Carter Flies To Offshore Drilling Rig

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — President Carter demonstrated his administration's interest in oil production today by visiting an offshore drilling rig off the Louisiana coast.

Carter's flight across the Gulf of Mexico followed a nationally broadcast meeting Thursday night in which the President fielded questions from sweltering citizens in Yazoo City, Miss.

Carter flew by helicopter to reach a huge drilling platform that stands in 500 feet of water on the edge of the continental shelf.

"It's a good way to illustrate the fact that, contrary to the full-page ads the oil companies are running in newspapers, there is a considerable interest or emphasis on production in this administration's national energy policy, to the tune of billions of dollars," said White House press secretary Jody Powell.

Powell said, for example, that under the administration energy plan oil companies would have $15 billion worth of additional incentives over a five-year period to explore for fresh supplies of natural gas because of the administration's proposal to raise prices.

Powell's reference to oil company advertising apparently was aimed at Mobil Oil, which had full-page ads in some newspapers today. Those ads were sharply critical of the administration's energy plan.

At Yazoo City, Carter told his audience at a steamy high school that he believes present federal programs can be continued, if not expanded, and taxes cut with the federal budget in balance by 1981.

He said this could be done "under normal economic circumstances" if the bureaucracy is reorganized and properly managed.

Reviewing his first six months in office, the President

54-County Area

N.C. Drought Disaster Status Asked

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If the federal government responds favorably to Gov. Jim Hunt's request that 54 central North Carolina counties be declared "emergency drought impact areas," municipalities, businesses and farms there will be eligible for low-interest loans and other federal aid.

The governor asked the new federal Inter-Agency Drought Emergency Coordinating Committee to make the designation Thursday.

Hunt said in a news conference that he will meet with state and federal officials today to discuss the dry spell's impact and how to soften it.

Appearing with Hunt was Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, who said heat and water shortages have killed most corn and silage and have heavily damaged tobacco in the Piedmont.

"Many farmers have run out of feed for their livestock. They are having to sell because pastures are burned up and they can't graze animals...Ponds are drying up or becoming stagnant. 'Poultry, swine and cattle are dying from the heat, and in some cases, from lack of good water,' Graham said.

Once a county is declared an emergency drought area, farmers and communities with diminishing water supplies become eligible for Farmers Home Administration loans at five per cent interest.

The Department of the Interior can supply interest free loans to augment utilities and conserve water supplies for irrigation and farming operations, Hunt said.

Also, the Department of Commerce will make available grants and loans to areas with populations of 10,000 or more which are suffering from water shortages, and businessmen hurt by the drought will be eligible for Small Business Administration loans.

Counties named in the drought area are as follows:

Rutherford, Cleveland, Gaston, Lincoln, Catawba, Mecklenburg, Iredell, Union, Anson, Stanley, Cabarrus, Rowan, Davie, Yadkin, Surry, Stokes, Forsyth, Davidson, Montgomery, Richmond, Scotland, Robeson, Bladen, Cumberland, Hoke, Harnett, Lee, Moore, Chatham, Randolph, Guilford, Rockingham, Caswell, Alamance, Orange, Durham, Person, Granville, Vance, Warren, Halifax, Northampton, Franklin, Nash, Edgecombe, Pitt, Wilson, Greene, Lenoir, Wayne, Johnston, Duplin, Sampson and Wake.

Seek Defuse Border Clash

CAIRO (AP) — Arab leaders worked today to defuse an Egyptian-Libyan border confrontation that erupted into a desert air and armor battle. A senior Egyptian official said he expects the crisis to "peter out."

Egypt and Libya accused each other of provoking Thursday's border clash. There were no reports of any new fighting today, the Moslem Sabbath.

Mahmoud Riad, secretary-general of the Arab League, reportedly was seeking to convene an emergency meeting of Arab foreign ministers to resolve the dispute.

Riad issued a statement deploring the "terrible incidents along the border" and urging the two sides not to escalate the conflict.

The Egyptian official, who asked not to be identified, said Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — leader Yasir Arafat also was attempting to intervene.

Arafat flew to Libya Thursday night immediately after a 90-minute meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The official said Arafat "is coming back today and maybe

Nine Victims

PROSPECT, Conn. (AP) — The bodies of a mother, seven of her children and a visiting cousin were found in their fire-wrecked house early today in this suburb of Waterbury, police said. Authorities confirmed that at least half the victims were bound and gagged, but would not comment on reports that the woman was shot.

A state police spokesman also would not comment on a report that the fire appeared to have been set and smoldered for at least an hour before firemen arrived at 4:10 a.m.

Police said a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Palino, smelled smoke and heard screams coming from the home and notified fire authorities.

The dead woman was identified as Cheryl Beaudoin. Police identified the children as Fred, 12, Sharon, 10, Debbie, 9, Paul, 8, Rod, 6, Holly 5 and Mary Lou, 4. The eighth child was identified as Jennifer Santoro, 6, a visiting cousin from Waterbury.

Police said the husband, Fred Beaudoin, was working the midnight to 7 a.m. shift as a machinist at the Pratt & Whitney plant in North Haven at the time of the fire.

The spokesman described the house as a modest wood frame structure in a rural section of this central Connecticut town.

Hunt Trio In Jail Escape

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Local law enforcement officers continued their search today for three prisoners who escaped from the Pitt County Jail yesterday afternoon after two of them overpowered the jailer.

According to Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the three escapees were James H. Johnson, 25, of 508 Battle Street; Gary Wooten, 19, of 301 Paris Avenue; and James Teel, 19, of 1102 Colonial Avenue.

Sheriff Tyson said that two of the prisoners were being taken back to their cells from the visiting area when the jailer, Bill Jefferson, was jumped. Jefferson reported that he had unlocked the cell door when the incident occurred.

The sheriff pointed out that after Jefferson was overpowered, a third prisoner left the jail cell although several others remained in the unlocked section. Jefferson was taken to the hallway leading to the cells and left, it was noted.

Sheriff Tyson said that the three escapees took Jefferson's keys to the jail and fled through the back door of the jail area. The keys were later found near Planters Bank on Third Street, it was noted.

All three prisoners, who were awaiting trial on armed robbery charges, have now been charged with escape, robbery and assault on a law enforcement officer, the sheriff said.

Johnson had received a seven months sentence Thursday following trial on assault and damage to personal property charges. His bond had been set at $15,000, Sheriff Tyson reported, while Wooten also had a $15,000 bond and Teel a bond of $5,000.

Johnson and Teel had been in jail here since June 24 and Wooten had been in custody since June 25.

Jefferson was treated for bruises received in the escape, the sheriff added.

Sheriff Tyson urged anyone with information concerning the escapees to notify the nearest law enforcement agency.

Wooten was described as being five feet, 11 inches tall and weighing 135 pounds while Johnson is five feet, eight inches tall and weighs 140 pounds. Teel is five feet six inches tall and weighs 140 pounds, the sheriff said. All three are black.

Cambodians And Thais In Battle

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Thai troops backed by artillery and aircraft battled again today with Cambodian forces in the third day of a bloody border dispute, Thai military commanders said.

They reported no new Thai casualties. At least 17 Thais were killed and about 50 others wounded in clashes Wednesday and Thursday.

The fighting centers around the village of Noi Parai, 140 miles east of Bangkok, an area of rice paddies and scrub land claimed by both Thailand and Cambodia.

Reports said Thai artillery and aircraft, hampered by monsoon rains, were attempting to knock out Cambodian emplacements around the village.

The black-clad Cambodian Communist troops, reportedly about 100 yards from Thai forward positions, countered with small-arms fire and rocket-propelled grenades.

A military spokesman said Thai troops would not push into Cambodia because "it would allow a third or fourth hand to intervene in the matter which would lead to war between the two countries." He did not elaborate.

Thai sources said Cambodian casualties were high, but they gave no estimates.

Officials of Thailand's right-wing military government had said earlier they received reports that 30 Cambodians were killed in the previous fighting, but again there was no confirmation.

Thai Foreign Minister Upadit Pachariyankun told reporters in Bangkok today that Thailand would send an urgent protest note to Cambodia. He said he did not know the reason for the fighting but suspected it may have erupted over frontier demarcation. Both countries claim the area as their own.

The firefight began when military patrols of both countries suddenly confronted each other in the disputed area.

Flood Toll At Johnstown Is Now 46 Lives

By CHRIS ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer
JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Refugees and a volunteer army battling mud and fatigue have found 46 dead in this flood-ravaged city. Dozens are missing, and damage is put at more than $200 million.

On Thursday, bodies were pulled from bashed houses and twisted rubble littering the scarred seven-county flood area in southwestern Pennsylvania.

"We're expecting more bodies," said deputy Cambria County coroner Arthur Keiper from his makeshift morgue in the East Hills Elementary School near here. Officials said they had no way yet to accurately guess how many might be dead.

Scattered looting was reported throughout the area, and some residents armed themselves to protect what little they had left. Police arrested three men ransacking a Johnstown bar Thursday night.

