

Night Session For Senate Over Natural Gas Pricing

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate struggled today to break a deadlock on natural gas pricing after holding its first all-night session since the battle over the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Lawmakers worked past daybreak as Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd waged an around-the-clock battle to break a filibuster led by two senators who want to block a vote on an industry-supported plan to lift price controls from natural gas.

"We've had about enough of this foolishness," Byrd declared at dawn. But the West Virginia Democrat did not appear to be making headway in steering the Senate toward a final vote.

The Senate faced a decision on whether to vote to replace President Carter's plan for continued price controls with a deregulation plan favored by the industry.

Unlike earlier talkathons, where senators could steal away for several hours of uninterrupted sleep, this filibuster was being waged with votes instead of words.

Nearly all of the senators had been present, at least from time to time, during the night.

Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, leaders of the stalling action, called for repeated roll-call votes, forcing legislators to engage in the arduous task of taking up separately some 500 amendments to the bill.

As the morning wore on, senators primed themselves with coffee and shuffled back and forth between the Senate floor and nearby rooms where cots were set up. But few caught much sleep.

"This is barbaric," grumbled Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee. "These cots are useless with these votes coming up every 15 minutes."

Byrd said failure to act on the gas-pricing bill jeopardizes passage of Carter's entire energy package. He added that the President is likely to call Congress back into session if it adjourns without reaching a decision.

Even though the Senate voted earlier in the week to limit each senator's speaking time to one hour apiece for the remainder of the debate, the tactic failed to deter either Metzenbaum or Abourezk.

They just switched tactics, stopped talking and began demanding votes.

The aim of the two senators is to stall for time while pushing their proposal to continue federal control of natural gas prices with as low a price as possible.

Oil and gas industry lobbyists and sympathetic senators want an end to controls. They think they will prevail if they can sweep away the parliamentary tangle and put their proposal to a vote.

In a preliminary test shortly after midnight, the Senate refused by a vote of 47 to 40 to table the latest deregulation proposal managed by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and James Pearson, R-Kan.

Carter says he will veto any plan that lifts federal controls.

Deregulation proponents claim the controls have kept the price of gas artificially low, discouraging development of new supplies. But Carter contends that the controls are needed to protect consumers from soaring gas bills.

Hard-Sell On Panama Pact

By LAWRENCE L. KNOTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's military and diplomatic forces are mounting a united, point-by-point counterattack against a well-organized campaign to scuttle the Panama Canal treaty.

In two days of hard-sell testimony this week, senior administration officials sought to reply to the anti-treaty campaign and to specific conservative arguments against ratification.

Conservative opponents of the treaty have argued that the treaty does not guarantee the U.S. right to defend the canal after it is turned over to Panama in the year 2000.

But in Senate testimony Tuesday, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff, stressed that there will be a far more dangerous military threat to the security of the canal if the treaty is rejected than if it is ratified.

Meanwhile, retired Adm. Thomas Moorer, one of four former chiefs of naval operations on record as opposing ratification of the treaty, was called before the House International Relations Committee today.

In his testimony Tuesday before the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, Defense Secretary Brown said: "The canal was built for shipping, not slogans. The treaties you are examining provide real security, not paper claims. They offer the most practical guarantee obtainable that the canal will remain operational, secure and available to the United States."

And Gen. Brown indicated the nation would have to be prepared for a long period of military action in Latin America if the Senate refuses to ratify the treaty.

He said a guerrilla warfare campaign from inside Panama would require three divisions or about 100,000 men to assure an adequate force to protect the canal. He said even a U.S. military force of that size could not stop saboteurs or commandos from causing enough damage to force the canal to close down for short periods.

And Secretary Brown said efforts to operate in such a hostile environment would mean repeated shutdowns that would require the United States to respond with military force "over and over again."

Asked to respond to critics who say that making the canal a neutral zone would open it to enemy shipping in time of war, Secretary Brown said the treaty does give the ships of all nations access to the canal — but it does not guarantee them safe passage to reach it.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, told the Senate panel in a written statement that approving the treaty would contribute to "a friendly and cooperative attitude" toward the United States by Latin American countries.

Meanwhile, a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee subpoenaed a recently discharged Army sergeant who allegedly passed to the Panamanian government evidence that U.S. intelligence agents bugged Panama's treaty negotiating team.

The Senate intelligence committee, the State Department, the Defense Department and the two chief U.S. negotiators have said the alleged incident in no way affected the outcome of the negotiations.

CBS News reported Tuesday night that a second American soldier was involved in selling intelligence information to Panamanian officials. The service man reportedly was involved in U.S. intelligence operations dealing with Panama. CBS said the man was not prosecuted because U.S. officials did not want to have to disclose details of their intelligence operations in Panama.

CBS said the American was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for revealing what he had given the Panamanians. CBS, quoting Senate sources, said the American was given an honorable discharge and that U.S. officials do not know where he is now.

Siamese Twins Parted

MANHASSET N.Y. (AP) — A team of 20 doctors worked for five hours to separate tiny Siamese twin girls in a delicate operation. The Associated Press learned today.

Officials at North Shore University Hospital declined comment early today, saying an announcement would be made later. However, sources said the five-hour operation was performed Tuesday and was successful.

It was learned that the 5½-month-old girls, the daughters of a Nassau County couple, were in satisfactory condition today as a result of the operation.

A hospital source said the girls were joined at the chest and the upper abdominal region.

As soon as the girls were separated, the doctors split into teams of 10 each. One of the girls was born without a liver, sources said.

A source at the hospital said the girls were born 5½ months ago at a nearby Long Island hospital and were transferred to North Shore where they could be cared for in the hospital's high risk unit.

The combined weight of the premature girls when they were brought to the hospital reportedly totaled only three pounds.

Prior to the operation, a carefully monitored program at the hospital raised the combined weight of the girls to about 10 pounds. The AP learned.

Even the fact that the Siamese twins were at the hospital was a carefully guarded secret. It was learned that the hospital had not planned to announce the operation until later this week.

The identity of the parents could not be learned immediately.

Qualified For Aid As A Frog

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — She didn't qualify for employment aid under any of the existing categories of underprivileged people, so one Pennsylvania woman created a new class.

She hopped into the Centre County Training and Employment Agency dressed in a frog costume and told her stunned audience: "I hope you don't have your quota of frogs yet."

The play apparently worked. Pat Casher, director of the Building Skills program for minorities and disadvantaged persons, interviewed the unusual applicant and gave her a job.

The frog, er, woman, was not identified.

U.S. And Russia Nearer To SALT Accord: Gromyko

AFTER MEETING WITH CARTER — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko gestures as he comments to newsmen surrounding him at the White House Tuesday evening following a meeting with President Carter where they discussed arms control. (AP Laserphoto)

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union are closer to a new strategic arms limitation agreement, a top Soviet official says after his second meeting in five days with President Carter.

Emerging from an unusual and hastily arranged nighttime negotiating session at the White House, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said Tuesday the two superpowers made "some further progress" in narrowing their remaining differences on a new pact.

With Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance nodding in agreement at his side, Gromyko said Washington and Moscow have "the firm intention to work toward" a second SALT agreement.

Coming after progress in marathon talks here last Thursday and Friday, Gromyko's remarks left the impression that the momentum is accelerating toward a new agreement.

But U.S. officials cautioned against speculation that a breakthrough is near. A sense of urgency pervaded the atmosphere here as Gromyko flew from New York in the early evening for the meeting. Vance, who had also been in New York, arrived separately.

Gromyko, speaking through his interpreter, refused to say what brought the second session with such speed. He and White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said only that the meeting was agreed to Monday.

Powell said the "core issues" were discussed in the 90-minute meeting, which was attended by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, U.S. arms negotiator Paul Warnke and others.

The main issues include the Soviet stand that the U.S. cruise missiles should be tightly limited. The cruise missile is a low-flying, pilotless plane armed with a nuclear warhead.

The United States is insisting on restrictions on the SS18, a Soviet heavy missile, and on the Soviet backfire bomber.

Another major issue is how compliance with any new agreement will be verified.

The 1972 SALT pact expires Monday, but the Carter administration has insisted that Moscow and Washington are not negotiating against that deadline. Both governments have said they will honor the terms of the expiring accord while the new one is being negotiated.

The old treaty imposes limits on land-based and submarine-launched intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Gromyko flew to Washington after addressing the United Nations General Assembly in a speech that mixed conciliation with toughness toward the United States.

In a surprise move, Gromyko offered in the New York speech to join the United States and Great Britain in suspending all underground nuclear weapons tests for an unspecified period.

He said this would be "a major step conducive to lessening the threat of nuclear war and deepening detente." But he sharply criticized the Carter administration on several other fronts.

$9,400 Drive To Advertise Immunization

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Hunt administration has hired a private public-relations firm at a cost of $9,400 for three months to promote an immunization program intended to reach 55,000 children between the ages of one and four.

The money is part of $518,000 in federal funds the state will get to promote immunization.

Dr. Sarah Morrow, state secretary of human resources, said at a news conference this morning that a private firm was hired because her department's public-relations staff was not able to take on the extra work.

"It's a modest amount of funds that are being utilized," Gov. Jim Hunt said at the news conference. He said the state now has an 84 per cent immunization rate, compared to a national average of 60 per cent.

The goal of the current extra effort is to have 95 per cent of the children between one to four immunized against polio, mumps, measles, German measles, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus, the governor said.

"The people we're trying to reach don't read the paper," Hunt said of the parents who have not had their children immunized. "It's going to require some new, innovative, imaginative kinds of things to do."

Wayne Pennington of Wills, Pennington and Associates of Raleigh, the firm hired to handle the program, spoke in general terms of his agency's plans and said three full-time employees will work on the project.

Pennington said his staff will attempt to generate stories for newspapers and public-service advertisements for radio and television and will also ask religious leaders to help locate children who have not been immunized.

State law requires children to be immunized before attending school, but "we find that many of our school officials do not enforce that particular law," Dr. Morrow said.

On other topics at the morning news conference, Hunt reiterated his opposition to deregulation of natural gas, saying, "If we have a tremendous rise in natural gas prices, these are going to fuel inflation."

Hunt offered no opinion about recent reports that opposition to a gubernatorial succession proposal is growing. As far as he knows, he said, "things are going very well" and the Democratic party is united in support of the issue.

Small Rise In Serious Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime in the United States rose by less than 1 per cent last year, showing major improvement over the 10 per cent increase of 1975, federal crime statistics show.

The FBI said Tuesday there was an 8 per cent decrease in murders in 1976 and a 10 per cent drop in robberies, reducing the country's incidence of violent crime by 4 per cent.

It was when the FBI combined the violent crime figures with statistics for nonviolent crimes, such as auto theft, that the agency arrived at the overall 1976 crime increase of less than 1 per cent.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell said the statistics are "encouraging news, particularly when preliminary reports show a 9 per cent decline in reported serious crime for the first three months of 1977."

The FBI statistics, assembled from information supplied by some 130 law enforcement agencies, showed an average of one murder every 28 minutes last year, one rape every nine minutes and a robbery every 75 seconds. A car was stolen every 33 seconds.

But the 18,780 murders, two-thirds of them committed with firearms, represented an 8 per cent drop from 1975. And murder was down 1 per cent that year from 1974.

Farmer Must Accept $24,750

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Farmer George Eaton may not like money, but a jury has ruled he must accept $24,750 from a utility company for an easement across his land.

"Money is the root of all evil," Eaton told Butler County Common Pleas Judge Fred Cramer. "It comes between neighbors and relatives. I think you can live without it."

Eaton said he didn't mind granting Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. a 7.4-acre easement for power lines. He just didn't want the money.

Ohio law requires a jury to set a fair price for easements if the owner cannot come to an agreement on a price with a utility.

My, How Times Have Changed

SEATTLE (AP) — Flying isn't what it used to be.

Thirty years ago, Air Canada says, these were the instructions to hostesses on flights from Vancouver, Canada, to Boeing Field here:

1. Warn passengers against throwing cigarettes and cigars out the window.
2. Keep the clock wound up in the passenger cabin.
3. Carry a railroad timetable in case the plane is grounded.
4. Keep an eye on passengers when they go to the toilet to be sure they don't mistakenly go out the emergency exit.

Exxon Said To Hold Foreign Payoffs Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exxon, the world's largest corporation, also holds the record for payoffs to foreign officials, government investigators say.

The Securities and Exchange Commission said in a civil complaint Tuesday that the Exxon Corp. paid at least $56.5 million to foreign governments, most of it to Italian officials.

Previously, the $38 million by the Lockheed Corp. was the largest total to come out of the government's four-year investigation of bribes paid overseas by American companies.

Exxon, while not admitting any guilt, agreed to a permanent injunction barring it from violating securities laws.

There is no U.S. law prohibiting bribery of foreign officials. The SEC complaint charged Exxon with failing to disclose the payoffs in its regular statements, which are required by the securities laws.

So far about 360 companies have reported paying off foreign officials. The SEC has taken 32 firms to court.

Most of the bribes have been to get government contracts or to speed up action on contracts, and are illegal in many of the countries involved.

The SEC said Exxon made payoffs in at least 15 countries. Some $55.2 million was allegedly channeled through Italy by Esso Italiana, from 1963 until at least 1972.

Exxon had maintained the payments were legal political contributions, but the SEC charged much of the money went to political parties and government officials to influence governmental decisions.

At least half the money, it said, was spent by Vincenzo Cazzaniga, who was fired as president of the Italian subsidiary in 1971. The SEC said top-level management knew about these payments, which were allegedly channeled through 40 unrecorded bank accounts, or over-draft accounts.

The company said after Cazzaniga was fired, it did not believe it had to disclose its investigation publicly because the Italian payments were not material to its financial situation.

Poem Published In Children's Magazines

By Debbie Jackson
Reflector Staff Writer

The pink barrettes in her pigtails tell you she is a child, but those huge dark eyes that engulf you when she speaks make you think she is seven going on 27 years old.

Angela Sims, a second grader at South Greenville Elementary School, is the authoress of a poem that was recently published in two children's magazines.

Her poem, "The Moon," appears in this month's editions of Wee Wisdom and Children's Playmate.

According to Angela, it tells of the moon shining in her bedroom and how it made her feel. She wrote the poem when she was five years old and in kindergarten at South Greenville.

"I'd say she was very mature for her age...quiet, reflective, said Lillian Weeks, who was Angela's kindergarten teacher.

According to Weeks, Angela was working on a quilt with her grandmother at the time she wrote the poem.

"She has very capable hands and a great deal of manual dexterity.

"She was able to look at a situation and evaluate it, which is something that a five-year-old cannot usually do."

Weeks added that Angela is "calm and in full control of any situation.

"The boys and girls liked her and depended on her like an older sister."

According to librarian Jean Carter, Angela received an award from Wee Wisdom Friday, "In Recognition of Outstanding Achievement."

A letter accompanying the award stated, "The fact that your work has appeared in Wee Wisdom is proof that you are a person with genuine creative ability.

"We want to give you the strongest possible encouragement to continue to develop all your talents," it concluded.

Carter said that she was told of Angela's poem last year and sent copies of it to the two magazines. That was in September, 1976.

"Now a year later they both published it at the same time," she added.

According to Carter, she cannot really say who encouraged Angela to write.

"I'll tell the children that anybody can write and 'Let's do it.' We encourage writing in general here."

Angela said that the poem was her own idea.

"I made up the words but my mother helped me spell them," she said.

Angela added that the whole experience was a surprise and just a little bit "scary."

"I don't like to have my name in the newspaper, because everybody will get their newspapers and read it."

Angela said that she has another poem in mind, called, "The Early Bird," but she has not written it yet.

Angela is the daughter of Ms. Curtis Sims of Greenville.

Three-Time Grad Can't Find A Job

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a strong feeling that by the time you (or a member of your staff) reads this, I may not be around, but I hope you print this with a response that will help others who share my dilemma.

I spent eight years earning three university degrees, and now I can't find a job. I was even willing to work out of my field and do typing or waitress work, but was turned down with, "You'd only leave us as soon as we got you trained."

Now I have nothing and I can't afford to continue looking for work. The cost of resumes, gasoline, parking and just living while job hunting has taken all my money. After I mail this letter, I won't even have the price of another postage stamp!

Someday, if a multi-degreed person should ask you for a job, I hope you'll remember me, and how happy I would have been to be your typist.

WORTHLESS

DEAR WORTHLESS: Your signature is a revealing clue to your problem. No one, whether he has three degrees or none, whether he's employed or jobless, is "worthless."

If you're still around, and I sincerely hope you are, I beg you to call the Suicide Prevention hotline. If there's none in your city, contact your local Mental Health Association. You desperately need more help than I can give you in a letter. God bless. And let me hear from you again. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am money-minded when I probably should have only "love" on my mind, but I have a question to ask. I am engaged to be married soon, and my fiancé and I have never talked about money. I know he has a good job, but I don't know how much he makes. I don't even know if he carries any insurance other than what he has on his car.

I work and intend to continue for a while after I'm married, but I don't know if I should plan on supporting myself or not. Should we have a joint checking and savings account? Would it be wrong of me to bring up these things before we are married?

SOON-TO-BE-BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: It would be wrong NOT to! Every couple should set up a budget together before marriage and decide how much to allow for rent, entertainment, insurance, clothing, etc. And be sure you allow for possible illnesses and accidents. (All kinds!)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

Dixon presently serves as a member of the board of directors of the Greenville Jaycees and is president of the Pitt County ECU Alumni Chapter. He is also a director of the Pitt Chapter of the ECU Pirate Club.

The attorney, who is active in the Young Democrats of North Carolina, has been elected a delegate to the state Democratic Convention.

Hadden, who is seeking reelection to his second term on the City Council, is the Episcopal Chaplain at ECU. He is also a member of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of East Carolina.

The Philadelphia, Pa. native, who has been a resident of Greenville for 18 years, has served churches in Winchester, Va., Clarksville, Tenn., and First Christian Church here where he was pastor from 1959 until 1969.

Hadden received his B.A. degree in philosophy at Lynchburg College in Virginia and earned the Master of Divinity degree at Vanderbilt University in Tennessee. He received the Masters in Education degree at Austin Peay State College, Tenn.

The councilman and his wife, the former Margaret Shumate, are the parents of four children.

"The ministers of Greenville and Pitt County work closely professionally with many of the agencies represented in the United Fund," Hadden noted. "We have always sensed much personal support from them and for the concept of the United Fund."

Five Accidents Here Tuesday

An estimated $4,960 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Elaine Smith Cherry of Route 1, Chocowinity was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of a 3:25 p.m. mishap on Fifth Street near the Brownlea Drive intersection.

Investigators reported the Cherry car collided with an auto operated by John Blount Farley of 100 Deerwood Dr., causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Farley car and $700 damage to the Cherry vehicle.

Penny Gaddy Henderson of 104 River Bluff Apts. was charged with failing to stop for a red light following investigation of a 7 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Evans Street and Reade Circle.

