On The $26 Million ECU Medical School Building

Construction Could Begin In March

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

In theory, contractors could begin work on the medical science building for the East Carolina University School of Medicine in March.

James J. Lowry, director of maintenance and operations at ECU said, "I would hope that we would be able to give contractors a starting date of March 15," although it could be as late as March 17 or March 19.

Lowry said a letter of intent has been sent to the contractors, but noted that it would be 3½ to four weeks before all the paper work associated with the awarding of the contracts for the $26 million building is completed. He explained that all the paper work involved has to be reviewed by the State's Property and Construction office and approved by the Attorney General's office.

Construction of the building is expected to take 3½ years, according to Lowery, who added, "we're hoping to have classes coming in in 1981...the latter part of August or the first part of September. We hope to have enough of it completed so we can start functioning," in the new facility by that time.

The medical science building will be located on a 40-acre tract adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, and will house the medical school's various departments, classrooms, laboratories and all support facilities.

The central portion of the 451,000 square foot facility will contain nine floors. The school's administrative offices and library will be located in a two-story wing at the front of the building, while an auditorium will occupy a one-story wing to the left.

Bids were received in December for the facility and were some 18 per cent over the budget. Dr. William E. Laupus, dean of the medical school, said efforts by university and state administration officials to negotiate with the contractors were concluded last week when agreement was reached.

Laupus explained that the cost of the project was brought into line with the budget by eliminating things that would have been completed but empty when the medical school moved into the building.

"No items were deleted that would affect the operation of the medical school in any manner," Lowry emphasized. "There was no square footage lost," he said, adding, "some areas will not be completed immediately," such as research labs. "No teaching facilities were interrupted in any respect."

Citing other cost reduction moves, Lowry said only two of three boilers planned for the building would be installed, "for a period of time," and only two chillers will be used where three had been planned. The door height was changed from eight to seven feet, he said, and where four major transformers were planned for the main building, only three will be installed because the research labs will not be completed.

"We'll have only one auxiliary generator instead of two," the official said, and, "quite a bit of built-in cabinet work and lab equipment was deleted for the present time."

Lowry added that fixed seating for the auditorium was also cut from the project. "They'll have to use regular chairs for the time-being," he said.

Even with the cuts that were necessary to bring the cost of the medical school's new home in line with the budget, Laupus said the facility will be adequate for up to 64 students per class.

The project will be by far the most expensive institutional type building ever constructed in Pitt County. The contracts will rank among the largest ever for an institutional building for the state of North Carolina.

The issuing of the building permit should place Greenville among the top cities of the state in new construction for the early part of this year.

U.S. Calls For Immediate Withdrawal

Chinese Invade Vietnam

By PAUL VOGLE

HONG KONG (UPI) — China invaded Vietnam along the length of their border Saturday with infantry, tanks and jet fighter-bombers and pushed six miles inside Vietnam. Vietnam appealed to the Soviet Union for help.

Announcing a "grave armed conflict" with Vietnam, the New China News Agency admitted for the first time its forces had entered Vietnam "to punish Vietnamese for repeated provocative actions."

NCNA said the Chinese troops would withdraw "after counterattacking the Vienamese agressors as they deserve."

The attack, reportedly at division strength, was announced by both China and Vietnam as well as the Soviet news agency Tass. Both Vietnam and China have accused one another of staging border raids for weeks following the Vietnamese-led invasion of Cambodia last Christmas.

(In Washington, the United States called on China to withdraw but coupled the appeal with a new denunciation of the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia. A State Department spokesman said Washington had been in contact with China, Vietnam and the Soviet Union.)

("We call for the immediate withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia and Chinese troops from Vietnam," a State Department spokesman said.)

The Vietnamese radio broadcast reported, "The Chinese power-holders are using a huge military force including infantry, artillery and tanks to open an invasion against our country along the whole border area."

Hanoi radio, quoting the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry, said, "The Vietnamese people and government earnestly call on the Soviet Union ... to strengthen solidarity with them, support and befriend Vietnam and ask the Peking authorities to stop at once their aggressive war against Vietnam."

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass reported in a dispatch from Hanoi that "Chinese troops launched a large-scale invasion of Vietnam" at 14 points along the 500 mile frontier between the China and Vietnam.

"Many Chinese soldiers have been killed and 13 Chinese tanks have been set of fire and destroyed," Tass reported. "Chinese armed forces captured a number of border communities. Fierce fighting is going on in all places."

Vietnamese military broadcast from Hanoi monitored in Bangkok said local Vietnamese provincial forces were fighting back, "destroying tanks and killing 250 Chinese soldiers in one battle alone."

"They are using long-range artillery to wantonly shell several towns and cities and populated areas to open the way for tanks and infantry to encroach deeply insider our territory," the Hanoi broadcast said.

There was no report on Vietnamese casualties.

The official Chinese report said the Vietnamese brought the onslaught on themselves.

"Today's grave armed conflict between China and Vietnam is wholly the making of the Vietnamese authorities acting contrary to the will of the Chinese and Vietnamese peoples," the New China News Agency said.

The Peking report said the Chinese People's Liberation Army (PLA) decided "to go into battle in order to punish Vietnamese for their repeated provocative actions and violence."

The Chinese Communist party's bulletin said Peking had no intention of occupying Vietnamese territory.

The New China News Agency said the Chinese forces had seen three Soviet advisers in a Vietnamese trench from which snipers blast "anything moving on Chinese territories."

The Japanese Communist party newspaper, in a report from Hanoi, said Chinese forces at one place penetrated 6 miles into Vietnamese territory.

The invasion had been expected by some Western intelligence analysts in retaliation for the Vietnamese-led invasion of Cambodia last Christmas, which drove out the pro-Peking Khmer Rouge government of Premier Pol Pot and installed a pro-Vietnamese regime.

Trustees' Resolution Calls For Fee Changes

by STUART MORGAN
Reflector Staff Writer

The East Carolina University Board of Trustees Saturday passed a resolution to reduce next year's student activity fees by $8.50 and increase student athletic fees by the same amount.

The resolution, which in essence transfers funds to the athletic department, will provide only one-half of the additional money needed to meet the predicted costs of supporting next year's athletic program, according to C. G. Moore, vice chancellor of business affairs.

As a result of changes in the provisions of Title IX funding which directs use of funds both for male and female athletic programs, an additional $140,000 will be needed in next year's athletic program, according to Bill Cain, athletic director.

Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, vice chancellor of health affairs, announced that if the UNC Board of Governors approves a resolution in March, ECU will have its first Ph.D programs by fall.

Dr. John Howell, vice chancellor of academic affairs, said of the 6,100 persons applying for admission to ECU for fall, 4,180 had been accepted. Of that number, Howell predicted that 2,480 will actually attend.

Howell further said next fall's enrollment of full-time students will be around 10,800. He added if part-time students are added to the figure, around 12,200 students will be enrolled in the fall semester.

Howell pointed out that of the students attending ECU each year, from 10 to 12 percent are from out of state.

The board of trustees also recognized the distinguished service of Dr. John B. Davis, ECU math professor, who died January 13. The board afterwards extended its condolences to Dr. Davis' wife.

Chairman Troy W. Pate announced that John F. Minges had been recently named citizen of the year for Pitt County by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

$5.8 Million Robbery Suspects Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal agents and local authorities Saturday arrested two men in connection with the $5.8 million Lufthansa robbery at Kennedy Airport last December, the largest cash heist in U.S. history.

An FBI spokesman would not say whether they had recovered any of the $5 million in U.S. currency and estimated $850,000 in gold, jewels and pearls taken in the pre-dawn raid on Dec. 11 at the Lufthansa cargo hangar.

The spokesman identified the two suspects as Peter Gruenawald, 39, of Levittown, N.Y., a cargo traffic division operator for Lufthansa at Kennedy Airport, and Angelo John Sepe, 37, whose employment was not known, of Queens, N.Y.

The FBI said Sepe was charged with theft from an interstate shipment, which carries a maximum penalty of 10 years and a $5,000 fine; a federal extortion charge, which has a maximum penalty of 20 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine; possession of goods taken from an interstate and foreign shipment, and conspiracy the spokesman said.

Gruenawald was being held on a federal material witness warrant.

The spokesman said the arrests were the result of a joint investigation by the FBI with help of city and airport and U.S. Customs Service agents.

Four Die In Mobile Home Fire

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

Four persons died early Saturday morning when their mobile home burned near Winterville.

According to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, the three children and one adult were found in an end bedroom of the mobile home.

The investigator identified the dead as five-year old twin girls, Nana-etta and Rana-etna McLawhorn, and their two-year old brother William Earl McLawhorn, Jr. The adult was identified as William Earl Smith, 31, of Chapman St., Winterville.

Joyner said Mitchell McLawhorn, the children's uncle woke about 2 a.m. when he smelled smoke. He discovered that a two burner oil heater had apparently spilled oil on the floor and he tried unsuccessfully to extinguish the flames with water.

McLawhorn then tried to wake the other occupants, and ran to a nearby phone to call the fire department.

Joyner noted that the children's mother Ethelene McLawhorn, escaped without injury.

A passerby, identified as Rhett Raynor of River Bluff Apartments, Greenville, saw the fire and tried to gain entrance to the trailer but was driven back by the intense heat and smoke. Raynor was reported slightly injured.

Members of the Winterville Rescue Squad also responded to the call. The mobile home was valued at $9,000 and listed as a total loss. Investigation into the fire is continuing.

Commissioners To Meet Friday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Friday, to consider calling an election on by-the-drink liquor sales in the county.

Board chairman R. L. Martin announced the special meeting late Friday afternoon.

He said the February 23 session will be held in the law library of the Pitt County Court House, beginning at 10 a.m.

Martin indicated that meeting was scheduled, "for the purpose of giving consideration to calling an election," on the liquor-by-the-drink question, after receiving a resolution from the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce's Board of Directors requesting a referendum on the mixed drink question.

Commenting on the possibility of holding a referendum, Martin, 10 days ago, said, "if people in the county show an interest and want a referendum, we would act on it," at that time. "We just want to know there is some interest...there is no opposition on the part of the board."

Patricia Bath Is Ambassador

Patricia Bath, a junior at Rose High School, has been chosen by a selection committee of ten as the 1979 Greenville Community Ambassador.

Ms. Bath, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath, will represent the Greenville Community as student ambassador in a country to be named at a later date. She will have a host family overseas for the ambassadorial trip to be taken this summer.

Chief among her interests is music, and she is a violinist who has studied for several years with her mother, JoAnn Bath. Her father is a pianist and faculty member of the School of Music, East Carolina University.

The new community ambassador lists as other favorite activities ballet, studying, needlework, teaching violin to younger children, meeting people, and traveling.

Ms. Bath will be going to her host country on a $1,450 scholarship provided from funds raised locally for the Greenville Community Ambassador program — with any additional costs having to be provided by herself.

Last year's Community Ambassador was Jeen Kim, who visited with a host family in The Netherlands.

Plight Of VN Refugees Told

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis Star photographer Stormi Greener sneaked aboard the freighter Tung An one mile ashore in the Manila harbor and found 2,300 Vietnamese refugees — symbols of a generation of people displaced by war.

In a copyrighted story in the Minneapolis Star Saturday Magazine, Ms. Greener told today of what she saw with her eyes and cameras during her six hours in January aboard the boat stinking of sweat, rotting food and human waste.

The refugees were old, young, sick, bored. Some sat with their heads in their hands. Maggots burrowed into the cargo of flour and cattle feed. Mothers tried to rock their children asleep in the oppressive heat. In the hold, a small boy slept while flies lined the slit of his infected left eye.

Babies were crying. Even some of the older children wept as they sat alone, ignored.

There was scaffolding down one side of the Tung An, and refugees used it as a laundry area and toilet. The sea water below was covered with human excrement. Down the deck a ways, refugees used cans tied to ropes to pull up water in which they bathed.

The Philippine government provided food and drinking water daily. But the support pledged by President Ferdinand Marcos did not include letting the refugees off the Tung An at Manila. The government of the New Hebrides islands offered to take in all the Tung Am residents, but it was a fallow offer. The islands needed farmers and there wasn't a farmer aboard. The refugees on the Tung An were civil servants, businessmen, technicians. The adults had paid $2,500 to $3,000 in gold to get aboard the freighter. Most of the gold went to the Vietnamese government and the rest was divided between the ticket salesman, the ship's captain and his shipping line.

The fisherman who brought Ms. Greener and two other journalists to the freighter by canoe was to come back for them but he apparently was chased away by coast guard boats.

As Americans Fly Out, And More Generals Arrested

Most Iranian Oil Workers Are Back On Jobs

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — As nearly 1,000 Americans fled on emergency flights, most of Iran's oil workers returned to their jobs Saturday and the new Moslem regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini disbanded the Imperial Guards and arrested more top generals.

Oil workers, civil servants, money changers — even caviar sellers — heeded Khomeini's orders and returned to work Saturday in the first major test of Khomeini's authority since the 78-year-old Moslem leader seized power in Iran one week ago.

Government officials said up to 90 percent of the oil industry's 67,000 striking workers had reported back to their jobs.

Western oil sources confirmed there had been a return to work in the southern oilfields, where left-wing leadership has been strong, but doubted it was as extensive as the government claimed.

Hundreds of shops in the capital opened for the first time in weeks. Streets were clogged with traffic. The sprawling bazaar area, reputedly the largest covered market in the world, did brisk a business.

Long lines formed outside banks, but they had little cash for their customers.

Teachers returned to some schools, but virtually no pupils turned up in Tehran. Thousands of civil servants in government ministries reported back to their offices, now under the direction of Bazargan and his seven-man cabinet.

Saturday is a normal work day in Iran.

Iran Air, the national carrier, resumed flights within the country on a limited basis. The national railway system sold tickets in preparation for a resumption of schedules Sunday.

The return-to-work order was seen as a major test of the authority of both the new government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and Khomeini. It had been feared left-wing radicals would try to disrupt any major resumption of work.

In another attempt to secure its control of Iran after 15 months of anti-shah rioting and a bloody weekend rebellion that ended when the armed forces withdrew its support for the shah's appointed government last Sunday, the new Moslem regime announced it had disbanded the elite Imperial Guards.

Chief of Staff Gen. Mohammed Vali Qaraney, in his boldest move to date, ordered the immediate dissolution of the 15,000-strong Imperial Guard, the best trained and equipped unit in the Iranian army, and the integration of its troops into other infantry units.

The guard, elite of the elite in the 285,000-strong Iranian army, had been specifically formed and nurtured by the shah to protect the lives and property of the royal family.

The chief of staff also issued orders for the arrest of more top-level officers and military sources said another 20 generals were arrested Saturday.

Six former generals and government officials have been executed so far and reports Friday said another 20 were under death sentence.

A total of 882 Americans left Saturday on three flights — two Pan American World Airways Boeing 747s and a C-141 — bound for Frankfurt, Rome and Athens.

Hundreds more of the more than 7,000 remaining Americans planned to take additional airlift flights Sunday.

Bazargan earlier in the week said the two major priorities of his government were to restore law and order on the streets and to get the economy moving again.

Resumption of work in the oil industry, which provided $22 billion annually to Iran before the current troubles, was the most important result of the ayatollah's orders.

Until workers closed down the wellheads Dec. 27, Iran had been the world's second largest oil exporter.

East Federal Adopts Federal Stock Plan

The East Federal Savings and Loan Association board of directors has unanimously adopted a proposed Plan of Conversion to convert East Federal from a mutual association to a federal capital stock association, William W. Whittington, president, has announced.

It is the desire of the Association's board of directors to attract new capital to the association to increase its net worth, the availability of funds for residential lending purposes and to provide greater resources for purposes of expanding customer services, the announcement said.

The proposed conversion of East Federal will be accomplished under Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations authorizing federally-insured savings and loan associations to convert from mutual to stock form.

The conversion of East Federal is subject to the approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Washington, D.C. The conversion is also subject to approval by a majority of the votes eligible to be cast by association members at a special meeting where the proposed Plan of Conversion will be submitted for their approval. A proxy statement giving the full details of the plan will be sent to association members prior to the meeting.

Whittington said the normal business of East Federal in accepting savings and making mortgage loans will continue without interruption and that after conversion the association will continue to offer its customer services to savings members, borrowers and the public from its existing offices.

He foresaw no changes in present policies or management and savings accounts will continue to be insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. after conversion.

Members (customers) having deposits in East Federal as of Oct. 31, 1978, and other members, will be issued nontransferable subscription rights to purchase capital stock in the converted associaton. Information relating to the stock offering will be contained in the proxy statement sent to members of the association.

"A Good Samaritan"

Today in this confused system, it seems that everyone wants to always bring out the bad things that are occuring throughout the world. Do we ever stop to think, and appreciate the good, or give the praise and credit to the few who are doing so much to help those less fortunate.

Fellow citizens of Pitt County, once again I would like for you to pause for a few minutes, think, and appreciate an outstanding man in our community. He doesn't want any recognition for the countless good deeds that he does. In fact, most of the time, one gets the impression that he desires to be anonymous. There are times in everyone's life when everything seems to go wrong. You feel so alone, and your "so-called friends" are much too busy to step into the picture when you need them most. I have experienced this, along with my family. Sickness, sorrow, trouble, and despair, but when things seemed their darkest - there is one man who always came to my rescue - Mr. George Pugh - along with his wonderful wife Margie.

George doesn't do so much goodness for numerous people for fame, fortune or political standing. He does it because he is sincere and wants to help.

No words could ever express the thankfullness and gratefullness for such a man.

In conclusion, I can only say - May God's greatest blessings, happiness and love continue to abide with you forever. Lots of love and good luck to you - George and Margie and family.

Sincerely,
Paul H. Manning

Brushes Denials Aside

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, brushing aside Soviet denials, said Saturday it has "eyewitness accounts" of the Kremlin playing a questionable role in the slaying of kidnapped U.S. Ambassador Adolph Dubs.

The State Department stuck to an official American protest that strongly criticized the actions of Soviet advisers at the scene of the kidnap-slaying in Afghanistan.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher called in Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin Wednesday "to express in the strongest terms the shock of the U.S. government over the role played by Soviet advisers."

Dobrynin — in a return visit to Christopher Friday night — denied any Soviet responsibility in the fatal decision of the Afghan police to storm the gunmen holding Dubs captive.

Christopher, according to the State Department, replied by saying "the facts brought to Ambassador Dobrynin's attention two days ago were based upon eyewitness accounts from several U.S. Embassy officers."

Asked later to be more specific, a State Department spokesman said the eyewitness accounts "held us to question the role of Soviet personnel on the scene."

The State Department sent a "formal note" to Kabul Saturday "formally requesting a full report from the Afghanistan government on their investigation on Ambassador Dubs' death."

The body of the slain diplomat is scheduled to arrive Sunday at nearby Andrews Air Force Base and will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery Tuesday.

Mystery Youth In Lee Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Followers of the Lee Marvin property settlement trial were faced with a long weekend of speculating on the identity of the mystery witness who has given two days of testimony behind closed doors.

As the young, blond man was ushered out of Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall's chambers Friday, he continued to ignore questions from reporters in the hallway while he hurried down the corridor with Marvin's attorneys.

Marshall has said he will rule later on whether the secret testimony the young man has given will be allowed into evidence in the $2.8 million case brought by the Marvin's ex-lover, Michelle Triola Marvin.

"If it's not admissible, of course it will not be public," the judge said, just before the closed court session was adjourned until Tuesday.

Marshall has said the testimony the young man has been giving "is of a nature that I thought it would be best to have it in chambers."

Defends VISTA Funds

By DONALD LAMBRO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anti-poverty chief Sam Brown Saturday defended his policy of distributing VISTA training funds to public interest groups that engage in political activism and union organizing.

He maintained that although there have been abuses of the policy, it is right to channel funds to certain activist and grassroots groups.

"It's not clear where that line would be drawn," Brown said in an interview with UPI. "It's a very fragile, judgmental line."

The abuses of the policy found by House investigators, Brown said, "have been stopped and won't happen again."

The House Appropriations Committee has sharply criticized ACTION, which oversees the Peace Corps and VISTA, in a draft report of its nine-month investigation of the agency.

The report said investigators found instances of labor organizing, political lobbying and distribution of sometimes inflammatory activist literature — all financed with VISTA funds.

The House also found evidence of VISTA workers assigned to organizations involved in lobbying activities.

But Brown stressed in a letter to the appropriations subcommittee that investigators found "no evidence of fraud, no evidence of favoritism, no evidence of conflict of interest and no evidence of agency policies in conflict with congressional mandates."

VISTA is the domestic anti-poverty agency. Its National Grants Program distributed $4 million to grass roots organizing and activist training organizations during the past year.

Bond Referendum Approaching

In less than two months Greenville voters will be going to the polls to decide the fate of a $24 million utilities bond issue.

It is, of course, a lot of money — probably the most ever considered at one time by local voters in a bond election.

The needs of the city were outlined by the Utilities Commission and the City Council approved the necessary resolutions calling for the referendum.

Some $14 million of the funds will be earmarked for a 12 million gallon per day water treatment facility, plus elevated tanks and water storage capacity.

Another $5 million is for a new waste water treatment plant and sewer line extensions.

Finally $5 million will go for extending and upgrading the electric system.

The $24 million utilities bond issue is money that must be spent if we are not to find ourselves with real difficulties in the future.

It is also an investment, in that new customers will use the projected facilities and pay their share of the cost in utilities revenues.

J. Ed Waldrop has been named to head an information committee to explain to the public the need for the bond funds.

Every citizen should seek full information on the city's needs in the weeks before the referendum. Voting for so large a bond issue is not easy, but we think that anyone who examines the question will find that the proposed improvements are essential to our city.

A Delay, But Long Lines Still Likely

For motorists who had delayed getting their auto tags, the General Assembly had good news last week.

The law makers extended the deadline for displaying the 1978 license to Feb. 28. The extension was made because sales were so far behind last year's, presumably because of the snowy conditions of recent weeks.

Don't be surprised, though, if there are long lines of last minute license buyers on the new expiration date.

Ad Words With Meaning

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Looking at the 1979 series of travel advertisements for North Carolina, it's plain to see why the promotional material has been so widely honored in the trade.

One in particular has words which seem somehow ought to be part of state growth and development policy, not just copy in a tourism ad.

The scene is Mast Store in Watauga County. The ramshackle old frame building with outdated advertising signs and a front porch cluttered with apples and barrels and benches will remind Tar Heels of many such places.

"We've got some news for people who think the shopping center is a Twentieth-Century invention", reads the caption; then the copy talks about the old store with its post office, gas pumps, newspaper rack, and potbellied stove.

North Carolina, say the copywriters, has such places "where they seem almost instinctively to know that keeping pace with progress isn't at all the same thing as selling out to it.

"And, of course, North Carolina has kept pace. You'll find very modern stores and shopping centers. And some very modern hotels,.....

"Because, you see, it's really not that North Carolina is behind the times.

Principals, Too

When Larry Harding, member of the State Board of Education, decided to talk about evaluating teachers recently, he also included principals — some of them not really qualified to evaluate. "Perhaps it is this area that needs the most immediate attention," he suggested.

The way principals have been chosen is questionable, with improved preparation essential. "Unless we correct this, the principal could very well turn out to be the Achilles Heel in the evaluative process," Harding said.

BILL NOBLITT

"Far too often, we have elevated the football coach to the principal's chair. Occasionally, we have been lucky. What we often get is not a principal but a football coach or some other teacher sitting in a principal's office with no formal management training, few administrative skills, and the understandable inability to manage and evaluate properly....

Goofed Again

It started snowing about the time Gov. Jim Hunt was supposed to start speaking at a meeting of the North Carolina Employment and Training Council session the other day. Thirty minutes later, no Gov. Hunt in sight, the meeting began.

Walton Jones, deputy secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, was called to the telephone.

It was the governor calling from another state building several miles away. "Somebody had goofed. He went to the wrong place," Jones reported.

Hunt asked Jones what to do. "Go on with your important business ... go on to the office ... in fact, it would probably be best if you not come over here under the circumstances," Jones responded, anticipating a less than relaxed and cordial arrival.

Sunday Morning Notes

Superior Court Judge David E. Reid, Jr. of Greenville presides over court most weeks somewhere in North Carolina.

One of his first acts each week is to welcome the jury panel and instruct the members as to the duties of a juror during the week. He then must watch over the jury selection process for each trial and make certain that the jurors chosen to hear a case consider only the evidence offered in court.

That is the duty of every judge, but a couple of weeks back Superior Court Judge Reid found himself in a different position. Like so many of us, he received a summons for jury duty in his home county of Pitt.

And that's not all . . . Judge Reid served his week, including actually sitting on one jury.

"I thought it was a most valuable experience for me," Judge Reid said last week from New Hanover County, where he was again presiding over court.

He reported he had never served on a jury before, but since being on the Superior Court bench he had "had many occasions to deal with jurors . . . to help solve their problems time-wise," etc.

"Serving as a juror gave me an entirely new perspective on what's going on, and gave me a few ideas on how the court's time can be used more efficiently.'

"You have an entirely different view from the jury" than from the bench or as a lawyer, Judge Reid reported, and it often appears to the jury panel that much time is being wasted.

As a judge, Reid didn't really expect to be seated on a jury, but, he said, "I was surprised to sit on a case, and deliberated with the jury."

The case involved a larceny and aggravated assault charge and the verdict was guilty.

"I was asked to be foreman but declined," Judge Reid said. It was a capable jury panel and all participated in the discussion. The jurors were very attentive to the facts presented, considered the arguments of the lawyers and mitigating circumstances in the case.

"I hope my presence on the jury didn't intimidate any of the others," the juror-judge said. "I thought Judge Richard Allsbrook (son of Sen. Julian Allsbrook) did a fine job in presiding and in management of the court. I was favorably impressed with him."

Reid has been an attorney for 18 years and has served on the bench since Dec. 19, 1977.

Frigid Racing Test

By MARY LENZ
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Mushers who compete on a 1,049-mile, turn-of-the-century gold mining trail in the Iditarod dog sled race from Anchorage to Nome say there's nothing like it in the world.

"You're down there on the trail going as far as you can, as fast as you can," said Rod Perry, 36, of Chugiak, who has made the trek three times. "You don't worry about bills or world news, nothing.

"It's so free in a way and yet you're bound. You deal with different situations, different dog personalities, nature."

Starting Feb. 24 at 10 a.m., 53 men, two women and about 800 dogs will test their endurance in the race, which sometimes lasts up to three weeks. The fastest time recorded was 14 days, 14 hours in 1975.

The Iditarod is run in subzero temperatures across frozen tundra, through mountain passes and over ice-covered rivers the mushers use like highways.

"The dogs actually love to run," Ms. Friend said of her team of huskies. "It's even better than chasing cars. You could never force them to go 1,000 miles if they didn't want to."

Supplies and food are flown to 24 checkpoints along the trail. Veterinarians check the dogs at each point, and a musher may pass one to four check points per day.

Iditarod Trail Committee President Dick Mackey was among those who started the event in 1973. He won the race in 1978, beating 1977 champ Rick Swenson by one second.

He says the race has saved the Alaska sled dog from extinction.

THE GALLUP POLL

Fewer Look To Teaching

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Evidence that teaching is losing its appeal as a career choice among college students is clear from the latest Gallup Poll.

Today, 13 percent of college students across the nation say they would like to teach when they have completed their education — only slightly more than half the total, 23 percent, who had this occupational goal five years ago.

No doubt reports of high teacher unemployment or underemployment have affected the attitudes of students toward education, but the creation of new technologies in fields such as computer science is also an element in the decline.

Analysis of the findings by college class suggests that the ranks of trained teachers will decline in future years. While 19 percent of seniors and 14 percent of seniors and juniors, respectively, say they would like to teach, the comparable figures for sophomores and freshmen are just 12 and 11 percent, respectively.

One pattern regarding teaching has not changed, however, and that is its wider appeal among women. While 20 percent of college women want to teach when they have completed their education, only 8 percent of men desire to do so.

Behind teaching, business is the field with the next widest appeal on campuses today. Getting into "the business of America" is the career goal of 10 percent of college students. A greater percentage of men (12 percent) than women (8 percent) say they want to enter the business world.

Medicine Losing Appeal

One other broad field that may be losing its appeal is that of medicine. Today 7 percent of students say they would like to enter medicine as doctors, nurses, dentists, medical technicians and the like. Five years ago twice as many students, 14 percent, set their sights on medicine as their life's work.

Unlike the fields of teaching and business, there is no significant different in the number of men (7 percent) and women (9 percent) who want to enter medicine.

After medicine, the practice of law, named by 7 percent, and engineering and accounting (both named by 6 percent) round out the top five career choices of students. None of these three fields has gained or lost a significant number of students who wish to make them a career.

Analysis of current occupation choices among college students reveals that only 5 percent of students are currently unable to give at least some indication of their general occupation plans.

It should be remembered that these percentages represent intentions as of the time of interviewing and that changes in plans and job screening and economic trends are likely to substantially reduce or increase the numbers who wish to enter various fields.

This question was asked:

"What field or occupation do you plan to enter when you complete your education?"

College Student Career Choices

	All students	Men	Women
Teaching (college, high school, grade school)	13%	8%	20%

Other Editors Say Hosting Valenti

(The Laurinburg Exchange)

The film company now engaged in making a movie of the life of Thomas Wolfe chose not to establish their set in North Carolina. Executives said a spot in the Allegheny mountains of Pennsylvania is more fitting than anything they could find around Asheville, Wolfe's hometown.

This decision not only annoyed a number of influential North Carolinians, but it may have led Governor Jim Hunt to become more vigorous in his desire to attract motion picture producers to this state. The governor not only is supporting such an effort through the state's travel and tourism division, but he seems to be doing something about it.

Only a few days ago he entertained, in Raleigh, Jack Valenti, chief executive of the Motion Picture Producers Association.

Maybe attracting movie makers for an occasional production will be acceptable, but moves to lay out too much red carpet to movie moguls would create divisions among the populace.

It's more than a sound guess that most North Carolina tastes aren't too sweet toward today's movie industry. The industry has, under Valenti's leadership, degraded itself with its loose rating system, its obsession to bring "reality" to the public by the silver screen, and its insistence on portraying life as it isn't in so many North Carolina homes.

A little bit of movie making would certainly be tolerated. But, considering North Carolina's attractions, one may see how it wouldn't be too difficult to get an overdose.

40 Years Ago Today

February 18, 1939

Of the several proposed changes in the Greenville charter, only those with would make it the City of Greenville instead of the Town of Greenville and increase the pay of the members of the Board of Alderman from $70 to $120 annually were approved at a mass meeting in the courthouse last night attended by between 200 and 300 citizens.

W. G. Cherry, Jr., in charge of the local Employment Service, declared today that business conditions are picking up and more prople are taking advantage of the free services offered by the agency.

Cherry drew his conclusions from the fact that during the past 10 days, 20 private placemements had been made here, in addition to public placemements persons had found jobs on PWA projects.

Strength For Today

OPPORTUNITY TO GROW

The word liberty comes from a Latin word meaning free. But this Latin word is derived in turn from a Sanscrit word meaning "to grow up." Liberty, therefore, in its earliest context meant the opportunity to grow.

Liberty is one of the key words of religion. Both in the Old Testament and in the New the word liberty, or opportunity to grow, stands out as one of the promised blessings of faith. We are to know the truth and the truth will make us free. We are promised the glorious liberty of the children of God. Our Lord came to set at liberty "those that are bruised." St. Paul assures us that where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

To a world held in the bondage of sin, the Word of God cries out, "Proclaim the right to grow throughout all the land, to all the inhabitants thereof."

Competency Tests In Alabama

By DAVID PACE
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — As Alabama's largest single school district nears a showdown on teacher competency testing, the state's school children are bracing for a battery of tests that will mark the first step in Gov. Fob James' "allout attack on illiteracy."

The state Board of Education last week approved James' plan to test all 800,000 school children in Alabama to "take an inventory and find out where we are."

James' plans will parallel the student competency testing program that is being developed by a 100-member committee of educators and citizens. The committee hopes to administer the tests in seven pilot school systems this spring with an eye toward full implementation of the program this fall.

The utlimate goal is to have the state board require students beginning with the 1981 graduating class to pass a competency test as a prerequisite for graduation.

But the testing of students may be overshadowed by attempts at both the state and local level to evaluate teachers and gid rid of those whom state School Superintendent Wayne Teague says "cannot write a simple sentence or correct a fourth grade math test."

Alabama's first major battle over teacher testing could come as early as next week when the Mobile County School Board meets to hear its superintendent report on tests that could be used to measure teachers' literacy as well as their knowledge of their field of instruction.

More than 1,000 Mobile teachers, urged on by representatives of state and national teacher organizations, voted overwhelmingly Feb. 7 to defy any testing mandate from the local board. Their stand could have statewide impact, as Teague also is under instructions from the state school board to develop a plan to evaluate teachers.

The prime force behind the move toward teacher testing in Mobile is Dan Alexander, the county school board president who made a brief run for the U.S. Senate last year before withdrawing.

Alexander has predicted that no more than 30 percent of the county's 2,700 teachers could pass the National Teachers Examination, a standardized test.

And he said last week that if the board votes to require teachers to take a "basic skills" test and they refuse, he would recommend "without blinking an eye" that they be fired.

The confrontation in Mobile has brought into sharp focus the arguments on both sides of the teacher testing issue.

"The attitude of Alabama teachers is that they are totally and completely willing to be evaluated, but that's not synonymous with testing," said Dr. Paul Hubbert, executive secretary of the Alabama Education Association.

Hubbert said the teachers want their classroom performance to be evaluated by principals or supervisors rather than by "a paper and pencil test."

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

A wave of disappointment swept across the nation when the North Carolina General Assembly failed again to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. On the birthday anniversary of Susan B. Anthony, who led the fight to guarantee women the right to vote, it was discouraging to see the principle of legal equality fall at the hands of persons skilled in political manipulation. But there are encouraging aspects to this latest series of events in the struggle which has spanned over half a century.

The protestors against "universal suffrage" included many women. The claim of this group was that women shouldn't neglect their families to vote. Their husbands' votes could count for them. But last week, protestors against equal legal rights carried banners proclaiming that they believed in equal pay for equal work. To see the protestors espousing such a radical cause shows that progress is being made. These protesting women would, I believe, have been protestors of the efforts to give them the right to vote. Yet they now vote, many of them hold public office, and most people agree that women should have the right to participate in the government of their country.

In the long, tortuous series of events which humankind has endured to achieve dignity and worth of every human being, the concept of equal pay for equal work is truly revolutionary. It is not enough, but it is a step in the right direction. We no longer have, peasants, slaves, serfs, untouchables. One of these days, we will no longer have second-class citizens.

"Failure is impossible," Susan B. Anthony said when it seemed that women would never be given the right to vote. They did achieve that right. Many engaged in the struggle may not live to see the glorious day when all people achieve their birthright of legal equality, but as sure as spring follows winter, that day is coming.

To the editor:

Hello, parents of kids at Whitfield School:
Don't let anyone make you feel a fool.
Allow me a moment with each of you.
We must stick together in what we do.
Protests have been done too haphazardly.
Now let's band together in unity.
We all want the best for each girl and boy,
We want the best teachers we can employ,
Employ them we most assuredly do!
With taxes extracted from me and you!
We continue to pay through our noses
While everything's not coming up roses!
Now a word to those who run Whitfield School:
Don't cross me off as just another fool.
When a kid has problems, "It's sad," you plead,
Problems he creates are sadder indeed!
His actions just ask, "Which way do I go?"
Your inaction says loudly, "I don't know!"
He surely needs all the help love can bring,
But love spelled DISCIPLINE is the best thing.
It will drive out the evil in his heart,
It won't kill him, so give him a new start!

Merrilee Harrison
Rt. 3, Greenville

To the editor:

In the last several weeks, the N. C. Supreme Court has narrowed the gap considerably between themselves and Tennessee's ex-Governor Blanton in freeing convicted felons. Whereas the Governor has been accused of being a slight bit "tetched," the Court achieved the same results by meticulously following precedent set in the Miranda decision by the Warren Court.

With the exception of Marbury vs. Madison, perhaps no decision has come to pervade our lifestyles more than the Miranda decision. Based upon highly intricate interpretation of the Fourth and Fourteenth amendments, the Court overlooked overwhelming evidence of guilt and the unanimous decision of the jury to free Miranda. In short, the Court totally subjugated the spirit of the law to the letter of the law. Whereas the Warren Court erased any threat of "Star Chamber" tactics of precolonial days, the court also ended the Platonic notion laws attempt to achieve the perfect form of justice. Rather than a means to an end, the law was made an end in itself; guilt or innocence became a matter of secondary importance.

Only the victims of Miranda understood the immediate consequences of the Warren decision. Organized crime was quick to discover their new tool and "French Connections" flourished. Not since slave owner's "stood on their right" and their opponents "stood in the right" has such Talmudic reasoning obscured moral decadence. Such mentality presented the greatest obstacle to Jesus' ministry as he admonished his eventual executioners: ". . .you hypocrites! You. . .have neglected the weightier matters of the Law. . .justice, mercy, good faith. You blind guides! Straining out gnats and swallowing camels!"

History is pregnant for a review of Miranda. We have been too long with the maniacal legacy of the Warren Court. We have been too long "straining out gnats and swallowing camels." May the Burger Court deliver us!

Ordeal Of Hurricane Hazel A Vivid Memory

By NOEL YANCEY

(Noel Yancey retired recently after 39 years of covering North Carolina news for the Associated Press. In this column, he retells some of the big stories he recalls.)

I must have driven to the coast more than a dozen times to cover hurricanes, but Hurricane Hazel lingers in my mind as the worst by far. It claimed at least 18 lives in North Carolina, devastated the coast from Morehead City to the South Carolina line, left a path of destruction across the state and caused damage in the hundreds of millions of dollars with its fierce winds of up to 135 mph.

I first became personally acquainted with Hazel the night of Oct. 15, 1954 when my boss in Charlotte ordered me to head for Jacksonville, N.C. From there I was directed to Wilmington where the first effects of the storm were being felt. The wind had freshened up and it had begun to rain. The beaches were being evacuated and shelters were being set up in schools and other substantial buildings. I checked into a hotel, called in these developments to Charlotte, then the AP headquarters in the two Carolinas, and went to bed. Around 2:30 a.m., my boss awakened me and told me to get to Myrtle Beach.

It was dark, the wind was howling and it was raining in torrents as I drove to the South Carolina beach resort. I'll never forget a narrow escape I had at Shallotte. Someone backed an unlighted fire truck onto the highway just as I arrived. I had to swerve to the other side of the road to avoid it. It left me trembling.

It was beginning to get light when I drove into Myrtle Beach. After visiting a school being used as a shelter, I drove to the city hall where a command post had been set up. I collected what information I could get and called Charlotte. A staffer told me that the big storm, which had already left more than 100 persons dead as it ripped across Haiti several days previously, was poised to smash ashore in the Myrtle Beach area.

As the storm worsened, I continued to collect information and call Charlotte. We received word of houses being smashed along the beaches, portions of a fishing pier had been swept away, water had risen across U.S. 17 just north of Myrtle Beach.

As I was relaying this information to Charlotte, the telephone went dead. Somewhere probably, a tree had fallen across the telephone line. More reports of damage were received, and I prepared to drive inland about 12 miles to Conway to use the phone.

Meanwhile, back in Raleigh, my wife and small daughter were listening to the storm reports on the radio. Suddenly, she snapped to attention when the announcer exclaimed that the Associated Press had lost contact with its reporter Noel Yancey at Myrtle Beach. After hearing this report repeated a couple of times, Frances, my wife, called the radio station to inquire. She explained that she was not particularly worried about me but did not want anything to happen to the family car.

At Conway, I was able to relay more developments before the telephone line again went dead and I had to drive to Marion about 30 miles farther back from the coast to find a phone. After pausing at Marion to grab a bite of lunch, I drove back to Myrtle Beach where the storm was beginning to abate.

I found there had been extensive damage along the ocean front. The mayor estimated damage at Myrtle Beach at upwards of $5 million. By chance, I ran into a local reporter who had just driven down from the vicinity of the N.C.-S.C. line. He brought word that beach front property at Windy Hill, Cherry Grove and Crescent Beach had been smashed. He agreed to drive with me back to Marion to get the news to Charlotte.

The next day I drove north, checking the beaches as I went. I found the southeastern North Carolina beaches had fared as bad or worse as those in South Carolina. At Long Beach, only seven cottages out of 300 were left standing. It was the same story at Holden Beach and Ocean Isle. At Shallotte I learned that seven persons were dead at Ocean Isle. I was told that some of them had boarded the ferry to go to the beach the night before the storm and had ignored warnings that Hazel was coming.

Took Real Courage To Earn Title Of 'Cousin'

By GAIL MICHAELS

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Every summer my parents and I would leave the relative coolness of Virginia to journey southward to Louisiana, where we stayed with my widowed aunt and Cajun grandmother in their wooden shotgun house which, were it still standing, would be about 150 years old. It was called shotgun because you would enter the front room and continue in a straight line like a bullet until you reached the end of the house. That meant going through everyone's bedroom to get to the kitchen. The bathroom came last. It had a footed bathtub and leaned. There was also a back porch, and most everyone came in that way, past the wringer washer into the kitchen. The front room was hardly ever used except for company.

The year I turned nine wasn't much different from the others, except for that one day in August when I promised my cousin that I would go with him on the Zephyr. I knew the sign at the entrance to the giant roller-coaster said, "No One Under 12 Admitted," but they didn't mean it. Too bad. It would have given me an honorable way out.

I had plenty of cousins to share adventures with and there was a ferry boat about four blocks away from the house, beyond the levee, that would take us across the river to New Orleans. Usually we went to a show, or to the amusement park at Pontchartrain Beach. That's where my cousin Malcolm and I headed that fateful day. (It was still pretty safe in the early 1950's for kids to go places by themselves, but if my mother had known that we planned to ride the Zephyr, she never would have let me go.)

The powerful steam-propelled engine of the ferry boat was partially exposed on the lower deck where the cars rode, and we watched the great metal arms churn and chug like an oversized pedalling bicycle. We wondered if anyone had ever fallen into that mass of machinery and Malcolm described to me in horrible detail what would happen if anyone ever did. I pretended to throw up.

On the opposite bank we caught a trolley bus that hummed and criss-crossed its way through an insane maze of electric wires. It deposited us at the end of its current, and we made the last leg of our journey by regular bus. As it pulled into the entrance of Pontchartrain Beach my eyes saw only one thing — the outline of the Zephyr arching its way around the park. It was the biggest roller coaster I'd ever seen in my life.

My cousin dragged me up the ramp to where we formed the end of the line and, inevitably, it was our turn. Big hairy arms pushed down the safety bar that clanked shut with a certain finality and the cars moved forward. Our wheels caught and slowly we inched up the first incline, one click at a time.

I was about ready to cry, but stopped myself as I remembered that this was my big chance to earn the respect of my 13-year-old cousin. He liked me well enough, but being nine and a girl weren't exactly in my favor: he called me Squirt. I had to prove to him once and for all that I was worthy of more than that for a name, and for this cause I was prepared to die. At that moment, no one could have convinced me that I wasn't about to.

The first drop was incredibly steep, causing my legs to push heavily against the bar and my pigtails to fly straight up in the air. My scream hung over my head next to my stomach, catching up as we approached the next dip, but mostly it followed behind in ear-splitting protest.

When we finally pulled into the covered pavillion and I realized I was still alive, I was swept with a sudden elation. Malcolm released the safety bar and, as he prepared to leave the car, I surprised myself by saying, "Let's go again!"

The moment he agreed back came the same queasy feeling laced with terror and I wondered what had ever possessed me to say such a thing. Until he said, "You're all right, Cousin!" Cousin! Malcolm had called me cousin!

There was a death on the Zephyr that day. Somebody by the name of Squirt.

She lives on though, inside of me, along with the rich memories of lazy days childhood summers spent beside the Mississippi.

Company For Dinner Is An Unsolved Disaster

Having company for dinner is something I avoid like the plague. It's probably because when I have company for dinner, the dinner often looks like the plague.

Until recently on those few occasions when we did invite dinner guests, I always tried to be fancy. The last time I was fancy, I worked all day preparing chicken supreme crepes, I worked right up to the time I put the dinner on the table. I barely had time to greet my guests, much less to converse with them. And when I was finished, my chicken supreme looked like tuna noodle surprise wrapped in play dough and warmed over three times.

After that, I tried plain old down home cooking. And it did get some compliments. When Phillip's cousin, who works with Liggett, stared down at my spaghetti, he was positively awe-struck.

"Gee," he said, "Our plant's been looking for a new adhesive."

I didn't have dinner guests again for four months. And when I did get up the nerve to invite someone, it was Phillip's sister. I figured if worse came to worse, we could feast on take-out pizza.

But on the morning of the planned fiesta, she called. "I really hate to do this to you, but can I bring a friend?"

"Uh, sure," I gulped. What did it matter that Meg was running a 102 degree temperature, had melted permanently around my leg, and was emitting a low persistent whine that sounded like an off balance washing machine? The menu would just have to be ultra simple and fixahead.

I decided to bake three vegetable casseroles and a ham. After all, what could go wrong with a ham? I would just stick it in the oven for two or three hours, and I'd have a perfectly good meal.

Since the casseroles needed to be cooked at a much lower temperature than the ham, I prepared them early in the afternoon. Dinner perparation went pretty much as usual, if you could call chopping onions with 34 pounds of dead weight fastened to my hip normal. I burned three fingers on one hand while trying to move a hot pot without a pad, and a soup can lid gashed three fingers on the other hand while I was stuffing the garbage into the trash can with my fist. The tops of all the casseroles burned because the oven doesn't work right, but by 4:00 I had scraped them all, and they were sitting on a warming pad waiting to be served at my convenience.

Then I put the ham in the oven and set the timer for three hours.

Fifteen minutes before our guests were due to arrival, I was worn out but confident.

"I really think I've found the formula for success," I told Phillip as he walked in to the bedroom. "I'll even have time to get dressed and dust the living room to boot, if you'll just check on the ham."

"I already did," he said. "You forgot to turn on the oven."

In Washington The Question Is — What Next?

BY JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, Va. — J. Taliaferro Spelvin, the Rappahannock County countryman, telephoned the other day to say that he had discovered the one eternal question by which life is lived in Washington, D.C. It is not, as Adlai Stevenson once believed, "How long, O Lord, how long?"

No, said my friend. The eternal question is, "What next?"

J.T., as he is widely known, had gone into Washington in the hope of exchanging a few words with his secret inamorata, Lauren Bacall. She was autographing her book at a bookstore near the White House, but the line of customers was so long that J.T. gave up. He dusted the snow off a bench in Lafayette Park and sat down to contemplate the news.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, he noted, is seeking comments on its new standard for walk-behind power mowers. The standard would add significantly to the weight, breadth and clumsiness of such mowers. At a time when the government's policy is to hold down price increases on consumer products, the standard would add $35 to the price tag of a typical lawnmower.

An item from the Department of Labor caught his eye. A grant of $140,000 had been awarded to a group of bold entrepreneurs in California to make a census of the Samoan population in Orange County. The study was four months overdue and the chief entrepreneur had vanished, reportedly to his former home in Samoa. What next? Spelvin inquired of the pigeons in the park. What next?

The National Science Foundation, he learned, has earmarked $45,000 in tax funds for a study of the noises made by ground squirrels in distress. Another grant will provide $2,360 in tax funds for a study of the sex life of Costa Rican crickets. "Aaargh!" cried Spelvin, making the noises of a taxpayer in distress.

My friend was briefly comforted by a report that computers in the Office of Education had rejected 876,000 of the 3.5 million applications received last fall for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants. The problem, it appeared, was that the application forms were so infernally complicated that a fourth of the high-school graduates could not follow the seven pages of instructions.

"The government is awfully uptight about television," J.T. reported. "There was that $220,000 grant to teach college students how to watch Howard Cosell. The Federal Trade Commission is up to its ears in its assault upon commercials aimed at children. The Federal Communications Commission is praying over a nationwide program to teach consumers how to turn their TV sets off and on. The Commission on Civil Rights has just released a report denouncing a trend toward 'jiggly' portrayals of women in prime-time programs."

Spelvin said he tried to learn what the Federal Trade Commission is up to, but he abandoned the effort. The FTC is up to everything. The FTC is chasing madly after vocational schools, hearing aids, funeral directors, used cars, doctors in general, plastic surgeons in particular and the manufacturers of Formica. The FTC is planning training seminars in six cities, at which 50 consumer activists at a time will be trained in how to get paid for testifying in FTC proceedings.

"I get a dizzy feeling every time I go to Washington," J.T. complained. "I read about some dang fool waste of my money, and I say to myself: That's it. That is the absolute utmost, the apex, the Mt. Everest of lunacy. Then I turn the page and I find something sillier."

It's not only the executive agencies that keep his adrenals pumping. Spelvin said he was about to abandon his park bench in the hope that he might yet approach Ms. Bacall when one more item caught his eye. Up in the Senate, he perceived, the beleaguered Republic of China had found two new and influential friends. Who was whooping it up for the security and prosperity of Taiwan? Senators Frank Church and Edward Kennedy! In a strangled voice, he once more inquired aloud, "What next?" Then he came home.