Half an inch of fresh rain belted this devastated city of 41,000 Thursday afternoon, briefly raising fears of another deluge, before tapering off to a steady drizzle.

"Oh, my God, were people concerned," said county Civil Defense director Elmer Shenk.

"It looked like a major storm, and that's all we would have needed."

The city was evacuated shortly before the storm, which set off mudslides in several areas. Winds up to 65 miles an hour whipped up caked mud, cutting visibility to 100 yards.

The National Weather Service forecast good weather for the weekend, however, giving cleanup crews hope that they would be able to resume work in earnest.

"There is hardly anything that creates the mess a flood creates," said Jack Minnotte, chief of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' engineering division assigned here.

The Corps said damage in Johnstown alone would exceed $117 million.

"Had we not built the flood control project in Johnstown after the 1936 flood, those damages today would be $465 million," said Herman Lardieri, a flood plain management expert.

President Carter declared the region a federal disaster area on Thursday and dispatched special assistant Greg Schneiders to serve, as Schneiders described it, as the President's "eyes and ears."

Richard Sanderson, staff director from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, was assigned to coordinate federal relief efforts.

Purged Teng Is Restored

TOKYO (AP) — China announced today that Teng Hsiaping has been restored to all his old posts — vice premier, Communist party vice chairman and chief of the army general staff.

Announcement of the 73-year-old Teng's return to the forefront of the political scene was made by the official Chinese news agency, Hsinhua.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, Hsinhua said the action was taken by the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party in a meeting that was held in Peking July 16-21.

Earlier this week, wall posters had gone up in Peking supporting the return of Teng to power after months of rumors that the survivor of previous purges was making another comeback.

LITTLE RESPONSE
Don Lennon, curator of the East Carolina University Manuscript Collection, said there was no response to the June 23 Hotline appeal for information as to the whereabouts of the old Hancock Primitive Baptist Church clerk's book.

The appeal was also for churches and church associations of the area to know that ECU will microfilm their records free of charge and that there is special interest and reason to have records of those formed prior to 1900 so safely kept. Lennon said his only response so far was from a representative of the Contentnea Baptist Association, formed in 1858. He is pleased with this one and hopes there will be others yet.

No Conclusions From A Preliminary Autopsy

Pitt County medical examiner Dr. Jack Koonce said this morning that a preliminary autopsy report in connection with the death of a 21-year-old woman here Wednesday, indicates, "no obvious cause of death at this point in time." The physician indicated further studies are being made in an effort to determine why Mary Iva Flanagan of 2818 Edwards St. died.

Greenville Rescue Squad personnel and police were called to the Edwards Street dwelling by an anonymous caller about 10:30 a.m., reporting a woman there was suffering from a drug overdose.

While enroute to Pitt Memorial Hospital with Miss Flanagan, rescue vehicle was involved in a traffic collision at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets.

Miss Flanagan was transferred to another emergency truck and was pronounced dead on arrival at the medical facility about 11:07. Dr. Koonce this morning said, "I don't think the wreck had anything to do with the case. It had nothing to do with the outcome of her."

The medical examiner said, "evidence at this time indicates the patient was probably dead before the rescue squad arrived," at her home.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said local officers and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are continuing their investigation of the death.

Greenville Gets Trace Of Rain

A brief thundershower last night did little but raise hopes in Pitt County for an end to drought conditions.

The Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station reported that "a trace" of rainfall. Snow Hill reported a "very light shower", and trace amounts of rain were reported in Bethel, Ayden and Grifton.

According to Ed Yancey, agricultural extension agent for the county, the rain was "just not enough."

"The rainfall was not significant enough to help our situation," said Yancey.

"I have heard of no rains that would do us too much good. 'Even high humidity helps with the transpiration rates of the plants, but not enough moisture fell to even dampen the ground under trees.'"

Uncomfortably hot weather preceded the thundershowers yesterday. The high temperature was officially recorded at 102 degrees for the third day in a row, and the low was 75. The Tar River measured 3.8 feet on the National Weather Service gauge.

Commission Queries For HUD

Redevelopment Commission chairman Billy Laughinghouse met with an official of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Greensboro on Wednesday to determine HUD's position on the City Council's proposed abolishment of the Commission.

According to Laughinghouse, several facts regarding the federal agency's stand on the local matters were determined in the meeting with Ledford Austin, deputy director of HUD's Greensboro area office.

The chairman said that Austin reported that federal law permits a city to administer a Community Development program directly through a city department or indirectly through the use of a separate agency such as the Redevelopment Commission.

Austin also reported, according to Laughinghouse, that HUD does not endorse either choice of administration and takes the position that the matter is a local decision and will vary depending upon local organization and expertise.

The third fact determined in the meeting, it was noted, is that HUD never urged the City of Greenville to take over the Redevelopment Commission. Under the CD plan proposed by Lydens Associates of Suffolk, Va., the city would administer the current programs of the Commission.

Laughinghouse said that Austin reported HUD has not reviewed the Lydens study and a study of this type is neither approved or disapproved by the department since it is contracted locally. Evaluation of the study should be a local responsibility and not that of HUD, it was mentioned.

The fifth fact established, the Commission spokesman added, was that if the city should abolish the Redevelopment Commission' state law provides that all obligations of the Commission become the responsibility of the city, including the assumption of outstanding indebtedness, continuation of all legal proceedings pending against or having been instituted by the Commission, and the responsibility for carrying out the existing urban renewal plans in accordance with urban renewal regulations.

Laughinghouse was accompanied to Greensboro by Commission executive director Joe Laney.

Eighteen Arrested By Agents Watching Marijuana Unload

PORT ST. JOE, Fla. (AP) — At least 18 persons have been arrested after agents watched a transfer of about six tons of marijuana from boats to waiting pickup trucks near here, police say.

Agents observed the estimated $2.5-million worth of marijuana being transferred from a sailboat to three smaller boats about 18 miles off the Florida Panhandle coast early Thursday.

They then observed as the smaller boats came ashore and the pot was loaded into four camper pickup trucks, police said.

Eddie Boone, special agent in charge of the Tallahassee office of the Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement (FDCL), said the 18 were charged with possession with intent to deliver more than 100 pounds of marijuana.

Those arrested were from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Oklahoma and Florida.

Participating in the arrests were sheriff's deputies from three North Florida counties, the Florida Marine Patrol, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Customs officers, Panama City police department and FDCL agents.

Authorities said they confiscated $5,000 in cash, four boats, seven vehicles and 16 guns.

The arrests were made after the trucks left the area. One man escaped and has not been caught, although authorities know who he is, Boone said.

Arrested were: James Ray Morgan, 29, Wrightsville Beach,

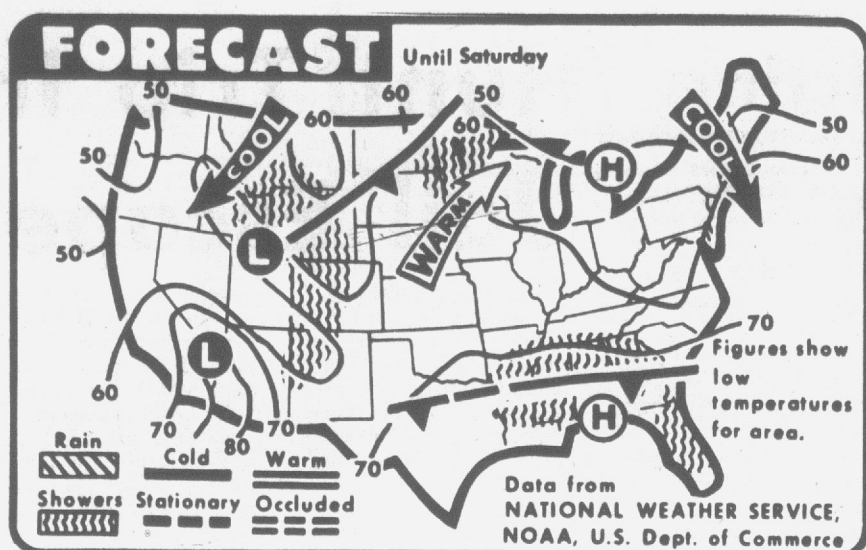

N.C.; Lexington Dunlap, 26, Brandon, Fla.; William Barron Storach, 29, Boone, N.C.; James Elwood Welsh and his twin brother, Laurie Rhen Welsh, both 25 of Columbia, S.C.; Harry Jones, 23, Columbia, S.C.; Robert Lee Bales, 28, Lithonia, Ga.; David Bennett Lenhart, 29, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Terrell Cecil Green, 23, Marietta, Ga.; Russell Johnson

Thomas, 22, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; John Mitchell Kerce, 27, Columbia, S.C.; Paul David McCain, 23, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Martin James Laurich, 34, Atlanta; Steven Lade, 30, Williston, Fla.; Leah Rebecca Murphy, 25, Naples, Fla., and Gary C. Dunn, 25, David Joseph Holston and Daniel E. Currie, 25, all address unknown.

