N.C. Votes Join In Calling Convention

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina today became the 23rd state to ask Congress to call a constitutional convention to demand a balanced federal budget.

The state Senate gave final legislative approval to a resolution calling for the constitutional convention when it voted 42-0 to concur in minor amendments added by the House.

The resolution was approved on a 91-24 vote in the House Thursday after more than an hour's debate, in which opponents said it could trigger a massive loss of federal aid to the states and risk a convention running rampant with the constitution.

The Senate had already approved the bill itself but must now vote on concurrence with a House committee amendment that changed the wording only slightly.

"The part that concerns me is what would be done to the North Carolina budget," said Rep. Lura Tally, D-Cumberland. "In the last budget we had over a billion dollars in federal funds."

Said Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake: "I will vote for this resolution when the General Assembly balances our budget without the use of federal funds."

Opponents said a convention for the purpose of amending the constitution is unprecedented, and some scholars fear it could not be limited to a single issue and would spark attempts to add amendments on a number of emotional issues such as school busing, gay rights and abortion.

But backers of the resolution said the risk was worth it to eliminate deficit spending, often blamed as a cause of inflation. And some said Congress would propose an amendment itself before the needed 34 states called for a convention.

"Congress will never act unless they have the threat of a constitutional convention before them," said Rep.

Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson.

Others said only a convention would stop Congressional spending.

"Congress will not check inflation on its making," said Rep. Howard Coble, R-Guilford. "The members just waltz off to the Potomac to recklessly spend and squander only to return to their districts to express concern about inflation. And subsequently they waltz right back to spend and squander again."

DUMPSTERS, LANDFILLS THERE TO USE!

I was shocked this morning to go out and find that someone had dumped on my land two old stoves and a dead hog. I know the county is providing dumpsters throughout the county now and that the use of the landfill is free. Why can't people use them? And why can't those who don't be prosecuted by the county? R. T.

Willie Pate of the Environmental Health Division of the Pitt County Health Department said human decency is hard to legislate or enforce. He confirmed that the county does provide several dumpsters, attractively and strategically placed, now, with others being planned and constructed all the time. And, yes, use of the landfill Greenville-Pitt County landfill is free, he said.

There are bulk containers now usable and being used very well, he said, on the Stantonsburg Road between Farmville and Greenville, on the Old County Home site near Bell's Fork, at the Greenville-Pitt County Landfill off front, and others are under construction near Stokes, near Farmville and near Bethel. Sites have been negotiated for two other points in the county, he added, with 10 due to be finished this year: 21 ultimately.

He said that the Environmental Health personnel will go to any site where refuse is dumped illegally and check for addressed envelopes or other indicators of who did the dumping. "And, if we find out," he said, "we'll contact the person and strongly advise that he or she clean up the mess. If our personnel or a good vocal witness sees the dumping being done, we'll prosecute," he added. "And, of course, if the owner of the land on which the dumping is done wants to prosecute, he or she can sign a warrant."

Growth

In Tax Take

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tax collections during the first six months of the current fiscal year indicate a healthy economy, but that does not mean the state will escape a recession, Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch said today.

Lynch, speaking to a state Senate committee, said figures released today show the state enjoyed a 14.1 percent growth in general-fund tax collections from July through December, compared to the same period in the previous year.

Collections in the general fund — which excludes highway fund collections such as the gasoline tax — were also up 14.1 percent for December over that month in the previous year.

"It's healthy, but so far as a recession or no recession, I don't think that means a thing," Lynch said. "These figures indicate what the past has done; this is no indication of the future here."

Legislators have been looking to Lynch's monthly tax report as they prepare the upcoming biennial budget. Analysts say a growth of just less than 10 percent during the next fiscal year will be needed to balance the proposed state budget.

Lynch repeated his prediction, made late last year, that the state was in for a recession in 1979 and the only questions were of its timing and degree.

Total revenue collected in the general fund for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1978, were $1.1 billion. The state's highway fund was up 12.8 percent for the period.

Income tax collections scored one of the largest gains among the varying taxes, 16.6 percent. But collections for cigarette taxes fell 3.6 percent during the six months.

Sales and use tax, an indicator of consumer buying, was up nearly 12 percent.

Troops vs. Khomeini Demonstrators

Iran Sees Gunfire Erupt

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Troops in Tehran and the western city of Sanandaj opened fire today on thousands of supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini angered by the government's delaying his return to Iran, and there were reports of at least 11 dead and 53 wounded.

Residents of Tabriz said heavy shooting also broke out in the downtown area of that northwestern city. No other details were immediately available but the official Pars news agency said there had been a "pro-constitution" march both in Tabriz and Zahedan in eastern Iran.

Hospital sources said at least six persons were killed and 28 wounded in Tehran. Pars said "a number of people were killed and wounded" in Sanandaj. Unofficial estimates placed the death toll in Sanandaj at five with 25 wounded.

But some of the Tehran demonstrators, their hands smeared with blood, told reporters that more than 30 were killed in the capital alone.

The foes of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar armed themselves with wooden and metal staves and set fire to spare tires and garbage in the streets around Tehran University. Thick black smoke billowed over buildings in the heart of the city.

The crowd taunted the soldiers with shouts of "Death to Bakhtiar!" "We will build a peoples army to fight the army!" and "We will go on whether Khomeini comes or not."

Heavy gunfire sounded throughout the area.

The religious leader's return from 14 years of exile, originally scheduled for today, was delayed by military orders closing Iran's airports until Sunday. The army was also ordered to enforce a martial-law ban on demonstrations, and an informed source said military leaves had been cancelled and Tehran's garrisons had been placed on alert.

At least seven journalists and an undetermined number of others were reported arrested under a martial-law provision allowing them to be held incommunicado indefinitely. The journalists were leaders of the Press Freedom Movement that closed Tehran's seven leading newspapers for 62 days, until Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar lifted censorship three weeks ago.

One of Khomeini's chief aides in Tehran said supporters of the Shiite Moslem patriarch were planning a demonstration Saturday to protest the military's delaying the ayatollah's return by closing the airports in the country until Sunday.

Gen. Mehdi Rahimi, Tehran's military governor, responded with a warning that he would begin enforcing regulations against unauthorized demonstrations. There had been no attempt to enforce the ban for more than a month.

Khomeini, the 78-year-old architect of the nationwide campaign of strikes and demonstrations to overthrow the shah and bring down the Bakhtiar government, had planned to return to Tehran today after 14 years in exile. He told followers in Paris he would fly home as soon as the airports reopened.

Aides in the French capital said he would take a plane Sunday night unless the airport shutdown was extended. If that happened, he has "alternative plans" for getting to Iran, said Ibrahim Yazdi, his chief aide.

"The treacherous, illegal government has prevented my return," Khomeini told a meeting of 1,000 of his followers. "I will go back immediately after the airport is opened. I will show Bakhtiar that his government is a transgressor and will not be tolerated."

But he also called on his followers to "maintain calm, tranquility and order."

Derailment

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A passenger train packed with men, women and children ran off the tracks in western Bangladesh today and as many as 500 persons were feared dead, the United News of India reported. It could be one of the worst train wrecks in history.

UNI, quoting the Bangladesh Eastern News Agency, said the locomotive and four passenger cars jumped the tracks and landed in a ditch.

It said the accident occurred in Chuadanga, about 95 miles west of Dacca in Kusthia district near the border with India.

Officials in Chuadanga were unable to give the exact number of casualties. The injured were being rushed by truck to Chuadanga hospital because no ambulances were available, UNI reported.

Barrage Of Protests In Store For China's Teng

WASHINGTON (AP) — Groups ranging from anti-communists to radical Maoists plan a barrage of protests when Chinese leader Teng Hsiao-ping arrives this weekend.

But federal officials say Teng's entourage and the demonstrators probably will never get within a block of one another as authorities plan to tightly control the protesters' movements.

Secret Service and State Department officials were reluctant in interviews Thursday to discuss the security precautions, which are known to be heavy for the first visit ever by a leader of China's 30-year-old communist government.

"It's going to be quite tight and secure," said State Department spokesman Warren Magruder. Chinese security officials have been in this country to help plan security, but U.S. officials would give no details on their activities or say when they arrived.

Teng, the 74-year-old deputy premier who has led China's shift toward greater diplomatic and economic cooperation with the West, arrives Sunday to begin a six-day stay that also will take him to Atlanta, Houston and Seattle. The U.S. Park Service, which controls activities on federal land near the White House, has issued demonstration permits to five groups and said Thursday more permit requests may yet come in.

A last-minute cancellation of planned demonstrations Sunday and Monday by hundreds of Iranian students took some pressure off police and security agencies. The Iranians are not concerned about Teng's visit, but sought to renew their criticism of President Carter's support of the shah.

On All Sides, Warnings That Sacrifices Needed

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are being warned on all sides that it may take years of patient sacrifice before significant progress is made in the battle against inflation.

"1979 will be a year of austerity," Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller told the House Budget Committee Thursday.

"This is a time for patience," he added.

Barry Bosworth, executive director of the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability had a similar message in a speech to the American Association of Retired Persons. "This is not going to be a year in which Americans can look forward to increases in real income," said Bosworth.

He predicted sharp rises in food costs over the next few months and said it may take years before the problem of inflation is solved. A separate government report said vegetable prices, for example, are expected to be up about 10 percent in the next few weeks over what they were last winter.

President Carter himself is taking every opportunity to stress his emphasis on fighting inflation, doing so in his budget message, State of the Union address and annual economic report, all delivered to Congress this week.

And in yet another message to the House and Senate, one sent Thursday containing his 1979 legislative proposals, Carter said the fight against inflation "will be one of the most difficult battles our government has undertaken in many years."

Prices rose 9 percent in 1978, the worst performance in four years.

Carter's annual economic report to Congress estimates a further rise of 7.5 percent this year and 6.4 percent in 1980.

Even so, other experts are warning that the administration is painting too rosy a picture.

Miller told the House Budget Committee he believes the president was "a bit optimistic." He estimated inflation will be slightly over 8 percent for the year.

And Alice Rivlin, head of the Congressional Budget Office, told the same committee prices are likely to go up by 7 percent to 9 percent during the year.

Neglected Child Flourishes With Care

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — For 9-year-old Rebecca Holmes, today is a day like any other in her new life: the love and care of her foster parents, a cheerful room, a day of play.

Her natural parents faced another kind of day: an appearance before a Superior Court judge that could bring a maximum of three years in jail for having imprisoned their little girl at home.

The common-law husband and wife — Alice Hernandez, 32, and Daniel Holmes, 34 — were convicted last month of child endangering.

They never admitted to hiding their daughter, but relatives said they hadn't seen Becky since soon after her birth.

The couple also denied telling the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department that the mother, who had given up another child for adoption, resented the girl. Instead, they said, they were doing all they could for a child with severe medical problems.

Becky's story began to unfold last April 18, when Sgt. Miriam Travis and Deputy John Rondina of the Sheriff's Department responded to a tip like hundreds of others. They found Becky in urine-soaked clothes, asleep on a hard cot in her parents' bedroom.

"She was almost like an animal," Travis said.

Her world then was the bedroom and its closet, in which she was kept for untold hours. Now Becky lives in a spacious foster home.

"She's gone from nothing to where she's at — that's a hell of a lot of progress in my book," Becky's foster mother said in the suburban house where she has cared for 55 children in the last 14 years.

Since Becky's rescue, she has gained 12 pounds and grown 6 inches. But she is still a mite, for she weighed only 24 pounds and stood only 32 inches tall last April.

When she was found, Becky couldn't even crawl; now she walks. Then, she knew only a few words — now she speaks in sentences. Once trapped in her own filth, her skin blistered by diaper rash, she now uses the toilet. She wears gay ribbons in her curly red hair to match her clothes.

She is, except for the hurt in her eyes, like almost any toddler.

But Rebecca Holmes is no toddler. She is 9 years old, and her pediatrician says she may never catch up.

"The prognosis for her walking fairly normally is good,"

Dr. Joel Widelitz said. "The prognosis for her intellectual development has got to be guarded."

"It would seem to me it's too late to expect her to catch up and be normal intellectually. On the other hand, she has progressed rapidly.

"I don't know about her growth. I don't think she could catch up to normal, but it's very impressive so far. I don't know of any way to predict whether that's going to continue."

Widelitz said the most sickening thing about Becky was that she once never cried. "It was almost as if she had been taught not to cry or as if she had learned the consequences," he said.

