TENT CITY — A long row of tents line a Peking street Tuesday where Chinese people have been living since a severe earthquake rocked the Chinese capital and northeastern province July 28. Peking residents, amid warnings for another devastating earthquake to stake the area, are continuing to build their make-shift tents in preparation for a long stay in the safety of the outdoors. This photo was made available Wednesday by CBS News. (AP Wirephoto)

Search For Bodies Keeps Priority In Canyon Flood

By BILL PARDUE
Associated Press Writer
LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — As survivors of the Big Thompson Canyon flood began burying their dead, the continuing search for bodies held priority over cleanup operations in the devastated Colorado Rockies vacation area.

Robert Rosenheim, regional administrator of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, said a survey of the canyon showed property damage of $50 million, half of what had been feared.

With 74 bodies in makeshift morgues and the death toll estimated at near 100, some funeral services were postponed to spare families the anguish of repeated trips to the cemetery. "In one family, a mother, two children and a grandmother were unaccounted for," funeral director Delmer Hunter said. "The mother and one child's bodies have been found."

Survivors lined up at three offices in the canyon area on Wednesday to tell state and federal officials what they needed to begin reconstructing their lives.

In another building, a computer was programmed to help identify still unclaimed bodies. Descriptions of the bodies were fed into the computer, which cross-checked most information against descriptions of those not accounted for.

More than 850 persons are reported unaccounted for, but computer supervisor Joe Moore said, "When you have so many tourists around it's hard to find out if they're really missing or just gone home."

In Denver, funeral services were conducted Wednesday for the first identified victim — Sgt. Hugh Purdy, 33, a 26-year-veteran of the Colorado State Patrol. The mourners included Gov. Richard Lamm.

"He did what he had to do," said his widow. "He did what he wanted to do."

Purdy was killed when he drove his cruiser into the canyon Saturday night attempting to warn residents and tourists to flee the 12-foot wall of water flashing its way down the twisting, 30-mile canyon.

Heavy equipment was positioned to begin removal of the mud and wreckage, but in some still unsearched parts of the canyon it was held back to allow the hunt for bodies to continue. Searchers had infrared cameras tested in Vietnam and tracking dogs normally used to trail the living to aid their effort.

Exchange Fire On Korea DMZ

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — North and South Korean troops exchanged fire across the demilitarized zone for six minutes today, but no casualties or damage was reported. Each side accused the other of shooting first.

U.S. Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudden, the United Nations Command's senior delegate to the Korean Military Armistice Commission, proposed that the commission go immediately to the scene of the incident about 45 miles northeast of Seoul. But the North Korean delegate, Maj. Gen. Han Ju-kyong, ignored the proposal and accused Frudden of lying about the firing.

The admiral said the shooting started about 9:45 a.m.

Frudden said the North Korean fire came from around a guard post inside the northern half of the demilitarized zone.

MORATORIUM
CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — Rep. James Symington dropped out of the U.S. Senate race in Missouri, and the other major candidates promised a moratorium on political activities as plans were made for the funeral of Rep. Jerry Litton, his wife and two children.

Medical Experts Await Disease Identification; Field Is Being Narrowed

HARRISBURG (AP) — State researchers trying to identify the mystery disease which has killed 23 persons said today it is probably not swine flu. They said they still don't know what it is and added they may never find out.

"While we do not have any final answers," Gov. Milton Shapp told a news conference, preliminary tests indicate "this does not appear to be an outbreak of swine flu."

Shapp's statement was echoed by state Health Secretary Leonard Bachman, based on preliminary results of tests in a state laboratory in Philadelphia. The first tests were completed early today.

Bachman claimed that "the number of new cases is reversing and that's good news," but figures provided by the state painted a different picture.

Shapp said at the news conference that 23 persons have died and another 138 are hospitalized. On Wednesday, the state figures were 22 and 130 in the hospital. A 24th person has died in Philadelphia, but state officials haven't counted that yet in the official toll.

All were connected in some way with a state American Legion convention in Philadelphia last month, attended by an estimated 10,000 persons.

The disease, generally thought to be a virus, still has not shown any cases of secondary infection, Shapp said. A secondary infection is infection of one person by another person. If that occurred, it would mean the disease is contagious.

While the tests continue, federal officials went to Philadelphia today to investigate environmental factors to try to determine how the disease was spread. The possibilities include drinking water, food, and pigeon droppings.

"There is a possibility that we will never find the answer," Bachman said, "but I pledge that this investigation will continue for a year or two years if it is needed to get to the bottom of it."

Jay Satz, the state's top virus expert, agreed with Bachman that the disease may never be discovered.

There were reports of the disease in New Jersey and New York, but they involved people who had attended or had some contact with the Legion convention.

The federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reported Wednesday that initial tests there indicated the disease was probably the result of a virus, fungus or toxic substance.

Researchers there ruled out plague and Lassa fever, a highly contagious African disease. They also ruled out most bacterial diseases.

Swine flu was said to still be a possibility, and Congress was pushing toward passage of legislation to clear the way for the nationwide swine-flu immunization program.

"We cannot say it is swine influenza or say that it is not," said Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the Center for Disease Control. "Each day that goes by without a spread from family to community makes us rest easier that it is not swine flu. But it is still too early to say."

In Philadelphia, meanwhile, about 400 calls an hour were coming in to a hotline set up at City Hall. Spokesmen said the callers "aren't panicking, but they're apprehensive and concerned."

The disease has not reduced attendance at the 41st International Eucharistic Conference, a worldwide gathering of Catholics expected to attract one million people before it ends Sunday, when President Ford is scheduled to attend.

However, the American Legion announced in Washington that it was canceling a planned trip to Philadelphia today by 600 boys and girls.

Eerie And Tense Waiting Among Convention-Going Legionnaires

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Thomas Allandar and a few friends riveted their attention on the television at the bar of American Legion Post 182. A killer disease makes the evening news very personal.

"It's an eerie feeling," said Allandar, a 50-year-old traveling salesman. "Seeing your friends fall by the wayside, one by one. It's a baffling situation."

Allandar had a friend, Elmer Hafer, who attended the state Legion convention two weeks ago. He is dead now, a victim of the strange, flu-like illness dubbed "legionnaire's disease."

"People are upset now," said

Allandar. "If you cough sideways or sneeze, you say, 'My God, what am I getting?'"

Allandar is one of 260,000 legionnaires in Pennsylvania. His eerie feeling is shared across the state.

"When is it going to stop?" asked Edward Hoak, state adjutant. "When will it start to level off? Will there be any more?"

Hoak, a 52-year-old veteran of World War II, was sitting in his state Legion headquarters office in Harrisburg on Wednesday. Outside, the American Legion flag flew at half-staff.

The disease has been contracted by about 150 persons connected with the state convention in Philadelphia.

Hoak has been in his office 15 hours a day since the first reports of death and illness surfaced on Monday. Sometimes the reports said his friends have died.

"Every time I get a phone call coming in, I hold my breath," Hoak said. "I came in this morning with hopes they would know what it is. Then we could all breathe a little easier."

Hoak, like everyone else, was at a loss to explain why the ailment appears to have afflicted only those who attended or had some contact with the convention.

"That's the baffling thing."

Why was it us? You don't know what you did. Nobody did anything different at this convention. I've been to 24 state conventions and I didn't do anything different," he said.

In Williamstown, a community of 2,500 about 25 miles north of Harrisburg, 39-year-old James Dolan was buried Wednesday. John Ralph's funeral was to be held today. Both died of "legionnaire's disease."

"We're all worried," said Stan Staples, a member of the five-man honor guard for Dolan. "We're all wondering who else will die."

Proclaim Another Cease-Fire In Lebanon; Minor Violations

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A new cease-fire was declared in the Lebanese civil war today, and five hours after the deadline a Palestinian spokesman said only minor volleys of gunfire marred the truce in Beirut.

"A few mortar shells also were lobbed into the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp, killing one woman," the spokesman said. "But no serious threat has occurred so far to the truce."

A Christian radio station reported no truce violations in any part of Lebanon.

The latest of more than 50 truces in the 16-month-old war went into effect after a night of heavy fighting in which right-wing Christian forces claimed they had conquered the Moslem slum of Nabaa in eastern Beirut, not far from Tal Zaatar.

"The so-called nationalist forces in Nabaa have surrendered," said a spokesman for the Christian Phalange party.

"Mop-up operations were completed before the new cease-fire went into effect."

But leftist leaders insisted fighting was still raging from house to house in Nabaa. They appealed to Arab peacekeeping forces to intervene and "stop the Fascist invasion of Nabaa."

Nabaa and Tal Zaatar, the besieged Palestinian refugee camp, were the last enclaves held by the leftist Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies in the Christian half of the capital.

The Palestinians were still holding out in Tal Zaatar. But the Christian siege has neutralized the threat of the camp's guns to the highways from Beirut to the Christian hinterland northeast of the capital.

The International Red Cross, after evacuating 334 wounded from Tal Zaatar Tuesday and Wednesday, suspended its efforts for at least a day because sniper bullets hit one of its cars Wednesday and shells exploded near a truckload of wounded.

The firing wounded no one, but "we can not take it lightly," a Red Cross spokesman said. He said the Red Cross hoped to resume the evacuations after new consultations with the warring factions. Red Cross workers said privately that the sniper fire came from within the camp.

An estimated 80 persons were reported killed and 154 wounded in fighting during the night before the cease-fire.

EXERCISE FOR ELDERLY

I've heard about an exercise program for elderly people being used extensively in West Virginia in senior citizens groups and even in nursing homes and hospitals for the chronically ill. Could you find the address I need to get more information? C. W.

You're talking about the Preventicare program developed by Lawrence J. Frankel. When the Frankel program goes into any group or institution, everyone who can move any part of his or her body exercises that part or parts on a regular basis. No special equipment is needed and special attention is given to developing balance and, of course, flexibility with simple exercises, adapted to each person's capabilities and needs at a certain point in time. The public, nonprofit Lawrence Frankel Foundation, headquarters in Charleston, offers workshops for health professionals interested in beginning the program anywhere in the world. Part of the 1976 program for West Virginia is being subsidized by the State of West Virginia.

City Orders Removal Of Strickland Trailer

The City of Greenville today ordered the removal of the Tom Strickland Headquarters from the Pitt Plaza Shopping Center, according to Slim Short, Strickland's State Public relations manager.

"I was called by Alton Warren of the City Inspections Department and told that the Strickland trailer headquarters was in violation of a city ordinance and must be moved. When I asked why other mobile units could be placed at the Plaza, including several mobile home shows and including a tortoise show which is there now, he said he was forced to take the action by Jim Hunt and George Wood forces.

"I think this is big politics and money politics," Short commented.

"At first I was going to resist," Short went on, "but Sen. Strickland said, 'If it is an ordinance, we will comply.' We plan to move the trailer today in compliance with the laws of the town."

"I think this is a petty thing on the part of the Hunt and Wood campaigns," Short said.

The mobile unit will be moved as soon as trailer towing vehicle is available.

The Inspections Department contacted by The Daily Reflector, confirmed that the removal has been ordered.

HEADQUARTERS . . . of the Tom Strickland campaign were ordered removed from the Pitt Plaza Shopping Center today.

Phillips Says Decision By Board Is 'Political'

RALEIGH (AP) — A decision by the policy committee of the state Board of Education to postpone acceptance of a $44,000 federal grant was called a politically motivated action by A. Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction.

The grant would be used to prepare a state plan for teaching career education in North Carolina.

Phillips charged that the postponement was engineered to help Ben Currin, Phillips' opponent in the Aug. 17 Democratic primary.

Phillips said W. Dallas Herring, board chairman and supporter of Currin, and R. Barton Hayes, another board member, instigated the action. Herring and Hayes said their actions were based on philosophical questions.

At the board's request, Phillips' staff is to provide details about how such a plan would be prepared.

Herring said he was prompted to oppose action on the grant because he believed the federal government's concept of career education differed from the state's concept which he had drawn up. It was adopted by the board in April 1973.

The state policy narrowly defines career education as a sequence of elective courses "which are offered in addition to, rather than in lieu of, the basic disciplines..." Adoption of the policy three years ago was the end of a running debate over career education.

The federal law authorizing funds for career education notes that it is part of an educational process designed "to eliminate any distinction between education for vocational purposes and general or academic education."

Phillips said that last February the board had approved the idea of applying for the grant and board members had been given a document entitled, "North Carolina Career Education: Developing a Comprehensive State Plan."

Candidate's Wife Will Discuss Certain Issues

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Staff Writer

"The thing I am really pleased about is that George is conducting a campaign so that it is a learning experience. We rarely take a look at how our state government operates. It affects all of us daily and the more we learn about it, the better decision we can make in choosing our state leaders," said Mrs. George Wood.

Mrs. Wood was in Greenville yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilson meeting friends and supporters of her husband, who is one of the Democratic candidates for governor of North Carolina.

When asked if she speaks out on certain issues, Mrs. Wood replied, "Yes. I think I am fairly knowledgeable on the various position papers that George has presented including the legislative reform ideas and on yesterday morning's paper on the prison system."

Mrs. George Wood

"I agree with George's position on the death penalty. I don't believe we have conclusive evidence that it is a deterrent to crime."

Mrs. Wood is traveling around the state. One day this week, she was on a motor home with seven people and went to Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro and Nashville—meeting with the press and radio media. On Tuesday, she was in Raleigh and was in Southern Pines and Siler City today. Friday will be spent in Charlotte and at Pfeiffer College. A visit to Alamance County for a Democratic rally has been planned for Saturday.

"All the weeks are just that busy," she added.

"I travel separately from George to cover more territory and to meet more people. We still have a job to do—getting people acquainted with George and his ability," she continued.

