Business Consultant Group Is Optimistic

By RHONDA SEEHAL
AP Business Writer

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The nation's economy, with growing strength in its investment sector, is on a "sound growth path" that should continue well into 1978, economic consultants to the Business Council predicted today.

In a fairly optimistic forecast, the group said the biggest problem areas for 1977 were the possibility of another spurt in inflation and potentially negative effects of President Carter's energy program on consumer and business confidence.

About 100 members of the Business Council, composed of the chairmen and officials of some of the nation's largest and most influential corporations, opened their spring meeting here Thursday night.

"The only way the economy is going to keep its upward trend is to keep capital goods moving," council members said.

The council forecast also expected that the real gross national product would grow 4.9 per cent this year and 4.4 per cent in the first half of 1978.

Unemployment, now at 7 per cent, would continue to decline, approaching 6.5 per cent by mid-1978, according to the forecast.

The council looked for consumer prices to rise 5.9 per cent this year — about the same as last year — but said that in the first half of 1978 inflation should go down.

The outlook for the business community was for an 11 per cent increase in corporate profits.

It also predicted an 11.8 per cent rise in current dollar outlays for non-residential fixed investment.

During an informal press briefing Thursday night, the business leaders offered to do everything they can to help the Carter administration, but they said they are worried about President Carter's "on again-off again" policies toward business.

"We worry there are no positive signs he is going to back the business community," council members said in remarks that were on the record but not for attribution.

Tobacco Is Voted 'Out'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The

U. S. House has approved legislation that would halt tobacco sales to foreign countries under the Food for Peace program, but congressmen from tobacco states, surprised by the action, believe they will be able to reverse it.

"They sneaked up on us there," said Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N. C., said after the House accepted Thursday an amendment to a foreign aid bill taking tobacco off the list of Food for Peace commodities.

The Washington correspondent of the News and Observer in Raleigh said the amendment was offered by Rep. James P. Johnson, R-Colo., a strong critic of tobacco programs, submitting it at a moment when tobacco-area representatives were away from the House floor.

Fountain, whose district embraces some of eastern North Carolina's richest tobacco farmland, said he was in the cloakroom talking on the telephone about other legislation when Johnson's amendment was proposed.

When he heard of the amendment, said Fountain, he "started calling everywhere," trying to round up congressmen from North Carolina, Virginia and South Carolina to mount opposition on the House floor.

However, the House moved quickly to a roll call vote, approving the amendment, 229-178.

The Colorado Republican argued that it was inconsistent for the federal government to spend money on advertisements warning consumers of the health hazards of smoking and then to permit sales of tobacco products abroad.

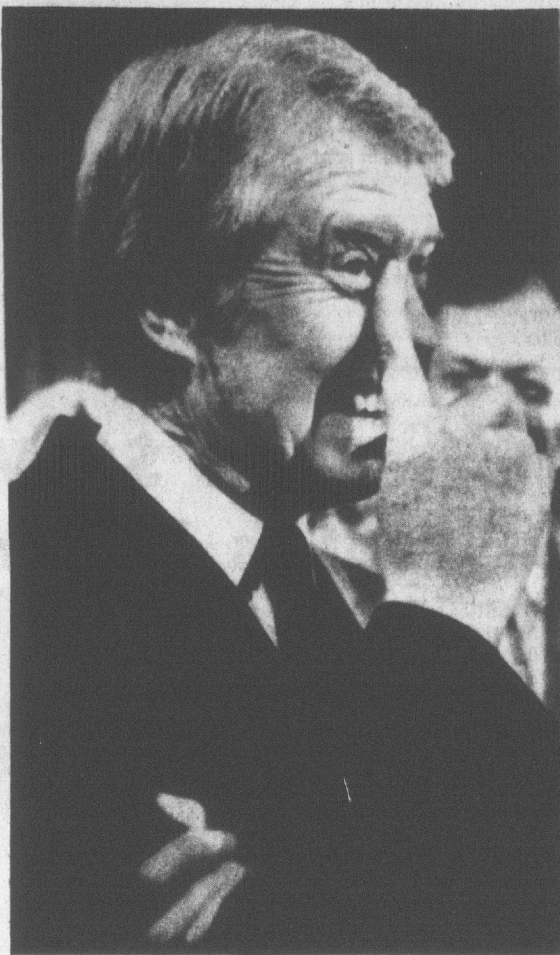

North Carolina congressmen expressed confidence that the Johnson amendment would be overturned in House-Senate conference committee consideration of the foreign aid bill.

"I think we'll reverse it. We can get it knocked out in conference committee," said Fountain.

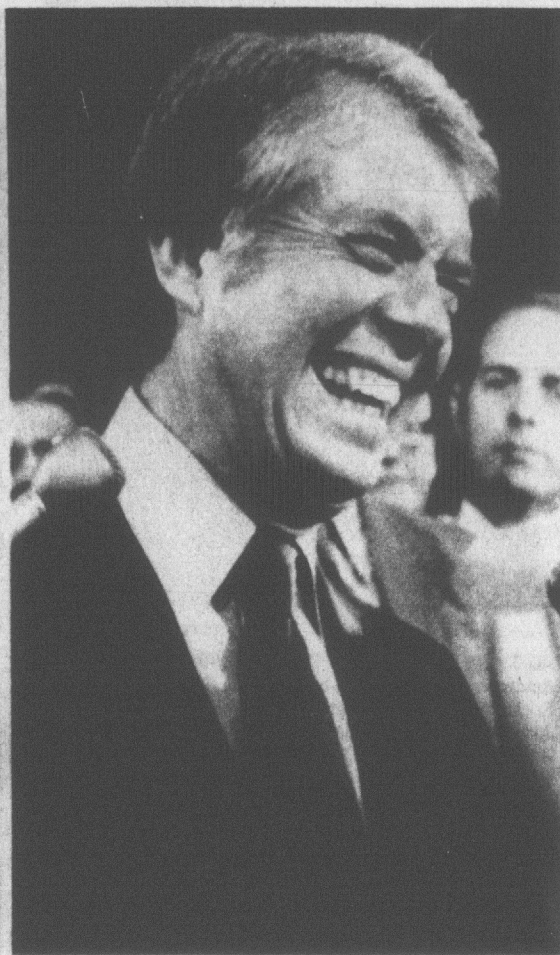

Tobacco exports under Food for Peace are relatively modest in the overall export picture, amounting to about $25 million compared to total exports of nearly $1.5 billion.

Endorse Plan For Funding Stadium Job

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina Board of Governors has endorsed a method of financing for East Carolina University to secure funds toward the expansion of Ficklen Stadium.

The board, meeting here today, authorized ECU to proceed with the expansion project financed by the use of $1.5 million from excess bond reserves currently available to the university and to sell $1 million in revenue bonds.

Clifton Moore, vice chancellor for business affairs at ECU, explained that in pursuing the revenue bond program, the university will "borrow a million dollars from a bank, as yet to be determined, repayable from collection of the pledges already at hand."

In addition to the pledges made to the ECU stadium drive, retirement of the bonds would also be through revenues derived from stadium operations.

"We would borrow a million backed by the million dollar bond authorization," Moore said.

The Legislature authorized a self-liquidating capital improvements project in the amount of $2,500,000 for the stadium enlargement at ECU.

Final approval of the proposed method of financing will be sought from the the state Advisory Budget Commission.

President Carter Signs $4 Billion Works Measure

By JAMES
GERSTENZANG

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed a bill authorizing $20 billion for general economic stimulation and a $4 billion public works bill, calling the legislation "a major move in the right direction."

With mayors from some of the nation's major cities and congressmen and senators looking on, the President said in a White House Rose Garden ceremony that the legislation demonstrated "in a vivid way the close cooperation that has evolved" between the White House and Congress and the local and federal governments.

The $4 billion appropriation bill for public works is among the spending plans authorized by the larger economic stimulation bill the President signed.

The economic stimulation bill also authorizes $8 billion for public service jobs and $1 billion for a program to boost employment by 200,000 among young people. Bills actually appropriating the money for those programs are still moving through Congress.

The President said that in talking with foreign leaders in Europe last weekend, he found that "the most unified concern expressed was for jobs for young people."

Also included in the economic stimulation bill is authorization for $631 million in general financial assistance for state and local governments.

Administration officials have predicted the public works bill will create 300,000 jobs directly in the construction industry and another 300,000 jobs indirectly.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, who had criticized the proposal as being insufficient, was in the crowd in the Rose Garden. He did not take part in the ceremony.

The President said that the drop of one percentage point in the national unemployment rate since he took office was not attributed to anything he, his administration or the Congress has done, but that it was a reaffirmation of the faith of the American people in the American system. The unemployment rate was 7 per cent last month.

Commerce secretary Juanita Kreps said that the public works bill "will give the people in towns and countries new public facilities, schools, libraries, water facilities, which they very much need."

Carter mentioned the jobs bill Thursday as he held a nationally televised news conference in which he discussed his summit trip to Europe and defended his domestic policies.

The President was asked about Democratic liberals' criticism of his economic policies. In turning aside such complaints, Carter listed the jobs bill as an accomplishment, then also listed appropriations for local governments, a summer jobs program and his proposal to revamp the funding of the Social Security system.

"I do not consider these moves to help people to go back to work and have a good life to be incompatible with a balanced budget before my own term of office is over," he said, linking a balanced budget and "the right of people to have a job."

The $4-billion jobs bill will provide money for road repairs, construction of hospitals, libraries and police stations and other projects designed to benefit communities and put the unemployed to work, especially those laid off from construction jobs.

Carter had been criticized by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who said in a speech last weekend that Carter was willing to sacrifice important social programs in order to balance the federal budget.

The President has been similarly criticized by AFL-CIO President George Meany. Carter said that despite the labor chief's criticism administration proposals affecting organized labor were unexcelled, "even going back to the early days of Lyndon Johnson."

In an informal question-and-answer session with reporters after the televised conference, the President also said he thought Former President Richard M. Nixon "was guilty of impeachable offenses" in the Watergate scandal, but "he has rationalized in his own mind that he did all of these things for the benefit of his staff members.... and that he didn't have any criminal intent."

On his European trip and on other foreign topics Carter said:

"I can report substantial success" as a result of "a renewed spirit of hope and confidence" coming from meetings in Europe with the leaders of the major industrial nations.

Chinese Official Sees Big Russia-U.S. War

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying predicts a "big war" soon between the United States and the Soviet Union and says China "must race against time" to build up industry in the interior before it happens.

In a speech in Peking on May 9 to a nationwide industrial conference, Yeh said the United States and the Soviet Union "are locked in an increasingly fierce struggle for hegemony" and "a war will break out some day."

"We must be clearly aware of this situation," Yeh continued, "keep war in mind and get prepared for it, for a big war that will break out at an early date."

"We must race against time and work as quickly as possible so that we can build industry in the interior well before the outbreak of war."

Party Chairman Hua Guofeng echoed Yeh, saying, "We must definitely be ready for war. We cannot afford to let time slip through our fingers as it waits for no one. Accelerating development of our national economy at a rapid pace is a task which brooks no delay."

The texts of the speeches were published today by Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency. Observers in Tokyo interpreted the talk of war as an attempt to impart a sense of urgency to plans to develop China into a major industrial power by the end of the century.

Mao Tse-tung's industrial-defense program called for the shift of industry from the densely populated east coast to the interior, but the program is believed to have lagged in recent years.

Yeh, a 79-year-old associate of the late Premier Chou En-lai, said the transfer of industry "is not merely a question of industrial distribution; it is a question of strategy that affects the whole situation."

"We must build the interior as fast as possible so that it can make greater contributions to the development of our national economy and our preparedness against war in peacetime and operate as our strategic rear base area in time of war."

He also stressed the need to "ceaselessly strengthen national defense capabilities" as long as American and Soviet imperialism exists.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MORE SOLAR HELP

Our Hotline item published Tuesday about where to write for information about solar energy usage needs a feedback. We just received a news release telling of a new toll-free number one may use to get information about solar energy. The Energy Research and Development Administration and the Department of Housing and Urban Development have contracted with the Franklin Institute to operate the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center.

Consumers anywhere in the U. S. may call toll-free 800-573-2929 and speak to staff at Center, according to a release from the NCSU Extension Service.

Also, Rich Morin of the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education says that a three-day Solar Energy Workshop for heating and air conditioning contractors and other interested persons will be conducted by the ECU Physics Department and the Division of Continuing Education this summer. The workshop is tentatively set for July, he said. Anyone wishing to receive more information when plans are concrete may call Continuing Ed, 757-6143 or 757-6540.

OUR THIRD BIRTHDAY

Today marks the third anniversary of the Hotline column. We continue to be amazed and gratified at the response to our appeals, the requests that come in by phone and by mail, and the action that our inquiries sometimes generate. We've met many, many people—in person, by phone, and by mail—and have been impressed with the eagerness of most to please their customers and help their fellow man. We thank everyone who has made these three years so meaningful and hope to serve Reflector readers through many birthdays yet to be.

Renews Bid For Groucho's Care

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Erin Fleming, seen by some witnesses as an ill-tempered menace to Groucho Marx and by others as the joy of his waning years, is resuming her legal bid for permanent control over the comedian and his property. Opposing her is Groucho's son, Arthur, who succeeded last month in having Miss Fleming removed as temporary guardian after alleging she was a threat to the 86-year-old Marx' life.

Miss Fleming, 37, who has served as secretary, manager, producer and companion to Marx for seven years, has hired a new firm of lawyers for the court battle which resumes at a hearing today.

Groucho, in failing health and frequently confused, remains confined to his Trousdale Estates home. J. Brin Schulman, attorney for Arthur Marx, said Groucho apparently is unaware that intimate details of his treatment by Miss Fleming — which allegedly involved verbal and physical abuse and improper drugging — have been bared in court.

At the end of a week-long hearing that ended April 22, Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie suspended Miss Fleming and appointed Nat Perrin, 72, a screenwriter and old friend of Marx, to care for the comedian and his multimillion dollar estate for the time being.

Under the judge's order, Miss Fleming was to visit Marx only as Perrin saw fit.

Judge Rafeedie said the hearing revealed "an extraordinary degree of domination and control by Miss Fleming over Mr. Marx' mind and his will." But there was no clear conclusion as to the validity of Arthur Marx' contention that evidence pointed to an effort by someone at the Marx house to overdrug Groucho.

Marx' physician testified that Groucho responded well to Miss Fleming's behavior, and that he would be concerned for his patient's well-being if she were to leave him.

Zeppo Marx, Groucho's brother, went further. He said Miss Fleming was "the greatest girl in the whole world" and that he believed Groucho might die without her.

Involvement Consensus Said Needed

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — The development of a consensus among women is necessary for political involvement, according to Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, assistant superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction.

