

Panama Canal Pact Foes Hopeful On Senate Vote

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of a new Panama Canal treaty, moving to counter White House efforts to rally support for the agreement, are hopeful they can deny it the two-thirds vote needed to pass the Senate.

A leading foe of the treaty,

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., predicted Wednesday the pact will fail "unless tremendous pressure is brought by the administration."

Thurmond and two other Senate opponents of the agreement, Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, planned to leave today for Panama.

They intended to confer with U.S. officials, including Maj. Gen. Harold R. Parfitt, governor of the American Canal Zone, and Panamanian leader Gen. Omar Torrijos, after arriving on an Air Force jet.

Thurmond said he doubts that former President Gerald R. Ford's endorsement of the treaty Tuesday will influence many Republican senators to vote for it. "They pretty much know how they stand," he said.

Two years ago, Thurmond garnered the support of 38 other senators in opposing any move to give control of the 51-mile-long canal to Panama.

There is no clear indication yet of whether the treaty can pass the Senate, as most members say they won't take a position on it until they study the document.

While the general terms of the agreement have been announced by the Carter administration, the treaty itself is still being written.

Ambassador Sol Linowitz, one of the President's top treaty negotiators, said Wednesday technicians are working "around the clock, seven days a week," to have it ready for the Senate next month.

Opponents of the treaty are pegging much of their case on a recent public opinion poll that said 78 per cent of the American people oppose giving up the waterway. And some legislators have said their constituents are disturbed by the proposal.

Linowitz admitted yesterday that a "very large percentage" of Americans now oppose the treaty, but said those people "have not had the chance to learn the facts about what is involved."

In the House, meanwhile, treaty opponents, led by Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., subjected Linowitz and fellow ambassador Ellsworth Bunker to a day-long grilling on the proposed treaty Wednesday.

Murphy, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, charged that the United States appears to have knuckled under to Panama's demands for a treaty because "many of our military leaders are fearful of losing the only water passage between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans."

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday added his formal endorsement of the treaty. He said he felt the pact was in the best interests of the United States.

Confirmation For FBI Post Seen

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson, who says he hopes he can lead the FBI as well as J. Edgar Hoover did, is likely to win easy Senate confirmation as bureau director, a leading conservative predicts.

Johnson, a federal judge with a strong civil rights record, also drew praise Wednesday from liberals inside the Senate as well as out of Congress as President Carter's choice to lead the FBI.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, divided nearly evenly between liberals and conservatives, is expected to hold hearings on the nomination shortly after Congress returns on Sept. 5 from its summer recess.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the senior member of the GOP conservative bloc on the panel, said he expects Johnson will win confirmation, barring unforeseen developments.

"I don't know of any special reason why he should be opposed," Thurmond said of the 58-year-old judge noted for decisions upholding the rights of blacks in civil rights cases.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., a leading liberal on the panel, applauded the nomination. "His career on the federal bench has been marked by an unflinching commitment to the concept of equal justice under law and a steadfast determination to guarantee the civil liberties and rights of all Americans," Kennedy said in a statement.

Johnson can expect close questioning from the judiciary committee.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., a committee member, said he is undecided about the nomination. But Allen said he wants to know what motivated Carter to select Johnson, whose decisions in certain cases have interjected him deeply into local and state affairs in Alabama.

"I want to ascertain the basis on which the appointment was made. Was it expertise in law enforcement or because of his rulings with respect to Alabama schools, prisons and mental health?" Allen said.

Committee members also are expected to question Johnson about his stand on intelligence gathering techniques of the FBI and his willingness to resist any political pressures on the agency.

One former FBI official is facing trial and others are under investigation for allegedly illegal use of wiretaps, mail openings and similar practices in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

The selection of Johnson to direct the FBI was announced at the White House Wednesday afternoon by Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell. It ended a seven-month search for a successor to Clarence M. Kelley, who is retiring Jan. 1.

Johnson, speaking at a news conference in Montgomery, Ala., said he hoped he could provide "positive, inspirational leadership and management know-how" to aid in the fight against crime.

"I hope I can be as fine a leader as J. Edgar Hoover," the man who had charge of the FBI for 47 years, Johnson said.

Johnson, a Republican, was appointed to the bench in 1955 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower after having served two years as a U.S. attorney in Alabama.

Pitt Elections Bd. Looks To Oct. And Nov.

The Pitt County Board of Elections will conduct a number of municipal elections on October 11 and a special statewide election on November 8.

The board will conduct elections for Greenville, Farmville, Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Winterville and the Village of Simpson October 11. In addition, Ayden, Grifton and Grimesland will hold their own elections on that date.

Car Kills Two At 'Vigil' For Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A speeding car driven by a man who had been drinking killed two women crossing a highway to Elvis Presley's Graceland mansion before dawn today, police said.

A teen-ager was critically injured in the accident only hours before the rock 'n' roll singer's funeral.

The victims were among 350 persons keeping an all-night vigil at the mansion, where Presley died Tuesday.

Shortly after the accident, four persons — a male driver and three female juvenile passengers — were taken into custody, Capt. James Sinclair, night command duty officer said.

The incident triggered a wave of name calling, including some racial slurs from the predominantly white crowd when police brought the black occupants of the car back to the accident scene.

Capt. Sam Martz of the police traffic division said the driver of the car, Treatise Wheeler III, 18, of Memphis, registered .16 on a Breathalyzer test administered at police headquarters shortly after he was taken into custody. In Tennessee, a person registering .10 can be charged with driving under the influence. The car was traveling at 55 miles per hour through a 40 m.p.h. zone, Martz said.

Wheeler was charged with public drunkenness, driving while under the influence of intoxicants, reckless driving, two counts of second-degree murder and leaving the scene of an accident, Martz said.

He said the women were taken to juvenile court and authorities said they would be released to their parents without being charged.

The dead women were not immediately identified.

Methodist Hospital officials identified the critically injured woman as Tammy J. Baiter, 17, of St. Clair, Mo., about 50 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Martz said a policeman saw the car approaching on the four-lane highway and was pulling his cruiser on to the highway, but he said the women were hit before the officer even had a chance to turn on his lights.

Witnesses said the victims were on their way across Elvis Presley Boulevard and had paused in the middle of the street before they were struck by the 1963 Ford.

Dave Tenenbaum, an Associated Press photographer who was at the mansion, said he heard an "extremely loud impact sound" and then I saw one body flung high into the air."

Reconciliation Said Possible

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and his estranged wife, Margaret, reportedly may reconcile.

The Citizen newspaper said Wednesday that one of Mrs. Trudeau's friends reported the prime minister's wife was seeking to have the separation agreement canceled.

The friend said Mrs. Trudeau was spending more time with the couple's three children and seemed to have lost some of her enthusiasm for a photographic career.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

MARVELOUS RESPONSE!

The plans for a yard sale to benefit "a young leukemia patient" were written up in the Hotline column Aug. 4. It was to be held at the home of Henry and Faye Cayton.

Response was "fantastic," Mrs. Cayton said. A local bakery, a local grocery store, and a local wholesale house provided almost all the ingredients for chicken pastry plates which were sold for $2 apiece during the sale and the Caytons' house and yard were inundated with every conceivable item to sell at the Saturday, Aug. 13 event. In addition, many people cash contributions.

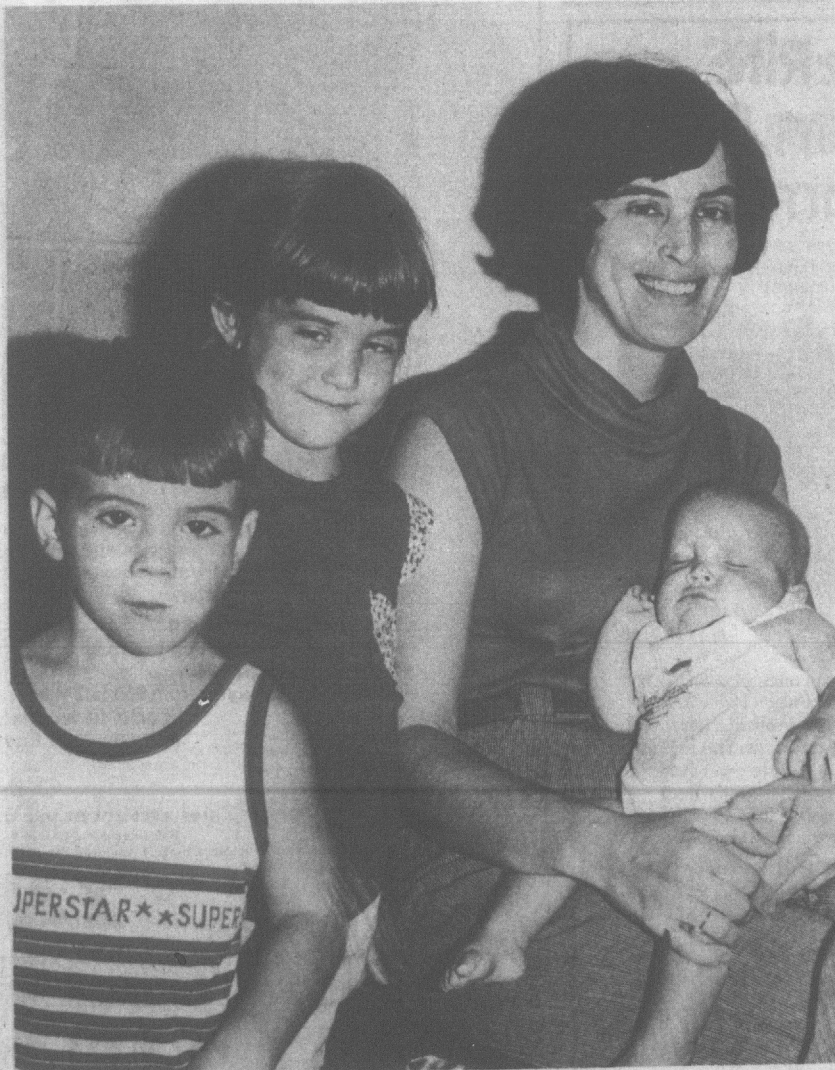

When it was all over, the Caytons and their friends, Margaret and Larry Baldree, who were the other "workhorses" for the affair, took a little over $2,500 to Mr. and Mrs. Josh Potter. The names of the recipients had not been published up to this point because the Caytons did not know the Potters personally and did not know how they'd feel about having their situation publicized.

"We don't mind at all," Mrs. Potter said. "We were so surprised and so thankful. I never knew there could be people who would go so all out for someone they didn't even know. We can never thank the Caytons enough. And we love our friends, the Baldrees, too, and everyone who helped out in any way. Even the amount, in itself, was a miracle. I had just itemized Mark's bills, what we owed beyond what Blue Cross has paid and had found the amount to be almost identical to the amount they brought us!"

Money has continued to come in, Mrs. Cayton said, and the Potters have set up a special account in which to deposit the gifts and from which to continue to pay Mark's medical bills.

Mark is a little less than seven months old. His leukemia was discovered when he was a month old. More can be learned about this remarkable little fellow and his family by reading the adjacent story.

Items left over after the yard sale were contributed to the residents of Spruill's Home for Boys, Mattie Clemmons' Home for Girls, Rosa Bradley's Home for Adults, and to St. Gabriel's Church for a yard sale to be held this Saturday to raise funds for playground equipment, Mrs. Cayton said.

Desperately Sick Baby Spurs General Concern

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The day of Mark's month-old checkup last February was a big event at the Josh Potter household here.

Mrs. Potter decided to make it a fun-filled outing for her strapping nine-pound-plus baby boy; her older son, Josh Jr., three, and her daughter, Janna, five. They would go shopping and to the library first and then to find out how much the doctors and nurses would ooh and ahh over what a fine-looking baby Mark was.

But Dr. Ben Shapley didn't ooh and ahh, she said. In fact, he looked soberer and soberer the longer he spent poking and probing the baby's abdomen. "Finally he turned to me," she recalled, "and he said, 'Mrs. Potter, I'm going to ruin your day.'"

"He didn't tell me the diagnosis he suspected, but he asked that I get in touch with my husband as quickly as possible and that we immediately take the baby to the Emergency Room of the hospital. We learned later that he could tell that Mark's spleen and liver were enlarged and needed the blood tests made at the hospital to confirm his suspicion — leukemia.

The astronomical white cell count made at the hospital proved him correct.

Within hours Potter, who is principal of Falkland Elementary School, and his wife were being met at N. C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill by doctors who were alerted to the situation by the Greenville pediatricians.

"The doctors there were kind, too," Mrs. Potter said. "They told us we had a choice — that without chemotherapy, Mark would be dead within a few days, probably, and that with it would come no real hope either because he was so young."

Youngest Ever

"They told us he was the youngest leukemia patient they had ever treated."

"Josh asked them if treating him would possibly benefit other leukemia patients. 'Yes,' they said.

"So, we decided to go ahead and allow to be done whatever could be done for him."

The next month, the baby and Mrs. Potter spent in Chapel Hill. During this time, Mark went into remission. "This, in itself was miraculous," she said. "He went in, so to speak, on the first attempt at chemotherapy, whereas many times three or four different protocols have to be tried."

He is in no pain, Mark's mother says, insofar as she and her husband can determine. He is extremely weak at times, but at others is active and alert and responsive, laughing and friendly.

"One of the drugs, the doctors tell us, probably has affected muscular control in his legs, but they believe that this is temporary. This is one of the things studying Mark can tell them," she said.

Janna and Josh Jr. have not seemed to be adversely affected by the baby's illness, Mrs. Potter said. "If anything it's seemed to be good for them. They love him as much as we do and spoil him rotten, too."

The Potters' neighbors held a yard sale for them soon after they learned of the diagnosis, back in March, she said, and they've been wonderful about keeping the children for them when needs for trips to the doctor and other things arose.

"We don't know what we would have done without all the people who've helped us," Mrs. Potter said. "The doctors here have been great. They've been so concerned and have saved us many a trip to Chapel Hill because they've been able to give the shots and do the procedures Mark needed at particular times. At one time we were going to the doctor here every day and to Chapel Hill every two weeks. Now it's only once a week that we have to go to the doctor here and once a month to Chapel Hill. Dr. Sam Pepkowitz and Dr. Michael Bramley, she mentioned specifically as going the second mile many times to help them.

Southern Bell Requests $65.16 Million Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Southern Bell Telephone Co. today filed a petition for a $65.16 million rate hike in North Carolina, saying inflation has eroded earnings since the last increase more than a year ago.

"Inflation is the big word," said R. G. Stamey, Raleigh district manager for Southern Bell.

Stamey said if the N.C. Utilities Commission approves the full rate hike request, one-party residence service rates will increase 60 cents and one-party business phone rates will climb by $1.20 a month.

The Utilities Commission approved a $36.17 million rate increase for Southern Bell, effective December 1975, after the telephone company had requested a $62.46 million hike.

The current request for $65.16 million includes about $11.5 million which would come from settlements for long distance service with other telephone companies in the state, Stamey said. The remaining $53.7 million in new revenues would come directly from Bell customers and amount to a 16.4 per cent increase in revenues, he said.

Voters may register for the elections at the office of the Pitt Board (201 East Second St., Greenville), from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Persons may also register to vote, or make any needed changes in voting status in the town halls at Ayden, Falkland, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland and Winterville during office hours; at the Fire Inspectors office in Farmville, at the Bethel police station and in libraries in Greenville, when a registration commissioner is on duty. There will also be a registrar at each of the High Schools in Pitt County to register students of voting age.

French Deport Ex-CIA Man

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The French government has deported Philip Agee, the former CIA agent who revealed U.S. spy secrets in a controversial book, the Interior Ministry announced today.

Agee, expelled from Britain in June, was arrested Wednesday night in the English Channel port of Boulogne and "immediately taken to the Belgian frontier," 50 miles away, a communique said.

"His presence on French soil is undesirable because of his past activities and the consequences that some of his current activities could have on relations that France maintains with certain friendly countries," the statement said.

