

State Of Emergency For Romania After Quake

By RICHARD C. GROSS
BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — Romania declared a state of emergency Saturday amidst the ruin of an earthquake that shook eastern Europe from Moscow to the Mediterranean, killing more than 1,000 persons under high rise apartment buildings that collapsed like "houses of cards."

Unofficial reports said at least 1,000 persons were dead and the count could go higher. All hospitals were full and schools were opened to accommodate the injured. Troops and volunteers were called out to search for bodies along the wide boulevards that adorn the capital.

The quake measured 7.2 on the Richter scale and rattled walls across the breadth of Eastern Europe, shaking capital cities from Rome to Moscow. Its epicenter was in Romania.

One Briton in Bucharest, the center of the disaster, said that after the earth stopped moving he and a friend could hear the sound of buildings "crashing to the ground. The air was full of screams and dogs barking, then it all went quiet."

The massive quake struck at about 9:30 p.m. local time Friday in Bucharest and diplomats estimated a death toll running into the hundreds with scores of victims still buried under the rubble of high rise apartment buildings which collapsed as the earth buckled beneath them.

Neighboring Bulgaria reported 20 persons killed, 165 injured and about 60 buildings completely destroyed.

Johann Todt, a West German survivor of the quake, said buildings in Bucharest "collapsed like houses of cards. I never saw such terrible things in my life."

Despina Tsouloudi, a Greek tourist in Romania, said the quake shook the train on which she was traveling in Romania off the tracks.

An East German news agency report said the industrial town of Ploesti, an oil-refining center 40 miles north of Bucharest had been flattened.

President Nicolae Ceausescu cut short a state visit to Nigeria and declared a state of emergency.

American medical student Jeffrey Lipper, 20, of New York City, said he saw "at least 100 dead" in one hospital that he visited to offer aid.

"Everything was shaking, moving. All the walls were moving," Lipper said.

Rodica Kessler, a telephone operator who walked through a devastated section of the capital, said, "I can't believe this happened. A lot of buildings don't exist now. I saw hands, I saw legs, I saw heads. I saw very many parts of bodies behind the buildings that are down now."

A U.S. diplomat said a complex of 6-story apartment buildings stretching for 10 blocks was toppled.

Authorities organized the transport of residents from downtown Bucharest to the outskirts and parks, away from weakened buildings that might cave in during an aftershock.

A government spokesman said Bucharest suffered the worst damage, but many other cities, including Craiova and Buzau southeast of the capital, reported damage.

The severe quake also jolted the Moscow area, Yugoslavia, western Turkey, northern Greece and Italy. Residents in Moscow, Rome, Salonica and other cities in the broad path of the tremor raced into the streets, some in panic.

Damages Inflicted By Wind Storm On Friday

High winds swept eastern North Carolina Friday afternoon, resulting in property damage in several counties.

Bruce Dunn, who lives in a mobile home located on the Kenneth Dews farm near Winterville, said his trailer overturned at about 5 p.m. Friday.

"It sounded like wind at first and then it died down," he said.

"The mobile home shook and then turned over and over. I crawled out from the bathroom area where I'd just finished my shower."

Dunn was unhurt in the incident.

According to Kenneth Dews, owner of the farm, other buildings on the farm were destroyed, and he estimated damage at $40,000.

A mobile home owned by Sam Cecil on rural road 1124 was also totally destroyed by the winds. Barns owned by H. L. Bowen were damaged also, for a total of $7,000 in damages.

The Pitt County Sheriff's department reported no other known property damage.

Winds were measured at the Pitt-Greenville Airport at gusting up to 30 knots. The wind storm lasted only two to three minutes. Winds Saturday were from the southwest at four to seven knots.

Damages were more severe extensive in Wayne County, where a tornado touched down at 3:30 p.m. in the northwest part of the county.

A woman was treated at Wayne Memorial Hospital for head and hand injuries received in the wind storm.

Two mobile homes, a tobacco barn and part of a house were destroyed by the storm, and several other trailers were damaged by the high winds.

Some damage was reported in Greene County, where tobacco barns were damaged by the storm.

Damage was minimal elsewhere in the eastern part of the state.

Two Mile High Storm Whips Across Plains

By PETER M. KELLY
DENVER (UPI) — Powered by hurricane-force winds, the dust storms came out of the northwest, two-miles high and chocolate brown, ripping wheat from farmland furrows and whipping wire fences across country roads throughout the dust-stricken high plains.

Ysabel Orozco's mail truck was blown into a ditch outside

Garden City, Kan., and he had to call on his citizen's band radio for help. Juanita Eiring held on to a rope to find her way from her eastern Colorado farmhouse to her barn.

"I've never seen a wind like that," said Clyde Richardson at Cheyenne Wells, Colo. "There were fences across roads. It was dark. It never lightened up. There were tumbleweeds piled up 15-feet on the courthouse lawn."

The dust storms, pushed by winds reaching 100 miles per hour, were a frightening reminder of the 1930s. They were caused by a 24-state drought extending from the Great Lakes south to Oklahoma and west through the cowboy states and the nation's bread-basket to the shores of California.

The drought has dried up 160 of Minnesota's 15, lakes and 1,000 hand-dug wells as well as western reservoirs. Ski resorts in the Rockies have closed for lack of snow and states have hired cloud seeders to augment the mountains snowpack. In Seattle, a city superintendent urged families shower together to save water.

Summer blackouts are expected in California when demands for water to cool homes and irrigate crops exceed supplies. The drought has killed livestock on the Navajo Indian reservation in Arizona, Utah and New Mexico.

In the Oklahoma Panhandle, farmer Joe Morris dug holes for fence posts four feet deep into his sandlike soil and said there was no subsoil moisture.

"It's about as dry right now as it was during the 1930s," Morris reported.

Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado, in recommendations on ways to save water, suggested housewives wash dishes in used bath water. At Altamont, Kan., city officials estimated water supplies would run out in 60 days without rain.

Drought losses in Colorado by Jan. 1 were $86 million, according to Agriculture Commissioner J. Evan Goulding. President Carter has declared a drought emergency in some states and, at the urging of western governors, set up a special drought council to aid affected states.

The drought as yet is not as bad as the 1930s when bankrupt farmers drove tractors to fence lines and walked away in disgust, according to officials. But crop experts say the problem could explode into crisis proportions by summer if the West remains dry.

"Without moisture, there is going to be quite a disaster," said wheat farmer Art Fritton, 69, of Cheyenne Wells who survived Depression dust bowl days. "The country looks terrible right now."

SEARCH DEBRIS — Debris lies strewn in the streets in downtown Bucharest Saturday as people search through ruins caused by heavy earthquake Friday night. Western sources estimated

Saturday night that at least 2,000 and possibly 3,000 persons died in the Romanian capital as a result of the tremors that shook Eastern Europe. (AP Wirephoto)

Phone-In A Success

By DAVID NAGY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter spent two hours listening to America on the telephone Saturday, taking some scoldings and some tributes, commiserating with job-seekers and taxpayers, the elderly and the ill in a free-wheeling exercise in democracy.

He sketched out some policy points, too, saying that he will soon try to make relations with Cuba more normal and he had no intentions of extending any Vietnam era pardons to others not included in his initial program.

But much of the unprecedented radio phone-in program — called "Ask President Carter" — was an outpouring of the problems, pains and fears of citizens looking for Presidential help.

Some, like the woman whose father is dying of cancer without benefit of an outlawed pain-killer, were poignant. Some were trivial. All got his response or his promise that an expert in the field would call them Monday.

The President in turn warmed to the "open Presidency" format and let listeners in on a few personal tidbits about himself: He broke a collarbone in Navy karate training, for example, and his favorite way of relaxing is to walk in the woods "holding hands with my wife" and looking for arrowheads.

He also told one critical caller from Maryland the Carters "are not mooching off the American taxpayer" by living in the White House, defended the integrity of his unemployed son, Chip, and said he's too old now to take a trip into space with the astronauts.

Forty-two questions got through to the Oval Office in all during the two-hour afternoon show, and, at the end, Carter told Walter Cronkite, moderator of the CBS radio broadcast, "I liked it."

"The questions phoned here by the people all over the country are the kind you never get in a press conference ... My inclination would be to do this again in the future."

The phone calls, processed through a special toll-free number — 900-242-1611 — poured in from all points of the compass, from the Eastern seaboard to Hawaii, Michigan and Florida, and the voices came over in every accent of America. Carter first-named the youthful-sounding ones, called the older ones "ma'am" and "sir."

They called him "Mr. President," and many took time to say "God bless you" or to commend him on his performance. Some asked him to visit their homes.

It appeared they were no crank calls or obscurities to deal with. Broadcast of each conversation was tape-delayed for seven seconds and CBS had a vice president manning a silver cutoff button in a nearby control room to disconnect any such call. If he ever used it, the nationwide radio audience couldn't tell.

Although no hard news emerged from any of Carter's policy comments, he did make some clarifying points. Among them:

— His administration will press to get talks going with Cuba soon over hijacking agreements, fishing rights and increased visitation, and he "would not be adverse in the

Government Not A Legal Authority

WILMINGTON (AP) — This may come as a shock to President Carter and other federal officials, but the vast United States government is not a legal public authority—not to the North Carolina attorney general's office.

Asst. Atty. Gen. James Bullcock issued a formal ruling recently in which he said the federal government is not a public authority according to one of the state's general statutes. The formal opinion was issued to New Hanover County officials.

The opinion halted a land swap between New Hanover and the National Guard.

The National Guard wants to hold title to the land it occupies at New Hanover County airport, about 40 acres. The land is owned by the county and the Guard offered to swap it for another parcel.

Rejecting a trade, federal officials offered to donate the land to the county if the county would do the same.

County officials looked into the state law books to see if they had legal authority to donate the property.

Under one state law, a city or county may donate property to another city or county, a school

Two Tar Heels Talked

By United Press International
A Fayetteville man talked with President Carter Saturday afternoon about the Panama Canal Zone, and a Trinity resident was also one of only 42 Americans able to get through and talk with their President.

Johnny Jack Strickland, a 50-year-old civilian telephone technician at Fort Bragg, asked Carter about the status of negotiations over the Panama Canal, a place Strickland worked for 4½ years.

North Carolina's other caller to get through was a Mrs. Opal Dehart of Trinity in Randolph County. She could not be reached later for comment.

"He gave me a very good answer," Strickland said of Carter's explanation of the status of the talks and a history of the issue.

"I don't have any hang up on it," Carter told Strickland, a Kinston native who grew up in Wilson.

Carter said he was sure that after the year 2000, that the nation would be assured passage of its vessels and have guarantees of access through the canal.

"I hope we are not too lenient. We have a lot of dollars invested," Strickland told Carter.

"I'm very concerned about it," Strickland said later in an interview with UPI. "I think we should stay there like the 1903 treaty says, perpetually. We have lots of money invested there. If the taxpayers could see it, they'd understand why" the country should remain.

Carter, he said, had done "an outstanding job. I voted for him in November, and got all my friends to vote, too. I was really for him."

Strickland, whose wife is Panamanian, added he started out "100 per cent for him, so I

INSTANT FAME — Charles Stone, Dallas, Tex., letter carrier, talked to President Jimmy Carter Saturday afternoon by telephone from his Dallas apartment. He expressed desire to have something done about a tax break for single taxpayers. Charles said he spent 15 minutes dialing, 15 minutes of the phone ringing, and 15 minutes on hold. His number was taken in Washington, and the call returned to talk to the President. With Stone is his girlfriend, Vicki Hipskin of Dallas. While the photo was being made, Stone was talking to the local radio station. (AP Wirephoto)

Greenville Rescue Squad Installs New Officers

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pratt Williamson was installed as captain of the Greenville Rescue Squad Friday night, replacing Mickey Sawyer who served in the volunteer post for the past year.

Other officers installed at the dinner meeting included: First Lieutenant Les Causey, Second Lieutenant Teresa Stokes and Dammy Whitehurst, and Secretary-Treasurer Joe Burris.

The officers were installed by Deputy Commissioner of Insurance Elwood Inscow, head of the department's Fire and Rescue Services Division, which provides training for fire departments and rescue squads throughout North Carolina.

Inscow challenged the new officers to "maintain standards" and to "believe in what you are doing."

According to Inscow, "leadership is the most dependent of all the assets we have... dependant on good followers," and charged other squad members to be good followers, "for the betterment of the squad and the community you serve."

A veteran of 30 years in the fire and rescue service — first with the Rocky Mount Fire Department and for the past 18½ years with the Department of Insurance — told the group, "my first experience with rescue work was with the Greenville Rescue Squad," which he termed a leader in the field in this state.

The speaker said that the feeling many people have that others don't care anymore is not true of the fire and rescue service. "People become involved," in emergency service work, Inscow said, because of the opportunity to "be stepping stones for their fellowman."

The emergency services, he emphasized, which are composed primarily of volunteers in North Carolina, "provide that which the majority of communities cannot afford."

He pointed out that in 1962 when the Department of Insurance became involved in rescue training activities, there were 43 rescue squads in the

One Injury, $6,850 In Accident Damages Listed

Traffic accidents this weekend resulted in one injury and approximately $6,850 in property damages, according to Greenville police reports.

Robin Hammond of Kings' Row Apartments was injured Friday night in an accident at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Adams Drive. Police estimated damages at $2,500 to a car driven by Kathy Gay Myslinski of Jacksonville and $2,000 to a vehicle operated by Reginald Coleman Spain of Route 3, Greenville. No charges were made.

A collision Friday afternoon on Greenville Boulevard resulted in an estimated $800 in damages to a car driven by Jimmy Carraway of Snow Hill, and $100 in damages to one driven by Lowell Fulghum Liles, Sr. of 104-A Cherry Court. No charges were made.

No charges were made in connection with an accident Friday afternoon on Memorial Drive involving cars operated by Betsy Ellen Snipes of Hillsborough and Isaac Milton Basnight of Colerain. Police estimated damages at $800 to the Snipes vehicle and the Basnight car was undamaged.

An accident Friday afternoon at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Ione Street resulted in an estimated $450 in damages to a car driven by Dallas Jones of Route 3, Ayden, and $200 to a car operated by Lyndall Jerome Eaton of 609 Gooden Place. No charges were made.

Counterfeit Money Showing Up Locally

By The Associated Press
Counterfeit $20 and $100 bills, believed printed in New York, are cropping up in a number of Eastern North Carolina counties and three people have already been charged with passing them, federal agents said Friday.

Talmadge W. Bailey of Charlotte, special agent in charge of the U.S. Secret Service in North Carolina, said the bills are appearing all the way from New York to Florida.

"This is apparently people getting them in the northeast and passing them," he said. "These are people that know they are bad bills."

Counterfeit $20s have been reported recently in Henderson, Raleigh, Ahoskie, Sanford, Elizabeth City, Williamston and Washington, N.C.

Bailey said some bills have turned up in the Charlotte area too.

The best way to detect a counterfeit bill, he said, was to compare it to a real one of the same denomination and look for differences.

Bogus bills, he said, will often smudge a clean piece of paper, and their detailing isn't as sharp as the real thing.

For example, Bailey said that on a real $20 bill, the area behind Andrew Jackson's head should appear as tiny squares, but on a counterfeit bill the same area is likely to be solid.

3 Charged In Murder

GREENSBORO (AP) — Three Burlington youths have been charged with murder in the death of another Burlington youth whose body was found last Sunday in a Guilford County rock quarry.

Guilford County authorities said the victim, Nelson Robert Groce, 17, died from a bullet wound in the head. He also had been beaten, apparently with a tire tool, deputies said.

The sheriff's office said David Lee Jefferson, 21, Walter Glenn Loy, 18, and Donnie Lee Eastwood, 17, were arrested Friday and charged with murder.

Lt. Donnie Summers, a Guilford County Sheriff's Department detective, said the three were "acquaintances" of the victim. They were held without bond in the Guilford County jail.

Miner Expected To Be Freed

By DAVID A. MILNE

TOWER CITY, Pa. (UPI) — Rescue workers late Saturday broke through hard anthracite coal and prepared to pull trapped miner Ronald Adley from what could have been his grave in the Kocher Coal Co.'s Porter Tunnel on Brookside Mountain.

At 8:55 p.m., John Hope, a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, said it would take about another hour to bring Adley, 37, from the mine where he had been trapped for four days.

The granite-like coal that hampered earlier digging attempts gave way to softer coal toward the end of the rescue tunnel, according to Hope.

"The coal in this area is very, very hard," said John Shutack, federal mine safety official. "Adley said to one of the men that he hopes to be out by Sunday."

Two men were killed, three others seriously injured and eight trapped when a wall of water broke through the coal face 5,000 feet into the mine Tuesday at noon. It ripped out timbers and clogged passages with tons of debris.

Several hundred feet above the four-by-four foot rescue tunnel being excavated for Adley, a drilling team was cutting a 435-foot shaft into the heart of the mountain.

A camera and microphone will be dropped to try to locate the seven missing miners somewhere under the mountain.

But that effort has hit trouble too. The team had to strip about 20 feet of silt from the top of the mountain before it began drilling, then the saturated ground began collapsing into the eight-inch hole.

"We've had a lot of problems," said Al Roman, foreman of the drilling team. "We have to drop steel casing in to keep the walls from collapsing. Under better conditions, we could have had this hole done by tonight."

When the hole is completed, the television camera, microphone and a loud speaker will be dropped into one of the almost vertical chutes of the mine. Then the camera will pan the area in a search for the seven lost men.

Fifty-three members of the families of the trapped miners attended a rescue briefing Saturday morning, and state workers at the session said they were growing more and more tired and tense.

"None of them is getting much sleep," he said. "It's pretty hard to sleep at a time like this."

DRILL FOR LOST MEN — A Drilling crew uses a derrick to drill an exploratory hole to the mine shaft where seven missing miners are believed to be trapped Saturday morning. After the six-inch hole breaks through to the Kocher coal mine tunnel, sound and television equipment will be lowered in an attempt to detect life. (AP Wirephoto) state. Now there are over 400, Inscow said.

In 1955 when the Insurance Department's fire training program got under way, there were 250 fire departments. Now there are over 1,100.

Of the 1,500 emergency organizations in North Carolina Inscow pointed out, "there are only 23 that operate with full time paid personnel."

"Here in Greenville you should feel proud," Inscow said, because of the effort being made to protect life and property.

But, he emphasized, "don't look for a pay check." The rewards, he emphasized, come,

"in the satisfaction in knowing you have the skills and ability," to help others.

According to a report made at the meeting, the Greenville squad during 1976 answered 1,453 calls; traveled 10,963 miles responding to the calls; and spent 1,450 hours responding to the pleas for assistance.

The department's nine paid rescuemen and 30 volunteers spent 2,066 hours in training during the year. In addition to the emergency calls, volunteers alone spent 2,550 hours standing-by for events such as ball games, track meets and other public gatherings.

Tough Stance Against Mexican Unrest Suggested

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Jose Lopez Portillo's dispatch of troops to Oaxaca after a clash between demonstrators and police suggests the new government is taking a tough federal stance against growing signs of economic unrest in the states of Mexico.

In Oaxaca, capital of one of Mexico's poorest states, a demonstration Wednesday against Gov. Manuel Zarate Aquino, who has since resigned, turned into a riot. Police opened fire, two persons were killed and 17 wounded.

Also, since Lopez Portillo took office Dec. 1:

—In Juchitan, Oaxaca, police fires on a crowd gathered a protest the jailing of 38 students accused of stealing a bus in a protest against a fare increase. Two children were killed.

—In Monterrey to the north, 1,000 housewives marched on the governor's mansion to protest the high cost of living. The parade was broken up by club-swinging police.

—Students angered by the high price of natural gas took seized several gas distributing plants in Durango and gave the gas tanks to the poor.

All the incidents involve economic hardship.

The Oaxaca conflict, though centered on two competing university rectors—one backed by the governor—also had an economic base.

Zarate Aquino, who resigned to take what was officially termed a "leave of absence" after the violence, had the support of Oaxaca's wealthy businessmen.

"He was only interested in the rich. He did nothing for the poor," a Oaxaca hotel clerk said.

In Mexico, hard times are widening the gap between the rich and the nation's majority of poor. The growing middle class has also been hard hit by inflation and unemployment.

After three years of inflation, devaluation of the peso last Sept. 1 sent prices soaring again. By December, consumer prices were 27 per cent higher than the year before, wholesale prices in Mexico City had risen nearly 46 per cent, promising another spiral in 1977.

Financial observers predict an inflation rate of 30 to 40 per cent this year, compared with 24 per cent in 1974 and 16 per cent in 1975.

It means a devalued peso buys two crusty rolls when it used to buy 10. A kilo (2.2 pounds) of tortillas—the flat corn pancakes that are Mexico's staff of life—cost three times what they did three years ago.

WANTS EQUAL TIME FOR KLAN — The Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, David Duke of Jefferson, La., is shown Friday in New York after demanding that the Klan be given equal time on television to "present the other side" to "Roots," the eight-part series based on the popular novel by Alex Haley. Citing the Federal Communications Commission's Doctrine of Fairness, Duke demanded the time in a letter to ABC-TV president Leonard Goldenson. (AP Wirephoto).

Carter Predicts Rise In Prices Of Energy

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says his national energy policy proposals will include mandatory conservation measures, and he predicts energy prices will rise faster than the inflation rate.

"I think as time goes on the price of all energy sources is going to go up even faster than the rate of inflation, but I am going to do what I can to minimize those increases," he told 22 visiting newspaper editors Friday.

A transcript was released Saturday.

Discussing possible conservation measures to be included in his energy package, he said, "There are some kind of things we would do in a mandatory way." He did not elaborate.

On the issue of secrecy in government—which he often criticized as a presidential candidate—Carter said he has been "disconcerted" by published revelations of CIA operations and believes they "have damaged us considerably in our capability of obtaining adequate intelligence information from other countries."

"One of the surprises" he has experienced as President "has been the almost total absence of any sort of confidentiality around Washington on matters that I think sometimes we would like to hold to ourselves," he said.

He also said he had reviewed all recent news reports on alleged CIA payoffs to foreign leaders and found "less than half of majority of them accurate." He said he found "no impropriety" in the CIA's activities.

Praises Move

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Civil Liberties Union Saturday supported Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten's recommendations for decriminalization of public drunkenness and release of prisoners serving sentences for possession of marijuana.

"We think the attorney general is moving positively in the right direction," said a statement by the NCCLU Legislation Committee.

Edmisten told a legislative committee this week he would recommend that Gov. Jim Hunt commute prison sentences for persons convicted of marijuana possession as a way of easing overcrowding in prisons.

But the Civil Liberties Union statement expressed concern about "drug laws beyond the factor of overcrowded prisons, as important a concern as that is," and called for decriminalization of marijuana possession.

The Civil Liberties Union said, "We urge authority for our law enforcement officers to desist from further arrests for mere drunkenness and call upon the governor and the Department of Correction to grant immediate release to the marijuana offenders cited by the attorney general."

Lives Saved

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 55 mile per hour speed limit was credited Saturday with saving at least 27,000 lives during the past three years. The National Safety Council president said Americans should do better.

According to NSC statistics, 55,511 persons died in highway accidents in 1973 before the 55 m.p.h. speed limit was adopted. In 1974 the figure dropped to 46,402 and went down to 45,600 in 1975. Preliminary figures for 1976 show about 47,100 deaths.

"These figures are irrefutable despite the thinking of m(c)uf9g6, feel opposition to the lowered speed limit for one reason or another," said Vincent Tofany, NSC president.

Last White Bishop Expelled

LONDON (AP) — Bishop Brian Herd, the last white Anglican bishop in Uganda, arrived here today after being expelled from the country by the government of President Idi Amin.

The Rev. Mr. Herd, who had spent 16 years in Uganda as a missionary, said the expulsion was so sudden that his wife had to stay behind to pack.

"It's a great shock to me," said the 45-year-old cleric, who arrived at Stansted Airport carrying only his attache case. "There are a great number of people who love us in Uganda and who we love, and it's extremely difficult to leave them like this without saying goodbye."

Inez Garcia Acquitted

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — Inez Garcia, acquitted after 15 months in prison for killing a man she said helped rape her, says now she plans to spend more time with her son and go to work for women prisoners.

"I promised a lot of women in prison I would do what I could for them," Mrs. Garcia said late Friday, moments after a 10-man, two-woman jury declared her innocent in her second trial for second-degree murder.

Spectators in the tiny, packed Monterey County courtroom burst into cheers and tears when the verdict was announced.

Energy Cost Cuts Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration says this winter's fuel bills have cut into consumer purchasing power, but not enough to require a higher tax-cut.

"The magnitude of this drain ... is not large — probably around $2 billion to $3 billion — and the effects on the economy are likely to be small and relatively short-lived," Charles L. Schultze, Carter's chief economic adviser, told the House Budget Committee on Friday.

'Excessive Trivia'

By MERLE KELLERHALS
COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Ron Nessen, former press secretary to former President Ford, said Saturday the greatest problem with the American news media is an "excessive concentration on trivia" instead of real hard news.

Speaking at the 10th annual South Carolina Education Association convention, Nessen said radio, television and newspapers contains too much "junk news."

"The excessive concentration on trivia in the press threatens to drive out substantive news," he said.

system or other "public authority."

County officials made a routine check with Bullock, expecting to confirm their belief that the term "public authority" would be broad enough to include the federal government.

It did not.

Bullock informed county officials that if the state legislature had intended the federal government to be included in the statute, then it would be there.

As a result New Hanover officials are urging state legislators to rewrite the law, but so far no action has been taken.

Meanwhile, the land exchange has been put off indefinitely.

Ferryboat 'Virginia Dare' To Be Dedicated Next Week

RALEIGH — A delegation of North Carolina officials, headed by State Representative Howard B. Chapin of Washington, N.C., will journey to Louisiana next week to participate in ceremonies to launch North Carolina's newest ferryboat, the VIRGINIA DARE.

The ceremonies for the christening of the ferry will be held Saturday, March 12, in Madisonville, La.

present for the ceremonies will be Secondary Roads Councilwoman-designate, Mrs. Louise Muse of Oriental, Sheriff C. J. Cahoon of Hyde County, and Don T. Overman, Department of Transportation's chief engineer for eastern North Carolina.

The new ferryboat, the first vessel completely designed by Department of Transportation's Ferry Division engineers, is being built by Equitable Equipment Company Incorporated of New Orleans at a cost of $2.3 million. When completed, the vessel will be placed into service on a run from the southern end of Ocracoke Island to Swan Quarter on the Hyde County mainland.

Equitable Equipment Company officials report that the ferry will be completed by the end of April.

The new boat, when placed into service, will carry up to 300 passengers and 34 automobiles, and will be the 15th vessel assigned to DOT's Ferry Division.

THE MAINLAND SITE — for the Swan Quarter-Ocracoke Ferry is currently under construction as shown in this recent photograph. The ferryboat 'Virginia Dare' will make the run between

Honeymoon With Rattlers

by FLOYD NORRIS
OPPO Ala. (UPI) — Tommy Cowden got married Saturday and promptly hopped into bed with five live rattlesnakes.

"If you're gentle with them, they're just like women," he told spectators clustered around him. "They won't bite."

Cowden, better known as Omar the Snakehead, said it would be the last time he beds down with rattlers, something he'd been doing for 30 years at fairs and rodeos around the country.

"My age is getting to me," said the 50-year-old Cowden. "I used to be able to make one strike with my hand and grab him in air, but I can't do that anymore. I'm falling down and I've got to get out."

Cowden and the former

Geneva Webb of Maryville, Tenn., were married Saturday on a stage set up on a football field, where the 18th annual Opp Rattlesnake Rodeo was staged.

The bride, dressed in a blue pants suit, and the mustachioed Cowden, dressed in blue slacks and a black cowboy shirt, said their "I do's" before 3,000 spectators gathered in stands. The crowd roared its approval when Cowden kissed his new bride.

The rodeo also featured rattlesnake races and a demonstration of rattlesnake milking.

The rattlesnake hunt for the rodeo begins two months in advance, in any snake-infested area of the hunter's choosing. At rodeo time, the snakes are brought to a nearby gasoline station, where they are counted and weighed.

A local man, Ruby B. Jones, won this year's contest for capturing the most rattlers, 65, and the largest, a 6'-6" monster that weighed 10 pounds, seven ounces.

"Of course it bothers me," said the new Mrs. Cowden as she joined the spectators who were watching the snakes crawl over her husband. "But," she added philosophically, "that's his job. Other people can get hit by a car 10 minutes after they get married."

Cowden had his honeymoon planned well in advance.

"We'll go home," he said, "get a camper and go down to Florida for a week and lie on the sand—where there are no snakes."

Commissioners 'Empowered'

The Pitt County commissioners agenda for Monday included the consideration of a request of the Pitt Technical Institute trustees that they petition for a referendum on funding a community college. Late last week the item was dropped from the agenda.

This was the latest move in the maneuvering on community college status for Pitt Tech. In January the county commissioners voted on the issue and tied, three to three. The tie vote meant that the commissioners failed to act on the community college request.

The original action came on a request from the Pitt Tech Board of Trustees and it appeared last week that the commissioners were poised to throw the question back to the trustees with a request that the referendum route be followed.

Such an action would seem hardly fair to the Pitt Tech Board of Trustees. The Pitt County Commissioners are fully empowered to take action on the Pitt Tech community college status. The commissioners themselves, were elected to their positions with the voters putting full confidence in them to decide public matters within their jurisdiction.

Elected public officials should take their responsibilities as they arise and decide the matters which properly come before them. If everything is to be sent back to the voters for a referendum, then we doubt that much governing is going to get done.

County commissioners: Accept your responsibilities as officials who were elected by the voters of Pitt County to represent them. We think you should decide in favor of community college status, but by all means stand up and resolve this matter.

Every Department Needs Self-Study

President Carter last week ordered a temporary cutback in hiring in the executive branch of 25 percent.

The White House says the move could mean a reduction of 7,500 persons on the government payroll by Spring.

That is a move we applaud as a way to stop the bewildering growth of federal bureaucracy.

We need more, though. We need a thorough self study of every department in the executive branch. Such a study should be ordered by the president with instructions to every department head to come back with plans for elimination of unnecessary positions.

The results could be astounding.

Sunday Morning Notes

Lawrence Maddy, a former North Carolina newspaperman now with the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, wrote in a recent column on things that Tar Heels dislike about Virginia.

Barbecue (Virginia style) was one.

"When a Tar Heel wants to celebrate, he pitches a barbecue. Nothing means more to a Carolinian than barbecue — good barbecue. It sustains him like prayer.

"So when the Tar Heel visits Virginia, the first thing he does is find a barbecue hut or diner. The Tar Heel parks the car, puts on shoes and walks inside.

"Rubbing his tummy, the Tar Heel orders barbecue. The waitress brings what looks like barbecue. The Tar Heel pushes a forkful of the stuff into his mouth. It tastes like Ken-L Ration.

"Tar Heels don't understand why Virginians — who do fine with hams — can't make barbecue. They find this one of life's most profound mysteries. Even Tar Heels who move to Virginia can't make barbecue anyone. It is like sailing a ship into the Bermuda Triangle. Nobody knows what happens. It is barbecue one moment, and the next moment, something else.

"The Association for Research and Enlightenment gets letters daily from Tar Heels who are disturbed by this barbecue phenomenon."

Well, actually what we are talking about here is not just barbecue, but Eastern North Carolina barbecue. As barbecue connoisseurs (and they would never use the word) know true barbecue can only be properly made in Eastern North Carolina. The art has stretched as far west as Greensboro in this state, entrusted to migrating offspring of master barbecue craftsmen, but never across state lines.

Mysteriously, as Lawrence Maddy points out, the art is lost even to Eastern North Carolina natives, when they make the move over state lines.

Some say that true barbecue has to do with this area's elevation, which is quite low. Others see the influence of the Gulf stream, lying close to the North

Rare Fruit Hobby

By DERELLE SMITH

MIAMI (UPI) — Bill Whitman made a big splash with his "miracle fruit" several years ago, but the message he was preaching went unheard.

The fruit Whitman showed at news conferences and on a television show, was a red berry about the size of a jelly bean that could make a lime taste as sweet as a honey orange.

He believes real potential for its commercial development still exists. In an interview, Whitman said it may replace sugar some day, and the public is missing a good bet not growing it.

"I think anyone could grow the miracle fruit in their home, even in places where there's snow outside. Just keep the humidity at 60 per cent or higher and you'll do all right."

The plant bears fruit when it's only nine inches high, he said.

Whitman got interested in tropical fruit while he was in Tahiti shooting background film for Warner Brothers.

"I ate breadfruit almost every day, and when I came back to Miami (in 1949) I decided to grow it here. Everybody said I couldn't, but I did."

While Whitman's breadfruit flourished, he began experimenting with other tropical fruits. In 1955, along with Salvatore Mauro and Seymour Youngmans, he founded The Rare Fruit Council International Inc.

Whitman believes he is the only man to bring a mangosteen plant to bear in the continental United States. He Organized efforts on the part of officials of several Pitt County towns are underway to secure a portion of the profits derived from the legal sale of liquor to be used in law enforcement.

Mayors of Greenville, Ayden, Farmville and Grifton met here this week and discussed such a plan. When contacted today three of them expressed the opinion the towns were due a part of the profits, declaring that the various towns were burdened with much of the law enforcement activities.

Under the proposed division of the profits, the cities and towns would get approximately 25 per cent and the county 75 per cent. Greenville Mayor M. K. Blount said this was about the way the population of the county was divided.

Many persons were believed dead today in the government-held city of Aranjuez after a night of terror in which insurgent planes, making repeated visits, dropped more than 50 bombs.

The attacks on Aranjuez, which started at the dinner hour last night and lasted intermittently until after 2 a.m. today, were the most severe of a series in a broad semicircle of insurgent air raids on the central Spanish front.

Precise figures on the casualties at Aranjuez were not immediately available.

Bureaucracy Is Resisting

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. is rapidly learning that the sprawling state bureaucracy does not always respond eagerly — if at all — to gubernatorial leadership.

"They're really resisting out there in the field... particularly the Republican personnel people," the governor commented privately of the response to his plan to cut back the state payroll.

Hunt has insisted all along that he can help finance some of his new proposals with dollar savings by trimming back the bureaucracy.

His goal: a two per cent cutback in state employment, representing approximately 2,800 jobs.

The Plan

He has also made it clear from the start that the cutback would not hit classroom teachers or aides, law enforcement people, or people in critical service jobs such as nurses. Thus, the cut would have to climb to between five and 10 per cent in some middle management jobs (personnel, public relations, office supervisors, etc.) to achieve the overall two per cent.

And besides that, Gov. Hunt insists that the cutting can be done primarily by not filling jobs, an easy enough approach when turnover in state jobs approaches 6,000 per year.

BILL NOBLITT

But the bureaucracy says "no."

In isolated areas of the state, program directors have issued public statements that critical jobs have been threatened by the effort to cut employees, maintaining that critical public services will be trimmed.

The politicking and lobbying is intense to escape the gubernatorial axe, with some agencies seeking both public and legislative support in efforts to withstand the minor trimming of bureaucratic fat.

Hunt and his top aides say they intend to follow through with budget cutting recommendations to be presented in mid-March to the General Assembly despite the resistance.

No Accountability

Another newcomer to a high-level state job is running into similar problems — but not regarding numbers of employees.

Howard Lee, former Chapel Hill Mayor and now secretary of the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources has been grumbling lately about his inability to get things done at the time and in the way he wishes.

"There is simply no accountability in government.

You can't put your finger on who did something wrong... you can't track down any individual responsible for carrying out an assignment," Lee says.

Most decisions are made by committee so no individual has to carry responsibility; few ideas are initiated because individuals are afraid to accept responsibility for a failure.

"And you can tell somebody straight off to do something, and they can just conveniently forget it, or come up with some regulation which prohibits doing it," Lee commented.

In private industry if somebody pushes the wrong button and all the cookies come out crumbled or the paint is the wrong color, you can finger the individual and take corrective action but not so with the bureaucracy, says Lee.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Reagan Looking To 1980

By ROWLANE EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — Ronald Reagan, more active nationally than any other Republican politician, is laying plans for another possible presidential run in 1980 (when he will be 69) made possible by the Reagan money machine, his combat-conditioned political staff and his availability to go anywhere, anytime.

That availability helps explain why Reagan, barely edged out of the presidential nomination by President Ford last summer, will address the annual Republican party fund-raising dinner May 19 in an unlikely state: liberal, ethnic, heavily Democratic Rhode Island. "We wanted a little extra impetus," Republican state chairman Americo Campanella told us.

In looking around for that "extra impetus," Republican state headquarters also sent invitations to Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, the party's newest light as Senate minority leader, and to Texan John B. Connally. Baker asked for time to consider his schedule; Connally replied that he could not be certain; Reagan's handlers here shot back an acceptance that nailed down the spot for the party's conservative warhorse.

Rhode Island is just one blip on Reagan's escalating political travels, accompanied by a newspaper column (100 clients) and a daily radio commentary (250 clients). Reagan is being quietly advertised by his aides not as a politician still yearning for the presidency but as one keeping himself available for a summons if the "cause" is right, and the summons should come.

Beneath that surface, the man who was reluctant to enter the 1976 race, but who warmed up to long days and nights on the stump as the campaign heated, can scarcely be called reluctant today. Although even staunch Reaganites believe he is too old for anything other than a kingmaker's role in 1980, he has by no means ruled out a last hurrah.

Whether 1980 turns out to be kingmaking or last hurrah, what he is doing now lays the groundwork. His longtime aides, Michael Deaver and Peter Hannaford, spend much of the time in their public relations firm here handling Reagan's speaking, writing and commentary contracts. They claim his speech invitations run up to 300 a month, of which about 10 are accepted. The gross of all his endeavors: somewhere around $500,000 a year.

