Sadat In Israel

By RICHARD H.GROWALD

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat arrived Saturday night in Jerusalem to a tumultuous welcome and was reported discussing an Egyptian-Israeli non-belligerency pact with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

Sadat, the first Arab leader to set foot on Israeli soil in 29 years, flew in from Egypt and began immediate talks with Begin. Begin emerged from the meeting in the flag-bedecked King David Hotel nearly an hour later and said he found the talks heartening.

"I had a face-to-face talk with President Sadat — very charming, very heartening, and one may say that we liked each other," he told newsmen.

The official Israeli state radio quoted a Foreign Ministry source as saying a non-belligerency pact might result from the talks. It said the two leaders would hold a previously unscheduled round of talks today as well as the planned working dinner tonight.

A non-belligerency pact could end an era in which Egypt and Israel have gone to war four times in 29 years.

Such a pact is far short of a separate Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, which Sadat has sworn he would not sign, but would leave the way open for Israel to seek further understanding with other Arab states in search of an overall Middle East peace settlement.

Sadat, who has described his visit as a holy mission of peace, was reported to have brought a new peace plan with him and to be willing to sit with Israeli leaders as long as Israel wanted. There were reports he might stay until Tuesday instead of leaving Monday as planned.

Sadat was the first Arab leader to visit the Jewish state since it was founded in 1948.

Sadat, new Egyptian Foreign Minister Butros Ghali and his official party received a jubilant welcome with full military honors at Ben-Gurion Airport outside Tel Aviv, where Sadat warmly embraced three Israeli leaders with whom he had warred — former Premier Golda Meir, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and 1973 war hero Ariel Sharon, the general who led Israeli tanks across the Suez Canal into Egypt.

On arrival in Jerusalem, the Egyptian president, smiling and waving to crowds, went directly to the King David Hotel where Egyptian and Israeli flags fluttered side by side from the roof in a cool breeze for his first round of talks with Begin.

Today, Sadat will address the Israeli parliament and then hold a series of further peace talks with Begin and other Israeli leaders.

Bells chimed from the YMCA across the street from the King David as Sadat's motorcade entered the city. Hundreds of Israelis crowded against blue iron police barricades at the curbstones cheered, waved and shouted, "Begin-Sadat! Begin-Sadat!"

When the black cars of the motorcade had sped past they broke into the streets and formed circles to dance the hora, singing the traditional Israeli welcome, "Hevenu Sholom Aleychem" (We Bring You Peace.")

"I'm trembling — I feel like a drunk but I haven't had anything to drink," said one of the crowd, Simcha Sinai, 31, an Israel born in Yemen. "It's a miracle."

Wild applause erupted when Sadat, followed by Begin, entered the hotel. Police and green bereted border guards, part of more than 10,000 security forces called up for Sadat's visit, watched the crowd warily.

At the airport, Sadat emerged from his American-made Boeing 707 with a smile and a wave of his right hand. The nation watched it live on television, as did Americans, West Europeans and Egyptians.

President Carter watched in the United States and said "the hopes and prayers of all Americans are with these men."

Begin met Sadat at the airport and escorted him on the 30-mile drive to Jerusalem through the rolling hills of Israel, past the burned out tanks and armored cars left from Israel's 1948 war of independence.

Sadat's white jet with a red and gold stripe from nose to tail landed at 7:59 p.m. (12:59 p.m. EST) one minute ahead of schedule.

The Israeli flag is white with two horizontal blue stripes and a blue Star of David in the center. (AP Laserphoto)

American Comments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Saturday watched the televised arrival of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Israel, where Prime Minister Menahem Begin greeted him, and said the "hopes and prayers of all Americans are with these two men."

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance called the Sadat-Begin meeting a chance to "dispel mutual suspicions and distrust."

Carter, in a statement issued through his press office, said, "the arrival of President Sadat in Israel is an historic occasion.

"The hopes and prayers of all Americans are with these two men as they seek progress toward peace for the people of the Middle East and, indeed, for the entire world."

In his statement, Vance said, "President Sadat has taken a courageous and imaginative step to which Prime Minister Begin has responded with statesmanship and vision."

He said Sadat's visit "can transform fundamentally the psychological atmosphere for Arab-Israeli peace negotiations.

"It can help dispel the mutual suspicions and distrust that has been the principal barrier to fruitful negotiations."

Thousands Attended Women's Conference

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter told the first National Women's Conference today that the participants were making history "for the future generations of American women and men."

Mrs. Carter, cheered wildy by the crowd of 13,000, spoke shortly after the convention was gavelled to order.

In addition to Mrs. Carter, the participants included two former first ladies, Betty Ford and Lady Bird Johnson; civil rights leader Coretta Scott King, and Gloria Steinem.

The conference is costing the federal government $5 million. It is to make recommendations to Congress and President Carter on the subject of equality between men and women.

"Never before in our history has there been has such a women's meeting, in numbers, in diversity, in preparation, in long-range effect," Mrs. Carter told the crowd, including 2,000 delegates and alternates, official guests and convention supporters.

"There have been a lot of disagreements and conflicts," the first lady said in apparent reference to protests by women who oppose such issues as ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and federally funded abotions.

"There will be a lot of disagreements and conflicts," Mrs. Carter added. "But I agree with my daughter-in-law Judy that we must guard against obscuring valid issues with defensiveness and anger. The glue that holds us together is the firm knowledge that our basic goals are the same. All of us cherish our freedom to live, to worship, to vote, to work as we please."

"Our society gives great lip service to the preservation of families, but by its laws and attitudes it does not in fact adequately value women who are mothers," the first lady said. "And this is why the Equal Rights Amendment is needed."

Meanwhile, thousands of opponents who claim most of the delegates to the conference do not represent the views of the average American woman were meeting across town at what sponsors called a "pro-family rally."

Perhaps OK In Naples, But No No In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has ruled that the buttock is an "intimate part" and pinching or touching it without consent is a crime that can send you to jail.

The ruling by Manhattan Criminal Court Judge Benjamin Altman last month passed unnoticed at the time, but was excerpted this week by United States Law Week.

Altman ruled in the case of a man charged with touching the buttocks of a woman without her consent as she was traveling on the subway during rush hour.

The defendant claimed he had not committed a crime, but Altman refused to dismiss the charges, ruling that if the "alleged occurrence" had taken place in an area of the world where pinching of the buttocks was socially acceptable perhaps the defendant's position could be sustained.

"However, here the touching of a woman's buttocks without her consent is not treated so cavalierly as in some environs."

School Board Meets Monday

The regular meeting of the Greenville City School Board for the month of November will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 21 in the multi-purpose room at South Greenville Elementary School.

Among agenda items are reports on the Middle School, sale of surplus property, and fund advancement from Pitt County Commissioners.

It Went Like This

House With Snakes To Be Burned

PRINCETON, N.C. (AP) — The snakes have driven Edna Baker out of her house, but she's going to get even Monday the only way she can.

She's going to burn the house down.

Mrs. Baker, a widow in her sixties, lived alone in the 100year-old farmhouse about five miles east of Princeton in Wayne County where she had raised her family. The snakes started moving in last May, apparently from a swamp near the house.

Mrs. Baker killed off every snake that showed its scaly head. But they kept on multiplying, and soon she knew her method of dispatching them wasn't efficient enough.

Two exterminating firms gave up trying to rid the house of the slithering pests after running up a combined bill of $500. No one could say why the snakes decided to infest the Baker house.

Told that the only way to destroy the snakes was to burn the house down, Mrs. Baker finally gave up. This week, she moved into a rented house three miles up the road.

He Wasn't Bothered

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — Shirley Garcia and her husband, Leroy, went home together after an all-woman jury convicted her of conspiring to kill him.

Mrs. Garcia, 22, left the Lake County Courthouse on Friday, free on a $30,000 bond, and went home to await sentencing.

During the course of the three-day trial, Garcia testified he wasn't bothered by his wife's attempts to kill him. He also acknowledged having beaten her.

Mrs. Garcia works 70 hours a week in an all-night cigarette store near the Indiana-Illinois state line to support her husband and their three children, whose ages range from 1 to 5 years. Her husband, also in his 20s, is unemployed.

Didn't Give Enough, Fired

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A desk clerk at the Kansas City branch of the YWCA, described by her supervisor as an excellent employee, was fired because she gave only $10 to the United Way charity drive.

"It's not that I didn't give to the United Way. It's that I didn't give enough," said Sharon Walter, a mother of two who has worked at the YWCA here for four years.

Her supervisor, Alice Kennedy, YWCA executive director, confirmed that Mrs. Walter was dismissed Nov. 10 because her contribution to the Heart of America United Way was too small.

Mrs. Kennedy said YWCA policy dictates that each employee give at least an hour's pay each month. Mrs. Walter earned $2.30 an hour, which would amount to a required contribution of $27.60.

Out Of Wedlock Punishment

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A federal judge on Friday upheld the FBI's decision to transfer an agent as punishment for living with a woman out of wedlock.

U.S. District Court Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. said his jurisdiction did not extend to ruling on the wisdom of FBI internal regulations. He voiced serious doubts about the views of Joseph A. Fisher, the government's attorney, who had told the court that the government does not concede any difference between criminal and moral conduct.

But he ruled that the agent, Jack T. Colwell, has no constitutional right preventing the FBI from firing or transferring him and that therefore the court has no jurisdiction in the matter.

Arab Reaction Hostile

By MICHAEL KEATS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syria suggested Saturday Egypt's President Anwar Sadat should be overthrown because of his visit to Israel. Besieged Egyptian diplomats in cities around the world holed up in their embassies against angry Arab mobs.

Sadat flew to Israel with the shouts of "traitor!" ringing throughout the Arab world but godspeed from President Carter and, more importantly, telegrams of support from his own armed forces and people.

Angry Arab mobs from London to Bangladesh marched on Egyptian embassies to protest Sadat's visit to Jerusalem to address the Israeli parliament and hold talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

In capitals around the world, Egyptian flags and portraits of Sadat were burned publicly as thousands chanted "traitor! traitor! traitor!"

In Athens and Tunis, Egyptian diplomats fought off attempts to occupy their embassies. One Arab youth was killed in Athens and two others wounded in the gunbattle there. One attacker was shot in the stomach in Tunis.

In Beirut, at least five Arabs were wounded in a fierce firefight between protesting Palestinian youths and Arab Peacekeeping forces. The Palestinians attacked the main road to the Egyptian Embassy with automatic weapons and grenade launchers.

One grenade tore a gaping holein the embassy's first floor.

A crowd of Arab youths, estimated at 40,000, marched through the center of Beirut, brandishing automatic rifles in defiance of the arms ban on the capital, and chanting "traitor! traitor! traitor.!"

In Tripoli, Morocco, 100,000 demonstrators protested the Sadat visit and an Egyptian flag was burned in public.

Syria, which has carried on a love-hate relationship with Egypt through all the years of Middle East war, declared a national day of mourning to protest Sadat's visit.

Traffic in Damascus halted at noon for five minutes to observe official mourning at what it termed the death of Arab unity caused by the Sadat visit.

At Least 50 Killed
727 Crashes On Madeira

FUNCHAL, Madeira (AP) — A Portuguese jetliner carrying 163 persons skidded off the runway and exploded while landing during a storm Saturday at this Atlantic island, officials reported. Government television announcers said at least 50 persons were killed.

Virgilio Perreira, Funchal city council president, said the death toll could reach 100.

Medical authorities reported about 50 survivors, and the search continued for others.

Witnesses at Santa Cruz Airport said the Boeing 727 skidded off the end of the runway and a series of explosions blew the aircraft apart. They said the tail section remained on land while the forward portion of the fuselage hurtled forward and stopped partially in the pounding surf.

Wind-swept seas around this Portuguese island hampered search and rescue efforts by police, firemen and navy personnel.

Some bodies were laid out on the rocky beach under the glare of emergency lights powered by portable generators. Madeira officials appealed for blood donations.

A spokesman at the district hospital in Funchal said "many severely wounded" persons were admitted.

Flight controllers said rain and 12-mph winds had cut visibility to 2½ miles when the jet of Portugal's national airline TAP tried to land at 10 p.m. (5 p.m. EST). They said the airport had been closed earlier in the day because of the storm but later reopened.

TAP officials in Lisbon said the plane carried 156 passengers and seven crew members.

They reported all 110 passengers who boarded the flight in Lisbon were believed to be Portuguese, but they did not know the nationalities of the others. They said the flight, No. 425, originated in Brussels, Belgium.

Funchal is the administrative capital of this island 600 miles southwest of Lisbon and 400 miles off the coast of Morocco.

Soviets Say Sadat Mission Will Fail

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union accused Egyptian President Anwar Sadat of pursuing a "short-sighted policy" in the Middle East and predicted his peace mission to Israel will fail.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev sent a private message to President Carter on the eve of Sadat's trip to Jerusalem to address the Israeli Knesset but its contents were not disclosed.

The Soviet Communist Party Central Committee newspaper, Selskaya Zhizn, said in an editorial which appeared only hours before Sadat was scheduled to leave that Israel would try to take advantage of Sadat's trip to split Arab nations and "strike the main blow against the Syrian Arab Republic."

"It is obvious that such a separate deal (between Egypt and Israel) would contradict the basic interests of the Arab states and the Palestinian people," it said.

More than 200 friends and associates gathered at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Friday evening to honor Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, Professor of Psychology and executive secretary of the Chancellor Selection Committee, East Carolina University.

Bill McDonald, chairman of the Pitt County Area Mental Health Board was host for the event, an evening of tribute that included guest speakers and the unveiling of a portrait of Prewett.

"He possesses great wisdom, fine scholarship, penetrating insight and is a modest person," ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins said. "We have been close friends for 25 years. I have leaned on him for serious advice."

Thomas Willis, director of the ECU Regional Development Institute, commented that that Prewett "studies a person, gets that person's confidence, and then moves in."

Another speaker, ECU Athletic Director William F. Cain, noting that Prewett is a former Georgia coach, praised him "for his self-perpetuating mental health program here. He has worked to build a clinic and has provided the patients."

The Pitt County Area Mental Health Center associate medical director, Dr. Robert R. Ratcliffe, said that Prewett "is a man with a national and international reputation."

The center's area director, Dr. Stephen K. Creech remarked that "no one can relate better to all walks of life than Clinton Prewett.

A portrait of Prewett, painted by Clifford Scott Davis of Chapel Hill was presented to the mental health center. It was unveiled by Mrs. Prewett and McDonald.

George Otlowski, mayor of Perth Amboy, N. J. and an assemblyman in the N. J. Legislature, presented the portrait, which was funded by the Oakwood Fund.

Accepting the portrait, Prewett said "we accept this portrait for all of us. We have struggled, we have all recognized the difficulties and the needs. It is symbolic for all of us."

Two of Prewett's three sons were recognized — Stephen of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Michael of Greenville. A third son, David, could not be here for the event.

A native of Dallas, Ga., Prewett came to ECU in 1951.

Chambliss Sentenced To Life Imprisonment

By GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Prosecutors who won a murder conviction against Robert Edward Chambliss in a 1963 church bombing that left four black girls dead say the case took so long to come to trial because federal and state officials were not cooperating.

Chambliss, 73, was convicted Friday of murdering 11-year-old Carol Denise McNair, one of four black girls killed in the bombing. He was led away from the courthouse in handcuffs after telling the judge: "God knows, your honor, sir, I never in my life killed anybody."

Chambliss was sentenced to life imprisonment on the recommendation of the jury, composed of nine whites and three blacks. His lawyer, Art Hanes Jr., said an appeal would be filed. Hanes compalined that witnesses who could have helped Chambliss a decade ago had since died.

Asked why it took 14 years to bring the case to trial, Jefferson County District Attorney Earl Morgan, who helped prosecute Chambliss, said, "I just don't know. There must have been a lot of distrust between law enforcement agencies during the investigation." He took office in 1965.

Alabama Attorney General Bill Baxley said his office decided to reopen the case in 1971 when Chambliss began to talk about the bombing to acquaintances on the police department and to friends who had retired from the police force.

The FBI was contacted and a spirit of cooperation developed, Baxley said, adding that the FBI didn't turn any evidence over until 1975.

The Justice Department reportedly explained to Baxley that it had hesitated to turn over some information because sources had been promised annonymity and because it seemed there was no chance for a conviction in Birmingham's racial atmosphere of the 1960s.

Two FBI agents testified for the prosecution during the week-long trial.

Chambliss faces one murder count each for the deaths of the other three girls in the bombing of the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church, then a rallying place for black civil rights activists. Baxley did not say what would be done about those charges, but he said indictments would be brought against others.

Two Youths Are To Be Arraigned

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — Two young men will be arraigned Monday on charges of kidnapping the screaming, 11-year-old son of a wealthy executive on the street as the boy walked to school.

Fifteen hours later the victim, Nels Legallet, was rescued when a police special weapons squad kicked in the door of a motel room where the boy was kept tied in a sleeping bag.

Nels, a blonde, blue-eyed sixth grader, said, "I was scared, but I'm not scared now." However, he later described his abductors as "very nice."

Police arrested John Joseph Reiser, 18, and Scott Timmons, 19, whose father is a long-time friend and employe of the victim's father, Jok Legallet. Legellet operates tanning and wool companies 20 miles north in San Francisco.

The two suspects, both of whom have juvenile records, were booked for investigation of kidnapping.

Five Dead In Crash Of Ethiopian Plane

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — An Ethiopian Airlines cargo jetliner believed to have been overloaded crashed shortly after takeoff from Rome's Leonardo da Vinci airport early today, exploding into flames in a wooded area about a mile from populated areas. All five persons aboard were killed.

"Everything is burned," a rescue worker said, digging into debris at dawn. "It must have been like an inferno."

Francesco Mirabella, head of airport security, said the plane began to have troubles shortly after takeoff, rose not more than 50 feet, clipped the tops of pine trees and dragged for hundreds of yards.

He said first indications ruled out sabotage.

A police source said investigators believed that the Boeing 707, en route to the Eritrean capital of Asmara, was overloaded, reportedly with empty tin cans and tires for aircraft.

The crash site, a wooded area south of the airport and between the fishing village of Fiumicino and the resort community of Focene, was one of debris scattered in bits and pieces over an area about the size of two football fields. The bodies of the victims were torn to pieces and mostly burned.

A 32-foot piece of the undercarriage of the jetliner was the biggest part of the plane left intact after the crash at 4:12 a.m. (10:12 p.m. EST Friday) The airport was closed for four hours.

Airport officials said the jetliner had arrived from Addis Ababa Friday and was carrying an all-Ethiopian crew of three in addition to two guards.

To those who inspected the wreckage there seemed no ammunition or weapons on board the plane.

In Rome two rebel groups fighting for independence in Eritrea disclaimed any responsibility or knowledge of the crash.

Civil War, New Version

SCHENECYADY, N.Y. (AP) — Mayor Frank Duci gave President Carter a little history lesson about Schenectady and the Civil War.

Carter, who spoke at the American Film Institute at the White House on Thursday, recalled that when the movie "Gone With The Wind" was first shown in the South, schools in his home state of Georgia were closed and children taken to the movie in buses.

"I especially enjoyed the burning of Schenectady, N.Y." the President joked. "That was just before Grant surrendered to Lee."

Mayor Duci, a Republican, wrote Carter a letter Friday that said:

"We Northerners are accustomed to hearing about tampering with historical accounts in Southern textbooks, but . . . we were unaware that special Southern versions of movies have also been released."

"Our records indicate that Schenectady was last burned down by the Indians in 1690.

Vance Agenda Priorities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nuclear proliferation, human rights and oil prices top the agenda of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance as he prepares to depart Sunday on a four-day diplomatic mission to three key Latin American countries.

Human rights and nuclear proliferation will dominate his talks with the military leaders in Argentina and Brazil, while oil prices will come up in Venezuela, the continent's largest oil producer.

Vance was expected to encourage Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Peres to press his partners in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for a freeze on oil prices during their December ministerial meeting in Caracas.

Holiday Bus Strike Averted

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Negotiators for the Amalgamated Transit Union and Greyhound Lines recessed their talks for 24 hours Saturday as the two sides worked to avert a threatened Thanksgiving holiday strike.

Owen Jones, president of the union's Greyhound Council, said both sides would meet again Sunday at 2 p.m. EST.

Talks resumed Saturday for the first time since the current three-year contract expired Nov. 1. The talks were scheduled after the union notified the giant bus firm that 88 percent of its members had voted to strike.

Prisoners Permitted To Work

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI) — Medium custody inmates have joined minimum custody prisoners in helping the Department of Transportation do right-of-way clearing, ditch maintenance and litter pickup on the state's roads.

Since the first of the month, 352 medium custody inmates have joined 1,100 minimum custudy inmates in the roadwork, Gov. James B. Hunt Jr said Saturday. The minimum custody inmates are carefully screened, are within six months of gaining minimum custody status and work under armed guard within 30 miles of their prison units.

The inmates receive incentive pay and the road work program provides them an opportunity to gain minimum custody status which shows they are ready for other privileges such as work release, a statement from Hunt's office said Saturday.

Call For Workers

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers has sent out a call for workers to help repair flood-damaged North Carolina roads.

The Corps of Engineers has begun to rebuild private roads and bridges destroyed by the flooding, and out-of-work area residents are being recruited to help rebuild the washed-out access facilities.

Officials said the Corps of Engineers plans to work seven days a week and is seeking 300 to 400 workers.

"We've had a good response," Marvin L. Holland, veterans employment representative with the Employment Security Commission, said of radio appeals for bridge and road builders.

Wants Decertification

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — An employees' group that asked for an election decertifying the union at J.P. Stevens plants in Roanoke Rapids, "wants to go ahead and settle the issue," according to a consultant for the group.

Bob Click said the group, which is called the J.P. Stevens Employees Educational Committee, "felt the timing was appropriate, since the union says the company is not bargaining and the company says the union is not bargaining."

The committee asked the National Labor Relations Board Friday to call an election on decertification of the union representing textile workers at the plants.

Candidates Attack Helms

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., came in for a round of verbal attack Friday as five announced Democratic candidates for Helms' seat appeared at a University of North Carolina law students' forum.

"We can't solve problems by saying no, no, no as Sen. No does in Washington," said Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, bringing applause from the 200- member audience.

Other candidates appearing Friday were Sen. Lawrence Davis, D-Guilford; Joe Felmet of Winston-Salem; David McKnight of Fayetteville; and Charlotte businessman Luther Hodges Jr.

"We need positive leadership for a change in Washington," Davis said, continuing the attack on Helms.

Five Routes Considered

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A consultant on an extension of Interstate 40 from the Raleigh Beltline to Interstate 95 and Wilmington said it's "almost a coin-flipper" among five routes.

William S. Pollard of Wm. S. Pollard and Associates of Memphis told the state Transportation Board and an audience representing areas competing for the route that none of the five alternate routes appears to have an edge.

Pollard unveiled a two-year, $269,000 study before the board Friday which showed "no compelling difference," in the routes' length, cost, level of service and public benefits, although some variations were shown in impact on agricultural land and industrial development.

Flynt With Mrs. Stapleton

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Accompanied by Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt, Ruth Carter Stapleton whisked through here Saturday, preaching a gospel of forgiveness and love to a businessmen's fellowship society.

According to a reliable source, Flynt, who has been convicted in Cincinnati, Ohio, on state obscenity charges, has "converted to Christ" with the assistance of the president's sister, a charismatic faith healer. He also faces obscenity charges in Atlanta.

Congress Takes A Recess

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees are taking a 10-day recess, despite an appeal by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to keep working on a national energy bill.

The panel decided Friday to take Thanksgiving week off and not resume its deliberations until Nov. 28.

Two weeks ago, President Carter cancelled a nine-nation trip that had been scheduled to begin next Tuesday so he could be in town to help conferees negotiate a compromise.

House members of the conference committee said they would be willing to work, at least on Monday and Tuesday, but Senate conferees insisted on taking the break. O'Neill tried to get the senators to change their minds, claiming it was in the national interest that the panel keep working. But his efforts were fruitless.

The Senate conferees said the recess was needed to give hard-working staff members a rest.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, and other key members of the conference panel planned to stay in town next week anyway and to meet with Carter and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger to discuss possible areas of compromise.

Although the energy conferees have been meeting for five weeks, they have yet to tackle the biggest differences between the two chambers: natural gas and oil pricing.

The House passed Carter's proposal to keep price controls on natural gas while raising the present price ceiling from $1.47 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75. The Senate took a completely opposite approach, voting to free newly discovered gas from price controls after two years.

On oil pricing, Carter proposed a new tax on U.S. petroleum — approved by the House — that would make it as expensive as imported oil within three years.

This would add about seven cents a gallon to the price of gasoline. Carter proposed rebating the revenues to consumers.

The Senate rejected the tax in a bill establishing more than $40 billion in tax incentives to encourage energy production and conservation.

Intensive behind-the-scenes efforts were expected to be made next week between the administration and conference leaders to see if some kind of package deal could be arranged involving both the natural gas and the oil-tax issues.

Reduction In VD Rates

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

ATLANTA (UPI) — After an expenditure of $165 million in federal funds, health experts believe they have reached the turning point in a five-year battle against a nationwide epidemic of venereal disease.

Latest statistics on rates of primary and secondary syphilis in this country Saturday showed a reduction of 15.2 percent in the number of cases during the first eight months of this year compared to the same period a year ago.

The number of gonorrhea cases in the same time span dropped only 1.1 percent but this was termed a significant reduction because known cases of this disease passed the million mark in 1976.

Dr. Paul J. Weisner, head of the venereal disease control division of the national Center for Disease Control, termed the drop in venereal disease rates significant because they had been steadily rising since 1969.

Gonorrhea and syphilis rates decreased after the second World War and the advent of penicillin, but a sharp increase occurred beginning in the late 1960s.

The federal government, in cooperation with state health departments, beefed up its venereal disease control program in 1972 and millions of dollars of federal money were poured into the project.

He estimated federal funds of between $35-38 million annually were spent in the battle to head off the two diseases. "But that is a small price to pay when you consider the impact of these two ailments on the population," Weisner said.

Another Mutual Goal Shaped

Ideas proposed by ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins have a way of becoming reality.

Ficklen Stadium, university status, medical school are among the ideas which have been proposed by Jenkins and eventually were developed.

Thus it was not just idle talk when Jenkins proposed to the Greenville Chamber of Commerce that a convention center be developed in Greenville.

Speaking to the chamber at Williamsburg, Va. Jenkins said, "I agree with the people who are saying that Greenville and East Carolina University represent the center of progress in Eastern North Carolina.

"We need to pursue this objective — a convention center — in the same manner we have tackled other mutual goals, by pulling together with our resources and our political strength."

The center should seat as many as 2,000 people and every avenue of financing should be explored.

We couldn't be in anymore agreement with the chancellor.

We don't even have to ask where the meetings are going to come from to justify such a convention center — they are already here. Prestigious organizations are holding their meetings here with increasing frequency.

Let's start planning now for a convention center. Greenville couldn't find a better tribute to the man who has meant so much to our community, ECU and North Carolina.

Edmisten Has Time For Future Race

The Democratic race for a candidate to challenge GOP Sen. Jesse Helms is getting crowded — but one who was a potential candidate won't be in it.

Att'y Gen. Rufus Edmisten announced that he had decided not to make the race for the nomination.

Edmisten was elected attorney general in a special election and then re-elected to a full four year term last year.

At age 36, Edmisten apparently decided he had adequate time to try for higher elective office in the future.

Court Watching Approved

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. thinks citizen court watchers are a good idea, and would like to see local community crime watch groups move in that direction.

The governor recently visited Gastonia to meet with a group there which originated the court watch idea and has won national recognition for the project.

"I like what I saw ... this is an excellent way to help the courts do their jobs," says Hunt.

During his campaign for governor, and since election, Hunt has pushed community action as the best approach to many problems. He paid special attention to community crime watch organizations and still hopes to see that effort enlarged.

Some critics of crime watches have cautioned against development of vigilante attitudes which could hamper crime fighting efforts, rather than help. Similar warnings have been directed at court watching.

In Gaston County, however, care has been taken to teach those volunteers going into the courts how to perform the job, and a working relationship has grown between police, the courts, and citizens.

That joint concern, says Hunt, is what he seeks. Plans are now in the discussion stage for a statewide push for citizens groups to get involved in the operation of local courts.

What the governor says he is seeking — and what he thinks citizens should demand of the courts — are capsulized in the three questions which he put to candidates for vacancies in the Superior Court as he prepared to name the new judges:

1. Are you willing to work longer hours in order to help bring about speedy trials for criminals;

2. Are you dedicated to keeping the court docket up to date, clearing up the backlog;

3. Are you willing to make your courtroom the ultimate place in which to fight crime by the conduct of daily business, and the sentences handed down?

Too Much

The proliferation of knowledge is seen by some top educators in North Carolina as the real underlying cause of lower scores on the National Scholastic Aptitude Tests.

BILL NOBLITT

Knowledge, say experts, is more than doubling every 10 years, now. There are new and enlarged fields of knowledge and daily more and more is learned about more subjects.

So rapid is the growth of knwoedge that some libraries are swinging to an operation which stresses how to find the information as the key to knowledge. The information explosion means simply that individuals can no longer be as knowledgeable as they once might have been. There's too much to know, and it changes too fast.

The Scholastic Aptitude Test is in two parts: verbal and mathematics. These embrace questions in physics, science, history, biology, literature — not just simple basic reading, writing, and arithmetic. The information explosion, then, is reflected in content of the test; and that factor is contributing to lower scores, some say.

One leading educator has suggested that some outstanding people who did well on the Scholastic Aptitude Test in the early 60s, before the decline in scores became pronounced, might be scheduled to take one of the new tests so that comparative performance would help pinpoint reasons for the present decline.

A national study commission looked into the dropping scores and found that the reasons are many, including changed nakeup of the college-bound population; proliferation of elective courses especially in English and verbal skills; diminished seriousness among students shown by absenteeism, lower standards, etc.; television; changed family orientations; diminished motivation for education; and social turbulence of the Vietnam-Watergate era.

Sunday Morning Notes

Your columnist grabs a cup of coffee and a danish at the Tenth Street McDonald's frequently in the morning.

Evelyn, one of the clerks, often takes my order.

I'm not very communicative in the mornings so about all she has heard me say is "morning", "coffee" and "apple danish."

One morning recently she pursued the conversation.

"Are you from up north?" she asked me.

Now no one who has ever heard me talk has ever accused me of being from anywhere but the Deep South. Even Pitt County, North Carolina is not far enough south for my drawl.

My college diction teacher described my affliction as lazy tongue, and never would I argue.

I replied that I was from North Pitt County.

Evelyn laughed. "Well, no one around here says auple danish."

No one but your columnist.

Other Editors Say Play Same Tune

(Henderson Dispatch)

It is amazing that one man's status in the Federal government, below the level of the chief executive himself, can exert such influence upon the national economy. Arthur Burn chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is the man in question.

President Carter now says he and the Fed big wheel see eye to eye in fiscal affairs. The President's announcement has stimulated the sharpest advance in months in the stock market. It may even be the turning point after months of uncertainty.

Impression has prevailed for some time that Carter and Burns were at loggerheads, with Burns talking the conservative angle and the President more in the liberal groove. Carter now says he and Burns see eye to eye.

It is difficult to see how the President can fail to appoint the boss of the Federal Reserve System to a new term after his present tenure expires soon after the first of the year. If that actually materializes, it could be the biggest life business and industry have had in a long time, and which indeed is long overdue.

Say what you will about the stock market, but it has usually been taken as a barometer of the trend of the economy. In nearly a year the market has been confused and traders have been hesitant about making commitments. If now Carter is to retain the services of the Federal Reserve chairman, it indicates he is leaning toward a stimulant for the economy. Retention of the chairman seems to be just what the doctor ordered. It is not so much the man personnally but what he stands for. And now the assurance that the President holds the same views.

It's a wholesome, encouraging sign of government sympathetic to stimulus for the economy. It's odd that two men make the difference but the "eye to eye" views of Carter and Burns seem to be just that. Perhaps the President has blown the whistle toward the move awaited for so long.

Two young people were tossing one of those sponge-like footballs on a street in Tar River Estates one recent Sunday afternoon.

One of the youngsters gave the ball a mighty heave and it went far over the head of the intended receiver rolling to a stop in the street.

Then a large brown dog appeared on the scene. He trotted over to the ball and picked it up in his mouth. Tail wagging, the dog walked over to one of the youngsters who prepared to accept the ball.

The only problem was the dog wouldn't let go. He had his teeth firmly imbedded in the soft material and no matter how hard the youth tugged at it the ball would not come loose.

Soon the other ball player came over. He grabbed the dog by the body while his companion pulled on the ball. The animal must have had lock jaw. The ball simply wouldn't move.

Ex-CB Addict Scoffs

By ANDREW A. YEMMA

CHICAGO (UPI) — I lost my CB radio to a rip-off artist on my first night in the City of the Broad Shoulders. I didn't realize what a favor the guy did for me.

I must face it now, I had become somewhat addicted to the squawk box which hung on a slide mount attached to the side of my console — it must have been so tempting a target for the thief.

At first I was bereaved.

"Mercy sakes, the Smokeys'll get me now, for sure, for sure." The monetary loss was painful, but secondary to losing what had become part of my life on road.

The local yokels (CB talk for the Chicago bluesuits) were some help. It was all they could do to restrain themselves from laughing at my stupidity. "Boy, you don't leave a CB in a car in this city if you want to keep it."

My only defense was that I had moved from a small town where no one bothered to lock their cars, much less take their CBs out and carry them to work (they say your trunk isn't even safe in Chicago).

The withdrawal took a couple of weeks.

I was surprised when a cordial detective called and asked me details of the burglary, which occurred in an attended hotel parking garage. But he assured me there would be little I could do to recoup my loss.

The hotel claimed no responsibility because the garage was a separate business. The garage claimed no responsibility because it has posted a sign saying same.

County Superintendent D. H. Conley, of the Pitt County Schools, was elected president for the coming year of the Northeastern District Teachers Association at the final session of the two-day meeting held at East Carolina Teachers College.

North Carolina, including its subdivisions, is paying its debts almost $10,000,000 a year faster than it is contracting new ones and has paid off almost $50,000,000 worth of bonded debt during the five years ending June 30, 1937, Governor Clyde R. Hoey announced.

Ohio national guard units prepared for possible service at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio, where a sit-down strike is in progress, making 12,000 workers idle.

Company officials announced the plant would reopen next week and union officials immediately said picket lines would be placed around the plant, covering hundreds of acres in the heart of this rubber city.

Adjutant General Emil Marx, at Columbus, said while no national guard units had been sent to Akron, troops were being prepared for a possible mobilazation. Two national guard observers were on the scene in Akron.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Facing Kremlin's Buildup

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BRUSSELS — The real explanation of Western Europe's rising fears of U.S.-imposed limits on NATO use of ground-launched cruise missiles is more military than political: the need for the cruise to balance the immense Soviet force build-up in what are called Central European "theater" weapons.

The political factor, which leaves U.S. NATO allies feeling victimized by superpower strategic arms agreements (SALT), is bad enough for West Germany, England, France and lesser NATO allies. But truly critical to the future independence of Western Europe, these middle-level powers feel, is the necessity for NATO to compensate for the Soviet buildup. Otherwise an explosive crisis within NATO seems inevitable.

Even though the much-discussed medium-range cruise missile has not yet even been tested or officially asked for by NATO, the West Europeans perceive it as a heaven-sent answer for Soviet proliferation of a fantastic array of new weapons systems being produced in dazzling quantities.

To grasp the awesome momentum of this buildup, consider these facts brought together in a recently declassified NATO study:

In the four years ending last December, largely for Central Europe, the Soviet Union has produced 13,850 front-line battle tanks, including the newest T-72 model, against U.S. production of 2,345; 6,500 long-range artillery pieces, the latest of which (a 155-millimeter) is believed capable of firing a nuclear explosive, as against 800 in the U.S.; 5,500 fighter aircraft (including the third generation MIG-27 now appearing at a 1,000-a-year rate) against 2,800 U.S. fighters.

European members of NATO — particularly the British and West Germans — have been eyeing the ground-launched cruise missile as perhaps the only possible counter to this immense Soviet buildup in Central Europe. Indeed, both London and Bonn (and the French only slightly less so) perceive in the presumably hard-to-shoot-down cruise missile a partial answer to vastly increased Soviet "theater" firepower, with its thick anti-aircraft defenses, and to the new SS-20 intermediate-rangemobile ballistic missile.

"London wants a ground-launched cruise of 2,000 kilometers (about 1,200 miles), the French and Germans about 1,500 kilometers," one NATO expert told us. "That would bring Western Russia, where the SS-20 is believed . most deployable, within range."

But pressed by Moscow, the U.S. is perceived here to have tentatively agreed to a 600-kilometer range limit. With high government officials in London, Paris and Bonn receiving their first thorough briefing on these classified matters only last week (by Leslie Gelb, No. 1 State Department adviser on SALT), there is no doubt at NATO headquarters that only a hard-line European appeal might now deflect President Carter from the agreement he seems wedded to: no transfer of U.S. cruise missile technology to the Europeans and no "circumvention" permitting deployment of medium-range cruise missiles in Western Europe.

The Carter administration belittles these European fears. Gelb, according to experts here, is saying that the ban on a 600-plus kilometer range will last only three years ("just a moratorium"). The NATO experts counter privately that if the European appeal is tough enough, Mr. Carter will be compelled to ease the 'non-transfer and non-circumvention language.

Few here predict that the huge Soviet buildup of Central European military power threatens sudden attack. The fear is different: that politics

FROTH AND BUBBLE

Some one wrote the English author, John Galsworthy, asking him "to state his creed." In reply Galsworthy quoted a verse which runs as follows:

"Life is mostly froth and bubble,
Two things stand like stone,
Kindness is another's trouble,
Courage in your own."

Anyone with a knowledge of Christian doctrine would hesitate to call this an adequate creed, but no one can deny that it is sound and robust advice for daily living. A person who is kind to others will endure his own troubles without grumbling. Conversely, a person who makes the best of his or her troubles will have a deep understanding of the agony others experience when fortune serves them up a sorry lot of circumstances.

In the midst of life which often appears like froth and bubble, kindness and courage do stand like the eternal granite hills.

Keeping Eye On Little Cloud

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — At the housing conventions this week they're watching and talking about the little cloud on the horizon.

Nobody in housing can ever take his or her eye off that cloud for long, even though sunshine is bathing their industry in some of the best years of its life. That little cloud, they say, can soak you.

The saving and loan people, meeting in San Francisco, heard a report that this was their "greatest year ever." In Miami Beach, realtors have been talking about the best year ever in sales of existing single-family homes.

But that cloud, they say.

Are they hypochondriacs? Perhaps, but you have to listen anyway, because that cloud probably concerns you too, and anyone else who is likely to be disheartened or pleased by rising home mortgate rates.

"There has been some talk of disintermediation." said John Hardin, president of the United States League of Savings Associations, made up of the nation's primary home mortgage lenders.

Disintermediation! It's like saying the small cloud has become a hurricane and a small leak has been discovered amidships and that water is seeping into the engine room but that we'll just have the orchestra play louder and maybe it will plug itself.

Disintermediation leaves housing helpless. It is when interest rates become so attractive in bonds and certificates of deposit and government securities that people withdraw their money from thrift institutions.

Thrifts — savings banks and savings and loan associations — can't make mortgage loans without savings.

It hasn't happened yet, and some of the best informed analysts of interest rates and savings say it won't happen either. The seepage won't become a flood, they say, no matter how often in the past it has happened.

In fact, it happens regularly whenever we're at the tail end of an economic expansion, and nobody in Washington or elsewhere has tried to do much about it. In a downturn, housing is the first to get hit.

The problem is that savings and loans aren't in a strong position to compete for funds when interest rates are rising generally. The explanation is simple: they are limited by law to the rates they can pay.

While you may deem this unreasonable, and perhaps it is, there is a strain of logic behind it. Thrift institutions are meant to channel funds into housing. It is their primary investment.

If they competed with commercial banks and other institutions, paying the going rate for money, they would then have to charge more for the money they sell in the form of mortgage loans.

And that, in a nation dedicated to home ownership — 67 per cent of families own their own homes — high mortgage rates are considered sinful. In theory, that is; in practice, rates are often considered too high.

The defect in this setup is all too apparent. If thrifts can't compete for funds they can't hope to get them, and if they can't get them they can't make mortgage loans. We keep housing costs down by killing the market.

But why all the concern about a little cloud in the horizon. It hasn't been growing much larger. It hasn't been growimg darker. The sun is still shining, as you may note:

—Housing starts during October rose strongly, reaching an annual rate of 2.18 million units, the strongest pace in 4½ years.

—Sales of existing single-family homes reached an annual rate of 3.9 million units in September, the National Association of Realtors reported, some 20 per cent higher than a year ago and the best September on record.

And the experts in the banks and the econometric numbers factories say the

To the editor:

As a member of the City Board of Education and as a parent of school-aged children, I find it necessary to comment on last Sunday's editorial which insinuated that the City School Board did not wish to receive advice from expert sources.

Inasmuch as Dr. Presnell stated at the joint meeting of the County and City Boards that he was personally prejudiced in favor of merger of all school units containing between 15,000 and 45,000 students and that in each and every case in which the Department of Public Instruction has been involved it has recommended in favor of merger, it was the consensus of the City Board that an objective analysis of the two systems was needed. It was felt that the Department of Public Instruction has both the staff and expertise to provide such a report.

Once this study is completed, both Boards will obviously welcome and seek recommendations of all concerned and qualified sources.

May I also remind concerned readers that, although a newly elected City School Board will be taking office in July, the current Board is doing its utmost to be accountable to the public and is endeavoring in every way to be cooperative with County School Board members in order that quality and accountability in education will continue to improve in the future.

To the editor:

In attending the hearing on the Solid Waste Disposal Ordinance held by the Pitt County Commissioners Nov. 15, I allowed myself to remain silent and simply listen; first to the facts of the plan as presented by the panel, then to the emotional reaction of the people filling the district courtroom. I now feel I can no longer remain silent, and I pray others will join me in making their neighbors aware of what is about to be legislated right before our eyes, and, I might add, with the editorial endorsement of this newspaper.

The goal of the commission is to provide a county-wide Solid Waste Collection System to meet the needs of every citizen. Their proposed plan is to award exclusive frachises to 10 of the 28 licensed collectors presently operating their own businesses in the county. No other Solid Waste Collectors would be allowed to operate within their given area. Homeowners have the option to haul their own waste to the county landfill or use an approved incinerator. A Solid Waste Patrolman will be hired to enforce proper disposal.

Now, make an attempt to put yourself in the position of the private hauler as it relates to your own business. Do you feel that your rights have been violated and personal incentive taken away? Do you feel that the Free Enterprise System is being denied to you in the name of public utility? One could continue to remain quiet while resting on the thought that "this would never happen to my business." Could this not once have been said about the Solid Waste Collection Business?

Lastly, consider yourself as the private citizen seeking the best available disposal service. You no longer have the right of free choice if this ordinance is passed at the meeting of the Pitt County Commissioners on Nov. 28. Please join with me in urging your commissioners to consider alternate plans.

DNA Controls: Time To Make Haste Slowly

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Now and then, contrary to what you may cynically assume, Congress does a good job. It is doing a good job now in coping with a legislative problem that is complicated beyond the ordinary layman's understanding. This is the problem of recombinant DNA research.

How is Congress coping with the problem? In terms of substantive legislation, Congress is doing nothing at all about the problem. And as it happens, this is precisely what the Congress ought to be doing. If ever there were a time for making haste slowly, this is such a time.

The scientists now engaged in DNA research have entered a field at once fascinating and terrifying. They have unlocked gates that once seemed impenetrable. Timidly or boldly, as the case may be, they have begun to explore the mysteries of genetic reproduction. By splicing together microscopic particles of deoxyribonucleic acid, the active material in the genes of all living things, they are learning to fashion new forms of living matter.

Except in the most extravagant view, this is not "playing God." The talk of cloning identical copies of human beings is still in the realm of science fiction. Nevertheless, it is generally acknowledged that DNA research carries not only a possibility of great good but also the risk of disastrous harm. After nearly a quarter century of tentative forays into pure research, opportunities for applied research suddenly are expanding.

In such a situation, it is altogether understandable that a cry would be heard: There oughta be a law! A Senate subcommittee last week heard that demand. A number of environmentalists called for strict federal regulation of all DNA recombinant research, whether in government laboratories or in private industry. Marcia J. Cleveland, speaking for the Natural Resources Defense Council, said that genetic engineering ranks with nuclear power in its potential danger and ought therefore to be kept under careful federal control.

On the other side of the argument were scientists who warned the Senate subcommittee of the dangers of needless or premature regulation. The coolest of these was Dr. Philip Handler, president of the National Academy of Sciences. His testimony was a model of reason and restraint. His chief concern was for the freedom of scientific inquiry.

"Hopefully," Dr. Handler said, "the day is past when anyone would seriously argue that the government should prohibit free expression of new ideas simply out of fear of the ideas themselves. Totalitarian governments may fear new ideas, even as they fear their own people. But. . .scientific inquiry has challenged the dogma of an authoritarian world for the last 400 years; it has freed men's minds as it has eased their toil. After two centuries of science, it was Thomas Jefferson who said, 'There is no truth on earth that I fear to be known.' And I hold that it must certainly be more dangerous to live in ignorance than to live with knowledge."

That is the sound view of recombinant DNA research. Let it go where it will go! But just as the First Amendment conveys no absolute freedom of speech, regardless of consequences, so a wise public policy should impose some restraints upon genetic research. Such restraints already operate, through guidelines of the National Institutes of Health and also through the government's power to award or to refuse research grants.

For the time being, this is enough. There is a great temptation, considering the public's fear of the unknown, for politicians to rush upon the scene; they would save us from Frankenstein's monster. But the wide course — the courageous course — is to impose the fewest possible restraints consistent with the true public peril. Evidently this is the course Senator Adlai Stevenson will recommend. His subcommittee heard 30 witnesses, pro and con, and then postponed action until next year, or perhaps the year after that.

This was exactly in line with Dr. Handler's advice. "Do be very carejul," he urged. "An excess of zeal to protect us against all risks, however minor, particularly when seen against the backdrop of our chancy world, could seriously cripple science, the principal tool our civilization has fashioned to mitigate the condition of man."

To Be Heard Now, You Got To Get Up A Group

SHALLOTTE, N.C.—David Clifton is a creature of the marsh. You can see it in his walk, particularly when he wears his waders. It is a deep-kneed stride made strong from long days in the oyster beds. There is a tempered spring in the gait, always ready for a slip in the marsh mud. And like the birds that move through the shallow water ahead of him, David Clifton has a walk that nods his head forward and back in a slow rhythm.

You can also tell David Clifton's environment by his hands. Huge, primordial appendages like crab claws, David Clifton's hands can slide a knife's blade between the shells of a fresh cherrystone clam with no effort. Like a tool, one of his hands can hold several clusters of oysters at a time. Both hands can haul a hundred yards of seine in a few patient minutes, then pole the boat through the shallows, crank the 25 horsepower Johnson outboard, and guide the boat into another creek with all the grace of one of the long-legged birds on wing.

"I took a job once," he said. "Me and my brother had an old T. Model. We packed it up and went to Norfolk. Got a job paying 20 cents an hour. We were painting a ship. Unnh."

With the exception of that stint in Norfolk, David Clifton has made his living digging clams and catching oysters and striking flounder in the rivers and creeks that meander back and forth across the line between North and South Carolina. In the winter he gets $6 a bushel for oysters. Clams in the peak of the summer can bring as much as six cents apiece. The mullet and spot and trout he catches in the gill net bring from 20 cents to a dollar a pound. The flounder, the big ones that fillet nicely, draw a dollar a pound.

He said he went to Norfolk back in the '30s. "That was Hoover's time." After working there for a week, he and his brother decided to make a little foray into Washington, D.C.

"We would go into the city during the day and spend the nights back out in the country. Unnh. You could park anywhere then.

He and his brother hung around monuments and tourist centers until a group came along. "We'd get on the edge of the group and listen. Tour group, you know. Unnh. And they'd tell you all about it."

When they couldn't find more work, they ventured into Baltimore and stumbled on a fish net factory. "We bought a couple of hundred yards. That's what we needed," he said.

The two young men fell back on the land, so to speak. They drove their Model T back down South to the marsh where they grew up, where the ducks and the oysters and the fish get fat on the life that bubbles up out of the mud. They went back to fishing.

"We was getting $50 a week, then anyway. That wasn't bad money, back then. Unnh."

