Western Security Topic Today At Summit Talks

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
SAINT FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (AP) — President Carter and three European allies focused their Caribbean summit today on key Western security issues, including the future of Iran and its oil resources and China's future role in the world. Underlining the informal nature of the summit, the leaders met this morning in a thatched-roof open pavilion overlooking the sea. Carter and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt were the last to arrive, walking together. The president was tieless in a white short-sleeve shirt and wore gray slacks and desert boots. French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, who like the others spurned neckties for the occasion, had a small stack of briefing books in front of him as the quartet sat down around a small circular table.

"I see you've come well prepared," Carter noted. None of the other leaders had any papers with him.

As the leaders gathered Thursday at a seaside resort on this French island, Giscard told reporters, "We want talks without academics simple, plain and direct."

U.S. officials said the four might hold most of their sessions, which will conclude Saturday, without advisers at their sides.

The most prominent academic on the scene is Zbigniew Brzezinski, who was a university professor in world politics before being named as Carter's national security adviser. There was no indication, however, that Giscard's comment was directed at him.

The agenda for the two days of discussions was worked out Thursday night while Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, spent a relaxed, convivial evening over an elaborate French meal with Schmidt, Giscard, British Prime Minister James Callaghan and their wives.

American sources report the four leaders are united in hoping Iran will achieve political stability and resume oil production without total repudiation of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Giscard talks of China playing an increasingly important role in a world of "multi-polarization," in which the United States and the Soviet Union will be joined by other major power centers.

Callaghan, who faces national elections this year, seems ready to take the lead in arranging a major arms sale to China, a deal that could mean thousands of jobs and billions of dollars for the British economy.

The Carter administration, which opened diplomatic relations with China only this week, is taking a neutral stance toward such arms sales so long as the weapons are characterized as defensive in character. But the Soviet Union has given formal warning that arms sales to Peking would have serious although unspecified consequences.

The Chinese want to acquire about 80 Harrier jump-jet warplanes, a British product effective against tanks and capable of taking off from short runways. There are few if any full-scale jetports along the disputed Chinese-Soviet border.

Some Pentagon officials share a European belief that if China's industrial and military prowess is enhanced, Moscow would be compelled to reinforce its eastern frontiers and this could ease Soviet military pressure in Europe.

Carter and Giscard both have emphasized that the Caribbean summit will produce no major decisions.

Cost Of Home Mortgage Up To An Historic High

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — New government figures confirm what home buyers already know: Houses cost more now than ever before — more to buy and more to finance. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported Thursday the average interest rate in December on newly purchased houses was above 10 percent for the first time in history.

The average price for both new and used houses also hit an all-time high — $67,600 for new ones and $58,000 for those already lived in.

The average home buyer paid a 10.02 percent interest rate for new houses in December, up from 9.87 percent in November, the agency said. The average interest on used homes went from 9.97 percent in November to 10.06 last month.

By comparison, the average interest rate in April 1977 was 8.94 percent.

New house purchase prices jumped nearly $10,000 last year, from an average of $57,700 in December 1977 to last month's $67,600. Used houses went from an average $49,400 to $58,000.

That meant new house prices rose about 17.1 percent and used prices 17.4 percent — both well above the overall inflation rate of a little under 10 percent.

Most housing economists are expecting housing prices to increase by a smaller amount this year, closer to 10 percent.

For all of 1978, the average interest rate on new homes was 9.54 percent, compared with 9.01 percent in 1977, the board said.

Although interest rates and housing prices vary considerably by region, the averages give an indication of overall market trends. Michael Sumichrast, an economist with the National Association of Home Builders, said the government figures are "terribly misleading" because the average interest rates actually may be higher.

He said the government figures reflect the rates for home sales negotiated three to six months ago and just recently closed.

The "effective rate" interest for homes now on the market may be between 10.50 percent and 10.75 percent, Sumichrast said.

He said he expects the rate to climb into the 11.25 percent to 11.50 percent range during the coming year. "The rise should peak out in the third quarter of 1979," Sumichrast said.

Robert H. McKinney, home loan bank board chairman, said rising home prices themselves are a greater problem than rising interest rates.

"Although the recent rise in mortgage interest rates reflects a further sharp rise in market interest rates, it is clear that inflation is still the most serious problem," he said.

Teng Plans Effort To Regain Taiwan

By JOHN RODERICK
AP Special Correspondent

PEKING (AP) — Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping says he hopes China can get Taiwan back peacefully this year, but he doesn't rule out regaining it by "other than peaceful means."

To rule out other means, the senior vice premier told American correspondents at a news conference today, would tie China's hands. But he emphasized that peaceful reunification of the mainland and the big offshore island is Peking's goal.

Teng said his government "will be taking a variety of measures in different forms" to open discussions with President Chiang Ching-kuo and other leaders of the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

Chiang has repeatedly rejected negotiations with the Communists, and his government has rebuffed the overtures Peking has been making almost daily since the Nationalists' mainstay, the United States, opened diplomatic relations with Peking on Jan. 1 and broke formal relations with Taipei.

But Teng, who is 74, said he expects to see the mainland in control of Taiwan within his lifetime. He added with a smile: "I can live for at least another 10 years."

Teng, who begins a visit to Washington on Jan. 28, spoke with the American reporters for an hour conference in the Great Hall of the People. He spoke in Chinese entirely, using an interpreter, chain-smoked throughout and appeared to relish the session.

He said while in Washington he would not discuss Taiwan with Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Nationalists' chief supporter in Congress, but if he met him he would renew his invitation earlier this week to come to Peking to discuss reunification.

"Our main goal is for Mr. Goldwater to get to know about China," he explained.

Iran's Oil Workers Go Back To Their Jobs; Shah Ends His Holiday

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Oil-industry sources said striking petroleum workers began returning to their jobs today, apparently heeding the call of the anti-shah religious opposition to produce enough oil to save the Iranian economy from collapse.

Palace sources reported, meanwhile, that the embattled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi returned to Tehran by helicopter from the nearby ski resort of Jajroud, where he had gone Thursday for a brief vacation. Empress Farah and their children accompanied the monarch.

Shahpour Bakhtiar, the shah's choice for prime minister, was readying his proposed new civilian Cabinet for presentation to the monarch this weekend and later to the Parliament.

Since the latest round of antishah strikes began last month, oil production has plummeted from 6 million barrels a day to 250,000 barrels or less. Industry sources say it takes 900,000 barrels to meet Iran's domestic needs alone, and because of shortages the military-led government ordered fuel rationing last week.

An oil-industry source, who asked not to be named, said that with the return of some strikers the first shipments of kerosene and heating oil are expected to reach Tehran Saturday. Figures on total production for the day were unavailable.

Refineries in Abadan and Tabriz resumed limited production today but those in Shiraz and Tehran remained shut down pending a decision by their striking workers Saturday.

Ayatullah Khomeini, the Moslem religious leader who is the symbol of the anti-shah movement, had called Wednesday for the workers to produce enough fuel to ease the burden on the people.

The shah emerged from near-seclusion in his palace Thursday for his brief vacation in the nearby mountains. Earlier, he formally appointed Bakhtiar to head a civilian Cabinet to replace the military regime the shah named last November in an unsuccessful attempt to end months of violence and crush religious and political opposition to his reign.

After signing the royal decree naming Bakhtiar prime minister, the shah, Empress Farah and their children went to the ski slopes at Jajroud, 40 miles east of Tehran. Ardeshir Zahedi, Iran's ambassador to Washington and a close confidant of the shah, said it was the monarch's first vacation from the capital in three months.

Bakhtiar has said the shah would leave for a "rest and a vacation" while the new government works to restore order, but the trip to Jajroud clearly was not what he had in mind.

Dedication February 2 For Regional Jetport

KINSTON — Gov. Jim Hunt is scheduled to speak at the dedication of the Eastern Regional Jetport at Stallings Field here February 2.

The 3 p.m. airport terminal dedication will follow an 11 a.m. program to dedicate Kinston Towers, an 11-story housing facility for the elderly, and a 1 p.m. dedication program at the new Kinston High School.

The $2.1 million Jetport, opened in July, was funded in part with Economic Development Administration funds, and serves some 4,500 customers each month.

Piedmont Airlines occupies 6,898 square feet of space in the 26,000 square foot terminal building. Other areas in the terminal building are occupied by a taxi franchise, three car rental companies, a news and magazine stand, and an insurance booth. Offices and a conference room are also included in the facility.

The $5 million high school will open its doors to students later this month, and will hold an open house for the general public in April.

Kinston Towers is a modern $3 million facility with 150 one and two bedroom apartments designed especially for the elderly.

Senior citizens are still in the process of occupying the high-rise building which was completed in December.

BLOCKING ILLEGAL?

I would like to know if it is not illegal, as well as inconsiderate, for motorists to block traffic where side streets come into main arteries. The situation in Greenville is particularly bad, along Dickinson Avenue in attempting to come onto Dickinson from any of the streets that feed into this heavily trafficked street. J. R.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said he believes it's a matter of courtesy, not of law. He agreed with you that more consideration for the other guy would greatly alleviate traffic problems in Greenville.

His courtesy made my holiday here much nicer.

Suing 9 Big Oil Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy and Justice departments sued nine major oil companies in U.S. District Court today, accusing them of overcharges totaling $1 billion and asking refunds plus interest and penalties.

Energy Department spokesman James Bishop said it was the department's largest enforcement action so far, bringing to about $2.2 billion the total involved in such action which began in September 1977.

The department earlier had alleged $316 million in overcharges by Exxon, the world's largest petroleum company. This was included in the $1 billion claimed in today's lawsuit as the department sought to have the Exxon case considered together with eight new ones.

The remaining $614 million was charged against Mobil, Texaco, Amoco, Shell, Phillips, Gulf, Atlantic Richfield and Cities Service, all large oil and gas producing companies.

Bishop had no immediate breakdown of the overcharges alleged against each company.

There was no immediate comment from the companies involved.

Talk Adding To Controls

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Five members of the N.C. Milk Commission said Thursday they thought the commission should consider setting milk prices for retailers and processors, as well as producers.

Two persons on the 10-member board said they oppose setting prices in all three areas. The commission currently sets prices at the production level only, although it has the authority to set the other prices as well.

"This present system leaves us setting prices on one stage of the process and relying on the free enterprise system to take care of the other stages," commissioner B.F. Nesbitt, a dairy farmer, said.

Milk prices in North Carolina stores jumped between 10 and 20 cents a gallon this week, following a 6.5 cent-per-gallon increase in wholesale prices that went into effect Monday.

R.E. Davenport, a processor from Fayetteville, and dairy farmer David Smith of Lexington said they were concerned about protecting milk processors.

"Because we set prices on one end and rely on the free enterprise system on the other end, the processors are caught in the middle," Smith said. "They are getting squeezed tighter and tighter, and some have been going out of business. Fewer processors mean less competition, and less competition means the price of milk on the retail level will continue to go up."