Across town in Santa Monica, carefully separated from the Deaver-Hannaford office, the political end of Reagan's operation is handled by Lyn Nofziger, his oldest political aide who helped persuade him to run for President in 1975. Nofziger operates the Reagan political front, a political action committee called "Citizens for the Republic" whose initials, CFR, happen to be the same as the principal campaign vehicle set up for him in 1975 — Citizens for Reagan.

Nofziger, paid $45,000 by the CFR (slightly higher than the Republican national chairman's regular salary), is blessed with an estimated $1 million left over from unpaid 1976 contributions to the Reagan campaign. That enables Nofziger to entertain presidential-sized plans and budget.

In February, he mailed the first biweekly CFR newsletter, each issue of which will feature a column and picture of Ronald Reagan on page one. Consistent with Nofziger's versatility and sense of irreverence, he plans to plough new ground — as yet unspecified in political action.

The main problem for both Deaver-Hannaford Nofziger-CFR is Ronald Reagan and how to keep him in bounds. That represent a singular change from 1975 when Reagan genuinely resisted becoming a candidate for many months.

For example, in last week's congressional election for Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland's old seat in the 7th District of Minnesota, Reagan wanted to campaign for Republican Arlan Stangeland, the eventual winner. All his advisers said no: a Reagan appearance could polarize the voters and cost Stangeland votes; so, Reagan

Other Editors Say Why Poor Morale?

(Laurinburg Exchange)

Every now and then the public reads or hears that there's a "serious morale problem" in a public agency or department. Recently at the federal level reports have told of a problem of morale among FBI employees. Not long ago there was a morale problem in the military service.

Closer to home we've heard about the morale problem among members of the North Highway Patrol. We've read about the same problem among other state employees.

Even at home, about the time county commissioners and city councilmen are preparing budgets and studying salary requests and personnel benefits, the phrase "morale problem" is occasionally injected.

Fortunately, we are more frequently reading reports which show in many areas public employees are favored when compared to their counterparts in private business and industry. In working conditions, hours worked, pension plans, fringe benefits and salaries, in most instances the public employee comes off much better.

Only this week a national magazine drew a comparison between what recruits and lower grade military people receive in payments and benefits compared to what they likely would be receiving if they were employed on the outside. Those in the Army and Navy top outsiders by far.

This week also from the Raleigh came a report that the average salary for state employees is well above $10,000 a year, while the average salary in private industry in North Carolina is at least $1,500 less. And the state also provides better pension plans, holidays and other fringe advantages.

If there is a real "morale problem" in this state, and the nation, it should be among those in private employment. No problem in government situations can be as wearing as that the average person in the private sector shoulders.

Sees Disproportionate Taxes

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Like many millions of Americans, Harry G. Elmstrom of Ballston Spa, N.Y., population about 5,000, thinks residential taxes are too high.

"When I bought my house in 1958 the taxes were about $300; now they're more than $1,200," said Elmstrom, whose small firm operates not far from Albany, N.Y. Everywhere, he said, "there have been fantastic increases in property taxes."

Elmstrom's concern is not only as a homeowner but as the president for this year of the 500,000-member National Association of Realtors, which fears the tax burden all but excludes some families as customers.

"We have to give strong consideration to spreading the burden, away from property," said Elmstrom, maintaining the hardship is sometimes insufferable for young families and retirees.

"The American homeowner is carrying a disproportionate share of local taxation, and we want this harmful situation straightened out," he said.

Taxes are by no means the only concern of Elmstrom; he has a long list that includes prices, rent control ("spreading like a cancer"), mortgage flexibility (he sees no reason why we shouldn't have 50-year mortgages), consumer protection, and equal opportunity.

But, Elmstrom relates, there is also considerable good news in housing. Starts are expected to rise 1.8 million this year, or about 300,000 more than in 1976. Existing home sales are expected to grow also.

This latter market has been assuming phenomenal proportions, almost doubling since 1968. Last year 2,998,000 existing single-family transactions took place, with total dollar volume reaching a record $126.5 billion.

Since real estate people obtain a commission — often 5 or 6 per cent — on these sales, it would seem the resale market could hardly be better for them. But it probably will be — this year, when sales are expected to reach 3.4 million, for a market value of $155 billion.

With prices so high — resale homes are expected to average $42,000, new homes $50,000 by the end of the year — Elmstrom and members of the 1,700 boards that makes up the national association are pushing a warranty program.

Believing that buyers are reluctant to make big, long-term commitments for properties in which unknown or hidden defects might be present, the realtors have invited insurers to offer protection for a price.

Under the program, an inspector checks seven major components of the home: foundation, walls-ceilings, plumbing, electrical, heating, central air conditioning and roof.

These components are warranted or insured, or both, for one or two years, thus removing some of the anxiety and doubt that sometimes discourages a potential buyer from completing a purchase.

The cost, about 1/2 of 1 per cent of the sale price, the precise amount depending on which of five insurers so far involved in the program are used, is paid by buyer or seller or both.

FULL ORCHESTRA

Suppose one went to an orchestra concert and found the stage filled with nothing but drums. Or suppose there were nothing but trumpets, or nothing but stringed instruments?

No matter how fine the quality of an instrument, one can easily get too much of it. Beautiful orchestra music largely depends upon the variety of the instruments which produce the tones.

We see the same principle sometimes reflected in religion. For some people religion is all a matter of drums. They must beat these drums to call humanity to some crusade against evil. There are others from whom religion is largely a matter of horns and trumpets — eloquent sermons and theological disquisitions. Still others find their religion in the otherworldly reveries of symbolized by stringed instruments.

There is a place in all true religion for the drums, trumpets, and strings. It takes all of these to make a full, well-rounded religious experience.

Observations From Editorial Columns

A Real Life Sentence

The House Judiciary 1 Committee recently gave its unanimous approval to a bill calling for life imprisonment for first degree rape and murder in North Carolina. The measure is expected to go to the House floor for debate sometime next week.

The bill, sponsored by Mecklenburg Rep. Parks Helms, a Democrat, would require convicted murders and rapists to serve 25 years of their life sentence before eligibility for parole, probation or suspended sentence.

The bill's approval to move on to the floor did not reflect the individual committeemen's opinion about the death penalty, but the fact that the issue was too important to be decided by the committee.

We doubt if such a measure accurately reflects the wishes of the state's population. In general, candidates for state-wide office which might have any dealings with the issue were vocally in favor of capital punishment. And the people responded to that stand.

It seems that the committeemen are hedging a little bit on a tough decision. No one wants to be responsible for the death of an individual. Even if one can morally justify the extreme penalty, it is difficult to make the decisive move to institute it.

Bills calling for a new death penalty statute are still in other committees being considered for movement to the floor. Even committee members who look favorably on the reinstitution of the penalty are being very careful to see that the proposals they send on will meet the recent Supreme Court decision.

It would appear, from the recent elections, that the great majority of the state's voters want the penalty back for first degree murder and rape. In any case, they will not want a person to have any possibility of parole, not in 25 years or 50 years, if he or she has been convicted of those crimes.

It seems to us, in the light of what appears to be the public sentiment, the only alternative with any possibility of passage would be to provide for a true, absolute, final, unalterable life sentence. That is the only option that fulfills the basic premise, outside of the "ultimate" punishment, of taking the convicted murders and rapists permanently out of the stream of the rest of humankind. — (The Daily Advance (Elizabeth City)

Hardly Practical

We watch as bills are coming into the N. C. General Assembly, and if the average citizen could just sit there and see what comes in sometimes, it would cause his head to shake in embarrassment and often in disbelief.

Just recently a bill was introduced in the N. C. legislature which, if passed, would require the basketball teams of UNC-Chapel Hill and N. C. State to refuse to play in Big Four and Atlantic Coast Conference Tournaments unless the games were televised. The exception is that if 48 hours before game time, it is not a sellout, then the requirement is lifted.

When the laws of our state get into such matters as which games shall or shall not be televised, we are taking a right away from television stations and officials and putting it in the hands of politicians who are more interested in votes than sports.

We too would like for the games to be televised, but we would not favor any law forcing them to be on the tube. Such a law would absolutely be unfair to TV stations, to the universities, and to the players. And it would also be unfair to regular attending fans including student bodies.

Such a law hardly could be classed as practical by any stretch of the imagination. — (The Washington Daily News)

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, March 6, the 65th day of 1977. There are 300 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1836, the Alamo in San Antonio, Texas, fell to a Mexican force after a 13-day siege. Davy Crockett and the other defenders were killed.

On this date:
In 1475, the Renaissance artist Michelangelo was born in Caprese, Italy.

In 1857, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a slave, Dred Scott, could not sue for his freedom in a federal court.

In 1945, during World War II, the German city of Cologne fell to the U.S. First Army.

In 1957, the former British African colonies of the Gold Coast and Togoland became the independent state of Ghana.

In 1953, Georgi Malenkov became Soviet premier after the death of Josef Stalin.

In 1974, President Richard M. Nixon, in a televised news conference, denied he had ever approved hush money or clemency for the Watergate defendants.

Restored By Two Weeks Away From Washington

SCRABBLE, VA.—For the professional journalist, working in Washington is among the happiest of all ways of life. One thing beats it: not working in Washington. For the past two weeks, this correspondent has been not working in Washington. The experience restores the soul.

In our household, vacation time ordinarily is go-to-Europe time. This year came the revolution. All of a sudden, South Carolina had greater charm than Sicily, and Louisiana more allure than London. If one's purpose is simply to loaf around, why not loaf around here at home?

Two weeks cannot cure the wasting disease that is known as Potomac Fever, but two weeks can surely help. The ailment is characterized by distorted vision and a certain numbness of the senses. To work in Washington is to succumb to the notion that Washington is the center of universe; it is to suppose that if something is important in Washington, ipso facto, it is important everywhere else.

Well, it is not so. While we were away, the story broke of the CIA's payments to King Hussein. It was a sensation in Washington. Down in Dixie, it was tsk-tsk, and ho-hum, and what time is high tide tomorrow? Washington was all wrought up over the nomination of Paul Warneke to lead disarmament talks. The South Carolina press was scarcely wrought up at all.

Along the South Carolina coast, other interests dominate conversation—and "dominate" is perhaps too strong a verb for so gentle a climate. The talk is mostly of local affairs—of schools and fisheries and flowers, of the poor tourist season, of what the state legislature is doing. On Hilton Head Island, dawn sees a few intrepid joggers on the beach; otherwise, the sea and sand belong to the gulls.

One tends to forget the slumbrous softness of the Southern coast, the Spanish moss, the long reaches of marsh grass, the silent waterways.

Young Pastor Turns To Community-Organizing

KONNAROCK, Va. — To look at Bill Gable you'd think he was a young poet or a Lutheran pastor, which he is. But he's also a crackerjack organizer and community advocate. His father served the country parish surrounding Konnarock 40 years ago, but there had been no Lutheran pastor in these parts for eight years until Bill arrived.

The Reverend William B. Gable began serving this parish in 1971, performing the duties that every country pastor must do, plus a lot more. For this able young man has spent the past five years standing up for his parishioners before various governmental bodies and helping to organize ways and means of increasing their income.

Now he has decided to take a leave of absence from the pastorate in order to devote nearly all his time to community organizing. His wife, Dr. Janet Gable, started a medical clinic in Konnarock soon after they arrived here. With the aid of two young assistants, she sees between 60 and 80 persons a day.

The Gables hadn't been in Konnarock very long before they realized the community's need for leadership.

The U.S. Forest Service began buying land for a 154,000 acre addition to the Mount Rogers Recreation Area, forcing some of Pastor Gable's parishioners to sell their small farms. In a number of instances, the Forest Service instituted condemnation proceedings in order to acquire the properties of reluctant landowners. Many families whose roots were generations deep protested.

Gable's leadership was accepted from the beginning by the farmers. Thinking that the mountain culture could be completely destroyed by the Forest Service, he began speaking at community meetings. Whether the Jefferson National Forest, in which Mount Rogers is located, should be commercially developed is only one of the points at issue. The Lutheran pastor contends that the government is paying landowners the prices that were prevalent eight or ten years ago. The government may claim that it is offering "generous" prices for land, says Gable, but when the mountain farmer has to buy a new tract he usually is forced to pay more than $1,000 an acre.

"I think what will really happen," the pastor says, "is that there will be more and more pressure on local residents to sell what land they've got. Then I doubt if there will be any traces of

He doesn't believe the Forest Service should have the whole say in the matter. Four years ago he started distributing a mimeographed newsletter in the little communities surrounding the Mount Rogers Recreation said council members want to establish branches of their club around the world and ship information, seeds and seedlings to anyone or any country interested in propagating rare fruit.

Rare Fruit....

"With the growing population in the world and the need to provide foods, the tropical fruit could be the answer, especially in the tropic zones where these will grow without much trouble.

"The tropical fruit is a neglected area of research. About the only thing the government has done anything on is the pineapple and banana.

"For example, I was at the headquarters of the Amazon where the native population sells and eats a big fruit in which the seed occupies nine-tenths of the fruit with only a thin fleshy part that's edible. They could easily grow durians and mangosteens," he said, "but they just don't know anything about them."

Most of the 6,500 members of the council live in the Miami area. Other rare fruit varieties they grow include the carambola, the star apple of the Caribbean and a popular salad fruit because it resembles a star when sliced horizontally; the rambutan, like a litchi nut but three times as big.

Whitman says one fruit, the kepel apple from Indonesia, could "cut into the deodorant business and raise hell with the perfume business."

"The sultans had them planted at the entrances to their harems. When you eat the fruit of this tree, your sweat becomes very perfume-like."

He calls the durian "the world's finest fruit." Some say it smells like garlic; others, like rotten eggs or something fermented.

"But some of the better varieties have only a very slight odor and have the most delicious custard-like fruit you've ever tasted."

Miami radio newsman Henry Barrow, a council member for several years, says, "The name, The Rare Fruit Council, never fails to get a laugh (from the public)."

Barrow says the most frustrating thing about growing such fruit, other than the recent cold spell that wrought havoc, is the wait after a plant is ordered from overseas.

Area. In response to a notice in the newsletter, almost 150 residents and seven supervisory personnel from the Forest Service attended a meeting. Afterwards, the pastor circulated a petition to stop condemnation proceedings and presented it to the Boards of Supervisors of Smyth, Grayson, and Washington counties of southwestern Virginia. The counties passed resolutions supporting the landowners.

"This is the only national recreation area in the country," Gable observes, "where the Forest Service has unrestricted power to condemn property." Condemnations are halted for the time being, but the future is unclear. A lack of money for further additions to the recreation area may be a factor in the decision. Whatever happens, the fact remains that Gable is good at organizing and community development. His most recent success is his chairmanship of a mountain cooperative which produces maple syrup and sorghum molasses.

More than two years ago, the Whitetop Volunteer Fire Department was trying to raise funds for a new fire station a few miles from Konnarock. Someone heard of a project to make molasses at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and some of the area people went to Blacksburg to look it over. When they returned, they organized the Whitetop Mountain Molasses and Maple Syrup Company with Bill Gable as chairman of the board. Bill likes the project because "the community can preserve what it has and develop the area on its own terms. The money stays here instead of going to large developers from out of the area."

Carolina coast. Some feel the preponderance of pines in this area puts in the air a certain aroma. There are those who feel it is a combination of all the circumstances. And one school of thought is that it is something supernatural which makes barbecue barbecue in Eastern North Carolina.

Whatever it is, it can't be exported and the rest of the world—including Virginia—might as well give up.

One final word for easterners: enjoy your barbecue at home; you'll never find anything like it elsewhere.

By night the pine woods are as black as printer's ink; beyond the yellow cone of headlights the world disappears. The distance from Washington is not to be measured in miles, but in eons.

If we hadn't driven up to Beaufort, for a day of loafing in that lazy little city, we would have missed two immortal ballads on the Parris Island radio station. One unforgettable song was entitled, "Batten Down the Hatches, Let the Tomcat In, 'Cause Miss Lucy's on the Juice Again." The other entralling melody, lingering in memory, told of a traveling man who had an affair with another woman because "She's the Closest Thing That I Could Find to Yew." Nothing of the sort can be heard at Kennedy Center.

We sent a leisurely day in Savannah. Just about everything is leisurely in Savannah. None of our older cities has done more in the way of viable downtown restoration than Savannah has done. Ten or fifteen years ago, the charming little squares of Oglethorpe's design were drab islands in a sea of slums. Today the old high-ceilinged houses serve as law offices, corporation headquarters, and gracious private homes. Past and present form a seamless web. Everybody walks in Savannah, but nobody walks fast.

New Orleans in carnival time is a different story. The balls begin before Christmas; the parades—57 of them this year—started on February 6 and wound up deliriously on the 22d with nine separate productions. And these are productions. The visitor marvels at two aspects of Mardi Grass—the prodigious time and effort devoted to ephemeral fun, and the pervasive good humor of the city. The inaugural parade for Mr. Carter was a pretty fair parade as parades go, but it was nothing compared to the show that is staged for the King of Bacchus in New Orleans.

If you're thinking of doing your loafing in New Orleans, set aside five hours for a Mississippi cruise on the Mark Twain, a converted paddle steamer. The river embraces a whole way of life, as alien to a Washington correspondent as the villages of Sicily or Spain. What do they think about, the men who man the barges? Not King Hussein, that's for sure.

Returning to Washington, one finds the capital still yapping and snarling about the CIA, the congressional pay raise, the budget revisions, the friction between Mr. Carter's people and the lords of Capitol Hill. These topics are a correspondent's bread and butter; they are indeed important, but I kid you not: A sunny afternoon in Savannah is very close to heaven.

LONGEST FUSE WE'VE EVER SEEN!

By GAIL MICHAELS

Sense Of Security Has Been Effectively Ended

There are lots of things that a mother is not able to do after she has her first child. For instance, she can no longer turn on the dishwasher without checking first to make sure that her child isn't loaded in the top rack. And she can no longer hope to get through the checkout counter at the grocery store with a cart full of unopened boxes. But probably the most difficult thing for a mother to give up is going to the bathroom.

got her trained." When I got out, she was sitting on the top of the bookcase in the denearing paper clips.

The next time I left her alone while I heeded the call of nature was right before some friends were supposed to arrive for coffee. I had assembled an elegant tray of refreshments—three kinds of Krispy Kreme donuts—and I had left them on the kitchen counter. I got out of the bathroom to find the highchair pushed over to the counter, 18 donuts in the middle of the floor, and Meg on the highchair sprinkling them with my watering can.

After that I tried taking her with me, but the merits of this solution were dubious at best. The bathroom is also the cat's room, and every time Meg and I attended together, Meg

Finally, I just stopped going—at least between the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. Phillip always wondered why I rushed downstairs to the bathroom and locked myself in for an hour every night after I put Meg to bed. Then one Saturday he learned why. I left for the library at 8 a.m., and he got to keep the baby all day.

Of course, the first thing I did when I got to the library was to take a book and to enjoy a leisurely visit with the ladies room. I did the same thing before I left at 5. When I got home, Phillip met me at the door.

"Well, how did it go?" I asked.

As he tossed me the baby and ran toward the bathroom, he yelled over his shoulder, "I've got to have one thing installed before I'll ever keep her for this long again."

"What's that?" I yelled back.

"A catheter."

Police Explorer Scouts Proud Of Their Field

By DAN WILLIAMS
Artesia Daily Press
ARTESIA, N.M. (AP) — They are probably the most harassed people in Artesia, but the police explorer scouts — known as peach fuzz, toy cops or piglets — say they wouldn't trade places with anyone.

"We get the worst of it," said Shane Baker, describing the ridicule he and his partner Glen Lewis take while on patrol.

"At first it kind of bothered me, but then I just got used to it," he said.

Baker and Lewis are among 15 young men in Artesia who have chosen to train themselves for future police work. It's tough and lonely work.

"Whenever you get into something like this, you find out who your friends really are," said Lewis, 20. "When I joined the explorers, I lost every friend I had. You might say it's a thankless job, but that's its only drawback.

After a while, the only friends you have are other explorers and police officers."

Lewis and Baker, the top officers and most active members in the Artesia Police Explorer Post, patrol this southeastern New Mexico town's streets and alleys for about six hours a day.

"People spit on us, call us names and write things on our pickup with shoe polish," Lewis said. "They are always trying to pick a fight with us and sometimes they'll say something like 'We're going to kill you first chance we get.'"

They said their police radio-equipped pickup truck had been vandalized. Baker said they were threatened with guns on one occasion.

The police explorers, whose operation is financed primarily by donations from businessmen, say their problems don't stem from personal animosity toward them.

"I don't think it's us, but the uniform itself and what it represents that they hate," Lewis said.

The explorers carry only batons and mace for protection, but Baker says he doesn't like to carry even the mace "because when we are working at a game or a dance, people see it and try to get it away from us."

Baker said he had used his baton only once — and then he wielded it effectively in a good cause.

He was on patrol with an Artesia police officer who left the squad car and was confronted by three men who are alleged to have assaulted him.

Baker, who stayed behind in the vehicle, leaped out when the commotion started and used the nightstick to fight off the officer's assailants.

The explorer scouts work under police supervision, and say much of the criticism directed their way is unjustified.

"Sometimes we'll hear people talking about how me and Glenn busted them last night," Baker said. "But we don't bust people. We don't snitch on people, either."

The explorers say they'll report someone for drunk driving if he appears to be "endangering his own life and the lives of others," but said even then no arrest is made unless a regular police officer witnesses the violation.

Lt. Cruz Alvarez and patrolman Harry Wesson attend all the meetings of the explorer post and instruct the scouts on police procedure.

Baker and Lewis say their friendship with the officers is strong and runs both ways.

Pitt Schools Celebrating Harmony, Music Week

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

In observance of additional cultural arts programs in the Pitt County Schools during the 1976-77 school year, the Pitt County Schools will celebrate "Harmony, Music In Our Schools Week", March 6-12.

For the first time, most students in Pitt County Schools this year have an opportunity to participate in music, art and cultural arts classes.

Pitt County schools presently has 12 art teachers and 13 music teachers. Students in grades 5 through 8 are now offered the opportunity of learning instrumental music.

The Pitt County Board of Education adopted a resolution at the February 1 meeting endorsing the "Music In Our Schools Week" as an opportunity to support the purposes and practices of music education in the schools.

According to Miriam Harris, music and arts coordinator for Pitt County Schools most of the schools will be having cultural arts programs at their schools during the week.

One of the first events during the week is the Pitt County Students Arts Show at the Greenville Arts Center beginning Sunday, March 6. A reception will be held at the Arts Center Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. The show includes art works of many different media created by students from most of the schools in the county.

Activities in the schools include a concert at Ayden Grammar School presented by the Gardner-Webb College Choral Ensemble, directed by Dr. George R. Cribb. The group will perform Tuesday, March 8 at Farmville Central High School, Ayden Grammar School.

The tour is made during "Music In Our Schools" Week, sponsored by the Music Educators' National Conference and the North Carolina Music Educators Association to promote the performance of music in schools.

Bethel Elementary School will have several cultural arts activities during the week. Monday will be Parents Day at the school and all parents are invited to visit the music and arts classes. Tuesday the students will participate in a "chalk-in". Students will have an opportunity to draw anything they wish with a piece of chalk on the pavement in front of the school. Wednesday the North Pitt band and chorus will be performing at Bethel Elementary. Thursday the Bethel Elementary band will perform and Friday the Bethel Elementary chorus will perform at the school.

Pitt County students will go to Atlantic Christian College Friday to compete in the All-State Band Clinic.

Many of the schools will have choral groups performing at meetings and during the school days during the week. Posters and bulletin boards will display students art work within the school classrooms and halls. Future cultural arts activities in the Pitt County Schools include forming an all-county band which will perform at Ayden-Grifton High School April 16 at 3 p.m. Also the Winston-Salem State University Symphonic Band will perform at D.H. Conley, North Pitt and Farmville Central high school March 28-30.

Testing Set For Pace

Testing for prospective students for the 1977-78 school year will be held Friday, March 11 at Pace Academy.

There will be three testing periods for Pre-first graders. Students will be tested at 8:15 a.m., 9:15 a.m. and 10:15 a.m. at the mobile unit beside the gymnasium. Tests for first graders will begin at 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. in Building No. 1 and the test fee is $20.

Tests for grades 2-9 will be given at 2:45 p.m. Students to be tested should report to the Multi-Purpose Building by 2:30 p.m. for directions to appropriate classrooms. The test fee is $20.

Distinguished Visiting Post For ECU Geography Department

A Distinguished Visiting Professorship is to be inaugurated during the 1977-1978 fall semester at the Department of Geography, East Carolina University, according to chairman of geography Dr. Ennis L.

Chestang.

The program is designed to bring an outstanding scholar in the field of geography to the campus one semester each year.

Dr. Chestang said that the first to occupy this position will be

Dr. John Fraser Hart, professor of geography at the University of Minnesota. The Staunton, Va., native holds the AB degree in classical languages from Emory University and the PhD in geography from Northwestern University. Before joining the Minnesota faculty in 1967, he taught at Indiana and Georgia Universities.

Canada for undergraduates. He and Dr. Chestang will instruct a field course on local geography.

"Fraser is no stranger to East Carolina," notes Dr. Chestang. "He was here as a visiting lecturer in a 1966 summer institute and he is just as much at home wandering through barns, sheds and pig parlors as he is in the lecture hall."

"Both the university and the community will benefit from his presence," Chestang added.

Plans are for Dr. Hart to present one or two public lectures during his semester

He has also been a Fulbright Lecturer at the Universite de Lille, France, and at Durham University, England. An active member of several professional organizations, Dr. Hart has been executive officer of the Association of American Geographers and editor of Annals of the Association of American Geographers. Currently he is a counselor for the AAG and the Canadian organization.

Among Dr. Hart's publications are nine books and monographs and 87 professional papers and articles. His book-length studies include The Southeastern United States; The Look of the Land; and The British Moorlands: A Problem in Land Utilization.

During his visiting professorship to ECU, Dr. Hart will direct a seminar for graduate students and teach a course on the geography of the U.S. and

Teleplay Features Teaching Experiences

A tv teleplay to be shown on Channel 9 here from 9 to 11 p.m. Thursday deals with the real-life teaching experiences of Ms. Mary MacCracken in a school for emotionally disturbed children.

Jane Alexander plays Ms. MacCracken in the play, titled Circle of Children. The program is being promoted throughout the nation by Mental Health Associations, including Pitt County's.

Ms. Alexander was an affluent Junior Leaguer who visited such a school and suddenly realized what a void there was in her smooth suburban life. She soon filled this void by working as a volunteer teacher. The drama of her fulfillment is an integral part of the greater drama of her battle to free the children from their heart-rending disorder—the six-year-old who won't walk, the youngster who rocks and rocks and rocks for hours on end, the boy whose speech is rapid-fire unintelligible gobbledygook.

She learns from the children and also from Helga, an earthy instinctive teacher played by British Academy Award winner Rachel Roberts.

Mary MacCracken now teaches exceptional children in a New Jersey public school and deals with others with learning disabilities in private practice. She is also the author of "Love-ly," which, like "Circle of Children," recounts her real-life experiences.

Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, executive director of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, recommended this drama as must-viewing for everyone.

Red Cross Course Set

The Pitt County Red Cross reminded persons interested in taking the advanced life saving course at Minges Coliseum that they can still sign up for the session Monday night.

The course will be taught each Monday night through April 18 from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Participants will meet in Room 142 at Minges on Monday night.

In order to take the course, students must be at least 15 years old.

Instructor will be Cynthia Averett.

Plan To Cut On Tax Bills

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Advance planning can help a taxpayer save money on his next year's returns, says an extension family economics and management specialist, Kathy Prochaska.

Among the savings she recommends are crowding deductible expenses in this year so you can take a standard deduction allowance in 1978. Do this by making ordinary charitable contributions for both 1977 and 1978 by the end of this year.

Consider transferring some stocks, bonds and-or other income-bearing assets to your children who are in lower income brackets or set up trust funds for your children for college.

If your 65th birthday falls in 1978, think twice before selling your home this year. By waiting until you are 65, you can escape some capital-gains taxes.

If 1977 appears to be a profitable year for your business or farm, it could also be a good year to claim a tax advantage by buying new equipment.

Ms. Prochaska is at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Mennonites Report Impressions Of Viet Nam

CLERGY REACTS TO SCHOOL INTEGRATION — Timothy Cardinal Manning, archbishop of Los Angeles, and other clergymen at a press conference Friday reacted to the Los Angeles school integration plan by repeating that parochial schools would not be allowed "to become havens for those who wish to avoid the integrated public schools." A complex plan for integrating the massive Los Angeles school district was approved by the school board Thursday. At left is Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin. (AP Wirephoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE — In January, Harold D. Jantz, editor of a Mennonite publication in Canada, visited Vietnam with two American Mennonites as guests of the Vietnamese-American Friendship group in Hanoi. Following is a condensation of an article written by him for The Canadian Press on what they saw and heard there.

By HAROLD D. JANTZ
The Mennonite Brethren Herald
TORONTO (AP) — Two weeks of travel by members of a Mennonite delegation in Vietnam gave them the impression of a country determined to define socialism on its own terms and eager for relationships with the West.

The delegation consisted of

Stop Giving Christ Charge

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge has told a Winston-Salem man to stop handing out a piece church literature that strongly resembles a Master Charge credit card.

Dudley L. Simms and the Piece Goods Shop Inc. were told in a temporary injunction they would have to stop passing out the little cards until a suit on the matter is settled.

The cards are designed very much like the Master Charge cards, except that the words "Christ Charge" replace the words "Master Charge." The cards say, "Give Christ Charge of your life."

Interbank Card Association sued Simms and the company two years ago, claiming its copyright to the Master Charge name and symbol had been violated.

Simms claimed the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution gave him the right to distribute the cards, since it guarantees freedom of the press.

two former Mennonite mission and relief workers in Vietnam — Americans Don Sensenig of Lancaster, Pa., and Max Ediger of Turpin, Okla. — and the writer. Sensenig, who works with Vietnamese refugees in Lancaster, speaks Vietnamese fluently.

Vietnam, politically aligned with the Communist bloc, is giving signals that it is anxious to restore diplomatic relations with the Western powers, especially the United States. And in various ways it is suggesting that it isn't bent on a hard-line Communist course.

A unique Vietnamese style of socialism could be seen and heard in many ways, and there was little sign of anti-American bitterness.

Despite 20 years of Communist government in the North, free enterprise survives. Even the government official who traveled with the Mennonites throughout their tour said that for certain food he goes to the private stalls in the Hanoi market.

Organized religion may also be doing better in Vietnam than many had predicted at the end of the war in April 1975.

Christmas is still a big celebration throughout Vietnam, where the Roman Catholic Church was once a powerful presence. Several Christians told the Mennonites they had received food and supplies from the authorities at Christmas so they could enjoy a truly "solemn celebration."

Catholics, Evangelicals and Buddhists all reported they had received government aid for rebuilding war-damaged churches or pagodas.

Culturally, at least, the Vietnamese do not seem totally caught in the Moscow orbit.

On all their air flights over Vietnam, the delegation was surprised to find that announcements were in Vietnamese and English, despite the presence of Russians or East Germans. At the Hanoi airport, a Russian woman, asking for directions in her language, was told by a young attendant, "I'm sorry, I speak English."

Vietnamese told their guests that they have no reason to hate "American people." Their long struggle was against French and American "imperialists," not the people, and against the "puppet" regime in South Vietnam, they said. Western Vietnam-watchers have been concerned about the fate of former supporters of the so-called "puppet" government in Saigon. The tour produced few solid clues to how they are being treated.

Hunt Wants To Move Inmates To County Jail

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt wants the help and cooperation of North Carolina's county commissioners in moving some inmates from overcrowded state prisons to county jails.

Hunt outlined his request Friday at a meeting of county commissioners. He said his administration is dedicated to removing 3,000 of the state's 14,300 prisoners from overcrowded facilities within the next several months.

Hunt told the commissioners the county jails would be "fully reimbursed" for any state prisoners housed there.

Forsyth County Sheriff Manly Lancaster said Hunt met with several sheriffs about three weeks ago to discuss the transfers.

"The general consensus was that we think a lot of the governor and want to go along with him on solving some of the problems," Lancaster said.

Jimmy No, Opera Yes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Fearing the wrath of local "opera nuts," radio station KLAS bumped President Carter's live call-in show today to a later time-slot so it could broadcast the Metropolitan Opera at the normal time.

"I can shuffle everything around, but I can't shuffle the opera around," said station owner Alvin Korngold. "All of a sudden the opera nuts start calling up."

Besides taking a back seat to a live broadcast of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," Carter's show was being held until after the UCLA basketball game before getting on the air here on a tape-delayed basis.

The problem is one of timing for KLAS, this gambling mecca's affiliate of the CBS radio network, which is footing the bill for the two-hour presidential call-in program.

"Ask the President" starts at the same hour, 11 a.m. (PST), as the regular weekly broadcast of the Met live from New York.

For 37 years, Texaco has sponsored the weekly opera broadcasts, which are contracted for individually by radio stations across the nation. Because of a longstanding contractual policy, the production company handling the Metropolitan Opera programming each week has insisted on live broadcasts — no tape delays for any reason.

After Korngold pre-empted the opera for a University of Nevada-Las Vegas basketball game three weeks ago, he got more than 100 protest calls and a number of angry letters.

James Dunlap, a spokesman for Texaco in New York City, said the decision was completely Korngold's.

KLAS's decision did not mean Southern Nevadans could not call the toll-free number for the presidential program. But it meant they could not hear themselves until later in the day, if indeed they reached Carter.

Odds of getting to Carter were very slim, but this town is full of longshot players.

"but it's going to have to be on a restrictive basis."

He added, "If it's going to work, it's going to have to be voluntary. It's going to have to be based on the availability in each jail."

Wake Sheriff Robert Pleasants said he could not accept any prisoners from the state at this time. He said, "I would like to cooperate, but I'm not prepared to accept anyone now."

Wants A State Rock

DOVER, Del. (AP) — A state bird, state flower, state tree and state bug apparently aren't enough to satisfy some symbol-conscious Delaware legislators. A move is underway to select a state rock.

Democratic Majority Leader Casimir S. Jonkier of Wilmington said he introduced the bill on behalf of a group of naturalists, but couldn't recall the group's name.

The bill seeks to have sillimanite declared the official state rock.

Peter B. Leavens, a University of Delaware geologist, said the mineral is not particularly remarkable but is about the only one indigenous to Delaware that can be cut as a gem.

Correction Secretary Amos Reed, in remarks to the commissioners, described the overcrowded situation in state prisons as "intolerable."

"The problems are gross," he said. "They have been accumulating over the years and they must be addressed."

Hunt told the group, "Nobody wants a prison, but we have to have them somewhere. I want you to understand that."

Plan Announced To Publish Book On Greenville

THE GREENVILLE AREA STORY, in words and pictures will be published by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce according to President

Lawton Nisbet. "We're going to put a new sales tool in the hands of the Chamber," Nisbet said. "This book will tell the whole story of the Greenville Area and will give us a chance to put our best foot forward in attracting new industry and residents," he continued.

The cost of publishing the book will be underwritten by advertising space purchased by members of the Greenville Area business community," Nisbet said.

The decision to publish a book was reached by the Board of Directors of the Chamber when this program was presented to the board for approval by Windsor Publications, specializing in the preparation of books on cities throughout the United States.

The editorial team from Windsor has begun gathering facts. They will cover transportation, utilities and commerce in the city, plus the schools, churches, residential and recreational areas of the city.

The project will be directed by a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Serving on the committee are the following: Elizabeth Copeland, I.J. Edwards, Dr. C. Sylvester, Green, Charles O. Horne, and Dr. Ralph Rives.

The book will be distributed locally through professional waiting rooms, financial institutions, high traffic locations, and in industries.

For further information contact the Chamber of Commerce at 752-4101.

Seniors Chosen To Participate

Three seniors from Ayden-Gritton High School have been chosen to participate in a project sponsored by the Kinston Engineers Club.

The students are Patricia Anne Cannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton B. Cannon of Rt. 3, Ayden; Johnny Lee Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Cannon of Rt. 2, Gritton; and Tony Moye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Moye of 1801 Rusk Rd., Ayden.

The Kinston Engineers Club acts as liaison between high schools and various industries to permit selected students to visit and work with engineers and scientists in the normal performance of their duties. The students will be working with these professional persons in various fields of engineering and science for seven weeks each Wednesday from 8 a.m. to noon.

Poultry Course Set In Raleigh

RALEIGH — A poultry supervisor's short course will be held here Tuesday and Wednesday at the McKimmon Center.

The program will be conducted by the N. C. State University Department of Poultry Science in cooperation with the N. C. Poultry Industry.

A registration fee of $15 per person will include lunch on the second day. Advance registration is requested to assist in course planning. For further information contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196.

Free Art Lessons For Area Students

As a public service, free art classes are being offered to local children by the School of Art, East Carolina University.

Classes will be for two age groups, grades four through six and grades seven through nine.

The classes will be taught by faculty members and junior and senior students of the Art Education Department of the School of Art. Most all material needed by children will be furnished by the university.

Classes for students in grades four through six will be from 4 to 5 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday; with students in grades seven through nine being taught on Wednesday between 4 and 5 p.m.

Classes will begin Monday, March 14 and will run through May, and will be held in Room 1342 of the Jenkins Fine Arts Building.

Enrollment is to take place between the hours of 2 to 5 p.m. daily Monday through Thursday, March 7-10. Persons desiring more information are to call 757-6665 or 757-6563.

Parents And Students Toured ECU Facility

Parents participating in the parent volunteer program at Wellcome Middle School traveled with students on a tour of the ECU Biology department recently.

The tour began with the observation of a device called an environment control chamber where specimens and plants are kept in special light and temperatures. The tour included a visit to the greenhouse where students saw cactus plants, banana trees, coconut trees, geraniums, moss, ferns, sensitive mormoses and a pitcher plant.