The doctor says Becky may have a mild case of cerebral palsy, but that alone could not have prevented her from walking.

Program On The Gifted

CHAPEL HILL — A program designed to help parents understand the state definition of "gifted and talented," how to request special services for these children, and something about the services that may be provided will be on the air on Wednesday, Jan. 31.

At 9 p.m. on that date, the educational television stations in North Carolina will air the program which has the theme of locating children who have not yet been identified as gifted.

The big question to be asked parents is "are you the parent of a very bright or creative child?"

Locally, the program will be on UNC-TV, Channel 25, Greenville.

State president of the North Carolina Association for the Gifted and Talented is Dr. Lyn Aubrecht of the Dept. of Psychology, Meredith College, Raleigh.

Group Holding Seniors' Dinner

The Lily of Calvary will have a dinner for all senior citizens Sunday, Jan. 28, at Mount Calvary F. W. B. Church after morning services.

An installation service will be held for the Lily of Calvary Sunday, Feb. 4, 6 p.m., at Mt. Calvary Church. The Rev. Tyrone Turnage and the Zion Hill choir will be special guests. Elders Daniels will conduct the installation.

The public is invited to attend. The church is on Hudson St., Greenville.

Quarterly Meet This Weekend

The Rev. Tyrone Turnage will be the speaker for quarterly meeting services Saturday, Jan. 27, 7:30 p.m., at St. James F. W. B. Church, Perry St., Farmville.

The Sunday 3 p.m. will feature the Rev. J. W. Miller choir and congregation of Zion Hill F. W. B. Church.

The Rev. C. R. Parker, pastor, will be in charge of the 11 a.m. Sunday services and invites the public to attend all services.

A special business session will also be held Friday night.

Morning Light To Meet
Members of the Morning Light Tent No. 458 are asked to meet tonight at 8 p.m. at the Mason Hall on West Fifth Street.

Screening Women For U.S. Test-Tube Babies

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Doctors say screening will begin soon of more than 300 infertile women who want to bear what may become the United States' first test-tube conceived baby.

They say such a birth could occur as early as 1980.

Dr. Howard Jones, a gynecologist who directs the project, and Dr. Jack Rary, a geneticist, now are in England to obtain special equipment and consult with the two specialists who developed the test tube conception procedure.

Drs. Patrick Steptoe and Robert Edwards performed the research that led to the birth of the world's first test-tube conceived baby, Louise Brown, in Oldham, England, on July 25, 1978.

Four months afterward, Steptoe announced he would be a consultant for the project at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, which is financed by private donations.

Sources at the medical school said Jones will work closely with the participating women here; Rary will direct the lab work.

The office used in connection with the test-tube baby project by Jones; his wife, Dr. Georgeanna Jones, and Dr. Mason Andrews burned on Jan. 8, and some records and small contributions were destroyed.

The cause of the fire on the sixth floor of the Medical Tower Building, near Norfolk General Hospital, has not been determined. The office now has been moved to the ninth floor in the same building.

A list of women who had volunteered for the project survived the blaze.

Report Theft Of Merchandise

Greenville Police said an estimated $234 worth of merchandise was taken from Tripp's Citgo Service Center on Memorial Drive in a break-in discovered by officers at 12:45 a.m. today.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who said the thieves gained entrance to the building by breaking a side window, noted that a television set and some merchandise was removed from the building.

Husband, Too, Needs Correcting

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We have two small boys. One is 4 and the other is 2½. I feel that my husband expects too much too soon of them.

The little tykes come to the table happy and hungry, but by the time my husband gets through correcting their every move ("Sit up straight, take your elbows off the table, stop talking with your mouth full, you're eating too fast, you're eating too slow etc.") these poor kids leave the table in tears with their plates practically untouched.

How can I make my husband understand that, besides making the boys dread mealtime, it could be bad for their health?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: You have three "little boys." Tell the one you're married to that there is a more effective way to teach children. It's true that serious digestive problems often develop when children (and adults as well) attempt to eat when they are upset.

Implore your husband to resist the urge to shout criticisms and orders at the table. Gentleness is the key word here. Should he forget, gently kick him in the ankle.

DEAR ABBY: I am 82 and in good health. My wife died three years ago and I live alone in an apartment.

Two years ago a nice-looking 65-year-old widow moved into the apartment across the hall and we became friendly. We started eating together—usually at my place. She would prepare everything at her place and bring it over.

After supper we watched TV, held hands, and exchanged a few kisses. Well, before I knew it, things got out of hand and she was spending the night with me. In my bed!

I finally put a stop to it when she began to tell me she was "in love" with me. At no time did I tell her I was in love with her because I'm not.

Now she comes over every night without being invited, and she's pressuring me to marry her.

I have no intentions of marrying this lady or any other. How do I disassociate myself from her without hurting her feelings?

WANTS OUT

DEAR WANTS: Be honest. Tell the lady you have no plans to marry her and she will probably disassociate herself from YOU. If she doesn't, you could cool the relationship by seeing another lady or two...or three.

DEAR ABBY: Sex is an animal instinct which is normal in animals. Man is an animal, right? SO when man feels the natural urge to have sex, what is wrong with following his natural instincts?

MAX

DEAR MAX: Animals have a natural urge to procreate. The lowest animals mate by instinct. Man, the highest of all animals, mates not only to procreate, but to express the ultimate in love.

Animals have no capacity for love. One mate is a good as the next. Casual and promiscuous mating among civilized people (or simply using another to satisfy one's own selfish sex urge) is not only immoral, it's meaningless. It is for lower animals. It's also for the birds.

Cheesecake With A GoldenGlow

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I have invited about a dozen friends to a New Year celebration and would like to serve cheesecake for dessert because it's always so popular. Have you a recipe that is new and really delicious? — ENTERPRISING.

DEAR ENTERPRISING: Yes. And it also looks sumptuous. When I heard that this cheesecake had won a prize in a contest, I asked for the recipe and we tried it in my test kitchen. All my tasters gave it top rating. It makes 16 healthy servings but I figure you won't mind that: party-givers sometimes enlarge their guest lists at the last moment.

The flavor and texture of this cheesecake are extra-special, but it's the glaze that makes it unusually attractive. Made from canned apricots, the glaze gives the cake a golden glow. Just right for a new year. — C.B.

2 egg yolks
¼ cup heavy cream
Cookie Crust and Apricot Glaze, see below

Beat together the cheese, sugar, flour, rinds and vanilla until fluffy. Beat in the eggs and egg yolks one at a time, then the cream. Pour over the Cookie Crust. Bake in a preheated 500-degree oven for 10 minutes; continue baking at 250 degrees for 75 minutes longer; if the top cracks, the glaze will cover it. Cool. Spread the Apricot Glaze over the top. Chill for at least 12 hours. Remove sides of pan before serving.

Cookie Crust: Stir together 1 cup sifted flour, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind; blend in ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 egg yolk and ¼ cup soft butter. Press over bottom of a buttered 9-inch springform pan. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden — about 10 minutes. Cool.

Apricot Glaze: In an electric blender puree a 17-ounce can undrained apricot halves in syrup. Stir together 2 tablespoons sugar and 4 teaspoons cornstarch; gradually stir in the apricot puree. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Cool.

MR. AND MRS. E. MURRAY WOOLARD

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. E. Murray Woolard of Greenville were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday evening at Parker's Restaurant.

The celebration was hosted by the couple's son, Eugene, relatives and friends.

Mrs. Woolard, the former Kathleen Manning, was attired in an aqua formal gown of chiffon and lace. A corsage of gold and white carnations complemented the gown.

The anniversary cake was cut by the honored couple. Mrs. Ray Garris and Mrs. Stuart Tripp assisted in serving.

Quilting Program Planned

Quilting, one of the oldest folk arts, will be discussed and demonstrated here Monday afternoon at 1:30.

Mrs. Linda B. Boyette, home economics extension agent in Bertie County, will demonstrate the quilting process and discuss techniques for constructing garments from quilted fabric.

Mrs. Boyette received her B.S. degree in home economics education from ECU and master's degree in adult education from N. C. State University. She has had further training in crafts at the University of Tennessee.

The demonstration will be held at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office. For more details contact Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, home economics extension agent, 758-1196.

Credit Women Meet, Hear Guest Speaker

Greenville Credit Women-International met at First Federal Tuesday evening for its monthly meeting and a covered-dish dinner.

Brayom Anderson, with Life Unlimited, presented the program entitled "Setting Goals." He stressed the most success in any job deals with the attitude of a person. Attitude is the most important factor of success in one's life.

"You must work within yourself if you are going to reach your goals. You need to verbalize, visualize and vitalize in order to attain positive attitudes," he said in closing.

President Martha Mills announced Dr. Frances Daniels, ECU professor in the business department, would be the speaker for the Feb. 27 meeting. She will present the State President's Project "The Metric System."

Mary Roberson gave a report on the installation luncheon which will be in honor of State First Vice President Angeline Venters when she is installed June 4 as president of N. C. Credit Women-International. Ms. Roberson was appointed by Mrs. Venters to serve as chairwoman of the installation.

Guests for the meeting included Lois Stanley, Myrtle Fields and Charles Westbrook.

Carol Hardee and Inda Wingate served as hostesses for the month.

Care For Toaster Oven

The toaster oven is a convenient and popular kitchen appliance.

To keep it working properly, give it the regular care it needs, say specialists with the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Pull out a removable crumb tray after it has cooled or unlatch a hinged tray. Brush out the crumbs and wash tray with a sudsy sponge, rinse and dry. If the unit is both an oven and broiler, remove either tray when cooled after use and wash them.

Wipe out the interior of the appliance, the oven door, racks and exterior with a damp cloth or sponge wrung from suds, rinse and dry.

Low-Key Message By Carter

The president's State of the Union address, at the half way point in his term, was relatively low key.

He spoke of a "new foundation" to help us "build a nation and a world where every child is nurtured and can look to the future with hope — where the resources now wasted on war can be turned towards human needs — where all people have enough to eat, a decent home and protection from disease."

The foundation would be built on a strong economy and a lower inflation rate. There would be no recession in this nation and there would be a nuclear agreement with the Soviets.

He called for a ceiling on hospital price increases; a step toward national health insurance, some public financing of congressional election campaigns, reorganization programs in education, economic development and management of natural resources and deregulation of trucking, bus and rail industries.

Like most presidents before him, he declared the state of the union as sound. And it is, compared to the doleful times for 1932, or the world wide war of 1942, or the Vietnam war problems of the 1960s.

But you don't have to be a prophet of doom to recognize that we have many problems. Those dreams for a better world are entirely plausible, but it will depend on our getting the major problems under control. Tops on this list immediately is the inflation rate which is tied in with increasing energy costs, government deficits and other factors. If we want to make the dreams the president outlined come about the problems will have to be solved soon in a practical way.

Wage Earners Aware Of Inflation

Hardly any wage earner had to wait for government figures to be aware of the fierce inflation rate of 1978.

The Labor Department figures showed a consumer price rise of 9 percent during the calendar year, the second largest increase in 30 years.

Consumers could have predicted the increase as they watched prices on practically everything they use move up during the year.

It is not a comforting situation for the individual.

Relying On Local Councils

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — A statewide network of New Generation Councils will provide the foundation on which Gov. Jim Hunt builds his program to locate and assist all children in need of assistance.

This is the chief ingredient in a Children and Family Policy Act now being prepared by the Hunt team for introduction to the General Assembly.

A council of citizens in each county would be charged with two primary jobs:

— Identifying all youngsters in need of aid; even pregnant mothers in need of nutrition or health services;

— Trying to pull together the numerous public and private sources of help already out there but not working together.

"This could well be the most important job which we face," Hunt says of this endeavor, obviously enthused over it.

People

Statistics are important, especially to people who work with them and understand them. "But there's nothing to take the place of a little face ... a name ... to bring home to all of us what this job is: to help these children," Hunt said as he described the machinery.

Basically, the local councils will tap every resource imaginable — churches, schools, home demonstration clubs, agricultural extension agents, business and industrial contacts — to get a line on any youngster or child about to be born which will likely fall victim to mental, physical or emotional handicaps.

Having located these children, or the mothers, the councils would attempt to find the proper corrective program, calling on evaluation centers, mental health or health experts, a host of public and private agencies.

"Those services are already out there; they're in place and using them isn't going to cost us one dime. It is, though, a matter of putting them to work effectively, across agency lines and without regard for bureaucratic turf-fighting."

Hunt contends.

