

China Admits Great Earthquake Losses; No Estimates Given

By BARRY J. SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communist party today admitted "great losses" of life and property from the major earthquakes in a heavily populated industrial area of northeast China east and southeast of Peking. But no casualty figures or damage estimates were given.

Aftershocks were reported continuing.

Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported "extremely serious damage and losses" in Tangshan, an industrial city of more than a million people 80 miles east-southeast of Peking and 40 miles north-east of Tientsin.

Hsinhua said the first quake was centered in the Tangshan-Fengnan area and "comparatively strong shocks" were felt in Peking and Tientsin, China's third largest city with a population of 4.3 million.

"Since the quake was not predicted in advance, it is believed that many of the residents of Tangshan did not have time to escape," the Peking office of Kyodo, the Japanese news agency, reported.

Kyodo said damage in Peking "has been held to the minimum" but "damage of considerable scope is reported in Tientsin."

Former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia, who was in Tientsin when the first quake hit, said most modern structures withstood the shock, but older buildings "collapsed completely." He said the first tremor was followed by "very large explosions on the horizon" and many aftershocks.

Foreigners in Peking said the casualty toll in the capital did not appear to be heavy. The U.S. Liaison Office reported that all Americans in Peking and Tientsin were safe, and the head of the American mission, Thomas Gates, offered the Chinese government American aid.

"Our great leader Chairman Mao, the Party Central Committee and the State Council (cabinet) are very much concerned for the masses of people in the earthquake-stricken area," said Hsinhua.

It said Communist party officials of Hebei province rushed to the quake areas to direct quake-prevention and relief work. People in the areas "have been promptly organized in a united fight against the effects of the earthquake," the agency said.

It was the first official Chinese report on the quake, and it was not issued until 20 hours after the first shock.

The U.S. Earthquake Information Service recorded the first quake at 3:40 a.m. Peking time Wednesday and said it measured 8.2 on the Richter Scale. It was the strongest earth shock registered by the service since the Alaska quake in 1964, which measured 8.4.

About 15 hours later a second major quake registered 7.9 after minor tremors throughout the day.

The open-ended Richter Scale measures ground movement. An increase of one whole number means a tenfold increase in the force of the quake. A quake registering 8 on the scale is considered a "great" earthquake capable of causing tremendous damage. The San Francisco quake of 1906 was recorded at 8.3 on the Richter Scale.

Second Suspect Arrested In Kidnaping Of Children

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — James Schoenfeld, the second of three suspects sought in the Chowchilla bus kidnap, was captured without a struggle today after he was spotted driving a van on a freeway south of San Francisco.

At the moment he was captured, Schoenfeld's brother, Richard, 22, was being taken from the Alameda County jail at Oakland for a three-hour drive to Chowchilla for arraignment in the bizarre abduction of 26 children and their bus driver.

One suspect in the July 15 kidnaping remains at large. He is Frederick N. Woods IV, 24, whose father owns the quarry in Livermore where the children and the bus driver were imprisoned in a van for 18 hours before they dug their way out.

James Schoenfeld was booked at the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City on kidnap and unlawful flight charges, officials said.

Both Schoenfelds and Woods were charged in a warrant issued last week with 27 counts of kidnaping and 16 counts of robbery. The robbery charges stem from the taking of clothes and other items from the kidnap victims.

After a week-long odyssey in which he was reported seen in several areas of the Pacific Northwest, James Schoenfeld, 24, was seen Wednesday night by "someone who knew him" as he drove an Idaho-licensed van through Menlo Park, a San Francisco Peninsula community only a few miles from his home.

An all-points bulletin was issued and the search continued through the night.

According to early reports, James Schoenfeld was spied again by police at Mountain View at about dawn on U.S. 101, a major north-south freeway. Schoenfeld turned off the highway into Menlo Park where he was captured at about 6:55 a.m. just off the freeway by San Mateo County deputies and officers from the Menlo Park and Redwood City police departments.

FBI agents then reportedly took him to the San Mateo County jail in Redwood City.

The van, which had been purchased at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, was found to contain camping gear, toilet articles, old clothes and sleeping bags.

There was no immediate word on whether the van contained any weapons.

Authorities, meanwhile, transported Richard Schoenfeld to his arraignment in Chowchilla. He was being driven here from the Alameda County jail in Oakland for a formal reading of the charges.

Rezoning On 264 Bypass Endorsed By Commission

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A revised request for rezoning property along the west side of US 264 Bypass north of 14th Street, including a major change in the request for frontage zoning, was endorsed by the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission last night with the recommendation for approval by the City Council.

The request, submitted by Reynolds May and David Evans St. through Phil Carroll as agent, represented a compromise between property owners of the area who had objected to commercial use of the land along the bypass, and the developers.

Carroll explained that the rezoning request, as revised following meetings with the area residents, seeks a change in the zoning of the approximately 46 acres from R-9, R-20 and Neighborhood Commercial to R-6, R-9, Shopping Center and a small area of Unoffensive Industry.

The major revision, it was noted, involves the request to have the strip of frontage along the bypass running to the northern property line rezoned to R-9 as a buffer to the property across the street. Originally, the developers had sought to have the strip zoned Office and Institutional and had met strong opposition from the residents.

In addition, the revised request also includes an expanded area of Shopping Center zoning near 14th Street where other commercial development already exists. Property at the rear and center of the tract would be zoned for R-6 usage.

Owners of the tract have sought for years to rezone the property in order to begin development but opposition by residents to the potential use of the tract for commercial purposes was a stumbling block.

Bill Holley of Rose Street, who had made numerous trips before the commission and City Council to express his concern about the rezoning, said last night that he endorsed the alternate proposal submitted by Carroll. Holley noted that the commercial development was internalized under the revised proposal and the R-9 buffer along the front of the property represented better utilization of the tract.

W. J. Simmons of E. Wright Road said that he "strongly" objected to down zoning "any piece of property in Greenville." He said that rezoning of part of the property to R-6 will double the density of homes in the area.

Simmons contended that "To insert lower classification of R-6... is contrary to the purposes of our... ordinances." He requested that the commission recommend denial of the request to downzone the property.

Former commission chairman Eddie Howell said that he is a resident of the area in question and he observed that, "this, to me, is the best plan." Howell offered the motion to recommend approval to the Council. Vote on the motion was unanimous.

In business on the agenda of the Joint City-County board, a rezoning request by Taft, Blount and Rivers for 224 acres on the southwest side of State Road 1417, northwest of Greenfield Terrace Subdivision, was approved with an additional buffer zone.

The request for rezoning from Unoffensive Industry to R-9, R-6, R-6-MH, and Highway Commercial was tabled at the last meeting. At the meeting, attorney Tom Taft noted that the property owners were willing to provide an extension of the proposed area of R-6 along the top of the proposed R-9 area as a buffer for area residents.

Last night, an additional buffer of R-6 zoning was added between the proposed R-6-Mobile Home zoning and the property owners of Greenfield Terrace. Taft said that the drainage

Sikes Censure Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly today to reprimand a subcommittee chairman, Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, on two counts of financial misconduct.

It was the House's first punishment of a member since 1969 when it fined Harlem Democrat Adam Clayton Powell and stripped him of seniority.

There were only three speakers in the debate before the reprimand against Sikes, a Florida Democrat.

One of the speakers, Rep. Andrew McGuire, D-N.J., said the House ethics committee should have recommended a stiffer punishment than censure. He said members should consider whether to take away Sikes' chairmanship of the House military construction appropriations subcommittee next year.

"The committee has found conduct that cannot and should not be tolerated by this House, or anybody or the American people," McGuire said.

The House approved the reprimand by a 381 to 3 vote, with five members voting present. Voting against the reprimand were Reps. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., Tom Steed, D-Okla., and Olin Teague, D-Tex.

Sikes made no statement to the House in his own defense but received permission to insert a statement later into the Congressional Record.

City Buses See Light Morning Usage; More Expected During Day

Usage of the new Greenville Area Transit buses was low this morning, despite the free introductory rides.

According to John Schofield, city planner, use of the buses was expected to pick up.

"There will be more people later on today," he said.

"I expect people to really begin using the buses around lunchtime.

"And as people get more used to seeing the buses around, and become familiar with the schedules, they'll use the service more."

The buses began a three-day free introductory service this morning to acquaint the people of Greenville with their new transit system.

By mid-morning today, usage had picked up.

"We don't really expect a large turnout for the next week or 10 days," said Schofield.

"There seems to be a wide and very broad interest throughout Greenville. We are getting calls from all parts of town, and it looks promising."

Today's service began with a small mechanical problem in one of the buses, but it was easily repaired in time for the bus to begin its route.

"We're in good shape," said Schofield.

"All of the routes seem to be on schedule, and the drivers haven't had any problems meeting their schedules."

"We have everything worked out now."

Schofield said the signs to be used at the major stops are now being made.

"We hope to have the signs up tomorrow," he said.

"They are being made now, and hopefully we'll have them in place for sure by the first of next week."

The buses will begin regular service Monday morning with a fare of 25 cents. Three routes are covered by the buses.

Information about the routes is being provided by the bus drivers, who are distributing sheets explaining the routes to their passengers.

The buses will stop at any intersections along the route if there are riders waiting.

VAN DRIVERS NEEDED

A program to provide transportation for senior citizens is being delayed in starting because of problems in recruiting volunteer drivers of a van provided through the Pitt County Council on Aging.

Elizabeth Stedman of the Council on Aging said the Council is in urgent need of volunteer drivers 18 or older to drive a van two-and-a-half hours per week. The idea is to have this 15-passenger van, donated by a local church, carry senior citizens with no other means of transportation to points where they can make use of the new Greenville Transit system, which went into operation today.

"I know there must be many people willing to help out in this way if they only knew of this way if they only knew of the need," Ms. Stedman said. Interested persons may call her at 752-1717 or Volunteer Greenville, 752-4137, Ext. 255.

Supreme Court Upheld Pitt Evaluation Method

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The North Carolina Supreme Court last week denied a petition to review a case in which a Pitt County man was seeking to overturn the method used by Pitt County to determine the tax value of household personal property, thus ending a legal battle that began over two years ago.

County attorney W. W. Speight said this morning that David E. Bosley of Grifton appeared before the Pitt Board of Equalization and Review on June 3, 1974, attacking Pitt's procedure.

Speight explained that "our method of determining tax value of personal property allows the taxpayer to use 10 per cent of the value of his residence, or 120 per cent of his annual rental pay, less the statutory exemption if a lessee," as the value of his property.

"Under our system," Speight continued, "if the taxpayer chooses not to accept the percent valuation, he can for 'on the spot' appraisal."

He said Bosley's suit "claimed that Pitt's method of determining tax value of personal property... was unlawful because it was an unauthorized classification of property... and not in accordance with the statute, with consideration to establishing market value or true value in money."

After the petition was heard by the Pitt Board of Equalization and Review, the case went before the North Carolina Tax Commission, which ruled in favor of the county, then was heard on appeal by the Superior Court and the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals decision in the case was filed May 19, after a March 16, 1976 hearing.

The ruling by the appeals court said Bosley "did not accept the percentage valuation of his property, which amounted to $3,600, but received an on-site appraisal which amounted to the sum of $4,100," and, "does not seek relief regarding the valuation of his own property, but attacks the use of the percentage method."

The ruling continued, "the fallacy in this position (as taken by Bosley) is that the percentage method of appraising household property is not a classification... but a method or formula for determining the 'true value in money' of this kind of property. Appraising each item of household property would be an impossible task."

And, the decision continued, "There is some reasonable relationship between the value of a home and the value of the household property within. The percentage method is thus a reasonable one in accomplishing the object of determining the market value of household property."

The judgment also noted, "The difficulty of estimating the value of household property makes it impossible to appraise each item of such property precisely at actual market value, and in construing the applicable provisions of the Machinery Act, we assume that the Legislature recognized this impossibility and did not intend an unjust or absurd result."

The court ruling concluded, "We find in this case that Pitt County has adopted an appraisal method for household property which is equitable and with reasonable uniformity and accuracy reflects market value, and in

Expert Offers Tips On Making Big Investment: Buying A Fur Coat

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Planning to buy a fur coat in the August fur sales? Or perhaps you'll wait until the winter clearances, the other popular fur buying period. No matter—fur coats are expensive. Pelt prices are up and you should plan your purchase carefully if you'd get your money's worth.

That advice comes from fur expert Carol Ware. She and her husband, Irwin, who has been in the fur business 40 years, operate the fur salon at a Chicago specialty store, Bonwit Teller.

