

Recovery Stimulus Slow, Says Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the nation's unemployment rate has leveled off at 7 percent and that he does not think his economic stimulus program can begin to have a substantial impact before next year.

"It's a tedious, slow process," the president told a nationally broadcast news conference.

Carter said the "general worldwide economic slowdown" is causing unemployment problems in all nations, a situation he said he hopes will improve next year.

Carter noted that the economic stimulus package passed by Congress early this year contains $21 billion for programs designed to reduce joblessness. He said the full amount would not be pumped into the economy until next June.

Carter also said he expects to endorse within a few days a modified version of full-employment legislation that has been an issue since the 1976 presidential campaign.

The bill sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., sets a goal of an adult unemployment rate no higher than 4 percent within five years and would have the government provide jobs for people who couldn't find them otherwise. Carter said he agrees with the concept and his staff is negotiating changes in the details of the legislation.

On the Middle East, Carter expressed concern about "this new outburst of violence" on the Israel-Lebanon border, but he said he is not condemning Israel for what he described as retaliation for terrorist attacks.

"If the provocation was absent, the retaliation would have been unnecessary," he said, then adding that "the bloodshed, in my opinion, will not be stopped until the nations are willing to negotiate."

Mostly Civilian Victims Of Lebanon Border Raids

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The casualty toll from Israel's air attack on southwest Lebanon mounted today to more than 100 dead and 150 wounded, most of them civilians, and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin said "we regret it very deeply."

But Begin, who summoned U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis to his Jerusalem office to express regrets for civilian deaths in the cross-border reprisal raid Wednesday, told reporters, "we do not apologize for the operation itself."

Lebanese and Palestinian searchers dug deeper into the rubble left by the raiding Israeli warplanes as the Lebanese government announced the death toll had passed the 100 mark.

The governor's office in Sidon, the provincial capital of South Lebanon, also reported 150 wounded in the bombing and strafing of villages and Palestinian refugee camps in southwest Lebanon.

Officials said at least 80 percent of the casualties were civilians and most of them were Lebanese.

The Lebanese government charged that the attack was "overt aggression" and said it would bring it to the attention of the U.N. Security Council.

The Syrian government radio accused the Israelis of a "deliberate attempt to further obstruct American peacemaking efforts in the Middle East."

Despite Israel's claim that its air force attacked only Palestinian military targets, foreign correspondents who toured devastated villages and a refugee camp found no evidence of guerrilla positions.

"Why have they killed our innocent babies? The wrath of God on the cursed Israeli pilots!" said a Palestinian woman weeping for nine dead children in the infirmary at the Burj el Shimali refugee camp.

Foreign reporters visited the camp and the ruins of nearby Azzieh, six miles north of the border. They found all 30 houses in the village had been demolished, and 50 huts in the camp had been destroyed.

One resident of the camp,

Aly Yacoub, said the toll would have been much worse had the planes come 15 minutes earlier, before people left for work.

Yacoub said his wife and daughter had been killed when bombs hit their house.

The nearby village of Hanieh also was completely destroyed. Survivors said bodies were still buried in the rubble.

Bomb craters 10 yards wide pocked the area, over which survivors said at least a dozen Israeli planes made repeated runs.

"The gates of hell opened and it was as if the fire started to pour down on this place," said 16-year-old Jebel Shebli. "It seemed to be raining fire."

Seek Time To Study Bids On Parking Deck

The city is asking the apparent low bidders on the proposed downtown parking deck to extend their bid deadlines so that the bids, which are over budget appropriations, can be reviewed in detail and alternate financing possibilities explored.

Meeting Wednesday in a special call session, the City Council discussed the parking deck bids and directed City Manager Jim Caldwell to seek a delay from the contractors on their deadline, which expired today.

The original bids, opened Oct. 11, involved the apparent low offer on the general construction in the amount of $347,000 submitted by J. H. Hudson Inc. In addition, Stuart Shinn Inc. offered a bid of $26,500 on the electrical contract.

The bids, it was pointed out, were some $110,000 over budget appropriations. Since the bid opening, negotiations have been underway with the contractors and through changes and elimination of various factors, the general construction bid has been reduced to $301,155 and the electrical figure to $18,590.

Even with the changes, the bids are still $55,000 over the budget allocations for the deck, proposed for construction at the southwest corner of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Representatives of the Downtown Greenville Association, appearing at the meeting, urged the Council to work on alternatives to find the needed funding and retain the deck construction.

Plans call for the parking deck to be a two-level facility and offer 147 parking spaces. The present parking lot at Fourth and Cotanche has 84 spaces.

In a second item on the agenda, the Council accepted the low bids for paving portions of Fourth Street and Brownlea Drive.

The bid of Barrus Construction Co. for $2.11 per square yard was accepted for the Fourth Street segment from Hilltop easterly to Hickory Street. L. A. Reynolds offered a bid of $2.24 per square yard for the work.

On the portion of Brownlea Drive from Tenth Street southerly approximately 1,335 feet, Reynolds offered a low bid of $5.16 per square yard while Barrus submitted a bid of $5.30.

The contracts call for the furnishing of labor, materials, and equipment necessary to pave the street sections.

Autumn Blizzard Churns Across Upper Midwest

By FREDERICK STANDISH
Associated Press Writer

An autumn blizzard churned across the upper Midwest today, dumping up to 10 inches of snow, stranding hundreds of motorists and closing stores, industries and schools.

Two deaths were blamed on the storm in Minnesota.

The Minneapolis-St. Paul area braced for high winds and up to three inches of snow by tonight, and travelers' warnings and snow predictions were posted in Minnesota, Iowa and northwest Wisconsin.

The National Weather Service said the blizzard is the worst on record for this time of year.

John Graf, meteorologist at the weather service office in Minneapolis, said "very critical" weather conditions would continue through today because of the "sluggish" system.

Blizzard warnings posted Wednesday remained in effect today in northwestern portions of Minnesota. Snowfall had tapered off, but gusty winds blew drifts up to six feet deep.

Officials said the body of an unidentified elderly man was found Wednesday in snow in the Fergus Falls area, near the North Dakota border.

At Thief River Falls, Mike Muzzy, 23, was crushed by snow-removing equipment on Wednesday.

Most of the storm's punch — with winds gusting to 65 mph — was absorbed Wednesday by western Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa and the Dakotas.

Winds knocked down the top 600 feet of the 700-foot transmitting tower of KRSW, the FM station of Southwestern Minnesota Public Radio, south of Chandler.

The Minnesota National Guard set up emergency shelters Wednesday and looked for people stranded in the hardest hit areas of the state.

Fifty cars were stuck in deep snow along Interstate 94 near Fergus Falls. The sheriff's office said two turkey trucks were among vehicles stranded on state Highway 210 and many of the birds froze to death.

Hotels and motels were crowded Wednesday night.

"We've got strangers ... sharing rooms," said Roger Dohrmann, manager of the Castaway Hotel and Restaurant in Detroit Lakes, Minn.

Tobacco Supports Said Too Strong

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top health official says he's giving up his efforts to end the federal price-support program for tobacco. But he calls smoking "slow-motion suicide" and says he's going forward with plans for a strong antismoking campaign.

Joseph A. Califano, U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told newsmen Wednesday that the program, which has the endorsement of President Carter and U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, is too strong to dismantle.

"It is clear to me there is nothing I can do to eliminate the tobacco subsidy," he said.

An HEW task force recently prepared a list of 35 possible federal actions against the nation's smoking habits, among them a phase-out of price supports for tobacco. Farmers knocked out of business, the report said, could be helped with food stamps and Medicaid while they switched to other crops.

The report created a considerable stir in tobacco-producing states. Bergland reemphasized his support for the program and noted Carter had promised not to tamper with tobacco price supports. Califano had to back down.

"I'm not going to tilt at that windmill," he said.

But the secretary said he would proceed with other steps to discourage smoking, which may include:

- Stronger health warnings on cigarette packages.
- Higher federal cigarette taxes.
- A smoking prevention program in public schools.
- Stronger restrictions on smoking in public places.
- More government authority over "harmful substances" in cigarettes.
- A national anti-smoking day.

Bitter Confrontation At Retardation Center

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The O'Berry Mental Retardation Center here was the scene Wednesday of a bitter confrontation between center director Jose M. deVarona and critics who say he is responsible for unsafe facilities, low employee morale and inadequate staff supervision.

A patient died four months ago of a drug overdose after being scalded in a shower and another was poisoned last month with cleaning fluid stored in a prune juice jar.

"I have dedicated my life to this institution," deVarona said in a one-hour response to his critics. "There are things wrong here, that's true. But not the way you present it; not the way you say."

The critics were led by former members of the center's state-appointed human rights committee who had been dropped from the panel at deVarona's recommendation.

Also present was Thomas King of Durham, whose daughter was the one who died of the drug overdose. State Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow and her aides listened to both sides.

"It is appalling to me to see that these conditions still exist some four months after my daughter's death," he said.

Plead Guilty To Illegal Hunting

Two Greenville men pled guilty in District Court here yesterday to charges of firelighting deer and taking doe deer in closed season.

Rexford E. Piner Jr., 23 of 1312 Santee St., and William Saunders, 19 of 408 Olde London Inn were arrested about 3 a.m. November 5 in the Calico area by Wildlife enforcement officers from Pitt, Lenoir, Greene and Duplin Counties.

Judge Herbert Phillips yesterday ordered the two to pay $200 and costs of court in the firelighting charge and ordered the rifle and lights used confiscated.

Judge Phillips ordered the pair to pay $100 fines and court costs for taking doe deer out of season and ordered their hunting licenses revoked.

Wildlife enforcement officer K. J. Dunn said Piner and Saunders were arrested 4½ hours after three other Pitt County men were taken into custody on similar charges at the same location.

Dunn said Willie Ray Scott of Route 2, Greenville; Charles Richard David of Route 1, Winterville; and Jeff Miller of near Farmville, were charged with firelighting about 10:30 p.m. November 4, after allegedly shooting a doe deer.

Scott, David and Miller were placed under $750 bond each for appearance in District Court November 23.

North, South Carolina Agree On Boundaries

COLUMBIA (AP) — South Carolina and North Carolina were able to come to an agreement over the ocean boundary between the two states because they agree on their land boundary. That is not the case with South Carolina and Georgia, said South Carolina state Sen. James M. Waddell.

Waddell, chairman of the state Boundary Commission, said it was easy to establish the North Carolina-South Carolina boundary, using historical land lines.

"Our problem with Georgia is not being able to establish an inland boundary, and until we establish an inland boundary, we can't establish a boundary into the ocean," he said.

Georgia and South Carolina have long disagreed on where the line between the two states should be drawn. The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to hear a suit filed by Georgia in an attempt to settle the matter.

At stake in the border questions, are fishing rights and possible federal funds awarded when the U.S. government allows oil exploration off the coast.

North Carolina and South Carolina avoided any possible jurisdictional disputes by agreeing to extend the land boundary of the two states three miles into the Atlantic Ocean.

"This is a very equitable and a very logical agreement. We're simply extending the existing land boundary (established in 1926) out to the three-mile limit," Waddell, D-Beaufort, said during a news conference Wednesday. He was accompanied by North Carolina Sen. Luther J. Britt, D-Lumberton.

The boundary agreed upon by the two states will extend in a straight line from the Little River inlet to three miles offshore. States will have jurisdiction over fishing and other activities up to three miles from their coastlines.

Britt, head of the North Carolina Boundary Commission, said the agreement must be presented to Gov. Jim Hunt for approval.

Also, the South Carolina Legislature must approve the agreement before it goes before Congress for ratification.

Waddell and Britt said the boundary agreement would have no effect on fishermen in the two states. They will continue to fish where they always have, Waddell said.

HEAD LICE TREATMENT?

In all the newspaper and tv and radio items about the presence of head lice in some of our schools, it's been said that the treatment is "specific and simple," but I've never heard exactly what it is. What is it? Mrs. J. S.

Karen Albertson, a Health Investigator with the Pitt County Health Department, said the treatment procedure for head lice is as follows: Remove all clothing. Apply, according to directions, a treatment shampoo that may be bought at almost any drug store. Three brands of pediculicide (lice killer) shampoo are Rid, X-Pyre and A-200 Pyrinate. Put on clean clothing. With a fine-toothed comb, once hair is dry, remove nits (lice eggs).

Retreat after 48 hours, which should be long enough for nits that have been left to hatch. Retreat again after a week.

It's suggested that the entire family of the infected person use the treatment shampoo at the same time.

All soiled clothes and bed linens in the house should be washed in hot water. Combs and brushes and other articles which might have come into contact with the hair of the infected person should be washed in a disinfectant solution. Rugs and furniture should be vacuum cleaned and-or washed and vacuum cleaner bag contents should be emptied outside the house promptly. Insecticide sprays also may be used when no one is in the house.

Ms. Albertson said she understands that some school principals are letting infected children back into school once their treatment is completed. (All are being checked by teachers and school nurses and sent home as lice are discovered.) Some principals are requiring some proof, such as a note from a parent stating that the treatment has been done or a box top from the treatment shampoo, she said.

She said she has been told the cost of the treatment shampoo is between $2 and $3.

No Mrs. Bridges Is Needed In This Titled Household

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Pamela Colin left New York for London 14 years ago to work for British "Vogue" magazine and eventually marry the 5th Baron Harlech, she little dreamed she would write a cookbook.

The American-born author never learned to cook at home. Her mother, wife of wealthy attorney-art collector Ralph Colin, never had to cook.

But "she knew all about the chemistry of foods," said Lady Harlech, here on a nationwide tour to promote "Feast Without Fuss" (Atheneum, $12.95).

"I gradually learned to cook from friends in London and it finally became a passion, resulting in my library of 500 cookbooks, some of them old and rare. I do all my own cooking in England, which is fortunate in view of the simpler way of life there."

Lady Harlech referred to the contrasts in post-World War II Britain, "where household help is hard to find and afford," and the pre-war era of bountiful help. She said her mother-in-law, a member of the historic Cecil family, had a Shropshire country house with 42 guest bedrooms and over 50 servants.

"Now she has only a housekeeper," said Lady Harlech, "but she has been able to adjust, and she's 86."

"I don't have any help in the kitchen in our house in London or our country house, a 17th century manor in North Wales, and I manage quite well. We have smaller dinners than we used to, of course, and never formal. We tend to live in our big kitchen when we are alone in the country."

The author's husband is TV executive David Ormsby-Gore, Lord Harlech, former British ambassador to Washington and one-time escort of the widowed Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Her book is designed for hostesses who want to remain in the living room with guests before dinner.

Approximate cooking times of under one hour, one to two hours, and over two hours are given with each recipe. Each also is identified as easy, moderately difficult or difficult. Dishes suitable for freezing are marked.

"Organization is the key to feasting without fuss," said the animated, stylish brunette. "That's why I've included sections on planning a kitchen, essential utensils, and how to store them, and using herbs and spices intelligently."

"It should help women like me who have both a career and a family to have good food without hysteria. I wish someone had written a book like this for me years ago."

Lady Harlech said she spent four months "translating" the book into idiomatic American English and changing such terms as aubergine to eggplant and courgette to squash.

Many of the recipes bear veddy social British names — the Earl of Gowrie's omelette en cocotte, Mrs. Jeanette de Rothschild's special stuffing, Lady Victoria Waymouth's burnt ice cream. The author denied doing this for "snob appeal." She said she obtained the recipes while interviewing notables for "Vogue" and felt it dishonest not to give credit. She writes a monthly food column for the magazine.

Lady Harlech is also a businesswoman. She designs for a travel and bedroom accessories firm she owns, and for Laura Ashley, a top accessories designer in Europe. In addition, she sits on the executive committee of London's prestigious Tate Art Gallery, of which her husband is a trustee.

Among her unusual recipes are salmon kedgeree (a spicy rice casserole), sweet and sour parsnips, and spareribs in beer marinade.

"If a hostess makes a determined effort to select good fresh materials; if she can depend on good roast meats, poultry and game, well-cooked vegetables and fish, and a half dozen dishes that are peculiarly her own specialties, she will give great pleasure to her friends," said Lady Harlech.

Some other tips: — Never make a new dish for friends without trying it out on yourself.

— If a dish is a particular success, don't be afraid to serve it again to the same guests.

— Take care in inviting guests. If you can't find a good reason for inviting certain guests, or if they do not contribute to conversation and a general feeling of ease, leave them out.

Conference Report Given

A report on the fall conference was given at the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary.

The meeting was attended by Mrs. Lois Dail, Mrs. Etta Gill and Mrs. Sarah Ashton.

Mrs. Ashton expressed appreciation to members who helped with the Division I meeting. The unit voted to adopt a patient through the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

Gifts for Operation Santa Claus were brought to the meeting and the Christmas party will be on Dec. 1. Members of Post No. 39 will be invited to the covered-dish dinner. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Ashton by Nov. 20.

The members will cater a Christmas luncheon Dec. 8 for the Elm Street and the Roanoke Rapids Senior Citizens Clubs.

Mrs. Dail reported $124.51 in the nursing scholarship fund. Several donations were made in memory of Mrs. Nita Whichard. Mrs. Dail, department chaplain, held a memorial service in memory of Mrs. Whichard.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Janie Adams and Mrs. Faye Adams.

