According To Kissinger Statement

'No Possibility' Of Arms For White Rhodesia

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT
PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in Jimmy Carter's presence Saturday there is "no possibility" the United States would sell arms to the white Rhodesian regime if its talks on black majority rule break down.

Kissinger contradicted the statement of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, who said Friday that Kissinger had assured him the white Rhodesians would get Western arms supplies if the majority rule negotiations in Geneva broke down through the fault of the black nationalists.

Kissinger made his comments to UPI as he walked with Carter along the main street of Plains, the President-elect's hometown. Kissinger had spent the day day briefing Carter on foreign policy issues.

Asked whether Smith's comment on the arms supply issue were correct, Kissinger said: "No."

Asked again if the United States would sell arms to Rhodesia in the event the talks break down, he said: "There is no possibility of it."

In a televised interview Friday, Smith conceded he had no "hard and fast" promise from Kissinger on the matter.

"But it is a fact that in the talks I had with Dr. Kissinger in Pretoria (South Africa) ... he did give me an assurance that if we entered into this agreement and it collapsed because of what the black Rhodesians had done as opposed to myself and my government, that he was absolutely convinced that we would get a great deal more sympathy from the free world and also tangible assistance."

Asked whether Kissinger led him to believe such assistance would include military supplies, Smith said, "yes."

The Smith-Kissinger conference took place Sept. 19 in the South African capital.

Kissinger at that time persuaded Smith to accept the principle of black majority rule within two years for Rhodesia, and set up the Geneva negotiations between black nationalists and white government representatives that have since bogged down in disagreements between rival black groups.

In Carter-Kissinger Talks

The Subject Was Foreign Policy

By DON PHILLIPS
PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter met Saturday with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger — calling Kissinger, a prime target of his campaign attacks, "my good friend" — and each pledged full cooperation to assure a smooth presidential transition.

After a private review of foreign policy issues the President-elect, Kissinger and Vice President-elect Walter Mondale talked briefly to reporters on the patio of Carter's one story home. They allowed no questions.

"We want to be sure there's a clear understanding that I won't be President until Jan. 20," Carter said, "but I'd like to be prepared as well as possible at that time to assume the responsibilities of the President."

"He (Kissinger) has given me a brief explanation of the present circumstances in various parts of the world. It's been a very helpful thing to me and I want to stress again my thanks to President Ford for the fine cooperation as expressed by the visit on the part of Secretary Kissinger."

The President-elect said it was "good to be back with my good friend Secretary Kissinger," whom he first met at a 1974 meeting of the Organization of American States.

During his presidential campaign Carter had repeatedly attacked Kissinger's conduct of foreign policy, calling some of his policies "amoral" and referring to him as a "Lone Ranger" who ran foreign affairs in high-handed secrecy.

Kissinger stood quietly until Carter completed his remarks

Saturday, then thanked the President-elect for "the very courteous reception" and said it had been "a very good talk."

Today, Carter flies to Washington to take personal command of the transition process in private meetings with President Ford, cabinet members and congressional leaders.

He is scheduled to confer with Ford for one hour Monday afternoon in the White House, interrupting a day-long series of meetings with major cabinet officers for that session.

Suit Against Greenville, City School Board, Dismissed

City Manager J.E. Caldwell announced today that the City had received a copy of an Order dated November 13, 1976 entered by the Chief Federal District Court Judge John D. Larkins, Jr., dismissing a suit which had been brought by D.D. Garrett, President of Pitt County Branch for the Advancement of Color People, and others against the City of Greenville and the Greenville Board of Education.

The suit had been filed in June, 1976. Plaintiffs had asked that the Third Street Elementary School be required to remain open. In the suit the plaintiffs alleged that the closing of the school had been racially motivated.

Judge Larkins, in his order, pointed out that one group of children have no greater right to assignment to a neighborhood school than another group: "Since the white citizens of Greenville, do not possess a right to enroll their children in neighborhood schools, the defendants have not discriminated against the plaintiffs by the closing of the Third Street Elementary School."

The court further observed that an affidavit had been submitted indicating that the Greenville Board of Education resolved to spend the necessary money to renovate the Third Street Elementary School and to reopen the school by the 1977-78 school year.

"This resolution (reopening the School in 1977-78) justifies this Court's opinion that local School Board meetings, not the Federal Courts, provide the proper forum for the disposition of problems of this nature," Judge Larkins noted.

City Manager Caldwell noted that the City of Greenville has no authority over the Greenville City Board of Education.

Impressive Beginnings

Pitt County native writers are making impressive debuts on the American literary scene in this bicentennial autumn of 1976.

For two successive weeks, first novels by Pitt natives have been favorably reviewed in the prestigious Sunday edition of "The New York Times Book Review."

Last Sunday, November 14, Home Before Dark, a novel by Sue Ellen Bridgers (the former Sue Ellen Hunsucker of Winterville,) received a review in the Times' book section. Her novel was published by Alfred A. Knopf publishers of New York.

In today's "The New York Times Book Review," a review of Tom Forbes' Quincy's Harvest, appears. Forbes is a native of rural Pitt County. His book was published by J.B. Lippincott Company of Philadelphia and New York.

Suggest Wait On Oil Price Hike

KUWAIT (UPI) — The United Arab Emirates Saturday suggested a decision on an oil price hike by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries should wait until the inauguration of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Maneh Saeed Al Oteiba came out in favor of a postponement in an interview in the Kuwaiti newspaper Al Seyassah. OPEC has scheduled a meeting in Qatar Dec. 15 to discuss the price issue.

"I believe it would be unadvisable for the OPEC States to surprise Carter by a pricing decision which will oblige him to retaliate and thus create an atmosphere of wide confrontation between the producers and the consumers," said Oteiba.

The UAE's stated position is that oil prices should go up by no more than 10 per cent.

The United States has warned that an increase in the price of oil at this time would badly hurt the economy of the industrialized world by encouraging inflation and slowing down economic recovery.

Al Seyassah said Oteiba made his suggestion to its reporter in Abu Dhabi after receiving a message from U.S. Ambassador Francois Dickman concerning the oil price question.

In another newspaper interview, Kuwait's Oil Minister Abdel Muttaleb Al Kazemi said there was no question of postponing the December OPEC meeting more than a few days at most.

"The OPEC Conference will be held in December and there will be no long postponement," Kazemi told the newspaper Al Anba.

"The OPEC states will take the appropriate decision without being affected by anybody from outside."

OPEC officials in Paris have said the price-fixing conference might be delayed a few days to await a progress report from the 27-nation conference on International Economic Cooperation, also scheduled for Dec. 15.

"There is no reason to postpone the OPEC conference until February or March 1977," Kazemi said.

Oteiba said he was not taking seriously what he called Carter's election campaign statements containing threats of an economic war against Arab states.

"Carter is making a new beginning and we should not complicate matters for him by forcing a price increase which will oblige him to react," he said.

Miss Hearst Heavily Protected

By DONALD B. THACKREY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst was believed hidden away Saturday in a kind of private prison—a family apartment on top of Nob Hill.

It was hardly likely the newspaper heiress would emerge for a breath of fresh air, a bit of Christmas shopping, a trip to a restaurant or a date with some boy friend.

With one of the world's best known faces, there was nowhere the onetime Symbionese Liberation Army activist could go and escape notice and probable commotion.

Guards armed with shotguns surrounded her when she was whisked to the six-story apartment building Friday, and armed guards peered out of the lobby at a continuing press vigil outside.

Miss Hearst, 22, was smiling broadly after her release. With chestnut hair tumbling to her shoulders, an impeccable pants suit, lipstick and nail polish, she looked lively and feminine.

For Miss Hearst freedom was the run of the spacious apartment, a view of the San Francisco she cannot realistically visit and safety from the physical danger she felt existed for her in federal prison.

The asserted danger resulted from testimony, and promises of testimony, she has given against numerous of her consorts during the 18 months after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping and her arrest Sept. 18, 1975.

In Oakland across San Francisco Bay, her former traveling companions, William and Emily Harris, were in jail awaiting trial for Miss Hearst's abduction.

Previously they were convicted of the Los Angeles sport store shooting spree in which Miss Hearst also faces 11 counts of kidnap, robbery and armed assault. Miss Hearst is scheduled to go on trial on the charges in state court Jan. 10 in Los Angeles. The Harrises already have been sentenced to 11 years to life.

Bail of $500,000 was posted Thursday in Los Angeles, and she was freed Friday after her father, Randolph Hearst, satisfied a $1 million bail requirement, pending appeal, on her federal conviction for bank robbery.

In Indianapolis, Harris' mother, Mrs. Betty Bunnell, said after the release she believes the country has one standard of justice for the wealthy and another for ordinary folks.

"I wonder how many people who are convicted of a crime get out of jail while they're appealing," she said.

However, U.S. Attorney James L. Browning, said the bail decision of U.S. Dist. Judge William H. Orrick was "well within the judge's discretion."

Study Rebuffs Myth About Favored Treatment Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though the North has suffered recent economic problems, the South has been in worse shape historically and still is not as well off as the North, a government-sponsored study has concluded.

In fact, the study found that of all the industrial jobs lost in the North in a four-year period, 50 per cent were because the company went out of business and only 1.5 per cent were because the industry moved to the South.

The U.S. Economic Development Administration (EDA) study was titled, "A myth in the Making: The Southern Economic Challenge and Northern Economic Decline." It was conducted by C.L. Jusenius of Ohio State University and L.C. Ledebur of Denison University in Granville, Ohio.

Another growing belief that was shot down by the study was that the South was closing the earnings gap with the North. Noting that the gap has closed a little, the report says the South is still riddled with poverty and other problems far beyond what is facing the North.

In recent years, magazines and influential newspapers have reported a growing movement of people and industry to the South and politicians from the North complain that the region is getting more than its share of federal funds, the report said, concluding that there is no evidence to support such claims.

Such reporting "is unfortunate. It has created misleading impressions about the two geographic areas' comparative levels of development and economic distress. The statements and articles imply policy imperatives that may be erroneous, harmful to many constituents of the population who are in poverty, and counterproductive to long-run balanced regional growth," the report said. Headed by Rep. Michael J. Harrington, D-Mass., a coalition of Northern congressmen is claims the North's problems are partly because the South has been favored in government aid. The group called the Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition, claims 219 members of the U.S. House have joined its ranks.

Looked at in the study were the old Confederacy states west to the Texas and Arkansas borders compared to a "northern tier" of states composed of Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

"An often explicit premise or goal of public policy in the United States has been to attempt to redress the imbalance in the distribution of economic welfare among the regions," the report said. "It is evident that, by almost any measure used, the northern industrial tier possesses a significant lead in the level of economic development," it said.

David E. Gillespie, director of governmental affairs for the Southern Growth Policies Board, was elated by the report. "It's the first real counter-blow to the Northeast claim that its problems can be traced in great part to federal discrimination favoring the South in taming-spending," he said.

Here are highlights of the report: —POPULATION. Excluding Florida's growth, made up largely of retirees, the South grew at a 7 per cent rate over

3 Dead In Fire Were Shot First

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Gwinnett County police reported Saturday that three of the four persons found dead in a house fire in Duluth Friday had been shot to death.

Detective Sgt. Tom Garmon said a nationwide bulletin had been issued for a man identified as Jerome Howell, 26, of Duluth on the basis of an arrest warrant charging him with four counts of murder.

Garmon said an autopsy by the county medical examiner, Dr. Donald Dove, showed that Yvonne Denise Burse, 19; her brother, Stacey Burse, 11, and her niece, Marie Burse, 4, had died of bullet wounds.

The fourth victim, Timothy Burse, 2-year-old son of the Burse woman, died as a result of the fire, Garmon reported. The officer said Howell was Timothy's father.

The detective said the Gwinnett County fire department was continuing an arson investigation.

Other law enforcement agencies were advised by Gwinnett authorities that Howell is armed and considered dangerous. He was reported last seen driving a 1964 or 1965 white Chevrolet.

Gilmore, Fiancee Attempted Suicide

By KEN CONNAUGHTON

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Condemned killer Gary Gilmore staged a hunger strike in his prison hospital cell for the second day Saturday in an effort to win the privilege of phoning his fiancée, Nicole Barrett.

Both Gilmore and Miss Barrett have unsuccessfully attempted suicide, and Gilmore told his guards, "I'm going to try it again. There's some time you're going to let your guard down, or someone will turn away."

While Gilmore refused food, his attorney, Dennis Boaz said he would seek an order from State Supreme Court Monday permitting the condemned man to talk with his fiancée by phone.

Gilmore overdosed Tuesday on drugs, and was found unconscious by guards who came to tell him country singer

Johnny Cash had called to urge the condemned man to "fight for his life."

At the same time, Miss Barrett, 20, took a massive dose of sleeping pills in her apartment 25 miles from the prison, lay down on a couch with a photograph of her lover clutched to her bosom, and waited to die.

She was found by a neighbor, and after intensive hospital care was committed to the Utah State Mental Hospital Friday at the request of her mother, Mrs. Kathryn Baker.

The mother told a judge to commit the daughter because the girl still wants to honor her suicide pact with Gilmore. Mrs. Baker said her daughter, who spent two days in a coma, was "sad, sad to be alive."

After his return to prison from the hospital where he was treated, Gilmore sent a single long-stem yellow rose to his fiancée via his attorney. Another was sent Saturday to the mental hospital.

Gilmore was convicted of murdering a Provo, Utah, motel clerk during a July robbery, and has refused to appeal his death sentence.

He was scheduled to die by firing squad Nov. 15—a date he succeeded in convincing the Supreme Court to let him keep.

But Gov. Calvin Rampton stayed the execution until the pardons board could review the case. The governor, under Utah law, has no power to commute or indefinitely stay executions.

Gilmore was held in the prison hospital under 24-hour suicide watch, and kept in a special cell of two eight-by-eight-foot rooms separated by an open doorway.

Gilmore sleeps in the rear room, a prison guard sits in the front and another guard remains just outside. Every hour Gilmore is checked physically, and a log entry is made on his condition. The cost of these precautions is $2,600 a week.

Boaz, a San Francisco attorney allowed by the Utah Supreme Court to represent Gilmore although he is not a member of the Utah bar, said he was unconcerned about attempts by local lawyers to force him off the case.

Thomas Jones, an attorney appointed by the state to represent Gilmore after the killer fired his former court-appointed lawyers for filing an appeal, asked the high court Friday to "reconsider" its approval of Boaz as co-counsel.

Boaz said it was up to Gilmore, not the Supreme Court, to fire him. "Gary knows all he has to do is say the word and I'm gone."

The high court reviewed Jones' request Friday and put off any action.

No Cause For Alarm

SEATTLE (AP) — As a huge cloud of nuclear debris passed over the United States this weekend, federal environmental agencies urged the public not to be alarmed about possible contamination.

The cloud, which is the size of California — 160,000 square miles — but not visible, was created by a four-megaton nuclear bomb tested by the People's Republic of China last week.

A Chinese test in September, just one twentieth the size of this one, raised radiation levels in the United States.

Before End Of Ford Regime Wants Decision On Missile

By JOHN MILNE Deputy Defense Secretary
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ford administration wants to decide before leaving office whether to move a controversial new cruise missile into full-scale engineering development, defense officials said Saturday.

William Clements told UPI he set a decision date of Jan. 6, two weeks ahead of inauguration day, even before Jimmy Carter defeated President Ford. "This had nothing to do with the election," Clements said. "I set dates. I am chairman of the Defense Systems Acquisition Review Council, and in some circumstances I retain full control over such matters." Industry officials have said the Pentagon initially advised them to expect a decision Jan. 27, a week after the inauguration, but issued a new advisory with the earlier date "three or four weeks ago." A defense spokesman said several dates in January were discussed but "Jan. 6 was the only one on the schedule."

The cruise missile — a brand new type of weapon — is a major sticking point in the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which recessed Saturday in Geneva until after Carter's inauguration. SALT negotiators have been unable to make any progress during the past four years.

The DSARC mentioned by Clements is the Pentagon committee that decides on procurement and production of weapons systems. The council has asked Boeing and General Dynamics, rivals for the cruise missile contract, to prepare briefs for its Jan. 6 meeting.

Clements said that meeting will include discussion of whether to build a single Navy-Air Force cruise missile, blending the current Navy version developed by General Dynamics and the Air Force version built by Boeing.

Clements supports the cruise missile program, while Carter has implied he might trade it away in arms control negotiations if the Soviets agree to discontinue development of their Backfire bomber.

The cruise missile is essentially a cheap, pilotless jet plane, small enough to fit into a torpedo tube or a bomb rack. It can be fired from submarines, ships, planes or land platforms and can deliver either nuclear or conventional warheads with nearly pinpoint accuracy.

"Cruise missile is one of the highest technologies we have moving into the next 25 years," Clements said. "Under no circumstances should our lead in this technology be lost."

GMC Settled With Union

DETROIT (UPI) — Four months of tense contract bargaining marred by two strikes has ended for the auto industry, but nobody is saying yet what effect the new contracts will have on car prices.

General Motors Corp. was the last of the "Big Three" to settle with the United Auto Workers union. The $5.8 billion agreement was reached Friday 12 hours after an unusual minis strike closed down 16 of GM's 119 plants in seven states.

Senators End Middle East Tour

LONDON (UPI) — Eleven U.S. senators ended a two-week tour of the Middle East Saturday urging that Iran be supplied with all the weapons it needs to protect the vital oil lifeline to the West.

"I for one believe this is in the best interest of the security of the United States and not just in the best interests of Iran," the head of the group, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said before the senators left Tehran.

One of the main purposes of the senators' tour was to study the proposed sale of nuclear reactors and know-how to Israel and Iran.

Protests Land Seizure

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Wealthy landowners cried "robbery" and promised a court battle to reclaim nearly a quarter-million acres of rich Mexican farmland that was seized and turned over to peasant farmers by the government of President Luis Echeverria. The landowners also predicted a drastic drop in production on the farms seized Friday in Sonora state, which borders Arizona in northwestern Mexico. The farms account for half the nation's wheat and much of its cattle.

Two N.C. Lifers Released

RALEIGH (AP) — Two inmates serving life sentences for murder were released from prison by the State Paroles Commission without the governor first commuting the sentence, a reversal of usual policy.

The last time an inmate was released before the governor commuted the life sentence to a fixed term was 25 years ago, said Parols Commission Chairman Jack Scism on Friday. The panel is also considering parole in the near future of eight to 10 other inmates serving life sentences, he said.

U.S. Not To Block Angola

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States decided not to block Angola's second attempt at U.N. membership to increase U.S. influence in black Africa and avoid damaging the stalled Geneva talks on Rhodesia, diplomats said. U.S. representative Albert W. Sherer Jr. told the 15-member Security Council on Friday that while the United States will not support Angola's application, it "will not stand in the way." This indicated a U.S. abstention when the council votes Monday. The United States vetoed Angola's first try at U.N. membership last June 23, citing the presence of 12,000 to 15,000 Cuban troops in Angola.

Ford Discussed New Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford met Saturday with White House aides to discuss the new federal budget before flying to New York for a weekend at Vice President Rockefeller's historic estate overlooking the Hudson River.

Ford was to take part in a private ceremony Sunday marking the designation of the 63-year-old Rockefeller house, known as "Kykuit," as a national historic landmark.

The President must, by law, submit his new budget to Congress before Jimmy Carter takes office Jan. 20. That budget, which undoubtedly will be revised by Carter, may be one subject on the agenda Monday when the president-elect and Ford meet at the White House for the first time.

Reinforcements Go To Lebanon

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —

Reinforcements have rolled into Lebanon from Syria as the Arab peacekeeping army prepared to move on the Moslem-held cities of Tripoli and Sidon, a communique from the trucekeepers said.

Control of the second- and third-largest cities in Lebanon would give the Syrian-dominated peacekeeping force control of almost the entire country and would effectively end the 19-month-old war.

A communique issued by the truce enforcement command in Beirut said an eight-hour curfew was imposed on main highways to "avoid hampering the movement of the incoming troops and armor."

It said the fresh troops were moving in from Syria on the Beirut-Damascus highway but did not report their nationality or their numbers.

"Other forces later will move out of Beirut northward toward Tripoli," the communique said. Tripoli is Lebanon's second city and the home town of Premier Rashid Karami, a Moslem.

An Arab League spokesman said the takeover of Tripoli, 60 miles north of the capital, has been tentatively scheduled for dawn Sunday along with a sweep into the port city of Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut.

Once the occupation is complete, only a stretch along the southern border with Israel would be outside the peacekeeping army's control.

The Arab League spokesman said there were no plans to send trucekeepers to the south, apparently to avoid the possibility of a confrontation with Israel.

Syrian soldiers, the dominant force in the Pan-Arab peacekeeping army with about 30,000 men in Lebanon, occupy northern and eastern Lebanon. Contingents from Saudi Arabia, Sudan and Libya totaling about 2,500 men are assisting elsewhere.

Meanwhile, Palestinian guerrillas remained locked in a power struggle in Beirut, where Syrian-backed factions were pitted against Yasir Arafat's mainstream Palestinians.

Saika, the major pro-Syrian organization, has won a three-day campaign to recapture its offices in all refugee camps on the southern edge of the capital. They were vacated by Arafat's followers after the guerrilla chieftain returned Friday from "reconciliation and coordination" talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Survivors At Dedication

SILOAM, N.C. (UPI) — Among the 500 spectators on hand Saturday for the dedication of the Atkinson-Needham Memorial Bridge were the survivors of the 1975 collapse of the old span which left four persons dead.

The $1 million structure is named in honor of those killed when the bridge collapsed on the foggy night of Feb. 23, 1975 — Hugh and Ola Atkinson, and Judy Brown Needham and her 3-year-old daughter Andrea.

"This is a sad moment," said the Atkinson's son, Edwin. "I'm glad to see it all over."

To Monitor Nuclear Fallout

RALEIGH (AP) — Monitoring stations will test whether fallout from the second nuclear test blast China set off Wednesday has reached North Carolina.

Authorities say it is not expected to reach hazardous levels. "There's always the possibility we'll be fortunate and it will pass over to the north of us," said Dayne H. Brown, head of the state's Radiation Protection Branch of the state Department of Human Resources. "We're preparing to provide data more rapidly than before. I see no reason for anyone to be concerned."

Brown said it will be late next week before fallout, if any, arrives over North Carolina. The blast had the force of four megatons — or four million tons of TNT — and was 20 times larger than China's test explosion in September, experts said.

fied Miss Hearst must live only with her parents, frequently report by phone to a probation officer and remain in California.

It was speculated the Hearst family may eventually remove her from the apartment to some remote family property elsewhere in the state.

If convicted in Los Angeles, she faces possible life sentences. She was sentenced to seven years for the bank robbery, but considering the 14 months she already has spent in jail and probable good behavior, she could be eligible for federal parole by serving another 14 months.

Holshouser-Hunt Work Together On Budget

RALEIGH (AP) — In an unusual move, Gov.-elect Jim Hunt has been allowed to participate in forming the state budget to be presented to the 1977 legislature.

Hunt and retiring Gov. Jim Holshouser Friday gave the Advisory Budget Commission an appropriations package that allows money for prison construction, additional aid to private colleges and a 6.5 per cent pay raise for state workers and teachers.

The budget also calls for increased spending for universities and community colleges and allows for the growing cost of Medicaid and welfare.

The governor-elect is normally not invited to participate in the budgetmaking process. Holshouser, a Republican, invited his Democratic replacement and the result combines the views of both.

Here, briefly, are the main items in the two-year budget that will be considered by the Advisory Budget Commission: —$101.4 million for the pay increase in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. There is no recommendation for the second year.

—$35.8 million for prison construction. Central Prison in Raleigh would get $17 million and another $17.7 million would go for new single-cell units in other parts of the state.

—$4.4 million for increased aid to private colleges, adding $100 per North Carolina student.

—$14.3 million for expanded enrollments in the state university system and $19.5 million for community college books, equipment and expansion.

—$31.5 million for rising Medicaid costs in the two years.

—$6.6 million for increase welfare costs.

—$15 million for education of the mentally retarded.

—$14.6 million for elementary school textbooks, $4.4 million for exceptional children, $2.9 million to cut the size of kindergarten classes.

—$15 million the first year and $30 million the second for a reading program in the first three grades. That was one of Hunt's major campaign promises.

Skeptical Over Nuclear Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a federal nuclear safety panel is skeptical of a government report that concludes the risks are negligible in known methods of nuclear waste disposal.

David W. Moeller, of Harvard University's School of Public Health, said Friday he was "just not convinced" that there are practical solutions to the dangers of storing nuclear material for thousands of years.

Moeller is chairman of a subcommittee of the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards.

The report concluded there is a negligible "long-term risk of failure" in nuclear reprocessing plants or facilities that will be built to store nuclear wastes underground.

Moeller said the NRC staff appears to have ignored more than 20 nuclear accidents that have already occurred.

"It's like a situation in which 68 airplanes crashed and now you are saying the 69th won't crash," he said.

There have been no fatal accidents in any of the five dozen commercial nuclear power plants now operating in the United States.

The NRC report also concluded the risk of sabotage in the handling of nuclear wastes is very small.

Big Economic Force On Farms

Perhaps all city dwellers weren't aware of it, but we are observing National Farm-City Week Nov. 19-25.

It is a good time to reflect on just how important agriculture is to all of us. City dwellers take for granted that the food items will be there when they make their periodic trips to the supermarket — usually they are. But a tremendous amount of agricultural investment and work stand behind that ability to pick up whatever we need in the food stores.

What's more, the food is not always there is some cultures, and hasn't always been there at other times in our country.

American farms are almost totally privately owned and they are the envy of the world for their efficiency and production. Not only have our farmers kept us well fed, but there are farm products left over for sale to the rest of the world. That brings back dollars to the United States, and that has alleviated the balance of payment problem by keeping our exports and imports in proper relation.

Domestically the farmers are a big economic force. One out of every four jobs in the nation is in agriculture or a related industry. Farmers spend more than $80 billion annually on materials and services. And farmers have about $55 billions to spend for consumer items and for other purposes.

In Pitt County we have a strong agricultural base, which has only in recent years been augmented by industrial and educational development.

Our farm friends are often city dwellers, too, and they are very much a part of the civic life of every Pitt County community.

We would not have it any other way. There will be many developments in our area in the years ahead. Farming, however, will always be with us and it will be a most important part of our daily lives.

Streamlined Bureaucracy Is The Hope

Government reorganization was an important part of Jimmy Carter's campaign; it was something he was known for while governor of Georgia.

So the Carter administration will be watched closely to see if there is a streamlining of the hopeless government bureaucracy.

The Carter forces said that it will be done in a "very careful, deliberate process" over two or three years.

If Carter finds a way to improve and streamline government services, his could be a successful administration.

Women In The Legislature

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — While still nowhere near representative of their numbers in the general population, Tar Heel women made significant gains in membership in the North Carolina General Assembly for the coming term.

There will be 23 women in the Legislature: four in the 50-member Senate; and 19 in the 120-member House.

Incumbent Katherine Sebo, D-Guilford, will be joined in the Senate by two fellow Democrats: Rachel Gray, former mayor pro tem of High Point, and Helen Rhyne Marvin of Gaston County. Republican Legislator Carolyn Mathis of Mecklenburg moves in the Senate after two terms in the House. Mrs. Mathis' husband, incidentally, will be a freshman member of the House. He is a Republican, also.

In the House of Representatives, four women incumbents who had been appointed to fill vacancies were elected to full terms: Bertha Holt, D-Alamance; Janet Pickler, D-Stanly; Betty Thomas, D-Cabarrus; and Edith Lutz, D-Cleveland.

Three women will be newcomers in the House: Louise Brennan and Ruth Easterling of Mecklenburg, and Mary Seymour of Guilford, all Democrats.

All incumbents who chose to run for re-election in the House were successful. There is one Republican, Marilyn Bissell of Mecklenburg. Democrats are Nancy Chase, Wayne County (dean of the House, now, by reason of age), Wilda Hurst, Onslow; Ruth Cook, Wake; Pat Griffin, Durham; Patricia Stanford Hunt, Orange; Lura Tally, Cumberland; Margaret Tennille, Forsyth; Jo Graham Foster, Mecklenburg; Frances Setzer, Catawba; Murtle Wiseman, Avery; and Mary Nesbitt, Buncombe.

Tennala A. Gross of Greenville, president of the N.C. Women's Political Caucus, said that even though North Carolina has more female representation in the Legislature than does the U. S. Congress, "with only eight per cent of the Senate and 15 per cent of the House being women, we can claim only modest victory; still, the advance is significant compared with the minimal representation by women in years past."

Two Lost

Cost-conscious legislators have deliberately tried to keep the salaries for research analysts on the General Assembly staff at a reasonably low level, to forestall criticism from other agencies which find their budgets trimmed by the Legislature.

Now they are paying the price; already, two legislative researchers have deserted, to go to work for incoming Gov. James B.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Daley's Diminishing Clout

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

CHICAGO — As the world awaits President-elect Carter's senior cabinet selections, Chicago Democrats are most interested in his choice as U.S. Attorney for the northern district of Illinois to provide a test of just how far Mayor Daley has slipped.

The U.S. Attorney's post here was clearly fenced off as Daley organization patronage in the Kennedy-Johnson administration. Accordingly, if Carter makes his choice without clearance from City Hall, that would constitute hard evidence of diminished national influence for Daley following his humiliating election defeats Nov. 2.

Democratic politicians, including some foes of Daley, generally believe his embarrassing loss of face and power at the state and national levels leaves unimpaired his control of Chicago. But others disagrees, feeling that the psychological downgrading could undercut the mayor's authority at home. If so, Daley's role in dispensing patronage becomes critically important in Illinois politics.

Consequently appointments to run Chicago regional offices of federal agencies will be carefully asserted here. But far more important is U.S. Attorney, the post used by Republican James Thompson to prosecute corruption within the governorship.

Top choice of the Democratic organization is lame-duck Lt. Gov. Neil F. Hartigan, the victim as running-mate with the defeated gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett. The selection of Hartigan, at 38 one of the most promising young regulars, to be federal prosecutor would quickly erase doubt about Daley's influence with the new President.

But anti-Daley Democrats are advising Carter not only to stay away from Hartigan but to dramatize he owes the Mayor nothing by naming his own man without City Hall's clearance. Some Democrat are even urging that Carter retain the present U.S. Attorney, Sam Skinner. Thompson's former assistant. Skinner, a declared Republican who was a career government prosecutor keep out of politics, is anathema of city Hall.

For that very reason, one well placed independent Democrat feels Carter should nominate Skinner to show business Daley who's boss in Washington. But naming Skinner anybody else unacceptable to the mayor would shatter what is left of Daley's national reputation after multiple losses Nov. 2.

During more than two decades of power, Daley has often lost important state and county races. But never before have there been so many losses and never before have newspapers and politicians here dwelled on those hard and long. Moreover, this year's defeats were accompanied by mistakes unthinkable for the old Dick Daley.

Mistake No. 1: Daley pushing the popular Howlett into his disastrous race for governor laced a bad taste to everybody's mouth. The error was compounded when the mayor, abandoned his usual reticence, was point man for Howlett attacking Thompson's record as U.S. Attorney for prosecuting political corruption.

Mistake No. 2: Daley declined Carter's plea for an endorsement in May when it would have meant everything and delivered it in June when it meant nothing. Carter owes him no debts.

Mistake No. 3: On election night after all votes were cast, Daley assured Carter operatives in Atlanta and Washington that Illinois had been won. He had not accounted for Carter's poorer-than-expected performance downstate.

Mistake No. 4: Daley scrubbed a post-election session with newsmen Nov. 3 and left unannounced for Florida, abandoning an international Conference of Mayors in Chicago. Politicians here have pondered the mayor's highlighting flight and speculated it never would have happened in the old days.

Nevertheless, Democratic insiders feel the mayor is in

DESIGN EVEN IN SORROW

When suffering comes upon us, we invariably begin to search for the reason. We feel that we have done some evil which causes us to deserve the misfortune, or that we have failed to do some good thing.

The Bible teaches that the wages of sin is death, but it also teaches that much suffering in life comes through no fault of the sufferer himself. The great Swiss theologian Vinet has written: "Perhaps to suffer is nothing else than to live deeply. Love and sorrow are

Sunday Morning Notes

J. V. Taylor of Rt. 8, Greenville has had a life long hobby of collecting clippings from newspapers and other publications.

Recently he brought in one from The Daily Reflector, which had used it at the time as a newspaper clipping found in the back of an old Bible.

Taylor said he couldn't recall the date that the article appeared in The Daily Reflector, but it was perhaps back in the 1920s. At any rate the original was much older than that.

"Awhile back The Reflector received a letter from Mrs. Imogene Ricks Veazey who told about a newspaper clipping that she had found pasted in the back of her mothers Bible," the story read. "She sent a copy of the clipping to the editor and it reads as follows:

"Letter Said To have Been Written by Jesus, Belongs to Greenville Family, Handed Down from Generation to Generation."

Then a letter signed by Lucy Bacon Hardee of Stem, N.C. followed:

"The enclosed is a copy of a very old letter which has for years been kept in the old family Bible. I know nothing more of the history of the letter than that it, like the Bible, has been handed down for generations; the copy is made in Old English and is yellowed and falling to pieces with age, and that my great-grandfather, Colonel Lyddall

Other Editors Say Carter's Decisions

(Wilson Times)

President-elect Jimmy Carter is watched, and what he has to say is remembered, for the most interesting topic now is the economy. Carter has several choices, one being a tax cut, another to boost federal spending, a little of both, or to do nothing.

The accusations of the election campaign have faded and the new Carter administration will face some hard choices in trying to find what is economic "reality and how the nation should respond to it."

There are many opinions, but there appears agreement that the general economy needs some form of stimulus to the economy. But economists differ on the kind of federal push needed and their estimates of its impact.

As many economists see it, more income in the hands of consumers will lead to more purchases, which will lead to more investment by business which will lead to more purchases, which will lead to more jobs. But what if you do not think the rate of expansion is too slow? Then, you'd probably share the views of Herbert Stein, former chief economic adviser to Presidents Nixon and Ford.

This whole discussion of a tax cut is premature, he says. The most likely development is that the economy will resume a more rapid increase in the early part of next year. He warns, "Any tax cut big enough to trim unemployment is also big enough to fan inflationary fears."

Stein's views are shared in part by Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, the independent agency that sets U.S. monetary policies. Burns told a Senate committee that traditional policies of economic stimulation might well counter production and he stressed the importance of being cautious in launching new federal programs.

Carter hasn't decided what to do about the economy, although in his first press conference since the election he said that if a tax cut were needed it would be to stimulate purchasing power among the average American families and would be heavily oriented toward the lower payroll level.

In the weeks ahead economists will be watching Christmas sales, receipts, auto sales, and the decision by the oil producing nations on whether to raise oil prices.

So, we are back to the beginning. President-elect Carter must decide which policies to follow, for the wrong choices are likely to accentuate the country's problems for the new President. These choices remain: cut taxes, boost federal spending, do a little of both or do nothing.

Japan and Germany have "much in common" in their governmental ideas, a high German spokesman acknowledged today.

He denied, however, there is a hard and fast alliance between the two.

"It is quite conceivable Germany and Japan — opposed as both are to Bolshevism — may in given situations decide to proceed jointly," he said.

"It is also clear Japan and Germany have much in common in their authoritarian conception of government."

Official sources described themselves frankly puzzled and worried by persistent reports from Moscow of a German-Japanese pact aimed against Russia.

Stoutly maintaining that "nothing is known here," one official, however, declined to be pinned down to an absolute denial.

More than 2,000 students, alumnae and faculty members were served at the barbecue luncheon which was the opening feature of the Homecoming celebration at East Carolina Teacher's College today.

For more than 40 minutes a steady line of people passed before the picnic tables on the back campus of the College and 50 girls served 12 barbecued pigs and more than 100 gallons of punch.

The students and alumnae sat down on the leaf-covered ground under the trees to laugh and talk over old times. The day was clear and warm, and the outdoor luncheon was pleasant.

Defend Practice Of Redlining

JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's mortgage lenders have supported their defense against redlining charges with a study directed by Andrew F. Brimmer, a former Federal Reserve Board member.

Brimmer, who now runs a consulting firm, submitted a preliminary report this week endorsing the concept of co-insurance, under which the federal government would assume most of the risk on certain inner city loans.

It is in these sometimes marginal neighborhoods, often the home of minorities, that mortgage lenders have avoided making commitments, arguing that to do so would be to take unbusinesslike risks. Such areas are said to be redlined.

Brimmer, who heads the firm of Brimmer & Co., Washington, D.C., conceded "this behavior may reflect elements of conscious discrimination," but said "the objective evidence also suggests that the risk of lending in such areas is also exceptionally high."

Under these circumstances, and in the face of rising public demand for more lending in urban areas, "a program of co-insurance could make a meaningful contribution," said Brimmer, the first black member of the Fed.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations, which commissioned Brimmer's study, was the major contributor to a bill now being considered in the House that would have the federal government assume 80 per cent of the risk on commitments by housing lenders in marginal areas.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Phio, would establish a Federal Shared Risk Fund that would designate "community reinvestment areas" in which risk-sharing would be practiced. Such areas generally would be those threatened by blight but not yet overcome by blight.

Lenders have resisted making loans in these areas, but almost always have defended the practice as necessary in order to avoid undue risks of their depositors' funds.

Since these neighborhoods often are populated by minorities, the lenders have been accused of racial discrimination, and of encouraging further blight by removing depositors' funds to investments in the relatively affluent suburbs.

"In practice, it is hard to separate elements of risk from discriminatory practice in mortgage lending," Brimmer told the 84th annual convention of the league, whose member savings and loan associations make more single-family home mortgages than all other lenders combined.

In his report, Brimmer drew on an earlier study by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board that suggested minority-owned lending institutions might be even more conservative than their white-controlled counterparts in making inner city loans.

Worldwide Growth In Slum Areas

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — A Gallup International survey of 70 nations indicates that the current rush to the cities, which is creating enormous problems for developing nations, is likely to continue unabated.

This survey, the first global public opinion survey ever undertaken, shows that most of the rural inhabitants of the developing nations of the world would like to move to the cities.

More than half the four billion people who inhabit the earth live in rural areas, and the migration to the cities in the developing nations is creating havoc in many of these same countries which are wholly unprepared for the influx.

Paradoxically, people living in the big cities in the industrialized nations would like to move to the small towns and rural areas—a desire reflected in the trend away from big-city living.

This contrast between attitudes in the industrialized and developing nations shows up sharply when Great Britain and Nigeria are compared. Nearly eight in every 10 nations in Great Britain live in urbanized areas. Given a choice of where to live, only two in 10 would continue to live in cities over 10,000. In Nigeria, three in every four persons live in rural areas. Given the same choice, only five in 100 would choose the rural area.

