots or not.

"Apparently that did slow it down, but the response is picking up the farther we get from that," the spokesman said.

Vaccination of children and teen-agers under 18 years of age has been held up by studies of proper dosages and possible side effects for those persons.

"That was supposed to be decided in late October by the National Institutes of Health" in Washington, the spokesman said.

Any delay in that decision would affect "the target completion of the program," the spokesman said.

"The question is more how it's best to administer in that age group rather than whether to administer."

The spokesman said no outbreaks of swine flu have been reported in the United States this fall.

The national program — funded by a $135 million congressional appropriation — was begun after a January outbreak hit several soldiers at Ft. Dix, N.J., killing one.

Police Force Lost Another

DALLAS, N.C. (AP) — The police force of Dallas in Gaston County, which recently was reduced from eight men to four in a dispute with the mayor, has lost another man. Capt. Bob Bryson has resigned at the request of the board of aldermen of the town of 4,000 population.

The board accused him of helping stir up the controversy that had cut the force in half, a charge he denies.

The town clerk has hired one replacement for the resigned policemen, and hopes to hire more soon. Members of the Gaston Rural Police will help the diminished Dallas force, if necessary.

Gershwin Plays Music That Made Him Famous

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

United Press International

This is not only the year of the Bicentennial but also one seemingly dedicated to the memory of George Gershwin.

The music makers have recorded "Porgy and Bess" in its complete form and there have been some interpretations of selections from the opera by various artists. Now, in a somewhat ghoulish departure, Gershwin has been brought back from the grave to play the piano sections from the work which made him famous.

In order to make "George Gershwin Plays Rhapsody in Blue" with Michael Tilson Thomas conducting the Columbia Jazz Band (Columbia M-34205), engineers used a piano roll cut by Gershwin back in 1925.

The result is startling. The fidelity is so good that it is easy to imagine Gershwin sitting at the console. All the notes ring true and clear. The second side of the record is a symphonic presentation of Gershwin's "An American in Paris."

In a two-LP album, Ray Charles and Cleo Laine offer their version of "Porgy and Bess" (RCA Victor CPL2-1831), and it's a contribution Gershwin would have loved.

Charles would have made an ideal Porgy. He handles the Gershwin tunes as though they were written for him. He slows down the tempo slightly on "It Ain't Necessarily So" to fit his style and mood and it is a highlight of this production.

There are some fine instrumental rounds to round out the notable performance of Charles and Miss Laine.

Oscar Peterson and Joe Pass have recorded an unusual jazz version of "Porgy and Bess" in a production by the noted jazz impresario, Norman Granz (Pablo 2310-779). It deserves the "unusual" description because Peterson effectively uses the clavichord, an instrument believed to have been born during the Renaissance, as a jazz instrument. The clavichord's sound is similar to the harpsichord and Peterson adapts it nicely to the Gershwin rhythms. Pass plays acoustic guitar — as accompanist, and soloist as well as participating in duets with Peterson. There is some plaintive plucking on "Bess, You Is My Woman."

Hampton Hawes, a fine jazz pianist, includes "Summer-time" from "Porgy and Bess" in an album he recorded in Tokyo, "The Challenge" (RCA JPL1-1508). Hawes's concert also features such pop standards as "It Could Happen to You," "My Romance," "Just One of Those Things" and a jazz version of "Autumn Leaves."

Down Memory Lane — Bucky Pizzarelli and Bud Freeman have recorded several oldtime favorites on "Buck and Bud" (Flying Dutchman BDL1-1378). Among them are "Easy to Love," "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans," "Sweet Sue," "I Could Write a Book," "Dinah," "Exactly Like You" and "Tea for Two." They are backed by Bob Haggart on bass, Ronnie Traxler on drums, and Hank Jones on piano.

Choice Country — Jerry Lee Lewis, who is not a true country singer, does all right with the rural rhythms on "Country Class" (Mercury SRM-1-1109). His handling of "No One Will Ever Know," a Roy Acuff favorite, and "The One Rose That's Left in My Heart" is particularly smooth. Among the numbers are "Jerry Lee's Rock and Roll Revival Show" and "Let's Put It Back Together Again."

N.C. High Court Appeal Open To Best

The North Carolina Court of Appeals has upheld the conviction of Greenville physician Dr. Andrew Best on charges involving the sale and delivery of controlled drugs "not within the routine course of his professional practice."

Best was charged with the violations more than a year ago following an undercover investigation by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

He was tried in Pitt County Superior Court last November and found guilty on two counts. The jury found him not guilty on four other charges.

Judge Bradford Tillery sentenced Best to two 12-month consecutive jail sentences, then ordered the terms suspended on condition the doctor pay a $1,000 fine and costs of court in each case.

In affirming the conviction yesterday, the three-judge panel split two to one, automatically giving Best a right to appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Judge Earl W. Vaughn, in the majority opinion, said, "A practitioner who distributes drugs other than for a legitimate medical purpose within the normal course of professional practice has no more exemption from the law than does an illicit street vendor."

SBI agent M. T. Owens testified that she visited Dr. Best's office posing as a waitress and prostitute and asked for something to help her stay awake. She said the physician gave her a prescription for a stimulant, Ritalin.

She said she returned to the office on two other occasions and that the prescription was refilled without any examination.

It was on the charges based on refilling the prescription that Best was convicted.

Dissenting Judge Edward B. Clark said that since the agent did not complain of any ill side effects of her return visits to the physicians' office, that Best

"could reasonably assume without further examination that the prescribed drug had been effective in the treatment of the patient; and that refilling the prescription was justifiable under the circumstances."

Dr. Best testified that he diagnosed agent Owens was suffering from narcolepsy.

Eye 2 New Governors State Teacher As Having A 'Future' Of Year Named

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days after the election, there already is talk of national prominence for two of the nation's new governors, Democrat John D. "Jay" Rockefeller IV of West Virginia and Republican James . Thompson of Illinois.

Both swept into office Tuesday with huge record-setting electoral margins, drawing attention to themselves as fresh faces likely to be heard from again outside their states.

Thompson, for one, has acknowledged a lifelong ambition for the presidency. Nicknamed "Big Jim" because of his 6-foot-6 inch frame, Thompson beat Democratic machine candidate Michael J. Howlett by 1.3 million votes.

Asked about his White House ambitions Wednesday, Thompson recalled his career as a tough federal prosecutor who brought more than 200 public officials to trial on corruption charges, a record that propelled him to the governorship.

"I'm just going to put talk of national leadership for a national role ... behind me, until I've got a handle on my job," he said. "The No. 1 lesson I've learned is you don't go anywhere else until you first have done a good job where you are."

Thompson declared that he plans to seek a second term in 1978, but he did nothing to discourage any speculation about his potential as an eventual presidential aspirant. But there are potential hazards, including serious budget problems and a possible tax increase, both issues that must be negotiated with a Democratically-controlled state legislature.

In West Virginia, Rockefeller, nephew of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, outspent his opponent 10 to 1, using mostly his own funds, to reach the governor's mansion on the second try.

State political observers have no doubt that one day Rockefeller will move to seek a national constituency, but for now Rockefeller says he has plans only to run for re-election in four years.

Democratic U.S. Sen. Jennings Randolph is 76 and expected to retire when his term expires in 1978, but a Rockefeller aide said Wednesday the governor-elect has no interest in seeking that seat.

Thompson is 40 and Rockefeller 39, allowing both men ample time to run their states for two elected terms while building a political base for a run on the presidency.

Elsewhere, Democrats fared well in Tuesday's 14 gubernatorial contests, and it appeared either that Carter helped a number into office on his coattails or that they helped him. Carter carried Arkansas, Missouri, North Carolina, Rhode Island and West Virginia, all of which today have Democratic governors-elect. Only in Delaware did a Republican capture the governor's mansion and the voters go for Carter.

RALEIGH (AP) — A Henderson teacher, Ted Scott Henson, was named today the 1977 state teacher of the year.

