Carter Planners Consider Trimming Military Budget

By ROBERT KAYLOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Carter administration planners are looking at military personnel costs—including such "sacred cows" as the $8.5 billion yearly retirement system—as an area where defense spending can eventually be cut, informed sources said Saturday.

Military and civilian payrolls, retirement and related costs such as military housing and schools for service dependents comprise about 55 per cent of this year's $111.09 billion Defense Department budget.

A Carter transition team headed by Richard C. Steadman, 44, a New York investment banker who served in the Pentagon during the Johnson administration, will look at major Defense Department decisions that must be made in the first three months of the new administration.

Those decisions include such items as whether to proceed with the $22.9 billion B1 bomber program and what alternatives to immediate production of the bomber might be available.

But the entire defense budget for the 1978 fiscal year, which the Ford administration will submit before leaving office, also will be examined to identify "problem areas," sources said.

"No defense secretary is going to influence manpower and management problems in his first few months in office," said one Carter source. "But if half the budget is there, that is where you are certainly going to have to look for possible judgments."

Carter suggested during the campaign that between $5 billion and $7 billion yearly could be cut from defense spending. But he avoided any commitment to do so by a specific date.

Congressional experts have held out little hope for large cuts in weapons spending. Most of the significant reductions will have to come in other areas, they said, and most likely will be at least three or four years into a Carter administration.

Among the "sacred cows" untouched by any administration is the military retirement system, which provides a pension of half pay for life after 20 years service and higher amounts for longer times in uniform. Any proposed changes would arouse stiff opposition.

Draft Evaders Pardon Being Prepared

By DON PHILLIPS

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's chief spokesman said Saturday the president-elect, following through on a campaign promise, is preparing a blanket pardon of Vietnam draft evaders and will issue it during his first week in office.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter also plans to make the basic decision at the first of the year whether to ask Congress for a tax cut. He said, however, it may be later before Carter decides specifically what to ask for should he decide on a cut.

Carter himself spent a foggy, rainy South Georgia day at home working on his new administration and taping a television interview. His only other appointment of the day, with aide Hamilton Jordan, was canceled after Jordan became ill.

Powell said Carter will move quickly to follow up on his campaign promise to pardon draft evaders. He said the president-elect already has a group of staff members preparing the pardon order.

"He said he was going to do it during the first week, and he'll do it," said Powell. "We've got some people working on it."

Powell said, however, that Carter still believes deserters — as opposed to those who ducked the draft — should be dealt with on a case-by-case basis.

"He sees the need to make a distinction between desertion and Selective Service violations," said Powell. "There are varying degrees of circumstances."

On the tax cut issue, Powell said Carter would "make some basic sort of determination" at the first of the year, after he has seen what is happening to the economy at that time.

Once during the campaign Carter said a tax cut was "inevitable," but he almost immediately backed down. Federal Reserve chairman Arthur Burns and various key congressmen have warned against a premature decision.

Powell also said present plans do not call for formulation of a "Carter budget" to replace the one now being formulated by President Ford. He said present thinking calls for amendments to the Ford budget, and the extent of those amendments is yet to be decided.

Carter's office announced that the president-elect will address the Denver meeting of the National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials by telephone tonight at 10:30 p.m. est.

PLO Resisting Order To Turn In Weapons

By DAVID D. PEARCE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization, under pressure from Syria to curb its guerrilla operations in south Lebanon, is resisting an order for it to turn over its heavy weapons, Palestinian sources said Saturday.

The PLO declared the turnover to the Syrian-dominated Arab peacekeeping force of heavy weaponry should apply only to the Moslem leftist and Christian rightist groups in Lebanon, the sources said.

The development came as Syria appeared to have arrived at a tacit understanding with Israel that a token Arab peacekeeping force could be sent to certain parts of south Lebanon if Syria curbed the operations of the Palestinian guerrillas.

But the PLO reportedly told Col. Ahmed Al Hajj—military commander of the multinational Arab army in Lebanon—that the demand they give up their weapons would be a violation of the 1969 Cairo agreement governing the scope of Palestinian activities in Lebanon.

Under the terms of this agreement, which was ratified once again at recent Arab summits on Lebanon in Riyadh and Cairo, the Palestinians were allowed to retain their guns in their camps and at bases in the south where they have operated against Israel.

The Cairo pact is ambiguous on the point. It says Palestinian command posts "will be in charge of regulating and limiting the presence of weapons in the camps" and puts this "within the framework of Lebanese security."

Representatives of all Palestinian groups except the Syrian-backed As-Saiqa organization met in Beirut Friday night and issued a statement Saturday denouncing what they termed "moves to liquidate the Palestinian revolution."

The Syrian official newspaper Al Baath recently called for the exclusion of the Palestinian fighting forces from a Palestine national council meeting in Cairo next month. The council comprises 170 members, including the guerrilla groups, representing Palestinians from all over the Middle East.

The United States has played a central role in diplomatic efforts to prevent eruption of a crisis in southern Lebanon, where Israel has greatly strengthened its border defenses.

The Israelis had threatened military action if the Syrians advanced into the border area and warned Syria to prevent guerrillas from raiding Israeli territory from south Lebanon.

Kepone Increase In Bluefish

RALEIGH (AP) — One sample of bluefish taken off the North Carolina coast showed an increase in the levels of Kepone, a pesticide, but a state official said it was not enough to cause alarm.

Dr. W. Y. Cobb, director of the Food and Drug Protection Division of the state Department of Agriculture, said 83 lots of finfish and shellfish have been analyzed. But only one sample was found to exceed the limit of 0.1 part Kepone per million parts edible fish established by the Environmental Protection Agency.

To Ask For Indictments

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wake County Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell Jr. says he plans to ask a grand jury next month to return eight indictments of felonious false pretense against Florida businessman H. Julian Eng, who already faces a conspiracy charge here in connection with the state advertising contract.

Eng and Raleigh advertising executive Jerome H. Louchheim III were indicted during the summer on charges relating to overbilling the state for advertising services. Both were charged with conspiring to overbill and Louchheim was also charged with eight instances of overbilling the state.

Declares Law Unconstitutional

MORGANTON, N.C. (UPI) — Superior Court Judge Sam Ervin III Saturday declared unconstitutional a state law prohibiting school employes from serving on school boards in the case of a Catawba County school teacher.

In a special session, Ervin upheld the intention of the law but said it could not constitutionally prevent Joseph Barringer, an elementary school teacher in Catawba County, from serving on the Board of Education in Caldwell County where he lives.

The Caldwell County board had asked for the ruling after the 29-year-old Barringer won a seat on the board in the November general election.

Wants Order Set Aside

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An attorney for a Raleigh newspaper says he will ask a Superior court judge next week to set aside an order barring public release of an autopsy report in the shooting death of a Virginia state trooper.

William C. Lassiter, attorney for the News and Observer, said Friday he would seek release of autopsy report on the death of trooper Garland Fisher. The trooper was killed by gunfire after he and a man who had allegedly abducted him in Virginia encountered a roadblock in Granville County north of Durham.

Discloses Payments

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Liggett Group Inc. has filed a report with the Securities and Exchange Commission voluntarily disclosing questionable foreign payments totaling $99,000 by two of its subsidiaries.

The payments were made over three years to employes of four foreign governments or government-owned companies in connection with sales to the companies.

Four Men Die In Rocky Mount Fire

ROCKY MOUNT (UPI) — Four men were killed Saturday morning when fire swept through a two-story hotel which officials said usually housed derelicts.

The owner of the Terminal Hotel marked off the 50-year-old brick structure, worth about $50,000, as a total loss.

The identities of the four men were not immediately released.

Authorities said the victims apparently died of smoke inhalation but autopsies were ordered on the bodies.

Hotel owner Farouk Hamad estimated 2 persons were registered in the hotel Saturday but most escaped when the manager spotted the downstairs fire and alerted residents.

"The reason we had some people who didn't get out was because they were too intoxicated", Hamad said.

Hamad said some retired persons and "drunks" were permanent residents of the hotel, but a few travelers lodged there for short periods of time. The 2-room hotel was located behind the local Carolians Trailways Bus terminal and across the street from the Seaboard Coast Line passenger train depot.

Hamad said that the manager of the hotel told him a resident rushed out of his first floor room shortly after 2 a.m. and without saying anything to anyone, he ran out of the hotel.

The manager spotted the flames coming out of the man's room and alerted residents before he telephoned the fire department at 2:06 a.m.

Fire Chief David Whitley said flames were billowing up 2 to 4 feet when his men arrived at the hotel. Firefighters rushed into the building but were forced out by intense heat and smoke before they had finished searching the ground floor.

It took the 22 firemen at the scene an hour to contain the flames and about four hours to extinguish it, officials said.

Whitley said his men went back into the hotel as soon as it was possible and found one body on the first floor. The bodies of the other three men were found in beds on the second floor, he said.

Whitley said the fire apparently originated on the first floor of the hotel and spread to the second floor, which was gutted by the fire. The first floor sustained damage from smoke, water, debris and, to a lesser extent, fire, he said.

The hotel was located downtown, but fire officials said the blaze didn't spread to nearby buildings.

Chitlin Day

SALLEY, S.C. (AP)—Once again the odor of chitlins permeated the air for miles around as between 20,000 and 22,000 residents and visitors came to Salley Saturday for the 11th annual Chitlin Strut.

Four tons of chitlins, considered a delicacy by some, were served up along with barbecue pork and chicken for the less daring.

Chitlins are the small intestines of hogs. They are cleaned, boiled, rolled in a special batter and fried.

The crowd, which braved overcast skies and an odor which one long-time strutter says "takes a week to wear away," included a representative from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and local and state officials. Among them were state Sen. Gilbert McMillan, R-Aiken; state Sen. Bill Knotts, D-Aiken; Rep. Floyd D. Spence, R-S.C.; and former Democratic Congressman W.J. Bryan Dorn.

For $3 a plate, a person could dine on chitlins, cole slaw, pork and beans and bread.

And, for some who just came to watch and weren't interested in food, there were country music and a dance contest.

D. F. McIver and the Star-Busters of West Columbia provided music for the actual strut, with performances by individuals and teams from across the country. Prizes were awarded for the best Chitlin Strutters.

There were also local favorites, such as the Oconee Cloggers and the South Carolina Square Dancers.

Each year the strut, begun in 1966 to raise money for the town's Christmas decorations, has attracted crowds to the town with a population of about 600.

Money raised from this year's celebration will go for municipal improvements, probably to retire the debt on a trash compactors, says one town official.

Trying To Determine The Size Of Christ

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — Two Air Force Academy science instructors said they used modern scientific techniques and 45-year-old photographic slides of a shroud in which Christ's body may have been wrapped to determined he was about 5-10 and weighed 175 pounds.

Their biggest problem, they said, was not having access to the shroud itself, which is a holy relic kept in the Cathedral of Turin, Italy. The shroud, a linen 14 feet, 3 inches long and 3 feet, 7 inches wide, bears the faint impression of a man's face and body.

"We have not had access to the actual shroud," said Capt. Eric Jumper of Albuquerque, who holds a doctorate in aeromechanical engineering. "It is encased in a silver box in Turin and has been displayed only three times in the last century."

Using the old slides of the shroud, Jumper and Cap. John Jackson, an instructor with a doctorate in physics, asked several different subjects to lie on a piece of muslin identical in size. They projected images on the shroud to the muslin.

"We did the body outlines in black, what are believed to be bloodstains in red, scorch marks in orange and water marks in blue," Jumper said.

"Then we draped the cloth over the subjects so that all image features were aligned with the corresponding part of the model," Jumper said. "Bloodstains were lined up to touch the subject, since we assumed they indicated a direct body contact point. We then photographed the subject with the cloth on and with it removed.

"We found that there was only one way to wrap the cloth and make it fit the stains, and the only man who fit it exactly was the one who was 5-foot-10½ and weighed 175 pounds."

They said investigation of the shroud has shown all the wound marks associated with the crucifixion of Christ — nail marks in the hands and feet, indications of scourging on the body, a lance wound in the side and marks on the forehead which could have been made by a crown of thorns.

The two men said the study of the image on the shroud should be an object of scientific mathematical principles.

"If you can mathematically plot heights of variety depending on intensity, you can make a mathematical sculpture of a body," Jumper said. "It is tantalizing.

"We definitely feel that the shroud is worthy of further scientific study," Jumper said. "We feel now that the accumulation of evidence from different fields of knowledge presents a formidable argument in favor of its authenticity."

Death Toll In Turkey's Quake May Reach 7,000

VAN, Turkey (UPI) — The death toll from Turkey's worst earthquake in nearly 40 years may reach 7,000 when rescue workers finally are able to count casualties in villages cut off by landslides and a blizzard, Turkish newspapers said Saturday.

Burhan Yavuz, deputy governor of Van province, announced that more than 4,000 persons were confirmed dead.

Officials at a makeshift aid and rescue headquarters in Van said an estimated 1,200 persons were seriously injured, at least 20,000 homeless, and 60 mud-brick villages confirmed destroyed.

Relief officials said a fleet of 25 U.S. C130 turboprop transport planes began delivering relief supplies to Incirlik airbase in southern Turkey Friday night. Other planes hauled the supplies to Van for trucking into the devastated areas.

Another seven U.S. C130s were maintaining an air bridge from Pisa, Italy, directly to Van, located on the eastern shore of Lake Van.

More than 500 of those killed were from the town of Muradiye, where only three buildings were left standing.

Other hard-hit towns included Caldiran, Isdiyadin and Ercis, all near the epicenter of Wednesday's quake which measured 7.6 on the open-ended Richter scale.

Rescue officials said strong winds, blizzards, landslides and temperatures from 32 degrees down to 14 degrees hampered army rescue columns which still had not reached dozens of remote villages in the quake zone near the Soviet and Iranian frontiers.

A number of nations besides the United States were sending in such aid as blankets, heatable tents, gasoline and medicine.

Britain was sending 5,000 blankets, Saudi Arabia pledged $5 million, West Germany was dispatching tents, heaters and medicine worth more than $400,000.

Italy Saturday sent a planeload of 10,000 blankets and 1,100 pounds of medicines with more to come, depending on needs. France was dispatching 1,850 packs of warm winter clothing, another 2,000 blankets and 1,000 camp beds.

News Briefs

Japan Still Holds Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan is now the only major maritime nation without an accord with the United States on the new U.S. 200-mile fisheries zone.

The United States and the Soviet Union, which takes 10 per cent of its catch off U.S. shores, signed an agreement here Friday that will restrict Russian fishing in the new zone.

The United States is extending its fisheries zone from 12 to 200 miles effective March 1.

Japan, which harvests an estimated 15 per cent or more of its catch within 200 miles of U.S. shores, has opposed the extension.

Investigating Reexports

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson said Saturday the United States is investigating reports Yugoslavia reexported sophisticated American equipment to the Soviet Union.

Richardson said following two days of talks with Yugoslav officials that Yugoslavia fully understood the importance of clearing up the matter because the issue has a bearing on purchases of American weapons.

At least six Yugoslav companies are suspected of diverting civilian strategic materials to the Soviet Union during the 1960s. Their right to export these goods from the United States has been suspended.

Warns Against Backing

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A black African group said Saturday Britain and the African "frontline" states have agreed to back the appointment of nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo as prime minister of Rhodesia's interim government, a move it warned could lead to civil war.

Officials of Bishop Abel Muzorewa's African National Council said civil war might erupt between black African factions if Nkomo or anyone else became prime minister of a pre-majority rule interim government without being elected to the post.

Muzorewa's party said it has "irrefutable evidence that the frontline presidents have recommended to Britain that the interim government should be formed now and that it should be headed by Mr. Joshua Nkomo." The frontline states that border Rhodesia are Angola, Botswana, Tanzania, Mozambique and Zambia.

Job Losers File Suits

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — A man who says he lost his job to a "very attractive looking female" and a woman who claims she was dismissed because she was pregnant have filed separate suits against their former employers.

John C. Sherrill filed his suit against Holiday Inn of Winston-Salem and its general manager, Ross Homes.

Deborah Kaye Wilkins filed her suit against the Washington Group Inc. of Winston-Salem, trading as Express Stores; the company's district manager, Gordon Bragg; and Judy Brinkley, the manage of the convenience food store where she was employed.

Inaugural Contributions OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contributions of up to $5,000 from corporations and unions will be accepted by the committee that is paying the bills for Jimmy Carter's inaugural festivities, the head of the inaugural group said today.

Bardyl Tirana, cochairman of the 1977 inaugural Committee, said the contributions will be used to fund public events and pay for transportation for the expected crowds in January.

Subpoenaed On Oswald Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Committee on Assassinations has subpoenaed former CIA officer David Phillips to testify about Lee Harvey Oswald's Soviet and Cuban contacts in Mexico City.

"I have been subpoenaed to testify before the House committee," Phillips said Saturday. "Where and when I cannot say."

Phillips was involved in CIA surveillance of the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City in 1963, when Oswald visited it eight weeks before President John F. Kennedy was murdered.

The Washington Post reported Friday that the CIA had intercepted and recorded a phone call Oswald made from the Cuban to the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City during his visit. But the Post said the intelligence agency furnished only part of the transcript to the FBI and later to the Warren Commission which investigated the Kennedy murder.

KKK At Pendleton

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The executive director of the San Diego Urban League says there's an active Ku Klux Klan chapter at Camp Pendleton and the Marine Corps knows all about it.

The allegation came Friday from Clarence Pendleton Jr., who said presence of white supremacist groups may have been the motivation for a group of black Marines to stage a commando-style raid on a white barracks two weeks ago.

Study Of Congress Underway

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has quietly appointed seven private citizens and eight Congressmen to study the strange ways it conducts its business, propose reforms — and help erase the impression that Congress is overpaid, oversexed and underworked.

Almost unnoticed, this reform commission is already offering suggestions designed to produce less talk and more action in the House.

Given a deadline of Dec. 31, 1977, it must also recommend ways of preventing improper use of committee funds and powers — the root issue of the Wayne Hays sex scandal, in which the Ohio Democrat was accused of putting Elizabeth Ray on the Congressional payroll solely to serve as his mistress.

The Hays scandal, news reports on the pecadillos and junkets of various Congressmen, and allegations of payoffs from lobbyists have all prompted Congress to try to reform itself.

Last session, legislators started taking steps to improve their image, including creation of the 15-member Commission on Administrative Review — with the seven civilians included to show this was no "inside job."

The stodgy title alone might explain the lack of national publicity for the commission. But what it is doing will streamline House procedures in significant ways, if its recommendations are approved.

The first proposals emerged recently, when a task force recommended to the full commission that the House emphasize committee work — instead of floor debates — the first three months of each year.

That would give the panels time to hold hearings and draft legislation without the constant interruption of roll call votes and quorum calls on the House floor. The rest of the year, the emphasis could shift back to floor debate.

Other initial recommendations:

— Reduce substantially the time allowed for general debate of a bill. At present, a bill can be discussed for an hour during procedural work on rules for the general debate, then discussed again at greater length during the debate itself, and again as each amendment is considered.

— Require that at least 44 members support a motion for a time-consuming roll call vote on any amendment. Members often demand such roll calls simply to impress constituents, and they now need only 20 votes to do it.

— Allow a committee to resume work, if it wants, when the House is considering amendments to a bill, unless at least 10 members object. Committees now need unanimous consent to skip that part of debate, and any member who opposes the panel meeting can block it by himself.

U.S. Rebuked For Stand On VN Admission To UN

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. allies and rivals joined forces in a 124-1 vote with only three abstentions to rebuke the United States for its repeated refusal to let Vietnam into the United Nations.

Only Britain, West Germany and Israel abstained Friday, and the United States cast the lone negative vote against a General Assembly resolution that rejected as trivial U.S. agruments against admitting Vietnam.

The measure declared Vietnam fully qualified for membership and demanded that the Security Council reconsider its application.

The United States vetoed Hanoi's application Nov. 15 in the Security Council, arguing that Vietnam was not humanitarian enough for U.N. membership because it has failed to account for 800 Americans still missing in action (MIA) after the Vietnam War.

"Whatever problems it may have at this particular time in accounting for the Americans ... are trivial in comparison with the great causes that are being discussed here this morning," said Sri Lanka's ambassador, T.D. Kanakaratne, who introduced the resolution as chairman of the nonaligned group.

But U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton made it clear that nother attempt to admit Vietnam would meet another U.S. veto. He said the United States will continue to insist that Hanoi "provide all the information in their possession on the missing in action and they will return to us all recoverable remains of our dead."

Vietnam's U.N. observer, Dinh Ba Thi, said the MIA issue has not been resolved because of "the attitude of the American government, which has shown no serious desire to solve this problem."

The Vietnamese insist the MIA issue must be negotiated in connection with their demand for U.S. war reconstruction aid. American and Vietnamese officials have begun meeting on these issues in Paris.

The large vote for Hanoi reflects a widely held feeling at the United Nations that Vietnam, after its long struggle for independence and unity, deserves to be admitted to the world body.

Carter Victory Challenged

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's narrow victory in Ohio has been challenged in a federal lawsuit charging his supporters with "widespread election fraud."

The suit, which seeks to overturn the Nov. 2 presidential election in Ohio and schedule a new election, was filed Friday in U.S. District Court by attorney Richard Reichel on behalf of electors from the Republican, U.S. Labor and American parties.

"It is based upon our belief that in the recent election there was widespread election fraud that we have been able to document to a certain extent," Reichel said.

Secretary of State Ted. W. Brown has ordered a recount to begin Monday and has agreed to "check" allegations of fraud, but he has not launched a formal investigation.

Should the recount show that Ford carried Ohio, Carter still would have 272 electoral votes nationwide, two more than needed for victory.

The allegations of fraud center on registration drives organized by the state Democratic party, the AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers.

Completes Deployment

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israeli military reinforcements, including mobile long-range artillery capable of hitting targets up to 15 miles away, have completed their deployment along the frontier with Lebanon, the state radio reported Saturday.

The unusually highly-publicized military buildup was carried out despite reports of a Syrian agreement to restrain Palestinian guerrillas from resuming attacks from southern Lebanon against the Jewish state.

The Return Of Burlesque

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Remember when a peek at a bare leg was more enticing than a nude body, and a double entendre could express more naughtiness than an X-rated movie?

Both were the backbone of burlesque — a dead art form brought back to life in its uninhibited and unpolished state by the Clarence Brown Company in "The New Majectic Follies and Lyceum Gardens Revue."

Friday night's opening of the follies here marked the three-year-old theater company's most daring, and perhaps most commercial, undertaking yet.

The University of Tennessee company has toured the South with Anthony Quayle in "Macbeth" and "Everyman" and presented productions of "The Headhunter" and "Rip Van Winkle" at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington.

After a three-to-five week engagement here, director Ralph Allen hopes the interest in nostalgia and old forms of entertainment will take the company on another tour of the South and later to New York.

Starring Joe E. Ross and Jimmy "Yockum" Matthews, one of the few Minsky burlesquers still alive, the show alternates between stock comic scenes, one-liners and song-and-dance numbers by tap dancer Gene Bell and chorus girls described by choreographer Jim Hoskins as the Rainbow Line.

"The girls are all different, just like the old burlesque," Hoskins said. "Some are heavy, some skinny, ranging from 5-foot-3 to 5-foot-8. We carefully avoided giving it the Las Vegas look."

The one-liners include a guy walking across the stage with a shovel saying he wants to dig up a date and an off-key singer explaining that his voice has been "cultivated" only to hear that it ought to be "plowed under."

The burlesque routines include the traveling salesman and the farmer's daughter and street girls asking members of a quartet, one by one, to "Meet Me Round the Corner."

Allen began collecting the material, passed down from generation to generation, 14 years ago because he feared it would be lost as the stars of the burlesque era gradually died off.

"In the last analysis, folk comedy of this sort can be preserved best in performance," Allen said.

Growth Planning Is Difficult

Right here in Greenville is a prime example. We don't know whether we are planning a city of hundreds of thousands of people within the next 100 years or something considerably less.

With the nation's oil running out we don't know whether we will need more throughways and thoroughfares in the future, or whether we will return to a situation where jobs, shopping areas and living quarters are all within walking distance.

Should we plan on more parking areas for more automobiles or more parks and lanes for the walking traffic?

Well, we wouldn't bet against the automobile, or some comparable form of transportation. There might be drastic changes ahead. Vehicles mav even be restricted in size or weight at some time in the future, but we suspect that people are too oriented toward some form of individual transportation to change now.

It's not easy to see how the problem of providing energy to power personal vehicles will be provided. But then there were few who could have foreseen the development of the micro-circuitry which has revolutionized the computer industry in such a short time.

Thus for the time being Greenville and other cities like it will have to continue to plan for the automobile, or something similar. That means we will have to seek ways to develop thoroughfares through portions of the city where they are needed, such as the western side of the town.

We will have to insist that new highway corridors, such as the one along U.S. 264 that everyone wants, be planned and constructed.

There are disadvantages to tearing up the countryside to construct new highways, but to do nothing over the coming years could put us in a hopeless position insofar as handling traffic is concerned.

Hunt Has All The 'Mandate' He Needs

Jim Hunt got more votes for governor than anyone previously has, the State Board of Elections certification showed.

Hunt, of course, also won the Democratic nomination without the necessity of a second primary. Thus he will go into the governor's office with as much of a mandate as he could have, and probably with as few promises made as any governer upon taking office.

This gives Hunt a unique opportunity to develop programs which will be in the best interest of the rank and file citizens of our state. It is an opportunity that should not be missed.

"Every four years he locks himself out of the voting booth and I'm, of course, locked in . . . so together we elect the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES!"

Billy Carter New Folk Hero

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—President Carter's brother Billy is rapidly becoming a folk hero of sorts around North Carolina.

Not because he drinks a beer now and again, likes to tell tall stories, and drives a pickup—plenty of us Tar Heels have been doing that all our grownup lives.

But Billy Carter is doing something which any born Southerner approves of: he's taking some smart-alecky Yankee, big-city newsmen for a ride, and they're swallowing his act hook, line, and sinker.

So popular are Billy Carter stories becoming that soon-to-be Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. says if the President can't come to the inaugural ceremonies in Raleigh next January 8, he's gonna invite Billy as a stand-in.

Health Study

The object of a nationwide survey to gain definitive data on health care costs which will be conducted by the North Carolina-based Research Triangle Institute is to give a data-base for consideration of National Health Insurance.

There are several competing proposals under study in Washington, none of which are firmly based on sound information.

Daniel G. Horvitz, chief of statistical sciences at the Research Triangle Institute, says 11,500 families (some deliberately picked because they have no health insurance) will be surveyed seven times, at nine-week intervals, to get complete details of all expenditures for health care—doctor bills, medicine, hospitalizations, etc. Then, a 100 per cent check of records to verify will be run at hospitals, doctors' offices, and insurance firms.

The $7.4 million research project—the largest ever for the Research Triangle Institute, is commissioned by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Horvitz says he is intrigued by the prospects of such an in-depth study on health care costs all over the nation, and analysis of the data "will show just what the burden of providing adequate health care will be."

That, he said, is important to consideration of National Health Insurance. "But, I'm not so sure we're gonna get the data out before that decision is made," Horvitz added.

The survey will also gather information on Medicare, Medicaid, and other governmental aid programs available, and when cataloged will give a wealth of insight into kinds of illnesses, treatment generally used, comparative costs nationwide, and will help federal officials project future needs and estimate the cost and potential benefits to society of the alternative health care proposals being talked about by government and private experts.

Tremendous Growth

The Research Triangle Institute is now 18 years old, employs more than 700 staff members, and is looking at contracts for studies totaling more than $20 million in the coming year.

The agency recently occupied the new George Watts Hill Building in the Research Triangle Park—a six-story office costing $2.4 million, and designed with energy-saving in mind: windows set back three feet to reduce exposure to sun in summer months, and the building was carefully placed to reduce heat gain or loss from prevailing winds and sun patterns.

The bulk of the contracts for research are governmental, with the Institute now broken down into four parts: social sciences, statistical sciences, chemistry and life sciences, and energy-engineering-environmental sciences.

Sunday Morning Notes

For awhile there, the Ford for President sign over the front door framed a pile of rubble behind. Then the door and the sign disappeared under the blade of the bulldozer.

They were tearing away some of Greenville's history as a cluster of buildings at Five Points between Dickinson Avenue and Evans came down last week.

It will change everything in the area. Five Points is no longer technically correct since Evans north of Fifth has already been eliminated. Soon the portion of Dickinson Avenue at Five Points will disappear, too, as that section of the street will be eliminated to be incorporated into a parking lot.

The bulldozer chopped away at the last of the building that formed a triangle at the intersection of Dickinson, Fifth and Evans. It worked in the shadow of the NCNB building which, in only a couple of months, will also fall victim to the wrecking crews.

There will be advantages, of course. More parking will be made available where the buildings stood. The view from Evans Mall to the city's handsome Sheppard Library will be opened. And the fine old Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will be seen from Evans Street.

Still there was nostalgia as old buildings fell, and as Five Points once the center of universe for Greenville people, became a "T" intersection.

One marveled that the force of the bulldozer could bend a heavy steel "I" beam which lay in the debris. Then it dawned that the steel beam was bent many years before—to fit the peculiar curve of the front of the building which faced on Five Points.

By Thanksgiving that portion of Greenville's Five Points was only a vacant lot. In a few years the public will have forgotten there ever was a Five Points. Yet once that was the meeting place and the gathering place for most everyone who lived in Greenville, or came here.

One of the businessmen was her father, Frank Quinn, who traveled to Greenville by bus with other members of the group.

Susan did her interviews and walked with the Goldsboro group. When the time came to part her father gave her a kiss on the cheek.

"Does your wife know about this pretty girl?" someone on the tour asked.

Shapes Facts Book

By MICHAEL R. FRANCO

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — "Hey Greg, what do you have for today?"

Gregory H. Soehner is asked that question nearly every day by friends and acquaintances. He always has about a dozen answers.

Soehner, a 35-year-old insurance agent, collects all sorts of information and arranges it chronologically. It may be momentous or insignificant — birth dates, events, great moments in sports, initials in famous names. The topics are seemingly endless.

He has nearly 5,000 index cards of information, with each containing several facts about a particular person, place or thing. That breaks down to more than 12 separate cards for each day of the year.

Each morning, the likeable Rochester native goes over the day's material while shaving. He carries the three-by-five inch index cards with him during the day, in case he forgets a fact or two.

"I've always had a strong interest in history, and I guess that's what started this whole thing," explains Soehner.

He spent countless hours in the library searching through old newspaper microfilm and reference books for his material.

He began the tedious task of cataloguing the information by day about three years ago. It is now nearly finished.

Three book publishers are interested in his work. "It will be the most complete chronological catalogue ever published," Soehner boasts.

But his book will not be a warmed-over version of the Guinness Book of World Records, Soehner insists.

"There naturally is a little overlapping and my book will also have many 'firsts'," he says, "but I try to stay away

40 Years Ago Today

With the opening of the 75th Congress only six weeks away, a score of congressional leaders today were hammering together the framework of a heavy legislature program.

Although President Roosevelt has given little indication of the measures he will suggest, it appeared certain that Congress would consider at least six major proposals:

1. A farm tenancy bill providing federal aid to convert tenants into owners.
2. Minor revisions of the tax on undistributed corporation earning to relieve any inequities revealed by the first collections.
3. A crop insurance plan.
4. A new neutrality act to replace the present one expiring May 1.
5. A relief bill which probably will be offered by the president late in the session.
6. Modifications of the Tennessee Valley Act as suggested by Mr. Roosevelt to put some strong emphasis on land use in conservation activity.

With the county jail overflowing with prisoners, the term of Pitt County Superior Court to try criminal cases here next week will probably be composed exclusively of defendants in jail.

The special term, asked by the county commissioners to help clear the crowded docket, will be presided over by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Schlesinger Choice Impact

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The unexpected but increasingly real possibility that hard-lining James Schlesinger may become Jimmy Carter's Secretary of Defense poses the only threat to total control in the new administration by Carter's soft-lining national security transition staff.

Those transition staffers, announced and unannounced, are drawn straight from the foreign policy network of young professionals who shuffle ceaselessly between the administration, Capitol Hill, the academic world and high-priced Washington law offices. President-elect Carter's representatives during this interregnum, they are overwhelmingly devout believers in arms controls, detente and reduced defense spending.

Dr. Schlesinger, fired from the Pentagon by President Ford for excessively zealous advocacy of a strong national defense, is obviously not part of the network. Rather, his nomination to his old Pentagon post—much more likely today than anybody dreamed possible a month ago—would seriously menace the network's domination of the Carter administration.

Accordingly, the continuing mystery of how much of Annapolis and rural Georgia remains in the President-elect will be partially solved in his selection of a Secretary of Defense. That choice will set the tone for national security policy difficult for Carter to change in the foreseeable future.

Positions in what Carter insiders call the national security "cluster" — top jobs at State, Defense and the National Security Council—are likely to be filled first. Others prominent in this cluster are positioned to Schlesinger's left and are all veterans of the Kennedy—Johnson administration—including Cyrus Vance, Dr. Harold Brown, Paul Warnke and Prof. Zbigniew Brzinski.

The impression made on Carter by Schlesinger during a two-hour briefing before the second presidential debate has been lasting. Consequently, a Carter insider who two weeks ago ruled out Schlesinger as unacceptable to liberals now considers him the front-runner. But Carter's men are worried by such an appointment on two counts: first, that the Democratic party's left wing would revolt; second, that Schlesinger would prove less moderate than he now sounds in talking to Carter agents.

The foreign policy network would prefer anybody but Schlesinger. Only he has the knowledge and determination to clean out the experienced Washington hands who dominate the transition machinery.

Typical is Anthony Lake, a former foreign service officer in charge of State Department transition. Lake, who served under Dr. Henry Kissinger at the National Security Council (NSC) before resigning because of the Cambodia bombing, is a plaintiff in the Kissinger wire tap case. So, even some Carter aides consider Lake a strange choice as the President-elect's emissary to the man he is suing.

More significant than the indelicacy of Lake's relation with Kissinger are his soft-boiled views on foreign policy—view reflected in two of his transition assistants: Dan Speigel and Paula Stern, Foreign Policy aides to Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Gaylord Nelson, respectively. Also on Carter's State Department team is ex-foreign service officer Richard Moose, a Senate Foreign Relations Committee staffer whose investigations in Vietnam and Laos made him a folk hero to the anti-war movement.

Walter Slocombe, a Washington lawyer who served on Kissinger's NSC staff and is an ardent arms control advocate, is on Carter's Pentagon transition team. Slocombe," is an attorney for another NSC

Pill Abuses

(Jacksonville Daily News)

The testimony is not all in, but expert medical witnesses before a Senate committee have raised frightening questions about the safety of amphetamines and disputed their effectiveness.

Some doctors, in fact, would like to see the pills banned as an aid in weight loss programs, the principal medical use of the drug.

Dr. Lester Grinspoon, associate professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, has doubts about the effectiveness of amphetamines in weight control. Pounds lost in the early stages of weight treatment, he suggests, could well be due to a patient's willingness to cooperate with a new physician and the psychological impact of a new "therapy."

And too often, he said, patients become dependent upon th drug "to avoid facing the fact that they eat too much." Prolonged use of amphetamines, according to the testimony, can result in psychosis, panic and confusion. Some research has indicated that they may be responsible for birth defects.

But some doctors, despite their alarm over overblown claims for the value of amphetamines in weight reduction, are reluctant to ban them from the market.

They acknowledge the drug's value in treating overactive children and narcolepsy.

Enforcement of a ban, too, would be difficult. Stricter controls instituted by the federal government a few years ago may have reduced legal production of the pills, but a black market began to flourish in drugs produced outside the law and those shipped to Mexico for reshipment to the United States.

The Senate panel has yet to hear from the defenders of amphetamines, who may make a strong case for the drug as a miracle potion.

But the judgments expressed by the early witnesses suggest that sale and use of amphetamines must be policed rigidly by the industry itself to minimize the potential for mischief.

Strength For Today

REPENTANCE

A little girl once defined "repentance" by saying, "It means being sorry enough to quit." There is a sorrow for wrongdoing which is merely a response to the unfavorable effects of that wrongdoing and in no way affects the attitude of the person toward his actions. This is not repentance. Repentance results in action.

The absence of a sense of unworthiness is an unfailing sign of spiritual shallowness. People who think highly of themselves can be quite sure that the Lord does not share their sentiments. The saintliest people in the history of the Christian Church have, without exception, looked at the glory of God and then at the condition of their own souls, and have hidden their faces. When we see a person glorying in his personal righteousness, we can be sure that a fall is imminent.

A truly repentant person is a changed person. If his sorrow is superficial, it is sorrow for self; if it is genuine, then it is sorrow for sin.

Irate Over New Soviet Women

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The journal Literary Gazette says dozens of irate men have written to complain that liberated Soviet women are losing their femininity and acting like men in their smoking, drinking, cursing and having free sex.

In fact, the Soviet Union's new breed of working women have forgotten how to be women, the weekly newspaper's readers said in the latest issue.

"Every man dreams of a woman who's soft, loving, expressive, affectionate, modest and shy, of a feminine woman," wrote Grigory Molodtsov from the town of Volzhsky. "But they're getting harder and harder to find.

"Men are getting fed up with crude women who have the manners of cowboys. Their bossy shouts around the house, their shabby way of dressing and their swaggering way of drinking bottoms-up like a man turns the home into a crude barracks."

But now, he said, "it's hard to distinguish the girls from the guys: their vulgar laugh, swaggering walk, cigarettes."

And their language — not just on construction sites but in offices — "makes even strong men blush," he wrote.

Since the war, women have assumed an ever greater share of the Soviet workload. They now make up about 52 per cent of collective farm workers and 48 per cent of factory workers, according to recent statistics.

Other statistics show that women continue to run Soviet homes and raise children, adding another four to five hours to each workday.

The Soviet press has acknowledged the problems involved in reconciling the dual roles of women, and social planners are trying to ease the burden with playschools for children and take-out meals for quick dinners.

But the attitudes of both men and women toward the woman's role are changing slowly.

"For the woman, the home and the children must always come first, and the job second," said one Moscow mother who works as a doctor.

Public For '80 Debates

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — If left to U.S. voters, presidential debates could become a permanent feature of the electoral process. In a nationwide post-election survey 66 per cent say they favor having televised presidential debates again in 1980.

Actually, the public has for more than a quarter-century shown strong support for the idea of having the candidates present their views on pre-selected issues in a series of nationally televised programs.

Many voters are found to be sharply critical of certain features in the format of the debates this year. Yet the proportion who currently favor a repeat of presidential debates four years from now closely matches the proportion who in July—prior to the decision to hold debates this year—said they would like to have the presidential candidates participate in nationally televised debates. That survey showed 68 per cent in favor of reinstituting the presidential debates of 1960.

But Format Changes Sought By Many

While a solid majority of voters would like to see debates the next time around, nearly half of those in the survey with views on the matter would like certain changes in the format or presentation.

These three changes are most frequently mentioned:

1. Having the debates be more like real debates, with more interaction between the candidates. A 29-year-old Geneva, Ohio, executive commented: "It should be a debate between the candidates and not between the reporters and the candidates — not a press conference. The candidates should have a chance to argue their points back and forth."

2. The debates are too formal and too rehearsed. One survey respondent commented: "The whole setting was too stiff and forbidding. The candidates should be allowed to sit and have a chance to be more relaxed."

3. The public should get into the act. Many voters felt that the real concerns of the public were not always put forth by the reporters, who were sometimes on their own "ego trip," in the words of one survey respondent.

"Would you favor or oppose having televised debates in the next presidential campaign in 1980?"

Favor	66%
Oppose	20
No opinion	14

Analysis of the results shows large majorities of Democrats, Republicans and independents alike would like to have debates four years from now.

This question was asked next:

"If the debates were held in 1980, do you think there should be changes in the format of the debates—that is, in the way they are presented?"

Here are the national results:

Yes	37%
No	43
No opinion	20

7 In 10 Watched Debates

A high proportion of U.S. adults—7 in 10—watched each of the three presidential debates this year. Unilke 1960, there was virtually no drop-off inviewership following the first debate this fall.

The debates in 1960 between Richard Nixon and John Kennedy had an important impact on the presidential races that year. The public felt Kennedy had won the debates and this edge could, of course, have given him the margin he needed in that election.

This year, the debates also had an important, and perhaps decisive, role in the presiential race. In fact, President Ford's momentum may have been fatally stalled by the second presidential debate on foreign policy. The President had staged one of the greatest comebacks between the beginning of the campaign to the time of the second debate, coming from 18 points behind Mr. Carter into a virtual tie.

A CONSERVATIVE VIEW

Millions Chose To Vote With Their Bottoms

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The statisticians are beginning to have their quadrennial picnic with the presidential election returns, but it is an unusually puzzling picnic this year. Fifteen million Americans who had voted in 1968 or 1972 evidently decided to sit this one out. They voted not with their feet, but with their bottoms.

The committee for the Study of the American Electorate finds little in the 1976 figures to lift the spirits or to gladden the heart. On one point the record should be set straight: Contrary to the first rosy reports on election night, participation was not up in this year's election. It was down. This was the fourth consecutive presidential election in which the participation of eligible voters declined.

To be sure, the whole number of presidential votes did increase — from 77.8 million in 1972 to 80 million in 1976. But this year saw an estimated 150 million persons eligible to vote, and the percentage of participation slumped from 55.4 to 53.3.

Except in the southeastern states, where the Carter candidancy stimulated voting by blacks and whites alike, the decline was everywhere evident. Thirty-seven states recorded a lower participation rate in 1976 than in 1972. In 18 states, fewer than half the eligibles bothered to come to the polls. As one consequence, only 27 percent of the eligible electorate voted for Jimmy Carter, the winner.

Perhaps the most depressing conclusions have to do with the dropouts. Between 1968 and 1972, the committee found, about seven million persons who had been regular voters decided to stay home. This year saw that melancholy picture worsen: Eight million persons who voted in 1972 refused to go to the polls in 1976. That adds up to 15 million Americans who have given up on politics. Once they cared about voting — cared enough to register and to cast a presidential ballot. This year they didn't care.

Some years ago, when I was younger and it seemed the proper thing to do, I used to write editorials urging the people simply to get out and vote. Eventually this struck me as a peculiarly mindless appeal. The sheer act of voting, with nothing more, has little to commend it to civic virtue. If there is a consistent correlation between good government and high levels of voter participation, the correlation is remarkably elusive. This year saw the greatest participation in Minnesota, North Dakota, Utah, Vermont and Wisconsin. The lowest levels were recorded in South Carolina, Georgia, North Carolina, Arizona and Nevada. Who is to say that the former elect wiser leaders than the latter?

Nevertheless, the 1976 figures are bound to cause concern. "What is occurring is a trend for which the term apathy is too mild a word," says Curtis B. Gans, co-director of the committee. "There are substantial numbers of Americans who are disenchanted with the political process, disgusted with their leaders, and disillusioned by the failure of both political parties to meet their needs."

No one seems to have come up with an effective program to reverse the trend. Organized labor devoted a massive effort toward voter registration this fall. The candidates themselves, especially the Democratic nominee, appealed strongly for a heavy turnout. Fourteen states, including the District of Columbia, experimented with postcard registration, but all but two of them — Minnesota and Missouri — reported declines in actual voting. Michigan tried another gimmick — the automatic coupling of registration with the issuance of a driver's license — but Michigan's participation fell off from 59.5 to 57.9 percent.

The evidence suggests a national malaise — a sickness of the political spirit. My own guess is that it is caused chiefly by the concentration of great power in Washington. Millions of Americans find government too big, too remote, too unapproachable; they are not indifferent or apathetic, but rather helpless and defeated. Their feeble and resentful conclusion is that their votes don't matter. If this is an accurate impression, the dropouts and stay-at-homes will deserve exactly the kind of oppressive government they will get. Our 200-year-old republic deserves something better.

Doc's Music Helps To Keep Musical Heritage

DEEP GAP, N.C. — When I was still in the cradle, I remember the vague shape of a handkerchief. I don't know if it was red . . . it reflected light differently. They used to wave it over my cradle, and I would reach for it and laugh.

"I can remember seeing the moon, too, enough to discern the shape of it. I only have a little light perception now."

Arthel Lane Watson, known as "Doc" by his friends and fans, has been blind since infancy. But he's no stay-at-home. When callers drop by his house to see him today, they seldom find him there. He's almost always off on a concert tour with his son, Merle.

He has never been encouraged to cater to his handicap. "Papa put me behind a cross-cut saw when I was fourteen," he says proudly. "My mama was worried I'd get hurt, and Papa said, 'He can work as well as the rest of them. It'll be good for him.' It was, too. That evening he told me, 'I believe you'll make a pretty good sawyer yet.'

"He gave me more than he'll ever know."

Today, Doc and his son captivate audiences across the country and overseas with such songs as "Black Mountain Rag," "Tennessee Stud," "Frankie and Johnny," and beautiful guitar duets like "Double File and Salt Creek." Despite his blindness, Doc plays the harmonica, guitar and banjo. He sings and tells mountain tales. Merle says nothing on stage if he can help it, but he makes up for it by frailing his banjo and picking three different types of guitars.

Together they've won two Grammies and various other awards for their renditions of traditional tunes and delta blues. In 1968, Doc and Merle did a five-week tour through South Africa for the US State Department. Later that year, they entertained at the Olympics in Mexico City.

In May of 1973, Doc received an Honorary Degree of Folk Arts from Appalachian State University in Boone, North Carolina, for the part his music has played in preserving the "southern heritage."

This spring, Doc and Merle went to Japan where they were received with overwhelming enthusiasm.

Doc's musical career began with a gift that he found in his Christmas stocking. "I'd get an orange and some candy, and sometimes a half a box of raisins . . . and a french harp. Nearly every year I'd get me a french harp."

It took him a while to learn to play it. "I learned gradually," he says. "I guess I could play a tune or two by the time I was eight."

Then, in 1934, his father made him a five-string banjo. "He carved the tuning pegs and the neck from maple. The neck was fretless. He made the hoop out of hickory wood and banded it with a piece of galvanized metal. The first head he put on it was a ground hog hide, but it was too thick. Then, he made one out of a cat skin, and it was real good. By the end of the summer, I could play quite a few tunes on it.

"Two years later, my brother, Linney, borrowed a guitar from one of our cousins. I was fooling with it one morning after breakfast, and Papa, just finishing his coffee, said, 'Son, if you'll learn to play a tune on that while I'm gone to work today, we might go to town Saturday and get you one.'"

Doc says he used to play his new guitar on the street when he was in his early teens, to get a little spending money. He's found more appreciative audiences since that time.

Despite his success, he says there were times when his blindness bothered him "awful bad. And I worried about it. The way I figure it now, God had a purpose in it. The music would probably have went to my head, and I'd a been one of the most ornery fellows you ever seen!"

alumni, Morton Halperin, in his wife tap lawsuit against Kissinger. While filling no formal slot, Halperin is in close contact with Lake, Slocombe and his other friends in the transition operation.

Lynn Davis, a staffer on Sen. Frank Church's Senate Intelligence Investigating Committee, is also on the Pentagon transition staff. Another Church committee veteran, David Aaron, is in charge of transition at the NSC — where he served with Lake, Slocombe and Halperin in the early Kissinger days.

Most ominous to hard-liners is the assignment of Barry Blechman, defense expert at the Brookings Institution, as transition representative to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) in charge of Pentagon spending. Blechman has been a principal architect of the Brookings plan for a reduced defense budget.

Some of the Carter transition staffers at the Pentagon—notably Phil Odeen, a former Defense Department systems analyst, and R. James Woolsey, former Armed Services Committee staffer — are non-ideological technicians. But nowhere on the Carter transition staff is there a bona fide hard-line skeptic of detente.

Those Bloopers Enliven Day For Every Teacher

One of the most amusing chores a teacher has to do is to correct the bloopers students make in essays and on quizes. My mother, a former history teacher, has savored some of her student's best bloopers for years. One of her favorites is this definition of a dark horse candidate - a horse who runs around at night. (And that was written way before the furor over Wilbur Mills and Wayne Hayes.) My favorite of her collection is the answer one student gave when asked to name two major features of Gothic architecture. "The two major features of Gothic architecture," the student wrote, "are fallen arches and flying buttocks."

Of course, after listening to such pearls while I was growing up, I naturally looked forward to starting my own collection when I started teaching. I wasn't disappointed. Some of my more memorable collector's items are:

"When you marry, you enter an ancient institution." (I'm still wondering what kind - mental?)

"He had red in a lot of books." (Not to mention blue and green.)

"If you study hard, you can become a Roads Scholar." (Yes, I hear the highway department is hiring lots of them.)

A friend of mine, knowing how much I enjoyed these bloopers and feeling sorry for me because I no longer get a chance to add to my collection, sent me some from her collection. I had such a good time reading them that I had to share them - and the comments that accompany them.

"Looking at both early and late poems of Walt Whitman, one become keenly aware of the growth in the poet's brain." (We can only hope that Whitman was not so keenly aware of the growth in his brain and did not suffer the pain of such knowledge!)

"When a doctor goes to school, it takes him longer to become one than it does a teacher." (True, true. Why I know some teachers who became schools in only a couple of years while many medical students struggle through the metamorphosis for years.)

One of her students, obviously a Washington, D.C. buff, announced that he would write a critical essay on T.S. Eliot's "The Love Song of J. Edgar Prufrock."

"I knew what I wanted when I came to college." (And what he needed-spelling.)

"Learning has changed the face of teachers everywhere."

And here's the best one ever: "There can be no conclusive argument on the issue of the death penalty because the death penalty is so conclusive."

Today In History

Today in History
By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Nov. 28, the 333rd day of 1976. There are 33 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1520, the Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan reached the Pacific Ocean after passing through the South American strait which now bears his name.

On this date:

In 1942, nearly 500 people died in a fire that destroyed the Cocoanut Grove night club in Boston.

In 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt, Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at Tehran, Iran, to map World War II strategy.

In 1963, President Lyndon Johnson announced that Cape Canaveral, Fla., would be renamed Cape Kennedy in honor of the late President John Kennedy.

Ten years ago: Hungary's Communist Party chief, Janos Kadar, assailed Red China for what he called a disruptive policy and pledged support for a world Communist conference.

One year ago: President Ford nominated Federal Appeals Court judge John Stevens to succeed William Douglas as a Supreme Court justice.

Today's birthdays: Pianist Jose Iturbi is 84. Singer Rose Bampton is 67.

Thought for today: It's a lot tougher to be a football coach than a President. You've got four years as President, and they guard you. A coach doesn't have anyone to protect him when things go wrong. — President Harry Truman, 18841972.

His years of research show that some days and months of the year are "more historical" than others.

Historically speaking, January and February have been slow months, he says, "but October is big, because people apparently have wanted to get things out of the way before winter."

And the most active day of the year, at least from an American viewpoint, has been the July Fourth holiday.

"Many people ask me if I can see any astrological pattern in all this, but I don't really know much about astrology," Soehner says. "However, as near as I can tell, there seem to be a few days in the year when more things have happened."

Among his favorite items of trivia are the initials of historical figures.

"You wouldn't believe how hard it was to find out that the F. in F. Lee Bailey's name stands for Francis, or the B.F. in B.F. Goodrich's stands for Benjamin Franklin."

WITH A GRAIN OF SALT!

International Ghost Registery His Ambition

By LLOYD G. CARTER JR.

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Ghost stories are as old as Halloween but written accounts are usually classified as fiction and accurate documentation of unexplained phenomena is hard to find.

Mark Turck hopes to change that. Turck, who describes himself as a psychic researcher, has started the International Ghost Registry. It is to preserve records of ghost sightings.

Turck plans to go a step further in that the registry also plans to scientifically investigate what appears to be supernatural phenomena.

Aware that parapsychology and related fields are still suspect in most scientific circles, Turck, 27, says he cannot doubt events and inexplicable phenomena he has witnessed with his own senses.

Despite his youth, he has been doing this for some time. He has been involved in psychic research since his father practiced telepathy on him as a child. He has taught parapsychology at Fresno State Univesity. Now he is working on a book about the ghosts of San Francisco.

It was his work on his San Francisco ghosts book that got him going on the idea of a central library to preserve sightings of ghosts.

"I spent a rather unsuccessful three or four days in San Francisco researching in which, every single time I tried to follow up a case that seemed very good, I'd find whoever originally saw the ghost had been dead for 50 years and nobody bothered to write it down.

"I was complaining to a friend that somewhere someone should be preserving records of first hand sightings as well as records of local lore and legend and she said, 'Well, why don't you do it.'

"We kicked the idea around for several months," he said, "and the ghost registry is the result."

The library will be located in Salinas, Calif., and run by Louise Schaefer, a psychic Turck often uses in his ghost hunts. Already, ghost stories have started to pour in.

The Ghost Registry will be administered by the International Society for the Investigation of Ghosts, a nonprofit organization open to anyone. Members will be charged modest annual dues. They will receive a bimonthly newsletter on the Registry's activities and on interesting "cases."

They also will have free access to the library and will be sent records of individual cases for the price of a photocopy. Outside researchers can use the library for a fee. Anyone can contribute stories to the library.

Beside ghost stories, he said, "We're also including the local lore and legend because very often, we investigate something that appears only legend but you find that there is an element of truth behind it."

Turck intends to examine the most interesting and current cases and make efforts to contact ghosts still haunting residences.

"I've developed a method to bring out psychic ability in just about anyone through hypnosis," he said. "Matter of fact, that's how I do my ghost research.

"What I've done is take a person and induce what seems to be an out of the body experience. I say seems to be because it's quite difficult to prove whether it might be telepathy or whatever."

The hypnotized subject, outside of his body, is in theory a ghost himself and can see and communicate with any ghost who might be present and still communicate with Turck.

In one case, one of Turck's hypnotized "mediums" was able to accurately describe the inside of the home of one of Dr. Moss' assistants, although the medium had never been in the home.

But he says everyone has heard, or seen, or "felt" things they couldn't explain and he thinks scientists are missing something by dismissing these occurrences as superstition or imagination.

Ultimately, he hopes the Ghost Registry will be able "to add to the present knowledge on the issue of survival of personal consciousness after death" — a ghostly matter that sooner or later haunts all of us.

Land Transfer Made To Mexican Peasants

CULIACAN, Mexico (UPI) — Outgoing President Luis Echevarria was credited Saturday with persuading big landowners to surrender 29,309 acres to landless peasants in northern Mexico, averting a possible bloody confrontation on the eve of the inauguration of his successor.

The agreement was announced Friday by Gov. Alfonso G. Calderon of Sinaloa state shortly before a 5 p.m. deadline set by 20,000 peasants who said they would occupy 195,390 acres in this rich Pacific coast area. Many were standing by with trucks ready to move into the disputed lands.

Calderon said the agreement did not mean the peasants would not get the additional land they demanded. But he said this would be decided by the courts.

A hearing on the issue is scheduled for Dec. 9 by federal district Judge Jose Galvan Rojas.

Authoritative press reports in Mexico City said Echeverria had called Calderon and representatives of the landowners and peasants to the capital and suggested the owners immediately give up 29,309 acres to the peasants.

There was pressure on the government to avoid any violent confrontation between the peasants and landowners since foreign dignitaries have started to arrive for Wednesday's inauguration of President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo.

Last week the government expropriated 215,000 acres of farmland in Sonora, which borders Arizona, and distributed it to peasants.

Echeverria told newsmen Friday during the opening of an international bridge between Nuevo Laredo and Laredo, Tex., that the expropriation of the land in Sonora was legal. Asked why it was done during the last few days of his administration, he replied that the legal work took until then.

"We fought for the poor in Sonora because the population has increased a lot and because we have a law and a constitution which we wanted to apply in detail," he said.