Budget Creates Problems For 82nd Airborne

By GENE WANG
United Press International

Budget problems have caused a reduction in training for the 82nd Airborne Division, the nation's most combat-ready soldiers, and could affect their readiness for battle, according to Fort Bragg commander Lt. Gen. Volney F. Warner.

AMBASSADOR'S HONORS — Casket of slain U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan Adolph Dubs is escorted to White House aircraft by U.S. Embassy officials, Marines and Dubs' widow, Mary Anne, background in white coat, during ceremony in Kabul, Afghanistan, Saturday. The ambassador will be buried Tuesday in Arlington Cemetery. (AP Laserphoto)

Warner, the commanding general for Fort Bragg and the XVIII Airborne Corps, which includes the 82nd Airborne, says the situation is not yet critical, but could be if Congress fails to pass a supplemental defense appropriations bill by July.

"It's a grim picture for the last quarter (July, August and September) if Congress does not pass the supplemental budget," he said. "We'll have a definite handle on how bad it is next quarter."

With the current fiscal year one-third over, Warner said Fort Bragg has spent about 57 or 58 percent of its budget.

As a result, Warner says all training maneuvers west of the Mississippi River have been cancelled and artillery batteries now take only two of their six cannons to the field to practice.

Stringent restraints have been placed on fuel consumption and one battalion recently hiked 25 kilometers into the field instead of being transported there for maneuvers.

The budget squeeze arose for two reasons — transfers from Fort Bragg's budget late last year by the Army and what amounts to a reduction in the base's budget caused by inflation, Warner said.

The 82nd Airborne, often referred to as America's Guard of Honor, is considered the Army's first line in any conventional warfare situation.

One of its three paratroop brigades is in an advanced state of readiness at all times and must be capable of departing for a destination anywhere in the world on 18 hours notice. In addition, there is always one company prepared to leave on three hours notice.

The division's brigades alternate the ready duty while the remaining two undergo training and schooling.

Members of the division were alerted last summer when a rebellion broke out in Zaire and the Carter Administration contemplated the use of troops to aid in the evacuation of Americans from the African nation.

Some troops from the 82nd were also sent to Guyana last year to assist in removing the bodies of over 900 members of the Peoples Temple cult who committed suicide at the instructions of their leader, the Rev. Jim Jones.

Warner said the budget cutback at Fort Bragg has forced him to eliminate over 260 civilian jobs at Fort Bragg by Sept. 1. Earlier reductions have already resulted in soldiers between 900 and 1,200 soldiers being diverted from military duties to jobs such as lawn mowing and snow shoveling, he said.

Guerrilla Camps Blasted

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian jet warplanes blasted black guerrilla camps in neighboring southern Zambia Saturday in what the military command described as strikes against insurgents preparing to enter Rhodesia.

A military spokesman said the strikes were launched as "part of an ongoing exercise" aimed at disrupting insurgent activities, and not in reprisal for Monday's terrorist downing of a civilian Air Rhodesia airplane in which all 59 persons aboard died.

Patriotic Front co-leader Joshua Nkomo said the civilian aircraft was shot down by members of his Zimbabwe Peoples Revolutionary Army who believed Rhodesia's supreme military commander, Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, was on board.

There were no immediate reports on the number of installations hit or casualties inflicted in the attack in the Livingstone area of Zambia, Rhodesia's southern neighbor. Livingstone is located four miles west of the Zambezi River, which divides the two countries.

A military communique said all Rhodesian aircraft returned safely to their bases.

The communique said that "recent intelligence showed that a build-up of terrorists was taking place preparatory to infiltrating into Rhodesia."

It said the air strikes were confined to guerrilla "holding camps" outside the town of Livingstone.

The strikes were the first into Zambia reported by the military command since Dec. 22, when ground and air forces hit several camps and, at one of them, freed 33 black Rhodesians from guerrilla captivity.

Before the December raids, ground and air forces carried out strikes into Zambia in late October and again early November in retaliation for the Sept. 3 downing of a Viscount by Patriotic Front guerrillas.

Since Monday's crash of the Viscount, senior government officials have said that reprisals would be carried out again but that these will take time to plan.

Mardi Gras Carnival Idled By Police Strike

By PETER FINNEY Jr.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Scores of disappointed tourists Saturday gathered around gaily decorated Mardi Gras parade floats idled by a police strike that has forced cancellation of early carnival activities.

Mayor Ernest Morial said the stike could wreck the entire Mardi Gras season, which contributes an estimated $250 million to the city's economy each year.

"It's something we came a long way to see," said Mrs. Jay Vintar as she looked at the festive floats of Mecca-Hestia, which was scheduled to parade Saturday night. "It's something we've looked forward to for a long time. It's something which should not be given up."

The cancellation was the first time Mardi Gras festivities have been called off since the Korean War and only the twelfth cessation since New Orleans began holding the pre-Lenten festivities 199 years ago.

But Gov. Edwin Edwards, who dispatched about 1,100 National Guardsmen and state troopers to the city to keep order, told Morial no other police agency could control the million-plus crowds of Mardi Gras like New Orleans police. He suggested parades be canceled if police walked out, and Morial concurred.

Nine city parades this weekend were canceled and others were shifted to the suburbs where police could provide adequate protection.

Several parade organizations, called "krewes," asked neighboring Jefferson Parish to let them roll in that area, but sheriff's deputies said they could not handle the additional assignments.

About 20 suburban parades will roll as scheduled.

Morial said he would not permit parades to move through New Orleans until the police are back on the streets.

No negotiations were scheduled to end the strike, the second by New Orleans police in eight days. The first ended with a one-week interim agreement but talks on a final accord broke down Friday.

Riot-trained National Guardsmen, carrying M-16s and bayonets, stood watch for vandalism outside public buildings. The state troopers patrolled the streets, sometimes with those city policemen who remained on duty, answering emergency calls.

Although two homicides were reported overnight, police said the crime rate was about normal. Police said 38 patrol cars were out overnight and 68 were on duty by Saturday morning.

Investigation Underway

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board has begun an investigation of the near collision of two planes on a runway at O'Hare International Airport and the air traffic controllers involved have been suspended, an NTSB spokesman says.

No details were available on how many controllers were suspended because of the near-collision Thursday.

Authorities said the near collision occurred when a Flying Tiger Airlines 747 landed while a Delta 727, with 115 persons aboard, began crossing the runway on the way to its takeoff point.

The pilot of the 747 swerved off the runway to avoid a collision and the jumbo jet plowed into a snowbank, tearing off its nose landing gear, an engine, and part of its main gear. A second engine was damaged, authorities said.

None of the six persons aboard the cargo plane was injured. The passenger plane was undamaged and left on time.

Alcoholic Who Froze Denied Admittance To Dix Hospital

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A 38-year-old alcoholic who froze to death in an abandoned ball park was twice refused admission to the state's Dorothea Dix Hospital in the two weeks before his death despite legal committment orders.

Norman Lee Wells, a homeless alcoholic, was found dead at Devereauz Meadow on Feb. 11. Interviews with police officers showed that Wells was refused admission to the Dorothea Dix detoxification program on Feb. 4 and on Jan. 29. Because of similar cases, a spokesman for United Health Services in Durham said it plans to ask the General Assembly for $3 million to establish detoxification centers at each of the state's 42 area mental health clinics. Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, has agreed to sponsor such a bill, said the health services group, a non-profit organization for the prevention and treatment of alcholism.

Dr. Jesse Samuels, a doctor at the Wake Medical Cenyer emergency room, said he examined Wells the night of Feb. 4 and decided to committ him to Dix. In a request for involuntary committment, Samuels said Wells had been drinking steadily for a week, was dehydrated and had bronchitis.

Dr. Margaret J. Dorfman, the Dix physician who examined Wells, said in a report that Wells admitted drinking four quarts of wine a day, but denied having any homicidal inclinations. She refused Friday to comment about the examination.

Aubrey G. Trolley, director of Dix, said a large number of cases similar to Wells' are turned away because the hospital is phasing out its detoxification program.

"Unless there is some unusual circumstance, our policy is to refer the patient to the local program," Trolley said.

Raleigh police officer Mary M. Muhlig, who had taken Wells to Dix, said the Wake County Alcoholism Treatment Center also refused to admit Wells.

Franklin Ingram, director of the treatment center, said the center had no record of the call. But, police contended that a member of the center's admissions staff said Wells had been through the program five or six times and the center's staff didn't feel there was anything they could do for him.

So, Wells was let off on a Raleigh street corner.

On Jan. 29, after Dix officials refused to admit him, Wells was also let off on a streetcorner. On that day, Dr. R. Tempest Lowry, a doctor at the Wake Medical Center, had signed a petition for involuntary committment of Wells at Dix, saying he was imminently dangerous to himself and others.

Anthony D.M. Mulvihill, executive director of the United Health Services of Durham, is behind the legislative move to change the way the state handles drunks.

Mulvihill said his organization has prepared a bill to set up a system for caring for drunks. They can no longer be thrown in jails because the Legislature decriminalized public drunkenness last year.

The bill would propose $3 million next year to set up nonmedical detoxification centers at each of the state's 42 area mental health clinics.

In the following fiscal year, which begins July 1, 1980, $6 million would be transfered to the new centers from the budgets of the four state pyschiatric hospitals.

Only One Collision

A vehicle driven by Alison Henri Block, 66 Barnes St., and a vehicle driven by JoAnn Fields Moye, 1805 Hopkins Drive, collided Thursday about 8 a.m. at the E. Tenth St. intersection beneath College Hill Drive. However, no injuries were reported.

Damage to the Block vehicle was estimated at $1,800 and damage to the Moye vehicle at $750. Block has been charged with a safe movement violation.

Death Toll Now At 44

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The death toll from a mysterious blast in a crowded central Warsaw savings bank has risen to 44, the official Polish news agency PAP reported Saturday.

The agency said 110 persons were injured in the Thursday blast and 77 remained hospitalized, three in critical condition.

The agency said one body was found Friday night and two more today when workers from a state-owned constructon company removed rubble from the basement of the PKO bank building.

Chinese Invade...

At the time of the Cambodian invasion, Vietnam complained at the United Nations Security council that China had massed 30 divisions along the two countries' border.

One senior analyst in Bangkok did not rule out the possibility of the Chinese striking at Hanoi itself, barely 85 miles southeast of the nearest invasion point.

Hanoi and Moscow signed a friendship and cooperation treaty last year under which the Soviets agreed to regard an attack against Vietnam as one against themselves.

Pitted against the Vietnamese are what intelligence sources say are 170,000 Chinese troops and 700 war planes massed along the border following Hanoi's invasion of Cambodia.

News Briefs

Voted Against Unionizing

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Workers at Duke Medical Center voted 995 to 761 against unionizing Friday, culminating a bitter campaign that began nearly two years ago.

Besides those votes, another 251 were challenged by either the hospital administration, pro-union forces or the National Labor Relations Board. There were 2,112 workers eligible to vote in the election.

Rejects Dismissal Motion

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Without calling a single witness, the defense rested its case Friday in the trial of two pharmacists charged with drug violations.

U.S. District Judge Hiram Ward will give his instructions to the jury when court reconvenes Tuesday. Ward rejected a motion Friday to dismiss charges against the pair.

On trial are Billy T. Coward of Landis, owner of Landis Drug Co., and Robert Coffey, owner of Baxter's Pharmacy in Kannapolis. The pharmacists are charged, along with Dr. Gerald Shingleton and Dr. Edward Spicer, a Salisbury psychiatrist, with illegally conspiring to distribute drugs.

Attorneys for Coward and Coffey told Ward they feared that because both men were tried at the same time, the volume of testimony could confuse the jury.

Fourth Pembroke Nominee Named

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — The Pembroke State Board of Trustees added a fourth name to a list of nominees for chancellor of the university in an executive session Friday, an unidentified source told the Robesonian. Then the trustees left the meeting by a back door and did not speak to reporters waiting out front.

The name added was that of James Chavis, vice chancellor for student affairs at Pembroke, according to the source. Chavis has been opposed by the faculty at Pembroke and was not on a list of three nominees recommended to the board by a search committee.

On the list of recommendations were the names of Joseph Oxendine, a Pembroke area native now at Temple University in Philadelphia; Robert J. Alfonso of Kent State University in Kent, Ohio and Paul Givens of Milliken University in Decatur, Ill.

Will Not Turn Backs On Race

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Republicans do not plan to turn their backs on the 1980 gubernatorial race as suggested by one GOP legislator, the Republican caucus in the General Assembly said Friday.

The 20 Republican members of the state House and Senate issued a statement saying they had unanimously rejected a suggestion last week by Rep. Roy Spoon, R-Mecklenburg, that they abandon the 1980 race for governor.

Spoon had suggested that instead of spending money on the governor's race, the GOP put its campaign money into an effort to win a majority in the 50- member state Senate, where this year there are only five Republicans.

Claims Control Of Highway

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Guerrilla forces of ousted Cambodian Prime Minister Pol Pot claimed Saturday to have taken full control of Highway 19 in northeastern Cambodia, a major invasion and resupply route for Vietnamese forces.

The Voice of Democratic Kampuchea, the guerrilla radio, said Vietnamese troops have "become prey of our attack whenever they dare to travel on the road."

It said 30 Vietnamese soldiers were killed Wednesday while traveling on Highway 19, used by Vietnamese forces in the early stages of the Cambodian invasion to capture the key Mekong River city of Stung Treng.

Americans Advised To Leave Chad

PARIS (AP) — French and American citizens are being advised to leave the battle-scarred capital of Chad after four French nationals died and an American pilot was killed by a stray bullet fired during four days of civil war in the central African nation.

Thirty Americans flew to Gabon Thursday on a plane evacuating French nationals from the former French colony. There are an estimated 230 Americans in Chad, including 170 living in the capital.

NK, SK Representatives Meet

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — North and South Korean representatives had their first political talk Saturday since 1975 and agreed to meet again March 7 to continue negotiations on how to resume their suspended dialogue for national reunification.

They also decided in principle to reopen a direct telephone line between Seoul and Pyong-yang but otherwise reached little agreement in their 90-minute meeting.

Fugitive Jailed

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Fugitive Richard T. Schindler has been jailed here in lieu of $1 million bond while awaiting transfer to Los Angeles to face federal charges involving $12 million in alleged phony investment deals.

Schindler was arrested Friday in a motel in the tiny central Florida town of Yeehaw Junction.

The indictments accuse Schindler of soliciting $12 million from an estimated 1,000 investors, by offering 90 percent to 300 percent returns on an initial investment of $1,000.

Youth Record Bill Approved

The Senate unanimously approved a bill that would allow the elimination of arrest and court records for persons under 18 years of age in certain cases. Any arrest for a misdemeanor or felony in which a youth was acquitted or had the charges dismissed could be removed from his or her record by petitioning the court — if the youth had an otherwise clean record.

Anti-Crime Proposals Introduced

Three of Gov. Jim Hunt's anti-crime proposals were introduced. One would set a miminum one-year prison sentence for persons convicted of prostitution for a second or subsequent time. Another would set a minimum two-year sentence for second and subsequent convictions of breaking and entering.

Release on parole or probation would not be allowed under the measures.

Juvenile Justice System Changes Endorsed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Governor's Crime Commission Friday endorsed far-ranging changes in the state's juvenile justice system, including proposals to centralize juvenile services and make juvenile court proceedings public if the defendant wishes it.

By a vote of 8-to-6, the commission rejected a proposal which would have given youths under 17 the right to a jury trial, despite support for the proposal by Wake County District Court Judge George F. Bason. Bason, a juvenile court judge, said in some counties in North Carolina "a child cannot get a fair trial before a judge."

Bason is chairman of the committee that proposed the changes and is a member of the crime commission, an advisory group set up by Gov. Jim Hunt to study changes in the criminal justice system. Policies the commission endorses are recommendations to the governor for possible legislative action.

Among the commission's endorsements is a proposal that three state agencies who are handling juvenile justice be combined into a central Office of Juvenile Justice. The three are the Juvenile Service Division of the Administrative Office of the Courts, and the Division of Youth Services and the Division of Social Services in the Department of Human Resources.

The commission unanimously rejected a proposal to place the office under the state Supreme Court.

"The chief justice and Supreme Court have let us know they feel like it should be in the executive branch," Bason said after the meeting. "No one is prepared to oppose that suggestion."

The elimination of the proposed right to a jury trial and the of the proposal to place the juvenile justice office under the Supreme Court were the only changes the commission recommended in a 390-page report on the need to reform the state's juvenile laws.

The report was the result of an 18-month study by the Juvenile Code Revision Committee, which was appointed by the General Assembly.

Christopher Parkening Concert

Christopher Parkening, young classical guitarist who Andres Segovia declares "is a great artist — one of the most brilliant guitarists in the world" — will be in concert at East Carolina University at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, February 20.

The concert is part of the Artists Series for the 1978-79 season and is to be given in the Hendrix Theater in Mendenhall Student Center under the sponsorship of the Student Union Artists Series Committee.

The California-born artist first studied guitar at the age of eleven with Spanish concert guitarists who early recognized the boy's affinity for the instrument.

At twelve, the gave a recital of music by Bach, Scarlatti, and Albeniz, and was greeted with critical acclaim.

Very much in demand for concert halls, Parkening is currently modifying an extensive European tour in order to include more university dates in the United States in order to reach a wider range of younger audiences.

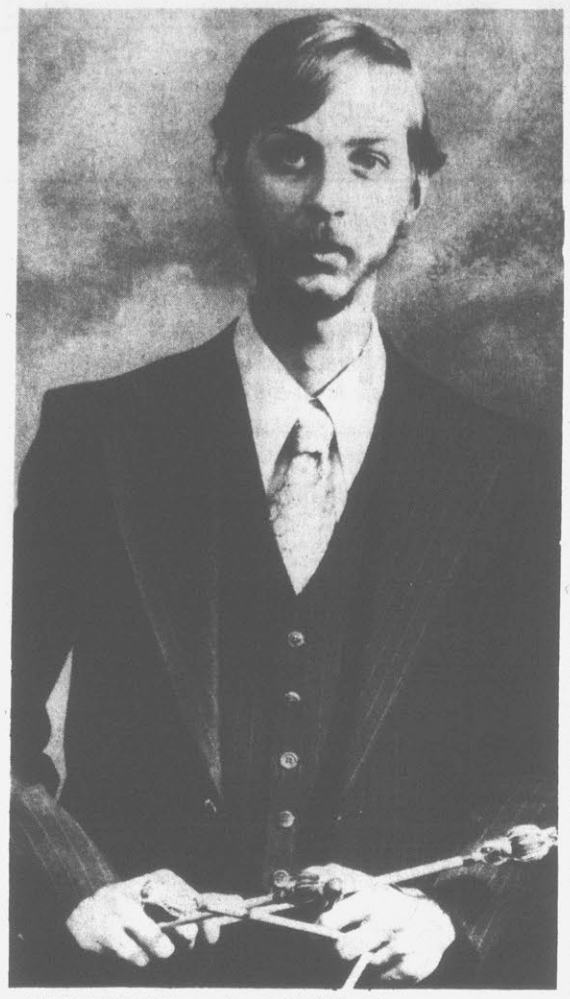
He is a recording star for Angel Records, and all his records have appeared on the best-selling classical recordings list.

Although a dedicated musician, Parkening finds time for his interests in outdoor activities — fishing, riding horses, skiing and scuba diving.

Tickets for the Christopher Parkening concert are priced at $5 and will be available at the door prior to performance.

CHRISTOPHER PARKENING . . . noted young classical guitarist, will be in concert in Hendrix Theater on the ECU campus at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 20. Tickets are priced at $5.

Gordon Stout Guest Recitalist



GORDON STOUT . . . percussionist, teacher, composer and recording artist, will be in a recital of his own and other music at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 21 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall. He will be joined by ECU faculty pianist Donna Coleman in two works. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend.

Gordon Stout, percussionist, composer, teacher and recording artist, will be guest performer in a recital which also features East Carolina University faculty pianist Donna Coleman.

The recital is to be held at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 21 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital. The public is invited to attend, and there is no admission charged.

Stout, on the faculty at St. Mary's College of Maryland, is also Assistant Music Director for the Tidewater Music Festival.

A frequent performer and lecturer, Stout is the composer of numerous pieces for percussion, including a well-known works for marimba — "Elegy and Reverie;" "5 Etudes for Marimba:" "Two Mexican Dances for Miramba" and "Ode for Marimba."

A recording artist for Phillips Records as well as for Studio 4 Productions, many of his works are available on records, including his first solo marimba album, "Stout—1."

As a performer, he has appeared with the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, the Eastman Wind Ensemble, Percussion Ensemble, and Music Nova groups.

For the Wednesday recital, Ms. Coleman will join Stout in the performance of two pieces — Musser's "Prelude in G Major" and Fritz Kreisler's "Tambourin Chinois," arranged by G. H. Green.

Stout will play four of his own compositions — "Etudes for Marimba;" "Two Mexican Dances;" "Reverie" and "Astral Dance, No. 3." Two other compositions to be played are Bach's "Sonata No. 6 in E Major;" and "Suite for Solo Guitar" by Alec Wilder transcribed by Stout.

Kinston Play

KINSTON — The musical "Fiddler on the Roof" will be presented by the Kinston High School Drama Department in three performances in March.

The location of the production will be the Kinston High School Auditorium, and times are 8 p.m. on March 16 and 17, and 2 p.m. on March 18.

ECU Opera Theater To Present 'Iolanthe'

Four performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "Iolanthe," will be jointly presented by the East Carolina University Opera Theater and the ECU Symphony Orchestra- next week.

Dr. Clyde Hiss is director of the opera, in two acts, which is to be fully staged and costumed, and Robert Hause is conductor of the Symphony Orchestra.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 22, 23 and 24, and at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 25, at the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall. Tickets are priced at $3.50 each and can be purchased at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily.

A whimsical, tuneful opera with a large cast of fairies, British officials, peers, a shepherdess, and a soldier, "Iolanthe" is generally regarded as one of the best, musically, of all the Gilbert and Sullivan universal favorites.

Singers have been double-cast to give student singers an opportunity to be in star roles. Members of the cast in the order in which they appear on stage are:

Celia, a fairy, Julia Moore and Anne Wheeler. Leila, a fairy, Beth Auman and Devonna Rowe; Queen of the Fairiers, Carolyn Greene and Sheila Brooks; Iolanthe, a fairy, Teresa Leggett and Susan Owen; Strephon, son of Iolanthe, Max Galloway and Brian Hilligoss; Phyllis, an Arcadian shepherdess, Margaret Brooks and Belinda Bryant; Lord Mountararat, Peter Ward and Gerald E. Murphy, Jr.; Lord Tolloller, tephen Walence and Douglas Newell; The Lord Chancellor, Michael McDonald and Anthony King; and Private Willis, Michale Elliott and William Lear.

Chorus of Peers singers include singers in name roles and also Kevin Bagby, William Ballance, Aubrey Barnes, and Constantine Peters.

Costumes for the production were designed and executed by Patricia Hiss, assisted by Virginia Batchler, Dianne Pickett and Marina Santos. Lighting is by Teresa Guion, Donald Greene and Ann Gunn.

An orchestra of 29 musicians will accompany the singers.

Winners Named In Music Competition

Pianist Carol Wolfe, a graduate student in piano, has been named overall winner in the Young Artists Competition, sponsored by the Student Forum of the School of Music, East Carolina University.

The competition was open to juniors, seniors and graduate students in the School of Music. Preliminaries were held Jan. 27 and finals were held Jan. 31. Judges were drawn from the faculty of the ECU School of Music.

In addition to Ms. Wolfe, category winners were: Jim Poteat, instrumental; Sheila Brooks, vocal; and Ben Leaptrott, keyboard. These winners will be presented in special recitals to be held in April.

In the competition, Ms. Wolfe played the second and third movements of Mozart's "Sonata in Bflat Major" and Ravel's "Jeux D'Eau."

Oboist Jim Poteat, a senior, performed the first movement of Haydn's "Concerto in C Major" and Schumann's "Romance."

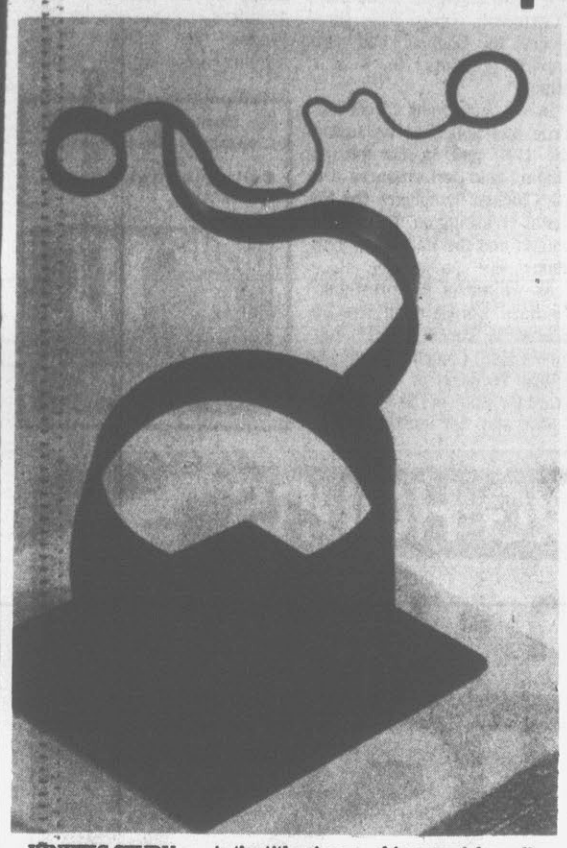
Shirer's Sculpture At Center



KINETIC STUDY . . . is the title given to this graceful small painted steel sculpture, and to several similar works, by Art Shirer. His show, "Family Resemblance" now at the Greenville Art Center, consists of small and large sculpture, and accompanying sketches for the pieces.

Art Shirer's sculptures, large and small, unfurl, reach out in graceful gestures like ballet dancers set to go into action. Of steel, some unpainted, some painted, these gently curled, pleasant to look at works remind one of the cleanness and lyrical forms of curled wood shavings.

Shirer's show, which constitutes about ten small and ten medium to large steel sculptures, plus a supplement of several drawings, all designs for sculpture, is currently at the Greenville Art Center.

Entitled "Family Resemblance," the consistently clean, poised pieces strongly suggest a family endowed with a strong sense of calm and happiness. No tortured, pitted surfaces here, no sense of struggle to break forth into expressions of anger, fear or confusion.

The term "kinetic" is literally applicable in the case of several smaller pieces. The thin, sphere-ended antenna-like upper parts of these pieces spin slowly when touched, creating a joyous motion, like wind-chimes without sound.

Cincinnati, Ohio native Shirer has a BFA from the School of Art, East Carolina University, with a major in sculpture. He has exhibited widely in North Carolina and in several other states, and has won an impressive number of first awards in shows.

Among collections in which his work is represented are those of the R. J. Reynolds Industries and the Rocky Mount Fine Arts Center.

Although the larger pieces — the biggest is nearly 12 feet tall — are better suited to outdoor placement, the show as a whole nonetheless seems at home shown together as a family unit.

Photography As A Moral Force

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

For as long as photography has been around — now 140 years — this unique medium of communication has been used to depict the beauty all around us, but also the folly that is man.

Pioneers such as Mathew Brady documented not only the brass and polish of armies, but the horror of the Civil War as well.

Robert Capa was on hand during the Spanish Civil War to photograph the final moment of a Loyalist soldier, arm still clutching a rifle, when a bullet struck his head. The photo had unusual impact in symbolizing the butchery of war by the death of an individual, a man you could identify with. He could be someone near and dear — a son, brother, husband or father — or it could be you.

Capa's picture, published all over the world, revealed the total waste of a precious life in any war. News photos of tragedies in which hundreds are killed seldom match the impact of Capa's picture of one soldier who dies before your eyes.

Unfortunately, neither Brady nor Capa, nor countless other photographers assigned to front lines, have been able to stop — or even stem — the slaughter that continues somewhere in the world to this day.

But there are photographers whose pictures were able to bring about some much-needed social changes. Lewis Hine, for instance, with his photographs of children working in grimy factories for back-breaking hours daily, six days a week. The photographs were instrumental in bringing legislation to abolish the abuses of child labor. Jacob Riis was another pioneer reformer with a camera. His pictures of slums provoked laws to correct and improve conditions for the immigrant poor.

News photos of sheriffs using vicious dogs and water cannons on demonstrators during upheavals in the 1960s revolted enough people to cause the enactment of national legislation which corrected many social injustices inflicted on our black citizens.

Associated Press photographer Eddie Adams photographed the pathetic plight of Vietnamese refugee "boat people" off the coast of Thailand and Cambodia. The dramatic pictures helped some of them to find a haven in the United States.

But probably the most effective use of a camera to stir the world's conscience is associated with the Minamata story documented by the late W. Eugene Smith.

A chemical company had been dumping toxic wastes in Minamata's waters for years, polluting the fish in the area. The natives, whose diet depended to a great extent on the fish, began experiencing the disastrous effects of mercury poisoning from eating the contaminated fish. It brought death and crippling deformities to many and affected untold newborn with mental and physical infirmities that made them living vegetables.

Since the chemical company was the area's largest employer, local politicians and authorities were reluctant to take action. But mercury poisoning is not a problem that will go away if ignored, and Gene Smith joined the victims in their court action to remedy the situation. The toxic wastes had to be acknowledged, stopped, and medical compensation paid to the victims.

Smith's pictures of the pitiful victims aroused world opinion and sympathy, particularly that of a mother tenderly and lovingly bathing her helplessly crippled teenage daughter.

After a four-year court battle, the victims were the winners and Gene Smith became a folk hero to Japanese people.

Inflation Hits Sculpture Costs

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If any additional examples of inflation are needed after last week's wholesale price report, here is one from the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel:

In August of 1977, the institute commissioned sculptor Mark di Suvero to fashion a work of art out of scrap metal. The result was "Isis," a 35-ton configuration of steel beams, a ship's bow and other odds and ends that now stands in the plaza of the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden.

Since di Suvero first began poking around in junkyards looking for suitable material, the value, or at least the price, of the scrap used in his creation has risen by about $1,400, the institute said.

And that's without the locomotive cab that di Suvero originally intended to include in his recycled masterwork.

Local dealers currently pay $1 to $2.50 for 100 pounds of scrap iron or steel, depending on the grade. This is about twice what the going rate was when di Suvero finished the sculpture last summer.

By that reckoning, the scrap in "Isis" would now bring between $7,000 and $17,500. But those are hypothetical figures.

In its present dimensions — 43 feet tall, 65 feet long and 33 feet wide — the sculpture represents what the industry calls "unprepared scrap."

"There are no quotes for scrap in that form," an institute spokesman said. "The beams are too long for scrap dealers to handle and none of them would be interested in acquiring the bow of a ship."

Actually, the project cost more than $100,000. Di Suvero received about $80,000 as his commission and the institute spent roughly $20,000 to acquire and transport the raw materials.

Di Suvero was pretty much given the run of the nation's scrapyards in selecting the junk to be immortalized. He began with the front end of an old freighter, found in San Pedro, Calif., and went on from there.

The locomotive cab he picked out couldn't be made to fit, so that touch was omitted during the final assembly.

Although carried in the inventory of the Smithsonian Institution, "Isis" belongs to the people of America — all 220 million of them. Should they ever decide to recycle it, they would realize about .000,089 cents apiece. But that is not likely to happen.

The institute describes "Isis" as "timeless." In a little more than six months it has indeed become one of the fixtures on the Mall. Smithsonian officials estimate that already as many as 750,000 visitors have gazed upon the blue-and-white assemblage.

In general outline, "Isis" somewhat resembles a giant praying mantis. (Isis, incidentally, is both the acronym of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel and the name of the Greek goddess of fertility.)

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Julie Hicks

Two books have just arrived at Sheppard Library which deal with Hollywood and the world of movies.

HOLLYWOOD'S CHILDREN: AN INSIDE ACCOUNT OF THE CHILD STAR ERA is by Diana Serra Cary who was a child star herself enjoying a shortlived career as Baby Peggy beginning at the age of nineteen months. By the time she turned eight, it was all over. Her story is only an example of what happened to so many other children who led that type of life — plagued by lost childhoods, exploited innocence, and brief glory. At times they even endured tortured existences. The author reports instances in her own experience: a manager who ran off with her assets, a depression which wiped out her comeback earnings, her fruitless hopes of receiving top billings once again, her early marriage and divorce, and perhaps worst of all, her lack of preparation for the world outside — i. e. no skills to cope with the working world beyond the acting arena. The book is filled with intriguing anecdotes, sad tales, and illustrations of the kids who thrilled millions of fans. Jackie Coogan, Lotta Crabtree, Deanna Durbin, Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, the Little Rascals, along with many others were often victimized by greedy relatives and never saw what they earned. Shirley Temple was one of the lucky ones for she was protected against such a practice. Most seemed to have one thing in common — a persevering mother (and father) backstage. A large part of the book deals with these people who suffered from stage-parent syndrome and who were willing to sacrifice their children for their own ambitions. HOLLYWOOD'S CHILDREN is a revealing account of days gone by, but it is an affectionate reminiscence as well.

THE FIFTY WORST FILMS OF ALL TIME (AND HOW THEY GOT THAT WAY), by Harry Medved and Randy Dreyfuss, is cleverly done and downright funny. The movie entries are analyzed and mocked in an amusing as well as informative style. After extensive research of what the critics said about the films when they debuted and by viewing the films themselves, the young authors set out to prove that each film deserves a place in this particular book. Not all the movies are in the low budget category; the writers take aim at such biggies as Ivan the Terrible, North West Mounted Police, Valley of the Dolls, and Jonathan Livingston Seagull. This is the kind of book most people will enjoy talking about whether to debate the choices or just to be nostalgic.

Playhouse Dance Concert Feb. 22-24

David Anderson, guest dance instructor in the East Carolina University Department of Drama and Speech, will do double duty in the East Carolina Playhouse Dance Concert on Feb. 22, 23, and 24 in the campus Studio Theater at 8:15 p.m.

In addition to choreographing an original dance with some of his students, he will also dance in a solo piece, "To Vernon," a collaboration with singer-composer Judith Lander.

Originally a Texan, Anderson came to the ECU dance faculty from New York where he was a member of American Ballet Theater and a solo dancer at Radio City Music Hall.

Broadway made use of his talents when he danced in the musical, "Applause," starring Lauren Bacall. Earlier, he had appeared with the San Francisco Ballet on a Ford Foundation scholarship.

While with "Applause," he and a group of other dancers started their own company which eventually became known as the David Anderson Dance Company. He created numerous works for this group as well as pieces for other companies including Dennis Wayne Dancers, Luigi's Jazz Company, and the Syracuse Ballet Theater. He also went to Israel and Germany to choreograph works there.

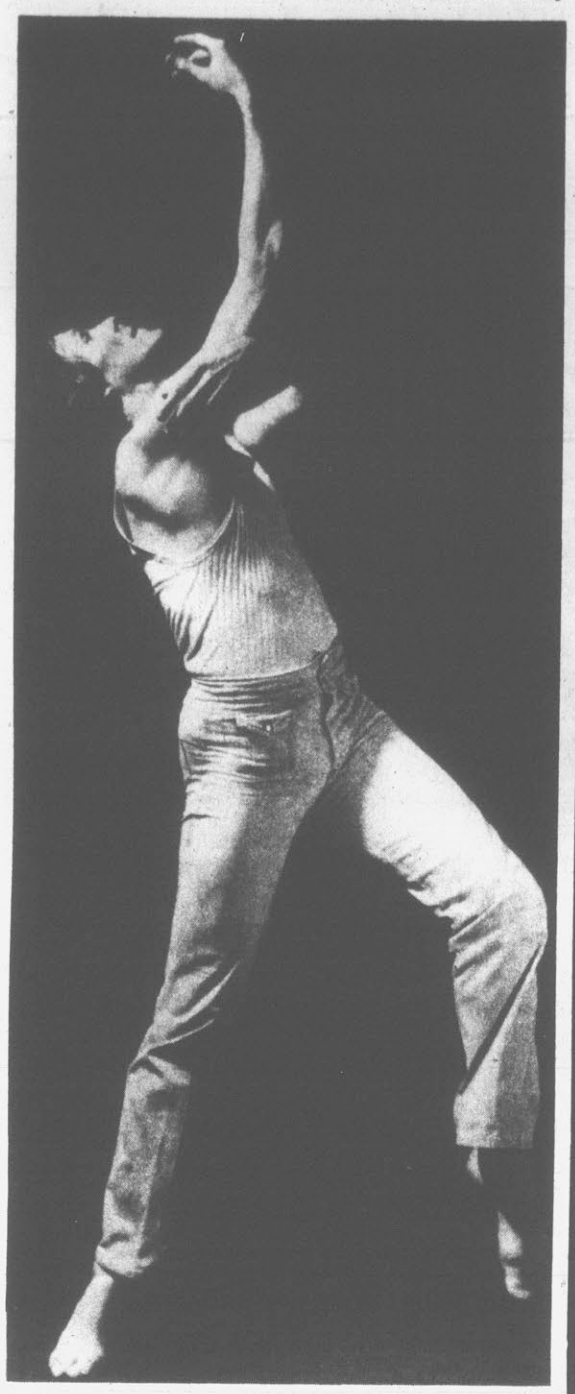
Just recently, Anderson returned briefly to New York from his ECU classes to perform in "Le Martyre de St. Sabastian" to the music of Claude Debussey, performed at the Church of Heavenly Rest.

The ECU concert will include an original jazz piece created by dance teacher Frank Wagner, "All That Jazz."

Other work on the program is a new work choreographed by Patricia Pertalion, "With Apologies to Vivaldi," and a reconstruction of solos choreographed by Isadora Duncan. The latter was made possible by a grant from the ECU Research Committee.

Sara Berman has created a waltz piece to Straus' "Blue Danube" — "Celebration of Life" — and a love duet to music by Keith Garrett. Judy Pascale's work, "Los Mendigos," will be the final dance of the evening.

Tickets, priced at $2, are on sale at the box office in Room 108 the Drama Building. For telephone reservations, call 757-6390.



DAVID ANDERSON . . . dancer-choreographer and faculty member of the ECU Drama and Speech Department, is one of the dancers being featured in the Playhouse Dance Concert Feb. 22, 23, and 24 at 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $2, available at Room 108, Drama Building, or by phone, 757-6390. Nelita True Recital

Nelita True, artist-teacher of the University of Maryland, will be at East Carolina University Feb. 27 and 28 to conduct a master class in piano and to give a recital.

Her recital will be at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 27 with the master class scheduled from 10 to noon Feb. 28 and a lecture set from 1 to 3 p.m. on that date.

For her recital in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall, Ms. True will play Scarlatti's "Two Sonatas;" Schuman's "Carnaval, Opus 9;" three pieces by Chopin; and Prokofieff's "Sonata No. 4 in C Minor."

In her performing career, Ms. True has appeared throughout the U.S. and in Europe, including solo performances with the Chicago Symphony, the National (Washington, D.C.) Symphony, and the Baltimore Symphony.

As winner of the prestigious Juilliard Competition, she appeared in concert in Philharmonic Hall, Lincoln Center. She is also recipient of a Fulbright grant for study in Paris.

Hospitality House

"Hospitality House" today will be aired from noon to 12:45 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7. Among guests on Kay Currie's show today are entertainers Ralna English and her husband, Guy Hovis, a popular singing duo on the Lawrence Welk TV Show.

Other entertainers are McLean Stevenson and Greg Evigan, stars of "Hello Larry" and "BJ and the Bear," respectively.

Marcellus Miller of Rocky Mount's Senior Citizens Center and Rev. Elbert Lee, director of the People's Family Care Home, will talk about staying young — education for the aged.

In the kitchen, the butcher will talk about ways to cook country hams.

Learned Will Replace Harper

Michael Learned, widely known for her role of Olivia Walton in the television series, "The Waltons," will replace Valerie Harper in the Student Union's March 26 production of "Dear Liar."

"The Liar" will also star Anthony Zerbe in the stage production portraying the love-hate relationship of George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Patricia Campbell.

Tickets for the play will be priced at $4.00 ($3.00 for groups of 20 or more), and information on tickets is available by calling 757-6611, extension 266.

Two District Cage Tourneys Begin Monday

District basketball tournament action will be opening Monday on two fronts, with a third division joining in the action on Tuesday.

The Division I Conference will hold its tournament starting Monday and carrying on through Saturday, to determine entrants into the state 4-A tournament. All games are played at the site of the higher seeded teams.

The 3-A District Tournament, featuring the top four teams from the Northeastern and Eastern Carolina conferences, will be played in Williamston, starting Monday, while the 1-A District, with five Beaufort-Hyde-Martin and three Tidewater Conference members, opens Tuesday at the higher seeded team's home courts. Semifinals and finals will be at Plymouth.

In the 4-A ranks, boys' games are scheduled for Monday, Wednesday and Friday, with girls' playing Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Where both the boys' and girls' teams from the same school are hosts in the same round, the girls will move back a day for doubleheaders.

Rose High School's Rampants will be involved in one of two doubleheaders scheduled for the first round Monday night. The Rampant boys finished in a tie for fifth, but ended up with the sixth place seeding. They will travel to face Wilson Beddingfield. The Rose girls finished fifth and will also face Beddingfield. The girls open at 7 p.m. Monday, with the boys following at about 8:45 p.m.

In the same bracket with the Rose boys are hosting Northeastern and Bertie, and the winners meet on Wednesday. The other bracket has Northern Nash, the regular season champ, entertaining Hunt, with Rocky Mount visiting Fike. The winners also play Wednesday, with the title game on Friday.

Northern Nash, by winning the regular season title, has already clinched a playoff berth. The other berth will go to the tournament champ, or, if that is Northern, to the runner-up.

In the girls' division with Rose is topseeded Fike, hosting Bertie. The winners meet Wednesday or Thursday, depending on outcomes of boys' games.

The other bracket has Northern Nash hosting Northeastern, while Rocky Mount plays Hunt.

Fike and Bertie play Monday in combination with the Fike-Rocky Mount boys, while the other two games are set for Tuesday.

Fike, which tied with Northern Nash for the title, will take one of the playoff berths, with the other either to the tournament winner or runner-up, if Fike wins.

3-A District

The 3-A Tournament will open Monday at Williamston. Monday's games have Southwest Edgecombe's girls meeting Roanoke Rapids, with Farmville Central's boys taking on Tarboro. Game time throughout the tournament will be 6 p.m. for girls and 7:30 p.m. for boys.

Tuesday, Williamston's girls meet C.B. Aycock, and Washington's boys take on Southwest Edgecombe.

Thursday, the first round ends, with Washington and Conley colliding in the girls' game, and Roanoke and North Pitt meeting in the boys.

In the Class A district tournament, pairings have not been finalized. However, Jamesville and Bear Grass of the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference will be involved in boys' games, while Jamesville's girls will participate in their half of the tournament.

First round games will be Tuesday and Wednesday, with semifinals on Thursday and Friday, and the finals on Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Georgia Tech Defeats ECU In Home Final

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

While the wind was blowing and the temperatures were dropping outside Minges Coliseum, Georgia Tech engineered a power unit that, if nothing else, kept the nets on their end of the court hot.

No, hot is not the word. Scorching would be closer to it.

Led by Tico Brown's 12-for-13 performance from the floor, the Yellow Jackets burned through 68.1 per cent of their shots, a school record, and recorded an 82-68 victory over East Carolina University.

For the Pirates, the game was the 14th loss against 11 wins and assured the Bucs of their fourth straight losing season. With two games left, the Pirates cannot catch their opponents now. They still have road games against Old Dominion and Notre Dame, as the Tech game closed out the home season.

But for sub Steve Neal, who missed on his only two field goals, the Techmen would have had no one under 50 percent from the floor. That would have been Sammy Drummer, who hit nine of 18 shots and finished with a total of 25 points.

Brown, who ended up with 30, also was only slightly less than perfect from the free throw line, where he hit six of seven. The 30 was a seasonal high for him

"There's not really a lot you can do when someone shoots 68 per cent against you," Pirate coach Larry Gillman said. "And when you couple that with the poor shooting (38.7 percent) in the second half that we had, it's impossible.

"Our defense wasn't that bad. We were right in their faces, but they were just hot. They were ready and they did a great job."

Gillman had praise for David Underwood, who held Drummer down for a while, and for Clarence Miles who shut off Brown for a spell also.

"It was not one of our better performances in the second half. We played well in the first (shooting 50 per cent) but we just couldn't stop their shooting.

"The technicals didn't help us either," he said in references to two called against senior Greg Cornelius, playing his final game in Minges. One was called on him after protesting a foul, and the other for hanging on the rim after a shot. "Emotions get hot in a game sometimes. It's just one of those things."

Tech coach Dwayne Morrison said that his team played a "super game of team ball." He praised the way the Techmen moved the ball to get into shooting position. "We did what we didn't do in the first game (against East Carolina). We're a better ball club.

"Everyone played real solid basketball, and that was the key," he added.

The game was close throughout the first half, despite a 68.0 percentage by the Engineers. East Carolina got the first basket on an alley-oop to Cornelius after 24 seconds.

But Drummer hit two in a row and Brown connected for his first for a 6-2 Georgia Tech lead. The Pirates tied it up on two free throws by. George Manyor (who was only 1-for-9 from the floor), at 9-9. Frank Hobson hit for a 13-11 lead, but the lead bounced back to Tech and back again to the Pirates over the next few minutes.

The Pirates last led at 25-24 with 4:12 left on a jumper from the lane by Oliver Mack, but Brown hit with 3:48 showing for the Jackets, and they never trailed again.

Over the next few minutes, they raised the lead to five points, 32-27, and took a 36-31 score into the dressing rooms.

Brown hit to open the second half, then added two free throws for a 40-31 lead during the first minute and a half.

Near the five-minute mark, the margin climbed to 11 at 48-37, and reached 13 at 58-45 with 11:33 left as Brown hit again.

But over the next five minutes the Pirates put on a rally that nipped the score to only four points, 65-61, and it looked like the Bucs might have a chance. Mack hit two free throws with 6:21 showing to cut it to the four, but Brown hit again, and Billy Smith followed with a free throw, with Drummer hitting two after that from the line to up it to 70-61, with 4:46 left, and it was all over.

Leading 73-66 with a minute and a half left, the Techmen ran off nine in a row for their biggest lead, 82-66, before a final basket by Maynor, his only one of the night.

State Explodes To Rout Clemson

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina State, in the person of Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney, served notice on the Atlantic Coast Conference Saturday that the Wolfpack is to be reckoned with at the league tournament two weeks hence.

Whitney poured in 26 points, including 20 in the first half, as N.C. State rolled over Clemson 83-58 in a performance that belied the Wolfpack's status as the ACC's last-place team.

"It's just a matter of believing in yourself and what you can do," said Whitney, whose 9-10 performance in the opening period paced N.C. State's 75 percent first-half shooting from the floor.

The 6-foot-5 junior sank seven straight field goals before Clemson was able to adjust its defense in the regionally televised contest. In the first meeting between the two teams this season, Whitney scored a career-high 43 points in a losing effort at Clemson, 85-72.

"We were as sharp as we've been all year," N.C. State Coach Norm Sloan said. "Clemson is a fine basketball team. But we were so ready, so sharp and executed so well, there wasn't much they could do about it."

Clemson Coach Bill Foster said the Tiger defense made some mistakes against Whitney, "but for the most part it was his great individual talent."

The Tigers, shooting 50 percent from the field in the first half, led only twice in the opening minutes before N.C. State seized control and forced Clemson to shoot from outside.

The Wolfpack, improving to 2-8 in the ACC and 16-10 overall, also got offensive help from Clyde Austin with 13 points and Tony Warren with 12.

Clemson, falling to 4-7 and 168, was paced by Billy Williams' 15 points.

The crowd, hungry for a victory, came to its feet and applauded Whitney's string of field goals that sparked an 11-2 streak. N.C. State built up an insurmountable 19-point lead at intermission, 44-25.

Clemson was never able to mount a threat in the second half as N.C. State's lead bulged to as many as 29 points, the last time with 46 seconds remaining.

Heels Hang On

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — North Carolina's fourth-ranked Tar Heels, led by Al Wood, went to the four corners with 11½ minutes left Saturday night and held on for a 66-57 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Virginia's Cavaliers.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Tar Heels, who tied Duke at 8-2 for the ACC lead, over the Cavaliers, 6-5, since Virginia won the league tournament over Carolina in 1976.

After the two teams went scoreless more than four minutes, a tip-in by Terry Gates pulled Virginia within two at 48-46 with 3:43 remaining, but the Tar Heels, 20-4 overall, scored the next five points, starting with a three-point play by Dave Colescott.

Wood finished with 22 points, Colescott with 13 and Bradley and Mike O'Koren with 12 each for the Tar Heels. Virginia was led by Jeff Lamp with 21 points and Raker with 12.

The score was tied 12 times before intermission.

Lietzke Retains Two-Stroke Edge

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke surrendered 5 strokes of a once-commanding lead but, with a struggling 68, retained a 2-shot advantage after Saturday's third round of the $250,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

"Well," sighed Lietzke, who bogeyed his last two holes, "at least we got 18 more holes out of the way."

He had a 54-hole total of 197, 13 shots under par on the 6,708-yard Randolph Municipal course that has yielded some extremely low scores.

Lietzke's struggle down the stretch opened the door for defending champion Tom Watson, Marty Fleckman and Jim Thorpe to move to within 2 shots of the lead at 199.