To shed light on where people who live in widely different situations and in widely separated parts of the world would like to live, given their choice, this question was asked of all persons in this global survey:

"If you could live anywhere you wished, which one would you prefer—a large city (over 100,000 people); a small city (10,000 to 100,000 people); or a town or village (up to 10,000 people) or a rural area?"

The results by major regions of the world show the following preferences:

Percent	Urban	Living Preference
		Large city	Small city	Town/village	Rural area
75%	North America	13%	29%	21%	37%
64%	Western Europe	19	22	27	32
59%	Latin America	36	15	19	30
22%	Africa	40	13	18	29
24%	Far East	17	38	5	38

Following Cycle

The findings reported here suggest that the developing nations may be following the same cycle as the industrialized nations—but with a time lag of about 100 years. For example, America 100 years ago was largely rural. Then came the trek to the cities which lasted until recent years. Now there has been a turnabout, with the inner cities losing population to the suburbs, and with indications from the findings reported here that the trend in the developing nations will be toward the small towns and rural areas during the decades ahead.

Today in the United States, nearly nine in 10 say they would prefer to live in a small city, village, or town, or in a rural area. Even among big-city residents, three in four express a preference for a less populated living area and more than half say they would prefer to live in a village, town or rural area.

Here's where Americans say they would like to live including the preferences according to the respondents' current city size:

NATIONWIDE	City Size:	Living Preference
		Large city	Small city	Town/village	Rural area
500,000 & over	27	28	21	24
50,000-499,999	15	34	19	32
2,500-49,999	3	43	23	31
Rural	2	12	17	69

And here's how Americans compare in their living preferences to inhabitants of some of the other nations surveyed:

	Large city	Small city	Town/village	Rural area
	13%	29%	20%	38%
United States	13%	29%	20%	38%
United Kingdom	11	10	48	31

Experience Repeated

Commenting on the urban explosion in South America, the New York Times, in a recent article, pointed out that there is "little agreement on how Latin America's limited financial and technical resources can best be used to help the already vastly overburdened cities cope with their expanding populations."

The same article attributed city growth to the lack of jobs in rural areas and the rise in urban industrial and service jobs. At the same time, transportation and communications breakthroughs have forged a link between the cities and the interior.

The migration to the cities in the developing nations is reminiscent of that experienced in the United States between the 1940s and 1960s when millions of blacks and poor whites found themselves displaced by labor-saving farm machinery in the South and other rural areas of the nation. They left to find jobs in the cities and a more exciting life.

Today In History

By the Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Nov. 21, the 326th day of 1976. There are 40 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1877, Thomas Edison announced that he had invented a talking machine. He called it the phonograph.

On this date—

In 1806, Napoleon Bonaparte issued the Berlin Decrees, declaring a blockade of the British Isles.

In 1855, Sweden joined Britain, France and Turkey in an alliance against Russia.

In 1894, the Japanese captured the Manchurian city of Port Arthur.

In 1938, the western border areas of Czechoslovakia were forcibly incorporated into the German Reich.

In 1961, West Berlin police turned back thousands of West Berlin university students trying to storm the Communist barriers dividing Berlin.

In 1962, Communist China agreed to a cease-fire on the India-China border.

Ten years ago: The United States agreed to back a U.N. study of Communist China's possible admission to the world organization.

The Attack On Career Criminals Might Work

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The history of crime and criminal justice in our country is largely a history of failures. One approach after another has been tried; nothing much has succeeded. But in its attack on "career criminals," the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration may have hit upon something that works.

A career criminal is precisely that—a man who makes a career of burglary or armed robbery as other men make careers of journalism, medicine or law. This is the only profitable trade he knows. The career criminal is utterly without conscience; he is indifferent to every consideration of right conduct; his animal instincts lead him, without pity, to prey upon unoffending victims.

An FBI study indicates that at least a quarter of a million persons are actively pursuing careers in crime. These are the recidivists—the two-time, three-time, five-time losers. Put on probation for one offense, they soon commit another. Sent briefly to jail, they gain nothing from rehabilitation programs. Released on parole, they fall back into crime.

What can be done about it? In 18 cities and in the State of Rhode Island, the LEAA is experimenting with a hard-nosed approach that is about as far as one can get from the bleeding-heart compassion beloved of the school that says "society is to blame." The purpose is plain—to prosecute the career criminals to the very limit of the law, and to send them to prison for long, long terms.

In a word, incarceration. If the program has a deterrent effect on other criminals (and there is some evidence that it is having such an effect), so much the better. If the long-term prisoner benefits from rehabilitation, all well and good. But the primary goals are not to deter or to rehabilitate. The object is to get these particular criminals on ice, behind bars, where for a number of years they cannot terrorize the people.

The program got under way in Houston and New Orleans in the spring of 1975. Shortly thereafter, Dallas, Boston, Salt Lake City, San Diego and Detroit came aboard. Grants subsequently were approved for Columbus, Ohio; Kalamazoo, New York City, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Miami, Albuquerque, Memphis, Louisville and Las Vegas. Last month the LEAA funded a $295,000 program for Portland, Ore. About $8.5 million, in all, has been committed.

The federal aid is intended to help the participating cities in putting together a team of prosecutors who work on career criminals only. In a typical case, a suspect is arrested for armed robbery. A routine check discloses that he has a long record of prior offenses. The special team goes to work. Prosecutors argue for high bail; they press for prompt trial; they refuse to bargain for a plea of guilty to some lesser offense. They concentrate their skill and energy on getting convictions; and they ask the trial court for long prison terms.

This relentless approach seems to work. Over a 14-month period from May, 1975, through July of 1976, prosecutors in 12 of the participating cities brought 2,015 career criminals to trial. The average adjudication time was 84 days. The prosecutors won 1,914 convictions. The average sentence was 19.8 years in prison.

As an article in the current U. S. News makes clear, not everyone is enthusiastic about the program. Defense lawyers are complaining of the unkind treatment accorded their best clients. Some criminologists doubt that a deterrent effect on crime in general can be shown. If the program catches on, the taxpayers ultimately will be hit for the higher costs implicit in the long-term incarceration of a large number of dangerous criminals.

My own guess, for what it may be worth, is that the taxpayers willingly will accept the burden. As public opinion surveys disclose, the people everywhere long for safe streets. Law-abiding citizens grow increasingly impatient with what they perceive as soft-hearted judges and inefficient law enforcement machinery. No one supposes that the career criminal program will stop crime. Of course not. But it will isolate some of the most vicious criminals until they get to be old men—and that strikes me as net gain, fully worth the price.

Elisha Knows Healing-But 'God Does The Work'

HONEA PATH, S. C. —

Elisha Kelly's face is weathered and brown beneath his shock of pure-white hair. Kelly is stooped. He hunches over his cane, and leaning heavily, takes painful, deliberate steps.

But Elisha Kelly's eyes are not those of a 75-year-old man. Blue and knowing, they have a life of their own. Kelly's gaze is direct, and his eyes do not waver when he tells you that he is an instrument of God. The Lord works through him, he explains, "to heal folks."

Kelly's grandmother taught him how to stop profuse bleeding and "draw fire" from burns when he was a boy growing up in the small, scruffy town of Williamston, South Carolina, around the turn of the century. He still follows her mystical healing process, one that he will describe only as "something that's in the Bible, but you'd just read over it unless you knew it was there."

Kelly lives with his wife, Elsie, in a freshly-painted, fern-porch white frame house near the railroad tracks that bisect Honea Path. It is here that he does his faith healing, and here that relatives or friends of the desperately ill come to make their bids for his skills.

"One woman I cured had a busted blood vessel in her brain and near about died in the Greenwood hospital. A friend of hers came by here and said I'd know they were looking for Miss Jessie to die."

"Well, I knew that Greenwood hospital like a book, 'cause I'd been up there to sit with folks so much. I asked Miss Jessie's friend just where she was laying up in the hospital, and she told me. The next day she went by to see Miss Jessie again, and God bless your heart, they carried her home well the day after that."

What had Kelly done to cure Miss Jessie's cerebral hemorrhage? "I stood out in the yard and held onto a tree and thought about that busted blood vessel," he remembers. After a while, he went back inside. They say Miss Jessie was well by the time he'd made his slow trip up the steps.

Kelly also performed a cure for a man whose leg was severely burned by a gasoline-fueled fire.

"He'd been to the doctor over in Anderson and that doctor had smeared salve all over his leg and put a cast on it. Well, the man kept getting crazier and crazier from the pain. He'd lie there and scream and pull at his leg till they thought he'd die from it."

"Finally, his brother came by here and told me, 'He's going to kill himself.' Kelly instructed the patient's brother to take off the cast and 'not to carry him to that doctor any more.'"

"They got the cast off, and his wife and my wife had to pick the cotton off his leg with tweezers. We wrapped it in a bed sheet to keep the cold from getting to it."

Kelly says he asked God to let him use his powers to heal the man, "and, pshaw, it wasn't no time till it was better," he exclaims triumphantly, slapping his leg and rocking back in his chair.

minted money as a war profiteer; Punjab, the tall turbaned Oriental giant who goes around with a scimitar stuck in his cummerbund, and that sly trickster in black replete with homburg, The Asp.

The whole raffish bunch got together this summer for the Goodspeed Opera House production of "Annie," but they were stuck for a dog to play the part of Annie's sidekick, Sandy. Actually, she never kicks Sandy.

They found a 15-month old mixed breed at the Connecticut Humane Society in Newington. It raises the question: Do you know where your dog is tonight?

It's as if the Harold Grey comic strip that mesmerized millions of pre-television kids for 30 years came to life. Sandy was about to be put under when, as Annie would say, "Leapin' Lizards!" the Goodspeed arrived in the nick of time.

"I looked over several possibilities and then I saw this skinny, cringing dog that nobody wanted. He obviously had been abused by his former owner ... I could see he was the dog we were looking for," said Bill Berloni, a technical assistant who became Sandy's off-stage master.

Sandy proved to be an apt pupil. And speaking of pupils, few had any in Grey's comic strip. They all wore blank stares, including Sandy, described as "startlingly intelligent" even though all he ever said was "Arf Arf!"

You could translate that any way you wanted and that's what the comic strip characters did—even the mighty Warbucks, Annie's occasional guardian, who talked to him a lot.

Anyway, Sandy got the hang of acting, and well-fed and well-loved by the folks at Goodspeed, including 12-year-old Andrea McArdle who plays Annie, he stole the show.

He's on stage twice. Once as curly mopped Annie protects him from a New York street bully. What else? And again when he pops out of a box at Christmas, a gift from Daddy Warbucks to Annie.

humor fitting for a mayor who knows that despite his budget-cutting, New York City still might default—as it almost did last fall.

One year ago this week, on Nov. 26, President Ford gave the city a reprieve by agreeing to lend up to $2.3 billion a year for nearly three years, until June 30, 1978. Before that reprieve, the city had come within a few minutes of default in September and October.

But there were strings attached to the federal loans.

The mayor and his government were required to balance the city's $12.4 billion operating budget by cutting out $968 million annually in expenditures. So far, $300 million or more has been cut in jobs and services. The exact figure can't be known in the midst of the fiscal year, the city says.

The worst is still ahead. Under the three-year emergency plan, the mayor must announce by Jan. 1 how he will eliminate the rest of the $968 million deficit.

Not only must he make the unpopular announcement, but he must incorporate the savings into a balanced 1977-1978 budget, effective July 1. If he doesn't, the federal government stops lending money, or so it says, and the city could default.

"The 1977-78 budget is basically the moment of truth and we might as well face it now," says Felix Rohatyn, chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp., dubbed "Big Mac," the original state agency created two summers ago to patch up the city's finances.

Some of the budget balancing the mayor proposes might be beyond his control. For example, the $400 or $500 million in cut-backs still needed to balance the budget assumes that the city will be able to sell $350 million worth of mortgages it now holds. Mayor Beame wants the federal government to buy the mortgages, but the feds aren't making any promises. If there's no buyer, then the deficit isn't $400 or $500 million, but $750 or $850 million.

The mayor is also counting on the state to take over a $113 million city subsidy to the City University system. If the state refuses, the deficit goes up.

The price the city and its citizens have already paid for survival has been high. In the first year of the emergency plan, these changes have occurred:

—$500 million in new taxes were imposed on the most taxed citizens in the nation,

The income tax on city residents was increased an average of 25 per cent—to $91 for a family of four with a $10,000 income, and to $437 for the same size family with a $25,000 income. The property tax went up. So did the cigarette tax. Haircuts, once tax-free, are now taxed at 4 per cent.

—The city's workforce was reduced by 55,000 to 239,000, a 19 per cent decline and the lowest level in more than a decade.

—Wages of many remaining workers were frozen and raises previously promised were deferred for a year.

—A 129-year policy of free tuition at city colleges ended last summer, and with it a tradition of higher education for the poor, a tradition that produced some of America's best minds. An undergraduate now pays $750 a year for his first two years of study, $950 a year for the last two.

The Big Thing Around A House: Organizing

My husband has a mania for organization, and he has two major methods for achieving it. The first method is mental filing. This method is most applicable to his personal belongings. For instance, he knows exactly what coat is flung over what chair, on what table he last dropped his keys, and what pair of shoes is in which room. Of course, this method does lead to occasional complications—like when I decide to straighten up.

The other method is much simpler and applies to everything else in the house. It is based on a famous philosophical principle—out of sight, out of mind. One day he volunteered to clean the kitchen for me, and when he finished, every counter was spotless and entirely empty. I was wondering how he had managed to find room to put everything up—until I opened the pantry and found a crockpot, a canister set, a cookie jar, eight dirty spoons, and a half-eaten bowl of oatmeal sitting on the washing machine.

"What's all this stuff doing in the pantry?" I asked. "Good grief, you don't expect me to do everything for you, do you?" he said. "I organized the kitchen. You take care of the pantry."

His organizational prowess was nowhere more evident than when he and I tackled winter housecleaning. Most people do spring housecleaning, but I have a very slight tendency to procrastinate. The only major housecleaning that I managed to do last spring was to take our Christmas wreath down. Anyway, when a friend told me that she had never seen a color scheme quite like ours—gray rugs and walls yellow at eye-level and fading into chocolate brown from the knee down—I decided that the time for cleaning had come.

I handed Phillip a sponge and a bucket. "You can start with the windows."

"Now wait a minute," he said. "I don't mind helping, but you're not just going to start cleaning without any game plan in mind, are you? Because that's what's wrong with you. That's why you never can get anything done. You don't plan ahead. Let's stop a minute and organize this thing."

He put the bucket down, grabbed a pencil and a piece of paper, and said, "What needs to be done?"

"The windows need washing; the kitchen floor needs waxing; the carpets need cleaning; the curtains need washing; and the walls need to be washed from the knees down."

"Good. Now which of these things can be put off till next year?"

"Well, we can wait until Meg gets taller and let the wall turn brown progressively."

"Good idea. Now if we can just wait till the carpet turns black..."

"I sort of liked the green—what I can remember of it," I said. "Seriously, everything I mentioned has to be done today."

He spent the next hour arranging the items on my list in order of importance and assigning a time period for each chore. Finally, he got up, handed me the paper on which he had written the schedule, and started up the stairs.

"Where are you going?" I asked.

"This organizing has worn me out. You can take over from here."

New York City Was Bailed Out Once; Default Still Possibility

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame, recently addressing a convention of magicians, asked them "to pull a few million dollars out of the air" to help the nation's largest city remain solvent.

The magicians laughed, drew some rubber $100 bills from their pockets, waved them at the mayor, and enjoyed the joke.

That's what it was, of course; the sort of gallows humor fitting for a mayor who knows that despite his budget-cutting, New York City still might default—as it almost did last fall.

One year ago this week, on Nov. 26, President Ford gave the city a reprieve by agreeing to lend up to $2.3 billion a year for nearly three years, until June 30, 1978. Before that reprieve, the city had come within a few minutes of default in September and October.

that it is considering the withdrawal of its workforce from Social Security coverage. The decision would be made in January and withdrawal would be in March, 1978, at a saving of $200 million a year in contributions. The workers would still have their city pensions, usually more than 50 per cent of salary just before retirement.

The transit fare rose from 35 cents to 50 cents a subway or bus ride.

Seventy-seven day care centers were closed. About 5,000 children had used them.

The number of city-run hospitals has shrunk from 19 to 17 and there are plans to close two more next year. The Health and Hospitals Corp., a semi-autonomous city agency, chopped 6,800 hospital workers from the payroll, leaving 36,000 workers.

Thirty-two public schools have been shut and average class size has gone up to more than 30 pupils.

Corporate executives now occupy top city posts, replacing bureaucrats often blamed for the budgetary gimmicks that helped to create the years of deficits and finally destroyed the city's credit.

During the year of changes,

Big Mac and other watchdogs have been pouncing on New York each time the city fails to meet one of its budget-cutting goals. The watchdogs include Gov. Hugh Carey, the state Emergency Financial Control Board, a state deputy comptroller, Sidney Schwartz, who monitors the city's cost-cutting progress for the control board, and last but far from least the U.S. Treasury and Congress.

The feds lent the city $1.26 billion through last June 30. An additional $2.17 billion is to be borrowed through June 1977, and $2.1 billion through June 1978, the end of the three-year plan. The borrowing scheme requires the city to repay the loans, with roughly 7 per cent interest, in the same year the money is borrowed, and before any other city debts are paid off. So far the repayments have been made to the federal government, but thousands of people who invested in city notes over the years aren't able to redeem them now. They've been told to wait.

The most serious sign thus far that the city might be slipping in its cost-cutting goals came just a month ago when a Schwartz audit revealed a $40-million Transit Authority deficit, in addition to estimated deficits of $45.6 million this year and $96 million next year in the budget for the city's hospitals.

With the Emergency Control Board cheering on the sidelines, Beame two weeks ago took control of the hospitals system to ensure that the necessary cuts would be made to balance the budget. The move wiped out, temporarily at least, the semi-autonomous status of the Health and Hospitals Corp.

Officials monitoring the city's progress, including Schwartz and Stephen Berger, head of the Emergency Financial Control Board, have questioned the assumptions behind Beame's plans to balance the city budget by 1978. In general, the control board has favored spending cuts, while Beame is relying on more state and federal aid, even without assurances that the specific aid he seeks will be forthcoming.

One problem is the $1 billion in overdue city notes placed in "moratorium" last November as part of the bailout plan — moratorium being another word for default, in the opinion of Treasury Secretary Simon. The city hasn't said what it will do when the moratorium expires in November, 1978. The notes are held by banks and by thousands of individuals, many of them retirees. All they collect is six per cent interest, but not the overdue principal.

The first campaign buttons were given away by Alexander the Great, according to the National Geographic Society. They were made of silver and given as a promise of better government.

Procedures Reputedly Not Followed

RALEIGH (AP) — Proper procedures reportedly were not followed by North Carolina Highway Patrol officers when a roadblock was set up and a shootout resulted early Monday.

In today's editions, The News and Observer of Raleigh said the officers on the scene violated several policies contained in a manual each trooper is issued.

Also required, but not done, was to set up a central command post headed by a commissioned officer, the newspaper said. In addition, the manual requires that "when ever hostages are being held the priority must shift from apprehending the criminal to preserving the lives of the hostages."

The manual also states that when hostages are involved, "The situation should not be forcibly concluded until the safety of the hostages is assured."

Earlier this week, the newspaper quoted unnamed officers who were on the scene as saying one officer fired four shotgun blasts into the front of the car as it appeared to be trying to get around the roadblock. The sources said the officer thought he heard gunshots from the car.

The shootout is under investigation and authorities have ordered a lid of silence until the probe is concluded. Earlier, Patrol Commander E.W. Jones commented that he believed the officers on hand had used excessive firepower.

Forgers Used Idea From TV

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A young couple convicted in Forsyth Superior Court this week for forging a dead woman's name on checks say they used a television documentary as the basis for their elaborate scheme.

And police say that before Ted and Linda Collins were caught, they wrote checks to at least 60 stores and bought about $3,500 in merchandise.

The Collins, both 22, were arrested in August after police had begun investigating complaints involving bad checks that were being passed in the name of Cheryl L. Woods.

The couple told police they got the idea for passing the checks after watching a "60 Minutes" program on the CBS television network, which dealt with forgeries.

Expected To Sign Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are expected to sign an agreement next week in which Moscow tacitly recognizes the U.S. right to extend its fisheries jurisdiction to 200 miles, American officials say.

Moscow had been resisting the American claim of unilateral authority to extend its fisheries zone from 12 miles. The apparent about-face came during U.S.-Soviet fisheries talks that ended here Friday.

Warns On Money Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., chairman of a monetary subcommittee, warns Jimmy Carter not to press the Federal Reserve into rapid expansion of the money supply as a quick fix for the economy.

Neal is chairman of the House subcommittee that oversees operations of the Federal Reserve System. He agrees with Arthur F. Burns, the Federal Reserve Chairman who says the money supply should grow at the current projected rate of 4.5 per cent to 5.5 per cent in 1977. Neal says that rate will assure economic stability in the future.

Inflation Rate Cooling Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government statistics show that the inflation rate is cooling off while business spending is picking up — factors that could make it harder for Jimmy Carter to decide whether a tax cut is needed to stimulate the economy.

At the same time, the Federal Reserve Board took a small step on its own Friday that may stimulate the economy. The Fed lowered the discount rate it charges member banks to 5.25 per cent from 5.5 per cent.

Liked Carter Better Than His Own Brother

HAMLET, N.C. (AP) — John C. Baldwin, a retired railroad man, remembers his days of growing up at Plains, Ga., where one of his playmates was a youngster named Jimmy Carter.

As a boy, Jimmy — now President-elect Carter — "could be hard to keep up with," Baldwin, 66, recalls.

Baldwin's mother, Elena Queen Victoria Baldwin, did housework for the James Earl Carter family, and she took her youngest child, John, along. Baldwin, at that age, sometimes had the job of looking after Jimmy.

"I remember times when I had to go hunting him and one time when he got himself into a mess of horns," Baldwin recalled in an interview.

"I found him that time, but I didn't go get him. I just said, 'you stay there and keep yourself hid. I'll come get you when they go away.'"

Baldwin, who lived in Plains until an adult, says he remembers working as a handyman and keeping up the yard at the Carter family's farm in Plains. "I liked him better than my own brother," he says of Carter.

Baldwin didn't realize the Jimmy Carter from Georgia who was running for president was the same one he knew as a boy, he said, until he recognized Carter's mother, Miss Lillian, on television.

"She saved me many a whipping when I was little," he said. "She used to tell my mother, 'don't beat him. He'll straighten out as he grows up.'"

Baldwin, who is black, was born in Plains, and his father, also a railroad man, was killed in an accident when Baldwin was just two weeks old.

Agriculture Department May Be Prime Target

BATTLE MARSH BLAZE—Firemen sought to contain a fire that hit about a 50-acre tract of marshy grassland near Hartford High

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some experts think the sprawling Agriculture Department may be a prime target for President-elect Jimmy Carter's plans to reorganize and streamline federal agencies.

There has been talk for years of transferring food stamps and other feeding programs from USDA, for example. And this could be part of whatever the new Carter administration has in mind.

One blueprint reportedly under consideration involves shifting some agencies such as the Bureau of Land Management from the Interior Department to a restyled USDA, along with some of the regulatory functions of the Food and Drug Administration, now in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

All this would be joined in a new Department of Food, Agriculture and Rural Resources or something similar, according to several sources.

Carter asked top Democratic leaders in Congress earlier this week to restore the president's power to propose government reorganization plans, subject to congressional veto.

The law lapsed two years ago, and Carter said he wants it restored so that he can move quickly after taking office in January to reorganize the executive branch of government as he promised in his campaign.

ing role in the formulation of national food policy.

Hyde H. Murray, counsel for the House Agriculture Committee, said that if Congress does quickly restore presidential power to reorganize the government, it could have a large impact on USDA.

"If that turns out to be the case, believe me, one of the places where government gets reorganized real quick is the USDA," he said.

An obvious reason for Carter's looking at USDA early in his reorganization effort would be that the department has such a large range of activities in its bailiwick. Those include regulatory powers ranging from meat inspection to imports of foreign plants, food programs and a large number of programs affecting foreign and domestic activities.

Ronald Knutson, professor of economics at Texas A&M and a former chief of USDA's Farmer Cooperative Service, told the outlook conference that he and many others have become increasingly alarmed at what seems to be the department's declining role in national food and fiber policies.

"Unless USDA is able to demonstrate a new mix of publicly spirited leadership, its role in food and fiber policy will continue to diminish," Knutson said.

A similar erosion has occurred in the the Senate and Coal Miner's Bodies Recovered Months After Explosion

By T.G. MOORE
Associated Press Writer
OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — For the first time in eight months, a kind of calm has settled over this hamlet. The 11 men who were killed in a mine explosion have been brought out from their tomb of coal, and their families prepared for a second, more gentle, burial.

"Right now it's time to finalize things and then each of us can set out to build a new life," said Harvey Sturgill, the son of one of the victims.

Sturgill had viewed his father's body Friday after the victims were brought out on mine cars under bright yellow plastic sheets. As he left, he carried some of his father's belongings in a hard hat.

Five of the bodies were taken to nearby funeral homes. The others were sent to Hazard for autopsies at the request of families planning to ask for survivors' black lung benefits.

Many families had not completed their funeral plans. But at least six funerals were scheduled for Sunday.

The federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA) and the state Department of Mines and Minerals planned to begin today an on-site investigation into the cause of the explosion at the Scotia Coal Co. mine. The investigation was expected to last several months.

The double-explosion disaster of last March, which killed 26 men, seemed to haunt all of Letcher County while the 11 bodies were sealed in the mine. After the bodies were brought out Friday, many of the residents who were not directly affected apparently tried to try to put the episode behind them.

At least a third of Whitesburg's 1,200 residents, for example, attended a high school football game.

The eight-month wait had ended at noon. Under a bright sun, about 100 friends and relatives waited quietly near the mouth of the mine. Suddenly, when the bodies came out, women screamed and men cried.

Agreement For Sale Of N.Y. Post Readied

NEW YORK (AP) — Rupert Murdoch, an Australian who runs a worldwide publishing empire from London, has achieved an agreement in principle to buy the New York Post, the only citywide afternoon daily here.

Dorothy Schiff, publisher of the Post, announced the agreement Friday. She said the transaction is subject to preparation and execution of a definitive sales agreement and several other unspecified conditions.

The sale of the tabloid Post would be to News Limited and News International Limited, two companies owned by Murdoch.

The 45-year-old Australian, best known in England for his use of racy pinups in morning tabloids, publishes more than 60 newspapers and magazines around the world. The London Sun, ailing when he bought it, now thrives with a circulation of 3.5 million.

In the United States, Murdoch already publishes the National Star and the San Antonio, Texas, Express and News. His international empire includes a record company, a book publishing firm and television interests.

The Post, oldest continuously published daily in the nation, was started in 1801 by Alexander Hamilton. In recent decades it has consistently supported liberal causes.

Old Folks Laying Own Water Pipe

HOPE, Idaho (AP) — Almost all the 94 residents in this northern Idaho town are 60 years old or older. But they need a new water line and money is short so they plan to do the work themselves.

The townspeople have formed a senior citizens' brigade to lay three-quarters of a mile of pipe from the town's spring, high on the side of 6,149-foot Roundtop Mountain.

The alternative is hiring someone, and the estimated $80,000 expense would empty the Hope treasury.

"That's why we're laying our own water line," said Mayor Al Williams, 60. "We don't want to go into debt to hire a contractor. It would have wiped out our city finances."

With the brigade providing the labor, the cut-rate price to replace the 70-year-old pipeline will be $11,000.

Few residents get much water from the pipe now. An engineering firm found 18 big leaks a few months ago. Williams says Hope was losing a third of its water as it ran from the mountain.

Few of the Hope residents, most of whom are retirees who came to northern Idaho to admire the scenery and escape high city taxes, resisted the call to muster a work force.

Study Rebuffs Myth....

the last five years, though the North's growth was but 1 per cent. The birthrate in the South was greater than the North, however.

Overall, there is a migration to the South but "there were significant movements in both directions," the reported said, adding that the migration South may be temporary.

—INCOME. Every state in the South had a per capita income below the national average, but in the North only Wisconsin and Indiana were below the average, and they were down but four percentage points. Eleven of the 14 southern states were more than 10 points below and four of them were more than 20 points below.

"Even with greater federal expenditures in the South, per capita incomes in the Sunbelt-South are generally lower than those in the northern tier," it said.

The study also found that wealth was more evenly distributed in the North than in the South. "Even the relatively low per capita income of the South overstates the economic welfare of its population," it said.

—POVERTY. In 1970, nearly 37 per cent of the nation's poor lived in the North but the South had nearly 44 per cent of that population. In addition, some 21 per cent of the southern population was in poverty compared to less than 10 per cent for the North.

—UNEMPLOYMENT. In 1975 when 8.5 per cent of the nation's workers were unemployed, the rate in the North was 9.9 per cent while the South had an unemployment rate slightly below the national rate.

—EMPLOYMENT. Nonfarm employment grew only 1.3 per cent in the North in the first five years of this decade while it grew 16.7 per cent in the South. State and local government employment also had a large increase in the South.

Migration to the South played little role in the loss of jobs in the North. Between 1969 and 1972, some 50 per cent of the jobs lost in the North came because the companies went out of business and only 1.5 per cent of the jobs were lost because of moves to the South.

Ayden Citizens Face Anti And Pro Petitions On Sunday Hours

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — Citizens of Ayden have been confronted with two

MARK BOSSE

petitions recently concerning the closing of businesses on Sunday. The petition to close businesses on Sunday was presented by a group with Rev. Stan Wingard of the Community Baptist Church serving as the spokesman. Last weekend a petition was circulated which showed support of Sunday opening after church hours of 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Willis E. Manning, Jr. was the originator of the petition to allow businesses to operate their businesses as they wish.

The Ayden Town Board will consider the matter at its December 6 meeting and official action will be taken at the board's regular meeting Monday, December 13.

The following residents of Ayden gave their comments concerning closing the stores on Sunday:

"I think that it would be okay to allow the stores to say open on Sunday, but they should be closed during the church hours," Greg Little said.

"It doesn't matter to me one way or the other. I don't come to town much on Sunday and I don't buy much on Sunday," Helen Cannon said.

"I think that the stores should be closed on Sunday because Sunday is the sabbath day," Beatrice Hill said.

I don't think that the stores should close on Sunday because some people who need to get out during the week and can't, can get out on Sunday and get the things that they need. Besides, I don't think that it reflects on their religion one way or another," Terry Payne said.

"I really don't think that the store owners should be forced to close on Sunday. It should be left up to the owners of the stores. Being open after 1 p.m. does not conflict with church," Mark Bosse said.

"I think that we have won the right to stay open already because the people of Ayden have enough respect for the rights of individuals. We don't plan to stay open year around anyway. We are doing it for the consideration of the customers, not the personnel," Arden Stroud said.

"Even though it is in my favor that the Greenville stores are closed on Sunday, the Blue Law regulations there are ridiculous. If we are told to close on Sunday then we will close everything up tight, right down to cigarette machines," Stroud said.

"I think that the businesses should be allowed to be open whenever they want," Sharon Wood said.

"As far as whether the stores should be open or not it should be up to the individual businesses whether to stay open or not," Diane Hill said.

"I'm not in favor of being open on Sunday. I honestly think that nationally it is a sign of weakening Christian morality," Jim Abernathy said.

Pitt ACS Meet Held Tuesday

Mrs. Nancy Furlough, a vocational rehabilitation graduate student at ECU, was the guest speaker at a public education meeting sponsored by the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society (ACS) Tuesday night.

Mrs. Furlough presented her plans to organize an Ostomy Rehabilitation Program under the auspices of the American Cancer Society in Pitt County. This program is being set up in lieu of a written thesis by Mrs. Furlough as a requirement for her Master of Arts degree. She explained that she is working with area doctors in locating former patients who have had ostomy surgery. Letters will be sent to the ostomy patients encouraging them to take advantage of the new program. Eventually the organization will hold regular meetings with programs related to the special needs of the ostomate.

Dr. Steven Bartlett and Dr. Emmett Walsh, president of the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society (ACS) agreed to help the proposed program.

Two ACS films were shown, "A Race Against Time," and "How To Examine Your Breast." Dr. Walsh urged members to recommend these and other available films to civic and church groups throughout the county. The unit agreed to purchase "How To Examine Your Breast" from the N.C. Division for use in local programs.

Mrs. Jackie Berbert presented a brief outline of work being done by the Public Education committee chaired by Cynthia A. Saleeby.

A mother/daughter program is being planned for the five high schools in Pitt County. This educational program is designed for senior high school girls and their mothers or guardians. Mrs. Berbert also reported on employee education programs which have given. Dr. Walsh and Mrs. Saleeby have held a film showing with follow-up discussions to employees at the Procter and Gamble plant. Other similar programs scheduled are the Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, St. Peters Church and Welcome Wagon.

Mrs. Jane Fleming, unit director, announced that Dr. Walsh has volunteered to be the 1977 Crusade Chairman. She asked the Executive committee members, board of directors and unit members present to consider crusade strategy and leadership and several recommendations were made.

Law Enforcers Receive Grant

A regional communications grant of $144,630 was funded by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and for the Greenville, Belhaven and Williamston Police Departments.

According to a spokesman for the Mid-East Commissioners' Criminal Justice Program, the project has paid for completion of the comprehensive communications system in the five county Mid-East Region.

A basic goal of the project involved the conversion of communication systems in the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and the Greenville Police Department to the VHF communication systems in use in most of the region's counties.

The problem of limited portable communication coverage within certain areas in Greenville had prompted the police department to request funds for converting its current system to the VHF system, in accordance with the Regional and State plan.

Final system checkouts were held last month, and the project has successfully completed the final conversion to a VHF system in Pitt County and in the Town of Greenville and minor communications additions and adjustments in two police departments.

The Mid-East Region now possesses a coordinated five county communication system consistent with the Systech Plan.

NCSL Council Meet Today

The Interim Council meeting of the North Carolina Student Legislature (NCSL) will be held today at ECU's Mendenhall Student Center from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Rep. Walter B. Jones and Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins will attend.

The NCSL is composed of delegates from 40 state colleges or universities. Twenty schools are expected to be represented at today's meeting.

City School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Greenville elementary schools have been announced as follows:

Monday—hot dogs with chili, cole slaw, apple, raisins and peanuts, milk;

Tuesday—baked turkey, rice or dressing, peas, corn, cranberry sauce, rolls, milk;

Wednesday—vegetable soup and crackers, peanut butter sandwich, strawberry shortcake, milk.

A lot of old traditions have died out. Even Thanksgiving has changed. It used to be that the people of the New World beheaded a young girl to mark the occasion. You just don't see that sort of sacrifice anymore.

Of course that particular custom was peculiar to the Indians, not the Pilgrims. Mexican Aztecs offered a damsel to the corn goddess Xilonen. A similar practice was common among the Pawnee, while other North American Indians used a corn dance to celebrate the harvest.

It just goes to show that the modern picture of Thanksgiving — religious refugees in somber costumes offering thanks for a skin-of-the-teeth existence — is a little out of focus.

The Pilgrims weren't even the first English settlers on this side of the Atlantic to have a Thanksgiving.

As harvest festivals, Thanksgivings stretch back to the ancients of Egypt, Syria, Mesopotamia and Rome. Such celebrations survived in medieval Germany, France, Holland and England as the Roman Catholic Feast of St. Martin. It was observed each Nov. 11 — coincidentally the day in 1620 when the Pilgrims set sail.

By that time a band of Englishmen in Virginia held a thanksgiving, on a plantation about 30 miles west of Jamestown. The day was Dec. 5, 1619. An order of the Virginia Company of London decreed:

"We ordain that the day of our ships' arrival at the place assigned for planting in the land of Virginia shall be yearly and perpetually kept holy as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God."

Before that, English fishermen at Newfoundland had observed a day of thanksgiving in 1578, and in 1607 the people of the Popham Colony on the Maine coast set aside such a day.

Nevertheless, it's the Pilgrim version of the event that captured the American imagination.

Venison, duck, goose, fish, eels, white bread, corn, leeks, watercress, greens, plums and berries were on the first menu, but turkey and pumpkin pie weren't listed in records of the event.

Indians killed five deer for the feast and staged military prowess with a bow-and-arrow demonstration.

Not until July 8, 1630, when a supply ship arrived, was a thanksgiving again celebrated. The Pilgrims felt such festivals ought to be spontaneous rather than matters of form, but Connecticut had an annual harvest festival by 1649 and Plymouth by 1668.

During the Revolution, the Continental Congress proclaimed occasional thanksgiving observances. George Washington issued the first presidential thanksgiving day proclamation, for Nov. 26, 1789.

Thomas Jefferson, apparently more sensitive to conflicts of church and state, didn't care for the idea of a federal thanksgiving holiday and none was decreed again until 1815.

Observances were left thereafter to the states. By 1859 many states were proclaiming the fourth Thursday in November as thanksgiving.

That, perhaps, is attributable in large measure to Sarah Hale. As editor of the Ladies Magazine in Boston and later of Godey's Lady's Book of Philadelphia, she pushed for a standard observance.

She lobbied in letters to presidents, governors and other men of influence.

Mrs. Hale wrote her crowning thanksgiving editorial in September 1863. On Oct. 3, a national proclamation, echoing much the same sentiment as her editorial, was issued by Abraham Lincoln.

Almost every president and governor has since followed Lincoln's lead, proclaiming the fourth Thursday of November as Thanksgiving.

Just one man has tried to alter the tradition. In 1939, attempting to help merchants by lengthening the Christmas shopping season, Franklin Roosevelt moved Thanksgiving ahead one week.

The change was protested and in 1941 Congress issued a resolution moving the holiday back to the fourth Thursday.

So far as can be determined, nothing but turkeys have been beheaded since the demise of the Aztecs.

'Smokey' Likes CB Warnings

By JOHN D. MCCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

What's a state trooper's reaction when he hears a citizens' band radio blaring out his location as he patrols the highway?

"I like Smokey reports," says Michigan State Police Lt. Rod LaMore. "There's nothing I dislike more than a CBer saying: 'It's clean and green, put the hammer down.' That means there are no policemen around."

That lack of policemen often means speeders, and that means traffic accidents, he and several other state police officials attending a recent CB-motorist aid conference said.

"Each time a Smokey call goes out, it's doing exactly what we want it to do," Cpl. Jerry Eiseman of the Maryland State Police told the conference sponsored by the Transportation Research Board. "When they give out our location, they're telling people where we are. Motorists then slow down and also know where help is if they need it."