WINTERIZE RECREATIONAL VEHICLE

Prepare a camper or trailer for cold weather storage. Take out and launder all bedding, table linens and clothing. Pack them in cartons, label contents and place in a dry area for next season, if used strictly for warm weather fun.

It is important to remove all food. Clean and defrost refrigerator leaving door ajar. Clean range, all washable surfaces, including counters, walls, vents, filters, with detergent or soap suds, rinse. Make sure everything is completely dry before closing up the vehicle.

Check owner's manual for winterizing a camper or trailer. All water must be drained. Add antifreeze as recommended in toilet holding tank and sink traps. Have battery up to full charge and extremely cold climates, remove it. Unplug, or disconnect all appliances.

Be sure exterior is sound and sealed with caulking to keep out insects and rodents. If necessary, coat roof with a fibrous aluminum paint. Cover air conditioner with a breathable cover. When all is in order, lock the unit and jack up onto blocks to remove weight from tires.

KEEP LUGGAGE IN GOOD CONDITION

Traveling has become a way of life, and, whether for weekly or monthly excursions, luggage tends to get a workout! Proper care is important, in order to keep suitcases in good shape.

The kind of maintenance depends on the construction material. Where combinations are used, each material may call for separate attention. The Soap and Detergent Association offers some tips on refurbishing some of the most common types of surfaces:

Smooth leather may be cleaned with saddle soap, then rubbed with paste wax or neutral shoe cream. Lemon oil can be applied to shade brown leather to a darker hue.

Vinyl and other plastics are popular, durable and come in many colors and textures. Washing with a sudsy sponge or cloth, then wiping with liquid wax to protect the surface is generally all the care needed. There are special vinyl cleaners available as well.

Fabric luggage requires suds and water care. For those fabrics coated with stain repellent or clear plastic, treat heavy soil with a solution of 2 tablespoons of ammonia of liquid wax. Use a spot remover for stains on uncoated fabric. After cleaning, it may be helpful to coat fabric with a stain-or water-repellent finish.

Fiberglass may also be sponged with suds. Fine steel wool will remove scratches and scuffs. Be sure to rinse thoroughly.

Metal suitcases should be cleaned with cleaning solvent designed for the metal.

Be sure pieces are completely dry before washing or applying stain and or water-repellent sprays.

Linings are cleaned according to fabric content and manufacturer's instructions. If water can be used on coated or uncoated fabrics, apply as little water as possible to prevent mildew. Dry thoroughly before closing luggage. Linings can be protected from soil by placing shoes and dirty laundry in plastic bags before packing. An unwrapped bar of soap keeps the interior of a suitcase fresh-smelling.

To store place clean, dry luggage upright, away from extremes in temperature and humidity. Smaller pieces can be placed inside larger cases to save space. Fitted covers, plastic or paper wrappings help protect stored luggage.

Benefit Bridge Set For Friday

The Arts Department of the Greenville Woman's Club will sponsor a benefit bridge at the club building Friday from 2-5 p.m.

The proceeds will be used for the promotion of the arts projects for the students of Greenville and Pitt County. Included in the projects are scholarships for high school and college level, Arts Festivals on the local, district and state levels, Creative Writing Contest and Author's Luncheon.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The other night as my husband and I readied for bed, he said, "Are all the cars in?"

"The VW is spending the night at a friend's house," I said. "The Pinto had a bad night and is getting a tune-up, and the gas guzzler is cramming for an emissions test."

"What time does the van want to get rolling in the morning?" "Early, he's meeting the jeep at the garage."

I turned to him, "When did we start speaking automotive fluently?"

He thought for a moment. "That's all we talk about anymore, isn't it?"

I nodded. "What's happened to the American family? Our daughter never says hello anymore. All she ever says is, 'My transmission sounds funny.'"

"When was the last time our son ever sat down and discussed anything except his loose tailpipe?"

"Our entire life revolves around insurance rates, repairs, payments, estimates and oil change. We never say anything meaningful anymore."

"All our friends do it...at least the ones with teenagers. Do you realize we spent the entire weekend discussing battery warranties and special insurance discounts?"

"Yeah, incidentally, we should look into the company that offers a discount if a kid is kind to his mother and doesn't bite his nails."

"There you go again," I said. "I'm sick of being just another pretty mustang. I want this family to have some identity again."

Just then our son stopped by the bedroom. "Can someone give me a ride to the service station tomorrow? I need a tune-up."

"You look thin," I observed. "Speaking of weight, Dad, what oil should I use?" "Talk to me, son, I'm your mother. What have you been doing lately?"

"I cleaned my spark plugs, rotated my tires, and I think I've met the motor I want to spend the rest of my life with."

Our daughter joined us. "Aren't you going to speak to your sister?" I asked irritably. "You're idling a little ragged."

She looked at him suspiciously. "What do you want?"

You only talk nice to me when you want something."

Athlete Would Rather Be Woman

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old born-again Christian. I studied for the priesthood, but dropped out because I felt I wasn't "good" enough to serve the Lord while living a lie. I am now in training to be a male nurse.

The lie I am living is that I have always wanted to be a woman. I FEEL like a woman inside. I love all feminine activities—cooking, sewing, decorating—yet I am very athletic. I was encouraged to try out for the U.S. Olympic Track Team. (I broke many records in high school.) I detest hunting and fishing; never could I kill a living thing.

I am not a homosexual, but this desire to live as a woman is about to destroy me. Where can I get a sex change operation? I will go anywhere. How much would one cost? I will save a lifetime if necessary. I would rather be dead than go on living like this.

If the Lord really loves me, why did he give me a man's body with all the feelings and desires of a woman? I have felt this way as long as I can remember. Please help me.

MISERABLE IN MAINE

DEAR MISERABLE: The Lord created all of us, and why He gave you a man's body, but the feelings of a woman, I do not know. Nature sometimes makes biological blunders, as is the case when one's body does not conform with his (or her) natural feelings. You are not alone. Don't feel guilty. One cannot help what he feels.

I believe that knowledge, skill and talent are divinely inspired, and that those scientists, physicians and surgeons whose combined efforts have made sex-change surgery possible, do so with God's guidance. For information about sex-reassignment surgery and related problems, write to:

There is a non-profit help agency for people such as yourself, so please send a stamped self-addressed envelope for their reply, and tell them Abby told you to write. All correspondence between you will be strictly confidential. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you recounted the instance of a woman who was trying to talk her boyfriend into going with her to a nudist retreat. (He wasn't too keen on the idea.) Do you suppose she just wanted to air their differences?

FURRUM, VA.

DEAR FURRUM: Either that, or just bare them.

Wild Horse 'Adoptable' In Oregon

By LINDA KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—It's not always easy being a foster parent, especially if your ward is a wild horse.

They eat just about anything in sight, but turn up their noses at handouts of oats and barley. And the unwary new owner may get a few bruises and nips in the process of establishing a proper parental relationship.

Thousands of wild horses facing starvation on the country's drought-stricken Western ranges have been corralled by the federal government and put up for adoption. Horses can be shot or sold because they are protected by the Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act of 1971.

"You have to keep your eyes on them," said Jay Sheffer, 33, owner of two wild horses.

"They may try to nip at you a little bit at first. My colt got me on the butt the other day, but it didn't hurt much."

He got the horses by filling out an Adopt-A-Horse application attesting to his ability to care for them. The only cost was transportation to pick up the horses at a government corral in eastern Oregon.

Sheffer, a bank vice president, keeps the colt and a 5-year-old mare on his 22-acre home about 45 miles from Portland. They broke through the first corral he built and destroyed several neighbors' fences before they were recaptured.

He said the horses are not ready to learn when you walk up that you're not going to do anything so they don't roar off and charge fences.

Larry Lee, wild horse coordinator for the Bureau of Land Management in Oregon and Washington, said most people have been very happy with the horses and many come back for more.

He said a Eugene, Ore. man is helping the bureau by running his own adoption service. He gets the horses, breaks them in and then helps find them homes, charging only a fee to cover his expenses.

Lee said more than 1,000 horses rounded up in eastern Oregon have been adopted since the program began in 1974. Hundreds more are in corrals at Vale and Burns, including some aging studs that Lee described as the "hard to place" cases.

Del and Norma Wiley of Portland adopted one of the studs along with a mare and a colt. They keep the horses in a pasture near the edge of city.

"I was kind of scared to get a wild horse because I figured they'd be mean and all that," said Mrs. Wiley, 40. They were a little bullheaded at first, but they came around."

Her 20-year-old daughter Roberta, said she rides the horses almost every day.

Bible Awareness Effort Pushed

Good News North Carolina is a state-wide Bible awareness project sponsored by over 20 denominations with the help of the American Bible Society.

The local ministerial association is sponsoring a Good News Week in Farmville beginning Sunday and continuing through Nov. 20.

In addition to displays of Bibles and scripture portion cards in the public library and other public areas, a community wide Bible awareness program will be held in the First Christian Church fellowship hall Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. An audio-visual presentation and discussion will highlight each program. The public is invited to participate.

"The Good News Bible" is on sale at various churches. For information call 753-3370.

Begin Revival Series Friday

FARMVILLE — The Beacon Free Will Baptist Church in Farmville will hold revival Nov. 11-13.

Evangelist Tim Thompson of Jacksonville will be guest speaker. Thompson is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tenn.

All services begin at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

The Real Villain: Paperwork

It seems nothing short of incredible to us that it requires 15 forms to complete one Aid to Families with Dependent Children application.

That is what Director of Social Services Dorothy Bolton reported to the Pitt commissioners at their meeting Monday.

Not only that but each AFDC has to be reviewed every six months with a similar number of forms required.

If one baby is added a dozen more forms are required. If an address change is necessary four forms must be filled out.

We are well aware of the famous paperwork load that is so characteristic of government at all levels.

Nothing moves without a mountain of paper circulating through various channels and winding up in useless files.

Ms. Bolton was describing the paper work because the Department of Social Services faces a threat from a federal judge to take action if a backlog of applications is not cleared up.

Maybe the judge has directed his ire in the wrong direction. Perhaps if he would take the various supervising agencies to task for requiring this ridiculous amount of paperwork the situation would quickly clear up without hiring additional personnel.

Commissioners Had No Other Choice

Having made the point that the paper work required to process Aid to Families with Dependant Children is ridiculous, we have to say the county commissioners did the only thing they could in authorizing more workers.

The commissioners authorized five new employees to handle the backlog of AFDC and Medicaid applications in the Department of Social Services.

That is an expensive solution to a problem whose answer lies outside the county, but the commissioners' had no other choice. It is, after all, not the fault of the applicants' that paperwork demands are so outlandish.

'Unmentionable' Topics

By BILL NOBLITT
(First of Two Articles)

RALEIGH—Teacher tenure and equal pay provisions of North Carolina public school law burst into the open as key problems among the many be-setting education in this state at a discussion among members of the State Board of Education recently.

Both are among the "unmentionables" in political circles. Privately, numerous lawmakers and others close to education confess that the two elements create a sizable stumbling block to improving the schools.

Publicly, the subjects are taboo—fear of the political clout of organized teachers is the reason. Teachers generally react strongly to any assault upon tenure or the pay system.

Basically, the pay plan provides equal pay for all based on years of service, with no provisions for rewarding the more competent or dedicated. The tenure system gives protection after three years on the job. While a teacher may be fired or disciplined, a record of the reasons must be built, and a legal battle faced. Administrators have largely chosen not to grapple with those complexities and tenure effectively guarantees the teacher's job.

Must Explore

To probe tenure and pay "makes us vulnerable to being called demagogues. . . teachers get their hackles up. But this area needs to be explored," Dr. David H. Bruton, board chairman commented, as the policy committee of the State Board of Education held informal talks about the steady decline of test scores among students taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Board members felt that reasons for the decline put forth by a national study commission earlier this year could fairly well be rejected. Among those were television, the Vietnam war, more students taking the tests, changed attitudes, turbulent times.

While those and many others might be among the causes, no progress toward change can come without talking about student discipline in the schools, and incompetent teachers, said John L. Tart, president of Johnston Technical Institute.

"This is far more important to talk about discipline and competency and getting results in the classrooms than arguing about some (obscure) federal program that is going to be done the way HEW wants it anyway."

"Since I have been on this board—and in looking over the minutes for the past five or six years—this has not been the matter discussed at these board meetings," Tart said.

BILL NOBLITT

"But these are the things that are on the minds of teachers and parents. . . teachers spend half their time trying to keep students quiet."

No Way

Charlotte television executive Larry Harding returned the talk to teacher pay and tenure, following some discussion of discipline: "Until we have a system to measure and evaluate teachers in a positive way. . .

we are not going to get at this. Merit rewards are common everywhere else in society, Harding noted. "But until we can find a way to reward a good teacher—pay $20,000 or $25,000—and let the also-rans stay at a low salary—or get out—then we're not going to resolve these problems."

Burton, a Southern Pines physician, agreed that "tenure has caused us significant problems. . . principals and superintendents have not felt secure."

Mrs. Evelyn Tyler of Greensboro, coordinator of teacher training programs at Alamance Technical Institute and former leader in the N.C. Association of Educators, defended the tenure system itself, but said the "problem is that principals do not evaluate and do not know enough about effective, objective, evaluation. . . too many just check off Superior."

She feels that using proper evaluation under present law to weed out incompetent teachers would be effective. "We could take care of our over-supply of trained teachers in North Carolina by getting rid of our incompetents," Mrs. Tyler said.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Carter's Letter Formula

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For all those who have ever puzzled over whether to address a letter to Miss Jones, Ms. Jones or Mrs. Jones, Jimmy Carter has the answer: finesse it, Carter style.

First of all, drop the traditional "dear" from your salutation. Then begin: "To Dorothy Jones," or whomever. It's really very simple.

When U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica wrote Carter that he planned to retire from regular active duty, the president's reply to the Watergate jurist did not begin, "Dear Judge Sirica" or "Dear John." Carter's salutation: "To Judge John J.

Sirica."

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, says Carter adopted his rather unusual approach to letter writing as governor of Georgia.

"It avoids confusion," said Powell. For example, if Carter were writing to two men named Jones, use of "Dear Mr. Jones" might result in the letters getting into the wrong envelopes. But under the president's formula, the salutations automatically would include first names.

"It also gets around titles and nicknames," Powell observed. Although Carter took note of Sirica's title, had he been in doubt he would have written, "To John J. Sirica." As for nicknames, some of Sirica's fellow judges call him Johnny. Had Carter written a "Dear Johnny" letter, there's no calculating the ways in which it might have gone astray. How many Johnnies does Jimmy Carter know?

Then there's that matter of Miss-Ms.-Mrs. Why didn't somebody dream up the Carter Formula sooner?

According to Powell, the president eschews the use of "dear" except in "the most personal of circumstances."

So how can one explain those thousands of Democratic fundraising letters that went out last month, over Carter's facsimile signature, to "My Dear Friend." Some would bet the president never saw them. It would have been more his style to begin, "To my fellow citizen."

Incidentally, a number of administration officials have adopted the Carter Formula.

When the cats are away the mice will play, or something like that.

Powell and Hamilton Jordan, the White House aides considered closest to Carter, took a half day off last week and, so far as reporters could tell, a holiday air ensued.

The appointments schedule for Carter himself was oddly thin. And the press corps covering the White House was told it was safe to go home at 4 p.m., the earliest weekday "lid" yet in this administration.

Jordan and Powell flew to Albany, Ga., where hometown well-wishers and Carterites threw a big party to "roast" Jordan.

Powell spoke, as did Bert Lance and Robert Strauss, the president's chief trade negotiator.

Strength For Today

LIVING ALL YOUR LIFE

During the Vietnam War a little girl wrote to her brother who was serving on the war front. She wanted to close her letter by saying that she hoped he would not be killed. But she knew that a blunt statement of this sort would not be entirely appropriate. So after much chewing of her pencil she ended with this statement, "I hope you will live your life."

Many people in the world do not live all their lives — they live only a part of them, and a very little and insignificant part at that. Some waste their time in frivolity; others laze away the days and years and never attain a position worthy of their gifts. Others pass the better part of their lives indulging the impulses of passion, living as did the Prodigal Son in a pig pen in a far country.

All of us need from time to time to ask ourselves the question, "Am I living all of my life, or only part of it?"

—by Edith Douglass

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Lobster Trap Law

WASHINGTON — This was the question before the House committee: Resolved, that Congress has power, by simple majority vote, to extend for another seven years the time for ratification of the pending Equal Rights Amendment.

For the affirmative: Professor Thomas I. Emerson, of Yale. For the Negative: Professor Charles L. Black, Jr., also of Yale.

They tangled last week, these two truly distinguished professors of law, in a head-to-head debate that would have made marvelous television entertainment. They met in a hearing room of the House Judiciary Committee, a room done in pale green and pale gold and dark wood paneling. Emerson is a small fellow, 70 years old, with a halo of white hair above bright blue eyes; he looks like a Botticelli cherub grown up to be a grandpa. Black, by contrast, is 62, large and cadaverous, full-maned, brown eyes deep set in a lined and mobile face; he looks as if he ought to be playing Richard III.

It should have been an equal combat, but Black had so much the better constitutional arguments that his older colleague was hard put to make a case. They agreed on only one point: Yes, Congress has the power, if it wishes to exercise the power, to extend the period for ratification of the amendment. That period is set to expire March 22, 1979. House Joint Resolution 638 would extend the deadline to March 22, 1986.