This summer the Wood children are together again for the first time in seven years and are all involved in campaigning.

A student at the University of California at Santa Cruz, David Wood is helping with research and writing in the campaign. Gail, who is finishing her master's degree in social work at UNC-CH, is campaigning throughout the state and is also helping with research. Matt, on leave from a San Antonio, Tex., job in which he works with the elderly and the handicapped, is organizing county workers in the campaign.

Joanne, who will be a student at Duke University this fall, is answering telephone inquiries and traveling the state in a Women for Wood Van. Stuffing envelopes and licking stamps is being done by the youngest Wood child, Robb.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. John Shannonhouse were hostesses for the tea which honored Mrs. Wood in Greenville.

Passenger Furnishes Own Meal

By Jeanne Lessem
UPI Family Editor

Have you ever wondered what would happen if you took your own meal aboard a commercial airline flight?

I had, and I did, leaving two stewardesses speechless, two seatmates envious.

Enroute home from vacation, I checked in at Memphis International Airport for a nonstop flight to New York City with my dinner neatly wrapped in an aluminum tray enclosed in a small plastic tote bag.

The pit-barbecued chicken leg, Cousin Rhoda's homemade coleslaw, potato salad, cubed watermelon and fresh dark cherries were leftovers from a family reunion dinner earlier in the day.

Once airborne, two stewardesses in rapid succession offered a choice between a chopped steak dinner and antipasto salad, whatever that was. All the passengers nearby chose the meat. It was overcooked hamburger with patty gravy served with canned peas and cut green beans, the usual birdbath of green salad with packaged dressing, a roll and butter and a custard-filled cake roll that resembled a plastic display model.

"No, thank you," I said, when asked which dinner I preferred. "I brought my own."

My seatmates laughed. The stewardesses smiled and said nothing.

When the beverage cart arrived, I chose white wine, a Ste. Michelle chenin blanc from Washington State, moderately dry and pleasantly suited to the chicken, and a glass of ice cubes to pour the wine over. Aboard planes, individual bottles are rarely chilled properly.

As I uncovered the tray, one seatmate said, with obvious envy: "Watermelon!"

And the other: "That sure looks good."

"It is," said I, munching away.

If there's a moral to this story, it's a plea to the airline industry for more no-frills flights, where passengers who want an alternative to airline food don't have to pay for a meal (it is included in the price of the ticket) they've no appetite for and no intention of eating.

A passenger with no time or inclination to prepare his or her own meal before boarding could take a purchased picnic lunch instead: a good sandwich, fresh fruit and perhaps a chunk of good cheese. Soft drinks and other nonalcoholic beverages are free on all flights and virtually all carry splits of red and

Cheapskates Seldom Change

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Mike and I have been going steady for nine months, and one thing has been bothering me for a long time—his cheapness.

Yesterday we went to the beach, and on the way home we stopped for something to eat. Mike said he was broke and asked if I would mind paying for our lunches, so I did.

After lunch we stopped to gas up his car, and when Mike was paying for the gas, I saw two $10 bills and several singles in his wallet.

This isn't the first time this has happened. He has asked me to go to a movie and then asked me to pay for the tickets. He has only himself to support, so I can't understand it.

I work hard for my money and Mike knows it. He also works, but he doesn't spend any money on me unless he has to.

I don't want to break up with him because he's wonderful in many other ways, but this one fault bothers me. Any suggestions?

FEELING CHEATED

DEAR FEELING: If you don't want to break up with him, you'd better establish some ground rules about who pays for what.

Frankly, a man who pleads poverty so his girlfriend will pick up the tab sounds like a two-bit cheapskate to me. And cheapskates seldom change.

Plan Ahead For Dormitory Living

All over the country, college-bound freshmen are getting ready to leave home and move into a dormitory, oftentimes with roommates and new responsibilities.

It helps to see the room in advance to get an idea of the layout and how much space is available. Meeting the roommate in order to plan and coordinate room arrangement and furnishings also helps. Sometimes it is impossible to do either in advance—see the room or meet the roommate. You can, however, check with the school for items which may be provided. Besides furniture, some colleges provide curtains, bedding, towels and other needs.

Then, start planning what to take and how to decorate the room to make it cheerful and practical. Remember that an all-washable room is a cozy one to care for. Keep in mind that the dorm room is an "everything" center. Besides sleeping and studying here, it may also be used for socializing, dressing, eating, listening to music, working on projects and many other activities.

It may be a personal responsibility to keep furnishings, curtains, bedding and blankets clean. Choose attractive, color-coordinated items that are sturdy. For example, since beds take up the most room and may be used for sitting space, a durable, no-iron bedspread that can be machine washed and dried is most practical. Matching throw pillows with zip-off washable covers and washable area rugs are attractive additions that offer comfort and easy care.

Closet and drawer space may be limited, but space savers can help. There is a wide choice, such as stackable boxes and trays, multi-tiered clothes hangers, over-the-door shoe and towel racks, various hooks and hangers. An assortment of drawer dividers and desk organizers are also available to help keep everything in place.

Take advantage of wall space. Bulletin boards are great catchalls for mementos and reminders. By using pegboard, even a narrow wall area can be converted to hold a variety of hooks to store anything from a tennis racket to a favorite bathrobe. There are also wall-hung magazine racks and shelving for neatly stashing other paraphernalia.

Many items used in common in households—soap, toothpaste, laundry aids, tissues—will have to be purchased for personal use at school. Other essentials may include a lamp, small hammer and screwdriver, alarm clock. Instead of transporting these items from home, however, it may be easier to shop near campus.

Do take a small first aid kit, sewing kit and small grooming needs for immediate use. Don't forget a roomy laundry bag for general washing and a mesh bag for hosiery and delicates. If there is room, a folding dryer rack will be helpful for hanging hand-washables.

Once you're established, it helps to talk things over, divide chores and establish a routine to keep a room clean, uncluttered and comfortable. With the proper supplies and a little forethought, dormitory living will be a pleasant and memorable experience.

Bridal Couple Entertained

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. David H. Smith Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Odell Bright entertained at a cookout honoring Ludie Mills Cannon and Luther B. Nichols, bridal couple-elect, at the Smith home.

Guests included the residents of the neighborhood of the bride-elect and the couple's relatives.

The bride-elect was honored recently at a linen show given by Mrs. Jimmy Sutton and Mrs. Winston Wooten at the home of Mrs. Wooten.

Confer On Turmoil In Africa

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP)— Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Prime Minister James Callaghan met for nearly 2½ hours over breakfast today to explore the chances for a peaceful solution to racial problems in southern Africa.
Neither man commented on the meeting, but an official statement said it focused on American policy toward South Africa and Rhodesia, where black majorities are seeking to take control from white minority governments.
Kissinger arrived in London Wednesday night on the first stop of an eight-day, six-nation tour that will take him also to Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, France and Holland.

Officials said Kissinger and Callaghan concentrated on policy and did not discuss the latest clashes in South Africa between police and blacks in the township of Soweto on the outskirts of Johannesburg.
Officials on both sides said there had been no discussion of any new meeting between Kissinger and South African Premier John Vorster.
Reporters traveling on Kissinger's plane got the impression that he sees little chance of heading off war in Rhodesia, the former British colony where 250,000 whites face a growing rebellion among the nearly 6 million blacks.
The reasons given include the unrelenting opposition to compromise of Prime Minister Ian Smith and most of the whites, a lack of unity among the black leadership and uncertain attitudes among neighboring black governments.

Nevertheless, Kissinger is described as believing there is some possibility of an agreement.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and West Germany are going to cooperate on construction of a new million-dollar battle tank, although the move will drive up the cost of each tank by 15 per cent.
The tanks will be used by NATO troops in Europe, and are being designed to blunt the threat from a new Soviet tank planned for the Warsaw Pact nations, Army Secretary Martin Hoffmann said Wednesday.
A key element in a memorandum of understanding announced by Hoffmann was an apparent compromise to focus on a German-designed 120mm gun and a U.S.-designed turbine engine for both the U.S. XM1 tank and the West German Leopard II.
Final decisions on the gun and the engine are yet to be made, but the terms of the agreement make it clear the German gun and U.S. turbine engine are the prime candi-

Originally, the U.S. Army planned to choose between the tanks after staging a face-off between test models.
That competition will still be held starting this fall at the Army's Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland, Hoffmann said, but the results will just be used to aid the drive toward standardization.
Hoffmann acknowledged that the joint production will drive up costs of each $1.08 million tank by 15 per cent.
With the Army planning to purchase 3,325 new tanks, that could amount to an added cost of more than $500 million.
But Hoffmann said standardization will afford greater battlefield effectiveness for NATO's tanks.
Two U.S. firms, General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp., have been developing competing designs of the XM1 tank.

cause of black rule.
Kissinger is leaning toward sending Asst. Secretary of State William E. Schaefele Jr. to talk with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa.
Kissinger and Vorster met in West Germany in June, but the secretary does not want to see the South African leader again until there are prospects for progress toward black rule in Rhodesia and Namibia. In addition, the new outbreak of racial violence in South Africa Wednesday would make it politically difficult for Kissinger to see Vorster soon.
Kissinger is described as doubtful also of peace in Namibia. Black nationalist guerrillas have a small war going there against South Africa's control, and South Africa has refused repeated demands from the United Nations that it give up the territory.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The world is bent on saving me time.
My books are condensed, my food is pre-cooked, and even my oven cleans itself as I sleep.
The other morning, I saved three seconds with a one-step waxer, five seconds by using a stronger bleach, and 12 seconds by letting my fingers walk through the yellow pages.
By using an aspirin that raced to my blood stream, I picked up another four seconds, and by using the expressway, another six seconds.
I used a suntan lotion that tanned me in half the time, putting six seconds in my time bank, used a drive-in cleaner that saved me four seconds, and unclogged a sink with a liquid cleanser that saved me seven seconds.

My new coffee maker saved me four seconds over my old one, my gasoline saved me three seconds at the pump, and my record club saved me a full 13 seconds by picking my records out for me each month.
Around four in the afternoon, I found that I had saved a total of one minute and seven seconds. I decided to blow 'em.
I called the operator and asked her to place a call for me. She replied stiffly, "You can save time and money by dialing the number yourself."
"I know," I said, "but I've got the time and I'd like to spend some of it before it stacks up." She mumbled something and gave me a disconnect.
I dropped off at the grocer and took my place in line. "The express line will save you time, lady. You have under six items."
"That's okay," I said cheerfully, "I've got time to waste."
"So, it's not fair to the people behind you," he said.
Just before dinner, the Avon lady dropped by and began quickly to show her wares. "Relax," I said. "I have a minute and seven seconds burning a hole in my pocket. How about a cup of tea?"
"You don't understand," she said hurriedly. "The purpose of my visit is to save you time."

That's the trouble with people. They spend all their lives amassing time and then there's no place to spend it.

The Curtain Is Foreign To Us

The full horror of China's disastrous earthquake may be a long time in becoming public knowledge.

Not even the people of China are being told the extent of damage wrought by the big tremor and massive aftershocks.

To us it is incomprehensible. People of the West are highly mobile and have familiar or ties of friendship extending not only to all parts of our country, but to most corners of the world.

We share the griefs and joys of those who live great distances from us; and the prospect of their being cut off by a curtain of governmental silence, inspiring dread and forebodings among those left behind, is something utterly foreign to our natures.

Yet, that is the kind of world a multitude of people endure when living behind curtains erected on geographical and social borders, defying the most elemental human qualities.

It is hard to believe any person would deliberately make the choice to live in such a society.

Researchers Mobilized For The Task

Medical researchers are working to attempt to determine the cause of a disease which has taken 21 lives.

The disease appears connected with people who attended an American Legion convention in Philadelphia recently. In addition to the deaths over 140 persons have been hospitalized with the symptoms.

As this is written the authorities say the disease could be "anything from an infectious disease to a toxin."

Finding the cause of the mysterious disease will be a painstaking task, but we can take comfort in the fact that over 1,000 researchers have been mobilized to determine the cause.

A Freedom To Advertise

The legal profession, an institution that is just about earthquake-proof, is experiencing some small seismic rumbles these days. These tremors might score nothing much on a Richter Scale, but they're interesting all the same. The question is: Should lawyers advertise?

It's an old question, and until recent months it had been an old closed question. The answer was a flat-out no. The American Bar Association, the several state bar associations, and the courts themselves were solidly agreed that such advertising was "unprofessional." It was also demeaning, degrading, distasteful, and possibly misleading. It was something no gentleman would do.

But times they are a-changing. Members of the bar once had another little gentlemen's agreement, known as the uniform schedule of minimum fees. In June of last year, in the case of Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar, a unanimous Supreme Court found such fee schedules in violation of antitrust laws. The Court held that lawyers, merely because they are part of a "learned profession," cannot adopt anticompetitive practices with impunity.

Thus encouraged, in June of this year the Department of Justice brought suit here in Washington against the American Bar Association and its members. The object of the antitrust proceeding is to enjoin the ABA from continuing to promote an agreement among lawyers not to engage in advertising. Last week the ABA filed an answer stolidly resisting any such imposition.

Other things have been happening. The Federal Trade Commission is taking aim on the funeral directors, who historically have opposed price-advertising. On May 24, the Supreme Court nullified a Virginia law that had prevented price-advertising of prescription drugs. Meanwhile, the ABA itself has retreated perhaps an inch and one-eight from its old adamancy: In February, the Bar Association authorized its members to publish modest ads in the Yellow Pages.

The Justice Department's principal spokesman in the pending ABA case is Joe Sims, deputy assistant attorney general in the Antitrust Division. He spoke to the Virginia Bar Association on July 17 and made a persuasive case. He wondered aloud if his brother lawyers, bemoaning the dire consequences of lawyer advertising, were fearful not for the public, but for themselves.

