

DC-9 Pilot Did His Best To Save Lives

NEW HOPE, Ga. (AP) — A disaster investigating team began examining the wreckage today of a Southern Airways DC-9, whose pilot attempted to set the disabled craft down through lightning and hail on a winding, rural road near here. "He made a hell of a try," the chief investigator said.

At least 68 persons on the plane and in its path died Monday when Southern Airways Flight 242, bound for Atlanta from Huntsville, Ala., hit trees, cars and a grocery store before it exploded and burned in the woods of this small Georgia town about 35 miles northwest of Atlanta.

Authorities said the pilot reported losing power in both engines and said the windshield was cracked shortly before the craft went down.

A Southern spokesman said today the airline had confirmed 60 deaths among the passengers and 26 survivors. He said an area funeral home reported eight persons killed on the ground—seven of them in a car parked outside the grocery store.

The pilot, Capt. William W. McKenzie, 54, of La Place, La., radioed shortly after 4 p.m. that he had lost an engine as he prepared to land at Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport.

Rudy Kapustin, chief investigator for an eight-man team sent to the scene by the National Transportation Safety Board, said it would be several months before a final report would be made.

Kapustin estimated there were "three to four minutes" of powerless flight before the plane touched down.

The cockpit flight recorder and the "black box," which records technical flight data, were recovered from the wreckage and were shipped to Washington for analysis, he said.

Kapustin asked local residents who might have picked up hail stones during the time of the crash to make them available to the board for study.

At least two dozen injured were reported taken to five area hospitals following the crash.

The owners of the grocery store clipped by the plane before the crash survived the flames which engulfed them seconds later, but seven of their relatives in a car parked outside the store were killed.

"It's just like a terrible dream," said Mrs. William E. Newman. She said the casualties were the two daughters and a daughter-in-law of her nephew, and four of his grandchildren. "We never saw the plane. All we seen was the fire."

Some of the wreckage hit a woman standing in a nearby yard, killing her instantly, an eyewitness said.

The plane had barely cleared an elementary school, where classes had been dismissed a half hour before the crash.

A survivor said the 81 passengers and four crew members were told they were going to crash about four minutes before the plane struck.

"It was an apparently severe thunderstorm ... The hail really got bad ... Lightning struck the left wing tip ... I believe the hail being ingested in the engine is what really brought it down," said Don Foster, a licensed pilot from Decatur, Ala., a passenger.

About 30 miles northwest of the crash site, one person was killed Monday when a tornado ripped through a trailer park. At least a dozen tornadoes were sighted Monday in the Southeast, part of a storm that also brought torrential rains and flash floods to many sections.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta said the pilot reported both engines had "flamed out" — lost power — and that the windshield had cracked. He was told to try a landing at Dobbins Air Force Base in Marietta.

He crashed 15 miles short of the base after radioing he was unable to make it at about 4:15 p.m. EST, the spokesman said.

Foster, hospitalized in nearby Cartersville, said the plane "glided kind of straight with a few turns."

"Apparently, they saw this paved road and they realized ... they weren't going any further than that," he said. "So they made a steep turn and tried to get it into that road and they just barely missed it."

The National Transportation Safety Board sent a 12-man team from Washington to try to determine the cause of the crash.

Indict Drug Ring

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty persons have been indicted in what authorities said was a $50 million-a-year drug ring that stretched from Asia to New York via North Carolina and was allegedly operated from a jail cell by a man serving a 70-year prison sentence for narcotics violations.

Frank Lucas and 29 members of his alleged crime family were indicted Monday on charges of running the drug ring that handled every phase of heroin dealing, from importing to street sales.

Among those indicted were a minister, a nurse, and a Bronx public school matron.

Lucas, whose brothers Lawrence, Vernon and Ezell also were named in the indictments Monday, allegedly controlled the ring by speaking in code with visitors to his cell in the Essex County Jail, Newark, N.J.

Lucas is now serving his sentence in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

All 30 of those indicted are related by blood or marriage and come from North Carolina, said Queens District Attorney John Santucci.

They were accused of importing heroin, chiefly from the so-called "Golden Triangle" of Burma, Laos and Thailand, and shipping it through North Carolina and New Jersey for sale on the street here, mainly in Queens.

The port of entry for the narcotics was Ft. Bragg, N.C., and although it was not spelled out in the indictment, law enforcement sources said the heroin was shipped to this country by Vietnam veterans with connections in Asia.

of two traffic lanes on a four-lane right-of-way.

The action yesterday by the Board of Transportation expanded the $10 million project by adding two additional travel lanes at a cost of $3.7 million.

Billy Rose, Highway Administrator said "any time you can get 14 miles of freeway open for $3.7 million, we recommend it be done."

Contracts for the two additional traffic lanes are expected to be let in September, while work is already in progress on the first two lanes. Two segments of the 14 mile improvement project now under construction are expected to be completed in November 1977.

Rose recommended work not be started on the easternmost section of the project until the two westernmost segments are completed because of the problems involved in administering side-by-side paving projects involving two different contractors.

Construction of the two westernmost sections of the four-lane project should be completed by late 1978 or early 1979.

Complete First Study Of Southside Project

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has completed its initial review of contract documents and specifications on the local Housing Authority's proposed housing development in Southside.

According to the Authority's executive director, Joe Laney, HUD has forwarded the documents back to the local agency for several minor technical changes in the project's paperwork.

Laney reported at Monday night's meeting that most of the changes have already been made and the Authority should be in a position to send the documents back to HUD for final approval by the end of the month.

Advertising for the 111-unit project off Evans Street will hopefully begin around the end of the month, he added, and take approximately 30 days to complete. Some 18 months are anticipated for construction.

Laney reported that the Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended that the 8.7 acres located on the west side of Evans Street be rezoned from its present Highway Commercial to R-6 (residential) zoning in order to accommodate the new housing program. The City Council is expected to consider the matter on Thursday night.

Laney said that the Authority considers the proposed rezoning from commercial to residential an upgrading of the neighborhood and he said he feels the housing project will make a definite impact on the area.

The executive director reported that the Authority is still awaiting a ruling from the Internal Revenue Service on the status of tax-exempt loans for the Section Eight housing program for the elderly here. Fifty units of housing for the elderly are planned in Greenville when financing questions are answered.

Laney said that the staff, with the assistance of the Regional Development Institute at East Carolina University, has put together a package of information on the 50-unit mid-rise structure for the elderly. The information, he noted, will give lending agencies an idea of the program planned for the elderly in Greenville.

The brochure provides a rendering of the proposed building, as well as illustrations of the first floor plan, a typical unit layout and outline of the Section Eight program.

Only one vacancy existed among the 531 housing units operated by the Authority during March, according to the director

Woman Injured As Train, Car Collide At Crossing

Geraldine Manning of Route 5, Greenville, was injured yesterday when the car she was driving collided with a Seaboard Coast Line Railroad train at a crossing on the Staton's Mill Road four miles North of Greenville.

Highway Patrolman Fred Davis reported Mrs. Manning was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries she received in the 1 p.m. mishap.

Trooper Davis identified the engineer of the train as Eugene Strange Jr. of Rocky Mount.

The officer quoted train officials as saying the train was traveling about 35 miles per hour at the time of the collision. The car collided with the front of the engine, was spun around and carried 97 feet from the crossing before coming to rest beside the tracks.

Damage to the vehicle was set at $2,200 while damage to the engine was placed at $100.

No charges were reported in connection with the collision.

Contracts Let For Widening Projects

The North Carolina Board of Transportation yesterday awarded contracts for widening portions of N.C. 43, the Stantonsburg Road and Nursing Home Road at the Western outskirts of Greenville in the vicinity of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital, and approved the expansion of a 14-mile long paving project on U.S. 264 between Wilson and Zebulon.

The $1.3 million contract for the work near the new hospital in Greenville was awarded to the L. A. Reynolds Co. of Winston-Salem. Construction of the 64-foot curb and gutter sections — providing four travel lanes on N.C. 43 to the Walter B.

Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, on the Stantonsburg Road to a point West of the new Hospital, and Nursing Home Road connecting N.C. 43 and the Stantonsburg Road in front of the new facility — may begin as early as next month and is scheduled for completion by June 1978.

In approving the additional work on U.S. 264 between Zebulon and Finch's Mill near Wilson, the Department of Transportation upgraded one of Gov. Jim Hunt's goals.

The Republican Holshouser administration had let contracts for the 14-mile project which called for construction

Commissioners To Study Township Tax Revision

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday, at the request of Tax Supervisor Phillip Michaels, agreed to study a proposal that would do away with township boundaries in the county for tax purposes.

At present, North Carolina General Statutes require that property be listed for tax purposes in the township in which it is located.

Michaels told the board that by having Pitt exempted from the law, persons who own property in more than one township would be able to list their property at one location rather than be forced to list their property at more than one location.

The tax official said that the move would be more convenient for the tax payer and by using only one abstract, reduce the paper work required in the Tax Department.

Commissioners, on recommendation of the Board of Health and department director Roger Barnaby, officially endorsed House Bill 370, a measure now before the General Assembly that would allow health professionals to counsel with persons under 18 years of age on birth control measures. Present law prohibits doctors and other health professionals to counsel juveniles on birth control measures without their parents consent.

Barnaby pointed out that the Health Department and the Department of Social Services can now aid under-age individuals in having abortions once they get pregnant, but cannot provide birth control information before the pregnancy. Barnaby noted that in 1974, 13 per cent of all births in Pitt County — 165 — were to girls under the age of 18, while in 1975, 14 per cent — 173 — were to under 18-year-olds.

The board yesterday also approved entering into a contract with the Town of Falkland to provide police protection to the municipality.

Under the proposal, a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration would provide funds to hire and equip an officer — that would be a Deputy Sheriff and be supervised by Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson — to provide 40 hours of duty each week in the municipality.

The Day Christ Died

A Little Olive Garden Saw Fear Pile On Fear

Jesus undergoing the anguish and visions in the Garden of Gethsemane while John, Peter and James sleep despite His admonition to them to pray.