In Brussels, the Belgian ministries of justice, interior and foreign affairs and the U.S. embassy all said they knew nothing of Agee's whereabouts.

Agee, 41, has been living openly in Paris and last week told an interviewer he was writing a book about CIA interventions in Western Europe, among other regions. This, presumably, will include CIA activities in France.

He also said in the interview that he was working on an index of "all the organizations and people" known to have CIA connections.

Agee's British lawyer, Larry Grant, said in London that the agent-turned-author went to Boulogne to meet his wife, Angela, who had traveled from the couple's home at Cambridge, 50 miles north of London.

She had planned to go with him to Paris. Agee moved to the French capital from The Netherlands, where he went after obeying a British government deportation order June 3.

Grant said both Agee and his wife were arrested but she was released.

Agee, by his own account, served with the CIA in Latin America from 1960 to 1969, became disillusioned, quit, and came to Britain in 1972.

He wrote a book called "CIA Diary" which named a number of CIA men, and he has written detailed accounts of how the agency operates.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — This day was for the family and the close friends of Elvis Presley, not for the clawing, clutching, adoring crowds.

As he wished it, the funeral for the 42-year-old singer was to be conducted in private, in midafternoon, with prayer and eulogy in the mansion he called home and entombment near his mother, in a cemetery not far away.

Dick Grob, the chief of Presley's personal security force, said the singer and his father, Vernon Presley, had planned his funeral.

"This is running exactly the way Elvis' father suggested it be run," Grob said. "It's been run in accordance with Elvis' wishes."

The family had planned to allow the public to view Presley's body for two hours Wednesday. The time stretched to 3½ hours but there were still about 15,000 whose pilgrimage to see Presley a final time was in vain.

Sheriff Gene Barksdale estimated that 25,000 to 30,000 walked past the seamless copper coffin. The estimate may have been generous, but the lines continued without letup for the entire 3½ hours.

Presley was dressed in a cream-colored, almost white, suit with pale blue shirt and silver tie — Christmas presents from his father.

Presley's face showed the effects of the weight he gained in his later years. On one finger was a ring with an enormous diamond.

So zealously did the family guard the private aspects of the day, that the names of those officiating at the service and most of those invited to attend were withheld.

Rex Humbard, a nationally known evangelist from Akron, Ohio, said he would officiate. Humbard had visited Presley at his Memphis home, known as Graceland Mansion.

From his emergence in the mid 1950s, Presley, whose records sold millions and whose films played to hordes, shaped American culture like no entertainer before him.

His dynamic stage presence — the twitching hips, the long sideburns, thick hair and curling lip — made him the passion of America's bobby-soxers.

His music — an amalgamation of country, blues and gospel with a sassy bounce — was the vanguard of a new genre called rock 'n' roll and influenced scores of artists, many of whom were expected to attend the funeral.

A family spokesman said Sammy Davis Jr., and singer

James Brown would attend. Guitarist Chet Atkins and fellow executives at RCA Victor for whom Presley recorded were to be there.

There were reports that Caroline Kennedy and movie stars Burt Reynolds and Ann-Margret may attend.

Tennessee's governor, Ray Blanton, who ordered that all flags in the state fly at half staff, also was flying to Memphis.

The pallbearers were the men closest to Presley: his road manager, Joe Esposito; his doctor, George Nichopoulos; his guitarist, Charlie Hodge; his record producer, Felton Jarvis; his music publisher and longtime friend, Lamar Fike; and a cousin, Billy Smith.

It was Esposito who found the unconscious Presley on the floor of his private bath Tuesday afternoon. His death was attributed to a heart attack.

The Potters are active members of Trinity Free Will Baptist Church and she said their church friends have been wonderful, as have friends and neighbors and even people they do not even know — like those who raised more than $2,500 for them last Saturday at a yard sale (See today's Hotline column).

"God gave us what we thought was a perfect child," Mrs. Potter said. "Then we found out he was a desperately sick little boy. But we've continued to see the good he's brought to our lives and to many other people's and how God has provided for his and our needs on and on. Who knows what other good things He has in store for Mark and for us?"

The Unacceptable Guidelines

The UNC Board of Governors planning committee has rejected a minority quota plan for the university system.

The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare guidelines would have required an increase in black freshmen and transfer students on predominantly white campuses by 150 percent by 1982.

The report approved by the planning committee calls the requirement "not realistic."

Also questioned in the report was an HEW guideline calling for the university to give primary consideration to racial impact in establishing new educational programs.

A university official said other factors — quality, need and productivity would be considered "without regard to race as the overriding factor."

The university has been in accord with HEW on the need to increase black enrollment in the formerly white universities and in fact great strides have been made in this direction.

The contention now is that guidelines which HEW has established for further increasing blacks in the predominantly white campus simply can't be met without destroying the university system.

And that's about the way we see it. Clearly the HEW guidelines are not going to be applied nationwide and there is probably not a state which could meet them if they were. So the strategy is to zero in on a small number of states which will find it difficult to fight back.

The UNC system has made giant strides in bringing blacks onto the formerly white campuses. At all times this has been done in a way so as not to harm the states formerly all black campuses.

For its conscientiousness the state now has unworkable HEW guidelines hanging over it. But the university's first concern should always be the people of North Carolina and what is best for all of them. For that reason, every legal effort should be made to resist these totally unreasonable guidelines.

THIS AFTERNOON

Asks Crime Watch Funds

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Nearly a million dollars in federal money is being sought by state officials to spread Gov. James B. Hunt's community crime watch effort, and to provide jobs for low-income people.

Working with the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program, the crime control agency of state government plans to launch the effort in October.

Some 20 areas in North Carolina have been tentatively identified as combination high-crime, low-income, high unemployment districts where such an intensive community watch effort might prove effective.

Local Support

"We are still reviewing these, and once the funds are available we will meet with local law enforcement administrators to determine their willingness to enter the program," says Bruce Marshburn assistant division director of crime control in the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

The commitment of local officials to the effort is essential to success. "There would be no sense putting it into a community where law enforcement people were not behind it. It would be doomed to failure unless they enter it enthusiastically," says Marshburn.

The 20 target areas are a mixture of urban and rural sections, identified as districts in which community watch efforts could be expected to produce measurable results. Gov. Hunt is concerned that residents of middle and upper class neighborhoods simply do not understand and appreciate the seriousness of crime in less fortunate sections.

There are areas—both in the country, and in cities—where both personal and property crimes are extremely high. These are the targets which will be picked.

Little difficulty is seen getting federal approval of the program since state officials were first approached by federal people and encouraged to design such a program.

The application to Washington calls for hiring more than 100 non-professional people from high-crime areas who "will be assigned to work under the day-to-day supervision of existing crime prevention officers in the 20 high-crime counties or municipalities of North Carolina."

The individuals will work under a state director, and in conjunction with the local law enforcement officials, design ways of educating the public and mobilizing community crime watch groups.

BILL NOBLITT

Most Affected

"It is felt that persons in the project areas who are high risk victims of crime will be most affected by this program. High risk victims are generally low-income, disadvantaged, and in surprisingly increasing numbers the senior citizens..."

Between 101 and 120 community watch groups would be set up, with residents recruited, trained, and organized "for the common goal of protecting that neighborhood from being victimized by crime and of reducing the incidents of crime... Ideally, every resident in a target community will participate in the community watch effort for the purpose of reporting suspicious activity to law enforcement (officials) and in exercising watch care functions over his or her neighbors' family and property, and in the active prosecution of known criminals," the application states.

A total of $950,600 is needed to finance the effort, with emphasis on hiring the local community watch personnel at $7,809 per year. State administrative costs are kept low, with only a project director at $15,885, an administration officer, an assistant, and a clerk typist to be hired in Raleigh.

While the 20 target areas have been tentatively identified, state sources said that if any of those don't wish to participate, then others will be sought out and application accepted for consideration from communities which do wish to take part.

Panama Canal, Pro-Con

As debate heats up on the issue of the Panama Canal, a suggestion is in order for editors, unemployed politicians and members of the House and Senate: Suppose we simmer down; and suppose we keep an open mind.

It will be months before the matter comes to a yes-or-no vote on Capitol Hill. At this writing, we still have no English texts of the several documents that have been generally agreed upon. We have a statement of principles, considerably more detailed than the last statement of principles in January of 1974, but a swarm of questions remain unanswered.

The proponents of the agreement bear the burden of proof. When Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker defines the American interest to this effect, that we must have a Canal that is "open, safe, efficient, and neutral," an obvious response comes to mind: Mr. Ambassador, that is what we have now. What compelling reasons demand a change in a basic relationship that has worked for so many years?

Two reasons are advanced. The first goes to equity, the second to prudence.

Viewed historically, the construction of the Panama Canal is a matter of national pride. The diplomacy is a matter of national shame.

California's Senator S. I. Hayakawa has summed it up neatly: "We stole it fair and square." The people of Panama understandably view the Canal and the Canal Zone today with festering resentment. No matter how important the Canal may be to Panama's tottering economy, the Canal is a hated symbol of Yankee imperialism. If a foreign power controlled a strip of land running 10 miles wide across Florida, from Daytona Beach to Ocala and thence to the Gulf, we would find the presence intolerable.

The argument of prudence goes to this effect, that so long as serious anti-American tensions continue, the Canal is not so "safe" after all. Leftist students, drunk on the heady wine of nationalism, pose a continuing threat to efficient operations; sabotage is an ever-present possibility. These dangers could be avoided, it is argued, by a treaty restoring whatever rights the United States now claims "as if it were sovereign." So generous a gesture, it is said, would win us friends through the southern hemisphere.

Ambassador Bunker and his colleague, Ambassador Sol Linowitz, offer this further argument — and it makes a good deal of sense to me: Our proper concern is not with sovereignty, but with use. The important thing, they contend, is to make certain — as certain as one can be in an uncertain world — that the U. S. is assured of our naval vessels and our general shipping will have fair use of the Canal forever. The pending treaties, in their view, fully protect that interest.

In broad outline, that is the case for the proponents. It is a persuasive case. I am not at all sure it is a convincing case. What is proposed, to put the matter in a different light, is for the United States to abandon responsibility for an international waterway of continuing importance to our economy and our security. Our country has met that

Code Names Aired

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Listen, this isn't the type of information the government wants passed around.

But President Carter is the "Deacon." Former President Ford was "Pass Key." Richard Nixon was known as "Searchlight."

Lyndon Johnson went through life as president known as "Volunteer," and John F. Kennedy was tagged "Lancer."

It's all part of the Secret Service name game, used to identify the First Family and top administration officials as their comings and goings are noted in walkie-talkie jargon.

The people who make up these names, employees of the White House Communications Agency, are reticent to talk about them, since they are designed for security.

But one spokesman will go this far: Bert Lance, the big man who serves the President as budget director, is not known as "Dumbo," regardless of published reports to the contrary.

He was referring to a recent newspaper story citing a radio exchange between agents as Lance and Carter prepared for a game of tennis at the White House that "Deacon and Dumbo are on the courts."

"Dumbo isn't even on the list," said the spokesman, not amused.

"The list," is actually a book of call signs put out by the Military Communications Electronics Board of the Department of Defense. It contains hundreds of words that are "easily understood and pronounceable and have no undesirable connotations" and form the pool of acceptable nicknames for V.I.P.'s whose movements must be noted discreetly for security reasons.

Who christened Carter "Deacon"? Do WHCA personnel agonize like nervous parents of a newborn child for a name that will fit the personality?

Code names are assigned by "sheer whim," said the WHCA spokesman, who declined to provide his own name.

"There is no method. When someone needs a name we go to the list and choose one that is easy to pronounce and decipherable and has not been used recently."

"Really, not too much thought goes into the naming," he said. "Words are chosen to keep transmissions short and sweet and be easily identified over the radio circuit."

But some aliases seem more apt than others. Kennedy's "Lancer" certainly fit the Camelot theme of his administration. "Deacon" for Carter, the Sunday school preacher, sounded too perfect to have evolved randomly.

"It was all a matter of chance," the spokesman insisted.

One thing is for sure, the WHCA spokesman said. When a call sign gets too publicized, it's time for a name change, especially where the president is concerned.

If not Deacon, what title will be selected next by sheer whim?

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

When Odd Things Happen

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When the President disappears for a quiet week's vacation at Camp David, when the vice president is off fishing in the north woods of Minnesota, when Congress has scattered to the four winds, odd things happen at the White House.

An old-fashioned, wind-up alarm clock is placed in a cardboard box and staff members pretend the ticking package is a time bomb, sending it to each other's offices in the White House West Wing, where Carter's office is located.

A blazing gun battle erupts in a corridor just a few feet from the Oval Office, with junior staff members spraying each other with water from squirt guns.

Other staff members guide friends and relatives around the White House. They stop, like tourists at one of dozens of Washington sightseeing stops, to peer into the empty Oval Office.

And one senior aide jokes that the dog days of August are the best time for reading her bosses' memoranda and the vice president's diary.

Is this really the White House? It is, on a sultry August afternoon.

The President and his family left Washington nearly two weeks ago for a five-day visit to Plains, Ga. After four days back at the White House, they were off again, for a vacation at the presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoclin Mountains.

So, staff members, who are less-than-formal when the President is in town, are playing a few pranks and relaxing a bit. Some are even using the break to catch up on work.

Only the telephone operators at the White House switchboard are finding the workload only slightly diminished. But you can't talk to them. They're too busy answering the telephones.

The President worked on tax revision proposals and relaxed in the mountaintop woods. It was an opportunity for him to play with his 5-month-old grandson. If he had any speeches to give this week, he had a small audience.

So, speechwriter James Fallows was on vacation. His assistant, Jean Saar, tried to sound busy, suggesting that she had "a little bit of this and a little bit of that" to take care of.

"You're not very busy?" she was asked. "Right," she replied.

Tim Smith, the President's assistant appointments secretary, works on events coming up in the near future, so he was keeping busy.

Part of his office's duties involve answering mail requests for meetings with Carter, and these keep coming in whether the President is in the White House or on vacation.

But, he said, somehow the pace slackened off this week.

In the basement of the West Wing, members of the National Security Council staff were following up on matters that developed in Congress' rush to begin the August recess two weeks ago. They also were preparing for the trip next week by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to China, for the opening of the United Nations General Assembly session next month and for Congress' return.

"This is sort of a period of consolidation and rejuvenation," said spokesman Jerrold Schecter.

Margaret "Midge" Costanza, the President's assistant for public liaison, was in a playful mood.

What does she do when Carter and Vice President Walter F. Mondale are out of town?

"I'm using their offices and reading their memos," she said, jokingly. "I just searched the vice president's diary and I'm not in it."

"I'm catching up on my phone calls," said the assistant, who can sometimes take days to reach on the telephone. "I'm only eight weeks behind."

But, she said seriously, what she is really trying to do is catch up with accumulated work and give her staff some time off.

The maintenance staff took advantage of the break to vacuum and shampoo the carpet in the press office and press briefing room, lifting several months' accumulation of cigarette ashes and coffee stains from the yellow floor cover.

At the White House switchboard, one operator said life was a little quieter with the President out of town.

"But (pause to answer a call) we're busy," she said, pausing to answer another call. "People just want to call us."

Other Editors Say Decade Of Inflation

(The Wilson Times)

Just how much has the average worker suffered from inflation during the past decade?

Figures published in the current issue of U.S. News & World Report show the gross average weekly wage rose from $101.19 in mid-1967 to $135.78 in 1972 and has now reached $189.28.

While the increase seems impressive, tax changes and price increases must be considered and the best indicator of how much a worker has progressed is to compare his or her present earning power with the labor required to obtain equivalent goods or services at some specified date in the past.