Said Sims: "We lawyers are staunch defenders of the free enterprise system and the rewards of vigorous competition when we speak on behalf of our business clients against restrictive governmental regulations. Are we not perhaps a little fearful about the idea of vigorous competition when we are the ones who will have to compete more vigorously? Competition when we are the ones who will have to compete more vigorously? Competition is untraditional, and it can be unruly and inconvenient. But it can also increase demand, encourage innovation and efficiency, and result in better performance."

The Supreme Court made it clear in its May opinion on the pharmacists' advertising that the Court was not talking about lawyers' advertising. Chief Justice Burger, concurring, said that a druggist who merely pours pills from a big bottle into a little bottle, and types up a label, "no more renders a true professional service than a clerk who sells lawbooks." Burger was fairly huffy-puffy on the point. Lawyers, he seemed to be saying, are a pure breed. Advertising is not for them.

40 Years Ago Today

August 5, 1936

A "temporary" dictatorship, approved by King George II, held Greece in the quiet of martial law today to thwart danger of bloodshed in what the government described as a communist-promoted general strike.

The regime, headed by John Metaxas, the premier, took full control of all civil affairs as he proclaimed dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies, decreed martial law and imposed a rigid dictatorship.

New elections for the chamber will be held when the situation is stabilized.

The dissolution of the law-making body wiped out the legislative power of 14 communists, who have held the balance of power between two factions.

The government charged them with stalemating all work in the chamber.

Two cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, considered "very serious disease," were reported in the county today by Dr. H. Thomas Ennett, health officer.

Notices went out to physicians in the county today informing them of the two cases of the disease, both in Fountain township, and also of the case of infantile paralysis which was reported yesterday.

The health officer said Rocky Mountain spotted fever is a comparatively new disease in North Carolina, the first cases appearing in 1933, but added the malady has been known in the Rocky Mountain regions since 1873.

4-H Grows; Others Wilt

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—"Four-H ain't all cows and cooking!"

With that slogan, the North Carolina 4-H program is rallying 'em 'round the green-clover banner.

At a time when other youth activities are losing members and casting about to find the formula for keeping youngsters interested, 4-H is thriving; 90,000 teenagers (up from 78,000 last year) involved in clubs, interest groups, and other activities; 5,000 children at camp-week programs; 9,000 adults and 2,500 teens working as leaders.

How can it be that a clean-cut bunch with a cornball title like "Head, Heart, Hands, Health" succeed during a time when the in-thing to do is reject the establishment, community activities; view things with cynicism?

A tour around the State Fair Grounds while 1,100 Tar Heel youngsters held their recent North Carolina 4-H Congress helps answer that question.

Farm Routs

Four-H ain't all cows and cooking, as many children are quick to tell you. But the roots deep in farm soil are there, and the heritage of the club is proudly displayed.

Cooking too: the smells and sights are mouth-watering. Livestock plays a prominent role—overall-clad chaps working with their cows compete for attention with handsome, young lasses in eye-catching horseback "dressage."

Maybe it's part of the "back to the earth" thing for young people, for there is plenty of activity centered around wildlife and growing and preparing foods; useable crafts and tips for making life more pleasant and liveable.

But then under a nearby shade tree, a gaggle of teen-aged boys crane their necks to see the latest equipment in the CB world and learn something about how to use that latest radio fad for fun and business.

In the parking lot, a couple of highway patrolmen put another group through paces in a skill driving demonstration: how to make some tricky parking, backing, and maneuvering moves without knocking down the little flags.

Sub-teens in a roped-off area are showing off their obedience-trained dogs. A quick review of some of the other events on the program holds a clue to the interest: tractor driving contest, archery, baking bread, flower arranging, cooking eggs, forestry and the environment, dairy foods, pork and poultry cookery, char-broiling beef, small engines, early American legends, Disco Dance.

Doing Things

And it's not just lectures—it's doing it.

"There is the widest variety of things to do," says Mary Landen of Anson County, this year's State Reporter and still an active 4-Her while a student at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

"Anything that applies to your interest, then special groups form, and people get involved," she said, fairly summing up the appeal of 4-H.

Who runs things is another key to success: "It's a two-way street....if the members show interest, the leaders respond. We'll form a special interest group at once...things are real flexible," Miss Landen said.

But the ingredient which deepdown makes 4-H grow is a spirit of community. The members are close-knit, socially active, and come from places where they have roots. "Our fellowship keeps us together," says Miss Landen.

Boys and girls of all races over a wide spread of ages are members, and while clubs are active in cities as well as small towns and rural communities, the greatest success is in non-urban sections where people feel a part of the community—even if they just moved there from Michigan or New Jersey.

The most active clubs are in isolated countries like Hyde and Tyrrell where the trips and camping experiences and club meetings form a major pattern in community social life.

But even in more populated countries and larger towns, 4-Hers are pushing the image change. Duke University Psychiatrist Hal Harris calls the 4-H movement in North Carolina a "bright star" of success for teenagers while other activities falter.

It's fairly clear why that is so.

The GALLUP POLL

Closely-Matched Rivals

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — As the race of the GOP nomination enters its final pre-convention stages, President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan are closely matched in terms of vote-getting potential, personal appeal and dealing with key voter issues.

(1) Vote-getting potential. As reported earlier, Ford and Reagan show about equal strength or "electability." The difference in their standings in the latest trial heats is not statistically significant; Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter leads Ford 62 to 29 per cent and Reagan 64 to 27 per cent among registered voters nationwide.

Ford is stronger than Reagan with Republican voters in these trial heats, but Reagan is stronger with independents and Democrats. Ford's substantial lead among GOP voters is reflected only slightly in the overall findings because of the small percentage of Republicans (22 per cent) in the electorate today.

(2) Personal appeal (as distinct from test election results). Ford and Reagan fare about equally well in terms of the personal enthusiasm they engender among the nation's voters. In the latest survey, Ford receives a "highly favorable" rating of 22 per cent and Reagan a rating of 24 per cent.

(3) Key voter issues. At the present time four major problems dominate the chief concerns of the electorate: the high cost of living, unemployment, trust in government and crime. Both men score about equally well on the issues of reducing inflation, reducing unemployment, and restoring trust in government.

Reagan leads Ford on the issue of reducing crime, but the President far outdistances his rival when it comes to "keeping the U.S. out of war," "handling foreign policy" and "dealing with the Soviet Union." Although foreign policy is currently in the background as an issue, concern over war and peace can be considered a constant concern of the electorate.

Ford also leads Reagan on the question of which man would do a better job of "dealing with the energy problem," "dealing with environmental problems" and "improving the quality of life of the American people."

On the general question of "handling domestic affairs in this country," the President emerges with an edge, with 43 per cent saying Ford can do a better job in this respect and 36 per cent naming Reagan.

Following is the question asked:

"Most people see one candidate as better able to handle certain problems than is the other candidate. Now regardless of which man you happen to prefer — Ford or Reagan — please tell me which one you, yourself, feel can do a better job of handling each of the following problems."

Here are the results, giving those of the top priority problems first:

	Ford	Undecided	Reagan
Reducing inflation?	36%	35%	29%
Reducing unemployment?	35	35	30
Restoring trust in government?	36	36	28
Reducing crime?	30	39	31
Keeping the U.S. out of war?	55	19	26
Handling foreign policy?	55	22	23
Dealing with the Soviet Union?	52	23	25
Dealing with the energy problem?	41	28	31
Dealing with Environmental problems?	40	32	28
Improving the quality of life Of the American people?	37	31	32
Handling domestic affairs In this country?	43	36	31

Other Editors Say Casting Stones

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

It seems that Congress is always first to cast stones. That august body had a field day during Watergate. It forced the resignation from office of a president and a vice president. It forced lesser men from important positions in the administration.

And it has howled long and loud about alleged payoffs by such industrial firms as Lockheed and others.

It passes laws and resolutions designed to curb wrong-doing by one and all—except its own members.

Latest example of its hypocrisy came when it voted to "reprimand" a House member, Rep. Robert L. F. Sykes, a Florida Democrat, on two counts of financial misconduct.

Some punishment. A "reprimand" action is the mildest form of rebuke the House could have given him.

What about other transgressors in Congress? Wilber Mills is alive and soing very well, and up to now nothing has been done about Wayne Hays of Ohio who was charged with using public money to pay a "secretary" who worked for him. Her services were anything but secretarial.

Several other congressmen have been called on similar activities, involving sex. We are awaiting patiently the disposition of their cases by Congress. We may wait...and wait...and wait.

Congress is always talking about ethics reform. Thus far there has been little reform. Meanwhile, ethics continue to suffer. Washington legislators will scream to the skies when a military service is found to have given a free ride or access to a skeet range or something like that to a business executive.

Yet dozens of members of Congress annually take junkets overseas that cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars. Nothing is ever done about this.

Congress ought to set its own house in order before it casts stones in the future.

Strength For Today

TOO BUSY

There is an interesting story in the first Book of Kings about a guard who was told to watch a prisoner, and who through neglect allowed the prisoner to escape. When the master demanded to know how the escape took place, the guard could only reply, "While thy servant was busy here and there, lo, he was gone."

These words have a modern ring to them—"Thy servant was busy." So busy, in fact, that he neglected a grave responsibility for little incidental matters that were not to be compared in importance with the task he was set to perform. Here was a man who failed to see the difference between matters of primary and secondary importance.

The application of the story scarcely needs to be stressed. "Here and there" things so often take up our time that the important elements of life are forgotten. And when we at last realize the gravity of the things we have neglected, all we can say is, "While thy servant was busy here and there, lo, he was gone."

West Europe Data Depresses

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is still too early to state conclusively that Western Europe has lost its latest battle with inflation, and probably too despairing also, but the numbers look very bad.

Consumer prices rose at about a 12 per cent annual rate in the first quarter of the year, or about double the rate in the United States. Moreover, the trend was to more inflation.

In the latter half of 1975, for example, the inflation rate averaged out to about 9.5 per cent, a sharp decline from a 16 per cent rate in the first half of the year. But now it is rising again.

Disturbed about the current 6 per cent consumer price inflation, Americans would be shocked by the rates in some European nations. Italy and Spain have rates of more than 20 per cent, and Britain, Holland and France have rates in the area of 14 to 15 per cent.

Only Germany, Switzerland and Belgium, among the major economies, have been able to maintain inflation in the single digits or, in the case of Switzerland, less than that. The Swiss actually have had deflation.

In a commentary on the situation, Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. observes that some European governments "seem unable or unwilling to move seriously enough against inflation."

Instead, it said, "they seem to be more concerned with the short-run political and social consequences of unemployment than they are with the slightly longer term and more serious political, social and economic consequences of inflation."

The criticisms made by Arnold Simkin, the Merrill Lynch senior economist based in London, seem remarkably similar to those charges levied against the American government in the past, sometimes by European nations.

"Most Europeans," writes Simkin, "seem to be unwilling to bite the bullet on economic matters." Various wage escalators are built into the economies of most European countries, "enshrined" as Simkin puts it.

Therefore, a typical reaction to inflation, he says, has been to try to introduce wage and/or price controls. "Needless to say, these have not been successful."

In those instances in which governments have succeeded in suppressing price increase by decree, he observes, "the result has been that corporate profits have suffered, and business' ability to invest has been impaired..."

There is a villain in this scenario, and many Americans will recognize it as the very one responsible for domestic inflation. The villain, says Simkin, is public-sector deficit spending.

Europe thus is attempting to maintain a recovery while, at the same time bucking inflation. "Something may have to give," the Merrill Lynch analysis concludes, "and current levels of inflation lower the odds on a long, healthy economic expansion for Europe as a whole."

Postcard Registration Before House

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan to allow voters to register by mail is coming up for a vote in the House, with Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter urging its approval and Republicans opposing the idea.

The House was to begin debate on the postcard registration measure today but a final vote may be delayed until next week.

Both sides expect Congress to pass the bill and President Ford to veto it. Democrats are prepared to make a campaign issue of the veto, charging that Ford wants to restrict the number of persons voting.

But Republicans have attacked the measure as an invitation to fraud and an effort to have the government pay part of the cost of registration drives by special interest groups.

"The American people are being given a preview of the kind of strong-arm government they would get if Jimmy Carter ever becomes president," the House Republican Policy Committee said.

The bill, long dormant in the House Rules Committee, moved swiftly to the floor after Carter asked Speaker Carl Albert for prompt action.

Albert told reporters there was nothing unusual about such a request and that candidates frequently request action on legislation they are interested in. He said the bill is a sound one, intended to counter a trend toward lower and lower voter participation in elections and "I hope the Republicans are not afraid of the American people."

Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, said Wednesday the bill "would do more overnight to make it possible for all Americans to participate than anything else."

Unless registration rules are eased, he said, "we might have less than half the voter age Americans voting in this Bicentennial year."

The plan would be mandatory only for federal elections but states could adopt it for local elections and would be given incentives to do so. Forms would be prepared in accordance with the election laws of every state and would be delivered by the Postal Service to every residence in the country.

Unregistered citizens then could fill out the postcards and mail them to state officials who would then determine whether the registrations were approved or disapproved and notify the applicants.

All the mailings would be at no cost to the state officials or registrants. The bill authorizes $50 million, subject to future appropriations, to reimburse the Postal Service and the states for extra costs.

The postcard forms also would be available to groups arranging registration drives, but they would have to deliver them to prospective voters at their own expense.

Lillian Says Auditor's Office Shares Blame

By Barbara Mathews
Reflector Staff Writer
Lillian Woo, campaigning in Greenville for the Democratic nomination for state auditor, said yesterday she holds the current auditor's office "partially responsible" for the state's Medicaid problems.

"We pioneered here in North Carolina with a contract with the H.A.S. corporation to handle our Medicaid claims," she said.