In his State of the State message to the General Assembly earlier this month, Hunt briefly referred to the Children and Family Policy Act — without elaboration — as a means to "focus attention on helping the family raise children successfully. It will provide a new means for coordinating the many agencies and programs already in place that can help reduce infant mortality, expand and improve child care services and improve basic skills achievement. It will not require any new personnel or appropriations."

BILL NOBLITT

A Right

Will the Children and Family Policy Act seek to establish as a "right" the availability of such services to all children in the public schools?

Not likely, at least anytime soon. Hunt is convinced that the approach at this time is assistance to the family, but keeping in mind that it is still the family — not the government — which must make the choices. Also to legislate programs as a "right" immediately creates the need for expanded efforts and more spending.

But most importantly, Hunt believes, the time is now when concentrated effort to aid children is critical. "A child born of a mother who had a poor diet and no medical care during pregnancy has a far greater chance of dying at birth or being born handicapped ... who never sees a doctor from the time of birth ... until ... entering school, has a far greater chance of being physically or mentally retarded. By the time we get these children in our public kindergartens, it is too late ... motivation is lacking; the wrong attitudes and values have been fixed for life."

"We must stop this cycle," Hunt insists.

Staking Claim To Middle

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is hardly a battle cry, but with the New Foundation, President Carter is staking claim to the territory he always has sought as politician and as president — the middle.

The successful centrist usually is short on drama, but long on votes.

And the program Carter has just presented to Congress is no less a political than an economic and legislative blueprint.

The themes set now will carry Carter into the 1980 presidential campaign. Indeed, his hold-the-line, $532 billion federal budget covers federal spending for all but the final month of the 1980 campaign period.

Conservatives say it is too much money, liberals complain at the cuts, and Carter winds up in the middle. The White House is waging that is where the voters are.

In national defense, Carter proposes to press for a strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, insisting he will not sign any deal that does not guarantee U.S. security. Such assurances notwithstanding, SALT dismays the right.

At the same time, he wants to increase defense spending by 3 percent while whittling down the budget for some social programs dear to the Democrats.

Carter also is positioned between the two Democrats who loom as his most likely challengers, if challengers there be for the party's 1980 nomination.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who wants action now on the national health insurance Carter would put off until the 1980s, has complained of domestic spending curbs in the new budget.

"It is a myth that we must choose between compassion and competence," Carter countered in his State of the Union address Tuesday night.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, already exploring a 1980 presidential bid, said Carter painted an overly optimistic picture of the nation's economic future. Brown is betting conservative with his call for a constitutional amendment to limit future federal spending.

Carter says that will not work, and his message to Congress dismissed "simplistic or extreme solutions" to economic ailments.

In the rhetoric of his New Foundation message, Carter said it is myth to argue that the nation must choose between such poles as inflation and recession at home, confrontation and capitulation abroad.

There are middle grounds that avoid those extremes, he said.

That view, on programs and on politics, puts Carter in a relatively conservative position for a Democratic

Strength For Today

THE GARBAGE PAIL ISSUE

"What impressed you most about your visit to the United States?" someone asked a visitor from Africa. And the reply was, "The size of your garbage pails."

We can appreciate the reason for this response. Every day the American people thrown enough food into their garbage pails to keep thousands of people in the world at the subsistence level.

Certainly there is poverty in this country and much needless suffering. But we do not have the massive numbers of people living at the bare subsistence level who can be found in the third world areas. The amenities of life which we take for granted are luxuries beyond the fondest imagination of most of these people.

Under these circumstances we should not be surprised that resentment is building up in these areas against the United States. Communism thrives when one nation has big garbage pails and other nations have none at all because they have no need of them.

DREAMHOUSE BECOMING A NIGHTMARE!

He Didn't Watch Game

WASHINGTON — A bunch of us were standing around the bar on Monday talking about Super Bowl Sunday, and what a dandy day it had been. We all had that warm feeling you get when you have shared a great common experience. I was telling everyone how I had watched the game on a large super screen which my friend Stevens had bought just for the occasion. Next to being at the game itself, this gave me quite a bit of clout.

I noticed that the only one who wasn't enjoying the scene was Apple. With good humor I said, "Where did you see the Super Bowl, Apple?" "I didn't," he replied. There was a hush in the bar.

"Did someone die in your family?" Nelson asked. "No," Apple said. "I know," Bailey interjected, "you were on an airplane flying back from a business trip."

Apple shook his head. "I wasn't on an airplane and no one died in my family and no one got sick. I was home."

"Your television set was broken?" someone suggested.

ART BUCHWALD

"My television set was perfect. As a matter of fact, my wife and I watched 'To Kill a Mockingbird' with Gregory Peck. It was an excellent movie."

"What were you doing watching a movie instead of the Super Bowl?" I wanted to know.

"I don't believe in the Super Bowl," Apple replied, "and neither does my wife."

Ogilvy slammed down his beer. "What the hell do you mean — you don't believe in the Super Bowl? Are you some kind of atheist nut or something?"

Apple was really cool. "I believe in God, but I don't believe in football."

I thought Woodstock was going to slug him. "Super Bowl Sunday is the holiest day of the year. One hundred million Americans observe it, believe in it, live for it. And you're trying to say it don't do nothing to you?"

"It may have religious significance for some people. But it doesn't have meaning for my family. I have no objection to other folks believing that the day has some super power as long as they don't try to inflict their beliefs on me."

The bar was tensing up. I tried to be the peacemaker.

"Apple may have a point," I said. "After all, what makes America the greatest country in the world is not that you have to watch 'The Game.'"

Some Things Better

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Maybe the whole country is going to hell in a hand basket, as you find out every time you deposit one at a supermarket checkout counter, but some things in our society actually are improving.

The railroads, for one. Well, at times anyhow.

I took the Amtrak from Stamford, Conn., down to Washington the other day, and was more than pleasantly surprised at the comfort of the ride, the quality of the service and the friendliness of the passengers all around me.

Nothing puts people in a friendlier mood than to look out the window of a fast flying train at a snowy highway scene of snarled traffic. The thought that they aren't up in an airplane looking out on that blizzard scene also adds to the general bonhomie.

The track bed could have been a mite smoother, the windows a bit cleaner, and the stops a lot fewer, but the experience was a lot more satisfying than a decade ago when nobody seemed to care how far our railroads had deteriorated.

The smiling, uniformed attendant in the car had a fast hand on the coffee pot and was quick on his feet with the cocktail tray.

Apparently no one yet had got around to telling him he was supposed to be moody, embittered and resentful of his station in life. He actually took pride in his work. He helped a college kid deposit an enormous bull fiddle in the luggage rack, wheeled an elderly invalid several times to the rest room and discoursed learnedly on the mathematical certainty of fiscal disaster in playing long shots in claiming races at the Garden State Race Track.

The food came anytime you wanted it, not when the stewardess felt like serving it. The apple pie was hot and delicious. The lettuce in the Salad Nicoise was crisp and green, the portion of tuna generous, and the coffee, all you could drink, was free.

You could type a letter or a speech, make a telephone call, walk the length of the train for exercise and look out on the wintery landscape.

40 Years Ago Today

January 26, 1939

Josh L. Horne of Rocky Mount, chairman of the North Carolina committee seeking establishment of an east-west airline across the state, received assurance from the state's congressional delegation.

Horne, conferring with Representative Warren (D-NC), ex-officio committee chairman, said as soon as briefs in behalf of interested cities were completed, the matter would be presented to the Post Office Department and the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

He said arrangements had been made to meet with the entire congressional delegation at that time to "present an united front."

Horne said North Carolina needed an east-west line, explaining that South Carolina and Virginia were served by such air facilities.

Earning A Degree In Moving

By GAIL MICHAELS

Phillip's return to school has been an education for us both. He's learning the ins and outs of business; I'm learning the ins and outs of moving.

We've moved four times since July. First, we sold our home and moved in with Phillip's parents. Then we moved into an apartment while we searched for a house that could accommodate the belongings of a couple who still have their homeroom notebooks from junior high school. We did find a house, but it proved to be much too expensive for our new income bracket, commonly referred to as the IRS as "destitute."

But recently Phillip found a house that seemed to suit all our requirements. It would hold all our belongings, and the rent was low enough so that we could pay it and still afford to eat two or three times a week.

Now all this moving got pretty traumatic for a woman who needs five months just to adjust to a new furniture arrangement. And it hasn't been easy for Meg either. She keeps asking, "What house are we moving to this week?" But between the two of us, we have learned enough to start our own company.

For instance, Meg taught herself to pack her own toys. As a precaution, she packed one or two to a box, and I must say that her method was successful. Not one of her stuffed animals got broken. She also knew how to identify her boxes so that we had no trouble determining their destination. She insisted that each be tied with a red bow.

Meg's packing methods created a serious box shortage, but I learned to deal with it in an incredibly original manner. I threw away everything that couldn't be sold for enough to cover the cost of a hernia operation. At first, I thought it would destroy me. I even cried as I said goodbye to the bunny fur hat with the crisscross pattern of moth holes.

But soon I began to experience an exhilarating sense of freedom. I found that I could live quite well without 14 sets of dyed sheets, 21 odd jelly glasses, and the stuffed reindeer upon which our cat had performed a colostomy four years ago. And I didn't get hives when I disposed of my box of assorted candle stubs, my dead African violets, and the drawer of clothes I had been promising to mend for the last six years. Unfortunately, Phillip put a stop to this moving technique when he caught me trying to hoist one end of our sofa into the Dempsey Dumpster.

That still left us with 176 large boxes, three major appliances, and five rooms of furniture. It took us hours to move it all. When we finally dragged the last load into the house, Phillip sank down on the sofa.

"Thank goodness it's all over," he said. "Now I can get back to the books. Let's just hope this is the last move for the time being."

I looked at the 50 boxes that waited to be unpacked in the living room alone. "For the time being, my eye," I said. "If you ever get me to move again, you're going to need some very special equipment."

"Like what?" Phillip asked.

"Try a bulldozer."

but that you DON'T have to watch it if you don't want to." "If you don't like it here," Ogilvy spat out at Apple. "why don't you go back where you came from?" "Ogilvy's right," Nelson said. "Millions of dollars were spent to give us the Super Bowl. The two greatest teams in American football played their hearts out, and many fell on the field of combat."

"They put on a half-time show that would put the Roman circus to shame. American advertisers spent every nickel they had to bring us a day we will remember for the rest of our lives. Only a pervert would be tuned in to 'To Kill a Mockingbird.'"

"I'm sorry you all feel this way," Apple said. "but we do have separation of state and sports in this country. Besides, I believe the Super Bowl has been hyped up to the point where it has lost all sportsmanlike meaning. It is now nothing but junk food."

I wish Apple hadn't said that. But our lawyers tell us that, no matter how much Apple sues us for assaulting him, no jury of 12 just men is going to award him a dime when they find out he doesn't believe in Super Bowl Sunday.

Training by the woods on a snowy evening, you get a feel for America that just isn't there in an airplane or a car, maybe because there's time to look and meditate and see where all of us are heading.

"Nothing is expected of the train passenger," wrote the American novelist Paul Theroux. "In planes, the traveller is condemned to hours in a tight seat; ships require high spirits and sociability; cars and buses are unspeakable."

Whenever I board a train, I am always reminded of the comforting line the porter on the old Crescent City express used to address to his passengers as the bar car thundered out of wet Alabama into prohibition country:

"Gentlemen, please back yourselves up, we're coming into Mississippi."

In those days, trainmen cared. Maybe that part of our past is being reclaimed.

Will Plan New Church Year

Presidents of various auxiliary and the program committee of Sweet Hope F.W.B. Church will meet at Shoney's Restaurant Monday at 7 p.m.

Plans for this church calendar year will be discussed, according to the Rev. W. J. Best, church pastor.

Moratorium Ends For Natural Gas Hookups

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Utilities Commission, citing increased gas supplies, ended Thursday a four-year moratorium on new natural gas hookups.

The commission issued an almost complete ban on new hookups in May 1975. Some new residential connections were allowed after October 1977, and industrial hookups had been considered on a case-by-case basis since then.

Thursday's order allows gas companies to extend mains to new residential areas and to supply new industries that cannot use other fuel.

The commission noted that the state recently was notified that a change in the gas allocation by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission means North Carolina will receive a substantial increase in gas supplies.

The revision was the result of a court ruling, which said that the old allocation formula was unfair to North Carolina. Supplies available to the state's only gas supplier, Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Co., have also increased.

