the house were not retained. He denounced that particular schedule, and he declared that Canada would take such action regarding pulp wood and print paper as to place an almost prohibitory price upon paper in this country.

Mr. Payne placed the increase of revenue at about $40,000,000, which he said is "revenue enough when this bill gets into full working order to supply the necessary demands of the government, not to build the Panama canal. We will leave that to another generation.

"Let us pass the bill and give joy and happiness to the people of the United States. Let us start the remaining idle wheels of industry; let us put every man who wants to work at work."

Thunderous applause greeted Mr. Payne as he took his seat.

Champ Clark Is Caustic.

The Democrats had their innings when Champ Clark (Mo.), their leader, arose to present their view of the bill.

Mr. Clark submitted a table, which he said was approximately correct, showing, according to Mr. Clark, that the average rate of the report is 1.71 per cent higher than the average rate of the Dingley law. If scores of new items in the report, but did not in the Dingley law, were added, Mr. Clark said, the average increase would be at least 2 per cent.

"Yet the brazen claim is made that this is a revision downward, which is a sham, a humbug, a bald and bold perversion of the facts," declared Mr. Clark.

The president, he continued, had been grossly misled as to the nature of this report.

Taft Deceived, He Says.

"That the president's respect for the square deal and his jealousy of his own fame impelled him to honestly desire a tariff law which would at least measurably redeem his own and his party's ante-election promise for a downward revision of the tariff will be readily conceded by every candid person," continued Mr. Clark. "That he has been deceived by tariff experts and near-experts as to this conference being a downward revision in any reasonable sense of the term, can, I think, be mathematically demonstrated."

Mr. Clark said that if the president could secure reductions on a few articles in a week he could have accomplished far more if he had begun sooner, because it is much easier to influence a man's opinion upon any subject before he has publicly asserted it than after.

Comparisons Submitted.

Mr. Clark submitted a table containing a comparison between the Dingley revenue for 1907, and the revenue that would have been derived that year under the duties of the conference bill. Under the Dingley duties, he declared, the revenue would have been $329,109,342, and under the duties provided by the conferees it would have been $334,758,344, an excess of the conference bill over the Dingley law of $5,649,002. The conferees, he said, had increased the agricultural schedule 6.63 per cent; spirits, 26.88 per cent; cotton, 10.80 per cent; silk, 15.48 per cent; pulp paper, etc., 10.02 per cent. It had decreased, he said, the earthenware schedule, .32 per cent; metals, 6.65 per cent; wood, etc., 15.53 per cent; sugar, .004 per cent; flax, .24 per cent; wool, .35 per cent; sundries, 11.41 per cent.

A Stupendous Fake.

"And yet," said Mr. Clark, "this conference report on the tariff bill is heralded and headlined in the public press as a tremendous victory for President Taft."

Mr. Clark emphasized his faith in President Taft, but said:

"He is subject to the same infirmities as the rest of us and there will be all sorts of efforts made to keep him from ascertaining the facts on which he would base his judgment to cut this tremendous load of maximum down."

The bill he characterized as "the most stupendous fake in the history of mankind."

Payne Clever Tactician.

The debate of ten hours and a half was brought to a close by S. W. McCall (Mass.), one of the conferees, with an earnest plea to his Republican colleagues to support the bill.

When the hour of 8 arrived nearly every member was in his seat. Chairman Payne, by a clever parliamentary move, was prompt to make a motion to recommit the report to the conference committee, and upon that motion demanded the previous question. Mr. Mann was alert to the situation, however, and got enough support among the Democrats and Republican "insurgents" to force a roll call.

This vote resulted, yeas 196, nays 181, and the previous question was ordered, the Republicans breaking out into loud applause over the announcement. The roll again was called on the motion to recommit.

The Crucial Test.

As Mr. Page had planned, the motion to recommit was lost, but only by the close vote of 186 to 191. Then came the crucial test, the vote on the conference report itself. All were agreed that there should be a roll call and the long list of names was tolled off.

When the call had been completed there was breathless silence while the tally clerk was making his totals.

Wild Cheers Greet Result.

The speaker announced that the yeas numbered 195 and the nays 183, and that the report was adopted.

Like a flash the Republicans gave vent to their pent-up feelings, cheered wildly and long, thumped their desks and in other ways manifested their delight. Chairman Payne wore a broad smile and many members crowded about him and offered their congratulations.

PARTY LEADERS "ROASTED"

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS EXCORIATED.

He Says in Many Instances They Are Ruled by Lawless Element in the Community.

Baltimore, Md., July 31.—Former Governor Edward Warfield excoriated leaders of the Democratic party of this state at a primary in Howard county today. He declared that the party leaders are animated largely by selfishness and that in many cases they are controlled by the lawless element in this community.

"They hold their power through this same element," he said. "In some instances they depend upon lawlessness for a living."

The former governor introduced a resolution calling for the selection of the candidates for the United States senate by direct vote and the naming of all candidates for state elective offices in the same manner. Upon his requesting that those favoring the resolutions sign them, a large proportion of those present did so.