"There is a whole new generation of fur owners. Women have become important wage earners. First they get an apartment, then a wardrobe of clothes, then the frosting, a fur coat," says Mrs. Ware in explaining the increased volume buying in the entire industry.

"And there is the girl who begins wearing a remodeled coat of her mother's. If it is long, she is hooked. There are still some girls who fear people will criticize them for wearing mink, but they don't mind wearing nutria, raccoon or Swakara, a South American lamb-like caracul. In fact, natural raccoon with let-out stripes can be as elegant as any mink," she maintains.

Mrs. Ware attends the fur auctions with her husband. A petite ash blonde who has been working with him for 10 years, she has earned a reputation as a superb fitter and stylist, attracting many well known personalities.

Budget and lifestyle should help determine the kind of coat you buy, she explained. Style and not price may be the clue to a fashionable appearance.

New fur coats are patterned like shaggy wheat, basket weaves, woven ribbon and plaid effects. They are dyed amber, green, red, rust, orange and even violet. The new look is soft, straight away from the body, but not hugging it, a trend away from flared and fitted.

Here are some of her tips for fur coat shoppers:

MAJOR PURCHASE—Fur expert Carol Ware, shown at right fitting a fur coat, is a fur expert who advises that budget and lifestyle should help determine the kind of coat to buy.

—Petite girls have many style choices provided the coat is not too long and they "think tall." A small woman with a large chest should not try to wear the narrow tube look, now popular, which is more successfully worn by a woman of thin build. She should stick with a flared coat, good for a person of any age.

—Heavy women should not wear belts on furs, unless the belt comes through slits on the side. A large interesting buckle can make the waist seem smaller. A loose, full, easy coat with a shawl or notched collar will help add length and flatter the face of a woman with a matronly figure. Sizes 18 and 20 should avoid bulky furs.

—Women with a large bust should not wear mandarin collars or collarless coats... hippy women should not wear a pea coat length... a shirt jacket style is good for all ages.

—There is more security in buying a longer length coat which can be turned up by the furrier if you want to wear it short. Later it can be lengthened.

—A good mink should feel mushy, sort of silky in the hand.

—Silver-haired women can wear blue fox, Blue Iris Lutetia mink, grey Swakara lamb, lynx, beige mink, nutria with light colored fox or lynx collar. Black or navy blue mole or violet-colored furs are other good choices.

—A brisk business is done in balding furs—fox-pieced coats and rabbit—the fast shedding furs that are popular with young people. Mrs. Ware always tickets them "guaranteed to shed."

Old fur coats can be lived up in these ways, she suggests.

Put a worn mink into ashell and use it as a raincoat. Remove its worn sleeves, shorten it and wear it as a vest. New knitted sleeves may be added.

Or shorten a fur coat, add new buttons, brass maybe, which will cost less than a big remodeling job. Furs can be bleached and dyed. Old fur collars can decorate cloth coats. Fox and lynx are great on suede if it is the same color—the furs shed. A fur border can lengthen a short coat.

Government Fraud A Serious Offense

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is married, has four children and was separated from her husband when she went to live with a divorced man. (I'll call him John.) She lived with him for 14 months, then he was killed.

After John died, my daughter claimed that she was his widow, and now she is receiving his Social Security, which amounts to a lot of money.

I am worried sick about this. Doesn't the Social Security Office check these claims? And if they do, and it becomes known that she was never married to John, what can they do to her?

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: The Social Security Office requires the birth certificates of all the children if the woman is claiming benefits for them, plus a marriage certificate to prove that she is indeed married to the man. Your daughter must have forged these documents.

If the S.S. office discovers a possible fraud, they turn it over to the District Attorney's office for investigation and possible prosecution. If found guilty, the accused must repay all the money and possibly face a fine and/or imprisonment.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to give my girlfriend a diamond soon, but there's the problem:

Her father is in the jewelry business, and I don't know whether I should buy the ring from him or not. I'm afraid if I go to him, he might think I'm expecting a better price, which I assure you I am not.

If I buy the ring from a competitor, I'm afraid my girl will be hurt.

What should I do?

BUYING A DIAMOND

DEAR BUYING: Buy the diamond from your future father-in-law. If he offers you a special price (and he probably will), don't be a schnook—accept it.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 19, I married a man who was 27, and we were so much in love we never thought we would have any problems. We have been married two years, and I am miserable.

He is a professional man, and I never got past the ninth grade. He is always correcting my English and has even suggested I go back to school and graduate.

Abby, I feel that he thinks I am not good enough for him. If he loved me as I was, why is he ashamed of me now? What should I do?

UNEDUCATED

DEAR UN: Get in touch with your public education system and resume your schooling where you quit. It can be done by mail or in evening classes with other adults. Your husband loves you, or he wouldn't encourage you to graduate. There is no shame in not knowing—only in refusing to learn.

Anyone Clamoring For Clams?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Come summertime, a cook's thoughts turn to clams. But the popular bivalves are less available and more expensive than they used to be. How to make the most of a small amount of the seafood?

One way is to use clams in an aspic. Turned out of a patterned mold and garnished, the aspic looks attractive and tastes cool and refreshing. When we were developing the following recipe, we made the aspic several times and gave one of the molds to a next-door neighbor. She served it as a main course, surrounding it with cooked shrimp marinated in French dressing, cherry tomatoes and crisp greens. With this seafood platter she offered hot biscuits—but then she's from Kentucky! The aspic is also good with chicken and croutons—a marrying of flavors inspired by the traditional New England clam bake.

This recipe calls for 1 cup of canned minced clams along with ¼ cup of their liquid and 1 cup of bottled clam juice. Home-steamed clams (minced) and their broth plus fresh clam liquor may be used, in the same proportions, to advantage.

CLAM ASPIC—It's cool and refreshing for a summertime lunch or supper.

CLAM ASPIC

- 10½-ounce can minced clams
 - 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 - 8-ounce bottled clam juice
 - 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
 - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - ¼ teaspoon dried basil
 - ¼ teaspoon white pepper
 - 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
 - ½ cup mayonnaise
 - Garnish: parsley sprigs and pimiento-stuffed green olives or watercress sprigs and sliced cucumber
- Drain liquid from clams into a small mixing bowl; reserve clams and refrigerate. (There should be ¼ cup clam liquid and 1 cup clams.) Sprinkle the gelatin over the clam liquid and let stand about 5 minutes to soften.

In a small saucepan heat the bottled clam juice almost to boiling; add to the softened gelatin; stir to dissolve. Stir in onion, lemon juice, basil and pepper. Chill until slightly thickened.

In a medium mixing bowl, gradually beat mayonnaise into cream cheese so that mixture is completely blended and smooth; gradually stir in the slightly thickened gelatin mixture, blending well; stir in reserved clams.

Turn into a 4-cup mold—mixture will not come to top. Chill to set. At serving time unmold and surround with one of the garnishes.

Makes 6 servings.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

On a California beach somewhere, I saw a girl sunning herself topless today and the only thing I could think of was, "Good heavens! She and I were the only two on the beach in a one-piece suit!"

As the crowd gathered, I couldn't help feeling dirty and ashamed. Men and boys were snickering... younger girls ran down the beach for a closer look. I saw a few camera buffs aim and snap to record on film what they saw.

You would have thought that none of them had ever seen a 49-year old woman in a one-piece bathing suit before. Even the girl sitting topless came down for a closer look.

Finally, I could stand it no longer. I grabbed a towel, covered myself, and ran back toward the house.

"Well, what did you expect?" asked my daughter. "You go around fully clothed like that and you're going to attract attention."

"Why should that be of any concern to anyone else?" I asked, tears of shame welling in my eyes.

"Morals are everyone's business," she said, "and the answer is simple. All you have to do is conform. Just buy a two-piece suit and blend into the crowd."

"I can't wear a two-piece suit," I complained. "The tops look like steering wheel covers."

"I'd think you'd be self-conscious wearing a one-piece suit. After all, your body isn't that great."

"No one asked people to look. They're the ones who are sick!"

"Okay, so wear a one-piece suit, but don't be surprised if some day a policeman comes around and orders you to take off more clothes while you're on a public beach."

"Why can't people over 40 be themselves?" I asked. "Why do we always have to do what young people tell us?"

"Because young people have lived less and know what is good for you. C'mon, you're just depressed," she said. "Slip into a pair of shorts and a midriff shirt and we'll go to the movies. There's a new one called 'Logan's Run'."

"What's it about?" I asked.

"It's a futuristic film in which every everyone over 30 is eliminated. It's a comedy."

"That's easy for you to say."

Oil Import Data Is Bad News

It is not good news that U.S. oil imports jumped by around 34 percent in June because of consumer demand for fuel.

The jump meant that the nation went into a deficit trade balance situation after a trade surplus for a month.

Imports exceeded exports by $377.3 million in June. In May there was a $395.6 million surplus of imports.

While the deficit trade balance is not good, the most immediate concern to us is that Americans have once again thrown caution to the winds in their use of gasoline and other fuels.

For that reason we are having to bring in more oil from foreign oil producing nations and we have already seen the results of this in higher oil prices. If the increased use of fuel continues, we can expect to see still higher oil prices, and the price will continue to rise until fuel becomes so dear that consumers are forced to cut back because of the exorbitant costs.

If big increases in fuel use continue we can also expect the possibility of future shortages of gas—something that the previous gas shortage proved is disastrous to a nation which moves on wheels.

It is too bad that our nation hasn't learned its lesson about the need to conserve fuel. There can be enough for the near future—but not if we don't conserve.

Priceless Pictures Direct From Mars

The color pictures which Viking is sending from the surface of Mars continue to astound us.

The rust-red surface and the colorful sky give one the feeling that it would be reasonable to walk around on the surface of the far-away planet. As other Viking experiments have shown, however, this would be quite impossible for earthlings without highly protective equipment.

Photos of the Martian surface are priceless, however, and they, along with other Viking experiments, will help unlock secrets of the universe.

Claim Roads Preference

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The formula used to dole out secondary roads funds favors Republican counties, at the expense of heavily Democratic Piedmont and Eastern sections, a legislative study commission has been told.

A total of $30 million statewide has been portioned out for the present fiscal year—beginning July 1 and ending next June 30.

That amount is really just a drop in the bucket when pitched against the state's 21,025 miles of unpaved rural roads.

So, in order to make sure every county gets a fair share, the state law sets up a rather complicated formula by which the unpaved miles in each county is multiplied by the available money as compared to the total number of unpaved secondary roads in the state, and the total money needed to do the whole job.

Incidentally, highway officials put that "total job" money at more than a billion dollars.

Some Doubt

But members of the Governmental Operations Committee, the spending watchdog group of the General Assembly, received a staff report this week which casts doubt over the fairness of the formula.

In fact, a legislative staff report concludes that the actual allocation of money violates state law because it calls into being a factor which is not provided for in General Statute 136-44.5: the varying cost of construction per mile in different counties.

Using that variable—which ranges from a low of $31,500 per mile in Scotland County to a high of $70,350 per mile in several mountainous western counties—highway officials have manipulated the money to get around the legislative intent of fair and equal sharing, the legislators have been told.

On June 4, 1976, Transportation Secretary G. Perry Greene of Watauga County (also the home county of Republican Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr.) sent a memo to members of the Secondary Roads Council.

That council, established by Gov. Holshouser, is chaired by Randolph County GOP Leader Cecil Budd. Randolph County, incidentally, was one of the few central-state counties which got a sizeable amount of secondary money—more than neighboring counties got.

Highway officials defend the formula, insisting that construction costs do vary sharply from county to county, depending on terrain: low, flat eastern land is easier to build on than steep, rocky western hills; urban counties take more for right-of-way purchases than sprawling, rural counties.

An Explanation

In his memo, Secretary Greene pointed out that the funds were apportioned "on consideration of the number of miles of unpaved state-maintained secondary roads in the county as compared with the total number of unpaved state-maintained secondary roads in the state." He neglected to mention the cost-per-mile variance, but suggested that "Jack Murdock, secondary roads officer of the division of highways, can provide you with additional information on how the funds were apportioned." Secondary Road Council members are supposed to meet with the state's Boards of County Commissioners to explain the system and work on setting priorities.

Wilkes County, with 594.5 miles unpaved received the most money—just over a million; and Randolph, with the second most unpaved miles in the state, received $807,200 for 501.70 miles. At construction costs running in the middle $50,000s per mile in those counties, the dollars will actually pave only a fraction of the roads. Wilkes, for instance, would get 20 miles.

The legislative quarrel is not with the need for a cost-per-mile variance, but with the fact that it is used outside the statute, and without oversight from the General Assembly.