By way of background: The amendment is plainly stated in five and a half years, only 35 states have ratified, and three of them — Nebraska, Tennessee and Idaho — have rescinded their ratifications. In order to become part of the Constitution, the amendment needs 38 valid and reasonably contemporaneous ratifications from the states. The amendment, intended to guarantee women "equal rights under the law" is going nowhere in 1978. Its last chance, after state legislative elections a year hence, would come in the first 81 days of 1979. Apprehensive proponents are therefore making a desperate, unprecedented effort to extend the ratification period.

Professor Black favors the amendment on its merits, but he makes two powerful constitutional arguments: First, an extension would require the same two-thirds vote that the original resolution required in 1972. Second, a state's right to rescind plainly exists. It would be "grotesque" in his view, to contend otherwise.

During the course of their debate, Black denounced what he termed the "lobster trap theory of ratification". This theory, advanced not only by Professor Emerson but also by the Justice Dept., holds that those who favor the ERA have all the flexibility, and those who oppose it have none. Once a state walks into ratification, in this view, it cannot escape; it is trapped; even if its people, through their legislators, subsequently wish overwhelmingly to reject a pending amendment, their rejection comes too late. Congress may extend the time for ratification at will; Congress alone has unreviewable power to decide when an amendment has been ratified.

Black rejects this conclusion.

Mixing Trend Sets In

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After nearly a decade of racial isolation, the legions of private schools formed as white havens at the time of the Supreme Court's Charlotte school busing decision are slowly starting to integrate.

The movement is still a feeble one, and there are not even any readily available statistics to prove its existence. But the phenomenon has caught the attention of state education officials, who say it is real nevertheless.

"The cultural pattern and social acceptance of these things has had a decade to percolate," says Calvin Criner, head of the section in the state Department of Public Instruction that keeps track of private schools.

"It's a trend. People have had an opportunity to spend 10 years in this period and they're coming around."

Charlotte civil rights attorney Julius Chambers filed his school desegregation lawsuit in 1965. Court-ordered busing was imposed on the Charlotte school system four years later.

There were 16,904 students in private schools in North Carolina in 1966. By 1969 when busing was introduced in Charlotte there were 27,471. When the U.S. Supreme Court rendered its landmark busing decision in the case in 1971, the number of private school students had jumped to 49,686, a leap of nearly 13,000 from the previous year.

Since then the growth has continued at a much slower rate. This year's figure of 55,513 is fewer than 1,000 higher than last year's. And Criner insists the racial makeup is changing, although he has no figures to back him up.

"We have no legal responsibility in this area, you know, and there are legal limits on the inquiries we can make," he says. "But we can tell things are changing from visits to the schools and from observation. We've watched this with great interest."

While Criner says state officials are delighted with the apparent softening in racial attitudes, there are some practical reasons for the appearance of more blacks in private schools.

The Internal Revenue Service, he notes, takes an interest in the tax status of schools with segregation policies. Another reason, Criner says, is the literal desire "to play ball."

"In our athletic associations, segregated schools can't play in the leagues," he says. "All the schools agree to this and they have mixed teams."

40 Years Ago Today

November 10, 1937

Agriculture Department economists suggested a reduction of 10 per cent in the production of flue-cured tobacco "if the present marketing situation is to be maintained."

The suggestion was made in the departments annual tobacco outlook report, which said "decreased exports from the 1938 crop seemed likely unless prices are materially lower."

Prospects for increased exports this year are favorable, the economists reported, and domestic consumption for the current year is encouraging.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor have been invited to Windsor, N.C. the little town which bears their titled name.

Mayor J. A. Pritchett announced he had asked Senator Robert Reynolds (D-NC) to forward the invitation to the royal couple to visit here, when and if they come to America.

A Merry Christmas From GM

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — From General Motors to its more than one million shareholders: a Merry Christmas and all that $929 million can buy.

A year end dividend of that amount will be mailed Dec. 10 to most of the individuals and institutions that make up the GM family, which now numbers 1,223,446 shareholders who own more than 286 million shares.

Nearly a billion dollars! Not much to the federal government perhaps, but GM isn't quite that large yet, although it certainly swamps by comparison a few of the smaller members of the United Nations.

If you require further perspective, the figure isn't very much smaller than the 1976 individual income tax collections by the State of Michigan, in which is situated much of GM's 279,440,000 square feet of property.

Compare that to the 2,240 square feet in your three-bedroom, 1½-bath ranch and you get some idea of the proportions. But don't let the comparison intimidate you; GM is simply bigger than most things. It's payroll of 748,000 employees (1976 average) exceeds the population of at least six states.

The per share dividend breaks down to $3.25, made up of the $1 quarterly dividend and a year end bonus distribution of $2.25. But that's not even half the story; earlier in 1977 the company paid $3.55 in dividends.

The year's total, $6.80 a share, means a 1977 payout of more than $1.9 billion, a record high for GM and thus the largest payout ever made by a manufacturing concern.

When GM pays there isn't a community in the United States, and many abroad, that isn't affected in some slight way. As GM goes so goes the nation, a former GM chairman once said. Perhaps not, but when GM talks a lot of people listen.

GM did just that on October 20, at a meeting here with securities analysts. And one excerpt from that long presentation gives you an idea of how one company can excite the imaginations of many:

"We are forecasting record sales of 15.5 million cars and trucks in the 1978 model year — including 11¼ million cars and 3¼ million trucks."

If the GM executives are right, one is almost tempted to ask "How can the United States possibly slip into a recession?" as a few of the more timid souls in the audience were warning.

GM doesn't expect a recession. While it is true that many a similar business forecast is made in order to (Continued on page 5) stricted view altogether. Again and again, he urged the House committee to shun mere expediency, and to make "good, square corners" within the Constitution. The amendatory process, he insisted, requires a two-thirds vote in each chamber; there is no short cut around the 1972 resolution submitting the ERA to the states. No respectable precedents support the view that once a state legislature has ratified an amendment, the state is stuck with its decision. Throughout the pendency of a proposed amendment, he argued, the people in their states have power to say yes or nay.

The Justice Department memorandum, to repeat, comes down on the opposite side. A number of constitutional scholars, queried by the National Organization for Women, also support Emerson and oppose Black. But the Justice Department relies chiefly on flimsy evidence from the Reconstruction period; no Supreme Court opinions are directly in point, and only two high court opinions deal with these questions even in nebulous fashion.

As I have suggested before, the immediate issue probably is academic. Even if the House next year should vote a three-year or seven-year extension, the Senate would tie itself into parliamentary knots before a filibuster against an extension could be broken. Proponents of the ERA have until March 22, 1979. They will then have had seven years to sell their proposition. In the name of democratic process, that ought to be enough.

spread optimism rather than broadcast the truth, one does not commit billions of dollars to a total myth. There must be some truth in it.

This is how the GM executives expressed themselves, as the analysts listened and made notes:
"Overall, while some potential problems exist — particularly with regard to Federal Reserve policy — the more substantive evidence points to continued expansion.

"Against this background, an increase of about 5 per cent in real GNP (gross national product) in 1978 — which would be about in line with this year's anticipated gain — appears to represent a reasonable expectation.

"While our outlook may be slightly more optimistic than the forecast of many business

Eaton Pledges $18,928 For Pitt United Fund

The employees of Eaton Corp. here have pledged $18,928.78 to the 1977 Pitt United Way campaign, an increase of 189 per cent over the 1976 pledge of $4,807.

Eaton also announced a company contribution of $5,000 to the campaign for a grand total pledged to the annual fund drive of $18,928.78.

The plant goal for this year was set at $13,662, it was pointed out.

The average contribution per employee pledging a gift to the United Way was $45, according to plant officials, an increase of 134 per cent over the 1976 average gift of $19.22.

Rich Licko, plant manager, and Ron LaFroschia, campaign chairman for Eaton's fund drive, presented plaques to Employee Relations, Service Engineering and Second Shift Assembly Departments for having 100 per cent Fair Share participation.

Eaton also noted that Johnny Satterthwaite Jr. of the Fabrication Department, Arnie Berg, plant engineer, and Ed Morgan Jr., foreman of the Assembly Department, all received gifts from Licko for their support of the campaign for 1977.

Licko expressed his appreciation to the plant employees who helped make the drive a success. He also offered congratulations to LaFroschia and the campaign solicitors who worked to meet the goal.

"The employees of the Greenville plant respond to a challenge to help their community and fellow man," Licko added.

Following the Pitt County Board of Education meeting last week, leaders from Ayden and Grifton met to plan ways the two towns can work together to keep their schools in both communities, according to local officials.

Leaders decided that the Save Our School committee, which has been an informal group composed of concerned Grifton citizens, will organize formally in both towns and change its name to Save Our Schools.

The tentative plans call for several officers from each community and an Executive Committee to "bridge the membership in both towns."

Suggested plans of organization and ways and means of raising money will be discussed in their meetings.

manufacturing marijuana after officers found marijuana growing in their 440 Cotton Hall dormitory room, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.
Cannon identified the two as April Marie Maxam of Nashville and Judith Donnell Boward of Atlantic Beach.
The chief said the marijuana was discovered during a 4:30 p.m. search, and noted that the pair was taken into custody about 8:30 p.m. and placed under $500 bond each pending hearing of the case in court.

Miss Lillian Just Beams

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Irish trotted out an arrangement combining "Dixie" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" for President Carter's mother Wednesday night.

The occasion was a rousing cabaret performance given at a Dublin hotel for Miss Lillian and the 250 Iowans with her on an exchange visit to Ireland.

"I'm having a great time," said the 79-year-old woman as she joined in a snake-dance to "When the Saints Go Marching In" at the end of her first full day in Ireland.

A seven-piece amateur dixieland band from Des Moines joined in the festivities, playing "Sweet Georgia Brown" in honor of "the lady who has become like a mother to us although we only met her a couple of days ago."

Miss Lillian beamed and seldom stopped applauding.

She and the Iowans are visiting Ireland for 10 days on an exchange visit sponsored by the Friendship Force, a private, nonprofit organization founded by President Carter in 1973 when he was governor of Georgia. Meanwhile, a group of Dubliners is visiting Des Moines.

Priding herself on candor and honesty, Miss Lillian is fostering the person-to-person friendship program by talking to her new foreign acquaintances about her son who is president, the other one known for his capacity for beer and her pleasant world in Plains, Ga.

Investigating MPs At Base

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Military police at Fort Bragg are under investigation by military authorities looking into allegations of drug trafficking, theft of Army property and improper sexual activities.

The Fayetteville Times reported in a copyrighted story in today's editions that base commander Gen. Volney F. Warner had confirmed that such a probe was under way by a three-member panel of officers.

The investigation was sparked by an MP who complained to his congressman about activities he had witnessed. Since then promotions and transfers of about two dozen Fort Bragg soldiers have been held up until the probe is finished, the Times reported.

The newspaper said it had obtained copies of sworn statements from soldiers backing up the original complaints, including allegations that:

—MPs confiscated and used meal cards from other soldiers to avoid charging of food costs to their separate meal rations.

—MPs have dealt in drugs, sometimes while on duty, and widespread marijuana use in MP barracks is common.

—The commander of a Fort Bragg drug enforcement agency ordered information about MP drug activity destroyed, and other officers covered up MP illegal activities.

—About 30 members of one MP company had sexual relations one night with a woman who kept a diary of her experiences, some of the rendezvous arranged by an MP patrol supervisor.

—Boxes of gas masks, ammunition and vehicle parts were stolen and buried by MPs.

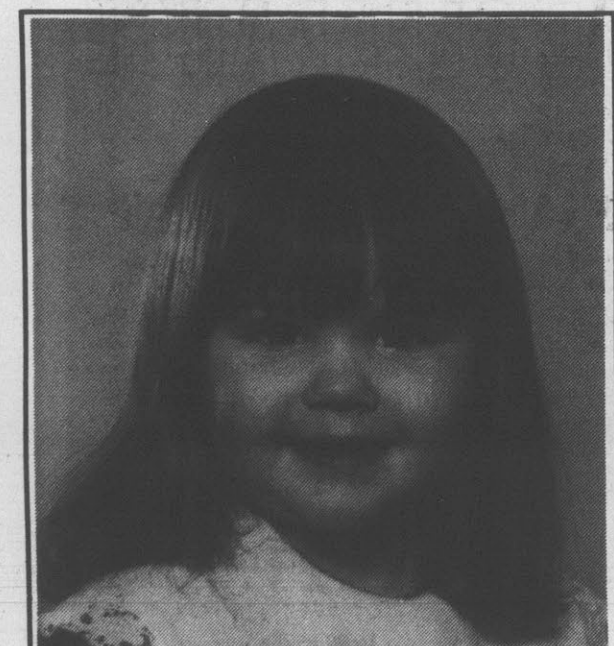

Warner said officers were looking into the charges and into the background of the soldier who first raised them.

Sierra Club To Meet Monday

FTC Says Consumers Being Misled On Insulation

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission, saying consumers are being victimized by misleading claims, is beginning a drive against deceptive advertising of home insulation.

"There are about three million people who have bought insulation since January," said one FTC source. "A lot of those people have bought lousy — sometimes even unsafe — insulation."

The program includes warnings to between 200 and 300 manufacturers and suppliers that they could be subject to civil suits and fines of up to $10,000 a day if engaged in such advertising.

"We expect most people to voluntarily change their conduct," said one FTC lawyer. But he said the commission is prepared to subpoena records and initiate civil suits if violations persist.

The commission also is expected to approve within a few weeks a new trade rule which, for the first time, would require the disclosure of substantiated "R-value" ratings both in advertising and packaging. With time allowed for necessary hearings and comments, the rule could be put into effect in about a year, an FTC spokesman said.

The R-value is the measure of insulation's ability to prevent heat from escaping. Many manufacturers have voluntarily placed the ratings on packaging.

But the FTC says some R-values are highly exaggerated while others are based on laboratory test conditions instead of normal use. Claims of energy savings, the FTC says, must be "ordinarily attainable" in the area where the advertising is disseminated.

Since last April, when President Carter proposed a tax break for homeowners installing insulation, demand has skyrocketed and major producers have been hard pressed to keep pace.

At the same time, scores of new, small companies have entered the market, particularly in the production of cellulose insulation where the initial investment is relatively low.

Three major manufacturers of fiberglass insulation testified before Congress last week that a shortage of insulation was expected for another three years and that all suppliers are using allocation systems because they are unable to meet demands.

Patrick Kelly of the FTC's consumer protection bureau said those kinds of market conditions make the industry a target for marketing and advertising abuses.

The major evidences of abuse, he said, involve exaggerated R-values. But some producers also are not giving adequate warning of possible safety hazards, such as the highly flammable nature of cellulose products not treated with special fire retardants.

"We know enough that we think that there are major problems. The market conditions are right, and we see the evidence," said another FTC official.

FTC officials have declined to say how large a budget will be devoted to the drive. The officials also declined to name any companies as violators, saying only that the investigation is industry-wide.

Owes 'Clout' To Handful

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt owes his new right to run for reelection and whatever additional clout that gives him to a mere 13.2 per cent of the state's registered voters.

Only 25 per cent of the electorate turned out Tuesday, lower than the 28 per cent state officials predicted but just within the 3 percent accuracy which state Elections Director Alex Brock claims for his special forecast formula.

There were 304,811 votes cast in favor of succession, just 13.2 per cent of the state's 2.3 million registered voters.

There seemed to be little pattern in the results to indicate what groups supported the amendment and which ones opposed it. Hunt himself said that organization determined the outcome of the election.

"The best pattern was where people worked the hardest for it, it carried," he said.

But Hunt political advisor and legislative liaison Charles Winberry said the organization that pushed the succession amendment through was nothing like the one that put Hunt in office.

"We won in spite of ourselves," he said.

Opponents of the measure began their campaign too late to develop a strong, grass-roots organization.

They appeared to have their strongest appeal among many rural precincts and some urban areas inhabited by wealthy, conservative voters.

Board Members Attend Meet

WILMINGTON — Three members of the Greenville Board of Education attended the Eighth Annual North Carolina School Boards Association Convention in Wilmington Nov. 3-5.

Those attending were Henry Dunn Jr., Miles Frost, and Superintendent of Greenville Schools Glenn Cox.

Among those speaking to the over 400 board members, superintendents and their spouses during the convention, were Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dudley Flood and former national PTA President Carol Kimmel.

Charles Pickler of Albemarle was elected Association President.

By The Associated Press
After several mild days with temperatures in the 70s North Carolina has some freezing weather on the way. The cold air began entering the western part of the state today and it spread to the coast.

A storm center was located to the north. Snow flurries were expected in the mountains late today and through the night, while scattered rain showers were predicted over the state's northern counties.

Temperatures were expected again to reach the 60s during the day, with some 70s in the east and 50s in the mountains, but tonight there will be a considerable drop in temperatures. Lows are expected to range from the 20s in the mountains to the 30s in the Piedmont and the 40s along the coast.

Sunny skies sent temperatures soaring around the state Wednesday. Cherry Point and Wilmington recorded a high of 80 degrees. Other highs included Goldsboro 77, and Raleigh, Rocky Mount and Fayetteville 76. Charlotte and Greensboro had 74, and Asheville had 67.