By JIM BISHOP
(Third in a series of eight)
11 p.m., April 6, A.D. 30

The final cup of wine had been drunk and the feast was over. They stood and sang the hallel (Praise Ye) and, as the solemn notes died in the big room, so, too, the followers of Jesus bridged the distance between what would become the old and the new testaments. Until this night, there had been a testament. From now on, there could be an old testament and a new testament and the second would be a continuance of the revelations of God the Father through Jesus, His Son. Jesus rose from His couch and the Apostles stood also, but with lowered heads. Their sadness was as tangible as the cool night air.

Jesus felt the gloom and He wanted to lift them from it. "Do not let your heart be troubled," He said gently, almost smiling. "You have faith in God: have faith in Me also. In My Father's house are many rooms. I should have told you if it were not so. The fact is, I am now about to go for the very purpose of preparing a place for you."

Now all the heads were up and all were smiling. "The way to where I am going you know, of course," Jesus continued. Their triumphant faces suddenly clouded again. Thomas coughed, hesitated and said: "Lord, we do not know where You are — going; how do we know the way?"

"I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father," Jesus said, holding out both hands for understanding, "except through Me. Since you know Me, you will also know My Father." It could hardly have been plainer. He was saying that God the Father and God the Son were one.

Jesus was ready to leave. He looked around and made a sign to Peter. It was almost midnight when they left. Jesus led the way down the outer stairs, pausing at the foot to whisper His thanks to the father of the young Disciple Mark. Then they walked out into the night.

Jerusalem was at its quietest. In a few minutes, at midnight, the sentinel watches would change, and the lonesome cry of the soldiers on the ramparts of Antonia would be heard. Soon

DIARY GIVEN SON

Warren Talley brought Hotline a diary written in 1918 which he thought might belong to the heirs of a Kinston man, since the name and address given in it was Paul Alton Scott of Kinston.

The writer of the diary, which was faithfully kept by Scott, Quartermaster First Class aboard a U. S. ship during World War I, chronicled his experiences at sea and in such ports as Bermuda, the Azores, and Oporto, Portugal and his views of "chow time," his pleasure at getting mail from "my dear little A" (The book is dedicated to Miss Annie Jackson, "the girl I left behind me in the U. S. A. "), his lack of dismay at being bawled out by the skipper, and how he felt being begged for money by the children of all the ports he visited.

Hotline learned that the writer of the diary was the deceased father of Paul A. Scott, who operates Scott's Cleaners here, and that Miss Annie Jackson, became Mrs. Scott Sr. She, too, is no longer living.

Scott seemed delighted to receive the book. He said he has never known of the existence of the diary, but has heard his father tell about some of the incidents described in it. He expressed his appreciation to Talley, who said only that he knows that if the book had been written by his father, he would wish to own it. He said he found it in a warehouse he was cleaning out here recently.

The Other Side Of Other Woman's Man

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After two years, upon learning that my husband would not leave his family, the "other woman" broke it off, even though they were sure they were meant for each other.

I want her to know the other side of my husband, so she won't sit home eating her heart out.

The man she knows is charming and immaculately groomed. He's well-liked at the office, where he jokes with people although he's basically quiet. He's very romantic and understanding. He writes poetry and talks of things that might have been.

She'd never believe the other side of this smooth talker. He has no friends outside the office. The neighbors don't even know his first name. His modest home is falling apart for lack of repairs. Although he is always well-dressed, his children don't even have a pair of decent shoes, and the bills keep mounting up. He never laughs or talks at home. He rarely plays with his children. He never picks up after himself or helps in any way.

He parks in front of the TV night after night and all weekend, just waiting to go back to work where he can escape from reality, turn on his charm, and live in that other world.

I am sure the other woman would never believe this of her Prince Charming. Well, in a few years, when the kids are grown, I'll be glad to let her find out for herself.

JUST HIS WIFE

DEAR JUST: To some men, a wife, children and home are status symbols that are left neglected on the shelf to gather dust like a tarnished bowling trophy. The breed is not uncommon—in either sex.

DEAR ABBY: Our children, 4 and 6, wreck everything they own. When I buy toys I make sure they are meant for children of their age group and are not hard for them to play with. They're sweet children but so destructive! Any advice on how to deal with this problem?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Consistent discipline, involving both rewards and punishment for good or bad conduct, plus a clear explanation of what is expected of them is the only winning formula I know.

DEAR ABBY: My 23-year-old son is being married for the second time. After one year of marriage, his first wife left him and took all their wedding presents.

His new fiancée has never been married before and she's having a big church wedding, which she is entitled to. However, my son's first wedding was also in church, and all our friends and relatives attended and gave lovely presents.

At first I didn't want to invite anyone to the second wedding, but so many have expressed a desire to attend that I decided to invite some close friends and relatives.

I don't want those who gave my son one wedding gift to give him another, so should I enclose a card with the invitations saying, "NO GIFTS, PLEASE?" Should I call them personally and tell them? Or should I ignore the fact that they already gave?

I want to be fair to friends, relatives and to my son's lovely bride. Please help me.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Let those who are attending your son's second wedding do as they wish about a gift. To request "no gift" would be unfair to the bride.

Prevented Patient From Ledge-Leap

Members of the Greenville Rescue Squad, firemen and police officers were called to Pitt Memorial Hospital early today when a 43-year-old patient climbed through a second floor window and threatened to jump from a ledge.

Chief Glenn Cannon said attempts by members of the rescue squad to talk Graham Anthony of Washington down from his perch failed and that Anthony was finally ushered back through the window by police and rescue squad personnel, using minimal force.

Investigators reported that Anthony, a patient at the hospital because of a hip injury, broke a second floor window to gain access to the roof of a one-story wing at the southeast side of the building.

According to the chief, firemen erected a 35-foot extension ladder and attempts were made to talk Anthony down from the roof ledge but he would not come. Officers and rescue squad workers then forced Anthony back through the window.

Cannon said Anthony told police he did not belong in the hospital, and wanted to leave. The incident was reported at 12:45 a.m.

Geographic Boundaries For Leaf Markets Set

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced that effective March 31, in order to receive price support and inspection services, new tobacco auction warehouse facilities will have to be located within three miles of the town or population center designated as a tobacco auction market.

In announcing this change in tobacco inspection regulations, officials of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) explained that with improved road conditions and less costly land located beyond city or town limits, many warehouse operators have moved their warehouses further from designated market centers. In some cases, this trend toward unrestricted expansion has made it difficult to determine which facilities are part of a designated market.

AMS officials said that warehouses in existence during the 1976 season will continue to be granted price support and inspection services at their present location. However, a warehouse operator who wishes to establish a new warehouse beyond the geographic limits will have to petition the Secretary of Agriculture for a waiver of the new restriction. The three mile limit is based on the boundaries of a city or town as of January 1, 1976.

Greenville Moose Elect Officers For 1977-78

For the second time in its history the Greenville Moose Lodge turned to its ranks of past governors to serve again as its presiding officer with the election of Ralph Heidenreich to serve as governor for the 1977-78 year.

An 18-year member of the lodge, Heidenreich previously served as Civic Affairs chairman and on the board as Prelate, Junior Governor and Governor (1970-71).

The Governor-elect is a regional sales representative for Unijax Inc., a division of International Utilities. He is retired from the N.C. National Guard, during which service he was Commanding Officer of the Greenville National Guard unit for ten years. He has long been active officiating in sports.

Other officers elected last night, were: Crockett Webb as Junior Governor; Ronald Payne as Prelate; Jerry McLawhorn as Treasurer; and Otha Joyner as 3-year Trustee.

Installation of the new officers will take place April 30.

Other business before the membership included a report by Civic Affairs chairman Billy Barnes that 297 persons took advantage of the free blood pressure clinic provided by the lodge in March. He expressed appreciation for the services of two nurses who assisted, Mrs. Hazel Barnes and Mrs. Irene Carroll. Entertainment chairman Paul Rasberry reminded there would be a dance Saturday night with music by the "Light Blue" group.

James Harris called attention to the eastern N.C. meet for holders of the second degree in the fraternity, on April 23-24, in Greenville.

Two visitors were recognized by Governor Jim Fleming: Past State Moose Ass'n President Gordon Brunson, of Rocky Mount; and Al Wood, Supreme Lodge Auditor, of Fostoria, Ohio.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Snow flurries are expected today for the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Valley. Cold weather is forecast for most of the country. Warm weather is predicted for the Southwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

The severe weather which raked North Carolina during the night and this morning was expected to move out to sea by this afternoon. Cooler and windy weather will be moving across the state from the west along with clearing skies.

A tornado watch in effect early today was canceled around daybreak but a flash flood watch remained in effect for the mountains, the southern portion of the eastern slopes and foothills and the southern Piedmont.

Showers and thunderstorms rumbled over the state and some damage was left when tornado-like winds touched down about five miles southeast of Yadkinville Monday night.

Strong winds at Winston-Salem gusted to near 50 miles per hour along with heavy rains and some mud slides were reported in the Boone area of the northwest mountains.

Up to four inches of rain was measured in mountain sections, and east of the mountains rain measured from a trace to nearly three inches. Asheville and Hickory reported more than two inches of rain and Greensboro had nearly an inch and a half.

The weather tonight was to be mostly clear but windy and cooler with lows in the mid to upper 30s in the mountains ranging to near 50 on the Outer Banks. The National Weather Service said a touch of winter will be back on the scene Wednesday and especially Wednesday night.

A tornado watch was posted Monday afternoon for eastern Tennessee, western North Carolina, northern Georgia and western South Carolina by the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City.

The watch was upgraded to a warning from the National Weather Service in Greensboro for portions of Yadkin, Stokes and Forsyth counties after a funnel cloud was reported moving northeast from a point five miles southeast of Yadkinville. The watch later was extended to Guilford and Rockingham counties.

A flash flood watch was issued for the western mountains to the southern piedmont sections.

Authorities reported flooding from small streams and tributaries in the French Broad basin and warned of flash flooding as heavy rains continued in the mountains.

Treated 2 For Bullet Wounds

Two women were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of bullet wounds yesterday afternoon following a shooting incident at 405 Line Ave.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the two as Barbara Dixon Carmon of Snow Hill and Ziola Brown of Norfolk, Va.

The chief, who said investigation of the case is continuing, said Mrs. Carmon allegedly came to the Line Avenue dwelling and attempted to gain entrance through the front door, but was unsuccessful.