Ten years ago, 35 weeks of labor were required to purchase an automobile; 30 weeks five years ago; and 34 weeks today. A pair of dress shoes could be obtained for 7 hours of labor in 1967, 6½ hours in 1972, and 6 hours now. To buy a shirt, a worker labored 3 hours 10 years ago, compared with 2½ hours in 1972, and 2 hours today. A pound of round steak was worth 20 minutes of work 10 years ago, remained unchanged for five years and has now climbed to 23 minutes.

The labor required for a pound of coffee has more than doubled in a decade. Ten years ago, 20 minutes of labor were needed for this purchase and 17 minutes in 1972. Today, a worker must toil 48 minutes for a pound of coffee.

Some workers fared better than others in coping with inflation. In fact the pay of tire-factory, steel, aluminum, oil and gas, auto, and telephone workers increased faster than prices during the past year.

On the other hand, construction workers, farm operators, bank clerks, federal government employees and metal-container workers lost purchasing power.

Overall, the average worker picked up 1.6 per cent in earnings after allowing for price and tax changes since mid-1976 — mainly from the cut in federal income taxes.

But Congress has hiked the public debt limit by $75 billion to a new high of $775 billion — $3,600 for every man, woman and child in the country. This raises the question of whether there was a real earnings gain or an illusion created with borrowed federal dollars.

Strength For Today

THE SHRINE IS NECESSARY

What is worship?

Worship is anything that makes it easy to find God and difficult to forget Him. It may be the singing of hymns or the offering up of prayers, the reading of scripture, quiet meditation in some holy shrine, or the proclamation of the gospel. Any circumstance or influence which leads us naturally into a sense of the divine presence is a factor of worship.

Some people maintain that they can worship God just as well out under the open skies as in a church. Others claim they can worship God in their homes, or that they get as much from a televised church service as one they actually attend.

Perhaps these contentions are true for some people, but not for most of us. Most people need consecrated shrines and definitely assigned periods of worship and certain surroundings which induce the spirit of worship before they can really bring their hearts into contact with the unseen things which are eternal.

More 'Rest' By Men Workers

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The average employed man spends a lot more time each day at nonwork activities, such as coffee breaks and relaxing, than does the typical working woman, an ongoing study at the University of Michigan shows.

Analysis of the data, which began in 1974 and which will be continued to encompass other ways in which men and women use their time, is adding powerful documentation to the assertion that despite equal rights legislation, it's still a man's world.

A separate study, based on some of the data uncovered by Michigan's Survey Research Center, shows also that work inequality extends into the home where, said a researcher, "The men really don't help much."

To date, the study has found that the typical employed man spends 52 minutes or 11 per cent of each paid working day at nonwork activities, while the average woman spends just 35 minutes, or 8 per cent, away from assigned tasks.

The minutes and percentages exclude the lunch hour, but do include extensions of it beyond the allotted time, as well as coffee breaks and other forms of relaxation, including conversation.

The same researchers have less solid evidence indicating that the energy and effort expended during the work day is greater for women than for men.

The glaring differences, said Greg Duncan, study director, appear to be rooted in the kinds of jobs commonly assigned to men and women. "Women are more closely supervised and unable to take the breaks men do," he said.

Despite the more relaxed working day for men, the study found they make about $7 an hour, in contrast to the working woman's $4.34. And when rates are adjusted for break time, Duncan said, the figures become $8.48 and $4.86, respectively.

Adding to the disparity in the work day, the researchers found through a more subjective and less validated portion of the study that women expend 112 per cent more effort than men during the time each is working.

The studies have great potential for explaining what has often been referred to as the lagging rate of productivity increase in the United States. As Duncan said, the 40-hour week does not mean people are working 40 hours.

Perhaps of even greater importance is the use made by women of the unfolding story of inequality. While it is not a subject on which the professors express learned opinions, it is bound to find its way into labor negotiations — and even into the marriage contract.

John P. Robinson, one of the researchers and author of the recently published book, "How America Uses Time," has found that women continue to perform most household chores, even when they become fulltime "market" workers.

"The man does very little even when the woman goes to work," said Robinson, who is also director of communications research at Cleveland State University. "Women do 80 per cent of housework and childcare," he said.

Last Night's Rain To Have Positive Effect

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer
Last night's rainfall will have an overall positive effect on Pitt County crops as water seeps into the ground and restores low soil moisture supplies.

Ed Yancey of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service said, "I think any significant rains we get short of excess will help because soil moisture is so low. We need to be building soil moisture supplies back up."

"It will do us some good for a long time because the water will seep into the ground and build up the moisture supplies," he said.

Yancey said the rains will improve chances for better soybean and peanut crops in Pitt

County and will improve conditions for cover crops and small responsibility honorably since the Canal was opened in 1914.

It is proposed to yield that responsibility, by degrees, to a poor and debt-ridden country with a record of wild instability. Whatever the long-term future may hold, the immediate prospects to yield jurisdiction to the pro-Communist regime of a dictator who has demonstrated his contempt for constitutions. We are to pay General Omar Torrijos $50 to $70 million a year for keeping things open and pleasant.

It is a large annual payment, 25 times what we are paying now, but it would represent no more than pocket change to the Soviet Union. Just as Egypt barred Israeli ships from the Suez, so it is conceivable that Panama at some point could bar U.S. ships from its Canal. What then? Do we go to war to enforce these "assurances"? Perhaps we do, at fearful cost.

There are times when great powers, if they would remain great powers, must do unpopular things. In the Bunker-Linowitz view, yielding the Canal would be morally right; the U.S. would be praised for its generosity. It is also possible, in a different view, that the U.S. might be studied for its weakness. Are the impending treaties motivated by moral obligation? Or by fear of student riots?

Let us think upon these things. We ought not to hold onto the Canal out of a foolish pride of possession; but we ought not to yield it out of a sappy magnanimity, either.

grain seeding.

"As far as doing anything for tobacco, I don't see how it's going to help us," he said.

"On corn it may actually do a little damage," he added, "because the corn is on weak stalks. I'm afraid heavy winds and rain may cause corn stalks to get weaker and fall over."

"When the corn falls over and lays on the ground it starts decaying and farmers are unable to pick it all up with harvesters," he said.

Rainfall between midnight and 10 a.m. today measured 1.7 inches at the Greenville Utilities Commission. The river was at 3.8 feet and rising.

The mercury reached a high of 92 degrees yesterday and an overnight low of 74 degrees was recorded.

On Staff Of Commission

WASHINGTON — Two new members have been added to the staff of the Mid-East Commission here according to officials.

Cy Grant, a Windsor native, has been named an assistant local government coordinator and William Shelly, a former assistant planner in Rockingham County, Virginia, has been named a community development planner.

Grant, a graduate of North Carolina Central University with a degree in public administration, will work closely with town officials in the 39 municipalities which share membership in the Mid-East Commission, to assist them in their efforts to obtain federal grant funds for needed projects.

Shelly, a graduate of Old Dominion University holds a masters degree in Urban and Regional Planning from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. He will oversee planning projects contracted by Mid-East for Ayden, Bethel, Fountain and Robersonville.

Cocaine is a Dangerous Drug

Cocaine now is tempting many of the "sophisticates" in the avant-garde set who believe that marijuana is getting too commonplace for their tastes.

Not only the so-called "upper" classes, but the "middle" classes and "lower" classes are finding this drug intriguing and tempting.

I know of social groups where cocaine-sniffing is almost as commonplace as a scotch-and-soda. That is distressing enough. But, when reports come in that youngsters in the 7th to 12th grades are being tempted by cocaine, the warning should be emblazoned in the sky.

Many of these people start by sniffing out of curiosity. Later, they become dependent on it and cannot separate themselves from it. It's an accepted fact that there is a high degree of psychological dependence on cocaine following its use.

Although cocaine is not technically considered as addictive as heroin, users should not console themselves with the "safety" of this drug. For it is well known that cravings and an overwhelming compulsion to take more cocaine occurs as soon as the effects of sniffing have subsided.

Let there be no mistake. Cocaine is an exceedingly dangerous drug. The rapid expansion of its use in the last ten years must make us aware that cocaine has very serious social and psychological consequences. Watch out!

A new technique for relaxation is catching on. Dr. Herbert Benson, of the Harvard Medical School, tells you how to do it:

- 1) Sit quietly in a comfortable position.
- 2) Close your eyes.
- 3) Deeply relax all your muscles, beginning at your feet and progressing up to your face.
- 4) Breathe through your nose. As you exhale, say the word "one" silently to yourself.
- 5) Continue doing this for 20 minutes. Do not use an alarm. When you finish, sit quietly for several minutes, at first with closed eyes, and later with open eyes.
- 6) Do not worry about whether you are successful in achieving a deep level of relaxation. Maintain a passive attitude and permit relaxation to occur at its own pace. When distracting thoughts occur, ignore them and continue repeating "one." With practice, the response should come with little effort. Practice the technique twice daily, but not within two hours after eating.

It certainly sounds worth trying!

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

More Surgery For Humphrey

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey was scheduled to undergo surgery today as doctors sought to determine the nature of an obstruction that has partially blocked his large intestine.

Dr. John Najarian of University of Minnesota Hospitals said doctors would not know whether Humphrey was suffering from a recurrence of cancer until the surgery, known as a colostomy, was performed.

Humphrey, 66, has been undergoing periodic chemotherapy treatments since his cancerous bladder was removed last Oct. 7.

Najarian, head of the university's department of surgery, said the colon surgery would take several hours and he did not expect to report on its outcome before late afternoon.

Calls from well-wishers—including President Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano streamed into University Hospitals Wednesday night.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, in his home state on vacation, visited with Humphrey for about 30 minutes.

A hospital spokeswoman said Carter called the Minnesota Democrat about 5 p.m. She said the conversation lasted about five minutes and Humphrey described it afterwards as "super."

Humphrey was admitted to the hospital Tuesday and was examined by Najarian and cancer treatment specialist Dr. B.J. Kennedy.

The public is invited to attend according to the pastor, Bishop S. Jones.

Discount Elvis Drug Stories

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Authorities discount reports that Elvis Presley had a serious drug problem before his death.

"I can't say he was taking no drugs at all," said Dr. Jerry Francisco, Shelby County medical examiner, "because his own doctor said he was taking appetite depressants."

But Francisco, who conducted a three-hour autopsy on the entertainer's body, emphatically denied Presley showed any sign of drug abuse.

"There was no evidence of any abnormal, illegal drug use," he said.

In Beverly Hills, Calif., two of Presley's ex-bodyguards, Delbert "Sonny" West and David Hebler, said on Wednesday he was a "tormented man" pushed into heavy drug use by the weight of his own legend.

The bodyguards were fired just before they started writing "Elvis: What Happened?" a book touted by publicists as describing a grim side of Presley that was "brooding, violent, obessed with death, strung out, sexually driven."

West and Hebler emphasized that their book, which describes Presley as a reclusive drug addict, was written more than a year ago.

It was released two weeks ago.

The bodyguards said Presley started taking pills during his two-year stint in the Army and continued taking them to get up for his heavy concert and film schedule.

Francisco said if Presley had been taking drugs in the amount suggested by West, visible evidence would have shown on the body.

Francisco said he found no needle marks—which would have been apparent had Presley been taking drugs with a hypodermic—and he said there was no sign of damage or change in his tissues and organs which would have shown evidence of heavy drug abuse.

His Ricksha Rides Are A Business

By RALPH VARTABEDIAN
The Kalamazoo Gazette
KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — The Conrail freight rumbles by, spewing blue-white diesel smoke into the warming early morning air. A horn sounds its arrival.

Tom Hatcher, asleep on a railroad right-of-way nearby, stirs and then awakens from his bed on an Oriental-style ricksha. He gathers his blankets and stows them under his seat and trots off for a day of ricksha-pulling along the city's mall.

He doesn't look Oriental, doesn't speak Japanese and the setting doesn't resemble Tokyo. Nevertheless, Hatcher does pull the two-wheel cart on the mall and at 15 cents a ride it's the cheapest transportation around.

Against all appearances, Hatcher is serious about his new business.

"It's free enterprise. It's ecological. It's American," he said.

Mornings begin on the railroad siding where he frequently sleeps in the ricksha he built. "All you have to do is pull out the seat and slide it down for a bench," he said. "My bedding is under the seat."

He calls it his "mobile home."

Aside from the noise of the trains and an occasional insect bite, Hatcher described his outdoor existence as precisely what he wants in life now. "When summer comes, I prefer to live outdoors," he said.

The ricksha was built from odds and ends. He rummaged through garbage cans to find suitable bicycle wheels, found some discarded plywood and pine for the frame and had a friend help with welding.

"I used to be down on cars," he said. "But I'm not down on anything anymore," Hatcher said.

If the economics of the ricksha business look bad from a distance, they don't look any better from the tow bar. Hatcher said he earned $5 one Saturday and $15 the following Saturday. His $15 day, however, was helped substantially by customers who gave him $12 in tips.

At 15 cents a ride, Hatcher acknowledged low income is the mark of his business. "I don't know what would maximize my profit," he said. "If people have a dime, they'll give me a dime. But usually they don't have 15 cents so they give me a quarter. People are pretty generous."

Profit maximization is largely theory to Hatcher. During the off-season, he is a graduate student at Western Michigan University, studying physics, mathematics and economics.

Hatcher said he called several city officials to check on the legality of the ricksha enterprise. City Manager Robert Bob said he had no problem with the ricksha, Hatcher recalled, but another official warned Hatcher would need insurance.

"So I went to some insurance companies," Hatcher said. "They said they would charge me $100 for ricksha insurance. But I haven't had any accidents so far."

Business is growing. In the planning stage are modifications to the ricksha that include a canopy and a pedal system for driving the vehicle. "Right now, I'm small," he conceded. "But everybody starts out small."

Prices Up On Tobacco

Prices were up on all grades yesterday on the Greenville Tobacco Market as local warehouses recorded an average of $122.10 per hundred pounds.

J.N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the local Tobacco Board of Trade, said the market sold 1,110,815 pounds of tobacco for $1,356,275 Wednesday.

Stabilization receipts accounted for only 1.30 per cent of total sales, he said.

Top practical price paid was $1.38 while some leaf sold for $1.40-$1.42 per pound.

Offerings consisted of leaf, cutters, lugs, primers and non-descript tobacco, the sales supervisor reported.

For the season, the market has sold 12,415,849 for $12,864,513, an average of $103.61 per hundred pounds.

Presley Fans Buy Up Records

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

Elvis Presley's fans across the country raced to record stores when he died, stripping the shelves of his albums.

They were young and old — and many were women 20 years beyond their teens — giving vent one last time to the hero-worship they had felt back then.

In city after city, record outlets reported being sold out of Elvis albums and tapes by the close of business Wednesday. Shops in Boston, Shreveport, La., Wichita, Kan., and San Diego were inundated.

RCA Records, for which Presley had recorded since 1956, put an Indianapolis plant on round-the-clock schedules to press his latest album, "Moody Blue."

The Indianapolis plant, which handles half the demand for Elvis albums nationwide, reported sales of 250,000 "Moody Blue" albums alone on Wednesday.

When Elvis was alive, he had sold more than 500 million records by 1975, according to a spokesman for RCA.

A record industry source said the current craze could add 100 million records to the total number of Presley albums ever sold.

Many record stores said most of their customers seemed to be those who had grown up with Elvis — people in their late 20s, 30s and 40s, many of them women.

"Everything's gone. A couple of people have come in here and been close to tears," said Richard Klave of LP Goodbuy in Albuquerque, N.M.

It was barely 24 hours since first word of the swivel-hipped idol's death.

For Jerry Friebert, manager of Radio Doctors, a record outlet in Milwaukee, "the amazing thing is that we're seeing middle-aged people coming in with their kids, and saying, 'See, this is the man. We're going to have this now. You're going to remember this. I'm talking about kids 11 and 12 years old. They're not into Elvis that much.'"

Friebert said that "people were waiting at the door before we opened this morning. It's just been unbelievable." The crowd wasn't sad, he said; it was a "carnival type" atmosphere. "They just want to buy, buy, buy."