Mrs. Koontz, speaking before the Pitt County Democratic Women, said women must get to know each other to develop this consensus.

"If we're to be involved, we have to have an opportunity to develop some kind of a consensus," she said.

"We need to know each other better.

"We have a responsibility to speak out, to be informed, to inform others.

"We've proved we can make a difference."

According to Mrs. Koontz, there is room in the consensus for varying opinions.

"The Democratic party has people on either end of the political spectrum and all along the continuum," she said.

"Therein lies the wholeness of groups: one can express different ideas and there will still be common ground.

"But we have to think about what we're doing and bring others in.

"Otherwise, we keep talking to the same people, and get to know them too well."

And women must learn to depend on their own opinions, she said.

"Some women rely completely on the men in their family to make up their minds for them," said Mrs. Koontz.

"That means we turn over those decisions on women's issues to those who do not know much about it.

"These issues are the ones women learn more about than anyone. Women know these things, we have the means and we have the forum.

"If we stand for Democratic women, let no one say we're just another social club."

Mrs. Koontz served in the Nixon administration as director of the U. S. Department of Labor's Women's Bureau.

She said women must be willing to be involved in the search for competent women to serve in government.

"It becomes every woman's responsibility to correct the atrocious record of employment of women, minorities and the handicapped in state government," she said.

"You have to recommend women to serve. Petty jealousies work against us.

"We don't have to love each other, but if we're going to succeed we have to work together.

"And we have to choose competent women. There is no respect for women who allow themselves to be programmed for failure.

"So qualified women must help identify other qualified women for appointment to positions."

She suggested all heads of women's organizations around the state should be registered with the state Commission on the Status of Women so information can be received and transmitted to all involved women.

"We have ills in this society," said Mrs. Koontz.

"We need to consider alternatives if we can't find jobs for people on public assistance. We need to get proper prenatal care to pregnant mothers.

"Teenage pregnancy is one of our greater problems. And who is to handle this?

"Who can change these ills? Women can.

"Women can do just about anything they really want if they just put their minds to it."

Women's Day Observance Set

Women's Day services will be observed Sunday at the Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. Annie Ebron Jackson of Freeman, Va. The service will begin at 11 a.m.

The Rev. F. R. Peterson is the church pastor.

More Than $6 Million Of Loot Is Recovered

By DARRELL CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — More than $6.6 million of Marjorie Jackson's fortune has been recovered — from her sprawling estate, from a poor, inner-city neighborhood and from the underwear of a man jailed on charges of killing the reclusive heiress, police say.

But police say they're just guessing how much money is still missing. They don't know how much cash the 66-year-old widow of a food chain magnate had withdrawn from banks and hidden in her home, how much she might have spent or how much might have been stolen in earlier robberies that she refused to report.

She was found shot to death in her home last week.

They say a man and a woman sought in the case may be carrying as much as $3 million, and another $1.4 million may still be in Indianapolis — part of it given away by killers overwhelmed by sudden wealth.

Neighbors of Howard Willard, 38, of Mooresville, Ind., who police believe planned the robbery, said he told them before leaving town last weekend that he had inherited $12 million. Others say Willard, reported handing out $100 bills in a neighborhood tavern, said he inherited $1 million.

Police said one of three persons in custody told them $6 million was taken, with Willard and his ex-wife, Marjorie Politt, 48, getting half of it. They are being sought on state murder charges and federal fugitive warrants.

Lt. Robert Kirkman, the detective heading the investigation, said $4,200 was found Thursday in a billfold concealed in the underwear of Manuel Lee Robinson, 29, who has been held in the Marion County jail since Tuesday on charges of first-degree murder, arson and burglary.

About $1.6 million was recovered after Robinson and two other persons were arrested Monday night. Police said Robinson paid cash for a $13,500 automobile with new $100 bills and then tried to trade the car because it was scratched.

The killers left behind more than $5 million, found by authorities Saturday in a garbage can, a toolbox, closets and a vacuum cleaner bag.

An article appearing in Tuesday's edition of The Daily Reflector listed Maggie Cox Jones of Farmville as the driver of a car involved in a collision Monday afternoon on Elm Street.

Actually the drivers of the vehicles involved were Maggie Cox Jones of Farmville and Douglas Smith Tripp of 211A Staniel Dr., who was charged with improper passing in connection with the mishap.

Tuesday's article incorrectly reported "Mrs. James" was charged.

Job On Offshore Oil Drilling Rig Suits Her

By CAROL DEEGAN
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Michelle Planeix is accustomed to being surrounded by lots of men. But how do her fellow workers on an offshore oil rig feel about her?

"Most of us get along with Michelle just fine," remarks one of the men on South Pass Block 61, Shell Oil Rig 12, off Louisiana's coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

And Michelle agrees. "People have been very good. I haven't met anybody who has ever said anything against my going out, and there's three rigs that I go on; all the offshore personnel have really been fantastic."

Michelle works in petrophysics, which is the business of evaluating oil and gas wells. She spends part of her time in the office offshore platform, drilling rigs. "I started getting used to being in a male-dominated field when I went to school with all male students practically. Maybe there were three girls in a class of 100 kids," she said. "Okay, that's a little easier because they're students, they're not grown men or anything, but it gives you an idea, and then coming out here, I have no problem. You can even kid around with these guys, once you know them a little bit, and they're just going to enjoy it."

Michelle, who was born in Paris, is a dual citizen of France and the United States. She went to engineering school in France, then studied at Cornell University where she was awarded a master of science degree.

Her major in school was mechanical engineering. But her specialty was shipbuilding, marine engineering and hydrodynamics. She did a theoretical thesis on certain types of ocean waves.

Michelle got "tired of being in school," so instead of going on for her Ph. D. she accepted her present job.

"They're just making me do what everybody else does, they're not treating me differently, I must say that for the company," she said.

Michelle goes to an offshore rig after drilling has been completed to a certain depth. She supervises the putting of instruments into the well, then checks long strips of paper called "logs" to see if there's any hydrocarbon in the well.

She then telephones an engineer to tell him of her evaluations. The engineer makes the final decisions about what to do with the well.

"I know it's about a year and a half, two years, they put you through all the wringers, you know. First you go and log wells, then they send you to school for about two months, then Houston, they have a special school there."

"Then they probably make you go into what they call operations, where you do completions and production, the production end of the business, actually getting the oil out once it's all drilled, the formation is drilled."

Michelle would like to go into research and/or design. Since her major was hydrodynamics, she would like to work with wave design — the designing of platforms to withstand ocean waves — and ocean energy.

"My real dream is to come up with a design of some sort that uses wave energy. So far it's only a dream, but I'm serious about it."

In the meantime, Michelle says she likes her work on the oil rigs. "When she's not working, she can read, watch television or play cards. She's also interested in photography and likes to take pictures of the roughnecks at work."

When she's offshore, Michelle uses the guest room on the oil rig. And she has a separate

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

People are always saying there isn't anything funny in the world anymore. There's nothing to laugh at and everything is so serious.

What do they know?

The other afternoon, my son received a mimeographed sheet that was one of the funniest pieces of fiction I've ever read. The heading on it read, "THINGS TO BRING TO CAMP."

Maybe if I were a new mother sending her son to camp for the first time, I could have taken it seriously, but I'm an older mother and I haven't had such a good laugh since my doctor told me to get off my feet for a few days in 1973.

How's this for humor?

Bring three pairs of shoes. (A kid who owns three pairs of shoes can only mean one thing. His gym shoes have come apart in three pieces.)

Stationery. In a waterproof container. (Preferably in a U.S. mailbox with a message written on it and stamped the day before he goes to camp. It's the only way you're going to hear from him.)

Soap: You never know when they might carve something out of it for crafts.

Flashlight for finding way to outdoor restroom: (Be prepared to have your child say on the last day of camp, "So that's where the bathroom is.")

Comb, toothbrush and other toiletries: If God had meant for children to permanently wrinkle, He'd never have made them drip dry.

Book for light reading. (You show me a kid reading a book at camp and I'll show you a kid with two broken legs and an X-rated comic book.)

Four changes of underwear (he didn't start life with that many).

Towels, two bath, one hand and a facecloth. (Label them towels as most campers do not recognize them.)

The trick to camping is to be "cool." Never act like you know what a pair of pajamas are, a raincoat and boots, a pillow or a bathing suit. (I know of one mother who sent hangers to camp with her son and he had to change his name.)

I suppose there was a time when I was quite complete about filling in the forms. But all that has changed. Under Allergies, I listed showers, doing dishes, making beds and finding his way home from anywhere.

Under personality traits that may help the counselor, I listed one, "He thinks he's an only child."

Under parties to call in case of accident, I gave our number and then added, "Let it ring."

I've found the less visual a parent can be at camp, the better time the boy has. I'll never forget the day we drove 60 miles of dirty road in temperatures of 85 degrees, arriving just in time for the awards ceremony. I waved to my son who looked at us like he had never met us before. "Where are your parents?" asked the counselor.

Our eyes met in mutual amazement as he said, "They couldn't make it. They're too busy."

Couple Adopted By Wealthy Widow

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My friend is a wealthy 76-year-old widow who is being "taken" by a couple in their 40s who live near her.

This couple is a husband-and-wife team who have made a "career" out of being this widow's friend. They see that she has company every evening (inviting themselves to her home for dinner), they do all her chores: shopping, cleaning, painting, yard work, etc.

I understand they even have a key to her home and her safety deposit box! She bought them a new car and has given them an interest-free loan so their son could go to college.

I am told that these con artists are going to get a bulk of her estate when she passes on. I think her estate should go to her own kinfolk who live in a faraway state, don't you?

Should I get in touch with her relatives and tell them what is going on here? They haven't been here in years, so they have no way of knowing.

CONCERNED FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Allowing for your good intentions, I think you are meddling in your friend's affairs. She obviously appreciates the couple's companionship and help, and unless she is mentally incompetent, she's entitled to do whatever she wants with her money—now and later. Her kinfolk who haven't visited this aging widowed relative in years seem less deserving to share in her estate than the neighbors you describe.

DEAR ABBY: I think my husband is entirely too friendly to strange women. For instance, he will bury his nose in an elevator operator's hair and say, "My, you have beautiful hair—and it smells nice, too."

Or he will compliment a waitress on her "beautiful legs" or "school-girl figure."

When I tell him that it shows a lack of respect for me when he does this in my presence, he says he is only trying to make a poor working girl feel good.

How do you feel about this sort of thing, Abby? Am I wrong to resent it?

BARRY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It is ill-mannered and presumptuous for a man to make personal remarks (complimentary or otherwise) to strange women in (or out of) his wife's presence.

Tell Barry if he doesn't cut it out, one of those poor working girls is apt to work him over.

Glum Social Security Report

The president's awaited message on the Social Security system came Monday and it was unhappy news for employers and middle income wage earners.

Social Security is in trouble and additional funds must be found to bail it out. Carter proposed that general funds be diverted to Social Security when the unemployment rate rises above six percent.

In addition he proposed that the maximum income on which Social Security taxes are paid be increased from $16,500 to $18,900 by 1985. This would be in addition to automatic increases during that time.

Employers would pay more because the administration proposes that they pay taxes on all of an employee's income, rather than a portion as at present.

These are drastic moves when you consider that the amount employee and employer jointly pay is already a considerable part of any individual's income.

It certainly raises our concern about the soundness of the Social Security system. More important, it makes one wonder how the politicians could so mess up a system that once offered so much hope to so many Americans.

There are few who expect the Social Security system to completely collapse in this nation. It has become too much an essential part of all our planning for old age and disability. It seems, however, that Washington would come to understand now that benefits have to be somewhat controlled by the nation's ability to pay, and this is something that hasn't be recognized in the past. We are now learning the lesson the hard way.

Primary Reading Program Moves Ahead

The governor's primary reading program, involving an appropriation of $45 million, appears to have an excellent chance of being funded.

Action was taken by the House and Senate appropriations subcommittees on education last week to give the program "priority one."

The high priority means that the funds are likely to stay in the budget. That is a good sign. We feel that the funds are needed to improve the reading skills of our school aged children.

THIS AFTERNOON

Existing Industries 'First'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The new boss of North Carolina's economic growth program is almost protectionist in his attitude toward the state's present corporate structure.

"Those industries are the ones which have made North Carolina the great state that it is... our first priority will be to work with our own good corporate citizens to help them to diversify, expand, and improve," says Lynwood Smith, recently appointed chairman of the state's newly created Economic Development Board.

Reminded that those top existing industries (textiles, apparel, furniture) are held responsible by any number of experts for the low prevailing wage structure in North Carolina, Smith said his economic growth plans do include seeking out new, higher-paying industries to come to North Carolina.

Minimum Wage

"But the key thing in raising per capita income is federal legislation raising the minimum wage rates, and this state will go right along... the action must come at the federal level," he said.

Will he go after the higher-skill, higher-pay industries which some experts contend could boost Tar Heel income?

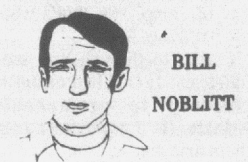

Yes, Smith said. There would be some effort to "target" particular corporations... "But not just those because then we would stand in danger of losing our own, good corporate friends. We can stimulate the earning capacity of the workers, but we can't slap in the face our own good corporations."

Isn't that protectionism?

"No," Smith insisted. "But we can't go out and destroy our present industry by bringing in others... we must supplement the industry that we now have."

The former state senator from High Point is a noted corporate attorney with wide connections in the textile industry. He has been connected with Adams-Millis Corporation, TexElastic, Elastic Yarns, Carolina Yarns, Hanes-Millis, Highland Cotton Mills, Piedmont Associated Industries, and the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers. In politics, he was mayor pro-tem in High Point, a State Highway Commissioner under Gov. Bob Scott, on the State Ports Authority, and served in the State Senate from 1973-1976.

Revamp

The Economic Development Board is part of the revamp of industry hunting efforts put forth by Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. Now established in the Department of Commerce, the unit will have 25 members to formulate and carry out policy on economic growth across the state.

Commerce Secretary D.M. Faircloth is a member of the board and will, as Smith explains it, serve as quarterback for the program.

What will development policy likely be? Smith says it is too early to tell, but that following the efforts to supplement and aid existing industry will come, "Seeking out environmentally sound industry both nationally and internationally which will complement and show promise of becoming part of our own good corporate setup here in North Carolina."

Will the agency attempt to establish policy guidelines as have been suggested in recent studies — that is, to target specific industries for particular locations, especially those paying higher wages to be located, hopefully, in present low-income areas.

"We must remain flexible to the point of doing what is good for the state. To pinpoint now what the board would do would be guessing," Smith said.

"But No. I can say the board would not designate certain places for certain industries. We will sell all of North Carolina... her good roads and good communities, her schools, and her labor force."