Watson, Player of the Year and leading money-winner the past two seasons, shot a 66. So did Fleckman, enjoying his best tournament in many years. Thorpe, a rookie and a former running back at Morgan State, had a 67, including a birdie on the final hole moments after the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day.

Mark Hayes, who has challenged unsuccessfully for two titles this year, was three strokes back at 200 after a 66.

"He can be caught," Hayes said of Lietzke, "but I don't expect him to be."

Lee Trevino also had a 66 and, at 201, was tied with Victor Regalado, who had a 67.

J.C. Snead, whose 64 was the best round of the day, topped a group of five at 202. That put 12 men within five shots going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $45,000 first prize.

Rik Massengale didn't make it into that group, but he provided the most dramatic moment of the day. Massengale holed out a four-wood second shot for a rare double-eagle on the third hole. It helped him to a 68—207.

At one point, Lietzke appeared ready to make a rout of it. The front-runner since his opening round of 63, he had a three-shot lead at the start of the third round.

The tour's most successful cross-handed putter birdied three of his first four holes, played his front nine in 31 and had a 6-shot lead at the turn. When he birdied the 10th hole, from six feet, he lifted his margin to 7 and it appeared he was ready to run away and hide from the field.

"It looked like a runaway," said Watson, who was playing with him.

But it wasn't to be.

"I let a couple get away and the other guys picked up some on their own," Lietzke said.

He three-putted for bogey on the 12th, got in trouble with his hooked drive on the 17th and bogeyed, then bogeyed again from a bunker on the 18th.

It opened the gates and turned a potential rout into a very close race.

"He just made a couple of mistakes and let the rest of us back in the golf tournament," said Watson.

Crash Mars Sportsman

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A blazing eight-car crash that critically injured one driver, and three frustrating rainshowers obscured Darrell Waltrip's victory Saturday in the $100,000 Daytona Sportsman 300 stock car race.

Don Williams, a 31-year-old hardware salesman from Madison, Fla., was in critical condition at Halifax Hospital Medical Center's intensive care unit with multiple head and chest injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

Another driver, Joe Frasson, Pauline, S.C., was treated for superficial facial burns and released from the speedway's infield care center. Two others were sent in for precautionary X-rays.

Frasson explained how he narrowly escaped far worse injuries:

"Freddy Smith either lost it or panicked. We were passing slower traffic. He shot straight across the track in front of me and knocked me into the wall. I was trying to get out when someone hit me from behind so hard it shoved the fuel tank inside my car, and it exploded inside there.

"I got out while it was still moving. My face and eyes were all burned and I couldn't see. A car went past me as I was running away. It felt pretty close but I couldn't see it.

"I had all my fireproof underwear on, thank goodness. Everything on my helmet was burned off."

Behind him, there was chaos on the track.

Williams nearly stopped in the middle of the track, trying to avoid the demolished cars in front of him, and was slammed into by another car that didn't slow down.

Flames billowed 100 feet in the air from Frasson's mangled racer, setting fire to part of the infield grass and melting part of the asphalt surface of the track.

Except for Williams, who was lifted from his car on a back brace, all the drivers were able to walk away from the crash. The race was slowed for about a half hour while cleanup crews worked.

Only 29 of the 69 laps completed were run under green flag racing conditions. The field was slowed the remainder of the time for either rain or accidents. The race was stopped for the third time by showers and finally called by officials after 172½ miles.

The yellow flag came out on the 66th lap when Dale Earnhardt, who was dueling with Waltrip for the lead suffered a blown tire. The debris from that caused another car to spin. Earnhardt was able to make it back to pit road for corrective service, but the rains came and finished the race before he got another chance to catch Waltrip.

The unlucky Earnhardt, who was credited with seventh in the unofficial rundown, was in front earlier when the rain stopped the event.

Three Break Mark

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tiny Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland runs the mile to outrun the others — not to beat the clock.

But on San Diego's "fast" track Friday night, the others were faster than usual. Coglan needed to live up to his prediction that this winter's gathering of the world's best milers would produce a world indoor mark.

In the San Diego Invitational meet, Coghlan was clocked at 3 minutes 52.6 seconds, eclipsing the 3:54.9 record set last year by Dick Buerkle of the New York Athletic Club.

The 5-foot-4, 140-pound Coghlan has lost just one indoor race in seven years. He's known as "Chairman of the Boards" for his tactical mastery of the 13 laps per mile common to indoor racing in North America.

Two others breaking Buerkle's old mark were Steve Scott, the premier U.S. miler from the University of California-Irvine, who was second in 3:54.1, and Steve Lacy of the University of Wisconsin, finishing third in 3:54.7.

"I owe the record to the people in the race. Scott did a great job, was there all the way and really kept the pressure on."

No. 9 Cards Are Upset

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Memphis State, led by senior forward Rodney Lee's 15 points and seven rebounds, outscored ninth-ranked Louisville 8-0 in the final 3½ minutes Saturday and upset the Metro Conference-leading Cardinals 60-53.

The loss was the first of the season for Louisville against league opponents. The Cardinals, who have clinched the conference title, are 8-1 in the league and 22-5 overall.

Memphis State, now 5-4 is in the conference and 12-12 overall.

The victory came less than two weeks after the Tigers lost to Louisville on the Cardinal floor — a loss that was followed by Tiger Coach Wayne Yates' resignation effective at the end of the season.

James Bradley had 12 points and 15 rebounds for Memphis State, but it was Lee and freshman guard Otis Jackson, who sparked the Tigers in the final two minutes of play.

Lee's short jumper witn 1:57 left put the Tigers ahead 54-53. Jackson hit a basket with 33 seconds left, then added two free throws with 11 seconds on the clock to run the score to 58-53. Lee put the icing on the cake with steal at his own end of the court and a sprint the length of the court for a game-ending slam dunk.

UCLA 110, Arizona 86

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Greenwood scored a seasonhigh 31 points to lead UCLA to a 110-86 Pacific-10 Conference basketball victory over Arizona Saturday, avenging the Bruins' one-point loss to the Wildcats last month.

The victory was the ninth in a row for second-ranked UCLA, 12-2 in Pacific-10 play and 20-3 overall. Arizona, which beat the Bruins 70-69 last Jan. 18, dropped to 7-8 in the conference and 13-10 overall.

Kiki Vandeweghe added 20 points and Roy Hamilton 19 for UCLA, which led at halftime 49-41 in the regionally televised game and steadily pulled away during the second half. James Wilkes and Brad Holland contributed 14 and 13 points, respectively, for the winners.

Texas 63, Texas Tech 56

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ron Baxter, the only non-senior in Texas' starting lineup, stuffed a shot and hit six consecutive free throws in overtime Saturday and No.12 Texas clinched a Southwest Conference co-championship in basketball by defeating Texas Tech 63-56.

The dramatic victory in the 5-minute extra period raised Texas' SWC record to 13-2. Texas closes its season at Southern Methodist next week.

Tech erased a 14-point Texas lead in the second half but missed two shots in the final few seconds of regulation play that would have won the game. The loss dropped Tech to 9-6 in the SWC.

Purdue 80, Minnesota 56

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Joe Barry Carroll scored 29 points Saturday as 13th-ranked Purdue, running off 14 straight points midway through the first half and 12 straight in the final period, smashed Minnesota 80-56 to remain one game out of first place in the Big Ten basketball race.

Ohio State and Iowa, both winners on Saturday, remained tied for first in the conference. Michigan State, also a winner, is tied with Purdue going into their showdown at East Lansing next Thursday.

The Boilermakers, now 10-4 in the conference and 20-6 overall, trailed only once in the game, 8-6, after Arnette Hallman's two baskets and two free throws helped the Boilermakers to a 6-2 lead in the opening minutes.

Ohio St. 88, N'western 73

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Kelvin Ransey poured in 25 points and Herb Williams added 19 Saturday to lead 17th-ranked Ohio State to an 88-73 victory over Northwestern in a Big Ten basketball game.

The Buckeyes assured themselves of at least a share of the Big Ten lead as they hiked their record to 11-3 in the conference and 16-7 overall.

Northwestern slipped to 1-13 and 5-18 although the Wildcats came back in the second half to take a 54-51 lead before Ransey hit six straight points to put the Buckeyes ahead to stay 57-54.

Mich. St. 80, Michigan 57

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Playmaker Earvin Johnson scored 21 points — 15 in the first half — and Gregory Kelser added 20 as eighth-ranked Michigan State routed archrival Michigan 80-57 Saturday to keep the Spartans in the thick of the Big Ten basketball title race.

The defending Big Ten champs blew Michigan off the court in the first half, opening up a 22-point bulge at intermission, 38-16. While the resurgent Spartan attack ran smoothly for Michigan State's seventh consecutive triumph, the Wolverines were as cold as the weather from the floor and committed 20 turnovers in the first half.

The victory left Michigan State at 10-4 in the conference and 18-5 overall. Michigan is 7-7 and 13-9.

Iowa 67, Illinois 53

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Iowa scored the game's first 10 points, with Dick Peth nailing eight of them, and Ronnie Lester finished with 19 Saturday to lead the 14th-ranked Hawkeyes to a 67-53 victory over Illinois in a Big Ten basketball game.

The victory gave the Hawkeyes an 11-3 conference record and enabled them to retain a share of first place with Ohio State, which defeated Northwestern 88-73.

Kevin Boyle opened the scoring for the Hawkeyes and Peth then added eight quick points, including six on a pair of threepoint plays. Illinois never caught up.

Knockout Blow

Undefeated John Tate pounds heavyweight Duane Bobick into the corner in the first round of a nationally-televised fight in Indianapolis yesterday. The blow was enough for the referee to stop the fight, boosting Tate's title hopes. (AP Laserphoto)

Bobick KO'd In First

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Undefeated John Tate stopped Duane Bobick in the first round of a nationally televised heavyweight fight Saturday to boost his hopes for a shot at the World Boxing Association championship.

Tate, 18-0, came out swinging and quickly had Bobick reeling on the ropes. Midway in the round, Bobick was rocked to the canvas with a right and took the mandatory eight count. Bobick got up, but Tate then stormed back in, hammering Bobick into a neutral corner with a series of rights and lefts until referee George DeFabis stepped in and stopped the contest.

The loss was the third in 51 fights for Bobick, once regarded as "The Great White Hope" for the heavyweight championship. He had won eight straight fights since a loss to Kallie Knoetze in South Africa early in 1978.

The victory puts Tate in line for a May fight with Gerrie Coetze of South Africa in what promoter Bob Arum said will be an elimination fight to determine the WBA champion if Muhammad Ali renounces the title. Former champion Leon Spinks and Knoetze also are scheduled for the elimination tournament. Larry Holmes is recognzied as champion by the World Boxing Council.

The knockout, which came 2:16 into the fight, was the 15th of the 24-year-old's pro career.

Tate, enjoying a 22½-pound weight advantage over Bobick, said he was shocked by the quick ending.

"I trained to go 10 rounds and I was shocked to see him buckle so early," Tate said.

He said it was an overhand right that stunned Bobick, who was defeated for the second time in his pro career in the first round on national television. The first loss was to Ken Norton.

"A left hook and an overhand right followed," said Tate, "and I knew he was hurt. I wanted to finish it right then."

A disappointed Bobick, from Bowlus, Minn., said he was unsure about ever fighting again.

"Naturally, I'm disturbed how things went. It's hard to say what I'll do. We'll have to check things out and see where we go from here."

Bobick's manager, Dave Wolf, agreed. "It's a terrible disaster when your best friend loses like that," Wolf said.

Rosie Thompson poured in 30 points to pace East Carolina's Lady Pirates to a 94-82 victory over Appalachian State last night in the final home game of the year for the Lady Bucs.

The ECU women had little trouble in the game, rolling out to a 16-point halftime lead, and running it to as much as 26 before allowing a modest comeback by the Mountaineers during the final five minutes.

The Pirates led all the way, moving from a 2-2 tie after less than a minute to run off eight straight and take a 10-2 lead as April Ross put in six of those 10.

After that, the Pirates steadily pulled away throughout most of the half, building up a 16-point margin at 31-17 with just over six minutes left. That lead eventually reached 19 at 36-17, and the Pirates settled for a 47-31 margin at intermission.

Appalachian State rallied behind the scoring of Nina Foust during the first five minutes of the second half, cutting the lead to 10 points, 53-43, before Gail Kerbaugh and Rosie Thompson sparked a 20-4 outburst that put it out of reach at 73-47 with just under 10 minutes left to play.

"We were a little worried about Appalachian," Coach Kathy Andruzzi said. "They gave State a very tough game and we knew that they were capable of beating anyone. They don't have super players, but they are all good. We knew that they would try to press us, but Lydia (Rountree) did a very good job of bringing the ball down against them.

"We played conservatively in the first half to keep from getting into foul trouble."

Andruzzi praised the play of Rountree, Lynne Emerson and Ross, saying Ross may have had her best game in a Pirate uniform. It was the final home appearance for the Bath senior.

Ross finished with 16 points, while Kerbaugh had 15, Rountree had 14 and Emerson had 11. Marcia Girven pulled down 18 rebounds, while Thompson had 13 and Ross 10.

For ASU, Foust was the high scorer with 22, while Tiana McEntire had 17, Carol Almond had 19 and Murial Higginbotham had 14. Higginbotham had 17 rebounds for the Mountaineers.

East Carolina, now 16-10, closes out the regular season Monday at Virginia Commonwealth, then travels to Boone on Thursday for the State AIAW tournament.

E. Carolina—Thompson 10-10-30, Ross 8-0-16, Girven 4-0-8, Kerbaugh 7-1-15, Rountree 6-2-14, Emerson 4-3-11, Young 0-0-0, Barnes 0-0-0, Howell 0-0-0.

Tech Avenges Loss To Pirates...

In addition to Brown's 30 and Drummer's 25, Lenny Horton hit 13 and pulled off 10 rebounds, as Tech held a 29-26 rebounding edge.

East Carolina was led by Mack with 22, while Krusen, who played only briefly in the second half, had 12. "We needed more defensive quickness in the game," Gillman said of Krusen's absence.'

Both Mack and Cornelius, the only two seniors on the team were honored with the presentation of plaques before the game.

GCA Dumps Bethel

BETHEL — Greenville Christian Academy's boys defeated Bethel Academy 63-54 last night, but the GCA girls were beaten 55-24.

The Knights were ahead 13-6 at the end of the first quarter, but Bethel pulled to 26-25 at the half. Bethel led 43-42 at the end of the third quarter, but the Knights had a 20-11 scoring advantage in the final period.

Ben Haddock led all scorers with 23 points for GCA, while Steve Tyburski had 16 and Marshal Crumpler 12. Jones scored 17 and Brown 11 for Bethel.

The Lady Knights trailed by a 7-6 score at the end of the first quarter of their game, but were blitzed in the second period 28-4 for a 35-10 Bethel lead at the half. Bethel coasted to a victory.

None of the GCA players hit double figures, while Rhonda Stroud had 22, Susie Jaman 17 and Cindy Nobles 14 for Bethel.

Lady Bucs Take 2nd

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. — East Carolina finished second in a four-team women's gymnastics meet here Saturday afternoon.

The Pirates, now 4-5, scored 97.65 points to finish behind host Georgia College with 112.75 points. The University of the South was third at 57.15, while Jacksonville State appeared late and was required to forfeit.

In individual competition, Susan McKnight and Elizabeth Jackson of ECU tied for fifth in vaulting at 7.05. Jackson was fourth on the balance beam at 6.6.

In all-around competition, Jackson finished fourth at 25.35, while McKnight was fifth at 24.60.

Tar Heels Pin Bucs

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina's wrestling team fell to the University of North Carolina here yesterday by a decisive 33-14 margin.

The Pirates, who dropped to 1-8, won only three matches, one by a pin.

Summary:

118: Dave Cooke (NC) won by forfeit.

Trio Competes

RALEIGH — Three Greenville girls competed in the state high school gymnastics championships at Athens High here yesterday.

Kerri Logue took third place on the balance beam and second in vaulting in the compulsory division and was also second in vaulting in the optional division.

Ninth-grader Tracy Fearrington, although not eligible for awards, placed in the balance beam, floor exercise and vaulting in the compulsory division.

The third member of the group, Susan Lewis, competed in class 3, for beginners, and had an all-around score of 30.05, but did not make the top six.

Pace Splits

Christ The King's girls defeated St. Peters 17-12 yesterday, while the St. Peters boys won their game 42-21. Steve Holloman of St. Peters was the only player in either game to score in double figures with 28.

Knights Hold Off Rampants

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

RED OAK — Rose High School's shooting eyes, dulled by the dark, finally adjusted to the light, but it was too late Friday night, as Northern Nash gained a 72-62 win over the Rampants in the final regular season game of the year.

The Lady Knights also downed Rose, 63-39, while the Rampant Cubs took a 76-74 junior varsity win.

Northern Nash's gym, not one of the more favored places to play in the Division I Conference, is poorly lit at one end, and adequately lit at the other. The problem is caused by a dropped ceiling that was put in for acoustical purposes, since the gym also serves as the school's auditorium. The lighting from that ceiling is poor, and at least three of the lights over the floor were not functioning, making it dimmer still.

It all works to make the home court advantage something more than usual.

Rose opened the game in the dark, and hit on only two of its first 22 shots over the first ten-plus minutes of play. In the second half, it took a little while to adjust to the brighter light at the other end, and at the end of the third period, Rose was shooting only 32.7 per cent from the floor. That was finally increased to 40.3 per cent as the Rampants hit on 11 of 18 in the final period to rally back within six points before finally bowing to the Knights.

The shooting problems, plus the handicap of having two starters benched, caused Rose more headaches.

"Derwin Clemons missed the bus," Coach Jim Brewington said, "and Donald House, who started, got sick, and played only a few minutes. I don't know what's wrong with him, and I can't explain why Derwin didn't show up.

"I do know that it's hard to win when you're in a situation like that."

Brewington said it took the whole half for Rose to adjust to the Northern gym. "We played a decent game in the second half. But a couple of key turnovers there at the end cost us the chance to really catch up. I think the kids played well after they got the feel of it."

The loss left Rose with a 7-7 league mark and a 9-13 overall record. Rose ended up in a tie with Rocky Mount for fifth place, and a drawing was to be held Saturday morning to resolve that tie, and one for third between Beddingfield and Fike. Those two draws would determine the seedings for the district tournament, which starts Monday. (See other story in the sports section for tournament pairings.)

As far as the girls are concerned, the Rampettes ended up 6-8 in the league and 9-11 overall. They finished in fifth place, and will play fourth place Beddingfield. The time and date for that game was to be set late Saturday after the boys' pairings were established.

While Rose was suffering with its shooting woes, the Knights, more accustomed to their own home court, were hitting at a high percentage, finishing with an even 60 per cent.

During the first period, the Knights, led by six points from Nathan Arrington, blasted out to a 16-4 lead, never trailing. The Knights hit on six of 13 shots, while Rose made only two of 14 tries.

The Rampants went on to miss the next seven shots before finally connecting with 5:08 left in the second period. By then, Northern had run its lead to 16 points, 20-4.

The Rampants put on a rally during the period, hitting eight straight to close the gap to seven, 24-17, but Northern pulled away again for a 32-19 halftime lead.

In the third period, Northern hit another streak, getting ten in a row to up its lead to 19, 46-27, and they carried a 54-37 margin into the final quarter.

Rose finally came to life in the final period, and after being down 58-41, dumped in 11 straight to cut the lead to six, 58-52 with 3:20 left. But from then on, except for one time, Northern matched each Rose basket.

The key came when Rose, with a chance to cut the margin to four at 64-58, turned the ball over with 1:45 to go, and Northern used the turnaround to up the lead to eight again, 66-58, with 1:29 left. That sealed it for the Knights.

Arrington finished the game with 22 points, while Kenny Harper had 12 and David Wells had 10. Wallace Brown and Dennis Ross each scored 15 for Rose, while Calvin Whichard had 14 and Cliff Kilpatrick had 10.

In the girls' game, it was over early, as Northern pulled away after a close first period. Rose never led, but stayed close, and trailed only 14-10 after eight minutes.

But Northern then ran off the first seven points of the second period, and added another streak of seven to run its lead to 32-18 by the end of the half.

Midway through the third period, the margin reached 20 at 40-20, and Rose trailed, 47-30, as the quarter ended. Northern outhit Rose, 16-9, in the final period to wrap it up.

"I really thought we played well," Rose coach Robert Carraway said. "That may sound surprising, but considering the fact that we couldn't match up talent-wise, we did well for what we have. Even when we were down 20 points, the girls were still trying and doing the things that I told them to do. We moved the ball well on offense, we just didn't shoot well."

Marcia Richardson led Northern with 23 points, while Janice Williams had 20 and Loretta Harrison had 18. Rose was led by Donna Cullipher with 12 and Kathy Streeter with 10.

JV—Rose 76, Northern Nash 74.

Knights In 76-39 Win

NEW BERN — Greenville Christian Academy got back on the winning side of the ledger Friday night with a 76-39 victory over Calvary Academy of New Bern.

Greenville jumped out to a 16-11 lead in the first period and never trailed after that. They increased their lead to 27-19 during the second period, and upped the margin to 45-33 before the horn sounded to end the third frame.

In the final quarter, the Knights poured in 31 points, while holding Calvary to just six, as they completed the rout.

Ben Haddock led the Knight scoring with 14 points, while Steve Tyburski had 12 and Richard Smith and Sammy Harris each had ten.

Calvary was led by Steve Cuthrell and John Nannay both with ten points.

Petty Hopeful Fate Might Smile On Him

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Editor

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "We've changed about everything but the driver," struggling Richard Petty said on the eve of Sunday's 21st annual Daytona 500 stock car classic. "And I'm sitting in the seat all I can to keep them from changing that."

Petty, who has won the race a record five times, did not sound like one of the confident hopefuls for the $600,000 chase, but he held out hope that fate might smile on him as it did Bobby Allison last year.

"We're behind on speed for sure. But maybe that won't make that much difference. Bobby won here last year and he wasn't really that strong on horsepower," explained Petty, who starts a distant 13th in his new Oldsmobile 442.

Petty's qualifying speed was a decisive five miles an hour off. Buddy Baker's record-breaking pole-position effort of 196.049 mph.

"We're still in the changing stage," continued Petty, still looking for the right combination after failing to win his last 45 consecutive starts — a record for the driver with 185 career victories. "Our problem in the 125-mile qualifying race was handling. We're trying to correct that. We've changed just about everything."

Baker and Donnie Allison start in the front row. Cale Yarborough and Darrell Waltrip are in the next line. Of that group only Yarborough, winner of the last three straight national championships, is a former Daytona 500 champ.

"It looks like those three or four front cars can really go — Buddy, Donnie, Cale and Darrell. Then comes Benny Parsons and several others," Petty said.

Parsons seems to be just slightly behind the front four in speed, but a little better off than Petty, Bobby Allison, David Pearson, A.J. Foyt and a few others. But Parsons wouldn't bet his money on anyone but Baker.

"It's going to take a miracle to beat Baker," Parsons predicted.

Parsons' crew chief, Ducky Newman, said, "The biggest break we could hope for would be if the new engine they put in Baker's car isn't as strong as the one he's been using."

Baker's crew chief Herb Nab quickly doused that hope, "Uh-uh. The car is still running super good. So far we've done our homework, and the driver has done his part. All the long hours of hard work are about to pay off."

Hawks, A-G Girls In Upset Victories

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

SPRING HOPE — It was a night when number two tried harder in the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament Friday as the two regular season second-place finishers knocked off the top seeds in both the boys' and girls' finals.

In a pair of thrilling ballgames that were both undecided until the final buzzer, Ayden-Grifton's girls upended Southwest Edgecombe, 42-41, and North Lenoir's boys slipped past Farmville Central 51-49 at Southern Nash High School.

Ayden-Grifton trailed only once in the girls' game, but it took a missed Southwest Edgecombe shot with just seconds remaining to assure the Chargerettes of a victory.

Alphelia Jenkins canned a shot from the right baseline at the beginning of the final period to give the Lady Cougars their only lead of the night 34-33. The Chargerettes went back out in front and led by four, 41-37, when Marie Lewis got a clear drive down the lane after running about a minute off the clock.

That came with just over three minutes left in the game. But the Southwest hopes weren't dead. Cornelia Howard hit a pair of free throws, and after Shanda Brock got the second of a two-shot foul, Daphne Mabry stole the ball and scored on a layup with 27 seconds remaining that made it 42-41.

Ayden-Grifton missed twice at the line with 14 and 13 seconds left and Howard snagged the rebound after the second missed free throw. The Lady Cougars called time out with 11 seconds left to set up a play, but missed a shot from the baseline and Brock got the rebound and ran out the clock.

Ayden-Grifton coach Kathy Purvis said the game was "too close for me." She added that her team played much better than in its semifinal game against D. H. Conley and probably played "the best ball they have played all season."

The Chargerettes would have been content to just run out the clock with their four-point lead in the final minutes, but the Lady Cougars prevented that, Purvis noted. "Basically, what we wanted to do with a four-point lead was stall as much time as we could. When they got up with us, we didn't have much choice but to go."

Aretha Cannon was the star of the first quarter for Ayden-Grifton, while Brock, who was the leading Chargerette scorer with 13, came to life in the second as A-G built up a nine-point lead at one point.

They led 23-16 at the half, and were up 29-20 in the third quarter when Southwest reeled off eight straight points to cut the margin to one. It was never more than four after that.

Purvis said the Chargerettes' 27 per cent free throw shooting performance was one of the factors that allowed the Lady Cougars to make the game close. In the final 14 seconds, Ayden-Grifton missed twice in one-and-one situations.

"That was probably the worst free throw shooting we've done all year," she said. "If we had hit them, we wouldn't have had much problem."

The Chargerettes, by virtue of their second-place finish during the regular season, will go into next week's district 3-A tournament at Williamston as the number two seed from the ECC. They will play Roanoke, the number three team from the Northeastern Conference, in the first round Monday night.

Purvis said the Squaws are a much faster team than her ballclub and the Chargerettes will have to work on defending the fast break before that ballgame.

Farmville Central, which led only once in the second half, tied the game at 49-49 on a pair of clutch free throws by Donald Freeman with 54 seconds left. North Lenoir then brought the ball downcourt and ran the clock down to nine seconds before calling time out to set up a play.

There were nine seconds to play, only a lot of people, including Jaguar coach Mike Terrell and his team, thought there were only four seconds left because the top middle two ights in the final digit on the clock were burned out. That made 0:09 look like 0:04.

"I misread the clock," Terrell said later. "If I had known there were nine seconds left, I would have gone to a man-to-man defense." Instead, the Jaguars used a zone as the Hawks took the ball out under their own basket. "I knew with four seconds left, they would try to shoot the ball quick," Terrell noted.

North Lenoir coach Jerry Walton was watching the clock in the closing moments and began to signal for his players to call time out with 12 seconds left. When he looked up at the clock after the referee blew his whistle, he knew there were more than four seconds remaining.

"We checked with the timer and found out there were nine seconds left; that was the first thing we checked," Walton said after the game. The Hawks went back out onto the court after the time out to see Farmville's defense and then called another time out.

"I was surprised to see they had gone back in a zone like that," Walton said.

The ball was passed in to Johnny Wiggins, about 20 feet out, to the right of the key. He took a couple of dribbles and fired it to Dexter Rouse, who drove down the lane and layed in the winning shot with two seconds left.

A-G, CBA Pace All-Conference

SPRING HOPE — Ayden-Grifton's second-place girls and C. B. Aycock's fifth-place boys paced the Eastern Carolina All-Conference teams named Friday night at the conclusion of the league tournament at Southern Nash High School.

Three Chargerettes, Mary Rowe and Irene and Marie Lewis, were named to the girls' team, along with Southwest Edgecombe's Alphelia Jenkins, North Lenoir's Mary Rhodes, North Pitt's Cynthia Barnes, C. B. Aycock's Renee Hales and Debra Proctor, Conley's Glenda Green and Farmville Central's Pam Moye.

Aycock's Barry Uzzell, Jeff Best and James Whitley all made the boys' all-conference team. They were named along with North Lenoir's Amos Pearcill and Johnny Wiggins, Farmville Central's Donald Freeman and Calvin Horne, North Pitt's Reginald Knight, Greene Central's James Best and Conley's Shawn Little.

Conley's Norma Respess and Ayden-Grifton's Kathy Purvis shared girls' coach-of-the-year honors, while Farmville's Mike Terrell got the boys' coach award.

Many of the girls' all-conference players repeated on the all-tournament team, including Jenkins. Rowe, Green, Barnes, Irene Lewis and Proctor. Also named to the girls' team were Southwest's Harriet McNeal, North Lenoir's Cynthia Sherrod, Ayden-Grifton's Shanda Brock and Conley's Cassandra Tyson.

Among the boys, Knight, Best, Uzzell, Wiggins, Pearcill, Freeman and Little were named to the all-tournament team, along wiht Farmville's Earl Harris and Jeff Tyson and Conley's Daryl Thompson.

Blue Devils Fall To Terps

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Greg Manning hasn't been starting for Maryland's up-and-down basketball team lately, but he no longer gets those nagging queries from back home.

The sophomore guard from Steelton, Pa., came through in the clutch again Friday night, scoring 23 points and sinking an eight-foot jumper with three seconds remaining to give the Terps a 70-68 upset victory over fifth-ranked Duke.

Three weeks ago, Manning drove into the lane and passed off to Larry Gibson for a three-point play with one second left, providing a 67-66 decision over then-No. 1 Notre Dame.

Manning started 13 games early in the season, then scored only 33 points during a five-game slump.

"When I first started coming off the bench," Manning said, "I had to fight so it wouldn't get me down. I was getting letters and calls from back home, asking what was wrong. I didn't know what to tell them. I haven't heard anything lately...I guess they're afraid."

Manning, who wound up playing 35 minutes, hit 10 of 14 shots and handed off six assists in the Atlantic Coast Conference game. Dutch Morley, another guard who didn't start, had 10 points and five assists.

Duke, 18-5 after losing two of its last three games, rallied to tie the score after Maryland took a 68-62 lead with 3:50 left on a Morley-assisted Manning field goal.

Maryland, 16-8, controlled the ball until calling time with 15 seconds remaining to set up the final play.

"If we couldn't get the ball inside," Coach Lefty Driesell said, "we were supposed to shoot with four or five seconds left. That way, we'd have a chance for a tap-in if we missed, and the worst we get would be overtime."

"Give all the credit to Manning," said Duke Coach Bill Foster. "He played a great game and made the shot at the end. They cut our transition baskets down and got a couple themselves."

Maryland's zone collapsed on Duke center Mike Gminski, the second-leading scorer in the ACC who was held to 14 points while getting off just 11 shots.

Banks led Duke with 16 points, but was charged with seven turnovers. Bender and Spanarkle had 12 points each for the Blue Devils, who led three times by just one point.

Duke, 8-2 in the ACC, had its league lead reduced to one-half game over North Carolina, 7-2, with a showdown between the two at Duke next Saturday. Maryland, which has played six Top Ten teams in its last 10 games, is 5-5 in the ACC.

The only other member of The Associated Press Top Twenty to see action was No. 15 Temple, which crushed American University 103-67 in an East Coast Conference game. The Owls, who boosted their record to 20-3, were led by Rick Reed's 20 points, including nine consecutive field goals. They are 9-0 in the conference.

Five other Owls were in double figures as Temple posted its highest point total since 1971.

Another Philadelphia team, Penn, remained unbeaten in Ivy League play, defeating Dartmouth 59-54 behind Matt White's 17 points. The Quakers are 16-4 overall, 8-0 in Ivy competition.

Dartmouth held a 30-27 halftime lead but Penn went on a 16-2 burst at the start of the second half. The losers pulled to within one point with 3:59 remaining but Penn scored six straight points to seal the triumph.

In other Ivy games, Alton Byrd's short jump shot with three seconds left gave Columbia a 64-62 victory over Yale, Peter Dolan's layup with three seconds left enabled Brown to edge Cornell 50-49 and Bob Roma's 22 points helped Princeton beat Harvard 65-60.

Elsewhere, Lawrence Butler, the nation's leading scorer, turned in his seventh 30-pointplus game in his last eight outings as Idaho State beat Big Sky rival Montana State 89-83. Butler hit 13 of 25 floor shots and 11 of 13 from the foul line for 37 points.

Sophomore center Steve Johnson poured in 23 points, 16 in the second half, as Oregon State downed Washington State 66-52 to climb into third place in the Pacific-10 Conference. The Beavers, 16-6 overall, are 9-5 in the conference, one-half game behind Southern California. Washington State dropped to 16-6 and 8-5.

The Beavers outscored Washington State 17-7 in the first seven minutes of the second half for a 40-27 lead as Johnson dropped in nine points. Johnson, the Pac-10 leader in field goal percentage, sank 10 of 17 attempts.

Jamesville Wins On Final Basket

WASHINGTON — Jamesville gained the finals of the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference basketball tournament Friday night by the skin of its teeth, taking a 56-55 win over Belhaven.

In Saturday night's finals at Washington, Jamesville was to meet Pantego for the boys' title. It was their third meeting for the year, each having won one game earlier. In the girls' finale, Chocowinity took on regular season champion Belhaven.

Belhaven jumped out into the lead in the first period of the boys game. Jamesville last held the lead at 6:38 at 4-2, and saw the game tied at 4-4 with 5:55 left to play. After that, Jamesville was able to tie the score on several occasions, but they never led until the final two seconds.

Belhaven led, 19-13, at the end of the first period and held a 32-28 margin at the half.

Jamesville cut it back to 46-43 going into the final period, and finally gained the lead back, and just in time, when Tommy DiNardo hit a short jumper from the lane with just two seconds left to make it 56-55—the final score.

Williamston Girls, Pam Pack Boys Win

AHOSKIE — Everything went according to plan Friday night in the Northeastern Conference Tournament finals as Washington's boys and Williamston's girls captured the championship to go with their regular season titles.

Washington's boys downed Roanoke, a first year entry into the conference, 50-28, to remain unbeaten this year. In fact, Washington hasn't lost since the opening game of the 1977-78 season when Conley pulled off the upset win.

In the girls' game, Washington and Williamston matched points in the first quarter, which ended in an 8-8 tie. Washington pulled away in the second quarter, however, to take a 23-18 halftime lead.

The Tigerettes came clawing back in the third period to erase the lead and knot it at 32-32 at the horn. Then, in the final quarter, Williamston outhit Washington, 16-10, to gain the title.

Sharon Speller led Williamston with 18 points, while Kathy Everett had 12 and Jan Rogerson added 10. Brenda Minns led Washington with 13.

Roanoke tried a tight zone around Dominique Wilkins on defense and a slow down on offense, but it still couldn't stop the potent Washington show.

Washington was able to gain only an 11-7 lead after the first period, and could stretch it to just 20-15 at the half.

The Pam Pack got a little more breathing room in the third period, 32-21, then pulled away in the final quarter, 18-7, to wrap up their 23rd win of the year.

Wilkins finished with 20 points, while Shawn Williams added 11 and Antoine Jackson had 10. Edward Ward paced Roanoke with 10.

New Bulls Coach Gets Greeting--A Victory

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Chicago guard John Mengelt wasn't surprised his team's coach, Larry Costello, got fired.

"We all knew something would happen, and it sure did," said Mengelt. "Someone has to be blamed and somebody has to pay for it. That's the axiom in the sports world and that's the lesson of life."

Mengelt's big surprise came later Friday night — with six seconds remaining in the Bulls' game against the New York Knicks. Chicago's five-point lead had been trimmed to one and New York had the ball when Knicks guard Ray Williams tried a court-length drive, only to be called for charging.

Mengelt said he was "really shocked" at the call. "I didn't see Williams touch anybody. The referee held up his fingers indicating 24 had committed a foul and the only 24 is on the Bulls (Reggie Theus)."

But the call went the other way, and after Wilbur Holland sank a pair of free throws two seconds later, the Bulls — in their first game under interim coach Scotty Robertson, formerly Costello's assistant — had a 107-104 victory over the Knicks.

In other National Basketball Association games, the Golden State Warriors beat the Washington Bullets 109-103, the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Phoenix Suns 119-104, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Los Angeles Lakers 99-98, the Kansas City Kings topped the Philadelphia 76ers 119-104, the San Antonio Spurs nipped the Portland Trail Blazers 121-120 in overtime, the Detroit Pistons downed the Houston Rockets 110-96, the Indiana Pacers beat the New Jersey Nets 105-100 and the San Diego Clippers defeated the Denver Nuggets 118-104.

Warriors 109, Bullets 103

Rookie forward Wayne Cooper scored 10 points in a fourth-quarter comeback which gave the Warriors a costly victory over Washington.

The Bullets took an 83-72 lead into the last period, but the Warriors went ahead to stay 103-101 with 2:56 remaining on a three-point play by center Robert Parish. In the last minute, five technical fouls were called against Washington. Bullets Coach Dick Motta and his assistant, Bernie Bickerstaff, were ejected for their protests over a foul call.

Sonics 119, Suns 104

Dennis Johnson scored a career-high 30 points on 13-for-18 shooting for the Sonics and also did the job at the other end, holding Paul Westphal, the Suns' all-star guard, to 17 points on 6-for-17 shooting.

Bucks 99, Lakers 98

Pacers 105, Nets 100

Rouse was the surprise hero of the game, leading all scorers with 15 points. The Jaguar defense held the usually high-scoring Wiggins and Amos Pearcill to just seven and five points, respectively.

"As the game went on, I didn't realize he had done so well," Walton said of Rouse's performance. "When they told me he had 15 points, I couldn't believe it."

Randy Johnson scored 11 and John Cratch 10 for the Hawks. Farmville Central was led by Donald Reid with 12, and Donald Freeman and James Tyson with 10 each.

Foul problems hurt the Jaguars, especially in the first half. Farmville Central sent the Hawks to the line 12 times in the they hit 17 foul shots en route to a 33-25 halftime lead.

"We let them go to the free throw line too much," Terrell said. Besides the points given up there, the Jaguar defense was hurt by having two players with three fouls before halftime and a number of others with two. "I think they were a little hesitant about being aggressive on defense," he commented.

Behind by 10 early in the third quarter, the Jaguars ran off 12 straight points. Donald Reid scored the first six on a pair of follow shots and a jumper from the corner. Earl Harris added a tip-in, James Tyson hit a layup and Jeff Tyson popped in two free throws to put Farmville ahead, their only lead of the second half.

The Jaguars tied the game several times in the fourth quarter and had a chance to go ahead, but missed the first end of a one-and-one with 1:47 left.

"North Lenoir played well. They got a lot of easy shots in the first half," Terrell said. "Of course, the first half really doesn't mean that much. We came out and played very well in the third quarter, and even into the fourth quarter.

"These guys have won 13 in a row," the Farmville coach said of his team, "I just hate this was the game it came to an end. But, I feel like we'll bounce back and have a good district."

The Jaguars will play Tarboro, the number four team from the Northeastern Conference, Monday night.

'Nuisance Symptoms' Can Be Relieved

I am 58 and have had four children. None of the deliveries were complicated. In recent months, I find that whenever I sneeze, cough or even laugh, I lose some of my urine. I've been told that an operation can correct this. Are these operations usually successful? — Mrs. E.M., S.C.

Dear Mrs. M:

Many women who have given birth to a number of children complain of these "nuisance symptoms" that distress you. They are a nuisance, but usually do not suggest any real trouble.

During childbirth, the muscles and the ligaments that support the uterus and the vagina may be stretched, or may even tear. After a number of years, there is a descent of the uterus into the vagina that may often cause disturbances of the urinary bladder and the rectum. The severity of the symptoms depends on the extent of the prolapsed uterus.

Sometimes, a pessary is used to keep the cervix and uterus in its normal position. This, however, is not a cure. It is only supportive of the uterus and cannot be used as a permanent substitution for suggested surgery.

Surgery for the cure of prolapse of the uterus is highly successful. A plastic repair is used to reconstruct and reinforce those ligaments and muscles that seem to be functionless. The operation carries no greater risk than does any other surgery under general anesthesia. If surgery has been suggested, it undoubtedly was done by a surgeon or gynecologist with discriminating judgment. It certainly is advisable that you follow that opinion and give yourself the advantage of relief from the nuisance symptoms.

Is there any candy or gum that can be helpful in breaking the cigarette habit? — Miss J.V., N.Y.

Dear Miss V.:

Although there is no scientific explanation, a great many people have found that the taste of licorice is effective is reducing the need for a cigarette. Most smokers have themselves noted that, after eating or drinking, there is a particularly great desire to smoke a cigarette. At this time, licorice in candy or chewing gum form seems to modify that desire.

Licorice comes from the dried root of glycyrrhiza glabra. For many years it has been used for a variety of purposes, as an expectorant and even as a laxative.

Some people say they have actually been able to kick the smoking habit by substituting licorice chewing gum or lozenges. When swallowed in pill form, however, it does not serve this purpose.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... All baby sitters should be carefully interviewed and screened before trusting them with your young children. When there is pressure or an urgent need for a baby sitter, parents are sometimes careless about such scrutiny. Similarly, baby sitters, too, need to be protected. Parents of baby sitters should be just as discriminating and make sure that their children are returned to the safety of their home after "sitting."

New Housing Construction Declines

By LEE GOULD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's housing market is reeling under a triple blow of soaring costs, rising interest rates and inflation, according to the latest government figures.

The three combined to push new housing construction to its lowest level in two years last month, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The department said housing starts in January declined to an annual rate of 1,656,000 units, down 20 percent from the December rate of 2,062,000.

"As we anticipated, the high interest rates and inflation are driving potential home buyers away from the market," said Vondal Gravlee, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Adding to those negative factors are Commerce Department figures released only 10 days ago showing the price of an average new house rose from $58,799 last November to $61,100 in December. Only a year earlier, in December 1977, the median sale price had been $52,700, the department said.

Although mortgage interest rates have climbed above 10 percent, housing construction had averaged about 2 million units in each of the past two years. However, most economists predicted a housing slowdown this year because of a tightening of the credit money market.

Commerce Department officials also reported Friday that single-family housing starts declined 26 percent from December to January — to 1,136,000 units. And it said January building permits were down 18 percent, to an annual rate of 1,363,000.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said personal income grew only 0.4 percent in January, down from the 1.2 prcent rate of increase reported in December.

Some economists expressed fear that the decline in housing starts, coupled with a small rise in the combined income of all Americans, reflected a slowing in the economy that could lead to a recession.

There were these other economic developments Friday:

—The Federal Reserve Board said the nation's factories operated at a lower rate of capacity in January for the first time in a year.

It said capacity utilization in manufacturing slipped from 86.1 percent to 85.9 percent last month. The last decline was 1.3 percent in January of last year. However, the board pointed out that "in both of these months, inclement weather affected output somewhat in certain regions of the country."

—The Carter administration won a qualified endorsement of its effort to hold down spiriling hospital costs.

The National Council of Community Hospitals, which represents about 100 community hospitals, said it approved of voluntary guidelines "because we feel very strongly that inflation is the nation's No. 1 domestic problem."

Washington Birthday Sales

Merchants in various areas of Greenville are planning to celebrate George Washington's birthday next week with special sales, some of them lasting throughout the week.

A spokesman for the Downtown Greenville Association said Friday that many of the merchants in the downtown section will have sales on Monday, Feb. 19, in observance of the designated Washington holiday, while others in the section will continue sales through the whole week.

Pitt Plaza merchants will have special George Washington's birthday sales on Monday, according to a spokesman, with all of the participating stores observing normal operating hours.

Greenville Square Shopping Center merchants will not observe the birthday period with sales as a group, a spokesman pointed out, although at least three individual merchants in the shopping center plan special sales on Thursday, Feb. 22. The 22nd, it was noted, is the traditional date for Washington's birthday.

Accountants Group To Meet Feb. 21

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will hold its February meeting at the Beef Barn here on Feb. 21 at 6:15 p.m.

The speaker for the dinner meeting will be Kirtland Flynn Jr., a member of the Business Systems Planning Staff of J.P. Stevens & Co. Inc. of Charlotte.

Flynn, a graduate of Colgate University, was elected to membership of the National Association of Accountants in 1952 and he is currently national vice president of the NAA. Flynn will speak on "NAA — Have It Your Way."

KIRTLAND FLYNN

Membership in the chapter is open to men and women of various occupations including corporate officers, executives, auditors, engineers, administrators and others. Persons seeking further information should contact Mickey Dry at Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

Still Openings For N.Y. Trip

The tour to New York City March 1-4, being sponsored by the Degree of Pocahontas, still has a few openings according to Maycie Culbreth, tour director.

The group, traveling by bus, will leave Greenville Thursday, March 1, at 9 p.m. and return back here Sunday night.

Initiated Into Honor Society

Brenda Bedsale and Kathy Riggs of Greenville were among ten business eudcation and office administration students to be initiated into the East Carolina University chapter of Pi Omega Pi, honor society in business eudcation.

Membership in the chapter is open to business education majors with superior academic grade point averages, and high ethical standards in business and professional life.

Revival Set

GRIMESLAND — Revival services will be held at the Gethsemane Pentecostal Holiness Church Feb. 19-23. Services will start nightly at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Jimmy Forehand will be the featured speaker. He is the pastor of the Kinston First Pentecostal Holiness Church and a board member of the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Churches.

Sixth Graders Are Screened

Sixth graders at Wellcome Middle School were screened for scoliosis Wednesday. Title One parents assisted the medical-social counselor and nurses from the Pitt County Community Health Department in the screening.

The fourth Title One meeting is tentatively scheduled for March 6, 7:30 p.m., in Mrs. Cherry's sixth grade reading lab.

Church Music Concert Friday

Over 60 voices will be heard at St. Paul Disciples Disciples Church of Christ in Ayden, Friday, February 23, at 7 p.m.

Featured on the program are three of St. Paul Disciples Church choirs, the senior choir, the number two choir and the Bird of Hope choir. In addition to the sermon, The pastor, Rev. Alexander Matthews will present a sermon and testimonies, poems, responses and songs by special individuals and singing groups will be heard.

The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Robbery In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Approximately $40 was stolen during a strongarm robbery at B. N. Worthington's store, Railroad St., Friday around 1:55 p.m., according to Winterville Police Chief G. I. Jones.

Jones said that Abe Cannon, a store employee, was approached by two black males who asked for a slice of cheese. When Cannon turned to get the item, the men put a cover over Cannon's head and knocked him to the floor. Investigation is pending on the matter, according to Jones.

Vocational Week Held At Wellcome

Wellcome Middle School occupational classes observed National Vocational Education Week Feb. 12-16 with the theme, "Opening New Doors to the Future." Thomas Council and Delores Little's classes celebrated in a variety of ways.

Monday, members of the Career Club visited Beaufort Technical Institute, Washington, for a tour of various departments and a discussion on how to plan their future.

Tuesday, a mini-Career Day was held so that vocational students could listen to various professionals. Bill Huffman, counselor at Chicod Elementary School, spoke on minicomputers and how they may change the future. Les Strayhorn, Title One Attendance Counselor, a former pro football player, spoke to the students about the importance of the relationship between good grades and sports. Tom Harrell, a plumber with East Carolina University, spoke on plumbing as a profession and general plumbing maintenance.

Wednesday, the school hosted the Second Annual Career Day in the Wellcome gymnasium. Over thirty business representatives from across Pitt County talked with students from Wellcome, Bethel Elementary and Greenville Christian Academy.

Thursday, members of the Career Club visited Pitt Technical Institute, touring the facilitites and hearing about the varied opportunities afforded by PTI.

Friday, as a culmination of the special week, teachers were honored with flowers for "opening the doors to the future" for students.

The following groups were saluted by the Career Club over the public address system: Monday, administrative staff; Tuesday, cafeteria staff; Wednesday, janitorial staff; Thursday, students; Friday, the teachers.

END OF AROUND THE WORLD TRIP — Ernest O'Gaffney of Hemet, California guides his motorcycle toward the Empire State Building in New York City Thursday at the end of a 79-day, nearly 35,000 mile motorcycle trip around the world. The 31-year-old former editor made the trip because he wanted to see his name in the Guiness Book of World Records. He presented the machine on which he made the trip to Guiness officials in New York for their museum. (AP Laserphoto)

New Director

Dr. Robert E. Ehinger will begin his duties as director of the Pitt County Health Department, Monday, Ed Warren, chairman of the Board of Health said today.

Warren said Dr. Ehinger replaces Roger Barnaby who resigned from the Health Department post several months ago.

Dr. Ehinger comes to Greenville from West Seneca, N.Y. where he was engaged in the public health field.

Cinderella Affair

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Her name is Vittoria Ianni, a lovely salesgirl in a Rome souvenir shop, but her friends have been calling her the pope's Cinderella ever since she asked John Paul II to officiate at her wedding, and he agreed.

Vittoria popped the question on Jan. 5 when the pontiff, spiritual leader of the world's 750 million Roman Catholics, went to meet a group of Roman streetcleaners and see the creche they had set up for Christmas in a garage.

Vittoria, eldest of six children of streetcleaner Giuseppe Ianni, recounted the meeting in an interview with The Associated Press.

"I realized immediately I was not using the proper words, but his holiness was looking at me so nicely that I felt encouraged and I went on."

She explained she was getting married and asked if the pope would celebrate the wedding Mass.

"He smiled and said yes. I thought I was dreaming and asked him: 'You mean it?' And he nodded and said yes again.

