OPEC Adopts 9% Hike And Surcharge

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries voted today to raise the base price of crude oil by 9 percent as of next Sunday, to $14.54 a barrel. That would increase American pump prices for gasoline by about two cents a gallon.

Libya and Venezuela immediately announced surcharges on the new price.

The new base price apparently was a victory for the socalled Arab moderates such as Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi over more militant members such as Algeria, Iran, Libya and Iraq.

The militants apparently settled for the smaller increase in the base price in exchange for the surcharges, analysts said.

The new base price is the price the oil cartel originally had set for next October in its quarterly increase schedule.

An OPEC announcement said the oil ministers authorized unlimited surcharges over the base price, depending on market demand. Earlier, Qatar oil minister Abdul Aziz Khalifa alThani incorrectly said a $4-perbarrel limit had been put on surcharges.

Today's base price increase is roughly equal to surcharges announced earlier by many OPEC members and supersedes those surcharges. However Libya announced it would raise prices $1.66 a barrel over the new base price. Venezuela announced a $1.20 increase.

Iran, which had lobbied for a whopping 29 percent increase in the base price, said it had no current plans for a surcharge.

OPEC says surcharges are it's response to what it calls profiteering by oil companies who take advantage of the current shortage by charging high prices on the short-term, or "spot" market. Prices there have reached $20 a barrel recently.

The price increases were voted one day after Egypt and Israel signed a peace treaty but there was no immediate indication that the signing, which infuriated most Arab nations, was related to the increase.

The current price for Arabian light crude oil, the so-called benchmark of the industry, is $13.35 for a 42-gallon barrel. A 5 percent increase in OPEC prices usually increases the American price of gasoline about a penny a gallon.

Analysts here estimated the new base price will add about $13.5 billion to OPEC coffers this year from industrialized Western nations.

The new base price apparently was a victory for the socalled Arab moderates such as Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi over more militant members such as Algeria, Iran, Libya and Iraq. Iran sought a base price increase of 29 percent.

The militants apparently settled for the smaller increase in the base price in exchange for the surcharges, analysts said.

OPEC in December agreed on a four-stage schedule of increases totaling 14.5 percent by Oct. 1. The price went up 5 percent on Jan. 1, to $13.35, and the second increase to $13.84 was scheduled for April 1.

Meanwhile, a number of the members took advantage of the oil shortage caused by the suspension of Iran's exports and raised prices by putting on surcharges, generally in the neighborhood of 9 percent. The Geneva meeting was called to try to formulate unified price and production policies.

Iran, with more than two months of export revenue lost because of its revolution against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and plans to reduce the pre-revolution export level in the future, urged an immediate 29 percent increase when the meeting opened Monday. This would have raised the basic price of Arabian light crude to $17.45 a barrel.

Cyrus Ebrahimzadeh, an economic adviser to the Iranian delegation, claimed the proposal was favored by most of the ministers. But other sources reported stiff opposition from Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi, who they said want a smaller increase.

Congress Today Queries Sadat, Begin On Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel's Menachem Begin and Egypt's Anwar Sadat, having jointly proposed President Carter for the Nobel Peace Prize, are taking to the Congress their sometimes divergent visions of a peaceful Middle East.

The Israeli prime minister broached the Nobel prize idea at a gala dinner in a tent set up behind the White House Monday night. The Egyptian president rose quickly to support the idea.

Nine hours earlier, they had signed a treaty ending 30 years of hostlity between their two nations, a treaty nurtured by President Carter.

Responding to the suggestion, Carter, at least partially serious, declared:

"If the next nine months of negotiations (on implementing the treaty) are completely harmonious, ...then I might consider accepting their nomination. But otherwise, they've made their toasts in vain."

All members of the Senate and the House were invited to question Begin and Sadat at separate sessions in Capitol Hill office buildings today.

Congress will be asked to authorize the $4.8 billion package of grants and loans Carter is proposing for Israel and Egypt, in furtherance of the treaty.

Immediately after the treaty signing, which Carter hailed with the cry, "Peace has come," he conferred with more than a score of Democratic and Republican congressional leaders on the aid proposals.

Throughout a day of celebration, however, Carter did not minimize the hurdles facing full implementation of the accord.

As if to underscore Carter's statement that "differences still separate the signatories," both Begin and Sadat touched on their conflicting viewpoints in public utterances.

At the signing, Begin recalled his joy at the seizure of East Jerusalem by Israeli paratroopers in 1967 — a seizure Egypt and the Arab world still challenge.

And Sadat, in his toast at the dinner, spoke of Palestinians soon being able to "take the first step on the road of selfdetermination and statehood." Begin and his government firmly oppose a Palestinian state.

Carter, in his toast, seemed intent on urging that all parties, perhaps including the Palestine Liberation Organization, join the search for a comprehensive Mideast settlement. He declared:

"I welcome and invite those who have so far held back — for whatever motive they might honor — to join us. The way is long and the way is hard — but peace is the way."

Shunning topcoats in chilly if sunny weather, Carter, Begin and Sadat — partners in 15 months of negotiations — quoted from the Bible and the Koran in solemnizing the treaty.

"Let there be no more bloodshed between Arabs and Israelis," Sadat declared.

"No more war," agreed Begin. "No more bloodshed. Peace unto you. Shalom, salaam, forever."

The Hebrew "shalom" and the Arabic "salaam" mean "peace."

The sound of celebratory bells at St. John's Church, a block away from the ceremony on the front lawn of the White House, mingled with the chants of 2,000 protesters shouting "Long live Palestine!"

Carter's mediation efforts, climaxed 13 days earlier at meetings with Begin and Sadat in Jerusalem and Cairo, continued almost until the moment of the ceremony.

As a result of differences expressed by his guests at a presigning luncheon, Carter appended a note to the official record of the agreement: "I have been informed that the expression 'West Bank' is understood by the government of Israel to mean 'Judea and Samaria.'"

In addition, he promised Sadat and Begin he would take steps to ensure deployment of a "multinational force" in the Sinai Peninsula if the U.N. Security Council fails to station a force there.

After the signing, the three leaders grasped each other in a three-way handshake. Carter said softly, "I'm so proud of both of you."

Under the treaty, Israel agrees to dismantle Jewish settlements and return to Egypt the vast Sinai Desert seized in the Six-Day War of 1967. Egypt agrees, for the first time, to formally recognize her Jewish neighbor as an independent state.

Carter, in his speech, called on the rest of the Arab world to join in the peace process.

Without naming any of the treaty critics, Carter said those "who would callously spill more blood" should be aware of a joint determiniation by the United States, Egypt and Israel to "vigorously wage peace."

A HOTLINE APPEAL

BUSTER JOYNER AWARD

A committee formed to establish an award for a Rose High School senior who exemplifies the character traits of the late Willie "Buster" Joyner has asked for a Hotline appeal.

Joyner, a custodian for many years at both Eppes and Rose High Schools, was a long-time Boy Scout leader and unofficial counselor to thousands of Greenville young people. He died last October. The committee is seeking funding from the community for this project. Friends of Buster Joyner, persons who were Scouts or coworkers with him and others who admired his life of service to the community are asked to contact John Maye, 752-5478 or 756-1622.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

FINISHING HIGH SCHOOL

In response to the Hotline item published yesterday about high school equivalency classes, Mrs. Irene Hanifer, director of the Pitt County Extended School Day Program, has called. She says the Pitt County Schools system has a 4 to 7 p. m. program, held at Agnes Fullilove Community School, 1600 Chestnut Street, Greenville (a facility rented in the evenings from the city schools by the county schools). Offered in this program for high school dropouts between the ages of 16 and 19 are all required units of high school credit, plus sufficient electives to provide a high school diploma to everyone who successfully completes the program.

"Since this is a federally funded educational program, people who join us who are economically disadvantaged may also be provided with a CETA-funded job. This job will carry with it elective credit toward the high school diploma," Mrs. Hanifer said.

She asked that anyone wishing more information about the program or wishing to apply call her at 758-2085 between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. or visit the school during those hours.

UNC Funds Cutoff Posed By Califano In Rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government Monday rejected North Carolina's plan for desegregating its state university system, but allowed the state 30 days for further negotiations before the government begins withholding an estimated $89 million in funds from the 16-campus system.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said he made the decision to reject the plan "as a last resort," and still hopes some agreement can be reached through negotiation.

Califano told a news conference he believes "negotiated settlements are far preferable to lengthy and costly litigation and that the best interests of the state, and more importantly, the students in the state system, are served by such agreements."

But he said the department "has met the University of North Carolina more than halfway in an effort to resolve this matter without litigation."