Clifton Harper, a public member of the commission from Winston-Salem, and Oren Heffner of Mocksville, who represents retailers on the commission, both said they do not favor setting retail prices.

"I think that the best thing is to have open competition," Harper said. "The competition would serve to keep prices lower."

The commission is made up of one retailer, two producers, two processors and five public members, who are not connected with the industry.

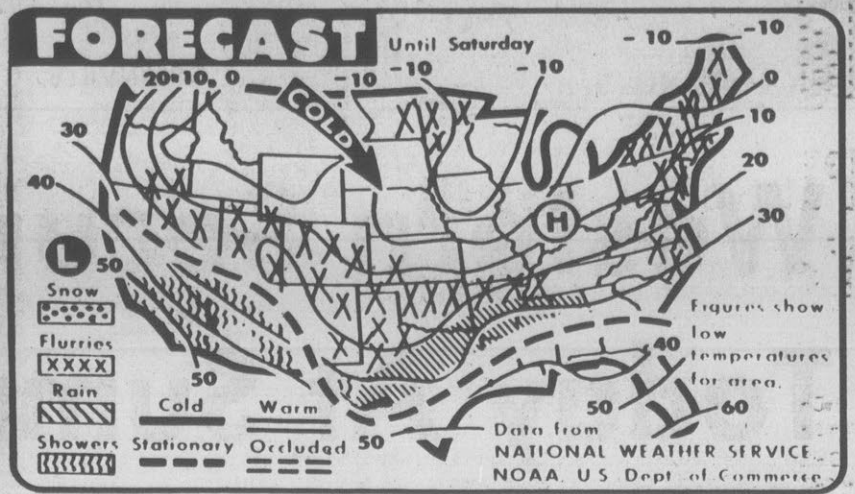

Members formally considered setting prices in all three areas in May 1977, commission officials said.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT "MINIMUM" — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, right, leaves residence at Neauphle Le Chateau Thursday en route to his daily prayers. During an interview on the same day, the exiled head of the dominant Shiite Moslem sect and long-time opponent of the Shah, demanded that the Shah and the Shah's family be imprisoned for life. "That would be the minimum", the 78-year-old Ayatollah told The Associated Press. Others in the photo are unidentified. (AP Laserphoto)

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — A band of snow flurries, showers and rain is expected until Saturday morning from southern California and the southern Rockies to the upper Mississippi Valley. Snow flurries are indicated from North Carolina to New England. Cold to very cold temperatures are forecast for the Nation. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

Temperatures showed some moderation in North Carolina today after the most severe cold spell of this winter, which produced record lows for the date in some areas.

The moderation will continue through the weekend, with temperatures probably reaching the 40s by Sunday, and even maybe some 50s along the coast.

Some of the frigid lows during the cold spell included 4 degrees at Asheville, 7 at Greensboro, 10 at Raleigh, and 12 below zero on Grandfather Mountain. By contrast, this morning's lows included Asheville 25, Charlotte 28, Greensboro 25, Raleigh 23, and Wilmington 27.

Increasing cloudiness was expected through today and there was the prospect of some light snow over the mountains this afternoon and tonight. The cloudiness will continue through the weekend and the mountains again will face a chance of light snow or rain Saturday.

The precipitation will be moving eastward Sunday—but should be in the form of rain.

Plan An Early Wage Request

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education plans to ask budget officials for an immediate 50 percent pay increase for substitute teachers in state schools.

It will be at least the fifth time education officials have asked for increased pay, Board Chairman David Bruton said.

"It's a big problem," Bruton said. "They (the schools) have a tremendous difficulty getting well-trained and willing substitute teachers out there in the schools."

The board will ask the Advisory Budget Commission to let it use other appropriations for the state Department of Public Instruction for the pay increase, as well as for nearly $900,000 for school bus safety equipment.

The board wants the substitute teacher's salary raised from $20 to $30 a day and has asked for $1 million to pay for the hike, beginning Feb. 1. The board is also requesting $10 million to fund the increase in the next two-year budget.

Bruton is optimistic the commission will approve the request this year. "I don't believe in their wisdom they'll reject something of such importance to the children of this state," he said.

For school buses, the extra money would buy additional mirrors for all buses and a "walking control arm" for some buses. The arm would extend five feet in front of the bus when the driver opens the door and is designed to force children to walk far enough ahead of the bus when crossing its path so the driver can see them.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, a member of the board, said he was not sure the arms were the answer to the problem and suggested equipping them with doors on the left as well as on the right so children would not have to cross over in front of the bus.

In other action, the board unanimously agreed that all private schools, regardless of academic reputation or religious affiliation, must administer the state competency test to their students.

Hospital Nurse Angry, Not Fearful, In Ordeal

MARION, S.C. (AP) — Ramona Swails says she wasn't scared, just angry, when two young men entered the Palmetto General Hospital emergency room and demanded drugs early Thursday.

"I was mad," the 31-year-old head nurse said. "They were long-haired shaggy men with shotguns. I saw them as they entered the emergency room door and called the police."

"I didn't get scared until they jammed a shotgun into my chest and marched me down the hall to the drug cabinet," she said.

Mrs. Swails was taken hostage by the two men, but later released unharmed. However, her abduction was just the beginning of a six-hour incident that began shortly before 3 a.m.

Authorities today are holding without bond two men arrested in connection with the incident. Michael D. Stephenson, 22, of Chester and Jerry Sumner, 29, of Union County are charged with kidnapping, armed robbery and assault with intent to kill. They were to be arraigned today.

Mrs. Swails said the masked men demanded "demerol or anything." She said she told them she did not have a key to the hospital drug cabinet. Then, she said, one of them "tore it off the wall with his bare hands."

The gunmen shot an orderly, Robin Vondroff, 25, who started to run when he saw them, according to State Law Enforcement Division spokesman Hugh Munn.

Vondroff was listed in stable condition at in the intensive care unit of another hospital Thursday night.

After shooting the orderly, the men put a shotgun to Mrs. Swails' neck and forced her out the hospital. They took the cabinet with them.

Mrs. Swails said one of them warned her that if there were any police outside, "I'm going to blow your head off."

Mrs. Swails was put in the back seat of a car. After driving only a few blocks, the men drove into a blind alley where, Mrs. Swails said, "They got panicky and said they had to get another car."

When the gunmen dragged Mrs. Swails out of the car, she asked, "Oh my God, you're going to kill me — aren't you?"

But one of them replied, "No, Lady." They locked her in the trunk and left.

She was released later by police. The drug cabinet was also found in the alley.

Munn said the gunmen returned to the hospital and took up a position on the roof of the two-story hospital while police surrounded it at about 3:30 a.m. They remained there in the subfreezing temperatures until 9 a.m.

"They did not surrender," said Capt. Leon Gasque, deputy director of SLED. "We had Stephenson's family and girlfriend here and they each asked them to give themselves up but they did not."

Vondroff crawled to a locked glass door where police spotted him, the spokesman added. Officers broke the glass and rushed Vondroff to Marion Memorial Hospital.

Set Program On Planning

The Pitt County Planning Board is sponsoring a program on subdivision water management for engineering and surveying firms, municipal and county officials, and interested citizens January 17.

The 8 p.m. program, to be held in the District Courtroom of the Pitt County Court House, will include slide and narrative presentations of drainage, erosion control, street construction and overall water management practices.

Keith Oats of the Water Management Division, N.C. State Health Department, will conduct the program.

County Planner Larry Hurlocker said the Planning Board is sponsoring the session in hopes that the program will be of benefit to government officials, engineers, subdivision designers and the general public.

Further information about the program may be secured by calling the Planning Department at 752-2934.

New Steakhouse To Open Here Tuesday

The opening of the Western Steer Family Steakhouse is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 9, according to Steve Coggins, owner.

Coggins said the restaurant will have a seating capacity of 250 and will employ 65 people. The facility will have two private dining rooms that will seat up to 100 people, he added.

He pointed out that the restaurant will offer a range of USDA meats including chopped sirloin, rib eye, New York strip, T-bone and filet mignon. A salad bar is also featured.

Coggins reported that David Poston will be the manager of the Western Steer, with Rick Aman serving as assistant manager.

The restaurant will be open Sunday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m.

Marshall Digh originated the Western Steer restaurants, it was mentioned, and is based in North Carolina with 50 franchised restaurants throughout the Southeast.

Defector Has Research Role

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — One of the Soviet Union's leading medical scientists who defected to the United States last month is working as a research associate at Duke University Medical Center.

Dr. Igor Konstantinovich Egorov, who headed the laboratory at the Soviet Academy of Sciences' Institute of General Genetics before his defection, said he and his wife, Olga, slipped away from Russian security guards at a Cairo hotel one morning last month.

The Egorovs, who had been on a vacation cruise of the eastern Mediterranean, went to the American embassy and asked for political asylum. After a day of questioning by State Department officials, they were flown to New York.

The couple left their 17-year-old son, Andrey, in Moscow. They talked with Andrey on Christmas day and told him they were safe and living in North Carolina. Egorov said their son will live with his grandparents.

Dr. D. Bernard Amos, chief of Duke Medical Center's immunology division, said Egorov is a foremost authority on immunogenetics.

"We hope to be able to have him join the faculty, perhaps first as a visiting professor, and then as a medical research professor," Amos said.

Egorov, 42, said "greater opportunity to collaborate with western scientists" was one of the reasons he left the Soviet Union. He chose Duke because he had visited the medical center twice before and found the research being conducted in Amos' laboratory "to be among the best in the world in our field."

Egorov said he and his wife are grateful for the welcome given to them by North Carolinians but said he prefers to avoid further publicity about the defection.

"This is really a very simple story," Egorov said. "I came here to work in the laboratory and that is all I want to do."

Film Series To Begin Tuesday

A series of 10 films titled "How Should We Then Live? The Rise and Decline of Western Thought and Culture," will be shown at Immanuel Baptist Church here beginning Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The films, being sponsored by a group of local Christians, will be shown each Tuesday night thereafter at the same hour.

The series is the work of Dr. Francis Schaeffer, who is widely known for the intellectual defense of Christianity. He has written a book which parallels the films and 19 other books. His son, Franky Schaeffer V, produced the film series, made in 100 locations in 12 countries.

The public is invited to any or all of the film showings.

APPREHENDED — Fred Dixon Jr., 28, of Pontiac, Mich., was in custody of federal and state authorities today in connection with the theft of $1.5 million from an armored truck. Michigan State Police said Dixon and the money disappeared Thursday night while the truck was parked outside a restaurant in Lakeport, Mich. Dixon was one of three guards on the truck. The other two guards left him in the truck while they took a coffee break, police said. (AP Laserphoto)

Please Fasten Your Earplugs

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: The following item appeared recently in my column:

DEAR ABBY: While flying from Los Angeles to Chicago recently, I was rudely awakened from a much-needed nap by a booming voice that came over the loudspeaker with: "This is your captain speaking. We are now flying over the Grand Canyon . . . etc."

Abby, this was not a charter flight carrying a load of sight-seeing hicks who had never flown before. I'm sure most of the passengers had already seen the Grand Canyon from 39,000 feet.