"Now if a particular industry requires a particular thing... we will help them locate that. But for the most part we will just lay out the facts and let them decide. We are not going to pick a county for an industry just because that county needs an industry."

Other Editors Say The Elderhostel

(Kinston Free Press)

An Elderhostel program will get under way in North Carolina this summer.

The program is billed as a learning and vacation experience all rolled into one. The only requirement for participating is that the students must be at least 60 years old or older.

The Elderhostel came to fruition in New England two years ago. It was designed to provide short-term, on-campus, college-level courses for the elderly at low cost. It has proven so popular New England schools had to turn away hundreds of Elderhostel applicants last year.

Six North Carolina campuses will be offering the Elderhostel program this summer, giving North Carolina elder citizens a chance to travel around the state and learn at the same time. The colleges involved are the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Appalachian State University, UNC-Charlotte, UNC-Wilmington, UNC-Greensboro and Winston-Salem.

The Elderhostel will enroll in a one-week program with the opportunity to take between one and three courses. The $60 fee covers room in a college dormitory and three meals a day in a college dining hall. There are no additional charges for books or activities associated with the courses.

Hostelers will be encouraged to take advantage of free or inexpensive side trips in the community they visit.

One of Elderhostel's goals is to show elderly citizens they can still learn and maybe even better than ever before. Elderhostel is really about not being old, according to Bob Wagoner, program coordinator for residential adult education at UNC-CH.

The range of program to be offered includes dance and the arts, literature, plant and marine life, politics, computers and cinema. They are especially designed courses taught by regular college professors. They are not specially geared to old people.

It is pointed out by sponsors there are 22 million retired people in the U. S. and, according to Wagoner, "for that group, society has largely taken them out of the mainstream of community life."

More information about the North Carolina Elderhostel program may be secured from Wagoner, Elderhostel Regional Coordinator, 209 Abernethy Hall 002-A, Chapel Hill 27514, phone 933-1124.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Fritz Confides A Concern

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Walter F. Mondale, who has started out as the least neglected Vice President in history, confided to associates last week that he is increasingly troubled by what is happening inside the Carter administration.

Mondale's complaint was not the habitual vice presidential grievance about being ignored. Rather, he is privately concerned that the quest for a balanced budget is setting a fiscal policy far more conservative than he would prefer. Indeed, the Vice President is principal internal opponent of the economic strategy unanimously recommended by President Carter's top advisers and vigorously endorsed by the President himself.

Although Mondale has lost the policy battle in the Oval

Office, his dissenting view is widely shared within the White House staff — and, more significantly, on Capitol Hill. Furthermore, Democratic leaders in Congress (particularly in the House) do not feel Mr. Carter is any more bound to the balanced budget than he was to other abandoned ventures such as the $50 tax rebate, elimination of water projects or raising the defense spending ceiling.

"They are wrong," one Carter insider told us. "They don't understand how hard Jimmy's mind-set is on this one." If so, here are the seeds for a conflict between Congress and President Carter far more substantial than their shadow war over water projects. In the battle of the budget, congressional Democrats would find administration officials all the way up to Fritz Mondale in agreement with them — if only silently.

The first clear internal disagreement on economic policy came when Mr. Carter rejected the Vice President's advice and instead heeded budget director Bert Lance and his own instincts in scrapping the $50 rebate. Although this was ostensibly a debate over economic stimulation, it carried overtones of the argument over a balanced budget. Lance has pushed this traditionally conservative strategy: a balanced budget is both desirable in itself and a reassurance to business, and the best way to balance the budget is to spend less. Lance had been backed by the two other members of the economic trioka: Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and (except for trying to save the $50 rebate) chief economic adviser Charles Schultze. With his economic team supporting his own inclinations, the President has had no indecision on this one.

Mondale does not agree. He takes the traditional Keynesian position that an economy stimulated by government spending eventually would balance the budget through

Employee Benefits: Next Step

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The next significant employee benefits to be added to a growing list might be automobile and home insurance.

While no large employers have made real movement in those areas, the time soon may be ripe, says a spokesman for a firm that advises scores of blue chip companies on employee benefits.

"There is a big void to be filled," said Leonard Mactas, a recognized authority on corporate benefit plans.

Tracing the development of benefits since the end of World War II, Mactas feels that by 1980 some companies may begin to include these two insurances.

"The trend among employers has been to respond to identifiable employee needs," said Mactas. And while homeowners' insurance costs might not have become painfully expensive, auto insurance most certainly has. It's a need.

Other factors are involved also, says Mactas, who heads the Consulting Actuaries Division of Kwasha Lipton, an international firm that helped develop many of today's largest employee benefit programs.

Having sustained repeated losses, automobile insurers are wary of the business, to cite one factor. And large corporations — even smaller ones — can help keep costs in line through the efficiencies of volume.

In Mactas' view, the inclusion of these insurances would be in keeping with a trend toward using the corporation as a vehicle to make life more secure for individuals.

Besides volume buying power, or to state it another way, the ability to benefit from lower group rates, the employer also has the ability to analyze complicated contractual plans and provide bookkeeping services as well.

Moreover, the tax laws are such that employers and employees are aggressively interested in benefits rather than wages alone. Most benefits are tax-deductible for the employer and tax-free for the employee.

In addition, benefit plans are believed by many employers to result in greater employee loyalty, and in general to promote happier, more secure and perhaps more productive workers.

Over the years the portfolio of employee benefits has developed from pensions and profitsharing to health and disability insurance, dental insurance, and most recently legal insurance. Except for some life insurance costs, these expenses are totally tax deductible to the employer.

It is partly for this reason that the standard among large companies today is to pay in full for such benefits. And the result, in effect, is to provide the worker with tax-sheltered income.

Neither automobile nor homeowners' insurance is now eligible for similar tax treatment, but in Mactas' view some companies might be inclined to offer the plans anyway.

"If employers can step in on a group basis I think it would be a tremendous service to workers," he said, adding that he feels Congress might then be inclined to permit employers to deduct the expenses, as they do for other benefits.

Carter Now At Ease

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, home from his first summit conference, is coming across as a man with reinforced confidence in his ability to lead the United States and the free world.

The weeks before he headed for Europe were difficult ones for the Carter presidency. His disarmament proposals received a brusque rejection in Moscow. His tax rebate fared no better on Capitol Hill.

But at his seventh news conference, Carter seemed to be a man with renewed confidence. He sounded more like the candidate who told countless campaign audiences: "I don't intend to lose."

His manner also contrasted with his first presidential press conference when he was apologetic toward congressional critics and then left the room quickly after the traditional "Thank you, Mr. President" ended the questioning.

When he was asked Thursday about criticism from within his own party, Carter brushed it aside with no apologies. Questioned about whether he was emphasizing style rather than substance, the President discussed on why style is substance in his administration.

And when the questioning was over, he lingered among reporters and said he thought Richard M. Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense, a question he had ducked a week earlier.

Carter opened the news conference by hailing the results of his European summit meeting with the heads of other major non-Communist industrial nations. He said he found a "renewed spirit of hope and confidence" in the ability of western democracies to compete with the Communist world.

While upbeat in his answers to foreign policy questions, Carter cautioned that "the chances for Middle Eastern peace are still very much in doubt."

40 Years Ago Today

May 13, 1937

Insurgent defenders of Toledo, once capital of the ancient Moorish Kingdom in the Iberian peninsula, were reported today to have been driven from front line trenches just south of the city.

Government columns reportedly were steadily advancing in the major offensive to recapture Toledo, an important base for insurgent operations on the Madrid front.

Insurgents in the old imperial city, lost by the government last October, were reported to have been freshly reinforced by Moorish and German troops.

The Greenville Greenies today occupied the undisputed cellar position in the Coastal Plain League as a result of their 7 to 1 defeat at the hands of Williamston yesterday.

The local team will take the field for some time now without the services of Dick Rhabé, one of its leading hitters. The left fielder underwent an emergency appendicitis operation in the hospital last night.

The Greenies take on the Snow Hill team tonight.

FALLING IN LOVE

"Getting religion" is more akin to falling in love than to anything else. The people who suddenly come upon what our Lord called the pearl of great price, who find heaviness of heart supplanted by joy, and the slavery of degraded habits supplanted by true spiritual liberty, are like people who encounter someone who fulfills every need in life and releases every pent-up spring of joy.

Religion can truly be defined as discovering God and falling in love with Him.

The person upon whom God has laid His hand has caused the miracle of new moral enthusiasm and purpose to spring forth is truly a person in love.

Dwight L. Moody, the famous evangelist, declared that it was not until he had read the Bible and experienced God that he really knew what love was.

The Bible tells us that God is love. To know Him is to fall in love with something greater and more significant than the universe itself.

Support Restructuring Education Bd.

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to change the structure of the state Board of Education was approved in a Senate committee while the House rejected an effort to revive an antilitter bill that had been killed in committee.

Also Thursday, a House-passed bill to restore the death penalty was set for a special order of business next Tuesday by the Senate.

Under the bill approved by the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee, the education board would appoint the state superintendent of public instruction who is now elected statewide.

Sen. Ed Renfrow, D-Johnston, sponsor of the bill, said the board would be composed of the lieutenant governor, the state treasurer and 15 others, four would be appointed by the governor. Local school boards would each nominate one person to the governor, who use that list to nominate two for each of the 11 congressional districts. The General Assembly would elect one person from each congressional district.

Also in the legislature:

An effort to get the House to accept a minority report on a bill to impose a deposit on most beverage containers failed. It was rejected in committee Wednesday. The bill would have required merchants to charge deposits of 3 or 5 cents on containers for beer and soft drinks. Backers said it would have reduced litter along the highways. Organized labor and the state's bottle and can industry opposed the bill.

DEATH PENALTY
A Senate committee approved a bill to restore the death penalty in North Carolina, setting the measure for debate next Tuesday.

The bill provides that the punishment for first degree murder in North Carolina will be death or life imprisonment. It also provides that when a defendant has been convicted of first degree murder, a second hearing would be held in which the jury would decide on the punishment.

DOT
The governor would appoint a minority party member to the state Board of Transportation under a bill to restructure the Department of Transportation which was approved by the House and returned to the Senate for approval of amendments.

GOP legislators now choose one board member but that would no longer be the case unless the party has 25 per cent of the legislative seats.

The governor would name 20 other members and the House speaker and lieutenant governor would appoint one each. The bill would abolish the secondary roads council and acknowledge a move of the Ports Authority to the Department of Commerce accomplished in another bill.

MINIMUM WAGE
The minimum wage increase should be greater than now proposed, Labor Commissioner John Brooks told the House in a letter. The minimum should be $2.30 on July 1 and $2.50 an hour Jan. 1, he said. A Senate-passed bill would raise it from the current $2 to $2.15 on July 1 and to $2.30 on July 1, 1978.

The federal minimum wage is to be raised this year, justifying the action, he said.

LT. GOVERNOR
The Senate would choose its own presiding officer under a bill filed by Rep. Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt. Now, the lieutenant governor presides and appoints Senate committees.

The constitutional amendment "would force the General Assembly to designate duties for the lieutenant governor and might force the governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team and also cut out some of the bickering between the governor and lieutenant governor," he said.

LEGISLATORS
Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, filed a bill that would have legislators elected to four-year terms. Terms are now two years.

Plant Uses A Generator

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The furniture industry can boast some of today's best and most modern machinery, but the United Division of Burlington House Furniture here is glad it has a holdover from 1926.

It once was fairly common for furniture companies to make their own electricity, using steam engine generators fueled by scrap wood.

It seemed the perfect solution — making use of what otherwise would be waste from furniture manufacturing.

But times, and attitudes, changed, said A.B. "Buddy" Myers, manufacturing vice president, who has been in the furniture manufacturing business for 40 years.

"Later, most companies decided that they could buy electricity cheaper than they could make it themselves," Myers said.

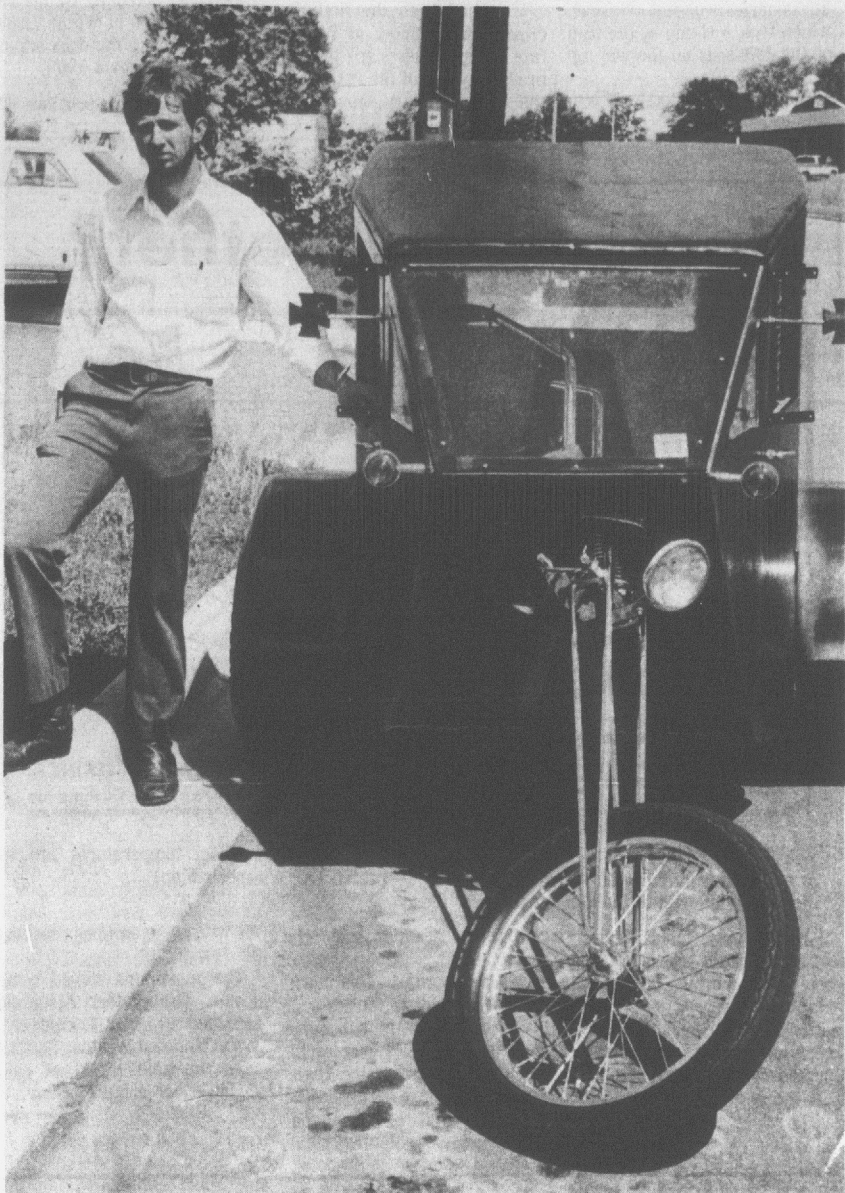

Most companies removed the old steam engines from their plants, but United kept one — a "Skinner" engine built in 1926. Company officials are glad they still have the old engine.