Officers, who reported the Henderson car collided with an auto driven by Clayton Earl Roberson of 2607 Jackson Dr., estimated damage at $450 to the Roberson car and $800 to the Henderson auto.

Thomas Howard Hayden of 160 Willow St., was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a truck driven by Barbara Sermons Starling of Farmville about 12:02 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Bismark Street.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $400 to the Starling truck and $500 to the Hayden motorcycle.

Cars driven by Garland Benjamin Greene of Church Street Trailer Pk., and Jacqueline Paige Hudgins of Play Meadows Dr., collided about 5 p.m. at the intersection of Greene Street and Play Meadows Drive, causing an estimated $600 damage to the Greene car and $200 damage to the Hudgins vehicle.

Officers, who reported Greene was injured in the collision, charged Mrs. Hudgins with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

A 2:55 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Truman Street involved vehicles operated by Rubin Vernon Bunting of Route 5, Greenville and Emmitt Junior Napier of 207 Allendale Dr.

Investigators set damage from the collision at $300 to the Bunting truck and $10 to the Napier car.

der McConnell and the defendant's wife, Linda, were among the spectators.

"This entire situation has weighed very, very heavily on me," said the defendant. "What I'm most sorry for is a very fine family, and this entire situation has really punished them very much more than I."

"I am extremely sorry for the sadness and so forth I've caused them, and all my friends and fellow lawyers back in Raleigh."

Another defense lawyer, Roger Smith, commented that "this has been the talk of the town now for seven months."

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday were steady, according to Louis Williams, Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Several sheets of top cutter grades sold for as high as $1.75 a pound. Top practical price was $1.65 a pound. Less desirable grades were in less demand than in the previous week. Volume continues to consist of mostly nondescript and leaf grades.

The market sold 750,595 pounds for $889,483 for an average of $118.50 per hundred pounds. To date the market has sold 19,583,173 pounds for $23,111,623, for a season's average of $118.02.

Judge's Son Is Sentenced

NEW YORK (AP) — A Raleigh, N.C., attorney was sentenced to a year and a day in prison on a perjury charge while his father, a North Carolina Superior Court judge, looked on.

The sentence was handed down in U.S. District Court in Manhattan against John D. McConnell Jr. for lying during a major narcotics trial here in December 1975.

The trial ended in the acquittal of Frank Lucas, 47, of Teaneck, N.J., and others on charges of importing narcotics from Thailand, but Lucas is now serving 30- and 40-year sentences on two other convictions.

The 37-year-old attorney originally was charged with 34 counts of perjury before grand juries here and in North Carolina and during the Lucas trial.

He originally denied the charges, but last Feb. 3 — according to records sealed until this week — McConnell pleaded guilty to four counts of perjury, saying he had lied while testifying as a reluctant defense witness.

The questions to which he admitted giving false answers involved jet flights to Grand Cayman Island in the British West Indies, arranging flights for others, stays at a hotel there and who occupied a plane during a November 1974 flight.

As McConnell stood before District Judge Lee Gagliardi, his attorney, Stephen Peskin, announced that "John is here to take his medicine." The el-

Holshouser For Succession Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Jim Holshouser says he doesn't think Gov. Jim Hunt would win another election even if the people give him the right to try. Holshouser is stumping for passage in November of a proposed constitutional amendment that would give Hunt and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green the right to succeed themselves.

There are signs Republican sentiment is running strongly against the amendment, primarily because it might mean Hunt would seek and win another term, but Holshouser says that's a short-sighted view. And pointlessly, he adds.

"Frankly, if I had to bet my bottom buck today, I would bet that Gov. Jim Hunt won't be governor in 1981," Holshouser said during an informal session with newsmen.

Holshouser said it's the principle of the thing that is important. Holshouser tried to get a succession measure through the 1973 legislature but failed.

The former governor said that "a variety of factors" are likely to keep Hunt from winning another election. Identification with the succession issue itself might be one. Another, he said, might be "a certain amount of unrest within the Democratic party, how he's performed."

But Holshouser insists none of that should matter, because the right to elect governors to two terms will mean better government.

"I think the state would be better represented at the national level with a governor who has seniority," he said.

Holshouser said the state bureaucracy would be more efficient as well, since it is unresponsive for about six months of a new term and for the final year.

"You've got just about a year and a half out of every four when they are standing still," he said.

The former governor cited a number of other factors including the need to give the governor more power to balance a too-powerful legislature.

"I just frankly believe we've trusted the people nearly enough," he said. "What we're talking about is giving the people a choice and right now they don't have any choice."

Haiti's per capita income rose from $74 a year in 1972 to approximately $200 a year in 1976.

Not Affecting The Lost Sea

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer
SWEETWATER, Tenn. (AP) — America's worst drought in decades has not affected the world's largest known underground lake, the Lost Sea.

"It's unbelievable," advertising manager Joe Grant said. "It hasn't rained here in three or four weeks, but the water level hasn't dropped any. In fact, we've had to pump water out."

Lost Sea, mentioned in the Guinness Book of World Records, is a 4.5-acre lake about 300 feet underground discovered 70 years ago at the end of Craighead Caverns.

"Ben Sands, who was 13 years old at the time, crawled through a 30-inch opening of mud and water in 1905," Grant said. "He used to tell us that he made a bunch of mudballs in the dark and threw them out as far as he could. All he could hear was splashes in every direction."

Two decades ago, that crevice was blasted out. Now Lost Sea, Inc., is an Eastern Tennessee tourist attraction drawing about 130,000 persons a year from the interstate between Knoxville and Chattanooga.

After a long walk down a picturesque cave, tour groups find a vast, murky room with a 40-foot dome ceiling. Boats take the tourists around the dimly lit lake, which is about 800 feet long by 200 feet wide. It's stocked with rainbow trout, which are fed by guides. The lake ranges to 55 feet deep, except for a hole divers tried to explore two years ago.

"They found an underwater cave beneath the Lost Sea which is bigger than the cave you walked through," Grant told a reporter. "They went another 800 feet and never found the end of the cave. Before they turned around, they measured that last room — it was 95 feet from floor to ceiling and they have no idea how wide it was."

Grant said the divers estimated the subterranean cave contained twice as much water as the Lost Sea itself.

The level of the spring-fed lake rises after heavy rains and fluctuates about 15 feet between the dry summer and the wet spring.

Two pumps, which can handle 900 gallons of water a minute, keep the water from rising too high.

"And even in the middle of this drought," Grant said, "we've been pumping water out six to eight hours a week."

Happy Ending To This Crisis

Some crises turn out happily. And that is the story from North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount.

Just two years ago, the private institution had its back to the wall financially. It was appealing to the state to take it over as a part of the university system. When it developed that this was not feasible supporters of the college went to work. The Rocky Mount community, Eastern North Carolina supporters and the United Methodist Church raised $1.5 million in cash and pledges for operation of the college over the next three years.

Money, however, wasn't the only thing needed. The school needed more students if it was to survive. Last week Trustee Chairman J. Phil Carlton announced that enrollment had increased. In fact, the college set a record in enrollment this fall with 665 students. This was an increase of 20.9 percent over the 550 enrolled last fall.

Carlton said that the college's financial situation is much brighter.

"While we are not yet out of the woods, as few small colleges are, we have taken great strides forward," he said. "We are on the move again and we intend to stay on course."

At the time of N.C. Wesleyan's dire crisis we didn't feel that the state needed another university campus. But we felt then and now that there was a very great need for continuation of the college as a private church-related institution.

Fortunately, supporters have rallied around to provide the financial aid needed for N.C. Wesleyan. And the record enrollment of this fall is proof enough that there are plenty of young people who need the specialized service that North Carolina Wesleyan provides.

Energy Numbers Game

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Despite the obvious desirability of governmental programs to promote the conservation of energy the whole question of how much could be saved is becoming a confusing numbers game to the consumer.

North Carolina's energy program recently launched with much public fanfare an effort called, "Project Conserve."

It is, the agency noted, a "multi-faceted energy conservation program which seeks to cut projected 1980 energy consumption in the state's residential sector by over 10 trillion BTU's."

Parenthetically, the energy division chief, Brian Flattery, noted that this would amount to a $60 million savings for Tar Heel consumers if accomplished for full impact during the year 1980.

Just how much is 10 trillion BTU's? And what are the realistic prospects of such a tremendous energy savings in North Carolina?

Confusion

and reality part ways in governmental programs.

There are, in North Carolina, about 1.7 million households. But energy officials base projections on single-family homes alone, in which they report, 23 percent of the total North Carolina energy supply is consumed. There are about one million single-family homes.

If, as projected for 1980, between 20 and 40 percent of the energy consumed in those homes were saved, it would obviously mean that the savings would be the equivalent to the total energy requirements of between 200,000 and 400,000 single-family homes.

And if, as again projected, the participation rate reaches a hoped for 20 percent of the one million homeowners (200,000 participants) reaching for anticipated savings of $60 million, then each participant would have to save $300 in power bills, and to reach 10 trillion BTU's would have to save five million BTU's of energy—both statistically improbable happenings.

Total savings, say state officials, are based upon applying a total array of techniques from insulation and storm windows, to lowered water heater settings, thermostat control, caulking and weather-stripping.

BILL NOBLITT

A Factor

Flattery, a former engineering professor at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, takes exception to the idea that the entire projection method overlooks a critical factor: that owner-occupied, single-family homes or recent vintage already are reasonably well insulated, and the occupants are fairly well educated to the need for energy conservation.

This leaves the bulk of insulated homes in the category of rural or inner-city frame buildings lacking underpinning or other modern building techniques. "I don't believe that is a valid assumption. . . we still think that the energy for heating and cooling single family homes in this state can be cut to 20 to 40 percent through proper use of the various techniques available, and from installing insulation," Flattery responds.

The Project Conserve effort is being paid for by $450,000 in Federal Energy Administration funds. State utilities companies are paying for the questionnaire to be sent homeowners in which they can describe home circumstances and get back in two or three weeks a computer printout showing what conservation steps should be taken, the cost of each, and potential savings. The state will supply the response.

State officials say they are geared up to handle from 75,000 to 100,000 inquiries through this campaign. An incoming telephone hot line is also available for citizens wanting to ask questions or seek further help in saving energy.

A Best Friend Needed

WASHINGTON—The thing that struck me as President Carter announced Bert Lance's resignation last week was when he said that he was losing his best friend.

Everyone at the White House admits that Bert Lance had a special rapport with the President, and that he was the only person who could tell Mr. Carter when he was wrong or off the track. This role in the White House is not to be underestimated.

It is so important that I believe before we find a new head of the OMB, we must find President Carter a new best friend.

This country can afford to go along without somebody managing its budget, but it cannot allow the President of the United States to sit in the White House without a best friend for one more day than is absolutely necessary.

I would go one step further and say a new position in the White House should be created entitled, "The President's Best Friend." The person filling the position would have as his only function to be Mr. Carter's confidant and bosom buddy.

This would avoid any conflict of interest with another job in the Administration. More importantly, the person holding it would not have to undergo the scrutiny and heat that Mr. Lance was subjected to, because he also was head of the Office of Management and Budget.

Since "The President's Best Friend" would be on the White House staff, he would not need Senate confirmation. And, while he would be expected to maintain the high moral standards Mr. Carter has set for all his people, he would not have to dispose of his stock or reveal his personal finances to the public.

He would have to answer to no one on The Hill as to what he did before he came into the Administration, nor would he have to reveal how much money he had in the bank, or owed banks, whichever the case might be.

Neither the FBI nor the IRS would have to be consulted as to whether he was qualified to be "The President's Best Friend," because only a President would know that.

I think that the search for a new best friend for the President should begin immediately.

It is my opinion that, from

40 Years Ago Today

September 28, 1937
"Freshman Week" at East Carolina Teachers College began when President L. R. Meadows gave a cordial welcome to the throng of freshmen who had been arriving since Sunday.

The students gathered in the Robert H. Wright building at 2:30 for their first formal meeting.

In his address, President Meadows welcomed the freshmen to the town of Greenville, to the campus and its privileges, to the body of students they would become a part of, and to the opportunities lying before them for sound work and preparation for special service in life.

President Roosevelt, reviewing his power objectives at the newly completed federal Bonneville Dam in Oregon, advocated the "widest possible" use of electricity and forecast "wider geographical distribution" of population as a result of such use.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Is Carter Future Target?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Minutes after the President glanced at his watch and cut off the inquisitorial flood of questions at Wednesday evening's press conference, a politically astute aide commented that the press, having disposed of Bert Lance, had a new target: Jimmy Carter.

If so, it is a weakened Jimmy Carter. After violating his impossibly high ethical standards by sticking with Lance so long, he cut him loose just as Lance was gaining popular support. Besides managing to get the worst of both worlds in the Lance affair, the President has strengthened the widespread impression that even his most strongly held convictions are susceptible to change under pressure.

Thus, the end of the Lance affair opens the first serious time of troubles for the Carter presidency. Economic omens are grim, the Senate is ripping the President's energy program to shreds and foreign policy is becalmed. At such a point, Mr. Carter scarcely needs the capital's remorseless corps of investigative reporters trying to prove a presidential cover-up on Lance.

The last days of Lance's tenure as budget director reflect the mood of presidential vulnerability that is now at the heart of Mr. Carter's problems. The President is described as shifting back and forth last weekend on the question of whether his closest friend and adviser should go.

As late as Monday, Lance himself seemed optimistic and determined to fight it out. What worried Lance even more than continued sniping from media and congressional critics was his personal financial squeeze—especially how to pay the October interest on his huge Chicago bank loan.

But Lance is politically sensitive enough to perceive the climate at the White House. Although his opening statement to the Senate committee Sept. 15 encouraged some presidential aides to think Lance might yet be saved, the cross-examination of Sept. 16 and 17 extinguished all hope. Whatever Mr. Carter's vacillations, everybody else at the White House was convinced Lance had to go as the week of Sept. 19 began.

But the Senate hearings, while invaluable for public restoration of Lance's self-respect, made Mr. Carter's position more difficult. One presidential adviser told Mr. Carter during the first week of September that holding onto Lance was political suicide. Two weeks later he determined that a public backlash against the press and Congress was building rapidly.

Given that powerful backlash, Lance's resignation was not universally applauded—especially among some businessmen who judged the affair more from the standpoint of presidential backbone than Lance's offenses. "I think we learned today," one Wall Streeter told us shortly after Wednesday's press conference, "how much Carter would protect one of us if we came down to Washington."

The fact that Lance was forced out not because the President agreed with charges of his unfitness for office, but because of political pressure, also buttressed this widespread feeling: Jimmy Carter can be taken into camp by the application of pressure. The vulnerable Lance may not be the best example, but it follows presidential retreats from firm positions on the tax rebate, SALT, the Middle East and welfare reform.

Yet, the end of Lance did not win back for Mr. Carter while admirers who felt his support for Lance repudiated lofty ethical goals (notwithstanding the President's pious language in Wednesday's press conference).

To the editor:

In reading the letters and articles in your newspaper regarding the planned Ayden-Grifton Middle School, I have been interested in the different viewpoints.

It seems the School officials are in favor of the Grifton and Ayden Schools being merged. Most of the Grifton parents would like to keep their school in Grifton. Would someone explain exactly the benefits to be derived from combining these schools? Since land need for building a school is very expensive and buildings are expensive, too, the taxpayers should be told what advantages children of the age attending a middle school would find in such a school. This seems especially important since the Grifton people say they have a good school there in Grifton now.

While a school building is important, even more important is a good teacher. When will we see more written about the teacher and the child and less about buildings? How much attention is given to getting and keeping good teachers? How much concern is there about the many reports teachers are required to make and the many meetings they have to attend? Couldn't this time be better spent—or much of it—in a way to help the children?

If there are advantages to be expected from this planned Ayden-Grifton Middle School, shouldn't parents and taxpayers know exactly what these advantages are. If there are disadvantages, shouldn't they know these, too?

Plastic Bottle Is Not Banned

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You might have thought plastic beverage bottles were banned this month by the Food and Drug Administration because their ingredients of the plastic might be linked to cancerous lesions.

You are wrong. Industry sources expect about a quarter billion of them to be on store shelves by the end of the year, and estimate that two years from now the figure will be more than two billion.

The explanation lies in the plastic. The FDA on Sept. 20 banned acrylonitrile, but it said nothing about polyester. The latter has a different chemical makeup, while presenting no different appearance to the untrained eye.

The FDA decision means that acrylonitrile bottles must be off the market by the end of the year, although spokesmen for that agency say all such bottles may already have been removed from circulation.

That might be the end of one scene, but it's where the play really gets interesting—where a cast of characters interfaces: Coca-Cola, Pepsi-Cola, chemical companies, a big tire concern, the liquor and textile industries, environmentalists, the stock market and, as they say, many, many more.

The curtain lifts with the soft drink companies seeking a safe, shatterproof, easily recyclable bottle. At first, failure; the economics weren't favorable. Then the trend to larger, "family size" bottles made plastics feasible.

Pepsi-Cola chose polyester. Coca-Cola chose acrylonitrile. Pepsi won, you might say, while Coke lost. Pepsi already has introduced its product in 11 states. Coca-Cola shares fell a half-point immediately after the decision.

With what some industry sources say was amazing speed, Coca-Cola adjusted to the new situation and now plans to introduce its own polyester bottle October 3 and that's where the big tire company rolls on stage.

Goodyear has been reinforcing its tires with polyester cord since 1963, and for even longer has been making the resin for those boilable vegetable, pouches you might have used. It is the pre-eminent polyester resin maker, supplying Amoco Chemical, Continental Can and Owens-Illinois.

Without stressing the obvious, let it be said that Goodyear was very happy to accept the new business. The textile industry, you see, is said to be awash in some synthetic fibers, mainly polyester. A new market was welcome.

Meanwhile, other liquid products manufacturers have become interested. Goodyear says a great deal of interest has been expressed by the liquor industry. Same with beer companies, although FDA clearance has not yet been forthcoming.

The environmentalists during this time have been standing just behind the curtains, observing it all but as yet not offering any conclusive judgments. The polyester bottle, they note with suspicion, is a throwaway. Throwaways litter.

Goodyear says that won't be so. The 32-ounce and 64-ounce bottles for which polyester is being used aren't the kind you purchase along the roadside, it says. And, it stresses, they're recyclable.

Lest you not understand the significance of that, Thomas Minter, Goodyear executive vice president (research and development), intones these unforgettable lines:

"The polyester bottle you drink from today could be the pants you wear tomorrow."

A show-stealer, he will not be stopped: "Just 12 half-gallon bottles could provide enough fabric for a pair of pants. Add 18 more and you've got a vest and jacket to match."

Including production costs, he continues, recycled polyester is considerably less expensive than the virgin material. But why recycle at all — why not affix a deposit charge to the purchase and have the bottles returned?

Out of the question, he replies. The purification process demands reheating, and when you reheat a polyester bottle it loses its shape.

And so, for the time being, the polyester curtain falls. But there might be more. Monsanto, which makes acrylonitrile, declares the FDA decision "unwarranted." And that could mean a courtroom scene to follow.