"H.A.S. is a $406 million corporation. The auditor did not look into the financial solvency of this company, did not examine the provisions of the contract and did not determine any changes in the health program.

"As a result, H.A.S. claims it has run out of money and has stopped payment on all claims for the past three months, placing in jeopardy all the health facilities in the state.

"The state has been asked to advance money every month for the last three months, although there are provisions in the contract which state specifically that any costs over and above will be absorbed by H.A.S.

"H.A.S. has a performance bond which it has refused to use and has blackmailed the state for advance payment of almost $30 million in the last three months.

have to have a balanced budget in the state by law, and it is necessary to maximize the effectiveness of our limited resources by increasing efficiency and economy, eliminating waste and duplication, and determining the achievement of program goals set by the General Assembly.

"This can serve as a crucial source of information to the governor, the budget committee and the legislature.

"There is no impartial, objective evaluation provided to any of these at the present time, and it is incumbent on the auditor's office to provide this information.

"This office assumes the role of a watch dog on behalf of all taxpayers, seeking to insure that we get our money's worth out of government services and programs."

Mrs. Woo said for the first time since 1948, there will be a Democratic primary for the state auditor nomination.

"This year, we have had more challenges to more council of state positions than we have ever had," she said.

"This indicates the views of many that there is a need for a change of leadership and perspectives as well as a change in the direction of progress in North Carolina.

"The full authority and jurisdiction granted to the auditor's office should be exercised.

"It has not been in the past."

LILLIAN WOO

"We will end up with a tremendous deficit at the end of the year. We will either have to come up with more money or curtail the eligibility of North Carolinians for this service."

Noting that a private statewide poll has turned out very favorably for her, Mrs. Woo said her major goal would be the initiation of a system of "performance auditing."

"The performance audit is a very important function of the office," she said.

"It is important because we

Well, I dunno. The pharmacy case turned on the First Amendment, and on the right of "the poor, the sick, and the aged" to receive information on prescription prices. The Court also upheld the right of an aggressive druggist to advertise his wares, even though his interest is "purely economic." Such an interest "hardly disqualifies him from protection under the First Amendment."

The ABA case, by contrast, is an antitrust proceeding, but some of the same First Amendment considerations would appear to apply. If a lawyer wants to advertise a fixed price for preparing a simple will, or making a title search, or writing a deed of trust, or collecting some bad debts, shouldn't he be free to do so? It seems so to me. Such advertising might not always be dignified, but it might prove profitable to the lawyers and useful to the people.

Leaf Prices Rise Again

Improved quality of offerings on the Greenville Tobacco Market yesterday contributed to yet another increase in price average for local warehouses.

Market average, according to the sales supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, J. N. Bryan, climbed to $105.41 per hundred pounds on Wednesday's sale, an increase of over $1 per hundred from the previous sales day.

Sales on Wednesday of 785,082 pounds brought $827,565, Bryan reported, with more cutters and leaf grades attributing to the overall increase in quality.

Less primings and non-descript offerings are showing up on warehouse floors each day as the season progresses, he said.

Stabilization receipts yesterday amounted to only 13.37 per cent of total sales.

For the season, the market has sold 8,310,866 pounds for $8,011,739, an average of $96.40.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected today from the Northwest to New England, and for most of Florida. Cooler weather is due from the Great Lakes to the northern Plains but seasonably warm weather is forecast for most of the country. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
It was sunny and warm in North Carolina today. Although it was a generally pleasant day, southerly winds caused an increase in humidity, so it was not as comfortable as the previous two days.

Highs were in the 80, except for the mid to upper 70s in the mountains. The maximums will be the same Friday, but there will be considerable cloudiness.

A ridge of high pressure centered over North Carolina kept fair weather over the state today. Temperatures were a few degrees warmer than earlier this week.

Wednesday was a beautiful day to be outdoors. Afternoon temperatures were mostly in the low to mid 80s, with many 70s in the mountains.

Fair will continue overnight, with the lows mostly in the 60s.

Thursday's cloudiness will result from two weather systems. A cold front from the U.S.-Canadian border will be approaching the state. And a low-pressure wave is expected to develop on a front from the Gulf of Mexico. This combination could cause a few showers over the weekend.

Debt Collection Covered By Law

RALEIGH (AP) — By ruling against the J.C. Penney department store chain, the North Carolina Court of Appeals has brought regulation of debt collection methods under the state's consumer protection law.

The court overruled a decision by Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey that debt collection practices are not covered by the law. The state Department of Justice had brought action against the company, claiming that Penney's had made repeated abusive, threatening and harassing telephone calls to customers who were late paying their bills and that the company telephoned employers of such customers.

The company denied the truth of the charges.

In its ruling, the court directed the Wake County Superior Court to issue a preliminary injunction prohibiting the company from using unfair debt collection practices.

The appeals court said that "since there is ample evidence that the conduct alleged did occur and the conduct complained of does fall within the scope prohibited" by the consumer protection law, it was error for Bailey not to grant the preliminary injunction.

In response to the decision, Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said, "Not only does this decision protect North Carolina citizens from abusive and high pressure debt collection tactics, it also sets an important legal precedent for the rest of the country."

In other decisions handed down Wednesday, the court:

—Upheld a ruling by Superior Court Judge James M. Long that the state can continue to operate a treatment center for emotionally troubled children in a 26-room mansion at Southern Pines known as Duncraig Manor.

Operation of the home as a treatment center for emotionally troubled children was a governmental function, the court ruled, adding that the home did not violate the Southern Pines zoning ordinance.

—Dismissed the appeal of former highway patrolman James L. Darnell of Fayetteville who appealed his dismissal. Darnell was fired after he was charged with assisting in the theft of materials from an apartment construction site. Those charges were dismissed for lack of evidence when they came up for trial.

Judge Bailey had ordered Darnell reinstated with back pay, but the court said Darnell had "no constitutional right to continued employment as a member of the state Highway Patrol." Bailey should have dismissed the case, the court said.

—Upheld the conspiracy conviction of Jeanette Martha Grier in the auto bombing that maimed a State Bureau of Investigation agent Albert Stout Jr. in Salisbury Sept. 10, 1974. She was sentenced to 50 to 70 years on one charge and 15 years on another. Several other persons also were sentenced in the case.

—Returned to Insurance Commissioner John Ingram for "appropriate findings of fact" a case in which Ingram refused to allow companies to raise workmen's compensation insurance rates. Ingram ruled that the existing rates were "reasonable, adequate, not unfairly discriminatory and in the public interest."

Grant Being Claims Dreams Withheld

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Disadvantaged youngsters have fewer basketballs and baseballs on North Carolina playgrounds this summer because a $217,000 federal grant is being withheld. The money from the Community Services Administration (CSA) won't be released until the North Carolina Department of Administration resolves questions about the handling of last year's money.

Federal officials say a routine audit showed that $55,000 appears to have been spent on children not qualified for the summer recreational program, and another $76,722 in expenditures was not backed up with receipts.

The CSA regional office in Atlanta has given North Carolina until Aug. 26 to account for the expenditures, or face cutoff of future grants.

Charlotte, Durham and other larger cities in the state are not involved because they are prime sponsors of the program and receive the recreational grant directly from the federal government. The money they received has not been questioned.

Joe Balak is head of the North Carolina Office of Employment and Training, which dispenses the money to regional organizations and county governmental units. He said the state intends to meet the Aug. 26 deadline.

He said the audit by Touche Ross & Co. raised several questions concerning last summer's expenditures, and all questions are being reviewed.

Claims Dreams Are Predictions

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Leonard J. Cook, who teaches astrology, says he dreams about world-shaking events years before they happen.

He says that nine years ago he wrote down dreams about:

—A president who resigned "due to corruption and scandal" but was pardoned by his appointed successor.

—A rich heiress who was kidnapped by a radical gang.

—The landing of an unmanned spaceship on Mars.

—The "bizarre kidnapping of a truckload of children" by three men.

Cook, 38, says he has been dreaming about wars, assassinations, politics and the economy since he was 16 years old.

He wrote down his predictions in 1967. On the advice of an attorney, he had them certified as registered mail. He was given a copy of the receipt from the post office in Patchogue, N.Y., where he lived at the time.

Cook is a photography and astrology instructor at Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute near Lenoir.

He does not claim to have had any revelations or unusual experiences to instill psychic powers. He says he just realized as a youth that many of his dreams came true.

Cook, who moved to North Carolina about 2 1/2 years ago, he says he accidentally found the predictions several weeks ago.

The Hickory Daily Record said Cook's still-sealed predictions were opened by a lawyer July 30. A statement certifying that the lawyer, who asked to remain anonymous, opened the predictions was notarized.

"I'm not trying to prove anything to anybody," Cook says. He says he made his predictions public for anyone who was interested.

Candidate In Wake Jail

RALEIGH (AP) — State Sen. Bobby Barker, D-Wake, spent the night in the Wake County jail Wednesday night after his attorneys failed to convince a Superior Court judge that Barker should be allowed appeal bond on his contempt of court citation.

Barker was cited for contempt by Judge David Smith after he failed to produce documents in a civil lawsuit filed against his defunct company, Barker Electronics. Smith ordered Barker jailed for three months unless he turns over the documents and thereby shows he is no longer in contempt.

Smith denied appeal bond and Barker's attorneys sought bail from Superior Court Judge Donald Smith who began hearing arguments but recessed the hearing late Wednesday to be resumed this morning.

Barker is one of eight candidates seeking Democratic nomination for three Senate seats representing Lee, Harnett and Wake counties.

Before being jailed, Barker said he intended to remain in the race. The primary will be Aug. 17.

Barker was cited for contempt by David Smith after he failed to turn over financial records of his company in response to court orders in a suit filed by creditors seeking recovery of unpaid debts. The judge said Barker's conduct showed willful contempt of court orders.

Arrest Man On Robbery Count

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department arrested a 48-year-old Rt. 1, Bethel man and charged him with common law robbery in connection with an Aug. 1 incident.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies charged James Paige with the robbery count following investigation of an 11:30 a.m. incident at the home of Louis Paul Hyman, 68, of Rt. 1, Box 323, Bethel.

Hyman told deputies that he was assaulted and robbed of $42.50 at his home on N.C. 11.

Bond for Paige was set at $1,000, the sheriff said, with a hearing scheduled for this week in District Court.

Investigation of the incident is continuing, he said.

Two Arrested In Bank Holdup

HIDDENITE, N.C. (AP) — Two men have been arrested and charged with Wednesday's robbery of the Hiddenite branch of the Northwestern Bank, authorities report.

The FBI identified them as Wiley Wade Bare, 40, and Harold Wyman Dobbins, 38. The Alexander County Sheriff's Department said both were from Rt. 8, Statesville.

It was the 31st bank robbery of the year in North Carolina.

The FBI said Bare and Dobbins were arrested at a trailer park 10 miles from the bank.

A Limit To Uniform Sizes

NASHVILLE (AP) — Metro Council members have had heavy debate over a lard problem — how fat school patrol mothers can be.

A proposed amendment would raise the limit of 160 pounds to 180 pounds.

The main reason for having a weight restriction is difficulty in finding uniforms, Capt. Clarence Huffman said Wednesday.

"What would we do if a 300-pound lady came in here? We can't order uniforms that large," he said.

Area Students On Dean's List

The following area students received dean's list honors for the first session of summer school at Lenoir Community College:

Gary Lee and Mary Henby of Greenville; Betsy Drake, Gloria Myers Henrietta Connor, Edward Grant and Penny Waters of Grifton; Pattie Hines, Jessie Lewis, Byron Bridges and Samuel Overby of Snow Hill; Janice Tyndall of Maury; Olivia Wyrick of Winterville; and Harry Hart of Ayden.

Connally Lashes Out At Two GOP Congressmen

ON TARGET — New Zealand's Ross Hynds, foreground, is on target with other competitors during archery competition in the Olympiad for the Physically Disabled in Toronto, Wednesday. Forty-two countries are competing in the week-long events. (CP Wirephoto)

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Connally says he's not campaigning for the Republican vice presidential nomination, but the former Texas governor has come out swinging at critics who claim he was too close to the Watergate scandal.
Connally lashed out Wednesday against two Republican congressmen, Reps. William S. Cohen of Maine and Tom Railsback of Illinois, who are trying

EMERGENCY POWERS
RALEIGH (AP) — The Raleigh City Council has given City Manager L.P. Zachary emergency powers to restrict water use if the city's water shortage worsens.

openly to scuttle Connally's chances of landing a spot on the Republican ticket.
"You better believe I'm going on the attack about it," Connally said. "I've been waiting for them."
Connally, who was acquitted last year of a political bribery charge brought against him by the Watergate special prosecutor, told reporters Wednesday night in Cleveland that he "wasn't in any way involved in Watergate, and if they (Cohen and Railsback) implied that I was, they are guilty of the grossest kind of misconduct."
He added: "I'm not going to stand by, vice presidential prospects or not, and let Mr. Railsback or Mr. Cohen besmirch me any longer."
Connally, who spoke at a GOP fund-raiser in Cleveland, said, "I'm not running for anything, and if it were offered to me I'm not sure I'd take it."

Railsback and Cohen, who both took part in the House Judiciary Committee's Watergate probe and voted to impeach former President Richard M. Nixon two years ago, have said publicly that President Ford may not know the full record of Connally's Watergate role, and they have asked to meet with Ford on the matter.
Connally, 59, was acquitted in April 1975 of a charge that in 1971, while he was Nixon's treasury secretary, he accepted $10,000 from dairymen who wanted the administration to boost milk price supports.
Cohen has said Ford should study a Watergate tape of a March 23, 1971, Nixon-Connally conversation that a judge refused to admit as evidence at Connally's trial. The tape was released after the trial.
In the prosecutor's transcript of the conversation, which took place just after Nixon and other officials decided to raise milk price supports, Connally allegedly said: "It's on my honor, to make sure that, that, there's a very substantial allocation of oil in Texas that you, that will be at your, at your discretion."