For up to nine months a year, it manufactures nearly half the plant's electricity, saving about $1,500 a month on electric bills, Myers said.

"Using wood as a fuel is as old as the furniture industry itself," Myers said. "We used only a small amount of oil in one plant last year."

Because energy has grown increasingly costly, Myers said the use of wood waste for fuel has grown more sophisticated.

Wood dust created in the manufacturing process once was blown out into the atmosphere, but now is recaptured and burned. The heat that once was discharged with the dust also is recirculated — minus the dust.

CUSTOM TRIKE — O. J. McLawhorn of Ayden, 30, loves motorcycle riding but hates to get wet. So he took a Volkswagen engine and some custom car and motorcycle parts and built what he calls a "custom trike". The machine took five months to build and represents an investment of nearly $2,000. McLawhorn plans to add windows, a running board and other extras. The trike, which he says draws stares from passing motorists and attracts crowds in parking lots, is technically still a motorcycle, so O. J. wears a helmet when driving it. (Reflector photo by Barbara Mathews)

Picketing Goes On In L&N Parleys

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Picketing of the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co. continued Thursday while management and union representatives met six hours in an attempt to end the strike at the company, which began April 18.

A resumption of negotiations was planned for 10 a.m. today. Neither side would comment on progress made in Thursday's session.

One incident was reported Thursday in which picketer Robert E. Smith received cuts and bruises when he was hit by a car. Durham police said James William Raymond Holt, 20, of Raleigh, was arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon, an automobile driven with criminal negligence.

A spokesman for the Tobacco Workers International Union Local 176 said the union was observing a court order issued Monday, which limits the number of pickets at warehouse entrances to three per gate. L&M requests the order following violence Monday when the company began taking job applications to fill positions of those workers still on strike.

Teamsters Local 391, which joined the strike at L&M, at noon Monday, reported Thursday that 15 members had been at the picket line every day this week.

The tobacco workers walked out in a contract dispute which has since boiled down to the cost of living clause in the contract. The union is holding out for an unlimited cost of living adjustment, while the company is offering a 15 cents per hour increase annually.

tongue-holding Vice Presidents, loyally said not a word in disagreement. Dr. Schultze, Mondale's ally in supporting the $50 rebate, said many words in agreement with the balanced budget. Schultze was so eloquent in lauding private capital formation as the route to prosperity that Dr. Arthur Burns, Republican high priest of fiscal integrity as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the meeting he could not improve on the comments of his liberal colleague.

Shaken by Burns's embrace of Schultze as much as the President's stand, the Congressmen retired to Capitol Hill in confusion. What had happened to jobs bills? To health insurance? To welfare reform? The catchphrase in the House Democratic cloakroom was that the Carter administration had become "paranoid about budget deficits."

Returning to the White House the next morning, May 3, for the weekly congressional leaders' breakfast, speaker Thomas P. O'Neill set the record straight, in words to this effect: Mr. President, just because we were too stunned to reply yesterday, don't interpret that as agreement; in fact, we are very much opposed to your position.

"We're not really worried," another congressional leader told us after that breakfast. "The President is a very flexible man." This may be a misreading, however — partly because Mr. Carter sees the nation backing him totally on this issue. The President probably agrees with Lance's judgment that anything close to a balanced budget in 1980 will cinch his reelection. So, given possible sluggish economic growth ahead, another classic President vs. Congress confrontation is in prospect, with the Vice President playing the unpleasant role of odd man out.

It was when he dealt with domestic criticism that Carter sounded like a man who is convinced he knows what he is doing.

While Carter was in Europe, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., addressed Americans for Democratic Action and questioned whether Carter's commitment to a balanced budget would take precedence over traditional Democratic social welfare programs.

A month before he took office, Carter received a memorandum from pollster Patrick Caddell which advised him not to subvert style to substance and also warned that Carter might face more political danger from Democrats like McGovern and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., than from Republicans.

"I don't see either McGovern or Gov. Brown as an adversary or threat," said Carter.

Then he drew laughs by adding, "I feel quite secure in my position." Obviously annoyed by the McGovern criticism, Carter acknowledged that he could lose liberal support.

It was when he talked about style that Carter sounded his most confident. He wasn't the least defensive when the subject of Caddell's recommendation was raised.

In fact, he said, "I agree.... I think to the extent that I can have a good relationship with the people, it makes it easier for me to be a good President."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

IS QUALITY A THING OF THE PAST?

Quality is hard to come by these days. When you buy something and pay a good price for it, you should expect quality in design, workmanship and appearance. Quality means that something should perform well and last long. But today, everything we buy seems to break, or quit working, or lose its appearance all too soon. It's almost like the old saying, "you can't get quality no matter what you pay." Why is it happening? Sure, a few people are out to make a fast buck by selling you something that doesn't work or last. But, the main reason is lack of what manufacturers call "quality control." The best designed product in the world is not going to perform if it's put together in a hurry with no attention to detail. There has to be "quality control" from design to the finished product. That's where a lot of products fall down. Some people just don't care anymore, and don't take pride in their work. And that's a real problem, especially when you've bought that product.

THE PRIDE AND WORKMANSHIP IN A TOYOTA

More things can go wrong in a car than just about anything. It is probably the most complex piece of machinery we buy with its thousands of parts. How do you maintain "quality control" during the assembly of such a complicated vehicle? Toyota has the best quality program. The people really in charge of "quality control" on the assembly line are the people actually on the assembly line — everybody. At our factories, during the assembly of a car, a Toyota worker can stop the assembly line, at any time, by pushing a control button if he sees a problem. They have a slogan, "How can we do it better?" They even wear white gloves at all times and no belt buckles to mar the finish. Meticulous? Yes — that's why Toyotas are better built.

YOU CAN GET QUALITY AT YOUR TOYOTA DEALER

Your Toyota dealer goes over your car with a fine tooth comb before he delivers it to you. We want to make sure that the Toyota you buy is as nearly perfect as we can make it. Your Toyota dealer has the factory trained technicians and genuine parts to keep your Toyota in perfect shape. Yes, quality is hard to come by these days, but we're offering you a quality automobile that should last a long time...at a fair price. We do everything humanly possible to give you the quality you have a right to expect in a new car. Please come by to see us.

$18-MILLION IN PARTS — NO WAITING

It's no fun waiting for parts. At some dealers, your car can gather dust for days, even weeks, while they wait for some simple part. That just doesn't happen at a Toyota dealer. It is a fact that Toyota dealers have the best parts replacement system in the U.S.A. Better than any other dealers, factory or manufacturer. There are $8-million worth of parts in our giant warehouse in Jacksonville and another $10-million in stock at the 148 Toyota dealers in the southeast. Each dealer is connected to our computer by telewriter. The computer knows where each and every part is and, if by chance your dealer doesn't have it, the computer will get it to him faster than anyone else. Our parts system is the best in the industry. With genuine Toyota parts and service by factory trained technicians — service at a Toyota dealer is not going to cost you more — it will probably cost you less. We want your Toyota to give you all the trouble-free miles you expect from a quality automobile. That's why we have gone out of our way to bring you the fastest, finest service and parts system in the industry. It's worth it to us. It's worth it to you. We want you to be satisfied and to be another one of our best salesmen. Most Toyota owners are.

Sincerely,

Jim Moran

U.S. Missionary Effort Rising Again

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The corps of American Protestant
Missionaries working overseas, which took a slump at the turn of the 1970's, is on the way up again.

The force now totals 37,000,

an increase of 8 per cent above 34,000 counted in 1970, when a three-year downturn of 4 per cent was registered.

That had been the first decline in the number of Protestant missionaries since the depression years of the 1930's, but the new summary showed the upward turn.

The figures were reported in the new edition of the Mission Handbook, compiled by the research division of World Vision International, a missions organization of Monrovia, Calif.

It reports there now are 620

Protestant mian agencies working in 182 countries, and that there is a rising trend toward greater use of youths on a short-term basis.

About a fourth of them go on to become career missionaries, says Edward R. Dayton, director of the research center that produces the handbook.

He says 60 per cent of the agencies have developed summer youth programs, and an increasing number now take young people for short-term service.

Besides the 37,000 Protestant
missionaries working overseas, there are about 6,500 U.S. Roman Catholics abroad, making a total of 43,500 American missionaries.

Total contributions to mission work in the U.S. and Canada rose from $393 million in 1972 to $656 million in 1975, up 67 per cent, outstripping inflation by 29 per cent.

Although there are 620 mission-sending agencies, most of them are small. More than half the resources are concentrated in 18 big number of personnel overseas include:

Wycliffe Bible Translators —
2,693; Southern Baptists —
2,667; Seventh-day AIWI

CAUSE, Southern Baptists had the biggest budget — $52 million. Next were Seventh-day
Adventists, with $25 million and Church World Service of the National Council of Churches,
$23.5 million.

The new handbook shows missionaries perform a variety of services, a fourth of them involved in direct communication of Christian teaching, another fourth engaged in helping strengthen national churches.

The other half carry on various work to help indigenous people, ranging from agricultural projects to medical clinics and developing water systems.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is forecast today for the west. Warm weather is indicated for the rest of the nation except for the Northeast where cool temperatures are expected. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Temperatures are continuing cool in the morning and warming by afternoon under clear skies over North Carolina. Except for a weak cold front expected over the northeast part of the state Saturday, little change is seen through the weekend.

Low temperatures this morning cooled down to the 40s over much of the state with some readings in the 50s over southern and coastal counties. Highs Thursday ranged mostly in the 70s with some sections reaching the low 80s.

The mountains stayed some cooler. Grandfather Mountain recorded a high of 60 degrees.

The National Weather Service

TO FACE THE WORLD

They are now pushed out of the nest. Meantime, these baby birds are still looking to their mother, chirping for their food. She'll get it for them. But when the time comes to let them go, she will know it instinctively.

Human mothers are not always so wise. It is hard to see your children go out to face the world on their own. Sometimes your instinct is to keep them in the nest.

You have to let your children go. But will they go with a firm sense of values, level hearts and heads, knowledge of the meaning of faith?

Where to find all this? Try your church!

Nixon Depicts Self In Charge Of Foreign Policy

"MURDER ONE" — A Documentary Showcase series, "Murder One" is an in-depth look at capital punishment as seen through the eyes of convicted murderers Carl Isaacs, 21, (left) and Billy Honeycutt. Because of the ambiguity of the July 1976 Supreme Court decision on capital punishment, Isaacs is sentenced to die this month in a Georgia prison while Honeycutt has had his North Carolina death sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The special, to be aired at 9 p.m. tonight over UNC-TV, Channel 25, Greenville, also focuses on families of the convicted men and families of the men's victims.

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A relaxed Richard Nixon, casting himself as coolly in charge of his own foreign policy, says he initiated overtures to China, faced the Russians down in the 1973 Middle East war and rescued Egyptian President Anwar Sadat from "a coup or worse."

In a taped interview with British television personality David Frost, Nixon said he had to overcome the reservations of Henry Kissinger to maintain U.S. military operations in Cambodia in 1970, despite demonstrations at Kent State and other universities.

Five Killed In Collision

MARION, N.C. (AP) — A head-on collision Thursday night claimed the lives of five members of the Anderson, S.C., Junior College tennis team who were en route to a tennis tournament in Banner Elk.

The team's truck collided with a truck on a winding mountain road about 14 miles from here.

The dead were identified as the coach, Max Grubbs; Fazal Mahmood of Karachi, Pakistan; Danny Pankiw, Waynesville, N.C.; Eric Teasley, Greenwood, S.C., and David Owen, Easley, S.C.

Two team members were injured. They were Darien Pethod of Karachi, Pakistan, and Scott Dickey of Greenville, S.C., who were taken to Marion Hospital and later to Mission Memorial Hospital in Asheville.

Anderson President Dr. Cordell Maddox termed the crash "a great tragedy, a great loss. We're just in shock here."

Maddox said he had been told the school van was on its way up a hill and the truck was coming down near Linville Caverns on N.C. 221 when the two vehicles collided head-on.

Two men in the truck, both reportedly from Selma, Ala., were not seriously hurt. The truck was described as a dump truck towing a trailer full of machinery. The names of the men were not available.

L. David Berryhill, Jr., president of the North Carolina Association of Realtors, was guest speaker at the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors at the May meeting held Tuesday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Speaking in defense of home ownership, Berryhill was critical of recent publicity which he said implied that there is now a trend away from private home ownership. He noted that the dream of owning a home is still strong, especially in the southern section of the U.S., where the highest percentage of homes were sold last year. He added that sales of single family homes in 1977 are expected to exceed all previous sales records.

'Ticketing' Guidelines

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — The Lumberton Police Department has adopted new guidelines on traffic tickets following reports of alleged ticket-fixing on order of city officials.

The new policy, posted Thursday, requires all officers to list the reason for voiding a ticket on the citation. The directive comes after a check of traffic tickets issued during 1975 and 1976 showed 5.8 per cent of the tickets either missing or voided.

The Fayetteville Times reported that police officers were frequently told to void a ticket either by police supervisors or city councilmen.

Police Chief H.C. Britt has refused comment on reports that courthouse records reflect charges were dropped in one case on his request. Dist. Atty. Joe Freeman Britt, no relation to the police chief, also has refused comment on reports that his office dropped charges without the knowledge of the arresting officer.

The police chief said the new guidelines ought to correct any misunderstanding of proper procedure.

TAKING APPLICATIONS

The Meadowbrook Day Care Center is now taking applications for the fall session. The session is for 1977-78.

warnings of possible political and diplomatic implications, Nixon said he ordered the Pentagon to "send everything that flies" to Israel to help the Jewish state snap back from the 1973 Yom Kippur attack by Egypt and Syria.

Thursday night's telecast over an informal network of 155 television stations was the second of five programs expected to bring Nixon approximately $1 million.

The second interview drew a much smaller audience than the first one in New York City, the Arbitron Co. reported today. An overnight meter sampling showed Thursday night's program drew a 20 per cent share, or about 829,000 television homes, compared to the first interview's 42 per cent share.

Nixon appeared as confident discussing world affairs in Thursday's taped interview as he had appeared uneasy in dealing with his Watergate downfall in last week's telecast.

Nixon, the only man to resign the presidency, assessed the world leaders he met while president and called Kissinger, who became both secretary of state and national security chief, "a genius" who had to have things his way.