"He moved a few steps on, then turned back and asked: 'But how old are you?' And I said: 22. He looked reasurred.

This week the Vatican formally announced that the pontiff would preside over the wedding of Vittoria and Mario Maltese, 23, on Sunday, Feb. 25.

The ceremony will take place in the Pauline Chapel under the splendor of Michelangelo's frescoes picturing the Conversion of St. Paul and the Crucifixion of St. Peter. Some 160 relatives and friends are expected to join the bride and groom.

For their honeymoon, Vittoria and Mario plan to go to the shrines of Fatima in Portugal and Lourdes in France, where Vittoria says she wants to place her wedding bouquet at the altar of St. Mary.

COX PTA TO MEET

WINTERVILLE — The A. G. Cox School PTA will meet Monday, Feb. 19, 7:30 p.m., in the school multi-purpose room.

Dr. David White of the East Carolina University Eye Clinic will speak on vision, followed by a musical program given by the beginning band, conducted by Mrs. Mamie Dixon.

MASONIC NOTICE

Greenville Lodge No. 284, A. F. & A. M., will hold a stated communication Monday, Feb. 19, 7:30 p.m. All Master Masons are invited.

By WILLIAM CAMPBELL

LEWIS GLACIER, Mount Kenya (UPI) — The three rangers were covered with ice. The controls on the radio were frozen. The blowing snow on Africa's second highest mountain was blinding.

"Tango Papa to Rescue One. My wings are icing up and I'm losing altitude so I'm pulling off the mountain. You guys are going to have to take this one on foot," crackled the instructions from American Phil Snyder, pilot and rescue leader, as he circled the peaks in his Super Cub light plane.

It was only 5 degrees (F) on the equator as the small group of African rangers began their search and rescue patrol for a missing West German mountain climber.

Walking slowly in the thin air along the 16,000-foot Lewis glacier, the three-man team spread out to search for tracks that might lead them to Walter Klose, 50, who had disappered from a climbing hut the morning after he scaled the second highest peak.

The rangers knew from experience that if they didn't find his trail that day they would probably never find him alive.

Behind them the snow-covered peak of Batian (17,058 ft) broke through morning cloud. In front of them a track of day-old boot prints ran down a rock scree and into a vast valley on the mountain's eastern slope.

"Hatari (danger)," ranger John Omira whispered as he checked the boot prints.

"There is no way out of that valley except through the forest and the forest is full of buffalo and mountain elephant."

The rangers checked their own equipment to make sure they had enough food, followed tracks down the scree to 13,500 feet and then back-tracked up a rocky ridge and across a moor where they picked up the first real signs of the missing German.

Thirty-six hours later the rangers found the man. On a ridge, in the middle of nowhere, Klose was wandering dazed and totally confused.

"He didn't know where he was or even who we were," one of the rangers said. "He was very weak and didn't have a bit of food left. Chances are he wouldn't have made it another day."

For the Kenya rescue team finding Klose was the 21st serious rescue in four weeks. On call for the busy December-February climbing season the rangers have been working full time in searches and in carrying sick climbers off the mountain.

Led by Snyder, a 34-year-old American mountain climber, the 25-man African rescue team has earned an international reputation since it was established five years ago.

The team was trained by a crack unit of Austrian mountain rescue experts. Several rangers have traveled to Austria to learn advanced techniques in ice and rock climbing.

Since the rescue team was established the rangers have rescued more than 160 climbers from the snow-covered peaks. Mountain experts credit the rangers with saving scores of lives.

One of the most serious problems the rescue team has learned to deal with is a rare high altitude sickness called pulmonary oedema that fills a climber's lungs with body fluid and can kill a man in less than 12 hours if he is not given medical treatment at a lower altitude.

Just before Christmas six African climbers were carried off the mountain with advanced stages of the condition. One later died in the hospital.

Climbers not familiar with the mountain often get mountain sickness from the high altitude and wander off trails in a daze. It may take the rangers days to find them.

A 25-year-old American climber has been missing since early December and is now presumed dead. He is the first missing climber not to have been found.

The rangers have more than foreign mountain climbers to deal with. The two highest peaks are traditionally the home of several tribal gods.

"I've come to talk with God," she said.

Millions Go Into Skiing

WATERVILLE VALLEY, N.H. (AP) — One of the oldest forms of transportation known to man is now becoming one of America's fastest-growing sports, according to a recent Skiing magazine survey, which shows that more than 3 million Americans cross-country ski.

Cross-country skiing — or Nordic skiing — dates back thousands of years, says John Caldwell. A former member and former coach of the United States Ski Team, which has Eastern headquarters in Waterville Valley, he has done extensive research on the subject.

"Most people think of cross-country skiing as just a popular winter sport," says Caldwell, "but for thousands of years it was a practical form of transportation. Although there is no historical record of the earliest skiers, speculation is that skis were first made of whalebone, and that these skis were used to travel over snow in search of food."

Caldwell, who has taught cross-country skiing for 30 years, points out that history does record several cross-country skiing exploits, beginning as early as 2000 B.C.

Since then, he says, skis have been used for many purposes: American revolutionists in the 1700s used them for traveling to rally support for their causes, groups in Europe have protected heirs to the throne by skiing with them out of dangerous situations, hunters have continued to use skis, and battles have even been fought by ski troops as late as the 1940s.

Nowadays, a few mailmen still use cross-country skis to make deliveries, and in some countries border patrols use skis while making their rounds.

"Although cross-country-type skis have played an important role in history, they are basically used today for recreational purposes," says Caldwell, who serves as consultant for Fleischmann's grassroots cross-country ski programs.

Because cross-country skiing can be done almost anywhere there is snow — ski touring centers, back yards, parks and golf courses, for instance — it has become an ideal sport for families, says Caldwell, who points out children as young as 2 and adults in their 70s and 80s participate in the sport.

"If you can walk, you can ski," he says.

Phonothon Proves Success

ECU News Bureau

The second annual Wake County ECU Phonothon held Feb. 5-6 produced $7,249.50 in pledges to the East Carolina University Alumni Loyalty Fund. Over 40 Wake alumni volunteered their time during the two evenings of telephoning which more than tripled the results of the 1978 Wake County Phonothon.

OUTSIDE MARRIAGE

TUPELO, Miss. (AP) — The National Federation of Decency reports that its monitoring of 762 hours of prime-time programming by the three major television networks found that 88 percent of all sexual affairs depicted were outside of marriage.

A Long, Hard Winter Taking Its Toll In Nebraska

By SUSAN SHRODER

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Winter storms are no strangers to ranchers in the Midlands. But more than three months of near-constant snow is beginning to take its toll on even the hardiest of pioneer spirits.

Pastures normally used for grazing cattle until January were snow-covered from early November. Ranchers hauling feed to stranded livestock plowed through as much as 3 feet of snow, only to wake the next morning and find winds re-covered their trails.

"It's just been a continual battle," says Joe Counselor, county emergency board chairman for Dawes County in northwest Nebraska. "Ranchers have to plow themselves out of their house, plow to the haystack, plow out to feed and then back to the house."

Some Nebraska ranchers say this winter has been worse than the Blizzard of '49 — a storm termed "white hell" that marooned 79,000 persons and nearly two million head of cattle.

In northwestern and north central Nebraska, an 11-county area covering 17,000 square miles has been declared a disaster area by Gov. Charles Thone. North of this area, tribal ranchers on South Dakota's Pine Ridge reservation called for state assistance in feeding their stranded livestock.

The hardest hit Nebraskans are ranchers living 40 or 50 miles from town. Much of the time, they have been unable to get to roads opened by county and state snow removal crews.

In many cases, snowmobiles are the only source of transportation. Pickup trucks and four-wheel drive vehicles have been unable to manage drifts up to 6 feet high.

On the Larry Schufeldt ranch in north central Nebraska, supplies of feed and diesel fuel ran low. Three out of six farm vehicles were broken down under the strain of constant snow removal.

The Schufeldts' ranch was "completely closed off for two weeks" from the nearest town of Whitman, 18 miles away. But Joyce Schufeldt said one thing she had was plenty of food.

"I haven't been grocery shopping since December," she said. "But I buy only by the case. I had 10 in for supper last night. As long as we have anything, we share until it's gone."

Further north, Bobbie and Harold Perrin said their 2,500 acre ranch was surrounded by snow that was "pickup high" in some places. Twice, they had been down to their last supplies of feed for their 2,000 head of cattle. They had received mail only "five or six times" since Thanksgiving.

"It's the first time in 10 years we haven't been able to get out," Mrs. Perrin said.

The Perrins estimate eight or 10 head of cattle had starved to death, although National Guard emergency teams were able to replenish their feed supplies twice.

Estimates of the number of cattle lost because of starvation, dehydration, or pneumonia run from about 1 to 2 percent of the herds.

But what has ranchers even more worried than starvation losses is the upcoming calving season. Poor nutrition will yield smaller calves and a much higher calf loss, they say.

"It's just like a pregnant woman," says National Guard emergency plans officer T. Carl Knoell. "If you're not feeding good in February, you can see what will happen."

Sheridan County Emergency Board Director Lloyd Ott says he would not be surprised if ranchers lost 40 or 50 percent of their calves.

Ranchers said major losses can be avoided if the weather picture improves. But more snow could be devastating.

"One good storm could wipe out all the things we've done so far," said Mickey Stewart of the state agriculture department.

Spring many bring new problems. Some farmers are worried about the shortage of feed because the hay being fed to cattle now is not normally used until March. And quick thaws and heavy rains could mean spring floods.

Lifetime To Saving The Chestnut

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — As a boy, H. Reid Hunter roamed the mountains of north Georgia and saw first hand what the blight had done to a once-mighty forest of American chestnut trees.

The dead hulks of chestnuts dotted the mountain slopes back in the 1920s, brown bony limbs pointing skyward. Others of the giant hardwoods had fallen to the ground, but not yet rotted.

The sight saddened Hunter. He was seized with a desire to do something for the expired giants.

"They were great trees," he said. "Seeing all those dead trees, that's what prompted my initial interest in them. I wanted to find something to replace them with."

It was the beginning of an enduring love affair between Hunter, now 89, and the chestnut tree that continues today on a 21-acre farm in the shadow of Stone Mountain, Ga., just east of Atlanta. He believes a hybridized tree, a cross between an American chestnut and a Chinese chestnut, may be resistant to the blight and could be the way to begin reforestation of the chestnut in the woodlands of America.

Hunter has several hundred Chinese chestnut trees on his farm two miles west of Stone Mountain in the middle of a rapidly developing area of homes and businesses. One of his greatest hopes, he says, is that something can be done to bring back the American chestnut and to save commercially-valuable nuts of the Chinese chestnut from a destructive weevil.

The native chestnut tree helped young America grow strong. Chestnut beams and rails, nearly indestructible, made log cabins and fences and bridges. The tannin of the bark cured leather. Chestnuts made the Appalachian slopes a wildlife paradise.

Chestnuts roasted on a fire made winter nights memorable for many Americans still alive today. Hunter recalls vendors selling roasted chestnuts on street corners in Atlanta.

In 1904 in Bronx Park, New York, a chestnut tree died of Enthothia parasitica, a blight believed to have been imported from China. Birds, insects and wind spread the spores of the fungus. Forestry science was helpless. By 1930, the American chestnut was practically extinct.

It was about that time that Hunter, an education and psychology teacher who retired in 1976, began his first plantings of Chinese chestnuts on his Stone Mountain farm.

"I was one of the first in Georgia to grow them," he said. "I found that they were resistant and in thre or four years I started expanding."

He found a ready market for the nuts from his trees, his customers including nurserymen who wanted them to grow seedlings. He also gave away many seedlings and nuts, shipping them to researchers trying to find the answer to the blight and the weevil.

The researchers, which include the Department of Agriculture and several university schools of forestry, are taking varied approaches toward developing a blight resistant American chestnut. In addition to work on producing a hybridized tree, researchers also are growing trees produced from nuts irridated at nuclear power plants.

Chestnut saplings still grow in the Appalachians but are killed by the blight before reaching maturity.

Recently, scientists at West Virginia University were reported to have devised a way to inoculate the American chestnut with a vaccine against the blight. The WVU scientists are inoculating young saplings with a hypovirulent strain of chestnut blight that prevents the blight fungus from harming a tree. Tree pathologists say similar strains have been successful in curing the blight among chestnuts in Italy.

Hunter, however, is interested in a hybrid Chinese-American chestnut as the answer to the blight and cites work being done in that field by the Department of Agriculture.

"I think that by crossing the Chinese chestnut with the American chestnut, we can bring it back," he says.

The weevil, which ruins the nuts but does not affect the tree, are of more immediate concern to Hunter, whose orchards are littered with thousands of fallen nuts infested with the pest.

The right insecticide or biological control has not yet been found.

RESIDENTIAL LOANS

NCNB Mortgage Corp. has produced $1.0903 billion in residential loans during its ten-year history, according to Dan Gregory, manager of the company's residential office here.

Gregory said that NCNB Mortgage originated loans totaling $22 million during its first year of operation and last year made new residential loans amounting to $207.6 million.

Gregory's office is one of 24 NCNB Mortgage residential offices in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

OPENING CENTER

Century 21 Real Estate of the Carolinas, with 236 affiliated offices, announced plans for the opening of a Relocation Center in Charlotte as part of a national network to serve the two Carolinas.

Pete Marriott, relocation director for Century 21, said that the center will be connected with 20 other centers in major population areas across the country.

He added that relocation centers are equipped with multimedia systems, map overlays, and comprehensive information systems that create a complete picture of a new area the family is moving into.

EATON PURCHASE

Eaton Corp. and Lebow Associates Inc., Troy, Mich., announced that Eaton has acquired Lebow for approximately $2.6 million of Eaton common shares.

Lebow designs and manufactures test devices that measure mechanical stress for applications in the aerospace, scientific research and automotive fields. Lebow will be a part of the AILTECH Division of Eaton's Cutler-Hammer Group, it was mentioned.

Products manufacturered by Eaton include truck components, automobile components, electrical and electronic systems and sub-systems, materials handling vehicles and systems, industrial power transmissions and components, and appliance controls.

DEALERS SESSION

W. W. Brown, president of Brown-Wood Inc. in Greenville, and his wife, attended the National Automobile Dealers Association convention and exposition in Las Vegas.

Over 13,000 dealers, manufacturers and industry representatives attended the four-day event.

CONSTRUCTION PROJECT

A construction project, designed to expand telephone cable facilities, is in progress south of Greenville along Highway 43, according to Dick Flye, district commercial and marketing manager for Carolina Telephone.

Flye said the project will cost approximately $151,000 and will involve placing underground conduit systems and cable facilities along Charles Boulevard and Highway 43.

Gold Back In Investment Spotlight

By CHET CURRIER .... AP Business Writer ....

NEW YORK (AP) — Political upheaval in Iran, the threat of new energy problems and stubborn inflation have helped thrust gold back into the investment spotlight in early 1979.

The price of the mystical metal, relied upon by its many adherents as the strongest store of value in troubled times, has climbed from just under $200 to record levels above $250 an ounce in the last two and a half months.

At Friday afternoon's "fixing" in London — the twice-a-day meeting of representatives of five leading gold houses — it stood at $247.05.

Traders in Wall Street's securities markets keep a close watch on the gold price as an indicator of sentiment. Thus, pronounced moves by gold can exert a strong influence on stock and bond prices.

A recent case in point: Monday, Feb. 5, when a surge of nearly $15 in the gold price helped drive the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials down more than 10 points.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index gained .50 to 55.37, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 3.07 at 163.15.

The new upsurge in gold has made its presence felt in the prices of some of the gold-mining stocks. Homestake Mining, the largest U.S. gold producer, rose from 30 at yearend to around the 35 level as of late in the past week.

Similarly, Canada's Dome Mines was up from 78¼ at yearend to around 85, and Campbell Red Lake Mines, 57 percent of which is owned by Dome, rose from 29¼ to the 33-34 range.

ASA Ltd., a publicly traded investment company concentrating on South African gold mining issues, edged up from 23⅜ to about 25.

A sharp rise in the price of gold's precious-metals cousin, silver, meanwhile gave a boost to mining companies with silver interests, such as Rosario Resources, up from 16¼ to 20, and Callahan Mining, up from 13¾ to near 16.

Stocks of mining companies often don't move in exact correlation with metals prices for a variety of reasons — among them simply that many of the companies have other interests as well.

Homestake, for example, has important uranium, zinc and lead operations as well as its gold mine in South Dakota.

And Dome Mines gets a big chunk of its earnings from a 26 percent investment in Dome Petroleum, a large Canadian independent oil and gas producer whose stock reached an all-time high during the past week on the Amex.

Though the impact of gold's recent resurgence might have been relatively subdued in the cases of some individual stocks, it has generated plenty of excitement among the brokers and investment advisers who follow it closely.

"Gold is king again," proclaimed Lawrence Heim of Portland, Ore., author of the twice-monthly Heim Investment Letter.

To look at the rise of the gold price from a different perspective, Toronto-based investment advisor Ian McAvity compared it with a measure of food commodity prices in the industrialized countries. He found that gold had closely paralleled the food index through most of this decade.

"Some will say that gold is high priced," McAvity concluded. "But that is only in terms of the 'other' kind of world money — U.S. dollars. Viewed in the classic sense of purchasing power, it may not be."

Ends Behind Close Doors Buying

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority has ended more than two years of buying its coal behind closed doors, awarding 22 contracts Friday under its first open bid invitation since fall 1976.

The contracts will provide five of TVA's 12 coal-fired generating plants with 4.7 million tons of coal to be delivered in from six months to three years at a total cost of $134.7 million.

The Kingston, Sevier, Allen and Watts Bar plants in Tennessee and the Widows Creek plant in Alabama will get the coal at prices ranging from $24.50 to $31 per ton depending on its quality.

California Gold Rush Ship Is Finally Going Home

By DIANA PAGE

GOOSE GREEN, Falkland Islands (UPI) — A sleek Norwegian yacht, sailing up the sound at sunset, drew the villagers of this sheep-raising community in the remote Falkland Islands down to the dock like a magnet.

Any arrival at the isolated village is an event for these descendants of the British Isles. They stood on the dock watching the approaching ketch, oblivious to another sailing ship behind them — a wreck that had served as a breakwater and shed for nearly 100 years.

As the yacht eased up to the wharf, a bearded man in his late 30s jumped onto the dock to be welcomed by the headmaster of the local school. Dr. Eric Berryman, research historian from the University of New Mexico, and the others from the yacht couldn't take their eyes off the old shipwreck grafted onto the dock.

Here was the "Vicar of Bray". In a remote corner of the world, one of the hundreds of sailing ships that converged on San Francisco in the Gold Rush days of 1849 has survived.

Berryman and his team came to the Falkland Islands — a British colony 300 miles off the southern tip of Argentina — to find a way to bring the Vicar back to San Francisco for its Maritime Museum.

"We have to determine if the Vicar can be floated again long enough to get her onto a barge to be towed to the West Coast," Berryman said. "If not, then we'll decide how to cut the ship into sections so we can transport her back."

The project, sponsored by the National Maritime Historical Society, is in phase one. After the problem of how to move the Vicar is solved, the cooperation of the Falkland Islands Company, the British government, the Argentine navy and private sponsors must be pulled together to carry out the plans.

Logistics can be a problem in the Falklands. There are no roads.

To get to Goose Green, 60 miles from Port Stanley's airport, one must bump over the bogs in a Land Rover at 5 miles-per-hour, or try for a seat on the sole Beaver seaplane that connects the settlements on the islands.

Berryman was lucky enough to be able to convince three Norwegians, who had stopped in Port Stanley while sailing their ketch around the world, to take the expedition to Goose Green. The commander of the local Royal Marines contingent, Maj. Ewan Southby-Tailyour, an expert yachtsman who is writing a book charting the Falklands' waters, went along to navigate.

For a week, the Americans crawled over every timber of the Vicar, while the villagers watched out.

Parker Marean, a naval architect from Wiscasset, Maine, took the measurements for the plans to be drawn up by his wife Klara. Nicolas Dean, from North Edgecomb, Maine, tagged and photographed every part of the old ship.

Joseph Sawtelle, a builder from Newcastle, N.H., got into his diving gear to see what was underneath the water in the hull. There was still a large quantity of coal that the Vicar had been carrying on her last voyage from England to South America when she was wrecked here in 1880.

The Vicar was built in Whitehaven, England, in 1841 to carry coal to South America and copper ore back. The original tonnage, "281 tonnes" is still visible carved on a cross beam of the wreck.

Lloyd's insurance agent who surveyed the Vicar when she was built reported she was "as good as can be made." She was constructed of West African hardwoods and English oak.

All the decks have fallen in now, the rigging is gone and a hole gapes in the port bow. "The Vicar may not look very good to you," Berryman said. "But it's amazing she's here at all."

"The cold water, the absence of any wood-eating parasites in the Falklands, (where there are no trees) helped to preserve the ship," he said. "But the people here also deserve credit. They took what they needed from shipwrecks, but there was no vandalism over all these years."

The Falkland Islands has become a graveyard for ships: some were swept onto the rocks by storms, others limped in from Cape Horn for repairs but the bill presented by the Falkland Islands Co. was often too high for the owner to pay and the ship was scrapped.

Lack of wood in the islands made costs high, but the company also had an interest in getting a ship cheaply to use as floating warehouse.

Several old ships sit prominently in Port Stanley harbor, including the "Charles Cooper", the last surviving North American packet ship.

"There are about 200 recorded shipwrecks around the islands," the local historian John Smith said. "That's only counting those known since there was permanent settlement here in 1833."

"The Vicar is one of the best preserved," he said. "The rest are virtually a collection of firewood on the beaches."

Try On-The-Job Medical Tests

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two states are testing an on-the-job high blood pressure control project developed by the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations.

The two-year study was started late last year by the Connecticut and Michigan health insurance plans under contract with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. They are trying to determine the feasibility of programs to control hypertension by screening and treating people for the disease at their jobs.

The study is being done at work because screening, referral or treatment and long-term monitoring can be done conveniently and efficiently in such circumstances with minimal loss of work time.

Miss Scheper, Mr. Braxton Wed

NEW BERN — Sharon Ann Scheper of New Bern and Robert Glen Braxton of Greenville were united in marriage Saturday at 4:30 p.m. at St. Paul's Catholic Church here. Father Maurice Spillane officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Scheper of New Bern. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Braxton Jr. of Rt. 8, Greenville.

The church altar was accented with brass vases of white chrysanthemums and pom pons on either side, with spiral candelabra and white cathedral candles in front of the altar. Pews were marked with white satin ribbons.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of magic knit, featuring a blouson bodice accented with alencon lace and long fitted sleeves highlighted by net lace inserts at the wrists. The draped skirt flowed into a chapel length train. The bride chose a chapel length veil of English net and royal Venetian lace and carried a bouquet of white roses and daisies, centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Pam Baumgardner of New Bern, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Miss Julie Limpach of Roanoke, Va., served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Charlotte Scheper of Raleigh, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Helen Gray of New Bern, Mrs. Mary Cato of Chicago, Ill., cousin of the bride, Mrs. Laura Tew of Corydon, Ind., sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Michele Guerin of Morehead City, cousin of the bride.

The honor attendants selected floor length aubergine gowns of magic knit, designed with high draped necklines, blouson bodices and brushed hemlines. They carried colonial bouquets of daisies and pink carnations.

The bridesmaids chose mauve floor length gowns simarlarly styled to the honor attendants' dresses and carried colonial bouquets of daisies and pink carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length aqua gown and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother selected a royal blue formal gown and a white orchid corsage. The mothers were presented long-stemmed red silk roses at the end of the ceremony by the bridal couple.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Jim Braxton of Vienna, Ga., brother of the bridegroom, Chris Tew of Corydon, Ind., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Walt Scheper of Raleigh, Frank and Ricky Scheper of New Bern, all brothers of the bride, and Donald Baumgardner of New Bern, brother-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Paul Braxton of Greenville, organist, and Miss Libby Braxton and Mrs. Ann Phillip, soloists, presented nuptial music. Miss Braxton sang "One Hand, One Heart" and Mrs. Ann Phillip performed "The Wedding Song." Chris Tew of Corydon, Ind. composed the processional music for the wedding.

A reception was held in Father Julian Hall in New Bern. A buffet dinner was served from a table accented with pink roses, white carnations and white tapers. The bride's table was centeered with pink roses, baby's breath and white carnations. A three-tier wedding cake with a lavender water fall and a silver punch bowl was arranged on the bride's table. A bird cage with a pair of love birds was featured in the center of the hall. A color scheme of mauve and aubergine was carried throughout the hall.

Small tables at the entrance were covered with net and accented with lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. Kathy Eirschele presided at the guest register. After the dinner, the wedding party and guests were entertained by "Wind Fall" of Chapel Hill.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in New Bern.

The bride is a graduate of Coastal Carolina Community College with an associate degree in dental hygiene. She is employed as a dental hygienist with Dr. Joseph P. Robinson in Havelock. The bridegroom received a bachelor's degree in business administration from East Carolina University. He is employed as a real estate planner and sales representative with Home Security Life Insurance Co.

Bottled Water Sales Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Estimated sales of American bottled water topped $224 million in 1978, up from $200 million in 1977, reports the American Bottled Water Association, made up of approximately 200 member companies that account for 90 percent of American bottled water sales.

Such sales, which totaled $128 million in 1968, have been climbing at a yearly rate of 10 to 12 percent for the past several years, according to ABWA. California alone accounts for more than half of all national sales: Florida, Illinois, New York and Texas make up more than one third of the market.

China Trade May Drop Silk Price By Year's End

By JOHN MOODY
UPI Men's Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Never mind diplomacy or politics. Normalization of relations with mainland China means the price of silk and cashmere will be coming down — way down — by the end of the year.

At least that's what the fashion industry is saying, hoping and praying for.

Allen Tucker, chief designer for Calvin Klein Sportswear, says the opening of the China silk and cashmere market could mean up to 20 percent savings — some of which may actually find their way to the American buyer, starved for such luxury materials but for years unable to afford them.

The House of Klein, however, has been forward-thinking, and acting.

"Three years ago, we decided that pretty soon the U.S. and China had to open up relations," Tucker said. "So we started working out an arrangement with Peking to supply us with part of our cashmere. Now that the China market is opening up, we figure we have a head start because we know the people and the way the Chinese work."

Pierre Cardin, of course, nearly upstaged President Carter's diplomatic coup by announcing a few days before that he would travel through China to present fashion shows in Shanghai and Peking.

But for pure business purposes, Tucker figures Calvin Klein is ahead of the competition.

"The Chinese business mind is a lot different from anywhere else. They offer by far the best quality silk and cashmere, and the least expensive labor. But they don't offer any perks — no samples. They don't take back any material that's not up to standard. They figure, 'Let the buyer beware.'

"They're very open and up front about this from the beginning, so they feel no guilt at all in telling you they're not interested in your problems. It's the whole honorable merchant mentality."

The Calvin Klein collection this year will include vast amounts of charmeuse silk in both sportswear and formalwear. Silk quality is judged by the number of mummies, or weaves, per square inch, and Tucker says Klein will use only the highest grade, — 20 mummy.

The silk costs about $12 a square yard, but a shirt which may take two or three square yards will retail in the stores for about $120.

After the China connection is going full swing, however, Tucker said the price for the same article may drop as low as $90.

The same will be true of cashmere sweaters. Calvin Klein's 3-ply sweater, which retailed last year for $135, will probably be down this fall to $95, Tucker said.

"Going to China is going to be a real experience. They don't have a sense of fashion yet, but they're very fast learners. And we expect to bridge the fashion gap within a couple of years," Tucker said.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hardison of Stokes announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon Denise, to James Darryl Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Johnson of Rt. 2, Chocowinity. The wedding will take place Feb. 24.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The Biennial Pilgrimage of Colonial Edenton and countryside will be held April 20-22. Tour hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Hayes Plantation, home of former Governor Samuel Johnston, is among the historic homes which will be open during the pilgrimage.

Other private homes on tour this year will include Sycamore, Coffield House, Wessington House, Beverly Hall, Jubilee Farm and Mulberry Hill.

Also open to the public will be the Pembroke Hall Gardens and the Powell House Gardens. Of special interest will be Deerfield Wine Cellars, Inc.

Public buildings include James Iredell House, Cupola House, Barker House, home of Penelope Barker, who according to tradition presided at the famed Edenton Tea Party in 1774, Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, Chowan County Courthouse, Yeopin Church and Saint Anne's Catholic Church.

Alexis M. Herman will be the banquet speaker at the 24th annual Spotlight on Women conference to be held in Chapel Hill March 3-4.

She is deputy assistant secretary of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The conference "Career Management: A New Horizon for Women" is sponsored by the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., in cooperation with the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Extension Division.

Conference topics include career planning and entry, career advancement and financial planning.

Hair-Holloway Vows Exchanged

Miss Trillis Tyson Holloway and Danny Ray Hair were married Saturday at 3 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Tommy Evans, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of family members.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin Holloway of Rt. 8, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Margaret S. Porter of Greenville, and Mr. Dennis Ray Hair of Goldsboro.

The bride, escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal length gown of white silk organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered alencon lace. The bodice was enhanced by a sheer insert of pleated organza centered with a row of pearl buttons and outlined in the re-embroidered alencon lace. The long fitted sheer sleeves were trimmed at the cuffs with matching alencon lace edged with ruffled organza. The gathered skirt extended into a chapel length train. The gown had a semi-natural wasitline.

She wore a tiered illusion veil complemented with a Dior bow of white satin ribbon with fingertip length streamers featuring clusters of silk flower motifs and carried a bouquet designed into a nosegay with white daisies and cushion pom pons centered with red roses tied with narrow white satin.

Mrs. Jacquelyn H. Witherington, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a formal length velvet ensemble of dark burgundy and carried a bouquet of white daisies, shades of pink miniature carnations and baby's breath tied with matching ribbon.

Kelly V. Witherington served as best man.

The bride and bridegroom are employed by Empire Brushes, Inc.

After a wedding trip, the couple will live in Greenville.

Engagement Announced

MISS EBBIE JO ROGERSON. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dawson Rogerson of Williamston, who announce her engagement to James Ashley Hatton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ashley Hatton of Greenville. The wedding will take place April 7.

Couple Weds On Saturday

Darlene Dell Wainwright of Greenville and Robert Henry Barnett of Winterville were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. in Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Jimmy C. Williams performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Wainwright of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Wade E. Barnett of Hobucken.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a white organza silk illusion gown featuring a full circular skirt, high neckline and long sheer bishop sleeves. The neckline and bodice were trimmed in Venise lace, beaded with pearls. The bishop sleeves, cuffs and skirt were also trimmed with lace. The bride chose a silk illusion headdress attached to a Juliet cap covered with lace and pearls and carried a cascade of red roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Ann Wainwright of Greenville, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor. She selected a cotillion blue magic knit gown with matching lace trim and carried a single long-stemmed red rose with a satin ribbon.

Mrs. Hazel Barnett of Winterville, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaid. She chose a powder blue magic knit gown with matching lace trim and carried a single white long-stemmed rose with satin ribbon.

Miss Wendy Priester of Bayboro, cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a blue formal length gown adorned with ribbons and carried a basket of flower petals.

The mother of the bride chose a yellow formal length silk gown with a sheer overlay. She wore a white rose corsage. The bridegroom's mother selected a nile green qiana gown with matching Venise lace and a white rose corsage.

After the wedding ceremony, the mothers and grandmothers of the bridal couple were presented single red roses.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Red and white carnations were arranged at the center of the refreshment table. Mrs. Judy Harness poured punch and Mrs. Bertie Ireland cut and served cake.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Pamlico County High School. Both the bride and bridegroom are employed by Hampton Industries.

Potpourri Officers Selected

Others officers include Mrs. Eddie Harrington, vice president, Mrs. R. W. MacKenzie Jr., recording secretary, Mrs. W. Douglas Starr, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Tom Harwell, treasurer, and Mrs. Freelove, historian.

Mrs. Larry Land presided at the meeting and appointed the following committee chairmen: Mrs. Dallas C. Clark Jr. and Mrs. David Womack, project; Mrs. Fred Robbins, conservation; Mrs. Jack Koontz, yearbook; Mrs. Charles Bath, Mrs. Ben Gardner, Mrs. Bernard Vick and Mrs. R. Lee West, telephone; and Mrs. Earl Castellow, exhibit.

Mrs. Land explained the rules for the Second Annual Flower Show, April 5-6, and the group decided to enter the breakfast tray class entitled "Help Yourself to Spring." Members were also urged to enter individually. Mrs. Wilkerson reported the latest plans for the club's trip to Charleston in April.

Greenville's Community Ambassador Jeen Kim presented a slide program on his visit to Holland last summer.

Mrs. Beverly Reid, vice president, presented Mrs. Land a book in appreciation for her year of service as president.

On The Young Side

Sharon Connolly

Through the efforts of the SGA, Wednesday was a special day for many Rose High students.

For Valentine's Day, red, pink and white carnations were delivered to students as a result of orders placed earlier. A red flower signified "I love you," a pink one, "I like you," and a white one, "I want to get to know you." This project, which started in January, was not concluded until after lunch. At this time, the receiver of a flower could pay an additional quarter to the SGA to determine the sender of the flower.

Each year members of the junior class are eligible to apply for the position of Community Ambassador. The eight finalists were Beth Bailey, Patricia Bath, Meg Cain, Kevin Clark, Mark Grossnickle, Skip Hill, Chris Ross and Melissa Suggs.

In order to select the winner from the group, a selection committee of 11 community members was formed. After each application was screened, Patricia Bath was chosen as this year's Community Ambassador. She has selected Switzerland as the country she wishes to visit this summer. She will spend four weeks with a Swiss family and two weeks traveling.

To help pay the expenses of the Community Ambassador program, several Rose clubs participated in various projects. The Anchor Club contributed $71 through a bake sale, and the National Honor Society raised $50.

Pep Cox, JoLindy Daniels, Chris Lalik and Wade Stokes went to Kinston Thursday to hear a lecture on the School of Textiles at North Carolina State University.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Because I am basically shallow, I am always drawn to lists of the 10 best anything. Somehow, I feel my life will have no meaning unless I know who are the 10 best lovers, the 10 best dressed people, or who have the 10 best noses.

I naturally pored over the story listing the Ten Most Sensuous Pairs of Legs which "best epitomize the beauty of human limbs."

It was interesting because sandwiched between Liza Minnelli, Angie Dickinson, Shirley MacLaine, Jane Fonda, Chris Evert, Bianca Jagger, Nancy Lopez, Cheryl Ladd and Bess Myerson was Rosalynn Carter.

To tell you the truth, I didn't know Rosalynn Carter had legs that went to the hip. There must be thousands of pictures of her legs filling the wastebaskets of every city room in the country, but they rarely see the printed page of a newspaper.

That is not the point. The point is why women? Why don't we honor the Most Sensuous Pairs of Legs in men? Here are my nominations.

For the Most Sensuous Legs on a Television Personality: Walter Cronkite. Walter's legs (if indeed there are two under the desk) for years have titillated women's imaginations. For sheer mystique and lingering fantasy, no one tops Walter.

For the Most Sensuous Legs in the Literary Field: Jim Fixx, whose legs dominated the cover of the No. 1 best seller of 1978, RUNNING. Legs have not had such an impact on the American way of life since the two hind ones of Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a lantern in Chicago in 1871.

The Most Sensuous Legs in the Military: Klinger on M*A*S*H, who proves week after week that when you're in a war zone it doesn't matter if you shave your legs or not, you can still be attractive.

The Most Sensuous Legs in Science Fiction: The bionic ones belonging to Lee Majors. When they come with varicose veins it will open up an entire market for women.

The Most Sensuous Legs in Sports: Joe Namath who proved to the world that the claims made by pantyhose are true: one size fits all.

The Most Sensuous Legs in Politics: Harold Stassen and Ronald Reagan, whose legs have logged more miles on the campaign trail than any other legs in political history.

And finally the Most Sensuous Legs occupying a White House in Washington: Jimmy Carter, because he's married to Rosalynn Carter and Sensuous legs marry sensuous legs and if you don't believe me just check the wastebaskets of the city rooms.

Miss Harris Weds Saturday

Mrs. Joey Moore

Norma Gail Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris of Greenville, became the bride of Joey Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ervin Moore of Rt. 2, Farmville, Saturday at 2 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. S. Holliday and the Rev. Hunning at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal length gown fashioned with a high neckline encircled with a ruffle of scalloped chantilly lace. The sheer fitted sleeves of chantilly lace had ruffled cuffs and the skirt was bordered at the hemline with a deep ruffle of chantilly lace.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion, bordered with chantilly lace, was attached to a Camelot cap of matching lace and bridal pearls. She carried a bouquet of carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

The honor attendant was Carolyn Cox of Greenville, who wore a formal green gown and carried a long-stemmed mum.

The father of the bridegroom was best man.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth. Wedding cake was served by Kathy Reel, sister of the bridegroom, and punch was poured by Debra Morris, sister of the bride.

The couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is a student at J. H. Rose High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and works at Empire Brushes.

Kraft-Cataldo Vows Solemnized Saturday

Linda Ann Cataldo and Michael Anthony Kraft were married Saturday in St. Peter's Catholic Church at 1 p.m. Father Paul Byron officiated at the double ring nuptial Mass ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Emil Anthony Cataldo of Havelock. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Nicholas Kraft Jr. of Jacksonville.

Given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her brother-in-law, Howard Baxter Prevatte of Hampton, Va., the bride wore a white gown of organza. The bodice and scooped neckline were trimmed with Venise lace. The sheer organza bishop sleeves were trimmed with Venise lace and the hemline swept to an attached chapel train. The mantilla of bridal illusion and encircling lace fell from a Juliet caplet of Venise appliques and seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade of white daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Barbara Cataldo, sister of the bride. She wore a floor length gown of carolina blue qiana featuring a long sleeved blouson bodice trimmed with ivory alencon lace. She carried a long-stemmed white sceptre rose trimmed with fern and baby's breath with streamers of satin ribbons to match her gown.

Bridesmaids were Lisa Roberson of Williamston, Billie Thomas of Wadesboro and Tere Acosta of Charlotte. They wore peach floor length gowns of qiana featuring long sleeves and a blouson bodice trimmed with ivory alencon lace. They carried a long-stemmed white sceptre rose trimmed with satin fern and baby's breath with streamers.

Chris Marks of Jacksonville was best man. Ushers were Tom Whitlatch of Havelock, Kenneth Barrett of Wilmington, and Francis DeLuca of Jacksonville.

Sister Happy Shandel was lector for the Mass. Nuptial music was provided by Sister Jane Paris and Mickey Skidmore, both of Greenville. Selections included "The Wedding Prayer."

The mother of the bride wore a long sleeved mint green dress with a lace jacket and corsage of white roses. The mother of the bridegroom wore a peach floral polyester dress and a corsage of white roses.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the parish hall. The tables were covered with white linen cloth and held silver candelabras with white tapers. The bride's table held the bride's book, presided over by Patty Brown, a portrait of the bride and a single white rose with fern and baby's breath. The three-tiered cake was served by Mrs. Lisa Richey of Greenville and punch was served by Mrs. Patricia Prevatte, sister of the bride.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville. The bride chose a mauve dress for going away, and a corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Havelock High School and is presently attending East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Divine Heart Seminary in Indiana and is employed with St. Peter's Catholic School.

A rehearsal dinner was held Friday at Three Steers Restaurant. Members of the wedding party, family and friends were invited. The bride-elect wore a peach dress and was presented with a corsage of white roses. The bridal couple presented gifts to members of their wedding party.

Marriage Announced

Miss Jane Hall Brooks of Greenville announces the marriage of her mother, Virginia Hall Brooks, to Roy Douglas Pierce, in a private ceremony Friday. The bride is employed by "The Daily Reflector" and the bridegroom is self-employed in aluminum and vinyl siding. After a short wedding trip, the couple will live in Greenville.

Susan Clark Weds Saturday

Miss Susan Braddy Clark and Rooney Charles Haddock were united in holy matrimony Saturday at 3 p.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The Rev. Lawrence Patrick Houston officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Clark Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Onnie Bowling of Augusta, Ga., and grandson of Charlie Jones of Rt. 1, Vanceboro.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white silesta over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled in white floral Venise lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of imported English net. A capelet with rows of beaded lace gave a watteau effect at the back. The attached chapel length train was edged in the floral Venise lace. She wore a fingertip length veil of imported illusion edged in miniature scalloped Venise lace and featuring appliques of lace and pearls held in place by a Juliet cap. She carried a cascading bouquet of white daisies and yellow sweetheart roses accented with English ivy.

Miss Carolyn Lea Mills of Kinston was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of cypress green trilobal designed with an open neckline featuring rolled shoulder straps, gathered fitted bodice and full circular skirt. The gown was complemented by a matching jacket styled with a high pleated collar. The waistline was enhanced by a flared peplum of crystal pleating with a tie sash. She carried a Williamsburg bouquet of yellow daisies and baby's breath tied with satin streamers.

Bridesmaids included Miss Penny Clark, Miss Phyliss Conway, Miss Rudy Morris, cousin of the bridegroom, Mrs. Donna Riddick, Miss Mary Mac Williamson, all of Greenville, and Mrs. Terry Elks Letchworth of Farmville. They wore dresses identical to the honor attendant and carried similar bouquets.

Grover Morris served his nephew as best man. Ushers were Howard Clark of Greenville, S. C., and Preston Clark of Raleigh, both brothers of the bride, Harold Jones of Clayroot, Buster Lassiter of Calico, Quinn Morris, cousin of the bridegroom, and Larry Ray Smith, both of Gardnerville.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of cotillion blue knit. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length gown of pink knit. They were remembered with white carnation corsages.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the parish hall. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Janet Clark, Mrs. Ruthie Clark and Mrs. Emily Harvey. Miss Vickie Tedder presided at the guest register.

For a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the bride changed into a three-piece suit of mauve knit and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will live at Rt. 1, Vanceboro.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in early childhood education. She is employed by the Pitt County School system. The bridegroom is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is engaged in farming.

Abby Prescribes For Physician

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for turning me on to what I consider the best place for a young man to meet a nice young woman. In church!

I wrote to several local churches, asking if they sponsored any social groups for young adults. The response was amazing. Within a month I had become involved in three different groups—Lutheran, Methodist and Nazarene—all interesting and well-attended.

Now my evenings are filled with a variety of activities—potluck dinners, dances, Bible studies, to name a few. I have met several eligible, intelligent and beautiful young women. (And they're not prudes, either.)

For every lonely man reading this, there are probably two lonely women wishing they could meet him. No more singles bars for me. I've got all I can handle now. In case you're wondering, I'm a 27-year-old physician.

DOC: K.C., MO.

DEAR DOC: Your prescription will send a lot of people to church. (Especially those who never had a prayer.)

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago you had some advice in your column for a woman who was in love with a married man. It started out, "Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays."

I cut it out and stuck it in a book, but now I don't remember which book it was, and it's driving me crazy. (My husband is a college professor and we have at least 10,000 books in our library!)

I need that letter to show to my daughter who is in love with a married man. Can you locate it and print it again, please?

L. IN NEW HAVEN

DEAR L.: Here it is:

Dear Abby: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is "in love" with a married man:

Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays.

Never call him at home.

Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain HIM at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents you will spend more on him that he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis.

Don't believe him when he tells you his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and she hasn't slept with him for 10 years.

Don't ever expect his wife to divorce him—even if she catches him. She knows you are not his first, and won't be his last. Also, she is not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you.

However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate, and find another married man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me . . .

His Wife

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 18, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Applying the Golden Rule today will give you the peace of mind you need. Let others know that you value and appreciate the relationship. Engage in activities you really enjoy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to reconcile small differences with your mate. Use your intuition more and get excellent results. Improve your appearance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Think out a course of action that could give you greater success in the days ahead. Show more consideration for loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to those small accumulated duties you have neglected lately. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A new project needs more study before putting it in operation. Plan just how to stretch your finances.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Do nothing to irk those at home and avoid trouble. Show others that you are the soul of discretion. Make this a worthwhile day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to engage in the finest philosophical studies you know of and to be with persons who are inspiring.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your financial position well so that you know exactly where you stand. Show more affection for loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may want to make some changes now but it's best you first consult with others who are involved. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study conditions around you carefully and know where and how to make improvements. Strive for more harmony at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good time to make positive plans for the days ahead. Study facts and figures, and take nothing for granted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do nothing that could jeopardize the enviable position you now have in your community. Handle a public matter wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to talk over lofty principles with an expert and one you admire, and reach fine conclusions for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a tremendous amount of vitality and it should be channeled in the right direction. There is much ability here at handling details. Teach to complete whatever has been started since that is the key to success here.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, FEB. 19, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be determined not to tread on anyone else's feet but to consider their position in any joint interest. Let them be aware that you want to be cooperative and act in true harmony.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Cooperation is the keynote today, whether it be with debtors, creditors, kin, friends, or partners. Do a special favor for others and gain their goodwill.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you listen to the views of associates more you can have greater accord now. Situations arise that test your capability at handling them wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal time to tackle the work ahead of you and make a dent into it. Show you are efficient. More cooperation shown to co-workers is wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be more concerned with important matters. If you must have a good time, don't try to force the issue. Go along with the tide during spare hours.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show more affection for those at home and have greater harmony there. Don't have any contrary confrontations with others. Avoid one who is very temperamental.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to improve routines but use tact with others in order to do so effectively. Meet on common ground and you can build nicely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look about for a new outlet that will give you an added income quickly. Take no chances with fly-by-nights, though. Show you are reliable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take time to analyze your position accurately so that you will know how to proceed in the future. Wait until later in the day to socialize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There is a situation that keeps recurring to mar your independence which needs to be cleared up. Keep promises and don't be ostentatious. Avoid the social in the evening and be safe.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to understand the needs of your friends instead of expecting so much from them and you get along better. Don't hold on to that so-called friend who has done you harm in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact influential persons you know and talk over how to be mutually helpful. Be more cooperative with others and solve problems well. Avoid a tendency to overspend.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put new ideas to work that activate you and make them work like a charm. Your hunches are good for bettering your whole existence, so follow them. Be discriminating for best results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will learn early how to make a plan and follow it in order to gain what is most desired no matter how long it takes. Teach early to understand the desires of others and to cooperate with them.

Inventor Keeps Working For Elusive Better Mousetrap

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — His work done, his children grown, his age past 80, his days of toil to get ahead well behind, George Oakes nonetheless sat down one day and built a better mousetrap.

He patented it, found a manufacturer, and put it up for sale at a local hardware store.

Ten years went by. George Oakes, now past 90, grew restless. But what remained? What new challenge can life hold for a person who has already built a better mousetrap?

Just one. He built a better better mousetrap.

That one is patented, too, but not yet on the market. "You can see it is an improvement," he said. "It has all the features of the other one but it has just two parts. Much cheaper to make."

The features of the other one — a better mousetrap is not easy to describe — are that your fingers are never in peril in setting it and do not go near the gruesome remains in emptying it. Both jobs are done with a mere pinch of thumb and forefinger. Simplicity itself.

The better better mousetrap is even simpler. His model, which he fashioned using hand tools and sheet steel, doesn't even have a spring. The springiness of the steel itself suffices.

If, however, the world is somehow not yet ready for a better better mousetrap, George Oakes will survive the disappointment.

"So many of my inventions came either too soon or too late," he said. "I built a home refrigerator back in 1910 to replace the ice box but nobody was interested. Ahead of my time, I guess.

"But then I also built a pump to fill fountain pens, which came out just before ball point pens came in. I built tire chains you can put on without jacking up the car." He shook his head, enjoying the irony. "They never got off the ground. Came out the same time as snow tires."

His great-grandfather came here as an Indian scout in 1789, a year after the first settlers in the lower Ohio valley, and he was born, in 1886, in the house his grandfather built of hewn timber cut to clear the virgin land his father broke with a plow.

George Oakes was not born to be a farmer, though. "Some people are born to be musicians, some to be lawyers, so it goes. I was born to design things."

He designed his refrigerator, prematurely, the year he graduated as a mechanical engineer. In 40 years with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., in Crystal City, Mo., he picked up more than 20 patents designing better ways to make glass.

Designing things just to make life easier is what has brought him satisfaction if not great wealth.

George Oakes gives no evidence of slowing down. His wit is as lively as his step. Indeed, at 92 he is busy building a new workshop. May we expect, some day soon, a better better better mousetrap?

Music Educators Astonished By The Cornet Kids

By DUSTON HARVEY

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI) — The 16 first and second graders have been blowing their horns long enough to have their own theme song: "The Cornet Kids' Cha-Cha-Cha."

The "kids" are 6-and 7-year-olds who took up the cornet — a cousin of the trumpet — at school last fall and astonished music educators with their ability to play simple, original tunes.

"They're excellent. They've shown remarkable progress," said Judith E. Grimes, instrumental music teacher at Indiana State University Laboratory School. Mrs. Grimes organized the choir as a means of giving squirmy youngsters something to do besides disrupt their classes.

Her teaching methods are adapted to the age of her cornet players — who took up the instrument three or four years before they would normally be exposed to their first school music instruction.

"Don't kiss an ape," "don't squash a tomato," "don't fly away," are some instructions they receive as they play simple tunes their teacher has first taught them to sing.