"In the beginning," said Ron Sostkowski of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, "policemen looked down on CBers because of their detection and announcement of the location of police cars. There was little thought given, though, to the fact that traffic was slowing down in these areas (of such broadcasts)."

One exception, Eiseman said, is in some rural areas where often the state trooper is the only police official for miles. Then, such a CB report could alert criminals to police surveillance.

According to participants at the conference that included representatives from government, academia, the electronics industry and CBers themselves, more and more state police organizations are appreciating the aid CBers can provide motorists.

"There's nothing in sight to replace CB as a motorist aid," Eiseman says.

"We get faster responses to complaints received over CBs because of quick access to the radio and fewer relay points, particularly when the trooper receives the call directly from the motorist, adds Lt. C. J. Hunter. His Ohio State Highway Patrol has equipped all of its cars with CB receivers.

Rare Antique Toy Store Delights Kids Of All Ages

By GAY PAULEY

UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Grover Dexter and Yoji Morimoto, actors from opposite sides of the world, follow one cue in common.
Antique toys are kid stuff — for kids of all ages.
Dexter, from south New Jersey, and Morimoto, from Tokyo, found their common interest in collecting old toys while Dexter and his musical comedy troupe were touring Japan. Eventually Morimoto came to the United States.
"We decided to open a shop when our respective apartments were overrun with our collections," said Dexter. That was nearly eight years ago. The result was Second Childhood, a neat and fascinating shop on Bleeker Street in New York's Greenwich Village.

"We hit it lucky on timing," said Dexter. "Right then, more people were getting interested in old toys."
"Most customers love toys somehow connected with their childhood."
"But you'll find collectors who concentrate on just one type of toy, say racing car models or motorcycles."
Others collect with a motive rather than actual love of antiquity. Architects will collect for a design idea, toy designers to update an old idea.
Collectors come in all ages and from all parts of the world.
"We get them from 10 to 80," said Dexter. "By word of mouth or through mention in shopping columns and the like, we have collectors from all over Europe, Canada, the United States, including Hawali. We don't have anybody in Alaska — yet. Many of our customers come into the shop while they're in New York on vacation.

"When we know of specific things a customer is looking for, we will contact him or her."
Dexter said his collecting must have started subconsciously because he was a child of the Great Depression. When his father lost his job in the Camden, N.J., shipyards, he turned to carving toys. "We kids sanded at night. Dad painted, and we sold them around Christmas-time on the street corners."
"I remember our Christmas would be an orange or an apple in a sock," he said. "Now, in my second childhood I'm surrounded by toys."
Dexter grew up to come to New York to study drama and eventually had his own company, the Commedia dell'Arte, which he called "an artistic success. We did several Lincoln Center appearances and, of course, toured." He was actor, singer, dancer, mime, producer and director. He closed the company because the wage scales of the various unions "discouraged us."

Morimoto came to the United States in 1964. Nearly eight years ago, the two men turned their hobbies into a business: "We needed some bread and butter."
Morimoto still acts and you'll hear him often as the voice-over on commercials.
Not all the toys at the shop are antiques: "A toy should be 100 years old or older to rate that. We have some dating from 1830s, the 1850s."
From circa 1830 comes a pewter plate, about two and one-half inches in diameter, with the ABCs cast around the rim. It was a home-teaching tool for beginning readers.
Another, around 1850, featured Tom Thumb surrounded by the ABCs.
Second Childhood has numerous collectibles, old and rare, but not aged enough to rate the "antique" label.

A big thing now with collectors ties in with the comics or movie personalities, Dexter said.
They date from 1918 on through the forties. They include the early Charlie Chaplin dolls, Betty Boop with a ukelele, Felix the Cat, Popeye and the whole cast from that strip, Donald Duck, Mickey Mouse, Buck Rogers, Howdy Doody, and miniatures of the Beatles.
Space toys are becoming collectibles, Dexter said. "Robots, walking spacemen, mini-rockets ..."
Strangely there are not very many dolls at the shop. Dexter said: "Antique dolls and doll houses go as fast as we can find them. There are so many collectors in this area." But you can find a kewpie, the mini-doll made of celluloid, bisque, or china.
The shop features many military-type toys, from marching soldiers to replicas of World War I equipment to miniatures of World War II ships and planes that the armed forces used to teach identification of air and seacraft, friend or enemy. Dexter doubted that toys military ever would go out of style with collectors.

"Men seem to have been fascinated with war since recorded history," said Dexter. "I wouldn't be surprised if the cave man collected clubs."

Snowless Ski Runs For Few

By BRENDAN RILEY

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Is this the winter you're finally going to learn to whiz down snow-covered ski slopes without falling head over heels? Well, don't wait for the snow to come.

Prescription For Buyitis

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — For both men and women afflicted with "buyitis" what is needed is some meaningful dosage of deterrent medication, says W. Scane Bowler, chairman and chief executive officer of a national financial services organization.
The head of Pioneer Western Corp. offers this prescription:
—Inject yourself with a healthy dose of willpower.
—Don't let "blinders" for those shopping forays.
—Refuse to allow yourself to be attracted by not really needed items.
—Prepare, and religiously follow, a carefully prepared list of must-haves.
—Develop a program of thrift for the time when doldrums hit and the "blues" set in. Buying that new hat or suit may well cheer you up, but it does diminish the savings account.
—Resist the temptation of buying when window shopping or browsing. Think about it first — and if it still appeals to you the next day — it may be a better purchase.
—Carry credit cards only if you are sure they are going to be needed. Their absence can forestall some really unnecessary purchases.
—Use the telephone to shop — not your pocketbook. A much-needed item, advertised in the newspapers and purchased by phone, can avoid those impulsive buys. Otherwise you may go out to buy a tie or a loaf of bread and end up with a full shopping bag.
—Learn to say no — to shove yourself away from the buying table. Strict budgeting down to the last penny of your income is the name of the game.
—And, finally, try to remember that the path to financial insecurity is paved with good intentions.

around the country. And if you can find a ski deck operation near you, you may be able to learn everything from rudimentary snow-plow turns to fancy trick skiing long before the fluffy white stuff falls.
Operators say there are many advantages in practicing on the rolling, carpet-covered ski decks: You're not likely to get any injury worse than rug burn, you'll stay dry and you can learn as much about skiing techniques in 30 hours as you might in two years of regular snow skiing.
Tom Harmon, manager of the World Freestyle Training Center at a High Sierra ski resort near here, says ski deck practice is actually tougher than snow skiing because "it won't cut you any slack."
"Snow is more forgiving. The ski deck isn't. You have to get your techniques just right or you'll fall down."
Falling down on a rug is a lot easier than falling down on snow.
"You get tired of falling down pretty soon and you start to use the techniques we teach," he says. "It takes stamina, you're constantly skiing. You have to 'edge' your skis all the time. That's how you learn control."
"I think it's the best way for a beginner to learn," he says. "And trick skiers can really learn the precision techniques they need to know."
The ski deck is set on a 13 degree angle and moves at about five miles an hour. The average pleasure skier moves down the slopes at about 15 or 20 miles per hour, as do many "ballet" trick skiers.
The deck doesn't have to move that fast because the nylon carpet covering it has more resistance to a ski than snow. That means the effort you put on the 15-foot-wide, 30-foot-long deck to practice turns and other techniques is about the same as the effort required on regular snow.
The "ski deck" skier is outfitted with special short skis and regular ski boots. Jeans and a long-sleeved sweatshirt will complete the getup.
An instructor watches you, and you can watch yourself in a mirror placed in front of the deck. Harmon says students learn at their own pace, and "we try not to be football coaches" by demanding more of the students.

Book Is Compelling Account Of Hitler

ADOLF HITLER. By John Toland. Doubleday. 1,035 Pages. $14.95.

John Toland's "Adolf Hitler" attempts to make humanly believable a man whose deeds so horrified a generation that he is usually seen in inhuman distortion. The result is a compelling historical narrative that runs 897 pages plus notes and will leave many readers wishing it were longer.

There is no lack of material on the life and times of Adolf Hitler. Books, records and documents abound. On top of this, Toland lists interviews with more than 150 persons who knew Hitler or were close to him — his secretaries, doctors, associates and their families — to gain the personal insight that enriches the book. Many of the former Nazis interviewed were speaking out for the first time, persuaded that after 30 years it was time to give their version of events.

The well-known outline of Hitler's life does not change. And the bulk of the detail is not new. But Toland puts it together with the fine hand of a historian who won a Pulitzer Prize with his previous book, "The Rising Sun: The Decline and Fall of the Japanese Empire, 1936-45."

Against the background of Germany's political and economic chaos after World War I, Toland follows step by step Hitler's rise to control of the political party that he was originally assigned to observe as a low-ranking member of Germany's shrunken postwar armed forces.

His emergence as a hypnotic speaker who could sway huge crowds, hard to believe in retrospect, is documented by the comments of those who heard him at the struggling party meetings, before he had the impressive staging and mass hysteria that came once the party was rich and the nation in its control.

Toland calls Hitler "probably the greatest mover and shaker of the 20th century." Although it may have seemed so to many, Hitler did not just suddenly arrive at that peak from nowhere. One of the great merits of Toland's book is his tracing of Hitler's rise to a position of unequalled power.

With a wealth of evidence Toland buries the myth that Hitler did not know of the death camps and extermination of six million Jews and would have stopped the inhuman program had he not been duped by underlings. Toland establishes that Hitler was the author of the program and at considerable sacrifice and cost in the face of a hopeless war continued his maniacal, personal ambition to rid Europe of Jews.

If the book has a fault, it is that Hitler's years in power are less believable than his rise to power. On the larger international platform on which Hitler now played, his own personal contribution is sometimes lost. Toland keeps in tight grasp the world political developments and indulges curiosity about such personal details as the man's health and girl friends, but somewhere we miss just how Hitler achieved what he did, especially in those early years in office.

Just what was his personal role in bringing economic order out of chaos, in reorganizing German life and raising a prostrate nation to pride and position and a degree of wealth that impressed Olympic visitors in 1936? These are the achievements that prompt Toland to observe, "If Hitler had died in 1937 on the fourth anniversary of his coming to power — the great economic crisis notwithstanding — he would undoubtedly have gone down as one of the greatest figures in German history."

We are told Hitler had a photographic memory, rapid grasp of written reports and of situations, and acted sometimes on impulse and sometimes with great patience. But the details of how he ran things in those crucial years are missing.

It can only be a compliment to such a big book to ask for more.

Breads Take Potato's Place

By MICHAEL O'REGAN

BONN (UPI) — One of the most important products of the New World is being disdained by West Germans in America's Bicentennial year — the potato. The summer drought in West Germany helped the price skyrocket for what Germans sometimes call apples of the earth. Their price has risen 100 per cent since last year, to 50 marks, or $20, a hundred-weight.

So ingenious housewives seem to have turned an old adage on its head: they could almost be said to be living by bread alone, instead of bread and potatoes, one of the most popular starchy foods in the nation.

The Central Association of German Bakers recently reported that Germany, the richest bread land in the world, has 200 varieties to offer, ranging from soft bread for old people to crispy bread for the young to black pumpernickel, a variety exported to numerous countries.

In Munich, one baker is even experimenting with sauerkraut bread. He said it will taste good with German beer.

A survey of bakers showed two thirds of their sales were mixed or gray bread, 10 per cent black bread, 10 per cent white bread and only four per cent special breads.

The association says every successful baker must provide at least 30 to 40 different kinds of bread.

The bakers say people in the north of the country hesitate less in buying new types such as onion and ham bread. In the south, they detect a conservative taste.

Germany's 35,000 master bakers, who reported 13 billion marks ($5.32 billion) in profits last year, have their problems: chain stores are baiting customers with half-price rolls, and environmentalists are protesting they will not tolerate the fine smell of baking bread in the air. For the latter reason, officials have closed a number of bakeries.

Bakers also say bread prices soon will rise slightly. A one-kilo (2.2-pound) loaf now costs on average of 2.10 marks, or 86 cents.

Nevertheless, police may one day stand guard over bakeries as they now do over potato fields.

With potato thieves at work, farmers have raised the alarm and police in Celle have sent their men on potato patrol.

"Of course, we can't have a policeman stand guard over every potato," said one officer.

This Christmas, Books About Nature A Natural

By United Press International
This Christmas, nature is a natural among gift books.

From the gentle glory of Butterflies, text by Jo Brewer, photographs by K. B. Sandved (Abrams, $18.50) to the terrible beauty of The Book of Sharks, written and illustrated by Richard Ellis (Grosset and Dunlop, $25), there's a world of choice among books that are splendidly illustrated.

There is, for instance, one of the most beautiful of bird books out now, The Audubon Society Book of Wild Birds, by Les Line and Franklin Russell (Abrams, $35), the colorful and comprehensive Fishes of the World, by Edward Miggalski and George S. Fichter, illustrated by Norman Weaver (Knopf, $25).

More off the beaten bird-watching, fish-baiting track, there is Robert Burton's The Mating Game (Crown, $12.95), which will show you more than you ever wanted to know about the sex life of animals from axolotl to zebra. It's illustrated, but not morbidly explicit.

For the lady who thinks diamonds are a girl's best friend, teach her there are other possibilities in The Encyclopedia of Minerals and Gemstones, by Michael O'Donoghue (Putnam, $22.50).

Mountains have a special appeal, and Curtis W. Casevit does his best to satisfy it in The Mountain World, (Random House, $19.95).

One of the best places to go for bargains in nature books is the National Geographic Society. Its latest addition to the libraries and coffee tables of the United States is Our Continent: A Natural History of North America, lavishly illustrated for the comparatively unlavish price of $11.75. A similarly beautiful book from a trade publisher likely would be in the $25-35 price range.

Art books long have been favorite Christmas gifts to present the family that has almost everything else, and top of this list this year goes to one of the most beautiful books of this or any year — The National Gallery of Art, by John Walker, the Gallery's director emeritus (Abrams, $45). The price may seem high, but the 1,120 illustrations — 1,028 in carefully reproduced color — are absolutely gorgeous.

Another expensive beauty is Art Treasures of the Hermitage, by Pierre Cargues (Abrams, $35), which still is a lot cheaper than air fair to Leningrad to see the originals in this great collection.

Or travel back in time with Alice Bellony-Ronald to The Lost World of the Impressionists (New York Graphic Society, $32.50). The author not only uses the shimmering romanticism of the Impressionists to beguile the reader, but recreates the world they lived in that even as they painted was being modernized into the industrialized pollution we know today.

Or go further back to the days of Heraldry, by Ottfried Neubecker (McGraw-Hill, $34.95), or even further into yesteryear with Unicorn Tapestries, by Margaret B. Freeman (Dutton, $45). The unicorn tapestries go back to 400 B.C., and include the seven tapestries of the unicorn hunt hanging in the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art's Cloisters collection.

Other art books of particular interest include Two Centuries of Black American Art, by David C. Driskell (Knopf, $15); Royal Crown Derby, by John Twitchett and Betty Bailey (Clarkson N. Potter, $15), and Stained Glass, by Robert and Jill Hill and Hans Halberstadt (Scribner, $14.50).

It's a good year for collectors, particularly the stamp variety. In the top dollar category, there's Treasury of Stamps, by David Lidman (Abrams, $37.50), and for a less expensive stamp habit there's The Postage Stamp Gazetteer, by Graham Blackburn (Bobbs-Merrill, $17.50).

Looking to put some magic into someone's life? Try The Great Book of Magic, by Wendy Rydell with George Gilbert (Abrams, $19.85), which gives the how-to for 150 "mystifying" tricks.

To flatter a friend at Christmas, try gift-wrapping More Games for the Superintelligent, by James F. Fixx (Doubleday, $5.95).

The American Indian has not vanished from the Christmas gift lists, as proved by People of the First Man, an account of Prince Maximilian's expedition up the Missouri River, 1833-34, gilded by the magnificent watercolors of Karl Bodmer (Dutton, $25). Another possibility is Florence Curtis Graybill and Victor Boesen's accounts of Mrs. Graybill's father's work illustrating the Indians of North America. The book is Edward Sheriff Curtis: Visions of a Vanishing Race, and it includes an excellent selection of Curtis's photographs (Crowell, $35).

For transportation freaks, there's a trio, starting with The Great Auto Races, told and painted by Peter Helck (Abrams, $45). Next comes Tall Ships: The World of Sail Training, by Maldwin Drummond, illustrated by Mike Willoughby, with a foreword — very short — by H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh (Putnam, $20). For flightier souls, there's The Flier's World, by James Gilbert (Random House, $19.50).

Sports fans can get their kicks from Innsbruck and Montreal in Olympics 1976, by Graham Fulton-Smith, James M. Sugarman and Willy B. Wang (Clarkson N. Potter, $10). Or bet on the winningest jockey of them all in The Shoe: Willie Shoemaker's Illustrated Book of Racing (Rand McNally, $14.95).

Books in no particular category but of particular interest include The Very Rich: A History of Wealth, by Joseph J. Thorndike Jr. (American Heritage-Crown, $24.95). It's almost worth the price of the book to see a photograph of the inside of a Rolls Royce created in 1927 with Aubusson upholstery and rococo 18th century decor that looks good enough to drive directly into the drawing room.

Nostalgia for another century takes over in Picture the Songs: Lithographs from the Sheet Music of the Nineteenth Century, by Lister S. Levy (Johns Hopkins, $19.95) and Gilbert and Sullivan, and The Victorian World, by Christopher Hibbert (Putnam's, $24.95).

Authors illustrated and annotated come up with Walter James Miller's Annotated Jules Verne: Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea (Crowell, $16.95) and Wilfrid Satt's The Illustrated Edgar Allan Poe, (Clarkson N. Potter, $12.95).

A gift of words would be Webster's Collegiate Thesaurus (Merriam, $8.95), which the publisher says is the first wholly new book of its kind since Roget published his original work in 1852.

Who Was Jerry Sullivan? Another Murder Victim

By MIKE SULLIVAN
For The Associated Press
There were 20,510 persons murdered in the United States in 1975, according to "Crime in the United States," the FBI's annual report.

Three out of every four homicide victims were male and 51 per cent of the males were white. The age group with the largest number of victims was 20 to 24, with 2,934 killed.

If you search through the voluminous report, you will learn that there were six homicides in rural Mendocino County, California, in 1975.

These are all statistics, lacking flesh and blood.

All but one. One of these 20,510 murder victims, one of these 2,934 between the ages of 20 and 24, one of the six killed in Mendocino County was Jerry Sullivan, 20.

Who was Jerry Sullivan? Jerry Sullivan was my son. Jerry was born and raised in Howard Beach, a community on the shores of Jamaica Bay, hard by Kennedy Airport in New York City.

He was the youngest of four brothers and, when still a toddler, he tagged along with me to watch his older brothers play baseball. Jerry caught on fast and later became a good ballplayer himself.

Jerry went to Our Lady of Grace School in Howard Beach and to Bishop Loughlin High School in Brooklyn. Growing up, he played on many Catholic Youth Organization baseball and basketball teams. He soon earned the reputation of being a team player.

Jerry was extremely modest and was embarrassed by praise. A few nights before he graduated, he told me he had to go back to school for something. When he came home, the trophy he carried was a little too big to sneak up to his room unseen. A little plate on it read "MVP — 1973 Jerry Sullivan."

One summer, Jerry and a few friends rode their bicycles from Howard Beach to Cooperstown, N.Y., on the western slope of the Catskills to visit the Baseball Hall of Fame. The trip over the mountains wasn't easy for boys accustomed to the flat, sea-level terrain of Long Island.

Jerry had the usual after-school and summer jobs. He worked in a local drugstore; he was a busboy in a small Italian restaurant. He saved his money and wanted to ride his bicycle across the country the summer after he graduated from high school. Jerry couldn't get anyone to go with him, and I refused to let him make the 3,000-mile trip alone. I was afraid that something might happen to him on the road.

Jerry's disappointment was assuaged when I gave him permission to go to a small college, Dana, in Blair, Neb. He worked hard that summer and saved his money to help pay his college expenses.

But Jerry stayed in college only six weeks. He came home and told me he'd had enough of school and wanted to work with his hands.

He had several run-of-the-mill jobs and then, one day, in the spring of 1974, Jerry took off. He left us a note and told us not to worry ... "we were only a telephone call away." He promised to keep in touch with us and he did. A few days later we got a note from him from Hazleton, Pa., where he visited a college friend at Penn State. A few days after that a letter arrived from Blair, Neb., where he had stopped to see his Dana friends.

Hitchhiking and riding buses, Jerry made his way across the country and landed a job on the Dwyer ranch in Murrieta, 40 miles north of San Diego in southern California. Austin Dwyer, the owner of the ranch, breeds and boards thoroughbred racehorses.

Jerry took to the ranch work as if born to it. He worked hard six days a week and loved it. He learned to ride and acquired a dog and a horse of his own. Dwyer said Jerry never complained about the laborious, unglamorous parts of the job — moving irrigation pipes, lifting heavy bales, and the like. Both Dwyer and Tiofilo Lopez, the ranch foreman, were amazed at the speed with which Jerry, a city boy, picked up the work of the ranch and the affinity he had for the horses.

Jerry worked on the ranch for a year and came home on vacation in June 1975. Working in the southern California sun, he had lost weight but he had never looked better in his life. He was slim, tanned, strong. His friends were delighted to see him and I think they had a

He returned to California on June 23, 1975. I last saw him at Kennedy Airport as he was about to board a flight for San Diego. We shook hands warmly and Jerry said, "Thanks a lot for everything, Dad."

Some time in August, 1975, Jerry broke his leg. It was put in a cast from his ankle to his hip and he had to use crutches to get around.

Jerry tired of hanging around the ranch, unable to work. A horse that he had taken care of in the spring was due to run on Sept. 10 at Bay Meadows, a race track near San Francisco 450 miles to the north.

The people at the ranch tried to dissuade him, but Jerry hitchhiked up to Bay Meadows to watch the horse run. The owner of the horse was surprised to see Jerry in the barn area, took him to dinner and offered to drive him back to the ranch.

Jerry told the man that people had been good to him on his trip up from Murrieta and, as long as he was unable to work, he'd continue hitchhiking to see what Oregon looked like. The trainer let Jerry sleep in the barn that night and Jerry told him he'd be back the following Wednesday to see the horse run again.

Jerry left the track alone early on Thursday, Sept. 11, 1975. Somewhere along the road, another hitchhiker, a man in his 20s with shoulder length hair, joined him. Four persons have been found who gave the two of them rides to Navarro, about 100 miles farther north.

Jerry was last seen alive in Navarro with the other hitchhiker about 7:30 p.m.

His body was found in a stand of redwoods near Navarro on Tuesday, Sept. 16 by an elderly man taking a shortcut through the woods.

Jerry had been shot through the head with a .38 caliber gun. His body was half-in, half-out of a sleeping bag. His wallet and meager possessions were missing. His crutches stood against a tree. He had been dead at least four days.

Jerry was identified the next day by the thumbprint on his California driver's license application on file in Sacramento. That evening, two New York policemen came to my house and told my wife and me that Jerry was the victim of a homicide in California.

Detective Sgt. Ralph Malze of the Mendocino Sheriff's Department in Ukiah, Calif., has been working on the case for more than a year. Lead after lead has taken him nowhere, but he remains hopeful that the murder will not go unsolved.

"We are still looking for Jerry's companion ... I think we'll be able to find the guy. I have to think that. Every day I go out, I think something will come up."

Cookie Ranson For Portrait

YANKTON, S.D. (AP) — Three dozen cookies and a loaf of banana bread brought Alice Kingsbury back home.

Recently, Dr. Kingsbury's portrait disappeared from the hall that bears her name on the Yankton College campus. On the desk below was a note: "Please deposit three dozen cookies and one loaf of banana bread on Observatory Hill this evening and the picture will be returned."

House Mother Alice Johnson followed the instructions and the hungry kidnapers kept their word. Mrs. Johnson says the portrait will be hung a little more securely, but as a precaution she is doing a little extra baking.

VOIGHT ON THE MOVE—UNC tailback Mike Voight carries for a first down against ACC rival Duke in yesterday's game. Voight scored four touchdowns to lead the Tar Heels to a 39-38 win over the Blue Devils.

North Carolina Outlasts Duke In High-Scoring Contest

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Tar Heels accepted a Peach Bowl bid Saturday shortly after defeating rival Duke 39-38 in an explosive Atlantic Coast Conference football game in which Mike Voight scored four touchdowns and raced over for the game-winning two points.

The Tar Heels will meet Kentucky in the Dec. 31 bowl game in Atlanta.

Voight capped a brilliant career by rushing for 261 yards in 47 carries and tied the ACC career record of 42 touchdowns held by Stan Fritts formerly of North Carolina State.

A capacity crowd of 48,000, including representatives of the Peach Bowl, saw North Carolina grab a 21-19 first half lead on three touchdowns by Voight in the second quarter.

Trailing 31-30 late in the fourth period, Duke quarterback Mike Dunn, who also scored four touchdowns, raced over from the North Carolina nine and fullback Tony Benjamin converted on a two-point run to send the Blue Devils ahead 38-31.

With 2:53 remaining, the Tar Heels began their winning drive from their own 21, helped along by a 34-yard pass interference at the Duke 12. The Tar Heels scored with 37 seconds left on a seven-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Matt Kupec to fullback Billy Johnson. Voight then took up the job and went over for the game-winning two points.

Dunn led Duke with 130 yards rushing on 17 carries while tailback Art Gore piled up 107 yards in 20 carries.

The victory gave the Tar Heels a 9-2 season record while Duke finished wound up with 5-5-1.

Gore took the opening kickoff for Duke and ran it back 47 yards. The Blue Devils scored in nine plays with Tony Benjamin banging over from the three.

Voight atoned for two first period fumbles and scored three times in the second quarter. His first touchdown tied the score at 7 on a 14 yard run. Duke then went ahead 13-7 on a 15-yard romp by Dunn to cap an 80-yard drive in six plays.

The Tar Heels retaliated by rolling 78 yards with Voight crashing over from the one. A few minutes later Voight scored again, this time from the 11.

With 45 seconds left before the half, Dunn raced over from the 10 but the attempted two point pass play was incomplete.

The Blue Devils jumped out front 22-21 in the third period on a 20 yard field goal by Vince Fusco. In the fourth period, Tom Biddle kicked a 19-yard field goal to put North Carolina on top 24-22.

Gore returned the next kickoff 49 yards with Dunn capping the drive with a 14-yard touchdown run. The Tar Heels came right back, driving from their 32 to the nine where Voight scored.

Voight wound up with a career total of 3,971 yards rushing, making him the fifth leading college rusher in the nation.

Duke made its final scoring drive by moving 78 yards in six plays. Mike Barney took a pitchout from Dunn and raced around right end 40 yards to the North Carolina 12. Two plays later, Dunn scored from Then, North Carolina proceeded to carve out its final touchdown drive topped off by Voight's run around right end for the winning two points.

The close score matched the close statistics of the game. North Carolina rolled up 369 yards rushing to 351 for Duke.

Freshmen Power Gold To Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It was display time last night for the East Carolina basketball team, and Coach Dave Patton was somewhat pleased by what he saw in the annual Purple-Gold game.

The Gold won the contest, 90-71, and the results left no doubt that the future lies with the youth of this year's team.

The scoring was led by three of the four freshmen on the team, while some of the veterans also came up with some good play.

The accent was definitely youthful, as there are just two seniors and two juniors on the Pirate team, not counting Wade Henkel, who sat out game with an injury.

Topping the winning Gold team was freshman guard Jim Ramsey with 24 points, 18 of them in the second half. Another freshman, Kyle Powers, pitched in 21 points, while sophomore guard Billy Dineen added 17.

Another freshman, Herb Krusen, led the Purple with 23 points, while Larry Hunt, one of the seniors, had 22 points. Hunt also led the game's rebounding with 12.

Junior transfer Don Whitaker added 10 points for the Purple.

The contest was a nip and tuck affair until late in the first half, when the Gold began to pull away.

The Gold got the opening lead, but the Purple came back to tie it at 4-4 then took the lead. It bounced back and fourth with the Purple moving out by as much as five at 20-15. But the Gold finally took the lead at 28-26, and never trailed after that. They built up as much as a nine-point lead in the rest of the half, and took a 41-32 lead into intermission.

In the second half, the Purple never came closer than six points, and fell back by as much as 14 before cutting it to that margin. The Gold pulled back away, moving out to as much as a 21 point lead late in the game.

The big difference was at the foul line, where the Gold hit 20 of 26. The Purple made just three of six. The Purple also hit just 42 per cent of its shots as compared with 57 per cent for the Gold. The rebounding was almost even, 41 for the Gold and 40 for the Purple.

"For the first time in front of a crowd, it was pretty good," Patton said. "We made the mistakes I thought we'd make. But I saw some good things too."

"They showed good hustle, and the Gold played real good defense. The Purple had a breakdown near the end of the first half, and that got them into trouble. One man tried to bring the back, and it takes all five. We've got to work on that, sticking with the basics when we get in trouble."

Patton added that his freshmen made typical freshman mistakes, but that they were impressive. "We've got four good freshmen."

Patton also felt Hunt rebounded well, but added that he forced his offense. "Louis Crosby didn't play particularly well, but he did do some things well. Billy Dineen played a good game, and Cornelius started out well, but I think he lost a little of his intensity."

Overall, however, the coach was pleased. But it is back to work for another week, as the Pirates prepare for their season opener on Monday, Nov. 30, as they host UNC-Asheville.

Hunter Breaks Mark Notre Dame Tops Miami; Accepts Gator Invitation

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame accepted an invitation Saturday to play Penn State in the Gator Bowl on Dec. 27 at Jacksonville, Fla.

The acceptance was announced by Athletic Director Edward "Moose" Krause two hours after the 13th-ranked Fighting Irish defeated Miami, Fla., 40-27 to improve their record to 8-2.

The Nittany Lions, 7-3, close out their season next week against top-ranked Pittsburgh.

"The decision to play was based on the enthusiasm of the Notre Dame football team for this game and their desire to play a fine Penn State team," said Krause.

Along the way, halfback Al Hunter became Notre Dame's all-time single season rushing leader after picking up 128 yards on 27 carries, including one 13-yard touchdown. That gave him 943 yards for the year, 16 better than Marcy Schwartz's 927 yards set in 1930.

The Irish have made six previous bowl appearances, winning four. But they went 45 years without appearing in a bowl game after registering a 27-10 victory over Stanford in the 1925 Rose Bowl.

Their next appearance was in 1970 in the Cotton Bowl against Texas. Since then, they have appeared in a bowl game every year except 1972 and 1975.

Second-string quarterback Rusty Lisch threw for one touchdown and ran for two more as Notre Dame exploded for 24 points in a six-minute span of the first half, then held on to defeat Miami, 40-27.

Miami's record dropped to 3-6.

The Hurricanes, trailing 30-0 early in the third period, charged back behind the passing of quarterback E.J. Baker, who threw for two touchdowns to culminate two long scoring drives. But the outcome was never really in doubt after the intermission.

The Irish opened the scoring with 6:02 left in the first period when Dave Reeve booted a 31-yard field goal. They added two touchdowns before the end of the quarter following Miami fumbles.

Willard Browner's 4-yard option pass to Dan Kelleher capped a 25-yard Notre Dame drive for the first touchdown. The big play of the drive was Lisch's 22-yard completion to Kelleher on a slant-in pattern over the middle.

USC Gets Win, Rose Bowl Spot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Safetyman Dennis Thurman raced 47 yards to score with a recovered fumble before his University of Southern California offensive team came to life Saturday as the Trojans won their way to the Rose Bowl by whipping UCLA 24-14.

The triumph over the slightly favored Bruins, who rallied for two late touchdowns, gave USC the Pac-8 football title plus the date with Big Ten champion Michigan at Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Powerful halfback Ricky Bell gained 167 yards on 36 carries as the third-ranked Trojans whipped the No. 2 and previously unbeaten Bruins. Pittsburgh, idle Saturday, is No. 1.

In the defensive struggle of the first half, it was the 170-pound Thurman, a junior from nearby Santa Monica, who spelled the difference.

When UCLA's Theotis Brown let the ball squirt away after a seven-yard run, Thurman grabbed it out of the air and raced for the score.

In the second half, the Trojan offense came alive with Bell showing the way. First Glen Walker booted a 42-yard field goal, then Bell scored from the one and quarterback Vince Evans raced 36 yards on a touchdown scramble when he couldn't find a pass receiver.

UCLA failed to mount a sustained drive and didn't get a first down in the second half until 6:16 remained in the game. The Bruins scored with 3:59 left on a nine-yard run by Brown and with 2:56 left on Jeff Dankworth's one-yard dive.

UCLA finished its regular season, the first under 32-year-old coach Terry Donahue, with a 9-1 record. USC, loser to Missouri in its opener, is 9-1 with a date next week against Notre Dame.

A full house of 90,519 plus a television audience that included most of the nation, watched Coach John Robinson win the title in his first season after succeeding John McKay for the Trojans.

UCLA's belated rally began with a 60-yard drive in nine plays plus a personal foul penalty against the Trojans.

After Brown's touchdown, the Bruins went for the two-point conversion, still hoping for victory, and Dankworth got it on a pass to Rick Walker.

UCLA followed that with a successful onside kick by Frank Corral that Mike Molina recovered at the USC 47.

Dankworth ran for seven yards and Wendell Tyler was stopped for no gain, but Dankworth hit James Sarpy on successive passes of seven and 32 yards, the latter putting the ball at the Trojan one-yard line.

Dankworth scored on the next play but his try for another two-point play was stopped.

BELL UNDER FULL STEAM—Southern California's Ricky Bell is eating up yards as he races down the sideline against UCLA in Los Angeles Saturday. The powerful halfback gained 167 yards on 36 carries as Southern Cal won 24-14 to gain the Rose Bowl.

Clemson Upsets South Carolina

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Warren Ratchford and Steve Fuller led the Clemson Tigers to a surprisingly easy 28-9 upset victory over the South Carolina Gamecocks Saturday.

Ratchford's rushing set up both of Clemson's first-quarter touchdowns, the Tigers' first in the opening period in 11 games this season, and gave Clemson an early 14-0 lead over the Gamecocks.

Quarterback Fuller scored both of the Tigers' second half touchdowns with runs of five and 27 yards.

The victory gave Clemson a 3-6 record, while the loss, which eliminated the Gamecocks from any postseason bowl consideration, gave South Carolina a 6-5 season mark.

The Tigers drove 81 yards in 10 plays to score after receiving the opening kickoff. Ratchford ran for 10, 11 and 17 yards in the drive capped by Tracy Perry's three-yard touchdown run.

The Gamecocks then drove to the Clemson eight, but Clemsons' Brian Kier intercepted a pass in the end zone which gave Clemson a first down at the 20.

In four plays, Clemson moved 80 yards to score what turned out to be the winning touchdown.

On the first play following Kier's interception, Ratchford raced 64 yards up the middle to the Carolina 26 and three plays later Perry scored his second touchdown from 12 yards out. Jim Russell's extra point kick put the Tigers ahead 14-0 with 3:52 left to play in the first quarter.

Clemson led 14-3 at half time as South Carolina's only three points came on Britt Parrish's 23-yard field goal.

Clemson took advantage of a big break to score their third touchdown with less than four minutes gone in the second half.

Carolina center Don Bobo, attempting to snap the ball on the punt, had the ball slip off his fingertips and the Tigers recovered at the Gamecocks' 16-yard line.

This time it took the Tigers only four plays to score with quarterback Steve Fuller, who scored both of Clemson's second-half touchdowns, going over from five yards out.

The Tigers drove 71 yards in five plays to score their final touchdown, which came on a 27-yard run up the middle by Fuller.

South Carolina scored its only touchdown in the final quarter when the Gamecocks drove 69 yards in 11 plays and quarterback Ron Bass passed to Philip Logan for 17 yards and the touchdown.

South Carolina

With Clemson leading 14-0 in the second quarter, the Gamecocks drove to the Clemson four-yard line and had a first and goal, but the Tigers held on four consecutive plays to take over at the one-foot line.

Clemson then fumbled on its third play and the Gamecocks' Kerry DePasquale recovered at the Clemson six-yard line. This time the Gamecocks failed on three consecutive pass attempts and had to settle for Parrish's 23-yard line field goal.

Clemson's 14-3 half-time lead marked the first time in 11 games that the Tigers held a half-time advantage this season.

Band To Perform At ECU-ASU Game

East Carolina University's Marching Pirates will be on hand and will perform at Thanksgiving Night's ECU-Appalachian State football game, Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of the university, announced Friday afternoon.

The band had decided not to perform after the game was switched from its originally scheduled date of yesterday to Thanksgiving night so that the game could be carried on regional television by ABC. Band director George Naff reported that enough members of the band would not be able to stay over or return to make it feasible for the band to perform.

However, according to Dr. Jenkins, Naff is now trying to contact as many members of the band as possible to urge them to return and perform, if not march, during the activities of the game. In addition, Richmond County High School's band, which won Friday's Band Day, will be present and will perform at halftime.

"It's going to be hard to get some of the people in the band back," Col. Dick Blake, aide to Dr. Jenkins, said. "The School of Music attracts band members from the whole east coast, and even into the midwest, and many of these have already left campus to go home. We will try and get as many as possible to come back if they can."

In addition, MacDonald's of Greenville, has announced that it will feed the band members who do return or stay on Thanksgiving Day. They will receive breakfast, lunch, and a turkey buffet dinner, a spokesman said.

Terrapins Top Virginia For Perfect Season

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Undeclared and untied Maryland, paced by freshman George Scott's two touchdowns, rolled over Virginia 28-0 Saturday and became the first team in the school's 84-year history to win 11 games in a season.

Sixth-ranked Maryland, posting its third straight shutout, reportedly was ready to accept a Cotton Bowl invitation.

The triumph extended the Terps' record Atlantic Coast Conference winning streak to 20 games and gave them their third consecutive ACC championship.

Virginia finished its first season under new Coach Dick Bestwick with a 2-9 record.

Scott led all rushers with 124 yards on 21 carries. The Terps got their other touchdowns from wingback Dean Richards and split end Chuck White.

In beating Virginia, Maryland eclipsed a trio of 10-victory campaigns achieved under the late Jim Tatum.

In 1951, the Terps turned back nine regular season foes and whipped Tennessee in a bowl game to finish 10-0. In both 1953 and 1955, they downed all 10 regular season opponents but lost in bowl games to wind up 10-1.

Maryland marched 55 yards for a touchdown on its first possession but added only one other score in the first half as it committed half a dozen mistakes, including three turnovers.