At the Oz in Birmingham, Ala., it was different. "People came in with tears in their eyes," said the proprietor. A spokesman at Medusa Sound Inc. in the same city, said, "All we had were some Elvis Christmas albums and they sold real fast."

In Chapel Hill, N.C., Eddie Long of School Kids Records said, "This place is going berserk. If Elvis put out anything, good or bad, we've got to get it."

He said 22 persons, most of them women, were on a waiting list. "One lady said she wanted every Elvis album ever made. I don't even know how many albums that is."

In San Diego, clerk Denise Wolfe at the Licorice Music Store said, "We sold out Elvis' new album within an hour after his death was reported. An old gray-haired couple bought the last copy we had."

Going To Court In Bid To Bar Govm't Review

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The PTL television network will take the state of North Carolina to court in an attempt to block government scrutiny of the mushrooming network's finances.

An attorney for PTL, an evangelical ministry which syndicates religious shows throughout the United States and in several foreign countries, said the Charlotte-based network filed a suit here Wednesday challenging the constitutionality of a new state law.

That law requires religious organizations which get most of their money from nonmembers to provide detailed financial statements.

John Freeman, an attorney for PTL, said a restraining order was issued with the suit, temporarily blocking the state from requiring financial disclosures.

Mecklenburg County Superior Court Judge Fred Hasty issued the order at PTL's request, Freeman said.

PTL officials had said previously they would challenge the law because they felt it violated First Amendment rights of freedom of speech and religion.

The state began requesting financial information from PTL after a state official said he heard requests for money for secular projects.

PTL had been ordered to file an application with the state Solicitation and Licensing Branch of the Department of Human Resources in order to continue soliciting funds from viewers, but the restraining order temporarily lifts the requirement for a license, Freeman said.

The restraining order applies only to PTL and prevents local or state authorities from charging the law until the question of constitutionality is decided.

Last month the network released a set of its financial records in apparently the first public disclosure of its resources. Network officials emphasized they were not trying to hide the organization's finances but objected to the state law and complied with the law reluctantly.

PTL said it takes in an aver-

Helms Cites Appeals Not To Give Up Canal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he disagrees with those who contend that other South American governments want the U.S. to turn sovereignty over the Panama Canal to Panama.

Helms said he has traveled widely in Latin America and that most heads of state there want the U.S. to retain control of the canal zone.

"Without exception, they say pleadingly, don't give up the canal zone," Helms said.

He also said in a telephone interview Wednesday that Senate approval of two new Panama Canal treaties would place the waterway in Communist hands. "It's the inescapable conclusion," Helms said.

He said the government of the Republic of Panama, headed by Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, has strong Communist affiliations and that "Torrijos and Fidel Castro are like bosom buddies."

"Castro is the puppet of the Soviet Union, and the Soviet Union would like nothing better than to have control of the Panama Canal," Helms added.

Helms, who is touring the western part of the state, is expected to leave today for a tour of the canal zone. He has been highly critical of the efforts of the Ford and Carter administrations to negotiate an agreement with Panama that would eventually return full sovereignty of the zone to Panama.

Under the proposed treaties, the U.S. would keep control of the canal until 2,000. After that, the "neutrality" of the canal would be permanently guaranteed. Under the proposals, the U.S. would be allowed to keep canal defense forces in Panama.

Helms discounted the effect that approval of the treaties by former President Gerald Ford and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger would have on winning Senate ratification of the treaties.

"I don't think it will amount to anything," Helms said of Ford's support of the treaties.

New Engineers' Unit Chartered

The Tar Heel Chapter of the International Refrigeration Service Engineers Society was officially chartered here Wednesday night during ceremonies at The Three Steers.

Harold McNeely, RSES regional director, made the formal charter presentation to the new chapter's president for 1977-78, Harold Taylor.

The Tar Heel chapter, with 31 charter members, currently serves an area that generally includes Pitt, Beaufort, Edgecombe, Nash, Wilson, and Martin counties, and reaches as far as Plymouth in Washington County.

The new organization will serve a strictly educational function for its members, according to Taylor, who noted that chapter meetings will be held on the third Tuesday of each month.

Chapter bylaws, Taylor explained, state that the objectives of the organization "shall be to become an integral part of and cooperate with the RSES to further the education of its members in the operation, maintenance, application and servicing of all types of refrigeration and air conditioning equipment."

The president emphasized that the chapter concentrates on servicing and does not promote product names. Chapter membership will be kept up to date on servicing methods through the regular meetings and workshops.

Speakers representing various segments of the refrigeration and air conditioning industry will address the gathering each month.

The chapter has adopted the motto, "Better Service Through Knowledge," Taylor reported.

Five classes of membership are available in the chapter, it was mentioned, including: active, associate, student, honorary and certificate member. Certificate membership is open to any of the other four categories and is achieved through passage of an examination on refrigeration and air conditioning.

HAROLD TAYLOR

The chapter, according to Taylor, plans to start a mini-school in electricity in September and plans are being made to initiate a course on refrigeration.

In addition to Taylor, other chapter officers include: James McMahon, vice president; Claude Mercer, secretary; Elbert Cheving, treasurer; Eugene Edwards, educational chairman; and Lyman Hardee, sergeant-at-arms.

Board members are Eugene Edwards, Thomas Gudac, Rudy Blackwell, Howard Fisher, and Jim Clark.

Wives of the chapter members were guest at the dinner meeting.

Researchers Closer To Molded Apparel Ideal

By WILLIAM COTTERELL
ATLANTA (UPI) — Textile researchers are very close to developing a financially feasible means of creating synthetic fabrics that can be molded into simple clothes without spinning and stitching.

Dr. W.D. Freeston, head of Georgia Tech's textile engineering department, said it may soon be possible for mills to make finished clothing out of raw fiber, skipping the weaving stage, by pinpoint application of minute fibers onto a mannequin like spray painting.

In an interview, Freeston said the work is still a few months away from developing a flat fabric. He said it will be a few years later still before the spraying process can be adapted to a contoured mold for ready-to-wear apparel.

"This is the way a lot of forward-looking companies in the textile industry are going, though," he said. "In a way, we're doing it in self-defense. I'd be very much surprised if the Japanese aren't doing something in this field, because their government's spending an awful lot of money on textile research."

Freeston doubts housewives will ever be able to make clothes with a spray can. He said, however, that textile plants may soon be able to crank out underwear, draperies and utility clothes through a highly sophisticated spraying process.

Past attempts at sprayed synthetics came out like rubbery, congealed paint, with tiny pores in them, he said. Freeston said those fabrics lacked the strength sought in his three-year study. It is financed by the National Science Foundation.

"In the end, you aren't going to be able to tell the difference between the fiber-to-garment process and the woven fabrics," he said. "Initially, at least, it's probably not going to wear as long, so you'll be able to tell the difference that way."

He said the spray fabrics are going to "achieve the same geometry" as woven cloth that the previous attempts have missed by far.

Freeston said the fabrics "will never be high fashion" materials and that, therefore, "the military is very interested" in Georgia Tech's work. He said the process could make it unnecessary for the Army to store vast quantities of uniforms because spray-molding would reduce the "start-up time" when a sudden need arises.

Freeston said that, in addition to the textile engineering school, the Georgia Tech aeronautical engineering and chemical engineering departments are working on the new fabric methods.

He said the textile industry is interested in the process as a means of holding down labor costs, and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union has shown an interest because "although it may mean fewer jobs, they'll be higher paying jobs."

Freeston said the new process would create many new jobs in the textile industry, to offset manpower losses.

"I think we should emphasize that we will always have woven fabrics, because their properties are indispensable," he said.

Damage Results From Collision

An estimated $675 property damage resulted from an 11:15 a.m. collision yesterday on Cotanche Street, 110 feet South of the Fifth Street intersection.

Greenville Police identified the drivers of the vehicles involved as William Jack Langley of 210 Allendale Dr., and Jay Richard Roberson of Washington.

Damage was set at $600 to the Langley car and $75 to the Roberson vehicle.

About 200 persons drown in the bathtub each year.

give up.

Thomas Wilson, 26, of Bakersfield, Calif., was being held today in the psychiatric ward of the Santa Cruz County Hospital where he will undergo testing, said Chief Deputy Mark Ganghoff of the Santa Cruz Sheriff's Department.

Wilson was booked for investigation of kidnap and auto theft in the hijacking of a public bus and abduction of its four passengers and driver, Ganghoff said.

Wilson allegedly released the passengers then forced the driver to take him to the Baha'i Faith religious retreat in mountains 20 miles northwest of this coastal city.

He demanded to see two men — Jack Kembro, a prisoner at Mariposa County Jail, who Wilson claimed killed his son, and Delos Brandon, a friend being held at San Luis Obispo Men's Colony, a state prison — but surrendered with the demand unmet and without firing the shots he had threatened.

The captives said they were able to keep up their spirits by praying and singing the gospel

Channel Plans Are Scuttled

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has scuttled plans to extend a deep water channel five miles up the Northeast Cape Fear River.

The project was canceled Wednesday after Hercofina Inc., the only user who would have benefited from the channel extension, said it could not pay the $400,000 annual charge which would have been its share of the cost.

Company officials said the firm could not afford the channel charge because it has had to curtail production in recent months due to a poor market.

and take our suggestions." Allen said Wilson finally told his captives, "Oh, you're right. We don't want anyone hurt. Let's get the hell out of here."

A police hostage negotiating team also aided in the surrender.

The incident began near nightfall Wednesday, when a man armed with a .22-caliber semiautomatic rifle and about 200 rounds of ammunition hijacked a city bus and forced it to be driven to the religious center.

He released the bus driver then burst into the center's dining room, starting a six-hour ordeal for his captives. The man forced the mixed-aged group of men, women and children against a wall, but immediately released 21 of the hostages, most of them children.

Three others were later released, leaving 37 adults, a 2-year-old and an infant hostage.

Deputies sealed off the area and established telephone contact, with most of the calls initiated by the abductor, Ganghoff said.

A spokesman at the Baha'i Faith's world headquarters in Wilmette, Ill., said Wilson "may be the same person who was removed from Baha'i membership four years ago because of psychological problems."

Wilson was released from Atascadero State Hospital, a mental hospital, "over a year ago," a spokesman said.

Arrested Some Slow Truckers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some truckers were so unhappy at first with the campaign to enforce the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit that they slowed down well below the limit just to hold up traffic, according to the State Highway Patrol.

The patrol station at Charlotte reported Wednesday it had arrested four truckers and the station at Salisbury reported two arrests.

First Sgt. William Etheridge at Charlotte said that although "we had some difficulty Monday and Tuesday with road blockage...everything was fine" by Wednesday.

Lt. W.C. Keeter of Salisbury said that although two arrests were made Tuesday for impeding traffic, "it is flowing all right today."

Victor Demaras of Charlotte, president of Akers Motor Lines, said enforcement of the 55-mile limit is creating no problems for his firm because "we're behind the governor's plan and are pressing our truckers to stay within the speed limit."

Etheridge said he understood that other major truck lines "had called in their men, told them they were behind the 55 limit and told them to comply."

The troopers also said motorists have slowed down because of the campaign. "The majority of persons are driving below the 55 limit," said Etheridge. Asked if there had been an increase in citations, he said, "In fact there may have been a slight decrease since people are voluntarily complying with the law."

Patrol Capt. L.S. Meigs at Salisbury said, "It's very noticeable that the speed of traffic has decreased. He said he would not know until reports are in at the end of the week whether there had been an increase in citations for speeding."

"I was out on the road yesterday and it looked to me like traffic had slowed down a lot," said Lt. V.L. Spruill at Fayetteville. "I talked with our sergeants today. They were driving plain cars and they said traffic has slowed."

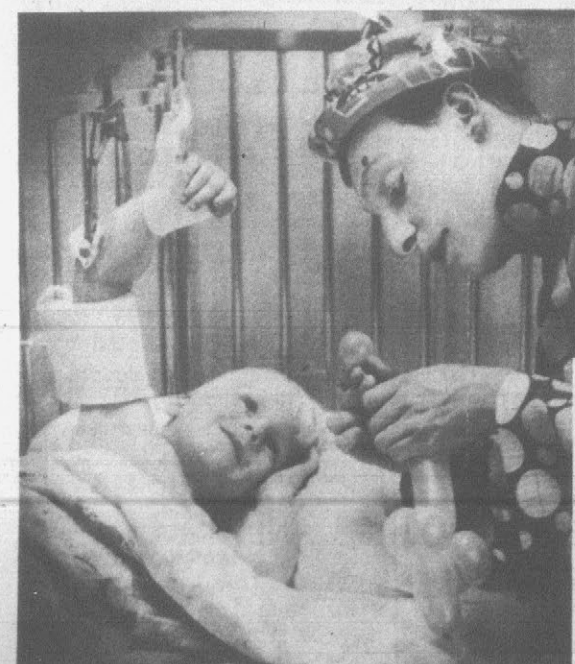

Capt. E.D. Young of Asheville said, "All my people I have talked with say that traffic has slowed down tremendously and the big majority is traveling between 50 and 55 now."

Gospel Sing Is Set Saturday

A gospel sing will be held at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church Saturday night.

The guest singers will be the Glory Tones Singers of Washington. The program will also feature singers from the Winterville Pentecostal Holiness as well as local groups.

The service will start at 7:30. The pastor, Rev. G. A. Casper, invites the public to attend.

CLOWNING MAGIC — Willie Rose, 3, was one of many Childrens Memorial Hospital patients, in Omaha, treated to private performances by a clown called Dusty, a six-year veteran of the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus. Dusty said he visits hospitals whenever anybody asks him. (AP Laser-photo)

120-Year Sentence Recommended; He's Pardoned

RECOVERY WARD — Pigeons involved in a traffic accident as they were being transported to a race are shown recovering in slings hung from the ceiling of a home in Brisbane, Australia. They were among 40 seriously injured pigeons recovered from the scene of the mishap. A specially-equipped truck carrying the pigeons to a town north of Brisbane was totally wrecked in an accident with a trailer. (AP Laserphoto)

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A decorated Marine veteran of the Vietnam war, for whom a jury five years ago recommended a 120-year prison term for drug sales, says he's "so overwhelmed that it's hard to even talk" because he has been pardoned by Gov. Mills Godwin.

The lengthy sentence given David Alan Etheridge, a small-time drug user, was cited by Godwin in a letter Tuesday to Etheridge's attorney as one of the reasons he was granting the pardon.

Etheridge, 27, has been in prison five years and would not have been eligible for parole for another five. Now he is scheduled to be released Monday morning from the Powhatan Correctional Center.

A Norfolk Circuit Court jury, one of whose members said the panel wanted to "make an example" of the defendant to "slow down the traffic of drugs in this area," convicted Etheridge on Sept. 19, 1972, and set his sentence at 120 years.

The jury recommended a 40-year term for each of the three sales to undercover Patrolman

James A. Wakefield for which it convicted Etheridge — less than half an ounce of marijuana, less than one-eighth of an ounce of phenobarbital and 49 tablets of LSD, all for $105.

Etheridge's trial began the day after President Nixon went on national television to call for a stepped-up war on heroin trafficking.

Although Judge Alfred W. Whitehurst reduced Etheridge's sentence to 40 years by making the three 40-year terms run concurrently, the punishment still was considered one of the most severe imposed in Virginia for the crime.

Against the advice of his attorney, Etheridge insisted on a jury trial because he said he was innocent and because "I believe in the system."

The stiffest sentence received by any of six codefendants who pleaded guilty was six years.

Lewis W. Hurst, head of Norfolk's narcotics squad in 1972, said later Etheridge probably would have made probation had he elected not to fight the charges.

Hurst, now executive director of the State Crime Commission, wrote Godwin requesting that Etheridge be pardoned and said Wednesday, "God, that's good."

The policeman who arrested Etheridge, the lawyer who prosecuted him and the judge in the case all have said they were not opposed to a pardon.