Today the landing where David Clifton puts in for mullet fishing has signs posted here and there by the state. "Closed to shellfishing," the signs read. Pollution from Myrtle Beach and the thousands of septic tanks that flank the inland waterway is in the rivers and creeks where David Clifton used to culture an oyster garden. Now, after years of struggling to make a living as a fisherman, he is facing his most formidable foe.

Over by the edge of the boat landing near one of the orange signs, David Clifton unloads plastic one-gallon jugs from his boat. "Samples," he says. He has a friend who can get the water from the marsh analyzed for free.

Later, careening through the countryside towards home in his oyster truck, trailer and boat in tow, he explains that he and some of his friends have begun taking political action. They are forming a group to go to a public hearing on a waterway project by the Corps of Engineers.

"That's the way it's done now," he says.

"You got to get up a group."

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Nov. 20, the 324th day of 1977. There are 41 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, 24 Nazi leaders were put on trial before an international war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg, Germany.

On this date:

In 1893, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the Great Lakes and their connecting waters were high seas.

In 1917, the World War I Battle of Cambria began in France.

In 1947, Princess Elizabeth of Britain married Lt. Philip Mountbatten in a ceremony at Westminster Abbey in London.

Ten years ago: The United States became the fourth nation to reach a population of 200 million, trailing China, India and the Soviet Union.

Five years ago: The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that programs fed into computers could not be patented.

One year ago: In Spain, veterans of Gen. Francisco Franco's civil war army held a rally in Madrid on the first anniversary of the dictator's death to protest the more liberal policies of King Juan Carlos.

depends on perceptions and that, with Warsaw Pact military power clearly moving so far ahead of NATO's, the Soviets are now perceived as approaching the kind of superiority that could insensibly lead Western Europe to buckle to Soviet economic and political pressures.

That is the answer to the recurring question of "why": why is Moscow spending 14 per cent of its gross national product on arms (more than twice the U.S. rate) and why has its conventional firepower in Central Europe almost doubled in the past four years?

As the Europeans see it, the answer is eventual brutalization of Europe by stockpiled military power skillfully manipulated for political and economic ends. For example, French planners say Finland's absorption -in the political and economic sense — by the Soviets has advanced much further than generally understood. They add that Moscow wants an economically healthy Western Europe — not one devastated by war — to provide the Soviet Union with an endless stream of technology and experts.

This is the heart of the argument now heating up between Europe and Jimmy Carter. It is a military argument that today centers on the cruise missile, tomorrow on something else that the U.S. will be pressured by Moscow to withhold from its allies in the interest of superpower diplomacy. Foreseeing this, top NATO officials here are betting on "an explosion within NATO" on the cruise missile issue by early next year — one that will severely test U.S. desires for strategic arms pacts with Moscow at the expense of U.S. loyalty to the Europeans.

claimed no liability because it recently had invoked a prohibition against CB coverage without a special charge, which I had either overlooked or ignored, I don't remember.

There was irony, they pointed out — if the radio had been permanently mounted instead of placed on a slide mount it would have been covered. That mattered not to the thief, who in his desire to be quick and efficient jerked the whole thing out, leaving nothing but twisted metal supports and severed wires.

For awhile, I scanned the displays in pawn shop windows on my walks to and from the train station. The black market on CBs must be big business.

Gradually, the withdrawal eased. I quit looking at newspaper ads for 43 channel jobs (my love was a 23 channel Midland which I bought at half-price when the 43s came out).

I rediscovered AM radio. A whole world of listening entertainment which I had long since forgotten reappeared and I quickly became immersed in the top 40 hits. The disco version of "Star Wars" replaced the Smokey reports.

Now, undoubtedly, the die-hard CB buff will scoff: "He's just trying to hide his pain and embarrassment. He really misses that radio."

Maybe, but I will not buy another. I've had it with the nonsensical prattle which is 95 percent of the CB airfare.

At first it was cute, chic, avant-garde. But I soon realized what these songbirds of the public airwaves are doing to the English (American, the new UPI stylebook says) language.

The antics went on for several minutes. The dog lay down and one of the youngsters pulled on the ball. The dog was lifted up bodily like a rag doll, but still held on. There were no menancing growls and the dog's tail continued wag throughout the struggle. He simply wasn't ready to give up the ball.

Finally the canine tired of the game and turned the ball loose. He strutted off the field of battle, appa ently convinced in dog fashion that he had won the tug of war.

weather isn't going to get very bad. The little cloud might grow, they say, but not as in years gone by.

Their forecast: Yes, there will be money available, but not as easy to obtain as in the past year. And yes, interest rates for home mortgage loans are destined to rise in 1978, but perhaps not even a full point.

One Solution If Horse Takes Up The House

Plenty has been written for parents on bringing up an only child — but how about the only grandchild or, for that matter, the only great grandchild? Meg has the distinction of being the only grandchild AND great grandchild on both sides of the family, and frankly, Phillip and I are finding it hard to cope.

Especially with the toys. It was bad enough when Meg was two months old and already had two chests and a closet full of clothes, but she had her second birthday not long ago, and after the party the living room looked like the showroom of F.A.O. Schwartz. And that was just Phillip's family. Last weekend when my parents came up to help celebrate, the first thing they did was to pull a box the size of my kitchen out of the back of the station wagon and deposit it on the living room floor. I tried to convince them that there was a Greenville ordinance against keeping ponies in the living room, but they insisted on unpacking it, and Meg became the proud owner of her own Wonder Horse.

The other day Phillip came in the front door, crawled over Trigger, and sat down beside me on the couch. "Did you hear that Princess Anne had a baby?" he asked. "They're going to move back into Buckingham Palace."

"It won't last long," I said gloomily. "They'll have to find some place bigger."

"Bad day, huh?"

"Let me put it this way. Have you ever tried vacuuming a 20 foot square area occupied by 10 square feet of horse? When I bent over to unwrap the cord from around his hooves, he kicked me in the elbow. I think he chipped a bone."

"Maybe we should move him upstairs to Meg's bedroom."

"And just what do you propose to do with him?"

"We could move the furniture around . . ."

"Sure, we could," I sighed. "We've already moved the changing table out for the sliding board. That leaves a crib, a dresser, a rocking chair, a bookcase full of stuffed animals, and a "Sit and Spin." Which one goes — the dresser?"

"It IS ridiculous," he conceded.

"And that's not all. Just wait till you hear what she's getting for Christmas — a table and chairs, a doll bed — and that doesn't even take Santa Claus into consideration."

"Maybe we should dispense with Santa Claus . . ."

"And rob our daughter of the most delightful fantasy that ever existed? No way!"

"In that case," Phillip groaned, "I think you better add something to MY Christmas list."

"What's that?" I asked.

U.S. Public Opposes Preferential Treatment

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — The U.S. public continues to believe that ability, as determined by examination, and not preferential treatment to correct past discrimination, should be the main consideration in selecting applicants for jobs or students for college admission.

An overwhelming proportion of the public — eight in 10 — oppose preferential treatment. Even non-whites and women, who have most to gain by affirmative action, vote for making ability, as determined by tests, the main consideration in filling places in industry and college.

At the same time, however, a majority of Americans (53 per cent) would favor preferential treatment in the form of a federal government program offering free educational or vocational courses that would enable members of minority groups to do better in tests.

The issue of "affirmative action" — described by its critics as reverse discrimination — is now before the U.S. Supreme Court. The issue came before the court as a result of Allan Bakke's assertion that he was denied admission to the University of California medical school at Davis because he is white. The issue before the court is whether universities may constitutionally give preference to minorities to make up for past discrimination.

But Widespread Support Found For Free Courses

Most in favor of offering free courses to help minorities compete for educational and occupational opportunities are women, non-whites, persons with a college background and younger adults (18-29 years old). Even among those opposed to preferential treatment, opinion is 5-to-4 in favor of free courses being provided.

The issue of affirmative action was presented in broad terms, as follows:

"Some people say that to make up for past discrimination, women and members of minority groups should be given preferential treatment in getting jobs and places in college. Others say that ability, as determined by test scores, should be the main consideration. Which point of view comes closest to how you feel on this matter?"

Parents Without Partners Week Being Observed

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Today through Saturday, November 26, is being observed as Parents Without Partners Week in Greenville.

David Knowles, president of the local Parents Without Partners (PWP), which is officially designated Chapter 1058, said the 52 local members "will be taking part in activities that are more elaborate than the activities we usually have."

The observance of a PWP Week has been organized by members of the 35 chapters throughout North and South Carolina and in a portion of Georgia. "This is the first official effort to take steps to designate a particular PWP week," Knowles said. "After this year we feel there's a good chance it will become a nationally recognized week."

In Greenville, three activities are planned for the week, highlighted by a traditional family Thanksgiving dinner to be held at the home of one of the members. That event will take place on Thursday.

On Friday, Nov. 25, Taylor Koonce, a member from Beaufort County, will conduct a poetry workshop beginning at 7:30 p.m. to be held at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The Saturday event will be a Fondue Party to be held at the home of a member, with participants bringing their favorite dish.

The concept of an organization to bring together single partner parents — widows, widowers, divorcees, and unmarried parents — originated with a small group in New York City who began getting together in 1957 to share thoughts on common problems and goals.

From this beginning 20 years ago, Knowles said, "PWP has grown to be a national organization. As of September 30, PWP has a national membership of 155,253 persons."

The local membership of 52, Knowles said, "covers all age groups. Our youngest member is 21, and our oldest is in the early 70s. I'd say the average age of our members is somewhere in the late 20s."

Of the 20 PWP chapters in North Carolina, Greenville ranks as one of the most consistently active, with activities for parents and children scheduled on a regular basis.

"Lois Dean was instrumental in founding the local PWP chapter," Knowles commented. "She worked hard to get it going. The continued interest shown in the group is manifested by the fact that membership has doubled every three years."

Speaking of the aims of fundamental goals of PWP, Knowles stressed "It is not, as some may believe, a singles club. The emphasis is on the family, the growth of the parent along with their children. Our activities are aimed at enriching family life for people who must fill the role of mother and father alone.

"However," Knowles added, "we feel good that three marriages have resulted from people meeting each other at PWP."

The criteria for membership is simple. The by-laws of the organization state "To be eligible for membership in PWP, a person must be the parent of one or more living children, and be single by reason of death, divorce, or never married. Custody of children is not a factor in determining eligibility."

Membership entails annual dues of $15, which includes the receipt of the local chapter newsletter and a subscription to The Single Parent, the national organ published ten times yearly.

"We hold regular weekly meetings at 7:30 p.m. each Friday at Jarvis Church," Knowles 8 said. "The meeting on the second Friday of each month is the general chapter meeting open to the general public. It is at this time that most people interested in becoming members attend to get an idea of what our group is all about," he said' "although we do not discourage interest in membership at any time."

A 12-member Professional Advisory Board serves PWP on a volunteer basis in legal and other matters. These people, Knowles commented, "have to be persons not eligible for membership in PWP."

The current local advisory board is made up of attorneys Hugh Cox and Nelson Blount Crisp; Don Hayes, Director, A.R.C., Myree Hayes, psychologist; Dan Earnhardt, minister; Dr. Malene Irons, pediatrician; Dr. Mel Markowski, family counselor and Betsy Markowski, artist; Janice H. Faulkner, professor; Christina Williams, dance instructor; Dr. David Knox, sociologist; and Dr. Ray Evans, psychiatrist.

"We're fortunate in having these people with their experience and help to draw on," Knowles said. "There's been several instances when we've had to call on one of them on very short notice and whenever that happened, they were always available and generous."

In proclaiming the week of November 20-26 as Parent Without Partners Week in Greenville, Mayor Percy Cox notes that the non-profit, nonsectarian organization is "devoted to the welfare of single parents and their children" and "pledges itself to expand its role by reducing the isolation experienced by single parent families, endeavoring to bring our children to healthy, happy maturity through exchange of ideas and mutual understanding. . ."

Robinson Music Conference President-Elect For 1978

ECU News Bureau

William H. Robinson of Hampton, Va., sophmore student in the East Carolina University School of Music, is the new president-elect of the N.C. division of the Student Music Educators National Conference.

He was elected at the recent SMENC state convention in Winston-Salem.

A candidate for degrees in music education and music therapy, Robinson plays clarinet in the ECU Symphonic Wind Ensemble and the ECU Marching Pirates. He is also a member of the Student Union Artist Series Committee and of Zeta Psi chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia honor society

As president-elect of the statewide group, Robinson will assist current president Bruce Occutt of UNC-Greensboro and will assume the presidency in 1978. His plans for leadership include initiation of workshops and toher programs for members, research projects and an inter-campus newsletter.

In addition to his music studies and other campus activities, Robinson is a professional magician, performing at area entertainments.

Adopt-A-Pet

This puppy and several others are having homes sought for them by the Pitt County Humane Society.

Other animals also needing homes are as follows: another collie-shepherd pup; four five-week-old puppies which resemble Tramp (of Lady and the Tramp); four "Heinz variety" puppies (two male, two female); two kittens (one black and white and one orange) found at a prison unit and desperately in need of a home or homes); three more kittens (one a black and white four-week-old).

Mrs. Jeanette Fiore, Humane Society president, is the person to call if one wishes to adopt one of these pets. Her phone number is 758-0468.

Turkey Shoot

The annual Basketball Turkey Shoot sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will be held on Tuesday, November 22 at Elm Street Gym.

The contest is based on the best of ten foul shots after the qualifying rounds. The competition will be divided into different age groups — first through third grades; fourth through sixth grades; seventh through ninth grades; and tenth through twelth grades.

An adult ladies and men's division will also be held and there will be a special senior citizens division.

The event begins at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

Service Needs

Nancy Harrington, coordinator of Volunteer Greenville, a city agency which recruits volunteers for various purposes, announced the following service needs:

Pitt County Health Department needs transportation for clients from various areas of the county to the health department and doctor's offices;

Volunteers needed to tape textbooks for blind students at Pitt Technical Institute (tape recorder will be provided and taping can be done at home); and

Male volunteers needed by the Big Brother program (the role of the Big Brother is to provide friendship and guidance to a youngster in trouble).

Persons who wish to volunteer or those wishing more information on volunteer opportunities should call Mrs. Harrington at 752-4137, Ext. 285.

Gave Paper At Session

ECU News Bureau

Dr. Don Ensley, faculty member of the School of Allied Health and Social Professions, Department of Community Health, East Carolina University, delivered a paper at the 105th American Public Health Association conference held recently in Washington, D.C.

Entitled "A Spatial-Temporla Analysis of Nursing Home Bed Distribution in N.C., 1965-1976," the paper examined the increasing proportion of elderly in the population, the increasing importance of degenerative and chronic disease and inequitable and uneven distribution of health services and facilities, which make the distribution of nursing home facilities crucial, especially in eastern N.C. where mortality rates for cardiovascular and all causes are exceedingly high.

The study further noted that nursing home bed density has increased dramatically since 1965, and increased relatively faster in areas which were most deficient. The effects of income and urbanism variables have decreased Dr. Ensley said.

American Ginseng Becoming Endangered

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — American ginseng — a plant with roots thought by Orientals and many Americans to have magic medicinal aphrodisiac and powers — may soon become the state's first officially declared endangered plant species.

On the state's national forest lands alone, between 120,000 and 225,000 plants are dug up each year, according to a recent report by Ben Sanders, a wildlife biologist with the U.S. Forest Service.

Most of the digging is being done in the western mountains and Piedmont, and many of the estimated 1,500 diggers are said to be poor mountain folk who rely heavily on ginseng to supplement their incomes.

If ginseng were to be declared an endangered species by the U.S. Department of the Interior, most digging of the wild plants would be forbidden, as would their sale, interstate transport and export from the country.

Although ginseng has been cultivated — even on large "plantations" — experts say it is questionable whether cultivated varieties could replace the volume of trade in the wild plants, which are considered to be more potent.

Ginseng is more difficult to grow than other domestic crops, requiring highly controlled conditions actually simulating the wild and constant attention during the five to seven years until the roots are mature and can be dug.

Since colonial days, Americans have tried to capitalize on the demand for ginseng in other countries, and in the process, the plant has become increasingly popular domestically and the roots are often available at farmer's markets.

Oriental use of the ginseng root dates back thousands of years. It is generally considered a powerful aphrodisiac, but it is also used as a general stiumulant and a treatment for almost any ailment — even skin blemishes.

Ginseng can be found on the vitamin counters of many drugstores in the state. A bottle containing less than an ounce of ginseng in gelatin capsules — enough for 25 cups of ginseng tea — can sell for $9. A liquid extract form sells in health food stores for about $26 an ounce.

Juvenile System Questioned

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — A Duke University psychiatrist believes North Carolina's juvenile justice system victimizes the problem children it is supposed to help.

Dr. Harold J. Harris, in a talk at the Duke Medical Center Friday, charged that no state agency and few private citizens are willing to accept responsiblity to see that problem children get the treatment they need.

"Youngsters who are retarded, psychotic, autistic or physically handicapped all have active lobbies and rightfully so," Harris said. "But children who get into trouble with the law are primarily thought of as 'bad kids.' They are unpopular, and there is no Jerry Lewis putting on telethons to raise millions of dollars for them."

Harris, who is an associate professor in the Division of Child Psychiatry at Duke, outlined the history of juvenile justice in the United States and in North Carolina. He said the current system has its roots in Colonial times when children who got into trouble could be indentured for a lifetime.

"Amazingly, that law remained on the books in North Carolina until 1919," he said.

He said juvenile courts and training schools arose out of the nation's need for a more humane way of coping with the large numbers of poor immigrant children who were roaming the streets in the 1800s stealing food and clothing. The previous method involved shutting youthful offenders up with adults in jails and prisons, a practice which has yet to be completely eradicated, he added.

"The fundamental idea was excellent in 1899 when the first juvenile court was set up in Chicago, and it's still an excellent idea," Harris said.

"But typical of what has happened to these kids is that the services have never been funded adequately, and the system is by and large a failure because those who run it are flooded with many children they don't really understand."

Harris said youngsters who are particularly victimized by the system in North Carolina and other states are those who run away from home, are truant and are "undisciplined."

While there are no exact figures, Harris said experts believe these so-called "status offenders" make up about half of the young inmates in the United States today and a third of the children held in North Carolina. In many cases, their behavior is a reaction to broken homes, sexual abuse by adults or alcoholic parents, he said.

Until 1969, Harris said, North Carolina sent more children to training schools per capita than any other state. Reports of child abuse and conditions at the institutions, including a major study done by Duke law students "would make your hair stand on end."

Harris said the alternative to locking children up in training schools was to place them in temporary foster homes, group homes, therapeutic camps and specialized treatment.

"It's encouraging that the last state legislature appropriated $3 million for therapeutic camps and $1 million for other community-based alternatives," he said. "But there is a lot more that needs to be done."

LCC Players Visit Ayden

The Lenoir Community College Players presented an assembly to the Ayden Middle School in recognition of American Education Week. "The Metric Connection" was given in the school auditorium Friday.

Along with visiting parents, other special guests included Jay Burton, Lenoir's drama instructor, and the superintendent and other members of the Kinston City School System.

The eigth grade chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn Burke, provided the music.

The country of Somalia has only 373 miles of paved roads, no railways and about 4,200 automobiles.

Altar Guild

An Altar Guild for the total church of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church was started this week following an annual general meeting of United Methodist Women.

Mrs. David Rouse of St. Paul United Methodist Church in Goldsboro was the guest speaker.

Other events in the meeting included: Gifts to Missions in honor of seven babies were announced; two youths, Curtis Ebbs, president of the Senior MYF, and Martha Ann Ferrell, president of the Junior MYF, were presented certificates for outstanding services; and three UMW Members, Miss Laura Bell, Mrs. John Casey and Mrs. J.C. Whitehurst Jr. were presented honorary Life Membership Awards.

Mrs. Casey gave a devotional and presided over a memorial service in memory of deceased UMW members. Mrs. Hope Anderson provided organ music. A social hour followed the meeting in the church parlor and was hosted by Mrs. William H. Taft. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Jack Kontz and Mrs. C.C. Rowe.

Arrested

Investigation of an Oct. 27 break-in at a rural store near Pactolus has led to the arrest of a 29-year-old Greenville man by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Clinton Ray Carmon of 1203-B Myrtle Avenue was arrested Thursday and charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with an incident at Walter Davenport's Store, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

The sheriff said that Davenport reported the theft of $616 worth of merchandise and property, including 169 cartons of cigarettes valued at $507, a television set, 12 cartons of chewing gum, and a wood heater.

Sheriff Tyson reported that officers recovered the television set and seven cartons of cigarettes.

Entrance to the store, he said, was apparently gained after the back door of the building was forced open. Damage to the store was set at $30.

Carmon was placed in Pitt County Jail under $3,000 bond with a first appearance hearing scheduled for Nov. 18 in District Court here.

In Seminar

ECU News Bureau

Twenty-four East Carolina University students are involved in a human service field education and seminar project this semester.

All are enrolled in the ECU Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, School of Allied Health and Social Professions. The field education period is part of the requirements for the Bachelor of Science-Professional degree in social work and corrections.

Field education in social work and correctional services is coordinated by Ted Gartman, an associate professor at ECU.

Names, hometowns, and agency placements of the 24 students include:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville — Ronald Austin, Juvenile Probation program, Greenville; Kenneth L. Basemore, Adult Probation/parole, Tarboro; Lou Ann Dickens, Health Care Center, Inc., Washington; and Bonita Perry, Remedial Education Activity Program, Greenville.

Motherhood Meeting Set

The "Motherhood and Personhood" meetings of Mothers and Babies and Mothers and Toddlers will be held this week.

Babysitters will be provided for those needing them (other mothers from other M&B groups will serve)

Reservations will be taken during this meeting for the "Mothers Night Out" evening Nov. 29.

Tuesday, 10 a. m. — Mothers and Toddlers at 110 S. Woodlawn. Coordinator, Hilda Alford, 758-4650.

Tuesday, 7 p. m. — Mothers and Babies at 114 Greenwood Drive. Coordinator, Estelle Morin, 752-2156.

Wednesday, 10 a. m. — Mothers and Babies at 417 E. Third Street. Coordinator, Leigh Duque, 752-4332.

Engineer Meet

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of Professional Engineers of North Carolina will hold its monthly meeting November 21 at 6:30 p.m. at The Three Steers Restaurant. Harry Overby, Goldsboro District Manager of Carolina Power and Light will give a program on future fuel sources for electric power generation.

All members and their guests are invited.

Mime Troupe To Perform In Wilson

WILSON — Internationally acclaimed mime Claude Kipnis and his troupe of performers will be in two concerts in Wilson.

On November 30 at 8 p.m. the troupe will perform at Fike Auditorium in Wilson; and on December 1 at 8 p.m. they will perform at Howard Chapel on Atlantic Christian College campus.

Tickets are priced at $2.50 for adults and $1 for children and may be reserved by calling The Concert Line, 291-4329.

The Kipnis troupe was honored by an invitation to perform at the White House. They have also been seen on TV shows, including a half-hour special for CBS and on ABC's "Good Morning America." Their most recent guest spot was with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra on PBS.

The Kipnis performances are sponsored jointly by the Arts Council of Wilson, Inc., and Atlantic Christian College.

Recital Today

WILSON — Violinist Rodney Schmidt and pianist Rosemary Fischer, both members of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty, will be in concert in Wilson today.

They will perform at 8 p.m. at Atlantic Christian College. For their program, they have chosen works by Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Debussy, and Saint-Saens.

The public is invited to attend.

SCULPTED ELVIS — Sculptress Tanya Wolf puts the finishing touches on her "thighs up" sculpture of Elvis Presley. Wolf was commissioned for a special tribute to the late singer on NBC-TV's "Seventh Las Vegas Entertainment Awards," for Sunday, Dec. 4. "The sculpture is from the thighs up," Wolf said. "How can you do Elvis without doing his body?" she asked. (AP Laserphoto)

ILO Presentation Monday

An audiovisual presentation on the the northern Andes Mountains, in an area encompassing parts of the South American countries of Colombia, Ecuador and Peru, will be presented at 7:15 p.m., Monday, November 21 in Room D-103, Brewster Building, on the East Carolina University campus.

Brewster is located on East Tenth Street near the intersection of Tenth and College Hill Drive.

The presentation, sponsored by the International Language Organization (ILO) of ECU, is being made by Professor Luis Acevez.

Acevez spent four years in this area, with his headquarters in Quito, Ecuador. In Quito he founded and directed the Institute of Languages and Linguistics and the ETTP (English Teachers Training Program), funded primarily by the Agency for International Development (AID), and the U.S. State Department.

In his audiovisual presentation, Acevez will emphasize the tremendous scope of this mountain range which is the source of the Amazon, the world's mightiest river.

There is no admission charge and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Greenville Artists In Fayettevillle Art Show

FAYETTEVILLE — An exhibition of 53 works from the Fayetteville Museum of Art's Sixth Annual Competition for North Carolina Artists opens with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. today at the Market House.

Larry Lauxman of Chapel Hill took first place in the competition for the $500 purchase award. This was for his wood and aluminum sculpture "Statics 5-6." The work becomes a part of the Fayetteville Museum of Art permanent collection.

Greenville artists were well represented among the 86 Tar Heel based artists submitting 186 pieces for the competition.

Other Greenville artists with work chosen for the show are: Vicki Champion, Patrice Benge, John Brake, Cliff Page, Rosie Thompson, Amy Leggett, and J. Michael Brady.

The public is invited to the reception. Regular museum hours are 10 to 4 Tuesdays through Fridays, and 2 to 5 Sundays.

Costa Rica Stay Ended

ECU News Bureau

The East Carolina University Costa Rica study group has completed the fall semester of study at Costa Rica's Universidad Nacional, ending its stay in Central America with travel in Guatemala and Mexico.

The 18 participating students lived with families in the nearby city of Heredia and attended classes on the Universidad Nacional campus taught by several ECU professors and by two members of the Universidad Nacional faculty.

ECU's Costa Rican study program is sponsored by the ECU Departments of Geography and Foreign Languages and Literatures. A sixth year of the program is now planned, to begin in January, 1979.

Courses to be offered include Spanish language studies, Latin American culture, geography of Middle America, Central American history, tropical biology and native handicrafts.

Further information about the program is available from the ECU Department of Geography.

Cuba proclaimed its independence from Spain in 1868, which resulted in a 10-year war between the two countries.

Peru's Golden Treasures

By JOAN BRUNSKILL

NEW YORK (AP) — "Peru's Golden Treasures" is an exhibition of great riches — with the fabulous metal's face value only one among its precious qualities.

The exhibition was designed by the American Museum of Natural History here, where it will be until the end of the year. Then it will be shown in Chicago, San Francisco and Detroit.

The show is a major art event — 225 of the finest examples of ancient Peruvian gold from the famous Museo Oro del Peru, in Lima, the largest display of Peruvian gold ever seen in this country.

The wonders it encompasses range from a gold spider you could hide in the palm of your hand to a showy poncho made of about 13,000 airy little gold plaques sewn together. There are designs showing fierce warriors or playful animals, as well as those based on geometric abstractions. There are elegantly simple shawl pins, and there are elaborate royal crowns.

Ironically, most of these items were made not to be used but to be buried, as funerary objects, yet they still say much about everyday life, about the customs and habits of the people of those little-known cultures, up to 2,000 years ago.

For example, beautiful, crescent-shaped tweezers, some decorative enough to have been worn as pendants, indicate the method of "shaving" used by this lightly-haired people. A ceramic included in the New York installation depicts a man using his tweezers to pluck hair from his chin and holding a polished stone mirror — there's one in the same case.

These exhibits have special meaning in other ways. They are extremely rare, a tiny sampling in existence today that can only hint at treasures that are lost forever. For when the Spanish conquistadors arrived in 1532 they took all the gold, primarily Inca, they could lay their hands on and melted it down for easier shipment out, without regard for its beauty, craftsmanship or any value other than as wealth.

Most of the gold in the show is from pre-Inca times, gold which was overlooked because it was buried in tombs around the country. The Spanish rifled tombs, too, but they didn't find all the gold.

Another irony: although the Spanish so predominantly valued the gold in terms of money, the ancient Peruvians never made gold into money at all. They didn't use money, in fact, probably exchanging work for goods.

Gold to them was a symbol of power, of the sun god they worshipped, a substance of light and beauty, easy to work. Some of their gold objects were painted over, or covered with feathers, jewels or other metals: the fact that objects were gold gave them an instrinsic significance and the gold itself didn't always have to show.

Physically, the exhibition doesn't cover much ground. It's compact and easy to get around. Objects are simply and spaciously shown on backgrounds color-keyed to the four main pre-Inca periods, covering a span of 2,000 years. While the show is in New York it includes some rare items from the Museum of Natural History's collections — ceramics, priceless embroideries and other contemporary items.

A Tarboro Doctor Remembers Viet Nam

Triage: The Gathering Place. By James Michael Kelsh. New York, N. Y., 1977. Carlton Press. 122 pps, $5.95.

Tarboro's Dr. James Michael Kelsh, currently chief of surgery at Edgecome General Hospital, says this personal account of his tour of duty in Vietnam in late 1966 and 1967 was written "in response to numerous inquiries about what it was like in the hospitals of Vietnam," and also "to set some things straight about the war and the wounded boys who came through . . . This is the viewpoint of a professional military surgeon."

Granted, these are worthy motives. Yet, what emerges most clearly from this often moving, frequently entertaining, and consistently convincing small volume is the author's deep compassion for people.

This is particularly evident in his writing about the wounded soldiers brought to the MASH unit hospital at Tuy-Hoa where he served. There, Kelsh and his staff often worked incredibly long hours in desperate attempts to save lives, to restore mangled bodies. His caring transcended national identities, and extended equally to the puzzled, frightened Vietnamese treated at his field hospital.

Many of the descriptions are not for the squeamish reader: "The Triage area looked like a charnel house when I got to it. Small Vietnamese bodies were all over, lying on stretchers, on the floor, and on the sidewalks and on the street outside . . . Just a quick glance revealed people with limbs blown off, intestines covered with sand and dirt bulging out of abdominal walls. 'Dau!' (pain) they moaned, 'Beaucoup Dau!'"

Kelsh's compassion for the those who suffered is matched by his scorn for the absurdities exhibited by some high ranking officials with a penchant for brief, highly publicized visits to the war torn country.

One target is Senator Ted Kennedy, who visited the hospital where Kelsh served. When Kennedy and his entourage failed to elicit from wounded Vietnamese verification that many Vietnamese civilians had been shot by Americans, Kennedy was most unhappy. Someone suggested the senator might want to visit the American wounded. The reply was "No time."

A classic case was that of President Johnson, who insisted on a ceremony to award Purple Hearts to wounded men. At the time of his visit, all the wounded had already been given the medal. No dice. There had to be a ceremony. So hospital officials rounded up a few GIs hospitalized with VD — possibly the only time in American history a group of soldiers had been so singularly honored for contacting a venereal disease.

Not all visitors left such bitter impressions. The most moving incident in this book is the story of Mike, a dying soldier who somehow managed to stay alive until his hero, Charlton Heston, visited the hospital. Heston, along with Bob Hope and Martha Raye, was one of several entertainers who made rounds visiting the wounded in Vietnam. "Mike died that night," Kelsh recalls. "The nurse told me that his last words before going into his final coma were, 'Isn't life just great? How did he know I wanted to see him?'"

Triage: The Gathering Place is more than one man's story on the role of medics in war. Kelsh details lighter moments in which the age-old barrier of languages lead to ludicrous misunderstanding; and affirms that Americans have not lost the touch of ingenuity in time of need when it comes to bargaining — an engineer officer wanting to be circumcised was subtly blackmailed into providing a hot water heater before the doctors would agree to the operation.

Kelsh is also a keen observer, and brings to his writing a vivid observance of the land and the people of Viet Nam.

Triage: The Gathering Place is not a definitive overview of the war in Vietnam. It is, like so much of the best that has yet been written about this war of ambiguities, simply a one-man account of his own involvement.

It is a book that can do much to reaffirm our hope that people do still care deeply for each other in a very special way.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Meredith Foltz

LEAVE WELL ENOUGH ALONE, by Rosemary Wells, is a new young adult mystery at the Sheppard Library. Fourteen-year-old Dorothy Coughlin leaves her poor, small-town, Catholic family to work during the summer as a mother's helper in a rich New York family, the Hoades. Dorothy's most important job is watchng Jenny and Lisa and keeping them from seeing their new sister, a mongoloid baby, who is being cared for in a cottage behind the Hoades' country home. As Dorothy blunders through her responsibilities, for which she is unprepared, she discovers facts which make her doubt the Hoades' story about their mongoloid baby. Despite her older sister's typical advice to "leave well enough alone," Dorothy pursues the suspicions aroused by old photographs, a baby's funeral with an adult-sized coffin, and a fresh grave. When she finally pieces together the puzzle of the Hoades' secret, Dorothy has the new problem of what to do with her information. Dorothy is a bold and nosy character, and teenagers should enjoy her suspenseful adventures.

On holiday in Wales, the Reverend Septimus Treolar must call upon his expertise as a former Scotland Yard detective to thwart the deadly repetition of a bit of local folklore. In THE STONE OF OFFERING, by Stephen Chance, the people of tiny Hafod Maenen stand to lose their homes if a proposed dam is built and their valley flooded. Hundreds of years earlier, when the Welsh had been threatened by an equally dangerous invader, a priest named Hugh-ap-Llwyd had made sacrifices to ancient Celtic gods to get their help in defending the region. Now someone appears to be invoking the same supernatural protection, guided by an old rhyme: "A white bird and a silver fish,/A black lamb and a white child,/To help on Mother's washing day." After the burned remains of a bird, a fish, and a lamb are found, a child disappears, apparently to be the next sacrifice victim. Treolar uses his knowledge of the Hugh-ap-Llwyd legend to locate the child, but he must endure a long and possibly fatal confrontation with the modern sorcerer.

THE WICKED ONE, by Mollie Hunter, also involves suspense and the supernatural, but the story is much like a folktale. Colin Grant, a Scottish forester and farmer, is plagued by a hideous creature called the Grollican. The Grollican, who is usually invisible, takes great delight in fouling things up enough to spark Colin's quick temper. When the Grollican tricks Colin's son out of a valuable, fairy-enchanted workhorse, Colin decides in exasperation to move to America and, he hopes, escape his tormentor.

Funderburk Thesis Show

The thesis show of art student Thomas Brent Funderburk is now on view in the Mendenhall Gallery at the Student Union Building.

Funderburk, a candidate for the MFA degree, had a reception on Saturday to open the show which is entitled "Afterglow (somewhere into the rainbow)."

The exhibit, Funderburk notes, "evokes the life cycle of a local butterfly in pictures." It is, he says, one that "all children as well as older folks who feel like children should empathize with."

Funderburk's show will be on view through November 23, and the public is invited to view it during regular hours of the Mendenhall Student Union Center operations.

Realists Show At NCMA

RALEIGH — "Eight Contemporary American Realists" is the title of an exhibition of works by well-known American artists opening today at the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh.

A show designed to reveal to the public that contemporary artists are in many instances still using an old technique — painting and sculpting exactly what they see — the show was organized by Frank Goodyear, Jr., of the Pennsylvania Acadmey of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia. The exhibit is being shown only at the Academy and at the N.C. Museum of Art.

The artists whose works are being shown in this realists group are painters Alfred Leslie, Philip Pearlstein, Stephen Posen, Sydney Goodman, Janet Fish, Neil Welliver, Joseph Raffael, and sculptor Duane Hanson.

The exhibit will be on view through December 31. Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily Tuesday through Saturday, and 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

EEii Reception Today

BELHAVEN — New Bern portrait painter Ruth Stattel is the artist being honored in a reception from 1 to 5 p.m. today at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in downtown Belhaven.

In addition to portraits, the artist in her one-artist exhibit is showing snowscapes, paintings of sand dunes, and oceanscapes, all executed in oil.

Currently an instructor of art at Craven Community College, Ms. Stattel is a graduate of the Pratt Institute of Fashion and Design. She has shown in numerous group and one-artist shows in New York and Long Island before moving to New Bern two years ago.

Designer of an exclusive line of cast iron headboards for Lord and Taylor in New York and for other stores and decorators across the country, Mrs. Statel has also conducted a fashion studio on bridal attire. Her work has been featured in House and Garden and House Beautiful.

Liberty-Bound Heels Win

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

DURHAM — The setting was perfect for another of those classic Duke-Carolina upsets. The Tar Heels, with a bowl game on their minds, were closing out a strong season, while Duke's year was average at best. The Blue Devils were possibly fighting for head coach Mike McGee's job, and, to top it off, some Duke students had stolen the Tar Heel ram mascot during the week.

But the upset was not to be. The Tar Heels' tough defense shut off Duke's high-powered offense, forcing six turnovers and taking a 16-3 victory in Wallace Wade Stadium.

The win gives UNC the Atlantic Coast Conference championship, ending the Tar Heel regular season with a 5-0-1 ACC mark. They accepted a Liberty Bowl invitation after the contest.

Duke's year ends at 5-6 overall, thus bringing up speculation about McGee's employment status. It was said that his job might hinge on the outcome of the game. "The decision is being made by university officials," an emotional McGee said after the game. "I know they will be in that process in the next few days. I, very simply, have no thought of resigning."

"I can't say how happy I am for this football team and coaching staff to win the ACC championship," said Tar Heel coach Bill Dolley. "The defense came up with the big play when it had to have it. A key came when we turned the ball over on our own 22 and were able to keep them out of the end zone." That occurred early in the fourth quarter with the Tar Heels holding a 10-3 lead.

Besides McGee's job, there was more concern in the Blue Devil camp after the game: Duke quarterback Mike Dunn was injured early in the fourth quarter and carried to a local hospital. There was no fracture in the apparent neck injury, but he was to stay overnight at the hospital.

Two lengthy scoring drives, one early in the first quarter and the other late in the second, allowed Carolina to take an 10-0 halftime lead. The Blue Devils penetrated into Tar Heel territory three times in the first half, but were turned back each time, twice on turnovers.

The first Tar Heel scoring drive came on their second possession of the game. They stopped the Blue Devils at the Carolina 42, forcing a Ricky Brummitt punt on fourth-and-eight. The boot went into the end zone and the Heels took it on the 20.

Tailback Amos Lawrence's carry around left end picked up a first down at the UNC 32 and three plays later fullback Billy Johnson bulled his way up the middle, broke out of a crowd, and got to the Duke 46 for a key first down.

Lawrence skirted right end for 11 yards to the 35 and then broke numerous tackles on third down to get to the Blue Devil 22, an eight-yard pickup. Fullback Bob Loomis carried the ball for a first down at the 11 and Lawrence followed two plays later with an eight-yard gain to the two.

Greenville's Doug Paschal, a Tar Heel fullback, was stopped short of the goal line on the next play, but his one-yard pickup was good enough for a first down inside the Duke one. Lawrence took a handoff from quarterback Matt Kupec, cut back against the grain and found a big hole to get into the end zone untouched. Biddle's kick made it 7-0 with 4:30 left in the first.

Midway through the second quarter, Duke took over at its own seven after Stanley Driskell fielded a punt he should have let bounce into the end zone. The Blue Devils moved out of the hole and then Dunn went to the air to get the ball down to the Carolina 30, but a strong rush forced a Dunn fumble as he dropped back to pass and Ronnie Dowdy recovered for the Tar Heels at the Carolina 40.

Lawrence launched a halfback pass to wide-open split end Walker Lee on first down, but he bobbled and dropped the ball at the Duke 25. On second down, Lawrence faked a pass on the same play and carried to the Tar Heel 49.

The speedy freshman then broke through the line on the next play and rambled 16 yards for a first down at the Duke 35. He picked up another first down with a five-yard carry to the 25, and Paschal lugged the ball twice for five yards each to put it at the 13.

The drive fizzled out at the eight, however, and Biddle came in for a 25-yarder with split the uprights with 1:16 remaining in the half.

The most serious Blue Devil threat of the half followed the field goal as Dunn connected on passes to Hall for 19 yards and a first down at the Carolina 41. A personal foul penalty for a late hit moved the ball to the Tar Heel 26, but three plays later, Dunn threw his first of three interceptions as Buddy Curry picked off the ball at the 17 and the Heels ran out the clock.

Duke was stopped in four downs on its first possession of the third quarter, but got its only score the next time the Blue Devils got the ball.

An Elam punt was downed at the Duke 19 and the Blue Devils took over there with 11:27 left in the third period. Dunn carried twice for a first down to the Duke 30 and then gave the ball to fullback Stanley Broadie, who went off left tackle, out to the outside and ran 43 yards to the UNC 27.

The Blue Devils picked up another first down to the 15, but Dunn was stopped on a run and then threw two incompletions to force Duke to go with a Scott Wolcott field goal. The 32-yarder by the ex-Rose High School player was good and cut the margin to 10-3.

A UNC fumble early in the final period gave the Blue Devils an excellent opportunity, but they were unable to take advantage of it. Duke's Dan Brooks recovered a Kupec pitch at the Carolina 22, but the Tar Heel defense rose up and stopped Duke cold in three plays. Wolcott's 39-yarder on fourth down was short and to the right.

A Driskell fumble on a punt set up the Tar Heel's next score. After being stopped on their own 39, the Heels kicked. Driskell called for a fair catch at the Duke 15, but fumbled the kick and Billy Mabry recovered at the 13 for UNC. Biddle kicked a 26-yard field goal four plays later.

One play after the kickoff, Dunn threw his third interception of the afternoon with Bobby Gay picking off the pass at the Duke 38. That led to the final Tar Heel field goal, a 39-yarder by Biddle with 6:19 left in the game. That also set a new UNC record of 15 field goals in a season.

Peachy End To State's Season

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State accepted an invitation Saturday to play in the Peach Bowl in Atlanta on Dec. 31.

Peach Bowl officials did not immediately indicate who would be N.C. State's opponent.

The Wolfpack, which has a 7-4 overall record this season, has played in the Peach Bowl twice before — in 1972, when N.C. State defeated West Virginia, 49-13, and in 1975, when West Virginia took a 13-10 decision.

"We are a good football team, but I don't think we've played our best game yet," said coach Bo Rein after the bid was accepted. "We're thankful to the Peach Bowl people for giving us the opportunity to play another game. It should be a good won, no matter who the opponent might be."

Rein brought the Wolfpack back from last year's 3-7-1 finish with a potent offense led by quarterback Johnny Evans. N.C. State finished in a tie with Maryland for third in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 4-2 league record.

The Wolfpack has traveled to four bowl games in the past five years. In addition to its Peach Bowl appearances, N.C. State tied Houston, 31-31, in the 1974 Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl and defeated Kansas, 31-18 in the 1973 Liberty Bowl.

Michigan Holds Off OSU, 14-6, For Roses

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's slow-starting offense, non-existant in the opening period, came to life in the second quarter behind the running and receiving of sub tailback Roosevelt Smith and the Wolverines earned their second consecutive Rose Bowl trip Saturday by defeating arch-rival Ohio State 14-6.

The fifth-ranked Wolverines owned the football for just 2:08 in the first period, running off only five scrimmage plays for a measly five yards. But Ohio State could manage only a 29-yard field goal by Vlade Janakievski although it had first downs at the Michigan 18-and 11-yard lines on its first two possessions.

But Michigan's overworked defense, which spent almost 13 minutes on the field in the first period, held the fort until Smith and quarterback Rick Leach could get the offense untracked. Smith capped a 46-yard drive by scoring from a yard out 1:20 before halftime and the Wolverines were never headed.

Leach boosted Michigan's margin to 14-3 on a 2-yard scamper early in the third period after Ohio State committed the game's first turnover and Ron Springs' fumble was recovered by Michigan's Ron Simpkins at the Ohio 20.

The Wolverines finished the regular season with a 10-1 record, marred only by a stunning 16-0 loss to Minnesota.

Fourth-ranked Ohio State wound up 9-2 — the Buckeyes also lost to Oklahoma 29-28 — and will have to settle for a Sugar Bowl meeting with Alabama.

The two old and bitter foes actually tied for the Big Ten championship with 7-1 conference records, but Michigan won the Rose Bowl trip by taking the head-to-head encounter. The Wolverines will face the Pacific-8 champion in Pasadena on Jan. 2.

An NCAA record regular-season crowd of 106,024 and a national television audience saw Ohio State control the ball for 7:41 following the opening kickoff. Led by shifty quarterback Rod Gerald, the Buckeyes stormed from their 23 to the Michigan 12 but had to settle for Janakievski's field goal.

ABC-TV missed the first seven minutes to show the historic

Stadium: No Word

Final approval of contracts for the expansion of Ficklen Stadium did not come Friday as expected.

East Carolina University Vice-Chancellor for Business, Cliff Moore, said that one letter from contractors was received, but two more were still unreceived. They are expected to be received sometime Monday, Moore said.

The stadium is due to be expanded from its current seating of 20,000 to 35,000 during the months between now and next September. The work will also include the installation of a new press box and an elevator to serve that area, which will also include a new chancellor's box.

The $2.6 million project will add wings to each side of the existing stands on each side of the playing field.

Bowl Games Pick Thirteen Teams

By The Associated Press

Thirteen teams, including Notre Dame, Michigan, Ohio State and Arkansas nailed down post-season bowl spots Saturday while No. 1-ranked Texas became the nation's only unbeaten major college football team by crushing Baylor, 29-7.

Sixth-ranked Notre Dame bombed Air Force 49-0, then accepted a bid to meet the Southwest Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas Jan. 2. Texas and Texas A&M battle for the SWC title Saturday.

The Texas-Texas A&M loser will head for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston Dec. 31, where they will meet either Washington or Southern California. Texas A&M, ranked 14th, stayed in the Cotton Bowl running by clobbering Texas Christian, 52-23.

Fifth-ranked Michigan defeated No. 4 Ohio State 14-6 to grab the Big Ten berth in the Rose Bowl. Michigan's foe will be the Pacific-8 champion, either UCLA or Washington.

Washington, No. 19, turned back cross-state rival Washington State 35-15 Saturday to remain in the running for the Pac-8 title.

Despite the loss, Ohio State accepted a bid to the Sugar Bowl. The Buckeyes will meet No. 2 Alabama, which was idle this week.

Arkansas, ranked eighth,

Gymnasts Take Second Place

MILLEGEVILLE, Ga. — Two East Carolina University freshmen guided the Lady Pirate gymnastic team to a second place finish in the Georgia College Thanksgiving Invitational meet Saturday.

The two newcomers, Mary Hubbard of Morristown, N.J., and Susan McKnight of Greenville, N.C., finished one-two in the all-around scoring as the Pirates nosed out Duke and the College of Georgia for second place in the meet.

Hosting Georgia College finished first with 139.55 points, while East Carolina had 104.55. Georgia College is the defending Region III champion.

Hubbard finished the meet with 29.2 points to take the all-around championship, while McKnight had 28.45 to take second.

Hubbard finished third in the balance beam with a 7.85 score, and was third in the uneven bars at 6.7. She won the floor exercises with a 8.05.

McKnight took first in the uneven bars with a 7.0 score and was fifth in the floor exercises with a 7.0.

The competition was the first of the season for the Lady Pirates.

Virginia Tech Tops Deacons

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Sophomore fullback Mickey Fitzgerald bulled for three touchdowns as Virginia Tech's Gobblers defeated Wake Forest 28-10 Saturday, sending the Demon Deacons to their 10th straight defeat.

Fitzgerald, a 6-foot-2, 251 pounder converted from tight end only three games ago, rushed 29 times for 142 yards with all three of his touchdowns coming on 1-yard plunges. The victory gave Tech a 2-7-1 record with one game remaining while Wake Forest closed out its season at 1-10.

Fitzgerald's 100-yard plus day marked the third time he had exceeded that figure in as many games.

He put the Gobblers in front with 7:49 left in the first quarter, but James McDougald's 7-yard touchdown run and Frank Harnisch's 37-yard field goal gave the Deacons a 10-7 intermission lead.

But the Gobblers went ahead for good with 12 minutes left in the third quarter on Fitzgerald's second touchdown, culminating an 80-yard march highlighted by David Lamie's 51-yard pass to freshman wide receiver Ron Zollicoffer.

Fitzgerald's third touchdown came with 12:24 remaining following an 80-yard drive in which he carried eight times for 55 yards.