Of the world leaders he met, Nixon said:

—The late Chairman Mao Tse-tung of China had "a devilish sense of humor" and lived very simply. Despite debilitating strokes he maintained control over China until his death last year.

—The late Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev was both brilliant and boorish, with "a terrible inferiority complex."

—Khrushchev's successor, Leonid I. Brezhnev, is not as quick intellectually, but also is not as volatile "and in that way a much safer man to have sitting there with his finger on the (nuclear) button."

Nixon called Kissinger an emotional intellectual who "likes to say outrageous things." He said Kissinger, who likes being a celebrity, constantly feuded with William P. Rogers before succeeding him as secretary of state.

After the Watergate scandal forced Nixon's resignation, Kissinger was sometimes critical of his old boss. In a dinner conversation in Ottawa, Canada, in October 1975, for instance, he was overheard describing Nixon as an odd and artificial man.

"Quite candidly," Nixon said, "it drives my family right up the wall and it's only because it bothers them, that it would bother me at all."

Besides, he went on, "after such accounts appear, I know that I always get a call from Henry on the phone explaining that there's been either a misquotation, or misinterpretation, or what have you."

"And, I have always said to him, 'Forget it.'"

Kissinger could not be reached for comment on Nixon's observations.

An assistant in his downtown Washington office said the former secretary of state would have nothing to say. A call to his home in Georgetown was taken by an answering service and not returned.

Surveying his achievements, Nixon said he conceived of the possibility of an initiative toward China before he ever met Kissinger, who nevertheless pursued it "with enormous enthusiasm."

In the Middle East, he said, he cautioned the Soviets not to move in military forces during the 1973 war and rejected as "sheer madness" a proposal by them that they act jointly to impose a ceasefire.

To help Israel repulse the attack by Egypt and Syria, Nixon said he ordered a massive airlift of American weapons. But when Israeli forces crossed the Suez Canal and surrounded the Egyptian third army Nixon said he persuaded them not to destroy it.

Like the storied Mafia "God-father," Nixon said he gave the Israelis "an offer that they could not refuse" — a promise of American support whenever Israel came under attack.

"If the Israelis had insisted on capturing and destroying the Egyptian third army, that would have brought about, I predicted, a coup or worse as far as Sadat was concerned," Nixon said.

"Somebody would have come into power in Egypt, probably worse than Nasser, oriented toward the radical point of view. Egypt would have become a total Soviet satellite state and Israel would have won a Pyrrhic victory."

"They would have planted the seeds for a war of revenge such as you've never seen. And, therefore, we were right in restraining Israel; right from their own self-interest."

NEW SPRAY SYSTEM — Robert Abplanalp, inventor of the valve on which modern aerosol spray dispensers are based, demonstrates a new spray system in New York that he says makes fluorocarbon propellants obsolete. Abplanalp unveiled the new valve at a hastily called news conference one day after the federal government declared fluorocarbon propellants an environmental hazard and ordered a phased end to its use. Abplanalp uses a candle to show that the new valve's spray is non-flammable. (AP Wirephoto)

New Data On N.C. Indians

RALEIGH (AP) — Archaeologists are turning up new information on North Carolina Indians in an area near here soon to be flooded to form the Falls of Neuse reservoir.

The Army Corps of Engineers, which is building the reservoir, requires that sites to be flooded first be searched for archeological value.

In the first two weeks of digging, an archeological team under contract with the Corps has found 50 Indian sites, ranging from small campsites to small villages.

"We mostly look for their garbage dumps. We throw away tin cans. They threw away flint chips, from points and stone tools," said Steve Claggett, leader of the group. His team has found dart points and broken pottery which dates back to 6000 B.C.

Areas of prime concern in the search are Adshusheer and Eno Town, both villages described by John Lawson, an English traveler who passed through in 1710.

Claggett is searching for evidence pointing to early Indian occupation in Wake County.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
BURGAU, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Ben Chavis was part of a group that hid from armed nightriders and never left a Wilmington church parsonage the night he was accused of firebombing a white-owned store two witnesses testified Thursday.

The Rev. Eugene Templeton and his wife Donna said with absolute certainty that Chavis, leader of a group known as the Wilmington 10, never had a chance to set fire to Mike's Grocery on the February, 1971, night that it burned.

They testified as lawyers for the 10 neared the conclusion of their case during a special hearing in which they are asking that the group's conviction for arson and conspiracy be overturned.

The Rev. Mr. Templeton, now of Florham Park, N.J., was minister at the Gregory Congregational Church at the time of the fire, and described the surrounding black community as in a state of siege from several days of racial gunfighting. Whites fired from cruising pickup trucks, the white minister said, and blacks returned their fire.

He described Chavis as a leader who, with a small group of young blacks, remained in the Templeton home to protect the adjacent church.

"I'm absolutely sure Ben was there the entire evening," the Rev. Mr. Templeton said.

"I'm sure he never left the house," said Mrs. Templeton. "I was really keeping an eye on Mr. Chavis," said Mrs. Templeton, who said she feared for Chavis' safety if he ventured outside.

The Templetons also said at least three others in the group now serving long prison terms for the firebombing were in the parsonage most of the evening. They said one of the 10, Connie Tyndall, was with them when the fire was first seen, around the street corner from their home.

Although the Templetons could provide an alibi for Chavis, they did not testify at the 1972 Wilmington 10 trial. State attorneys objected to their appearance Thursday, saying evidence that was available at the original trial was not permissible, but Judge George M. Fountain overruled the objection and allowed the Templetons to be heard.

The Rev. Mr. Templeton said they had intended to testify in 1972, and had been urged to do so by defense attorney James Ferguson, but decided against appearing while traveling to the trial. They had gotten as far as Fayetteville, the Templetons said, when they heard a rumor that they, too, would be charged with conspiracy in Wilmington.

"I was really scared to go back. I was scared of just about anybody in Wilmington, North Carolina," Mrs. Templeton said.

Testimony by the state's key witness in the 1972 trial, Allen Ray Hall, said Chavis organized the fire bomb attack while in the church. But the Rev. Mr. Templeton said he believed the church was locked and empty that night.

The Rev. Mr. Templeton said Chavis was trying to defuse the racial violence, and that police and city officials spurned their plea for a curfew to stop the nightriders.

"We felt very isolated. We did not feel the local police were helping," he said, adding later, "I was in utter desperation. Everything was out of control. There was shooting all around."

Both the Rev. Mr. Templeton and his wife were fired on but not struck while in front of their house, they said. They left Wilmington for good less than a week after the grocery was burned.

Northern Takes Title As Rose Bows

Hill Is New Mat Coach

Bill Hill, East Carolina University's only all-American in wrestling, was named today as the new head wrestling coach for the Pirates. He succeeds John Welborn, coach for 10 years at ECU, who relinquished his duties as head coach at the end of this past season in order to devote more time to his position as assistant director of athletics.

Hill wrestled at East Carolina from 1970-74, winning four consecutive Southern Conference titles at 177 pounds. His senior year, Hill finished fifth in the NCAA finals, being named NCAA all-American. That is the highest finish ever for an ECU wrestler in the nationals.

While at East Carolina, Hill was the North Carolina collegiate champion, 1970-74; voted best wrestler in North Carolina, 1972-74; First Colonies Tournament champion, 1971, 1973; Maryland Federation champion, 1972-74; Colgate Open champion, 1973-74; Georgia Tech champion, 1973-74; Thanksgiving Open champion, 1973-74; fifth in NCAA, 1974.

From 1974-76, Hill served as assistant wrestling coach at East Carolina with the Pirates winning the Southern Conference championship each of those two years.

Hill was the head wrestling coach at E. C. Glass High School in Lynchburg, Va. during the 1976-77 school year where his team won the Western District Championship.

The 26-year-old Hill graduated with a BS degree in industrial arts in 1975 from East Carolina. He attended Norview High School and James Barry Robinson Prep School in Norfolk, Va.

Hill is only the third man to head the varsity wrestling program at East Carolina. Prior to Welborn, Bob Gantt headed the program since its inception.

Farmville Central Rolls To 12-3 Victory Over Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — Farmville Central scored five times in the first two innings and went on to record to 12-3 victory over Ayden-Grifton last night.

The Jaguars pushed over three runs in the first inning of play. Neal Gordon reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Phillip Gordon singled, and an error on the play scored Neal and left Phillip on third. Ted Dunn then cracked a two-run homer for a 3-0 edge.

The Jaguars came back with two more in the second. Alan Moore walked and scored on Mike Jenkins' double. Scott Evans walked, and Phillip Gordon reached on a fielder's choice. Dunn then hit a sacrifice fly to score Jenkins.

In the fourth, Farmville Central added four more. Neal Gordon walked and Phillip Gordon singled. Don Holloman knocked in one run, and Carroll Griffin singled in the second. Moore walked to bring in Holloman, and Jenkins hit into a fielder's choice, scoring the final run of the frame.

Ayden-Grifton broke the ice with three in the fifth, but that was all the Chargers were to get. Paul Setliff singled and Ed Coley got a hit. Harold Edwards singled, and an error on the play let Setliff score. Al Butts singled in Coley, and a wild pitch plated Edwards.

After Farmville added two in their half of the fifth, they got another in the sixth on a Scott Evans home run.

Farmville Central is now 8-5 in the league and 12-3 overall. Ayden-Grifton falls to 5-9 in the league and 7-15 overall.

Farmville goes to Tarboro on Tuesday, while Ayden-Grifton has completed its season. Farmville C. 320 421 0-12 15 1 A-Grifton 000 030 0-3 4 4 Smith and Dunn; Teachey, Shadle (5) and Coley, Quinn (6).

Coca-Cola Runs Past Jaycees

Coca-Cola scored in the middle innings to roll up a 12-4 victory over the winless Jaycees in the North State Little League yesterday.

The win boosted the Coke record to 3-1 in the league, while the Jaycees are now 0-4.

The Jaycees scored first, getting two in the first. Toby Fisher reached on a two-base error and scored when Jim Swinson doubled. Louis Fletcher reached on an error, scoring Swinson.

In the second, the Jaycees got another run. Timmy Ellis singled and Maury Harris got a hit. An error on the play allowed Ellis to score.

Coke came to life in the third, scoring three runs to tie it up. Curtis Evans singled and Terry Smith reached on a fielder's choice. Both moved up on a wild pitch and Kenny Goodwin walked, loading the bases. Paul Goodson singled, scoring both Evans and Smith. Aaron Smith singled to score Goodwin.

After Swinson slapped a homer in the bottom of the third for the Jaycees, giving them a 4-3 lead, the Coke team took the lead for good in the fourth.

Michael Smith singled and Evans reached on an error that allowed both runners to come all the way around. Terry Smith doubled and Goodwin doubled him in. Goodson singled Goodwin over for a 7-4 lead.

Coke picked up three more in the fifth, including a homer by Evans that scored two. Two more came in the sixth.

walked, loading the bases.

Leonard slashed his second hit to center, driving in both Long and Worthington. Mike Joyner, courtesy runner for Davis, scored on a wild pitch with the fourth Northern run.

Rose, which had gotten only two men to first in the first three innings, came up with a run in the fourth.

Jeff Aldridge slapped a one-out pitch into left field. Mike Williams followed with a double into right field, putting men on second and third. After the second out, Will Sanderson collected the second of three hits he had, driving in Aldridge.

Rose, however, had few chances after that. Double plays in both the sixth and seventh took them out of rallies before runs could be scored. In the seventh, Sanderson led off with a single and Bobby Woronoff got a hit, but a double play left Sanderson hanging on third, and he died there.

Northern came back with three more fourth inning runs.

Davis opened the frame with a double, moving to third on an error on the play. Leonard got his fourth RBI with a double up the alley in right-center. Randy Shackelford walked, then stole second, and that chased Williams. Perry Worthington then came on, making his first appearance since the Williamston tournament, coming off an injury.

He walked Royce Wells, however, and got Willie Arrington to ground back to the mound.

On the play, Leonard was cut down at the plate, but the throw to first to get Arrington was overthrown, and Shackelford came in. The ball also got past the back-up man, and Wells scored by the time the ball had been chased down.

The victory boosted the Northern Nash record to 15-5 overall and 11-2 in the conference. Rose fell off to 10-10 overall and 5-8 in the league.

The Rampants travel to Wilson on Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. game. They close out the season next Thursday, playing host to Northeastern.

Perry Returns To Form In Four-Hitter

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
It was difficult to tell which was the expansion team as the Seattle Mariners recorded their first-ever series sweep Thursday night ... over the New York Yankees, no less.

"We just played bad and they played well," Yankees Manager Billy Martin explained after his defending American League champions fumbled their way through an 8-6 defeat at the hands of the 35-game-old Mariners on the heels of a 5-2 setback Wednesday night.

In the only other AL games, the Texas Rangers blanked the Kansas City Royals 2-0, the California Angels overtook the Baltimore Orioles 7-5 and the Detroit Tigers swamped the Milwaukee Brewers 9-1.

The Yankees committed five errors — five more than the Mariners — including three on consecutive ground balls in the third inning, and handed Seattle six unearned runs while the expansionists ran the bases daringly, stealing three bases.

to Rocky Mount's one.

Jeffrey James, Wiley Keel and James Corey each had two hits in the first game.

The second went only five innings. Martin scored three times in the first, with Rocky Mount getting one run.

Martin got one in the second, three in the third, two in the fourth and three in the fifth. Rocky Mount's other run came in the third.

While no one got more than one hit for Martin, Keel slapped a three-run homer in the fifth inning.

The twin bill ended the year for Martin, giving the team a 13-5 record on the year.

Woody
Peeler

This past weekend, we gathered with the Carolinas Golf Writers Association for its annual meeting and tournament at Myrtle Beach.

During the affair, we played the courses at Arcadian Shores and Skyway. Although they are different courses in design and texture, both are fine tests of golf.

Arcadian can be played from any of four sets of tees, with the back set offering a real challenge to the long hitter. The front two sets make it more pleasurable for the duffer.

Skyway is not a long course, but it presents a challenge to the golfer to keep to the straight and narrow. On one of the three nine-hole layouts on the course, a ravine cuts through four holes, adding to the troubles. Two of the first tees parallel the intracoastal waterway, adding to the hazards.

But for some people, just getting to the course is the biggest problem.

Written up in Ripley's "Believe It Or Not," Skyway is attained by riding across the waterway on a 280-foot long aerial car ride.

Moby Woody, or, the Great White Whale

That presented problems to me. As those who are friends of mine know, I do not like heights. I hate heights. I avoid them whenever possible. Skyway has no other way of approach, however, so I decided that I would skip the day's golf rather than subject myself to THAT.

Skyway General Manager Larry Fielden, however, heard of my decision, and urged me to try it. I told him not to worry, that I would not mind missing the golf. He insisted, however, and provided me with a boat ride across the waterway as an alternate method. I learned that the first person over each day, and the last one to leave each night must paddle over, so they have a small boat available for that purpose.