Etheridge had acquired his drug habit in Vietnam.

In his letter of pardon, Godwin said Etheridge "had taken advantage of every opportunity and has responded to all such opportunities as offered by our penal system, and has now received the maximum benefit from the system."

Cigarette Tax Scheme Charged

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Elmer Joseph Howe, 61, vending machine operator and cigarette wholesaler, was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of importing cigarettes into Missouri for the purpose of selling them without paying state, county and city taxes.

The indictment returned Wednesday charged five other men with participating with Howe in a scheme to buy cigarettes in North Carolina and Oklahoma and sell them in Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota and Texas.

Howe is charged separately with using the telephone in an interstate call to commit fraud from late in 1971 to May 5, 1975.

On the latter date, agents from the FBI and Missouri Department of Revenue reported they confiscated 15,000 cartons of cigarettes from a van Howe was driving and from a store-room he rented in Kansas City.

Missouri and the county government in Kansas City have a $1.5 million suit pending against Howe for cigarette taxes.

He filed a $500 million dollar damage suit last month against 16 FBI agents, 15 employees of the state revenue department and two postal inspectors in connection with the 1975 incident in which the 15,000 cartons of cigarettes were seized.

About one-fourth of them were stolen in a burglary at a warehouse where the Jackson County sheriff stored them. In a news interview last month, after appealing for help and pleading that he was being harassed by state and federal officials, Howe said in an 18-month period he bought about 7,500 cartons of cigarettes a week from a firm at Tulsa, trucked them through Kansas City, stored them at a warehouse in Omaha, Neb., and sold them there to a middleman. He denied selling cigarettes in Missouri.

The indictment notes that the "warehouse" in Omaha is a small second-floor room which can be reached only by climbing a flight of stairs. The drugist who rented it to Howe was a witness before the grand jury on Monday.

Roman Exhibit Draws Crowds

LONDON (UPI) — With crowds queuing to see the Wealth of the Roman World exhibition of gold and silver at the British Museum, interest in Roman things is rivaling interest in the Queen's Silver Jubilee.

The English, Scottish and Welsh Tourist Boards have devised nine Roman Heritage trails.

The nearest trails to London are the Roman Cotswolds and Roman Cities and are described in the Discover Roman Britain brochure, available at about 45 cents from the British Tourist Board.

Church Speaker Friday Night

Bishop Eddie Blow of Emporia, Virginia will be the guest speaker at 8 p.m. Friday at Brown's Chapel Holiness Church for a Mother Griswold appreciation service.

Also, Elder William Carmon of Winterville will conduct a one-night revival at 8 p.m. Saturday at Brown's Chapel Church.

Arrested On His Return 'Home'

HODGENS, Okla. (AP) — Authorities figure J.B. Hall fled to this area after robbing a department store because as a former Job Corps worker in a center here he knew the area.

But when Hall, 25, now living in Houston, arrived at the old Job Corps compound Wednesday, he was arrested.

It seems the center had closed and reopened as the Ouachita minimum security prison and guards had heard a description of his car broadcast over police radios.

Hall was charged with grand larceny for allegedly robbing a store in nearby Poteau of $95.

Said Executed On Amin's Order

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A refugee Ugandan army officer says three persons connected with a play that implied Uganda was a country without a popular leader were executed for insulting President Idi Amin.

Lt. Stephen Mutengo said he saw John Male, author of the play "The Office is Empty," die before a firing squad along with Mark Sebuliba, an under-secretary in the Ministry of Culture who attended the opening of the play, and Dan Kintu, director of the Ugandan National Theater, which produced the play in Kampala early in July.

Reliable refugee sources said Kintu had recently replaced Byron Kawada, whose body was found earlier this year in the wreckage of a burned-out car after the National Theater produced another play Amin reportedly did not like.

The 36-year-old lieutenant said he fled to Kenya after being warned that he was going to be arrested for delivering the bodies of the executed men to their relatives.

Scholarship For Ayden Student

AYDEN — Miss Linda Fleming, of 712 Pitt St., has been given a $500 scholarship.

The scholarship was presented at the 95th annual session of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows and the Household of Ruth District No. 10 of the Jurisdiction of N. C. held recently in Winston-Salem.

Miss Fleming is the granddaughter of Mrs. Lendora S. Phillips and a member of the Ayden Household of Ruth No. 1565.

Offers Feast To Runaway Pet

DETROIT (AP) — Michael Lakeman is setting out a feast of 10 baby chicks and one large rat in hopes of luring home his runaway pet.

The pet with the big appetite is a six-foot boa constrictor, which vanished from Lakeman's home on the city's far east side Tuesday night. Ever since, Lakeman and his nervous neighbors have been trying to track down the critter.

Although Lakeman has assured his friends the snake could do them little harm, some were understandably apprehensive when he passed around a circular reading, "Lost, lost, lost ... six foot boa ... dangerous ... do not handle."

He said he included the word "dangerous" to make certain no one would touch the snake and possibly get bit.

Ribbon-Cutting Done By Plane

POMONA, N.J. (AP) — It wasn't your typical opening day ribbon cutting ceremony at Transair '77, a five-day transportation exhibition and air show.

Stunt pilot Art Scholl, flying a DeHavilland Chipmunk at 110 miles per hour, performed the honors Wednesday by barnstorming his small propeller craft upside down 10 feet above the runway and flying through the sash.

"The flight was a piece of cake," said Scholl, 45. The Hollywood stunt pilot says he does about 120 ribbon cuttings a year.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today in a moderate technical rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which touched new 19-month lows in each of the two previous sessions, rose 4.16 to 868.85 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

First-hour volume on the Big Board came to 5.34 million shares.

Analysts found nothing particular in the economic news to account for the upswing. They said some buyers evidently were attracted by the depressed prices of many issues.

Diamond Shamrock gained 7/8 to 31 1/2 and Diamond Shamrock preferred D shares rose 1 to 28 1/4 in active trading.

Directors of the diversified chemical and oil and gas company said they planned to raise the quarterly dividend from 27 1/2 to 35 cents a share in the fourth quarter of this year.

UV Industries tacked on a point to 22 1/2 after a 3/4-point jump Wednesday, when the company said it had received some merger feelers.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was up .14 at 53.65.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index picked up .20 to 119.29.

Rampants Tired, But Still Enthusiastic

As Rose High School's Rampants approach the end of their third week of practice, Coach Dave Bumgarner seems pleased with the progress that has been made.

"We got more done during the first two weeks than I expected. But this week, we haven't done as well. I think we're a little tired now. But I was pleased after last week's scrimmage, and we scrimmage again this Friday," he said.

The Rampants have a large group out for drills, one of the biggest in recent years, and this makes the coach happy too.

"Our running game and our defense looks good," he said. "Morale is up 100 per cent."

Last year, Bumgarner had trouble finding a quarterback to take charge of the Rampants, using three during the season. This year, he has three candidates again, but things look better. "They want to take charge this year. These kids care. By the time the Goldsboro game rolls around, I expect that we'll have a definite quarterback, and that he will be respected by the other kids and will be a leader. But despite who we settle on, the other two are going to play a lot, if not at quarterback, then somewhere else. They are too good of athletes not to be playing."

Battling for the job are Ronnie Chapman, Scott Brady and Joey Mattheis.

Injuries have not been a problem, although two members of the team have suffered broken thumbs, Jeff Aldridge and Durwin Clemons. "We've had no real bad injuries so far," Bumgarner said.

The passing game also looks improved, the coach said. "Billy Roberson has been catching the ball real well. He still hasn't learned to run with the ball yet, but we're going to throw more than we have in the past. If Chapman isn't playing quarterback, he'll probably see some duty as a split end."

Bumgarner still has plans to use a lot of players both ways this fall. "We'll have roughly 33 players who will see a lot of duty, if not as starters, then in spot rest roles on the three units (offense, defense, specialty)."

One thing which has helped the Rampants in preparation this year is that the junior varsity used the wishbone last year for the first time. "Mattheis knows what is going on up here already, and most of the blockers do too. This has helped a lot."

Size may be a problem for the Rampants, however. "We have some kids who are little who are good hitters," the coach pointed out. "We have as much speed as we've ever had, too."

Bumgarner singled out Brady at quarterback, David Murray at offensive tackle, Bernie Fleming at offensive guard, Ron Butler at linebacker, Bryant Morton at offensive guard, and David Northrup at linebacker and fullback as eye-catchers during the work so far.

"Northrup can't help but look good. I just can't say enough about him."

The Rampants wound up two-a-day drills Wednesday.

Pitt Faces Tough Task

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

Can the Pitt Panthers do it again?

Heisman Trophy-winner Tony Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing king, is gone. Nose guard Al Romano, runner-up in the Outland Trophy voting, is gone. Coach of the Year Johnny Majors is gone.

Gone but not forgotten. Their legacy was the 1976 national championship, capping an incredible four-year rags-to-riches saga.

Pitt will defend The Associated Press National Championship Trophy with a souped-up aerial attack featuring quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and wide receiver Gordon Jones, rebuilt lines led by offensive guard Tom Brzoza and defensive tackle Randy Holloway and a standout secondary which led the nation in interceptions last season and returns intact — Bob Jury, Jeff Delaney, J.C. Wilson and LeRoy Felder.

Pacing the sidelines where Majors once roamed will be Jackie Sherrill, the No. 1 assistant for the first three years of Majors' reign, who was lured back after one season as head coach at Washington State when Tennessee made Majors an offer he couldn't refuse.

"I think that with the people we have coming back, with the young people on our team and with the incoming freshmen, the 1977 squad has the potential for a good nucleus," says Sherrill. "We have to find some linebackers and ends and replace some fine people on both lines."

"Our strong points are at the skill positions — running back, defensive backfield, quarterback and receivers. Offensively, we'll throw the ball more."

The tip-off on Pitt, just as last year, will come in the opener against highly rated Notre Dame.

The Panthers' No. 1 challenger for Eastern honors likely will be Penn State, which had things pretty much its own way in this part of the country until Majors, Dorsett & Co. came along. The Nittany Lions have had 38 consecutive seasons without dropping under .500, an NCAA record.

The last 11 of them were under Coach Joe Paterno, who boasts a magnificent 101-23-1 mark. However, last year's record was a so-so 7-5 — the most losses since Paterno's initial campaign — and included a 20-9 Gator Bowl loss to Notre Dame which wasn't really that close.

Paterno sees more problems ahead. The Lions open with Rutgers, which boasts the nation's longest unbeaten streak, and then come Houston, Maryland and Kentucky, all Top Twenty hopefuls. In addition, Paterno calls his current squad "the most overrated team I've ever been around."

That's the bad news. The good news is that Paterno is optimistic.

"I'm concerned because we have to play so well so early," he says. "So many of our people haven't had any real experience. We're talking about playing sophomores at a lot of positions. In the long run I'm optimistic because we have some fine young players. It should be a team that gets better each week."

The major chore is rebuilding an offensive line that lost both tackles and both guards. On the plus side, Penn State has nearly all its skill-position players returning, including quarterback Chuck Fusina, running backs Steve Geise, Matt Suhey, Bob Torrey and Mike Guman, flanker Jimmy Cefalo and tight end Mickey Shuler.

The situation is stable on defense with nine starters returning, although Paterno is switching from his old reliable 4-4 to a 5-3 alignment. "We could have a good defensive team," he says. "We should have speed and we are bigger than we were last year."

If Rutgers wins its opener from Penn State, the Scarlet Knights will emerge as a distinct threat to Pitt's Eastern championship. They went 11-0 a year ago, the only major college team besides Pitt to post a perfect slate, and Coach Frank Burns has 13 starters back.

The defense led the nation in four categories last year and should be strong again, led by nose guard Rich Wagner, tackle Dan Gray and linebacker Jim Hughes.

Boston College is always tough, but the Eagles open on the road against Texas and Tennessee and their fourth-game opponent is none other than Pitt. Coach Joe Yukica will rely on a defense headed by tackles Fred Smerlas and Chuck Morris and linebackers Rich Scudellari and Kelly Elias.

Elsewhere among the independents, Colgate hopes to duplicate last year's 8-2 mark, Syracuse will sink or swim with quarterback Bill Hurley and an

Renee Richards Okayed For Play In U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — The acceptance of 43-year-old Dr. Renee Richards into the U.S. Open Tennis Championships shouldn't be taken as an omen for other transsexuals, says U.S. Tennis Association president W.E. Hester.

The USTA agreed Wednesday to accept the controversial Dr. Richards as an entry in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, beginning Aug. 31, and Hester, president of the USTA, said, "I'm happy the matter is over."

The USTA made its decision one day after New York State Supreme Court Justice Alfred Asciatore had issued a preliminary injunction barring the USTA, the U.S. Open Tennis Championship Committee and the Women's Tennis Association from excluding Dr. Richards from the major national tournament because of her inability to pass a sex-chromosome test.

"The judge's decision was directed only to Dr. Renee Richards and not as a landmark to apply to all transsexuals," Hester said.

In a separate statement, the USTA emphasized it had not changed its overall policy toward transsexuals.

Hester said he had been called by a number of transsexuals about wanting to play, but none of them were as good as Dr. Richards.

"For instance," Hester said, "a 240-pound, 6-foot-8 transsexual called to ask permission to play in a county tournament in one of our Southern states."

Dr. Richards, the former Richard Raskind, has played in several tournaments since her sex-change operation in 1975. But she also has been denied entrance to several major events, including last year's U.S. Open and the French and Italian Opens earlier this year. She did not try to enter the world's other big tourney, Wimbledon.

She has signed with the Cleveland Nets of World Team Tennis, but has yet to play a

New Post For Kenney

Dan Kenney, a graduate assistant in the East Carolina University basketball program for the past two years, has been named assistant basketball coach at Pembroke State University.

Kenney, who served for four years during his undergraduate days as a manager for the Pirates, received his bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education in 1975. He was awarded a master's degree in the same studies this spring.

A native of Morristown, N.J., Kenney was a member of the New Jersey state high school cross-country team in 1967, and the state indoor championship team in 1968.

Kenney assumes his duties at Pembroke today.

match. Nets owner Joe Zingale said he has received approval from WTT Commissioner Butch Buchholz to let Dr. Richards play.

This, however, will not be the first appearance for Dr. Richards at Forest Hills. Two years ago, then a male, she lost a close, three-set match to Gene Scott in the quarter-finals of the national 35-and-over championships at the revered West Side Tennis Club.

But she will become the first transsexual to participate in a major sports competition.

Texas Edges Into AL's Western Lead

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Milt May said Fernando Arroyo "was throwing real good," which is a normal thing for a catcher to say about his pitcher except that not too many of Arroyo's pitches got as far as May.

New York's Mickey Rivers

hit Arroyo's first pitch for a home run. Roy White tripled on the next delivery and Thurman Munson picked on pitch No. 3 for a double.

At that point, May had no idea what kind of stuff Arroyo had. He hadn't caught one yet. And nine pitches later — a Reggie Jackson strikeout and a Chris Chambliss triple — Arroyo was gone, the losing pitcher.

Proponents of the 18-hole playoff system say it is fairer than sudden death because sudden death involves more luck. The 18-hole format, they say, insures that the better player, not just the luckier player, is the winner. However, this writer feels that if two players have identical scores over 72 holes of play, one is not necessarily better than the other whether he wins a one-hole sudden death playoff or an 18-hole playoff.

TELEVISION HAS WROUGHT numerous changes on the professional tour and is largely responsible for the tremendous growth of golf as a spectator sport. Most of TV's changes have served to make the game more exciting for the fans and the sudden death playoff system is no exception.

Prior to the advent of television, many golf tournaments had a match play format. Total scores meant little as players battled on a hole-to-hole basis. If one player went up by three holes with just two left to play, the match was over three and two.