Authorities said they have been watching the group since February.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Seasonably warm weather is forecast today for most of the nation. Sunny skies are expected for most areas. Showers are due from New Mexico to the northern Plains, for Minnesota and in the Southeast. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A slow-moving cool front, loaded with fair weather promises, continued easing toward North Carolina early today from the Great Lakes region, pushing needed rainfall ahead of it into some areas.

Scattered reports from the Piedmont indicated as much as an inch of rain fell in some local areas overnight.

During the evening, thunderstorms rumbled across the coastal plains eastward, packed with vivid displays of lightning and gusty winds. The Wilson County sheriff's department reported some trees uprooted in south Wilson County as a storm moved through about 9 p.m.

Despite the moisture relief in much of the state, the heat remained late Thursday and into Friday morning. The 100-degree mark was topped in southern and east-central counties.

A high of 94 at Cape Hatteras broke a record for that date, while other communities recorded the record for the number of consecutive days of 90-plus temperatures. Hamlet, near the South Carolina line where a high of 110 was recorded earlier this month, posted a high of 102 Thursday.

Highs in the 90s also were reported in mountain regions, but Grandfather Mountain near Linville took low reading honors with 77.

Drier and somewhat cooler air was in the forecast for late Friday and Saturday, but the threat of thunderstorm activity remained for southern portions of the state through Friday.

Extra Benefits End July 23

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Extra unemployment benefits for jobless people who have exhausted regular benefits will end July 23, the Employment Security Commission reports.

The program began in 1975 when the recession sent unemployment figures skyrocketing, and its end was heralded this month when national insured joblessness dropped below 4.5 per cent.

After another federal supplemental benefits program ends in August, the maximum benefit period for unemployment insurance in North Carolina will be 26 weeks.

Wake Sheriff Going On Trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wake County Sheriff Robert J. Pleasants will face trial Monday on charges of failing to perform his duties at the county jail, after losing his latest bid to have the charges dropped.

Attorneys for the veteran sheriff contended that the prosecutor who handled the investigation should have been appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt, not Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey.

But Superior Court Judge Sam J. Ervin III ruled Thursday that special prosecutor Joseph B. Cheshire V could proceed with the charges against Pleasants, who is accused of ordering his former chief jailer to work on the sheriff's own property.

Three former jailers have already pleaded guilty to charges they neglected their duties, while other charges involving conspiracy and abuse of office were dismissed. Arraignment of a fourth former jailer has been delayed.

The state contends that discipline at the jail deteriorated, and that jailers allegedly engaged in sex with inmates, took bribes for favored treatment and abused some prisoners.

Play Is Child's Work Says East Carolina's 'Toy Lady'

By MARIANNE K. BAINES
ECU News Bureau

Child's play is really work, says the Toy Lady of East Carolina University.

Play provides opportunities for children, babies and toddlers to try on new roles, to test the limits of their actions, to learn how to get along with others and to express feelings.

"Adults may tend to dismiss play as a carefree, mindless pastime, but to a child it can be a serious undertaking involving much thought and determination," says the Toy Lady, Ruth Lambie.

For the past year, Miss Lambie, associate professor emerita in the ECU Department of Child Development and Family Relations, coordinated a Toy Loan Library here, a one-year program funded by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation which was a project suggested during ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins' "Pockets of Excellence" search by ideagatherers around the world.

"Formulated from research of a toy library in Sweden, my objectives were two-fold," Miss Lambie explains. "First, to provide positive learning experiences for as many children as possible. Second, to provide guidance and learning for the primary adults in supervising the children." She wound up learning a great deal herself.

One thing, she says, is that the age from 10 months to 18 months is the period in a child's life that is most decisive for his intellectual development.

"Children are a tremendously creative potential, if you get to them soon enough," she says. "North Carolina is beginning to show concern for the preschool children, but we still don't do enough, early enough."

Also she says, there is a changing emphasis in child development in this country from very large authoritarian methods to a more democratic (cooperative relationships) way.

"I use to be very authoritarian and dogmatic in my concepts. What I was doing then was in keeping with what people thought," says Miss Lambie. "I think I have changed for the better."

This change in thinking came about during the Toy Library project which, as Miss Lambie explains, went this way:

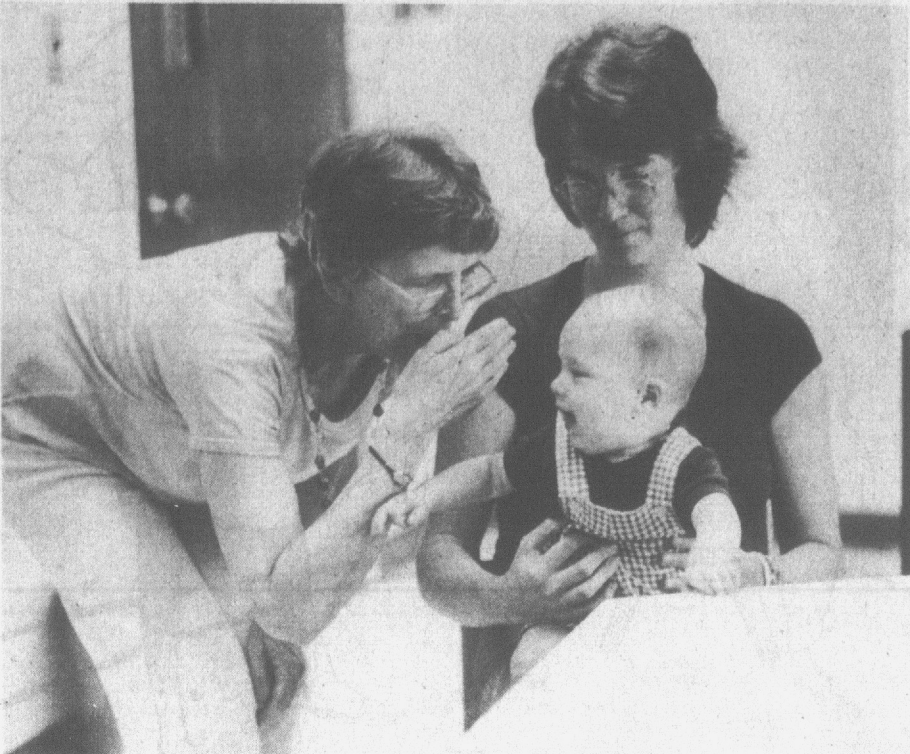

"It was necessary to get the clientele before the types of toys needed could be determined. Newspaper and TV publicity encouraged those who were interested to make inquiry. Also, I asked the N. C. Department of Social Services to furnish a list of all child care homes and centers in Greenville. Of the 33 centers approached, six responded and four of these indicated an interest. Five private families responded to the publicity. As a result, the Toy Library served a total of 30 children, ages five months to 28 months.

"My assistant, Lisa Boyce, an ECU child development student, helped me assemble and distribute the equipment. We had no physically handicapped children among those enrolled; therefore, equipment was chosen on the basis of the ages of the children.

"We selected materials intended to meet needs for physical, social and intellectual growth. Many toys were commercial; others were 'hand-made' by the Toy Library staff and home economics students.

"Texture balls, crib mobiles, chest rolls and fill-and-dump toys were the types used. Besides the toys provided, we prepared a library guidelines book for each participating adult. The book explained the program and suggested effective guidance techniques to use in general as well as in relation to specific toys."

Toys were checked out for two-week intervals. The adults responsible for the children allowed them to play freely with the toys as well as to use them under specific guidance. A record of each child's skill and reaction was kept. In addition, says Miss Lambie, "either Lisa or I visited participating centers or homes once each week to work with each child, and kept our own records." New toys were selected and activities suggested on the basis of observation and records.

"The success of the Toy Library can be measured in several ways," says Miss Lambie. "The positive change from the initial to final responses of both children and adults was obvious to me."

"Because the program was a new idea for this area, the reaction was not spontaneous. Some adults initially were both hesitant and suspicious. During the year, as they began to see the cooperative approach of the program, the tension disappeared and effective communication was built up."

"The children referred to us as the 'Toy Ladies,'" laughed Miss Lambie. "They eagerly accepted us into their play."

"More concrete evidence of the value of early stimulation was observed in the developmental patterns of the children during the nine months," Miss

Lambie says. "The degree of effectiveness of the program related directly to the consistency and quality of adult involvement."

"Although the Toy Library was never intended to be a research experiment, certain facts were obvious about the results of the toy library program," stated Miss Lambie.

"In almost every case children profited from the experience. The rate of development of skills on all levels (language, motor, and personal/social) appeared to be stimulated. In every case children who did not show progress had health problems (mental or physical)."

"It is my hope that this program can be the beginning of a much-needed service in Greenville; that it can be expanded to include preschool children and parents," says the Toy Lady.

