The Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society held its last regular meeting on the evening of Dec. 13. 1913. The roll was called and minutes of the last meeting read and approved.

Vera Mae Waters was appointed chairman of the comm. to work out a plan and to see Mr. Wright about it for the beautification of some plot on the campus.

As it has been the custom of the societies in this school to entertain each other in some way each year, it was suggested that the Poe Society have the same musicians from Baltimore that we had last year for the entertainment of the Sidney Lanier Society. This question was discussed and left open for the girls to think about until the next meeting. Mattie Cox was appointed to look into the matter.

A suggestion that we challenge the Lanier's for a debate was discussed but the question was left open for the girls to think about.

As there was no further business to come before the society the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the program com.

The program consisted of a play "A Christmas Carol" given by the members of the society.

After trying it out before our society only it was such a success that the Lanier Society was invited in and this play was regiven for their benefits.