Be a friend to those of us who fly the friendly skies frequently and print this. It might help.

J.E. IN L.A.

DEAR J.E.: I also fly the friendly skies frequently, and concur. (Captain, oh, captain, are you listening?)

Ever since the above hit print, I have been deluged with reader reaction. For example:

DEAR ABBY: To assume that others should miss the opportunity of a lifetime because YOU have already seen the Grand Canyon at 39,000 feet is selfish and inconsiderate. If you and J.E. find it necessary to nap in the afternoon, you should get to bed earlier or see a doctor.

J.K. IN COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: If J.E. doesn't appreciate the captain's announcements, why doesn't he charter his own private jet and put a hood over his head?

BILL C. IN ELIZABETH, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: I am a private pilot and recently flew to Arizona on a commercial flight. This was my first flight west. The captain's voice, calling attention to points of interest, increased the pleasure of the flight immensely. I had a window seat, but there were three noses pressed against it. So, Abby, stick this in your boarding pass and enjoy your next flight.

E.C. IN COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you and J.E., reluctantly, that sleeping passengers should be allowed to sleep. However, you should not have allowed his arrogant, deprecating allusion to "sight-seeing hicks" to have passed without reprimand.

BERNARD SCOTT, ERIE, PENN.

DEAR BERNARD: You're right. I apologize.

DEAR ABBY: Fares are now low enough so that many are flying for the first time. Those who want to sleep during a daytime flight should use earplugs. I slept soundly at 2 a.m. during a forced landing while the rest of the passengers prayed and sang hymns.

A.I.M. IN S.F.

DEAR ABBY: I love to hear the captain's voice come booming over the loudspeaker at any time of the day or night! It lets me know that he's up there, wide-awake and tending to business.

J.E. IN N.Y.C.

DEAR ABBY: As a flight attendant I am frequently asked how high are we, how fast are we going, and what is it that we just flew over. I can answer a lot of these questions, but the captain is the authority, and has been complimented by many passengers for his informative and witty comments.

She wore a tiered illusion veil edged in Venice lace and held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a contemporary cascade of white silk roses, daisies and baby's breath with lace and satin streamers.

The honor attendant was dressed in a sleeveless gown of polyester bluegray voile print over taffeta with a solid bluegray cape collar and sash. The attendants' gowns were styled like the honor attendant in solid bluegray polyester and printed cape collar and sash. They carried long-stemmed tinted mums.

The flower girl was dressed like the honor attendant and carried a basket filled with daisies.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length dress of light blue and the mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length dress of salmon. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the couple will live in Bell Arthur.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Farmville Central High School. She is employed by Carolina Tel. and Tel. Co. and he works at Procter and Gamble.

A cake cutting was held following the wedding rehearsal. The attendants were remembered with gifts.

Mrs. Edith Edwards of Falkland directed the wedding.

Campaign Goal Is Reached

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina has reached its goal of $125,000 during its 1978 Little Red Stocking fund raising campaign.

In making the announcement, Mrs. James Whitton, president of the agency, said, "The Board of Directors would like to express our thanks to the friends of The Children's Home Society who have shared so generously this season."

In addition to placing children for adoption, CHS offers free, professional problem pregnancy counseling for persons seeking to adopt. These services are rendered through seven area offices located in Asheville, Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Greenville and Wilmington.

For a special treat, sprinkle tiny frozen blueberries over pancakes before they are turned on the griddle. Serve with blueberry syrup.

Refinery Poses Great Benefit

The awaited announcement of construction of an oil refinery costing nearly half a billion dollars in Brunswick County came this week.

The construction phase will employ 2,000 workers and 200 to 300 workers will be employed when the refinery is completed.

The refinery will obviously be of economic benefit to the southeast section of the state, but there are also real ecological problems.

State officials have said the firm, Crown Central Petroleum Corp. and two partner firms operating under the name of Brunswick Energy Corp., will have to go through a rigorous process to obtain the necessary permits.

Required state and federal permits will have to be reviewed by six federal and 16 state agencies.

It has been some years since an oil refinery has been constructed on the east coast, and environmental factors have apparently been the cause.

The refinery will provide jobs and other direct financial benefits to Brunswick County which is certainly positive. It will also be a source of fuel for Eastern North Carolina industries which might be critical in some future energy crunch.

At the same time the environment must be protected and it will be up to the developing firm and the various state and federal agencies involved to make certain that this is done.

Hopefully, It Will Be Kept Attractive

The Hopkins Park housing development has been completed on Evans Street and, it was reported at the Housing Authority meeting this week, is almost fully occupied.

It is a nice looking development which improves this entrance to the city. We hope that as time passes, the development can be kept attractive in appearance.

THIS AFTERNOON Could Tap The Reserves

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Strangely enough, at the same time Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw continues his campaign of alarm over rapidly dwindling highway funds in North Carolina, there is an untapped reserve on hand in which could more than meet current needs.

For months, Bradshaw has publicly and privately pressed for a gasoline tax increase. He has done so more privately of late since running afoul of Gov. Jim Hunt's adamant insistence on no tax hikes during his four years as governor.

More recently, Bradshaw went public with the information that the Highway Fund budget he sent to the governor was at least a million dollars out of balance. The fund, he said, is scraping bottom.

To that, Gov. Hunt has a calm response: all departments send in budget requests far out of balance, but they are simply trimmed back. That must happen in highways as well.

Bonds

Furthermore, there is the $300 million bond fund to be drawn upon, and the prospects of transferring Highway Patrol financing (some $32 million each year) out of the Highway Fund and into the General Tax Fund. When the Patrol was housed in Transportation it seemed logical to fund it from the Highway Fund; now it is under the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Ironically, there is sufficient cash on hand in the State's pocket to more than meet Bradshaw's suggested deficit. It is reliably reported at least $100 million is tucked away in the Department of Transportation's bank accounts, obscured by the book-keeping system and kept there only by policy — not law.

It is unrelentingly — but believably — reported that the total could be as much as $200 million. Even veteran state auditors don't seem able to put their fingers on all of the cash on hand.

That money could be made available for immediate spending on highway construction and maintenance across the state without any action by the General Assembly or prolonged debate.

A simple stroke of the pen by Gov. Hunt would do the job. "I am looking into that carefully," says Hunt. The state's history of careful handling of money; the consequences of change in the future; and the political ramifications all must be explored.

Here is the situation: when the Transportation Board approves a project, the money to pay for it is immediately set aside and locked up for however many years it may take to completion.

Future

Thus, a road project still five or seven years away is fully funded while immediate needs appear unmet.

The attractions of a change in that policy are obvious. Current needs in construction and maintenance could be addressed while a gas tax hike could be avoided; today's dollars could be spent for more road than the future's inflated dollars.

But it isn't all that simple, either.

Having the funds committed for a future project gives comfort to those pushing that development; having dollars in hand means the state can (and has) easily matched federal funds to advantage; and the money does provide some continuity over the years which guarantees that the state's highway funds won't disappear, leaving half-finished projects hanging.

Gov. Hunt says he is likely to decide within the next two or three months which course to pursue.

"Listen, Mr. Smug-mug... just because you were acquitted of raping me doesn't mean I can't still divorce you!"

By ART BUCHWALD Hamburger Is Forever

WASHINGTON — Everyone knew it would happen, but nobody wanted to face up to it. The price of hamburger meat is expected to rise by as much as 20 to 25 cents a pound in 1979. Add this to the 37-cent rise in 1978, and hamburger not only becomes a luxury item but a status symbol as well.

Scene 1:

"Mr. Guilford, this is Ramsay of Ramsay Duplicators. I was wondering if you and your wife would care to join Mrs. Ramsay, myself and a few friends tonight at Burger Chef?"

"That's very kind of you, but as you know, Mr. Ramsay, the heat is on at the Government Services Administration, and if my wife and I were seen eating with you at Burger Chef, there might be a grand jury investigation."

"This is just a social evening, Guilford. I don't expect you to buy our duplicators just because I bought you a hamburger."

"I know that, Mr. Ramsay, but we're not talking about fried potatoes. Meredith, who was a GS-14 in purchasing, was treated to a meat loaf sandwich by the Scott Tissue people two months ago, and he's been indicted in New Jersey. Can you imagine what would happen to me if I was seen in Burger Chef, chewing away on a fresh hamburger?"

"I see the problem. I have a suggestion. Why don't we send a pound of ground sirloin over to your house with our compliments? Then no one would know about it."

"A pound of hamburger? You might as well send me a Chris-Craft speedboat. I'm sorry, Mr. Ramsay. I'll have to forget this conversation ever took place."

"All right, but if Burger Chef is too dangerous for you, we'd be happy to meet you at a White Tower in Culpepper, Va., where no one will see you."

Scene 2:

"Gloria, now that you've announced your engagement, I think we must talk about the wedding. The ceremony will, of course, take place in the National Cathedral, and the reception will be at McDonald's in McLean, Va."

"But, Daddy, it will be so expensive. Can't we hold the reception some place reasonable, such as the Mayflower Hotel?"

"Gloria, your mother and I want the best for you. Your wedding means a lot to us. You are our only daughter, and since you were a little girl we always dreamed that someday we could throw you a party under the Golden Arches of McDonald's. Now let's discuss the menu. I thought we might start with a fish fillet sandwich and then, as the main course, a Big Mac."

"A Big Mac! We could buy a house for what that would cost."

"It's all right, child. We've been saving all our lives for this. Besides, when John Douglas' daughter got married he served everyone a Whopper from Burger King, and I'll be damned if he's going to show me up."

"Oh, Daddy, you're the kindest, most generous father in the whole wide world."

Fixing Goals Of '79

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) — Upon my soul, the new year is upon us already.

TROUBLE SPOTS Uncertainties For Soviet

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Serious trouble spots are developing along vast areas of the Soviet Union's non-European borders — more problems than the Soviets have had to deal with at one time since World War II. Western diplomatic analysts say. Clearly, it has the Kremlin worried.

Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and Afghanistan all have known periods of turmoil before, but never have all been so unstable simultaneously.

Complicating the picture is China, which has a troubled 4,350-mile border with the Soviet Union and has just opened diplomatic relations with the United States.

It adds up to this: With the exception of Mongolia, Kremlin strategists are now faced with uncertainty in every country that the U.S.S.R. borders from the Middle East to the Pacific.

In addition to developments in China, the Kremlin must consider that:

—Iran, which separates the Soviet Union from the Persian Gulf and has ethnic links to Azerbaijanis and Turkmenis living in the U.S.S.R., has been wracked by rioting aimed at deposing Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Iran has been pro-West, but also supplies the Soviets with natural gas. And the foreign policy of any successor would be hard to predict.

—In Turkey, a NATO member whose government has taken steps toward normalizing relations with Moscow, martial law has been declared after rioting in the eastern part of the country.

—In Afghanistan, the Soviets have become deeply involved in the survival of a fragile regime. And in Pakistan, whose border with Afghanistan comes within a few miles of the Soviet Union, deposed Premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto is appealing a death sentence — which, if carried out, could split his nation.