Henson, a fifth grade language arts and social studies teacher at E.M. Rollins School, was recognized at a meeting of the State Board of Education. He was presented by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips as being "representative of the very finest classroom teachers in North Carolina." He will represent the state in national teacher of the year competition.

Henson, 28, is a Randolph County native who began teaching in the Vance County schools in 1969 after he graduated from Campbell College. He has also completed graduate work at East Carolina University and North Carolina State University.

Active in civic and professional organizations, Henson is currently president of the Vance County Association of Classroom Teachers and is president-elect of the Vance County N.C. Association of Educators.

Henson was instrumental in organizing the Vance Junior Historian Club and helping the junior historians win first and second place awards in state competition. He annually directs the Vance County History Fair and has written and directed three pageants on local history.

He was chosen Outstanding Young Educator of North Carolina by the North Carolina Jaycees.

Last month Henson was chosen as one of two finalists from a field of 15 regional nominees. The two finalists were then observed in their classrooms by staff of the Learning Institute of North Carolina in Durham.

Will Carry On Without NBC

CHARLOTTE (AP) — WSOC, which became a round-the-clock all-news radio station last August, plans to retain the format although NBC is discontinuing the service which supplies it with national and international news.

NBC announced Wednesday that its News and Information Service was unprofitable, and would be abolished in the middle of next year.

Lee Morris, general manager of WSOC, then said the station was committed to all-news, and planned to expand its local news and perhaps pick up other syndicated or network news service.

Award Goes To Lillian Hellman

BOSTON (AP) — Lillian Hellman was recently presented with the Edward MacDowell Medal for her "outstanding contribution to literature."

Miss Hellman is the author of the bestselling "Scoundrel Time" and a number of plays, including "The Children's Hour," "The Little Foxes," and "Toys in the Attic."

India's Foremost Snake Farmer Is An American

By RAMESH PANDE
NEW DELHI (UPI) — Indians have charmed snakes for centuries. Now an American is teaching them the art of rearing the deadly reptiles.

Romulus Whitaker, 33, is reputed to be the leading snake farmer of India and an authority on the treatment of snakebite victims. His interest in snakes, particularly the most lethal variety, the king cobra, is surpassed only by his love of India.

Whitaker was taken to India as a child by his mother in 1951. He started a snake collection then which he has been adding to ever since.

He opened his snake farm on a one-acre plot just outside the southern metropolis of Madras. The farm has grown from a collection of about a dozen reptiles to a full-fledged snake research center housing practically all species of snakes found in the country.

The snakes bask and fatten under the warm sun and the farm has become a major tourist attraction in the city.

Whitaker, who holds the title of founder-director of the farm, is originally from Long Island, N.Y. He returned to the United States when he was 18 and studied snakes at the Miami Serpenterium. He returned to India after serving in the army.

His main interests are snake-venom research and the treatment of victims of snakebites. He also has perfected the technique of extracting the venom, which is later sent to the Haffkine Institute in Bombay where the colorless, nonviscous liquid is turned into desperately needed anti-snakebite serum.

No accurate figures are available, but experts estimate at least 15,000 to 20,000 persons die of snakebites in India each year. This is a conservative estimate, since most villages where these fatalities occur do not report such accidents.

Burma has the world's highest death rate from snakebites — 15.4 persons out of every 100,000 population, according to a report of the World Health Organization.

India has most of the different species of snakes found in the world. Through research conducted by men like Whitaker, it has been established that only a few of these are venomous. These include the king cobra, the common cobra, the krait and the Russell's and saw-scaled vipers.

The king cobra, the largest of the venomous types in India, rightly deserves his title. In terms of strength, agility, ferocity and abundance of venom, there is none to equal him.

Described by men like Whitaker as nature's most efficient killing machine, the king cobra can grow to a fearsome 18 to 20 feet in length. Also known as the Hamadryad, the cobra seldom lives near human habitations. It is known to haunt old and ruined structures or remote rain forests. Many in India worship the cobra.

Whitaker, to date, has captured two king cobras. However, neither survived in captivity despite the best of care.

Whitaker's latest catch, a "queen," was picked up in the remote Andamans — a group of islands in the Bay of Bengal. The snake was spotted by a couple of native trackers. Whitaker grabbed it with a bamboo stick.

After being around snakes all these years, Whitaker offers this advice:

"They (the snakes) are the farmer's best friends, as they destroy pests. Don't kill them."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today, rebounding from the initial selloff that followed Jimmy Carter's victory in the presidential election.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off 9.56 on Wednesday, was up 4.57 at 961.10 by 11:30 a.m. today. The Dow's gain would have been about 3 points larger had it not been for dividend-payment adjustments in the prices of five of its component stocks.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed is-SUES.

Trading was moderate. Analysts said investors seemed encouraged by the market's steady showing late Wednesday, when it recovered part of an early loss of 16 Dow points.

They said the market, despite its traditional conservative bent, seemed to have accommodated itself to the idea of a Carter presidency and was awaiting indications from the president-elect of his plans.

Forest-products issues showed strength on expectations that Carter might take some early steps to bolster the housing industry.

Georgia-Pacific, for example, gained 1 1/2 to 37 1/2, and Weyerhaeuser was up 1/2 to 47 1/4.

General Motors, the most active NYSE issue, gained 1/2 to 73. The stock's price reflected an ex-dividend of $3 following declaration of that record year-end payout by the company earlier in the week.

The NYSE's composite index rose .13 to 54.51 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .30 at 98.81.

Rampants Close Year With Eagles

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

One year ago this time, Rose High School was set to play host to Northeastern High School with a great deal at stake. The Rampants needed a victory to advance into the state 4-A playoffs, and they got it.

It was the start of a five-game winning streak that brought the team the 1975 State Championship.

Friday night, Rose plays a return visit to the Eagles in Elizabeth City. About the only things at stake this year, however, is a little bit of pride.

Neither team has had a banner year, although Northeastern has the better record, having won four of its nine starts so far. They've won only one Division I game, however, a 6-0 surprise of Rocky Mount — in a game that saw the Gryphons fumble nine times. Rose, meanwhile, has been bounced on the short end of the scoreboard on eight of its nine games. The only victory was a 13-0 win over New Bern. Against conference competition, the Rampants are 0-4.

Their latest loss was a 16-0 defeat at the hands of Wilson Fike, last Thursday night. It was the final home game of the year.

"We weren't out of the game until the final eight minutes," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "It was still 6-0 then, but we turned the ball over a couple of times, and they scored another touchdown and a field goal."

Bumgarner said it was typical of the season for the Rampants. "I know it sounds like a broken record. It's been the story of our lives this year. We're one block away from being a good football team... one extra effort on defense."

The coach pointed out that nearly every game the Ram-pants have had this year has been a close one. "Most of the time, we were still in it late in the game. I thought at the start of the season, that we'd have a more potent offense, that we'd score more. But we haven't."

Bumgarner said that Wilson was the better team — it had shown that — but that the better team does not always win. "We had the chance. If we could have scored and taken the lead, I don't know what might have happened. It might have turned us around. We've never been ahead in any game we've lost this year."

So this week's game can only try and help things get started for next year. "We can't do much now to help this year. We can only try to avoid our worst season in some time," Bumgarner's first team at Rose, in 1971, went 2-8. It will take a win Friday to match that.

"Northeastern is like any other team we've played in the conference. They have good people in some spots. They have a good running back in Maryland Bright, and a good quarterback in Tyrone Perry. Their lines do an adequate job both offensively and defensively, and I think they are a typical Division I team.

"They're not real impressive anywhere, but they get the job done," he added. Against conference foes, they've been up and down, however, beating Rocky Mount, then falling to Northern Nash, 21-0, Wilson, 7-6, and Bertie, 21-6. "It's really hard to classify them," the coach said.

As to what he might expect, Bumgarner said he really didn't know. "We could win — even win big — or we could lose the same way. But I really don't think we'll get blown out. It's their Homecoming and their final game of the year, so they'll be fired up."