The state can expect to get 39 percent more gas at regulated prices this year than it did last year, the commission noted. The total supply will increase by only 5 percent, however, because much of the gas purchased last year was from the more expensive emergency supplies.

H.J. Knox of Public Service Co. of North Carolina, one of three major natural gas companies, said the order "would allow us to do more marketing in the area we presently serve."

But Knox added that it might not be profitable for the company to extend service to new areas.

Frank Barragan Jr., president of North Carolina Natural Gas Corp., said the order will allow the company to extend new lines in the Eastern cities it serves.

"We would certainly be interested in talking to any industry that wants to use our lines," he said.

Plan Service Of Appreciation

The members of Wells Chapel Church will hold an appreciation service Sunday, Jan. 28, 3 p.m., for Mrs. Velma Moore, the district missionary of the Greenville District of the Churches of God in Christ.

Elder James Lloyd, pastor of the Holy Mission Church of God in Christ, will conduct the program. The public is invited to attend. The church is located on W. Fifth St.

Anniversary For Traveling Choir

The R. E. Worrell Traveling Choir will observe its anniversary at 4 p.m. Sunday at Holly Hill F.W.B. Church, Belvoir.

Various choirs are invited to take part, and registration begins at 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Nematode Control Meeting Monday

A nematode control meeting is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 29, 6:30 p.m., at the Greenville American Legion Bldg., St. Andrews St., according to Gaylon Ambrose, associate agricultural extension agent.

Dr. Dave Richard of the Nematode Advisory Service, Dr. Harry Duncan and Dr. Don Schmitt, both of North Carolina State University, will present a program on interpreting the nematode assay report and nematode control.

According to the assay drive in Pitt County this November, it is evident that there are some damaging levels of nematodes in this area.

Fifty-three percent of tobacco fields, 13 percent of corn fields and 45 percent of soybean fields have damaging levels of nematodes with soil chemical treatments advised.

Dinner will be served at the meeting and interested persons are asked to call the local extension office, 758-1196, to make arrangements.

Workshop In Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — A Whole Ways Workshop sponsored by Church Women United (CWU) in North Carolina is to be held at the First Christian Church in Williamston on Tuesday, Feb. 6.

First Christian is located on the corner of Smithwick and Liberty Streets, and registration is to begin at 9:30 a.m. Those attending are asked to bring a sandwich. A drink and dessert will be provided by the host church.

The Whole Ways Workshop will be conducted by a team consisting of Mrs. Mildred Fry of Raleigh, state president of CWU, Mrs. Johnnie McLester of Durham, Mrs. Kathryn Gramley of Greensboro, and Mrs. Rachel Cobb of Raleigh.

In the event of rain on Feb. 6, the workshop will be held Thursday, Feb. 8.

CWU is an organization composed of women of Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Orthodox churches. It has some 2,000 units in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

There is no fee involved in the Workshop and the public is invited.

Scholars Says Cults Common In Past

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A panel of scholars says the rise of new religious cults has been common in past anxious periods of American history, and that the present-day rash of such groups seems to indicate a spiritual void in modern culture.

After a two-day conference on the subject this week, the group of about 25 university professors — sociologists, psychologists, theologians and others — declined to draw definite conclusions about the phenomenon. But it suggested "there is a deep hunger for some sort of spiritual meaning that is not being satisfied by contemporary society," said Marvin Bressler, a Princeton University sociologist and chairman of the meeting.

He added, however, that the trend's singular nature is outside the immediate framework of most of our respective disciplines. The general feeling was a kind of sense of dismay at our own absence of knowledge of the entire issue.

He and other participants said at a news conference that there were several general impressions, including the view that cults indicate an "exhaustion of the doctrine of secular salvation."

Apparently modern society with its affluence, various "liberation" movements and technical conveniences has not produced spiritual fulfillment, the panel said, and people seek new means for it.

The meeting was sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in the face of widescale questions about implications of the mass suicide of Peoples Temple cultists in Guyana.

Several scholars cautioned against drawing any generalized image of modern cults from the Guyana group, which some characterized as more political than religious.

"The movements ought not to be seen as all cut from the same cloth and lumped together," said Charles Y. Glock, a sociologist at the University of California at Berkeley.

He noted that most new cults are youth-oriented and draw recruits mostly from the white middle class, but that the Peoples Temple was heavily black and drew recruits from the working class.

Theologian Harvey Cox of the Harvard University Divinity School said the "hungers, needs, fears and heartaches of people" are serious problems in society today, and that many "so desperately need friendship, intimacy and community support" that they turn to the new groups.

"They call each other 'brother' and 'sister' and share things," he said. "It also gives them a vision of ultimate meaning in the scheme of things." He added that the historic religious institutions do not seem to be filling that need. "When the churches accommodate themselves to the consumerist, competitive society, people look for an alternative," he said. "I see the new movements as a challenge to the churches to provide clearer alternatives to the standardized way of life."

The little frame church in this snow-blanketed mountain village lifts its tall spire above its rugged environment like a sentinel guarding a sacred trust or a lighthouse on a rockbound coast.

Wherever man has pushed his habitations—in the bleak wastes of the polar regions, under the blazing tropical sun, or in the milder climates of the world—he has built his churches dedicated to the worship of God.

The fact that no community seems complete without its house of worship bears eloquent testimony to the universal recognition of man's need of religion.

The village church plays a vital part in the life of the community. The spiritual standards of the people are fashioned there; marriage vows are spoken at its altar, and the honored dead sleep in its sacred soil.

There it stands in every community—the little frame church—pointing the people to God, teaching them the way of life, giving them strength and faith for every need.

Pope John Paul Visits Slums Of Santo Domingo

By LEW WHEATON
Associated Press Writer
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Pope John Paul II rode through cheering crowds into an impoverished "barrio" of Santo Domingo today and appealed for greater efforts to improve the lot of the poor, in whom he sees "a live presence of the Lord."

The pope's visit to the populous slum of Los Minas (The Mines) in the western part of the city was his last public act before ending his 23-hour visit to the Dominican Republic and flying on to Mexico City to help his bishops chart the course of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America for the next decade.

Mexico City was hit by two earthquakes early today, but no casualties or serious damage were reported and they were not expected to affect the pontiff's schedule.

The visit to Los Minas was an encounter the pope had wanted and requested.

He told a gathering of Los Minas parishioners, "The pope sees in you a live presence of the Lord who suffers in our deprived brothers, who still says blessed are the poor in spirit, those who are persecuted, who are pure, who work for peace, who are compassionate and maintain their hope in Christ the Savior."

his first visit to the hemisphere as pope.

He later expressed his respect for the modern nation that was the site of the first Roman Catholic Mass in the Americas, the first cathedral, the first defense of the dignity of the American Indian by the church and the home of Christopher Columbus' son.

commitment to champion human rights, social justice and economic improvement for the poor throughout the world.

The church, he said, will work to see that there are "no children without sufficient nutrition...no peasants without land to live on and develop with dignity...no workers mistreated...no system that allows the exploitation of man by man or by the state...no corruption, that there be no one who has too much while others lack everything through no fault of their own."

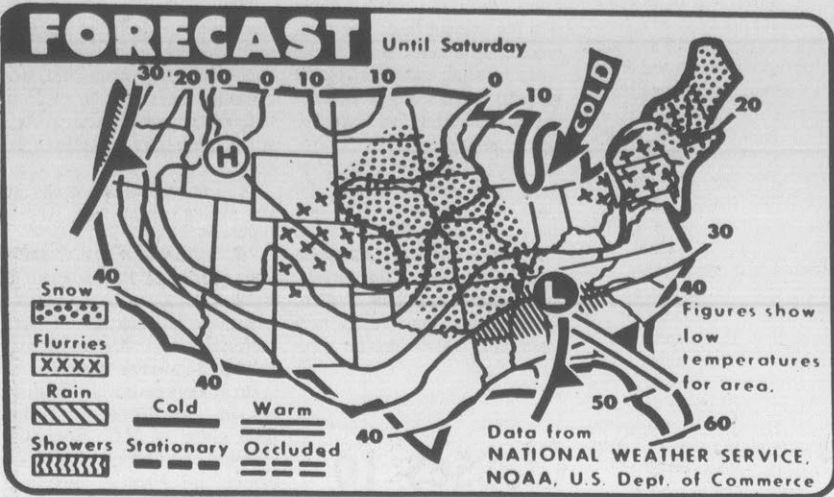

He said Latin America was "vital for the future of the Catholic Church." The region, "in the middle of difficulties and sacrifices, is witnessing for Christ and today wants to answer the challenge of the moment with a light of hope for the here and now and the hereafter," said the pontiff.

The high point of his activities Thursday was a public Mass before 200,000 to 300,000 cheering Dominicans in Independence Plaza.

With his voice booming off the surrounding buildings, the pontiff reiterated his church's

The pontiff's accented Spanish was warmly received by the crowd, which waved gold and white Vatican flags as he spoke. Thousands pressed forward to receive Communion from 100 priests as the pope delivered the sacrament to 100 selected persons, including President Antonio Guzman, his wife and high-ranking officials.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and snow flurries are expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning from the upper Mississippi Valley through the Midwest and most of the Plains. Snow and snow flurries are also forecast for the Northeast. Cold temperatures are due in most areas. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

It was generally sunny and cool across North Carolina today, but the threat of snow is in the forecast for the mountains Saturday with rain east of the mountains Sunday.

A slowly developing low pressure system over Texas and Oklahoma early this morning was not carrying the wallop expected in North Carolina as it yielded somewhat to the nearly stationary storm along the New England coast.

This storm is so large and slow moving that it was effectively blocking other storm systems to the west. However, the weekend may bring snow to the mountains and rain elsewhere.

Strong winds across the state Thursday created something of a problem in the northwest mountains with blowing snow. Gale warnings also were in effect along the coast, but these were lowered to small craft advisories today.

High temperatures Thursday ranged from a frigid 15 at Boone to 34 at Asheville, in the mountain readings, while ranging from 42 at Greensboro to 48 at Raleigh east of the mountains.

High readings today were expected to range from the mid 20s to around 30 in the northwest mountains and to the upper 40s and low 50s along the south coast. Lows this morning dropped generally to the 20s.

Downfall Faces Italian Cabinet

ROME (AP) — Italian communist leader Enrico Berlinguer declared today his party finds it impossible to continue supporting the government — an attack that virtually ensures the fall of Premier Giulio Andreotti's cabinet.

Berlinguer gave his party's position at a crisis meeting of the five-party alliance which has supported Andreotti's Christian Democrat minority government for 11 months.

The communists, stung by a new refusal of the Christian Democrats to give them cabinet posts, have been unleashing attacks against Andreotti capped by today's blast.

What some politicians are already labeling a "crisis in the dark" would open a lengthy period of inter-party talks and possibly lead to general elections two and a half years ahead of schedule.

The communists, who commanded 34 percent of the votes at the polls three years ago, just four percentage points behind the ruling party, began their attacks days after Christian Democrat Secretary Benigno Zaccagnini returned from a week-long tour in the United States.

In Washington, Zaccagnini met Vice President Walter Mondale and held other talks at the White House and at the State Department, pledging his party will never share government ministries with the communists in this NATO nation.

The crisis erupted at a time when experts believed Italy might be nearing the end of its worst economic and financial slump in decades.

Extortion Plea By Counselor

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A former Durham County Juvenile Court counselor pleaded guilty Thursday to extortion and eight counts of obtaining money from his young clients or their parents under false pretenses.

Julius Knight, 54, could have been sentenced to up to 90 days in prison. But Superior Court Judge Robert L. Farmer gave Knight a suspended sentence and put him on probation for five years.

"This is the type of crime that justifies an active sentence, and you probably should have served some time," Farmer said after his decision.

The judge fined Knight $1,000 and ordered him to pay his five victims $729.20. He also ordered Knight to contribute one hour of community service each week for the first six months of his probation.

Knight's attorney, C.C. "Buddy" Malone Jr., had asked the judge for probation, arguing that his client was a man "who has suffered by his own acts... a man who has lost everything."

Malone said Knight began "adjusting" juvenile cases to protect "deserving individuals rather than subject them to the forces and records of the courts. (It) got out of hand. It became a self-perpetuating activity which resulted in his downfall."

District Attorney Dan K. Edwards Jr. said an investigation of Knight's activities as head of the Juvenile Court's intake division uncovered an eight-year pattern of taking money from persons in exchange for court action.