He said Miss Brown, a visitor in the home occupied by Thomas Carmon, estranged husband of Mrs. Carmon, allegedly went to the bedroom of the home and secured a .38 caliber pistol located there, then went to the kitchen where Mrs. Carmon had gained entrance to the dwelling through a rear door.

Cannon said Miss Brown told police she put the revolver on the kitchen table, then was shot one time by Mrs. Carmon, with a .32 caliber pistol.

The chief said Miss Brown then allegedly picked up the .38 caliber pistol and shot Mrs. Carmon, who then shot Miss Brown one more time.

Miss Brown left the house, flagged down a passing motorist who took her to Pitt Memorial Hospital and called the Greenville Rescue Squad for Mrs. Carmon.

Cannon said Mrs. Carmon was shot one time in the right upper abdomen while Miss Brown suffered two bullet wounds.

No Damage From Winds

A tornado warning, placed in effect at 12:15 a.m. today, was lifted at 6:15 this morning, but high winds continued to sweep through eastern North Carolina.

No damage was reported by the Pitt and Martin County sheriff's departments, however.

Wind velocity was measured at the Pitt-Greenville Airport at 7 a.m. at 10 knots, with gusts of up to 30 knots (approximately 34 miles an hour). Winds were out of the west southwest at 9 a.m. at 8 to 10 miles an hour.

Monday's temperatures ranged from a high of 83 degrees to a low of 58. No precipitation was recorded, and the Tar River stood at 6.7 feet on the National Weather Gauge.

This morning the river was measured at 6.3 feet, the 8 a.m. temperature was 76 degrees and skies were cloudy.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a formal length gown of cream organza designed with a Victorian neckline encircled with floral Venice lace. The sheer yoke, enhanced with pearl buttons, was outlined in a V-shaped ruffle of organza and trimmed in floral Venice lace. The long sheer sleeves featured gathered floral Venice lace at the cuffs. The full skirt extended from the fitted waistline which was embellished with a ruffled flounce of gathered organza bordered with floral Venice lace near the hemline. She wore a picture hat with matching cream ribbon and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers.

The maid of honor was Debbie Whichard of Greenville. She wore a formal gown of cotton blue knit fashioned A-line with a square neck and mock bolero jacket edged in cream. The bodice was accented by a cream medallion and a deep flounce finished the skirt. She wore a picture hat of cream accented by cotton blue ribbon around the crown and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers.

The best man was James Sidney Allen Sr. of Farmville. The ushers included Linwood E. Whichard of Greenville, and Lonnie Faulkner of Winterville.

After a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Winterville High School and Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed by East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Winterville High School and is now employed by Pepsi Cola Bottling Co., Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by friends of the bride, Mrs. James M. Campbell, Mrs. James B. Hall and Miss Susan Roebuck, and aunt of the bride, Mrs. R. G. Page.

The bridal couple greeted the guests and Mrs. Linwood Whichard presided at the guest register.

An after-rehearsal party was held Friday night at the church given by the mother of the bride, Mrs. Linwood E. Whichard and Mrs. Paul Gregory Kennedy.

Nowadays, sweet potatoes are available all through the year.

2 eggs
1 cup milk
2 cups coarsely grated pared sweet potatoes, not packed down (about 1/2 pound), see Note
1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/4 to 1/2 cup raisins, rinsed in hot water and drained
1/2 cup coarsely cut pecans
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
In a medium bowl beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; add milk and beat to blend. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Turn into a well-buttered 9-inch black iron skillet and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until potatoes are tender — 45 to 60 minutes; stir at 15-minute intervals but not during the last quarter-hour of baking. Cut in wedges and serve hot topped with vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Pare and grate the sweet potatoes just before adding so they won't discolor.

Cook frozen baby green lima beans and drain. Heat canned stewed tomatoes and add the lima beans to them. Serve in sauce dishes. Adding stewed tomatoes to succotash also makes a good vegetable dish.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My kids said they never made it big in athletics because they wore hand-me-downs and were never dressed properly for the sport.

They always wore three pairs of socks with the toes folded under when they ice skated and played basketball in their stocking feet. There was always a scurrying for gloves on the first day of a snow and one day as I adjusted a pair of crushed kid gloves up to the elbow my son whined, "I'm going sledding, Mom . . . not to a wedding . . . SLEDDING!"

Another time, another kid stomped off the ski slopes and said he wasn't going back. He was the only one skiing in a long, black overcoat and looked like a Rabbi in "Fiddler on the Roof."

I assured him Rabbis also skied and he bought it—until his black hat flew off. It never occurred to me how intimidating it can be not to be dressed properly until I competed this week on the tennis court with three sweatbands, three matching panties, three wrist score keepers, and three pairs of footlets with a chenille ball at the heel.

Somehow, I knew before I began — pedal pushers finish last. So do dark blue gym shoes. So do T-shirts with Paul Newman's face on the front. So do red sweat socks that make your ankles look like fire hydrants.

My partner started to serve. "You want me to store your other ball in my pants pocket?" I offered.

Her racket dropped. "No, I can hold both of them in the same hand."

"Your racket seems to be a lot lighter than mine," I observed. "That's because mine is out of the press," she said coldly.

She served. The ball was returned and she was all over the court, running, slamming, and lobbing.

"You certainly are fast," I said. "I'll bet it's those shoes. I've seen them advertised. Do you really jump higher in them?"

"These probably don't cost any more than the ones you're wearing," she said, "but then you probably got a pen knife with yours."

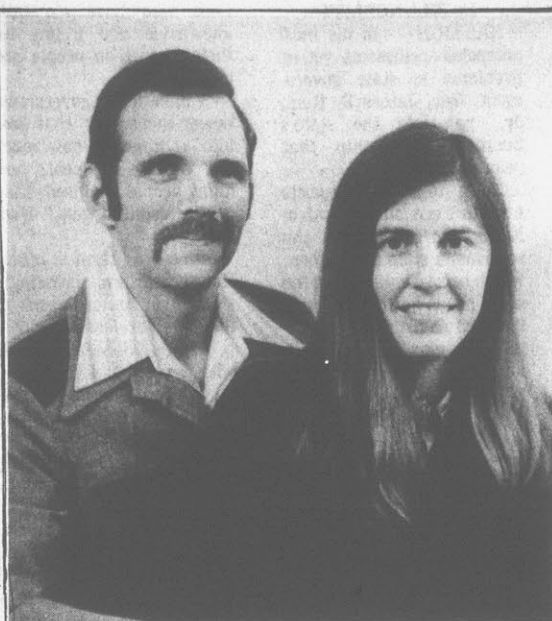

"A kite," I smiled. By this time, there was a group waiting for the court. They all looked like ads for Gatorade.

It was my turn to serve. I look (continued on page 6)

Put Burden On Those Involved

Some 46 of the 50 senators in the North Carolina Legislature signed a "sunset" bill.

The bill is patterned after systems already instituted in other states which require state agencies to justify their existences periodically.

In North Carolina's case the agencies would have to show their need for the next six years. Sen. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, who introduced the bill, said, "For too long new government agencies have been created and their continued existence allowed without thorough evaluation on a periodic basis. Sunset legislation provides for automatic termination of certain agencies unless continued by the legislature."

Some 80 state agencies would be affected by the bill if it becomes law including regulators of architects, doctors, lawyers, veterinarians, barbers, salesmen, accountants, druggists, plumbers, house movers and others.

The programs would be evaluated by an eight-member commission which would make recommendations to the Legislature.

Institution of the "sunset" law in North Carolina would have a positive effect on state government. State agencies have grown by leaps and bounds for a number of years simply by adding employees and duties each biennium.

Clearly many of these state services are valid and are needed by our citizens — but they should be justified.

The best way to justify any program is to set an expiration date. Then the burden is on those involved in the program to show why the taxpayers money should continue to support it.

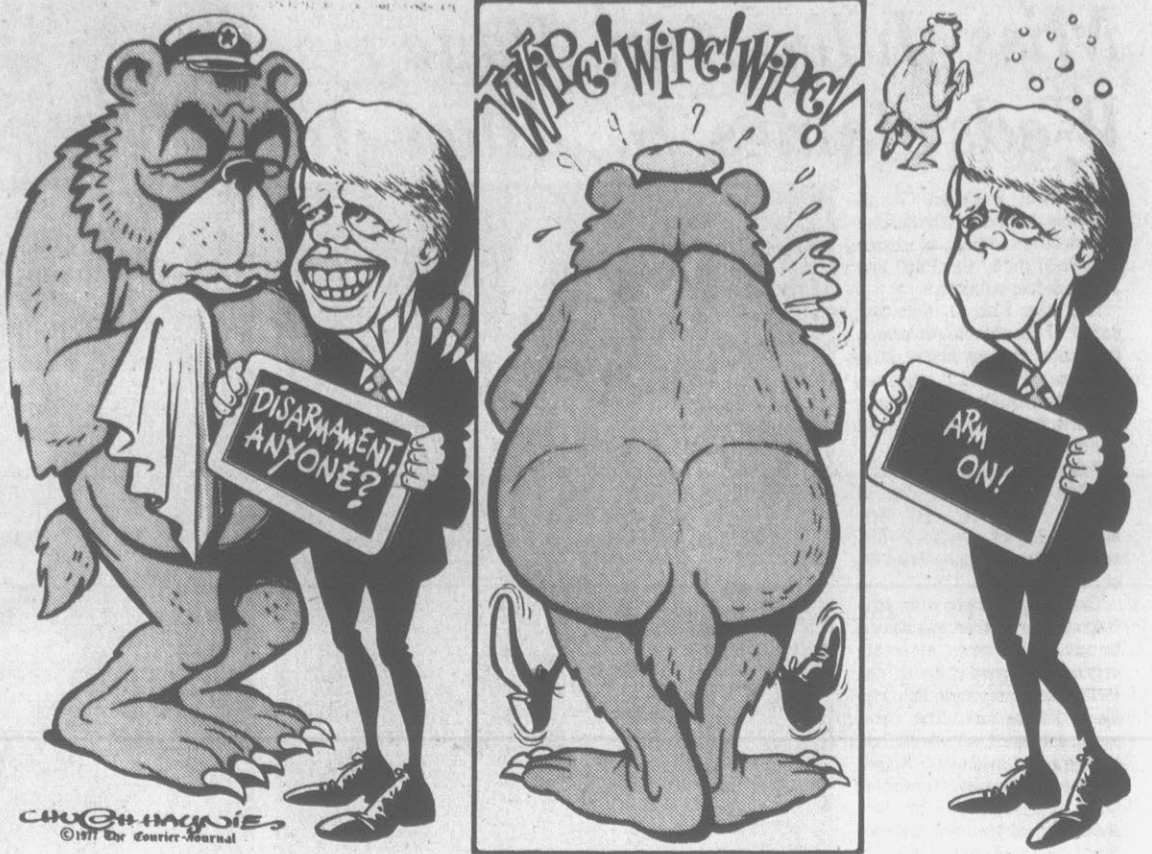

What Is Source Of Mt. Ararat Timber?