The Peking regime capped a year of vigorous diplomatic activity by normalizing relations with the United States — a move that prompted uneasiness in the Kremlin about the objectives behind it.

Diplomatic sources are uncertain what to expect now. They say it is possible to argue that the Russians' concern over developments in Asia and China will make them more accommodating toward the West — or that they will do anything they can to prove that expectation wrong.

"I don't think there's been a time since the war when the Soviets have had to cope with so many problems at the same time," said one senior Western envoy. "They are masters at the international chess board but there are too many imponderables at present to move with confidence in one game, let alone in several."

One factor the Kremlin must consider is whether its own Moslem population could be swept up in the Islamic revival in the Arab world, Iran and Pakistan. One in seven Soviet citizens is a Moslem.

The stakes are greatest in oil-rich Iran.

The Soviet press has accused the Carter administration of spreading "new provocative fabrications" about Soviet threats to justify its own use of "gunboat diplomacy." Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, has charged repeatedly in recent days that the United States is interfering in Iran's affairs, citing reports that U.S. aircraft carriers are heading for the Gulf.

The White House said Wednesday that the carrier Constellation and accompanying ships are still in the South China Sea with no indication they will be moved nearer Iran.

The Soviet attacks on U.S. policy in Iran, beamed toward that country in stepped-up Persian-language broadcasts, have been coupled, diplomats say, with an effort to hedge bets on the shah so the Russians can take advantage of the situation if he doesn't survive.

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

The U. S. recognition of the People's Republic of China indicates a dramatic shift in U. S. economic plight, in U. S. military decline and in U. S. attitude toward Chinese domestic reality and existence.

With the devalued worth of the dollar in the international arena, this nation may reduce its trade deficit with a market which contains nearly a billion people, thereby lessening inflation. With the potential for crude oil in China, this nation's dependence upon OPEC may diminish by 1985.

Russia presently is the strongest military power in the world, followed by the U. S. The Chinese unquestionably do not trust the Russians; therefore, the joint recognition of China and America underscores this fact and mutually strengthens the military philosophy and position of these nations. With China affirmed by America, the U. S. enforces its military commitment in the Pacific, including Taiwan.

America now respects and affirms the late Chairman Mao's Cultural Revolution. Prior to 1972 when Nixon visited China and until Carter's formal recognition last week, America viewed China as backward, ignorant and intransigent. America, therefore, did not appreciate Mao's influence, opting to support Taiwan. Generally, Americans can presently understand the significance and meaning of Mao's victory over Chiang Kai-Shek, and the impact and pride the victory fostered on the mainland. In essence, America has now recognized the greatness and leadership — this writer esteemed a year ago in an editorial — of the late Chairman Mao.

Often the fruits of our labors are reaped after our earthly departure; yet, man's greatest contribution is the legacy bestowed to his people. It is my hope the formal recognition between China and the U. S. will positively mature over the years. It must for the alternative is war.

Three-Year-Old Is Poor Loser

By GAIL MICHAELS
I always thought that all successful games required three fixed assumptions: first that two players or teams were pitted against each other in a fair contest with an exhilarating element of suspense; second, that there was always the possibility of losing; and third, that if you happened to be the loser, you conducted yourself in a sportsmanlike manner.

That was before I started playing games with a three-year-old. The three-year-old holds an entirely different set of assumptions. First, he assumes that the adult opponent is in cahoots with him at all times. Second, the thought of losing never enters his mind. And third, if he happens to lose, he regards this as a singular betrayal equal only to physical abuse or abandonment.

It only takes one game of "Old Maid" to reveal these cornerstones of preschool gamesmanship. The minute the Old Maid enters Meg's hand, I know it. She hunches her shoulders, wrinkles her nose, screws up her mouth, and gets shifty-eyed. She holds this expression until it's my turn to choose from her hand. Then she giggles. She's like a geiger counter. The closer I get to the Old Maid, the harder she giggles. And if I don't choose that card, she looks so bewildered that I feel like Benedict Arnold.

Another favorite is hide-and-seek. Hide-and-seek is not really a game for Meg; it's a ritual. She has two hiding places, and just in case I forget where they are, she clicks her tongue when she gets settled. I must go through an identical series of movements when I hunt for her, and if I forget something, she stops the action to remind me. And when it's her turn to seek, she cheats.

"1-2-3-4-7-10! Here I come, ready or not!"

I scrambled behind a curtain and waited.

"Mommy," she chirruped. "Where are you-ou-ou?" She searched all the approved places, and then the chirrup turned to panic. "Mommy!" she screamed. "Mommy, I can't find you!"

"Here I am," I said, throwing back the curtain.

Now it was my turn to be bewildered. She just grinned and started searching again. "She's not under the table. She's not under the desk. Where can she be?"

Eventually, she decided to find me, and then, while I was watching, she ran and hid in the coat closet.

"Come find me, Mommy!" I thought I knew my lines by heart. "She's not under the table. She's not behind the chair. Where is my little girl?"

"You're supposed to say,

"Where can my little girl be?" came the voice from the closet.

"Where can my little girl be?" I said. "Can she be in the closet?"

"No. Go hunt in another room."

"I don't want to hunt in another room. I've already found you."

"But it's not time to find me," she protested.

I was getting impatient. "Yes, it is. If you want me to play with you, you'll have to play by the rules."

She was still pouting, but she said, "All right. You go hide under the table while I count to ten."

"Honey, that's not the way you play this game. If I get under the table, I won't be hiding."

She burst into tears. "You're supposed to get under the table!"

Sometimes I think mothers are born losers.

Strength For Today

GRAVEN ON GRANITE
Centuries ago a pharaoh commanded that a great tomb be erected in which his body would later be laid away. The entrance to the tomb was covered with plaster and on this plaster the name of the Pharaoh was inscribed.

But as time passed, the Nile washed away the plaster and with it the name of the Pharaoh. Then was revealed on the stone beneath the name of Sosthenes, the architect who had designed the tomb and engraved his name on the stone door. So,

'Old Christmas' For Rodanthe'

By JOHN BLIZZARD
Dare County Tourist Bureau

RODANTHE — Christmas comes but once a year — unless you live in the small community of Rodanthe on the Outer Banks of North Carolina. The islanders in Rodanthe observe the Yule holidays in two spirited ceremonies — one on the modern calendar's "new" Christmas of Dec. 25, and the other on the "Old Christmas" of Jan. 5.

Some claim that Rodanthe is probably the only community in America which still celebrates Old Christmas. And they celebrate in their time-honored way.

This year, for the sake of convenience, the celebration will be held on Saturday, Jan. 6. Several years ago the date of observance was moved to the Saturday closest to Jan. 5 so that more out-of-town people could attend.

In the fashion of their European ancestors, people of Rodanthe gather for a festive observance whose star is "Old Buck," a four-footed creature who has ridden down a long path of tradition. The Old Buck of Rodanthe is said to live in the Outer Banks woods and is seen only once a year, on Old Christmas day. An appearance by this noted apparition is the highlight of the evening's activities.

Rodanthe residents come together for the celebration in an old school house which now serves the small village as a civic center. The communal sharing of fun and the musical merriment provided by the beat of an antique drum is said to coax Old Buck out of the woods on this Twelfth Night.

Old Christmas is called the Twelfth Night celebration because of the 12-calendar-day difference between the modern Dec. 25 Christmas date and the original Jan. 5 date.

When the British Government imposed the Gregorian calendar on all its possessions, including the American colonies in 1752, there was a loss of 11 days in the calendrical system.

Through calculations, it was decreed that as of the year 1900 there would be an additional day lost, bringing the total difference to 12. Therefore, the ancient calendar date for Christmas of Jan. 5 has come to be known as the Twelfth Night of the loss due to the adoption of the Gregorian schedule.

Some 18th century colonists, particularly in isolated and remote areas of the country, refused the imposition and held true to their original observance date. Rodantheans were just such people.

In Rodanthe, Old Christmas is a homecoming time when families who have left the area return. In the afternoon the islanders dress in costumes of earlier times, and men gather driftwood along the beach for the outdoor oyster roast at night.

Old Christmas remains perhaps the most festive tradition on the Outer Banks, a colorful celebration for a colorful community.

Opportunities For Investors Remain

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

Most investment experts and economists agree that a recession is likely in 1979, although there is a great deal of disagreement on how mild or severe it will be.

Within this framework, the stock and bond markets are not likely to do well early in the year. In fact, we expect a decline in the first quarter with a bottom being reached by mid-year. In this type of investment environment, many investors are reluctant to hold securities and prefer to sit on the sidelines until the bottom has been established.

Picking a bottom in the stock markets or pinpointing the peak in interest rates can be done only in retrospect, however, and securities do not always bottom in tandem. Waiting on the sidelines can cause you to miss many good values that are available today.

For the yield conscious, many high and relatively safe returns can be achieved in buying bonds. Interest rates are at least nearing a peak and are historically high. Utility common stocks can also be considered for high current income. Yields of some of the common stocks are higher than on the preferred issues of the same company and near their bond yields. Utility common stock prices should react positively to a decline in interest rates, and unlike bonds, they are not subject to being called and the rate of income is not fixed.

For the common stock investor, many stocks may already have bottomed. Always opt for quality-strong balance sheets, low low price/earnings multiples, and a demonstrated ability to increase earnings and dividends over the longer term.

Widespread changes in our economy in the last decade make imperative that you select stock groups which will benefit from continually changing society.

There are several stock groups which should do well in the coming bull market. Demand for computers should continue strong, for cost saving reasons and new applications, such as communications. The broad energy group should also benefit from a changing economy, both from strong demand and government.

"A band of masked men held up an Armored Brinks Truck yesterday and got away with an estimated $2 million worth of chopped sirloin, which had a street value of $60 a pound. FBI agent Sean McBride said this was the biggest hamburger heist in history. The robbers stopped the truck as it was making a delivery to Hamburger Heaven on Wisconsin Avenue, disarming not only the guard delivering the meat, but also his three escorts who carried shotguns. A Brinks' spokesman said it had to be an inside job. 'We carry money five days a week and only deliver meat on Friday. Somebody knew this. Fortunately the meat had a lot of fat on it, or the loss to Brinks would have been doubled.'" began, the Soviet press reflected the official view that the shah was preferable to any alternative and printed Western news service dispatches from Tehran. Now Pravda has a correspondent in Tehran reporting on the "popular uprising."

By contrast, there has been little comment on the situation in Turkey, which is strategically placed between the Soviet Union and the Middle East. Diplomatic sources say the Soviets are used to periodic unrest in Turkey. The official news agency Tass blamed the troubles there on "provocations of the right extremists."

The Soviets prefer Premier Bulent Ecevit's leftist coalition to a conservative or military government because he has taken steps to normalize relations with Moscow, diplomats say.