Looking back over this year, the coach reminded that at the start of the year he had said he would be disappointed if the Rampants didn't gain their fourth straight playoff berth.

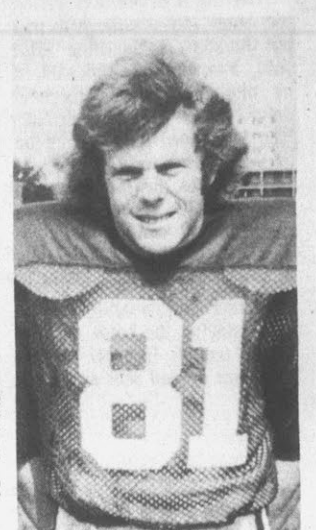

"At any one time during this season we could have achieved that goal," he said. "The ball has bounced the wrong way for us all year. We didn't get and didn't make the breaks. We're not that bad a team to not be a division champion. Nobody in this conference has beaten us soundly."

"We beat ourselves at Rocky Mount with the fumbles and interceptions. And even then, I thought we could have gotten back in the race if we had beaten Bertie. I think losing that game in overtime took a lot out of us."

"But these kids are still in good spirits. We haven't had folks quitting on us. I'm real pleased with the attitude we have. Maybe things have been bad this year, but we're going to have a lot of people coming back next year — something we didn't have this year — so we've got a lot to look forward to."

Meanwhile, the Rampants go after their final shot at a conference win and at least a partial escape from sole possession of the Division I cellar in Elizabeth City Friday. Kickoff is at 8 p.m. at the new Eagle football field, located next to the school.

New Teams Wish They Had Shot At The Free Agent Pickings

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Gorman has seen a lot of baseball lists in the last two weeks, but none is more appealing than today's available free agent players. Only this is one list Gorman can't touch.

Gorman is the director of player personnel for the expansion Seattle Mariners, who will be forced to come into the cold, competitive baseball world in 1977 with young hopefuls, old has-beens and middle-aged mediocres.

That's the lot of all expansion teams. They are given a license to drive with the big boys, but then allowed to use only rollerskates or a broken-down Ed-

sel. "I wish we could have a shot at some of those free agents," said Gorman, whose infant club could grow up very quickly with the likes of Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi or Don Gullett on the roster. "But these are the rules of the game."

Seattle and its twin brother, Toronto, paid a hefty price to get into the American League. Part of that entrance fee for each team included $5.25 million for 30 players. Among the available players to the Mariners and Blue Jays will be Pat Dobson, Wilbur Wood, Brooks Robinson, Bill Melton, Boog Powell, Rico Carty, Paul Blair and Bill Freehan.

"The clubs did an excellent job of protecting their best players," said Gorman. All 12 existing AL clubs have 15 untouchable players, along with all their minor leaguers signed after 1975. Each team must lose one player per round. When a team loses a player, it can protect three more after the first three rounds and two more after the fourth round.

"I'm somewhat disappointed," said Peter Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Blue Jays. "The clubs didn't leave unprotected as many young players as I would have liked."

"Now we'll have to change our approach and go with what's around. There are certainly a lot of old guys available."

Building teams eventually attain success because of young, talented players who mature into stars together. Old teams tend to do little but get old together.

"Our goal is still to draft the best young players we can get, except now there are fewer available than we counted on," says Bavasi, who estimates he and his scouting staff have put in 13,000 man hours to bone up on the available personnel.

"When we run out of young guys, we'll pick the veterans we feel can do the best job. Maybe even two or three at one position to provide us with trading material."

The Rainbow Classic in Honolulu Dec. 27-30 has eight teams. They are Illinois, Arizona State, Houston, St. John's, San Francisco, Temple, William and Mary and Hawaii.

46-Year-Old College Kicker

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — When Mal Dixon, a college place-kicker, graduates next June, he'd like to turn pro. If he does, he'll be the oldest rookie — in fact, the oldest active player — in the National Football League.

He's already the George Blanda of the college set. Dixon is a 46-year-old senior at Fairleigh Dickinson University and the oldest active college player.

"I'm old but I'm eager," Dixon says, suiting up to take the ribbing and hard hits from opponents half his age. "There's no easy treatment for me — they're trying to knock off my head and I'm trying to knock off theirs."

Discussion On Helmets

A panel discussion on football helmets will be featured on the American Broadcasting Co.'s AM America tomorrow morning.

The discussion will involve the merits of the current version. It is scheduled to be shown between 7 and 7:30 a.m. Friday.

The program can be seen locally on WCTI-TV in New Bern, Channel 12, or WRAL-TV, Raleigh, Channel 5.

Dixon retired from the restaurant business four years ago and went to college to get a degree in education. It had been his lifelong dream to play college football, and he didn't let his age stand in the way.

"My first year here, I happened to see the football team working out. So I thought I'd go out for it," he says. "My wife thought I was crazy and my kids didn't believe me, but they came around."

Dixon not only does the place-kicking but also occasionally fills in as a defensive lineman. He has hit on 11 of 12 extra points but missed his only field goal attempt this year. The team is 1-5 and usually playing catch-up, so he doesn't get a chance to try too many field goals. In practice he booms 45-yards.

"I'm in better condition now than when I was in my freshman year," says Dixon, who, like many collegians, would love to play pro ball.

"There are a lot of pro teams that can use a backup kicker, and if I'm given the chance I'd like a tryout," he says.

Dixon started out life with a heart murmur that kept him on the sidelines during his early years, but went away after he started school.

"I had to stand around and watch other kids have fun, but when I finally could play I built myself up so I could do 200 pushups at a time," he says. "I enjoy it very much — the physical activity, the competitiveness, even the warming up. It's a matter of doing things, rather than sitting back in your living room getting fat."

"It's not just me. There are plenty of older people now who want to take part in sports, and there's no reason they can't. Some people in their 50s and 60s can play soccer and basketball, and I know a fellow in his 70s who can beat me in a foot race."

Matney Advances

WILSON — Serena Matney was the lone member of the Rose High School girls' tennis team to advance past the first day of competition in the sectional tennis tournament in Wilson yesterday.

Miss Matney won her first three matches, and if she gets past the first round of today's competition, she will automatically advance into next week's state tournament in Chapel Hill.

She defeated Helen Jones of C. B. Aycock in the first round, 6-1, 6-0, then beat Sally Houston of Goldsboro, 6-0, 6-2. In the third round, she downed Debra Hart of New Bern, 6-0, 6-1.

In the only other singles competition, Greenville's Marty East lost to Goldsboro's Horton, 7-6, 5-7, 6-3.

Rose also entered two doubles teams. The team of Cindy Talbert and Christa Dunn fell in the first round to Bonita and Vanessa Richardson of Kinston, 6-4, 7-5.

The other team, Karen Jeffreys and Margaret McGlohon beat Winston-Welch of Camp Lejeune, 6-0, 6-0, then beat Campbell Lynch of Washington, 7-5, 6-4. They were then beaten by Hollar and Gibbons of Wilson, 6-3, 6-0.

Rose finished the first day of competition with five points in the team standings.

Tourney Has New Challenge

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The National Team championship, which got underway today, presents the players with a strategic challenge different from any other on the pro golf tour.

"It really helps to know your partner's game," said veteran Dave Hill, teamed with brother Mike in one of the two-man squads given the best chance of winning the $40,000 first prize in the last event of the year.

Scoring in this unique tournament is based on the better ball of each team. That is, if one player scores three on the hole and the other partner scores four, the team score is three.

"Getting it in position, giving the other guy a chance to pull out the stops, is the thing," Hill said. For example, he said, if he hits first off the tee and drives in the fairway, hard-hitting Mike then can attempt an exceptionally long drive. If Dave misses the fairway, then Mike must be more careful to keep the ball in play.

Or, if Dave hits his approach first and puts it on the green, Mike then can go boldly for the pin, ignoring the traps and potential trouble in order to give the team a good shot at a birdie.