If negotiations fail, North Carolina could become the first state in the nation to lose federal funds for higher education under the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Recently, HEW has accepted desegregation plans of five other states with historically separate institutions for blacks and whites. They are Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Oklahoma and Virginia.

Student aid in the UNC system would not be affected at the outset, Califano said. But he said administrative proceedings for a cutoff would begin immediately and could eventually mean that $89 million in federal funds now spent in student aid, scientific research and other programs would be withheld from UNC.

HEW and UNC have been bargaining for a long time over an acceptable plan. Last year Califano moved toward a fund cutoff, but a month later accepted what was hailed as a settlement but turned out to be only a temporary respite.

SCLC Will File Suit For Appropriations HEW Says Necessary

By The Associated Press

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference will file suit today to force Gov. Jim Hunt and the General Assembly to appropriate funds the federal government says are needed to upgrade historically black colleges in the state's university system, according to SCLC field secretary Golden Frinks.

Frinks said it is negligent on the part of North Carolina to allow an estimated $89 million in federal funds to be cut off from the University of North Carolina.

UNC stands to lose that much money if the state and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare fail to reach an agreement on a desegregation plan for the 16-campus system within a month.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. Monday rejected the state's desegregation plan, but left 30 days for further talks before the department actually begins withholding funds.

"We view the lack of action by Gov. Hunt and the Board of Governors of the UNC system as dangerous," Frinks said Monday.

The Rev. Leon White of the Commission for Racial Justice agreed with Frinks, adding that he is not pleased with Califano's decision.

"But I'm not surprised because not only has North Carolina been unyielding with HEW, but it has been very, very stubborn and blatant in its refusal to enter negotiations with HEW to reach a compromise," White said. "He had no choice but to make it.

"Cutting off the funds is no advantage to blacks in this state," White added. "But to continue the funds means to deny that something needs to be done on those campuses."

As black leaders in North Carolina continued to call for action by UNC and state officials, those officials said they were disappointed, but not surprised by Califano's decision.

"Our position is to wait and see what comes further from HEW, if anything," said William A. Johnson of Lillington, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors.

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said there is "no money stashed back" in the proposed state budget to help the university out if it loses federal money.

And Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green declined to say what he would recommend the General Assembly do if any funds are cut off. "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," Green said.

The main sources of disagreement between the two parties are duplication of programs on predominantly black and white campuses and the amount of money the state should spend to upgrade its five historically black campuses.

UNC President William C. Friday declined to comment on the rejection.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he was disappointed and warned that unless Congress acts, "other institutions are going to be victimized like UNC has."

"If there was ever a time for the courts and Congress to step in and defend academic freedom in this country, it is now," Helms said in a telephone interview from his Washington office. "What we have is a travesty in terms of justice to the University of North Carolina. Some of the very same civil rights activist lawyers of yesteryear are now on the staff of HEW and that is like putting the mice in charge of the cheese factory."

Helms said the federal funds should not be cut off until UNC has had a chance to challege HEW in court.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., was not immediately available for comment.

Asked if he believes there is still a chance for a negotiated settlement, Johnson said, "I have hope but I'm not too optimistic. I think there will have to be some substantial change in their (HEW's) position for this to reach a settlement."

Unskilled Look For Jobs

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Some 18,000 people clogged Interstate 71 seeking unskilled job applications Monday for the new Ford Motor Co. transmission plant now under construction near Batavia.

Al Sexton, Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, Lebanon, said Ford officials set up trailers at the parking lot of the College Football Hall of Fame to hand out applications.

Ford estimated that 3,500 jobs would be available when the plant opens in 1980.

ASK PENALTY REVIEW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former District Judge Linwood T. Peoples of Henderson have asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review a decision by the N.C. Supreme Court disqualifying Peoples from holding any judicial office.

Inflated Revenue Picture

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tax collections maintained a high rate of growth last month but most of it was due to inflation, state Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch said today.

Lynch released a monthly collection report showing that general tax revenues collected during February were up 16.7 percent over February, 1978.

For the first eight months of the current fiscal year, tax collections are up 14.92 percent over the corresponding period of last year, he reported.

"When you get to thinking about what inflation has done, 14.92 doesn't seem like very much," Lynch said. "I'd say the state's just keeping up."

Legislative budgetmakers are watching the collection figures, as they anticipate at least a 10 percent increase in the proposed state budget.

Lynch said there probably is a small amount of growth accounted for in the increase. But it is difficult to distinguish that amount from the effects of inflation, he added.

"I think we're going to find that construction was up, as evidenced in (increases in) the sales tax," he said.

A net decrease of 4.5 percent was suffered during February in highway fund collections, which includes gasoline taxes and motor vehicle fees.

Lynch attributed that in large part to the two-week extension for the purchase of 1979 license tags granted by the General Assembly. The balance should show up in collections calculated for March, he said.

"I would say it's meaningless," Lynch said.

Phone Etiquette Applies To Home, Office

By CAROL-FAYE ASHCRAFT
Alabama Journal

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The key to controlling a telephone conversation is to ask a question, according to one businesswoman who has learned

telephone etiquette through experience.

Barbara Arnberg, owner of a Montgomery real-estate firm, says, "Telephoning is the lifeline of our business."

But, she adds, "everyone is in the selling business. You are either selling or buying. If you don't use the telephone correctly, you are being offensive."

She says proper telephone techniques apply in the home as well as in the office.

Mrs. Arnberg, who counsels real-estate agents and is developing a telephone etiquette course for Toastmistress clubs, says the first thing to find out is who is calling and why.

Mrs. Arnberg says even children can master the technique of asking questions without giving away information. This protects the family, particularly when there is not a man at home, she says.

"Whoever is asking the question is in control of the conversation," she says. "Be sure that you are the questioner as much as the answerer."

She says safety demands that children and parents alike hedge on the telephone. For example, if a caller asks, "Is your mother at home?" a child may answer, "May I ask who is calling? I'll have my mother return the call in a few minutes."

"Answer the question with another question," Mrs. Arnberg advises.

She adds that another trick for staying in control of the conversation is to remain polite. "People react to you the way you react to them," she cautions.

If a caller asks, "Who is this?" respond with, "May I ask whom you are calling?" or "May I ask what number you were dialing?"

People who call a wrong number usually realize right away that they have made a mistake. "They're in a hurry, they're embarrassed," she says. And they tend to be abrupt. A person who dials a wrong number, however, is obligated to give information, too, she says.

Even people who call with a sales pitch can be handled nicely, Mrs. Arnberg says. If you can get a word in, let them know that you are not interested. A reply of "I know your time is valuable. I don't want to waste your valuable time," may cut them off.

Mrs. Arnberg says playing their game helps, too. "You can't imagine how quickly you can get rid of someone if you offer to sell them something."

She says she may throw a salesman off by asking him where he lives and if he is interested in buying a house.

If a caller is angry or you feel you have lost control of the conversation, Mrs. Arnberg advises that you fall back and regroup. This can mean putting the person on hold at the office or simply offering to call back from a home telephone.

Another bridge is saying "thank you," she suggests. If you are at a loss for words or ideas, thank the person for answering a question.

She says the main things to remember when talking on the telephone, in general, are to lower your voice, slow down the conversation and have a mental picture of the person to whom you are talking. This helps to make a conversation personal, she says.

It all comes back to being courteous, according to Mrs. Arnberg. "You'd be surprised how well people respond to intelligent conversation," she comments.

And, she adds, children can be as courteous on the telephone as adults. "We underestimate children."

Try Hot Cross Buns During Lent Season

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

This Lent we thought you might enjoy baking Hot Cross Buns in tune with the times. Not too sweet. Not overly spiced. With a light and lovely texture. Perfect to serve warm from the oven to family, neighbors, friends.