Whatever the wreckage is on Mount Ararat it's apparently not that of Noah's Ark.

Scientists at the University of California say that tests on the wood show it to be about 1,200 years old. It would have had to have gone back another 2,700 years to reach the era of Noah.

So much for the Noah's Ark theory... but then new questions are raised. Is it the wreckage of some sort of vessel, and if so, what was it doing way up on Mount Ararat?

The questions may never be answered, but the possibilities are intriguing.

Hunt Feels 'Frustrated'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — In his most outspoken comments yet on problems in state government, Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., has told the state's business leadership that reforms are in order.

Tying together prospects for future economic growth in North Carolina and the reforms in state government which he seeks, Hunt said the state needs "efficient, effective and responsive" government as part of the growth formula.

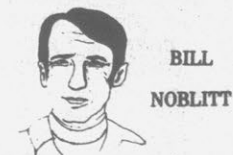

"We don't have that kind of government today. In many ways, it is just the opposite," he said.

"In my 75 days as governor, I have sometimes been disappointed and frustrated by state government," he told the membership of the North Carolina Citizens Association at their annual meeting in Raleigh.

1980, North Carolina can retain "the best of both worlds — economic growth and a good quality of life," the governor said.

But changes must take place to achieve that goal, Hunt said as he pulled into the formula several reforms which he is pushing in state government.

In economic growth, of course, he re-emphasized need for consolidation of industry hunting in one agency; for a $300 million road bond package; and the potential of a one-agency crime fighting unit to improve livability.

Veto, Too

Beyond that, however, Hunt sees his effort to get veto power and succession for the governor as part of the formula: "We are going to have to become even bolder and more imaginative... in devising ways of making government work better..."

"North Carolina is selling itself short by not providing these tools of progress and

Counting The Blessings

American conservatives, having lost most of their battles over the past 45 years, find some mild comfort in the reflection that we don't win many, but we do win a few. On March 23 the conservatives won a big one: They beat the common site picketing bill.

Plenty of lessons are here for the learning. These are lessons of tactics, lessons of leadership, lessons of morale. And for those of us in the pundit business, there is a fresh reminder to put less reliance in political labels and to listen more closely to the voice of the people.

The bill, in my own view, was a very bad bill. By concise definition, its purpose was to allow a single union involved in a dispute with a single subcontractor to close down an entire building site, but that definition suffers from an excess of brevity. This was a power grab by the building trades unions; the bill would have provoked violence, raised construction costs, and trampled upon the freedom of non-union workers.

This was not Big Labor's view of the bill, of course, and Big Labor came to the 95th Congress confident of winning enactment. After all, a common site picketing bill had passed both houses late in 1975, only to be vetoed by Gerald Ford. During the congressional campaigns of 1975, organized labor had backed a flock of winners. At least 60 percent of the members of the House, it was estimated, owed their seats in part to labor's support.

It therefore made political sense — surely it seemed to make sense — for labor spokesmen to call up the common site picketing bill first. Their reasonable expectation was to win a smashing victory in the House, and to ride that momentum to other victories on such issues as the minimum wage, public employee unionism, and nullification of State right to work laws. The scenario was perfect.

Might Impose Rules

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Senate accepts a House-passed bill to regulate the debt collection industry, bill collectors won't be able to hound you in the middle of the night, threaten you or suggest that you kill yourself.

Senate hearings are planned later this month on the bill, which squeaked through the House on a 199 to 198 vote Monday.

The Spanish government's southern army turned the insurgent left flank north of Cordoba today, capturing the village of La Grailjuela and opening the way for direct attacks on the Penarroya coal mines.

The fall of La Grailjuela followed the capture of Daisequillo, three miles to the north, which had been the first objective of the flanking columns.

On the far southern coast the insurgents were reported being pressed back, while in the north the Basque miners were on the offensive in the Asturias and strong armies were advancing against Burgos, one-time capital of the insurgent regime.

A shell thought to have been fired during the Civil War, but which failed to explode, was found on the farm of J. P. Davenport, Sr. near Pactolus.

The shell, found about a mile and a quarter north of the Tar River, is thought to have been fired by a Yankee gun boat during an attack on Yankee Hall.

The shell is currently on display in the window of The Reflector.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Sen. Moynihan's Rubicon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — One of the Democratic party's major financial angels informed a meeting last week that he truly wishes he could get back his substantial contribution to Daniel Patrick Moynihan's successful Senate campaign in New York last year — pointing up an important political side effect of the Senate's dramatic Warnke confirmation fight.

The complaining liberal business tycoon was expressing his chagrin — and surprise — over Sen. Moynihan's vote nearly a month ago against Paul Warnke as President Carter's chief disarmament negotiator. Indeed, the shock over Moynihan's resisting their quiet but intense lobbying may never quite subside for liberal pressure groups.

Quite apart from the merits of Warnke or strategic disarmament questions, Moynihan's vote was the crossing of a political Rubicon after only two months in the Senate. He signalled he was counting on a voter constituency markedly different from that of conventional New York Democrats and, moreover, was aligning himself with the centrist bloc of Senate Democrats as opposed to the liberals, led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

For the brightest new Democratic face to enter the Senate in many years, that is a choice of some significance.

Such a course might have seemed preordained by Moynihan's stress on national defense in last year's

This past Monday signified the beginning of Jesus' last week on earth, which culminated in His ascension to Heaven on Easter Sunday morning.

Apr. 4, also Monday, was the date on which Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was slain by an assassin's bullet.

Although one cannot really compare these two stalwarts in the legacy of mankind, one can parallel what their contributions have meant to man. It can be set forth that these figures gave their lives serving others. It can be shown that these figures were testimonies that the humble and the meek will, in the final analysis, emerge victorious over pride, conceit and selfishness. It can be forthrightly stated that these figures marshaled their troops with the notion of love, rather than the instrument of hate. Naturally, the comparisons are unending, but each year at this season, we pause to express gratitude for these leaders' lives and to identify the cause for which they stood and eventually died.

Pres. Jimmy Carter has been recently subjected to some harsh international and a few domestic remarks on the issue of human rights. His human rights stand is courageous and, in my opinion, correct.

Both Jesus Christ and Martin Luther King Jr. spoke out on this issue before our present Chief Executive did. Dr. King stated: "Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere."

Approaching Energy Decisions

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Perhaps we are nearing the hard decisions in our quest for an energy policy, the decisions that are bound to hurt somebody or other, maybe even the President who proposes them.

The reason for such an assessment is that a sense of outrage already is being heard in the corporate offices of industry, which fear Washington will encumber rather than resolve the problem.

As a good many executives view the situation, Washington is about to write still another script that will have an unintended and even disastrous ending. Would the author please step aside and let the story unfold naturally, they ask?

It is government action, through price controls, for example, that created the energy shortage, says

Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors. It is further government involvement in the free market that could make it worse, he adds.

"America's energy crisis, I am sorry to say, carries a label that says 'Made in America.' And the energy crisis is not three or four years old; it is really about 25," Murphy told a group of sales executives here a few days ago.

It began in the 1950s, according to Murphy, when the government decided that Americans were entitled to energy at a price cheaper than the free market would have set. And so it imposed controls over natural gas prices.

"So our coal supplies remained largely untapped, while the reserves of gas have been severely reduced," said Murphy. And then oil prices were controlled beginning in 1970, making us

A PLACE FOR REWARDS

One often hears the somewhat smug phrase, "Virtue is its own reward." The statement carries the implication that those who do virtuous deeds should be indifferent to the question of reward.

But the Bible teaches that virtue does bring tangible rewards, and nowhere implies that it is wrong for individuals to seek these rewards. For example, Jesus made plain that the God who rules the universe pays the laborers in his vineyard. This is one of the meanings of the John Ashbrook of Ohio held the troops in line. They first bought a watered-down substitute bill, but when the time came they tossed it aside and went for the prime target. With their victory, the momentum passes. For the time being — but only for the time being — we can forget about efforts to abolish the State right to work laws. We will get a much less damaging minimum wage bill than might have been expected. On this bill a new conservative coalition was forged.

Big Labor's lobbyists have had to relearn the oldest lesson of politics: Over-confidence kills. My conservative friends, before they get too intoxicated on the rare wine of victory, had better keep that lesson in mind.

The measure would subject the debt collection industry to federal regulation for the first time.

In urging passage, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., its sponsor, said, "Debt collectors more and more are harassing the consumers of America. There are threats of bodily harm, even suggestions that the person should commit suicide."

The House passed Annunzio's bill last year, 239 to 162, but the Senate did not act on it before Congress finished its session.

Supporters expected a similarly large margin this year, but some members changed their votes.

A frequent objection in the debate was that the legislation would create a series of new federal crimes, including when a bill collector calls a debtor between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m., calls him at work or goes to his home.

"We have created a whole new class of federal crimes punishable by $5,000 fine and one year in jail," said Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif.

The bill also would prohibit use of abusive language, false claims that collectors are acting on behalf of the government and threats to take any action that is not intended to be taken.

Annunzio said hearings by his House Banking subcommittee have shown that debt collectors frequently use all these tactics.

He also said state regulation has been ineffective. "Out of 38 state laws on debt collection, only eight are strong laws," Annunzio said.

The bill was supported by consumer groups, and collection industry groups changed their position to support it in recent weeks.