The distribution of land to peasants is embodied in the constitution written after the 1910-17 revolution.

Last week's expropriation and this week's threatened land seizure touched off a mid-week work stoppage by businessmen in 41 cities in sympathy with the landowners.

Garlic Is A 'No, No'

LONDON (UPI) — A waiter who was sacked by London's exclusive Les Ambassadeurs club for serving wine from the wrong side and reporting to work with garlic on his breath has asked an industrial tribunal for his job back.

A spokesman for the club, whose members include Prince Charles, said in a hearing Friday, "It goes without saying that if you have a high-class establishment, any wine waiter worth his salt knows instinctively that one does not serve when reeking with garlic.

"In some high-class West End restaurants waiters are not allowed to wear aftershave which could discomfort the client."

Waiter Umberto Berlen, 39, told the tribunal he had been employed by the club, where he made $144 a week, since 1974. He said he had chewed garlic because he had a cold.

Kissinger Enlistment Possible

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter continues to hold open the possibility that he may try to enlist Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for special diplomatic assignments.

Carter press secretary Jody Powell said Friday that the President-elect "would not feel it improper if the appropriate occasion presented itself to ask for Dr. Kissinger's assistance."

Wants Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A civil liberties group wants the House committee investigating the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. to look into the death of Black Panther leader Fred Hampton.

Morton H. Halperin, director of the Project on National Security and Civil Liberties, made the request Friday in releasing documents that he said "raise grave questions about the FBI's role in Hampton's death."

Proposal Would Weaken NATO

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A promise not to make first use of nuclear weapons, as proposed by the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies, could seriously weaken the North Atlantic alliance's ability to defend Europe, Western strategists say.

The treaty proposal, contained in a communique issued Friday after a Warsaw Pact summit ended in Romania, would have both sides "pledge not to be the first to use nuclear weapons one against another."

But top American military brass say there is a big difference between "first use" and "first strike."

Moving Cumberland Patients

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A shortage of beds in nursing homes in Cumberland County has caused some elderly and terminally ill patients to be moved to other counties.

Along with the problem of finding places for nursing patients, the Cumberland County faces paying medical bills when proper nursing care cannot be found for Medicaid patients.

ECU Students

Plant Friendship Tree In Costa Rica

East Carolina University students attending the ECU-Costa Rica Program at the Universidad Nacional in Heredia, Costa Rica, planted a "friendship tree" on the campus of the university in a special ceremony, according to Alfredo Quiros V. of the Costa Rican newspaper, La Nacion.

The ceremony marking a friendship which exists between East Carolina University and the Universidad Nacional of Costa Rica, took place near the close of the 1976 program which ECU has been operating each year in Costa Rica since 1974. Twelve ECU students are enrolled in the 1976 program; the students have been in Costa Rica since the middle of July.

In addition to the ECU and Universidad Nacional students attending the ceremony were the Honorable Terence A. Todman, American Ambassador from the United States to Costa Rica; Dr. Benjamin Nunez, President of the Universidad Nacional; Gordon Murchie, Director of Culture and Information for the U.S. Embassy, and Profo Vernon Smith, of the ECU geography department who is the field director in Costa Rica.

Miss Valerie Barzetti, an ECU Student from West Redding, Conn., spoke on behalf of East Carolina University and expressed the feeling of great friendship that has developed between students from North Carolina and the students of the Universidad Nacional. In conclusion, a song of friendship, written by the ECU students, was sung in Spanish.

The ECU students are completing a full semester of study and culture adventure. Courses included political science of Latin America, tropical biology, field studies in settlements and land use, Spanish conversation, and geography of underdeveloped nations. The credits, hours, and quality points will be transferred back to the ECU campus.

The 1977 ECU-Costa Rica Program will contunue for the fourth year, extending from the middle of July to November. Applications are being accepted by Dr. R. E. Cramer, professor of geography and campus coordinator for the program.

The fall, 1977 program is open to all students attending East Carolina University, or who are eligible to attend the university. The program invites students of any major and student classification. All courses in the ECU program are taught in English with little or no previous knowledge of Spanish assumed for those enrolling. Students with a knowledge of Spanish may take courses in Spanish as offered by the Universidad Nacional.

A FRIENDSHIP TREE . . . is planted at the Universidad Nacional in Heredia, Costa Rica by East Carolina University students now attending the university. Angolan Guerrilla Mop-Up Continues

By ERIK VAN EES

UMUNGWELUME, South West Africa (UPI) — Gabriel Ndishishi pretended he held an automatic rifle in his hand and zig-zagged it across my chest. "They came into the village like this," he said. "Tocka, tocka, tocka..."

Ndishishi, a tall, bearded Kwanyama tribesman lived then at Ongode, a collection of bee-hive huts and rough cattle stockades in Southern Angola, about a mile from the border with South West Africa.

"When the shooting started we ran as fast as we could to the fence (frontier)," he said. "I saw maybe 20 people killed and then they burned everything."

Lt. Eric Winter, senior police officer at this tiny village turned refugee camp, said fighting between Cuban-backed Angolan government forces and guerrillas of the UNITA guerrilla movement began in southern Angola Oct. 29.

Two weeks later, more than 3,000 Kwanyamas had fled the area to Umungwelume, six miles South of the frontier where the heavy thump of mortar fire could still be heard coming from inside Angola.

The refugees said several hundred of their fellow-tribesmen had been killed by the Angolan troops seeking to destroy UNITA's popular support in the south and southeast.

Lt. Winter said the drive to wipe out UNITA had been "well planned", but a South African security force officer said the civilian population got the worst of it. The Kwanyama tribe are traditionally strong UNITA supporters.

"The MPLA (ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola) soldiers and the cubans came into my village the other day and began shooting," said Kaxuhuena Manyekere, another of the refugees.

"I've never seen so many soldiers around there." His hut was blown up by a mortar, he said. "My cattle, 20 fine animals, were slaughtered and left to the vultures and the hyenas."

Why didn't the Angolans shoot him?

"I'm too old and I don't have any guns."

At Umungwelume the villagers wait for the South African government to decide their future. They are being fed by the Security Forces. The South African Red Cross also provides food and clothing. The army brings in water supplies by tanker that have to cross the bone dry salt pans and the deep, soft sand of the semidesert scrubland surrounding Umungwelume. In the distance, the shimmering heat creates mirages of nonexistent lakes.

The refugees don't want to go back to their villages in Angola. Officials believe the government will allow them to remain in the area around here to be integrated with other Kwanyamas living in the district.

"Go back to Angola? Hai (not a chance)," said one man through an interpreter. "They will shoot us."

The security forces patrol the border fence constantly. It is only about three feet high and serves largely to keep out cattle — and their potential diseases — not people. In parts, it has been trampled flat by elephants and the physical act of leaving Angola is simple.

But the refugees say the MPLA, Cubans and guerrillas of SWAPO — the South West African Peoples' Organization — try to stop them from reaching South West Africa.

"When you walk through the bush, they just shoot, tocka, tocka, tocka..." again the expressive imitation of the Angolans' Russian-made AK-47 automatic weapons. "Anybody they shoot — gentlemen, old people, women, children," said Manyekere.

Lieutenant Winter said a group of the 121 refugees who straggled in said they counted six bodies a few hundred yards from the fence, on the Angolan side.

One of the group told reporters he saw "many, many. I didn't stop to count."

The Angolan government's drive to wipe out UNITA in the south was well organized, Winter said. But the Kwanyama people said the rebels had withdrawn to the east where the thick bush, the rivers and plentiful game favors their kind of hit-and-run warfare.

"UNITA has gone into the bush but they will come back to fight again," Ndishishi said.

Two truckloads of shocked, bewildered refugees arrived in the Umungwelume camp at about midday Friday, picked up on the border by army vehicles. One carried several men, women and children. Black South African soldiers carried a small boy from the truck to the camp doctor. The boy had collapsed from exhaustion.

"Our wives and children are still in Angola, near our village, Onangwe," said one man. "We didn't have time to take them with us. If we had stayed with them the MPLA and the Cubans would have killed us.

"No, we are not going back to fetch them."

The other truck carried 20 women, including two wizened grandmothers and two babies at their mothers' breasts. The women's mouths were rimmed with white, their lips dry from thirst.

One woman carried all she had left — her baby daughter and a bright red sunshade with two broken ribs. Another had managed to take two fire-blackened cooking pots. A third had nothing but a small bundle of firewood and a pumpkin.

Since its defeat by the Cuban-supported MPLA during the civil war that ended in February, UNITA has fought a continued guerrilla campaign in the south. It has attacked MPLA supply lines and communications, particularly the strategic Benguela railroad, the main copper export route linking Zaire and Zambia to the Angolan port of Lobito.

UNITA president Jonas Savimbi has vowed to continue his bush war until all the Cubans and Russian advisers have left Angola.

UNITA's foreign affairs spokesman, Jorge Sangumba said recently the current offensive against UNITA in the South was the biggest yet mounted.

"We expect our casualties to be quite high and have no real answer to (their) Russian weaponry. We can only retreat to fight another day.

"What we are fighting for is a free and independent Angola. We want the Russians and the Cubans out and will not lay down our arms until the last Cuban soldier leaves our country."

Effect Of Miranda Rule Never Been Established

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The neat bundle of 2½ by 3½-inch cards nestles in the right shirt pocket of Patrolman J. L. Vincent's light blue uniform.

Each time he makes an arrest — 62 times in a recent four-month period on his high-crime beat in northeast Washington — he fishes out one of them.

Although he knows what it says by heart, he reads it to the suspect anyway.

"You have the right to remain silent," he reads. "You are not required to say anything to us at any time ..."

It goes on for five paragraphs.

It is a "Miranda card" — carried by law enforcement officers around the country because of a 1966 Supreme Court ruling spelling out the warning that police must give suspects.

Now the Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether the 1966 rule is really needed to protect an arrested persons' rights or whether it unduly interferes with law enforcement.

Iowa Atty. Gen. Richard C. Turner, appealing an order overturning the conviction of a former mental patient for the rape and murder of a 10-year-old girl, says it does interfere.

President Ford agrees with him, and President-elect Jimmy Carter says society has gone too far in protecting the guilty. Some police and prosecutors agree, others do not.

"At first every policeman was upset about it," said Detective Sgt. Winston Norman in Washington, D. C. "But I don't see where it really hurt hurt us."

In Olympia, Wash., Police Chief Chester W. Breuer said the decision has increased the cost of law enforcement, but has been worth it.

"I feel it has made a lot better investigation," said Breuer. "Because of the ruling, you are going to spend a lot more time on the investigation and not depend on a confession."

The little statistical information that is available, mostly from the late '60s, indicates that the Miranda rule has had little impact on law enforcement.

The Miranda rule takes its name from Ernesto Miranda, a 23-year-old school dropout who was arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., on March 13, 1963, and charged with the kidnaping and rape 10 days earlier of an 18-year-old girl. After the victim picked him out of a police lineup, two officers took him into an interrogation room. Two hours later he confessed.

The case went to the Supreme Court at a time of mounting concern over the pressure tactics of some police forces to obtain confessions.

The heart of the 5-4 decision was a paragraph by Chief Justice Earl Warren which said in part:

"Prior to any questioning, the person must be warned that he has a right to remain silent, that any statement he does make may be used as evidence against him, and that he has a right to the presence of an attorney ... The defendant may waive effecuation of these rights, provided the waiver is made voluntarily ... If, however, he indicates in any manner and at any stage of the process that he wishes to consult with an attorney before speaking, there can be no questioning."

It was the Supreme Court moved from a philosophy of protecting individual rights in the Warren court to a philosophy of what's best for society in Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's court, a reaction to the Miranda rule set in. Generally, the justices have not yet rolled back the guarantees of the rule, but they have weakened it.

In 1971, the Supreme Court decided that statements otherwise inadmissible under Miranda could be used to rebut any alibis a defendant came up with when he took the witness stand.

"The shield provided by Miranda cannot be perverted into a license to use perjury by way of a defense," Chief Justice Burger wrote for a six-member majority.

The stage for the present assault on the rule was set in 1974 when U.S. District Court Judge William C. Hanson of Fort Dodge, Iowa, threw out the conviction of Robert A. Williams in the sex slaying of 10-year-old Pamela Powers.

Williams had given himself up in Davenport, Iowa, two days after the girl disappeared at the Des Moines YMCA, where he lived. He was given the required warnings and called a lawyer in Des Moines. As he was being driven back to Des Moines, he told a police detective that he would tell him the whole story after he had seen the attorney.

During the drive the detective, Cleatus Leaming, suggested to him that if the girl's body were not quickly located it might be impossible to find it later because a snowstorm was coming. Leaming also said, falsely, that he already knew approximately where the body was. About two hours later, Williams led police to the body. At Williams' trial, Leaming conceded that he had been trying to get information from the suspect before he could see his lawyer. Williams was convicted and sentenced to life in prison.

In overturning the conviction, Hanson said Leaming had "clearly and grossly violated" Williams' constitutional right not to be required to incriminate himself. He found in substance that the detective tricked the suspect into confessing.

Iowa's attorney general argued that this should not make the confession inadmissible as long as it was given voluntarily.

"What is really wrong with tricking a man into telling the truth?" Turner asked the Supreme Court.

In his dissent from the 1966 Miranda ruling, the late Justice John Marshall Harlan said there could be "little doubt that the new rule would markedly decrease the number of confessions."

Oddly enough, in view of the furor about the ruling, no national statistics have ever been assembled to show Miranda's effect on confession rates. Local studies in the 1960s, together with recent interviews with lawyers and police, indicate it has had little.

Yale University law students took turns observing operations in the New Haven, Conn., police station around the clock for 11 weeks in the summer of 1966. They found that the Miranda rule might have adversely affected interrogations in six cases out of 127.

In Los Angeles the next year, the district attorney's office surveyed 250 cases in which requests for the filing of felony complaints were rejected. It turned out that only three were rejected because of statements being inadmissible under the Miranda rule.

A University of Pittsburgh study in 1967 showed that after the Miranda decision the percentage of guilty pleas in Pittsburgh actually increased by 5.5 per cent for serious crimes.

Recent interviews indicate the pattern nearly 10 years later remains the same.

"In my experience, it has not had any substantial impact on guilty pleas," said State Attorney Richard E. Gerstein of Miami, Fla.

"If it has, it has been impossible to perceive," said Bert Neuborne, a New York University law professor and former staff lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union. "The only guilty pleas Miranda has prevented are the ones that shouldn't have been pleaded in the first place."

"If you don't have more than an incriminating statement from the defendant," added Capt. John Connor of the Washington, D.C., police robbery branch, "you don't have much of a case to begin with."

Miranda, for example, was retried and convicted on the basis of an eyewitness identification. He was sentenced to 20 to 30 years in prison and was paroled in 1972.

Police arrested Fernando Zamora Rodriguez, in a nearby bar. As Rodriguez was taken into custody, an officer read to him from a card printed in English and Spanish.

"You have the right to remain silent," it said.

"Anything you say can be used against you."

It was a Miranda card.

New System In Undersea Wells

HOUSTON (UPI) — A new ocean-floor, oil-production control system has begun operation in the Gulf of Mexico 100 miles off the coast of Louisiana.

The heart of the system, owned by Shell Oil Co. and Lockheed Petroleum Services Inc., is a "manifold center" which gathers, measures and controls production of three undersea wells.

Company officials said the new system is being pilot-tested in 240 feet of water, but that similar systems eventually will be used in depths of up to 3,000 feet, where production platforms would not be feasible.

Glimpse Of America A Big Drawing Card In Soviet

By CHARLES P. WALLACE

MOSCOW (UPI) — A knot of Soviets encircles a young American under a wall-sized reproduction of the U.S. Constitution, peppering him with questions about unemployment.

A few yards away, another American wearing a blue blazer and a white turtle-necked sweater explains a voting machine to a group that has never seen a two-party ballot.

"What kind of man is Jimmy Carter?" shouts a middle-aged man from the edge of the crowd.

These interrogators are among thousands who wait for hours in long lines and foul weather at Moscow's Sokolniki park, where a new U.S. exhibit offers a fleeting glimpse of America in its bicentennial year. Even a bomb scare failed to discourage the Muscovites.

Presented by the U.S. Information Agency at a cost of $1.2 million, "USA — Two Hundred Years," as the exhibit is known, appears to be tapping a wellspring of enthusiasm and curiosity about the United States which is rarely allowed a public display.

By official design, the exhibition is an uncontroversial, Walt Disney vision of the United States, its "land, people and ideas" spanning 200 years.

Once inside, however, the visitors often profess less enthusiasm for the Americana which is on display than for the chance to meet Americans in a no-holds-barred dialogue about contemporary life in the United States.

"I have found the audiences very friendly, curious and generally well informed about America," said Bob Croskey, of Seattle, Wash., one of the young American "guides" at the exhibit.

"They are mostly interested in education, health care, professions, how much things cost in America today," he said.

Maittand Ewing of New York said the Soviets "did not appear interested in ideology. They just don't ask many questions about our political history."

According to the comments of the visitors, the scene stealer of the exhibit is an 18-minute Walt Disney movie called "America the Beautiful," which is shown on a 360-degree movie screen.

The film is mostly travelogue of scenic America, but uses special effects to induce vertigo in the audience during high-speed fire engine rides through Los Angeles and the like. The gimmick is a great success and a number of visitors have complained the movie isn't long enough.

Collections of archive and contemporary photographs, museum pieces such as a stuffed longhorn and a Conestoga wagon, and slide shows make up historical sections of the exhibit, which is described as the largest ever staged here by the USIA.

The guides report high interest in the final portion of the exhibit, where color television shows glimpses of American prime time, headphones blast rock music in stereophonic sound and a 1977 American auto is on showroom display.

This kind of consumer wealth in a country where shortages are notorious causes some embarrassment. At one point, the organizers planned to build a replica 18th Century log cabin but scrapped the idea because it was felt it would humiliate Soviets who still live under similar conditions.

"We don't want to make comparisons between the Soviet Union and the United States," said Jacqueline Enders of New York.

"Many of our visitors want us to make comparisons, to show that we are better off than they are, but they know it and I don't want to be in the position of having to say it."

The Americans feel, she said, that "we are the ideology of the United States, we pose the threat and also set the example."

While questions about, say, the Bill of Rights are not often raised, the audiences are not reluctant to pose difficult questions on topical political issues.

The character of President-elect Jimmy Carter is subjected to almost constant scrutiny, according to the guides. Perhaps not surprisingly, many people seem most interested in his views about the Soviet Union, a question the Americans are hard pressed to answer.

Others dwell on the departure of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, relations between the United States and China — a favorite bogeyman for the average Soviet — and why only half the registered voters participated in the presidential election.

The guides, who are veterans of previous exhibits and speak fluent Russian, rely for the most part on off-the-cuff elan and pragmatism in their replies.

One guide, questioned sharply about Kissinger's retirement from office with the arrival of the new administration, said he believed the secretary of state "became unpopular because he had too much power over foreign affairs."

"These are sophisticated people for the most part who often know more about the United States than we do," commented one American. "They can always tell when you are not telling the whole truth."

The exhibit, which will be returned by a Soviet show on the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution next year, has drawn mild publicity in the Soviet press, but American officials said they felt it was sufficient to generate interest.

"We had 6,500 people pass though after five hours today and expect to reach the 8,000 capacity by closing time," said Frank Ursino, the exhibit's director.

Sokolniki park has been virtually sealed off by police for the run of the show, not entirely without Ursino's crowd-conscious blessing.

At 2 P.M. on a recent visit, crowds were being turned away four hours before closing because of the enormous lines.

"I went down to the barricades and asked the police to let a few more people in," Ursino said. "The crowd actually cheered me."

Actor Has Little In Common With His Rowdy TV Role

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — James Whitmore Jr., son of the famed movie actor, can be seen every week as one of the rowdy band of Marine Corps flyers in "Baa Baa Black Sheep."

Whitmore Sr. thought he had convinced his son to seek a career in the diplomatic service, but show business is part of the family heritage. Junior attended American University in Washington, D.C., to study international relations but gave it up to enroll in a New York drama school.

Off screen he lives quietly with his wife, Salesha, a native of Trinidad to whom he has been married five years, and their three children. Salesha has a son, Handel, 9, by a previous marriage. She and Jim are the parents of Shanewaz (named for Scheherazade's sister in "Arabian Nights"), 5, and Jacob, 2.

They live in a two-story, four-bedroom California casual home which they bought a year ago. They've been decorating slowly since moving in.

Visitors are impressed by the outstanding woodwork in tables, chairs and chests which Jim's brother, Danny, has made for them from Sierra pine. Danny works for the U.S. Forest Service in Mammoth, Calif.

There also are beautiful antiques dating back many years in the Whitmore family, handed down from generation to generation of Whitmores in Buffalo and Long Island.

Although the Whitmores cannot be said to live exciting lives, they clearly aren't conformists.

Salesha (pronounced Sal-ee-sha) herself lends an exotic air to the household. She wears colorful saris and other Indian garments, traditional dress with some of Trinidad's inhabitants. Both Jim and Salesha are members of the Islamic faith which influences their daily lives.

Salesha's mother was a Hindu, which still has an effect on the Whitmore family of the San Fernando Valley.

They eat no pork or beef. Jim has developed a taste for West Indian food, including curries and other fiery dishes. He likes nothing better than hot peppers from Trinidad, which intimidate even fanciers of eye-watering Mexican peppers.

Salesha has been in the United States 10 years, but remains close to her ties in her native land. The Whitmores visit the Caribbean island as often as they can. But it's a 6,000 mile trip — one way — and rough on the family budget.

One day Jim hopes to build a home there, commuting to Hollywood for movie and television jobs.

"I'd like to do some farming in Trinidad," he says. "The kids love the country and I'm interested in starting a cane plantation."

Meanwhile, Jim is up at 6 every morning to report four days a week for location filming at Indian Dunes, out on the desert where a World War II camp has been built on the site of an airstrip, or at Ft. MacArthur.

The trip is considerably shortened when "Baa Baa Black Sheep" shoots interiors at Universal Studios.

Salesha and the children are usually fast asleep when Jim leaves the house. He prepares his own lunch and brown bags it to work rather than risk his religious beliefs at the catered mess table on location.

Weekends are devoted to working on the house and playing with the children. For relaxation the family visits James Sr. at his Malibu home for a dip in grandpa's swimming pool.

Jim is fascinated by classical literature and has a large library of magnificent books. Someday he would like to write a novel himself.

Kino's Missions Subject Of Desertland Film

KINO'S TREKS . . . through the historic Arizona-Mexico desert takes viewers on the road of 27 millions established by Father Eusebio Francisco Kino in the late 17th and early 18th centuries. Caborca (above) in Sonora, Mexico is still in use. The program, "Paths in the Wilderness," airs at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4 over PBS, Channel 25, Greenville.

The life and works of Jesuit priest Eusebio Francisco Kino in Northern Mexico and Southern Arizona have long fascinated students of America's Southwest. Paths In The Wilderness, a film by David DuVal and Harry Atwood of KUAT/TV Tucson, illuminates the landscape of Kino's desert kingdom and tells the story of his quarter century among the Indians of the Southwest. The program will be broadcast Saturday, December 4 at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 25, Greenville, over PBS.

Born in the Italian Tyrol in 1645, Padre Kino sailed to Mexico in 1681 to join an expedition to colonize California. The attempt failed but in 1687 Kino was assigned to the area of Southern Arizona and Northern Sonora, Mexico, known as the Pimeria Alta. For the next 25 years he distinguished himself among his contemporaries as a rancher, cartographer, writer, historian and explorer. The Pima Indians admired and trusted Father Kino, who worked tirelessly to teach the knowledge of the "civilized world" and the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church to them.

The narration comes primarily from Padre Kino's writings. The solemn Latin chants of the Mass; the music from a Spanish guitar; and the rushing of the desert wind all stir the imagination.

Before his death in 1711, Kino established 27 missions. The film shows eight — Cocospera, San Ignacio, El Tubutuma, Caborca, Oquitoa, Tumacacori, San Xavier del Bac and the remains of Quebavi.

Paths In The Wilderness was made possible by grants from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration and the Arizona Bicentennial Commission.

Green Grass Cloggers Day At Roxy Center Saturday

Saturday, December 4 is the day that Greenville's five-year old and more-active-than-ever dance group, the Green Grass Cloggers, will be honored in a recognition day.

From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Roxy Music Arts and Crafts Center, 629 Albemarle Street, the Cloggers will be on hand to dance and to conduct a series of workshops.

The Green Grass Cloggers have received regional and national recognition. In 1974 and again in 1975 the group won the World Champion Traditional Cloggers Award at Union Grove.

During 1976 they have been invited to numerous festivals, including the National Folk Festival in Washington, D.C. and as the star attraction at the Philadelphia Folk Festival.

Now coordinated by Brian Demarcus, the Green Grass Cloggers had as its original coordinator Dudley Culp. Sixteen members are now active in the group.

In September this year the group was featured in "This Week", magazine in an extensive article with photographs taken during their Philadelphia appearance.

Several entertainment groups will be on hand to help celebrate this recognition day for the Green Grass Cloggers. Among those already scheduled to appear are the Club Hill dancers of Baltimore, Md.; the Green Grass Pickers of Kinston; and the Bitter Creek Blue Grass Band, a local band.

Admission fee is $1.50 per person and fifty cents for children under 12 when accompanied by an adult.

Participants will have an opportunity to join in the workshop sessions to be held throughout the day.

New England Travel Film To Be Shown December 7

Photographer and film producer John Roberts will personally present and narrate his color film, "Highlights of New England," on Tuesday, December 7, at 8:00 p.m. in Mendenhall Student Center Theatre. The program is under the sponsorship of the E.C.U. Student Union Travel Committee.

This color film explores an area of the country thought by its inhabitants to be the most important corner of the universe. The rest of the world might dispute this opinion, but they cannot deny that New England is the cradle of American democracy and a center of research and education. Among highlights of the film are the American dawn (when the first light of day strikes the Maine coast), the striking contrast of old and new Boston, and the birthplace of American industry at Providence, Rhode Island.

John Roberts's career in motion picture photography has been full and varied. During World War II he was as an instructor and filmmaker at the Signal Corps Photo Center on Long Island, and became associated with Lowell Thomas after leaving the Armed Forces.

As a cameraman for Thomas, he has been on expeditions to Alaska, the Middle East, and Tibet. He was co-producer and chief cameraman for "Filmorama Adventure," the first 16mm wide-screen color film ever produced for the film lecture field.

Tickets are priced at $1.00 and are available at the door prior to performance.

Antonia Dalapas To Appear In Recital On December 5

The annual faculty recital by Antonia Dalapas, Assistant Professor of Music at East Carolina University, will take place at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, December 5 in the Recital Hall of the A.J. Fletcher Music Center on the ECU campus.

Ms. Dalapas will be accompanied by pianist Dr. Everett Pittman, Dean of the ECU School of Music.

The program will open with two arias from Il Pomo d'Oro by the 17th century composer, Cesti, followed by songs by 20th century British composers with texts by Shakespeare. Additional 20th century compositons on the program are Second Series of Fetes Galantes by Debussy, and Sieben Frume Lieder, by Berg.

Other selections to be sung by Ms. Dalapas are songs in Greek and Spanish songs by Granados. As her major aria, she has selected Puccini's Sola, perduta from Manon Lescaut. She will conclude her program with rarely heard Christmas songs.

Ms. Dalapas has performed in the New England states, in New York, Oregon and the state of Washington. Dr. Pittman has appeared in piano recital in several states and has previously accompanied Ms. Dalapas in her ECU recitals.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Rural Life Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Humanities recently handed out more than $50,000 in grants for studies and exhibitions on farming and rural life — mostly as museum pieces.

Last year, a $54,000 NEH grant went to the five-year-old Appalachian Museum in Berea, Ky., to develop a slide-show, taped-oral history exhibit on "traditional lifestyles of classical Appalachia." It has received an additional $10,000.

Hope College in Holland, Mich., received $20,000 in this series of grants. It is developing five summer-school courses in a "rural humanities seminar" that will involve both work and study.

Apparently it's for city folk, since a spokesman described its purpose as the integration of "humanistic intellectual heritage with some of its central questions, with the means, locale and challenges of life in an earlier, predominantly rural America."

The Florida department of state got up to $4,648 for a travelling exhibit on the relationship of the citrus industry to the state's history.

The Accokeek Foundation of Washington, D.C., received $7,500 for a program at the National Colonial Farm at Accokeek, Md., that is to emphasize the relationships between history, the humanities, genetics, animal husbandry and crop yields.

A grant of $4,920 went to the John G. Neihardt Center at Wayne, Neb., State College for a program on the culture of rural northeastern Nebraska, and up to $4,970 was earmarked for Ferrum College in Ferrum, Va., to help plan a Blue Ridge Farm Museum on a 20-acre tract near the school.

CELLO CONTEST

NEW YORK (AP) — The first musical competition exclusively for the cello to be held in the United States will take place in the spring of 1977, the Walter Q. Naumberg Foundation has announced.

The contest, sponsored by the foundation, will be open to cellists, of any nationality, between the ages of 17 and 30.

First prize will be a $2,500 cash award and two fully subsidized recitals.

Betty Casey's Square Dance Book

Friendship Set To Music

The Complete Book of Square Dancing (and Round Dancing). By Betty Casey. New York Doubleday and Company, Inc. 192 pp $12.50.

Not to beat about the bush, this is the best book on square dancing I have ever seen. It is interesting, informative, thorough, and handsomely put together. Whether you square dance or not there is something in it for you. Since square dancing has risen so phenomenally in popularity over the past few years, the book will probably be very successful. Congratulations are in order for its author, former Greenville resident Betty Casey.

She starts with a genealogy chart of square dancing which traces it back past America's pioneers to the maypoles of England and court ballrooms of France.

But, she says, today's dancing is as different from that as "clopping along by horse and buggy . . . and negotiating rush-hour freeway traffic in a high-powered car." Today's square dancing is a fast-paced pastime that offers fun and friendliness and a challenging activity for the whole family from children to grandparents. No wonder it is so widely enjoyed in eastern North Carolina — not only at Greenville's club, the Tar River Twirlers, but at clubs in Ayden, Kinston, New Bern, Washington, Williamston, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Goldsboro. No wonder that across America there are millions of square dancers.

Mrs. Casey shows that she knows all about the dancing, and everything that goes with it. Along the way in her book, she tells how to get a club going, how to become a caller (who leads the squares of four couples by calling the movements of the dance in time to the music), where to obtain recordings of square dance music, and the national publications and organizations in the field. She covers not only square dancing but also round dancing (done by single couples instead of a square) and contra dancing in two lines). Only the local regional specialty of clogging is left out.

The book mainly deals with dance movements, since that is what concerns dancers most. Learning to square dance is no overnight matter. There are dozens of basic steps to be learned and remembered, out of something like 2400 in the caller's encyclopedia. Wisely, Mrs. Casey sticks to the 85 most fundamental ones. These she describes in her text, and shows in step-by-step photos and diagrams. She includes standard rhyming calls for these, too.

I'd have to say her book will never be a substitute for actual practice in a class such as Jerry Powell, the Tar River Twirlers' caller, teaches. But the illustrations and descriptions are almost as good as seeing a square go through some particular movement. So the book can serve admirably for review of a particular step only half-remembered. That's an invaluable service, particularly for the beginner. As one who has spent the last six months learning the basics, but who can still go terrifyingly blank when Jerry Powell calls something like "spin chain through," I speak with feeling.

The photos further serve to picture the colorful square dance garb of today: ladies in full-flaring dresses with ruffly petticoats, the men in cowboy boots, tailored stockman's pants, fancy shirts and "gamblers" ties. Watching a roomful of several hundred such dancers turn and sway through a promenade, as the book jacket shows, is a spectator sport in its own right.

But nothing about the book is more colorful than Mrs. Casey herself, present as a caller in several photos. The feisty, humorous, outgoing personality her Greenville friends remember comes through plainly in the introduction. There she tells how she became interested in square dancing many years ago, to help her daughter's Brownie troop get merit badges. She tells about her study of square dancing, and her experiences world-wide as she traveled with her husband, an engineer for Voice of America. She has taught and called for square dances from Manila to Munich. Sometimes there were amusing problems with the language barrier: "Once at a YMCA dance in Hong Kong, I called in English, and an interpreter repeated the calls in Chinese; and in Saigon, an earnest Vietnamese woman with a limited command of English introduced me as 'a famous call lady.'"

In sum, she puts across not only information but a good sense of the fun and value of square dancing. She calls it "friendship set to music" and makes the reader want to do what one of her calls says:

Wipe off your tie, pull down your vest
And dance with the one you love the best.

—William Stephenson

(Dr. Stephenson is a Professor of English at East Carolina University, and also a novice square dancer.)

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LOUISE WILKERSON PERRY

The East Branch of Sheppard Memorial Library has received several new fiction titles to enhance cold weather reading. THE BELLAMY SAGA by John Pearson is a portrait of the celebrated Bellamy family, the subject of the television series "Upstairs, Downstairs." A delightful historical narrative, the book covers the stormy and passionate lives of the family during the years between 1884 and 1929. Pearson was aided in the making of his story, by personal diaries and letters of Richard Bellamy and many other British notables.

THE DEADLY MESSIAH is the horrifying account of a devastating epidemic which wipes out a whole town. Jess Barrett, former Heisman trophy winner, Rhodes scholar, and now an electronics consultant, attempts to determine what or who killed this town. As he begins to unravel the puzzle he is faced with the fact that an ingenious plot exists which makes use of natural forces. As the epidemic spreads, the country's top government officials become involved but the death-riddle is not solved until a woman astrologer offers her shocking solution to the puzzle of a man who thinks he is the Messiah.

Jane and Baird Fleming were one of Washington's most fortunate young couples until the political scandals and the resignation of a president whom Baird served as a top aid. THE SPLENDID TORMENTS BY Margaret Banning is a chronicle of the people who are hurt by corruption in government. It is the story of a young wife who commits suicide after her husband is convicted and imprisoned, and of another young woman who must weather the effect of her husband's public office on her family. The Flemings are the victims of and participants in Washington life, what Tomas Jefferson called the "splendid torments" of political honors.

JODY is the true story of one man's search for his wife's past. Jerry Hulse has written his account of his own race against time to discover his wife's identity before she undergoes brain surgery. Like many other Americans Jody was an adopted child: now genetic information and medical histories of her natural parents are needed desperately in order to save her life. With eight days to find her real parents, Jerry Hulse discovers not only the secrets of Jody's birth but those which have affected their life together.

Student Art Shown In First Fall Art Festival

The First Fall Art Festival was held at Ayden-Grifton High School Tuesday night, according to Ms. Betsy Reid, art instructor.

Twenty-nine students displayed their art work including oil paintings, pastels and charcoal sketches. The show was held in conjunction with back to school night at which parents and guests toured the school.

All students involved with the show are first year art students since this is the first year that art has been offered as a class in the county high schools.

"We are very proud of our art students. We have three art classes. Classes are limited to juniors and seniors this year. We are pleased that the Pitt County Commissioners and the Pitt County Board of Education included cultural arts in the 1976-77 school budget. We hope that they will continue to do so," Ms. Reid said.

"Since this is the first year of our art classes, we have a small room and had to have small classes. We screened the students by administering an art test before allowing them to register for the course," she added.

"The art students also did the matting. Jim Shallow's Trades and Industrial Education Woodworking Class made the eisels for us, Ms. Reid added.

Works exhibited in the show included pastels of still life, and flower arrangements; charcoal sketches of an old boot and oil paintings which are copies of original paintings and photographs.

The art classes plan to have another art show this year in the spring and hope to make the two shows annual events.

Celebration Of Greek Books

By KERIN HOPE

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Bibliophiles will mark the 500th anniversary of Greek printing this month with an exhibition of rare books in Greek — although printing came to Greece itself only 155 years ago.

"When printing began in 15th century Europe, Italy was the only place where there was a longstanding interest in Greek studies," said Francis Walton, director emeritus of the Gennadios Library, an Athens treasure house of unusual books.

"There were Greek scholars and artisans in exile there, refugees after Constantinople fell to the Turks, who could design type, edit texts and supervise the printing of Greek books," he said.

"But the Ottoman Turks who ruled the Greek-speaking world remained very suspicious of printing for centuries and attempts to set up presses in their domains were few and short-lived."

The first Greek book, a slim textbook of ancient Greek grammar, was printed at Milan in 1476 — the same year William Caxton opened his famous printing house in London.

Compiled by Constantine Lascaris, a fugitive scholar from Constantinople, "The Epitome of the Eight Parts of Speech" remained a standard handbook for schools and universities for almost four centuries.

"It may seem strange that the first book to be printed in Greek was not a masterpiece of classical literature," Walton said. "But however much the budding humanists of the Renaissance yearned for Greek texts, they were even more eager to have grammars and lexicons — the basic tools to open up the treasures of Greek literature."

"Of the 68 Greek incunabula, as books printed before 1500 are called, a full third are grammars," he said.

It was not long, however, before Greek printing houses in the cities of Florence, Vicenza and Venice turned to literature and published Homer's epic poems, Aesop's fables and plays by Aeschylus and Euripides.

Greek scholars and businessmen played a major part in marketing their literary heritage, but most early Greek books were intended for Greek exiles and the western intelligentsia.

"The most famous of all Greek presses, belonging to Aldus Minutius in Venice, put out 19 Greek volumes in five years at the end of the 15th century," Walton said. "It was unfortunate that the Aldine types, which determined the course of Greek printing for so long, were based on the rather ugly commerical Greek handwriting of the time."

"But the most beautiful Greek books ever printed were four folio volumes published in Venice about 1500 by two Cretans who spent five years perfecting their types," he said.

It was several centuries before Greeks under Turkish rule were able to obtain books, Walton said, and these were printed in the Balkans.

"Down to the 19th century, printed books were relatively scarce in the Greek east," he said. "Many books continued to circulate in manuscript copies even in the late 18th century."

A dozen books were published at Moschopolis, a center of Greek culture in Qhuhis in what is now Albania, and single copies were made at the monastic state of Mt. Athos and in Smyrna during the 18th century.

"It was not until the Greek war of independence that presses were set up in Greece," he said. "The first book printed on Greek soil was a provisional constitution for Greece, published at Corinth in 1822. Three years later a book of contemporary verse came out in Athens."

Thanks to the efforts of Ioannes Gennadios, a 19th century Greek diplomat, a collection of early Greek books was built up in Athens. He spent his modest salary acquiring a collection of 26,000 works ranging from Lascaris' grammar to 19th century political pamphlets. After his death, Gennadios' collection passed to the American School of Classical Studies and his library became a center for research by scholars from all over the world.

East Carolina Cagers Opening Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"We're ready to play," Coach Dave Patton said on the eve of the 1976-77 basketball season opener.

The Pirates open Patton's third season Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Colisuem against UNC-Asheville. For the Bulldogs, it will be their fifth game of the year.

The Pirate coach feels that his team has done just about all that was expected of it during the pre-season drills. "We're on schedule."

Patton said the Pirate offense has been "very good" in practice. "We've got shooters, we've got the inside game. Our ballhandling could be better.

"But one thing I'm happy about is that our defense has bloosomed during the last two week. I think it might turn out to be one of our strong points."

Rebounding, however, isn't as well off as the coach had hoped it would be. "We should be a good rebounding team, but we're not doing it as well as we could be at this point," Patton said.

With a varied personnel, Patton feels that the Pirates will be able to put people on the floor to handle various situations. "We can put a quick team out there, a big team, a good shooting one, a good ball-control one, all depending on what the game dictates. Of course, all these situations will depend on just how well those particular players are doing that particular night."

The weak point for the Pirates is in the lack of experience. There are only two seniors and two juniors on the team and just one of them, center Larry Hunt, has experience. So Patton will rely on freshmen and sophomores.

"You never know how these young kids will perform until they get out on the court. Some of them grow up quick while others take longer. In practice, they've responded well to the situations we've put them in. But the big question mark is how they'll do when they're faced with a live game."

In the two "big" positions, the pivot and big forward, Patton plans to use three people regularly, and one other one could see a lot of action there. Hunt, and sophomores Greg Cornelius and Ty Edwards are slated for duty here, with freshman Herb Gray also available.

Gray will also likely see action at the small forward spot, along with fellow freshmen Kyle Powers and Herb Krusen. "We've got a little bit of everything we need in each of them. One this is for sure, this spot will be handled by a freshman."

At the big guard spot, the Pirates have been getting steady play from freshman Jim Ramsey and sophomore Louis Crosby. "Louis has a year under his belt and this will help him a lot. But Jim's a very mature freshman and will grow quickly," Patton said.

Billy Dineen, a sophomore, and Don Whitaker, a junior college transfer, will handle the point guard spot. "Dineen's getting better everyday, and Don is not at the disadvantage the other newcomers are since he's been in a college program."

Patton lists Hunt, Cornelius, Crosby, Dineen and Powers as the probably starters. "But starting isn't really that much on this team. Everyone is going to play a lot."

Phasing all the new people is hasn't shown to be much of a problem, Patton notes, but adds that only a game will really show how well they've melded together.

"We've been ready to play for several days now. I hope we don't lose our edge, or get too ready. I'm glad we're not opening against Maryland or State like we usually do. Opening at home has to be a plus for us."

"But I want to empahsize that this is a young team, and it will make mistakes. These guys have given 100 per cent in practice every day but I don't know how quickly they'll become a good team. I do know we'll get goodeffort every time.'

Turning to Asheville, Patton said that anyone will give the Pirates a test. "They've played four games and that can't help but be a boost for them. They're over having to play in front of a crowd for the first time, they're rid of their first game jitters."

Asheville opened the season with a 91-79 loss to High Point College in a Florida tournament, then romped over Clearwater Christian, 119-57, in the consolation game.

Friday night, the Bulldogs met Carson-Newman in the first round of the Optimist Tip-Off Tournament in Asheville, playing a second round game Saturday.

Through the first two games, 6-3 junior guard Bamford Jones led the scoring with 21.5 points a contest. Sophomre forward Johnny Campbell, 6-5, was hitting 14.0, while freshman guard George Gilbert 5-10, had an 11.0 average, and 6-6 freshman forward Chuck Blevins was at 13.0.

The other starter was 6-6 junior Dennis Bostic, but 6-7 junior Tony Bumphus might move in ahead of him. Bumphus led the two-game rebounding with 7.0 per game.

Following Monday's opener, the Pirates will host Western Carolina on Wednesday.

Jaguars Bow In Overtime, 41-40

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

DUDLEY — Clinton High School scored a 41-40 overtime victory over Farmville Central Saturday night to end the Jaguars' hopes of a State 3-A football title.

The game, played at Southern Wayne High School was postponed Friday night due to rain and moved to a neutral site because of a problem with Clinton's lighting system.

Tim Newman scored on a one-yard run for Clinton in overtime and Glenn Pope added the extra point kick after Clinton held Farmville Central to six points on its possession to win the game for the Dark Horses.

Farmville had scored first in the extra period when Mike Jenkins took a nine-yard pass from Carroll Griffin. But Ted Dunn's extra point kick was off-target, giving Clinton the chance to win it.

Arnold Carr put Clinton on the scoreboard in the first period on a 67-yard pass interception return before Keno Farrow tied it up for Farmville on a two-yard run.

Farmville Central scored three straight touchdowns to take a 27-14 halftime lead. Dunn scored twice on runs of 17 and 8 yards and Emerson Hobgood took a 36-yard pass from Keno Farrow later in the period.

Pope scored two touchdowns for the Dark Horses in the third quarter on runs of one yard each. He also added the extra point after the first. Norris then scored his second touchdown on a three yard run and Norris added the conversion kick.

Clinton's first touchdown came in the first quarter when Carr intercepted a Carroll Griffin pass at the Clinton 33 and returned it all the way for the score.

Farmville came back, however, on a 72-yard scoring drive to tie the game. An 11-yard slant pass from Griffin to Hobgood gave Farmville a first and ten at their own 40, before Farrow ripped off a 55-yard run down to the Clinton five. On third down, Farrow took the ball two yards up the middle for the touchdown. Dunn's kick tied it up.

In the second quarter, Clinton scored on a 47-yard drive. Pope and Newman did most of the work for the Horses on short gains. The scoring run came on a 25-yard run by Norris around the right end. Pope added the extra point.

Later in the second quarter, David Winborn intercepted a Jeffrey Taylor pass. Two plays later, Dunn went off right tackle for 17 yards and a touchdown. Farmville attempted a fake kick, but Griffin's pass fell incomplete.

Clinton was able to run but one play before Winborn got his second interception of the night. That put the ball on the Clinton 32. Farrow ran for 11 yards on first down, but a penalty halted the drive, and a 42-yard field goal attempt by Ted Dunn was wide.

Taking over at their own 20 following the touchback, the Dark Horses again turned the ball over. A fumble by Norris was recovered by Woody Edwards at the 30. On first down, Farrow carried it for 14 yards, and went for eight more on the next play. Then, Dunn went up the middle untouched for the score.

Clinton managed to get off two plays on their next drive before the Jaguars again forced a turnover. Dunn intercepted a pitch and gave Farmville the ball at the 33.

On second down, Farrow took a handoff and found Hobgood at the 10 on the option pass. Hobgood cut away from the defenders and went in for the score.

The Dark Horses came out fired up in the second half, driving 80 yards on their first possession. Norris and Pope ran for short yardage to move the ball to the FC 47 where Newman took a pitch around right end for 46 yards. Pope went over on the next play.

Later in the quarter, Gray Daughtry intercepted a pass at the Farmville 17 and returned it to the four. Two plays later, Pope went over from the one.

Early in the fourth quarter, Norris capped a 69-yard Clinton drive with a three-yard plunge, putting Clinton into a 34-27 lead after Pope's kick.

Farmville came back to tie it up on the next possession on a 65-yard drive. Two passes from Griffin to Joyner and a face-masking penalty on fourth down kept the drive alive. Jenkins took a four-yard pass with 4:14 left to tie the game at 34-all.

Farmville got the ball first in the overtime, and scored in two plays, with Jenkins taking a nine-yard pass from Griffin. But the PAT missed, leaving the door open for Clinton.

It took the Horses just two plays to score, with Newman getting nine yards on first down, and plunging over from the one on the second. Pope then hit the fateful extra point to give Clinton the win.

Clinton will face Pisgah next week in Canton for the state title.

Navy Blasts Cadets With 38-10 Victory

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Gattuso Jr., a chip off the old block, rushed 29 times for 128 yards and scored three touchdowns Saturday as Navy beat Army 38-10 for its fourth consecutive football victory in the traditional rivalry of service academies.

The 181-pound Gattuso, of Mickelton, N.J., whose father led Navy rushers in 1953 and 1954, slashed two yards for a first-period touchdown that gave the Middies a 7-0 lead. Then he ran 20 and two yards for third-quarter scores.

The Navy victory reduced Army's lead in the 77-year old series to 36-35-6 and erased the stigma of a 4-7 losing season for the Middies.

Army, which lost a chance for its first winning season since 1972, was competitive only through the first half. Greg King romped 11 yards to tie the score 7-7 in the first period. After Navy quarterback Bob Leszczynski passed 11 yards to Phil McConkey for a touchdown, Mike Castelli, with two seconds remaining, booted a 37-yard field goal that left the Cadets trailing 10-7 at intermission.

But Navy, which had outscored the Cadets 100-6 in winning the last three years, turned the game into a rout in the third quarter with two touchdowns by Gattuso and Bob Tata's 31-yard field goal.

Gattuso's three touchdowns was one shy of the Navy best against Army. Navy's Charles Emrich holds the all-time mark with four touchdowns in the first game in 1890. Joe Bellino, Pat Donnelly and Cleveland Cooper each have scored three TDs in a game. Four Army backs have scored three touchdowns against the Middies.

Leszczynski, the Middies' sophomore quarterback from Milwaukee, completed 10 of 14 passes for 145 yards and two touchdowns. In addition to his second-quarter 11-yard scoring pass to McConkey, the Navy passer hit Dave King for a 16-yard score in the final period.

Navy moved 51 yards on six plays to take a 7-0 lead with 15 seconds left in the opening quarter. Gattuso ran for 13 and 10 yards before scoring from the two.

The Cadets, however, took the ensuing kickoff to their 23 and then drove 77 yards on eight plays to tie the score. A 31-yard pass interference penalty against Navy gave Army a first down at the Middies' 11. Greg King then swept wide to his left into the end zone.

Castelli's conversion made it 7-7.

Later in the second quarter, Navy took possession at its own 43 and Leszczynski directed a nine-play, 57-yard scoring drive for a 14-7 lead. The key plays were pass completions of 16 yards from Leszczynski to Dave King, a 17-yard keeper by the quarterback and an 11-yard scoring pass to McConkey.

Navy moved from its 35 on three 13-yard pass completions by quarterback Leamon Hall to a first down at the Navy 20 with 13 seconds left in the half. But the Cadets had to settle for Castelli's 37-yard field goal with just two seconds left to make it 14-10.

The field goal was Army's last gasp. Navy moved 75 yards, climaxed by Gattuso's 20-yard touchdown, then drove 65 yards with Gattuso plunging the final two.

This 77th game of the series which used to climax the college football season, played to a record small crowd of 77,612. It was quite a contrast to the 102,000 who annually filled John F. Kennedy Stadium in south Philadelphia. But the decline in the caliber of the teams, once among the best in the nation, has been followed by a steady decline in attendance.

Wake Forest Shocks Heels

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Larry Harrison's tip-in and Skip Brown's clutch foul shots in the closing seconds propelled Wake Forest to a come-from-behind 97-96 overtime upset of No. 3 North Carolina, giving the Demon Deacons their third straight Big Four Tournament championship Saturday night here.

North Carolina led 94-93 when Wake Forest forward Jerry Schellenberg, who scored 12 of his 18 points in the second half and was named most valuable player, missed a short jump shot from the left side of the backboard. Harrison tipped the ball as it bounced away from the rim with five seconds remaining in overtime.

The Tar Heels turned the ball over when the inbounds pass deflected off the leg of forward Walter Davis.

Brown was fouled on the next inbounds play by North Carolina's John Kuester and sank two free throws to give the Deacons an insurmountable three-point lead at 97-96 with one second remaining.

The Deacons did not contest a last-second full-court pass to Tar Heel center Tom LaGarde, who dunked home the final points.

Duke Stuns Pack, 84-82

By CHARLES WOLFE

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke, led by Tate Armstrong's 23 points, withstood a last-minute rally by North Carolina State for an 84-82 win over the 15th-ranked Wolfpack in the consolation game of the Big Four basketball tournament here Saturday night.

Armstrong gave the Blue Devils their final two-point cushion by hitting the first of two free throw attempts with three seconds remaining. Armstrong missed the second shot, but Al Green's driving 10-foot bank shot rolled off the rim as the buzzer sounded.

Duke's win offset a 25-point performance by N.C. State's Kenny Carr, who left the game for four minutes with 9:35 remaining because of muscle cramps in his legs.

The Blue Devils outscored the Wolfpack 14-2 during Carr's absence. N.C. State could come no closer than 83-82 after Carr returned.

Jackson Said Yankee Bound

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UPI) — The New York Yankees have reached agreement with slugger Reggie Jackson and will sign him to a multi-year, $3 million contract within the next 72 hours, it was learned Saturday upon the best possible authority.

The 30-year-old Jackson, who played out his option with the Baltimore Orioles last season, will become the second free agent from the re-entry draft signed by the Yankees in the past two weeks at a total cost of $5 million. The Yankees signed ex-Cincinnati pitcher, Don Gullett, to a $2 million, six-year contract on Nov. 18.

To get Jackson, the Yankees had to beat out the Montreal Expos, San Diego Padres and, surprisingly, the New York Mets. The Mets, who had taken a low key approach in the free agent bidding, were ready to make a very sizeable offer to Jackson comparable to that offered by the other clubs.

Maryland's Claiborne ACC Coach Of Year

RALEIGH, N.C.(AP) — Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne finished the regular season with an 11-0 record, the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and a record 20 consecutive conference victories.

The impressive showing resulted in him being named ACC coach of the Year for the third time in the last four years.

Clairborne received 54 of the 114 votes in balloting by members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. The writers also noted the good jobs done by Bill Dooley at North Carolina and Chuck Mills at Wake Forest.

Dooley, whose team had a 9-2 record and is headed for the Peach Bowl, received 33 votes. Mills, whose team gave Maryland its closest game of the season, 17-15, received 26 votes. The Demon Deacons defeated Duke, South Carolina, North Carolina State, Kansas State and Clemson.

It was the first time since 1955 that Maryland had gone through a perfect regular season. The Terps were rewarded with an invitation to the Cotton Bowl.

The 11-0 record brings Claiborne's five-year mark to 40-15-2 and the ACC chart to 24-3-1.

His biggest weapon this season was supposed to be tailback Steve Atkins, but a knee injury in the fifth game sent him to the sidelines and he hasn't played since. Rugged defensive has long been a trade mark with Claiborne, but the Terps showed offensive power behind quarterback Mark Manges.

Claiborne played for Paul (Bear) Bryant at Kentucky and coached under him at Texas A & M, Kentucky and Alabama. A defensive back in his playing days, Claiborne had the pleasure of watching his son, Jonathan, perform in the Maryland secondary.

Claiborne served as head coach at Virginia Tech for 10 seasons, compiling a 61-39-2 record there. He served one season as defensive coordinator at Colorado and then took over the job at Maryland, where there had been eight consecutive losing seasons.

Hunter Passes 1,000 Mark, But USC Wins

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trojans' quarterback Vince Evans and his understudy, Rob Hertel, each threw touchdown passes and Glen Walker tacked on a 46-yard field goal Saturday as third-ranked Southern California downed error-prone Notre Dame 17-13.

Notre Dame, down 14-0, scored twice in the final quarter, but their final touchdown came with just four seconds remaining and Southern Cal recovered an onside kick attempt.

Hertel, coming off the bench late in the first half, staked the Trojans to a 7-0 lead when he marched them 68 yards, capping the drive with a six-yard scoring toss to Shelton Diggs.

Evans came back to stun Notre Dame with a quick touchdown in the opening moments of the second half as he connected with Randy Simmrin for a 63-yard scoring pass on the fourth play of the third quarter.

After the Irish, ranked 13th, had closed the gap to seven on a 17-yard touchdown pass from Rusty Lisch to Vegas Ferguson early in the final quarter, Walker booted his field goal to give the Trojans a 10-point pad.

Lisch brought the Irish to within four points when, following a pass interference call against USC that moved the ball to the Trojans one, he broke over for a touchdown. But the two-point conversion attempt failed and USC got the ensuing onside kick to nail down the triumph.

A victory in the regular season finale for the Trojans gave them a 10-1 record. Their next date is with second-ranked Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

Notre Dame, which squandered numerous scoring opportunities against USC, finishes regular season play with an 8-3 mark and will meet Penn State in the Gator Bowl Dec. 27.

Notre Dame held Trojans tailback Ricky Bell to 75 yards on 21 carries while Irish halfback Al Hunter became the first Notre Dame back to go over 1,000 yards in a season as he gained 115 yards on 21 carries.

Georgia Holds Off Georgia Tech With Final Seconds Field Goal

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Allan Leavitt drilled a 33-yard field goal with only five seconds left Saturday, giving fourth-ranked Georgia a 13-10 college football victory over Georgia Tech.

The Sugar Bowl-bound Bulldogs had seen Tech explode for 10 points in the final quarter to tie the game, and it took a fumble recovery at the Tech 34-yard to set the field goal drive in motion.

Tech, a three touchdown underdog, finally came to life offensively in the fourth quarter moments after Lucius Sanford recovered a fumble at the Bulldog 19.

The Jackets reached the one-yard line where they failed on a third down play and then settled for Danny Smith's 19-yard field goal with 12:07 left.