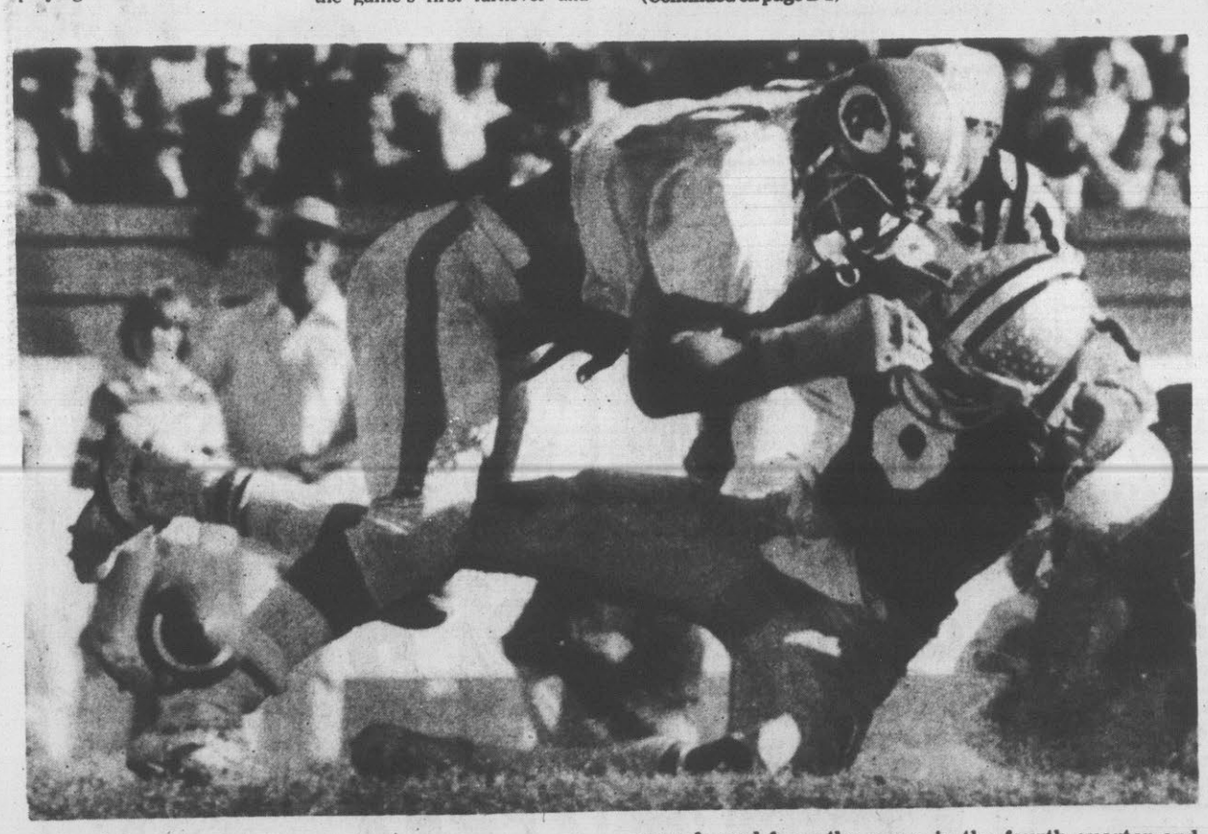
The Deacons suffered another disappointment to go along with losing as McDougald, who came into the game with 900 yards rushing, failed by 13 yards to reach the 1,000-yard mark for the season. He gained 87 yards in 27 carries.

The margin would have been greater if the Gobblers had not twice fumbled the ball away after driving deep into Wake Forest territory. The first fumble, by Lamie, was recovered by Dwayne Crayton on the Wake Forest 15, and started the Deacon's 85-yard drive that resulted in their only touchdown.

Harnisch, who missed field goals of 48 and 42 yards, kicked his 37 yarder after the Deacons drove 43 yards to the Tech 20.



Forces Fumble

North Carolina defender Buddy Curry sacks Duke quarterback Mike Dunn, forcing him to fumble during second quarter action in Saturday's ACC game played at Wallace Wade Stadium in Durham. Dunn was forced from the game in the fourth quarter and taken to the hospital after being sacked by Carolina's Dee Hardison but the injury was not believed to be serious. Carolina won the game, 16-3, and with it the ACC championship and a Liberty Bowl bid. (AP Laserphoto)

Tar Heels Receive Pre-Season Nod As Top Team In Country

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina's Tar Heels are the nation's No. 1 team in The Associated Press pre-season college basketball poll.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters have judged the Atlantic Coast Conference team best in the country by a slim 34-point margin over Kentucky.

The Tar Heels polled 873 points to 839 for the Wildcats of the Southeastern Conference, with each team collecting 21 first-place votes in a wide disparity over the rest of the field.

Marquette, conqueror of North Carolina in last year's finals at Atlanta, was a distant third with 581 points, some of them fashioned on four firstplace votes.

Notre Dame, another of the country's top independents, was close behind the Warriors with 577 points. The Fighting Irish received two votes for first place.

San Francisco, defending champion of the West Coast Athletic Conference, and Pacific-8 titlist UCLA received the other first-place votes from the panel and finished 5-6 in the voting. The Dons collected 536 points to 443 for the Bruins.

Arkansas, the top team in the Southwest Conference last season, finished No. 7 in the voting with 344 points and Nevada-Las Vegas, a Far West independent which was in the final four last season, was No. 8 with 344.

Two Metro-Seven powers— Cincinnati and Louisville— rounded out the Top Ten. Cincinnati was No. 9 with 304 points and Louisville No. 10 with 236.

The remainder of The AP's ranked teams include: No. 11 Syracuse; No. 12 Purdue; No. 13 Michigan; No. 14 Maryland; No. 15 Alabama; No. 16 Minnesota; No. 17 Wake Forest; No. 18 Holy Cross; No. 19 Detroit and No. 20 St. John's.

North Carolina-Charlotte, one of the final four in last year's national playoffs, uniquely did not make it into the pre-season Top Twenty despite a team that returns most of its starters.

The AP's final Top Twenty last year: 1-Michigan, 2-UCLA, 3-Kentucky, 4-Nevada-Las Vegas, 5-North Carolina, 6-Syracuse, 7-Marquette, 8-San Francisco, 9-Wake Forest, 10-Notre Dame, 11-Alabama, 12-Detroit, 13-Minnesota, 14-Utah, 15-Tennessee, 16-Kansas State, 17UNC-Charlotte, 18-Arkansas, 19Louisville, 20-VMI.

arrival of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Israel.

Michigan ran three plays and punted and Ohio State rolled from its 39 to the Wolverines' 8. But Curtis Greer sacked Gerald for a 9-yard loss and, after an illegal procedure penalty and a wild pitchout by Gerald, Janakievski missed badly on a 42-yard field goal attempt.

Starting from their own 20, the Wolverines ran two plays for 1 yard each as the opening period came to an end. But on the first play of the second quarter Leach whipped a 26-yard pass to Ralph Clayton for Michigan's initial first down.

That drive stalled when Gregg Willner missed a 47-yard field goal try, but the Wolverines cashed in after Dwight Hicks returned a punt 7 yards to the Ohio State 46.

Smith replaced starting tailback Harlan Huckleby and carried three times for 14 yards before grabbing a 22-yard pass from Leach at the 8. Russell Davis carried twice to the 1 and Smith knifed across to give Michigan a 7-3 halftime lead which its gallant defense staunchly protected.

After an error-free first half, both teams lost fumbles in the third quarter but Michigan turned its break into Leach's touchdown run while Ohio State came away empty.

Michigan scored its second touchdown when Springs, Ohio's top runner, was separated from the ball by nose guard Steve Graves and Simpkins recovered at the Buckeyes' 20. Leach kept to the 9, Davis carried twice for 7 yards and Leach scored from the 2, falling across the goalline with linebacker Tom Cousineau hanging onto him.

Ohio State came right back and marched from its 15 to the Michigan 11. But Greer nailed Gerald for a 2-yard loss, a pitchout to Jeff Logan lost 1 more and Simpkins sacked Gerald all the way back at the 27.

However, Janakievski connected on a 44-yard field goal, although he missed a 49-yard boot six seconds before halftime and a 42-yarder late in the third quarter. The latter miss came after Joe Allegro recovered a fumble by Smith at the Michigan 31.

Michigan's defense, led by Greer, Graves, Simpkins and end-punter John Anderson, turned back every Ohio threat thereafter. First they stopped Paul Campbell short of a first down on fourth-and-one inside the Michigan 10 early in the final period.

And with just four minutes left in the game, Anderson shook Gerald loose from the ball and Derek Howard recovered at the Michigan 18. That was the Buckeyes' last real gasp and volatile Coach Woody Hayes slammed his earphones to the ground and also vented his anger by punching an ABC cameraman in the stomach when the TV man got too close.

Hayes and some of his players also were involved in a brief pre-game scuffle with Michigan supporters when the Ohio State team ran to midfield under a huge Michigan banner instead of going straight to its bench.

Maryland Shakes Off Mistakes, Rips Cavs

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—George Scott rushed for 173 yards and scored on a 13-yard pass from Larry Dick as Maryland overcame first-half mistakes, whipped Virginia 28-0 Saturday, and accepted a bid to play in the inaugural Hall of Fame Classic at Birmingham, Ala.

The postseason game on Dec. 22 will be Maryland's fifth consecutive bowl appearance, even though the Terps finished with a 7-4 record, their worst mark in five years.

After the ragged first half, which ended with Maryland ahead 14-0, the Terps added two touchdowns during a 45-second span of the third quarter. Mickey Dudish scored from one yard out to cap an 86-yard drive, and then Alvin "Preacher" Maddox scored from the two following a fumble recovery on Virginia's first play.

Scott, who has gained 581 yards in three games, scored on the fifth play of the game, following a 67-yard kickoff return by Don Dotter.

Virginia, which finished the season at 1-9-1, was in Maryland territory for much of the remainder of the first half after intercepting two passes and recovering one of three Maryland fumbles. But the Cavaliers gave up the ball at the 16 and the two, and missed a 43-yard field goal attempt by Russ Henderson.

Virginia, which knocked Maryland out of a Gator Bowl bid with an upset victory in the final game of the 1961 season, had a chance to duplicate that feat in the first half.

But the Cavaliers lost the ball on downs at the Maryland 16 following a pass interception by Derrick Glasper, and then fumbled the ball away at the two after Jay Morris picked off another Maryland pass. Virginia later reached the Maryland 26 prior to the missed field goal.

Scott, given the starting chance because of an injury to Steve Atkins, has carried the ball 108 times in the last three games. He has gained 894 yards rushing for the season.

He picked up 38 yards on Maryland's third TD drive, and Dick completed three passes for 56 yards.

Maryland, dethroned after three years as champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference, finish with a 4-2 league record. Virginia, which yielded 280 points this season, finished at 1-5 in the ACC.

Frustrated Hayes Slugs TV Camerman

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — In the waning moments of Michigan's nationally televised 14-6 loss to Ohio State Saturday, losing Coach Woody Hayes vented his frustration at Mike Freedman, an ABC cameraman working the Ohio State sideline.

With four minutes left to play, Michigan's John Anderson caused Ohio State quarterback Rod Gerald to fumble the ball and Derek Howard recovered for the Wolverines at the Michigan 18, ending the Buckeyes' last real threat. The volatile Hayes slammed his earphones to the ground, then noticed the ABC sideline camera focusing on his reactions.

Hayes charged at the cameraman and punched him in the stomach. Viewers around the country saw Hayes approach, then the picture swung wildly out of control before the director switched to a view from another camera.

Bill Flemming, ABC's sideline commentator, said he didn't see the incident but that he heard Chuck Howard, the producer in the ABC truck outside the stadium, say through the headphones that Hayes had hit Freedman.

Flemming also noted that Freedman had made it a point to meet with Hayes on Friday to inform him that he would be working the Ohio State sideline and that he knew to stay within his bounds. Flemming said Hayes' reply was, "See that you do."

ABC's official spokesmen were gone within minutes after the game and Freedman also was unavailable. A member of the crew in the truck outside the stadium said Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, wanted to talk to Freedman before the network would make any official comment.

Hayes was asked about the incident in his post-game news conference.

"Awww, go ahead and write that," he replied testily. "How would you like it if they stuck microphones in your face all the time?"

Hayes then abruptly ended his news conference and walked out of the room.

Hayes and some of his players also were involved in a brief pre-game scuffle with Michigan supporters when the Ohio State team ran to midfield under a huge Michigan banner instead of going straight to its bench.

VMI Rips Rams In Final Game

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Record-breaking performances by tailback Andre Gibson and placekicker Craig Jones and a two-touchdown effort by fullback Steve Oddi highlighted a 20-7 Virginia Military Institute victory over the University of Rhode Island in a non-conference football game Saturday.

Gibson, a senior, established a single-season VMI rushing record as he gained 137 yards on 24 carries. That raised his total for the year to 1,162, easily eclipsing the old mark of 1,045 yards set by Ronnie Norman in 1974.

Jones, only a sophomore, became the Keydets' career scoring leader as he booted two field goals and a pair of extra points. That raised his two-year total to 116 points, eight more than the previous record shared by two players.

VMI, now 7-3 with one game remaining, dominated play from the outset, scoring on its first two possessions.

But despite running 49 plays to only 20 by the Rams in the first half, the Keydets led by only 13-0 at intermission and didn't breathe easily until engineering an 89-yard touchdown drive late in the third quarter.

Western Downs ASU

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Lipford, the nation's leading scorer this season, had a pair of touchdown runs to set two Southern Conference scoring records Saturday as Western Carolina trounced Appalachian State, 44-14.

Lipford's scores, on 6-and 1-yard runs, gave him 18 touchdowns and 108 points for the season, both conference records. He saw limited action after spraining an ankle in the first quarter, but gained 43 yards rushing to give him a season total of 1,318 yards and a career total of 4,089 yards, a state record.

Meanwhile, Catamount split end Wayne Tolleson, the nation's leading receiver entering the game, caught 11 passes for 126 yards. The all-America candidate did not score a touchdown, but kicked a field goal and three extra points.

Quarterback Mike Pusey added two Western Carolina touchdowns on short runs and freshman Gerald Harp caught two scoring passes in the fourth quarter.

The Catamounts led only 20-14 at halftime, with Appalachian getting its touchdowns on Emmitt Hamilton's 33-yard run and Scott McConnell's 1-yard plunge.

Late Score Keys Citadel

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Citadel quarterbak Marty Crosby hit freshman split end Mark Hunt for a 37-yard gain to set up Sam Scadlock's 7-yard touchdown burst with 25 seconds left to play as The Citadel defeated Furman 10-3 in an intrastate Southern Conference battle Saturday afternoon.

With the score knotted at 3-3 going into the final period, Furman, under the direction of quarterback David Henderson, staged a strong drive from the Paladin 24-yard line. On a crucial fourth-and-one situation for Furman at The Citadel 24, Bulldogs Chuck Strong and Keith Allen halted fullback Kent Woerner at the line of scrimmage.

Crosby and his troops then went to work from their own 24, and on a critical third-and-eight situation, Crosby found Hunt down the middle for a 37-yard gainer. Three plays later Crosby again connected with Hunt — this time for 15 yards. That gave the Bulldogs a first down on the Furman 25. Lavonia "Stump" Mitchell and Scadlock shared the rushing duties to bring the ball to the Furman 7. From there Scadlock went over for the winning tally.

With the victory, The Citadel finished its season with a 5-6 overall record, a 3-2 record and third-place finish in the Southern Confrence. Furman, 4-5-2, finished 3-2-1 in the conf

New Orleans Meets Finley

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The latest in a series of meetings aimed at moving the American League Oakland A's to New Orleans was to take place Sunday in Chicago.

A's owner Charles O. Finley said he would meet with Robert L. Moody, the Galveston, Texas, millionaire who is the principal financial power behind a group trying to purchase the A's for a reported $12.5 million.

"Mr. Moody and I will meet for supper and we'll discuss the situation," Finley told the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"I wouldn't say he's coming up to buy the whole ball of wax. I think he's just coming up to look at the possibilities," he said.

Moody, contacted at his Galveston office, said the meeting would be for "exploratory discussions" but would not elaborate.

Moody had been working with New Orleans banker Robert E. Thompson and A. Ray Smith, who ran a class AAA baseball team in New Orleans last season.

But the meeting with Moody indicated that the Texan may have taken over the initiative in attempts to purchase the team.

Finley said he had been scheduled to meet with representatives of the Thompson-Smith group Friday but said the meeting was canceled. A negotiator for the group "indicated that since Mr. Moody had entered the picture and they knew he was coming up to talk with me, that they are more or less now standing by to assist Mr. Moody in any way they can," Finley said.

"There's an old saying, a big hat and no cattle. Well, that's Ray Smith. I don't mean that derogatorily against him," said Finley.

Indians Top Spiders

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Steve Libassi's three straight field goals gave William & Mary an early lead and the Indians never let up for a 29-13 football victory Saturday over the University of Richmond.

The Indians piled 346 yards rushing against Richmond's 164 as they pulled out a winning season at 6-5. The Spiders ended at 3-8.

Both Richmond's scores came on passes by Dave Taylor — a 40 yarder to Byron Williams in the second quarter and a 9-yard toss to Milt Ruffin in the fourth.

Libassi's field goals — two in the first quarter and one in the second — were 47, 34 and 28 yards long.

The Indians' first touchdown came on a 3-yard scamper by Rozantz, whose 44-yard pass to Joe Manderfield had highlighted the four-play scoring drive.

Irish Shoot Down Air Force

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Vagas Ferguson blasted for three touchdowns including a 56-yard romp on Notre Dame's first play from scrimmage to send the sixth-ranked Irish to a 49-0 victory over Air Force Saturday and an apparent trip to the Cotton Bowl.

The triumph was the eighth straight for the Irish, now 9-1 with a Dec. 3 date remaining at Miami, Fla., before the expected Cotton Bowl meeting Jan. 1 against top-ranked Texas.

Air Force closed its season with a 2-8-1 record as Ben Martin called it quits after 22 years of coaching, the last twenty at the academy.

Notre Dame scored on its first three possessions to take a 21-0 lead at the quarter. After his 56-yard touchdown run, Ferguson went across from the nine-yard line and Jerome Heavens added a one-yard touchdown run.

Notre Dame made it 35-0 at the half as Ferguson capped a 64-yard drive with a two-yard touchdown run and quarterback Joe Montana hit Chris Haines with 33-yard scoring strike.

Heartstopper: Tigers Nip Gamecocks

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Steve Fuller threw a 20-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Butler with 49 seconds to play to give Clemson a 31-27 college football victory over traditional rival South Carolina Saturday and a berth in the Gator Bowl against 10th-ranked Pitt.

The 15th-ranked Tigers saw their 24-0 lead vanish in a furious South Carolina attack that put 27 points on the board late in the game, televised regionally. But steady Fuller propelled the Tigers on a 67-yard march in the final two minutes before hitting Butler with the game-winning pass.

With two minutes to play, Ron Bass passed 40 yards to Phil Logan for a touchdown to put South Carolina ahead for the only time, 27-24.

The Clemson victory gave the Tigers a 8-2-1 record, while the Gamecocks fell to 5-6.

Clemson dominated the game between the cross-state rivals until late in the third period when the Gamecocks solved the riddle of the Tiger defense and got on the scoreboard with the game's most spectacular play, a 77-yard touchdown run by Spencer Clark.

The Tigers scored the second time they had the ball with diminutive Warren Ratchford diving over from the 4 to cap an 11-play, 90-yard march.

Two South Carolina errors set up the other first-half scores. Clemson's Roy Eppes picked off a Bass pass that led to an 18-yard field goal by Obed Ariri.

A fumble recovery at the Clemson 33 on the Gamecocks' next possession started a 67-yard, 14-play march climaxed by a 1-yard Lester Brown dive for a touchdown early in the second period.

Ken Callicutt raced 52 yards for a score before the Game-

rolled over Southern Methodist 47-7 and claimed a berth in the Orange Bowl against the Big Eight champion — either third-ranked Oklahoma or No. 11 Nebraska.

Oklahoma and Nebraska clash next week to decide the title, with the loser heading to Liberty Bowl Dec. 19 at Memphis, Tenn. to meet No. 18 North Carolina, a 16-3 victor over Duke.

North Carolina State is heading for the Peach Bowl Dec. 31 in Atlanta and ninth-ranked Penn State accepted an invitation to play the Western Athletic Conference champion in the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., on Dec. 25.

Clemson, No. 15, and 10th-ranked Pitt will battle in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30.

The Hall of Fame Classic Dec. 22 in Birmingham, Ala., will pit Maryland and Minnesota. Texas Tech, No. 16, and No. 13 Florida State will meet in the Tangerine Bowl Dec. 23 at Orlando, Fla.

Stanford of the Pacific Eight Conference and Louisiana State of the Southeast Conference will meet in the Sun Bowl December 31, in El Paso, Texas.

The bowl picture left only two berths still to be filled, that opposite North Carolina State in the Peach Bowl, and an opening in the Independence Bowl against Southland Conference champion Louisiana Tech. That game is scheduled for December 17.

Michigan came to life in the second quarter behind the running and receiving of substitute tailback Roosevelt Smith to stop arch-rival Ohio State. The teams actually tied for the Big Ten title but Michigan got the Rose Bowl trip by winning the head-to-head encounter.

Earl Campbell rushed for 181 yards to lead Texas over Baylor and clinch at least a tie for the Southwest Conference title. Freshman Amos Lawrence ran for 138 yards, including a touchdown, and Tom Biddle added three field goals as 18th-ranked North Carolina downed Duke 16-3 to capture the Atlantic Coast Conference crown.

Syracuse Tops W.Va.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Art Monk caught one Bill Hurley pass for a touchdown and scored two more touchdowns on runs of 25 and 30 yards to lead Syracuse past West Virginia 28-9 in college football Saturday.

Jim Sessler scored the other Syracuse touchdown on a 1-yard run to end the Orangemen's season with a 6-5 record, giving Coach Frank Maloney his second winning season in four years at Syracuse.

Monk, who ran for 136 yards, put Syracuse ahead to stay in the second quarter when he caught Hurley's 11-yard pass in the end zone. It was the quarterback's only completion in the first half.

facemask as he dropped back to pass. The signal-caller lay motionless for many minutes before being carried away in an ambulance as the crowd rose in a standing ovation.

Driskell, sent in for Dunn, nearly directed the Blue Devils to a second score as he hit several key passes in getting Duke down to the Carolina 20. Two straight incompletions ended the drive with just over a minute left.

Lawrence, who was also injured in the ballgame, was the leading rusher of the afternoon, picking up 138 yards in 30 carries. The tailback suffered an ankle injury in the second half, but it was not serious, although he did not return to the game.

Lawrence brought his ACC record-breaking freshman yardage mark to 1,210 yards.

The Tar Heels will now prepare for their December 19 Liberty Bowl date. Their opponent will be either Oklahoma or Nebraska.

Finally Get Win

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Matt Reitzug rushed for 102 yards and scored one touchdown while Dave Mishler bolted 52 yards for a TD late in the fourth quarter Saturday to lead Northwestern to a 21-7 victory over Illinois in the Big Ten season finale for both teams.

The victory was the first for Northwestern in 11 games and gave retiring coach John Pont his 98th career victory. Illinois finished the season with a 3-8 record.

Reitzug was the workhouse on Northwestern's second scoring march, carrying five times for 40 yards in the eight-play, 74-yard march, which was climaxed by Reitzug's nine-yard touchdown burst.

Kentucky Eases Past Tennessee

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Derrick Ramsey's 1-yard plunge capped an 80-yard fourth-quarter touchdown drive that gave seventh-ranked Kentucky a 21-17 Southeastern Conference comeback football victory over Tennessee Saturday.

The Wildcats, completing their best season in 27 years with a 10-1 record, got the winning drive under way on a 36-yard pass from reserve quarterback Mike Deaton to Felix Wilson.

Ramsey, playing dispite a bruised shoulder, returned on a third-and-five situation at the Volunteer 39, hammered 6 yards on the first play and drove his team the distance.

Ramsey's score came with 5:29 left in the game and completed Kentucky's first perfect season in conference competition with a 6-0 record.

Kentucky is under probation and therefore ineligible for the SEC title and bowl play.

Tennessee had taken a 17-14 lead early in the final quarter on a school-record 57-yard field goal by Jim Gaylor.

Kelsey Finch scored two touchdowns for Tennessee, which lost its seventh game in a season for the first time in history. The Vols are now 3-7 overall and winless in five conference games.

Kentucky's other scoring came on a 14-yard run by Freddie Williams and a 1-yard keeper by Ramsey.

Rocky Mount Stuns Jacksonville To Gain Eastern 4-A Grid Finals

By The Associated Press

Defending champion Robbinsville routed Maxton, 60-6, in a 1-A semifinal playoff game. Dale Hill and Shane Laughter each had two touchdowns for Robbinsville, which ran its winning streak to 23 games.

In the other 1-A semifinal, Rock Ridge scored twice in the fourth quarter to defeat North Duplin, 23-12. Russell Williamson's 30-yard interception return and Mike Wells' 40-yard run made the difference in the game.

In the 2-A quarterfinals, Phil Ward scored on a deflected pass from Boyd Byerly with 1:13 left in the game to give undefeated Tabor City a 14-10 come-from-behind win over Camp Lejeune.

Pete Dagerhardt's 1-yard run in the fourth quarter gave Maiden a 28-23 win over Swain County in another 2-A game. Dagerhardt also threw a 58-yard touchdown pass to Troy Farley in the first half.

Other 2-A quarterfinal action saw Clayton shut out Perquimans County, 20-0, and Charlotte Catholic defeat Central Davidson, 30-2.

In 3-A quarterfinal action, halfback Gary Whitted scored on runs of 31, 56, 48 and 10 yards to give Clinton a 41-21 victory over Farmville Central. Clinton also scored on a 68-yard kickoff return by Michael Kea.

Meanwhile, the top-ranked 3A team, South Rowan, was upset by South Caldwell, 8-7. South Rowan quarterback Stan Frye scored on a 1-yard keeper midway through the fourth quarter, but South Caldwell took the ensuing kickoff and drove 60 yards on runs, with Tony Smith scoring from 1 yard out with 1:15 left.

Then, on a two-point conversion attempt, Smith was stopped but lateralled to quarterback Donald Kirkpatrick, who went over for the winning points.

Brevard, undefeated in 3-A play, scored a 14-7 victory over Newton-Conover on a 30-yard pass from Jack Cole to Allen McQuary in the fourth period. A late Newton-Conover drive was halted by an interception at the Brevard 1-yard line with 29 seconds left in the game.

In other 3-A play, Western Guilford defeated East Wake, 27-7.

East Mecklenburg halfback Van Smith ran 48 yards with a screen pass with 2:49 left in the game Friday night to give the visitors a 14-7 victory over East Forsyth in the quarterfinals of the state 4-A high school football playoffs.

East Forsyth had taken a 7-0 lead in the second quarter on quarterback Ron Fowler's 52-yard run around left end, but East Mecklenburg tied the socre before halftime on a 74-yard pass from Ronnie Arant to tight end Joe Collins.

In another 4-A quarterfinal game, Asheville took an early lead and beat Winston-Salem Parkland, 21-7. John Fair's 1yard run and Mark Caldwell's 14-yard pass to Vernon Bailey gave Asheville a 14-0 lead and Parkland never recovered.

Elsewhere in 4-A competition, Fayetteville Pine Forest defeated Richmond County, 41-6, and Rocky Mount beat previously undefeated Jacksonville, 20-13.

Harrells Academy defeated Hobgood Academy, 34-8, in a semifinal matchup of undefeated independent teams. The other independent semifinal this afternoon will match Ravenscroft and Christ School.

Farmville Out-Whitted By Clinton

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

CLINTON — Clinton's Dark Horses did nothing fancy or surprising. They simply blocked hard and ran right through Farmville Central's highly-touted defense. When it was all over, the Dark Horses had scored a 41-21 victory to advance to the semi-finals of the State 3-A playoffs.

Junior running back Gary Whitted was the star of the show for the winners. He scored four touchdowns and penetrated the Jaguar defense for 204 yards rushing. His two first-quarter touchdowns stunned the Jags and helped Clinton take a 22-0 halftime lead, nearly putting the game away before intermission.

"I thought we had a pretty good defense until we went up against them," an obviously disappointed Farmville coach Gene Brewer said after the game. "I thought we would be able to contain them."

Containing the powerful Clinton runners was a problem for the Jaguars all night. The Dark Horses picked up 319 yards rushing against a defense that has been tough against the run all year. Much of the yardage came on the big play — sweeps, traps and quick pitches which gained 30 yards a clip.

"We knew we had to stop about four different plays and we didn't stop any of them," according to Brewer. He said the team showed its youth in the first half in making many mistakes and just couldn't get back into the ball game, despite a better second-half showing.

The game marked the second year in a row that Clinton has defeated Farmville to knock the Jaguars out of the playoffs. Last season the Dark Horses scored a 41-40 overtime victory over Farmville in the eastern finals. "The team that won Friday night was better than last year's," Brewer said.

Clinton coach Bobby Robinson said his defense was "loose at times, but stopped them when we had to." He added, "I didn't really know what to expect, I was just hoping we would be fired up and get a good start."

"A good start" is an understatement for the way the Horses took control of the game in the first half. Clinton scored touchdowns on two of their first three possessions, forced a safety a few series later and then returned the ensuing kickoff 68 yards for another score and a 22-0 halftime lead.

Besides Whitted's four touchdowns, Clinton got TD's from backs Smoky Norris and Michael Kea. Farmville's Scott Evans was run out of the end zone for a safety and Steve Weeks kicked three extra points.

Jaguar quarterback Donald Freeman ran for one touchdown and threw to James Tyson for another, while Walter Blow scored the final Farmville touchdown on a seven-yard run. Freeman ran a conversion and David Dunn kicked one.

The Dark Horses took the opening kickoff and drove 68 yards for the game's initial score. Whitted, Norris and Tim Newman did all of the work on the drive, moving the ball down to the Farmville 31 where Whitted took it in on a quick pitch with 7:31 left in the first.

Minutes later, after Clinton had taken over when Kea intercepted a Freeman pass, Whitted ran the same play, a quick pitch around left end, and this time he scored from 55 yards away to make it 13-0. Weeks missed the PAT after the second TD.

Midway through the second quarter, the Dark Horses forced a Farmville punt after stopping the Jags deep in their own territory. An offsides penalty against Farmville on the play moved the ball back to the seven-yard line and forced Evans to stand deep in his end zone to receive the snap. The hike was high and Evans, with no chance to kick, tried to run it out, but was forced out of bounds before he could get across the goal line.

For their free kick, the Jaguars chose to go with place kicker Donald Reid and he booted the ball to Kea at the Clinton 32. The speedster went right up the middle, broke out of the

Chowan, Bears Split Openers

BEAR GRASS — The Bear Grass Bears opened the 1977-78 basketball season Friday night, splitting a pair of varsity games with Chowan.

The Lady Bears captured their game, 51-17, while the Chowan boys eased past Bear Grass, 50-40.

Chowan's boys inched out in front during the first period, gaining a 9-4 lead by the buzzer. The Bears put on a rally in the second quarter, but still found themselves trailing, 23-19 at intermission.

The Bears turned their rally into a lead in the third quarter, as they outhit Chowan, 14-9. That inched them ahead, 33-32, as the final quarter got underway. But Bear Grass was unable to sustain its drive, and Chowan came up with an 18-7 margin in the final period to take the win.

B. Holley led the Chowan scoring with 15 points, while Bill Jordan had 10. Jackie Harrison had 12 and Norris Wallace, 10, for the Bears.

In the girls' game, it was a different story. Bear Grass edged out to a 6-2 lead in the first period, and easily pulled away the rest of the evening. They worked their lead out to 16-8 at halftime, and ran it to 34-16 as the third period got started. The Lady Bears outhit Chowan, 17-1, in the final quarter.

Patricia Taylor and Jandra Crawford each poured in 12 points for the Bears, while Debra Jo Peaks had 11. No one hit double figures for the Chowan girls.

Williamston Girls Seek Another State Berth

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Williamston's girls' basketball team won the Northeastern Conference championship last season, took the district tournament and went to the state playoffs before being knocked off in the first round.

Despite the fact that the Tigerettes lost their playmaker and coach, a number of top performers return and the new coach, Peggy Taylor, has high hopes for the coming season.

"We look to go back to Hickory (the site of the state tournament)," Taylor said. "We set our goals to play good enough ball to go back and try it again."

Everyone returns from last year except guard Cindy Cullipher, who was a senior. She was the team's quarterback and "we have to fill in that spot. It will be a big spot, really," Taylor said.

Expected to take over there is senior Sharon Hudgins. At 5-4, "she is very small, but she's quick and handles the ball well."

The other guard will be Musette Spruill, who played forward last year, Taylor said. The 5-7 senior is a "good, steady ballplayer and a pretty good shot; not a great shot, but a pretty good shot."

Junior Jo Anna Lilley returns to her forward position. She is close to six feet tall and is a good ballhandler. "She works inside well, has a good corner shot and is a good rebounder," according to Taylor.

Alisa Robertson, a 5-7 senior, and Jan Rogerson, a 5-8 sophomore, are expected share time in the other forward position. Robertson has more experience and is a good inside player, while Rogerson is tough from the outside. Taylor said she will probably use Robertson when she needs inside play and rebounding and Rogerson when she needs an outside threat.

In the middle will be Paula Bennett, "probably the best center the East has seen in quite awhile," Taylor said. The 5-11 senior gives the Tigerettes a definite threat on the inside.

Williamston has five players as back-ups at guard, Taylor said. Sophomore Myra Martin should see some game time at the position, as well as Betty Davis, Cathy Everett, Ginger Edwards and Annie Mackey.

Depth at the forward spots depends on the play of Sharon Speller, Lisa Winslow and Regina Roberson. Taylor said she is "expecting right much" from Speller and Winslow.

Overall, "we should do pretty good," Taylor said. "Most of the girls have played together for two years and some of them have played for three years.

"But, the competition is getting tougher. We got beat by teams last year that have a lot of returners coming back."

The teams to beat in the Northeastern should be Washington, Plymouth and Edenton, with the Lady Pam-Pack heading the list.

Taylor figures for the Tigerettes to be in the thick of things and, with the goals they have set for this year, could move on to higher ground in the state tournament.

Lloyd Free Guides 76ers To Victory

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Lloyd Free is not the most disciplined ballplayer in the National Basketball Association, but when it comes to schoolyard basketball he has few peers.

Friday night it was schoolyard time in Boston Garden as Free delivered 29 points to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 121-112 victory over the Boston Celtics before a packed house of 15,276.

Free, a rugged 6-foot-3 guard, came off the bench to score 14 points in the second period and 15 in the fourth. He shot 10-for-14 from the field, 9-for-10 from the foul line.

In other NBA games Friday night, the Phoenix Suns edged the Chicago Bulls 103-101, the Golden State Warriors beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 108-104, the Los Angeles Lakers routed the Detroit Pistons 116-83, the Washington Bullets defeated the New York Knicks 123-103, the Indiana Pacers stopped the New Jersey Nets 124-116 and the Denver Nuggets beat the San Antonio Spurs 105-94.

The victory gave Philadelphia a 7-1 record since Billy Cunningham replaced Gene Shue as coach and lifted the Sixers into first place in the Atlantic Division with a 9-5 record, one game ahead of New York.

Free came into the game with an 11.9 scoring average and shooting just 38 per cent from the field.

Doug Collins added 26 points for Philadelphia, Julius Erving 20 and George McGinnis 17.

Suns 103, Bulls 101

Rookie forward Walter Davis scored 11 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter for Phoenix, which was aided when Chicago was assessed four technical fouls in a 1½-minute span of the period. Coach Ed Badger was ejected and three of his players each drew one technical. Paul Westphal, who also had 25 points, made all four of the free throws.

Warriors 108, Cavs 104

Golden State squandered a 24-point lead in the third period but came on to win as rookie guard Rickey Green sank a 25-foot jump shot with 27 seconds remaining to snap a 104-104 tie. After that, Rick Barry clinched the victory for Golden State with two free throws.

Barry scored 28 while Cleveland's Walt Frazier had 27.

Lakers 116, Pistons 83

Los Angeles led by as many as 35 points in the third period as eight players scored in double figures, topped by center James Edwards with 19. Injured center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was on the Lakers' bench but did not suit up for the game.

Bullets 123, Knicks 103

After leading by only one point at halftime, the Bullets pulled away from New York by outscoring the Knicks 33-20 in the third period. Elvin Hayes, who topped Washington with 27 points, got 15 of them in that decisive quarter.

Pacers 124, Nets 116

Adrian Dantley scored 19 of his 37 points in the first period to start the Pacers on their way to their third straight victory. The Nets closed to within two points late in the third period, but baskets by Dantley, Ricky Sobers and John Williamson broke it open once again.

Nuggets 105, Spurs 94

Farmville made a serious threat just before halftime when Donald Reid recovered a Clinton fumble at the Dark Horse 39, but Freeman fumbled four plays later at the 16 and Clinton recovered to run out the clock.

The Jags seemed capable of turning things around in the second half as they came back from intermission with fire in their eyes. They mounted a long, sustained drive after taking the kickoff, moving from their own 27 all the way down the field. Freeman hit Tyson on a square-out on fourth and goal from the five for the score. Dunn kicked the conversion to narrow the margin to 22-7.

But the jubilation of the Farmville fans quickly quieted when the kickoff was returned by Roosevelt Kirby to the Jaguar 47 and Whitted was off on another scoring jaunt one play later. This one was a dive play with the running back bouncing off the line and out-running the secondary to make it 29-7.

A big break helped Farmville get its next score. The Jaguars appeared to be driving after the third Whitted touchdown, but were forced to punt from their own 46 after two sacks totalling minus 25 yards.

Evans made a high kick, which Kea fielded at the 22. He was immediately hit by Ronald Reid, who forced a fumble, and Woody Edwards recovered for Farmville at the 17.

It took just two plays for Farmville to move the ball in. Freemen did the honors, keeping on the option around left end for 14 yards and the touchdown. He ran the conversion around right end to make it 29-15.

But again the Dark Horses came back with a lightning-quick score. Whitted carried for 31 yards on the third play after the kickoff and then Norris took it in for a 38-yard touchdown. Norris tried for a two-point conversion, but it failed.

Farmville returned the ball to Clinton just three plays later as a Freeman pitch was fumbled by Blow and recovered at the Jaguar 22 by Clinton's Stewart Hobbs. Whitted got his final TD of the night three plays later on a run up the middle from the 15 to give Clinton a 41-15 lead.

Farmville then mounted its final scoring drive, going to the air for much of the yardage. A pass interference call helped get the ball to the Clinton 42, where Freeman hit Tyson for 11 yards on a slant pass.

The junior quarterback then found Tony Eason on another slant pattern to get the ball to the 15. Blow ran it to the ten on a pitch to the left side and Tyson caught a square-out pass at the seven.

Blow went up the middle for the remaining distance. His two-point conversion try failed.

The loss ends the Farmville season at 10-2. Clinton, now 11-1, will host Western Guilford, 27-7 winner over East Wake, in the eastern finals next Friday night.

Ford Holding Ontario Hex

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — A fact not lost on the 46 drivers who have entered Chevrolets in Sunday's Los Angeles Times 500 is that a Chevrolet never has won a Grand National stock car race at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Although lesser in number, those who are fielding Dodges also are aware that the flat 2.5-mile track has not been kind to them either.

In fact, Ford products have won four of the five Grand Nationals. A Matador, which actually had a Ford chassis, won the other race.

"I don't think there's any reason why a Chevrolet or a Dodge can't win here. It just hasn't happened yet," said Richard Petty, whose Dodge will start on the pole position with a track record qualifying speed of 154.905 miles per hour. "We have always run well here, we just haven't run long enough.

"Everything's been okay until the last 15 laps or so before it all goes down the tube. One time I missed pit road. Another time I left the pit area before they put the tires on. It's always been something.

"I'm optimistic, though. It was something like 13 years before we won at Charlotte. Now we've won three or four there. It's just a matter of time here."

Ontario Motor Speedway is the only track Petty never has won on. It's also one of the few tracks a Chevrolet has not won on. By the sheer strength of their numbers, the once fragile Chevrolets have won races at most tracks now; the super-high speed Alabama International Motor Speedway fell this year.

But with many, if not most, Chevrolet teams switching to other General Motors models next year under liberalized rules, some feel like this race might be the best chance for a Chevrolet in the foreseeable future.

One of those with a good chance is A.J. Foyt, who has twice mastered the track for Grand National victories, not to mention his array of trophies for triumphs in Indianapolis car races at the track.

Foyt's Chevrolet was the fastest of that breed in Friday's time trials, earning third position in the field of 40 with a run at 154.281 miles per hour.

Others in prime position are Cale Yarborough, who already has clinched this season's national championship, Darrell Waltrip, Donnie Allison and Benny Parsons.

Qualifying for positions 21-40 was scheduled today.

Spinks Wins 10-Round Decision

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Ex-Marine Leon Spinks, who won an Olympic gold medal just a year ago, fought his way into a heavyweight championship fight against Muhammad Ali by outpointing Italian titlist Alfio Righetti in 10 rounds Friday night.

The 24-year-old Spinks, who grew up in St. Louis, won through sheer aggressiveness against a sharp counter-puncher.

But there were no knockdowns and the 25-year-old traffic policeman from Rimini, Italy, stopped many of the Spinks blows before they reached their target.

Spinks, 201, opened fast and captured the early rounds before Righetti found the range with crisp counter-punching lefts.

The scores by all three judges were the same, 46-44. Lou Tabat, Art Lurie and Harold Buck decided the match under the five-point must system of Nevada, where the referee does not score.

Ali has agreed to meet Spinks in the same ring on Feb. 15, 1978 and commented, "I still have enough to beat him. He don't hit as hard as Frazier, Foreman, Norton or Shavers."

Spinks, who improved his record to 6-0-1 and had to go the route for a second straight time after five knockouts in his opening pro matches, collected $30,000 for his nationally televised fight against Righetti and will get $210,000 for fighting Ali, who stands to earn $3.6 million.

Spinks showed his strategy in the first round when he opened a bombardment to the midsection of the 6-foot-3 Italian, who weighed 217 pounds.

Then Spinks shifted his attack to the head and through most of the 10 rounds, he operated the same way, trying to slow his foe with body blows before moving to the head.

In the fourth round, Righetti started picking off the Spinks' punches and moved into contention.

The fight was close from then on, but in the ninth round Spinks jabbed Righetti into the ropes, missed a right to the head and then connected to the midsection.

Both fighters went all out in the 10th, with Spinks gaining a slight edge that proved decisive in the scoring.

The Associated Press also scored 46-44, with Spinks taking the final two rounds.

The ex-Marine was staggered by the hardest punch of the fight in the seventh round when Righetti caught him with a right hand coming in. The Italian, however, was unable to follow up his edge and Spinks covered up to get out of trouble.

Righetti, the slight underdog, earned $10,000 for this bout, but he has an option from Top Rank of New York for another bout that will net him $90,000 more and probably will be in Europe.

The loss was the first for the Italian champion in 28 fights.

"I got a lot to work on, my man," said Spinks as a security guard escorted him to the dressing room. "Righetti was very clever and very smart, but he wasn't more than I expected. I made a lot of mistakes. My hands were a little low some of the time and he took full advantage of that."

Spinks said that before he fights Ali, "I've got to do a whole lot of hard work and suffering."

In an earlier fight, light heavyweight contender Jesse Burnett knocked down Lonnie Bennett three times and registered a technical knockout in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

The victory might put Burnett in line to meet the winner of Saturday night's World Boxing Association title bout between Victor Galindez and Eddie Gregory at Turin, Italy.

In another fight, John Tate, the United States' heavyweight Olympic representative last year, won his seventh straight pro fight without defeat, knocking out Frank Schram of Columbus, Ohio, at 2:44 of the first round.

In the final scheduled 10-rounder, heavyweight Bernado Mercado, 220, of Colombia, knocked out Fili Moala, the previously undefeated Tongan, in the eighth round with a left hook. He put Moala out for the full count at 1:49.

Mercado, who now lives in Nevada, was far ahead in the scoring.

In 1908, pitcher Eed Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs worked both ends of a double-header against the Brooklyn Dodgers and shut them out in each game.

DEER HAVE BEEN causing problems for farmers in this part of the state and many farmers were just as happy as deer hunters to see the season open last month.

"In recent years, the deer have just about eaten me out of house and home," according to one eastern farmer, who was voicing an opinion widely held in this part of the state, the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission said. "This past summer, I shot some of them in my soybean and corn fields. You can do that legally if you catch the deer in the act of destroying a crop. Even so, I don't like to do it because it's a waste of good meat. It ought to be possible for hunters to be able to keep the deer population under control, and then nothing is wasted."

The farmer was expressing, basically, the whole idea behind wildlife management and game laws — keeping the deer population at a healthy number. If there are too many deer in an area, disease and famine can occur and the deer will turn to destroying crops for food. For this reason, game laws are developed to keep the deer population at the optimum number.

"To put it in agricultural terms," a Commission game biologist said, "we've got a big crop of deer down East and hunters need to harvest the excess. We've allowed a four-deer limit where we could in eastern counties, but we may also need to have either-sex deer seasons in other parts of the East. Not only would this add to the hunter's bag and help alleviate the farmer's problem, it would also be good for the general health and well-being of deer herds.

Commission biologists have set up either-sex seasons in critical parts of the East, but many also feel that there is overwhelming evidence that more deer need to be harvested in certain areas. Studies are currently underway to learn more about eastern deer populations and the results could lead to game laws that will be a bonus for hunters in this area.

Wildlife Club Meeting

The danger of hypothermia to sportsmen was the topic at the regular meeting of the Pitt Wildlife Club held recently. Richard A. Stephenson and James A. Hecker of the Greenville Flotilla of the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary presented a program on cold water survival.

It was pointed out at the meeting that many deaths thought to be by drowning are actually due to hypothermia. Air temperaturs in the 50-60 degree range are cool enough to create a danger of hypothermia, particularly if clothing is wet and it is windy.

Goose Season Starts Tuesday

The first half of the 1977-78 goose season will begin Tuesday, Nov. 22 and run until Saturday, Nov. 26.

The season will include Canada, snow and blue geese. The second part of the season will be from Dec. 7 until Jan. 20.

Limits for geese will be one Canada and two snow or blues. The possession limits are double the daily limits. Shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset.

JEWELL WAS A STAR

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — When you're 5-10 and playing college basketball you have to look up to everybody. But now they're looking up to Jewell McDonald, a successful marketing representative for Phillips Petroleum. McDonald, an all-Southwest Conference guard for Texas A&M in 1950 and 1951, was recently honored as one of the top five players in the history of that school.

49ers Seek To Upset L.A. Rams

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

There's nothing like a little confidence to turn things around. Now the San Francisco 49ers would like to turn around the Los Angeles Rams.

"There's confidence and belief in each other now. When you're winning there's just a surge like riding the crest of a wave," center Randy Cross says of the 49ers, 4-5, who have gone from losing five straight games to winning four in a row.

If they can keep the streak going this Sunday against the visiting Rams, 6-3, they'll have to be rated legitimate playoff contenters. They'll be just one game behind the erratic Rams in the National Conference West.

The Rams have won 12 of their last 14 games against the 49ers and haven't lost in San Francisco in 10 games dating back to 1966.

That 0-5 start was deceptive, says Coach Ken Meyer. "We weren't playing that bad football in our first five games." Among them were losses of 19-15 to Miami, 7-0 to Atlanta and 20-17 to the Giants.

The Falcons, one game behind LA, snapped a two-game tailspin by beating Detroit for the first time in 10 games last Sunday. Atlanta, which has given up a sensationally low 62 points in nine games, appears to have a virtual lock on the NFL record for the fewest points permitted in a modern 14-game schedule. The 1969 Vikings set the standard of 133. And with a few more low-scoring games, the Atlanta defense might become the first to hold the opposition under 100 points since the 1944 Giants, who allowed 75 in 10 games.

With five regular-season games remaining, no team can be considered to have a lock on a divisional title. Dallas, all but conceded the NFC East crown a week ago, now has only a two-game lead over St. Louis, which beat the Cowboys last Monday night for its fifth straight victory, the NFL's longest winning streak this season.

The Vikings have the only other two-game bulge — but the NFC Central leaders head into Chicago (tied for second with Detroit) minus Fran Tarkenton for a rematch of an overtime game won by Minnesota earlier this season.

Denver and Oakland, each 8-1, are still trying to pull away from each other in the American Conference West, Baltimore is battling to retain its one-game lead over Miami in the AFC East and, in the scrambled NFC Central, Cleveland and Pittsburgh are knotted at 5-4, a game ahead of Cincinnati and Houston.

Holtz To Be In N.C.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas football coach Lou Holtz will soon be returning to North Carolina, but it won't be to check out his former football team at North Carolina State. Holtz is the scheduled speaker Dec. 1 at a $5-a-plate banquet in Raleigh, N.C. honoring Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

UA President Charles E. Bishop said Friday that school policy allows university employees to engage in political activity if the employee does not "involve the institution's name, symbols, property or supplies."

Holtz said he thought it was "entirely my preogative" to speak for Helms.

He said he would be speaking as "Lou Holtz, citizen, not Lou Holtz, head football coach."