"Playing as a team, if you work it right, you're going to have a much better ball than if the two of you were playing in a regular tournament," Dave said.

He and Mike have a history of high finishes in this event being played on two courses at Walt Disney World. But they haven't won.

"Mike usually plays super in the Team," Dave said. "If I'd putted a little better, given him a little help, we might have won a couple of times."

Dave has had an exceptional season, winning the Milwaukee Open and collecting $116,180. He was second in the Sahara, third twice, including the World Series of Golf, and has been fourth twice. Mike has won $58,478 and had his best finish, third, in the Jacksonville Open.

Among their chief opponents in the field of 102 teams are Ed Sneed and Tom Weiskopf; J.C. Sneed and his uncle, Sam; U.S. Open champ Jerry Pate and George Burns; Ben Crenshaw and Eddie Pearce; former champions Hubert Green and Mac McLendon, defending titleholders Jim Colbert and Dean Refram, and veterans Miller Barber and Don January.

ABC-TV will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Flames Found Cure For Hurt

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
AP Sports Writer

There's nothing like some shorthanded goals and a shut-out to perk up a National Hockey League team starting a home stand and beset with injuries and illness.

The Atlanta Flames found the prescription to cure what ailed them Wednesday night with a 7-0 conquest of the Washington Capitals. The victory put the third-place Flames back at .500 with a 6-6-2 record and left them just two points behind idle Philadelphia, runner-up in the Patrick Division.

In other NHL games, the Los Angeles Kings beat the Cleveland Barons 4-2, the St. Louis Blues defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2, the Montreal Canadiens downed the Minnesota North Stars 5-2 and the New York Rangers routed the Vancouver Canucks 6-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Cincinnati Stingers turned back the Indianapolis Racers 8-2 and the Edmonton Oilers upended the Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2.

Penalty-killers Hilliard Graves, Bill Clement and Eric Vail each scored goals for Atlanta while the Flames were shorthanded and goalie Phil Myre held the Capitals scoreless for his first shutout of the season.

Graves' shorthanded goal gave Atlanta an early 1-0 first-period lead. Clement's came in the third period and was his third of the season, most ever by a Flames' player in a season.

Vail, who also had a power play goal, also scored his shorthanded goal in the third period. Tom Lysiak produced a pair of power play goals for Atlanta.

Kings 4, Barons 2
Dave Hutchinson and Tommy Williams scored goals in the final 69 seconds, lifting Los Angeles past Cleveland as the Barons absorbed their fifth straight setback.

Blues 6, Maple Leafs 2
A pair of goals by Pierre Plante triggered St. Louis' victory and snapped Toronto's three-game winning streak.

Canadiens 5, North Stars 2
Doug Risebrough, Rejean Houle and Mario Tremblay scored in the third period as Montreal handed Minnesota its third consecutive setback.

Rangers 6, Canucks 1
Rookie Don Murdoch and veteran Rod Gilbert each connected for two goals in New York's victory against Vancouver. One of Murdoch's goals was on a penalty shot, and he has 14 goals in 14 games.

Stingers 8, Racers 2
Claude Larose and Peter Marsh collected two goals a piece in Cincinnati's rout of Indianapolis.

Oilers 4, Fighting Saints 2
Rusty Patenaude produced three goals and Rick Morris accounted for the winning score in Edmonton's success over Minnesota.

BLOCKED — Houston Rockets' Kevin Kunnert (44) blocks the attempted shot of Boston Celtics' Sidney Wicks (12) during the first period of the NBA game at Houston Wednesday night.

Celtics' John Havlicek (17) moved in to take control of the deflected ball as Dave Cowens (18) keeps track of the ball. (AP Wirephoto)

Six Athletes Winners In Tuesday Elections

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

When Ken Bowman was at center for the Green Bay Packers, he always bemoaned the fact that offensive linemen rarely were recognized by pro football fans.

Now a lawyer, Bowman ran into much the same problem Tuesday when he lost his bid for a seat in the Wisconsin State Senate.

"I guess maybe I should have been a quarterback," Bowman said after being defeated by Republican incumbent Thomas Petri.

"We thought we were going to win, but unfortunately it didn't come out that way," the Democrat said. "But I've played enough football games to know that there are many instances where you fight real hard and the team still loses."

Bowman was one of 13 former athletes to run for office in Tuesday's election. Six were winners.

Democrat Joe DeNucci, a former fighter, was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives, polling 70 per cent of the vote.

Jim Kubacki of Harvard averaged 212.6 yards per game in 1975.

Tony Dungy of Minnesota registered 20 touchdowns last season, 15 of them on forward passes.

Ricky Bell of Southern California averaged 172.6 yards per game last season through all-purpose running.

John David Crow of Alabama won the 1958 Heisman Award. His son John is a junior running back at Alabama this season.

Harness driver Jim Tallman, a native of Pennsylvania's Scranton area, started 1976 with 1,041 winners of purses earning close to $5 million.

The America's Bowling Congress says more than 4,504,000 men competed in ABC-sanctioned competition in the past fiscal year.

Another member of the Oregon team, second-string wide receiver Ken Page, quit the squad last week.

"One thing about boxing, the rules are all defined pretty much," said DeNucci, who retired from the ring after losing two close decisions to Emile Griffith in 1972. "Politics is a different kind of business. You don't have that much control over your own destiny."

Other former athletes to win were Republicans Jack Kemp and Larry Jackson, and Democrats Ralph Metcalfe, Mickey Owen and Ray Jarvis.

On the losing end were Republicans Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, Bobby Richardson, Don Demeter, Wes Santee and Ron Shotts.

Kemp, who quarterbacked the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, posted a big victory in his re-election bid to the U.S. House of Representatives from New York's 38th Congressional District.

Demeter was defeated in his bid for a seat in the Oklahoma state legislature by incumbent Democrat Ken Nance. Now an Oklahoma City businessman, Demeter was an outfielder for the Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies and Detroit Tigers, batting .307 in 1962 when he was with the Phils.

Former University of Oklahoma football star Ron Shotts was defeated in his bid for a seat on the Oklahoma Corporation Commission. But Shotts got 48 per cent of the votes in an office generally dominated by Democrats, and Oklahoma GOP officials believe the Oklahoma City attorney may win two years from now.

Santee, one-time holder of the American record in the mile with a time of 4:00.5, lost his bid for a seat in the Kansas House of Representatives.

"She had signs on her property for my opposition," said Santee. Like Bowman, another former football center lost his bid for office. The University of Michigan's most valuable player in 1934, when the team was 1-7, Jerry Ford lost to Jimmy Carter in the race for president.

Mizell, another former major league pitcher, lost to incumbent Democrat Steve Neal in the contest for North Carolina's 5th Congressional District seat. Mizell, who was unseated by Neal two years ago after serving three terms, polled only 46 per cent of the vote.

Richardson, the former New York Yankees second baseman, lost to Democratic Congressman Kenneth L. Holland in South Carolina's 5th District, polling 48 per cent of the vote.

Mizell pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants before retiring after the 1962 season.

Richardson, the former New York Yankees second baseman, lost to Democratic Congressman Kenneth L. Holland in South Carolina's 5th District, polling 48 per cent of the vote.

"I'll have to wait and see what comes along," Richardson said of his future plans. He resigned this summer as baseball coach at the University of South Carolina to enter politics. "I really didn't put anything in the back drawer for after the election. I went in to win."

Demeter was defeated in his bid for a seat in the Oklahoma state legislature by incumbent Democrat Ken Nance. Now an Oklahoma City businessman, Demeter was an outfielder for the Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies and Detroit Tigers, batting .307 in 1962 when he was with the Phils.

Former University of Oklahoma football star Ron Shotts was defeated in his bid for a seat on the Oklahoma Corporation Commission. But Shotts got 48 per cent of the votes in an office generally dominated by Democrats, and Oklahoma GOP officials believe the Oklahoma City attorney may win two years from now.

Denver Adjusting Well To New Home In NBA

By The Associated Press

The undefeated Denver Nuggets have made a successful transition from the American Basketball Association to the National Basketball Association.