Nixon responded: "Fine."
During his trial Connally said he was talking about taxes, not Texas, though he meaning of that version was not immediately clear.
Connally was neutral in Ford's battle with Ronald Reagan for the GOP nomination until Reagan chose Sen. Richard Schweiker as his designated running mate on July 26. When Connally endorsed Ford the next day, speculation grew that he might become Ford's running mate.

Not Much To Cotton Grower

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The boom in denim-clothing sales has been given major credit for pulling U.S. cotton farming out of a slump, but the cotton farmer still gets only 6 1/2 cents out of each dollar that consumers spend on jeans.
That's the calculation of the Agriculture Department's Commodity Economics Division, which by way of comparison reports that farmers last year got 64 cents of the beef dollar and 19 cents of the bread dollar.
The biggest piece of the denim dollar, 42 cents, goes to the retailer and the wholesaler, reports Edward H. Glade Jr. of the USDA agency.
The least amount goes to the cotton ginner, who get less than a penny, and the marketing firms, which get just over a penny for moving the cotton from the production area to the mill.
Glade said about 20 per cent of cotton for clothing goes into blue jeans. From the farmers' point of view, that was 613,400 bales in 1974, the last year for which firm figures are available.

That represented a 35 per cent jump since 1970 and didn't count the fiber for denim book covers, jackets, dresses, handbags, saddlebags, cover-alls and other denim products.
An additional 30 cents goes to the manufacturers for styling, cutting, sewing and the label. Twenty cents goes to the textile mills for spinning the farmer's raw cotton into yarn after ginning, for dyeing the yarn and for weaving it into rolls of denim for the manufacturer.
Others in Glade's division pointed out that fashion trends, are only one factor in the fortunes of the fiber farmer. Price competition from still cheaper man-made fibers has more impact, they said, since cotton can now claim only about 30 per cent of the market. Economic recession last year deepened the slump throughout the textile business that began two years ago.
In response to the fashion swings, a 50 per cent jump in spring cotton prices and higher government production-loan rates, cotton farmers planted 1.5 million acres more this year than last.

Leaf Quality Best To Date

FARMVILLE — Prices for several grades yesterday showed a sharp increase compared with Tuesday sales at the Farmville Tobacco Market, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.
"More companies bid on tobacco yesterday than any previous day," Williams said.
"The quality of the tobacco was the best of the year. The volume of primings and non-descript grades was much less than previous days. Stabilization accounted for only 4.89 per cent of the gross sales as compared to 38.97 per cent on the same sale day last year," Williams said.
Wednesday, the Farmville Tobacco Market sold 356,242 pounds for $380,723 with an average of $106.87 per 100 pounds. This amount is $18.41 more than last year's average per 100 pounds. To date the Farmville Tobacco Market has sold 4,970,370 pounds for $4,748,172 with a seasonal average of $95.53 per 100 pounds.

Strikers Deny Role In Beating Truck Driver

MEMPHIS (AP) — Union officials representing striking rubber workers at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. plant here have disavowed any involvement by their membership in the beating of a truck driver outside the plant.

Jerry Marlin, an employee of East Texas Motor Freight Lines of Dallas, had picked up a load of tires from the plant's warehouse Wednesday when he was stopped "by persons presumed to be striking Firestone employees," said Nick Pinter, Firestone public relations manager.

Police said the truck was stopped about 2:20 p.m. by a group of men in several vehicles. Marlin, 41, of Southaven, Miss., was pulled out of the cab and beaten and two concrete blocks were thrown through the windshield.

The incident was the first strike-related violence reported at the Memphis plant since about 2,600 workers walked off their jobs 107 days ago as part of the nationwide United Rubber Workers strike.

Another 1,950 rubber workers are out at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. at Union City, Tenn., but there have been no reports of strike related violence.

Marlin, who suffered a cut on the forehead, was treated and released at a Memphis hospital. He said he was stopped by about 20 persons in 8 to 10 cars. But he declined to comment further, saying "I don't know what my company would want me to release."

Pete Sennett, president of United Rubber Workers Local 186, said he didn't know whether striking workers were involved.

"I will check into it and try to find out if my people were involved," he said.

"Our pickets did not leave their stations," said Xrank Fletcher, who was in charge of the picketers at the Firestone plant Wednesday.

Trucks have entered the warehouse before, he said, but pickets have not stopped them.

"We don't try to stop them," Fletcher said. "We just ask them to honor our picket lines."

Until a few days ago the Memphis plant had been using trains to pick up tires, Pinter said. But expenses caused them to start using trucks again.

"It's been a very quiet strike here," he said. "This is the first thing that's happened at all."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted downward today, returning to the listless pattern that has dominated activity for most of the summer.

Trading was light. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 2.12 at 990.16. Losers outpaced gainers by about a 4-3 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow had climbed more than 8 points Tuesday and another 4 by mid-afternoon Wednesday.

But at that point the rally faltered, and the average finished Wednesday with a gain of less than 2 points.

Analysts said traders quickly concluded that the market still lacked the inspiration to break out of the narrow range in which it has fluctuated for past six months.

General Telephone & Electronics was actively traded, rising 3/4 to 28. The company raised its quarterly dividend from 45 to 50 cents a share.

Chrysler slipped 3/4 to 21 1/2 before trading in the stock was halted for the news that the company was resuming dividend payments. The move had been expected.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .11 to 55.87 in the first hour, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was down .10 at 103.77.

Viking's Soil-Sampling Arm Jammed

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking's soil-sampling arm may be permanently out of commission, leaving scientists with only the dirt already gathered to carry on their search for life on Mars.

Scientists ordered Viking's camera to look at the jammed arm today, hoping it might spot the source of trouble. The sampler arm jammed Tuesday while reaching out for more soil destined for the organic chemistry experiment.

Scientists say there is still hope for that crucial organic analysis. They planned to order Viking to go ahead with the experiment on Friday on the assumption that the organic chemistry instrument got its full complement of soil when Viking first went digging last week.

Mission director Tom Young said that if all goes well, the arm's malfunction would not be too serious because "we would have carried out studies of Mars soil with three analytical instruments."

The major limitation would be that scientists had soil from only one small portion of the landing area available for analysis, he said.

The organic test is considered crucial because it may answer some of the mysteries that have occurred in the last week in Viking's search for life. Scientists say they are leaning toward the view that the minilaboratory thus far are not caused by life processes.

Viking's hunt for signs of life in the first batch of dirt it clawed from the surface was nearing a milestone.

By the weekend, the three main life-search experiments will have reported their early findings. Two have checked in, and one of them showed an unexplained release of radioactive gas.

Scientists say they have not ruled out the possibility that some form of life has caused the gas to be produced as a result of metabolism.

But if it's life, it is something unfamiliar to earthlings. And for that reason, the team is looking toward a unique chemical process as the explanation, not life, said Dr. Harold Klein, leader of the biology team.

Such a chemical process, however, would also be something new to scientists. For this reason, they were careful not to exclude the possibility of life on Mars.

The third experiment, a test for photosynthesis — the production of organic material from sunlight, carbon dioxide and water — is to report what it finds by Saturday.

Regardless of the results, scientists say that if there are Martian organisms in the soil, they may be slow to respond, so the early results will not be definitive. It could be weeks, they say, before signs of life, if there are any — emerge.

BREAKS OWN WORLD HIGH JUMP RECORD — Dwight Stones of Long Beach State grimaces as he slides over the bar to set a new high jump world record of 7'7 1/4" in the Bicentennial Meet of Champlions in Philadelphia Wednesday night. Stones broke his own record of 7'7" set at the NCAA meet in Philadelphia in June. (AP Wirephoto)

Stones Makes Up For Missing Gold Medal By Breaking Record

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The world high jump record is 7 feet 7 1/4 inches today, thanks to Dwight Stones' confidence in himself, but he's looking toward even higher things despite not having the Olympic gold medal.

When the 22-year-old senior at Long Beach State upped his own world mark Wednesday night at the Philadelphia Bicentennial Meet of Champions, he reaffirmed his status as No. 1 high jumper in the world — a fact he never doubted despite his third-place finish in the Olympics only four days earlier.

In fact, his warmup shirt, a gift from a friend, said: "Stones and (a picture of Mickey Mouse) are No. 1."

"There's no such thing as too much self-confidence," said the exuberant Stones as he signed autographs for hundreds of kids. "It's what you do with it that counts."

Some called him arrogant when he predicted two weeks before the NCAA Championships here exactly two months ago that he'd set a world record. He then held the old mark at 7-6 1/2.

When he leaped 7-7 to win the NCAA meet, those who had used the word "arrogance" in describing him were silent, but when Stones publicly criticized French-Canadians and Olympic organizers in Montreal, the word began to pop up again, much to his dismay.

He showed his mastery by clearing 7-7 1/4 on his first attempt and he wound up the night with only one miss in nine jumps.

Later, when John Walker of New Zealand won the first race in the Dream Mile Triple despite a touch of the flu, a crowd of 13,722 went crazy, but not as crazy as they might have.

Again, to the displeasure of the crowd and promoters Dan Sheddick and Rocky Aoki, Filbert Bayi of Tanzania didn't show up, even though he was expected. Bayi and Walker, considered the top two middle distance runners in the world, have met just twice, the last time in January 1974.

They have been prevented from meeting because of the unhappiness of Bayi's nation over New Zealand's sports ties with segregationist South Africa. The political dispute wrecked an Olympic confrontation and may also submarine the other two races of the Dream Mile Triple.

"We may have to scrap plans for the mile in the next meet," said Sheddick. "The runners may move up to 5,000 meters if Bayi doesn't show."

The Nos. 2 and 3 races in the Triple are to be at Oslo, Norway, on Sept. 4-5 and on Sept. 18 in Helsinki, Finland.

Walker, fighting the flu, closed quickly in the somewhat slow race to win in 3:56.2, far off his own world mark of 3:49.4. But Walker said he wasn't too worried about losing to Paul-Heinz Wellman of West Germany or his Kiwi countryman, Rod Dixon.

"I've been on antibiotics for three days," said Walker, winner of the gold medal in the Olympic Games 1,500 last Saturday, the same day Stones "failed." "If I was going to lose, today was the time."

If the pace had been any faster than the 3:01.5 it was for the first three laps, the winner might have been the fast-closing Dixon. As it was, Wellman, the bronze medalist behind Walker and Belgium's Ivo Van Damme in Montreal, was second here in 3:56.3 with Dixon back at 3:56.4.

At least a dozen Olympians pulled out of this meet at the last minute, and a couple of injuries and a mishap in the mile prevented some other interesting developments.

As it was, Kenya's Mike Boit ran a fast 1:46.1 in winning the 800, Steve Riddick won the 100 in 10.24, James Gilkes of Guyana won the 200 in 20.79 and Francine Larrieu won the women's 800 in a personal best 2:04.2.

The two-mile race was billed as a show-stopper, too, but the early pace wasn't as fast as the runners needed for a world

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina pounded both Methodist and Louisburg last night to move into the finals of the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League tonight.

The Pirates, making their first trip to the finals the six years they've played, will face North Carolina in a game at 7 p.m. If the Bucs take it, they'll play another in the double-elimination tournament, also against Carolina at about nine.

Methodist fell before the fired-up Pirates, 13-2, and Louisburg had not much better luck, bowing by a 11-2 score. Earlier, Louisburg had been knocked into the losers' bracket by the Tar Heels, 11-5, in a game closer than the score would indicate, Carolina scored six times in the ninth to win it.

The Bucs had their hitting shoes on for the twin-bill, banging out 11 hits against Methodist and 17 against the Hurricanes.

East Carolina got 11 it needed in the first inning, scoring three runs. Rick Koryda walked and Robert Brinkley singled. Macon Moye was safe on an error, scoring Koryda. A wild pitch brought in Brinkley, and Bobby Supel singled over Moye.

The Pirates came up with six in the third inning. Brinkley singled and Sonny Wooten walked. Supel was safe on an error that let both runners go all the way home. Stevens singled in Supel and stole second, going to third on an error. Pete Paradossi doubled in Stevens, and Howard McCullough reached on an error, scoring Paradossi. Hits by Koryda and Brinkley brought McCullough around.

The Pirates then added one in the fourth on a solo blast by Wooten, and picked up three more in the fifth.

Griff Garner led off the fifth with a walk, and McCullough reached on an error. Koryda singled to load them up, and Brinkley's grounder got him at second, but scored Garner. A wild pitch brought in McCullough, while Wooten singled in Brinkley.

Both of the Louisburg runs came in the sixth off reliever Glenn Card. Sam Tolar led off with a single and Dave Roller doubled. Tolar scored when Steve Hodges grounded out, and a hit by Audwin Pellom brought in Roller.

Terry Durham got the win for the Bucs, going the first five innings of the game, called after seven frames. Durham allowed only three hits during his stint on the mound.

In the second game, the Bucs were just as devastating, only against Louisburg, which had just lost a heart-breaker to the Tar Heels.

After missing out on a chance in the second, the Bucs came up with four in the third. Card singled and moved up on an out, Koryda walked and Brinkley doubled in Card and Koryda. Moye followed with a triple, scoring Brinkley, and a hit by Wooten brought in Moye for a 4-0 lead.

Card got another run in the fourth, leading off with a hit. He stole second, and took third when McCullough was safe on an error. Koryda brought him home with a sacrifice fly.

The Bucs added four more in the sixth, running their lead out to 9-0. McCullough singled and Koryda doubled. Brinkley walked to load them up, and Moye's sacrifice fly brought in McCullough. The other two scored on a hit by Wooten.