The students also visited the animal museum where they saw a monkey skeleton, baby sharks, snake skeletons, frog skeletons, a seven foot snake in a jar, a sea horse, and shells.

ECHSA Meets March 9

The Governing Body of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will meet Wednesday, March 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Thomas Willis Regional Development Institute.

Agenda items will include the following: (1) Discussion and recommendation from the ECHSA to the State Health Planning and Development Agency to amend the State Medical Facilities Plan to accommodate an additional bed tower for the Pitt Memorial Hospital and ECU School of Medicine and a 33 bed Regional Neonatal intensive care unit for the Pitt Memorial Hospital and ECU School of Medicine; and (2) Regional Emergency Medical Services, status, goals and objectives. The public is invited.

'Last Legacy' Of Walter Winchell Proves A Point

By FRED T. FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — If, as critics said, much of Walter Winchell's column was a product of press agents, a lot still came from the celebrities themselves. His "last legacy" proves it.

Press agents did hover nightly about Table 50, reserved for Winchell in the Stork Club, a former speakeasy he helped make famous.

But Gene Tunney, Johnny Ray, George Jean Nathan and hundreds of other celebrities did their own currying of favor, as demonstrated by a select 300 "Dear Walter" letters.

"I am sending you a copy of my own book, 'The Babe Ruth Story,' which (the late columnist) Bob Considine helped me to put down on paper," wrote the Babe in 1948.

Robert Mitchum, Emily Post, Andre Kostelanetz. Theirs are among the letters, which in effect make up a last legacy to charity left by the syndicated columnist who died of cancer Feb. 20, 1972.

"My little daughter has started school," wrote Jayne Mansfield in 1956. "I think she was the only child who traveled there in a pink jaguar. Now she doesn't want to take the school bus."

Adolphe Menjou, Vaughn Monroe, Helena Rubinstein are in the six-inch stack of varied stationary Winchell gave to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund prior to his death.

Runyon had been one of Winchell's few close friends. J. Edgar Hoover was another. When Runyon died of cancer in 1946, Winchell collected donations for cancer research and the fund was founded as an outgrowth of that effort.

Boris Karloff, in 1950, denied by note that he was "not speaking to Jean Arthur except on stage" in a Broadway play.

Franchot Tone, Norman Cousins, Sophie Tucker.

The letters are to be auctioned to add to the $4 million fund has raised, indicative of the awesome, sometimes cruel, power the innovator of the gossip column had.

"As my dear old grandmother would say," wrote Walter Kiernan, "there are two things a man works for — a kind word from his wife and one from Winchell."

Raymond Massey, Groucho Marx, Lord Beaverbrook.

Winchell's penciled notations on the letters told his secretary,

Rose Bigman, how to reply. Most indicated how the response should be addressed but occasionally there is a putdown, reminiscent of the disparaging items that made him enemies. On one he wrote, "I never fight enemies — only ingrates."

Signed "Papa" is a note from Ernest Hemingway, after he was reported killed in Africa in 1954. Thanking Winchell for a premature eulogy, Hemingway seized the moment to try to end one of Winchell's bitter, vituperative feuds, this one with competing columnist Leonard Lyons.

"Walter, if it were possible, could you and Lenny call the feud off and be friends? It would mean a great deal to me if you could." He added in cramped handwriting, "This is one of the things I thought about when the chips were down." Then he apologized for having dictated the typed portion, explaining, "arm slightly ungloved."

P. G. Wodehouse, Casey Stengel, Ethel Merman.

The letters were selected by Miss Bigman on Winchell's instructions that they be from among those "not damaging to anyone" and have commercial value to signature collectors.

"If you think you could find the time and fortitude enough to climb three long flights of stairs, I should be happy to have you come for tea," wrote Eleanor Roosevelt to invite him to her Manhattan apartment. She understood his nightlife prowling precluded lunch. President Roosevelt had liked his anti-Nazi diatribes and would give him tips.

Bernard M. Baruch, Nelson Rockefeller, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Political leaders wrote mostly to praise his anti "ratsies" (for nazis) broadcasts and his support of various charity campaigns. But, although there are letters from Harry S. Truman and Margaret Truman, his White House alliance dwindled as he scurried to support Sen. Joseph McCarthy's hunt for "communists."

Sigmund Romberg, Rudy Vallee, Hope Hampton.

The letters go back through the 1920s when the onetime song and dance man, who got his start hoofing with George Jessel, began the column. But most are from the 1930s, '40s and '50s when his column reached syndication in 700 newspapers, a staccato radio sequel going to "Mr. and Mrs. North America and all the ships at sea."

"I was delighted to discover that you were one of the converts to 'My Little Boy,'" wrote Alexander Woolcott in 1938. "Incidentally, if you have read it at least two dozen times — perhaps three dozen — you ought to have noticed by this time that it was in 'Woolcott's First Reader' and not his Second. Not that I care, you sloppy SOB, so long as you love it as I do."

Clifton Fadiman, Cecil B. deMille, Stepin Fetchit.

Not noted for accuracy, his columns and broadcasts were implicitly believed by millions. The letters show, however, that he would double check. Paul Douglas wrote to thank him for doing so.

"I know you're not kidding but I can't believe it," Douglas said of a rumor Winchell asked him about. "I'm as much anti Nazi — anti Lindbergh — anti isolationist in my private way as you are, thank God, publicly."

Jack E. Leonard, Marion Davies, Herbert Bayard Swope.

Most are brief notes. Ed Wynn's: "Dear Walter, Thanks. Ed."

Others seek a "Winchell" item — a couple would "middle-aisle," be "welded," later "infanticide," eventually be "storked."

A few, mostly signed Louis Armstrong, are long. "Sat-chmo" gave detailed vernacular accounts of his performances, travels, clothes, boyhood, friends.

Ethel Waters, Robert F. Kennedy, Mike Wallace.

Even publisher Adolph S. Ochs wrote in 1933, to thank him for "your friendly effort to put the quietus to the ridiculous report that the New York Times was for sale."

Blossom Seeley, Barry Goldwater, Upton Sinclair.

Some were guest columns when Winchell was going on vacation. Ring Lardner, in one such, said, "I don't care who runs this country's morals so long as somebody runs Bugs Baer twice a day."

Winchell died lonely in Los Angeles, the age of the gossip column long passed. Surviving to his credit is the renamed Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Cancer Fund, 33 W. 55th St., New York, and his last legacy, the letters for auction.

Eddie Cantor, Wendell Willkie, Betty Hutton and many more.

Hundred Ways For A Family To Save

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most American families spend more than half their income on food and housing, including utilities.

Two faculty members at the University of Kentucky reached this conclusion after charting three annual budgets for a family of four in urban areas of the United States. They estimated a low-budget family's total consumption at $7,318 out of a total budget of $9,198; intermediate consumption at $10,880 out of a total budget of $14,333 and high consumption at $14,976 out of a total budget of $20,777.

Then, Dean Marjorie S. Stewart and Assistant Dean Willodean D. Moss sat down with 14 other faculty members of the College of Home Economics to find 100 ways to save money. They were listed in a recent issue of the "Journal of Home Economics" of the American Home Economics Assn.

The savings suggestions include:

Waste less food. They wrote that residents of Kentucky alone empty $3.881 million worth of food into garbage cans annually.

Help avoid expensive medical bills by preparing nutritious meals and avoiding empty-calorie foods.

Buy classic clothing with simple trim that won't go out of fashion or require a lot of expensive upkeep. Examine everything for quality of construction and fabric before you buy.

If you sew, use scraps and remnants to make gifts.

Don't wait for birthdays and Christmas to buy gifts. Pick them up throughout the year at sale prices.

Remember that pastel colors require more dry cleaning and laundering, making upkeep expensive.

Check out factory outlets for clothing: surplus merchandise, samples, discontinued lines.

Think barter: if you have household skills that your neighbor lacks, set up an exchange for your mutual benefit.

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week in Pitt County schools have been announced as follows:

Monday — (manager's choice) hot dog on bun or beans and franks, french fries, cole slaw, applesauce, cake and milk;

Tuesday — Sloppy Joe on bun, buttered corn, peas and carrots, pears, milk;

Wednesday — (manager's choice) barbecue or fried chicken, mashed potatoes with gravy, green beans, purple plums, hot rolls, milk;

Thursday — vegetable beef soup with crackers, peanut butter and jelly sandwich, peach crisp, orange juice, milk;

Friday — cheeseburger on bun, french fries, cole slaw, frozen fruit, juice bar, milk.

More Mexican, Spanish Foods

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — Retail sales of Mexican and Spanish food in the United States more than doubled between 1973-1975, going from $107.4 million to $210.3 million, says the United Dairy Industry Association. The trade organization also said the nation has 8,000 Mexican fast-food restaurants now, compared with only 1,000 five years ago.

Museum Tells Metz' History

METZ, France (UPI) — A new archaeological museum devoted to the history of the city of Metz opened to the public with exhibits of artifacts being displayed for the first time.

The exhibits include stained-glass windows made when the town was still called by its Roman name "Divodurum," religious objects, documents, a reconstructed building from the Roman occupation and price-less mosaics from that era.

Group Would Regulate Sale Of The Used Cars

By RON HUTCHERSON
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A consumer group has called for regulation of used car dealers because, they say, lying by salesmen is common.

The California Public Interest Group based its conclusion that regulation is needed on a survey of 182 used motor vehicle dealers.

"The public needs and deserves some controls in this industry to assure that used motor vehicles sold in this country are comparatively safe, are as advertised, are a reasonably good investment for the consumer and are a source and means of transportation rather than of economic crisis and-or disaster," the student group said in a report it prepared for the Federal Trade Commission.

The group, with FTC financing, investigated sales practices and tactics of used car dealers and surveyed consumer attitudes before preparing the report for presentation at FTC hearings in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The research group sent 36 trained test buyers to 182 dealerships, haggled with and questioned salesmen, took 156 cars out for diagnostic tests, returned them without buying, informed sellers of defects discovered in the tests, and, with substitute test shoppers, asked about defects in follow-up visits.

"Used motor vehicle dealers do not regularly disclose known defects — what they know is wrong with their cars," project director David Rogoff said.

"Car dealer representatives lie to potential customers 75 per cent of the time about the condition of vehicles," the report said. "In the 101 cases where vehicles were diagnosed by test buyers and subsequently visited by surveyors a second time, 76 sales people did not disclose the mechanical defects they knew the vehicle to have."

"In some cases a few defects were disclosed, but so few in relation to the total number that the revelations constituted non-disclosure in fact."

The surveyors found that 47 per cent of used car buyers prefer to buy from a private party, that 53 per cent would prefer dealers if warranties were provided, that 60 per cent would prefer dealers if disclosure laws were in effect and that 63 per cent would prefer buying from dealers if cooling-off periods were allowed.

"Consumers indicated they would purchase from dealers more often if any of the different regulations were in effect," the report said. "Regulation would help rather than hurt dealer sales."

Houseplants Add A Crust

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — About the time white stuff stops falling outdoors it begins building up on houseplants indoors.

The dirty white crust that tends to form on soil and pots toward the end of winter consists of soluble salts rising to the surface as the plants dry out quickly in the dry, warm environment.

Don Steinegger, extension horticulturist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, says this white stuff can be avoided by using distilled instead of tap water. Because purchased distilled water is expensive, he recommends substituting clean melted snow or drippings from a defrosting refrigerator.

Salts that have already formed should be scraped off the soil surface before adding some new soil mix. Leaching also works: set the plant in a sink or over a bucket and add fresh tap water as fast as the soil can absorb it. Use at least five times as much water as the pot would hold if it were empty.

Engineer Molds Second Career

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Al Colton, an engineer with a master's degree from the University of Southern California, is molding a second career as a sculptor. It is his way to preserve his Hopi Indian heritage.

His aunt, Elizabeth White, is a famous Hopi potter, and Colton learned pottery techniques from her.

As a potter, he uses his Indian name, Kuwanwisiwma Quoyawayma. He recently won two blue ribbons at the Heard Museum Indian Arts and Craft Show here.

City School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week in Greenville's elementary schools have been announced as follows:

Monday — spaghetti, tossed salad, french bread, peaches with cookies, milk;

Tuesday — vegetable soup with crackers, gelatin with peas, peanut butter sandwich, milk;

Wednesday — oven-fried chicken, rice and gravy, green beans, cranberry sauce, milk;

Thursday — chili con carne, nuttie cabbage salad, rolls, peach cobbler, milk;

Friday — seafood burger, cole slaw, french fries, sunshine cake, milk.

PLAIN DIRT FROM PLAINS — Robert Pentecost of Louisville, Ky. holds a piece of plain dirt that he is trying to peddle at $3 per cubic inch. The dirt comes from Plains, Ga., President Carter's hometown. Pentecost, who says the dirt can be used as a paper weight or simply as a conversation piece, advertised in two Louisville papers to test the public interest. The sample he's holding says, "My Very Own Piece of Plains, Georgia". (AP Wirephoto)

COMPACT LEISURE HOME ENJOYS DECK

By Jerry Bishop

Two bedrooms and a sprawling family living area are favored with sliding glass doors that merge indoors and outdoors in the Telluride, a compact vacation plan.

In 888 sq. ft. of living area, the design answers basic living needs and features laundry and storage space as well. But its outstanding asset is that the home lives with nature and at the same time enjoys shelter and surroundings. The plan is fronted by a 50-ft. deck that is clearly meant for more than decoration. It is close to dining areas for picnics and close to bedrooms for relaxing under the stars. In addition, the deck is favored with the main entry into the home.

The family area alone offers 576 sq. ft. of open space for dining and informal living. Flanked by two storage closets, the room also merits a prefabricated fireplace for a restful atmosphere. The kitchen, complete and compact, is an integral part of the area, and with the bordering laundry room, keeps time-consuming chores to a minimum. The rear entry is a plus.

Windowed and furnished with double sinks, the full bath is handy to living and sleeping areas. Two bedrooms jut out from the home like miniature wings, offering sleeping space that is more than adequate.

AREA	SQ. FT.
Family area	— 576
Bedroom #1	— 168
Bedroom #2	— 144
Total	— 888

Each bedroom is supplied with a closet, and expanses of windows admit abundant light and scenery.

A versatile plan, the Telluride can also be built without one or both bedrooms. In the latter case, sleeping space can be carved from the 23-ft. family area, and bedrooms, if desired, can be added at a later date.

Home Energy Sources Explored

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Power companies are testing many new ways to bring less costly energy to consumers. For example, storing electricity in bricks at night for use the next day. The night rate would be cheap, explained W. Donham Crawford, president of the Edison Electric Institute, an association of investor-owned electric utilities.

"It's an idea that has been used in European countries for decades. In the morning the electric load comes back and the reduced rate is cut off. The method has not been used in the United States before because electricity always has been cheap, but now it is justified," he explained.

The project is being tested, he says, by the Green Mountain Power Corp. in Burlington, Vt., and the American Electric Power System which is field testing it in homes in areas from West Virginia to Michigan. It works like this:

Two units of an electric thermal storage space heating system are positioned side by side — a conventional electric furnace and a British-built heat storage furnace containing a brick-like refractory core inside a heavily insulated metal cabinet.

From 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. the conventional electric furnace heats the home while the storage furnace is charging and storing heat for use the next day. At 7 a.m. both units cut off and for the next 16 hours, a blower moves air across the hot bricks in the storage core to provide heat for the home using electricity only to run the blower. At 11 p.m. the off-peak direct heating and storage cycle begins anew.

"It's an idea that would be a good use of energy if we become heavily reliant on electrical cars in the future," Crawford explains. At night you would plug your car into a storage battery.

"And if enough people could be persuaded to voluntarily use their electricity at off-peak times, avoiding the peak hours — 9 to 11 and 3 to 7 — the outlook could change, but it would probably be difficult to get people to do their wash at night or to shop at 9 p.m.," says Crawford, whose institute offers a booklet that provides 104 ways to use less energy.

"As it is now, every time a company must meet new demands, it must put in extra turbo generators even if they are to be used only a short time to meet those demands," he continued. "The whole point is that companies are trying to get more use out of existing equipment. If they could, the savings could be passed on to consumers," he said.

Tests are under way to control peak use in other ways with the agreement of customers. A Detroit company has a signal that could turn off electric water heaters in homes. A Vermont power company is experimenting with a radio control system that might beam into a home when the burden becomes too great, "all pretty much on a test basis," Crawford notes. Such ideas might require new meters and other equipment which would be an added expense.

"Connecticut is using some nuclear power successfully. Many people are frightened of the word nuclear, but a year's waste from one plant represents a solid cube of about 3 feet by 3 feet and they are thinking about getting rid of it permanently," explains Crawford. He worked with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission after naval service following his graduation from Annapolis in 1947.

The fuel is controversial because of radiation fears, he observed, "but you probably get more radiation from an ordinary house of masonry." Recently, seven states — California, Washington, Oregon, Arizona, Colorado, Ohio and Montana — voted for nuclear power, he points out.

In ten years it is expected "that more than 100 plants will have been built by 50 or so of the larger companies," he said. Meanwhile, utility companies are exploring many possibilities of tapping new fuel sources. Experiments at Northeast Utilities include those with laser fusion that would use a fuel source found in ordinary water, solar energy, wind power, fuel cells — devices which produce electricity directly by chemical reaction and energy that could be converted from solid wastes.

Answers Timely
Gardening Questions

Q. We have a spirea hedge that has grown much too large. It is badly in need of pruning. Is this the proper time to prune spirea? (Mrs. W. T., Charlotte)

A. The best time to prune spirea is just as the plant goes out of bloom — as flowers begin to fade in the springtime. Spirea can be pruned heavily, as summer growth is rapid. (Henry J. Smith, Extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Clumps of wild garlic are coming up in my yard. How is the best way to get rid of them? (E. W., Randleman)

A. Mix a 1 per cent solution of 2, 4-D in a plastic squeeze-type detergent bottle. Then squirt one to two teaspoons of the solution of each clump of garlic. (W. M. Lewis, extension agronomist)

Q. Can Chinese cabbage be grown in North Carolina? (J. F., Scotland Neck)

A. Yes, Chinese cabbage is a good garden vegetable that can be grown throughout the state. It is a cool season crop that can be planted in either fall or spring. For a spring crop, sow seed directly in the row in late March or April. Thin six to eight inches after the plants come up. You should be eating cabbage — cooked or in salad — about 60 days after planting. (A. A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. What in the world is this large orange swelling on my pine tree? (C. J., Wilson)

A. Probably the disease called Fusiform rust that is very common in Eastern North Carolina. A similar disease called eastern gall rust is more common in the Piedmont area of the state. It can kill a young pine if it occurs on the main trunk. If it is on a branch, prune it off promptly. When purchasing new pine trees to plant, avoid any trees with swollen areas on the trunk. (R. K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Two preliminary public health courses offered through the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, School of Public Health will be conducted at East Carolina University beginning March 10.

The courses, PUBH 100: Ecology of Human Health, and BIOS 100: Public Health Statistics, are the initial courses in UNC's Master's degree program in public health administration. The courses are being conducted in cooperation with the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions and the Eastern Area Health Education Center and under the sponsorship of the N. C. Area Health Education Center program.

In addition to students who have made formal application for the degree program, a very limited number of qualified individuals with experience in the health field may register for one or both of these courses as non-degree students. Persons so interested should contact Donald Dancy, Chairman, Department of Community Health, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C., telephone 757-6961.

Registration will begin on March 10 at 2:00 in Room 206 of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

PLAN YOUR HOME

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

When painting a room, the proper procedure is to do the ceiling first, then the walls and finally the windows.

A common mistake is to do each window as you reach it while painting the walls. This isn't a good practice for several reasons. It means you must halt the painting of the walls at awkward places. It involves the use of a second brush while the first is still dripping with paint. And it calls for a longer period of work at a single time.

Better to paint the ceiling as the first step, tackling the walls next if you feel like it, putting them off until the next day if you wish. Then, whenever you feel in the mood, even the following week, you can paint the windows almost as though it was a separate project, which it almost is.

The job of painting windows is a lot easier when the proper brush is used. It should be one with angled bristles, called a sash brush, or something similar. The angled bristles make it easier to handle along narrow strips and in confined areas. The brush should be dipped in only about one-third its length, with the excess paint tapped off on the inside of the container. As the brush is pressed down very lightly so that the bristles spread out in fan-like fashion, the edges of the bristles should be permitted to touch the edge of the glass as you move along.

There are several ways to handle what almost always happens, no matter how careful you are, which is getting a little of the paint on the glass where it doesn't belong. One is simply to forget about the bit of paint on the glass, wait until it is completely dry and then scrape it off with a single-edged razor or a tool that holds a blade. Another is to keep a rag handy and, as soon as there is a smear, wipe it off. You can use one of the metal or plastic shields that is slid along with the brush to protect the glass from the paint. Or you can substitute one of those throwaway pieces of cardboard that come inside men's new shirts or those that have been laundered professionally. If a shield or piece of cardboard is used, you will find that you have to keep wiping it off as you proceed with the painting.

Some persons use masking tape to protect the glass. If you use this method, you'll have to get the knack of putting on the tape exactly right, which involves butting it against the wood but not on it. If it isn't butted up against the wood, some of the paint will get on the glass. If any of the tape is on the wood, that portion will not get any paint on it.

Painting casement windows is no particular problem if you remember to do the muntins first. These are the wooden strips separating the glass. With a double-hung window, the first step is to raise the lower sash and lower the upper sash. Paint the inside edge of the upper meeting rail, then the top of that rail, then a couple of inches up the muntins. Next, lower the bottom sash and raise the upper sash, the opposite of what you previously did, only this time leave a fraction of an inch leeway so that each sash has a little clearance. Now paint all exposed surfaces, with the window sill, frame and surrounding trim being done last.

To prevent future sticking, be sure to move both window sashes up and down carefully within 8 to 10 hours after the windows have been painted.

Q. — We have a lamp in our bedroom which flickers every once in a while. We know there is nothing wrong with the outlet because when another lamp is plugged into it, the lamp works perfectly. What could be causing this and how can it be fixed? Frankly, I do not know too much about lamps or electricity.

A. — Although you do not say so, it is assumed that you have turned the bulb to be sure that it is seated firmly. Sometimes a bulb not screwed in all the way will flicker occasionally. If you have not done this and now do so, be sure you unplug the cord from the outlet first. When you turn the bulb clockwise to tighten it, do it carefully and without pressure, otherwise the bulb will break in your hand. Replace the plug in the outlet and turn on the light. If the flicker is still present, remove the plug a second time and check every inch of the wire, including the parts that go into the plug and those that go into the lamp. Should there be something wrong, you will have to fix the trouble or replace the entire cord. It would take far too long to detail the steps that must be taken to handle this problem, especially since different lamps must be handled differently, but the entire procedure can be learned fairly quickly if you can get someone to show you how it is done. Actually, knowing how a lamp is put together and how it works is one of the best ways to introduce yourself to the mysteries of a simple electrical unit.

Q. — Can you tell me how to insulate an attic floor between the joists? I intend to use the insulation that comes in batts.

(Where and how to insulate your home yourself, either from scratch or as an addition to insulation already there, is explained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Saving Money by Insulating," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions cannot be answered individually.)

HOW TO CUT COOKING COSTS

TOP OF RANGE COOKING
Keep reflector pans under units clean. Shiny, clean surfaces reflect the most heat, increase efficiency. . . . Use flat-bottomed pots and pans that cover the top range units to prevent heat loss around the sides of the pan. . . . Use as little water as possible, so it will boil more quickly. . . . And use of tight-fitting lids allow vegetables to steam rather than boil, preserving their appearance and natural vitamins. . . . Also, once boiling starts, the heat can be turned down to save energy and help prevent sticking. Turn the heat off two or three minutes before the end of cooking time. Retained heat in pan will finish the cooking.

Presented as a CONSUMER SERVICE by your CONSUMER OWNED ELECTRIC UTILITY

OVEN COOKING
Plan meals ahead—for soups, stews and casseroles that take a long time to cook, make double amounts. Then freeze half for future use. . . . Plan entire oven meals around dishes requiring about the same baking temperature, and try to prepare several meals at once. . . . Oven preheating requires no more than 10 minutes, and dishes needing more than an hour of cooking time may be started in a cool oven. . . . Don't keep peeking in the oven. It wastes heat.

The Waverly Consort Due Here

THE WAVERLY CONSORT — an ensemble of nine singers and players, will perform at Mendenhall at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 16. Four of the members are shown in this photograph.

The Waverly Consort, a group of nine singers and instrumentalists specializing in music of the 13th through the 17th centuries, will perform at Mendenhall Student Center at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, March 16.

In their programs, the ensemble uses over 50 unusual Medieval, Renaissance, and Baroque instruments creating authentic music of the period. The instruments range from the flute and recorder to the hurdy-gurdy and Renaissance military drums. Music by the ensemble includes gentle pastorales and madrigals as well as ribald drinking songs and bawdy ballads of country love.

Tickets for The Waverly Consort are priced at $4 and are now available at the East Carolina University Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, telephone 757-6611, extension 266.

Woodbine Recital

William White of Woodbine, Iowa, a senior voice student in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will present his senior recital at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Mar. 10 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

White will be accompanied by pianist Laura Soles and assisted by vocalists Nancy Beavers, Susan West, Doug Newell, and Michael McDonald.

For his program, he has chosen songs by Purcell, Schumann, Brahms, Wolf, Mozart, Ravel, Barber and Rorem.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

March 15 At McGinnis Theater Of The Deaf To Perform

The National Theater of the Deaf, an internationally-known company, will be at ECU for one performance on Tuesday, March 15 at 8 p.m. in McGinnis Auditorium.

Sponsored by the ECU Student Union Theater Arts

Committee. The National Theater of the Deaf combines sign language, speech, mime and music to create a fine theatrical experience for both hearing and deaf audiences.

In the U.S., the company has given over 1,500 performance s in 46 states, including two successful Broadway appearances. More than 100 million have viewed the troupe on television, most notably in the CBS Christmas Special of "A Child's Christmas in Wales" co-starring Michael Redgrave.

An all-new production of Gertrude Stein's Four Saints in Three Acts with music by Virgil Thomson will be performed at the ECU production. Also on the bill will be Chekhov's The Harmfulness of Tobacco; and Children's Letters To God including additional poetry by Robert Frost and e.e. cummings. Tickets for The National Theater of the Deaf are $4 and are available at the ECU Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, telephone 757-6611, ext. 266.

Hospitality House

Guests from Greenville and Kinston will be making appearances on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" from noon to 1 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Tom Forbes, Pitt County farmer and novelist, will talk about his first novel, Quincey's Harvest, explaining the natural and spiritual qualities applicable to his farm-based book.

Stuart Aronson will discuss progress on the play he has written for Historic Bath, Blackbeard, The Knight of the Black Flag, which is to be presented at the newly constructed amphitheater this summer in Bath. He will also sing a couple of songs.

Kinston guests include persons connected with the forthcoming March 12 Arts and Crafts Show in Kinston — Ann Sayetta, maker of stuffed toys; Mary Frances Litchfield, lampshades; and the show's co-chairman, Martha Flowers.

Simple at home methods of cooking Chinese food will be featured in the kitchen, and a film of fashions will also be shown.

Barker Show At Gray Gallery

Conceived light, light expressed in soft circles of the merest tint of color or tiny shreds of suspended splinters — is the strongest impression I get from Small Works From The Years 1947-1977, the Walter Barker show now on view at the Wellington B. Gray Art Gallery on campus at East Carolina University.

In this 30 year span of the art of Barker, the search and experimentation of an artist in varying media and style is very much in evidence — a formative, expressive, pleasure giving process that has nothing to do with the cold formality of search in itself.

Small Works is an accurate enough title, though the about 40 pieces on the walls at the Gray Gallery are as small as a page in some instances and are up to four by five feet in others.

Several of the series painted by Barker in past years are represented with a few examples of each — The I-Ching Series; the Persian and the Greek Series; and the Paradox Series.

Interspersed are individually styled drawings and paintings — a bold pencil drawing of a young man's head in a field of pure white; an early (1947) formal arrangement pencil study ("Junior Year") of a hat, an artist's wooden figure model and a musical instrument; a geometric purple-lavender-plum painting in which a white circle is centered. All these reveal the versatility of the artist in being able to depict highly divergent styles of art.

I find myself responding most keenly to Barker's newer work. Simplified yet intense, lyrical and at the same time taut, each luminous area of wash, each cluster of spiky calligraphic influenced lines coalesce into works that appeal on many planes.

The Barker exhibition comes here from the Weatherspoon Art Gallery at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, and is made available through the courtesy of the Betty Parsons Gallery of New York.

Barker, who has exhibited widely in the U.S. and in foreign countries, is the winner of numerous awards. His work is in many public collections — such as the City Art Museum of St. Louis, The Museum of Modern Art, New York; The Philadelphia Museum of Fine Art, The Nelson Gallery, Kansas City Art Center, etc.

This exhibition will be on view through March 28. It can be seen daily from 9 to 5 p.m. and there is no admission charge.

As the second show at the newly opened Gray Gallery, the Walter Barker show is an affirmation that the spacious, well-lit gallery is filling a vital role in getting the best of shows for Greenville art lovers.

Jerry Raynor

UNTITLED...a 1955 drawing by Walter Barker, is a bouquet of strong and muted colors — pinks, faded golds, grays and chocolate. This is one of about 40 works by the artist on view in the Gray Gallery on campus at ECU.

Poems Touch On 'Trash'

White Trash. An Anthology of Contemporary Southern Poets. Edited by Nancy Stone and Robert Waters Gray. Charlotte. The New South Company, 108 pps. $5.50 (By mail from The New South Company, 1226 Dilworth Road, Charlotte, N.C., 28203).

White Trash as George Garrett tells us in the introduction, is not tacky, and there's a difference, the difference being an ability to admit and enjoy "a touch of trash," while "...those who don't are just tacky, no matter how elegant and refined and aesthetic they may seem..."

This interesting little bit of reverse-snobbery is just another way of saying this book is about the common human condition couched largely in rural southern terms and you don't have to be a southerner to appreciate and enjoy it.

Fred Chappell takes us to a hog-killing, the ritual so many writers have used to symbolize the loss of childhood's innocence and brings it graphically and beautifully to life in "February." From here he leads us to a boy dropped by a rope into drowning blackness in "Cleaning the Well," a poem rich in image handled by a poet sure of himself.

"Clean it out good." He drifted pan/ and dipper down. I knelt and dredged/ The well floor. Ice-razors edged/ My eyes, the blackness flamed like fever./ Tin became nerve in my hand/ Bodiless. I shall rise never."

While James Applewhite, a familiar name in North Carolina, gives us from "Discardings"

"I drink branch water and bourbon / To the boards of his house that the wind/ Has turned to its color and taken entirely."

And from "Drinking Music"

"The song is rich and red, like what men eat/Sky is clear as the ninety proof shine they drink./ Lord, Lord, a man is a funny piece of meat/ Their boots are good in fields that understand their feet."

Heather Ross Miller as usual brings forward blinding images as in "The Vinegar Jug."

"These are the shining chains/ you make for me./ A man and his wife living in a vinegar jug/ and they were happy."

Jessie Schell in "The Blessing" tells of a dying father impelled to prove his love one last time.

"He whispers: You. You were my favorite./ You were. Always./ It is something he repeats./ He savors the taste of our names./ though he will not recall this secret confession/when the next child enters."

There are many poets in this collection who should be mentioned, — that's the trouble, there are so many, and some poems do not excerpt well. I hope they will forgive me. John Stones's "Double Header" gathers in all of us who have fallen short of our dreams; Coleman Barks' "from New Words" is fascinating; Jonathan Williams, Guy Owens, Barbara Lovell, William Harmon, and James Seay and several others are deserving of special mention.

There is a curious even tone to this book, in spite of the varied subjects and differing styles, perhaps the result of the many friendships and contacts these poets have among themselves.

Most of them have known each other at Greensboro, Chapel Hill or Charlotte. Do we have the formalization of a Piedmont Group? Whether or no, White Trash is interesting and well done and will appeal to the general reader as well as the poet.

New Art Classes Announced

Two art classes, one in drawing and one in painting, are scheduled to begin in March at the Greenville Art Center, 802 Evans Street.

A drawing class, to be taught by Professor Wesley Crawley, faculty member of the School of Art, East Carolina University, will be held each Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. beginning Wednesday, March 9. A total of ten weekly classes are being offered, with the March 9 initial class a "bonus" one to permit the instructor to meet each pupil and to determine the needs of each. This class is limited to 12, and one or two vacancies are still available.

The second class, one in painting, is being taught by Ray Elmore, also a faculty member of the ECU School of Art. The classes will meet each Thursday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., and enrollment is limited, with one or two vacancies still open for this class.

A small fee will be charged for each of the classes being offered.

Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the Art Center, has stated that if sufficient interest is shown, another series of classes in drawing will be planned at an early date.

Persons interested in information on the above or later classes are to call Mrs. Walker at 758-1946, Monday through Friday between 9 and noon, and 2 to 5 p.m.

Writers To Meet Tuesday

The first meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for the month of March will take place at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Sumrell, 2008 Fern Drive. The meeting is being hosted by Diane Leggett.

All persons interested in any form of creative writing are invited to attend.

Strider Wins Art Award

Dave Strider of Greenville is one of the five winners of a $500 award of merit at IM-AGES '77, the New Smyrna Beach, Fla. Festival of the Arts.

Strider's work, a hand carved wooden box, was one of several hundred entries submitted by about 200 local and nationally known artists and craftsmen.

'W-6' Show Opens Today

"W-6" (for Six Women) is the title of a new show opening today at the Kinston Art Center, Caswell Street in Kinston, featuring the art of six Greenville women artists.

Those to be showing work are Betsy Markowski, metals; Myra Sexauer, weaving; Dot Satterfield, weaving; Ann Riggs, ceramics; Sara Edmiston, bronzes; and Janet Eischer, jewelry.

The public is invited to attend the show which will be on view through the month of March.

Reception Today

A reception is being held at the Greenville Art Center today honoring the opening of the annual Pitt County School Children's Show.

Students from schools in the county are exhibiting their work during the month of March.

Interested persons are invited to attend the reception and to see the show while it is on view.

'The Volga' On PBS

For this season's fourth special, the National Geographic Society is airing The Volga, a rare photographic look at life in Russia along the majestic Volga River.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 8, The Volga will be broadcast over PBC (Channel 25 Greenville and Channel 2, Columbia) with E. G. Marshall as host and Jack Palance as narrator. The film is made possible with a grant from Gulf Oil Corporation.

Rich in history, the river has been called Matushka, or Mother, Volga, by generations of Russian poets, peasants, and musicians. It was along the river that the present Russian nation was born. Here Ivan the Terrible opened the way for Russian control of the Volga when he defeated the Tatars in 1552.

Weddings and military youth, decorated veterans and home life are all depicted in this special written, produced and directed by Irwin Rosten, assisted by Sascha Schneider, with photography by Andre Gunn and Boris Pavlov.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS — are shown in smart formation guarding the Pantheon on Mamayev Hill in Volgograd, a place of pilgrimage for millions of Russian honoring their dead.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JUNE PARKER

New this month in Sheppard Memorial Library are several different books of non-fiction. The first is DAVID—a mother's story of her son's recovery from a coma and brain damage by Dorothy Landvater. David had been involved in a near-fatal car accident resulting in his being in a coma for fifty-four days. When he came out of the coma, he could not move, speak, hear, or see. Today, three and a half years later, he has graduated from high school and is walking with the help of a walker. His mother carefully draws each detail of his recovery from his eyes to his first word which was "home". It is a story of perseverance in the face of a crisis and an account of human sympathy in times when it is said that no one wants to become involved.

The next book, MADE IN HEAVEN, SETTLED IN COURT by Marvin Mitchelson, examines another problem in today's society. Mitchelson, a well-known divorce lawyer who practices in Beverly Hills, explores various aspects of marriage and divorce. He chooses to discuss cases that best illustrate points of the law or significant aspects of human behavior. He discusses breach of promise suits, custody battles, and complex financial settlements. He talks about what people should ask themselves before finding a lawyer. He says that divorce is still seen as a positive proof of failure. People must learn to work with feelings of a damaged ego, anger, hurt, and betrayal. In his experience, women are still the biggest losers in a divorce. Property rights still favor the man. Also in this youth-oriented culture, a woman is considered to be old at the same age of which a man supposedly reaches his prime. This book is as much about marriage as it is about its end, and it will be interesting to those who want to stay together as well as those in unhappy relationships.

The last book is GINGER, LORETTA, AND IRENE WHO? by George Eells. This book examines the advantages and disadvantages of stardom as shown in the careers of Ginger Rogers, Miriam Hopkins, Ruth Etting, Loretta Young, Kay Francis, and Irene Bentley. All were actresses in the 1930's. All possessed a driving ambition. The book begins on New Year's Eve in 1933. Each was featured in a major motion picture and had hopes of a splendid career. This book shows what happened to each girl in her fight for success. Some had long-lasting fame and fortune. Others had wide acknowledgement, then a painful decline. Others only had a brief moment in the spotlight then a sudden decline. This book is a good study of the effects of money, power, and fame on different types of people as well as a good look at Hollywood in the 1930's.

Band Boosters To Meet

A meeting of the Greenville Band Boosters will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 8 in the Band Room of Rose High School. All persons interested in furthering the goals of bands in Greenville are invited to attend.

Workshop On Crafts Set

A workshop on Business in Crafts will be held on Friday, March 18, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Kinston Arts Council in Kinston.

Sponsored by the N.C. Craft Association (NORCA), a state organization of and for craftsmen, the workshop will be led by James Gentry, Education Director of the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild, and Pat Crawford, Executive Director of the Kinston Arts Council.