That touchdown was set up when freshman Gary Lanier rambled for 16 yards before pitching back to David Sims who added 12 more to the Bulldog 26.

It was the sixth straight victory for Georgia, which faces top-ranked Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

Georgia, unimpressive offensively most of the day, put together an 80-yard touchdown drive late in the first half, with Ray Goff scoring on a 4-yard run. The other Bulldog score came on Leavitt's 22-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Tennessee In Winning Rally

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Freshman Hubert Simpson scored twice on 1 yard plunges, propelling Tennessee to a 13-10 Southeastern Conference victory Saturday over Vanderbilt in Bill Battle's curtain closer as Volunteer football coach.

After the game, Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff confirmed that he plans to contact Coach John Majors of No. 1-ranked Pittsburgh as soon as possible about the Vols coaching vacancy.

Majors was a Tennessee All-American in 1956 and was a top candidate for the Volunteer coaching job in 1969, when Battle was selected.

The victory enabled Tennessee to avoid its first losing season since a 4-5-1 mark in 1964. The Vols closed the season 6-5 and Battle ended his seven years with a record of 59-22-2 and five bowl appearances.

Simpson's touchdown in the first quarter pushed Tennessee ahead 7-3 and his TD in the third period stood up for the final 13-10 margin.

Elon Chasing Another Title

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP)—With a 49-25 rout of Carson-Newman last Saturday, Elon College's football team closed its season with an unblemished record of 11 wins and rolled them into their third NAIA post-season bowl competition in four years.

The Fighting Christians, who boast a 7-0 mark in the South Atlantic Conference, will play host to Central Arkansas next Saturday. A victory would move them toward a shot for the national title a week later against the Texas A&I-Western State of Colorado winner.

The Fighting Christians ran 83 times for 484 yards and piled up a school record 37 first downs in that contest.

Wilson has compiled a 72-33-2 record during his 10 years at Elon, and this season's perfect record is doubly rewarding for him because it follows a rare losing season. Elon finished 5-6 last year, losing five games by a total spread of 12 points.

Elon has shutout four foes this season while scoring between 35 and 59 points six times in outscoring opponents 356-93.

The veer offense, directed by senior quarterback Nick DerCola, has amassed 3,267 yards rushing against only 1,449 allowed by the defense.

Three senior backs have accounted for the bulk of the ground yardage. Howard Ferguson has netted 1,136 yards on 157 carries, averaging better than seven a try.

Prince Deese has run 169 times for 880 yards, and Alex McMillan has picked up 651 yards on 89 rushes for a 6.5 average.

DerCola has hit of 46 of 125 passes for a total of 717 yards, and he has accounted for 236 yards by carrying the ball.

Late Jumper Nips Maryland For Notre Dame By 80-79 Margin

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Don "Duck" Williams' 18-foot jumper with 18 seconds to play in overtime gave Notre Dame an 80-79 basketball victory over eighth-ranked Maryland Saturday.

The game was the season opener for both teams, with Maryland ranked No. 8 in the pre-season poll.

Notre Dame went ahead 71-69 when Toby Knight hit two free throws in the closing minute of regulation play. The Terps made it 71-71 with six seconds left when sophomore Larry Gibson tapped in a missed shot by Steve Sheppard.

In overtime, Maryland scored the first basket, but Notre Dame tied it 73-73. Then Sheppard hit one of two from the line to give the Terps a one-point lead. Notre Dame regained the lead but Maryland freshman Bill Bryant hit a six-foot jumper, was fouled and converted for the three-point play, making it 77-76.

The Irish's Bill Paterno put Notre Dame in front again with an 18-foot jump shot. That basket was countered with 42 seconds remaining when Brad Davis scored on a 17-foot jumper, giving the Terps the 79-78 lead. Williams then gave the Irish the victory.

In the first half, the lead changed hands 14 times. Maryland at one point was behind 10 points with 13 minutes left in the half. In the next five minutes, the Terps tied the score 17-17, then went ahead 19-18. From then on, the Terps and the Irish swapped leads until Notre Dame hit two at the end.

Houston Takes League Crown

BY MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Seventh-ranked Houston, capping ita first season in the Southwest Conference, exploded behind five touchdown runs by Alois Blackwell and Daryl Thomas Saturday to romp past Rice 42-20 and clinch the host role in the Cotton Bowl against No. 5 Maryland.

The victory also assured the Cougars of at least a tie for the SWC title, marking the first time an SWC team ever won or shared the crown in its first season in the conference.

Blackwell's first two touchdowns came during a 7:02 span of the first quarter when the Cougars scored 19 points and took command of the game.

Blackwell scored on runs of nine and two yards, cornerback Mark Mohr got a safety when he blocked a Rice punt out of the end zone and Lennard Coplin kicked a 41-yard field goal.

Thomas scored two second quarter touchdowns on runs of two and seven yards to give the Cougars a 26-6 halftime lead.

Tommy Kramer, the national passing champion, tried desperately to pass the Owls back into the game. Kramer hit Bill DiQuinzio on a 62-yard touchdown bomb late in the second quarter for Rice's first score.

Kramer, who set an SWC passing yardage record for one season, passed for two more touchdowns in the free-scoring second half — an 11-yard shot to David Houser and an 80-yard bomb to James Sykes.

Blackwell, who joined Thomas in rushing for more than 100 yards, got his third touchdown on a 25-yard run late in the third quarter to give Houston a 42-12 lead. With the game under control, Blackwell waved the ball at a Rice defender and then spiked it in the end zone to receive a 15-yard penalty.

The game ended Rice's season with a 3-8 over-all record and 2-6 mark in SWC play. Houston now is 8-2 for the year and 7-1 in the SWC with the season finale next Saturday against Miami.

Jackson...

did in getting Jim "Catfish" Hunter two years ago. The Yankees also were nearly successful in signing Andy Messersmith last spring before the deal fell through. Messersmith eventually signed with Atlanta.

Until a couple of days ago the Padres appeared to have the inside track on Jackson, but San Diego owner Ray Kroc lost his patience with Jackson's agent, Gary Walker, and gave up on signing the slugging outfielder.

Kroc said Jackson's agent revised aspects of his offer after the Padres had agreed to it. The Padres' owner also was angered at Walker's failure to return his telephone calls. After the Padres gave up on Jackson they turned their attention to relief pitcher Rollie Fingers and were successful in signing him.

Jackson is the last of the "big name" free agents to sign. The only other established major leaguers yet to agree to terms are third baseman Richie Hebner and second baseman Tito Fuentes. Hebner played with Pittsburgh last season and was taken by seven teams in the re-entry draft while Fuentes, who played out his option with San Diego, was selected by only four clubs. Three of the teams that drafted Hebner, however, have already signed their allotment of two free agents.

Jackson, the fifth round pick of the Yankees in the first annual free agent, will assume the club's long ball role which was noticeably missing when New York lost the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds in four games. The Yankees hit only one home run in the series.

Jackson batted .277 over 138 games last season after joining Baltimore in a blockbuster spring training trade which also sent Ken Holtzman and Bill Van Bommel to the Orioles for Don Baylor, Mike Torrez and Paul Mitchell. Jackson hit 27 home runs and knocked in 91 runs despite missing the entire month of April while haggling contract with the Orioles.

He joined Baltimore in May after receiving an extra $60,000 from the Orioles even though he still had not signed a contract. That caused a plethora of resentment by Baltimore players who were similarly playing out their options but without an increase in pay.

Jackson was the American League's most valuable player in 1973 when he led the league in home runs (32), rbi (117) and runs (99) in directing the A's to the third of five straight Western Division titles while he was with the club.

The Wyncote, Pa. native was signed by the then Kansas City A's out of Arizona State in 1966 and carved a niche for himself in Oakland history as the club's all-time leader in home runs, extra base hits and slugging percentage.

Jackson thus joins former A's pitchers, Hunter and Ken Holtzman, on the Yankees, who won their first American League pennant in 12 years this season.

Alabama Rolls Past Auburn

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Presss Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Jeff Rutledge and runner Tony Nathan took charge of a mistake-filled football game Saturday and led Alabama to a 38-7 victory over Auburn in the season windup for both schools.

Rutledge hit on six of eight passes for 97 yards and one touchdown, and Nathan, also a sophomore, ripped for 141 yards on just 12 carries, including two scoring runs.

Alabama, 18th-ranked nationally, thus wrapped up second place in the Southeastern Conference, which it had dominated for the five previous years, and takes an 8-3 record against U.C.L.A. in the Liberty Bowl, the Crimson Tide's 18th straight post-season appearance.

On defense, end Barry Krauss, with 17 tackles, and safety Murray Legg, with an interception, a fumble recovery and eight tackles helped keep Auburn in check until Alabama had a 38-0 margin.

The first half was nothing but fumbles and interceptions until Rutledge moved the Tide 60 yards, including passes of 12 and 17 yards to Thad Flanagan.

Late in the half, halfback Rick Watson connected with Nathan on a 42-yard pass to the 14 and Nathan, sprung by Rick Neal's block, skirted right end on the next play to score.

No Easy Way For Tampa Bay

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

John McKay wasn't exactly in his usual one-liner mood.

Tampa Bay's affable coach, who has shown an ability to laugh in the face of tragedy, wasn't laughing as his Buccaneers, the worst team in the National Football League, prepared to meet the best, namely the Oakland Raiders.

"Our next three games would be a hard test for anybody, not just us," he said, looking past Sunday's game against the Raiders to the Pittsburgh Steelers and New England Patriots—and possibly the first 0-14 record in NFL history.

"Oakland's passing game can give any team trouble because you have to double-team Cliff Branch, and that just opens up Dave Casper down the middle," he said of Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler's two prime targets.

What the Bucs-Raiders game comes down to is a test of the old "on any given Sunday" theory, and the possibility—however remote—that the 0-11 Raiders might actually beat the 10-1 Raiders, already the champions in the American Conference West.

In Sunday's other action it's Philadelphia at Washington, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Denver at New England, the New York Jets at Baltimore, New Orleans at Los Angeles, Seattle at the New York Giants, Miami at Cleveland, Chicago at Green Bay, Atlanta at Houston and Kansas City at San Diego. On Monday night it's Minnesota at San Francisco.

On Thursday, Dallas all but clinched the National Conference East title by beating St. Louis 19-14 to take a two-game lead over the Cardinals in the division with two games to go, and Detroit downed Buffalo 27-14 despite O.J. Simpson's record of 273 yards that made him the first NFL rusher to gain 200 yards or more in five games.

If this were two years ago, when playoff sites were predetermined regardless of the playoff teams' records, McKay might be able to look forward to an Oakland team resting many of its regulars. But now the sites are based on the playoff teams' records—so Coach John Madden's Raiders still need every victory they can get. They're 10-1 while Baltimore and Cincinnati, the AFC's other division leaders, are each 9-2.

Washington is out of the NFC East title chase but by beating Philadephia the Redskins can move into a second-place tie with St. Louis in the duel for the NFC wild-card playoff spot.

The Steelers, taking a six-game winning streak into Cincinnati, face more than a simple must-win situation. Not only to they have to beat the Bengals but they also have to hope that New England loses to Denver. If Cincinnati and the Patriots win, Pittsburgh's hopes of reaching a third straight Super Bowl will vanish.

And the Patriots, second in the AFC East, are still shooting for more than the AFC wild card. The Pats can still overtake Baltimore, leading the division by one game.

The Los Angeles Rams can become the third team to clinch an NFL division crown, joining Oakland and the NFC Central champ Vikings, if they beat the Saints and San Francisco, second in the NFC West, loses Monday night's game to Minnesota.

Hold it a minute. Is that North Carolina in a Four Corner offense? Yes, it is—to Norm Sloan's consternation.

"I'm surprised that the No. 3 team in the nation—with all the talent they have—had to hold the ball," Sloan said sourly.

North Carolina defeated the 15th-ranked Wolfpack after Wake Forest inaugurated the traditional intrastate tourney in the Greensboro Coliseum with a tingling 81-80 victory over Duke.

While North Carolina faced Wake Forest, in the Big Four finals Saturday night, several other tournament championships were settled around the country.

Southern Illinois defeated No. 20 Missouri 68-55 Friday night and advanced to the finals of the St. Louis Arch Classic against Illinois, which defeated St. Louis University 68-65. St. John's, a 79-65 winner over Brown, defended its Lapchick Tournament title in New York against Fairfield, which defeated Northwestern 92-74

Florida State defeated Toledo 70-66 and Clemson crushed Yale 104-50 to advance to the championship game of the IPTAY Tournament in Clemson, S.C. The Spider Basketball Classic features a championship game between Richmond and George Washington. Richmond advanced to tonight's finals with a 56-49 decision over Navy and George Washington romped over Dartmouth 96-57.

Syracuse routed Harvard 75-48 and West Virginia hammered Massachusetts 89-77 to advance to the finals of the Hall of Fame Tournament in Springfield, Mass.

In other games involving ranked teams Friday night, No. 4 UCLA defeated San Diego State 74-64; No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas blasted Nevada-Reno 102-87; 10th-ranked Arizona stopped Arizona State 92-91 in overtime and No. 13 Alabama outscored Purdue 97-80.

Mike Glenn tossed in 17 points and led Southern Illinois' tightly-controlled offense to a surprisingly easy victory over Missouri in the St. Louis Arch Classic.

Audie Matthews propelled Illinois to an early lead and the Fighting Illini held on to beat host team St. Louis in the second game.

Marques Johnson scored the last eight UCLA points as the Bruins fought off a late charge by San Diego State. Eddie Owens scored 20 points to pace Nevada-Las Vegas over Nevada-Reno. San Francisco trimmed San Francisco State behind Bill Cartwright's 24 points. Tim Marshall scored on a driving shot with two seconds left in overtime to lead Arizona past Arizona State. Reginald King scored 22 points, leading Alabama over Purdue.

The National Hockey League has 18 teams competing in its 60th season.

Carolina, Wake Win In Opening Contests

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina, third ranked in the preseason poll, was to play defending champion Wake Forest Saturday night in the finals of the Big Four basketball tournament. No. 15 North Carolina State met Duke in the consolation game.

The North Carolina Tar Heels got 16 points apiece from forward Walter Davis and center Tom LaGarde as they wore down N.C. State's super-leapers 78-66 in the first round Friday night.

The Deacons of Wake Forest withstood a furious rush by the Duke Blue Devils to take an 81-80 decision in the opening game before 15,700 screaming fans packed into the Greensboro Coliseum.

The tournament inaugurated season play for the four teams.

"We were more jittery and we're supposed to be the experienced team," Tar Heel coach Dean Smith said.

"Sloan had a good game plan," Smith continued, referring to Norman Sloan, the N.C. State coach. "I did something to mess ours up. I don't know what, but I'm going to find out. We played like we were protecting something. I don't know what. We hadn't won anything before tonight except the Blue-White (intra-squad) game.

"I'm extremely pleased with the rebounding, because this is an area I was worried about and State is an excellent rebounding team."

North Carolina had a 35-30 rebounding edge, and outshot the Wolfpack 61 per cent to 52 per cent. The difference was apparent in the second-half statistics. North Carolina hit 64 per cent of its field goal attempts after intermission while N.C. State, which led 42-40 at halftime, connected on 11 of 22 attempts for 50 per cent in the half.

Phil Ford gave the Tar Heels their first lead since early in the game when he broke clear for a layup with 11:23 to go. N.C. State's Clyde "The Glide" Austin slapped the ball away from the rim, drawing a goaltending call that gave North Carolina a 57-56 lead.

The Wolfpack could get no closer, and North Carolina went to its four-corner delay tactics with 8:50 remaining and leading 63-59.

"I was a little surprised that the No. 3 team in the nation, with all the talent they have, had to hold the ball," Sloan said. He added that he was pleased that his team lost only the ball game and not its confidence.

Wake Forest got strong inside play from forward Rod Griffin, clutch scoring from Jerry Schellenberg, and floor leadership from Skip Brown in holding off the Blue Devils.

Duke guard Tate Armstrong, who played on the gold-medal U.S. Olympic team with LaGarde, Ford and Davis of North Carolina and Carr of N.C. State, led all scorers with 27 points.

Griffin answered with 25, and pulled down 10 rebounds. Schellenberg hit from long, short and medium range for 17 points. Brown scored 20 and lead the Deacons' fast break.

The Deacons dominated the boards 35-29, and held a considerable edge in field goal percentages, 57-47.

Still, it took a pair of free throws by Griffin with 15 seconds remaining to give Wake Forest an 81-7 lead and preserve the victory.

Armstrong, who scored 17 points in the second half, hit a 20-foot jump shot from the top of the key to complete the scoring with five seconds left.

Agase Is Shown Door

Agase, 54, was fired on Friday, less than a week after he finished his fourth losing season at Purdue with a 20-14 loss to Indiana. His four teams compiled an 18-25-1 mark overall.

"I have no bitterness," said Agase, whose greatest moment in 14 years of college coaching was an upset of then-No. 1 Michigan three weeks ago.

"I had a great love for Purdue when I came here, and I leave with a great love for Purdue.

Atlanta Stops Losing Streak

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

It took a hastily called team meeting to get the point across, but yes, the Atlanta Hawks can indeed win on the road.

The Hawks snapped a 28-game road losing streak by beating the New York Nets 109-105 at the Nassau Coliseum as John Drew scored 33 points, including 29 in the second half and 17 in the fourth quarter.

Atlanta had not won away from home since Jan. 27, 1976, when they eked out a 114-113 decision over the New York Knicks.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Boston Celtics 108-92, San Antonio edged Golden State 123-121, Buffalo beat Detroit 124-119, Philadelphia defeated the New York Knicks 114-103, Indiana topped Milwaukee 109-98, Kansas City defeated Denver 120-110, Seattle beat Chicago 101-97 and Los Angeles edged Portland 99-96.

Cavs 108, Celtics 92

Cleveland raised its record to 13-4, best in the league, by winning at the Boston Garden and snapping the Celtics' five-game home winning streak. Swingman Bobby Smith led a balanced attack with 24 points and guards Austin Carr, Dick Snyder and Jim Cleamons combined to add 46.

Braves 124, Pistons 119

Ernie DiGregorio was the spark as Buffalo snapped a six-game losing skein. He scored 20 points, including 10-for-10 from the free throw line to raise his streak to 35 in a row; grabbed a career-high 13 rebounds, and handed out eight assists in his 40 minutes.

Spurs 123, Warriors 121

George Gervin's 12-footer with 13 seconds remaining gave San Antonio its seventh straight home victory before a crowd of 12,306, second largest in the franchise's history.

Larry Kenon of the Spurs led all scorers with 29 points.

76ers 114, Knicks 103

Forwards Julius Erving and George McGinnis combined for 45 points for the Sixers, who led all the way and clinched it with a 14-point run in the fourth quarter. Erving had 24 points.

Pacers 109, Bucks 98

Indiana handed Milwaukee its eighth straight loss, building an 11-point first-quarter lead and riding Darnell Hillman's 25 points to victory.

Kings 120, Nuggets 110

Guards Ron Boone and Brian Taylor scored 26 points apiece as the Nuggets lost their third game in the last five starts, all on the road, despite 35 points by David Thompson.

Sonics 101, Bulls 97

Seattle posted its 27th straight home victory and 11th this year, while dealing the Bulls their 10th loss in a row, a team record. Leonard Gray scored 17 points to lead a balanced Sonics attack which negated 30 points by Chicago's Wilbur Holland.

Lakers 99, Blazers 96

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 32 points and Lucius Allen a season-high 30 for the Lakers. It was the 10th straight road loss for the Blazers.

Shelby, Robbinsville Capture High School Football Titles

By The Associated Press

Shelby and Robbinsville clinched football championships in their conferences Friday night, with Shelby taking the Western North Carolina High School Activities Association (WNCHSAA) crown and Robbinsville winning the state 1-A tournament.

Shelby upset Lexington with a 25-0 rout to mark the final WNCHSAA playoff series. The league, hit by withdrawal of its members, is being absorbed next year into the statewide N.C. High School Athletic Association.

Robbinsville slogged up and down a rain-soaked enemy field Friday night to hand Princeton a 34-6 defeat.

Fullback Allen Burris, with two touchdowns, led Shelby to its fourth WNCHSAA championship in the last nine years. He scored on runs in the second and third period and was named offensive player of the game.

Shelby, which racked up 206 yards rushing and 62 yards passing, also counted scores by defensive back Lester Jamerson and halfback Anthony Webber. Jamerson scooped up a fumble and rambled 30 yards for his points while Webber carried on a 39-yard scoring run.

Halfback Teddy Phillips and quarterback Matt Rogers spearheaded Robbinsville's offense with a pair of touchdowns each. They both scored in the second period then came back for another touchdown each in the third period.

A safety by Dale Hill in the fourth period rounded out the Robbinsville points. Princeton's lone score came on a fourth-quarter air strike from tailback Stevie Smith to end Ricky Woodring.

Semifinals were scheduled in three other conferences Friday night to decide pairings for next Friday's championships. Results were:

3-A: Pisgah 40, Northwest Cabarrus 8; and Farmville and Clinton postponed because of rain.

Voight Again Player Of Year

RALEIGH, N.C.(AP) — North Carolina tailback Mike Voight, who became the fifth leading career rusher in NCAA history, has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference's outstanding player for the second straight season.

Voight closed the regular season Nov. 20 with a spectacular performance in the 39-38 victory over Duke. He ran for 261 yards from scrimmage and scored four touchdowns and a two-point conversion.

He received 54 of the 114 ballots cast by members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Mark Manges, Maryland quarterback, was second with 29. Bill Armstrong, Wake Forest free safety, was third with 26.

Others receiving votes were Joe Campbell, Maryland tackle; Billy Bryan, Duke center; Ted Brown, N.C. State running back; James McDougald, Wake Forest running back, and Mike Dunn, Duke quarterback.

Voight will lead the Tar Heels, who are 9-2, against Kentucky in the Peach Bowl Dec. 31 in Atlanta.

He gained 1,407 yards this season on 315 carries, giving him a career total of 3,971. The only runners head of him in the career rushing total are Tony Dorsett, Archie Griffin, Ed Marinaro and Joe Washington.

The strong finish for Voight followed a slow early season start in which he was bothered by nagging injuries. By mid-season coach Bill Dooley was saying, "Mike is beginning to get his timing back." Voight's four touchdowns against Duke enabled him to tie Stan Fritts of N.C. State for the ACC record of 42 touchdowns in a career. His total this season was 18.

Voight is the only ACC runner who has had three 1,000-yard seasons. He was a high school football and track star at Chesapeake, Va.

SEATTLE (AP) — Zaid Abdul-Aziz, former Seattle SuperSonic, has signed to play with the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association, his attorney says.

Lawyer Robert Mussehl said Friday Abdul-Aziz reached agreement with Bob MacKinnon, the Braves' general manager, on a contract that includes lucrative playoff incentives.

The 6-10 Abdul-Aziz played for Seattle as Don Smith in 1971 and 1972, then returned to Seattle last year under his Islamic name. He is beginning his ninth pro season.

MASON, Ohio (AP) — The 1977 tour by the Professional Golfers Association will again include a stop here Sept. 22-25 where a $150,000 purse will be sought.

This will be the fourth Ohio Kings Island Open, with a $7,500 award to touring professionals during the Pro-Am to be held Sept. 21.

Madlock Keeps Eye On Salaries

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Madlock's contract doesn't expire until Dec. 31. But he's keeping a sharp eye on the kinds of salaries this season's crop of baseball free agents are commanding.

"They're good ballplayers and have good records," says the Chicago Cubs' star third baseman. "I'm at least in the same class with them and I've done a couple of things they haven't."

Madlock, who led the National League in batting the past two seasons, says he wants to remain with the Cubs and won't ask for more money than he thinks he's worth.

"I want no more than the other guys get who play baseball and have records that compare with mine," he says. The problem for the Cubs is that there are few players with records like his.

Madlock batted .339 with 15 home runs and 85 runs batted in last season. By comparison, Joe Rudi hit .270 with 13 homers and 94 RBIs and Don Baylor batted .247 with 15 homers and 68 RBIs. Both signed with California, Rudi for a reported $2 million over five years and Baylor for a reported $1 million over the same period.

Madlock reportedly received $85,000 last season, his third full year in the majors, all with the Cubs. He played 21 games for Texas in 1973.

The Cubs don't have to worry about losing Madlock through the free agent system this year. After his one-year contract expires he is bound to Chicago for one season under the option clause. He would become a free agent if he is unsigned by next November. Madlock says he plans to talk with the Cubs' management next month.

World Changed By Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Few visitors to the lush beauty of London's Kew Gardens are aware of the way this place has changed the world.

Yet perhaps no single garden in history has had more influence than the one formally called the "Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew."

Asia's rubber industry started here. Quinine, once the only protection against malaria's chills, was first cultivated here. Kew is even responsible for Australia's wool.

"Many countries owe a great debt, now rarely acknowledged, to those industrious men of Kew who gave their work and often their lives to foster the trade which began their economic development," says Ronald King in a beautiful new book.

King has been secretary of this gorgeous garden for 17 years. He knows every quirk of its long and colorful history.

More than that, he is a man in love with plants.

Nothing delights him more than to introduce a chapter on roses by recalling that King Sargon of Sumer, some 5,000 years ago, thought it worth while to wage war for booty which included "coveted vines and fig trees — and also rose trees."

He relishes the "secret marriage" of ferns, plants without flowers or seeds which reproduce by an almost mystical process. Their spores produce "a plant totally different in structure from the fern," and these in turn produce a fern.

King's new book, published by Macmillan, is called "The World of Kew." The title is apt. Kew is a world in itself.

Growing in it today are plants from every clime and region, of every shape and kind. But for more than 200 years Kew has been the capital of "a plant empire," and all the world has gained from its two-way traffic.

"Men trained at Kew went out to the new countries to examine and collect plants," King says. "They passed those plants which seemed promising back to Kew. These in turn were sent off to countries where they might be useful, to be tried out by other Kew-trained men."

The Far East's rubber trees are the most famous example of this process, but there are many more.

King crams the romantic history of this once-royal estate, which still holds the smallest of Britain's royal palaces, into a single chapter of his lavishly illustrated new book. It takes some cramming.

Capt. Bligh of the "mutiny on the Bounty," for instance, worked for Kew. The mutiny came while Bligh sailed the Bounty on a Kew-inspired mission to collect breadfruit trees.

King George III lived at Kew after he lost the American colonies, and some of his Kew flock of Spanish marino sheep became "the foundation stock of the present great Australian wool industry," King records.

But today's visitors go to Kew not for history or for the enormous scientific program still carried on behind the shrubbery.

They go for beauty, the loveliness of one of England's great gardens. King echoes their appreciation and then tries to add an extra dimension to each flower or towering tree.

A palm tree means more, for example, once King has pointed out that it is responsible for the civilization of mankind.

"The importance of palms in the life of man cannot be overestimated," he says. "Had they not existed, both prehistory and history would have taken a different course."

To him plant families have intriguing personalities. Climbing plants are "fortune hunters," seeking the sun at the expense of other plants. Insect-eating plants are "the trappers," many of Kew's trees are "living fossils" and "bamboos are a kind of grass."

To Ronald King, some orchids "are of such breathtaking delicacy of color, texture and complexity that it would be an insensitive person who was not moved by their beauty."

But he also notes that this beauty — an orchid's color and shape — is cunningly designed "to entice one particular kind, and even sex, of insect to enter the flower and then follow a particular course" around it to pollinate the plant.

King sees Kew Gardens as "a haven of beauty, peace and serenity in a troubled world." Few who visit it would argue.

But his main passion is for the plants which grow there. These, he says, "are wonders to fire the imagination. He who is unmoved by them is to be pitied."

Seasonal Services Planned For Famed Grotto Of The Nativity

By MATHIS CHAZANOV

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-occupied Jordan (UPI) — One hundred and twenty six years ago, Russia went to war with Britain, France and Turkey. One of the reasons was a dispute between Czarist Russia and Turkey over guardianship of the traditional birthplace of Jesus.

Christians get along better now than they did before the Crimean War, but rival priests still keep an eye on one another at the Grotto of the Nativity.

The Greek Orthodox sect controls the hulking, fourth-century basilica that covers the underground cave believed to be the birthplace of Jesus.

Their Christmas falls in January, but the grotto itself is shared with the Latin-rite Catholics. Franciscan fathers stage an elaborate celebration starting with midnight mass on the eve of Dec. 25.

It is preceded by a parade of priests and acolytes from Jerusalem, six miles to the north, led by the patriarch of Jerusalem.

"It's really a thrill," says the Rev. Michael Raun of Washington, D.C., a Franciscan who serves as sacristan at St. Catherine's, the 19th century Catholic church across a Crusader-era courtyard from the basilica.

Last Christmas he spent the night in the grotto, celebrating the mass until dawn.

The tension stems from the days of Turkish rule before World War I, when rival sects would bribe corrupt officials for privileges at holy sites.

On occasion Turkish governors would issue conflicting decrees that are still in effect despite almost 60 years of British, Jordanian and Israeli rule.

"Western people don't understand this," said Maroun Junan, a Beirut-born Franciscan.

"If I put a carpet down, or a lamp, the spot becomes mine, or even if I sweep there," he said.

There have been no hostile incidents at the grotto for at least 15 years, and even the priests involved maintained friendly relations after the scuffling before that time.

"Afterwards they had feasts and gave greetings," Yunan said.

The highlight of the midnight ceremony comes when the patriarch carries a robed, plaster statue of the Christ child from the altar in St. Catherine's to the low niche underground and places it over a gold and silver star inscribed in Latin, "Here Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary."

Bethlehem is a town of 35,000 Arabs, just over half of them Christians.

Its stone buildings lie atop a ridge of hills six miles south of Jerusalem. Steeples dominate the skyline from Shepherds Field two miles away.

A YMCA and church mark the spot where the shepherds watched their flock when "the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them," in the words of Luke, 1,8.

The mayor is Elias Freij, a short, jowly man who looks at least 16 years younger than his 56 years.

"This is the mecca of the Christian world, but we are small and poor," Freij said in an interview.

Freij, who is owner of the largest souvenir shops lining Manger Square, blames the various denominations for supporting their own institutions, such as churches and orphanages, and ignoring the needs of the town.

He said $500,000 would be enough to start a $2 million project to turn the square in front of the basilica into a marble plaza complete with statues and fountains, instead of the parking lot for donkeys, cars and tourist buses it now is.

The Jordanian government has cut off its regular payments since the local elections in April, when left-leaning candidates took over most of the town governments in the territory occupied by Israel in 1967.

"We agree that the Palestinian Liberation Organization is the official representative of the people on the West Bank, but that doesn't absolve Jordan and the Arab countries from giving money," he said.

Freij, one of the few mayors who were returned to office, takes credit for the relative quiet in Bethlehem this year, when the rest of the occupied territory was hit by months of rioting against Israeli rule.

He said tourists had nothing to fear when they visit the town, where soldiers in combat gear stand guard outside the holy places.

Fifteen choirs from around the world are expected to sing in Manger Square this Christmas Eve, including a local group that sings "Jingle Bells" in Arabic.

Will Present Policy Review

Janice Faulkner of the East Carolina University English faculty is one of five persons selected to present background papers on public policy issues at a special conference for North Carolina legislators and scholars in Raleigh Dec. 10-11.

Mrs. Faulkner's topic is "education: Review and Reassessment."

Other topics and presentors include "Labor and Unionism," George Antone, professor of history at Appalachian State University; "Health Care," C. Half Of Lead Supply In U.S. Today Is Recycled

NEW YORK (AP) — Recycled metals, equal in every way to their virgin counterparts, are likely to be found in almost any metallic product today, according to M.J. Mighdoll, executive vice president of the National Association of Recycling Industries.

And of all the metals, lead is the one that is most recycled, he says, adding that we now recycle about 820,000 tons of lead each year, or 50 per cent of our total supply.

"About 1 million tons are not recycled and, like millions of tons of other metals, these potential raw materials are now lost in the solid waste stream," he says.

Lead is one of the oldest metals, Mighdoll notes. The Hanging Gardens of Babylon were floored with sheets of lead to retain moisture; the Chinese used it to mint their first coins about 2000 B.C.; in ancient Greece gamblers loaded their dice with it, and the Romans used it for plumbing.

"In fact, the modern word comes from the Roman one for lead, 'plumbum,' which they applied to water spouts and conduits. Lead water pipes in a perfect state of preservation have been dug up in Pompeii, Rome and England," Mighdoll says.

"Lead is highly durable and was also widely used in construction in the middle ages. The restorers of the famous stained glass windows in Britain's Canterbury Cathedral are not using new metal, but are recycling the lead from the old framed panels."

Mighdoll explains that while most of our lead is now used in automobile batteries, it is also used in tetraethyl lead gasoline additives and for ammunition, caulking lead, cable covering, foil, die castings and lead type. While the electric battery may pose a threat to the future of lead usage, this metal is destined to play a prominent role in nuclear and electronic applications, he says.

"The average life of a lead battery is three years," Mighdoll says, "and if we were to recycle all of the lead which is now being dumped, we could manufacture some 80 million new automobile batteries, which, of course, can be recycled over and over again."

As a historical note for the bicentennial year, Migheoll adds: "Lead also played an important part in helping the patriots win the War of Independence. In 1776, they toppled a lead statue of England's King George III from its pedestal in New York City's Bowling Green, melted it down and cast it into 42,088 bullets."

Mixed Fare In Weekly Paper

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

GOLD HILL, Nev. (AP) — Harassed newsmen on big city papers often dream of starting a newspaper in some rural hamlet. It's tough but not impossible to do, according to the publisher of the newly revived Gold Hill News.

David Toll says that after more than two years of barely scraping by he is still in business, with subscriptions for the colorful weekly inching upward — and he's only $83 in the red.

Along the way, the paper has picked up more than a dozen Nevada State Press Association awards for community service, columns, photography and other features.

Toll, a journalism school dropout, says the "News" started as a daily in 1863 during the famed Comstock Lode mining boom. Printing stopped in 1882.

Toll revived the paper as a bimonthly in 1974, apologizing for the lengthy delay. The paper, which combines straight reporting with whimsical yarn-spinning, was a quick hit in this area, which had been without any paper for more than a year.

But the total population of Gold Hill and nearby Virginia City, Silver City and Dayton — the paper's main markets — is less than 1,300. Gold Hill is the smallest, with 37 residents.

Toll has tried with some success to broaden circulation and increase revenues. About 2,000 copies are now sold weekly. Even so, the paper went into forced hibernation last winter. Printing on a weekly basis resumed last June.

Toll thinks he can keep printing this winter.

TRADITIONAL PLANS FIRST FLOOR BEDROOM

By Jerry Bishop

With step-saving closeness to family living areas, the first floor master bedroom expresses a contemporary approach to the interior of this traditional home design.

The Vanchester, a home with historic overtones, makes use of colonial styling and artfully blends a gambrel roof, shuttered small-paned windows, and brick trim to evoke a feeling of the past. Even the carport is given a side entry and topped with peaked roof and cupola.

Inside, the design departs from the past and caters to current lifestyles with its convenience and well-defined formal and informal living areas. The plan shows two separate front entries. One allows family to step from the carport, onto a covered porch, and into the family room, while the second ushers guests into a foyer flanked by living and dining room.

Outlined to encourage entertaining, the formal living and dining rooms prohibit cross-traffic, and the dining room is bordered by the kitchen. counter space is plentiful in the spacious kitchen, and the accessible screened porch is an added bonus.

An expansive family room with fireplace and breakfast area overlooks the patio via a bay window, and the area adjoins a utility room and generous storage space.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Before you call a repairman, be sure you need him.

This seemingly unnecessary advice was brought to mind recently while visiting the home of a family that had just moved into the neighborhood. In a discussion of the problems that had been encountered in the 30-year-old house, the owners — a young couple who had been married only a few months — mentioned that the toilet tank in the bathroom took very long to fill up after it had been flushed. "It's probably," said the man, "because the water pressure is too low."

It was pointed out to him that this was unlikely, since he had said no other plumbing fixtures were affected. A check was made after he said he planned to phone a plumber about it the next day. It turned out that the shut-off valve under the tank had been partly closed, allowing only a small amount of water to enter the bottom of the tank after it had been emptied. Opening the valve all the way — by turning it counter-clockwise — restored the operation of the tank to normal.

A few days later, while talking to a fuel oil delivery man, I asked him whether he got any useless service calls from his customers. "You would be surprised," he said, "how many times we are summoned to houses where the furnaces aren't working only to discover that the oil burner emergency switches have been turned off by mistake."

Even though such switches have bright red wall plates, they are sometimes turned on in error because they usually are located in the area of light switches. The way to avoid such a mistake is to place a piece of tape over the emergency switch. The tape can be quickly ripped off if and when it is necessary to move the switch to the "off" position.

Any home appliance service dealer can tell you how often he is called to a house to fix a non-functioning item which wasn't doing its job only because somebody or something had dislodged the electric plug from the outlet. Naturally, he has to be paid for his time. Multiply that by the experiences of thousands of other dealers and you have some idea of how much money is spent putting plugs back into electric outlets.

Vacuum cleaners brought to repair shops because they aren't picking up the dirt properly often have nothing more wrong with them than clogged hoses. Steam irons, especially when used with hard water, may need only a cleaning.

Nearly every instruction booklet that comes with a household appliance contains a list of simple things to check when something goes wrong. This checklist has nothing to do with making repairs, just with seeing that everything is in order before calling on the services of a professional. The trouble is that many persons read the booklets carefully when they first get the appliances, then can't find them when there is trouble months or even years later. Every home should have a special place where all instruction information is kept indefinitely. It can be a real money-saver.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Garden Clinic

(N. C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions)

Q. We have several cedars and arborvitae that have grown much out of hand, they are crowding the house. Can they be pruned back severely? (M. R., Gastonia)

A. Junipers, cedars, arborvitae and other similar shrubs are difficult to keep pruned. Heaving pruning may cause them to die. Therefore, if these narrow-leaved evergreens become too large, they should be replaced. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. I have some squash and watermelon seed which I am not sure are viable. Someone told me that I would wash them, put them in water and if they floated, they would be okay. Is this correct? (B. C., Concord)

A. Definitely not. The best way to determine if the seed are viable is to place a few between two wet paper towels and hold in a warm area for four to five days. If there's no sign of sprouting, chances are the seeds are dead. Be sure to keep the towels moistened. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. When is the best time to transplant a deciduous tree? (L. G., Winston-Salem)

A. Container grown trees may be transplanted most any time of the year. Generally, bare rooted or balled and burlapped deciduous trees survive better if moved from the time leaves turn in the autumn until buds burst in the spring. Depending upon locality, weather, soils and species to be planted, fall planting may be as successful as spring planting. (William M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. Nematodes were a problem on my tomatoes this year. How can I avoid the problem next year? (H. G., New Bern)

A. Fall is an excellent time to take a soil sample to determine whether nematodes will cause damage to the tomatoes or other vegetables in the garden the following season. It is also an excellent time to begin the nematode control program. As soon as the harvest is complete, plants should be removed and the soil should be worked to expose the root systems to the cold, drying weather of winter, which will cause a decline in the nematode population. Chemical control is also possible either in the fall or spring. Dibromochloropropane, (DBCP), sold under such trade names as Nemagon or Fumazone, can be used on most vegetable crops. It is sold as both a liquid and a granule. Always be sure to read and carefully follow the label attached to a pesticide container. (Harry Duncan, extension plant pathologist)

Home Decorating Ideas Abound

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Do-it-yourself platform seating, resurfaced tables, stencilled walls, fabrics and window shades are some ways young people are decorating to stretch meager funds.

Platform seating is fashionably used even in the homes of interior designers. Easily made out of plywood, the seating can be used individually or on several levels. One decorator used brown velvet, another used beige pinwale corduroy and another covered platforms and walls with sisal, so a wide variety of choices may be made. The plywood is cut to the desired size and covered with a cushion or not. If used in a sleeping niche the mattress is covered in a matching fabric.

Old tables bought at tag sales or junk shops are being made useful when topped with tile or glass or plastic after being painted and refinished. Small square and oblong tables, useful for lamps, provide an opportunity for new workers, but experienced do-it-yourselfers might refinish big round tables, setting a tile pattern in the center. The area needs to be cut out and plywood must be set beneath it so the tiles can be set flush with the table.

Painted white with solid color vivid blue or green tiles, such a table can look smashing. The same idea can be applied to glass-topped, metal terrace tables, the kind that come in nests and are often discarded when the glass breaks. Plywood is used to hold the tile.

To tile any table, begin by putting sealer or varnish over old wood. After measuring the table and estimating the number of tiles needed, the squares can be drawn on the table with a pencil. The tiles can be manipulated so they come out even at the edge by adjusting the space between where the grout will go. One woman suggests sinking tiles right into grout, then quickly cleaning the tops, but you need some sort of rim if you do that.

Tiles may be obtained with matching borders in several widths, but some people prefer wood molding around a tiled wood table, painting it the same color as the base. Portuguese, Spanish and Delft tiles are particularly colorful if you can locate them. Many people enjoy designing their own plain tiles, which can be ordered through local building supply stores. Transferring patterns to plain tiles, glazing and firing them may prove to be a drawn-out process for beginners.

For dining, a draped table is a cozy choice for two people. It may be made with a plywood top — 30 inches is a good diameter — or it can be larger, depending on the base that will support it. Old metal sewing machine bases are popular for this purpose because they are sturdy and easily hitched to the plywood.

A lumber yard or building store can cut out a circle of plywood, which can be attached to the top with screws or nails. The trestle of the machine base makes a good storage spot for magazines. The cloth goes to the floor, but a smaller square of fabric can be used on top for many decorating advantages.

To put stencils on walls, fabric or shades, use masking tape to hold the cut-out in place and a stencil brush for each color paint. Flowers, birds, pineapples and ducks are popular, but you can make your own. Just be sure it's exactly what you want before you put it on the surface you choose. One couple stencilled right over plaster walls and liked the faded effect they achieved when the plaster absorbed some of the paint.

Matching the stencil to fabric and shades is fun. Be sure to use textile paint. Wash and iron fabric before you use it, and wait until the paint is dry to move the stencil. Shades should be stencilled by working from the edge to the center of the design on a flat surface. Clean the stencil before moving it to a new area. After 24 hours apply an iron on low heat to the stencil for about six minutes, using a pressing cloth for protection.

As for home-built furniture, any number of books provide useful information and patterns for building just about anything.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I expect to install fiber board in an extra room I am finishing. Is it true that this type of board has sound-deadening qualities? Also, are the panels butted together or do the seams have to be filled?

A. — Yes, fiber board absorbs sound. While panels can be installed with butt joints, requiring the use of a filler in the seams, there are several types available which have special edges that need no special treatment. Remember, too, that the panels can be obtained with or without a finish.

Q. — We want to put a metal fence around the front and sides of our house. Recently we saw a house with such a fence, but it also had some kind of hardboard run through the metal. It looked kind of attractive and we would like to duplicate it but don't know how. Can you give us some help?

A. — Is there some reason why you couldn't have asked the people who live in that house? In any case, it probably was what is called a woven wire fence, with strips of tempered hardboard run through the mesh. The hardest part of the job is cutting the hardboard into pieces small enough to fit into the mesh. If you still don't want to ask the owners of the property how they did it, the fence dealer can show you what to do — or do the job himself, at an extra fee, of course.

Q. — We have a hot water heating system. Last year, we had to bleed the radiators every few weeks to get the air out of the radiators. It was a nuisance. Isn't there some way we can avoid this?

A. — Yes, but it will cost you some money. Have automatic vents installed. They are designed specifically to avoid periodic bleeding of the radiators.

Q. — I have read many times about how to correct a sagging first floor when there is a basement by using special jacks. Our problem is a sagging second floor, which is really the ceiling of the first floor. Obviously, we cannot use a jack in this case or even any kind of post. How can we fix this?

A. — Correcting this kind of condition is a job that must be done by a professional. The treatment depends on the cause of the sag and is never simple, but is very effective when done properly.

Q. — We had our kitchen cabinets refinished with shellac some time ago by a neighborhood handyman, who has since moved away. We now find that several of the cabinet locks do not work properly and can only assume that some of the shellac has gotten into the mechanism. Is this likely and what can be done about it?

A. — You have hit upon the probable cause. Denatured alcohol is the solvent for shellac. Wipe the lock with alcohol, allowing some of it to seep into the lock. This may have to be done several times. In several cases, you may have to remove the locks and soak them in denatured alcohol.

His Condominiums Run Up To $500,000 Level

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The poor are always with us, as someone once sagely remarked, but he might have added there are plenty of rich around as well. Otherwise why would George C. Beebe be renting an apartment house whose tenants can phone the doorman for a chartered yacht to be sent around with little more fuss than anyone else might ask for a taxi.

In the week in which the Federal Home Loan Bank announced the average price of a new home in the United States had passed $50,000 Beebe said he was finding less resistance than might have been anticipated for condominiums up to the $500,000 level. And the purchasers were Americans and not Arab oil sheiks.

Beebe, who knows himself what it is to be rich and not-so-rich (he says rich is better), expects the magnificent Tower House in Miami Beach, Fla., to be completely rented in the next few months against predictions prices from $150,000 up for apartments were unrealistic at this time.

"They also said you couldn't sell in the summer," he said, "so I sold a million dollars worth."

A big red-bearded fellow with a vague resemblance to King Henry VIII, Beebe draws on his own experience for the life-style men who have made their financial mark are apt to aim for. The last time he was a millionaire he flew with private plane and pilot to negotiate a deal only to learn the market had crashed.

"I came back by train", he said.

For all its luxury, one employee for every two flats with the square footage of an average apartment greater than that of two standard houses, Beebe expects a good number of residents will use the place as a second home. That's what he would have done. He also supervised the furnishing of the model apartment and says he tried to keep it realistic so he spent "only" $140,000 on the interior decoration.

Beebe concedes these are large numbers but only comparatively. As an associate partner of Pacific Union of California, marketing specialists, he says the prices in some areas of California are even more spectacular by the present standards of the upper-end of the market.

In the golden circle around the Beverly Hills Hotel, for example, it would take hard bargaining to drive the price of the better houses down to $500,000. But Middle East oil money is moving in there more openly than it is in the Miami area where, paradoxically, there are many lower-priced condominiums searching for tenants.

keep heat in... keep heat out... insulate

Insulation is material that keeps a home warmer in winter and cooler in summer. In winter, the better the insulation, the harder it is for heat to be lost to the outside. Uninsulated homes lose up to twice as much heat as insulated ones. Also, the heating system in an insulated home operates less and requires less energy. In summer that same insulation keeps heat out, saving electricity and reducing the wear on the air conditioner. Another benefit is the reduction in maintenance and repair bills.

HOW MUCH INSULATION SHOULD YOU HAVE?

Although thermal insulation is generally sold by thickness, R-Value determines its effectiveness. Four inches of one insulating material might be equivalent to six inches of another. R-Value designates the ability of material to resist the flow of heat. The higher the R-Value, the more heat the insulation will keep inside in winter and outside in summer. Use R-19 in the ceiling (the attic floor), R-11 in walls, and R-11 or R-19 in floors over unheated basements or vented crawl spaces. When building a new home, insist on at least these R-Values.

In most homes the single greatest area of heat loss or gain is the roof. The roof area is also the easiest area in which to install adequate insulation. Insulation should be up to the top of the joists or eight inches, whichever is greater. If the insulation has settled, bring it back up to joist level with the highest R-Value insulation available.

Walls and floors are more difficult to check and upgrade. One insulation manufacturer suggests placing one thermometer against an outside wall and another in the center of a room. After four hours, take a reading. If the outside wall thermometer reads more than five degrees lower than the other one, you need better insulation. To upgrade wall and floor insulation, consult an insulation contractor.

With more insulation, your utility bill will be smaller . . . the size and cost of equipment needed to heat or cool will be reduced . . . and when a system operates less each day, it will have fewer repair bills.

Case Of Hide And Seek

BARRE, Vt. (AP) — When people howled that the dog pound was too close to their houses, City Manager Jay Hawthorne began moving it around to one secret location after another. Now he's being hounded by citizens who can't figure out where he's putting it.

"I just want to prove the simple point that when people don't know where the pound is — even if it's near their home — they won't complain about it," Hawthorne said in an interview.

He's kept his lips sealed for nearly two months. He said only he and the delinquent mutts know the secret.

The question has occupied Barre City Council meetings since the pound went underground. Irate citizens have been demanding that Hawthorne reveal what he has done with the dogs.

"They're nearby," is his stock reply.

Even Barre Mayor Wilfred Fisher went sleuthing. Three times he thought he had found the kennels, only to come up empty-handed.

When residents accused Hawthorne of keeping public information private, he called for a vote of confidence. The council decided 5-2 that the city manager could keep his closely guarded secret until the end of November.

Hawthorne has promised to reveal the location at Tuesday's council meeting, ending his eight-week experiment to prove that the dogs are not really bothering people.

But he divulged some clues Friday.

"I've moved them around in the city, and they've been awfully close to the people who hollered the most about living near a dog pound," said Hawthorne. He said there have been no complaints since he hid the dogs.

"We've been under pretty close surveillance, too. Next to deer hunting, the most popular pastime in Barre is 'let's go look for the dog pound,'" he said. "But nobody has found it yet."

After 30 Years, Wallet Returned

WARMINSTER, Pa. (AP) — Karl Regul never expected to see again the wallet that a group of drunken soldiers stole from him in 1946. In fact, he says he'd forgotten all about it.

Now, thanks to carpenters in Maryland and a newspaper story, it looks as if he'll get his crumbling leather wallet back.

The wallet, containing a $25 war bond, a picture and personal papers but no money, was found recently when an old base hospital was being torn down at Ford Meade, Md.

"It was quite a shock hearing something about it after 30 years," said Regul, a 49-year-old tool and die maker. "I'll tell you, it was kind of weird. I'd like to get it back. It's a part of my past."

Joseph Ahl, base carpentry foreman, said the wallet was found by his workmen hidden in a ceiling support seven feet from the floor.

"Some of the cards and papers really were in bad shape but the bond and the picture were in really good shape," he said.

Ahl tried without success to get in touch with Regul by letter and telephone using Regul's old Philadelphia address.

Then state police dispatcher Patricia Miller read an Associated Press story about the wallet in the Lancaster, Pa., New Era.

She ran Regul's name through a state computer containing drivers' registrations and came up with his current address in this suburb of Philadelphia.

Miss Miller called a Lancaster reporter, who in turn called The AP.

It turned out that Regul had already heard about the wallet — from a retired officer who had also read a story about it in an Army newspaper.

Pappy Chalk's Airline Safest In U.S.; Never Lost A Plane

By BARNEY SEIBERT

Avianca? Pan Am? Air France? Wrong. It's Chalk's.

Chalk's International Airline may be about as familiar to the average American air traveler as comedian Bob Newhart's "Grace L. Ferguson Airline and Storm Door Company."

But since 1919, the airline that Albert Burns "Pappy" Chalk founded has been shuttling passengers back and forth through the Bermuda Triangle between Miami and the Bahamas. It has never had a fatal accident. It has never lost a plane.

Chalk's has made more than 200,000 flights without injury to a passenger. It has never owned a plane with a cruising speed faster than 150 miles an hour, but its customers find that on a portal-to-portal basis they make the trip from Miami to Nassau 30 minutes faster than the fastest jet on the run.

It is one of three U.S. airlines which fly only amphibian planes, and the only one of the three which uses them only on international flights.

Airlines founded in the era when Pappy Chalk began operating either grew into today's corporate giants or disappeared. Chalk's did neither. Why?

Office Under Umbrella

Because, said Chalk's present general manager, former National Airlines pilot Walter Shinn, "Pappy didn't want to get any bigger. It was the proudest boast of his airline that 'all of our planes are paid for'."

Chalk's flights are basically the same as they were on that day in 1919 when Pappy Chalk "came home from World War I, flew an amphibian to Miami, and set up a table and an umbrella at the foot of Flagler Street."

Its five Grumman Mallard twin engine amphibians swoop like giant swans on liesurely, 1,000 foot altitude flights from Biscayne Bay, between Miami and Miami Beach, to Bimini, Cat Cay and Nassau in the Bahamas.

Pappy sold his airline 12 years ago to Dean Franklin, who now operates an aircraft parts business specializing in Grumman amphibians — Chalk's buys most of its parts from Franklin. Franklin sold the airline to Edward F. Dixon, a former Pennsylvania construction magnate, who sold it to its present owners, Resorts International, operators of the Paradise Island Casino and three resort hotels on that island, and two hotels at Atlantic City, N.J.

Pappy Sends Soup

But Pappy, now 88, still takes an interest in the airline, sends down daily soup and sandwich snacks to his old air crews, and has a stepson who works for the line.

The state took away his driver's license last year because of his age, but he still holds a pilot's license, numbered 708. He made his last flight in 1975, concluding a 64-year career as a pilot, during which he had 30,000 hours in the air.

Pappy learned to fly in 1911 at Paducah, Ky., where he owned a small auto repair business. Barnstorming pilot Tony Jannus landed his French-built Benoist amphibian in the Ohio river for repairs. Pappy did the repair work but Jannus had no money to pay for it and so he offered to teach Pappy to fly. A photo of Pappy's solo flight is on the wall of the Chalk's Miami terminal on Watson Island, partially housed in a coral rock structure Pappy built himself.

He Taught Navy

Pappy was a flying Marine in World War I. In World War II, he expanded his plane fleet to 12 and operated a flying school, teaching Navy pilots to fly amphibians.

When most World War I pilots were thinking in terms of barnstorming in the peacetime world, Pappy, who'd had his fill of barnstorming before he joined the Marines, began thinking of an airline. He had briefly operated a amphibian flight service between Tampa and St. Petersburg.

He brought a war surplus float-equipped Dehaviland DH4 to Miami early in 1919 and learned, while taking a charter flight to the Bahamas, just how isolated from the mainland the islands were. In July of that year he began scheduled airline flights, about three months before Avianca began its scheduled operations.

Flying Turtle Feared

A short time later he switched to a Fairchild float plane and later a Waco float plane, before moving on to Grumman amphibians.

Pappy flew hundreds of celebrities to Bahamas vacations and fishing trips. Ernest Hemingway was a friend. So was Howard Hughes. He once got $150 for a charter to Havana to fly a Cuban president into exile. His airline was the subject of a silent movie with Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels. Chalk's planes also were props for a television series filmed at Miami several years ago.

Once he flew a live 150-pound loggerhead turtle from Bimini to Miami. "I didn't mind, but some of the passengers were somewhat alarmed," he said.

Pappy to the Rescue

When the 1926 hurricane hit Miami, Pappy was en route home from Nassau in a plane with a maximum speed of 120 miles an hour. He covered the nearly 200 miles in less than an hour. "We had quite a tail wind," Pappy said.

He landed at hurricane-ravaged Miami and immediately began making rescue flights to the Florida Keys, isolated by the storm.

What will happen to Chalk's International Airline when its 30-year-old Grumman amphibians wear out?

"Well, we hear the Navy is beginning to sell some surplus Albatross air rescue planes. They're bigger," Shinn said, "But with the present economics of the airline industry, we probably need bigger planes."

More Protein In Humble Beans

NEW YORK (AP) — The humble bean, long thought of as poor folks' food, actually contains more protein than beef or eggs, according to the Dairy Council of Metropolitan New York.

Beans contain about 22 per cent protein, compared with 18 per cent in beef and 13 per cent in eggs.

But since the protein that beans contain is incomplete, unlike the protein in milk, fish, poultry, meat and eggs, beans must be combined with other foods to get their full benefits.

Guard Your Credit Card On Holidays

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Christmas time usually results in a rash of credit card losses and thefts, according to the leading manufacturer of credit cards.