2 1/2 squares (2 1/2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate

1-3rd cup butter

2 eggs

1 cup sugar

1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Stir together the flour, soda and salt. Melt the chocolate with the butter. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; beat in sugar, honey and vanilla to blend; beat in chocolate mixture to blend; add flour mixture and beat to blend. Stir in nuts. Turn into an 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan whose bottom has been lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until edges come away slightly from pan — 40 minutes; a cake tester inserted in center will not come out clean. Cool on wire rack for 15 minutes; turn out on rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up; cool completely. Cut into squares. Makes 16.

Frisky's Family Seeks Solution

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our dog will be going to doggy heaven any day now. Frisky is 90 in human years and he's in awfully bad shape. He's nearly blind and he's so weak he keeps falling down.

We can't bear the thought of putting him to sleep, but want to know where to bury him when the time comes.

We can't afford a plot in the pet cemetery, and he's meant too much to our family to just put him out with the trash. The children want to bury him in our backyard, but I hear there's a law against that. Can you help us?

FRISKY'S FAMILY

DEAR FAMILY: When Frisky dies, phone your local animal shelter. They will come and pick him up. Under no circumstances should you put an animal's remains in a trash can that you intend to use again. And in most areas there are laws against burying an animal in a residential section.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 14 years. I love my husband but I'm thinking seriously of having an affair. It's been years now since he said, "I love you." He can go three or four weeks without making love to me, then it's only because I've suggested it, and I don't really enjoy it when I have to beg for it.

He gets off work at 4 p.m., goes to a bar with his buddies and doesn't come home until 6 or 7. He eats, and then falls asleep in front of the TV before 8. Then he gets up around 10 p.m. and goes to bed.

He's a good father and a good provider, but I can't take it anymore. I need love and attention.

A friend of ours asked me to have an affair with him. I had never even thought of anything like that. Now I can't think of anything else. I haven't made up my mind yet, but if you print this, maybe my husband (or other husbands) will see it and change before it's too late. I really love him and I've tried to get him to a doctor but he refuses. He says he's only 35 and there's nothing wrong with him. Well, I'm only 31 and I need love.

I don't really want to have an affair, but I'm slipping.

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: Here's your letter. I hope your husband (and other men who can identify with the above routine) see this and wake up before it's too late.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend doesn't shave under her arms or even use a deodorant, and she just plain smells bad! I can't understand how she can go around offending people that way, and then blaming them because she doesn't get invited places.

She's a very sensitive person (all except for her nose), that's why I can't tell her what I have just told you.

Any advice?

OFFENDED

DEAR OFFENDED: You can and must tell her how she smells. It's the friendliest thing you can do.

CONFIDENTIAL TO W.S.B.: To succeed in business, stay awake! Spend too much time in the arms of Morpheus and you'll wind up in the hands of the receiver.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Governor Put Idea Into Deeds

When the Falkland Hustlers and the Fountain Trail-blazers 4-H Clubs built a bridge to a nature trail near Falkland this week, Gov. Jim Hunt was there.

As the temperatures hovered near 100 degrees the governor donned blue jeans and blue chambray shirt and tennis shoes to help cut and place logs in the bridge. Like most outdoor work the job called for perspiration and the governor's shirt was wet following the activity.

It was all a part of the governor's community services program by which he hopes to see citizens doing volunteer work to help the community and the state.

Hunt described this approach as the best alternative to increased taxes.

"How really wonderful it can be as far as I'm concerned to do things like this for your school... for your community," the governor said.

"We're paying about all the taxes we can pay now. The best thing we can do is do something for ourselves.

"What you are doing here is giving yourselves. We want to set an example."

The 4-H Club bridge to a nature trail won't compare to a bridge across the Pamlico which will cost millions. The nature trail bridge, however, won't cost the state a penny.

We need more of this — people working together to take care of some of their own needs. Volunteer labor won't provide for all of society's needs, but neither can government provide for all of our needs. It's going to take some personal effort on the part of all of us to build better communities.

Couldn't Find Better Man For Role

Leon Jaworski has agreed to be chief investigator for the House Ethics Committee in the inquiry of South Korean Congressional influence buying.

Jaworski, former Watergate special prosecutor, asked for and got a promise of non-interference prior to taking the position.

Jaworski has a proven track record in the Watergate investigation. A better man could not be found for the influence buying investigation.

THIS AFTERNOON

Tax Due Another Round

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Once legislators latch onto a popular item, they aren't likely to let it go.

Such will be the case with proposed repeal of the manufacturer's inventory tax in North Carolina. Senate sponsors who pushed the measure through that chamber in the recently adjourned legislative session, but allowed it to stagnate in the House of Representatives, vow another effort next year.

In fact, says State Senator James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, he will come back armed with letters from those industrial prospects who have been wooed by state industry hunters, but whose another state because of the "oppressive" inventory tax.

Archaic?

Lt. Gov. James C. Green calls the tax "archaic," and intends to push repeal despite opposition from top ranks of the administration of Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr.

The governor came out strongly against the measure, as did his appointee as Secretary of Commerce D. N. (Lauch) Faircloth.

Faircloth, himself a businessman, heads the agency which directs economic development—including industrial growth. The principal pushers of repeal of the inventory tax are within that particular state division.

Still, top officials reject the arguments put out by supporters of repeal: that the tax hinders prospect wooing; that tax revenues generated by new business as a result of repeal would offset losses; that the tax is a considerable factor in specific location decisions by major industries lost to other states.

There is some inclination, indeed, to consider the arguments by state industry hunters as just another excuse for losing a prospect. At one time, the industrial revenue bonds to aid industries in building plants and installing pollution control devices were pointed out in exactly the same way as major hindrances to development. With voter approval of a plan to allow those bonds, industry hunters now use the inventory tax argument.

An Excuse

In truth, say top officials of the Commerce Department, it is often the case that the inventory tax is used by their own people as an excuse; and manufacturers themselves use it as a "reason" for rejecting North Carolina because it is a convenient way out. A prospect who has been toured, wined, and dined at state expense needs a graceful exit line, say officials.

BILL NOBLITT

Industry hunters say that over a four-year span this state lost more than $444 million in new development because of the tax. Some Commerce officials say legislators who throw such figures around are perhaps convinced themselves, but are not convincing others.

Green argues that "the impact of lost revenue will be greatly exceeded by the stimulus from new industry that is attracted..." Gov. Hunt and Faircloth reject the contention, maintaining that growth will take place anyway, and there is no way to measure impact of inventory tax repeal.

Besides, they say, the loss to the state in replenishing local tax coffers depleted by repeal of the inventory tax (which is a part of the local property tax structure) will far exceed estimate of $40 million per year—perhaps as much as $65 million.

Meanwhile, preparing for renewal of the battle next year, Gov. Hunt's people are boning up on a study by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill which concludes that when all local taxes and rates, all state taxes and fees, federal income taxes, and payroll taxes are taken into consideration, "property taxes comprise a small percentage... and property taxes are counted as expenses on state and federal corporate income tax returns (so) the total tax differential an industry faces in choosing among locations amounts to less than 0.5 per cent of its annual sales."

Local taxes, that report suggests, "are not an important factor in most business location decisions."

Venice a la Hemingway

VENICE, ITALY — Every person who comes to Venice is influenced in some way by one of the great writers who has written about the city. Hemingway has probably influenced me more than anyone, and without "Across the River and Into the Trees" I doubt if I'd even have enjoyed being there.

Take, for example, the night when I went to dinner at the Gritti Palace Hotel with my wife. It was a good dinner, an imposing dinner, a strong dinner, and the lobster he was good. When he arrived he was dark and green and unfriendly and cost a day's wages, but when they grilled him he was red and I wouldn't have traded five sleeping bags for him.

I looked across the table at my wife. She looked good. Almost as good as the lobster. "She looks as lovely as a gondola," I thought to myself, "or Stan Musial or Joe DiMaggio. She could drive a home run into the canal if I let her."

"I love you and I'm glad you're here," I told her. "Daughter, let's go for a ride in a gondola after dinner."

"So you can ogle the Italian women?" "Please, daughter. You must try to understand my attitude. When you have killed so many you can afford to be a little wild."

"How many have you killed?"

"One hundred and eighty-sure, not counting possibles."

"And you have no remorse?"

"None."

"Well, I do, and you'd better watch your step."

"Come, daughter, come, let's not think of women. We will find a gondola and you will be you and I will be me and the gondolier will be him."

"I'm warning you about this daughter business."

We found a gondola which was long and good and brave and true and it was our gondola for as long as we wanted it, for that's how it is in Venice. A man can either take a gondola or leave it alone. Only tourists and lovers take gondolas in Venice, I thought. Tourists and lovers and people who can afford them.

"Why can't we take a motorboat?" my wife asked. "A gondola is awfully slow."

"Because you're my wife and we're alone and it is Venice and I want to hold you close and I want you to hold me close and anyway it's cheaper than taking a motorboat."

"The canal smells," she said.

"So does war. So do the Russians. So do lobsters and garlic and perfume. Everything smells, daughter. We've just got to get used to it. Have you ever wrestled a bear?"

"I want to go back to the hotel," my wife said. "The gondola or the lobster has made me sick."