This system made it difficult to broadcast tournaments, however, because the TV people never knew when the event would end. Cameras could be set up on the fifteenth hole, but the event might end on the fourteenth if one player jumped out to a big lead. Now, virtually all the tour events are decided by medal play, the total score for 72 holes. This allows television producers to have a pretty good idea of when a tournament will end and it ensures that all the golfers will play each hole on which the cameras are stationed, (usually, 15 through 18) giving viewers a chance to see all the leaders.

For evidence of the success of medal play on the pro golf tour, think back to what happened just a few years ago when a World Match Play tournament was started in Pinehurst. The idea was quickly abandoned.

ANOTHER EFFECT television has had on the tour is in the schedule of play for tournaments. Tournaments formerly employed a format which called for 18-hole rounds on Thursday and Friday, followed by the final 36 holes to be played on Saturday. The event was over on Saturday afternoon. Television was largely responsible for bringing about the present format of 18 holes per day, Thursday through Sunday.

These changes have not hurt professional golf and most fans would probably agree that they have helped. The pro tour as it is now known could not survive without television and, without the TV revenue of about $4 million a year, prize money would be less than half what it is now. A sudden death playoff is a small concession to make when one considers how much television has contributed to golf's success.

er as the Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers cooled off the Boston Red Sox 5-3, the Texas Rangers inched into first place in the AL West by nipping the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 in 10 innings, the Seattle Mariners edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2 and the Kansas City Royals defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

After the Yankees kayoed Arroyo, John Hiller yielded a single to Willie Randolph for the final run of the first inning. "I thought he (Arroyo) was throwing real good," May said. "He had good velocity. Fernando threw as good as he has all year. You've got to give the hitters credit."

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3
Two-run homers by Don Money in the first inning and Jamie Quirk in the fourth off Rick Wise enabled Milwaukee to snap the Red Sox' latest winning streak at five games. Quirk's third homer of the season provided the decisive margin as the Red Sox lost for only the second time in their last 18 games. Their AL East lead was trimmed to three games over idle Baltimore and 3½ over the Yankees.

Rangers 6, Blue Jays 5
Jim Sundberg delivered a two-strike, two-out single to score Toby Harrah from second base in the bottom of the 10th inning and propel the Rangers into first place in the West, one-half game ahead of the Chicago White Sox, who were idle, and Minnesota.

Mariners 3, Twins 2
Dan Meyer's two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Paul Mitchell his first victory of the season. The Twins made it 3-2 in the eighth on singles by Dan Ford and Mike Cabbage and Roy Smalley's run-scoring grounder.

Royals 5, Indians 3
John Mayberry slugged a three-run homer in the first inning but Kansas City needed RBI singles by Hal McRae and Pete LaCock in the eighth to break a 3-3 tie. The fourth-place Royals are only 1½ games off the pace in the torrid West Division race.

Cappelletti Becomes Solid Ram Runner

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Without much fanfare, John Cappelletti has quietly become a solid running back for the Los Angeles Rams.

Now the 1973 Heisman Trophy winner wants a little more. Cappelletti climaxed a brilliant career at Penn State four years ago by being selected as college football's outstanding player. But like many National Football League rookies, he was a seldom-used reserve in 1974.

The 6-foot-1, 217-pound native of Upper Darby, Pa., saw more action in 1975, being used primarily in short-yardage situations.

But his all-around ability earned him a starting job last year, and he responded by gaining 688 yards on 177 carries and catching 30 passes for 302 yards. In addition, his fine blocking helped running mate Lawrence McCutcheon rush for a team-record 1,168 yards.

"I want to improve and just do as well as I can," said the 25-year-old Cappelletti Wednesday at the Rams' Cal State-Fullerton training camp. "My goals are pretty basic: I'd like to play in a Pro Bowl game and make the All-Pro team someday."

"But the main thing is to improve every year, to play as many years as I can and to do a consistent job."

Paschal Tried At UNC Fullback

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley says he is "experimenting with a lot of people to come up with the best combination" when the team takes to the playing field this fall.

Dooley is trying out Billy Johnson, his 250-pound fullback, at the tailback spot vacated by Mike Voight, the Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year.

Dooley emphasized the move was only on a trial basis since North Carolina has several candidates at both fullback and tailback. Sophomore Doug Paschal, considered an excellent blocker, is also being tried at fullback along with senior veteran Bob Loomis.

Vying for tailback are junior Carey Casey, sophomore Terrence Burrell, Delbert Powell and Phil Ferris and freshman Amos Lawrence. Senior Mel Collins, the regular wingback, has been from tailback as well.

"They all have something good about them," Dooley said. "Paschal is known as a good blocker, but he's a heckuva runner, too."

Redskins Will Watch For The Flea-Flicker

By The Associated Press

It wouldn't be a bad idea if George Allen has his Washington Redskins wearing flea collars tonight.

The Redskins host the Kansas City Chiefs in a National Football League exhibition game. The last time these two teams got together, during the 1976 regular season, the Chiefs caught the 'Skins off guard at the tail end and beat them on a flea-flicker play.

"We'll be watching out for that one again," Coach Allen said. "I've had our people concentrating on stopping that sort of play."

The play is a handoff or pitchout, followed by a toss back to the quarterback, followed by a long pass. It was just that play that gave Kansas City a 33-30 upset victory last year. The Chiefs also defeated Washington 23-20 in the preseason a year ago.

In tonight's other game, Oakland is at Seattle. On Friday night, St. Louis visits Cleveland and Minnesota faces Baltimore. Saturday night's games are Denver at Atlanta, Green Bay at Tampa Bay, Buffalo at New Orleans, Chicago at Houston, Miami at Dallas, the New York Giants at San Diego and Pittsburgh at the New York Jets.

Cincinnati is at Detroit and Los Angeles is at San Francisco on Sunday and New England is at Philadelphia Monday night.

It'll be a battle of southpaws in Seattle. Oakland veteran Ken Stabler, who threw three TD passes in a 45-28 exhibition victory over the Seahawks a year ago, opposes second-year man Jim Zorn.

The Raiders, who started off the preseason with a 40-0 shellacking of Houston, came up short a week ago when the Chicago Bears beat them 20-13. The Seahawks, an American Conference team this year, have won both their games this exhibition season, over San Francisco and Dallas, the latter in overtime.

The Vikings expect to have quarterback Fran Tarkenton in action for the first time since they lost the Super Bowl to the Raiders. He bowed out of the Pro Bowl game, the all-star get-together in Seattle, a week after the championship game and missed the first two exhibitions.

Tampa Bay, which may well wind up battling Green Bay for last place in the National Conference's Central Division, hosts the Packers, who were clobbered a week ago by New England.

Two-time winner Johnny Rutherford of the Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile race finished last in the 1977 edition. But he still earned $19,471.58.

MUFFLER

SAFETY CHECK

You need a new muffler when:

1. Motor noise level increases.
2. Exhaust fume odor is noticeable.
3. Holes or rusted seams are detected on muffler. Soot deposits on the muffler are a clue to tiny leaks.

Bad Number For Phillies: 13

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

It may have been the law of averages or it may have been a touch of fate. Whatever it was, it certainly confused Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark.

"How can you account for us losing tonight with our best pitcher," Ozark wondered following the Philadelphia's 13-0 drubbing at the hands of the Montreal Expos.

Ozark may have been baffled by the loss that snapped the Phillies 13-game winning streak, the longest in the majors this season, but Expos' Manager Dick Williams and his Expos seemed to have all the answers — especially when it concerned Steve Carlton's pitching.

"They're an excellent club, but if you're going to get beat, that's the best way," Williams smiled after the game. "However, you'll see a different game tomorrow, and it sure won't be lopsided."

A run-scoring single by Sam Mejias, Stan Bahnsen's perfect squeeze bunt, Dave Cash's single and Warren Cromartie's 35th double produced four Montreal runs in the second.

Gary Carter continued the Montreal onslaught in the third with the first of his two home runs on the night, a two run shot, to give the Expos a 6-0 lead game off Carlton, 17-7.

In other National League action, St. Louis blanked New York 2-0, Atlanta whipped Houston 9-6, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 4-2, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 7-4 and the game between San Francisco and Los Angeles was rained out.

Cardinals 2, Mets 0

Bob Forsch fired a two-hitter and Hector Cruz and Mike Tyson drove in sixth inning runs as St. Louis broke a three-game losing streak.

Forsch, 15-5, gave up a first-inning single to Bruce Boiesclair and a sixth-inning single to Lenny Randle in recording his sixth complete game of the season.

Cubs 4, Pirates 2

Bobby Murcer drilled two home runs and Rick Reuschel struck out 11 batters to give Chicago their second consecutive win over Pittsburgh.

Reuschel, 16-5, won his first game since a relief victory on July 28. He scattered eight hits and walked three.

Padres 7, Reds 4

Rookie Bill Almon drove in five runs, including three on his second major league home run, and San Diego took advantage of five Cincinnati errors in snapping a three-game losing streak.

Almon drilled a three-run homer in the fourth and added a two-run single in the fifth in supporting Bob Shirley's seventh win in 22 decisions. Rolfe Fingers picked up his 27th save of the season.

Braves 9, Astros 6
Jeff Burroughs broke a tie game with a two-run homer in an eight-run sixth inning and Willie Montanez followed with a solo smash as Atlanta ended a four-game losing streak.

improved defense, Army will go as far as quarterback Leamon Hall and tight end Clemmie Brundidge can take it, Navy will try to carry over the momentum of a three-game winning streak after a near-upset of Notre Dame and improving West Virginia boasts a solid passing combination in quarterback Dan Kendra and wide receiver Steve Lewis.

That leaves Villanova, which finished 5-0-1 after a 1-4 start and returns six starters off a record-setting offensive unit; Holy Cross, which returns 17 starters and will be composed mostly of sophomores and freshmen, and Temple, coming off its first losing campaign since 1969.

In the Ivy League, Yale, which shared the 1976 crown with Brown, is a solid choice this time around. The Elis don't appear to have a serious weakness. Their main strength is running back John Pagliaro, 1976 Player of the Year in New England and the Ivy League.

Brown could challenge again, provided a replacement is found for quarterback Paul Michalko and record-setting

Jogging Best, Says Dooley
ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Vince Dooley, head football coach at the University of Georgia, says jogging is the easiest and best exercise for adults whose personal physicians recommend physical fitness workouts.

"I'm a jogger and tennis player," says the 45-year-old Dooley. "But tennis alone is not enough to keep you in shape unless you can play for a very long time every day."

When he took up tennis, Dooley says he stopped jogging, but when he took his next physical examination his doctor could tell the difference. So, he now jogs after tennis.

Still in Prime, Says Nicklaus
LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, 37 and pro golfer for 16 seasons, says he's still in his prime.

"Whether it's at the stag, in the middle or near the end, I don't know," he says. "I don't think my ability to stay on top will deteriorate for quite awhile. My desire might, though."

At the beginning of 1977, Nicklaus had won nearly $3 million in prize money and had scored in 16 major championships — 5 Masters, 4 PGAs, 3 U.S. Opens, 2 British Amateurs, 2 U.S. Amateurs.

Expansion Set At Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte Motor Speedway has launched an expansion program that will allow the speedway to entertain events outside auto racing.

H.A. Humpy Wheeler, general manager of the speedway, said the events will include "tennis matches, boxing and wrestling matches, concerts and general entertainment."

Work is already underway on the first phase of the $18.5 million project, which includes expanding seating by about 12,000 to give the 18-year-old speedway a capacity of 81,357, officials said.

The first phase of the expansion is scheduled for completion before the World 600 NASCAR event next May and will include:

—10,000 new highrise grandstand seats.

—VIP seating in 17 air-conditioned, enclosed suites for 1,200.

—A landfill inside the 1.5-mile track to accommodate more campers and recreational vehicles.

—A new, larger press box with seating for 150.

The importance of the increase in seating was emphasized by speedway officials.

"Our seating capacity now surpasses every speedway in the world except Indianapolis," Wheeler said.

Tag Without The Ball

New York Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles puts a late tag on Detroit Tiger Ron LeFlore, but drops the ball during the first inning of Wednesday night's game in Detroit. LeFlore was advancing after a dropped third strike on the Tigers' Tito Fuentes. New York won, 7-5. (AP Laserphoto)

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — A band of showers is forecast today across the country from the northern and central Rockies to the mid- and South Atlantic coast. Cooler weather is expected for most areas but the Southeast will remain warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

OVERRULES BAN — U.S. District Judge Milton J. Pollack, above, Wednesday enjoined the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates New York area airports, from continuing its ban against the British and French Concorde jet. By The Associated Press
Rain covered a wide area of North Carolina this morning, ranging from the mountains to the Coastal Plain and early morning temperatures showed considerable cooling from a cold front that passed through the state.

Thundershowers began over the mountains Wednesday ahead of the front and moved across the state. Cloudy skies with showers and thundershowers were likely to continue throughout the state today, especially in the eastern section.

Rainfall early this morning had measured more than an inch at Elizabeth City, Goldsboro, Raleigh, Rocky Mount and Hickory. Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro and Raleigh still were getting rain at daybreak.

Early morning temperatures dropped to the 60s over a wide area, breaking the pattern of the 70s. Some of the lows were Hickory and Greensboro 62, Raleigh 65, Asheville 67, and Charlotte 68.

Highs Wednesday ranged generally in the low 90s and high 80s. Rocky Mount hit 93, Charlotte and Raleigh recorded 91, and Elizabeth City, Goldsboro and Greensboro reached 90. Asheville's high was 83.

Today's forecast called for showers and thundershowers in the east and a chance of rain in the west with temperatures reaching the upper 70s to mid 80s.

SCLC Pointing To Old Goals

ATLANTA (AP) — "Times have changed since the early days of the civil rights movement, but blacks still have to fight for equal rights, black leaders said Wednesday at the annual convention of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

For example, the Rev. Jesse Jackson said, former President Johnson was pushed toward the Voting Rights Act because the civil rights demonstrations of the mid 1960s "showed him we were in charge of the agenda."

But President Carter's program for helping poor people "is not our agenda," Jackson said, adding that Carter will have to put money where his campaign promises were.

"Giving jobs to the jobless and giving homes to the homeless is going to cost money," Jackson said. "It is impossible to help poor people without investing in them."

Nightriders and snarling police dogs have been replaced by biased judges and lawmakers who wage a subtle war against equal rights, said Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md.

"Discrimination is wrapped in the vague legalism of reverse discrimination; and racism is wrapped in the procedure of law making," he said. Mitchell and Jackson made their remarks in speeches before today's election of a new president of the SCLC.

No candidates formally announced for the office Wednesday, when delegates spent much of the day bickering over procedures for electing a president of the 20-year-old civil rights group.

Current and would-be leaders of the group agree that it has lost influence and prestige since the assassination of its first president, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Both Mitchell and Jackson criticized Carter's proposed reform of the welfare system, which could force welfare recipients to either work or lose benefits.

"The President says he wants to provide jobs and take people off welfare," said Jackson, a former aide to King. "But when you take a million people off welfare to compete with 8 million who already don't have jobs, you got a contradiction."

Mitchell, one of 16 blacks in Congress, said that forcing parents to work would lead to more juvenile delinquency.

"To force a mother to abandon her child when it is age 14 and go to work just doesn't make sense," he said. "Every social worker, every psychologist and psychiatrist knows that the age period 13 through 18 is the most difficult period in a child's life, a period when more parental love and attention is needed. I fear that if we deny children after age 14, we will simply add to the ever swelling ranks of juvenile delinquents."

Mitchell said jobs are the key to ending poverty and injustice. "We don't want welfare, we don't necessarily want welfare reform," he said. "We want jobs for the jobless."

Immunologist Joins School

ECU NEWS BUREAU

An outstanding British immunologist, Dr. Leonard Stanley English, has been appointed to a professorship in the Microbiology Department of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, according to Dr. Byron T. Burlingham, chairman of the department.

English, 39, has done extensive research on the antibody processes in sheep. He is one of five scientists in the world who can cannulate lymph nodes to measure what goes on during an immune response by the cells that create antibodies, Dr. Burlingham said.