Strength For Today

THE FALLING GIANT

"Timber!" We hear the cry in movie and television productions as the great tree starts slowly to fall. Then it hits the ground with a noise like a dozen thunderbolts.

But in its fall the giant has taken down many other trees. It has crushed shrubbery over a wide area. Little trees that a short time before were hopefully pushing their tiny crowns up toward the sun are now broken and will be utterly decayed in a few months.

Like the falling tree, every time we do evil we not only hurt ourselves, but others also. For example, when a great man, the incumbent of some high position, plunges down from his pinnacle of influence, he crushes many others in his fall.

Although we may not be in high positions of influence, we should remember that no person falls into disgrace without dragging others with him. Family, friends — someone will be hurt, and perhaps fatally.

—by Elisha Douglass

what we know about President Carter, we should start looking for someone who comes from the South, preferably a small town in Georgia. He doesn't necessarily have to be a banker, but he should be a successful businessman. He must have an impeccable family relationship, be a non-drinker and a good storyteller. He should be gregarious, while at the same time firm when he believes Mr. Carter is wrong. He should also be able to play tennis and softball and know something about the peanut business.

It wouldn't be hard to find such a person to fill the job. I know thousands of people who would like to be the President's best friend. Many of them could be persuaded to come to Washington, at great sacrifice to themselves, for the opportunity to chew the fat with Mr. Carter whenever he needed someone to talk to.

While the White House could set up a "Best Friend Search Committee," the final decision would be left solely to the President after his staff presented him with a list of likely candidates.

To safeguard himself against another Lance affair, I believe that, besides appointing his "Best Friend," Mr. Carter should also have the authority to designate a "Deputy Best Friend." Then if anything happens to his best friend, the President would have another one to fall back on.

President Kennedy and Johnson had many best friends. Nixon had only one—Bebe Rebozo. At the moment President Carter has none. Unless this situation is rectified immediately, the country could come to a standstill.

While the search is on I am sending President Carter a copy of "How To Be Your Own Best Friend." It isn't the same as having Bert Lance, but hopefully it will fill the gap.

mighty happy." Actually, Yelton, who is in his 70s himself, may be jumping the gun a bit. The bill passed the House 305-4, but it must still clear the Senate. But Yelton says he's not too worried about that.

"I think it's got a good chance," he said. "I understand through the grapevine the chances are real good. They've got some senior citizens in the Senate, you know."

Mandatory retirement is one of Yelton's principal rallying cries on behalf of senior citizens, and one of the first things he did upon taking over the division earlier this year was to draft a bill for the General Assembly raising the age limit for state employees from 65 to 70.

The bill was introduced in both the House and Senate and referred to committee, where it remained until the legislature adjourned.

Yelton isn't sure whether the bill is eligible for consideration in the brief spring session next year or not, but he is trying to get it moving.

"I don't know if we can do it in May or not, but we're going to try," Yelton said. "I don't think there's any doubt but what the action in Congress will make our job easier here."

If the retirement bill isn't eligible for consideration in May, Yelton said he would add it to his legislative program for the next General Assembly.

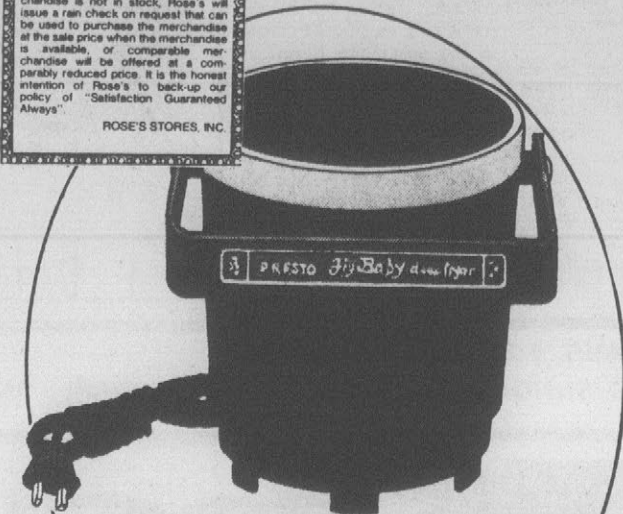

That program will also contain other bills left over from the last session, including a measure that would make it easier for elderly persons to get excused from jury duty if health or other circumstances made serving difficult and another that would repeal the state law that forbids competitive advertising for eye-glass frames.

Zenith Radio Corp. To Move Key Operations Out Of U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — Zenith Radio Corp., which claims to rely on American parts and labor more than any other major television maker, is moving key operations to Mexico and Taiwan and eventually eliminating one-fourth of its U.S. workforce.

Chairman John Nevin said Tuesday the firm was forced to take the action because of foreign competition.

The announcement comes a week after Youngstown Steel Co. announced the layoff of 5,000 workers in Ohio, in part because of competition from overseas manufacturers.

Nevin said he believed Zenith "has tried longer and has tried harder than others to protect the jobs of its U.S. employees."

"It is now clear, however, that competitive manufacturers are obtaining increasingly significant cost advantages from production activities in lower labor cost areas of the world."

Nevin said the firm would transfer much of its television module board and chassis assembly operations to plants in Mexico and Taiwan. The move is expected to cost 3,500 American jobs by next year. Another 1,500 would be eliminated through the purchase of imported stereo products.

The move will mean the almost immediate firing of 600 middle-management, research and engineering personnel, mainly in the Chicago area. It also will force the eventual layoff of some 5,000 hourly workers at plants in Chicago, Paris, Ill., Springfield, Mo., Sioux City, Iowa, and Watertown, Pa.

Zenith currently employs about 21,000 hourly workers in the United States and 3,000 overseas.

Leaders of the Independent Radionics Workers of America, which represents Zenith's hourly employees, were unavailable for comment.

Zenith's stock on the New York Stock Exchange dropped 1/4 point to 14 1/2 Tuesday when news of the staff reduction was announced.

Zenith's profits fell 11 percent during the first six months of the year, and Nevin announced in August that the firm would give increased sales promotion allowances to its distributors. At the time, Nevin said the allowances would cut third-quarter profits, although he expected the company to show a profit for the year overall.

Falls are responsible for the deaths of more people aged 75 and over than in all other age groups combined, says the National Safety Council.

Company-Owned Town Is Ruled In Violation

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer
PRINCE CROSSING FARM, Ill. (AP) — For years Campbell Soup Co. enforced a disciplinary code for migrant workers on its mushroom farm here and provided them with nearly every service expected of a town government.

A recent federal court ruling may force some changes on the 201-acre Du Page farm some 35 miles west of Chicago.

Judge George N. Leighton ruled that Campbell had violated the workers' First Amendment guarantees. He said he would decide within the next few days whether to put his order into effect.

Graham Sudbury, a Campbell spokesman, said Tuesday the ruling was being appealed and the company could not comment directly while the case was pending.

He said, however, the company "does not infringe on the personal liberties of employees of Prince Crossing Mushroom Farm in any manner." There are, he said, "certain limitations on visits by nonemployees for security, safety and other reasons."

Sudbury said the company will review its visitors' policy.

In 1974, the Illinois Migrant Council filed suit after its workers were turned away from the camp and threatened with arrest when they arrived to explain vocational and educational programs which are funded under federal law.

Leighton originally dismissed the case but it was returned to him on appeal.

Last week, the judge ruled that Campbell's policy "had the effect of prohibiting political canvassing, political campaigning, communications concerning day-care programs, adult basic education, medical services and dissemination of information by federal government employees about vocational training."

He rejected the company's claim that the farm was private property. He said Campbell provided "the common amenities found in any municipality," including a cafeteria, dormitories and housing units, recreation facilities, water, heat and garbage collection.

"More important is the fact that the company enforces a disciplinary code in Prince Crossing, and metes out penalties through a system it administers," he said.

Sudbury said the company gives workers "freedom of choice" to live at the farm and those who choose not to are given a wage differential. He said 88 workers live on the farm and 49 live elsewhere.

Evans-Novak...

The press corps, with Bert Lance's scalp in hand, is determined to pin down the President on Lance's ethics.

The problem is put concisely by one intimate of Lance: "The President made the fatal error of grabbing both horns of the dilemma. A professional chooses one horn. To do otherwise is the sign of the amateur."

Being branded the amateur is not what Mr. Carter needs today. Apart from the intractable deadlocks of foreign affairs, his authority is being challenged by Congress on a broad front of issues (most flagrantly the energy bill in the Senate), and the slumping economy almost surely will generate efforts to send federal spending through the roof.

The one note of optimism inside a morose White House is the feeling that the pro-Lance backlash will be directed at the press, hampering its efforts to impale the President. In fact, one Carter insider predicts the President himself will take off against the press in due course. It is not a happy formula for a President trying to work his way out of the first time of troubles.

BES-PAK INTRODUCES DEGRADABLE PLASTIC

NEW STRONG TRASH BAGS THAT CAN HELP YOU PROTECT NATURE FROM POLLUTION.

Strong. Dependable. Good for big, heavy loads. That's the way Bes-Pak® has always made trash bags. And now Bes-Pak has added a special ingredient to the plastic that helps it degrade.

Here's how it works:

Use the bags. Put them outdoors as usual. When the plastic has been exposed to prolonged sunlight of sufficient intensity (in your yard or at the dump), a gradual chemical change will begin.

And a few weeks or months later, the plastic will break down and turn back into harmless natural elements. Even if it's buried in landfill.

Another nice thing. Bes-Pak Bags don't cost more than other leading brands. Usually a little less.

So now when you get rid of your trash, you can help get rid of an environmental problem, too. Look for the boxes with the Bes-Pak seal.

Offers In-Depth Honolulu Tour

By HOLLY KURTZ
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — You'll see the usual sights like the capitol and Waikiki Beach in a ride on the tour bus with Andrew Lind. The same ticket buys passes through parts of Honolulu less popular with tourists.

Lind, a retired college professor, says he doesn't regard himself as a tour conductor, but his bus trips are standing room only.

The 75-year-old Lind taught sociology at the University of Hawaii for 50 years. He conducts his "sociological tour of Honolulu" aboard an air-conditioned bus.

"A sociological tour means those who do go have a deeper interest in the community," said Lind. "The tourist might be intrigued by the interracial character of the city and he or she may get further insight into what that involves."

The bus snakes through Honolulu's back streets and seamy alleys and crawls up the narrow mountain roads with Lind pointing out sights in a changing city. Wealthy and poor neighborhoods are side-by-side and high-rise buildings sprout in areas that were cane fields not long ago.

The passengers are usually a mix of tourists and local residents. Lind said many who sign up are retired school teachers who have never been off the beaten track. He said the journey is an outgrowth of his teaching days when he led students on the same tour.

Social changes are noted frequently by the tourmaster. As the bus passes a country club, Lind tells passengers it used to be for whites only. The bus continues through a well-to-do section of Honolulu which Lind says once had the reputation of being very rich and conservative.

But World War II brought many changes, Lind says. He says many older residents of Honolulu sold their property and moved to the Mainland. Nonwhites then bought the land and many large estates were subdivided and leased for residential development.

The physical and social changes are continuing. As a sociologist, Lind says he hesitates to judge whether the changes, particularly the physical ones, are for the better.

But as a resident of Honolulu for a half-century, he does offer a comment: "There are many aspects of the development and changes that I regret. We've suffered a loss in terms of a friendly atmosphere of the community."

Jury Chosen To Try Boy

By RICK SPATLING
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — The defense has lost an early battle to introduce questions on television violence in the murder trial of Ronald Zamora, the 15-year-old portrayed as an addict of TV crime shows.

A jury of nine men and three women was seated late Tuesday after two days of questioning during which defense lawyer Ellis Rubin was prevented several times from asking prospective jurors about their TV viewing habits.

Zamora's defense on charges that he and another teen-ager killed an elderly woman during a robbery is that he suffered "insanity induced by too much television."

Television and still photographers are being allowed to cover the trial under a 2-month-old Florida State Supreme Court experiment that expires next year.

Zamora was arrested last June. Police said he and Darrell Agrella, 14, broke into the Miami Beach home next to Zamora's where Elinor Haggart, 83, lived alone.

The home was ransacked, more than $400 was stolen and Mrs. Haggart was shot with her own .32-caliber pistol, police said. They said Zamora rounded up some friends for a trip to Disney World, using the dead woman's car and money.

Both boys were charged as adults with first-degree murder. Agrella's trial is to be held next month.

The TV insanity defense, the courtroom TV experiment and the possibility that Telly Savalas, star of the TV show "Kojak" may appear at the trial have drawn a large press corps.

Savalas is to appear next week for a deposition and, possibly, court testimony. The defense has said "Kojak" was one of Zamora's favorite shows, and may have contributed to his alleged insanity.

Still No Payoff On Seized Land

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A century after the Indian victory at "Custer's last stand" infuriated Congress, legislators are still refusing to compensate the descendants of the Sioux Nation for their confiscated land.

A bill that would have allowed the Sioux to avoid a legal technicality and get a hearing on their claim to compensation was defeated Tuesday by the House, 239 to 173.

"This land was absolutely stolen from these Indians. It is a rank, double-dealing thing that our nation did," said Rep. James P. Johnson, R-Colo.

He was referring to an 1877 law that took 7.3 million acres in South Dakota's Black Hills from the Sioux. Congress approved the seizure after word reached Washington that Gen. George A. Custer's force had been wiped out at Little Bighorn.

The House Interior Committee, in a report on the bill defeated Tuesday, said the government precipitated the battle by declaring the Sioux "hostiles" who could be shot on sight off the reservation.

Custer's search for "hostiles" led to the Montana massacre. The committee report said the Indians were hunting in the Little Bighorn River Valley when Custer's 650 men marched on them.

The Indians had no way to survive except to hunt, the committee said, because the government had refused to supply them food.

Some 225 men and officers were killed when a force of at least 1,500 swooped down on them.

In recent years, the Sioux Nation has sought compensation for its land, but has been stopped by the legal principle of "res judicata." This Latin term means that once a case has been decided, it is final.

The U.S. Court of Claims, reviewing the 1877 congressional action, said in 1975 that, "a more ripe and rank case of dishonorable dealings will never, in all probability, be found in our history."

Jet's Crash Kills 2 Boys

TOKYO (AP) — Two little Japanese boys died today of burns received when a U.S. Marine Phantom jet crashed into their home in a residential area outside Yokohama Tuesday.

The boys' mother and an aunt were among seven other Japanese injured in the crash, which destroyed two houses.

The plane's two crewmen, Capt. J.E. Miller of Mendota, Ill., and Lt. D. L. Durbin of Natchitoches, La., parachuted before the crash and were not hurt, a military spokesman reported.

The spokesman said the plane crashed shortly after taking off from Atsugi Air Station west of Tokyo. It was going to the carrier Midway, which was outside Tokyo bay.

The crash brought strong protests from Mayor Ichio Asukata of Yokohama and Gov. Kazuji Nagasu of Kanagawa prefecture, in which the air station is located.

U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield sent Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda a letter expressing the U.S. government's regret because of the crash. He also called on Vice Foreign Minister Keisuke Arita to convey his personal condolences.

Mansfield's letter assured Fukuda that the crash would be investigated and the victims compensated.

Indict Businessman As Conspirator

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury is accusing a Washington businessman of conspiring with the Korean Central Intelligence Agency to buy influence from congressmen and government officials.

The grand jury issued an indictment Tuesday of Korean-born cosmetics manufacturer Hancho C. Kim, charging that he conspired to defraud the United States and that he made a false declaration to the grand jury.

Later, a second grand jury in Baltimore indicted Kim on a charge of income tax evasion. Each of the three charges carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a maximum $10,000 fine.

The conspiracy indictment was the second in the grand jury's investigation of alleged South Korean efforts to buy influence in Congress and for the first time accused the KCIA of direct involvement in the effort.

Earlier, the grand jury indicted Korean rice dealer Tong-sun Park on 36 charges. Park, indicted in absentia, was accused of bribery and with acting as a foreign agent to buy influence in Congress with cash, gifts and parties.

Park is in South Korea and is fighting Justice Department efforts to return him to the United States.

Meanwhile, Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., confirmed reports Tuesday night that a KCIA agent named Sohn Young Ho has defected and is in the custody of U.S. marshals. Fraser said Sohn is cooperating with the House subcommittee on international organizations in its investigation of alleged Korean efforts to influence U.S. foreign policy.

The New York Times identified Sohn as the KCIA agent in charge of New York area operations and said he was accredited as a Korean consular official in New York.

In its indictment Tuesday, the grand jury said the KCIA delivered $600,000 to Kim's home to finance the influence-buying scheme from Aug. 15, 1974, until April of 1976.

It said Kim and a KCIA agent with the Korean embassy, Kim Sang Keun, sent more than 141 Telex messages from Kim's suburban Washington home to KCIA headquarters in Seoul to report progress.

The grand jury said Hancho Kim also got instructions from an assistant to the director of the KCIA in Seoul, Gen. Yang Doo Wan, who is also known as Lee Sang Ho.

The grand jury named Kim Sang Keun and Yang Doo Wan as unindicted co-conspirators. Kim Sang Keun, at one time the No. 2 KCIA agent attached to the South Korean Embassy in Washington, defected and cooperated with investigators. He previously was reported to have told the grand jury that he personally delivered the $600,000 to Hancho Kim. The new indictment charges that the KCIA money Hancho Kim got was "for the purpose of distributing the money to members of the Congress." However, no congressmen are named in the indictment.

The indictment does say he entertained two unnamed congressmen at a dinner at an expensive restaurant in Washington and at his home.

KKK Remnants Marching Into Courts

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The remnants of the Ku Klux Klan are on the march again, their battleground shifting from the streets to the courts, says the reigning head of the United Klans of America, Imperial Wizard Robert M. "Bobby" Shelton says the KKK is becoming more aggressive and "more visible" not only in the streets but in the courts.

By "moving more into the arena of the courts," says Shelton, the Klan is following the example of minorities. "If the courts can give power to minorities," he observes, "we have rights in court, too."

Despite the shift in strategy, Klan marches in recent months have touched off racial violence even though Klan leaders, in some instances, said their protests were aimed at nonracial issues.

For example, in Mobile last Saturday a group of about 100 Klansmen paraded downtown carrying signs denouncing the state's prison work release program which allows convicts to take outside jobs prior to release.

The white-robed marchers drew jeers from black bystanders, who drowned out the Klan's speakers with songs and "freedom" chants.

This Saturday other Klansmen plan to parade through downtown Montgomery to protest the Panama Canal treaty. Their request for a parade permit was supported by Luther Oliver, one of four blacks on the nine-member City Council.

Oliver, declaring himself a strong believer in the constitutional right of free speech, even offered to sponsor the permit if requested.

One official who has little sympathy for the Klan is Alabama Atty. Gen. Bill Baxley, who calls the Klan "a small group of misfits, outlaws" who are "more vocal than numerous."