That's how I made it over and back. And I'm glad I did too. I shot my best round in three years of play at Myrtle Beach with an 86. Skyway pro Sam Piazza, who played in my pro-am group the first day, said I waited a day to late too help the team, however, with my 14 handicap.

Small World, Isn't It?

In the snack bar on the course, I heard the two hostesses talking about Farmville, and I asked if they were familiar with the town.

The two girls, Brenda Kennedy, and Debbie Kennedy Baker, are sisters, and Brenda was born in Farmville. They both lived there when their father, Bill Kennedy, was the pro at Farmville Golf Club, some 17 years ago.

Seems you can travel the world and still find home-town people.

Farmville Golf and Country Club

The Farmville Golf and Country Club will hold its Member-Guest tournament on May 27, 28, 29.

A Scotch Foursome is planned for this Sunday at the club.

Greenville Golf and Country Club

The team of Izabel Rivers and Marge Parrish took first place in the Ladies Day "Draw For Partners" Best-Ball event at the Greenville Golf and Country Club last week.

Second place went to Alice Hudson and Kay Whichard. Third were Julia Painter and Joan Hooper.

Charles Gaskins eagled the 12th hole, hitting a seven iron in on the second shot. Don White Jr. carded a 33, while Sue Hardy had a 41 for nine holes. Greg House had a 72, Dallas Clark a 66, Celeste Wilkerson an 87, John Hill a 76, while ECU golf team member Phil Bell had a 31-33-64.

Braves Snap Losing Streak With 6-1 Victory Over Pittsburgh

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

No, the Atlanta Braves didn't win the National League pennant Thursday. Yes, that was champagne in the Braves' dressing room after the game.

The bubbly was provided by Jeff Burroughs after the Braves snapped a 17-game losing streak by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1.

"Let's play again right now. We're hot," Burroughs said.

Pitcher Max Leon drove in three runs and combined with reliever Rich Camp for a four-hitter, snapping Pittsburgh's 11-game winning string.

In other NL games Thursday, St. Louis crushed Cincinnati 10-1, Los Angeles defeated Montreal 8-2, Philadelphia blanked San Francisco 3-0 and San Diego topped the New York Mets 5-2.

Cards 10, Reds 1
John D'Acquisto, Buddy Schultz and Al Hrabosky teamed for a one-hitter while Tony Scott, Don Kessinger and Keith Hernandez drove in two runs each as St. Louis routed Cincinnati. The Reds' lone hit was a two-out, eighth-inning double by Ken Griffey.

Dodgers 8, Expos 2

Dave Lopes and Reggie Smith slammed first-inning home runs, helping right-hander Don Sutton move into sole possession of second place on the all-time Dodgers' winning list with a victory over Montreal.

Giants 3, Phillies 0

A three-hitter by right-hander Larry Christenson gave Philadelphia its victory over San Francisco. Christenson, 3-3, out-pitched Giants right-hander John Montefusco, 2-5, who suffered his fourth straight setback.

Padres 5, Mets 2

San Diego's Tom Griffin, 3-1, hurled seven strong innings and smashed a homer, leading the Padres over the Mets. Griffin allowed only three hits before being relieved by Rolie Fingers after giving up a two-run homer to John Milner in the eighth.

The club will hold its annual Member-Guest tournament on June 17-18-19.

Ayden was host to the annual East Carolina University intramural golf tournament, held this past week at the club.

Brook Valley Golf and Country Club

The Brook Valley Golf and Country Club will hold its men's and women's Club Championship tournaments Saturday and Sunday. A total of 138 men and 15 women have signed up to compete in this year's field.

Maxine Hawley had her best 18-hole score with a 39-43-82. Mary Martin also had her best, a 44-39-83. Horton Roundtree recorded one of his better nines, a 38. Jim Mallory had his best score of the year, a 35-37-72. Steve Woodard had a 70 for his best ever.

Joe LaMotte had a hole-in-one on the 176-yard fifth hole. He used a five-iron for the shot. He was playing with W. L. Allen, John Lautares and Willard Wilson.

took first place with a 67. Second went to D. Maratea, B. Williamson, H. Small, and M. Haislip at 69. Third were R. Kensky, R. Parker, T. Manning, T. Hayden and B. Weatherholt at 70. The team of D. Mills, H. Wilson, D. Myles and B. Main took fourth at 70.

Ron Kensky and Jane Feary took the closest to the pin on 16 contest, with D. Myles and J. Feary had the longest drives on 12.

The Member-Member Tournament is slated for May 21-22.

Grover Boykin had his first eagle on the third hole while playing with Eddie Day, Drew Harper and Bruce Clements. Charles Radford eagled the third hole while playing with Chubby Cummings and Gordon Connor.

Judge, Agency To Settle Takeover

FREMONT, Mich. (AP) — The fate of a merger which could create a new food industry giant with annual sales topping $1 billion is now in the hands of a federal judge and a state regulatory agency.

Bitter battling by Gerber Products Co. of Fremont, the nation's biggest baby food maker, to avoid being bought out by Anderson, Clayton & Co. of Houston, Tex., is being complicated further because the takeover bid is the first falling under a new Michigan law.

Hugh Makens, director of the Corporations and Security Bureau in the state Department of Commerce, said Michigan had no law governing corporate takeovers until last July 1.

Anderson, Clayton's bitterly contested offer to purchase all 8.1 million shares of Gerber common stock at $40 each cannot begin until Makens' office approves. So far, that has not happened.

Makens said Thursday he has asked Anderson, Clayton to amend parts of its purchase offer. One change would specify that the Texas giant will keep Gerber's headquarters at Fremont, a key point in the opposition from some Gerber officials, workers and stockholders.

Anderson, Clayton already has made that assurance along with a pledge to leave Gerber's operations, executives and plants essentially unchanged.

But Makens said wording of the pledge was "fairly equivocal the first time through." He said other requested changes seek more information about how Anderson, Clayton will finance the $330 million purchase and about foreign payments Gerber has called illegal or questionable.

Makens said he expects a speedy response to those requests for changes. Once the new material is provided, the bureau has 10 days to reject them or Anderson, Clayton's offer is registered legally.

Even so, under state law the Texas company cannot begin buying Gerber stock under its $40 per share offer until 60 days after the formal registration. That would be mid July at the earliest.

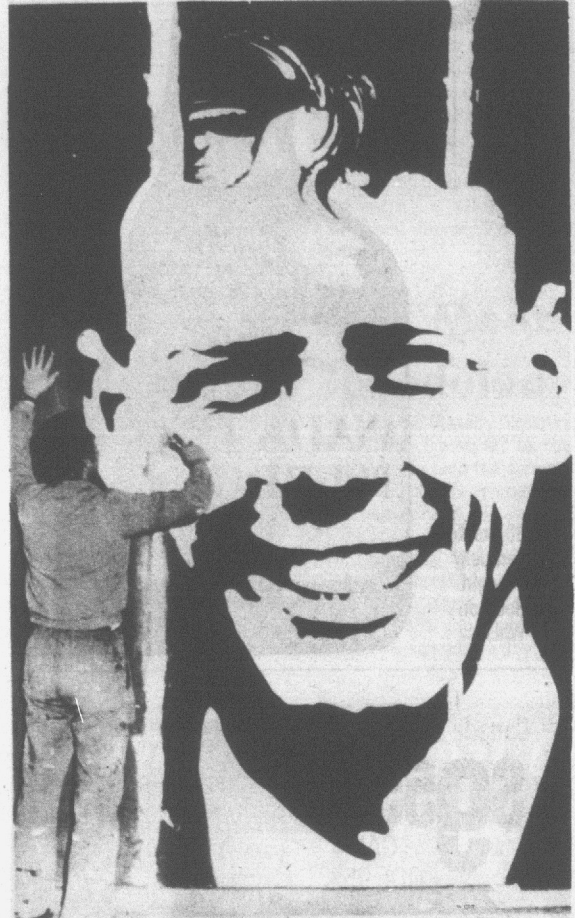

Makens said the new state law requires that he believe there is enough information about the purchase offer for an investor to make an informed decision to accept or reject it.

Gerber has filed a federal court suit in Grand Rapids challenging the takeover bid. One ground is a claim the takeover could create a baby food monopoly in violation of federal law.

Anderson, Clayton denied that claim in a countersuit seeking dismissal of Gerber's suit. The Texas firm also asked for a court ban on further Gerber comments about the purchase offer until earlier statements Anderson, Clayton insisted are false are corrected.

A hearing on the federal court issues is scheduled tentatively for June 20, according to a court clerk.

If a merger occurs, it would leave a firm with total sales exceeding $1.1 billion. Anderson, Clayton sales last year were $759 million while Gerber's reached a record $372 million.

Teachers Completed Consumer Institute

ECU News Bureau
Thirty eastern North Carolina high school teachers have completed a concentrated study of consumer education concepts at East Carolina University.

The teachers, representing the fields of business education, mathematics, vocational education, home economics, language arts and social studies, were participants in a Consumer Education Institute directed by Dr. Vila Rosenfeld of the ECU School of Home Economics.

All participating teachers attended Saturday institute sessions on the ECU campus from September 1976, through May 7, 1977.

Purpose of the institute was to upgrade teachers' knowledge of consumer education concepts. Among the specific topics studied were relationships of government and business activities, provision of goods and services in the marketplace, handling of consumer complaints and new consumer representation and regulations.

"We expect that the institute will ultimately touch the lives of many consumers," commented Dr. Rosenfeld. "It will affect the participating teachers, their students, and could serve as a model for other areas in mobilizing various agencies to meet the needs of consumers."

The 30 teachers involved in the institute have been teaching consumer education concepts in their classes during the past school year.

Names of area participating teachers, and their fields of education, follow:

The Name's The Thing

LAKE LAND, Fla. (AP) — What do January, Snow White, Easy Rider, Lasagne, Lucky Hippopotamus and Silver Ware all have in common?

They are among the unusual names given babies across Florida's heartland. Others that Everett Williams, director of the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Jacksonville has on a list he's put together the past eight years include Starlight Cauliflower, Crystal Chandlerier, Prarie Totsiua, Shantu Cantrre, Dor Bel, Bright Berger and Sweet Tart.

Evan Day, a statistics official, said his secretary came to him one day and said she had a problem. She couldn't fit a name on a computer card. Day wanted to know what the name was.

"Bobby John Wayne Ellis Jefferson Davis Crawford Rebr on Daniel Max." And that didn't include the child's last name.

Then there's Truewillough-inglifebuckyboormermanifest — destiny — all one word as a first name. "That's the first name," Day said. "The only letter capitalized is the 'T'."

The middle name? George James.

more popular Middle America comedy series that was on from 1950 to 1951.

As with NBC's show, the Bland show also reunites its original cast — Peter Bore as the father, Bernadette Estrange as the mother, Everett Scrimshaw as Little Willie and Sue Tidball as Ellie.

"The Bland Family" was really ahead of its time," says Marc deSmyth, the 22-year-old producer of the coming reunion special. "For example, Ellie had a boyfriend."

"Little Willie had a car. His mother had an electric stove. It seems pretty tame now, but this was quite radical for TV back then."

deSmyth noted that unlike many family comedies of the '50s, "The Bland Family" actually spelled out what kindly, understanding Jim Bland, the father in the series, did for a living.

"He was a business executive," deSmyth said. "He didn't spend all his time coming home and saying, 'Hi, hon, I'm home,' then slipping into a smoking jacket and giving advice to his kids. No, sir."

"One scene, which we'll bring back for our show, even has him picking up the phone, calling Cleveland and placing an order."

deSmyth, discussing the work involved in getting the original "Bland Family" cast together again, said it took him nine months and countless phone calls to track down everyone.

Peter Bore, now 75, had retired from acting when the series folded and was "just sitting on the front porch" of his home in Logan, Utah, when located for the reunion, the producer said.

Miss Estrange, who played the mother, was found in Short Pump, Va., where she runs an organic tobacco store and dips snuff.

Sue Tidball, memorable as Ellie, the headstrong tomboy, was found living on a ranch in Truth or Consequence, N.M., married to Dobie Gillis, a former teen-ager.

"Locating Everett Scrimshaw (who played Little Willie) was hardest of all," deSmyth recalled. "He was in the state prison at Joliet, Ill., doing five to life for aggravated dullness."

He said the coming "Bland Family Reunion" centers on the 40th anniversary of the night kindly, understanding Jim Bland brought his boss home for dinner without advance warning.

The bidding:
North East South West
3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Seven of ♦.

Quite often it is a pure guess which of two cards in a suit you should play. However, there are circumstances that can dictate your choice. Study the heart suit in this hand.

With the vulnerability in his favor, North opened with a preemptive bid of three clubs—since he could take six tricks in his own hand, the bid conformed to the Rule of Two and Three. (The preemptor should be able to take within two tricks of his contract when vulnerable, three tricks when not vulnerable.) South made a perfectly normal response of three no trump. All that remained was for him to make the contract.

West made his natural lead of the fourth-best from his long suit, East played the king and declarer made the technically correct play of holding up. East continued with the nine of spades, covered by the ten and won by the jack. West knocked out declarer's last spade stopper. He chose the queen of spades for this purpose, suggesting that his entry was in the higher-ranking suit, i.e., hearts.

Declarer won the ace of spades and knocked out the ace of clubs, and East dutifully shifted to a low heart. Declarer was now at the crossroads.

Had declarer needed a trick from the heart suit, his play would be purely a guess. If East was leading from the queen of hearts, declarer would have to play the jack; if East was underleading the ace, the king would be the winning play.

But the heart trick had no bearing on the fate of the contract—declarer had enough tricks without the heart suit. What was certain was that if West gained the lead with a heart, he would be able to cash two spade tricks to beat the game. Therefore, declarer's goal is to prevent West from gaining the lead.

If declarer inserts the jack, West will get on lead if he holds either the ace or queen. However, if declarer goes up with the king, West will be able to win only if he has the ace of hearts. Obviously, therefore, the play of the king stands twice the chance of bringing in the contract as that of the jack, and indeed it would work here.

Parade Of Homes

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

As president of the Greenville Home Builders Association I am proud to extend to you and your families a very cordial invitation from all the Greenville Home Builders, to visit and inspect these outstanding homes that will be open for your inspection on May 14 and May 15. It is our hope that you will visit all the homes in the Parade of Homes. They can easily be identified by the Signs with the National Association of Home Builders Seal which means that the Builder is a member, who has subscribed to the Code of Ethics of this Association.

Home Building is the second largest industry in the United States and one of the major industries that provides one of man's basic needs—Shelter from the elements.

These homes are built by skilled craftsmen, who produce quality homes for individual tastes and needs. It has been proven many times that a home increases in value over the years rather than decrease with age as most of the other products we buy.