Opponents said the bill would make it difficult or impossible to collect debts. "This would wipe out all collection agencies as we know them," warned Rep. Richard C. White, D-Tex.

RALEIGH (AP) — Children entering public school for the first time will be required to be immunized against German measles under a bill that has won Senate approval.

The bill won easy approval in the Senate Monday night and had passed the House earlier but was returned to the lower chamber for concurrence on an amendment.

The Senate also put off action on a bill to increase the state minimum wage to $2.30 per hour from the current $2. Meanwhile, the House approved a bill Monday night that would give highway patrolmen temporarily disabled in the line of duty up to two years of full pay followed by half pay. They now are limited to one year of full pay.

Rubella is the correct name for German measles. It is a common cause of birth defects if contracted by a pregnant woman. Medical authorities have urged immunization of children because they usually spread the disease.

State law already requires children to be immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, polio and red measles.

PATROLMEN

Rep. Ed Davenport, D-Nash, sponsor of the bill to pay highway patrolmen, said the measure would be retroactive to November 1975 to coincide with the last change in the workmen's compensation law because that law is involved with the provision for paying patrolmen.

One highway patrolman would benefit by the law being retroactive, he said. That officer suffered a gunshot wound in 1975 and his full pay benefits ran out last December, Davenport said.

Also in the legislature Monday:

REGISTRATION

Citizens who are not registered but are otherwise qualified would be able to register and vote at the polls for primary and general elections under a bill filed by Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange. All a person would need to do is show identification and swear to being eligible. The registration at the polls would put the person on the permanent registration records.

SMOKE ALARMS

Having a smoke detector could pay off financially as well as with its safety features under a bill filed by Vickery. His bill would let the state insurance commission order companies to give discounts of at least 10 per cent on homeowners policies to persons who have smoke detectors that meet standards set by the commission.

PRIMARY

Vickery is also trying to move primary elections to the first Tuesday in April. Last year, the primary was the third Tuesday in August for the first time and a number of politicians vowed to change it to an earlier date. Previously, the primary was in May and bills have been filed to reinstate that date.

Special Olympics

Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed Wednesday, April 6, as "Special Olympics Day" in honor of mentally handicapped children in Greenville and Pitt County.

Cox pointed out that the "citizens of Greenville, together with the City Council and other governing bodies of the city...have vested interest in the welfare and well-being of the mentally handicapped children of Greenville and Pitt County."

He added, "The citizens of...Greenville are deeply appreciative of the fine work which the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, and the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children are doing in sponsoring a Special Olympics Meet."

The meet will be held at the East Carolina University track beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday.

mined. Beyond a mere vote, he delivered one of the most widely noted Senate maiden speeches in recent years in opposition to Warnke.

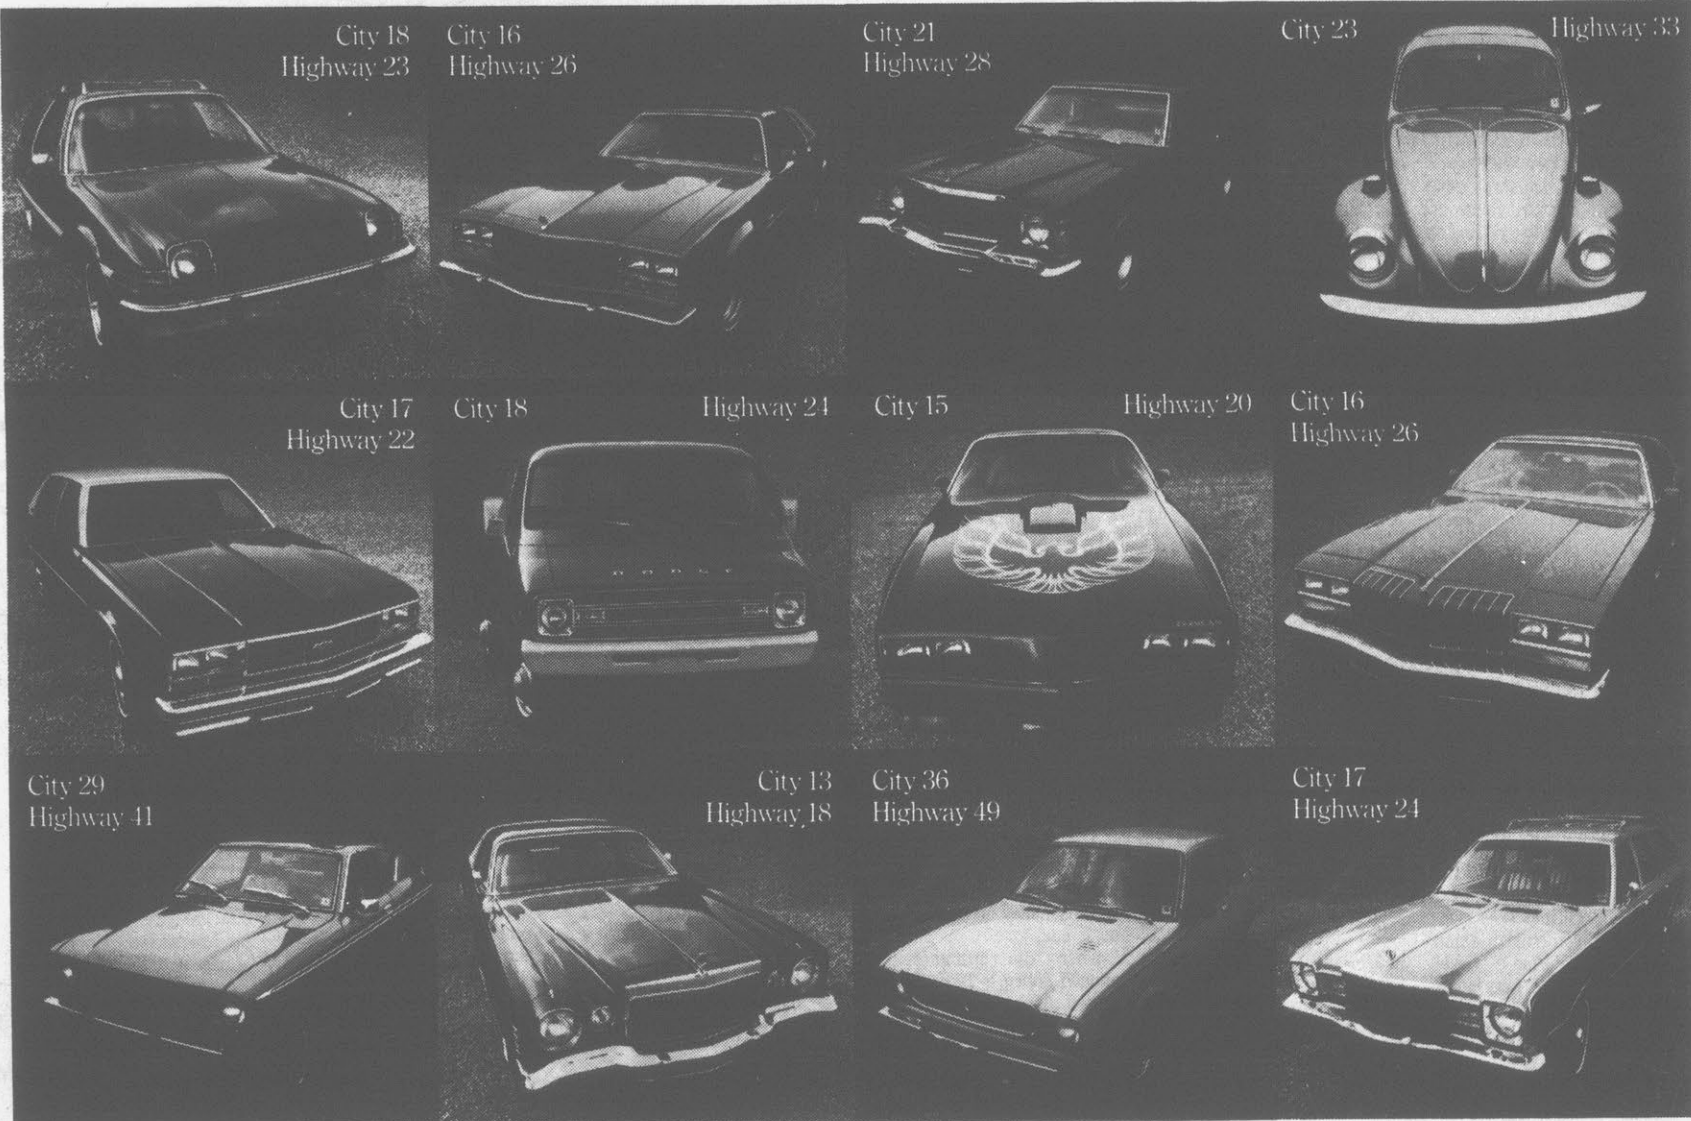

"I think Pat's gone loony," a liberal activist told us. "He's going to suffer for this." But some party leaders in New York privately disagree, feeling an anti-Communist hard line will keep him popular so long as he keeps pushing bread-and-butter economic measures for the state.

In the Senate, Moynihan is developing a close relationship with Senate majority leader Robert Byrd (whom he supported against Sen. Hubert Humphrey) and Finance Committee chairman Russell Long. Although Byrd and Long voted for Warnke in deference to the new President, both implied in debate that they would be with Jackson and Moynihan on a SALT treaty confirmation (and Long lavishly praised Moynihan's maiden speech).

By his Warnke vote, then, Moynihan quickly positioned himself in the Senate with the Byrd-Long-Jackson wing, as distinct from the Kennedy wing. That is particularly meaningful considering the Kennedyite persuasion of New York's leading Democrats.

Moynihan has by no means burned his bridges with the White House. He informs colleagues that the President told him he was most impressed with Jackson's written views on SALT. But the big, colorful Irishman from Harvard has made unmistakable where he will stand on an issue cutting down the middle of the Democratic party.

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue chip stocks showed signs of steadying today, but the rest of the market continued to decline after Monday's slide on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 3 points early in the session, had cut its loss to .50 at 915.06 by 11:30 a.m.