Baxley, a probable candidate for governor next year, began last February investigating what apparently were racially motivated bombings in Alabama in the mid and early 1960s.

That investigation resulted this week in the indictment of 73-year old Robert Edward Chambliss on murder charges in the 1973 church bombing that claimed the lives of four young black girls.

Clashes with the "more visible" Klan have not been confined to the south, although a Klan parade past the Florida state capitol in Tallahassee last Feb. 19 ended with several marchers being struck by rocks thrown from the crowd.

And there were a number of cross burnings in several Florida cities on one weekend last March, prompting KKK officials to warn that such activities could hamper a membership drive.

But at Columbus, Ohio, hooded marchers and anti-Klan demonstrators clashed at anti-busing rallies on July 4 and again on Labor Day. No one was seriously injured, however.

The busing issue is one in which the Klan finds itself allied with some blacks. Shelton says that in combatting busing, "we're even offering our legal services to blacks."

The Klan wizard says some black parents have indicated a willingness to accept the offer, "but the NAACP and other organizations scared them off."

One area in which the Klan has moved into the courts to fight busing is Louisville, Ky., where Shelton says petitions will be filed to let students attend the schools of their choice.

The Klan has already lost one court battle in Louisville. In 167 petitions filed there, the KKK contended that students were being held in "involuntary servitude" under a federal court busing order.

The petitions sought the children's "release." But U.S. Dist. Judge James Gordon ruled that it is the state attendance law, not the federal court order, which requires the children to go to school.

Dispute Future Nuclear Plant

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Hearings continue today before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on the proposed $4.2 billion Shearon Harris nuclear power plant which Carolina Power & Light wants to build in Wake County.

Nuclear physicist Amory Lovins contended in testimony Tuesday that the plant would be dangerous and too expensive. The money should be spent instead, he said, on development of more fossil fuels and solar energy.

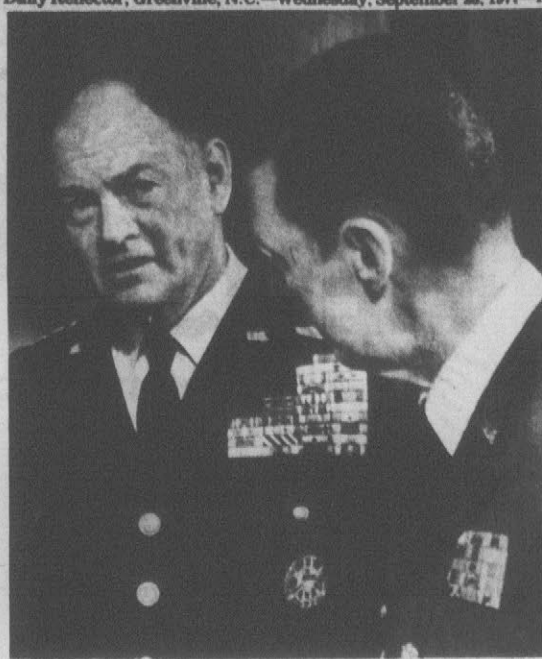

CP&L officials disputed Lovins' claims. The hearings continue through the first week of next month.

Fifteen Form

A New Church

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — About 15 dissident Episcopalians have formed a new church in Chapel Hill and named it the Church of St. Thomas of Canterbury.

The group are unhappy with adoption by the Episcopal church of a new prayer book and acceptance of women as priests. They are part of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity, a coalition of similar churches.

McAuliffe, commander-in-chief, U.S. Southern Command, prior to hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Brown told the panel that militarily, "I can say with confidence the United States can handle any problem that comes up in the Panama Canal Zone." (AP Laserphoto)

River Cleanup Has A Deadline

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has until 1983 to clean up an estimated 3,100 polluted miles of streams and rivers, and there appears to be some doubt the state can finish the job on time.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 set the deadline; by 1983 people ought to be able to fish or swim anywhere they please.

But although the 3,100 miles sounds like a lot, water quality officials in North Carolina say the state is in better shape than a lot of others.

"Compared to other states of similar size and industrial agricultural activity, North Carolina is in fairly good shape," says Robert Van Tilburg, spokesman for the state Natural Resources Department.

Van Tilburg's agency is one of six that are involved in the cleanup effort on the dirty river stretches, actually only about 8 per cent of the state's waterways.

"Out of about 40,000 miles of streams and rivers, North Carolina has about 3,100 miles in need of attention," he says.

The most serious problems are created in centers of population and industry in the Piedmont, and Catawba River system is among the hardest hit, according to state water standards expert David Park.

Sugar Creek is symbolic of the problem. The creek flows to the Catawba on a path that takes it through Charlotte, where it catches 50 million gallons of sewage effluent each day, along with runoff from dirty streets, industrial and domestic wastes, chemicals, oils, pesticides and fertilizers.

Van Tilburg says there's no question that the technology exists to make North Carolina rivers safe for fishing and swimming. But he says it takes time to install the equipment, and he's not sure North Carolina will be able to meet the deadline.

Investigating Union Activity

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The Justice Department has confirmed it is probing possible embezzlement and loan sharking at branches of the International Longshoremen's Association in Wilmington and Morehead City.

The FBI and U.S. attorneys have been investigating union records, including expense accounts, for six months and have searched at least one business for evidence of a loan shark scheme linked to the union, the News and Observer of Raleigh reported today.

James F. Evans of the Justice Department's Miami, Fla., office said the North Carolina investigations were part of a national probe of "waterfront corruption."

Evans said indictments and convictions have already resulted in Houston, Tex., and Boston.

The records sought in the probe here date from 1971. The FBI obtained a search warrant last month to seize notebooks, checks and financial records of the Fifth Avenue Snack Bar in Wilmington, a business run by a former longshoreman, James Lee.

In an affidavit filed in Wilmington federal court, the FBI says Lee has loaned money to longshoremen at a weekly interest rate of 25 per cent and deducted payments from the debtors paychecks.

In a statement accompanying the affidavit, a union official said Lee had been picking up between 20 and 40 checks per week for four or five years.

Officials of three Wilmington banks said in another statement that Lee had been cashing 20 to 60 paychecks at a time, endorsed by dock workers.

A.L. Brinson, business agent for the union local in Morehead City, said the FBI had found nothing there. "In this local they gave us a clear bill of goods," he said.

Wins Mayoral Primary Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte Mayor Pro Tem Jim Whittington won the Democratic mayoral primary here Tuesday, defeating three other candidates by wide margins. Whittington, 54, is a partner in a funeral home.

Meanwhile in Winston-Salem, two of the three Democratic candidates finished close enough to require a runoff. They are Wayne Corpening, a bank vice president, and Carl H. Russell Sr.

House Firm On Abortion Policy

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees are trying to work out differences in an abortion measure that has threatened to tie up funds for two of the largest federal agencies.

A conference committee scheduled an afternoon session for today on the question of when tax money should pay for abortions after Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd was quoted as predicting a compromise within 48 hours of the session. On Tuesday, the House rejected a Senate proposal considerably more liberal than its own.

The House, voting 252 to 164, affirmed its position that federal funds should pay for abortions only when a woman's life is threatened by a full-term pregnancy.

A two-thirds House vote would have been needed to approve the Senate bill that the government pay for abortions in cases of rape, incest or medical necessity.

Senate conferees had made the vote a condition for further talks on the issue. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill on Tuesday quoted Byrd as predicting a compromise within two days of the renewed committee sessions.

The head of the Senate conferees, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said the Senate may now drop its stand that medically necessary abortions be paid for.

But he said the House would be expected to approve federal payments for abortions when a pregnancy-related disease threatened a woman's life or when there was a likelihood that a seriously ill or deformed child would be born.

The dispute is the only stumbling block left for a $60.2-billion appropriations bill to operate the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare for fiscal 1978.

Without congressional approval, the two agencies would run out of money Friday, the end of the fiscal year. A resolution to continue spending at present levels would then be needed for payrolls to be met.

The leader of the House conferees called the vote "an additional weapon in our arsenal."

Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., a vehement foe of expanding federal abortion financing, said the vote showed "the strength of the House in support of our position."

The vote came on a resolution by Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, instructing the House conferees to accept the Senate position. Stokes said he introduced the measure because most other members "wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole."

Most objections to the Senate language are based on a belief that the term "medical necessity" is broad enough to allow abortions under almost any conditions. The National Abortion Rights Action League called the House action "irresponsible, callous and utterly arrogant."

Last year, the federal Medicaid program paid $50 million for about 300,000 abortions for poor women.

Training Programs Said Substandard

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Five of the 15 University of North Carolina campuses with teacher training courses offer substandard programs, a consultant study has concluded.

The worst of the lot is Elizabeth City State, the report found, where 83 per cent of the teacher education programs were rated below satisfactory.

The other four schools cited were UNC-Asheville, 78 per cent of programs below satisfactory; Pembroke State, 69 per cent; N.C. Agriculture and Technical in Greensboro, 65 per cent; and Fayetteville State, 54 per cent.

UNC-Asheville and Pembroke are predominantly white campuses. The other three are predominantly black.

The report was written by UNC officials and a team of 29 consultants from 24 universities in other states. Programs were evaluated on the basis of faculty qualifications, student grades and teaching techniques and goals.

UNC-Chapel Hill rated highest in the study with only 9 per cent of its programs considered unsatisfactory. There were four categories in which programs were ranked: strong, satisfactory, marginal or weak.

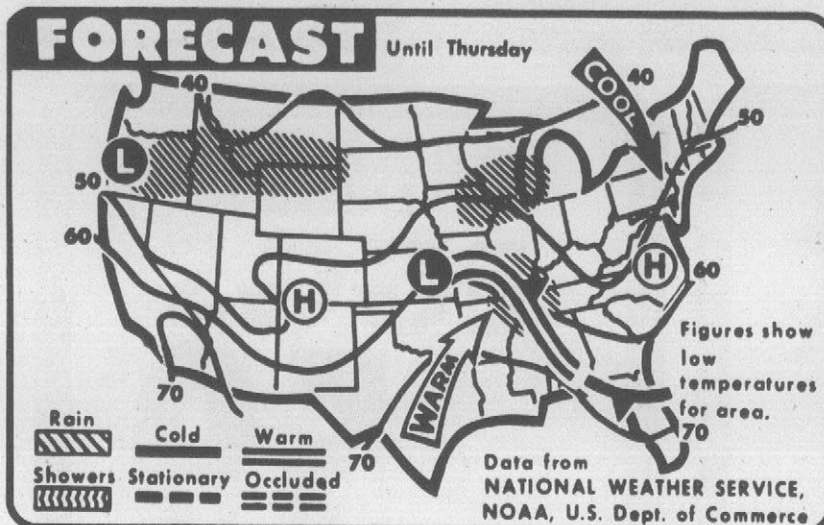

As part of the report a UNC Board of Governors committee recommended last week that teacher training courses be cut by 10 per cent next year and more after that.

UNC president William C. Friday said one important reason for the cutbacks, aside from the ratings, was the assessment by school officials that without such trimming teacher schools will produce a 15 per cent teacher surplus over the next five years.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Partly cloudy Friday through Sunday, with highs in the 70s and low 80s. Overnight lows in the 50s and low 60s.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is forecast today for the northern tier of states with warm weather expected from the central Plains to the South Atlantic states. Mild weather is due elsewhere. Rain is expected from Oregon to the northern Plains, for the upper Mississippi Valley and from eastern Iowa to Lake Michigan. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Cooler temperatures are expected through Thursday as a result of high pressure behind a cold front moving off the North Carolina coast.

Mostly sunny skies are forecast today with temperatures generally in the upper 70s to low 80s. Highs Thursday are expected to be in the 70s under partly cloudy skies.

A low-pressure system approaching the state from the Midwest may bring showers to the mountain areas Thursday and across the Piedmont on Thursday night.

Highs in the mid 80s were reported Tuesday in most areas of North Carolina. Highs ranged from 92 at New Bern to 76 at Asheville. Wilmington reported 37 inch of rain, with 10 inch recorded at Jacksonville and .09 inch at Charlotte.

One Can Start Building An Estate While Young

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

"The first half of life consists of the capacity to enjoy without the chance; the last half consists of the chance without the capacity." For the average family, Mark Twain's remark may be true. Despite the seeming reality of Mark Twain's remark, however, it is possible to build an estate while you are young for enjoyment in your later years.

The average family today probably consists of a man and his wife, perhaps around 30 years of age, and one or two children. Basic living expenses in the early years take most of their income, but in many cases, it is possible to accumulate some excess money. It may be $50 a month or more. These funds should be used first for savings, then for insurance to build an immediate estate, and finally for investments.

If you are in this situation, you should be building for the future. Your most productive years are ahead of you, and income and funds available for investment are likely to increase.

There are several methods of investing for you. Dollar-cost-averaging in regular monthly or quarterly purchases is a good method to get started in a small way. You can also buy growth oriented mutual funds, which provide professional stock selection and management. Or, you can invest directly in odd or round lots. Investing directly could be the best method for minimizing commissions. Investment funds could be placed in a savings account to earn interest until enough has been accumulated to buy a round lot. On the other hand, dollar-cost-averaging could minimize the problem of timing.

You can assume a moderate degree of risk in your investments, but speculations should be avoided. Longer term growth should be your goal, not short term trading profits. Real estate and bonds should be ruled out, since your resources are limited.

High quality growth stocks would be suitable for you. Since current income is not a prerequisite, you might select stocks with dividend reinvestment plans. Chances are the portfolio will be built one stock at a time, so selection is very important. Keep in mind that it is possible to pay too much for any kind of stock, including growth stocks. Studies have shown that stocks selling at low price-earnings multiples typically outperform those with high multiples over the long term.

Building a portfolio of high quality growth stocks is suitable for a young family. Careful selection of stocks will lessen market and business risk and could provide a substantial total return over a number of years. One final reminder is that stocks should never be bought and forgotten. There are times to sell stocks just as there are times to buy them. Periodically review your holdings with your broker and ask his opinion.

Ice Is Their Way Of Life

FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — A Pavlicic on ice is not an apertif. It's a way of life for the Pavlicic family.

Don Pavlicic, Sr., a retired skater and an electric company employe, has taught his children skating. Now they're piling up medals and trophies.

Don Jr., 18, skates in the senior men class, mainly in the 1- and 2-mile events. He has qualified for the national indoor meet each of the last four years.

Lisa, 15, competing in the junior girls' class, has won a state title in five of the last six years. She has been a Steinberg series champion in seven of her last eight tries.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C. — Wednesday, September 28, 1977 — 15

Sharon, 13, has won six consecutive state titles and all but one local meet she has entered in the last four years. When she was skating in the midget girls' class, she set a record — 44.3 seconds for the quarter-mile. Her career trophy count is 40.

David Pavlicic, 12, and Debbie, 10, compete in the midget class — David with four consecutive state titles behind him and a second-place finish in over-all national indoor standings two years ago, and Debbie with seven first place trophies, including a state title.

The World Council of Churches was formed in 1948 in Amsterdam.

Futuristic Energy Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The future energy needs of central Ohio could be met with the construction of a giant double-deck reservoir to produce hydro-electric power, some believe.

This futuristic idea was presented recently by a group of businessmen who met with Columbus utilities director Robert Newlon.

The businessmen proposed constructing one reservoir on top of another reservoir, and using the flow of water from the top reservoir to the bottom one to power generators for electricity.

Newlon said finding a source of water to fill the reservoir could be a problem in central Ohio. He said the businessmen were thinking of filling it from area streams and rivers.

Newlon said the businessmen expected the double-deck reservoir, costing an estimated $500 million, would produce a mammoth 1,000 megawatts, or enough to supply the electricity needs of one third of Ohio.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices sank again in the stock market today amid continued uneasiness over the outlook for business activity and interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped more than a point in early trading. Losers took a 53 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders still seemed fearful of a further rise in interest rates despite a steady trend in the money markets Tuesday.

Today's early prices included Sony, down  $\frac{1}{4}$  at 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  in trading that included a 100,000-share block at that price; Boeing, off  $\frac{1}{4}$  at 25 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and Digital Equipment, off  $\frac{1}{4}$  at 47 $\frac{1}{4}$ .

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.80 to a new 21-month low of 835.85.

The average last closed lower at 832.81 on Dec. 12, 1975.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 7-6 margin on the NYSE. Big Board volume reached 19.08 million shares, against 18.23 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks lost .08 to 52.12.

Few Oppose Pricing Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) There appears to be little opposition to a push by dairy farmers to get the price of milk linked to the economy instead of having to ask the state Milk Commission for every increase.

The commission conducted a hearing Tuesday on a proposed milk pricing formula which would allow the price to fluctuate automatically with the cost of living and other economic factors, including the cost of feed and farm production costs.

Consumer advocates came out strongly in favor of the proposal, which also had the endorsement of farmers and dairy processors.

"I'm not coming to you to beg or borrow," Lillington farmer Billy Farrar told the commission at the hearing. "I'm just coming to say that if there's not some provision in the pricing system that will let a young man start with nothing and build and become established, some day we'll be without milk in North Carolina."

Farrar is no longer in the dairy business. He said his son got into it only with heavy financial backing. "I'd be better off if I never saw a cow again," he said.

Lillian Woo, director of the Consumer Center of North Carolina and once a member of the milk commission, said the formula was a good idea. "The farmer will no longer

$118.32 Day For Market

Sales activity Tuesday on the Greenville Tobacco Market pushed the season money totals to over $31 million, according to J. N. Bryan, Tobacco Board of Trade sales supervisor.

Bryan said that the market sold 1,028,670 pounds for $1,249,912 yesterday as Greenville warehouses recorded an average of $121.51 per hundred pounds.

The figures brought the local season totals to 31,802,302 pounds sold for $37,627,358, he said, an average of $118.32 per hundred pounds.

Stabilization purchases Tuesday accounted for 22.41 per cent of total sales as non descript tobacco remained high in quantity.

Top practical price paid was $1.60 per pound with the buying companies purchasing good quality leaf for as high as $1.65 per pound.

Offerings on the warehouse floors consisted of leaf, cutters, lugs and non descript.

have to take one to two days off to come to Raleigh on his knees to beg for an increase," she said.

The only opposition came from Pet Inc., whose spokesman warned that formula pricing could result in overproduction and higher prices.

Warrants For Six People In Sect Murder

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The leader of a polygamist sect, two of his sons, one of his wives and two other men were being sought for the killing of a rival polygamist patriarch.

Federal arrest warrants were issued Tuesday for Ervil LeBaron, 50, and five of his followers in the death of rival leader Rulon Allred, shot by two unidentified women last May.

Mexican authorities have been asked to cooperate in the search for LeBaron, who recently was seen in Mexico City, authorities said.

The warrants bring to 11 the number of persons charged with murder, conspiracy or both in the case.

Allred, a Salt Lake City naturopath, had at least six wives and 40 children, police said.