Thus, staff researchers say, several western (Republican) counties are getting as much as 45 per cent more than their statutory share; while some Piedmont and Eastern counties get corresponding cuts.

Watching 'Watchdogs'

More than two years ago, in his final report as chairman of a Senate select committee, Senator Sam Ervin addressed himself to the task of devising an "antidote for future Watergates." Just this past week, the Senate got around to compounding a prescription.

By a vote of 91-5, the Senate approved the Watergate Reorganization and Reform Act of 1976.

Time may prove that the five dissenters were right. Senators Curtis, Fannin, Hruska, Laxalt, and Scott of Virginia, all of them conservative Republicans, felt the bill is unconstitutional. They object to its encroachment upon executive authority; and because the principle of separation of powers is a sound principle, their criticism cannot be brushed aside.

All the same, the 91 senators who voted "yea" instead of "nay" had the better of the argument. The bill would create new machinery—perhaps too much new machinery—for the investigation and prosecution of federal crimes by persons in federal office. I suspect that none of the 91 believes the machinery is perfect, but the very existence of these new offices will be beneficial. The bill symbolizes a moral imperative: Public office must be seen as a public trust. That simple truth needs constant restatement.

The bill approved by the Senate would create a single Office of Special Prosecutor within the Department of Justice. Earlier it had been proposed, quite unwisely, that the bill provide for a number of temporary special prosecutors in particular cases. Along that route lay chaos. As many as 40 special prosecutors might now be at work, tripping over each other's feet. Thanks in part to President Ford's sensible intervention, the bill's sponsors returned to the original proposal put forward by the Ervin Committee: One man, of impeccable integrity, untouched by partisan politics, with sweeping authority to proceed in the public interest.

That is what the bill would provide. The Special Prosecutor would be nominated by the president and confirmed by the Senate for a non-renewable three-year term. He would be highly paid. He would employ his own independent staff. He could be removed only for "extraordinary improprieties." His writ would run to possible federal offenses committed by a president, vice president, cabinet member, high executive official, member of Congress, or federal judge.

In addition, the bill would create an Office of Government Crimes under the attorney general, with authority over lesser public employees, lobbying violations, election offenses, and the like. We also would have within the Department of Justice an Office of Professional Responsibility, with authority over the conduct of Justice employees themselves. The bill would further create an Office of Congressional Legal Counsel to defend members of Congress in civil actions, but this provision really has little to do with Watergate reform.

Even if the House concurs promptly with the Senate bill, it is unlikely that the new machinery will become operative until after the first of the year. Such sensitive appointments will wait on the election returns. By next spring, perhaps, a Special Prosecutor may be confirmed.

Will this be the "antidote"? No, indeed. Sam Ervin had it right two years ago when he wrote that "law alone will not suffice to prevent future Watergates." Laws may deter, and laws may punish, but the law "does not make men good."

The only sure antidote, said Senator Sam, is to elect or to appoint to public office only those persons "who entertain the abiding conviction that public office is a public trust which must never be abused

Signs Along Roads

By DAVE RILEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember driving down the highway in the old days and being entertained by those signs that read:

"The monkey took one look at Jim

"And threw the peanuts back at him.

"He needed Burma Shave."

Well, maybe the government should sell nutrition the way Burma Shave used to sell shaving soap, says Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

At a hearing Tuesday, federal health officials stressed the need to encourage Americans to take more interest in nutritional eating habits.

It occurred to Humphrey that the Pentagon spends millions of dollars for roadside advertising in its constant search for enlistees. So, he asked, why not billboards telling people that

DESEGREGATION LAWYER

Battleground In The North

By ANDY LIPPMAN

Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Louis Lucas changes the lives of kids and parents across the country.

He's the man the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People depends on as special counsel in desegregation cases.

Right now, Lucas is involved in some 30 cases, contending that the U.S. Justice Department has failed to pursue the 1964 civil rights law and therefore has caused more problems in desegregating schools.

"There has been a sort of deteriorating process in the area of school desegregation in the Justice Department during the last eight years," Lucas says. "There was a head of steam built up in the right direction, but as the years went by not only did the head of steam get reduced, but the train got turned around."

Lucas, a former Justice Department attorney, says that the statutes which were used to intervene to reduce segregation now are implemented to resist desegregation.

"They haven't kept the pressure on school districts to take action," says Lucas, 41. "A lot of districts move voluntarily under the threat of a withdrawal of federal funds. When that pressure comes off, so does the movement by the school board."

The fight by the NAACP has moved north and Lucas finds himself in the ironical position of a white Southerner defending black rights in the Northern courtroom.

He's in Detroit; Columbus, Ohio; Cincinnati; Dayton, Ohio; Cleveland, and Wilmington, Del. In past years, he's argued in Hartford, Conn., San Francisco, and Kalamazoo, Mich.

"There are some people who resent that white people are handling these cases," he said. "They make remarks like 'I could understand if you were black.' But it seems to me that white people created segregation, and white people have a responsibility to do something about it."

Lucas works 16 hours a day, balancing his work for the NAACP with a private practice in Memphis. "Most of the time, I need to slow down, but it's hard to say no," he explains.

His cases seldom end with the judge's final gavel. Of the 30 cases he has worked on, most require some degree of continual attention.

"School cases never get over," Lucas said. "The court maintains continuing jurisdiction and school boards seem to keep trying to build in the old segregated manner."

The North has been a battleground for Lucas since he tried his first Northern case at Benton Harbor, Mich. In 1969. Before that it was always his native South — Richmond, Birmingham and Memphis.

Other Editors Say Humanity's Ills

(Jacksonville Daily News)

One thing the world is not short of is problems. By one informed count, there are at least 1,653 problems of global scope, and these are "embedded in a network" of no less than 13,564 identified relationships.

That, anyway, is what it says in a 1,200 page "Yearbook of World Problems and Human Potential," the outcome of a four year joint project of two Brussels-based international nongovernmental organization—the Union of International Associations and Mankind 2000.

The yearbook, say its editors, is an experimental first attempt to define what a world problem is, how many there are and how they are interrelated, and to identify the different kinds of intellectual, legal, organizational and other resources which can be brought to bear on them.

Produced via computer (what else?), the volume has 13 sections containing nearly 13,000 descriptive entries, interrelated by more than 58,000 cross references. Under "Human Diseases," for example, there are 77 entries and 688 cross references. There are 606 entries under "Multinational Corporations and Enterprises" and 931 entries under "Multilateral Treaties and Agreements."

Compiling this mass of data was not without problems of its own. The editors found that their work was hindered by the inability of international organizations to document the world problems with which they are specifically concerned—to the point that values, solutions, goals and problems are frequently confused, as for example in the case of "peace" or "development." They also note a tendency for problems to be "disguised, neutralized or denatured" by the way they are treated — "an almost superstitious tendency to avoid focusing on problems in all their negativity."

Moreover, a problem for any one group may be perceived as a satisfactory condition for another. Each problem has supporters who believe it is among the most important.

Does a healthy industrialized society need a minimum number of problems to provide an adequate stimulus and challenge? They ask. Will society generate artificial problems in the absence of real ones, and how can the two be distinguished? Are many organizations simply memorials to dead problems? Do new problems disguise the emergence of new values?

Only by looking at the whole pattern of world problems and human potential can satisfactory answers to questions like these be obtained, say the editors.

40 Years Ago Today

July 29, 1936

Sixteen men were feared drowned early today when the motor powership "Material Service" capsized in the rough waters of Lake Michigan, four miles on Chicago's south side.

Seven members of the crew were rescued, but Captain C. D. Brown and 15 others were listed as missing by the Coast Guard.

First Mate John M. Johnson said the vessel listed suddenly as it nosed through a heavy sea sometime between 2 and 3 a.m. It lurched to an even keel, Johnson related, then sank swiftly.

Other Coast Guard boats were rushed to the scene to comb the waters for Captain Brown and the 15 missing members of his crew.

The Pitt County Farm Bureau will take an active part in trying to secure federal loans through the Rural Electrification Authority to erect rural power line throughout the county.

Efforts will be made to have electricity in every farm home in the county, it was stated.

Strength For Today

THE WORD AND THE SPIRIT

What a marvelous thing it is that as we re-read again and again the old, familiar passages from the Bible we find them speaking a fuller message as the years go on. The spirit of truth leads us into the way of all truth. If the spirit of truth is brought to bear on the heart of any people, a passage of Scripture flashes forth with a new message when read in the light of more experience.

The Bible becomes the flaming word of God only when the Spirit of God interprets its message to the heart of the reader. Without this Spirit the Bible not only does little good, but can become positively harmful. Some people, for example, read the Bible simply to prove a minor point of doctrine. Others read it in a spirit of prejudice mainly to give transcendent justification for their own bigotry.

God has not only given us a great book in the Bible. He has made possible a great spirit in which its message may be read and pondered.

Discounts For Energy-Savers

By DEAN KATZ

Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — Borrowers who can show that a coveted house, boat or car conserves energy are being offered below market interest rates on loans and mortgages in a program its sponsor says combines good citizenship with good banking sense.

The program, which the Seattle Trust and Savings Bank says could save borrowers thousands of dollars in interest charges, offers a 1/4 to 3/4 per cent discount on home mortgage and improvement loans for dwellings that conserve energy.

Sailboats and new cars that get at least 25 miles a gallon also qualify for the discount.

President Joseph C. Baillargeon said the bank has received more than 3,000 inquiries since the start of the program July 7. But while conceding its value as a marketing device, he also insisted "it is not a gimmick. It is based on a very solid community need."

Baillargeon says the program makes good banking sense besides offering incentives to save energy, which he says the private sector is long overdue in providing.

Baillargeon told a congressional committee earlier this month that one banking advantage of energy efficient homes, cars and boats was that they depreciated less in value and thus left loan and mortgage holders in a better market position in case of default.

"We felt we could ill-afford to wait until 1980 or some earlier date for both ourselves and our customers to discover themselves unprepared for economic-efficient lifestyles," he said.

The Seattle program offers conventional 30-year mortgages at 8.5 per cent, compared with a current market rate of about 9.25 per cent, for homes that meet specified energy conservation standards for heating, insulation and appliances.

Buyers of older homes which do not meet the standard can get improvement loans at 8.75 per cent, 3/4 per cent below the market rate. These loans are available to present homeowners.

For a 30-year, $40,000 home mortgage, the difference between an 8.5 and 9.25 per cent interest rate would be $7,744 over the life of the loan. Monthly payments would be $307.57, compared with $329.04.

Loans for sailboats and for energy-efficient new cars can be had for 8.75 per cent, compared with 9.5 per cent or higher interest rates.

Record Auto Profits For Period Cited

Barker Built Town, Is Working On Next Goal

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry's bust-to-boom turnaround sent General Motors' profits in the second quarter soaring to a record $909 million, the highest ever by an industrial corporation for a three-month period.

April-June earnings reported Wednesday by the world's largest auto maker amount to a startling $10 million a day after taxes.

Profits jumped 173 per cent from $333 million in the spring of 1975, when the industry was struggling out of its worst slump in four decades.

GM joins Chrysler Corp. in reporting record profits for the period. Ford Motor Co. also is expected to set a new mark when it releases its financial results today.

GM's earnings top the firm's previous quarterly record of $817 million set in the first quarter of 1973. It also shatters the previous quarterly profit mark for an industrial firm of $862 million set in the last three months of 1974 by oil giant Exxon Corp.

Financial analysts said the most money ever made by a company for a single quarter was $940 million by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in the second quarter of this year. AT&T is classified as a utility.

Analysts attributed GM's record profits to higher unit sales industrywide, an increase in the company's market share, a strong comeback in sales of high-profit large cars, an easing of cost increases combined with effective cost-cutting controls, and a recovery in overseas markets that is paralleling that in the United States.

Despite its record performance, GM's profits fell short of the $935 million to $950 million forecast by Wall Street analysts.

GM dollar sales in the quarter were a record $12.5 billion, up 35 per cent from $9.3 billion a year ago. But unit vehicle sales of 2.37 million were below the record 2.39 million recorded in 1973.

Lippman Col...

systems involved had been affected by official policies fostering desegregation.

That decision sent Lucas back to court to determine a new system. Now the struggle is at the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

"In Detroit, we were dealing with one of the largest school systems in the nation," Lucas said. "It was a case many people said couldn't be tried. It was too big, too Northern, and it was something that had never been done before. Maybe we were just too ignorant to think that it was impossible."