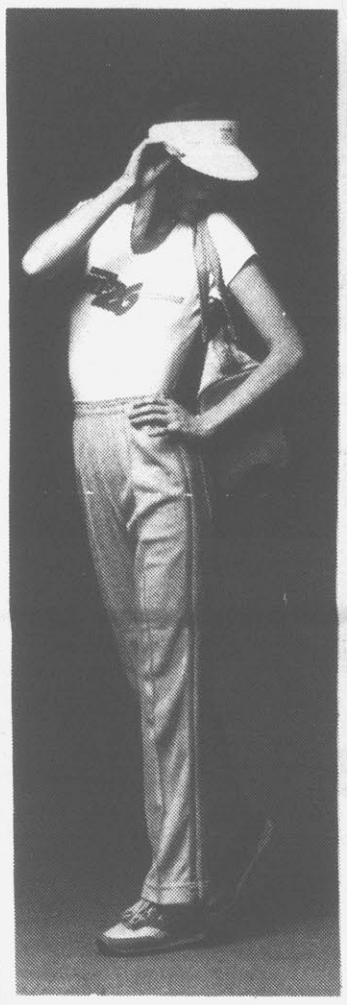

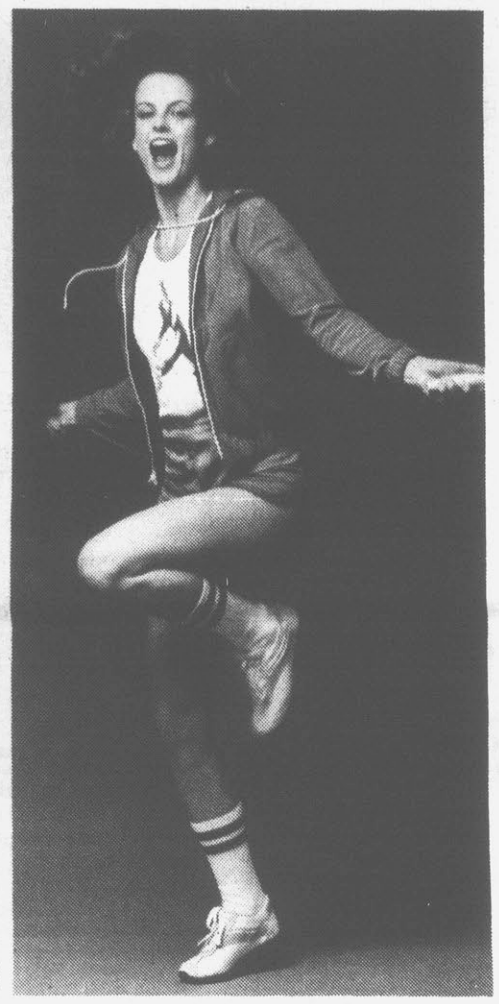

HOT CROSS BUNS

- 1 package dry yeast
- ¼ cup warm water
- ¾ cup milk
- ½ cup butter, soft
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon each ground cinnamon and nutmeg
- 3 eggs
- 2-3rds cup raisins
- 4 to 5 cups all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- Frosting, recipe follows

In a large bowl dissolve yeast in water. Heat milk and butter until lukewarm; butter does not need to melt; stir into yeast mixture with sugar, salt and spice. Whisk in eggs until blended. Stir in raisins. Gradually stir in enough flour (about 4 cups) to make an easily managed dough. On a smooth floured surface, knead until smooth and elastic (about 5 minutes), using additional flour if necessary. Place in a greased bowl, turn to grease top; cover; let rise in warm, draft-free place (about 80 degrees) until doubled — 1 hour. Punch down dough; let rest 10 minutes. Divide into 24 equal parts. Shape each into a ball. Place balls, sides touching, in a greased and floured 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan; do not cover. Place in a warm, closed place such as an unheated oven or cupboard. Let rise until doubled — 45 minutes. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven about 15 minutes; brush with the corn syrup; continue baking until buns have a beautiful golden-brown glaze — 5 minutes longer. Place buns in pan on a rack; cool 10 minutes. Pipe frosting on each bun to form a thick cross. Serve warm. Makes 24.

Frosting: Mix 1 tablespoon light corn syrup with 1 tablespoon hot water; gradually stir in, keeping smooth, enough confectioners' sugar (about 1½ cups) to form a stiff mixture. Turn into a pastry-tube bag; use as directed above.

Fashion Follows Function

YESTERDAY'S saggy gray sweatsuit is out and active sportswear now has to look as good as it feels. Bright sun-drenched colors such as canary yellow, orange or turquoise combine with white, soft metallic gray, or even sandstone beige, for a new look. There are color coordinated shoes, bags, visors and headbands to match her warmup outfit, too. The shiny look is especially nice on running shorts when they have a plushy soft velour on the inside. From waffles to lugs, almost every imaginable pattern is showing up on running shoes. The pressure of almost three times one's body weight is put on the knee and lower leg during running, so those fancy treads not only look good, but perform a vital function. (Shoes, clothing and accessories from Osaga of Oregon.)

Family Reunion Is Planned

JASON — The annual Parrott Mewborn II family reunion will be held April 22 at Mewborn Primitive Baptist Church near here.

Lunch will be served at 1 p.m. followed by talks by Joseph Dewey Herring of Lumberton and William Potts Whitted of Snow Hill.

The reunion will be in honor of Levi Jesse Hardy Mewborn and Lydia Jane Mewborn, ninth and 10th children of Parrott Mewborn, and his wife, Mary Aldridge Mewborn.

All Mewborn descendants and friends are invited to attend and are reminded to bring a picnic lunch. Some family history will be distributed following lunch.

It's not too late to get a $1500 tax break on an NCNB IRA.

This year, federal regulations allow you to sign up for an Individual Retirement Account up to the due date of 1978 tax returns, April 15 for most people, and take your choice of tax breaks–either on your 1978 Return or your 1979 Return.

And, at NCNB, you can get the highest rate the law allows a bank or savings and loan to pay–8%. And, you get your choice of four-or ten-year maturities.

So come see us. All things considered, we think you'll be hard-pressed to find an IRA with all the advantages of ours. Which is what you expect from a bank that wants to be the best in the neighborhood. NCNB

Each IRA depositor insured to $100,000 by FDIC

Federal law and regulation prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless three months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the Regular Savings rate.

Nurse's Position Really Registers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: MIXED EMOTIONS wrote that his aging mother had suffered a stroke and needs constant care. "I will never send her to a nursing home," he vows, "because all her life she sacrificed for me, and now it's my turn to repay her." So "our hero" asks his wife—who just happens to be a registered nurse—to stay home and take care of his mother. The wife refused, and I don't blame her.

Abby, why do people feel that the RN in the family should drop everything and take care of a chronically ill family member? I'm an RN and if I chose to nurse an ailing relative, that would be one thing, but to be pressured to do so just because I've had special training is something else.

If the husband feels obligated to repay his mother for all she's done for him, let HIM learn the fundamentals of patient care so he can stay home and take care of her. He doesn't have to be an RN.

MANCHESTER, CONN.

DEAR MANCHESTER: My mail has been overwhelmingly in favor of the wife. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't believe MIXED EMOTIONS, who was shocked because his wife—a registered nurse—prefers to go out and care for strangers rather than stay home and take care of his ailing mother.

He also said, "I have a good income, and it's not necessary for my wife to work at all!"

Really, now, that's quite a put-down. It's akin to saying, "I make enough money so my wife can putter around with her little hobbies to keep herself busy."

If the wife of MIXED EMOTIONS were to volunteer her husband's professional skills full-time to one of HER relatives (and for free, yet), what do you think his answer would be?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Probably, "No way, Dear." Or, "You've got to be kidding!"

DEAR ABBY: The RN who refused to stay home and nurse her husband's chronically ill mother has valid reasons for her decision. In the first place, she knows how difficult it is to be professional with relatives because of the emotional involvement. Second, she probably knows her mother-in-law well enough to be aware that a nurse-patient relationship would never work indefinitely.

Furthermore, it would be economically unsound for her to be tied to a home job indefinitely without pay. She'd suffer a loss of pension as well as Social Security benefits.

When caring for a patient 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the nurse becomes tired and worn out. Should she need medical care or time off to rest, she's apt to forego it for fear her absence would upset the patient. Meanwhile, the nurse loses contact with friends, neighbors and the world in general. When the patient finally dies, there is nothing left of the nurse.

We hear much about child and wife abuse lately. Many doctors and nurses see PARENT abuse which results from the same frustrations and tensions that cause other abuses.

Perhaps this wife has seen parent abuse and fears she might be driven to commit it should she take on a nursing job where she couldn't renew herself every eight hours, or quit if the tension got too great.

S.C.

DEAR S.C.: You make an excellent point.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to your letter signed FIREMAN'S DAUGHTER urging thrill seekers to stay home and watch the news on TV instead of driving to the scene of a fire: there's an alternative.

Become a volunteer fire fighter! That's what I did. As a trained fire fighter I fought fires and provided first aid at the scene of many accidents.

I was paid for attending drill practice as well as for each night I spent at the station. (It wasn't much, but it was something.) I not only got a great education in first aid, I was about to help people and satisfy my curiosity.