'Rich People' Helping Tractorcade Members

By STEELE HOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Norman Smith sat in a pickup truck with a borrowed camper on the back and a borrowed citizens band radio on the dashboard. He gestured toward the campers scattered among a sea of tractors.

"All this stuff is borrowed, and it's the rich people who have sent it ... They want us to win so they can get their money," Smith said. "The people we owe want us to win so they don't have to wait on their money."

Smith, from Horn's Crossroads, Ga., is one of hundreds of farmers riding tractors and pickup trucks to Washington to protest the low farm prices they say are ruining the small American farm.

Thursday night the farmers got support from two segments of society not normally associated with them — labor and civil rights groups.

Southern farmers, driving 300 to 350 tractors and dozens of pickup trucks and campers, parked at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium for the night Thursday. They came from as far as Levelland, Texas, about 30 miles from the New Mexico state line.

They were hoping to disrupt Atlanta's morning rush hour traffic when they resumed their journey at 7 a.m. today, said Georgia's American Agriculture movement leader, Tommy Kersey.

Another American Agriculture leader said 40,000 to 50,000 farmers will gather at the nation's capital next week. They will ask President Carter to enforce a provision in the current agriculture law which would have the effect of raising farm prices to 100 percent of parity, a stated goal of American Agriculture.

"What we want is to get the price of what we have grown up to where we can pay our debts," said T.A. Miller of Miller County. "I'm tired of paying my debts with borrowed money."

Miller said he has been forced to borrow on his home and his tractor to pay his farm debts.

"I owe more money than my grandfather made in his whole life on this same dirt," he said.

During a rally at the stadium, civil rights and labor leaders gave their blessings to the farmers' trip.

"Your fight is our fight," said Georgia AFL-CIO President Herbert Mabry. "All your lives, you have been taught by the press that the labor unions are your enemies. But it was not the worker who was getting the money, it was the middleman ..."

Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the farmers should tell President Carter, "like Moses told Pharaoh, to let my farmers go."

Lowery said power groups have kept blacks and farmers apart and "those who are against farmers are against poor folks in the city."

"We have come to put together a movement of farmers and city folks, blacks and whites," he said.

If the Washington protest doesn't bring the farmers relief, "we won't be here next year," said Bobby Jackson of Levelland, Texas. "If it doesn't work, half of us won't be farming next year."

Women Win Damage Suit

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded $1,000 punitive damages and back pay to four former women members of the Cleveland County Sheriff's Department in their suit for $25 million damages for alleged sex discrimination.

The U. S. District Court jury ruled Thursday against a fifth plaintiff, Dorothy Elliott, who had charged racial and sexual discrimination, contending she was passed over for promotion while being better qualified than the person chosen. She still is employed by the sheriff's office.

The four former employees, Marilyn Hoyle, Barbara Long, Kathy Lanier, and Cornelia Glover, were fired in November 1977 after allegedly removing from a desk a log being kept on them by their supervisor.

The jury held there was no discrimination in their discharge or in their failure to be rehired, but ruled they should be given $1,925 each in back pay for the period from July 1977 to the time of their dismissal in November.

They also were awarded $1,000 each in punitive damages, but Judge Woodrow Wilson indicated he might set the award aside.

The jury also ruled out discrimination by Cleveland County Sheriff Haywood Allen, county manager Joe Hedrick and the board of county commissioners, but awarded punitive damages of $1,000 to each of the four plaintiffs.

The judge also indicated he might set this award aside.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leslie C. Dirks, the CIA's deputy director for science and technology, received the National Security Medal Thursday in a White House ceremony. No one will say what it was for. That's classified.

Mack Hits 1,000 In Victory Over UNC-W

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Pirates got what amounted to a six-point play in the closing minutes of the first half to build up a 14-point lead over UNC Wilmington last night and went on to record a 92-79 victory over the Seahawks.

The victory snapped a four-game tailspin by the Pirates and a three-game winning streak by the 'Hawks, who have now dropped two in a row to the Pirates.

After the Pirates established their lead in the closing minutes of the half, there was not too much doubt as to the outcome, even though Wilmington cut the margin back to eight on a couple of occasions.

There was more suspense as to whether Oliver Mack would score his 1,000th career point in the game. Mack entered the contest with 983, needing 17 to break the barrier and become the 12th Pirate to record the sum.

It wasn't until 12 seconds remained, however, that Mack was fouled as he drove for a try, and made both ends of the two-shot foul for a total of 1,001 points. The pair closed out the scoring for the evening.

For Mack, who accomplished the deed in just two years, a first for a modern-day Pirate, it was not a good evening. For the fourth straight game, he shot under 50 per cent, hitting just four of 13 shots from the floor. Overall for the year, he is hitting over 50 per cent.

"It's unusual for him, that's for sure," Coach Larry Gillman said afterwards. But he was our program last year, and this year, he's playing a good leadership role."

Mack now takes chase on the other 11 1,000-point scorers. Next comes Larry Hunt with 1,012.

"There was no doubt which team was the better team, even though Wilmington came in here 12-3 and we came in 6-10," Gillman said. "And we didn't play our best game. But I think that the caliber of competition we played along the way made the difference. Wilmington didn't play our schedule."

Gillman felt that the Pirate match-up zone caused the Seahawks a lot of trouble in the first half, when Wilmington shot only 28.2 per cent from the floor. "We forced them to take shots they didn't want to take," he pointed out.

Al Tyson, who scored 26 points against N.C. State on Tuesday, failed to score last night. "State played us a little bit different, and Wilmington changed up defenses a lot. Al's just a freshman, and I think the switching got him a little confused. But he'll be in the starting lineup on Saturday against Georgia Tech."

David Underwood, who hasn't played well before the home town crowd since becoming eligible, came in to score 10 points and snare six rebounds. "He did a good job on the offensive boards," Gillman said. "Most of his points were just getting mean on the boards and putting it back up."

Frank Hobson, who returned to the team Tuesday following a week-long absence due to the death of his father, came through with one of his better games, hitting 14 points in a reserve role.

The scoring leader was Herb Krusen, who led the first half scoring and finished with a total of 19, hitting eight of 11 from the floor and three of four from the line. He also pulled down a team high nine rebounds.

"He played very, very well," Gillman said. "And he did a heck of a job on the boards, considering his height."

Overall, six Pirates were in double figures. Along with Krusen, Underwood and Hobson, Mack finished with 18, while George Maynor had 17 and Greg Cornelius had 12.

The Pirates shot 51.7 per cent from the floor, while Wilmington, despite 50 per cent in the second half, hit only 39.5.

Oddly enough, Wilmington dominated the boards, pulling off 51 to 39 for the Pirates. Danny Davis led the way with 14, while Chuck Verba had 10.

Wilmington led on once in the game, at 7-6, on a jumper by Barry Taylor. East Carolina regained the lead on a jumper by Krusen at 11-9 with 13:16 to go, and got an odd four-point play to move out by six, 16-9.

Hobson and Underwood both hit the front of two shot fouls and Krusen put back a rebound after the second miss over a six-second period.

With 4:49 left, the Pirate led by just three, 28-25, but outscored the Seahawks, 13-2 over the remainder of the half.

After Krusen hit a jumper, Mack made two foul shots and Cornelius stuffed one. Then, Cornelius was fouled on a rebound under the "Hawk boards, and Garry Cooper was hit with a technical foul. Greg made both of his shots, Krusen added the technical and Underwood hit after the in-bounds for a 39-25 lead.

The Pirates led by 41-27 at halftime.

After moving out by 16 early in the second half, the Pirates, not playing their sharpest, fell back and Wilmington cut the lead back to six, the last time at 62-56 with 8:20 left.

But East Carolina again pulled away by 15, 78-63 with 3:58 left, and it was all over. Wilmington again crept back to within eight, but got no closer as the Pirates pulled back out to a 15-point lead before UNC-W got the final basket.

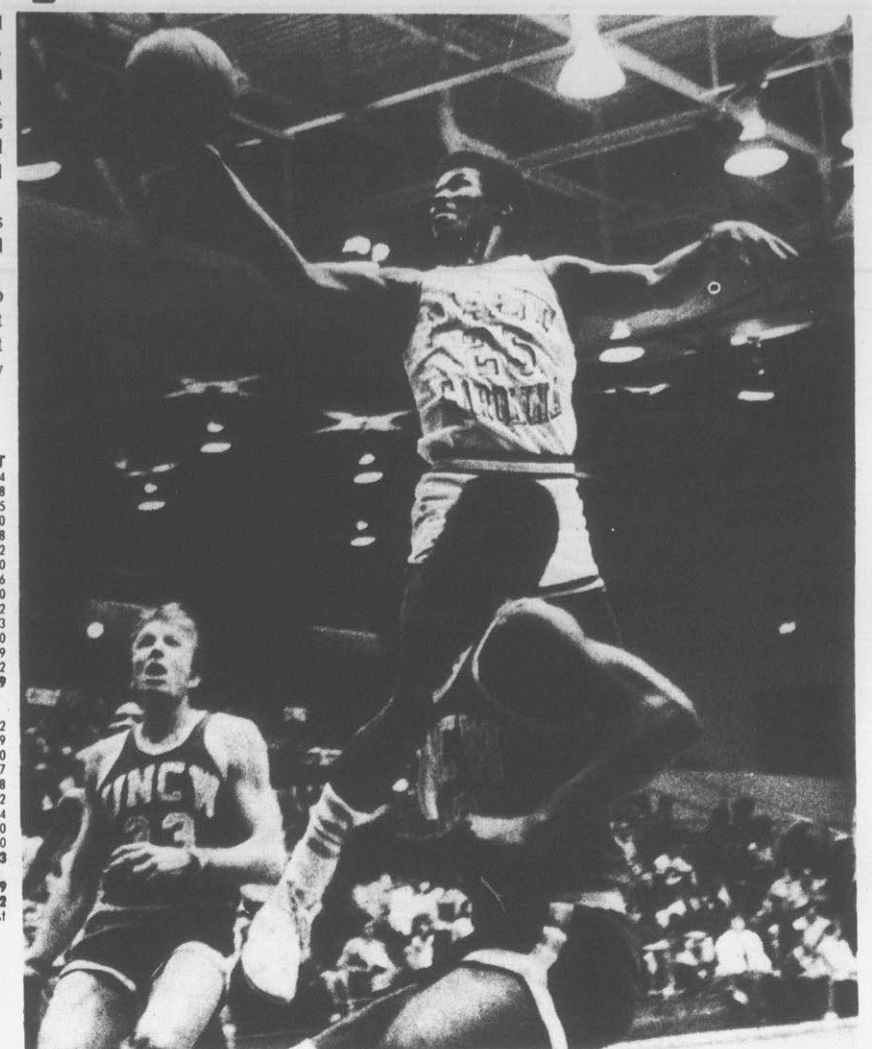

Dave Wolff led the Seahawks with 18, while Davis had 13 and Ralph Peterson had 10.

The Pirates, now 7-10, travel to Atlanta, Ga., where they meet Georgia Tech, the newest member of the ACC, on Saturday at 8 p.m.

Oliver Mack Soars In For A Layup Against UNC-W

Point Burden Less On Mack

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Last year this time, Oliver Mack was filling up the basket and was ranked in the top five scorers in the country. He returned this year as the number two scorer, and people were expecting a lot from the East Carolina senior guard.

But Mack hasn't filled up the bucket with the same tempo, and some folks are wondering, "What's wrong with Mack?"

According to Mack, there is nothing wrong. It's just another time.

"Last year I had the ball 70 per cent of the time. I had to go one-on-one with just about everyone."

"But this year," Mack added, "we have some other scorers, and I don't feel that the burden is on me to score as much as I did last year. There's only one ball in the game, and I can't shoot all the time. Both Greg (Cornelius) and George (Maynor) are scoring well this year, too."

Mack, going into last night's game against UNC Wilmington, was still the leading scorer on the team, averaging 17.8 points. But that was over ten points below his 28.0 mark that he ended up with last year. He's shooting about seven less times a game from the floor, and getting about four fewer chances at the foul line, and those two seem to be hand-in-hand—less shots, less fouls.

Earlier in the year, Coach Larry Gillman said that he felt that Mack should be shooting about 20 times a game. His average this year is about five below that. "I can't say that I'm going to shoot any special number of times a game," Mack said. "If the shots present themselves, I'll take them. If they don't then someone else will get them."