"All right, I'll take you home and read you Dante and tell you about war and the very brave boys and guys like Pete Quesada and Red Smith and the Montana National Guard. Now before you get sick, daughter, kiss me and love me straight and true."

It must have been the last "daughter," because before I

Others Call It Theft

By DAVID TOMLIN

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A state employee recently removed a motor from a state vehicle and installed it in his own car.

In the language of the law, he "misappropriated state property by converting it to his own use." Most people would call it stealing.

In any event, there's been quite a bit of it going on, and Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten says he has established a special "squad" within his special investigations section to deal with it.

Edmisten says "official wrongdoing" by state workers has been consistently mis-handled by state agencies, and the squad's job will be to introduce some uniformity into law enforcement against job-related crimes.

"The incident involving the motor was never reported to the State Bureau of Investigation," Edmisten said. "We found out about it, though, and it's been handled since."

But the attorney general said that scores of other cases have been brushed off by supervisors or agency chiefs, whitewashed or investigated by agency officials who lacked the training to do a proper job.

"These investigations didn't really do what the law required," Edmisten said. "The departments decided to handle it internally, but the law says these things are illegal acts and there's no reason why state employees should be treated any different from anybody else."

Amateur sleuths in the past have ruined chances for serious prosecution of crimes on the job by state workers by missing or destroying important evidence or by giving the suspect a chance to destroy or hide evidence, Edmisten said.

40 Years Ago Today

July 22, 1937

The war office was reliably reported today to have issued orders indefinitely suspending the delivery of huge orders of war supplies and halting the shipment of such equipment to North China.

Although the meaning of this move in the tense Sino-Japanese situation was not immediately apparent, some observers interpreted it as an indication peace, rather than war, was visible on the horizon after two weeks clouded by threats of open hostilities.

The order suspending the delivery of war necessities was understood to have been issued about mid-afternoon and immediately put into effect by the firms which have been turning out quantities of supplies for the Japanese army in North China.

General Francisco Franco's warriors fought strenuously today for a stronghold at the neck of the government's salient into the middle of the insurgent siege lines west of Madrid.

At the same time they hammered at the government's spearhead salient east of Villanueva de la Canada in a furious struggle to hold tight the eight and half months of the capital

Reorganization Difficult

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

When President Carter unveiled his first reorganization plan, he declared, "We are starting off with perhaps the most difficult one of all for me."

"The plan, sent to Congress just a week ago, will revamp the Executive Office of the President and the White House staff, the latter a part of the larger EOP."

"It is difficult," Carter said, "because of the closeness of myself to the people involved."

No one in Washington would pretend that it is easy to reorganize any part of the federal bureaucracy. Even the official board of tea tasters emerged with a vocal constituency when the first proposal was made, at least two administrations ago, that it be abolished.

It is well, however, that Carter spoke of EOP reorganization as "perhaps" the most difficult in a series of such plans that are promised for the months and years ahead. The qualification took some of the edge off what otherwise would have been an excursion into the realm of obvious hyperbole.

For one thing, Carter's suggestion that proximity to the people being reorganized at EOP made the task more difficult is susceptible to skeptical examination. The plain fact is that no one with close and longstanding ties to the President is being reorganized out of a job, shorn of power or even faced with significant inconvenience.

As a matter of fact, even those who hold the 252 EOP jobs that are getting the ax need not fear for their livelihood. About a third of the jobs simply are being transferred to other parts of the bureaucracy and those who hold the rest will continue to draw federal paychecks. In numerical terms, eliminated jobs will be dispensed with through normal attrition: deaths, retirements and resignations.

The same situation will apply to promised cuts in the White House staff — only more so.

Carter, who once said he would cut the White House staff by 30 per cent, announced that reorganization will see the fulltime staff reduced to 351 from 485, seemingly an impressive reduction of 28 per cent.

"I think it carries out his (Carter's) commitment," said Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

A second glance reveals, however, that just over half of the cutback — 70 jobs out of 134 — represents a paper transaction. The 70 jobholders, who do administrative work, aren't even leaving the premises. They are being transferred from the White House staff to a new central administrative unit within the EOP.

With difficult and controversial reorganization plans yet to emerge from the Oval Office, Carter presumably wanted to get the lengthy and sure-to-be contentious process off to a flying start.

This is important, at least psychologically, because Congress has made it clear it wants to be heard during the reorganization process. Carter can propose, by disapproval of any plan by either the Senate or House within 60 days after it is unveiled.

By starting with the EOP, the President probably came as close as he could to guaranteeing an initial success.

Strength For Today

ILLUSTRATION OF VALUES

We read periodically about eccentric people who shut themselves up for years, and although they have plenty of money to live in comfort, they live instead in filth and squalor until they die or are compelled to go to institutions for the mentally deranged.

Stories of this kind not only tell us something about the people involved but they illustrate vividly the difference between the permanent and the transient values of life.

The greatest gifts of life are certainly not those associated with wealth and power, but are unseen. Love, health, interest in others, a chance to work at a meaningful job, friendship, religious faith — these are only a few of these values. The miserables described in the newspapers had only money, and what good did it do for them? Lacking all of the other qualities which make for a rich life, they become at last only objects of curiosity and pity.

Exiles from the cult phenomenon in the United States, some members of the group are receiving moral and material support from Libya in their supervised search for God and fight against drugs, alcohol and the "world's corruption."

Col. Khadafy, who has made the Koran the base of Libyan law, was interested enough in the movement to meet several times with its leaders, to house them for a period, and even to write a song which the "children" have performed throughout the country, and in their communes in other lands.

They now spell his name "Godhafi," to do him special honors and see him as a Christ-like or Mohammed-like figure.

"Do as I do. I pray to God. I'm very happy because I found the road with Allah, Allah, Allah," says the first verse of Khadafy's song. It is addressed to the industrialized nations of the world, and goes on:

"You hate Negroes. You do not pray. You are not good. You have lost your way. Your life is falsehood. Without Allah, Allah, Allah."

have made them something of a hit in Libya with their guitar-strumming and flute-playing band.

They performed recently at an international fair, and give shows at local restaurants, with opening pieces such as "Chukran Allah" (Thank you Allah) and the old U.S. hit, "Bye, Bye, Miss American Pie," which they regard as a theme song for their gradual exodus from the United States, which they have declared doomed.

The movement was started about 1965 by a Californian named David Berg, whom his followers regard as a prophet and call Moses. His "Mo" letters anticipate a violent end to developed nations.

The group, which settled temporarily in Texas, gradually spread elsewhere. They change their names, adopting Scriptur-

They've appeared at various public places, including the United Nations, dressed in sackcloth, their faces daubed with ashes, symbolizing the coming doom.

They have a French pop musical group, "Les Enfants de Dieu," which has produced several records, and they've recorded commercial cassettes in Brazil. They have discoteques in Rome and Athens and run an antidrug center in Amsterdam.

Berg claims the group has 250,000 converts worldwide, with 5,000 full-time workers in "colonies" proselytizing in 60 countries. But they've run into considerable opposition, including accusations of "brainwashing" in the United States and have been expelled from Lebanon and Madagascar.

"We are the first children's crusade and probably the last one before God's destruction of this wickedly worldly system," says a recent Mo letter, called the "New Nation News."

In recent years, they've increasingly moved away from the industrialized nation's concentrating on Africa and Asia. One of the Libyan-based group, Stephen Bruce Ferguson from Iowa, says:

"This is the land of the future. This is where it's all going to be. You know, the Koran is not much different from the Bible." Berg, a recluse who never allows himself to be photographed and who now reportedly lives in England, recently met with the Libya's President Khadafy for nine hours, and says they found much in common.

Both ban alcoholic beverages and drugs, claim the poor will inherit the earth and object to pro-Israel Zionists. Wrote Berg of Khadafy:

"There has not been another such worldly political leader in modern times as this young prophet of the seemingly im-

Pouring Back The Ocean

I once met a man with a magnificent philosophy of life. He believed very simply that life should be concentrated on trying to give back what we gain.

Our problem seems to be that so much of our time and effort has to be devoted to gaining, that we have little incentive for returning what we work so hard to acquire.

When my daughter poured a bucket of water back into the ocean I began thinking about our churches. They seem to preach my friend's philosophy.

As a matter of fact, that's where he learned it . . .

The attorney general declined to estimate how much the state has lost to pilferage of office supplies, typewriters and heavier equipment in recent years, but he said North Carolina workers appeared to be less sticky-fingered than in other states.

"I've made informal surveys among attorneys general in other states," he said, "and I'd say we have an amazingly low incidence of state employees engaging in job-related crime."

Edmisten said his new investigative squad "is not going to be snooping on state employees. They'll just be there to handle the complaints that come in. And supervisors in all the departments know now exactly what to do when they have a case of this type."

Nothing To Presage The 'Solomon Run' Disaster

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — When the rains began, Richard Stantz was drinking Black Velvet and Mountain Dew with the boys.

His fiancée, Rita Jo Searle, had been swimming at Ideal Park with her three young sons and her mother.