Richards went in from the five to cap the initial drive, and Scott got his first touchdown on a one-yard plunge with 6:25 left in the second quarter after the Terps took over on the Virginia 31 following a poor Cavalier punt.

Maryland did the rest of its scoring in the third period.

Scott got touchdown No. 3 on a one-yard run after Ken Roy returned the second half kickoff to the Virginia 44. With 12 seconds left in the period, White pulled in a six-yard scoring pass from wingback Don Dotter.

The Terps failed to cash in on three other excellent second half scoring opportunities, fumbling the ball away the Virginia three, then missing a field goal after getting the ball back on a Cavalier bobble. A final period drive by second-stringers was halted at the Cavalier four.

Virginia had its best scoring chances in the opening period. The Cavaliers first moved to the Maryland 23 before bogging down, and a 48-yard field goal try by Joe Jenkins was wide right.

Then, when Virginia stalled again after recovering a fumble at the Maryland 31, Jenkins missed on a 26-yard attempt.

Keydets Get Win Over Indiana St.

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Virginia Military's Keydets broke open a close game with a pair of third quarter touchdowns Saturday and closed their season with a 26-14 sectional football victory over Indiana State.

Andre Gibson, who rushed for 100 yards, scored the first VMI touchdown at the end of a 58-yard drive. The Keydets then held Indiana State on the next series and took just three plays to drive 51 yards.

Gibson hit Johnny Garnett with a 49-yard halfback pass and Kim Glidewell, who rushed for 79 yards, scored from the one to give the Keydets an insurmountable 24-7 lead.

Glidewell's touchdown enabled the senior to tie school records for career scoring with 108 points and career touchdowns with 18. VMI closed its season with four straight victories for the first time since 1967 for a 5-5 record. Indiana State wound up 3-7.

Indiana State scored the game's first touchdown when Bruce Montagner recovered a fumble by the Keydets' Steve Oddi at the VMI six in the first quarter.

O. B. Barnett scored from the six on the first play after the fumble to make it 7-0.

VMI tied the game when the Sycamores' Bill Edwards fumbled the ball at his three while trying to punt on fourth down.

The Keydets took just one play to score. Quarterback Robby Clark went over from the three to tie the game 7-7.

VMI took the lead for good in the second quarter on a 21-yard field goal by Craig Jones. The field goal tied the single-season Southern Conference record of 15 for Jones, and it completed a drive that began on the VMI 20.

The Keydets dominated the first part of the second half with their two touchdowns. The defense was solid, but another Keydet turnover set up the final Indiana State touchdown late in the third quarter.

The Sycamore's Rich Koenig recovered a VMI fumble at the Keydet 32 and it took just five plays before Indiana State's second-string quarterback David Pearre scored from the one.

VMI closed the scoring on the next to last play of the game when Eric Hutchings tackled Sycamore quarterback Pete McCoy in the end zone for a safety.

Johnson Breaks Record As Bulldogs Get Win

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Andrew Johnson plunged into the end zone early in the first quarter to become The Citadel's alltime scoring leader as the Bulldogs trounced Davidson 40-6 Saturday.

The score was set up when The Citadel's freshman running back Lonnie Ford raced 36 yards on the first offensive play from scrimmage in the homecoming victory. The TD also gave Johnson the most touchdowns scored in a career at the military college.

The triumph gave the Bulldogs a 6-5 season record while the Wildcats finished their season with a 2-6-1 record.

On the next offensive series for the Bulldogs quarterback Marty Crosby, who passed for 126 yards in the game, tossed to end John Bradford near the left sideline for another touchdown.

In the second quarter, place-kicker Paul Tanguay connected on a 47 yard field goal which tied the school record of 10 field goals in a season. Then he booted another for 28 yards with just 30 seconds remaining in the half to give him the new season record of 11 field goals.

Bulldog substitute quarterback Mike Condon raced around the left end from 26 yards out with one second remaining in the third quarter for another TD.

The Wildcats got on the scoreboard with 10:19 remaining in the game as quarterback Al Rhyme passed to Page Walley down the middle for seven yards and a touchdown. A pass play for two points failed.

Furman Paladins Crush Wofford

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Larry Robinson dashed for 141 yards and scored three touchdowns as the Furman Paladins crushed the Wofford Terriers 56-14 Saturday in a nonconference football game.

Robinson lifted his career rushing record to more than 3,000 yards. Furman entered the game with a 5-4-1 record compared to the Terriers 4-6 record.

The Paladins jumped out to an early first quarter lead with a 43 yard run by Harry King. Andy Goss missed the extra point attempt to make it 6-0.

Wofford's Sammy Brown picked off a pass thrown by Furman quarterback David Whitehurst and returned it 45 yards for a touchdown.

After an unsuccessful Furman drive, the Paladins punted and Mitchell Gainey, running off left end, carried the ball 45 yards to put Wofford in scoring position again.

Quarterback Rick Cloninger connected with Kent Saad from the 14-yard line for another touchdown and the extra point made it 14-6 in Wofford's favor at the end of the first quarter.

But Furman came back in the second quarter on a 71-yard drive with quarterback David Whitehurst carrying one yard for the TD and Furman went for a two-point conversion to make it 14-0.

They scored again as third-string quarterback Joe Sumrall passed four yards to Jim Wilkinson late in the final period.

Spiders Defeat William & Mary

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Spiders scored two early touchdowns, both on short runs by Demetri Kornegay, and went on to defeat William & Mary's Indians 21-10 Saturday in the final football game of the season for both teams.

Richmond finished with a 5-6 record, while William & Mary wound up with a 7-4 mark.

The Spiders scored on their first possession with Kornegay going over from the one to cap a 65-yard drive.

Ed Krellis, who set a career rushing record for Richmond, put the Spiders on the Indians' 11 with a 41-yard run and a pass interference call against William & Mary gave Richmond a first down at the one.

Following a William & Mary punt, Richmond went 80 yards in 13 plays with Kornegay again scoring from the one to put the Spiders up 14-0 with 7:01 left in the first period.

Cubby Pritchard set up the Spiders' final touchdown when he fell on the ball on the Indians' 26 after Mark Mullady failed to handle the punt.

Four players later, quarterback Dave Taylor found flanker Rickey Brown with a two-yard scoring pass with 13:44 left in the second period.

The Indians finally got on the board with one second before the half when Bill Watson kicked a 37-yard field goal.

Jimmy Kruis' one-yard touchdown run with six minutes left cut the Indians' deficit to 21-10.

Michigan Beats OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Russell Davis knifed across for a pair of three-yard touchdowns runs in the third period as fourth-ranked Michigan ended four years of frustration and won its way to the Rose Bowl with a 22-0 victory over arch-rival Ohio State Saturday.

The triumph lifted the Wolverines into a share of the Big Ten football championship with eighth-ranked Ohio State. Although both teams finished with 7-1 conference records, Michigan earned its first trip to Pasadena in five seasons by taking the showdown it had to win.

Men Get Victory, But Ladies Lose

The East Carolina men's swimming team opened up its 1976-77 season Saturday with victories over Virginia Commonwealth and Furman in a double dual meet held at Minges Natatorium.

In the meet against VCU, the Pirates were challenged, but held on for a 67-46 win. In the Furman match, ECU kept its domination of Southern Conference team intact as the Pirates downed the Paladins 78-35.

Coach Ray Scharf said that the Pirates had some fine individual performances, and that he was generally happy that the team performed so well during the middle of exams. He said they looked a little tired, but hoped that was due to the exam period.

In a double dual women's swim meet, the ECU women's swim team took two losses. VCU downed the Lady Pirates 95-35, and Furman was victorious 97-35.

Jaguars Crush White Oak By 42-0

WAY TO GO, MIKE—Keno Farrow (30) of Farmville Central, lifts teammate Mike Jenkins in joy after Jenkins intercepted a pass to set up a touchdown. FARMVILLE — Farmville Central, unimpressed by White Oak's highly-touted defense, rolled to a 42-0 victory over the Vikings Friday night in the second round of the state 3-A football playoffs.

After the game, Farmville Coach Gene Brewer said, "I felt we could throw the ball, but I didn't know we could run on them as well as we did." But the Jaguars did run, with backs Ted Dunn and Keno Farrow each picking up more than 100 yards and two touchdowns.

The Jaguars' six touchdowns were only one less than the total number of TD's scored on the Vikings during the entire season, including one playoff game.

The victory moves Farmville Central into the 3-A semi-finals. The Jaguars will travel next week to meet Clinton, 33-27 overtime winners over Southern Durham Friday night.

The Farmville defense deserves much of the credit for the win. Besides shutting out White Oak's wishbone, the Jaguar defensive unit scored one touchdown and kept the Vikings in poor field position most of the night.

Mike Jenkins intercepted a White Oak pass and returned it 15 yards for another score while Neil Gordon picked up Farmville Central's final TD by recovering a fumble in the White Oak end zone. Dunn kicked all the extra-points.

It looked like it was going to be a tough night for the Jaguars in the first quarter as the Vikings took the opening kickoff and promptly drove into Farmville territory.

The Jaguar defense held the Vikings without a first down following the kickoff and took over on their own 36 after a White Oak punt at the end of the first quarter.

Farmville moved deep into White Oak territory on their drive. Farrow picked up most of the yardage on a 22-yard pass from Jaguar quarterback Carroll Griffin.

A clipping penalty against Farmville at the White Oak 20 halted the drive and Dunn's 38-yard field goal attempt was wide to the left.

Jenkins set up Farmville's second score with an interception of a White Oak pass. He grabbed the ball at the Jaguar 25 and returned it to the Viking 39.

On first down, Dunn took a pitch around the right end, broke several tackles and moved 16 yards down to the 23. From there, runs by Farrow and Dunn moved the ball down to the one, where Dunn took it in. He added the extra-point kick with 4:09 left in the half.

Two minutes later, Jenkins got his second interception, taking this one in from 15 yards out for a touchdown. Dunn again added the conversion kick to make it 21-0 at the half.

White Oak made a serious threat at the start of the second half. The Vikings recovered their own kickoff at the Farmville 38, as Glenn Davis came up ritory. Much of the yardage came on a 21-yard run by Melvin Meadows.

The drive stalled at the Farmville 37, however, and White Oak's punt went into the end zone for a touchdown.

Farmville was unable to move the ball and punted on fourth down from their 25. Chuckie Candy took the ball at his own 25 and sped down the right sideline 75 yards into the end zone. A clip back at the White Oak 30 nullified the score, however, and the 15-yard penalty moved the ball back to the Viking 15.

The Farmville defense forced White Oak to punt from their own 22. Mike Jenkins made a gutsy catch of the line-drive kick at midfield and returned it to the Viking 29, where the Jags took over.

Ted Dunn broke off the right side for 10 yards on first down and, three plays later, took the ball around right end for ten more, giving Farmville a first and goal on the White Oak three. Dunn took the ball up the middle for the touchdown on the next play. His extra-point kick made it 7-0 with 3:10 left in the first period.

The Jaguar defense held the Vikings without a first down following the kickoff and took over on their own 36 after a White Oak punt at the end of the first quarter.

Farmville moved deep into White Oak territory on their drive. Farrow picked up most of the yardage on a 22-yard pass from Jaguar quarterback Carroll Griffin.

Jenkins set up Farmville's second score with an interception of a White Oak pass. He grabbed the ball at the Jaguar 25 and returned it to the Viking 39.

On first down, Dunn took a pitch around the right end, broke several tackles and moved 16 yards down to the 23. From there, runs by Farrow and Dunn moved the ball down to the one, where Dunn took it in. He added the extra-point kick with 4:09 left in the half.

Two minutes later, Jenkins got his second interception, taking this one in from 15 yards out for a touchdown. Dunn again added the conversion kick to make it 21-0 at the half.

White Oak made a serious threat at the start of the second half. The Vikings recovered their own kickoff at the Farmville 38, as Glenn Davis came up with the lose ball.

A pass from quarterback Glen Kellum to Canady moved the ball down to the 23 before an offside penalty cost the Vikings five yards. On third down, Dunn intercepted a Kellum pass with a spectacular one-handed catch at the Farmville 23. That started the Jaguars' longest drive of the night.

Dunn and Farrow did nearly all of the work, running against a defense reputed to be nearly impenetrable on the ground. An 18-yard run by Farrow gave the Jaguars a first down at their own 44. Dunn then took the ball off right tackle for nine and, after a motion penalty moved it back five yards, took a pitch around right end for 18 more.

Timmy Hall got into the action next, running around the end for eight yards and Farrow carried twice for 12 more. Farrow then took the ball around left end for the score from two yards out. Dunn added the kick.

The Farmville defense forced the Vikings to punt without getting a first down and the Jaguars took over at their 46.

Amos Joyner picked up a first down with a 10-yard reception of a Griffin pass. From then on, it was all Farrow and Dunn.

The two running backs took turns carrying the ball and moved it relentlessly down the field until Farrow took it in, running the final yard untouched around left end. Again, Dunn added the extra-point.

On the next series, Farmville's Kevin Dixon recovered a Viking fumble at the White Oak 17 and Brewer sent in the second team.

It only took them three plays to score. Hall picked up four and freshman Walter Blow carried for five more before freshman Donald Reid took the ball off left tackle, broke into the secondary and appeared to be heading for a TD. He bobbled the ball at the one, however, and Neil Gordon recovered for the Jaguars in the end zone.

White Oak was able to move deep into Jaguar territory on their last possession of the game as Bryan Kight took a reverse pitch 48 yards to the Jaguar 25-yardline. Time ran out, however, to preserve the shut-out.

Boston Hands Denver Second Loss, 112-108

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Celtics, defending champions of the National Basketball Association, met the league's newest threat to their title for the first time Friday. And despite the continued absence of center Dave Cowens, who said earlier in the day he was through playing this season, Boston recorded a 112-108 triumph over the Denver Nuggets.

The loss was only the second in 12 NBA starts for the Nuggets, who have the league's best record.

Charlie Scott triggered the offense with 22 points and Jo Jo White contributed 21 to lead an attack that left six members of the Celtics in double figures.

Dan Issel topped all scorers with 29 for Denver, while David Thomson chipped in with 28.

In other games, Philadelphia remained tied with Boston for first place in the Atlantic Division by defeating New Orleans 100-95; the New York Nets edged Phoenix 90-88; Los Angeles topped Golden State 121-99; Portland outscored Milwaukee 124-111, and Seattle routed Buffalo 130-101.

76ers 100, Jazz 95
Julius Erving's 24 points led Philadelphia over New Orleans as the Jazz played without high-scoring guards Pete Maravich and Gail Goodrich, who were out with injuries.

Nets 90, Suns 88
John Williamson's 15-foot baseline shot with three seconds to go was the difference in the New York Nets' victory over Phoenix. The basket gave Williamson a game-high total of 29 points.

Lakers 121, Warriors 99
Paul Westphal's 17 points paced the Suns. Alvan Adams, last season's rookie of the year, played for the first time in 23 days and 16.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points, Lucius Allen had 25 and Cazzie Russell finished with 24 as Los Angeles posted a victory over Golden State, leaving the two clubs tied for third in the Pacific Division with identical 6-7 records.

The leading scorer for the Warriors was Rick Barry with 23 points, 19 in the first half. SuperSonics 130, Braves 101. Seattle destroyed Buffalo 34-16 in the fourth quarter to score its 25th consecutive victory at home as guard Fred Brown scored 30 points.

The difference in the game was in the back court. Seattle's guards outscored Buffalo's 61-39.

John Shumate was Buffalo's high scorer with 26 points and Bob McAdoo had 20.

Trail Blazers 124, Bucks 111
Bill Walton scored 27 points, 18 in the first half, to lead Portland to its eighth home court victory in as many tries this season over Milwaukee.

Dave Twardzik added 23 points and Maurice Lucas 22 for Portland. Milwaukee's Bob Dandridge led all scorers with 31 points.

Cepeda Guilty Of Smuggling

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, 37, a one-time Most Valuable Player in the National League, faces a possible 10 years in jail and $30,000 fine today after being convicted of possessing and smuggling 170 pounds of marijuana into Puerto Rico.

"I never expected it," said the obviously stunned Cepeda, found guilty Friday in U.S. District Court here. Cepeda had testified in his own defense during the four-day trial.

"What really hurts me is that it was in my own island," added the one-time first baseman for the San Francisco Giants.

Cepeda's longtime friend, Herminio Cortes, a former minor league player tried on the same charges, was found guilty of one count of possession and faces a maximum five-year sentence and $15,000 fine.

A jury of seven women and five men returned the verdicts after deliberating seven hours. Lawyers for Cepeda and Cortes are expected to appeal the decision. Cortes' attorney also said he will file a motion for a judgment of acquittal on grounds of inconsistency of the verdict.

Judge Hernan Pesquera set Dec. 3 for sentencing—exactly one year from the date the pair returned from a trip to Colombia which led to their conviction.

Pittsburgh Accepts Sugar Bowl Invite

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The University of Pittsburgh, aiming to preserve its No. 1 ranking in college football, officially accepted a bid Saturday to play sixth-ranked Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

The Jan. 1 matchup was confirmed in a telephone call received by Pitt officials here from the Sugar Bowl committee in New Orleans, where the game will be played in the Superdome.

Harry England, president of the Sugar Bowl committee, made the official invitation. Pitt Coach Johnny Majors was smoking a cigarette off in a corner of Athletic Director Casimir Myslinski's home, where Pitt officials were gathered, when the call came.

"How about you, John, do you want to go?" Myslinski yelled across the room.

"Where?" Majors quipped.

Squires To Sue NBA

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The exclusion of the now defunct Virginia Squires from the merger of the two major league basketball leagues has led to a $15 million damage suit.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court here Friday by the team against the National Basketball Association, American Basketball Association and several other defendants.

Attorneys for the Squires' franchise, which was struck from the ABA roster prior to the merger, contended their clients are due damages.

They argue damages must be paid because of the Squires' exclusion from the merger of the two leagues.

The Squires had failed to meet their debts late in the 1975-76 season, resulting in their ouster from the ABA at the end of the campaign.

Named as defendants in the federal damage suit besides the NBA and ABA were CBS and all the teams in the two leagues and all the teams' corporate owners.

Redskins Fight For Their Lives

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Backed to the wall in their bid for a playoff berth, the Washington Redskins will be fighting for survival Sunday against the St. Louis Cardinals, who still are stinging from the last meeting between the National Football Conference rivals.

A St. Louis victory would eliminate the Redskins from the NFC wild-card competition and virtually assure the Cardinals, 8-2, of their third straight post-season appearance.

"It's the first time since I've been coaching, that with four games to go, we're fighting for our lives," said Washington Coach George Allen, whose team dropped to 6-4 with a 12-9 loss to the previously winless New York Giants last Sunday.

The Redskins face a Cardinals team still smarting from their meeting Oct. 25 in which St. Louis lost an NFL record eight fumbles en route to a 20-10 defeat at muddy RFK Stadium.

"They're gonna get what's coming to 'em this time," vowed running back Terry Metcalf, who was particularly embarrassed, fumbling four times, in the nationally televised Monday night game.

St. Louis Coach Don Coryell views the rematch as equally important for his team, which still must face NFC East leader Dallas and American Conference East leader Baltimore.

"We can't afford to have a letdown," Coryell said, referring to the Cardinals' last-second 30-28 victory last Sunday over the Los Angeles Rams.

Allison Gets His Last Chance

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Allison feels he missed his best chance to win a Grand National stock car race this season because of one of the few mistakes he's made as a driver over the previous 29 races.

He gets his last chance for 1976, his worst season in racing since 1965, in Sunday's Los Angeles Times 500, a race he's won before, but he considers himself only an also-ran this time without a few breaks.

"The prime candidate" for victory, he said, is David Pearson, who won the pole position Friday at a record speed of 153.964 miles per hour in the Wood Brothers Mercury.

Allison believes Pearson's Mercury turns out 50-60 more horsepower than his. "I don't know how to translate it into miles per hour, but it's a lot," he added.

He credits Cale Yarborough, Buddy Baker, Richard Petty, Dave Marcis and Benny Parsons with enjoying more horsepower than he does, too. But on handling, "consistently, if you took a 30-race average we would be on top."

However, he considers the important thing "get up and go."

"I don't want to call it horsepower; I'm gonna call it straightaway speed," Allison explained. "At Richmond (in September) when it finally looked like we could win a Grand National race, we were all set to go to the checkered flag. We had gassed up, put on new tires and we were leading the race by almost a lap."

"But the caution flag came out and caught everybody else up. On the restart, I slid out and they all got by me."

Rams' Fate Resting With 49er Meeting

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Before the season began, the forecasters figured this game would be a highly emotional but relatively unimportant one. After all, they reasoned, Los Angeles would have the National Conference title virtually locked up while San Francisco would be battling for a little more than a 500 season.

How wrong they were. The Rams, the odds-on choice by many to cruise through the National Football League season and likely candidates to represent the NFC in the Super Bowl, are fighting for their lives.

The 49ers, under Monte Clark, their new head coach, and new quarterback Jim Plunkett, have turned what was once an annual foregone conclusion into one of the league's tightest races.

It could remain just as tight if the 49ers do what they did once before this year, namely beat the Rams. San Francisco did it six weeks ago in Los Angeles, blitzing the Rams to pieces and scoring an impressive 16-0 Monday night victory.

Going into Sunday's Bay Area brawl, Los Angeles holds a slender half-game edge over the 49ers. A victory by the Rams, favored by just three points, would open things up a bit—but another San Francisco triumph would swap the teams' positions in the standings and keep them half a game apart with three weeks of regular-season play left.

In Sunday's other games it's Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Oakland at Philadelphia, Dallas at Atlanta, Washington at St. Louis, Cincinnati at Kansas City, Houston at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Tampa Bay, New England at the New York Jets, San Diego at Buffalo, Chicago at Detroit, New Orleans at Seattle and the New York Giants at Denver. Monday night's game is Baltimore at Miami.

In the past few weeks, it seems neither the Rams nor the 49ers have been trying to win the division. Los Angeles has dropped its last two games while San Francisco has lost three in a row—so something's got to give.

In the teams' first meeting, Jim Plunkett passed for two 49er touchdowns. James Harris of the Rams had trouble passing for anything that night. He was sacked 10 times by the furious San Francisco rush with defensive end Tommy Hart racking up six of them. If the 49ers take Sunday's game, it'll be their first season sweep over their southern rivals since 1965.

Both Minnesota and Oakland can win divisional titles Sunday. The Vikings of the NFC Central are 8-1-1 and poised to lock up their eighth crown in nine years. The Raiders, 9-1, are shooting for their fifth straight title in the American Conference West.

Should both teams win, it doesn't take the pressure off them. They'll still be trying to guarantee themselves home-field openers when the playoffs begin Dec. 18-19. The two teams with the best division-winning records in each conference get that prize.

With Dallas at 9-1 in the NFC East, Minnesota has its work cut out. The Raiders are being pursued for the AFC's winningest records by Baltimore in the East and Cincinnati in the Central, each at 8-2.

The Cowboys have spent most of the season shooting it out with St. Louis and Washington. They can retain their one-game lead—if the Cardinals, 8-

William & Mary To Be Much Improved In '77

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Last year, key injuries and some internal problems kept William & Mary from being atop the Southern Conference, many observers felt.

This year, however, things might be different. The Indians are back in full force, and just could be the team to beat before it's all over.

William & Mary's head coach George Balanis feels that this might be his best team ever. "We have more depth but our schedule is the toughest we've ever had. If we can get through the first 14 games in good shape, we're going to be a contender."

Those first 14 games, however, could be the killer, too. The Indians play their first four in William & Mary Hall. But of the next 10 games, from December 11 until January 15, nine are on the road, including a trip to the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii. Coupled with that are West Coast games with California-Santa Barbara and UCLA.

"We haven't played this type of schedule before, so I really don't know what it's going to do to us," Balanis said.

The Indians will have plenty of experienced talent this year. Back are All-Southern Conference stars John Lowenhaupt and Ron Satterthwaite. In addition, there are 10 other lettermen including five others who have seen starting duty at one time or another.

Of course, the first two are the stars of the team and Balanis looks to them to provide the winning touch.

Lowenhaupt, a 6-5 forward, averaged 16 points a game last year, and led the team in rebounding, free throw percentage and total points. He is considered by number of people as the best all-around player in the conference.

Satterthwaite had some problems last year, quitting the team at one time. But he returned, and according to Balanis has turned his attitude around. He averaged 16.9 points a game last year, leading the team. "He's ready to play now," the coach said.

While these two are almost definite starters, Balanis said he isn't sure who the other three will be. "We are going to play all 14 of our players in every game. We'll have five starters, four top subs and five other subs. There's not a lot of difference between our number 8 and 9 and our number 13 and 14. All of them are going to get the chance to play."

In the backcourt, this group includes 6-1 junior Jack Abrogast, 6-6 junior Mike Enoch, 6-2 sophomore Billy Harrington, and 6-2 junior Danny Monckton.

Up front, the candidates include 6-4 junior Skip Parnell, 6-8 junior Rocky Copley, 6-7 sophomore Mark Risinger, and 6-6 junior John Kratzler.

The centers will come from 6-7 senior Jim McDonough or 6-11 Matt Courage, who returns to William & Mary after a year's absence.

Two freshmen signees will also help, although Balanis said that one, 6-10 George Melton, is probably a year away. The other signee, 6-8 forward Tod O'Gorman will probably give some instant help.

"We are going to be a much improved team but we are going to have to meet the challenge of this year's schedule," Balanis said.

If the Indians do meet this challenge, they will most certainly be among the leaders of the conference.

Bando Signs With Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sal Bando, one of several free-agent fugitives from Oakland, struck a blow for Middle America and the Milwaukee Brewers when he decided to join the perennial cellar-dwellers, spurning what he said were better offers from other major league teams.

"I decided on Milwaukee because, No. 1, their organization. No. 2, Milwaukee is an outstanding place to raise a family."

Bando, 32, averaged 88 runs batted in for his nine full seasons with Oakland. His lifetime batting average is only .255, but he is considered one of the best clutch hitters in baseball.

He drove in 84 runs with just 132 hits last season, had 27 home runs and 20 stolen bases in 26 attempts. His RBI and home run totals were better than any that the Brewers managed.

Passes Milestone

TORONTO (AP) — Linesman Neil Armstrong officiated his 1,600th National Hockey League game Saturday when the Minnesota North Stars visited the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Armstrong, in his 20th season as an NHL linesman, holds the league record for most games officiated. He broke former referee George Hayes' mark of 1,313 games three seasons ago at the Detroit Olympia.

Armstrong, who will be 44 next month, officiates between 90 and 100 games a year.

Scores A Hole-In-One

Earl Bruton picked up a hole-in-one on the fifth hole at Brook Valley Golf and Country Club recently.

The ace was his first. He was playing with Bo Farley and Joe Dudley when he scored the hole-in-one on the 176-yard hole. Bruton used a five wood for the shot.

Jim Fleming turned in his best score on the back side recently, a 38, which included two double bogeys. Terry Sparrow also had a 38 on the back, while Patrick Wilson had a 38 for his best on the front.

A total of 31 teams participated in a Men's Super Ball Tournament. The tournament featured unusual pin placements and various gimmicks on nine of the tees.

First place went to the team of Bo Farley, Barry Gardner, Ted Hall and Joe Dudley, with a 69. Second place, also with a 69, were Bill Mitchum, Red Hawley, Ralph Sullivan, and Marshall Whitehurst.

Third place went to the team of W. C. King, Charles Vincent and Charles Clark, who carded a 70.

The event wound up the 1976 men's schedule of events.

Verdi Is Manager

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets said today Frank Verdi, a 10-year minor league manager, has been named manager of the Mets' Tidewater farm club in the International League.

He succeeds Tom Burgess, who joins the Mets' coaching staff for the 1977 season.

The Mets also said Bob Wellman will manage Jackson in the Texas League and Tom Egan will manage Wausau, Wis. of the Midwest League next season. Wellman replaces John Antonelli, now a minor league infield instructor, and Egan succeeds Bill Monbouquette, now a Mets' minor league pitching instructor.

Market Rebounds From Slump

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebounded from its post-election slump this past week, responding to what it saw as some friendly words from President-elect Jimmy Carter.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down more than 37 points in the two previous weeks, recovered 21.1 to 948.80.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 2.68 to 101.92, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 1.51 to 54.61.

Big Board volume set its fastest pace since late September, averaging 21.24 million shares a day, up from 16.68 million the week before.

The rally began Monday as Carter told reporters he expected Arthur Burns to continue as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The President-to-be said he believed he could work harmoniously with Burns, whose hard line on inflation is widely supported on Wall Street.

Carter additionally downplayed the possibility of wage and price controls — and that, too, was something the investment community wanted to hear.

The Dow rose nearly 8 points on Monday. After a pause for a .08 decline on Tuesday, it moved ahead nearly 3 points Wednesday and another 12 on Thursday. Then it closed out the week with a 1.33 loss.

Some added impetus was supplied at midweek by talk that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, under diplomatic pressure, might delay action or soften its position on an oil price increase.

Late in the week, however, officials in Washington cautioned that they had no hard evidence of such an impending development.

With that question still open, the market showed little response Friday to some cheerful economic news.

Government reports showed consumer prices rising at their slowest rate in seven months, and durable goods orders turning upward.

Streisand's Hairdresser Says 'Much Of It True'

By DAVID DUGAS
NEW YORK (UPI) — "A lot of what people say is true, you know," said Jon Peters through his well-manicured beard. "Where there's smoke there's fire."

The former Beverly Hills hairdresser was talking about all those stories of trouble in the making of Barbra Streisand's movie, "A Star Is Born."

There was the succession of screenwriters. And Director Jerry Schatzberg was replaced with screen writer Frank Pierson who had only once before directed a movie.

Producer John Foreman, a partner of Paul Newman, was replaced by Peters himself. Reports, widely published, said Peters wanted to direct the picture, too. And to star in it.

Kris Kristofferson eventually signed for the male lead — Elvis Presley and Mick Jagger had been mentioned — but soon found himself clashing publicly with both Streisand and Peters. There were Streisand and Peters fights, too.

Peters met Streisand three years ago when summoned to cut a wig for her movie "For Pete's Sake." In no time they were an item. He might not be doing her hair but he definitely had moved into her house. Then he was producing her album, "Butterfly" and getting involved in her next movie.

Riding Wings of a Star
A Svengali relationship, said the gossip, but which one was Trilby?

Now everything hangs on a movie that just might be the most publicized bomb of the year, if you believe what you read, keeping in mind that nobody has seen "A Star Is Born." Its world premiere is Dec. 18 in Los Angeles.

"I mean I have never produced a movie before," says Peters, propping stockings on his Plaza Hotel suite coffee table. "So a lot of the judgments people have made are true. I am riding on the wings of a star. I never could have produced a movie like this without Barbra."

If he's fed up with reading "Hairdresser Jon Peters" instead of "Producer Jon Peters" everytime his name sees print, it doesn't show.

Plays Hollywood Dream
"I play right into the Hollywood thing," he says. "The theatrics of a hairdresser getting involved with the superstar play right into the Hollywood dream. Possibly if I'd been a doctor or lawyer and decided to be a producer the attacks would have been less. That part doesn't bother me. It's painful. But on the other hand that's why they call it show business. I happen to like the show part of the business."

There were problems he hadn't anticipated — "Most the time."

"There were fights, arguments. And in our particular case they were highly publicized because it's Barbra and it's me and this situation. Everytime we burped there was a story about a gastric attack. Know what I mean?"

Argument With Kris
Peters first saw Streisand "10 or 15 years ago at the Coconut Grove (in Los Angeles). I'd never even heard who she was. When she sang, the power she had — the magic in her fingers and face — controlled the entire room. I wanted to capture that in this movie and I knew the only way we could do that was live, with a real audience."

So for a major sequence in the movie he lured 70,000 people to a stadium rock concert in Arizona last spring.

"There was an argument and Kris and I almost got into a fight on the stage," he recalls.

Enormous Tension
"This movie was like that from the day it started to the day it finished. There was an enormous amount of tension. Kris wanting to be great, obviously anticipating what it would be like to work with Barbra, the monster that everybody writes about. So the movie was very much like that."

Peters claims "A Star Is Born" will cost $5.5 million, half a million under budget.

"Nobody thought we could make it for that, certainly not with me producing it."

The economy does not take into account the fact that Streisand is working for nothing, making the film with her own company for distribution by Warner Brothers.

Streisand's Many Roles
"She does not get paid," says Peters, until "Star" makes money.

She'll earn what she gets considering she is the star, contributed songs to the score, often took over the direction, is in effect the executive producer, and currently is editing and dubbing the movie herself with a crew of assistants on a seven-day week.

Peters says "A Star Is Born" bears almost no resemblance to the 1954 Judy Garland version or the Janet Gaynor original although it is about a female star on the way up who's in love with a male star on his way down. This time they're singers, his problem is drugs instead of booze, and he doesn't exactly commit suicide.

Peters considered playing the male lead "for about five minutes" but "as an actor you're so vulnerable." He'd rather play Mike Todd, Robert Evans and Warren Beatty.

Hookers' Hairdresser
He was born in Van Nuys, Calif., "under the Bob's Big Boy sign," the son of a beauty parlor owner.

"My father died when I was young and my mother remarried and it was difficult for me to adjust. I had a lot of problems. I acted them out by stealing cars and got sent to Juvenile Hall."

By 13 he'd finished beauty school. Lying about his age, he got a job with a New York beauty parlor.

"I worked in a hotel doing all these hookers. The hookers would come in and they'd have red hair and want everything to match. If they had a poodle, they wanted it to match, too. I had to leave when they found out I wasn't old enough."

Marry Barbra?
He married at 15. "I lied

COOKING UP A BIT OF A BORE — Bob Trump, who appears to be sitting in a large caldron, is actually changing the drill bit on a jig bore at the Signal Companies' Garrett Corporation plant in Phoenix, Ariz. The "caldron" being readied for drilling, is a diffuser housing for a turbofan engine, an engine that powers aircraft. (AP Wirephoto) about by age again and my mother signed for me," he says.

"I was married for four or five years. Then I was single for a while and borrowed $100,000 at age 19 from a beauty supplier who I ended up buying out."

At 20 he married actress Lesley Ann Warren. They divorced after 10 years, 18 months ago. Their son Christopher, 8, is two years younger than Barbra's son, Jason, by ex-husband Elliott Gould.

The 31-year-old Peters shrugs off questions about marriage to Streisand, 34.

"Some day. Not now," he says. "It hasn't been an issue." Barbra: Courageous Warrior
He figures his future won't hang on the success of "A Star Is Born."

"It's the battle, not the war. It's one step of many I have to take. I think I will continue to make films and do the things I want to do."

He has a three-picture deal with Columbia Pictures that doesn't involve Streisand, necessarily.

He speaks about her protectively.

"People have this fantasy about Barbra being so almighty. She's a courageous warrior — and soft as a flower. She's not jaded, cynical. She asks advice and is curious about everybody's opinion — even our gardener."

As for himself, "When I was 12 they said I was incorrigible. I still am."

New Home Fabrics Are Hailed For Their Romantic Appeal

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
What began as a kitchen table industry in 1954 — little scarves, tea towels and pot mitts — and grew into a worldwide operation that has included romantic dresses, fabrics and other articles designed by Welshwoman Laura Ashley, has now spread to the United States.

Yard goods, special dress patterns, home furnishings, fabrics and wall coverings are being turned out by three licensees.

"And there may be wool rugs and fabrics one of these days," explained Mrs. Ashley, adding that with one thousand sheep grazing about their land, she and her husband, Bernard, were thinking about the possibilities of wool articles.

Whereas it is said that the long dresses, a business that began in 1961, can be worn milking cows or to your own wedding — and they often are — the new home fabrics shown here are being hailed for their romantic appeal. Old quilts, hat box linings and heraldic designs provide some of the patterns that are imaginatively styled by Mrs. Ashley.

"We make the concept of the design in words rather than on paper. The colors may be taken from berries, flowers or grasses. There is a great movement toward simpler things, sort of mannerly, but not unsophisticated," the designer said modestly, in accounting for her tremendous success. In Europe people queue up to buy the designs.

Designs for the American market were selected so there would be no regional barriers. A good deal of emphasis was put on reproducing colors so they are as true as those made in the printing plants that are run by Ashley in three European countries, the two explained on a recent visit to the United States.

"The thing about textiles is that the design is moving all the time and the role of critic is important," Ashley explained. "Laura is a severe critic. She is never really satisfied, although she usually comes promises. Otherwise we wouldn't produce anything."

"And now I know why," twitted Richard Kirkham, president of Raintree Designs. He is reproducing the home fabrics in cotton and wall coverings in vinyl. "Not only are the colors difficult to reproduce here because they are so unusual, but Laura is meticulous. Samples have been back and forth to Europe a great many times while the 11 cotton prints and 15 wallcoverings were evolving."

It has been difficult to persuade Mrs. Ashley that the designs that are on wall paper in Europe could be reproduced as well on vinyl, which the American consumer prefers for its easy maintenance. Ninety per cent of the wall coverings on the American market are washable vinyls, Kirkham said.

The Ashley business is masterminded by Bernard or "D'in Mawr," (the big man), as he says he is called in Wales. They have just opened two shops in San Francisco to add to the 40 in other countries. (Yard goods for dresses is being distributed by Cohama and patterns by McCall's.)

Designs of home fabrics include mythical griffins, animals in forest scenes, swans, thistles. Color combinations include heather and windberry, a wine color, Welsh blue and a brown, as in one medieval animal and forest design. A pattern in blues, greens and lavenders looks monochromatic, and there are numbers of good "bread and butter designs" on ivory and white, as well as geometrics that Kirkham calls superb.

A handsome couple, who seem to relish their business together, the Ashleys have gone from their original little screenprinting press designed by Bernard "to sophisticated printing shops in a cottage industry atmosphere, run by computers," he explained.

A serene-looking, pretty woman of 48, Laura manages to maintain a 14-room, 300-year-old house, which is redecorated from time to time. Mother to four — three grown children and an 11-year-old — she explains that she attributes her composure to the fact that "no matter what happens I never work past tea time."

Couple Speaks Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

AYDEN — The United Methodist Church here was the setting of a candlelight ceremony Saturday evening at seven-thirty uniting Patricia Lynn Bright and Marcus Steven Williams in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Travis Owens officiated at the double ring ceremony. The wedding was directed by Mr. David H. Smith Jr., aunt of the bride.

A program of wedding music was presented by Tony Caraway of Chapel Hill, organist, and Quincy Harrison, cousin of the bride, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "They Story of Ruth" and for the benediction, "The Wedding Prayer."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odell Bright of Ayden, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of white rose embroidered lace over peau de sole, which featured an empire bodice. The wrist length sleeve was accented with rose embroidered lace set off by a double row of bridal pearl lace at the cuffs. The bride's gown was highlighted by a string of pearls belonging to her mother. The gown was styled by the bride's mother and aunt, Mrs. David Smith.