Holtz said he did not agree with everything the conservative senator says or does "by any stretch of the imagination." He said, however, that he respected Helms as an individual of integrity.

The first man ever to be paid for playing pro football was the legendary "Pudge" Heffelfinger of Yale. He received $500 in 1892 from an Allegheny, Pa., team.

BANKING AWARD

NCNB Corp. has won, for the third consecutive year, the highest award presented by the Financial Analysts Federation for corporate reporting during the past year, it was announced.

The banking group of the banking and financial industries subcommittee of the federation recommended NCNB Corp. and two other bank holding companies, from among the 100 largest in the country, for the award of excellence.

Judging is based on reporting of investor information by the companies, including annual reports, quarterly reports, and presentations before groups of analysts.

GOLDEN HAT AWARD

Michael S. Peters, manager of McDonald's Tenth and Cotanche Street store here, was recently awarded the company's Golden Hat Award at a management seminar at McDonald's Hamburger University in Oak Brook, Ill.

In receiving the award, Peters was cited as the manager who contributed most to the seminar through his ideas, leadership skills, and through knowledge of his role as manager.

As the top manager out of more than 100 managers from all over the world attending the seminar, Peters was also a member of the class which was awarded the Seminar Award.

NEW RECORDS SET

Justin Industries Inc. announced that net sales, net profit and earnings per share all set new records for the third quarter ended Sept. 30.

Net sales for the quarter were $37,988,000, 30 per cent higher than 1976, while net profit of $2,039,000 was 32 per cent higher. Earnings per share totaled $1.23, it was reported, 19 per cent higher than last year.

New records were also established for the first nine months ended Sept. 30 as earnings per share were $2.46, 13 per cent higher than the $2.18 earned in 1976, the previous high for the period. Sales were $103,957,000, compared to $69,282,000, and income was $4,053,000, a 24 per cent gain over the $3,256,000 earned in 1976.

AWARDS WON

Ed Myrick Inc.: Advertising of Charlotte won two awards in the Creativity '77 show sponsored by Art Direction Magazine in New York recently. Over 7,000 entries were submitted, including entries from 20 foreign countries.

A Ramada Inn brochure won an award for the Allen-White Corp., Motel Division' in Greenville.

In addition, a television commercial introducing electrical mining, produced for Mineral Research and Development Corp., Charlotte, and Houston, Texas, won in the television category.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE

Marvin Paris of Rocky Mount has joined the Reserve Life Insurance Co., Dallas, Texas, in the Greenville district office, according to Jerald Maiolo, district manager.

Paris will handle the district's insurance sales and service for the Rocky Mount area.

The new representative recently graduated from the agent career development school in Richmond, Va. where he joined other agents in a week-long course study of life and health underwriting and salesmanship.

CONDUCTED SEMINARS

Dr. Lewis C. Forrest Jr., partner in Hospitality Consulting Associates, Greenville, conducted one-day seminars recently in Little Rock, Ark., Albuquerque, N.M., and Chevy Chase, Md.

In each state' the seminars were entitled "Train the Trainer" and were attended by executives and managers of the foodservice industry.

The programs were co-sponsored by the respective state restaurant associations and by the National Restaurant Association.

DIVIDEND INCREASED

The board of directors of Branch Corp., parent holding company for Branch Banking and Trust Co., met this past week in Wilson and declared special and quarterly dividends.

A special year end dividend of 23 cents per share was declared and the regular quarterly dividend was increased to 20 cents per share, making the total payment for the year to 88 cents, an increase of six per cent over 1976.

FISCAL RESULTS

Family Dollar Stores Inc., retail store chain with 273 stores in six southeastern states, reported record sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31 and for the fourth quarter.

Sales for the year were $90,585,883, representing a 26 per cent increase above sales of $71,708,733 a year ago. Net income for fiscal 1977 was $4,689,229, an increase of 22 per cent above net income of $3,832,820 a year ago, and earnings per share were $1.18 as compared with 97 cents last fiscal year.

The company reported that the fourth quarter sales and earnings were the best in its history. Sales reached $26,386,358 while net income totaled $1,410,467.

The Viewpoint Is Optimistic

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be something less than a cure-all for the stock market's problems, but many Wall Streeters are taking a considerably more optimistic view of the economic outlook lately than was common a few months ago.

In late summer and early fall, the financial community engaged in a loud and lengthy debate over the chances of a new recession, possibly beginning as early as the fourth quarter of this year.

In the face of a series of generally strong signals from the economic of late, however, such projections have been softened or at least postponed.

"The recession thesis is out the window as of right now," one broker declared last week as the market launched one of the fitful rallies that have characterized trading for the last several weeks.

The path of stock prices this month has by no means been straight up. For the past week, the Dow Jones industrial average showed a net loss of 10.13 to 835.76, erasing part of the previous week's 35.95-point gain.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped back .65 to 95.33, and the New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,500 common stocks was down .19 at 52.51.

Big Board volume averaged 24.99 million shares a day, against 25.81 million the week before.

Analysts acknowledge that several other uncertainties continued to weigh down the market, a sample list of which might include the direction of the Carter administration's economic policies and the longer term outlook for inflation and interest rates.

But most agree that the trend of business activity lately isn't fulfilling last summer's gloomier forecasts.

On Thursday the Commerce Department revised the inflation-adjusted growth rate of the gross national product from 3.8 to 4.7 percent.

"That very substantial increase changes several points of view," said Robert Stovall at Reynolds Securities. "For one thing, forecasts from Washington last spring that were criticized as too optimistic don't look so dumb now.

"The outlook now is for a better fourth quarter, after a third quarter that really wasn't all that bad."

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said the latest data raise the prospect of "an improved and balanced growth rate" for the current quarter.

She cited data showing a 1.3 per cent rise in personal income during October—the sharpest increase in seven months—as a good omen for consumer spending as the holiday season approaches.

Another current plus is the housing industry, which is enjoying a big year. The government reported Wednesday that housing starts reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.18 million units in October, a 4½-year high.

Starts of single-family homes set a record at an annual rate of 1.55 million.

Expectations are almost unanimous that the housing boom will taper off soon, but a number of analysts maintain that 1978 will still be a good year by historical standards for this key sector of the economy.

"Although 32 months have passed since the economy began turning up from its most recent trough, there is a remarkable absence of the distortions and imbalances that ordinarily precede a cyclical downturn," Ernst Anspach of Loeb Rhoades & Co. wrote recently.

CASH DIVIDEND

The board of directors of Colonial Stores Inc. declared a quarterly cash dividend of 36 and one quarter cents a share on common stock, equivalent to $1.45 per share on an annual basis.

The regular quarterly cash dividend of 50 cents per share was declared on outstanding four per cent preferred stock.

Both dividends are payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record No 14.

REGIONAL SESSION

A regional seminar on recent tax law changes and their effects on estate planning was held Monday and Tuesday for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. agents in Greensboro.

Greenville district agent Bill L. Hunt, CLU, who maintains an office at 219 Cotanche Street, participated in the session, conducted by officials of the company's home office in Milwaukee. Hunt is associated with the Arthur DeBerry general agency in Chapel Hill.

Area Senior Citizens Find Weekly Fun, Food And Fellowship

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Many people associate senior citizens with sickness, improper eating habits, and loneliness.

This may be the case, in many instances, but it need not be for the senior citizens of Greenville and the surrounding area.

According to Julia Moore, director of the local nutrition program for senior citizens, meals are served at noon Monday through Friday at the Senior Citizens Building on Fourth Street.

"This program is really not designed to be a poverty program. It's designed to give older citizens a place to go and something to do," said Moore.

The nutrition project which is sponsored by the Mid-East Commission and 10 percent federally funded and 10 percent locally funded, she added.

"Participants are not charged for their meals, but they are asked to make a small donation to help pay for the food, if they can afford it."

Moore said that citizens from age 60 and up go to the center for "food and fellowship."

"We also have some type of program every day. These include movies, games, and musical programs.

"The supporting agencies, such as the Health Department, also come to speak to the participants," she added.

In addition, Greenville Parks and Recreation Department holds a crafts class every Thursday, said Moore.

She added that approximately 50 people attend meals each day, but more attend on Wednesday when county residents participate.

"I think that we provide better nutrition for many of our older citizens, some of which are in their 80s and 90s."

Moore said that the senior citizens come for different reasons, but mainly for fellowship.

"Many of these people live alone and they enjoy coming here and talking to other people."

Colleen Allsbrook, a four-year volunteer, said that the program improves many of the participants' outlook on life.

She has worked at the center since its beginning at the Moyewood Recreation Center.

The Nutrition Program utilizes the services of approximately seven other volunteers, most of whom are older citizens who began attending the sessions and then decided that they would like to give their time to helping the others.

Some of the volunteers help with serving dinner and some help with transportation.

Meals are planned by Sue Singleton, nutrition project director in Washington, N.C., and then are prepared by Servomation in Jones Cafeteria on the East Carolina University campus.

"The food is sent over here in containers and is served by the volunteers," said Moore.

Transportation is provided by volunteers who drive provided by the Sheltered Workshop and the Pitt County Council on Aging.

"Our age causes us to be here, but I enjoy it," said Volunteer Mary Hardee.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Cox have been attending the program for the past month.

"Here, we get to see different people. We see our neighbors more when we're here than when we're at home," said Mrs. Cox.

"We've also made a lot of new friends," she added.

M.W. Maxwell and his wife Thelma have been attending for about a year. Maxwell said that he enjoys the programs that are held, but his main incentive for going is the food.

"Most of the time it's good, especially when they have roast beef," he said and chuckled.

Julia Houle, a volunteer since January, attends with her husband.

"He looks forward to this every day," said Houle.

"The fellowship is wonderful...He dearly loves the women here, and we women love the men," she kidded.

Houle's husband is diabetic and cannot eat the food that is prepared at the Center. She prepares his food and brings it with them so they can enjoy the programs and talking to friends.

According to Leslie Ball, director of the Center, there are no doctors in the building, but precautions are taken for the participants' safety.

"The Rescue Squad is just a block away, and the Fire Prevention Department is here in case we need them," said Ball.

She added that, so far, there have been no problems with sickness other than a few people passing out.

"We keep a record on each person with their doctor's name included. We also ask them to note if they have any physical difficulties that are not obvious," said Moore.

She added that food that is left over from each meal is sent to needy people in the area.

"Of course, there are some days that we have to stretch it," she said.

Lucille Sumrell, craft supervisor for the Recreation Department, shares Moore's sentiments.

"They really love learning crafts, and it does me so much good to help them," said Sumrell.

She teaches crafts that utilize recyclable objects.

"We try to make them see something pretty in anything.

The Nutrition Program is presently located at three sites throughout the county in Greenville, Farmville, and Ayden.

"And we hope to open one in Grifton soon," said Moore.

Book Reflects Social Phenomenon

French President's Daughter Co-Authors Book

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The latest French cuisine expert to write a cookbook is pretty, dark-haired, 23, and already famous as the daughter of the president of France.

Valerie-Anne Giscard d'Estaing has co-authored a cookbook for the younger generation that is selling briskly around France. Her partner is Sylvia Pierre Brossolette, daughter of Giscard's former chief aide who has since turned bank president.

The book itself reflects a social phenomenon of France in 1977:

Both girls' mothers had little interest in cooking, a usual trend in that generation when upper-class French women seldom ventured into the kitchen. When the two young women decided to master the art of French cooking, they chose a style different from mother's day: lighter, less fattening dishes that, for good or bad, are geared to working couples who have a fast half hour to throw together a dinner.

"Sylvie and I have cooked together since we were 14, and we took private lessons from a chef to learn classical French cooking," said Miss Giscard d'Estaing, looking very Parisian in a brown corduroy skirt, straight riding-type boots, bulky sweater and printed shirt.

"My mother cooks just a little. Sylvie's does not cook much, but in their generation parents had servants do it.

"We started cooking for friends and family. They were delighted. Sylvie and I in university got a little fat so we tried to invent new recipes that were not so fattening."

About two years ago Miss Giscard d'Estaing met a publisher from the prominent Fayard firm who asked her and Miss Brossolette to write a cookbook for youth. It was published in France this summer. As of this writing, it has not yet been bought for publication in other languages.

"We eliminated flour, butter and oil and use sugar substitutes. It's all non-fattening," said Miss Giscard d'Estaing. "The recipes are quick and easy."

The point of the book, as the authors say in the introduction, is that weight-conscious people in a hurry do not have to eat steak and salad every night. They, too, can eat good French dishes. They caution that, of course, an omelette made with butter tastes better than one in a non-stick butterless pan, and a sauce that simmers for hours is more succulent than those made at the last minute.

"The Cuisine of Youth" contains 193 pages of quickly prepared and allegedly non-fattening French meals, from apricot mousse to veal in vinegar sauce. Some recipes appear to have been simplified down to too few ingredients. Older, more jaded appetites might prefer more spices, herbs and wine flavoring. Many dishes call for a food processor, another cooking trend here.

One recent evening, for example, Miss Giscard d'Estaing entertained friends with a cold string bean and fluted mushroom (girolle) salad in vinegar and oil sauce, roast guinea hen with red currant sauce, lettuce salad, cheese and fruit mousse.

Her father obviously has flourished on her cooking. He remains notably thin at 51. So does Miss Brossolette's father.

The president's daughter avoids talking of her life as a member of France's First Family. She would only say with evident reticence that "he liked the idea of the book but didn't say anything special about it."

The authors's family names do not appear on the book cover because "that's the way we wanted it." But thanks to their photographs in the book and nationwide publicity, the public knows who they are.

While she was working on the book, Miss Giscard d'Estaing was a budding politician. She worked for two years in the ministry of culture's monuments department. But "I thought being a civil servant a bit too dull" so a year ago she got an editing and reading job at the publishing house that put out the cookbook.

She said she hopes to make a career in publishing, with cooking remaining a hobby.

"But not always recipes from my book, my friends are tired of it," she said with a sparkling smile. "My specialty is souffles. It just takes practice and knowing your oven."

The president's daughter reflected that she has "mixed feelings" about the new "thinness cuisine" that is currently popular in France.

"It has some good aspects: lighter sauces and undercooked fresh vegetables which before were almost ignored in classic cooking," she said. "But sometimes the new dishes don't have any taste."

She prefers to cook from the classic French cookbooks of Escoffier and Larousse. Her favorite bistro-type restaurant in Paris is Le Gros Horloge on the Left Bank. For a grand palace of haute cuisine she prefers Taillevent.

When guests are expected an hour after the host and hostess rush home from work, the authors of the "A Cookbook for Youth" suggest serving citrons fourres au saumon fume, poulet campagnard and crepolette a la canelle: lemons stuffed with smoked salmon, country-style chicken and simple crepes with cinnamon.

First course: preparation time 15 minutes.

Puree 2 ounces of smoked salmon. Cut off the tops of 4 lemons and scrape out the pulp, reserving the juice from one lemon. Mix the salmon puree, a 3-ounce package of cream cheese softened with sour cream (the closest foreign equivalent to French fromage blanc) and the lemon juice. Stuff the lemon peels with this mixture and serve chilled. Serves 4.

Second course: preparation time 5 minutes, cooking 30 minutes.

Cook pieces of a cut-up large chicken in a hot frying pan, preferably a non-stick variety not requiring butter and oil. When chicken is golden, put it in a casserole. Add one-fourth pound of mushrooms, 2 chopped shallots, the juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup of dry white wine, and salt and pepper to taste. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Serves 4.

Dessert: preparation 5 minutes, cooking 5 minutes.

For 1 serving, break 1 egg into a bowl; beat briskly and well with 1 teaspoon of cinnamon and one half teaspoon of sugar. Coat a hot crepe pan or small frying pan with margarine and add the mixture, spreading it across the pan. When the crepe begins to cook pour on 1 tablespoon of cognac and light with a match. After the flame has burned out, fold the crepe in two and serve. Make 1 crepe at a time and serve as soon as it is cooked.

Miss Michele Chenier Is Bride

In an afternoon ceremony at 2:00 p.m. Saturday, Miss Michele Dee Chenier was united in marriage with Donald Ivey Moore in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church. The Rev. H. Charles Mulholland officiated.

The couple exchanged vows during a double ring ceremony in a harvest setting of bronze pom poms, yellow gladioli and bronze daisies. Two candelabra highlighted the altar, a marriage banner for the couple decorated the sanctuary, and satin bows marked the honor pews.

A program of pre-nuptial music was presented by Thomas Chenier and Sister Jane Paris, I. H. M., on the guitar. Richard Knapp, organist, provided the music for the ceremony.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of white polyester over satin. The empire bodice was designed with an open stand-up neckline overlaid in floral lace and accented with lace trim. Full sheer sleeves extended into bishop's cuffs. The A-line skirt featured a central panel of floral lace, which was accented by its matching deep-ruffled flounce. Her shoulder-length illusion veil flowed from a bridal hat banded in satin and complemented by a lace bow.

MRS. DONALD IVEY MOORE

Her only jewelry was a family heirloom blue sapphire and drop pearl lavaliere. She carried a nosegay of white daisies, white pom poms, and yellow gyposphila decorated with satin stramers of loveknots and daisies.

Miss Patrice Chenier, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her nylon gown over satin in gold and yellow tones was designed with a double ruffle shoulder drape, featuring a fitted midriff and full skirt falling into a ruffled flounce.

Miss Lillian Moore, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Her gown of yellow polyester over satin was similarly styled to the honor attendant's. Both attendants wore natural straw hats decorated with yellow banding and a bow. Each carried a miniature straw basket of yellow daisies and bronze.

Gregory Jester of Greenville was best man. Donald Lovitt of Raleigh was groomsman. Thomas Moore, brother of the bridegroom, and Ronald Lovitt of Farmville, were ushers.

Mrs. Chenier chose a formal dress of sea mist polyester knit styled with a chiffon halter and matching capelet in muted gold and sea mist tones. She carried a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Moore was attired in a formal sleeveless gown of printed steel blue and bronze chiffon accented by a matching cape. She wore a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's grandmother was also honored with a corsage.

After the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's parents at the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church fellowship hall. Miss Edith Trotman presided over the guest register. Miss Susan Ball and Mrs. Robert Curry poured punch. After the couple had cut the traditional first slice, Mrs. Kenneth C. Pearson served the three-tiered cake. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. David Mayo Sr.

For their wedding trip to Tennessee, the bride changed into an ensemble featuring a cream turtle neck sweater, grey plaid flannel jacket, and grey skirt. Her accessories were black and she wore her mother's corsage

The bride attended Pitt Technical Institute and East Carolina University and was employed at the Wachovia Operational Center until her marriage. The bridegroom graduated from Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. He is presently employed by Daniel Construction Co. Clarksville, Tenn, where the couple will make their home.

On Friday evening the bridegroom's parents hosted an after-rehearsal buffet for the bridal party, family, relatives and out-of-town guests at the fellowship hall. During the evening, the couple presented their attendants with gifts.

Other pre-nuptial entertainment included a shower honoring the couple given by Mrs. Howard Allen, Mrs. James Lovitt, Mrs. David Mayo Sr., Mrs. George Moore Sr., Mrs. W. A. Ross Jr., and Mrs. W. A. Ross Sr. The bride-elect was honored at a shower given by her honor attendant and Miss Edith Trotman, and at a gathering by her fellow employees.

Mrs. Buck Gives Program

Mrs. Janice Buck was speaker for the meeting of the Tea and Topics Book Club held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Linwood Stoneham.

Her program topic was "Changing Role of Women Today."

Following refreshments, an auction of craft items and plants was held. Proceeds from the auction will be used to finance club projects for the year.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Jack Woods, Mrs. Bobby Gaylor and Mrs. John Trotman.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. H. Pennington.

HOPPEL POPPEL

One version of a dish said to be from Berlin.

¼ pound sliced bacon, diced
1 cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter
1½ pounds potatoes, cooked in skins and diced without peeling
Salt and pepper to taste
4 eggs, slightly beaten

In a 10-inch skillet slowly cook the bacon until crisp; remove with a slotted spoon. Add the onion to the drippings and cook slowly until golden; remove with a slotted spoon. Heat the butter in the skillet with the drippings and add the potatoes, salt and pepper; brown, adding more butter if needed. Stir in the bacon, onion and eggs just until eggs are set. Makes 4 servings.

Stubbs-Wiggins Vows Exchanged

AHOSKIE — Miss Lucy Leah Wiggins and Fletcher Gibson Stubbs were married in the First Baptist Church here Saturday at 3 p.m. by Dr. John A. Allen, pastor of the Fountain Baptist Church, in a double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wiggins Jr. of Ahoskie. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Stubbs of Bennetsville, S.C.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a simple A-line style gown of bridal satin doeskin with lace flower medallions at the V-neck and lace around the bishop sleeves. The veil of bridal illusion was trimmed with lace. She carried a bouquet of sonya roses and white pom pons.

Cecelia Wiggins of Ahoskie, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of peach colored crepe-polyester with an A-line skirt and cape collar. She carried champagne carnations and white pom pons.

Bridesmaids were Tracy Avinger of Greenville, Surrie Farmer of Gum Springs, Va. Rose Wiggins of Seaboard, and Gay Bowman of Richmond Va. They wore dresses similiar to that of the honor attendant.

Pam Overton of Seaboard was flower girl. She wore a dress of peach colored crepe-polyester with lace trim. She carried a basket of sonya rose petals.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were David Stubbs of Bennettsville, S. C., brother of the bridegroom, Jim Wiggins of Ahoskie, brother of the bride, Randy Avinger of Greenville, and Karl Jennings of Hartsville., S. C.

Jeffrey McCracken of Ahoskie was ring bearer.

Wedding music was provided by organist Chris Jenkins of Greenville, and soloists, Cindy, Staley and Robert F. Dills.

The reception was held after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall given by the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, the couple will live in Swan Quarter.

Both the bride and the bridegroom are graduates of the East Carolina University School of Music. The bridegroom is employed by Hyde County Schools as band director at Mattamuskeet High School in Swan Quarter.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents in the fellowship hall.

A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Mrs. L. L. Rawls and Mrs. C. D. Wiggins, Sr. home Saturday.

"If it don't Tick, Tock to us"

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I have the only dog in North America with kidneys the size of a comma.

That explains why our house is carpeted with wall-to-wall urine.

That explains why our guests have to keep moving lest they be mistaken for a wall.

That explains why we made a decision to install a doggy door for his convenience. You know, those little flaps you cut out in the middle of a $300 door.

"You'll get used to it," I explained. "It's not the end of the world. Just adjust to seeing it and after awhile it'll become as commonplace as the garage."

"I won't get used to it," whimpered my husband. "Our door is being violated. Can't you think of another way to train him? Have you tried rubbing his nose in it and putting him outside?"

"It didn't work," I said. "It worked for the kids."

"That was different. With them, it was an incentive. We told them if they didn't go through a dry night, they couldn't borrow the car."

The opening of the doggy door measured 8½ inches by 12½ inches. To the dog it was like jumping the Snake River . . . blindfolded . . . on a tractor mower.

The training proved to be rather simple. Within an hour, I figured out if you pushed the plastic insert with your nose hard enough, it opened to the outside and it was just a matter of trying to jump for a little impetus, balance your paws on the sill, and push yourself through.

It took the dog a little longer to comprehend.

"Do not look upon it as the Berlin Wall," I said one day as I rubbed my raw shoulder, "it's a two-way street. You can go out and you can come back in whenever you please. Face it, Bunkie, there's a whole community of dogs out there who are not trained to shag rugs."

Yesterday, one of the kids came in absolutely breathless. "Hey, Mom, the dog's at the door trying to get out." I was ecstatic. "Where is he?" I asked as I viewed the door.

"He's in the hallway standing at the door without the hole in it."

If a family of trolls ever needs a house, it'll be a seller's market.

All Things Nice Have Chemicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — If we are what we eat, vegetable lovers are arsenic and bleach, fruit munchers are nickel and hydrogen cyanide, garlic fans are sulfur compounds, and holiday eggnog consumers are narcotics.

Cause for alarm? No, according to Julius M. Coon of the Committee on Food Protection of the National Research Council.

"Concentrations of toxic substances in any commonly accepted food are so low that grossly exaggerated quantities must be consumed before the toxidity of any substance becomes a hazard," he explains. "The human organism can readily tolerate small amounts of many different chemicical substances taken simultaneously."

Coon's statement is good news for dieters, non-dieters and just plain snackers, since many of the most wholesome foods contain potentially dangerous chemicals.

Vegetables, for example, often contain minute quantities of arsenic and nickel and of oxalates, substances often used in bleaching and dyeing processes. However, proportions are so tiny that it would take 1,000 times the normal daily intake of leafy green vegetables to reach toxic levels.

The same is true for fruits and common spices. Although 5,000 milligrams of nutmeg, so popular for Christmas eggnogs, is a toxic narcotic, heavily seasoned eight-ounce portions contain only 175 milligrams of the chemical.

For sheer chemical complexity, for example, George J. Levinskas, Director of Toxicology for Monsanto Company, points out that the common potato, no matter what its size, contains no fewer than 150 different chemicals — none of which is any more dangerous to health than the butter and sour cream so often used for garnishing spuds.

Should we give up eating entirely to avoid these chemicals? According to Frank M. Strong, also of the National Research Council, food chemicals, whether natural or artificial, should not be feared. He says, "this is a perfectly normal situation that mankind has always faced and inevitably always will."

Cooking Is Fun

24 (½ of a 12-ounce package) pitted prunes
½ cup tawny port
1 large orange, sections and grated rind
3¾ pound roasting chicken

Soak the prunes in ¼ cup of the port, stirring midway, for at least 12 hours. Add the orange sections to the prunes and stuff into the chicken cavity; skewer closed; tie wings close to the body. Place breast side down in an unglazed clay casserole whose top and bottom have been submerged in water for 15 minutes just previous to using. Stir together the remaining ¼ cup port and the orange rind and pour over the chicken. Cover and place in a cold oven. Turn the temperature control to 475 degrees and bake until chicken is tender and golden brown — about 1½ hours.

Bridal Lines

Registered Bridal Consultant

Shopping for a bridal gown is a very special event. Here at Anne Marie's we've gleaned a few pointers through our years of experience in this business, and we want to pass them on in the hopes that they may save you strain and worry.

First, shop early for your wedding dress — at least three months, and preferably six months before the big day. Most dresses are special-ordered and take from 8 to 10 weeks between order and delivery. And then too, you'll want extra time for last-minute alterations. Call ahead for an appointment — especially during the pre-Christmas rush season — so you'll be assured of really personal service. And do go shopping alone, or with just one person whose taste you trust. The fewer opinions you have to contend with, the better. And finally, remember to have fun! This is a shopping expedition you experience but once in a lifetime.

Couple Marries On Saturday

MRS. WILLIAM STANLEY CHERRY JR.

The marriage of Selma Delores King and William Stanley Cherry Jr. was solemnized Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Stokes Methodist Church with the Rev. Joe Howard officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mable King and the late Mr. Vance E. King of Henderson. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley Cherry of Stokes.

A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Jo Lewis of Washington. Soloist, Cuhllin Vanlandingham, sang "More," "If" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church was centered with fifteen branch brass candelabrum holding an arrangement of gladioli, chrysanthemum, pom poms and carnations in autumn shades, flanked by two fifteen branch spiral candelabrum. Palms of emerald green were used as a background. Family pews were marked with autumn ribbons.

Given in marriage by Fred King, her brother, the bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and imported peau d'ange lace. The fitted bodice featured a split V-neck with full length puffed sleeves. Peau d' ange lace motifs graced the skirt and bordered the hemline of the gown and train. The bride wore a chapel length illusion mantilla bordered with peau d'ange lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses with yellow and bronze pom pons.

Mary Winfield of Greenville served as maid of honor. She wore a rust qiana knit dress with an empire waist. The skirt hung from the bodice in tiny pleats. An accompanying illusion cape was worn over the dress. She carried a nosegay of fall flowers.

Christina Cherry of Stokes was junior bridesmaid. She wore an off-white princess dress of velvet trimmed in rust. She carried a basket of fall flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Hal Watson of Greenville, and Bruce Clark of Stokes.

Mrs. Marthaleen Webb of Walstonburg directed the wedding.

A reception was held at the Stokes Community Building following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Weilenman of Stokes greeted the guests. Assisting in serving were Gloria Ellington, Virginia Vaughan, and Debra Vaughan all of Henderson, Sally Anderson of Bessemer City, Jane Buehler of Greenville, and Margaret Clark of Stokes.

Nita Mansour of Goldsboro presided at the register.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points the couple will reside in Stokes.

The bride attended East Carolina University where she received a B. S. in elementary education. She is currently employed with the Pitt County Schools where she teaches reading at Wellcome Middle School.

The bridegroom attended North Carolina University. He is currently farming in the Stokes area.

The flavor of a cheese spread made with sherry, vermouth or brandy improves if it is chilled for a day or two before serving.

On The Young Side

By Sharon Connolly

Rose High's Anchor Club and Student Government Association started this past week off with a great feeling of enthusiasm. This enthusiasm was a result of student participation in conventions held in Winston-Salem and Durham last weekend.

Attending a district meeting in Winston-Salem were Anchors: Bonnie Correll; Becky Dixon; Eden Hooks; Karen Gordon; Carole Levy; Lois Phelps; and Patsy Woronoff. These girls spent the weekend sharing and gaining new ideas from other Anchor clubs in the state.

Six workshops had been organized to help the clubs in different areas. Workshops on community service, club programs, fund raising projects, club officers, membership participation and Freedoms Foundation gave each club a chance to gain knowledge and to express their views.

In addition to these workshops was a guest speaker, Mike Boone, from Appalachian State University. The topic of his speech was "Communication Is the Key to Good Leadership."

Greenville was chosen for the future sight of the district meeting to be held in five years.

Also attending a convention last weekend were SGA President and Vice President, Anne Middleton and Debbie Girdharry.

The state SGA convention included discussion groups and workshops.

Other activities included electing new SGA state officers, ratifying admendments to the SGA state constitution and having meetings with others from their district. The main issues of the district groups were the district convention to be held in April and the redistricting of next year.

Anne and Debbie reported on their weekend at a SGA meeting Wednesday morning. At this time, they put one of their new ideas into effect by forming a special projects committee.

The French Club had the pleasure of having Marie-Noelle Connil as their guest speaker Tuesday afternoon. Ms. Connil's talk included information on various aspects of French life such as dating, sports, music, dress and schools.

The Science-Ecology Club voted to sell stationery as a fund raising project at a meeting Wednesday afternoon. The group also decided to rejoin the North Carolina Student Academy of Science. Some members have already begun planning their trip to a district meeting in December.

Cindy Browning, a Morehead Scholarship nominee, was chosen as one of the two candidates to represent Pitt County after an interview Saturday.

Cindy will now advance to the district committee which will meet in January. If she passes this, she will go on to the central committee in Chapel Hill. This is the one which makes the final decision on who are the final recipients of the scholarships. Congratulations are extended to Cindy for being chosen as one of the Pitt County candidates.

A slotted, small-size serving spoon is a good investment. Use it for serving pickled beets, marinated fresh cucumbers and regular cucumber pickles.

Miss Ann Blythe Weds Roy Carl Abee Saturday

NEW BERN — The Centenary United Methodist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Miss Ann Pate Blythe and Roy Carl Abee III. The double ring ceremony took place Saturday at 7:00 p.m.

The Rev. Walter C. Feltman, of Trinity United Methodist Church, New Bern, pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony.

A program of organ music was rendered by Mrs. Floyd Johnson. Mrs. H. L. Taylor sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Before Thine Altar" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Maxwell Blythe of New Bern, and the late Mr. Blythe. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carl Abee Jr. of Greenville are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of white qiana fashioned with an empire bodice with a draped neckline of Venise lace and fitted sleeves of Venise lace motifs extending to an attached chapel length train. She wore a mantilla of bridal illusion encircled with imported French Venise lace.

The bride carried white daisy pom pon mums, yellow sweetheart roses and gypsophilia on her father's Bible. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom. The bride was given in marriage by her mother and her brother, James Maxwell Blythe Jr.

Mrs. Tony Curtis Fitzjohn of Neptune's Beach, Fla., was matron of honor. She was dressed in a floor length rust qiana gown featuring princess lines and a scooped neckline with a flowered chiffon cape. She carried a bouquet of bronze pom pon mums with rust streamers.

Mrs. Jerry E. Carpenter, Mrs. Gregory B. Hamilton, Mrs. Jeffrey R. Stilley and Mrs. Ike G. Strawbridge, all of New Bern were bridesmaids. The wore rust qiana princess dresses like that of the honor attendant and carried identical flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Ike G. Strawbridge of New Bern, Frank Mallory of Greenville, Thomas F. Trevathan of Roanoke Rapids, and Jerry B. Davis of Durham.

After a wedding trip to Eastern Shore, Md., the couple will live in New Bern.

The bride is a graduate of Coastal Carolina Community College, Jacksonville, and is a certified dental assistant with Dr. W. L. Hand Jr., New Bern. The bridegroom attended East Carolina University and Chowan College. He is self-employed in New Bern.

The refreshment table was covered with a white floor length organza cloth and centered with a four-tiered wedding cake flanked by a five branched candelabra with epergnes holding yellow and white daisy mums. Arrangements of fall flowers were placed throughout the reception hall.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length white organza cloth featuring a portrait of the bride and an arrangement of yellow roses. Presiding at the bride's table were Mrs. Timothy Giaimo of New Bern, Mrs. Douglas McPhearson of Greenville, and Mrs. Roy Collins of Jacksonville.

Others assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Julian Blythe, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Huffstettler Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Alex A. Linko, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Townsend, Mrs. Stephen Woolard, Mrs. Thomas Sugg, Mrs. Mike Jowdy, Mrs. Thomas Tilghman, Mrs. N. L. McLawhorn, Mrs. Warren Smith, all of New Bern, Mrs. Thomas E. Hiser of Charleston, S. C., and Mrs. John R. McGhee of Hertford.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wiley and Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, all of New Bern.

A rehearsal dinner, held at the New Bern Golf and Country Club, was given by the parents of the bridegroom for members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The main dining table held an arrangement of mixed fall flowers and silver candelabra with lighted white tapers. Individual tables were decorated with a single candleholder encircled with ivy.

MRS. ROY CARL ABEE III

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The National Women's Conference, being held in Houston, Tex., this weekend has two Greenville women among its more than 1,500 delegates.

They are Barbara Ragland, sex discrimination specialist with the General Assistance Center at ECU, and Tennala A. Gross, who teaches mathematics at ECU. They are among the 32 delegates from North Carolina.

Ms. Ragland, a native of Angier, did her undergraduate study at Shaw University, received the Master of Education degree from Coppin University, Baltimore, Md., and has plans for further study in higher education administration.

She is optimistic about the National Conference and its impact for American women. She lists as her chief concerns sex discrimination and women's issues especially as they relate to minority women.

Ms. Gross says she represents family women at the grass roots level. She was born in North Carolina and has lived in the state all her life. She graduated from high school at the height of the great depression and worked in a factory to earn the money for college.

She and her husband are the parents of a son, presently a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The Grosses have lived in Greenville for the past 18 years.

Ms. Gross served on the N. C. Coordinating Committee which planned the state meeting held in Winston-Salem in June. Her chief concern is with basic human rights for all people and she believes that the removal of the barriers which prevent women from realizing their full potential will create a climate of greater personal freedom and opportunity for all people.

The National Women's Conference is sponsored by the International Women's Year Commission and expected to attract people from all sections of the country and from all strata of society.

While voting on the Plan of Action will be limited to elected and appointed delegates, observers will be allowed to attend many of the sessions. Approximately 20,000 observers and delegates are expected for the historic conference.

Mrs. Westbrook Gives Program

The Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority held its monthly meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Shirley Wesbrook.

Mrs. Westbrook showed a display and gave instructions on making crocheted Christmas ornaments and decorations.

Barbara Woods reported for Philenthropic Chairman Joan Robinson that a Halloween luncheon was held for the clients of the ADAP Center Oct. 28 at Elm Street Recreation Center. Halloween favors were presented to the clients.

The group will provide food for a Thanksgiving basket to be given to a needy family. Margaret Roberts, St. Judes Project chairman, reported that a successful sale of Tom Wat products has been completed. Proceeds from the sale will be given to St. Judes Hospital.

Plans were finalized for a brown bag picnic to be held Nov. 20 for members and their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Priestley. Rushees and their husbands will be special guests.

Barbara Zicherman, social chairman, reported that the Christmas social will be held Dec. 8 at the King and Queen Restaurant.

Etched crystal Christmas ornaments have been ordered to be sold as a money making project.

Several members plan to attend the ESA State Council Meeting Dec. 3 in Elon College.

Reports Given Chapter Members

The first November meeting of the Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Sandra Everett. Cindy Hart was assisting hostess.

Extension Chairperson Carolyn Powell reported that a new chapter of Beta Sigma Phi has been formed with nine members. The extension committee was commended for its work in helping start a new chapter.

Social Chairperson Barbara Sloan stated that the chapter Christmas party will be held Dec. 3 at the Cherry Oaks club house. A Christmas basket will be given to a needy family by the chapter.

Ways and Means Chairperson Pam Whitehurst showed Christmas bazaar items during the evening. Proceeds from the bazaar will go to the Cerebral Palsy Center, Greenville.

Jackie Brown and Bonnie Tapscott gave a program on heart disease.

HIEFESS Meeting Held Wednesday

Mrs. Helen LeRose, food service supervisor at Greenville Villa, was hostess to a meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Hospital, Institution, Educational Food Service Society (HIEFSS) Wednesday afternoon.

Jack Woods, administrator of the Progressive Medical Group home, welcomed members to Greenville. President of the N. C. HIEFSS Organization, William Bordeaux, of Elizabethtown, was present and brought greetings.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton, R.D., consulting dietitian, spoke on the diabetic diet and the new exchange list.

HIEFSS is an education organization and members are encouraged to continue their education. Food service supervisors work closely with the registerec dietitians and provide assistance in the continuous care of patients.

Miss Camille B. Clarke, R.D. is a state advisor to the HIEFSS organization.

The theme for this year is "Unite, Expand and Grow." The next Eastern District meeting will be in Wilson Jan. 18.

Miss Gardner, Mr. Kerr Wed Saturday Morning

MRS. DOUGLAS STEVEN KERR

BETHEL — The marriage of Linda Diane Gardner and Douglas Steven Kerr took place in Bethel Saturday at 11:00 a.m. The double ring ceremony was performed by Robert E. Clyde.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Gardner Jr. of Bethel, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of ivory silk satin jersey and chiffon over peau de soie. Her gown was fashioned with an empire bodice, queen neckline and full pleated chiffon sleeves with a cuff accented with re-embroidered alencon lace and a pleated ruffle. The bodice of the gown was adorned with re-embroidered alencon lace and pearls. The A-line skirt featured a deep pleated chiffon flounce topped with appliques of lace and flowed into a chapel train.

The bride chose an ivory waltz length mantilla bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace which fell from a Juliet cap of silk satin jersey. She carried a cascade of miniature red roses, baby's breath and ivy.

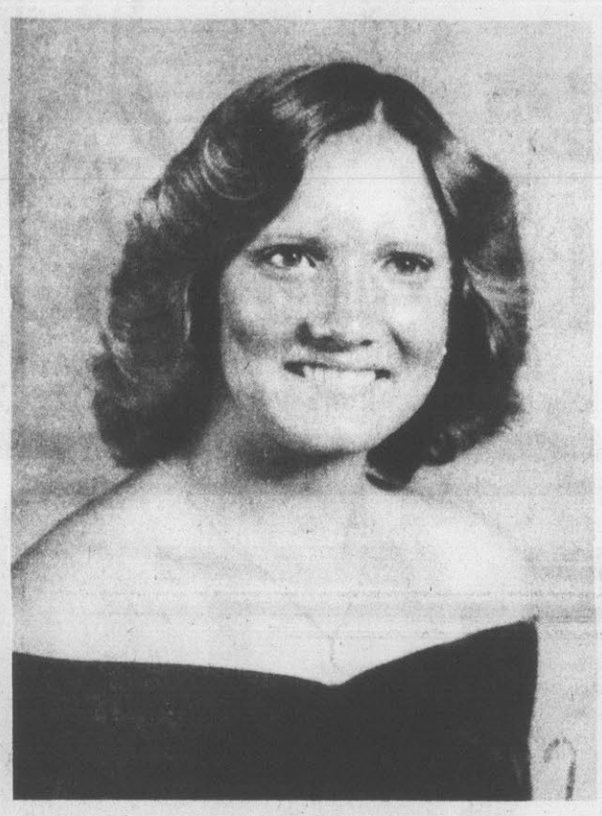
A program of wedding music was presented by Michael Edmondson, organist.

Mrs. Kenneth Bullock of Grifton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Raymond Coltrain of Lewiston, sister of the bride, and Miss Beth Kerr of Winston-Salem, sister of the bridegroom.

Their dresses were claret polyester knit with V-necks and empire waists. The skirts fell from the waist band into sweep trains. The long bishop sleeves were of sheer accordian pleated polyester which also accented the bodice. They carried nosegays of miniature red carnations, pink baby's breath accented with pink satin ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and ushers included Robert Kerr, brother of the bridegroom, and Dave Moser, both of Winston-Salem.



Engagement Announced

MISS DEBORAH CATHERINE SPEIGHT. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Speight of Rt. 3, Tarboro, who announce her engagement to Willis Henry Vandiford Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Henry Vandiford of Rt. 1, Greenville. The wedding will take place Dec. 18.

Natural Decorations Are Easy

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Martha Ames makes beautiful Christmas decorations from the kind of materials most people sweep up with dead leaves.

Groundskeepers at the New York Botanical Garden where she works collect pine cones, acorns, magnolia pods and other fallen or dried plants for her as they go about their daily chores.

In an interview, Mrs. Ames said she does some collecting herself. She urges students in her holiday decoration classes at the garden and the Horticultural Society of New York to gather similar materials on their lawns or during country strolls.

Nature does not suffer, she said. "Pine cones have to drop on the ground. There's no harm done in gathering them. It's not like breaking branches.

For wreath bases, she either buys styrofoam rings at a stationery and party goods store or cuts her own from corrugated boxes thrown away by retail stores.

Mrs. Ames is a catalog assistant in the botanical garden library. She said her classes grew out of a hobby she learned more than 15 years ago from a suburban garden club member. She and her husband, a commercial artist, live in Yonkers.

As she talked, she showed this reporter and a photographer how to make a wreath on a styrofoam ring. She poked a tiny hole in the outer rim with a sharp pencil, squeezed a dot of white glue into it, and stuck in one scale, or petal, from a pine cone. "You don't have to fill the hole with glue," she said.

The finished wreath contained more pine cone petals, dried flowers, weeds, beechnuts, acorns and acorn caps, and radish seed pods that look like miniature dried green beans. All were held together with dots of white glue. Any brand that dries colorless is suitable, she said.

The possibilities for materials are almost endless, Mrs. Ames added. Goldenrod and baby's breath, for example, or any flowers that dry on their stalks.

Or you can use herbs and spices, dried whole ones bought at the grocery store and-or store-bought ones combined with sprigs and branches from indoor and outdoor plants.

She showed us a small wreath decorated with whole nutmegs, whole cloves, dried ginger root, coriander pods, bay leaves, cinnamon sticks, branches of dried rosemary, and statice sold by many retail florists. It was trimmed with a bright red ribbon bow and three tiny plastic bags of spices.

Mrs. Ames uses similar materials and techniques to make candleholders and trim tiny baskets for table decoration.

Last year she added macaroni wreaths to her repertoire "to show it could be done very inexpensively." She glues shells, spirals, bow-ties, wagon wheels and other interesting shapes to corrugated cardboard rings. She spray paints them with gold or silver after the glue has dried.

"They become very solid," she said. She has one wreath more than 10 years old. If pieces are knocked off accidentally, she just glues them back on.

To restore scent to an herb wreath or add scent to others, stick in whole cloves at random, she said.

One Method Used On Sticky Stains

NEWTON, Iowa (UPI) — Chewing gum and adhesive tape can be removed from bleachable and non-bleachable fabrics the same way, says a laundry machine manufacturer here.

Rub the stained area with ice, scrape off excess gummy matter with a dull knife, sponge with a safe cleaning fluid, then rinse and launder as usual. Bleachable fabrics include white and colorfast cottons, linen, polyester, acrylics, triacetate, nylon, rayon and permanent press. Non-bleachables include wool, silk, Spandex, non-colorfast fabrics and some textiles with flame retardant finishes.

If you are in doubt about fabric content, read the manufacturer's label.

Engagement Announced

MISS GAYNELL BAKER. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Baker of Rt. 8, Greenville, who announce her engagement to Cobby Deans, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Otis Deans of Greenville. The wedding will take place Dec. 23.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Riggs-Swinson Vows Spoken

GRIFTON — The marriage of Evelyn Williams Swinson and Charles Louis Riggs was solemnized in a double ring ceremony Friday evening at seven o'clock.

The Rev. Stanley Wingard performed the ceremony held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Owens, Grifton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul I. Williams of Rt. 1, Faison. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Riggs of Rt. 1, Cove City.

Originals In Rare Display

LONDON (UPI) — Original drawings from "Winnie the Pooh," "The Wind in the Willows," and Beatrix Potter books are among the treasures on display at Bethnal Green Museum of Childhood.

The exhibit, entitled "After Alice," is devoted to the children's books published since Alice in Wonderland (1865).

ALCOHOLISM SEMINARS

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies this week started a five-week series of seminars on alcoholism, saying there has been an alarming increase of it among Jews, with programs needed to combat it.

Johnny Cash: Feels Really Good In Jerusalem

By RICHARD C. GROSS

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Christmas will come early for craggy faced singer Johnny Cash. It will be a very personal one that nevertheless will be telecast coast-to-coast in the United States.

Cash and his singer wife, June Carter, led an entourage of 21 persons to the Holy Land for 10 days of shooting background scenes in Bethlehem and the Galilee region. Their Christmas special will be aired on CBS-TV Nov. 30.

Between takes, Cash visited 15 minutes with Prime Minister Menahem Begin. A spokesman who was present said Cash couldn't get a word in edgewise. He also visited an orphanage where he sang to the children.

"I feel as good as a gentile can feel in the city of Jerusalem," Cash said over dinner at an Arab-owned hotel in Israeli-annexed East Jerusalem. The ancient walled city of Jerusalem, bathed in orange spotlights, glowed through the window behind him.

Much of the singing for the Christmas special is being done at the Grand Ole Opryhouse in Nashville, Tenn., the American capital of country and western music. Backdrop for the songs will be the films of Bethlehem, where Jesus Christ was born, and of the Sea of Galilee, where Christ is said to have walked on water.

"I wanted to do a Christmas special with my friends, and Nashville seemed like the place to do it," said Cash, born to cotton farmers in Highlands, Ark. He now lives near Nashville and winters in Jamaica, where he owns a 17th century home.

The friends singing alongside the Cashes are such superstars of country and western music as Roy Clark, Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, Carl Perkins and the Statler Brothers.

The songs will be a mixture of Christmas carols and a bit of Americana, including Gene Autry's "Back in the Saddle."

There will be one in memory of Elvis Presley: "This Train Is Bound for Glory."

Cash will recall his first trips to the Holy Land in 1968 and 1971. On the second visit, he made a movie, "Gospel Road," that was bought by 20th Century Fox and sold to World Wide Pictures of Burbank, Calif., part of evangelist Billy Graham's organization.

The film now is in distribution in 500 churches throughout America.

Cash is not an evangelist, despite his strong religious feelings and faith in his Protestantism that pulled him through the worst period of his life, a time when he was lost in a foggy world of alcohol, barbiturates and amphetamines. Now he drinks iced tea in public.

He spent a year making "Gospel Road," a project he seems to view as having repaid a debt to his religion for getting him through the worst times.

"I would like to be remembered for it," Cash said of the film, as if it should be his epitaph. "I can't call what I do evangelism, except for 'Gospel Road,' and then only after it was taken out of my hands."

He defended Billy Graham against charges in the U.S. that money donated to his organization has been used for Graham's personal gain.

"There's a lot of injustice in the criticism leveled against him," Cash said. "He's on a very small salary and wears $89 suits. This man is not a money man. Money is not what this man is about. The gospel is what this man is all about."

Cash, 45, looks older despite the lack of gray in his dark hair. The age is in his brown eyes, on his lined face. The sensitivity that he projects in his songs, many of which he wrote, comes through in conversation. It belies the tough, truck driver image he assumes by wearing all black.

The deep voice for which he is renowned is the same in conversation as it is in song.

He is soft-spoken. Dealing with strangers, he is as gracious as an aristocrat. He has a knack for remembering names.