The U.S.S.R. is more deeply committed to seeing the fragile regime of Premier Nur Mohammed Taraki hold on in Afghanistan. To insure this, Western diplomats say, the Soviets have increased the number of advisers by four times to 5,000 since Taraki seized power last April.

Last month Taraki came to Moscow to sign a treaty of friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union that is sure to increase concern in the West, as well as in Peking, that Afghanistan has become a new base for Soviet adventurism, particularly in Iran and Pakistan.

But the Kremlin has backed a regime that is deeply unpopular with Afghanistan's Moslem and tribal population, diplomats say. The program of Marxist industrialization the government has proclaimed is getting substantial attention in the Soviet press, but it could create the same conditions that touched off unrest in Iran.

An important part of the opposition to the shah is based on conservative Moslem objections to his methods in modernizing Iran.

In Pakistan, the Soviet Union — along with the West and Peking — is keeping a wary eye while waiting for the decision on whether Bhutto will be executed. Such a move could touch off demonstrations by Bhutto supporters that would pose a threat to Pakistan's unity, already under strain by demands of the frontier province and Baluchistan for greater autonomy.

Election Of 2 Popes Topped '78 News

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Several religion-reporting groups have come up with their lists of the top religion stories of 1978, and without exception, they chose the deaths and elections of two Roman Catholic popes as the No. 1 news event.

The pope stories got that rating from the Religion News-writers Association, made up of journalists who cover religion for the secular press, from the Catholic News Service serving Catholic publications, and from Religion News Service, which serves both secular and religious journals.

Ranked second was the mass murder-suicide in Jonestown, Guyana.

Despite the horrifying and sensational aspect of the Jonestown incident, religion writers saw greater long-range significance in the election — following two successive papal deaths — of Pope John Paul II, the first Polish pope in history and the first non-Italian in 455 years.

The second-place listings of the Guyana mass suicides and murders noted that the affair drew increased pressure for government restraints on the modern proliferation of cults.

Other top-rated religion stories that were cited include: —Three heads of state, President Carter, a Baptist; Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, a Jew, and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, a Moslem, credit religion as a factor in their preliminary Camp David accord on the Middle East.

—The World Council of Churches' controversial $85,000 grant to the Patriotic Front of Zimbabwe drew fire from several member denominations, some of which suspended membership.

—Friction rose between U.S. federal agencies and the churches over governmental rulings which church leaders say interfere with their operations.

—Moslem rivals of the shah appear as a major political factor in civil strife in Iran.

—United Presbyterian churches rule against ordination of avowed, practicing homosexuals.

—Increased interest in Shroud of Turin is sparked by recent scientific findings.

—Dissidents protesting Episcopal Church's ordination of women form separate Anglican Catholic church in midst of their own conflicts. Meanwhile, Church of England decides against ordaining women.

—Criticism of Billy Graham's finances leads to fuller public reports with potential impact on other church organizations.

—Abortion conflict steps up as a political issue, figuring in several elections in November.

—Birth of world's first "test-tube baby" in England raises questions of biomedical ethics.

—Blacks admitted to priesthood of Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) on basis of what church said was revelation from God.

—Inflation deals major blows to the budgets of churches and ecumenical organizations.

Big Discovery

Nostalgia, nostalgia. Everything that was seems better than anything that is, to most of us. We go for Tiffany lamps and Currier and Ives prints, and now it's "in" to have a beard.

But we don't go all the way.

Why? Why doesn't the present measure up? Could it be we who are at fault, at least partly, for the buildup of pressures and the breakdown of moral values today?

If we're going on a nostalgia trip, let's take it all the way. Let's make the big discovery that people made back in the old days which is just as valid now as it was then...

... the Church.

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Bradford Bishop Jr., the former American diplomat reportedly spotted in Sweden, is the central figure in one of the most baffling — and more brutal — murder cases in recent American history.

For almost three years, Bishop has been on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's list of fugitives from justice, the prime suspect in the slayings of his wife, his mother and his three sons, aged 14, 10 and 5.

Authorities had followed a bloody trail from a shallow grave in North Carolina to a

BRADFORD BISHOP, Jr.

Washington suburban home to an abandoned car — but seemingly ended there. In three years the best report on Bishop seemed to be the one from Sweden.

It was on March 2, 1976, that the bodies of the five Bishop family members were found in the open grave in a remote swamp area of North Carolina, some 200 miles south of Washington, D.C. They had been doused with gasoline and set afire in an apparent attempt to destroy them, but smoke from the fire was seen by a forest ranger.

Identification of the bodies was difficult, and it was a week before police were able to establish that the actual murders took place on March 1 at the Bishop family home in Carderock Springs, an upper income area of Bethesda, Md.

Investigation showed that Bishop's mother, Lobelia, 68, his wife Annette, 37, and their three sons were beaten to death. There was no trace of Bishop and authorities at first speculated that he, too, had been the victim of a slayer.

But he became a suspect after it was discovered that on the same day the bodies were found, he used a credit card to buy outdoor supplies in a store in Jacksonville, N.C., about 100 miles farther south.

Sixteen days later, Bishop's blood-spattered station wagon was found abandoned at a campground in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park on the North Carolina-Tennessee border. Inside were a bloody blanket, a shotgun, an ax and some pills used for treating depression or insomnia prescribed for Bishop by a psychiatrist.

Authorities speculated that Bishop might have hiked into the rugged mountains and either committed suicide or died of exposure.

At first the search for Bishop was concentrated in the North Carolina region where he vanished. Some hikers on the Appalachian Trail reported seeing a man fitting his description about the time of the incident. Others claimed to have met him in towns along the Atlantic coast.

The murders shocked the quiet community where the Bishops lived, and the State Department as well. "Brad" Bishop, then 39, was a professional foreign service officer who had served in Ethiopia, Italy and Botswana, and was highly regarded by his superiors.

Neighbors, describing the family as well-liked, puzzled along with the police over the possible motive for the mass slaying, and police still have no motive for the slayings.

Police believe the most plausible theory of what happened to Bishop is that he carried out an elaborate plan to disappear.

Some officers believe he planned for his disappearance by having one or more phony passports prepared that would enable him to travel abroad. They also assume he has changed his appearance.

Since Bishop was indicted as a federal fugitive from justice, the FBI has checked dozens of reports that he was seen at various places in the United States, Africa and Europe.

There was a brief surge of excitement last year when a newspaper photograph of hostages taken by South Moluccan terrorists in the Netherlands showed a man who looked like Bishop. The resemblance was close, but the man turned out to be a Dutch taxi driver.

On Wednesday, the FBI confirmed Washington radio station WMAL's report that it was investigating a possible sighting of Bishop in Sweden last summer.

According to the FBI, a woman who said she knew Bishop and his family in Ethiopia between 1965 and 1968 claimed to have seen him twice on the street in Stockholm in the first week of July.

The woman, who reportedly is Swedish but was not identified by name, said Bishop wore a beard. Reportedly, she told police she made no attempt to talk to the man, and notified them only after remembering that she had heard about the Bishop family murders.

While stating that the woman "was not in a position to be certain" that the man she saw was Bishop, FBI agents said the report was the most substantial one received thus far because it was the first from someone who actually knew Bishop.

They also said Swedish police were cooperating in "making an effort to locate and positively identify the suspect." This was described in news reports as a covert investigation by Swedish authorities.

WMAL also said, however, that Swedish police had told U.S. officials they had found no evidence that Bishop was still in Sweden, and that they had refused a request by the FBI for a "publicity blitz" that would include distributing photos of Bishop to Swedish news media.

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy in Stockholm, Phil Wolcott, said today that "there has been no refusal for publicity."

Wolcott also said there "has been communications on this case" but no developments.

Analysts said the Federal Reserve's report on money supply released after the close of trading Thursday may have encouraged traders by easing worries about inflation and further interest rate increases. The report showed a $600 mil-

Suspect Big Fraud Role

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Greensboro police say they believe the former Nigerian embassy employee they arrested Monday pulled off credit card and check frauds totalling $1 million all over the world in the past two years.

Police said Thursday they are gathering evidence that Akenwale Bristow Thomas used a number of aliases and "just about every kind of credit card you can get" in a complex theft scheme.

Police Detective Jerry H. Cooper said Thomas "is not talking much" about the case. But Cooper said interviews with officials of American Express and other credit companies have convinced him that Thomas is the same man who carried out the series of frauds.

American Express officials said their inspectors are meeting in Atlanta with a Greensboro police official.

Cooper said the frauds involve Visa, Master Charge, major oil companies, car rental agencies, airlines and other firms which issue credit cards. He said most of the frauds occurred in Europe.

Thomas was arrested at the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Regional Airport as he was leaving for Atlanta. Cooper said Thomas listed Atlanta as his residence but "he has spent most of this time on the road. The Atlanta address is probably just a stopping-off place."

Thomas was arrested on a false pretense charge after he allegedly opened a checking account in Greensboro using an alias and wrote a number of checks under the name of Joseph Dambatta.

First, Betty Cried A Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Ford cried for a whole day after she lost a breast to cancer, but the saddest day of her life, she says, was the day her husband became President.

Mrs. Ford discussed her mastectomy and the life of a first lady in an interview with NBC's Betty Rollins, author of "First You Cry," a book about Mrs. Rollins' experience with breast cancer.

The full interview, one of a series of specials featuring Mrs. Ford, is to air today on NBC.

Mrs. Ford said she cried the fifth day after her breast was removed, but that she hasn't felt ugly as a result of the surgery.

"I think perhaps my family, my husband, made me feel so completely loved that there was no difference," she said. "...He never gave me any indication that it repulsed him, and he never has to this day."

Mrs. Rollins asked the former first lady if she felt any joy when her husband was sworn in as president after Richard Nixon resigned.

"I think probably that was the unhappiest day of my life," she replied. "...It was a terrible, tragic thing."

Javits Leaves The Door Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Jacob Javits says it would take more than one punch to knock him out of the political ring.

While the 74-year-old New York Republican says he hasn't made up his mind about a reelection bid, Javits says he wouldn't give up if he failed to win the Republican nomination in the primary.

"If I run, I'll run under some emblem other than the Republican emblem if someone else gets the nomination," Javits told the New York Daily News.

Border Conflict Grows

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese divisions were reported driving north, south and east of Phnom Penh today in an apparent move to throttle the Cambodian capital.

Diplomatic sources in Peking said China may airlift Cambodian leaders out of the capital, carrying 3 of them to China, Japan's Kyodo News Service said. It quoted other Peking sources as saying China recently asked Thailand to allow passage of a special Chinese flight over Thailand, but said the information was not confirmed.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda reported on its front page that Cambodian rebels are continuing a powerful offensive against the Phnom Penh government. It did not mention the participation of Vietnamese troops in the fighting.

The escalating border conflict between Vietnam and Cambodia mirrors the political struggle in southeast Asia between the Soviet Union and China.

Reports published in China's official People's Daily said 100,000 Vietnamese regulars, equipped with Russian-made fighter planes, tanks and guns, already have invaded and occupied a large chunk of Cambodian territory, Kyodo said.