Her Camelot cap, accented with rows of bridal seed pearls, was attached to a chapel length train edged in rosepoint lace. She carried a cascade of red roses with white cattleya orchids with long white streamers.

The church was decorated with a 15 branch candelabra filled with jade foliage. To complete the setting, two 20 branch tree candelabra were used filled with chrysanthemums and gladioli. The family pews were marked with hurricane candelabra. During the ceremony, the couple lit a candle to symbolize their unity as one.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams of Greenville.

The maid of honor was Miss Martha Ann Bright, sister of the bride. Her A-line gown of cranberry boucle knit featured an empire bodice embellished with cluny lace. It was highlighted by a matching bolero jacket edged in lace. Her attire was accented by a matching picture hat. She carried a nosegay of red roses and baby's breath tied with satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Darlene Smith, cousin of the bride of Raleigh, Donna Rouse, cousin of the bride of Ayden, Sandra Tripp and Teresa Taylor of Ayden. Their gowns were designed identically as that of the maid of honor, in that they carried a nosegay of red roses and baby's breath tied with satin ribbons. The bride's flower girls included Leslie Leigh Taylor of Fayetteville and Kim Williams, niece of the bride groom of Greenville. They wore long sleeve formal gowns of mauve color highlighted by a Venise lace bodice. They carried white baskets of sweetheart roses and baby's breath tied with ribbons.

The mother of the bride chose a formal gown of a green knit highlighted with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore an ensemble of ice blue knit with matching jacket. The mothers were honored with a corsage of cymbidium orchids. The bride's grandmother was remembered with a corsage of orchids.

The best man was the father of the bridegroom and ushers included Thomas Williams, brother of the bridegroom of Greenville, Kenneth Smith, cousin of the bride of Ayden, Raymond Tripp of Greenville, and Pat Tripp of Fayetteville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given in the church fellowship hall by the bride's parents. Guest were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stocks and good-byes by Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wooten.

Presiding at the register was Mrs. George Grayiel.

The refreshment table was covered with a white overlaid lace cloth centered with a silver epergne candelabra with white candles, red roses and baby's breath. Punch was poured by Mrs. Clifton Wooten, aunt of the bride. A four tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Margaret Oebri, aunt of the bride. Assisting with serving were Mrs. H. L. Garris, Mrs. Jimmy Langley, and Mrs. Bill Wooten, aunt of the bride. Rice bags were passed out by the attendants.

The Bright-Williams wedding party was entertained at an after-rehearsal party at the home of the bride given by her parents. The home was decorated throughout with arrangements of mums, gladioli and greenery. The bridal party was remembered with gifts by the bridegroom.

The bride chose for her wedding trip, an off-white knit and wore the orchid from her bouquet. After a trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside at Rt. 2, Ayden.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and is currently employed with B & K Trading Post, Ayden.

The bridegroom is a 1975 graduate of North Pitt High School and is currently employed with Eaton Corp., Greenville.

Miss Bright was entertained at a floating bridal shower at the home of Mrs. David Smith Jr. of Ayden. Hostesses were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Winston Wooten, Mr. Luther Nichols, Mr. J. W. Stocks, Mrs. George Grayiel.

The home was decorated with a bridal theme. Gifts were displayed from the bride's chosen partners.

Miss Bright was entertained with a lingerie shower at the home of Mrs. Bobby Taylor.

FOOT TROUBLE

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Eighty per cent of all teenagers are believed to have foot troubles, and most foot ailments can be traced to poor fitting shoes in childhood, says Gail Skinner. Ms. Skinner is Extension clothing specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

She said trouble can begin when poorly fitted shoes push toes out of natural shape, cause corns and bunions and other fitting problems because the bone and muscle structure of the human foot continues to grow for about 21 years.

Ms. Skinner recommends matching children's shoes to the widest and longest measurement of the foot. Both big and little toes should fit into the widest part of the shoe, and the shoe should be about half an inch to one inch longer than the longest toe.

Miss Connie Armstrong Weds Saturday Afternoon

ROCKY MOUNT — Miss Connie Louise Armstrong became the bride of John Wilbur Stoudenmire Jr. Saturday afternoon at the Rocky Mount Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Lonnie Ray Armstrong officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McLean Armstrong of Nashville. She was given in marriage by her parents.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stoudenmire of Sumter, S.C.

A program of wedding music was presented by Betty Mize of Greenville, pianist, and Glenn Mize of Greenville, soloist.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white nylon knit designed with a high neckline encircled with floral Venise lace. The empire bodice was styled with a Bertha effect featuring miniature Venise lace trim and outlined in the floral pattern lace.

Matching lace was repeated on the full bishop sleeves and cuffs. The modified A-line skirt fell to the gathered wattleau train. She wore a white satin bow headpiece with streamers trimmed with white silk flowers and a fingertip length veil. She carried a bouquet of white snowflake and baby mums with white satin ribbons designed with a lift-out going away corsage.

The maid of honor was Wanda Edwards of Greenville. On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"Information on labels enables consumers to better educate themselves," said Mrs. Ila Parker, Martin County home economics extension agent.

Mrs. Parker conducted a special program on "Consumer Responsibilities" at the Pitt County Agriculture Extension office Thursday morning.

She reviewed the following: guarantee; Universal Product Code (UPC) which are bars and numbers printed on packages to identify the manufacturer and the specific product; open code dating includes pack date, pull date, quality assurance or freshness date and expiration date.

The list of ingredients tells what food contains and that some items meet a "standard" therefore the ingredients are not listed; nutritional information encompasses serving size and servings per container, nutritional value of food; the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA); dietary food labels; flavorings and spices; colorings; and contents in the container.

"A good consumer must be informed and educated, know how to make legitimate complaints and where to make consumer complaints including complaining to the seller, writing a letter to the manufacturer, contacting the Food and Drug, Protection Division of the N.C. Carolina Department of Agriculture, attorney general's office, Better Business Bureau and the local Chamber of Commerce," she continued.

She pointed out that in addition to the usual information, such as name, net weight and ingredients, the new label will tell the shopper what nutritional value is in the food. Information will be provided on the following: calories; protein; carbohydrates; fat; Vitamin A; Vitamin C; thiamine; riboflavin; niacin; calcium; and iron.

Nutrition information must appear in a standard format and unless space does not permit, always on the part of the label immediately to the right of the main panel.

Nutrition information is per serving. The label gives the size of serving (for example, one cup, two ounces, one tablespoon) and tells how many servings are in the container. Then calories are listed followed by the amounts in grams of protein, carbohydrate and fat. Protein is listed twice, in grams and as a percentage of the U.S. RDA. Seven vitamins and minerals must be shown in the same order on all nutrition labels. Other vitamins and minerals may also be listed. Listing of cholesterol, fatty acid and sodium content is optional.

U.S. RDA are the amounts of protein, vitamins and minerals that an adult should eat every day to keep healthy.

A consumer can use nutrition labels in many ways: to plan more nutritious meals for the family; to get more nutrition for the food dollar by comparing the nutrition values of different brands and foods; to select food for special diets recommended by physicians; to count calories; and to compare new foods with familiar ones.

Miss Patricia Thompson Weds

LAURINBURG — The marriage of Patricia Ann Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gilbert Thompson of Greenville, and William David Hoban, son of Mr. Albert Joseph Hoban of Jamestown, R.I., and Mrs. Helen Hilary Hoban of North Kingstown, R.I., was solemnized Saturday at 4 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by James C. Lee in the Caledonia United Methodist Church. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Hal McMillan of Laurinburg.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory satin and re-embroidered alencon lace. The empire bodice of lace was fashioned with a colonial neckline and three-quarter sleeves with lace ruffles. A sheer yoke highlighted the bodice. The A-line skirt and detachable chapel train featured appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace.

The bride's floor length mantilla of imported silk illusion was appliqued and bordered with alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses and greenery.

Mrs. Thomas Edmond Efrid II of Wilmington served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a long skirt of Royal Steward plaid, her mother's family tartan and her long sleeved silk blouse was enhanced by a black velvet vest. She carried a nosegay of boxwood and holly.

Miss Judy Fay Taylor of Spring Lake, and Miss Mavis Collins of Lenoir were bridesmaids. They were attired like the matron of honor.

Kevin Joseph Hoban served his brother as best man. Ushers were John Charles Thompson of Greenville, brother of the bride, Thomas Edmond Efrid II and Leon Brogden Jr. of Wilmington, and Thomas Laughlin of Saint Paul, Minn.

George Efrid of Wilmington, nephew of the bride, and Allan Steward, cousin of the bride, served as acolytes.

After a reception at the church, the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Vermont and New Hampshire. They plan to visit the bridegroom's home in Rhode Island where they will be entertained by the bridegroom's mother.

Mrs. Hoban is a graduate of East Carolina University and received her Master's degree from Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C. The bridegroom graduated from Saint Thomas College, Saint Paul, Minn. He is

NEW SUGAR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists at the USDA Agricultural Research Service say sweet sorghum may soon join sugarcane and sugarbeets as a source of crystalline sugar.

A recent factory test produced 22 tons of raw sugar from sweet sorghum that was as pure as cane sugar. The test was the culmination of a long, mammoth effort to develop innovative research and new varieties of sweet sorghum and improve growing, harvesting and processing techniques.

Tests showed that sorghum can be milled in conventional sugarcane mills, and that raw juices can be freed of starch by standard cane juice clarifiers.

currently employed by Mac Millan Buick Co., Wilmington.

The couple will reside in Wrightsville Beach.

The father of the bridegroom hosted an after-rehearsal dinner at the Branding Iron Restaurant, Bennettsville, S. C., Saturday.

for the bridal couple and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Thompson, uncle and aunt of the bride, entertained the wedding party and guests at an informal luncheon at their home at noon Saturday.

Give Of Yourself, Be A Needed Donor

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: There are thousands of people in this country who are lingering as invalids in hospitals, institutions and homes because the transplant organs they need are not available. These include kidneys, corneas, hearts, pituitary glands and other organs and tissues that must be removed from accident victims quickly before oxygen starvation renders them useless.

What most people do not know is that 35 of the 50 states now use the driver's license to identify organ donors. Under the Anatomical Gift Act, which provides the legal support for the driver's license designation, people who are killed in traffic accidents may avoid dying in vain.

The organ donor sticker form (or decal) in 35 states authorizes doctors to remove needed organs after the victim's death and to use those organs in transplant operations.

Readers may learn the details of organ donation laws by writing the Motor Vehicle Departments of their own states. They may write also to the National Kidney Foundation, 116 East 27th Street, New York, N.Y. 10016.

"Gift of Life" laws are relatively new. Their application through the driver's license is increasing among all states. The universal adoption of the Anatomical Gift Act (with its strict safeguards verifying that the donor is in fact dead before organs may be removed) would offer new hope to the country's afflicted.

I have personally "willed" my usable organs, and feel that nothing I could leave after my death will be of greater value.

LOVE, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Because you and I are in complete agreement about smoking, I must share this with you.

I belong to a bridge club that has met every Tuesday for the last nine years. Yesterday one of the women showed up for bridge wearing a gas mask from World War II! She looked both comical and hideous, but she didn't have to say a word to get her point across.

For the first time in nine years, the woman who is a chain smoker did not light up at the table. What a pleasure!

YOUR ALLY IN MARYLAND

DEAR ALLY: Thanks for sharing. Smoking is the only activity I know of in which people do violence to their FRIENDS—not their ENEMIES.

Eastwood-Wood Vows Solemnized

The marriage of Estelle Speight Wood and Benjamin Thomas Eastwood Jr. of Greenville was solemnized Friday evening at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jim Whittington. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Lloyd Scott Dixon, organist, and Stoney Creech, soloist.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Speight of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Glendora Brewer of Greenville, and the late Mr. B. T. Eastwood Sr.

The bride was given in marriage by her son, Danny Keith Wood. She wore a formal length gown of satin polyester. The bodice was fashioned of candlelight lace with seed pearls and featured a scalloped neckline and full length lace sleeves.

She wore a crown headpiece of baby's breath and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of ivy cymbidium orchids, baby's breath, shades of orchid, fuchsia and purple miniature carnations with tips of Baker's fern tied with ivory satin.

The wedding ceremony took place in front of a mantel in the Williams home. An improvised altar consisted of candelabra, a bouquet of pink and white flowers, standards of ferns and a prie-dieu.

Mrs. J. T. Williams of Greenville, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She was dressed in a turquoise formal length gown fashioned with long sleeves and lace insertion at the neckline. She wore a white rose corsage.

The best man was Francis Durwood Tyson of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Bobby Williams of Greenville, nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Both mothers were presented corsages of carnations.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Pacotus High School and is now a claims adjuster for Old Republic Insurance Co.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Williams home. Hostesses were Mrs. Kenneth Whitchard, Mrs. Billy Creech, Mrs. A. J. Speight, and Mrs. Jim Whittington.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of carnations. Mrs. Speight poured punch and Mrs. H. V. Elks Jr. served wedding cake. Mrs. Williams entertained the wedding party Thursday evening at an after-rehearsal party.

FABRIC NONTREND

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI) — Donna Kaiser, showroom coordinator and fabric stylist for a manufacturer here, says if there is any trend in fabric designs for upholstered furniture this season, it is a nontrend. At the opening of the Southern Furniture Market here, Miss Kaiser said almost anything goes: bold, unusual colors as well as neutrals; rough and rugged textures as well as soft and smooth; and both contrasting and subtle, low-key colors.

Study Shows Wives Enjoy Working Role

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Working wives are happier than housewives, according to a recent study by a University of Connecticut social psychologist.

Dr. Myra Marx Ferree, assistant professor of sociology, based her study on the responses of 135 mothers of school-age children living in a working-class community near Boston.

Dr. Ferree, who described the findings in "Psychology Today," found that almost twice as many housewives as employed wives reported that they were dissatisfied with their lives and believed their husbands' work was more interesting than theirs. Only about 25 per cent felt happy with their lives and felt their accomplishments were recognized, she reports.

"More housewives claimed they had not had a fair opportunity in life and wanted their daughters to be 'mostly different' from themselves," she notes.

One working wife told the researcher, "I have to work. If I'm at home, I go crazy. I hit the children. When I work, I'm okay."

Although some women actually enjoy the role of housewife because of the social support it provides, Dr. Ferree adds that "in the present condition of our society, fulltime housework is becoming a job that is difficult to enjoy."

Individual flat rounds of Middle East bread should be reheated before serving. Put them, uncovered, in a moderate oven until they are extremely hot — a matter of minutes.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I don't pretend to be any great shakes on the economy, but when I read that car loans are being extended to 48 months, a shiver went up and down my spine.

For years now, Americans have been running out of car before they ran out of payments. Back in the '40s you were pushing your luck to sustain four wheels through 24 months. Then in the '50s someone decided to extend the payments over a 36-month period. (We paid on our babies that long—but at least they ran.)

What we're dealing with here is Detroit's Law: "If God had meant for you to ride around in a car, He'd have recalled your feet!"

When a car comes off the assembly line, someone stamps an expiration date somewhere under the hood. It is no coincidence that the date is one day after the warranty on everything expires. The car has no interest whatsoever in your personal problems. It does not care if your three-year-old toes in ... that you became pregnant two days before your health insurance went into effect ... that you have a sudsing problem in your front yard just over your septic tank. When it is time to go, the car simply coughs and dies.

For you Future Shock fans, the 48-month loan means that in another 10 years you could conceivably be paying for a car that you don't even remember.

"Hey what's this bill for $73.94?"

"It's the car payment," I answer.

"What car?"

"You remember. The brown station wagon with the wood on it. Don't you have the note on it in the budget book?"

"This one?" he asks, plucking a piece of paper out of the drawer. "It says, 'See Transmission.'"

"Here's another reminder on that car. It says, 'See Battery.'"

"I sure wish I could remember the car," he mumbles.

"I know you'd remember if you saw it again. We had it when the kids were small and there was a big space in the back where we used to carry all kinds of junk—playpens, strollers, toys."

"Yeah ... yeah ... I think I've locked in a picture. It was a four-door and was a real engineering bow-wow." Just then our son comes in to borrow the car keys for the current car. As we walk to the driveway with him, my husband gestures to the five clunkers parked there. "Just think, son, someday all of this will be yours."

Thanks-Giving Square In City

By STEVEN R. REED
DALLAS (UPI) — In 1861 the city observed its first community thanksgiving in a celebration that has evolved into Thanks-Giving Square, an acre of prime downtown real estate leveled, rebuilt and dedicated as a place of world thanksgiving.

The $6 million cost of the pastoral square was raised by private contributors, with taxpayers funding an additional $2.9 million through bond issues for an underground pedestrian way and truck-loading dock.

To those who ask, why Dallas, why Thanksgiving or why downtown, the founders, although businessmen, offer answers not rooted in economic practicality or profit margins.

"Certainly downtown parks have been created in various sizes and some very good, but the idea of giving it a spiritual purpose that is universal and international in scope, we don't find parallels to it," said Peter Stewart, owner of an electronics wholesale firm and president of Thanks-Giving Square Foundation.

"Some very interesting historical themes are being used (elsewhere), but this square looks to the past and equally to the future and present in lifting up the spirits of the people and giving them deep cultural and religious reasons for doing so."

The square is in the center of the business district on a triangular tract that for decades sheltered mostly one-story, turn-of-the-century retail shops of meager fortune. The cafes, shoe shine parlors and miscellaneous franchises came and went while adjacent property gave way to tall banks and office towers.

By the mid 1960s the triangle was an eyesore of 25 generally unimproved storefronts.

On Sunday, Nov. 28, it will be dedicated as a "focus of world Thanksgiving recognizing mankind's traditions of gratitude to God over the ages and celebrating America's oldest tradition."

Its promoters describe the square in lofty terms: "A Hall of Thanksgiving will show for the first time world traditions and creations of gratitude in art, science and life to stimulate 'the Psalm of our own time.'

"As a place of humility, gratitude, silence and meditation, it is a result of deep convictions about our ancient American traditions..."

"... a place of meaning for all humanity."

"... a place of world thanksgiving celebrating the common ground of gratitude that major religions and cultures of the world share."

At one end of the property, a bell tower is made from four pylons of white marble 50 feet high. It contains three bronze bells weighing a total of 10,000 pounds. Nearby is the Chapel of Thanksgiving, a building of an architectural style popular more than 1,200 years ago.

The Hall of Thanksgiving will house documents and exhibits telling the story of world thanksgiving in history, religion, art, science, music and literature.

The square will be filled out with 23 live oaks, 12 sweetgums, a cedar elm, 12 crepe myrtles and a 110-foot reflecting pool.

"It had to appeal to a lot of different people or it never would have gotten off the ground," Stewart said. "It has an absolutely universal appeal."

James W. Aston, board chairman of the Republic of Texas Corporation, one of the South's largest bank holding companies headquartered across the street from the project, said 1.5 million persons would visit the square annually.

Found Comet From Backyard

By JENNIFER SMALL
STOWE, Vt. (UPI) — The folks at the Harvard Observatory didn't believe Arden Magoon when he telegraphed his discovery of a comet.

But the 49-year-old custodian who has been studying the skies for more than a quarter of a century located Comet Abe in 1970 before its appearance had been published in Vermont.

"They told me I was looking at a nebula. They're full of baloney," Magoon said as he showed off his Tabor Hill Observatory located at 1,200 feet overlooking this ski resort community.

When Magoon expects company, he hangs a sign on a tree stump to welcome his guests or any number of fatherless children he takes swimming or to the dentist. The sign, "Tabor Hill Observatory" indicates both Magoon's "backyard observatory" and his indoor, onerom observatory that also serves as his bedroom.

Inside, underneath two hanging model airplanes he constructed, Magoon displayed his home-made, three-inch F-8 refractor telescope, capable of locating objects 50 million light years away.

"It's been to Africa and Scotland," he said. Although Magoon, who was born down the road, has never been farther than Canada, he has lent his telescope to students who have observed a solar eclipse off the coast of Mauritania and the passing of Mercury between the sun and Scotland.

The indoor observatory is decorated with a tiger's head, antlers, a plastic alligator, two globes, model navy ships with cannons that work, children's drawings and stacks of books that include Thoreau, Emerson and "On the Tracks of Unknown Animals" by Bernard Heuvelmans.

He said he is studying the "Big Foot" and "Loch Ness" monsters, Eastern religion and prehistoric man.

Magoon, who studied astronomy through a correspondence course, has taught astronomy at the Vermont Community College in Morrisville, where an observatory houses a six inch refractor telescope he built. He also has constructed a spectroscope, which refracts the rainbow of light through two razor blades and perpendicular brass tubes.

Since 1939 when his uncle showed him Mars, Magoon has observed the stars, planets, comets and sun spots in such detail that he admits, "There isn't too much more that I can find."

"All you do is push further back into space and everything becomes smaller and less spectacular until it isn't worth the effort," he said.

Magoon is concerned with facts and dismisses any notion of omens in falling stars or comets. Asked what he believes is the creation of the universe, he answered, "They don't know."

And although he does not romanticize the heavens, if you ask him if he is moved by the sight of the galaxies, he answers, "Let's go look."

Outside in the clear night air, Magoon spun his telescope around the sky the way a painter dips into his palette. Within seconds, he focused on a globular — a cluster of 70,000 stars 22,000 light years away — and an open cluster called the "Jewel of the Summer Sky," 4,400 light years in the distance.

In another direction, Magoon pointed to the Andromeda Galaxy with 100 billion stars and its two satellite galaxies of about 300,000 stars each. He also showed that the next to the last star on the handle of the Big Dipper is actually four stars that appear as one to the naked eye.

"Here is a planetary nebula or the cloud of gas left by an exploded star," he said.

With the telescope, the individual stars looked like needle-points of light; the globulars and nebulas resembled florescent specks of dust.

Magoon once looked for a year before he found a planetary, but now he can find what he wants within an instant. He studies vastas, minor planets 150 miles in diameter. He has made a special study of Jupiter and over 2,000 observations of the sun.

His main interest, however, is with comets.

In addition to Comet Abe, Magoon made an independent discovery of Comet Kobayashi-Berger-Milon in 1975 before it was published. The Smithsonian verified his findings.

"An independent discovery of a comet is something that millions of professional or amateur astronomers never do in a lifetime," he said.

Magoon said he makes most of his observations during the day, but he will also get up at 2:15 a.m. if necessary to chart the daily course of a comet, as he did with Comet D-Arrest this summer.

These days, he said, the Tabor Hill Observatory is sighting nothing unusual.

"I'm waiting for some more comets or minor planets to show up."

Marty Feldman A Film-Maker

BY BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
TOLEDO, Spain (AP) — This ancient city has suffered invasions from the Moors to Napoleon. Now Marty Feldman and company.

Toledo may recover, but it won't soon forget. Nor will a Hollywood visitor whose first sight of the movie company was a western gunslinger, a Japanese harem girl and a black Santa Claus entering a roadside bar.

Across the street the ancient Hospital de Tavera was serving as headquarters for such recruits to the foreign legion in "The Last Remake of Beau Geste." Because it was raining, film maker Feldman could not shoot outside. A makeshift boudoir had been constructed on a balcony of the hospital, now a convent school.

"If the nuns could see us now," said the impish Feldman.

dman. "I've got Ann-Margaret in bed with Henry Gibson, and him with a rose tattooed on his behind."

That was the scene all right. The pneumatic Ann-Margret languished on the bed, champagne in hand. Gibson, the one-time aesthete poet of TV's "Laugh-In," and star of the movie "Nashville," was elegantly dressed from the waist up — as a French general. Instead of carrying a flower, he wore one. He paused to read a volume, "Kama Sutra, By Numbers."

Universal pictures has invested a stellar cast and $4 million to test if Marty Feldman can follow the antic footsteps of Mel Brooks.

Despite an attack of chicken pox that kept him off-camera for 10 days, Feldman appears to be succeeding. Or so say his actors.

"He's very meticulous, yet he allows his players freedom," observes Peter Ustinov, who plays the infamous Sgt. Markov.

"He's super," says Michael York, who plays Feldman's identical twin, Beau.

"He's wild," comments Ann-Margret, their lascivious stepmother. "I play most of my scenes in bed, and the sheets are always satin. I keep sliding out."

"I'm ruined with Disney," laments Gibson, his rosebud blushing.

The unrelenting Feldman continued filming the boudoir scene from various angles. "Oh, I forgot to ask you, Henry," the director said politely. "Is that your best side?"

Feldman, 42, is a graduate of the same school of British radio-television comedy that produced Peter Sellers, David Frost and the Monty Python Circus. Feldman's TV show was seen in both England and the United States, and he scored with Mel Brooks, "Young Frankenstein" and Brook's current offering, "Silent Movie." Now he may join Brooks, Woody Allen and Gene Wilder in what may be the biggest flowering of film comedy since silent films.

Name Cars For Girls, Flowers

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — In many places, the names Celeste, Silvia, Sunny, Gloria and Violet belong to girls or flowers. But in Japan, these are the names of some of the country's best-selling cars.

The choice is puzzling to visitors, yet automobile makers say they want names with an image, regardless of whether they can be pronounced.

There is no "L" sound Japanese, so car names like Lancer, Fair Lady, Bluebird and Corolla are pronounced Rancea, Foo-air Rady, Buru Baado and Cororura.

Television commercials proclaim the worthiness of the "shibiku Shi-Bi-Shi-Shi" (the Honda Civic CVCC). Nissan announces its new model "Shirubiya" (Silvia) and Mitsubishi puts its "Garan Shiguma" (Gallant Sigma) on the market.

For export, though, the Bluebird becomes the 610, Violet is 710, Sunny is B210, Galant is Dodge Colt, and Celeste is Plymouth Arrow.

"You could never sell a car named Violet or Cherry in the United States," said Charles Folker, a director at Mitsubishi Motors Co. "Cars in the United States are named after animals or famous places and are more masculine."

He said one problem in finding names for Japanese cars was that companies have copyrighted whole lists of flowers and other names that they might someday like to call a vehicle, including bicycles, so that most of the obvious possibilities are already taken.

Mitsubishi discovered, for example, that it had registered the name "Lancer" 13 years ago and chose it for their new car.

"Japanese words are harsh sounding, so we use English or French names," said Tadasu Wake of Mitsubishi's product planning department.

"We need some kind of meditation for the car. English words are popular because Japanese students have been learning English since they were 11 or 12 years old," he said.

"The meanings of the words are considered carefully when the vehicle is named, but usually we don't think about it afterward. The feeling and sound are more important than the meaning," he added.

"Celeste," for example, won over "Challenger" and "Mirage" in a telephone survey of 300 customers. Although sometimes considered a girl's name, the company meant it to signify blue sky.

"Japanese cars have problems keeping up with the tough emission regulations, so Blue Sky is a good name for a car," Wake said.

With a couple of exceptions, all of Toyota's cars begin with the letter "C."

The company's first passenger car was called "Crown" to mean it was the king of cars, and the second was named "Corona" after the circle of light around a luminous body such as the sun or the moon.

The two cars sold exceedingly well and the company, out of superstition, decided to stick with the "C."

The movie "My Fair Lady" inspired the naming of the sportscar "Fair Lady." And the "Bluebird" is the bluebird of happiness.

Honda's new "Accord" means harmony. "Sunny" was chosen by the public in a naming contest.

"The names have nothing to do with any reality," said one spokesman. "The image is more important."

Accidents In Vienna Wine

VIENNA (AP) — Some Austrians say that "Wine, Women and Song" could be the unofficial national anthem of this happy-go-lucky alpine country. But apparently the wine plays the dominant part.

Doctors of the Public Accident Insurance Institute (which does not deal with traffic accidents) stated that one-fifth of all persons injured in accidents were under the influence of alcohol.

During 1975, according to their statistics, at least 20,000 of the 104,000 persons who were injured at work or during their leisure time had been drinking. The number alarmed officials.

"We had no idea the number was so high," an official of the Accident Insurance Institute said.

Wine is the favorite drink. In 1975 wine growers produced 65 million gallons of wine. A large part of the wine is exported, but a considerable amount is left to the Austrians.

Although up-to-date statistics on alcoholism are unavailable, Austria's 1971 health report said 47.2 out of every 100,000 males died of cirrhosis of the liver. France is the only European country with a higher percentage of cirrhosis-caused deaths.

Doctors say such liver ailments are caused to a large extent by drinking too much alcohol.

According to the institute's statistics, persons between the ages of 21 and 40 make up the majority of those injured while under the influence of alcohol. They make up 55 per cent.

Most accidents — 34 per cent — occurred mid-week and 30 per cent happened between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

His Song About Plagiarism Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Ex-Beatle George Harrison, here to tape "Saturday Night" at NBC-TV, brought along a video tape of himself performing a song he wrote about the plagiarism suit he lost recently.

The song is titled "This Song" and the gist of it is, "I hope this song is mine."

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Owen found Harrison guilty of plagiarism in September. The judge said that "My Sweet Lord," the biggest hit Harrison has had in seven years of solo performing and song-writing, is "virtually identical except for one phrase" to "He's So Fine." That song was a hit in 1962 for The Chiffons.

On April 25, 1959, the St. Lawrence Seaway was opened. It was dedicated June 26 by President Eisenhower and Queen Elizabeth II.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are excited and want to put into effect too quickly a plan of action that can bring you much advancement toward goals and ambitions that mean much to you. Consider carefully whatever new course of action you engage in and avoid a big mistake.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy at those obligations that have different conditions attached to them and you can clear them up nicely now. Don't take on face value whatever is told you by a new contact.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your hunches are good and should be heeded for more success in the future. Use good judgment as well. Be more aware of what a loved one desires instead of being so forceful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you know what is expected of you by associates otherwise you could get into something dangerous. Get into a civic affair that will turn out well and to your benefit.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to be of more service to others and avoid possible trouble later. Show more affection and gentility in dealing with mate. Make evening a happy and romantic one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Once you get important work done, get into the form of amusement you like and relieve tensions. Show more affection for close tie and get good results. Avoid a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try a different method to make home conditions more harmonious and get good results. You are interested in some new venture that is unusual but can work out just fine. Study it further.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get into the philosophical studies that can be helpful to you in the future. Take time to visit with friends and relatives later in the day. The evening is best spent at home with closest ties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you think big today you can attract more of the finer things of life and be happier in the future. Look over property and see how to make it more valuable and attractive. Be clever.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find new ways to gain your cherished aims, whether of a spiritual or a practical nature. Later be social and make big headway with friends. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Ideal day to think about what is best course to follow to have a fuller and richer life. Spend time later with good friends and get to know them better. Take good care of your health.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Solve personal problems early and you have more time to work on projects that help you to advance. Be careful of strangers.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle outside affairs wisely and add to present prestige and prosperity. Become more successful in your career by making wise plans now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those outgoing persons who must be made to understand early that it is important to think first and then act. Otherwise impulsiveness can interfere with a successful life. Give as fine an education as you can and include a language. Religious training early here, too.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOV. 22, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Use your most articulate qualities to let close ties know of your interest in them. You will find that some untied situations arise to give you chance to display your talents. Be more outgoing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Discuss your plans with those who are capable of helping you put them across. The evening can be an inspiring one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Showing more affection for the one you love is wise at this time. Begin the week right by handling responsibilities well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Taking part in civic affairs can yield fine benefits at this time. Make long-range plans for the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to what fellow workers have to suggest and come to a far better understanding. Take needed health treatments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Consult business experts for financial advice. Come to a better understanding with mate. Strive for happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A new project can be helped through the suggestion of another, so listen carefully. Show more devotion to mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take no chances with one who has a proverbial axe to grind. Obtain the data you need at proper sources. Express happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make plans that will bring you more success and security in the future. Consult a monetary expert for advice you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what others expect of you and do your best to please them. Attend a group activity and gain new acquaintances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to clear up any problematical affairs that are pressing. Use a direct approach. Relax at home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Visit as many persons as you can and express gregariousness to good advantage. Take no chances with a trickster.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans to improve your position in life. Listen to what a trusted adviser has to suggest. Discuss the future with mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who is quite blunt and should be taught to use more diplomacy if this chart is to become successful. Education should be a most comprehensive one for best results. Give a good spiritual training and the benefit of sports.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

McCartney Most Popular Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul McCartney is the most popular rock 'n' roll star, according to a survey conducted by Rock Superstars Magazine.

The English superstar won handsily over another Britisher, Elton John, with Bob Dylan, an American, third.

"The survey was conducted among our readership which represents rock fans from coast-to-coast," says Bob Gucione, Jr., publisher.

The survey also revealed that virtually 100 per cent of those polled would like to see the Beatles reunited. McCartney is a former Beatle.

Crow Is Now Protected Bird

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crow, whose wit and adaptability have helped it survive on its own until now, has been made a protected species, according to the National Geographic Society.

The United States Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife has limited crow hunting to 124 days a year, and the New York state legislature has declared the bird a protected species, the Society said.

Crow hunters are skeptical about the protection. Crows eat crops and the eggs and young of other birds. But crows are useful scavengers, and help to control the grasshopper, beetle and moth populations.

They also have an amazing ability to adjust to their environment. Southern California crows seem to know when to fly to hot dog stands and snack bars to get to the leftovers before the cleanup crews, reports one ornithologist. A wild crow in Charlottesville, Va., followed the milkman and pried the cap off the bottles to sip the milk after he left them on the porch.

SOME TAKE THE SHORT WAY, SOME THE LONG . . . in the climb to reach the top of Jockey' Ridge. In the background are summer houses of Nags Head; and beyond, the Atlantic Ocean.

It's white-gold and soft, and young and old alike tend to become a little daffy when they feel it caressing their bare toes.

"It" is Jockey' Ridge State Park, a 300 acre natural treasure of sweeping sand dunes now belonging to the people of North Carolina. For a while, the fate of the enchanting slopes of wind-sculpted oceanside sand seemed doomed by the threat of possible commercial development.

However, through efforts of concerned people who spearheaded the "People To Preserve Jockey's Ridge" campaign, funds were raised to purchase the site, which was then deeded to the state and dedicated as a state park in the early summer of 1975.

In warm summer months about 2,000 people daily make the climb to the peak of the 137 foot high dune, the highest sand dune on the East Coast.

The lure of Jockey's Ridge does not end with the tourist season. On any day during the cooler months of autumn, winter, or spring, there's always the lone dreamer, a hand-holding couple, or small groups of friends cheerfully braving the chilly breezes to make the pilgrimage to the top.

The reward of the view is well worth the effort. On any clear day, you can see westward to historic Roanoke Island; eastward to the endless rolling waves of the Atlantic; and nearer by, the villages of Nags Head and Kitty Hawk along the winding Outer Banks roads.

No matter how cool the day, there's something about the soft sand that invites taking off shoes, and for a few glorious minutes, becoming once more a child at heart attuned to the fascinating invitation of North Carolina's softest parkland.

EVEN ON A CHILLY DAY . . . visitors cannot seem to resist taking off shoes and coats. Here, visitors and a dog rest after reaching the 137 foot summit.

The Lure Of Soft Sand Against Bare Toes, At Jockey's Ridge State Park

ON THE MARCH . . . Whatever the time of year, there's usually a few climbers discovering the fascination of North Carolina's sand dune park.

ONE WAY TO KEEP A DOG HAPPY . . . is to wrap him with sand.

Text And Photographs
By Jerry Raynor

AT THE FOOT OF THE DUNES . . . grasses and shrubs add colorful notes of green, browns and bronzes to the white-gold sand.

FOOTPRINTS . . . on Jockey's Ridge are short-lived. Sea breezes stirring the surface of the dunes soon erase the evidence of man's passing.

NBC Archives Providing Viewers Nostalgia Night

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Are you ready for more nostalgia? NBC throws itself a 50th birthday party Sunday night in what may be the nostalgia event to end them all.

NBC reaches deep into its archives — as well as into a few garages and backrooms — for a look at itself and the world from 1927 to the present. Four and a half hours of it.

"We've got recordings from the earliest years of radio, kinescopes from early television, tapes through the years," said producer Greg Garrison, who spent 15 months putting "The Big Event" retrospective together. Called "The First Fifty Years," it airs from 7 to 11:30 p.m. EST Sunday.

"I found stuff in my garage, in the backroom of just about every producer and director in the business. We ran ads and we got tremendous response. We found amateur movies of the Jack Benny radio show. Somebody shot sound film of a 1938 radio broadcast of John Barrymore and Rudy Vallee." Twenty minutes of the special is devoted to sports, 30 minutes to news and the rest — outside of 45 to 50 minutes of commercials — will be entertainment once seen or heard on NBC. In all, 450 stars are on the show.

Garrison said he expects a lot of Monday morning quarterbacking to question his choices. "I made all the decisions," he said. "How did I decide? I just decided. I made the decision on the basis of the material. If it's good, I'd like to take a little of the credit. If it's bad, I'll take the rap."

Here are some of the highlights you'll see and hear:

—Groucho Marx badgers two of the theater's leading ladies, Tallulah Bankhead and Ethel Barrymore, like his stately foil from the movies, Margaret Dumont. This rare comic classic is from Miss Bankhead's short-lived 1949 TV show.

—What starts out as a segment from Ralph Edwards' "This Is Your Life" suddenly transforms into a sketch from "Your Show of Shows." The comic takeoff looks real until host Carl Reiner tries to get Sid Caesar out of his audience seat to review his life. Caesar won't budge and it turns into a tug-of-war.

—Excerpts from Broadway shows seen on NBC, such as Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza in "South Pacific," and Richard Burton and Julie Andrews in "Camelot."

—Such radio shows as Kay Kyser, Amos 'n' Andy, Burns and Allen, Fibber McGee and Molly, Henry Aldrich and Groucho Marx.

—A tribute to Hopalong Cassidy (William Boyd), whose movies introduced television to the Western.

—California back Roy Riegels scoops up a Georgia Tech fumble in the 1929 Rose Bowl and races for the goal line—in the wrong direction until one of his own men tackles him two feet short of a touchdown.

If your cup of trivia overflows, you can switch to CBS for a two-hour "Kojak" at 9 p.m. EST Sunday. Geraldine Page stars as a wealthy, powerful county chairman who uses her influence to protect her grandson in a supposedly closed murder case. Miss Page pulls strings to prevent Kojak (Telly Savalas) from reopening the case. But — what else? — Kojak pushes all the harder until she engineers a frame.

Or maybe a bizarre bank robbery is for you. The ABC Sunday Night Movie is "Thunderbolt and Lightfoot," starring Clint Eastwood, Jeff Bridges and George Kennedy. Eastwood leads a gang that returns to rob a bank for the second time. He couldn't find the money from the first heist after he stashed it in a building that was torn down.