Lucas currently is in courtroom stages of five cases in Ohio. Recently, he appeared in Cincinnati appeals court to defend a Dayton plan based on a ratio-balance formula which goes into effect this September.

He has just concluded a case in Columbus with final arguments still to be heard, has another on Youngstown schools docketed for early next year, hopes to topple arguments put forward in a Cincinnati case in which the system of neighborhood schools was upheld, and awaits a judge's decision on whether Cleveland has segregated schools.

"We don't go into an area just to file a lawsuit. There are times when the school district is trying to do the right thing, but look at what has happened in Dayton, or Cincinnati, or Detroit, where some party backed down."

"We had to back up the people who were trying to do the right thing."

"I had two goals that I have worked toward during my lifetime; one was to build a town and the other was to become governor. Well, I built Love Valley so now I am running for governor," Jetter (Andy) Barker, Jr., Democratic gubernatorial candidate said during a visit to Greenville Wednesday.

Barker, a general building contractor, began constructing Love Valley in 1954 and the town was incorporated in 1963. Barker has served five terms as mayor of the town.

"My general aim as governor would be to increase the tax base without increasing taxes by good sophisticated diversified industry. We need to stop selling North Carolina as a cheap labor state and bring industry into our state," Barker said.

"We also need to work with retirement living within our state. We need to encourage retired military persons to reside here. Last year 35,000 retired persons in the state received a gross income of $145 million, but we need to double this amount and stop treating retired persons as second class citizens."

"Tourism is an industry that should be developed in our state. We must advertise our resources more, both locally and out of state. Last year Florida spent more money on orange juice advertisements in North Carolina than the state spent on advertisements within the state about tourism," Barker said.

"Local option on liquor by the drink would also help tourism. Construction of cross state highways is essential. Highway 70 should be finished, highway 74 should be extended from Charlotte to Wilmington and highway 421 should be completed," he added.

"North Carolina has some of the finest convention facilities in the world and we need to develop these facilities."

"We need also to develop our ports and quit using Norfolk and South Carolina," Barker said.

"I believe that we could develop a $60 million business within one year by taking fruits that have dropped or ripened and processing apple and peach brandy. There would be no pollution since they are biodegradable and some of the fruit could be used as feed," Barker said.

Barker also said that he is in favor of decentralizing the prison system in North Carolina and having the prisoners work on the prison farms which could be developed to raise fruits and vegetables for the schools, hospitals and the prisons.

"I think the farms would give the prisoners a feeling of accomplishment," he said.

Barker will be visiting the towns of Eastern North Carolina this week.

Farmville Mart Arrested In Volume Heavy Firebombing

FARMVILLE—Volume was heavy and all firms had full sales Wednesday at the Farmville Tobacco Market according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"Sales consisted of much better grades than previous days this season. A few sheets of leaf grades appeared on the floor for the first time," Williams said.

"Offerings of lugs and color grades increased in volume," he added.

Wednesday 796,437 pounds were sold on the Farmville Tobacco Market for $733,711.24 with an average of $94.64 per 100 pounds. To date 3,144,103 pounds have sold with an average of $91.79 per 100 pounds.

SCOTLAND NECK (AP) —

Officers at Scotland Neck have reported the arrest of a 10th black man on charges growing out of firebombings which plagued the town after a white woman was acquitted of killing a black man.

Police identified the latest man arrested as Benny Anthony, 19, of Rt. 1, Scotland Neck. Anthony was charged with attempting to burn the Columbia Peanut Co. the night of July 13.

Officers said a bottle with inflammable liquid was thrown toward the building but fell short and burned out without causing any damage. Two other men have been arrested in connection with the same incident.

In all, 10 men have been arrested in connection with a total of four firebombing attempts that have occurred since Mrs. Sandra Dupree, wife of a white minister, was acquitted of murder in the slaying of Harry Lee Dickens, 21, last March.

No such millennium is in sight. Divine law is a fine thing, but so long as men are less than angels we need statutory law here on earth. The Senate's Watergate Reform Act is a regrettable but useful step in the right direction.

Carter Brainpicking Washington's Top Insiders

By LARRY KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter is picking the brains and challenging the assumptions of some of Washington's most experienced insiders in backwoods briefings on defense, economics, foreign policy and intelligence.

His advisers say the sessions are invaluable for the former Georgia governor, who has campaigned widely but lacks first-hand experience in the inner workings of the national government.

In the last of the four briefings, Carter meets at his mother's pine-shaded "Pond House," with 10 foreign policy experts with government and academic experience.

The purpose of the briefings is "to give him the benefit of the knowledge and expertise that comes from being on the inside," Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary and a principal policy adviser, said in an interview.

"In these briefings, his function is to challenge establishment assumptions."

Carter met Wednesday with Director George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency, who flew into the grass-strip airport which serves this peanut farming community with a team of intelligence analysts. He said his purpose was to give the candidate all possible classified information to prevent his making "a wrong mistake."

This week Carter heard such defense experts as former Pentagon officials Cyrus Vance and Paul Nitze debate the relative strength of American and Soviet tactical armaments. He also analyzed the conflicting demands of unemployment and inflation with the help of a number of former Democratic economic advisers, including Arthur Okun and Paul Schultz.

For all of the participants except Bush, who came by Army helicopter, briefing the presidential nominee and his running mate Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., meant a three-hour bus ride through the southwest Georgia Piedmont and a box lunch featuring cold fried chicken and potato salad.

The Carter staff acknowledges that the 29 men and women who conducted the briefings consist largely of former government officials and teachers at prestigious Eastern universities.

They can be largely listed under the umbrella title of the "eastern establishment," against which Carter directed his campaign to win the state presidential primaries.

Powell stressed that each briefing group was made up of people who held varying opinions and were ready to defend them.

"These people were asked in many cases because the governor has been speaking for and looking at this campaign from his vantage point as an outside," Powell said.

Presidential candidates in other election years have sought the advice of outside experts, but Powell said he is not aware that the sort of formal briefing in an informal setting with the vice presidential candidate also present "has really ever been done just this way."

Other observers of the Carter campaign view the current briefings as valuable for the candidate, but essentially insignificant.

They note that few if any policy stands have emerged from the briefings. They say that politically the sessions may be remembered for Carter's standup question and answer sessions with reporters intended mainly to dispel the notion that he is "fuzzy" on substantive issues.

Powell said the idea was to enlist a large-enough group to provide diversity and debate, which would still be small enough "to provide a good give and take."

He said that during the briefings Carter and Mondale had been able to informally direct discussion to areas in which they desire more information.

We the family of William Slaughter would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for the flowers and expressions of kindness shown to us during the recent loss of our son and brother.

Runaways Are Ended

EAGLE SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — Runaways have stopped at Samarkand Manor training school now that the new director, Fred King, a former Army major, has established a relationship of trust with the youngsters.

He was appointed after the previous director was fired following runaways and vandalism of stores and homes in the area.

King, a physical fitness buff, says youngsters in a daily jogging program he has established know they can run away if they want to during the five-mile course. But he says none has done so.

"I trust them not to run, and they trust me to lead them up and down the right roads," King says.

About 100 of the 180 pupils at the school take part in the jogging each morning.

King said there have been only two runaways in July, and both were new pupils who got only as far as the edge of the campus.

The facility houses three examining rooms, one minor trauma room, a laboratory and patient record areas. A two operator dental practice is scheduled to be opened soon.

Medical services such as those provided in a family-oriented general primary care practice are available daily Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.; and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rezoning...

problems of the area are being taken care of and residents will no longer be faced with annual flooding.

A resident of Greenfield Terrace, William Gibbs, said that the neighborhood association had met to discuss the proposed rezoning since the June meeting and are in agreement with the request. He noted that the ditch through the area has been dredged but he said the real test of the problem will be a large rain.

Another matter involving property in the general area was also recommended to the Council for approval. The endorsement was given to a request for rezoning some 47.1 acres on the west side of NC 11 and US 13, north of Belvoir Highway, from Unoffensive Industry and R-9 to R-6 and Highway Commercial.

The request, submitted by Carroll, included a revision to offer a buffer strip of 120 feet (R-9 zoning). The matter was also tabled at the June meeting.

Gibbs said that the Greenfield Terrace residents have also discussed the Carroll request and are in agreement with the rezoning.

The joint board recommended that Elizabeth Heights Subdivision, containing some 3.6 acres on Tar Road across from Pinewood Forest Subdivision, be annexed. Duplex development, with the exception of two parcels, has been proposed for the tract.

The annexation of 20.54 acres for Eastern Realty Co. located adjacent to Club Pines Subdivision was also recommended to the City Council. The intended use the property, which is contiguous to the city limits, is for the further development of Club Pines Subdivision, it was pointed out.

Greenville Utilities Commission director Charles Horne reported that GUC and the property owners reached an agreement since the last meeting concerning water and sewer extension to the area.

Discussion on a report concerning utility service to the southwestern portion of the city's extraterritorial area was tabled pending further study by GUC.

Plans for the city's proposed wastewater treatment facility are being prepared by GUC, it was noted, and will be adopted and submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency for study. Grants applications for all future wastewater treatment plants must be made in accordance with the "201" wastewater facilities plans.

Horne said that it has been proposed that it will take at least four years from now before the plans are approved for the facility, construction is completed, and the plant is in operation. Further action is not possible, he said, until the plans are approved by the EPA.

The Greenville board recommended that a request of SOBALCO Inc. to rezone 7.03 acres, located adjacent to University Condominiums on Golden Road, from RA-20 to R-6, be denied by the Council. The board also recommended that dedication of the proposed extension of John Avenue not be withdrawn.

The request of Joseph Thomas, and others, for rezoning approximately five acres located on the corner of Stantonsburg Road and Memorial Drive from Medical Arts to Shopping Center was recommended for approval. The matter was tabled at the June meeting.

The developers noted at the meeting that they wished to build a small, self-contained shopping center that would involve some 75,000 to 80,000 square feet of space. Four access points are planned for the center.

In other business, a recommendation for approval of a request by Ed Raul for rezoning approximately 6.4 acres located on the east side of Evans Park and abutting the railroad from R-6 to R-20 was given by the board. Raul said at the June meeting, when the matter was tabled, that he planned to develop a men's athletic club on the site.

Board approval was given to a request by Louis W. Reel and Ollie Harrington for rezoning two lots (1521 and 1523 E. 14th Street) from Neighborhood Commercial to Shopping Center. No immediate development plans have been prepared, the owners said, but the request was made in order to make the property compatible to the proposed rezoning action sought by Reynolds May and David Evans Sr.

In conjunction with the request, the board also recommended that the Council consider rezoning the Etna Station property, on the corner of 14th and Greenville

Boulevard, to Shopping Center to bring the whole section under one zone.

The board also recommended that a request by Mrs. Bob Thomas for rezoning of approximately 5,610 square feet, located on the southwest corner of 14th Street and Broad Street from R-6 to Downtown Commercial Fringe, be approved by the Council.

The property owner intends to sell the tract, which backs up to the Housing Authority's Newtown Project, to an adjoining car dealership for use as a parking lot. The Housing Authority wrote a letter to the commission indicating it has no objections to the rezoning request.

Two minor changes in the final plat of Sections I and II of Windy Ridge Condominiums, involving a shift in property lines, were approved. The changes constituted a revised plat, it was noted, since the final plat was already approved.

Action on the preliminary plat of Johnston Heights, Section IV, was tabled pending further study.

Commissioners adopted a resolution commending Howell for his service as chairman for over two years. It was also noted that Tom Powell, a member of the staff of the Planning Department, is leaving in August to join the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County Planning Commission. Powell was commended for his service.

Poor Diet Said Cancer Factor

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans who fail to eat a balanced diet or eat too much are promoting their chances for cancer, five scientists told Congress.

However, the scientists were cautious when asked for details on what specific foods and brands would be either good or bad for an individual.

Improper diets are related to 60 per cent of all types of cancer in women and 41 per cent of those in men, Dr. Gio B. Gori, deputy director of the National Cancer Institute's division of cancer cause and prevention, told the Senate Select Nutrition Committee on Wednesday.

The scientists were careful to emphasize that an imbalanced diet has not been found to be a cause of cancer but rather is associated with the disease's development.

An excess of fats, for example, has been especially linked in research to breast and colon cancer, they said. The panelists would not condemn any specific types or brands of food, despite urging by some senators.

Gori said that he thought "any modification of our diet in the right direction should effect a decline in the incidences of these cancers in five to ten years." By way of comparison, if everyone stopped smoking, he said, it would be 10 years before lung cancer cases would noticeably decline nationwide.