Addressograph - Multigrapher Corporation notes that it is not uncommon for credit card holders to do things in the excitement of holiday shopping that contribute to such losses. The company offers the following do's and don'ts to credit card holders:

DO make a list of all credit card account numbers and the telephone numbers to be called in the event of loss or theft. DON'T keep that list in the same place as the credit cards.

DON'T write your personal identification number on any card with which it's used.

DON'T carry cards in such a manner that you are easy prey for pickpockets for whom, incidentally, Christmas is the busiest time of the year.

DON'T go home from a shopping trip without first checking to see if you have all your credit cards.

DO make sure after each transaction that you get your card back and the imprinted sales slip is for the correct amount.

DON'T leave cards in a hotel or motel room if traveling during the holidays; use the safe or safety deposit box.

DON'T expose plastic cards to extremes in temperature. Cards can become brittle if kept out in the cold ... a good reason why they shouldn't be used to scrape ice off of windshields. Leaving them in the glove compartment of a car on a hot day can cause the embossed letters to flatten.

One last caution is to watch your spending this gift-giving season. Particularly when several people are using the same credit card there is a chance of overextending your budget, and that's not the kind of gift you'd want to give yourself.

Pocketbook Top Water Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saving money is more important to people than improving the smoothness of their skin or the luster of their hair, according to a nationwide survey of customer reasons for buying a water softening appliance.

In the survey, sponsored by the Water Quality Association, customers indicated that saving on soaps and detergents was the prime reason for their purchase of a water softener. Improvement in personal grooming was called secondary. Of little or no importance was the extension of fabric life when softened water is used in laundering, and the improvement in water's taste.

Better Than Using A Gun

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are better ways to steal a million dollars than with a gun, says the National Geographic Society. Authorities estimate that people steal $300 million a year through computers and much of it goes undetected.

One man programmed his bank's computer to ignore his overdrafts, then quit adding anything to the account while the bank made good on his checks. Another programmed his credit card company's computer not to enter charges against his card number.

But computers break down occasionally and both men were caught when a human bookkeeper had to take over.

Building Is Up

Commissioner of Labor Avery Nye reported this week that building permits totaled $46,358,178 in 38 North Carolina cities in September, rising 10.8 per cent aove the $41.8 million figure reported for September, 1975.

Nye said that Raleigh led with September permits exceeding $8 million, while Greensboro ranked second with $5.3 million and Charlotte third with $3.8 million. Greenville was included in the report as one of a dozen other cities which exceeded $1 million in permits with a total of $1,352,620.

Quinten, a town on the shore of Lake Wulen, Switzerland, can only be reached by water.

Price Hike Of Steel Questioned

By The Associated Press

The price of steel is going up Dec. 1, and the federal government wants to know why.

The round of price increases was started Wednesday by the National Steel Corp., the nation's third largest producer, which boosted prices by about 6 per cent. Four other steelmakers quickly followed suit.

The sheet products affected by the increase are used to make automobiles and consumer goods including appliances, but how the retail prices of those items will be affected was not immediately known.

Following National Steel's price hike announcement, the Council on Wage and Price Stability said in Washington it had been directed by the White House to begin a study of the increases. The council has no power to order the steelmakers to roll back prices, however.

"We are surprised by National's decision, since it doesn't appear that the demand for steel products is strong enough to sustain a price increase of this size," said William Lilley, acting director of the council.

"The current situation is similar to that which existed only last August when market conditions forced the steel producers to rescind an even smaller price increase planned at that time."

National, a major producer of flat-rolled products, said the increases would cover only part of its increased costs, and asserted that sheet product prices have lagged behind prices on other steel products.

GASLINE FIRE — Seven persons were killed and at least 25 injured when a gas line exploded on the outskirts of Mexico City Friday morning. The pipeline was accidentially cut by a construction crew. The explosion sent flames leaping 100 feet into the air and set a number of nearby shacks on fire. (AP Wirephoto)

Also announcing price hikes were Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Armco Steel Corp., Inland Steel Co., and Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

The timing of the move surprised some industry observers,ssince the chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., the largest producer, had said earlier this month that any price changes would come next year.

If the market sustains the increases, their effects on the economy will be left for President-elect Jimmy Carter, when he moves into office in January.

Carter, meanwhile, sought this past week to quiet speculation that he is strongly considering a tax cut to give the economy a boost.

"It would be a mistake to presuppose that a tax cut will be my approach to a stimulus of the economy," Carter said at a news conference interspersed with a series of meetings with House and Senate leaders.

A tax cut, at least in the near future, has been opposed by Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. After a meeting with Burns this week, Carter said the powerful chairman considers as reasonable Carter's goal of a 6 per cent growth in the economy next year.

Elsewhere in business this week:

—The price of the Mexican peso in exchange markets dropped this week to 3.5 cents from 4 cents, its third devaluation since this summer. The devaluation means that a dollar will buy 28.5 pesos now compared with 22 pesos a week ago and 12.5 pesos this August.

The peso had been strengthening slightly for several days before the Mexican central bank stopped its peso purchases causing the devaluation. The bank said it was unable to cope with the huge demand for converting pesos into dollars that developed recently after unsettling rumors spread about that country's political and economic stability.

—Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retail store chain and catalog business, reported a 34 per cent increase in third quarter earnings over a year ago.

Sears earned a record $159.6 million in the three months ended Oct. 31 and sales advance 9 per cent to $3.8 billion in the quarter.

Sears said higher merchandise sales and a near-fourfold increase in earnings of its insurance subsidiary, Allstate Insurance Co., made the difference between this year's third quarter and last year's.

—The Justice Department's antitrust division this week urged the Federal Communications Commission to take a hard look at the power wielded by the nation's three major television networks, CBS Inc., RCA Corp.'s National Broadcasting Co., and the American Broadcasting Co.

The Justice Department asked the FCC to consider in its inquiry whether the networks ought to be forced to sell the television stations they own and operate in several cities.

The Justice Department's request to the FCC supported a petition for review of the networks filed Sept. 3 by Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., one of the larger independent broadcasting companies.

In its filing with the FCC, the Justice Department said it agreed with Westinghouse that the "great economic power" of the networks "may have substantially eroded the ability of affiliated licensees to exercise genuine independence in making television programming decisions."

—The Justice Department also has begun an investigation into the paper industry concerning the possibility of price fixing, a coordination of pricing policies among companies which is illegal under U.S. antitrust laws.

The department has issued subpoenas to most of the major paper companies and the industry's trade organization, the American Paper Institute, seeking information on prices as far back as 1966.

Another focus of the investigation may be the paper shortage in 1973 and 1974 which enabled many paper companies to sharply raise prices in many types of paper.

Moderate Gain

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Steps by the Federal Reserve toward easier credit provided the inspiration for a moderate gain in stock prices this past week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 7.82 to 956.62 on top of a 21.11-point advance the week before.

By Friday's close theaverage had recouped all but 10 points of the 38-point loss it suffered in the initial selloff that followed Jimmy Carter's victory in the presidential election.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index posted a 1.23 gain to 103.15 for the week, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was up .72 at 55.33.

The mood for the week was set late the previous Friday, when the Fed announced a reduction in the discount rate—the charge it sets on loans to its member commercial banks—from 5½ to 5¼ per cent.

The move was taken as a clear signal that the central bank was seeking to push interest rates and lower and stimulate the economy.

And Wall Streeters also saw it as a further indication of a prospective harmonious relationship between Arthur Burns, the Fed's chairman, and President-elect Carter.

The Fed followed up this past week with several transactions in the money markets that touched off declines in short-term interest rates.

That spelled clear sailing for the stock market on all but one of the week's trading days. The Dow rose 7 on Monday, fell back 6 on Tuesday, but added 1 on Wednesday before the Thanksgiving holiday, and picked up more than 5 on Friday.

Tuesday's setback was attributed largely to Chrysler Corp.'s reduction of its estimate of industry car sales for the 1977 model year—from the range of 10.8 million-11 million units to 10.5-10.8 million.

That news was followed by word of a less-than-1 per cent increase in auto sales for mid-November, and General Motors' disclosure of plans for the temporary closing of one assembly plant.

Not surprisingly, the auto issues came in for some selling pressure during the week while many other stocks were moving ahead.

Holiday Cheer Is Costlier Than Ever For Britons

By GAIL GREGG

LONDON (UPI) — The British family that sets off to grandmum's this Christmas will be paying dearly to do so.

The cost of the gasoline has risen again. The gaily wrapped toys in the car's trunk and the plum pudding waiting at the table cost between 12 and 25 per cent more than last year. Even the Christmas tree is more expensive.

Inflation and the plunging pound are to blame. But Britons are still queueing up at London department stores to make their Christmas merry.

"They're spending money like there's no tomorrow," said one busy toy department clerk at Selfridge's, one of London's largest department stores, "and everything has gone up since last year, everything."

"When you've got to have it you just pay for it," said a 55-year-old mother of five. "And we're so used to it (inflation) by now. Every time you look in the shop windows, the price goes up."

Whereas the dropping pound means Britons have to dig deeper into their pockets to afford Christmas luxuries, tourists find their foreign currency buys more than ever. Traders say foreigners are storming London shops as never before.

"The bulk of the people we cater for happen to be tourists," said the spokeswoman for Fortnum and Mason. "In actual fact our sales are up this year."

She added that the department store, famous for its speciality foods, is rarely affected by economic slumps because "our clients have a certain amount of money anyway."

They include the British Royal family, who plan to spend Christmas together at Windsor as usual.

"They always celebrate it in a rather simple family way," said a Buckingham Palace spokesman.

An ordinary family will notice the cost of keeping up traditions all too easily.

The newspapers are full of tales of economic woe. Groceries up around 2 pence (3.5 cents) per item by Christmas, Christmas trees costing 15 per cent more than last year, tree decorations up 20 per cent, toys up by as much as 25 per cent

That means the medium-sized teddy bear for little Jimmy that cost 10 pounds ($16) last year will cost 12 pounds ($19) this year.

The average price of a woman's dress is up from 13 pounds ($21) to 15 pounds ($24) and a man's shirt that cost 5 pounds ($8) last year now costs around 7 pounds ($12.50).

Christmas turkey this year will cost 41 pence (65 cents) a pound.

One Christmas shopper said she was alarmed at newspaper reports of the price rises and was shopping early to avoid them.

"It's bloody awful," she said. "You really have to shop around now. And there's nothing really for children in the one to one and a half pound ($1.60 to $2.40) price range. They'll just have to have less this year.

"I don't think I will cut back," said another shopper, Miss I. Dunn of Hull. "But I shall maybe have to do without things myself. Christmas is Christmas."

"I'll probably be a little extravagant," said Mrs. Janet Callard of London, propping two shopping bags full of toys on the counter. "I'm not likely to cut back much. You just have to make sure you have all the traditional things like turkey and presents."

"Sure, British goods go up in price, but so do our salaries," they shrugged. "It hasn't really affected us that much. Some people are overeacting."

Judging from comments of store managers, the young couple's attitude appears typical.

"Business is fantastic, said a spokeswoman at Hamley's, London's biggest toy shop. "Shoppers have been lining up six to eight deep at every counter since the beginning of October."

Surprisingly, the most expensive items are selling first, she said. "Apparently the shoppers think, 'We don't know what is going to happen next year, so we'll buy things that last'," she said.

Peter Williams, general manager of Selfridge's, was ecstatic about the Christmas shopping season. Although prices are up an average of 14 per cent in his Oxford Street store, 1976 profits are likely to double the 1975 return.

Williams thinks it's the tourists, not Britons, who have set his store's cash registers ringing.

"I just don't think Britons have the disposable income to do so," he said. "But then, Christmas is the time they will do everything they can to have what they had last year."

Now Educating In Parenthood

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Baylor College of Medicine has prepared an educational television series intended to acquaint junior high school students with the responsibilities of parenthood.

The series, entitled "Middle of the Road Traveler," is being shown in pilot form to six Houston schools this fall and is believed by Baylor developers to be a first in the field.

"The prevalence of child abuse and neglect, the rising teen birth rate and the problems of raising a child in a technological society have all underscored the need for adolescents to understand the duties and demands of parenthood," said Dr. Peggy Smith, assistant professor.

"Sure, British goods go up in price, but so do our salaries," they shrugged. "It hasn't really affected us that much. Some people are overeacting."

Judging from comments of store managers, the young couple's attitude appears typical.

"Business is fantastic, said a spokeswoman at Hamley's, London's biggest toy shop. "Shoppers have been lining up six to eight deep at every counter since the beginning of October."

Surprisingly, the most expensive items are selling first, she said. "Apparently the shoppers think, 'We don't know what is going to happen next year, so we'll buy things that last'," she said.

Peter Williams, general manager of Selfridge's, was ecstatic about the Christmas shopping season. Although prices are up an average of 14 per cent in his Oxford Street store, 1976 profits are likely to double the 1975 return.

Williams thinks it's the tourists, not Britons, who have set his store's cash registers ringing.

"I just don't think Britons have the disposable income to do so," he said. "But then, Christmas is the time they will do everything they can to have what they had last year."

Holiday Cheer Is Costlier Than Ever For Britons

By GAIL GREGG

LONDON (UPI) — The British family that sets off to grandmum's this Christmas will be paying dearly to do so.

The cost of the gasoline has risen again. The gaily wrapped toys in the car's trunk and the plum pudding waiting at the table cost between 12 and 25 per cent more than last year. Even the Christmas tree is more expensive.

Inflation and the plunging pound are to blame. But Britons are still queueing up at London department stores to make their Christmas merry.

"They're spending money like there's no tomorrow," said one busy toy department clerk at Selfridge's, one of London's largest department stores, "and everything has gone up since last year, everything."

"When you've got to have it you just pay for it," said a 55-year-old mother of five. "And we're so used to it (inflation) by now. Every time you look in the shop windows, the price goes up."

Whereas the dropping pound means Britons have to dig deeper into their pockets to afford Christmas luxuries, tourists find their foreign currency buys more than ever. Traders say foreigners are storming London shops as never before.

"The bulk of the people we cater for happen to be tourists," said the spokeswoman for Fortnum and Mason. "In actual fact our sales are up this year."

She added that the department store, famous for its speciality foods, is rarely affected by economic slumps because "our clients have a certain amount of money anyway."

They include the British Royal family, who plan to spend Christmas together at Windsor as usual.

"They always celebrate it in a rather simple family way," said a Buckingham Palace spokesman.

An ordinary family will notice the cost of keeping up traditions all too easily.

The newspapers are full of tales of economic woe. Grocer-ies up around 2 pence (3.5 cents) per item by Christmas, Christmas trees costing 15 per cent more than last year, tree decorations up 20 per cent, toys up by as much as 25 per cent

That means the medium-sized teddy bear for little Jimmy that cost 10 pounds ($16) last year will cost 12 pounds ($19) this year.

The average price of a woman's dress is up from 13 pounds ($21) to 15 pounds ($24) and a man's shirt that cost 5 pounds ($8) last year now costs around 7 pounds ($12.50).

Christmas turkey this year will cost 41 pence (65 cents) a pound.

One Christmas shopper said she was alarmed at newspaper reports of the price rises and was shopping early to avoid them.

"It's bloody awful," she said. "You really have to shop around now. And there's nothing really for children in the one to one and a half pound ($1.60 to $2.40) price range. They'll just have to have less this year.

"I don't think I will cut back," said another shopper, Miss I. Dunn of Hull. "But I shall maybe have to do without things myself. Christmas is Christmas."

"I'll probably be a little extravagant," said Mrs. Janet Callard of London, propping two shopping bags full of toys on the counter. "I'm not likely to cut back much. You just have to make sure you have all the traditional things like turkey and presents."

"Sure, British goods go up in price, but so do our salaries," they shrugged. "It hasn't really affected us that much. Some people are overeacting."

Judging from comments of store managers, the young couple's attitude appears typical.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I saw our youngest, Brucie, digging in the shrubbery the other day with a soup spoon and said to my husband, "Brucie needs a little sandbox. I saw one in the toy department at Crooks for $12.88 with a little seat in each corner, a red and white fringed awning over it and a sand pail and a shovel."

My husband smiled a cheap little smile and said, "Surely, you're making mock. I can whip him up a sandbox for a fraction of that price."

The first night we drove 20 miles acrosss town to a dump in search of a semi-truck tire. It cost us $3.

The second night, we drove to the lumber yard for $5 worth of scraps to construct a platform to keep the semi-truck tire from killing the grass.

The third night after dinner was spent painting the platform and semi-truck tire with paint costing $3.50.

The next evening, we backed up the station wagon covered with $1.50 of wall-to-wall plastic and loaded up 300 pounds of white sand at $1.65 per hundred pounds.

Since the sand wasn't deep enough to write your name in, we returned the next night for another 300 pounds at $1.65 per hundred pounds.

The tire was still without shade, so we invested in a large beach umbrella ($5.95) and threw in a shovel and pail for $1.25.

Friday was a big night for us. The sandbox was finished. Right after dinner, we took our coffee into the yard to see how Brucie was enjoying his Sandbox Hilton.

We tilted the umbrella and peeked into the semi spare tire. A cat had littered in it. We found Brucie sitting in the dirt digging in the shrubbery with a soup spoon.

Now, there are times when a wife knows she should keep her mouth shut and other times when it's worth the cost of a lawyer to open it.

"Let's see," I said, "$3 plus $5, plus $3.50, $9.90, $1.50, $5.95 and $1.25 comes to $30.10. What fraction is that of $12.86?"

I haven't seen that look on my husband's face since the Christmas Eve he assembled the tricycle and I asked him why he had a chain and three wing nuts left over.

Family Listening Urged By Child Specialist

AHOSKIE — Most of the speech which goes on within a family unit cannot be called "communication," since parents do not listen to children and children do not listen to parents, says an East Carolina University child development specialist.

Dr. Nash W. Love Jr., speaking on parent-child communication to the Choanoke Area Family Life Council here, emphasized that without two-way listening, family verbalization becomes "nagging."

"The verbal interaction between family members often takes the form of nagging behavior, with children demonstrating their resistance by becoming 'parent deaf,'" he said.

Dr. Love advised parents to have well-established patterns of discipline in the family, not to nag their children, and to utilize "action" instead of constant verbal reprimands.

And how parents communicate with each other has great impact upon a child's developing ability to communicate well, he emphasized.

"Children learn poor communication patterns from parents who interact verbally with each other in very destructive ways.

"The number one relationship which exists in the home is between the parents. If that is a good and loving relationship, the probability is high that the result will be well-behaved children, secure in their ability to love and be loved."

The Ahoskie gathering, which drew professionals and non-professionals with common interests in family life, was scheduled in conjunction with National Family Week, Nov. 21-27.

Dr. Love is chairperson of the ECU Department of Child Development and Family Relations, a department of the ECU School of Home Economics.

Couple Exchanges Vows Saturday

Miss Anne Catherine Phillips and Brian Alan Berkey were united in marriage Saturday evening at seven o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church. R. Graham Nahouse, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Glen Phillips. She was given in marriage by her parents.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moorman Berkey.

The bride wore a formal gown of ivory sata peau. The empire bodice featured a V-neckline outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace and bridal pearls. Long fitted sleeves were cuffed with matching lace. The full gored skirt continued into a chapel length train.

To complete her attire the bride chose a semi chapel mantilla bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace and appliques of matching lace. She carried a formal cascade of ivory cymbidium orchids, baby's breath and sprays of English ivy tied with ivory velvet.

Miss Rhonda Hooks, maid of honor, wore a formal A-line gown of forest green. The empire bodice featuring a deep V-neckline was accented by a diamond insert of self-fabric. Short caplet sleeves were edged with matching marabou. She carried a cascade of gold cushion pom pons, yellow statice, baby's breath and yellow cymbidium orchids tied with gold velvet. In her hair she wore a crown of baby's breath.

The church was decorated with two twenty tiered candelabra and palms. Altar flowers were white chrysanthemums and pom pons. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Kim Jordan, Miss Melanie Hite, Miss Melinda Haynie, Miss Cheri Berkey, Miss Dawn Berkey and Miss Tara Berkey, sisters of the bridegroom. They wore formal length gowns and carried a single yellow rose.

Mrs. James Travis Flowers and Mrs. Fred Phillips of Burlington and Mrs. Lori Berkey of Corpus Christi, Tex., grandmothers of the bridal couple, were honored with white phalaenopsis orchids.

The best man was the bridegroom's father. Ushers were Peter Guggenheim of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Linus Martinez of Greenville.

After the ceremony a reception was given at Brook Valley Country Club by the parents of the bridal couple. Miss Cheri Berkey registered guests.

The refreshment tables were covered with a white satin cloth centered with an arrangement of fall flowers in gold and bronze tones designed in a four branch silver candelabra with white candles.

After the bride bridegroom cut the cake, Mrs. Steven Cazell of Greensboro, served the cake. Mrs. Philip Flowers and Mrs. David Flowers alternated at the punch bowl.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of Rose High School and are attending East Carolina University.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. James Travis Flowers Sr., grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. James Travis Flowers Jr. entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast at the Colonial House, Farmville.

French cooks have adopted an American dish: carrot slaw. But instead of serving it as a salad with a French dressing or mayonnaise, they offer it as part of an hors d'oeuvre and douse the grated carrots with lemon juice.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is a one-act opera, written by Gian-Carlo Menotti. The first performance took place on Christmas Eve, 1951 on NBC-TV. Mrs. JoAnn Moore, Greenville music teacher, has adapted the original opera for performance by the fifth-sixth grade choirs at the Elmhurst and Wahl-Coates Elementary Schools.

"Amahl" tells the simple tale of a crippled boy and his mother, who live in poverty among shepherds. One night, the Three Kings, on their way to Bethlehem, stop for shelter at Amahl's crude hut. There they are given hospitality and are entertained by the neighboring shepherds.

The mother envies the Kings' gold, attempts to steal some for her starving child, then repents and returns the gold, when told about the child the Kings seek.

Amahl offers his crutch as a gift for the Child. In doing so, he is miraculously cured of his lameness and is allowed to follow the Kings to Bethlehem to give thanks to the Christ Child.

The performances of the opera will take place Thursday, Dec. 2, at Elmhurst and on Thursday, Dec.9, at Wahl-Coates for the PTA programs.

Costumes and scenery will enhance the lead performers and the choir will sing the part of the shepherds and villagers. A group of the fifth grade girls will perform a folk dance for the Kings' pleasure. Pianists for the performances will be Mrs. Sharon Irwin at Elmhurst and Mrs. Carlene Ragan at Wahl-Coates.

The Wahl-Coates cast includes: Amahl, Mark Schmidt; his mother, Catherine White; King Kaspar, Terence McEnally; King Melchior, Saman Alavi; King Balthazar, Steve Staton; and the page, Reggie Johnson.

Portions of the opera will be given on the Downtown Mall by the youngsters. Wahl-Coates students will perform Dec. 14 at 11 a.m. and Elmhurst on Dec. 16 at 11 a.m.

Songs Are Conveyed From God

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Batteries are conveyed past Mrs. Marjorie Hardee eight hours each days, and she must look at each one and make sure there is no defect, the 15-year employee of Union Carbide here says.

"After doing this kind of work, for some time, I guess everyone gets to the point he can tend to his work and still entertain other thoughts," Mrs. Hardee said. "It's during my working hours that I turn my thoughts over to God and the songs just come."

During the past four years, Mrs. Hardee, a Greenville native and grandmother of three, has had 29 gospel songs copyrighted. Most were composed during working hours," she says.

Asked if she jots down phrases or bars of music that come to her as she works or during breaks, she answered, "Not usually. When an idea comes that I know is good, it doesn't leave me. I just work out the tunes on the piano when I get home. And I write down the words whenever it's convenient. I just don't worry about any of it. The Lord takes care of it all."

Different situations and happenings in her life and those of her acquaintances do inspire songs, she says. For instance, "Our Unchangeable God," which is on a new album of her songs just released, she wrote during an illness and hospitalization of her mother some years back. This song is dedicated to her mother, she says.

The new album, "Sing of His Love" was made this past summer at Pinebrook Recording Studio in Alexandria, Ind. Plans had been worked out by letter and phone in advance, and in July, Mrs. Hardee, her husband, Hicks Hardee, manager of Coastal Plains Insurance, Company and her sister, Doris Spivey of Wilmington made the trip. "It was a wonderful experience, working with such professionals," she said. "I was so pleased with the way songs were done."

Every song on the album, words and music, was writren by Mrs. Hardee, except one, "Thank You, My Wonderful Lord," The words of this song were written James Gurkins, also of Pitt County, and set to music by Mrs. Hardee.

Kim Eldridge, who teaches at Winter Hill Bible College in St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Sara Posthuma of Alexandria, Ind. are the vocalists for the album. Instrumental accompaniment is provided by Bill Gaither's backup group. (Gaither is a big name in gospel music circles.) In the group are Bruce Martin, pianist; Dan Posthuma, bass guitarist, Jack Gilfoy, drummer, and John Govro, guitarist. Eldridge is the producer and arranger.

Mrs. Hardee has lived in Greenville all her life. She is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Tripp and the late Ernest R. Byrum. She has a daughter, Mrs. Marsha McLawhorn, of Black Jack and three grandchildren: Michael, Teresa, and Shep McLawhorn. She is a member of Evangelistic Tabernacle Church here.

Her album is being played on the gospel music radio stations Greenville and nearby towns, and is presently available at the Christian Book Store on Arlington Boulevard here and at Manna Books and Music in Williamston. Any store wishing to stock the album or individual wishing to purchase one may contact her at her home, 216 Harmony Street, Greenville. The albums are priced at $6 each.

DOG HERO

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI) — A German-shepherd-wolf that pulled its unconscious master from a whirlpool was named America's dog hero of the year by a dog food manufacturer. Zorro is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Cooper, Orangevale, Calif.

Zorro is credited with pulling Cooper from a whirlpool after he was knocked unconscious in an 85 foot fall into a ravine. The dog slept on top of Cooper that night to keep his master warm while a companion left to find rescuers.

Zorro, left behind when Cooper was rescued, later was found and brought to safety by two volunteer searchers from the Sierra Club. The dog was still guarding Cooper's backpacking equipment when he was rescued.

His award, the 23rd annual one, was a medal, a $1,000 United States savings bond, a gold-plated collar and leash and a year's supply of dog food.

Miss Boone, Mr. Perry Wed Saturday

In a private ceremony at two o'clock Saturday afternoon in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Miss Bertha Janet Boone became the bride of Paul Reid Berry. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Farmer.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Boone of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald D. Berry Sr. of Raleigh.

A musical program was presented by Dr. David Foster, organist, and Boyd L. Black of Burlington, uncle of the bride, who sang "The Greatest of These Is Love" and "The Wedding Hymn" and as a benediction, "The Wedding Prayer."

The church vases were filled with white chrysanthemums and pom pons, flanked by spiral and tiered candelabra. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal length gown of ivory maracaine designed with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered alencon lace. The fitted empire bodice featured a sheer net overlay outlined in the alencon lace. The long fitted sleeves were styled with cuffs of of the lace. Matching alencon lace encircled the waistline of the modified A-line skirt, which flowed to an attached chapel length train. She wore a fingertip length mantilla edged in floral Venise lace held in place by a Juliet cap trimmed in the floral lace. The bride carried a formal cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, baby's breath and sprays of English ivy tied with ivory velvet.

As her only attendant, the bride had Miss Rhonda Hooks of Greenville. She wore a formal gown of deep rust knit. The empire bodice featured a sweetheart neckline outlined with ivory piping, which also encircled the waistline. Long fitted sleeves were edged with piping. The gown was completed by a full A-line skirt. The maid of honor carried a semi-cascade bouquet of golden rust miniature chrysanthemums and statice tied with matching ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Ronald Berry Jr. of Wilmington, and David Berry of Raleigh, brothers of the bridegroom, Thomas Boone, brother of the bride, and Lewis Wotten of Washington.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Melanie Hite, Miss Melinda Haynie, Miss Kim Jordan and Miss Carolyn Nabors. They wore formal length gowns with wristlet corsages of mixed fall flowers.

Mom Can't Love Her Ugly Daughter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I know I should be grateful that my 13-year-old daughter is healthy and bright, but she is so ugly that it's hard to love her. I am often cruel to her, and then I feel guilty because I know it's not her fault that she's not better-looking.

Both my husband and I are fairly attractive. We've done everything to help her—teeth straightened, good hair cut, nice clothes, treatment for acne, etc., but she's still a very homely girl.

I find myself bitter and resentful of my friends' attractive children because my daughter is so ugly. What can I do?

CRUEL AND FEELING GUILTY

DEAR CRUEL: If you condition your love on the cosmetic qualities of your daughter, you are the ugly one, only your ugliness doesn't show.

I regard your frank confession as a cry for help. Get into therapy before your "bright and healthy" daughter suffers serious psychological damage from your cruelty and sadly twisted values.

DEAR ABBY: My husband went on a 10-day business trip recently, and he wrote me three letters. He addressed the first one to "Mary Smith," the second to "Mrs. Mary Smith," and the third to "Ms. Mary Smith."

I have a friend who studies psychology, and she told me that my husband's addressing me as he did—carefully avoiding using "Mrs. John Smith"—was his way of "de-wifing" me.

I should add that when my husband returned from the trip, he was as affectionate and loving as ever, and he certainly didn't "de-wife" me then.

What do you think of my friend's theory?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Not much. And if I were you, I would "de-friend" her.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for four years, but my husband still maintains the bachelor apartment he had before he married me. (He and I are now living in my apartment.)

We are in need of a new TV. He has a very good one in his apartment, which is hardly used and was purchased just before we were married, but he refuses to move it over here, even though nobody is getting any use out of it where it is.

This is only a minor issue. Why he needs to keep that apartment is what really bothers me. He keeps kidding me about wanting a place to go in case we have a fight or decide to separate.

I care for him a lot and would hate to break up over his keeping that apartment. How do you figure this?

IRKED IN N.J.

DEAR IRKED: Your husband's insistence on keeping an apartment suggests that your marriage is near the reef. Why not ask him to rent a "retreat" for you? His excuse is as flabby as the idea is shabby.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Busy Day In The Life Of General Alexander Haig

EDITOR'S NOTE — In a day in the life of Gen. Alexander Haig, any day, the subject of Watergate rarely comes up. But it's rumbling in the background like far away artillery fire as Haig goes about his duties as Supreme Allied Commander of NATO.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

SCHLESWIG, W. GERMANY (AP) — The last remaining C-118 in the Air Force inventory, a four-engine prop job handsomely appointed with bunk beds and a conference room, let down in a murky sky over the Kiel Canal and delivered NATO's top soldier to the waiting salutes of a Danish general and a couple of German admirals and generals.

Heels clicked. A drummer drummed. Cameras flashed, and blond-haired children gawked through the airfield fence.

Gen. Alexander Meigs Haig Jr., 51, loped off in his slightly stooped, shambling gait — like Gary Cooper meeting that train — to hear how the war games were progressing along NATO's vital Baltic approaches.

Less than five hours earlier at "Gebenden," his Belgian chateau, the Supreme Allied Commander had been raising the good night toast at a black tie dinner for U.S. Ambassador to NATO Robert Strausz-Hupe.

Another black tie dinner, this one given by a Dutch industrialist, faced him this very evening. In the preceding week, Haig had flown to the United States for a major speech, lectured at the Air War College, addressed a businessmen's luncheon in Luxembourg and granted a long interview to a prominent Danish journalist. He had also played some tennis and had read some Solzhenitsyn.

Now he was in crisply starched fatigues and a new style field jacket which no one in the Army was authorized yet to wear, except generals, who can choose their own haberdashery when black tie is not specified.

The steely blue eyes were focused on an overlay map of Jutland in the darkened briefing room, and a Panzer colonel with an illuminated pointer was telling how the Blue army, composed mainly of U.S. Marines shipped over from California, had crossed the River Schlei during the night. "Very good," he said, but now the Leathernecks were falling back against an Orange force's counterattack.

Watergate and Haig's White House days as Richard Nixon's adviser until the resignation receded in the drone of the briefer's voice. They were dim and distant battles that had no part in this scenario but still rumbled in the background like far away artillery fire.

Haig's two-year term as commander-in-chief of U.S. forces in Europe ended Nov. 1 and was extended two years by President Ford. But Jimmy Carter can call Haig home, if he wishes, after he becomes the President.

The general dislikes briefings and permits no more than one a day in his schedule. His impatience turned to a smile of satisfaction when the exercise director, a German two-star, complimented the participating allies on melding their commands and tactics successfully.

"That's what these fall maneuvers are all about," said Haig, striding to his helicopter. "Ten nations forced to operate together, support, supply and communicate with each other in air, ground and sea actions. Service the other guy's tanks and planes. Share his C-rations. For 27 years it was just each country playing its own separate games at the same time as the others."

His chopper, flying a metal pennant with four stars, set down in a muddy field next to a camouflaged tent that served as forward command post for the retreating blue side. "Goddamn," groused CWO Richard LaMonica of the Bronx, N.Y., the general's pilot. "The only mudhole for miles around and those dumb Marines put us right in the middle of it." Haig headed to the communications center, lit by ghostly red bulbs and manned by a dozen Marines at field phones.

"Looks like a bookie joint," cracked Defense Department security man Jack Mulligan, a Bostonian who describes himself as "the general's push and shove guy." No man is a hero to his own valet but Haig's bodyguard thinks he is "something special, a class guy with no B.S. about him."

While his aide, Maj. Bill Boozer, and a German brigadier with the name Schroeder stenciled on his jacket scrambled to keep up, the SACEUR (Supreme Allied Commander Europe) crouched under tarpaulins and climbed up gun mounts to chat with lowly grunts in the kind of vivid language that got Patton into trouble with the mothers of World War II.

An hour later Haig was on the other side of the river practicing his German with a half-dozen long-haired draftees manning a new style military ferry for the Orange forces.

There was no attacking Red army, which NATO is supposed to be all about. In the war games of the detente era, neither side is ever red, only orange or blue. Haig exuded the same easy, breezy informality with the young Germans.

It is an important part of Haig's personal arsenal, as a general and a diplomat, that he can be talking one minute with the generals and swapping barrack humor with a private the next. He is perhaps the only Pentagon-type who feels at home in the Stanford think tank, dining with Bill Buckley, Abe Rosenthal and Frank Shakespeare at New York's "21," and shooting the breeze with White House correspondents.

Lunch in the field, however, almost strained those resources. The war game plan called for the SACEUR to dine al fresco with a squad of Marines and eight German conscripts. C-rations were supposed to be on the menu but a Bundeswehr mobile kitchen materialized out of the mist with delicious hot chicken schnitzel and roast kartoffeln (potatoes).

After Haig introduced himself all around with a beguiling aw-shucks grin, Brigadier Schroeder, on his left, set out to make the acquaintance of the burly Marine across from him, a crew-cut, unshaven warrior who might have spilled from Bill Mauldin's inkwell.

"You a general, too?" grunted the Marine through a mouthful of bread. "Both you guys the same rank then?"

Non-plussed, the Marine turned to his buddy, another prime specimen of slack-jawed Americana: "The thin one's Gen. Hubert Alice. I didn't get the German cat's name."

After witnessing the Orange team push tank reinforcements across the Schlei on the new German ferry, Haig was helicoptered to a press conference with German journalists.

"What do you think of the British Rhine Army? Does it make you cry?" asked a Hamburg journalist, bringing up straight away a topic that got Gen. George Brown, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, in trouble.

Haig beamed his boyish smile and said he avoided "making value judgments on our allies" as scrupulously as he avoided comment on contingency planning. "I got two extra inches of scar tissue on my carcass from indulging in speculation on contingencies. It's always sterile and always speculative."

Asked about the build-up of Warsaw Pact forces in the past decade, Haig pronounced NATO's conventional arms "less than adequate." He deplored NATO's sluggish approach to standardizing its bewildering and uneconomic assortment of tanks, planes, weapons and ammunition.

Without waiting around for etandardization, "a 10-year luxury that we can't afford," the general praised progress made during the fall maneuvers on "interoperability," modifying existing weapons and equipment so they could be used or serviced by the various allied armies. During the war games extending from Norway to the Bosporus, Dutch tanks were serviced with spares from Bundeswehr stocks, German observers called in American artillery fire after both sides mastered an 88-word bilingual vocabulary, 50 cents worth of lanyard enabled British bombs to be fitted on U.S. planes, and almost every allied infantryman discovered that Italian C-rations contain cognac.

There was one spectacular setback, too. Almost every NATO force ruled out paper plates and plastic spoons for ecological reasons. The grunt in the boondocks was back to metal mess kits and time-loathed K.P.

The subject of Watergate never came up.

"It rarely does anymore," said Haig, sprawled in an armchair for the long plane ride back to Brussels. "I guess Europeans just aren't that turned on about it. It never was that big a thing over here."

There are those who think Al Haig kept the White House going and the country together during Nixon's last days. Others suspect he took a more direct part in the Watergate coverup than he has ever admitted. Haig doesn't say.

"I've developed a tough skin to criticism over the years," the general said, watching the plane climb above the storm front. "After the White House, after Watergate, I was prepared for anything, but what they write in the newspapers still bothers my wife."

Now his admirers, mostly NATO's highest commanders, regard him as a "can-do guy," who has turned out to be more cerebral than the brilliant Gen. Lauris Norstad, tougher but as well liked as the enormously popular Andrew Goodpaster, his predecessor, and one of the best staff officers since George Marshall.

Haig's critics, many of them Pentagon contemporaries who were passed over when Nixon jumped him from two to four stars, point to his brief combat record — less than a year in Korea, less than a year in Vietnam, his many desk-borne assignments cluse to the Pentagon and, always, the White House and Watergate connections.

Haig was born in Philadelphia, and his father, an attorney, died when he was very young. He attended Catholic schools and as an altar boy, he came under the influence of a kindly parish priest who hoped he might have a vocation. But it was brother Frank who went into the Jesuits, went on to become a nuclear physicist and is now on the faculty at Loyola in Baltimore. His sister is a lawyer married to a lawyer; both practice in Princeton, N.J.

Haig worked for a year after high school to earn his tuition at Notre Dame and paid his dormitory fees by "handling the hot trays out of the dishwasher." In freshman year he won an appointment to West Point, graduating in the Class of '47, a year when the Western Powers were taking their first tentative moves toward collective defense against the threat of the 4.5 million Soviet troops still on a war footing. Even then, Haig's views of his profession were global in scope.

The Supreme Commander gets a respite from the problems of defense by setting Sunday mornings aside for tennis "with some of the young officers and enlisted people, provided their game is in my class," and by reading a couple of chapters of Solzhenitsyn's "Gulag Archipelago," before dropping off to sleep.

"Just catching up on my reading now," said Haig, hurrying off the plane with a briefcase in his hand and followed by the aide toting two more. "In all those hectic White House years, there wasn't much time to crack a book. You press guys would be on the phone all hours of the night."

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Steer clear of influential persons today and then the planets are favorable for whatever you have in mind. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will need good training in ethical and spiritual principles early in life and great heights can be reached. The character here is of a high degree, as well as the intellect. The motives behind any action will best be understood later in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime is a very important time to make sure you understand all details of any plan of action with which you are concerned. Avoid doing anything of a drastic nature, or changing present setup in any drastic way. Evening is then excellent for doing almost anything you wish, especially the conventional.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Begin the week by taking care of personal affairs in a most intelligent fashion. Don't lessen success by breaking up existing situations. Listen to what a good adviser has to suggest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid getting into arguments during the day. Later you can enjoy the company of good friends. Know what your true aims are and go after them in a positive fashion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to handle public duties well during day and then be very social in the evening. Take care of that pressing credit matter, or you lessen your rating.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't go off on any foolish tangents during day. Evening is a better time for making plans that are more intelligent.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show others that you are capable of handling responsibilities well. Evening lends itself well to coming to a better understanding with a loved one. Plan for a more harmonious future together.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure you follow through with any promises you have made to associates before you go out for any type of entertainment in the evening. Be alert to happenings around you and be prepared for any emergency that might arise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Persevere at any work you need to do during the day. Otherwise you lose out where it counts the most. Focus on close relationships during the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Entertainment is best left to evening hours so that you don't wate time during a busy work day. Go over creative ideas and correct any errors in them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid starting any arguments at home which could get out of hand. Study every phase of some new promising project but don't agree to it until late afternoon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use care in driving and do not argue with associates. By evening all tensions ease. Avoid a troublemaker. Be more frugal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You think you have to invest a lot of money in order to get ahead faster, but this is erroneous thinking. Analyze debits and credits well so you know just where you stand. Avoid troublemakers.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may have a problem in taking care of a personal matter, but remain cheerful just the same. Take time for treatments to improve your health. Evening is fine for socializing.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young persons who, early in life, will have to be taught to have feelings for others instead of being so self-centered if there is to be success in the lifetime. Give as fine an education as you can.

Brazilian Art Hurt By Insects And Man

By MARY LENZ

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — In Brazil, it's difficult to tell whether art's worst enemy is six-legged or two-legged.

The two-legged variety tends to steal it, destroy it or autograph it, while the six-legged eats it for lunch.

Protection and restoration of art treasures from paintings to statues to colonial churches presents special problems not found in Europe or the United States, said Eddson Motta, head of the restoration center of Brazil's Historical Heritage Institute.

The level of education and culture in a developing country is one problem, the level of humidity and heat in a tropical country is the other.

Motta said heat and humidity make the country ideal for insects. Wooden buildings and statues are under constant attack by termites.

Brazil's big problem now is that, just recently, the natural protection against insects afforded by resin in the wood of 17th-and 18th-century art works has vanished.

"The types of wood used in Brazil and South America have a 200-or 300-year period of self protection," Motta said, "Now they have reached the end of this time,"

Resin has lost its anti-insect properties and insects are munching busily away at beautifully painted church ceilings and statues of saints.

Fortunately, Motta said, this is happening at a time when governments are more aware of the value of national art treasures and are more willing to spend money to restore them.

This is where the restoration center comes in. Throughout Brazil, representatives of the center are peeling paintings of saints and angels from the damaged wood of church ceilings and replacing that wood with new boards treated in a way it is hoped will resist insects permanently.

Motta explained a technique developed especially in Brazil for damaged wooden statues: a statue is sunk in a hot vat of wax. The wax fills holes and fissures left by insects. The statue is allowed to cool, then slightly heated again by infrared rays so the excess wax on the outside of the statue can be softened and removed.

Motta said mildew and fungus are far worse problems in the sultry Brazilian air than they would be in other countries. There is a chemical process that removes brown mildew spots from books and documents — permanently in most countries, but here for only 12 years.

Rodeo Cowboy Risen To Professional Status Today

By TRACY RINGOLSBY
UPI Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — He carries a briefcase, travels around the country in an airplane to get to work, and usually has a couple of businesses on the side. If he drives, it's usually an expensive car.

He's the rodeo cowboy — 1976 version.

The days of the worn out, jalopy-driving, hell-for-leather cowboy have passed, along with railroads, big bands and the waltz.

There are still fun times, long nights of drinking and the don't-give-a-damn attitude about life, but today's cowboy has a serious side. Most are coming out of college and regard rodeoing as a profession.

Rodeoing is big business. So far this year the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association — the major league of rodeo — has held 584 shows, with cowboys competing for $6.5 million.

The season ends Dec. 1-10 in Oklahoma City when the 15 top money winners in the six major events — saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and team roping — gather to decide the champions of the world.

It will be the first time the champions are announced at the Oklahoma City event. Previously, champions were those who had won the most money in each event during the year and the titles were usually secure before the finals opened. This year, however, the winners of the most money in the 584 rodeos leading up to the National Finals will get the title of "PRCA Champion" for each event.

"It gives us a big event like the World Series or Super Bowl where an athlete competes all year to qualify for the championship and then gets a chance to prove himself," said PRCA spokesman Randy Witte.

The change was designed to stimulate interest in the finals by the media, especially television. Rights to televise the final day have been sold for $30,000, but the rodeo cowboys hope they can increase that in the future.

While the 4,000 cowboys who are full-fledged PRCA members have accepted the change, there are some dissenters.

In the riding events a cowboy can score up to 100 points, but half of the score comes from the animals they are riding. Cowboys and their mounts are matched by a blind draw.

"A guy can come on some hard luck and be in trouble," said Kaye Kirby, who with brothers Sandy and Butch became the first triple brother combination in history to qualify for the 1975 finals.

"Heck, look at what happened to me last year," said Kirby, who maintained a home in Woodston, N.J., when his brothers headed west to Greenville, Tex., in the mid-1960s. "I went cold in drawing horses and drew only two horses out of my 10 mounts that bucked. It is spooky. We'll just have to see what happens."

In recent years there has been an influx of collegiate stars on the professional circuit. Scholarships are becoming more common for collegiate cowboys, and the stature of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association has improved. Under rodeo rules a cowboy can compete at the collegiate level and on the PRCA circuit without penalty.

Among the dual performers is Skip Emmett of Springdale, Ark., who won the NIRA saddle bronc title at the University of Tennessee in 1975. Emmett is currently enrolled at the University of Arkansas and rides the PRCA circuit, competing in 35 to 40 events a year.

"My wife enters in the cutting horse competition and is a barrel racer," Emmett said. "Rodeoing is the only way we can support ourselves to get through school and we feel the education is important."

Emmett, who hopes to become a vocational agriculture teacher once his rodeoing days are over, competed at Kansas City at the American Royal rodeo the first full week of November — and he didn't miss any school. The roundtrip drive from his home to Kansas City is about 600 miles.

"I'm carrying 17 hours of classes and they aren't courses you can slip through," said Emmett, "but it is all worth it."

The books don't always agree.

Emmett figured it cost him $200 to compete at Kansas City — "I don't put any value on my time because when you're doing something you love you can't put a price on that" — and he didn't get a penny of it back. But then, like other cowboys, Emmett knows you have to take your chances and he hopes he'll get his money back somewhere else down the line.

Most of the money cowboys compete for is their own. Rodeos put up a guarantee, but 70 per cent of the money paid out comes from entry fees — ranging from $25 to $200 — all of which goes back into the purse to be divided among the winners.

And while they might be termed winners, few of the 200 or so cowboys who attempt to make a fulltime living on the circuit actually come out winners. It takes at least $18,000 to break even and only 50 or so cowboys make that much in a year.

Rodeo cowboys used to travel the country in cars — three, four or five guys sharing the driving, expenses and exhaustion.

Kaye Kirby recalled he was driving from rodeo to rodeo a couple of years back with his brother Sandy and two other cowboys. During a week span they covered more than 5,000 miles and rode at seven different rodeos, traveling from Wyoming, Mich., to Elkhorn, Wis., to Yorkton, Saskatchewan to Lethbridge, Alberta to Morris, Manitoba to Holly, Minn., to Kansas City.

"We had to average about 90 miles an hour to make all of them, but we did it," Kaye said. "It was good, but we were defeating our whole purpose. We showed up at the rodeos, but our ability was gone when we got on a bronc or bull. We had left it in the cars."

So now the Kirby brothers, like virtually every other cowboy on the circuit fulltime, lease planes, at least during the busy months of July and August, to fly from rodeo to rodeo.

"It might seem a little more expensive, but if you get hot and draw good stock you can win enough money to more than pay for the plane," said Butch, who leased a plane with several others last summer and put in 165 air hours.

"Actually, if you are doing good you can make more money flying, even after expenses, than driving because you can get to more rodeos and you are better rested and ride better."

But while the rodeo cowboy has become more sophisticated in his business approach, the wanderlust remains a part of the nomad athlete.

Kaye Kirby spent most of last summer back east, competing in rodeos near New Jersey, where he thought he might fall in love with the right girl.

"I should know better," he said. "When you get married you are just doubling your expenses. I know my time is coming, but it is something you have to wait on for awhile. I'm getting a pretty poor image back home because the first thing I tell a gal is that there's not going to be a permanent relationship."

But one image all cowboys like is the one they have for being tough, and few of them have to make up stories to prove that.

Butch Kirby had a bull step on his chest last summer. "It hurt my bull-riding some for a couple of weeks because it half crippled me. It messed up my ribs. I didn't know if they were just bruised or broken, but I knew a doctor couldn't do anything for them so I had to decide whether I was going to go home and rest or go on riding."

Butch decided to take off one day — "the day after I got stepped on I couldn't quite sit up in bed so I took it easy" — but then he was back on the circuit making two to three rodeos a day, seven days a week.

Some things never change.

Rodeo Cowboy Risen To Professional Status Today

By TRACY RINGOLSBY
UPI Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — He carries a briefcase, travels around the country in an airplane to get to work, and usually has a couple of businesses on the side. If he drives, it's usually an expensive car.

He's the rodeo cowboy — 1976 version.

The days of the worn out, jalopy-driving, hell-for-leather cowboy have passed, along with railroads, big bands and the waltz.

There are still fun times, long nights of drinking and the don't-give-a-damn attitude about life, but today's cowboy has a serious side. Most are coming out of college and regard rodeoing as a profession.

Rodeoing is big business. So far this year the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association — the major league of rodeo — has held 584 shows, with cowboys competing for $6.5 million.

The season ends Dec. 1-10 in Oklahoma City when the 15 top money winners in the six major events — saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and team roping — gather to decide the champions of the world.

It will be the first time the champions are announced at the Oklahoma City event. Previously, champions were those who had won the most money in each event during the year and the titles were usually secure before the finals opened. This year, however, the winners of the most money in the 584 rodeos leading up to the National Finals will get the title of "PRCA Champion" for each event.

"It gives us a big event like the World Series or Super Bowl where an athlete competes all year to qualify for the championship and then gets a chance to prove himself," said PRCA spokesman Randy Witte.

The change was designed to stimulate interest in the finals by the media, especially television. Rights to televise the final day have been sold for $30,000, but the rodeo cowboys hope they can increase that in the future.

While the 4,000 cowboys who are full-fledged PRCA members have accepted the change, there are some dissenters.

In the riding events a cowboy can score up to 100 points, but half of the score comes from the animals they are riding. Cowboys and their mounts are matched by a blind draw.

"A guy can come on some hard luck and be in trouble," said Kaye Kirby, who with brothers Sandy and Butch became the first triple brother combination in history to qualify for the 1975 finals.

"Heck, look at what happened to me last year," said Kirby, who maintained a home in Woodston, N.J., when his brothers headed west to Greenville, Tex., in the mid-1960s. "I went cold in drawing horses and drew only two horses out of my 10 mounts that bucked. It is spooky. We'll just have to see what happens."

In recent years there has been an influx of collegiate stars on the professional circuit. Scholarships are becoming more common for collegiate cowboys, and the stature of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association has improved. Under rodeo rules a cowboy can compete at the collegiate level and on the PRCA circuit without penalty.

Among the dual performers is Skip Emmett of Springdale, Ark., who won the NIRA saddle bronc title at the University of Tennessee in 1975. Emmett is currently enrolled at the University of Arkansas and rides the PRCA circuit, competing in 35 to 40 events a year.

"My wife enters in the cutting horse competition and is a barrel racer," Emmett said. "Rodeoing is the only way we can support ourselves to get through school and we feel the education is important."

Emmett, who hopes to become a vocational agriculture teacher once his rodeoing days are over, competed at Kansas City at the American Royal rodeo the first full week of November — and he didn't miss any school. The roundtrip drive from his home to Kansas City is about 600 miles.

"I'm carrying 17 hours of classes and they aren't courses you can slip through," said Emmett, "but it is all worth it."

The books don't always agree.

Emmett figured it cost him $200 to compete at Kansas City — "I don't put any value on my time because when you're doing something you love you can't put a price on that" — and he didn't get a penny of it back. But then, like other cowboys, Emmett knows you have to take your chances and he hopes he'll get his money back somewhere else down the line.

Most of the money cowboys compete for is their own. Rodeos put up a guarantee, but 70 per cent of the money paid out comes from entry fees — ranging from $25 to $200 — all of which goes back into the purse to be divided among the winners.

Peace and good will—the Christmas tradition

The key to true giving: personal thoughts of love

It was 200 years ago that George Washington, commander-in-chief of the Continental Army of the United States, crossed the Delaware River and defeated 1,400 Hessian soldiers at Trenton, N.J.

It was about 150 years ago that the Santa Claus legend as we know it now swept across the fledgling country and caught hold.

But it has been since time immemorial that the spirit of Christmas has been awake in the world.

Spirit of good will

Peace on earth, good will toward man — sometimes the spirit is bent a little, but it has always triumphed in the end.

The spirit of Christmas takes many forms, usually overlapping each other.

Many are disposed to think of this season of the year as a truly religious experience. Others regard it as a time to gather the family together. Still others turn their backs on reunions and religions and use the holiday as a period of solitary soul-searching.

But to a man, they all regard Christmas as a time for giving — of themselves, of appreciation, of thanks.

Means of thanks

In our society, Christmas traditionally means gift-giving. The children expect, demand and usually deserve gifts. And the children repay in kind by giving presents to their elders as a means of saying, "Thank you for all you've done for me during the year."

Gifts can range from "big ticket" items that take months to acquire to jars of home-made preserves that take hours to prepare.

But no matter what your taste and wallet dictate, now is the time to start thinking about it all. The sooner the preparations are begun, the easier it is to finish in the mood of Christmas — happy, rested and accomplished.

Thoughtful list

Make a list of those you want to remember. And keep the list handy because you'll remember people at the oddest hours — on the bus to work, at the lunch counter, while stirring the soup: these are the times you recall people you want to put on that list.

Think about what the people on your list like, whether they have hobbies or special interests, their tastes in clothes and jewelry, the kind of music they enjoy.

It's the little touches that make personal gifts appreciated — remembering that your child's favorite teacher spends the summer at the seashore, you could find a book on seashells; recalling that your newspaper carrier has just gotten a new bicycle, you could find a rear-view mirror.

That "something special"

Use this same principle with the family. Of course little children are excited and happy with toys, but they will be just as exuberant if those toys also teach them something.

Older children really do appreciate clothing — the "something special" clothes that make a boy a hero in his own eyes or a girl a princess.

Mother and dad shouldn't be taken for granted by their children when it comes to Christmas gifts. A little thought on the subject will tell you what they really would enjoy — a new record album, a pretty piece of jewelry, a book, some new stationery.

Plan your budget

Gifts needn't cost a lot of money to garner cries of joy. But if it's an expensive item that you want to give someone in the family, why not make it "from all of us."

The key to a happy Christmas Day is advance planning. Make that list and start thinking now — and start looking now. Every store has a layaway plan that enables you to pay a little each week and stretch out your financial obligations.

It is particularly important that you start early if you plan to have something monogrammed or initialed.

Perhaps what you want has to be in a certain color. By starting early, the store can order it for you without any last-minute jitters.

Start early!

An early start is also essential for out-of-town people you want to remember. The postal service will be better able to deliver your gifts if you allow extra time.

A gift received early with a "Do not open until Christmas" label is better than one that arrives late — or not at all! — due to carelessness or last-minute thoughtlessness. If you are going to be sending gifts overseas, it is especially important that you check with your post office for the correct mailing time.

Christmas is on a Saturday this year. Take advantage of that solid week before the Big Day to do your wrapping so you can enjoy the final festivities at leisure.

So keep your own spirit up as you prepare to celebrate the spirit of Christmas in this Bicentennial year.

And in Tiny Tim's words, according to Charles Dickens: "God bless us, every one."

Get the family together for Christmas portraits

These are only some of the endless possibilities for photographic art gifts this year. And they're all available from your local photographer to suit your budget, whether large or small.

Now's the time to gather up the family for a new group portrait you can share with grandparents and other relatives. If your lifestyle is casual, the photographer can portray you outdoors or in your own home. Or you may prefer a more formal photograph, taken in the studio where special backdrops, props and controlled lighting are available.

