Bettie Stanfield suggested that the society give Miss Muffly a set of the pictures of the play. Some thought that we ought to give Miss Hill and Miss Graham a set for their services also. After a very hot discussion for and against this, a motion was made finally just to give Miss Muffly one and just write Misses Hill, Graham, and Lewis a note for their services.

Helene James told the society that she and her committee had bought some bulbs and planted them around the dining room.

The secretary then read a letter from Wanda Lee, a former member of our society, saying how interested she was in the work of the society this year. She sent us three dollars ($3.00) which ~~was~~ is to be used in furnishing our society hall. Here again did the society vote that we send her a note of thanks.

Miss Herring said we ought to challenge the Laniers for the intersociety debate this year. This was left open until next meeting for thought.

Misses Herring, Wallace, Bland, and Vann were then elected to act as marshalls at any public meeting held here until commencement marshalls are elected.

The critic reports was that she thought the order of the evening could be greatly improved and that she hoped that it would be before next meeting.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned.