Smoking is "the single, clearest cause" of cancer, he said, and "the most preventable.... We don't need to smoke, we do need to eat."

Others on the panel were Drs. Gerald Wogan, professor of food toxicology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dave Kritchevski, of Philadelphia's Wistar Institute; Ernest L. Wynder, president of the American Health Foundation and editor of the Preventative Medicine Journal; and D.M. Hegsted, nutrition professor at Harvard University School of Public Health.

Quarterly Meeting
Quarterly Meeting services will be held this weekend at Allen Chapel F.W.B. Church. Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Rev. J.H. Parker will conduct the service. Sunday at 11 a.m. Rev. Jasper L. Tyson will conduct the service and Eldress Cobb will conduct the Sunday 3 p.m. service. The public is invited.

Kritchevski recommended "a well-rounded diet, eaten in moderation."

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., asked what specific diet Gori would recommend for a 50-year-old male blue-collar worker who wanted to cut his chances of getting cancer.

The scientist said such a man probably is overweight and would need to cut calories by reducing his intake of food with fat, such as meat, milk, sugars and starches.

To make sure the worker "feels satisfied," Gori said, he should consume more fruits and vegetables to get bulk in his diet — even if that means eating more fruit a few hours later to quiet his stomach.

The man also should not smoke and should drink alcoholic beverages only moderately, Gori said.

Wynder recommended not only reducing total calories in the diet but specifically cutting those coming from fat to 35 per cent of total calories and cutting cholesterol to less than 300 milligrams a day.

Plan Services For 2 Nights

Friday at 7:30 p.m. the Rev. Hill and the Community Gospel Singers, along with Dixon Chapel Church, will render services. Saturday night the Rev. William Smith of Greenville will render services and the Bishop Phillips Gospel Singers will render music.

The public is invited.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, failing to sustain an early advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up about a point in the early going, was off 1.36 at 979.97 by 11:30 a.m.

Gainers held a narrow edge on losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was very quiet. The early gain was attributed to a continuation of the bargain hunting that began to appear toward Wednesday's close.

But the buying drew little support with investors still evidently taking a cautious view of the progress of the economic recovery.

National Semiconductor fell 2 to 36 in active trading after a

Sues Telephone Co. And Two Deputies

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) - The widow of a man who apparently hanged himself with a telephone cord in the Chesapeake Jail last month has sued two deputy sheriffs and a telephone company for $1.5 million. The suit was filed Tuesday in Chesapeake Circuit Court by Mrs. Gloria Burke.

Her husband, Norfleet Burke Jr., 37, of Chesapeake, was found dead by deputies shortly after 1 a.m. June 3 in the holding cell known as the bullpen.

Deputies said Burke was slumped against a wall with a metal cord, still attached to a wall telephone, wrapped around his neck.

Burke was alone in the cell at the time, according to deputies.

He had been arrested about three hours earlier on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The suit charges that deputies W. E. Hodge and J. D. Thomas Jr. were negligent in caring for the victim.

Her suit also names Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. as a defendant. But this apparently may be an error, since the pay telephone in the jail reportedly is owned by Norfolk &

Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Police and sheriff's department records indicate that Burke was taken to a precinct lockup after being arrested about 11 p.m. June 2.

He became violent and had to be restrained, deputies reported.

Hodge said Burke apparently took a tranquilizer while he was in the lockup, so Hodge recommended the prisoner be taken to Chesapeake General Hospital for observation.

Once they arrived at the hospital Burke refused to be treated, signed a release form at the hospital.

Americans Struggling For Second In Medals Race

By BOB GREEN AP Sports Writer MONTREAL (AP) — The United States now is almost hopelessly out of the medals race in the XXI Olympic Games and, in fact, doesn't even have a very good shot at second place. The Americans, who once dominated these quadrennial celebrations of sports, suffered a gold medal shutout again Wednesday, their third in five days. They have gained only one gold medal since Sunday night and, in that period, have fallen far back of Russia and East Germany. Russia, which picked up four golds Wednesday, leads with a gold-silver-bronze count of 33-31-23. East Germany has 30-19-18. The United States is a poor third at 22-26-19. The trend, however, could be reversed. It's doubtful that America's inspired boxers and somewhat maligned track and field forces can muster enough strength in the closing days of

Other Americans in tonight's semis are the fighting Spinks brothers, middleweight Mike and light-heavyweight Leon; light-welter Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md.; light-weight Howard Davis, Glen Cove, N.Y.; bantamweight Charles Mooney, an Army sergeant stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and flyweight Leo Randolph, Tacoma, Wash. The Spinks, like Tate, won quarter-finals Wednesday. The others had advanced earlier. Mike Spinks, from St. Louis, took a 5-0 decision over Ryszard Pasiewicz of Poland. Leon, a Marine corporal at Camp Lejeune, N.C., had more trouble with the referee than he did Ottomar Sachse of East Germany. Leon scored one knockdown and an easy decision but was warned once for talking to the referee. And when he showed up for the judges' decision wearing a white cap with a red tassel, the referee yanked it off and threw it in a corner. Americans also have the lead in both men's and women's archery, and, thanks to an excellent ride by Hilda Gurney of Woodland Hills, Calif., moved into second place behind the West Germans in the equestrian dressage team competition. The United States, which has won only the basketball gold in the past three days, was limited to two medals Wednesday, a bronze by four-time Olympian Willie Davenport, Baton Rouge, La., in the men's 110-meter hurdles, and a silver by Hawaiians David McFaul and Mike Rothwell in the Tornado class yachts, behind the British boat which already had clinched the gold. Russia's four golds came in men's and women's team handball, women's team foil fencing and in the men's hammer throw, where Yuri Sydek set a Games record with a throw of 254 feet, 4 inches and led a Soviet sweep of the medals. Aleksey Spiridonov was second and Anatoly Beonjcheruk was third. The East German women also swept the women's 200, with lightly-regarded Baerbel Eckert winning the gold in 22.37, setting an Olympic record and beating 100-meter gold medalist Annegret Richter and defending champion Renate Stecher. ACC Rallies In Seventh To Take Doubleheader Split With Pirates

By CHIP LAMBETH Reflector Sports Writer Will Flowers's two-run single in the top of the seventh highlighted a four-run rally that gave Atlantic Christian a 5-3 win and giving the Bulldogs a split of last night's doubleheader with East Carolina. The Pirates had come from behind in the opener for a 7-3 win and were leading, 3-2, going into the final frame of the afterpiece. The Pirates are now 22-15 for the season, ACC is 12-29. The Pirates are at home again tonight hosting Elon at 7:30. ACC rattled ECU started Terry Durham in the first inning of the first game for a 2-0 lead. Robin Rose singled and Chuck Finklea got a hit, Don Koozt singled in Rose and after a hit batter loaded the bases, Tim Bardin walked scoring Finklea. ECU had a couple runners in the second and third innings but one was cut down in a double play and the other in a force. The Pirates finally broke the ice in the fourth when Sonny Wooten drilled a home run to right with two out. The rally continued when Bobby Supel singled, Charlie Stevens walked and Pete Paradossi tripled. Supel and Stevens both scored on the triple and an error on the relay let Paradossi score the fourth run. ACC picked up a run in the fifth as Rose singled and scored on a fielder's choice. Rick Koryda drove in two runs with a single in the sixth after one came over on an error giving ECU its 7-3 lead. Wooten led the ECU hitting with two hits while Rose had three and Finklea two for ACC.

Tom Justice had led off with a pass and Rose singled. Keith Stutts grounded to second but Paradossi's throw was errored letting Rose slide in safely and Justice score. Finklea walked ending Conaty's stay. Billy Davis came in and promptly walked Koozt with the tying run coming in. Flowers singled up the middle scoring Stutts and Finklea. ECU had scored its first run in the fourth when Charlie Stevens singled in Wooten who had doubled. Doubles by Robert Brinkley and Macon Moye added the go-ahead run for the Pirates, 2-1, in the fifth. Koryda had reached on an error and scored on More hit. Supel added the final ECU tally with a homer to left in the sixth. Brinkley and Supel had two hits each for ECU while Flowers and Barden had two each for ACC.

College View got one in the fourth then pushed in three in the fifth cutting it to one, 7-6. Eric Deal reached on an error and Arthur Fletcher walked. Ricky West singled in Deal and a fielder's choice and an error led to Fletcher and West scoring. That was as close as it got, however, as NCNB battled back ahead in the bottom of the fifth. Walks to Will Barrett, Skip Topping and Glenn Moore loaded the bases and an error scored Barrett. Topping scored on a passed ball and Moore scored on a fielder's choice. College View picked up three in the sixth falling a run short.

Roberts Named To Post

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Ron Roberts, who guided the Georgia Southern golf team to NCAA tournament qualifications four straight years, has been named head golf coach at Wake Forest University. Roberts, a 32-year-old DeRidder, La., native, succeeds Jesse Haddock, who resigned recently to become golf coach at Oral Roberts University.

Spencer, Williams Lead East To Win

GREENSBORO (AP) — Billy Williams of Raleigh Broughton was good for 26 points and Albert Spencer of Washington grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the East to an 84-76 victory in the 28th annual East-West High School All-Star basketball game Wednesday night. The victory led a sweep of the evening for the East, as the East girls' team triumphed 54-50 over the West in the first game. The 6-foot-4 Williams, who is headed for Brevard (Fla.) Jr. College this fall, hit nine of 14 from the floor and all eight from line for his 26 point total. The East led by as much as 44-27 when Spencer, a 6-foot-9 center headed for Oral Roberts, scored to open the second half. Perry Smith of Shelby led the West with 18 points, missing just three of 11 field goal tries. Rob Noyes of McDowell County and Danny Anderson of Gastonia Huss each hit 13. Noyes led the West in rebounding with 10. "It was just about like I ex-

Niekro Leads Win With Bat

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN AP Sports Writer Phil Niekro knows what to do with a knuckleball at either end of its dance to the plate. The veteran flatterballer of the Atlanta Braves knuckled his way to a 7-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night and also walked a knuckler from Charlie Hough over the fence park for a three-run homer in the sixth inning that broke the game open. "I got a bigger kick out of the win than hitting the home run," Niekro said, ruining the theory that pitchers love to talk about their hitting more than their victories. Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco routed Cincinnati 7-0, the Chicago Cubs downed Philadelphia 5-2 in 11 innings, Pittsburgh nipped the New York Mets 1-0 in 13, San Diego edged Houston 2-1 in 10 innings for Randy Jones' 18th triumph and Montreal blanked St. Louis 3-0. The second game of the scheduled twi-nighter was rained out.

Odum, Barrios Combine To Hurl 2-1 No-Hit Win

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer
OAKLAND (AP) — "It was the most tainted no-hitter I've ever seen," said Oakland A's Manager Chuck Tanner. "Or maybe I should call it the funniest."

But to the Chicago White Sox John "Blue Moon" Odum, who pitched five hitless though walk-filled innings to get credit for the 2-1, no-hit victory, "It was one of the happiest times of my life."

Odum spent 11 seasons with the A's, who gave up on him last year. He was in the minor leagues a month ago before the White Sox gave him a fresh start.

Francisco Barrios, a rookie relief pitcher, took over for Odum in the sixth. The 31-year-old veteran had issued his ninth walk, to Billy Williams leading off, and thrown one ball to Sal Bando before Sox Manager Paul Richards sent coach Jim Busby to the mound to get Odum.

"I had a pretty good idea about the second inning that Odum wasn't going to last the whole game," said Richards, and Odum admitted he wasn't surprised when taken out.

"I didn't have my rhythm. I'm glad it happened, though. Maybe if I'd been around the plate all the time, we wouldn't have gotten the no-hitter. I'm glad I was wild," said Odum, 2-0 with Chicago.

The no-hitter by the two right-handers, who totaled 11 walks, was the American League's first this year and the fourth combination no-hitter in major league baseball history. It was the first time two pitchers combined to win a nine-inning, no-hit game, not counting a 1917 American League game in which Boston's Babe Ruth was ejected after walking one batter and Ernie Shore went to the mound to get 27 straight outs.

Barrios, 23, from Hermosillo, Mexico, was throwing in the bullpen in the top of the sixth when Jim Spencer broke a 1-1 tie with a home run off A's reliever Paul Lindblad. The A's scored an unearned run in the fourth when Odum walked two and catcher Jim Essian made a throwing error.

"I never knew it was a no-hitter until the ninth inning. I looked up at the scoreboard then, saw the zero and I couldn't believe it," said Barrios, who finished off the no-hitter with the help of an outstanding fielding play by second baseman Jack Brohamer.

two-base throwing error to open the 15th. An intentional walk to George Brett and John Mayberry's ground ball moved Poquette to third.