"We're running more of a motion offense this year, and sometimes someone will take a shot before we really should be taking one. But if the shot is there, I'll take it."

Mack added too that at times he doesn't think he has his full concentration on the game. "I don't know why," he said. "I know that we (the team) can play better than we have at times. I really thought that we'd get it together this year. I don't guess there is any chance that we'll get to a tournament, but we still have 11 games left to finish respectfully."

The 6-3 senior doesn't think that this year's performance, compared to last year's will hurt his chances in the pro draft. In fact, right now, he's not even thinking about it.

"The pros are there. The opportunity is there for me. But I really don't know if I want to play pro ball. If I go lower than the first or second round, it's really like try-out camp anyway, and I'm just not sure that I want to go through all that."

During the past three games, Mack's shooting has been below the 50 per cent level it usually is above. He blames that, too, on a lack of concentration. "I'm just going to have to work a little harder. I've been taking the good shots, but that little edge isn't there right now. I hope I get it back soon."

Last night's game could have seen Mack pass a milestone for the Pirates, becoming the 12th man to reach 1,000 points on an East Carolina basketball team.

Mack, however, will be the first Pirate to do it in a two-year period.

Women Host Longwood

East Carolina's women's basketball team returns home Saturday night to play Longwood College in the first game of a three-game home stand for the Pirates.

"It's very important for us to get back on our feet," said Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi. "We've lost three of our last four games by a total of eight points. The win would be our 10th victory of the year."

Forward Rosie Thompson continues to push toward the 1,500-point mark for her career. She has 1447 points to date and is averaging 24.8 points per game. Point guard Lydia Roundtree is nursing an ankle injury and will be a doubtful starter.

Other double figures scorers for the Pirates, now 9-7, are guard Gale Kerbaugh at 14.2, Roundtree at 12.8 and center Marcia Girven at 10.8. Thompson is the club's top rebounder at 12.4 with Girven close behind at 10.6.

"Longwood has strength on the inside. Both of their forwards are scoring in double figures," pointed out Andruzzi. "They also have a very good point guard who likes to penetrate down the middle."

The Lancers are led in scoring by Brenda Pettrow at 15.5, Cindy Landon at 10.7 and Robin Hungate at 10.0. Landon is also the leading rebounder with a 6.8 average.

East Carolina leads the series 5-2, but lost to Longwood twice last year by a total of five points.

The Pirates are home again Monday against UNC-Greensboro and Friday night against the Wolfpack of N. C. State. All three games begin at 7 p.m.

Cagers Bigger, Stronger, Faster

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Occasionally, North Carolina's Dean Smith, the most successful of active college basketball coaches, hauls out some old films just to see how they played the game 10 and 20 years ago.

He can hardly believe his eyes. It's almost as if he is spinning the reel in slow motion.

"It doesn't resemble the game we are playing today," says the youngish, dark-haired hardwood genius. "There are so many more good players — bigger, stronger, faster. The intensity is so much greater."

"Take Clyde Lovellette, for instance. He was my teammate at Kansas back in the early 1950s, rated the best in the country. But he comes off slow and a bit awkward measured by today's top players.

"To make it in basketball today — college or pros — the big men, the 6-9 and 6-11 guys, have to be as fast and quick as the smaller guys. They must have the touch also or they don't make it."

Smith not only is the winningest of active coaches with at least 12 years experience, but he also is regarded as the sport's premier tactician and innovator, teacher and producer of star players as well as coaches.

Three of his proteges — Billy

Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, Larry Brown of the Denver Nuggets and Doug Moe of San Antonio — are established in the pro coaching ranks.

How does Dean Smith himself manage to escape the pros?

"I like the campus atmosphere, I am happy with what I am doing," he insists. He refuses to elaborate on his many offers to coach in the pros, including heavy pressure at one time from the New York Knicks.

In 17 seasons at North Carolina leading up to the current one, Smith has seen his team score 863 victories against 121 losses for a .750 percentage. They have reached the NCAA final playoffs five times — only John Wooden and UCLA having more with 12. He coached the U.S. Olympic team to a gold medal at Montreal in 1976.

MSU Drops Another Big Ten Game

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

A few weeks ago, Michigan State was ranked No. 1 and eyeing a possible national basketball championship. Now the Spartans will be hard-pressed to win the Big Ten.

"Our title chances?" Spartans Coach Jud Heathcote asked himself after a 49-48 loss to Michigan Thursday night at Ann Arbor. "I wouldn't say they're terrific at this time."

"We felt we had to win to be a title contender. But we won't hang up our uniforms yet."

The fourth-ranked Spartans, who dropped to 11-4 overall and 4-3 in the Big Ten, tied the game 48-48 on a basket by Earvin Johnson with 51 seconds left.

The Wolverines then ran the clock down to 15 seconds before working the ball to freshman Keith Smith. Smith was not Michigan Coach Johnny Orr's choice for the last-second shot, but he drove to the basket and was fouled by Johnson. Smith sank the winning free throw with no time left, and Heathcote was in a rage.

"I thought there should be no call," the Michigan State coach said, "or there should have been a charge on Smith. I thought Johnson had position."

"On the road, it's 50-50 you'll get that call in your favor."

The Michigan coach was angry too — but at Heathcote, not the referees.

"I was mad about the delay," Orr said. "He (Smith) must have had to wait two or three minutes before they would let him shoot."

Smith wound up with just five points. Phil Hubbard had 13 points and 12 rebounds to lead the Wolverines, 9-6 overall and 3-4 in the conference. Greg Kelsner led Michigan State with 22 points, and Johnson added 16.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 2 North Carolina downed Wake Forest 76-69. No. 6 UCLA whipped Washington State 89-71. Iowa upset eighth-ranked Illinois and No. 10 Ohio State beat Northwestern 73-61. Ohio State's victory gave the Buckeyes a 7-0 Big Ten record, and a twosome lead in the conference over Iowa and a three-game lead over Michigan State.

Mike O'Koren scored 19 points, had 10 rebounds and hit four free throws in the final 15 seconds as North Carolina used its "four-corners" offense to hold off Atlantic Coast Conference rival Wake Forest.

Wake Forest closed the gap to 70-67 with 32 seconds left — nearly 4½ minutes after the Tar Heels had gone into their slow down, spread offense. But Rick Yonakor hit a pair of free throws, and O'Koren connected four times from the line to put the game out of reach.

North Carolina, 15-2 and 6-1 in the ACC, had all its players healthy for the first time in two weeks, including O'Koren, who had a sprained ankle. Tar Heels sophomore Al Wood also hit four critical free throws in the late going, including two after the Deacons' bench was hit with a technical, and finished with 23 points.

UCLA went on an 11-2 spurt midway in the first half to take a 22-12 lead en route to a surprisingly easy win over Washington State in the Pacific 10 Conference. Brad Holland scored 22 points and Kiki Vandeweghe had a career-high 21 as the Bruins, 13-3 overall, took over the top spot in the Pac 10 with a 6-2 record. The Cougars are second at 5-3.

Ronnie Lester, who scored 17 points, quarterbacked a delay that began with 10 minutes remaining as Iowa upset Illinois in the Big Ten.

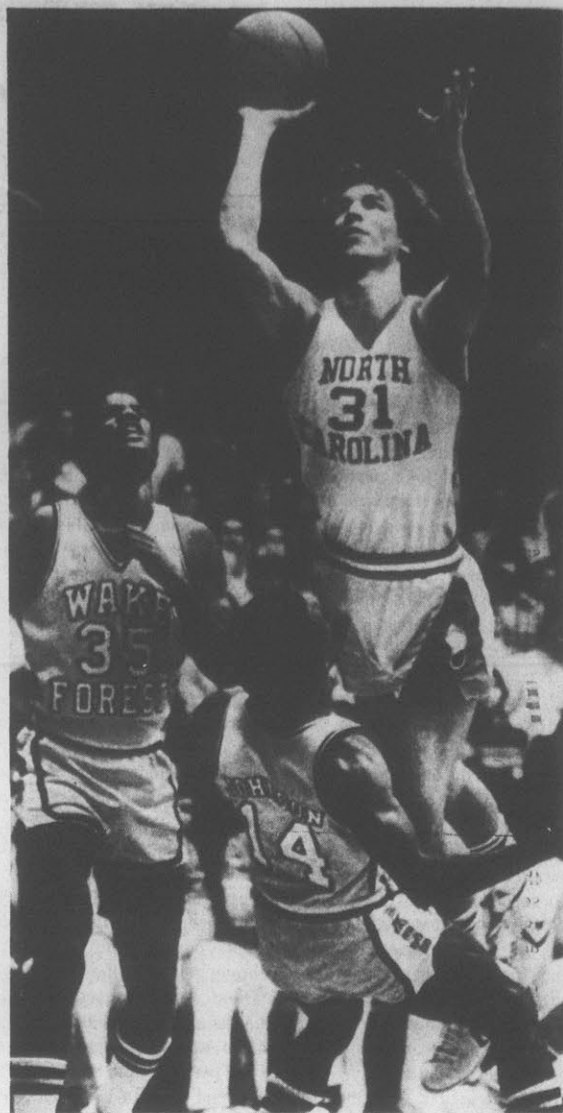

Iowa led 34-29 at the half and went up 46-37 on William Mayfield's basket with 12:22 left. Lester then took over the ballhandling chores in the Hawkeyes' stall, and Iowa built its lead to 57-45 on two free throws by Mayfield with 11:13 left in the game.

Illinois, 16-3 and 4-3 in the Big Ten, went nine minutes in the second half without scoring while Iowa controlled the ball. Iowa is now 12-4 overall and second in the Big Ten with a 52 mark.

Ohio State, meanwhile, held onto a two-game Big Ten lead, beating Northwestern behind Kelvin Ransey's 17 points, 12 of them in the second half.

"Everybody is falling by the wayside — except us," Ransey said of the Big Ten race.

The Buckeyes, 12-4 overall, now have their longest conference winning streak since 1971, and Ransey has scored in double figures in 47 consecutive games.

Younger Petty Tops Dad's Speed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard Petty may have finally found what he needed to make his temperamental 1978 Dodge Magnum race car go faster: his 18-year-old son Kyle.

The 41-year-old Petty, a sixtime national stock champion, struggled with the car through more than half of last season before parking it in disgust.

On Thursday, his second day of practice on a superspeedway in that car — or any race car for that matter — Kyle boosted his speed by 4 mph over the previous day to 187 mph. That's faster than his father ever drove the car at Daytona International Speedway.

It should be noted that the speedway has been completely repaved since Richard drove the Magnum here, and while Kyle was practicing at 187 mph, his father was breaking 190 in a new Oldsmobile.

Still, most everyone conceded, the younger Petty had done an unexpectedly good job.

A newsman asked Maurice Petty, Richard's brother and crew chief, if Kyle's showing was really all that amazing. Or was it merely an indication what the average guy off the street could do with the same kind of equipment.

"Considering everything, Kyle has done real good," said

Maurice, who tried driving once himself but gave it up because "I kept running into things."

Based on his experiences, Maurice has always believed his brother Richard had some special in-bred ability to become a successful race car driver like their father Lee, while Maurice did not.

"Joe Millikan went pretty quick the first time he drove one of our cars and proved he's a pretty good race driver. But you put him out there in traffic with those guys who run up front all the time, and he didn't run fast all the time. It takes time to learn how to handle it."

Change in Signals

Seattle Supersonics Dennis Johnson (24) attempts to go up for a basket, but is blocked by Atlanta Hawk Wayne "Tree" Rollins so Johnson is forced to pass to teammate Lonnie Shelton (8) for an easy shot. The action occurred in Atlanta Thursday night. (AP Laserphoto)

Who says you can't get a call from the officials when you're on the road?

The Seattle SuperSonics got a big call from referee Jess Kersey at Atlanta Thursday night, preserving their 100-98 National Basketball Association victory over the Hawks.

Guard Gus Williams, who scored 28 points for Seattle, hit a 15-footer with 28 seconds remaining to give the Sonics a 99-98 lead, and sank a free throw with seven seconds left to play for a two-point advantage.

Then came the crucial call. Atlanta guard Armond Hill took a jumper at the buzzer that would have sent the game into overtime, but Kersey waved off the basket, ruling that time had run out before the shot left Hill's hands.

"I thought I got it off in time," argued Hill. "I shot the ball and the horn went off — in that order."

Not so, said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "Your own replay showed that time had run out," he told Atlanta newsmen. "The ball was still in his hands when the zero-zero was on the clock."