Much of English's research has been done at the Australian National University, in Canberra, Australia, where he also received his PhD in immunology in 1975. English received his BS degree with honors in biochemistry from the University of Newfoundland where he was assistant professor of immunology in the medical school.

He has held other academic positions at the Bradford University in Bradford, England, and Oxford University as well as Australian National University.

He has done extensive publishing on immunoglobulins synthesis by lymphoid cells in sheep, his prime research interest, in collaboration with other scientists.

English is married and the father of three.

No Cure, Only Some Control

WASHINGTON (AP) —

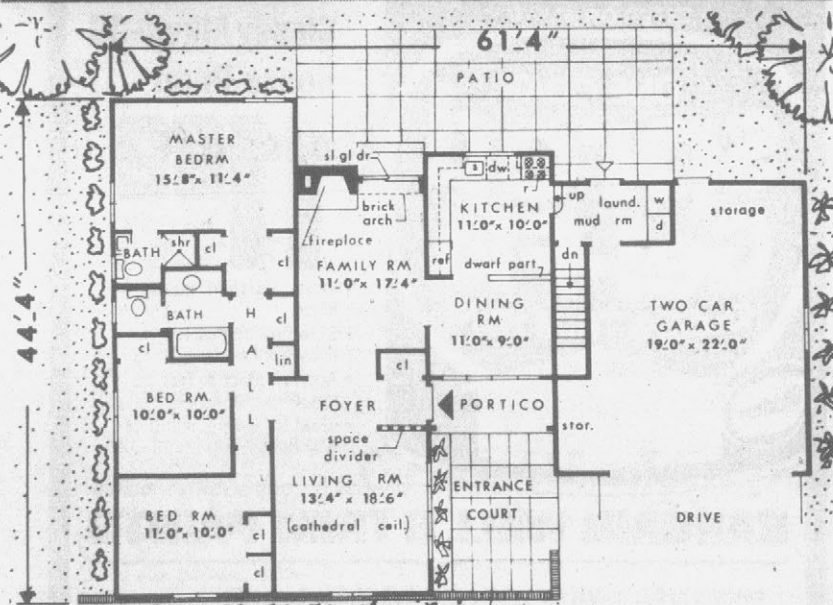

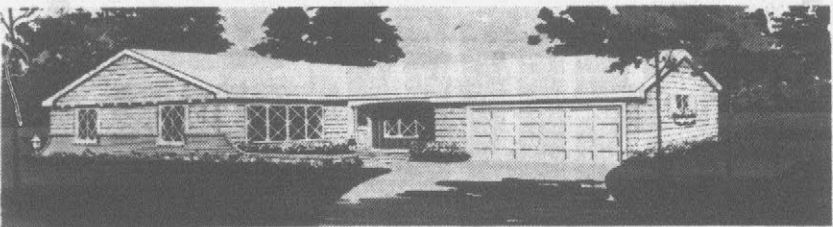

People are confused about the cure for high blood pressure, says Graham Ward, director of the National High Blood Pressure Education Program.

Ward explains that this is because there isn't any cure for most high blood pressure. Once high blood pressure, or hypertension, is brought under control, treatment must be continued to keep it under control, Ward says.

Correspondent Describes Ordeal In African Prison

Editor's Note — Michael Goldsmith, veteran AP foreign correspondent, was imprisoned for 30 days recently in the Central African Empire. He was arrested July 14 and released Aug. 14. This is a first-person account of his ordeal.

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

I recovered consciousness in a bare, windowless prison cell. I was handcuffed, dressed only in my underpants and covered with blood from open flesh wounds all over my body.

For a long time I lay motionless, trying to limit the pain and to recall how I, a foreign correspondent of The Associated Press, had fallen into this situation.

The memory returned only gradually. I remembered I was on assignment in the Central African Empire and had been arrested on what I assumed correctly was the previous day, accused of being a South African spy.

On the evening of July 14, Bastille Day, I had been taken 70 miles from the capital, Bangui, to Berengo, the birthplace and residence of Emperor Bokassa I, the former sergeant in the French colonial army who had proclaimed himself the hereditary ruler of his nation.

I recalled how Bokassa, in blind fury at the supposed spy, struck me without warning with a heavy stick, knocking me to the ground and opening a gaping wound on the left side of my forehead. I remembered being kicked by Bokassa and his aides until I lost consciousness, and someone deliberately crushing my spectacles underfoot.

I guessed I must have remained unconscious for at least 15 hours. I knew at once that it would be a long time before I could hope to regain my freedom. Bokassa could not easily allow the world to see the injuries he had inflicted on me.

Bokassa and his police who arrested me somehow had to find a justification for the ill-treatment.

For six days, I remained handcuffed and often with chains on my legs in the small cell where a rough concrete slab was the only furniture. Once a day, guards opened the heavy steel door to bring me some boiled manioc, an African staple root, and a mess can filled with brackish water.

No one treated my injuries, which quickly became infected. My body was covered with the bites of malaria mosquitoes. The sequel of a particularly vicious kick in the small of my back made every movement an agony. I had nothing on which to rest my aching head. During the frequent tropical rainstorms, I was bitterly cold, without blanket or cover of any kind.

Apart from occasional jibes from an army major whom I later knew as Maj. Ngongo, the prison commander, no one spoke to me, interrogated me or gave me any kind of explanation. My requests to talk to someone in a responsible position or to a representative of the American Embassy drew only laughter from the guards. Every time the cell door was opened, half a dozen soldiers pointed cocked submachineguns at me.

I was sustained by the hope that international pressure on my behalf was building up. The Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy, Grant Smith, had witnessed my arrest so at least the outside world knew. I had not disappeared without trace.

Late on the sixth day, my situation abruptly improved. My handcuffs were removed for the first time. I was given two blankets and placed in a larger cell with a wooden plank for a bed. The following morning, a medical orderly cleaned my wounds and put six stitches in my head. And, astonishing luxury, I was brought a copious, European-style meal from a nearby hotel.

The medic came daily for ten days, gave me regular penicillin and anti-tetanus injections and may have saved my life. The good meals continued to come, once a day, until the end of my imprisonment.

But as my health improved and the pain receded, the agonizing doubts over my future increased. Day after day, I was confronted with endless hours of inactivity, almost no one to talk to and certainly no one to give me any information about the fate in store for me.

I soon made up my mind that I faced the likelihood of imprisonment until Bokassa's coronation, scheduled for Dec. 4, when a general amnesty was likely. That made a total of 143 days. I carved a calendar on my cell wall, leaving space for the four months yet to come.

Although never very strong in mathematics, I began filling in time with enormous calculations scratched on the walls. I divided telephone numbers by each other to 50 decimal points, then re-multiplied the fractions to test my accuracy. The guards decided my long rows of figures were some kind of magic and took away the small piece of plastic I used to scratch on the walls.

I never realized before how slowly empty time moves.

Thoughts of my family often led to increasingly panicky, self-pitying onslaughts of fear. What would I do if Coronation Day came and went and I was not released?

A previous prisoner had carved a crucifix on one of the courtyard walls. On Aug. 11, to occupy time, I colored it with brick dust mixed with water. Maj. Ngongo saw my effort and ordered me returned to the punishment cell for "defacing" the prison.

"That will teach you to harass us with your white man's symbols," he said to me.

Unknown to me, though, my ordeal was at an end. Before Ngongo could carry out his threat, I was taken out of the cell and returned to Berengo. There I was informed that a pathetic message from my wife had softened Bokassa's heart and I would be put on the next plane two days later. It was exactly four weeks since my arrest.

Bokassa himself appeared and lectured me without interruption for two hours. He told me over and over again that it was only the loving message he had received from my wife — and not the multiple diplomatic efforts on my behalf — that had led to my freedom.

On the final day, Sunday Aug. 14, I was again driven to Berengo and interrogated for six hours by policemen using every trick in the book to get me to incriminate my news sources in Bangui. Under threat of renewed imprisonment, I was forced to confess to "espionage, plotting to undermine the security of the state and insulting the personality of the Emperor."

Banker Named Person Of Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Oliver H. Jones, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, has been named Person of the Year for 1977 by the National Federation of Housing Counselors (NFHC).

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUG. 19, 1977

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to start new discussions with business experts you have recently met and get excellent results. Be alert to a new means by which you can impress others with your abilities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Come to a better meeting of minds with associates and increase productivity. Do something thoughtful today for loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Routine duties today should be handled with neatness and precision to gain the maximum efficiency. Improve your appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to put a special talent you have to work and gain the recognition you deserve. Avoid one who is belligerent.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Making new plans at home is wise so that you have greater accord, comfort and happiness there.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to a much better understanding with associates so that you can work more harmoniously together. Take no chances with a foe.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve your budget so that you can operate more intelligently in the future. Make plans for the days ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan your activities early since the planets are favorable to you. Don't neglect the social side of life. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can now investigate whatever is puzzling you and come up with the right answers. Show more affection for loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can be gregarious today and gain excellent results. You can benefit by accepting an invitation now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Attend to outside work now and gain the assistance of a trusted friend. Strive for increased happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you take a different point of view you can gain your objectives. Your hunches are good now and should be followed.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get an early start on routine duties so you'll have more time for recreational activities later in the day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will like to please others and should have the education directed along lines of public work, entertainment and charitable organizations. Be sure to give ethical training early in life. Sports are fine for keeping the body fit.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

When considering slam, 33-34 points is the figure usually bandied about for a small slam. That is true when there is no fit or a fit in only one suit. However, when multiple fits exist, slam can be made on considerably fewer points, as this hand proved.

Despite his good hand, North could do no more than respond with one heart to his partner's one diamond opening bid—his hand was far too strong for a jump to three diamonds. When South raised hearts, North became interested in bigger things even if his partner held a minimum. He made a waiting bid of three clubs, and when South raised that suit as well, it became almost certain that he held a singleton spade, so North decided to reveal his diamond support by leaping to slam.

West led his fourth-best spade, taken by the ace. If trumps were 2-2, there was no problem, so declarer cashed the ace-king of trumps. When West showed out, declarer was faced with a possible club loser as well as the queen of trumps. Since the chance of finding a doubleton queen-jack of clubs was remote, an endplay offered a far better prospect of avoiding a club loser.

Declarer ruffed dummy's remaining spade, then started to run hearts. East realized that, if he ruffed, he would be endplayed, so he discarded two spades. Declarer discarded a club on the fourth heart, then threw East in with the queen of trumps.

East saw that, if he exited with a spade, declarer would simply discard a club from one hand while ruffing in the other. The only alternative was to open the club suit for declarer. Trying to look like a player who held both the queen and jack of clubs, East made the good defensive play of leading the queen.

Unfortunately, declarer knew that the odds favored the club honors being split. He was not taken in by East's effort. He won the king of clubs in his hand and finessed the ten. When that held, the slam was home.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? HEW Official 'Optimistic' Over UNC Standards

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A top-level federal civil rights official sounded optimistic Wednesday about the resolution of North Carolina's difference with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) on desegregating steps for the state university system.

David S. Tattel, director of HEW's Office for Civil Rights, said he believed North Carolina was as strongly committed to "equal opportunity" for minorities as HEW and that there were "hundreds of ways" to achieve desegregation.

Tattel said the HEW criteria "have been very carefully drafted to set clear, comprehensive standards for the states to follow. There may be hundreds of ways to meet those standards. All we're interested in is the end product."

He spoke after a day of conferences with North Carolina officials.

Gov. Jim Hunt said his meeting with Tattel was "encouraging" although neither would reveal any details of their conversation. The visit failed to resolve the current desegregation dispute between the University of North Carolina and federal officials.

Tattel said his talks with UNC officials and Hunt did not go into specific details of controversial HEW guidelines.

And he said it would be premature to comment on whether the dispute could be resolved without going to court.

"We haven't even reached the point of compromise talks," Tattel said. "The state plan will not be submitted until September."

And after that, there's a 120-period of negotiation."

HEW has ordered UNC to increase black enrollment at those of its schools which are predominately white by 150 per cent in the next five years. A university administrative committee Sunday rejected that and other guidelines as unreasonable and unrealistic.

Instead, the panel proposed a 32 per cent increase in black students, and drafted a revised plan to recruit minorities. Tattel met with UNC President William Friday and other school officials before his 30-minute talk with the governor.

Friday spent the morning "educating us on how UNC operates, some of its problems and the unique roles of the black institutions," Tattel said.

"It was an effort to give us the background we need."

At a morning news conference, Hunt said the state was not on the offensive, nor the defensive, in the dispute.

"Our real goal is not a certain number of people, but a full and equal opportunity for each and every person," he said.

Tattel and other HEW officials are traveling through the South, visiting other state university systems which have been ordered to formulate new desegregation plans. The UNC Board of Governors meets Monday to consider the revised plan adopted by the committee Sunday. The final North Carolina proposal must be submitted to HEW by the governor by Sept. 5.

Law School Scholarship

MARIA TUGWELL

Maria Tugwell of Farmville has been awarded a full tuition scholarship to attend the Wake Forest University School of Law.

Based on exceptional scholastic achievement, the scholarship received by Miss Tugwell is one of seven awarded in each entering Law School class. Each recipient may retain the scholarship for the full three years of law study, provided he or she maintains a minimum B average or remains in the top one-third of the class.

Miss Tugwell graduated magna cum laude from Meredith College in May, 1976 with a double major in history and mathematics. She was an honor graduate of Farmville Central High School in 1972 and has worked for the past year in Hilton Head Island, S.C. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Tugwell of Farmville.

At Annual Convention

A number of members of Greenville Lodge 885, Loyal Order of Moose, attended the 51st annual convention of the N.C. Moose Association in Greensboro on Aug. 11-14.

Two events of the convention involving Greenville lodge members were the receiving of a first place award for the best lodge bulletin in the association, and presentation of a plaque to E.M. Baldree for his dedicated service to the fraternity and the Greenville lodge for the past 18 years.

Lodge members at the convention included Baldree, Governor Ralph Heidenreich, Willie Bailey, Lacy Harrell, Merrill Bynum, Garland Beddard, William Murphy, and Sec. Jim Flemming. A large number of local Women of the Moose from Greenville were attending the state WOTM conference which was also being held at Greensboro.

At Monday night's meeting Gov. Heidenreich presented Past Governor Jack Morgan a biblestand for the lodge altar, for having fulfilled the 1976 membership quota.

Heidenreich called members' attention to a scheduled visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile on Aug. 22, 23.

Marguerite Oswald Continues To Defend Son

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Alone and without fanfare, Marguerite Oswald turned 70 last month, saying, "With all I've been through, just being 70 is enough."

"Who needs a birthday cake?"
As defiant as ever, the silver-haired, self-styled "mother of history" remains unwavering in defense of her son, Lee, named by the Warren Commission as the lone assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

"The Warren Commission was wrong," she snapped. Sharing a frosty beer with a visitor in her modest, immaculate brick home, she launched at once into the most recent area of indignation, a published contention she is "now aging and in ill health."

Eyes flashing, she produced a copy of a letter mailed to news media, in which she declared: "I'll admit to the aging; it's a natural process. But to say I'm in ill health is a gross error and I consider it an effort to discredit me. ... "I don't feel my age, don't look it and have never been sick a day in my life. I'll bet the author can't say the same thing."

Indeed, time has taken no apparent toll on the stocky firebrand in the 14 years since the assassination and subsequent killing of her son by Jack Ruby in the basement of the Dallas County Jail. "I've never seen a doctor, never taken an aspirin," she said. "I've fooled 'em all by living 14 years and remaining in good health."

Mrs. Oswald discussed her way of life reluctantly, preferring to attack authors and critics who have assailed her and her son.
"I've experienced and survived this trauma," she said.

"I've lived it and I know it. What do the critics know? ... I may look stupid, but I know everything that's going on. Don't kid yourself about that."
She is an incessant reader, and her library overflows with books on the assassination and the presidency, on Cuba and Russia, where Lee Harvey Oswald visited, and on New Orleans, where her son spent much of his youth.