SHORT TAKES: Fred takes a job as a busboy to keep Lamont at the junkyard, on "Sanford and Son," NBC at 8 p.m. EST Friday...Someone is sabotaging Spencer Aviation, on "Spencer's Pilots," on CBS at 8 p.m. EST Friday...Jim Rockford is cited for contempt and sent to a federal prison on "Rockford Files" on NBC at 9 p.m. EST Friday...Tough newsman Lou Grant proposes marriages to equally tough Aunt Flo on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," on CBS at 8 p.m. EST Saturday...Sonny and Cher's guests are Tom Jones, Shields and Yarnell, and Redd Foxx, on CBS at 8 p.m. EST Sunday.

MOVIES: ABC Friday Night Movie, "Revenge of a Rape," stars Mike Connors as a man out to avenge the rape of his wife. CBS Friday Night Movie, "I Want to Keep My Baby," stars Mariel Hemingway, granddaughter of author Ernest Hemingway, in an emotional drama of a pregnant girl. NBC Saturday Night at the Movies, "Billy Jack," stars Tom Laughlin as an ex-Green Beret who steps into a town feud.

For Sale: a modern townhome with a timeless Sound.

When you stand at Oak Bluff and gaze across Bogue Sound, you take in an area of the Carolina Coast that stretches back quite a ways. Four centuries of thieves and pirates, sailors and watermen have plied these historic waters. And, as a resident of Oak Bluff at Brandywine Bay, this colorful past becomes a part of you. When you live here, each passing day confirms the soundness of the decision your heart has helped your good sense to make. For the informal comfort and genuine quality of today have been built into the homes that form the community of Oak Bluff.

There are only 46 two and three-level townhomes for sale here. Oversized floor plans provide for maximum use of space with a "today" kind of design you can tailor to your own taste. The largest is a four-bedroom, four bath, with some 2400 square feet of very liveable space. The other homes are two and three bedroom units and offer the same features as the rest of your neighbors: washers and dryers, AM-FM stereo/intercom system, central vacuum system, wet bar with ice maker, side-by-side frost-free refrigerator with ice maker, trash compactor and disposal. The people at Oak Bluff have also included some extra features you probably wouldn't expect. Like packing the masonry walls with sand to deaden sound, providing double-insulated glass windows to conserve energy and creatively designed landscaping and aggregate walkways throughout the community.

In addition, Oak Bluff provides a manned security system to protect your private retreat, and your own marina. And a financing package that includes 8½% for 25 years on a 90% mortgage. Prices start at just $45,000. Once you see Oak Bluff, you'll agree that the price of our townhomes gives you a lot more than just a nice roof over your head.

Life today at Oak Bluff is quiet, and you take it on your own terms. The marshes and channels of Bogue Sound are your backyard, and you can stalk around Harker's Island and Cape Lookout like Columbus in cut-offs. Or sneak a glimpse of wild ponies on Shackleford Banks. Back up on the bluff, with neighbors who are very much like you, there is tennis on lighted courts and swimming in a pool surrounded by an arbour-lined terrace; or just neighborly pool-side conversation if you like.

Just beyond Oak Bluff are all the advantages of beautiful Carteret County and the Carolina seaboard — excellent restaurants, beaches, boating and deep-sea fishing. Morehead City is about five miles east, and regular air service is available at New Bern, only 20 minutes from Oak Bluff (should you ever want to leave).

Finally, the peace and pleasure you find today at Oak Bluff is enhanced by the prospects of tomorrow. Your home stands as a lasting value — solid assurance of your own comfort and privacy for as long as you want.

Visit Oak Bluff. If you'll just give us a phone call, we'll set up an appointment to give you a personal tour of Oak Bluff at Brandywine Bay. Call us collect... (919) 726-0076.

You'll see why Oak Bluff is indeed a bit of yesterday, today, and tomorrow.

CHARLES ST., NEXT TO PITT PLAZA

Well-windowed and totally private, a 17-ft. studio crowns the Wheatridge, a memorable contemporary design that promises comfortable living year round.

Wood siding fashions the exterior, an angular facade that manages to preserve privacy while snatching plenty of natural light for the interior. Glass is used effectively throughout the design and allows the second story hallway to overlook the living room and the studio to overlook a second story bedroom.

An entry foyer, edged by coat closet, puts family and friends within steps of the kitchen-dining complex at right or the impressive living room at left. Extending more than 29 feet to climax in sliding glass doors that annex patio, the living room allows liberal amounts of space for entertaining. The room is airy, reaching a full two stories to capture light and space.

Bordering the living room is the ample den. Located near the kitchen, the den can be used as a formal dining room or, with its closet space, transformed into guest sleeping quarters as needed.

Another patio adjoins the kitchen-dining complex, a spacious area furnished with laundry niche. For convenience, a half bath is located off the foyer.

The second level is reserved for sleeping and shows three bedrooms clustered around the full bath. Stretching nearly 22 feet in length, the master bedroom is given copious space, access to the studio, and sliding glass doors to a private deck.

The cliché about the importance of a first impression is never more important than when you are preparing to sell a house.

Real estate brokers know well that many a possible sale is lost before the prospective purchaser sets foot inside the house. If the outside of the house looks shabby or the lawn is overgrown or there are other visible evidences of neglect, the customer is likely to feel that the inside is equally in need of care. There are many instances when a client will refuse flatly to inspect the interior even when assured that he will be pleasantly surprised by its practical layout and excellent condition.

This first-impression aura is known as "curb appeal" to architects and builders. An inviting front door, an attractive fence, well-placed shrubbery and shutters are among the items that catch the eyes of guests as well as of possible buyers. There was a time when shutters, for example, were functional and thus had hinges so that they could be opened and closed as desired. Today, most shutters have no hinges and are simply attached to the house. That's because it was discovered years ago that, even when shutters were not necessary, they had a decorative appeal usually requested by the buyers of development houses.

Hubbard Cobb, whose latest book is "Improvements That Increase the Value of Your House," suggests that one way of improving the outside of your residence is to get rid of details that don't match the style of the house. He points out:

"Multi-colored aluminum awnings may look all right on a Florida stucco house, but the same thing on a Cape Cod house in New England looks totally inappropriate. Overly fancy doors, too much or too fussy ornamental metalwork on stair rails or as trim, too many different colors on door and window trim, sometimes coupled with patterned brick walls and variegated roofing colors — all these mean an overdressed house, as distracting to the eye as an overdressed matron replete with shiny earrings, clanking bracelets, dazzling beads and brooches, a bouffant hairdo and rhinestone-trimmed eyeglasses. Neither house nor lady can be seen for the trimmings."

Another Cobb suggestion is to get rid of overgrown planting. "Most relatively new houses," he says, "don't have enough decent-sized shrubs and trees around them, but many older houses have too many large shrubs and trees. And overgrown planting does not add one bit to curb appeal, but makes the house look depressing, dark and dreary. Too much planting also can make the interior of a house dark and often damp."

On the matter of insurance, Cobb says that you should not wait until an improvement has been completed before increasing the amount of insurance on your house. "As soon as you know the scope of the work but before it begins," he explains, "get in touch with your insurance agent. Explain to him what you plan to do, what the approximate cost will be, when the work is to begin, and when you expect the job to be completed. He can then arrange to have your insurance increased to cover you as the work progresses. If you wait until the improvement has been completed to get additional coverage, you can be in for a lot of trouble. If the work is well along and you have a fire, the total replacement value of your house may not exceed the amount of your coverage. That would mean that you would not collect the full amount."

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666).

Answers Timely Gardening Questions)

Q. What causes salts to build up in potted plants and how can I avoid this? (R. A. Trinity)

A. Two factors can cause salts to build up in potted plants. One is the amount of fertilizer applied relative to the amount of soil in a pot. Since most pots are very small relative to the area in which outside plants grow, even small amounts of fertilizer are often quite large in comparison to actual need. Couple this with frequent light waterings, which cause the salts in the fertilizer to come to the surface as the surface water evaporates, and you get salt build up on or near the soil surface. Deep, infrequent waterings will tend to disperse the salts through the total soil volume and help solve the problem. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. When is the best time to plant seed of Nandina, Camellia and Holly? (Mrs. W. S., Charlotte)

A. Gather seed in the fall when ripe, after the first frost. Remove seed coat, and store seed overwinter outdoors in moist sand. Next spring, plant seed outdoors in rich soil. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Can firewood be sprayed with a chemical to protect it from termites? (J. P., Lexington)

A. It is not necessary. Besides, you would not want the possibility of chemicals giving off toxic fumes in an enclosed area where your fire would be. All subterranean termites require a constant supply of moisture, which means they must always maintain connection with the ground. Therefore, store your firewood off the ground, keep it reasonably dry, and watch for any connecting shelter tubes which termites must build from the ground to above ground wood. (W. M. Stanton, extension forester)

Q. What care should we give our Christmas cactus? (M. W., Ingold)

A. Begin watering Christmas cactus liberally from the beginning of December thru January. Keep the plant in full sun in a moderately warm room. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Book Aids Restoring Old Home

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures

Some people acquire old houses and then spend the rest of their lives trying to restore them. It can be a great hobby, but it has also been a big chore mainly because it has been so difficult to find old materials and objects, or places that fashion reproductions.

Now comes the "Old House

Catalogue," a much needed book put together by Lawrence Grow, a lover of old houses. It rounds up 2,500 products, services and suppliers for restoring, decorating and furnishing the period house from early American to 1930s.

For example, if you don't know where to find hand-hewn beams or antique bricks, this book will tell you. The beams, available in 4-to 25-foot lengths, can be shipped. There is a warehouse of old brick, and if you would settle for "new old bricks" they can be matched to existing old brick in size, texture and color.

If rotted clapboards on an old house must be replaced, one supplier can provide the real thing in weathered 5-inch brown strips. Or let's say the metal iron work needs replacing: there is new cast iron work in traditional designs for use on porches, balconies and gates in American, French, Spanish and Colonial styles.

There are museum-quality reproduction doors made of pine with mortise and tenon joints, wooden pins and no glue, and there are paneled doors for Spanish Colonial homes.

Moldings, which give woodwork a finished look, often of grandeur, are available in great variety for exterior and interior use. Of wood, and sheet metal and urethane made to resemble wood, they are available in many traditional patterns. Baseboards include the handsome egg and dart and dentil patterns and brackets.

For those bemoaning the shortage of old-time artists who can reproduce fine plaster design, there are a lot of surprises. Plaster cornices are available in 46 standard designs. Lots of beautiful forms — the shell design, scrolls, shields, wreaths, garlands, festoons, eagles, urns and balusters — are available. Some cornices are produced in urethane which permits combining four or more moldings into one piece for easier use.

Intriguing are the paneled wall fireplaces in Eastern pine like those that appeared in many Colonial homes. One firm specializes in Louis XIV, XV and XVI and Regency paneling; another firm specializes in fireplace walls of old Southern yellow heart pine, a beautiful wood even for floors.

There are railings, balusters, spindles, newel posts, veneers, inlays and hardware that includes hinges — Dutch, raitail, Moravian, H and HL, butterfly strap. There are door knockers, latches and locks.

Just about any kind of mantle is available, including authentic Victorian styles and art nouveau designs, plus all the accoutrements — reproductions of coal scuttles, fire tools and andirons. You can even replace ash pit doors.

Among floorings there are hand-molded tiles in brick form and modern, Delft blue, hand-painted tiles. Included, too, are 18th-century Dutch antique floor bricks.

As for wood floorings, there are the wide plank pine, pre-finished stripoak, red cedar and Southern yellow pine.

The book goes into carpets, rugs, floor coverings, antique lighting fixtures and handsome chandeliers, including authentic gas chandeliers that are electrified, wrought iron, tin and others. There are 18th-century lanterns and gas post lamps. Sconces include Pennsylvania German designs. Outdoor furniture of cast iron and hand forged iron table legs are available.

Furnishings are also covered in the catalogue. Handsomely illustrated fabrics, wallpapers and furniture are in traditional patterns, and there is information, too, on old authentic paint colors.

Calender Art Is Zany Or Aesthetic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aesthetic to zany is the best description for 1977's wall and desk calendars.

Once the New Year's greeting cum advertisement of banks, businesses, and funeral homes, calendars now are hot year-end items in museum gift shops, Christmas boutiques, department stores and art shops.

The publishing industry predicts annual sales approaching $271 million, up from $225 million last year.

Religion remains a popular subject, but pinup girls are not. Competition from flesh magazines has supplanted them, according to a UPI survey. The Ridge Tool Company of Elyria, Ohio, is one of the few manufacturing businesses remaining true to the girly calendar concept.

American scenery, nature and wildlife scenes are this year's prime category, reflecting the nation's continuing concern with environment and ecology. Funny cartoons, flowers, folk art, sports figures, Hummel-type children, pets and museum masterpieces are prominent market items. Hallmark's "Historic Billboards" calendar is one of the more attractive follow-ups to last year's predominant Bicentennial theme.

Q. — I paid $16,000 for my house many years ago. Similar houses in the neighborhood are now selling for $35,000. I will be 65 years old in January of next year, at which time I will retire from my present job. Since I am alone and no longer have a need for a complete house, I am considering selling the house and moving to a rented apartment. I have been told that, if I sell the house for $35,000, I will have to pay a considerable tax on the difference between what I paid for it and what I sell it for. But I have also been told that, if you are over 65 years of age, there is no tax on the profit if the house sells for $20,000 or less. Not many houses sell for that price these days. It seems to me that the government is claiming to give senior citizens a break when it really isn't a break at all. Isn't this unfair?

A. — I have some good news for you. But first, let's straighten out that part about the $20,000 figure. The law said that, if you were 65 years of age and sold your house, there would be no tax on a house sold for $20,000 or less, BUT if the sale price was over that amount, the profit would be prorated. So, if you sold a house for $25,000, your tax actually would be very small. Now for the good news. The law has just been changed. Under the new regulation, a senior citizen pays no tax on the profit if the sales price of the house is $35,000 or less. In your case, if you get the average neighborhood price, you will not have to pay a tax on the profit. Be sure the sale is not completed before your 65th birthday.

Q. — Some time ago I visited a friend's house where the wooden floors had a kind of sheen to them which caught my eye. I was told they had been finished with a clear penetrating sealer. I now would like to finish one of our floors with such a sealer, but my friend has moved away and so I can't ask him any questions. Is this kind of finish hard to apply and does it stand up well?

A. — Penetrating sealers are easy to apply, since either a cloth or brush can be used. The difference between them and other finishes is that they sink into the wood rather than stay on top of it. That means they do not scratch easily. Perhaps their best quality is that they can be touched up where there are worn spots, without redoing the entire floor. When the sealer has dried, a coat of wax will help to preserve it. Later, if it is necessary to touch up a spot, you need remove the wax from that area only, before applying new sealer.

Q. — The cold water pipes that run across the top of our basement ceiling sometimes sweat and sometimes don't. Can you tell me what causes them to sweat and why doesn't it occur all the time?

A. — This is condensation, caused when warm, moist air settles on a cold surface. It doesn't happen when the air is not heavily laden with moisture. The easiest solution is to cover the pipes with a water-proofing tape made especially for the purpose. Be especially careful around the pipe fittings, which will sweat even if the rest of the cold water line is covered with tape.

Insulation is material that keeps a home warmer in winter and cooler in summer. In winter, the better the insulation, the harder it is for heat to be lost to the outside. Uninsulated homes lose up to twice as much heat as insulated ones.

The heating system in an insulated home operates less and requires less energy. In summer that same insulation keeps heat out, saving electricity and reducing the wear on the air conditioner. Also, the size and cost of equipment needed to heat or cool will be reduced. Another benefit is the reduction in maintenance and repair bills.

Insulation reduces energy waste . . . and saves your money.

Drive To Collect Jewish Art For NCMA Launched

Operating on the theory that nothing succeeds like success, a drive to collect $70,000 to start a permanent collection of Jewish art at the North Carolina Museum of Art has been launched.

The popularity of the 1975 exhibition, "Ceremonial Art in the Jewish Tradition," has inspired the fund campaign. More than 9,000 spectators saw the show. The sales of catalogues broke museum records, and requests for the catalogue are still coming in. The fund drive has the support of the North Carolina Bicentennial Committee and will represent a bicentennial gift to the state from Jewish communities in North Carolina. For this reason, the drive is being confined to Jewish individuals and groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Les and Roz Fuchs of Kinston are serving as chairmen with Grace J. Rohrer, secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources, acting as honorary chairman.

Dr. Abram Kanof, who organized the 1975 exhibition and is now curator for that collection, also has organized a Committee of $76, to implement the project.

He has compiled a list of 56 objects that would comprise a basic collection of Judaica. Some are simple objects that might be used in the home or by an individual; others are ornate, elaborate items that probably would be found in the synagogue.

In price they range from $100 for a spinning top to $8,000 for a set of Passover plates. The collection will include contemporary works and some centuries old.

The collection Kanof envisions would be available for loan to groups or institutions in the state, but would not be shown in a permanent installation until a new museum building is completed.

The museum already has more than 25 pieces of Jewish religious art and, since the drive started, has received gifts of cash, and such treasures as a Hanukkah lamp, a spice box, a magnificent cup for the prophet Eliphaz, a table set for the celebration of the Sabbath, a charity box which is also in the collection of the Museum of Modern Art and other objects, including a ceremonial ax believed to be 3,000 years old.

CUP WITH COVER... is of the type used at a benediction over the wine at a festival in a Jewish home. Efforts are now being to form a collection of Jewish religious items for a permanent collection at the N.C. Museum of Art. The cup shown here is from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. $10,000 Grant To Rose High Library/Media Center

The J.H. Rose High School Library/Media Center has been selected to receive a $10,000 Special Purpose Grant under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title II, Exemplary School Media Program Project.

Rose was selected for the grant for Education District I. Rose and two other schools in District I, Farmville Middle High and West Bertie Elementary, were finalists in the program. Final decision was made through a lottery procedure November 16.

A total of eight schools were selected statewide, one from each of the eight school districts.

Application for the grant at Rose was coordinated by Leigh Ledbetter and Brenda Lewis, media coordinators at Rose. The project they submitted concentrates on the purchase of high interest/low-reading level books and audio-visual materials on a wide variety of subjects.

The grant, to be effective December 2, will mean that Rose will be designated as one of eight exemplary library/media centers in North Carolina effective in the spring of 1977.

One purpose of the program is to provide books and audio-visual materials for students who have reached high school without acquiring necessary reading skills. These materials will supplement the basic collection at Rose, and will be selected to meet special needs of students.

Disharmony Within The Kingston Trio

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN CARLOS, Calif. (AP) — "We don't profess to be great musicians; we're entertainers," says Bob Shane of the new Kingston Trio. That seems to be enough to have the trio riding a wave of nostalgia around the country in small clubs, big concert halls and Nevada Casinos.

But it's not enough for Kingston Trio alumnus Dave Guard, who is not a member of the new group. He agrees with Shane — he thinks the musicianship of the reconstituted group is sadly lacking. He doesn't think it should be that way, and therein lies a tale of disharmony within what once was America's most popular folk group.

Shane, now 42 and gray-haired, is the only actively performing member of the original trio, which in the late 50s and early 60s cut eight gold records, including the six-million-selling single "Tom Dooley."

"What we do is make people have a good time," Shane said before a recent performance at the Circle Star Theater. The trio shared the Circle Star bill with another 1950s group, The Limelites, back with all three original members: Glenn Yarbrough, Lou Gottlieb and Alex Hassilev.

Shane, who bought the rights to the Kingston Trio name, started on the road three years ago with Bill Zorn, formerly with the New Christy Minstrels, and Roger Gambill, who previously appeared on the "Grand Ole Opry" and "Haw" television shows.

Guard, another member of the original trio, tried earlier this year to get the initial group back together to do what he called some new arrangements of classical-folk material.

"No way," was Shane's reaction, expressing bitterness against Guard, who split from the trio in 1961 and moved to Australia. "You wouldn't believe some of the things that guy did to me," he added, without being specific.

Guard was replaced by John Stewart until the group disbanded in 1967, exactly 10 years after it was formed by three Stanford University students: Shane, Guard and Nick Reynolds, now an Oregon rancher.

Shane says he never believed in rigorous rehearsals, as Guard did.

Guard, now living in the San Francisco suburb of Portola Valley and anxious to get back into show business, said there was a communication breakdown brought on by the pressures of show business.

"In 1959 we were on the road 340 days," he said.

He attended the Circle Star show but had vanished when he was introduced from the stage. He explained later he was put off by the Trio's "lack of harmony" and blue humor.

"My feeling was that the Limelites respected the crowd to the extent that they harmonized, they exhibited better taste, they had a better delivery," said Guard. "I don't see why they (the trio) don't get a good songwriter to rewrite their arrangements with some harmony."

When it became clear the original trio couldn't be resurrected, Guard said he tried unsuccessfully to convince Reynolds and Stewart to join him for another run at trio-type music. But nothing has jelled.

In addition, school children will participate by singing and performing on percussion instruments with the orchestra in some selections.

During segments of the upcoming season, the Symphony's two Little Symphonies will travel throughout North Carolina. Youngsters hearing these concerts will be treated to "The Birds" by Respighi, "Louisiana Suite" by Thomson, "Suite No. 2" by Stravinsky, and two songs, "Oh Susannah" and "For the Beauty of the Earth."

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JUNE PARKER

CROSBY by Geoffrey Wolff. Harry Crosby had lived almost a charmed life in the 1920's. He was well-born, wealthy, a poet, a publisher, and founder of the Black Sun Press which published some of the most influential writers of the twenties — Hart Crane, Archibald MacLeish, D. H. Lawrence, and James Joyce. With all of these assets, he killed himself and his mistress in a spectacular fashion in December 1929. This book examines why such a life should come to this end. Crosby had dealt with death during most of his life. He was saved from a direct artillery hit that should have killed him during World War I. He came home in the spirit to find sensation no matter what the stakes were. He decided to drive himself mad because he believed that madness and genius were not far apart. This book gives an inside view of the cultural and social scene of the twenties in New York and Paris and its effects upon one man.

The next book is a two-volume work, ADOLF HITLER by John Toland. It is based on more than 150 taped interviews with people who personally knew Adolf Hitler. Only recently have people who personally knew Hitler been willing to talk. They give original insights into familiar aspects of his life as a man, politician, and military leader and also some startling new details to his life. In some ways this biography is more frightening because it does not paint Hitler as a monster but gives a human face. This book does not offer a central idea to the character of Hitler; however, it does offer a profusion of ideas and facts, set right many distortions, and expose many falsehoods concerning his life and actions.

The last book is ROSE HILL A DOCUMENTARY OF A SHARED EXPERIENCE by Reed Wolcott who writes about American life styles. It is a portrait of Rose Hill, a small town in eastern North Carolina. The picture is drawn from almost verbatim accounts of ninety-seven townspeople including the bankers, waitresses, farmers, the druggist, the principal, a bootlegger, and the preacher. The author includes accounts from people from both sides of the track. Reed Wolcott had first come to Rose Hill to do a quick survey of the town and was detained there from 1972 through 1974. She lived with families and sat up swapping stories over bourbon and women's secrets while shelling butter beans. The complexity of life in a small southern town slowly evolves while these people tell their story.

Tom Forbes' First Novel Reveals A Major Talent

Quincey's Harvest. By Tom H. Forbes. Philadelphia and New York: J. B. Lippincott Company. 142 pp. $6.95

"While he slept the hawk screamed unseen in the woods, and deeper in, another answered it. Something bubbled the rippling water in the stream and was quiet again. A single dove flew high over the cornfield straight to somewhere it had in mind. And a frog croaked now and then like it didn't care whether it croaked or not. It was a lazy hour of the day, cold and lazy, but I didn't feel like we were wasting time; I didn't think of time or any other place I wanted to be."

In passages of splendid prose poetry, Pitt County farmer-writer Tom Forbes draws from his own life source a sensitive song in praise of forest and stream, of plowed fields and growing crops, of birds and animals, and of people known and beloved.

His is a song fashioned by a singer of words whose ear is attuned to the subtle moods of nature, to the flaws and strengths of the human heart.

The publisher (with justification) places Quincey's Harvest in the classification of juvenile books. Perceptive young readers will respond to the bonds of friendship that draw together a young white tenant-farm boy, Quincey Evans, and an old Negro man, Stump, who has one wooden leg.

They will share Quincey's suffering over the agonizing death struggle of a great blue heron entangled in a steel trap set by Quincey; feel empathy for a boy's confused pride and embarrassment in relationships with his father; and exult in the excitement of a near-fatal confrontation with a bear foraging in a cornfield.

At the same time, adult readers who might pass up Quincey's Harvest solely on the basis of its juvenile classification will be denying themselves the opportunity of getting to know a gifted native writer.

In this, his first novel, Tom Forbes has earned the right to be called a major talent with something of value to say to young and old alike.

Those of us in and near Greenville who shared in the birth of Quincey's Harvest, in successive readings of individual chapters in manuscript form at writers' meetings, are personally aware of the integrity that marks every word written by Forbes.

Other readers will sense this instinctively. There's not a false note nor a single contrived scene to mar the ultimate essence of truth that Forbes has translated from reality to the art of good fiction.

Quincey's Harvest is intensely rich in imagery. It reads with a clarity, an eloquence that has its musical counterpart in a Mozart quintet.

Major and minor themes are flawlessly balanced: intimacy between young Quincey and the old man Stump arising from companionship and compassion, and respect engendered by differences in age; the dual personality of the land in its poetic beauty and the painful harshness of wresting a living from it; a child's brooding over nature's cruel law of creature destroying creature — yet in his boy's tenderness, ironically capable himself of destroying life.

In all these finely drawn dual threads of reckoning the sums of the earth's bounties and denials; of depicting human emotions and reactions, Forbes listens to his heart. He tempers what he hears with intelligence and a commendable respect for the demanding craft of writing honestly, selectively.

Quincey's Harvest is a book to be selfish about, one to buy, to read and keep at hand for those moments there's a need to turn to something to reaffirm faith in the fundamental worth of life.

Blue Ridge Neighbors

Le's Whittle Awhlie: My Blue Ridge Neighbors and Friends. By James Y. Perry with Betsy White. Greenville (N.C.) The Sky Valley Press.

Illustrated with photographs. 134 pps. $7.95.

Few who love the Carolina mountains can fail to feel good about a new book set in this locale. The collection of true stories put together by master raconteur James Y. Perry (with Betsy White of Greenville, N.C.) will delight every reader of Le's Whittle Awhlie: My Blue Ridge Neighbors and Friends.

Probing with profound empathy and respect the customs and life style of his neighbors, flatlander Perry "axes" questions and, ever so slowly, unravels answers to reveal a coherent philosophy of living which he finds wholesome and at time heroic.

Perry cuts his journalistic teeth on articles he published in the old "Saturday Evening Post." When he decided to move away from a law practice and to turn his back on the merry-go-round of a society call civilized, he had an enthusiastic partner in his wife, Anne Guerry Perry, whose compulsions to save mankind whether he liked it or not provide much of the charm and wit of these mountain revelations.

Thanksgiving Parades Have Become A Tradition In U.S.

HOSTING THE BIG PARADE — Della Reese, McLean Stevenson (r) and Ed McMahon will be the hosts for NBC-TV's traditional live colorcast of New York's annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade — celebrating its 50th anniversary — Thursday, Nov. 25 (10 a.m. to 12 noon) on NBC-TV.

High-flying balloons, marching bands, famous people from the entertainment world — lush tropical flowers and rosy-cheeked spectators will all be featured Thursday morning when NBC and CBS televise the 50th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, as well as other parades across the country. Both networks begin their parade coverage at 9 a.m. NBC will air a one hour entertainment special (9 to 10 a.m.) featuring a light-hearted puppet's — eye view of the parade.

CBS's hosts are William Conrad, Loretta Swit, Isabel Sanford, Michael Learned, Jack Lord and McKenzie Phillips. NBC's on-the-scene team are Della Reese, McLean Stevenson and Ed McMahon.

New York's Macy's Parade is a traditional holiday treat for the entire family, and soaring above Manhattan and the festivities will be nine huge Goodyear balloons — in their only public appearance of the year. The balloons and their dimensions are: the 40-foot-tall Weeble; 57-foot-high Mickey Mouse; 50-foot-tall Snoopy; 72-foot-long Dinosaur; 55-foot-tall Linus the Lion; and 58-foot-high Smokey the Bear.

Other highlights will be stars of the television medium, the Broadway theatre and the recording world performing from perches on distinctively styled floats, and award-winning bands from various sections of the country.

While NBC covers the entire Macy's Parade, CBS will head elsewhere in order to bring viewers the best of other parades throughout the nation and Hawaii. William Conrad will be working in conjunction with CBS's primetime stars, serving as commentators at each parade site.

Miss Swit will host the Macy's Parade, and Richard Crenna will appear with her.

Isabel Sanford will be in Philadelphia to tell viewers about the 56th annual Gimbel's Parade. Joining her will be Kevin Dobson.

In Toronto, Michael Learned will host the 72nd annual Eaton's Santa Claus Parade, with Bill Macy as her co-host.

Jack Lord, star of "Hawaii Five O," will be parade-side commentator for Hawaii's Aloha Floral Parade — in its third year on the parade special.

MacKenzie Phillips will join Gavin MacLeod in hosting the 50th annual J. L. Hudson Parade in Detroit.

Thanksgiving Day, a day of families being together, parades, football games, and turkey dinners with all the trimmings. But most of all, it's a day to be thankful — thankful for the many blessings that have been bestowed upon each and everyone of us.

John Wayne Receives Special All-Star Tribute On ABC

"An All-Star Tribute To John Wayne" airing Friday evening, Nov. 26 (8 p.m. on ABC Channel 3-5-12), and hosted by Frank Sinatra, will be a rollicking, fast-paced hour of sheer entertainment, guaranteed by the presence of such major motion picture and television stars as Charles Bronson, John Byner, Glen Campbell, Sammy Davis, Jr., Angie Dickinson, Monty Hall, Bob Hope, Ron Howard, Lee Marvin, Maureen O'Hara, Rowan and Martin, James Stewart, Claire Trevor, Henry Winkler and, of course, the Duke himself, John Wayne.

In the land of Hollywood, where hyperbole reigns and superlative descriptions are almost a way of life, John Wayne is a phenomenon unmatched in celluloid history.

Coincidentally, celebrating his 50th year in motion pictures, he is often called a "superstar." The appellation is a well-deserved one. It has been earned by appearances in over 200 films, whose box office grosses total in excess of $400 million.

The tribute benefits Variety Clubs International, the show business charitable organization dedicated to helping underprivileged and handicapped children throughout the world.

Wayne's first screen appearance, though fleeting, was in 1927 when he was one of 10 college football stars selected to appear with Richard Barthelmess in "The Drop Kick." At the time, he was attending the University of Southern California on a football scholarship, with no thought of a career in films. 50 years later, his latest film, "The Shootist," was hailed at its premiere as "destined to become a classic."

DUKE — "An All-Star Tribute to John Wayne," will be aired Friday evening, Nov. 26 (8-9 p.m.) on ABC Channels 3W-5-12. The rollicking hour of entertainment, with Frank Sinatra as host, benefits Variety Clubs International, the show business charity organization dedicated to helping underprivileged and handicapped children throughout the world.

Half Century Reviewed

A distinguished group of celebrated entertainment personalities will host "The First Fifty Years," the special saluting NBC on 50 historic years of broadcasting, to be colorcast as "The Big Event" Sunday, Nov. 21, 7 to 11:30 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7-28. Orson Welles will be the narrator, and Johnny Carson, Dean Martin, Gregory Peck, George C. Scott, Bob Hope and Angie Dickinson are among the hosts.

Interspersed throughout the special will be eight drama-packed segments which will summon up highlights of the network's half century of radio and TV coverage. By recording or tape, the eight segments will recall:

1 — NBC's first major news coverage: Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic from New York to Paris, early in 1927 — and his triumphant return to Washington June 11, 1927 — and the trans-Atlantic flight of the German dirigible Hindenburg, which ended in disaster May 6, 1937.

2 — War coverage, beginning in 1939, when the badly damaged German vessel Graf Spee limped into Montevideo harbor, and continuing with the attack on Pearl Harbor, V-E Day, V-J Day, Korea and Vietnam.

3 — The civil rights crusade of the Fifties and Sixties, including tape of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Washington and scenes of TV coverage in Little Rock, Birmingham, Watts.

4 — The United States space program, culminating in TV coverage of men on the surface of the moon and the visit to Mars by an American spaceship and American TV.

5 — The scandals of the big-money quiz shows of the late Fifties with scenes from the quiz show, "Twenty One," with contestant Charles Van Doren, who won instant fame because of his knowledge of a host of complex subjects. What TV audiences and the networks did not know what that quiz, along with others, were rigged. It led to Congressional hearings and to recanting.

6 — Politics: the introduction of radio into politics in the 1920s;

President Roosevelt and his fireside chats in the '30s; the 1948 conventions when sight was added to sound; H. V. Kaltenborn's "wrong call" on election night 1948 and President Truman's response; President Kennedy's assassination; the funeral of Sen. Robert Kennedy; the troubles at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1968.

7 — Watergate, with taped footage of President Nixon and John Dean.

Stunt Men, Women Perform

The world of professional stunt men and women, who perform the highly dangerous and exciting feats which highlight motion pictures and television shows, is the subject of "Figuring All the Angles," an NBC-TV "Special Treat" program airing Thursday, Nov. 25, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Chuck Connors is host of the special, which was taped at Lake Piru, Calif.

The knowledge of physical principles, the mathematical precision needed and the athletic ability behind flaming car crashes, falls from cliffs, stunt driving and fist fights, are demonstrated by members of The Hollywood Stuntmen's Association and representatives of Stunts Unlimited.

Appearing in the one-hour special are Ronny Rondell, who demonstrates the technique of being thrown from a moving car and taking a 48-foot fall from a cliff; Dar Robinson who rides a motorcycle and demonstrates another fall; Craig Baxley, who drives a car at 60 miles an hour off a ramp into a lake; Jack Verbolis, who sets himself on fire (safely); and Regina

Parton, a stunt driver, who performs in a stockcar.

The performance of such hazardous stunts, dangerous for trained professionals and sheer disaster for any amateur to attempt to duplicate, indicates the training and knowledge necessary to accomplish these feats, which add excitement to a film. The look behind the scenes also emphasizes the need for a knowledge of physics so that the participants can successfully "figure all the angles" in the event some minor element of a stunt goes wrong. Connors has spent most of his acting career aboard a horse. TV series he has starred in include "The Rifleman," "Branded" and "Cowboy in Africa." He 'dismounted' for a brief period of time when he starred as a lawyer in "Arrest and Trial."

The tall actor's main interest was athletics for the first 30 years of his life and was a professional basketball player from 1946 to 1951. He is still an avid sports fan.

'Ark II' Airs

Some 500 years in the future, a huge land-roving vehicle roams an earth destroyed by war. The crew of three young scientists, along with a gifted chimpanzee, travels the struggling planet seeking to re-establish civilization, with science and good will as their tools.

This futuristic scenario is the setting for the series "Ark II," and Terry Lester, who stars as Jonah, the captain of the Ark, II, finds a lot of philosophy behind the weekly adventures. Lester is featured with Jean Marie Hon and Jose Flores in the series which will be seen with other Saturday morning favorites — "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids" and "Isis" — on "Super Friday," a special Thanksgiving holiday treat for children, on Friday, Nov. 26, 10 to 11:30 a.m. on CBS-TV.

WHERE "DUKE" CAME FROM

John Wayne, known to friends and fans as "Duke," was given that name when he was a young boy. Seems he had a large dog named Duke and while he was in school, the dog would stay at the local firehouse. The firemen took to calling the boy "Little Duke," but shortened it to "Duke" when he passed the six-foot mark.

Dolly Parton Special Airs

"DOLLY" — Starring Dolly Parton, Sunday on channel 12 at 4:30 p.m., is a music-variety half-hour with guest stars spanning all musical categories. During the past year Dolly Parton has received every honor that can come to a country music star including selection as Female Vocalist of the Year by The Country Music Association, Cash Box and Record World.

Dolly Parton, star of "Dolly," seen Sunday, from 4:30 p.m. on Ch. 12, really did grow up in a Tennessee mountain home which she later wrote a song about. Titled "My Tennessee Mountain Home," the song is considered a classic today.

Her star began its ascendance when she was only ten years old. After a guest appearance on the Knoxville radio and TV show of Cas Walker, she was hired as a regular member of the cast, and this position served as a base of operations for the rest of her pre-Nashville years.

Within hours of her graduation from high school, Dolly boarded a bus and headed for Nashville. Her first years in the music capitol were filled with hard work and little success. In 1967, however, she was given her own recording contract and began to turn out hit records.

That same year Porter Wagoner invited her to join his successful TV and roadshow operations as his featured female singer. Since then she has had one hit single and album after another and has annually ranked among the nation's Top Five Female Vocalists in every music trade poll.

She is acknowledged as one of Nashville's most brilliant songwriters. Not only do other major stars record songs she has written, but she records many of them herself, songs like "Jolene," "My Blue Ridge Mountain Boy," "Joshua," "The Seeker," "I Will Always Love You," and "Love Is Like a Butterfly."

Dolly Parton has become one of the most important and popular country music performers in the business. She is one of the most in-demand artists for personal appearances and her RCA recordings are consistent best-sellers. Yet, in spite of her newly acquired fame, she has never forgotten her rural heritage, nor has she forgotten her devotion to her friends and neighbors back home. Because of her successes, she established in 1970, the Dolly Parton Scholarship Foundation for deserving students in her hometown area. The fund, in addition to providing scholarships, will procure instruments and equipment for the Sevier County High School Band, of which she was a member during her school days.

Actress Is A Study Of Contrasts

Theater buffs call her brilliant and remember her for roles in -roductions as varied as "Sweet Bird of Youth" and "absurd Person Singular."

Film fans roared with laughter when she had trouble remembering her age in the presence of Carol Burnett in "Pete and Tillie" and recoiled when she hacked off Clint Eastwood's leg in "The Beguiled."

She's Geraldine Page, she has worked hard to develop versatility, and is on the lookout for more contrasting roles.

Now, she's back on television, playing a power - wielding New York State County Chairman using her influence to protect grandson, on "Kojak," Sunday, Nov. 21, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"I think it's wonderful that 'Kojak' is being filmed in New York City now," says Miss Page, who also likes to be known as Mrs. Rip Torn.