Richard's brother, Ray, was minding their three children, while his wife, Deborah, played bingo at the Knights of Columbus — recreation on her day off from the maid's job at the Enterprise Motel.

The two Stantz families lived in separate apartments, two buildings apart, in the Solomon Homes project, along Solomon Run Creek in Johnstown.

Rita got home at 10:30 and put the kids to bed. Rich arrived at 11:30.

"It was already pouring rain so bad I felt like a fish," he said.

Deborah, meanwhile, stopped off at a bar. As she prepared to leave, water already was coursing through the street, car-bumper high. At 12:45 a.m. her girl friend Marian phoned to say if she was going home, now was the time.

While Richard and Rita watched television the power went off. Their clock stopped at 11:52. Rita switched her radio to battery power.

Deborah arrived home at 1:30 to an apartment lit only with candles. They invited Marian, who had no candles, to come over with her five children.

Lightning stabbed at the darkened city.

"Marian looked out the window and said, 'Oh, my God, the bridge over Solomon Run just washed away,'" said Deborah. The lawn outside their apartment building, three feet above sidewalk level, was under water.

By now the radio station was warning motorists to stay off roads. But nothing more.

Then the saga of Solomon Run began.

"I said, 'My God, look at the cars floating down Solomon Street. There are people screaming for help,'" Richard recalled. "They were going so swift, no one could help them."

Rita: "I was stunned, it was too unbelievable to know water was deep enough to carry cars."

By 12:30, cars were tumbling down Solomon Street, a slight incline.

Through the lightning flashes, Rita saw half of the office building that serves the housing project being washed away. On nearby Widman street, she could see a fire truck evacuating people.

About that time, Ray and Deborah joined neighbors outside to see what help they could give.

They woke an elderly woman in a first-floor apartment and Ray carried her to a higher building.

Across Solomon Street, water swept away a house. A father and son went with it.

"We couldn't get across the street," Ray said. "Boulders were rolling down the river and Solomon Street. The water was washing telephone poles and trees down. After one boulder the size of a house came down, half the highway collapsed."

Pennsylvania Route 56 is beside Solomon Run, curving S-like past the housing development.

"When the highway collapsed, the water changed course and started washing other buildings out," Ray said. "It began coursing between the buildings, smashing cars against them. Some of the foundations began collapsing."

All the while there was continuous rain and unearthly noise.

At 2:30 a.m. Deborah heard people shouting for help in the Glenn Graham house across Solomon Street. The occupants were on the second floor, because the ground level was under water.

"We made several attempts to help them," Ray said, shaking his head at the memory. Somehow the six members of the family made it 10 feet across the roof to Margie's Bar, next door. Minutes later the house washed away.

The people in the bar then put a ladder to the roof of the Mack bungalow on the other side, Ray said. Just as Mack and his wife got down, their home was swept off.

At 4:30 a.m. Ray and his wife were in another building. "I had a flashlight and saw something moving," he said. He reached down and pulled two women and a baby from waist deep water, miraculously alive.

Over the rain and the thunder they heard gunshots from the nearby MA Lounge, a tavern that seats about 50 people.

"They were trying to signal for help," Ray said. "People couldn't get to them. I don't know how many died there."

Richard and Rita, meanwhile, stayed in their apartment on higher ground.

With the first light of day, they walked outside.

"It was a lot worse at daybreak," Richard said, "because you could look out and see the lines hanging from light poles, the busted cars, the crashed buildings, the ripped off pavement with gas pipes on top."

Helicopter pilots told them to go to a road at the top of a steep hillside in back of the apartment complex to be picked up by army trucks. Ray Stantz, his wife and their three children made the climb, taking only diapers for the children and two cans of soft drinks.

Richard and Rita, meanwhile, noticed that their two cars had been smashed by the autos parked on either side.

"I wasn't worried about myself," Rita said. "We still had gas and water, but no lights. At least that's what I thought until I tried to flush the toilet and there was no water and tried to turn on the stove and there was no gas."

But Rita was worried about her mother, who lives three miles away. "Richard decided to put my mind at ease by going over there."

Richard: "I walked through mud and water up to my neck, went under water twice."

But he made it and found the mother, Rita Hunt, being taken care of by friends. He walked back, arriving shortly after 2 p.m. The walk, normally 45 minutes each way, had taken more than four hours.

Crackdown On Beach Buggies

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — Days of smooth sailing may be ending for beach buggy drivers on North Carolina's northeastern coast.

Federal and local officials, citing property damages and increased conflicts between buggy drivers and sunbathers, have begun cracking down on shoreline driving.

Three local governments — Kill Devil Hills and Dare and Currituck counties — have passed new regulations within the last two weeks.

The restrictions are aimed at joyriders who leave the beach and bound over dunes and marshlands, destroying vegetation and disrupting wildlife.

But the restrictions also affect fishermen who use four-wheel drive vehicles to reach remote surf fishing spots. They will have to stay off the beaches between Memorial Day and Labor Day in Dare and Currituck, and all year in Kill Devil Hills.

Exempted from the regulations are commercial fishermen and emergency vehicles.

"The problem has been that there have been literally hundreds of people running amuck," said Currituck County Manager Graham W. Pervier. Under an ordinance passed Monday in that county, effective Aug. 1, driving on private property will also be prohibited.

The ordinance also sets a maximum beach speed limit of 35 miles an hour and 15 m.p.h. when pedestrians are present.

Earlier restrictions in the Back Bay Wildlife Refuge caused an increase in beach traffic south of the refuge. Pervier said. A privately owned area of steep dunes, known as Penny's Hill, has been damaged by the vehicles, he said.

In Dare County, beach buggy drivers learned about the new restrictions from deputies flying overhead in a helicopter. Sheriff Frank Cohoon said warnings were issued to violators, but charges would be filed against future violators.

Dismiss Charge Against Stevens

ATLANTA (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has dismissed a charge of unfair labor practices against a J. P. Stevens Co. plant at Tifton, Ga.

The Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union had charged Stevens with trying to intimidate workers involved with the union.

In throwing out the charge Thursday, Curtis L. Mack, regional NLRB director, said the firm had not violated federal labor laws.

A spokesman for Stevens said the union plans to "continually file labor board charges on every discharge and almost every warning given to employees..." and is involved in a "massive propaganda and organizing campaign against the company."

Special Squad To Help Police

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A special State Bureau of Investigation squad has been formed to help local police track unsolved murder cases, state Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten says.

"The simple fact is that there are quite a few people who have gotten by with cold-blooded murder," Edmisten said in an interview here this week.

Edmisten said many local police don't have the resources to solve complex cases, and as they pile up, the criminals stand a better chance of avoiding capture. He said the unit would be used only at the request of local law enforcement agencies.

South Will Seek To Reverse Loss Trend

The South will be seeking to reverse its losing trend when it faces the North Saturday night in the 15th Annual Jaycee Boys Home All-Star football game in Ficklen Stadium.

The South hasn't won the contest since 1971 and trails in the series 8-3 with three of the games having ended in ties. The North won last year's game, 24-7.

The South team this year will sport a strong running attack, according to head coach Don Saine of Gastonia Hunter-Huss.

Saine is being assisted by Gene Brewer of Farmville Central and Sonny Wilburn of Siler City.

Three outstanding running backs, with the ability to penetrate inside or go for long gains around the ends, will be among the starters for the South team. The South also has a good quarterback who can pass and run the option play well, Saine said.

The North, on the other hand, will be at a disadvantage size-wise in the contest, head coach Pete Stout said, but the team hopes to make up for that with outstanding quickness. Stout is being assisted by Doug Henderson from Western Guilford and Bill Hodgkin from Oxford-Webb.

Another problem for the North is the fact that a couple of players picked to participate for the team were unable to pass physical examinations and efforts to replace them have failed. For that reason, the North will have fewer players and be forced to work some on both offense and defense, according to Stout.

Stout is not about to throw in the towel, however. "We're just trying to draw the string a little tighter and get ready a little better," he said. "They're a talented group of men, so we feel like they will be able to do O.K."

Saine said the South is "looking forward to the game. We're tapering off our workouts and just trying to brush up on what we have worked on all week."

Saine said the South coaches are pleased with the effort that the players have been giving and are hoping "everything will gel" on Saturday night.

A strong offensive game is planned, Saine said, a game he feels the fans will enjoy.

Probable starting lineups for Saturday night's game along with size, weight and school, are as follows:

Break Helps Reuss Get Needed Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

For three days during the All-Star break, Jerry Reuss heard crickets chirp and the wind blow through the trees in a sleepy New England retreat.

Thursday night, he heard the crack of Al Oliver's bat and the wind of his pitches blowing by batters.

Both kinds of noises were significant to the Pittsburgh Pirate left-hander. The first provided needed therapy and the second a needed victory, as the Pirates beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-2.

"I stuck my feet in the Atlantic Ocean and washed away the first half of the season," said Reuss, talking about his dismal 4-10 record before Tuesday night's All-Star Game. "It seemed the farthest thing from my mind was pitching."