NATURALLY NOSY

DEAR NOSY: A good suggestion that could catch fire.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I am absolutely fascinated by the boy King Tutankhamon, whose tomb was uncovered 56 years ago revealing treasures never imagined.

The very idea of being buried in an apartment stocked with 5,000 dazzling works of art, sculptures, alabaster vases, perfumed boxes and gold chariots is beyond comprehension.

This country has never been big on taking it with them, but the other night as I was pondering the possibility it occurred to me that it wasn't a bad idea.

Unlike the woman who wanted to be buried with a phone "just in case she got a dial tone," I am inclined to be a little more practical. Not that I'm ready to go, but when I do, here's a list of things I want to take with me.

All the warranties — Why make it easy for the second wife? Let her try to anticipate whether the toaster has three days left, the TV has 22 days, or the thermostat in the dryer is covered only if it goes out during an eclipse.

The ultra-suede suit — This one holds a lot of memories for me. It took me three months to pay for it, only to board a plane and discover it had been chosen as the official uniform of Braniff Airlines.

My book of rare phone numbers — This includes all the biggies . . . plumbers who work Sundays, doctors who answer their own phones and cleaning women who are not allergic to excessive dust.

The formula for my hair color — Through conscientious experimentation and great expense (from grants and personal funding) we finally hit upon something that will cover the roots. I have no intention of leaving it to strangers.

My birth certificate — Some things you wouldn't want to fall into the wrong hands.

Timex watch — Do you have any idea what a commercial that will make in 2,000 years?

Scarsdale Diet — This could also be reproduced on my tombstone.

Charge cards — These could be displayed in six or seven urns throughout the tomb.

Granted, this isn't a bullion bonanza you'd expect to find, but who is to say that in years to come my mood ring on my third finger, right hand won't be considered a "treasure"?

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Progressive magazine, which termed its effort a precedent-setting freedom of the press case, has lost its battle to prevent the government from banning publication of an article on hydrogen bombs.

U.S. District Judge Robert Warren, becoming the first federal judge to ever issue an injuction imposing prior restraint on publication in the interest of national security, said Monday that dangers of the spread of nuclear weapons outweighed the press-freedom arguments.

He granted the government request for a preliminary injunction to stop the Madison-based news and opinion monthly from printing the article.

Magazine spokesmen said the decision would be appealed.

Warren said the case, as far as he knew, was the first instance of prior restraint based on national security grounds.

The article, titled "The Hydrogen Bomb Secret: How We Got It, Why We're Telling It," was scheduled for publication in the April edition before Warren issued a temporary restraining order March 9. It was to go to press with the May edition Monday before Warren's preliminary injunction was issued.

The government contended the article contained detailed technical information that could aid foreign nations in developing hydrogen weapons. The information, the government said, is prohibited from disclosure under provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

But the magazine said the author of the article, free-lance writer Howard Morland, had gathered the information from unclassified sources and that the data were already in the public domain, especially after being entered in the court record.

The article's purpose, Morland said, was to expose a "myth of secrecy" that surrounds nuclear armaments preventing public debate and criticism of the program.

Warren said he did not welcome "the notoriety" that would come from issuing the preliminary injunction. He also said "many elements of the press see grave danger (to press freedom) if this case goes forward" to the Supreme Court, as it "undoubtedly" would unless a compromise was reached.

Before issuing his order, Warren offered the magazine a "final choice" of allowing a neutral panel of mediators to work on a settlement between the two sides during a 10-day period in which a temporary restraining order could remain in effect.

After a two-hour recess, Earl Munson, an attorney for the magazine, declined the offer.

"The editors believe they cannot compromise their First Amendment freedom to publish," Munson said.

PLO Claims 'Credit' For Market Bombing

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — One woman was killed and 20 other persons were injured today when a bomb exploded under a vegetable stand in an outdoor market in Lod, 15 miles east of Tel Aviv, police said.

Two of the injured were reported in serious condition.

A Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman in Beirut said a PLO unit from the West Bank of the Jordan River was responsible and said: "The blast is part of a plan to escalate anti-Israel warfare in protest against the treaty of treason."

He said guerrillas throughout Lebanon went on maximum alert against Israeli retaliation.

It was the second explosion set off by Palestinians angered by the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed Monday in Washington. A hand grenade wounded nine persons, two of them American tourists, in a hostel in Arab East Jerusalem Monday night.

Despite the threat of Arab terrorism, Israelis sang, wept and danced the hora Monday after watching the signing of their peace treaty with Egypt.

About 60,000 braved cold and blustery weather to cheer the ceremony asit was shown on a huge TV screen in a Tel Aviv square, then burst into spontaneous song and folk dancing under a forest of peace banners and Israeli and Egyptian flags.

Public festivities also were held in dozens of towns and farming villages, as Israelis put aside their fears for the future and welcomed the first peace treaty ever signed with an Arab state.

Thousands more celebrated quietly at home with a few friends. One of them was Uri Bar-Ner, an Israeli Foreign Ministry official. After watching the ceremony, he turned off his TV set, raised a glass of champagne and proposed a toast "to life, to peace, to hope."

In tribute to the 12,000 victims of Israel's four major wars and countless border skirmishes, soldiers placed a single flower on each military grave.

"Peace was my husband's deepest desire," one war widow said as she visited her husband's grave. "He always dreamed of peace."

Some 2,000 Israelis gathered at Jerusalem's Wailing Wall to mark the signing with songs and a brief concert by violinist Yehudi Menuhin.

Canada Will Vote In May

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadians will vote May 22 in a general election to decide whether to extend Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's 11 years in office.

Trudeau called the election Monday with just four months remaining in his latest five-year term. He backed away from a vote at least twice last year in the face of public discontent with his Liberal government.

Now, although the latest polls show him with a slim lead of only one percentage point over Conservative opposition leader Joe Clark, Trudeau aides say they are confident Liberal fortunes are improving.

The election date was announced by Majority Leader Allan MacEachen while Trudeau was going through the formality of asking Governor-General Edward Schreyer to dissolve Parliament and call the election.

In a televised statement afterward, the prime minister said the 57-day campaign would represent "a great campaign in nationhood" and that he would crusade for "the new economic policies required to make the 1980s a decade of development."

The 59-year-old prime minister said he would stress five challenges: Quebec separatism, economic development, job and income security, reduced government deficits and assured energy supplies.

Racketeering Indictments

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating alleged racketeering in Rockingham County has returned three indictments.

The names of those charged in the indictments Monday were withheld pending their arrests, said David Smith, assistant U.S. attorney.

The Greensboro Daily News quoted sources close to the investigation as saying the defendants were former truckstop operators. It said the sources said some or all the operators may be offered immunity in exchange for information that would lead to indictments of former law enforcement officers in the area.

Authorities refused to say how many persons were charged in the indictments.

The grand jury has been investigating prostitution and racketeering activities for several months. Other investigations in nearby areas of North Carolina and Virginia have led to other indictments.

Joseph Motley Whitehead, former commonwealth attorney in Virginia, has been convicted of federal racketeering and bribery charges in connection with a scheme involving payoffs from prostitution operations at truck stops in the Danville, Va., area.

Bobby Poteat, former sheriff of Caswell County in North Carolina, was convicted in federal court in Lynchburg, Va., of perjury for lying to a federal grand jury about payoffs he was reported to have received from operators of a house of prostitution.

Less Lethal Batons Due

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Highway Patrol plans to replace riot batons and heavy, long-handled flashlights with lighter, plastic instruments because of complaints by two Robeson County Lumbee Indians, the state's crime control secretary said Monday.

Herbert L. Hyde, secretary of crime control and public safety, said the Indians had complained that troopers used unnecessary force while arresting them for driving under the influence of alcohol.

By mid-April, the patrol's 1,500 troopers will have been issued and trained in the use of a new "defensive" baton, according to Col. John T. Jenkins, the patrol's commanding officer.

Jenkins said the baton is designed to be used for leverage and pinioning rather than striking. He said troopers will turn in their riot batons and will no longer be permitted to carry flashlights.

"Robeson County certainly called it to my attention," Hyde said. "In those two cases ... long, heavy flashlights were used by patrolmen to subdue resisting arrestees. Flashlights have been used for defensive purposes but this is a much better defensive weapon."

Tony Blue, 27, and Terry M. Locklee, 22, both of Robeson County, were found guilty of driving under the influence and resisting arrest. Blue was arrested Jan. 14 and Locklee last May 20.

Claim Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has rejected an appeal by an education professor from India who said he was fired from a teaching job at mostly black Fayetteville State University because of his race.