"I play the tunes on the piano and make up funny words, which they sing," Mrs. Grimes said. "That way they get used to the pitches and meter. Then they play."

"Don't kiss an ape" reminds the youngsters of the proper way to purse their lips, "don't squash a tomato," reminds them to keep their arms away from the body, and "don't fly away," not to play too high.

Mrs. Grimes, who also teaches method classes at the university and directs Terre Haute's all-city high school band, said her young charges "don't miss notes because they hear the tunes first."

She said her technique is different from the Suzuki method of piano and violin instruction for small children developed in Japan because her students are using full-sized instruments and original material in which every tune is related to some musical principle.

Her holiday offering, "Santa Claus Boogie," taught them not to let all the air out at once, but to release it over a long period so they played long tones rather than blasts.

"So far they are doing everything right because they haven't learned wrong."

Mrs. Grimes said the program has several research objectives, including showing that "step-by-step" musical instruction instills good learning techniques transferable to other subjects.

"There's a back-to-basics move in education and we need to show that music is basic. The students have to go through a very cognitive method, a step-by-step approach. They have to do everything right, like they would assembling a model car. If these kids can develop that scientific method, it can be transferred to any other class."

She said the program also is trying to determine if music can become an "enrichment activity for bright kids."

She organized her cornet group from youngsters — including her 7-year-old son Butchie — who disrupted classes because they finished work quicker than their classmates.

Mrs. Grimes also hopes to develop special music-teaching methods for youngsters, data for testing the success of young instrumental students, criteria for identifying the musically talented, and information on the relationship between the academic and musically gifted.

The cornet is good for her young pupils, she said, because it is relatively simple — only three buttons — smaller than many other instruments and more mellow in tone than the trumpet.

Mule Is Champ In New Racing

By JEANIE ESAJIAN
Associated Press Writer

SANGER, Calif. (AP) — As Mosco pounds down the track, his four legs driving and neck outstretched, he has the unmistakable mark of a champion.

He was named Running Mule of the Year, the American Mule Association's champion for 1978, and last July won the Larry Chimbole Mule Championship of the World, the first parimutuel mule race.

"He is the Affirmed of mule racing," says LaVerne Ordway of nearby Fresno, secretary of the American Mule Racing Association.

Mosco lost only two of 21 starts in the racing circuit that draws mostly from the southwestern United States.

At Bishop, Calif., a Mojave Desert town called the Mule Capital of the World, Mosco won a 440-yard race named for former California Assemblyman Larry Chimbole who authored legislation establishing a five-year pilot program of parimutuel mule racing.

The victory gave Mosco's owners the lion's share of the $3,500 purse, raising his earnings to $8,000 in 1978. Mule-racing purses are considerably below those of horse racing.

"It's a little tougher training a mule," says Dodds, 38. "They require a lot more foundation riding before you start working them."

He says mules aren't as kind as a horse and are harder to handle.

"They are half burro and that burro will show up. Lots of times, mules are ornery out of fear. They have more natural fear of man than a horse does."

But the adage, "stubborn as a mule," doesn't fit the new breed of racing mules that receive the same training as the most highly-bred race horse.

"They are breeding more and more thoroughbred mares and will be getting longer, thinner mules," Dndds says. "A race mule looks more like a horse than a mule."

In mule breeding, the mare's characteristics are considered more important and more dominant in the offspring. However, a small-boned jackass is used to sire the racing mule for better results.

Racing mules have surprised many, including those who sheepishly point to Mosco, whose mother was a thoroughbred, and ask: "Is that a horse or a mule?"

"I think a lot of people were disappointed," Dodds says of the Bishop parimutuel race. "They thought they were going to see some comical things like donkey basketball."

Dodd expects more professional race-horse trainers like himself to become involved in mule racing.

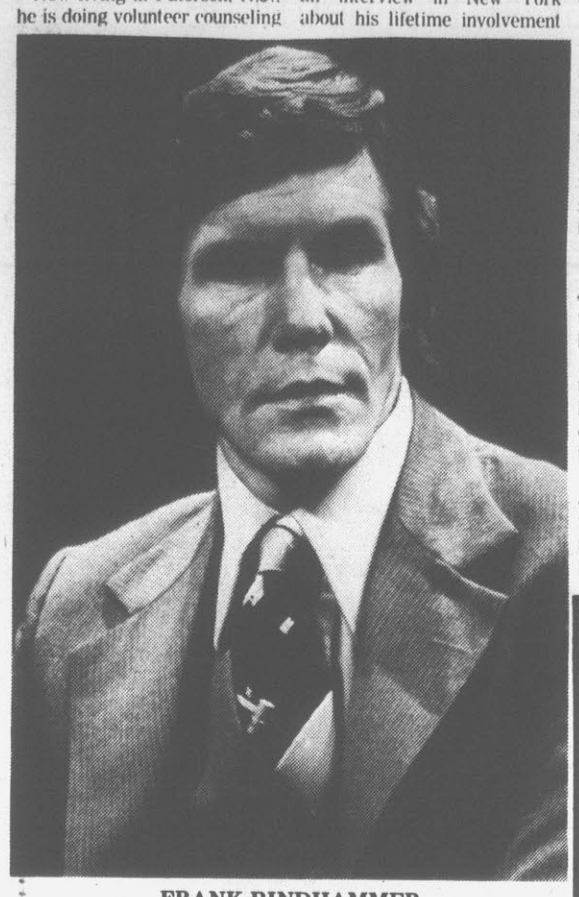
Ex-Convict Tries To Scare Youngsters 'Straight'

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Bindhammer spent most of his life in prison. Paroled last fall from Rahway, N.J., State Prison after serving more than 15 years of a life sentence for first-degree murder, he intends to spend the rest of his life keeping others out of prison.

Now living in Paterson, N.J., he is doing volunteer counseling with youngsters and working to get other penitentiaries to adopt a plan similar to the Rahway Lifers' Group Juvenile Awareness Program that he helped start.

Impeccably dressed in a three-piece, blue-gray suit, blue shirt and two-tone blue tie, his hair neatly styled, he talked in an interview in New York about his lifetime involvement with crime and his hopes for deterring youngsters from following in his "poor footsteps."



FRANK BINDHAMMER

"We wanted to give young people an insight into the ramifications of crime, to tell them all the things the media doesn't about prison life," he says of the unique program started two years ago to give young troublemakers a no-holds-barred taste of prison life.

Twice a day, five days a week, groups of 15 to 20 juvenile offenders enter the maximum-security prison to serve a three-hour "sentence." After a tour of cell blocks, the boys and girls are confronted in the auditorium by "lifers" who describe the horrors of life behind bars.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that if a program of this sort had been available to me as a youngster it would have changed my life," says Bindhammer, who started with truancy and went on to shoplifting, breaking and entering, car theft, larceny and, eventually, homicide.

He first got into trouble at age 8, was sent to a reformatory and was "in and out of juvenile institutions, graduating right up the line to adult prisons."

"Inside juvenile institutions they teach young people to think of themselves as being no good, useless, worthless human beings, and most of us have gone through our lives believing just that" Bindhammer says. "As a result of our program, helping other people, sharing with them our experiences, for the first time we feel like useful, productive people. That's the only reward we receive."

Young people are ignorant of the realities of institutional life, he points out. Adult offenders, once released, never tell what prison life is really like, he says, because what they've been subjected to is so humiliating and embarrassing. But the rap sessions lay it on the line to the kids: the rapes, suicides, murders, brutality, the regimented hours, the boredom.

More than half the Lifers' Group started with juvenile crime, Bindhammer says, and they tell the youngsters: "When we look at you, all we see is a reflection of ourselves when we were your age, doing the same dumb things you are doing; when you look at us you see a reflection of yourself 10 years from now."

Now, "Scared Straight," hosted by Peter Falk, will be nationally syndicated over more than a hundred TV stations starting March 5. The film, produced by Golden West Television, is sponsored by The Signal Companies as a public service to encourage similar programs in other states.

"I'd like that film to be shown to every young person in the country," the ordinarily soft-spoken Bindhammer states emphatically. "All our programs are geared toward reacting to juvenile delinquency instead of preventing it. When juveniles get into trouble, don't just smack their hands and send them back to mom and dad. Get them the first time they become involved in an unlawful act and show them the ramifications of crime; don't wait till they go back in the street and kill a person."

More than 10,000 teen-agers have gone through the program at Rahway, and 80 to 85 percent have "gone straight," says Bindhammer. "We totally destroy their tough-guy image of themselves, as well as show them what a convict is by making ourselves look like the most despicable person imaginable."

Bindhammer, who said he had gone into prison a virtual illiterate with a fourth-grade education, "came to realize that all I could do by continuing my lifestyle was to destroy myself completely."

He voluntarily placed himself in isolation "in order to gain insight into myself as a person, to make changes in my life.

"I'm determined to devote my life to working with children," he says. "There is nothing in this world that could make me return to crime."

Tots Quickly Learn Violin

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A 2-year-old picks up a little violin and plays a few notes. She is learning to play the instrument nearly as soon as she has learned to speak.

They are using a method created in Japan more than 40 years ago by Shinchi Suzuki. They learn music the same way they learn to talk.

"Suzuki conceived the idea that children could learn music by listening and imitation, the same as they learn to speak," says Katherine Service, a local Suzuki teacher. "A baby learns its mother tongue easily. There's no reason he can't learn music the same way."

Ideally, Mrs. Service said, Suzuki begins when babies are brought home from the hospital and their mothers begin playing certain recordings over and over, encouraging the children to recognize tunes.

Practically, however, children usually are at least walking and talking before they get their first exposure to the violin through Suzuki.

Mrs. Service and another teacher, Lola Dexter, have pupils as young as 2. They have been teaching Suzuki five years in the Topeka area.

The preschoolers are soon able to play "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" in various rhythms as the fundamentals of correct wrist and finger positions are reinforced. Classic children's tunes give way to Bach minuets before the youngsters are old enough for school.

After they begin reading from their first-grade primers, the pupils learn the notes of the pieces they've been performing for years and how to spot those notes on a musical staff.

Big Stakes In Race-Changing Practice

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — When Clyde Pulley married Ella Mae Richardson in 1952, she was black. When he remarried her in 1975, 20 years after their divorce, she was an Indian.

Mrs. Pulley is one of several hundred residents of northeastern North Carolina who have had their racial designation changed from black to Indian, and are members of the Haliwa tribe.

Because of state and federal funding for Indians, which the Haliwas share, there's been a lengthy controversy about the group.

The Haliwas, who live in Halifax and Warren counties, are of mixed racial background, but they say they always considered themselves to be Indians. The tribal name, not of Indian origin, comes from the names of the two counties.

A Halifax County court in 1965 gave recognition as Indians to 392 people who formerly had been known as blacks.

That started a continuing controversy over government assistance going to the tribe and raised questions about the legitimacy of claims by other area residents to be in the same group.

"They didn't make us Indians," says W.R. Richardson, chief of the Haliwa. "We were always Indians. They just corrected the records."

Pulley, a black state employee, argues that creation of the Haliwa tribe was a ploy by a group of blacks to change their racial designation for social and economic reasons, and he's conducted a one-man campaign to stop people he thinks are really blacks from turning Indian.

He's now divorced a second time from Ella Mae and says the divorce resulted largely from her decision to change her racial designation.

Under the Halifax County court decision, Richardson is empowered to rule on cases of persons claiming to be Haliwas. He notes that the state Department of Vital Statistics is required to accept his decision on any individual who is related to one of the original 392 Haliwas.

Asked how he could tell who is an Indian, Richardson said, "I know my people."

Richardson became chief of the Haliwa in 1955 and has been re-elected several times since then.

He is a member of the state Commission of Indian Affairs, which he helped to establish and chaired for six years.

The commission administers funds for four North Carolina tribes and three county Indian associations. It handles some of the money that has been flowing to the Haliwa from state, federal and private sources and assists tribal members in taking advantage of federal programs for the disadvantaged.

The commission administers a federal CETA grant that provides classroom training, work experience and public service employment for Indians.

Other grants provide rent supplements for Haliwa in Warren County, day care for preschool children, chore services for elderly and shut-ins, social services and educational support ranging from job counseling to aid for deprived children.

The Haliwas get about $45,000 under the federal Indian Education Act to use for reading-enrichment programs and courses on Indian culture for 564 children. In addition, they have received a number of grants from the North Carolina Arts Council and several private cultural foundations.

The tribe hopes to build a health center and has applied to the Federal Housing Administration for funds.

Although the state recognized the Haliwas as a tribe in 1971, they have not received recognition from the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs.

William L. Engels, public-information officer for the federal agency, explains that it only recognizes "those groups and their ancestors who were a tribe from aboriginal times.

Pulley says he is concerned over the costs of programs earmarked for Indians but going to other groups.

In a book, "Blacks Who Pass for Indian and White," Pulley wrote that taxpayers in some states "end up paying an unnecesssary part of their budget to blacks under possibly fraudulent conditions, while the intended Indian recipients receive minimal benefits and services."

County School Lunch Menu

Wednesday — Vegetable-beef soup, crackers, sandwich, sliced peaches, cookies, milk;

Thursday — Cheeseburger, french fries, cole slaw, fruit cup, milk;

Record Receipts By Alumni Fund

ECU News Bureau

The East Carolina University Alumni Association has reported record-breaking cash receipts of $14,498.55 to the Alumni Loyalty Fund during the month of January, according to Donald Y. Leggett, Director of Alumni Affairs and Foundations. This total reflects a 517 percent gain over the month of January, 1978, and brings the year-to-date Loyalty Fund income to $49,091.77, a 102 percent increase.

In addition to the income actually received as of Jan. 31, the Alumni Association reported pledges outstanding of $34,394.95 and receipts to date for the month of February of $3,778.69. These additional figures bring the total generated income as of Feb. 9 to $87,265.41, compared to 1977-78 income through February 78 of $24,755.26. These statistics reflect a 253 percent increase in funds generated.

This dramatic increase in funds generated is a result of the National Phonothon, which produced $31,502.25 in pledges; the Pitt County Phonothon, which generated $10,936.00 in pledges; the Wake County Phonothon, which added another $7,249.50; and a personal letter to the Alumni from Chancellor Thomas Brewer, soliciting support for the Loyalty Fund, which to date has produced $4,516.50 in receipts, Leggett said.

Crisis Symposium Is Slated February 21-22

ECU News Bureau

A Crisis of Confidence Symposium dealing with the public's trust or mistrust of a number of professions and organizations will be held Feb. 21-22 at East Carolina University.

The symposium, to be conducted in the Nursing Building auditorium, room 101, is sponsored by ECU and the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi. It is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Oscar K. Moore, Economics, is chairperson of the symposium committee and Dr. Fred Broadhurst, Technology, along with the moderators served as committee members.

Dr. John M. Howell, Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs will deliver the welcoming address, Wednesday at 8:45 a.m. He will be followed by Dr. Thomas Brewer, ECU Chancellor, "Crisis of Confidence in Business" and Dr. Patricia B. Gurin, Psychology, University of Michigan, "Public Trust in the Political Process".

Karl Rodabaugh, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, will speak on "American Faith in Education: Why It's Slipping and What We Need To Do About It" and Dr. Walter Pories, ECU School of Medicine, will explore "Crisis of Confidence in Medicine—Better Performance Does Not Mean Increased Trust"; and Doctors Y.J. Lao and Trenton Davis, Environmental Health, ECU, will discuss "Public Confidence as it Relates to Public Health."

The Thursday sessions will include: Dr. Carl Adler, ECU Department of Physics, whose topic will be "Nuclear Power: Beseiged Symbol of High Technology" and John J. Pauly, ECU Department of English, "News As Trained Incapacity."

Dr. Waltraud Q. Morales, Political Science, ECU will discuss "Crisis of Confidence and Contemporary Government in Comparative Perspective" and Lyle Barlow, student, ECU School of Business, will speak on "Congress Identity Crisis: A Crisis of Self Confidence."

Serving as chairpersons for the morning and afternoon session are: Dr. Howell, Dr. Rosina Lao, ECU Department of Psychology, Dr. Mabel Laughter, ECU School of Education; and Dr. John East, ECU Department of Political Science.

REJECT O'HAIR SUIT

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal court of appeals has rejected atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair's suit seeking removal of the phrase, "In God We Trust" from U. S. coins and currency. A spokesman says she will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

'Tailgate Monitor' Tried On Interstate

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — What flashes and sounds horns, warns motorists they are following others too closely and costs $154,000 to buy and install?

The Tennessee Department of Transportation has invested $154,000 of the taxpayers' money to see how well the device works on the state's most heavily traveled interstate highway stretch.

So far the jury is still out, department spokesman Paul Allen said in a telephone interview. He said the department had yet to compile accident statistics for the nearly one-year period the device has been in operation.

The device is labeled an FTC monitor — short for following-too-closely — by its manufacturer, Traffic Safety Systems Inc. of Richmond, Va., Allen said.

It consists of three warning boards suspended across the highway with lights and horns. The device flashes a warning if a driver passes over its pavement-embedded sensors within 1.5 seconds of the vehicle in front, and indicates a violation if a motorist is within .7 seconds of the vehicle in front, Allen said.

The device is geared to time because, he said, researchers have found that most drivers can judge time spans separating them from other moving vehicles more easily than distance intervals. The monitor works at any speed, including bumper-to-bumper traffic jams, Allen said.

Bumper-to-bumper jams occur daily where the device is located.

It is perched above a joint three-lane stretch of Interstates 40 and 24 leading into Nashville from the East. Allen said department traffic counts showed 1 million vehicles travel the stretch every 10 days.

Self-Study In Preparation For Accreditation Bid

Text And Photos By Jerry Raynor

"More than anything, these self-study projects have helped us see the things we have done, things that we can be immensely proud of," Kay Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education said, in reference to in-depth studies of elementary level schools and the Central Office recently completed.

"I feel this entire project has done much to bring the schools' faculty and the community together in working for the common good of all our students," Mrs. Theresa Shank, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education stated. "And I am tremendously impressed both by the amount of dedicated work that principals, staff and all others have done, and by the positive thinking this work has generated in looking at our goals and objectives."

Richard Miller, chairman of the citywide PTA Council, is another who has closely followed the progress of the compilation of these studies for the past two years.

"Through these studies," Miller said, "all of us feel a more positive attitude on the part of the administration and teachers has been created to see that the level of education in Greenville continues to grow."

Preparatory Studies

The self-study publications recently completed and bound into individual volumes for each elementary school within the city system — Eastern, Elmhurst, Greenville Middle, Sadie Saulter, South Greenville, Third Street, and Wahl-Coates, plus one for the Central Office — have been prepared as the primary tool in the city schools' bid to win accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools with headquarters in Atlanta.

The studies are based on multi-faceted considerations in every conceivable field that touches on the process and quality of education in the city schools — teacher qualifications, extent and content of curriculum, relationships with the community, special services provided to handicapped and to talented children, sources of funding, and conditions of all the school facilities.

Charles Ross, Director of Instruction for the city schools, served as overall coordinator of the eight studies.

"Accreditation of elementary schools is a relatively new program," Ross said, "one that was first started about eight to ten years ago.

"Most elementary schools in North Carolina are not accredited with the association, but the trend is to make the effort to try for accreditation."

Ross said accreditation is not "mandated by the State School Board of the State Department of Public Instruction. These agencies leave the choice of whether to try or not up to the individual school system."

Since the basic research, outlining, compilation and other phases of work involved in the two-year period of study has been carried out principally by school administrative personnel and teachers, with assistance from numerous community people actively involved, the monetary cost has been kept to a minimum.

"Just about all the costs have been absorbed into regular operating costs," Ross said. "And practically all of the consultant services we have received have been at no cost to the local system."

Ross noted that Miss Ruth Hoyle, consultant with the Craven County Schools system, "has served throughout the study period as our principal consultant.

Another who has served in a consultant role is Dr. Madeline Tripp of the Southern Associaton of College and Schools, Atlanta, Georgia:

"All these people have contributed guidance, ideas and suggestions that have been most helpful to us," Ross noted.

Parental Involvement

Ross, Whitehurst, Miller, all have stressed that one of the real bonuses of the long, complex process has been the enthusiasm manifested by local parents who have provided input into the program as it progressed.

Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox explained the general pattern of involvement of parents that has applied over the past two years.

"The structure of the studies has revolved around a series of committees," Cox said, "with parents included on various committees and also through PTA committees."

An example he gave is that of "a language-arts committee at each school. Such a committee was comprised of several teachers, a parent, an administrator, and in some instances an older student.

"When you consider there were several committees covering different fields of curriculum in each of the schools, it works out to a considerable number of parents having had input into the studies.

"I'd say," Cox added, "that altogether, something like 75 to 100 parents have been actively involved, and that more will be involved during the visitation period."

Visitation Scheduled

In a sense, the preparations of the past two years have been a prelude to the arrival in Greenville of visiting committees reporting to each of the schools and the central office.

The committees will be in Greenville for a two-day period to inspect the self-study documents, tour the schools, talk to educators and parents, and in general, get a first-hand idea of how accurately standards are being met.

The visiting teams will be on hand Feb. 21 and 22, and are official representatives of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, with authority to appraise the quality and thoroughness of each school's self-study document and program.

Dr. Tryon Lancaster, Assistant Superintendent of Elementary Education, Cumberland County Schools, Fayetteville, is overall chairperson of the eight visiting committees.

Persons assigned as visiting committess for the central office and schools, with the chairperson for each team being the first named person on each team, are:

— Central Office — Dr. W. C. Sanderson, School of Education, ECU; Mrs. Jeanette Shaw, Regional Coordinator of Educational Administration and Supervision, Williamston; Lee Hall, Superintendent of Edgecombe County Schools, Tarboro; Mrs. Beatrice Smith, ESEA Title I Director, Craven County Schools, New Bern; and Mrs. Rachel Ricks, Director of Instruction, Warren County Schools, Warrenton.

— Eastern Elementary — Dr. Hathia Hayes, Education Dept., UNC-Wilmington; John Farmer, consultant, Div. of Planning, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Clarice Green, teacher, Miriam Boyd School, Warrenton; Mrs. Thelma W. Williams, principal, James B. Dudley School, Wilmington; and Mrs. Ruth Adams, retired supervisor, Carolina Beach.

— Elmhurst Elementary — Dr. Wilton Joyner, School of Education, ECU; Miss Ruth Jewell, consultant, Div. of Cultural Arts, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Betsy Hardison, teacher, Jamesville School, Jamesville; W. L. Rose, principal, North Warren School, Wise; and Mrs. Genevieve Taylor, supervisor, Green County Schools, Snow Hill.

— Sadie Saulter — Dr. Mollie Sloan, reading consultant, Southeast Regional Education Center, Jacksonville; Mrs. Carol Lewis, consultant, Div. of Educational Media, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Allie M. Harlow, teacher, Morganton Road School, Fayetteville; Mrs. Barbara Newman, principal, Northwoods Elementary School, Jacksonville; and Mrs. Ola Perry, supervisor, Pitt County Schools.

— South Greenville Elementary — Dr. Maylon McDonald, School of Education, ECU; Miss Medra Mitchell, consultant, Div. of Mathematics, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Janice Willis, teacher, Edgewood Elementary School, Goldsboro; and Mrs. Lucille Tyson, teacher, Oakdale Elementary School, Spring Lake; Dr. Gladys Reed, Coordinator of Intermediate Education, Durham County Schools, Durham; and Mrs. Edith Warren, principal, Sam D. Bundy Elementary School, Farmville.

— Third Street Elementary — Mrs. Martha Carraway, principal, West Greene School, Snow Hill; Mrs. Karen Gulledge, research analyst, Div. of Planning, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Rebecca McGlohon, teacher, Jasper Elementary School, New Bern; Gary Hardin, principal, District No. 7 School, Wade; and Mrs. Annie Mae Kenion, supervisor, Duplin County Schools, Kenansville.

— Wahl-Coates Elementary — Miss Marie Haigwood, Deputy Assistant State Superintendent, Instructional Services Area, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Louise Watson, teacher, New Bern; Mrs. Mattie Newman, teacher, College Lakes Elementary School, Fay; R. J. Claybrook, principal, Burgaw Elementary School, Burgaw; Dr. Curtis Fleshman, Assistant Superintendent, Carteret County Schools, Beaufort; and Gary Sanderson, Assistant Superintendent, Duplin County Schools, Kenansville.

— Greenville Middle School — Dr. Bill Martin, School of Education, ECU; Floyd M. Woody, Assistant Director, Div. of Health, Safety, and Physical Education, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Mrs. Janie Taylor, teacher, Robersonville Junior High School, Robersonville; Mrs. Addie Williams, retired supervisor, Fayetteville; Mrs. Ganelda Sowers, principal, North Rowan Primary School, Spencer; and Mrs. Barbara Richardson, Director of Special Education, Craven County Schools, New Bern.

After Action

Following the visitation of the committees, the next step, according to Cox, "is to be a report back, hopefully recommending accreditation of each of the schools.

"The reports of the visiting committees," Cox said, "will include comments on the evaluation of each school, and will indicate what the teams feel are areas of strengths and weaknesses. It is also likely 'that the visitation team reports will point out improvements that can be made."

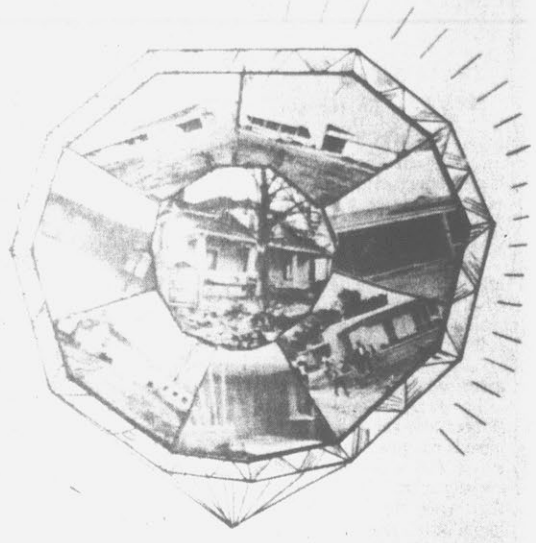
Once the reports have been received, Cox said the next action would be studying recommendations and determining what can be done to comply with such recommendations.

"All of us hope," Cox commented, "that each of our schools and the central office will be awarded accreditation when the annual meeting of the association is held in Atlanta in December of this year."

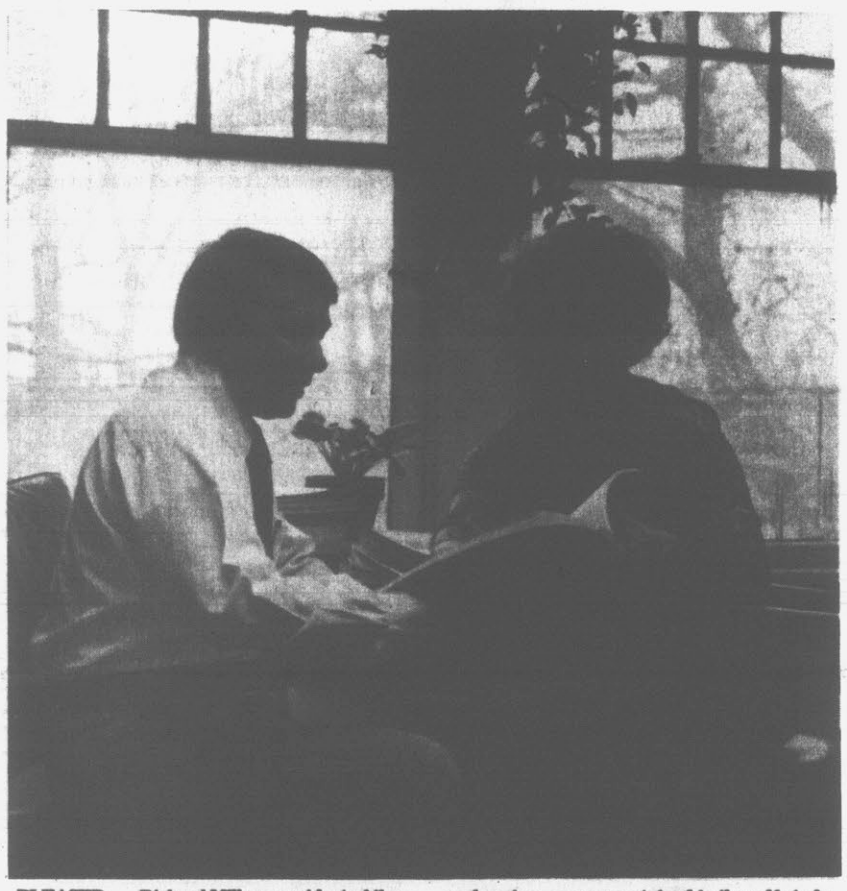
Results Emphasized

Regardless of what the outcome may be, the general attitude expressed among those who have been involved with the two years of hard work is that it has been more than worthwhile.

"It is truly a good feeling we have all gotten in knowing that this sense of positive thinking about our goals and objectives has come to the fore," Mrs. Whitehurst remarked. "We have seen a fine sense of pride in our achievements emerge from what has been discovered as we worked on the self-studies, and that makes all the hard work well worth the time."



THE COVER TO . . . one of eight in-depth booklets prepared on the topic, "Self-Study, Greenville Elementary Schools," compiled and published in connection with a bid for accreditation with the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. This particular study covers the Central Office operation.



PLEASED . . . Richard Miller, president of the citywide PTA Council, and Mrs. Theresa Shank, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education, both expressed pleasure in the comprehensive wrap-up contained in the self-study documents prepared for six elementary schools and the central office.

Program Helps Functional Illiterates

Text By Margaret Bunch, ECU News Bureau

North Carolina has several hundred thousand adult functional illiterates: people who cannot read the electric bill, the newspaper, the driver's license exam, labels on cans in the grocery store or any of the thousands of items of daily reading encountered in any ordinary day. Illiteracy is a handicap that even the blind do not suffer since the development of materials and techniques to teach them.

Many programs have been tried to reach and teach the functionally illiterate adult with varying degrees of success. There are several qualifications that a program must have to be successful. First, it must reach the people; second, it must be convenient and third, the teaching method has to be practical and have enough man power to give each learner individual attention.

East Carolina University has such a program for adult illiterates on its staff. Strange sounding sentence, isn't it — a large university with functional illiterates on its staff?

Julian Vainright, business manager of ECU, realized that the situation existed among hourly personnel. But having the manpower and money to set up a program to rectify the situation was a major obstacle. The answer to his problem came in the form of a request.

Gamma Beta Phi, an honor society of students who have high academic standards and the grades to prove it, provides service to education. Some of their projects include tutoring programs at local grade schools, collecting money for worthy causes and giving scholarships.

Johnny Harrel Edwards was president of Gamma Beta Phi in 1977. Edwards wrote to Vainright asking if he knew of some need that the society could fill that year. Vainright surely did, and the program was born.

The mechanics of such an undertaking took a while to work out. Fortunately, Edwards is the son of Mrs. Kathryn Lewis, then head of counseling service for the Pitt County Schools, now assistant superintendent of Pitt County Schools.

Billy Stokes works for Pitt Technical Institute in the Division of Continuing Education which provides education for those who do not fit into the usual school areas for various reasons. Stokes assigned a teacher to work with the program, Mrs. Gina Carlton.

So Julian Vainright's idea, Gamma Beta Phi's knowledge and energy and Billy Stokes' know-how melded into a program to teach adults who had never had the opportunity to learn how to read.

Mrs. Carlton analyzes the need of each learner and decides what program or technique could best serve that person. The Gamma Beta Phi volunteers then tutor on a one-to-one basis to give the individual attention that is the secret of success in teaching any skill.

In the beginning, only a few came to class, but the workers talked others like themselves into joining the class. Now, there are approximately 20 people enrolled in the program, which is beginning its third year.

The reward for all those involved in the program comes when an adult who has learned to read and write can put his feelings about the program in written words. One wrote: "I was 30 years old before I learned to read and that changed my whole life. One of the reasons why I wanted to go to school, was because my children would ask me to read to them and I would tell them to take it to their mother . . . I thank God that I have learned to read. I read in Sunday School too, and I am not ashamed any more."

Tickets For 'Friends' Season Available

BALLET WEST — is one of five major concerts being offered for the 1979-1980 season of Friends of the College, N. C. State University, Raleigh. Other attractions on the program are the Black Watch Scottish Highland Regiment; the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; the Moscow State Symphony Orchestra; and a quartet of Metropolitan Opera stars. All concerts are to be at the Reynolds Coliseum. Mrs. Mae Gates is the Greenville membership representative, and can provide interested persons with season membership tickets, priced at $10 for the five events. In addition, bus transportation to and from Raleigh for all concerts is available for $35. For more information and reservations, contact Mrs. Gates at 758-1420.

Greenville Folks On The Ski Trail

Text By Keith Mills

Bundle up, we're going snow skiing.

The occasion for this imaginary excursion is a recent two-day trip by a group of 68 local residents to the Blue Ridge and the white peaks and mogul-ed slopes of Wintergreen, Virginia.

Wintergreen is situated 45 minutes southwest of Charlottesville off I-64 and offers year-round activities. But as winter hastens its wide run towards the bottom of the seasonal slope, snow skiing dominates the scene.

Let's Participate

Last year the Greenville Recreation Department pre-arranged a trip to Wintergreen for 34 beginning and experienced ski enthusiasts and repeated the trip this year, doubling in size.

While some of the participants were advanced or experts in the sport, the bulk comprised beginners and intermediates who hit the slopes for the first or second try.

Charles Vincent, Assistant director of Recreation, is an intermediate skier by virtue of the fact that last year he underwent an hour of instruction and mastered the beginner slope — not such a formidable task, he asserts, but an "awkward" one.

"This time I went to the intermediate slope and then tried the advanced," he said. "The advanced slope is all work and requires total concentration; it's steeper, slicker and there are more bumps (moguls). The intermediate mixes fun with work."

Typically, the difference in length between the advanced and the intermediate slopes is not that great: however, the contrast becomes more marked in the verticle drop; for example, Eagle Swoop, an advanced slope, drops 525 feet, while Diamond Hill, intermediate, drops 410 feet.

"You have to be relaxed but a little firm," Vincent said. "You can't be stiff. And if you feel like you're falling, you shouldn't fight it; just fall.

"We talked about it among ourselves and estimated that you probably generate about 30-35 m.p.h. under control on the intermediate slopes. The advanced probably adds about 10 m.p.h."

And how does it feel? "It feels like you are flirting with danger and mastering it at the same time — it's that thrill," he said. "I don't think it's that dangerous but you can get hurt. I'm a little apprehensive but not scared of it.

"We had no broken legs, but Boyd Lee took a lesson that morning, got thrilled, enthralled, and that afternoon tore a knee ligament. A lot of people were sore and had aches but that was the worst injury we've had in the two years," he said.

A novice, Donna Hill, also on the staff of the of Recreation Dept., "went down once without a lesson and it was terrifying; because you're out of control and don't know what to do. All you know how to do is fall and get back up," she said.

All in all, Ms. Hill fell down about four times before surrendering to a ski instructor.

"You can go straight down but you don't know how to stop yourself, so the big difference (with a lesson) was that I could actually go halfway down the slope without falling.

"They tell you the basics, how to weave back and forth, how to keep from falling, and they tell you how to get back up when you fall.

"After successfully going down the beginner slope three times without falling, I felt like I could do anything," she said. "I had my confidence built up and went to the intermediate.

"Super scared. I have never been so scared because the slope was a lot longer, icier, and I came upon what, looked like a tremendous, straight-down, slope. I got wiped out.

"But I had my confidence up," she maintained.

"One time I fell on my knee and it hurt a little. Then I fell on my face and it knocked the breath out of me; but it didn't hurt super-bad.

"After you've gone down it a few times you feel like you've accomplished a lot. It's like you're super high because the adrenalin has been flowing all day."

Gene Briley, a local banker, said the worst hazard on the slopes is other people. "Some people have the ability to stay up on skis but don't know how to control themselves, so they get up to maybe 30 m.p.h. and collide with other people."

The best time to avoid the crowds is early in the week. As can be expected, the slopes are saturated with people on weekends

Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Dept. talked about his injury.

"I was just going down the hill, where you turn, and I went over a mogul, stopped to turn, and my left ski came off: the right one didn't, but stuck upright in the snow, and the force spun me around and twisted my knee."

Lee, who was descending an intermediate slope, said he was "just skiing naturally and got out of control on the ice.

"I was the only fatality," he said jokingly.

"It is a good sport and I was having a blast until it happened; now I have to spend four weeks in a cast."

The injured skier noted that "high risk sports" such as water and snow skiing, skydiving and scuba diving are becoming more popular, which, he added, can be attributed to "the times we live in — people seek thrills."

Accommodations, Rentals, Fees

The Recreation Department plans another excursion next year; so if you're interested in making the trip the following information may be helpful.

Anyone is welcome to go, according to Charles Vincent. The Recreation Department does not charge for its part in the trip and handles all prior arrangements at Wintergreen.

The drive takes about five and one-half hours, orthe equivalence of a trip to Beech Mountain here in North Carolina.

The cost this year, including condominiums, lifttickets and ski equipment rentals, ran approximately $56 per day per person, or double that amount for couples, plus food and gas. Lessons are $7 a day extra.

"We had six in a condominium," Vincent said, "which comes with a fireplace, washer-dryer, dishwasher, two baths and a complete kitchen."

The days involved include a Sunday arrival and skiing on Monday and Tuesday — those days were selected because the rates are half price and the slopes are less crowded. Departure, 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Unless you stay on over, night skiing and disco are not available because night life is limited to Tuesday through Saturday

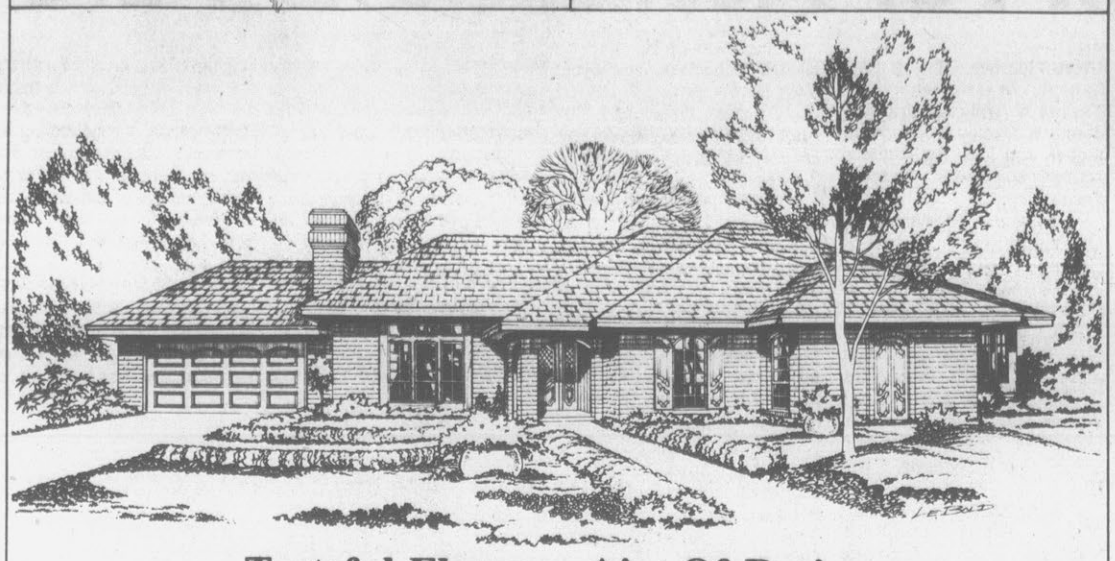
The Northcote



Tasteful Elegance Aim Of Design

TRADITIONAL PLAN SHOWS 3 BEDROOMS

By Jerry Bishop

Marked by a floor plan that allows easy access to all areas of the home, the Northcote includes three bedrooms, two full baths, a family room, and an imaginative kitchen/dining area.

The facade combines brick siding, hip roof, and small-paned windows with arched lentils for a repeated, softly curving effect. Inside the entry, with clothes closet at hand, guests may be welcomed into the 19-ft. family room at left. Besides being generously proportioned, the family room is well-supplied with natural light and offers a wood-burning fireplace for warmth and atmosphere. A walkway at the rear of the room joins double garage with kitchen for convenience.

Also accessible from the entry hall is the innovative kitchen/dining area. An island food preparation center and roomy pantry are included in the kitchen, and the connecting dining area takes on a semicircular shape and is heavily glassed to overlook the patio. At right, a utility room with space for laundry equipment is a step-saving addition.

Each of the three bedrooms is large, and the master bedroom is favored with an impressive dressing area featuring double walk-in closets and adjoining a private bath. Linen and storage closets are plentiful.

With entrances from the foyer or bedroom hallway, the third bedroom shows versatility and might be used as a guest room, library, or home office.

The attached double garage will be appreciated in inclement weather and also offers an entry to the rear yard.

Furniture Coverings Can Be Really Off-The-Wall

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

Some wall coverings are literally "off the wall."

They can be furniture coverings, too. Try wall coverings on sofas, coffee tables, chair seats. Even built-in furniture and wall units can be given new identity with the distinctive patterns available in wall coverings.

"It's utterly, 100 percent washable, even more, scrubbable," says Thomas Harshman, a designer and consultant to Kassel Corporation. "It will not fade and you can take a brush to it. Who wants to deal with fingerprints?"

New ideas for gaining the most dramatic impact with wall coverings were staged in model rooms at a recent showing, with special consideration for the younger consumer who must reckon with limited space.

"There's a whole new market out there," says Harshman, "the new man who isn't afraid to be fashionable, the new woman who knows she is somebody — they are being themselves with a vengeance."

"Sense appeal" is the approach Harshman believes will win acceptance.

"This is the age of touch, feel, experience," he explains. "There are textures for every personality and every sensation — from caressable moires to sensuous straws."

Prominent are a rough-sawn wood design, an embossed mosaic and a treatment of rough-woven jute. And the colors are clove, toast, expresso, butter, cream, silvery grays, misty blues, spring greens and ruby reds.

In another exhibit, Katzenbach and Warren take a cue from the conservation fervor to style an entire collection on the American wilderness theme. It is called "Winds and Wilds." As an added concession, it is printed on recyled paper.

In the collection, "Marshland" is composed of densely designed flowers and plants. Squirrels, raccoons, birds and bears cluster in a woodland scene in "Wild Life," and "Sanctuary" depicts egrets and herons standing amidst grass and fronds.

Exotic birds and flowers, framed in medallions, are featured also by Greeff in its Carlisle II collection. This rendering, however, was derived from an ancient Indonesian batik and is compatible with provincial furnishings.

Acknowledging a renewed interest in Oriental themes, the firm also presents a Chinoiserie wallpaper in blue and natural, with human figures forming an overall pattern. An example was displayed in a study with country furnishings, accented by brilliant red upholstery and draperies. Another wallpaper, taken from an antique scroll, is highlighted by a feathery bamboo design.

A spokesman for Naturescapes attributes the enthusiasm to "increased interest in photography as an art form, a trend toward realism in painting and sculpture, and the great improvement in printing technology and materials."

He cited "Eagle Creek" and "Canoe Country" as two of the firm's best sellers. These, too, are washable and completely dry strippable.

Should you decide you'd like to put up wall covering yourself, but are not sure how to make a selection, here are some pointers from Con-Tact designers:

You can push back your walls, optically, with light colors and subdued patterns. By contrast, warm colors are likely to make a room look smaller. Cool colors gave it a more spacious air, as does the gleam of metallics — possibly why they are often used in small bathrooms.

Bold designs on a short wall will make a room appear better proportioned. Stripes will make a low ceiling seem higher. Tall ceilings will "come down" if you use a patterned border near the ceiling on a plain wall. Another way requires a dado with wall paper above it and paint below it, matching the background color.

A slanted ceiling will "disappear" if covered with the same pattern as the walls.

There's an exception to the general rule about the optical effects of patterns. Ordinarily, a small pattern makes a room look larger — but not if the design is strongly repetitive. Conversely, a large pattern — if it is airy and three-dimensional in feeling — may broaden your vistas considerably.

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Recommend a fertilizer for my spring flowering bulbs. (W.D., Durham)

A. For hardy spring bulbs such as jonquils, crocus, tulips and hyacinths, use two pounds of 5-10-10 fertilizer per 100 square feet immediately after flowering. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Help me prepare for an annual problem. How can I stop birds from pulling up my sweet corn? (Mrs. H.C., Warsaw)

A. A material called "Mesural" is supposed to protect corn, according to the Agricultural Chemicals Manual published by the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences at N.C. State University. People who have used Mesural say it is very effective. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. I am a beginning gardener. Could you define organic fertilizers and list several examples? (F.W., Greenville)

A. Organic fertilizers are derived from animal or plant substances instead of refined chemicals. Some examples are raw bone meal, horse manure and dried blood. The analysis of fertilizer materials is expressed in terms of nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P) and potash (K). The analysis of bone meal is 4-22-0, meaning it has 4% nitrogen, and 22% phosphorus and no potash. The analysis of horse manure is .5-.3-.5, meaning it has less than 1% of these nutrients. The analysis of dried blood is 13-1.5-0. Just because an organic fertilizer is low in nutrients does not mean that it is of little value. They can help add humus to the soil, which improve tilth. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Although I had a fairly good idea of what the Energy Tax Act of 1978 covered, the multiplicity of questions about the law from readers sent me scurrying to the Internal Revenue Service publication, "Energy Credits for Individuals." Between this and Form 5695, which must be used when a credit is claimed, I was able to get a much clearer picture of the fine points of the regulations concerning income-tax credits for insulation and other energy-saving improvements.

Before passing on the information, it is important to understand what a tax credit is. When you get a DEDUCTION, you subtract the amount from income before the tax is computed. When you get a CREDIT, you subtract the amount of the credit from the sum owed the government after the tax is computed. Thus, a credit saves you far more than a deduction.

The credit provided by the Energy Act amounts to 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent. You can claim the credit on your federal income-tax return for 1978 for qualified improvements made from April 20, 1977, to the end of 1978. Credit for improvements made from Jan. 1, 1979, to the end of 1985 may be taken on returns for later years.

The maximum credit of $300 applies to any one taxpayer for any one house. If you're claiming a credit for work done on a house last year but are planning to move, you'll be eligible for the full credit on your new home, provided, of course, that it was built before April 20, 1977. You'll be able to take the full credit even if the previous owner had made some energy-saving improvements and received credit for them.

Another benefit of the new law is that you can claim a credit as of the date you installed the insulation, storm windows, or whatever, not the date you paid the bill. The Energy Tax Act states that an expenditure "shall be treated as made when the original installation is completed." You might have paid for an energy-saving item before April 20, 1977, but didn't get around to installing it until after that date. Or you might have made the installation in December of last year but didn't pay for it until this year. In both cases, you can deduct the credit on your 1978 tax return.

Although energy credits are allowed only for principal residences, it's okay if you made a qualified improvement within 30 days before occupancy. The government recognizes that many people who buy older homes like to fix them up before they move in.

The improvements that qualify for the credit are insulation, storm windows and doors, caulking, weatherstripping, clock thermostats, replacement furnace or boiler burners that reduce the amount of fuel used, and heating-plant ignition systems that replace gas pilot lights. Insulation for water heaters and insulation that is wrapped around forced-air ducts are included. The cost of both materials and labor is a qualified expenditure.

The items that do not qualify make an interesting list. Siding is one, even though it is intended in part to have an insulating effect. Others are draperies, carpets, wood paneling, a replacement boiler or furnace, a wood-burning stove, or fluorescent lights.

Also, here's a little-known fact. You are eligible for the tax credit if you rent either a house or an apartment. The dwelling must be your principal residence and must have been built before April 20, 1977.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Planning Bd. Will Meet

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday night at Parker's barbeque resturant, on Memorial Drive.

The board's business meeting will follow a 7 p.m. dinner.

Resolutions of appreciation are scheduled to be presented to Larry Hurlocker, who has resigned as county planner, and to Roy Beck who is retiring March 9, from the Soil Conservation Service.

Other items on the agenda include: approval of an FHA loan for construction of a fire station at Belvoir and a building to house the Grifton Rescue Squad; preliminary plans for the Country Squire Village subdivision and the Country Squire Village mobile home park; final plans for McGregor Downs Subdivision, Section II; action on a proposed Solid Waste Ordinance; and a review and comment on a multi-family dwelling ordinance.

Police Without Guns Are Occasionally Frustrated

By KIRSTEN O. LUNDBERG

LONDON (UPI) — It was only 10 minutes — the time it took the unarmed London police officers to sign for a gun — but it meant the difference between escape and arrest for a fleeing convict.

London is the only major city worldwide whose police do not carry guns. The force is proud of the fact. But incidents like the above increasingly raise the question of whether growing violence in society may force British police to join the gun-carriers.

Brixton, where the armed robber eluded capture, is a once prosperous area that in recent years has become a crime-ridden slum. To carry or not to carry guns in Brixton is an emotional and daily question. There are no easy answers.

"I would hate to carry a gun," said police constable Bob Milton, one of a two-man squad car team patrolling in Brixton. "But I have to admit there are times when patrolling in the squad car it would be better to have a gun on board."

"I think you need a gun in the cars," agreed teammate Ron Toye. "If the criminals you're dealing with are armed, it's only rational you should have proper protection against them."

At the moment, police have access to guns, but they are for emergencies and must be signed for. Local police can call on special permanently armed metropolitan London squads, operating out of Scotland Yard.