Registration for the seminar may be made by sending a registration fee of $6 (for NORCA members and $8.50 for non-members to NORCA, Box 9532, Asheville, N.C. 28905).

The world's first railroad built for public use was the Stockton and Darlington line, built in England in 1825 by George Stephenson.

By SYLVANA FOA
ROME (UPI) — Giuseppe Sabatini has been fixing the noses of famous Romans for decades.

"Some of my patients need a new arm, others a new leg and a great many of them need new heads," chuckled the impish Sabatini. "But almost every one of those old gentlemen, at one time or another, needs a new nose."

Sabatini, like his father before him, is a master artisan at the Rome Superintendency of Fine Arts. For the past 30 years he has been responsible for the repair and upkeep of the thousands of statues, fountains and monuments in the Eternal City.

While time and pollution exact a heavy toll on the marble treasures of Rome, Sabatini said, "the biggest enemies are vandals and thieves."

"Every year thieves chop off dozens of heads and hands from statues out in the parks to sell to art dealers or tourists," he said.

"But the vandals are worse — they just rove around smashing in faces and things for the hell of it."

The 49-year-old artisan often finds himself replacing the same head time and time again.

"Either my work is too good or the thieves are too stupid to tell the difference," he said. "I imagine that by now my art work adorns mantelpieces all over the world."

Sabatini blames insufficient surveillance, especially in the vast Villa Borghese gardens, for the ever-present vandalism.

"But it would be a terribly sad thing if our beautiful pieces were carted away to locked museums," he said. "They should be left out in the sun for those who love them."

Cleaning, reinforcing, scraping and replacing the missing parts of the various gods, kings, writers, philosophers, warriors and artists commemorated in stone throughout the city is a full-time job.

"When a statue is reported damaged I go to the city archives, which has detailed photographs of almost every piece in Rome," Sabatini said, frowning as he scratched at a layer of grime and calcium marring the enormous male nude atop the Quirinale Palace fountain.

"I study the picture and then make a clay model of the missing part in my laboratory," he said. "Later I sculpt it in stone — we always try to match the stone of the original."

It might take Sabatini as long as one month to perfectly reproduce the missing head of a Caesar.

"But I can do a nose a day," he said proudly, "and sometimes I do nothing but noses every day for weeks at a time."

Most of the statues Sabatini works on are between 400 and 500 years old.

"We don't touch anything that is, say, 1,000 years old," he said. "When the younger ones begin to crumble we might put a stainless steel frame inside them.

"But the ancient ones are too precious to play with — so when they get too sick they get put away in that old folks home called a museum."

While there is very little Sabatini can't do with a piece of marble, there are some things he refuses to do — like fig leaves.

"Politicians used to think they could win votes by periodically fig-leaving everything in a big morality campaign," Sabatini said disdainfully. "I am an artist and you don't need an artist to affix a fig leaf."

Sabatini said the fig leaves usually don't last more than a couple of months anyway.

"Most are put up in such a rush that they're shoddy and crumble away in the first big rainstorm," he laughed. "The young kids take care of the rest of them — knocking them off as fast as the workmen can put them up."

Non-Additive Snack Trend

NEW YORK (UPI) — Snacks are trending toward the natural, non-additive variety, says a supermarket trade magazine.

"Progressive Grocer" quotes Gary Cook, marketing manager for a California manufacturer, as saying more manufacturers are switching to ingredients such as safflower oil and other products low in polyunsaturates, salt with no anti-caking additives or iodine. He also expects potato chip manufacturers to switch to chips from unpeeled spuds.

The magazine also said jerky (chewy dried beef strips) and beef sausage sales are growing. They started on the West Coast and are now in the Midwest and working their way East. He said another comer was popped pork rinds — what Southerners call cracklins.

One manufacturer estimated that 300-400 new snack products had been introduced during the past 8-10 years. A current consensus indicates introductions are down.

Still, manufacturers are optimistic.

A New York advertising man whose company has many food accounts told the magazine:

"We've become a nation of watchers. While you're doing that you tend to do something else with your fingers and with your mouth. And snacks seem to fit into that."

William & Mary returned to the top of the heap in the Southern Conference, snapping a five-year hold on the league's wrestling title yesterday.

The Indians put together 94½ points in the meet to outpace the second-place Pirates, who had 83½.

WMI came in third with 54½, followed by Appalachian State with 37½. Marshall, the newest member of the conference, was fifth with 26½, followed by The Citadel with 14½, and Davidson with one-half point. Furman, which had a wrestling team during the season, did not participate in the tournament.

William & Mary, which sent seven wrestlers to the finals, won in four events. Tom Dursee defended his title at 118, while Jim Hicks won again at 134. Donald Moore took the 142-pound title, while Bob Stark won at 177.

East Carolina finished with three individual champions. They included Paul Osman, who repeated at 126, Frank Schaefer at 150, and Phil Mueller, who won again at 167.

Mueller, who won all three of his matches on pins, including a 38 second victory in the finals, was named the Most Valuable Wrestler in the meet.

Ned Stepanovich of WMI won the heavyweight title, giving all four of the defending champions their titles back. WMI also had John Vizzi winning at 190-pounds. Appalachian State's Craig Cody won the 158-pound title.

All ten of the individual champions automatically gained berth in the NCAA Nationals, to be held later this year in Norman, Oklahoma, March 17-19.

Jim Polsonelli of Appalachian State, who lost to Osman, was awarded the league's wild card selection for the NCAA tournament.

East Carolina finished the meet with three second place finishes, as Harry Martin (134),

Netters Win First

East Carolina University's tennis team opened the 1977 season yesterday with an 8-1 victory over Salisbury State.

The Pirates took all six of the singles to sew up the victory. They added the first and second doubles before finally bowing in the number three doubles to their guests.

The win sent the 1-0 Pirates into their next match on Tuesday at High Point against the Panthers of High Point College. Salisbury State is now 0-1.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Phil Ford fouled out with 5:45 to play, triggering an emotional explosion by North Carolina as the Tar Heels fought from behind to defeat Virginia 75-69 and win the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship Saturday night.

Ford led all scorers with 26 points, but John Kuester and Mike O'Koren kept the Tar Heels alive down the stretch.

Kuester worked the middle of North Carolina's famed four-corners offense and O'Koren came alive in the second half, scoring 12 of his 22 points.

O'Koren also fouled out with 1:30 remaining, but Kuester's two foul shots with eight seconds left iced the victory and completed the scoring.

Kuester, who was North Carolina's only surviving regular by the end of the game, tallied 14 points.

Virginia, which finished 12-17, was led for the second straight game by reserve guard Bobby Stokes, who scored 17 points. Guard Billy Langlosh added 12 and Marc Iavaroni 10 as the Cavaliers failed in their bid to

Crum Asks NCAA Bid

MEMPHIS (AP) — Don't mention the National Invitation Tournament to Denny Crum.

Someone did Friday night after Georgia Tech's incredible 56-55 upset victory over Crum's 10th-ranked and heavily favored Louisville Cardinals in the semifinals of the Metropolitan Conference basketball tournament.

"NIT, hell!" Crum snapped. "We might still go to the NCAA. We're 21-6 and played the toughest schedule in the nation."

The simple way to reach the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament has bypassed the Cardinals. Georgia Tech took care of that. The champion of the Metro tournament earns an automatic berth in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

There will, however, be 14 at-large entries in the 32-team national championship field when first-round action begins next Saturday around the nation.

Crum believes his team deserves one of those spots. "I don't see how they can choose any team in this league over us if they're going to take an at-large team."

"By next week we'll have Larry Williams back at 100 per cent and nobody in this league has a better chance of going all the way in the NCAA than we do when Larry is healthy," Crum said. Williams missed several games with a broken foot but returned to limited action against Tech Friday night.

When the NCAA increased its at-large entries two years ago it began taking second teams out of some conferences.

"Compare the schedules of Cincinnati and Memphis State and Georgia Tech to us and there is no comparison," Crum said. "I'd bet you that if those schools played our schedule they'd all have 8 or 10 losses."

Asked if he might be considering getting out of the Metro Conference, Crum said, "We just got in. But if we decide it's to our advantage to play Biscaynes and Wright States and Clevelands—if that's what it's going to take for an NCAA bid, to play that schedule and win 24 or 25 games as an independent—we will," he said.

"We don't need the (Metro) tournament. We can play one home game and make as much money as we'll make from this tournament."

Carolina Takes Gymnastics Title

Tia Walker led the Lady Tar Heels of North Carolina to the State Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women gymnastics title at East Carolina University yesterday.

Miss Walker won the vaulting and the all-around titles, while finishing third in the uneven bars, second in the floor exercise and fourth in the balance beam.

Her combined score of 32.25 took the all-around title. She put together 9.05 for the vaulting title, and added an 8.1 in the bars, 8.25 in the floor exercise, and a 6.85 in the beam for the win.

Teammate Teresa Trice won the floor exercise with an 8.75, and added the beam with an 8.0. Lynn Swisher and Mary Beth Elrod, both of Carolina, tied for the bars title with a score of 8.15. Carolina won the team title with a total of 123.2 points. Appalachian State was second with become the only last-place ACC team ever to win the ACC tournament championship.

Playing without injured all-ACC forward Walter Davis most of the way, North Carolina had less fire power than usual from outside and the taller Cavaliers were able to tighten their defense inside.

Ford struck for 19 points in the period, mostly from long range, but the Tar Heels were unable to force the Cavaliers from their slow, ball control game plan.

East Carolina Opens Baseball Season With Win Over Campbell

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina University opened the 1977 baseball season with a 4-2 victory over Campbell College yesterday.

The Pirates banged out 11 hits during the afternoon, but had to take advantage of Campbell mistakes to score their runs. Just one of the Pirates' four runs was earned, while both of the Camel tallies were earned.

Terry Durham started the game on the mound for the Pirates, going six innings before Pete Conaty came in to relieve him. Coach Monte Little said that the move had been pre-planned so as not to work the Buc hurlers too hard at the start of the year. Durham, in his six innings, had a perfect game for the first three frames. He didn't walk any, scattered five hits, and gave up one run. He fanned four.

Conaty, in his three innings, allowed three hits, walked one and gave up one run. He struck out four also.

Pete Paradossi paced the Pirate hitting attack with three hits. Sonny Wooten added two hits, one a double, while Bobby Supel and Rick Koryda each added a pair.

East Carolina opened the scoring in the fourth inning, getting a run. Robert Brinkley reached on an error and Koryda singled him to second. Paradossi was safe on another miscue, allowing Brinkley to score from second.

The Pirates gave up a run in the fifth, tying it at 1-1. Joe Hein singled and came around on successive singles by Dave Warrick and Johnny McLamb.

The Pirates regained the lead in the seventh. Wooten doubled and took third on an out. Raymie Styons lifted a sacrifice fly to the outfield to bring him over for a 2-1 lead.

The Bucs then picked up the memory of the late North Carolina State basketball coach by the coaches in the tournament to the outstanding player.

San Francisco Streak Halted By Notre Dame

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Don Williams scored 25 points and ignited a second-half attack Saturday to spark Notre Dame to a 93-82 college basketball victory over top-ranked San Francisco, shattering the Dons' hopes for an undefeated season.

The Fighting Irish, performing before a vocal home crowd, led 44-42 at halftime and erupted to a 79-66 advantage on Rich Branning's two free throws with about four minutes to go.

Unranked Notre Dame enhanced its chances for a berth in the NCAA Basketball Tournament as it raised its record to 20-6 with one game left. San Francisco, which had been the only major unbeaten team, finished the regular season at 29-1.

The Dons took a 52-48 lead as Marlon Redmond made four lay-ups early in the second half. Then Notre Dame launched the charge that led to the victory.

Toby Knight scored the next three Irish buckets to tie the game at 54-54 and Bruce Flowers connected from close in as the Irish went on top for good at 59-58.

Williams then pumped in 17 of the next 28 Irish points to shoot Notre Dame out to a commanding 87-74 lead.

Knight finished with 19 points and led all rebounders with 14 as Notre Dame won the battle of the boards 42-33. Bill Paterno added 16 points for the Irish.

The Dons were led by Winford Boynes with 23 points and Redmond with 18.

San Francisco led most of the first half. The game began at a feverish pace with the Dons running and Notre Dame pressing and the lead changing hands 11 times in the first 11:17.

San Francisco grabbed its biggest lead of the game at 27-21 with 8:25 to go in the half when Redmond scored after grabbing a half-court pass from Boynes.

Boynes got three of the Dons' next four baskets, while Paterno countered for the Irish with two field goals and a pair of free throws to keep them close at 35-33 with 4:33 left.

The Dons stretched the lead to four with Redmond's bucket from inside to make it 41-37. Then Dave Batton sank a free throw and a field goal and Branning made a pair of foul shots to put Notre Dame on top by a point. Bill Cartwright's free throw with 13 seconds left tied the game at 42-42. Williams then took a shot from the outside with five seconds left. He missed, but Batton hauled in the rebound and dropped the ball in for the two-point half-time edge.

Pirates Finish Second In Eastern Swimming

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. —

East Carolina University held onto second place in the Eastern Collegiate Swimming and Diving Championships yesterday, but could not make a run at leader Pittsburgh.

The Pirates won only one event during the final day of competition, the 400-yard freestyle, but they won it in impressive time, qualifying for the NCAA meet with their winning time of 3:07.14.

Pittsburgh captured the team title with a total of 498 points, while East Carolina was a distant second with 310 points. Syracuse was third with 279, followed by Maryland with 270.

Host West Virginia was next with 241, followed by Penn State with 95, Marshall with 87, Villanova with 47, St. John's with 39 and Rutgers with 35.

Overall, East Carolina qualified both of its freestyle relay teams, the 400 and the 800 for the NCAA competition. John McCauley qualified for the NCAA in the 50-yard freestyle, while Ted Nieman qualified in the 200.

Nieman also qualified for the AAU competition in the 200, the 500 and the 1,650 freestyles, while John Tudor qualified in the 500. The two relays also posted AAU qualifying times.

"We kinda faltered today," Coach Ray Scharf said. "But we were strong enough to hold on. Overall it was a good meet for us."

Have Pity On The Poor Referee!

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "You know, these referees ought to go on strike sometime when all the TV and the thousands of people are already here," North Carolina coach Dean Smith mused.

"Then we'd all appreciate how much we need them," he said.

Referees who work the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament have to deal with more than the din of the crowd and the anger of coaches. They also face intense pressures of personal honor and national recognition, just as the basketball teams do.

Seven officials, seasoned in ACC action, were selected to work the annual three-day event this year. Based on their performances here, some may win the chance to go on to post-tournament NCAA competition, perhaps as far as the national championship game in Atlanta March 28.

"The officials as well as the teams are in a tournament themselves, definitely," said former ACC official Lou Bello, whose showmanship attracted as much attention as the players did for 31 years.

He left the business in 1971 to become a television sportscaster in Durham, N.C.

"One or two referees are going to be picked out of this. They try so hard because they want to be perfect," he said.

"They're thinking, 'Here's a chance to go to the NCAA — more honors, more prestige.' What a way to cap their season."

Although they are the subjects of unrelenting criticism from half the fans in the coliseum on every call, officials are handled with kid gloves by the conference. The tournament seven, selected from 39 conference referees, are closeted away during the tournament games they do not work and are not allowed to talk with sportswriters.

Norvell Neve, assistant ACC commissioner for officiating, said that is to keep their minds on their business.

"They try to get prepared for that one game, and what happens after that is incidental," he said.

The officials are kept in the dark too. It was afternoon Friday, Neve said, before assignments were given for the two semifinals Friday night.

Six of the officials — Hank Nichols, John Moreau, Jim Hernjak, Paul Housman, Lou Moser and Lennie Wirtz — have been nominated for NCAA competition. Neve said he didn't know how many would be selected.

Several other officials were here to watch the games. One, David Dodge of Columbia, S.C., said he was anxious to work an ACC tournament but not presumptuous enough to predict when he might.

"To work in the tournament is the height of achievement in the business," he said.

Bello said two of the referees this year, Housman and Dan Woolridge, are new to the tournament.

"They're here for the first time and are just thrilled," he said. "They worked the Duke-Clemson game (in the first round) and it didn't go too well because it wasn't a well-played game. If the game is played poorly, the officiating is poor."

Bello, who was known to kiss a pretty cheerleader at court-side, says officiating is improving but has lost its color.

"It's more mechanical now. They want you to raise your hands so everybody can see it. There's not enough show," he said.

Many referees agree there is one coach who won't like them no matter what. With Bello, it was Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, when Driesell was at Davidson.

"Lefty didn't want me working any of his games," Bello said. "He said to me, 'Lou, I'm the only show at Davidson,' and he was right."

And while no referee should expect to make everybody happy with his calls, Bello says with a laugh: "I used to do it...They used to love me."

Manning Has Top Qualifying Speed For Carolina 500 Race

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Skip Manning, last year's Rookie of the Year, stunned veterans Saturday by posting the fastest qualifying speed for Sunday's $140,000 Carolina 500 Grand National stock car race.

Manning will start 16th, however, because his speed of 135.437 miles an hour came on the second day of time trials. Donnie Allison has the pole position with a speed of 135.387 m.p.h., recorded Thursday.

It rained all day Friday here. North Carolina Motor Speedway officials said track conditions improved considerably after that.

Officials still viewed Manning's time as quite an accomplishment. It was the first time since 1969 that anyone had exceeded the pole-winning speed at this track.

Manning said the car was completely rebuilt last week after a crash at Richmond.

"We went through it completely," he said. "Suspension, engine, everything."

Second fastest Saturday was James Hylton, who earned 17th starting spot with 133.432 m.p.h., which was ninth fastest overall.

Meanwhile, Larry Pearson, son of Grand National star David Pearson, won Saturday's 75-lap Baby Grand race by a comfortable margin over Tom Ballos.

Most of Pearson's strongest challengers were wiped out in one spectacular wreck, 38 laps into the contest. Four cars got together going into the first turn, and pole position starter J.V. Reins slammed into the fence nearly head-on, became airborne, and careened down the track in front of a whole pack of cars. A brief fire was quickly extinguished. There were no injuries.

The pit crew of Richard Petty, headed by his brother Maurice, established an official world's record for a stock car pit stop of 17.390 seconds. The old record was 18.021.

Second place went to Harry Hyde's crew, Neil Bonnett driver, at 17.763, also below the old mark.

The stop consisted of changing two right side tires, and adding two cans of gasoline totaling 14 gallons.

Red Holzman Retiring As Coach On Knicks

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Red Holzman, the dean of National Basketball Association coaches who guided the New York Knicks to league titles in 1970 and 1973, will step down as coach of the Knicks at the conclusion of the current season, it was announced Saturday.

No successor was named, although Knicks President Mike Burke said former New York center Willis Reed was "a leading candidate" to coach the team next season.

"Red has been a magnificent coach," Burke told a Madison Square Garden news conference. "He has been without peer during his coaching career. But sometimes you have to move along."

And by mutual consent, it was decided the time to move along was now.

Since the 1973 title season, the Knicks have had their problems. They are currently headed for their third straight losing season and their second out of the playoffs.

The 56-year-old Holzman, the second-winningest coach in NBA history who had one year remaining on his contract as coach, then is committed to the team for five years as a scout and consultant, said it was just a matter of advancing the process by one year.

"So it will end one year earlier," he said. "But the relationship will go on for many years. It was decided that this was best for the team, and that's okay with me."

"This is the best way to go. It was a mutual thing we felt should be in the best interests of the Knicks. I'm happy I can still be a part of a basketball organization that has been very good to me. I'm not the first guy who's going to be changing jobs, and I'll tell you—I've been a heck of a lot more fortunate than most."

Burke said the announcement was precipitated by a published report that Holzman would resign immediately and that Bill Bradley would coach the team for the remainder of this season.

"We wanted to scotch that rumor immediately, before it gained any headway at all," said Burke. "We're doing this now to clear the air. We don't want the players going from game to game not knowing what the situation is."

In effect, Holzman is being kicked upstairs. "Change for the sake of change is never good," said Burke, "but there comes a time when the right move can be beneficial. We feel that time is now."

Holzman, now in his 14th pro coaching season, has a record of 537 victories and 429 defeats. Only Red Auerbach, whose Boston teams won 938 games, has more victories as an NBA coach.

Holzman did not rule out the possibility of taking a coaching job with another NBA team. "I'm going to listen to everybody," he said. "But what I'll probably do is stay where I am—and be happy as hell to be here."

His future duties with the Knicks will include scouting pro and college players and working with General Manager Eddie Donovan. "He will certainly be consulted as to whom our new coach is going to be," Donovan said.

Burke and Donovan both said the Knicks hoped to name a new coach as soon as possible, in order that he may familiarize himself with the team's personnel and with the talent available in the college draft.

"We have talked to several people," said Burke. "Willis Reed has to be an obvious candidate, but he is not the only candidate. We want to look over all our options and decide what's best."

Burke ruled out Bradley and former Knick Dave DeBusschere, saying both were not interested in coaching.

Reed, the captain of the Knicks' two title teams, spent 10 seasons with the team and retired in 1974 because of knee problems. He has no coaching experience but is highly regarded by his peers and is a popular figure among the fans. He was not at Saturday's news conference, but said earlier in the week that he felt he was in line for the job.

"I've been assured that whenever Red relinquishes the job, I'll be his replacement," Reed said. "Otherwise, I'd

Tennessee Tops 'Cats; Ties For League Lead

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee forced second-ranked Kentucky into sharing the Southeastern Conference basketball title as 36 points by Bernard King propelled the Vols to an 81-79 victory over the Wildcats Saturday.

King twisted and turned for layups under the basket and diving shots from the top of the key, collecting 20 of his points in the second half.

The game left both teams atop the SEC standings with identical records. Each has one season game remaining.

Tennessee and Kentucky last shared the SEC title in 1972.

"We're not the SEC champs until we win against Vanderbilt Monday night," said Vols Coach Ray Mears.

Kentucky Coach Joe Hall added that he is concerned about his game Monday with Georgia, which upset 11th-ranked Tennessee last week. Hall said the key to Saturday's game was Tennessee's success in converting on follow-up shots.

"Our people just didn't block out and they would grab it and put it back in," Hall said. "But give credit where it's due. King had a great second half."

Mears called the game "exhausting. Kentucky plays very physical," he said. "They make the other team play physical, too. I thought we did a super job on the boards."

Tennessee held an 80-75 lead with less than three minutes in the game before the Wildcats' Rick Robey, their leading scorer with 17, hit on a jumper. Johnny Darden then hit one of two foul shots with 14 seconds left to extend Tennessee's lead to 81-77.

With just 10 seconds left, reserve Truman Claytor hit on a field goal from the circle to give the Wildcats their final goal.

King's scores came on twisting layups after feeds from Darden and Ernie Grunfeld, the game's leading rebounder with 13, and outside shots in the key.

The victory puts Tennessee even with Kentucky at the top of the SEC standings, with both teams holding 15-2 records. Assuming the Vols defeat Vanderbilt here Monday night and Kentucky overcomes Georgia, Tennessee will represent the SEC in the Midwest Regionals of the NCAA tournament.

Kentucky will likely get an at-large berth in the East or West Regionals.

NFL Players Set To Vote On New Plan

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — With the courtroom hurdles apparently cleared, the collective bargaining agreement between the National Football League owners and the Players Association now awaits only ratification by the rank-and-file members of the union.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said the union will send copies of the agreement to its members Monday, with ratification expected by March 17.

U.S. District Judge Earl R. Larson gave preliminary approval to the collective bargaining agreement Friday. "We're extremely pleased with the court's decision," said Garvey.

And Minneapolis attorney Ed Glennon, who served as co-counsel with Garvey during the NFLPA's three-year legal battle against NFL owners, added: "This should benefit the players association very much and make them a viable group. The players will be able to negotiate with dignity and strength in the future. It is a mutual thing and both sides gave."

Larson also gave preliminary approval to a negotiated settlement of a class-action suit, known as the Alexander case, brought by the NFLPA on behalf of all athletes who have played since 1972 and may have suffered damages essentially because of the so-called Rozelle Rule.

The Rozelle rule, also called the "option-compensation clause," gave NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle power to award players, draft choices or cash to a team that had signed a player who played out his option.

Burke said the announcement was precipitated by a published report that Holzman would resign immediately and that Bill Bradley would coach the team for the remainder of this season.

"We wanted to scotch that rumor immediately, before it gained any headway at all," said Burke. "We're doing this now to clear the air. We don't want the players going from

Rockets Top Milwaukee

HOUSTON (AP) — Rudy Tomjanovich scored 26 points and Moses Malone added 22 as the Houston Rockets cruised to a 119-106 National Basketball Association victory over Milwaukee Saturday.

Malone also pulled down 20 rebounds as the Rockets toyed with the Bucks under the boards, pulling down 63 team rebounds to Milwaukee's 45.

Houston put six players into double figures, including 19 by little Calvin Murphy and 16 by John Lucas.

The Rockets hustled to a 14-point lead at the half, 67-53. Milwaukee pulled to within six early in the final period, but quick baskets by Tomjanovich and Malone allowed Houston to win going away.

Bob Dandridge paced the Milwaukee effort with 18 points and Brian Winters chipped in with 17.

Buck center Swen Nater had 18 rebounds.

Louisville Upset By Georgia Tech

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Coach Denny Crum of 10th-ranked Louisville says basketball is "a crazy game because you can pick out 100 times each year where the team that's supposed to win doesn't."

Crum faced one of those times Friday night when Georgia Tech upset the heavily-favored Cardinals 56-55 in the Metropolitan Conference tournament, using a patient offense that took Louisville out of its running game.

The victory earned Tech, 18-9, a spot opposite No. 14 Cincinnati, 24-4, in Saturday night championship game with the winner moving into next week's NCAA Midwest Regional tournament.

68-67 triumph over Memphis State on Gary Yoder's two free throws with only four seconds left.

"Our youngsters have to play harder than most others because of their physical ability," said Tech Coach Dwane Morrison. "These are solid people."

Morrison's "solid people" were among the least likely to reach the finals of the Metro, but they did it with a patient offense that left the Cardinals frustrated. Louisville had 23 turnovers, allowing Tech to win despite its 35 per cent field goal shooting.

Tech, trailing most of the

night, went in front to stay at 52-51 on an 18-foot jumper by Tico Brown and built three-point leads on two free throws by Jim Wood and a baseline jumper by Randy Foster that made it 56-53 with 1:49 left.

Rick Wilson's free throws cut it to one 48 seconds later, but Tech survived the final hectic minute to hand Louisville only its sixth setback in 27 games.

Wood led all scorers with 23 points and Wesley Cox paced the Cards with 17.

Cincinnati used a similar patient style in the nightcap to down Memphis, which lost at home for only the second time in 19 games.

Memphis State appeared to have the game in control, erasing a late four-point deficit on a 20-footer by Alvin Wright and a pair of free throws by Dexter Reed, giving the Tigers a 67-66 lead with 44 seconds left. James Bradley missed the first shot of a one-and-one situation, giving Yoder his opportunity to win the game.

Yoder led Bearcat scoring with 18 points and Wright had 23 for the losers.

One tournament championship and several other final matchups were decided in other college basketball action Friday night.

Six overtime free throws by Daryl Winston carried Kansas State to a comeback 72-67 triumph over Missouri and the championship of the Big Eight tournament at Kansas City.

Bob Stokes scored 16 points to help Virginia surprise 18th-ranked Clemson 72-60 and reach the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament against North Carolina. The sixth-ranked Tar Heels got 22 points from Walter Davis and downed North Carolina State 70-56 in the other semifinal at Greensboro, N.C.

Otis Birdsong scored 38 points and the Houston Cougars made 11 of their first 13 shots on their way to beating Texas Tech 94-83 and reaching the finals of the Southwest Conference tournament against seventh-ranked Arkansas.

Villanova moved into the Eastern Collegiate Basketball League's final playoff against Duquesne when Keith Herron scored six points in overtime to lead the Wildcats to an 83-75 triumph over West Virginia. Duquesne got 20 points from Norm Nixon to post an upset 89-82 victory over Massachusetts in the other semifinal.

Melvin Jones amassed 29 points to pace West Texas State's 79-68 upset of Wichita State in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. The triumph sent the Buffaloes into the finals against Southern Illinois, which is assured a berth in the NCAA regional playoffs because West Texas State is on probation and prohibited from participating in the tournament.

At Easton, Pa., freshman guard Kurt Kanaskie scored 21 points to power LaSalle past Lafayette 86-80, and into the finals of East Coast Conference tournament. Hofstra, on 21 points by John Irving, beat Temple 71-58 to gain the right to meet LaSalle.

Mark Mattos made two free throws with 22 seconds left to give Weber State a 69-68 triumph over Gonzaga, which will meet Idaho State in the finals of the Big Sky tournament. Idaho State downed Montana

State 93-77. Ralph Garner scored 22 points and Calvin Garrett 21 as Austin Peay topped Murray State 82-75 to reach the final of the Ohio Valley Conference tournament at Clarksville, Tenn. They'll meet Middle Tennessee State, which drubbed Morehead 92-70 on 24 points by Bob Martin and 23 by Lewis Mack.

Pirates Seek Second Southern Track Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Don't be surprised if you run on East Carolina University track coach Bill Carson, and find him rubbing his hands in glee. He's just probably looking forward to this spring's Southern Conference outdoor championships.

Carson's team won the championship last year, and are the favorites to win it again this year. His team's hopes for the spring were reinforced a week ago when the Pirates captured the indoor title from defending champion William & Mary. Usually the outdoor season is more suited to the type team fielded by the Pirates than the indoor one.

"We've set some goals," Carson said. "Of course, the main one is to win the Southern Conference championship again. This is the last time around, and barring injuries or disaster, we should be able to repeat, especially off the success of the indoor season."

The Pirate team is built around the sprints, hurdles and the jumps, and the outdoor season has more of these events than an indoor one.

"Our other goals are to break 40 seconds in the 440 relay and to break 3:10 in the mile relay. We also have a number of personal goals, based mainly on national competition and rankings. I'd like to see 10 to 14 people qualify for the NCAA's, and if both of our relays do it, we probably can achieve this goal."

While the Pirates are strongest in the short events, Carson feels the Pirates can surprise someone in the half-mile this year. "We probably won't be of national caliber, but we can be strong for our area. This will give us a good half-mile group, and a good two-mile relay team." Top people in the event include Charles Avery, Jim Willett, Keith Urquhart, Wayne Chaison and Mel Duckenfield. James McCollough, after a good indoor season in the 600 may also step up to the 880 and do well.

There will be some differences in this season, too, as the swing toward metrics gets underway. All national qualifying must be done in metric events. However, all home meets and some of the away events will not be in metrics. "We have plans to convert our track to metrics, hopefully by next year. It will mean a new survey and repainting, not any construction," Carson said.

When the full metric swing does take place, it is likely that the mile and quarter mile relays will be retained, along with the mile run.

In the 100-yard dash (or 100-meters, as the case may be), the Pirates will have Carter Suggs, Otis Melvin, Larry Austin, Calvin Alston, James Rankins and Donnie Mack. Carson expects all to post a time of 9.6 seconds or better.

At the 220 (200-meters), Carson looks to the same group and feels three should be under 20.8 seconds, and the rest under 21.4.

Charlie Moss, James Freeman, Robert Franklin, Terry Perry, Valdes Chavis are the leading people in the 440. Carson looks for at least four of them to run in the 47's.

In the mile, it will probably be Willett, Ray Moore, Avery and John Russ. John Dill, Charlie Powell, Lynn Phelps, and John White will handle the three and six mile events.

Bobby Phillips, Ben Duckenfield, Jay Purdy, Tony McCoy, Mike Barnes and Bill White will lead in the 440-intermediate hurdles, and Carson said that this is the first time the Pirates have had more than two in this event.

In the 220 highs, Marvin Rankins, Phillips, Eddie Kornegay and Bill Bryant head the field.

The field events will probably be weaker than last year's team. The Pirates have no pole vaulter, and no high jumper.

They will be strong in the long and triple jumps, however. George Jackson, Mike Hodge, Billy Etchison and Herman McIntyre lead in the long, with Jackson, Hodge, McIntyre, and Robert Willie in the triple.

The shot will be handled by Tom Watson and Mike Harris, although Watson is questionable until late in the spring due to an injury in the conference indoor meet.

Watson, Harris, Robert Bailey and Lafon Forbes will tackle the discus, with Forbes, Watson and Harris competing in the javelin. Harris and Watson will toss the hammer.

"William & Mary, VMI and Furman are likely to be our toughest competition," Carson said. "Everyone has something strong to compete in, however. Marshall and Appalachian are strong in the distances, and Western Carolina is good in both the distances and the sprints. So I look for some tough competition. I think we can win the title, but it won't be by as big a margin as last year."

East Carolina Times Outstanding In Meet

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — East Carolina's swim team remained in second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships yesterday by virtue of its good showing in two events.

The Pirates still trail leader Pitt by 116 points, 319-203, but are 22 ahead of Syracuse's 181. Maryland is fourth with 164 and West Virginia fifth with 130.

East Carolina swimmers made the finals in just three of the six events yesterday, but picked up points in those events.

In the 200 freestyle, the Pirates were able to take one two in the finals and win the consolation. Ted Nieman led the group as he won the event in 1:40.87. His time was a pool, meet, varsity and freshman record and qualified him for the national NCAA and AAU Championships to be held later this month.

John Tudor was able to cop second in the event with a time of 1:42.09, his career best. Billy Thorne won the consolation in 1:44.63.

In the 400 individual medley, Thomas Palmgren broke out of his slump and finished fifth with a time of 4:15.76.

East Carolina also won the 800 freestyle relay, the final event of the day. The team of John Tudor, Billy Thorne, Stewart Mann and Ted Nieman pulled together to swim a time of 6:50.61. The time set a new standard for the West Virginia University pool as well as being a meet record and varsity mark for East Carolina. The time also qualified the team for the NCAA and AAU Championships.

Nieman continued his outstanding performances by swimming a 1:39.87 in the final leg. "Ted (Nieman) is really doing the job for us this week," ECU coach Ray Scharf said following the relay. "He and Jerry DeMuro of Pitt are the only ones in the running for the MVP award. If he beats him Saturday in the 1650, he should win it."

"The whole team is doing a magnificent job for us. They have developed a real team unity. Nineteen of them shaved their entire bodies, including their heads, coming into this meet. They'll sure get some funny looks from the other students when they get back to ECU," Scharf mused.

Injury To Lanier May Cost Detroit

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Pistons may have lost more than just another National Basketball Association game.

Big Bob Lanier, the Pistons' star center, hurt his hand early in Friday night's 94-92 loss to the Boston Celtics and, although he stayed in for 29 minutes more, he finally had to come out.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Bulls trounced the Los Angeles Lakers 114-99, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 113-101, the Golden State Warriors whipped the Phoenix Suns 101-87, the Atlanta Hawks nipped the Washington Bullets 100-99, the San Antonio Spurs walloped the New York Nets 135-121 and the Buffalo Braves downed the New Orleans Jazz 95-91.

Sidney Wicks hit a basket and two free throws and Curtis Rowe made a basket in the final 90 seconds for the crucial points as the Celtics concluded a 10-game road trip with a 6-4 record.

Kevin Porter kept the Pistons in contention in the final quarter with 12 of his season-high 28 points. JoJo White topped the Celtics with 21.

Bulls 114, Lakers 99
Norm Van Lier led a 21-5 second-half blitz as the Bulls cruised to a 36-point lead with 7:47 remaining. Van Lier led the Bulls balanced attack with 21 points, followed by rookie Scott May with 18, Wilbur Holland with 17, Artis Gilmore with 16, Mickey Johnson with 15 and John Mengelt with 14. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 18 for the Lakers.

Cavaliers 113, Trail Blazers 101
Campy Russell led Cleveland with 26 points while Fouts Walker and Bingo Smith tallied key baskets after Portland narrowed a 14-point deficit to two late in the third period. It was 35-77 heading into the fourth quarter and Cleveland built its lead to 101-82 behind the scoring of Dick Snyder and Gary Brokaw.

Warriors 101, Suns 87
Phil Smith scored 34 points as the Warriors posted their fifth victory in a row and dealt the Suns their seventh consecutive loss. Phoenix crept to within one point late in the third quarter but Smith went to work and scored eight points to make it 79-73.

Hawks 100, Bullets 99
John Brown provided the margin of victory by canning two free throws with three seconds. Phil Chenier, who scored Washington's final six points and finished with 21, had given the Bullets a 99-98 with a jump shot. John Drew led the Hawks with 29 points and Ken Charles added 20. Elvin Hayes topped the Bullets with 24.

Spurs 135, Nets 121
Larry Kenon came back to haunt his former team with 39 points and 10 rebounds. Kenon had plenty of help from Mark Olberding and Allan Bristow with 20 points apiece while Mike Gale, another ex-Nets, piled up 11 assists. Bubbles Hawkins had 26 points for the losers.

Braves 95, Jazz 91
Randy Smith scored 28 points and Adrian Dantley added 23 for Buffalo. New Orleans, which played without Pete Maravich, the NBA's leading scorer who was out with a virus, was led by Jim McElroy with 22 points.

Yankees Await Kuhn's Okay

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees are awaiting Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's approval to play exhibition games in Cuba next month on an indirect invitation from Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

"We're ready and willing, but no club can go over there without the commissioner's approval," Yankee President Gabe Paul said Friday at the team's training camp here.

"He (Kuhn) has other ideas. He wants an all-star team to go, not individual clubs. Until he changes his mind we can't get clearance."

In a news conference Friday in Washington, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said he supports Castro's proposal that the countries exchange athletic teams.

That put official approval on the Yankees and also for a combined 10-man basketball team from the South Dakota and South Dakota State universities. The Yankees want to visit the island April 1-3.

Asked if the Yankees specifically requested Kuhn's permission, Paul said: "Let's put it this way—he has approached us."