Brinkley singled and scored on a homer by Moye in the eighth for two more. Paradossi doubled, took third on a passed ball and scored on Koryda's hit in the ninth.

Louisburg got only two men as far as second in the first six innings and finally broke the ice in the seventh with two runs. Kelly Heath walked and John Gourley singled. Carl Carlie walked, and a hit by Kevin Staley scored Heath. Gourley was cut down at the plate on a fielder's choice, but a walk to Jeff Thomas forced in Carlie.

Larry Daughtridge went all the way for the Bucs, giving up six hits. He walked five, but struck out 11.

Now the Bucs are in a must-win situation. A Carolina victory in the first game would close the tournament, while a Buc victory would make it sudden death in a second game.

South Carolina Gets Big Man

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—A basketball grant-in-aid has been signed by John Wilkins, a 7-4 transfer student, to the University of South Carolina at Spartanburg.

"He'll probably play what we call low post," or near the basket, said Coach Bill Reitmeier. Wilkins, a graduate of Boiling Springs High School, won't be eligible until the second semester due to the transfer from North Carolina A&T.

Reitmeier said Wilkins will be a valuable addition to his two-year-old team, and will "help us to be more stable in our third year."

Wilkins isn't quick, "but he can dunk with either hand and has a good hook shot." The team already has some quick players and two big men, 6-foot-8 Wayne Holden and 6-foot-9 Mark McCown.

"We want to use him primarily for his rebounding, tipping, and blocking and intimidation inside," the coach said.

Wilkins did not play high school basketball, but he played for the freshman team at North Carolina A&T. He sat out last year.

Reitmeier said he is optimistic for the team's chances in the District 6 NAIA basketball competition. "We've also signed four all-stars, including three who played in the (recent) North-South game. We're going to be more representative than we've been the last two years."

Even Randy Jones Can't Draw In Atlanta-Braves Tag Loss On Him

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

San Diego ace Randy Jones, in pursuit of a 30-victory season, has been packing them in everywhere he goes. But Atlanta is not everywhere.

Only 2,715 paying fans turned up at Atlanta Stadium Wednesday to watch the winningest pitcher in the majors go after victory No. 19. And they saw him get loss No. 6 instead.

Dick Ruthven outdueled the Padres' ace 1-0 with a slick eight-hit, 10-strikeout performance.

"I wasn't worried about pitching against Jones," said Ruthven, 12-9. "The only time I worried about him was when he came to bat. I just wanted to keep them from scoring."

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston edged Los Angeles 1-0, San Francisco downed Cincinnati 4-1, Philadelphia beat Chicago 7-5, New York blanked Montreal 4-0 and Pittsburgh got by St. Louis 2-1 in 12 innings.

The Braves waited until the ninth inning before making Jones a loser. Rod Gilbreath led off with a single, his third hit of the game, and Jim Wynn followed with a booming double to left center for the game's only run.

"It's about time," said Wynn, who hasn't had much to shout about this season. "I think I'll go out and celebrate."

"It wasn't the most satisfying win of my career," insisted Ruthven. "That would have to be the first one I won. But it was the most satisfying this year."

Astros 1, Dodgers 0

James Rodney Richard bested Doug Rau with a six-hitter. Greg Gross tripled in the sixth and scored on Enos Cabell's bloop single for the game's only run. It was the first time Houston had beaten Los Angeles in their last nine meetings.

Giants 4, Reds 1

Gary Matthews belted a two-run homer and scored another run on Darrell Evans' single as San Francisco ended Cincinnati's winning streak at seven games. John Montefusco picked up his 11th victory with relief help from Randy Moffitt. Gary Nolan, 10-6, was the loser.

Phillies 7, Cubs 5

Mike Schmidt belted two home runs — Nos. 28 and 29 — and Tim McCarver hit his first of the season as Philadelphia overcame a 4-0 deficit. Seven of Schmidt's homers have come at Wrigley Field. Gene Garber, 7-2, won it with four innings of scoreless relief, and Joe Coleman, 0-5, was the loser.

Mets 4, Expos 0

Jerry Koonsman raised his record to 13-7 with a four-hitter and Jerry Grote knocked in two runs with a triple for New York. Koonsman, second only to Randy Jones in National League victories, won for the seventh time in his last eight decisions. Don Carrithers, 5-7, was the loser.

Pirates 2, Cardinals 1

Rennie Stennett scored on an infield grounder to give Pittsburgh its 12th-inning triumph. Stennett reached base on a fielder's choice, stole second, took third on Tommy Helms' single and scored on an infield grounder by Dave Parker. Pitcher Bob Forsch homered for the Cards.

"All I have to do is drop out early in one race and I go from first to fourth in the standings real quick," said Parsons, winner of two races so far this season.

The reason for the increased competition in 1976 is money. More of it—a lot more—is being offered to drivers who run the full 30-race NASCAR Grand National slate and compete for the championship. In recent years, only Petty and three or four others have done the full schedule.

"The level of competition is incredible," said Parsons. "And no wonder the champion this year will get $40,000 next year just for showing up at all the races. After I won in '73, I only got $14,000."

The $40,000 is on top of a bundle of points-fund money and other payoffs, besides race purses. The championship could easily mean $300,000 this year. Parsons' most serious competition seems to be from Yarborough, twice a runner-up but never a champion. Last week at Pocono, instead of giving up with an apparent blown engine midway through the race, Yarborough's crew changed the entire power plant in an incredible 32 minutes. Though many laps down, he was soon back on the track, piling up valuable points.

"We'd agreed before the race if we had any problems we'd change the engine—we're going for the championship," said Herb Nab, crew chief for Yarborough.

Lee Rose, UNC-Charlotte basketball coach and athletic director, said the conference "gives us some direction" as far as scheduling is concerned. "I don't think it will be the solution to all our problems, but I do think it's a springboard."

"It not only will give us 10 conference games a year once the round robin schedules are set up, but it will allow us to be more selective in non-conference scheduling. We won't have to sign for as many games in the desperation of just trying to fill the schedule."

Jenkins Still Thinks He Has Shot At Winning 20 Games This Season

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Ferguson Jenkins doesn't win 20 games every year anymore. But every other year will suit him just fine.

"It's possible to win 20," said Jenkins after he pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night. "I've got maybe 14 starts left, and I'm hoping anyhow."

Jenkins scattered seven hits in raising his record to 11-8, including victories in his last six decisions. He was backed by home runs from Fred Lynn and Cecil Cooper.

The 32-year-old right-hander used to be a charter member of the 20 victories club. But twice in the last three years Jenkins failed to meet the eligibility requirements.

Each time Jenkins doesn't win 20 games he seems to get traded. So it didn't look like his stay in Boston was going to be a long one when he was logging a 1-5 record on May 11 and a 5-8 mark on June 25.

But he hasn't lost since.

"I'm just trying to be consistent, throwing hard and keeping it around the plate," Jenkins said. "I've been in the groove the last few ballgames. I think it's because of our four-on rotation."

"I'm getting runs to work with. I have to take the bitter with the sweet. I just hope the bitter was at the beginning of the season."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Oakland A's blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0; the Kansas City Royals beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2; the Cleveland Indians stopped the Baltimore Orioles 3-0; the California Angels outscored the Texas Rangers 9-6, and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the New York Yankees 4-3, then lost the second game of their doubleheader, 7-2.

Brewers 4-2, Yankees 3-7

Catfish Hunter is another lodge brother in the 20-victories club, but he is in jeopardy of losing his membership key.

"I'm not happy at all with the way I've been pitching," said Hunter, a 20-game winner the past five years, whose record now is 12-11. "It's always just one inning that seems to hurt me."

The problem inning against the Brewers was the third and the problem batter was Sixto Lezcano, who smacked a two-run homer. Bill Travers, 13-8, tossed a five-hitter.

The Yankees bounced back in the second game, profiting from Chris Chambliss' two-run homer and two-run single.

Angels 6, Rangers 6

Even the last-place Angels are kicking the Rangers when they're down.

California pummeled four Texas pitchers for 17 hits, including four by Bruce Bochte and three by Dan Briggs. Bochte scored four runs and had two singles, a double and a triple.

The Angels' assault sent the reeling Rangers to their 22nd loss in the last 26 games.

A's 5, White Sox

Paul Mitchell, the A's prize in the Reggie Jackson deal, raised his record to 8-5 in smothering Chicago with a six-hitter. Mitchell, a rookie right-hander, struck out four and didn't walk a batter. Bert Campaneris contributed a two-run single to the A's attack.

Royals 4, Twins 2

The Twins dropped into third place, behind Oakland, by losing to Kansas City. But the AL West is really no place to be, unless you happen to be a Kansas City Royal.

Buck Martinez singled and doubled to drive in two runs in support of Al Fitzmorris, who improved his record to 13-7. Mark Littell nailed down the victory with 3 2-3 innings of relief to pick up his 11th save of the season.

Indians 3, Orioles 0

Rick Waits and Jim Palmer each pitched eight-hitters, but Waits' team, Cleveland, scored three runs. Waits, shelled from the mound early in his past two starts, struck out six and walked three in evening his record at 5-5.

Duane Kuiper had four hits and scored a pair of runs to pace the Indians, who moved ahead of Baltimore into second place, but still trail the front-running Yankees in the AL East by 11½ games.

Two Races For Benny Parsons

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Benny Parsons will be competing in two races simultaneously Sunday.

In one, he'll be trying to win the Talladega 500. And in the other, he'll be trying to stay on top of the season point standings.

The balding, 35-year-old former Detroit taxi driver and Grand National stock car champion in 1973, holds a tenuous lead after 18 races in the tightest, most competitive points battle on the circuit in years. Breathing down his neck are Cale Yarborough, Richard Petty and Bobby Allison, with a host of others not much further behind.

"All I have to do is drop out early in one race and I go from first to fourth in the standings real quick," said Parsons, winner of two races so far this season.

Chicago Will Choose Gilmore

NEW YORK (AP) — Artis Gilmore was the announced choice of the Chicago Bulls as the National Basketball Association held its dispersal draft of players today from the two American Basketball Association franchises left out when the two leagues merged.

The draft, conducted by long-distance telephone hookups from the NBA's New York headquarters, was scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., EDT. Chicago had the first pick and long ago decided on Gilmore, the 7-foot-2 center of the Kentucky Colonels.

The price tag just to obtain the rights to Gilmore was $1.1 million, set by a league committee.

Some $3 million is expected to be paid for the rights to the Kentucky and St. Louis players. Some of the money will be used by the four ABA clubs accepted by the NBA to indemnify the two that weren't. It also will be used partially for payments to the ABA Players Association.

Atlanta had the No. 2 pick and was expected to pick either Marvin Barnes, whose value was set at $500,000, or Moses Malone, $350,000.

Each team selecting a player will assume his ABA contract.

The draft was to last no more than three rounds and the 18 current NBA teams and the four ABA clubs included in the merger — the New York Nets, Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers and San Antonio Spurs — will pick by the inverse order of their won-loss percentages at the end of last season.

Among the other players available, with their price tags, are: Maurice Lucas $300,000; Ron Boone $250,000; Bird Averitt $125,000; Steve Green $100,000; Jan van Breda Kolff $60,000; Randy Denton and Wilbert Jones $50,000 each; Johnny Neumann $40,000; Allen Murphy $25,000; Freddie Lewis and Louie Dampier $20,000 apiece; and Mike D'Antoni, Mike Barr, Barry Parkhill, Jimmie Conner, Jim Baker and Ron Thomas, $15,000 each.

The complete order for the first round will be: Chicago, Atlanta, Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, New York Knicks, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Indiana, Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Antonio, Cleveland, New York City, Boston, Denver and Golden State.

Two Republicans Running For Lt. Governor's Office

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Two Republican state representatives who were booted out of office two years ago in the GOP debacle created by Watergate are now running for lieutenant governor.

Odell Payne of Greensboro was seeking his fourth two-year stint as a state representative when the bottom fell out. In the previous election, he said, he was one of the top vote getters.

Bill Hiatt of Mt. Airy was rejected by voters in his district, putting the brakes on his career after one term.

The GOP nominee will be selected Aug. 17 with the winner facing one of eight Democrats in that party's primary.

Payne is a 42-year-old businessman who farms as a hobby and began his working career as a high school baseball coach. He still enjoys baseball and laments his not being able to play more.

An earnest and slightly chubby man, Payne says his main business is development. His business ventures include a McLeansville shopping center, a KOA campground and a mobile home park.

"I think I understand the problems of the small businessman, the rural person, the farmer," he said in a recent interview.

Quiet spoken and the father of two, Payne is a Methodist and has a master's degree in education from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"I feel I can offer something to improve state government," he said, adding that he believes he could beat any of the Democrats running. He admits that it's nearly inevitable that Democrats control both houses of the General Assembly, but says he learned in his six years as a lawmaker how to get along with both parties.

Streamlining the legislature would be his first goal. He said he would begin appointing Senate committees right after the general election and would work to have all the local bills disposed of in the first four weeks of the session, freeing more time for consideration of the budget and other important bills.

"We need to set a schedule so we'll know how long we'll be there (during a session)," he said. By knowing when the session is supposed to end, lawmakers would be better able to spread out the workload so there wouldn't be a crush of bills passed on the last few days, he said.

A change in the budgeting process would also be sought by Payne. Now, he said, budget requests are presented as dollar amounts requested by an agency and the recommended appropriation by the Advisory Budget Committee.

Under his proposal, lawmakers would also have figures on how much had been appropriated to the agencies during previous years.

The governor should have a veto power and be able to succeed himself or serve one six-year term, he said, adding that the lieutenant governor should have more executive powers.