Manmohan S. Jawa, 49, said he was denied promotion and salary increases and was later suspended and fired in 1974 even though he had a tenured job. He said the action was taken because of his race and the fact that he is from India.

U.S. District Judge Robert W. Hemphill of Columbia, S.C., dismissed Jawa's claim and his request for reinstatement and $1.5 million in damages. Hemphill held that Jawa was discharged "because of a series of incidents, disruptive to and obstructive to the educational effort, purpose and haromny of, and at, Fayetteville."

The judge also said he found that Jawa was a poor teacher who was unwilling or unable to follow directives and comply with university policies.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed Hemphill's ruling, as did the Supreme Court in its ruling on Monday.

Many 'Missing' As German Dike Burst

NUREMBERG, West Germany (AP) — At least 73 persons were missing today after a dike burst on the Rhine-Main-Danube shipping canal and flooded a suburban town, Nuremberg police said.

Nineteen families, each with two to three members, and 35 other residents were unaccounted in the disaster, "but we hope that most of them are staying with friends and haven't been able to report in yet because of telephone and power outages," a police spokesman said. "We'll have a clearer view in a couple of hours.""

The Bavarian radio network urged residents to telephone their whereabouts to special offices manned by the Red Cross and police.

The body of a 12-year-old girl was recovered Monday night after the flood swept through the town of Katzwang.

Two hundred policemen, city work crews and soldiers were conducting search and cleanup operations in the town south of Nuremberg, where several houses were swept away by a wall of water up to 6½ feet high, police said.

Helicopters rescued at least 300 persons from the town Monday afternoon, plucking many from the roofs of their homes where they fled to escape the flood, police said.

The water spurted from a 45 to 60-foot wide section of the dike that burst without warning. The canal is still under construction and not yet open to barges.

The cause of the break has not been determined, but police said the dike may have burst under the pressure of water flowing into the section for the first time in a test.

Baptist Homes Officers Named

WINSTON-SALEM — The Board of Trustees of the North Carolina Baptist Homes, Inc. held one of its meetings here recently.

The body is comprised of 20 trustees from throughout the state and are elected by the Baptist State Convention.

A Ceremony Devoted To Peace

It was one of the greatest ceremonies dedicated to peace in all history.

There on the White House lawn Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin signed the treaty to end fighting between the two Middle Eastern nations.

It ended 30 years of hostilities and it is designed to bring friendship between two peoples whose animosities stretch back thousands of years.

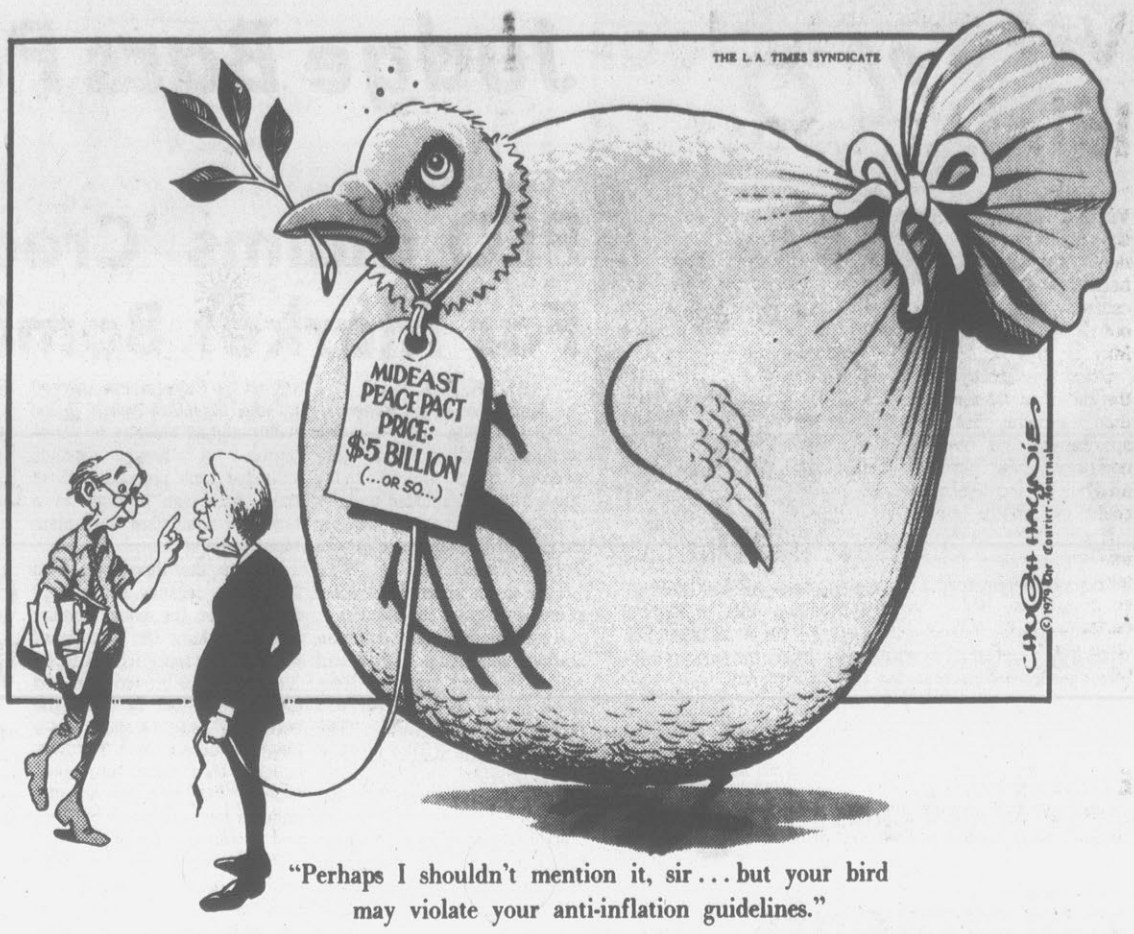

There are some who believe that the treaty will not hold, that it is merely a scrap of paper which can be denounced at any time. That is true, and there have been treaties throughout history which proved to be meaningless.

To say this one is not significant, however, would be to say that one country or the other was negotiating in bad faith. We don't believe for a moment that is the case. Development of the treaty was too difficult, and its negotiation took too many months. Both President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin had to be sincere; otherwise it is inconceivable that they would have put so much time, effort and personal prestige into it.

The peace treaty between Egypt and Israel is a great diplomatic achievement and a huge part of the credit has to go to President Carter, who put his personal prestige on the line in order to bring it about. The stalled peace talks required the intervention of the president of the United States, and when necessary, President Carter traveled to Cairo and Tel Aviv to bring this dream about.

It is possible that hostilities could resume between Egypt and Israel. It is just as possible that the treaty between the two countries can become the model for treaties between Israel and other Arab nations. Certainly exploring this possibility is the next logical step.

Israeli technology and Arab oil wealth could be the catalyst for Middle Eastern growth that might bring about a comfortable way of life for all peoples of that area.

"Perhaps I shouldn't mention it, sir . . . but your bird may violate your anti-inflation guidelines."

Red Tape Jungle Nears Danger Point

President Carter is calling for legislation to streamline the federal regulatory agencies.

". . .We have acted as if we could throw another law or another rule at every problem in our society without thinking seriously about the consequences."

That is so true, and the result has been a jungle of governmental red tape that now reaches the point of endangering individual rights.

It is past time to disentangle all this.

Television Influence

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The battle continues to rage over television, and the effect it has on our lives.

Much has been said about violence on the tube, about sex, and the current vogue has to do with advertising of candy and sugary foods for kids.

On either side, the experts can draw down an impressive array of statistics and research findings in the field of human behavior to prove whatever point serves a particular interest best.

On violence, it is said viewing it makes children more aggressive; causes them to hit without knowing it can hurt; and in one widely publicized case blamed for a murder.

But violence can give people an outlet for frustrations in an acceptable way; educate as to the harm violence can cause, and besides, we older folks survived some violent western movies.

Of sex on the tube, the researchers ponder whether it stereotypes; whether naughty talk and jiggling is really understood by youngsers; if explicit sex might not help teach acceptable sexuality.

Reason

A voice of reason emerges from the furor when Eli A. Rubinstein, research professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, addresses the situation.

Rubinstein is former assistant director at the National Institute of Mental Health, was vice chairman of the Surgeon General's Scientific Advisory Committee, and co-edited five volumes of research reports resulting from that program. He continues research in television and social behavior, with a particular concern for relating research to policy.

It is time, Rubinstein is convinced, for all concerned to get together and reach some important conclusions on the future of television.