In New York, Kuhn said: "Our interest in Cuba continues, but that's as far as we can go. I will not and cannot make any further statements at this time."

Castro's first feeler to the Yankees was extended before Christmas through David LeFevre, a New York-based lawyer with contacts in Cuba. LeFevre said he has been in frequent contact about the matter with Cuban officials and Kuhn's office.

The Yankees already are scheduled to play exhibition games April 1-3 against the Baltimore Orioles, the University of North Carolina and the Detroit Tigers. Paul said any conflict could be ironed out if permission is granted for the trip to Cuba.

In other spring training camps:

—The Philadelphia Phillies signed third baseman Mike Schmidt, the major league home run leader, to a six-year contract for around $2 million.

Asked if the long-term pact could tone down some of his incentive, Schmidt said: "I made $120,000 last year and never thought about it one time while I was on the field. I tried to carry the same personality out on the field and just play ball."

The Henderson Jaycees will sponsor the eighth annual Kerr Lake Bass Championship fishing tournament during the weekend of April 15-17 at the John H. Kerr Reservoir.

The lake is one of the most popular in the state for largemouth bass fishing and the tournament has attracted fishermen from as far away as Nebraska in previous years.

Some $2,100 in prize money will be awarded in this year's tournament. The angler catching the heaviest bass will win $1,000 and his fish will be mounted for free. Second place will receive $500, third place $300 and fourth place $200 in cash prizes, along with trophies.

The fifth place winner gets $100 and a trophy. In addition, the first five place-winners will receive memberships in the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society and the first ten winners will get embroidered patches.

Tickets for the tournament are $8 and those sold during the two weeks prior to the event will be $10. The contest will kick off Friday evening, April 15 with a social. It will end on Sunday afternoon with prizes to be presented at 5 p.m. Sunday.

The Kerr Lake Reservoir is a 50,000-acre lake with 800 miles of shoreline. There are a total of 1,000 campsites around the lake available to contestants and all the camping areas have toilets, hot and cold showers and sewage dump stations. In addition, electric and water hookups are available in some areas.

For more information about the contest, the Hender Jaycees can be contacted at P. O. Box 197, Henderson, NC, 27536.

The Kerr Reservoir Commission is in charge of the campsites and reservations and can be contacted at Rt. 3, Henderson 27536.

The first hickory shad has been caught and entered in the Griffton Shad Festival fishing contest, almost a month later than usual due to the cold weather.

Hazel Sugg of LaGrange caught a one pound, seven ounce shad during the afternoon of March 1 in Pitchkettle Creek. The shad was a female, heavy with roe.

The fish automatically qualifies for a prize as the first one entered. The contest runs until the middle of April and prizes are awarded at the Shad Festival on April 22.

The North Carolina Saltwater Fishing Tournament will begin on April 1 this year, unlike previous years when it kicked off on January 1, according to the state Division of Economic Development.

Over 1,500 citations were awarded in last year's contest, and five new state records were set.

New marks were set in the tournament for barracuda (49½ pounds), Spanish mackerel (11 pounds, six ounces), white marlin (118½ pounds), silver snapper (10 pounds, six ounces) and gray trout (13 pounds, 10 ounces).

For more information on this year's contest, fishermen should contact the Travel Development Section, 121 W. Jones St., Raleigh, N. C. 27611.

Finley Says Duty Exceeded

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley, awaiting a ruling in his $3.5 million suit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, says in court papers that Kuhn exceeded his authority and broke with past practice in voiding the sale of three Oakland stars.

He claims Kuhn's action last June 18 "was capricious, discriminatory, directly contrary to historical precedent, baseball tradition and prior rulings and actions of the Commissioner of Baseball."

Nothing Fragile About Virginia As Cavs Add Another Upset Win

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Virginia might be the Cinderella team in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament, but Clemson coach Bill Foster says there is nothing fragile about the Cavaliers.

Virginia is the ACC's most physical team, Foster said Friday night after his 3rd-seeded Tigers were eliminated 72-60 by the 7th-seeded Cavaliers.

Virginia faced regular season champion North Carolina Saturday night in the championship. The Tar Heels advanced Friday night with a convincing 70-56 victory over North Carolina State.

Virginia was being not only to defend its tournament crown, but also to become the first 7th-seeded team ever to win the tournament.

"I think we're going to win it," said Virginia coach Terry Holland. "We're the defending champions and that's the way it's going to be until somebody takes it away from us."

Holland said nothing would be changed in preparation for North Carolina, but his team would have to summon up one more super game to win.

"It will not only be our offense, but also our defense getting us into good position" against the Tar Heels, Holland said.

"They will come after us a great deal. Fatigue is a factor with the advantage for any team that gets the bye," he said.

Holland said his team was "more businesslike" about this tournament, having already experienced a tournament championship.

"Winning by double figures tonight, maybe we'll get some sleep," he said. "Last year at this time we didn't sleep at all. On second thought, maybe I'll keep them up — go around banging on doors."

Holland praised reserve guard Bobby Stokes who keyed the Cavalier victory with 16 points while directing Virginia's patient pattern offense.

Mike Owens added 12 points for Virginia while Steve Castellano and Marc Iavaroni scored 11 and 10 respectively.

Wayne Rollins was Clemson's only double figure scorer with 14 points.

Foster repeated Friday night that the eventual champion would be whichever team set the tempo in Saturday's game. He predicted, however, that Phil Ford and Walter Davis of North Carolina would shoot better than the Tigers did against Virginia.

Davis led the Tar Heel victory over N.C. State with 22 points and Ford added 17 before fouling out. Senior guard John Kuester scored 13 to complete double figure scoring.

Coach Dean Smith said the Tar Heels resorted to the four corners offense about midway through the second half because of injuries and foul problems.

N.C. State was forced to foul and North Carolina scored its last 12 points from the free throw line.

Special Urge By Clemson's Fans

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

The Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament is hailed as the year's most exciting event by ACC fans, but the Clemson faithful felt a special urgency this year.

The Tigers were ineligible for post-tournament play due to probation imposed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Clemson fans knew that, win or lose through the final round, there really was no tomorrow after Saturday.

But the Clemson contingent was the most colorful of the tournament, decked out in orange t-shirts, orange hats or orange sport coats.

Some 40 Clemson students seated together in one end zone formed an off-key kazoo band and regaled the 15,735 patrons with the tournament's only music aside from the recorded national anthem.

Most had orange tiger paws painted on their noses or cheeks and all were vociferous.

"This is our NCAA tournament," said Randy Boatwright, 19, who made the trip to Greensboro with his father, Ralph. They were accompanied by Prof. B.J. Skelton, a Clemson University horticulturalist, and his 19-year-old son, Bobby.

"We want to prove we're the best in the ACC," said the elder Skelton.

The four loyalists said Thursday they would stay for the entire tournament, win or lose.

Clemson ousted 6th-seeded Duke, 82-74, in Thursday's first round, but fell victim to a surprisingly strong Virginia team, 72-60, in Friday's semifinals.

However, the four restated their intention to remain until Sunday.

"I hate to do this," said Skelton, "but I guess we'll have to pull for Carolina tomorrow night. I want the conference to be represented by a strong team."

"Virginia's not that strong," he said, "but we looked awful out there tonight."

A WINTER CATCH...of small fish in plastic baskets have been washed and will be distributed to markets in eastern North Carolina.

Harvest of seafood from the dark, marsh bordered waters encircling Hyde County is an occupation long associated with the people of this sparsely populated coastal county.

Fishing, crabbing, shrimp-ing and oystering have been chief sources of food and income for generations of residents of this home-loving county where a majority of families can point to several generations living in the same homes or on the same plot of land.

Each year the seafood industry assumes an increasingly significant importance in the economy of Hyde County's some 6,000 people. (Soybeans, corn and tourism are other principal sources of income).

Nearly $1 Million

During the calendar year 1976, for example, the three seafood plant owners in the village of Swan Quarter spent about $915,000 purchasing fish, shrimp, crabs and oysters brought by local fishermen into the Swan Quarter harbor.

The three — Harry Jarvis, owner and proprietor of a marina and seafood company bearing his name; Ralph Jarvis, son of Harry Jarvis and owner of the Swan Quarter Crab Company; and Mitchell Newman, owner of Clark's Marina and Seafood Company — provide what they term are fairly close estimates of poundages purchased and prices paid out during 1976, mostly for locally caught seafood.

All three noted that because of the recent cold weather, they have had to buy oysters shipped in from Louisiana for shucking and processing at the Swan Quarter plants for further distribution.

Shrimp Heads List

According to figures of combined operations, shrimp headed the list of seafood in the amount of money spent during 1976. For approximately 130,000 pounds, they paid an average of $2.50 per pound for a year's total of something like $327,000.

Crabs, which have considerable waste, accounted for total purchases of about $248,000.

Oysters, which all agree is the prized delicacy of area seafoods, accounted for purchases of 37,000 bushels at a price of about $185,000.

Fish, including all edible and commercially salable varieties, were purchased in 1976 in an amount of over half a million pounds. For this catch, the three paid an average of 28 cents per pound for an approximate purchase tally of $155,000.

Local Fishermen

Most of the seafood catch is delivered to dockside by local fishermen operating their own fishing boats.

"In the summertime, when there's more activity," Newman said, "we have 35 or 40 boats going in and out of Swan Quarter. These are fairly small boats, ranging from 35 to about 80 feet."

In the winter, there's far less activity, with only a few boats operating locally. Many of the boats fish away from the local area, some along the Georgia coast.

Lots of Crabs

Ralph Jarvis, owner of Swan Quarter Crab Company, as the name of his firm indicates, leans heavily on the purchase of crab. "I packed 5,000 boxes last year," he said, "with 100 pounds to the box."

"This time of year, when there's no crabbing, catches of fish dominate the scene on the dockside. Jarvis pointed to some large roe shad. "I'll ship these to Baltimore," he said. "Where there's a big demand for good quality roe."

A Scrapper

Probably the most active man on the Swan Quarter seafood scene is Harry Jarvis. A robust, middle-age man who has three sons in the seafood business, he operates, in addition to his seafood company, a restaurant and a trailer lot, where avid fishermen maintain mobile homes the year round.

Across a canal from his present plant, ground is being graded for a new marina. "It will have a good parking lot," Jarvis commented. "I'm also building an 18 unit motel which will be ready for use before summer."

The trim, modern motel with some units about completed, faces the oyster-shell covered square that is enclosed by his plant and the restaurant. Each unit is backed up to a small canal that will give occupants a back door mooring for their boats.

Jarvis, who has a reputation as a scrapper, remarked "We're going to go places here if the environmentalists don't stop us dead. Everything we try to do they come up with some reason we shouldn't do it. I think somebody should declare some of the things they're trying to do to us unconstitutional."

"Sure," he added, "we want to save our land and water, but we've also got to make a living, and people have got to eat."

EXPANSION...of fishing facilities at Swan Quarter is now underway with plans for a new marina on the bank in the upper left of this photograph, just behind the docked white boat.

WEIGHING IN...a catch of local fish, two workmen later iced down the fish for transshipment.

By RHONDA SEEGL AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With a sluggish shiver, the stock market "shook the snow from its shoes" and put the bad winter behind it this week.

"My impression is that we have seen the worst in the market for a while," observed Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co.

The widely recognized Dow Jones industrial index — an average of 30 Blue Chip stocks — was up 20.03 points from the previous week's 6.81-point setback, and closed at 953.46.

"The market had to digest a lot of adverse economic statistics, most impacted by the weather, and it has absorbed the news well," Zinder said.

During the week, the government reported the index of leading economic indicators, designed to gauge future economic trends, was down 1.2 per cent during January, supposedly foreshadowing a bad month ahead.

And unemployment for February was 7.5 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent the previous month.

There also was a report that January factory orders slipped by 2.1 per cent and shipments declined 1.3 per cent.

Despite it all, stock prices bounced several times and wound up higher.

A rally got started late Monday, carried through Tuesday, fizzled somewhat Wednesday and then picked up again at the end of the week.

"You are still in the midst of a technical rally, unaccompanied by substantial volume," cautioned Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. "But the cold snap is over and the near-term outlook is improving."

On Monday, the market managed a small gain, but it was in the slowest trading in three months.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones average hit its high for the year, up 8.31 points. The Dow lost ground in only one session, Wednesday, when the rally lost its steam.

"A rally that falls usually goes lower than a previous decline," one analyst noted.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 1.72 to 101.20, and the NYSE's composite index of all listed common stocks gained .89 at 54.98.

Big Board volume averaged 18.04 million shares a day, too light, analysts felt, to support a sustained rally.

Yet brokers said there was a firm undertone, an indication the market was headed up for a while.

"It certainly is not coming forward with any great buying, it's just a relaxation of selling pressures," Gordon said.

Gold mining stocks had a big day Wednesday, in part a response to inflation fears. Dome Mines was up 2 1/4; Homestake Mining climbed 2 and ASA Ltd. added 1 1/4. Later in the week, they retreated a bit.

Playboy Enterprises generated a lot of interest at the end of the week, winning approval for a 660-room hotel in Atlantic City, N.J. The approval carries a provision for a gambling casino in the complex. Playboy stock closed up 3/4 at 8 1/2 on Friday, following a 1 1/4 gain the day before.

The weekly tally of NYSE issues showed 1,258 gainers to 588 losers among the 2,097 traded.

New 1976-77 highs numbered 91 against only 2 new lows.

The American Stock Exchange market value index, recovering from last week's 1.67-point deficit, rose 89 to 111.47.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was ahead 1.1 to 327.6.

Estimate Cost Of Ocean Ships

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States could spend from $10 billion to $16.4 billion on ocean ships and their subsystems in the 1976-1985 period, according to a Frost and Sullivan survey.

The extent of the outlays will depend on world demand for shipping capacity and the U.S. government's willingness to pass cargo-preference legislation for American shipping.

Congress should enact such legislation this year, the study says, which would mandate the carrying of 20 to 30 per cent of U.S. oil imports in American-built and operated tankers.

Estimates on the eventual size of the U.S. market range from an additional 268 ships to 563 ships over the nine-year period.

Reappraisal Of Military Bases

By ARTHUR L. GAYSHON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's administration is pondering new cuts or closures in America's already contracting network of military bases and installations around the world.

U.S. officials, offering an overview of factors affecting the future of these foreign military activities, stress:

—Strategic interests keep shifting. The value of the Philippine bases was greater, for instance, when China seemed a threat and the Vietnam war was on.

—New weapons systems are outdating static defenses. A single missile could more effectively repel a would-be attacker than the 10,000-strong garrison guarding the Panama Canal.

—Political conditions rarely stand still. It would seem inconsistent for Carter to argue that morality should be a factor in foreign affairs and yet keep U.S. forces in a land where human rights are suppressed.

—Costs of keeping foreign bases have soared into the billion dollar bracket, often binding future administrations to deals they may dislike.

—Bases often breed inertia in an age when air and sea mobility can more effectively demonstrate a nation's power to influence events.

As one Pentagon official recalled: "In 1961, before the cold war had subsided, there were 452 significant U.S. military installations around the world. Now there are about 320 in about 30 countries with roughly 180 in West Germany alone."

Barring unforeseen crises, the official added, Carter, in line with his campaign promise to economize, is expected to continue these cutbacks.

Another Angola-style venture by Russia and Cuba could, however, thwart that. On the other hand, successful completion and loyal observance of a new American-Soviet pact to limit strategic weapons (SALT II), plus beginnings of real disarmament, could in time spur the dismantlement of the worldwide network of bases and installations.

The process of reappraisal was, to some extent, forced on Carter by problems inherited from the era of former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

These difficulties span oceans and continents.

Only last month the administration began its fullscale negotiations for a new treaty to regulate the use and management of the Panama Canal.

South Africa, a flashpoint in the black-white power struggle, presents a special problem if Carter intends to practice the morality he preaches. U.S. Air Force planes have staging rights there, and an American tracking station is operating not far from Johannesburg. Can Carter keep cooperating with South Africa while urging its reluctant white rulers to liberalize?

The process of military reassessment also has origins in the President's devotion to the cause of cost-effectiveness. He promised in his campaign to work for a $5-billion cut in defense spending.

This suggests savings must come chiefly from consolidating, realigning, reducing, or shutting down certain military activities at home and abroad.

Accordingly, some troop withdrawals and some phasedown of activities should, after due inter-allied consultation, surprise nobody in South Korea or in Panama, to name just two examples.

Just about all of the problems facing Carter pack a load of political or military controversy in one form or another.

U.S. officials of several departments gave this rundown of the most troublesome of the foreign base problems facing the Carter administration:

—Congress has approved a five-year treaty which Kissinger negotiated with Spain covering air and naval base rights, economic aid and other forms of cooperation. But Spain, moving toward democracy in the aftermath of the Franco era, is a land still torn between leftist and rightist forces. Spanish socialists, who can count on Communist support, called last December for the scrapping of the bases treaty. The pact provides, among other things, for a $1.2 billion program of military and economic grants and credits, much of which will be repayable.

—Congress has yet to act upon another Kissinger military-economic deal, with Turkey, worth $1.3 billion over five years. But it has been the position of Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to defer action on the agreement with Turkey pending some progress toward a Cyprus settlement. So that projected Kissinger accord remains in limbo. During the hiatus, no U.S. arms can be supplied to Turkey. In tit-for-tat style, the Turks have immobilized all major U.S. air bases on their territory.

—To balance his arrangement with Turkey, Kissinger offered Greece a four-year defense cooperation pact, spiced with economic aid too, and worth nearly $1 billion. But Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis, who still suspects that Washington backed Turkey's invasion of Cyprus, has not yet bitten. Perhaps he wants to see first what Congress does with the Turkish deal. Perhaps he hopes for a better offer from Carter. In the meantime, he has deprived the U.S. Air Force and Navy of their longstanding base facilities in Greece. And he has led his country out of the military system of the North Atlantic (NATO) Alliance, weakening NATO's eastern flank.

—Kissinger also bequeathed a vacuum-like situation to the Carter administration over America's prized base facilities in Portugal's Azores group of islands. Formally U.S. treaty rights expired in 1974. But the two governments agreed to keep the arrangements tenuously alive by engaging in renewal talks every six months or so. Presumably because of Portugal's unstable politics, Lisbon's socialist-led government has filibustered until now. But the word is that soon it will be ready to discuss new terms. These may include a condition that U.S. planes do not, as they did in the 1973 Mideast war, use the Azores as a staging-point for airlifting arms to Israel. Additionally officials here have no doubt that Portugal will seek more money for the use of its facilities.

Yet the outlook in Europe for the Americans is not all bleak. West Germany, where about 300,000 U.S. land and air personnel are based, remains a region of stability.

Iceland in mid-Atlantic, after settling its cod war with Britain, no longer is threatening a shutdown of the valuable U.S. naval station complex. From Icelandic fields U.S. planes and electronic eavesdroppers are able to monitor the movement of Soviet vessels into the North Atlantic.

Britain still provides a safe haven for U.S. nuclear-powered submarines with their missiles, nuclear payloads and a jointly-run early warning system.

Nevertheless, one consequence of Kissinger's spending spree on European base facilities has been to make the mouths of America's friends elsewhere water as military leasing arrangements come up for renewal.

The most dramatic illustration came during the last weeks of Kissinger's incumbency when President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines vetoed what U.S. officials took to be a cut-and-dried accord. This was for a $1 billion five-year military-economic aid package in return for continued use of the Clark AFB in central Luzon and the Subic Naval Base. Perhaps Marcos reckoned he could get better terms from Carter. The new Kissinger offer, experts say, just about doubled the price Washington had been paying Manila until last fall.

Carter's men, by all accounts, are microscopically examining the U.S. need to go on using the Philippine bases. Essentially America's global network of bases developed in the bad old days of the Cold War during the 1950s was a way of deterring possible Soviet and Chinese aggression.

"Let's face it, bases aren't what they used to be," a senior Pentagon official remarked. "Nowadays fully-loaded transport planes can fly longer, mid-air refueling has developed, surveillance of most significant movements is taking place from our satellites in the skies."

Birth Control Program In Mexico Is Working

By JOHN VIRTUE
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Evangelina, 28, middle class and the mother of three small children, tells friends she doesn't plan to have any more.

"When I was a teen-ager, my friends and I all talked about having six or eight children when we got married," she said. "Times have changed since then."

More and more Mexicans are beginning to believe it. Luis, a professional man in his mid-40s, and his wife already had four growing children when she stopped using the pill. She became pregnant again almost immediately.

"The small family lives better," said Luis ruefully, quoting the slogan of the government's birth control program.

Even Jabina, an Indian cleaning woman and mother of 10, asked her employer if her 16-year-old daughter-in-law, about to deliver her first child, were too young "to take something to stop her from having more babies?"

Jabina's son, Julio, 20, the father-to-be, is unemployed and can't find work.

Mexico's birth control program started in 1973. An unreleased study made by the Social Security Institute shows births per 1,000 dropped from 44-45 that year to 6-40 by the end of last year.

"If the low figure of 36 per 1,000 is correct, then the decrease has been remarkable," said a foreign population expert.

The study showed that the number of women using some sort of birth control had more than doubled in three years, from 900,000 to two million.

Although the annual growth rate has dropped from 3.6 to 3.2 per cent per year, it remains among the world's highest. It would more than double Mexico's 60 million population by the year 2000.

Dr. Jose Leon Garcia, the health ministry's subsecretary

Parent-Child Relating Course Being Offered

Pitt Tech Offers Parent-Child Relating Course

Pitt Technical Institute will offer a course in Parent-Child Relations Friday, beginning March 11 at 9 a.m. at the Farmville Adult Education Center.

The course is designed to help parents deal with their children more effectively in personal communications. The class will meet each Friday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon for ten weeks and a total of 30 hours instruction.

Registration will be $5. Bettie Gordon will be the instructor. Persons interested in taking the course should attend the first class meeting Friday, March 11 at 9 a.m. For further information contact the Division of Continuing Education at Pitt Tech, 756-3130, extension 238.

for planning, said recently that President Jose Lopez Portillo hopes to bring the growth rate down to 2.4 per cent by 1982 when his term of offices ends.

His administration, which took office last Dec. 1, has made birth control a top priority, but without fanfare. Dr. Jorge Martinez Manatou, the health secretary's brother, has been named head of a super agency with an "unlimited budget" to coordinate the six public and two private birth control programs.

The benefits of birth control, or family planning, are touted in a slick government advertising campaign on radio, television, magazines and billboards. Free birth control pills and contraceptives are dispensed at government medical clinics to those who ask for them.

But the program has failed to make an impact in rural areas where many families are too poor to even own a radio. They don't know of the free pills, or where to get them.

The government expects to get a World Bank loan to counter this by opening 400 health units in rural areas. When a peasant wife comes in to get a sore arm tended to, she'll also get a lecture on family planning and free pills.

The government also is studying the possibility of making contraceptives a shelf item in CONASUPO, its subsidized supermarkets, to reach more poor people.

The birth control program was started by former President Luis Echeverria, himself the father of eight children. Lopez Portillo's family is more in line with the program's objectives. He has only three.

Big Harvest By Little Garden

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — A 6-by-15-foot garden plot can produce a bountiful harvest of vegetables, says vegetable expert Ted Torrey.

In one growing season, his plot at a seed company here produced 147 hybrid cucumbers, 20 carrots, 15 beets, 8 pounds of hybrid onions, 10 pounds of bush snap beans, 12 looseleaf heads of lettuce, 50 standard size hybrid tomatoes, 54 miniature tomatoes and 63 hybrid zucchini squash.

Torrey says a home gardener may do even better by keeping the plot busy all the time. As soon as a row of vegetables is harvested, the ground can be cultivated and replanted.

He added that succession sowings should be planned so that the vegetables will have time to mature before frost.

The Merry Tiller you buy this year should still be working in 2005.

Merry Tillers last a long, long time. In fact, we know of several gardeners who are still cultivating with the Merry Tillers they bought in 1947.

Isn't it nice to know the Merry Tiller you buy today will still be working 30 years from now? If you take care of your Merry Tiller, it'll take care of you.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

afraid to make a move?

YOU'RE NOT ALONE!

With prices high and mortgages hard to get, a lot of people are sitting tight, paying their rent, watching their money go down the drain. Be a part of the Cambridge success story and join the families that have already bought homes since last year.

Where else can you find a new home with 1,453 square feet of heated space for $39,700? That works out to just $27.32 per square foot, including the lot! Look around — we bet you'll come back to CAMBRIDGE for this 3 bedroom, 2 bath brick ranch with living room, den with fireplace, formal dining room, large kitchen, carport with storage, central air and electric heat.

Call for an appointment today; you can't afford not to see this one. And the owner will pay $1,000 toward your closing.

THE BEST TIME TO INSULATE AN OLDER HOME IS WHEN YOU BUY IT

Look at this common sense approach to re-insulating older homes while you make money closing it.

The average home built in Greenville prior to 1970 has only three inches of insulation in its attic, and that's it, nine in the walls and nine in the floors. Assuming that this home is 1400 square feet it would cost approximately $380 per year to heat, and $257 per year to cool. If this home was re-insulated to today's building code requirements (R-19 ceiling, R-11 walls, R-11 floors). You could heat this home for approximately $169 per year, and cool for approximately $168 per year, which is a net savings of about $300 per year or $25 per month.

If you were to have this home re-insulated at the time of purchase and added the cost into your mortgage, your monthly payment would increase about $9.00 for a net savings of $16.

For a free insulation survey and cost savings analysis on the home that you are planning to purchase call

HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

Enter the circular stairway and stop into our large inviting foyer with such detail work as raised molding which can be found throughout. Leave our foyer and go into the large living room with its marble fireplace. The dining room is large enough to accommodate 12 comfortably. The study with its old brick fireplace and grass cloth and paneling make it so inviting to friends and family. The owner has spent a lot of time redecorating and it's truly beautiful throughout. 2 sun porches, one enclosed and one is not, both has broken quarry tile. Basement area for workshop or game room. The grounds which encompass 2 acres is beautifully landscaped. You'll agree it is truly a home of dreams. Utilities are running low on this and we'll be glad to share them with you. Shown by appointment. Assumable loan. 70's.

Whoever thought a barn could be beautiful? It's out of this world in its color and setting. You have to see it to believe it. Close your eyes and imagine if you can a brown 3 story barn with wine shutters setting in the middle of Tall Pines on a lot 275 x 150. Now let's go inside to the over 3500 square feet of living enjoyment we'll find in this 5 bedroom home and by the way to give you an idea as to bedroom size how does a 15 x 26 foot sound? 2 full baths plus 2 1/2 baths and you'll find these done in ceramic. Gigantic family room with fireplace and exposed beams in ceiling. Rec rooms, is quite adequate in fact I'm sure the owner won't mind you having a game of Billiards while you are looking. By the way the master bedroom suite also has a private study for the master and he may also exit by way of permanent stairway outside. Dining room, and living room will stay. Tremendous amount of closet space can be found throughout. His and hers garages. There's just so much to this home you'll just have to see it to believe it. It's only in the 90's. Shown by appointment.

Country living, this rural setting is 3 acres in size. Sprawling ranch with gigantic family room 30 x 30, it's magnificent with its large old brick fireplace and woodbox. Exposed beams, walnut paneling, large country kitchen with floating island and all appliances, study formal dining, 2 1/2 baths, 4 bedrooms, and a game room. There's plenty of room for the children to have horses or any kind of pet, and there are other children in the neighborhood. So why not move the family out and spread out in this home and area. Only a few minutes drive to the hustle and bustle of the city. Area photo's pictures and plot plan available for your inspection. Oh yes, your utility bill here is a low sum. Asking 79,500. Call us we'll be glad to make you an appointment right now.

Mother, Dad and Children, something for everyone can be found in this 2 story yellow colonial. You'll be the envy of the neighborhood and friends because this beautiful home would belong to you. No city taxes, utilities are low for this size home (low 70's). Screened porch for spring and summer time enjoyment. 4 large bedrooms, den with fireplace and exposed beams. Game room, sewing room, 2 1/2 baths, formal living and dining, plenty of closets. Large wooded lot nicely landscaped and a tree house for the children. 79,500. The only reason this custom built home for the owners is available is because of a transfer out of the state. So why not make your dream come true and I'm sure it will once you've been inside. Diamond Engagement Ring Tradition Is 500 Years Old

NEW YORK (AP) — This year marks the 500th anniversary of the diamond engagement ring.

It all started in 1477, the Jewelry Industry Council says, when the dashing young Archduke Maximilian of Austria wooed and won comely Mary of Burgundy and sealed the pact with a handsome diamond ring. Heeding his advisor who wrote: "At the betrothal your Grace must have a ring set with a diamond and also a gold ring," Maximilian had an imposing-looking gold one fashioned and wed his beloved Mary within 24 hours of the betrothal ceremony.

The actual ring, with a large cutout "M" for Maximilian, highlighted with diamonds and a smaller stylized "M" for Mary, done in smaller diamonds, is still in existence. The ring is now in the Museum of Fine Arts in Vienna, the Jewelry Industry Council learned during research in connection with the anniversary celebration.

Although the tradition of the diamond as the betrothal stone began 500 years ago, evidence of the engagement tradition dates back as far as the caveman.

The pharaohs of Egypt are believed to have originated the ring, or circle, as a symbol of eternity. Their sketches indicate the circle as a heavenly sign that life, happiness and love have no beginning and no end.

Until the 19th century, the diamond engagement ring was a luxury only royalty and the very wealthy could afford, says the Diamond Information Center. But today in the United States, it reports, 78 per cent of all first-time brides and nearly 50 per cent of all repeat brides receive a diamond engagement ring, and nearly half of all brides choose matched sets of engagement and wedding rings.

Since their discovery some 2,000 years ago diamonds have been a constant source of fascination, the information center researchers say. Named after the greek word "adamas," meaning unconquerable, diamonds are the hardest and most durable of all natural substances. By their very nature, they came to symbolize courage and invincibility. Some ancients believed that those who gazed into a diamond would gain inner strength. Others saw the diamond as a talisman to ward off evil.

While the oval and marquise shapes are gaining in popularity, the solitaire in the brilliant or round cut remains the most popular choice today.

However, this has not always been so. The engagement ring, like women's fashions, has followed various trends. In colonial days the preferred setting was a hoop with diamonds circling half way or all the way around the finger. This style was referred to as the keeper ring, as it was placed above the wedding band for safekeeping.

In Martha Washington's day, clusters of diamonds were fashioned into floral bouquets. Many of these bouquet rings had scalloped borders and were referred to as cookie rings.

During the Victorian period diamond engagement rings, like the architecture, were quite large and ornate. Bands of yellow gold were embellished with details of black enamel.

At the close of the 19th century, jewelry designs underwent extensive changes when platinum began to be used for setting gems. Because platinum is stronger than gold or silver it allows the diamonds to be set in claws raising the stones from the ring — enabling the stone to catch and reflect even more light rays.

The brilliant-cut solitaire began to gain popularity and became a classic ring in the 1890s. In the 1920s, however, the emerald-cut diamond in ornate mountings came into vogue.

In the 1930s a variety of settings developed, which were referred to as illusion rings. Small stones and engravings surrounded a large stone, which was set onto a metal plate having a diameter slightly larger than its stone, thus creating the illusion that the center stone was larger.

While Maximilian's ring was quite a knockout in its day, jewelry experts point out that the multicarated treasure can't hold a candle for brilliance to even the most modest of today's half to one-carat diamond rings, the most popular sold.

Now, more scientific methods of cutting the diamond and carving the facets enable gemologists to bring out the fiery brilliance of the stone much more than the diamond cutters of the past ever dreamed could be done.

Bridal Fashions Are Traditional

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Tradition is so strong in bridal fashions that some design elements haven't changed in 200 years.

Designer Edythe Vincent discovered this in preparing a booklet for the family manufacturing firm to distribute to its customers.

Even the daringly bared gowns that manufacturers show today in their high-priced lines have historic precedent.

Ms. Vincent's "200 Years of Bridal Fashions" depicts, among other things, two elaborate designs with plunging necklines that date from 1826-1876, when establishment of bridal departments began proliferating in department stores in the United States.

Off-the-shoulder necklines also were popular during that period. Demure looking bonnets tied under the chin tended to be as elaborate in workmanship as the dresses.

The empire waistline so strong in contemporary fashions was popular as early as 1815, when French laces were already being imported. One such style sketched in Ms. Vincent's booklet is heavily embroidered, a trend that also remains popular, especially with the ultra-feminine, ruffled, frilly designs popular with brides of Mexican heritage in the Southwest and other ethnic brides in the Chicago area and elsewhere in the Great Lakes states.

A revival of modesty in dress became apparent about 1850, with lace capelets to cover the shoulders. Hoop skirts and hip pads were still worn, but hair styles were becoming simpler, and so were headdresses, sometime only fitted headbands trimmed with small French flowers and three-quarters lace-trimmed veils.

By 1865, the chapel train had begun to catch on, necklines were getting higher and higher, see-through yokes were vanishing and long sleeves replacing short or just-below-elbow length.

Waist cinchers had a relatively short life in bridal wear, from 1876-1926. Ms. Vincent dates the beginning of today's huge undergarment business from that period.

The blouson bodice that resurfaces every few years began to show up in bridal wear about 1904 and so did simulated beaded trim that still is strong.

When flappers came along in the 1920s, they got rid of underpinnings and underskirts in bridal gowns as well as everyday clothing, but the gowns remained elaborate, including veils covering the face.

The soft, draped look was popular by 1948, and headpieces tended to be made of mother-of-pearl, orange blossoms or beaded crowns.

By 1960, the bouffant look was coming back. In 1966, the scooped neckline and short sleeves had come full circle in one of Ms. Vincent's own designs, a lace-trimmed sheath with slim skirt and a detached Watteau train.

The back of her booklet depicts the last gown in Ms. Vincent's 1976 collection, her Bicentennial wedding gown with a full Victorian lace sleeve, lace bodice with an almost floor-length lace panel, deep oval neckline, chapel length train, lace headpiece and veil.

Ms. Vincent, wife of manufacturer Alfred Angelo Piccione, of Willow Grove, Pa., drew on the resources of Drexel University and the Philadelphia Museum of Art for the history of bridal fashions.

Vacationing? Plan Holiday To Suit Needs

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — What makes a vacation successful? For one thing, vacationers themselves, and for another, careful planning, says veteran hotelman John F. Clifford.

After more than 40 years of observing vacationers of all ages, Clifford, general manager of the Breakers Hotel here, offers some tips to help make holidays happy, whether the budget's large or limited:

—Know yourself. Decide exactly what your vacation needs and preferences are, then tailor your plans to fit.

—Know your family. What are their interests? Golf, tennis, swimming, camping? Do they like to dress for dinner or to be completely casual? The answers help in selecting hotels or resorts.

—Think of the children. For younger travelers, look into special provisions — rates, supervised play areas and particular attractions for them.

—Be realistic, especially about money. Economics plays a big part in the selection of a vacation spot. Better a less ambitious schedule than a budget stretched out of shape.

—Consider traveling off season. Inquire about trips to areas of the country you'd like to visit at a time that isn't the height of their vacation season. There are attractive off-season package rates almost everywhere.

—Face up to tipping. Allow for it in advance, along with other expenses. Then relax.

—Check your attitude. Expect to have a good time. Leave worries and doubts at home. Smile; you'll most likely receive a smile in return.

—Stay cool. If something goes amiss, a responsible staff will right any wrong in short order. They value your respect and approval. And, remember, a sense of humor often helps in any situation.

—Concentrate on the here and now. Enjoy the new and unfamiliar; even the unexpected can be fun.

—Be yourself. Do what pleases you. It's your vacation.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I got this pathetic letter last week from a woman whose family was threatening to send her to a Home for the Criminally Clean.

She had all the symptoms of a Domestic-Obsessive. In her words, "I used to vacuum the furnace ducts once a week and wash them down with soap and water monthly. I scrubbed the driveway with a stiff brush when it started to look shabby. God forgive me, I even got a ladder and scrubbed down the entire outside of a white frame house because it looked dirty."

The high spot of her week was watching the sanitation truck suck up the garbage.

Through years of reading my column, she has been rehabilitated and is once again able to take her place in a normal society. The other day as she walked through her dining room and saw draperies that had been hanging there for six months with the pins still in them, she thought of me and wanted to write and tell me what I had done for her.

If that story doesn't make you want to sell your sweeper, nothing will. Actually, I haven't done anything. All I've tried to do all these years is to point out that dust was put here to measure time. If there are any newlyweds out there who do not know the history of dust, let me enlighten you.

Dust was discovered in California by John Wayne in 1846 . . . four years before California became a state. Little was known about dust. People just covered their mouths with a handkerchief and hoped it moved east. It did. The winds of Arizona caught it and blew it across the Plains. The rains in Washington turned it into mud and travellers tracked it into Montana and Wyoming.

In Chicago, it enjoyed drinking man's status as men yelled, "Here's mud in your eye." The South reveled in its poetry, singing, "It's a treat to beat your feet on the Mississippi mud."

Dust would have hit Maine and eventually petered out had it not been for an antiseptic housewife in Portland who saw a speck of it one day on her window sill, grabbed a cloth and wiped it up. She then shook her cloth outside her window and sent the dust back to the West. It's been going back and forth across the nation ever since.

The future of dust (or its demise) lies with the American housewife. It's up to her to call a truce on this shifting of dust from one state to another. We've come a long way since that little disgusting housewife in Maine polished her window sill. At least, we've gotten the American motto to read, "In God We Trust." It used to be Dust.

Patient Circle Meeting Set

The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Sons will meet Wednesday at 3 p.m. with Mrs. T. L. Hannaford.

The Rev. John A. Farmer, assistant pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, will conduct the Bible study.

Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. T. I. Moore and Mrs. L. L. Rives.

Baskets are great for fried-chicken suppers. Shallow rectangular ones, lined with paper napkins, can hold the chicken plus French-fried potatoes or onion rings and a pick-up salad of radishes and stuffed celery. Round baskets can hold fresh fruit and cookies for dessert.