This same group portrait can be used for your holiday greetings this year, if you schedule the sitting at least 10 or 12 weeks before the holidays. Select one of the new styles in the Kodak Special Holiday Collection of custom portrait cards available at local portrait studios throughout the country. It's a good way to keep in touch with special friends at holiday time.

WRAP UP THE FAMILY for a Christmas gift guaranteed to be appreciated. If it's been a while since you've had a family portrait made, schedule a sitting with your professional photographer in time for holiday gifting this year.

If your attic boasts a treasured — but damaged — photograph of an ancestor, you can have it restored by your professional photographer for gifting this year. Even cracked and torn photographs can be given new life in black-and-white, sepia-tone or color finishes.

Let Christmas memories develop before your eyes!

Christmas is a composite of instants that become fond memories. The instant the children first behold the pile of presents under the tree; the instant dad discovers the fun of junior's train; the instant mother pulls the golden turkey from the oven — they're all special moments to remember.

The memories can take shape as instantly as the moments when you save them in color pictures that develop before your eyes. From tots to grandparents, your family and friends will have the times of their lives watching moments that just happened develop into colorful pictures. And you'll have photos of the festivities to share with them before the occasion is over.

"Open me first!"

If you don't already have one, this may be the Christmas to give a Kodak EK4 or EK6 instant camera to someone in the family. Mark the package "open me first," so it can be part of the whole day's fun.

That way, you'll have pictures before all the presents are opened. Litter-free developing begins as soon as the print leaves the camera after exposure, and is essentially complete in eight minutes.

Catch first glimpse

Make your pictures tell a story, by catching the opening chapter — the excited expressions on faces as your youngsters first glimpse the gifts — and following through to the end of the day.

Since you'll be shooting indoors for most of the day, be sure to have an ample supply of flipflash.

Whether you focus by estimating the distance, by zone focus or by using the zooming circle, be sure you include everything you want in the picture. See that a finger does not block the electric eye that sets the exposure or the print-exit slot at the bottom of the camera.

Aim for the natural

Photograph when your subjects are absorbed in present-opening or excited chatter so the pictures look natural rather than stiff and posed.

Shoot from different distance ranges and angles to add variety to your photo collection.

Move in as close as four feet when you're photographing one person, so the picture imparts a feeling of intimacy and impact.

HAPPY WRAP

When wrapping presents for the children, add a touch of fun with candy canes and little toy dolls, cars, and other goodies tied into the gaily-colored ribbons and bows.

An exciting, unique, innovative new product has appeared on the preschool toy scene . . . Richard Scarry's Build and Play World of Puzzletown from Playskool.

Playskool has taken the delightful characters of popular children's books author/illustrator Richard Scarry and created an enchanting, three-dimensional fantasy world for children that they can put together and take apart.

Most children, and parents of children, need no introduction to Richard Scarry. He is considered by many to be one of the superstars of children's literature, having written and illustrated over 120 books that have been translated into 23 languages.

His books are filled with delightful animal "people," each with its own special personality and each known and loved by the youngsters who read about them.

Now, Playskool has made these enchanting animal "people" come alive by creating exciting storybook settings for these characters that youngsters can build themselves!

Each Puzzletown set (there are five) comes with bases plus woodboard and plastic pieces for youngsters to put together. And once the sets are put together, they don't have to stay that way. Youngsters can take the scene all apart and rebuild a completely new scene.

The five individual Puzletown sets are each a delight. Dr. Lion's Medical Center has Dr. Lion and Nurse Nelly taking care of patient Flossie Bunny. Huckle Cat's Family Cottage is inhabited by Huckle and his family, Mother Cat and Grocer Cat. Farmer Alfalfa and Mother Goat look after the crops and Cow and the rest of the animals in Farmer Alfalfa's Farm.

A town hall, a department store, a candy store and a vegetable stand are all a part of Mayor Fox's Town Center. And Lowly Worm's Rail & Roadway has Engineer Fox, Conductor Dog and, of course, the irresistible Lowly Worm. These five sets can be combined to form the exciting world of Puzzletown.

Playskool's Puzzletown is truly an exciting new concept in the preschool toy field. And the fact that children can build and rebuild Puzzletown as much as they wish, and however they wish, means that children can have brand new playtime fun each and every day!

PUZZLETOWN . . . Playskool's delightful put-together, take-apart storybook town features Richard Scarry's enchanting characters. Children fit the Puzzletown pieces into the bases to create cottages, barns, stores or whatever they want! Once they build, they can take everything apart and rebuild, creating completely new scenes for the delightful characters. The five Puzzletown sets can be combined for a fantastic playtime experience!

Pets are a true gift of love and joy, but remember they have feelings, too!

What could be more charming, more loving, more special than opening up a basket on Christmas morning to discover a cute little puppy or kitten all decked out in ribbons, right? Wrong!

The idea is truly delightful, yes, and would surely be the dream come true of almost any child. But the truth is that there is probably nothing so cruel and shattering to a young animal than to be thrust into the midst of a hustling, noisy, excited family group!

Just imagine picture bulbs flashing mercilessly into frightened little eyes, everyone grabbing to be the next to hold the adorable new arrival. You would never do it to a newborn baby — so why should a defenseless little pet be any different?

Your pet needs time to slowly and gently adjust to his new surroundings. Even though you may buy him already housebroken or paper-trained, he needs some time to get used to his new schedule.

This matter is even further complicated by the fact that many pet shops, unfortunately, sell pups and kittens before they are really ready to be taken from their mother. The little babies find themselves prematurely weaned and surrounded by huge human creatures who mean well but may do more harm than good!

A pet is probably the best gift anyone can give to a growing child. As they grow togther, the child learns the meaning or responsibility, of giving love, of kindness and the importance of gentleness.

If you are planning to give your children a pet for Christmas, bring it home a few days before Christmas.

S-t-r-e-t-c-h children's fun get more for your dollars

THERE'S NO BETTER WAY to s-t-r-e-t-c-h your toy dollars this Christmas than by purchasing Stretch Armstrong for the kids. Stretch, made by Kenner Products, is an amazing 13-inch figure who can be pulled or put in funny positions — He always returns to his original shape.

Puzzled about what toys you can afford to buy for your children this Christmas? Here are some practical suggestions to consider for getting the most play value out of your toy dollar.

• Shop as early as possible. If you rush to the store at the last minute, you're apt to find that such popular toys as the Six Million Dollar Man; Jaime Sommers, the Bionic Woman; and Maskatron — to name a few — were sold out long ago. As a result, you may waste your time by not getting what you want.

• Children play with toys only if they are fun. So don't be overzealous about buying so-called "educational" toys that may only bore them.

Stretch Armstrong, for example, is a great new fun toy made by Kenner Products. He's a wonderful 13-inch figure who can be pulled, or put in funny positions, he always returns to his original shape.

Kids will have great fun s-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g Stretch, and they'll be exercising while they're doing it.

• Buy toys that involve the children and help prepare them for later adult roles. A safe toy oven, such as the Betty Crocker Easy-Bake Oven, does much to teach the basics of cooking to girls and boys.

Baby Alive is the famous doll that eats and drinks with a realistic mouth action, and then the child can change her diaper. Her new Nursery Center is a marvelous three-in-one baby care center; a unique feeding chair, changing table, and bed, all in one.

• Always consider the manufacturer's recommended age groups printed on packaging, but don't forget that each child is unique. Carefully study your child's size, dexterity, strength, abilities, attention span, and interests.

So when shopping, stretch your dollars by knowing your children and buying toys accordingly. You'll find that shopping's easier for you — and thriftier, too!

Christmas masterpieces

THE GREAT MASTERS COLLECTION has been added to Corning Glass Works line of decorative Christmas tree ornaments. They are, from the left, Tintoretto's Nativity, Leonardo's Annunciation and Rafaello's Madonna. They join other Corning collections including Currier & Ives, Chuck Ripper's Famous American Birds, Raggedy Ann and Andy, Walt Disney Characters, Holiday Florals and Christmas Kittens.

Year-round benefits

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY — Anyone in your family old enough to wash a dish or wipe a plate should appreciate this practical General Electric Potscrubber II® dishwasher as a Christmas gift with year-round benefits. Its multi-level washing action can clean most dishes, pots, pans, and casseroles with baked-on soils without a pre-rinse, and its spacious interior can accommodate large platters or dutch ovens. The exclusive PermaTuf™ tub material, special sound-insulation system and blanket of sound-damping fiberglass help make Potscrubber II dishwashers among the quietest GE has ever offered.

Compact Christmas gift for easy, convenient laundry without coins

This Christmas, give yourself a gift you'll appreciate year 'round — freedom from the weekly trek to the coin-operated laundry. You can do it with a compact laundy pair that will fit in your home or apartment.

Although compact washers and dryers have been around for a number of years, many people still do not realize that these mini-sized appliances can give big laundry results.

For example, a five-pound linen load for General Electric's compact pair includes one double sheet, two pillow cases, four bath towels and four wash cloths.

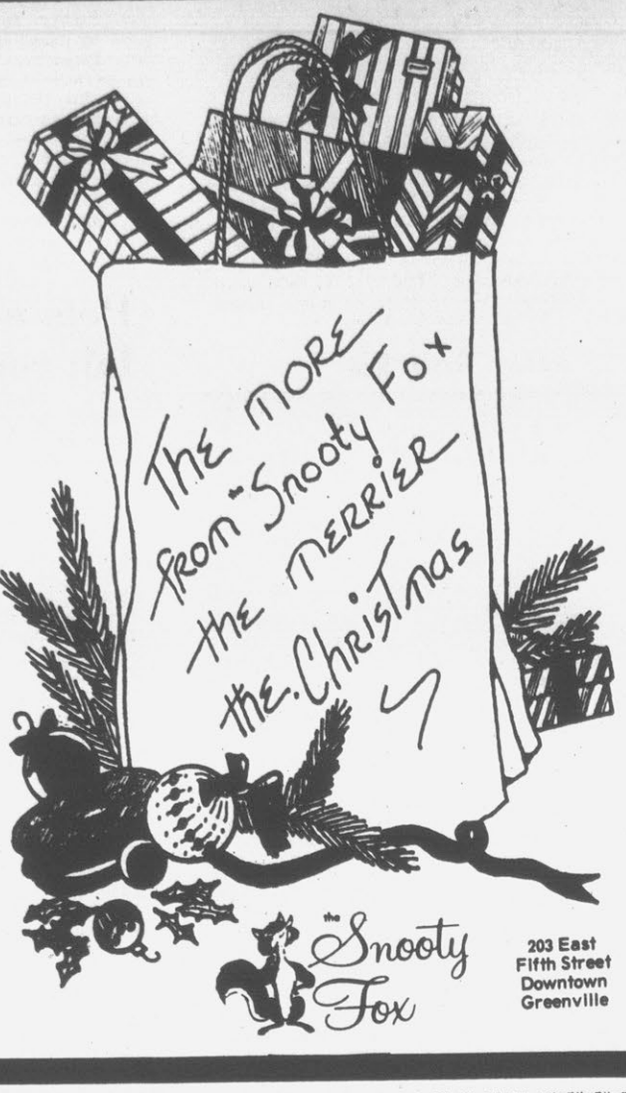
PORTABILITY PLUS — This compact home laundry pair from General Electric, just 21 inches wide, stores in a handsome stack-rack which takes up less than five square feet of floor space. Later, the portable pair can be installed permanently.



Festival family tree is fun to make, fun to see

It's a project the kids will love, and all it takes is brown paper, glue and spray paint.

First, shape stiff paper into a cone about 15" high and secure with tape. Spray bright green. (Jungle Green by Krylon® is a good choice.)

Lots of possibilities

1. Layer two pieces of brown paper with a generous spread of Elmer's Glue-All in between.
2. Cut out circles about 4" in diameter, using pinking shears if you have them.
3. While glue is still wet, put a small jar or tumbler in the center of each circle, then bring paper up and anchor with a rubber band. Pull edges so they flare. Let dry.
4. Remove from mold and spray with color — Moss Green or, perhaps, an assortment of flower colors.

Nut cups, too!

Hint: It's best to use a fast-drying paint like Krylon because it lets you build up several light coats. That way, you get good cover and gloss without saturating the paper.

To finish, just glue on your pictures with rubber cement, then glue the whole works to the cone. You could also glue the cone to a stiff paper base, as shown.

P.S. Now that you know how, make more circle molds to use as—nut cups!

Healthful and hearty — granola is great treat

What is granola? Granola is a generic name referring to an oat-based cereal made from a variety of grains and other ingredients.

Although many people think of granola as a product recently invented by natural food enthusiasts, it was actually developed in the 1880's.

Not so new

In the late 1960's it again caught the attention of the American public, and manufactured varieties as well of dozens of recipes for home-made concoctions appeared everywhere.

But what is it that makes granola so special? Besides good nutrition, there's a lot of good taste.

Let's take a look at each ingredient: rolled oats — high in protein and B vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin, niacin); wheat germ — the "heart of the wheat," rich in protein, B vitamins, iron and phosphorus; brown sugar/honey — adds an old-fashioned natural sweetness; vegetable oil — improves color, binds ingredients together; dry milk solids — good source of riboflavin, calcium, phosphorus and potassium; brewer's yeast — provides protein, B vitamins, iron and phosphorus; coconut, almonds, sunflower seeds and vanilla — add flavor and texture to regular flavored granola.

Christmas treat

Now that we've established that granola is indeed tasty and good for you, here's a terrific idea for a Christmas treat the whole family can enjoy and you can feel good about serving!

MIX-EASY GRANOLA BARS

- 1½ cups Sun Country Granola
- ¾ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 egg
- ½ tsp. maple extract
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Measure granola, flour, baking powder and salt onto wax paper. Stir well to blend. Melt butter in large saucepan over low heat. Stir in sugar, egg and maple extract. Add blended dry ingredients and nuts. Mix well. Spread in ungreased 8-inch square pan. Bake at 350° for 25-30 minutes. Cool and cut into squares. Yield: 16-20 bars.

SEPARATE PEACE

To avoid unnecessary confusion amid the excitement of Christmas morn, make sure that presents are placed in personal piles under the tree and are clearly marked.

READY TO WAKE

As we all know, kids usually wake up at the crack of dawn on Christmas morn. Be prepared for this extra early awakening with a pot of coffee and some rolls.

Here's a 'wassail' to the best health and pleasure!

Here we come a-wassailing, it's Christmastime again!

The wassail is an old English Christmas tradition. It usually refers to a hot, spicy drink that is offered to carollers and holiday guests as a toast to good health, cheer, and the spirit of the season.

In fact, the word "wassail" derives from the old Anglo-Saxon wes (be thou) and hal (whole) — in other words, to your health! And what could be a better wish to give to all friends during this most joyous of seasons?

Now there is the perfect gift to give to express both the wassailing spirit and to prepare all of the healthful bounties of Christmas and the rest of the year.

The VitaMix 3600 is an incredible machine that whips, grinds, purees, liquefies, mixes all kinds of batters, chops meat, nuts, and ice, grates fruits and vegetables, grinds grain, coffee, and spices, kneads dough — and, of course, makes a terrific wassail! The VitaMix will prepare piping hot soups and drinks or ice cold frappes — even ice cream!

The most remarkable feature of this wonder machine is that it does all of these jobs without one additional part to purchase, assemble, wash or store. It actually cleans itself!

This machine is literally a gift of health for everyone. Because you can place whole fruits and vegetables in the VitaMix 3600, it makes use of the highly nutritious skins, rinds, and seeds which are otherwise thrown away when preparing fruit and vegetable drinks.

With the VitaMix, you can take whole kernel wheat, grind it, knead it, and have it in the oven in a matter of minutes. (The VitaMix is perfect for making your own personal Christmas gifts like fruit and nut breads and fresh, naturally-ground nut butters).

It comes with its own pressurized spigot for extra convenience — serve your wassail, fresh fruit punch, or holiday soup right from the machine to your guests. The multi-purpose VitaMix also has a special patented blade-reversal action which allows you to grind meat and ice without adding liquids (no need to add oil, either, when making peanut butter).

Everyone is bound to appreciate the delicious treats that this marvelous machine produces, not to mention its healthful benefits. So give someone a "toast to health" that will last for years to come! The VitaMix 3600 is a wassail wish come true!

For more information about this fantastic machine and free holiday recipes, write: The VitaMix Corporation, 8615 Usher Road, Cleveland, Ohio 44138.

TO YOUR HEALTH AND JOY AT CHRISTMAS and throughout the year, the VitaMix 3600 is a mechanical wonder that will prepare the most delicious and most healthful of foods with amazing ease. It's the perfect gift to give at Christmas — a very special way of saying "enjoy and good health" to someone special.

Cut glass decanter a first in the industry

Scotch Whisky, a long-time favorite for Christmas gift giving, gets a bright new look this holiday season. The reason: the introduction of the first cut glass decanter for a major brand of Scotch.

The new decanter offers consumers a true value, since it's being offered for the 1976 holiday season at no additional cost whatsoever to the consumer. It is one of the most elegant, attractive packages ever to be offered by the liquor industry.

Top designer

Created with clean, modern lines by a top European designer, the new decanter is expected to make the Christmas gift selection process a good deal easier for a wide variety of holiday buyers.

Ballantine's Scotch, long a leading brand in the United States and abroad, is introducing the decanter, in a limited edition, this year. And marketers of the brand have assured consumers that the new decanter packaging will not increase the retail price of the product even though the package is obviously more expensive to produce.

The decanter comes in a handsome gift box that makes it ready for instant presentation to friends, relatives, or customers. It is available in fifth sizes only.

The bottle, when used at home, may be refilled from conventional bottles so it remains visible on a bar or sideboard as an attractive remembrance long after the quality Scotch within has been consumed.

Christmas menu calls for a simple, light evening meal

Following a long Christmas day, a big noonday meal of turkey or ham with all the trimmings, and all that goes with the holiday festivities, many families opt for a light evening supper with a few close friends.

Creamy shrimps Italian style can be the perfect entree to serve as a tasty, attractive centerpiece for that late-night supper or midnight brunch. And the entire dish can be prepared well in advance so the family chef can enjoy all the holiday festivities right along with the whole family.

Add to the shrimps an unusual, tasty Georgia Peach and a hot, delicious Roman Coffee, and the total meal is virtually a guaranteed success.

CREAMY SHRIMPS ITALIAN STYLE

Blend together two cups of sifted flour, a cup of warm water, ⅓ cup vegetable oil and two teaspoons of table salt with half a cup of Liquore Galliano. Just before you fry the shrimp, fold two egg whites into the batter.

Heat the oven to 250 degrees, as it will hold the fried shrimp. Pour 3-4 inches of vegetable oil into a large saucepan. Then begin dipping the shrimps into the batter. Use two pounds of fresh shrimp, shelled and deveined. When the oil reaches 350 degrees on a deep fat thermometer, add shrimp about eight at a time. When the shrimp are golden brown, remove from the fat and drain briefly on a paper towel. When drained, transfer to a warm oven.

To make a light, creamy sauce that makes the shrimp a giant favorite, combine the following ingredients and chill for at least four hours: one pint sour cream, two tablespoons chopped shallots or green onions, two teaspoons dry mustard, ¼ cup Liquore Galliano and a teaspoon of salt. Voila.

A great pre-shrimp drink to tantalize your company's taste buds is Galliano and Soda. Use an ounce and a half of Galliano in a tall, "highball" glass filled with ice cubes. Then fill to the top with club soda and garnish with a wedge of lime.

For dessert, the Georgia Peach is a light, tasty treat. Use an ounce of Galliano and ¼ fresh, peeled peach per person. Place all ingredients plus four ice cubes per person in a blender, and liquefy at high speed. Serve the treat in frosted glasses.

For something a little warmer in the middle of December, try a Roman Coffee on your guests. In a large coffee cup, pour in an ounce of Galliano and a teaspoon of sugar. Add hot, strong black coffee to approximately ½ inch from the top of the cup. Swizzle the ingredients and top off the concoction with fresh whipped cream.

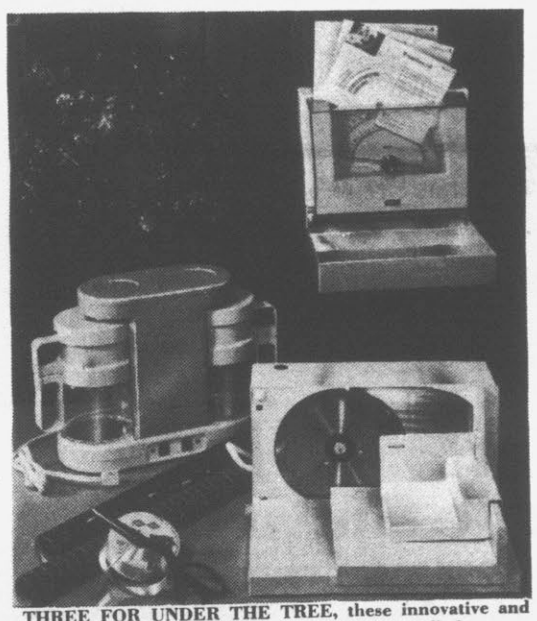
Housewares aren't boring — not when they're beautiful!



THREE FOR UNDER THE TREE, these innovative and exciting housewares from Krups are "musts" for your Christmas gift list. The "Coffee Plus" for doubly delightful brewing, the "3-Weigh Kitchen Scale" for precision cooking, and the "Slice-It" for safe and precise food slicing.

This Christmas give someone a gift to be enjoyed each and every day of the year, without being boring! Believe it or not, housewares can be very exciting — especially when they have a long tradition of design craftsmanship and performance excellence behind them.

Krups housewares may be a new name in America in the small appliance field . . . but the Krups Company based in Solingen, West Germany, has been a household word in Europe, Africa and Asia for more than 130 years.

U.S. debut

Now, for the first time, one can find these truly elegant and functional items in fine stores throughout the U.S.

Three of the most popular products, ideal for that special someone on your Yule gift list include Krups "Coffee Plus," the electric coffee maker with two independent brewing systems that allows you to make both strong and weak coffee at the same time. You can also make tea and coffee at the same time. Each side holds up to six cups.

Space saver

Next is the Krups "3-Weigh Kitchen Scale" . . . which is built to hang on the wall thereby saving valuable counter space. The scale comes with 10 pre-calculated, tested recipes, plus a set of calorie cards for over 150 different food items. The tray folds up when not in use.

Krups "Slice/it" is a unique electric food slicer that is absolutely safe. It has a heavy duty motor and stainless steel cutting blade . . . slices meat, cheese, bread and numerous other food items economically and precisely. Cleans easily and folds up neatly when not in use.

The "Coffee Plus" and the "3-Weigh Scale" come in three color combinations. All white, white and yellow, white and tangerine. The slicer comes only in all white.

Christmas cosmetics

Holiday is a great time for some facial drama! With the rounds of parties, why not experiment with some daring new cosmetic tricks to go with your glowing season's glamour?

For evening, make your eyes twinkle as brightly as the lights on the trees with a dash of gold or silver eyeshadow.

Or light up your whole face with one of the many "glisteners" available — shimmering tints, often with a frost, to be applied over your regular makeup for added glow.

You can also purchase loose powder with frosted highlights (this is great for all over the body to show off shoulders, arms, neck!).

Be more daring in your color choices — go into the really red reds in lipstick and blush, green or deep, sultry blue for eyes. You might even want to try out a pair of false eyelashes.

Gifts galore in store for Christmas season!

A beautiful, practical, and unusual gift, Oriental rug is a rich addition

ORIENTAL RUGS, either hand-made or machine-made in authentic designs such as this Agra pattern by Karastan, make an unusual Christmas gift that will last for generations. Flat rubber padding, frequent vacuuming, and an occasional washing enhance the beauty and prolong the life of Orientals.

Beautiful. Practical. Unusual. And it grows in value every year.

Sounds like the kind of Christmas present anyone would like to give — or receive. And according to retailers around the country, that's just what's happening. Sales are booming for an oldie but very goodie: the Oriental rug.

Collectors of fine antiques have always cherished Orientals, but lately there's been a strong surge of interest from modern furniture buffs.

Contemporary complement

The rusts, wines, reds and blues of Oriental designs go well with the natural theme in today's home decor, and their intricate patterns complement the clean lines of contemporary furniture.

Pre-Christmas sales are brisk this year for the smaller Orientals, which because of price and portability are especially suitable for gifting. A 4' x 6' or 6' x 9' hand-woven rug can be inviting before a fireplace, dramatic under a chrome-and-glass coffee table, and spectacular in an ultramodern kitchen.

Improve with age

If you're considering giving an Oriental, you'll want to review this quick course in how-to-buy from the Eureka Home Care Institute. And if you're on the receiving end of a Kerman, Tabriz, or Bokhara, the Institute has some tips on caring for your elegant new Christmas gift.

A genuine Oriental is one home furnishing that with proper care will not only last for years, but will actually improve with age.

Because of the special way Orientals are woven, constant use enhances their colors and durability. So when you're buying, don't just think of matching the rug's colors to your current furniture. You'll own it long after your present couch has been recovered or replaced.

Clarity over color

According to the experts, more important than color is the tightness of the pile and the clarity of the design on the back of the rug. These are clues to how much wool was used and how closely knotted it is. A small but tightly woven rug is preferable to a large, loosely woven rug selling for the same price.

Any Oriental rug will have imperfections, but most of these won't affect its value. A design or shape that's slightly irregular, or small mistakes in the pattern, are considered proof of the rug's hand-woven origins, rather than flaws.

This year, you can expect to pay from under $200 for a 4' x 6' rug from India to well over $600 for a fine Persian rug the same size.

Duplicates available

Machine-made rugs in Persian designs are less expensive than their hand-woven counterparts; and with new computerized dyeing techniques, these rugs can duplicate the genuine patterns exactly.

If you're lucky enough to find an Oriental rug under your tree this year, the Eureka Home Care Institute offers these special care hints from Earl Jeffries, its chief field engineer:

Density defies dirt!

"Because an Oriental is so densely woven, it's difficult for dirt to penetrate the fibers," says Jeffries. "But once the dirt does get in, it's difficult to get out. So we recommend that you vacuum an Oriental frequently, as often as twice a week in heavy traffic areas."

If your upright vacuum has a rug pile height adjustment, Jeffries recommends that you set it a notch higher than you would for a domestic carpet. And if you're using a power-head vacuum, be sure the suction control is on "low."

Always vacuum in the direction of the pile on a hand-woven rug, to prevent the knots from loosening. And to insure that the fringe doesn't get sucked into your vacuum, Jeffries suggests this trick: As you approach the fringe from the center of the rug, slightly raise the vacuum head so it's just above the surface. The suction will be enough to pull the dirt out.

Turn for evenness

Twice a year, turn your rug around so it will wear and soil evenly. Vacuum the back to remove fiber-weakening dirt and grit, and wash the pile with an oil-base soap and a sponge or soft-bristled brush. With this kind of maintenance, you may never need to send your rug out to be cleaned.

All good rugs should have a pad underneath them, but Orientals need a special kind: "Use flat rubber sheet padding," says Jeffries, "the flatter the better. That way, there will be less 'give.' and heels won't dig into the carpet."

Few precautions

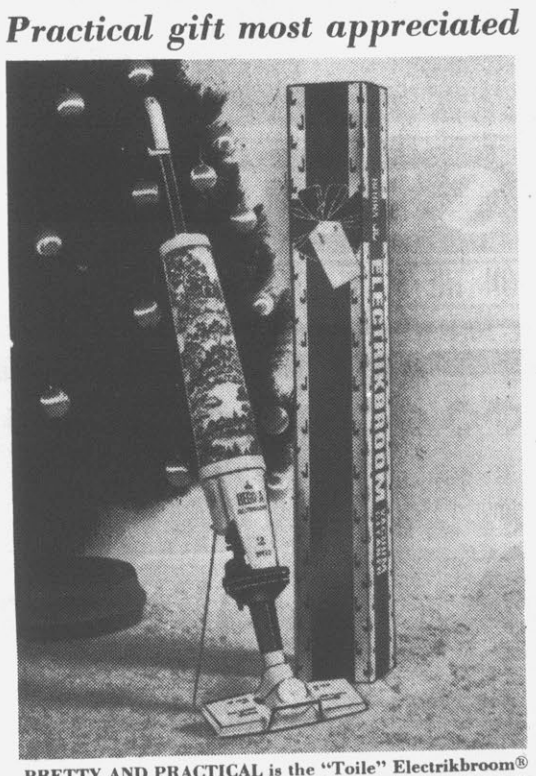
Remember too, he cautions, to use rubber or plastic protectors under heavy furniture. And never put a potted plant directly on an Oriental; seepage could rot the pile.

Taking these precautions, you'll have no problem with your rug wearing out. After all, the Persians use Orientals not only as floor coverings, but for furniture as well. Children romp on them, whole families picnic on them. So follow the example of the people who invented Orientals, and enjoy!

No-work housework

HERE'S A GIFT that will take a lot of the "work" out of "housework:" a large-capacity dryer with features designed to handle modern fabrics. The large drum on this Hotpoint model provides ample room for permanent press items to tumble, giving the synthetic fibers a chance to "de-wrinkle" in the flowing, warm air. This dryer also has a Press-Guard™ control setting that keeps the drum rotating without heat for up to an hour after the end of the cycle, thereby helping to keep the "press" in permanent press fabrics. It also has a Poly-knit setting for the popular double-knit, as well as for delicate fabrics. And its porcelain-enamel drum provides a smooth surface that helps to prevent snagging. Christmas gratitude can last the whole year — every time this big helpmate from Hotpoint is used.

Practical gift most appreciated



PRETTY AND PRACTICAL is the "Toile" Electrikbroom® featured in Federal Green color. This handy electric appliance is ideal for fast and easy floor care. A day won't go by that it isn't reached for to remedy spills, keep floors and carpets neat and proud. Exclusive Rug Pile Dial adjusts for bare floors and any carpet pile height, edge cleaner handles those hard to clean corners and baseboards handily, dirt cup that empties like an ash tray eliminates need for dust bags, slim design allows for reaching under low furniture with ease. Lightweight and compact, this multi-featured appliance will hang on a hook, taking minimal storage space. Available with its own attractive gift box, what an ideal way to say Merry Christmas—prettily and practically!

Easter at Christmas!

Easter at Christmas? It may sound ridiculous, but you can "borrow" some of the Easter traditions for added fun for the kids at Christmastime.

For example, there's absolutely no reason why all of the presents must be carefully placed under the tree. Santa may be in an especially creative mood this year and decide to hide the morning surprises.

He might even leave clues written along the way (starting at the bedpost) to heighten the challenge. Or who's to say that we can't have Christmas baskets as well as Easter baskets?

Just think of all the fun to be had in decorating Christmas eggs in bright greens and reds, decking wicker baskets with gay red ribbons and holly, then stuffing them with candy canes and holiday cookies.

You can start a whole new family tradition that could well turn into a holiday they'll never forget!

Christmas is no time to fuss with extra cleaning problems

Having friends and family over to share a special meal is one of the highlights of the holiday season, so don't let thoughts of after-dinner cleanups spoil the fun and festivity of the occasion.

Whether your menu revolves around a turkey or a beef dish, you can speed through messy kitchen cleanups with a bit of help from Grease relief® degreaser.

Some degreaser applied to greasy pots and pans will lift grease so that it can practically be rinsed away. Add it to dishwater to boost your dishwashing detergent's grease-cutting strength and dishes and flatware will be a breeze to wash, too.

It can also be a savior when guests accidentally drip greasy foods on your beautiful, washable tablecloths and when youngsters drop their drumsticks on their "Sunday best" — to remove greasy food marks, just squirt some degreaser on those spots before laundering the items (it boosts the strength and is compatible with detergents).

Potato-style greetings

Try the ancient art of block-printing this Christmas, to make your very own greeting cards or even wrapping paper.

If you're ambitious you can make a woodcut design (see your local hobby shop for equipment and assistance). But there's a simpler technique that's fun, cheap, and easy: the Potato Print.

You'll need some raw potatoes, a pen-knife, and some India ink or poster paints — and the paper of your choice.

First, slice the potato in half; the cross-section is your printing block. Carve your design into the potato, digging out all the area around the design. The raised (uncut) part will become the inked image; the part you've removed will be blank.

Make your cuts about a quarter-inch deep, to make sure you get a clear print. As you'll find out, it's best to use a simple design, such as a star.

Pour a shallow puddle of your ink or paint into an old saucer. (Remember to put plenty of newspaper underneath — spilled ink may cause your mother to murder you.) Mush the potato around in it, and practice printing on some more newspaper.

If you ruin a potato, you can always make another one! Remember too, to use a different potato for each paint color.

PERFECT HOLIDAY ENTERTAINING is yours with GE's new Coffee-Corner® drip coffeemaker — a complete coffee making center. The Brew Control Dispenser stores coffee, measures, dispenses and counts up to 10 cups of delicious coffee every time.

The Christmas cup of coffee is a rich and delicious treat!

A happy hostess and a happy holiday go hand in hand, and today's hostess knows that a delicious cup of coffee can be the highlight of holiday entertaining.

Serve it often and serve it with the same great taste every time with General Electric's new Coffee Corner™ drip coffeemaker — more than a coffeemaker, it's a complete coffee making center. Model DCM-20 is a drip coffeemaker which features an exclusive Brew Control Dispenser.

The Brew Control Dispenser stores a pound of regular, drip or fine grind coffee; controls brew strength; measures; dispenses and counts the cups of coffee.

The Coffee Corner drip coffeemaker eliminates the need for measuring spoons, cans or utensils related to coffee making and brews 10 cups of full-flavored drip coffee in 10 minutes.

Its storing capacity eliminates the need to reach for coffee on the shelf; the measuring capability takes the guesswork out of how much coffee to use and automatic dispensing means no messy grounds on the kitchen counter.

Since the cups are counted on the dispenser, you always know where you are even if you're interrupted. Flavor adjusters (strong to mild) in the brew control mechanism allow more or less coffee to be dispensed per two cup amount.

The one-step Off-Brew/Warm switch starts the brewing process and automatically switches to Keeps-Warm for keeping the coffee piping hot.

The happy holiday hostess will be delighted with the compact, convenient Coffee-Corner that makes delicious, freshly brewed, drip coffee time after time.

Some sure-fire remedies for the holiday spots and spills

Planning a successful holiday party gives you enough to think about without having to worry about after-the-festivities laundry problems.

If spots and spills seem to overflow along with the good cheer, don't despair; a little spot-removal know-how provides for quick and easy cleanups of party-time calamities.

First, some ground rules: Remember, a spot is easiest to remove if it's treated as soon as possible. Washable items should be laundered according to the manufacturer's instructions; water temperatures are important.

Most common spots will respond to a treatment of Spray 'n Wash® laundry soil and stain remover. Just spray the pretreat directly on the spot, wait 60 seconds, and launder normally. For extra-tough spots, try another spray and washing.

Non-washables — and this includes many wallpapers, should the celebrating get particularly lively with more than happy voices bouncing off the walls — will come clean with an application of K2r® Spot-lifter.

Coat the spot with spot-lifter, wait until it dries completely, then just brush the white powder — and the spot — away. (Check the effect of any spot remover in an inconspicuous place before attempting to remove a spot from wallpaper or a non-colorfast fabric.)

Here are the spots a homemaker is most likely to encounter at holiday time — with the appropriate emergency remedies.

- Gravies and fondues — scrape off as much of the grease as possible. Use the spray pretreat or spot-lifter to get the residue.
- Egg Nog and heavy cream — lukewarm water or soap and water will remove any solid portion; then pretreat or spot-lift accordingly.
- Cranberry sauce and berry juices — sponge with cold water first and pretreat or spot-lift.
- Wines — lukewarm water will remove white wine spots on non-washables; spot-lifter takes care of red or rose spots. For washable items, just use spray pretreat before laundering.
- Candle wax — place the stained item between layers of absorbent paper and press with a warm iron. This will draw up most of the solid wax. Then pretreat or spot-lift accordingly to remove residue.
- Chafing dish smudges — sponge off sooty residue with cool water. Spray 'n Wash or spot-lifter will do the rest.
- Coffee — on a non-washable item, spot-lifter will remove the spot; any traces of sugar will respond to a moist rag. Pretreat and launder the coffee spot on washable fabrics.
- Candies and cream-filled sweets — again, on a non-washable, any remaining sugar trace — after the spot is treated — will be removed by dabbing with a moist cloth. And, again, the washable item needs the spray pretreat and proper laundering.
- Lipstick — Just spot-lift or pretreat.
- Green vegetable spots — wet stained area with cool water, then spot-lift or pretreat.
- Evergreen sap — sponge up as much of the sticky solid or residue as possible; then spot-lift or pretreat and launder.

IMAGINATIVE CHRISTMAS FUN: Children playing with the new Playmobil System of colorfully designed miniature figures spend hours stretching the imagination. Figures can sit, stand, ride, and hold tiny objects in their hands, and are available in four different series — knights, cowboys, Indians, and construction workers.

Toy selection to spur imagination

For young children, toys and games mean more than "just fun." Playthings often provide a means for making contact with the world through make believe, role playing, and imitation of the grownup world.

It's essential, therefore, to select toys and games which are capable of providing outlets for a child's active imagination.

A new toy "system" is rapidly gaining popularity here. It offers children a world-in-miniature filled with colorful, exotic characters. The Playmobil System, with its four separate series of knights, Indians, construction workers and cowboys, combines clever props, accessories, and beautifully designed "little people" for unlimited make-believe possibilities.

The characters in the system are designed to be able to stand, sit, ride horses, and even hold objects.

In the knights series, for instance, the king and his knights carry flags and lances, toast each other with tiny goblets, and dine at rough-hewn tables.

The visual appeal of characters and accessories is so strong that parents often find it irresistible to join in their children's imaginative games.

Parents can begin their children with any of the Playmobil starter sets, available for each series and containing enough figures and accessories for hours of happy play.

As the children expand the scope of their activities, additional sets of add-on accessories and figures are available to provide limitless opportunities for new play situations.

Games for every age

Gameland can be a confusing territory for the shopping parent. Fortunately, children's games have come a long way in the past few years, and by reading the box cover a parent can get a fairly good idea of whether or not the game will be suitable for the children. Games are now usually classified according to the age group for which they were designed. If you are shopping for children of all different ages, there are games available that will entertain everyone from age four to adult. Or you can individually search for a game for each child according to his or her own abilities and interests.

How to be a better St. Nick!

A new, free booklet cram-packed with help-information on toy selection is available free from Schaper Manufacturing, a leading U.S. toymaker.

The booklet includes a wide variety of information that's sure to help parents pick presents better as they dash through department stores, toy stores and discount houses to make those last-minute gift buying decisions.

For your free copy of "Toy Tips: To be a Better Santa," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Schaper, P.O. Box 323, Radio City Station, New York City 10019.

Don't let carelessness ruin holidays: take stock of kitchen before the rush

Preparing for another Yuletide season, friends and family tend to center their activities around the kitchen — the central "holiday feast headquarters" where grandma was once obliged to spend most of her waking hours.

In her day, preparing festive "fixin's" took days of hard work — but today, grandmas and newlyweds alike are becoming "liberated" cooks.

Due to modern appliances, frozen fast foods and more demanding out-of-the-home schedules, kitchen duties are happily being forced to a minimum.

For example, a get-together with friends before Christmas can be as easy as popping frozen hors d'oeuvres or cookies into the oven minutes before guests arrive — a snap of a chore that grandma wouldn't have dreamed could come true.

But regardless of whether your kitchen is antique-cozy or microwave-modern, it's not complete without a reliable fire extinguisher, according to fire safety experts at Gillette.

Statistics show that 40 per cent of home fires start in the kitchen, and are most often extinguished by a female.

TODAY'S LIBERATED COOK can entertain around the holidays by simply popping frozen hors d'oeuvres or cookies into the oven minutes before guests arrive — a real switch from grandma's day. But no matter how "liberated" you or your kitchen may be, you're not up-to-date without a reliable fire extinguisher, according to fire safety experts at Gillette. Gillette recommends that grandmas and newlyweds alike install a Captain Kelly Dry Chemical Fire Extinguisher to fight common household fires, including grease, oil, gasoline and electrical fires.

The Captain Kelly Dry Chemical Fire Extinguisher, for simple, effective control of kitchen fires, is decorator-designed in chrome yellow with orange lettering to fit into any kitchen decor.

With one hand, the unit releases from the decorator bracket and operates with push-button ease to fight common household fires, including grease, oil, gasoline and electrical fires.

So go ahead and gather around the kitchen during the holidays, but remember to equip it first with a Captain Kelly Dry Chemical Fire Extinguisher. It's an inexpensive way to protect your priceless family — around Christmas, or any other time of year.

"TUNE IN" LIVE ACTION AND DRAMA such as police and fire emergencies on Public Service VHF (hi) broadcasts with General Electric's "Mobile I Searcher" tunable scanning radio. The radio receives other forms of public service communication including ambulance, mobile telephone, and emergency road crews. The portable unit's scanning function is tunable and eliminates the need for individual crystals needed for most conventional scanning radios. The small size and tunable feature make it an ideal Christmas gift for the novice or professional who wants to take his scanner away from home.

'Tune in' on action with scanning radio

This Christmas everyone can "tune in" live action and drama such as police and fire emergencies on Public Service VHF (hi) broadcasts with tunable scanning radios.

A scanning radio is a receiver that samples, in sequence, a number of different Public Service band frequencies selected by the user. If there is a broadcast on any of the selected frequencies, the receiver stops scanning action so the user can hear the broadcast. When broadcasting stops, scanning resumes.

General Electric has two scanning radios, "The Searcher" and the "Mobile I Searcher," with which the user selects or tunes, on four separate channels, desired frequencies in the Public Service VHF (hi) band.

Unlike conventional scanning radios, GE's tunable scanning radios do not require individual crystals for each frequency on the Public Service band that the user decides to monitor.

In addition to police and fire emergencies, the GE radios receive other forms of public service communication including ambulance, mobile telephone, and emergency road crews.

General Electric's "Searcher," in addition to scanning Public Service frequencies, also has an FM/AM radio for added enjoyment; "Mobile I Searcher" is a hand-held portable unit you can take anywhere. Both units feature two-way power: either battery or AC line cord.

Mix fashion and accuracy in newest sports watch!

Gift shopping for the sports enthusiast is always a challenge. This year the job is easier with the selection of fine wrist chronographs available at your jeweler.

A chronograph operates as a watch and stopwatch, and has as many uses as there are sports. In timing track or swimming meets, when it is important to keep individual, continuous and competitive times simultaneously, split-timing is necessary.

Now there is an electronic chronograph made by Heuer Time and Electronics which performs these functions. For professional athletes, amateur joggers, auto racers, skiers, sailors, the dual-display Heuer Chronosplit combines two digital displays in one elegant water-resistant case. Prices start at $395.00.

The LCD or liquid crystal display gives the basic watch functions — hour, minute, running seconds, and date. A built-in light can be activated for nighttime viewing — strong enough to help you find a keyhole. The LED stopwatch gives accurate readings up to 9 hours, 59 minutes, and 59.9 seconds.

SPORTS LOVERS, as well as scientists and doctors, would appreciate receiving a precision wrist chronograph that gives accurate LED stopwatch readings, and tells the time all day long with liquid crystals. The Heuer Chronosplit is the only electronic watch to do both with separate displays.

Those who require flawless performance in a watch will find the Chronosplit accurate to within five seconds a month — or a minute a year. This advanced step in timekeeping comes from a 115-year-old Swiss company that makes one out of every four stopwatches in the world today.

This is the most advanced solid-state circuitry in sleek stainless steel or gold plated cases, good looking by day and night, and the year's gift solution for the active sportsman.

Help for helpless, harried shopper!

Are you still wondering what to give to some favorite friend or relative for Christmas? Perhaps you're drawing a blank because you're only thinking in terms of objects. Think about experiences, as well, and it opens up a whole new world. In other words — make a date to take them somewhere!

For the sports fan, how about tickets to a baseball game next spring — or a football, basketball, hockey game in the more immediate future.

Theater buffs and cinema fans would love tickets to a play or movie (for two, naturally). You might want to make these up yourself, to look like a gift certificate ("to the show of your choice") — so that the lucky recipient can make a date with you at his convenience.

For the gourmet, instead of the usual cookbook or gadget, try a written invitation to dinner (on you) at a favorite restaurant.

Give a hand to the handywoman

When you're planning gifts for mom, don't limit yourself to perfume and scarves! Women are just as much in need of practical helpers as any Saturday fix-it dad!

After all, who has to cope with the leaky drainpipe at two o'clock in the afternoon when everyone's either in the office or at school? Or who's the first one to notice that the tub needs caulking or the lights are flickering?

Don't hesitate to put a handy tool kit or a "How-to-Fix-Anything" book in mom's stocking . . . you'll be surprised to see how much she'll use it! (But don't be surprised if she gives you an apron!)

Your man can have a gift of luxury you can afford!

Your guy is the best present any Santa ever brought, so you'll want to give him the best of everything this Christmas.

If your bank account tells you this can't include the Ferrari or trip to the South of France he's been craving, choose from this list of thoughtful smaller gifts that each are the best of their kind.

The dollar signs indicate whether the gift is $ — under $20, $$ — under $50, or $$$ under $100.

- One ouce of imported beluga caviar — $

Believe it or not, an ounce of the finest black caviar from your gourmet or specialty store is less than $20. Keep it in the refrigerator until the last minute, because the real stuff doesn't contain any preservatives.

- A split — $, fifth — $, or magnum — $$ of fine French champagne

This is heady stuff in whatever quantity. Buy one of the fine French labels and keep it chilled. He may want to pop the cork right under the tree.

- A sterling silver pen — $ or a gold plated one $$$

He'll think of you everytime he writes a check! A truly expensive pen is something he'll hold on to, so he'll be sure to have a pen when he needs one.

- A guaranteed great shave — $$

The new Soft Touch from Remington can give every man the best shave he's ever had. In fact, Remington guarantees it.

If you buy the razor between October 1 and January 15 and your man doesn't like it, for whatever reason (he's decided to grow a beard, he got one from his mother, you've broken up) just send it back to Remington with the sales slip by the end of February, and you'll get your money back.

- A home baked angel cake or hand knit argyles — $

One of the most precious gifts you can give is your time. Real thoughtfulness is above price. Bake his favorite cake or knit something just for him.

- The best seats in the house to his favorite entertainment — $$

Whether he likes football or ballet, the theater or the fights, you can get the best seats in the house for at least one night.

- A real cashmere scarf — $

Cashmere is the most delicious way to winterize his wardrobe. If you can't afford a coat, jacket or sweater (all up in the $$ or $$$ range) give him a scarf that's matched to his favorite overcoat.

- An aluminum tennis racket or one good piece of equipment for the sport he loves — $$

Sports are probably his favorite leisure activity. Check with the pro at his tennis club or golf course to find out what he recommends. It may be that name racket he's been craving or just a supply of extra bounce tennis balls.

- A silver belt buckle — $$

He probably wears a belt every day of his life — give him a real silver buckle to become his signature accessory.

- An ultra suede anything: attache case — $$$, vest — $$, notebook — $$, wallet — $

Ultra suede is the most luxurious material he could own. Give him something small and precious or as large as you can afford in his favorite color.

- Pigskin driving gloves — $

- Enough of his favorite nibble — $

Whether it's macadamia nuts or malted milk balls — give him a really ample supply of the food he loves to nibble.

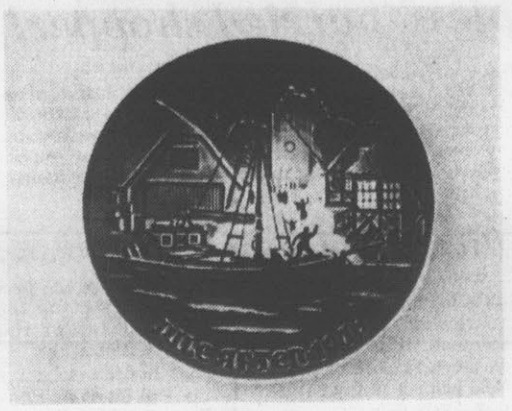
Lovely, lasting gifts for Christmas

Danish tradition



SPECIAL CHRISTMAS TRADITION — Bing & Grondahl presents its 82nd Christmas Plate entitled, "Christmas Welcome," a traditional scene in the famous shades of Copenhagen blue for which the fine Danish porcelain manufacturer has become renowned. The plate, which is hand decorated and sculpted in relief, was designed by the Danish artist Henry Thelander. The first Christmas plate ever created was introduced by Bing & Grondahl in 1895 utilizing the then revolutionary underglaze technique. Each year thereafter Bing & Grondahl has issued a Christmas Plate which have become collectors' items throughout the world. At the end of each years' production, the master mold is destroyed so that no more plates can ever be made.

The musical instrument at the top of many Christmas shopping lists this season is the guitar, the music maker that's highly versatile, fun and easy to play, and a handsome accessory for the home.

If you are planning to give a guitar to someone special this season, the Guitar and Accessory Manufacturers Association offer these pointers to simplify your selection:

• DON'T buy a really expensive top line guitar for a novice player, but also don't settle for a toy that will go out of tune easily. Acoustic guitars range in price from $30 to $500 and up.

For around $90, you can get a good guitar that will sound perfectly respectable. The recipient can always trade the instrument in for another model later, after he determines what his needs are.

• DO buy a brand name guitar. Quality instruments are guaranteed by the manufacturer, assuming normal usage.

• DO start a beginner with an acoustic rather than an electric guitar. Acoustic guitars are easier to learn on, and will spare you the investment of instrument plus amplification equipment.

• DO give a beginner a guitar with nylon strings, which are much easier on the fingers than steel strings.

• DO ask the dealer to check the guitar's "action" — the ease with which the strings can be depressed. A guitar with low action will be easier for a new player to handle.

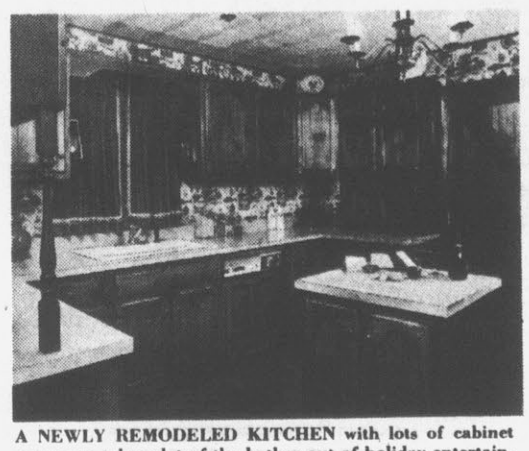
Also, make sure the strings don't vibrate against the frets when depressed. They should lie almost flat, with only enough room for a dime to pass between the string and fret.

• DO buy a hard rather than a soft case for protection. And remember that guitars should not be exposed to dampness or extreme changes in temperature and humidity.

• DO make sure all the pick-ups work in an electric guitar. Plug the guitar into the amplifier, then tap each pick-up on its corresponding toggle (a device on the guitar that changes the power from one pick-up to another) switch position. A working pick-up will produce a loud, tapping sound in the amplifier.

Timely gift at Christmas time

THE PERFECT GIFT FOR ALL GIRLS-ON-THE-GO is this Pincushion model travel alarm clock from Seth Thomas. Its basket weave base and colorful, puffed pincushion top are totally charming, and the travel sewing kit tucked into its base provides a winning practical feature. Remember the adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," and remember a favorite female with a Pincushion travel alarm clock.



A NEWLY REMODELED KITCHEN with lots of cabinet space can take a lot of the bother out of holiday entertaining. When new cabinets bear the certification seal of the National Kitchen Cabinet Association, consumers are assured that the cabinets have been designed and tested to provide years of service.

Sturdy kitchen cabinets simplify holiday chores

Christmas may mean a visit from Santa Claus to the children. For the adults, it usually means holiday entertaining, lots of shopping and long hours spent in the kitchen preparing meals and in-between snacks.

Busiest room

As the center for meal preparation, the kitchen is the hardest working room in a home. During the holidays, it puts in lots of overtime. Without sufficient storage space, holiday entertaining can be a burden rather than a pleasure.

Remodeling the kitchen for the holiday season is a good way to avoid headaches when the holidays arrive. Since the kitchen works harder than any other room in the house, proper planning for its modernization is paramount.

The National Kitchen Cabinet Association suggests the location of cabinets and work areas, the selection of appliances and wall and floor coverings be determined by family size and the cooking and housekeeping habits of the homemaker.

Growing in popularity

Since many building products and materials are now available as prefinished, ready to install units, which often carry the manufacturer's assurance of quality and dependability, kitchen remodeling is growing as a do-it-yourself project.

Kitchen cabinets are an example. Those that bear the certification seal of the National Cabinet Association have to meet the rigid construction and performance standards of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

To qualify, the cabinets must pass or exceed a variety of rugged tests that measure their ability to withstand the hard use of everyday operation in the kitchen.

Must be tough!

Cabinet shelves and drawers, for example, must withstand the impacts of dropped objects and must operate easily even when overloaded. Cabinet finishes must resist stains, such as mustard, alcohol, detergents and vinegar, and must resist scratches and the rapid temperature changes and high humidity common to kitchens.

Look for the seal

The small, circular NKCA certification seal is usually found on the inside of a cabinet door or drawer. It's the consumer's assurance the cabinets have been designed to last.

Additional help on kitchen planning and cabinet selection is in a new booklet. It can be obtained for 35 cents from the National Kitchen Cabinet Association, Box 2978, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Join this season's fantastic fashion parade

Season's glamour—sleek is chic from head to toe!

Slip into elegance this Christmas with the sleekest gifts Santa has ever seen. Treat your love to the luxury and feel of silk and satin.

Slips are back, and they're the most delicious thing that's happened to dressing since dresses.

This year's demure soft wools and classic flannels have a feminine secret. Underneath the sporty grey flannel, women are wrapping the sleekest, smoothest bodies they've had in years in the most alluring satins and laces.

The look begins with a dress or a simple sweater, blouse and skirt. The key is the glide, the float of the fabric, the way it seems to touch everywhere and nowhere. It's a leggy look, sleek skin and a well toned body with sheer stockings and delicate shoes.

Start your gifting with the right slip. It's full length, maybe even floor length, and it clings in all the right places. It's not classic, serviceable white — but a soft pastel like apricot or sky blue.

For the daring, it's jet black. There must always be lace — lots of it — trimming the hem and bodice, forming the straps.

Add the right skin. It's impeccably groomed. The slightest hint of stubble, the smallest nick spoils the line. A safe, smooth way to sleek is the Lady Remington electric shaver. Its petite form isn't "a Lady's toy" but a precision shaving instrument to gently, but surely, remove every inch of fuzz and stubble. Replaceable chromium-edge blades for a close shave even after the original blades become dull.

THERE'S NOTHING MORE DARING than a sleek slip especially if it's a luxurious length of nude-colored satin trimmed in lace. This, by Vassarette, is full length with a demure lace-up bodice. The matching stockings are a sheer web of color to be drawn on carefully over the sleekest skin in town. To smooth legs safely, shave with a Lady Remington electric shaver before you shower or bathe. Move the shaver up from the ankle, holding it lightly against the skin. For best results, always work up from the ankle, against the direction the hair grows.

HOODS ARE THE NEWEST LOOK in coating for fall — and why not — they are flattering to every face type, and they're warm and cozy too. This by Victor Joris for Cuddlecoat is a modern version of the stadium duffle. It's camel trimmed in black braid with toggle closing for a sporty look. Hood winking hair needs the help of Remington's new Super Salon Hair Styler. The hot air curling wand attachment (shown left) sets in lasting curls because it works on damp hair. Hot air circulates through the wand, drying the curl into place in seconds.

This year's outerwear fashions are hooded and shawled, hatted and scarved. Hair has to be able to take it and come out from under wraps looking bouncy and styled.