"I slept late, sat on the porch, heard the crickets chirp. These are things I don't hear during the baseball season."

Reuss allowed but six hits in one of his strongest performances of the season and had plenty of help from his teammates. The Pirate defense contributed three double plays and Oliver drove in a pair of runs.

Reuss also had some assistance from the fans in notching his 100th career victory. The Pirates broke open the game with three runs in the fifth, courtesy of a fan's umbrella.

Leadoff batter Frank Taveras hit a foul pop and Cincinnati first baseman Dan Driessen had a chance to catch it near the railing but the ball struck a bright blue umbrella and eluded him.

The Reds briefly argued that it was fan interference, but first base umpire Paul Pryor said the ball was in the stands when it hit the umbrella. After that incident, Taveras tripled to start the three-run rally.

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Francisco

Giants 9-6; the Chicago Cubs edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 12 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Houston Astros 4-0; the Montreal Expos turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0 and the San Diego Padres nipped the New York Mets 3-2 in 10 innings.

Phillies 9, Giants 6
Pinch-hitter Jerry Martin's bases-loaded triple capped an eight-run sixth inning that carried Philadelphia over San Francisco.

The Giants had taken a 6-0 lead off winner Jim Lonborg, 4-

3, on a grand slam homer by Gary Thomasson in the third and a two-run homer by Marc Hill in the fifth.

But then the Phillies sent 13 batters to the plate in the sixth, collecting six hits and four walks to take the lead.

Cubs 4, Braves 3
Bill Buckner's run-scoring pinch single in the bottom of the 12th lifted Chicago over Atlanta. With one out in the 12th, reliever Rick Camp, 5-2, walked both Manny Trillo and Joe Wallis before Buckner delivered his game-winning hit.

Camp took over for Phil Niekro at the start of the inning after Niekro had yielded seven hits and struck out eight in 11 innings. Paul Reuschel, 4-1, who followed starter Bill Bonham and Willie Hernandez to the mound was the winner.

Cardinals 4, Astros 0
Keith Hernandez socked a home run and Garry Templeton tripled and scored two runs, leading St. Louis over Houston behind Bob Forsch's three-hitter. The Cardinals made the most of four hits off Houston right-hander J.R. Richard, 9-7, while nothing only their fifth triumph in 17 games.

Expos 4, Dodgers 0

Padres 3, Mets 2
George Hendrick's bases-loaded single off Skip Lockwood in the 10th inning lifted San Diego over New York. With one out, singles by Bill Almon and Adams and Butts paced the Greenville hitting attack as Butts went 2-2 and Adams 2-4. Garner 000 000 000-0 2 2 Greenville 200 210 10x-6 7 0 Stephens, Miller (7) and Baker; Morris and Hooks.

Chapman then advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Ned Craft's sacrifice fly which sent Shank to third. He came in on another wild pitch.

Two more runs came across for Greenville in the fourth. Al Butts led off with a walk and stole second. He went to third on Morris' infield out and came in when Nuggie Worthington reached on a two-base error. Chapman then tripled to score Worthington and was thrown out at home trying to stretch the hit. Garner's lone threat came in the top of the fifth. With two away, the team got two straight singles by Eric Williams and David Boyette. Morris struck the next batter out, however, to end the frame.

In the bottom of the inning, Kevin Adams singled with two away, went to second when Greg Lee walked and scored on a single by Butts to make it 5-1.

Greenville's final run came in the seventh as Craft got a base hit, went to second on Wright Hooks' infield out, made third on a single by Adams and scored on a wild pitch.

Legion's Shutout Win Ups Series Lead, 2-0

Quinn Morris pitched Post 39's second consecutive two-hit ballgame against Garner as the Greenville team got a 6-0 victory to lead the best-of-seven series, 2-0.

The first two games of the series were played at Harrison Field at East Carolina University. The teams move to Garner tonight.

Morris had an outstanding game, according to Post 39 coach Ed Hooks, allowing only two baserunners all night. He gave up no walks and struck out eight. Garner's Walter Stephens was charged with the loss. He pitched six innings before being replaced by Randy Miller.

Greenville started off the game with a pair of runs in the first and added two more in the fourth. Post 39 wrapped up its scoring with a run in the fifth and one more in the seventh.

Ronnie Chapman got things started for Greenville in the initial frame when, with one away, he got a base on balls and stole second before Mike Shank walk-

Royals Are Closing In

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

The Kansas City Royals, seeking another division title, keep closing in on first place in the American League West. The expansion Seattle Mariners, hopeful of finishing out of the cellar, are all the way up to sixth and wouldn't mind staying there.

The Royals sliced another half-game off the lead of the idle Chicago White Sox Thursday night with an 8-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers and trail the division leaders by just two games. Meanwhile, the Mariners edged Oakland 4-3 and dropped the A's into the basement, one-half game behind Seattle.

"It's easy to get someplace, but it's tougher to stay there," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson, whose Mariners have been in last place almost steadily since the start of the season. "It's kind of like getting to the major leagues. A lot of players get there, but not that many stick around."

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox split a doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians, winning the opener 11-4 but losing the nightcap 8-2; the New York Yankees split with the Milwaukee Brewers, winning 7-0 and losing 5-4 in 10 innings, and the Minnesota Twins nipped the California Angels 3-2. Baltimore, Texas and Toronto also had the night off.

Al Cowens had four hits and drove in five runs in Kansas City's triumph while Paul Splittorff fired a four-hitter for his third complete game in 22 starts.

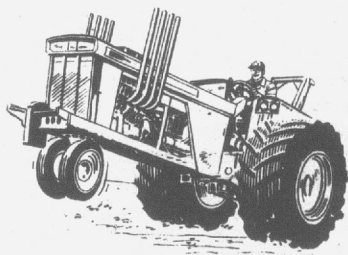

Mariners 4, A's 3
Ruppert Jones and Julio Cruz drove in two runs apiece for Seattle while Glenn Abbott defeated his former Oakland teammates for the third time in four decisions. Abbott lost a shutout bid in the seventh when Wayne Gross hit a two-run homer. Mitchell Page homered in the ninth for Oakland's final run.

Red Sox 11-2, Indians 4-8
Home runs by Andre Thornton, John Lowenstein and Bruce Bochte highlighted the Indians' victory while Butch Hobson slammed a three-run homer for his second hit in Boston's nine-run seventh inning that decided the opener.

Brewers 0-5, Yankees 7-4
The Brewers, three outs away from being shut out in both ends of the doubleheader, rallied with four runs in the ninth inning of the nightcap and then won it in the 10th on rookie Dick Davis' two-out bloop single. The Yankees took the opener as Catfish Hunter fired a five-hitter for his first shutout of the season and Graig Nettles hit a three-run homer.

Twins 3, Angels 2
Bobby Bonds homered off Dave Goltz as the Angels scored twice in the top of the first but Lyman Bostock tied it against Nolan Ryan with a two-run triple in the bottom of the first and scored on Larry Hise's two-out bunt single.

Tar Heel In Finals

Greenville's Tar Heel Little League all-star team advanced to the Area II finals yesterday with a 5-2 victory over Tarboro, while Roanoke Rapids earned the right to meet Greenville in the title game with a 7-6 win over New Bern Southern.

Greenville scored all of its runs in the first inning of its game with Tarboro. Stevie Holloman led off the inning with a single and went to second when Randy Warren reached on an error.

Mont Carter walked to load the bases and a base on balls to Rodrick Harrell pushed Holloman over. Randy Warren scored on Marty Radford's fielder's choice, but Carter was thrown out on the play. Harrell came around when Horace Barrett singled and Radford scored on an error. Barrett was plated by Alan Dickens' base hit.

Tarboro got both of its runs in the top of the sixth. Jeff Webb reached on an error and Steve Hux followed with a home run, one of only three Tarboro hits given up by Barrett, the Greenville pitcher.

No batter on either team had more than one hit.

The second game of the afternoon saw Roanoke Rapids eliminate the team which had earlier ousted the Greenville North State all-stars, New Bern Southern.

Roanoke Rapids scored two in the first and one in the second, but New Bern gained the lead with four runs in the top of the third on a grand slam home run by Joe Blunt.

Roanoke Rapids got three in the bottom of the frame to make it 6-4, but New Bern tied it up with a pair of tallies in the fifth. That sent the game into extra innings and a run by Roanoke Rapids in the bottom of the eighth won it. Keith Sledge scored the run; he reached on an error, went to third when Benjie Author doubled and scored on a base hit by Matt Lewis.

Lewis was the game's leading hitter, going 4-5, while Author was 2-4 for Roanoke Rapids. Tony Davis led the New Bern hitting, going 2-4.

Greenville and Roanoke Rapids are slated to meet in the championship game today at 5 p.m. The winner of that game will meet the winner of the Area I tournament being played in Newport for the District IV championship.