Friday's high readings will be considerably lower, ranging in the upper 40s into the 50s.

Israel Trims Request For U.S. Fighter Jets

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel, hoping to boost its fighting power with squadrons of new American jets, has trimmed its request for 250 F-16s to 150.

The government of Prime Minister Menahem Begin, moving to ensure the sale, is also backpedaling on a request to share in the plane's production.

Even so, the Carter administration has not decided whether to equip the already powerful Israeli air force with the light fighter planes, considered more than a match for Soviet jets in Arab hands. But the Israelis' concession on "co-production" could lead to a deal.

Administration officials acknowledge that, in principle, Israel is entitled to a non-specified number of F-16s once they begin rolling off assembly lines.

But in the Pentagon, and among some North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies, there is considerable skepticism about sharing advanced technology with the young Israeli defense industry.

Initially, interviews with a number of sources disclosed, Israel sought 250 planes. But a defense team sent here a month ago by the new government in Jerusalem cut the request to a more acceptable 150 or so.

Still, the touchier issue is joint production.

The old Labor government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin advised the Carter administration in May that it was willing to separate the delivery decision from co-production.

The Israelis hoped this would speed shipment of the planes while high-level officials wrestled with sharing sophisticated techniques with a country that is trying to become a major arms supplier itself, partly to boost an economy weakened by the nation's security concerns. The administration denies publicly and privately that it has decided against co-production.

An Israeli spokesman here, noting that his government is still interested in co-production, said Jerusalem had been assured that no decision had been made.

The Associated Press has learned that Israel is now asking for only the right to build less advanced components of the General Dynamics plane. At the same time, under the proposal, the United States would help Israel to begin developing its own sophisticated aircraft gear from scratch.

Administration officials, meanwhile, said that since Israel modified its requests a month ago, there has been no substantial action on the matter within the U.S. government.

CLU Diploma For District Manager

R. L. Moorehead, district sales manager for Western-Southern Life Insurance Co., has been awarded the Chartered Life Underwriter (CLU) diploma and professional designation by The American College, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

The award was made at the college's 50th annual national conferment exercises in Philadelphia, Pa.

The American College awards the CLU designation to persons who successfully complete the ten-course curriculum and fulfill experience and ethical requirements.

Locally, CLU classes are conducted at East Carolina University.

Associated with Western-Southern Life since 1957, Moorehead qualified for the company's President's Club during his first year. In 1966, he was appointed sales manager of the Kinston district with branch offices in Goldsboro and Greenville.

He has served as graduate instructor of Life Underwriter Training Council, past president of Defiance, Ohio Life Underwriters Association, a member of Lenoir County LUA, and the Masonic Lodge.

Moore is married to the former Joyce Wyrebaugh of Defiance, Ohio and they have two sons.

Western-Southern offices are located here at 321 Green Street.

Approved To Test Water

ECU News Bureau
The Environmental Health Laboratory in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions has been granted interim approval by the Environmental Protection Agency to analyze drinking water samples for turbidity and microbiological contamination.

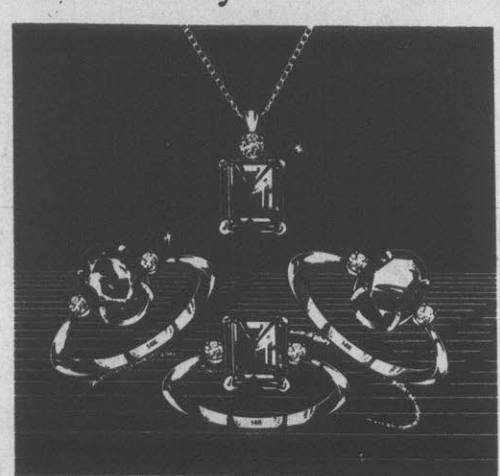

Sampling frequencies and analytical procedures are specified in National Interim Primary Drinking Water Regulations. The ECU laboratory is one of approximately 65 water supply or local health department laboratories in North Carolina recommended for interim approval status.

Interim approval is granted in the absence of an E.P.A.-conducted, on-site evaluation. On-site evaluation of the laboratory will be conducted when the E.P.A. finalizes laboratory certification guidelines.

The laboratory, directed by Dr. Barney Kane, has been certified since 1973 by the Department of Human Resources to conduct official milk and water examinations.

Defends Liquid Protein Plan

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The doctor whose book popularized the liquid protein "last chance" diet says his method is still the only effective treatment for obesity, despite government claims that it played a part in the deaths of 10 women.

Dr. Robert Linn, the 43-year-old osteopath whose diet book has sold two million copies, said Wednesday he agrees with the Food and Drug Administration that people who embark on his diet should be watched closely by physicians for potentially dangerous complications.

But he said the health risks of obesity outweigh the dangers of the so-called "protein-sparing fast" if it is properly monitored.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy told a news conference Wednesday that government health authorities have "every reason to believe that the liquid protein diet was at least a contributing factor or a cause" in the sudden heart attack deaths of 10 women under age 45.

"We expect to find others," he said. "We only have what we're afraid may be the tip of the iceberg."

Kennedy urged weight-conscious consumers not to go on the liquid protein diet without close supervision by a doctor skilled in its use.

And those now on it, he said, should "get themselves into the hands of a physician" who can spot signs of danger.

Kennedy said warning labels will soon be required on liquid protein bottles. If evidence against the substance continues to mount, he said, "We will use every regulatory tool at hand to get it off the market."

After the news conference, Linn said in a statement issued by his office that he has had no deaths in his own practice, "and further, I understand that when using this obesity treatment properly, several hundred doctors treating several thousand patients have had no deaths."

He also maintained that no other effective treatment exists for the clinically obese, which he called a serious medical problem for one out of every four Americans and "a major risk factor in a number of life-threatening diseases."

He said the FDA's public warning should have a positive benefit, saying the main problem appears to be "with patients monitored minimally by physicians."

Kennedy said, however, that even medical supervision doesn't guarantee the diet is safe. The commissioner said all 10 of those who died after months of modified fasting were under a doctor's supervision.

"Fad diets for weight reduction come and go," the commissioner said. "Most are safe enough for use for short periods by the general public. But the liquid predigested protein diet has real potential dangers."

Drs. George L. Blackburn of Harvard Medical School and Theodore B. Van Itallie of Columbia University, who participated in the news conference as FDA consultants, said the radical diet should be used only to treat the "morbidly obese," people whose excess weight may cause or complicate other serious medical problems.

'Trade Adjustment Assistance' Has Been Helpful

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. stunned Ohio's Mahoning Valley with a September announcement closing its steel mill and laying off 5,000 workers, the Labor Department quickly made special help available to the workers.

The Youngstown workers joined 250,000 other American workers nationwide who have been declared eligible for cash and other assistance under the Trade Act of 1974 because they lost their jobs as a result of competition from increased imports.

Among them are workers who made shoes in Massachusetts, automobiles in Detroit, bras and girdles in New York, aircraft engines in California, tennis rackets in Missouri and netted shrimp off the Texas Gulf Coast.

Edward Soda, a Lackawanna, N.Y., steelworker laid off in 1975, is one of them. He says the money kept his family off welfare.

The federal program is called "trade adjustment assistance." Workers call it "burial insurance," but are happy to get it.

For workers displaced by imports, the money, when combined with state unemployment checks, give most of them 70 per cent of their former wages for as long as 52 weeks.

"Without the money, I think I would have lost my house," says Soda, a 37-year-old father of four with 18 years' seniority in Bethlehem Steel Corp. mills. He was rehired in 1976 and worked several months before being laid off again last summer.

The Labor Department is considering trade adjustment assistance for the Lackawanna workers but Soda apparently hasn't worked long enough at his new job to qualify for federal assistance a second time.

He says his family may have no choice but accept food stamps and other welfare payments once his unemployment insurance runs out.

Trade adjustment assistance is one of the government's fastest growing programs, having paid out $286 million to workers since the current program began in April 1975. The total is rising as more petitions for aid are filed and approved almost daily.

Among industries with large numbers of workers receiving this type of financial assistance through Sept. 30, the leaders are transportation equipment (largely autos), with 63,454 employees; primary metals (steel, copper), 57,353; apparel, 34,787; electrical equipment, 28,957; leather (shoes), 24,191; and fabricated metals, 22,641.

Organized labor generally has supported the program because of the financial help it offers workers, but says the program shouldn't be considered as the answer to the nation's growing trade problem. The unions have joined with business in demanding import quotas and other protectionist legislation to curb alleged unfair foreign competition.

Trade Adjustment assistance has been around in a moribund way since 1962, but it has only sprung to life since the benefits were enlarged and the requirements softened as a result of the 1974 Trade Act.

In the 13 years of the old law, 40,000 workers received benefits totaling $80 million. In the 30 months of the new program, 840 petitions covering 255,608 workers had been certified for assistance payments. Another 1,009 petitions involving 312,148 workers were denied.

The Labor Department has a backlog of more than 450 petitions covering thousands more workers, and officials say the pace is accelerating.

"We don't know exactly why," says Marvin Fooks, who directs the program. He explains that part of the reason is because of rising imports, but "it could be that more people are becoming aware of the program and are filing for benefits."

An American teacher of Hebrew in a Minneapolis school replaced earlier this year by an Israeli immigrant wrote the Labor Department asking if he was entitled to benefits. He wasn't.

The same question was raised by schoolteachers, bus drivers and an automobile dealer in White Pine, Mich., after the government approved trade adjustment benefits for the town's miners who lost their jobs because of rising copper imports. The teachers and others in the town weren't eligible because the law requires that workers show that increasing imports were a direct cause of their layoffs.

President Carter and Congress are considering proposals that would liberalize the program to take into account the large numbers of service jobs — such as the teachers and bus drivers in White Pine — or those involving the production of component parts that are lost when imports of autos, steel, clothing and other finished products pose problems for American industries.

Among the proposals are ones to reduce interest rates on loans to companies hurt by imports, increase retraining allowances for workers, ease eligibility standards for communities and provide technical assistance in such areas as marketing and styling products to help make them more competitive with foreign goods.

Payments under the current trade adjustment assistance program amount to 70 percent of a workers former weekly wage, but not more than the national average weekly manufacturing wage of $208. The amount paid by the states in weekly unemployment insurance is deducted from the total.

The law also provides for retraining, job-search and even relocation expenses, but the Labor Department said only a relative handful of the 255,000 workers certified for benefits have taken advantage of these aspects of the program. Critics of the program say that job training and placement is often ineffective and, in many states, is seldom made available.

Earl Butz Now In Big Demand; Feels Vindicated

By DARRELL CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — From Canada to California, Earl Butz is on the road these days, sounding the familiar themes that made him a hero to some and a villain to others in his stormy tenure as U.S. secretary of agriculture. Freed from the duties and demands of Washington, Butz is very much in demand. He makes about 200 speeches a year — "somebody said one speech 200 times — to business and farm groups and Republican gatherings, has his own syndicated radio program and is under some pressure to run for Congress.

As dean emeritus of agriculture at Purdue University, Butz is entitled to a small office with no windows and a tile floor but he spends only about 10 hours a week there. Except for a color photograph of Butz and former President Gerald R. Ford in a shirt-sleeved group aboard Air Force One, there is nothing in the office to indicate it belongs to a former agriculture secretary instead of a junior professor.

After five years as agriculture secretary under Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Ford, Butz still commands an attentive audience, especially from farmers. "These farmers almost throw their arms around me to the point it's embarrassing," he said. "They associate me with their good times. Fortunately, things were playing in our favor, but our philosophy was such that we took advantage of it."

Not everyone associated Butz' policies with good times. When food prices climbed sharply, many pointed to higher profits for farmers as the reason. A grain shortage developed at the same time the Nixon administration, with Butz' backing, was selling wheat to the Soviet Union.

Butz feels vindicated now. "The other day, I saw this Democratic farmer who needed me no end, good naturedly, when I was secretary," Butz said. "He said, 'I sure like this administration in Washington. I think they're great. The last four or five years, these income taxes have chewed me up. I just had to write enormous checks for income taxes. This year they're getting me out of paying me any at all. I don't have any income.'"

Jokes of questionable taste got Butz in further trouble. Catholics demanded his resignation when he joked about the pope's stand on birth control — "He no plays the game; he no makes the rules."

The storm clouds finally burst after the disclosure that he had told a derogatory racial joke in the presence of former Nixon aide John Dean on a flight back to Washington from the 1976 Republican National Convention. Butz resigned in an effort to prevent any further damage to Ford's struggling reelection campaign.

He insists now that he's not bitter about that incident and that, in fact, it added to his notoriety and made him a more-sought-after speaker out of office.

At 68, Butz said he maintains his hectic schedule because he couldn't live any other way. He never had time to develop hobbies, he said, and the speaking tours not only are fun for him but an outlet for his message that big government is threatening to destroy free enterprise.

He worries that the Democratic-controlled Congress and the Carter administration are moving backwards, building up reserves again, cutting wheat production 20 per cent and withdrawing from the world markets. Those actions, Butz is convinced, will eventually depress farm prices again.

"When food prices start up, if the government owns anything out of which you make food, the consumer pressure to release that to blunt food prices becomes so terrific...that no president, no secretary of agriculture can resist. How do I know? I sat there in 1973 when this was taking place, when that type of pressure forced us to release the stocks the government had so rapidly that we knew it would disrupt marketing channels, that it would interfere with the normal pricing process, would clog up distribution channels."

Butz' radio program, syndicated out of Los Angeles by the same firm that handles Ronald Reagan's commentary, was picked up by 50 stations in the first month.

But unlike Reagan and Ford, whose busy schedules may be motivated by plans to run for office again, Butz said, "I'm just running for good government."

Ford called him last month, urging him to run for Congress from Indiana's 2nd District, a predominately rural area now served by Democrat Floyd J. Fithian.

Butz said he refused, explaining, "To be a freshman congressman in a lop-sided minority party would be strictly anticlimactic."

Five Collisions On Boulevard

Driving around Greenville Boulevard was "a dangerous thing to do yesterday as Greenville Police reported an estimated $2,982 property damage resulted from a series of five collisions along the roadway.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 3:05 p.m. collision at the boulevard's 14th Street intersection where a truck driven by William Harvey Stallings of Route 2, Ayden, collided with a car driven by Edward Lamarr Walston of Route 4, Greenville, causing an estimated $800 damage to the truck and $500 damage to the car.

A 5:30 p.m. mishap 300 feet East of the Red Banks Road intersection involved a car operated by Daniel Ralph Morgan of 107 East Martinsborough Rd. and a truck driven by Laban Dewitt Thomas II of 305 South Meade St.

Investigators estimated damage from that collision at $450 to the Morgan car and $200 to the Thomas truck.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to a car driven by Randy Ellis Batts of 2905 Ellsworth Dr. when the vehicle collided with a barricade about 8:45 p.m. 1500 feet East of the Evans Street intersection, according to officers, who listed damage to the barricade at $35.

A 6:15 p.m. incident at the Granville Drive intersection saw a car operated by Lewis Daniel Stone of 304 Lindell Dr. collide with a barricade, causing an estimated $35 damage to the barricade and $175 damage to the car.

Cars driven by Paula R. Anderson of Route 1, Ayden and Sally Dunoon Cornwell of Greenville collided about 7:55 p.m. 1500 feet East of the Evans Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $387 damage to the Cornwell auto.

Police reported no damage resulted to the Anderson car.

Seeks To Allay Treaty Doubts

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Omar Torrijos has ordered a major public relations effort for seven visiting U.S. senators, hoping to nail down their votes for the controversial Panama Canal treaty.

Sources said the Panamanian leader hopes the expanding tour and luxury treatment will overcome anti-treaty arguments in the minds of undecided senators and blunt allegations about civil rights violations in Panama.

"Torrijos put out the word this morning — he wants to give them the full treatment," one U.S. embassy official said on Wednesday of the senators' visit.

In a day-long tour spanning the country today, the Panamanian leader was to play host to the lawmakers at a village festival, a visit to Indian craftsmen on the San Blas islands and a stop at his seaside home at Farallon.

The schedule of events was growing even as the senators, led by Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., arrived aboard an Air Force jet Wednesday for the four-day visit.

Seven aircraft reportedly had been requisitioned by Torrijos to carry him, his guests, Panamanian officials and reporters.

Originally, the senators were to observe only the festival at Los Santos, commemorating Panama's "first cry for independence from Spain in 1821." The other stops were added later.

The canal treaty, which requires a two-thirds vote to win Senate ratification, provides for the waterway to be gradually turned over to Panama by the year 2000. After that, the United States and Panama would share the tasks of defending it and keeping it open.

Earned Awards For Job Service

The Greenville Job Service Office has received two awards for services rendered to veterans.

Disabled American Veterans Post No. 35 presented a citation to the local office for Outstanding Services to Handicapped Veterans, and International Association of Personnel in Employment Security (IAPES) presented an award to the office for Outstanding Services to Veterans.

There are approximately 60 offices in the state and the Greenville office was one of the two offices receiving this award.

Atlantic City Bases Hopes On Gambling Casinos

MAYOR JOSEPH LAZAROW makes a point at construction site where Resorts International is expected to open the first legal gambling casino in New Jersey. (UPI Photo)

By RITA SHADE
ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — "What if it flops?" "What if WHAT flops?" Mayor Joseph Lazarow asked, puzzled. "Oh! You mean casino gambling!"