Larry Gura, the fifth Royals' pitcher, picked up his first victory of the season and his fifth in five lifetime decisions against California. Don Kirkwood, 4-8, who pitched out of a one-out, bases-loaded situation in the 14th, took the loss.

Orioles 4, Yankees 3
Baltimore, held hitless for 5 2-3 innings, scored three times in the seventh inning and beat New York with the winning run coming in on Andres Mora's force-play grounder.

The rally off Doyle Alexander, who flirted with a no-hitter for the third time in five weeks, gave the Orioles a three-game sweep. But the Yanks still lead the runnerup Orioles by 11½ games in the American League East.

Indians 7, Red Sox 6
Larvell Blanks drove in the winning run with a single after slugging a homer and a double to lead Cleveland over Boston. With the score tied 6-6 in the eighth, Blanks singled to left field off reliever Tom Murphy to score Rick Manning, who had reached on a fielder's choice and stolen second.

Tigers 1, Brewers 0
Pedro Garcia's ninth-inning sacrifice fly scored the game's only run and Dave Roberts pitched a five-hitter to pace Detroit over Milwaukee. Loser Jerry Augustine, 4-8, carried a string of 20 consecutive scoreless innings into the ninth when Alex Johnson led off with a single. Johnson moved to third on a sacrifice and a single by Bill Freehan before Garcia, traded by the Brewers to the Tigers last month, hit his run-scoring fly.

Twins 8-8, Rangers 5-0
Lyman Bostock laced three singles and drove in two runs, leading Minnesota's first-game victory over Texas. Don Ford hit a home run and drove in three runs and Steve Luebber won his first major league game in five years to lead the Twins' victory in the second game.

Olympic Spirit Alive And Well In Montreal

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor
MONTREAL (AP) — A shadow has fallen across the brotherhood of the Olympics on the playing fields and in the conference rooms. But it is alive and well in the social Olympics in picturesque Old Montreal, especially in a joyous cabaret called the Singing Box.

Each night, visitors from various nations drink, talk and lock arms to sing in the bar-like former garage labeled Boite a Chanson Le St. Vincent, just off Place Jacques Cartier where thousands cavort until dawn.

French-Canadian folk singers, beer, cognac and camaraderie lure Olympic visitors as well as local revelers to the jammed club.

One song goes:
"This is the great show.
"You are going to sing tonight.
"Whether it is friendship or love,
"Who knows? Who cares?"

Olympic-class drinkers from all nations sit around tables, arms on each other's shoulders, and sway to the music. Whether they understand the words or not, some message comes through.

"I like the music, I like the wine, I like the people," said Rae Ross, swimming and judo coach from Northern Ireland. "What else matters? We didn't do so well in the Olympics, but that is not the important thing. It is being here."

Th atmosphere, and perhaps the cognac, inspires some to oratory. West German Gerhard Bauer, son of a Bremen jeweler, was on his soap box.

"I love life, peace, and above all, humanity," he announced in German. "Please, no more war. That is the wish of a German boy."

The room was filled with 40 per cent foreigners and 60 per cent Quebecois, according to assistant manager Edouardo Pinto, who was amused by the raucous Americans.

"When Americans leave their country and find a place like this, they go berserk. They don't understand the songs or their hidden meanings, but they love it. It's an international crowd, yes, but isn't this the Olympics?"

Outside, in Place Jacques Cartier, there are singing groups, impromptu gymnastics, horse-drawn carriages and artists selling their paintings all night long on the cobbled streets the French built when they settled this lovely area in 1642.

Boxing Heads TV Slate

MONTREAL (AP) — Three Americans will compete against the strong Cuban runner Alberto Juantorena for a gold medal today in the men's 400-meter run at the Summer Olympics. ABC-TV continues its coverage.

Four other track and field events will be decided — men's long jump, and women's 400-meter dash, 100-meter hurdles and discus.

The network will televise 3½ hours of the Games, from 7:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., EDT, with a 15-minute wrapup at 11:30 p.m. Exact events to be shown won't be known until shortly before air time because much of the coverage is live.

Juantorena, who won gold in the 800 meters, was victorious Wednesday in one semifinal heat.

Fred Newhouse, a 27-year-old from Baton Rouge, La., won the other semifinal. The only other Americans in the race will be Herman Frazier of Philadelphia and Maxie Parks of Los Angeles. All three have predicted they would shut out the Cuban.

Among the competitors in the men's long jump are defending Olympic champion Randy Williams from Oakland, Calif., and bronze medalist Arnie Robinson from San Diego. A third American jumper is Larry Myricks of Mississippi College in Jackson.

No American women made the finals in the discus or 100 hurdles. Three are alive in the 400-meter run — Sheila Ingram of Washington, D.C., Rosalyn Bryant of Chicago, and Debra Sapenter of Prairie View, Tex.

Manly Trillo's three-run homer off Ron Reed in the 11th inning powered the Cubs to victory after Bill Madlock opened with a single, Jerry Morales bounced out and Pete LaCock was intentionally walked. Reed hadn't given up a home run since June 7.

Pirates 1, Mets 0
Richie Hebner's fourth home run in the 13th inning off Ken Sanders produced the only run of the game after Pittsburgh's Doc Medich and New York's Tom Seaver traded 10 innings of shutout pitching. Pirate reliever Dave Giusti won his first game of the season.

Padres 2, Astros 1
Doug Rader's two-run single

Leonard Soon To End Career

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
MONTREAL (AP) — There are 18 minutes — no more, maybe less — remaining in the ring career of Sugar Ray Leonard, and then he will hang up his gloves and go to school.

No amount of money and sweet promoters' promises can lure the bolo kid from Palmer Park, Md., into pro boxing.

"My mama told me she wants me to quit. I always do what my mama says," the rugged light welterweight said today. "Boxing has been fun for me but I got other things in life to do."

Leonard, at 20 a veteran of 135 amateur fights all over the world, is one of the survivors of the strong American team which will be battling the Soviet Union and Cuba for a major share of the medals in the weekend climax of the Olympic Games.

Impressive winner of his first four fights in the 140 pounds and under class, Sugar Ray next faces Kazmier Szczerba of Poland in the semifinals and, if he wins, probably will go against a tough Cuban, Andres Aldama, for the championship gold.

"No doubt I'm going to win it," Leonard said with a cool confidence that had no trace of arrogance. "I've won everything there is to win — the Pan Am Games, North American, AAU, Golden Gloves. Only need the Olympics."

"My mama said I could box until I win this one, and that's it."

Sugar Ray's mama will be at the Olympic Forum to see her well fulfilled — hers and that of a higher authority. If you happen to catch her on camera, you probably will see her hands clasped at her chin, head bowed and eyes closed — praying.

"We're a praying family," Sugar Ray said. "We're Baptists. I pray. My mama prays. We all pray."

If such petitions are judged on numbers, young Leonard stands a very good chance of getting a favorable response. Getha, his mother, is just one member of the Leonard clan who will be raising cheers and silent entreaties.

"My daddy is here, too. My big brother, two sisters, my brother's girl friend and my girl friend. They all drove up in a trailer and parked it in the lot across from the Forum. You call it easy. It's yellow and it has my pictures pasted all over it. Getting tickets has been tougher than fighting."

Sugar Ray's dad, Cicero, took time off from his job as night manager of a Palmer Park super market to attend the Games. He loves boxing, Sugar Ray says, and his brother, Dale, 23, was once a champion in the armed services.

Sugar Ray, who is only 20, sat in an anteroom at the Olympic Village on his day off and spoke softly of his life style, his philosophies and his plans. He will enroll at the University of Maryland in the fall, majoring in business administration and communications, under a scholarship provided by the people of his home town.

"I never was a tough guy in my neighborhood," he said. "I was always kinda shy. I'm really soft-hearted. I hate to see people hurt. But once I get in the ring I become a different person."

Moore Moves Up In CGA Tourney

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Parker Moore, husky former Clemson golfer from Laurens, S. C., who won the Atlantic Coast Conference title three months ago, has his eye on a professional career. But he's in no hurry to jump into the pressure of major tournament competition.

His two under par play in a 5 and 4 victory over Joe Hullof Wendel in Wednesday's first round of the Carolinas Golf Association amateur championship left him satisfied and encouraged.

"I'd been hitting the ball badly lately," he said, "but I slowed it down and got my timing back. I played super."

He was doubly pleased because the victory came on his second wedding anniversary. His wife followed him all the way over the steaming hot South course of the Carmel Country Club, a 6,957-yarder with par 72.

Moore had marked the occasion with a present of a new driver. He didn't use it Wednesday, however.

An envious player told Moore, "You're lucky. My wife would never follow me in a tournament."

Moore said of his future, "I'd like to get an assistant pro job at a northern club. I'd have the opportunity to play there several days a week. My game is still erratic, I know. I may even play some mini-tour events later."

He was one of 32 survivors, six from South Carolina, who moved into today's double round schedule. The tournament runs through a 36-hole final Sunday.

Joining Moore in the upper half of the draw were such contenders as defending champion Jim Holmes of Aiken, S. C., and LSU; three time champion Bill Harvey of Jamestown; and the Charlotte pair of Johnny Elam and Skip Dunaway, who were paired in the second round.

The bracket also included Doug Owens of Albemarle, who didn't lose a hole in trimming Vance Heafner, 5 and 4, in a major upset. Heafner, of Cary and North Carolina State, won the Carolinas Open two years ago.

The lower half included medalist Chip Beck of Fayetteville and the University of Georgia; Wake Forest teammates Scott Hoch of Raleigh and Tim Taylor of East Bend; Mike Holland of Bishopville, S.C.; Mark Stephens of Madison.

Niekro Picks Up Win; Sixth Homer Of Career

ATLANTA (AP) — Knuckleballer Phil Niekro played it straight and nearly got burned. So he gave a demonstration on how to pitch and hit the flutter ball to the delight of the Atlanta Braves.

The 37-year-old Niekro, who had pitched three scoreless innings against the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night before the rains washed away his effort, came back Wednesday night to lead the Braves to a 7-2 triumph while scattering seven hits and driving in four runs.

including a three-run home run. "We'll pitch Niekro again tomorrow night," said a smiling Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol in jest.

Niekro, who volunteered to pitch for the second day in a row, confirmed he would not pitch again until his regular turn but added:

"I think I'll bring my hitting glove in case they need me to pinch hit."

Niekro, increasing his record to 11-6, ran into trouble in the opening inning when the Dodgers broke loose for both their runs on three hits, the last a two-run single by Bill Russell.

"We had to get on him after the first inning to make sure he threw knuckleballs," said Bristol after Niekro threw a couple of fast balls which were drilled for hits.

Atlanta tied it in the fourth at 2-2 on a single by Jim Wynn, Willie Montaner' double, a runscoring grounder by Tom Paciorek and Ken Henderson's double off loser Tommy John, 6-7.

Jerry Royster's triple and a sacrifice fly by Wynn in the next inning put Atlanta ahead to stay before Niekro connected in the sixth inning for his three-run blast off Los Angeles relief ace Charlie Hough, also a knuckleball specialist.

It was Niekro's first home run of the season, first since 1973 and the sixth of his 11-year year major league career.

When he reached his locker after the game, his nameplate above his locker was gone and in its place a other one which read: "Hank Aaron, 44."

Niekro also added a run-scoring single in the eighth inning to cap his performance but admitted he probably "got a bigger kick out of the win than hitting the home run."

Paschal Will Start At Fullback For East

GREENSBORO (AP) — Quarterback Jim Streater of Sylva-Webster, handling the signal calling chores for the West, will be matching wits tonight with the East's Tony Tripp of Havelock.

Kickoff for the East-West All-Star football game at Jamieson Stadium is 8 p.m.

Streater will have in his backfield fullback Perry Allred of High Point Central, tailback Leonard Atkins of Salisbury and split back Ray Harris of Chase, running the T-formation. Tripp, who will direct the East's Wishbone, will be joined on the offense by halfbacks Mitchell Strickland of Sanford and the state scoring champion, James McDougald of Maxton.

At fullback will be Doug Paschal of Greenville Rose.

Meanwhile, all-star basketball competition Wednesday night turned into an all-East sweep. Billy Williams of Raleigh Broughton scored 26 points in leading the East boys to an 84-76 victory over the West, while East girls triumphed, 54-50.

The all-star games are highlights of the annual North Carolina Coaches Clinic.

Tate Still Two Bouts From Gold

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — "Congratulations on the bronze medal, John," someone said to the American heavyweight who sat nursing a swollen eye, a band-aid covering a cut above it.