Homes are not getting any cheaper, instead it seems that the cost keeps going up. I wonder, will you be asking yourself the question, "Why didn't I buy that house last year?" If you have the desire and need, today is a good day for buying a home.

Helpful care tips for lawn equipment

Just about every homeowner in America has one or more pieces of yard and lawn equipment and knows the basic ways to work them. But not everyone is as readily familiar with the safety and maintenance procedures that should be observed for their proper operation and care.

If you own or operate any yard and lawn equipment, consult this safety and maintenance checklist to ensure that no potential equipment problems exist:

- Never use electric tools when it's raining or on wet surfaces.

- Use a power lawn mower or clippers only in dry grass or on dry shrubs.

- Fertilizer, which attracts moisture and invites rust, should not be allowed to build up on tools. Wash hand tools, spreader, and other metal garden equipment regularly with full-strength Janitor In A Drum®, rinse and let dry. (Be sure to disconnect electric equipment before attempting to clean them.)

- If you use a metal ladder, keep it away from electric power lines.

Is house on time?

If a clock runs five minutes slow or fast, professionals say it is "off time." When timepieces in the home are not accurate, time varies from room to room. Which clock can you depend on?

The makers of Westclox say that every home should have at least two kinds of alarm clocks: springwound, like the wind-up Big Ben and Little Ben models, but also an electric alarm.

The reason is that people forget to wind a clock. Yet power often fails, so an electric alarm isn't infallible. You need both types!

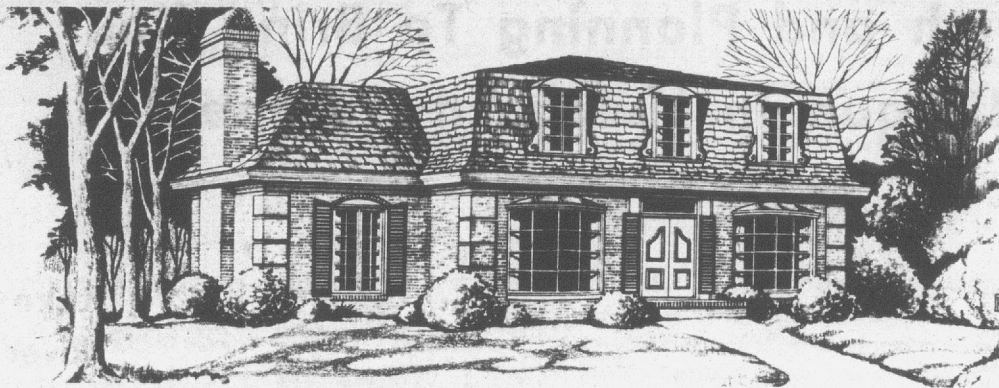

In wall clocks, battery models now have a quartz crystal for utmost accuracy. Westclox Quartzmatic clocks don't need winding or electric power.

Modern, And 'Total Comfort'

Sharp angles, lots of glass and a wooded lot comprise the beauty of the WEDCO contemporary home at 3103 Ellsworth Drive. A cathedral ceiling in the living room makes way for an entertainment area and wet bar in the loft.

A dining area and efficient galley-style kitchen are an integral part of the entertainment area of the house. Decking off of the living room wraps up the total easy living environment of this contemporary home.

The use of insulated windows, added insulation and a heat pump make this environment efficient and economical as well. The one-story house features a dishwasher, garbage disposal, continuous clean oven and range hood to simplify household tasks. The 26½ nylon Saxony carpet provides cushioned comfort.

This WEDCO home is located on one-third of an acre in Lake Ellsworth and is surrounded by a natural environment.

Formed in 1967 under the name of W. E. Dansey Company, WEDCO has built multi-family housing complexes such as Tar River Estates, Tau Valley Estates in Rocky Mount and Brandywine Hills in Wilson. In 1972 WEDCO began construction of single-family housing in Lake Ellsworth and Riverhills.

At present WEDCO is building contemporary homes with an emphasis on efficiency and economy as well as larger conventional homes. The company is also developing Courtney Square Apartments.

Employees of WEDCO say they pride themselves on building houses anyone would be proud to call home.

Shop to find best finance deal

Home improvement loans have become a shopper's market. Nearly every bank and finance company will welcome an application for a loan to finance a home improvement.

Many contractors make it easy by arranging it for the homeowner. He merely signs the papers that are pulled out of a briefcase.

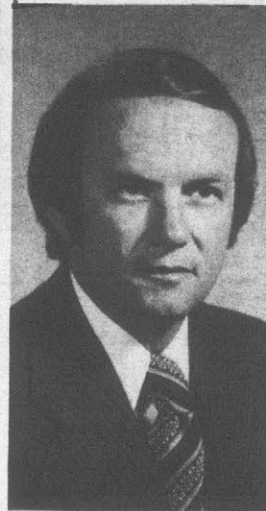

But like nearly every kind of merchandise sold, the price you pay for the financing and the terms offered can vary greatly from lender to lender, according to the Lenders' Council of NHIC.

The homeowner is advised to shop around to save money and get the very best deal available.

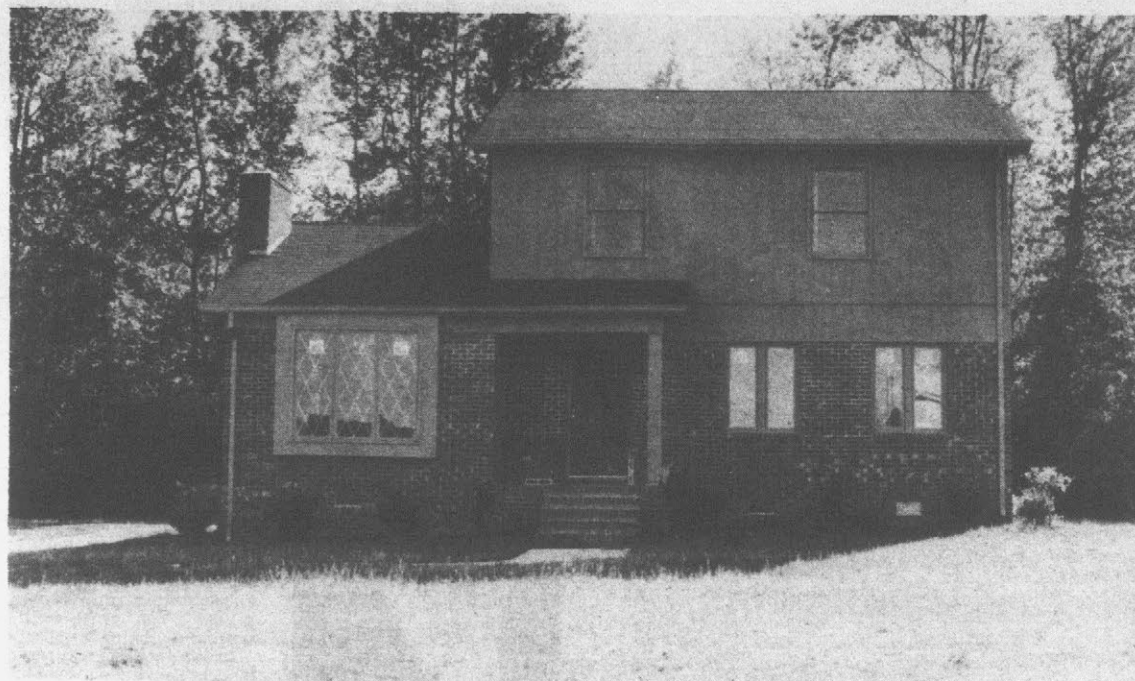

A credit union loan is another possibility, as is a bank passbook loan, one of the cheapest of loans, which is borrowing against money in a savings account at a net cost of no more than two percent or so total interest.

Next cheapest loan is borrowing the cash value built up in your life insurance.

Next step is a regular bank loan.

The green thumb

Plants have become the biggest "must" in home decor, and it's no wonder. Greenery adds a refreshing touch to any room and looks right with every style of furnishings, from contemporary to colonial.

If you are or would like to be a plant-lover, but lack a green thumb, have a home that's too dark or drafty for plants, or just want to fill in and brighten up hard-to-decorate areas, don't despair; you can spruce up your abode with beautiful artificial houseplants.

Many of the fine old houses you see today were built in an era where pride in craftsmanship meant a great deal. They were comfortable, practical, and built to last. Today these are the qualities you'll find in Greenville's newest planned development, CAMBRIDGE.

CAMBRIDGE offers a variety of three and four bedroom homes, ranging in price from $35,000 to $47,000. All are air conditioned, carpeted throughout and equipped with energy saving heat pumps, with numerous options from which to choose. Whether you're looking for a ranch house, a split level, or a two-story, you'll find them all at CAMBRIDGE. Best of all, if you need financing, it can be arranged conventionally or VA.

Located off Hooker Road CAMBRIDGE was designed by Realty Industries to be near recreation and shopping areas. It's the one development made especially for people like you who want the finest quality home at prices you can afford.

CAMBRIDGE is now open for inspection. For further information, call Blount & Ball Realty Co. at 752-6163.

Strong Housing Demand Forecast

WASHINGTON — Strong demand for new single family homes and generally favorable economic conditions will continue to fuel housing's production recovery for at least the remainder of 1977, according to some of the nation's leading housing economists.

The housing forecasts for 1977 and 1978 were made at a Housing Forecast Conference sponsored by the National Ass'n of Home Builders (NAHB). Participants included Leonard Santow, consultant for the J. Henry

Schroder, Inc.; Kenneth Thygeson, chief economist of the U.S. League of Savings Associations; Kenneth Rosen of Princeton University, who also works on NAHB's econometric model; and Bob Sheehan, NAHB's deputy chief economist. The program was moderated by NAHB Chief Economist Michael Sumichrast.

There was a general consensus among the economists that housing starts for 1977 would total between 1.8 and 1.9 million units, including a record 1.4 million single family starts.

The strong performance in single family housing was attributed to a plentiful supply of mortgage money and a record number of potential buyers who view a home as the best investment they could ever make.

Rosen noted that new household formations would increase about thirty per cent in the next decade as more and more of the post World War II baby boom children reach the prime home buying ages between 25-35.

We're No. 1 With People

There are many ways you can be number one. You can be number one in your class, number one on your team or your team can be ranked number one. If your company sells more of what it makes than any other company — then your company is number one. You can be the head man — numero uno of your company. Or maybe you're just number one to somebody special.

We're number one to a lot of "special people" — our customers. You see, our customers aren't just computer numbers, account references, or tabulations. Our customers are people.

And as long as we're serving the people of Eastern North Carolina we're going to stay number one ... with people.

It all starts at Home.

Space In A Four-Level House

This quadri-level beauty in the lovely Club Pines subdivision has ample area for the large family or the small one who enjoy lots of space.

Located at 108 Ironwood Drive, the two-story house with four levels has four bedrooms, two and a half baths, both a living room and a family room, and a dining room (separate from the modern kitchen) which opens onto a wood deck.

The energy-saving heat pump is employed to provide heat and air conditioning, and extras include a self-cleaning range and oven, a dishwasher, refuse disposal, and exhaust hood over the range.

Wall-to-wall carpeting is used throughout and wallpaper enhances the dining room. The kitchen and family room are wainscoted with birch paneling, and custom-made cabinets are featured.

The builder, Merle Bowser, says that this is a unique house in that it is designed with all areas "zoned." The den and utility room are on the bottom level; the kitchen, living room and dining room on the next level, and all bedrooms are on the third and fourth levels, away from the living areas.

The setting for this home is a pine-studded lot, already seeded and shrubbed.

Bowser is associated with Realty Industries Inc., a volume builder of homes reflecting the needs of Greenville, a growing community. Based in Richmond, Va., Realty opened its Greenville office in the spring of 1973. Bowser has been running this office, which serves Eastern North Carolina, since April, 1974.

Besides supervising construction in the Cambridge subdivision here, Bowser is currently developing subdivisions in Rocky Mount and Wilson and has recently completed two large multifamily complexes in Jacksonville and New Bern. As active members of the Greenville Home Builders Association, Realty Industries Inc. and its representative, Merle Bowser, are building houses with "a fresh approach to life."

Unique shades are ready-made

Do-it-yourselfers with a keen eye for duplicating good-looking custom effects are purring over the marvelous, ready-made window shades one can now find in variety stores.

It's the perfect extra touch to liven up a kitchen window — often a neglected spot. Some of these shades come scalloped or fringed in appropriate colors; others can be trimmed to taste at home.

One way or the other, the gamut of color and texture available in cut-at-the-counter "stock shades" is well worth exploring!

MERLE BOWSER

Home No. 6—108 Ironwood Drive

Twenty-six years of experience, careful planning, craftsmanship, and innovation have made Realty Industries, Inc. a volume builder of homes reflecting the needs of growing communities. With a concern for developing a product to fit the market and its demands, Realty Industries had assumed a "Back to Basics", no frills posture. Based in Richmond, Va., Realty first opened its office in Greenville in the spring of 1973. Greenville branch manager Merle Bowser has been running operations in Eastern North Carolina since April 1974.

Besides supervising construction in Cambridge Subdivision, Merle is currently developing subdivisions in Rocky Mount and Wilson, and has recently completed 2 large multi-family complexes in Jacksonville and New Bern. An active member of the Greenville Home Builders Association, Merle and Realty Industries, Inc. are building houses with "a fresh approach to life".

How to make outdoor projects quick and fun

A wishing well planter can add a touch of beauty and interest to your yard or patio without taking a lot of time or money thanks to new easy-to-follow plans now available.

With the appearance of old, heavy brick, the planter may look difficult, but you can actually build-it-yourself in a few afternoons. The quick assembly time and low cost is due to a unique construction, using plywood and Z-BRICK brand facebrick.

The brick facings are less than 1/2-inch thick, yet they look and feel remarkably like their heavy, hard-to-handle real counterparts. The Z-BRICK is applied to a simple plywood sheathing to give the wishing well the look of real masonry—without messy mortars or concrete.

The plans tell you how to build the roof and crank assembly and you can choose from several different designs.

Lightweight Z-BRICK is both fireproof and weatherproof, making it ideal for all kinds of outdoor projects, like barbecues and planter boxes.

Available in several textures and colors, Z-BRICK will fit right into almost any yard or home decor.

Plans for the wishing well planter, as well as for four other easy-to-build summer projects are available by sending 50¢ to Z-Brick Company, Dept MDPB, Woodinville, WA 98072.

Vines save money for homeowners

Ivy and vines are nature's insulators. Planted on masonry walls, or on trellises or arbors adjacent to wooden walls, they help block out hot summer sun and keep buildings cooler on the inside.

A convection current also develops behind the cool green leaves that draws warm air away from the wall.