Expect Seafood Prices To Remain High

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

People who traditionally give up meat for Lent may be tempted this year to give up fish and seafood instead.

High retail prices for both types of products make some cuts of meat better buys than fish.

Patrick Ginley, chairman of the four-nation North Atlantic Seafood Association, says a combination of greater demand and smaller supplies have led to increases. He is president of Cleveland-based Nickerson Seafoods, whose parent company is in North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

In a telephone interview, Ginley and Lee Weddig of the National Fisheries Institute, Washington, D.C., expect the 200-mile limit fishing pact that takes effect March 1 to improve the supply picture eventually. Ginley gives it two years, Weddig thinks the effect could be felt earlier.

Under the international agreement, the federal government through its regional fish management councils will set quotas for fish and seafood varieties. It will determine the maximum amount of each variety that can be caught by United States and foreign fleets within 200 miles of U.S. shores.

The quotas will be based on the amount the waters will support without endangering any species.

In telephone interviews, both men said the tremendous growth of fish usage in fast food restaurants is putting pressure on retail supplies and prices.

"We find 75 per cent of all fish is eaten away from home now," Ginley said.

Mothers are either working and do less cooking, or they don't want to smell up the house by frying fish, he said, adding that the association has been suggesting they bake or broil it instead.

What some working wives actually do is use the extra income from their jobs to pay for meals outside the home. Ginley said studies show many tend to order fish or seafood in restaurants because they don't usually prepare it at home.

Canada's conservation program and fishing quotas have also affected supplies and prices.

North Atlantic ocean perch that has been featured during Lent for the past 20 to 25 years is in very short supply this year, Ginley said. Most of it is caught by the Canadian fleet, the chief supplier of fish and seafood imports to the United States. Canada, Norway, Iceland and Denmark make up the North Atlantic association. Ginley said frozen ocean perch that used to retail for 99 cents to $1.10 a pound this year is probably going for $1.15 to $1.35.

One of the largest supermarket products in the United States is Greenland turbot from Japan and Canada, he said. Supplies are limited this year, as are North Atlantic cod and haddock, the latter because of very limited quotas.

Ginley also said battered fish products are the hottest item currently in retail store sales, a take-off on the popularity of fish and chips at fast food outlets.

North Atlantic cod prices probably are at their highest level in fishing industry history, he said. He estimated that boneless cod costs restaurants $1.35-$1.50 a pound currently, and supermarket customers, $1.40-$1.59.

"Seafood is normally an impulse sale," he said, speculating that customers were more likely to buy meat when fish and seafood prices are as high or higher in price.

Weddig, whose group represents processors and distributors, said the general feeling was that prices had topped out after bad winter weather that kept some fishing boats in port and closed a lot of plants because of fuel shortages.

He said fresh Gulf of Mexico fish is quite readily available, salmon is beginning to appear in West Coast markets, Mexican coast shrimp fishermen were reporting good catches, and sea scallopers, exceptional ones. The latter expect a very fine year in quantity and quality.

Weddig predicted that diners-out who stayed indoors during bad weather would soon be going out for meals again, and creating more demand for fish and seafood. Most of that eaten in the U.S. is consumed away from home.

Actress Finds Beauty Can Handicap Career

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A beautiful person may have more obstacles to overcome than other people in achieving success.

That conclusion has been reached by Anne Archer, who possesses beauty, brains and two well known actor parents, Marjorie Lord and John Archer, all of which should have helped pave the way to success in an acting career.

"But nobody really took me seriously. They would comment how beautiful I was and I realized it was important for me to be validated for my ability and not for my looks which wouldn't, anyway, last forever," she explained.

Looking taller than her 5 feet 6, Anne, a 29-year-old brunette, is now "getting the right feedback from the industry" and knows she has become a fine actress.

"There are few attractive ladies who are good actresses and it opens up a choice of roles where they need a certain kind of lady who can do a unique job with a role," she says.

She went right into summer stock after Claremont College, where she had received a degree in the arts. It led to her first film job but the movie wasn't released. She has had other roles and has done quite a bit of television work "but you must feel your way and not make bad judgments in accepting roles."

"In choosing television, you must select something that is important. If you are overexposed in a series it is more difficult to move into films. The miniseries are good and have opened incredible doors for some actors. I think the six-hour television film, "Seventh Avenue," that I have just made, is a good, prestigious period piece."

The film, recently made in New York, is a story about the garment center. It is "about a lot of characters with different problems," and Anne plays the role of a lesbian who tries to kill herself. The role gives her a chance to deal with emotion, which she likes. She has been cast in comedy and tragedy.

She has played sophisticated ladies and call girls, she says, and "playing so many roles keeps you from being type-cast."

She "was never an ingenue" and thinks she is entering a good age for her type, even though Hollywood has created a "paranoia about age that is not based on reality. We don't all need to be 21 and on the cover of Vogue to be acclaimed beautiful."

Often compared to Ava Gardner — there is a strong resemblance — she would like to play sophisticated comedy, the Noel Coward light comedy kind of thing "that they haven't been writing." But she thinks they are coming back to it.

She doesn't identify with her father or mother as far as acting goes, she says. Her own work is different.

"But I'd like to do a play in New York and not have to worry about the commercial aspects of the business. I plan to pursue things that are exciting workwise and I will never try to climb the ladder of success just to have some sort of stardom," she says.

While the film was being made, she and her son, 4, lived in a rented house. Her husband, Los Angeles businessman William Davis, sometimes accompanies her on trips "but he has incredible pressures of his own," she explains.

Commandments Given For Wives

DEAR ABBY: About ten years ago you gave the editor of our church bulletin permission to reprint two of your columns. One was your "Ten Commandments For Wives," and the other was your "Ten Commandments For Husbands."

Will you please run them again?
MRS. N.D.G.

DEAR MRS. G.: With pleasure.

- TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR WIVES
1. Defile not thy body neither with excessive foods, tobacco nor alcohol, that thy days may be long in the house which thy husband provideth for thee.
 2. Putteth thy husband before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter and thy son, for he is thy lifelong companion.
 3. Thou shalt not nag.
 4. Permit no one to tell thee that thou are having a hard time of it; neither thy mother, thy sister nor thy neighbor, for the Judge will not hold her guiltless who letteth another disparage her husband.
 5. Thou shalt not withhold affection from thy husband, for every man loveth to be loved.
 6. Forget not the virtue of cleanliness and modest attire.
 7. Forgive with grace, for who among us do not need forgiveness?
 8. Remember that the frank approval of thy husband is worth more to thee than the admiring glances of a hundred strangers.
 9. Keep thy home in good order, for out of it cometh the joys of thy old age.
 10. Honor thy Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will rise up and call thee blessed.
- Next Sunday I'll print the "Ten Commandments For Husbands."

DEAR ABBY: We've always taught our children to address adults as "Mr." and "Mrs." But we have some neighbors who are older than we are, and they keep asking our children to call them "Rita" and "Frank."

Training children is hard enough nowadays without neighbors like these to complicate matters. We've always been on friendly terms with them and don't want any trouble now. So how do we handle it?

ANNOYED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Tell your neighbors (privately, of course) that you have instructed your children to address adults as "Mr." and "Mrs.," and when adults ask to be addressed by their first names, they confuse the children and encourage them to disregard their parents' wishes.

If you tell them in a nice way they will probably cooperate. And if they don't, it won't hurt your children to learn that not everyone conforms to a social code, and Rita and Frank are two such nonconformists.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MAR. 6, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There could be some confusion between various persons with whom you are connected, so make sure you understand the points and ideas that they are trying to put across.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find the right way to show you appreciate a favor by friend. Take treatments that will build up your energies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you smile more you can establish more harmony between yourself and others. Be sure to improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Showing more devotion to family members brings fine results now. Study a new plan well before putting it in operation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to be more diplomatic when dealing with others today. Sidestep one who could be troublesome.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you have any writing to do, this is a fine day for such. Don't neglect meditation in the morning. Plan the future wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Calm yourself and then you can deal with any problems in a most clever way. Try to be of help to those in bad straits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make arrangements for advancing in your line of endeavor. Know what mate expects of you and then try and please.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A friend could be annoying but only because of own worries, so be patient with this person. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle any public work in a most efficient way. Try to be less talkative for best results at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Clear the slate of present duties before taking on any others. Avoid a new-found friend who has an eye on your assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make long-range plans with family members. Check your surroundings and make any needed repairs. Be more practical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A civic matter comes up that is not pleasing to you, but handle it philosophically for best results. Relax at home tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she could have many problems to solve and can do so accurately, but has to be given proper religious training so life becomes less difficult and more successful. There is a fine ability at self-expression in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good time for you to clarify your relations with other persons and get them to go along with the plans of action which are most important to you. Also fine for entertaining and for any sort of vocational activity that requires neat touch, precision or fine finish. Please everyone.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good time to contact those with whom you want to have more accord in the future. Others are in a better mood than for some time past. Make the most of this.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study the work ahead of you and then plan just how to attend to it most speedily and efficiently. Shop for new clothing that will enhance your good points.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan a wiser way of enjoying your spare hours and contact congenials. Show devotion to the one who means the most to you. Take no chances where your reputation is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan early just how to have more harmony at home with those who dwell with you and be happy. Study new projects that could bring you more success in the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study more efficient ways to operate in order to be more successful in your own line of endeavor. Take care of correspondence that is vital to your welfare, be it of a business or personal nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to cooperate more with others in order to command a greater income in the future. Study how to improve the appearance of your property at small cost. Use much care in motion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put all that extra magnetism to good use and make big headway with others. Use the direct approach. Improve appearance through proper exercise and treatment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Whatever is of a puzzling nature can now be understood and cleared up. Give more time to the one you love and be happier together. Avoid one who has an axe to grind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Put across ideas that improve your standing with good friends and new contacts. Plan for some entertainment, but stay within the budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact powerful individuals and gain their support for whatever projects mean the most to you. Take care of a credit affair that has been difficult to handle lately. Avoid one whose thinking is negative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Investigate projects that can be profitable to you and allies now, since your thinking is brilliant. Be sure to follow your intuition also, since it is working fine and can be helpful to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Improve your position with both debtors and creditors and use a better system of operating. Plan how to be happier with the one you love. Take no chances where reputation is concerned.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those magnetic persons who can relate well with others and make a big success of life. Give the kind of education that will prepare your child for the kind of work that is best suited to him or her and that will make the life a happy and productive one. There is artistic talent here and it should be trained properly. Teach to have good thoughts where others are concerned and get right results. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Hot Wine Once A Cold Remedy

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Kovi, restaurateur and wine authority, says that wine has long been thought to have medicinal value.

Kovi, writing in Sphere magazine, recalls his grandfather's remedy for the common cold, which he called "The Cure of the Two Hats."

Whenever he felt a cold coming on, he took to his bed, covering himself with warm quilts, but leaving one foot stuck out. That foot was covered with a hat. Then he'd call for some boiled wine. Kovi's grandfather said the wine should not only be hot, but spicy, flavored with orange peel, cinnamon stick, cloves and a few peppercorns. The "cure" required drinking the wine until he saw two hats. The next day, Kovi's grandfather said, he would awaken "sound as an oak tree" and feeling ten years younger. Kovi says that his grandfather lived to be 99, without ever having the sniffles.

MacLaine's 'Where Do We Go From Here?' To Be Broadcast Saturday

Shirley MacLaine stars in "The Shirley MacLaine Special: Where Do We Go From Here?," to be broadcast Saturday, March 12 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Shirley MacLaine will take a musical look at the beginning of our nation's second hundred years using laser light, electronic sound, dance and comedy, in "The Shirley MacLaine Special: Where Do We Go From Here?," to be broadcast Saturday, March 12, 10 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Miss MacLaine's two previous specials, "If They Could See Me Now" and "Gypsy in My Soul," were awarded Emmys in several categories, the latter having been singled out as Outstanding Special in Comedy, Variety or Music.

Joining Miss MacLaine is the special hour, and adding their artistic answers to the title question, are Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo, a unique comedy dance group, and Don Ellis and his Electric Orchestra. Also featured are the laser-light patterns of Laserium and special cartoons by Mexico's satirical cartoonist, Sergio Aragones, plus far-reaching comments on things to come by a group of Miss MacLaine's celebrated friends making cameo appearances.

Between television specials, Miss MacLaine has taken her one-woman singing and dancing revues to live audiences at some of the country's largest showrooms. And she has proved to the world and, more importantly to herself that she need not submerge her talents in a make-believe character.

In the strict physical regimen Miss MacLaine followed in preparing for her return to the rigorous demands of multiple stage appearances, she improved her health and increased her energy manifold. "I learned that as long as I am strong, I don't have to limit myself — I can do some of all of the many things I'd like to try to do."

And that she has done. She has written two books and is completing a third. She headed the first American women's delegation to the People's Republic of China and filmed a prize-winning documentary about that visit. She's traveled around the world. She performed to SRO audiences and rave reviews with her one-woman stage shows. She has made her first motion picture in more than four years — "The Turning Point," her 27th movie.

Watching and talking to this talented dynamo, one can only echo the title of her new special — "Where do we go from here?"

Unique Type-Casting Used In 'A Circle Of Children'

Nine-year-old Matthew Labordeaux stars, through a unique kind of type-casting, in "A Circle of Children" with Jane Alexander, Rachel Roberts and a distinguished cast. Thursday, March 10, 9 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV.

The story concerns the relationships between students and teachers in a private school for emotionally disturbed children, some of whom suffer from an unusual mental condition known as autism.

Young Matthew portrays an autistic child whose speech pattern has become "scrambled," until it is unintelligible to the normal ear.

Matthew's qualifications for the role were two-fold: He is an experienced young motion picture and television actor with an Emmy nomination to his credit, and he has experienced the symptoms of autism.

Although experts agree that there is no complete cure for this bizarre ailment (and no known cause), medical researchers and specialists have achieved methods of control that allow some afflicted youngsters to maintain a role in society along with their unaffected peers. Matthew's is a case of such control, and his rehabilitation is such that he has become a sought-after craftsman in one of the most demanding of careers.

The youth showed symptoms of autism shortly after his adoption at the age of 10 months. His devoted parents accepted the fact of his autism, but refused to let it change the course of the family's life. His actress-mother reports that Matthew was introduced to stage performing and being in front of an audience at the age of four. "It was the greatest therapy in the world," she says.

Matthew brings very special knowledge and understanding to his role in the powerful drama that presents the problems of emotionally disturbed children, their parents, and the dedicated people who help them.

"A Circle of Children" also holds out hope that the growing field of research and education in autism, a relatively new medical delineation, will ultimately find answers to the puzzles that surround this most misunderstood of all childhood ailments.

Has A One Gal Show

Diana Ross, the record-breaking and award-winning internationally acclaimed entertainer, will make a rare television appearance when she headlines her own 90-minute one-woman show, "An Evening with Diana Ross," on NBC-TV's "The Big Event," Sunday, March 6, 9:30 p.m. on NBC-TV.

The musical, which will reflect the star's career, will be highlighted by songs with which she is identified. Several of her elaborate production numbers will be enhanced by 12 mimes. Ross and costume designer Bob Mackie collaborated on the creation of spectacular gowns for the show.

In The prologue of the show which was taped recently in Los Angeles, Diana recalls her childhood, singing "Here I Am" and "I Wouldn't Change a Thing" in a street setting.

Musical numbers in the first act include "Reach Out and Touch," "The Music and the Mirror," "What I Did for Love," and "Home." A montage of film clips of Diana and the Supremes also is presented.

In act II, Diana sings "Touch Me in the Morning," "Smile" and "Send in the Clowns." She is joined by the dancers in a disco number, "Love Hangover," which is followed by "Nothing" and the comedy specialty from "A Chorus Line."

"Lady Sings the Blues" opens the third act. "Ain't Nobody's Business," "Good Morning Heartache" and "God Bless the Child" follow.

A segment paying tributes to Ethel Waters, Bessie Smith and Josephine Baker, with Diana portraying each of them, is titled "The Ladies."

"Do You Know," "Ain't No Mountain High Enough" and "May I?" conclude the show.

Featured performers include members of a Richmond Mime Company, and the Motown Ballet, with Ka-Ron Sowell Brown, Gary Chapman and Michael Peters.

Last summer, Ross broke all existing box-office records in the 63-year history of Broadway's renowned Palace Theatre with her triumphant tour de force, "An Evening with Diana Ross." The Palace run followed a sold-out tour of European cities during which she topped the all-time box-office record at London's New Victoria Theatre.

'Alexander' Filmed

MGM's famous jungle Lot 2, which was Tarzan's headquarters in numerous motion pictures, is now the site of the African location for "The Mask of Alexander," and adventure drama being filmed for CBS-TV.

Dressing the jungle set in 13-year-old Neil, one of two African lions working full time in the United States. Neil, best remembered for his Dreyfus commercials on television, has recently been nominated for a Patsy Award. He has appeared in over 15 television shows and 20 motion pictures, including starring in the title role of "Frazier the Lion."

Although there is a great similarity in appearance, according to trainer Ron Oxley, Neil bears no kinship to MGM's famous Leo.

"A CIRCLE OF CHILDREN," starring Jane Alexander (foreground) and Rachel Roberts as two teachers with dramatically different lifestyles who collide on their way to a single goal — helping the emotionally disturbed children in their care, will air on Thursday, March 10 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Hardy Boys' Is A Hit With Teenaged Viewers

"Hardy Boys Mysteries" is a delightful new show that premiered the last of January and has become a solid hit with many viewers, especially teenagers. The series, which depicts suspenseful, intriguing and often hilarious adventures of Frank and Jo Hardy, airs every other Sunday from 7 to 8 p.m., on ABC-TV.

The boys, played by Shaun Cassidy and Parker Stevenson, are sons of a world-famous investigator, Fenton Hardy. 'Sleuthing' is in their blood, you might say, for they can never seem to resist an exciting case that exudes elusive clues.

Shaun Cassidy, who was born in Los Angeles, is a member of a show business family. He is the son of Shirley Jones and the late Jack Cassidy, and a half-brother of pop-rock star David Cassidy. He organized his first band while still in grammar school, performing as both a singer and guitar player at local high school functions and parties.

After graduation from Beverly Hills High School, Shaun, in coordination with the release of his first single recording, "Morning Girl," toured several European cities and was extraordinarily well received in these highly popular concerts.

Shaun was presented with his first gold record for the album, "That's Rock." Another album, entitled "Shaun Cassidy," is soon to be released.

In the summer of 1975, he toured the United States with his mother in the musical, "On a Clear Day." He's also appeared on stage in "The Sound of Music," "High Button Shoes" and "Oliver." His film debut was in "Born of Water" for the American Film Industry.

Parker Stevenson was born in Philadelphia, graduated from Princeton University where he majored in art and architectural history, and plans to go on to graduate school for his M.A.

He has appeared on "Gunsmoke" and "The Streets of San Francisco," and his movie credits include "Our Time," "A Separate Place" and, most recently, "Lifeguard."

A bachelor, Parker maintains an apartment in New York and is currently setting up another residence in Hollywood.

Horse's History Studied

Hal Linden, star of ABC News' young people's magazine series, "Animals Animals Animals," explores the world of the horse in art, history, legend, mythology and literature, in the program airing Sunday, March 6, at 11:30 a.m. on ABC-TV.

"Animals Animals Animals" - which this month won a special Action for Children's Television (ACT) Award for "achievement in children's television" - captures on film the grace and agility of the horse as it runs wild in the American West, and traces the evolution of the horse and its domestication by man.

A film sequence of "Animals Animals Animals" recreates the hilarity of humorist Mark Twain's essay on the complicated, tangled mess of gear necessary in hitching a horse to a wagon.

A montage on the horse shows paintings in France's Lescaux caves, as well as works of arts including Durer's "The Rider," Raphael's "St. George and the Dragon," Uccello's "The Rout of San Romano," "George Stubb's Lion Attacking a Horse," and dozens more.

"Animals Animals Animals" takes viewers to Assateague Island, off the coast of Virginia, where the only herd of wild horses in the Eastern United States lives. Every year, the wild horses are rounded up and they swim across a channel to the neighboring island of Chincoteague where 30 to 70 of them are auctioned off. The remaining horses are driven back to Assateague Island. The annual roundup and auction, a benefit for the local fire department, keep the herd's population to a number that can be supported by the island.

Singer-actress Lynn Kellogg performs an original song about the horse, and Roger Caras, the noted animal expert and environmentalist, provides a commentary about man's debt to the horse. Ms. Kellogg and Mr. Caras appear each week on the series.

TWO-HOUR PILOT

"When Every Day Was the Fourth of July," a two-hour pilot for NBC-TV, stars Joan Hackett, Patrick Macnee, Horst Buchholz and Ed Begley, Jr. It is slated to air March 28.

ED McMAHON CO-STARS IN FILM

Ed McMahon, of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," has a co-starring role in the just-released motion picture, "Fun With Dick And Jane," starring George Segal and Jane Fonda. McMahon plays an executive who fires Segal.

Barber Honored

"Camera Three" presents a profile of American composer Samuel Barber and his work, on Sunday, March 6, 11 to 11:30 a.m., on CBS-TV.

Barber is perhaps best known for his songs, his operas "Vanessa," "Hand of Bridge," and "Anthony and Cleopatra," and his piano piece "Souvenirs."

The composer, who was a charter student at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, is rare among American composers in that he does not teach, write criticism, or concertize, preferring to devote himself wholly to composing. Talking with Barber is the brilliant young American pianist James Tocco, who performs "Two Step" and "Hesitation Tango" from "Souvenirs," and Barber's "Piano Sonata."

Soprano Esther Hinds sings "Sleep Now," with Barber at the piano, and baritone John Reardon sings "Dover Beach," accompanied by the American String Quartet. The Quartet also performs "Adagio for Strings."

Photographs from Barber's long and distinguished career, and a rare tape recording of the composer singing an excerpt from "Dover Beach" are presented.

9:30 (6,7) The Big Event: "An Evening with Diana Ross" Diana Ross stars in this special which depicts her life and career in words and music. Miss Ross will portray Josephine Baker, Ethel Waters and Bessie Smith in tributes to the stars. (90 min)

AN HONOR FOR DALE

Dale Evans Rogers has become the first woman to win the "Better World Award" of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, for her work as an entertainer, among other things.

The presentation came at the recent opening of the organization's mid-winter conference. Included in her gifts was a $1,000 check, which she signed over to Children's Village U.S.A., in Woodland Hills, Calif., to aid battered children.

Diana Presented A Real Challenge For Costumes

Anyone looking at Diana Ross sees something special.

"She has an incredible amount of glamour," said costume designer Bob Mackie. "All groups look at her as a star. Dressing her is the same. She commands the stage and can dress glamorously. It's fun to have that kind of performer to work with — you can give her dresses that move."

That's what Mackie has done for "An Evening With Diana Ross," and NBC-TV "Big Event" presentation to be broadcast Sunday, March 6, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"She'll have about a dozen changes on the show," Mackie indicated.

Most unusual of the costumes are the three Mackie had to get together for the tributes to Ethel Waters, Bessie Smith and Josephine Baker, each of whom Diana portrays.

"First," said Mackie, "I had to give Diana's body the right shape. We are showing each of the women as they dressed during periods in their careers — Smith in the 20s, Waters in the 50s and 60s and Baker in the late 30s or early 50s."

Baker's dress is the only one Mackie created. He shopped in second-hand stores for the others.

"Diana just knows what to do with clothes," said Mackie. "She was born to wear them."

Make-up man Stan Winston freely admits that he didn't know what he was getting into when he was called for a special tracing her life and career through her music, airing on "The Big Event," Sunday, March 6 (9:30-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

TWO FACES OF DIANA — Diana Ross appears as herself (l) and as Josephine Baker (r) in "An Evening With Diana Ross," her one-woman

meeting with Diana Ross.

"It was not just a matter of aging a person, but changing her," he said.

"Not one of the three performers Diana portrays was easy to do, and each represented a different problem. Changing Diana into Ethel Waters required the most extensive make-up. I had to build up her face and make it heavier. That required the most prostheses (addition of artificial parts)."

It took four hours to apply the Waters make-up, three for the Smith look and two for the Baker transformation. It took six weeks, advance preparation. "Everyone seemed quite awed," said Winston. "They didn't expect to see such dramatic changes."

Winston knew that Diana's transformation was a success when she first walked out of the make-up room as Ethel Waters. Staff members and the crew regarded her with stunned silence. But, when a crew member gave her directions and called her by name, she responded, "Call me Ethel."

Don Ho Narrates Disney Drama

Don Ho, internationally-known Hawaiian singer and entertainer whose popularity ranks on a par with Waikiki Beach, puts aside his ukulele to narrate the exotic adventure drama, "Call It Courage", airing on "The Wonderful World of Disney", Sunday evening, March 6, on NBC-TV.

The story, filmed on location in Tahiti and Bora-Bora, concerns a native boy who is marooned on an island paradise inhabited by headhunters, Ho's soothing voice which has helped popularize Hawaiian music over the past decade, adds additional color to panoramas of lush tropical islands, endless beaches and vast expanses of blue-green water. The program's picturesque beauty and Ho's narration almost turn the show into an hour-long dream vacation.

Commenting on the singer's contribution to the "World of Disney" hour, producer Roy E. Disney said, "You can almost hear the palm trees swaying in the breeze in his voice. He's so relaxed and smooth I'm afraid viewers might close their eyes and just listen to the narration. If they do, they'll miss some of the most beautiful scenery we've filmed for our Sunday night show."

Celebrated for his hit albums of Hawaiian songs and his appearances in Las Vegas and other internationally famous entertainment centers, Ho was born in the community of Kakaako on the island of Oahu. Of Hawaiian-Chinese-Portuguese-German-Dutch descent, he attended high school in Honolulu and excelled in sports.

He later won a scholarship to Springfield Academy in Massachusetts, but winter snow couldn't replace sunny beaches. So, after one long homesick year, he returned to the islands and entered the University of Hawaii.

Recalls Ho, "Even though I stayed at Springfield only a year, it was there that I really started to learn about people."

Don graduated from the University of Hawaii with a Bachelor's Degree in sociology. For the next few years, he flew C-97's with the U.S. Air Force as a second lieutenant, finally resigning his commission to settle in Hawaii and help his parents run their small bar named Honey's. That Decision changed his life.

To improve business Don began playing his ukulele and singing. His popularity caught on and for the next three years business boomed.

Eventually he left to entertain

'Big Event' Is Creative

Right now, Alvin Cooperman is "flying by the seat of my pants" with "The Big Event," NBC's new Sunday night series which can "include anything, and everything, and will."

"The thing I love about 'Big Event,'" says Cooperman, "is that it can be a creative event — the idea, the casting and execution. That's the way it should be with multimedia capabilities within the event."

He also says that he likes the Sunday night for the "Big Event" because "it's a positive approach, a night which most are watching TV. But, a negative aspect is many may think certain programs are not a big event, and they may be right."

Cooperman, who was Madison Square Garden Chief for five years and promoted the first Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier title fight, and later produced and

A 'FIRST' FOR SINATRA

Frank Sinatra will star in his first made-for-TV movie, "Contract on Cherry Street." The film, which will air on NBC in November, will be filmed in New York City this summer.

SHENAR IN 'MASK'

Paul Shenar will star in "The Mask of Alexander," a one-hour movie which will air on CBS. The projected series is a tale of foreign intrigue involving the identity of an international figure.

Eight Is Enough Premieres

A California couple and their eight children (ranging in ages from 7 to 23) face the joys and trials of contemporary living, in ABC's new series, "Eight is Enough," premiering soon.

The program based loosely on Tom Braden's autobiographical book of the same title, incorporates comedy as well as heartwarming drama in a family setting. Tom and Jean Bradford are heads of the burgeoning household which included Nicholas (7), Tommy (12), Elizabeth (15), Nancy (18), Susan (19), Joannie (20), Mary (21), and David (23), a varied and unique bundle of offspring.

Each of the kids has a marked personality and lifestyle and is willing — and anxious — to experiment with the "now" of what's happening, ranging from Buddhist fasting to rebellion and radicalism. Tom, a syndicated columnist, and Joan have managed to pull this brood together and make it work — learning as much in the process as have the kids.

The setting for "Eight Is Enough" is California's capitol city, Sacramento, but the theme of the series is universal — raising children in a world filled with uncertainties while facing the entire experience with substantial amounts of love and humor.

Cast of Joan and Tom Bradford are Diana Hyland and Dick Van Patten.

Van Patten has been heard on over 600 radio shows and has appeared on most of the major TV programs. He has been involved in the theater since 1935 when he made his Broadway debut — at age seven — playing the son of Melvyn Douglas in "Lady Who Came to Stay." In 1946, he began a three-season association with the Lunts.

Dick Van Patten's wife is actress Pat Poole, and their son is the popular young actor, Vince Van Patten.

Diana Hyland and Dick Van Patten star as Joan and Tom Braden, who cope with the joys and headaches of raising eight children, ranging in age from 7 to 21, in "Eight Is Enough," new ABC comedy-drama series, on ABC-TV.

City Room Is A Movie Set For 'The Andros Targets'

Down a long corridor, tiled in nondescript institutional green, where there is the massed clicking of typewriters, accompanied by ringing telephones, the incessant metallic rippling of teletype machines and the constant movement of reporters, copy boys, editors and messengers, one is drawn into the exciting world of news reporting, in the city room of a large metropolitan daily.

It may be a "city room," but it also is a movie set, one covering the entire floor of a building on the lower West Side of Manhattan, where filming occurs on "The Andros Targets," broadcast Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

The executive story consultant for the series is Jerome Coopersmith, whose office is located outside the city-room set. Not an ex-newspaper man, he does, however, have along list of credentials in television script writing.

"We lean a lot on Nicholas Gage, who is an investigative reporter for the New York Times," says Coopersmith. "He sits in on all our story conferences as our journalistic consultant."

"When I was responsible for the scripts on 'Hawaii Five-0,' I wrote most of them sitting in my workroom in Long Island," continues the veteran writer, who began in television in its infancy in the 40s.

"I had been to Puerto Rico, so I substituted the lush tropical atmosphere I knew from there, once I sat down at the typewriter."

Coopersmith, who has also written such Broadway stage productions as "Baker Street" and "The Apple Tree," thinks the most important element in hour TV shows is the story line.

"For 'The Andros Targets,' we sit around a large conference table and throw out ideas and develop them into descriptive Take on adroit, attractive woman lawyer, her smooth-talking ex-confidence man father and add a gang of inept but good-hearted scam artists and you have the delightful ingredients for the new comedy-adventure series, "The Feather and Father Gang," debuting Monday, March 7, 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Stefanie Powers stars as Toni "Feather" Danton and Harold Gould stars as her father Harry Danton in the light-hearted action series which features a new confidence scheme every week aimed at bringing a criminal to justice. Also featured in the series are Frank Delfino and Joan Shawlee.

Ms. Powers as Feather is a lady who possesses not only an unquestionable charm but a clever intellect that has made her a skilled lawyer. Her success and style is enhanced by her rather unorthodox upbringing by her father.

Danton is an agile-brained, dapper former bunco artist whose illegal scams helped put his daughter through law school and also put him behind bars. Now Feather's main challenge in life is to see that Harry stays out of trouble and, to this end, she has put him to work as an investigator for her law firm, Bricklaw, Danton and Huffaker.

However, when one of Feather's clients is in need of Harry's special talents from his past, he's not above crossing the straight and narrow and working a scam.

Two of Harry's old pals who aid him are played by Delfino and Shawlee. Delfino portrays a midget-sized Enzo, whose small stature is a decided asset to Harry's schemes. Miss Shawlee is Margo, an abundantly-sized former con-artist who is trying to go straight as a manicurist but is constantly drawn back into the game by Harry.

Also guesting in the series regularly are Lewis Charles as Lou, the owner of Harry's unofficial office, a barbershop; Monte Landis as Michael, proprietor of an expensive French restaurant that often figures in Harry's plans and Edward Winters as Hadley, the swinging assistant district attorney.

paragraphs. Then, we call in the writers and assign the story ideas. In a week, they return with a 20-page prose outline, and we kick it around some more and have Nick Gage go over it for an authentic feel, and then it goes into script form. Each script takes about a month to complete.

"There is a rich treasure of acting talent in New York City and most of the performers are not over-exposed to television audiences. We plan to use lots of local talent on this series."

James Brolin To Star In 'Trapped'

A man trapped after hours in a department store that is patrolled by vicious guard dogs must devise ingenious ways to outwit them and make his way to safety in "Trapped," the "CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, March 8, at 11:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.
James Brolin, who played Dr. Kiley on "Marcus Welby, M.D.," stars as Chuck Brenner, the man trapped in the store, with Susan Clark as his ex-wife, Elaine, and Earl Holliman as her new husband, David Moore. Robert Hooks plays Sgt. Connaught, a police officer whose hope is sought in finding Chuck, and Tammy Harrington plays Carrie, the daughter of Chuck and Elaine.

After telling Elaine and Carrie that he'll meet them at the airport after he buys a doll for the girl, Chuck is mugged and left unconscious in a department store rest room. When he comes to, he discovers that the place is closed and guarded by trained killer dogs. Once the dogs catch Chuck's scent he becomes their prey.

It becomes a race against time as Chuck, having been bitten by one of the dogs, finds himself cornered by another and nearing unconsciousness.

Although viewers will see only six guard dogs during the film, ten were actually used. A certain dog can perform a given trick or stunt but cannot do another with the same ease. Most of the stunts were done by two key Doberman Pinschers, Hans and Caesar, with four additional look-alike pooches to fill in.

If the two white German Shepards in "Trapped" look familiar, they indeed are. The dogs, Blanco and Snow, are the same ones used in the "Longstreet" series on TV, which starred James Franciscus. They played the seeing eye dog, Pax (doubling each other).

SOMETHING NEW FOR ROGERS

For the first time since his college days at Princeton, Wayne Rogers, formerly a cast member of "M*A*S*H," is dancing. Wayne's busily preparing for his guest stint on Mitzi Gaynor's upcoming TV special which airs on CBS-TV March 29.

MIMIEUX SIGNS FOR NBC WESTERN

Yvette Mimieux has been signed to star with Gil Gerard in "The Busters," a 90-minute NBC pilot and potential hour series.

The daring kidnapping of an international oil executive from the elaborate security of his corporate headquarters provides an exciting and dangerous new challenge to super-agent Derek Flint on "Our Man Flint: Dead on Target," airing as the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" March 8, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

A key oil expert is kidnapped in broad daylight. His assistant disappears, and his company's board chairman receives word that he is to negotiate with a "liberation army" in the tiny oil emirate — where "Oilco" has the sole concession — to insure their safe return.

Flint is tapped to be the negotiator for this tricky assignment, and the complications he encounters include foreign intrigue, romance, organized crime and a case of switched identity.

The telecast is action-packed from start to finish as the resourceful Flint must negotiate his own release from the revolutionary group, BESLA; engage in a potentially deadly archery contest risking the life of the captured oil executive, and break this convoluted and treacherous case.

Ray Danton stars as "Our man Flint." Guest starring are Sharon Acker, Lawrence Dane, Donnelly Rhodes, Gay Rowan, Franz Russell and Linda Sorensen.

Others in the cast include: Susan Sullivan, Linda Woods, Guy Robinson, Joe Salas, Rex Owen, Spud Nicholson, Lon Katzman and Dennis Kelli.

The Game Has No Rules

It's a game without any rules, and the stakes run as high as world peace and men's lives. Christopher Jones and Ralph Richardson star with Pia Degermark in "The Looking Glass War," John Le Carré's tense novel of international intrigue, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Late Movie" Thursday, March 10, at 12:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Security chief Leclerc is a behind-the-desk intelligence man whose fondest memories are of the dangerous days of World War II. Discovering that the Russians are secreting a rocket in an East German city, Leclerc decides to send Leiser, a wild young Polish defector, to investigate — a dangerous mission that sparks a deadly game of world espionage.

Leiser gets into East Germany without difficulty, believing he's his own man on the assignment. But actually he's a closely watched pawn, the playing piece for both sides.

Richardson portrays Leclerc, and Jones is Leiser.

'The Gambler' Airs

James Caan stars as a college teacher whose compulsive gambling seems to satisfy him only when he's losing, in "The Gambler," a modern drama of a driven man, which makes its television premiere as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" March 6, 9 to 11:15 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Lauren Hutton, Paul Sorvino, Morris Carnovsky, Jacqueline Brooks and Burt Young (currently a star of "Rocky") are also starred in "The Gambler," with Antonio Fargas — now Huggy Bear in "Starsky and Hutch" — in a featured role.

Axel Freed (James Caan) boldly loses $44,000 that he doesn't have in an illegal casino in New York, and the owners want to know what he's going to do about it. First, he asks his mother (Jacqueline Brooks) for a loan. When she refuses to give him an immediate answer he turns to a loan shark, but the gangster's method of collecting payment scares him away quickly.

When Axel then explains to his mother that his situation is more than embarrassing — it could be deadly — she gives him the full $44,000 and he promises never to gamble again.

He has lied. Compulsive as ever, he flies to Las Vegas with his girlfriend (Lauren Hutton), hits a hot streak and builds the money into a tidy sum — and then loses it all betting on football games as soon as he returns home.

James Caan stars as a compulsive gambler, and Lauren Hutton is his fascinated, and fascinating, girlfriend, in "The Gambler," a world television premiere airing as the ABC Sunday Night Movie, March 6 (9-11:15 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

BULLY FOR TEDDY—Secretary of State John Hay (John Huston, center) referees as President Teddy Roosevelt (Brian Keith, right) takes on a sparring partner, though he must soon return to the problem of rescuing an American woman kidnapped in Morocco in "The Wind and the Lion," an adventure drama airing as the NBC Monday Night Movie, March 7 (9-11:15 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

'Wind And The Lion'

"The Wind and the Lion" is an adventure drama which will air on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" March 7, 9 to 11:15 p.m., on NBC-TV. Sean Connery, Candice Bergen, Brian Keith and John Huston star.