His sensitivity is reflected in his impression of a visit to Masada. That ancient mountaintop fortress overlooks the Dead Sea where a handful of Jews held off the Roman army for three years, until they committed suicide rather than be conquered.

"Masada was the most stirring, inspiring thing I've ever seen," Cash said.

Once the Christmas special is finished, he will begin work on a television film, "Thaddeus Rose and Eddy," a story about seeking directions in life set mostly in Texas. Dennis Weaver may play Eddy.

"But," Cash said, "I think of myself as a performer and a writer, not an actor."

Salaries In Oil Industry Rise

DALLAS (UPI) — Salary hikes for petroleum industry employes were larger this year than in 1976, according to a survey by A.S. Hansen, a consulting firm. On the average, the survey showed, salary increases for 1977 came to nine percent, better than the eight percent figure last year. The largest individual increases averaged slightly more than 18 percent.

Many Families On The Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every year about one of five U.S. households moves to a new residence, Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. says. It says about one-third of the movers took the step as buyers of homes and almost half of the home-buying group previously had been living in rented quarters.

Signals Before Children Get Violent

BY ARNOLD DIBBLE

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The school cutup, the show off, the clown or the withdrawn, unfriendly child may be veering toward violence which might be headed off if communities established early warning systems.

That's the advice of an authority on the blackboard jungle, Rodger Bybee, professor of education at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., and author of the book, "Dimensions and Dynamics of Classroom Violence."

"Violence in the classroom is not a discrete event, but the final stage of a network of circumstances that leads to conflicts in the classroom," Bybee said in an interview. "Teachers who recognize the various stages of discipline problems can do a great deal to prevent terror in the schools.

"Teachers must understand that classroom violence is not a momentary disruption in the continual flow of education, but the final stage in a sequence which begins with a student's feelings of powerlessness, insignificance and repression of personal needs."

Bybee, who also is a consultant to the New York Urban Coalition, said teachers can identify the problems early and try to help the student.

"But the community must pitch in and give the teacher help," he said. "Social workers, church and law people, all must contribute to the input on the problem.

"The teacher must be made to feel she is not working alone. The teacher alone cannot call the child in and talk to him an hour and think the problem will go away.

"I think we can see these problems emerging and we should not put them aside. Unfortunately, we tend to wait until it becomes a crisis and the cry, 'What are we going to do'?"

Bybee sees the problem student as going through four stages of recurring behavior patterns:

— Affirmation and alienation: The student will consistently do such things as show off, clown or be a nuisance through incessant questioning.

— Assertion and withdrawal: The student forces the teacher to pay attention by being tardy, defiant, angry and talking back. This student may become withdrawn, depressed and sullen or take to drugs and join gangs.

— Aggression and depression: The student withdraws further and may try to take over and control situations; disobey openly and maliciously; or completely withdraw from the classroom.

— Violence toward society, school and self: In the final stage, the student seeks his personal place in the sun by outright damage or injury to others or self, even to suicide.

Among Bybee's recommendations:

— Teachers should negotiate rather than resort to corporal punishment, which could lead to further conflict.

— School counselors and administrators should maintain close contact with social agencies that help youths in trouble.

— The community should be involved in the development of the school's discipline policy.

— Colleges and universities should give greater emphasis to early identification and prevention of discipline problems to students entering the teaching field.

"Now is the time," Bybee said, "to start working on the problems where we do have the power to make constructive changes, in our classrooms and schools."

DEAR ABBY: You have always supported the tipping system, so let's hear what you have to say about the enclosed editorial from the Eugene, (Ore.) Register Guard:

"Tipping should be done away with. Period.

"As it's practiced today, tipping is meaningless. Instead of being gratuities tendered in recognition for special service, tips have become built-in costs for those who give them and just another part of regular income for those who get them.

"The Internal Revenue Service recognizes this and requires waitresses, cabbies, hairdressers and all other steady tip receivers to report them as such. But it would be better all around if base prices for personal services were simply increased to provide adequate salaries or commissions for service personnel.

"Consider, for example, how ludicrous it is for a number of Miami hotels to be losing the business of thousands of winter vacationers because of a union-management squabble over mandatory tips for room maids. The maids probably do need tip income, and deserve it as much as bellhops, cocktail waitresses or others who come in contact with tip givers more often.

"But why shouldn't the hotel quit arguing about billing guests specifically for the maids' tips and other employee gratuities, boost their room and board charges a bit and pay all of their employees adequate salaries? For the guests this would be simpler and no more costly in the long run. And for most employees it would be fairer.

"The way things are, some maitres d' get rich while the kitchen help get leftovers. Obligatory or not, tips seldom reflect anything but irrationally distributed extra consumer costs. The laborer either is worthy of his hire or he isn't. And he shouldn't have to demean himself pleading for alms."

ROSEBURG READER

DEAR READER: It makes a lot of sense to me.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago a bachelor signed SINGLE SIMON wrote to say that he resented being invited to a dinner party where the hostess matched him up with an unattached lady. He said he always felt like a fifth wheel, and the dateless woman shared his embarrassment.

In your reply you said, "I'd like to see the dateless woman who'd feel embarrassed to find her dinner companion a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor."

Well, Abby, you're hearing from one, and there are a lot more of us.

When I am invited somewhere, either I come alone or I bring my own date. I don't need a match-making "yenta" fixing me up with an escort. Gigolos get paid for doing that sort of thing.

INDEPENDENT IN WINONA, MN.

DEAR IND.: You're entitled to speak for yourself, but most single women I hear from are delighted to have their hostess provide an escort.

DEAR ABBY: I have a darling little 88-year-old mother who lives with my husband and me. She is in good health, looks after herself and can still read without eyeglasses.

The problem is that lately Mother has been reading our mail. Several times lately I've found letters that I have discarded on her bureau! Obviously she has fished these letters out of the wastebasket or the garbage pail. (Bills, too!)

She doesn't know I am aware of this. She is not senile. Just nosy. She has always respected our privacy in the past (at least I thought she did), so I can't understand this sudden change.

My husband says to let it go. I think I should let her know we are aware of—and resent—her nosiness. We'll leave it to you.

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: I vote with your husand. Simply shred that which you consider personal, and avoid a confrontation.

Paced All In Clock Field

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eli Terry, pioneer in the realm of time-keeping, fathered 10 patents that led to his founding of the first successful clock factory in America, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., the non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of the U.S. patent system.

Born in 1772, Terry was apprenticed at an early age, then set up his own shop and by 1800 in Plymouth, Conn., was selling all the clocks he could make. At first, like his competitors, he worked only on order for each clock. But Terry overthrew this traditional handcraft approach by designing a shop with water-powered machines operated by apprentices, which turned out 10 to 20 clocks at a time, says IPO.

One of his contracts called for 4,000 wooden clocks, which caused him to take on two partners, one of whom was the famous clockmaker, Seth Thomas. In 1814 Terry perfected a wooden shelf clock which virtually cornered the market. He sold thousands of these and, protected by his patents, amassed a fortune in the next ten years, the organization reports.

But the most famous of Terry's patents, granted Nov. 17, 1797, was an ingenious "equation clock" which showed both apparent time (as a sundial would), and mean time (adjusted for a uniform solar day). In later years, when metals became more available, he made brass clocks, some so fine they were used by watchmakers as regulators, reports IPO.

Sums Up All There Is About Fad Of Running

EDITOR'S NOTE — James Fixx has run the equivalent of once around the equator — about 10 miles a day for the past 10 years. To that experience he adds research, interviews and his own love of this growing trend. The sum is a new book, "The Complete Book of Running."

KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time, far back in American history, people ran for buses, away from mean dogs and after their hats on gusty days. Otherwise, they walked.

Now an estimated 20 million Americans run to lose weight, quit smoking, live longer, enhance their sexual performance, lower their cholesterol level, think clearer, slow their heart rate, breathe deeper, win marathons and help overcome alcoholism.

Some just run for the pure joy of running, experiencing a "runner's high."

James F. Fixx, a marathoner and free lance writer, has come out with a 125,000-word literary marathon, "The Complete Book of Running," that deals with everything from what kind of shoes you should wear to the psychological benefits of running.

Fixx started running 10 years ago when he was 35, suffering from a tennis injury and smoking two packs of cigarettes a day. He weighed 220 pounds then. Today, he weighs 159. He looks far younger than 45, and doctors say that medically he is.

Why would one write such a lengthy book — complete with appendices and bibliography — about running?

"Two years ago, I realized I had a lot of information about running, things you don't find out until you've been running a long time. For instance, in a heavy wind, if you tuck in behind somebody and run in the slipstream you'll save about six percent of your energy," says Fixx. "You don't realize that until you've been running a long time."

To that he adds: "I just wanted to tell people about running in the best way it could be done. Not just the how to, but the ambiance of running."

Fixx runs 10 miles a day, usually near his home in Riverside, Conn. He also runs in the annual Boston and New York marathons.

"I'm not a superb runner, I'm a writer who also runs." But he's good enough to finish in the middle of the pack in the Boston race, where you have to qualify to get in. And in the New York chase through all five boroughs, where anybody can run, he finishes among the leaders.

"For that one day, you are a sports hero," Fixx says with enthusiasm, an enthusiasm that shines through his book, filled with quotes from runners, both Olympians and Central Park shufflers.

He gets antsy when he travels and can't run as much, but whether he is in Vienna, London or Boston, Fixx will run on grass, pavement, beach or track in rain, sleet, wind or snow.

There is a lot of practical advice in the book on such things as how to treat your own injuries, how to enjoy starting to run — "Go only as hard as the rate at which you can carry on a conversation" — how to deal with hecklers, what to wear, how to find the time and how to admit that if running becomes worse than a trip to the dentist, it may not be for you.

Fixx, who quit smoking just before he started running, says the first time he felt the real pleasure of running was after he had been at it for three weeks.

"As soon as I started running, I felt I was floating. I think I feel as I did as a teenager. If somebody said let's climb a tree, I'd do it. I'm ready for anything."

Fixx writes and talks about the loneliness of running as well as runner's high, that special feeling of just running for the pure joy of it, knowing you are experiencing something that everyone could but few will.

"That comes when you run so effortlessly you feel like an animal running through the woods or a big Irish setter at play.

"I don't like to oversell this euphoria. You don't get something for nothing. You get what you put into it."

Fixx has met people from all walks of life during his running, and he concludes that runners are inclined to be more self-sufficient than most people.

"I can go out and run for two hours by myself and I can be happy. I don't need anybody around. Runners are very internally motivated."

Fixx's book is somewhat evangelical, but he denies he intended to convert the world to running.

His wife, Alice, ran during their courtship, working herself up to a seven-mile run. Soon after their marriage she caught a cold and asked if she should run then. He said no. With that, she hung up her shoes.

"I don't know what you can infer from that," he says.

Alice is more direct.

"I ran until I caught him."

Jazz Ensemble Concert Today

The annual fall concert of the 22-member East Carolina University Jazz Ensemble will be given today at 8 p.m. in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

Arrangements of tunes by jazz artists such as Count Basie, Stan Kenton, Ray Brown, Don Ellis and Les Hooper are being featured. Also scheduled for performance is Johnny Richards' Recuerdos from "Cuban Fire Suite."

George Broussard of the ECU School of Music faculty directs the ensemble.

The program is free and the public is invited.

Will Interview Tennela Gross

NEW BERN — Tennala A. Gross of the East Carolina University mathematics faculty will be a guest on "Twelve at Noon," WCTI-TV's (Channel 12) interview show on November 23.

A past president of the N.C. Women's Political Caucus and an active member in other women's organizations, Ms. Gross will discuss the changing status of women in America with show host Josh Humphreys.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Consider what you want to do that is of a different nature in the days ahead. Study whatever comes to your mind or attention and use your most dynamic qualities in planning new circumstances. Being hasty can find you with poor judgment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more objective where emotional wishes are concerned and get good results. Decisions you reach now can improve your position in life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new plan you have should be discussed with an adviser before you get into it. Show you are an alert and clever individual.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good time for contacting friends, particularly those in a different line of endeavor from your own. Gain personal aims with less effort than in the past.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your position in your community and try to improve it. Save more money and be careful of your credit.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get new ideas on how to carry through in important matters and be more willing to make changes. Make those contacts that can bring you greater knowledge.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study well the promises you have made to others and know how best to handle them. Acquire that inner tranquility you desire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listening carefully to what partners have to say is wise and this can bring more success in the future. Be alert to what is happening around you and benefit from it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show gratitude to those who have done you favors in the past. Take health treatments you need to improve health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into amusements you have found enjoyable in the past and have a good time. Be concerned with creative thoughts during spare time. Avoid one who wants to argue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to use more thought in handling home affairs and use proven methods. Get your abilities working more efficiently and use more modern methods.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are indeed thinking cleverly now and can plan how to produce more in daily tasks early. Postpone visiting until later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find out what your true position is where finances are concerned, and see how to improve it appreciably. Put good ideas to work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have fascinating ideas which can add appreciably to the success possible in this chart. Teach progeny to persevere at whatever is once started to its logical, successful colnclusion.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOV. 21, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening to consider how to make your affairs, both business and private, work out more successfully, since the planets are now favorable. Become better organized.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle work assignments early and get excellent results. Take needed health treatments and get rid of that tired feeling.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use good judgment in business deals and don't rely on hunches as they can be erroneous at this time. Express happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you handle business affairs wisely today. Show more consideration for family members and increase harmony at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to more success in the near future. Get rid of any difficult conditions you may be laboring under.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Consult business experts on best ways to increase income. Be more optimistic about the future. Have more faith in yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some personal problem should be studied more objectively to gain satisfactory results. Be more careful with your money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study career matters and and figure out the best way to advance. The daytime could be difficult but the evening is most satisfying.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It behooves you not to criticize others so much and you get along better with them. Show more thought for your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You must be more clever in handling business matters now or you could lose out where it counts the most.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study a new project you have in mind before putting it in operation. Don't take any unnecessary risks at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure you carry through with any promises you have made in an honorable way. Alleviate a tense situation wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle any partnership affairs in a most intelligent way and you get good results now. Show understanding for others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to solve problems easily and should have early training at schools where this fine ability can be trained properly. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life. There's musical talent in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Threw Case Out Of Court

RADNOR, Pa. (UPI) — The police department here recently was told by a Bucks County judge that a Xerox machine cannot be used as a lie detector.

Detectives bent on obtaining a confession pretended an office copier was a lie detector after a suspect agreed to undergo a polygraph test. Prior to interrogation, the sleuths placed a typewritten card in the machine reading: "He's lying."

The suspect was seated near the copier. A metal colander was fastened to his head and wires ran from the colander to the Xerox machine.

Each time investigators received answers they did not fancy, they pushed the copy button.

Out came the message: "He's lying."

Convinced that the machine was infallible, the suspect finally confessed.

Judge Ira Garb threw the case out of court.

"It's the kind of comic relief we need around here once in a while," the judge laughed.

Scotsman's Ale Is Big Success

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) — A few years ago, Peter Maxwell-Stuart opened up the medieval brewery in the basement of his 10th century house and turned out a few bottles of ale for the fun of it. Entitled "Jubilee Ale" in the 25th year of the Queen's reign, it became a runaway success.

Maxwell-Stuart does it all himself except for getting the gardener to help him clean out the vats. He even grows the barley in fields near the house. He's sold 100,000 bottles — 60,000 to France, 25,000 to Hong Kong, the rest worldwide. The ale sells for 90 cents a bottle.

Maxwell-Stuart is a direct descendant of Mary Queen of Scots and the royal family of Scotland.

Traquair House, oldest inhabited house in Scotland, is 29 miles south of Edinburgh.

Style Moves Into The Kitchen

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Even short order cooks will agree, the kitchen is becoming the focal point in many homes. Cooking enjoyment is growing and a mislaid garlic bulb can create a crisis.

Some are large and rambling kitchens that recall the baronial cookery from the days of yore about which the household revolved. Others are elegant users of space with chic, modern equipment, tools, collections and dining areas. No matter, kitchens are "in" and all of the facets are explored by Terence Conran in what might be the ultimate book of its type, "The Kitchen."

A functional handsome kitchen can by accomplished even by "doing it on the cheap," he explains in the book. These can include the shelf kitchen — a whole kitchen wall hung with shelves; a cupboard kitchen — one that might be screened from visitors' view by sliding doors; and an island kitchen which is possible if there is enough space to move about in even though the area is small.

Kitchens of professionals with their great assemblage of equipment can provide many ideas that might be copied on a lesser scale. A spectacular kitchen, 20 feet by 40 feet, belonging to George Lang, restaurateur, calligrapher, concert violinist, is an example. Certain luxuries — a huge refrigerator that holds a full case of champagne might not be important to the average householder — but they might be intrigued by electric units built into counters, a well in a counter that dispenses hot plates or a combined floor idea, white ceramic tile and dark parquet.

Choosing a style is another consideration. Streamlined and glossy? Farmhouse style? Equipped with comfortable upholstered pieces? A family center that is child-oriented?

There are handsome minimal kitchens and sculptural contemporary kitchens. Relating the kitchen to the house is an important point with emphasis on view, style, light, sun, car parking accessibility, the integration of floors and ceilings to the rest of the house, Conran points out.

Advice on planning your kitchen from the standpoint of color, maintenance (including a list of cleaning aids, finishes and their care, utensils and their care) laundries and work rooms is another good feature of the book. One chapter is devoted to problem kitchens.

Interesting innovations include baskets placed on shelves beneath work counters and used like drawers. An arrangement of narrow shelves is set up like a maze on a wall and has a sculptural look even as its narrow shelves accommodate jars, glasses and canisters. If there is enough space one can consider using pan cupboards, service cupboards and washing-up space for stacking clean crockery.

In addition to illustrating kitchens with collectibles — plates on walls, ceramic toasters on shelves, and the like, there are all the wonderful tools from butter curlers to egg wedgers, all the mixing and measuring things, salad baskets, whisks and coffee mills. Baking utensils, roasters and casseroles are illustrated along with hundreds of gadgets including the electrically powered kinds.

It is an elegant book, handsomely illustrated with hundreds of color pictures, and hardly anything has escaped the author's culinary eye. The book also contains a list of manufacturers, distributors and stores where many of the items are available.

("The Kitchen" is published by Crown.)

COMPACT HOME EXUDES CHARACTER

By Jerry Bishop

An angled facade trimmed in shutters, cupola, and an ornamented garage door, adds personality to the Highfield, a compact three bedroom design.

In only 1056 sq. ft. of living space, this appealing plan includes three full-sized bedrooms, a large living room with fireplace and terrace access, dining area, efficient kitchen, and adequate storage space. In addition, a foyer, unusual for a home this size, improves the floor plan and assures a functional traffic pattern.

On the exterior, the Highfield incorporates a touch of Colonial charm. A hip roof, topped with the traditional cupola, overhangs the sides for shade and protection and contrasts with the vertical siding. An appealing paneled door and window shutters further express the home's personality.

Inside, the home offers a surprising amount of livability within its modest square footage. The foyer allows access to kitchen and dining area, to living room, or to bedroom hallway, and includes a coat closet with the careful design often found in larger homes.

The kitchen, directly at left of the foyer, assumes a corridor arrangement for efficiency. In an area of 8 x 9 ft., the room includes all necessary appliances and adequate counter and cabinet space, and allows a free flow of space to the dining area at left.

For maximum use of the space, living and dining areas merge for an open, usable living area. To the rear, a sliding glass door invites family and guests to enjoy the patio, and a wood-burning fireplace promises cozy winter evenings.

Bedrooms fill the right wing of the home and offer plenty of closets and natural light. A full bath and linen closet are featured.

Accessible from the living area, the storage room borders the double garage and provides a handy storage spot for bicycles and garden equipment. In addition, the full basement includes another 1056 sq. ft. of adaptable space.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I have purchased a spray paint attachment for my household vacuum cleaner. Is there anything that you can tell me that will make the use a bit easier?

A. — Not much more than you can get from the instruction sheet that came with the attachment. If you didn't get one, go back to the store and get it, since your product might be a little different from one made by another manufacturer. In general, though, remember that any kind of indoor spraying requires extreme care, because it is impossible to control the area of the spray completely. If you intend to spray anything that can be moved outdoors, do so. If you do spray inside, be sure there is plenty of ventilation. Also, you will soon find your sprayer unable to operate efficiently if you do not clean it thoroughly immediately after it has been used.

Q. — I have made some bureau drawers and intend to make a bureau soon. What is the simplest way of putting in runners for the drawers to slide on?

A. — Never heard of making drawers first and then building a bureau for them. But never mind. If by simplest, you mean the easiest to construct, merely attach two strips of wood to the side pieces so that they form a track. Do this wherever necessary. The simplest ready-made tracks to attach are those made of plastic. If this is a bureau which will hold lots of clothes, thus making each filled drawer fairly heavy, better get sturdy drawer slides.

Q. — It is my idea that I can make a simple peephole in our front door by cutting a circular opening and then placing an inside cover over it. I intend to attach the cover so that it can be swung back and forth when necessary. Is there any reason why this won't work?

A. — No. Many peepholes are made exactly that way. The advantage of a manufactured peephole, which has a special lens in it, is that you can get a wide-angled view of the outside rather than a limited one.

Q. — A friend of mine says he read about a method of using oil heat in a house without a chimney of any kind. Is this possible?

A. — I, too, read the article. A development in New Jersey is using oil-fire boilers and hot water heat, with each boiler mounted at the back of the house alongside the air conditioning unit. The boiler has a weather-resistant jacket. The concept is not entirely new, having been used previously with electric heat. The outside boiler is small — 22 inches wide, 31 inches long and 38 inches high. The front of the jacket is removable for servicing the burner. In sections where there are heavy snows, the problem of accessibility does not exist because the warmth given off by the boiler jacket keeps the immediate area clear and dry. Besides the savings in chimney construction, the other advantage is that the boiler does not occupy any floor space in the house.

From various sources come these bits of information:

The windows in your house lose more energy through conduction than infiltration. Conduction is the transmission of heat through a material. Since glass is an excellent conductor, heat moves through it very quickly. And here is the amazing statistic put out by one authoritative agency — a single glass pane window conducts at least 10 times as much heat as a comparably sized wall area!

Would you believe there is a market for a book titled "How To Carve Totem Poles"? There must be, because the one by Paul Luvera Sr. is selling well. If ever a book went into great detail about a subject, this one does. The author, 79 years old, is a former state senator from the state of Washington.

The publisher of Professional Builder, Marsh Trimble, thinks it is a mistake for the government to make it too easy for the consumer to buy a home. He says there is considerable pressure to get the Federal Housing Administration to exempt the first $35,000 or so from the down payment requirements, a stand which he considers wrong. Trimble adds: "There are already great rewards for being a home owner in the United States, but there are also great responsibilities for being a home owner. If a family is not yet responsible enough to save for a low down payment, it probably is not ready for the responsibilities of home ownership. Bitter experience shows that it's too easy for some families who have made no down payments to turn a nice house into a shambles and then to simply walk away from the mess they have made of it." As a weapon to combat inflation, home ownership is considered by Trimble to be the closest thing to a sure bet, a safe investment.

A builder in Riverside, Calif., is offering homes which utilize the geodesic dome concept, asserting that it conserves heating and cooling costs, uses fewer builder materials, is earthquake proof and can be easily assembled and shipped. The claim is that the owner of such a house will have a 30 to 50 percent lower utility bill than the owner of a conventional, rectangular home of comparable size. Architect R. Buckminster Fuller invented the building system utilizing the geodesic dome. Made up of triangles which form a spherical shape, the dome is said to be strong, light and efficient.

For those who own a propane or similar torch, there's a new book called "Torch Tips" which deals with hundreds of uses for that tool. Some of the chapter headings are Plumbing Work, Roof Work, Working with Glass, Working with Wrought Iron and The Art of Burning Wood. A chapter on additional torch uses includes such diverse items as thawing frozen pipes and icy sidewalks, loosening balky nuts and bolts, removing paint and, believe it or not, singeing chickens and browning meringue.

(The home handyman will find plenty of valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals S

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The Statlers Near Viceless

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — They call themselves the Statler Brothers. But they're not brothers and they're not named Statler.

Maybe they should call themselves the Success Brothers. Or the Wholesome Brothers. Either would be more appropriate.

That's because the quiet quartet has been chosen vocal group of the year by the Country Music Association for the last six years. And they're so wholesome that their worst vice is smoking.

Without fanfare, the viceless Virginians have become country music's dominating vocal group while maintaining a refreshing, quiet dignity during a period of raised voices and transition in country music.

They've toured with Johnny Cash and were regulars on his television show, recorded 20 albums and 35 singles, won three Grammy awards and consistently attracted 50,000 people to an annual July 4 concert in their hometown of Staunton, Va., population 24,500.

And success hasn't spoiled them. They've cultivated such a clean-cut image that they mockingly refer to themselves as "the Bland Brothers."

Phil Balsley, a member of the group, was asked in an interview recently to name the worst thing about the quartet. "Well, we all smoke," he said. "But Harold (Reid) quit. Lou (DeWitt) quit and started back. We don't drink, but Lou has about two a year, I think."

The four owe a lot to Cash, who made them part of his touring show in 1964. "He has been very good to us," Balsley said. "We learned a lot from being around him. And he put us in front of so many people. It was great performing with the Carters and the Tennessee Three and Carl Perkins (members of Cash's road show). It was like a big family."

But during their early years with Cash, the "man in black" was addicted to pills and his career was hurt by his erratic behavior and missed dates. "He hurt himself more than anybody else," Balsley recalled. "But there were times when he could hardly stand up but he'd go on stage and tear up the audience."

COME GROW WITH US

Your flair for dealing with people and your self-starter abilities can pave the way to management opportunities and a remarkable salary in one of America's largest and most dynamic growth industries.
We need a person who relates well to all people, a college graduate or with a strong successful sales or business background. He must take pride in his professionalism, realize that better salaries are a direct result of better work. Sales experienced preferred, but not necessary.
We have a total training program, so are more interested in work habits and character than in experience in our particular field. To the right person we can offer a salary of up to $600 per month while training. Last year our sales force averaged $15,125 per person.

You've watched the papers for months, you've even looked at some of the homes offered. But none have come close to the home that the two of you have always envisioned for your family — in fact they haven't even fitted your needs. You don't want to compromise on this most important investment, but you've even considered it as you watch the price of labor and material skyrocket. What should you do?

We at Clark & Grubbs are custom builders who can keep you and your needs in mind at all times. Bill Clark, who is in charge of construction has been building quality homes for over 6 years. Some of Greenville's finest homes stand as tribute to his attention to quality craftsmanship.

If you don't have house plans chosen, we'll be glad to guide you. If you've already selected your plans, we'll explain the costs involved in realizing your dream home. We even have a wide variety of CHOICE HOME BUILDING LOTS AVAILABLE from $4,500. Call one of our brokers and they'll set you up an appointment to discuss your dream home. (no cost or obligation)

Late Autumn Interlude

Broken fence slats frame an unsuspecting fisherman. A girl (Leslie Fienberg of Raleigh) yields to the afternoon sun's invitation to shed her shoes and spend a while training her dogs. A family pauses to admire the beauty of the coast. Sparkling water silhouettes a fishing couple.

North Carolina beaches in the fall are a photographer's delight. There are few enough people to give the feeling of solitude, yet enough to provide appealing pictorial combinations of nature and humanity. Masonboro Inlet at Wrightsville Beach was the setting for this series of photographs.

Great Old Hotels Holding Up, As Grand As Ever

BY GERARD LOUGHRAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite inflation, economic decline and the advance of glass and concrete skyscrapers, the Grand Hotel is as grand as ever.

Full and flourishing and profitable.

A UPI survey of some of the world's great old hotels shows that if champagne no longer gushes from a fountain in London's Savoy, enough people are still prepared to pay $250 a night for the sort of elegance, luxury and personal service that mostly went out elsewhere with World War I.

When the Raffles in Singapore fell on hard times in 1972, Trieste-born Italian Roberto Pregarz was appointed manager. "With 115 suites vacant out of 127 — there are no 'rooms' at the Raffles — I knew I had to do something drastic," he says.

"What I did was simply go back into the past and try to recapture all the good features and services which made the Raffles famous."

His first act was to remove the neon sign over the hotel entrance. He researched the original recipe for the Singapore Sling (gin, cherry brandy and sometimes Benedictine) and dug out old menus from famous occasions.

Today the Raffles boasts 90 per cent occupancy and a constant parade of visitors to try the famous drink and eat roast beef and Yorkshire pudding at candle-lit tables once used by Rudyard Kipling, Somerset Maugham and Joseph Conrad.

It helps to be not too big — the three-story Raffles is dwarfed by high-rise international chain hotels.

Alfonso Font, manager of Madrid Palace Hotels Inc., which owns the Madrid Ritz and Palace, said the 200-room Ritz is doing well, but the 1,000-room Palace has an average occupancy under the 50 percent break-even point.

"The future in the super-luxury class belongs to the smallish or medium-sized establishment," he said.

The Ritz remains ritzy and pernickety. Brief-cases are banned from the lobby — "we don't want to have any business transacted in front of our guests" — and movie stars are not welcome since their presence "is bound to disturb the calm."

Occupants of suites may receive guests, but room-holders may not. Non-married couples may share a room if they are foreigners, but not if they are Spaniards.

When Henry Kissinger visited Madrid as U.S. Secretary of State, his security men booked a whole floor and wanted to move out the occupant of the floor below, who happened to be the new Chinese ambassador. Font refused and the next morning proudly told them, "Mr. Kissinger is having breakfast with the gentleman you wanted thrown out."

Every king who has visited Spain over the past 60 years stayed at the Ritz. So did Mata Hari.

While most of the great hotels resist drastic change, many have permitted a degree of cautious modernization and restoration.

New York's St. Regis, at 73 the city's oldest hotel and the place where the Bloody Mary was supposedly introduced to Americans, has been undergoing a multi-million-dollar facelift.

But the ornate European-style facade with stone carvings, French windows and fancy iron grillwork remains unchanged.

Col. John Jacob Astor spent millions of dollars building the hotel to match the finest he had seen on his European travels. He imported marble from Caen, France, and crystal from Waterford, Ireland. He installed a library with a full-time librarian.

French bartender Fernand Petiot is said to have introduced the Bloody Mary in 1934. It was called the Red Snapper at first because Astor disapproved of the word bloody.

London still hosts many of the world's finest hotels — all doing very well after one of the country's best tourist seasons.

Suites at the Savoy range from $115 to $215 a night and guests can see where Johann Strauss played waltzes in 1889 and Franz Lehar gave the first-night party for "The Merry Widow." It was here that Puccini entertained Dame Nellie Melba and Escoffier, chef from the Ritz in Paris, created Peach Melba in her honor.

In 1906, the German arms-maker Krupp gave a party and asked for a fountain flowing with champagne. The hotel provided. That same year, champagne magnate George Kessler had the Savoy forecourt flooded and his guests took dinner while floating in gondolas and listening to serenades from (who else?) Caruso.

The Savoy still manufactures its own beds with 967 individual springs and still tries to maintain a ratio of three staff to each guest. All diners' names are on food checks because the kitchen knows the tastes of its regulars. When Noel Coward stayed there, he was so particular about the layout of his bottles of pills that the hotel photographed it for the benefit of the housemaids.

The Dorchester ($105-255 a night) was recently taken over by Arab interests and probably one of the attractions was its special kitchen, regarded as the best in Britain, for the preparation of food meeting the dietary rules of Moslems and Jews.

It arguably has the best service of the London hotels, partly due to a system whereby the same staff work the same floors year after year and thus know the tastes of their regulars. It also probably provides the best afternoon tea — served in the lobby from 4 p.m. daily — one of the last reminders of the time when it was an important ritual in English life.

Claridges (slightly pricier than the Dorchester) sometimes is called the Buckingham Palace Annex since it is where royal guests are housed when the Palace accommodation is stretched.

It runs every floor like a separate hotel, with a staff of six waiters, six chambermaids, three bathroom cleaners, two valets and a porter. Even a single drink arrives on a trolley with a white linen cloth.

Most "English" of the great London hotels is Browns, a rambling series of private houses thrown together over a century or so.

Theodore Roosevelt stayed there in 1887 and walked to St. George's in Hanover Square where he married Edith Kermit Carow. Another guest was Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, then 14, who stayed incognito until her cover was blown by Queen Victoria sending her a state landau with four horses, outriders and postillions.

Asked if he had seen any eccentric guests in the capital of great eccentrics, a hotel worker shook his head indignantly and said, "Sir. We are in England."

Possibly the grandest of the grand hotels, at least the most famous, is the Ritz in Paris, which recently underwent a $3 million remodelling to meet the demands of the 1970s.

Telex machines and improved telephones were installed and the decor was changed from the dignified French grays of 88 years to fresh pastels. But the Louis XV and XVI furniture, the damask-covered walls and fireplaces remain.

For $108 (for two) plus 15 percent service charge, the Ritz, with its 450 employes, offers its 230 guests Rolls-Royces to meet them at the airport, champagne and flowers for regulars, down pillows, linen sheets, double-sized bath towels and porcelain bathtubs.

If a guest has a dog, there is a dog blanket embroidered with bones and a leash.

The Ritz too has had its share of famous and infamous guests, including Ernest Hemingway (who shot a toilet bowl), Marcel Proust (who said, "One is never jostled at the Ritz"), Barbara Hutton (who brought her own gold ashtrays), the Duke of Windsor (who carried his own bags), and Hermann Goering (during the Nazi occupation).

One story has it that a Nazi truck convoy pulled up at the Ritz wine warehouse to confiscate the entire contents. Quick-thinking French attendants insisted the wine was Goering's private stock, and so the fabulous cache was saved. Goering did not even know the warehouse existed.

The grand hotels are not restricted to Europe and the United States.

Nairobi's Norfolk figures prominently in the literature of Africa and could tell the story of British colonialism in Kenya. Teddy Roosevelt began a safari there with 500 porters carrying everything from collapsible baths to cases of champagne.

The hotel is spread over several acres, which contain cultivated gardens and two aviaries, and its reputation allows it to command more than $1,000 a week for a bungalow. You can order a T-bone steak in your room at 3 a.m. and have it served still sizzling.

Overlooking Moscow's Red Square, the 74-year-old National hotel has a strongly French flavor, reflecting the tastes of the Czarist court. Even the cheapest rooms are ornate, decorated with good pictures, beautiful wool rugs and fine furniture. The more elaborate contain Steinway grand pianos.

The hotel has 600 employes for 400 guests and 14 restaurants. Prices: $24 to $134 a night.

This report on the state of the Grand Hotel must end with a fully-booked sign and apologies to the Oriental in Bangkok, the Manila in Manila, the Grand Bretagne in Athens, the Metropole in Brussels, the St. Georges in Beirut, the Galles Face in Colombo, the Repulse Bay and Peninsula in Hong Kong, the Semiramis in Cairo, the Grand in Taipei, the Park in Istanbul, the Ledra Palace in Nicosia, the Alcron in Prague, Sacher's and the Imperial in Vienna, the Algonquin and the Plaza in New York, the King David in Jerusalem, the Crillon in Paris — together with a thousand other oases of peace and privilege in a noisy, egalitarian world.

His Job: To Make The Elderly More Independent

EDITOR'S NOTE — Government agencies are stepping in where families no longer tread: caring for the aged. Each state provides some form of help, but Massachusetts is the first to create a cabinet-level post. Thus the secretary for the Department of Elder Affairs has the governor's ear on matters of making old age easier.

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — One of the top men in the state bureaucracy likes to browse the benches in Boston Common, sit in seedy cafeterias and ride buses at odd hours of the evening.

This is how James H. Callahan meets the people he is paid to serve. As Massachusetts' top administrator for old folks, he seeks out their sometimes depressing world to remind himself of what it's like.

Callahan is in charge of the Department of Elder Affairs.

The affairs of elders, it turns out, are much like the affairs of youngers, with one exception: the helplessness that comes with arthritic joints, brittle bones, tired reflexes and other accoutrements of old age. And these can turn what is routine for the young into hardships for the old.

So for people fortunate enough to survive past their prime, this young state agency provides necessary services such as cooking, driving and housework.

These are Callahan's concerns, because his job is legally defined as making old people independent. And more than anything, this means keeping them out of nursing homes.

All of this happens at the highest rung of Massachusetts government because as secretary of elder affairs, Callahan is one of the ten members of the governor's cabinet. It is a symbol of the state's recognition of the organized power and social needs of the old.

Massachusetts created the department in 1973. It was the first state to put the department at the cabinet level, but six others have since done the same: Illinois, California, Connecticut, Maryland, Hawaii and Alabama. Every state and territory has some kind of agency for old folks. Across the United States, looking out for the elderly has become one of the fastest growing branches of state government.

Callahan is beefy, soft-spoken and 41-years-old.

"I tell people that if you want to find out what old people are facing, ride the buses, particularly on off hours, because that's about the only transportation some of them have," he says.

"When you hear they're going to change the bus schedules because they don't have heavy ridership, you know that means nothing to most people. But it means almost everything to a few people."

Callahan's constituents are the men in mismatched suits who pass winter afternoons in $1.25 movie houses. They are the frail women who are afraid to cook because they might be forgetful around the gas flames.

Caring for the aged once fell to younger relatives. But family obligations have changed, and in areas where children or grandchildren once took charge, the state has moved in.

The Department of Elder Affairs is spending $32 million this year to help make life easier for old folks. Two-thirds of this budget is turned over to 27 home care corporations. These local, non-profit agencies provide most of the day-to-day services.

Workers go into the old people's homes and do their shopping, run errands, help with the cooking. They clean house, fix broken windows and shovel snow. The corporations also provide vans to shuttle the elderly to doctors' appointments, community centers and meal halls.

Another program provides low-cost meals for old people at churches, schools and other central places. Currently, the program provides 10,000 meals a day at 191 locations. For those too feeble to go out, the program delivers dinners to their homes.

The department also provides jobs for about 500 elderly. For a 37½-hour week of work in a hospital, nursing home or social agency, they make $50.

The agency helps set up senior citizen centers, provides lawyers for nursing home residents and has ombudsmen who help work out the problems of people in nursing homes.

"Our primary function is to marshal all of the local, state and federal resources for the benefit of the independence and dignity of older persons," Callahan says.

That phrase runs through Callahan's conversation because it is the law. The legislation that created the department orders it to come up with "innovative programs to insure the dignity and independence of elderly persons."

The department tries to do this in its own office. Of its 65 employes, 30 percent are over age 55.

Their concerns cover a sizable portion of the state. Sixteen percent of Massachusetts' 5.9 million residents are over age 60. On the whole, they are poor. More than half have a family income of less than $5,000 a year.

However, spending money on the old may not even be the department's biggest challenge.

"The most important thing this office does is get out in front on some of the elderly issues," Callahan says.

That means being an advocate for the elderly. Callahan says he and staff members testify at hearings on issues that affect old people, among them welfare reform, national health care, food stamps and mandatory retirement laws.

It also means working behind the scenes for the old folks in the state agencies that handle transportation, welfare and housing.

Most of the state agencies for the elderly grew out of a 1965 federal law, the Older Americans Act. To get the money provided by the law, states had to set up departments to administer it.

The idea of a high-level department in Massachusetts was born when the state government was reorganized in a cabinet form. Organized groups of old people lobbied mightily for their own secretary in the new cabinet.

"We really packed the State House for several hearings to impress on legislators that we were in back of the proposal," says Melnea Cass, 81, of Boston. "We wanted to have a separate department. We felt that the seniors were entitled to special treatment and special privileges as a group."

Callahan is the third person to head the department. He says he learned a lot about keeping people independent when he was director of a state hospital for the handicapped.

Most of Massachusetts' old people don't use the department's services. One survey shows that about 80 percent get along very well on their own.

That figure was arrived at by Laurence G. Branch, director of the Center for Survey Research, a joint venture of Harvard, MIT and the University of Massachusetts. He has been studying the needs of the state's old people for three years.

Seven percent of those over 65 could use the kind of helping hand services provided by the department, he says, and four percent are doing that.

Branch said the state could keep another six percent out of the nursing homes by providing more extensive services. These are people too weak to take care of themselves but too strong and alert to be happy in a nursing home.

Missing this group is the department's main failure, he says. They need help in their homes with such chores as dressing and grooming.

Coal Needed; But Confused Labor Battle Brews

EDITOR'S NOTE — The nation's energy plan calls for greatly increased coal production, but the message from the mines is bleak. A confused labor battle is boiling not only between employers and union, but within the union itself. Tune in on a coal camp on Cabin Creek for words that suggest the shape of troubles ahead.

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

ESKDALE, W.Va. (AP) — This tiny coal camp sits deep in the hills of southern West Virginia, beside a shallow, winding stream known as Cabin Creek.

And while Eskdale's fame hasn't spread much beyond the hollow which holds the pebbled, fast-running stream, Cabin Creek is a name known far and wide. Almost anyone familiar with the region or with the United Mine Workers of America knows that Cabin Creek is a near-perfect working microcosm of the Appalachian coalfields and of the UMW — past and present.

Cabin Creek was a familiar haunt of Mother Jones back at the turn of the century. The old union firebrand came around often to help miners in their fledgling organizing efforts, efforts viewed as "insurrections" by a government that often responded with federal troops.

The government did little to protect union organizers, often beaten and slain in Appalachia, until Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected in 1932. After that, the UMW began to flourish and today Cabin Creek is solidly union.

Some 3,000 UMW miners live in little communities strung along the creek like dusty beads. These miners are some of the most independent — and militant — in the 277,000-member union. They have a strong tradition of not taking guff from anybody — not from the government, not from the company bosses, not even from UMW President Arnold Miller, who still has a home at nearby Ohley.

And at a time when national energy policy calls for an increasing reliance upon coal — President Carter wants to double production by 1985 — Cabin Creek remains a hotbed of unrest. The miners here were the first off their jobs and the last to go back to work during last summer's dispute over the loss of their health benefits.

Two years ago, they started a summer-long protest over federal court intervention into coalfield labor disputes. The successful battle for black lung benefits also began here, back in the late 1960s. Arnold Miller, a white-haired, disabled miner, emerged from that movement and became president of the union in 1972. A year later, he instituted sweeping reforms which, his backers said, brought democracy to the UMW.

A measure of anarchy could also be detected when Miller took the leadership, and today the UMW — formidable creation of John L. Lewis — is racked by strife on all levels. The international officers don't speak to each other, the leadership is constantly challenged, and the coalfields have been hit by recurrent waves of wildcat strikes.

Miller, recently elected to a second term by a minority of union members, calls the troubles growing pains but some observers feel the pains could signal terminal illness.

Joseph Brennan, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, has said his members may begin pulling away from the UMW if wildcat strikes go on much longer. He says the operators have lost faith in the union's ability to maintain a stable work force and may turn to regional contracts or other unions.

Meanwhile operators and unionists are preparing for a long strike when the current nationwide contract expires Dec. 7, a strike that may hurt the miners more than the operators. Since 1970, coal mined by UMW members dropped from more than 70 percent to around 54 percent of the nation's output.

Contract negotiations have been under way since the first week of October. The union is asking, among other things, a wage of $100 a day and the right to strike locally despite a national contract — in effect legalizing the wildcats that have erupted anyhow.

Miller contends this would end unauthorized walkouts, but the operators aren't buying the argument.

And they aren't the only skeptics. The miners themselves are widely divided on how to end the continuous walkouts. Some blame the difficulties on Miller's administration. Others say a small radical element is behind most of the strikes.

The miners at Cabin Creek also disagree on whether the union should ask higher wages or more benefits, a split that reflects a growing generation gap within the union. As more and more younger miners entered, often better educated and more widely traveled than their elders, they tended to reject the values of the older generation. Some see the oldtimers as timid and servile, while older miners often see the youngsters as lazy and irresponsible.

Young and old, however, agree that something must be done about wildcat strikes that have not only cost them wages but depleted welfare and health funds.

Such sentiments were voiced emphatically during a discussion at Vatella's Lunch, an Eskdale establishment favored by miners. Vatella's is the last place along the creek where a man can grab a beer before working an eight-hour shift in one of the several mines at the head of the hollow.

One recent autumn day, as golden leaves scurried across the unmarked asphalt road outside Vatalla's, Benito Araujo and Hubert Higginbotham were deep in conversation.

"A bunch of us men at the mine were talking during dinner yesterday," said Araujo, a short, stocky man who works as a roofbolter in a Cannelton Industries mine. "We about decided that the only way to have any peace around here is to have two contracts, one for the rank-and-file miners and one for the 300 trouble-makers that keep everything stirred up."

Somebody asked Araujo what he thought of the union's demand for the right to strike. He ran a thick, calloused hand through his close-cropped hair, then took a long swig of Dr Pepper.

"Hell," he said finally, "we just came off a three-month strike and we didn't have the right to strike. Tell me how the right to strike would change anything. There'll always be strikes as long as there's grievances. And nobody's going to cross a picket line, whether it's legal or not."

Hubert Higginbotham looked up from his bottle of beer long enough to nod agreement. He then turned his gaze back to a hand-lettered sign tacked onto the tavern wall, a sign which read:

Fat Fryers $2.50
Mallard Ducks $3.00
Rabbits $3.00

"I had some young, fried rabbit about two weeks ago," he said. "But I really like squirrel better, and I like the gravy better than the squirrel."

Araujo wasn't having any, however. He wanted to talk union politics, not squirrel gravy.

"Personally, I like to work," he said, leaning against a display case containing chewing tobacco, snuff, shotgun shells and cheap watches. "But it seems like what counts anymore is what the radicals want. I'm not braggin' but I make good money, $58 for a day shift and $63.08 at night. I made $22,000 last year, counting overtime. The machines work faster than the men can keep up and the company's always after us to work overtime, to do dead work, setting timbers and cleaning up."

He took another long pull on the Dr Pepper and went on with his monologue.

"Most of the men I know would rather have benefits than money. Of course, the companies would rather give us money because it won't buy anything and the benefits would cost them more in the long run. The way I see it, benefits are better than money these days."

This last statement jerked Higginbotham away from his visions of squirrel gravy.

"Well, I want more money," he said. "I work outside, at the coal preparation plant, and I make $53 a day. I think everybody should make the same amount and I think we oughta make at least $75 a day."

An old man sipping a beer at the end of the bar injected himself into the conversation.

"By God, you'll never get $75 a day," he said. "And you don't need it, either. All you young miners ever think about is more money. You don't even want us retirees to have a pension."

Nobody paid the old man the slightest heed.

"Give me another Dr Pepper," said Araujo, fishing in his coveralls for a quarter. "You know, my father came to Cabin Creek from Old Mexico when I was just a little boy. He was a coal miner like me. I'm 48 and I've worked in the mines for 30 years and we've finally reached the point now where we can make a good living, if only we have a chance to work."

"That's right," said Higginbotham, a thin man with graying hair and watery blue eyes. "But some of these young boys in the mines now don't want to work. They'll smoke a joint and want to lay off for a week. Why, I know of one who even smoked a joint in the mine."

There was a lull in the conversation as a loaded coal train clanked down the hollow en route to a loading dock on the Kanawha River. When talk resumed, the topic was Arnold Miller.

"Miller would be in a lot better spot right now if it hadn't been for those radicals," said Araujo. "I think he's done a good job for us. He's already gotten us the best contract we ever had. I've worked in the mines 30 years and this is the first time I ever had any sick leave."

Higginbotham took issue, however.

"Well, I've worked in the mines 30 years, too," he said, "and Arnold Miller's helped himself but he's never done anything for me. Anything I got, I earned. And I'm lookin' for a long strike this December."

The old man at the end of the bar could contain himself no longer.

"That's all you miners today think about. Strike. Strike. Strike. You go on strike this winter and they'll just ship coal in from the West 'til you starve. You wait and see."

"They'll play hell, too," Higginbotham replied, draining the last of his beer and rising from the stool. "I've had enough of this stuff, I'm going to work."

The old man watched him walk out, then turned back to his beer.

"People used to be tickled to death to have a job," he said. "Now they want to make as much in a day as we made in two months."

Room-Booking Control Center

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — South Korea has inaugurated a "hotel room booking control center" as part of its efforts to attract more foreign tourists.

The center, operated by the Transportation Ministry, is designed to monitor and control room bookings at first-class hotels. All major tourist hotels are required to report to the center their room-booking status on a daily basis and to make rooms available for tourists recommended by the center.

Vitamin E With Oxygen Therapy

Premature babies are threatened with lung and eye damage when oxygen is used for a long time after delivery. When placed in an incubator, a high concentration of oxygen is often necessary.

Dr. Joseph B. Warshaw, and a group of pediatric colleagues at the Yale Medical School, have been using injections of vitamin E to protect the "preemies" against the dangers of oxygen therapy. In a preliminary study, this form of treatment has been shown to give significant protection against the lung and eye complication that threatens these tiny babies.