The upstart Nuggets, who joined the NBA this season in the merger of the leagues, are adjusting well to their new environment.

In fact, Denver is making winning look easy, as its 5-0 record attests. The Nuggets' latest victim was the New York Knicks, whom they beat 119-100 Wednesday night. Denver leads the Midwest Division by two games.

In other games, the New York Nets upended the Buffalo Braves 100-96, the Washington Bullets eased past the Milwaukee Bucks 117-105, the Indiana Pacers whipped the San Antonio Spurs 113-97, the Kansas City Kings topped the Seattle SuperSonics 126-106 and the Houston Rockets outlasted the Boston Celtics 117-111 in overtime.

Coach Larry Brown of Denver was succinct after the Knicks' game. "It's great meeting the Knicks. Now, we know we're in the NBA," he said.

The other clubs now know it, too.

Veteran forward Paul Silas sees Denver "as a potentially great team" that can compete on even terms with the Boston Celtics, the NBA champs he played for last season.

Except for Silas, the Nuggets consist of players who were in the ABA last season. Silas was obtained from Boston in a three-way deal also involving Detroit, with Ralph Simpson going from Denver to the Pistons, who sent Curtis Rowe to the Celtics.

Against the Knicks, the Nuggets bolted to a 23-point third-period lead and coasted the rest of the way before a record crowd of 17,808 in Denver.

David Thompson supplied most of the Nuggets' scoring impetus with 24 points and Dan Issel added 19. Five other players hit double figures in the balanced Denver attack.

Walt Frazier of New York topped all scorers with 27 points, while Earl Monroe was limited to 14.

Nets 100, Braves 96

John Williamson scored a season-high 36 points, triggering New York past Buffalo. The Nets snapped a three-game losing streak and handed the Braves their fourth successive setback.

Bullets 117, Bucks 105

Elvin Hayes was a virtual one-man show for Washington against Milwaukee. He scored 31 points, snared 14 rebounds and blocked six shots.

Pacers 113, Spurs 97

Dan Roundfield hit for 24 points, 16 in the third period, keying Indiana's fourth triumph in a row, at the expense of San Antonio.

Kings 126, SuperSonics 106

Ron Boone and Jim Eakins provided the scoring punch with 26 and 23 points, respectively, as Kansas City took advantage of costly Seattle turnovers.

Rockets 117, Celtics 111, OT

Mike Newlin connected for 35 points, including six in overtime, as Houston handed the Celtics their second loss in two nights.

The game was enlivened by a third-quarter fight between 5-foot-10 Calvin Murphy of the Rockets and 6-7 Sidney Wicks of the Celts. Wicks suffered a bloody nose but neither player was ejected.

Sports Briefs

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie linebacker Jim Cope, a 6-foot-2, 230-pounder from Ohio State, has been signed by the Atlanta Falcons, the National Football League club announced Tuesday.

The Falcons waived defensive end Wally Pessit to make room for Cope, who had been cut by the Denver Broncos.

Pessit had been with the Falcons only one game.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky basketball team has yet to play its first game in the new Rupp Arena and school officials already are saying the 22,828-seat facility is too small.

Athletic Director Cliff Hagan said Wednesday that Wildcats fans could easily fill another 5,000 seats in the arena. He said fans have been turned down for season opener tickets.

DETROIT (AP) — Forward Marvin Barnes of the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association waived a pre-trial examination Wednesday and was scheduled for a Nov. 18 arraignment in Wayne County Circuit Court on a concealed weapons charge.

Barnes was arrested at Detroit Metropolitan Airport on Oct. 9 for allegedly trying to carry an unregistered .38-caliber pistol aboard a plane. He was en route to St. Louis for a medical examination.

Barnes, obtained earlier this year by the Pistons in the draft of players from the old American yet play a regular season NBA game with Detroit. He was first embroiled in a contract dispute with the Pistons and later sprained his right ankle. Team doctors said Wednesday the ankle would remain in a cast for at least another two weeks.

OLIVET, Mich. (AP) — Olivet College football coach Robert Friedlund has resigned following a disastrous 0-9 season, the college announced Wednesday.

Friedlund, who played for Michigan State from 1939-41 and with the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League in 1946, had been an assistant coach at Drake, Pittsburgh and Temple.

He took over from Doug Kay Olivet at the start of this season.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Running back Greg Gilchrist, a highly-touted junior college transfer, has quit the University of Oregon football team and left the school, Coach Don Read confirmed Wednesday.

Atlantic City Already Envisions Big Jackpot

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — This fading resort city, permitted by state voters to stake its future on casino gambling, is celebrating as if it had already hit the jackpot. But odds-maker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder rates the chances of financial success as "no cinch."

On Tuesday, New Jersey voters approved a constitutional amendment making Atlantic City, home of the famous Boardwalk and the Miss America Pageant, the nation's only area outside Nevada to allow casino gaming.

Snyder sounded one of several notes of caution as city residents gave a chorus of hurrahs. He predicted that gambling would spread as other areas try to cash in, too — and he warned that running a gambling house is no sure thing unless you know what you're doing.

Meanwhile, New Jersey Gov.

SPOKE AT EASTERN

Mrs. Audrey Joyner, RN, spoke to a group of students at Eastern Elementary School recently. Mrs. Joyner spoke about the topic "Why Physical Examinations?" The October 28 edition of the Daily Reflector incorrectly reported that Mrs. Joyner spoke to students at Elmhurst Elementary School.

Brendan Byrne said he considers careful supervision of gambling more important than setting it up quickly. Promoters said it would be at least a year before gambling starts. And a prominent banker warned of a wave of speculation on property.

Caution was hardly the general mood, however, as hotels threw parties here and bars served free drinks.

"I foresee Atlantic City once again becoming the greatest seashore resort in the world," said Mayor Joseph Lazarow.

"We're going to rebuild this town," vowed John Rich, president of a bricklayers union, many of whose members have been unemployed. "The skyline will change dramatically," predicted lawyer-banker James Cooper.

Jimmy "The Greek," interviewed in New York, saw it differently.

"Now that the rolling stone has been let go," Snyder said, "I'm just wondering how many other states are going to pick it up."

"Pandora's door is open.... What's going to stop the places up in the Catskills (a resort area just north of New York City) from doing it?"

Atlantic City hopes to capitalize on the gambling market among tens of millions of people who live on the East Coast and are unwilling to go to Nevada.

Atlantic City does offer some advantages, such as "the community and the population...the transient trade." Unlike Las Vegas promoters, he said, operators here won't have to spend money luring people to an area out of their way.

But he pointed to New York City, 100 miles north of here, as an area of potential competition. On the day the amendment was approved here, voters in New York approved a more limited measure allowing religious and philanthropic groups to raise money with so-called "Las Vegas nights."

"Everybody and his brother is going to be running a Las Vegas night," Snyder predicted. "They're going to have to open schools for gambling."

A NEW OFFICE

The Downtown Greenville Association has a new office.

It's located on the second floor of the NCNB Building on First Street between Green and Washington Streets. It may be reached by phone via the NCNB switchboard, 758-3471. Dave Mosier is the executive director.

OR Technician Week In City

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed the current week through Nov. 6 as "Operating Room Technicians' Week" and urged local citizens to support them "in their efforts for continuing education for themselves and other professional health services."

The mayor pointed out that the technicians "strive to maintain the highest standards of professional care" and "they must hold in confidence with respect to patients' beliefs, all personal matters."

He added that they "respect and protect the patients' legal and moral right to good patient care." The operating room technicians "strive to maintain a high degree of efficiency through continuing education," Cox added.

Trapped In Car Upside-Down

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte woman was trapped in her upside-down station wagon for 10 minutes in two feet of water in the Catawba River Wednesday.

Police said the vehicle had hit the median on Wilkinson Boulevard, the Charlotte-Gastonia road and went down a bank at 6 a.m.