"Television is now a dominant voice in American life. It is a formidable teacher of children. Its healthy future should be the interest and responsibility of all of us", he writes in a recent issue of "American Scientist".

Rubinstein says, in effect, that television is demonstrably a major influence on how people think and feel and behave. Research findings may be arguable as to specific responses, but the tube is clearly the dominant force in children's lives, consuming more time than even formal classroom training.

BILL NOBLITT

"Indeed, all the statistics on television viewing from earliest childhood through age 18 show that no other daily activity, with the exception of sleeping, is so clearly dominant", Robinstein reports.

Yet in spite of all the research which has gone before, nothing has been done to turn television into the positive teaching force it could be in society.

Improve

Social scientists, network interests, the public, and the government continue at odds over issues rather than pulling together to build common approaches to making television better.

"A whole new series of new populations of television viewers await the benefits of a constructive examination of the way television influences our lives," Rubinstein argues. Older people, institutionalized children or mental patients, others could benefit. "Careful study may provide insights into how this leisure-time activity can be converted into a more meaningful part of the total therapeutic program of the institution."

Likewise, Sesame Street proves that television can teach children while holding their voluntary attention and is a clear example of the positive potential of television translated into performance, Rubenstein points out.

In the documented and scholarly publication, Rubinstein explores the numerous research programs of the past and those now underway before concluding that now is the time to pull together and implement positive change.

Orphaned By Austerity

WASHINGTON — Sen. Alan Cranston of California last week abandoned his proposed Child Care Act of 1979, leaving the bill orphaned in committee. This must have been a painful decision on the senator's part, for he had worked hard on his bill and no one questions his devotion to the cause of child welfare. It was a right decision all the same.

The senator recognized in his statement of defeat that the times simply are not right for significant expansion of the federal government. "The mood of the 96th Congress and of the American public," he said, "is very negative toward proposals for new federal programs at this time regardless of social need and regardless of cost effectiveness."

"My bill", he added, "is a victim of these austere times."

Cranston's measure would have created an elaborate program of grants to state agencies, licensed child-care providers, data collection and evaluation, information and referral services, and "meaningful parental involvement." His day-care centers were to have a nice "economic mix of children enrolled." Advisory panels, federal standards, training grants, threats to withhold grants to non-complying states — the bill was in the classic tradition of dewy-eyed liberalism.

What would all this have cost? The senator said he had intended to ask only $90 million for the first year and $150 million for the second — mere pocket change. But Cranston knows, and his Senate colleagues know, and everyone who was not born yesterday well knows that the costs of such care, once such a program got revved up, would swiftly mount to the billions. The examples of food stamps and disability payments should be instructive in this regard.

The senator's reading of "the mood of the American public" strikes me as exactly right. The tides of expansive liberalism have run out. This is not to say that a tide of resurgent conservatism is rolling in — I see no signs of that — but when the senator wets a finger to the cool winds of austerity, he correctly reads the breeze. Thank you, Howard Jarvis.

In a less elegant metaphor, I think the country has had a bellyful. The senator's own field of child care provides an example. When the White House sent an assistant secretary of welfare to torpedo the Cranston bill, we heard an eye-popping catalog of the federal measures already in effect. The taxpayers already are spending upwards of $2.3 billion a year for these purposes. The taxpayers already are looking after nearly seven million children.

It is astounding. There already are federal programs for working parents, poor and moderate-income parents, minority and majority parents, and one- and-two-parent households. The Carter administration has requested additional funds for Head Start, for improved child welfare services, and for something called Title XX. Under Title XX, $800 million was spent in fiscal '77 to purchase child care for 800,000 children — including children from families with incomes up to $15,000.

This is not all. The Department of Agriculture spends $120 million in tax funds on food for children in day-care centers. The Appalachian Region Commission funds demonstration projects. In 1976, it was testified, 2.7 million taxpayers claimed credits of $458 million for the subsidized care of 4 million children.

Query Cancer Tests

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Standard animal and tissue culture tests used to spot cancer-causing chemicals in the environment are so unpredictable they may be unreliable, scientists at an American Cancer Society seminar warned.

The scientists said Monday that test results could vary widely depending on the type of experimental animal used or the dose of carcinogen, or cancer-causing substance.

One researcher, Dr. Liisa Prehn of Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine, said that when she injected six different strains of mice with a carcinogen, she found that the strain that developed the most tumors at high doses had the least number of tumors at low doses — and vice versa.

She said it was possible the results stemmed from differences in the natural body defenses against cancer in the different strains of mice.

Although her study was limited to highly inbred strains of mice, Ms. Prehn said it raised questions about whether the human response to chemicals could be studied in a single strain of experimental animal.

Another researcher, Dr. Eliezer Huberman of Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee, said one chemical that causes tumors in mouse cells could, under some circumstances, halt tumor growth in human cells.

"A tissue extract is not a man and a rat is not a man. You can suspect something (based on such tests) but do you ban something on suspicion?" asked Dr. Bea Singer of the University of California at Berkeley.

The cancer-causing effects of many suspected carcinogens, like saccharin, are too weak to study in humans. Scientists must resort to tests with experimental animals, with cells growing in a tissue culture, or with a purely chemical means to determine whether a substance is dangerous.

Other Editors Say Leave Him Alone

(Gastonia Gazette)

The world of Ray Samuel Brown could come crashing down around him almost any time if North Carolina insists that it wants him back.

Brown is a fugitive, an escaped convict. He fled from North Carolina eight years ago, made his home in California, started a new life.

Since then he has led a good life; stayed out of trouble, got married and has two step-children.

Brown was serving a 10-year-sentence for breaking and entering at Asheville's Craggy prison unit when, one day in 1970 he was given weekend leave to attend church services with his parents.

He never returned.

He said he didn't return because of pressure within prison to commit murder. That pressure, he said, came when one of his codefendants, who had turned state's eveidence, was transferred into his unit.

Brown explained that it is the code of prisoners not to permit informers to live among them. He said he was going to have to kill that man, and he didn't want to do that.

So he slipped away and never came back.

Surely, North Carolina will not act to bring back this man who obviously has found the right road in life. What good would it do to bring him back now and put him in prison? Whatever his debt to society, he has paid it. He has proved through his own rehabilitation that he deserves to be given another chance.

We say to the governor of North Carolina: Give Brown that chance. Pardon him or commute his sentence. Let the man continue the life he has been living.

It is the only human thing to do.

INSIDE REPORT

No Wage-Price Controls

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — While the business community awaits imposition of mandatory wage and price controls, the hard fact is that President Carter and his top advisers did not even discuss the subject during their March 19 economic strategy conference at Camp David.

"It didn't come up, because there's nobody in the administration who is for controls," one cabinet member told us. Actually, there are some officials who would welcome wage-price curbs, but they are at lower and middle levels of the administration. Carter's senior economic advisers are unanimously opposed to them, mainly on grounds that they will not work for long.

That leaves the Carter anti-inflation program high and dry. All agree that voluntary restraint is failing. But there is no will to tighten up any more on the budget or the money supply. So, at Camp David, amid much wailing by cabinet members about greedy corporations padding their profits, there were no new solutions.

A footnote: Three cabinet members formed a coalition at Camp David to urge a new departure in energy policy. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal joined Energy Secretary James Schlesinger in pressing for decontrol of oil prices.

Non-Favorite Son

Adding to increasing difficulties experienced by Rep. Jack Kemp in national politics, an effort to launch him as New York's favorite-son presidential candidate has been stillborn.

The favorite son idea was broached to Kemp by Nassau County chairman Joseph Margiotta, perhaps the most powerful figure in the party's post-Rockefeller era, and state chairman Bernard Kilbourn. Kemp as favorite son would have served the purposes of both the state party leaders and of Kemp. For the New York Republicans, it would have kept their huge delegation united. For Kemp, it would have given his longshot presidential prospects an immense boost.

Beyond that, it would have removed the possibility of a jarring New York Republican primary for the Senate between Sen. Jacob Javits and

Strength For Today

BEWARE THE AVALANCHE

Two men recently started an avalanche high up in the snow-covered peaks of the Alps in order to take a dramatic motion picture of the event. Unfortunately they were unable to get out of the way of the onrushing snow in time, and lost their lives as a result. They had started something which turned out to be much bigger than they intended — something they could not control.

This situation is typical of much that happens in the lives of most of us. Without realizing it, we start something which gets ahead of us. Perhaps it is tolerance of some little moral weakness which at last involves us in serious trouble. Or it may be a streak of laziness which grows until it casts a pall of lethargy over our lives. Some people cannot govern their tongues when they are angry. In a moment of irritation the petulant or impatient word starts a chain reaction which ends in a quarrel, or worse, a lasting feud.