Hints New Tax Cut Is In Store

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Is Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. planning another $1 billion tax cut for California? "Tune in next week," he says.

In a televised interview, the Democratic governor hinted there may be new tax cuts in store when he makes his inaugural address Monday night.

Brown trimmed $1 billion from the state income tax last summer and promised further cuts if elected to a second, four-year term.

"We're not asking for more taxes. In fact, we may be even looking to see how we can eliminate a few," Brown said on Wednesday.

Asked if that meant he would cut taxes again, Brown replied, "We might just do that ... Tune in next week."

Senate President Pro Tem James Mills said Thursday that Brown put a tentative $1 billion price tag on the tax cuts in a briefing of Democratic lawmakers.

Former Ambassador Is Providing Them Refuge

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The mother and sister of the Shah of Iran are staying at the tightly guarded desert estate of former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Walter Annenberg, the ambassador said Thursday.

The queen mother and princess went to the 900-acre estate 12 1/2 miles southeast of Palm Springs after the princess' home in Beverly Hills, Calif., was the site of repeated demonstrations by opponents of the reign of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Annenberg, in a statement issued Thursday night to the Palm Springs Desert Sun newspaper, said:

"My winter residence, Sunnyslands, here in Rancho Mirage, Calif., has facilities that enable me to offer them a temporary haven which they have accepted, and I could have done no less as a responsible citizen."

Annenberg added, "When the government of the United States offers shelter to those seeking protection from radical extremists, the citizens of this country should respond affirmatively if necessary."

"Accordingly, the outraged conduct of so-called Iranian students in Beverly Hills earlier this week in threatening the lives of the shah's elderly mother and his sister in their anarchic drive to murder them, enraged Americans."

When asked about security against other possible Iranian demonstrations, Annenberg said, "If they come, so be it."

The tree-lined Annenberg residence, surrounded by a high wall and Tamarisk trees, will be protected by federal, state and local authorities, Annenberg told the newspaper.

The queen mother, Tadj Ul Moluk, and her daughter, Princess Chams, arrived at the estate Wednesday night and appeared in good health, the newspaper said. They will be housed in separate cottages on the estate which includes a large house, swimming pool and 18-hole golf course.

On Tuesday, the princess' home was besieged by about 500 angry demonstrators who tried to gain entrance to the estate. The shah's relatives then fled to an undisclosed location. The shah's mother came to California last week, reportedly for medical treatment.

Earlier Thursday, Palm Springs Police Chief Tom Kendra confirmed reports that the shah's mother was in the Palm Springs area.

Illinois Captures 13th Straight Victory As Indiana Falls, 65-61

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Balance is the byword in college basketball this year, and that means that all-winning teams will be as scarce as shutouts.

But Illinois is doing all right so far.

The fourth-ranked Illini improved their record to a shining 13-0, best in the country among Division I teams, with a 65-61 victory over Indiana Thursday night.

"We knew coming into Bloomington, we were going to have to play hard," said Eddie Johnson, the Illini's 6-foot-8 sophomore. "Indiana is the best defensive team in the Big Ten."

Illinois looked like two different teams in each half — but saved its best for last.

Levi Cobb scored the last six points of the first half to lead Illinois into a tie at 33 at intermission, and give the Illini the momentum. That was the turning point, according to Indiana Coach Bobby Knight.

Arkansas, ranked No. 14, was another team that remained undefeated Thursday night, winning its eighth straight game with a 96-71 decision over North Texas State.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, top-ranked Michigan State beat Wisconsin 84-55; No. 6 UCLA edged Oregon State 65-63; No. 13 Michigan whipped Minnesota 88-75 and No. 16 Louisville routed Tennessee-Chattanooga 94-70.

Two free throws by Mark Smith with five seconds remaining sealed Illinois' tight victory over Indiana. The Illini actually scored their winning point with 1:33 remaining on a free throw by Derrick Holcomb that gave them a 62-56 lead.

Center Steve Schall had the best offensive game of his career at Arkansas, scoring 30 points to lead the Razorbacks over North Texas State. Sidney Moncreif added 22 to the Arkansas attack.

Earvin Johnson scored a season-high 21 points and collected 14 assists to lead Michigan State over Wisconsin in the Spartans' first appearance this year as the nation's No. 1 team. The Spartans held the Badgers to just 25 points in the second half.

David Greenwood scored 19 points and Brad Holland hit a key field goal with 3:19 to play as UCLA squeezed past Oregon State. Holland's 20-foot jump shot, which snapped a 63 tie, accounted for the game's final points. Following an Oregon State miss, UCLA rebounded and went into a delay game with three minutes to go.

Mike McGee scored 33 points to power Michigan past Minnesota. Larry Williams led Louisville over Tennessee-Chattanooga with a 22-point performance.

Elsewhere, Earl Evans had 18 points and 11 rebounds to lead Nevada-Las Vegas over San Diego State 85-80; Jim Krivacs scored 29 points to pace Texas over TCU 92-63; Seton Hall beat St. John's 76-70 as Nick Galis scored 25; Ohio State stopped Purdue 75-71 on Mike Cline's four free throws in the final 44 seconds; Calvin Garrett netted 26 points to lead Oral Roberts over Drake 86-76 and California turned back Arizona State 70-59 behind a combined 33-point output by Doug True and Walt Gillespie.

Also, Alton Byrd's 18 points paced Columbia over South Florida 71-65; Steve Krafcsin had 16 points as Iowa trimmed Northwestern 65-57; Chuck Goslan broke open a tight game with six straight points midway through the second half, leading New Mexico State past West Texas State 102-87 and Darwin Cook's 27 points triggered the University of Portland past Nevada-Reno 90-76.

Ron Guidry Selected As Male Athlete Of The Year By AP

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Ron Guidry, the slender New York Yankee left-hander who authored one of the most remarkable pitching seasons in major league baseball history, was named Male Athlete of the Year for 1978 by The Associated Press today.

Guidry, who was the unanimous choice for the American League's Cy Young Award after posting a remarkable 25-3 record last season, received 143 votes in nationwide balloting by 412 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Yankee southpaw easily outdistanced another baseball star, Pete Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies, who finished second with 94 votes after setting a modern National League record by hitting safely in 44 consecutive games for the Cincinnati Reds last season.

Jim Rice, the Boston Red Sox slugger who beat Guidry for the American League's Most Valuable Player Award, was third with 38.

Muhammad Ali, who became the first man in history to win the heavyweight championship three times, finished fourth with 26. He was just ahead of rookie running back Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers, the National Football League rushing leader with 1,450 yards, who had 23.

Auto racer Mario Andretti (13), marathon runner Bill Rodgers (12), Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates (9), Triple Crown jockey Steve Cauthen (8), and tennis star Bjorn Borg (7) completed the top 10 finishers. Cauthen won the award last year.

Guidry's winning percentage of .893 was the best ever for a 20-game winner and his earned run average of 1.74 was the lowest by an American League left-hander since Dutch Leonard's 1.01 in 1914. The Yankee left-hander also had nine shutouts, tying the AL record set in 1916 by Babe Ruth.

Guidry started the season with a 13-game winning streak, and for the first half of the year was the only dependable pitcher his floundering team had. Fifteen of his 25 victories, which included the division clincher in the single-game playoff against Boston, came after New York losses.

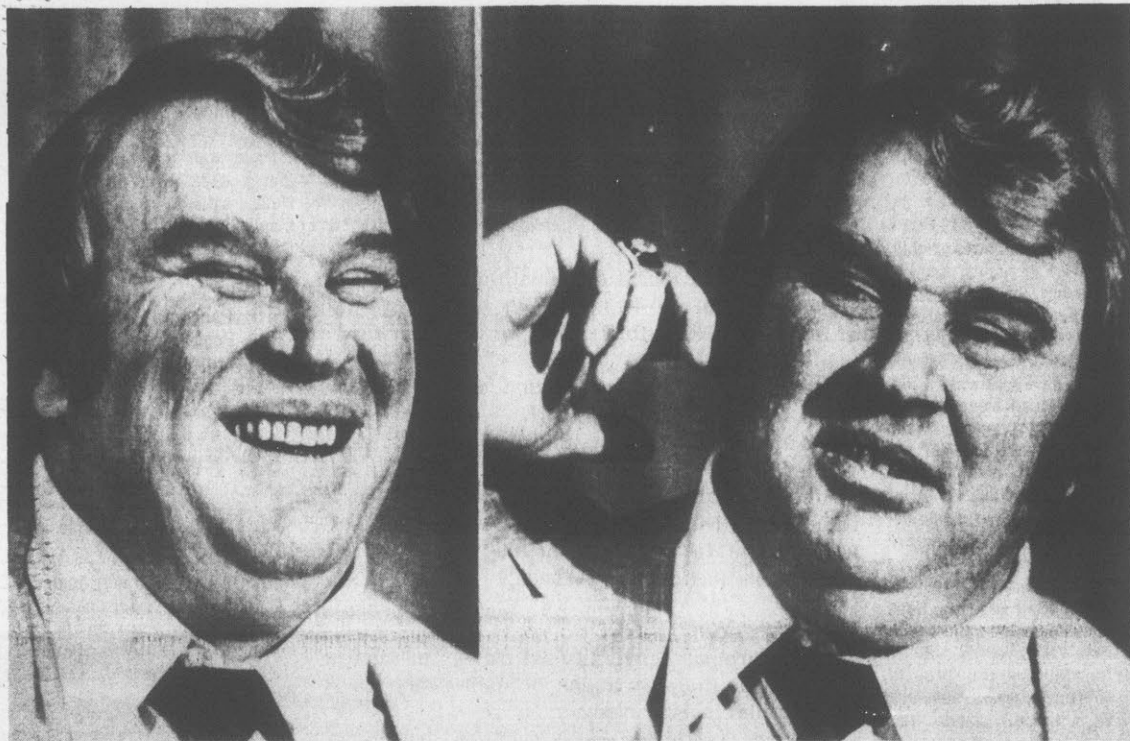

He pitched the pennant clincher in the championship series against Kansas City and resumed his stopper role in the World Series, winning the third game against Los Angeles after the Yankees had dropped the first two contests.

The slim southpaw set a club record with 248 strikeouts in 273 2/3 innings, breaking a Yankee mark that had endured for 74 years since Jack Chesbro fanned 239 in 1904. He finished second in the AL in strikeouts, trailing only California's Nolan Ryan, who had 260.

Guidry, 28, bloomed late for the Yankees. He had been up and down several times between the major and minor leagues and was ready to give up baseball in 1976 when the club farmed him out again. But his wife urged him to give it one more try.

He struggled through a bad spring training in 1977 but made the team, and when injuries depleted the staff, he got his opportunity. Guidry posted a 16-7 record that season, setting the stage for his super 1978 season that earned him today's honor.

Golfer Nancy Lopez was named the Female Athlete of the Year Wednesday.