Others being sought are Arturo Morel LeBaron, 27, and Edward Marston, 22, both of them sons of the fugitive cult leader; Rena Lei Chynoweth, 19, one of his wives, and Donald Eugene Sullivan, 26, and John Sullivan, 22, police said.

Federal fugitive warrants also have been issued for the six persons, police said.

The 11 suspects have been identified as members of the Church of the Lamb of God, which police said has hundreds of members mostly in the Southwest and Mexico.

David E. Yocom, of the Salt Lake County attorney's office, said, "LeBaron and his followers usually are armed with handguns, rifles, shotguns and automatic rifles and should be considered armed and dangerous."

Four members of the sect arrested last week in Denver and Dallas remained in jail without bond on murder and conspiracy charges. Another woman, charged with conspiracy, has agreed to surrender to authorities, according to her lawyer.

No Unbeaten Teams Left In ECC

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Well, so much for the Eastern Carolina Conference's unbeaten teams.

Two ECC members came into last Friday night's first round of league warfare with 3-0 records, but were soundly defeated, leaving all the loop's schools with at least one loss.

Farmville Central ruined Greene Central's hopes for an unbeaten season by handing the Rams a 38-18 loss, while D. H. Conley went up against previously unscathed North Lenoir and downed the Hawks, 13-0.

In the other two ECC games involving area teams, Southern Nash was shut out by Ayden-Grifton 20-0, while North Pitt suffered its third loss of the season to C. B. Aycock, 29-6.

A full conference slate is scheduled again for this Friday night as Ayden-Grifton is at North Pitt, Conley hosts Greene Central and Farmville Central travels to Southern Nash. The Jags will be looking for their third straight win; they are 3-1, while Ayden-Grifton and Conley will be trying to rise above the .500 mark as they both have 2-2 records. North Pitt, at 1-3, will be attempting to end a two-game slide.

D. H. Conley

A week off made a big difference for the Vikings who, after winning their first encounter had dropped two in a row. They took a Friday off and the break allowed them to get some of their wounded back. They used this to good advantage, defeating North Lenoir, 13-0.

"We had a pretty good game defensively," coach Chuck Dunn said. "The offense moved the ball early in the ballgame, but it seemed like we started making mistakes after the first touchdown."

Penalties and poor execution hurt the Vikings for the remainder of the first half, Dunn said, and, after Nuggie Worthington's interception return for a TD in the second quarter, Conley got a little bit too conservative.

However, the defense came through and had "by far, the best effort we've had," Dunn said. He praised the entire defensive unit and named ends Dale Bailey and Victor Evans, defensive tackle Ben Daniels, linebackers Kenny and Mike Phillips, and back Worthington as the standouts.

The rest of the secondary also played well, Dunn said, giving up only two completions, and one of them was a screen pass.

The Rams of Greene Central, whom the Vikes host Friday, are always tough, according to Dunn, and should be doubly so coming off their loss to Farmville. "They'll be raring to go this week, I'm sure.

"They're a hard-hitting ballclub — we know it's going to be a tough ballgame," he said.

Ayden-Grifton

Charger coach Dixon Sauls was pleased that his team was able to win its first conference game, but, like Dunn, he was a little dissatisfied with the Charger offense after the first part of the contest.

"We opened up our offense for the first time," Sauls said of the game, allowing quarterback David Smith to complete seven of 12 passes for 188 yards. "They gave us the pass and we were able to take advantage of it."

"We got outstanding effort for the first part of the game, then fumbles and mistakes bogged down the offense. We should have scored more points."

Sauls was happy with the overall effort, though, and said he feels the Chargers have progressed to the point that "we know what we're doing."

In addition to Smith, Sauls was happy with the offensive effort of receiver Ricky Harris, who caught four passes for 144 yards. On defense, tackle Jolly Dail and back Mark Cannon were the standouts.

Despite North Pitt's 1-3 record, Sauls said the Ayden-Grifton opponent this week has some good personnel. He singled out quarterback John Hunt and running back Calvin Carmack as players to watch.

"We hope to win," Sauls said of the North Pitt game. "We want to come out of it 2-0."

North Pitt

Naturally, Panther coach Pat Smith is hoping that won't be the case, but he is going to have to get some improvement out of his team to stop the Chargers.

"It's no secret what they (Ayden-Grifton) will do," Smith said. "They'll run behind (tackle Mike) Teachey and run (Terry) Morris 75 per cent of the time. We'll also have to look out for the pass."

The Chargers will be bigger and more physical than the Panthers, Smith said, but "for some reason, our guys love to play Ayden-Grifton, so I expect them to be up."

North Pitt ran into some defensive problems in last week's 29-6 loss to C. B. Aycock. "We didn't play well at all," Smith said. "Our defensive ends both had bad games and the defensive backfield was faked out on several plays."

The only bright spots for the Panthers were William Knight and Sammy Mayo, who "were outstanding again," Smith said.

Farmville Central

The Jaguars showed shades of last year's team, which rolled through its ECC schedule in romping to a 38-18 victory over Greene Central.

Despite the high score, coach Gene Brewer said the Jaguar offense sputtered in two quarters. "The score surprised us a little bit," Brewer said. "I thought we would win the ballgame, but I didn't think the score would be the way it was."

Brewer said running backs Walter Blow and Donald Reid looked good on offense, while Blow at defensive end, Ronald and Donald Reid at linebacker and Rufus Mayo, Tony Eason and Scott Evans in the secondary all had good ballgames.

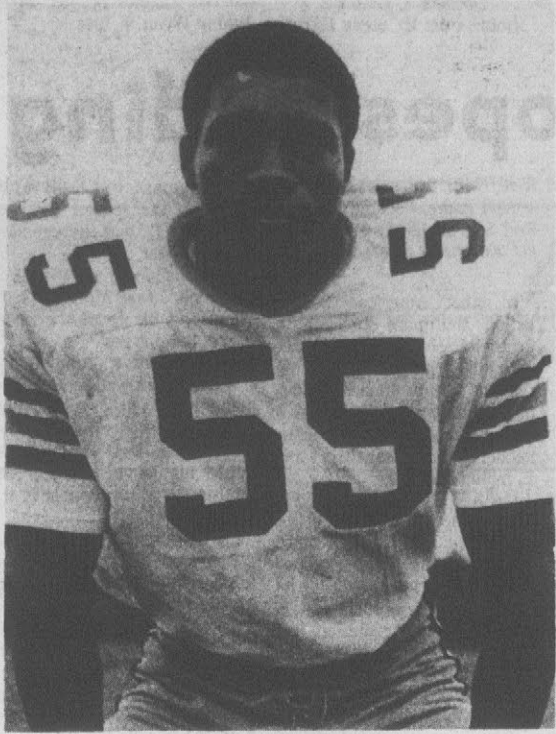

In addition, Brewer said, the Jags got "real good effort" out of three or four more players, although they weren't actually standouts.

The Jaguars take on winless

Southern Nash this Friday and, although the Firebirds haven't been very successful so far this year, Brewer expects a better ballgame from them at their place.

"They've got one good running back, Greg Pope and their quarterback throws above average," Brewer said. He expects the Firebirds' passing game to be better than their running game.

"The whole team is big, especially the defense," Brewer said. "We expect them to be fairly tough defensively."

DHC's Mike Phillips

Conley's Phillips Enjoys Tackling

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

In football, tackling is the name of the game for D. H. Conley linebacker Mike Phillips. The 5-11, 170-pound senior is averaging around 12 takedowns per game, according to his coach, Chuck Dunn.

Phillips is a two-year starter for the Vikings, who are currently 2-2 going into Friday night's contest with Greene Central. He made around 100 tackles as a junior, Dunn said.

"Mike has a great deal of desire and provides us with much of our leadership," Dunn said. Phillips serves as a co-captain for Conley.

While football's offense players get much of the glory, Phillips said he loves playing defense. "I just like hitting people more than people hitting me," he said.

The Vikings run a 5-2 defense much of the time and the formation provides Phillips with the chance to make a number of tackles. "We've got a real good defense — I think we've got about the best defense around."

Phillips plays some defensive guard when the Vikings switch to a four-man front, but he would rather be playing linebacker. As a linebacker, Phillips also has some pass defense duties. "I cover mainly the middle and I take the flats when the back comes," Phillips said he usually has to key on the halfback to his side on pass protection.

In addition to playing football, Phillips plays third base on the Conley baseball team. He said he likes both sports about the same. He listed fishing as his main hobby.

Phillips said he would like to play football in college if he gets the opportunity. He plans to attend Appalachian State University, but he has no definite plans to try out for the football team his freshman year. He would like to major in biology.

Determination On Ali's Side In Shavers Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali admits he is not the fighter he once was, and obviously Earnie Shavers will try and cash in on that fact Thursday night when Ali defends his heavyweight title at Madison Square Garden.

But Shavers will find — as the Shavers of the boxing world have discovered 19 times already — that Ali is not disposed to yield the title yet.

Shavers will find the greatest stumbling block in his path to the title is not Ali's left jab, his quick combinations or footwork. Those weapons have faded with age and constant combat.

What remains intact through Ali's 17-year pro career and 56 fights is his determination to retire as world heavyweight champion. Not even with boxing's hardest punch will Shavers find a counter-weapon to Ali's courage or willpower.

In Ali's last serious title defense — almost a year ago against Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium — Norton found himself with a chance to become champion. All he had to do was throw punches in the last 30 seconds of the 15th round.

He didn't; Ali did. In 30 seconds of exhaustion, Ali proved he was a champion; Norton proved he was not.

"Retiring champion — with my title — means more to me," says the 35-year-old Ali, "than having $20 million and not having the title."

Ali concedes that Shavers' only chance is his devastating punching power. In 54 victories, Shavers has knocked out 52 opponents, the highest knockout percentage of any heavyweight in history. He kayoed Jimmy Young in one round and Jimmy Ellis in three rounds in 1973, and last April he knocked out Howard Smith in two rounds.

"His best shot is to knock me out before he gets tired," says Ali, "and that's seven rounds."

"If he's as slow as he looks, as shiftless as he looks," says Ali, "I won't have to dance, just move back and forth a little bit."

Along with packing a dynamite punch, Shavers also packs a glass jaw. Three of Shavers' five losses have been by knockout — Ron Stander in five rounds, Jerry Quarry in one and Ron Lyle in six.

All three probably swung with more authority than Ali does now, but Shavers will go down from a combination of fatigue and accumulative punches.

Nader Funds Sports Group

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Nader is bankrolling a consumer group for sports lovers because, he says, "There is a rising crescendo from sports fans about the way they are being treated."

The consumer watchdog said Tuesday that he has made a personal loan of $10,000 to launch the group — dubbed the Fight to Advance the Nation's Sports, or FANS.

And while Nader says he will take no policy-making role in the group, he had some ideas about the jobs it should tackle.

Major sports, Nader said, "are heavily subsidized by the taxpayers," and taxpayers should have a say in trading players, quality of stadium concessions, ticket pricing and accessibility.

He said the group's first move ought to be to force owners of baseball, football and other major pro teams to make disclosure of their costs and profits, so fans can tell whether ticket prices are too high.

Peter Gruenstein, a 30-year-old Washington lawyer who will be executive director of FANS, said that because so many professional clubs get tax breaks and public subsidies, Congress might be convinced to require financial disclosure.

"The players and the owners have been dividing the pie for a number of years, so now there's going to be another group that wants to have a say in how things are done," Gruenstein said.

Nader suggested that if New York Mets fans had been organized, they might have conducted a boycott effective enough to prevent this year's trade of popular pitcher Tom Seaver to the Cincinnati Reds.

Philadelphia Follows Christenson To Title

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Larry Christenson got the Philadelphia Phillies their big victory and, like a couple of other National League pitchers, he did it with his bat as well as his arm.
Christenson belted a grand-slam home run and knocked in five runs as the Phils defeated the Chicago Cubs 15-9 to capture the NL East title.
J.R. Richard backed his four-hitter with a run-scoring single as the Houston Astros stopped the Atlanta Braves 7-5.

And St. Louis' Bob Forsch slammed a two-run double to go with his eight-hit pitching to pace the Cardinals to a 5-3 victory over the Montreal Expos.
"I knew that when I went to the plate that there were three men on base," said Christenson, 18-6. "But when I hit it, I had to look again, and I said, 'Wow, I hit a grand slam.'"

After the title-clinching victory, the champagne flowed, all right, but the Phillies' party this time was different.
"The celebration isn't as loud as last year," said Mike Schmidt, the Phillies' slugging third baseman. "The fellas are taking it with less excitement. We want to play in the World Series."
In other NL games Tuesday, New York defeated Pittsburgh 7-1, San Diego dropped Cincinnati 3-1 and Los Angeles downed San Francisco 5-2.

Christenson, who has won 14 of his last 15 decisions, helped the Phils balloon their lead to 11-2 in the seventh inning before Chicago came back with five runs in the eighth — three off reliever Tug McGraw.
The Phils will be in Los Angeles next Tuesday for the opening of the best-of-five series for the NL pennant and a World Series berth.
"Last year, we were happy with just winning our division. This year we won't be happy unless we win it all," said shortstop Larry Bowa, who added four singles to the Philadelphia attack.

Steve Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a double to back Nino Espinosa's four-hitter as New York snapped a seven-game Pittsburgh winning streak.
Padres 3, Reds 1
George Hendrick's solo homer paced San Diego to its victory over Cincinnati as Rollie Fingers got his 35th save of the season. Johnny Bench homered for the Reds' lone run.

Dodgers 5, Giants 2
Home runs by Steve Garvey and Rick Monday powered Los Angeles over San Francisco. Garvey's homer, his 32nd, tied the Los Angeles record set by Jimmy Wynn in 1974.

Phillies Want More Than 1 Celebration

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Bowa hopped around like a drenched rat. Veteran Tim McCarver laughed like a kid. Even soft-spoken Manager Danny Ozark smiled as the champagne poured down his head.
The Philadelphia Phillies celebrated their National League East title-clinching triumph with traditional swigging, spraying and silliness. But they won't be satisfied with just one party this year.
"The celebration isn't as loud as last year. The fellas are taking it with less excitement. We want to play in the World Series," said Mike Schmidt after Tuesday's 15-9 victory over the Chicago Cubs in which he hit his 38th homer on his 28th birthday.

The Phillies won their first divisional crown last season, but were beaten in the playoffs in three straight games by Cincinnati.
"Last year, we were happy with just winning our division. This year, we won't be happy unless we win it all," said Bowa, who smacked four singles Tuesday.
The next target is the National League pennant. That battle begins next Tuesday in Los Angeles against the Dodgers in a best-of-five series.
The Cubs fell behind 11-2 when Philadelphia scored seven runs in the seventh inning. But they rebounded with two runs in the seventh and five in the eighth, closing the gap to 12-9. However, the determined Phillies scored three more runs in the ninth, locking up the victory and the East championship.

"We wanted it. We wanted it bad and we got it," said reliever Tug McGraw.
McGraw replaced Larry Christenson, 18-6, who won his sixth straight start. Christenson was knocked out with two men on and none out in the eighth.
Christenson also cracked a grand slammer in the seventh for his third homer of the season and drove in a run with a bunt in the second off loser Bill Bonham, 10-13.
Catcher Bob Boone knocked in three runs with a single, double and grounder.

Texas Aggies Picked Over Michigan

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bo Schembechler already has been wrong twice this week ... and three times this season.

First, Michigan's ultrasuccessful coach predicted his Wolverines would "be down somewhere around the second five" in this week's college football poll. And then he said Michigan would go into Saturday's game against Texas A&M as the underdog.

Well, the Wolverines did indeed drop from the No. 1 position in The Associated Press rankings, as Schembechler requested two Saturdays ago, but they only fell as far as third place. And, amazingly, Michigan ruled as more than a touchdown favorite early in the week despite last weekend's hard-earned 14-7 victory over Navy.

"Texas A&M may be the best team in the country," Schembechler said. "This is a great football team coming in here (Ann Arbor, Mich.). It isn't just a good one. If there is a great team in the country it is Texas A&M. Before the season started, I said that after the Texas Tech game they'd be first, second or third."

Not quite, but Schembechler didn't miss by much. The Aggies are ranked No. 5 following last week's 33-17 triumph over Tech. But the ratings obviously don't mean much to Schembechler.

All Texas A&M's Emory Bellard will say about Schembechler's remarks is that "I'm very appreciative of his generosity ... but most any coach likes a psychological edge."

This corner gives the edge — and because Michigan is a touchdown-plus favorite it's the Upset Special of the Week — to ... Texas A&M 20-14.

Last week's record was 54 right, 18 wrong and one tie for a .750 percentage and the Upset Special, Army, battled Boston College on even terms into the final period before succumbing. For the season, it's 160-514-758.

Kansas at Oklahoma: The Jayhawks were the first college team to beat Barry Switzer. Switzer has since lost two more games, but not this one ... Oklahoma 35-7.

Washington State at Southern California: The Cougars have improved and have a shot against any team as long as Jack Thompson's at the controls, but the Trojans are not just any team ... Southern Cal 31-14.

Kentucky at Penn State: The Wildcats won last year's meeting 22-6, but the Nittany Lions have a 9-2 mark since then. Would you believe Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl against ... Penn State 24-10.

Ohio State at Southern Methodist: Woody Hayes is mad since losing that one-point thriller to Oklahoma and SMU is available for stomping ... Ohio State 42-6.

Colorado at Army: "We have a chance to beat them," says Army's Homer Smith. "We now have the people and weapons to win a game like this." But the last time Army played a Big Eight Conference team, Nebraska destroyed the Cadets 77-7. Smith wasn't around, though, in 1972. ... Colorado 35-20.

Rice at Texas: Rice has been outscored 125-3 in its last two games. Texas has outscored its last two opponents 112-0. This was considered as the Upset Special for at least one whole millisecond ... Texas 49-7.

Florida at Louisiana State: Why would the nation's No. 9-ranked team — that's Florida — be a one-point underdog to LSU? Probably because Florida is coming off a tough game against Mississippi State and might be looking to next week's meeting against Pitt. So ... LSU 21-20.

Georgia at Alabama: The Crimson Tide shouldn't have trouble keeping their minds off next week's game at Southern Cal. All they have to do is remember last year's 21-0 humiliation. ... Alabama 28-7.

Indiana at Nebraska: Two years ago, a nationally known forecaster — no, not us — picked Indiana to beat Nebraska at Lincoln. When Nebraska won 45-0, the Cornhuskers voted that brave forecaster the game ball. We're still not that brave ... Nebraska 34-9.

Texas Tech at North Carolina: Rodney Allison, Tech's big-play quarterback, is out. This looks like the second Upset Special ... North Carolina 24-17.

Michigan State at Notre Dame: The Irish have had some problems on the road but this one's under South Bend's friendly Golden Dome ... Notre Dame, or, Notre Dame 27-13.