The results of the study are sufficiently interesting to induce other physicians who deal with premature babies to try to duplicate these excellent results.

A new approach to the problem of epilepsy is being carefully evaluated. Dr. Yukio Tanaka, of St. Mary's Hospital in Montreal, is devoting his talent in chemistry to study the relationship between a deficiency in manganese and epilepsy in children. He has found low levels of manganese in children with convulsive disorders.

He and his research team believe that with this interesting concept they have opened up new horizons for the study of epilepsy.

The Epilepsy Foundation of America, after viewing Dr. Tanaka's scientific findings, said, "It is an interesting and promising report. Larger group studies of patients with convulsive seizures may show that a significant, but limited, number of patients with chronic seizure disorders may be treated, or their seizures prevented, by dietary supplementation."

It is hoped that this chemical approach to the understanding of epilepsy may lead to extensive investigation.

A musical program for handicapped children is being pursued in Philadelphia. The combined talents of the Moss Rehabilitation Hospital and the Settlement Music School are being used to teach children to play musical instruments and at the same time strengthening whatever physical function they are capable of. Children first start to play the instrument while in the rehabilitation hospital, then continue to do so after they leave, as outpatients, in the Music School.

The Director of the Music School, Mr. Bernard Henderson, says, "We're taking the person with weakness in his right arm, for example, and having him use that arm to play the xylophone." He adds: "The object of this combined program is to give the child a lifelong interest as well as a creative outlet."

Children with cerebral palsy, arthritis, orthopedic handicaps, and even amputations, are participating enthusiastically in this well-planned, resourceful program.

Wheelchair Ramps Stir New Dispute

BOSTON (UPI) — Wheelchair ramps in sidewalks, required by Massachusetts law since June 1975, were legislated as a convenience for wheelchair users. But they have created a controversy as a hazard for the blind.

The Worcester Federation for the Blind recently complained to the Worcester City Council about the installation of ramps, or curb cuts, in that city's sidewalks.

Federation member Erving MacShawson said the cuts make problems for the blind. It troubles those who use seeing-eye dogs because the dogs are trained to stop at curbs. Others use canes to locate the edge of the curb.

In Watertown, Dennis Lolli of Perkins Institute for the Blind said the different ways in which ramps are installed can confuse a blind person. There's nothing reliable to remember in interpreting how a curb feels.

The cuts are supervised by the State Architectural Barriers Board.

Robert Lynch, former board chairman, says board standards are consistent, but they give some leeway.

Some are positioned at the apex, where both corners meet, and face diagonally into the intersection. Some are on the side of a curb, centered in the crosswalk path that is the normal flow of pedestrian traffic.

Lolli wants consistency, "... at least within each city or town."

But board member Maureen Winn, who is both blind and a wheelchair user, says complaints have been minimal.

"We had a lot of input from consumer groups, including the blind," she said.

The Worcester complaint remains unresolved.

"We're still working on it," says City Manager Frances McGrath. "If we move all the ramps down from the intersection, then you expose the wheelchair to traffic. You remove one obstacle and add another."

Textured ramps have been suggested to make them more easily recognizable. Technically, the state already requires this, but not necessarily to the extent the blind might need. "It wouldn't be as slippery in winter for the wheelchairs," says Lolli.

MacShawson disagrees: "It wouldn't stay rough that long. Nature would take its course."

A half-inch lip at the ramp's base also has been suggested. But, "if a dog stopped at that," says MacShawson," it would be stopping at every crack in the sidewalk."

At least one guide dog user approves of cuts. Phyllis Mitchell, first vice president of the American Council for the Blind, says, "I think curb cuts are an excellent idea, but they should be uniform and inside the crosswalks at all times."

Board members don't feel the problem is that serious. "The complaints are from one area so far," says Richard Mackey, administrative secretary. "It's the first formal complaint we've had from any of the 351 cities and towns."

In Worcester, the city manager still is working to meet some of them.

"You can't deny it's a problem, and I just can't say how we'll finally settle it," McGrath said.

Bangladesh Struggling Against Odds For Survival

By JOHN NEEDHAM

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — At 6 a.m. the temperature and humidity both register near 90. Rasid rises from his rope-mattressed bed and walks to the bushes that are his toilet, then to the stagnant pond that is his bath.

His skin the color of mahogany, Rasid is 30 years old. He looks 40. Odds are he will die before 50.

The four children rise from the bed they share, five feet from their parents', and follow the direction of their father.

As always, Rasid will eat first, the children second, Sirin last. The two middle children, a boy and a girl, will go to school today. The older boy will help Rasid in the rice field. The youngest child, too young for school or work, will stay home.

Rasid and son Mahmud walk half an hour to the family's one-acre plot of land. The monsoon rains have just ended, the rice has been transplanted and the farmers will cajole it to harvest, if nature is good.

Rasid, his wife and children are "typical" and therefore mythical. But the flesh-and-blood Rasids and Sirins are easy to find in the countryside of Bangladesh, where 90 per cent of the country's 83 million people live.

Government officials, sitting in rundown offices in remote Dacca, the capital, say their country is the poorest on earth. The average male dies at age 49. The average worker has an income of $70 per year.

The year 1977 has already brought extensive flooding and crop damage to Bangladesh, a cholera outbreak in which hundreds of persons have been killed and an attempted coup.

But Rasid is content, if not happy. Life is about the same as it's always been. He tries merely to survive, to keep his sons alive to care for him when he's old.

Rasid and Sirin had no education. Son Mahmud, now 11, had three years in school, to age 9. He can write his name if given enough time but is already forgetting how to read, for he sees no books, magazines or newspapers. In a few more years, he will be illiterate.

In 12 years of marriage, Sirin has had six children. Two died before age 5.

The family knows no way short of abstaining from sex to prevent more births. Government family planning workers haven't reached this village. Rasid and Sirin know that another child will mean less food for everyone in the family, yet if something happens to one of the two boys, there will be no one to care for the parents in later years.

The family lives what is essentially a barter economy. Rasid will trade some of his rice crop for fiery hot chilis to spice his meals. He grows a few vegetables next to his house, which is one room about 10 feet by 10 feet, with a mud floor and walls and ceiling of woven straw.

When his father died five years ago, Rasid divided the family land with his brothers. One has gone to the nearest big city and returns to visit once a year or so. The other two live nearby, as does their mother, who is looked after by her sons.

Rasid owned two acres and four cows until the 1974 famine. He sold half his land and three of the cows that year to keep himself, Sirin and the children from starving.

He hasn't been able to make enough money to buy more land or livestock. It is doubtful that he ever will.

At noon, with the heat almost unbearable, father and son trek back to their house. Lunch is again rice, this time with some curried vegetables and a cup of tea.

A few sticks of wood, still a bit soggy from the monsoon rains, and dried cow dung are used as fuel for the fire over which the rice pot hangs in a small clearing outside the house. Dinner will be rice and more vegetables.

Each member of this typical family will have 15.5 ounces of food today. The diet will total perhaps 1,900 calories, fewer than the average person received seven years ago. There will be scant protein or vitamins.

Three or four times a year, on major Moslem holidays, the family will have meat, a religious offering from the wealthy. Sometimes fish will be cheap enough to buy in the market or, rarely, an egg.

Ninety-five percent of the Bangladeshis suffer from chronic dysentery. Most suffer from roundworms or hookworms.

The food shortages of Bangladesh have resulted in "nutritional stunting" — Rasid is shorter and lighter in weight than was his father.

His 4-year-old son is 34 inches tall and weighs 22 pounds. A child of north European ancestry the same age is 41 inches tall and weighs 35.2 pounds.

While Rasid and Mahmud are working in the fields, Sirin has been cleaning up after breakfast. The two children are off to school and she lets the third crawl around the floor and play.

Sirin fetches water for the house and then takes the laundry to the pond for washing. She beats it against rocks to get out the excess water and stretches it out on the ground to dry.

Once a year, if there's enough money left over, Sirin will buy two or three yards of brightly colored coarse cotton. Rasid will wear a bolt knotted around his waist, sarong-style. Sirin will drape hers across one shoulder, as a sari.

After doing the laundry, Sirin cleans the rice storage bin, which will be needed at harvest time. Later she will have to reweave one of the thick grass mats in the house, which is coming undone.

The housework will end only at dark, when it must, for this village has no electricity, no gas, no running water.

If there is time, this will be the month for Sirin to make the day-long journey by foot, bus and overcrowded riverboat to visit her brother.

The floods spawned by the monsoon rains have receded and travel is easier. There is no harvesting and she will not be called on to husk the rice. Her daughter will stay home from school for the three days Sirin is away and will take care of the household chores.

Sirin's brother, his wife and children are happy to see her because like most women she never claimed her share of the lands of their father at his death, as she was entitled to do under Moslem law.

Rasid's father negotiated with Sirin's father to arrange the marriage. The children had not met before their wedding day, when Rasid was 18 and Sirin 13. Her family was too poor to pay a dowry.

Sirin's first two years as a wife were difficult. She worked harder to please her mother-in-law than her husband. Her first child died at birth but it was a daughter, which would not have helped her standing with the family.

No one in the family has ever seen a doctor. When someone is seriously ill — too ill to work — the village curer is called. He applies his herbal medicine, but he must be paid with some of the precious rice.

Sirin's second child was a boy, Mahmud, and her mother-in-law and her husband began treating her with more respect.

Sirin has virtually no contact with men other than her husband and relatives. She leaves the house when strange men appear. The farmers are too poor to afford more than one wife, although Moslem law would allow it. Still, in this village one out of six women has been divorced by her husbands and for her life is much harder than for Sirin.

It is still humid at nightfall, when the family finishes its last meal of the day.

Beneath a brightly shining tropical moon, Rasid walks down the dirt road to where other men of the village have gathered, to share a cigarette and discuss weather and crops.

One tells of news brought from the city by a traveler. Another has a radio and may have information about the price the government will pay for rice.

Ann Margret Hosts Elvis Tribute Sunday On NBC 'The Big Event'

"Memories of Elvis" — Ann Margret is host of "The Big Event," Sunday, Nov. 20 (8-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV, when Elvis is featured performing a selection of his best known songs.

A three-hour tribute to Elvis, hosted by a close friend of the family, Ann-Margret, and featuring many of his hits, will be pre nted on NBC-TV's "The Big Event: Memories of Elvis," Sunday, Nov. 20, 8 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Ann-Margret, who co-starred with Elvis in the motion picture "Viva, Las Vegas," will introduce the program and comment about her remembrance of the singer based on their long friendship.

The three-hour special will show Elvis at his best — singing before an audience. "Memories of Elvis" will be comprised of two highly acclaimed NBC-TV Presley specials — "Elvis," originally telecast Dec. 3, 1968, and "Elvis: Aloha From Hawaii," originally telecast April 4, 1973. They will be telecast virtually in their entirety. Prior to its telecast, Presley's Hawaiian concert was transmitted live via satellite from Honolulu (Jan. 1973) to the Far East and the South Pacific, and relayed a day later to 28 nations linked by Eurovision.

The evening with Elvis features a medley of his Gold Record hits, including "Heartbreak Hotel," "Hound Dog" and "All Shook Up." Among other songs are "Fools Rush In," "Jailhouse Rock," "Don't Be Cruel," "Love Me Tender," "Are You Lonesome Tonight" and the title song of the program, "Memories."

In the portion of the show from Hawaii, Elvis opens with "Blue Hawaii," then he sings "C.C. Rider," "Burning Love," "What Now My Love," and "My Way."

Views of the island of Oahu are on the screen as Elvis sings "Hawaiian Wedding Song," "Long Tall Sally" and "All Shook Up." Then, in Hawaiian mood, Elvis sings "Ku-Ku-I-Po."

The "Elvis: Aloha from Hawaii" was one of the most widely viewed television specials of the 1972-73 season. NBC Research estimates over 55,000,000 people in almost 29,000,000 United States homes viewed the program.

A Treat-Packed Week Slated For TV Viewers

Treats of every conceivable kind are available this week. For students of all ages, there's a brief respite from school, and grid-iron action is rampant for football addicts. Then, of course, kitchens are bursting with all those delicacies associated with 'turkey day.' Where television enthusiasts are concerned, this is truly a week to remember. Airing are numerous specials, musicals, animated features, a reunion of beloved entertainers — the list ie almost endless.

Here's a quick glimpse at just a few of the outstanding presentations that will air throughout the week:

Monday, Lucille Ball, one of television's premiere comediennes, is reunited with familiar sidekicks Gale Gordon and Vivian Vance, and the trio is joined by guest stars Ed McMahon and Steve Allen for "The Lucille Ball Special," from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Chalk up a 'winner' for Wednesday, because CBS is presenting two superb specials. Giving the holiday's eve a glorious splash of color and music is "Once Upon a Brothers Grimm" (8 to 10 p.m.), with Dean Jones and Paul Sand starring as Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm.

Following this musical is "The George Burns One-Man Show" (10 to 11 p.m.), and just in case Burns, one of the comedy world's great talents and a veteran of every facet of show business from vaudeville to motion pictures, discovers he's not 'one-man' enough to handle an hour of singing, dancing and story-telling alone, some of his many show business pals drop by to offer a hand.

Then comes Thanksgiving Day, accompanied by the annual Macy's Parade that's been such a hit with viewers. Both CBS and NBC will provide coverage, and making his first appearance in the parade is Kermit the Frog. Kermit, the latest in a long line of high-flying Goodyear balloon behemoths, is a leggy, green muppet who rose to fame on "Sesame Street."

So...watch. And enjoy.

Learned After Losing

Many people will not enter contests for fear of losing. Others will enter, lose, and are too embarrassed to try again.

Then there is Becky Reid, who entered the Miss Teenage Dallas 1976 contest and lost. "I learned a lot about myself from that experience," says Becky. "I learned how to open up and communicate and to feel more comfortable with other people...and the next year I won the national title."

It has since been an exhausting, exhilarating year of travel (110,000 air miles), new faces and new experiences for Becky. Through it all she has exuded confidence and has set an outstanding example for her generation to follow.

Now the time has come for Becky to relinquish her reign, and "Mass Teenage America 1978" will be chosen Friday, Nov. 25. NBC-TV will televise the event live from Dallas, Texas, beginning at 9:30 p.m. on NBC-TV. Emmy Award winner Richard Thomas will host this 17th annual presentation of awards to outstanding teen achievers.

Heroes Precede Game

"The ABC All-Star Thanksgiving Festival," a joyous holiday package of superstars; superheroes and superfriends from the "ABC All-Star Saturday" lineup of children's programs will precede the nationally televised NCAA football game on Thanksgiving Day, 11 to 2:30 p.m. Kaptain Kool and the Kongs will be on hand to provide their own happy brand of comedy and music all through the 3 and one half hour special.

The first segment of the Festival will be a live-action hour of comedy-adventure with "The Krofft Supershow '77" when Magic Mongo, Bigfoot and Wildboy and the ever popular "Wonderbug" series get the morning off to an exciting start.

"Scooby's All-Star Laff-A-Lympics," Saturday morning's first two hour children's program which features 45 of the popular Hanna-Bargera characters, will take over from 12 to 2 p.m. Scooby Doo, one of television's most successful cartoon characters will lead his friend, Dynomutt and Captain Caveman and the Teenangels in another comedy-mystery-adventure.

From 2 to 2:30 p.m. "Superfriends," League of Justice heroes Batman and Robin, Superman, Wonder Woman and Aquaman, will continue to wage their battles to maintain justice and human rights in this animated comedy-adventure series. The Superfriends offer children various health and safety tips and provide demonstrations of crafts which can be practiced at home to encourage child imagination.

Few Writers Top Verne; Novels Inspire Specials

Few writers have had the worldwide popularity of Jules Verne. A UNESCO survey found him to be the most translated of all French authors.

Two of Verne's most popular novels are the source of animated specials being broadcast on "Famous Classic Tales, and the second one — "Five Weeks in a Balloon," based on the novel that established Verne as an immensely popular writer — will be broadcast Thanksgiving Day, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Verne was born to a prosperous middle-class family in Nantes, France. From early childhood, Verne exhibited an overwhelming interest in travel and scientific invention, two themes carried through most of his works.

His father wanted him to become a lawyer, but Verne left Nantes for the Left Bank of Paris when he was 20 and became part of the extensive Bohemian literary circles of the city. At first unsuccessful, he managed to have a few of his stylish comedies produced on the stage and some of his edifying stories for youngsters published in "Musees des Familles," a popular magazine of the day.

Verne, however; was still not making much of a mark, or a living, with his literary endeavors. When he met and married a young widow with two daughters, he announced to his family in Nantes that he was giving up writing for a career in the stock market. Ironically, his father was mortified. He had come to like having a man of letters in the family.

Verne concentrated on business, but continued to write occasional plays. Then, intrigued by a friend's plans to launch a balloon expedition, Verne wrote an article on the subject.

When he could not find a publisher for the article, Verne decided to turn it into a novel, and it became "Five Weeks in a Balloon," the story of a balloon trip across the then still largely unknown African continent.

In the years that followed, Verne wrote such cherished novels as "Around the World in 80 Days," "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," "The Mysterious Island" and "Journey to the Center of the Earth." In many of these exciting novels, he predicted much of the technology of the 20th century, like submarines and rockets.

It was not only fantastic predictions that interested, and still interest, the Verne reader. Verne told action-filled tales about advantures, self-disciplined heroes and heroines who faced hardships, peril, and the scepticism of others with courage and determination for the sake of a worthy ideal.

Mouseketeers Debut With Jo Anne Worley

The Mouseketeers make their network television debut this season with Jo Anne ("Laugh-In") Worley and Ronnie Schell — starring as a nosey reporter and a Mouseketeer chaperone, respectively — in "The Mouseketeers at Walt Disney World," a special one-hour musical adventure to be presented on "The Wonderful World of Disney" Sunday, Nov. 20, 7 to 8 p.m., on NBC-TV.

A business and pleasure trip for the Mouseketeers to Florida's Walt Disney World nearly turns into a disaster when they start feuding among themselves.

Their chaperone (Schell), with the help of local reporter Colleen Osborne (Worley), manages to patch things up and, with everyone back together again, plans an overnight camp-out.

The kids are nearly asleep when suddenly their tents are torn away; Mouseketeer Nita has accidentally tied them to the bumper of a camper, which takes off, dragging the tents behind it.

After taking their frustrations out on Nita, the kids awaken the next morning, discover that she has disappeared and refuse to perform until she is found.

The flight to Florida was the first time the Mouseketeers — except for Kelly Parsons, who lives there — had been to the Sunshine State. And, for some Mouseketeers like Angelo Florez and Scott Craig, it was the first time even flying in an airplane.

Once on the ground, there was never a dull or wasted moment spent by the lively group during their two week stay in the Magic Kingdom.

They were kept busy performing in their live shows and two parades a day, and even their lunch breaks were taken up with autograph sessions and interviews. During one performance, the crowd get so excited, Angelo and Scott were pulled off the stage.

"Wow, it was neat," exclaimed Scott. "There's nothing like live shows to get to know the fans. They really like us...Did you see that cute girl in the second row?"

JUST FOR FUN — Guest stars Jo Anne Worley and Ronnie Schell (center) pose with Mouseketeers Allison Fonte and Curtis Wong in the musical adventure, "The Mouseketeers at Walt Disney World" on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday, Nov. 20 (7-8 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Sexes Challenge Each Other Again

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, who upset Bill Cosby last April in tennis, tries to make actor Dick Van Patten her second straight victim, when "Celebrity Challenge of the Sexes," a two-hour primetime special, is broadcast by CBS Sports, Sunday, Nov. 20, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Other stars from the entertainment world who headline the broadcast include Gabe Kaplan, Susan Saint James, David Cassidy, Valerie Perrine, and Phyllis George.

Brent Musburger and comedian Flip Wilson cover the variety package of competitive events, along with celebrity coaches and co-hosts McLean Stevenson and Ms. Perrine.

Twenty-two television and movie stars take part in this second edition of head-to-head competition, which features, among others, Ms. Saint James matching swimming strokes with Cassidy; Olympic dacathlon winner Bruce Jenner taking on Kristy McNichol in skate-boarding; Elke Sommer going against Robert Conrad in a cross-country race; and Suzanne Somers chalking cues with Jack Klugman in a game of eight ball.

Following is a list of other stars and events:

Obstacle Course — Leslie Uggams vs. James Franciscus

Bicycle Race — Valerie Perrine vs. James Farentino

Track and Field — Lola Falana vs. LeVar Burton

Ping Pong — Phyllis George vs. Steve Garvey

Horse Jumping — Linda Blair vs. Tab Hunter

Bowling — Gabe Kaplan vs. Mackenzie Phillips.

Charles Bronson Stars In Mystery Adventure

Charles Bronson stars as tough police officer Torrey in "The Stone Killer," a hard-hitting mystery adventure drama to be colorcast on "The NBC Late Night Movie" Sunday, Nov. 20, at 11:30 p.m. on NBC-TV. Martin Balsam also stars.

The New York Times praised the film as..."exciting cinema, sometimes quite brilliantly idiomatic."

Underworld kingpin Vescari (Balsam), still smarting from the 1931 gangland slayings in many American cities that wiped out so many of his number and changed the structure of organized crime in the United States, has waited with infinite patienoe for his revenge.

Some 4-odd years later, Vescari masterminds a plot to train malcontented Vietnam veterans returning to the United States to eliminate everyone responsible for the killings.

Vescari runs smack up against the hard-headed Torrey (Bronson), and though the two never actually meet, they wage a fierce battle against each other.

TWO ROLES FOR ROCCO

Alex Rocco will be busy during the next month with two starring roles, back-to-back.

He's slated to portray an ill international hit man in "The Plague," a segment of "Starsky and Hutch."

Then, he stars opposite Tuesday Weld in "A Question of Guilt," a TV movie that will air on CBS.

A THRILL FOR BECKY

Charlton Heston Hosts As Stars Salute America's Greatest Films

Charlton Heston will host a star-studded gala, taped at the John F. Kennedy Canter for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., with Lauren Bacall, Henry Fonda, Sidney Poitier and other Hollywood greats participating in a toast to ten magnificent films. The special, "The Stars Salute America's Greatest Movies — The American Film Institute 10th Anniversary Gala," will air Monday, Nov. 21, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Henry Mancini has composed an overture of the black-tie event featuring themes from some of the 50 top-ranked feature films selected by members of the AFI.

A ballot of 50 film titles recently was mailed to AFI members, respresenting the top-scoring films from among more than 1,100 title of great American films selected by the members in July. AFL members have now selected "the greatest American film of all time" and their second, third, fourth and fifth choices.

From "The African Queen" to "Wutheing Heights," the list contains the titles of 50 assorted dramas, westerns, love stories, comedies, science fiction stories, tales of adventure and mysteries. There are silent and sound films, black-and-white and color films, animated films and musicals.

The oldest film on the list is "The Birth of a Nation" (1915) and the most recent is the extremely successful "Star Wars" (1977), .

Two films on the list were made in the Teens: "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," both by D.W. Griffith, and there's a single entry from the 20's — "The General" starring Buster Keaton.

Among the popular performers who were represented more than once on the list are: Humphrey Bogart ("The African Queen," "Casablanca," "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Treasure of Sierra Madre"): Marlon Brando ("The Godfather," "On the Waterfront" and "A Streetcar Named Desire"): Charles Chaplin ("City Lights" and "Modern Times"): Clark Gable ("Gone with the Wind" and "It Happened One Night") and Robert Redford ("All the President's Men," "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "The Sting.")

In celebration of its first decade, The American Film Institute will toast 10 magnificent American films, determined by ballot, including the one film designated the greatest motion picture in American film history, on "The Stars Salute America's Greatest Movies — The American Film Institute 10th Anniversary Gala," Monday Nov. 21 (9:30-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV. Some of the possible winners are pictured here: (Top Row, l to r) Marlon Brando in "On The Waterfront," Gary Merrill and Bette Davis in "All About Eve," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman in "Casablanca," Anne Bancroft and Dustin Hoffman in "The Graduate," Sessue Hayakawa and Alec Guinness in "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

It's Lucy They Want

"Lucy" has won again — and surrender to that ebullient, beloved and enduring redhead is a joyful defeat for her alter ego, comedienne Lucille Ball.

When the Lucys — both the comedy character and her actress creator — elected to retire, undefeated, from series television a few years ago, it was with the idea of going on to new and different challenges, in and out of show business.

Lucille Ball did just that, with guest appearances, teaching projects, and stardom in several comedy-drama specials.

"Lucy" just waited in the wings — while millions of television viewers all over the world continued to discover and rediscover her hilarious antics in the continuous re-runs of three successful series, "I Love Lucy," "The Lucy Show" and "Here's Lucy."

The waiting paid off. Lucille Ball and "Lucy" join forces again in "The Lucille Ball Special," an hour-long comedy event to be broadcast Monday, Nov. 21, 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Oh, it isn't exactly the same. But only the names have been changed to protect the guilty — a pair guilty of bringing more laughter to more people for more years than any other performers in television history.

Instead of Lucy Ricardo or Lucy Carmichael, it is Lucy Whittaker, a zany suburban housewife who invites the President to dinner and throws the whole neighborhood into trauma when her invitation is accepted. Underneath the new trappings, however, is the same Lucy the world loves, a scatter-brained, disaster-prone, exasperating, thoroughly beguiling clown.

PBS Airs 'Union Maids'

"Union Maids," airing Monday, Nov. 21, at 9 p.m. on PBS, tells the story of three real life "union maids" — Sylvia, Kate and Stella.

Like the union maids in the lyrics of the 1930s labor song, these three women put their faith in the union — for them the CIO — and became active members of the Chicago rank the file labor movement during the tumultuous thirties.

In this hour-long documentary, Sylvia, Kate and Stella recall their childhood and their first jobs in Chicago. They found jobs in a laundry, a garment factory and the stockyards, working 14-hour a day jobs that paid less to women and blacks. Quickly they learned that management had all the power and the workers none. Each of them turned to the unions to express their anger and correct these wrongs.

Sylvia, whose rather was a roofer, a follower of Marcus Garvey, and a union man, remembers him saying, "If you go to work, and there's a union — join it, no matter what kind it is. Any union is better than none. And, if there isn't one — then organize one."

With good humor and a passionate belief in what they accomplished, these three women tell the story of their growing radicalism and the first years of the CIO, organizing the rank and file workers the AFL did not want and industry did not want the CIO to have.

Archrival photos and newsreel footage are intercut with the interviews with Sylvia, Kate and Stella to reconstruct the largely forgotten, bloody labor struggles of the thirties.

The sound track features Pete Seeger singing the labor songs of the period, "Solidarity Forever," "Join the Union," "Carry It On" and "We Shall Not Be Moved."

The women remember the sitdowns, scabs, goon squads, unemployment, rent strikes, police brutality — and sympathy — that witnessed the stormy birth of the CIO. They regret the sexism that parvaded union organizing in the thirties and the growing conservatism of unions today. But, none of them regret the education they gave to the unions.

"We fought back every inch of the way, and we were proud," Kate says. "We were fighting for justice, and we gave out lives to it and gladly"'

DO THEY HEAR LAUGHTER?

Is a comedian aware of his audience's laughter? Yes, he is, according to Lawrence-Hilton Jacobs (Washington of "Welcome Back, Kotter").

"When you tell a joke, you let the laughter happen," Lawrence explains. "but you keep your concentration on your lines so you can continue as though the laughter never happened, but you sure hear it. The trick is to get the audience involved in what you are telling them, let them remember similar humorous incidents which happened to them in their own lives."

Mystery Of Britannic Revealed

The never-before-told full story from the First World War of the mysterious sinking of the His Majesty's Hospital Ship (H.M.H'S.) Britannic — bigger and mighter than her sister ship Titanic and the greatest seagoing, passenger luxury liner ever built until the Queen Mary — will be revealed by Captain Jacques Cousteau on "Calypso's Search for the Britannic," an hour-long special to be broadcast at 8 p.m. on PBS, Tuesday Nov. 22.

For sixty-one years, how the Britannic sank— whether by mine or torpedo — was never resolved by official sources. Not until Captain Cousteau and the crew and divers of Calypso discovered and explored the Aegean Sea site where the Britannic now lies was the mystery solved. What Cousteau found will be presented on the special.

Agreeing to join Cousteau aboard Calypso for the Britannic expedition was a Britannic survivor, 86-year-old Mrs. Sheila Macbeth Mitchell, of Edinburgh, Scotland, who went in a diving saucer to the bottom of the Aegean Sea to view the Britannic. Mrs. Mitchell, at the time of the Britannic sinking, was a 26-year-old nurse aboard the ship. Mrs. Mitchell and other Britannic survivors never agreed among themselves about the cause of the sinking. British Admiralty inquiries never came up with a definitive conclusion on how the ship sank.

Mrs. Mitchell'e recollections of what life was like on the Britannic right though to the dramatic moments after the ship was struck and her reactions to once again seeing the great ship on which she served are among the many highlights of "Calypso's Search for the Britannic."

In addition to revealing whether the Britannic was mined or torpedoed, the special answers still other questions about the Britannic;

Was the Britannic, in defiance of its neutral status, secretly carrying fresh British troops?

How could a single mine or torpedo have been fatal to a supposedly unsinkable ship — one whose construction was made even sturdier after the Titanic disaster?

Appearing with Cousteau, along with the indomitable .... Williams Tantum, vice president of the Titanic Historical Society, who served as a historical-technical advisor toward the preparation of the broadcast. The Society has a considerable repository of background information on the greatest ship disasters in modern times.

Laverne and Shirley flip out when their singing idol— Fabian — sings "Turn Me Loose" in the "Laverne and Shirley Meet Fabian" episode of the hit comedy series "Laverne and Shirley," on Tuesday, Nov. 22 (8:30-9 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Betty's Grown Up

Elinor Donahue was just 17-and-a-half in 1954 when she became a TV regular on "Father Knows Best," portraying Betty, one of the three children of Robert Young and Jan Wyatt. She grew up during those six years.

Later, she did one year on Andy Griffith's old show, then three years as a semi-regular on "The Odd Couple." Now she's back on television as a regular in "Mulligan's Stew," seen Tuesdays, 9 to 10 p.m., on NBC-TV, but this time around she's 40 and the mother of three and foster mother of four more.

"It's almost like home," she said, "because I have four of my own. However, what I bring to the show from home will be experience only."

Elinor says "The people in 'Mulligan's Stew' make the series different from other family shows on TV.

"I think it's as unique as your family and different from your neighbor's family. We're not aiming for similarity, nor are we copying a trend. We have a wonderful group of young actors playing the children and they are written as totally different personalities to personalize the show a bit."

Elinor and her husband, TV executive Harry Ackerman, have four boys who, she says, "are entirely different, and I have to deal with each a certain way. Our cast members are like that. They are not Hollywood children."

Virus Assaults Earth

After a deadly virus kills most of the earth's population, Steve Anders (Peter Graves) and his family wage a grim fight for survival in "Where Have All The People Gone?," the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" Nov. 22, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Anders and his two children, David (George O'Hanlon Jr.) and Deborah (Kathleen Quinlan), are in a cave during an archeology trip in the high Sierras when a blinding flash of light followed by a low rumble sweeps the earth.

Later they discover evidence that a mysterious virus caused by a radiation explosion has killed virtually everyone on earth.

Among the few survivors they encounter as they make their way back to civilization are a strange, disturbed woman (Verna Bloom) and a young boy (Michael-James Wixted). Noble Willingham portrays their guide in the mountains.

"Where Have All The People Gone?" was written by Lewis Carlino and Sandor Stern from a story by Carliho.

INFLATION'S EVERYWHERE

Inflation has even hit the cattle stampede business. A few years back it was customary for motion picture and television companies to reimburse ranchers 10 cents per pound for every pound of weight which an animal lost in stampede scenes. The poundage rate now is 35 cents per pound, producers learned as they made plans for a huge cattle stampede scene of ABC-TV's "How the West Was Won."

A 'DAMPENING' EXPERIENCE

In one scene of "The Mouseketeers At Disney World," the 'Disney Dozen' were supposed to fall off a dock and into a deep lagoon. During the taping, everything seemed to be running smoothly, but once in the water, the Mouseketeers panicked. The kids were pulled under by the weight of their water-logged clothes and shoes. Luckily, the associate producer realized that the cries of help were real, and not just a good acting job, and jumped in after them. The rest of the crew followed, and one by one the kids were pulled out of the water, looking more like drowned rats than Mouseketeers.

Ruth Gordon: One Octogenarian Too Busy To Consider Age

Ruth Gordon, the peppery actress of stage, motion picture and television, is one octogenarian who is too busy working to know what being old is.

The 80-year-old actress, a 1969 Oscar winner for her supporting role in "Rosemary's Baby," not only acts, but is a screenwriter, magazine writer and authoress.

She has a guest-starring role in "Try and Catch Me," the first of a series of "Columbo" specials this year. It will be telecast Monday, Nov. 21, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"I play an autboress, a cross between Lillian Hellman, for class and culture, and Agatha Christie, for writin' one hit after another," the actress said.

Despite the fact that Miss Gordon plays a role she is familiar with in real life (a writer, not a murderess), her character is a spunky old gal who shows no inclination to retire her typewriter. Miss Gordon shows no inclination to retire anything.

"It's like the great baseball player Satchel Page once said, 'How old would you be if you didn't know how old you were.' I don't know how old I am. I'm too busy working'," she said emphatiocally

"I've been acting for more than 60 years, and I don't intend to go on Social Security," she said. "I haven't even begun yet.

"I'm tough. I don't relax. I don't sit back. I don't take it easy. That's why I've been livin' in New York since 1914," Miss Gordon explained.

"There's something wrong with a New Yorker who waits for the 'walk' signal to cross the street. People go, they dodge the cars, brakes screech, the taxi drivers yell. That's New York and I love it."

That's also Ruth Gordon. She approaches life like a New Yorker crossing the street.

Hilarious Comedy Airs On Late Movie

Start with an attractive, bubbly and bored housewife-mother — throw her together with her best friend, a hip, funky and fed-up magazine editor — slowly the plot souffles into the delightful premise of the hilarious comedy, "Let's Switch," the "CBS Late Movie" airing Monday, Nov. 21, at 11:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Starring two of the most accomplished comedic talents in the business — Barbara Eden and Barbara Feldon — "Let's Switch" details some of the hilarious things that happen when two women of totally different views, values and tastes exchange roles and families for one incredible week.

Women will identify with the two females. What housewife hasn't spent some time dreaming of what it would be like to be a woman in business? Which one wouldn't gladly trade places to get out of the house, away from the kids, cleaning cooking, paying bills, etc.? And, on the other hand, are there any career women who, swamped with work, hassled by employers, beseiged by deadlines, wouldn't be thrilled to get away from it all by staying home for awhile? Each may find problems in the new roles, but at least the problems would be different ones.

'The Seagull' Gets Encore Presentation

Anton Chekhov's classic satiric drama about destructive personal relationships, "The Seagull," will receive an encore presentation on "Great Performances" Wednesday, Nov. 23, at 9 p.m. on PBS. Featuring Blythe Danner, Lee Grant, Frank Langella, Kevin McCarthy and Marian Mercer, "The Seagull" was adapted for television from a production of the Williamstown, Mass. Festival Theatre, using the same cast.

"The Seagull" is part of a drama mini-series exploring the off-stage lives of people in the theatre and was taped on location in the Berkshire hills of Mass., in an ideal Chekhovian setting at a wooded lakeside home.

Written in 1896, "The Seagull" is the first of what are considered Chekhov's four masterworks from his later period, the others being "Uncle Vanya," "The Cherry Orchard" and "The Three Sisters"' Each of the quartet derives its greatness from Chekhov's incisive, often humorous probing of human motivations.

Cooper's Classic Novel Airs Thanksgiving Eve

"The Last of the Mohicans," the dramatization of James Fenimore Cooper's classic adventure novel set against the turbulent backdrop of the French-Indian War, will be presented Thanksgiving Eve Wednesday, Nov. 23, 9 to 11 p.m., as the "NBC Movie of the Week.".

Steve Forrest sfars as Hawkeye, the intrepid white hunter who, with his two Indian blood brothers, helps a British officer trying to escort two young women safely through hostile Indian country.

Hawkeye and his boyhood friend Chingachgood, a Mohican chief, and Uncas, the chief's son, find themselves in one perilous situation after another when they decide to assist Major Duncan Heyward and his party.

Their mission is to deliver the daughters of a British colonel to his fort 30 miles through territory heavily populated with fierce Huron Indians, who are assisting the French in their battle against the English.

Out of the raw material of 18th century frontier America — its wilderness settlements, mountains, Indians, buckskin-clad scouts and British and French territorial rivalries — Cooper hewed the cornerstone of a distinctive and uniquely "American" literature.

"The Last of the Mohicans," is set in the wilderness of New York — in the mountains and valley Cooper had known as a boy. when he was a year old — in 1789 — Cooper's family had settled on the shores of Otsego Lake in central New York. His father founded the town which bears his name.

Following his expulsion from Yale in 1806, Cooper went to sea, serving as a foremast hand and a midshipman in the navy. In 1811 he left to marry and settle as a country gentleman first at Mamaronick, then Cooperstown, and finally on a farm in Scarsdale, New York.

At 31, Cooper's wife challenged his clan that he could write a better book than the English novel he was reading to her, and his writing career began. Although "Precaution" (1820) was a failure, Cooper continued to write, and his second novel, "The Spy A Tale of the Neutral Ground." established both his success and his style — the use of American characters, history and scenes as background for a romantic adventure.

CULTURES CLASH — One of the American pioneers (Steve Forrest, l) helping to settle state New York and an Indian (Don Shanks) witness a great deal of upheaval as their two cultures attempt to adjust to one another, in "The Last of the Mohicans," a dramatization of James Fenimore Cooper's classic novel to be colorcast on the "Movie of the Week," Nov. 23 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

George Burns Is Hotter Than Ever

If life begins at 40, as the philosophy goes, then George Burns is on his third "beginning" — and it's bigger and better and busier than ever.

At the age of 81, Burns continues his stardom in a field to which he has happily dedicated nearly 75 of his "best years." Semi-retired only a few years ago (coming out of his quiet life style just for an occasional benefit or guest appearance), Burns is now one of the hottest properties in the entertainment field.

He stars in his own comedy-variety special, "The George Burns One-Man Show," Wadnesday, Nov. 23, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV, assisted by guest stars Ann-Margret, The Captain and Tennille, Gladys Knight and the Pips, and Bob Hope.

The catalyst for the seemingly sudden resurgence of the Burns career was probably the "Oscar" he won for his role in the motion picture version of Neil Simon's "The Sunshine Boys." It was the first film he had made in 40 years, and, it was his first dramatic character role ever.

He scored a hit recently in a "Comedy Concert" at Carnegie Hall. He also attracted turnaway crowds at New York's Philharmonic Hall, at Los Angeles's Shubert Theatre, and at the London Palladium. And, he plays the Las Vegas theater-restaurant circuit regularly.

Burns stars with John Denver in the new feature film, "Oh, God," and is currently filming "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" with. Peter Frampton and The Bee Gees.

At work, George Burns is no phone-it-in performer. He is deeply involved in all aspects of any show he does, working closely with the writers, the director, the musicians.

Moreover, he loves every minute of it. He has told friends, co-workers and audiences of his love affair with show business: "I enjoy doing anything in show business, from vaudeville to drama to walk-ons.

Family Treat Is Presented

The special family holiday treat, "Once Upon A Brothers Grimm," which airs Thanksgiving Eve, Nov. 23, from 8 to 10 p.m. on CB8-TV, is based on the famed collectors of fairy tales.

As is so often the case, the magical stories that form the nucleue of "Once Upon a Brothers Grimm" were actually collected and published during a darkly ominous period in German history.

When Napoleon included Germany among his conquests in the early 19th Century, Jacob Grimm (1785-1863) and his brother, Wilhelm (17 6-1859) took it upon themselves to chronicle as much as they could digest of their native folklore.

Pay Tribute To Beatles

"The Beatles Forever," a Thanksgiving Day salute to the Beatles and their music by eight headliners from this country and England, will be presented on NBC-TV, Thursday, Nov. 24, 10 to 11 p.m.

"The Beatles Forever" is devoted entirely to the music of the famed English group which, in the 1960s, changed forever the thrust of popular music all over the world.

Stars of the special, Diahann Carroll, Ray Charles, Anthony Dowell (of England's Royal Ballet), Anthony Newley, Bernadette Peters, Tony Randall, Mel Tillis and composer-singer Paul Williams, will offer many of the popular Beatles numbers. Among them are "Let It Be," "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," "Yellow Submarine," "Something," "Yesterday" and a medley of "Michelle," "All My Loving," "A Little Help From My Friends," "Can't Buy Me Love," "Hey Jude," "And I Love Her." The singers perform in solos and in harmony with others, accompanied by Jack Parnell's orchestra. Dowell is joined by the Norman Maen Dancers as he performs an elaborate ballet sequence to the music of "Eleanor Rigby."

In his introduction Randall reminds the audience that the Beatles reoorded their first hit, "Love Me Do," in 1962. "From that moment forward," he says, "the world of music would never be the same. In just eight years these four remarkable young men would go on to write 195 songs...and sell well over half a billion records.

During a major production segment done in a circus setting, Randall notes, "The music of the Beatles was a veritable treasure trove. One never knew what might pop up next." (In addition to being the musical guide, Randall also sings during the telecast.)

In another segment, a languid Oriental setting serves as the backdrop for Newley as he sings "Within You, Without You." This is followed by Carroll's solos of "Here, There and Everywhere."

The closing medley features Charles singing "The Long and Winding Road" plus: "When I'm Sixty Four," "Here Comes the Sun," "Fool on the Hill," and "She's Leaving Home."

IN STEP TO BEATLES MUSIC — Bernadette Peters and Tony Randall dance to the music of the Beatles in a segment of "The Beatles Forever," a musical salute to the British group which will be colorcast Thursday, Nov. 24 (10-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Pike's Peeks

HOLLYWOOD — 'Miss Lillian' will make a guest appearance on Lucille Ball's special thie week, and the President's mother says it's a "special thrill" to be on the show. "She (Lucy) is one of my favorites," says the lively lady who will be seen talking on a telephone to Lucy at the conclusion of the program.

No longer in Splitsville are Olivia Newton-John and her manager-boy friend Lee Kramer. They ended the eight-month stand-off with a 10-day holiday in Rio de Janeiro.

Dating more than just now- and-then are 'Angel' Kate Jackson and Sam Elliot. Sam's just won more fans with his excellent performance in "Aspen."

Should you hear Tina Louise ferverntly intone, "let us spray," it's simply because she'll soon be seen on TV with Arrid deodorant commercials.

Not many people know it, but Redd Foxx frequently entertains at such prisons as Sing Sing and Attica. "Let's face it," he said, "these people need entertainment and I wish more performers would understand that and help out. I'm not the judge deciding why these men are in prison. I'm just trying to give them an hour or two of fun."

Word comes from NBC that they're in the process of coaxing Barbara Eden to do 'Jeannie' TV feature. If you remember, the perky blonde starred in that series for four seasons on NBC.

A superior court jury recently awarded Perry Como over $250,000 for injuries he suffered after falling off a stage during the taping of a '71 Christmas special which aired on NBC.

ABC's Barbara Walters is one of ten women considered the most powerful in America by Harper's Bazaar Magazine. Among the other woman selected are Billie Jean King, First Lady Rosalyn Carter and U.S. Representative (D.-Tex.) Barbara Jordan.

CBS is taking a long look at "Rafferty," "Lou Grant, "The Fitzpatricks," "We've Got Each Other" and "The Betty White Show," all new shows that are limping along in the ratings.

Producers Root For Underdogs

William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, probably the world's most prolific producers of filmed animation, have always rooted for the underdog. With pen and camera at the ready, they have defended the inept, the naive, the powerless.

Many of their cartoon misfits will be seen in a retrospective special, "Yabba Dabba Doo, The Happy World of Hanna-Barbera," Thursday, Nov. 24, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Actually, Hanna and Barbera started out not with an underdog but with an undercat — 'Tom,' of the comical duo of "Tom and Jerry" — the first cartoon characters created by them as an animation team. For 40 years of motion pictures and television, Jerry, the mouse, has outwitted, outfought, outsmarted and outdonned Tom, the cat.

Then there's everybody's favorite underbear, Yogi Bear, who wages a constant (and frequently losing) battle against autocratic authority.

Macy's 51st Parade

Both NBC and CBS will present live coverage of the star-studded 51st annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade Thursday, 9 to 12 noon. Ed McMahon will be NBC's host and Bill Conrad is to anchor parade festivities for CBS.

Among the many performers who will entertain at the parade exclusively for the NBC cameras are Shaun Cassidy, Mel Tillis, Lou Rawls, Gloria Gaynor and the world-famous Radio City Music Hall Rockettee.

NBC's coverage will also include a one-and-a-half-minute time-lapse photography sequence on the creation of two new floates from the start of work in early October until their completion six weeks later. The huge Goodyear figure balloons, always a parade favorite, will be brought to New York especially for the parade, and colorful marching bands from all areas of the United States will be performing too.

Various CBS primetime stars will provide commentary from four other famous parade sights.

For the fourth consecutive year, Jack Lord, star of "Hawaii Five-O" will host his hometown parade, the Aloha Floral Parade in Hawaii.

'Gunther Gebel-Williams: The Lord Of The Ring' Is Featured

The unparalleled skill, wary nerve and singleminded life style of the current greatest performer of "The Greatest Show on Earth" go on disply in "Gunther Gebel-Williams: The Lord of the Ring," a special to be presented Friday, Nov. 25, 8 to 9 p.m.,. on CBS-TV.

Gunther Gebel-Williams, unchallenged as the top circus animal trainer in history, is the leading star of Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus and a man whose entire existence, since he was a 12-year-old trouper in Germany, has been focused entirely upon the circus.

Academy Award-nominee Tony Curtis, who starred in the circus film "Trapeze," appears as host of the broadcast, which includes scenes of Gebel-Williams — a man who seldom, if ever, leaves his environment of animals— in action in his most spectacular arena performances, exhibiting incredible mastery of tigers, leopards, pumas, elephants and horses.

Also performing regularly with Gebel-Williams and his animals in the circus ring — and on this broadcast— are his wife, Sigrid, and his children, 14-year-old Tina and 7-year-old Oliver.

Prominently appearing on the broadcast, too, are a pair of premiere animal showmen, Siegfried and Roy, whose magic act incorporating large jungle cats is a longstanding hit nightclub attraction in Las Vegas. Appearing as well is bird trainer Ray Berwick and his "Birds of Prey" act, utilizing several species of birds — hawks, vultures, ravens and parrots. The act is an attraction at the San Diego (Calif.) Wild Animal Park.

Gebel-Williame's animal lingo is a mishmash of coined words, English words pronounced with a heavy German accent (he is a native of West Germany), German words, and the given names of the various animals.

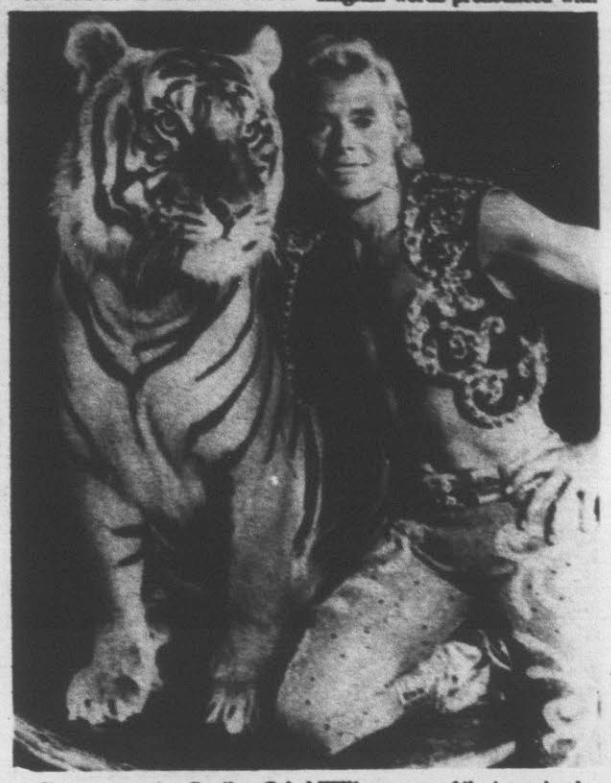
At other times, he cues his animals to begin a prescribed routine by simply calling their names in the proper sequence. Hence, a string of seemingly unintelligible commands might consist of his German-accented cries of, "Amos, Kung-fu, Otis, Sabrina, Chita, Tanya."

At other times, he'll shout, "Chumalee, chumaloo ebayeeah espa-yeeah sheepah," the meaning of which is a secret shared only by Gunther Gebel-Williams and his critters.