Avalanches are dangerous. Never precipitate them.

Cleveland Status Is Unclear

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Before Cleveland's default, no one could say with certainty what the city's financial condition was, or if it could meet its payrolls. And animosity raged among the mayor, city council and business community.

Now, 102 days later, that's all still true.

The only tangible signs of the financial crisis are higher payroll taxes, approved in a special election Feb. 27, and default memorabilia.

There are default T-shirts, with slogans such as "Default's Not Mine. I Only Live Here!" and "Cleveland — You've Got To Be Tough!" as well as default postcards, songs and even square-inch packages of Cleveland dirt offered for sale.

The Greater Cleveland Growth Association, formerly the Chamber of Commerce, says the city's economy is thriving and that nearly seven out of every 10 Cleveland companies surveyed indicated plans to expand within the next few years. Cleveland boosts that it has more corporate headquarters than any other U.S. city except New York or Chicago.

Cleveland became the first major U.S. city to default since the Depression after it failed to pay six local banks when $14 million in municipal notes matured on Dec. 15.

Outspoken Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich says the earliest the city can repay the bankers is July.

The banks and other private creditors of the city are remaining patient.

The only insistent creditors have been government units. A state pension fund for police and firefighters seized funds due to the city earlier this year when Cleveland failed to make $5.4 million in contributions. And Cuyahoga County officials are threatening to sue Cleveland to collect more than $5 million in debts.

Meanwhile, the Ohio General Assembly is considering measures to restore the city to solvency.

By the time the legislative hearings ended, Kucinich's finance director acknowledged city debts of $93.5 million, but said they would be met over a period of two years.

"We as taxpayers still have no clearer picture of where the city stands than we did last Dec. 15," M. Brock Weir, chairman of Cleveland Trust, the city's largest bank, said last week.

Tempers often have flared.

Kucinich has attacked the banks, business community, city council leaders and even Gov. James A. Rhodes, alleging a conspiracy to turn over control of the city to greedy corporate interests.

"The city of Cleveland has been put on the CEI-Cleveland Trust torture rack and until we yield they will keep beating us," Kucinich said shortly before the February election.

In that election voters also overwhelmingly decided to retain the city's municipal electric utility, a position advocated by Kucinich.

VEPCO Nuclear Plant Idle At Least To May

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. says its Surry nuclear plant, ordered shut down two weeks ago because of an apparently faulty coolant piping design, will be out of operation at least until May.

Officials originally had hoped the cut-off would not last more than a month, but a Vepco spokesman said Monday the company now knows the analysis of the piping system could take months to complete.

If the Surry shutdown lasts into the summer, when electricity demand is high, the company said there may be curtailments of service if its other generating plants cannot take up the slack.

It will take until May for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to make a preliminary evaluation of the company's analysis of the piping system, Vepco vice president W. C. Spencer said. He said a detailed evaluation could take months longer.

But Vepco will ask the NRC to allow interim operation of the plant while the latter evaluation and any necessary modifications to the plant are made, Spencer said.

Don Neighbors, NRC's project manager for Surry, said Monday he has not seen any interim operation plans and "can't say if they would be approved. We can't make any commitments until we see what they can give us."

The NRC ordered the shutdown March 13. It if does not approve the request, Spencer said "Vepco would have inadequate generating capacity this summer and curtailments may be required."

Vepco has no assurance it can buy enough power from neighboring utilities if Surry remains out during the summer, he added.

Spencer's announcement followed a meeting among Vepco officials, NRC representatives and an official of Stone & Webster Engineering Corp., which built Surry and designed the possibly faulty piping system.

Surry and three other nuclear plants built by Stone & Webster were ordered closed when it was discovered one of the other three plants had been designed with an improper computer model for the auxiliary cooling system.

Thomas O'Connor, Stone & Webster's project manager for Surry, said at Monday's meeting his company will need to make between 75 and 100 computer tests to determine whether the Surry station can withstand an earthquake.

The results of these tests must be analyzed by the NRC before Surry can resume operation.

Despite the faulty model, Vepco officials have maintained since the shutdown that the piping systems were constructed with a wide margin of error that should protect the plant against earthquakes.

Besides a possible shortage of power, the extended estimate for Surry's shutdown means higher fuel bills for utility customers.

Vepco has estimated it will cost about $11 million per month more to replace the less expensive fuel at Surry with oil and coal at its other plants.

The company has said it will ask the State Corporation Commission for permission to pass on the additional cost to its consumers.

A STORM VICTIM — This pecan tree on a farm near Chocowinity in Beaufort County was a victim of strong spring winds that swept an extended area of eastern North Carolina last Friday night and early Saturday morning. Heavy rains and electrical storms accompanied the winds, which toppled a number of trees in Beaufort, Pamlico, Craven and other eastern counties. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Eye Nuclear Plant Approval In Davie

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. hopes to have final approval by early summer to construct a nuclear power station in Davie County, according to a company spokesman.

The staff of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has recommended that a construction permit be granted Duke for the $4 billion, 3,840-megawatt plant on the banks of the Yadkin River about 17 miles from Winston-Salem.

Company spokesman Angie Howard said she hopes the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board and the Commission will approve the recommendation by early summer, allowing Duke to begin soliciting bids and possibly begin construction in 1980.

A panel of five scientists commissioned by the NRC has concluded that none of the alternate sites for the plant is superior to the Yadkin location.

In a brief submitted to the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, the NRC staff said the review of alternate sites, generic safety issues and environmental issues has been adequate.

The brief suggests that a research and development program be carried out during construction to evaluate any remaining safety issues.

Earlier this month, persons opposed to the Yadkin location filed a brief stating that the alternate site study had not been adequate and asked the board to reopen the issue. The board has not made a decision on that request.

Kemp. Margiotta believes Javits will seek a fifth term, and he opposes a challenge from Kemp. Although there was no deal offered Kemp of presidential favorite-son support if he keeps out of the Senate primary, that's the way it would have worked.

Kemp was agreeable, but some state party leaders were not — especially the Republican legislative leaders, state Sen. Warren Anderson and state Assemblyman James Emery. Margiotta believes a favorite son must have unanimous support which Kemp clearly does not. "I don't think it'll get off the ground," Margiotta told us.

Connally Campaigning

John B. Connally's first majop push for the Jewish vote will be made in New York City April 5 when, addressing a select audience invited by the American Jewish Committee, he proposes a long-term Saudi-Israeli entente.

Although members of the Jewish establishment have soured on President Carter, they have misgivings about most of his Republican challengers — especially Connally. His ties with Arab oil through his Houston law office do not set well with Jewish voters.

Consequently, the April 5 meeting will test whether Connally can overcome such suspicions. Connally has been talking, somewhat vaguely, of closer U.S. military ties with Israel coinciding with efforts to bring oil-producing Saudi Arabia into that military hookup. If he can clarify this concept for a well-informed Jewish audience, it would constitute a major political breakthrough in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Only 75 Operatives

Another chapter in the sad story of Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) decline is the total deterioration of its once formidable paramilitary force.

At one point in the early 1970s, the CIA had over 2,000 paramilitary operatives under contract. Besides serving as advisers for a low-cost, highly successful military operation in Laos (which included no drafted U.S. soldiers), they had the capability of quietly moving anywhere in the world.

Today, the once famed CIA "secret army" consists of 75 men. Like the rest of the agency's covert operations, the paramilitary arm is inoperative.

of this commitment", said Assistant Secretary Arabella Martinez, "we do not believe that another categorical program for child care is warranted at this time."

Precisely so. At some point the fed-up taxpayers have every right to cry out, at the top of their lungs, "enough". The price of paternalism comes too high. We cannot afford so much solicitude. Thanks to federal intervention in the area of hospital care, the cost of going to a hospital has soared out of sight. Thanks to federal edicts on automobile design, cars cost more than ever and the air is merely polluted in a different way. We are cosseted half to death by a government that excessively loves our safety, our health, or diets and our dear children's delicate little psyches. Aaarghh!

Meaning no offense to a very able and decent fellow, I rejoice that Cranston has dumped his bill. A thousand other bills deserve the same fate.

Gov. Brown To New Hampshire

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who has said he is "closer" to announcing for a 1980 presidential bid, plans to fly to New Hampshire next week to testify for a balanced budget measure there.

The Democratic governor's press office said Monday that Brown would appear before a legislative committee hearing April 2 in New Hampshire, the site of the nation's first presidential primary next year.