Season In Full Swing

New York Rangers' Dave Maloney (26) joins in a fight between the Philadelphia Flyers' Dave Hoyda, lower right, and the Rangers' Bud Stefanski, left, during their NHL exhibition game in New York Tuesday. Flyers' Mike Korney, upper left, and Rangers' Don Murdoch, right, join in the fray which cleared both benches. Referee Bruce Hood gave four players from the Flyers and three from the Rangers a total of 14 penalties and the game was delayed 15 minutes. Hoyda and Maloney received no penalties. (AP Laserphoto)

Fullback Sutton Catches Eye Of East Carolina Coach Pat Dye

Football coaches aren't supposed to have pets, but East Carolina sophomore fullback Theodore Sutton is basking in some sort of special favor from coach Pat Dye. And he's earned it.

"You can't really tell a lot about who is doing what during a game from the sidelines," Dye said. "But I sure couldn't help but notice Sutton's running. I don't think we could have won it without him."

Sutton carried the ball 15 times for 114 yards last Saturday to spark the Pirates' near-disaster victory over VMI, 14-13.

But the 200-pound Kinston native is suitably humble, giving much of the credit to senior halfback Willie Hawkins and junior Eddie Hicks, his running mates in the Pirate backfield.

"The other team has to watch out for them," Sutton said. "They are so fast that you have to key on them. That opens the middle up for me. Nobody can stop all of us and people have been concentrating on them."

Sutton's speed actually matches his teammates and was responsible for helping him earn the starting spot over returning fullback Vince Kolanko.

"The big was Vince got hurt right before the State game," Sutton said. "I played and had a pretty good game and things have been falling in place since."

"I hardly played at all last fall, but I had a good spring and I came in this fall with the idea of giving Vince a good battle for the starting job," Sutton said. "When he got hurt it opened the door for me."

Sutton said Saturday's tilt against South Carolina is the biggest yet, but he added that "if you want an 11-0 season, every game is big but the next one is always the biggest."

Ed Asner Says Fraud Involved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Ed Asner says he was duped into working on a television special for nominal pay on the belief that proceeds were earmarked for charity. He's asking for some more money — $121,500 more.

Asner claims in a lawsuit that he accepted union scale of $1,000 to appear as a magician in the CBS show "Circus of the Stars" after being led to believe the show would benefit the Motion Picture and Television Fund and a French charity.

The 51-year-old actor, who plays a gruff newspaper editor on the weekly TV series "Lou Grant," said his normal fee would have been $15,000 plus $7,500 in residuals when the show was aired again later. He is asking for $21,500 in back pay, plus $100,000 in punitive damages.

ED ASNER

Jack Staggs, executive director of the motion picture fund, said his charity withdrew its connection with the program before its first telecast Jan. 10 and that no proceeds were ever given to the fund, which supports a hospital for retired, indigent actors.

Asner's suit, alleging fraud and invasion of privacy, was filed against People's Choice Awards Inc., executive producer Robert Stivers and Proctor and Gamble, the sole sponsor of the event.

Eric Weissmann, Stivers' attorney, declined comment except to say, "It was a charity event. There was money contributed to charity as a result of it."

Helping Western Kentucky School

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Raquel Welch, Dustin Hoffman, Alfred Hitchcock and Daniel Ellsberg all will do their bit to help Brea College build a new student center.

The western Kentucky school will auction more than 100 celebrity souvenirs Oct. 15 in an attempt to raise $600,000 for the center.

Among the items going on the block are an autographed photo of Miss Welch, a copy of "All the President's Men" autographed by Hoffman, who starred in the movie, and a copy of "The Pentagon Papers" signed by Ellsberg.

The auctioneer also will peddle an autographed self-portrait of Alfred Hitchcock and some autographed lollipops donated by Telly Savalas, who plays lollipop-sucking Kojak in the television detective show.

Oswald Question Raised

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — What might have happened had Lee Harvey Oswald not been shot dead by night club owner Jack Ruby, if he'd actually gone on trial for the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy?

ABC poses the question Friday and Sunday nights in a $2.5 million movie representing a new form of documentary drama, the "what if" docu-drama. It's "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald."

(In a macabre promotional caper, ABC says it's putting a questionnaire in the Oct. 1 "TV Guide" that asks viewers how they'd vote were they on the Oswald jury. Results of this thumbs-up, thumbs-down poll will be announced Oct. 14 on "Good Morning, America," ABC says.)

Friday's show recreates Kennedy's slaying and Oswald's capture in Dallas, Tex. Sunday's show stages what the trial producer Richard Freed thinks Oswald might have had, had not Ruby killed the ex-Marine. For Freed, the two programs conclude a project he says he began in 1965, two years before a short-lived Broadway play, also called "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," hit the boards.

He said he bought that play by Avram Ducovny and Leon Friedman mainly for rights to its title, but that none of his movie, written by Robert E. Thompson, draws from the stage version.

While preparing his mock "trial" of Oswald, he said, he consulted heavily with top prosecutors and criminal lawyers on how they would have handled the trial, had it ever occurred.

The idea of the movie, he added, is to show evidence in Kennedy's slaying "in a courtroom context, in an adversary context."

The Warren Commission, which says Oswald killed Kennedy and acted alone, and critics of the commission all have had their say, he noted, "but they've never really come into an arena where they'd compete with each other."

He concedes that because there never was a trial, Sunday's battles of prosecution and defense had to be invented, a word he still insists is "not totally appropriate."

"What we've done is not so much to invent things, but draw from the record (of the commission and other sources) and make a logical conclusion about the way people would respond," he says.

Isn't there a danger in mixing re-enacted fact with hypothetical conclusions in a trial that never occurred?

"There are two choices," Freed said. "One is never to deal with historical fact or a 'what if' premise. The other is to say we'll do that kind of program, approach it with the greatest amount of responsibility people can apply to this kind of subject matter."

Soviet-Style Law And Order Probes A Mixed Bag

By CHARLES M. MADIGAN
MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin and Red Square are beautiful at midnight when the long brick walls and gray stones are ablaze from banks of floodlights atop the big GUM department store.

NO HANDS — Wally Watts, a 29-year-old railroad inspector from Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, is observed by moped-riding Thais as he wends his way through a Bangkok traffic jam. Watts is riding a unicycle around the world and plans to go to Singapore from Bangkok. (AP Laserphoto)

Every hour the poker-stiff guards who stand at the doorway of Lenin's tomb go through an impressive change, goose-stepping out of the square as their replacements take up the watch.

What better time to watch than at midnight, when the square isn't so crowded as during the day and when the stars are fiery little pinpricks in the black Russian sky?

Or so we thought as we sat on the GUM steps at 11:30 p.m., waiting for midnight so we could watch the changing of the guards. Russians sat near us, also passing the time. "Ne seditye...NE SEDITYE." The policeman came charging across the square, interrupting our 15 minute conversation with a torrent of Russian that basically translated as: "Sitting is forbidden here."

Our brief attempt to argue failed. He couldn't speak English and we were too flimsy with our Russian to note that he wasn't shooting the locals away.

There are policemen everywhere in Moscow, and they are living proof that a little bit of authority in the Soviet Union goes a long way. There are policemen in the parking lots of our apartment and policemen on every corner. There are policemen at every entrance of the U.S. Embassy and policemen peppered along the streets.

There are policemen in little booths at almost every major intersection, eagle-eyed bastions of Soviet authority waiting for anyone who dares violate Soviet traffic laws.

Apparently, from conversations with friends, about the only time you cannot find a policeman in Moscow is when you need one. Like the time we drove home from the Kremlin at midnight.

By way of explanation, Soviet automobiles have good headlights, probably equally as good as Western automobiles. The difference is that you are forbidden to use your headlights for night driving in the city here.

Americans are not accustomed to driving in the dark with only parking lights, and so it was only natural to flick the lever that turns on the headlights. We were immediately assaulted by a drunk in a red Zhiguli, the most prominent Soviet automobile.

First he tailed us down Kutuzovskiy Prospekt, flashing his own lights and shouting. Then he pulled alongside and gestured violently toward the lights on our car. Finally he tried to run us off the road.

Such maneuvers are rude violations of Soviet traffic laws and the fact that the man waved a vodka bottle at us would surely have interested even the most liberal traffic cop.

But, although the policemen managed to keep us from sitting in Red Square, they could do little to help us avoid this four-wheeled menace who was intent on killing us because our lights were on. One of the best police stories to come from foreigners involves a correspondent who walked into a tightly guarded parking lot one morning to find his car had been stripped of its vital exterior parts. He complained to the policeman in a guard box a dozen steps away. The policeman

Quickie Denture Being Tested

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — An assistant professor at Southern Illinois University is experimenting with a new two-hour method of making false teeth.

Gregory P. Stewart says the new dentures, manufactured by the Acry-Dent Supply Co. in Michigan, has teeth already imbedded in it. When placed in the patient's mouth, the material conforms to gum structure for a perfect fit.

Stewart says the process takes about two hours and would cost less than $500.

However, Stewart says the new technique demands that the upper and lower plates be in perfect alignment with each other and the gums.

Thus, the technique results in a greater margin of error by dentists already suffering from malpractice insurance increases.

listened patiently and replied, "Yes, we are aware that it happened at about 1:30 a.m." The correspondent asked why the policeman did nothing to hamper the thieves. "It is not my job," he said. The Russians seem to have found their own way of coping with the many policemen. In many cases, they just ignore them or push past them with a nasty snort or grunt. When a fire hit the U.S. Embassy in late August, Soviet police had a field day, afforded all the power anyone could want in a tense situation.

One particularly short and surly militiaman in a long dark green overcoat appropriated a bullhorn from the back of a police car. He walked up to a group of six reporters standing on a corner. "Crackle, crackle, crackle...back back back...you must get back," he shouted into the bullhorn. No one could understand why he was using it, since he was all of 14 inches away. Nevertheless, he had a grand time for the rest of the night, shouting "back, back, back," at small groups of people.

It was refreshing to see at about 9 a.m., after a night of watching the Soviet police in action, that they failed to impress the locals who were walking to work. In an obvious display of his authority, the little policeman with the bullhorn stepped in front of a huge man in a shabby gray suit who was striding purposefully down the sidewalk. The big man just kept on walking, and the little Soviet policeman bounced off his stomach like a pinball off a hot bumper.

Nerve Deafness Cure On Horizons

Nerve deafness is the most hopeless type of hearing impairment. When I first mentioned in this column that experimental studies for the cure of this condition were on the horizon, there was an enormous response from my readers. There was some skepticism, too.

Today, techniques are being tried that defy the imagination by their ingenuity. Electronic devices are being implanted into the cochlea, the snail-like area in the inner ear responsible for the transmission of nerve impulses.

Tiny hair-thin electrodes are connected between the cochlea and special batteries implanted in the neck, in order to bypass the site of the nerve disorder.

Although this and other techniques are still in the early phases of development, they are enthusiastically being studied, rather than arbitrarily discarded. At the National Institute of Neurological and Communication Disorders, a vast program has been started in an effort to resolve whatever controversy still exists about cochlea implants.

The idea of being able to help nerve deafness started with a philosophical idea. Today, it is a practical reality that needs refinement and research to liberate those who suffer from the shackles of nerve deafness.

Readers have been inquiring as to why the drug "naprosyn," used for arthritis, has been removed from the market. This drug, whose generic name is "naproxen," was not entirely withdrawn from approval by the Federal Drug Administration. The FDA believes that more scientific data should be accumulated before it gives full support to the use of naprosyn.

It is again being carefully reviewed, and as soon as its complete safety is reestablished, the likelihood is that it will again be released.

Not all mushrooms found in the fields can be safely eaten. Children, particularly, should be warned not to pick and eat these fungi unless they are definitely known to be safe.

Young people must learn that the clarity of water in streams and lakes is no indication of its purity. Before drinking any such water, it should be properly boiled, for complete safety.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Environmentalists Push Bottle Deposit Measure

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine-ty-nine bottles of beer in the ditch.
Ninety-nine bottles of beer.
There'll only be 18 bottles of beer in the ditch.
Eighteen bottles of beer.
That, at least, is the hope of environmentalists hoping for a law to require deposits on all beverage containers in an effort to keep the cans and bottles in use and off the roadside.

Most of the nation's brewers, soft drink makers and can and bottle manufacturers are opposing the effort.
Oregon led the way five years ago and serves as the test case in the struggle, but both sides can produce statistics which they say prove their point.
Since the Oregon law was passed most "bottle bills," calling for mandatory deposits, have been defeated, except in Vermont, Michigan, South Dakota and a few local jurisdictions.

Among the measures being held up is a national bottle bill, promoted by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. The measure was recently rejected 10-6 in committee, but Hatfield reportedly is considering submitting the proposal to the full Senate.
In the meantime all government agencies, responding to earlier legislation, are scheduled to report late this month on plans to limit beverage sales on federal property to returnable containers.

Getting a head start was the National Park Service, which instituted a returnable-only policy this summer at most of its facilities.
Final details of the project have not been compiled, but a spokeswoman said that "aside from a few minor problems, it seemed to work well," and resulted in a reduction of litter.
The Defense Department got into the act early, and is in the midst of a year-long trial of returnables-only at 10 military bases.

A spokesman said there had been some initial problems in starting the test, but no major difficulties have been reported.
Meanwhile, the battle between environmentalists and manufacturers continues with both sides claiming their plan is the energy saver.
Albert Barr of the Glass Manufacturers Institute, noting that refillable bottles are heavier and require more energy and materials to make, said they must be returned seven or eight times before they constitute an energy savings over the lighter, throwaway bottles.
Barr said no definite figures on returns are available nationwide, commenting that return rates vary from city to city. In New York, for example, nearly everything is thrown away, while in Chicago the majority of bottles is returned.
He said that his most recent report from Oregon indicates that bottles are being returned an average of about 10 times each. That rate saves energy in comparison to throwaways, but he said that before Oregon's law was passed the return rate was 22 times per bottle.

By contrast, environmentalists are estimating between 14 and 18 returns per bottle in Oregon, and a state spokeswoman said the latest figures available there indicate between 18 to 20 returns per bottle.
Both returnable and throw-away containers are available in most of the country and sales figures show some contrasts in consumer preference.
For example, in New York City returnables make up less than one per cent of the sales, while in Chicago they account for 70 per cent.

While the lack of firm figures for returns on bottles, or tripage, has generated considerable debate, semantics themselves have led to much of the conflict.
The opponents of the bills refer in most of their literature to "refillable" containers.
But the Environmental Protection Agency, a promoter of a bottle bill, refers instead to "returnable" containers.
The difference is not noticeable to the consumer, but the refillable container is sent back to the bottler after it is returned to be cleaned and filled for another use.
The non-refillable goes to a recycling center where it is ground up and its glass or steel or aluminum is put to another use.
Under the proposed bottle laws both refillable and non-refillable containers would be allowed, but the deposit would encourage consumers to return both, instead of throwing away the non-refillables.
The manufacturers have paid little attention to this difference, while environmentalists emphasize it as a means of saving and reusing resources.

The brewers, however, have confronted this issue, making their main emphasis resource recovery. They have been pushing for recycling of all trash, and suggest that using only returnable containers would remove much of the economic stimulus from recycling general trash.
Jobs too have been a bone of contention with dire warnings of lost employment from manufacturers who fear the shutdown of can and bottle plants if large numbers of refillable containers come into use.
But both sides admit that in Oregon there was a net gain in employment, with new jobs in recycling and collection outnumbering those lost in container manufacturing.
And then there is litter, the scenic blight that brought the controversy out in the first place.
Environmentalists claim that beverage-related litter in Oregon was reduced by 80 per cent after the state law was passed, while the manufacturers claim the reduction was 66 per cent.

The cost of the drinks in the containers is also a subject of dispute with opponents of restrictive legislation saying the laws would result in more costly beverages.
Last October the EPA released a survey of 28 cities in 24 states showing that beverage sold in returnable containers were generally cheaper than when throwaway bottles and cans were used.
But the United States Brewers Association has subsequently attacked this report, saying that the convenience

nated, prices for returnables would rise.

Learning Dance Is Very Tricky

WARM WORK—Joe Ahuna Jr. has mastered not only the pronunciation of his multisyllable Hawaiian name but also the difficult Samoan Fire Knife Dance he performs with Brigham Young University's Sounds, a group which has toured in the United States, Canada and Europe.

PROVO, Utah (AP) — His name is Joe Hoopomaikakealo-hoikalanikanui Ahuna Jr., and he performs the Samoan Fire Knife Dance. Both pronouncing his name and performing the dance are very tricky business, he admits.
"My Hawaiian name means 'the brilliancy of the heavens is bliss.' Most people ask me how long it took me to learn to pronounce it," explains Joe, who now rattles it off with ease.
Joe performs the Fire Knife Dance with equal dispatch for Brigham Young University's Sounds, a performing group which has toured the United States, Canada, Romania and Bulgaria.
The dance of the hook knife - O Le Nifo Oti — was traditionally performed by the "manaia" or son of a chief of Samoa, and once signaled victory at the end of a battle. Today Samoans add fire to the knives, calling for even more skill and courage.
"It's a dangerous dance, but it's a happy dance," said Joe. "And it's very challenging. It's like facing the problems of the world. If you can smile while playing with fire, you can smile through any problems."
He learned the fire dance by practicing eight hours a day, six days a week, for two months.

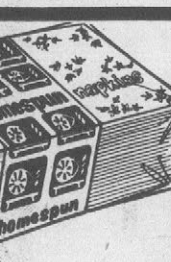

"People told me I couldn't do it, but I learned," he says. "There's a Japanese saying, whatever you can dream, you can do. And I did learn the dance."
After a six-month engagement performing at Kahoshima Resort Hotel in Japan in 1974, Joe was lauded by critics as one of the best performers of the ancient and dangerous Samoan dance.
Joe also performs the intricate Navajo Hoop Dance with the BYU Sounds, a dance which requires great coordination and skill.
"I learned it when I was performing with 'Showcase Hawaii,' sponsored by BYU Hawaii, for a tour of the Orient. An Indian performing with the show taught me the Hoop Dance, and I taught him the Fire Knife Dance," said the performer.
A prelaw student at Brigham Young University, Joe served a mission to Hokkaido, Japan, for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He plans eventually to go into international law.
The 22-year-old student is used to the show business world. His father works for "Hawaii 5-0," which is filmed in Hawaii.

Science And Technology Near Siberia Resources

By PEGGY POLK
NOVOSIBIRSK, Siberia (UPI) — In the upper reaches of the Novosibirsk Electrothermal Equipment Works, a young Betty Grable-type blonde rides the cabin of a crane along a track some 30 feet above the ground.

Lengths of metal tubing wide enough for a man to crawl through are piled at one end of the cavernous workshop, which the Soviets say is the biggest in Europe.

The assembly area holds the skeleton of a towering 200-ton ingot electroslag remelting furnace, described as the world's largest. It sells for $3.45 million, and the Soviets have found a prospective buyer in Philadelphia.

The plant is a showplace of the new Siberia.

Built 22 years ago on a stretch of tundra within the city limits of sprawling Novosibirsk, it is now doubling its size in order to double its three million-ton yield capacity under the current five-year economic plan. The plant already exports six types of furnaces to 25 countries, including France, Sweden, Mexico, Egypt and India.