In other NBA games Thursday night, the Detroit Pistons clobbered the Los Angeles Lakers 135-100 and the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Golden State Warriors 108-103.

Hawks forward John Drew had 39 points to lead all scorers, while Fred Brown contributed 17 points to the Seattle attack.

The victory was Seattle's fourth straight and sixth in a row on the road. Atlanta now has lost three straight since having a six-game winning streak broken Sunday in New Orleans.

Atlanta led 88-78 early in the fourth period before Seattle ran off 10 straight points to draw even and set up the hectic finish.

"It was our sixth loss by one or two points and our 13th by four or less," said Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown.

Pistons 135, Lakers 100

Bob Lanier fired in 28 points and Kevin Porter handed out 18 assists as the Pistons posted their third straight victory for the first time this season.

The score was tied 35-35 until Detroit scored 10 in a row in the second period. The Pistons led the rest of the way, breaking the game open by outscoring Los Angeles 38-20 in the third quarter, during which the Lakers made just 8 of 24 field goal attempts.

Blazers 108, Warriors 103

Lionel Hollins scored 10 of his 22 points in the final period as Portland won for only the third time in its last 13 starts. Golden State has now lost eight of 10.

Carew Deal Said Nearly Ready

BOSTON (AP) — Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith awaited the New York Yankees' expected multiplayer offer today for batting star Rod Carew, who does not want to return to the Twins.

Although Yankees owner George Steinbrenner denied a deal was in the works, Yankees President Al Rosen confirmed on Thursday that the World Series champions have all but settled on a package for the seven-time American League batting champion.

"We have a pretty good idea of what we will offer," said Rosen at the Boston Baseball Writers 40th annual dinner, "but it hasn't been formalized yet."

Griffith, in Orlando, Fla., said the Twins have given the Yankees a list of several players — believed to include first baseman Chris Chambliss and outfielder Juan Beniquez — that the Twins want for Carew. The Twins owner said he would deal the batting star either to New York or the California Angels by spring training.

"Right now, I'm just waiting for an offer from the Yankees," Griffith said. "George Steinbrenner and Al Rosen promised they'd call me no later than Friday morning with their proposal."

Meanwhile, Carew, who thought he had negotiated a contract with the Angels, set a Feb. 10 deadline for escaping Minnesota and added that if no deal is made by then he would resign himself to playing another season for Griffith.

The perennial AL batting leader is not a free agent, but he has insisted he wants out of Minnesota because of contract and other disputes with Griffith. He could become a free agent after the 1979 season.

Carew was interviewed at halftime of the Minnesota-Purdue basketball game Thursday night, at which time he set his Feb. 10 deadline.

He also was asked if he preferred the Angels to the Yankees.

"Well, I do," he said. "I think it'd be hard to go to New York to play because there are so many distractions. Baseball is the way I make my living, and I don't want to take anything away from that...."

"I've been at Minnesota for 12 years and I don't really care for the city of New York," he added. "I've got three kids and it's a tough place to bring up kids. I'm looking for someplace that the environment's pretty good."

The Boston dinner attracted a crowd of more than 1,000 fans and a head table of stars that included newly elected Hall of Famer Willie Mays. It was notable for the private discussions between Steinbrenner and Rosen, who met in the Yankee owner's hotel suite to discuss their offer to Griffith.

Lose Game

E. B. Aycock's girls' basketball team fell to Kinston yesterday by the score of 50-44.

Sheila Powell paced the winners with 16 points and Terry Sims had 13. Aycock was led by Francis Barnhill with 16 and Maria Gray with 10.

Chargers Get Narrow Wins

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Griffon won a pair of thrillers over D. H. Conley last night, taking a 51-48 overtime victory in the girls' game and then winning the boys' game 51-50.

Conley's Glenda Greene hit a shot with about 15 seconds left in the fourth quarter of the girls' game to tie it at 44-44 and send it into overtime.

In the extra period, Aretha Cannon scored four points for the Chargerettes and Irene Lewis gave them the lead for good on a one-and-one with just seconds left.

Cannon paced Ayden-Griffon with 16 points, while Irene Lewis and Mary Rowe had 10 each. Greene scored 20 and Hardy 11 for Conley.

The boys' game was close all the way, but the Chargers were down by three late in the fourth quarter. Milton Cannon scored and Mike Hardee hit two foul shots with 51 seconds left to put Ayden-Griffon ahead.

Conley then got the ball and held it until the Vikes missed a shot with 20 seconds left. Ayden-Griffon got the rebound and Cannon hit a follow shot to put the Chargers up by three. The Vikings hit a last-second shot to cut the final margin to one.

Hardee had 15 points and Cannon 10 for the winners. Conley was paced by Shawn Little's 21.

Tankers Host UNC-W

The East Carolina men's and women's swimming teams entertain the University of North Carolina-Wilmington on Saturday in Minges Natatorium starting at 1 p.m.

The men's team easily defeated Richmond last Saturday, pushing their record to 3-2, while the women, who have not been in competition since Dec. 16, hold a 2-2 record.

Although UNC-W's swimming program is only in its second year, Pirate coach Ray Scharf feels the Seahawks will offer good competition.

"Their men are particularly strong in the sprints, butterfly and breaststroke, and these will be key events. The women should be evenly matched, although UNC-Wilmington may have a little more depth."

Three nationally-ranked swimmers lead the Pirates with John Tudor swimming in the 200-yard breaststroke and the 200-yard butterfly. Ted Nieman in the 200 freestyle and Bill Fehling in the 50 and 100 freestyles.

Kevin Meisel, Joe Kushi and Jack Clower missed the Richmond meet due to illness, but returned to practice this week and should be back in competition Saturday.

Two Games

BELHAVEN — Pungo Academy swept a pair of games from Pace Academy yesterday.

Pungo won the girls' game 42-10 behind Cindy Sawyer's 12 points. The score of the boys' game was 63-49 with James Fletcher scoring 14 for the winners. Pace was led by Crowell Pope with 15. Fred Pollard with 14 and David Davenport with 12.

Don't overlook those alternatives which offer you a slight extra chance. No matter how little added advantage it might be, it could spell the difference between making your contract and going down.

North-South bid well to reach a reasonable slam. Once South received spade support, he showed his second suit. North cue-bid his heart control, then affirmed his slam ambitions by jumping over game to five spades.

South needed no further encouragement. West made his natural lead of the jack of hearts, and declarer was quite happy with the dummy that came down. His only problem was in diamonds, and that would be solved if the suit broke evenly. So declarer won the heart, drew trumps in three rounds and then led the ace of diamonds and another. Unfortunately the suit split 3-1, and East cashed another diamond for down one.

Declarer might have expected a 3-1 diamond division—the most likely distribution according to the probabilities. If he had, he could have exploited the possibility of finding either defender with a singleton diamond honor to improve his chances for the contract.

After winning the king of hearts, declarer should have drawn two rounds of trumps, then cashed the ace of hearts and king of clubs. Declarer enters his hand with a third trump and clears the clubs, discarding three diamonds from dummy. The scene is set.

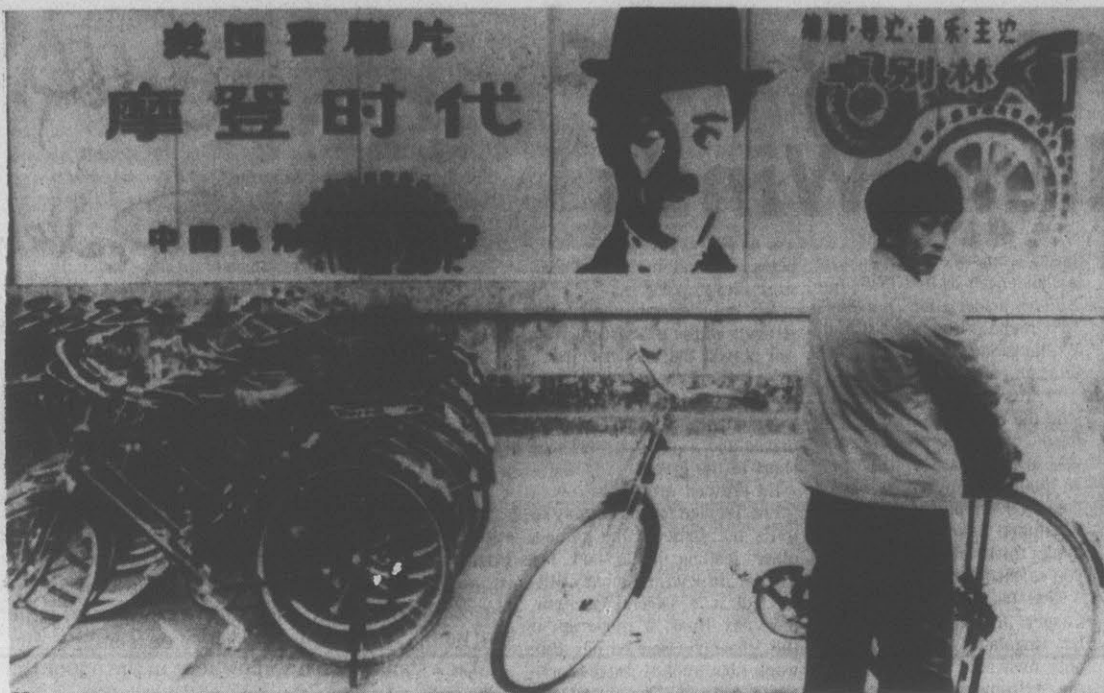

Now declarer leads a low diamond! As the cards lie, West wins the king and is forced to return a heart, which presents declarer with a ruff and sluff and allows him to get rid of his other diamond loser.

Notice that it is not necessary to find West with a singleton king for this play to succeed. Any singleton honor in either defensive hand will do the job, for if that defender is allowed to win the first diamond trick, he must concede a ruff-sluff. The only time declarer will be faced with a problem is if East can overtake West's honor and continue the suit. In this case, declarer will have to guess whether to rise with the ace in the hope diamonds are 2-2, or finesse East for the missing honor.

NBC Offers Four Comedies To Begin Midseason Replacements

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC, certainly in need of a few chuckles, lets loose four comedies tonight, its first batch of midseason replacements. A laughable collection, it is.

Hoping to grab one of the few evenings that's not already in ABC's pocket, NBC plans three hours of comedy to nail down the night's wandering viewers. This from a network that had only one comedy attempt in the first leg of the 1978-79, Joe Namath's misfortune, "Waverly's Wonders."

The show that replaced "Waverly" in November, "Diff'rent Strokes," starts NBC's comedy night, followed (not necessarily in order) by:

—"Hello Larry," McLean Stevenson's latest penance for leaving the successful CBS "M-A-S-H" series. In his third try since "M-A-S-H," McLean appears as a divorced father who has moved to Portland with his teen-age daughters.

McLean plays a radio talk-show host trying to cope with his daughters and spice up his show to please his producer. He gets a call from a teen-ager who wants to know if she should go all the way with her boyfriend, and advises yes. The caller, match, turns out to be his daughter, sending McLean into a sitcom tither.

If "Hello Larry" seems like CBS's "One Day at a Time" in pants, it is. Same folks behind both shows. But "Larry" has an added attraction: a fat guy, which allows the writers to throw in a few fat jokes with the sexual allusion jokes.

—"Brothers and Sisters," which had the good fortune of premiering immediately after the Super Bowl, is NBC's version of college humor as re-popularized by the movie "Animal House." Harmless young-folks-away-from-home stuff that ought to appeal to viewers who like "Happy Days." That's what NBC hopes, anyway.

—"Turnabout" is the best of NBC's comedy tries, mainly because it's the freshest. It's from the Thorne Smith story in which a husband and wife, grumbling about their humdrum lives, casually wish they could exchange places with one another. Little do they know that the funny statue they bought that afternoon works magic.

They awaken in each other's bodies, which is to say, the woman (Sharon Gless) takes on her husband's personality, and he (John Schuck) assumes hers. It's a tricky and sometimes confusing bit, but Schuck and Gless carry it off. And the writers know how to use a light touch.

—"Sweepstakes," an hour-long show about a $1 million lottery and the effect instant wealth has on the winners, was unavailable for preview.

Well, this is NBC's plan to capture Friday night's wandering viewers. Think I'll keep roaming.

Film Provides Shattering Tale

A few years ago, a TV commercial stated that if you were busted for drugs overseas, you were in for the ordeal of your life.