The key is a good haircut and the right styling tools to make the set stay put.

The most versatile hair is all one length with slight layering toward the ends. The layering gives body to hold in the curl, and the basic shape won't quit.

Bangs give more flexibility. When straight, they look sporty. A bit of curl adds drama, and they can be clipped to the side for a demure look.

Styling is a cinch with an all-in-one tool like the new Remington Super Salon. The power base of 850 watts can be attached to five different styling attachments to create a wide range of looks.

Fine and wide-toothed combs get most of the moisture out of just washed hair. The concentrator attachment can be used as a dryer with your own comb if you prefer. A 360 degree circular brush curves ends under while you dry and adds height and body in a flash.

First, it works on wet to damp hair so curls can be set to last under the tightest hoods. Simply wind a strand of damp hair around the hot air curling wand. Air circulates through the wand and dries the curl while it's curling for a long lasting set.

You can use the curling wand for touch-ups by dampening the hair you want to curl.

Either way, it gives a set that won't wilt whether you toss it up in a shawl, wrap it in a turban, or slip up your hood.

Holiday havoc can hurt skin — take extra care!

Christmas is your busiest time of the year. You're doing more things for more people and probably putting yourself last. Believe us, it will show in your complexion with breakouts and blemishes — probably on the night of the big Christmas party.

Working and shopping all day and partying at night means you'll be getting less sleep, and you'll be spending less time on regular beauty care. But now's the time to increase your beauty care and pamper your skin.

The skin has to breathe especially when you're asking it to work harder with extra holiday makeup and special party hours.

Take time out to give yourself a 15-minute beauty facial to keep your skin looking its best. New beauty machines like the Remington Clean and Tone make at-home facials fast and easy.

Start by applying cleansing cream or lotion in light upward strokes. The upward motion helps get the cleanser into your pores. If you use soap, moisten with lukewarm water — never hot, it's too harsh — and work up a frothy lather to apply to the face.

Wth the machine on low for sensitive skin and high for normal skin, use the two special cleaning brushes of the Clean and Tone Facial Brush to lightly cleanse the large areas of the face — forehead, chin, cheeks.

The contrary motion of the two brushes provides a light sweeping cleansing action to rid the skin of dirt, grime, and oil. Remove one brush and use one alone to reach the hard-to-get-at places like the creases around the nose and the underchin line. The single brush revolves gently to cleanse these delicate areas.

When the skin is completely clean, rinse with lukewarm water or tissue off the cream or lotion. Your face will be fresh and glowing with a slight shine of thoroughly clean skin.

The next aspect of good facial care is toning. This can be done on dry skin if your complexion is oily or with moisturizer or night cream if your skin is normal or dry. Use the large orbital action brush of the Clean and Tone to apply moisturizer or cream to the facial tissue. Use the low speed for gentle action. The large brush moves in a unique figure eight pattern, to undulate your skin for that fresh, clean feeling.

Toning is particularly important in winter when the cold weather causes surface capillaries to shrink and skin to look pale and wan. The large brush used on high speed is excellent for sloughing dead, dry skin all over the body—neckline, shoulders, elbows, knees, etc.

If you take the few extra minutes to pamper your complexion before Christmas, you'll be giving yourself the gift of clean, fresh skin all year through.

Silver snowflakes to sparkle on your tree this Christmas!

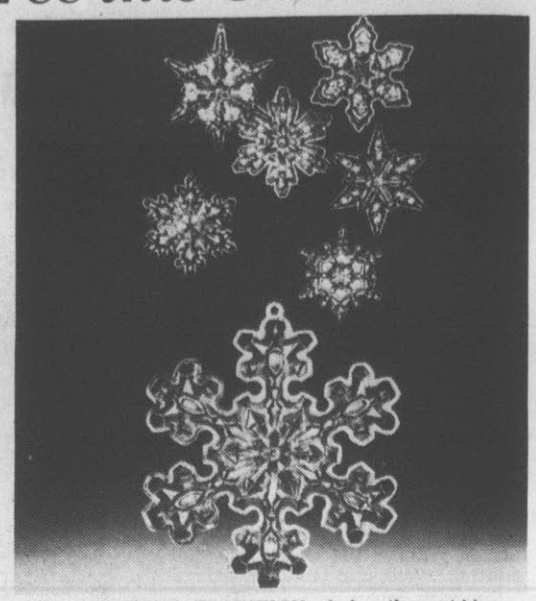
A lasting tradition. A silversmith's art. Gorham sterling "Snowflakes" are especially created each year to commemorate Christmas.

Designed to sparkle forever, they are ideal gifts for the tree or to wear as a fashionable holiday pendant.

The 1976 Gorham sterling "Snowflake," like its predecessors, is exquisitely crafted in precious sterling. (Each year the crafting tools for each distinctive edition are destroyed at the close of the year so that each becomes a more personal memento of love as well as an important collectible.)

Seventh in the annual series, this year's Gorham "Snowflake" is engraved with the date on the back, and there is additional space for a personal message, or for initials.

The 1976 Gorham "Snowflake" is available at most leading jewelry and department stores.



THE BEAUTIFUL TRADITION of the silversmith's art. Every year Gorham introduces a new sterling "Snowflake" to commemorate the Christmas season. This latest design, seventh in the series, is a masterpiece of craftsmanship to be hung on the tree or worn as a pendant.

Keep all your friends up-to-date with a special personal Yuletide message

You pull out the Christmas mailing list to address your cards for the season and you gasp in amazement! There before you is a list of people — friends and relatives both — who haven't heard from you in literally twelve months!

You wonder what they are doing, and you want to tell them all of the interesting things that have happened to you in the last year. But writing an individual note on each card seems like an impossibly long task. There are just too many other things to be done.

But there is a solution to this problem which will not only save you time but probably turn out to be fun for you and all the people on your mailing list as well!

Take an afternoon to compose a warm, thoughtful letter that says everything you wish to tell and conveys all the personal wishes you want to extend to each and every one of your friends at Christmas.

Then simply have the letter printed up on a copy machine (a quick and inexpensive process) and insert your special holiday message in every one of your cards as you address them.

If you're feeling especially creative, you might want to try to put your feelings into verse! Or have them printed on brightly colored, personalized paper.

Whatever way you approach it, your own special touch of a Christmas letter is sure to make you and all those you care for feel much closer and happier during the holiday season and throughout the year to come.

Who knows? It may even prompt some replies and a whole new pattern of regular correspondence!

Tie it up with ribbon

One of the most beautiful additions you can add to your Christmas tree is a beautiful array of brightly colored bows.

Buy wide strips of ribbon in red velvet, red and white gingham, or whatever other color and fabric suits your taste.

Then just tie them on the branches in big fluffy knots. It will add a rich, homey touch to your Christmas decorating.

Bows are great for all over the house, as a matter of fact. Why not tie up some window frames, doorways, table arrangements, or whatever strikes your fancy!

Merry mugs, gay glasses!

To add a personal touch to the family's Christmas, or to give extra graciousness to your holiday entertaining, decorate some Christmas holiday cups and glasses.

You can buy inexpensive white mugs and clear glasses in any five and dime store. Then find some good enamel paint and some brushes (your hardware dealer would be more than happy to advise you on this matter).

With supplies in hand, let your happy Christmas thoughts and images run wild! Paint a cup or glass for each family member with a special wish.

Or do a series for guests with pictures and a message . . . "The Joneses are always glad to see you, but especially at Christmas. Glad to have you share our cheer!" . . . whatever you do, it's sure to add a fun touch to the season, and lots of Christmases to come!

TREE TIP

Don't forget to keep your tree well watered. A dry tree is susceptible to fire.

BEFORE LIGHTING UP

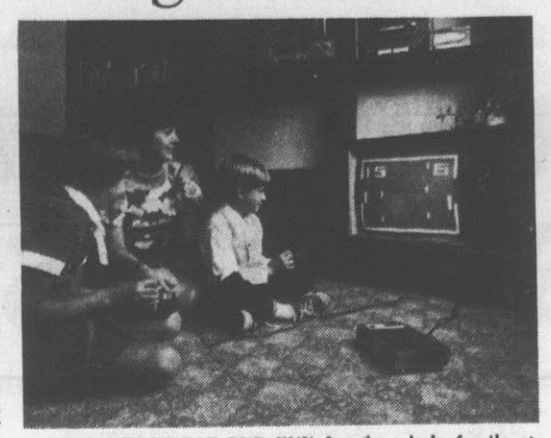
Seven new ways in one to bring exciting fun to TV!

Game to give something different for Christmas?

For those who are totally at a loss for an original gift idea sure to please all from 8 to 80, National Semiconductor has recently introduced an intriguing TV game with three playing fields that can be played in seven different ways.

This full-color game features hockey with blue ice, handball with a brown court, and tennis with green grass.



GREAT THREE-FOR-ONE FUN for the whole family at Christmas can be yours with the exciting new "Adversary" TV game from National Semiconductor. "Adversary" features three different full-color playing fields — for tennis, hockey, and handball — that can be played in seven action-packed ways!

Added excitement

Paddle sizes for each player can be individually adjusted to three different sizes. Action sounds are adjustable by the TV volume control for an added touch of excitement.

The game may be played on all three playfields by one or two players. A player may also compete against the machine and individual scores will be kept.

In the hockey game, each player has an additional three robot-players that step up the action for a fast moving game.

Features galore

The game features include time-out, on-screen scoring, ball serves through the paddle which can be positioned by the players, automatic ball speedup, permanent easy installation, remote controllers, and all in true living color.

In the handball game, which is played on a three-sided court, only one player's paddle is visible at a time. After he hits the ball, his opponent's paddle appears. This means when it is your turn, you have the court to yourself.

Matching colors

The paddles have different colors that match the scores of each player. In all the games, the score appears only after a point is made by either player.

All games can be stopped temporarily without resetting the score by simply placing the serving paddle off the screen.

The tennis game is similar to the standard tennis games that have been available in the coin-operated machines.

A switch on the control unit allows both paddles on the screen to be moved by a single controller. This allows a player to improve his proficiency by practicing by himself.

A player can also play against the machine in the hockey game. This is easily done by placing a large paddle in front of one goal and selecting one of the smaller paddle sizes for play.

'Odds and ends'

The odds even out to make it a very even match against the machine — especially since the six robot players are constantly moving.

The individual controllers have a unique paddle stick that is much easier to relate to screen movement. The controllers are designed to provide game reset, paddle size adjustment, and time-out during play. All games end after either player scores 15 points.

Installation requires simply plugging in the AC adapter and connecting the game unit cable to the TV antenna leads. Adversary has been approved by the Federal Communications Commission, and the AC adapter is UL listed.

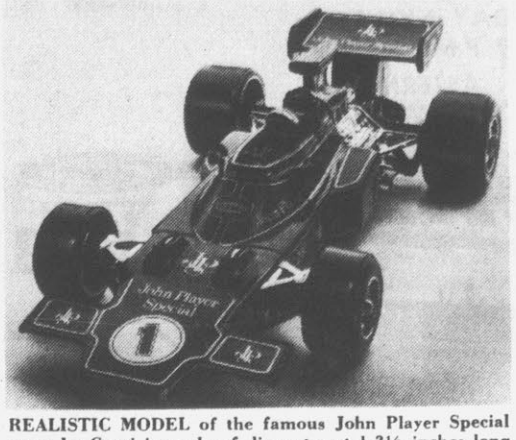
First in line

National Semiconductor manufactures all the semiconductors that are used in the game. This is the first in a line of new entertainment and educational products that are planned by the company.

The game comes complete with an AC adapter and has a 1-year warranty. Adversary is the top of the line in video games for this Christmas. Suggested retail is $99.00.

Warning — parents should be advised that this game may prove as interesting and entertaining to them as to the children who are supposed to receive it! Hours of family fun should be expected!

HIGH ON POPULARITY LISTS of die cast metal car collectors are these Corgi "do something" crime fighter models. The new Kojak special has a removable roof beacon and has a built in device to simulate gun shot sounds. James Bond's Aston-Martin DB 5 is gadgeted to actually eject a spy. Batmobile has a working car slasher and "fires" rockets. These miniatures are 3 to 4 inches long.



REALISTIC MODEL of the famous John Player Special racer by Corgi is made of die-cast metal 3½ inches long and is authentic to its hubcaps.

Last-minute ideas for your man

Handy last minute gifts for a man include: a tie to go with his favorite suit, a new key chain or key case, a soap-on-a-rope in his favorite scent (men love them — they're great for the shower), handkerchiefs, a pen and pencil set (or a matching desk set, if he works in an office), a new brush and comb (they do tend to neglect these items!), a passport case for the overseas traveller, a razor (or maybe a mustache comb?), a gentleman's manicure kit, gloves, an umbrella, a box of personal stationery (plain buff is always nice), cigars or a pipe for the smoker (also an attractive lighter), a piggy bank (why not?!?), a framed picture of you or the family, lots of TLC!

Models with a difference: realism to the last detail

The big question taunting the world's automobile manufacturers is where to make the tilt. Does the public want small cars or is the trend back toward the bigger ones that were all but cancelled out in the heyday of the gas crises?

Devouring world market

For one manufacturer the question has never arisen. Small cars are it and they are being sold as fast as they can be turned out. The manufacturer is Corgi with factories in Swansea, Wales working three shifts a day seven days a week.

The cars it makes are magnificent replicas of the real thing and they are coming off high-speed production lines at the rate of tens of thousands daily to feed a devouring world market.

Exquisite detail

Corgi makes some 150 automobile and truck models of precision die-cast metal. They are 4 to 5 inches long or approximately 40 times smaller than life. Finished in exquisite detail they are accurate to the hubcap.

The company also makes a smaller version it calls Corgi Juniors that is similar to the Matchbox cars you see around.

No one has just one

According to Gerald Fisher, vice president of Reeves International, the firm that imports these cars to the United States, an estimated 100 million plus are sold here every year mostly to boys in the three to 11 age group and that rate is growing at about 15% per annum.

"There is no child that owns only one," he says. Collections average from 10 to 30 cars with real buffs owning into the hundreds and even thousands.

Check manufacturers

The company works closely with manufacturers from car capitals of the world to make sure models are faithfully reproduced. Sometimes this is under the veil of strict secrecy especially on new models that have not yet been introduced.

There have been times when a manufacturer has been reluctant, that the company has sent out teams with hidden cameras and tape measures to get the specifications it needs to properly reproduce a model.

'Bang Bang' hit!

Mainly though, manufacturers are extremely cooperative in supplying Corgi designers with drawings in order that correct models of their cars reach the marketplace as a form of advertisement.

The company notes certain cyclical trends. For example, one year sporty European touring and rally models are high on popularity lists then another year it might be tanks and military vehicles. The last year or two has seen big demand for sleek formula racing cars.

Cars that do things are sure bets. The company made a Chitty Chitty Bang Bang some years ago that had wings that flipped out when you pushed a hidden button. It was an immediate sellout and has since become a collector's item now commanding 10 times its original $5.00 price.

Winter eyes need protection

SELECTION FOR THE SPORTS ENTHUSIAST — sunglasses for all seasons. They're a thoughtful gift that can go right from under the Christmas tree onto the ski slopes, toboggan run or skating rink. The glare of snow and ice in the winter is just as harsh as the reflection from water and sand in the summer. Real sunglasses allow no more than 30% of the light to pass through and winter sports call for even darker lenses — such as Bausch & Lomb's Olympic Games Collection. His Stateside SunGlasses have a mirrored coating which blocks 90% of the light and reflects the sun's rays on extra brilliant days. Her Vagabond glasses, which block 85% of the light, also offer full winter eye protection. Both models have neutral gray lenses for true color perception.

Crafty ideas put creativity under the tree

It seems harder every year to come up with good gift ideas in reasonable price categories. An abundance of new products is introduced every year in time for Christmas, but it's not always easy to distinguish junk and gimmickry from worthwhile gifts the family will use and enjoy.

Here's a group of gift ideas for everyone in the family, at prices that still make sense.

For dad, under $10

• If dad's a sports buff, he may enjoy any of the "Super Jock" games from Schaper. "Super Toe" football, "Super Kick" soccer, "Super Stick" hockey and "Super Touch" basketball offer re-creations of sports thrills as players rap the heads of tough plastic figures to trigger the scoring mechanisms.

• Dad may be the "man who has everything" but chances are he'll be happy to receive a top Scotch in a new, handsomely designed decanter. The decanter, the first ever for a major Scotch whisky brand, is available for Ballantine's Scotch this year at no extra charge. It's reusable, of course, and makes a striking addition to the at-home bar.

• Landlubbers and yachtsmen alike should appreciate Mount Gay Rum, imported from Barbados and the only rum the other Caribbean islands import.

Mount Gay has an intriguing background: it first reached U.S. shores via the efforts of American yachtsmen who sampled it on their excursions to Barbados, and it remains a favorite in areas where yachting is popular.

For dad, under $25

• An unusual but welcome gift in the "under $25" category for dad is a case of imported beer. St. Pauli Girl Beer from Germany is a good selection, since it possesses all the attributes usually requested by imported beer drinkers: light, clean taste, proper aging, and no chemical preservatives.

A case of St. Pauli Girl under the tree should satisfy even the most demanding beer connoisseur.

• If dad is interested in angling, an innovative product that's brand-new on the market this year provides top fishing action at a moment's notice. The "Fishing Machine" from St. Croix is a full-sized fiber glass rod which collapses into the rod and handle assembly for easy carrying.

Perfect for storage in car, boat, or briefcase, the "Fishing Machine" is available for less than $25.

For mom

• A good present in the "under $10" category for mom is a small bottle of Liquore Galliano. Galliano's versatility in mixology is already legendary, but it's a valuable companion in the kitchen, as well.

The product allows gourmet cooks to whip up such creations as Chicken Cordon Gold, Harvey Wallbanger cakes and tasty picnic chicken.

• If mom has one room in the house where she spends more time than anyplace else, an investment — more than ten dollars — in Levolor Riviera custom window blinds can add interest to a window arrangement, hide clutter within the room, or be used as a room divider to create a multi-purpose area.

The thin slatted window treatments, available in more than 100 decorator colors, can be the beginning of a dramatic new interior treatment.

• The "UniQuarium" aquarium from Living World can revolutionize tropical fish keeping and makes an ideal gift for the whole family. The new aquarium does away with the usual jungle of pipes, wires and filters, with all filtration apparatus engineered to fit neatly in a drawer beneath the fish tank.

Cleaning is greatly simplified and the "UniQuarium" is self-regulating and practically foolproof.

For the kids

• "Under $10" gift ideas for the kids in the family might include a Starter Set for the Playmobil System, a toy "system" of beautifully designed miniature figures with movable arms and legs.

Available in four different series — knights, cowboys, Indians and construction workers — the Playmobil System offers children hours of imaginative play activity. Additional figures and accessories are available for each series as the children expand their Playmobil activities.

• For the hamster owners in the family, the new "Habitrail" racers make an excellent Christmas gift selection.

The racers, in two different models, are "hamster-powered" by a modified exercise wheel. Children can set up races or just let the hamsters explore around the house on wheels.

• A more elaborate gift suggestion for the kids might be a complete "Habitrail" city, with a variety of play, sleeping and resting areas connected by tunnels that duplicate the hamster's real-life habitat. Components can be added on one at a time or bought all at once.

• There are a number of colorful, exciting games in the "Under $10" category for children who haven't acquired reading skills yet. Among them are "Don't Spill the Beans" and "Get Off My Back." In "Get Off My Back," players test the patience of a mechanical turtle by loading tiny pelicans on its back. When the turtle has had enough, he scurries away under a log, knocking the pelicans off.

In "Don't Spill the Beans," children keep adding beans to a pot, trying not to be the last one who tips the pot over. Both games use the suspense-buildup-surprise sequence children love.

• Slightly older children will enjoy the "U-Drive-It," an exciting toy in the "Under $25" category. "U-Drive-It" is a tabletop action set which simulates real driving thrills, as the driver makes stops, starts, turns, and even accelerates.

The "U-Drive-It" serves as an enjoyable forerunner to driver education, as well.

PACKERS "IN-THE-KNOW" will travel light this holiday season, by starting at the top with a new Promax Compact — the 1,000-watt dryer that is one-half the size and weight of a professional hand dryer. A "packer's delight," Promax Compact will fit into even the smallest bag, and offers optimum drying speed and power to create a party-perfect "do" in no time at all.

Present for packers and pretty partiers

Heading home for the holidays, packers "in-the-know" will avoid a big headache by thinking small when they fill their suitcases.

"Bulging bag" blues — the kind that occur when you try to squeeze half of your closet and beauty "can't-do-without's" into one suitcase — can be outsmarted with a little pre-planning.

A dash of suitcase savvy mixed with a lot of discipline will help you win the battle of the bulge. For example, clothes that are neatly "rolled" instead of folded come out surprisingly unwrinkled.

And, keep in mind the magic word "compact" when it comes to your makeup and personal care appliances, recommend beauty experts at Gillette.

For those angels looking "homeward bound" this holiday season, Gillette has the perfect "packer's delight" — new Promax Compact, the small, lightweight 1,000 watt dryer that will never have to be left at home. Just one-half the size and weight of a professional hand dryer, Promax Compact will take up only a corner of your suitcase, and will never "bog" you down.

Promax Compact may be small — but it's mighty — offering up to 1,000 watts of drying power to speed up any perfect holiday "do."

Whether you sport a casual, breezy style, or opt for a more festive holiday coif, Promax Compact will make all of your "hair-doings" a snap.

So, before your holiday packing gets to be a big headache, think small — treat yourself to a new Promax Compact. It can follow you anywhere.

Elegant gifts of fashion for festive glamour!

Christmas is the time when most girls receive their diamond engagement ring — and, receiving a diamond for engagement is a tradition that dates back almost 500 years.

On August 14, 1477, Maximilian of Austria gave Mary of Burgundy the first diamond engagement ring — and thus a tradition was born!

Today, four out of five brides-to-be receive diamond rings to seal their engagement. However, unlike Max of Austria who surprised Mary with a ring, most young couples today shop for the ring together, making it a shared experience.

And, it is a wise well-informed young couple who educate themselves about diamonds before making that all-important purchase today. In recent years, the price of diamonds has increased along with everything else, and in today's economy, young men should expect to pay more than their older brothers did in past years.

In choosing a diamond engagement ring, keep in mind that it is the diamond that is forever — not the mounting into which the diamond is set. If you choose a heavy or wide gold band, you will be getting less diamond, as a greater proportion of the price is going into paying for the band.

The thinner and simpler the setting of the ring, the larger or better quality diamond you can expect to buy for your money. For example, a good quality half-carat diamond ring costs $600 and up today.

What should you know about diamonds if you plan to buy one this Christmas? How can you be sure of receiving good value for your money?

First, educate yourself by knowing something about diamonds. No two diamonds in the world are the same. Each diamond has a personality of its own. That's why prices vary. Even two diamonds of the same size have different qualities of color, clarity and brilliance, and each will be priced differently.

The larger the diamond, the scarcer it is — and the higher its price per carat. For example, a two-carat stone costs much more than twice as much as a one-carat stone of the same quality.

Second, when you're ready to choose your diamond, the man to see is a reliable jeweler. He's the diamond expert. Let him explain the differences in carat weight, clarity, color and cut that determines the price of each stone.

CARAT, the first of the Four C's, is the unit of weight for diamonds. A carat is equal to 200 milligrams, and there are 142 carats in the avoirdupois ounce.

The carat is further divided into 100 "points," like the cents in a dollar. A 45-point diamond weighs a little less than half a carat. (The average size of an engagement ring in this country is about 47 points.)

Most diamonds described as white are nearly colorless but have a slight tinge of color. This color adds warmth to each diamond's unique "personality." Completely colorless, icy-white diamonds are very rare and are priced accordingly.

White diamonds with a tinge of blue — known as "blue-white" — are rarer still — perhaps one in many hundred thousands. The variations in color are often so slight they can be detected only by an expert under special lights.

CLARITY. Most diamonds contain natural imperfections — spots, bubbles or lines included in the stone when it was crystallized from carbon millions of years ago.

Where such "inclusions" do not interfere materially with the passage of light through the stone, they do not affect its beauty. However, the fewer inclusions in a diamond, the more valuable it is.

A "flawless" diamond — one that shows no imperfections to a trained eye using 10-power magnification — is very rare. Many people believe that a diamond which is not flawless must have flaws or weaknesses. Inclusions are imperfections, but they are not necessarily weaknesses.

A diamond does not have to be flawless to be beautiful. In a sense, the inclusions in a diamond are its fingerprints, and like fingerprints, no two are alike.

CUT. This refers both to the make of a diamond, or the way the facets are arranged, and to its shape.

Diamonds are cut according to an exact mathematical formula that places the facets (or surfaces) of the diamond in precise relations to each other. The standard diamond cut has 58 facets.

For a diamond to have a perfect make, the angles between any two facets must be accurate to within half a degree. This will produce the greatest fire and brilliance. Anything less reduces both the beauty and value of a diamond.

"Cut" also refers to the shape of the finished diamond. The round (or "brilliant" cut) is the most popular of all the shapes. The oval is an elongated round. The marquise is an oval with points at both ends, and the pear-shape is round at one end and pointed at the other.

The heart-shape is a pear-shape with a notch in the round end. The emerald-cut is rectangular, with facets on the sides and ends and across the corners. And recently, a new shape has been developed — the star-shape with either 5 or 6 points.

The more you know about a diamond, the more you will appreciate yours — for each diamond is a work of art, nature's original.

A GIFT TO SHARE — Matching wedding bands with a rich frosting of tiny diamonds make an ideal gift for couples looking for something special to give each other this Christmas, reports the Jewelry Industry Council. The old world custom of exchanging matching wedding bands is pleasantly (and handsomely!) updated in today's his and her diamond encrusted wedding bands.

Christmas coupling: a diamond ring duo

Contrary to that old axiom about "young men's fancies," it's Christmas time, not Springtime, when many young men choose to give their intended that very special diamond engagement ring, says the Jewelry Industry Council.

And because of this, it's not so surprising that Christmas is the engagement anniversary of many of today's young marrieds.

The Council suggests matching wedding rings as an ideal gift for couples who mark the yuletide as their betrothal date (and also for marrieds, both old and young, who are romantic and intend to remain so!).

Matching wedding rings, once an old world custom, are coming back into vogue today, but they are not the somber, heavy gold circlets of yesteryear. They are beautifully designed diamond studded rings that are as modern as tomorrow.

The rings, suitably masculine for him, and scaled down to an elegant slim version for her, are handsomely set with rich pavés of diamonds.

Even engagement rings today are not typecast in the well known Tiffany setting, but sparkle in exciting new designs of many small diamonds.

There's a double benefit to this —her ring needn't look like anyone else's, and he can afford to give her tiny diamonds in an interesting personalized design.

Here's another gift idea for husbands who may have given their wives the traditional single diamond engagement ring — they can update the ring and give it a more glamorous look with the new wedding rings that fit around the engagement ring, creating a dazzling diamond array that gives the look of luxury for a modest price.

So whether you're soon to be wed, or happily married this Christmas, let diamonds reaffirm your belief that your love, like diamonds, is precious and will last forever.

Toyland for boys, girls, and grownups, too!

Hamsters leave their cages and 'hit the road' for fun

What do you do with a hamster? You can clean up his cage, change his cage, change his water, feed him, or hold him in your hand.

For real excitement, you can watch him spin around in his exercise wheel. What then?

Hamsters have lots of excess energy, and now a new set of hamster racers puts that energy to work, making friends and playmates of the hamster and its young owner. New this year, a pair of "Habitrail" racers are cleverly designed vehicles that run efficiently on one h.p. — hamster power, of course.

The racers come in two sleek models: "Wildfire" and "Speed Streak." Kids can show off their pets' locomotive powers in hamster races, or just let the hamster travel harmlessly around the house, exploring new territory.

In some instances, hamsters have been known to race the cars for hours, but half-hour races are recommended. And, when fatigue sets in, the hamster generally curls up and goes to sleep right inside his vehicle.

The "Habitrail" racers are two of a complete series of "Living World" hamster environments. A third, related new product for this Christmas is the "Habitrail" "Express," a brightly-colored, hamster-powered locomotive also priced at well under $10.

Other environments include a variety of cages, tunnels, toys, exercise wheels and related accessories that help get the hamster out of the traditional wire cage and into a world of fun and excitement for animal and child alike.

Hamsters should live longer, happier lives in "Habitrail" sets, which duplicate as closely as possible the animal's natural environment.

NEW FOR CHRISTMAS: An exciting new product that adds an entirely new dimension to pet ownership, this "Habitrail" racer enables child and hamster to play together as never before.

Crawl back into bed!

FORGET IT, FELLA, it's just not your day. How do you know? A revolutionary new calculator, called a Casio BIOLATOR, actually computes your biorhythm. This perfect gift item tells you just how you're going to be physically, emotionally and intellectually. All this according to the biorhythm theory. Casio, Inc., one of the world's leading manufacturers of calculators and digital watches, developed this unique machine that allows the user to chart his present and future conditions, thereby enabling him to adjust his actions accordingly. Just in case you're wondering what to do if the BIOLATOR indicates that it's going to be "critical" for you in all three categories . . . you might stay in bed and figure out your bank statement or checkbook balance because the BIOLATOR serves as a handy 8-digit, 4-function (add, subtract, multiply and divide) calculator as well. If you're feeling low financially, you'll be glad to know this latest powerhouse of biological and mathematical wizardry retails nationally for under $30.

Christmas fish story: all swam happily ever after

At or near the top of most "Dear Santa" lists each year is a family pet of one form or another. Among the most popular pets requested each Christmas: tropical fish.

In the past, the gift of a tankful of fish on December 25 signaled the start of an ongoing effort to clean the tank, change the water, and perform various other maintenance chores soon after the excitement of Christmas fades.

NO FISH STORY: The "UniQuarium" aquarium new for Christmas 1976, is a dramatic new invention that has virtually eliminated the tubing, wiring, algae and cleanup chores normally associated with enjoying tropical fish. Everything that's needed to maintain the fishes' life-support system is neatly stored in a drawer under the tank.

An industry first

The introduction of a revolutionary new aquarium from the world's foremost maker of tropical fish products signals an end to the "old world" fishtank: an algae-choked mess with unsightly tubes, air pumps and hoses running every which way. But more important, the new development — an industry first — has put an end to the problem.

While the family fish will always need feeding, great strides have been taken to eliminate care and maintenance from the list of post-holiday chores.

A product of more than three years of research and development efforts by the industry-leading Metaframe Corporation, the product, brand-new for this Christmas, has been dubbed the "Living World" "UniQuarium" aquarium.

Self-contained

A handsome, hexagonal tank suitable for fresh or salt water residents, the new aquarium is totally free of the Rube Goldberg-ish apparatus normally woven around the outside of a properly-equipped tropical fishtank.

Unlike any other popularly-priced aquarium on the market, the new product is totally self-contained, with all pumping and filtration equipment nestled out of sight in a drawer beneath the tank.

The resultant aquarium is one of the most versatile decorative accessories ever invented. While conventional aquariums had to be displayed against a wall to hide the wires and tubing, this "state of the art" tank can be used as a room divider, a central conversation piece, or the focal point of almost any room in the house.

Fish can be seen from all six sides of the tank, and the completely-hidden life support systems are readily accessible.

The unique system of lighting the "UniQuarium" from the bottom produces a near stagelike effect that enhances the beauty of fish and fishtank alike.

The engineering which made the clean, contemporary design of the new aquarium possible is also responsible for its easy installation and maintenance. No complicated set-up procedure is required, and the entire system can be installed within minutes.

Heat, light, and air control are all totally automated and practically foolproof, and required maintenance is at an absolute minimum, as well.

For a free, full-color booklet about the "UniQuarium" and tropical fish, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Metaframe, P.O. Box 323, Radio City Station, New York, New York 10019.

A gift of a musical instrument, accessory or sheet music can fit almost any budget, and is appropriate for every member of the family.

Before you decide on which musical gift to give, pay a visit to your local music store and browse around.

True vs. toy

Keep one important rule in mind. Experts recommend that even for very young children you select a true, even though scaled-down instrument rather than a toy.

Toy pianos and even drums, for example, have a poor tone and produce harsh, unattractive sounds. Real instruments, according to the American Music Conference, help children develop an "ear" for correct tones, and when played properly give back music rather than out-of-key sounds.

Low-priced favorites

Harmonicas, long a favorite of just about everyone, make excellent stocking stuffers. Good beginning models range in price from $2 to $12 while more sophisticated models for the skilled musician can cost as much as $50.

Percussion instruments are very popular with youngsters. Bells, tambourines, xylophones, small snare drums, tone blocks, triangles and rhythm sticks can be purchased in sets or separately, some for under $2. Sets usually cost about $10 to $20.

Tonette for tots

For the youngest members of the family (3-4 years of age), the tonette makes an ideal musical gift. This rather simple member of the recorder family teaches correct fingering and breath control helpful later in learning a brass or woodwind instrument and most often sells for under $2.

Likewise, a recorder available in plastic or wood and in a variety of sizes makes an excellent gift for youngsters four years and older, selling in the $2 to $10 range.

Fretted collection

Even if the teen in your household has a guitar, don't overlook the possibilities of getting an electric guitar, or even building a collection of fretted instruments. Dulcimers and mandolins are enjoying new popularity, and are great fun to play.

If there's a school band member in your house, consider a new trumpet, drum set, or violin. And for the electronic wizard there's the synthesizer, a gift that can start at about $500 and move on up to $5,000.

Piano's still first

If you don't already have one, this should be the year for a gift of music every member of the family can enjoy. Pianos are still the "first instrument" in music study for most youngsters and the instrument played by nearly 18 million Americans.

The electronic organ, which today offers a dazzling variety of instrumental and rhythm effects, puts a whole combo in your home.

Many accessories add fun

Sheet music starting at $2 is another good choice for someone already involved with music — from the instrumentalist to the choir singer.

Inexpensive accessories make good gifts also. Mouthpieces, metronomes, piano lights, foot pedals, carrying bags and cases are all welcome presents.

And while you're wrapping a musical gift for someone else, think of yourself. By starting to practice now on an instrument of your own, you'll be able to play Christmas carols for the rest of your family next year.

POPULAR GIFTS for that hard-to-please person on your Christmas list — versatile radios by Zenith. Both multiband receiver (top) and full-size AM/FM radio (center) are models with AFC and RF stage on FM; both have black cabinets with chrome trim, and operate from either household current or from batteries (not included). Electronic digital clock radio (bottom) uses light emitting diode numerals and a unique Zenith-designed Power Reserve circuit to keep clock operating during power failure or interruption. It has a simulated wood cabinet in grained walnut color.

Wake up Christmas with a clock radio

International shortwave receivers, public service band receivers, AM/FM full-size portables, table radios, digital clock radios, weather receivers, all come in various sizes and shapes to fit various budgets. Some combine several receiver functions in one model.

The hottest item this season in home radios is the electronic digital clock radio. Zenith has several models, all featuring a new electronic digital clock and a unique "Power Reserve" circuit.

The electronic clock features numerals incorporating the use of light emitting diodes which display the time and indicate AM or PM.

The Power Reserve keeps the clock functioning up to four hours in the event of a power failure or interruption. If a power failure does occur, the lighted digits on the clock face disappear, but a special rechargeable battery takes over as the power source for the clock circuit.

When AC power returns, the digits reappear and a flashing indicator warns that a power interruption has occurred. This continues until the time set control is pushed to reset the clock circuit.

The clock also operates silently, without the sometimes disturbing low volume noise associated with mechanical clocks.

The dandy candy tree

Looking for something different in Christmas decorations? Make colorful candy Christmas balls to hang from the tree or scatter around the house for an extra bright note.

All you need is some net material (red, green, or any other color that suits you), some bright Christmas ribbon, and bags of "penny candy" in all different colors and varieties (the wrapped candy is probably the best idea, for the sake of freshness).

Cut the net into large squares (at least one foot square to allow for plenty of room for the edges to be tucked in with ribbon). Fill the center of these squares with the candy, then bring up the edges and tie.

It might be wise to first tie your "candy balls" with string or fasten them with rubber bands for extra security before you tie on the ribbon.

Make your bows, then hang them on the tree or strew them around the tables.

PUZZLED ABOUT WHAT TO GET the high school or college-age son or daughter for Christmas — a small-screen black-and-white television set. This one, by Zenith, plays indoors on AC household current, or on the 12-volt electrical system of an automobile. An optional battery pack (shown attached to receiver) allows the set to be operated up to four hours outdoors, at a picnic, at the beach, anywhere a television signal can be received.

Listen to this!

THE SOUNDS OF CHRISTMAS will be brighter than ever through a gift of Koss Stereophones. And because stereophones let the listener enjoy music privately, they also offer a silent night all through the house to those who prefer it. In addition to privacy, stereophones will give the listener a new experience in personal listening pleasure. They provide a unique way to achieve the highest possible sound quality at the preferred volume level. The quality of sound they deliver equals that of the most expensive speakers available at a fraction of the cost. They fit any stereo or hi-fi system and, with a "mini" plug adapter, can be used with most radios and many television sets. Available in 18 models, Koss Stereophones sound like a great Christmas gift idea.

Home workshop-in-a-case

YOU CAN DO ALMOST EVERYTHING in home maintenance, hobbies and crafts with this 47-piece Weller Mini-Shop Kit. With its variety of interchangeable attachments and high speed 120-volt power unit, it will sand, carve, cut, polish, drill, sharpen, shape, and more. You can go from one operation to another in seconds, all the time it takes to change from sander to drill. The instruction manual tells "how to." See the Mini-Shop at your hardware store — it's about $50 and a fine gift for all the family.

Turn on to a tuned-in Christmas with color TV!

If you are thinking of buying a new color television set for Christmas this year, you're in for a pleasant surprise.

Today's color TV sets come in several screen sizes, portable models as small as 13-inch and 17-inch diagonal, table models in 19-, 23- and 25-inch diagonal, and furniture styled consoles in 23- and 25-inch diagonal screen sizes.

Recent developments in television receivers make them easier to operate, have brighter pictures, and perform functions not thought possible a few years ago.

Special circuits in the system also adjust the incoming signal for oversaturation of color from moment to moment and scene to scene; balance colors in the picture for lifelike flesh tones; lock in pre-programmed color levels, and maintain factory-set light-to-dark picture contrast. This automatic picture control system is available on selected 19-inch and all 25-inch diagonal Zenith color TV sets for 1977.

Electronic tuning provides consistent reception of the strongest signal possible for the TV set. This feature, called Electronic Video Guard, is included in over 85% of Zenith's color TV line. Most models have a one-knob version where both VHF and UHF channels are selected by one knob, making it more convenient to tune in the viewer's favorite stations.

There's even a push-button channel selection on some sets to tune to the desired station noiselessly and directly without cycling through other channels.

But the big news in TV remote control is the Space Command® 1000 remote control system. It has a full six-function remote transmitter that operates silently to turn the set on or off, adjusts volume to four levels, switches channels in both directions, and mutes sound completely.

Finally, this remote system has a ZOOM feature which gives the viewer an instant close-up when the ZOOM button is pressed. The ZOOM picture is 50% larger. Pressing the ZOOM button again returns the picture to its original size.

The spirit of Christmas is for all: remember those less fortunate

It's Christmas Eve, and no matter how blasé or sophisticated one tries to be, the heart beats a trifle faster and the cheeks flush with excitement.

These are the anxious moments of "whom did I forget?" and "did I remember to put that special card inside his/her package?" and "I hope everything will be right."

This should also be the time to remember those less fortunate — friends in the hospital, friends who have recently lost a loved one, friends who are going through a trying period.

Phone someone who may be lonely. Pay a short visit to someone who is confined to bed or is unable to leave the house.

And give a cheery smile and a happy "Merry Christmas" to those who work so that others may enjoy this day.

That's the spirit of Christmas.

We've got what you want.

GIVING YOUR GUY THE BEST this Christmas doesn't have to break your budget. Choose one of these luxury items that each are the best of their kind: Leather driving gloves, a real cashmere scarf, or a sterling silver belt buckle (left) are little ways to add elegance to everyday dressing. A hand-made pencil holder or hand knit socks (far left) are a gift of your priceless time. A Remington Soft Touch Razor (center) is a gift of a guaranteed great shave. Anything from Tiffany is a treat, like a sterling silver pen (right). Help him live it up. Even a meat and potatoes man will know what to do with English tea, real French champagne, or Russian caviar (right). You can afford the best seats in the house once a year — it will make you both feel like royalty.

Parents should remember to buy with children in mind!

It's a scene parents like to see on Christmas Day — the kids happily playing with the new toys that Santa spent many thoughtful hours selecting. Somehow the weeks of Christmas preparations all seem worthwhile.

How can parents insure this kind of Merry Christmas in '76? Mr. William Garrity, President of Schaper, the company famous for its "Cootie" game, says, "It's difficult enough selecting gifts for friends of your own age and interests, but children are a completely different story.

"Perhaps the best advice for parents is to avoid the tendency to buy games and toys they think children should like instead of what the children really seem interested in."

This is especially important, Garrity notes, with pre-school children. Games for this age group, like "Get Off My Back" and "Jack and Jill," should be colorful and fast-moving, with concepts the kids can grasp easily.

Children should be able to enjoy the games without assistance from adults.

Games such as "Don't Break the Ice," "Ants in the Pants," "Don't Blow Your Top," and "Twizzle" don't require reading skills for proper play so children can play independently.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS: Careful selection of games that match a child's age group, reading abilities, and other important strengths will make Christmas and the many months to come happier and more enjoyable for parent and child alike; so says William Garrity, president of Schaper, a leading toy company.

This category of games provides a kind of activity that is an important part of growing up. Garrity notes that "they teach social disciplines such as sharing, turn-taking, and group cooperation, essentials at this point in child development."

"Get Off My Back" features a cantankerous turtle who sits and sits while players load pelicans onto his back. When the turtle has had enough, he signals it by scurrying under a log, knocking the pelicans off. The player who places the pelican which chases the turtle away, is the loser.

Other games like "Cat in the Bag," "Ants in the Pants," "Don't Blow Your Top" and "Cootie" combine suspense, strong visual appeal and lots of laughs.

The fine art of giving the ever-popular piano

So you'd like to get your wife something unusual for Christmas, something she'll cherish and use, something she'd never buy for herself. Have you considered a gift-wrapped piano?

A lot of husbands are doing just that, according to the National Piano Manufacturers Association. Sales and rentals of pianos go up each December, and many of the purchasers and renters are husbands selecting Christmas gifts for wives.

"They're absolutely thrilled when they find a piano in their living room, wrapped in cellophane and tied with a big red bow," says Bob Schmitt, Minneapolis music dealer.

"Of course you can't hide a piano under the bed until Christmas morning, so if it's going to be a surprise, we try to deliver it the day before. Sometimes we have to time our deliveries down to the wire, to get the wife and kids out of the house while we move the piano in."

Gift-wrapping and surprise deliveries also apply to rented Christmas pianos, according to most dealers surveyed by the Association.

Many people prefer to rent a piano on a trial basis for a few months. If they decide to keep it, the rental fee can be applied to the purchase price.

Wives aren't the only ones to be surprised by a piano at Christmastime. Parents often buy pianos for youngsters, and Schmitt says that "every once in a while, grandparents will buy two or three at a time — one for each set of grandchildren."

Piano dealers make a special effort to help the husband whose intentions are good but who's confused about whether his wife might prefer a spinet or an upright, an Italian Provincial or country oak case.

Many have an exchange policy—if the style doesn't fit in with the furniture at home, they'll replace it with another model.

For spouses, parents, and grandparents who are considering buying a piano as a Christmas gift, the piano manufacturers have these suggestions:

Because it is such a complicated instrument — a piano contains from 8,000 to 12,000 hand-fitted parts — and because it represents a considerable investment, buying from a reputable dealer is enormously important.

A good dealer will point out the differences in tone between different models, and will question you about who plays the piano in your house and how much use it will get, to determine which model is most suitable for you.

"I tell my customers, 'Buy the best piano you can afford,'" says Chicago keyboard merchandise manager Dick Borman. "You don't trade a piano in like you do a car, or replace it like a sofa.

In the lower price ranges — $700 to $900 — Borman recommends that purchasers "pay special attention to construction. A piano is a tension instrument, so construction has got to be strong. All those strings are pulling like mad, putting tons of pressure on the soundboard."

Though it's true that a piano lasts for generations, on Christmas Day your family will want to play it right away. So buy some Christmas carol sheet music and tuck it in the piano bench.

While you're at it, you might buy some gift certificates for piano lessons — and by next Christmas, everyone in your family will be able to play carols.

A stocking of a different style

"The stockings were hung by the chimney with care . . . " It's a great Christmas tradition, but what about the many Christmas-lovers with no fireplace? All the better!

A Christmas stocking can be as much fun to place and as creatively challenging as an Easter basket!

Hang all of the family's stockings on the bedroom doors for an instant Christmas morning surprise. Or hide them, Easter basket fashion, for some extra excitement.

A gentleman's guide to the 'crystal jungle'

You consider yourself a competent man. Suddenly you are surrounded by a strange and confusing environment. Panic sets in. You become incoherent. You begin to feel that people are staring at you, watching you, even mocking you.

A bad dream? A hostile office scene? A confrontation with the boss? No! You're only trying to select a bottle of perfume for your lady love!

Relax! Those women in smocks behind the counters have been very well trained to help everyone (including flustered and blushing males) find just exactly the right purchase.

Steel yourself! Walk up to the counter and explain your problem. She will more than likely be very sympathetic. And she will undoubtedly ask you two questions for which you must brace yourself.

First, she'll want to know what fragrance you're looking for (of course, you really don't know — you want to say "something wild and exotic," but you don't dare!).

She will then begin to ask a few questions and make a few suggestions. Listen carefully — she's really trying to help! She may ask you "what type of woman" you are gifting. This is not an attempt to snoop into your private life; it's a genteel way of finding out whether this gift is intended for your mother, Aunt Emma, grandmother, wife or girlfriend.

The age and relationship will give her a key as to the type of fragrance that might appeal to her. It's that simple!

Finally, when you've picked the scent, she'll want to know whether you want perfume, eau de toilette, cologne. Simple—they are just variations in strength of the fragrance. Pick the one that suits your budget.

Then smile, relax, and rest assured that you've done the best you can!

STOCKING STUFFER

The thought behind each gift is more important than the size or the price tag. One suggestion for a truly thoughtful gift is a subscription to this newspaper.

A gift subscription may not be the most glamorous gift on December 25th. But it will be an every day reminder of your thoughtfulness through the coming months. Friends, relatives and former residents will really appreciate the thought behind your gift.

We will be happy to aid you in your gift-giving this year. We will send an attractive gift card announcing your gift to the persons you have selected. Call our Circulation Department for full details.

Time-honored traditions are heart of the holiday season, creating warm atmosphere

No matter how sophisticated or worldly-wise, there isn't a family that does not enjoy the sentimentality of the holiday season. Fashions may come and go, but time-honored traditions are the very heart of the holiday season, sure to endure for generations to come.

Creating a holiday atmosphere that contributes to the warmth and conviviality of gatherings with family and friends is an important part of this sentimental season..

There is not a room in the house that cannot benefit from holiday sparkle. Beginning in the foyer strung with fir garlands a traditional tall case clock scaled by Ridgeway for today's homes can chime the passing hours till Santa's arrival.

Special foods; cookies, fruitcake and plum pudding, not to mention a traditional goose or turkey deserve a decorative setting equal to holiday fare itself. This is one time of year to let the table itself gleam in the holiday atmosphere.

The warmth of solid woods and contrasting veneer bandings in Hickory Furniture Company's "Forum" group that contributes to year-round warmth for family meals is especially appropriate for a traditional holiday feast. In between meals, place settings can be marked with red and green ribbons and tree ornament balls fanning out from the center of the table.

To many homes the tradition of the holidays is expressed with a decorated tree. No matter how small the room, there is a tree to fit the spot.

A tall slender tree set near a window can cast a twinkling glow inside and out. The only other illumination needed is a table lamp fashioned by Stiffel with a 3-way switch set on the lowest mood setting.

Traditional holidays can be celebrated too in non-traditional surroundings. Sunshine areas have been known to transform a palm tree into a reasonable facsimile of the time-honored tannenbaum. Practical plastic furniture like Syroco's Lifestyle group in gleaming white is a perfect foil for holiday reds and greens.

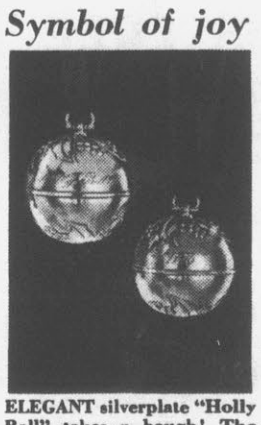
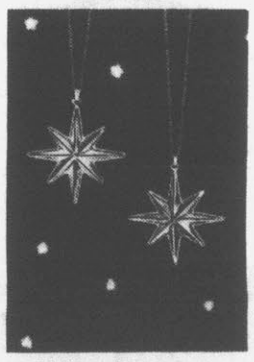
Symbol of joy



ELEGANT silverplate "Holly Ball" takes a bough! The first in an annual series of limited editions by Reed & Barton, it will adorn a Christmas tree, wreath or window. A symbol of joy and eternal life, holly has long been a favorite Yuletide tradition in America. $13.95.

Wondrous star



THE HAUNTING STORY of the wondrous Star of Bethlehem is captured in this sterling silver pendant by Reed & Barton. First in an annual series, the 1976 Christmas Star is a hallmarked limited edition. It's jewelry, tree ornament, or wreath/window display. $8.95; chain, $1.00.

Silver cross

CHRISTMAS CROSS is sixth in an annual series, in richly detailed sterling silver by Reed & Barton. This limited edition is a stylized reproduction of a hand-carved architectural rosette that adorns England's Chester Cathedral. It can be jewelry or tree ornament. $13.95; chain, $2.00.

Tot-sized tree tips

One of the biggest charms of the Christmas season is the ceremony of decorating the house and trimming the tree. And these activities are especially fun for children.

The kids may want to create their own Christmas decorations; if they do, here are some ideas:

- If you can get fresh cranberries, string them together on a piece of sturdy thread to make "necklaces" for the tree, the mantelpiece, etc. Use a strong needle, but a thin one; and a thimble is helpful for tender fingers. If you want to be really fancy, alternate cranberries with popcorn on the string!
- Make your own Christmas balls for the tree. You can get kits for these (usually they have a styrofoam ball and various ribbons and spangles); or, build your own from construction paper, painted cardboard, cloth, tinfoil, or whatever.
- Learn to make origami—the delightful birds and other creatures the Japanese make from folded paper.

A Typical North Carolina 'Working Harbor'

Wanchese Harbor Faces Modernization

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

Many of North Carolina's small harbors are basically oriented to tourism—neat, modern docking places for sports fishermen and pleasure boats; places that draw summer crowds of sightseers and photographers.

Wanchese, on the southern tip of historic Roanoke Island, on the other hand, is typical of the "working harbors" of North Carolina. For generations, fathers and sons, uncles and cousins on Roanoke Island have gone to sea and returned home to the Wanchese harbor.

Even today, it is estimated that about 90 per cent of the village's families have at least one family member engaged in the fishing industry.

Trawlers and other types of fishing vessels bear descriptive names like "Country Cousin," "R. Dream," and "Captain Pete."

The harvest these sturdy men bring in from the sea in all seasons is as varied as the names of their boats. Depending on the time of year, they return to Wanchese loaded with scallop or shrimp, flounder or trout, bluefish or even squid.

Fishing is not the only work carried on at the Wanchese harbor. There's boat construction; and in between fishing trips the crew members turn their talents to repair and maintenance work needed to keep the expensive boats in top condition.

The passing years have not witnessed many physical changes in the basic facilities at Wanchese. Sometimes, when bad weather or a holiday bring the boats all back home to port, it gets a little crowded, with anywhere from 75 to 100 boats, many of them of a goodly size, jockeying for berthing space.

Now, in late 1976 after years of being in the talked-about and planning stages, concrete action is being taken to transform the old Wanchese harbor into a more modern fishing port.

Vera Evans, managing editor of Manteo's "Coastland Times" newspaper, outlined some of the highlights of developments and touched on the current status of the Wanchese Harbor Project.

"In the past years, the state has put in money for planning and for preparatory work," Mrs. Evans said. "The idea of the whole project is to widen and deepen Oregon Inlet, and to put in a jetty to protect the inlet against shoaling.

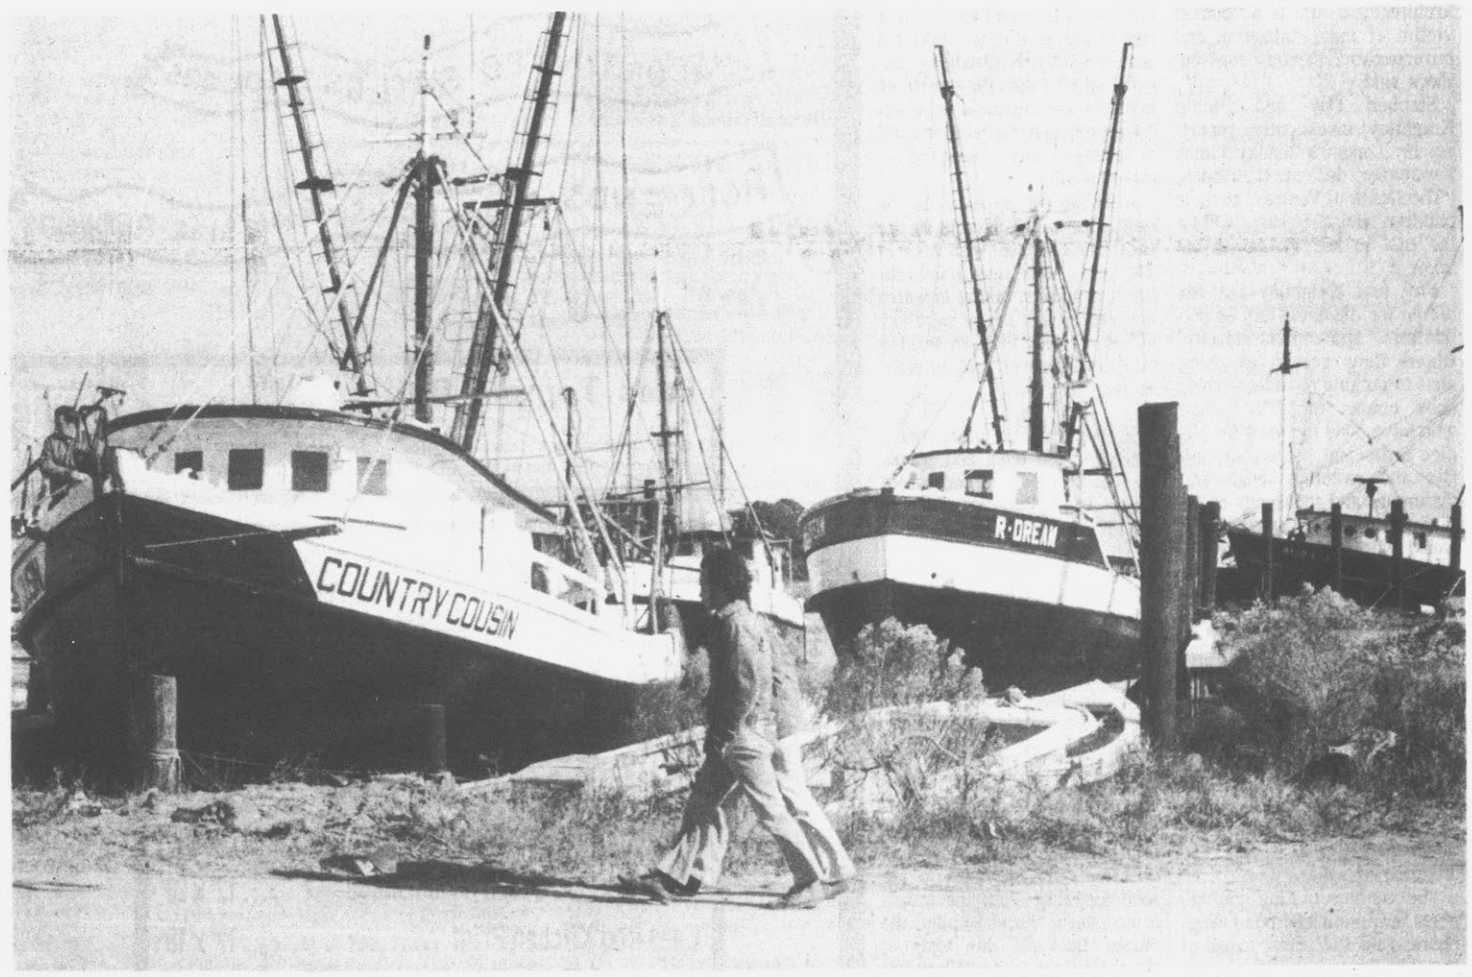
"Plans also call for a deeper, wider channel into Wanchese, the building of new docks, and the building of several seafood plants."