The Wilkinson Boulevard Rescue Squad freed the woman, Helen Crosby, 41. She was not seriously hurt.

ACTION OVER THE MUDFLAT — A second World War I vintage model fighter plane, top, has joined the original double-winger, right, on the mudflats along Highway Interstate 80 at Emeryville, Calif., across the bay from San Francisco. Foreign Press Ponders Carter

By The Associated Press
Egypt's leading newspaper called on the Arab world to forge a united front and find new ways to use oil as a political weapon in order to cope with President-elect Jimmy Carter's pro-Israel policy in the Middle East.

Elsewhere, Carter was viewed as a welcome fresh face or a puzzling unknown by editorialists trying to predict what direction the new American leadership would take.

Cairo's semiofficial Al Ahran predicted that the new administration would give Israel unlimited support. It urged the Arab states to counter this with a unified political, economic and military policy and new tactics to use Arab oil for political leverage.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said President Ford's ban on mention of the detente policy during his campaign was a factor in his defeat because it "caused doubts he would follow a course in international relations which the rank and file of Americans wanted."

But a Chinese Communist newspaper in Hong Kong, Wen Wei Po, said Carter's victory was a protest against detente because the policy encouraged Soviet military expansion. It said Americans "are afraid the Soviet Union could become the world's most powerful military country and the United States could be relegated to second place."

Other foreign newspaper comment:
Avvenire of Milan, Italy, a leading Roman Catholic daily — "Carter's victory is the defeat of a party — the Republican — which has given America the presents of the Watergate scandal, political espionage, the persecution against those who battle against the Vietnam war and American commitments in Asia."
Nhan Dan, Vietnamese government newspaper — "Taking into consideration the many difficult and unsolvable problems that face the U.S., nowadays, it is doubtful that a new man in the White House can effectively solve such problems."

Nairobi, Kenya, Daily Nation, East Africa's largest newspaper — "Carter must not mistake his victory over a lame-duck and highly vulnerable president as a mandate for drastic change. He would be wise to temper his victory with caution."
British Financial Times, the voice of London's financial community — "The world had become so accustomed to living not so much with President Ford as with Dr. Henry Kissinger that it is not going to be easy immediately to adjust. He was a man to whom people turned."

London Daily Express Daily Express, conservative — "Britons and America's other allies will find in Jimmy Carter one of the best and most powerful friends that they have ever had."
Times of London, independent — "If nobody knows who Jimmy Carter really is, it means that Jimmy Carter is himself still free to decide."

Skyjacker Gave Up In Austria

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Polish citizen brandishing a hand grenade hijacked a Polish airliner today on a flight from Copenhagen to Warsaw and forced the plane to land in Vienna, officials said.

The lone hijacker, who was being deported from Denmark to Poland, then surrendered to Austrian authorities.

The incident marked the second hijacking within a week involving an airliner of one of the Eastern European Communist nations. A Czechoslovak plane was hijacked to Munich last Friday.

Vienna police identified the Pole taken into custody as Jaroslav Karosinski, 20. They said he appeared nervous and exhausted as he surrendered at Vienna's Schwechat Airport.

The LOT Air Co. plane, a Soviet-made TU134, was expected to proceed to Warsaw with the rest of its passengers as soon as police finished questioning the passengers and crew about details of the hijacking.

Austrian officials said the plane had a seating capacity of 72 to 76 passengers. The actual number of passengers aboard the airliner at the time of the hijacking was not immediately known.

A spokesman for the Polish airline in Warsaw refused to make any comment about the hijacking.

In Denmark, the director of Copenhagen's Kastrup Airport, Poul Andersen, said the hijacker was a Polish citizen being deported from Denmark to Poland. He said the man had been escorted to the airliner by two Danish police officers who checked him for arms before he entered the flight departure lounge.

Anderson said that shortly after the plane took off from Copenhagen, the man produced what appeared to be a hand grenade and demanded that the airliner be flown to Vienna.

Fort Benning, in Georgia, is the world's largest infantry center, where nearly one million men were trained in World War II.

City Counts 3 Accidents

An estimated $5,525 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 2:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Third and Reade Streets involving a car driven by Belinda Ellen Temple of 306 South Summit St. and a truck driven by Richard Lee House of 409 Able St.

Investigators, who charged House with failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage at $2,000 to the House truck and $1,800 to the Temple car.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 7:30 a.m. mishap involving a car driven by Timothy Martin of Robersonville and a truck driven by Snowed Garland Skinner of 119 West 12th St.

The Greene Street and Mumford Road mishap resulted in an estimated $800 damage to the Martin car and $500 damage to the Skinner truck.

Vehicles driven by Carl Edward Peoples of 64 Clubway Dr. and Ellen Cox Bradford of 301 Oak St. collided about 12:20 p.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Greene Streets.

Officers estimated damage at $175 to the Peoples car and $250 to the Bradford auto.

They Enjoy 'Impossible Job'

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — They all say it is an impossible job, a frustrating job, a back-breaking job. But once they get it, they don't want to give it up.

The job is secretary-general of the United Nations, and all the men who have held it seemed to have had a love-hate relationship with it.

The first, Trygve Lie of Norway, who was elected on Feb. 1, 1946, called the post "the most impossible job on this earth."

Yet he accepted a three-year extension of his five-year term and would have served beyond his seven years in office had not the Soviet Union in effect forced him out because of his stand against the North Korean invasion of South Korea.

The second, DXAG Hammarskjold of Sweden, who was elected in April, 1952, wrote in his deeply religious private diary the day he was elected secretary-general:

"He who has surrendered himself to it knows that the way ends on the cross."

Hammarskjold, too, accepted a second five-year term and served 8½ years in all before he was killed in a plane crash on a peace mission in Africa.

His immediate successor, U Thant of Burma, spoke of the "heavy responsibilities" of the office. Still he served two terms totaling 10 years before he retired because of illness.

The fourth and current secretary-general, Kurt Waldheim of Austria, has called the job "the most strenuous I ever had" and sometimes the "most frustrating."

But now Waldheim says he would "regard it as a privilege and an honor" if he were reelected to a second, five-year term to follow the one he will finish Dec. 31.

It looks as if he will be reelected.

The secretary-general gets what it takes to live well — roughly $92,000 a year in salary and expenses and the use of a limousine and the use of a $1 million Manhattan town house.

But he scarcely has time to take advantage of the job benefits. He is too busy with the problems of a far-flung bureaucracy of upward of 10,000 international civil servants, and those of many of 145 member nations as well.

"There is no family life anymore," Waldheim said in an interview in his 38th floor office after some years on the job. "I have to be here from early in the morning until late in the evening ..."

"But it's part of the job. I used to say when my wife was complaining about no family life, I said, 'You can't have the cake and eat it. You must accept the challenge.' And I always accepted the challenge. Otherwise I wouldn't have accepted this job."

"And this job is a job which only somebody can really do who is ready to accept the challenge, because it's sometimes a most frustrating job — most frustrating. You want to do so much more ..."

Crime Prevention Program Is Okayed For Further Funding

The crime prevention program in Pitt County recently was approved for second year funding by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration according to the Mid-East Commission.

The cost of the program totals $10,590 and will continue through September 30, 1977.

In an attempt to deal with the problem of tension between law enforcement personnel and the general public, the Pitt County Unit plans to continue the initiation of educational programs involving both police officers and citizens.

Since the implementation of the crime prevention program in 1975, sheriff's department statistics show that more crimes are being reported as public involvement grows and all county businesses have some form of security arrangements.

Crime prevention officer Gordon Edwards has presented a series of lectures to civic clubs and high school audiences concerning crime prevention and rape prevention.

This year, program activities will focus on working with the media to publicize crime prevention measures; printing and distribution of informational material; establishment of programs promoting the use of effective crime prevention measures; the conducting of security inspections in places of business and follow-up surveys; continued use of security hardware displays and information centers and the maintenance of a record system agencies in implementing their own crime prevention programs; and continuing and requests for citizen support in preventing crime through such programs as the "anonymous crime tips" program.