"When I did this episode, it was great just to go to work around the corner. There was a big exodus to the West Coast some time ago, but the creative population to be tapped for work in television is half in New York, half in California. Not all of us moved to the coast. I've prided myself on stretching as much as possible, and I've spent my career developing versatility and trying different roles."

As to doing a television series, she reflects: "That's fine for some actors. It really is. But it's different to put yourself into a situation as one character for a long period of time."

"In television, you have to do a new script every five days; and that's grueling. You get variety, but there really isn't time to develop. On Broadway, I can be in an extended run, but I can get out and do other things."

"Too, there's always the risk that you become identified with the character the audiences see you portraying on the television screen 52 weeks out of the year."

"If you could do an anthology of different characters in different productions, that would be fun. In fact, one of my most enjoyable television experiences was when Rip and I did three one - act plays by Chekov before a live audience, in the days before everything went on tape."

DELLAREESE IN SPECIAL

Della Reese will star in a 60-minute TV special being produced for PBS. The special, which will feature Reese in concert with the Woody Herman Orchestra, will be taped at the Adventureland Park Hotel in Des Moines, Iowa.

Whets Thanksgiving Appetite

For the fourth consecutive Thanksgiving, Peanuts are as much a part of the season as turkeys, cranberry sauce, Indian pudding and pumpkin pie, and add a totally distinctive flavor to America's oldest holiday.

Some of these small delicacies are saltier than others, but all are rather tasteful, as evidenced when they come to life from the famous Charles M. Schulz Peanuts comic strip and celebrate "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving," the Emmy Award-winning animated special to be rebroadcast for the third time Monday, Nov. 22, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

The Peanuts characters concoct a rather unorthodox Thanksgiving meal for themselves on the special and then serve it traditionally enough, even though they do sit in Charlie Brown's backyard on folding canvas lawn chairs around a ping-pong table with a table cloth tied to its legs to keep it from blowing away.

Only the little Charlie Browns of the world would really recommend the Peanuts' menu, which consists of potato chips, popcorn, pretzel sticks, jelly beans, buttered toast and bowls of ice cream. But all the grandmothers and sundry other cooks, who will be serving the more traditional Thanksgiving fare, might be happy to follow any recipe that would keep the Peanuts in their families occupied in the yard or anywhere else away from the kitchen while the real preparations are underway.

Instead of the conglomeration of foodstuffs served at Charlie Brown's Thanksgiving, celebrated before the little Peanut and some of his friends go "over the river and through the woods" to eat more heartily at his grandmother's condominium, a simpler, less appetite spoiling menu like Peanut Lucy's favorite "jelly bread sandwich folded over," might be more in order for pre-dinner snack.

But the idea of keeping the little folks occupied is a major ingredient to a peaceful Thanksgiving for the kitchen brigade. Another way to achieve the same goal of keeping the kitchen free and its larder intact is to get the post-Peanut-age men in the family off to a football game until the time has come to carve the turkey.

Finally, as the philosophical Peanuts point out in the special, "Thanksgiving is more than eating," and the real recipe for a happy one is simply to be grateful — for all those things Americans take for granted, including kitchens, football enthusiasts who like to sample food, and boisterous little Peanuts who add a special ingredient to any holiday.

SNOOPY — Pilgrims progress is rather successful as the traditionally garbed Snoopy and his flighty "secretary," Woodstock, stop at Charlie Brown's house for a somewhat peculiar holiday meal, in "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving," Emmy Award-winning animated Peanuts special to be rebroadcast Monday, Nov. 22 (8-8:30 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Deadly Bees Unleashed

Academy Award winner Ben Johnson (Best Supporting Actor, "The Last Picture Show," 1971) stars with Michael Parks, Gretchen Corbett and Horst Bucholz in "The Savage Bees," a World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Nov. 22, 9 to 11 p.m.

Johnson stars as Sheriff Donald McKew, who discovers that his dog has become the apparent victim of poisoning. When he takes the animal to a morgue in New Orleans and convinces the assistant medical examiner, Jeff DuRand (Parks), to conduct an autopsy, he learns that the dog has been attacked by hundreds of bees.

The body of a crewman involved in a shipboard collision is brought into the morgue, and a quick examination reveals that he has also been the victim of multiple bee stings.

As Mardi Gras weekend is about to begin, DuRand, McKew, Jeannie Devereaux (Corbett), a graduate fellow in entomology, and Dr. Jorge Mueller (Bucholz), a Brazilian scientist who helps identify the strain of bees, join forces in an effort to avert a disaster that could claim hundreds of lives and precipitate a general public.

"The Savage Bees" was filmed on location in and around New Orleans.

Bugs, Daffy Upstaged?

Conductor Michael Tilson Thomas was embarrassed. He had arrived at the concert hall in a slightly "mod" version of the traditional full-dress suit, prepared to lead a symphony orchestra and a pair of dual piano artists thought the paces of Camille-Saint-Saens' humorous suite, "The Carnival of the Animals."

When he saw his featured soloists for the first time, Thomas was nonplussed. The pianists, Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck, were resplendent in tuxedos, high stiff collars, and bristling black ties.

Thomas dispatched the wardrobe master to the nearest costume house for more elegant garb. "After all," said the famed young conductor, smiling, "I hesitate to be upstaged by my piano players, especially when their elegance comes out of a pencil box."

Thomas, who has electrified the concert-music field with his extraordinary imagination and innovative programming, was in Hollywood briefly to film the live portions of a unique half-hour of animation-plus-live-action which will star him, and Bugs and Daffy, in a television interpretation of "The Carnival of the Animals," with the verses of Ogden Nash, to be broadcast as a special, Monday, Nov. 22, at 8:30 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Asked how he felt about sharing the stage with a pair of cartoon comics, Thomas said, "I am honored to be working with such world-famous artists. They were successful long before I was born, and their talents seem inexhaustible."

Actually, the use of catroon antics in the interpretation of a classical work fits in very well with Thomas' dedication to bringing informality into the concert hall. "Much good music has been lost to the general audience because it has been tied too closely to time-worn traditions that are stilted and out of touch with today's lifestyle," he said.

Thomas wants to reform the concert-going habits of the American public by making exposure to classical music a pleasure, rather than a dutiful cultural gesture.

He believes that the ideal music relationship between performer and listener was the almost casual one that existed between the troubadour and his audience — a communication on a personal level. He would like to restore that one-to-one experience, making the approach to music a direct exchange that can be rewarding and refreshing.

Entitled "The Lifeline Agency," it will air Tuesday night, Nov. 23, on NBC Ch. 6-7-28.

Horton went to the top of the stardom ladder very quickly in the late 1950s and early '60s. When "Wagon Train" was released in Australia, England and Canada, he became a household word on three continents.

Following an appearance at London's Palladium, at which his performance was recorded and became one of Great Britain's best-selling records, Horton returned to England to sit at a Command Performance for Queen Elizabeth.

Yet, 14 years later, a new generation of TV viewers barely recognize his face or don't even know him at all. He left the "Wagon Train" series to pursue motion pictures, do TV specials, stage work and further his singing career.

Nadia Comaneci, 14-year-old girl gymnast who achieved an unprecedented seven perfect 10-point scores and won three gold, one silver and one bronze medal in the XXI Olympiad, will greet America in a one-hour entertainment special from her homeland, with her special American guest, and host of the program, "Flip Wilson, in 'Nadia — From Romania With Love.'" The special was filmed on location, and will air Tuesday, Nov. 23, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

This is the first co-production between United States television and Radioteleviziunea Romana, the official state broadcasting organization of Romania. The program will also be seen by viewers across Europe.

Hosted by Flip Wilson, the entertainment special will present the brilliant young star of the Olympics in the picturesque surroundings of her homeland. Popular Romanian entertainers, including acts from the famous Bucharest Circus, musicians and singers will be a part of the colorful one-hour broadcast, as well as a trip to the infamous castle of Court Dracula, high in the cloud-shrouded mountains of Transylvania.

On the site of ancient Greek ruin near the Black Sea, Nadia will reprise her amazing floor exercises which dazzled the competition in Montreal.

A gymnastics program, involving Nadia's class, including Olympic gymnast Theodora Ungureanu, who achieved a 9.90 in her competition at the Olympiad, will be staged in Nadia's hometown stadium, where her family will join the festivities.

In discussing filming the special producer/director Dick Foster said, "Because we had a limited amount of space and a great distance to travel, we had to keep the technical crew to a minimum.

"It was not uncommon, therefore, to see Flip lugging boxes and pieces of equipment from the truck to a location site. We all pitched in. Flip even doubled as a sound man once, holding a sensitive microphone while we recorded some native instrumentalists in an open field in Transylvania.

"Then, because of the language problem, we had a Romanian counterpart for each member of the team. That could have created production difficulties, but with translators and everyone concentrating on getting Flip and Nadia on film it went without a hitch.

"There's color, music, dancing, tall majestic mountains, gymnastic events — it'll be an hour the hole family can enjoy. I hope American audiences will love Nadia and Romania as much as we did."

The classic lines of this 90% polyester, 10% wool dress create a sophisticated aura. Dressed up or down, it wears beautifully anywhere, anytime. Features a zipper front, three-quarter cuffed raglan sleeves and self-belt. Available in pearl, emerald, ruby or brown. Sizes 8-18.

Returns To Desert

Rod Taylor was back in the sand again for filming of "Family Flight," despite a promise to himself never to do another desert picture. The movie will air as the "CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, Nov. 23, at 12:30 a.m. on Ch. 9-11, and the main setting of the film is an isolated desert area.

"The year before, I'd done a series, 'The Bearcats,' which was filmed on location in Arizona and New Mexico," the rugged actor explained. "Then I went to the Mexican desert for a John Wayne film with Ann-Margret Smith. It was hot and grubby, and it was then I vowed no more desert pictures."

"Then, after I had been back in Hollywood only two weeks, the offer came to do 'The Heroes' with Rod Steiger, and I couldn't afford to turn it down even though it meant shooting on the Sahara desert."

Taylor was back again in Hollywood when he was asked to star with Dina Merrill and Kristoffer Tabori in "Family Flight."

"The decision wasn't as difficult as it might seem, desert filming or no," the Australian-born performer admitted. "Only three days of the movie were to be filmed on the desert, in the Apple Valley area of California. Besides, it would mean a reunion for Dina and me — we'd worked together in 1960 in an episode of 'Hong Kong,' my first fling in a

Irwin Allen's Latest Creation

Irwin Allen's newest production, "Flood!", a drama about the devastation of a small town following the collapse of an aging dam, will be colorcast Wednesday, Nov. 24, 8 to 10 p.m., on "NBC Movie of the Week." Allen is also the producer of such disaster films as "The Poseidon Adventure" and "The Towering Inferno."

Robert Culp and Martin Milner, as helicopter pilots, head a cast that includes Carol Lynley, Richard Basehart, Teresa Wright, Barbara Hershey and Cameron Mitchell.

Despite the pleading of Paul Blake (Milner), who has seen signs that the dam is deteriorating, Mayor John Cutler (Basehart) resists efforts to open the flood gates and drain the lake so the dam can be repaired. Cutler is motivated by the fact that the lake and the tourists it attracts is the town's main source of revenues.

Sam Adams (Mitchell), who works at the dam, struggles to plug up the fast - sprouting leaks, but it turns out to be a losing battle.

Allen's flair for imaginative, flamboyant and highly exploitable spectacles, combined with meticulous personal attention to detail, has resulted in magic on the screen in the best tradition of such other masters of entertainment as Cecil B. DeMille and Walt Disney.

Horatio Alger might conceivably have written the life of Irwin Allen. His career reads like it might have provided one of the plots for Alger's traditional rags - to - riches novels. Allen was born in New York attended public schools and later Columbia Univ., where he majored in journalism and advertising. He came to Hollywood as a magazine editor in 1938. Less than a year later, he was asked to produce a radio show, which subsequently ran for 11 years.

With the advent of TV, Allen created the first celebrity panel show ever produced, "Hollywood Merry - Go - Round."

Allen eventually became one of "Hollywood's outstanding 'packagers'" of motion picture deals and was soon drawn into production himself. Among his more outstanding shows presented on TV are "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," "Lost in Space," "The Time Tunnel" and "Land of the Giants."

ALLEN'S LATEST — Irwin Allen, producer of such disaster epics as "The Poseidon Adventure" and "The Towering Inferno," presents a new drama, "Flood!" in which Barbara Hershey (1) and Martin Milner assist a panic-stricken Carol Lynley, as a woman whose home is unundated after a small town is ravaged following a collapse of a dam. The World Premiere movie will be colorcast on "NBC Movie of the Week" Wednesday, Nov. 24 (8-10 p.m.) on Channels 7.

Allen's huge decorative office in Century City, Calif., has the appearance of a war plotting room for the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The walls are a vast panorama of charts, graphs, sketches and paintings, all connected with his projects for the future. In a cloak - and - dagger aura, the producer is extremely tight - lipped about his futuristic operations.

'Heidi' Airs On PBS

The well-beloved story of Heidi, a high spirited orphan girl in the Swiss Alps who transforms all the lives she touches, begins Wednesday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 p.m. on the new PBS family series, "Once Upon a Classic." The story will be shown in six episodes.

"Heidi" first fascinated readers when the book was published in 1881, then charmed the hearts of thousands on stage and screen. Now, ten-year-old Emma Blake is making her first television appearance in a major role. She was chosen for her amazing resemblance to Heidi as Johanna Spyri wrote her.

Not blond and pigtailed as most people think, director June Wyndham-Davies describes Heidi as "brown hair, brown eyes; a compact, sturdy little girl with a quality that strikes you. Emma has that kind of sturdiness," she explains, "and a resilience that gives her a quality of reality. She just felt right for the part."

O'CONNOR TO WRITE AS WELL AS STAR

Carroll O'Connor has agreed to star in, and also write, a new film version of "The Last Hurrah," 1956 best-seller by the late Edwin O'Connor (no relation) about big city politics. It will air on NBC-TV.

The new updated script is based directly on the novel and will not be a remake of the 1958 Spencer Tracy movie.

Plans are for the TV movie to begin production when O'Connor completes his seventh season of "All in the Family" early next year.

The film will be O'Connor's first major appearance in seven years on a network other than CBS. His previous TV specials, both for CBS, were the Ger-shwines' "Of Three I Sing" and "Three for the Girls," co-starring Lee Grant, Nancy Walker and Joan Blondell, which O'Connor authored and co-produced.

TWOSOME—Soprano Beverly Sills (1) and Carol Burnett co-star in the musical special, "Sills and Burnett at the Met." Thursday, Nov. 25 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11. The production, taped before a capacity audience at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City, marks the first joint appearance of the stars.

Sills, Burnett Co-star

"Sills and Burnett at the Met," co-starring Carol Burnett and Beverly Sills, will be broadcast as an hour-long special, Thursday, Nov. 25, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

The production, taped before a capacity audience at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, marks the first joint appearance of Miss Burnett and Miss Sills, each an outstanding artist in the entertainment world.

Miss Burnett stars in "The Carol Burnett Show" and Miss Sills — considered to be one of the world's leading coloratura sopranos — has sung with virtually every major opera company.

"Sills and Burnett at the Met" is the third musical special in which Miss Burnett has performed in one of New York City's cultural centers. The first two were "Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall" and "Julie and Carol at Lincoln center," both co-starring Julie Andrews.

As with Miss Burnett's two previous New York-based specials, "Sills and Burnett at the Met" will be a two-woman show, the stars supported only by a chorus of singers and dancers.

One could well question the reasons behind one of the world's most acclaimed opera stars plunging into the grind of a television special.

"I'm only doing it because I enjoy it," Miss Sills explains. "I don't need the money and I don't need the fame. I do it only because I have a good time. I'm having a ball."

"The idea of doing a special with Carol was very appealing to me. I really wanted to do it. I thought how much fun it would be. And that's pretty much the way I'm doing my career now. I don't sing operas I don't want to sing. I don't go to cities I don't want to go to. I don't go to countries I don't want to go to. And as soon as I find I'm in something I don't enjoy, I get out as soon as I can."

Carol Burnett is equally as pleased with the opportunity to work with Beverly Sills.

"I've been a Sills fan for some time. Not just for her fantastic talent, but I dig the lady herself — for herself. I'd never met her, but had seen her on TV talk shows a couple of times, and I just knew we'd get along."

Once they got into rehearsals in New York, Miss Burnett said, the chemistry between them was "better than I had ever dared to hope for," adding, "We had fun and she's a great sport. We clowned, we sang and danced, did a bit of opera and generally had a ball!"

Stalk Kidnappers

Two men fight to save their wives who have been abducted by four ex-convicts in "Death Stalk," a drama on the "CBS Late Movie" Monday, Nov. 22, at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3N-9-11.

Jack and Pat Trahey (Vince Edwards and Anjanette Comer) and Hugh and Cathy Webster (Robert Webber and Carol Lynley) are taking a rubber raft trip down a rushing river. When they stop to camp for the night they are overpowered by escaped convicts Brunner, Cal Shepherd, Frank Cody and Roy Joad (Vic Morrow, Neville Brand, Norman Fell and Larry Wilcox).

HOLLYWOOD—Carol Burnett and Beverly Sills will be together on Thanksgiving Day in more than one way. That's the night that their special will air on CBS, but also, they'll be spending the holiday together in Los Angeles. Carol and Beverly had never met before work began on their special and they became such good friends that they gifted each other with special necklaces as a memento.

Despite one reported romance between Cindy Williams and David Lander, who portrays Squiggy on "Laverne & Shirley," Cindy has also been seen socially with Rob Levine. Additionally, a friend reminds us that Cindy puts her career before any personal relationship. That was obvious when she walked off the set of the series because she felt her Shirley role was becoming too supportive to Penny Marshall's Laverne. That problem was resolved when the creators and co-producers of the show stepped down from their position and Monica Johnson replaced them as producer of the series.

No, Polly Holiday is nothing like the Flo character she portrays on "Alice." Though from Alabama, Polly's accent is hardly noticeable in person, and she wears a wig for the show, so her personal appearance is far removed from Flo's.

Ed Mallory of "Days Of Our Lives" has formed his own film production company and is looking for a good, original script to produce. In fact, it's possible that Ed and former "Days" actress, Susan Oliver, might collaborate on a film. Producing a film is the reason Susan left the soap.

Look for NBC to soon announce the scheduling of a new soap, which will replace "Somerset." The working title of the new serial is "Friends and Lovers."

Jim Peck, the host of the short-lived game show "Hot Seat," is the host-star of three game show pilots, which gives him a good chance at returning to afternoon TV by the new year.

Tigger Gets Lost

"Winnie the Pooh and Tigger Too," one of the most delightful and charming of the stories about Pooh and his pals in the Hundred Acre Wood, airs Thursday, Nov. 25, 8 to 8:30 p.m., as a special Thanksgiving presentation on ABC Ch. 3-5-12.

Based on the books by A. A. Milne, the Walt Disney animated special program features the voices of Sterling Holloway as Winnie the Pooh, and Paul Winchell as the ebullient Tigger, with Sebastian Cabot providing the narration.

In "Winnie the Pooh and Tigger Too," Tigger, a good-natured, but rather immodest fellow who declares, "The most wonderful thing about Tiggers is that I'm the only one," has unknowingly irritated his friends by bouncing on them as part of his greeting.

So to "cure" him of the habit, Pooh and the others decide to lead him into the forest and lose him, hoping that when they are reunited, Tigger will be so pleased to see them that he will no longer bounce on them.

Miracles In 'Charlotte's Web'

"I have two or three strong beliefs about the business of writing for children," says E. B. White, the noted author of books for children (and adults). "I feel I must never kid them about anything. I feel I must be on solid ground myself. I also feel a writer has an obligation to transmit as best he can his love of life, his appreciation of the world."

The solid truths of his book, "Charlotte's Web," have made it a classic. Since its publication almost 25 years ago, it has sold over 4,000,000 copies and has been translated into 14 languages.

The animated musical version of "Charlotte's Web," featuring the voices of Debbie Reynolds, Paul Lynde, Henry Gibson and Agnes Moorehead, will have its world television premiere as a two-part special presentation on two consecutive Fridays, Nov. 26 and Dec. 3, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9.

Elwyn Brooks White began his illustrious career with The New Yorker magazine in 1925 and is still on the staff. His first children's book, "Stuart Little," was published in 1947. "Charlotte's Web" appeared in 1952, followed by "The Trumpet of the Swan" in 1960. Numbered among his other books is his revision of the well-known writer's guide, "The Elements of Style," by William Strunk Jr. — known familiarly now as the Strunk and White volume.

Since 1938, White and his wife have lived on a farm in Maine. It was there that White raised a pig whose impending death generated the character of Wilbur and the timeless story of "Charlotte's Web." He spent three years writing the book.

"In the world of children's books, I am a wanderer," he explains. "It's a strange world, one I never seriously considered entering. I arrived there by stumbling into it, as one stumbles into a new place in the forest after losing one's way. To have gained admittance to this enchanted country is happiness enough; to have gone further and made my way successfully is something of a miracle."

Apropos of miracles, White has described "Charlotte's Web" as "a story of miracles — the miracle of birth, the miracle of friendship, the miracle of death." Deal honestly with these miracles — even with talking pigs and spiders — and you will be close to the truths of life, suggests.

"I am not averse to departing from reality," he points out, "but I am against departing from the truth."

FRIENDS—Wilbur the pig discovers the miracle of friendship, as spelled out by his dear friend Charlotte the spider, in "Charlotte's Web," animated musical version of E. B. White's classic story, to be broadcast as a two-part special, Friday, Nov. 26 and Friday, Dec. 3 (8-9 p.m. both days) on CBS Channels 3N-9.

Redd Foxx To Be Honored

Host Dean Martin and 17 celebrities roast Redd Foxx on "Dean Martin Celebrity Roast" Friday, Nov. 26, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

The Roast, Dean's first of the new season, was taped at the MGM Grand Hotel.

Martin was joined on the dais by Steve Allen, Slappy White, Norm Crosby, Milton Berle, Liz Torres, George Kirby, LaWanda Page, Marty Allen, Abe Vigoda, Jimmy Walker, Desmond Wilson, Joe Garagiola, Isaac Hayes, Isobel Sanford, Nipsey Russell, Don Rickles and Orson Welles.

Playing Fred Sanford, the "junkman" in "Sanford and Son," is only one of Redd Foxx's many interests.

He owns a Hollywood beauty shop for men and women, manufactures a new line of dder ("Redd" backwards) cosmetics; he is head of EF-OH-EX-EX, a television production company, and Redd Foxx Enterprises, Inc., a talent management agency. In addition, he recently starred in his first motion picture, "Norman, Is That You?," which also stars

Pearl Bailey and Mike Warren.

Foxx is also Police Chief of Raft, Oklahoma, and makes frequent visits to that town. Since he assumed the post last year, he has built a swimming pool for the local children and gave the town its first police car as a Christmas present. The town will soon be renamed Redd Foxx, Oklahoma.

One of the "roasters," Orson Wells, wrote, produced, directed and starred in "Citizen Kane" in 1940, and considers this his most memorable achievement. By his own admission, however, he's not had such a success since then.

His participation in Foxx's "roast" and his host-narrating duties for NBC's "First Fifty Years" are two of his very rare appearances on television. In response to, "Why?" he said:

"Very simple. No one has ever asked me to direct a TV show. However, just in the past few months, two networks have asked me to do a series next season. I have taken no action as yet, because I'm basically lazy," he said, laughing.

Hackman Returns

Gene Hackman stars as Popeye Doyle in "French Connection II," the hard-biting sequel to "The French Connection," to be presented for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Nov. 26, 9 to 11:15 p.m., on Ch. 9-11. Hackman won an Oscar for his original portrayal of Popeye in "The French Connection," which will air Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Also starring in "French Connection II" in an encore performance is Fernando Rey.

Alain Charnier, the "French connection," was never apprehended and has retreated to France to rebuild his narcotics empire. Obsessed with his capture, Popeye Doyle appears in Marseilles to finish the job of busting up Charnier's multi-million-dollar international heroin-smuggling ring.

Popeye's heavy-handed methods upset his French police counter-parts. Despite repeated warnings, Popeye barges into the case with a vengeance. Along the way, he is kidnapped by Charnier and forcibly addicted to heroin. After he kicks the habit "cold turkey," he relentlessly tracks Charnier in a dramatic cat-and-mouse chase through the Marseilles waterfront.

Thanksgiving Recalled

It's not quite true that the more things change, the more they remain the same. Take Thanksgiving, for instance.

"The Thanksgiving Story," a special two-hour holiday episode of "The Waltons" which will be rebroadcast Thursday, Nov. 25, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV, evoked reminiscences from Earl Hamner, creator and executive story consultant on the series.

"When I was growing up in Schuyler, Va., Thanksgiving was a big affair," he recalls. "My father went out and shot the turkey. I don't remember his ever failing to bring one back, but if he had, there were home-cured hams ready. My mother made cranberry sauce, relishes like watermelon-rind pickles, corn-bread stuffing, and pumpkin pie from our own pumpkins. The only things I can remember that we had to buy were sugar, coffee, flour and vanilla extract for flavoring the pie."

the scales at well over 300 pounds, Welles says he has "many other things to accomplish in my lifetime."

BLAKELY TO STAR IN "SECRETS"

Susan Blakely has been signed to star in "Secrets," a film which will air on ABC-TV in 1977. A spokesman for The Jozak Company, producers of the film, says the sum of money Ms. Blakely is to be paid for the film is the 'largest ever' for an actress starring in a straight two-hour movie for TV.

Army, Navy Meet In Classic

Although there is no contractual stipulation between the NCAA and ABC-TV that the Army-Navy football game must be televised each year, the contest will be carried again this year on Saturday, Nov. 27, at 12:30 p.m. from John F. Kennedy Stadium in Philadelphia on ABC.

Don Bernstein of ABC Sports' New York office explains, "We do the Army-Navy game strictly as a result of research. It's not a question of teams, nor of records. Army-Navy is a fabric of American college football and should be upheld during the years. We look at the overall picture, and Army-Navy continues to be a part of it. Records are not looked at."

The Army-Navy game stands as one of the greatest rivalries in sports. Dating back to 1890 when Navy defeated Army 24-0 in their first meeting, Army holds a slight edge in the series — 36 to 34 with 6 ties. For these teams, this game is the college football season; all other regular season contests are mere test runs, for this is the real game of the year.

Plebians at Annapolis start from their first day at the Academy in June chanting, "Go Navy, Beat Army," everytime they turn a corner in Bancroft Hall, the world's largest dormitory under a single roof with over five miles of corridors. The Midshipmen are always aware how many days remain until they meet Army in J. F. K. Stadium. It is an event that is so eagerly anticipated that preparations usually commence for next year the very instant the game is over, especially by the loser.

The entire week before the game, the excitement is at a high pitch at both Academies. Freshmen are busy endeavoring to demonstrate how bad they want the victory. This desire is telegraphed to the team through spontaneous pep rallies, sleepless nights of sewing bed sheets together to make signs that range more than six stories in height, and by the general rearranging of the grounds — which usually takes place at night.

At Annapolis, the all-time 'favorite' is to move one of the jets into the court in front of Bancroft Hall.

Of course, for the freshmen of the winning school, this victory is most important — it enables the winners to gain special privileges which allow them to be more like the upperclassmen — at least until Christmas.

As for the game itself, the Army-Navy contest is a classic and a part of America. There is so much at stake for these two teams that previous records mean nothing. Any old football player knows the power in being emotionally ready for a game. When Army meets Navy, the only sure thing is that both teams will be supercharged emotionally, and the game must be rated as a toss-up.

Last Games Important

At this point, all of the remaining Washington Redskin games are extremely important to the team's playoff aspirations. Especially significant, however, is the contest with their arch rival, the St. Louis Cardinals, on Sunday, Nov. 21, at 4 p.m. on CBS-TV from Busch Gardens in St. Louis.

Washington has posted 30 wins, 27 losses, and 1 tie in its series with St. Louis. Each team carries a definite home advantage; Washington has won 20 and lost 13 at home, while in St. Louis, the Redskins have won 10, lost 14, and tied 1. Last season the teams split with each winning at home.

In their first meeting this season, the Redskins defeated the Cardinals 20-10 in a Monday night game that was played in a torrential downpour. To viewers at home, it often appeared that the players in Washington's RFK Stadium didn't have feet as they stood ankle-deep in mud and water.

The Redskins were outgained in total yards, 306-140. There was total of thirteen fumbles in the game, one short of the NFL record. The Redskins did manage to set an NFL record by recovering 8 Cardinal fumbles. In fact, it was a Dennis Johnson fumble recovery that led to a seven-yard touchdown run to enable the Redskins to overcome a 10-6 fourth quarter deficit. Later in the game Eddie Brown made one of his incredible returns, as he has been doing all season, for 71-yards to break the game open.

Washington will have to play some good, solid football to beat St. Louis a second time, especially in St. Louis. They rank at the bottom of their conference in total defense. The Cardinals high scoring offense ranks second in the conference in total offense. The pressure is on for Washington if they plan to keep their play-off hopes alive!

Russian Film Airs

"The Boy Who Wore Spectacles," a film from Russia which tells of the fantasy life of a small boy named Kuvanychbek whose accomplishments are less satisfying than his dreams, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, Nov. 27, 1 to 2 p.m.

Kuvy's father has always impressed upon the boy the importance of protecting those who are smaller and weaker. The youngster tries to put that lesson to use when his little friend Bermeta is pushed out of line at the ice cream truck by some rough children, but he is only laughed at by the bullies.

Turning to his fantasy world, Kuvy then imagines himself as a spy-catching hero, a teacher giving the class bully a hard time, and a soccer star. But, the success he achieves in these dreams continues to elude him in real life. Only when he finally emerges triumphant in reality does he gain the self-confidence to intervene successfully when Bermeta is again bullied by the troublemakers.

Cowboys Meet St. Louis

DALLAS COWBOY — Lee Roy Jordan caught the enthusiasm of Dallas' gang of young rookies last season. A team leader for 13 years, Jordan is a valuable asset to the Dallas defense on and off the field. The Cowboys face St. Louis on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 25 at 3:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Lee Roy Jordan will be one of the standouts when the Dallas Cowboys meet the St. Louis Cardinals Thanksgiving Day. The game will be televised on CBS, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

After 14 years at middle linebacker, Jordan feels he has paid his dues. He knows that the young players who are after his position are bigger and faster than he is, but Jordan makes up for all of this with experience. Lee Roy says that he makes up for the step or two he has lost in speed by quickly recognizing the offensive plays. This is one of the reasons he has stayed ahead of the youngsters. He is also the calming force of the Dallas defense when tense situations occur. After 14 years, Jordan can still make the big plays and remain calm about it.

Lee Roy came to Dallas as an All American standout from Alabama. His participation in organized football has spanned two decades, and — after all the bumps and bruises — Jordan still does a good job. He led the Dallas team in interceptions last year with six. And every team in Pro football knows that you don't run on Dallas unless you block Jordan.

One of the most interesting feuds in Pro football exists between Jordan and Conrad Dobler of St. Louis. Dobler, offensive guard for St. Louis, is the self-proclaimed "meanest man in football." Jordan's wrath for Dobler became verbal after Dallas lost to St. Louis Oct. 17. Jordan claimed; "It's unbelievable that I am able to walk today, and that I'm not in a cast or in a hospital being operated on," referring to his wounded knees.

On the other side of the coin, Dobler could actually care less what Jordan thinks. "I'll hit him harder next time," says Dobler.

This feud has become greatly publicized because Dallas and St. Louis will meet again this week. It may be interesting to see if old know-how will win out over young aggressiveness.

Continues Winning

When coach John McKay left the University of Southern California after 16 years as the school's winningest coach to become head coach of the new professional Tampa team, few were surprised at the selection of John Robinson as his successor. Robinson came to USC from the Oakland Raiders where he was offensive backfield coach. For three years (1972-74), he was McKay's offensive coordinator, and in that period the Trojans compiled a 31-3-2 record, went to three Rose Bowls, won two national championships and averaged 32 points a game.

Under coach John Robinson, USC has continued its winning tradition by maintaining a high national ranking throughout the season.

USC will meet Notre Dame on Saturday, Nov. 27, at 4 p.m. on ABC-TV. Notre Dame has a 27-16 advantage with 4 ties in the series that started in 1926. The Trojans would like to make it three in a row against the Irish.

The 1976 edition of the USC Trojans is composed of 14 starters and 28 lettermen from last season's 8-4 team. In that group is Heisman Trophy candidate Ricky Bell, who can run over a tackler as easily as he can run around him. Bell led the nation in rushing last season (1,875 yards) and scored 14 touchdowns. This season Bell has been hampered by injuries and even missed the Stanford game completely.

Oklahoma-Nebraska Game Decides Championship

The Oklahoma-Nebraska game on Friday, Nov. 26, at 2 p.m. on ABC-TV, could pretty well decide the Big Eight Conference Championship.

Just twenty years ago, Oklahoma was not only the terror of the Midlands, but also the power in all of college football. The Sooners were national champions in 1955 and '56, then went on to win 47 straight by late 1975.

From 1948-'59, Oklahoma lost only one conference contest until Missouri captured the Big Eight Title in 1960. Then, in 1961 Colorado stepped in and grabbed the crown.

Since then, Oklahoma's sole dominance has not been absolute as it had once been. Nebraska has made definite inroads, with either Nebraska or Oklahoma winning or sharing the championship every season since 1962.

Although Oklahoma had to share the conference title with Nebraska last year, they did go on to the Orange Bowl and defeat Michigan for the national title.

The Big Eight prides itself on the fact that its teams have won the national title four of the last six years, with Nebraska ranking No. 1 in '70 and '74 — Oklahoma in '74 and '75. Also, the Big Eight teams have made 27 bowl appearances in the last eight years, testimonial to the brand of football being played across the board.

This year five Big Eight teams: Nebraska, Oklahoma, Okla. State, Colorado, and Missouri were in the top-twenty going into the closing weeks of the college season. Now there is a mad scramble for the conference crown and a trip to the Orange Bowl.

Despite Oklahoma's 29-23-3 lead in the series, the Cornhuskers of Nebraska have not forgotten that their only loss last season was to Oklahoma 35-10, and it cost them the national championship.

Sports Firsts Listed

The year 1939 marked the little heralded but historic first TV transmission of a baseball game. It also was the start of a long succession of TV "firsts" for NBC Sports.

The Columbia vs. Princeton baseball game May 17 had the distinction of being the first sporting event ever televised. The first telecast of a Major League baseball game was the Cincinnati Reds vs. the Brooklyn Dodgers Aug. 26. These two games were among six sports events televised for the first time by NBC in 1939.

The other events in that historic year were: the Lou Nova - Max Baer boxing match; the Eastern Grass Court Tennis Championship; the Fordham - Waynesburg (Pa.) college football game; and the Brooklyn Dodgers - Philadelphia Eagles pro football game.

NBC Sports coverage will have a significant role in "The First Fifty Years," the special celebrating NBC's first 50 history - making years in broadcasting, airing as "The Big Event" Sunday, Nov. 21, 7 to 11:30 p.m., on Ch. 6-7-28.

NBC continued its pioneering achievements in the televising of

Polo Links Stack's Past

Robert Stack, as Capt. Link Evers, raced down an alley in hot pursuit of a criminal turned a corner and crashed into a piece of equipment someone hadn't removed. Grimacing and holding his wrist, Bob groaned and exclaimed: "Not that wrist again! I've already broken it three times playing polo!"

Stack stars in the police drama series, "Most Wanted," which airs Saturday, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Fortunately, the pain went away and there was no serious damage. Pausing to catch his breath, Stack reflected, "It's funny how an injury can bring back vivid memories . . . Polo . . . It's been a long time since I had a mallet in my hand . . ."

Stack was once a star polo player on the University of Southern California varsity team before the acting bug got him. His athletic prowess also extended to skeet shooting (National Champion at age 16), outboard racing champ (Venice, Italy) and in hydraplace racing (for which he has won numerous trophies).

"Polo was once a great and exciting sport and now it is almost extinct," Stark recalled. "Those were grand days when the game was enjoyed by the giants of the entertainment world — Spencer Tracy, Gary Cooper, Darryl Zanuck and Will Rogers . . ."

"Not only was it a great test for the athlete and an exciting spectator sport, but polo also made its contribution to the fashion world," Stack reminisced about the polo coat — the long, loose camel's hair coat with the rakish wraparound tie belt. But polo's foremost sartorial contribution — worn by the sportsman and the man-on-the-street — is the polo shirt. The polo shirt has not only survived, but it created a lasting vogue in sportswear.

"The polo shirt is a T-shirt with a collar," Bob pointed out. "Then the innovations came. First, were the ribbed collars, then the tucked, puffed, long and straight sleeves. After they had gone everything they could think of with the collars, sleeves and colors, then came such emblems as alligators, penguins, rabbits, umbrellas and embroidered initials."

Bob laughed at the craze and remembered seeing a cartoon featuring an alligator wearing a polo shirt with a little man embroidered on it.

"Polo may be a vanishing sport," Bob noted in conclusion, "but the polo shirt has to be given its due as the most efficient, economical and best looking piece of apparel to come along since the loincloth."

Teenage America Pageant Airs Saturday With Host Bob Hope

Become Miss Teenage America and see the world.

That has been the experience of Cathy Durden as she nears the end of her year as Miss Teenage America 1976. Since she was awarded the Miss Teenage America Medallion last Nov., Cathy has visited England, France, Germany, Austria and 40 American states, and took a Caribbean cruise to Puerto Rico, St. Thomas and Jamaica.

Cathy, a native of Kaneohe, Hawaii, will soon be making a return trip to Tulsa, Okla. — where she won the title — to serve as host of the 16th annual Miss Teenage America Pageant, to air Saturday, Nov. 27, 10 to 11:30 p.m. She will be joined by Bob Hope.

Recalling her trip to Europe, the first time a Miss Teenage America has been so honored, Cathy said: "It was my first trip to Europe, but it won't be my last. I fell in love with Paris."

Cathy will have been on tour in behalf of Miss Teenage America for 320 days. She considers some of the highlights to be visits to the Kentucky Derby and Indianapolis 500, and her numerous TV appearances.

Articulate and attractive, Cathy also has enjoyed her more than 50 interviews on local radio and TV stations she visited. This is quite revealing of her character, since she confesses that she entered the pageant to overcome a tendency toward shyness.

"I originally entered the Miss Teenage America Pageant because I was extremely, extremely shy," she said. "Now after all my traveling I feel like 17 going on 25."

LUCILLE BALL:

The Reasons We Found Her
So Unforgettable

WHY I GIVE THANKS:

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale

PEOPLE QUIZ:

What Do You Know About Your Country?

A whole generation
grew up with it.
And now...