Mrs. Evans explained that since there are no seafood processing plants at Wanchese, "fishermen have to unload their catch quickly and take it to some other place for processing."

The inlet-harbor project, which has progressed slowly to date, should now move ahead with impetus, Mrs. Evans believes. "It was only this week," she said, "that the Ports Authority took over the responsibility of acquiring necessary land. They will deed it back to the Department of Natural and Economic Resources who will provide property necessary for the seafood industrial complex." She mentioned that another important issue, that of where to put the spoil from dredging, "has been settled."

Wanchese natives have mixed emotions about the modernization of their harbor. An older fisherman commented: ' "Maybe it'll work, but it won't be the same any more." A younger, bearded fisherman voiced a contrasting viewpoint. "It will be a good thing for all of us. I think once it's finished, everybody here will be happy about it. Fishing's not an easy life, and this will make it easier for us."

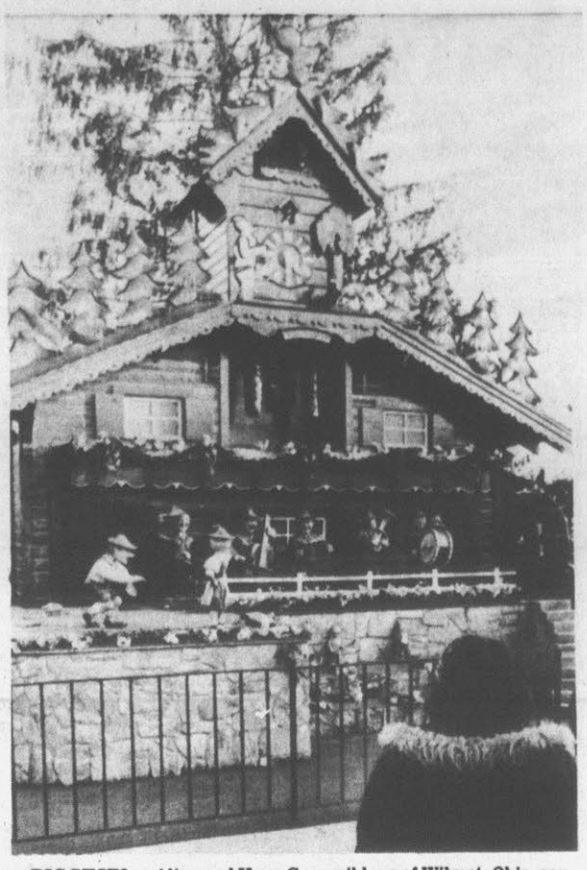
Whatever the final result may be, chances are that Wanchese, even with modernization, will remain a port with its special appeal of an abundance of colorful boats and equally colorful characters among its crew members.



DESCRIPTIVE NAMES . . . such as "Country Cousin" and "R. Dream" are typical of names given trawlers and other fishing vessels. The two crewmen in the foreground, hands in pockets, walk at a brisk pace in a cool waterfront breeze.

HEAVY METAL CYLINDERS . . . are indicative of bulky and expensive materials that go into construction and repair work on older vessels.

SHORT-BODIED, MANEUVERABLE . . . equipment for loading and unloading ships at Wanchese.



BIGGEST? — Alice and Hans Grossniklaus of Wilmot, Ohio, say the cuckoo clock at their cheesemaking center is the world's largest at 23½ feet tall and 24 feet wide. It was built at a cost of $50,000 over a 12-year period by Karl Schleutermann of Berea, who died before finishing it, and John Weaver, who completed the job. — Its five-piece band and two dancers were handcarved in the Black Forest of Germany. It also keeps good time, the owners say. (AP Wirephoto)

TAIWAN TOURISM

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — A total of 728,648 tourists visited Taiwan during the first nine months of this year, an increase of 114,853 persons or 18.7 per cent over the same period last year, according to the Tourism Bureau.

It said in September alone, tourist arrivals amounted to 74,588, up 7.8 per cent over the corresponding month of 1975.

Say Venice A Dying City

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — "Venice is dying and there is no hope of saving her," two British journalists have asserted in a new book.

The Italian city, founded 15 centuries ago on islands in a lagoon and hailed as the world's most comprehensive work of architectural art, is a doomed victim of industrialization and bureaucratic inertia, the authors said.

Stephen Fay and Phillip Knightley, investigative reporters for London's Sunday Times newspaper, dedicate their book, "The Death of Venice," to their children who, they say, "will be the last to see Venice as we know it."

Fay and Knightley put the blame for the dying city on politicians and industrialists, whom they accuse of doing next to nothing to save it. Their book claims that the people who have done the most for Venice are scientists, art specialists and restorers, engineers, diplomats and thousands of ordinary persons around the world who may never see the city, but who care enough for the universal cultural heritage to give money to "Save Venice" appeals.

Other cities have problems but they are not built on water. Some places in Venice have sunk six inches in the past 17 years and the area of the city covered by tides is three times greater than it was 50 years ago.

The authors, citing the reports of Italian and other engineers, said the prime cause of the subsidence is the extraction of underground fresh water for industry by the expanding mainland port of Marghera, across the lagoon.

In a world of exploding cities, Venice is not. In 1950 there were 184,447 persons living in the historic center. By 1974 the population had fallen to 105,656. The main reason for the exodus is bad housing, damp and decay.

The city was safe in the past because its seaward defenses were maintained. Neglect of the sea walls, combined with a rise in the level of the Adriatic sea, subsidence, dredging for ever bigger ships, the growth of industry and chemical pollution have produced "mile after mile of rotting beauty" along the famous canals.

Although it appears to be built of stone, Venice is 90 per cent brick, faced with stucco. The early Venetians knew that brick is porous, taking in water and carrying it up by capillary action. So they built on wooden piles, about seven feet by eight inches.

Several layers of planks were laid over the piles and bricks on top. One or two courses of stone were inserted in the bricks, to make an effective damp course.

But when flooding occurs, the salt water from the lagoon enters the brick work above the damp course and then rises naturally up as high as 10 to 15 feet.

Salt water would be bad enough but the lagoon is polluted with discharges from Porto Marghera. The brickwork is impregnated with salt and chemicals. It continues to absorb moisture from the humid atmosphere, "turns to pulp, the stucco falls off, the ends of floor timbers and of iron tie rods are exposed to the ravages of the atmosphere — and the building is then well on the way to collapse," the book said.

The Compulsive Gambler Helped

NEWINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Jack W. won't say whether gambling is good or bad for others. "All I know is that I can't gamble. It controls me."

After 30 years of playing the horses, Jack has joined Gamblers Anonymous. He had lost more than $60,000 and almost lost his family, he said. Since joining GA two years ago, he hasn't wagered a dime, but he takes it "one day at a time."

Jack is one of about 30 men who meet every Friday night in a church here to discuss their common problem — compulsive gambling. Gamblers Anonymous has 83 chapters nationwide and helps people in much the same way that Alcoholics Anonymous does.

Jack and others in his group think that the state's inroads into legalized gambling will increase the number of people who may have to join GA.

He says he has about two more years to go before he is out of debt.

"I didn't care about the money I lost. It didn't mean anything to me. I used to lie to my wife, borrow and steal to gamble," he said.

No matter how much he won, it wasn't enough.

"If I won $500 or $1,000, the bookie (illegal bet taker) would have it back in two weeks. There is never enough money for the compulsive gambler. You want to be a big shot. You dream all the time of hitting it big enough to own a big house, yachts, there's no end to it," he said.

He said the worst part of his compulsive gambling was what it did to his wife and three children.

"I denied them things they could have had," he said. "There were times when I would come home with no check at all. We had to really scrape by."

But he said his ordeal ended, at least temporarily, after he joined Gamblers Anonymous.

Mike Lunsford Climbing Up To Top Of Talent

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mike Lunsford's first job as a country music singer in Nashville was at a strip tease joint.

"I didn't like it," he recalls. "I would play for 40 minutes and the girls would strip for 20. There were lots of dirty old men there. You could hear a lot of hollering for the girls. It didn't do much for your ego."

Lunsford no longer precedes G-strings and bumps and grinds. Just three years after performing at Sonny's Lounge, he's carving a reputation as one of country music's most promising young singers.

His "Honey Hungry" was a hit this fall, and his record company believes "Stealin' Feelin'," his current release, is even better.

"The disc jockeys are calling us now about his next song instead of us calling them," said Ken Rollins, promotion director for Gusto Records.

Lunsford, 26, says that he made other sacrifices besides filling in the gaps at Sonny's.

"I worked for a year for $150 a week," he said. "I didn't even have the money to buy a new pair of jeans. My wife didn't buy a new dress or any new clothes for a year."

He was driving an eight-year-old car that embarrassed him constantly. One time, he parked a block away from a booking agency so no one would see him driving it.

Another time, he got the opportunity to perform on the Grand Ole Opry but his car provided a contrast to the Cadillacs driven by most of the Opry stars.

"I pulled up to the backstage gate and told the guard I was performing," Lunsford recalled. "He looked at the car kind of suspiciously but finally waved me through. I waited until no one was around and jumped out."

Lunsford, against the wishes of his parents, left the Oklahoma panhandle for Nashville in 1973 with $500 in savings and "hidden confidence" he could be a successful country music singer.

"When I came here, I had no idea how successful I'd be, but I wanted nothing shorter than the top. If I were a carpenter, I'd want to build the best house."

Lunsford, a business administration graduate of Panhandle State College, describes his style as "modern country." His record company says he's most often compared to Conway Twitty.

"I sing country songs with today's polished flavor," he said. "To me, country music says what is happening to everyday people. Maybe it's the situation they're in —like divorce. It's American music — songs people can identify with."

"Honey Hungry" was about a couple's mutual love. "Stealin' Feelin'" concerns a husband cheating on his wife who believes his lies because of her love for him.

After his nightclub act, Lunsford plunges into the audience to shake hands with the patrons and thank them for coming.

Residents Want To Buy Up Town

By GARY R. PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

MONTELLO, Nev. (AP) — Residents of Montello can't call this tiny northeastern Nevada community their own because Southern Pacific Railroad owns a third of it. But they're hoping to buy the railroad out with a $20,000 loan from the county.

"A lot of people just decided it was time they owned their land instead of just leasing it," said Montello Justice of the Peace Del Pruitt. "We have lived here all these years and now we want to own our land."

Montello consists of about 320 acres and a water and sewer system on Nevada Route 30, about 20 miles north of Interstate 80 near the Idaho line. More than 100 of the 288 lots are leased from Southern Pacific.

The nearly 200 residents recently persuaded Elko County commissioners to pass a resolution lending them $20,196 to complete the deal — if the railroad decides to sell. The loan would be in the form of a short-term, no-interest note.

The town, once an exchange point where Southern Pacific crews spent the night between the West Coast and Ogden, Utah, is today just a shadow of its former self. It has a short main street with two bars, a cafe, a service station, motel and grocery store. Most residents are retirees who come here to enjoy nearby hunting and fishing areas.

When Southern Pacific abandoned steam engines in favor of diesel locomotives, the need for Montello and its water system was gone.

Recently a town committee pushing for ownership decided that about $20,000 was a fair price. They approached Elko attorney Gary DiGrazia, who lives about 100 miles way.

"They want some help," DiGrazia said. "Southern Pacific has been considering this for some time, but they won't say if they are going to sell."

Concorde Flight To Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Anglo-French supersonic Concorde aircraft will make its debut flight to Hong Kong for a demonstration this year.

A Civil Aviation Department spokesman said manufacturer of the aircraft, Aerospatial, applied on Sept. 26 for permission to land at Kaitak Airport, and approval has been granted in principle.

However, no date has been given when the Concorde will make its landing.

TOYOTA

ONE OF THE FINEST CARS IN THE WORLD

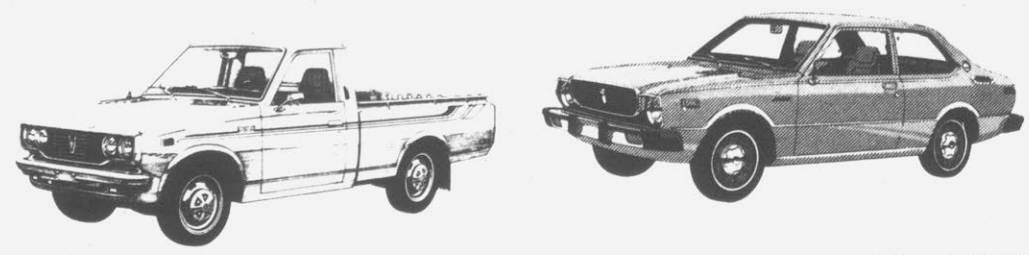
100,000 Miles Or 3 Years New Car Warranty

TARHEEL TOYOTA'S 100,000 MILE WARRANTY

For 100,000 miles or 3 years we guarantee the motor, transmission, and rear end of every new Toyota we sell. This warranty is in the form of a legal document and supplements the new car warranty of Toyota Motor Sales, USA. Commercial vehicles are excluded.

SPECIAL THANKSGIVING SAVINGS

On All Cars In Stock



USED CAR WARRANTY — 12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Of for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Trish Van Devere, George C. Scott Co-star In 'Beauty And The Beast'

BEAUTY MEETS BEAST — "Beauty and the Beast" starring Trish Van Devere and George C. Scott (airing Friday, Dec. 3, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Channels 6-7). lead a series of classical and contemporary drama specials to be televised on NBC-TV this season. Other specials to follow include — Mia Farrow in the title role of the new musical production of "Peter Pan" and Laurence Olivier as Big Daddy in a TV adaptation of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

How does an actor project when his face is covered from forehead to chin with a mask? "The eyes," said George C. Scott, who should know.

Scott's face was encased in a mask which had a long snout. tusks and a jutting jaw for his portrayal of The Beast in "Beauty and the Beast," the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special co-starring Trish Van Devere. The drama, based on the classic love story, will be colorcast Friday, Dec. 3, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7-28.

Scott said: "I think it was Laurence Olivier who told me some years ago, 'It's all with the eyes, isn't it?' Well, Olivier was right, as always. Obviously, wearing the mask was a challenge. I tried to communicate with my body movements, the tone of my voice . . .. and mostly with my eyes."

He had certain ideas about the mask design and discussed them with his Hollywood - based make - up man, Del Acevedo. "I went to Del with my idea of how I wanted it to look. Del arranged a meeting with John Chamberlain and Dan Striepeke, experts who worked on the 'Planet of the Apes' films. We all got together and worked it out."

Getting the mask designed and having 16 copies made (Scott wore a different one each day he was on the set) was only half the battle. Using the masks wasn't easy. He said: "Because of them, I had to be on the set each day at 6 a.m. It took three hours for full make-up. And it was difficult to wear a mask all day. At about 3:30 in the afternoon it would become downright irritable. It was like having a cast on and not being able to scratch."

Complications arose on location in England. "After a bit," Scott said, "I was in agony. My face became discolored and very painful. It was tough to work and I was ill for a few days. I went to a dermatologist for all sorts of tests. It seems I had developed an allergy to the cleanser I used to remove the glue which held the mask to my skin."

Playing The Beast was "a tremendous challenge," said Scott, who added: "I know somebody someplace is going to compare this with the Jean Cocteau surrealistic movie version of the story. I think that's a mistake. The two productions are not in the same genre. This is not a surrealistic approach. It is a straightforward adaptation for a family audience. We hope children will like it, as well as adults."

He described the story as "a classic on metamorphosis." Too often, the actor said, people just see things as they appear on the surface. "Sometimes things appear ludicrous, anti-social. But are they always so? If there is a moral in 'Beauty and the Beast' I suppose it's this: It is important to look at the soul rather than the surface."

'White Christmas Special' Airs

Bernadette Peters and Jackie Gleason join Bing Crosby when the literally legendary entertainer, who is marking his 50th anniversary in show business this year, headlines his 41st annual Christmas show, "Bing Crosby's White Christmas Special," an hour of song, humor and holiday festivity, to be presented Wednesday, Dec. 1, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

In the musical special, which is the 41st consecutive Crosby Christmas show since the "Groaner" began the tradition in radio in December 1935, the multi - award - winning star will also be joined by his wife, Kathryn, and their three children, sons Harry and Nathaniel, and daughter Mary Frances, plus a group of British choir boys.

In addition to "White Christmas," the song which has sold more records to date than any in the history of the recording business and which has been associated with Crosby since he introduced it in the film "Holiday Inn" in 1942, Crosby will sing such classics as "Silent Night" and a variety of other traditional Christmas carols. He will be joined in some numbers by other cast members.

Crosby and special guest Gleason also amble through such songs as "Put It There Pal," "A Pair of Loafers" and "Busy Doing Nothing," and are joined for the number "Style" by Miss Peters, who is starring in the new comedy series "All's Fair."

Miss Peters also sings "One" from "A Chorus Line," and joins Kathryn Crosby for "I Feel Pretty." She and the whole Crosby family get together for a medley of standards ranging from "Accentuate the Positive," "That Old Black Magic" and "Lazy Bones" to "Moon River" in a salute to songman Johnny Mercer.

Other highlights include a song and waltz duet of "I Love to Dance Like They Used to Dance" by Crosby and his wife.

Everybody Loves George

Everybody knows George Burns.

Most remember him as the straight man with his beloved Gracie Allen. Many know that he sings a mean rendition of "Red Rose Rage." A few know that the cigar-in-hand man was the executive genius behind many television comedy series. Movie buffs know that Burns won an Oscar for his performance in "The Sunshine Boys." Bookstore owners are aware he may be on the brink of becoming a best-selling author with his newly released "Living It Up: Or They Still Love Me In Altoona." But one thing that everybody knows is that he is one of the all-time greats of the entertainment world.

For television viewers, Burns is bringing his 80 years of experience with life and 73 years of show business expertise to the small screen Wednesday, Ded. 1, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11., in his own hour-long musical-variety special appropriately titled "The George Burns Comedy Special." Joining him will be his "Sunshine Boys" partner, Walter Matthau (making his singing and dancing debut), Johnny Carson, Madeline Kahn, and the Osmond Brothers.

To Burns, an audience can be one person or an auditorium of thousands. For his television special, it will be in the millions, but it's all the same to Burns. Burns says he tries to give love to his audience and all he hopes for in return is love.

THAT'S GEORGE — George Burns, with his name in lights, stars in the one-hour musical-variety program "The George Burns Special," Wednesday, Dec. 1 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

This love exchange recently manifested itself when Burns was the subject at one of the famous Hollywood Friars Club "roasts." But instead of "roasting," Burns received bouquets.

"They can say anything about me they want," Burns said to the audience at the Friars 30th anniversary dinner, "because it's all been said before." And many of his 700 friends in attendance, among them Don Rickles, Georgia Jessel, Milton sberle, Ray Botger and Phil Silvers, took him up on it. But with all the kidding going on, the evening was a celebration filled with love for the guest of honor.

It was Burns, who, standing alone with the inevitable cigar, sang a little ditty which topped the evening: "When you've been around as long as me — then everything's good news — but it's the only way to go — it's the only cream I know."

Carson, of course, is best known as the "King" of late-night television, and actress-singer-comedienne Madeline Kahn came to the nation's attention as a semi-regular on "The Merv Griffin Show" at the time it was on the network.

Goes To The Dogs

Through the years, Walt Disney Studios has relied on those performers with cold noses and tails that wag for the best in family entertainment. Of course, we're referring to the Disney dogs — Pluto, Lady and the Tramp, Old Yeller, the Shaggy Dog and many more.

Now these four - legged movie stars are honored with a special show when "The Wonderful World of Disney" presents a one - hour tribute to "Disney's Greatest Dog Stars," Sunday evening, Nov. 28, at 7 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7-28. It's an entertaining blend of live - action and animation highlighting magic moments from classics like the aforementioned "Lady and the Tramp," "Old Yeller," and a special preview of Disney's new comedy, "The Shaggy D.A."

In a canine combination of action, drama, comedy and warmth, the unparalleled Disney dogs are spotlighted in their scene - stealing best.

As any great actor must be able to do, the Hollywood dogs enable an audience to experience a wide range of emotions — from tears of sadness, as in the classic shooting sequence in "Old Yeller," to tears of joy, as during the memorable spaghetti - eating scene from "Lady and the Tramp."

They can bring you to the edge of your seat as in the rescue scenes from the forthcoming TV program, "Barry of the Great St. Bernard," or make you laugh 'til you fall off your chair, as do the two southern hound dogs of "The Aristocats" fame.

Laughter is also synonymous with perhaps the greatest canine comic of all time, Pluto. The Disney dog who started it all is featured in his own special segment of the show. From a sniff-on part in an early Mickey Mouse cartoon, Pluto's career ballooned to include an Oscar - winning performance in "Lend a Paw."

And if Pluto was the studio's first four - legged star, then "The Shaggy D.A." is the latest. Though Dean Jones, Tim Conway, Suzanne Pleshette and Keenan Wynn are the featured performers in this story of a candidate who turns canine, it's the shaggy dog himself who gets the vote as the star of this brand new motion picture comedy coming to theaters for Christmas.

Also included in "Disney's Greatest Dog Stars" are scenes of canine celebrities from "The Shaggy Dog," "Cinderella," "The Incredible Journey," "One Hundred and One Dalmatians," "The Biscuit Eater" and more, all making this an enjoyable hour of love and laughter for the entire family.

Honors Ellington

Highlights of a tribute to the late Edward Kennedy Ellington — for many years a unique talent in American music and beloved the world over for his humanitarian efforts — will be presented on a CBS News Religious Special, "Ellington Is Forever," Sunday, Nov. 28, 10 to 11 a.m.

The broadcast was filed at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City on April 29, 1976 (the 77th anniversary of the Duke's birthday). Thousands came to pay homage to Ellington and to give support to one of the Episcopal Church's distinguished institutions, Cuttington College, located in the Republic of Liberia.

Featured on the broadcast are performances by the Duke Ellington Orchestra under the direction of his son Mercer, Dave Brubeck, Charles Mingus, Anita Moore, Sarah Vaughn, and Joe Williams.

'I Love Lucy' Is Well Known

LUCY — The many faces of Lucille Ball will be in evidence when "CBS Salutes Lucy — The First 25 Years" is broadcast Sunday, Nov. 28 (8-10 p.m.) on Channels 3N-9-11. The special, a two-hour retrospective of memorable moments in the career of one of America's leading comediennes, will highlight classic performances by Miss Ball in her four CBS Network series and in specials.

In the 1950's, that venerable radio institution had its first television counter-part in "I Love Lucy."

Breakfast table, coffee break and street-corner talk on Tuesday mornings often centered on the latest antics of Lucille Ball and her zany co-comedians, Desi Arnaz, Vivian Vance and William Frawley. The series, which began in 1951 and continued through 1957, and is still being broadcast in syndication, is one of the most popular programs of all time.

Some of the many magic comedy moments from that immensely popular series will be reprised during "The Lucille Ball 25th Anniversary Special," Sunday, Nov. 28, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"I Love Lucy" was the pioneer of situation comedy in television, and most of the many shows that have followed it in the past 25 years contain elements of that forerunner.

Experts have devoted many words to the question of what made "I Love Lucy" such a historic success, still popular in reruns a quarter-century after its debate.

Most agree that Lucy and Ricky Ricardo and Ethel and Fred Mertz were not merely characters in a comedy situation to their host of weekly viewers. They were real people, the slightly kooky neighbors who dropped in every Monday evening to brighten the lives of millions of Americans. The scrapes they got into may have been pretty far out — not the escapes of a typical family, certainly — but through all the crazy misadventures ran a strong thread of mutual affection. It was an "I - Love - You - No - Matter - How - Nutty - You Are" kind of attitude that was deeply shared by the audience.

Then there was the unique chemistry that existed between the four principals — Miss Ball, Desi Anraz, Vivian Vance and Bill Frawley. They were a company that complemented one another in a manner rarely achieved in any theatrical enterprise.

Lucille Ball's own assessment of one of the chief reasons for the first legendary success is simply that the shows were funny. "Everybody had fun," she says in recollection. "The actors and the audience were all in it together."

She has not changed her views on successful comedy. "People need something to laugh at," she said recently. "They needed it then and they certainly need it now."

Schell Plays On 'Kojak' Series

"There we were on vacation in the picturesque old town of Sommerhausen, near Wurzberg, West Germany, staying in a romantic stone tower built in the year 1320, when a call came through from New York and I was asked to appear on 'Kojak.' "

Maria Schell is explaining how she came to appear in an episode of "Kojak" to be broadcast Sunday, Nov. 28, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11.

"I haven't appeared in anything in America for over 10 years, mainly because I have a husband and two children and we live outside Munich and confine our careers to films and theater in Europe. My son, who is 14, and my daughter, who is 10, love to watch elevision, and when it comes to preferences, all I can say is that I was on German television in Ibsen's 'A Doll House' and they passed it up to watch 'Kojak.'

"When the call came from New York, there was no contest. They said I should do it. So, 48 hours later, I was in a hotel in New York City learning my lines."

In the episode, Miss Schell portrays a Yugoslavian princess who, after escaping from Europe as a young girl, at the end of World War II, arrives in New York City in search of priceless family jewels, encountering gangsters, gunfights, kidnapping and Theo Kojak.

"The schedule was unbelievable," she says. "There's never enough time in television work, and we were a little behind schedule. Also, I had to leave by a certain time to get back and work on 'Derrick,' which is a German television police drama very like 'Kojak.'

"In fact, when I came over here, the headliners read 'Derrick Loans Maria To Kojak.' Now that's international cooperation!"

Lemmon, Matthau, Burnett Star In 'The Front Page'

Oscar winners Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau and Emmy winner Carol Burnett head the cast of "The Front Page," the story of a Chicago reporter's attempt to resign during the city's most spectacular news story, to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Nov. 29, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7-28.

Six-time Oscar - winning director Billy Wilder, who has been honored for such films as "Sunset Boulevard," "The Lost Weekend" and "The Apartment," directs the 1974 Universal Pictures release.

Lemmon stars as Hildy Johnson, the top reporter of the Chicago Examiner, who decides to quit, marry Peggy Grant (Susan Sarandon) and enter the advertising business. His boss, Walter Burns (Matthau), is furious because Earl Williams (Austin Pendleton), the convicted slayer of a policeman is due to face the gallows in the morning, and he wants Johnson to be present to cover the story along with his cronies who regularly report on such big events.

In quick succession, Earl breaks out of jail; Mollie Malloy (Carol Burnett), a streetwalker who has been romantically linked to the condemned man leaps from the press room of the Criminal Courts Building; and both Burns and Johnson wind up in jail, charged with helping a prisoner to escape.

"The Front Page" is a bright and breezily enjoyable remake of a classic that first hit the movie screens in 1931. Now, 45 years after its birth, director Wilder has restored much of the script's original punchiness and tawdry authenticity with rewritten lines and many new scenes. While his changes may well offend purists, the added crassness gives the film a realism and believability that was lacking in the earlier versions.

During these post - Watergate days of reportorial halo - fitting and journalistic back-slapping, it's a real change to see newspaper men with their shirts half-unbottoned, their ties long since crimpled into limp trouser pockets and their abrasive personalities hanging out all over the place.

A HEADLINE CASE — A police officer (Cliff Osmond) carefully watches over a newspaper reporter (Jack Lemmon, 1) and his editor (Walter Matthau) when the two become suspects in the escape of an accused cop slayer in "The Front Page," a comedy to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," Nov. 29 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

'Sesame Street' Approaches 1,000th Hour

"Sesame Street" approaches its eighth season and 1,000th hour of original television programming with several new teaching goals and some new hosts. The educational series for preschool children also heads for two natural environments that are unnatural to the residents of Sesame Street: a mountain campground and the seashore.

Health practices, expanded pre-reading skills and increased emphasis on the role of women are among the elements that will be added in the 1976-77 season that begins Monday, Nov. 29, on PBS. New affect or emotional skills will be taught, and last year's special segments for mentally retarded children will be expanded to include self-help skills.

"Admiral" Big Bird takes his first seafaring rides in location-based programming which includes fishing and boating segments created around Long Island Sound. He and his urban dwelling friends on the street also take a humorous but instructive campaign trip in Upstate New York.

On March 11, "Sesame Street" will reach a new landmark when it broadcasts its 1,000th program.

Executive producer Jon Stone describes the new season as "exciting in every aspect and one of the most ambitious in terms of new content we have ever had." He stresses that many of the newer additions, like earlier innovations, are experimental. "What we learn each year provides knowledge for future seasons," he says.

Alaina Reed, a singer and actress, will join the cast in the role of Olivia, Gordon's sister. Singer Buffy St. Marie, who appeared in several programs last season, will be back as will Linda Bove of the Little Theatre of the Deaf. These three women will be regular performers on the sdries this season. In addition, singer/composer Judy Collins will appear on the stret occasionally and in several segments created on New York's City Island.

Vocabulary development and sign phrases represent a major addition to the show's teaching of cognitive skills and are designed to sharpen pre-reading skills.

The health practices to be introduced wll be simple activities that children can perform unassisted.

Uneasy Choice

Asked to pick a glamorous outfit for evening wear, Sharon Acker couldn't narrow down her choices to any less than four.

"They're all ideal, especially in California where, believe it or not, we have to be prepared for cool night-time weather all year round," said Sharon. She stars as a businessman's wife in the new continuing drama, "Executive Suite," seen Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m. on CBS Channel 9-11.

Ted Receives Town's Award

HONOR TED — Ed Asner, Fred MacMurray, Phil Silvers and Ethel Merman join Rue McClanahan and Loretta Swit (not pictured) in honoring Terryville's Man of the Year on "The Ted Knight Musical Comedy Variety Special Special," Tuesday, Nov. 30 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

He also found that comedy, in his old home town, is no laughing matter.

He re-learned so many things about his native community and its people, as a matter of fact, that he created a show around them and called it "The Ted Knight Musical Comedy Variety Special Special."

Tedewurz Konopka is the real name of the Emmy Award - winning actor - comedian Ted Knight who is seen as news anchorman Ted Baxter on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Last spring, Knight returned to his native Terryville, Conn., after an absence of many years to receive the town's honors as its Man of the Year. That trip, translated into a comedic odyssey, is the basis of Knight's first starring special. With a little help from his friends Edward Asner, Rue McClanahan, Ethel Merman, Phil Silvers, Loretta Swit and special guest Fred MacMurray, Knight will recreate his Terryville triumph Tuesday, Nov. 30, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"As a comedy character, I'm used to being laughed at," says Knight. "In Terryville, everybody cried when they saw me. That took some getting used to."

Most of his old friends in the largely Polish community had not seen "little Tedewurz" for a very long time, and they reacted to the reunion with characteristic emotion. "First they cried," Knight recalls, "and then they started cooking. We ate all the time. We went from one home to another, reviving old memories and old recipes. It was a truly full-filling experience."

Many of the events that are given comedy treatment in the special actually took place during his visit. There was, indeed, a parade. There was a testimonial dinner, attended by the Mayor and various local dignitaries. There were the nostalgic visits to the old homestead, to the old schoolhouse and other sentimental safaris.

"We treat it with laughter in the special," Knight says, "but it's warm, loving laughter. I think that comes through in the show."

Knight, whose highly praised role on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" won him Emmy Awards in the 1973-74 and the 1975-76 seasons as best supporting actor in a comedy role, first studied drama in the Connecticut area. He then went on to make his mark in various aspects of radio and television and as a dramatic actor in such New York - based shows as "Big Town," "Suspense" and "Lux Video Theater." He later moved to Hollywood and appeared in more than 300 television roles and in stage plays at the Player's Ring Pasadena Playhouse, and Omnibus Theater, as well as at Phoenix's Sombrero Playhouse.

Reed Is 'Nightcaller'

Robert Reed stars as a disturbed man with a compulsion to make obscene telephone calls in "The Secret Night Caller," the "Tuesday Movie of the Week, Nov. 30, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Freddy Durant (Reed) is an otherwise solid, respectable family man who cannot resist making the calls to women. He seeks help from a psychiatrist, Dr. Cathcart (Michael Constantine), but is reluctant at first to admit he is making the calls.

Also co-starring is Elaine Giftos, who plays Chloe, an exotic dancer who discovers Durant is making obscene calls to her and then tries to blackmail him.

Also featured are Arlene Golonka, as a young woman who, after receiving an obscene call from Durant, runs out of her apartment and becomes involved in an auto accident; and Robin Mattson as Durant's daughter, Jan.

"The Secret Night Caller" was written by Robert Presnell Jr. and directed by Jerry Jameson.

TRIO OF STARS — Joan Hackett (1), George Segal and Jill Clayburgh star in "The Terminal Man," film version of the best-selling suspense novel by Michael Crichton, to be presented on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Dec. 3 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Phillips Is Secure

"In my case," says Michelle Phillips, "I believe promptness, self - discipline, cooperation, alertness and a clear understanding of the word professional are particularly important."

Michelle, who stars in "Death Squad," airing as the "CBS Late Movie" Thursday, Dec. 2, 12:30 a.m., on Channel 9-11, feels there is a certain stigma attached to young people associated with so-called rock groups. Michelle made her show business mark (and a great deal of money) as one of the two female singers in the Mamas and the Papas (the other woman was the late Mama Cass Elliot). The group enjoyed tremendous popularity from 1965 until they split up in 1968. Although it's been several years since The Mamas and the Papas cut a record, their music is still in demand among record buyers and radio listeners. Michelle's daughter, Chymma, was born in 1968, the year before she and 'Papa' John Phillips were divorced.

"Until a few years ago, I lived rather lavishly in Malibu, wasting time and money," she admits candidly. "Then I reached a point when I realized that something had to be done. I needed direction, new goals and a different attitude. In 1970, I began studying with Justin Smith. That was a turning point for me."

Because of her beauty, combined with the publicity accompanying her brief marriage to actor Dennis Hopper and a romance with Jack Nicholson, Michelle was offered roles soon after word got around that she had turned to acting. But on the advice of friends, she politely declined until she felt she was ready. "Dillinger," a feature produced in late 1972 and released in '73, served as her first vehicle. Critics agreed she was one of the picture's strongest assets.

Rudolph Returns

Rudolph, that beguiling little buck whose nose is synonymous with the Christmas season, will again make his holiday appearance in the traditional Yuletide animated musical special "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," Wednesday, Dec. 1, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11. Actor - singer Burl Ives narrates the special and is heard as the voice of Sam the Snowman.

Based on the Johnny Marks song of the same title, which has sold over eight million recordings since its publication in 1949, the Christmas tale finds shy Rudolph sulking because his shiny snout has made him the laughing stock of all Christmasville. To escape the ridicule, he runs away and is joined by an elf named Hermy.

Pursued by the Abominable Snowmonster, the duo flees to the island of Misfit Toys in the Arctic wilderness, where Yukon Cornelius, a prospector they meet along the way, comes to their rescue. Returning to Christmasville, they learn that a fierce blizzard may cause Christmas to be canceled. But Rudolph's illuminated nose saves the day when it serves as a beacon to guide Santa's sleigh through the storm, thus assuring presents to all the little children of the world.

'Terminal Man' Airs

George Segal stars in the world television premiere of "The Terminal Man," the chilling, not - so - futuristic story of a murderer whose mind medical science hopes to control by hooking up to a computer, on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Dec. 3, 9 to 11 p.m.

Harry Benson, a brilliant computer scientist, is the victim of violent outbursts of rage which he later cannot recall. In hopes of controlling them, he consents to be the first person to have computerized electrodes surgically implanted in his brain. When a seizure begins, the computer is programmed to override his murderous impulses with electronic charges.

What the medical and computer specialists have not taken into account is the powerful effect the computer - generated impulses will have on Benson — for they can only be triggered by his compulsion towards violence. Benson's brain short - circuits the program; he becomes superhuman and is driven by psychotic paranoia into a murderous rampage.

"The Terminal Man" was produced and directed by Mike Hodges, and written by Hodges, based on the novel by Michael Crichton, for 1974 Warner Bros. release.

Precision, Timing Are Key Factors

Mathematical precision and split - second timing went into the execution of the crash sequences of "Smash — Up on Interstate 5," "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Dec. 3, 9 to 11 p.m.

Starring in the film, which depicts events in the preceding 48 hours in the lives of people involved in a 39-car accident on a freeway at the close of a holiday weekend, are Robert Conrad, Buddy Ebsen, Harriet Nelson, Vera Miles, David Groh, Scott Jacoby and Sue Lyon.

As the temperatures in and around predominantly un - air - conditioned London broke records and soared into the 90's early last summer, burning the usually rain-quenched greenery of Hyde Park brown and filling it with brittle leaves that fell prematurely in the accompanying drought, a group of men, women and children in the city's suburb of Borham Wood, Herts., donned winter coats and mufflers and walked among snow-covered pine trees singing Christmas songs.

The snow was styrofoam. But the trees were freshly cut and smelled of Christmas. And the Yuletide spirit was equally real.

The group, which included Jackie Gleason, Bernadette Peters and a host of small British choir boys, was joining an American family with the English surname of Crosby in the celebration of "Bing Crosby's White Christmas Special," an hour of song, humor and holiday festivity to be broadcast Wednesday, Dec. 1, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV.

The special, taped in England directly following Bing Crosby's smash - hit two-week engagement at the London Palladium, marks the multi - award - winning singer - actor's 41st annual Christmas show, a tradition he began in radio in 1935.

Although Crosby and the special's title song, "White Christmas," have been linked for many Christmases, the "Groaner" hosted Christmas shows for almost a decade without singing it. That was from 1935 to '42, the year he introduced the Irving Berlin composition in the motion pic- "Holiday Inn."

Neither Berlin nor Crosby realized then, of course, the magnitude of the success the song was to enjoy. In addition to the multi - million singles the recording has sold, it still sells more than a quarter-million copies annually as part of Crosby's classic "Merry Christmas" album.

Crosby recalls the day during the filming of "Holiday Inn" when Berlin first presented him with the song and said: "I have an amusing little number here."

Crosby also recalls that the world was in the midst of World War II when the song was first introduced and feels that the song may have taken on a greater meaning because of it.

Not Always A Talker

Jayne Meadows Allen, who hardly ever stops talking as guest star in "Snow Job" on "The Practice," Wednesday, Dec. 1 (9:30 - 10 p.m. on NBC Ch. 7-28), insists that it wasn't always that way.

"I had a hard time conversing when I first came to this country, because I spoke very little English and American youngsters spoke very little Chinese," explained Jayne, who was raised in China by her missionary parents until she was 7.

"Children can be very cruel. They laughed at my attempts at English; they laughed at my Chinese clothing. They even thought I was part Chinese, because of my dark, almond - shaped eyes."

'Once An Eagle' Premieres Thursday

"NBC's Best Seller: Once An Eagle," a nine-hour serialized drama starring Sam Elliott, Cliff Potts, Darleen Carr, Amy Irving, Glenn Ford, Clu Gulager, Lynda Day George, Robert Hogan and Gary Grimes, will have a special two-hour premiere presentation Thursday, Dec. 2, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7-28.

Based on the best-selling novel by Anton Myrey, the drama concerns two Regular Army officers — played by Elliott and Potts — in the years from 1918 (the end of World War I) through World War II. Sam Damon (Elliott) is a devoted military man, committed to the welfare of his country and the men under his command, while Courtney Massingale is an ambitious, glory-grabbing commander with his eye on personal advancement. The dramatic confrontation between the two takes place in New Guinea at the height of World War II.

"Once an Eagle" deals concurrently with the wives of the two men, Carr as Damon's and Irving as Massingale's and how their husband's decisions affect their lives.

Glenn Ford appears as Elliott's father-in-law and his original commanding officer. Hogan and George star as longtime Army friends of Damon; Gulager plays an unfit officer who manages to survive within the system for more than 20 years; and Grimes appears as Elliott's doughboy buddy during World War I.

Many well-known performaners play guest-starring roles in the nine-hour drama, which will open and close with two-hour colorcasts and include five central one-hour episodes. In major roles will be Melanie Griffith, Kario Salem, James Shigeta, Andrew Stevens and Anthony Zerbe.

Other guest stars include John Anderson, Ralph Bellamy, Macdonald Carey, Dane Clark, James Cromwell, Andrew Duggan, Smith Evans, David Huddleston, Kim Hunter, Sean McClory, Juliet Mills, Shelly Morrison, George Murdock, Harriet Nelson, Kip Nivel, Cathy Paine, Wes Parker, Ben Piazza, Andrew Robinson, Albert Salmi, John Saxon, Patricia Stich, Barry Sullivan, Phyllis Taxter, Forrest Tucker, David Wayne and William Windom.

The film was shot on location in California's Napa Valley, in the environs of los Angeles and in Hawaii.

Pike's Peeks

HOLLYWOOD — The latest shows to be axed are two from CBS — "Tony Orlando and Dawn" and "The Blue Knight," which comes as no surprise since they've both been on the brink for some time. The Orlando series fades at the end of the year, while 'Knight' has already been displaced.

Harriet Nelson and Buddy Ebsen were together again in "Smash-up on Interstate 5" for the first time in 41 years. At that time, Buddy was hoofing with his sister and then Harriet Hilliard was vocalist with Ozzie Nelson's band.

"The Walstons" cast members were happy to hear that Ellen Corby has now been taken off the critical list. The hospital, however, still lists her condition as "serious."

Lee Grant's daughter, Dinah Manoff, has been signed to make her TV acting debut in the "Sadie Hawkins Day" episode of "Welcome Back, Kotter."

Burt Reynolds has been ordered to take a "long rest." Following doctor's orders, he's in Hawaii for a month.

TV networks in Italy, France, England and Australia have bought the David Frost-Richard Nixon interviews and will be airing the shows either simultaneously or within 24 hours of the U.S. telecast, now scheduled for May.

Country singer Dolly Parton, who was recently named top female vocalist of the year for the second consecutive time, has a throat condition which doctors think severe enough for her to quit work for the rest of this year. As a result, Dolly's cancelled at least 20 engagements.

Craig Tennis, who was talent coordinator for Johnny Carson's 'Tonight Show' for 8 years, has written a book. The word is that 'Tonighters' will be smoking in their boots when the not-too-subtley disguised 'fiction' hits the stands.

Carole Ita White, guesting in an up-coming episode of "Laverne & Shirley," says: "When I was in school I wanted to marry my best friend's brother so we could be sisters-in-law. Who was her brother? Rob Reiner. Now he's Penny's (Marshall) husband!"

Frosty Takes A Bride

The indomitable Frosty the Snowman takes a bride and gains a new friend in "Frosty's Winter Wonderland," an all - new animated Christmas special, featuring the voices of Andy Griffith, Shelley Winters, Dennis Day, Jackie Vernon and Paul Frees, airing Thursday, Dec. 2, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Narrated and sung by Andy Griffith, "Frosty's Winter Wonderland" is the story of how true love overcomes all adversity when — to alleviate Frosty's loneliness — the youngsters who made Frosty (Jackie Vernon) last winter, create a Mrs. Frosty (Shelley Winters) to be his companion during the long cold nights and during the summer, when Frosty must return to the North Pole to avoid melting.

However, this apparently happy situation is nearly spoiled when Jack Frost (Paul Frees) — jealous of Frosty's happiness and attention — steals the magic hat that first brought the man of snow to life. With Frosty standing lifeless, the Mrs. Frosty - to - be makes a snow flower and attaches it to her groom, bringing him back to life without the aid of the hat.

And, when Jack Frost makes a last - ditch effort to stop the wedding, she appeals to his better nature and asks him to be the best man. He accepts, a new friendship is made, and with Parson Brown's (Dennis Day) blessings, the wedding is held.

Explores Sometimes Soldiers

KNOW YOUR WEAPON — A Naval Reserve Unit from the Midwest arrives at a site for instructions on firing the M-16 rifle. The effectiveness of America's military reserves will be the subject of a one-hour program, "NBC Reports: The Sometime Soldiers," to be colorcast on Friday, Dec. 3 (10-11 p.m.) on Channels 6. NBC News correspondent Ford Rowan will serve as the reporter of the special program.

NBC News will explore the effectiveness of America's military reserves — part-time soldiers who train two days a month and two weeks each summer — in a one - hour program, "NBC Reports: The Sometime Soldiers." News correspondent Ford Rowan is the reporter for the special, to be colorcast Friday, Dec. 3, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-28.

Bob Rogers, producer of the special, said: "According to those planning defense strategy for the United States, the ability of the Reserves to perform both rapidly and well is more crucial than ever before. Active forces are at their lowest strength levels since 1950, and there is no draft to back up the Army regulars, only the Reserves. Making our whole defense posture increasingly dependent on our Reserve forces raises big questions as to whether they, particularly the ground and Navy surface elements, can do what is expected of them — fight an increasingly technological war on very short notice."

There are over 800,000 paid drilling Reservists today, organized into six different Reserve organizations: The Army National Guard and the Army Reserve, the Air Force Reserve and the Air National Guard, the Navy Reserve and the Marine Corps Reserve. It cost $5.5 billion to maintain all these units last year, even though many are supplied with outdated weapons and equipment.

One of the problems explored is the duplication in the Reserves. "Since the Air National Guard is administered, in peacetime at least, by the individual states," Rogers said, "each Governor has his own Air Force."

"The Sometime Soldiers" will also explore the problems of training a fighting force in only 40 days a year. The program includes film of Reserve units during weekend training at drill sites around the country.

Rogers examined charges by the General Accounting Office that much weekend training for Reservists is wasteful and inefficient. "A GAO report," Rogers said, "issued in June of last year said that in fiscal year 1974 the weekend soldiers devoted nearly half their training time to doing things other than their official jobs.

"During that same period they spent about 20% of their time doing absolutely nothing, just sitting there, sometimes just sleeping, thus wasting hundreds of millions of dollars." Rogers also found that Pentagon claims of improved efficiency of training haven't been apparent to many reservists."

Another question to be explored in the report is some experts' doubts about the ability of the Pentagon to make needed changes in the Reserves.

Singing Nun Becomes A Soft-Hearted Spider

The Singing Nun has become a Softhearted Spider.

Debbie Reynolds, who has chirped and twinkled-toed her way through some of the best musicals of the last two decades, has what must rate as the most unusual role of her career, in "Charlotte's Web," the animated musical version of E. B. White's classic story, being presented as a two-part special on CBS. The final segment will air Friday, Dec. 3, 8 to 9 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

After all, how many chances does an actress get to play a beautiful arachnid with 514 children?

"I'm always looking for off-beat roles," says Miss Reynolds. "This is easily the most charming part I've had since Molly Brown. Charlotte the life-saving spider is totally warm and loving. She gives so much. She puts the needs of others above her own."

Doing voices for an animated musical is a complex, intricate job that requires elaborate technical preparation. The dialogue and songs are done first and then the characters' movements are precisely matched to the sound track.

"An actor's voice can affect the whole look of the film," Miss Reynolds explains. "At the recording sessions we listened to the replays again and again to polish every syllable and nuance. When you've got it all. The technique takes care of itself.

"But you've got to keep in mind that you're not there on the screen," she says. "The audience won't see you, so you can't sell it on the face. And you've got to remember what the animal you're playing — that is, doing the voice for — is going to be doing, which of course will be done after you're done voicing for it. Now that I've clarified that . . .," she adds with a laugh.

"Charlotte's Web" was a project that Miss Reynolds had wanted to do for some years. She used to read White's moving story about the miracles of life and death to her four children, and all her fees for the film were donated to charity.

SHIRLEY JONES TO STAR IN FILM

Shirley Jones has been signed to play the lead in "Yesterday's Child," a 90-minute mystery drama for "NBC Movie of the Week."

Ms. Jones will portray Laura Talbot, whose daughter was reported kidnapped at age 3. Fourteen years later, Laura is confronted by the guardian of a 17-year-old who claims the girl is her daughter.

The talented actress played the head of TV's "The Partridge Family" for several seasons and won an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actress for her performance in "Elmer Gantry" (1960).

Injury Was Real

Aunt Esther wears a neck brace in the "Aunt Esther Has a Baby" segment of "Sanford and Son" airing Friday, Dec. 3, 8 to 8:30 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7. The dialogue indicates that she sustained the injury in a collision that occurred while she was riding in her husband's delivery truck.

However, the truth of the matter is that actress LaWanda Page, who plays the role, was injured in a real-life accident.

In late August, she was on a cross-country tour promoting "Sanford and Son" when she was called back to Los Angeles to appear on TV's "Dinah" with Redd Foxx.

After the show was taped, a friend was driving her home when another car ran into them.

Colts, Cardinals Meet Saturday

The Baltimore Colts have transformed themselves from a "Cinderella Team" in 1975 to a simple owerhouse in 1976. The Colts will meet the St. Louis Cardinals on Saturday, December 4 at 1 p.m. on NBC-TV.

The Colts won only 2 games in 1974 and 10 in 1975, including 9 in a row at the end of the regular season to give them their first AFC - East title since 1970. This marked the end of Miami's four-year domination of the division. It also gained head coach Ted Marchibroda, who had been George Allen's offensive coach at Washington and Los Angeles, Coach-of-the-Year honors.

The young Colts swallowed a tough (28-10) defeat to the Wold Champion Pittsburgh Steelers in the first - round of last season's playoffs, and their inexperience hurt them against the awesome Steelers.

While this year's Colts are a playoff - seasoned team, they are young enough to be first class contenders for a date on Super Sunday. Their offense under the 24-year-old Bert Jones has been one of the most prolific in the league for getting points on the board. In addition, Jones has been completing close to 58 percent of his passes while Lydell Mitchell remains atop the AFC in rushing.

To play winning football a solid defense is imperative, and Baltimore is no exception. It's hard to find enough good things to say about the Colt defense which has been a key ingredient in their success. Their front four held their first five opponents this year to an average of 106.2 yards rushing per game while impressing Miami's head coach Don Shula enough to say, "Baltimore's front four is as good as there is in football. They're great athletes, and they just keep coming."

Leading the Colts in tackles this season is weakside linebacker Stan White, who stepped into a starting role mid-way through the '74 season and has played outstanding defense ever since. Stan led the team in tackles last year while also setting a league record for linebackers by intercepting eight passes, one of which he returned all the way back for a touchdown.

'Flight' Underway

"Flight to Holocaust," a story about the efforts to rescue occupants of a plane that crashes part way through the wall of a skyscraper, has started production at Los Angeles, Calif., locations.

Starring as a team of professional troubleshooters called to work during the air disaster are Patrick Wayne, Christopher Mitchum (the sons of John Wayne and Robert Mitchum) and Fawne Harriman.

Director of the film is Bernie Kowalski, who directed the pilot productions of "Movin' On," "Mission Impossible," "Rat Patrol" and "The Monroes."

Wayne's film credits include "Mustang Country," "Sinbad" and "The New Spartans." He has had guest roles on "McCloud" and "Marcus Welby, M.D."

Mitchum's movie credits include "Chisum," "Big Foot," "The Last Hard Men" and "The Great Friday." His only prior TV credit is "A Time for Love."

Ms. Harriman spent the past three years in the role of Ginger Cooper in the daytime drama, "Somerset."

ABC Sports, Sugar Bowl Sign Pact

ABC Sports and the Sugar Bowl have signed a new three-year contract, and the network will present the 43rd annual post - season college football classic on Saturday, Jan. 1, 1977.

"We are pleased to continue our association with the Sugar Bowl which will feature the champion of the Southeastern Conference against one of the nation's top-ranked teams," Roone Arledge, President of ABC Sports, said. "It is an outstanding feature of our post - season college football coverage and is an event with which we are proud to be identified."

ABC-TV has carried every Sugar Bowl since 1970, the last four of which have been played on New Year's Eve, including the heralded 1973 showdown between Notre Dame and Alabama. The Irish nipped the Crimson Tide, 24-23, in a Sugar Bowl classic which determined the national championship.

A FAMILY REUNION —MINUS ONE

It's going to be a family reunion without Eve Plumb as "the Brady Bunch" reunite for their special on ABC-TV.

Says Eve: "I wanted to do the special, but there was a built-in option for 13 more shows and possibly six more years. I'm 18 now and feel that I can finally grow up personally and professionally."

Considered One Of NFL's Best

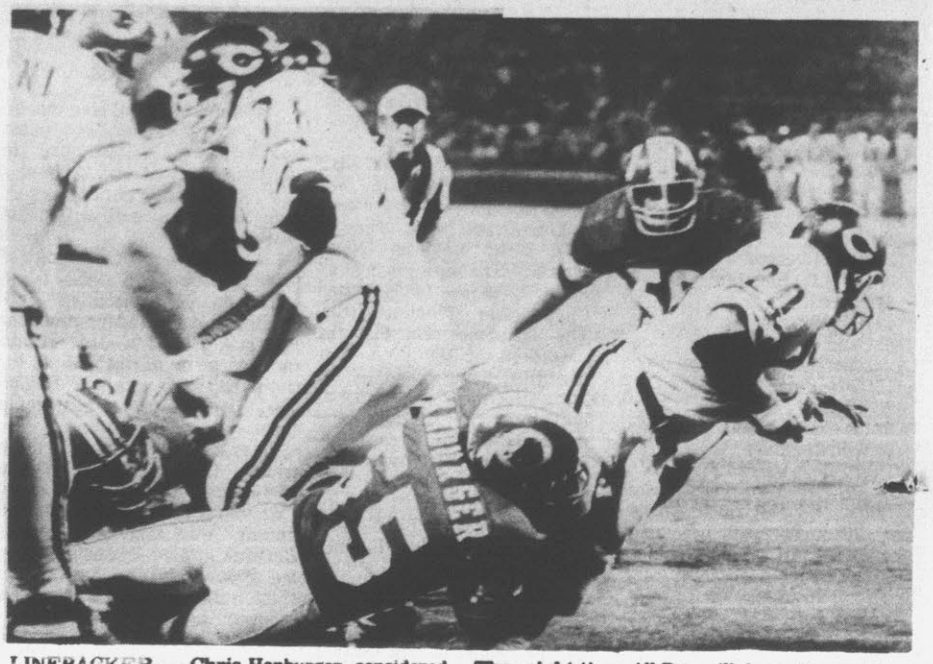
Avid Washington Redskin fans can tell you that jersey number 55 belongs to Chris Hanburger, considered one of the NFL's best linebackers. Already in his 12th pro season, Chris became a Redskin Dec. 6, 1964, when he was selected 18th in the 1964 draft. His efforts from 1966 through 1969, and 1972 through 1975 were rewarded by his selection to the Pro Bowl. Hanburger and his Redskin teammates will meet the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday, Nov. 28 at 1 p.m. on CBS-TV.