"I'm very interested in everything going on in this case," Mrs. Oswald said. "I hope sometime to have an opportunity to change some of the things that have been said — an opportunity to write the truth."

"I don't really have to investigate anymore; it's just a matter of keeping on top of things as they come up. If a book comes out on the assassination, there's no putting it down — even if it takes all night and the next day."

She recently read Victor Laszky's "It Didn't Start With Watergate" and Bernard Fensterwald Jr.'s book on the assassination, "Coincidence or Conspiracy?" And she said she is waiting with more than casual interest for the October release of "Marina and Lee," as told by Lee Oswald's widow, Marina, to Priscilla Johnson McMillan.

"I'm glad Marina's book is being published, but I wonder why they waited 14 years," she said.

Mrs. Oswald said she has spoken neither to Marina nor another son, Robert Oswald, since November 1963. "I called them a couple of times, but they either wouldn't talk to me or hung up."

She said she doesn't know why, adding, "I don't really give a damn. I've always been pretty much on my own and I've accepted that."

"This is just part of what I've gone through."
Much more distressing, she indicated, is the continuing interest of publishers for a book by Marguerite Oswald.

"Robert had his book, and Marina's is coming out in October. He had a story to tell and Marina has a story to tell and I have a story to tell," she said.

"I can't understand why I don't have a book. ... I think the publishers are under the impression I'm just a mother defending her son. ... I'm going to defend Lee Harvey Oswald until the day I die, but I'm not going to take up for him. There's a difference."

"I don't want to appear I'm pushing for a book but, after all, I am the mother of the man accused of killing the President of the United States."

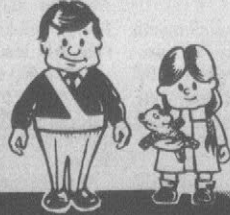

She lives, she said, on Social Security, occasional fees for interviews and the sale of unspecified "personal property."

Her days, she insisted, are "simply not long enough. I cook, clean house, keep the lawn, pay bills, shampoo my hair, and of course, read a lot and make notes."

"This is not an ordinary case and I'm not an ordinary person. But I eat well, I sleep well and I have a free mind. ... After 14 years of suppression and distortions, I'm proud to have survived."

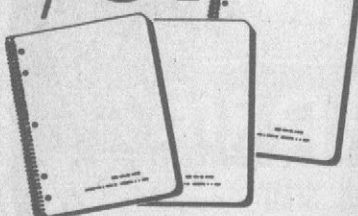

"I do not feel sorry for myself because I think I'm finally coming into my own. ... I just can't understand why I don't have a book. ..."

FOXX HEADS FOR VARIETY SERIES—Comedian Redd Foxx talks about the new one-hour ABC variety series he'll do now that his four seasons of "Sanford and Son" is over. (AP Laserphoto)

Foxx Turning To Variety Field

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Redd Foxx left NBC after four "Sanford and Son" seasons, he groused that NBC never had shown interest in ideas he'd proposed for television shows. That was in April.

But when a scribe this month inquired what ideas are proposed for his new one-hour ABC variety series, the veteran comic, executive producer of the show, adopted a somewhat secretive manner.

He said portions of the proceeding will be taped outside the studio, but when asked about the show's format, he only said: "We're trying to find out what the public might go for..."

Guests for the show? Well, Foxx said, he'll have "new comics, new singers and some older ones who've never been seen, some friends that never had a shot at television."

The only guest he was specific about is a friend from his lean days as a comic, a fine vocalist name of Damita Jo who broke in years ago with a group called Steve Gibson and the Red Caps, he said.

He said she'd be a regular. He also said Gerald Wilson, fairly well-known in jazz circles, will lead the show's band.

Foxx, 56, seemed to have a severe case of the uneasies during a hurried interview he didn't seem particularly happy to do.

But his face lit up when he was asked if there'd be some jazz on his show if, say, trumpeter Clark Terry, featured on "Tonight" when it was in New York, happened to be in Los Angeles for a club date.

"Clark's an old pal of mine, we're both from St. Louis," he beamed. "I'm sure if he's in town, we might just have a trumpetfest, bring in Dizzie Gillespie. They've been friends of mine for years."

It's not unusual for a network to pressure a variety show host to put on Big Names — established stars or stars of the network's other shows — in hope of getting big ratings or plugging those other shows.

But Foxx says ABC isn't pulling that on him: "Naw, I have no pressure on me. None at all."

Foxx, who had well-publicized disputes with NBC while there, was asked if he has any beefs with ABC, his new employer, so far.

"No, none at all. They've been very nice to me," he said, softly adding: "No sweat."

I guess it was bound to happen. A TV show may be made about New York's highly publicized "Son of Sam" and the six .44-caliber killings attributed to him over a year's time.

Industry sources here say Lorimar Productions, maker of the gentle "Waltons," is negotiating for TV rights to a "non-fiction novel" that uses the facts, but not all the names, of the S.O.S. case.

The book, tentatively called "Son of Sam," is being hurriedly written by Fun City columnist Jimmy Breslin, close to the case ever since he got a letter from "Sam," and sportswriter Dick Schaap.

Lee Rich, president of Lorimar, declined comment when asked if his firm is dickering with Breslin's agent for the book, scheduled for publication in October by Viking Press.

'Confederates' Back At Fort Macon Two Days

FORT MACON STATE PARK — By popular public demand, "Confederate Soldiers" of the First Regiment, N. C. State Troops will return to Fort Macon State Park on Saturday and Sunday, August 20 and 21.

The soldiers made an appearance earlier in the summer, and since that initial appearance, numerous requests have been made for a return engagement.

The First North Carolina is an authentic reorganized Confederate Regiment consisting of 30 members. The unit has taken part in several battle reenactments, including the 1976 Bicentennial Battle of Gettysburg.

Equipment used by the regiment — uniforms, muskets, leather gear — are either original items or authentic reproductions. They have established a Civil War camp, where soldiers prepare their meals, sleep and go about their daily routines. The public is being encouraged to examine the camp and to ask questions about Confederate military life and equipment.

A schedule of activities for the two days includes a variety of events. These are:

— Saturday — 9 a.m. Colors and inspection of troops; 10 a.m. Union ambush of a Confederate patrol; 11 a.m. Musketry and infantry drills; 12 noon, dinner call; 1 p.m. Surrender ceremony of Fort Macon; 2 p.m. Capture and execution of a Union spy; 3 p.m. Yankee sharpshooters shoot Ft. Macon guards; 4 p.m. Pay call; and 5 p.m. Retreat ceremony.

— Sunday — 9 a.m. Colors; 9:20 a.m. Sunday service; 10 a.m. Surrender ceremony; 11 a.m. Yankee ambush of Confederate patrol; 12 noon, Musketry and infantry drills; 1 p.m. Yankee sharpshooters kill a couple of Fort Macon guards, then are flushed out and killed or captured; 2 p.m. Union spy questioned and executed; 3 p.m. Union ambush repelled by Confederates; 4 p.m. Confederate Navy brings in needed supplies; and 5 p.m. Colors.

There is no admission charge for the reenactment activities, and the public is invited to attend.

All the activities listed will be held within or adjacent to the renovated Civil War fort.

Achiever Is An Organist

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The first woman in the nation to capture the Junior Achiever of the year award is a talented organist who hopes to make a dual career of the arts and business.

Kimberly Marshall emerged first in a business management competition involving 260,000 other high school students. She is a recent graduate of the prep program at the North Carolina School of the Arts here.

"I had a good week," she said modestly of the national competition in Bloomington, Ind., earlier this month.

"I hope to make a career as a concert organist," she said, "but I think I'd also really enjoy going into some kind of arts management, such as being an agent or going into motion picture production."

The award was based on her performance as manager of a miniature corporation called LTL Enterprises, a manufacturer and merchandiser of hanging candles and macrame necklaces.

Machu Picchu—early morning cloud begins to curl around Huayna Picchu, tall peak, center.

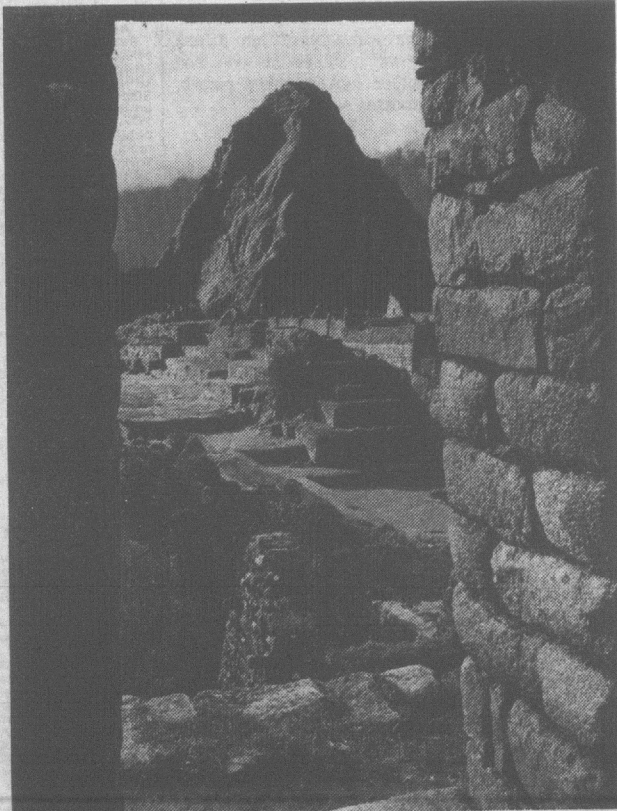

Mystical Machu Picchu

Misty, mystical Machu Picchu, enigmatic city of the Incas, lies 6,750 feet above sea level in the Peruvian Andes. Surrounded by icy peaks that plunge to tropical rivers thousands of feet below, the ruins, only 75 miles northwest of Cuzco, lay hidden for centuries. In 1911 American archeologist Hiram Bingham uncovered the silent citadel and called it "the lost city of the Incas." The granite fountains, temples and dwelling places may have been home to as many as 2,500 people, but archeologists still disagree about the origins of Machu Picchu. Bingham thought it was an ancient city to which the last Incas fled after their defeat by the Spanish. Later scholars suggest it may have been a royal and religious resort, or perhaps only one of the Inca Empire's many outposts. Theories abound but no one is quite sure. The silent stones of Machu Picchu do not give up their secrets easily.

Questions List No Insurance Coverage Given Laetrile Of Consultants

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge questioning The Washington Group's president concentrated most of his queries on the large number of consultants the company had on its payroll.

At the time of its petition for reorganization under Chapter X of the federal bankruptcy act, the company was obligated for about $7 million in consultant fees, at the rate of about $600,000 a year.

Judge Rufus J. Reynolds read a long list of consultants in front of the company's creditors in U.S. Middle District Court in Winston-Salem. He asked James R. Gilley, president and chief executive officer of the Washington Group, what each of them had done for the company.

"Why would you give him $20,000 to not work?" Reynolds asked about one of the consultants. Gilley replied that Smith Bagley, former president of the company, had negotiated the contract on that particular consultant.

Asked about three people whom Reynolds said would receive consulting fees as high as $8,700 a year for life, Gilley replied that he had never heard of them. But he said they may have been promised consultant fees by one of the companies bought by The Washington Group. He said the group would be obligated to continue paying the fees.

Gilley told Reynolds that when Bagley resigned, the executive committee voted to give him $60,000 a year, a car and a secretary for 10 years. Gilley said since Bagley left in January, 1976, he had been back in the office two or three times.

Reynolds told the creditors that he was "quite shocked" at The Washington Group's method of figuring out costs. "I was floored at the consulting fees," Reynolds added.

He said that's why he recommended in July that consultants' fees be temporarily discontinued to a number of people which the company is being reorganized under Chapter X.

Reynolds said Richard A. Gilbert, the company's court-appointed trustee, is "not paying anything to anybody unless they earn it. He's retaining all the money he can get for operation."

Reynolds said he was not trying any issues, but was asking Gilley some general questions about company operations before it filed a petition for reorganization.

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The association that insures over half of Nevada's doctors for malpractice says it won't cover lawsuits stemming from prescription of Laetrile, the controversial substance backers claim effective in treating cancer.

Nevada is one of several states in which doctors may prescribe Laetrile, though use of the substance has not been approved by the federal Food and Drug Administration.

Nevada's Medical Liability Insurance Association, which writes about 60 per cent of the state's malpractice policies, ruled after the substance was legalized in the state its coverage would not extend to Laetrile. The exclusion covers all substance not approved by the FDA.

A survey of principal malpractice carriers around the country indicated none has plans for similar action.

However, Oklahoma, one of the other states in which prescription of Laetrile is legal, requires patients to agree to waive malpractice suits if Laetrile is prescribed at their request. Other states are considering similar requirements.

Dick Rottman, Nevada's insurance commissioner, said the NMLIA move is not a judgment on the value of Laetrile. While it may limit Laetrile prescriptions in the state, he said, the restriction was designed to keep the association from going broke.

Bob Byrd, who directs the NMLIA program, said, "If we took unnecessary risks, we would probably be in the same boat as other companies that went broke" in the malpractice insurance business.

Rottman said despite claims from Laetrile's backers, the FDA is recognized as the leading regulatory body for drugs and it's policies would weigh heavily in court in a suit involving Laetrile.

Argonaut Insurance Co., the other major malpractice carrier in Nevada, wouldn't say whether it might order a similar restriction.

But St. Paul Insurance Co., which provides malpractice coverage for about 36,000 doctors across the country, said it would not follow the Nevada association's lead. "That's telling medical specialists how to practice medicine. We wouldn't do that," said David McDonald, a St. Paul spokesman.

Bob Miller of the Medical Protective Co., which writes malpractice policies in the Midwest, said his firm also has no prohibition on Laetrile or other substances not approved by the FDA. "It really becomes more a question of legality within a state. If it's permissible in a state, then we have coverage for them," he said. "We have no immediate changes planned."

Bob Norton of Aetna Life and Casualty Co., which insures 15,000 doctors in several states, said his firm won't exclude Laetrile. "Our primary function is to protect the policy holder if he's in a suit," Norton said. "Part of that function is to have the least number of exclusions. But it's not our intent to cover any illegal acts. We won't."

Nicotine Hazard In Fields, Too

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Even before it leaves the fields, tobacco apparently offers a certain hazard of health, according to state health researchers.

Fieldworkers in contact with tobacco leaves are vulnerable to a form of nicotine poisoning, in which the chemical enters the body through the mouth and respiratory system, especially if the crop is wet. W.A. Williams, head of the state pesticide program, says the symptoms usually show up shortly after the worker leaves the field. They include headache, weakness, dizziness, paleness and vomiting, all of which Williams said are best described as "the same feeling you get from severe seasickness."

Water For Two Towns

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Action by both the state and the Durham City Council will enable the city to pump 3.5 million gallons of water a day to the Orange Water and Sewer Authority, which supplies the two water-short Orange County towns.

At the level that the two towns, Chapel Hill and Carrboro, were consuming water this week, Durham water would meet seven-eighths of the towns' water needs. The 3.5 million gallons is the maximum the two water lines between Durham and Chapel Hill can transmit in a 24-hour period.

That's two million gallons a day more than Durham was pumping to the towns before.

The water authority will have to pay for that increased flow. Durham council members agreed that an additional 5 per cent surcharge be added tentatively to offset additional costs for producing the water and for wear and tear on city equipment.

Terry Rolan, assistant director of Durham's water resource division, said the line with the additional water was opened Tuesday. "As long as the quality of water remains above state requirements, we will continue to pump water over there."

W.J. Stevenson, director of water supply for the state Department of Human Resources, gave the city permission to exceed its 22 million gallon rated daily capacity by two million gallons as long as the turbidity, or sediment level, in Durham's Lake Michie remains low.