Referenda In N.C. Decided

By The Associated Press
Tuesday's voting for national and state offices held the spotlight, but there were other issues in North Carolina, as well.

Voters in High Point approved long-controversial ABC liquor stores and Charlotte voters rejected proposed general obligation water and sewer bonds.

The High Point vote was almost 3-2 in favor of the stores. The tally showed 9,844 in favor of bringing the stores to the city and 6,567 against.

Mayor Roy B. Culler, who had been opposed to the stores, said the city council "should move as fast as is reasonably possible to set up a board and let the board take over from there."

For years High Point residents wishing to purchase hard liquor had only to travel a few feet from the eastern city lim-its to the town of Jamestown, which operates a store.

Charlotte voters defeated $16.5 million in proposed bonds intended to extend water and sewer lines to nine areas proposed for annexation of some 29,000 persons to the city of 306,000.

The unofficial count was 31,065 against the sewer bonds to 28,960 for. The water bonds were defeated 30,846 to 28,308.

Most city council members had said that annexation was necessary to avoid a property tax increase in the next two years.

Some council members were considering the possibility of submitting the bond issues to the voters a second time or financing the water and sewer lines through revenue bonds, which officials said, would cost an additional $1.6 million in interest payments over 20 years.

Price Average Slightly Up On Market

Price average on the Greenville Tobacco Market edged up slightly on Wednesday as the market moved toward the end of the season.

J.N. Bryan, local sales supervisor, reported that the market sold 775,125 pounds for $851,582, an average of $109.86 per hundred pounds.

Stabilization receipts yesterday amounted to 26.80 per cent of total sales.

Offerings were the same as on the previous sales day with primings, lugs and non descript tobacco showing up in large volume on warehouse floors.

Season totals here now stand at 53,411,055 pounds sold for $61,518,259, an average of $115.18 per hundred pounds.

Stadium Advance Gifts Top Half-Million Mark

Advanced gifts and pledges for expansion of East Carolina University's Ficklen Stadium have reached more than half a million dollars, the stadium drive steering committee reported today.

Officials for the stadium expansion fund drive said they were encouraged by initial response and expressed optimism about success of the multi-million dollar campaign to increase seating capacity of the stadium here to more than 35,000 seats. R. L. (Roddy) Jones of Raleigh is general chairman, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECU chancellor, is co-chairman, and Dr. Ray Minges of Greenville is local area chairman.

Additional appointments are scheduled and announcements will be made shortly of chairmen of the drive on a state, national and local area scale.

Jones and Jenkins praised Minges' efforts in the initial, advance giving phase of the drive. "Dr. Minges, his workers and staff are working tirelessly and with great and contagious enthusiasm," Jones and Jenkins said.

"Excitement and tremendous enthusiasm about this project is catching," Jenkins said. "With $542,000 already pledged, it is very encouraging."

Stadium drive officials said the general campaign is scheduled to begin Nov. 15.

Already this season, East Carolina University's football team has played before three record or near-record sell-out crowds—at Raleigh, at Chapel Hill and last weekend before a standing room, overflow crowd of nearly 21,000 at Ficklen on the ECU campus.

In addition to the football program, officials stressed benefits for all of Eastern North Carolina to be derived from events and activities which require and demand a larger, commodious stadium facility.

Opening lead: Nine of ♣.

Winning declarer play often consists of no more than combining various lines of play to give yourself the best chance. As a corollary, the defenders can sometimes prevail by simply removing one of declarer's options. This hand illustrates the point.

North-South bid simply to six trump. Enroute North checked to find out whether his partner held a four-card heart suit, but when South responded to the inquiry by bidding spades, North gave up on a suit contract and made the value bid of a small slam in no trump.

Declarer can count 11 tricks after knocking out the ace of spades. His twelfth trick can come either from dropping the ten of spades in three rounds, setting up the nine, or from a successful heart finesse.

Correct technique is to win the first club in dummy and lead a spade to the king. If this holds, declarer should reenter dummy and lead another spade to his queen.

West can make declarer's task easy by winning either the first or second spade. Declarer will then be able to cash his third high spade in an effort to drop the ten and, if this doesn't succeed, he can fall back on the heart finesse.

But see what happens if West refuses to win either spade. If declarer could see all the cards, he would make his contract by continuing with the jack of spades to pin the ten and establish the nine as the fulfilling trick. However, this runs the risk of losing two spade tricks to the ace and ten. Declarer might decide to abandon the spade suit and stake his hopes on the heart finesse. If he does that, the defenders can score the queen of hearts and ace of spades.

By a simple holdup play, West has created for declarer a losing option which would not have existed had he gobbled a spade trick with the ace at an early opportunity.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The idea of an expanded evening news show is dead at NBC and ABC. But it still is kicking around at CBS, a top corporate official at that emporium says.

"We're not printing banners or campaigning, but it's still alive," says John A. Schneider, head of the CBS Broadcast Group, which runs the company's radio and TV networks and the CBS-owned stations.

He spoke by phone from New York this week shortly after ABC became the second of the three television networks to shelve the idea of lengthening its half-hour nightly newscasts to 45 minutes or an hour.

NBC shelved its plans on Oct. 21. NBC and ABC both cited near-unanimous affiliate opposition as the main reason for their actions.

Schneider, in saying the idea of a longer "CBS Evening News" still was under consideration, said no decision has been made on whether CBS actually will or won't adopt a longer format.

He said any decision depends on a number of things, and "what I'm doing is keeping my own counsel because with the other two (networks) already having committed themselves to something, it leaves me with all kinds of competitive latitude here."

Industry observers say most affiliates oppose longer nightly network news shows because such take time they want for their own local news and entertainment programs which can earn them great local advertising revenue.

Schneider says that view is correct, but too simplistic.

The question of advertising revenue, he says, could be handled simply by offering the affiliates all the commercial time available in the expanded part of a nightly network news show.

But to do a 45-minute or hour-long network news show, he added, one has to consider the Federal Communications Commission's prime-time access rule limiting what networks can air in the early evening.

For example, he said, the rule says "the only way you can go beyond 7 p.m. (EST) for a news broadcast is if it's preceded by a one-hour local newscast."

"Obviously, you aren't going to go 45 minutes or an hour (with a network news show) starting at 7 p.m."

You'd have to start earlier, which stations wouldn't like, he added, because it'd force a contraction in length or a shift in starting time of a local news show viewers expect at a certain hour each night.

CBS in September 1963 became the first network to expand its nightly news from 15 to 30 minutes. NBC did it later that month, with ABC delaying expansion until January 1967.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Mild weather is due today for the West and cold weather is expected in the Northeast. Most of the country will be cool with clear skies. Snow flurries, however are likely in the Great Lakes and parts of the Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
It was mostly sunny and comfortable in North Carolina today, but colder weather is on the way.

Highs were in the 60s, except the 50s in the mountains. However, a cold air mass will move through the state late today. Temperatures will get down into the 20s in the mountains tonight, and there is a chance of snow flurries in the northwest mountains. The overnight lows will be in the 30s elsewhere.

It will be about 5 to 10 degrees cooler Friday. Highs will be mostly in the 40s in the mountains and the 50s elsewhere, except for some 60s on the coast. Wednesday was pleasant — on the cool side but with plenty of sunshine. The highest temperature was 66 degrees at Wilmington.

No rain has been reported over the state since early Wednesday morning. And none is expected at least before Saturday.

Temperatures early this morning were several degrees higher than Wednesday morning. At 5 a.m., readings ranged from around 30 degrees in the mountains to near 40 along the coast.

Winds were generally from the northwest at 5 to 15 miles an hour.

The weather map showed a cold front off the Carolina coast this morning. It was followed by a strong ridge of high pressure with its center over North Dakota. This ridge will move into North Carolina, following the cold front, and will dominate the weather for the next few days.

Rainbow Girls Status In Doubt

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Twelve-year-old Michelle Palmer has been installed as a member of the International Order of the Rainbow. But whether she and 5,000 other Iowa members still belong to the national service organization remains in doubt.