The film is a sweeping, handsomely scaled and thoroughly exhilarating return to the old-fashioned entertainment spectacular, fusing epic adventure, admirable rivalries, breathtaking battles and romantic heroism with a contemporary ear for humor and a remarkable sense of perspective. Basing his movie on an actual but little known historical incident — President Theodore Roosevelt's diplomat's family being held for ransom by a local desert chieftain — writer-director John Milius has fictionalized the footnote into a multidimensional tapestry ranging from the pragmatism of world politics to the elemental relationship between a proud warrior and an equally proud woman.

Connery portrays Raisuli, a powerful desert chieftain who succeeds in his kidnapping plot and then proceeds to communicate his demands to the American President. As the kidnapped family and the government of Morocco wait for a decision, Raisuli and Roosevelt (Keith) cautiously size each other up.

The widow, Eden Pedacaris (Bergen), stiffly cautions the brash leader that her country will never respond weakly to such a challenge. Roosevelt, on the other hand, has seized upon the incident as a perfect campaign issue, and, in a spirit of adventure, has prepared a highly publicized Marine invasion to free the family, despite the worried appeals of his Secretary of State, John Hay (Huston).

As the fiercely virtuous chieftain, Connery gives one of his finest performances to date and his interaction with Ms. Bergen's well-played prim toughness is excellent. Keith's Roosevelt, whether vigorously extolling the all-American virtues of the grizzly bear or cold-bloodedly conniving to exploit the Moroccan situation, is a fascinating creation, putting envious brashness into what could have been a stock caricature.

Every technical resource of visual scope and sound is used in "The Wind and the Lion," providing prime evidence that the theatrical film experience will never find itself obsolete.

Engel Visits 'The Jacksons'

Georgia Engel displays her dancing ability, along with her considerable comedy skills, when she guest stars with the Jackson family on "The Jacksons," Wednesday, March 9, 8:30 to 9 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Miss Engel, who plays Georgette Baxter on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," sings and dances with Michael, Marlon and Jackie Jackson and the Jackson Dancers in a production number, "One." She also plays an improbable spy in a comedy sketch involving Marlon and his brothers, and appears in a variety of blackouts.

The Jackson brothers' opening number is "Sugar Daddy." Later, they are joined by sisters Rebbie, LaToya and Janet and the Jackson Dancers for a medley of "Cisco Kid" and "I Shot the Sheriff."

Janet and Randy Jackson offer their version of a Fonzie and Pinky Tuscedero encounter, with "Rock Around the Clock" as the musical theme.

The brothers close with "I Am Love," and the entire family offers their concluding theme, "I'll Be There."

Nelson Stars In Thriller

Rick Nelson stars in "A Hand for Sonny Blue," chilling dramatic segment of the new, hour-long anthology series, "Quinn Martin's Tales of the Unexpected," airing Wednesday, March 9 (10-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

The popular young star will be seen as a big league baseball pitcher who loses his hand in an automobile accident. A doctor who has developed a revolutionary transplant process come to his rescue and the operation is an apparent success. Or at least it seems that way until the new appendage takes on the sinister life of its former owner, a small-time thug and killer. The suspense builds inexorably toward an inevitable moment of terror.

Rick Nelson rose to fame and became the object of teen-age adulation on his parents' TV series, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet." The furor he engendered was increased when he became one of the most popular recording stars, with one hit following another in staccato fashion, including "I'm a Travelin' Man" and "Hello, Mary Lou." The proud possessor of 11 gold singles, it is estimated that Nelson's records have sold in the 70-million neighborhood.

"A Hand for Sonny Blue" was directed by Curtis Harrington, whose big screen credits include such chillers as "What's the Matter with Helen?" and "Who Slew Auntie Roo?"

In addition to Nelson, the cast includes Janice Lynde, Carl Weathers (currently featured in "Rocky"), Alfred Ryder and Paul Cavanis.

Miss Lynde is a former cast member of the popular daytime serial, "The Young and the Restless."

Syndicate After Him

Charles Bronson stars as one man who goes his own way against the syndicate and finds its retaliation fast and brutal, in the rapid-fire thriller "Mr. Majestyk," airing as "The CBS Wednesday Night Movie" March 9, from 9 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Bronson is Majestyk, an ex-con who buys a melon farm out West and is trying very hard to get his crop to market with or without the help of the local Cesar Chavez-oriented workers. Jailed for beating up a young punk who had tried to force him to hire winos, Majestyk meets up with a Mafia hit-man, Al Lettiere (Frank Renda), and when Lettiere's confederates attempt a rescue, Majestyk winds up with Lettiere in tow instead. He then tries to make a deal with the police but Lettiere gets away, vowing revenge.

Once out of jail, Majestyk finds — to his dismay — that the mob is retaliating by scaring all the workers off the farm in an attempt to destroy Majestyk and his crops.

Finally, Majestyk is compelled to sow the seeds of the mob's destruction.

Linda Cristal adds a note of vivacity to the film in her portrayal of Nancy Chavez, a Chicago farm worker who throws over all of her union ideals when she sees Majestyk's strength in standing strong against the syndicate.

Pike's Peeks

By Charlie Pike,
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Production on "Charlie's Angels" is completed for the season, but not without leaving Jaclyn Smith a bruise to remember the successful first season. Jaclyn was accidentally struck in the nose with a piece of board being carried by a member of the show's crew. She was not seriously hurt but was momentarily stunned and was bruised for the last few days of filming.

Vic Trayback, the personable veteran actor who plays the diner owner on TV's "Alice," splurged with some of his earnings and bought himself a new Cadillac Seville, only to have it stolen while it was parked in front of a Sunset Boulevard restaurant. And Vic had allowed extra time to find the parking space in order to avoid a scratch or dent in the parking lot.

Interestingly, Linda Evans, who is now co-starring in "The Hunter" and who spent four years on "Big Valley," was offered the role as TV's "Bionic Woman" when the character was introduced on "Six Million Dollar Man." She was approached for the role by none other than Lee Majors, whom she worked with on "Valley." Because Linda was just reactivating her career after a divorce, she decided not to accept Lee's offer.

Perhaps not surprisingly, Farrah Fawcett-Majors has more than a dozen tennis outfits she's been given during the past year that she's never worn. In fact, most of them still have their labels on them. Because of the very success that's brought her the outfits — not to speak of a long-list of film role offers — she's not had time to indulge in her favorite recreational pastime.

No less than three book publishers are seeking Telly Savalas' cooperation in publishing his biography. Telly's contemplating each of the offers before making a decision.

Look for Roz Kelly to star in her own series pilot before next Fall, and don't be the least bit surprised if ABC buys it. Though she has no regular TV role, her appearances on "Happy Days" and "Blansky's Beauties" as Pinky Tuscadero continues to bring her as much as 1,000 fan letters a week.

She Always Knew

"The minute I walked in, I knew that's what I wanted to do for the rest of my life."

That's how author Mary MacCracken recalls her initiation into the very special world of a group of very special children. And that's how actress Jane Alexander plays the opening scene of "A Circle of Children," a drama that translates Ms. MacCracken's real-life teaching experiences as described in her book of the same title, into poignant dramatic form for the TV screen. The drama will air Thursday, March 10, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Ms. Alexander is teacher-author MacCracken's dramatized alter-ego — an affluent Junior Leaguer who visits a school for emotionally disturbed children and suddenly realized there's a void in her smooth suburban life.

She fills this void, as Ms. MacCracken did, by working as a volunteer teacher. And although the drama of her fulfillment is an integral part of "A Circle of Children," the greater drama is her battle to free the children from their heart-wrenching disorders — the six year old who won't walk, the youngster who rocks, rocks, rocks for hours on end, the boy whose speech is rapid-fire unintelligible gobbledegook.

Sweethearts Marry

She thought he was kind of cute — a little Ivy League, square-looking — and he thought she was the All-American type — but not really too attractive. They formed these opinions of one another when both were enrolled in a drama class, and today they're considered to be Hollywood's "married sweethearts."

Greg Mullavey is the guy who's a 'little Ivy League,' and Meredith MacRae is the 'All-American' gal, and their marriage is nothing at all like the one Greg's TV counterpart, Tom Hartman, struggles with in "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

Now into their seventh year of marriage, they both have booming careers, are in the process of redecorating their home, raising their daughter Allison — not quiet three — and are into about a hundred other projects.

As a couple, they are in constant demand for game show appearances and guest sports on talk shows. They starred in a Houston stock company production of "The Fantasticks" and even auditioned for a Broadway version of "Elmer Gantry."

Unlike so many of their contemporaries, who are desperately trying to make their marriages work and screaming about "too much togetherness," this couple seek more time together.

The demands that Greg's role as Tom Hartman makes on his time presented a real challenge to Meredith. At first she was baffled, but then gave in to her creative outlets during the hours after Allison has gone to bed and Greg is learning his lines. She began putting her ideas on paper, and has now written two documentaries on women. "I also have come up with several fantastic ideas for screenplays," she exclaims.

Meredith best sums up the off-screen marriage of 'Mary Hartman's' husbands with, "Our marriage gets better all the time."

Scary Movie Presented on ABC

Eerie voices that offer an invitation to a graveyard, legends of a long-ago vampire in Connecticut, a strange and moody young girl who looks exactly like a 100-year-old photograph and a dead body that appears and disappears for no apparent reason all surround a terrified woman who is fighting desperately for her sanity — a fight she seems to be losing — in "Let's Scare Jessica to Death," the "ABC Friday Night Movie" March 11, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Directed by John Hancock, "Let's Scare Jessica to Death" was filmed entirely in New England with Broadway star Zohra Lampert in the title role as a young woman who goes to a remote country farmhouse to recuperate after suffering a severe nervous breakdown.

When Jessica moves with her husband, Duncan (Barton Heyman), and his friend, Woody (Kevin O'Connor), to the farmhouse they find it already occupied by Emily (Mariclaire Costello), whom they invite to stay on.

Voices that seem to come from a nearby graveyard haunt Jessica, feelings of jealousy plague her when she looks at the younger Emily, and stories of a long-dead "vampire" who is said to haunt the house, do nothing whatsoever to aid her peace of mind.

Jessica's vague fears become screaming panic when she discovers the dead body of a neighbor — only to have the body disappear before she can bring her husband to confirm the discovery.

That discovery is only the first of a series of events that could topple the soundest mind, events that seem calculated to scare Jessica.

'Rhinemann Exchange' Airs On 'Best Sellers'

Stephen Collins and Lauren Hutton head an all-star cast in the TV adaptation of "The Rhinemann Exchange," Robert Ludlum's gripping novel of wartime espionage and double-dealing which will be a five-hour presentation on "NBC's Best Sellers" premiering Thursday, March 10, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Collins portrays David Spaulding, a U.S. intelligence agent who is sent to Argentina where he is to make contact with German agents, and Hutton plays Leslie Jenner Hawkehood, a widowed, childhood friend with whom he is having an affair.

Others in the cast are Pedro Armendair as Lt. Funes, Rene Auberjonois as Dr. Lyons, Claude Akins as Kendall, Len Berman as Asher Feld, Bo Brundin as Stoltz, Vince Edwards as General Swanson, Jose Ferrer as Rhinemann, Larry Hagan as Colonel Pace, Werner Klemperer as Altumuller, John Huston as Ambassador Granville, Roddy McDowall as Bobby Ballard, Tricia Nobel as Irene, William Prince as Alex Spaulding, Jeremy Kemp as Geoffrey Moore, and Ben Wright as Dr. Azevedo.

After his father's death, David Spaulding acceded to the request of Col. Pace to join the U.S. Army Intelligence in the early days modern horror film airing as the ABC Friday Night Movie, March 11 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Franciscus Is Philosophical

At this stage of his life, actor James Franciscus seems easy-going and self-assured. He has experienced successes and disappointments in a career that goes back more than two decades. And he has learned to accept both the good and the bad philosophically.

"I'm a survivor," he says, with a grin. "I don't waste my time worrying because I've discovered over the years that, come what may, I'll emerge in good shape in the end, if I just hang in there and wait it out."

His latest vehicle is "Hunter," the new hour-long counter-espionage series seen Fridays, 10, to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV. In it he stars as James Hunter, an elite U.S. secret agent engaged in perilous operations. Even as does Hunter, the early-day Franciscus frequently knew inner torment.

"When I was at Yale, studying drama, I had a lot of demons inside me — creative demons," Franciscus recalls. "While I was studying all phases of the theatre, I was drawn powerfully to writing, and I was possessed by the tragic sense of life as described by Shakespeare and Arthur Miller. I was consumed by the 'whys' and 'wherefores' of life. To this day, I haven't found answers to the questions, but by questioning I've gotten a lot closer to what life is all about."

Franciscus wrote plays at Yale and was told he had a promising future as a writer. Today he writes not at all.

"Writing would have been creatively satisfying for me," he says, "but it's a lonely existence. Writing is a jealous mistress. All your time must go to it. It nags at you, even when you're out for an evening. When you do it, it's the hardest work in the world."

STEVE FORD SIGNS
Steve Ford, son of former President Gerald Ford, has been signed by Quinn Martin Productions to an exclusive acting contract for TV.

Lawrence Welk celebrates his 74th birthday on today's telecast at 7 p.m. on Channel 7, with a surprise birthday cake from the entire Welk family.

Celebrates Birthday

Perhaps moreso than that of any other television star today, the story of Lawrence Welk, who literally has become a tradition in his own life-time, constitutes an ideal example of the wonders of America's free enterprise system.

His is the story of a youngster, born 74 years ago in a sod farmhouse in North Dakota, who lifted himself, by his own bootstraps, into acclamation as America's Number One musical television star.

Welk and his musical family all celebrate his birthday, complete with a huge cake, this Saturday, at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

The fact that Welk continues as star of his own musical television show today is a tribute both to Lawrence Welk himself, and to his millions of dedicated fans who have avidly supported him through the years.

This week's program will tell how and where Welk's "Musical family" came to his attention, one by one.

In 1951, dancer Bobby Burgess created a routine especially for Welk's first gold-record album, "Calcutta," used it to audition before Welk, and presto. Country singer Ava Barber trailed Welk on a golf course, playing tape cassettes of her singing. Ralna English auditioned in Welk's office, accompanied on guitar by hubby Guy Hovis. Norma Zimmer did a "one-time" guest solo for him, Jim Roberts walked in on a band rehearsal, Ken Delo was recommended to Welk by dancer Arthur Duncan, who had met Ken when both were playing Australian club dates.

Tanya Welk also sings her first Welk TV tune "You Make Me Feel So Young," and Anacani sings her "first," "Noche de Ronda." The rousing finale is a concert version by George Cates and the band, of his "Carmen's Boogie."

Acting Is Tough Living

Mitchell Ryan isn't sure he could ever be in real life the business tycoon he plays in the continuing drama, "Executive Suite," broadcast Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Acting is a tough way to make a living, but I don't think it takes the toll that big business does," said Ryan.

In his role as corporation president Don Walling, Ryan plans an ambitious, hard-driving man whose job involves himself, his family and associates in a complex web of relationships.

"When a man reaches the very top management level, he often has to solve problems without regard for his private feelings," Ryan observed. "The company becomes is life. You might envy him for his power and material possessions. But it isn't necessarily an enviable kind of man, and not the kind I'd like to be."

Name Is Synonymous

The name Weber is an synonymous to bowling as Majors is to football, and all three Webers are entered in the $100,000 AMF Pro Classic. The bowling event is to be televised Saturday, March 12, at 3:30 p.m. on ABC-TV. Dick Weber Sr. will be defending his title, and two of the men he will have to beat are his sons, John and Rich.

If there is any rivalry among the Webers, it's healthy and good-natured. Father is proud of his boys: "I know it's tough on them because there's always the comparisons, but I'm proud of the way they have come along and accepted the challenge. I don't know if they can make it, but I want them to give it a try because that's what they want."

Dick Weber started out 20 years ago as a mail clerk in Indianapolis, with bowling earnings of $3,500 a year. He was asked to come to St. Louis and join the Budweisers at a starting salary of $3,600 after his fine performance in the 1956 All-Star game. His first year in St. Louis Weber earned more than $13,000 with his salary and bowling prizes.

Fame and wealth were not far behind, and Dick became the youngest bowler to be elected to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame. He is a charter member of the PBA Hall of Fame, and was the 'Sporting News' Bowler of the Year in 1965. He's been Bowler of the Year three times and is a 15-time All-America selection.

Defends Title

Hubert Green, defending champion, and most of the world's greatest golf professionals will tee it up in the $200,000 Doral-Eastern Open, which will be broadcast by CBS Sports, Saturday, March 12, at 4 p.m.

Vin Scully, Pat Summerall, Jack Whitaker, Ben Wright,

Frank Gieber and Ken Venturi, 1964 U.S. Open champions, will handle the commentary from the Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club in Miami, Fla.

Fifteen cameras, the Goodyear blimp, two videotape machines, and two slo-motion discs will be utilized for the broadcasts, which include play at the 419-yard, par-4, 14th hole; the 183-yard, par-3, 15th; 379-yard, par-4, 16th; the 426-yard, par-4, 17th; and an architect's pride and joy, the 437-yard, par-4, 18th rated one of the most difficult finishing holes on the PGA Tour.

Past champions of south Florida's oldest golf tournament (this is the 16th edition) include Jack Nicklaus, 1972 and 1975, Buddy Allin, 1974, and Lee Trevino, 1973.

In winning the 1976 edition of the Doral-Eastern Open, Hubert Green launched a hot streak in which he captured two other PGA events in succession, including the Sea Pines Heritage Classic and The Greater Jacksonville Open.

In those three events, he won $118,000, thus making it possible for him to have his best financial year on Tour. He finished with $228,031, good for fourth place.

Hubert also finished second twice in the tournament of Champions and in the Southern Open. He had three 68s in the latter event.

The cocky Alabamian turned pro in 1970 and qualified for the PGA Tour in the fall of that year. In his rookie year he won at Houston by beating Don January in a playoff.

Hubie and his wife Judi reside with their son Hubert Myatt II in Bay Point, Florida. When he's not on the Tour, Green's special interests include bridge and fishing.

Unser Drives On USAC Trail

Al Unser, who captured the Indy 500 twice, back to back, will be roaring to finish on top at the California "200". The race, featuring Indy — type cars, will be broadcast from Ontario, California on Sunday, March 6 at 4:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Al Unser insists that driving on the USAC championship trail at speed exceeding 200 mph is "safer than driving on the highway."

Behind the wheel of his revolutionary Parnelli-Cosworth-DFX, Unser will be ready to blast-off in the 1977 version of the California "200" on Sunday, March 6, at 4:30 p.m. on ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports."

The back-to-back winner of the Indy '500' is not totally immune to the risks of racing. "We're not iron men," says Unser. "I think all of use have fear at times. I don't want to get hurt — now way."

However, Al maintains, "racing's as safe as it can be, and as safe as it's ever been."

During the disastrous running of the 1973 Indy '500,' Al was leading the race at the time Swede Savage crashed and was left a human torch. When asked if the fate of Savage preyed on his mind, Al replied: "You don't think about it. Clean and simple, you still have a job to perform. I was trying to think how I could make my car run faster so I could win. I was thinking of how many pit stops I'd have to make and talking with my crew about how the car was running."

Al's brother Jerry was killed in 1959 at Indianapolis, yet he and his older brother, Bobby, continued to race. It's never entered their minds to end their racing careers.

Presently, Al is driving a 'revolution' on wheels — his Parnelli-Cosworth-DFX is plainly the best-handling car on the USAC Circuit. The car first showed its true capabilities last March at Phoenix, and there was a greater deal of controversy about the DFX producing immense quantities of horsepower. Al described his situation thusly: "It wasn't horsepower at all: I was just outthundering them. We were getting out of the corners so well that I've never had to step on the brakes as hard as I did then." The sleek machine can dive into turns deeper and tighter than any other car on the road.

The inherent hazards of his profession haven't scared off Al Unser, and he has no intention of quitting. "If I thought about my most frightening experiences," says the 37-year-old Unser, "I'd probably quit racing. I just put all that out of my mind. I don't worry about it. If an accident happens, it happens. I just erase it and go on to the next race."

HERE'S A 'WINNING' PRESCRIPTION

Geoff Edwards, host of the game show "Shoot for the Stars," gives his prescription for successful series: "The secret of a successful game show is when the audience in the studio and home viewers play the game along with the contestants. The idea behind making a game series work is not to take it too seriously. Then the audience has fun, too."

Championship Tournament Underway

The National Collegiate Basketball Championship Tournament will get underway with teams competing in first round competition on Saturday, March 12 and Sunday, March 13. NBC-TV will televise doubleheaders on both days, thereby giving fans a look at eight of the qualifying clubs.

Among the 32 teams who will begin play will be 21 clubs which have either won conference championships or entered via post-season tournament victories, such as the three Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference champions.

The eleven remaining vacancies are to be filled from teams who didn't win their conference but have outstanding overall records, and the independents. Although it is not considered automatic, it is for the most part that the second place finishers in the Big Ten, Atlantic Coast, Pacific-Eight, Southeastern and Metro-Seven Conferences will receive invitations. Two years ago the Big Event runner-up was invited but omitted last season. It appears the Big Eight second-place team will be included on the guest list in 1977.

The remaining five vacancies will be divided among the best of the independents. It seems a cinch that Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and Notre Dame will be picked, leaving two more remaining positions with 6 to 9 teams in the running.

The NCAA makes its selection for its at-large teams by having a committee in each region rate the various second-place teams and independents. There recommendations are passed on to a six-man national committee which will make the ultimate decision as to who will be included on the guest list. The six-man committee is composed of Wayne Duke of the Big Ten, Larry Albus of the Metro-Seven, Stan Watts, retired Brigham Young Athletic Director, Willis Casey of North Carolina State, Ken Karr of San Diego State and John Conboy of Las Salle.

While record is a factor for selection, caliber of schedule appears to be a more important consideration. Officials believe this to be the most equitable method of determining true contenders for the crown.

MacLaine Is Like Popeye

A cartoon sailor with a bulging jaw, a jutting pipe and a penchant for spinach made his funny-paper philosophy a national slogan, "I yam what I yam and thass all that I yam."

Popeye and Shirley MacLaine are unlikely soul mates, but the talented actress-singer-dancer echoes his sentiments when she evaluated her stage and television variety shows: "The show is me. I am who I am."

Miss MacLaine stars in her third special, "The Shirley MacLaine Special: Where Do We Go From Here?," Saturday, March 12, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV. Again, it's vintage MacLaine — a sometimes tongue-in-cheek, always hopeful, salute to the future.

"In our first 200 years, we have accomplished more than in all the centuries since time began," she says of America in her introduction to the special. "We live in the most exciting time in the history of the world."

Shirley's love affair with life — with the "real world" that alternately inspires and infuriates her — is apparent in her musical productions. She projects a joyfulness, the feeling that she is having a whale of a good time. And she is.

She told an opening-night audience at London's Palladium: "I've wanted to do this all my life. I don't know what took me so long. I guess I had some other things to get done."

In talking about the future she declares: "I've got a lot to say and a lot to feel and I don't mind it coming out."

And some of it comes out in her new television special — her hopes for the future, her impatience with hypocrisy, her enthusiasm for positive action, her proclivity for hard work. It comes out set to the upbeat of some special music and some non-stop dance routines that charge right into that future with an energy and a zest that give the distinct impression that Shirley MacLaine's star will continue to shine for years to come.

AN AWARD FOR KAYE

SOMETHING 'SPECIAL' FROM NASHVILLE

Ann Margret will tape her next TV special, "Rhinstone Cowgirl," later this month in Nashville, Tenn.

'Mean Streets' Airs

In a test for survival, three young men grope through life seeking acceptance and success in the established operations of small-time crime in New York's Little Italy, in "Mean Streets," on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" March 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV. Robert De Niro, Harvey Keitel, David Proval, Amy Robinson and Richard Romanus star in Martin Scorsese's acclaimed film.

De Niro portrays Johnny Boy, whose erratic behavior and penchant for generating huge debts — and resultant threats from loan sharks — casts a shadow over his empty life.

Johnny Boy is a close friend of Charile (Keitel), who dates Teresa (Robinson), Johnny Boy's cousin. When Michael (Romanus), a small-time loan shark, begins to pressure Johnny Boy for payment of a large sum of money, Charile attempts to intercede on his friend's behalf.

Johnny Boy continues to renege as each deadline passes, and Charile realizes that his own life may be in danger, for the neighborhood has rules about dealing with those who don't honor their debts.

Reportedly, much of "Mean Streets" is semi-biographical. Scorsese grew up in New York's lower East Side among these characters and their experiences, and this is obviously a very personal movie.

Many parts of the film are engrossingly dramatic and powerfully depicted, a credit to Scorsese's directorial expertise. In addition to eliciting numerous convincing performances from his actors, he has created a seamless blend of stylized direction and documentary-type realism in details and locations. He also manages within a generally operatic visual style to make purposeful and unobtrusive use of the hand-held camera, and the movie is reinforced by a well-calculated use of music — opera, rock and old Italian-American standards.

North Carolina's John Kuester will be among the players and 32 teams competing in the first round of the NCAA Championship tournament. NBC will televise a first-round doubleheader on Saturday, March 12 at 1:30 p.m.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LYNN REDGRAVE, actress

I know you've always had trouble with weight. How are you keeping it down?—D.P., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● I think I've tried every fad diet under the sun—and they worked. But the moment I went off of them, I gained it all back. (At my peak, I was 168 pounds.) A few years ago I devised my own personal diet, and this is how I stay around 137: I eat only one meal a day, at night—steak or lamb chops, spinach, fresh fruit. For breakfast I have a cup of black coffee. Another cup at lunch. If I get ravenous during the day, I'll sneak an apple.

FOR THE MOST REV. FULTON J. SHEEN

How would the discovery of life in outer space affect religion?—Greg Reitner, Combined Locks, Wis.

● Nonhuman life would not affect it in the least. Human life may stand in need of redemption. If humans were not sinful, they would not need redemption. "Those who are well need not a physician." If they were sinful, as we are, they would need the Passion of Christ. Has anyone who asks a question of this kind ever asked himself what, if Divine Life ever came to this planet, he would do about it?

FOR THOMAS E. MORGAN,

retired U.S. Representative

How do you justify the trips you took at Government expense?—Lois Dietz, Baxter Springs, Kan.

● My mission to the Far East in November dealt with matters of both current and future concern to the Congress. I had a State Department request to conduct a mission in that area, and I was carrying out several prior commitments. In addition, other members of the mission felt it was aided by my position and extensive experience as Chairman of the International Relations Committee.

FOR JESSICA LANGE, star of King Kong

How has your lifestyle changed since you went from an unknown to an overnight star?—J.T., Hollywood, Calif.

● I bought a house on a Wisconsin lake, where my retired parents live. Otherwise, I haven't gone on a spending spree—no clothes, diamonds, furs. Socially, things are the same, too. I avoid the party scene. In terms of film publicity, I do what is demanded of me by the film company. I prefer privacy. I went into movies because I wanted to act, not for all the ballyhoo.

FOR JESSAMYN WEST,

author of The Woman Said Yes

Your book told of your sister's suicide after suffering from cancer. Were you concerned about legal action due to your help?—Carolyn Beers, West Lafayette, Ind.

● I was never concerned about legal action. I was willing to suffer anything to end my brave sister's suffering. She made the decision not to prolong a hopeless struggle. All she asked was, "Stand by me." Who could say no to that? My book brought me the most beautiful and the most denunciatory letters I have ever received.

FOR MICK JAGGER, rock singer

How do you feel about those reports of The Rolling Stones breaking up?—J.B., Royaltown, Ill.

● I don't. That sort of thing has been said about every duo and group since Adam and Eve. When we decide to stop, we'll come right out and say so. When the Beatles broke up, they didn't exactly fade out of sight, but they disappointed lots of people. We're not yet ready to do that—either to others or to ourselves.

FOR EDWARD HERRMANN, star of March 13 ABC-telecast of Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years

I saw you in Eleanor and Franklin last year, and now you're playing FDR again next week. I'm wondering how you researched the part?—G.V., Rapid City, S.D.

● I spent several months in libraries and archives, reading books, old newspapers, poring over vintage photos. There were trips to Hyde Park; I wanted to try and capture FDR as a young man as well as President. I picked up his walk and posture by studying home movies of FDR.

FOR ROBYN SMITH, jockey

As a lover of horses, I'm wondering if cruelty to them exists on our tracks?—S.T., Troy, N.Y.

● I'm not aware of any mistreatment of horses on race-tracks. In fact, some thoroughbreds get better care than some human beings! Race horses love to run, but in order for them to win they must have top care, and since owners and trainers love to win, their animals get the best care possible.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Can you tell me something about the young pop group just named National Youth Ambassadors for the March of Dimes?—M.B., Miami Beach, Fla.

● They're The Sylvers (right), eight brothers and sisters from 14 to 25. Although they've been around since the early 60's, when the four oldest were on TV and toured as The Little Angels, it wasn't until Oct. 1975, when Capitol Records signed the family, that they began making a name for themselves. They've now got a bunch of awards, including "Cash Box" Best New Vocal Group of 1976.

FOR JACKIE COOPER, actor

How did you get the scar on your right cheek?—Mrs. Antoinette Patrick, Richlands, Va.

● I got it in 1954. I was in a New York City department store and inadvertently went through a large window. A lot of people think I got it in a car-racing accident, since I was very active in sportscar racing from 1950 to 1955. Fortunately, I never had a racing accident.

PRO AND CON

Will The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) Actually Restrict Women's Rights?

PRO Andrea Fordham teams with her husband on writing projects. Their latest book is Assault on the Sexes (Arlington).

Yes. The problem with this apparently simple amendment is that it is so vague nobody can really predict the effects it will have on virtually thousands of laws bearing on marriage, family, property, employment and public accommodations. The amendment may well be used to advance the whole feminist program—abolishment of sex roles, devaluation of marriage and family, free universal day care, abortion on demand and teaching of feminist objectives and values in day-care centers and schools. I don't think people favor these things.

CON Gloria Schaffer, Connecticut Secretary of State

No! Passage of the ERA would not force every woman out of the house and into a "paying job." It will not destroy femininity! Nor will it threaten the choice of lifestyles of American women. If anything, passage of the ERA would re-emphasize the importance and value of childrearing and homemaking by making these roles matters of choice rather than inevitable lifestyles. The ERA recognizes that while women are undoubtedly different from men, that does not afford any rational basis for denying women equal protection.

Finally, Vantage Longs.

The first long cigarette to bring good taste to low-tar smoking.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.

But longer cigarettes usually have more tar.

Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.

So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.

Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.

New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.

Try a pack today and see if you go along with us.

CHRONIC PAIN: NOW DOCTORS ARE LEARNING TO DEAL WITH IT

For those who are plagued by constant pain there is good news—a number of new medical techniques that can help relieve (and sometimes even cure) their suffering.

Ed Roseberry

Several mechanical devices are used to treat pain. Above, Dr. Ann Groce of Duke University operates a transcutaneous stimulator, which produces a tingling sensation and helps to suppress pain. Nerve blocks, drugs, acupuncture and hypnosis are other methods that are utilized in chronic pain treatment. Alleviation of pain through radio waves was pioneered at The Pain Center in La Crosse, Wis.

By Cima Star

Steve Landen lies face down on the sofa in a comfortable office at a Midwestern pain clinic, one of a growing number of institutions devoted to the study and treatment of chronic pain. Four wires extend from points on his back to a mechanical box, which sends off beep-like tones from time to time. Landen closes his eyes, concentrating on increasing the beeps, not thinking about the agony that has plagued him for nearly 15 years since an accident in which his lower back was injured.

A new technique called biofeedback is helping Landen to train his mind to control his body. Biofeedback means the electronic amplification of biological signals, such as breathing, heart rate or muscle relaxation. Small metal electrodes, each about the size of a button, are "glued" to the skin and hooked up to a box. Relaxation in his back muscles is translated into the beep tones. The more relaxed and pain-free the muscles, the clearer and steadier the beeps.

"Neither the patient nor the medical profession really understands yet how this works," says Boston University professor Dr. David Mostofsky, a behavioral psychologist in attendance at Children's Hospital in Boston. "All we know is that once a person can see or hear the result of what is going on inside, physically, he can change it."

Pain has baffled traditional medicine since Hippocrates' time. Now, professionals at some 17 pain clinics nationwide, and at pain units in many hospitals, are delving into its mysteries.

One thing that needs to be made clear—don't confuse chronic pain with acute pain. Acute pain, such as that from a fractured bone or a knife wound, can be unbearably intense, but once its cause is treated, the pain goes away. Chronic pain is endless, seemingly untreatable, lingering long after its original cause has vanished. One example is the phenomenon of "phantom limb pain." The victim of an amputated arm who feels pain in fingertips that no longer exist is not, as one might think, imagining the pain. It is there. It is real, and it is physical. The reason is that certain nerves end at the fingertips. The thin nerve filaments wind their way through the body to the brain. Somewhere along the line the nerve has been damaged, and it hurts. The brain, however, can sense the pain only at the tip of the nerve, even when that tip no longer exists.

Chronic pain is a national health problem. It costs society an estimated $50 billion a year in medical expenses, lost wages and worker-compensation benefits, according to Dr. John J. Bonica, President of the newly founded International Association for the Study of Pain. Chronic back pain alone, the most common problem, disables seven million people annually and is responsible for nearly 19 million visits to doctors each year.

Most dolorologists (pain specialists) agree that, with rare exceptions, there is both an emotional and a physical component to pain. "Nearly everyone who comes to our clinic," says Dr. Steven F. Brena of the Emory Pain Control Center in Atlanta, "suffers pain that began with an organic condition. Many show some personality maladjustment. Those who have longstanding emotional problems learned in childhood to use pain as an escape route."

At Emory, the psychological factor is emphasized by its 70-percent success rate in treatment—except when money, in the form of workers' compensation enters the picture. Then, the success rate drops to 40 percent.

Another pain specialist, Massachusetts General Hospital neurologist Dr. Nathaniel R. Hollister, finds that "Pain is something more than a response by a person to injury to his body. Pain is actually a learned form of behavior."

Studies back up this theory. In Vietnam, when both soldiers and civilians were injured by shrapnel, soldiers were more likely to feel little pain because an injury was the ticket home. Civilians, who were not sent home due to injury, felt intense pain.

One group of pain clinics uses a multidisciplinary approach, utilizing specialists in different fields to treat different aspects of suffering simultaneously. These clinics often attempt to get at the underlying emotions of pain.

The other major group of clinics uses the holistic, or total, approach. Here, all of their professionals are dolorologists, specializing only in pain. They emphasize behavioral modification, believing that if you change a person's "pain behavior" to "well behavior," the pain itself will subside.

"Well behavior" means acting as though the pain were not there, which may at first seem difficult and terrifying. As long as the victim suffered, no one expected him to work, carry out the garbage or exert himself. He was "rewarded" with sympathy for being in pain. Now his family is taught to lavish affection on him when he acts well, but to ignore his suffering. One technique at some pain centers is to confine a patient who has an attack of pain to his room and to deny him all privileges.

Dr. Gerald M. Aronoff, director of the Pain Unit at Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital, uses the multidisciplinary approach with a health-care team comprising many specialists—from neurosurgeons to physical therapists to behavioral psychologists.

"We look at life stresses and try to understand why the patient has not gotten well," says Dr. Aronoff. He has found that pain stems from childhood problems that have caused emotional difficulties. Once the underlying emotional problems are cleared up, the clinic uses behavioral techniques to teach new "well behavior," or biofeedback and/or muscle relaxation to reduce the physical pain.

One common biofeedback technique is used for migraine headache sufferers. One woman at a headache clinic dramatically improved after training that consisted of having electrodes pasted to her hands while she watched a needle on a screen register the temperature of her skin. As with most migraine sufferers, her hands became cold with each headache. As she learned to raise her skin temperature, the pain vanished. Within six weeks she was able to raise her hand temperature without the biofeedback machinery, simply by concentrating on her hands and the sensation of warming them.

One therapist recalls a man who had suffered for years from chronic pain in his toes. In psychotherapy, he had revealed a longstanding fear of a bullying brother. Then, he was encouraged to kick at a pillow, screaming out his rage at the brother. "I want you out of my life," he shouted, as he bashed the pillow. The pain subsided.

Aronoff offers the same advice to his patients that he does to everyone of us who hurts from time to time: "You must spend half an hour a day on yourself. Spend it on relaxation and introspection. Relax those muscles. Get in tune with yourself. Try to understand better what is going on, emotionally, inside you. And keep trying."

The New 810

Datsun introduces the family cars with a 240-Z engine.

Fuel injected response.

Finally, an economical family car that doesn't skimp on performance. Because the six-cylinder, overhead cam engine gives you all the get-up-and-go you've been missing. Plus the power you need to go up hills and get onto highways.

Suddenly, there's a family car that performs and handles like a 240-Z.

Sedan or station wagon.

Both give you the economy and durability you expect from a Datsun. The famous 240-Z engine has been proven time after time against the toughest competition. The all-steel unibody is welded for quiet strength. And the fully independent suspension in the sedan assures you extra smoothness and stability.

Suddenly, a new car with a built-in reputation for durability and long life.

Comfort of a mid-size car.

Comfort you can feel: In the lush interior, tilt steering wheel, six-way adjustable driver's seat, plush cut-pile carpeting that goes all the way through the trunk. And the soothing sound of the AM/FM stereo radio.

Comfort for your peace of mind: Thanks to steel belted radials, fully appointed dash. And automatic maintenance warning system.