Raiders Coach Retires

These were the expressions of Oakland Raiders coach John Madden Thursday as he talked with newsmen after announcing his retirement. "I'm never going to coach again," said Madden. He wears a Super Bowl ring on his right hand. (AP Laserphoto)

Burned Out John Madden Won't Return To Sidelines As Coach

OAKLAND (AP) — John Madden of the Oakland Raiders says he's burned out, has an ulcer to prove it and has coached his last football game. "There was no pressure on me to retire," he said Thursday in his retirement announcement. "It was my decision."

It was a decision he made late in the 1978 National Football League season, but when the announcement was made, the impact of it filled Madden's eyes with tears.

"Things like this are easy to talk about and hard to do," said the burly, red-haired coach whose 10-year record of 103-32-7 with Oakland is one of the best in NFL history.

"I think this is the end of an era, certainly in Oakland Raiders' history," said Pete Banaszak, the running back who was in his second pro season when Madden joined the team as an assistant coach in 1967.

"I only knew one way to do this job for 10 years, and that was to give it everything I had.

I just don't have it any more," Madden said, speaking of the dedication and drive that helped the Raiders win seven division titles and one Super Bowl.

Madden may work for the Raiders in another position after relaxing for a few months in hopes his ulcer problem improves, but he said that even should his physical condition improve dramatically, he has decided, "I'm never going to coach again."

Al Davis, the team's managing general partner, probably will name a new head coach within a month. He said, "I don't think we're really talking about a successor, but a philosophy."

Jenike said the incident "hurts more than the NCAA thing did because we worked through that. When kids hurt themselves like this, it really hurts."

Hemans, Harvey and Doug Schloemer of Edgewood, Ky., were arrested by St. Louis police Tuesday following the team's 53-51 overtime loss to St. Louis University in a Metro Conference game.

Cincy Cagers Again Reeling

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati basketball team, reeling from an NCAA-imposed two-year suspension, has been further rocked by the dismissals of two starters implicated in a burglary.

"We were planning some lineup changes anyway," said first-year Coach Ed Badger after announcing the permanent suspensions of starters Lionel Harvey and Keith He-mans on Thursday. Badger said Harvey, sophomore forward from West Hempstead, N.Y., and Hemans, junior guard from Flushing, N.Y., were dismissed.

Athletic Director William Jenike said both had agreed to repay the $1,250 worth of merchandise taken from a gift shop at a St. Louis hotel.

Jenike also said he expected the players to leave the university, although their scholarships were not revoked.

Bryant Almost Retired Two Years Ago; Glad He Stayed On

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Bear Bryant almost missed out on Alabama's fourth national college football championship, he disclosed today.

"I almost retired two years ago, but now I'm glad I didn't," the 65-year-old Alabama coach told The Associated Press by phone from "somewhere in Florida," where he is on a recruiting trip.

Bryant said he was so close to retiring that he "even talked with the president about it."

"I thought maybe they should bring in somebody younger. I was getting old and I didn't think I was doing a good job. I still don't think so, but I'm surrounded by good people and it wasn't very hard to talk me out of it," Bryant disclosed just a few days after Alabama defeated previously unbeaten Penn State 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl and captured the national championship.

The Bear, who has been Alabama's head coach since 1958 and has taken the Crimson Tide to a record 20 consecutive bowl games, knows that some day he will have to step down. He doesn't want the cupboard to be bare and he's doing something about it, even though he can coach through the 1984 season if he wants to.

"We have a good program going, and when I thought about retiring it looked like we'd have good material for the next two years," he explained. "I don't want to retire after we lose all our players and then have people say Alabama couldn't win because I wasn't here."

He won't have to worry about that for awhile because all retirement plans have been pushed aside and the Bear is on the track of Amos Alonzo Stagg's all-time record of 314 coaching victories. The Sugar Bowl triumph was Bryant's 28th and he needs just 31 more to become the all-time king.

"People started using my age against me in recruiting," he said. "I never even thought about Stagg's record until last year and I said as long as somebody has to have the record it might as well be me."

Bryant returned to Tuscaloosa from New Orleans on Tuesday. In the wee hours Wednesday he was informed that The AP's board of sports writers and broadcasters had voted Alabama the national championship. To celebrate, he went recruiting.

"I've done more recruiting this year than I have in the last 10 years put together," he said. "I've never been on airplanes as much as I have this year. We need some players who can play and the competition is awfully tough. You've got to be so much more selective and careful."

"If we don't come up with a good freshman outfit this year we'll start downhill. We lost 26 seniors last year, we lost 21 this year and we're thin everywhere."

Alabama loses eight starters — including quarterback Jeff Rutledge, star runner Tony Nathan, All-America defensive tackle Marty Lyons, linebacker Barry Krauss, strong safety Murray Legg and tight end Rick Neal, whom Bryant calls "probably the most underrated player we have" — but the Crimson Tide's goal in 1979 will be the same as 1978 — the national championship.

Russell's Heroics Pace Cavs To 117-103 Win Over New York

By The Associated Press

Campy Russell sure shot the works Thursday night.

"He shows you something new every game, doesn't he?" said teammate Terry Furlow after Russell's fine all-around performance led the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 117-103 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Knicks.

The versatile Russell scored 26 points and collected eight assists in another of his powerhouse games this season, and Coach Bill Fitch was quick to underscore his value to the team.

"So far, so good," said Fitch. "From the standpoint of consistency, he's playing both ends of the court, he's handling two positions (forward and guard) and he's been able to stay healthy. I'd have to say he's had an excellent year."

Russell raised his NBA career point total to 5,010, but Fitch noted: "I don't think points are an important part of his game. He's actually a poor shooter, but he's a great scorer. Nellie's probably our best passer and he does so many things well."

"He's a very versatile player. But he's not a great shooter. Furlow and Bobby Smith would love to get him in a game of '21' on pay day."

In other NBA action Thursday night, the Kansas City Kings beat the San Diego Clippers 108-99 and the New Jersey Nets whipped the New Orleans Jazz 125-112.

Kings 108, Clippers 99

Bernard King scored 29 points and John Williamson had 27 as New Jersey broke a six-game losing streak with its victory over New Orleans. New Orleans, the team with the worst record in the NBA with 27 losses this year, fell far behind early in the contest and never caught up.

Kings 108, Clippers 99

Scott Wedman scored 22 points, including 11 in the decisive third quarter, to lead Kansas City over San Diego. Kansas City trailed 54-51 at half-time, but the Kings scored nine points at the start of the third quarter and never trailed again.

Saban New Army Coach

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Lou Saban begins the seventh college coaching job of his 28-year career today, taking over an Army football program that is rife with controversy.

The hiring of Saban, 57, as head football coach was announced Thursday by Lt. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, superintendent of the Military Academy. Saban resigned as head coach and athletic director at the University of Miami, Fla., to take the Army job.

Saban succeeds Homer Smith, who was fired last month and then charged Army with illegal recruiting practices and an attempted coverup. Smith also said he was fired three days after he resigned.

Saban, who was to be introduced as Army's coach at a news conference today in New York, was briefed Thursday on investigations into alleged improprieties in Army recruiting by Maj. Gen. Ray Murphy, Army's athletic director.

Saban also met with six assistant coaches, all of whom Murphy recommended Saban retain.

Asked why he gave up a $50,000-a-year job at Miami with four years left on his six-year contract, Saban replied: "Some people like to rebuild cars. I like to rebuild football programs."

Saban, who served in the Army during World War II, added: "I'm happy to be here at West Point because of what the Academy stands for and because it produces men who are serving their country."

Murphy refused to discuss Saban's contract at Army, however it is speculated the coach also may take over as athletic director. Murphy was brought out of retirement to become athletic director and was known to have been looking for a man that could replace him.

In addition to numerous college coaching jobs, Saban coached the old Boston Patriots of the American Football League and Buffalo and Denver in the National Football League.

After playing college ball at Indiana and in the pros at Cleveland in the All-American Football Conference, Saban saw duty at Case Institute in Cleveland, the University of Washington, Northwestern University, Western Illinois, Maryland and Miami, both as an assistant and head football coach.

NCAA Meet Starting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 1,000 delegates were expected for the 73rd annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Conference, which kicked off today with a luncheon hosted by J. Neils Thompson, outgoing NCAA president.

Saturday and Sunday will be taken up with meetings of various NCAA committees, special interest groups and affiliated athletic conferences. The convention proper opens Monday with a roundtable discussion on Title IX, federal regulations governing discrimination against women in athletics.

Toward the end of the convention, on Wednesday or Thursday, successors to President Thompson and Secretary-Treasurer Edgar A. Sherman, who are finishing their second one-year terms, will be elected.

A total of 132 legislative items, dealing with virtually every aspect of collegiate athletics, will be decided upon, including proposals on enforcement, membership classification, financial aid and recruiting.

Williamston Girls Rebuilding But Looking For Another Title

By JIM KYLE

Reflector Sports Writer

Williamston's girls' basketball team won its almost annual District 3-A title last year. But the Tigerettes have run into some problems this season, according to coach Peggy Taylor.

First, there are a couple of key losses off of last year's squad that make this a rebuilding year; second, an injury has forced Taylor to start two sophomores in the backcourt.

Still, the team is playing fairly well, according to the coach, and should be a contender for the Northeastern Conference crown once again.

Rebounding has been a strength for the Tigerettes so far this season. "We're handling the boards real well," Taylor said. "I've been real pleased with our board work. We're better on the offensive rebounds than we were last year."

In addition, "We're trying to get more of a running game in. It's coming along pretty good."

On the negative side, "Our field goal percentage is not where I would like it to be at this time," Taylor said. "We've got to rely on our defense."

Sophomore guards Ginger Edwards (5-6) and Cathy Everett (5-2) are given much of the responsibility for holding the team together this year, according to Taylor. "Together, they have really made this ballclub."

Junior Myra Martin (5-7) was expected to be a starter this season, but she suffered a knee injury which will keep her out of the lineup until at least mid-February, Taylor said.

In the frontcourt, senior JoAnna

Lilley (5-11) gets the nod at one forward spot. She is a good athlete, according to Taylor, and is fundamentally strong. "She is probably the leader on the team," Taylor said.

Senior Sharon Speller (5-8) is the other forward. "She is a good ballhandler, probably the best on the team. She can break a press and is a good outside shooter."

At center is junior Jan Rogerson (5-11), who, along with Lilley, is co-captain of the squad. Taylor termed her a "super athlete."

Sophomore forward Regina Rodgers (5-9) is the team's top reserve. She is probably the most improved player on the team, Taylor said, and is had to learn a lot.

Offering backup strength at guard is junior Portia Rowe

(5-5). "She is exceptionally quick, but is in her first year and is having to learn a whole lot," Taylor said.

Three freshmen are other frontcourt reserves. They are Theresa Duffy (5-9), Deborah Griffin (5-9) and Amy Jones (5-7).

As usual, there are several strong teams in the Northeastern Conference this year. Taylor said, including newcomer Roanoke. Other contenders include Washington and Ashoklee.