"It can't be a flop! A half-dozen new millionaires have been created in the last month," he chuckled.

"Even the poor man has hope because he's now getting a decent value on his property," the mayor said. "Last year, our tax base was only $20 million. Now, because of transactions, we have $320 million in ratables. Property taxes will go down about 10 per cent in 1978."

"Casino gambling is the only game in town," Lazarow said. Casino gambling IS the only

Called Firemen To Supply Rain

NEW YORK (UPI) — When a camera crew filming a new television series needed a heavy rain storm in one scene, it turned to the New York City Fire Department.

The producers of "The Best of Families" were filming a scene that called for the heavy rain that ended the record heat wave which scorched New York in the summer of 1880. The script called for a clap of thunder followed by rain pouring down on a young couple, who dance in the street in celebration of the break in the hot spell — and their budding romance.

When the weather failed to cooperate, the Mayor's Office for Motion Pictures and Television sent two Fire Department pumps, including a hook and ladder, to the South Street Seaport location. Using a special hose, the firemen simulated rain from atop the 50-foot-high truck ladder. The scene was recorded perfectly in two takes.

stationery, ornaments and objects, miniature furnishings and desk accessories.

Even retail stores are beginning to carry museum reproductions, she said. They buy from the institutions at wholesale prices.

Instead of competing for customers, one New York-based department store chain introduced Brooklyn Museum officials to a porcelain and glassware manufacturer when the museum was looking for someone to do a dinnerware service adapted from designs in its collections.

game in this impoverished seaside town of abandoned buildings where, as the street-talk goes, the only lucrative business had been torching — or "unauthorized urban renewal."

It has been 11 months since casino gambling was approved by New Jersey voters. So far, on the surface, the only changes in town are the "going out of business" signs in a few of the tacky stores along the boardwalk, and the sweeping renovations underway at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall.

Resorts International, which is expected to open the first legal gambling parlor in January or March, took a chance and bought the Grand Old Lady on the sea before the referendum and renamed it "The Palace."

Small businessmen have applied for remodeling loans. Minor investors, with plans ranging from doughnut shops to indoor tennis courts, have taken options on buildings. But banks have been reluctant to approve financing.

"Banks are a little timid because we don't have a track record," Lazarow said. "You'll see a domino effect. Once people see what Resorts does, they'll all jump in."

Unless someone waves a magic wand, the city is not prepared for a sudden and permanent influx of tourists. Nightlife is nil. Luxury hotel accommodations are scarce. Parking is nearly impossible. And Resorts will most likely have a monopoly on casino gambling for the first 18 months.

Many of the major hotels — which only have an average occupancy rate of about 17 per cent in winter, 40 per cent in summer — have not started to redecorate because they are in the midst of changing owners.

Visitors to the Miss America Pageant complained about poor service, broken bath fixtures and dirty rooms.

"The minute we open, the town is going to explode," said Jack Davis, president of Resorts. "There are 3,000 hotel rooms surrounding this hotel and people are going to invest money making those rooms look attractive. By April it will be impossible to get a construction contract."

But the lack of movement now has made it difficult for the Atlantic City Convention Bureau to book large groups that need extensive exhibition space.

"We can't get firm commitments on a large scale until we have precise opening dates," said Gerard Kauper, bureau president. "But since Nov. 2, we have potential bookings for $75 million between 1979 and 1986. The flurry is far greater than we anticipated."

City officials, who admitted recently that they did not even have the beach zoned as a beach in existing plans, now realize they must control haphazard and garish development.

They hired Angelos C. Denetrou, a nationally-known planner, for a half-million dollars to turn dreams into reality.

Denetrou envisions an expanded Convention Hall connected to major hotels by underground walkways, underground parking lots, bikeways, and "interplay" with the ocean. But, he said, "The Boardwalk will stay as it is. It will not be covered and air-conditioned."

"The Boardwalk is a giant toy from another era. It has a quality — the hot dogs, the pizza parlors. You get lost in it. You walk barefoot. Smell the sand. It gets very hot. It gets humid. It rains. All these erratic things are part of its beauty. To enclose it would be destruction."

His plan is designed in stages, which the city could complete by the end of the century. Denetrou said the city is not worried about money.

The city predicts more than nine million visitors a year by 1990 — five times the current number. No competition with Las Vegas is anticipated, since that desert town only attracts 10 per cent of its tourists from east of Chicago.

Atlantic City expects 12 casino complexes by 1990, producing $480 million in revenues.

Resorts International expects to make a $60 million profit the first year it opens its 60,000 square foot casino and to hire 2,000 people.

"This is going to be bigger and better than anything in Las Vegas," Davis said.

State officials hope so. Taking their cue from Nevada, New Jersey wrote tighter statutes and took the liberty of refusing anyone with any hint of a "suspicious" association a liquor license, access to a casino or a casino job.

The Casino Control Commission, also will keep a tight reign on ancillary services and a new Division of Gaming Enforcement will carry out investigations. Even the FBI is considering a separate strike force.

The biggest concern is organized crime.

It is not as if Atlantic City is virgin territory. In the Prohibition Era, it was an open town, but neutral turf for organized crime figures. Al Capone met several times here with Chicago's warring factions.

In those rum-running days when the town catered to the wealthy and the famous, whatever you wanted — booze, prostitutes and backroom gambling — you could buy in Atlantic City.

In 1926, they met in Atlantic City to divvy up Chicago, state Attorney General William F. Hyland said. And in the 1970s, they met in Chicago to cut up Atlantic City.

The townfolk, who remember their heyday like yesterday, appreciate nostalgic reminders. "There was a man in here to see me and left his card," the mayor said, laughing.

"It read, 'We sell protection'... Turns out he was selling mountain climbing equipment."

Life-Style Trends On View In Museum Shops

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI-Family Editor

Two trends in American life styles are especially apparent at holiday time in museum and library shops across the United States and Canada:

Insistence on quality and willingness to pay for it; And the great ethnic renaissance.

Typical of both trends are:

A Japanese Edo pattern open stock dinner service in hand-painted porcelain. A five-piece place setting is $40 at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

A Pembroke gaming table, $1,830 at The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

A mylar kite with a design taken from a 15th century Persian, Timurid astronomical manuscript, $25 at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

A smiling cat pendant adapted from a Peruvian textile, $45 at the Philadelphia Museum.

An Appalachian dulcimer, $85 at the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum in Nashville.

A working copy of a library ladder designed by Thomas Jefferson, $125 at the Alexandria, Va., Bicentennial Museum Shop.

"Product merchandising in museums has grown fantastically in the past 10 years," says Shelley Hodupp, vice president of the Museum Stores Assn.

Many have moved their shops out of closets and into the mainstream.

For every high-priced article there are dozens of inexpensive ones, Miss Hodupp said in an interview. She is executive manager for merchandising services at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

"I think most shops started as information desks, handing out pamphlets and selling postcards of things in their collections. Ours began as a bookstore."

Mail order brochures and gift catalogs are commonplace now. They range from simple black and white folders to handsomely color-illustrated catalogs on good quality paper.

Miss Hodupp said income from gift sales is an important part of museum and library support, now that many federal government sources have cut back their contributions.

Shops also increase museum attendance, she said. Many attract new members by offering discounts on purchases as a fringe benefit of membership.

Standards of quality for merchandise are rigidly maintained by an association committee that screens dealers from whom its members buy.

Many examples of what you'll find this year are in "The Shopper's Guide to Museum Stores" (Universe $6.95 paper). Miss Hodupp compiled it from information and photos sent her by museums throughout the United States and Canada. In addition to describing and illustrating merchandise, she included a comprehensive list of institutions that sell by mail.

The catalog contains only commissioned original art works and merchandise produced by or for a museum from works in their own collections. Shops in individual museums also sell articles commissioned by or for their sister institutions.

Miss Hodupp said the articles she chose for the catalog were selected to illustrate the diversity of merchandise the shops handle.

"All items must be relevant to a museum's collections," she said.

The most popular categories include cookbooks, needlework, fashion totes, neckties and clothing — both readymade and kits of precut fabric.

The range also extends to toys, games, books, prints,

'Bible Week' Is Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed Nov. 20-27 as Bible Week in Greenville "in recognition of the importance of the Bible and its teachings."

In designating the observance, Cox pointed out that "the truths of the Bible are eternal and their application to the complexities of modern society a continuing challenge."

The mayor added that, "the recovery of the moral and spiritual principles of the Bible remain a high priority goal as we move into America's third century."

According to Cox, "all the major religious groups and hundreds of clubs and organizations are united behind the Laymen's National Bible Committee's program to motivate Bible reading and study."

"You'll never get rich sellin' wood to George Dickel!"

Bear Ferguson, logger, 1873

"It's not that George doesn't use a lot of wood in the makin' of his Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky — he does. But he's so durned persnickick."

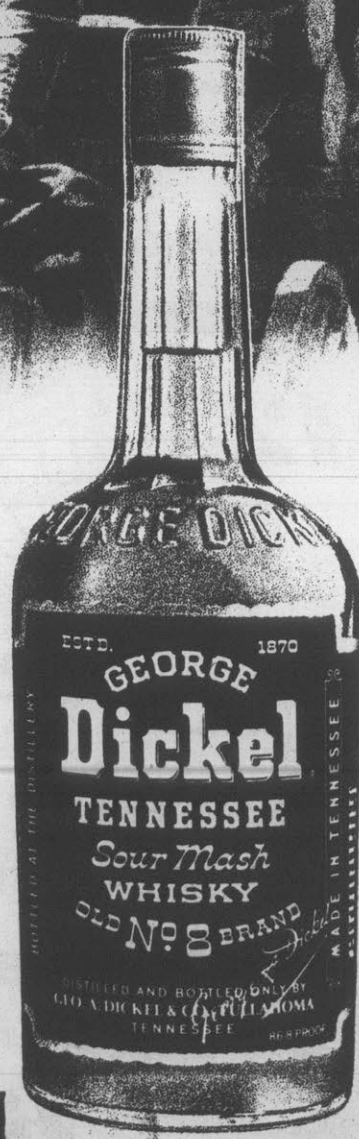

"Like only wantin' winter-cut sugar maple that's not all sappy for his charcoal mellowin'. Then he picks over the lot like a hen eyein' a corn morsel."

"Times like that I most always end up sittin' on a cord of wood he's turned down, sippin' his whisky."

Sentenced In Home-Burning

Three men were sentenced in Pitt County Superior Court Tuesday after pleading guilty to their involvement in the burning of a Chestnut Street home here in June 1976.

David Earl Jackson, charged in a Grand Jury indictment in April with conspiring to set fire to and burn his dwelling at 1407 Chestnut St. and presenting a false and fraudulent claim for the purpose of securing payment of the loss, pled guilty to issuing a false statement in order to defraud an insurance company. Judge Herbert Small sentenced Jackson, 25, to four years in prison on the charge. William Edwin Dildy and Clay Madry, indicted by the Grand Jury for conspiring to commit arson, both pled guilty to charges of being accessories before the fact of filing a false claim for fire insurance proceeds.

Two Men Shot In Stake-Out

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Two men were shot and killed early today by police who had staked out a motel after a tip that it might be robbed, Police Chief Robert Goodwin said.

Goodwin said the two men were ordered to stop after a holdup shortly after 1 a.m. at the Holiday Inn north of the city but the two men pulled a weapon and advanced on the officers. The police chief said the officers fired in self defense. One of the victims was identified as Rush Higgins, who was scheduled to appear in a Wake County court today on a charge of breaking and entering, Goodwin said.

The motel had been staked out by the police department's selective enforcement team after the tip of a possible robbery, the chief said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed some widespread gains today on the momentum of Tuesday's late rally.

Gainers held a 5-2 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .69 at 817.74.

But the average would have shown a small gain had it not been for a $3.25-a-share ex-dividend, or dividend payment adjustment, in General Motors, one of the Dow's component stocks.

GM shares led the active list, up 1/4 at 65 1/4.

Analysts said the market was responding favorably to Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns' reaffirmation Wednesday of the Fed's intention to restrain monetary growth in an effort to combat inflation.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks climbed .36 to 51.40. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .91 at 115.99.

Trading was active. Big Board volume reached 11.70 million shares by noontime, against 8.49 million at the same point on Wednesday.

American Telephone & Telegraph picked up 1/4 to 60 in active trading. An offering of 12 million new AT&T shares was begun late Wednesday at 59 1/2.

Houston Oil & Minerals gained 3/4 to 30 3/4 on the Amex. The company reported sharply higher quarterly earnings Wednesday.

Investigate Gun Death

Investigation is underway by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department into the early morning shooting death of a 59-year-old man at a trailer court east of Greenville.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who said that details of the incident are incomplete, reported that Eddie Simmons was shot around 4:25 a.m. today at Lot 67, Oakwood Trailer Court on Highway 33.

The sheriff, noting that Simmons was apparently shot with a .22 caliber pistol, said that the man was pronounced dead at the scene by the county medical examiner.

According to Sheriff Tyson, James Ore, who was allegedly involved in the incident, was treated for cuts and lacerations at Pitt Memorial Hospital. He reported this morning that no formal charges had been preferred at that time pending further investigation of the shooting.

Instructors To Meet At PTI

Automotive mechanic, auto body, and diesel instructors from technical institutes and community colleges in eastern North Carolina will meet at Pitt Technical Institute on Nov. 11-12.

The instructors' workshop is sponsored by the eastern zone of the N.C. Auto-Diesel Instructors Association (NCADIA).

The topic of Friday's workshop is "Auto Front End Systems" and Saturday's subject is "Chrysler Lean-Burn System."

The association members will have dinner and a business session Friday evening at Parker's Restaurant. Presiding at this meeting will be President of the eastern zone of NCADIA, Bobby Parnell, from Wayne Community College.

Approximately 25 automobile, auto body, and diesel instructors are expected for the workshops.

GIVING PROGRAM

The Spiritual Singers of Greenville will render a program at Allen Chapel F.W.B. Church Saturday at 7 p.m.

Ports Authority Eyes World Trade

"I want to assure... this group that generating world trade is foremost in the minds of our recently appointed board of directors," and "we intend to make the ports of Wilmington and Morehead City competitive in the context of serving the hinterland of this magnificent state," Adm. William Green, executive director of the North Carolina State Ports Authority said here last night.

Green spoke to some 40 persons attending the Coastal Plains World Trade Association meeting here. He was introduced by Greenville attorney Tom Taft, State Ports Authority chairman.

The ports director said, "We must not exaggerate the potential of our ports," but emphasized, "yet, we must not be discouraged because we, at present, do not compete with Norfolk, Charleston, and Savannah — Baltimore to a lesser degree — in highway rail interfaces; or because North Carolina ports handle only about 56 per cent of the exports produced in North Carolina."

"To begin with, you must improve — and we are improving — our domestic public relations," Green said. The people of the state "have a right to know: and it is to our economic advantage that they are informed of the true value of their ports..."

In addition to speaking engagements, Green said, "We have organized a staff presentation team to work in conjunction with," the director's speaking tour, and have "instructed our advertiser to 'get with it' in imaginative, creative approaches to the public."

The director said "We are stepping up both domestic and international trade through maximum utilization" of the assistance and participation of the industrial sector of the state; the North Carolina Department of Commerce initiatives; liaison with the maritime attaches at American Embassies in London, Brussels, Rome, Tokyo, and Caracas; and through the new office of market development in Atlanta.

Green said too, that the Ports Authority will conduct a constant review of rates as compared with Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia, and "improve our service to shippers and to visiting ships," in order to develop more business.

Of particular significance,

Green said, "is the role of the newly appointed planning committee" which has as its objective, "the short and long range planning profile with emphasis on the development of each port according to its potential."

"In this connection," Green continued, "we will consult and solicit the opinions of individuals and groups such as you. We are looking for new ideas and even the justification for trying old ones again."

Green said, "We know that you as exporters want to utilize and support your own North Carolina State Ports. You are businessmen and you are professionals in the trade industry."

"The profit margin is important to you — and you too must compete. Thus, may I say to you... I am confident no group wants more than you to help our ports... realize a steady and lucrative growth and to contribute to the economic strength of the great state North Carolina."

Jags Host Plymouth In First Round

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Although a number of prominent underclassmen fit largely into the picture, Farmville Central coach Gene Brewer gives much of the credit for the fact that the Jaguars won their second consecutive Eastern Carolina Conference championship and will represent the league in the state 3-A playoffs to his senior co-captains, guard Woody Edwards and defensive back Scott Evans.

"We've had an outstanding job all year from our two co-captains," Brewer said. There are only four seniors on the Jaguar squad this year and leadership and experience has been at a premium. Much of it has come from Edwards and Evans.

Farmville lost its second game of the season to Eastern Wayne, a 4-A school, by a score of 7-6. But, since then, the Jags have reeled off eight straight wins, breezing through a seven-game ECC schedule. This Friday night they will host Plymouth, champion of the Northeastern Conference, in the first round of the 3-A playoffs.

Farmville is coming off a relatively lackluster performance going into the first round, a 20-0 victory over North Lenoir. "I was glad to see us shut them out," Brewer said. "But, I don't think we played that well offensively or defensively."