This commercial came to mind as I watched "Midnight Express," the powerful and intensely moving story of Billy Hayes, an American youth arrested for possession of hashish at Istanbul's airport in 1970.

The true story of the horrifying years Hayes spent in Turkish prisons is one of the most shattering and exhausting movie experiences imaginable.

Billy, a first time offender, was used as a scapegoat to serve as an example to all Americans.

He underwent a totally unjust trial, represented by lawyers obviously more interested in the system than the interests of their client.

Brad Davis as Billy Hayes dominates the film with a stirring and emotional performance, possessing that rare quality of becoming the character he portrays.

"Midnight Express" has some beautifully tender moments in the scenes between Hayes and his father and Hayes and his girl friend. The undying support and understanding Billy received from his parents is a strong point in the film's story line.

The movie shows too that Hayes was endowed with an almost inhuman courage which never weakened during his long ordeal. Brutality and scenes of homosexuality in the film are necessary to tell Billy's story in its full complexity. It is a film for mature audiences.

The fact that this film was shown in October of 1978 to Turkish government officials and in turn prompted a negotiation for exchange of U.S./Turkish prisoners speaks for this powerful film.

"Midnight Express," directed by Allan Parker, is now playing at the Buccaneer Movies.

Heating Fuel Use Is Reduced

According to information released by George Laws, Pitt County Schools Energy Control Officer, county schools using fuel oil for heat had an average use reduction of 29.7 percent through Jan. 19, saving the schools an approximate $8,769.18.

Bethel Elementary (52 percent), Belvoir Elementary (41 percent), Wellcome Middle (41 percent), G. R. Whitfield (30 percent), Ayden Elementary (25 percent), Chicod (25 percent), Stokes Elementary (23 percent), Farmville Middle (23 percent), A. G. Cox (21 percent), Falkland (20 percent), Ayden Middle (17 percent), and Pactolus (4 percent) all showed reductions in fuel use from last January.

From July to December, all schools besides the four high schools showed electrical use reduction as compared to the 1977 year, except for Wellcome Middle (32 percent up) and W. H. Robinson (34 percent up).

Electricity consumption for the four high schools was down in December. Farmville Central showed a 21 percent reduction, followed by Ayden-Griffith with 15.4 percent, North Pitt with 13.8 percent and D. H. Conley with 9.3 percent reductions.

Comparing the electric use consumption for the first half of school year (July 1977-Dec. 1977 and July 1978-Dec. 1978) all high schools showed a reduction, with Ayden-Griffith leading the way with a 16 percent reduction. Farmville Central and North Pitt both showed six percent reductions. D. H. Conley had an eight percent reduction.

"Despite increasing electric costs, the county school system was able to spend $1,253.30 less in the last half of 1977 than in the last half of 1978 for high schools," stated Laws. "A cost avoidance figure would show even greater savings."

Trash Fuel Under Study

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The feasibility of converting garbage to marketable fuel in the Piedmont Triad is the subject of a federally-sponsored study.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has given DSI Resource Systems Group of Boston $27,000 for the study, which began last week and should be finished by June.

In a garbage-to-fuel system, trash is shredded and converted into a fluff-like material that can be burned when mixed with pulverized coal.

High Point already shreds its garbage, and Greensboro plans to install a shredded soon.

John L. Culp, a vice president of the consulting firm, said Duke Power Co.'s Belews Creek Steam Station near of Winston-Salem could be a prime market for processed waste that is now going into landfills.

Duke has expressed interest in the plan, and Resource Systems is trying to determine if there are other potential markets, Culp said.

Although converting solid wastes to fuel or burning it in incinerators to generate electricity is being done successfully in some cities, Culp said it may not be economically feasible in the Triad.

"One thing that may not make it feasible is that you still have relatively cheap energy down there and there is not an acute landfill problem," he said.

But Culp said that rising energy and land costs may make converting trash to fuel as cheap as burying it in five to 10 years.

Robert H. Davis, Winston-Salem's sanitation superintendent, said the city can now bury garbage in the landfill for about $3 to $3.50 per ton.

The cost of processing garbage into marketable fuel would probably cost $10 to $12 a ton, Culp said.

He added that it would probably take about five years for the area to develop a system to convert trash into fuel.

Solve Winter's T-Shirt Design

CHICAGO (AP) — What does an honest T-shirt peddler do when business dries up in the dead of winter?

Scott Bellak, 19, of Des Plaines, said he and six fellow T-shirt peddlers solved their winter problems with "Blizzard of '79" T-shirts.

The shirts feature a scene of snow-clogged, downtown Chicago with several shovels lying in heavy snow at the base of skyscrapers.

Across the front is printed: "Blizzard of '79. Dig it."

Bellak said Wisssh Inc., the T-shirt corporation that employs him, has sold about 2,200 of the blue and white shirts since its seven salesmen took to the streets last Friday.

"Most people think it's a cute idea," he said. "But some people say they don't want to buy them, because they don't want any more reminders about the snowstorm."

Within guidelines KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority says an arbitrator has ruled in favor of its pay offer giving 14,000 white-collar employees an average 6.5 percent pay hike — 1.6 percent below their demands.

Jay Solomon Appointment Underlines The Pitfalls

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the strange case of Jay Solomon, President Carter has discovered once again the pitfalls in moving a presidential appointee out of a job.

Last Friday — only a week after the abrupt firing of Bella Abzug as chairman of a presidential advisory commission on women — Carter ran into a new personnel problem with the head of the General Services Administration, which manages the government's buildings and is the central purchasing house for government supplies.

The problem surfaced publicly last weekend when a reporter asked Solomon, a Carter appointee who helped launch the current investigation into allegations of GSA corruption, about reports that top White House aides were seeking his replacement.

Caught off-guard, Solomon said he had no intention of leaving his post and that he had not known that a successor was being sought.

Despite a flurry of statements about Solomon's status during the next several days, doubt remained at midweek as to whether Solomon was — or politically sensitive area that has worried some people in power.

Others suggested that administration officials were concerned about how GSA general counsel Irwin Borowski would act if he were named inspector general and given subpoena power under a new law enacted last October — as Solomon wants. One source said Borowski had talked of issuing dozens of subpoenas if he became inspector general.

Borowski is Solomon's first choice to become inspector general and some sources say the GSA chief's insistence that the former Securities and Exchange Commission lawyer be appointed led to his own job difficulties.

Borowski was reportedly considered "too aggressive" by some elements of the administration, and the position of inspector general has not yet been filled.

The administration denies that concern about the GSA investigation was a factor in the decision to seek a new GSA head.

Instead, the White House has depicted the replacement of Solomon as an innocent attempt to meet the GSA chief's expressed wish to leave his post early this year.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said the search resulted from Solomon telling the president last fall that he wanted to leave the GSA job early in the new year.

The confusion over Solomon's job status prompted a 45-minute meeting between the GSA administrator, and President Carter on Monday. However, that meeting, apparently designed to clear the air, led to a series of conflicting statements that left Solomon's job plans in even greater doubt.

After the meeting, Powell told reporters that the president had expressed confidence in Solomon's handling of the GSA investigation, but added that Solomon still planned to leave sometime in the first half of the year.

However, Solomon then issued a statement saying that he intended to "see through" the investigation which will clearly not be completed in the next few months. Solomon's statement was later revised to say that the GSA head would stay until the probe is on a "firm footing", and that he would leave in a few months.

GSA officials also have wondered privately about the possible role of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. in the Solomon situation.

O'Neill was furious last summer when Solomon, with White House approval, fired Robert T. Griffin in another controversial Carter administration personnel decision. Griffin, a longtime top GSA official and an O'Neill political ally, was removed because, Solomon said, he was an impediment to reorganizing the scandal-plagued agency.

After O'Neill objected to the administration's "shabby" treatment of his friend, Carter relented and appointed Griffin as assistant to U.S. trade negotiator Robert Strauss.

Despite published reports that Carter's congressional liaison Frank Moore informed O'Neill one month ago that Solomon would be leaving in May, spokesmen for both the speaker and the White House say O'Neill wants no input in selecting Solomon's successor.

Sponsor Dinner Sale Saturday

FOUNTAIN — The Fountain Jaycees and Jayettes will sponsor a barbecue chicken dinner Saturday, Jan. 27, beginning at 11 a.m. at the Fountain Fire Department.

The proceeds will go to the Fountain Rescue Squad. Plates will be $2.50 each for a quarter of a chicken.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 27, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Morning is a vital time for you to get yourself in good shape for whatever practical ideas you wish to put into motion. Later you find it possible to get involved in new and more up-to-date activities and to make them an integral part of your present existence.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get in touch with bigwigs and gain their support for projects at hand. Later attend worthwhile social functions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find a new way to gain greater abundance in a most intelligent way. Make sure you carry through with what an official expects.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle responsibilities and then contact interesting modern-thinking persons. Be wiser in the handling of money.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you support an associate's ideas, you can later reap fine benefits too. Make mutual plans workable, practical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Complete work that you have not finished. Then have discussions with associates and improve mutual operations. Follow through with what is expected of you by others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how you can have greater happiness and success in the future. Put talents to work. You can make this a fascinating day and evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy early and handle duties ahead of you and for kin as well. Later, find the recreation you like. Show you are a devoted family member. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get the data you need that will be helpful in dealing with others better. Show appreciation to those who are loyal. Evening can be wonderful with family and friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Analyze home matters well then handle business matters intelligently. Be with individuals who can assist you in achieving greater success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You find it easy to gain goals that mean much to you in the morning. Later, get records and reports in good order. Consult with advisers who can help to improve finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make plans early for the future and then give your attention to personal affairs. Talk ideas over with associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think how to keep friends you like in the future and forget the others, then make plans far into the future confidentially. Get rid of whatever is obsolete about you later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be very practical from earliest youth, so give good training, a fine education along such lines and teach to use more modern methods for best results. Then by combining the old with the new, there can be a tolerable amount of success here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Dedication

KINSTON — Gov. Jim Hunt and State Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw will participate in dedication ceremonies for the new terminal building at the Eastern Regional Jetport here Friday.

"We are pleased to take part in the airport terminal dedication," Bradshaw said, adding that, "in developing a comprehensive transportation program...we recognize the rapidly expanding role of aeronautics and the need for facilities to provide services in this area."

The North Carolina Aeronautics Council will meet at the new terminal at 1 p.m. and then attend the dedication of the $2.1 million building, which includes 26,000 square feet of space.

In addition to the council meeting and terminal dedication, Department of Transportation staff members will conduct the first of 14 public hearings to solicit citizen input in the development of the State's Transportation Improvement Program for aeronautics and public transportation.

The aeronautics and public transportation hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Lenoir Community College.

DOT officials emphasized that Transportation Improvement Program hearings on the highway system will be held at a later date.

Transportation Board Hearing

The Department of Transportation will hold a hearing in Kinston, February 2, to solicit input from individuals, local officials and county leaders in the annual update of the State's Transportation Improvement Program (TIP).

The TIP, which includes aviation and public transportation, as well as highway projects, is the basic planning document for the Department of Transportation that balances anticipated revenues against estimated project costs.

The hearing in Kinston — one of 14 scheduled throughout the State during February and March in each of the 14 Highway Divisions — will be held at Lenoir Community College, Room 102 and 103, at 7:30 p.m.

The Kinston session is designed for residents of Division Two, which includes Pitt, Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Greene, Jones, Lenoir and Pamlico Counties.

Tom Bradshaw, Secretary of Transportation, said, "These hearings are part of our department's extensive effort to increase participation by North Carolina citizens in the transportation planning process."

"We encourage and actively seek public participation in developing a comprehensive transportation system..." Bradshaw emphasized.

Served As Page In Hunt Office

RALEIGH — A Greenville girl, Miss Sheri L. Howell, served as a page in Gov. Jim Hunt's offices here this week.

Miss Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Curtis Howell of 207 Kirkland Dr., is a junior at J. H. Rose High School.

Antenna Can Cause A Leak

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI)

— Television antennas can cause leaks if they are not properly anchored to the roof. A consumer guide to roofing says an antenna that is directly anchored to a vent without guy wires can vibrate enough to loosen the roof caulking and cause leaks at the flashing, the metal that joins skylights, chimneys, vents and other protrusions to the roof. A Consumer Guide to Roofing is free from CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482.

READY FOR DISRUPTORS

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese police believe as many as 10,000 student radicals may try to disrupt the seven-member financial and economic summit meeting in Tokyo in June, and will mobilize 25,000 men to protect the foreign leaders.