In winter, ivies and vines planted on the windward sides of a building help block out chilling winds and serve as insulation to keep heat in and cold air out.

Seek out energy savers

Homeowners planning to renovate their kitchens will find some surprising innovations in appliances, especially power-saving features and improved insulation.

One energy-saving refrigerator uses about a third less electricity than other models not equipped with its special thermostatically controlled motor.

While it is true that the amount of electricity consumed by a refrigerator each operating hour is a modest amount, it's also true that it is operated twenty-four hours around the clock for 365 days a year.

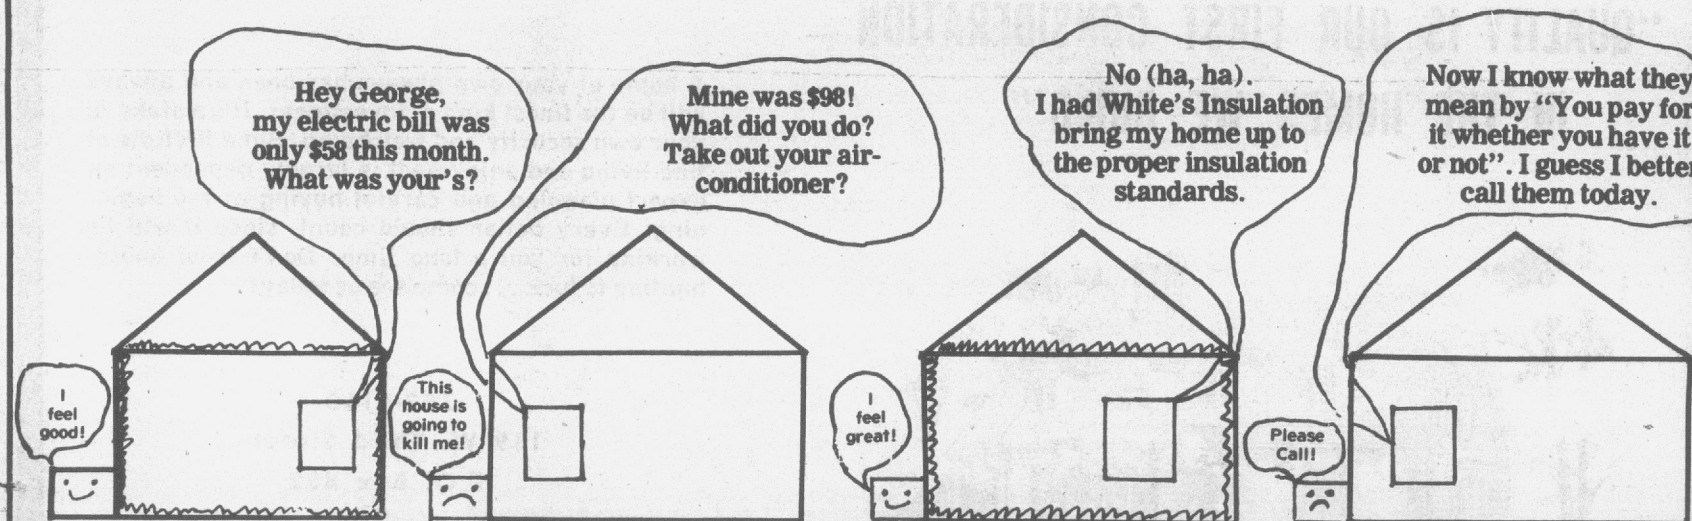

Even though frost-free refrigerators do use more kilowatts of energy annually than non-frost-free models, they avoid the extra energy drain resulting from frost accumulation.

Today's power-saving refrigerators also preserve food longer during power failures, which become alarmingly more common each year.

Naturally, there's a higher price tag on these models, but operating savings in the long run more than repay the initial purchase price, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

Early American With A View

Older home know-how

More people today are looking for an older home when they buy a house. Not only have building costs soared but older homes often have more charm, are better built, and are in established neighborhoods with services and facilities.

However, buying an older home can be risky if you don't know what you're doing.

There is a book called Finding and Fixing the Older Home which can help you avoid the pitfalls in buying an older home. It describes how to judge house values, appraise house construction, and spot trouble areas that might need expensive repairs — it even tells you how to deal with financing.

There are complete details on repairs and remodeling once the purchase is made. All instructions are so basic and specific that you can tell whether you can tackle the job personally or will need a contractor.

All areas of the home are covered with particular attention to remodeling kitchens and bathrooms and installing appliances. Recommendations on the best materials

Adventure In A Contemporary

The WEDCO-built home of Dr. and Mrs. Wendall E. Allen at 808 River Hills Drive South is an exciting adventure in contemporary living. A walk across the bridge over the stream will carry you to a lovely home nestled in a heavily wooded lot.

The two bedroom, two bathroom home features a spacious living room with a fireplace and a large dining room. Overlooking the living room and accessible by a spiraling stairway is a large game loft. The kitchen features butcher block Formica countertops and all built-in appliances including a dishwasher, garbage disposal, continuous clean oven and range.

Decking off of the living room and dining room provides great areas for entertaining and enjoying the out of doors. The selected placement of windows throughout the house provides interesting lighting and brings the feeling of nature within.

WEDCO was formed in 1967 and operated under the name of W. E. Dansey Company, building multi-family housing complexes such as Tar River Estates, Tau Valley Estates in Rocky Mount and Brandywine Hills in Wilson. In 1972 WEDCO began construction of single family housing in Lake Ellsworth, a planned community with complete recreational facilities, and Riverhills, a country environment outside of Greenville.

At present WEDCO is building efficiency-oriented contemporary homes designed to be economical as well as larger, more conventional homes. The company is also developing Courtney Square Apartments, a unique environment for family living.

Company officials say they pride themselves on their hard work and down-to-earth professionalism.

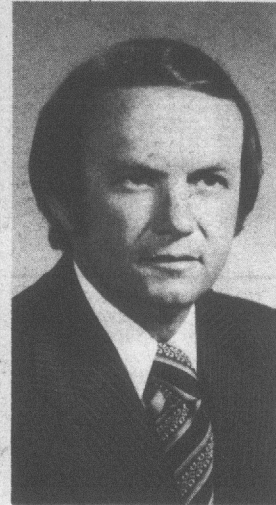

Winsome windows

According to Barbara Taylor, interior design expert, "There's no question about it, window shades are probably the cheapest product available today for dressing up any window in any room in your home."

The ordinary little window shade has undergone vast improvements in the last decade. Now it is available in any color as well as in numerous textures and materials.

Through the addition of fancy trims and pulls, the plain window shade can take on extra decorative looks.

Some shades are easy to laminate with fabrics through a simple iron-on method. Laminated shades with matching draperies create a handsome effect at a window."

Contemporary In Rustic Design

For those who have a penchant for a contemporary house featuring modern conveniences in stark, but rustic design, a two-story house at No. 309 Cherry Oaks, 105 Williams Street might be just what a buyer has in mind. Exterially sheathed in vertical cedar, this roomy house abounding in practical touches is suitable for a larger family.

In addition to four bedrooms, the house includes a foyer, an activity room, a kitchen, dining room and a separate breakfast area, two bathrooms, and a utility room.

Other features are a large wood deck on the back of the house with built-in seating. A front deck is incorporated into the entrance area of the house.

Internal mechanical features consist of a dishwasher, a drop-in self-cleaning range, and range hood.

Trees are one of the outstanding points about this large wooded lot, which measures 115 by 200 by 108 feet.

Altogether, the living area of this house with its compact floor plan provides 2,080 square feet that handles family traffic easily. Different levels of the design provide a natural zone that separates all the bedrooms from the rest of the house.

An impressive fireplace is faced with cedar shake shingles, with the raised hearth and opening of the fireplace covered in a rough finish ceramic tile of tan and chocolate browns.

Neutral colors have been used throughout the house which will complement any color scheme and act as a good backdrop for paintings, plants and accessories. The entire back portion of the house encompasses a series of sliding glass doors which provide abundant natural light as well as give an unobstructed view of the wooded area.

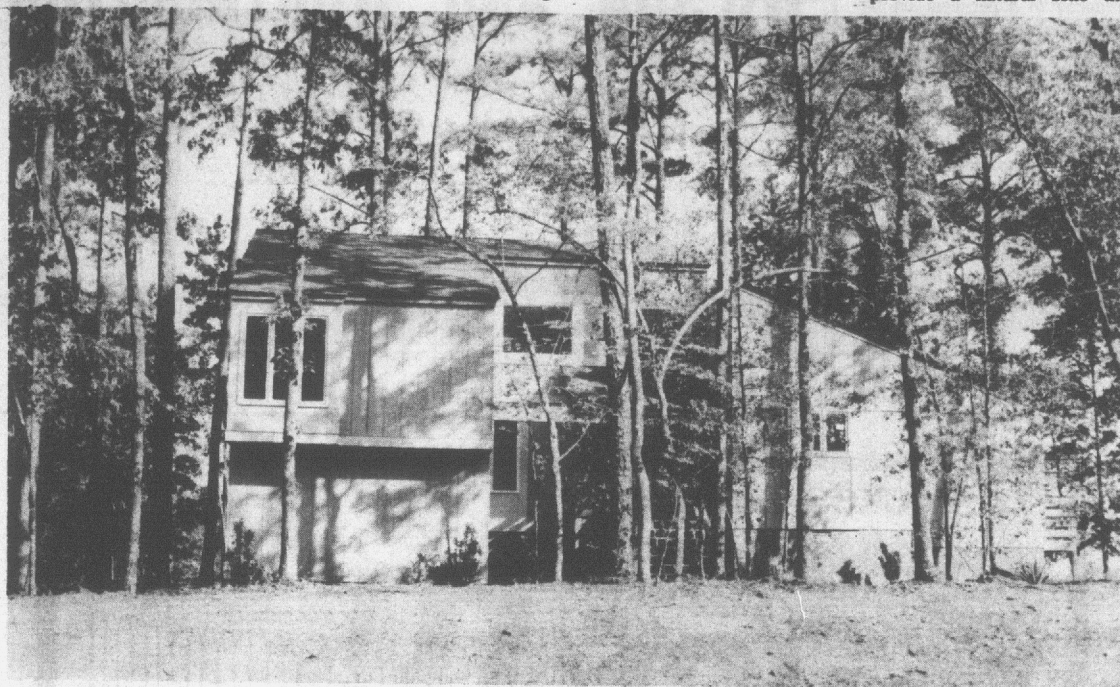

Cherry Oaks, the subdivision in which this contemporary home is located, is headed by Leroy Cherry, president of Cherry Oaks, Inc. The firm, established as a Real Estate Development company in 1968 for the Cherry Oaks Subdivision, has as its right hand man, Bill Clark.

Clark came to Cherry Oaks as vice-president in 1972, and was previously associated with Wachovia Mortgage Company.

Both Cherry and Clark are active members of the Greenville Home Builders Association, and are also members of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors.

Cherry notes homes in this subdivision are built with the homeowner in mind and that he is proud of the careful planning and consideration that goes into each home.

NAHB Supports FHA Revisions

WASHINGTON — Legislation that would reduce required downpayments and increase mortgage limits under the Federal Housing Administration's mortgage insurance programs has been endorsed by the National Association of Home Builders.

Testifying before the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, NAHB Vice President-Treasurer Vondal Gravlee said that the changes were necessary because the sales price of newly constructed FHA insured homes has increased 41 per cent since 1973 while the mortgage limits and downpayment requirements have remained the same.

Under the housing authorization legislation considered by the committee, mortgage limits under a number of FHA insurance programs for single family homes would be hiked to $60,000 from $45,000. Downpayment requirements would remain at 3 per cent on the first $25,000 of value, but would be reduced to 5 per cent on the value in excess of $25,000. For instance, under the proposed rules a qualified borrower could obtain an 8 per cent FHA insured mortgage loan on a $60,000 home with a $2,500 downpayment.

The proposed changes in the FHA program are supported by the Carter Administration.

NAHB also endorsed a proposal that would increase mortgage limits under the Section 235 homeownership program to $31,000 ($36,000 for four bedroom or larger homes). In high cost areas the mortgage limit would jump to $36,000 ($42,000 for four bedroom or larger homes.)

Architect can help save money

Many a homeowner is reluctant to call on an architect for remodeling because an architect is believed to be unnecessary.

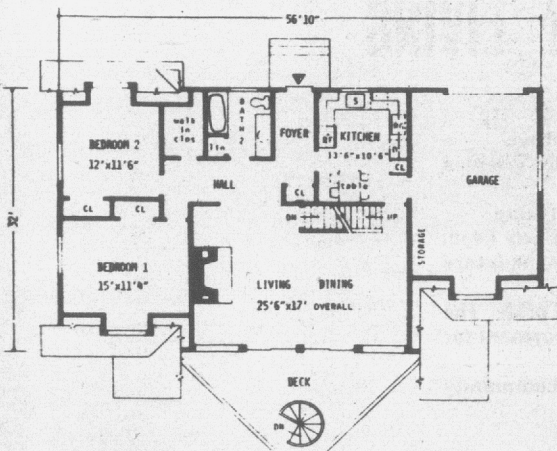

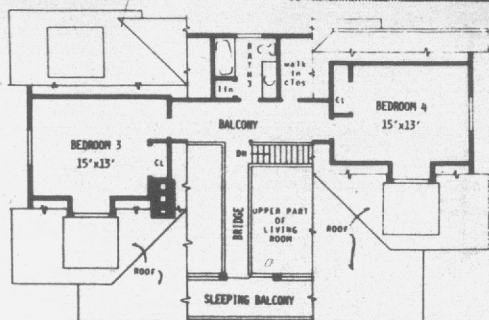

This is not always true and may turn out to be a penny-wise, pound-foolish omission, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

The homeowner who wishes his home to be truly well-designed would do well to consider using an architect for his remodeling project.

An architect can make a major contribution to remodeling—and sometimes even repay his fee in terms of construction savings—when the homeowner needs a new addition, or makes a basic change in the house plan or structure.

Modern methods make care of carpets a snap

Your carpets and rugs are among the most expensive furnishings in your home. So, it's no wonder that you want to take the best care of them you can. That means regular cleaning and attention to spots and stains — with the help of modern carpet care techniques.

Like kitchen floor

Actually, when it comes to cleaning, your carpet is very much like your kitchen floor. Most likely, you frequently sweep the kitchen to remove dirt and crumbs and wash it regularly to remove greasy dirt build-up.

Similarly, your carpet needs to be vacuumed to remove the gritty dirt that can shorten its life. This should be done a minimum of once a week, using long, slow strokes and going over each area several times. For best results, your vacuum should also be in top working condition.

Furthermore, like your kitchen floor, it's important to "wash" your carpeting to remove greasy soil and grime.