But losers maintained a 3-1 lead over gainers in the overall count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume came to 5.43 million shares for the first hour.

Brokers said the market was still struggling against inflation worries.

Monday's drop began with a trade association survey that found corporate purchasing executives reporting a surge in prices of industrial raw materials last month.

Government figures on wholesale price trends for March are due on Thursday.

Analysts also noted fears that the energy plan President Carter is slated to propose on April 20 might add to inflationary pressures.

Bankamerica Corp. led the active list, down ¼ at 24¼. A 171,500-share block traded at 24¼.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite common-stock index was down .18 at 53.27.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .40 to 110.90.

Last President Of Cuba Shoots Self

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Carlos Prio Socarras, the last constitutional president of Cuba, died today after apparently shooting himself at his Miami Beach home, police said.

Prio, 74, was found, lying in his garage, by police responding to a call from neighbors. He died a short time later while undergoing surgery at Mount Sinai Hospital.

"He apparently suffered a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the chest," said police spokesman John Anderson.

Prio was president of Cuba from 1948 to 1952, when he was ousted by Fulgencio Batista. Fidel Castro overthrew Batista's regime in 1959.

He had been an active leader of the Cuban-American community.

Prio was a leading member of a delegation of Cuban-Americans who met with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance in Washington in late February. He said the group told Vance that it would be a mistake for the United States to lift its trade embargo against Cuba or to make any other conciliatory gesture.

He maintained that lower sugar prices and other factors

Unlocked Bank Was No Joke

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — It was "open house" at a Frankfurt branch bank after the staff went home without locking the front door.

Police said a 41-year-old customer discovered the open door an hour after closing time Monday when he arrived at 5 p.m. to put money in the night deposit box.

When the customer telephoned police to report the unlocked bank, they thought at first he was kidding. But a squad car dispatched to the bank discovered it was no joke.

Police then alerted the bank's headquarters to send someone to lock the door. No money was reported missing.

Hearing Loss is not a Sign of Old Age

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Send for this non-operating model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this non-working model will show you how tiny hearing help can be, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 2052, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Ill. 60646.

Next Time, Up To Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants to make sure it gets no more pay raises without voting on them.

Both the House and Senate approved legislation on Monday requiring roll call votes on future raises for members of Congress, federal judges and top federal officials.

The provision was included in a measure to renew an expired emergency benefit program for the long-term unemployed. The House passed the bill 406-2 and senators later approved it on a voice vote and sent it to President Carter.

Members of Congress received a 29 per cent pay raise, to $57,500, earlier this year without an affirmative vote. Under federal law, a special commission makes recommendations to the president on pay raises for members of Congress and other top officials. If the president submits the recommendation to Congress, it takes effect unless either house vetoes it.

This year's raise, recommended by President Ford before he left office, took effect after the Senate tabled a motion to kill it and without the House voting on a similar motion.

The unemployment benefits authorized in the legislation would provide added payments for persons who have exhausted the 39 weeks of aid under their regular state and extended federal-state compensation laws. An old law authorizing the benefits expired on March 31.

Firemen Came

IN THEIR DRESSES
MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — The uniform of volunteer firemen in Carter County may not be up to par with that of the big city firefighters. But nobody expected the garb that the fellows turned out in when the last alarm came in.

The firemen's association was in the middle of a fund-raising event Saturday night and the next spoof was an all-male wedding. The alarm sounded, a few men hesitated but they all jumped on the truck, wearing dresses, wigs and women's make-up.

One burly firefighter said nobody dared to tease him about his clothes, but he did get some interesting offers.

Pirates Tie School Mark With Sweep

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's streaking baseball team won a pair from Campbell College yesterday, 6-3 and 4-2, to boost its winning streak to nine straight games, tying the school record.

Twice before Pirate teams have won nine in a row, in 1976 and in 1967. Today, they'll be out to try and snap that mark as the Bucs travel to Wilmington to face the UNC-Wilmington Seahawks.

The Pirates also saw another record go by the wayside, as Eddie Gates swiped second base in the first inning of the opening game to collect his 15th steal. The old mark belonged to Albert Vaughn back in 1959. The Pirates also are closing in on the team stolen base record of 57, set in 1967. The Pirates, through the two games yesterday, now have 55.

The Pirates were sloppy in the opening inning of the game, allowing the Camels to take two runs on three errors and no hits. But they came back after that, and except for a shaky seventh inning, the Bucs had no trouble after that.

Terry Durham tossed the victory in the first game, giving up but three hits, two of those in that seventh inning. He hit have some control problems, however, hitting three batters, although he walked but two. Larry Daughtridge came back to win the second, again having trouble in the final inning, as a walk and a single put the tying run on base.

Campbell took advantage of the Pirate mistakes in the first to carve a 2-0 lead. Gene Sessions led off, and was hit by a pitch. Paul Rappa attempted to sacrifice, but an error allowed him to arrive safely, while Sessions raced all the way to third. The two then pulled a double steal, with Sessions scoring with the first run. Rappa moved on to third on an error on the play. He scored when Tony Naumann grounded to second.

Campbell threatened again in the second, when Kenny Carter singled, stole second and moved to third on an out, but the threat died there. Not until the seventh did another Camel move past first.

In the seventh, Dave Warrick was hit by a pitch and Dwaine Greene ran for him. John Lippert singled and a hit by Dave Johnson brought in Greene.

It didn't matter, however, as the Pirates had already come back to take a 6-1 lead at the time.

The Bucs started their work with one in the first. Pete Paradossi singled and Billy Best walked. Eddie Gates also walked to load the bases. Sonny Wooten's fly to center scored Paradossi.

The Bucs, after a second inning threat, came up with three more in the third, all unearned runs. With one down, Best reached on an error, moving to second on the play. Gates beat out an infield hit, and both runners advanced on a passed ball.

Wilson Tops Rose

WILSON — Wilson High School nipped Rose High School in a golf match yesterday in Wilson by one stroke.

Wilson's linksmen came in with a team score of 311, while the Rampants finished with a 312.

Scoring for the Rose team were Gary Porter, 77; Til Jolly, 78; Craig Logue, 78; and David Northrup, 79.

Wilson's scores included Tim Broome, 73; Mark Berry, 76; Ray Percise 81, and Reid Hill, 81.

Rose is now 2-4, and plays host to Havelock on Thursday.

Wooten's grounder to the infield was relayed home, but not in time to get Best. Bobby Supel then reached on an error that scored Gates. Wooten scored the third run of the frame on a wild pitch, giving the Pirates a 4-1 lead.

East Carolina added another in the fourth. Robert Brinkley walked and stole second. Charlie Stevens reached on an infield hit, and Jerry Carraway scored Brinkley on a sacrifice fly.

The final run came in the sixth. Brinkley singled and Stevens reached on a fielder's choice. Paradossi singled to score Brinkley.

In the second game, the Pirates broke the ice in the third inning. Scott Layden reached on a fielder's choice, and Stevens ran for him. Paradossi singled him to third, and he scored on Best's grounder to first.

Campbell tied it up in the fifth. Steve Williams reached on a fielder's choice and stole second.

He scored on Gary Buck's single.

East Carolina then came back with three to take a 4-1 lead. Carraway singled and Raymie Styons singled, with Stevens running for him. Best singled to center, scoring Carraway, and both Best and Stevens moved up on an error on the play. Gates singled to drive in both runners, giving the Pirates their 4-1 lead.

North Pitt Faces Building Year To Get Its Track Program Going

By JIM KYLE

Reflector Sports Writer
North Pitt's track team isn't in a rebuilding year this season, according to second-year coach Emery Davis, the Panthers are in a building year — starting almost from scratch.

Traditionally, track at North Pitt has been viewed as a sport where practice is not important at North Pitt, Emery said. In the past, team members have not been required to work out to go to meets; and the school doesn't have a track.

But Davis is working to change that. This year, if a person doesn't come to practice, he will not be allowed to go on trips to meets.

"As I have it, if you don't practice, you don't go on trips,"

Davis said. "It looks like its going to boil down to we're going to go to a lot of meets with five or six guys because I'm not going to take them if they don't come to practice."

Track has always taken a back seat to other sports at North Pitt and "as long as that is the situation, they're never going to have any kind of track program," according to Davis.

There are a couple of bright spots on the team this year, however, juniors William Vines and Sam Mayo; and Davis is hoping that through hard work this year, along with more support, the Panthers could have an acceptable program next season.

Vines is basically a hurdler, Davis said, although he is also running the 100 and 220. He was hurt in the Panthers' only meet this season, however, and was unable to run the hurdles.

Vines has been allowed to work out on the hurdles at East Carolina University due to the lack of facilities at North Pitt and could pick up some points for the Panthers this year.

Mayo throws the discus and shot for North Pitt. He has, until recently, been throwing the discus better than the shot, but increased work on technique has improved his shot distances.

"I suppose we're thinking about the future with both of these guys," Davis said, "And we're hoping that by next year we can have a little bit of supporting cast for them."

Referees Call For NBA Strike

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The dispute between the National Basketball Association and its referees is heating up as playoff time approaches.

A group of 24 referees met with their attorney, Richie Phillips, in Chicago Monday and voted unanimously to strike the NBA playoffs, which are slated to begin next week. They also authorized, by a 24-0 vote, a strike call by the group's executive committee during the remaining week of the regular season.

That brought a sharp reaction from league officials. Simon Gourdine, the NBA's deputy commissioner and chief negotiator with the referees, lashed out at the strike threat in a four-page statement issued Monday night.

"Such an action would be unconscionable, irresponsible and would violate the contracts between officials and the league," Gourdine said. "If such action is taken, the NBA will hold the officials responsible for any damages that may result."

Gourdine said that for the 31 years of its existence, the NBA had negotiated individual contracts with officials and that these contracts provided extra compensation for the playoffs. He said the NBA had not yet been notified that Phillips' group had been certified by the National Labor Relations Board to represent league officials in collective bargaining, and would not negotiate with the group until such notification is received.

Phillips was scheduled to meet with NLRB officials in Philadelphia today.

"We feel that since the NBA has continued unfair labor practices, we are entitled to strike before the regular season ends," said Phillips in announcing Monday's strike vote. "We leave that question up to the executive committee, which can take up the matter later this week."