27 years and 33 million cars later, there's a whole new generation of Volkswagens.

The 1977 Rabbit, Dasher, and Scirocco.

Three of the most remarkable cars ever built,
these Volkswagens feature highly advanced engineering.
Such as fuel-injection. Front-wheel drive. Front-disc brakes. And precise rack-and-pinion steering.

And all three get 24 MPG in the city. Rabbit and Scirocco get 37 MPG on the highway. Dasher gets 36. (EPA estimates with standard transmission. Actual mileage depends on how and where you drive, optional equipment and the car's condition.)

A new generation for a new genera

Dasher. It's the first elegant automobile with all the virtues of a Volkswagen. In appointments, it has a luxurious interior, with reclining bucket seats and rich carpeting. It even comes with a quartz-crystal clock. In performance, it can travel from 0 to 50 in 8.0 seconds and still keep its road manners. Extravagant, yet not opulent.
We call it "the sensible luxury car."

Rabbit. Hailed by automotive experts as the specific kind of car Detroit will be building in the 1980's. Six years in the making, that car is ready now, when America needs it. Small outside. Big inside. With the rear seat folded down, it has more trunk space than some American cars twice its size. And from 0 to 60, it will out-accelerate a Jaguar XJ6-L.* Room, Performance. Economy. It's more Volkswagen than you've ever had before.

n of Volkswagens tion of Americans.

Scirocco. It's the Volkswagen that people can't believe is a Volkswagen. It looks like an Italian sportscar because Giugiaro designed it. And it performs like a powerful German sportscar because it has a powerful fuel-injected overhead cam engine. In fact, Scirocco, our racing Volkswagen, just won the 1976 Trans Am Championship for cars under two liters. The Rabbit, Dasher and Scirocco. Times have changed, America. And so have Volkswagens.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR REP. JOHN J. RHODES (R.-Ariz.)

Why won't you accept the military pension you legally deserve?—Mrs. Lela Owens, Hobart, Ind.

● As long as I'm on the Government payroll and being paid an adequate salary, it would be wrong for me to accept supplementary income from the Government. I don't need my pension while I'm working full time. Since one of my major concerns has been the alarming increase in the Federal budget, accompanied by a staggering increase in the national debt, I decided to return my pension funds to the Treasury. My $500 monthly pension won't do much to reduce that debt, but I have the satisfaction of having made a personal contribution to alleviate a situation that greatly concerns me. Since I'm a member of Congress, my decision has received media publicity. Perhaps other Federal employees will follow my lead.

FOR KATHY CROSBY, TV hostess

Will you be serving anything unusual for Thanksgiving dinner?—B.G., Pottstown, Pa.

● I don't know if this is unusual, but this is what we'll be having: roast turkey with cornbread stuffing, sweet potato balls, peas with artichoke hearts and cranberry salad mold. For dessert, we usually serve the traditional pumpkin and mince pies, but we also have a tray of assorted cheese with fruit for those who can't tackle the heavy desserts. I also make a light dessert cake, Orange Delight.

FOR LOWELL THOMAS, veteran broadcaster

Is there any part of the world you regret not having visited?—R. Olsen, Idaho Falls, Idaho

● Even though I've been moving about the globe almost nonstop for the past six decades, there still remain a few thousand areas I haven't seen. I've been to Outer Mongolia, but not to the Inner part. I regret having missed a mountain range named for me in the Antarctic. And although I've visited Eastern, Western and Central Siberia, I'd like to take a peek at the Arctic part of that enormous land.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, football star

You went back to the Buffalo Bills after saying early last summer that you would never return. What changed your mind?—David Moran, Waco, Texas

● When it became clear that the Bills were not going to get the trade they wanted and thus I had to play for them or for nobody, I asked myself if I were emotionally and financially set to stay out of football. The answer was yes. The next question was, "Did I want to quit playing?" The answer was no.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH

If you have a squabble with your boyfriend, how do you make up with him?—H.H., Hackensack, N.J.

● Get into a good mood and a new dress at the same time and plan the kind of evening we both enjoy. We ignore the cause of the argument (pretend it never happened) because what's past is dead. We usually go to a dinner, then a show. But before we meet, we both think over what happened and analyze it. Nine times out of 10, the cause of the tiff was unimportant, magnified by tension or work pressures.

FOR CORRIE TEN BOOM, author of The Hiding Place

Have you been in touch with any of the people whose lives you saved in World War II?—Mrs. Gordon Oberg, Cheyenne, Wyo.

● Yes, many of them. About 15 years ago, I met a teenage Jewish boy I had saved (along with more than 100 other Jewish babies marked for death in an orphanage). What a joy that was! I have even talked with one of the guards who was so very cruel to my sister, Betsie. The Lord has been good by showing me the fruits of my years of work.

FOR CHARLIE RICH, country-western singer

Were you once a farmer?—F.S., San Pedro, Calif.

● Yes. When I got my 1955 Air Force discharge, I wanted security for my family. We had two kids and one on the way. The idea of making money from music seemed remote. My uncle in West Memphis, Ark. set me up as a farmer. The first year was fine; the second was so-so. All we got in the third year was rain. I couldn't get the crops in, so I decided to quit. My uncle said he'd keep helping me, but by then I'd had enough. I turned to singing and playing in Memphis on a regular basis.

FOR J. B. WEST, former chief usher of the White House

How have former First Ladies reacted to your book, "Upstairs at the White House"?—Jack Montgomery, Waco, Texas

● I sent an inscribed copy of Upstairs at the White House to each of the First Ladies and received a nice thank-you note from each. If any of them were unhappy about the book, they would probably not have mentioned it since Presidential families become immune to criticism.

FOR ROBERTA PETERS, Metropolitan Opera star

As an opera star, how do you feel about movies?—S.A., Charlottesville, Va.

● I love tearjerkers. Wild horses can't hold me back if I hear of one playing nearby. I don't like horror films and usually give them a wide berth. I'm squeamish and can't stand the sight of blood. When Elizabeth Taylor got a face lift in Ash Wednesday, I became violently ill. Films I enjoy most are musicals and comedies. They have happy endings.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I know handwriting reveals one's personality, but can you tell what people are like by the way they dress?—B.S., Ann Arbor, Mich.

● We checked with noted designer Jacques Bellini, who dresses the famous as well as the obscure. He said you can, and analyzed some of his clients: "It's easy to see that Liza Minnelli is busy and confused because she's not coordinated. She can't mix and match clothes. Same with James Caan, a fine man and actor, but he's a sloppy, mixed-up dresser. You can tell Sylvia Miles is outgoing and eccentric. Her outfits are startling and exposing. With one glance it's obvious Monique Van Vooren is organized. Her things are orderly and neat. Also Margaux Hemingway, who's chic, neat and tailored. She's always in control. Ben Vereen, a marvelous human being, treats his clothes with consideration; he's very compassionate."

WHY WE LOVED LUCY SO MUCH

Lucy gives out a snappy rendition of "Glow Worm."

Television shows come and go, but Americans have clung to Lucy with fierce fidelity. Turns out there are some interesting reasons why.

Martian chronicles: Lucy and Ethel in outer-space drag.

A harebrained scheme in the making: Golf widows Lucy and Ethel decide on a new plan of retaliation.

Lucy "vamps" Tennessee Ernie Ford.

Lucy demonstrates her good manners for Edward Everett Horton.

By Bart Andrews

It was crazy, exciting, and it involved millions of us every week for a quarter of a century. How did it all begin?

Twenty-five years ago at a New York dinner party, a public-relations man was overheard saying, "We've just bought a little thing made out in Hollywood . . . a situation comedy with Lucille Ball and her husband what-sizname. I don't know if it will amount to anything."

That "little thing" turned out to be the most successful television program of the 1950's: "I Love Lucy." And "whatsizname"—Desi Arnaz—soon became TV's top entrepreneur, the brains not only behind Miss Ball's million-dollar laugh machine but also king over enough TV film to stretch from Hollywood to Nigeria, where, incidentally, "I Love Lucy" is still running.

This week marks the show's 25th anniversary. For nine years, Lucy and Desi romped through prime time television, and even if you didn't write one of the 10,000 letters they received each month or didn't send one of the 500 gifts they opened the day after Desi Jr.'s birth or were not among the 60,000 fans (over the years) who watched "I Love Lucy" being filmed in Hollywood, you'll remember something special from those 25 great years. Maybe Lucy and Ethel working at Kramer's Kandy Kitchen or Lucy being caught up in a wine vat in Italy or just the Ricardos and the Mertzes loose in Hollywood.

Come back with us and remember. We promise this rerun will not be interrupted by commercials.

The Desilu empire began as an inauspicious comedy which, just prior to its debut in October, 1951, TV Guide described as a show "revolving around problems arising in a household where the wife is stage-struck and the orchestra-leader husband thinks she should stay home."

It hardly sounded like something to rush right out and buy a new 12-inch TV for, but in a short six months, America was all but coming to a grinding halt every Monday night. Telephone companies reported a substantial reduction in calls during the half-hour period. Chicago's Marshall Field switched its evening shopping hours to Thursdays when it became clear that the biggest clearance sale in the store's history was no match for "I Love Lucy." Management put up a sign in the window declaring: "We love Lucy, too, so we're closing on Monday nights."

When Presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson cut in on "I Love Lucy" for a five-minute campaign pitch in the fall of 1952, his office was flooded with hate mail. One woman wrote: "I love Lucy. I like Ike. Drop dead."

George J. Van Dorp, water commissioner of Toledo, Ohio, had his own rating system in 1953. Van Dorp contended: "There's an amazing correlation between the degree of attention that people pay to a television show and the amount of water they use. While 'I Love Lucy' is being shown, pressure in the main is consistently high. As soon as the commercial comes on, the pressure drops because people are using the water again. That lasts only one minute: I don't need a watch; all I do is look at the water-pressure gauge. When the show is over and people again avail themselves of water services, the pressure sometimes drops as much as 30 percent."

Whatever rating system you subscribed to, "I Love Lucy" came out ahead. The series won more than 200 awards, including five Emmys (it was nominated 23 times). At the Fourth Annual Emmy Awards dinner, in 1952, after accepting the second of two Emmys for excellence in comedy, Red Skelton remarked: "Ladies and gentlemen, you've given it to the wrong redhead. I don't deserve this. It should go to Lucille Ball." The overflowing audience of industry bigwigs cheered loudly. The Arnazes could not contain their elation and broke down and wept.

All in all, there were 192 so-called "I Love Lucy" escapades. If reviewed in succession, they would consume four days, seven hours and 15 minutes. They are also available dubbed in Japanese, Portuguese, Italian, French and Spanish.

What made "I Love Lucy" one of TV's all-time hits? TV writer Jack Sher put it this way: "The captivating thing about Lucy and Ricky is the fact that they hold a mirror up to every married couple in America. Not a regular mirror that reflects the truth nor a magic mirror that portrays fantasy. But a Coney Island kind of mirror that distorts, exaggerates and makes vastly amusing every little incident, foible and idiosyncrasy of married life."

Jess Oppenheimer, one of the show's three creators, harbors the same opinion: "The funniest single line ever uttered on 'I Love Lucy' came when Lucy summed up smartly what happens to a lot of marriages: 'Since we said, 'I do,' there are so many things we don't.'"

In Jess's opinion, the line was not particularly funny in itself, but it gave viewers a sudden, deep insight into themselves—a shock relieved by laughter.

After the first season of "I Love Lucy" was over, journalist Jack Gould made this statement: "If there is one universal theme that knows no age limitations and is recognizable to young and old, it is the institution of marriage—and more particularly the day-to-day trials of husband and wife. It is this single story line above all others, with which the audience can most readily identify itself."

However, no real-life situation could have matched the circumstances surrounding Lucille Ball's pregnancy in 1952 when it was decided that Lucy Ricardo also would have a baby on "I Love Lucy."

"We decided that although it had never been done before, we could tackle the job of a pregnancy on TV," producer Jess Oppenheimer recalls. "We felt certain we could extract all the inherent humor from the situation while staying within the bounds of good taste. To further insure that we offended no one, we arranged for a priest, a minister and a rabbi to approve the scripts and see the shows being filmed."

When Lucy gave birth to a big baby boy, headlines all over the world carried the news. Seven minutes after the baby's birth, it was

Bart Andrews is an avid fan of the "I Love Lucy" show. Recently, he gathered together just about everything there was to know about the show and interviewed everyone he could talk to connected with it. The outcome was a book—Lucy & Ricky & Fred & Ethel: The Story of "I Love Lucy."

broadcast in Japan. Los Angeles school officials went around to classrooms to announce the blessed event to the students. A spokesman for the Associated Press claimed, "We covered the birth on a wartime basis, with hourly bulletins."

The day following the baby's birth, General Dwight D. Eisenhower was inaugurated President, and on his ABC broadcast, Walter Winchell reported, "This was a banner week—the nation got a man and Lucy got a boy."

But while 29 million people witnessed Ike's swearing-in ceremony on American television, 44 million tuned in to watch Little Ricky's arrival.

Desi Arnaz Jr., now 23, remembers: "I can still recall watching the show when I was about 3 and wondering who was the baby with Mommy and Daddy. When my parents said it was me, I was confused because I knew it wasn't. So I had this identity problem, and it wasn't helped any by people calling me Little Ricky, a name I learned to despise. I remember wanting desperately to be better at something—anything—than the boy who played Little Ricky (actor Keith Thibodeaux). Although he was two years older than I, we became close friends. One of the things he did was play the drums, and that's what really got me interested in music. I studied percussion because I wanted to drum better than Keith did—and I'll always be grateful to him for that."

Young Desi knew all too well that there wasn't much relationship between what he saw on TV and what was really going on at home. "I learned pretty early," he says, "to relate to 'I Love Lucy' as a TV show and to my parents as actors in it. Those were difficult years—all those funny things happening each week on television to people who looked like my parents, then the same people agonizing through unhappy times at home."

The Arnaz's shaky marriage, which ended in divorce in 1960, was not the only cause of tension behind the scenes. While the Desilu press department fostered the image of a happy foursome on the "I Love Lucy" set, it wasn't the case. After "Lucy" went off prime time, William Frawley (who played neighbor Fred Mertz) said of Vivian Vance, his TV wife, his so-called "honeybunch":

Searching for the reasons behind "Lucy mania" turns out to be a journey that leads us back to ourselves.

"She's said to be one of the finest gals to come out of Kansas, and I often wish she'd go back there. I don't know where she is now, and she doesn't know where I am, and that's exactly the way I like it."

Most of the credit for the show's superiority goes to Lucy's incredible drive for perfection.

Very rarely did Lucille Ball goof. However, one crew member recalls an occasion when she hopelessly stumbled over a speech eight or nine times in succession, until she broke the tension by yelling out into the audience to her mother De-De (who missed nary a one "I Love Lucy" filming), "Don't worry, Mom, I'll get it!"

At about the time "I Love Lucy" went off prime time schedules in 1960, Columbia University conducted a survey of TV-viewing habits. One of the questions was, "Are there any programs that you'd like to see put back on the air? I don't mean reruns; I mean new versions. If 'yes,' which one(s)?" The overwhelming favorite—"I Love Lucy."

No format appeared so unlikely to succeed as the adventures of a carrot-top clown and a Cuban bandleader with an accent so thick you could cut it with a cleaver; yet for nine happy years, the lives of millions of Americans, and countless more worldwide, ran on one tether with the Ricardos. They and the Mertzes became America's favorite foursome; and the laughs have gone on, uninterrupted, for 25 years.

Jack Gould of The New York Times summed up his feeling about the success of "I Love Lucy" by saying, "I Love Lucy" is very human—and so are we.

GRANDPA WALTON

"The best Thanksgiving pie I ever had anywhere!"

Born in Frankfort, Indiana, Will Geer began his colorful career nearly 50 years ago, performing in tent shows and on riverboats. In 1924, he started his own repertory company, and that's where he often finds himself on the big holidays.

Once they served a Thanksgiving pie that was so incredibly good, Will demanded the recipe: "You take a 9-inch unbaked piecrust, 3 eggs, a cup of dark corn syrup, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 cup melted margarine, a cup of canned pumpkin, a teaspoon of vanilla, and a cup of pecan halves. Preheat your oven to 350°F, and prepare piecrust. Then, with a hand beater or wire whisk, beat the eggs well. Beat in the next 5 ingredients until well blended. Now arrange the pecans in the bottom of the piecrust. Slowly pour the egg mixture over them. Bake for 1 hour, or until a knife inserted 1 inch from edge comes out clean. Let it cool, then serve it with good old whipped cream!"

JOHN WALTON

"My super turkey sandwich will knock you out!"

Ralph Waite is totally, helplessly in love with the theater. He has appeared in 8 Broadway plays, several films, and is founder and artistic director of the Los Angeles Actors Theater, a drama company which he established in the spring of 1975. But more and more his interest has turned to directing. He's even directed several episodes of "The Waltons."

Though Ralph doesn't direct in the kitchen often, there is one recipe he loves for left-over Thanksgiving turkey. "First, you make some Russian dressing. In a small bowl, combine mayonnaise and a good dash of pepper. Mix this with relish, catsup and Worcestershire. Then you take two slices of rye bread and spread generously with the Russian dressing. Top one slice of bread with three slices of turkey, two slices of Swiss cheese and one slice of ham, folded in half. Top all this with two heaping tablespoons of sauerkraut and the remaining slice of rye. Cut it in half and serve it with dill pickles. Man, it's delicious!"

OLIVIA WALTON

"I'm something of an expert on vegetables."

When Michael Learned remembers Thanksgiving, she immediately thinks of the 21-acre Connecticut farm she grew up on—especially the kitchen. How many kitchens do you know that have a sitting room and fireplace inside? Michael's mother did most of the holiday cooking, including roast turkey, baked ham, traditional vegetables, and a big salad.

Today, Michael's Thanksgiving dinner usually includes some very special vegetable dishes, because that's what her family loves! Now married to Glen Chadwick, Michael has a lively household of 5 teenagers. Since the children are all fond of vegetable-type diets, she is an expert on the subject. One of her favorite ways to do peas is "the French way," with lettuce, chopped onion, and a little slivered ham. She also works magic with zucchini, either steaming it to a tender turn with sliced onion and dill; or mixing it with onion, fresh diced tomatoes and a touch of salt and fresh ground pepper.

GRANDMA WALTON

"Can you believe my mother once owned a restaurant?"

Ellen Corby was born in Wisconsin and grew up in Philadelphia, Pa., during the 1930's. "I've worked my whole life," says Ellen. "It's important to be doing what you like to the best of your ability." On the subject of Women's Lib, she says, "Women have always been capable. L-I-B means life is beautiful."

And for Ellen, Thanksgiving brings back beautiful memories. She recalls going to her mother's restaurant and getting her dinner right from the steamtable. They served all the traditional things: roast turkey, ham, gravy, sweet potatoes, carrots, peas, and cauliflower. Often her Danish-born mother would make

"special" dishes from her home country: Danish cucumber salad, the cucumbers sliced "paper thin," and cranberry sauce with "Danish spices."

Being on "The Waltons" has strengthened her, Ellen feels. "The character you play rubs off on you. 'The Waltons' proves that a good family can survive on love without much money."

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

Are the happiest people those who live in our small towns and rural areas?

A Look at You And the U.S.A.

TRUE OR FALSE?

- Most Americans consider George Washington to be our greatest President.
- How Americans characterize a person is likely to depend on the mode of transportation that person prefers.
- Americans live longest in the regions that have the best climate.
- U.S. Senators tend to fall into four distinct personality types.
- People who live in the small towns and rural areas of America are the happiest.

ANSWERS

- False. A recent nationwide survey showed that, in the public's view, the greatest Presidents were John F. Kennedy, Abraham Lincoln and Franklin Roosevelt. Harry Truman ranked next in popularity, with George Washington barely nosing out Dwight Eisenhower for fifth place.
- True. In a University of Pittsburgh study, it was found that modes of travel—buses, automobiles, bicycles, motorcycles and walking—tended to be directly associated with specific values. The investigation showed that people tended to characterize others as follows: Bus riders were seen to value equality over other considerations. ("I'm just as good as the next fellow," and "People are all born equal—some just get better breaks than others.") Automobile use was associated with comfort, family security, and social recognition. Bicycles were associated with pleasure and were disassociated from comfort, equality and need for social recognition. Motorcycles were strongly associated with excitement and freedom, but not with comfort, family security or concern for a world of beauty and peace. Lastly, walking was associated with inner harmony and a desire for a world of beauty and peace. It was disassociated from excitement, family security, equality and need for social recognition.
- False. A study of longevity patterns in the U.S., conducted by the statistical bureau of a leading life insurance company, shows that the opposite is true, that states in the West North Central region—led by North Dakota—had the best longevity record. This general area is noted for its rigorous climate, with severe winters and broiling-hot summers. And previous research has shown that frequent storms and dramatic weather changes tend to have a stimulating effect on our mental and physical processes, and that the excitement of weather in-the-making also has a direct effect on morale and general sense of well-being.

4. True—as evidenced by a Columbia University study which "psyched out" representative Senators' personalities and careers and found they tended to fall into four distinct categories: the Active-Positive subjects (Lawmakers) "who tended to concern themselves with substantive achievements"; the Active-Negative (Advertisers), with an accent on achieving personal ambitions; the Passive-Positive (Spectators), largely concerned with "winning others' affection"; and the Passive-Negative (Reluctants), bent on "escaping from 'politics' while still satisfying their consciences' demand that they serve the public." It was concluded that it is possible to regard the Senate as composed of these four distinct types and that this study has much to offer future attempts to explore the political personalities of other public figures.

5. True—according to the findings of university studies which show that small-town and rural lifestyles tend to go hand in hand with closer ties with fellow human beings, more meaningful relationships, more lasting friendships and a feeling of belonging. Behavior specialists point out that most people who live in rural areas do so because they prefer country living, while many of those who make up the population of the crowded metropolitan areas live there not by preference but because of economic necessity.

My Feet Were Killing Me...Until I Discovered the Miracle of Hamburg!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sight-seeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Elysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Hamburg with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans of all ages—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

© Featherspring International Corp. 1976

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Feathersprings will bring you guaranteed relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Hamburg can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

Drilling up. As everyone knows, oil people really do drill downward. But drilling activity is up. During the first half of this year, 13,065 oil and gas wells were completed in the United States and offshore—an increase of 24.6 percent over the same period last year. In fact, overall drilling activity has risen sharply since the fourth quarter of 1973, and the number of wells drilled in 1975 was the highest in a decade. Keep that in mind the next time someone says the oil industry isn't going all out to find more oil and gas.

Underground endowment. The University of California may soon have one answer to the college financial squeeze. The University will shortly solicit bids from producing companies for leasing 11 sites on its 3,000-acre Davis campus, near Sacramento, where natural gas has been discovered. Revenues from gas production would help defray university operating costs, even as classes continue. The 11 drilling sites are scattered through the rural areas used for agricultural experimentation.

Building better mousetraps. Energy-saving inventions are eligible for government grants, under a program initiated by the Office of Energy-Related Inventions, which is part of the National Bureau of Standards. The idea is to stimulate the creative tinkering of individuals and small research groups. Every idea is first screened for technical feasibility by New England Industrial Resource Development Inc., a consulting firm in Durham, N.H. working with the government. Inventions that are being considered for grants include a microwave device to make car engines more efficient, a rubber-recycling machine for used tires, and a system for saving energy in making maple syrup.

Bottom of the barrel. The State of Maryland turned down a $60,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a consumer education program. Reason: About 75 percent of the money would have gone for paper work required under terms of the grant.

THEY BUY AND SELL MANSIONS

Photograph by Elizabeth Gee

The Weirs have renovated 22 houses in the past 10½ years.

They devote all their talent and energy to "recycling" old houses to their original elegance.

What could a former chemist and a fine artist have in common? In the case of Sam and Mary Weir, the chemist and artist formed a marriage and business partnership that required shedding old lifestyles and adjusting to a great deal of house-hopping.

In the past 10½ years, the Weirs have bought, renovated and then sold 22 houses on or near the New Jersey shore. During this time, they've lived in eight of the houses—all mansions—and their current home is a palatial 35-room residence, which they're restoring to its original elegance. As soon as the work is completed, they will sell or rent, and move on.

House-hopping for the Weirs began at the tender age of 22, when they purchased a two-story fisherman's row house in Sea Bright. The house was a shambles and dirt-cheap. Even so, the couple had to borrow money and talk the owner into an extended mortgage to finance the deal. But they felt just having a home of their own made it all worthwhile.

It took them about a year and a half of trial and error to renovate that first house. By the time they had converted it into apartments, the Weirs were sold on the idea of continuing such projects. So they bought another run-down relic, improved it, rented the apartments and moved on—and they've been moving on ever since.

For the first five years of their venture, Sam continued to work as a research chemist to provide the money for mortgage payments and material costs. Now he devotes all his talent and energy to "recycling" old houses.

When asked how they managed to get up the courage to tackle dilapidated 30-and-40-room mansions, Mary said, "We've always felt that if we looked at anything long enough, we'd know what to do with it. I guess we just have a lot of faith in ourselves. We may not always know exactly what we want, but we do know what we don't want."

The Weirs have learned a lot since their first undertaking. One thing they've learned is when to call for help—they sometimes get freelancers to assist on larger projects. Now referring to themselves as home recyclers, they offer guidance to others who want to renovate. Their basic plan of action, which applies to cottages, mansions and anything in between, begins with an attic-to-basement cleaning job. This usually means clearing cobwebs, broken furniture and junk from rooms that have not been opened for years. Once this is done, it's possible to see what raw material (paneling, floors, etc.) there is to work with. One of the great bonuses in larger houses is an abundance of beautiful hardwood, exquisite floors and wall paneling, which withstands neglect far better than paint or plaster. Paneling rarely requires any work, and floors are easily restored to their original beauty. "Right now," says Mary "we're building a new house with a chestnut interior that we rescued from another mansion. Somehow, old wood in a new house helps make it seem like a home a lot sooner."

The next step in the Weirs' plan is to design a traffic pattern. This is particularly important in smaller houses where too much space is often taken up by halls. These house recyclers often eliminate a hall entirely and knock down walls to enlarge a kitchen or living room. In larger houses the traffic pattern usually indicates a need to relocate the kitchen. Servants might have been content to have the kitchen in the back of the house, but today's homeowner wants the kitchen to be a family-centered room, a place where the chief-cook-and-bottle-washer can be in the middle of the action.

Closet space, a real shortcoming in older homes, is another major consideration. A good rule of thumb, say the Weirs, is to create half again as much closet space as you think you'll need.

Another essential of the Weirs' plan is to make the entire structure air-tight. First Sam fills all cracks in the foundation and elsewhere with polyurethane, which hardens quickly. Next, for insulation, he uses urea-formaldehyde foam, a substance that looks like shaving cream. It is pumped into small holes drilled into the outside wall of the house and spreads and fills the entire space between the interior and exterior walls. When he's through, the old house is as solid as many new houses, and usually better insulated.

Mansions are great places for parties, and the Weirs always plan celebrations before and after renovations. The before party, however, just has never materialized. "We're too anxious to get down to work," says Mary. "But we make up for it with our after parties. At the last one we had a band, and we even put on a skit that included all the funny things that happened while we were transforming the house."

The Weirs have two sons, Chris, aged 5, and Charlie, 11. The boys work with their parents, cleaning, painting and carting. And so far, they've been more of a help than a hindrance. Sam remarks, "They know what not to do. They've been up on the roof with me ever since they could walk, and they know what's safe and what's not."

Work is a family affair for the Weirs. Since their two sons could walk, they have helped with painting, cleaning and carting.

Mansion-living is a youngster's paradise. Charlie and Chris ride their bikes in the living room and skate-board in the halls—until the rooms are finished. In addition, they have their father around the house all day. Their parents feel this is one of the joys of their work together. Sam always has time for the boys, and he never has a need to unwind at the end of the day because he's been doing just what he enjoys most. There's never a problem deciding what to do in the evenings, which are usually spent mapping out the next-day's work.

The prospect of renovating a huge mansion seems overwhelming and, yet, the relaxed, easygoing manner of the Weirs makes it all seem possible. The secret of their success is that they love what they're doing and make a profit in the bargain.

MONEY

Is Joint Ownership Double Trouble?

Soon after Jack and Alice Robbins were married, Jack opened a savings account in both their names. He put much more money into it than she did, but he insisted that it remain a joint account. "I don't want Alice to have to go through any complicated inheritance procedures if anything happens to me," he said. "And besides, I want her to know that any money either of us earns is ours." Two years later Jack was killed in a plane crash. The bank froze the Robbins' joint account until the state tax authorities examined it. To Alice's dismay, she learned that she had to pay an inheritance tax on the entire amount. "But some of that is my own money," she protested. Yet because she could not prove how much she had deposited, she was taxed on the total sum. Many couples make the mistake of letting their feelings override financial good judgment. They think of joint ownership—of savings, a house, stocks—as a gesture of love and trust. But they do not foresee the problems it can create. "Joint ownership," says one bank president, "is a complex device with many built-in booby traps. The theoretical advantages can turn out to be liabilities." For example, joint ownership can become a weapon in times of domestic conflict. Since neither partner has sole control of the property, an angry spouse (perhaps one who is about to seek a divorce or about to be divorced) can simply withdraw all the savings or sell jointly owned stock and place the proceeds in his or her own name. One husband used a jointly owned home as a bargaining weapon in a divorce settlement. The wife wanted to sell their house and move to an apartment, but her husband refused to sign a contract of sale until she agreed to lower alimony payments. Since the house couldn't be sold without his signature, the wife was faced with a case of legal blackmail. There are several kinds of joint ownership, each with its own legal requirements and complicated rules. One should always consult an attorney before putting property into joint ownership. Even though joint ownership may create a sense of family unity and signify love and trust, there are far better and simpler ways to achieve those goals.

WHY I GIVE THANKS

As Thanksgiving nears, Dr. Peale remembers a good friend's advice: live by "the attitude of gratitude."

By Dr. Norman Vincent Peale

Especially for Family Weekly

A phrase, "The attitude of gratitude" was first introduced to me by a man I had known for some years. He used to be a disgruntled person, but, at some point, a profound change took place. He became optimistic and joyful. I probed for the secret of this change, and I was astonished to learn it was due to his application of one magic word: "Thanks."

"One day, inadvertently," he said, "I sincerely thanked a person for doing something for me that was a little more than expected. And I noticed a pleasurable glow in myself and a similar reaction in the other person."

From that simple beginning came his habit of thanking everyone for everything. Then, in his reading, he chanced upon a statement by the psychologist William James, who said that the most fundamental desire of human nature is the desire to be appreciated. "Therefore, if you give appreciation to people, you win their love," said my friend. "But, more important than that, the practice of this philosophy has made a different person of me."

It was then that he coined the phrase, "The attitude of gratitude." "The attitude of gratitude will do wonders for you," he said. Then he told me that every day he repeats the opening sentence of the 107th Psalm: "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever." And he added, "I believe from my experience that anyone who says that passage every day will be a happier person."

I agree that it will certainly help one feel better and have a better philosophy. Every morning when you get up, instead of fretting and complaining, instead of turning on the news to find out how bad everything is, look out the window, take a deep breath and say, "I give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever." It will help you feel great.

I read in a newspaper once the complaint of a minister that the right of national self-criticism was being interfered with. I would be the last person to approve such interference. But it may be possible that Americans have overcriticized themselves. We seem to have developed a national inferiority complex.

Elizabeth Gee

Dr. Peale, with wife Ruth, appealing for more positive thinking: "We seem to have developed a national inferiority complex."

Personally, I get a tremendous thrill out of this country. And I have visited almost every part of it. The more one travels around the nation, the more one gives thanks for this goodly land that the Lord has given as part of our heritage.

Remember the story of William Bradford? We have no picture of him. We do not know the color of his eyes and hair, but we know the "color" of his mind and soul. We can see him standing in the meadow at Plymouth, praying for rain. And when the rain came, he ascribed it to God and thanked Him. For three decades he was Governor of Plymouth Colony and put his stamp on it; and for more than 200 years he has put his stamp on the American people.

Neither starvation nor hostile attack could overwhelm that body of settlers, who had faith in God and their leaders. They were an indomitable breed. They say of Daniel Boone that when he wanted to cross a ravine he didn't walk down into it; he would grab a grapevine and swing across.

One day he came home to his cabin in the wilderness and said to his wife, "Ma, we're moving." Ma did not show any enthusiasm because she had just gotten herself nicely settled from the last move, and she asked, "Why are we moving, Dan?" "I just noticed a cabin 40 miles from here," he explained. "People are crowding us; we have to move." I wonder what Daniel would do in this teeming America of today?

Those early Americans wanted amplitude, scope, greatness, vastness because they had those same qualities in their souls. "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good." He gave us a great land like this. He gave us magnificent ancestors. A great people made us, and we should feel gratitude for the high principles handed down to us.

Norman Vincent Peale has been minister of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York for the past 44 years. He is the author of The Power of Positive Thinking as well as 24 other books, including The Positive Principle Today (Prentice-Hall, 1976). Copies of Dr. Peale's weekly sermons for radio and TV may be obtained from the Foundation for Christian Living, Paulding, N.Y. 12564.

"We can see the Governor of Plymouth Colony in the meadow, praying for rain. When it came, he ascribed it to God..."

You will find these principles in the Declaration of Independence, in the Constitution of the United States, in the Bill of Rights and in the body of literature produced by our founding fathers. Our future depends on preserving those basic principles not because those people were everlast-

"In a hotel once, I dreamt my wife had died....I awoke to dial home...and could only say, 'Ruth, it's you...'" ingly right—no one can be that—but because these principles were taken out of an ancient body of jurisprudence and law, out of the Holy Scriptures, out of the philosophy of liberal thinkers of the past. Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln all warned us that it is dangerous to tamper with principles which have proven themselves.

One of these principles, for example, is a firm reliance on Divine Providence. Washington said, "The event is in the hands of God." Lincoln said, "No mortal council hath devised, no human hand hath wrought these wonders." Franklin said, "No sparrow falleth from heaven without the Almighty taking notice of it. Is it likely that an empire can rise without His aid?" Faith in Divine Providence is one of our basic principles.

Returning to my friend who said, "The attitude of gratitude will do wonders for you," I wonder whether there is any disgruntled, unhappy, dissatisfied person reading this article. I suppose so, for we are all that way at times, ignoring blessings and causes for happiness. For our own mental health we need to emphasize the many reasons for thankfulness.

One night in a West Coast hotel I dreamt that my wife had died, and I experienced all the agony as though it had been real. When I awoke, I said with relief, "It was only a dream!" But I wondered whether it were so, and I went to a telephone to dial our home in New York.

When my wife answered, I could only say, "Ruth, it's you, isn't it? I'm so glad." "Of course," she said in surprise. "Why are you so excited?" I said, "You have the sweetest voice I ever heard." "Did you call just to tell me that?" she demanded. And, being a frugal soul, she added, "I'll venture this call will cost you ten dollars." "I wouldn't care if it cost me a hundred dollars," I said "just to hear your voice."

How grateful we should be for our blessings. There is an old hymn which goes, "Count your many blessings—name them one by one." At home at your Thanksgiving table, take a few minutes to enumerate your blessings; count them, one by one. You will have a well-filled table; you can eat that turkey; you can talk; you can sleep; you can walk—simple blessings, perhaps, but very real ones. The "attitude of gratitude" lifts us up and makes us people of faith and hope and joy.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Mark Chester

CHRYSTIE AND BRUCE JENNER Competing in generosity

She dropped out of college and worked as an airline stewardess to support her husband while he trained for the 1976 Olympics. He went to Montreal and won the Decathlon. Now he's a star, and she's sitting pretty. Bruce Jenner is currently being wooed by television, movie and print people alike. He tested for the starring role in a soon-to-be-made re-make of "Superman" (he didn't get the part because he looked too young), and now they're asking him to play Errol Flynn in an upcoming film. The TV networks want him to do sports announcing. Sports-equipment manufacturers are competing for the honor of having his handsome face on their packaging. Says Jenner: "I don't know about acting. It makes me nervous because I've never done it before. Right now, I want to take Chrystie on a vacation to Hawaii." Says Chrystie: "It sounds corny, but he's the same old guy. I think we'd both like to kick back and have a really good time for about a year." Right now, there are just a couple of promises: an assurance that he will look carefully at all offers and a commitment to sending Chrystie back to school. She'll pick up the 50 credits she needs for a B.A., then it's on to law school. Says Chrystie: "Sacrifices? No, I'm very uncomfortable being any kind of martyr. It was a priority structure. His needs had to come first for a while. The rewards came almost instantly." Says Jenner: "She has sacrificed a lot for me. I hope I can do a lot for her."

LAWRENCE WELK Knowing when to leave

A tough lesson for the Champagne Music Maker: "I was about 19 and on my way to play at a dance in Zeeland, N.D., about two hours away by train from my home.

There were a couple of salesmen in our coach who knew me from some of the dances I'd played in the area, and they asked me if I'd favor them with a few accordion tunes. Would I! I didn't have to be asked twice. I happily played—with all stops out—waltzes, polkas, old-country folk tunes, wedding dances—I even threw in a couple of marches. After a good while, the salesmen told me they'd decided to get up a card game, and they pressed me to join them. 'Oh, that's all right,' I said, not getting their point at all. 'I like to play the accordion!' As I burst into my favorite waltz, suddenly one of the fellows threw down his cards, grabbed great hunks of his hair in both hands and shouted, 'Please! I can't stand any more!' Crushed and humiliated beyond belief, I put my accordion away immediately and sat all by myself for the rest of the trip. It was a harsh lesson, but a good one, and I never forgot it. It's the reason we try to keep our show moving as fast as possible today." From My America, Your America, by Lawrence Welk with Bernice McGeehan (Prentice-Hall, $7.95).

AND SMILE WHEN YOU SAY THAT, TURKEY! Gobbling the Thanksgiving bird

Smile when people call you a turkey—that's a compliment. Because, as Ben Franklin, proponent of the turkey as national bird, foresaw, the gobbler is a great bird. In fact, if we are what we eat, we're all going to be turkeys soon because the poultry industry has begun marketing turkey ham, turkey hot dogs, turkey pastami, turkey salami and turkey bologna. The stuff is purported to look and taste like regular ham, hot dogs, etc. It's all part of the trend away from beef to poultry and seafood. Of all animals raised and sold for meat, the turkey has the most protein, with the lowest calorie count. He (or she) also produces more meat than any other market animal—65 percent white, 35 percent dark. And come this Bicentennial Thanksgiving, it's estimated we Americans will gobble 37,080,000 turkeys—and not a single eagle.

DATE: Thanksgiving is Thursday.