And comforts you can opt for: Like automatic transmission, power steering and air conditioning. All at a comfortable price. Compared to the six-cylinder Volvo or BMW, for example, you could save at least $2,000.

The new Datsun 810. Suddenly comfort and performance come together in an economical family car.

Suddenly it's going to dawn on you.

DATSUN SAVES

WISE BUYING By Marilyn Hansen

HOW TO SAVE MONEY WHEN BUYING FOOD

If you follow these tips before you buy food, you'll see real savings at the checkout counter.

advertisement

If you want to cut down on food costs and time spent shopping—and who doesn't—it will require some retraining and rethinking on your part. Here's what to do.

First, analyze your food-spending habits. Write down all your food expenditures for one week. Note the name of the store, the day of the week you went shopping, the time you went in, the time you left, the total money spent. Also, record exactly what items were bought and at what price.

How much time did you spend? Are you spending extra time because you go marketing at the busiest hours? At most markets, busiest times are late afternoons on week days and all-day Saturday.

Did you have a shopping list? If you had one, did you stick to it? Did you know just what you wanted to buy before you went in the store, or did you decide there?

Spending Categories:

Milk

Did you buy the most economical size for your family?

You also should consider buying powdered skim milk, loose in the carton, and reconstituting it. It's cheaper and is excellent for many cooking purposes. To cut down on the cost of fluid milk for drinking, mix $\frac{1}{2}$ reconstituted skim milk with $\frac{1}{2}$ liquid whole milk. Serve ice cold. Reconstituted evaporated milk also can be economically used in cooking.

Dairy

Did you buy the most reasonable margarine? Best buy

IF YOU HAVE IRON POOR BLOOD ALL THE VITAMINS IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

What you need is Geritol, every day.

Geritol is so rich in iron, just one tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron can actually build your blood day by day. That's what makes it different from vitamin pills—and so important to you.

on yogurt is to buy it unflavored in 1-qt. containers and add your own honey, fruits and jams as desired.

Juice

Juices are an important part of the family budget, especially in a home with children. Buy full-strength juice, either frozen or canned, and add your own water at home. Juice drinks have water and sugar added already.

Oil, Cereals, Canned Foods

Buy the most economical sizes for your family needs. Note prices and compare products before you buy, and buy only six-month supplies to avoid possible spoilage.

Stock-Up Items

Soaps and detergents, along with foods, are frequently on sale. The old rule still applies: nothing is a bargain unless you can use it.

Toiletries

Shampoos, deodorants, toothpaste, creams and so on are in the supermarket as a convenience for the shopper. These personal items are generally cheaper in discount stores. You'll have to check.

Meat, Poultry

Do you buy specials or on impulse? Take the time to notice at your supermarket meat counter the range of prices of what is available.

Certainly veal cutlet from the leg, Italian-style at $2.89 per-lb., is in the high range, as are boneless club steaks from the beef rib at $2.29 per-lb. A $1.09 per-lb. price on chuck roast, bottom beef, semi-boneless is in the middle range. A price offering of $.49 per-lb. on fresh whole frying chickens is a really good buy.

If you are aware of prices and their fluctuations from week to week, you will recognize good buys.

Second, if you generally buy around the middle-price range or lower, you will know that you are saving money.

Also important to consider when buying meat is the serving per pound. Look carefully at meat before you buy. The amount of fat and bone present takes away from the edible portion.

Something you never thought about, perhaps, is the labor cost of meat-cutting. Each cut the butcher makes in a piece of meat takes time, and time is money.

So next time you want to make beef stew, don't automatically reach for the pack of stewing beef. Look first at the pot roasts; you may well find them lower in price than the cubed meat. If so, cut the meat at home yourself.

Other cuts lend themselves well to the cut-it yourself method. For example, buy a large roast of top sirloin or an eye round and cut off some slices and use as steaks. Buy a whole loin of pork on special, cut into one or two roasts and cut the remaining loin into chops.

Whole chickens always are sold cheaper than the cut-up kind. It would pay for you to learn how to cut them up yourself with a sharp knife, cleaver or poultry shears.

Of course, don't neglect the bony cuts altogether. Meat contains protein and bones contain calcium, which is needed for protein utilization in the body. Calcium is available in milk, cheese and other dairy products. However, the calcium available in bones is cheaper. Use bony cuts in soups, preferably combined with protein-rich legumes, and you will have an excellent food value.

AIR FORCE—A GREAT WAY OF LIFE

THE REIGNING QUEEN OF THE SOAP OPERAS

Mary Stuart has been on television longer than anyone else in the business — and she's only getting started.

Once she drove a pickup truck to auditions that flopped. But Mary Stuart's been riding high now for 25 years.

By Mary Long

At somewhere past 45 years of age, television actress Mary Stuart is entrenched in her 25th consecutive year on-the-air in Search for Tomorrow. And that, according to those who keep track of such things, is an honest-to-goodness TV record.

Every weekday she enters homes across America as Joanne Vincent, a perfect person in a house that never needs cleaning. It amazes many people that in so sophisticated and skeptical an age, a show like Search should continue to command the devotion of millions and millions of fans. It doesn't amaze Mary Stuart.

"The soap opera has come out of the closet," crows the pro. "It's a relief, I'll tell you. I knew people were watching all along, but it's nice they're finally admitting it. In our supercool age, with everybody scared silly to show his feelings, soap operas can't help but flourish. They're a public service. We show tears and screams and kisses. Marvelous and horrible scenes. We're all a little lonesome these days, and I think it helps to see all that wild emotion."

The twice-divorced lady with the beautiful round eyes and the throaty croak of a voice knows a lot about being lonesome. She grew up poor, without a mother, in Tulsa, Okla. One day, she read in a newspaper that people in New York were able to work just a few hours a week talking on radio shows and earn $500. Mary Stuart thought that would be a swell way to make a living and headed for the big city. She ended up a hungry, part-time hat-check girl. But within a year, movie producer Joe Pasternak checked his hat, and that, as they say, was that. He took a look at the blonde beauty, signed her to a movie contract, and Mary Stuart was off to Hollywood with a new title: "starlet."

"You know what a starlet is?" She laughs. "A starlet is one of those yellow sugar roses you pop around the edges of a cake. Just being a starlet is bad enough, but I was probably the worst starlet in history. They were constantly screen-testing me for sexy roles. I wasn't sexy. I had braces on my teeth. I drove a Ford pickup truck to the studio, and there always seemed to be a ton of dirt under my fingernails. I did two auditions—both flops. Once I was trying for the role of Jane in a Tarzan movie, and I had to keep reading 'uga uga uga' over and over again. I thought that was very amusing, and I couldn't stop laughing, so the producer threw me out."

In 1951 she was spotted by the producer of another show—the soon-to-be-televised Search for Tomorrow. When they offered the actress the leading role, she said yes, went on the air the next week and has been there ever since.

Mary Stuart says she likes Joanne Vincent. "She's a lovely lady. And her horizons have really broadened over the years. She started out as an innocent little girl, and she's grown into a woman. I hope she's interesting. In the beginning, she was never out of her apron and now, look," she says, indicating her tailored brown slacks and matching sweater. "This is what I wore on the show today."

She believes that her Joanne, tied to an apron or not, has had a pervasive influence on women. "I think the explosion into the women's movement over the last few years is due in part to the soap operas. Women have had a chance to fantasize along with the show—to think about what it would be like to be a woman doctor or lawyer or heiress or whatever. You've got to have that fantasy first, whether you ever make the move to independence or not. And, everyday, millions of women play these parts along with us. I've had lots of women from poor families tell me that they grew up watching the show and dreaming. 'You got me out of that house,' they'll say. But, of course, it wasn't me—it was that perfect lady I play."

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

By Mike Sandin
Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow. . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn " . . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn — nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial!

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

End erosion of slopes with Amazoy. Perfect answer for hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas.

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

Established Amazoy gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed, like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass Was Perfected by U.S. Govt.; Released in Cooperation With U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping charge collect via most economical means. © Zoysia Farm Nurseries, 1977

DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT
Amazoy lawns take cookouts and parties — children playing on it won't hurt it, or themselves! Stays green right thru scorching heat and drought!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style. Every plug 3 sq. inches.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS . . . FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL — has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL — when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or even sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug to grow . . . from part shade to full sun! Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product.

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

It's easy to see why those who don't grow Zoysia, would try to put it down. But Zoysia, a tough grass from Siberia, just won't be put down. That's why people are switching to it border to border, coast to coast.

"Received your very lovely lithograph and it now has a place of predominance in my office. This is truly a magnificent work and is a conversation piece for all who come into my office."

Gerald E. Bauer, Dallas, Tx.

"I have just received a print of the 'Tall Ships' by Kipp Soldwedel from my niece. It is truly a lovely work of art. It is in my foyer and has added much charm to that area. I am sure that other people will enjoy these beautiful ships in their homes."

Mrs. M. B. Flournoy, New York, N.Y.

"Those who thrilled at the sight of the soaring masts and graceful hulls in July will recapture that thrill when they see the clean lines of Kipp Soldwedel's paintings. His works... carry the fresh, salty tang of ocean air wherever they go."

Colonial charm warms us in a "more design than dollars" room setting. $1,550 Kroehler's pub-style seating, upholstered in a sturdy plaid fabric, is graced by the maple butler's tray table. The Milliken rug is brilliantly printed via a computer-injection process. A do-it-yourself wainscoting kit, from Marlite, adds an architectural touch. Accessories: Cornwall.

Contemporary design transforms the standard room. Subtle color, soft lines and sophisticated lighting deliver the glamor. Selig's versatile sectional seating, in a stain-resistant geometric cotton print, blends with the luxurious parquet-effect Anso broadloom from Bigelow. The monochromatic scheme is accented by the gleam of steel, glass and mirror. The clock, with exposed mechanism, is by Howard Miller. $4,000

$2,300 Country Casual, distinctly Southwestern, is achieved with Decorion's rich, ready-to-assemble furniture—upholstered in a glove vinyl, with natural rush inserts. The elegant Thayer Coggin console table is laminate-wrapped. The room's natural color scheme emphasizes Regal's smashing Indian-motif rug, made of dense, yarn-dyed Anso nylon. Random-width, aged-groove pine paneling, resembling old boards, completes the rustic setting. By Georgia-Pacific.

DECORATING WITH 3 BUDGETS STYLES/SHOPPING

Home is our castle, or should be. But many of today's shrunken interiors, barren of architectural detail, could use some help. How do you surround yourself with comfort and beauty?

Rule one is that decorating a room should be an enjoyable experience. So relax. Sit down and think about what you would like your living room to look like. After all, it's the primary place in which you, your family and friends will be spending a lot of time. It also should be a room that comfortably reflects your own living habits.

Begin by focusing on the dollars you have to spend. Furniture probably will take up the largest chunk of your decorating pie. For example, on a $1,500 budget we spent close to $1,000 on furniture, $200 on a rug and the remainder on walls and accents. While in the rustic room, on a $2,300 budget, clever shopping unearthed a ready-to-assemble sofa and pair of lounge chairs for under $500.

Will you choose colonial, country casual or modern? We've elected to go colonial on a low budget, country casual on a moderate level and contemporary at the high end. Take your pick of ideas. Modern homes can accommodate colonial or traditional designs as gracefully as an Old World abode can house contemporary styling. But arrangement and the proportion of furniture are the keys to any successful room scheme.

Borrow a trick from professional decorators who plan furniture arrangements with little kits consisting of graph paper and cut-out patterns that represent tables, chairs, etc. (Kits are advertised in decorating publications.) Carefully measure your room and indicate exact positions and dimensions of door and wall breaks, such as windows, chimney or alcoves. Measure the width of windows and doors from the outer edge of the frame. Then draw your plan on graph paper with each square representing one foot. (Indicate details such as radiators, the swing of doors, electric outlets, etc.) Then cut out your furniture pieces and experiment with different arrangements. You also can achieve the same results by using doll furniture and graph paper purchased from a stationery store.

Speaking of decorators, many large department and furnishings stores offer the services of professional interior designers. While this service often is tied to purchases, many stores will offer some free initial advice as a measure of good will.

Once you've formulated a rough decorating plan, shop for the best prices and styles. Don't buy on impulse. Check furniture warehouses and clearance centers. You also might wait for semiannual furniture sales. But remember that quality still pays off in the long run. To check on good craftsmanship in wood furnishings, for example, see that drawers are hand-fitted and can be closed easily with a touch from either side. They also should feature sturdy glides and bottoms and be constructed with smoothly sanded interiors.

In both upholstered furniture and carpets, look for fiber guarantees and stain-repellent finishes, qualities that will insure what you purchase today will still look lovely a year from now.

When it comes to walls and floors, if you are the average home decorator on a budget, you may choose to spend time rather than money. (Even with money to spare, you may prefer to invest in upgraded quality while still doing it yourself.) Wood paneling, for instance, can range from wood-veneered thin plywood to solid oak or redwood. Plastic laminate paneling in simulated wood grain as well as solid colors and prints also are available for less-expensive wall treatments. If you haven't tried your hand at paneling before, remember that plywood and hardwood panels can be applied directly to plaster walls with a specially designed adhesive. The walls must be in good condition; if not, furring strips should be used to build a frame onto which the panels can be attached. Gluing panels is less time-consuming than the second method, which is to nail or to staple-gun each panel to studs or furred-out walls. (You ought to use a plumb line to insure that panels are correctly aligned.) Lumberyards and home-decorating centers have a good selection of paneling.

Stenciling kits have been around for years now, but they are still a fresh way to liven up plain walls with bright borders or all-over designs the way our colonial ancestors did. Wood moldings or wainscot kits can be purchased to create a chair rail around the room. Another idea that still provides a lot of styling mileage is lightweight, plastic beams, simulating wood. Great for Country French or Tudor effects.

Hardwood paneling or mirrors also are dramatic when used above a fireplace. Mirroring a single wall can provide impact and serve to visually expand a small room or to brighten a dark one by reflecting light. And don't forget that paneling provides for good acoustics and heating insulation.

Flooring can lay the groundwork for a really smashing room. You can run the gamut from sisal mats to stained wood floors to area rugs to lush wall-to-wall broadloom.

To redo old wood floors, you can rent sanding equipment from a home-remodeling center, including vacuum attachments to suck up fine wood-dust residue.

Many people prefer the look of a fine area rug, either over wall-to-wall carpet or wood floors. While antique Orientals and expensive wovens may be limited to higher budgets, modern technology has provided us with precise reproductions of costly classic designs. Today rich colors and patterns are being applied to tufted carpet surfaces via ingenious new computer-injection systems to create beautiful designs with surprisingly low price tags.

Soft wall-to-wall broadloom is also useful to expand space and to create unity in a modest-sized living area. Today's third-generation synthetic carpets not only have greater durability and soil resistance but often boast permanent, built-in antistatic properties to eliminate shock. Many come with written wear guarantees.

For many of us, living rooms serve several functions—dining room, guest room, family room. One of the most effective ways to achieve the necessary flexibility is with dual-purpose furniture. In addition to the customary sofa-bed or a sideboard that extends to seat 12, consider the idea of keeping on hand a big round plywood top for entertaining and using it to enlarge the surface of a small dining table. A pretty tablecloth will conceal its humble lumberyard origins. Or you may prefer to add a wall unit with a fold-down top that doubles as a desk and auxiliary buffet table. Hutches and breakfronts often come in two parts and can be moved into different rooms when you feel like a change of scenery. The lower cabinet can line an entrance foyer, while the upper portion can perch atop a bedroom dresser. Versatile seating arrangements are possible via the new modular units, with ottomans, armless chairs and sofa sections that can be regrouped to suit.

No room is complete, however, without the most important element—proper lighting. Light highlights individual components in your room. Dark corners are made inviting with the addition of a table, chair and reading lamp. Soft muted lights are all that's needed if you only use your living room for occasional entertaining. But if the family is there at all hours, plan for diffused overhead illumination and concentrated lighting for areas where special activity takes place. A good decorative reading lamp to counter eyestrain is a must. Consider experimenting with track lighting, which provides great flexibility. The tracks are attached to runners on the ceiling and can be swiveled or turned to illuminate any area you wish. On a lower budget, overhead illumination can be achieved through do-it-yourself lighting kits with a fixture suspended low over end tables or hung from the traditional center living-room ceiling outlet.

How intact a decorating scheme remains depends on whether you fall into the "little is enough" or "there's never enough" category. If you are an incurable collector, you will continually add pictures, plants, bowls and baskets to your never-finished room. If you are a purist, one or two carefully selected pieces will suffice.

A fence can bring neighbors closer together.

Sometimes it's the small things that cause the biggest problems between neighbors.

In my case the bone of contention was the one Mrs. Parker found buried in her prize begonias. So I built this fence from plans I got at the Help Center. And you know something, good fences make good neighbors.

It works the other way 'round too. I got all the free help I needed from Jim Clark, my Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer. His Help Center is loaded with remodeling ideas, building projects, and helpful hints for do-it-yourselfers.

Take the free Projects Booklet. It's got simple, step-by-step plans for 20 interesting and useful home projects. And all of them as easy to build as my fence. There's a whole section of the Help Center that's filled with exciting new ideas on remodeling with wall paneling. And another with helpful free booklets that show you how to choose and use building materials like a pro.

The Help Center at your neighborhood Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer has all the help you need. And it's free. But isn't that what good neighbors are for?

DECORATING WITH 3 BUDGETS ACCESSORIES

Accessories are the vital touch that pull a room together. Generally, certain objects "belong" with certain periods. Early American dictates the use of brass candlesticks, pewter plates or pie-shaped tables. Indian-motif baskets, rugs and pottery are of the casual Southwest idiom. Chrome, brass, glass and lucite are more at home in contemporary interiors.

The objects you surround yourself with are personal and may reflect your own tastes and interests more than anything else in a room. Essentially, they're the decorative objects you gather through the years spontaneously or collect with a careful plan in mind.

Since tastes, like furniture styles, change, so should the accessories you have around you. Keep this in mind: accessories are not just for the living room or dining room; the family room—even the kitchen and bathroom—need decorative objects to enhance their appearance.

Here are the most-asked questions and answers on this important decorating element:

Q. How much of a room's budget should be devoted to accessories?

A. Starting from scratch, you should figure about 20 percent. In other words, if you plan to spend $4,000 to decorate your living room, plan to spend $800 of that for accessories, including lamps, clocks, wall decor, tabletop items, occasional tables, throw pillows, area rugs and whatever else strikes your fancy. (As one decorator puts it, "If you spend only 10 percent, you get a 10-percent look!")

Q. Should accessories be scattered or displayed in groups?

A. Accessories grouped together make interesting and colorful statements. Separately, single items tend to get lost, except on shelves where they can be mingled with books.

Q. How do you decide just where to put things?

A. First, assemble all of your accessories on the floor or on a table. Group similar items: put all folk-art objects together, all of the silver or pewter, all the paintings or graphics or mirrors. Next, go through the house and decide where each group would look best. What you can't find space for, put away for six months. Then, you might regroup accessories for a fresh new look.

Q. Is it better to use a lot of accessories or to decorate with a select few?

A. That's a matter of taste. The tendency today is to fill up a room, but if you possess a few very fine objects—for example, a sculpture collection—you certainly don't want the budget-priced to compete with the rare. Also, there's the matter of a room's size; a small room obviously requires a minimum of accessories, preferably small in scale. Or you can use one or two dominant pieces. In a large room, you can be more expansive and include a wider variety of types and materials.

Q. What are some good tabletop items to display?

A. To name a few: porcelain birds, glass or wood obelisks, mineral rocks in their natural state, marble eggs, seashells or coral, snuff-boxes, paperweights, well-framed photographs, candlesticks.

Q. Are wall groupings still popular?

A. Wall-hung objects will probably never go out of style—but there are new ideas in wall decor. For example: prints that come in abstract segments to be hung in changing arrangements, frameless sculptured mirrors (like stalactites) and mirrors that incorporate graphics.

Q. What are the best buys in accessories?

A. Marjorie Laurich, a buyer who selects accessories for a number of the country's best stores, advises: "The good buys are those most readily available. In other words, what's 'in' is usually the best-priced. Since it's pleasant to live with a certain amount of change, why not buy a sample of what appeals to you among the 'in' things?" Ms. Laurich cites baskets and macramé hangings as two of today's best buys "because everywhere you look you can find them."

Invest in a green chip.

No man knows the rewards of owning the best like the man who rides the Deere.

A John Deere Lawn and Garden Tractor is an investment that'll pay dividends for years to come. It's available with 10-, 12-, or 14-hp engine. And its 4-speed transmission has a variable-speed drive that lets you change travel speed without clutching or shifting. Or without reducing the working speed of the mower or tiller attached. And because it's a John Deere Lawn and Garden Tractor, it's "human engineered."

Controls are clustered, within easy reach; color-coded for quick identification. The seat is cushioned, and high-backed for support.

The operator's platform is wide and roomy. A triple-safe starting system prevents accidental starts when the mower is engaged, or the transmission is in gear. And besides mowers, we can provide a dozen other John Deere attachments matched to the tractor size. So you have a versatile workhorse that pays you back in time and work saved year after year.

In our business, that's a green chip.

Dollars and sense. Americans are increasing their oil consumption again, but the nation's oil fields are producing 1.3 million barrels a day less than they did four years ago. The result: a growing reliance on imports. In fact, the bill for foreign oil last year came to about $160 for every man, woman, and child in the U.S. What to do? America needs a national energy policy that will encourage off-shore drilling for oil and gas, the use of coal, and, to the extent it's safe and environmentally sound, the development of new nuclear generating plants. Down the road are oil shale, solar energy, and synthetic fuels. But energy policy remains the first step.

Now the good news. Most Americans agree with the need for an energy policy. In a recent Roper Organization poll of more than 2,000 people, a federal energy policy was given high priority. About 90 percent of those interviewed said the U.S. needs a "plan to conserve present energy sources and develop new energy sources so we will not be dependent on foreign countries for energy." If the people recognize the nation's needs, maybe the government won't be too far behind.

"WE CAN COVER YOU AGAINST FIRE, FLOOD AND VANDALISM.
BUT, NO, WE HAVEN'T ANY ENERGY POLICY IF YOUR FURNACE RUNS DRY."

If he's so wise, why didn't he stay home? We're talking about a burrowing owl who found himself on Long Island when his natural habitat, according to the experts, is southern Florida. A friendly and knowledgeable human put the wandering bird on a jet for home, but the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service bumped him from the plane. It seems the law protects him from being "kidnapped" wherever he is found, even if it's the wrong place, with the wrong climate. Happily, this time the red tape was quickly cut, the owl got his plane ride after all, and presumably lived happily ever after.

Race to the pole. When Roald Amundsen and his party left Oslo in 1910, the world thought he was bound for the Arctic. But Amundsen secretly planned a race in the other direction, to become the first person to set foot on the South Pole. His story, filmed in the snowy wasteland beyond the Arctic Circle in Norway, is the concluding episode of Ten Who Dared, the "Mobil Showcase" series on great explorers. Check your local TV listings next week for time and station. And, to keep the series fresh in mind, you'll want to own the beautiful 336-page book, Ten Who Dared, about these and other explorers. You can buy by sending a check or money order for $14.95, plus applicable state and local taxes, to: Ten Who Dared, P. O. Box 1934, Kansas City, Missouri 64140.

PEOPLE QUIZ/ By John E. Gibson

What part of the day is the safest time to drive? Do bad drivers share certain personality characteristics?

TEST HOW PRONE YOU ARE TO CAR ACCIDENTS

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Your street-crossing behavior not only reveals your chances of becoming an accident statistic but tells a lot about your personality and attitude.
2. Driving a new car increases your chances of having an accident.
3. A quarrel or disagreement with someone can later be the reason behind a serious traffic accident.
4. The people who cause most auto accidents, ranging from fender-bending to fatal injuries, tend to have certain personality characteristics in common.
5. The safest time to drive is in the wee hours of morning when there are few cars.

ANSWERS

1. True. Investigators from the University of Massachusetts and Wayne State University conducted a fascinating study of street-crossing behavior at the corner of a major downtown traffic artery in a leading city. In the study, "observers classified the pedestrian's behavior as soon as the street-crossing was completed, and then approached the pedestrian for a brief on-the-spot interview." The 125 participants were classified as safe-crossers (who waited till the light changed in their favor; checked traffic in all directions before and during the crossing) and as unsafe-crossers (who stepped out from some location other than the corner; from between parked cars; with the traffic light against them or without looking in either direction). In the interviews, the unsafe-crossers revealed themselves as having markedly different personalities from the safe-crossers, being much more subject to feelings of frustration and periods of depression. Significantly, when asked, "To what age do you expect to live?" the safe pedestrians "expected to reach a more advanced age than the risky pedestrians — a 14-year difference between the extremes." A further finding: the safer pedestrians were "more married" and "less single" — the odds being about three to one that the careless street-crosser is single.
2. True. According to a study sponsored by the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, driving a car new to you — whether it be a used car or one just off the showroom floor — increases your chance of an accident. It's emphasized that driving any car you are not completely familiar with — which may handle somewhat differently, whose controls are in different places — has an immediate effect on how you will fare in any driving situation requiring split-second control of the vehicle. The pleasure of piloting a new automobile ranks high on the list of personal satisfactions, but it's recommended that whenever you purchase another car, you take time out on a driving course free from hazardous traffic to completely familiarize yourself with the way the car responds to the controls and the various ways in which it may differ from the car you're used to driving.

3. True. In a Highway Safety Research Institute survey, studies are cited showing stress — often resulting from quarrels or disagreements with another person — to be one of the chief villains in traffic accidents. It was found that "of a broad range of possible indicators, personal difficulties leading to stress best predicted who would have the most accidents." Other studies also have shown that drivers who cause serious accidents are likely to have experienced stress situations previously, and they tend to react with rash and impulsive behavior, exposing themselves to traffic situations beyond their control.

4. True. A study, at the Psychological Institute of Biel, Switzerland, of the personality profiles of traffic offenders whose driving resulted in frequent accidents, found that the majority of bad drivers demonstrated the following characteristics: 1) masochistic tendencies (deriving excitement and satisfaction from being subjected to pain), 2) social inadequacy, (uncomfortable in interpersonal relationships), 3) repressed aggression (hostility toward others, which is kept under restraint), 4) weak ego (lacking in self-confidence and self-esteem).

5. False. Fewer cars are on the road, but more of them are likely to be driven by drunk drivers. In a University of Michigan study of highway safety, "A high proportion of the early-morning drivers was found to have been drinking."

AMERICA'S GREATEST TREE SALE "EVER"

SUGAR MAPLE
(acer saccharum)

The largest of all maples, and its beautiful array of yellow and orange hues make it a sight to remember due to the foliage thickness — A very hardy northern and southern tree and will grow up to 60 feet. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

E. WHITE BIRCH
(betula verrucosa)

This beautiful tree has very delicate foliage with snowy white bark, and a compact form—It can be seen growing in all different climates and the multi-trunk (clump) effect can be obtained by planting two or more trees next to one another. It is also a rapid grower. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

RED MAPLE
(acer rubrum)

This is one of the most beautiful of all shade trees. Besides having brilliant scarlet red leaves in the fall of the year, it has another excellent trait—it is an extremely fast grower. It is very easily transplanted and many experts agree it will grow practically anywhere in the U.S.A. Grows to 60 feet. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

WEeping WILLOW
(salix babylonica)

This tree is the hardiest of all willows, and has clear golden yellow and green leaves. The leaves appear early in Spring and one of the last trees to lose its leaves. A "super fast" growing tree at the rate of 5 to 6 feet per year. An excellent buy. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

GREEN ASH
(fraxinus pennsylvanica)

This tree like the maple has no equal when it comes to its ability to survive hot and cold temperatures. A real rapid grower and matures into a fine, compact tree with beautiful dense green foliage. Grows to 40 feet. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

WHITE DOGWOOD
(cornus florida)

This beautiful flowering tree has large white blossoms and can be seen in all parts of the country. Its foliage is attractive all summer and has beautiful fall colors, as the red berries hang on most of the winter. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

REDBUD
(cercis canadensis)

This beautiful flowering tree is native to both the north and south and thereby extremely hardy. It blooms at the same time as the dogwoods and its gorgeous pink flowers form a lovely combination with the dogwoods. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

TULIP TREE
(liriodendron tulipifera)

This fast growing tree reaches heights of 80 feet or more. It also resembles the magnolia and is a hardy tree for all areas. (shipped at 3 to 5 feet).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

FRANKLY, I'M EMBARRASSED

*My wife would like me to make some show
Of affection where others can see,
To hold her hand or to kiss her cheek
Or even to pat her knee.*

*It isn't enough that I show my love,
Or at least a little affection,
When we are at home and alone. Oh no,
She's eager for public inspection,*

Some proof to her skeptical friends that I Am hers, all hers, and I try to comply.

—Richard Armour

A drunk was hunched over the bar, toothpick in hand, spearing futilely at the olive in his drink. A dozen times the olive eluded him. Finally, another patron who had been watching intently from the next stool became exasperated and grabbed the toothpick. "Here. This is how you do it," he said, as he easily skewered the olive. "Big deal," muttered the drunk. "I already had him so tired he couldn't get away."

—Dorothea Kent

I'm very ambidextrous,
Which means, you understand,
That I can take a job and louse
It up with either hand.

—F. O. Walsh

While psychiatry is increasingly popular for finding out what's wrong with you, there's still a lot to be said for marriage.

As my four-year-old niece climbed into the car to go shopping with her grandmother and me, she was told that she needed a sweater. After she said, "No, I don't," her grandmother replied, "I'll get it for you." As she opened the door and started into the house, my niece observed sadly, "Granny doesn't mind very well, does she?"

My Feet Were Killing Me...Until I Discovered the Miracle of Hamburg!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sight-seeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Feather-spring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Hamburg with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans of all ages—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

© Featherspring International Corp. 1976

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Feathersprings will bring you guaranteed relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Hamburg can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

Does Weather Affect Your Behavior?

A professor studying the effects of weather on human behavior says an approaching cold front makes people more likely to be involved in accidents. This conclusion is part of a study being conducted by Dr. Earl Sargent, a professor at the University of Tulsa. Some of his other findings:

- People are more likely to become ill just before a cold front moves through an area.
- Civil-service test scores are higher in the autumn and spring, lower in the summer months.
- There are more crimes against people in the late summer than at any other time of the year.

Sargent says there are three factors in the weather—the temperature, the humidity and the pressure. Experiments suggest the humidity and pressure are the two variables that affect human behavior.

First Woman Episcopal Priest

She calls herself "Jackie." She's a high-school dropout. She's married to an Indianapolis truck driver. And she was raised a Roman Catholic. She's the Rev. Mrs. Jacqueline Means, 40, the nation's first regularly ordained woman Episcopal priest. She didn't graduate from high school until 1968, but she became a licensed practical nurse, attended a comptometer school and Indiana University. She did so because injuries suffered by her husband convinced her she should be able to support herself: "I have a Roman Catholic background. I started saying about 12 years ago I wanted to become a priest. People said I was crazy." Now she feels her role is "kinda heavy. I don't have anybody to model after. The thought of women modeling themselves after me is pretty scary." Because she obviously can't be called "Father," she'll simply be known as Mrs. Means, the Rev. Mrs. Means or simply "Jackie." But just for fun, she sometimes sports a T-shirt inscribed "Mother Means."

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Ladies Who Lift Weights Get Much Better Shapes

Women are discovering what men have known for years—weightlifting is great for conditioning and losing weight. Two years ago, there were only a few hundred women interested in the sport, but now there are about 10,000 in the U.S. According to Dale Adrian, diet and fitness instructor for the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), women need not worry about losing their feminine curves because no matter how many weights they lift, they will never develop the dimensions of musclemen. "Women lack the male hormone, testosterone, which is responsible for those dimensions," Adrian says. "All weightlifting can do for women is contour their bodies—give them a firmer waist and bust and better muscle tone."

Soap Operas As Substitute Teachers

Every day, millions of South Americans whip out their handkerchiefs and get ready for a good cry—soap operas south of the border now rival soccer games for keeping audiences glued to TV sets. In Brazil, an estimated 40 million persons in a population of 110 million gather around their TV sets nightly at 8:00 to watch the new "soaps." Meanwhile, the Mexican Government is trying to capitalize on the popularity of the soap operas as vehicles to teach illiterate viewers the value of books and to give them some basic concepts of geography, history and mathematics.

Uncle Sam Sets His Pace

Gordon McNiven's heart belongs to Uncle Sam. And if the atomic energy that keeps it beating should no longer be needed, he must return it. McNiven, 27, was picked to try a new pacemaker with atomic power. Pacemakers with batteries have kept hearts beating for 15 years. McNiven's will run on a pellet of plutonium and could last for 25 years or more. The plutonium belongs to the Federal Government, however, and so it isn't his to keep. The Government is controlling development of nuclear pacemakers, and it allows manufacturers to release just a few each month.

Quick Takes

For those of us who feel there are not enough commercials on TV, the networks are considering adding another minute of commercials to each half-hour prime-time program. . . . College football and basketball players have poorer vision than any other group of young people, reports the American Optometric Association. . . . A former law-enforcement officer who began bulletproofing automobiles in San Antonio as a sideline says the demand is so great he is going to begin full-time production this month. . . . Children's allowances in the U.S. amount to a staggering $2.3 billion a year, reports Professor Bellur Venkatakrishna of Ball State University. The estimated average weekly allowance per child is $1.40, and the children's most frequently mentioned purchased item was gum. . . . A prisoner escaped from the city jail in Fort Worth, Texas, recently by picking up a broom and sweeping his way out of the building. Experts called it "a clean getaway." . . . The most popular paint color for the interior of homes is a sunny shade of yellow, and the number-one choice for the exterior color of American homes is dark brown, reports one company that made a study. . . . School students will not be given Saturdays off in France, the Education Ministry has announced. Education Minister René Haby said that a whole weekend off would be "hard" on the pupils. (French youngsters get Wednesday afternoons off and attend class Saturdays.) Haby said that scientific studies have shown that long weekends "often have a disastrous effect on schooling."

You don't have to be over 65 to collect from Social Security and Medicare

If you think that the Government's Social Security and Medicare programs are strictly for folks over 65, you couldn't be more mistaken! Thanks to changes in both programs, eligible men and women under 65 could not only collect under both Social Security and Medicare, but their benefits could add up to tens or even hundreds of thousands of dollars in some cases.

Because all these changes in Social Security and Medicare have been so rapid over the past few years, most folks haven't had a chance to grasp their full meaning. Yet a basic understanding of them can be all-important to your present and future security and happiness.

U.S. Dept. of H.E.W. figures show that, right now, nearly one person out of every seven in the United States—including 11,000,000 people under age 65—receives a Social Security check every month. A nearly 2,000,000 Americans under 65 have already received benefits under Medicare.

Despite these growing Government befits, people of all ages still need help in avoiding financial loss from sickness and injury. For example, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that people under Medicare now pay slightly more out of their pockets for medical expenses than they did back before Medicare started.

For men and women under 65, experts have developed protection to help provide the added security you need for today's high cost of getting sick or hurt. For example, without changing your present health insurance one bit, you can add insurance protection that can help solve the problem of skyrocketing medical costs because it provides full policy benefits regardless of benefits you receive from any other insurance, including group.

When covered sickness or injuries strike, you have valuable added protection just

With today's record high medical costs, most people need added protection to help prevent a financial crisis when a serious sickness or accident strikes. That's why protection that provides its full specified benefits regardless of your other insurance makes mighty good sense.

The story of "add-on" protection that provides its full policy benefits regardless of your other insurance, and help for people over 65 to avoid financial loss when they're sick or hurt, is told in the "Blue Book", an interesting and informative booklet delivered free by Bankers Life and Casualty Co., whose policies under the famous White Cross Plan trademark now protect over 7,000,000 Americans.

Our Story: ON THE MORNING OF THE 'TOURNAMENT OF THE TROUBADOURS,' SIR RAYMOND AND HIS DAUGHTERS ENTER POITIERS AND TAKE LODGINGS AT AN INN.

THE LADY ELEANOR IS STILL ANGRY THAT LAZARE SHOULD ASK TO WEAR HER FAVOR AT THE TOURNAMENT. "KING OF MINSTRELS," SHE SCOFFS, "HE IS BUT A HOG WITH A VOICE."

NEVERTHELESS, SHE HANDS ARN HER CLOAK AND HE FILLS EACH NEAT POCKET IN THE HEM WITH A FISH.

AS LAZARE PINS THE CLOAK ON HIS SHOULDER, HE ALLOWS HIMSELF TO DREAM: "IS IT NOT POSSIBLE THAT I MIGHT MARRY INTO THE NOBILITY?" HE IS SURPRISED THAT A LADY SHOULD USE SO FISHY A PERFUME.

HE HAD PLANNED TO BE THE LAST CONTESTANT, BUT SOMEONE BY THE NAME OF LLANDULF HAS ENTERED LATER. SO LAZARE GIVES ORDERS TO HIS KNAVES TO APPLAUD HIM LONG AND LOUD SO NO ONE ELSE CAN PERFORM.

HE SINGS WELL AND FINISHES WITH A WIDE GESTURE: "TO ORPHEUS, GOD OF MUSIC, I OFFER MY SONG. O GIVE SOME SIGN OF APPROVAL!" THEN FROM HIS FEET THERE RISES A CLOUD OF WHITE DOVES!

DURING THE APPLAUSE ARN SLIPS UNDER THE STAGE AND RELEASES THE ALLEY CATS. SOMEONE LAUGHS AND SOON THE MIRACLE OF THE DOVES BECOMES THE COMEDY OF THE CATS.

THE FINAL CONTESTANT IS ANNOUNCED, LLANDULF. BUT LAZARE DOES NOT LEAVE THE PLATFORM. INSTEAD HE SIGNALS HIS GANG TO CONTINUE THE APPLAUSE.

NEXT WEEK - King of the Minstrels!