Superstars Needs Stars

A deadline of 5 p.m. tomorrow has been set for the Superstars competition, and the entry fee has been dropped, the Greenville Recreation Department has announced.

"We have gotten a lot of people talking about the Superstars competition, but very few have entered," Assistant Recreation Director Charles Vincent said. "Unless we have some more response, we may have to cancel it."

The competition is open to both sexes, and they will compete separately. Age groups are also set up.

Those wishing to participate are asked to contact the Recreation Department immediately.

SAFE AT HOME — East Carolina's Jerry Carraway slides home safely as Campbell catcher Dave Johnson turns to try and find the ball, which got past him during the fifth inning of the second game of a doubleheader yesterday. Carraway's run broke a 1-1 tie and the Pirates went on to take a 4-2 win as they scored two more runs in the inning. The win enabled the Bucs to sweep the twin bill, as they won the first game, 6-3. They have now won nine straight games, tying a school record. (Reflector Photo by Jim Kyle)

For the Cincinnati Reds, this has been their worst spring in a decade. The Seattle Mariners, on the other hand, don't have any previous springs to compare it with.

Baseball's oldest team and one of its two newest have the honor of being the hosts when the 1977 baseball season gets under way Wednesday. And both will have rather ancient

Neither Woodie Fryman nor Diego Segui was around when the Reds were born in 1869 — they were known as the Red Stockings then — but both have

Elder: Masters No Big Thing This Year

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It's the second time around for Lee Elder.

"It's not such a big deal this time," said Elder, who's looking for more golf and less harassment in his second appearance in the famed Masters tournament. "It's a lot more low-key."

Elder, now 42, created an international sensation two years ago when he won his way into the elite field and became the first black to play in the previously all-white event.

He was subjected to constant attention from the world press. He gave a series of mass press conferences. His every move was spotlighted, commented upon, analyzed.

"One magazine had reporters following me all the time, on and off the course, taking notes, taking pictures," he said. "Then, when I missed the cut, they never used the article."

And it was that failure to qualify for the final two rounds that bothered Elder.

"I guess a lot of people thought I was playing for my race," he said. "That's not it at all. I didn't think of it that way.

He was playing for Lee and (wife) Rose Elder. With all the media attention, I was under a lot of pressure — and it had had a whole year to build up. For almost a year before I got here, everything was the Masters. I put a lot of pressure on myself.

"It was not Lee Elder's golf game they saw the last time. That's what bothered me.

"I swore I'd win my way back and show the world I'm a better player than that."

It didn't come easily. Or quickly.

He went into a decline immediately after his 1975 Masters appearance. He won only $26,809 for the year, the second lowest figure of his career.

But he bounced back last year, collecting a career high $113,263. More importantly, he won the Houston Open — his second tour title — and again qualified for the Masters. He also finished second in Pensacola, third at Pleasant Valley and fourth in New Orleans.

The victory in Houston was the key. It gave him a return ticket to Augusta — his principal goal since he'd missed the Masters cut in 1975.

"I think most of the people around me were more nervous than I was," he said, "and that kind of gets to you, doesn't let you leave the game at the golf course. There were parties every night that we had to go to."

"This year, we've just got a few close friends with us. It's going to be a lot more quiet, not so many parties, not so many distractions, not so many pressures."

"This time I can try to play some golf."

Farmville swept all four places in the 880 and took the top three places in the 110-yard hurdles. Conley's point total was helped out by the Valkyries winning two relays.

Melton Proved Robinson Wrong

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians acquired one-time American League home run king Bill Melton from the California Angels during the winter, but nobody really knew why.

Buddy Bell had a lock on third base, Boog Powell and Andre Thornton were going to platoon at first and Johnny Grubb, an expensive trade acquisition from the San Diego Padres, was joining forces with Rick Manning and Charlie Spikes in the outfield.

That left a little designated hitting perhaps for Melton. Very little, it seemed, when the Indians re-acquired Rico Carty, whom they originally lost in the expansion draft.

"I just couldn't see where he would fit in," Manager Frank Robinson admitted. "He certainly proved me wrong."

With a .300 batting average that includes seven homers and 20 runs batted in, Melton not only made the club but was selected the Indians' outstanding player during the exhibition campaign.

Melton, who led the AL with 33 homers for the Chicago White Sox in 1971 but batted only .208 with six homers for the Angels last season, said he came to camp "with a do-or-die attitude."

"I thought I could help the team and knew I would have to prove myself quickly," said the 31-year-old veteran. "They gave me the opportunity to show what I could do. That's all I wanted."

Luckily for the Indians, Melton was around when Grubb tore up a knee. That enabled Robinson to switch Bell to left field with Melton moving in at third base.

Conley JVs Bow

KINSTON — Kinston's junior varsity baseball team grabbed a 7-6 win over D. H. Conley's jayvees yesterday afternoon.

Anthony Daniels was the leading hitter of the game, going 3-3 for the Baby Vikings. Bailey was 2-3 for Kinston and Head 2-4.

The Conley junior varsity is now 1-1 for the year.

Melton had a single in two at-bats Monday as the Indians dropped an 8-7 decision to the Chicago Cubs. Larry Biittner singled home the winning run with his third hit of the game to cap a two-run ninth-inning rally. Ivan DeJesus, who homered earlier, singled during the winning uprising.

Philadelphia's Jerry Martin made the Phillies again, just as he did last year, but only as a reserve outfielder. Martin belted a grand slam homer Monday and Steve Carlton tuned up for opening day with five scoreless innings in a 5-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

The New York Mets bowed to the New York Yankees 4-3 despite Dave Kingman's seventh and eighth spring homers. Chris Chambliss singled home the winning run in the sixth inning after the Yankees erased a 3-0 deficit.

The Pittsburgh Pirates took advantage of a 25-mile-an-hour wind and got home runs from Frank Taveras, Ed Kirkpatrick, Duffy Dyer and Omar Moreno in winning a 12-9 slugfest from the Kansas City Royals.

Rick Monday singled twice, tripled and drove in two runs to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers over the San Francisco Giants 4-2.

The Boston Red Sox erupted for six runs in the ninth inning, the last three on Dwight Evans' homer, and trimmed the Montreal Expos 8-2. In another power display, the Houston Astros unloaded 20 hits and crushed the Texas Rangers 16-6.

The Atlanta Braves hit four homers off Baltimore's Rudy May — two by Tom Paciorek, one each by Pat Rockett and Brian Asselstine — and downed the Orioles 9-5.

John Wockenfuss' two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Detroit Tigers a 4-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds and Craig Kusick's two-run homer snapped a ninth-inning tie and helped the Minnesota Twins beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-4.

Home runs by Wayne Gross — his sixth of the spring—and Manny Sanguillen and the six-hit pitching of Mike Torrez, Stan Bahnsen and Doug Bair led the Oakland A's past the San Diego Padres 2-0.

knocked around the major leagues for quite a while.

Fryman, who will turn 37 next week, was 13-13 with the Montreal Expos last season. He'll be opposed by San Diego's Randy Jones, 22-14 and the National League's Cy Young Award winner, when the Padres invade Riverfront Stadium for the traditional early Cincinnati opener Wednesday afternoon. A capacity crowd of 52,000 is expected to see the Reds raise the world championship banner for the second year in a row.

It will be a while before the Mariners worry about things like pennants. For the time being, just being in existence is enough after the Seattle Pilots fled to Milwaukee following an ill-fated one-year existence in 1969.

The 38-year-old Segui, who spent last season in the Pacific Coast League where he was 11-5, earned Manager Darrell Johnson's opening day nod. The hope is the expansion Mariners, who won nine of 24 exhibition games, won't be as funny as owner Danny Kaye.

The Mariners' opposition will be 19-game winner Frank Tan-ana and the California Angels

the most improved team in the American League West thanks to the signing of free agents Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Dor Baylor. Upwards of 50,000 are expected for the night game in Seattle's spanking new Kingdome.

Six games are on tap Thursday in the American League — including the unveiling of the other expansion club, the Toronto Blue Jays, who open at home with an afternoon game against the Chicago White Sox — and three in the National.

The AL schedule also finds Milwaukee at New York, Kansas City at Detroit, Texas at Baltimore and Cleveland at Boston during the day, with a California-Seattle arclight rerun.

NL games, all in the afternoon, are St. Louis at Pittsburgh, New York at Chicago and San Francisco at Los Angeles.

On Friday night, Atlanta and Houston get under way with a night contest in the Astrodome while Saturday afternoon finds Montreal at Philadelphia. The last two clubs to open will be the AL's Minnesota and Oakland entries, who play an afternoon game in Oakland.

Mental Sustenance In New TV Adaptations

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lo, a miracle: Public TV has a new drama series the BBC didn't make. It's a six-program effort based on yarns by great American writers and is called "The American Short Story."

It begins tonight with dramatizations of two good short stories — "Bernice Bobs Her Hair" (don't laugh, it's by F. Scott Fitzgerald), and "I'm a Fool," by Sherwood Anderson. Don't miss them.

They're first-rate, offer a bit more mental sustenance than tonight's big competition in many areas, "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

"Bernice" is a nice, sardonic tale of envy and young wealthies of the pre-flapper era, when a girl who bobbed her hair was thought loose by the flask-bearing blades who tried to get her tight.

Shelly Duvall plays Bernice, a shy, mousy-looking lass visiting her lovely, vivacious cousin in Marjorie (Veronica Cartwright) and getting no action at all from the Yalies and Princeton lads who fall by.

She holds the rank of wallflower, fifth class, and has no fun until Marjorie, just for the heck of it, decides to teach her the feminine art of flattery, flattery and dancing.

She does too good a job. Male interest is roused the moment Bernice, at a dinner party, boldly announces she plans to cut short, or "bob," her long, golden tresses.

"I know it's immoral, but my philosophy is you either have to amuse people, feed 'em or shock 'em," the newly jaded lady declares.

Whereupon Marjorie's beaux rapidly become Bernice's boys, and female jealousy sets in. How it settles is familiar to Fitzgerald fans, but for newcomers we must remain mum.