The Jaguar coach said he didn't think the showing last week would hurt the team's chances this week. "We always want to play as good as we can, but I don't think it will have any effect on the way we will play this week. We had already won the conference (last week). We were in the playoffs and it was raining. It was just one of those nights when nothing seemed to go well."

Brewer is hoping this Friday night will be different. To be successful in the playoffs, "We're going to have to continue to play strong defense. That has been our mainstay all season. Offensively, we're going to have to improve as far as consistency. For the past few weeks, we'll get something started, but break down before we score."

Junior quarterback Donald Freeman will lead the Jaguar offense, as he has done all year. "He has done a real good job with the offense — his stats reflect that," Freeman led the Eastern Carolina in passing this season.

The team's two running backs, Donald Reid and Walter Blow, have both had some good ballgames during the season and may get some back-up help in the form of Rufus Mayo during the playoffs.

Edwards and Ronald Reid, the offensive guards, have been consistent all year, as has the team's center, Carl Davis. At the tackles, Len Hunt and Phillip Gordon "seem to get up for the big ballgame," Brewer said.

Farmville has two tight ends in its offense, Jeff Tyson and Tony Eason. Both came into the season very inexperienced, but have "improved tremendously" as the year progressed.

Flankers Billy McLawhorn and James Tyson both catch the ball real well, Brewer said. The heart of the powerful Jaguar defense are the two linebackers, the twin Reid brothers, Ronald and Donald, according to Brewer, said, but "they get real good support from other people."

In the center of the defensive line is nose guard William Mayo, a senior who has never played before this year, but has started every game.

He is flanked by tackles Gordon and Hunt, with help from Rodney Faulkner, and ends Blow and Carl Davis.

The Farmville secondary has "done an above-average job of pass coverage and supported the run, real well," according to Brewer. The players there are Mayo, Evans and Eason.

Plymouth brings a 6-4 overall record into the playoff game against the Jaguars, having won the right to represent the Northeastern with a 5-1 mark. The Vikings actually tied with Edenton for the league championship, but will represent the loop because they beat the Aces during the regular season.

The two teams had one common opponent during the season, Williamston. Farmville defeated the Tigers 19-13 in the first game of the season, while Plymouth downed them 40-6 two weeks ago.

The Vikings run from the same offensive set as the Jaguars, Brewer said, with two tight ends and a flanker. They have not shown a great tendency to throw the ball, he added. "Basically, they just run the ball right at you."

James Brown is the better rusher of the Vikings' two running backs, while Pete Blount is an excellent blocker. Brown has outstanding speed and quickness, according to Brewer.

Quarterback Guy Waters 'runs the offense and "does a real good job of running the option."

Plymouth's defense utilizes a five-man front and has good size. Charles Bowser, a highly-recruited defensive end, anchors the line.

Brewer said the home field should be an advantage for Farmville, especially as young as the team is.

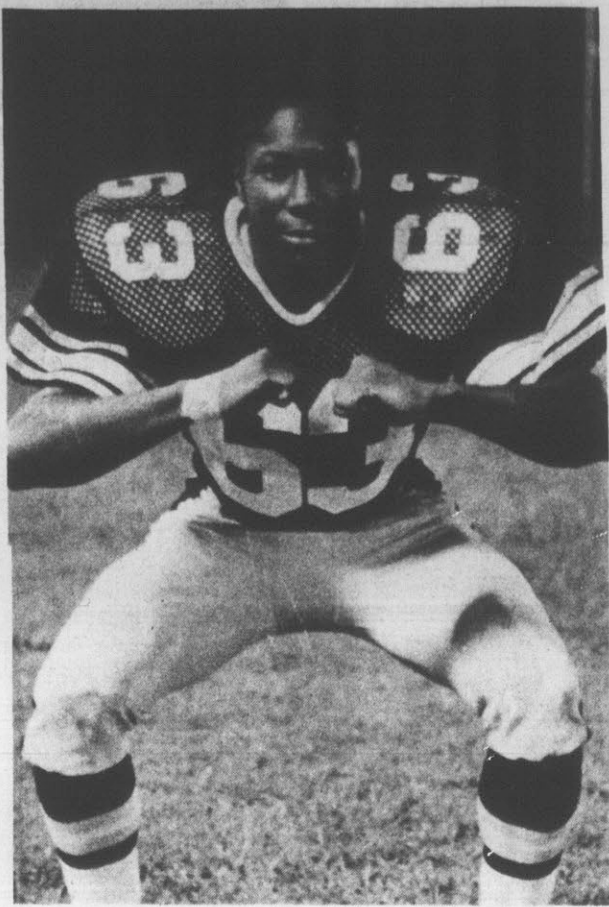

Despite their youth, the Jaguars have high hopes of bettering the feats of last year's team, which finished second in the East.

Jaguar Senior Woody Edwards

Edwards Leader For Farmville

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

At the first of the season, Farmville Central guard and co-captain Woody Edwards was doubtful about the Jaguars' chances of making it into the state 3-A playoffs for the second year in a row, but, with the way the team has played this year, it deserves the playoff spot it earned by going undefeated in the Eastern Carolina Conference, Edwards said.

"Everybody (on the team) feels great" about getting into the playoffs, according to Edwards. "Myself, I didn't think we would get there, but I'm glad we did. Now, I feel like we should be there since the team is playing so good."

As a senior and co-captain, Edwards has provided a lot of leadership for the young Jaguars, who have only four seniors on the team. "Most of the team played jayvee last year. Everybody that played varsity left, except for us (the four seniors). They (the underclassmen) looked to us to show them around."

The soft-spoken Edwards said the team has shown a lot of spirit in practice this week and is approaching the playoffs as a new season — forgetting about the past victories and approaching each game as it comes.

A disappointing one-point overtime loss to Clinton in the eastern 3-A finals last season cost the Jaguars a shot at the state championship. Edwards said one of the goals of this year's team is to be two points better than last year — the margin that would have been needed to win that game.

This year's squad is a whole lot smaller, but quicker, than last season's team. "Overall we are just as good as we were last year — even better."

Edwards has been a two-year starter on both offense and defense for Farmville Central. He was moved to guard this season from linebacker, coach Gene Brewer said, and has made a good adjustment.

When the move first came about, Edwards said, "I didn't want to," Edwards said. "But, after I got it, it seemed to me to be one of the most important jobs on the team."

This season, Edwards has been named the offensive player of the week twice and the defensive player of the week once by the Jaguar coaches. Central University and may play football there. After that, he has no specific plans.

Right now, however, he is concentrating on the playoffs and besting last year's finish.

Fun Run Slated

A "Fun Run" will be held Saturday at 8:30 a.m. for men, women, boys and girls of all ages.

The run is sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department. Runners may set their own pace, and jogging advice will be available.

The run will be held at the E. B. Aycock Junior High School track.

Pat Dye talked about bowl possibilities and hit at a newspaper article during his yearly press conference yesterday.

The East Carolina University head football coach said that through Tuesday's practice, the only one talking about ECU's bowl chances was him, when suddenly the Pirates became definitely in the picture for several games.

Dye also expressed his displeasure at an article on Eastern North Carolina's top recruits, and disavowed any connection with it. The article appeared in the Sunday edition of the Raleigh News & Observer.

"I want to stress that East Carolina had nothing to do with the article. I am the one who makes the final evaluations about recruits, and I am the one who offers the scholarships. I look at and talk with everyone we are recruiting, and I wouldn't make statements like those that appeared in the article," Dye said.

The article quoted several unidentified recruiters from schools in the state, and a more recent News & Observer report states that one of those was an East Carolina assistant, but no one was quoted by name.

"I don't see how any college coach can say that one player will be better than another," Dye said, and pointed out the success of his walk-on program, singling out linebacker Harold Randolph and fullback Theodore Sutton as the type players recruiters, including himself, overlooked, but who won their grants later.

Dye also said that it was bad to judge players just prior to the state playoffs, too, when "some little guy who's been fighting his guts out to be good" doesn't see his name on the list.

"If we're recruiting a kid and he doesn't see his name, he may think we don't care that much about him, and it's not true. And reporting about a kid's grade is an intrusion into his privacy. That's confidential information that has no place being in a newspaper. Besides, if a kid can get into East Carolina, he can also get into N.C. State and Carolina, too."

Dye said that he had never told any one he recruited that he could start for him, or even play a certain position. "We tell them that they will get the opportunity to play where they want to. If they don't make good there, then we look for another place for them. But we don't promise them anything but an equal opportunity. Anyone who tells a recruit anything else is lying. I can't tell one guy he'll start for me, then look another guy in the eye when I talk to him about the same position and tell him he's got an equal chance."

Dye added that while Randolph and Sutton were key examples of the walk-ons' success, some players who are highly recruited don't make it. "Buck Adams was highly sought after before picking N.C. State, but he's played in the shadow of Ted Brown, and the only people to offer Brown were State and us."

Turning to the bowl possibilities, Dye said that "the only one talking about bowls prior to today (Wednesday) was me. I really don't know if the players believed me. Maybe the reports will get them up more."

Dye had pointed out that the Pirates had not had good practice sessions on Monday and Tuesday as they prepared for William & Mary.

"I still don't know how good our chances are. If we don't win Saturday, then we won't have a chance. But if we do win, then I think we should get a bowl bid," Dye said.

"Since we are a young growing program, I think it is important to us that we go to a bowl game. There are a lot of reasons: our growth, recruiting, prestige, and a reward for our players.

"We are an exciting team, with great speed. We could put a team on the field that would run the 40 between 4.3 and 4.5 seconds in all the skill positions. That has to be impressive."

Dye noted that one bowl official has likened the Pirates to the 1970 Arizona State team that beat North Carolina in the Peach Bowl, one of the bowls which is still looking at the Pirates. "I'm really not surprised with the comparison," Dye said. "We are a lot like them.

"I'm not trying to win that game in Norfolk (Saturday against William & Mary) before we play it, but with the chance to win, I feel that our fans would be a whole lot more excited about going to a bowl game to see us, than would the fans of some 7-4 team who are already upset with their team's record."

"I just hope we get the opportunity to go," Dye said.

Reportedly, the Pirates are on the list for the Peach, Tangerine and Independence bowls.

Baseball Greats Bucky Harris, Fred Haney Claimed By Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — He was the original "Boy Wonder" of baseball.

At the age of 27, Stanley Raymond "Bucky" Harris managed the Washington Senators in their only World Series victory in 1924 and guided them to two of their three American League pennants.

Later, in 1947, Harris won the league crown and the World Series championship with the New York Yankees only to be fired the following year after finishing third — one game behind Cleveland and Boston who tied for first — and was replaced by Casey Stengel.

Harris died Tuesday night on his 81st birthday at a suburban health center after a long illness.

Private funeral services will be held Friday following cremation in Pittston, Pa., where he entered baseball.

Harris, a native of Port Jervis, N.Y., was elected to the baseball Hall of Fame two years ago.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Fred Haney, a man who experienced the highest of highs and the lowest of lows in baseball, is dead at the age of 79.

The 5-foot-6 Haney, called Pudge by friends, died Wednesday of a heart attack suffered at his home.

Haney played for 17 years in the major and minor leagues, managed the St. Louis Browns, Pittsburgh Pirates and Milwaukee Braves, and was the first general manager of the expansion California Angels when the franchise was formed prior to the 1961 season. He retired in 1968.

A rosary will be said Friday night at the Cathedral Chapel in Los Angeles. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at the same church.

Haney led the Braves to a World Series championship, two pennants and two second-place finishes.

When the Braves lost a 20-4 decision to the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1957, he was hanged in effigy. But his team won the National League pennant and, with Lew Burdette winning three games, defeated the New York Yankees in the World Series.

Haney is survived by his wife, Florence, and a daughter, Patricia Franklin.

Switch Wasn't In Argentina

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — If two Argentine thoroughbreds were switched in a growing U.S. racetrack scandal, it wasn't here, an Argentine expert said Wednesday.

"If there was any switch, it was in the United States and not in Argentina," said Alberto Iglesias, owner of a local export agency and a well-known Argentine horseman.

His firm, Agencia Tresiete, has exported some 20 thoroughbreds to the United States from Argentina in the last 1½ years for Dr. Mark Gerard, the New York veterinarian who is the central figure in the Belmont ringer scandal.

Gerard was suspended — and reinstated by an appeals court Wednesday — after New York racing officials began investigating the possibility that two Uruguayan thoroughbreds, Cinzano and Lebon, were involved in a switch to win a race at Belmont Park.

Now, two Argentine thoroughbreds, Chirico and Sundaro, have been drawn into the spreading scandal. Both horses were purchased by Gerard last year and were shipped to the United States by Iglesias.

The status of two other Gerard-purchased horses, As de Pique II of Uruguay and Enchumao of Argentina, also was being investigated.

The central element of the investigation has been the Cinzano-Lebon controversy. Cinzano was a 4-year-old Uruguayan champion. Lebon, similar in appearance to Cinzano, was a third-rate 5-year-old.

Both horses were shipped together last June and went to Gerard's Long Island farm to undergo quarantine. While there, Gerard reported that Cinzano had to be destroyed after sustaining a fractured skull.

The present owner of record, Joseph Taub, received $150,000 in insurance from Lloyd's of London after the horse was put down.

The New York Racing and Wagering Board has since sent an investigative unit to Uruguay to collect evidence that will identify the horse known as Lebon, now under guard at Belmont. Meanwhile, three detectives from the Nassau County district attorney's office remained in Montevideo, collecting evidence for a grand jury now hearing testimony in the probe.

Sophomore Darrell Griffith added 21 points for Louisville.

"I thought Griffith was the best player," said Czech Coach Jan Kolae. "He's very fast. Good jumper."

The Czechs were led by Kamil Brabemec with 23 points and Pavel Bojanovski with 17.

The Czechs, 2-2-1 in their tour of the United States, played without Jirka Pospisil, who was injured. "He has a cast on his right arm," said Kolae.

Louisville, which opens its season Nov. 30 at Providence College, shot a sizzling 57.1 percent from the field, hitting 44 of 77 shots and outrebounding the Czechs 35-34. The Czechs shot 52.3 percent from the field, hitting 34 of 65 field goal attempts.

Brigham Young Replacement Just As Good As Man He Followed

By VERN ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Brigham Young quarterback Marc Wilson is so much like his injured predecessor Gifford Nielsen that listing differences between them amounts to hair-splitting.

Both have started four games this season for 13th-ranked BYU. Both are 6-foot-5 and 195, adept at other sports, devout Mormons, married to former cheerleaders, good students and want to play pro football.

Statistically it's more of the same. Before he was lost for the season with a knee injury, Nielsen led the nation in passing, completing 98 of 156 passes for 1,167 yards and 16 touchdowns.

Wilson has hit 92 of 155 passes for 1,515 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Last week against Utah, Wilson passed for five touchdowns and a National Collegiate Athletic Association single-game record of 571 yards.

That earned him The Associated Press Back of the Week honors for the second time this season. The first was in his initial start when he threw seven touchdown passes against Colorado State. Nielsen won the honor once.

"They are the kind of kids, the old cliché goes, you would like to take home and have as your own son," said BYU Coach LaVell Edwards.

But there are differences between Nielsen, a senior from Provo, Utah, and Wilson, a sophomore from Seattle, Wash. A paragon of accuracy, Nielsen threw only three interceptions this year. Wilson has dished up 12, six in a long afternoon against Wyoming.

"Marc is a little quicker and stronger than Gifford," Edwards said. "I think Marc has a little stonger arm, but obviously he doesn't have the experience Gifford has."

Edwards said Wilson is the softer-spoken of the two. "He has worked on his confidence and leadership, and probably has had to work on them more than Gifford, who seems to have them as innate qualities."

Wilson agrees. "In a year or so, maybe I can develop the ability to think on the field like Gifford did. That is his great strength. I can't imagine anyone reading defenses better than him," Wilson said.

"We were good friends before his injury and have been ever since. After last week's game, he came up to me and gave me a hug and told me how proud he was. All year he's done nothing but express confidence in me and help me."

Wilson, who was redshirted last season, said he is surprised at his success.

"Actually," he said, "I expected Gifford to win the Heisman Trophy and me to watch him do it all year long."

Wilson, 20, is quick to share accolades with his teammates.

"I don't know how Gifford feels," Wilson said, "but I would attribute most of our success to our receivers and offensive line."

BYU, 7-1 and the Western Athletic Conference leader at 5-0, runs a complicated pro-type offense and uses between 20 and 30 pass plays per game. Six BYU receivers have at least 21 receptions.

Wilson will face his stiffest test Saturday against No. 17 Arizona State. Momentarily shedding his reserve, he said: "I think we'll win."

Tires you can trust... from retreads to radials

SATURDAY'S N. C. STATE-DUKE GAME will feature three of the most exciting and talented offensive players around in quarterbacks Mike Dunn and Johnny Evans and running back Ted Brown.

Both of the quarterbacks are ranked high in the Atlantic Coast Conference statistics. Dunn, the Duke leader, is nearly as great a rushing threat as a passing threat. The 187-pound junior has passed for 929 yards and rushed for 573 through nine games this season. He has thrown five TD passes and scored six times rushing.

Dunn has connected on 81 of 148 passes for a 54.7 per cent completion mark and has carried the ball 125 times for a 3.6 yards per carry average. His rushing total is the second best on the Blue Devil squad.