"I didn't come to get the bronze, I came to get the gold," said John Tate Wednesday after being assured of at least an Olympic bronze by gaining the semifinals with a close decision over West German Peter Hussing.

Tate, a 21-year-old Knoxville, Tenn., truck driver, was still two steps away from a gold medal. And the first step was by far the biggest in Tate's 19-month, 60-bout career—a meeting today with the awesome Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba, defending Olympic champion.

The United States went into today's action with seven semifinalists, one fewer than Cuba. Another U.S. boxer scheduled for day action was mid-weight Mike Spinks of St. Louis.

Americans fighting tonight are flyweight Leo Randolph of Tacoma, Wash.; bantamweight Charles Mooney, an Army sergeant stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.; lightweight Howard Davis of Glen Cove, N.Y.; light welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md.; and light heavyweight Leon Spinks, Mike's brother, a Marine corporal stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Stevenson, whose goal is to win the Olympic title three times, hardly worked up a sweat in knocking out Mamadou Drame of Senegal in the second round Monday and knocking out Pekka Ruokola of Finland in the first round Wednesday.

"I'll fight until the people of Cuba tell me to stop or young people come along," said the 24-year-old Cuban.

For a time, it looked like Tate wouldn't have to worry about Stevenson. The American began tentatively against Hussing because of the cut above his left eye, suffered in his point victory Monday over Andrzej Biegalski of Poland.

In the second round, the cut opened again and the referee stopped the bout and called for a physician to examine the wound. "I thought the referee was gonna stop the fight," said Tate.

But the physician gave his okay, and the bout went on, with Tate coming on strong in the final round, knocking the German down with a right to the stomach and rocking him twice with shots to the head.

"I ain't gonna let no little cut get me down," said Tate after he got the vote of three of the five judges. "I gave everything I had in the last round and I won it."

The Spinks brothers both advanced Wednesday but Clint Jackson dropped a 3-2 decision in his 147-pound class bout against hard-hitting Pedro J. Gamarro of Venezuela. The deputy sheriff from Nashville, Tenn., was penalized a point in the third round for leaning in with his head, and it cost him the fight.

Mike Spinks, making his first fight of the tournament because of a bye and a walkover, scored the most one-sided decision of the first 11 days of the competition by belting Ryszard Pasiewicz of Poland all over the ring. One judge favored Spinks by four points, one by six, another by seven and two by eight each.

"I hoped he'd stay down when I hit him," said Spinks who dropped Pasiewicz with a long right to the head in the second round. "When he didn't stay down, I thought he could take it pretty good." And the Pole did, catching about 30 head blows in the third round but staying on his feet.

Leon Spinks bulled his way to an easy victory Wednesday night. Leon, 22 and the older brother by three years, knocked down Ottomar Sachse of East Germany with a short right when the fight was just 24 seconds old, then kept him in trouble the rest of the way. Leon seemed to have more trouble with the referee. The official penalized Spinks one point in the first round for questioning a warning. Then when the American appeared in center ring for the decision announcement wearing a red and white knit hat with a tassel, the referee yanked it off and threw it to a corner.

The crowd bood.

MONTREAL (AP) — Six poets who earned $600 at an Olympic-sponsored poetry reading have donated their profits to 20 poor families to protest what they call Olympic over-spending.

"This money from the Olympic committee will help sustain a group of people which the city has consistently ignored while continuing to spend an astronomical sum for 14 days' worth of Olympics," said poets' spokeswoman Madeline Gagon. She said the families cannot afford rent and have been living in unoccupied schoolrooms.

MONTREAL (AP) — Three hundred Quebec Indians will take part in the closing ceremonies of the Olympics and four Indian chiefs will lead the final parade.

With the chiefs standing around him, Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, will close the Games.

"It is appropriate that the participation of this noble race, symbolizing ability, strength and courage, should be a key element in the closing ceremony of the Games of the 21st Olympiad," said a statement by the Olympic organizing committee.

SAN JOSE (AP) — Tackle Paul Sieler and guard Ralph Miller have been signed by the San Francisco 49ers to bolster their injury-depleted offensive line for Sunday's National Football League exhibition game at Seattle.

Sieler, a New York Jets' No. 1 choice for Notre Dame in the 1967 NFL draft, spent three seasons with the Oakland Raiders and two in the World Football League with the Southern California Sun.

Miller was waived by the New York Giants. Formerly of California Lutheran, he played one year at Houston and two years in the Canadian League.

Hutchinson The 'Loser'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thomas Hutchinson swore that he would live and die by the law. But it was principle, not law, that was at stake in the years leading to the American Revolution, and Hutchinson's failure to comprehend this was his tragedy.

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Two hundred years ago, as the new American nation proclaimed its independence, Oxford University in England conferred an honorary doctor of civil laws degree on a man some Americans hated even more than King George III.

That man, Thomas Hutchinson, had been the last civilian governor of Massachusetts, and as such was denounced as a tyrant by American patriots.

Hutchinson was forced to seek his own recall as governor because the people of Massachusetts were convinced that he was plotting to destroy their liberties. A year later, in 1775, his successor, Gen. Thomas Gage, sent troops to Lexington and Concord and the Revolution was under way.

John Adams had written constantly of Hutchinson's "tyranny," his "very ambitious and avaricious disposition" and the "serpentine wiles of his head." They were bitter charges for a native American who had spent years in public office.

Hutchinson was born in Boston in 1711 and educated at Harvard. He was a merchant who owned a dozen homes and two commercial wharves. Entering politics at 26, he held most of the important public offices in Massachusetts, and even served simultaneously as chief justice of the Superior Court and lieutenant governor.

Prof. Bernard Bailyn of Harvard, his biographer, wrote that the only portrait of Hutchinson shows him to have been a slim man, simply dressed: "The over-all effect is that of constraint, simplicity, and an almost total lack of emphasis, flair or style."

Most of his close friends were relatives. His wife, Peggy, bore him 12 children, five of whom survived infancy. Her death broke his heart and he didn't remarry.

After being forced from the governorship, he sailed for England and counseled that force would keep Americans from taking up arms.

He wrote friends in Massachusetts that the English nation would not let the colonies go without a war.

Avidly consulted at first — he was taken to the King on the day he arrived in London and questioned for two hours — Hutchinson found himself less welcome in the colonial ministry as the crisis deepened.

He wrote in his diary, "We Americans are plenty here, and very cheap. Some of us at first coming are apt to think of ourselves of importance, but other people do not think so, and few if any of us are much consulted or inquired after."

Clinging to the hope a permanent split might be avoided, he refused a knighthood because it might hamper him if he should be reappointed governor.

He attacked the Declaration of Independence line by line, arguing that it merely revealed the secret goal — independence — of agitators who had said they simply sought the rights of Englishmen.

He followed the news from America closely. And he longed for home: "I am like the old Athenians; I can't bear the thought of laying my bones anywhere but with my ancestors and friends in my native land."

He died of a stroke in June, 1780, the same month that the constitution of Massachusetts, drafted by his old enemy John Adams, took effect. A year later the Revolution ended with the American victory at Yorktown.

How had Hutchinson ended among history's losers? Professor Bailyn wrote: "More intelligent, tolerant, experienced and perceptive — and less sanctimonious and self-righteous by far — than most of those who opposed him, he was overwhelmingly the loser."

Dispersing the mob after the Boston massacre in 1770, Hutchinson had cried out, "I will live and die by the law."

But more than legality was at stake.

One of the best illustrations of the conflict of ideas that led to

Russian Spy Satellite Broke Up During Flight

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mysterious disintegration of an advanced Soviet reconnaissance satellite Sunday has temporarily limited Russia's ability to spy on the United States with cameras from space, U.S. intelligence sources say.

The Russians apparently are filling the intelligence gap for the time being with photo information from the two-man Soviet Salyut satellite, which the Soviet Union claims is a scientific research space vehicle, according to U.S. experts.

The destruction of the Russian Cosmos 844 came four days after the Russians reportedly sustained their third successive failure this year in testing a system for destroying enemy satellites in space.

Officials who monitor Soviet military space activity say that Cosmos 844 broke up three days after it was sent aloft into orbit from central Russia.

Cosmos 844 is a new type of reconnaissance satellite which U.S. intelligence specialists say is designed to remain in orbit at least 20 days, nearly twice as long as older-model Soviet spy vehicles.

The specialists reached this conclusion after studying several previous flights of the new type of satellite.

On Monday, a day after Cosmos 844 disintegrated, U.S. sources say a standard Soviet photo satellite dropped out of orbit after a normal 12 days in space.

However, U.S. experts say they are convinced the Salyut space station is carrying out a military mission with its cameras. They declined to discuss how they know this.

In any event, Russia is likely to send another photoreconnaissance satellite into orbit soon to resume detailed observations of the United States and other areas of interest to the Soviet Union.

The specialists reached this conclusion after studying several previous flights of the new

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If the Nielsen ratings people gave out medals, ABC would have taken home gold, CBS silver and NBC bronze last week. But ABC will have to be happy with huge home audiences for its Olympics.

Wednesday. More than 18 million homes, 48 per cent of the national audience, were tuned to ABC then.

A few folks must have stepped out for a beer on Saturday night. ABC's Olympics broadcast had its smallest audience then, about 14.7 million homes. But that was enough to win the evening's rating derby.

All told, ABC's seven Olympics nights, plus its Friday night look at the College All-Star football, ah, game, were seen on the average in more than 16.9 million homes each night last week, Nielsen estimates show.

By contrast, the respective CBS and NBC wares, largely reruns and movies, were seen in 8.6 million and 7.5 million homes, on the average.

The highest-rated nonsports show, a repeat episode of CBS' "M-A-S-H," came in eighth-ranked, observed in 11 million homes last week.

Heat Slows Bird Growth

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The heat wave could be costing Georgia chicken growers up to $36,000 a day because it keeps the birds smaller, state officials said Tuesday.

Birds being brought to market this week are averaging three-quarters of a pound lighter than normal, said Ralph White of the Georgia Poultry Market News Service in Atlanta.

"This really adds up when you run hundreds of thousands of chickens through a line each day and you lose three quarters of a pound on each of them," he said.

One problem at the processing plants is ice, said Dale Morris, executive vice president at the Mar-Jac Poultry processing plant in Gainesville.

"We're heavily dependent on ice to keep our poultry cool after processing and with the temperatures as hot as they are now, we're not getting the maximum performance out of our ice-making equipment," he said.

But the big problem is the birds, he said.

"In temperatures in the mid to upper 90s, the broilers just don't eat as much and they don't gain weight, so over a period of several days you will see a significant reduction in the total pounds of broiler meat produced," he said, adding that the lower output could mean higher supermarket prices in a few weeks.

TAX BIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — The largest source of state tax revenue is the levy on sales. According to the Tax Foundation, sales taxes provide more than 30 per cent of all state tax revenues, while income taxes are second, constituting almost 24 per cent of such revenues.

"How To Frame A Fig"

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quite a few years fled the lined, leathery face of Gregory "Pappy" Boyington when he saw the old Corsair fighter at the airport. He got the Medal of Honor flying a plane like it two wars ago.

No matter that the retired colonel, who shot down six Japanese planes during his Flying Tiger days in China and Burma and another 22 in the South Pacific as a Marine, had spotted a minor flaw.

"Never had those on my plane for obvious reasons," he grinned, noting the six small Japanese flags painted near the cockpit. Each meant an aerial victory. "They'd single you out in a fight."

The Corsair, owned by a Beverly Hills man, had the markings of Marine squadron VFM-312. Pappy's squadron, its pilots all picked by him, was VFMF-214, famed in and outside Marine aviation as the "Black Sheep" gang.

Fortunately, the ship he saw isn't being used in the new NBC series, "Baa Baa Black Sheep," based on his best-selling 1958 book about his own life and the men he flew with in World War II.

Boyington, 63, a native of Idaho, now lives in Fresno, Calif., with his wife, Jo, who is technical advisor on the show.

A friendly, gravel-voiced guy who belies his tough, don't-give-a-hoot wartime reputation, he said his book almost became a movie shortly after 1958, when Columbia Pictures bought the movie rights under a two-year option.

"But the script was horrible," he shuddered. "I just kept quiet until the two years were up. And they never made the film."

In 1974, he said, a TV producer convinced him the book could be made into a realistic series emphasizing the wild, often black humor that kept his fliers — and others in actual combat — from going nuts.