Circus superstar Gunther Gebel-Williams, one of the top animal trainers in history, appears with one of his tigers, in the special "Gunther Gebel-Williams: The Lord of the Ring," Friday, Nov. 25 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Rolling Stone' Celebrates 10th

A galaxy of celebrities will present a lively exploration of the world of rock music on "Rolling Stone...The 10th Anniversary," a special to be broadcast Friday, Nov. 25, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Among the diverse personalities who will appear on this special are Richard Baskin, Yvonne Elliman, Art Garfunkel, Teri Garr, Richie Havens, Gladys Knight and the Pips, Patti LaBelle, Jerry Lee Lewis, Kenny Loggins, Mike Love, Melissa Manchester, Steve Martin, Jim Messina, Bette Midler and the Harlettes, Keith Moon, Ted Neely, Donny Osmond, Billy Preston, Rubinoos, Martin Sheen, Phoebe Snow, Sissy Spacek, Leslie Ann Warren, Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis, The Coastera, the Lester Wilson Dancers, and singer-dancer Jeff Holland and Friends.

The special reflects the attitudes and culture associated with rock and ita audiences. Comedy skits, musical performances, interviews and animation provide an entertaining retrospective look at the phenomenal influence of this music as presented over the past decade on the pages of "Rolling Stone" magazine.

Despite their shared name, the magazine and the superstar rock group, The Rolling Stones, are not directly related. But they do share one common denominator— rock music was the catalyst of their success.

The magazine's editor and publisher, Jann Wenner, and a close friend and co-founder, the late Ralph Gleason, a respected music columnist, chose the name "Rolling Stone." The name for the publication, like the name for the rock group, was derived from a song by Muddy Waters, a longtime blues favorite, called "Rolling Stone." At the same time, the name provided an image association with the rolling Stones and with Bob Dylan's hit "Like a Rolling Stone."

The first edition of the magazine came off the presses on Nov. 9, 1967, carrying a brief editorial by Wenner stating its purpose..

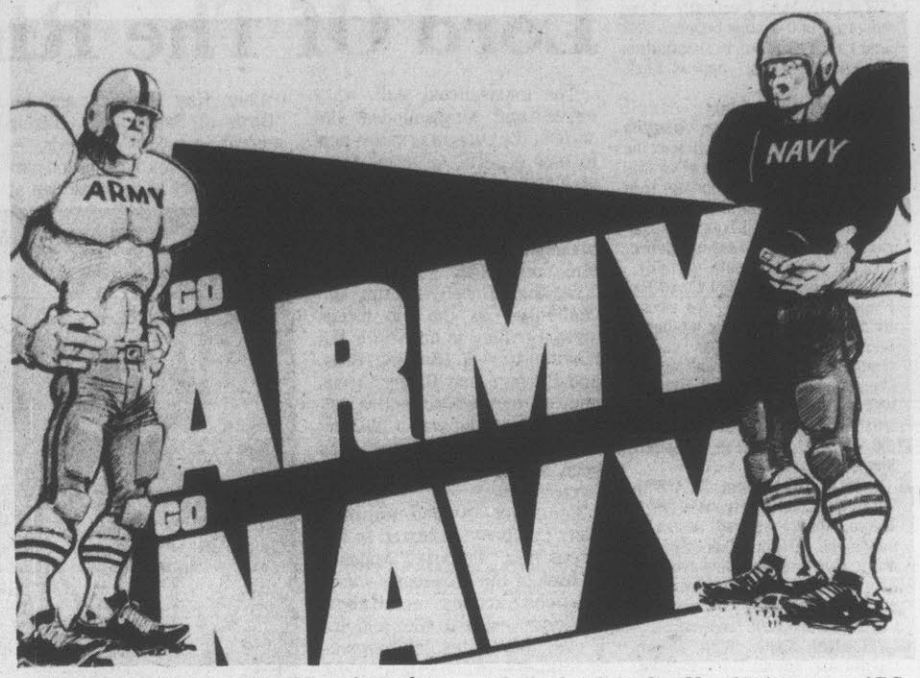
Army-Navy Battle On Homefront



The Army-Navy Classic with all the color and excitement of college-service rivalry will be televised on Saturday, Nov. 26 at 4 p.m. on ABC-TV.

There is a story that is sometimes told at the Naval Academy about the questioning of prospective football coaches.

The first thing that is asked of the applicant, so the story goes, is whether he would rather go 9-1 on the season and lose to Army, or go 1-9 for the year and beat Army.

It is really a loaded question. No matter what is answered, there will be people upset with the stand. Obviously, 10-0 with victory over Army would be a suitable solution; but certainly victory over Army is a 'must' under any conditions.

There is no doubt that the Army-Navy game carries more emotional punch than any other series going.

On the face of it, the Army-Navy game which will be televised on Saturday, Nov. 26, at 4 p.m. on ABC-TV, should not mean much to anybody other than the coaches, players and the parents of the aforementioned participants.

After all, there are no bowl bids at stake, no Heisman Trophy candidates or national rankings to be considered. From a rational viewpoint, the game is a loser. Not hardly. No one ever said sports were rational.

Despite the ingredients that would doom any other game in the nation to benign neglect, the Army-Navy, game will be it's usual success.

The Stadium will be packed with a 100,000 capacity, ABC will enjoy one of its highest ratings of the season and the game will be subject to talk for several weeks afterwards.

Reiner Signs With ABC

Rob Reiner, who has played Archie Bunker's son-in-law Mike Stivic for eight seasons on "All in the Family," has entered into a multi-faceted long-range agreement with ABC-TV, Fred Silverman, President, ABC Entertainment, announced recently.

The agreement gives ABC exclusive rights to his acting services for a television series which could commence during the 1978-79 broadcast season, and calls for three pilot projects to be written and produced by Mr. Reiner and his partner Phil Mishkin.

Bears' Wally Chambers Is Mean As Veteran Defensive Lineman

The Chicago Bears were once a team as synonymous with pro football as Al Capone is with the city of Chicago. While their winning tradition has faded somewhat during the past decade, their reputation as a physical football team is as vivid as ever. The Bears may not beat you on the scoreboard, but pro players readily confess the fact that they will beat the daylights out of you on the field.

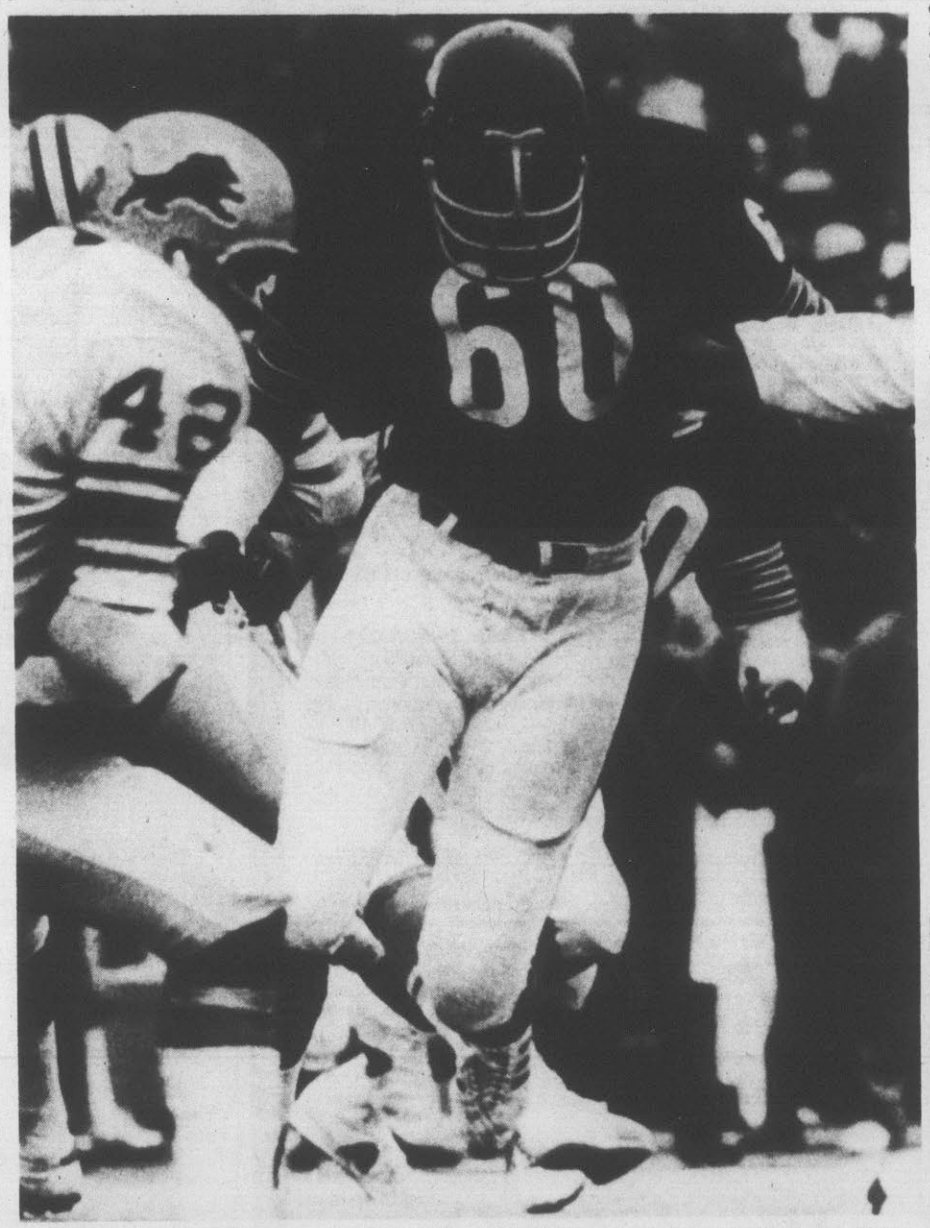
Playoff contenders hate having the Bears on their schedule near the end of the season because they may not be in much shape to play next week's important game. While Minnesota and Green Bay have been in the limelight of the black and blue division, Detroit and especially Chicago have had more to do with keeping the division's nickname in tact.

When the Chicago Bears meet the Detroit Lions on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24, at 12:30 p.m. on CBS-TV, you can be assured of black and blue football at its best.

Now in his fifth season with the Bears, Wally Chambers stands out like a glittering diamond. He is quickly becoming recognized as one of the best defensive lineman in the game.

The three-time All Pro says he has ambivalent feelings about dealing out punishment. "We're all playing this game together and trying to make a living out of it. If I hit a quarterback and really injured him so he can't play anymore, I'll feel very bad about it. It's not part of my job to injure a man.

"But if I just knock him a little woozy so he has to leave the game for a few plays or maybe the rest of the game, that is my job. When I stick a guy I want to stick him hard enough to hear him say, 'Ooohhhh' I want to hear him groan."



Chicago's awesome defensive tackle, Wally Chambers, was voted the Bulldog Award last season by the offensive players as the NFL's top defensive lineman. The Chicago Bears battle the Detroit Lions in a tough 'Black and Blue' divisional game, Thursday, Nov. 24 at 12:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Pittsburgh Faces Dallas Cowboys

The Pittsburgh Steelers have a real battle going on this year in the AFC Central Division. Even though the Steelers retain their lead as the AFC's top defensive team, they have had a real problem this season offensively. It has been their inability to run the football successfully. In 1976 Pittsburgh gained 65 percent of their yards rushing and had the third highest total in pro football history as they averaged over 200 yards a game. This year, they went into the month of Nov. with just 48 percent of their total yards running the football.

This Sunday, Nov. 20, the Steelers will take on the awesome Dallas Cowboys, and CBS will televise the action, beginning at 4 p.m.

The Steelers are known as a bruising, hard-hitting team. They have many well-known 'tough' stars— Mean Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes, T.C. Greenwood, Jack Lambert. You've probably associated these names with the Steeler defense, but probably the toughest man on the Steeler's roster is Robert 'Rocky' Bleier.

Bleier is a shining example of what courage and determination are all about. Most people know his story. As a GI wounded in Vietnam combat, he was hit in the left thigh by small-arms fire. Shortly thereafter, shrapnel was blown into both his legs after a grenade exploded at his feet, shattering several bones in his right foot. After surgery, Rocky Bleier was informed by Army doctors that his football career was finished. After another operation, Bleier was discharged and went to the Steelers' training camp in 1970. Their orthopedic surgeon confirmed the opinion of the Army doctors — no more football.

'Big Foot' Hits Coliseum

The UCLA-USC gridiron battle is an event that has been in existence since 1929. This year, UCLA will meet USC at the Los Angeles Coliseum Friday, Nov. 25, and the game will be one of three regional telecasts that will be viewed on some ABC stations starting at 9 p.m.

The UCLA Bruins have 35 returning lettermen from the 1976 squad that was 9-2-1, second in the Pacific 8. Among their big offensive guns is right halfback Theotis "Big Foot" Brown.

Last season, Brown became the first UCLA sophomore even to rush for 1,000 yards in a season. He was also their second leading receiver with 12 catches. Brown had three games over 100 yards — all played on national television.

SIMON IN NBC SPECIAL

Paul Simon will star in a variety special on NBC-TV Dec. 8, "The Paul Simon Special." The show will feature Simon in musical and comedy segments with his guests Chevy Chase, the Jesse Dixon Singers, Art Garfunkel, Charles Grodin, Eric Idle, Twyla Tharp and her dance company, and Lily Tomlin.

STEWART FOR DEFENSE DEPARTMENT

In a special arrangement with the U.S. Defense Department, Marty Ingels has signed Jimmy Stewart for a rare TV appearance as its 1978 media chairman.

Initiating a new military recruiting concept utilizing the slogan that "It's different than it was," the campaign will use some clips of Stewart's old war pictures.

NBC CALLS FOR RENEWALS

NBC-TV, in the first of this season's renewals, has picked up its options on "CHiPs" and "The Bionic Woman," two shows new to its slate this season.

HATCH SIGNED

Richard Hatch as been signed to star as Jan Berry, of the Jan and Dean singing team, in "Dead Man's Curve," a two-hour motion picture of CBS-TV.

FRANCIS SIGNED FOR SERIES

Anne Francis has been signed for a guest starring role in "The Coldest Beauty of Them All," an episode of "What Ever Happened to the Class of '65," NBC-TV's anthology series.

SECOND-GENERATION STARS

Second-generation Hollywood is well represented in the cast of "Operation Petticoat." Richard Marion is the son of Elena Verdugo and screenwriter Charles Marion' Melinda Naud is the daughter of producer Thomas H. Naud Jr.; and Jamie Lee Curtis is the daughter of Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh.

'Family Plot' Is One More Hitchcock Winner

"Family Plot," the "NBC Saturday Movie" airing Nov. 26, 9 to 11:20 p.m. on NBC-TV, is a beautifully constructed, literately witty and thoroughly involving comedy suspense-drama crafted with the sure hands of that impudent genius, Alfred Hitchcock. moving even further away from the shuddery sensibilities of his best-known films, Hitchcock seems to have approached his 53rd feature movie in a mellow and benign mood, spinning his complex web of suspense with a far greater accent on rich humor than on shock value, as if he didn't want viewers to feel even vaguely threatened or uncomfortable en route to their catharsis.

The heroes of "Family Plot," superbly played by Barbara Harris and Bruce Dern, are a beguiling pair of lower-echelon con aritsts contriving to track down the missing heir to a dowager's fortune and hoping to earn a $10,000 finder's fee for their trouble. While Harris, a bogus psychic, manipulates the old woman into revealing all sorts of long forgotten clues during daily seances, Dern, an unemployed actor who works as a cabbie, uses the information she gives him to set off on an amateur detective hunt for the missing heir. Through more than a few coincidences, their search causes them to continually cross the paths of the second couple (William Devane and Karen Black), whose own pursuit of fortune takes the form of consummately executed kidnappings. Their search, needless to say, gradually uncovers more than they really want to know.

Providing two of the most engaging characters ever to fill Hitchcock's view-finder, are Harris and Dern as a pair of good-hearted bumblers whose liveliness and emotional range firmly counters the kind of cool, cipher-like performers the director is noted for wanting from his actors. As their destined nemesis, Devane checks in effectively as another suave but despicable Hitchcock villain, while Black, as his suddenly rebellious partner, conforms more closely to the cipher quality.

TWO ROLES FOR ROCCO

Alex Rocco will be busy during the next month with two starring roles, back-to-back.

He's slated to portray an ill international hit man in "The Plague," a segment of "Starsky and Hutch."

Then, he stars opposite Tuesday Weld in "A Question of Guilt," a TV movie that will air on CBS.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR JOSEPH P. TEASDALE, Governor of Missouri

Missouri was first to equip patrol cars with CB's. Have they proven worthwhile? — G. Hill, Seattle, Wash.

● I'm pleased with our CB radio program. In two years of operation, highway patrol officers received over 172,000 CB reports, which enabled them to perform 114,000 vital services for the public. Many appropriate enforcement actions were also made possible by cooperation from CBers. The program continues with emphasis on an experimental project called CARS (Citizens Aid Radio System), which relays CB calls to headquarters when no patrol cars are in radio range.

FOR CANDICE BERGEN, actress

I read a report that said a poll of people taken in every state showed that they agreed you were one of our most believable and trusted actresses. How do you feel about that? — S.G., Casper, Wyo.

● I couldn't believe it — especially when I heard their comments that I'd run my life very well socially as well as professionally and personally. I see the result as a real responsibility. When you're supposed to have that kind of integrity, it's a hard thing to have to live up to.

FOR JULIA CHILD, gourmet and author

Can your husband cook? Will he help you with Thanksgiving dinner? — J.V., Portland, Ore.

● Paul knows his way around the kitchen and can turn out a meal. He'll give me a hand if I want him to. I think of him as more of a critic than as a chef. If we have people in for dinner, he'll fix the mushrooms, set the table, do the "menial" work. Paul [a photographer and artist] tells me: "I'm here. I'll do anything. I don't care what it is."

FOR EDDIE RABBITT, singer and composer

My girlfriend said you wrote Elvis Presley's "Kentucky Rain," and I'm sure it was Mac Davis. Who is right? — L. S., Staunton, Va.

● Your girlfriend. Want to hear a sad story? Soon after the song became Elvis's 50th to sell a million, I met him in Las Vegas. I waited outside his dressing room, he came out, gave me a big smile and said, "Nice to meet ya, and...." At that point, he was interrupted and went away. He never came back and never finished what he was going to say. I keep wondering what the rest of the sentence was.

FOR BRAMWELL TRIPP, commissioner, Salvation Army

Do you feel that Guys and Dolls on stage and screen has had any effect on your image? — B.A., Atlanta, Ga.

● Because the Salvation Army is a uniformed group and employs unusual methods, it is often the subject of comment and caricature. We cannot prevent or correct all distortions or parodies, but we are grateful if some aspect of our caring ministry comes through to the people.

FOR LISA CARROLL, recording star

What do you do about Thanksgiving dinner when you're touring? — J.C., Racine Wis.

● I always manage to sit down to a feast, such as the time, eight years ago, when I was appearing in Africa. Turkey wasn't available at the hotel, so I got in touch with the American Embassy, which miraculously produced a couple of huge birds and all the trimmings. With the help of Swahili-speaking chefs (who'd never made a stuffed turkey before) and explicit sign language, I managed to get out a dinner for the staff and guests — including my friend Jack Paar.

FOR JOSETTE BANZET, starring in The Other Side of Midnight

Which do you enjoy hearing more — that you're talented or that you're beautiful? — W.C., Little Rock, Ark.

● I first learned I was pretty at 4 and have been hearing it ever since, so I accept it. Knowing I'm beautiful means nothing. Even if I weren't, I'd still have become an actress — that's what is important to me. I realize I'm lucky having good skin, good hair, good teeth, good bone structure, but my greatest compliment was being told I'm a mixture of Anna Magnani and Ingrid Bergman. If only it were true!

FOR SHAUN CASSIDY, star of TV's The Hardy Boys

What is the design on your ring? — V.G., Joplin, Mo.

● It's the Cassidy family crest — my two brothers [Patrick and Ryan] and half-brother [David] have similar rings. About 10 years ago, my dad checked into our Irish heritage (back in the old country we were the O'Cassidys) and found the family crest — a fancy seal with a banner under it. He had rings made up for all of us. I almost never take mine off and, when I do, I keep it in a safe place. I'll always treasure that ring.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I've heard Peter Frampton hates performing in front of a live audience. Is this so? — R.C., Grand Forks, N.D.

● The reverse is true. We checked with Peter, who told us: "I'd much rather be on the stage because I enjoy feeding off the audience. It's stimulating — each audience is different. People always do something to surprise you and keep you on your toes, such as yelling out for songs you don't expect. Even the heckling is a challenge." The rock star also regards the stage as the perfect rehearsal hall before cutting records.

FOR STEVE KARMEN, composer of TV and radio jingles

Are people impressed or unimpressed when you tell them what you do? — M.D., Athens, Ohio

● People find the jingle business a fascinating topic of conversation. In America, more advertising music is heard with more repetition than any other kind of music. My jingles are on every radio and television station, and no matter what kind of programming you choose to watch, from the cartoon shows to the soap operas to the prime-time network shows to the late movies, I'm there. The advertising business is fascinating to talk and learn about.

PRO AND CON

Should We Set Import Restrictions To Aid Depressed Industries?

PRO Sen. Clifford P. Hansen (R.-Wyo.), Finance Committee

Common sense requires we safeguard American industry and labor against excessive foreign competition. While our laws theoretically do this, they need strengthening. Those who argue against such protection should talk to the 18,000 steel workers who've been laid off. They should talk to sugar-beet growers nationwide who get less for this product than it costs to produce it. These people know from bitter experience what happens when a market is undercut by excessive foreign imports. Open and nondiscriminatory trade should prevail to the maximum extent possible. Nonetheless, we cannot sacrifice our own workers and economy.

CON Rep. Sam Gibbons (D.-Fla.), Ways and Means Committee

Throughout history those who have tried to solve their general economic problems by import restrictions have found the attempt only made their problems worse. All too often imports become an easy scapegoat for other kinds of economic problems — bad management or failure to modernize, for example. Needless import restrictions are about the quickest way to cripple an industry because they make it possible to get by for a while without making the changes that are really needed. Remember, those who ask for import restrictions to ensure "reasonable prices" for their products are asking us to do to ourselves what the Arab oil cartel is doing to us.

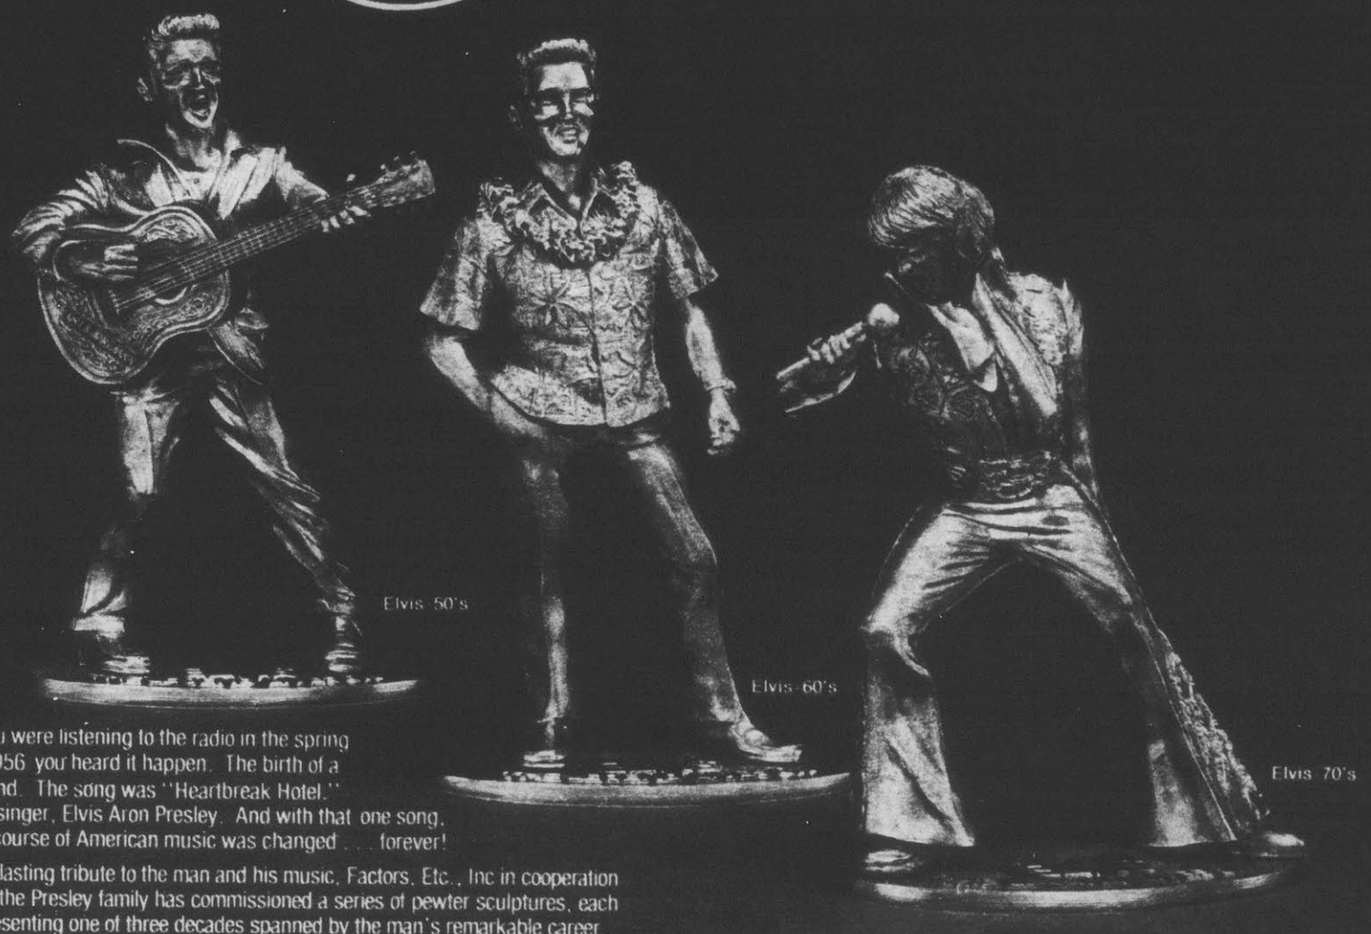
The Legend Lives On

Elvis



If you were listening to the radio in the spring of 1956 you heard it happen. The birth of a legend. The song was "Heartbreak Hotel." The singer, Elvis Aron Presley. And with that one song, the course of American music was changed . . . forever!

As a lasting tribute to the man and his music, Factors, Etc., Inc in cooperation with the Presley family has commissioned a series of pewter sculptures, each representing one of three decades spanned by the man's remarkable career. Elvis of the 50's, the 60's and the 70's. The sculptures stand 5" high, weigh approximately 453 grams (1 full lb.) and display outstanding craftsmanship. Pewter has been chosen for its lustrous beauty, its ageless durability and because it allows us to offer these remarkable works at a price that can be afforded by Elvis fans, and collectors of fine pewter alike.

As a strictly limited edition, each statue will be signed in the mold by the artist numbered consecutively, and registered. Each purchaser's name will be displayed in the memorial volume at the official Presley Museum. Furthermore, each is hand-finished, so that no two are identical. And, each statue will be accompanied by a certificate of authenticity endorsed by Elvis' father, Vernon Presley.

Orders will be accepted through January 8, 1978 (the day Elvis would have celebrated his 43rd birthday). After the processing of all orders, the molds will be destroyed thereby insuring the value of this limited series forever.

ADOPTEES: THE BITTERSWEET SEARCH FOR LOST FAMILIES

Lynn Goldsmith

Adoptee Mary Anne Cohen of ALMA.

Dan Brinzac

Florence Fisher inspired Ricki.

By Gloria Hochman

It was January 29, 1975, a bleak, frosty day in New York City. Ricki Kaplan and her husband, Jerry, huddled together for an extra minute on the steps outside an apartment building in the Bronx. Then Ricki bit her lower lip, tucked back her brown hair and pressed the buzzer.

"I couldn't believe it," Ricki remembers. "After all those years of agonizing and searching, of hating and loving, there she was. My mother.

"She had asked me not to cry, so I swallowed the lump in my throat. But when I saw Michael — my brother — I couldn't hold back. I took off my glasses, put my arms around him and sobbed. I always knew he existed. And now here I was, touching him."

The reunion with her mother and brother was the end of a lifelong search and the beginning of a "peace of mind" Ricki thought she would never have.

Ricki was an adopted child, tortured by feelings of rootlessness and rejection. Her mother had given her up when she was a baby, and Ricki recalls two sets of foster parents before she was adopted, at 9, by Lillian and Harry Silverstein.

"I was 3 when I found out that the people I was living with were not my parents," Ricki recalls. "I felt different and strange, and I think even then I knew, unconsciously, that someday I would have to search for my beginnings."

"I couldn't believe it. After all those years of agonizing and searching, of wondering and worrying, of hating and loving, there she was. My mother."

Ricki is one of thousands of adopted adults who have searched or are searching for their parents. Some of them are well known, such as poet Rod McKuen, who wrote a book about finding his father, newscaster Roger Grimsby, who traveled to California to find his mother because "I had to see her face," and Steve Allen, who searched for his half-brother for 10 years.

Many of these searchers belong to ALMA, the Adoptees Liberty Movement Association in New York City, or to similar organizations throughout the country. They are demanding the right to know their origin. They also are attacking adoption secrecy standards as "outmoded" and "unconstitutional."

"Not knowing my roots was bad enough, but society deciding I didn't have the right to know was intolerable," says Florence Fisher, ALMA's spunky founder.

In the beginning, Ricki Kaplan was not as outraged as Ms. Fisher and did not plan to turn her private agony into a civil-rights confrontation. She just wanted to ease the pain that pummeled her insides and chipped away at her sanity.

Ricki can talk about it now, but her voice still chokes with emotion and her eyes brim with moisture as she relives her past.

"I know that my mother gave me up when I was 4 months old," says Ricki, "but I remember nothing of my life until I was 2. For a year I lived normally, thinking that the people I called 'Mom' and 'Dad' were my parents. But when I started nursery school, I had to use my legal, different name. I asked for an explanation, and they told me my father had died and my mother was unable to care for me. I had a brother. That was all they knew.

"I have a vague recollection of seeing my natural mother once, when I was about 3. I think she was explaining why she couldn't take care of me. It is all a blur, but I remember feeling a tremendous amount of anger and confusion. I didn't know why she was intruding in my life. I wanted her to disappear.

"Before she went away, she gave me a Teddy bear, and I tore it to shreds."

Ricki says her foster parents were "marvelous" to her and intended to adopt her. But they developed marital problems and separated. "In those days, the agency wouldn't permit a separated couple to adopt," Ricki explains. "So one day, the social worker told me I would be going to another foster home."

Ricki hated her second foster home. She felt isolated from her past and thought she was the only child caught in the limbo of foster care. Then, just before her ninth birthday, Ricki went to live with her adoptive parents. She had difficulty ad-

THREE OTHER ADOPTEES TELL THEIR STORIES

In the past, adoptees curious about their origin were considered maladjusted and emotionally disturbed. Today a spate of psychiatric studies indicates that it is probably more unusual for adoptees not to be interested in their backgrounds.

These findings reinforce the increasing demand of adopted adults for access to their birth records, an issue that has surfaced as one of the most heated controversies of the 70's.

Adoptees who have searched or are searching say that what they find does not matter. It is just important that they find the truth about themselves. Here are the stories of what three of them have found about their past. These stories are especially appropriate now since this is National Adoption Week — as well as Thanksgiving.

Glenda S., who found her mother after a four-year search, says, "I had imagined my mother to be everything from Madame Curie to a down-and-out bum, so nothing could have shocked me." Actually, Glenda's mother, whom she located in Des Moines, Iowa, is a 76-year-old seamstress. Glenda, who is a clothing designer, says, "It was the most marvelous feeling to know that I could trace my skills to my mother — this tiny, beautiful woman whom I had never known. It gave me a sense of completeness."

Betty K. echoes similar feelings. "I spent a good part of my adolescence looking at people's faces, trying to see if anyone looked like me," she says. "When I finally met my mother, I was so thrilled. I love to hug, and I came from an adoptive family of people who don't touch other people. It was so nice to have someone who wanted to hug me back."

Mary Lou R.'s mother had died following childbirth, but Mary Lou managed to locate a cousin, who was born the same day she was, and a half-brother with whom she has become close. Part of her background, however, is still shrouded in mystery. Mary Lou has a piece of flesh missing from her buttock, and a geneologist has told her that it may mark the spot where a Siamese twin was severed. Mary Lou says, "I have a feeling that somewhere I have a twin brother, living or dead. And I won't stop looking until I find out."

justing and spent the first year testing the Silversteins to see whether they would send her back to the adoption agency.

"Through my growing-up years, my thoughts were muddled. I wanted to know what happened to my birth mother and to my original foster parents. I believed that my natural mother gave me away because I was bad. I didn't know what it was about me that made everybody reject me.

"I also wondered about my past. I wondered what I looked like when I was a baby. There were no pictures of me. It was as though, full grown at 9, I had dropped out of the sky."

When Ricki married Jerry, it was with a commitment that he would help her search for her past. "It was a tremendous burden," Ricki says, "but I don't think I could have married anyone who would not have been supportive."

Ricki's foster father was easy to find. Although he had moved several times, his name was listed in one of the Long Island telephone directories. "I kept postponing calling him because I was so scared," Ricki says. "When I finally found the courage, a woman answered the phone and said he was not home. I timidly asked her whether she knew if he had ever had a foster child. She responded, 'Yes, a girl named Rosemarie Smith.' 'I'm Rosemarie Smith [Ricki's original name],' I whispered. The woman, who turned out to be my foster father's second wife, screamed with joy and said, 'He's looked all over for you.'

"When he and his wife came to see me, he brought me daisies. He still thought I was a little girl, and what do you bring to a little girl? Daisies. It was perfect. We went out to eat and spent the day together."

In time, however, the strain left and the questions started. "It turned out he had kept a file on me," Ricki recalls, "because he thought I might someday come to him for help, but it all led to a dead end.

"Then, suddenly, things began to come together. A friend who thought I was crazy called to tell me about a television show with a 'crazy lady' on it who was searching for her birth parents."

The "crazy lady" was Florence Fisher, and a few weeks later, Ricki attended a meeting of Florence's organization, ALMA, in Brooklyn. "There were about 10 of us there, and, for the first time, I found out that there were others like me," Ricki says.

Ricki's progress was slow and painful. "For three years, Jerry and I searched. Then we took all our information and charted it. We began calling everyone in New York with my mother's maiden name. Several times I wanted to quit. But Jerry was committed.

"In desperation I sent out a letter of search to all people in this area with my mother's married name," continues Ricki. "I asked for any information anyone could give me. I got one answer. It included my hospital number and my mother's hospital number. With that information, I managed to get my records."

Within a couple of weeks, Ricki had obtained her mother's birth certificate. The information on it gave her new clues. She went back to her telephone. "Finally, after dozens of calls, a woman in the Bronx referred me to someone that she thought could help. That someone turned out to be my grandmother's sister. I learned that my grandmother lived with my mother in the Bronx, and I got the phone number.

"I was so scared," Ricki says. "I couldn't make that final phone call, so I hired a private detective to do it for me."

The next day, after the detective had made the initial contact, Ricki called her mother. "My fingers trembled as I dialed," she remembers. "When I heard her voice, I started to cry. She asked, 'Why are you crying?' I told her, 'Because I am happy.' We arranged to visit her that night.

"The entire family was there — my mother's sister and her husband and all my siblings.

"I asked a lot of questions, many of them about health. I had a lot of fears about that. I felt there was some dark secret about my health. Most important, I learned that my mother had not given me up because I was bad. She felt that the agency had pressed her into releasing me for adoption."

At the end of the evening, Ricki was looking forward to a healthy, happy relationship with her mother. Unfortunately, it did not work out that way. "Our personalities were too much alike," Ricki admits. "We are both strong-willed, stubborn and supersensitive, and we clashed."

Still, Ricki does not regret her search. "It made a lot of difference in my life," she says. "I feel like a complete person now. I am more secure, less depressed. I feel as though I deserve to be loved."

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

MYSTERIES OF THE FIVE SENSES

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. A number of people not only can see colors but they also associate them with sound and taste.
2. Athletically inclined people have better vision than nonathletes.
3. What you're listening to determines how well you hear with each ear.
4. A woman's sense of touch is more highly developed than a man's.
5. Your sense of smell is affected by when you've eaten and how much you weigh.
6. How well your sense of smell functions is likely to depend on whether you're an introvert or an extrovert.

ANSWERS

1. True. A Yale University study cites findings showing that in addition to experiencing colors visually many people actually can hear colors, and others can taste them. In colored taste each flavor has a different color. Examples are cited in which violin music is experienced visually as a dance of sparkling white and gold stripes and the taste of vinegar conjures up a bright green color. Moreover, "In colored hearing produced by speech sounds, the induced hues and brightness can be related to the structure of the vowels."
2. True. Tests conducted at the University of Arizona investigated differences in the field of vision between men and women students who were active in athletics and those who were not. Results showed that "both the vertical and horizontal fields of vision are superior for athletes compared with nonathletes." A further finding: females with athletic ability demonstrated a greater vertical range of vision than did athletically gifted males.
3. True. Studies at the Paedological Institute of Research (Amsterdam) show that most people hear speech sounds more distinctly with the right ear. Music, however, is heard with greater fidelity with the left ear. It's noted that the auditory characteristics of each ear are affected by different hemispheres of the brain. Other studies bear out these findings.
4. True. Columbia University studies have shown that women have greater tactile sensitivity (sense of touch) than men. And the studies note that this sensitivity combines with a superior manual dexterity that "enables women to perform manipulatory tasks in industry better and more efficiently than men and to excel in occupations requiring skillful use of the hands, such as sewing, dental laboratory work and microscopic research in biology and biochemistry, etc."
5. True. Studies at France's Claude Bernard University found that a person's sense of smell — where food is concerned — is most sensitive before eating. This sensitivity tends to disappear or diminish significantly after a meal. There was, however, one exception: with overweight subjects, the sense of smell is not affected by eating. The food smells just as mouth-watering as it did before the meal.
6. True. At the Psychological Laboratory, University of Utrecht (Netherlands), men and women students were given tests to determine the sensitivity levels of their sense of smell. These tests were followed by personality tests. Results showed that extroverts "manifested greater olfactory acuity" (sharpness and sensitivity of the sense of smell) than introverts.

LAST-MINUTE THANKSGIVING IDEAS

Even with the big event only a few days away, you still have plenty of time for these extra choices.

By Marilyn Hansen

CREAM OF WILD RICE SOUP*

- 1 pkg. (6 ozs.) long grain and wild rice mix
- 1½ tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1½ tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon mace
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 3 cans (13¾ ozs.) chicken broth
- 1 pt. half-and-half or light cream
- ½ cup dry white wine
- Sour cream or chopped parsley, garnish

1. Cook rice mix as package directs.
2. Melt butter in Dutch oven; add onion and sauté, stirring until tender, about 8 minutes. Stir in flour, salt, mace and pepper smoothly.
3. Add cooked rice, chicken broth, half-and-half and wine. Heat, stirring until mixture just comes to the boiling point. Remove from heat.
4. Ladle about 1½ cups soup into blender; cover and blend until smooth. Pour into large bowl. Repeat until all of soup is blended.
5. Return soup to Dutch oven and heat, stirring occasionally until heated through.
6. Serve garnished with a small spoonful of sour cream or a sprinkle of chopped parsley. Makes about 2½ qts.

*May be made day before and refrigerated. Reheat gently, stirring. Thin with a little milk, if desired.

EASY CREAMED ONIONS AND CELERY

- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups diagonally sliced celery
- 1 can (10½ ozs.) cream of celery soup
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon dry sherry
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 2 jars (16-oz. size) boiled white onions, drained
- ½ cup crushed pretzels

1. In 2 tablespoons butter, sauté celery 3 minutes, until crisp-tender. Oven: 350°F.
2. In bowl, smoothly combine celery soup, milk, sherry and paprika.
3. Stir celery and onions into soup mixture; turn into 1½-qt. casserole
4. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter; stir in pretzels. Sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake in preheated oven about 30 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 6 servings

GLAZED ROAST TURKEY BREAST

- 1 5-lb. frozen, unthawed turkey breast, with ribs, portion wing, portion back and neck skin
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1 cup jellied cranberry sauce
- 1 cup apricot jam
- 1 tablespoon brandy or sherry

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Rub turkey breast with oil; place directly on rack, round-side up. Cover lightly with foil.
2. Roast for 3½ hours. Remove from oven and brush with glaze.
3. Return to oven and roast 1 hour longer without foil tent.
4. Cranberry-Apricot Glaze: In blender container, combine cranberry sauce, apricot jam and brandy. Blend, covered, until smooth; use as glaze for turkey. Serve remaining glaze as sauce.

Makes 6 servings

Editor's note: You can roast turkey breast, thawed, in the same manner at 350°F. for 2 to 2¼ hours.

SIDE-BY-SIDE STUFFING

- 1 box (6 ozs.) saucepan stuffing mix
- ½ lb. bulk pork sausage
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- ¼ cup sliced almonds

1. Make up stuffing mix according to package directions.
2. In large skillet or Dutch oven, cook sausage and onions, stirring to break up sausage as it cooks. Stir in pepper.
3. Add stuffing to sausage mixture; stir. Spoon into greased 1½-qt. casserole.
4. Mix butter and almonds and sprinkle over stuffing. Bake, uncovered, in preheated 350°F. oven for about 20 minutes.

Makes 6 servings

DEEP DISH MINCE APPLE PIE

- 1 jar (28 ozs.) mincemeat or mincemeat with brandy and rum
- 2 cans (21-oz. size) apple-pie filling
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- Pastry for a 2-crust pie
- 2 tablespoons milk, cream or evaporated milk
- 2 tablespoons sugar

1. Preheat oven to 425°F.
2. Mix mincemeat, apple-pie filling and vanilla in 13- x 9- x 2-inch baking pan. Dot with butter.
3. Roll out pastry to fit pan. Place on top of filling, pressing and fluting edges to side of pan. Cut several vents in crust to release steam.
4. Brush surface of pie with evaporated milk and sprinkle with sugar.
5. Bake 45 minutes until crust is golden brown and filling bubbles.

Makes 10 to 12 servings

BAKED FRUIT SALAD

- 2 apples, peeled and quartered
- 2 oranges, peeled and sectioned
- 1 can (16 ozs.) cranberry sauce
- 1 can (16 ozs.) pineapple slices, halved, drained
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup light molasses
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup water

1. Combine fruits, gently stirring with fork to break up cranberry sauce.
2. Mix molasses and butter in a small saucepan. Blend cornstarch and water and add to molasses mixture. Heat, stirring, until thick.
3. Arrange fruit in a ½-qt. baking dish; pour molasses sauce over fruit.
4. Bake in preheated 325°F. oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve hot as an accompaniment to turkey, chicken or ham. Makes 6 servings

- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon basil leaves
- 1 cup peas
- 1½ tablespoons flour
- 2 tablespoons water
- 2 cups cooked turkey pieces
- 1 cup packaged biscuit mix
- ⅛ teaspoon poultry seasoning

1. Measure ⅓ cup chicken broth; set aside. In 2-qt. saucepan, combine remaining broth, potato, carrots, salt, pepper and basil.
2. Bring to boiling; boil 10 minutes. Add peas; cook 5 minutes.
3. Blend flour and water; add to vegetables, stirring until thickened. Add turkey and pour in 2-qt. casserole.
4. Combine biscuit mix and poultry seasoning; stir in reserved broth until soft dough forms. Spoon onto turkey mixture. Bake in a preheated 450°F. oven 12 to 15 minutes or until biscuits are golden.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

FRESH APPLE DUMPLINGS

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅔ cup shortening
- 5 tablespoons cold water
- 6 medium-size tart cooking apples, pared and cored
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons milk

1. Sift flour and salt into large bowl. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or pastry blender until mixture resembles cornmeal. Sprinkle water over surface; mix lightly with fork until pastry holds together. Shape into balls.

a ball. l out on floured surface into an 18- x 12-inch rectangle. Cut into six 6-inch squares.

3. Place an apple in the center of each pastry square. Mix sugar and cinnamon; spoon into the center of each. Dot each apple with butter. Moisten edges of pastry; bring points over apple and press together.
4. Place dumplings in shallow baking pan. Brush pastry lightly with milk. Bake in preheated 400°F. oven 45 minutes or until apples are tender and pastry is golden brown. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings

By Leonard Katz

Barbara Hinck, 25, an appealing blonde who is a talented singer and musician, waited nervously in her room at The Seeing Eye in Morristown, N.J., to meet her "best friend" for the first time.

Oh, I just hope he's beautiful, thought Barbara, picturing in her mind's eye how she would look being led by a magnificent-looking German shepherd or a silky collie.

She has been blind since birth and distinctly recalls the day she resolved to come to The Seeing Eye. She knew a dog would make her more independent and increase her mobility. For this fiercely independent girl these were the most important things in the world.

The decision was made on a bitter cold January morning in Barbara's hometown of Minneapolis. Because of the subzero temperature, she decided to dress especially warm and selected from a clothes closet in her small apartment — where she lived alone — a blue suit, a matching turtleneck sweater and boots.

The closet was carefully arranged so she knew where everything was. Her clothes were grouped by color. A strip of cloth with a strategically placed French knot told Barbara what she was choosing. The code was simple enough: one knot for blue, two for green and so on.

After dressing, Barbara ate breakfast. Everything on the kitchen table was arranged the way numbers are on the face of a clock. If she wanted sugar, 1:00; salt and pepper, 9:00; the coffee, 6:00.

Before leaving the apartment, she took a $10 bill from a drawer, recognizing it as such by the double fold she had put in the bill. Then, picking up her white cane, she left for her day's appointments.

Near her home is a dangerous corner she had to cross to reach her bus stop. As with all blind people without a guide dog, there is a danger and tension on even the simplest trips. The problems magnify when it becomes necessary to cross streets. So as Barbara reached the corner, she listened for a few moments to make certain no traffic was coming, then began to cross.

Just then, a speeding car came perilously close to running her down. She heard the car coming and became frightened. She froze. The car actually hit the tip of her cane. At that moment, she says, she made up her mind to apply to The Seeing Eye for a guide dog.

Days later, the big moment in Morristown arrived. There was a knock on the door, and a dog trainer walked in, leading a beautiful 19-month-old female, the offspring of a German shepherd and a husky.

"This is Tika," the trainer said. "I think you'll both get along fine."

Barbara opened her arms and called, and Tika responded. She petted and praised the animal, running her fingers repeatedly over its face and body.

"She's beautiful, I know she's beautiful," Barbara exclaimed, tears streaming down her face. "Oh, I was so afraid I wouldn't get a pretty dog."

Also meeting their dogs for the first time were Barbara's classmates, most of whom were at The Seeing Eye for the first time. The training period lasts 27 days. The first few are spent getting dog and master acquainted with each other, giving the necessary bonds of affection and trust a chance to grow. The rest of the time is spent in hard training. Under the watchful eye of a dog handler, time is spent on the streets of Morristown, experiencing every possible situation a blind person and guide dog are likely to encounter.

A few of the others at the school were veterans, people back for another dog because their previous guide had reached retirement age. Guide dogs average about 10 working years, but it is not unusual to have one last 12 or 13.

Typical of the veterans in Barbara's class was Judge Joseph Clements, 59, of Florence, S.C., there for his fifth dog since 1940. Judge Clements, a short, solidly built man with the silver hair of a Hollywood-cast jurist, has been blind since age 17, the result of a baseball injury.

Asked what having a guide dog has meant in his life, he answered: "Independence. Real independence. I got my first when I was in college. From then on I didn't have to sit and wait for friendly students to lead me when I wanted to go somewhere. I'd just get up and go. For me it was the most adventurous experience of my life." Judge Clements would spend 20 days for a refresher course.

On her eighth day at The Seeing Eye, dressed in blue jeans and a blue cotton top, Barbara and Tika set forth on an intricate, two-mile route in Morristown, a training hike that winds through the busiest streets, narrow alleys, up and down hills, across three-way traffic corners and past department stores and a bus station.

With Tika leading the way, Barbara walked at a brisk four-mile-an-hour pace, about the same rate that sighted people average. As trained, Tika kept close to the building line and led Barbara around people, a baby carriage and a broken sidewalk that could have caused a problem.

As they approached a curb, Tika halted. Barbara could hear traffic running by the corner and immediately realized the reason why Tika had reacted. "Good girl, good girl," she said, patting her dog.