A recent evening's patrol in Brixton was typical except for the presence of a reporter in the squad car. During the eight-hour shift, a gun was called for only in the incident with the armed robber.

In the evening's other incidents — breaking down a door to rescue an overdose victim; trying to locate an unlicensed driver; answering the alarm from a girl who was accosted on the steps of her apartment house — no gun was necessary.

The question boils down to: are a cop's chances of getting shot himself heightened or lessened if he is armed?

"Don't you think if you come into a situation where the other person knows you're carrying a gun, he'd be more likely to shoot with no questions asked than if he knew you were unarmed?" asked Milton, who has been on the Brixton force for 4½ years.

"No," said Toye, a 13-year Brixton veteran. "You're not talking about nice guys who would think of something like that. If they've got a gun, they'll use it. They don't care if the cop is armed or not."

"You see, if you start that, the whole thing will just escalate," Milton said. "England is lucky in not having the number of guns around that the United States does, for example, and we want to keep it that way."

Scotland Yard in last July released violent crime figures for 'L' division, which includes Brixton and four other communities south of the Thames, showing a rise of 42 percent in three years — to 2,055 in 1977.

Walking around Brixton, it is hard to imagine it as the prosperous shopping center and bedroom community for the West End theatre district it was when PC Ronald Woodman came to the force in 1953.

"There was a market here then, and good quality shops people would come to from far away. But bus and rail strikes ended all that, the businesses went broke and that was the beginning of the slide," said the grizzled 57-year-old who joined the police after 16 years with the Royal Navy.

Brixton's fleeing population made room for an influx of unemployed youths and immigrants unfamiliar with British law. Racial problems certainly exist.

Woodman, as a "home beat" officer, patrols his square mile on a battered old bicycle, speaking to as many of the 20,000 inhabitants as possible in an approximation of a "village situation," as he put it.

"I'm not there to see if everybody is toeing the line, but to talk," he said. "To set an example and give an explanation of right and wrong."

The people he deals with are of mixed origin, including Irish, Chinese, Pakistanis, West Indians, Greek and Turkish Cypriots and locals from the old days.

Woodman patrols alone and doesn't carry a gun, nor does he want to.

"If I felt afraid to walk the streets, I might as well throw over the job, mightn't I?"

New homes built to Greenville Utilities' E-300 STANDARDS of energy efficiency can cut energy consumption by as much as 40 percent when compared to a house built to comply with state minimum building code standards only. That kind of savings can put hundreds of extra dollars into your pocket that would otherwise be wasted on expensive "energy leaks."

Homes which qualify for GUC's Energy Efficient Home Award have been carefully inspected by one of our representatives during construction. Each energy-conserving feature of the home is evaluated and assigned Energy Efficiency Value Points. To qualify for the Award and to be certified by GUC as an energy efficient "E-300" Home, a minimum of 300 EEV Points must be earned.

If you're buying or building, consider the many benefits of an Energy Efficient Home: Economical—lower heating and cooling bills, Quiet, Clean, Comfortable, and many, many more.

To find out more about the E-300 Home, contact the Energy Conservation Office at Greenville Utilities, 752-7166, Extension 234.

Foreign Students Take Up The Slack In Colleges

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

Jalil Hosseiny is a 22-year-old Iranian who came to America in early December to attend Windham College in Vermont. Five days later, the college closed.

He is one of thousands of foreign students who aren't finding in the United States what they expected — but paid for.

Foreign students are attractive to colleges caught between tight budgets and a declining U.S. birthrate. And they are profitable to agents who match them with colleges. But some feel they have been cheated.

Expecting to study engineering, Hosseiny says an agent in Iran promised him a fine education at one of America's best colleges in a moderate, spring-like climate. Not only did he land in snowy Vermont at a college about to fold, but while still in Iran, he says, he paid $500 to an agent for the usually free official form that entitles students to attend an American college.

In America, he paid $550 more for tuition, and "I have no more money," Hosseiny said through an interpreter. "It's very bad."

What's worse is that Hosseiny scored zero on the English exam given by the Experiment in International Living, where he is bunking until he finds another school to attend. The Experiment is a nonprofit organization specializing in foreign exchange programs.

"Some of these students are scoring the lowest scores we've ever recorded," said Dr. John Wallace, director of the Experiment's School of International Training, which offered housing to 13 Iranian students stranded when nearby Windham College closed. "For us, a score of 10 to 15 is a beginning English student."

Students like Hosseiny were recruited by Windham College because the tiny school, situated in Putney, Vt., was in severe financial trouble and needed students, says Stanley Zielinski, former acting president of the school.

So the school agreed to pay $55,000 to Peter E. Galonis if, within a month, he provided 150 foreign students who could pay full tuition.

"He didn't produce them," Zielinski said, "and the result is obvious." A few days later, Windham closed its doors.

"We could have delivered that many by Jan. 1," says Galonis, who runs his business, International Educational Services Inc., out of his home in Lake Ariel, Pa., a few miles from Scranton. "They know that. Internal politics killed the school."

Since he started the company 4½ years ago, he has placed between 350 and 500 foreign students in American schools each year, he says. "About 65 percent of my business is from the Mideast.

"What we have to sell is a commodity no one else has — our educational system," Galonis says. "Everyone in the world admires it and wants the prestige of a U.S. education. I'm pro-USA and selling what the USA is all about. We hope to be involved with Chinese students soon. There is a whole new thing opening up."

Galonis says his service is free to students and that he is paid by the schools — an average of $200 a student. He concedes that some agents who send clients to him probably charge fees like the $500 Hosseiny says he paid in Iran.

Galonis' business, he said, is aimed at colleges and universities in financial trouble, but he insists that he did not know Windham was about to close when he sent 13 students there.

Last year more than 203,000 foreign students were studying in the United States, according to the Institute of International Education in New York. Of these, more than 28,000 came from Iran, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Iraq, Kuwait and Egypt.

About 25,290 African students were in the United States last year, along with 97,130 Asians, 14,400 Europeans and 29,820 Latin Americans.

The Iranian contingent is among the largest from any one country, and their government has been paying full scholarships for about 1,000; about 3,000 get $200 a month for living expenses, says Clifford Gurney, an education advisor at the Iranian Embassy. Military students get more. The rest are supported entirely by their families.

Because of a steady drop in the U.S. birth rate, American colleges and universities have watched their enrollments drop — and with it, their income.

So the schools have turned to foreign countries, particularly the Middle East, for students with cash. Often they use agents. Some are legitimate — offering guidance and counseling for $50 to $200.

Others offer no guidance and don't screen students for interests and English proficiency. And they charge $500 to $1,000 for official forms called I-20s, which American schools provide free.

"There is a number of agencies, some in this country and some abroad, that are in business purely for financial reasons — with no interest in giving proper care to the welfare of foreign students," said Hugh Jenkins, president of the National Association for Foreign Students Affairs in Washington. "It may not be permanent, but it is a thriving business right at this time."

"I would guess that two-thirds of the 14,000 Iranian students who came to America last year were ripped off financially and ended up at inappropriate schools," says Fred Lockyear, a foreign-student consultant for the College Board Office of International Education in Washington.

Lockyear says most legitimate counseling organizations require three to four months to process a student's papers and enroll him in the proper school, but, "Many students would much rather go around the corner to an agency where for $700 they can have a form in a week."

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has been looking into college recruiting practices for two years, says District Director Joseph A. Mongiello, but "there's been no proof of any fraud to date."

Applicants For Grant

Greenville, Ayden and the Village of Simpson, are among eight municipalities in the Mid-East region that have submitted a pre-application for $5.43 million under the Department of Housing and Urban Development's Small Cities Community Development Grant Program.

The Small Cities program is designed to address the community development needs of low to moderate income persons by providing funds for the rehabilitation of impaired homes and the removing of dilapidated homes which serve as a threat to the health or safety of persons who reside in them.

Community development funds are also used to upgrade public facilities, such as drainage, curb, gutter and water system improvement.

Ayden applied for $281,716, while the Village of Simpson has requested a $251,400 single purpose grant to help eliminate severe housing problems.

The Greenville application for $2.13 million will play a direct role in the South Evans neighborhood district.

Ardent Angler Has To Publish

By MICHAEL HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Earnhart likes to fish. He likes to fish so much that he had to start publishing a magazine about it.

Actually, Earnhart publishes two magazines. The first, "Ohio Fisherman," is now three years old. "Great Lakes Fisherman," is going on three months of age.

The first issue of "Ohio Fisherman" hit the newsstands in January, 1976. Now, three years later, the average circulation is 40,000 copies said Earnhart, 50 this month, who knows the reason for the magazine's success: "I found a hole."

"There's an old saying that 90 percent of the fish are caught by 10 percent of the fishermen," Earnhart says. "And I thought, 'Why not let the other 90 percent know how the top fishermen are doing it?'"

The "Fisherman" is strictly about angling in the Buckeye State.

"Great Lakes Fisherman" circulates 80,000 copies in an eight-state area around the lakes. It is devoted to coverage of fishing not oly on the Great Lakes, but also the waters nearby.

How did Earnhart find his hole?

"You know what really did it? It was gummmed labels," he explained. "All those outdoor magazines, they had labels on the cover saying 'News of Your Area' and inside I'd find only a column.

"Well, I walked the riverbanks. I talked with people and I asked them, 'Would you buy a magazine about fishing in Ohio?' I talked to boat owners and bait dealers. I spent two years researching the idea before getting the backing," he said.

"I feel very fortunate to be able to turn my hobby, really more than my hobby, into a profession," he said.

QUALITY

The New 4-Door Accord

THE NEW HONDAS.

At Bob Barbour Honda, you'll find a lot of reasons to be impressed. First, there are the exciting automobiles from Honda. Quality automobiles, solid, well-built, and affordable. Pictured above is Honda's brand new entry: the Accord 4-door. It has all the advantages of the regular Accord, plus more room and easier access. And, like all the Honda models for 1979, it's simple to drive, simple to own, and simple to enjoy.

OUR FINE USED CARS.

Quality describes our used cars, too. Bob Barbour Honda offers you a better selection of dependable late model used cars than you'll find anywhere else.

SERVICE TO MATCH.

Our service department will impress you, too, because it shows our commitment to stand behind the quality products we sell. Frank Quinn, our parts and service director would like an opportunity to talk with you personally when you visit us.

IT ADDS UP TO THIS:

In every way. . .new cars, used cars, parts and service. . .we're committed to be a quality dealer.

HOW
TEN YEAR PROTECTION

When you move into one of our new homes, you will be protected by HOW, America's new 10-year homebuyers' protection plan. For the first two years after purchase, you will be covered by the Home Owners Warranty. During the first year, we will repair any defects in workmanship and materials that fail to meet approved standards. In the second, we will repair defects in wiring, ductwork, and piping. During these two years, HOW's national insurance plan will stand behind our warranty obligations to you. For the next eight years, the HOW program insures you against any major structural defect that vitally affects the use of your home. (Exclusions are reasonable. See us for details.)

To qualify for participation in the Home Owners Warranty Program, we have met HOW's standards for technical competence, ethical conduct, and financial responsibility. We have signed a contract with the national headquarters of HOW, in Washington, D.C., agreeing to place all of our homes under warranty, to qualify annually for re-registration, and to submit to spot-checks of our work by HOW inspectors. We also have pledged to abide by procedures set up by HOW for speedy and effective settlement of any buyer/builder disagreement.

When you buy a home from us, you will receive your Home Owners Warranty from us and a binding Certificate of Participation, containing your insurance policy, from HOW. And please remember: This unique, 10-year protection package can be provided only by a builder who is registered with HOW. Only he can display the HOW emblem.

Before you buy or build a new home, see us first.

ROBERSONVILLE
On a tree covered lot in a quiet section of town is where you'll find this 1800 square foot rambling brick ranch with 3 bedrooms and 2 full baths, den, wood deck and more and it's only $44,900. 100% VA Loan or FHA or Conventional financing available.

CHILLY EVENINGS
Will disappear when the family gathers around the fireplace in this cozy home. Sunken family room complete with unique fireplace and bookshelves provides a setting for family pleasure. Special attention to details, trim, and molding are appealing eye catchers! Three bedrooms, two baths, and roomy kitchen plus a wood deck. Location is important and you'll find this address ideal in CLUB PINES. Economical heat pump enhances the charm and livability found here. $57,900.

EYE APPEAL
And unique floor plan create a "home for living." Situated in lovely CHERRY OAKS this interesting design offers all the things you've been looking for in a home. The warm, cozy family room adds a special touch for entertaining or for family enjoyment. Attractively decorated, this 1½ story home is only 2 years old and in excellent condition. The formal living room with its large bay window enhances the adjoining sunken dining room. Four bedrooms, two baths, separate laundry room and double garage are offered. The kitchen is spacious and private for the "cook" who dislikes interruptions. $73,900.

SUPERIOR
In quality and design, this majestic home boasts every luxury imaginable! Truly in a class all by itself and one of Greenville's most beautiful homes, the livability even surpasses the beauty. Perfect for the executive who needs and wants to entertain including formal and informal areas. Featuring quality craftsmanship, high ceilings, private library/study, Florida room, separate breakfast room and over 2000 square feet of recreation space in the game room on the lower level. A world of elegance is evident in the superior taste throughout. The huge master suite upstairs provides its own private dressing area and bath with marble vanities. In addition, there are enough bedrooms and baths for the larges family. Appealing exterior and unique interior are impressive, but the superbly landscaped lot is breathtaking. Manicured flower garden in the rear will charm you. A rare find in this prestigious area, this elegant listing is truly distinctive.

NO CITY TAXES
With this 3 bedroom brick ranch with 2½ baths, den with fireplace, formal living & dining room, kitchen, utility room and garage and it's only $45,000.00 and empty. 100% VA financing available or FHA or conventional financing available.

CHERRY OAKS
Or if you need 4 BEDROOMS, 3 baths, DEN & LIVING ROOM EACH have fireplace, 2 car garage. Perfect for the family who has RELATIVES or TEENAGERS that want privacy. Located in one of Greenville's FINEST AREAS. This is a STEAL at only $68,500.00. Large beautiful WOODED lot. Replacement cost would be much more for today's standards. So why pay in the Hi 80's or low 80's for this kind of home.

BROOK VALLEY
At the golf course lives this 4 bedroom home with over 2500 sq. ft. of living area. Den with fireplace and wet bar, 2 car garage and many other features. Low's 70's.

CLUB PINES
Under construction, 4 bedrooms, all formal areas, den plus game room. Could even choose your colors at this point. Builder is using a lot of new and different ideas. Low 80's.

An important message from Herbert H. Davis, M.D.

Dear Friend:

I am a doctor as well as Chairman of the Board of Physicians Mutual Insurance Company. And over the years of my practice, I have seen many cases where a good supplemental hospital policy could have eased the financial strain on the families of hospitalized patients.

That's why I wanted to call your attention to our latest policy we've developed here at Physicians --

-- a policy that pays equal benefits of $30.00 a day -- $900.00 a month for you, your wife and all of your children from the very first day you're hospitalized for a covered accident or illness.

You'll find all the details in this booklet. So why not read it over now. It could be something you'll want for yourself and your family.

Sincerely,

Herbert H. Davis, M.D.

Herbert H. Davis, M.D.
Chairman, Board of Directors

P.S. I'm especially pleased that we can make this outstanding value available to you. I sincerely believe it's the finest policy we've ever offered.

Board of Directors: HERBERT H. DAVIS, M.D., Chairman; ROBERT A. REED, President; JOHN A. AITA, M.D.; ARNOLD W. LEMPKA, M.D.; R. RUSSELL BEST, M.D.; H. W. MC FADDEN, M.D.; WILLIAM R. HAMSA, M.D.; EDMOND M. WALSH, M.D.

Dr. Davis is right! Medical costs have soared to such unbelievable heights that it makes it almost financially impossible for us to be sick. According to the American Hospital Association, the average patient now pays $175.08 a day for hospital care.

An average stay in the hospital—8 days—could cost you a small fortune. And that's not even counting the doctor . . . medicine . . . plus all the other bills that you still have to face whether you're sick or not—food, electricity, house payment.

The plain truth is that you could use $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) cash to help you pay your bills when you go to the hospital. It's a mighty comforting thought to know you have this extra help available just when you need it most.

And that's what this policy is all about. It was created to help you face the problems that arise whenever you're hospitalized for a covered sickness or accident.

Here is insurance that gives you extra protection with cash benefits for

SICKNESS! ACCIDENTS! MATERNITY! CANCER! HEART ATTACK!

Pays 50% increased benefits for cancer or heart attack!

Pays you $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) cash!

You'll collect $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) for any covered sickness or accident beginning the very first day you are hospitalized. Protect yourself, your wife or your whole family. $30.00-a-day equal benefits for all. Just pick the plan that meets your needs.

Pays you $1,350.00 a month ($45.00 a day) cash for cancer and heart attack!

Your daily benefits are increased 50% if you or any covered member of your family is hospitalized for cancer (including leukemia and Hodgkin's disease) or heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis, or coronary occlusion).

Pays you double benefits—$3,600.00 a month ($120.00 a day) cash for you and your wife!

Yes, that's a lot of money. But you'd need it. So under the Husband-Wife or All-Family Plan, you'll collect $3,600.00 a month ($120.00 a day) if you and your wife are both injured and hospitalized at the same time by the same or by different accidents.

Pays maternity benefits, too!

You'll collect full cash benefits $30.00 a day for hospitalization due to pregnancy if your policy has been in force for 10 months. There's no added cost to you!

No waiting period for accidents or new sicknesses.

Remember accidents and new sicknesses are covered immediately the very day your policy is issued. You collect the first day and every day you're hospitalized for a covered sickness or accident.

You get lifetime coverage and benefits.

There's no limit on the number of days for which you can collect cash benefits. You can be hospitalized as often as necessary and stay as long as you have to knowing that your $30.00-a-day benefits cannot run out. Our plan will pay you benefits for as long as you're hospitalized EVEN FOR LIFE!

Pays cash benefits in addition to any other insurance you have.

Remember, this is extra, supplemental protection. Your benefits are paid over and above any other insurance you may carry including Blue Cross Blue Shield, Major Medical and Medicare. This policy is designed to help you make up the difference between your total hospital bill and what your other insurance will pay.

Your benefits are not taxable.

Your benefits from your Physicians Mutual Hospital Policy are not taxable by any level of government. They are not subject to state or Federal income tax.

Your policy is guaranteed renewable!

This is a very important point, because you want to be absolutely sure you'll have your protection when you need it. So for as long as you live and keep your policy in force, we guarantee never to cancel or refuse to renew your policy. No matter how much money you collect. No matter how often you go to the hospital.

What's more, we'll never raise your rates unless we do so for all policies like yours in your entire state. This means you can't be singled out for a rate increase.

Please note these exceptions.

Pre-existing conditions (health problems that became evident or were medically treated before the effective date of the policy) are not covered for one year from the date the policy is issued. Half-benefits ($15.00 a day) are paid for up to 4 weeks confinement due to mental disorder. Not covered: loss due to use of narcotics or intoxication; loss covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employer's Liability Laws. Confinement in nursing homes, Federal hospitals, or the self-care, extended-care or convalescent units of hospitals is not covered. Pregnancy is covered after your policy is 10 months old.

We guarantee to issue you a policy, regardless of your present age or health condition.

You will not be turned down because of your age, health or size of your family.

As soon as we receive your Application, we will issue your policy (P350 360 Series) and put it in force. From that day on even before you receive your policy in the mail you're covered for new sicknesses and accidents. Naturally, we can issue only one policy to you on a guaranteed issue basis.

If you're already a Physicians Mutual policyowner and would like information about additional coverage available to you, please write for details.

Enroll today. No salesman will call!

You can enroll in this Physicians Mutual Hospital Policy by simply filling out the short Application attached and mailing it together with $1 which pays for your first month.

Special provision applies for folks 65 and over

When you are 65, you'll find help for hospital care in many forms—Medicare, Social Security, special agencies, and perhaps a pension plan. But because people in this age group go to the hospital more often, this extra help is frequently not enough.

In addition to Medicare, you'll be receiving cash benefits from Physicians Mutual . . . to fill the financial void created by your illness. During the first 60 days of hospitalization—when Medicare coverage is highest—you collect half benefits, $15.00 a day.

After 60 days of hospital care—when Medicare coverage reduces and you need help most—your cash benefits go up to $30.00 a day. And stay there no matter how long the hospital visit!

We've found that most folks over 65 prefer this approach . . . because your monthly premiums do not increase after you turn 65.

Another feature many senior citizens appreciate is that you will be covered for cancer, heart attack, stroke, hernia, disease or disorder of the prostate, tuberculosis, cataracts, emphysema, cirrhosis or diabetes if your hospital confinement commences more than six months after the effective date of your policy.

First, choose the plan that fits your needs best. Remember—no matter which one you choose, $1 pays for your first month.

Individual Plan

Ideally suited for the single person or for the individual family member who needs protection.

All-Family Plan

Offers protection for the entire family. Covers father, mother and all eligible dependent children including future additions.

Husband-Wife Plan

One-Parent Family Plan

Now choose the combination of cash benefits and premium options that fits your needs and budget best. Remember—your first month's premium is only $1.00!

FIRST DAY OPTIONS: Pays from the very first day for covered sickness or accident.

A OPTION A — $30.00 a day $900.00 a month

	Under 40	40 and over
	(Use age of principal insured)

Physicians Mutual— providing help when you need it most.

At its founding in 1902, the Company specialized in health insurance for physicians, surgeons and dentists only. Then in 1962, recognizing the growing need for extra protection against the rising cost of hospitalization, we began offering supplemental insurance to the general public. Today, our various policies protect over a million Americans in all walks of life.

Headquartered in Omaha . . . licensed in 49 states and the District of Columbia, Physicians Mutual is proud of its record of service. Last year alone, we paid claims totaling over $54,000,000 on all policies.

As proof of its financial stability and sound operating performance, Physicians Mutual has been awarded an A (Excellent) rating from A.M. Best Company, independent insurance analysts since 1899.

'Roots' Sequel Begins Sunday

"Roots: The Next Generations," the 14-hour continuation of the powerful television saga, will air in seven parts this week on ABC-TV. Following is a night-by-night capsule of each episode:

Sunday, Feb. 18 (8 to 10 p.m.) — It is 1882, and relations between the races in Henning, Tenn., are peaceful but strained: a son of the town's leading citizen marries a black girl and is disowned; Tom Harvey forbids his daughter marriage to a light-skinned man because the man is "too white."

Monday, Feb. 19 (8 to 10 p.m.) — In 1892 the political pressure on blacks is increasing; outrageous 'literacy tests' deny them the right to vote, and lynch laws are appearing again. Tom's daughter, Cynthia, married Will Palmer, and she gives birth to a daughter, Bertha, who will become the mother of Alex Haley.

Tuesday, Feb. 20 (9 to 11 p.m.) — Seventeen years later (1912), Palmer has replaced the late Tom Harvey as the leader of the black community of Henning. Bertha goes to college where she meets the young and ambitious Simon Haley, the son of a poor sharecropper. Back in Henning — and in the rest of the nation — racial tensions are as great as ever, with the Ku Klux Klan reappearing for the first time since Reconstruction. Thousands of young black men — including Simon — enlist in the Army as World War I begins.

Wednesday, Feb. 21 (9 to 11 p.m.) — In 1918, the war in Europe is raging and Simon is part of the 92nd Infantry Division in the segregated army, where the enlisted men are black and the officers are all white. After the war, Simon returns to find race riots and violent street battles. Simon and Bertha marry and leave Henning so that he can take his Masters Degree at Cornell. When they return they bring their first child — Alexander Murray Palmer Haley.

Thursday, Feb. 22 (9 to 11 p.m.) — In 1932 Simon lands his first teaching job at a black college in Normal, Ala. Back in Henning, young Alex (now 12) listens to his grandmother, his Aunt Liz and his Cousin Georgia telling stories of the African who was their ancestor, and turns to his grandmother for comfort when his mother dies.

Friday, Feb. 23 (9 to 11 p.m.) — Alex, almost 17 in 1939, is confused and uncertain about his life. He joins the Coast Guard and shortly after World War II begins, he meets and marries Nan Branch. While at sea, he discovers he has a way with words and spends his time writing. Eventually this ambition causes him to lose his wife and daughter.

Sunday, Feb. 25 (9 to 11 p.m.) — The year is 1960 and Alex is pursuing his career as a freelance writer. A visit to Henning reignites the writer's interest in a subject he remembers from his boyhood — the African, Kunta Kinte.

Natalie Wood Is Truly A Star

Natalie Wood, who has grown gracefully before the eyes of an international audience, making the difficult transition from child star to ingenue to leading woman, may truly be called a star.

Natalie, a three-time Academy Award nominee, portrays her most mature role to date as Karen Holmes, a betrayed wife and mother who is seeking someone to give her validity as a woman in "From Here to Eternity," a mini-series currently airing on NBC-TV (Wednesday, Feb. 21, 9 p.m.).

In a business where careers are meteoric, Natalie attributes her 34 years of constantly working to "discipline, hard work, selectivity, good advice and luck."

The petite star, born Natasha Gurdin in San Francisco, Calif., started her career by accident when she was four years old. She and her mother were hired as extras by director Irving Pichel for a film that was in production in a nearby town.

Two years later Pichel was having difficulty casting the role of an orphan in "Tomorrow is Forever" and he sent for the little extra, who was now six. She won the role with a screen test and Natalie Wood was born.

Natalie's performances won critical acclaim, earning her the box office Blue Ribbon Award in 1945, and she was named "Juvenile Motion Pictures Star of the Year" by Parents Magazine in 1947.

While most young actors go through an awkward teen period, Natalie managed the leap from child to teenage beauty smoothly, winning an Academy Award nomination for her role as James Dean's high school sweetheart in "Rebel Without a Cause."

STARS IN DRAMATIZATION OF FAMOUS NOVEL-Natalie Wood stars as Karen Holmes in the miniseries "From Here to Eternity," airing Wednesday, Feb. 21 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Anything But Mindy

The first time Pam Dawber heard about ABC's "Mork & Mindy" her response was, "Oh no, I don't want to get involved in anything that sounds that stupid!"

Of course, the actress says that perhaps the remark came because she wasn't sure she wanted to do a TV series. "Also," she adds, "I've never heard of Robin Williams."

Today, she and Robin are the best of friends and their team work has made the series the surprise hit of the TV season. Yet, away from the sound stage, Pam is anything but Mindy.

"There was no pilot filmed for this show. Normally, you audition for something, and that kind of gives you something to fit into, but in this case the first script was finished four days before we started shooting it.

"I was given lines like, 'Mork, what are you doing? I'm going to have to tell, and if daddy finds out that you're living here, I'm going to be in big trouble.' How do you find out what a character is in those kinds of lines?

"So, putting my nervousness aside, I had to make some decisions about what she was in a simple process of time. What she's become is Pam at 21 who would have a spaceman living in her house. But," she exclaims, "I think Mindy is a little more straight than I am as far as what she gets involved in.

"For instance, we had a chimp on the show recently and Mindy walks in and says, 'Mork, what are you doing with a chimp? He can't stay here. You've got to take him back.'

Pam Dawber stars with Robin Williams in the surprise TV hit of the season, "Mork and Mindy." The comedy series is telecast Thursdays on ABC-TV.

'American Graffiti' Was High Point In Careers

HIGH SCHOOL SWEETHEARTS-Ronny Howard and Cindy Williams are high school sweethearts unable to face the prospect of separation in "American Graffiti," airing as "The Big Event" Sunday, Feb. 18 (8-10:30 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Richard Dreyfuss, Ronny Howard, Paul Le Mat and Charlie Martin Smith star in "American Graffiti," the box office smash that was nominated for four Academy Awards and either launched or further established the careers of the four principals. The comedy-drama, which also stars Candy Clark, Mackenzie Phillips, Cindy Williams and Wolfman Jack, will be colorcast on NBC-TV's "The Big Event," Sunday, Feb. 18 (8 to 10:20 p.m.).

Set in the early fall of 1962 in a small town in northern California, the film interweaves the stories of the four young men during their last night together as teen-agers. As the local radio disk jockey establishes the musical mood, excitement abounds.

Curt and Steve (Dreyfuss and Howard) are uneasy about the prospect of leaving for college in the east the next day. During the night's activities, Curt nearly joins a local gang and Steve breaks up and makes up with Curt's sister, Laurie (Williams).

Terry (Smith) borrows Steve's Chevy and unexpectedly hits it off with a pretty but unpredictable blonde. John (Le Mat), at 22, is still a drag racing champ in the town and enters the climactic race of his career.

'Graffiti' is entertaining and perceptive, fun and illuminating and all in the cause of that peculiar breed of man, the teenager. Although it was filmed around a few towns in California, its universality is such that it seems equally reminiscent of any small area where there's not much to do and the car is King.

Generally laying waste to the streets of the town in the jalopies are the film's four protagonists, four carefully chosen studies in contrast. Curt is the intellectual of the bunch, the only one to display some perceptiveness for and love of the people around him.

Better still is aging dragstar John, the Mercutio of the bunch, who's beginning to wonder if still driving around in a hot rod with his hair in a d.a. and his t-shirts rolled up to the shoulder is all that sensible.

Best of all in neophyte Terry and Debbie, the girl he picks up. Terry is one year behind Curt and Steve and looks upon their rituals with awe and gratitude.

One in all they are great, and the things they get into are so expected and real that they grab at you.

Movie Concludes

An exciting courtroom confrontation highlights the conclusion of "Ride a Wild Pony," airing on "The Wonderful World of Disney" Sunday, Feb. 18 (7 to 8 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

The dream of a poor farm boy, Scott Pirie (Robert Bettles), came true when he was given a wild Welsh pony. However, Scott's delight proved short-lived: the pony was discoverd missing a few weeks following his arrival.

After much searching, Scott recognized his pony (Taff) at a fair. He demanded the pony be given to him, but young Josie Ellison (Eva Griffith), the pampered daughter of a rich landowner, claimed the animal (Bo) belonged to her. Following a short ruckus, the constable took Scott home and told him not to cause any more trouble.

When Bo disappears from the Ellison stable, neighboring lawyer Charles Quayle (John Meillon) urges Scott to turn the pony over to the police until the court can determine whose pony it is. Scott reluctantly agrees.

While awaiting the trial date, each child takes turns visiting the police corral to feed and groom the pony. When Scott feeds him, the pony bites and shoves him like Taff used to do. When Josie cares for him, the pony is calm and gentle and leans to her so she can reach him, just as Bo used to.

The courtroom is packed on the day of the trial, and both children state the reasons why they know the pony is his or hers. Quayle sums up his case by saying it is hopeless for the court to determine whose pony it is. Why not let the pony decide?

An area is roped off outside. Two chairs are placed in it for each child to sit in and call the pony, knowing that the one to whom it goes will be judged the owner. The pony moves toward Scott and nudges the boy hard, sending him tumbling to the ground. There are cheers. It is Taff.

The judge announces the decision. Then, the pony moves in to comfort Josie, Taff, it seems, is also Bo.

Back at home, Scott realizes the pony must have been picked up accidentally by the Ellisons after he ran away. When Ellison (Michael Craig) and Josie drive up to his house, Scott is momentarily afraid. Quayle's son Kit (John Meillon, Jr.) pleads with him to stand up and face whatever is going to happen.

Calmness Prevailed In Filming Of 125 Actors

Irish-born Director Michael O'Herlihy, a lean, quiet man known chiefly for his action film, proved his versatility with his sensitive direction of "Backstairs at the White House," NBC-TV's mini-series concluding Monday, Feb. 19 (9 to 11 p.m.).

With a calmness that belied the enormity of his task, he guided 125 actors with speaking parts through three months of filming on two sound stages in Hollywood and location filming in Washington, D.C.

The basic sets he worked in were the upstairs Center Hall area of the White House where the First Families lived and the kitchen, service area and attic. The dramatized true story focuses on the servants and their relationships with the Presidents and their families from 1909 through 1961.

"That man can see around corners," exudes Robert Hooks, noted actor who has returned to films after seven years of producing and directing plays in New York and Washington, D.C.

His tact, diplomacy and firmness in handling an all-star cast whose combined acting awards totaled 28 Oscars, Emmys and Tonys won the admiration of all of them.

"He provided an atmosphere in which we could work concentratively and get things done," says Leslie Uggams, who portrays Lillian Rogers Parks, the onetime White House maid on whose 1961 best-seller the mini-series is based.

PRESIDENTIAL FATHER-Harry Morgan, as President Harry S. Truman and Nancy Morgan, as his daughter, Margaret, star in Book Four of "Backstairs at the White House," on "Monday Night at the Movies," Feb. 19 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

At the outset, in an unused corner of the stage, O'Herlihy established and informal "green room," the traditional haven of actors. A circle of directors' chairs was the inner sanctum where the director and his actor discussed upcoming sequences, exchanged ideas and quietly debated concepts.

Stars Revealing Secrets

Bob Eubanks and Michael Hill have unearthed a feature writer's treasure in their new venture, "All Star Secrets." The game show recently debuted on NBC-TV and airs Monday through Friday (10:30 a.m.). And, during each half-hour, true-life secrets are revealed about the five major celebrities who appear on the unusual panel.

Example — Zsa Zsa Gabor was once held out of a tenth floor window by an irate, threatening husband. "Thank God I was wearing a Balenciaga with well-sewn seams!" she said.

Example — McLean Stevenson's first date cost his parents $125. The callow youth, thinking himself suave, blew a kiss in his date's tender ear. Trouble was, he was also munching a Milk Dud at the time and the thing got lodged deeply into her ear. The doctor's bill was $125.

Example — Sally Struthers' older sister told her if she wanted to receive letters as the other members of her family did, she would have to sit naked on the front doorstep. Five-year-old Sally did it, but all she got for her pains was a spanking for her mother.

Example — When Pat McCormick's first child was born, he celebrated with a huge dinner party. With the guests at a big table, a lovely silver platter was brought in. When the cover was removed there was the tiny baby, surrounded with parsley and other festive goodies!

As secrets are revealed, one of the celebs is asked to guess which of his co-panelists fits the secret. Contestants are then asked to decide if he's right.

The new format actually combines the best of a game show and a talk show, since the celebrities spend most of their time in an exchange of quips regarding personal secrets about each other. Only the contestants actually play the game.

Top Rate Comedy Airs

Academy Award-winning actress Glenda Jackson and George Segal star in "A Touch of Class," sophisticated comedy about a divorcee and a married man who have an affair, rebroadcast as "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, Feb. 19 (12:30 a.m.).

Miss Jackson won her second Oscar as Best Actress for her performance in the film. (Her first was for "Women in Love" in 1970.) "A Touch of Class" was nominated for Academy Awards as Best Picture and for Best Story and Screenplay.

Filmed on location in England and Spain, the story focuses on an affair that follows a chance meeting in London park between divorcee Vicki Allessio, a spunky and sophisticated fashion designer, and Steve Blackburn, a well-to-do American insurance adjuster.

Nazi Plot Is Foiled

Michael Caine, Donald Sutherland, Robert Duvall and Larry Hagman star in "The Eagle Has Landed," a World War II suspense drama about a Nazi commando plot to kidnap Winston Churchill. The adventure, based on a novel by Jack Higgins, will be colorcast on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Tuesday, Feb. 20 (8 to 11 p.m.).

The tale begins in Berlin in 1943 as the Nazis, realizing the war is lost, search frantically for some means of forcing the Allies into a favorably negotiated peace. The plot to abduct the British leader and negotiate for his safety begins as a hare-brained scheme concocted by a raving Fuehrer but suddenly takes on plausability when a German intelligence officer, Colonel Max Radl (Duvall), discovers that Churchill will be vacationing in a sleepy Norfolk village whose coastal location makes a German military airlift distinctly possible. Enlisting the aid of an Irish freedom fighter, Liam Devlin (Sutherland), who figures a Nazi victory might free the Irish from oppressive Crown rule, Radl is given carte blanche and defers a crack commando leader, Colonel Kurt Steiner (Caine), from a suspended death sentence prompted by "mutinous acts" in defense of a Jewish concentration camp victim.

The plot unfolds with wickedly clever precision as Steiner's troops, disguised as Polish paratroopers, enter the village and begin their "maneuvers." Embraced by the townspeople, the Germans are initially aware that a battalion of American soldiers is stationed just outside the village. A freak accident prompted by the rescue of a drowning child uncover their true identity and a savage battle ensues, followed by Steiner's last-ditch attempt to kill the Prime Minister. Once again, a twist of fate prevents history from being rewritten.

Director John Sturges keeps the film packed with suspense, and the cast performs with admirable intelligence and gusto. Tom Mankiewicz's screenplay survives the liberties it takes with fact and provides a viable framework for an all-to-rare cracker-jack war adventure.

Success Creates Problems

Twelve-year-old Tom Rodriguez forms a successful singing duo with his shoeshine partner Aurelio, only to find the pleasure of earning so much money undermined by the defensiveness of his father, a proud man who is unemployed, in "New York City Too Far From Tampa Blues." The drama will be broadcast on "NBC Special Treat" Tuesday, Feb. 20 (4 p.m.).

For Tom, the move to New York is fraught with challenges. As a newcomer to the city streets, he must deal with an intimidating street gang as well as find a way to earn money. As his father had when he was a boy in Puerto Rico, Tom takes up shining shoes, and he joins in a partnership with Aurelio, a tough Italian youngster. The boys become fast friends as they discover in one another a mutual love and talent for music, and Tom begins to understand that music will be his way in life.

Even more unsettling for Tom is the tension he must deal with at home. Pancho, his father, a stubborn, hard-working man, has moved his family to New York in order to take a job as a truck driver, only to find his new job in jeopardy because of a strike. Worried about being able to provide for his family, Pancho feels threatened by any challenge to his responsibility. He wants a better life for Tom — but he imagines Tom's future in terms of his own.

Almost accidentally, Tom and Aurelio find themselves with a job singing Irish ballads in Delaney's Paradise, a neighborhood tavern. The money they make is staggering compared to what they made shining shoes, but Tom, anticipating his father's disapproval, holds the money back. Instead, Tom buys the Christmas presents his family would not have had and, by doing so, forces a revealing confrontation between father and son.

"New York City Too Far From Tampa Blues" is the original song Tom and Aurelio perform at their first concert appearance for a church benefit.

Reynolds Stars In 'White Lightning'

An ex-con makes a deal with Federal authorities to break up a moonshine ring in exchange for his freedom, in "White Lightning," an action film starring Burt Reynolds as Gator McKlusky, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Feb. 20 (8 to 10 p.m.).

Ned Beatty and Jennifer Billingsley also star.

Gator is serving time in the Federal penitentiary when he learns that his kid brother has been murdered. Treasury agents agree to free him if he will work as an undercover agent in an effort to smash a moonshining ring being run by a corrupt sheriff. Gator is convinced that this same corrupt lawman, Sheriff Connors (Beatty), is the man who killed his brother.

Gator's unique driving ability enables him to infiltrate the ring as the driver of the supercharged car used to haul the illegal moonshine. But Gator's real identity is soon discovered and members of the ring take him and his girlfriend, Lou (Billingsley), hostage. But, Gator and Lou make a hairbreadth escape through the mountains of moonshine country.

Carroll Stars

Diahann Carroll stars in one of three central roles in "Sisters," an NBC World Premiere drama written by Maya Angelou.

"Sisters," now being filmed in Montgomery, Ala., is a contemporary story involving the tragic and triumphant reunion of three sisters. It deals with today's issues and problems, reflecting the searches and struggles, the individual growth and changing relationships of three black women.

Carroll, who won a Tony Award for her starring performance in Richard Rodgers' Broadway hit, "No Strings," is a versatile stage, screen and nightclub performer best known to television audiences as the star of "Julia" for three years.

Angelou is an authoress, actress, singer and poet whose literary works, such as "I Know Why a Caged Bird Sings," have become acclaimed successes.

Hawn Signs With ABC

Academy Award-winning actress Goldie Hawn will be associated on a long-term basis with ABC-TV and will star in her own television specials and develop both television and theatrical motion pictures.

Ms. Hawn, currently starring with Chevy Chase in the box-office hit, "Foul Play," will be exclusive to ABC in all areas of television. The agreement will allow her to begin developing theatrical motion picture properties simultaneously with her television activities.

'Marathon Man' Airs Sunday

An introspective graduate student finds himself at the mercy of a terrifying fugitive Nazi war criminal in "Marathon Man," a suspense thriller starring Dustin Hoffman and Laurence Olivier, airing Sunday, Feb. 18 (9 to 11:35 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Hoffman portrays Thomas Babington "Babe" Levy, a graduate student at Columbia University, who leads a quiet, studious life. Much of his time is devoted to his doctoral thesis on the McCarthy era, a paper he hopes will clear the name of his father, a history professor blacklisted back then. In his spare time, he jogs, dreaming of glory as a marathon runner. Soon his life will come to depend on his skills as a runner.

Babe has an older brother, Doc (Roy Scheider), who has a mysterious glamorous job that takes him around the world. Babe idolizes Doc, although not always agreeing with him. Then doc shows up in deep trouble, and suddenly Babe is thrust into a nightmare world shared with a beautiful woman (Marthe Keller), a wily government agent (William Devane), and eventually, a sinister figure (Olivier) from the Nazi past.

Babe's life is turned terrifyingly upside down as he finds he can no longer trust his knowledge, or his instincts, as he is pursued by someone for reasons he cannot understand.

Marked by superb performances by Hoffman and Olivier, the film represents something of a unique gamble, using an artful and eminently 'serious' director, John Schlesinger, to spin an escapist thriller that could have been parceled out to any number of lower-echelon hacks and filmed quickly and cheaply. The results, which include aesthetically stunning murders in which blood sprinkles onto billowing white curtains or makes beautitul, spreading patterns in the pile carpet, are never uninteresting.

Poignant Drama To Be Shown During 1979-80

"The Gift" a poignant dramatic special adapted by Pete Hamill from his novel of that title, will be presented on CBS-TV during the 1979-80 season. The drama chronicles the experiences of a young Brooklyn man in the early 1950's who is home from the Navy for Christmas visiting his boyhood world of four-story tenements, neon-lighted bars, old Irish songs, deep hurts and deeper love. Glenn Ford and Gary Frank are among the stars of the production, now being filmed at various Brooklyn locations.

Ford portrays the hard-working and hard-drinking father, a native of Northern Ireland, who finds difficulty in expressing his pent-up love for his family. Frank plays the role of the serviceman son trying, as the Koren War looms before him, to come to terms with the pain of losing his first love, the poverty of the environment in which he has been reared, and the ostensible insensitivity of his father, who is a hero and friend to the neighborhood and a stranger to his son.

As the two men, in their own proud and stubborn styles, search for an understanding between them, they grow individually in the story.

The Gift, following its publication in novel form in 1973, was hailed as "a diamond," "an emerlad of a novel which achieves an intensity of feeling and sureness of effect," "an enchanting novel of joy and tears, a gift for warming the heart in a cold season," "truly a work of major talent...a marvelous portrait of youth and young love," "likely to become a Christmas classic."

Author Hamill, a native of Brooklyn and a former Navy man, has, in addition to his regular column for the New York Daily News, written the books Irrational Ravings, A Killing for Christ, and Flesh and Blood, which has also been adapted for television and will be broadcast later this season.

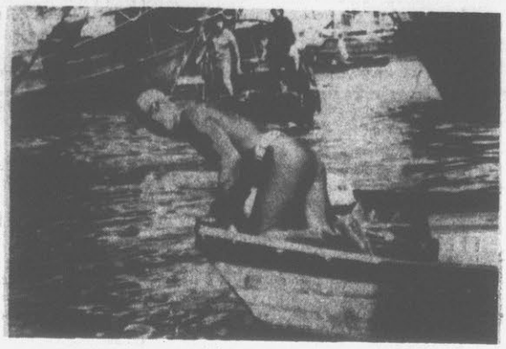
Clothes Make The Man



Nicholas Hammond, as Peter Parker-Spider-Man, stars in a special episode of "Spider-Man," Wednesday, Feb. 21 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

To paraphrase a very old saying — clothes do, indeed, make the (Spider) man. Actor Nicholas Hammond can vouch for that.

Hammond portrays the superhuman, skyscraper-vaulting, web-hurling hero, adapted from the comic book world, in "Spider-Man." A special presentation of the live-action adventure drama will air Wednesday, Feb. 21 (8 to 9 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

At first glance, the European-raised Ivy Leaguer would seem an unlikely choice to portray the fantasy figure whose feats of derring-do have made him a favorite with comic book readers around the world.

But only at first glance. After that, like all the other fantastic things about 'Spidey,' it all becomes quite logical.

In his special suit, Spider-Man is a creature from another world. But in his alter-ego role as Peter Parker, young student physicist and aspiring newspaper photographer, he is a dead ringer for Nicholas Hammond — and vice versa. Both are handsome, personable, mild-mannered, intelligent and hard-working.

After working for several days on the sound stage wearing the special skin-tight "Spiderman" rig with its head mask, plastic two-way mirror lenses, high plastic boots and elasticized sleeves Hammond declared: "There's really no secret to Spiderman's ability to scale the side of a skyscraper. There's nothing superhuman about it. It's that suit — it makes him want to climb walls."

Hammond has appeared in numerous television drama series and TV movies, but playing the fantasy figure Spider-Man was a real change of pace for the talented young actor. He readily admits that he thoroughly enjoyed the dual role.

"It was fun," he says, "as acting always is. Where else can one indulge in one's wildest fantasies as just part of the job?"

'Fidelio' On PBS Is Full Of Firsts

"Fidelio" is full of 'firsts.'

It was Ludwing van Beethoven's first (and only) opera. More recently, it was the first opera ever broadcast live, to 18 countries, from the historic Vienna State Opera. This presentation, Otto Schenk, also produced and directed his own live telecast.

The opera, a presentation of "Great Performances," will air Wednesday, Feb. 21 (8 p.m.). on PBS.

Since its debut in Vienna over 150 years ago, "Fidelio" has been heralded as a drama of political liberty. It is the story of Leonore, sung by soprano Gundula Janowitz, a strong willed woman who disguises herself as a man — Fidelio — in order to work in the prison that holds her husband, Florestan (Rene Kollo). Florestan has been unjustly incarcerated by the tyrannical Governor, Don Pizzaro (Hans Sotin).

Rocco (Manfred Jungwirth), the kindly jailer, disobeys Pizzaro's orders to kill Florestan; undaunted, the Governor decides to do the deed himself.

With the unwitting help of Rocco and his daughter Marcelline (Lucia Popp) — who has taken a fancy to the handsome young 'man,' Fidelio — all is eventually righted. An inspecting minister arrives only to discover the injustice, and he arrests the sinister Pizzaro. In one of the opera's most thrilling moments, Leonore herself frees her beloved husband.

Production Has Begun

Production has begun on "Anatomy of a Seduction," a new TV movie starring Susan Flannery, Jason Parker and Rita Moreno.

The romantic drama concerns the love affair between a divorced woman (Flannery) and the college-age son (Parker) of her best friend (Moreno). The affair is complicated by the fact that the woman's son is only a few years younger than her lover.

Looks At Jobs

In a look at traditionally female jobs, "Turnabout" visits hairdressers and department store clerks and talks to author Louise Kapp Howe on "Pink Collars," airing Sunday, Feb. 18 (3 p.m.) on PBS.

Host Jerri Lange says that pink collar jobs usually mean low pay, sporadic unionization and little chance for promotion or recognition of the work's value. These occupations are principally clerical to housewife. More than half the working women today are in these fields where two-thirds of the work force is female.

Producer Roxanne Russell points out that although some women working in department stores are dissatisfied with work conditions and pay, others find the job satisfying.

Annamae Hansen, who has worked for the same department store chain for 27 years, has seen some drastic changes since she started in lingerie. "People would phone then to make appointments with us. They were our customers. We were really friends. Nowadays people are in too much of a hurry to be concerned about who helps them."

Bev Stookey, who works part-time in women's accessories, admits that the work is not easy. "I wouldn't advise any woman who is not physically well to think about retailing because it is hard work standing on your feet." But she "loves people" and her salary provides "extra goodies" for her family.

Producer Russell says that retail sales jobs traditionally have been filled by women. However, men usually hold the positions in management and in departments which pay commissions such as men's clothing, large appliances and furniture. But, she adds that some women finally are becoming managers and are being hired for the higher-paying departments.

Howe, who coined the description, 'pink collar,' took the first investigative look into these jobs in her book, Pink Collar Workers. She found that occupational segregation by sex is as prevalent today as it was in 1900.

Discussing the value placed on women's work, Mrs. Howe says that the U.S. Department of Labor equates homemaker on the level of dog pound attendant. "Much of what we do is undervalued," she says. "Although we are happy to see women in jobs that have been traditionally for men, we wonder if those jobs will become undervalued simply because women are in them.

"The solution to women's problems lies not just in getting us into the male fields, but in doing something about the female occupations, too."

HOLLYWOOD — The weather has dominated most everyone's conversations lately, but the cast of CBS' new series, "THE DUKES OF HAZZARD," have reason beyond just their disgust with so much moisture. Production on the show was delayed an entire week because the location just north of L.A. where filming is to be done has been covered by snow...and it's less than an hour's drive from the city!