Now it is hoping to number Babcock and Wilcox of Philadelphia among its customers. The American firm recently sent representatives here to examine the electroslag furnace.

It takes about 45 minutes to drive southeast through the tundra from the Novosibirsk Electrothermal Equipment Works to Akademgorodok — along the Ob Sea, over the Ob Dam and finally into the stillness of a birch and pine forest.

Akademgorodok means science city. For all its idyllic forest setting it is the Soviet Union's most important think tank, one of the major centers of its kind in the world.

The city within the city of Novosibirsk houses the Siberian Department of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, where more than 3,000 scientists work at pure and applied research and help to train the next generation of scientists.

Some of its work relates directly to the Novosibirsk electrothermal plant. Under a long-term contract with the department's Institute of Hydrodynamics, the plant is able to sidestep intermediate experimental processes and put new production methods directly into operation.

One innovation of recent years is explosive welding, which joins together formerly incompatible metals in a controlled explosion.

Dr. Andrei A. Deribas demonstrates the technique in a small workshop containing two closed explosion chambers and an observation safety booth with a control panel which triggers the blast.

Making a sandwich by putting a thin layer of powdered explosive between a slab of copper and another of stainless steel, Deribas places it on a red platform which he wheels up and locks into a yellow metal dome.

The turn of a key in the safety booth sets off a blast with a muffled clunking sound. Gas escapes through an attached pipe and the welded piece of metal is cool enough to pick up within a minute.

Until this technique was developed a weld of copper and stainless steel had been impossible. One major use is to cover copper with stainless steel or titanium to resist corrosion. The electrothermal works, one of 15 Soviet industries which now practice explosive welding, uses it primarily to insert a ceramic isolating layer between steel and brass.

Deribas, a handsome dark-haired man of 46 who looks more like a poet than a scientist, won the Lenin Prize for his work in the field. The process was developed in the United States in parallel research by scientists at the Dupont Laboratories in Denver, exchanging information with the Akademgorodok scientists.

The Soviets stumbled upon the technique in 1961 while using blast waves to reinforce rails in an effort to produce a long-term, heavy-duty railway switch joint.

Deribas, head of the Institute of Hydrodynamics' Hydroimpulse Technology Design Bureau, is now investigating the state of materials during short-term high pressure — such as the moment of explosion in the welding process — in an effort to obtain new materials.

A native of Moscow and graduate of the prestigious Moscow University, Deribas was among the first group of 15 scientists to come to Akademgorodok. His 19-year-old daughter, now a medical student at Novosibirsk, was the first child born in the town.

Having won his reputation at a relatively early age, Deribas probably would have little trouble returning to a post of some importance in Moscow, but he has no intention of doing so.

"If a person makes science his ambition, here he has all the conditions for developing his abilities — bigger, better opportunities than in Moscow," Deribas said. "I was born and bred and studied and worked in Moscow — and I have no desire to return."

The Soviets, in the words of President Leonid I. Brezhnev, consider Siberia "the future of our country" because of its vast stores of still-unexplored minerals and energy. A prime goal of the postwar years has been to develop science and industry at the site of the natural resources.

Success depends in large part on attracting and holding young men like Deribas in science and his opposite numbers in industry.

The chief engineer at the electrothermal works is Vadim G. Zavyalov, 37, a graduate of the Moscow Energetics Institute. The head of the special design bureau is Dr. Andrei G. Domeschikov, 41, a graduate of the Siberian Metallurgical Institute at nearby Novokuznetsk.

Inducements include not only opportunity for advancement but pay — the average monthly salary at the electrothermal works is $276 compared to the national average of $213 — and living conditions.

Factories build their own apartment houses, schools, kindergartens and, in the case of the electrothermal works, a recreation area on the Ob reservoir for its 4,000 employees.

Apartments are important because the Soviet Union suffers from a chronic housing shortage. In one of Novosibirsk's districts, 40 per cent of the population of 430,000 lives in communal apartments, sharing kitchens and bathrooms.

Vitaly Nikolaitchuk, 40, has worked as a foreman at the electrothermal plant since 1964 and for the last eight months has been chief of the assembly shop.

He lives with his wife, Ludmilla, 36, a manager of a textile center, and 12-year-old son, Igor, in a two-bedroom apartment, a considerable luxury for a Soviet family.

The apartment walls are hung with Soviet-made oriental rugs. A large-screen color television set dominates the living room. Translations of Theodore Dreiser and Jack London stand in the bookshelves. A music box in the form of a gondola and a miniature bottle of chianti decorate the top of the bookcase, another sign of privilege.

Although travel to the West is tightly controlled by the Soviets, the Nikolaitchuks have made trips to Italy and to Egypt as well as to more accessible Soviet-bloc Bulgaria.

Nikolaitchuk appears puzzled when asked how he has been able to travel abroad. "For us, in Siberia, it's normal," he says with a smile and a shrug.

'Othello' Board Game Tournament

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Fans of the board game Othello have something new to flip over. Othello — like chess, backgammon and even Monopoly before it — has developed an international tournament.

Champions from around the world will compete in Tokyo on Oct. 29 for the title, said a spokesman for Gabriel Industries Inc., the American distributor of the game.

The game is played by two people who alternate putting disks — white on one side, black on the other — on the 64 squares of a green playing field. The object is to outflank an opponent's disks, flip them and end up with the majority of either black or white disks showing on the board.

Some 25 million Japanese play, according to the Gabriel spokesman. U.S. sales hit 500,000 last year and are expected to top one million in 1977, thanks in part to heavy television advertising.

Among Othello fans are old chess hands and college students at Caltech and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where computers have been programmed for competition.

One contender for the U.S. championship, Mark Weinberg, 30, of Washington, says he plays Othello with his 3½-year-old daughter.

Weinberg says he is looking forward to national and international competition because local opponents have been hard to find.

"Some of my chess and backgammon friends play, and so does my wife, Joanne," he said. "But there just aren't many players here of my strength. I win about 20 of 21 games, and people don't like to play against that."

So how is he preparing for the international meet?

He's competing via mail with one of the world's best players — Fumio Fujita, Japan's national champion in 1976. The two met last year when Fujita toured the United States. Weinberg was one of few American players able to defeat the Japanese expert.

"He (Fujita) devised a score sheet, which he mails to me with a move marked in," Weinberg explained. "I make a move and send the sheet back."

The week it takes to get the letters back and forth has proved too slow, Weinberg said, "so we're considering starting 10 games at once to step up the pace."

Othello was devised by Goro Hasegawa of Japan in 1971 and named for a Shakespearean character.

Acceptance has been so good that this year Gabriel has introduced a Tournament Othello set, selling for about twice the $10 price of the basic board, and a new handbook by Hasegawa, "How to Win at Othello."

Local champions were selected in August and September in cities around the world, including a dozen in the United States.

Regional playoffs are scheduled in Washington, St. Louis, Houston and San Francisco Oct. 8, and the four winners will compete in New York Oct. 15 for the U.S. championship. The winner will get a trip for two to Tokyo for the international competition.

Federal Govm't Helps After The Gas Cut Off

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — The federal government is coming to the aid of Crystal City, the little Texas town that had its natural gas shut off because it hasn't paid its bills for more than two years.

It was not known if Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. would resume its supply of natural gas that was shut off last Friday.

The town of 8,000 is getting the aid through Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and not through its own representatives in Washington.

Kennedy's office said Tuesday the Community Services Administration has agreed to provide $160,000 to be applied toward the town's $750,000 debt to Lo-Vaca.

The federal agency also is giving Crystal City $50,000 to $100,000 for electric hotplates, butane and other services until the gas is restored.

The town will also get long-range federal help to insulate its buildings and develop optional energy sources, according to Jack Leslie, an aide to Kennedy.

"This will get the people back into their homes to fix wood fires," Mayor Francisco Benavides said late Tuesday.

Earlier the mayor had said he hoped the federal assistance would persuade Lo-Vaca to restore gas service but that "if they wish to be negative, they can be."

The legal battle between Lo-Vaca and Crystal City started when the price of gas was increased from 36 cents per thousand cubic feet to $2 per thousand cubic feet. Town officials said Crystal City, half of whose mostly Mexican-American population is on welfare, simply did not have enough money to pay for the gas.

Simon Benfield, a company spokesman in Houston, said, "We're happy that the individual citizens will be helped. They've been caught in a cross-fire. We'll be happy to talk to the CSA, but until we hear from them, it's pointless to speculate about our next step."

Benavides went to Washington to seek aid last weekend, but found none from Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Tex., or Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

But Kennedy read news accounts of the problem and met with Benavides to work on a solution.

NEW DIRECTOR

Offer To Build A Log Cabin

NORTH FORK, Calif. (AP) — Using old tools and methods, a small company here offers to build you the log cabin of your dreams.

With long-handled bark spuds, trimming axes and axes, and bowing to modern technology long enough to accept the chainsaw, employees of the company, an offshoot of a wilderness survival school, will furnish a prospective homeowner with a log cabin of any size and shape.

John Somerville, an ex-Marine and head of both the company and school, said the work is done predominantly by hand because to date they have found no better way.

Selected trees are cut and the logs hauled to the location where they are peeled, dried and then hand-notched. When in place, each must be carefully trimmed to fit its neighbor.

Skateboard Injuries Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly 72,000 persons were treated in American hospitals last year for skateboard related injuries.

Twelve deaths from skateboard accidents have been recorded in recent years, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

These statistics mean one thing to a major insurance company: the four-wheeled relatives of the surfboard and roller skates are not toys, but dangerous vehicles.

Like most other wheeled vehicles, they require skill for safe operation, and can cause deaths if used carelessly, says David P. Curley, vice president for the engineering division of Aetna Life and Casualty.

He classes them with bicycles, dune buggies, roller skates and pogo sticks in accident potential.

Skateboard mishaps can result from such simple things as one or more skateboarders following one another too closely; modifying a board improperly, riding on uneven surfaces, tripping over debris or colliding with low-hanging tree limbs.

Inexperienced riders sometimes cause accidents when they attempt "hot dog" maneuvers before they are skilled enough, or by trying to travel too fast, Curley said.

Proper clothing from head to toe can prevent many injuries, he added. He recommends helmets (many use the type worn by hockey players), knee and elbow pads and long trousers and shirts with sleeves.

Learning to skateboard is like learning to bicycle or roller skate, he said. The first sessions should be nothing more than simply peddling around, with one foot on the board and the other for propulsion, he said. For additional instruction, he suggests one of the many books now available on skateboard techniques.

Crime-Buster Stays In Chair

HARLEM, Ga. (AP) — Harlem Police Chief C.R. Wright is not big on walking a beat. He's witnessed eight minor traffic accidents and has spotted three stolen cars over the past nine months without moving from his chair, he says.

"Our town is only a mile across, so instead of getting out in a car and making a fool of yourself, you just sit still and let them come to you," he explains.

Wright said he would spend most of his time turning around at the city limits if he patrolled the streets in one of the town's two police cars.

Wright, who took the job of police chief after 22 years in the Army, says the flow of traffic "has a rhythm to it," and that either erratic driving or excessive caution will draw his attention.

"If they do everything right, that smells," he explained.

Carlyle Sketch Under A Bed

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — The University of Illinois Library's rare book room boasts a recently discovered 1866 drawing of Scottish writer Thomas Carlyle (1795-1881), thanks to a gift from English professor George Hendrick.

Hendrick found the sketch in 1974 in a trunk hidden under a bed in an old Urbana home.

Artist Has No Arms And No Handicap

By GEOFF DORNAN
RENO, Nev. (UPI) — More than paper and pencil, an artist's tools are his eyes and his mind's ability to reconstruct what he sees so others can see and feel.

In that, Martin Leigh Hoganson is like his contemporaries. But while they guide the pencil with their hands, he holds it between his teeth.

Hoganson, 26, whose arms have been virtually useless since birth, says it is an unimportant difference.

"Everybody learns to use tools in certain ways. I think if someone had always held a pencil with his ear, he probably would be pretty good with it by now."

But Hoganson had been drawing seriously only seven months when he caught the eye of Cal Bromund, prominent western painter and art critic. Bromund told Hoganson's mother he wanted to sponsor her son in a show on the basis of about five pieces. Only then did he meet Hoganson and discover how the Sacramento-based artist draws.

Persons attending Hoganson's first show backed their compliments with their checkbooks by paying up to $700 each for his originals. Such prices please him nearly as much as the acceptance of his work, but he denies they are exorbitant because the purchasers are "receiving a part of the person who painted it."

Hoganson says he needed Bromund's support and the praise of other artists, critics and collectors to continue drawing.

"If I'm going to be an artist, I want to be recognized on the basis of my art, not on how I do my art. My only fear is of being praised for how I did it rather than the quality of the work," he said.

Bromund said quality is the reason he is backing Hoganson's career. He praised the artist's ability to "arouse in the viewer's eye and mind the desire to possess, enjoy and cherish."

Hoganson says he tries, through his drawings, to show people things they may have missed.

"I try to get them to take notice of people and of this world. I like to do faces that have character, as well as doing landscapes. There's so much beauty all around us in nature, but people don't look at it."

"When I'm drawing a person, I don't try to make a carbon copy of him. I try to pull out the character, the thing that makes that person unique. I try to express how something feels to me and transmit that feeling to the people looking at the work."

He said the only good purpose in pointing out that he holds the pencil in his teeth is "maybe it will enlighten somebody else who has a disability to try something he hasn't tried."

He said that if he had followed the advice of the only formal art teacher he ever had, he wouldn't be drawing at all, let alone giving a show.

But Hoganson has never been one to let his handicap hold him back. As a high school senior, he won several speech awards. He enrolled at the University of Nevada, Reno, with a pre-law major and was elected freshman class president. He also did a stint as a radio disc jockey before moving to Sacramento.

He left school after a year and dropped the idea of becoming a lawyer "because I didn't feel fulfilled."

"I have to do something I believe in. I feel good about drawing. This is what I want to do."

Gypsies Turning To Christianity

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — American Gypsies are turning increasingly to Christianity, a church official reports in announcing plans for the first national Gypsy Christian convention scheduled here Sept. 18-25.

Thousands of Gypsies are expected to attend, including participants from Gypsy camps in France and Germany.

The Rev. Patrick O. McLane, representative to the Gypsies for the U.S. Assemblies of God, which is sponsoring the convention, says a major Pentecostal revival among Gypsies in Europe has spread to this country.

He says new Gypsy congregations have formed in California, Arkansas and New Jersey, several of them holding services in Romany, the international Gypsy language. He estimates there are about two million Gypsies in this country.

How Tar Heel Congressmen And Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes September 15-21.

HOUSE
DISTRICT OFFICES — Adopted, 215 for and 193 against, a resolution (H Res 687) entitling each House member to an additional 1,000 square feet in office space back home. As a result of this vote, members are allowed 2,500 square feet spread among three or fewer district offices. The previous maximum was 1,500 square feet.

Sponsors said the resolution would cost about $2 million annually for the entire House. The cost per member varies from district to district, depending on prevailing rental rates. One estimate is that it would range from $4,000 per member per year to $13,600.

House rules permit office-rental allowances not spent on rent to be transferred to any other of the "official business" office accounts. These accounts cover such expenses as long-distance telephone calls, equipment leasing and purchasing, stationery purchases, travel to and from the district, and computerized mailing services. Thus, for some members H Res 687 will provide a general increase in expense allowances rather than just an office-rental increment.

Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), sponsor of the resolution, said failure to pass it "may result in substantial disruption of constituent services or reduction in the accessibility of members to their constituents, overcrowding of staff in district offices, and other hardships, impinging on each of the member's ability to carry on his or her own representation."

Rep. James Cleveland (R-N.H.), an opponent, called the increase "another substantial bonanza" and said: "I think it is very relevant to recite the fact that last Spring the members all got an extra $5,000 and they could use that for rent if they want to. Now they are getting another annual increase... an average of about $8,000."

Members voting "yea" favored larger home-district offices.

Reps. Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5) and Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), Charles Whitley (D-3), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-1) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "nay."

Rep. Charles Rose (D-7) did not vote.

FAST-BREEDER — Rejected, 162 for and 246 against, an amendment to implement President Carter's planned phase-out of the Clinch River fast-breeder nuclear reactor project. The vote was a victory for proponents of the project and a defeat for the President.

The amendment was proposed to HR 6796, an Energy Research and Development authorization bill, later passed and sent to the Senate. Its defeat left intact $150 million for continuing to build the Clinch River plant.

At issue is whether the U.S. government should commit itself to the development of the fast-breeder nuclear technology for generating electricity — a process that produces more plutonium than it consumes. Despite its value as an energy source, Carter has called for a moratorium, largely on grounds that the technology encourages the spread of plutonium and building of nuclear weapons around the world.

Rep. George Brown (D-Calif.), sponsor of the amendment, said that "nuclear fuel reprocessing and the daily shipment of plutonium in commerce does present a greater possibility for the proliferation of weapons than does the present situation which, admittedly, is hazardous enough."

Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr. (R-Calif.), an opponent, said: "The U.S. needs to continue to play the game in developing and refining breeder technology. If we do not, we give up our leadership worldwide. We give up the opportunity to guide the rest of the world in establishing strict guidelines and controls and cooperation."

Members voting "yea" favored the fast-breeder phase-out.

Neal, Preyer, Hefner and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

Rose did not vote.

MINIMUM WAGE — Adopted, 223 for and 193 against, an amendment establishing a three-step increase in the minimum wage in place of the "indexed" increases favored by organized labor. The overall bill (HR 3744) was later passed and sent to the Senate.

This vote was a defeat for labor, which had advocated a new system whereby the minimum wage would rise automatically in proportion to increases in manufacturing wages. This amendment, instead, retained the present system of Congress periodically deciding on increments. It would raise the present $2.30 hourly level to $2.65 in 1978, $2.85 in 1979 and $3.05 in 1980.

Rep. John Erlenborn (R-Ill.), the sponsor, said that to enact indexing rather than his amendment "is to abandon the fight against inflation" and submit to "a mindless, thoughtless rule."

Rep. Jim Wright (D-Tex.), an opponent, said the indexing proposal would "protect those at the very bottom of the economic ladder against the periodic escalations of prices... in a much more systematic, scientific, and effective way than we have been able to do with our catch-ups from time to time."

Members voting "yea" were opposed to "indexing" of the minimum wage.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

SENATE

SACCHARIN BAN — Passed, 87 for and seven against, a bill (S 1750) delaying for 18 months any government ban on the artificial sweetener saccharin. During that period further government studies would be conducted into the link between saccharin usage and cancer in laboratory animals. The bill also requires saccharin products to contain label warnings of the cancer risk. It was sent to the House.

Sen. Richard Schweiker (R-Pa.), a supporter, said: "There is a need for more study of the potential health benefits of saccharin use before it is banned, in order to fully assess the adverse health consequences which may result from... a ban."