In addition to his excellent completion percentage, Dunn has also been a very careful passer. In Duke's 38-14 victory over Wake Forest last Saturday, Dunn broke a Blue Devil record by throwing his 70th straight pass without an interception. In that game, he was six-of-ten passing for 78 yards and he carried the ball 10 times for 65 yards, including a 26-yard touchdown run.

WOLFPACK QUARTERBACK Johnny Evans is also an excellent field general. In total offense, he averages 131.9 yards per game. He has completed 43.9 per cent of his passes this year (82 of 187) for a total of 1,140 yards. That comes out to an average of 114 yards per game passing. He also has six TD tosses to his credit.

In the rushing category, Evans has carried the ball 121 times for a net total of 179 yards, an average of 1.5 yards per carry.

Running back Ted Brown is the real star of the Wolfpack offense, however. His 251 yards in last Saturday's 21-17 loss to Penn State put Brown over 3,000 career yards, 3,111 to be exact. This season, he has carried the ball 190 times for a total of 1,110 yards, an average of 5.8 yards per carry.

Brown's career average is 5.87 yards per lug. He is one of only six active rushers in the NCAA over 3,000 yards and is the only underclassman of the bunch. If he matches or betters his current pace of 111 yards per game during the Duke contest, he would pass such notable players as O. J. Simpson, Rob Lytle and Don McCauley in career rushing.

THE GAME SHOULD BE a good one, with a possible bowl bid on the line. The Peach Bowl will reportedly have a representative at the contest to view both schools.

A win by the Wolfpack would end their season at 7-4, while Duke has another game left after the N. C. State game, a home date with North Carolina.

Both teams are said to still be on the list of possibilities for the Peach, but the loser will definitely be scratched.

Angry Auerbach Tells Celts To Play Or Go

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"If any of you guys don't feel like playing, you can pack your bags and get the hell out."

That was the gist of the message delivered by Boston Celtics president and General Manager Red Auerbach to his club in a closed-door meeting following Boston's 129-114 loss to the San Antonio Spurs Wednesday night, according to one of the players who sat through the tongue-lashing.

The loss, the Celtics' eighth in nine starts, ties them with New Jersey for the worst record in the National Basketball Association.

Coach Tommy Heinsohn, who huddled with Auerbach after the game, is ready to shake things up.

"I think you are going to see some surprises," Heinsohn said. "We've got to start making some major changes."

One move could involve more playing time for top draft choice Cornbread Maxwell at forward, where Curtis Rowe and Sidney Wicks have been inconsistent.

But according to Celtics center Dave Cowens, it's all a matter of intensity.

"We've got to start going on a suicide mission," he said. "We've got to get mad, start intimidating and playing harder. It was just embarrassing to be out on the court tonight."

San Antonio led 87-80 going into the final period, then buried the Celtics with a 42-point quarter.

In other NBA games, the Buffalo Braves beat the New York Knicks 124-113, the Philadelphia 76ers trounced the New Jersey Nets 130-107, the Detroit Pistons defeated the Houston Rockets 127-107, the Denver Nuggets edged the New Orleans Jazz 115-112 and the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Indiana Pacers 132-129.

Braves 124, Knicks 113
Buffalo erased a five-point halftime deficit behind reserves Bill Willoughby and Jim McDaniels, who combined for 15 points in the second half.

Willoughby, playing only his fourth game of the season, hit three baskets in the last three minutes of the third quarter as the Braves went on a 12-6 spurt to go in front. Then McDaniels, a backup center averaging 14 minutes a game and shooting 22 per cent, scored five straight points at the start of the fourth quarter and sank all three of his shots.

Billy Knight led Buffalo with 30 points, 23 of them in the first half. Forward John Shumate added 26 and held former Brave Bob McAdoo to 18 points for the Knicks.

76ers 130, Nets 107
Philadelphia remained unbeaten under new Coach Billy Cunningham, winning its third in a row as Julius Erving scored 19 points and Darryl Dawkins 16. The Nets' George Johnson led all scorers with 20 points, but 14 of them were in the first quarter.

The Sixers took the lead for good midway through the second period and built it to as much 27 points in the fourth quarter.

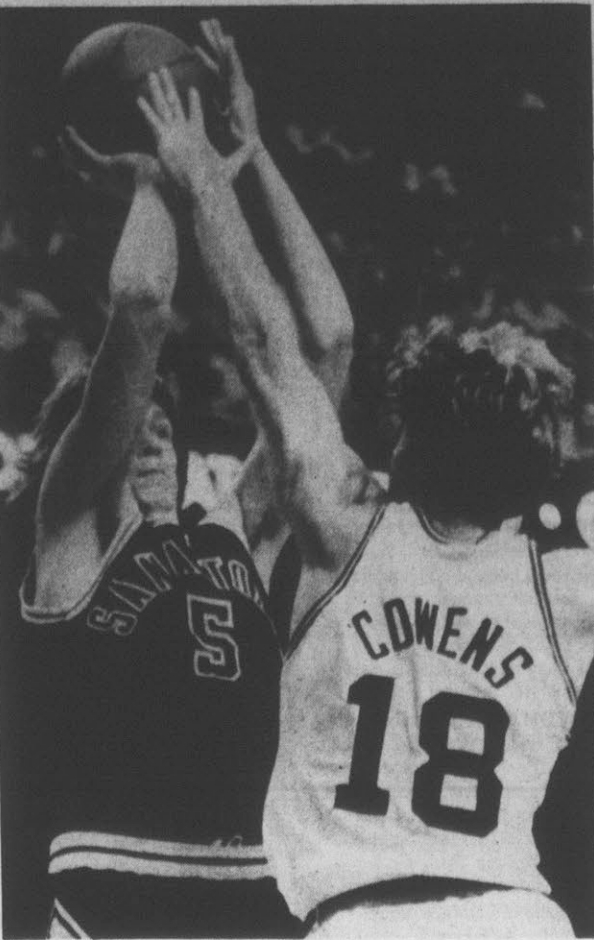

"Philadelphia was awesome," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery. "We did not want to get into a running game with them. We wanted to slow down the tempo, but just could not manage it."

Pistons 127, Rockets 107
Chris Ford, who lost his starting job to Ralph Simpson, ending a string of 152 consecutive starts for the Detroit guard, came off the bench to score six points and spark a second period burst that carried the Pistons from a 35-32 deficit to a 51-43 lead. The Rockets never caught up.

"The pay is the same for me whether or not I start," said Ford.

Nuggets 115, Jazz 112
Denver outscored New Orleans 19-5 midway through the fourth quarter to open a 15-point lead and then held off a late surge by the Jazz. David Thompson scored 31 points and Dan Issel a season-high 26 for the Nuggets. Truck Robinson topped New Orleans with 24, but NBA scoring king Pete Maravich was limited to 10.

Warriors 132, Pacers 129
Rick Barry scored 39 of his 45 points in the second half for the Warriors, who snapped a three-game losing streak. He had four points in the final 1:30 to seal the victory and offset a 36-point effort by Indiana's Adrian Dantley.

Wahoos Need More Than Luck

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Hapless Virginia has had more bad luck this year to be sure, but Coach Dick Bestwick insists that "the real point is that we just don't know how to win yet when we get the chance."

The Cavs are now 1-7-1 on the season, their only victory a contest with Wake Forest, which sports the only record in the Atlantic Coast Conference more dismal than Virginia's.

"What we really needed is to have someone on the schedule that we can beat without much problem, but in our case finding a team like that might be hard to do," Bestwick said.

The coach contended his boys have tried hard and noted that in the Virginia Tech, West Virginia and Syracuse games, victory might have been theirs but for quirks of fate at critical moments.

Italian Cop Sets His Sights On Ali's Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

One would have thought the occasion was intended to launch a Hollywood special instead of an exercise in fisticuffs aimed at sending Muhammad Ali's heavyweight crown overseas.

The site was the Friar's Club, watering hole of the theater set, and not one of the bistros such as Gallagher's, Toots Shor's or Mamma Leone's normally inhabited by the ring mob and other jock types.

Lunch was served upstairs in the sacrosanct Milton Berle Room. A portrait of Uncle Miltie looked down from one wall, and on the other was a framed picture of the late Jack Benny, arms folded and a smirk on his lips.

Henny Youngman, the ageless stand-up comedian who tells you to "Take My Wife — Please," was on hand to serve as live prop.

The guest of honor: A tall, good-looking Italian traffic policeman named Alfio Righetti from the little Adriatic seacoast town of Rimini. Alfio didn't bring his whistle but he was accompanied by his own mini-entourage, including a trainer and an interpreter.

It took only two minutes of translation for Alfio to get his message across. His mission: Beat Leon Spinks, America's Olympic gold medalist, in their fight in Las Vegas Nov. 18, and then wrest the title from Ali in a bout already set for Feb. 15, also in Las Vegas, under the aegis of Promoter Bob Arum.

The young cop knows only a few words of English, such as "break," "right hand lead" and "don't forget to duck," but he and his supporters claim he speaks a language with his fists that can be understood by men from all lands.

He has a record of 27 straight victories without a loss, mostly against obscure Europeans, and 14 knockouts. If he doesn't manage to beat Spinks and Ali,

First Surgery

BUFFALO (AP) — Star running back O.J. Simpson's first-ever bout with a surgeon's knife went well, the Buffalo Bills said Wednesday.

Simpson underwent surgery for cartilage damage to the left knee, the first time the famed 31-year-old runner has needed surgery.

Dr. Joseph Godfrey, the team physician who performed the operation, said it was "a straightforward cartilage operation with no ligament involved."

Simpson, 31, is expected to be hospitalized for about a week and to be on crutches for about 10 days after that, said a Bills spokesman.

Boxer's Contract Example Of Abuse

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the most startling revelations to come out of last week's House Communications Committee hearings in Washington were the terms of CBS' contract with boxer Howard Davis.

Until the hearings, CBS steadfastly had refused to reveal details of its deal with Davis. And with good reason. The contract is a clear example of TV's abuse of power.

The deal, which began last March 3, gives CBS exclusive rights to Davis' bouts through 1980. Through the first 18 months he gets $40,000 for each six-round bout and $50,000 for each eight-rounder.

But during the second 18 months Davis gets $200,000 per fight if he agrees to pay his opponent or $166,667 per bout if CBS pays the opposition. Davis also, apparently, picks his own opponent.

What this means is that Davis can select some worthless pug, offer him $5,000 and keep $195,000 for himself. The obvious opportunities for chicanery are enormous. What kind of an opponent is Davis going to pick under a deal like that? A cheap one no doubt. And how hard is the opponent going to fight if he's taking on the guy who signs his paycheck? And what if the opponent is offered more to lose than to win? And what about the public? How can CBS promote a sham like this as a legitimate bout? Isn't that an out and out deception?

CBS' answer to all this is that the deal was negotiated by the business department and sports had nothing to do with it. Network officials say they realize they made a bad deal and are trying to get out of it. But Davis' people are reluctant to change the terms. No wonder.

CBS has the next Muhammad

Bodyguards In Paris Booming

By DAVE ZIMMERMAN
PARIS (AP) — "Rent-A-Gorilla" firms are beating their chests in Paris, muscling in on the violence trend by offering male and female bodyguards for as little as $10 an hour.

Budo Brothers, a 3-year-old protection outfit, opened a women's branch called Budo Sisters early in 1977. A third firm, KO!, recently entered the field.

All offer employees skilled in a variety of martial arts and languages. Emphasis is also put on good grooming and athletic appearance.

"This is a profession like any other," Sully Desplan, director of Budo Brothers and Budo Sisters, said in an interview. "There's nothing secret or illegal about it. There's a problem of escalating crime and violence in the world, and the need for our service proves it."

"Businessmen, politicians, entertainers come to us when the police can't solve their protection problems. We're non-political, and we'll take clients from the left, right or center."

Desplan said budo is a Japanese word designating the ensemble of martial arts. He said he had 60 male and 15 female employees, and that fees range anywhere from $10 to $40 or up, "depending on the circumstances."

Desplan said business was booming but declined to give figures. Asked if his agents carried arms, he said, "only if the occasion calls for it."

One of the Budo Sisters, Catherine Pruvot, a 23-year-old secretary who speaks English and Spanish in addition to her native French, said she had joined the firm to supplement her income. Recent missions included guarding a businessman in Hamburg and a child in Paris.

Claudine Dory, a 23-year-old university student waiting for a job with an international organization as an interpreter in English, Italian, Spanish and French, said she too wanted extra money. So did 25-year-old singer and actress Stephanie Ohenart.

All agreed that staying in good condition was another benefit, and said that they trained regularly in a specially-equipped room provided by the firm.

Like their Budo counterparts, most of the men from KO! are recruited from sports clubs and are seeking extra money to supplement their regular jobs. KO! fees are slightly higher, however, beginning at about $12 an hour.

"A key element in protecting someone is to be non-provocative, not to stand out," KO! Director Daniel Remy, a karate black belt, explained in an interview. "We're seeking men who are articulate, can carry on a conversation in a variety of different situations, are intelligent and well groomed."

"We don't want the stereotyped gorilla with a scarred face and bulging muscles. What we're after is a dynamic, athletic type who can inspire confidence in a client, as well as protect him."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Don't Take Your Own Blood Pressure

A patient came to my office carrying a smart-looking black case and proudly displayed the contents.

There they were, shiny and bright: a blood pressure machine and a stethoscope.

She wanted me to teach her how to use her new treasures. She, like many other people, was intrigued by the mystique of blood pressure numbers.

Blood pressure numbers are significant only to the doctor because he is able to fit these numbers into the information he obtains from the total medical examination. That information becomes an excellent index of the condition of the blood vessels, the kidneys, the heart, the lungs, and the hormone balance of the body.

There is no mysticism about these numbers. But there can be confusion about their meaning.

There are two blood pressure numbers. The higher one measures the pressure in the arteries at the moment that the heart pumps blood into them. This is known as the systolic blood pressure.

The lower number represents the diastolic pressure, which is the pressure within the blood vessels between each beat of the heart.

Both blood pressure readings are significant. The lower, or diastolic pressure, may perhaps be somewhat more significant to the doctor.

Blood pressure may vary from day to day, and even before and after meals. Wide ranges can follow exercise, or emotional tensions and stress. It's obvious, therefore, that taking one's own pressure serves no real function, and can only serve to produce anxiety.

I asked my patient, "And what if you found that the numbers of your blood pressure reading were higher than you anticipated? What would you then prescribe for yourself?" This absurdity highlighted the pointlessness of taking one's own blood pressure.

Some doctors choose to tell their patients what the exact blood pressure readings are. Others prefer not to because they feel it tends to induce unnecessary anxiety.

By WILLIAM L. EBERLINE
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Some 800 Iowa cities will have their pictures taken from the air this winter to determine which homeowners are trying to heat the whole outdoors.

The project, dubbed "Operation Sky Scan," is being sponsored by the state's investor-owned electric and gas utilities as part of an energy conservation campaign.

"This is the first program of its kind ever undertaken on a statewide basis," said John M. Lewis, president of the Iowa Utility Association.

"We hope to get started within a matter of weeks — probably by Nov. 15."

The utility firms have contracted with Texas Instruments, Inc., of Dallas to shoot infrared aerial pictures of communities they serve.

Where an ordinary camera produces pictures of light reflecting from the surface of the photo subject, an infrared camera reacts to heat radiation.

When infrared photos of a city are taken from the air at night, buildings show up in varying shades of gray — pale gray if the building is giving off a lot of heat, darker gray if less heat is being lost.

Lewis said that makes infrared photography of cities one of the best and lowest cost ways of spotting insufficiently insulated buildings.

Many private consultants around the country are using the technique, called thermography, to help consumers and business executives learn where their insulation is insufficient. The cost ranges from $25 to $100, depending on the extent of the inspection and report.

In addition, individual utilities in other states are running thermography programs.

Lewis estimates that the program will cost the Iowa utilities about $460,000 to scan 800 Iowa communities.

"The photos will become the property of the utility serving each community," Lewis said. "Each utility company will arrange for any interested homeowner to see how much heat is being lost from his home."

"The home owner may want to put in more insulation to cut down on heat loss and reduce his utility bills."

"There's nothing compulsory about it, but we think enough homeowners will want to do something about it to achieve a significant saving in energy. The saving is year round, of course, because better insulation means less energy is needed to cool the house in the summer as well as heat it in winter."

The weatherman has to cooperate before a sky scan can be done, Lewis said. The temperature has to be under 35 degrees, the sky clear and roofs free of snow for the scanner to work.

Has A Book For His Successor

SEATTLE (AP) — When Wes Uhlman moved into the Seattle mayor's office eight years ago, his predecessor introduced him around City Hall and "wished me good luck," says Uhlman.

But the mayor, who is not running for re-election this year, says he plans to do better for his successor.

Uhlman is spending his final weeks in office writing a book — a volume, he says, outlining what the mayor of Seattle needs to know.

R.W. (Woody) Wilkinson, head of the transition team, says 104 key issues have been listed for the newcomer.

"We'll miss a few. And some more will pop up. And a new mayor will accidentally lock himself into still more," Wilkinson said. "But this will be a start."

Declarer needed delicate timing to bring home this hand from a recent team game. Only one of the two declarers was up to the challenge.