JOHN TRAVOLTA and MARILU HENNER ("TAXI") were not only at each other's side at the recent Golden Globe Awards presented by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, but they plan to vacation together before month's end. They're not saying where they'll go, but a good bet is Hawaii.

A visitor to the home of KATE JACKSON will find the actress in sharp contrast to what she is on the set of "CHARLIE'S ANGELS." At home she's the affectionate and obedient wife of ANDREW STEVENS who is quite proud of her homemaking talents. On the set, she's subject to moodiness and seldom, if ever, mentions her husband.

MAREN JENSEN of "BATTLESTAR GALACTICA" has politely but firmly declined to follow in the footsteps of FARRAH FAWCETT-MAJORS and SUZANNE SOMERS by posing for PLAYBOY MAGAZINE. It seems that a great number of people are trying their best to mold beautiful Maren into a sex symbol, but she's having no part of it. Not only does she not think of herself in such terms, but she says very honestly that her boyfriend objects to the idea.

There are those who say that ROBIN WILLIAMS is beginning to feel the burdening fatigue and exhaustion brought by "carrying" the ABC series, "MORK & MINDY." It seems that Robin's usual cheerful and glib personality has become a bit tainted with frayed nerves and an ever increasing short fuse.

McLEAN STEVENSON has a daily routine in which he has breakfast at a small coffee shop near the studio where his new series, "Hello Larry," is taped. However, since the show premiered, he's finding it harder to breakfast without interruption. There are a lot of people who want to talk to him about how they solve their problems.

Don't be surprised if there's a lot of scheduling changes again come March. Some of the switches the networks have made have been more harmful than good to several shows that were doing very well in the ratings before mid-season. "THE WHITE SHADOW" is just one example.

Series Attracts Stars

"Sweepstakes," NBC-TV's new romantic comedy-drama series, could easily be called "Starstakes."

The network newcomer has already attracted about as many stars in its first three episodes as an entire series might get in a year.

Since the show premiered Jan. 26, many of the top names in the entertainment world have been featured. Among them are: Adam Arkin, Priscilla Barnes, Paul Benedict, Foster Brooks, Audrey Christie, Bill Daily, Katherine Helmond, Elaine Joyce, Erin Morgan, Greg Mullavey, Kim Richards, Abe Vigoda, Frankie Avalon, Bill Dana, Joan Blondell and Tom Poston. The series' only regular, Edd Byrnes, plays the emcee of the sweepstakes drawing.

"We've deliberately added to our budget in order to get big-name stars," said John Furia, Jr., supervising producer of "Sweepstakes." "We have three stories in each show and outstanding, interesting roles that attract top actors."

In this week's special 90-minute telecast (Friday, Feb. 23, 9:30 to 11 p.m.), Herschel Bernardi, Adrienne Barbeau and Frederic Forrest star as finalists in a lottery in which the prize is one million dollars. Bernie Kopell and Bess Armstrong are also featured in the segment.

Tim Singer, Meyer Bolinksi and Bonnie Jones are among the 12 finalists in the Sweepstakes. One of them will become an instant millionaire while the other two must settle for a thousand-dollar prize.

Singer is a lawyer dedicated to social reform who fights for people in the ghetto. Political image-maker James Winant wants him to run for office against incumbent Congressman Groves, but there are no campaign funds. Singer does, however, have the support of his girlfriend, Liz Abbott.

Bonnie gets fired from her job as a cocktail waitress and, despite warnings from boyfriend Norman Townes, puts her entire life savings toward the down payment on her "dream house."

Michele Will Tell

Q: Does Anne Murray have a fan club? If so, how do I join it? L. HAWLEY, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: The lovely singer does have a fan club. The address is P.O. Box 1069, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. It is interesting to note that Ms. Murray is one of the few entertainers who is successfully combining motherhood with a career. Since her son was born (August, 1976), she has limited her appearances to a few TV guest spots, a couple of concerts and nightclub engagements, and her career has not been hurt at all.

Q: Please give me some information about Loretta Lynn's sister, Peggy Sue. Is she in show business? G.A., PRINCETON, N.C.

A: Peggy Sue Webb has made several recordings. She has also written songs under the name of Tracey Lee which Loretta has recorded. Peggy is married to Sonny Wright, formerly a front man for Loretta, and they occasionaly appear professionaly together.

Q: What are the real names of Lt. Starbuck and Commander Adama of "Battlestar Galactica"? Where do I write to them? B. HOLT, WILMINGTON, N.C.

Q: Bring me up to date on Tina Louise, who is seen in TV commercials and recently guest starred on "Dallas." H. McRAE, SHANNON, N.C.

A: The statuesque American leading lady of films hit her prime in the 60's and is still actively involved in movies and television. The only television series in which she had a recurring role, however, was "Gilligan's Island."

Q: Tell me something about Robert Pine who plays in "CHiPs." JILL, VALDESE, N.C.

A: Pine, born and raised in Scarsdale, N.Y., co-starred in several Disney films and guested in TV series before being cast as Sgt. Getraer in "CHiPs." He is married to actress Gwynne Gilford and has a 7-year-old daughter, Katie.

Q: Is the woman who appears in the 'One-Step' TV commercials with James Garner his wife? V. EXUM, ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

A: No. She's actress Mariette Hartley.

Q: Is it true that the guy who plays 'The Hulk' on "The Incredible Hulk" is dead? S. M., KENLY, N.C.

A: No. Lou Ferrigno is alive and well, despite the fact that this rumor has circulated about three times since the series started filming.

He Is Always 'On'

Irrepressible Todd Bridges, who plays Willis Jackson on NBC-TV's "Diff'rent Strokes" (Fridays, 8 to 8:30 p.m.), is the youngest member of an "all-show business" family.

His father, James Bridges, is a Hollywood agent. Also busy — at acting — are his mother, Betty, his older sister, Verda, 17, and brother James Jr., 18.

Todd, born in San Francisco May 25, 1965, began doing commercials at the age of 6, and moved into TV comedy and drama when the family went to Hollywood in 1974. One of his first big roles was on "Little House on the Prairie." He played the small black child who offered to sell himself into slavery in order to get an education.

He also appeared on "The Waltons," "The Love Boat" and "Police Story," and had a starring regular role on "Fish."

While portraying the precocious Loomis on "Fish," Todd quickly developed a national following. In just a few weeks hundreds of fans, young and old, were inquiring about fan clubs and buying "Loomis" T-shirts.

Soon Todd was honored with an "All-American Boy" award at ceremonies attended by an aide to Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley: postal workers kicked in to establish a special mail box for him, and area businesses including a barber shop, a beauty parlor and a beauty contest organizer plastered their walls with posters of the young star.

Indoor Championships On CBS

Houston McTear is one of the track and field competitors participating in the AAU Indoor Championships, presented by CBS Sports on Saturday, Feb. 24 (3-4 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Some of the greatest track and field competitors in the world, including Houston McTear and John Walker, are expected to compete when highlights of the 91st National AAU Indoor Championships are presented in a CBS Sports Special, Saturday, Feb. 24 (3 to 4 p.m.).

Twenty-two-year-old McTear will most likely be the favorite once again in the 60-yard dash. At last year's Championships, it was McTear who literally stole the show by breaking his own 60-yard world record, winning the awesome three feet in 6.04. More important, McTear, who is renowned for his fast start, ran his record despite leaving the blocks second to Steve Williams, winner of the World Cup 100-meter dash.

McTear wasn't surprised by his performance. In fact, that afternoon he had telephoned his next-door neighbor in California and predicted his world record. Yet he didn't feel like basking in his indoor glory. "I want to go outdoors. I wish the 1980 Olympics were next week," he told reporters after the 60.

One of McTear's biggest handicaps in the past was that he was muscle-bound. His is a blocky five-feet and seven and one-half inches, 158-pounds. When he was a high school senior in Baker, Fla., a pull in his right hamstring kept him from competing in the 1976 Olympics, even though he had qualified for the U.S. team, and that same pull bothered him throughout the following year.

"When Houston came to me, he couldn't touch the floor with his hands," says his trainer, Larry McVey. "I'm a fanatic for stretching, and I've gotten Houston's muscles more pliable, more maneuverable. He doesn't have to worry about pulls anymore. The world is just beginning to see a healthy Houston McTear."

Expected to extend McTear to his best effort in the Championships is Steve Riddick, a 27-year-old whose best indoor time is 6.14 seconds.

New Zealand's John Walker, the Olympic champion at 1,500 meters and world outdoor record holder in the mile (3:49.4), is expected to contest the mile distance over the banked boards against Dick Buerkle.

Walker, who also holds the world indoor mark for 1,500 meters of 3:37.2, knows Buerkle will give him a serious challenge. Last year, during the indoor season, Buerkle, a distance specialist in his collegiate days at Villanova, excited track fans with a world indoor record in the mile of 3:54.9.

Geared For Kids

NBC Sports will present 75-second sports briefs designed to promote improved physical fitness, health and nutrition among youngsters during the network's 1979-80 Saturday morning children's program schedule.

These health-related spots aimed at children and featuring well-known sports figures, will be produced as part of a company-wide commitment to increase and improve its service to children and further establish NBC's recognition of the United Nations' designation of 1979 as "The International Year of the Child."

Five such briefs will be telecast each Saturday. Combined with NBC News' announced plans for news spots, there will be a total of 10 informative and constructive messages for children each Saturday.

In announcing plans for the children's health briefs, Chester R. Simmons, President, NBC Sports, said: "These will be mini-programs designed to improve the overall physical well-being of children by encouraging healthful recreational activity along with the nutritional habits that coincide most beneficially with the activity.

"The spots will reveal to youngsters the value of a wide-range of athletic activities emphasizing aspects directly related to participation such as proper equipment and training methods."

Simmons disclosed that in addition to the athletes, whose on-camera contributions will feature an important facet of their individual skills, plans call for segments to include noted sports physicians, trainers and nutritionists who will elaborate on their specific areas of expertise.

The Teen Scene

PARKER STEVENSON isn't saying what it means, but he and long-time steady girl SARAH MORRIS are very much back together. They'd more-or-less gone their separate ways last summer, but in recent weeks the two are everywhere together.

KRISTY McNICHOL thought she'd take advantage of a three-day weekend and travel to the condo she owns in Palm Springs. That's where the young actress travels to unwind and catch up on her sleep. What she didn't plan on was being stranded there an extra day when snow blanketed the resort city and closed the highway leading back to Los Angeles.

SEN. TED KENNEDY and former PRESIDENT GERALD FORD are just two notables who have said they will be guests on the ABC Sunday morning show, "KIDS ARE PEOPLE TOO." In fact, it seems that a lot of famous people have expressed interest in appearing on the youth-oriented variety-talk show!

A poll to be published next month shows that ERIK ESTRADA is the most popular television actor among teens, despite the fact the series he shares with LARRY WILCOX has declined in the TV ratings.

ANDY GIBB is closer than ever to putting his name on a contract for his first starring role in a motion picture. An announcement could be forthcoming any day now.

DEBBY BOONE will visit the White House in early April as a guest of PRESIDENT CARTER where she'll greet a large number of underprivileged youngsters, a group of people Debby is particularly fond of and the beneficiaries of a great deal of time given by the singer.

Vying For Third NASCAR Title

Cale Yarborough, who has won the national championship of stock car racing (NASCAR) for an unprecedented three consecutive years, is expected to vie for the Daytona 500 title for a third time Sunday, Feb. 18. CBS will televise the prestigious race, live from Daytona (Fla.) International (12-noon to 3:45 p.m.).

Yarborough, from Timmonsville, S.C., has won the Daytona 500 twice before (1968 and 1977), and has won the pole position on three different occasions, including his 1970 effort of 194.015 miles per hour, which still stands as the record car speed lap at Daytona.

In 1978, Yarborough did what no other NASCAR driver had ever done before — he won the NASCAR Grand National Championship for a third consecutive year. Not Richard Petty, nor David Pearson, Bobby Allison, nor many of the other great names of stock car racing have ever won it three times running.

1978 turned out to be a banner year for Yarborough in yet another way. He accrued more than $530,000 in earnings.

Bobby Allison, who finished second overall behind Yarborough in '78, is the defending Daytona 500 champion. Allison, from Hueytown, Ala., held off Yarborough's charge to take last year's race, his first victory in this event. And, culminating one of his best years ever, he was triumphant in the Los Angeles Times 500 and the Dixie 500 in Atlanta, taking home more than $335,000 in earnings.

For the first time in memory, Richard Petty failed to win a NASCAR event in the calendar year, but '78 was not all that bad for Petty, since he still managed to bank more than $215,000 in prize money and finish sixth in the standings for the year. And, he is always a threat at Daytona.

Petty, whose father Lee won the first edition of the Daytona 500 in 1959, has won this event five times. Richard's first victory came in 1964. Then, he became the first driver to win it twice when he took the checkered flag in 1966, and won it again in 1973 and 1973. In '74, he became the first and only driver to go to victory lane in back-to-back years.

Daytona International Speedway is a 2.5 mile tri-oval course with 31-degree banking in the east and west turns, and 18 degree banking in front of the grandstands. Most ground can be made up in the back straightway, which has a length of 3,000 feet. Each of the two front straights is 1,200 feet.

He Likes Carolina

A lot of so-called experts thought that the 1978-79 version of the University of North Carolina Tar Heels would come up dry when it came to the ACC Championship. After all, didn't they lose the legendary Phil Ford?

Well, the bright blue on the Carolina uniforms is still wearing fine. In fact, the highly-rated Tar Heels are battling their rival Duke Blue Devils for another title.

The Tar Heels face another stiff ACC test when they clash with the N.C. State Wolfpack Thursday, Feb. 22 (9 p.m.), on Channel 5,6,9).

One of the reasons that the Chapel Hill squad is doing so well has a lot to do with Dave Colescott, Ford's replacement at the point guard position.

Dave played a valuable role as a sub last year, getting into every game. But he had a tough battle this season to gain a starting berth. He finally secured that berth, and has played excellent ball in guiding the Tar Heels to another possible conference crown.

As a freshman, Dave showed what he's made of when the chips are down. In the ACC Championship game that year against the University of Virginia, he came into the game with his team behind and Ford having fouled out. He had to take over the ball-handling responsibilties and did a flawless job as Carolina came back and won the tourney.

Colescott was voted Mr. High School Basketball in his native state of Indiana. As a senior, he was also named the outstanding student-athlete in the state.

Basketball in his home state is as good as anywhere, what with teams like the University of Indiana, Notre Dame and Indiana State, so the natural question arises: why Carolina?

"Because I liked all the players and people in Carolina, and I wanted to play for a school with a winning basketball tradition," he explains.

The point guard position for the Tar Heels may be one of the most demanding situations on any college basketball team in the nation. When he inherited the position from Ford, Colescott also inherited the responsibility of leading the four-corners attack that Coach Dean Smith and the Tar Heels are noted for.

But the pressure doesn't seem to bother the junior, who adapted to his responsibilties as easily as if he had been directing the club for years.

If he can keep tossing those key passes to players like Mike O'Koren and Al Wood, the Tar Heels may make another run at the NCAA title.

Good Tips

When Hubie Brown gathered his Atlanta Hawks for training last year, he told them three things. "First, I told them that a player had to be a good person because there would be many moments of depression." Secondly, they had to be quick," he continued. "And finally I told them I would take the best shooter if two guys were close at the same position."

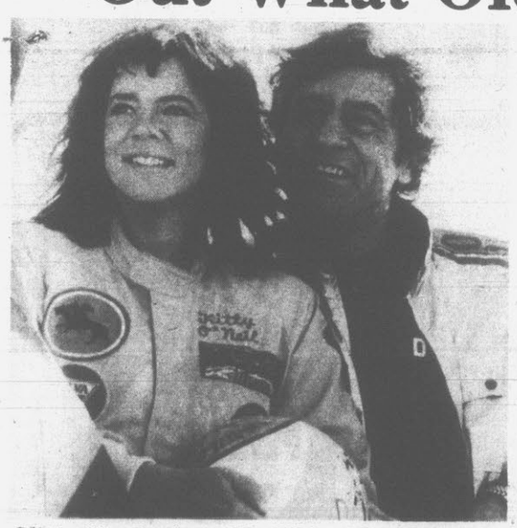
She Is Finding Out What Old Is



Stockard Channing stars as Kitty O'Neil and James Farentino co-stars as Duffy Hambleton, in "Silent Victory: The Kitty O'Neil Story," airing as the "CBS Saturday Night Movie," Feb. 24 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

At some point in their lives, most young people wonder what it will be like to be old. A 22-year-old actress named Debbi Morgan was recently given a remarkable opportunity to find out.

Cast as Alex Haley's beloved Aunt Elizabeth, she ages from 18 to 83 while appearing in 12 of the 14 hours of "Roots: The Next Generations," airing this week on ABC-TV.

"When I was first given the part I thought I would be in just the first four hours," the pert young performer admitted. "But the part kept growing and the producers decided to let me play the role in all the age ranges."

To help her with the aging process, executive producer David L. Wolper and producer Stan Margulies sent her to famed makeup designer Ken Chase. He took extensive molds of her face and went to work creating the makeup that would transform a 22-year-old girl into an elderly woman.

The Army: is it voluntary enough?

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022
We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CLIFFORD L. ALEXANDER, Secretary of the Army

Do voluntary enlistments meet peacetime demands? Are enrollments greater in some years than they are in others? —G.L., Wilmington, Del.

● The Army has been successful in attracting and enlisting sufficient young men and women to man our active force. We have been less successful with our Reserve Components recruiting efforts and are looking at ways to improve these. During the first two years following the end of the draft, the active Army recruited over 400,000 men and women. This year, we will again fulfill our requirement. Changes in recruiting requirements occur from year to year. They are caused by changes in the total authorized strength of the Army, changes in the rate of persons leaving the Army and also changes in the rates of reenlistment.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Your recent bit on Elvis made me wonder what his widow, Priscilla, is doing. What's the latest on her? —D.E., Scranton, Pa.

● Priscilla, 32, is leaning towards an acting career. She also is supposedly negotiating to write her autobiography. And money is not the temptation — she's a very, very rich lady. When her daughter Lisa Marie, 10, turns 25, she stands to inherit a fortune that runs into millions and is increasing every year. Last year, Priscilla looked into the question of sending Lisa to a very exclusive private school in England, then decided against it. She felt the distance might destroy the close relationship she had with her child. After he divorce from Elvis, Priscilla opened a successful Beverly Hills boutique, then sold it a a handsome profit. Whether she'll marry again, we do not know, but the man in he life right now is model-actor Michael Edwards, 33.

FOR MELANIE, recording star

What do you mean by saying that one day honesty will be your downfall? —B.L., Gary, Ind.

● I'm super critical about myself and very honest about my albums. Anytime I have a new LP out and a reviewer talks to me about it, the first thing I say is a self-deprecating remark. In other words, I can't wait to tell him (or her) what I think or am sure is wrong with it. Needless to say, my honest evaluation gets printed everywhere, word for word, for all the world to know what I did wrong.

FOR ROBERT MANDAN, star of ABC-TV's Soap

Had you any idea when you took the part of Chester Tate that the show would do well? Why did the role attract you? —F.L., Eau Claire, Wis.

● No one ever really knows for sure how well a show will do. We hoped and felt we were doing a quality program. The role of Chester appealed to me because I always wondered what type of a man would go to such lengths to cheat and lie about his activities. To make that type of character sympathetic with all his shortcomings was a challenge.

FOR BOBBY ORR, Chicago Black Hawks

● Inundated? I haven't had one offer. And even if I was asked, I'd turn them down because I couldn't handle a performing job. It's difficult and different. And entertainer's skates — particularly the blades — are very different from ours. Sometimes, when ice shows come to town, we're asked to join the troup for publicity purposes, but the producers see how badly I handle myself on the ice.

Since you're a newcomer to films, were you nervous about coming into contact with the big-name stars? —T.A., Monterey, Calif.

● And how. When I first started meeting them, I was scared to death at saying or doing the wrong thing. After a little while I found out they were just people. But I'm still in awe of big names, and I guess I always will be. Seems to me that lots of superstars are the exact opposite of what we think they'll be.

FOR TATUM O'NEAL, actress

We're always hearing of how close you are to your father. But what about your mother? Do you ever see her? —R.S., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● Of course. Please don't think she's out of my life entirely. She isn't. We're very good friends. I go to Palm Springs as often as I can to spend time with her. We have fun together; for me it's a whole different change of pace. Mom shows me how to sew and cook, and we go shopping together. I don't get any of that when I'm with Dad in Beverly Hills or Malibu.

FOR ISAAC ASIMOV, science-fiction writer, author of In Memory Yet Green

What's your opinion on the recent Venus probe data? —S.A., Albany, N.Y.

● I'm taking a wait-and-see attitude. If Venus started the way we think it did (Venus, Earth and Mars were formed from the solar nebula), all that gas — Argon 36 and Argon 38 — should have dissipated. It no longer exists in Earth's atmosphere. Until this puzzling Venus probe is either confirmed or re-evaluated, I'm holding up work on my next book, about Venus.

PRO AND CON

Are Airlines Using New Technology To Make Air Travel Safer?

PRO Langhorne Bond, Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration

Yes. We have, for example, a computer-based radar system in all 20 of our en route air-traffic control centers and more than 60 busy airport control towers to provide controllers with an automatic display on their radar scopes of such vital flight information as aircraft identity and altitude. Two recent additions to that system include warning devices that alert controllers when aircraft under their control are too close together or dangerously close to the ground or an obstruction. Among other safety measures under development by FAA are collision-avoidance systems that will serve as a backup to the ground-based air-traffic control system, to give pilots an additional measure of protection from midair collisions.

CON John J. O'Donnell, President, Air Line Pilots Assn

No. Presently available technologically advanced "off-the-shelf equipment," aids and systems improvements are not being used today. This applies to air-borne equipment, aircraft instrumentation, air-traffic control systems and airport landing aids, to name a few areas of concern. Many systems now in use are years behind today's technology. For instance, aircraft collision avoidance technology is available, but the FAA has no developed a full-capability collision-avoidance system. Instead, it has only proposed a system that won't work in dense air traffic areas where it is needed the most! Airline pilots are continually striving for increased utilization of advanced technology to provide greater passenger safety.

Instead of spreading runners that need acres of ground to bear fruit, our SUGAR-DADDY shoots out vigorous vines that you train skyward by tying them to any support to form a tower of fruit unlike anything you've ever seen before.

Just a Few Plants Yield An Entire Crop

SUGAR-DADDY is an everbearer with one of the longest growing seasons we've seen. These incredible "climbers" are one of the first to yield fruit in late Spring and they keep producing month after month, all through the Summer, right up to frost.

And what producers they are! Every time you pick one of the king size, ripe strawberries, you actually stimulate the plant to develop even more berries. The more you pick, the more you get.

Get Even More Strawberries Next Year

Our SUGAR-DADDY is truly the KING of all berries! Besides being virtually disease and virus free, this exceptional variety can be grown with outstanding results even by novice gardeners. It is a particularly hardy perennial easily surviving sub-zero temperatures with only minimum winter protection necessary in the coldest areas, only to burst forth the next Spring with even more fruit laden vines than it had the year before.

We Guarantee Our Strawberries To Be The Best You've Ever Grown

Please don't confuse the SUGAR-DADDY with offers for pre-seeded pots. We ship only full-rooted, mature growing-stock that is ready to be planted in your garden. You'll get plants that will rapidly develop into a soaring tower of the most delicious KING-SIZE fruit you've ever tasted or we'll cheerfully refund your money any time within the next six months.

But please don't delay. Since we ship only vigorous, live plants we just can't produce more on demand. Because of the overwhelming popularity of the SUGAR-DADDY, our supply will be going fast. To avoid disappointment, send your order in now!

FOR IRVING WALLACE AND FAMILY READERS AND ROYALTIES ARE IN THE MILLIONS

By Isobel Silden

Irving Wallace plans to celebrate his 63rd birthday March 19, 1979, by holding The Pigeon Project, his 22nd published book, very tenderly. "One of the thrilling moments of life is when I hold a new book in my hands for the first time," Wallace says. "It can't be defined!"

Wallace is one of the five most widely read authors of modern times. With his round, slightly pudgy face, warm, open eyes and smile, he looks at least 10 years younger than his age. There is only a spatter of gray in his dark wavy hair. Greeting a visitor in the living room of his Brentwood home, he is instant friend.

"Originally, we had this house," he gestures about the comfortable entry hall, living room accented with greenery and fresh flowers everywhere. He walks down a hallway, through the master bedroom, down a few steps and into a connected but separate area.

"This was the house next door. When it went on the market, we bought it, demolished it and built this office wing."

Altogether there are 17 rooms on the 1½ acres. Wallace's office area would be the envy of any writer.

It is actually two rooms on two levels. At the lower level is "The People's Library," labeled by a sign over the entry. Within, the stacks, as in any public library, are categorized for easy selection among the 3,000 volumes.

Wallace's oversize desk dwarfs a rebuilt Underwood typewriter his parents gave him when he was 13 years old. He has written all his books on it.

The worldwide sales of Irving Wallace's books are now over 116 million copies. According to conservative estimates, his readers exceed 580 million. He is translated into 31 languages and admits a new thrill each time he sees his books in foreign airports.

There is nothing the least bit awesome about the man. He is ingratiating as a puppy, informal in his open tieless shirt, navy-blue jacket, rumply slacks and tennis shoes. He fondles a pipe a lot, but rarely smokes it.

He talks informatively and amusingly on his favorite subject — not himself, but about writing and writers.

Wallace submitted his first story when he was eight, made his first sale when he was 15 for $5, and wrote in his nonfiction book, The Sunday Gentleman, "I had never NOT written books."

He estimates that from the time he was 17 until 34, he wrote four unfinished nonfiction books, five full-length nonfiction books and "at least one or two chapters of a half-dozen novels." All went unpublished.

How did it all begin?

Wallace was born in Chicago and raised in Kenosha, Wis. His professional writing career got its start when he worked part time as a sports reporter for the Wisconsin News of Milwaukee while he was in high school.

Offered six university scholarships, he accepted the one from Williams Institute in Berkeley, Calif. because it specialized in creative writing courses. He attended Williams in 1935 and moved to Los Angeles the next year to study at City College. In one year, he'd ceased his formal education to devote his full time to writing. That's all he's done ever since.

He wrote fiction and nonfiction for every important magazine in America until 1953. In that year, he published the last story he would write as a magazine writer, an interview with Germany's Alfred Krupp. Wallace estimates that in that period, he published at least 500 articles and short stories.

During World War II, Wallace was assigned to a motion-picture unit, where he wrote training films on flying and orientation films with such highly provacative titles as Know Your Enemy, Japan and War Comes To America.

When he was discharged from service in 1946 with the rank of staff sergeant and a special commendation from the War Department, it seemed a logical step to transfer his newly learned talents to writing for the real movie industry.

In 1948 he was hired by Columbia as a film writer, and for the next nine years worked for every studio in town.

"When I quit scenario writing, it was forever!" he says fervently. He kept his word. It had been an economically rewarding time, but not so emotionally.

"I wanted to write novels because I wanted the freedom and independence. When you write books, nobody tells you what to do," he says with one of his frequent, wide smiles.

His first published book was The Fabulous Originals, which he describes as "lives of extraordinary people who inspired memorable characters of fiction. It's a literary detective story. There was, for example, a real Madame Bovary. Did you know that?" he asks.

That was followed by The Square Pegs, a collective biography of some Americans who dared to be different. Then there were The Sins of Philip Fleming; a biography of P.T. Barnum, The Fabulous Showman; and in 1960, Wallace hit it big with The Chapman Report.

He was ahead of his time. It was considered a dirty book. It was actually banned in Ireland and the Union of South Africa. West Germany brought the publisher to trial twice (he was acquitted both times). Italy banned the book three months after its international publication and had all copies confiscated.

The prestigious Kinsey Institute threatened legal proceedings, which were abandoned when the late Dr. Margaret Mead came out publicly in defense of the book. "And Jackie Kennedy listed it among the current fiction she was reading at the time," Wallace adds with a little boy's happy grin.

"The women in The Chapman Report are the women of Brentwood. I did a sex survey ahead of its time," he chuckles. And it is funny today, when every magazine and grocery-store checkout newspaper runs such surveys routinely.

The very last thing its author anticipated was that the novel would become a movie.

"I was determined to write a book that would not be a movie! And so I had nine movie offers for it because it was very controversial. I love movies. I just hated writing them," he offers.

"I adore Jane Fonda, but I was not thinking of a Jane Fonda type when I wrote the book. I never saw Jane, Shelley Winters or Claire Bloom as my characters. But I understand how it can be almost impossible for a studio to satisfy an author.

"I dream of and invent a character, and no person exists. A studio buys a book, and they'll say to the writer, 'who have you in mind?' But the people you want might not be available. I was knocked out by the casting of James Earl Jones in The Man. Let's just say I had pictured another type for The Prize when they cast Paul Newman. You can't match what's in your head." He is resigned. He should know. He has worked both sides of the desk.

So far, 12 Wallace novels have been sold to films, but he hastens to caution, "If you wrote a book with movies in mind, it probably wouldn't work. There is no way to guess who your public is. It all begins with you. You must believe and have confidence in your book because you must live with those characters for a year. I get so involved with my people, my wife has noticed and said, 'I can't see those people, but I know you can.' In books, I'm my own director and leading man. Every one of my books is different. They're not all sexy, either, even though I am accused of writing sex books." Now his smile is apologetic. It is not his intention to offend anyone.

He is also nonjudgmental when asked about today's hard-core pornography.

"We won't find out if it was literature until we're all gone. There's no way to know now. Dickens was writing serials; he wasn't a classicist.

"Writers used to take you to the bedroom door. I took that small important step inside. True, we are showing more of life than writers did 20 years ago, and many writers have overreacted. I like a change of pace: if a sex scene moves a story along, write it. But I think it's shameful just to stick it in."

There is another aspect of Irving Wallace's writing career, his collaborations with his wife, son and daughter.

It started with the first People's Almanac, published in 1975, which has sold 1,100,000 copies to date. In 1978 Volume II, all completely new material, was published in 1¼-million words. New versions are planned for every three years in the future.

"It was my son David's idea. He'd collected almanacs from an early age, but he found that brevity distorted facts and that many governments take prepared material. He wanted to be able to learn and have pleasure while doing it. He worked on it for two and a half years alone, when he was living in Berkeley."

David had published other books before starting work on the Almanac. This was not an amateur's effort, and although Wallace doesn't say it, it is implied that David found the undertaking too large.

"I offered to help him, but I knew that in order for us to collaborate, we had to stop being father and son. I treated him as a person I like. Because of his own two published books, he had no trouble putting his ego aside. We wanted to do a reference book to be read for fun. We also ended up with a closer relationship than ever before." The project took four and a half years and achieved its intention to be a college education in itself.

Its success was so overwhelming, with new ideas coming in from readers, that The Book of Lists was almost inevitable. Again, it became a family venture, and again sales went into the millions.

Irving's wife Sylvia had been a magazine editor and contributor to national magazines since their marriage in 1941. She has since written her first novel, The Foundations, which has been purchased for a movie by Warner B biography of Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins. She is both a psychic reader and healer.

Another Book of Lists is two-thirds completed and scheduled for publication in April 1980. There are already two people working full time answering mail. There are 10 people on the Wallace staff of researchers, editors and typists. It's not hyperbole to describe their home as The Word Factory.

Wallace consistently turns down requests to give advice to aspiring writers because "I have never done a public speech. It would make me very nervous. I would give any writer the same advice I gave my own two children:

"Don't want to be a writer. Write. Sit in a room for hours at a time, as Fitzgerald and Hemingway did. Write every day. Don't wait for inspiration. I think colleges corrupt kids when they say you should wait for a bolt from the blue. It might never come. Read the lives of Dumas, Balzac, Tolstoy. They didn't talk about it. They did it. If you have a bad day's writing, throw it out. If it's good, keep it. Pick writers you admire, not to frighten you, but to study their work. How do they open a story, a scene? You don't have to go to school for that.

"One year, I bought all last year's best sellers in paperback because it was all I could afford. I read them all, and eight were so dreadful, I felt I could do better. That will encourage you. Have a lot of curiosity and be a good listener.

"Most writers want to talk all the time because they're alone so much. De Maupassant said, 'Put black on white.' That's the biggest step.

"Keep a journal. I keep a record of every day, and I don't spend much time on it. Every year I buy a new diary." He walks to the lower level and opens one of several drawers built in adjacent to the huge library. He held up an oversized appointment book.

"I write in this every night at bedtime. Not very much, but something. For instance, I saw you today. I'll make mention of that in my journal tonight.

"My kids saw me doing this, and they started doing it. It gave them a facility for writing; they got used to words coming out of them; they weren't afraid of a piece of paper. It's a breeze to switch and not be afraid of writing. My son's journal is more emotional, and my daughter does dreams.

"I'll give you an example of how I use my journal. I had a situation on the Orient Express, and I needed more details for a book. I located the journal when I'd taken a trip on the Orient Express and was able to recall the details.

"For my newest book, The Pigeon Project, I put my hero in Venice, and although I've been there 19 times, I still had to do more research for that novel. I needed more information about the police around Padua. For that, I contacted a travel agent friend who took pictures for me. In other countries, I always hire interpreters when I'm researching, and I lean on them as a crutch," he confesses.

He is famous for his research. While writing The Man, he spent 10 days in the Oval Office, Cabinet Room and private apartments of the White House, at the invitation of President John F. Kennedy, watching a President in action. That was nine weeks before Dallas.

And while he would rather write than do just about anything else, and while he is prodigiously successful, it still isn't all that easy.

"I know we'll have it before 2000," Wallace states. "The story starts on the day he has invented the drug after working for 12 years. I put him in Venice because he is surrounded. There is no way he can get out. And I show what effect the invention has on people's lives, how they react to the idea of living to be 150 years old. There is greed and hate, great unemployment and starvation. He is told he can destroy the rhythm of God's world. I have him stuck in Venice for two weeks."

"The Prize was in the works for 15 years. I even wrote a book about writing it, The Writing of One Novel. Only the idea for The Man came in a flash one evening. It doesn't always happen that way," he says, almost wistfully. FW

No Time Limit on Wedding Bells

Men and women over 65 are getting married — or remarried — in increasing numbers and find that, as a result, life is more interesting, more varied and more rewarding. Recent statistics indicate that in a single year more than 16,000 brides and 33,000 grooms were 65 years of age or older. Barbara Vinick, a research associate in Boston University's sociology department, interviewed a number of these couples to find out how they met and why they married.

Most of the couples had been introduced to each other through friends or relatives and were married within a year. Although companionship was, not surprisingly, the main reason they gave for marrying, most of the older men and women had to overcome the objections or concerns of children and friends.

More than 90 percent of the couples described themselves as "satisfied" with their marriages. One woman said, "We are like a couple of kids. We fool around, we have fun. We go to dances and socialize a lot with our friends. We enjoy life together. When you are with someone, you're happy."

Children and Marriage

A young husband angrily tells a marriage counselor that something has gone wrong with his marriage, that his wife neglects him, that she has turned into a social recluse. A wife complains that her husband has no time for her or their family, that he is always working. Actually, nothing is amiss with these marriages. The "neglectful"' wife is simply too fatigued by the demands of their two children to be able to give her husband the loving attention he expects; the "neglectful" husband must hold two jobs to pay for his children's education.

According to family-life experts, the experiences of couples like these are not unusual. Children were once welcomed as "bundles of joy" that would cement a marriage; now, authorities say they are more likely to harm than help it. "Rather than cementing the marital bond," says Dr. Harold Feldman, professor of human development and family studies at Cornell University, "babies lower a couple's satisfaction with marriage."

Earlier studies of marital happiness had indicated that a couple's satisfaction with each other drops sharply after the birth of a first child and remains at low levels until the youngest child finally leaves home. Feldman, working with his wife, a psychologist at Ithaca College, studied the impact of children on marriage from three angles: when a couple first become parents, in the middle years and at the onset of the "empty nest" period.

At the onset of parenthood, the Feldmans found, wives felt trapped at home (or torn between the demands of career and mothering), and husbands felt neglected. Sexual difficulties increased. During the middle years, parents experienced more conflict and a greater sense of isolation from each other than childless couples did. Even after the last child left home, parents found it difficult to develop or recapture personal interests in life.

On the plus side, the Feldmans found that being a parent enhances one's self-image and has a positive effect on work.

The obvious lesson: parents need to establish and maintain a firm boundary between married life and family life and realize that being a mother or father does not mean you are no longer a wife or husband. This is important, since for a marriage to remain vital in its later years, couples must pay attention to it along the way. FW

THE INVISIBLE WAR: THE STRUGGLE FOR JOBS BETWEEN OLDER AND YOUNGER WORKERS

By Douglas Wood Gibson

With 7,000,000 or so Americans unemployed, there's a serious tug-of-war going on day and night for the jobs that are available. You may not have thought of it in just this way, but older workers are pitted against younger workers, father against son, vying for the same jobs.

The struggle is accelerating as the percentage of older people in the population increases. The number of older workers increases while the number of available jobs remains more or less constant. Due to greater longevity and a declining birth rate, half the population is now 30 or over, the median age being pegged at 29.7 at last reading — and inexorably rising. (In 1920 the median age was only 25.)

Many people feel that older workers are not getting their share of the jobs. In one Congressional hearing, Jack Ossopky, the director of the National Council on Aging (a nonprofit private agency located in Washington, D.C.) testified that, "While employment rates for older workers have risen slightly in response to the improving economy, older workers have not shared fully enough in the relative improvements in the job market. Older workers, 45 and above, represened 15.4 percent of the employed population in 1976, but only 14.2 percent in 1977. The periods of joblessness are, on the average, seven to 10 weeks longer for older workers as compared to those of their younger counterparts."

Larry Rossi, an executive of the United States Employment Service in New York City, puts it succinctly, "Of all the people we placed in jobs last year, only 15 percent were people over 40."

The melancholy truth is that in this country the younger worker has always had the jump on his older rival. This seems to be part of the American myth that touts the supremacy of youth, whether on the playing field or in the office. Prejudice against the older worker is openly admitted by those who do the hiring. A recent survey of representative American companies by Louis Harris & Associates found that "87 percent of those responding, who said that they personally had responsibility for hiring or firing people, agreed that employers discriminate — a shocking confirmation of the total public perception of job discrimination against older people."

Yet older workers are generally superior to younger workers in most of the factors that count. Quoting from the same Harris study: "If older persons are given opportunities to work, they usually perform well. This has been demonstrated by employment programs, and it was also the perception of the majority of the public polled."

Is There a Prejudice Against Older Workers?

Personnel heads throughout the country are almost unanimous in their feeling that the older worker is more reliable, has a better attendance record and gets the job done more expeditiously. A personnel director of a leading Fifth Avenue store says, "The older people take fewer sick days, and they seem to try harder when they're on the job. Furthermore, our clientele seems to be more at ease with the older sales people and vice-versa."

So if you're over 45, think of the many points in your favor and take action accordingly. This is no time to wring your hands. You are worth something to somebody. And you are not alone.

See if your union hiring office can help you. Or your social club. Or your university alumni office, college fraternity or representative in Congress.

Make calls. Visit the United States Employment Service (USES) in your town. If you've been released from your job and are seeking unemployment insurance, you will automatically have to register with USES, but visit them anyhow. Opinions vary as to their effectiveness in getting older people employment. The National Council on Aging says, for example, "The U.S. Employment Service consistently provided less service to older job seekers. Presumably, older people were considered less likely to be employable. Yet, when referred for a job, the older worker was just as likely to be hired as his younger counterpart." But they fill thousands of jobs each month and one of them may be for you.

The 40-Plus Club is a private, nonprofit organization that places men and women in executive jobs at $20,000 per year and up. It could just as well be called the 50-Plus Club as most of its members fall into that category. There are offices in New York, Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia, Oakland, Los Angeles, Houston, Toronto, Honolulu, Denver and elsewhere. The branches are independent of each other but for the most part follow the general principles of the New York office, which has been operating successfully for half a century and "places a man a day."

On joining, you contribute a sum of money to the club (in New York it's $200) and agree to follow their time-tested procedures: First, you learn how to tailor your résumé to your individual situation and the job desired; next, you learn how to handle yourself at job interviews, your fellow members acting as devil's advocates and plying you with embarrassing questions; finally, you call up and try to schedule appointments, not for yourself but for someone else; meanwhile, one of your fellow members is scheduling appointments for you. It's an impressive organization that gets results.

Among the commercial agencies who will help you (and make a profit by so doing) is an organization called Mature Temps whose name more or less tells you their story. They specialize in temporary jobs which sometimes grow into permanent jobs for mature people. They act as the employer, that is they lease your services to one of their clients, and you are paid directly by Mature Temps. Most of their jobs are at the lower echelons: clerks, typists, etc. They have branches in many cities including Dallas, Houston, New York, Boston, Baltimore, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Washington, San Francisco and Chicago.

There are smaller concerns that are more or less facsimiles of Mature Temps. One is called Senior Resources with offices in New York City and Hartford, Conn. They have "nonprofessional and nonmanagerial" jobs, mostly permanent and part-time. They specialize in retirees so most of the people they place are 60 and older.

An important source for older workers is the network of Jewish volunteer agencies called Federation Employment and Guidance Service in New York (FEGS) and listed in the phone book in other cities under Jewish Vocational Service. Their main offices are in New York, Dallas, Los Angeles and Boston. They are nonsectarian and have been operating successfully for 44 years. While they accept applications from workers of all ages, they do give special attention to older people, even to the extent of training them in job skills. There is no charge for anything.

The Catholic Career Council does the same thing for its constituents although on a much smaller scale. The Protestants say that they are not set up to furnish jobs for their people and they often direct job seekers to the Jewish agency.

We've saved the best for last. The Path Agency, serving New York City and environs, is nonprofit, charges no fee to employer or employee and devotes itself exclusively to getting jobs for people over 50. Originally started as a service to supply nursing aides and companions to shut-ins in hospitals and homes, it now operates also as a job-clearance agency for all types of commercial and office jobs. It is unique. It is a division of the Federation for the Handicapped and also receives federal money through the New York City Department of the Aging. If applicants are not handicapped (unless employer prejudice against older workers can be considered a handicap), and it has obtained jobs for many thousands of older workers in its dozen years of existence. Despite its excellent track record it is relatively unknown and has no funds for self-advertising. You have to look hard in the Manhattan phone book to find it: the number is 242-5700.

Its director, Olga Morales, is the only one on the staff under 50. Morales would like nothing better than to see duplicates of her Path project set up in urban centers throughout the country, and she gives a lot of time to discussing such possibilities.

Morales says, "The older worker needs special handling. I have nothing against the younger worker, but I want to see the older worker improve his odds. Path has proved to be an effective means of approaching this vital problem. It's only a question of time before similar projects will be initiated in other major centers. They should have top priority." FW

ALL-AMERICAN BASKETBALLER:

DUKE'S JIM SPANARKEL IS 21, HEADY, STEADY AND A TOP PRO PROSPECT

By Glenn Lewis

In Durham, N.C., Duke University basketball is followed with the kind of fervor usually associated with a nitty-gritty revival meeting. After a decade of anguish, the faithful have spent the past two years with frenzied "hallelujahs!" on their lips and a view of the promised land in their eyes.

Jim Spanarkel, a clean-living, 6'5" guard, has lifted the Blue Devils from the depths of the Atlantic Coast Conference cellar to the glory of the nation's Top Ten. Last season, as a junior, he guided a supporting team of freshmen and sophomores to within six points of the NCAA championship — losing 94-88 to the senior-laden Kentucky team. Although unable to hold on to their early season, number-one ranking, Spanarkel's tenacity has kept the current Duke team within striking distance of the crown.

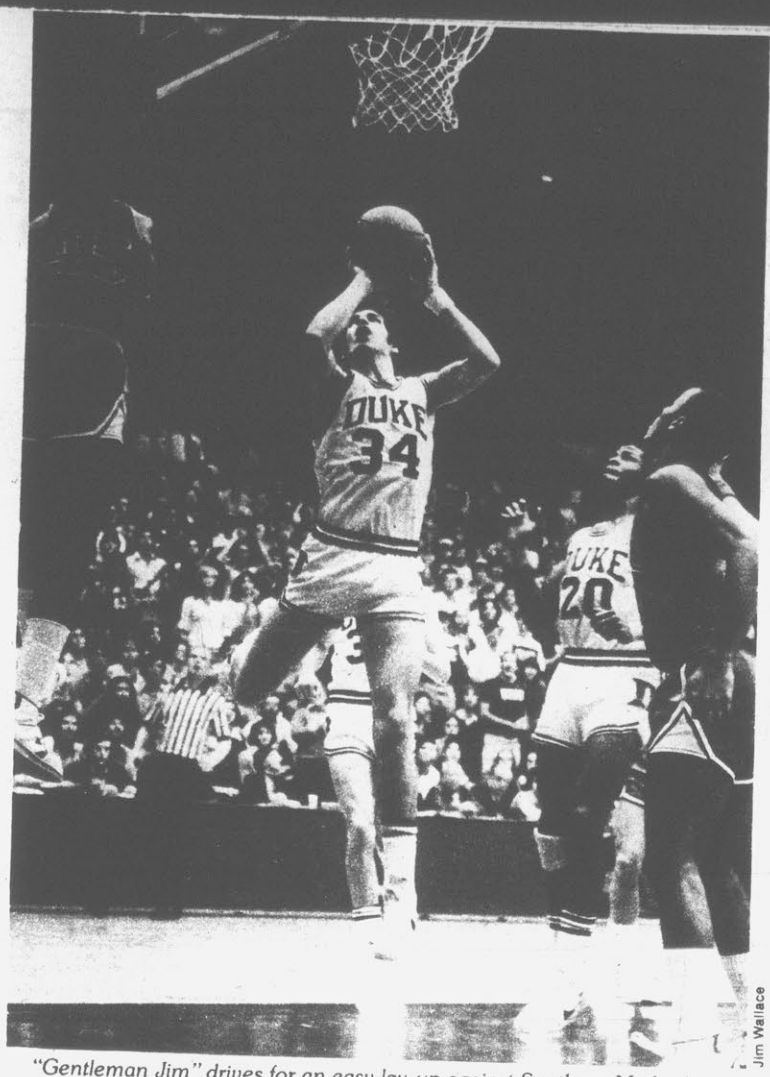
By displaying a consistently complete game that borders on the divine, the Jersey City-bred All-American has restored the spirit of the Blue Devils' fans. Coach Bill Foster described his slender captain by saying, "He is 'Mr. Everything' for our squad. No matter what goes on, Spanarkel is just outstanding." How else would you talk about a player who last year paced your club in scoring (20.8), had the most assists (126), broke the school's record for foul-shooting percentage (.863) and copped a conference-leading 93 steals. In fact, the statistics for his whole varsity career are comparable to his recent dazzling performance. And, with a four-year gunning touch of 53 percent, Jim has even shot down Art Heyman's all-time Duke scoring title.

"My role on this team is to control the tempo of the game," Spanarkel said, in a mild voice, after one of his typically mind-boggling outings. "I coordinate the offenses and defenses, while making sure that everybody knows exactly what patterns we're supposed to be running." The Blue Devils throw a new look at the opposition down court almost every time. When the other team is shooting foul shots, Spanarkel hovers at the top of the key, flashing signs for a defensive change. On the way down court, he reminds 6'11" Mike Gminski to clog the middle, while urging talented sophomore-forward Gene Banks to come out on the shooter. His orders are always imbued with the respect he has for his teammates.

"Hey, most of these guys are pretty intelligent and usually know what they're doing out there," the academic All-American (3.5 cumulative index) pointed out. "I just try to help them out when somebody misses an assignment or if things get a little confusing."

The captain is always harder on himself than anyone else. He is in perpetual motion on the court — looking for the fast break during the transition game, constantly cutting and passing in the set offense and hawking the ball down the other end. "He just keeps running, moving and playing defense," Coach Foster smiled, comparing Spanarkel to a wind-up toy. "There's just one difference, Jimmy never runs down."

The intense 21-year-old is even more relentless in his personal standards and code of behavior off the hardwood. He has earned nicknames such as "Gentleman Jim" and "Saint Spanarkel."



Jim Wallace

"I'm basically religious, and I feel a strong sense of dedication to the people around me," Jim told me on a Saturday afternoon, only two hours after Duke had lost its number-one place in the polls. "I don't ever feel nasty or violent on or off the court. I try to keep things in perspective. Basketball is only a game, and after the game I still have another life to lead."

That other existence might be rewarding, but it is not exactly a Roman orgy. The "right reverend" Spanarkel never curses, pops pills, smokes pot, cheats on his girlfriend, Janet, back home or drinks alcohol during the season. "I have friends all over the campus, but there isn't much time to mix partying with a rigorous college basketball season. I save my beer-drinking for after the final game and head home to New Jersey every chance I get."

Jim Spanarkel is bonkers over his native Jersey City. "A lot of people knock the place," he admits, "but I just love being there. There's just too many special people, good times and warm memories." His close friends, his family and his girlfriend act as one zealous fan club.

Among his three brothers and two sisters there appears to be another Spanarkel heading for hoop fame. Brother John is a 6'3" freshman starring on Drew University's varsity. "I think he'll prove to be a great sleeper," Jim noted. "In a year from now, he'll have the weight to go out on the floor and take charge."