He supports the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, saying he can't believe some of the claims made about the ERA by some opponents.

Though he admits to some reservations, Payne says he supports the death penalty because he believes it deters serious crime. But, he said, the penalty should be imposed for few crimes.

If possible, he said, he would like to see the sales tax on food repealed. "I think we've got to face reality here. Where are you going to find the money (to make up for its revenues)?" he said.

The state income tax needs changing with the poor paying less and higher incomes paying more, he said, though he had no specific plans.

Hiatt, 44, has spent the last 19 years teaching school, and for 14 years he's taught carpentry in the Surry County vocational education program. A father of five girls, Hiatt is a Mormon and a graduate of Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

Education and crime are two issues Hiatt is quick to discuss. His stand on issues reflects his conservative beliefs, though his appearance is slightly mod with his neatly trimmed mustache and blown-dry styled hair reaching over his ears.

Calling for prayer and Bible reading in public schools, a Hiatt position paper said, "The absence of prayer in our schools has had its effect not only upon education, but on our entire social and moral life."

Education, he said, "is one of the most important functions of government." He would prefer the state Board of Education be elected rather than appointed and the superintendent of public instruction be appointed by the board rather than elected.

Every teacher should be required to take courses so they would be able to teach basic reading skills because many high school students now cannot read," he said. He called new math "a total failure."

Saying that people are concerned about crime, Hiatt said capital punishment would deter crime and that the governor should call a special legislative session to restore the death penalty.

"There needs to be some consistency in the application of punishment," he said, but added that judges must have some discretion. Trials within 90 days of arrest would also help cut crime, he said.

"I think our parole system should be revised," he said, calling for a law requiring a felon to serve a third of his sentence on first offense, two thirds on second offense and all of the sentence on any additional conviction.

Governmental growth must be stemmed, he said. "We'll never be able to ease the (tax) burden on people if we allow it to continue to grow," he said.

He opposes the ERA, claiming it would deprive women of important advantages in law such as Social Security.

Though he said it isn't fair, Hiatt said he does not believe the sales tax on food will be repealed. "The real solution to our tax problems is to appoint a blue ribbon study commission," he said.

BENDING FOR SEATTLE — American Motors Corp. announced Tuesday that its subsidiary, AM General, had been awarded a $21.3-million contract to produce the first U.S. fleet of articulated diesel buses that will be delivered to the metropolitan Seattle transit authority beginning in late 1977. Articulated buses have been widely used throughout Europe for some years, but so far as can be determined none are in use in the United States. (AP Wirephoto)

Guidelines For Public Works Money Available

Municipalities and counties wishing to apply for funds under the recently enacted Public Works legislation should begin now to prepare their projects according to the Mid-East Commission.

The Public Works Employment Act of 1976, resulting from a Congressional override of a presidential veto, provides funds to generate public works construction and to relieve recessionary effects on local governments.

Nearly $4 billion is available under the Act, to be distributed under three titles.

Title I offers $2 billion in grants for initiation and completion of public works projects; such as libraries, town halls, police and fire stations, streets, roads and recreational facilities. The Economic Development Administration will handle the Title I program, which funds projects at 100 per cent of the project costs.

Planning funds are also available through Title I to be used in the completion of plans, specifications and estimates for public works projects.

Antirecessionary grants are available under Title II on a quarterly basis for the maintenance of basic local budget-related activities, in coordination with federal economic recovery efforts.

Maintaining the continuity of basic services in towns and counties is of prime importance and is specifically addressed through Title II grants.

One-third of the actual payments will be divided among eligible state governments. The remaining two-thirds will be allocated to local governments according to a formula based on the local unemployment rate in excess of 4.5 per cent and the amount of general revenue sharing received during fiscal year 1976.

Title III authorizes an additional $700 million for wastewater treatment construction. Under this title, North Carolina will receive an extra allocation of $47,166,500.

Guidelines for applications will be available no later than August 23 and can be obtained from the Mid-East Commission, P.O. Box 1218, Washington, N.C.

Localities that plan to apply for funds under any of the three titles, can contact the Commission's Local Government Coordination staff at the Seaboard Building on Market Street, Washington, or call 946-8043, for aid in making applications.

Four Stolen Buses Found

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Four 40-passenger buses stolen in New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania have been recovered in Eastern North Carolina's Robeson County, the FBI announced Wednesday.

It said they had been stolen in this year and last year from the Tri-City Coach Lines in Bethlehem, Pa.; Hausman Bus Sales of Pitman, N.J., and in Bellmawr, N.J., and Wilmington, Del.

Edgar N. Best, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said it is anticipated that other buses, bus engines and bus transmissions will be recovered as a result of a continuing investigation.

No arrests have been made, Best said. But information concerning the thefts, transportation, seizures and individuals allegedly involved will be presented before a federal grand jury in the near future, he added.

He said FBI offices in Chicago, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and South Carolina are helping in the investigation.

Another Jordan In Lt. Governor Race

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — He's campaigning as "the Man from Saxapahaw" and his banners carry the slogan: "A Name You Can Trust."

In a political sense, the name Jordan stimulates recollections of the late B. Everette Jordan, a wealthy textileman who led a long, distinguished and varied political career which included 15 years in the U.S. Senate.

The Jordan this time is John M., the son of the senator. Jordan is frank about using his name in hopes of defeating seven other candidates for Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. There are two Republicans in the Aug. 17 primary.

Now ending a term as state representative, his first political office, Jordan, 40, says he is using his father's list of supporters. Some of them are working for him while others have pledged their votes, Jordan said.

He compared himself to former Gov. Bob Scott who 12 years ago ran for lieutenant governor as a political novice but the son of a former senator.

While leaving himself room to change his mind, Jordan said his ultimate political ambition is to be a U.S. senator.

Saxapahaw is in Alamance County. Jordan says he calls himself the man from Saxapahaw so voters won't think he's the John Jordan of Raleigh who ran against Scott for lieutenant governor.

"In advertising or in publicity, you try to do something that will catch the imagination of the public," he said of the slogan. There's another benefit: "It doesn't tie you down to any specific region" because most people don't know where it is," he said.

Thanks to his father's files, "We think we've got the best organization going," he said, adding that he jumped in the race last summer while many others were still undecided. He has organizations in about 80 counties, he said.

"Basically, everything we do will be in the last two weeks, really the last week," the silver haired candidate said peering through his lightly smoked gold rimmed glasses. The late blitz will be opened by a massive mailing of brochures eight days before the voting.

Jordan is confident of his strategy. "Geographically I'm in the best shape because I'm smack in the middle of the people," he said, adding that he plans to come in second or third in nearly every county, assuring him a place in a runoff.

His campaign is more one of strategy than of issues. He says quite candidly that he believes most voters are watching the gubernatorial contest and playing little attention to the No. 2 spot.

Controlled growth in the number of teachers and state workers is Jordan's top campaign issue. His plan, he says, would eventually save the state $1.2 billion a year and still give state employees regular pay raises.

State employment, by his plan, would not be allowed to increase any faster than the state's population. Projections are that the population will grow 11.9 per cent in the next 10 years, allying 158,145 state employees to be added. The number of workers would increase 201,532 without controls based on experience, he said.

Also, he said the plan would allow salaries to increase at the rate of 131 per cent in 10 years and still save the "Basically my thrust is curbing excessive government controls over the lives and pocketbooks of our citizens. I'm saying let's slow down bureaucracy," Jordan said.

Jordan, is a textile mill vice president who lives with his wife and four children on a 300-acre farm raising hay and about 80 cattle. Like his father, Jordan has devoted most of his life to Boy Scout work and his son, Mac, is now a Star scout.

Though he is wrapped up in the campaign, he says he would prefer to have his main office in Saxapahaw rather than Raleigh. Political realities require a Raleigh headquarters, he said.

During a recent interview, he noted that his wife wears a pair of campaign buttons as earrings, then urged his secretary to do the same.

"We work harder than the rest of them (candidates), and this is what's going to win," he said.

Jordan opposes repeal of the sales tax on food. "Basically, I'd say the majority of the people don't want to. Ordinary people...say this is the only tax that some people pay. Everyone should contribute something to their government," he said.

On the other hand, Jordan said he would not oppose an overall cut in the sales tax because it would be simple.

By repealing just the food tax, "The state would lose the tax but the customer would pay for the added clerical help to administer the collection of taxes. I don't see it as helping anybody; it's just more red tape, more paperwork," he said.

Jordan favors repeal of the state's inventory tax on business. It should be done over a period of years and the loss of revenue to local governments could be compensated through the $1.2 billion he says his limiting of bureaucracy would save.

The $120 sales tax limit should be raised for luxury items such as boats and expensive cars, he said. But, "I'm basically, totally against raising taxes. I just don't think we need to."

Lower income citizens should get a tax break, he said. He cosponsored a bill in the legislature that would allow tax credits up to $500 for the poor.

Turks Suspect Controls Have Turned Off The Heroin Supply

By EMEL ANIL
Associated Press Writer
AFYON, Turkey (AP) — Turkish officials believe they have cut off the Turkish heroin supply to the underworld through a two-year-old program controlling the cultivation of poppies.

United Nations drug control officials here are inclined to agree, saying the program "definitely works" and that they intend to continue U.N. financial support for it.

The poppy, source of such drugs as heroin and morphine, has been grown on the arid central Anatolian steppes for 2,000 years. This summer it is once again ripe for harvest in Afyon province and six other provinces where cultivation is permitted under license.

Poppy cultivation was banned in Turkey in 1972 by an interim military government, under strong American pressure. At the time, the United States claimed that 80 per cent of the heroin reaching American addicts originated in Turkish poppy fields, reaching America through the "French Connection" via Marseilles.

With the return to power of an elected government, Turkey resumed poppy cultivation in 1974. Before doing so, however, Turkish officials went to the U.N. agencies involved in prevention of drug abuse, asking for advice and funds to finance an effective control system to prevent diversion of opium poppy production into smugglers' hands.

U.N. experts counseled that Turkey adopt the "straw process" method of harvesting, which forbids the farmer to cut the poppy pods for the extraction of the opium gum inside. Heroin is processed from the opium gum; therefore no gum, no heroin. Turkey agreed to the suggestion.

"This was a courageous decision, even a gamble" says

Prof. Paul Reuter, head of the U.N. International Narcotics Control Board. "The system had never been tried before outside of the Communist Bloc, where it is used in Poland and the Soviet Union."

"It was also a risky decision because the system had never been applied on such a large scale in the past," adds his colleague, Gilbertus de Beus of the U.N. Fund for Drug Abuse Control.

The two U.N. officials recently visited Turkish poppy fields and storage facilities here and talked to farmers and officials in charge of the control program.

"Our conclusion is that the system definitely works. We therefore feel fully justified to continue our support," says de Beus, who holds the purse strings on U.N. financial support.

Since 1974, the U.N. fund has provided about $4 million in aid for the purchase of 104 vehicles to patrol the poppy fields, telecommunications equipment and storage facilities.

For the coming year, the fund has pledged $2.5 million to be used primarily to buy two reconnaissance planes. One of the planes is to be equipped with a special camera to photograph the fields. The resultant pictures are to be compared with a map of officially licensed fields for detection of illicit plantings.

About 4,000 military and civilian police are involved in canvassing the poppy fields after their bloom in spring to the end of harvest in August, officials say.

Fireworks Factory Raided And Seized

MARION, N.C. (AP) — McDowell County sheriff's deputies got a tip on an illegal fireworks factory and staked out the operation for a week. It was spread through eight buildings on a 35-acre farm off U.S. 70 near the Burke County line.

They raided it Monday and confiscated 195,000 firecrackers, several barrels of explosives, and machines used to make fireworks.

Sheriff J. H. Haynes estimated that about $750,000 worth of supplies and equipment were confiscated. He said records and evidence in the buildings indicated the factory had been in operation for more than a year, and that as many as 45 persons had worked there in two shifts.

The sheriff has called in Army explosives experts to tell him what to do with the fireworks and the material for making them.

Four persons were taken into custody during the raid. But John Westra, special agent in charge of the U.S. Treasury's Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division in North Carolina, said Wednesday that no arrests had been made.

"We've questioned some people and we anticipate arrests. We're going to make a federal case out of it," Westra said. He said some persons may be charged with making or dealing in explosives without a license, which carried a sentence of up to 10 years and a fine of up to $10,000.

Westra said the raid was not publicized until Wednesday so agents could look into where the fireworks were being shipped. He gave no destinations.

Colen Flack, an ATF agent who inspected the operation, said there were explosives in the buildings that could have gone off if mixed in the wrong combinations.

"It's a miracle that a tragedy didn't occur before law enforcement officials made this discovery," he said.

Birth of a ballpark: Kingdome under construction.

Seattle's new stadium dwarfs building crews and equipment.

KINGDOME

Seattle's Kingdome is open. Site squabbles, money problems and construction delays didn't defeat the project which has finally materialized as the city's newest object of civic pride—officially denominated King County Domed Stadium. Construction started in 1972. The final cost was around $67 million for a striking, circular addition to the cityscape, set on the southern edge of the downtown business district. The multipurpose stadium, home for Seattle's new baseball and football teams, seats 60,000 for the baseball and 65,000 for the football games, dazzling spectators with a gigantic scoreboard featuring a 50- by 60-foot television screen for flashing instant replays, pictures of players and so on.

Photographed by Barry Sweet.