The bidding followed similar lines at the two tables. North showed extra values by raising spades freely, and both Souths felt that their hand merited issuing a game invitation, duly accepted by partner.

At the two tables the play to the early tricks followed a like pattern. Both Wests eschewed the apparently obvious heart lead for fear of setting up a trick for declarer and attacked with the queen of diamonds, won by dummy's king. The declarers realized that, besides the trump suit, they were looking at four potential losers in the side suits. The queen of hearts would take care of one loser if West held both high honors—likely from the bidding. And East had to hold the king of trumps to give declarer any chance.

Both declarers led the jack of trumps, covered by the king and won by the ace. Now both led a heart, taken by the king. West continued with the jack of diamonds, won by the ace. The eight of spades was covered by the ten and queen, and here the declarers parted ways.

One declarer led another heart. West rose with the ace, cashed the ten of diamonds on which East discarded his remaining heart, and then reverted to hearts. East ruffed the queen, and though declarer overruffed, he was stuck with a club loser, and had to go down one.

The second declarer saw the danger of this line. He avoided it quite simply. He crossed to the king of clubs and led another spade, finessing the six. Now he drew the last trump and then led a heart. West was helpless. He won the ace of hearts, cashed his high diamond but could do no further harm. East had no more trumps to ruff away the queen of hearts, so declarer would always be able to sluff his losing club on her majesty to make his contract.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Steve Allen Tries Make People Think

By JAY SHARBUIT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In 1958, when he had a Sunday variety show on NBC, Steve Allen tried to install 25 minutes of seriousness in which major historic figures, played by actors, discussed major issues.

After a three-week debate, he says, NBC said no dice. But Allen, in addition to being a comedian, songwriter, author, actor, pianist and struggling trumpet player, also is persistent.

And now, he's readying a second season of that 1958 idea, called "Meeting of Minds," for airing early next year over the 200-plus public TV stations of the Public Broadcasting Service.

As with the last effort, there'll be six one-hour shows. In them, thespians posing as notables ranging from Florence Nightingale to the Marquis de Sade will discuss themselves and their times.

They'll also exchange ideas as the saying goes, on various issues, the exchange written in conversational style by Allen, who does the series at public TV station KCET here.

The show's intent is simple, he says: "To make people think."

Controversy that came after NBC first rejected his idea kept the project alive, he says. After the rejection, Allen fans sought and got his OK to do the proposed "Meeting" in local productions.

He even participated in one that was recorded for the Pacific chain of non-commercial radio stations. A few years later, he repeated the segment on a late-night show he hosted for the Westinghouse group.

In the early 1970s, he added, when he had a syndicated variety series seen on about 50 stations, he did another "Minds," this one featuring Cleopatra, Thomas Aquinas and Thomas Paine, and Theodore Roosevelt.

When it aired in Los Angeles, he said, it drew a heavy amount of favorable local mail. He assumed the same might happen in other areas. It didn't. In fact, there was no mail at all.

He said he checked with the distributor of his series and found that "Meeting" had been cut, without his knowledge, from the list of shows offered stations outside Los Angeles. He says he never asked why.

"But it turned out to be a lucky accident, because since it proved to be only a local show, the fellow who was our executive producer, Loring d'Usseau, put it up for local Emmy awards," Allen explained.

It won three Emmys, he added, and on the basis of that and the favorable mail he offered it as series to CBS, NBC and ABC. All praised it highly, but all turned it down. CBS suggested he try PBS.

"PBS turned it down," Allen replied. "That always makes people laugh . . . instead of a happy ending, it was 'no, we don't want you, either.' I thought then, well, that's that."

He was too busy in commercial TV and with other projects to brood much, the 55-year-old performer said. But one day, he read that d'Usseau, his ex-producer, had become program manager for KCET.

Talks ensued, a bankroll from E. F. Hutton & Co. was secured and production began. Which is how "Meetings" finally came to PBS.

Achievement

By 9-Month-Old

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (AP) — Nine-month-old Fred Garcia III has become the youngest person ever to pass the beginner's stage of the Red Cross swimming test in Greta Andersen's swimming school here.

For his achievement, Fred received Miss Andersen's gold medal from the 1948 Olympics and a Red Cross certification card, which he promptly attempted to eat.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Garcia blew bubbles, bobbed his head and swam 30 feet. He floated on his back 30 seconds and bounced back up when pushed to the bottom in 5 feet of water. He did all this after only 15 swimming lessons.

The Red Cross test also required that he jump into the pool and swim, but since Fred couldn't walk yet, he just sat on the ledge and fell in.

Enforce A Tax On Traveling

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — Stiff government taxes are being enforced for Filipinos and foreign residents in the Philippines traveling abroad.

The taxes, as high as $528 per head for first-class travelers, were imposed as part of the Philippine government's drive to cushion the possible effects on the country's foreign exchange reserves by the lifting of the five-year-old martial law ban on tourist travel.

Alleges Some Avoid Paying

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina textile firms and the companies that provide their workmens compensation insurance may be collaborating in a scheme to avoid paying claims filed by brown lung victims in hopes they will die first, the Carolina Brown Lung Association said Wednesday.

Members of the association appeared at a state Insurance Department hearing in which insurance companies who sell workmens compensation policies are seeking a rate hike.

Association president Lucy Taylor asked Insurance Commissioner John Ingram to stall the rate hike because "the real truth about brown lung in North Carolina was left out of this year's rate increase request."

She and other association members said companies deliberately refrain from telling brown lung victims about their disease, and the insurance companies stall payment of the few claims that are filed.

Mrs. Talbert Faircloth, who said her husband left Burlington Industries six years ago because he couldn't breathe, told Ingram she learned what her husband's problem was only last year when doctors at Duke Hospital told her about it. But she said the doctors wrote Burlington in 1971 that Faircloth had brown lung, and

Isabella Surmounted Raleigh Long-Shot

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Isabella Cannon asked "Who, me?" at the first suggestion that she make a long-shot bid for mayor, yet surmounted seemingly impossible odds to win that office.

The 73-year-old widow, a former teacher and library administrator with a smiling and gently-lined face, campaigned for neighborhood preservation and citizen involvement. But in her first day as mayor-elect, Mrs. Cannon let it be known she wouldn't be the puppet for local groups as her opponent, wealthy incumbent Jyles Coggin, had depicted her.

"I have strong opinions, and I want people to listen to me too," she said.

Born in Scotland in 1904, Mrs. Cannon exudes a mixture of southern charm and cosmopolitan flare. She has traveled around the world as the wife of a top-level U.S. diplomat, and together they lived in a thatched-roof hut in Liberia, and later in India, Baghdad and Iraq.

Barred from joining her husband in mainland China during the Truman years, she went to work for the United Nations helping settle international refugees.

She grew up in North Carolina, the daughter of a textile engineer, and picked Raleigh as home after her husband's death 25 years ago. "Now we've picked each other," she said brightly after her election. Standing just five feet tall and weighing 95 pounds, she didn't file for office until 1½ hours before the deadline. She wasn't taken seriously by many until winning 52 per cent of the vote over Coggin.

"I'd call her a dynamo," said her campaign manager, Earle Beasley. "She's always active, and is a very independent little lady." A Quaker who says she's always had a keen interest in humanitarian needs, Mrs. Cannon has been active in community and political groups, though this was her first attempt at public office. At first, she said, she considered making a city council race.

"Then suddenly someone said, 'Why don't you run for mayor?' I said, 'Who, me?' But it was like opening a door for me, and I knew it was right, so I decided to run."

She immediately was branded "a little old lady," and still bristles at the suggestion.

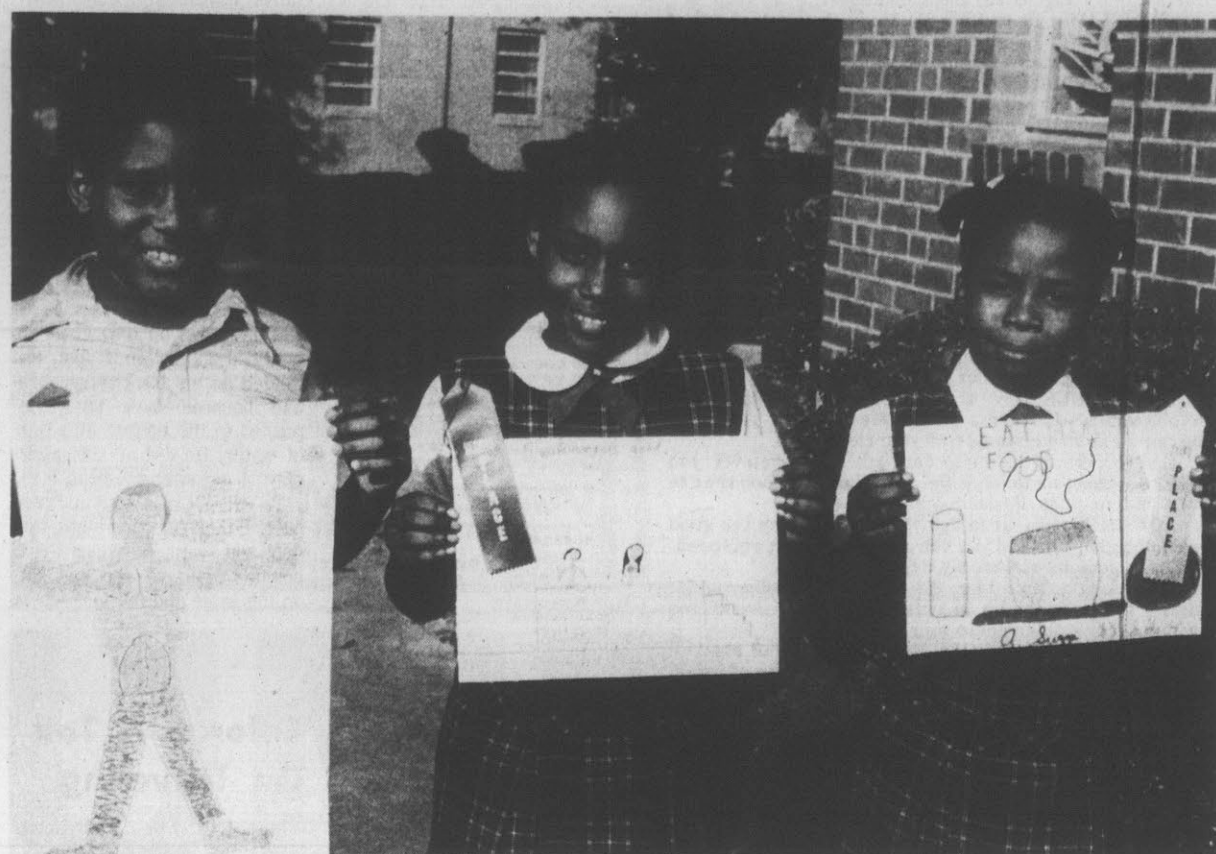

"I have had to fight those three battles, of being little, of being old and of being a woman," she said Wednesday. "I'm little; you know my age, but I reject sex and age as characterizations. They're all three myths — it's a person's qualifications that count."

Wednesday was her day to celebrate, and she enjoyed celebrity-status. Reporters from around the country called her for interviews. Well-wishers at her campaign office plucked up remaining campaign t-shirts — bearing a cannon with ciphers popping out — after their price went from $5 to $12 overnight.

"The turnout Tuesday was much greater than the experts predicted," she said, raising the last laugh. "Apparently, there was a lot the experts didn't know about yesterday."

Thieves Made Appointments

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The federal undercover agent who posed as a stolen merchandise buyer in Nashville and "stung" 284 thieves says he required that his customers call for appointments.

"I told them I didn't want them coming in when I had customers for my regular business. They had to call ahead and make an appointment to see me," Charles Lowe, an agent for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said in an interview Wednesday.

The regular business was supposed to have been a typewriter repair service, the Consolidated Telegraph and Type-writer Co. Lowe used the name Nicholas Becho, went into business May 5 and closed shop Oct. 12.

In between, he said he made 1,127 purchases, paying $256,000 for items which he said are worth $2.27 million.

On Wednesday, police disclosed that a Davidson County grand jury had indicted 284 persons in 10 states who allegedly dealt with the operation. Some 150 of these persons were arrested Wednesday in a sweep of the Nashville area.

Lowe grew a beard for his role as a fence.

"I don't look much like I did in those days," the clean-shaven agent said.

While he didn't carry a gun in the shop, he said he was apprised periodically that his customers did. Backup agents told him that they often watched his customers take guns from their back pockets as they walked through the parking lot to their cars after completing a deal.

Lowe recalled two occasions when he almost blew his cover.

One was Aug. 31 when a city policeman, apparently oblivious to the undercover operation, came into the shop to arrest him. "I had just finished buying a television set from a thief and he said he thought he saw someone outside. I took a look and didn't see anything, but a few minutes later we heard the police sirens," he said.

A policeman arrested him on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property and reportedly worked him over before discovering he was an undercover agent. Lowe refused to confirm the report, saying only that for show he had the policeman hit him as they walked out the door.

"I went to court, made bond and was released. The charges were dropped before it went to a grand jury, though," he said. The other occasion was when he introduced himself to a new customer.

"I must have made 900 buys, but this time I went to shake the man's hand and said 'Hi, I'm Chuck ... er ... Nick,'" Lowe said.

But the agents who were operating the videotape equipment and kept an eye on Lowe said the customer seemed to take no notice.

Same Problems Dogged Into Their Later Years

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Levi Jobe, 81, tends his garden, makes repairs on his house, takes his wife out to eat once a week, attends religious gatherings and does his own driving.

He also watches television. Interrupted by a reporter's call recently while watching a special on the late Bing Crosby, Jobe commented: "Just think, old Bing has died at 73 and here I am, almost 82."

Jobe is one of 271 persons Duke University researchers began watching closely in 1954 in a study of the aging process.

He is one of the 40 survivors of that group — the "super 40" — and he supports the conclusions that old folks can live as happily as they did when they were younger.

"I sometimes feel bad when I'm tired, and sometimes I don't sleep well," Jobe said. "But I try to keep away from medicines as much as possible."

The Duke study, based on periodic medical, psychological and sociological evaluations of the test group participants since 1954, showed that the vast majority of persons beyond retirement age consider life reasonably satisfying and definitely worth living.

One of the key understandings of the data, said George L. Maddox, head of Duke's Center for the Study of Aging, is that old age "does not bring many surprises." If a person is bitter, lonely or dependent in middle age, the same problems will dog him into old age.

A Maddox co-worker, Dr. Erdman Palmore, conducted a companion study of persons at middle age. He commented: "People who are well-adjusted in middle-age tend to go well into old age."

Palmore said one of the threats to the aging is the tendency for everyone else to lock the elderly into stereotypes and expect only certain types of behavior. Sexual gratification is one example, he said.

"One of the cruellest hoaxes perpetrated on old people is to try and convince them they don't need sex anymore," Palmore said. "The majority of healthy men and women remain sexually active in their 70s and on into their 80s. This is very common among normal, healthy married people."

Another inhibiting stereotype imposed on the elderly, the researchers said, is the idea they are not capable people anymore.

"The under-utilized capacity of old people is very striking," said Maddox. "I haven't seen one who couldn't be improved by social supports of various types."

Older Americans get most of their support from friends and family, Maddox said, but most do not live with their children and prefer to make their own homes.

The three-generation American family was never as common as folklore would imply, Maddox said, but few families abandon old people when they are unable to care for themselves. Most families, he said, make efforts that are "almost heroic" to avoid placing older persons in institutions.

Less than five per cent of Americans over 65 are in long-term care institutions, he said, and less than 10 per cent of those over 75.

Children of the elderly are often plagued with guilt and concerned about the prospects of a lonely death for a parent, Maddox said. But most elderly people do not fear death as much as younger persons, according to the Duke study. By the time one reaches the 70s or 80s, the prospect of death is accepted as a part of life, he said.

The study indicates that people do not make sudden turns to religion as they grow older. If the older generation is more religious, Maddox said, it is because they were raised in a more religious atmosphere.

While the lives of most elderly Americans is far better than many people assume, Maddox said, the depressed, confused, disoriented old person is still a reality.

Combinations of mental, physical and family pressures render many older persons virtually helpless, he said. Such persons can get treatment at Duke's Older Americans Resources and Service Clinic.

Over the age of 75, Maddox said, the likelihood of commitment to an institution increases sharply. "The average age of people in long-term facilities is over 80," he said. "A lot of them are in institutions for good reasons."

What the study proves, he said, is that strengths, weaknesses and needs of older Americans, like Levi Jobe, are just as varied as they are among younger people.

"I've learned from this study, when you've seen one, you haven't seen them all," he said.

Brand Loyalties Shaken By Taste Impact Of Low Tar Merit.

MERIT taste delivery switching high tar smokers away from age-old favorites.

There is a taste alternative to high tar cigarettes.

Modern technology created it.

Tests proved it.

Smokers are confirming it.

Today most MERIT smokers are coming from high tar cigarettes — many from brands they had been loyal to for years.

Yet they're switching to — and sticking with — MERIT.

The reason is a real advance in tobacco technology that resulted in a way to boost natural tobacco flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Aug. '77 100's: 12 mg "tar," 0.9 mg nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

It's called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both packed with this special tobacco. And taste-tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