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), an opponent, said he originally favored the bill, but would vote against it because a requirement that the health warning be contained in media advertising had been deleted on the Senate floor (see vote below).

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

SACCHARIN BAN — Tabled, 52 for and 42 against, a requirement that during the 18-month period (see vote above) electronic media advertising of saccharin must contain a warning that the additive may cause cancer. A similar requirement for print media advertising also was stricken from the bill (S 1750).

Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.), who favored doing away with the advertising requirement, said "it is unnecessary and ridiculous to go to that extent on the basis of the information and the record we have."

Sen. John Chafee (R-R.I.), an opponent of tabling, said "it is essential that information regarding the risks be made absolutely clear to all consumers... so that people can make a truly informed choice."

Senators voting "nay" favored the mention of the cancer risk in electronic media advertising.

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

ABORTIONS — Tabled, 44 for and 41 against, an anti-abortion amendment proposed to a pending civil rights bill. The bill (S 995), later passed and sent to the House, stipulates that under the 1964 Civil Rights Act sex discrimination based on pregnancy is illegal. More specifically, S 995 would require employers to include pregnancy benefits in their workers' disability plans.

The amendment tabled by this vote sought to exclude abortions as a pregnancy-related medical expense that would be covered under a disability plan.

Sen. Harrison Williams (D-N.J.), a supporter of tabling, said one purpose of S 995 "is to prevent the tragedy of needless and unwanted abortions forced upon a woman because she cannot afford to leave her job without pay to carry out the full term of her pregnancy."

Sen. Thomas Eagleton (D-Mo.), an opponent of tabling, said that "employers who are opposed to abortion should not be forced to... violate their personal moral conscience by financing payments of an abortion (through a disability plan)."

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Ranch Ostrich Back On Scene

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ostrich leather is coming on strong on the high-fashion scene.

Birds used to produce the leather are, like mink, ranch-bred for that purpose.

A new aniline treatment called "saddle" finish makes the leather supple and shiny so it can be used for wearing apparel as well as accessories such as shoes and handbags.

Paris designers like the new finish for jackets, trench coats, boots, greatcoats, hats, suits, bracelets and belts.

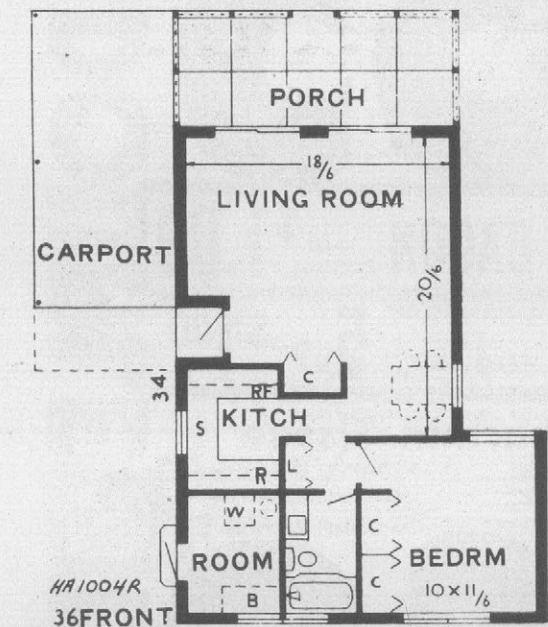

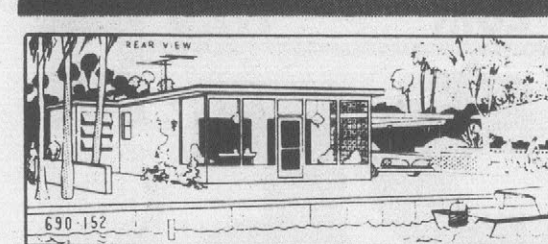

Their favorite colors: forest green, tobacco brown, cognac and dark red. Trim includes mink, beaver, woolen knits and tweeds.

Hermes, for example, shows a four-paneled ostrich leather skirt lightly gathered at the waist, with slit pockets and front buttons. It is worn with a matching bolero, banded and tied loosely over a turtleneck.

TOURIST GARDEN

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — The Taipei city government has approved a reconstruction project which will turn the Yuanshan district, where the famous Grand Hotel is located, into a tourist garden.

Cairo's Old-Style Trash Recycling Still Efficient

By BOB ALLISON
UPI-Financial Times
CAIRO (UPI) — Salah Salen road runs through the middle of old Cairo and then winds its way up the Mokattam Hills and past the citadel, an awesome fortress built here when the crusaders invaded the Arab world.

Around mid-day, looking down from the ramparts, tourists see what looks like an approaching assault by a long,

LIKE WALKING THE DOG — Robert Adams seems unconcerned as Caesar, his pet tarantula, takes a stroll from the top of his head to his nose. Robert, 14, caught five of the hairy spiders, which can chomp a good chunk of flesh but are not deadly poisonous, on his summer vacation in Chino, Calif. He gave away three of them to playmates, but retained Caesar and his mate Cleopatra. How do his parents feel about tarantulas in an aquarium in Robert's bedroom? "Well, my father likes it, but my mother doesn't," he said. (AP Laserphoto)

Courses For Sports-Minded

ECU News Bureau
Instruction in swimming, scuba diving, and basketball officiating is included in this fall's non-credit evening course offerings at East Carolina University.

"Adults Only Swimming," scheduled to meet Tuesdays and Thursdays Oct. 11-Nov. 10 from 7 to 8 p.m., will provide swimming instruction for persons 16 old or older.

Ray Scharf, ECU swim coach and aquatic supervisor, will teach the classes. Safety and swimming skills will be taught, with emphasis on free floating and mechanical principles of the basic strokes.

The scuba course, meeting Tuesdays and Thursdays, Oct. 13-Nov. 8, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m., will prepare swimmers who enjoy water sports to become safe, competent and well-informed divers.

Classes will be taught by Robert Eastep, recognized throughout the southeast as an outstanding scuba instructor. Most class dives will take place in the ECU diving tank, with an additional session to be scheduled in a coastal location.

"Basketball Officiating," set for Mondays, Oct. 10-Nov. 28, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., will provide participants with a working understanding of basketball rules, mechanics, positions and interpretations.

ENROLLMENT UP
KINSTON — Fall quarter registration at Lenoir Community College stands today at 2,050 students, compared with 1,972 at the same point a year ago, Registrar Theron P. Jones says.

What Some Women College Graduates are Wearing

As a woman Air Force ROTC student, you compete for your commission on the same footing as the men in your class. And later on you wear the same insignia.

There are two-year, three-year, and four-year scholarship programs available to help you get there. If you enroll in the four-year Air Force ROTC program you also qualify to compete for a scholarship for the remaining two or three years as a cadet. Tuition is covered, fees are paid, textbook costs reimbursed... plus $100 a month, tax free.

meandering column of charioteers slowly ascending Salah Salem.

The "charioteers" are the Zabaline, Cairo's rubbish collectors. The chariots they drive are large refuse bins mounted on two wheels and pulled by donkeys. They are on their way to the Fustat dump, which is across the road from the citadel.

Now the Zabaline's livelihood is threatened by an American company's proposal to mechanize the collection and disposal of garbage here.

But an Egyptian waste disposal expert, Dr. Sherif El Hakim, has just completed a study of the Zabaline. He concludes that Cairo should keep them and forget about mechanization.

The Zabaline re-cycle all the refuse they collect. They sell it to dealers who reprocess it and convert it into raw materials. This, Hakim argues, is much better than the American or European systems of burning it, which pollutes the air, or making organic fertilizer out of it.

Also, Hakim says, introducing either of these methods here would "disrupt an entire social system and arrest the great number of workshops and industries that have become dependent on the re-cycling of refuse," and it would throw some 40,000 Zabaline out of work.

Egypt is a very poor country and most of its people are just hanging on at the bottom rung of the ladder. The Zabaline are not even on the ladder.

Islam is a democratic religion that treats rich and poor alike, but the Zabaline are an exception. They are treated very much like a caste here. Nearly all of them have come here from the oasis region where life is hard and primitive. They live as squatters in the city dumps, their small mud or stone dwellings awash in rubbish.

But the Fustat dump is not a sight any tourist would want to see. Dozens of filthy, barefoot children scamper about over a litterbed of jagged meat bones, tin cans, broken glass and other trash. During the day they will help their mothers, older brothers and sisters sort the refuse for re-cycling.

Only 40 per cent of the babies born in these dumps survive the first year.

Everything that comes into the dump is sorted and sold to dealers.

Tin goes to the tinsmiths who press it, melt it down, and use it for making spare parts

Burger Meat Is Not For Loaves

CHICAGO (UPI) — The ground beef best for hamburgers, sloppy joes, chili and spaghetti sauce is not the preferred type for meatloaves, meatballs and beef casseroles.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board recommends slightly leaner beef for the latter dishes: with 75-80 per cent lean meat, compared with 70-75 per cent lean for the first four dishes.

The least fatty of all, 80-85 per cent lean, is suggested for low-calorie diets, patties and recipes that combine ground beef with vegetables.

Bones go to glue and paint factories, or sugar refineries where they are turned into carbon for filtering.

Cotton and wool rags are reprocessed for upholstery and blankets. Paper is pressed, reprocessed and re-cycled.

Organic matter is used to feed the pigs which the Muslim Zabaline raise for the pork-eating Coptic Christians. It is a closed circuit system — waste to products, products to waste, and waste to products again.

Dr. Hakim argues that this leak-proof re-cycling system is more effective, less expensive and less troublesome than any modern mechanical disposal system now in use.

He points out that New York, with the same population as Cairo's, must destroy some 12,000 tons of domestic waste every day. Removing and burning it have become a very technical and complicated operation which also contributes to air pollution.

Cairo, on the other hand, pays nothing for its waste disposal system. It is financed by the people who use it and by sale of the waste material.

Crowded, Noisy Peking Train Cheaper 'Psychiatrists' Subway 'Neat' System

SUBWAY STATION—This is the entrance to the Military Museum Station in Peking, where subways are crowded and noisy but "function beautifully as a means of public transportation," in the view of Hiroo Hashimoto, managing director of Tokyo's Teito Rapid Transit Authority, who rode the subway in the Chinese capital on a visit to Peking.

By KOICHI ISHIYAMA
TOKYO (AP) — Like subways in other places, the 24-kilometer (15-mile) line in Peking is crowded and noisy, but it makes up a "neat" underground transport system, according to a Japanese subway expert.

Hiroo Hashimoto, the 61-year-old managing director of Tokyo's Teito Rapid Transit Authority, visited China recently and got a first-hand look at the Peking subway, a sight often denied foreign visitors.

The subway in the Chinese capital was opened in October, 1969, and runs between Peking Station and Ping Kuo Station on the western outskirts of the city. Hashimoto said he was told it carried an average of 80,000 people a day, while a bus system transported a million people daily.

The Japanese expert said he was surprised to hear Chinese officials say that "bicycles, which number 2.43 million in Peking alone, are interfering with public transportation and are really a headache from the point of over-all municipal traffic policy."

Hashimoto said he was told Peking's present population was about 8.25 million.

The visit to the subway took place during a tour of the city recently and was arranged by the Peking Revolutionary Committee, a municipal governing body, Hashimoto said. He and an interpreter were taken to the Military Museum Station, where Li Yun-an of the committee's traffic department met them.

Hashimoto said he paid the regular fare of one chiao (six cents) to enter the subway and rode an escalator to the platform. A four-coach train, entirely empty, pulled in.

"It was a special arrangement for me and I was flattered," Hashimoto said in an interview with The Associated Press.

He said Li told him the four-coach trains usually ran at intervals of 15 minutes and were powered by a third rail.

"Li told me they have not started to use electronic equipment like the automatic transport control (ATC) yet," Hashimoto said, "but wanted to learn from Japanese technology and they are now studying how to lower the level of the noise inside."

"The wheels are made of steel and it is a neat train, but noisy inside just like a Japanese train," he added.

He said Li explained "triumphantly" that the Peking subway is "totally the achievement of Chinese workers — an example of self reliance."

After inspecting and riding on the special train, Hashimoto asked his guide if he could see an actual commuter train in operation. Permission was granted immediately, he said, and their train stopped at Hsuan Wu Men Station, one stop from Peking Station. A regular train pulled up at 10 a.m., well past the rush hour.

Hashimoto said it was fairly packed and that Li told him that during busier periods the trains carry "two or 2½ times more people than they are designed to carry."

"I was happy to know this,"

Hashimoto said, "because this is also true in Japan. But I wondered why they did not run as many trains as we do."

Tokyo's subways usually run an eight-coach train every two minutes during rush hours.

The subway expert said he didn't believe the underground rail system in Peking was intended to serve as a giant air raid shelter. There has been some speculation on this because a number of foreigners have said they were barred from riding on or seeing the subway system during visits to China.

"The subway functions beautifully as a means of public transportation," Hashimoto said. "If the people have to shelter from a bomb blast, they can hide in real shelters under their offices or schools, not under the public transportation."

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
EL CAJON (UPI) — Bartenders can be good psychiatrists — and they're cheaper.

Hairdressers are logical people with whom to talk out personal problems.

Based on these theories the Crisis House in El Cajon successfully won a $35,000 grant last year to train cosmetologists and bartenders how to become "helpers" in the community.

The six-month pilot program has now been completed and there are 61 cosmetologists and 14 bartenders out there who know how to be helpful without interfering.

"This was not training in therapy," says Andy Thompson, the program director. The course was designed to provide training in communication and to alert the students to the community resources which are available. The whole idea is to recognize a problem and steer the customer to help without intruding.

Already the new community helpers have reported success. A bar customer talked of suicide. The understanding bartender alerted police, and they arrived at the customer's apartment shortly after he had taken an overdose of drugs. He was saved.

A cancer victim received new insight in coping with the disease from her hairdresser. A drug user, a new divorcee, a recent widower — all are examples of people who need people, and who turned to their bartender or cosmetologist.

Why? Thompson says with hairdressers the reason may be "that touching can be quite comforting, and may promote a relaxed and gentle atmosphere. Another reason is the accepting attitude of the cosmetologist. It is this atmosphere of touching and accepting that seems to provide the motivation for opening up with the cosmetologist."

And with bartenders he says: "It seems to be the bartender, the atmosphere of the bar itself, coupled with alcohol, that promotes discussion of one's personal life. There also exists a social notion that bartenders are on an equal plane with psychiatrists — and less expensive."

Once they returned to their bars and the beauty salons, the newly trained "listeners" were asked to keep records of their customer relationships.

In six months they used their new-found knowledge in 2,701 instances — 75 per cent of them involving women.

They had been counseled to expect and to recognize a wide range of human emotions ranging from fear to happiness.

The statistics show that 29 per cent of their contacts were fearful, 26 were sad, and nearly 47 per cent came to the bar or shop with personal problems. Problems with children were most frequent, followed by problems with spouses.

Bartenders tended to hear more drug-related problems than the hairdressers.

Some of the students were asked how their attitudes were changed by the training. "I was more interested in their hair than their problems," wrote one, "now I'm a better shoulder to lean on."

"I listen more now, and I'm not as anxious to give advice," said another, "I don't impose my own 'shoulds' and 'oughts'."

Thompson insists the training program is not to encourage the men and women to "give advice, judgment, condemnation, or to be admonishing, directing, evaluating, persuading, blaming, interrogating, nor to offer sarcasm, moralizing or preaching."

Those things are easy for anyone to do — that there are many pitfalls involved. That's why the participants were counseled to "offer acceptance, support and sharing."

One typical customer reaction was, "I was seeing a psychiatrist (or psychologist) but I get more from coming here and talking to you than I get from paying them to sit and listen to me."

In training lay people how to offer a shoulder to lean on, Thompson says, it is not the intent to take business away from the professionals. But there is a need, he says, to offer an alternative "to those people who will continue to select persons they perceive to be trustworthy and seek help."

Letter Cancels Prosecution

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A confessed 15-year-old pomegranate thief was told by County Sheriff Deputy David Miller that he wouldn't have to go to juvenile court if he wrote a letter about the fruit.

Salt Lake County Sheriff's Deputy David Miller said Monday that he had received the letter from the shoplifter, whom he described as genuinely contrite, and that he would keep his word not to prosecute.

"I think they must have grown it just for my taste buds," the teen-ager wrote. "It was sweet, but not too sweet, ripe, but not rotten and was so good that I wanted to eat the paper towel that had the juice on it. The pomegranate was scrumptious, delicious, perfect, juicy, hard, sweet, purple and fairly decent."

The $50,000 you'll spend on cars: How to manage it.

From 1929 to 1977, an "average American" 65 years old could have spent some $50,000 buying all the cars you see here.

And probably borrowed a lot of money for them, since two out of three people buy "on time."

Chances are, you'll be borrowing a lot of money, too.

That's why the people who make loans at NCNB will help out any way they can.

For example, leasing may make more sense for you than buying.

Maybe a longer-term loan will fit your budget better than a regular-term auto loan.

Maybe you're spending too much to get your old car ready for trade-in. (Ask for information on this.)

All told, there's a lot to consider before you buy. So come see us.

We can talk over your financial situation and give you an estimate of the money we'll lend you.

We'll give you a fast, direct answer; not a runaround. If you like, we can check your credit in advance, so that we need just a few details when you decide on a car.

We'll work out the payment plan that works best for you. (If you like, even automatic payments from your NCNB Checking Account.)

In short, we make things easier for you. Which is probably why we lend money to more people than any other bank in North Carolina.

What's more, we want to be your only bank. And, we figure, the more help we can give you on a loan, the more likely you are to come to us with your checking, savings and other accounts, too.

So come see us and see how a bank operates when it wants to be your only bank.

Children's Injury Rate

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — Accidents involving motor vehicles accounted for 82 per cent of pelvic fractures in children, according to an X-ray and patients' chart survey conducted by a radiologist in this Canadian city.

The study, conducted between 1966 and 1974, found that in nearly two-thirds of the accidents, the child was a pedestrian. Other studies already show that adults have fewer pedestrian injuries than children.

In his study, Dr. Martin H. Reed of the Health Sciences Children's Center reviewed the radiographs and charts of all patients 16 years of age and younger that were seen with pelvic fractures at the hospital.

During the nine-year study period, Dr. Reed found 84 vehicle-related pelvic fractures.

Although pelvic fractures represent less than five percent of all children's injuries at the hospital, Dr. Reed says, "they are important because they contribute significantly to morbidity and mortality in severe trauma and are often associated with other serious injuries."

Young Members Inducted Into Honor Listing

Dr. Barry Bagwell, pastor of People's Baptist Temple here, announced today that several of the Church's young members have been inducted into The Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

Inducted were Teresa Hedgepeth, Tim Sutton, Steve Tyburski and David Woodard. The students were chosen because of their excellence and leadership in church and civic achievements, according to Dr. Bagwell.

The National Awards Program is sponsored by 21 colleges and thousands of dollars in scholarship funds from these colleges are made available to Society members.

The Society's Membership Registry is published annually and these four students' names will be included this year.