Fresh Horizons Beckon 'Laugh In' Alumnus; A Saturday Show

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Owens, the noted "Laugh-In" announcing alumnus, has hosted the nighttime version of "The Gong Show." But no more. He's bidding it adieu for fresh fields of endeavor.

Such as a TV comedy pilot called "The Gary Owens Sex and Violence Family Hour." And a college textbook on radio. And a "Lunatic's Book of World Records," which he's now just finishing.

The latter tome, he said, notes such things as "Hugh O'Brien's birthstone is lint" and that "a family of midgits in San Francisco lived in Karl Malden's nose for seven months."

Next September, Owens will be a semiregular in a new CBS Saturday morning show, "Wacko," which features slapstick skits, buffonery and persiflage.

"I'm not certain what I'm doing, but I think I walk around with a banana through my head and rebuke people," he said. "I think I'm the token rebuker on the show."

Chris Bearde, producer of the show and a veteran Owens observer, elucidated. He said Gary will appear in, say, a scene where Batman and Robin are about to do battle with two bad guys.

Then, he said, Owens will announce that "because this is the nonviolent network, we can't show you the fight. But we can let you hear it." Then viewers will hear sounds of biff, bam and ouch.

But they'll see a lovely pastoral scene of flying birds.

It may seem weird, but Mr. Owens, of Mitchell, S.D., has been that way ever since coming here nearly 16 years ago to write and speak on the old "Bullwinkle" show and be a disc jockey.

Owens, in radio 20 years, most of it at station KMPC here, prefers not to think of himself as a disc jockey. He calls himself a josh dickey. That's the way his brainpan works.

His radio world contains a few unusuals — rumored to be him in verbal multi — such as Clinton S. Feemish the Third. Clinton tap dances to the accompaniment of the daily weather forecast.

Another favorite is Earl C. Festoon. Owens says that worthy currently "is deputy scapegoat to the station manager. Earl's been around since the early days of silent radio..."

Owens, interviewed at Hollywood's famed Grey Chapeaux because the Brown Derby was being blocked, said, professionally, he's about a year away from finishing his college textbook on radio.

Some passages are serious, some tongue in-cheek, he added.

Pitt's Labor Force Grew

Employment increased, unemployment decreased and the civilian labor force expanded in May in Pitt County, bringing the civilian labor force to 41,620 in the Greenville area.

Total unemployment lessened from 3,120 persons in March to 2,510 in May as the local economy strengthened, according to the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina.

The unemployment rate of 6.0 per cent in May represents a decrease from the 7.7 per cent level in March.

Total number of persons employed was 39,110. Agricultural employment was 4,480 persons; nonagricultural wage and salary was at 29,840 persons; and other nonagricultural employment was at 4,790.

If You Now Rent . . .

Do you feel out of place in that rented house or apartment? Nice enough place to live but just doesn't feel like "home" — right?

Well, you may be closer to home ownership than you think. Home Savings is out to put a lot of people in their place. We've got the mortgage money right here at Home to finance your new place in life. Why wait?

Don't get unnecessarily caught up in the "delaying game". Right now may be the best time for you to buy.

Housing and land costs will continue to rise. So waiting until you can "afford" to buy can be false reasoning for putting off your goal of home ownership.

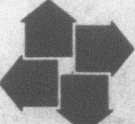

It never hurts to ask . . .

If you're a little apprehensive — try this: Pick a home on today's market that is the house you want or one that is comparable in size and style. Come by Home Savings and ask any one of our loan counselors to do a preliminary "work-up" on the costs involved, estimate monthly payments and educate you as to the various requirements.

We'll be happy to take the time and work with you. Knowledge of the process can eliminate any apprehension you may have. You'll probably find that you're ready to be in your place. Home Savings is certainly ready to put you there.

Come to see us.

Mountain Life Is 'Close To Heaven'

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
RISUE CANYON, Nev. (AP) — Road's Morgan figures he's as "close to heaven as I'm ever going to get in this world," living in a shack in this isolated, pine-studded canyon in the Sweetwater Mountains.

After his wife died, Morgan wandered round the world for nearly 20 years before starting a hermit-like existence here in 1975, with his jackass Jackson, his dog Michaelangelo, two calico cats and four chickens.

Road's Morgan — that's his name — insists he's really not a hermit, but a man who wants to live "by the side of the road, and be a friend to the guy who comes down the road."

Bond Sales In Pitt Good

Series E and H Savings Bonds sales in Pitt County during the first half of 1977 were $394,966, according to R. W. Howard, county volunteer chairman.

Howard said that the first half sales represent 42.4 per cent of the county's goal of $930,620 for the year.

Sales of Series E and H Bonds in North Carolina amounted to $54,580,671 for the first six months of 1977, 5.3 per cent higher than in 1976 and the best for the period since 1945 the chairman reported.

Howard noted that the first half figures amounted to 46.3 per cent of the state's dollar goal of $117,800,000.

Nationally, E and H Savings Bonds sales amounted to $4.11 billion for the first six months of 1977, five per cent higher than in 1976 and the best for the period since 1945, it was reported.

Morgan, 57, lives in a 12-by-20-foot cabin on the site of an old tungsten mine. There's a bigger house but Morgan says it's too much work to keep up. He uses it instead as an over-size greenhouse for the garden that keeps him in vegetables.

He also has a collection of tires, bedsprings, radios, books and other such stuff which he trades, hopefully for food, to campers traveling along the winding dirt road that crosses the Sweetwaters.

A bit of spare gasoline or help in getting a camper's truck out of a ditch has also yielded food, blankets or other items he might need.

Motorists who stop might be put off by Morgan at first. He has a flowing white beard, wears a loaded six-gun and will tell you straight off he's a "dead shot."

"I don't really think I'm goofy, but some people think so," he concedes.

Morgan has ways that might puzzle some. For example, there's an old truck he can drive, but he prefers to walk with his jackass, or use a motorbike once in awhile.

He has a gasoline-powered tiller but prefers to work his garden by hand. The dark tan on his deeply lined face and the hard muscles in his arms are proof of that.

Morgan has no telephone or television, though he does have a generator for electricity. He uses the power mainly for a radio and a battered stereo, on which he occasionally listens to one of his two records.

He has two old refrigerators but prefers to keep most of his food in a root cellar. Dinner might consist of beans, rattlesnake and home-made bread smeared with honey he gets from a tree-stump hive.

Gravity-fed water from a spring keeps his place, elevation 7,036 feet, from drying up and blowing away. When he's not working, he wanders around the mountains with his jackass and dog. Prospecting? "No, principally, I think I look for peace of mind," he says.

What else does he do? "I write, work on things I want to work on. I make a little bit of anything that comes into my head," says Morgan. He displays a hand-carved walking stick and a picture frame he made.

Morgan says he likes people but prefers his out-of-the-way life because "I don't want to be harassed — or harass anyone else. I have a bad temper."

Cleanliness Is Major Factor

NEW YORK (UPI) — If people know your name and the manager is friendly and helpful at your supermarket, it may make you feel good but it will be a minor influence for you to shop there. A Progressive Grocer survey this year shows that the above two factors influencing store loyalty rank 35th and 24th of 37 factors.

Cleanliness of the store is still number one in the minds of a cross-section of U.S. homemakers, the magazine reports.

Finding the Cause of Hives

I have been plagued with terribly itchy hives. They come without any reason. I wonder if you have any ideas how I could go about getting rid of them. I'm 26. — Miss R.L., Mo.

Dear Miss L.:

There is most certainly a "reason" for this condition, known as "urticaria." Unfortunately, you have not been able to locate that reason, but you can be sure it does exist.

It takes a great deal of ingenuity and detective work to find the offending substance. That cause usually lies in foods, drugs, physical irritants, infections and in emotional stress.

Many doctors, particularly allergy specialists, spend a great deal of time in taking a complete history from the patient. The greatest possibility of uncovering the cause lies in clues that can be gathered in this way.

Foods are especially responsible for hives. Doctors suggest that the patient keep an exact diary of foods eaten for about three weeks. Then, notes should be made concerning the time of the onset of symptoms. In this way, if a certain food is responsible it can be pinpointed and eliminated.

The greatest offenders seem to be shellfish, eggs, strawberries, nuts and spices.

Certain drugs, like penicillin, quinine, or vitamin B12, may also be responsible.

Exposure to cold, heat and sunlight should be observed.

As you can gather, it's an arduous task. Yet, complete cooperation between the doctor and the patient can very often track down the cause of urticaria.

Fortunately, there are now many new drugs that can be used to ward off the attacks and to treat them effectively when they occur.

Is it dangerous to drink extremely hot drinks? My 15-year-old son pours and drinks his coffee directly from the pot while it perks. — Mrs. D.V., N.Y.

Dear Mrs. V.:

Of course, this doesn't make sense. Extremely hot fluids poured directly over the skin can produce an obvious burn.

Can you imagine what such excessively hot liquids can do to the delicate lining of the mouth and the esophagus?

There is a built-in protection that cools liquids, but it is not reasonable to expect that the sensitive mucous membrane lining can protect itself against such self-imposed attacks.