The corner is controlled by a light, but dogs are color-blind and cannot be trained to tell when a light is red or green. The blind person has to listen to determine when it is safe to cross. But if a mistake is made, the guide dog is trained to disregard its master's order to continue.

Since guide dogs are controlled by voice and hand signals, the blind must have a thorough knowledge of the area in which they travel. Their orientation always must be absolute in order to give the dog the correct signals. If a blind person becomes confused, the help of a sighted person is needed to establish an exact position.

Although some mistakes were made, both Barbara and Tika did very well over the difficult course. Everyone agreed that she had shown confidence and courage and that mistress and dog had worked smoothly as a team.

About an hour later, her face shiny and clean following a shower, Barbara talked about her life. She had been a premature baby and lost her sight as a result of excessive oxygen in the incubator. Doctors now know how to prevent that, but 25 years ago they didn't.

She is a graduate of Lakewood College, near Minneapolis, and works as an entertainer — she sings, plays piano and writes her own music. What she abhors most in dealing with sighted people is pity.

"I want to be known by what I am," she said, "not by my affliction. You hear people say, 'Look, there's that poor little girl.' Well, that's a drag."

She hopes someday to produce albums and wants what most 25-year-old women do: a husband, kids and her own identity.

Asked to compare the difference between traveling with a guide dog and alone with only a cane, she answered: "There's really no comparison. The speed and safety of traveling with a guide dog is what's so terrific. Really, you are functioning almost like a sighted person. I get a real high just from doing it."

All blind people between ages 16 and 55 and in good health are eligible to avail themselves of The Seeing Eye.

The cost is $150. Air fare from anywhere in the U.S. or Canada is provided, as well as the dog and room and board while in Morristown. If a blind person doesn't have the necessary funds, The Seeing Eye will make arrangements for the money to be paid over a period of years. No third person is allowed to pay for the training. The wise philosophy behind that rule is to build independence in those who apply.

How to Achieve Total Financial Freedom

More than 150,000 individuals have responded to this opportunity in 1977 alone!

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula"

Millionaires are not 100 or even 10 times smarter than you. But it is a fact that millionaires are making 10 to 50 and even 100 times more than you.

Are these wealthy people working that much harder than you? No way!

If you are working only 20 hours a week, it would be physically impossible. (There are only 168 hours in a week, no one gets more.)

These questions used to really stump me. That was just a few years ago.

My wife and I then lived in Denver, Colorado, at 2545 South High Street. We paid $135 a month rent for a cramped, tumbled down house. My wife was expecting our second child and we were flat broke. I felt desperate and forced into a corner. I had to borrow $150 from my father and another $150 from my father-in-law just to buy the groceries and pay the rent. If that wasn't enough, I was several thousand dollars in debt.

Things are much different now. Last year I could have retired and lived off the income of my one million dollars in real estate holdings. (Incidently, almost all of the income from the real estate is tax free).

Since I had worked 20 to 40 hours a week, I know that I didn't work even 10 times longer or harder than you. And with my C-average from Ames High School (located in Ames, Iowa). I'm quite certain that I'm not any smarter than you.

If hours, efforts, or brains are not what separates the rich from the average guy who is swamped with debts and very little income, then what is?

I learned the answer to that question from an old fellow in Denver. This fellow worked in a drug store stocking the shelves. Very few people knew that he had $200,000 in the bank, all of which he had earned starting from nothing.

Within a year after meeting him, I was told and shown the same thing by a young man who had recently earned over a million dollars. By this time, I began to realize that what I was being shown was truly a remarkable and workable way to grow rich.

I began to apply the principles and methods I had been shown. The results were amazing. I couldn't believe how easy it was, in fact it seemed too easy.

But then I met an elderly lady (83 years old) who although not very smart, has made $117,000 using the same formula.

I then figured my beginning wasn't luck.

For three and one half years, I worked hard to refine and improve on the formula that I had been shown, so that it would be easy to get quicker results.

As I did this, my assets multiplied very rapidly (160% per year) to the point that I didn't have to work any longer.

I guess I am bragging now, but I did start spending alot of time in our back yard pool, traveling around the country, and doing a lot of loafing.

Then one day a friend asked me how he could do what I had done.

So I began to outline the formula that I had improved to show him really how simple it was, and how he could do the same thing.

By the time he approached me, I had written almost a complete volume on the easy way for him to copy my results.

I wrote this in simple, straightforward language so anyone could understand it.

This time my friend's questions were very specific. (He had already begun buying properties with the formulas I had been giving him). Now he had a property he wanted to buy, but was out of cash. How could he buy it?

I not only showed him how to buy without cash, but by the time the deal was complete, he had $5,000 cash in his pocket to boot.

I also showed him how to buy a $26,000 property for $75 down.

You, or anyone, can do exactly what I did, or my close friends have done/ in fact, you may well do it better. (I began doing this in my spare time only).

It doesn't matter where you live or the size of your town or city, my formula will show you exactly how to:

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- Begin without any cash.
- Put $10,000 cash in your pocket each time you buy (without selling property).
- Double your assets every year. Legally avoid paying federal or state income taxes.
- Buy bargains at ½ their market value.
- Allow you to travel one week out of every month.

Mark Haroldsen, pictured with his wife Lois, spent four years perfecting a "wealth formula" and became a millionaire in the process: "I've found," says Haroldsen, "that most people just need a very specific road map to follow . . . they can do what I've done."

When you send me a check or money order for $10, I will send you all my formulas and methods, and you are free to use them anywhere and as often as you would like.

Now, if you were a personal friend of mine, I know you would believe me and not need any kind of guarantee that you will be completely satisfied and that my formula will work for you if you apply it. I will back up that guarantee by not cashing your check for 30 days, and if you for any reason change your mind, let me know and I will send your uncashed check back.

You may ask, why am I willing to share my formula for wealth? Well, simply because those of you who order my material will be helping to increase my net worth.

You shouldn't care if I profit as long as you profit. I guarantee that you'll be satisfied that my methods will help you or I'll send your money back!

TO ORDER Simply take any size paper, write the words "Financial Freedom", and send your name and address, along with a check for $10.00 to Mark O. Haroldsen, Inc., Dept. E-984, Tudor Mansion Bldg., 4751 Holladay Blvd., Salt Lake City, Utah 84117.

If you send for my material now, I will also send you documents that will show you precisely how you can borrow from $20,000 to $200,000 at 2% above the prime rate using just your signature as collateral.

By the way, if you feel a little uneasy about sending me a check or money order for $10.00, simply post-date it by 30 days which will completely eliminate your risk. If you would like to check a financial reference, I have listed one below:

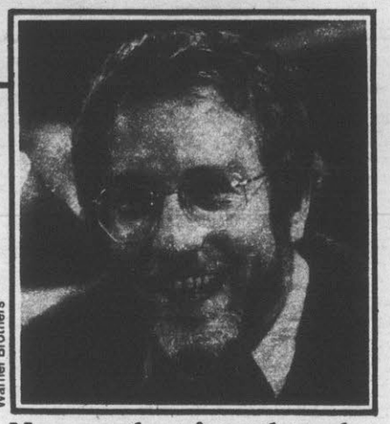
RICHARD DREYFUSS WON'T BEHAVE LIKE A STAR



Warner Brothers

He says there's nothing he couldn't walk away from.

By Patricia Baum

For Richard Dreyfuss, 'tis certainly the season to be jolly, and not only because of the upcoming holidays. "I have a feeling," he beams, "that this will be a very exciting time for me. I just turned 30, and I've always believed that my greatest success would come now."

Richard does indeed seem bound for glory. He has opened his new decade with two major films that can't help but boost his career: Close Encounters of the Third Kind, a science-fiction thriller about UFO's, and The Goodbye Girl, a comedy.

Having a custom-made role proves Richard is already at the top. And, by Hollywood standards, he has earned more than enough merits for a star badge. Behind his newest acting coups lies a highly distinguished career in which he's been acclaimed as the shy and restless high-school student in American Graffiti, the unscrupulous youth clawing his way out of a Jewish ghetto in The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz and the wisecracking scientist in Jaws.

He admittedly hankers to be a star but not for the usual reasons — and certainly not for the recognition. He wants no part of any swooning fan worship and makes no attempt to be a sex object. In fact, with his steel-rimmed glasses and prematurely graying hair, Richard looks more the scholar than the movie actor. And he's so hung-up on privacy that he's devised an elaborate system with the phone company that filters calls through an answering service, which buzzes him on a number not even he knows. Except for his one extravagance — a double decker dressing room made from a London bus — he says, "I'm not a materialist, and there's nothing I couldn't walk away from."

Richard craves stardom sheerly for its power. "I want to be able to choose my projects," he explains, "and not be in a supplicant position and have to please people to get a job."

Meanwhile, he's concentrating on the career he's dreamed of since childhood. Richard, who has "no memory of not wanting to be an actor," was born in New York City. When he was 8, his father, a lawyer, impulsively sold their belongings and took the family on a six-month spree to Europe. They eventually settled in Los Angeles with only $35 but fond memories. There Richard hung out at movie studios, getting a taste of show biz that whetted his appetite. When he revealed his plans to become an actor to his mother, she replied, "Don't just talk about it. Do it."

He did, but it was sometime before he came up with a winning combination. Though his theater work won him guest stints on TV, he promptly got trapped in typecasting ruts. First he played "dinks — guys who usually are the hero's best friends, wear owl glasses and are pimply, insecure and neurotic." He was not only bored but also scared by these weirdo parts. "They were," he confides, "a bit too close to home. I wore glasses, was chubby and wasn't athletic. I felt if I played any more dinks, I might really turn into one." So after three years he moved on to the psychopaths — mother killers, father kidnappers and muggers. He'd like to forget these roles: "They almost turned me off movies for life." And after making them, he felt frustrated and took off for a sojourn on the New York stage.

Then his movie career took off — in spite of himself. Richard accepted the role in American Graffiti because he had just broken up with a woman, and the film location enabled him to skip town. And, in the case of Jaws, three times he turned down an offer he shouldn't have. He was convinced that his character existed just to give shark information and that the movie would be the "turkey of the year."

But he finally agreed to do the role, and when he saw the film, he made a dramatic turnabout: "I loved the picture, I loved my performance, and I felt like an idiot for all I had said."

But his instant Jaws success was personally unsettling, to say the least. "Suddenly my importance was inflated," he explains, and he became "wracked by guilt," feeling that he "didn't deserve all this success." As a result, "I went a little crazy. I shut down all my feelings, alienated people, drank a bottle-and-a-half of cognac a day and tried drugs."

Fortunately, he wised up in time, mainly through psychoanalysis, to stave off total disaster. He now feels levelheaded enough to handle the next stage of his rocketing career. And he's working to insure a solid future by producing his next film, The Big Fix, the story of a young man like himself who was shaped by the 60's. "I was afraid before to take on this much responsibility," says Richard. "But now I'm feeling things again; I have more faith in myself. I'm glad to be me."

INCREDIBLE PLAN FOR AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS!

Now! Lifetime Freedom From Fat

WITH DOCTOR'S AMAZING "COFFEE-OFF" PROGRAM FOR CUP-TO-CUP WEIGHT-LOSS!

Think of it! You actually sip your appetite to sleep for hours at a time — sip yourself slimmer cupful to cupful — take your FINAL STEP TO LIFETIME SLIMNESS with the new "Coffee-Off" way to a brand new body!

So effective, you LOSE up to 6 pounds the very first weekend — LOSE up to 12 pounds of both fluid and fat in just 14 days — LOSE as much as 20 — 30 — 40 — POUNDS OR EVEN MORE . . . (and never gain it back for the rest of your life), as medical science shows you how to turn ordinary coffee or tea into the most "DYNAMITE" FAT-MELTING aid you've ever seen in your life.

LIKE TURNING UP AN INNER FURNACE THAT SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS — STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY!

Just 60 seconds from now you are going to discover how to take your morning cup of coffee . . . drop in what appears to be an ordinary sugar-cube . . . and launch yourself on the most incredible FAT-BURNING SPREE you've ever heard of. Yes, a journey to 'lifetime slimness' so fantastic, that just a few short weeks after using this doctor's amazing "Coffee-off" weight-loss program you'll suddenly find yourself 5 — 10 — 15 pounds lighter . . . your belt size 1 — 2 — 3 notches tighter! Because for the first time in your life you are going to win INSTANT CONTROL over your appetite . . . become its master instead of its slave . . . actually SWITCH OFF that maddening urge for food for hours at a time . . . as you watch your waistline shrink itself down by as much as a full size in just a single week!

24 HOURS — up to 2 POUNDS GONE!
48 HOURS — up to 6 POUNDS GONE!
AND THAT'S JUST THE BEGINNING!

Just think of it! Ordinary coffee or tea suddenly transformed into a fantastic body-slimming aid that not only helps you melt away as much as 12 pounds the first 2 weeks — but even more amazing, helps you:

LOSE up to 4 to 6 inches off your waistline

LOSE up to 2 to 5 inches off your hips

LOSE up to 3 inches off your thighs

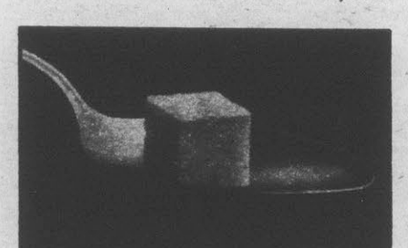
LOSE up to 4 inches off your buttocks

LOSE up to 4 inches off your stomach

all without a moment of torturous diet — without a moment of brutal, punishing exercise — without battling your willpower or fighting off gnawing hunger!

TURNS A CUPFUL OF COFFEE (or tea) INTO HOURS OF "LIQUID WILLPOWER"

(completely flavorless — affects only your appetite — not your taste.)



LIKE 4 HOURS OF WILLPOWER IN ONE TINY, TASTELESS CUBE

AMAZING "WILLPOWER-IN-A-CUBE" makes you master of your appetite instead of its slave . . . gives you INSTANT CONTROL OF HUNGER — LIFETIME VICTORY OVER FAT!

VITAL NOTICE:

Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a physician. As a matter of fact, we urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this Lifetime Road To Slimness including the few minutes of nightly toneup the doctor highly recommends is by far one of the most medically sound, fully sensible approaches to the problem of obesity.
*ALSO NOTE: People who dislike coffee or tea may use "FULL-STOP" slim cubes in clear bouillon for the same LIFETIME SLIMNESS results.

Most significant of all, as long as you follow this medically proven "Coffee-Off" lifetime slimness program, you actually become totally immune to fat build-up for the rest of your life — even if you've been hopelessly overweight for all your adult life.

NOW A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT A MOMENT OF GNAWING HUNGER!

How can medical science make this lifetime dream come true? It's simple. Because one of America's leading weight-loss specialists has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea . . . and convert it into a wondrous new kind of fat-fighting aid that SHUTS OFF EVEN A RUNAWAY APPETITE, ON COMMAND! Yes, medical science has finally found a way to take ordinary coffee or tea and actually force hunger to STOP on the spot . . . make excess pounds and inches disappear from sight so fast . . . that in just 10 days time you will simply refuse to believe your bathroom scale— and in just a matter of weeks you may actually need a brand new wardrobe!

BEST OF ALL — NO CRAVING, NO SLIDE-BACK — YOU STAY SLIM FOR GOOD ON THIS LIFETIME SLIMNESS PROGRAM!

The secret is a medically-proven formula, (that to the eye looks just like an ordinary sugar-cube) . . . BUT, when activated in coffee or tea . . . enters your system and automatically SHUTS OFF YOUR APPETITE — SHUTS OFF THAT DRIVING URGE FOR FOOD — SHUTS OFF GNAWING HUNGER for hours at a time! Actually kills your desire, your craving, your appetite for food from meal to meal! So much so in fact, you aren't lured or tempted by even the most mouth-watering food. Not by ice-cream . . . not by cake . . . not even by the most luscious steak. In a nutshell . . .

YOU'RE SIMPLY TURNED OFF FOOD FOR HOURS AT A TIME

The name of this doctor's wondrous "Coffee-Off" way to Lifetime Slimness is "FULL-STOP", because that's just what this medically-proven slim-cube formula does — brings gnawing, runaway appetite to a dead FULL STOP right in its tracks! Yes, according to medical experts just one "FULL-STOP" slim-cube in a cup of coffee or tea turns off your appetite INSTANTLY as if it suddenly went to sleep. You simply have no desire to eat for hours on end . . . even if all your life you've been cursed with a non-stop appetite. In fact, so effective is this "willpower-in-a-cube" you may actually have to consciously remind yourself to eat — which the doctor insists on — in order to prevent TOO MUCH WEIGHT-LOSS, TOO FAST!

Now, just think what this great new development means, if all your life you've had to battle your appetite and struggle with your willpower!

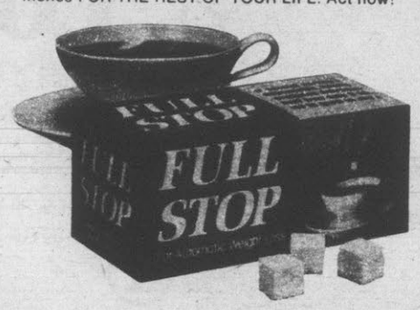
Doctor's "LIQUID-WILLPOWER" DEVELOPMENT Ends Torturous Diet!

It means that instead of battling those mealtime pangs of hunger . . . fighting that maddening urge for food . . . you simply reach for a "FULL STOP" slim-cube instead of fattening food and "sip your appetite to sleep" with this doctor's amazing 3-cups-a-day "Coffee-Off" way to AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS. Because just like water turns off thirst, incredible "FULL-STOP" slim-cubes switch off hunger AUTOMATICALLY all day long! Down goes your appetite— down go the calories — and down goes your weight . . . with a rush!

LIFETIME CONTROL OF YOUR APPETITE FINALLY YOURS — MEANING YOU ARE NOW JUST DAYS AWAY FROM YOUR FIRST STEP TO LIFETIME SLIMNESS!

So if you want to SIP YOURSELF SLIM with this doctor's amazing coffee development . . . if you want to melt away pounds and inches STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY . . . if you want to try this exciting medically-proven concept that combines both a doctor's scientific development and his full-satisfaction eating program that makes lifetime immunity to fat not a hope but a living reality . . . then take advantage of the no-risk offer described below! Yes, act now, on guarantee of full satisfaction or money refunded in full (except postage & handling). Simply return within 10 days.

Remember — this is the last ad for a reducing product you will ever need to read in your life. If you drink coffee . . . or if you drink tea . . . then there is simply not a reason in the world to ever again be embarrassed by a single pound of overweight fat. So why not take the FINAL STEP and get rid of all those excess pounds and inches FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE. Act now!



JUST 3 CUPS A DAY HELPS MELT FAT AWAY as you sip yourself thin cupful to cupful with Doctor's LIFETIME SLIMNESS program for AUTOMATIC WEIGHT-LOSS!

HOLDS DENTURES FIRM WITHOUT DAILY "FIXINGS"

Snug Cushions hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks

No more "fixings" every morning with messy powders or creams. Even if dentures need "fixing" after every meal, here's important news. Snug cushions restore dentures' holding power so dentures stay comfortably tight for weeks. Snug, the soft, effective temporary aid, forms a "comfort bond" between dentures and gums. Sticks to dentures, not to gums. Rinse, scrub or soak Snug fresh and clean. Easy to remove, but won't wash off or flake away. So, end daily "fixings"! Use Snug to hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks.

DRIVEN TO IT

Each time I take my driver's test
I try to do my very best.
I study handbooks, think up questions,
From friends and neighbors get suggestions.
Then when I'm handed out the quiz
I really give the thing the biz.
Why work so hard, why be so proud,
When four wrong answers are allowed?
It's not at all for safer driving
I do such studious conniving.
I'll tell you why this toilsome strife:
I simply must outscore my wife.

THE ABC's OF APPLIANCE REPAIR

Here are special tips on how to spot trouble and how to correct it yourself.

Many a good household appliance has been junked in disgust because of misuse or poor repairing technique. Here's how to handle repair jobs calmly and with a minimum of wasted effort.

Check The Basics

The single most frequent reason for customer complaints is the failure of the customer to operate or maintain the appliance properly. Before assuming an appliance is broken, check your owner's manual to make sure that you are following the correct operating procedure . A few drops of oil on a fan bearing, a quick brushing of a vacuum cleaner's lint filter or a 10-second bath of an electric shaver's head in the proper lubricant may get an appliance running like new.

Next, check to see whether its warranty is still in effect. (Almost all manufacturers provide free service on their products for a year or more after purchase.) If it is, let the manufacturer do the work, especially since you may void the warranty if you tinker with the appliance.

Most warranties only cover defective materials and workmanship; they don't include damage due to misuse. However, a firm generally will repair or replace an appliance under warranty without question. Many are liberal about free repair beyond the cutoff date, particularly if the problem is a defect in the appliance.

In addition to warranties, some large retail chains and manufacturers offer service contracts that pick up where the warranty leaves off. For a fee, you can obtain repair insurance on such appliances as washing machines, dryers and dishwashers for fixed periods, usually five years. If you do not have the time or inclination to attempt major repair work yourself, one of these contracts may be an excellent alternative. The cost of one service call can easily exceed the total cost of the service contract.

How To Get A Service Manual And Parts List

Because they give detailed information on the specific appliance model you own, service manuals and parts lists can help immeasurably in repair work.

Some companies include a parts list and identifying illustrations in the package with a new appliance; most do not. No manufacturers provide service manuals as part of the purchase, but many will supply them separately, upon request, for a small fee. Letters should be addressed to the Customer Service Department of the particular manufacturer. If you are about to buy a new appliance and intend to do your own repair work, find out in advance whether you will be able to get the repair information you need.

Keep service manuals, parts lists, owner's manuals, warranties and other appliance information in a central location.

Getting Parts

Some large manufacturers and retail chains have their own service organizations and parts outlets. More often, a company will authorize a private repair shop to provide parts and service. One such repair shop may represent as many as 50 manufacturers. The Yellow Pages list local parts outlets and service centers.

Be persistent when trying to get a replacement part. If the local factory-authorized parts outlet does not have the item you want, call or write the manufacturer. When ordering a part, give the make, model, model number and date of manufacture of the appliance. This information is generally printed on a separate plate on the back of major appliances and imprinted directly on the housing bottom or back of small appliances. Describe the part you need as best you can and include the part number if you have a parts list. If you can go directly to a parts supplier, take

Taking It Apart

Before working on an appliance, be certain it is disconnected from the power supply. Also make sure the appliance can be disassembled. Microwave ovens, for example, should be repaired only by professionals and are deliberately designed to discourage dissassembly. Other appliances are permanently sealed, either for safety (electrical toothbrushes) or to permit them to be washed in a sink (electric percolators and frying pans).

When you take an appliance apart, work slowly. Take time to put tape on the jaws of pliers to avoid scratching the finish. Use penetrating oil to free a rusted screw. If you need a special tool (such as a soldering iron, hose clamp plier or a nut driver), buy it. Don't improvise — you risk damaging a part. Observe the order in which you remove components. Pay attention to details, particularly to the orientation of parts.

Small, separate items should be kept in a container until you are ready for reassembly. Whenever there is a chance of confusion, label the matching parts or make a written note of where each part goes. Some home repairmen even take pictures at key points in the disassembly process to show how parts fit together. Another trick is to lay out parts on a strip of masking tape in order of removal.

Putting It Together

Before reassembling an appliance, be as sure as you can that whatever was wrong with it has been fixed. It is important not only to repair a broken part but also to make sure that something else did not cause the damage or that the broken component did not damage other parts.

Reassembly is largely a matter of working backward from the last step to the first, putting the appliance back together as soon as you can. Work slowly and carefully. Do not overtighten screws and nuts or try to force parts together. All new parts should be the equivalent of the old.

Make sure all electrical connections are tight and neat, with no frayed ends or loose strands jutting out. It is a good practice to tin the ends of stranded wires with solder before attaching them to a terminal. This improves electrical contact.

Keep in mind that most appliances are carefully engineered, that every part has a purpose and that every tab, hole, bend and marking is in its place for a reason. Notches and irregularities in shape may indicate proper alignment or may be used to keep a part, such as a motor bearing, from rotating.

On occasion, a trick or special tool can help in reassembly. A bit of chewing gum on the tip of a screwdriver will hold a screw long enough to start it in an inaccessible hole. Screwdrivers with special screw-holding tips are also available for the same purpose. At various stages in the assembly process you should turn moving parts by hand — for example, the rotor of an electric motor — to make sure they move freely without hitting or rubbing other parts.

When everything is assembled, test the appliance cautiously. If it is noisy or overheats, turn it off and find out what is wrong. Be aware, however, that new parts may take awhile to break in. A new switch may be stiff or a new heating element may smoke a bit at first.

SAFETY CHECK LIST

1. Always disconnect the power cord of any appliance you are working on. If the appliance is permanently connected to the house wiring (for example, a range), remove the house fuse or turn off the circuit breaker controlling it.
2. Do not poke a metal object into a toaster or space heater or any heating device. Doing so might short-circuit the appliance or give you a shock.
3. Buy only Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) listed appliances.
4. Keep several dry-chemical fire extinguishers in strategic locations around the house, particularly in the kitchen, basement and workshop.
5. Never light a match to investigate a gas or oil appliance, such as a gas heater, stove, dryer or heating system. If you suspect a gas leak, do not turn on a light. Instead, shut off the supply of gas to the appliance, air the room and investigate with a flashlight.
6. If an appliance shocks, disconnect it immediately from the wall outlet. Do not use it again until the problem has been found and corrected.
7. Do not circumvent built-in safety devices, even for a test. Leave such tests to the specialists. Improperly performed, they may cause shock, damage to the appliance and fire.
8. Even though power is off, there still may be a shock hazard. Some devices — for example, television sets, air conditioners, and air cleaners — have components that store electricty. Discharge them before you work on them.

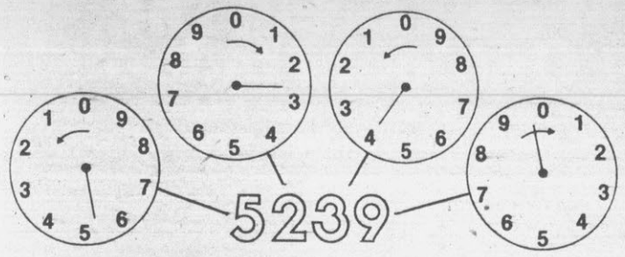
READ YOUR METER–AND SAVE

You'll be able to see how effectively you're utilizing energy as well as check the bill.



By John Boeschen

"With utilites taking a larger chunk of everyone's monthly budget," says Frank McLaughlin, director of the Office of Consumer Affairs, "it makes sense to understand how to read your electric meter. You can keep tabs on your use of energy and double-check the bills."

McLaughlin offers these tips for reading your electric meter:

- Read dials from left to right in the direction indicated by the arrows on the meter's face.
- When the hand on any dial is between two numbers, write down the smaller number.
- If the hand is directly on or just a hair's-breadth away from a number, determine whether the hand on the next right-hand dial is either on or past zero or has not yet reached zero. In the diagram, the third dial is directly on the four. But since the immediate right-hand dial has not yet reached zero, the reading is recorded as 5-2-3-9. If the hand on the last dial were between zero and one, the reading would be 5-2-4-0.

How To Check Your Bill

"Next time you receive a utility bill," McLaughlin advises, "be sure you understand the charges. You may have to ask the utility company about coded charges. Compare your statement with corresponding bills for the previous month or year to see whether your energy consumption has increased or decreased."

Check your electric costs by following this procedure:

1. Take your meter reading on the same day as the utility company. (Call to learn your cutoff date — Item 1 on our standard bill — each month.)

2. To figure out how many kilowatt hours (kwh) you have used since the previous reading (Item 2), subtract that reading from today's (Item 3).

Today's reading	5239
Last month's reading	4119
kwh used	1120

3. Calculate your costs (Item 4) for kwh on the basis of the rate schedule used by your utility company. (If you want to know your rate schedule, request one from the company.) The figures in the chart are based on a winter-rate schedule

Customer charge		$ 1.60
820 kwh	× 4.85¢	39.77
1120 kwh		$54.84

4. Determine the fuel-cost adjustment charge (Item 5) by multiplying the utility's fuel-adjustment rate by the kwh used. (This is a fee added to an electric bill to compensate the company for the increased cost of the coal, gas, oil or nuclear fuel from which it generates electricity.)
$.0144492 × 1120 kwh = $16.18

5. Figure your county energy tax (Item 6) by multiplying the tax rate (request it from the the utility company) by kwh used.
$.0015318 × 1120 kwh = $1.72

6. Add together the basic electricity cost, fuel cost adjustment and county energy tax

Basic electricty	$54.84
Fuel cost adjustment	$16.18
County tax	$ 1.72
	$72.74

7. Figure sales tax for your area (Item 7) and add to previous total.

.065 × $72.74 =	$ 4.73
	$77.47

8. Calculate the environmental surcharge (Item 8) by multiplying the tax rate (request it from the company) by kwh.
.0002674 × 1120 kwh = $ .30

9. Add the environmental surcharge to the previous total to get the total cost on your bill (Item 9).

Environmental surcharge	$ .30
Previous total	77.47
	$77.77

EX-MARINES RUN THIS SCHOOL

Old-fashioned discipline and patriotism are stressed in this Texas academy — and they seem to work.

By Dan Henderson

Take 200 years of U.S. Marine Corps discipline, traditions and customs, incorporate them with an academic environment, and what is the result?

In the south Texas city of Harlingen, the Marine Military Academy — a private school for boys from seventh grade through high school — has combined these ingredients with remarkable success. The school opened in 1965 with 58 cadets. This year, 333 young men have signed up.

The Academy is the nation's only Marine-oriented school, and registration day is similar to the processing of recruits at Marine boot camp. Students are assigned two to a room, and for the next eight months they adhere to a strict daily schedule from 6:00 A.M. until 10:00 P.M.

Realization that they have become part of a new way of life comes when they meet their DI's (drill instructors), who are retired from the Marine Corps. All have had experience as DI's at Parris Island, S.C., and Camp Pendleton, Calif. They are lean and tough, and their voices are loud. "DI's don't talk — they bark," said one young cadet.

But the major impact of the first day comes when the new cadets are marched to the barbershop. The average time required for a haircut is two minutes, and the cadets emerge from the building with a GI haircut and a bewildered look.

"I tell you it's really tough," said Cadet Thomas K. Maher of Garland, Texas, "But I'm going to make good grades and maybe some rank. I want to earn some free time." Cadet Maher is 13 years old.

Major impact of first day: a scalping.

Motivation is the answer, according to Maj. Gen. George S. Bowman Jr., superintendent of the Academy. "Cadets know they must maintain high grades, put forth their best effort on the drill field and in military classes and adapt to the Marine esprit de corps to earn free time."

Bowman, a retired Marine officer, said some new cadets drop out during the first month because they cannot cope with the discipline and daily routine. Others simply get homesick. "We will probably shake down to about 300 cadets by the end of this school year," he said. Cadets who violate the rules and regulations are sent home. "We do not tolerate misbehavior nor willful disobedience," Bowman said.

Some cadets are at the Academy because of their parents' insistence and would rather be going to their local high schools. On the other hand, some attend the Academy one or two years and decide they can't take it any longer.

The program is not easy. The cadets are up for reveille formation at 6:00. They make their beds and fall out for physical-conditioning classes at 6:10. They eat breakfast at 6:30 and report back to their barracks at 7:10 to shower and to clean their rooms. By 8:00, they must be in the uniform of the day and standing tall at a flag-raising ceremony.

Classes run from 8:20 until 3:55, with a one-hour break for lunch. In addition to two hours of military science and close-order drill each day, other requirements include two years of a foreign language, four years of mathematics, four years of English and science and lab courses.

After the last class each day, cadets must participate in either intramural or varsity sports. The only break in the weekday schedule comes Wednesday evening, when all cadets are required to attend church services.

They attend classes for a half-day on Saturdays and participate in a parade. Saturday afternoon is free for those who have not been given demerits and have kept their grades up. While this rigorous program may appear unbelievable in these permissive days, it's working for the Marine Military Academy, officials say.

Military academies are not as popular in the United States as they once were. There were more than 250 in the 1940's, but today fewer than 50 can be found, and these have eased their requirements.

The cadets gripe among themselves. They don't like the short haircuts or the regimentation, but many stay to graduate.

Among the lighter moments in their lives are the dances in the cadet club. Football games and other varsity sports, complete with girl cheerleaders, also provide a break in the routine.

The Academy was the vision of a group of active-duty and retired Marine officers who wanted to establish a school dedicated to patriotism, leadership, pride and high academic standards. All professors are highly qualified in their fields, and about half are retired military officers.

The staff and faculty readily admit they had misgivings about the success of the Academy during its first few years of operation, but no more. "We think we've made it," one said.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Curbing Overspending

Do you often find yourself with an empty wallet and wonder where the money went?

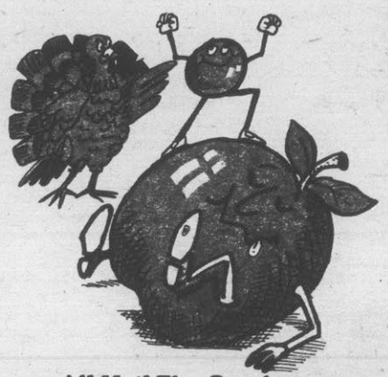
If so, you may be one of many people who are chronic overspenders but who can be helped with a combination of self-awareness and discipline.

"Overspending serves unconscious needs," says Dr. Charles W. Wahl, a UCLA-affiliated psychiatrist. He says overspending is often associated with depression, when the person "gives himself a gift because no one else has."

Overspending is also characteristic of people with low self-esteem who feel that they must impress others. "Many women who don't work feel that the amount of money spent on them is a sign of their worth," says Dr. Wahl, who sees 4 times as many female as male overspenders in his Beverly Hills practice.

Some of his suggestions to put the reins on your pocketbook:

- Shop with a thrifty friend — you may be ashamed to buy impulsively.
- Avoid other overspenders.
- Record your overspending in a diary. You'll be able to see the pattern of times when you overspend and on what items.
- When you avoid overspending, give yourself a small, nonmonetary reward, such as taking a little time off from your usual daily routine.



All Hail The Cranberry

For too long cranberries have had to suffer in silence at the expression, "as American as apple pie."

As any self-respecting cranberry could tell you, the juicy red berry is one of the few fruits native to North America, unlike the upstart apple, which was brought here by early colonists. So, what better time to salute this neglected fruit than on its very own holiday, Thanksgiving.

Cranberries grew wild in America long before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, where cranberries were presented to the Pilgrims by the Indians. The Indians used cranberries as a food, in a poultice for wounds inflicted by poisoned arrows and as a dye for rugs and blankets.

To preserve this and other cranberry lore, there's a new museum, Cranberry World, in Plymouth, Mass., only ¼ of a mile from Plymouth Rock. Local kid makes good?

A New Way To Cut Home Heating Costs

There's one fly-by-night operation that's good news for consumers — an aerial survey being conducted by Iowa utilities to spot poorly insulated homes.

Dubbed "Operation Sky Scan," the statewide program uses low-flying planes equipped with special heat-sensitive cameras to produce a thermogram or "picture of temperatures." The rooftops of well-insulated homes, where little heat is lost, show up dark, and those of poorly insulated houses appear light.

After all the photographs have been printed, they will be displayed by each of the utilities. Customers are invited in to spot their homes on the thermogram and to have a free consultation with energy-conservation specialists. According to Bob Barger of Iowa Public Service Co., almost 40% of the 15,000 consumers who've seen their thermograms have added new insulation to their homes.

If You're Considering Plastic Surgery...

What do a woman with unsightly scar tissue, a teenager with an oversized nose and a young child with protruding ears have in common? All are potential candidates for plastic surgery.

There are two types of plastic surgery: reconstructive and cosmetic. The majority of plastic surgery is cosmetic and includes such procedures as face and eyelid lifts, stretch-mark removal and nose jobs (rhinoplasty). Reconstructive plastic surgery, such as breast reconstruction after mastectomy, burn-scar repair and repair of arthritic joints, attempts to restore patients to normal.

The keys to successful plastic surgery are realistic expectations about what the operation can accomplish and careful selection of a doctor. "Patients have to understand that surgery won't solve all their problems or save their marriage," says Dr. James O. Stallings, co-author of A New You: How Plastic Surgery Can Change Your Life.

In selecting a doctor, the first thing to do, says Dr. Stallings, is to check whether the doctor has been certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgeons.

Then, when you talk to the doctor, he should inform you of the risks of surgery (age is no barrier, but poor health is) and of the cost of the operation. He also should discuss what you can expect from the operation and why you want it done. Next, ask the doctor to refer you to patients who would be available to talk — you'll find out how satisfied they are with the results and see the doctor's work.

If you have questions about whether plastic surgery is advisable for you, don't hesitate to see more than one doctor.

Cities Clean Up Their Acts

Little Rock, Ark., has reduced its litter by more than 35% in 9 months. Indianapolis' litter declined 29.7% in 6 months and Hayward, Calif., cut its litter by 10% in just 1 month — because of the Clean Community System (CCS).

The 4 components of the CCS program are updated ordinances, improved sanitary technology, continuous public education and vigorous enforcement of sensible regulations. But a key to the program's success is the psychological study it conducted to find out what attitudes encourage littering.

"We found that littering is the norm in 3 kinds of places," says Emily Leonard, dir. of communications and program services for Keep America Beautiful: "Where people feel someone else is responsible for cleaning up, like a movie theater; where there is property, like a public beach, they feel nobody owns; and in places where they already see trash accumulated."

Quick Takes

Humpty Dumpty took another fall — from his position in the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade. Humpty was one of the more than 70 larger-than-life figures and other parade memorabilia auctioned off to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The 21-ft. egghead was scooped up for $4,000 by Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt, who plans to use the figure in an amusement park he owns.

These days, when Mom packs lunch for the kids, she's likely to make one for herself, too. The Labor Dept. says that almost ½ of American mothers with children under 18 are now in the labor force, 5 times the number of such women working in 1940....Increasing numbers of Americans are getting away from it all by going to sea. Reservations are being gobbled up, and the shipping industry predicts that by the end of the 77-78 season, a million persons will have taken a vacation afloat. Caribbean excursions remain the most popular, but trips along the coast of Mexico and cruises on the Mississippi River in paddle-wheel steamers also are attracting streams of vacationers.

How much does it cost to keep a premature baby alive? When one Los Angeles hospital calculated the average tab per normal survivor, it came to a staggering $88,058. Forty-three percent of the cost was spent on room charges for the infants, who stayed an average of 89 days...Twice as many American mothers are breast-feeding their babies today than 15 years ago, with the increase particularly great among the college-educated.

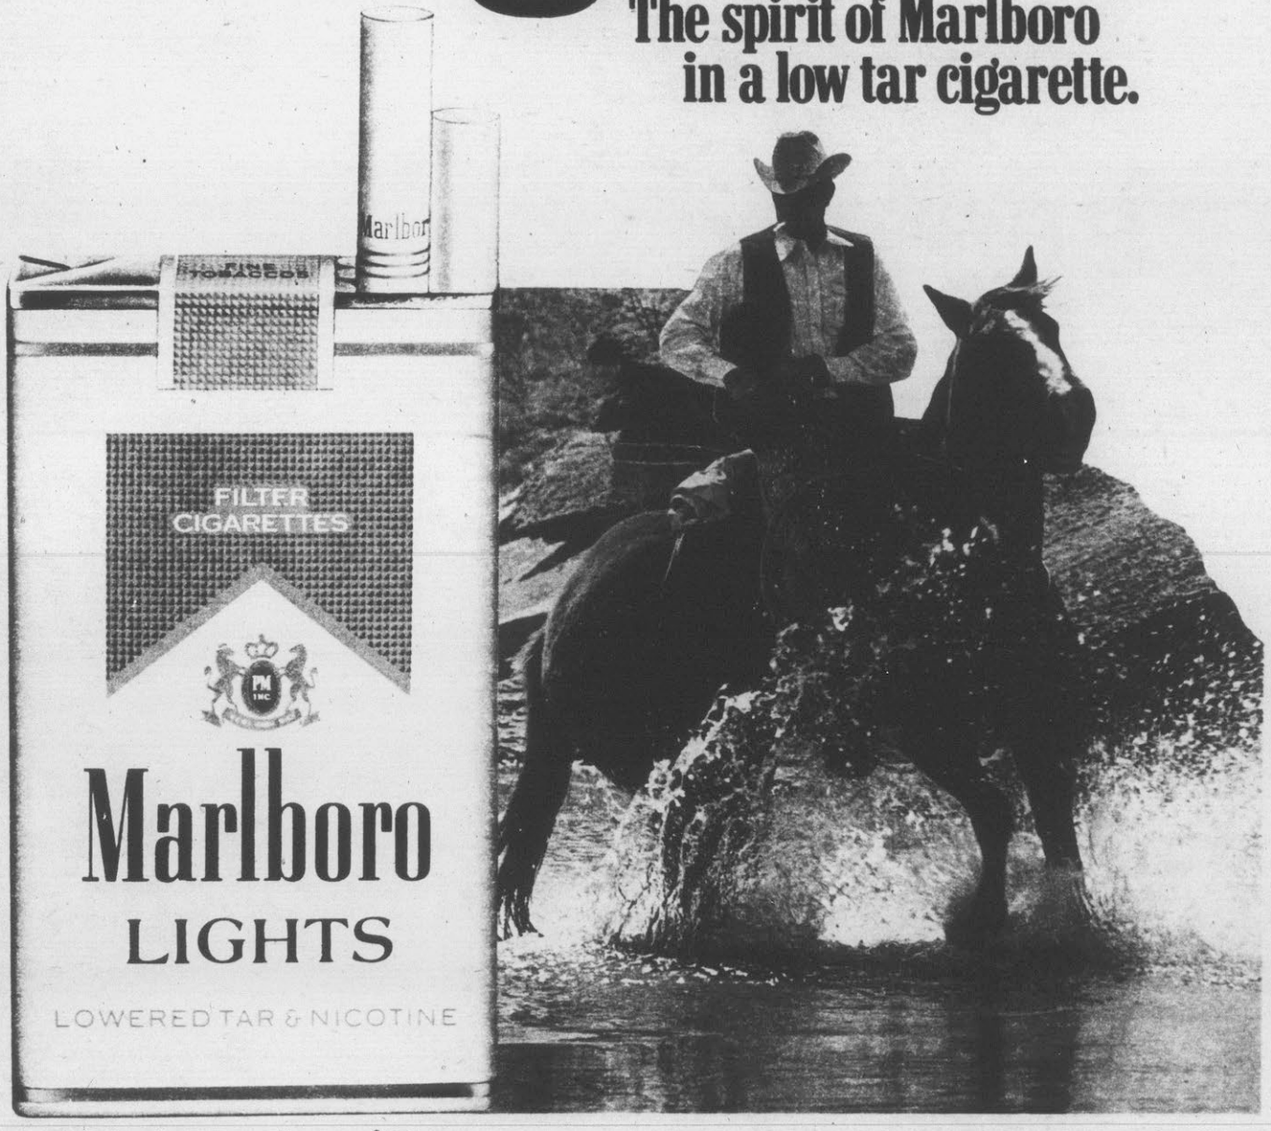
Marlboro Lights

The spirit of Marlboro in a low tar cigarette.



Lighter in taste. Lower in tar. And still offers up the same quality that has made Marlboro famous.

12 mg "tar," 0.7 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Aug.'77

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Any 4 for only 98¢ with membership

Man the bombsight of a B-24...zigzag up a burning beach on D-Day...keep your eyes peeled for enemy periscopes in the North Atlantic. Experience all this and more with outstanding books from the MILITARY BOOK CLUB. Just choose your first four volumes and mail the application below.

How the club works.

After your membership's accepted, you'll receive your four books for 98¢ plus shipping and handling. If you are not satisfied, return them within 10 days, cancel your membership, and you owe nothing.

Once you've purchased just four books during your first two years of membership you may resign at any time.

About every four weeks (14 times a year) you'll receive free the Club's magazine describing the coming selections and alternates, which save you up to 30% off publisher's editions prices.

If you want the selection, do nothing, it will be shipped to you automatically. If you want an alternate, or no book at all, indicate your preference on the order form and return it by the date specified. That date allows you 10 days to decide. If you receive an unwanted selection because you had less than 10 days, return it at our expense. There is a shipping and handling charge on all books shipped.

More books to choose from

if you begin membership by buying your first selection now, at a special new-member price—and agree to buy 8 more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming 3 years

Right now, you can take one day in your future and make sure it will be one of the most exciting days you've ever had.

A day that won't be just another day, with the same things to do, to talk about, to listen to.

A day when you won't care what the weather is like. When you'll feel good no matter what.

Because it will be the day when you open your gift package from Columbia. A package of music.

Not one album. Or two. Or even three. But eleven.

That's your 10 introductory tapes or records for only one penny...plus your first selection at a special low new-member price. By joining the Columbia Record & Tape Club now, as explained on the following pages.

Yes! You can now take advantage of this great new offer from Columbia—an offer that lets you pick ANY 10 records or tapes in this booklet—ALL 10 for only one penny! Just write in the numbers of the 10 albums you want on the application—then choose still one more as your first selection...which is yours at the special new-member price of only $1.89!

Then simply mail the application, together with check or money order for $1.90 as payment (that's 1¢ for your 10 introductory records or tapes, plus $1.89 for your first selection).

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off the regular Club prices. (And you'll also have an opportunity to examine the Club's comprehensive annual—"The Year In Music." We'll notify you when it's ready, and if you wish to receive it, do nothing—it will be shipped automatically for 15-day free trial, with no obligation to buy.)

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all simply fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having 10 days to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened... the selections you order will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices, which currently are $6.98 or $7.98—plus shipping and handling. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 8 selections within 3 years), you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan. Act now!

Our Story: THE THREE YOUNG ARABS WHO ATTACKED VAL ARE QUIET NOW AND HE LOOKS AROUND FOR THE FOURTH. HE SEES ASSUR HOLDING VALETA HOSTAGE, A KNIFE AT HER THROAT.

"TOUCH ME AND YOUR DAUGHTER DIES!" HE SHOUTS. VALETA SPEAKS IN THE VIKING TONGUE, "FATHER, PUT UP YOUR SWORD AND WATCH MY HAIR."

THEN WITH A SUDDEN MOVE, SHE FLINGS THE SILKEN MASS INTO HIS FACE. HE IS BLINDED FOR AN INSTANT, AND IN THAT INSTANT HIS WRIST IS SEIZED IN AN IRON GRIP; THE BLADE IS WRENCHED FROM HIS GRASP.... AND ASSUR JOINS HIS COMRADES.

VAL SITS DOWN AND DRAWS HIS TWO DAUGHTERS CLOSE. TEARS COURSE DOWN HIS CHEEKS. "THAT WAS CLOSE," HE WHISPERS, "TOO CLOSE." THE TWINS, TOO, ARE MISTY-EYED; IT IS NICE TO KNOW THEY ARE SO LOVED.

THE RIDE BACK TO BEIRUT IS A HAPPY ONE. DANGER IS PAST, EVERYONE SAFE.

The sport a boy grows up with... shooting a Daisy

This Christmas is a great time for you and your dad to get together with a Daisy B•B gun, just like Johnny Unitas, Gale Sayers, Bobby Hull and their sons.

Chances are, your dad grew up shooting a Daisy. So he knows it's fun. And sport shooting is a great way for boys and dads to spend some time alone. Laughing, talking and getting to know each other better.

Send for your Daisy catalog today, and let Dad help choose the right model for you. And one for him, too!

IN THE CELL, POLLY YELLS THAT OLSON IS TRYING TO ATTACK HER! THE GUARD ENTERS—AND THEY ZAP HIM—AND RUN OUT TO FIND THE GROUP WHICH PLANS TO 'KIDNAP' THE PIPELINE!!

OLSON, LET'S GET OUT OF THIS COAL BIN!

POLLY, THE CONTROL PANEL FOR BLOWING THE PLASTIC BOMBS MUST BE IN THIS WAREHOUSE!

IF WE START A FIRE THEY'LL RUN FIRST TO SALVAGE THE ELECTRONICS GEAR!

I TOOK UP WITH AN AMATEUR ARSONIST!

LIGHT DOWN THE HALL! THAT MUST BE THE MAIN ROOM!

WHAT WILL YOU DO IF THEY'VE ALL GONE TO LUNCH?

I'LL EAT CROW! SH-H-H!

AT THAT MOMENT THE DOOR OPENS...

YOU HEARD ME!....

I'LL SHOW YOU WHO'S BOSS AROUND HERE!

THAT'S MY BOY!

IT HITS THE OVERHEAD LAMP—AND THREE THINGS HAPPEN...

② UNTIL THE KEROSENE HITS THE HOT STOVE....