Michelle's admission caused national officials to expel Iowa's 136 Rainbow assemblies because of an "unwritten law" banning blacks, according to one state official of the Mason-affiliated group. Michelle's mother is black, her father white.

But national officials later said the assemblies were only suspended, not expelled. They blamed the situation on the Indiana chapter's failure to follow correct procedure in nominating Michelle for membership.

Dwaine Palmer said his daughter was installed "without incident" at a ceremony Wednesday. Reporters and photographers were barred from the installation at the Indianola Masonic Lodge, and police were called to keep them off the Masons' property.

Herbert Grout, supreme inspector of the Rainbow Girls in McAlester, Okla., was unavailable for comment on the installation.

"The kids would have gotten along great if the damn adults didn't get involved," said Palmer. "It's something the girls have never experienced before — the discrimination — and they're going to remember this."

"When she (Michelle) came to me and said she wanted to join, she was concerned about the dues and buying a white dress the girls wear."

Michelle said she was upset at the prospect of Iowa losing its charter.

"Pretty soon there'll be another state losing its charter," she said, "then another and another, and before long, the Rainbow will be all gone."

Women Run The Station

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Customers who drive into Ann Smith's service station are forever addressing her and her daughter as "Hey, buddy."

Mrs. Smith, 46, is the mechanic at the station she manages here. Her daughter, Donna, 27, is the attendant. Both wear uniforms that customers are used to associating with men.

When a male customer recently wheeled into the gas station and yelled, "Hey, buddy, fill it up," Donna said she replied, "How would you like it if I called you ma'am?"

The mother-daughter team has been working at the service station for the last two years.

"I had been helping this one service station manager and liked it," said Mrs. Smith, a widow. "And one day this supervisor said he liked my work and could send me to a school for company management. At first I just laughed at it, but then I got to thinking."

She said that once her customers get over the shock of an all-woman service station, they come back "because we do good work."

Cocaine For The Judge

BOSTON (AP) — A New York doctor has agreed to allow a Massachusetts judge to sample cocaine in a "controlled hospital setting," to help the judge decide a case of cocaine possession.

Roxbury District Court Judge Elwood S. McKenney will go to New York for the experiment with Prof. Richard Resnick at New York Medical College as soon as McKenney's schedule permits, defense attorney James Lawson said Wednesday.

"The judge will just snort coke and see how it feels," Lawson said. Although Resnick normally runs a number of physical and visual tests on those using cocaine, Lawson said the judge has not requested any detailed testing.

McKenney had said Monday he would not rule on the case until he had tried the drug. Lawyers for defendant Richard Miller asked that the charges be dismissed on grounds that cocaine is a "harmless, nonaddictive, recreational drug."

Lawson said Resnick is one of only five researchers in the country with the necessary Federal Drug Administration license to legally administer the drug to McKenney. McKenney is also expected to report to District Court Chief Justice Samuel E. Zol on the legality of the proposal.

Zoll expressed concern about the experiment's "impact on the entire district court system."

Attitude A Detriment In Treating Depression

About 1,500,000 Americans are currently being treated for mental depression, according to the Pitt County Mental Health Association. As many as 8 to 15 million more are estimated to need treatment but are not getting it.

"The reason so many depressed people remain untreated," said Carl Blackwood, president of the Association, "is the widespread lack of knowledge about the condition. People view depression as a sign of weakness, as a failure to meet the demands of society. The truth is that depression is a condition, a condition that can be effectively treated so that its victims can return to active, productive life."

To support this statement,

Blackwood refers to a list of prominent figures in history who suffered from depression. Among the familiar names on the list are George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Winston Churchill. Important scientists and productive writers and artists are included as well. "Nobody would call these people weak or incapable of coping with daily life," he said, "but the truth is that at times they were so miserable that they simply couldn't function adequately. Lincoln, in particular, was so depressed that his friends feared he would commit suicide."

That fate awaits many depressed people. The Association reports that many of the 35,000 people who take their own lives in the United States each year are depressed. The suicide rate among depressed people is greater than that of the total population.

The Mental Health Association has found that "people are beginning to realize that depression is not something to be ashamed of and more depressed people are accepting treatment." Blackwood concluded, "If this trend continues we can bring an end to the incalculable misery this condition has caused throughout history."

Give Results Of Research

Three faculty members of the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry presented results of their research at the southeastern regional American Chemical Society meeting in Gatlinburg, Tenn. Oct. 27-29.

They were Drs. Myron Caspar, Edgar Heckel and Chi-yu Li. All research was done at East Carolina University.

Dr. Heckel's research was partially supported by a grant from the ECU Research Council, and Dr. Li's research, done in collaboration with former ECU graduate student Jesse E. Gillikin of Morehead City, was partly funded by the N.C. Science and Technology Committee.

The Li-Gillikin research was done in connection with Gillikin's work requirements for the MS degree in chemistry, which he completed in August. At present he is enrolled in a Ph.D. program at N.C. State University.

U.S. Waste 'Astonishes'

AMES, Iowa (AP) — A university student from Ethiopia took one look at the Ames garbage dump and shook his head. "In my country," he said, "we would have eaten that pile. Or used it."

Kenneth Moravetz, chief operator at the Ames Solid Waste Recovery plant near Iowa State University, said many foreign students who work parttime at the plant are astonished by American wastefulness.

Recent additions to the pile included 50 pairs of women's shoes; enough new lumber to build a garage; a truckload of fabric softener; and an assortment of refrigerators in working condition.

Moravetz said a local discount store left the women's summer shoes — still carrying price tags — for the garbage-man because they were unsold when the fall season arrived.

Superintendent Jerry Temple said he figures the plant handles 6½ pounds of garbage daily for every person in the service area.

Plan Removing Old Structures

WILLIAMSTON — A motion to advertise for bids to remove two obsolete school structures in Martin County was approved at the November meeting of the Martin County School Board on Monday. The two buildings being advertised for removal are the old Everetts School and a cinder block building at East End School in Robersonville.

In connection with the East End School, the board agreed to ask County Commissioners again to consider acquisition of additional property. A request was also studied by the board, one for physical improvement work needed at Robersonville Junior High and East End Schools.

The board was informed that it would receive preliminary plans in December for development of an athletic facility at Roanoke High School.

Lindsay Whichard, of the office of Director of Personnel, gave a report on testing that was conducted earlier in the county schools. The report is to be released to the public at an early date.

Three school board members were reminded that they will soon be taking oath of office for a new four year term. The three are Macon Holliday, Zack Gurkin and James Wynn.

Peanut Biz Sees Slump

RALEIGH (AP) — Jess Broyles works for peanuts and the birds love it.

But Broyles' peanut vending business at the state capitol, where pigeons flourish and perch on him, has been in a slump since last winter when peanut farmer Jimmy Carter began seriously running for president.

"I'm not saying there's any connection, but there could be," said Broyles, who has sold roasted peanuts on Capitol Square for 20 years. "All I know is business started falling off the same time people first started hearing of Jimmy Carter."

Things got especially bad last month when a stranger set up a "Carter's Peanuts" sign next to Broyles and began selling peanuts. He cut into Broyles' share of the shrunken market, Broyles said, until local Carter workers shut down the man's stand.

Since then, Broyles' only other problem has been the tire-some customer wisecracks about Carter and peanuts.

Customers ask two questions, "Are these Carter peanuts?" and "Is Carter helping the peanut business?"

Broyles responds with all the evasiveness of a seasoned politician. He answers the first question with a yes for Democrats and a no for Republicans, and answers the second by saying, "It's too early to tell."

The 1976-77 officers are as follows: President, Danny Dupree; Vice President, Chip Little; Secretary, Lesley McPherson; Treasurer, Martha Ann Ferrell; Reporter, Gordy Walker; Sentinel, Ishan Sehgal.

The new officers were installed by the 1975-76 Career Club officers now attending Aycock Junior High School.