"So I said, 'Hell, I'm a gambler. Okay — if it's done the way we're talking here,'" Pappy recalled. "And what I meant by that was an honest-to-God, true-life sense of humor, a real, rough kind...."

"Because, fact is, some of your most priceless humor stories throughout history do come from the stark reality and tragedy of human life."

About his legendary Black Sheep: Boyington called them his kind of Marines. Sure, they raised Cain, but they were deadly come time for business.

"Most of 'em were quite young, adventurous types," he said. "They didn't mind risking their necks. They were full of adrenalin and they'd occasionally — or more than occasionally — get full of booze."

"But when they went in, they were strictly pilots and athletes."

He led them until Jan. 3, 1944, when he was shot down near Japanese-held Rabaul. He spent the rest of the war in Japanese prison camps. He came home a hero and, with several other Marines and Navy men, was awarded the Medal of Honor by President Truman.

He was asked if he'd seen major flaws in the TV version of his Black Sheep days. He said no, calling the acting excellent and the show reasonably accurate, even with some "artistic liberties" — like putting nurses on a forward base with the fliers for romantic subplots.

"If that'd actually happened, maybe we could have promoted the war another five years," Pappy drawled. Then he grinned until the crow's feet around his pilot's eyes went clear back to his ears.

More Than One Job Priority

Most people who use the Employment Security Commission service to locate jobs or obtain employees are aware that veterans receive priority in the referral to jobs by Employment Security Commission job service offices throughout the state.

However, there are many who may not be aware there are other "eligible persons" who are entitled to priority in services from the Public Employment Service System, according to Kendrick Taylor, Veterans Employment Representative with the Greenville Employment Security Commission Office.

Under the Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, the spouse of certain veterans are entitled to such services: "Eligible persons" in this category are as follows: (1) The spouse of any person who died of a service connected disability; (2) the spouse of any member of the Armed Forces serving on active duty who, at the time of application, is listed by the Secretary concerned in one or more of the following categories and has been so listed for a total of more than 90 days—missing in action, captured in line of duty by a hostile force or forcibly detained or interned in line of duty by a foreign government in nature resulting from a service connected disability, or the spouse of a veteran who died while a disability was in existence.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Cooler temperatures are due today for northern New England, the upper Great Lakes and the Pacific coast. Most of the country will be warm. A band of showers is forecast from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Northeast and showers are also slated for the northern Rockies, central Plains and Florida. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
It was warm, humid and hazy in North Carolina today. Scattered showers fell.

Highs ranged from the 80s in the mountains to the middle 90s in the southeast.

Those conditions will prevail at least through Monday.

Rainfall was light Wednesday. The most in the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning was four-tenths of an inch at Cherry Point. Goldsboro had 13-hundredths. Less than a tenth of an inch fell at Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, Durham, Wilmington, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Jacksonville and New Bern.

The scattered showers are set off as moist, unstable air continues to be pumped into North Carolina by the Bermuda high. There are no weather patterns strong enough to trigger widespread shower activity and take advantage of the abundant moisture over the region.

Highs Wednesday ranged from 84 at Asheville to 95 at Wilmington.

Cancer Hotline Provides 'Push'

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—The question most frequently asked of the new Cancer Information service at Duke University is: "Do I have it?"

A total of 982 persons called the service during the first two months after the toll-free telephone line was opened under financing by the National Cancer Institute. One out of every four callers said they or someone in their family has a cancer warning symptom.

"Most of the calls were from females," said Dr. Diane McGrath, director of the service. "That was predictable. Women are the link between the family and the health care delivery system."

Located at the Duke University Comprehensive Cancer Center, the service gives physician-approved answers to almost any question about cancer. The phones are manned from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, and at other times a caller can leave a message and get a return call the next day.

"The person will describe symptoms—a mole that's growing or a breast lump, for instance—and wants to know whether that means cancer," Dr. McGrath said.

The service tells callers about cancer symptoms for any part of the body, and refers callers to a physician, Dr. McGrath said.

"We tell them to ask their physician what they've asked us. We give them that little extra push. That's probably our most valuable service," she said.

Some of the callers are relieved to hear the service's answers. "Someone wanted to know whether chewing bubble gum can cause cancer. Someone else asked whether you can catch cancer from your dog," she said, noting that the answer was "no" to both.

The cancer information telephone number is 800-672-0943.

Diploma A Joke

CHARLOTTE (AP)—"I got a bicentennial graduate who doesn't know a damn thing," says the mother of recent high school graduate who has been fired because he couldn't read or write well enough to hold an unskilled job.

The 18-year-old youth was a clerk in an electronics firm. His job was to take orders over the telephone. His boss said he could not compose sentences or spell names of nearby cities. "His spelling and writing were at a fifth or sixth-grade level," the boss said in a letter to the mother.

"This diploma that says he satisfactorily completed required courses for graduation is a big joke," the mother said in an interview. She asked not to be identified.

Richard Candler, principal of Garinger High School in Charlotte, from which the youth was graduated in June, said very few students with deficiencies such as his are graduated. But "I can't say it doesn't happen," the principal added.

Partnership protection

Business partnerships exist only as long as both partners survive. This is why Nationwide introduced partnership protection, a joint life insurance plan designed to cover a two-partner business.

If a partner dies, Nationwide can provide cash to the surviving partner to purchase the deceased partner's share. Call a Nationwide agent for all the details.

Hunt Takes Pains On Details

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt could have been riding over the campaign trail in a big, new Buick, sold to his campaign committee by a supporter who deals in Buicks. But he wasn't.

Instead, Hunt rode in his 1974 blue Ford with 72,000 miles on the odometer and the number "2" on the license plate. That digit is one higher than what Hunt will have if he can get himself elected governor this fall.

Founder To Be Speaker

The Rev. Rashie Kennedy, founding pastor of Grace Free Will Baptist Church, will be the guest speaker for the 23rd anniversary celebration of the church Sunday.

REV. RASHIE KENNEDY

Grace Church was organized Aug. 2, 1953. The church now has a sanctuary that seats 800 people, a new educational building with a gymnasium, and other facilities. There are four staff members.

The public is invited to the service and to the anniversary dinner which will follow the service, according to the pastor, the Rev. Roger Tripp.

The choice of cars was just one example of the careful and meticulous way in which Hunt has planned and thought about the details of his campaign.

The Ford, he reasoned, was a car that the average voter of North Carolina could identify with more readily than a new Buick. It fit the image Jim Hunt wanted to present, and that was what he wanted to ride in, according to a campaign aide.

Similar painstaking attention to other details has made Hunt the acknowledged front-runner among all the major candidates for governor. He expects to win the Democratic nomination without a runoff and no one questions that he has the organization and the finances to do it.

He began building the organization many years ago when he first entered politics. He put it in place for a trial run in 1972 and it worked well enough to elect him lieutenant governor. Four years later, the organization is intact and operating in every county and nearly every precinct in the state.

The organization has brought money with it. Hunt had raised more than $650,000 by the end of June, which was more than he could legally spend in the first primary. It came, he boasted, from more than 20,000 individual contributors.

If the money and organization do not win Hunt the nomination, it will probably be because a coalition of conservatives forms in opposition to him, spurred by fears that, at heart, he is a liberal young do-gooder.

Hunt despises being called a liberal and considers himself a political pragmatist, "more interested in solving problems than in ideology."

There are elements in his background that support the "charge," however. Hunt grew up on a farm in Wilson County. Starting at about (fifth) grade level, he began running for and winning class offices, Grange offices and other boyhood prizes.

In 1964, after getting agricultural, economics and law degrees from N.C. State and North Carolina, he was enough of an idealist to take his young family for two years to Nepal, where he served in a Peace Corps-type program aimed at helping the tiny, mountainous nation improve its economy.

Hunt still maintains an interest in Southeast Asia and Third World problems. He still remembers with pride the "toughness" of the Nepalese experience, sleeping outside amid the bugs, the elements, and the bad water.

His public career contains other traces. He supported civil rights and integration long before they became facts of life in the South. In 1974, he supported a tax reform package that would have increased income taxes for the wealthy and replaced the sales tax on food.

To forestall the chance of an attack from the right, Hunt has carefully planned a campaign that will appeal to a broad spectrum of the party.

Part of the strategy is keeping the old Wilson County pompadour haircut and wearing Bicentennial ties. Part of it is the way Hunt spoke to a recent rally in conservative, rural Halifax County.

Hunt's accent got broad enough to produce a drawled "Ah" instead of his normal "I" as he began by telling the folks he was 'fixin' to make a talk."

Then he told a story about his 13-year-old son, '01' Baxter," who was back at home in good ole Wilson County, barning tobacco and picking cucumbers.

When he finally got around to his actual speech, Hunt stuck closely to the four topics he has chosen to run on this year.

"They are a utilities reform package; a pledge of 'vigorous, personal leadership,' in industrial development; support for a reading program for the first three grades; and a strong anti-crime position that includes support for capital punishment and a television commercial that shows Hunt slamming shut a cell door as he talks about crime and what he'd like to do about it.

The capital punishment issue represents the way he has moved beyond his youthful idealism, he says.

"Years ago, when I was younger, I thought we shouldn't take human life. But I believe now that we have to set up laws in our society that will maximize life. And believing as I do that it is a deterrent, I think we'll probably have more people live if we have it on the books and if it is being carried out," Hunt said.

Hunt has also abandoned the tax reform package he supported in 1974. He now favors a relatively modest effort to close "loopholes" like the $120 ceiling on sales tax paid on automobiles. He has promised that he can finance his programs and avoid raising taxes by cutting the cost of existing government programs.

The platform has attracted people like Hunt's Halifax County campaign manager, Charles M. "Poochie" Pitts a merchant who thinks Hunt is "basically conservative," and likes Hunt's anti-crime position.

No Clues From Whale Autopsy

LOGGERHEAD KEY, Fla. (AP) — An autopsy on one of 30 whales which beached itself in the Dry Tortugas has failed to determine a cause for the recent suicide runs of the mammals.

The autopsy showed parasites had penetrated the dead whale's inner ear, but University of Florida specialists said they could not determine what effect, if any, the parasites had on the dead whale's directional senses.

"There are 20 to 30 people working on it," biologist Dr. Daniel Odell said as scientists conducted an autopsy Tuesday on the lone whale that died on Loggerhead Key, a tiny island 70 miles west of Key West.

That whale and 29 others beached themselves Sunday on the isolated islet in the Dry Tortugas. The survivors, weighing between 1,000 and 2,000 pounds, were pulled free Tuesday by two small boats, then shoed back into the safety of deep waters in the Gulf of Mexico.

More Channels For CB Radio

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The more than five million CB radio enthusiasts in the country will have 17 more channels beginning Jan. 1. The new channels will bring to 40 the number of channels open to CB use.

The Federal Communications Commission announced Tuesday, along with rules designed to reduce complaints by CB operators and about CB interference with television.

And there's something special for the new CB operators. Each new CB set sold must contain FCC rules on CB use, a license application and a 60-day temporary permit to allow the purchaser to go on the air right away.

Because CB radios are now a major target of auto strippers, the FCC said each new transmitter must have an engraved serial number for easier identification.

The FCC said the major objections to channel expansion were raised by the broadcast industry, which feared more CB interference with home television reception.

So the commission told CB set-makers to increase the radiation suppression requirement to protect TV channels 2, 5 and 7 — the ones most affected. Should there still be interference on TV, the FCC said, individual CB operators would be required to insert special filters on their transmitters.

CB radios are supposed to be used only for local, short-range broadcasts, but there have been numerous complaints about many who overpower their transmitters to increase their range. To meet this, the FCC banned use of add-on devices designed to increase the range of existing transmitters.

Raymond Spence, the FCC's chief engineer, said CB operators with the current 23-channel sets will not be able to use

Plan Spiritual Program Sunday

A spiritual program will be held at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church, August 1 at 8 p.m. The theme of the program will be "Climbing Jacob's Ladder." Speakers for the service will be Rev. F. C. Mitchell of Greenville and Rev. Walter Cherry. Music will be provided by the Spiritual Singers of Greenville, Wynn Chapel No. 2 Choir of Robinsonville and Mayo Chapel Senior Choir. Refreshments will be served after the service. The public is invited.

Durable Pickup Never Him

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — John Fox's pickup may be 37 years old and may have over 200,000 miles on it, but it never lets him down.

It runs in all kinds of weather with no trouble involved and it has never been stalling in an accident, he says.

Fox bought the car in 1941 for $275 when it had about 20,000 miles on its odometer. He has used it ever since to drive five times a week to and from work at a glass manufacturer, a 10-mile trip.

Fox said he does all the repairs on the car himself.