A 6'2" and 218 pounds, Hanburger appears more suited for the defensive backfield than at linebacker. However, the cagey defensive general makes up for his lack of size with tremendous desire and lgood speed, excellent reactions, intelligence and dogmatic determination to succeed.

Chris' style of play and tackling have caused many opponents — especially quarterbacks — to fumble. He is cunning as he darts swiftly by blockers and vicious when he smacks down the strongest of runners. During the past 12 years he has learned his lessons well, and he is seldom beaten or foiled on a play. He seldom misses his man with his tackles, and on blitzes he often runs down the quarterback before his passing arm is skyward. Truly he is a man in command of his ability.

From the very beginning of his pro career, Hanburger has displayed an affinity for making the big play: since joining the Redskins he has grabbed a fumble and run for touchdowns twice.

The son of a retired Army colonel, Hanburger had planned on a military career for himself when he was a youngster. Following high school graduation he spent a year in the Army and one year at a military prep scoool with the hopes of an appointmemt to West Point. After he filed to get this he enrolled at North Carolina, where he developed a fine collegiate career.



LINEBACKER — Chris Hanburger, considered one of the best linebackers in the NFL, is a mainstay in the Washington Redskin defense. The eight-time All-Pro will lead the Redskin defense in action against the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday, Nov. 28 at 1 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Circus Championship On NBC

Two first - time, off - beat competitions — the World Circus Championships and the Hollywood Stuntmen's Championship — will be broadcast early next year on "CBS Sports Spectacular."

The first World Circus Championships, held under the biggest tent in Europe, Clapham Common in South London, England, will match 16 acts from 10 nations, with the winners decided in six categories: flying trapeze, high wire, juggling, ground acrobatics, "high school" (trained) horses and cyclists.

Based on the premise that circus artists are great athletes, since the acts require courage, skill, strength, and imagination, the competition will offer those entered an unprecedented chance to compete against their peers.

A panel of judges from the circus profession will award points on the basis of content and execution, much along the scoring lines seen in gymnastics and figure - skating.

In the Hollywood Stuntmen's Championship, to be held at the former Warner Bros. Studio in Burbank, Calif., six of the profession's leading stuntmen will compete in acts of daring familiar to movie and television fans.

These include a car competition, which features racing through five blocks of a New York street scene, and a similar event for motorcycles.

In a western town set, the stuntmen will compete with horse falls, judged for time and accuracy, as well as being "shot" off a horse with the aid of a guide wire.

There also will be demonstrations involving a man in an asbestos suit setting himself on fire.

William Shatner, star of stage and screen, and whose extensive television credits include appearances on almost all the major dramatic anthologies and series, as well as his starring role as Captain Kirk in the "Star Trek" series, and the psychologist in "The Tenth Level," will be a guest commentator for the stuntmen's championships.

Contract Renewed

NBC-TV has renewed the multi-year contract of Joe Garagiola to continue as a commentator on Major League Baseball telecasts on the network.

Garagiola, whose sportscasting credits include a prestigious George Foster Peabody Award "for conspicuous service to broadcasting," started his broadcasting career as a commentator for the St. Louis Cardinals. He later became a play-by-play announcer for the New York Yankees, and then the first of NBC's Game-of-the-Week commentators.

The agreement between Garagiola and NBC-TV includes Major League Baseball's 1977 Game-of-the-Week Saturday telecasts, the All Star game and the League Championships.

Henry Makes A Hit

Not since Clark Gable has an actor with rather prominent ears made it as big in Hollywood as Henry, the new cast member of "Emergency!," seen Saturday, 8 to 9 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Last summer, before start of production on the series' sixth season, "Emergency!" co-creator and executive producer Robert A. Cinader came up with the idea of bringing in a pet for the paramedic crew of Engine Co. 51. He wanted an easy-going type.

Veteran Hollywood animal trainer Ray Berwick got the casting call and the hunt began. "We had a female basset hound among our stock," recalls Berwick, "and brought her in but apparently she wasn't quite right." Berwick and his staff scoured Los Angeles and its environs for weeks before coming up with Henry. According to Cinader, "Henry is perfect. I'm glad we waited."

To put it mildly, Henry is easy-going. "I've never worked with a dog that is more trainable than Henry," grinned Berwick whose career of training animals for films spans 30 years.

"Most animals are a bit nervous in unfamiliar surroundings at first, and logically so. Not Henry. We worked with him less than a week before he did his first scene and he wasn't a bit of trouble. Of course," Berwick adds with a laugh, "Henry isn't supposed to really do too much."

New Cast Member For 'Days'

Alejandro Rey has joined the cast of "Days of Our Lives," a daytime serial seen weekdays on NBC-TV.

Rey, who starred opposite Sally Field as the playboy gambler in "The Flying Nun," portrays wealthy sportsman Karl DuVal in his first 'soap' in this country. The Argentinian had a long-running role in Mexico.

Rey's TV credits include guest-starring roles on "McMillan" and "Bionic Woman," and he directed "Villa Alegre," a bilingual children's series.

Need A Lift? Try Brazil

The "beautiful people" are alive and well, and they are not only living on the Riviera or in Gastaad, in the Hamptons or Malibu, they can be found in large numbers in Rio de Janiero.

Brazil has become synonymous with beauty, and the process of attaining and retaining their beauty has become a fine art, one that is practiced by more than 500 Brazinial plastic surgeons. Their success is giving nature and the human body a lift is reported by NBC News' "Weekend," Saturday, Dec. 4, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on NBC Channel 7-28. Lloyd Dobyns is anchorman.

Anthony Potter, who produced the segment for "Weekend," spent three weeks filming in Rio and he says: "The mention of Brazil used to conjure images of bouncy Carmen Miranda singing in 'The Road to Rio,' or coffee, or 'Never put the bananas in a refrigerator.' Now, it's the tango (string bikini), the bossa nova, race car drivers and beauty, but mostly beauty.

"It is etimated that Brazilian doctors specializing in esthetic surgery perform 20,000 operations a year. The rich and famous come from all over the world, and their names are mentioned at cocktail parties, although no one is certain, for the surgeons scrupulously protect the identities of their patients."

Face lifts cost up to $3,000, body slimming is more expensive, and Potter took his film crew to the clinics and to the dazzling Copacabana Beach, where the results of the surgery are on display in the scantiest bathing attire.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LIONEL HAMPTON, jazz musician

Now that you're in your 60's, what's your future, and what is the future of jazz?—C.J., Gary, Ind.

● If you mean, am I thinking of retiring, the answer is "No!" Even though I've played for four Presidential inaugurations, toured the world 20 times and average almost 200 concerts a year, I'm just warming up. I think jazz is getting reborn. Kids today seem to enjoy dancing to a band with a different beat, and new expressions for jazz are developing in areas of rock music. I play more college- and high-school gigs than ever before. There's a demand for the big-band sound.

FOR JACK NELSON,
1976 women's Olympic swimming coach

What adjustments will the U.S. women swimmers have to make if they hope to challenge the East Germans in the 1980 Olympics?—S.V., Huron, S.D.

● They'll have to accept the fact that they need to get stronger. In order to do that, they must concentrate more on training with weights. There can be strength without huge bulk, and the women must have faith that after their competitive career is over, they will be able to get back to normal body shape within three to six months.

FOR GOV. ELLA GRASSO (Conn.)

Although you're often seen with your husband, you never seem to be with your children. Any reason for this?—Anna Micando, Prospect, Conn.

● Because he's retired, my husband is free to accompany me to many official functions. Susanne and Jim join us whenever their schedules permit, but photographers aren't always around when they do. Whether or not our children are with us publicly, they've always been our associates in the great and wonderful adventure of public service.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER, comedienne

Why weren't you on the worst-dressed list this year? Did you bribe Mr. Blackwell—or get a new wardrobe?—Mary Brackley, Amherst, Ohio

● My designer of 15 years was finally sent to the rubber home for the terminally bewildered. Her last set of sketches left no doubt in my mind that she had really come down out of a tree.

FOR HANS HOLZER, authority on the occult and ESP

What has been your strangest supernatural experience?—M.B., Pine Bluff, Ark.

● While staying at an Austrian castle my wife and I woke simultaneously in the middle of the night. We saw a valet in a green uniform staring at us. As the vision disappeared, Catherine and I had a curious desire to pray. The next morning we learned that in the early 19th century, one of the masters of the castle was killed by a peasant, and the body was discovered by his valet, who wore a green uniform. We had slept in the victim's bed!

FOR LOUIS L'AMOUR, author

As a prolific writer of Westerns, are you an avid reader of them, too?—E.M., Cumberland, Mo.

● No. Not because I don't like them, but because I don't want to be influenced by any other Western writer's way of thinking. In fact, I never read any kind of fiction. When I pick up a book, it's always nonfiction.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON, singer

● When the Catholic Actors Guild named me Woman of the Year. All on their own, my kids (Barbara, Joseph, Robert and Elizabeth) took space in the souvenir program and said wonderful things about me. All four wrote long statements. They were so touching that it was all I could do to stop from crying my eyes out.

FOR MELISSA SUE ANDERSON
of "Little House on the Prairie"

Are you anything like your TV character, "Mary Ingalls" in real life?—E.M., Grand Island, N.Y.

● I guess I am a lot like Mary in real life. Mary likes school, and so do I. Mary gets straight "A" report cards, and so do I. Mary likes to read books, and so do I. But in real life, I'm much more outgoing than Mary; and I think I have more fun in life.

FOR JAMES BEARD, gourmet

● Mud pies on the beach when I was four. I wondered how they tasted and sampled all of them.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What is the feud between Helen Reddy and Rod Stewart all about?—Lynn Anthony Oliver, San Antonio, Texas

● We checked with Helen, who gave us this report (by the way, she and Rod have never met): "Whenever my husband Jeff and I go to Hawaii, we always stay in the same suite at the Kahala-Hilton. On one occasion, about two years ago, Rod and Britt Eklund were in 'our suite' and were overstaying their reservation dates. Our booking had been confirmed earlier. It seems they decided to stay an extra couple of days. When Jeff went upstairs to find out what was going on, Rod refused to vacate or switch to the comparable accommodations offered by the management elsewhere in the hotel. In no way did we evict them. Rod did go, but, before doing so, left the room a wreck. I was shocked that anyone could behave like that. Since then, our paths have not crossed."

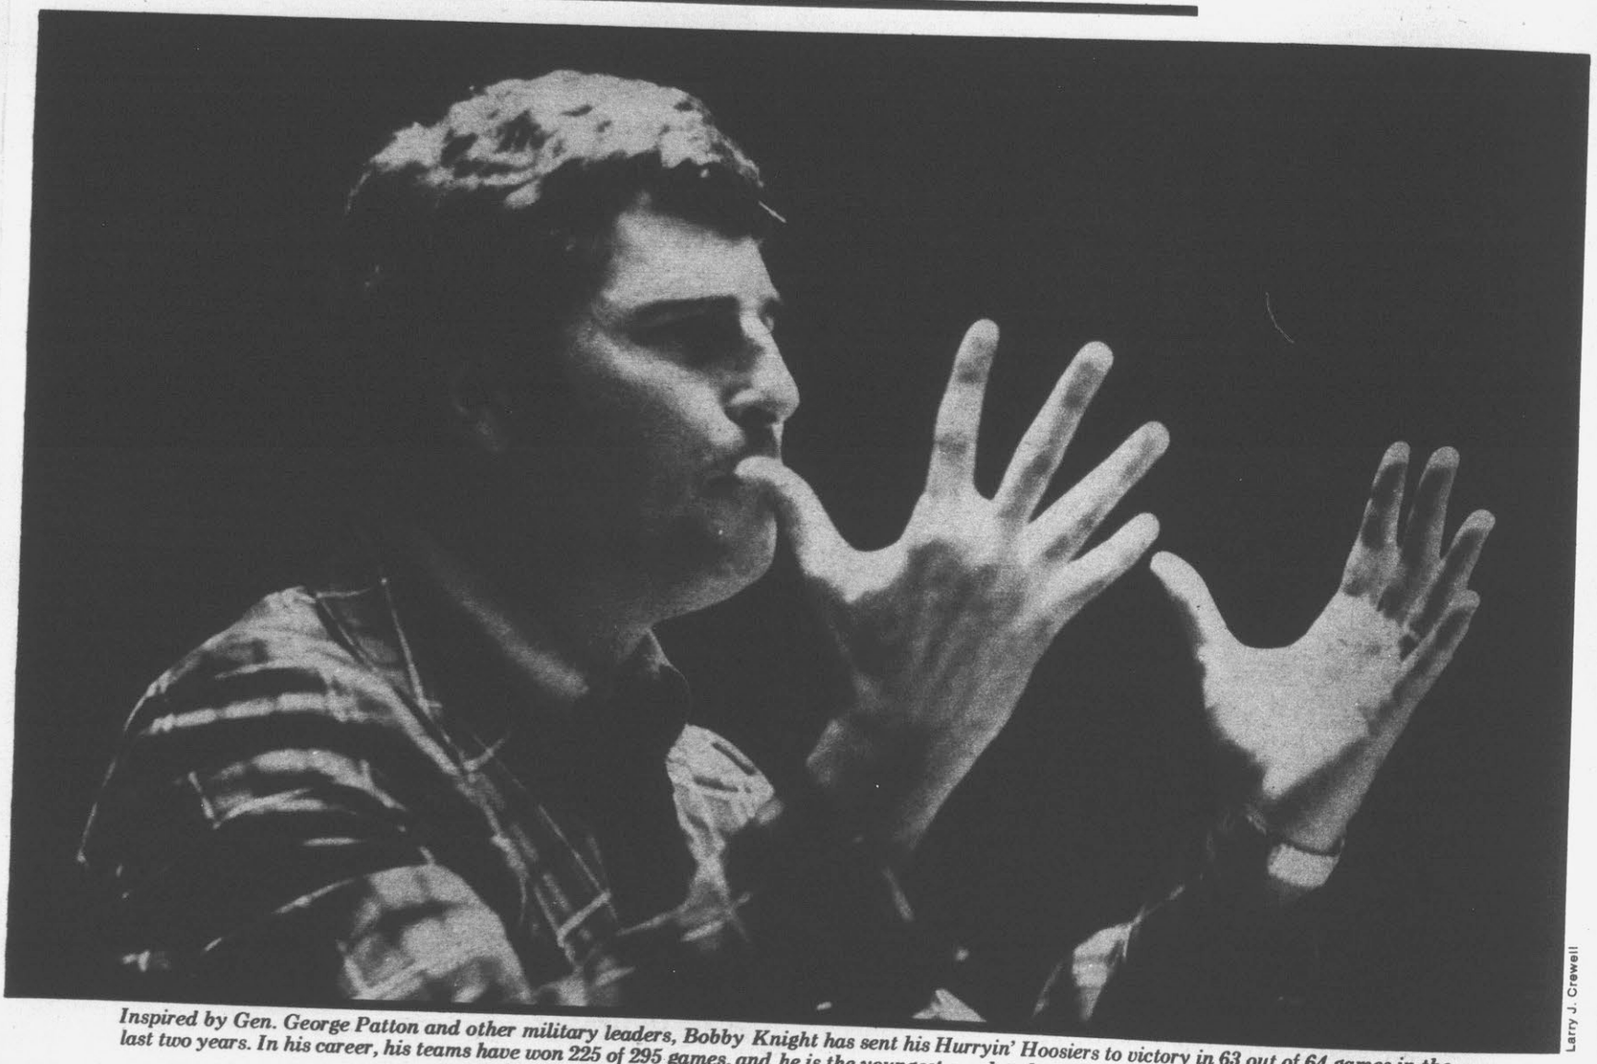
Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

A COACH'S FORMULA FOR PRODUCING WINNERS

Indiana University's Bobby Knight believes in talent, discipline and sacrifice. His no-compromise philosophy has created a team of national champions.



Larry J. Crewell

Inspired by Gen. George Patton and other military leaders, Bobby Knight has sent his Hurryin' Hoosiers to victory in 63 out of 64 games in the last two years. In his career, his teams have won 225 of 295 games, and he is the youngest coach to have won 200 major college games.

By Bob Hammel

As the wild cheering of basketball fans splits the air, the handsome young coach with the plaid jacket and prematurely gray-streaked hair seems close to exploding with energy and excitement.

His eyes blaze, his face strains and his arms are constantly in motion as he shouts commands. He suffers with each minor setback, reacting instantly to errors and substituting players without a second's hesitation. Throughout the game, he is a picture of agonized concentration.

That's what it was like last season, and if history repeats itself, this coach may go so far as to hurl a chair to the floor, or angrily seize a player by his jersey, or turn and forcefully reprimand the crowd for unsportsmanlike conduct. And if the fans slacken in their enthusiasm, the coach is likely to turn cheerleader, to face the crowd and pound the air with his fist until he has the stands worked up to where they are showing a suitable measure of devotion. That means nothing less than 100 percent fanatical loyalty, for high on the long list of things coach Bobby Knight can not and will not tolerate, must be placed fans who fail to appreciate fully the team that is virtually an extension of himself—Indiana University's Hurryin' Hoosiers.

Bobby Knight is today the most highly regarded coach in college basketball, and assuming he doesn't pop a blood vessel shouting at a referee, he seems well on his way to the Basketball Hall of Fame. At 36, the controversial Knight is the youngest coach ever to have won 200 major college games. Last year, Indiana won 32 straight games in route to the national championship, and along the way they twice defeated defending champion UCLA. Statistics aside, Robert Montgomery Knight is already something of a legend, a legend composed of several parts. First and foremost is the warrior side. He is an unabashed disciple of Gen. George Patton, and even played a tape to his team of the general's speech from the George C. Scott movie about him. The speech is the one in which Patton reminds his troops that they won't win any wars by dying for their country; they'll win by forcing the other slob to die for his country.

And then there is the quotation from Patton which Knight has hanging in his office:

"You have to be single-minded, drive only for one thing on which you have decided . . . and if it looks as if you might be getting there, all kinds of people, including some you thought were your loyal friends, will suddenly show up doing their hypocritical [best] to trip you, blacken you and break your spirit."

Central to Bobby Knight's philosophy of winning is the principle that you don't get ahead by compromising.

"There are a lot of places where a kid can do his own thing," Knight says, "but Indiana is not one of them. And I tell them that the first time I meet them.

"I don't give them any rules after they get here. I tell them before we recruit them: 'If you come to Indiana, you're not going to do your thing, you're going to do MY thing. If you can't do that, then let's get an understanding right now that you're not going to consider Indiana because I'm not going to change.'

"I believe if we recruit a boy this way, he knows exactly what to expect because I think we're very demanding. I think we probably expect more of our basketball players than most schools do. We expect them to perform better. I don't think we can compromise in any way when we start recruiting.

"And I really don't think we turn very many off with that. I think kids want somebody who's honest with them, who's going to discipline them—somebody who lets them know exactly where he stands."

Knight's players aren't the only ones who have to contend with his demanding nature. He once ordered a red-faced university vice president out of the gym during practice because the official had violated Knight's rule that requires total silence during the two-hour sessions. The sessions, moreover, are generally off-limits to everyone but participants.

Knight is also uncompromising on the subject of recruiting violations. He feels the player, as well as the coach who made the offer, should be penalized. (The boy should lose his eligibility at all schools, the coach should lose his job, and the school's schedule in that sport should be suspended for a year.) Knight adds that he would have no compunction about turning in a fellow coach, and he even warns alumni to stay away from his recruits. "We just don't want you interfering," he stresses to them. "We'll recruit. . . . We know the rules; you don't."

In addition to being a single-minded disciplinarian and moralist, Knight is a clever strategist who is fond of quoting from the ancient classic, The Art of War. Among his favorite passages are:

"The good fighters first put themselves beyond the possibility of defeat and then wait for an opportunity of defeating the enemy."

"Just as water contains no constant shape, so in warfare there are no constant conditions. He who can modify his tactics in relation to his opponents and thereby succeed in winning may be called a heaven-born captain."

"Regard your soldiers as your children and they will follow you wherever you may lead. Look upon them as your beloved sons and they will stand by you even unto death. If, however, you are indulgent, unable to make your authority felt, kind-hearted but unable to enforce your commands, then your soldiers must be likened to spoiled children. They are useless for all practical purposes."

Knight is a strong father figure to his players and sees that they live in dorms or fraternity houses until they are seniors. Last season, when senior Quinn Buckner began to lose his stamina, Knight determined that the cause was too much junk food. He began supervising Buckner's meals, and the player's endurance returned. He also goes to considerable trouble to save his seniors the hassle and expense of using agents when they are negotiating contracts with professional teams.

On the other hand, he can rip into a player ferociously, as he did once last year during a tense moment when he shook one of his players by the jersey in front of 17,500 fans, an incident that received wide press coverage and briefly subjected Knight to sharp criticism for being overly zealous.

Mike Krzyzewski, who in 1969 captained a team at Army (where Knight became head coach at age 24) and now coaches there, said potential recruits always asked about Knight's temper. "I'd always tell them, 'He's gonna push you, and you're not going to like it sometimes, but overall you're going to like it because you never lose respect for him. You always know that nobody does a better job of preparing you for a game, making you a better player—and that nobody would do more for you.' "

This year may be Knight's most challenging as a coach. Gone from last year's national championship team are Scott May (1976 College Player of the Year), Quinn Buckner, Bobby Wilkerson—all first round selections in the pro draft—and Tom Abernethy—a third round selection. But with All-America center Kent Benson as a nucleus and a highly talented group of recruits and last year's reserves on hand, Indiana will probably be in the thick of the fight for the national championship again in 1977.

A year ago, the 12-year reign of John Wooden, the quiet, low key professorial coach of the UCLA Bruins, came to a close with his retirement. In Bloomington, Indiana most everyone believes that the Bobby Knight era has already begun and that some day it may equal Wooden's remarkable record. Hoosiers, as well as more objective observers, agree that Knight's ability to attract gifted players and to mold them into a disciplined, highly efficient team is what makes him the most likely successor of Wooden atop the ranks of college basketball coaches.

BASKETBALL: NOW IT'S TURNING WOMEN ON

By Larry Bortstein

After the game, boys and girls clamored around the towering basketball player, begging for autographs in time-honored fashion.

The game last spring had decided no less than the national collegiate championship and the team with the explosive offense had finally succumbed to the deliberate passing and persistent timing of its taller opponents. The players were all women, and the 6'3" star surrounded by fans was Lusia Harris of Mississippi's Delta State College. The 22-year-old senior had just led her team to victory over Immaculata College of Philadelphia and was now being hailed from many quarters as the finest female basketball player in the world. Whether she is or not, it's indisputable that the country has finally noticed women's basketball, and towns and cities everywhere are catching the fever.

Cathy Rush, Immaculata coach and a leading figure in women's basketball, remarks, "The interest is phenomenal, in colleges, high schools and even many junior high schools. There's a greater awareness that sports are good for girls, and basketball is one of the best."

Indeed, there seems no limit to how far women's basketball can go. Major colleges are diverting large amounts of money from men's athletics to women's programs, and there is even a popular women's professional team ("The Red Heads") which tours the country playing local men's teams. Interest was fired even more by last summer's Olympics, which included women's basketball for the first time. The American squad, led by Lusia Harris, surprised everyone and captured the silver medal.

"I think more girls will now play basketball because of our success," predicts Billie Moore, coach of the U.S. Olympic team. Ms. Moore is eager to develop tall players able to take on giants like the U.S.S.R.'s Iuliyaka Semenova who at 7'2" stood 10 inches above the tallest U.S. player and led the Soviets to the gold medal.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women and other groups are encouraged by the interest the sport is receiving. The Las Vegas Convention Center, for example, is hosting a four-team tournament December 3-4, featuring four top women's teams—Delta State, Immaculata, Long Beach State and the University of Nevada. This will be the country's first regular-season tournament exclusively for women's basketball teams.

"We need to play in the big arenas around the country," says Rush, "to let people see our product and how good our players really are. Madison Square Garden was the first major arena to invite us to play, and women's basketball always will be grateful for that opportunity."

The Garden, New York City's basketball mecca, offered its first women's game in February, 1975, as the first game of a Saturday afternoon college doubleheader. About 12,000 fans were present for the game, which pitted New York's Queens College against Immaculata.

"I don't want to overestimate this," says Rob Franklin, a spokesman for the Garden, "but after the Queens-Immaculata game, about half the crowd left rather than stay for the second half of the doubleheader, which featured a men's game between two traditional Eastern rivals. There's definitely a market for women's basketball, so next March 6, we'll have our first women's doubleheader."

With that kind of growing interest, can a television network contract be far behind?

NANCY WALKER: "I'm a Great Listener—So I Know Who Not To Waste My Time With"

By Helen Dorsey

Like many professional clowns, in private Nancy Walker is a rather melancholy sort who regards the Hollywood circuit with the same disdain which Rosie (the TV pitch lady for paper towels) does for bumbling customers. Nancy once said, "I'm probably one of the shyest, most introverted ladies who ever walked, but the part of me that works is like the women I play."

In her personal as well as professional life, things are going splendidly for this 53-year-old Wunderkind. There is also no doubt about Nancy's priorities in life: her husband of 25 years, David Craig (one of Hollywood's most successful vocal coaches of musical-comedy performers, including Rock Hudson, Alexis Smith and Jean Simmons), and their married daughter, Miranda.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Is it true you're an excellent listener?

NANCY WALKER: I listen very hard, but I don't tune in to everybody. Haven't you heard people who just rattle on? That's why I listen—so I know who not to waste time with. I find most people are really not that interesting.

FW: You've said that you can be hostile with people. What brings out this trait?

NANCY WALKER: Time wasters, who are also energy sappers. We live in a world of such fools. Take politicians, for example. I can't read or listen to them any more. I'm really quite scared to death because we live in such a world of fools. The world is 99 percent filled with energy sappers! I am not going to let people I met just once, more than 10 years ago, come up to me and act as if I just left them and let them talk and talk. No, I'm not using my energy to dredge up a false relationship that never existed in the first place. And these people know full well I don't remember them. I want to say, "Get out of here." It's just so tiresome. I don't have time for acquaintances, only my friends and family. About the only free time I have these days I spend with my husband, and so often that's tired time, and that's not good.

FW: Why have you always said, "Comedy is so personal"?

NANCY WALKER: Because, for example, my way of opening a door is not like Bea Lillie's way of opening a door. Once Director Richard Brooks asked me how I account for the comedy in my work. I told him I have always thought people like Bert Lahr, Bea Lillie and me do everything like other people, except that our bones are off one-eighth of an inch! I may think I'm crossing the room like anyone else, sometimes in grand style, but then everyone goes ha-ha. Richard said, "That's what comedy is all about. It's about life being a certain way because your bones are set differently from the rest of the world. It's probably an illusion of the psyche, but it affects everything you do in life." I don't know who set my bones the way they are, but I just know the way our psychic bones are set affects our behavior every minute of our life, even though we aren't aware of it.

FW: Have you ever thought of yourself as different from other people?

NANCY WALKER: Yes, but I'm me, and that's a good thing to be—I finally found out. As a young girl, however, it upset me terribly when people seemed to be laughing at me and not with me. This isolated me from other people. I didn't realize then that isolation is a very big privilege. I'm thrilled to have been born one of the "privileged few" like Bert Lahr and Bea Lillie.

FW: Who finally convinced you that you are truly funny?

NANCY WALKER: My set-designer friend, Oliver Smith, took me aside one day and said, "Don't you know that being a comedienne is one of the greatest gifts in this world? Why do you hide in corners?" He was the first person to sense the pain I was going through. He tried to knock some sense into my head. Some of it sank in, and, eventually, my head began to grow!

FW: Does your husband help you in your career?

NANCY WALKER: He's a highly intelligent gentleman and someone I listen to a great deal. You can listen more gently to someone you love and have lived with a long time because you know his style and can take comfort in it. His dialogue changes every day, but his style doesn't.

A quarter of a century ago, a great domain — nearly one-fourth of the earth and nine times vaster than the Roman Empire at its zenith — lay under her scepter.

Now, as Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth the Second, prepares to celebrate her Silver Jubilee, she is Queen of fewer lands, but not of fewer hearts. In her person The Crown remains a human link among a quarter of the world's peoples. The symbol of mutual cooperation that stems from a common history. The heritage of an Empire on which the sun never set. The focus of an allegiance given through love and respect but never through compulsion.

Heiress of a thousand years of history

By the Grace of God, Queen of the United Kingdom, its territories, and more than ten other independent Nations, she reigns but does not rule. Head of the Commonwealth of more than thirty realms and republics, she presides but does not direct. Yet, hers is a voice which is heard. The advocate of a happier, more just, and more gentle world for her peoples and the whole of the human family.

Truly an anchor in the tempest of the modern age, the Queen is heiress to noble ideals as timeless as the Coronation Ceremony at which she — like her predecessors since William the Conqueror in 1066 — was crowned at Westminster Abbey. A Coronation which, as in every age, affirmed the people's acceptance of their Sovereign, and the Sovereign's dedication to the people.

An unprecedented philatelic event

It is therefore fitting that to celebrate The Queen's Silver Jubilee in 1977, more than forty members of the Commonwealth will preserve the pageantry and meaning of the Coronation in an international series of nearly eighty different stamps.

Significantly, the scope and concept of this collection are unparalleled in philatelic history. For, never before have so many Nations cooperated to issue a series of individual stamps which, when viewed as a complete collection, captures an event of this magnitude.

And, never before has there been a collection which traces step by step the events of the Coronation. Or portrays the individual Crown Jewels and Coronation Regalia in all their beauty.

Individually designed by the Commonwealth's most prominent artists — perhaps the greatest assemblage of talent ever gathered to a single purpose — each issue will be a masterpiece of the philatelic art. Together capturing with uncommon sensitivity the glittering panoply of tradition, religious rite, and chivalrous pageantry just as it happened nearly twenty-five years ago.

Ascension Island opens this timeless story with the golden State Coach departing from Buckingham Palace pulled by eight perfectly matched Windsor Greys enroute to Westminster Abbey.

And, vividly portrayed by the issues of Turks and Caicos Islands, loyal subjects cheer the Queen and Royal Family as they wave from the Palace balcony following Coronation.

From beginning to end, this great ritual unfolds. Inspired by a thousand years of history. Recorded in painstaking detail by official stamps of Canada, Barbados, New Zealand, Hong Kong, Australia, Gibraltar, and others. A collection worthy of The Queen's Silver Jubilee, and an inspiration for our times.

Available to you: the First Editions

The unprecedented character of this tribute to The Queen's Silver Jubilee makes your opportunity today to acquire first editions all the more significant. For it is a collection certain to command the attention of collectors and historians for many years to come. And the first editions . . . First Day Covers . . . will be but a small fraction of the total number of stamps sold to the public.

First Day Covers of the individual stamps marking The Queen's Silver Jubilee will be available only on the exact date the stamps are first issued, and never again. In many countries, the First Day of Issue will be February 6, 1977: the precise twenty-fifth anniversary of Her Majesty's accession to the Throne.

Applied as part of lavish Jubilee ceremonies attended by leading officials and citizens of each Nation, the coveted, one-day-only, First Day of Issue postmark will indelibly certify the First Day Cover for posterity and guarantee its authenticity and limited edition character.

The superb, limited edition of the Westminster Collectors Society

Appropriately, the Westminster Collectors Society will issue The Queen's Silver Jubilee in one complete collection of over forty official First Day Covers. Of special importance to collectors, this is the first collection ever authorized by the Society, which was established under the auspices of Fleetwood, America's oldest purveyor of First Day Covers, to encourage a greater appreciation of British and Commonwealth culture, history, and tradition.

As befits a collection of this importance, each First Day Cover will be lavishly engraved. Each will bear the Coat of Arms or Emblem of the issuing Nation, as well as the imprimatur of the Society. And each will be made of a special paper exclusively created for The Queen's Silver Jubilee.

This exquisite collection will be issued solely for subscribers, with an absolute limit of one collection per subscriber. And the total number will be forever limited to the exact number of original subscriptions, postmarked not later than February 6, 1977. The collection will not be available after that time except from collectors who acquired it at the time of issue.

A deluxe collector's album will protect and display your collection

Collectors who take advantage of this limited opportunity to acquire the Official First Day Covers of The Queen's Silver Jubilee will receive, without additional cost, a lavishly bound collector's album. To enhance the historical and educational value of the collection, an authoritative reference guide will be included. And, specially prepared information will accompany each issue.

A convenient plan of acquisition

Each subscriber will receive the First Day Covers of The Queen's Silver Jubilee at the convenient rate of three per month, beginning in March, 1977, and concluding in early 1978. The original issue price of $3.25 per First Day Cover will be guaranteed for the entire collection. In view of the high denomination of the stamps, it is an exceptional value.

As a convenience, moreover, collectors may pay for the first month's shipment now, or charge it to their credit card account.

A collection for all seasons

A modern world which has split the atom and put man on the moon has found itself starved for the color, the romance, the chivalry, and most of all the sense of history which The Queen's Silver Jubilee Collection will preserve for the future. For you, and for future generations of your family, it will be a source of great satisfaction and inspiration.

Subscription Deadline: February 6, 1977

Don't let your fingers be hers just because you don't want to spend $1,000 a carat (or more) for a diamond ring. Our Gemfires are so elegant only a diamond expert, or someone with a powerful magnifier can be really sure they aren't natural diamonds.

Gemfires are polished and precision-faceted by master diamond cutters to bring out their full fire and brilliance. They are then set by master craftsmen, by hand, in expensive-looking, open-back mountings so the base of the stone is exposed for maximum reflection of light.

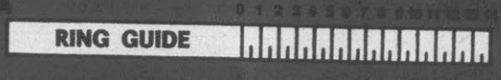
You don't have to be afraid that Gemfires will be unsympathetic plastic or paste jewelry. They gleam like diamonds formed deep within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. Yet they are free of the imperfections found in most natural diamonds. There are no specks, no flaws, no spots of impurities to mar their sparkling beauty. We invite you to wear a Gemfire. If you, your family or your friends can tell the difference between it and a natural diamond, return it to us within 30 days and we'll gladly send you your money back.

You're in good company when you wear Gemfires. Today, even millionaires wear simulated diamonds and keep their precious jewels hidden away in bank vaults to prevent them from being lost or stolen.

Gemfires make a lifetime gift — and the gift of a lifetime.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.
2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot, or the strip where it meets the end.
3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.



Our "NO RISK" Guarantee

Order without risk. If not completely satisfied within 30 days, return by INSURED MAIL for full refund of purchase price.

SMART COOKING / By Marilyn Hansen

"After Thanksgiving, Let's Make Turkey Soup"

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen suggests a delicious (and thrifty) dish you create from the "third helpings" of turkey no one could eat.

TURKEY NOODLE SOUP

Leftover cooked carcass from a 15- to 20-lb. turkey
5 qts. water
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped celery leaves
1 cup chopped onion
7 chicken bouillon cubes
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 bay leaf
½ cup chopped parsley
1 cup fresh, frozen or canned peas
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup cut green beans
4 cups (8 ozs.) fine egg noodles
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup all-purpose flour

1. In 8-qt. kettle or Dutch oven, place turkey carcass, water, celery, celery leaves, onion, bouillon cubes, salt, pepper and bay leaf. Heat to boiling; lower heat; cover and simmer 1 hour. Remove carcass and let cool.
2. Add parsley, peas, carrots and green beans to soup; heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes until vegetables are just tender.
3. Remove meat from carcass, return pieces to soup. Discard bones.
4. Heat soup to boiling, add noodles, cook, uncovered, 10 minutes.
5. Melt butter in small frying pan; stir in flour. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until flour is browned. Stir into boiling soup. Return to boiling and stir. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes.

Makes 5 qts.

APPLE CIDER UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

3 medium-sized tart apples
1 cup apple cider
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 pkg. (18½ ozs.) spice cake mix
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
¼ cup wheat germ
Sweetened whipped cream, whipped topping or vanilla ice cream, optional

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly grease a 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan.
2. Pare and core apples; slice thinly. Simmer apple slices in cider over medium heat until just tender. Drain, reserving cider.
3. Combine 2 tablespoons hot cider, butter and brown sugar in prepared pan and stir until butter melts. Sprinkle with walnuts.
4. Prepare spice cake mix according to package directions. Then stir in vanilla extract and wheat germ.
5. Pour batter over walnuts and cider mixture.
6. Bake at 350° F. for 55 to 60 minutes.
7. Invert pan onto large cake platter and let stand for one minute; remove pan. Cut into squares. Serve warm with sweetened whipped cream or soft vanilla ice cream. Heat any remaining cider mixture and serve as a sauce.

Makes 12 servings

What's Smart: Here's a recipe for five quarts of rib-sticking soup. A bargain meal for only $1.48. (The turkey carcass isn't included, since it has been already figured into the cost of Thanksgiving dinner.) One ingredient, the egg noodles, adds immeasurably to the good taste and nutrition of the dish.

Final Triumph Over The Basic Cause Of Overweight

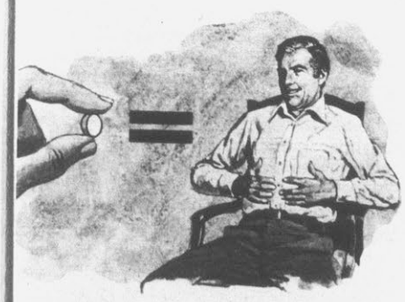
ON THIS PROVEN LIFETIME SLIMNESS PROGRAM

Called the "Total Contentment" pill — it's safe as a cough drop, gentle as a vitamin pill . . . yet so effective it helps shut off your appetite for hours at a time. Meaning: instead of gorging yourself . . . instead of yielding to hunger . . . instead of battling those constant urges for snacks . . . you simply reach for a pill instead of fattening foods, and lose up to 6 pounds of fluid and fat the very first weekend.

Even more significant as long as you follow this medically proven lifetime slimness program, you'll never again suffer embarrassing fat build-up for the rest of your life — even if you've been hopelessly overweight for the last 25 years.

YES! NOW LOSE 20, 30, EVEN 40—OR MORE POUNDS, AND KEEP IT OFF FOREVER!

Yes, what you are now looking at is the last ad for a reducing product you will ever have to read in your life. Because just 60 seconds from now you're going to discover how medical science now makes it possible for you to lose 10, 20, 30, even 40 pounds —



VITAL NOTICE:

You must promise to eat. Yes, even though the TOTAL CONTENTMENT PILL has the ability to turn off your appetite just like you turn off a light switch YOU CANNOT GO FOR LONG PERIODS EATING NOTHING . . . even though you have no appetite. Sure, you'd lose weight like crazy . . . but the doctor says it's unhealthy. You must eat at least two meals a day . . . even if you have to force yourself. And he provides you with a way to stimulate yourself so you have a balanced caloric intake . . . no matter how little you care to eat. We urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this is a medically-sound approach to the problem of obesity.

Now Shut Off Your Appetite On COMMAND Just Like You Switch Off A Light

or more AND NEVER GAIN IT BACK FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE. That's right! Lose up to 12 pounds in just 14 days . . . shrink your waistline up to 3 inches in a mere 2 weeks' time . . . and even more important, discover the way to make yourself ENJOY PERMANENT SLIMNESS FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE! In other words, PERMANENT LIFETIME SLIMNESS — FINALLY YOURS. Thanks to this doctor's brilliant program and the TOTAL CONTENTMENT PILL.

NOW! A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT THE TORTURE OF HUNGER

How can medical science make this lifelong dream come true? It's simple. Because doctor's have developed a remarkably easy way for you to TURN OFF EVEN A RUNAWAY APPETITE any time you want JUST LIKE YOU TURN OFF A LIGHT SWITCH! Yes, actually command hunger to STOP in just minutes, before meals, at meals, between meals . . . and make excess pounds and inches disappear from sight so fast . . . that in a matter of weeks you may actually need a brand new wardrobe.

NOW COMES MEDICAL SCIENCE'S INCREDIBLE "MEAL-IN-A-PILL"

The secret behind this miracle program that conquers fat forever is a brilliant new development called the TOTAL CONTENTMENT PILL — that according to medical experts is so effective, just one pill has the same hunger-satisfying potential as a serving of bread, mashed potatoes, or any of these filling foods you would normally heap on your plate. Yes, one single pill that gives you virtually the same "fully satisfied" feeling as a main dish of a delicious Sunday dinner . . . even on people with runaway appetites.

In other words, even before you have those first pangs of hunger . . . that maddening craving for food . . . you simply put your appetite to sleep with this amazing "meal in a pill". Because just like water turns off thirst, this incredible TOTAL CONTENTMENT PILL turns off hunger AUTOMATICALLY . . . any time you want!

PERMANENT LIFETIME SLIMNESS ONCE A DREAM —FINALLY A REALITY!

Best of all, because it was developed by doctors, the TOTAL CONTENTMENT PILL is not only as safe and mild as a vitamin pill, but so gentle that the only sensation you experience is that of total satisfaction. And the only change you'll feel or see is in the smaller size of your clothing!

YOUR TUMMY FEELS LIKE YOU FEASTED—BUT, YOUR WAISTLINE LOOKS LIKE YOU FASTED!

What does this mean? Simply that from this day on, depending on how overweight you are, any time you want to melt away 10, 20, 30 — or even more pounds . . . any time you want to . . .

LOSE up to 4 to 6 inches off your waistline

LOSE up to 3 inches off your thighs

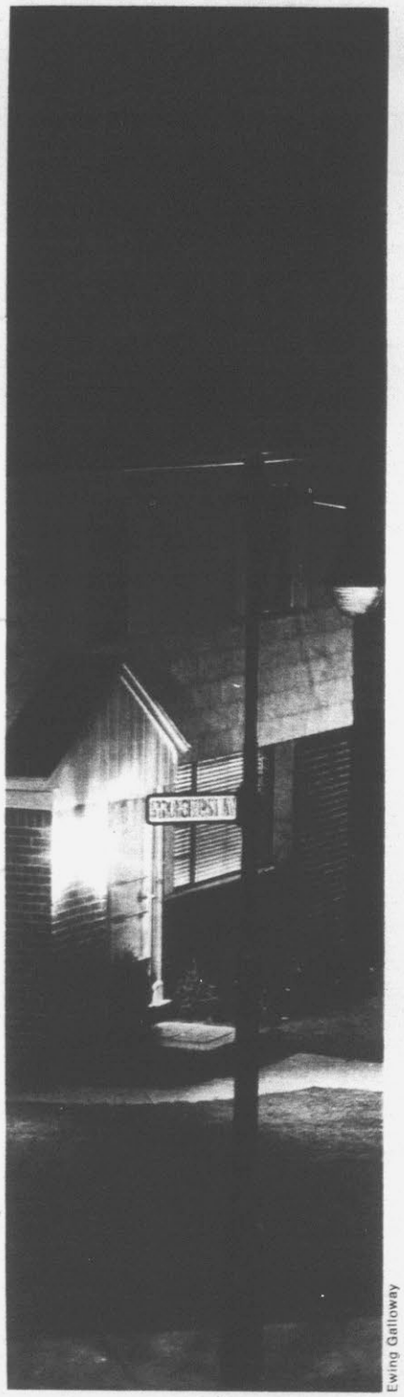
IS THIS HOME REALLY SAFE FROM BURGLARS?

With crime rates in the suburbs rising faster than those in big cities, it's a good idea to scrutinize your house the way a professional burglar would.



Ewing Galloway

By Polly Dranov

Joanne Martin still gets the shakes when she thinks of that night. The house was a shambles. Papers and clothes were strewn everywhere, and it took hours to figure what was missing. The television, of course, and the stereo. All her good jewelry and Bill's cameras. Clothes, too—all of his suits, her fur coat. Then, there were the binoculars, the pocket calculator, the portable typewriter, the clock radio and the $160 in cash in the desk drawer.

"They sure knew what they were doing," Joanne says bitterly. "They just took the good stuff. But that didn't bother me anywhere near as much as the thought of strangers going through my house. I felt so vulnerable, so violated. It took me weeks to calm down."

Burglary rates are edging up everywhere. And the victims aren't just big-city dwellers any more. In 1975 burglaries were up 10 percent in the suburbs, eight percent in rural areas and seven percent in the cities.

Most burglars now work days. In fact, more than 50 percent of home burglaries now occur during the day.

"It's very well organized," explains Sheriff Bill Lombard of Monroe County, N.Y. "A burglar will stake out a whole suburban subdivision and ring every doorbell. If someone answers, he'll ask for a fictitious person and then move on. Burglary is one of the most difficult crimes to investigate, but we could prevent more of them if people would just call the police when they see suspicious activity or strangers about."

Few American homes are truly burglarproof. In addition, an astonishing number of people don't even lock their doors.

Police say the first line of defense against intruders is a good deadbolt lock. But there's no point in installing one of these on a flimsy door or near a glass panel. A Government-sponsored study recommends that all exterior doors be at least an inch and three-quarters thick.

The National Sheriff's Association suggests equipping all your windows with key locks. Garage and basement windows are best nailed shut.

Try to see your home with a burglar's eyes, and you'll get an idea of how vulnerable you are. How would you break in? Does the shrubbery provide good cover for an intruder trying to pry open a door or window? Is there a gap between a door or window frame big enough for a crowbar? Can you enter the house from the garage? Are all entrances illuminated at night? Do the lights cast concealing shadows? Could a burglar get into a second-floor window from a tree?

You can burglarproof your home fairly cheaply. If it seems an unnecessary nuisance, consider the fact that a burglary is committed every 13 seconds. In 1975 there were 1,526 offenses per 100,000 inhabitants, and residential losses totaled $925 million. And police estimate that nearly half of all residential burglaries aren't even reported. So why not take the precautions police suggest: install strong locks (and use them!), shore up windows and doors, trim back shrubbery.

Police across the country also have been enlisting citizens in community crime-prevention efforts. The biggest, "Neighborhood Watch," is administered by the National Sheriff's Association. "Neighborhood Watch" goes by various names—"Block Watch" in Seattle, Phoenix and St. Louis, "Home Alert" in Oakland and "Neighbor Help Neighbor" in New Orleans. The program is essentially the same everywhere: a block-by-block organization of citizens who are trained by police to secure their own homes and to watch out for burglars. Incidentally, "Neighborhood Watch" reduces burglary rates. Some police departments report that the mere presence of orange and black "Neighborhood Watch" decals on windows seems to deter criminals.

One of the most successful "Neighborhood Watch" programs is in Monroe County, N.Y., where Bill Lombard reports that "the number of calls coming through our dispatchers is going up, but the volume of crime has been going down." In another nationwide program, "Operation Identification," valuable possessions are engraved with the owner's social security or drivers license number which police keep on file. Participants get an "Operation Identification" decal for their windows or doors. Marked goods are difficult to fence, and the burglar knows that if he's caught with marked property, he's as good as convicted. Another advantage is that you get marked property back if the police recover it. Otherwise, you're usually out of luck unless you've got theft insurance. As a rule, if you can't prove that stolen property is yours, you can't get it back from the police. Moreover, six months after "Operation Identification" was initiated in Minnesota, the likelihood of a burglary in member homes had dropped by 78 percent.

Although theft insurance is available under most homeowner policies, in some areas of the country it's virtually impossible or prohibitively expensive to buy. Coverage is so hard to get in 15 states—most of them along the East Coast—that residents are eligible for Federal Crime Insurance, which provides a maximum of $10,000 worth of coverage for about $100 a year. However, you're not eligible unless your doors are equipped with vertical deadbolt locks.

Police say two things will deter a skilled burglar: a barking dog and an electronic alarm system. Most family pets can be relied on to bark at strangers, but your dog may take a liking to an intruder. Attack dogs are a different story. The rising crime rate has sent hundreds of thousands of Americans rushing to kennels for trained dogs. But even the best animal may fail to discriminate among a burglar, the milkman, the mailman and a curious child. A lawsuit by a victim could cost much more than a burglary.

Unfortunately, fancy electronic alarm systems are expensive. There are two basic kinds: a local alarm designed to frighten off burglars and a silent alarm that signals police headquarters or a security service from which guards may be dispatched. Silent alarm systems can cost up to $600 to install, plus a regular monitoring charge.

The least costly alarms, "contact devices," are mechanical switches attached to doors or locks. The contacts form an electrical circuit which, when broken, sounds an alarm. Contacts cost as little as $2, but you would need one for every point of entry to be completely secure.

One New York man credits the arrest of a burglar to his "Touch Tone" phone. After awaking to the sounds of an intruder, he feigned sleep when the burglar looked in on him. Then, while his house was being rifled,. he silently phoned for help. The police caught the intruder in the act.

Police warn against ever trying to apprehend a burglar yourself. And they frown on keeping guns around. More people are shot accidentally than are hurt by burglars. And shooting a burglar or a prowler is sometimes a crime.

The odds are that you'll never encounter a burglar face to face. Most of them will clear out fast if they realize they've broken into a house they thought was empty. So your best protection is to make your house appear as if you are home. That, plus deadbolt locks, strong doors and good neighbors should be all the burglar-proofing you'll ever need.

You don't have to live in a fortress to be safe. But your house should present enough obstacles to send a burglar elsewhere.

PEOPLE AND YOU

How to Fight With Someone You Love

"All people who live together fight from time to time," says psychiatrist David Viscott in his book How to Live With Another Person. Dr. Viscott points out that most men and women don't know how to have a "good argument" that clears the air and helps make future battles less likely to occur. He suggests: 1) Decide beforehand what you want to accomplish. Are you just exploding emotionally or are you trying to make a point? 2) Pick a time and place where you both can talk comfortably. If you choose a setting where you have all the advantages, the other person will know it and may be so furious that he will refuse to accept your point of view. 3) Don't try to win by overwhelming. Dr. Viscott explains, "In some instances it may be permissible to overpower people, but not in marriage relationships." Equality must be the essence of that relationship. 4) Never argue in bed in the dark. You need to see the other person's face and reactions, which often tell a great deal about what your partner really means. 5) Try to begin arguments with the expectation of resolving them and making up.

How to Read an "Invisible" Corporate Power Chart

Every business organization has two power charts, the official one and the real one. The official organization chart is there for anyone to study. The real power chart is invisible, and you can understand it only by persistent observation. Since the power chart affects who gets promotions and raises, who stays and who is elbowed out, it's well worth your while to learn about it. Things to watch for: 1) Who supplies the reliable information? A decision-maker or someone having close access to the real decision-maker is the source of such information. 2) Who has social contacts with top executives? Social connections may have been achieved through long-standing friendships or through a spouse with good connections or through activities in some political, community, athletic or religious organization. However gained, they give that person an edge in company power. 3) Which long-time employees have quietly cornered power by taking on the authority to initial memos or plans? Even if their initials on the project really mean nothing, by making themselves a part of the chain, these senior employees can delay or kill a project by leaving it quietly on their desks. That's negative power. But it's power. 4) Which co-workers have relatives or former bosses in the executive hierarchy? They may have realistic expectations of promotions that will turn them into powerful people eventually. 5) Who is currently involved in an office romance? Some day, it's true, the romance may be over. But at the moment, they're a duo commanding power from two directions in the organization. Once you understand the real power structure, you'll know how to get results and who is really important to your future with the company.

BOBBY CLARKE
Diabetic and Athletic

November is National Diabetes Month: Mary Tyler Moore is severely diabetic. She gives herself two insulin shots a day and insists: "I'm healthier because of my handicap. I've been forced to take very good care of myself." Bobby Clarke, the Philadelphia Flyers' hockey star, has been diabetic since the age of 17. He had only this to say about it: "Maybe I've been lucky. But anyone—diabetic or not—has to have a lot of perseverance to get what he wants out of life." You're probably aware that diabetics can lead nearly normal, healthy—even athletic—lives. But if you think diabetes is a rare disease, you're mistaken. It's now one of the most common ailments in America. In the last 10 years, known cases have increased by more than 50 percent. At this rate, an American born today and living an average life span (70 years) has greater than a 1-in-5 chance of developing the disease. Diabetic patients face the possibility of a shortened life and serious medical complications. If they overlook or neglect their disease, it can lead to heart attack, blindness, kidney disease or gangrene. Yet diabetes is easily detected, and some of its complications may be prevented if caught early and treated properly. Some symptoms: excessive thirst, extreme hunger, rapid weight loss, frequent urination, drowsiness, general weakness, blurred vision (or a change in vision), skin boils or infection. See your doctor if any of these symptoms persists or recurs. As a plan of prevention, it's simple enough: 1) Have an annual medical check-up. 2) Maintain normal weight and follow good health practices. 3) Support those who are working to conquer diabetes. GUESS WHO? You might think a young cavalry officer known as the "Little Beauty of the Regiment" might be due for a difficult career. He was light and weak and always needed too much sleep. He probably had a latent case of tuberculosis. He had a soft, pretty, girlish face with a rosy complexion, small delicate hands and a soft, melodious voice. He was ridiculously modest and would never bathe along with the other recruits. He was a soldier who couldn't stand the sight of blood or injured animals and couldn't touch meat unless it was almost burned. He only cursed once (when someone mistreated his horse). His military career was as poor as one might predict except, of course, for winning the Civil War. He and his wife are buried on a pleasant hill overlooking the Hudson River, in Grant's Tomb. IT'LL HAPPEN TO ALL OF US
We asked: "How do you feel about growing old?"

The fickle fates of show business have traditionally favored the young and beautiful. Is it especially tough to grow wrinkled in the spotlight? FAMILY WEEKLY checked with a group of celebrities and got some surprising answers: MARLO THOMAS: "I'm not scared of losing my looks, or my shape. What frightens me is the thought that I might become incapable or lose control of my mind." YUL BRYNNER: "I have no fears. In fact, I'm all for maturing. It's as comforting as a security blanket." RONA JAFFE: "My horror is growing stiff. I don't want all those little aches and pains that people collect as they get on in years. I'm terrified at being unable to do all the physical things I could when I was young." DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: "I'm looking forward to it. I'm curious about how the years will treat me. I expect to improve with age—just like wine. Life's first half is a cocoon; the second is the butterfly." FREDA PAYNE: "A young attitude is important, and I'm holding on to mine. There'll be no hair dyes and face-lifts. I'll age gracefully and be glad I have the kind of intelligence no 20-year-old could have." DON RICKLES: "Considering the alternative, it's enticing."

PICK A PAIR
The inside story on twins

You're expecting a baby and looking forward to taking home an addition to the family. How would you feel if it turned out to be two? One in about every hundred pregnancies in the U.S. results in twins. If you're over 35 and have had children, you're about three times more likely to produce fraternal twins than a woman under 20 having her first baby. Whatever your age, the more children you've had, the greater your chance for twins the next time. Also, once you've had a simultaneous pair, you're three- to 10-times as likely as non-twin first-time mothers to have still another set. According to Amran Scheinfeld, probably the foremost authority on twinning, these facts apply mainly to fraternal twins. Identical twins, he says, are most likely the result of inherited tendencies and are rarer than fraternal. Most twins are the same sex, with slightly less than a third of twin births being boy-girl combinations. Twins tend to be born on an average of three weeks early. Up to 60 percent are premature and small, compared to 7 or 8 percent of singletons, but once they've come through prenatal and birth ordeals, they can be expected to be just as healthy and big as loners.

QUOTE: "If you have headaches, it may be small consolation to know that you are in good company. Some of the most brilliant and celebrated people in history were tormented by migraine to such an extent that their creative productivity is a source of wonder. The worst victim may have been Friedrich Nietzsche, philosopher of sorts and the intellectual parent of Superman. Nietzsche's headaches were so frequent that in their peak period they were coming about every 72 hours. Notables who suffered from migraines were Thomas Jefferson, Ulysses S. Grant, Sigmund Freud, Madame Pompadour, Karl Marx and Charles Darwin." UNQUOTE. From The Conquest of Pain by Samuel Mines (Grosset & Dunlap, $7.95).