In goes the seating—for up to 65,000 persons.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 6, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you are able to work out matters pertaining to books, writing, contracts, or reports. But be careful where charm or emotional matters are concerned since disappointments can abound in this direction.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Don't waste your time today, but get busy at all that work that is ahead of you. Take needed health treatments. Don't neglect a minor ailment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Take time to make yourself look more attractive and then be of assistance to good friends who are having troubles. Don't be extravagant where pleasure is concerned. Moderation is keyword.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make home more functional and be of more help to family ties with their problems. Keep business affairs in good order.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find a better way to raise the level of your work and your income, and don't be afraid of needed changes. Don't overspend.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being with practical persons is wise since you can better your own situation also. Don't try to change any contracts made. Arguing with stubborn persons could lead to trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make a plan early that will enable you to realize your goals more easily. Go after the practical. Show you are a person of ambition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to clear up unfinished tasks so you have more time for action next week. Avoid one who depresses you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Cooperate more with associates and get much accomplished. Forget whatever is of a fun nature and concentrate only on the serious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to gain the favor of higher-ups by being meticulous in handling duties assigned to you. Avoid one who is extravagant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to do some important research work before you can make that new project work out properly. Contact one with a background different from your own to obtain valuable assistance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study obligations well and take care of the most important ones without further delay. Try not to irritate a loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Clear up any differences you have with any partners and come to a better understanding. Avoid one who is unreasonable now.

Opening lead: ?

Here's your chance to decide how you would fare in world championship competition. Study the full layout and decide whether you would rather declare or defend four spades doubled. Naturally, you assume that you will receive the best defense and top dummy play.

This contract was reached at a number of tables during the 5th World Team Olympiad, and many players found the lie of the cards too much for them. But on the actual layout, the contract can always be made.

It seems that a trump lead might be best, for this prevents declarer from ruffing any club losers in dummy. But that gives up a trump trick, and declarer can get rid of two of his clubs—one by taking the diamond finesse and one on the king of hearts. So the only tricks for the defense will be two trumps and one club.

Here's how Billy Eisenberg of Los Angeles handled the hand after a heart lead. He won the ace and led a trump! If East tries to stop club ruffs by drawing trumps, we get back to the line above. In actual play, West won the spade and returned a heart. Declarer took a club discard and now demonstrated that he didn't even need the diamond finesse! He simply ruffed two clubs in dummy, using a diamond ruff as a reentry to his hand, and ended up losing only three trump tricks.

With a diamond lead, declarer must take the finesse, cross to his hand with the ace of hearts and lead a trump. We are once again back to the original variation.

Observe that the key play in all these lines is for declarer to lead a trump towards dummy early in the play. If he fails to do so, East can score a club overruff with the ten of spades, and declarer will end up losing four trump tricks for down one.

Distortion In Recording

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — An expert on recorded sound says that what is heard on many stereophonic records today is a distortion of performances which never actually took place.

"Stereo is an illusion," says Syracuse University Professor Walter L. Welch. "There is no need for it to be a misleading one. We are giving the public a quality of sound which is often more glorious than could be obtained in a live performance but which has been put together by the genius of tape editors who make one performance out of many."

Welch questions whether the recording industry has reached a point of absurdity in its pressing for quadrasonic listening equipment.

"Quadrasonics is merely a reductio ad absurdum," he said. "We're trying to have more of it and make it a bigger 'thrill.'"

"If you're going to go multiphonic," he said, "the way is 3-5-7, not 2-4-6. If you're honestly attempting to re-create a performance, where the featured vocalist is at the center of the stage, the recorded sound of that voice or instrument should reach you from the center speaker, not from two or more sides."

Welch noted most country and rock bands carry their own amplification equipment with them on tour, and thus the student accepts this as the norm when he listens to a record, often turning the volume up to the artificial level, risking danger to his hearing.

GOIN' FISHIN' — What could be better on a hot August afternoon than heading for the old fishing hole. Even if you don't catch anything, you can always forget the fishing and take a dip instead. Beach Boys To Stir Memories

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Beach Boys. Ah, the memories. Sun, surf, high school. The rumbling '55 Chevy whose rear-view mirror always sported huge white angora dice knitted by a girl named Bobbi.

California music memories. And such is on tap again tonight for those tuning in "The Beach Boys," a one-hour special starring the lads who created what press agents still call "the surfin' sound."

It's on NBC, which screened it in advance here. Alas, we missed 15 minutes of it, having been delayed by a one-mile-an-hour headwind created by 300,000 cars up ahead on the freeway.

But what we saw of "The Beach Boys" convinced us it should be given a Grade-A Nifty rating. It's not another non-stop TV concert of flashing lights, leaping troubadours and addled crowds.

Nope, it's an imaginative blend of surreal comedy, quick looks at the private lives and thoughts of the five Beach Boys, mullings of various California cats and assorted happenings, all wrapped around the music and sights of a Beach Boys concert held near here in July.

It's an impressionistic show, intended to create the feel of the easy-going California lifestyle that was part and parcel of Beach Boys music in the early 1960s and still is, to a certain extent.

Sometimes it's simple stuff, a rendition of "Same Song" at a Baptist church in suburban Compton. And then, there's the other kind of stuff.

Like a sun-tanned kid saying "one of the ultimate things is riding a pool" as a pal skateboards around an empty swimming pool. The scene leads to a shot of a young surfer, riding a pee-wee Banzai Pipeline wave at the beach as we hear the Beach Boys sing "Sloop John B."

We also see Brian Wilson, the main brain of the Beach Boys, the guy who dropped out for three years to put his head in order" lying in bed (a running gag) explaining his theory of writing songs.

We later see him again, being hauled out of bed by two California Highway Patrol troopers, members of the "surf squad" who cite him for "failing to surf" and to do same on a state beach.

They whisk him to the beach in a patrol car with siren blaring, lights flashing, a surfboard atop the car as "Surfin' U.S.A.," a Beach Boys biggie, goes full tilt in the background. This might strike a few viewers as weird; but it makes for enjoyable looking and listening.

Much credit for the enjoys can go to producer Lorne Michaels, on summer leave from NBC's "Saturday Night" caper. He is one of the four writers who helped cook up tonight's proceedings.

Musicians From U.S. Finding Work In Brazil

By MARY LENZ

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — At the beginning of 1975 there were two Americans playing in the Brazilian Symphony Orchestra.

Today there are nine. The young musicians say it is easier for them to get jobs in foreign countries, such as Brazil, than in the United States, a country they say provides the best musical education in the world.

"The United States trains the best musicians, then doesn't give them a place to play," said David Johnson, 24, a tympianist who studied at the New England Conservatory of Music.

"There are loads and loads of fine musicians driving taxi cabs in New York and Boston," said Tom Tittle, 29, a French horn player from Brookings, S.D.

In Rio, Tittle said, "you're getting almost the same amount of performance experience you would in the Chicago Symphony — the standard repertoire," but he added that the chances of a recent conservatory graduate getting a job with an important American orchestra are "very slim."

Charles Mitchell, a 25-year-old St. Louis, Mo., cellist who graduated from the Cleveland Institute of Music, said he came to Rio because "I know the job situation in the United States. I had lots of friends who were auditioning and not getting jobs. Competition is very, very stiff."

Johnson, a native of Fayetteville, Ark., explained that "there are 30 orchestras in the United States where you can make a living." But each orchestra has only one tympianist, which means it is seldom that a new one is hired. "There may be one opening per year and 200 people who apply for it," he said.

Johnson said string players have an easier time finding jobs and that teaching jobs are easier to find than orchestra jobs. But more graduate musicians who actually want to perform are going out of the country, especially to Germany.

"The job situation in the United States is worse every year," Johnson added.

Tittle, who has a master's degree from the New England Conservatory, came to Rio in April 1975. He was one of three members of his graduating class to find a performing job, despite the fact that the conservatory is one of the best music schools in the country.

Faced with "fighting to get a job as third horn in some grimy industrial city in the northeastern United States and coming to Rio de Janeiro as first horn," Tittle said he made the obvious choice.

"But nobody in Boston or New York knows about the solos you get to play and you have the feeling that you're out of touch with the center of musical activity, that you're losing touch with your colleagues," he said.

Musicians interviewed said living in a foreign country can have its romantic and exciting moments. But the frustrations of coping with another culture and trying to make contacts to set up their own concerts, organize small performing groups or play freelance are also great.

"I think most of the Americans would rather be playing in their own country," Johnson said.

Next Governor Not Committed Environmentalist

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Whoever he is, North Carolina's next governor will not be a committed environmentalist.

Interviews with all seven of the major gubernatorial candidates found that all of them profess a regard for the environment, but all of them talk more willingly about the need for economic growth.

One environmental question on which the next governor will probably be tested is the land use management concept. North Carolina's Coastal Area Management program is getting underway. It gives a state commission authority to regulate or prohibit development in "areas of environmental concern."

The coastal act requires counties in the coastal area to develop land use plans and offers them opportunities to participate in the regulatory process. It was passed in 1974 over the objections of many coastal legislators.

The General Assembly never dealt with a similar act for the mountain region. In 1977, that bill will be on the agenda and there will likely be a similar measure that extends the principle to Piedmont areas or else replaces all three area bills with a single, statewide program.

Two gubernatorial candidates, Thomas Strickland and Edward O'Herron, indicated that they would oppose such legislation if they were elected. Both are Democrats.

"Definitely, I favor planning, but I don't want to see Washington forcing zoning standards on us or Raleigh forcing it on the counties," O'Herron said.

"I wouldn't advocate extension of land use planning. It's going too far to create what, in effect, is a new layer of government that goes out and designates areas of environmental concern without a vote of the people," said Strickland.

Both he and O'Herron indicated that their appointments to the boards and commissions which regulate the environment would reflect their opposition to state control over land use.

Li. Gov. Jim Hunt has a different approach. Hunt thinks the state should set guidelines and require the counties to plan and designate areas of environmental concern. But he thinks control should be left at the local level.

Hunt thinks that if the coastal counties are regulated, "everyone should be fed from the same spoon."

The three Republican candidates agree that land use planning and control should be extended statewide, but they are unclear or undecided about how much control should be vested in the state and how much in local government.

Flaherty said the coastal act "was an exciting concept. But we don't know yet whether it gives local governments the input they need, whether it's going to have the success we must have to clean up the environment, and whether it's going to allow for proper development of our resources; let's give it sufficient time, modify it, and bring it to other places in the states."

Jacob Alexander said the extension of the coastal management concept to the counties was "fine" with him, "but unless we're very careful, those who administer the program could at some time down the road become land dictators."

Alexander said he favored using and requiring local input into the planning and regulatory process, but he was unsure how to mesh that with his desire for "an overall framework."

Coy Privette said he has had reservations about land use planning, but believes that something has to be done because, "you've got some elements that would stick a Holiday Inn on the Appalachian Trail."

"I wish local governments would take the initiative. Because if they don't, the state's going to come in or the federal government's going to come in. We should say to local government, either you're going to do it or the state or federal government's going to do it."

Ironically, the only candidate who favors the coastal management concept for the whole state without major changes is the candidate who lives in the coastal area, Democrat George Wood.

"If you're going to have it in one part of the state, you ought to have it in all parts," said Wood, a farmer from Camden County, on Albemarle Sound.

Wood was asked if he thought the farmer's ideal of living in harmony with nature requires regulation of fragile lands by a state commission.

"Yeah. I think we've got to have control over how we use our natural resources. We've got to do that. Up until this point, I think the coastal act has been effective," he replied.

Wood also thinks the state will probably have to spend more money to acquire parkland, a program first started on an appreciable scale in 1973. He is the only candidate who says higher expenditures will be necessary.

Flaherty thinks the state can acquire parkland by selling some of the acreage it now owns back to local governments.

For example, he cites the thousands of acres owned by the state near Butler in Durham County, where the state operates a complex of hospitals and other institutions.

None of the other candidates are committed on the parkland question.

On three issues of importance to environmentalists, all seven of the candidates side with development interests.

They favor continuing use of nuclear power, development of oil reserves off the coast, if they are there, and would not block efforts to locate a deep-water oil port and refinery complex off North Carolina's coast.

NameChange For Airport

KINSTON — Jim Hodges, chairman of the Airport Commission said this morning that the name of Stallings Field may be changed to reflect the airport's designation as a regional facility.

"We haven't gotten started on it really," he said, "as far as wheels that would crank out a new name."

Hodges indicated that any name change probably would occur at the time the new terminal building at the airport is dedicated. He noted that site preparation for the $1.3 building has just begun, and that completion of the terminal is scheduled for January 1978.

Hodges said the matter was discussed at a meeting of the commission last week at which time members were reminded of agreements with neighboring cities who supported the location of the regional facility in Kinston. The commission was thus urged to regionalize the facilities name, Hodges added.

Finally Bags Big Rattler

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Dean Davis likes to hunt. But for the last three years his biggest attraction was not deer but a huge rattlesnake he had named Old Jake.

He finally got the five-foot snake Monday. He found him under brush deep in the woods of upper Cleveland County.

Old Jake was coiled near enough to strike. But he didn't. Davis says Jake "waited until he thought he had me faked out. He started moving away from me."

Then Davis hit Jake on the back of the head with a maple stick.

And Old Jake is headed for the taxidermist.

Davis, who lives in nearby Lawndale and is a foreman for a heating and air conditioning company in Shelby, thinks Jake had a mate who still stalks the area. But Davis says his snake-hunting days are over for now.

He first spotted Old Jake while hunting deer in 1973. He heard a rustling in the undergrowth and watched "an oddity, such a big snake" crawl across the road. That sighting led Davis to start a hide-and-seek contest with a snake.

After killing the reptile, he took it home and his sons put it on ice in a plastic bag.

When his sons left the room, they locked the door behind them.

Attended Water Works School

Willie Briley, Mendle Wayne Floyd, Kelly Patton and Ronald Sessoms of Greenville attended the 37th annual Water Works Operator's School held last week in Raleigh.

The purpose of the school is to improve the general level of water plant operation in North Carolina.

Operators who attend this school and pass the examination meet the certification law of the state.