All signs indicate that in less than a year from now Jim will be opening some eyes in the NBA. The Knicks' general manager, Eddie Donovan, has obviously been following his progress and likes where the Duke ace is heading. "Spanarkel is a great pro prospect," Donovan argued vehemently when I suggested that perhaps his individual moves weren't spectacular enough. "He's a guard with a fine sense of where he is on the court and what's going on around him. I'll bet that he goes in the first round of the draft."

The Celtics' Red Auerbach also showed up at a game to watch the senior run but didn't offer his inner thoughts. They must have been positive because Spanarkel hit 10 of 14 from the field and 10 free throws in 11 attempts. A 30-point performance usually leaves a strong impression. Both Boston and New York fit Spanarkel's requirements for ideal places to spend his professional years.

"I'd like to go to a pro club that's team-oriented and close to home," Jim confided. "Unconsciously, I try to emulate certain players' styles. I've admired the way guys like Bradley and DeBusschere fitted in with the Knicks and made things work. The Celtics also impressed me with the way they used Havlicek."

When Jim Spanarkel has finally bounced his last basketball on an NBA court, he looks forward to preparing for another type of court. He plans to go to law school and maybe even represent athletes in the future. It will be a lucky ball player who is blessed with such a dedicated guardian angel. FW

Glenn Lewis specializes in sports reporting and knows a guardian angel when he sees one.

BEYOND GUACAMOLE: FAVORITE AVOCADO RECIPES

By Marilyn Hansen

Many of our fruits and vegetables had their origins in faraway places. The avocado is a native American (Persea americana). Picture writings of avocados were found in the ruins of Mexico's ancient Aztec civilization. Avocados are sometimes called "Fruit of the Aztecs." In Mexico today, the word is aguacate.

Another common name in parts of South America is "palta" which goes back to the Incas of Peru. In old Guatemala, the Mayans called it on. But whatever the name the avocado has been a staple food in Mexico, Central and Northern South America for centuries. The early Spanish explorers described avocados in reports of their voyages to the New World. And it is believed that the Spanish padres first planted avocados in California when they established missions there.

Avocados grow on large tropical trees and have a graceful contour. The fruit is carefully picked by hand for rapid shipment. Each avocado is precooled, then cleaned, inspected, graded and sized.

The avocados are then shipped to your local market. There they are allowed to come to room temperature to begin softening for your use.

AVAILABILITY

Avocados are available all year. The two leading varieties of avocado are the shiny, smooth-skinned, pear-shaped Fuerte, mostly available in winter, and the dull, pebbly, rounded greenish-black Hass, the leading summer avocado. Despite a brief freeze early in the California growing season, avocados will still be in great supply at reasonable prices that are lower than last year's. Florida avocados will also be enjoying a bountiful crop year and at appealing prices.

TO SELECT:

For eating right away, select avocados by the way they feel. Choose soft ones — they yield to pressure when gently cradled between the palms. Buy hard ones to soften at home. Put them in a fruit bowl at room temperature. In several days, they will soften.

TO STORE:

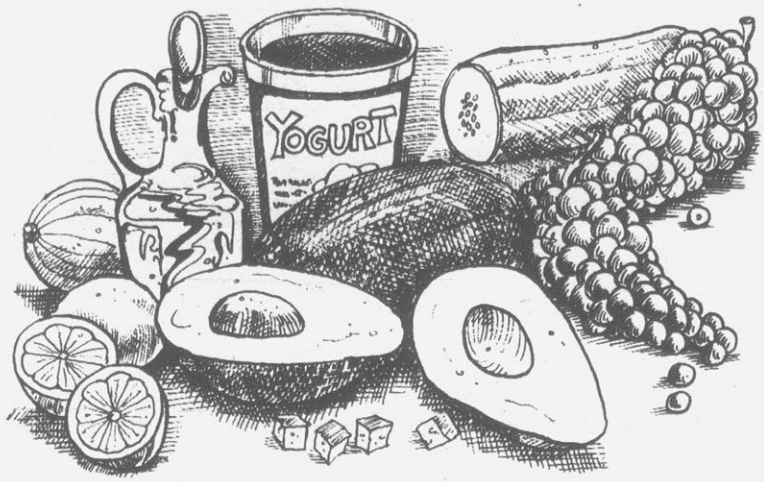
Soft avocados keep in the refrigerator several days. Hard ones should be stored at room temperature until they soften. If storing a cut half, leave seed in cavity. Be wise — buy several avocados at a time. Let them ripen. Use them for table decorations in the meantime. To hasten ripening, wrap an avocado in a brown paper bag or foil; store at room temperature.

NOT AS HIGH IN CALORIES AS YOU MAY HAVE THOUGHT

Seventeen calories per average slice (avocado cut in 16 pieces); 19 calories per tablespoon of mashed avocado; 132 calories per average half avocado.

GOOD FOR YOU!

Avocados are one of nature's most nutritious prizes. They contain 11 vitamins and 17 minerals. Very high in vitamin A (carotene), iron and vitamin E, they contain a well-rounded supply of riboflavin, pyridoxine, thiamine, folic acid, potassium, niacin, choline and vitamin C (ascorbic acid). No cholesterol in avocados, of course.



Scrumptious, nutritious and exotic, this delightful fruit adds mellow taste and texture to a variety of casual and elegant dishes.

CHILI CON QUESO

- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 1 can (4 ozs.) green chile peppers, chopped
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- Dash Tabasco
- 1 pkg. (3 ozs.) cream cheese, cubed
- 1 medium avocado, diced.
- Large-size corn chips

1. In small skillet, cook chopped onion in butter or margarine until tender but not brown.
2. Stir in tomatoes, chili peppers, salt and Tabasco. Simmer, uncovered, 10 to 15 minutes.
4. Pour into small chafing dish; keep warm over candle warmer.
5. Thin with a little milk if it thickens. Serve with corn chips. Makes 2 cups

WHITE GAZPACHO

- 3 large cucumbers
- 1 cup seedless green grapes
- 1 cup diced avocado
- 1 clove garlic
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 2 cups yogurt
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon white vinegar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Good dash Tabasco
- 1 cup finely diced avocado
- 1 tablespoon lime juice
- 1 cup quartered seedless green grapes
- ½ cup finely diced green onions
- 1 cup finely diced green pepper
- 1 cup toasted slivered almonds
- 1 cup toasted garlic croutons

1. Peel cucumbers and remove seeds. Place in blender or food processor with grapes, avocado and garlic. Process until pureed.
2. Add chicken broth, yogurt, sour cream, vinegar, salt and Tabasco. Process until smooth.
3. Refrigerate, covered, until thoroughly chilled, at least one hour.
4. Beat with whisk just before serving. Taste, add additional salt and Tabasco if needed. Ladle into chilled soup bowls.
5. Pass accompaniments in small bowls to spoon into soup as desired: avocado (toss with lime juice), grapes, green onions, green pepper, slivered almonds and croutons. Makes 8 to 10 servings

HOT TUNA MUFFINS

- 2 cans (6½ ozs. each) tuna, drained
- ½ cup diced avocado
- ¼ cup canned diced chiles
- 2 green onions, sliced
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 4 English muffins, halved
- 2 tomatoes, sliced
- 8 ozs. sliced Swiss cheese

1. In small bowl, combine tuna, avocado, chiles, onion and mayonnaise.
2. Arrange muffin halves in glass baking dish; spread with tuna mixture; top with tomatoes and cheese.
3. Bake in microwave oven at high power 5 to 7 minutes or in conventional oven at 450°F. about 10 minutes, to heat through and melt cheese.

Makes 4 servings

GUACAMOLE CHICKEN SANDWICHES

- 1 cup cooked chicken, shredded
- 1 cup lettuce, shredded
- 1 tomato, sliced
- 8 slices white toast, crusts removed
- 1 soft avocado, halved, peeled and seeded
- Dash chili powder
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ½ cup sour cream
- 2 slices bacon, crisp-fried and crumbled
- 8 ripe olives
- Tabasco hot pepper sauce

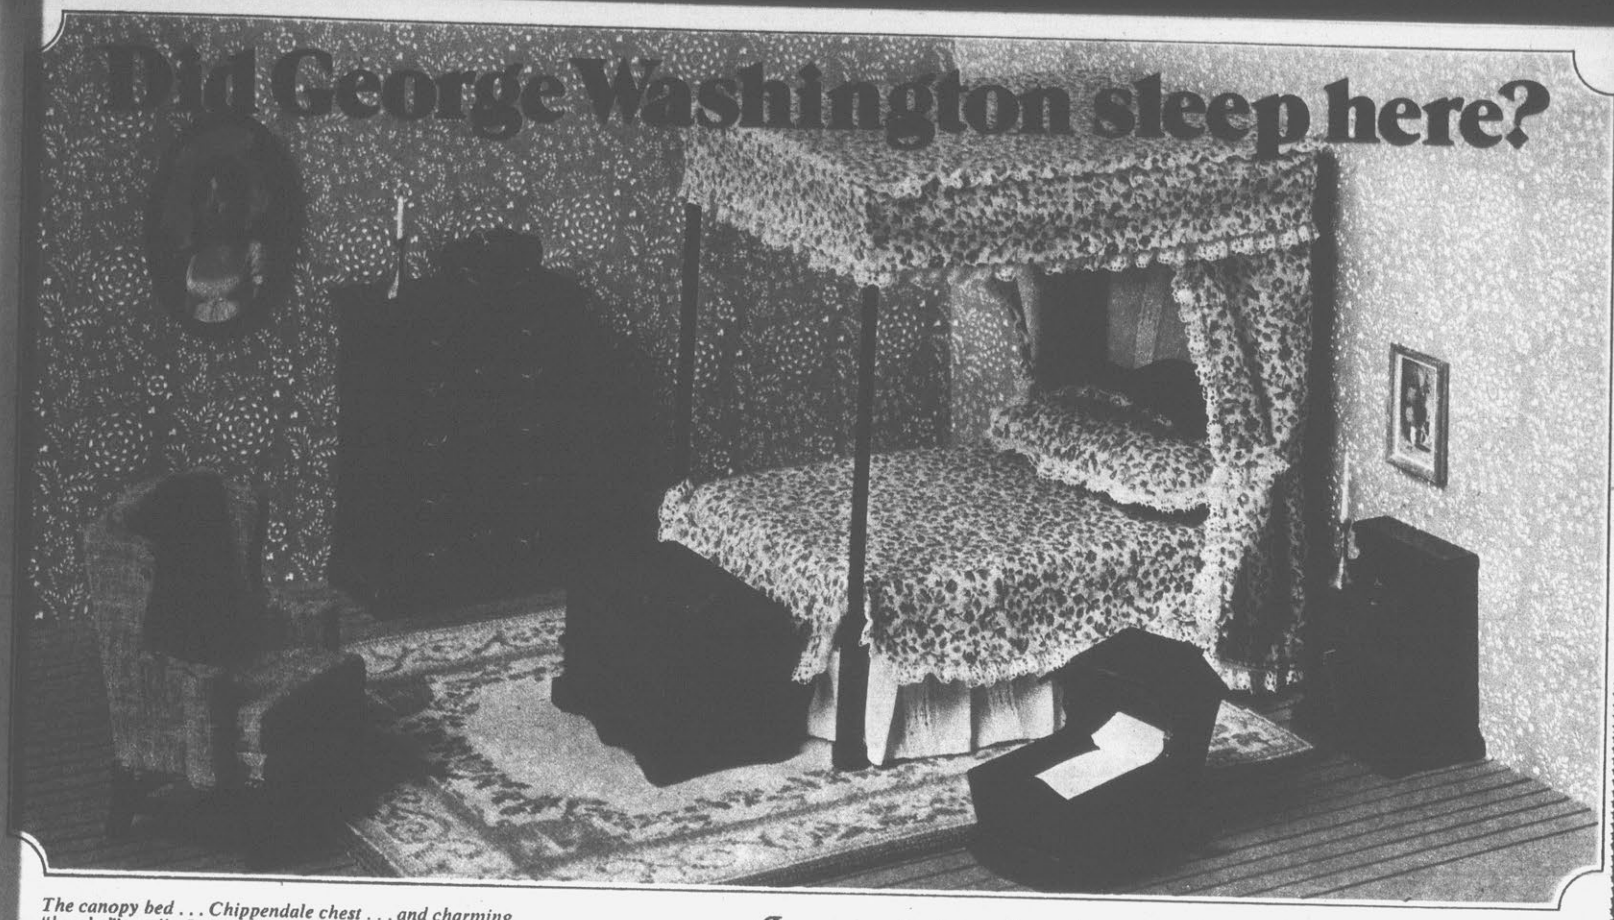
1. Layer chicken, lettuce and tomato on 4 slices of toast.
2. Mash avocado with chili powder and lemon juice; dollop on sandwiches. Add dollop of sour cream and sprinkle of bacon bits to each sandwich.
3. Top with second slice toast. Cut in half; secure triangles with toothpick and olive. Serve with Tabasco sauce if desired. Makes 4 sandwiches

CALVES LIVER WITH AVOCADO

- 1½ lbs. thinly sliced calves or beef liver
- ½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups shredded lettuce
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 2 tablespoons capers
- 1 navel orange, peeled and thinly sliced
- 1 avocado, peeled and sliced
- 1 tablespoon orange juice

1. Remove any sinew from liver. Coat liver with mixture of flour, rosemary, salt, pepper and mustard.
2. In skillet, heat oil and butter until hot but not smoking.
3. Sauté liver slices in hot oil-butter mixture until browned. Will take about 2 minutes per side.
4. Remove liver from skillet and place on serving platter on bed of shredded lettuce.
5. Add white wine to skillet, allow to boil up, stir to remove browned bits from pan. Add capers. Taste, adding additional salt and pepper if desired.
6. Pour hot wine-caper sauce over liver. Garnish with neatly arranged orange and avocado slices (toss avocado with orange juice first). Makes 4 to 6 servings

Did George Washington sleep here?



The canopy bed . . . Chippendale chest . . . and charming "hooded" cradle. Indeed, furnishings like these are to be found not only at Mount Vernon, but throughout the Tidewater region which George Washington knew as surveyor, soldier and statesman. So, did Washington sleep here? Hardly . . . because, for all its pain-staking detail, this setting is only 8 inches high! But a fitting demonstration, we think, of the "small wonders" which await you as a member of The House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series.

As your introduction to the legend-filled House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series

Take this true-to-scale Chippendale Chest Kit

for only $1

plus shipping and handling

(a $7.95 retail value)

with your enrollment in The House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series

ACTUAL SIZE

This Chippendale Chest is an authentic reproduction of a design of the eminent furniture maker, Thomas Chippendale. Completed Chest measures 4 inches tall and is scaled 1 inch to 1 foot. Features solid brass hardware with key plates on drawers . . . that really open and close! Beveled edges and mitred joints are precision-fit. Kit has everything needed to assemble chest . . . at a fraction of the cost of the antique originals!

Nothing is more rewarding and challenging than collecting historic miniature reproductions . . . except perhaps making them YOURSELF—with our museum quality Collectors Kits!

Now you can start enjoying this fascinating creative hobby with our Chippendale Chest Kit—yours at the introductory price of $1.00 when you enroll in the Collectors Series.

As a member, you will receive an elegant House of Miniatures™ Kit each month. One month you'll receive the William and Mary Tall Clock . . . the next perhaps, the Hepplewhite Table or the Queen Anne Candle Stand. All Kits range in price from $2.95 each to $7.95, plus a modest fee for shipping and handling. And each piece is an authentic reproduction, correct down to the tiniest detail.

The Kits are easy and fun to make, too. No special tools or skills are needed. Our Kits are precision-scaled, and cut to exact specifications from furniture-quality hardwood. Fittings and hardware of solid brass, finished to fit perfectly. Most pieces have movable parts—just like the full-size originals. The full-size layout sheet and detailed, step-by-step instructions are included: all you add is loving care to create elegant, authentic miniatures that will delight you and amaze your friends.

Send for your Chippendale Chest Kit now! We'll bill you just $1.00 plus shipping and handling. Mail coupon to: THE HOUSE OF MINIATURES™ Collectors Series, 1400 Fruitridge Ave., Box 1156, Terre Haute, Indiana 47811.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

WHAT'S IN A JOKE? FUNNY TO YOU MAY NOT BE FUNNY TO OTHERS

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Humor serves a far greater purpose than just making people laugh or providing a funny story with which to regale one's associates.
2. A well-developed sense of humor indicates a high creative potential.
3. A person's reaction to a risque story depends on considerations that have nothing to do with the joke.
4. Introverts and extroverts differ in their humor preferences.
5. Some people don't like humor.
6. The older you get, the funnier jokes seem to you.

ANSWERS

1. True. As psychiatrist Berthold Eric Schwarz, who has made a study of the dynamics of humor, observes: "Humor can act as a safety valve. Humor sometimes prevents catastrophic detonations of unchecked hostility. It can tide us over rough spots and help make life bearable. It is one of the highest psychic functions and the sine qua non of the civilized." And a study of the effects of humor conducted at the University of Waterloo (Canada) indicates that defeats are more endurable if we see them as a consequence of our own follies and fallacies. Psychologists point out that humor, which enables us to be less serious about ourselves, can prevent failures from being such potentially devastating shocks to our system.

2. True. Studies at Bryn Mawr College show that comprehension and appreciation of humor tend to go hand in hand with the ability to think creatively. And research at Rutgers State University shows creativity to be positively related to humor production (spontaneous wit and the ability to originate humor in all its various forms).

3. True. Studies at Stephen F. Austin State University (Texas) show that people's reaction to a risqué joke depends on whether they are men or women — and whether a man or woman tells the joke. A woman, it was found, was much more receptive to such humor if she heard it from another woman, and more inclined to feel that a man may be taking verbal liberties with her when he tells her a somewhat off-color joke. And a man, relishing this type of humor when related by another man, tended to be disconcerted and made uncomfortable if the same joke was told by a woman.

4. True. Studies of the two personality types conducted by Professor H.J. Eysenck, Director of the Psychological Laboratory at the University of London, show that extroverted people differ markedly from introverts in that they are more overtly aggressive and romantically active and also prefer hostile humor and jokes focusing on amorous proclivities. The introvert is usually more conservative, both in his life-style and in his humor preferences.

5. True. Psychologist George H. Askenasy administered a humor appreciation test, consisting of 54 jokes representing nine joke categories, to a broad sample of subjects. Those who made the lowest scores tended to be fanatical in their attitude and outlook. Askenasy reported that "it may well have been that they followed a pattern common to many fanatics — namely, to be unconcerned with, if not annoyed or offended by, a subject which is seen as irrelevant or interfering with much more important tasks. The finding therefore suggests that fanaticism and humor may very well be incompatible."

6. True. In a study conducted by behavior scientists from Purdue University and the Dept. of Neurology, Albert Einstein College of Medicine, 96 subjects in three age groups (50-59, 60-69, 70-79) were tested on their appreciation and comprehension of various types of jokes. Subjects rated each joke on a five-point scale, ranging from not funny at all to very, very funny. After the joke was rated for its funniness, each subject was asked to explain what was funny about the joke. His response was judged to reflect either adequate comprehension of the point of the joke, or inadequate comprehension of the joke.

Surprisingly, appreciation of the jokes increased with age, while comprehension decreased with age. Thus the older subjects tended to understand the jokes less well, but to think they were funnier. (This would seem to suggest that older people make the best audience for a comedian — even if his jokes are as old as they are.) FW

LEAD POISONING — THE DISEASE AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION CURES

By Alvin Eden, M.D.

Lead poisoning in children is a national disgrace. One of the major tragedies of our society is that this totally man-made disease has not as yet been eliminated. We have known how to eradicate lead poisoning for many years, but we have not taken the steps to do so. Since lead poisoning often leads to permanent brain damage it is essential that we do everything possible to identify these "at risk" children early enough to avoid the long-term tragic results.

Lead is one element with no known normal function in the human body. It is true that most children who develop lead poisoning come from low-income urban homes, but no economic group or geographic area is totally spared. The young child is at greater risk of developing lead-induced brain damage than the adult.

Lead is indeed a treacherous substance. Unfortunately, there are no specific signs or symptoms during the early stages of lead poisoning. It usually starts with the child acting irritable or sleepy or less active than usual. He may begin to vomit and become pale. If the diagnosis is not suspected during this early stage and the child continues to ingest more and more lead, the signs of full-blown lead poisoning (lead encephalopathy) such as convulsions and coma develop.

If the correct diagnosis is established before lead encephalopathy occurs, treatment is effective. Many children treated early enough during the course of lead poisoning end up perfectly well and normal.

Investigations, however, have demonstrated that some children who had only "mild" attacks of lead poisoning with so-called complete recovery were left with significant learning and emotional problems when they reached school age.

With this in mind, it becomes obvious that the answer to lead poisoning is to make the diagnosis before the child develops any significant signs and symptoms. This can only be accomplished by screening the "at risk" group of toddlers for their blood lead levels. This is a simple test that can be performed in any laboratory. If the child's lead level is found to be higher than normal, he can be treated easily and effectively with a "chelating" drug — a chemical agent that binds up the blood lead and removes it from the body before it can damage the brain. Experience has shown that when lead-screening programs have been effective the incidence of new cases in that community has dramatically decreased.

Lead sources are everywhere in our environment. Lead paint is still by far the most common source of lead in the urban United States, and it still remains the leading offender. Before 1950, most houses were painted, both inside and outside, with paint containing excessive amounts of lead. Homes in deteriorated condition are particularly dangerous since the leaded paint becomes readily accessible in the form of paint chips and dust. Many cities and states have passed laws outlawing the use of lead-based paint. In 1973 the federal government forbade the sale of paint containing more than 0.5 percent lead in interstate commerce. Nevertheless, there are still tremendous numbers of houses with high content lead paint still on their walls. According to the 1970 census, 30 million such dwellings are still in use.

Airborne lead has become an increasingly important source since the introduction of leaded gasolines in 1923. It is estimated that 190 thousand tons of lead are released into the atmosphere in the United States each year. Children living near thruways who are continually exposed to automobile emissions have been found to have higher lead levels in their blood than comparable groups of children living far from busy highways. Lead from auto exhausts is a major contributor to the lead content of soil and dust.

When pottery is made with lead glazes and reaction occurs with high acid foods such as fruit juices or colas, the result is that the lead leaches out and is consumed with the beverage. Individuals who work in lead-melting factories have been shown to bring lead dust home on their clothing. Children of these workers are obviously at higher risk to develop high blood lead levels.

Which children are most likely to develop lead poisoning?

Without question, the toddler living in debilitated, deteriorated old urban housing with peeling paint and plaster who has pica is most vulnerable. The word pica comes from the Greek word for magpie, which is a scavenger bird. Children with pica suffer from the repetitive search for and ingestion of nonfood items. Close to 50 percent of children between one and three years of age have some degree of pica. These are the toddlers who eat everything in sight including, tragically, loose paint and plaster. Without a doubt, pica is the major contributor to lead poisoning.

Exposure from all known sources of lead should be decreased and the reduction of environmental exposure of lead must be our constant goal. Parents of toddlers must constantly be aware of the possibility of lead poisoning. If your child has pica, you must be even more careful. Make every effort to eliminate all old paint and plaster, both inside and outside your apartment or house.

If you have any question in your mind about your youngster, the sensible approach is to consult your physician immediately in order to obtain a blood lead level. If you wait for the actual signs and symptoms of lead intoxication to develop it will probably be too late to avoid permanent damage.

So, the key to wiping out poisoning is prevention. FW

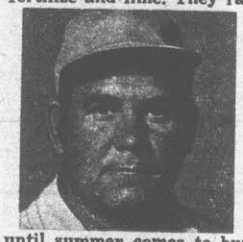
By Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.



Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn — nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial!

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed, like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills.

DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT

Amazoy lawns take cookouts and parties — children playing on it won't hurt it, or themselves! Stays green right thru scorching heat and drought!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS ..... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug to grow . . . from part shade to full sun! Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product.

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

WHY I LIKE MY FAMILY

A CLOSENESS OF PEOPLE WHO CARE

I like my family because the world is too big to embrace. The closeness of those who care deeply about what I do, what I think, how I feel, and the interchange of interests could not be duplicated in any other social structure.

Bonnie Parcell

THE ASTONISHMENT OF LOVE

Imagine, if you can, being caught between floors in an elevator with several people, one of whom you know slightly, the others not at all. Then try to picture spending years with these people, playing, working, living together in a sort of forced intimacy. For that is exactly how a family begins. The order you place for dimpled, curly-headed babies with sweet dispositions somehow goes astray, and you find yourselves the amazed parents of tiny little people with needs, wants and personalities all their own. The fantasies, the dreams are shattered by nights of illness and worry, loneliness and loss. But you hold on, and then one day astonish yourself with the depth of love you feel. All this confusion, all the turmoil, all this really hard work. It's called Life. You know, it isn't bad. Mrs. Judy Pittman

PRECIOUS MEMORIES— PRECIOUS MOMENTS

We were never taught to love. My father sang sweet songs to his six children at night. He stood in the doorway filling our rooms with music, while the love in his tired, moving voice floated softly through us. This wonderful man never physically punished us when we did wrong. Our punishment was his disappointed face, his blue eyes turning gray and sad. Mother is a source of unending compassion. In my own mind I see her now, administering soft, soothing love. Now, I hold my memories of these love-filled memories close to me as I share in my family's hopes, dreams and realities.

LUCK IS A GOD-GIVEN REWARD

Our life is simple. A coal-mining environment. I suppose what makes my day as a housewife so rewarding is during mealtimes when we sit down at the table, my little girls say grace without having to be told. As my husband and I review the day's joys, the closeness of husband and wife is felt, and the eternal love that will always be with us is a God-given reward that makes me realize how lucky my family is. Sharon Fleming

THE VILLAIN: ILLNESS THE REMEDY: A SMILE

The M.S. villain hit me at the tender age of 21. We already had one child, a daughter born on a Christmas morning. I assured the Lord that this illness could not happen to me — I had other things I wanted to do. A remission occurred for about 15 years, during which we had three boys come to bless our home. The villain hit me again and stayed. What would I do with a family to care for? First of all, I have things going for me in my loving husband and family. Whatever position we were in, together we would tackle it and make the best of things. People cared, but they could not give up living because of me. Finally, I decided to do the best I could, always having a smile, having a positive outlook and a good sense of humor. It sure works.

FIGHTING DISASTER WITH LOVE

Mom leaves at 6:00 a.m. to go to work in the coal mines. (It's hard work; in some mines she crawls on her hands and knees.) Mom and Dad are divorced. Tracy, Kim and Kelly miss him. From October to November, anything that could happen wrong, did. Someone broke into our house and took Mom's pocketbook. Her car was wrecked. I broke my glasses. Dad wouldn't send us two weeks' checks. We ran out of oil and our fuses burned out. Mom's putting up a brave front. We may not have a lot of money, but we love each other. Tammy Aylor

ENJOY THE THRILL OF OWNING GENUINE COPPER-CLAD STAINLESS STEEL COOKWARE

THE COPPER-CLAD STORY

We insisted our stainless steel cookware have copper-clad bottoms. For copper is one of the best conductors of heat known to man (almost twice as effective as aluminum). So when you place one of our utensils on a burner — be it gas or electric — the heat spreads out evenly from the center to the sides so there are no "hot spots", no scorching, sticking, or burning!

When you receive your cookware, try this test for yourself . . . close your eyes and run your index finger down the outside of any pot. As soon as your finger reaches the permanently-bonded copper portion, you'll know it . . . you'll feel the additional ply. Because on every saucepan, skillet, and the Dutch Oven in this sturdy ensemble, a solid copper layer has been applied to the gleaming stainless steel body . . . so thick a layer, you can feel it!

COMPLETE 10-PIECE SET . . . ONLY $34.98

5½ QUART DUTCH OVEN & COVER

8" OPEN SKILLET

2 QUART SAUCEPAN & COVER

1 QUART SAUCEPAN & COVER

⅝ QUART SAUCEPAN & COVER

⅝ Qt. saucepan and cover	$ 11
1 Qt. saucepan and cover	$ 15
2 Qt. saucepan and cover	$ 19
5½ Qt. Dutch Oven and cover*	$ 30
8" skillet	$ 16
10¼" skillet	$ 22

Carefree, heavy gauge stainless steel! Good cooks prefer it because it's so easy to keep clean and sparkling, holds heat. But a single 2 Qt. stainless steel saucepan with lid, imported from France, can be priced as high as $40!

Beautiful, heat conducting copper! Copper costs even more — but cooks love the way copper conducts and spreads heat evenly, helps prevent "hot spots" where food can stick and burn. A same-sized 2 Qt. saucepan and lid, in tin-lined solid copper, also imported from France, lists in one gourmet catalog at an eye-opening, purse-shattering $55!

Now — the best of both! Our heirloom set gives you the cooking advantages of both these durable, desirable metals — stainless steel for lasting sparkle and easy cleaning — and precious gleaming copper on the bottom where its superior heat conductivity is needed. You get all 10-pieces, (yes, the complete set!) the ⅝ Qt. saucepan and lid, the 1 Qt. saucepan and lid, the 2 Qt. saucepan and lid, a 5½ Qt. Dutch Oven with cover, a 10¼" skillet (which the same lid fits), and an 8" skillet. 10-pieces of gleaming, copper-clad, superbly crafted stainless steel cookware for the incredible bargain price of only $34.98 complete!

How can we do it? One reason is that it comes not from France where the dollar now buys less, but from a different source our buyer discovered, where craftmanship is high and the value of the U.S. Dollar remains high! To give you some idea of what a fantastic bargain you're getting — we recently saw a 7-piece set of gourmet quality-solid copper-bottom stainless steel cookware — 3 pieces less than ours — advertised in a catalog at $152! (Price comparisons based upon 1978 prices.)

Compare these high quality features! Our 10-piece heirloom cookware set is made of heavy-gauge .8 mm. stainless steel — equal to or heavier than sets selling for up to $78 more. This durable material is so rugged you don't need to baby it or use special utensils with it . . . so carefree it won't pit or discolor, chip, crack or stain as some cookware can do. The genuine copper-clad bottoms lie flat and true on the cooking surface — whether gas or electric. The heat-resistant handles and lid knobs are of high-impact space-age material, and the handles are spot-welded to the cookware so there are no rivets or screws inside to mar the smooth easy-to clean satin finish.

Save cooking time and fuel too! All lids on this amazing cookware set are precision made with a special flange to fit the pot or pan tightly. This feature, combined with the superb heat-retaining properties of the metals, allows you to cook foods quickly on medium or low heat, and retain their moisture, vitamins and minerals which would otherwise escape as steam! So you not only save on the purchase of this extra-ordinary cookware, you keep on saving on cooking time and fuel as long as you own them!

Cook with it risk free in your own home. The best way to convince you of the shining beauty, easy clean-up and high quality of this heirloom cookware is to let you try it without obligation — and you may do just that with our compliments. Then if there's anything at all that doesn't absolutely thrill and delight you, simply stick it back in its shipping carton and send it back within 14 days — even though you've used it — we'll cheerfully refund every penny of your purchase price (except postage and handling, of course). So don't delay — start to enjoy the gourmet cookware set you've dreamed of owning, at a budget price! Mail coupon now.

Ear Infections Cause Learning Problems

Recurrent ear infections in young children may cause serious learning problems later on — even though the child is of normal intelligence — say researchers at the University of Tennessee.

During an ear infection, the middle ear fills up with fluid, and the children hear as if they were underwater. According to Dr. Peter Zinkus, a pediatric psychologist, there is a "critical period when the brain learns auditory skills," usually before age three. If the child cannot hear well at this time, Zinkus says, certain brain processes apparently do not develop normally.

The researchers found that the children who had suffered repeated bouts of ear infection were prone to problems in learning to read, spell, speak clearly and do mental arithmetic. But researchers say these problems can be avoided by parents on the alert for ear infection. A tube inserted in the ear by a doctor can drain the fluid and improve the child's hearing during the crucial period.

Look, Ma, I Love My Spinach!

Picture this: a four-year-old boy scolds his mother for not having served brussels sprouts at home. A young child eagerly eats spinach. Fantasy you say? No, just some of the gratifying results of a two-year experiment conducted at California State University, Los Angeles to see if young boys and girls can be trained to voluntarily adopt a pattern of healthy eating habits.

After participating in the Children's Nutrition Education Project, the preschoolers, ranging in age from 2½ to 5, increased their consumption of fruits and vegetables by 25 percent and milk by 21 percent while cutting down on bread and desserts.

A key to the program's success says Dr. Jane S. Lewis, the principal researcher, was the integration of nutrition education into the children's daily routine. For example, if there was a puppet show, the puppets talked about good nutrition. The children also learned how to prepare their own snacks and lunches, and "this got them very excited about new foods," Lewis says.

Lewis, a professor of nutrition at the university, says that parents can follow a few tips from the program to encourage their children to develop good eating habits. She suggests that children be allowed to help in food preparation. And, most importantly, Lewis says, "Parents must be firm and set a good example with their own eating habits."

How To Watch The Eclipse

If you're planning to watch the upcoming total solar eclipse on February 26, take heed — the American Optometric Association warns that without proper precautions you can permanently damage your eyes. If you look directly at the sun for as little as 10 seconds, the sun's rays can burn a spot on the retina, causing permanent partial blindness. The damage occurs without pain, and symptoms may not appear for several hours or days.

Neither sunglasses nor smoked glass offer adequate protection. And it's especially dangerous to view an eclipse through binoculars, telescope or a camera lens, all of which concentrate the sun's rays. So, for safe viewing either watch the eclipse on television or make a "Sunscope" according to the directions below:

1. Fasten a piece of white paper over the inside of one of the small ends of an oblong box, about 1′ x 2′ x 3′.

3. Cut a hole somewhat larger than your head in the bottom of the box so that you can slip the box over your head.

5. To use for viewing, stand with your back to the sun, the box over your head, and look at the image projected through the pinhole onto the white paper. Do not look at the sun directly or through the pinhole.

Love On The Airwaves

Boston disc jockey Dick Syatt has come up with a new twist on the dating game — once a week he plays matchmaker for his listeners. And the vibes must be right; in the close to two years that he's been playing Cupid, Syatt claims he's been responsible for 80 marriages and three babies!

The way it works is every Thursday when Syatt comes on the air at midnight on WITS, listeners can call the station, describing themselves and their ideal dates over the air. Anyone interested can call the station and get their phone number (but only their first name to preserve their privacy).

"Many people think, who would call up a show like this except losers?" Syatt says, "but they're wrong; we reach people from all walks of life. It's difficult for people to meet one another in a mobile society like ours outside of school and work."

Syatt says he might use a service like his — if he were single. But he's already met his match; his wife, Jane, is the producer of his show.

Lifestyles

Psychology. If you need a psychiatrist, D.C. is the place to be. According to statistics computed by the National Institute of Mental Health, the District of Columbia has 56.1 psychiatrists per 100,000 residents, the highest ratio in the nation and more than double the ratio in runner-up New York (25.6). They are considerably harder to find in South Dakota, whose 2.1 psychiatrists per 100,000 people put it in last place.

People don't like to eat fish with unpalatable names says the Commerce Department after forking over $65,000 for a new study. The department came to the conclusion that no matter how tasty the fish, names like ratfish, cancer crabs and barred grunts (under which the fish must be sold) make psychologically unappetizing fare. To get around the problem of diners gagging on gag fish, the department recommends that a new system be set up to let consumers know what is — or isn't — in a name.

Crime. Now there's a perfect companion for women who are afraid of driving alone late at night. Called the "Silent Partner," this brainstorm of Fort Worth inventors is a life-size, inflatable male dummy that looks like a real male companion from a distance.

Already Selected and Tried . . . The Best Roses You Can Buy . . . Now at Low, Low Prices.

Only the rose has such great beauty of form, pleasing color range, delightful fragrance and is so adaptable to almost every flower garden. However, since there are thousands of different varieties of roses, you can only be sure of beautiful blooms by selecting varieties that have withstood the test of time and remained popular year after year with amateur and expert alike. Each rose offered in this spring planting sale is a formerly patented variety that has been tested and proven for ease of growth, beauty and abundance of bloom, and hardiness in all parts of the country. These are strong, healthy, vigorous rose bushes. At only $1.98 each, they are an amazing value! Order now. You will receive a PROMPTNESS BONUS of a GIANT HIBISCUS when your roses arrive for spring planting.

FAMOUS "NO-FAULT" GUARANTEE!

These champion rose bushes are already 2 years old, branched with 2 or more canes, strong, vigorous and healthy. Each is tagged with name of variety and well packed for arrival in good condition. Easy planting instructions included. If not satisfied on arrival, you may return within 15 days for full refund, including any postage you sent. Any rose that doesn't grow and deve[illegible] we will replace it free (3 year limit). Send today!

PEACE

All time favorite, most nearly perfect rose of all. Past All American Rose of the Year winner. Grows big, bushy, produces dozens of blooms up to 6 inches across. No two alike, they're red tinged in ivory, cream, sunshine yellow. Blooms all summer long. Only $1.98 each

BLANC[illegible]

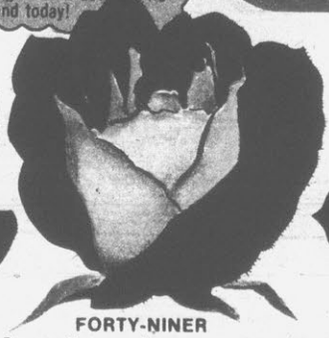
Thin pure white Hybrid Tea features large, high centered blooms, the whitest of them all. Strong upright bush, vigorous grower. Glossy foliage, delicate long pointed buds. Only $1.98 each

CRIMSON GLORY

Large, well-formed, deep velvety blooms are finest red of all . . . and most fragrant, too. Blooms in glorious profusion all summer long into fall. Only $1.98

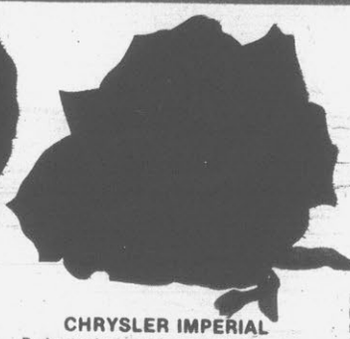
MONTEZUMA

Fantastically gorgeous! The urn-shaped buds open into large, high-centered double blooms of brilliant scarlet-orange. Very vigorous grower. Blooms profusely on a compact bush highlighted with leathery semi-glossy foliage. Only $1.98



FORTY-NINER

Blooms all summer long and into autumn with brilliantly contrasting petals, vivid Oriental red inside and chrome yellow outside. Grows to 3 feet high. Former All American Rose of the Year and deservedly so! Only $1.98

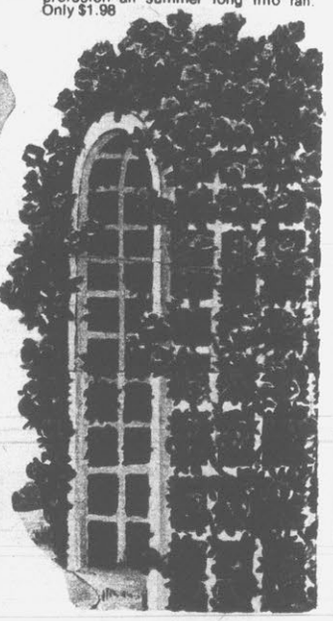


CHRYSLER IMPERIAL

Perfectly shaped tapering buds open into large, velvety, dark red blooms with as many as 40-50 petals each. Richly fragrant and colorful. Another former All American Rose of the Year. Only $1.98

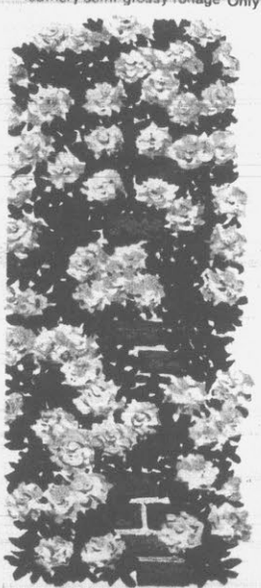
TIFFANY

Large long buds open into lush double blooms of beautiful warm pink. Intensely fragrant. Considered by many to be one of the most beautiful of all roses. Former All American Rose of the Year, an authentic prize winner. Only $1.98.



CLIMBING BLAZE

This champion climber produces a living blanket of big, 2 to 3 inch scarlet-red double blooms on many branched canes. Blooms again and again summer into fall, covering trellis, walls, fences with a sheet of flaming color. Only $1.98

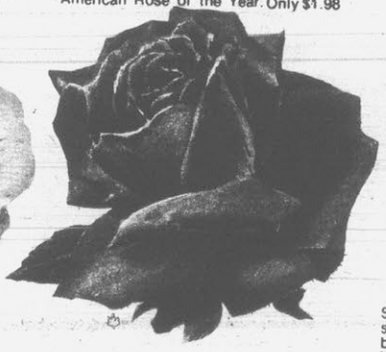


CLIMBING PEACE

Easy growing, flowers generously all summer long with dozens of vivid golden blooms tinged in red or pink. Clambers quickly over fence, side of house, arbor, or trellis in a rolling blanket of large, gorgeous golden blooms. Only $1.98

ECLIPSE

Easily established, the profuse and remarkably long pointed buds open to deep-cupped, long-lasting doubled golden yellow blooms that come in waves far into fall. Eclipse is showy, alternately green, then yellow. Only $1.98



QUEEN ELIZABETH

Truly one of the most breathtakingly beautiful roses, its clusters of lovely, radiant pink flowers bloom early June to frost. Delightfully fragrant. Former All American Rose of the Year winner. Very dependable. Only $1.98

MIRANDY

Strong vigorous grower produces many suprisingly large well formed blooms, as befits a past All American Rose of the Year winner. Blooms are deep purplish-red maroon color. Only $1.98

Send No Money — Your Order Promptly Shipped!

In all our 36 years of serving flower lovers and home gardeners, we feel this is the best combination of rose bush varieties we have ever offered. These are hardy vigorous plants, not allowed to lie around on display and dry out. When shipped, they are carefully packed, protected and tagged with name of variety.

Order now to reserve your rose shipment for spring planting. Send no money, you may order on your credit card if you wish. Or send remittance now (plus 90c towards postage and handling) — either way, we ship postpaid. Mail order before April 25 and receive free bonus of Giant Hibiscus.

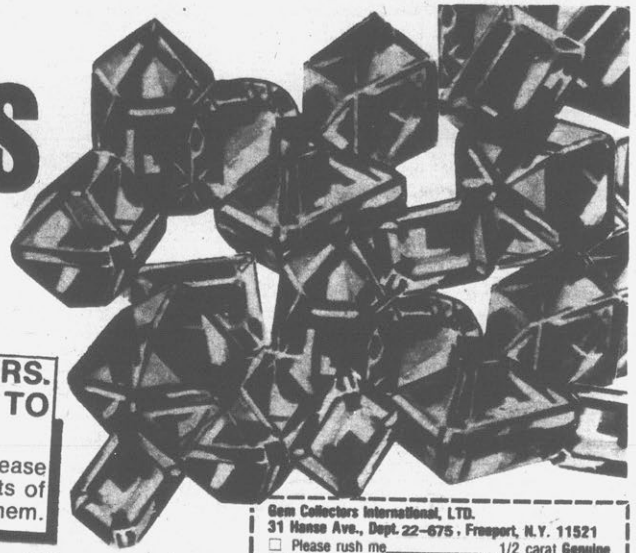
Are We MAD To Sell GENUINE DIAMONDS At Only $8.95 A Half Carat?



Yes, genuine. Natural uncut diamonds. Not man-made, not imitations. While they last — before South Africa explodes. Such diamonds have quadrupled in price in 15 years. And do you know what a top news magazine predicts?

NO DEALERS. NO WHOLESALERS. NO MORE THAN $1500 WORTH TO ANYONE—EVEN OIL SHEIKS.
We're out to win a lot of new customers. So please don't ask us to sell you more than 100 carats of these diamonds even if you can easily afford them.

You've just struck diamonds. Now — before Africa goes up in flames — you can own those magnificent gems that are everyone's best friend these days at only $8.95 a half carat. Yes, genuine, natural diamonds, the world's most precious jewels. Not from a laboratory but directly from those fabled South African mines, including those of the legendary DeBeers.

Certified authentic by top diamond expert

These diamonds are certified authentic by a leading international diamond expert, former curator at the Smithsonian Institution. According to estimates reported recently in a top news magazine, the world's diamond deposits will soon be exhausted. With diamonds increasing in value four times in 15 years, it seems reasonable to suppose the value of these diamonds will rise even more sharply when South Africa explodes into full-scale war, which it could do momentarily.

But regardless if war comes, this is a risk-free — in fact, brilliant — purchase. Almost as brilliant as a handful of DeBeers diamonds. For they're sold on an unheard-of 3-year money-back guarantee! How can we sell these exciting diamonds for only $8.95 a half carat? H

1st, we buy directly from the source. No middlemen. 2nd, the tremendous purchasing power of our parent company let us make a super buy. 3rd, you don't pay for having your diamonds face lifted! You get our diamonds in their pure natural state, just as they came from the mines. Real conversation pieces!

A super-buy today — an heirloom tomorrow

Keep these diamonds as is: they could be among your family's most treasured heirlooms. Or ask a jeweler to set them in silver or gold, or in some jewelry you now own. (The cost of setting is quite reasonable.) Attractively gift-cased. Get several as gifts. But hurry. Get these beauties while they last! Specify number of carats — ½ to 5 — for each diamond.

INCREDIBLE 3-YEAR REPURCHASE GUARANTEE
You must be completely delighted with your Genuine Diamonds or simply return them within 3 years for a complete refund of your purchase price! (except shipping & handling).

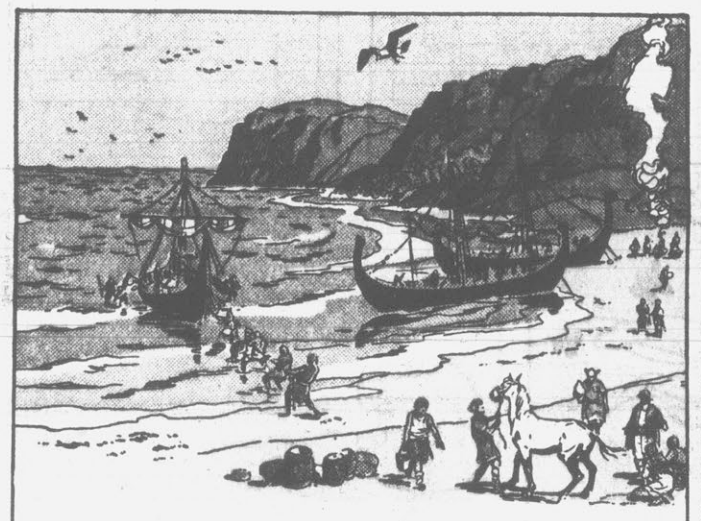
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE ARN WANDERS EVER CLOSER TO VIKINGSHOLM. HE IS NOT IN ANY HURRY. THOUGH EACH MORNING IS COLDER, THE FOREST BURSTS INTO GLORIOUS AUTUMN COLORS, YELLOW, GOLD AND SCARLET.

HIS WANDERING COMES TO AN END. HE WOULD LIKE TO RETURN TO CAMELOT, BUT WILL ANY SHIPS SET SAIL FOR BRITAIN THIS LATE IN THE SEASON? "YES," SAYS AGUAR, "SEVERAL WILL TRY TO REACH ITALY BEFORE THE WINTER; STORMS MAKE THE TRIP IMPOSSIBLE."

ARN THINKS THE WEATHER HAS BECOME IMPOSSIBLE, BUT THE VIKING SEAMEN ASSURE HIM IT MIGHT BE WORSE... AT LEAST IT IS FROM THE RIGHT DIRECTION FOR THE NORTH SEA CROSSING.



THE CHANNEL, TOO, IS ROUGH AND A LANDING IS MADE ON A SANDY BEACH SO REPAIRS CAN BE MADE. THE NATIVES BRING THEIR WARES TO SELL AND ARN BUYS A FAIRLY GOOD HORSE, LEAVES HIS SEAFARING COMPANIONS, AND STARTS FOR CAMELOT OVERLAND.

IT IS A LONELY JOURNEY. THE VILLAGES ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN AND WINTER WILL COME ERE HE REACHES CAMELOT.

DENISE LIGHT IS DEAD—'ACCIDENTALLY' KILLED THINKING THAT HER HUSBAND'S MISSION HAD BEEN REVEALED BY HER OWN CASUAL TALK TO THE PRESS....

NOW A MEMORIAL SERVICE IS BEING HELD AT WINDSWEPT JUNCTION AIR FORCE FACILITY....

WHAT IRONY! COL. LIGHT IS HURT, BUT ALIVE ON THAT SHIP WHICH PICKED HIM UP!

I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT PURTY FOX IS DEAD!

I-I DREAMED ABOUT HER AGAIN LAST NIGHT!

SHAKE IT, MAN, WE'LL BE LATE FOR THE SERVICE!

PLENTY OF BRASS HERE FOR THE MEMORIAL

IT'S THAT LAMBIER CRUMB! THE DUDE WHO PULLED THE RUG ON OUR MISSION—WHICH MISSUS LIGHT THOUGHT SHE SPILLED!

I'M GONNA SLUG HIM—RIGHT NOW!

EVEN THOUGH SHE WAS HIS SISTER...

I STILL WANTA BUST HIM!

—HE WAS DOING HIS JOB! THIS IS NOT WARTIME