SOON TO JOIN FAMILY.

President Taft Expects to Reach Summer Home Wednesday.

Beverly, Mass., July 31.—Robert Taft, son of the president, said tonight that his father expects to reach his summer residence here next Wednesday morning.

The duration of his visit is not known. President Taft long ago accepted an invitation to be present at the celebration in Gloucester next Wednesday, and the committee on arrangements for the affair received word today that he will surely be there.

It is expected that he will go over to Gloucester from Beverly in the Sylph Wednesday afternoon.

HAVE FAITH IN TAFT

Local Republicans Believe He Will Veto Measure.

WEST MUST BE CONSIDERED

Must Revise Downward, Though Platform Did Not Pledge It.

Oddly enough, a rather optimistic feeling prevails among Republican leaders regarding the tariff fight at Washington, and opinions have been advanced by a number prominent in the party in Minnesota that the finish will be satisfactory to the country generally.

The one opinion seems to be that President Taft will come to the rescue at the proper time, and, if it proves to be a revision upward, as claimed, instead of the promised article, that he will veto it, and thus save the party the disgrace of repudiating its own promises.

"It is difficult to figure out whether the work of the conference commission is a revision downward or upward," was the way State Auditor Iverson put it yesterday, "but I have every confidence in those in charge, and I believe that the close will see the bill far from what some are trying to make it out to be. It must be figured out on the basis of the country at large, rather than any particular section, and until such is shown conclusively I should not care to be considered as one criticising."

Dar Reese of St. Paul is another who refuses to accept the bill as representing everything but what has been promised. "I am in the dark as to the whole thing," said Mr. Reese yesterday, "but you can put me down as confident that the bill will be a satisfactory one at the close. If it is not, President Taft will veto it. There is one thing I would like to correct, and that is the Republican platform does not promise a revision of the tariff downward. It promised a revision only, but President Taft in his campaign utterances added the downward feature. The trouble is that much of the stuff we are getting about the tariff comes through Democratic sources."

James A. Martin, former chairman of the Republican state central committee, would not indulge in any criticism of the bill, but he gave it as his opinion that if it was not as promised that the party would suffer in the Middle West. I know it is hard to please all sections in a matter of this kind, but the West must have some concessions, if the party is to live."

Secretary of State Julius H. Schmahl says he stands with the Minnesota delegation at Washington. "I think the whole thing can be safely left to them. They are on the ground floor and I have confidence in their judgment."

BLIND NEGRO AMUCK; KILLS 2

REFUSED MORE LIQUOR, HE SHOOTS.

Terror of Paterson (N. J.) Shore District, Known as "The Devil," Held for Two Murders.

Paterson, N. J., July 31.—A blind negro, angered by a bartender's refusal to serve him more liquor, pulled out two revolvers today and emptied them in a crowded saloon, killing two men and seriously wounding a third. William F. Sasson is the man under arrest on two charges of murder.

In spite of Sasson's blindness the police say he is the terror of the shore district, where he is known as "The Devil." Today he entered Henry Regemass' saloon accompanied by two other negroes. All had been drinking heavily.

When the bartender told them they had enough, Sasson shouted: "We'll see if we can have drinks or not," and backed to the door, drawing a revolver in each hand. From these he fired nine shots before the place was cleared.

Robert Ferguson, one of the men who entered with Sasson, died fifteen minutes later with a bullet in his side.

Charles Hummel, white, died at the hospital from a shot in the abdomen.

Joseph Geiger, also white, may die. His jaw and his right arm were shattered.

BANKER AUTO VICTIM

Cornelius Cuyler Dies From Injuries at Biarritz.

WAS GOTHAM FINANCIER

Accident Not Far From Edmond Rostand's Home.

Biarritz, France, July 31.—Cornelius Cuyler, prominent financier of New York, died at the Hotel Biarritz last night from injuries received in an automobile accident near Camboi yesterday. Mrs. Cuyler, who was riding with her husband, was hurt, but not seriously. The accident occurred not far from the home of Edmond Rostand, the poet.

The car was climbing a steep hill at a rapid rate when the chauffeur endeavored to change the gearing lever. Something gave way beneath the car, and at the same moment the foot brake was disabled. The car plunged backwards and ran down the hill at great speed, finally turning over and throwing the occupants into a ditch at the side of the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Cuyler were quickly picked up by rescuers, and brought to the Hotel Biarritz, where Mr. Cuyler died after great suffering. His skull had been fractured and he had also incurred internal injuries.

The banker was a director of the Orange National bank, the Commercial Trust company of New Jersey, the Casualty Company of America and the Mobile & Ohio railroad, a member of the New York stock exchange and a life trustee of Princeton university. He was also connected with the New York Dock company. He was fifty-one years old, and while always devoted to the college athletics of his alma mater, caused comment last spring when he gave $500 to the Yale Boat club. He had intended to return to this country on Sept. 1.
