It was suggested that the two nominees who were elected by the faculty for the Editor-in-chief of the Training School Magazine be voted on for assistant Editor. Some disapproved, so it was left over for a call meeting.

Nominations were then in order for President. Nannie Mae Brown and Lucile Bullock were nominated, and Nannie Mae Brown was elected.

The report from the critic was very good.

The meeting then adjourned.

14. On May 27, 1916 the last regular meeting of the E. A. Poe Society was held for the year 1915-1916. The meeting was called to order by our newly elected Pres., Nannie Mae Brown. The roll was called and the minutes read and approved

Marguerite Wallace, and Elizabeth Sutherland were appointed by the Pres. to work on the entertainment committee for June 3, 1916, and Lucile O'Brian was elected to work on the refreshment committee.

Then the names of the girls who were nominated by the faculty to be the Associate Editor of the Training School Magazine was voted upon. The nominees were Sallie Frank, Lucile Bullock, and Jessie Bishop. Sallie Frank was elected. The Pres. stated that she and the Inter-society member had seen Mr. Wright about the play for next year. He did not give a definite answer as he had to put it before faculty.

Then Miss Brinson, our former Pres., was asked to leave the room, and it was moved and seconded that the Society take