"We're hoping we will be a contender," Taylor said. "It was kind of doubtful when my guard (Martin) got hurt and I had to rely on two sophomores. They didn't have much offense, but now they're averaging 13-14 points between them, so I'm thinking we still have a crack."

Young Co-Stars Stir The Grandfather Role In Actor

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Conrad Bain says his two young co-stars on "Diff'rent Strokes" bring out the grandfather in him.

"I'm really indulging myself with the kids," he said. "I feel like a grandfather. None of my three children has kids. I don't have to take them home. I guess that's the way with grandfathers — you can have fun with them."

The half-hour comedy series, which airs tonight, also stars Gary Coleman and Todd Bridges as Bain's two young charges. Bain plays a millionaire who takes in the sons of his black maid after her death.

The comedy centers on the cultural shock of two young boys from Harlem suddenly thrust into a white world.

This show, which premiered last Nov. 3, was touted as the first to be selected by NBC president Fred Silverman. Bain said, "We ushered in the Silverman philosophy. What a terrible burden."

For midseason the newly appointed Silverman, who helped put ABC in first place in the ratings, tossed out all of NBC's fall entries and replaced them with shows — mostly comedy — of his own selection.

The biggest comedy chores in "Diff'rent Strokes" fall on the tiny shoulders of Gary Coleman. He's sort of a pint-sized Milton Berle, with a joke for every occasion. But I'm afraid it doesn't do anything for me. I guess I've had an overdose of precociousness.

Bain admits there is a thin line that separates Gary from being cute and being a smart aleck. "He does comedy well so it's tempting to give him lines," he said. "The more you do that the more you risk slipping over. But I think he has the ability to play other ways. He has to be used right."

Bain said he finds his new series "a delightful and wonderful change" after his six years as Bea Arthur's pompous neighbor on "Maude."

"The thing that attracted me to 'Maude' was to take a character intrinsically unsympathetic and find the characteristics that made him what he was," he said. "That kind of character has enormous defenses and rigidity. It was fun to show both sides, to be true to his rigid exterior and still let the audience get a peak at the person inside."

"Phillip Drummond is a very different kind of challenge. He doesn't demonstrate what he is. He's potentially warm and, without being sentimental, he is emotional. I think sentimental tends to be a cop out and shallower than finding ways to deal with the real person."

Bain, who was born in Canada, gained his acting experience on the New York stage. He said, "I am constantly getting cast as a sophisticated character who is reasonably well-to-do, but I was just a dirt farmer from Canada." He appeared in several movies in New York, but did not come west until "Maude."

He said he is not yet satisfied with the show. "I'm not satisfied with the writing yet, and I don't think the writers are either," he said. "I don't think you can be satisfied with anything so new."

Floridians Edith Kemp and Steve Goldberg came up with a picturebook defense on this hand from the recent Mixed Pair event at the North American Fall Nationals held in Denver.

Goldberg's double is typical of match-point tactics, but at rubber bridge, it is recommended only for the very rich who have a strong desire to become poorer quickly. However, his decision was vindicated in the play.

West, Mrs. Kemp, led her singleton diamond. Declarer finessed the queen, losing to the king. Goldberg returned a trump to dummy's queen. Declarer took advantage of being in dummy to take a successful spade finesse. Then he cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade with dummy's king.

Now declarer had to get back to his hand to draw the outstanding trumps. To do that, he tried to concede a club trick, intending to ruff the second club, extract trumps and claim the hand. But there's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip!

West won the queen of clubs and alertly led back a fourth spade. East cooperated by ruffing with the nine of hearts, and suddenly the defenders had produced the setting trick — West's ten of trumps. Declarer had to over-ruff the nine with the jack, and now he had a trump loser to go with two diamonds and a club.

Down one would have been a better than average score, but down one doubled was a clear top on the board.

Rubber-bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Built-In Problems In Food Stamp Procedure

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The change to free food stamps for eligible persons across the nation comes with some built-in problems, notably in nutrition, says the director of Charlotte's food stamp eligibility office.

"This is one of the things that concerns me most," said Linda Cook. "Before, at the end of the month, they might not have had any money, but they probably did have food."

Food stamp recipients across the nation are getting free food stamps beginning this month, but they're also getting fewer stamps. The change is the first of several reforms Congress legislated in the 1977 food stamp act, designed to make the program easier to administer and reduce opportunities for fraud.

Fifty-year-old Odessa Stitt, a domestic worker who lives in Charlotte, said last month she paid $46 for $144 in stamps for herself and the two grandchildren who live with her. This month she won't pay anything for the stamps, but she'll only get $106 worth. The $2 difference reflects an increase in food prices.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., had opposed the new requirement, but an aide said Wednesday it was because the senator was afraid free stamps would be a disincentive for people to work. He said Morgan would be pleased that the new program reduces chances to cheat and gets more aid to the poor and elderly.

The spokesman said food stamp benefits, however they are handled, benefit North Carolina dairy and pork farmers.

"We know the food stamp program in North Carolina helps dairy farmers to the tune of $5 million a year and pork farmers to the tune of $3 million a year," the spokesman said this week. "These estimates are based on what we know about food consumption patterns with and without food stamps."

In March, eligibility requirements become more stringent and may make as many as 1.5 million in the food stamp program's upper income levels ineligible.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 6, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you would be wise to get a good rest and put your efforts and activities into organizing the practical affairs of every-day living. Don't spend beyond your means.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are tempted to make investments that are unwise, so forget about them. Try to control your temper and get along better with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are in a pessimistic mood and want to get away from it all. Instead, find the cause of your discontent and then remove it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You could feel limited, but carry on and handle your duties wisely. Then you can enjoy pleasure that means much to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be cautious in going after your most personal goals and you can easily attain them. Express happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may think a higher-up is not permitting you to advance as quickly as you should, but this is not so. Have patience.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be practical in the handling of arrangements for a new project you are starting. Confer with one who is experienced and wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to come to a better understanding with mate, and avoid one who is trying to make trouble between you. Be poised.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You had better avoid seeing an associate today or you could get into an argument. Calm down and tomorrow all is fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to delve into all those accumulated tasks and they are soon out of the way. Attend the social tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget that amusement that could prove far more costly than it is worth. Strive for greater rapport with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you don't lose your temper or there could be an unfortunate argument. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you use extra care in motion today since the potential for accidents now is great. Handle a business matter wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will understand how to handle practical affairs and should have the finest education possible to assure success upon reaching maturity. Be sure not to neglect religious and ethical studies early in life.

NEW CRACKDOWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — An apparent new crackdown on Christian political activism in South Korea has resulted in a prison term for the Rev. Park Hyung Kyu, the First Presbyterian Church in Seoul, and the arrest of a Methodist woman minister, the Rev. Cho Wha Soon, for the second time in two months.

Bargained For Brief Sentence

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The daughter of convicted heroin smuggler Leslie "Ike" Atkinson was sentenced to two years in prison after pleading guilty Thursday to carrying messages to her father in a federal prison and helping with the operation of a multi-million dollar drug ring.

Twenty-seven-year-old Leslie Sharon Atkinson Arrington could have gotten up to 10 years in prison on the conspiracy charge, but entered her plea under a bargain with the district attorney's office. Superior Court Judge Forrest A. Ferrell allowed the two years to be combined with a 15-year federal prison sentence that Mrs. Arrington is now serving from a 1976 conviction for heroin dealings.

Atkinson and eight others, all but one of them members of his family, were expected to go on trial today in Wayne Superior Court on charges of conspiracy to smuggle heroin and related charges.

Mrs. Arrington is the fourth of an original 16 persons to enter guilty pleas in connection with what authorities have termed a large-scale heroin trafficking ring. She is the third to receive a sentence if the case.

The fourth, former attorney John McConnell of Raleigh, has not been sentenced.

Atkinson is serving a 44-year federal sentence for heroin smuggling. Michael Otis Arrington, Mrs. Arrington's husband, is already serving a federal prison term, and is charged in the Wayne County case, along with Atkinson's nephews and alleged associates.

The state told the judge it had planned to show that Mrs. Arrington had received a large amount of money in heroin dealings and had delivered drugs between late 1975 and August 1976 to a person who would testify for the prosecution.

James McRae of Fayetteville, Mrs. Arrington's lawyer, denied that his client had ever dealt directly with heroin.

Open Meet Bill Favored

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An open meetings study commission has recommended that blanket exemptions allowing the Advisory Budget Commission and the Council of State to meet in private be removed.

The commission completed Thursday a rewrite of the state open meetings statute, expanding from eight to 16 the number of reasons a meeting could be held in executive session. The provisions would allow discussion of industrial prospects, personnel matters and certain property sales, among other things, to be discussed in closed session.

"I think it's a bill that offers something both to public bodies and to the press," said David Lawrence, an Institute of Government attorney for the open meetings study commission.

The bill would replace the current open meetings law, narrowing some of the existing law's exemptions, but retaining its basic intent. "The basic scheme of the statute, as originally enacted in 1971 and amended in 1978, continues unchanged in the commission's proposal," a report by the commission said.

Before approving the final draft, the commission eliminated a provision allowing public bodies to charge news agencies for the cost of mailing notice of meetings.

But the commission did not reconsider its decision against recommending a provision allowing a court to void any action taken by a public body in an illegal secret meeting. Gov. Jim Hunt said earlier in the week he was disappointed the committee did not endorse such a provision.

Conservationists Up In Arms Over N.C. Forest Land-Use

By The Associated Press

Conservationists are up in arms over a federal proposal to allow logging and mining on some 120,000 acres in National Forests in North Carolina.

At the same time, businessmen are angry because the federal Agriculture Department has said logging and mining on an additional 64,817 acres will be prohibited.

Each group thinks the other came out ahead in the regulations. The conservationists, on the one hand, don't want to see logging and mining within the National Forest. The businessmen believe more acreage should be open for all kinds of public use.

"The forest service is giving in to the selfish interests of the timber industry," said Jerry Lieberman, chairman of the LaConte chapter of the Sierra Club, a national conservationist group. "It's rape of our resources."

The Agriculture Department announced Thursday a proposal to designate almost 65,000 acres as wilderness areas, meaning they cannot be logged or mined for minerals. The department recommended that 120,078 acres be designated as multiple use lands, allowing both logging and mining. Action was deferred on an additional 18,341 acres.

Logging and mining interests in the western part of the state have bitterly opposed the federal plan, called RARE II for Roadless Area Review and Evaluation.

"We feel we have enough wilderness in national parks in western North Carolina," said Jack Bretter, president of the Save America Club, which opposes the plan. "Primarily what we favor is multiple land use and leaving public land open to the public."

Bretter contends the wilderness designation will deny access to the land to all but a few people, primarily backpackers. Lieberman disagrees. "That (the wilderness designation) is how we save it for the public," he said.

Proposed wilderness areas in North Carolina are in the Nantahala, Pisgah, Uwharrie and Croatan national forests.

Nationally, the proposal calls for designating 15.1 million acres of public forest land as wilderness areas, 36.1 million acres as multiple use and 10.8 million acres for further planning. The proposal will be submitted to Congress.