See the funny finale for yourself, and enjoy this good opus, adapted faithfully for TV by director Joan Micklin Silver. Then stick around for Anderson's "I'm a Fool," which

Regional Meeting Set In Williamston

The northeast regional conference for parents of handicapped children will be held May 7 at the Northeast Regional Education Center in Williamston. Parents of handicapped children in Pitt and Martin Counties may participate.

According to Theodore R. Drain, director of the Division of Exceptional Children, one of the purposes of the meeting is to share with parents information on new state and federal legislation affecting programs for the handicapped.

Small group sessions on topics including children's rights under the law, early identification of learning problems and ways of coping with the handicapped child will be held.

Preregistration is required for the conference. Additional information and preregistration forms are available from the Division for Exceptional Children, State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, N.C., 27611, phone (919) 733-3005.

Regional contact person is Jeannette Shaw, Northeast Regional Education Center, Williamston, phone 792-5166.

Both shows are fine starts for this series, which comes to public-TV via the South Carolina Television Network, courtesy of a $2 million-plus grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

And dig the wares to come: April 12, Flannery O'Connor's "The Displaced Person;" April 19, Stephen Crane's "The Blue Hotel;" April 26, Ernest Hemingway's "Soldier's Home" and Richard Wright's "Almost a Man;" May 3, Ambrose Bierce's "Parker Adderson, Philosopher" and Henry James' "The Jolly Corner," and the May 10 finale, John Updike's "The Music School."

Would you see all this in six weeks on commercial network television? Sure. You might also see the run rise in the West.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

The female of the species might be more dangerous than the male among certain of nature's creations, but this does not hold true at the bridge table. Call us male chauvinists if you like, but few women have been able to match the male over the green baize. However, it is hard to improve on the technique of South on this hand from last year's Women's Team Olympiad in Monte Carlo.

North's choice of a heart raise in preference to introducing the spade suit meets with our wholehearted approval. With a hand worth only one bid, the most constructive move is to raise partner when possible rather than introduce a new suit. Here North had three good trumps and a ruffing value, so any response other than a raise would be a dereliction of duty.

West led the queen of diamonds and declarer, Sandra Landy of England, made the correct technical play when she chose to hold up once. West promptly shifted to a trump, won in dummy. Since trumps rated to break 4-2, declarer decided she couldn't afford the luxury of ruffing both her diamond losers in dummy. Instead, she cashed the ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond in dummy and then cashed the table's remaining trump honor. She returned to her hand with the ace of clubs to draw trumps.

When the king of hearts brought forth both outstanding trumps, declarer had slight misgivings about the line she had chosen. However, she was now committed to the partial elimination, so she continued with king of clubs and another.

One diamond ruff had done the job. When East won the third round of clubs she had been reduced to nothing but spades. The best she could do was lead ace of spades, and continue the suit. So declarer's remaining diamond went on the king of spades, and the contract was fulfilled.

Note that declarer would have gotten home even had trumps divided 4-2. All she would have had to do was draw the last trump before endplaying East.

Fear, Anguish Grew In Little Garden Of Olives

the great gates of the temple would open and many of the early risers would be there to offer chagigah.

Now the city was still under the high moon, and only in the northeast could sounds be heard. There, leaving the double archway of Antonia, was a detachment of Roman soldiers. Ordinarily, a centurion would command a group such as this, but Caiaphas, in his plea for assistance from the Romans, oversteered his case and the man who led this detachment was the Tribune himself—the ranking military man in the city.

The Tribune understood the legalities of the situation. He was not to meddle in the arrest because blasphemy against Yahweh was not a crime against Rome, and there was no statute under the rule of the Empire on which Jesus could be tried. This was a Jewish problem; they were dealing with a provincial troublemaker who, somehow or other, had hurt the prestige and practices of the great temple.

All the Tribune had to do was to assist the temple guards in executing the orders of the high priest. If there was any resistance, the Romans would be fully authorized to beat many Jews to death. 12 Midnight, April 7, A.D. 30

Just after midnight Jesus and the eleven passed the Lower Pool and moved toward the Fountain Gate. Some pilgrims were coming through the gate from the hill country to the east and Jesus turned left and walked along the chalky road which hugs the base of the great east wall of the city.

The Apostles were fatigued to the bone. It had been a long day; they had been up by dawn in Bethany, where Jesus had left His Mother in the care of Mary and Martha.

They did not complain because they sensed that this night they might receive the last of many lessons from the Messiah and they knew that they would have to remember, before they could apply the word.

For some time now, they had been bearing away from the city. At the gethsemane, the wall and the temple are a quarter of a mile to the west.

Jesus was speaking. "Remember what I told you: a slave is not better off than his master. If they persecuted Me, they will persecute you also; if they took My teaching to heart, they will take to heart yours also. Not only that: it is because you profess My name that they will treat you in all these ways; for they do not know Him whose ambassador I am. Had I not come with a message to them, they would have no sin: as it is, they have no excuse for their sin."

One by one, the Apostles sat. No one knows what the Apostles thought of His most recent discourse, especially of the two references to "they would have no sin." Jesus had told the people, and more especially the Pharisees and the Sadducees, that the external signs of obedience to the law of God were as nothing: rubbish. He had come with a message of love; a command to love, from His Father, and they had been appalled.

The eleven men closest to Jesus in His ministry to the world were beginning to have a slight understanding of the divine Trinity. They may not have comprehended the separate sides of the mystery—as, indeed, no man would ever understand it except, perhaps, to illustrate it with a figure of speech likening it to fog over an icy lake and pointing to the fact that the ice, the water and the fog are separate entities, but that each one is water.

But, for what He told them, they had progressed from the point of thinking of Yahweh as God one and alone, to God the Father and God the Son, and now, this evening, to God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost, equal and indivisible.

"Thus far," He said, in His final discourse to them, "I have spoken to you in proverbs. A time is coming when I no longer speak to you in proverbs, but tell you about the Father in plain language... Of His own accord the Father loves you dearly, because you are settled in your love for Me and in your conviction that I come from the Father. I come from the Father and have come into the world.

"And now I am leaving the world and going home to the Father."

The eleven were so pleased with the little speech that they interrupted the discourse and, with happiness in their eyes, began to say: "There now. You are speaking plainly and avoid all figures of speech. Now we know that You know everything and need not wait till someone asks You. And that is why we believe that You come from God."

Jesus nodded in understanding, partly pleased, partly in sorrow. "You now believe?" He said. "Mark well: a time is coming, in fact, it is at hand, when you will scatter, each going back to his home, and leave Me all alone!" 1 a.m., April 7, A.D. 30

The work was finished. There was an end to the preaching; an end to the miracles; an end to the instruction of the Apostles; an end to prophecy.

Jesus motioned to Peter and James and John. These three, in whom Jesus reposed special trust, walked with Him out of the cave and across the little road of gray steps which stretched all the way from the temple down to the Cedron and up to the top of Olivet. They crossed these steps and walked into the shadows of the little olive garden.

Jesus stopped under the trees. In the pattern of foliage which blotted part of the moonlight, they saw His face and it held fear and horror. The long, slender hands shook. The features seemed to be gray, tinged with blue. The eyes were huge with a vision the others could not see.

The Messiah doubled His hands into fists and held them against His breast. "I am plunged in sorrow," He cried, "enough to break My heart!" The three glanced at Him, sadly. Jesus looked up through the branches at the miniature beauty of a thousand other worlds, and then He glanced once more at the temple, so near across the valley.

"Stay here and keep awake," He said with entreaty. They nodded in silence and watched Him make His way through the low-branched trees for a short distance. There, He paused beside a big flat rock. Jesus knelt for a few moments. Then, abandoning Himself to overwhelming mortal fear, He threw Himself full length on the rock, face down.

In an agonized voice He said: "My Father, if it is possible, let this cup be spared Me!" The lament came, almost involuntarily, from the lips. "And yet," He said, as though afraid to be afraid, "not as I will, but as You will."

In a real sense, Jesus was alone in the garden. As He prayed, His anguish deepened and became unbearable. He stood. He was close to a stupor of fright at the visions He had seen and He came back to the three, perhaps to seek human solace.

He looked down and His heart ached as He saw the three sleeping. John stirred and awakened, and jostled the others.

"How can you be sleeping?" Jesus asked. "Rouse yourselves and pray, that you may not succumb to temptation."

But the three were asleep again almost before He had returned to the rock. This time He knelt, and His forehead touched the rock and, as He prayed, He rocked back and forth as though in deep physical pain.

He got to His feet slowly and went back to the men who were eager to lay down their lives for Him. To Peter, who stirred and half opened his eyes, Jesus half whispered: "Simon, are you sleeping? Were you not able to stay awake one hour?" He sighed. "The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak."

This was, at the moment, as true of Him as it was of them. His flesh was so weak that all the strength of His soul could not keep it from betraying the will which made it function. The Lord, said Isaiah, would lay down upon Him all the iniquities of mankind, and now the weight of countless sins pressed upon His shoulders as He knelt again to tell His Father that He would accept the cup.

The salty sweat gleaming on His face and forehead began to change color. It reddened and deepened in hue until, in His agony, He knew that it was blood. It clung to His face and moved slowly down to His chin. Some of it dropped off in clots onto the rock and some of it congealed in His beard.

Medically, this is called haematidrosis. It occurs when fear is piled upon fear, when an agony of suffering is laid upon an older suffering until the highly sensitized person can no longer sustain the pain. At that moment a human being ordinarily loses consciousness. When that does not happen, the subcutaneous capillaries sometimes dilate so broadly that, when they come into contact with the sweat glands the little capillaries burst. The blood is exuded with the perspiration and, usually, this occurs over the entire body.

Luke, who was a physician, later wrote: "And His sweat became as drops of blood, trickling down upon the ground."

The business of borrowing money: How to handle it.

Today, credit is a way of life for most Americans. For some people, it's a convenience; for others, it can be one big problem.

It's all in how you handle it. And, at NCNB, the people who make loans and handle other forms of credit do more than just lend you money; they help you manage the situation. (In fact, a booklet fitting your situation, wherever you are in life, is yours for the asking.)

It's all part of "Cash-Flow Banking": information, services and people to help you make the most of the money you make.

And the money you borrow. Which is why we've developed a variety of ways to use credit.