"He's had a long-standing invitation to testify from the leader of the New Hampshire Assembly" on balancing the federal budget, Brown's office said.

While Brown has not specifically said he is running, he has been edging closer to an announcement in recent weeks.

Oil-Use Decline In Pitt Schools

According to George Laws, Pitt County Schools Energy Control Officer, school oil use has decreased by 32,094 gallons as of March 16, totaling a 23.9 percent decrease in a year's period.

Bethel Elementary School has decreased its oil consumption 35.7 percent, leading the 12 schools which use oil in the county system.

Ayden-Grifton, North Pitt and D. H. Conley all showed significant electrical use decreases in February. However, Farmville Central had a 20 percent increase in electrical use during February.

Nine out of 16 county schools showed increases in electrical consumption during February. The lowest increase was at Ayden Middle with a five percent increase, to a 51 percent increase at W. H. Robinson. Laws explained that Robinson had recently increased its electrical load.

Electrical use at the 16 county schools reflected a 2.5 percent decrease in cost February over the past year.

Most Legislation On Local Matters

By Rep. Sam D. Bundy

Another week of a lot of routine legislation being passed. Over one half the bills on the calendar each day still deal with local matters. Since no more local bills can be introduced, these bills should be processed and out of the way in another week or so. More local bills have been introduced this year than ever before in my five terms. A bill of some importance to towns of 7,500 and under has been passed by the House, which will allow town officials to bid on purchases made by the town so long as it is done in open meetings with the official having no vote and a record of such matters be posted for public scrutiny. A lot of small towns were having to go to other towns for purchases because, if there were only one store or gas station in a town and that place of business was owned by a town official, the town could not do business with him.

The pros and cons of the proposed Math and Science School were debated in a public hearing on Wednesday, Mar. 21. The auditorium which holds 300 people was full.

It was my pleasure and privilege to attend in the Governor's Office the unveiling of a portrait of Dr. Leo Jenkins presented by the State of New Jersey to the State of North Carolina. The picture will hang in the East Carolina School of Medicine. On Wednesday morning 10 Pitt County Teen Democrats with their adviser, Mr. Donald Hicks, visited the Legislative Building to see the Legislature in action. Rep. Horton Rountree and I discussed with them and answered their questions with respect to the General Assembly in hour long session. A very sharp group.

See you next week.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning from the central Rockies and western Plains through most of the northern Plains. Showers are due from the central Gulf to the upper Mississippi and rain is forecast from northern Georgia to the Midwest. Cold weather is expected for northern states and mild weather for the southern tier. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

An area of weak low pressure is approaching the western part of the state, heralding partly cloudy skies over the mountains today and throughout the rest of the state Wednesday. Isolated showers were a possibility in the mountains.

Another threat of showers is predicted for the western portion of the state by Wednesday night and Thursday. The threat likely will prevail across the state Friday and Saturday.

High temperatures were expected to range from the middle 50s to the middle 60s except in the northwest mountains where the 40s were expected.

Lows tonight will be mainly in the 30s. Wednesday will be a little warmer with temperatures mainly in the 60s.

Temperatures Monday reached the mid 50s and mid 60s in some areas. Hickory was one of the warmer spots with a high of 62. On the other hand, Boone reported a high for the day of only 29 degrees.

Grandfather Mountain recorded a new low for the date of 9 degrees, 3 degrees below the previous mark for a March 26.

See Doors Open To Executions

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The Supreme Court has now, in stark reality, opened the doors to the execution chambers of this country," says a group that opposes capital punishment.

Reacting to the court's denial of a Florida death row inmate's ultimate appeal Monday, the American Civil Liberties Union said John Spenkelink's "forthcoming execution ... will very likely be the first in a long series of legally sanctioned killings."

The rhetoric, although somewhat premature in Spenkelink's case, seems to reflect a growing frustration and anxiety within a national alliance of lawyers opposed to the death penalty.

Slowly but inexorably, the nation since 1976 has been moving toward a time when most states will be back in the business of executing some prisoners.

Today, nearly 500 men and women in 32 states are awaiting death by electrocution, gassing, lethal injection, firing squad or hanging.

The case of John Spenkelink, a 30-year-old drifter from Buena Vista, Calif., who murdered a traveling companion, may affect them all.

"Spenkelink's case was a major engagement," Boger said. "It is a defeat not taken lightly because in it we raised constitutional arguments as compelling as those in any other pending case."

No date has been set for Spenkelink's death in an electric chair known as "Old Sparky." He had been denied clemency by former Gov. Reuben Askew, but newly elected Gov. Bob Graham has asked the Florida Parole and Probation Commission to restudy the case.

The commission's final recommendation is expected within two months.

The Supreme Court on July 2, 1976, said death may be a constitutional punishment for convicted murderers.

Since then, however, only one U.S. prisoner has been executed. Gary Gilmore, who asked authorities to kill him rather than appeal his murder conviction, was shot by a Utah firing squad in January 1977.

In Alabama, convicted murderer John Evans III may become the nation's second execution in 12 years. He has asked lawyers trying to keep him alive to drop all appeals of his death sentence. He is scheduled to be electrocuted April 6.

But the last execution of a prisoner who did not want to die was 12 years ago, when murderer Luis Jose Monge died in Colorado's gas chamber.

In a separate case Monday, the nation's highest court agreed to decide whether police officers who obtain a warrant to search a public place may search anyone who happens to be there.

The justices are to determine whether an Illinois law giving police such powers violates the Constitution's protection against unreasonable searches.

Avers Family Is Endangered

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The American family is seriously threatened by declining interest in religion and increasing loss of spiritual and moral values, says pollster George Gallup Jr.

While surveys show levels of religious belief and practice to be much higher in the United States than in other nations, churches face a major challenge in terms of developing "mature Christians," Gallup told a Baptist conference in Orlando Monday night.

"While the American gives the family an overwhelming vote of confidence, there can be no denying the fact that the family is seriously threatened by forces on all sides," Gallup said.

The divorce rate has doubled in 10 years, discipline is the No. 1 school problem, and drug and alcohol abuse among teenagers are contributing heavily to the breakdown of the family unit, he said.

"The overwhelming majority of teen-agers have developed a whole new set of attitudes toward sex which could have a very deleterious effect on family life in the immediate future," said Gallup, whose Institute of Public Opinion recently joined with the Princeton Religion Research Center in conducting a national survey on the "Unchurched American."

Speaking to some 700 participants at a seminar of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, Gallup said only 53 percent of Americans polled said religion is "very important" to them.

This is down from 75 percent in 1952 and 70 percent in 1965, he said.

But survey findings show some cause for encouragement in that 45 percent of parents say religion in their home has strengthened family relationships "a great deal" and 32 percent say religion has helped their children "a great deal" in dealing with the problems in their lives, he said.

PEER Organizing Effort Is Launched

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Organization efforts are now underway in the Kinston-Greenville areas on the part of PEER (Project on Equal Education Rights). PEER is concerned with opening up opportunities for both sexes in the public school system.

The organizing effort is the first leg of a North Carolina project initiated by PEER, which has its headquarters in Washington, D. C. Following an initial meeting a couple of weeks ago, PEER will be holding an additional meeting and workshop in the Kinston-Greenville area early in April.

To date, representatives of PEER have met with local people in 14 communities throughout North Carolina, and coordinators have been chosen for each of the communities

The Kinston-Greenville area coordinator is Hattie Loftin, who can be reached at 523-1433. The next area meeting will be held from 5 to 10 p.m. on April 3 at Lenoir Community College in the Student Union Building.

Beth Comarow, coordinator of PEER projects statewide, notes of this and similar meetings in North Carolina: "The workshop is to kick-off the project and is only for one day. But the project will be going on throughout the spring and might pick up again in the fall."

Project-Work By Aycock Pupils

Eight graders in Mrs. Faye Creegan's social studies classes are currently working on projects for The Tar Heel Junior Historian Contest, sponsored by the North Carolina Museum of History Associates. Among their projects are ones on famous North Carolina homes; Somerset Place, Hope Plantation, the Palmer Marsh House, St. Thomas Church and Fort Raleigh.

The ninth grade Spanish Club recently visited the El Mejicano Restaurant in New Bern, accompanied by Mrs. Sue Hochmuth and Mrs. Billie Terrell, teachers.

Forthcoming events will be the appearance of Walter Wilder, lutist and artist-in-residence at Pitt Technical Institute, and a tour of ECU's library on April 27.

Linda Taft and Gene Tripp are winners in the Reference Question of the Week Quiz; and 297 new books have been added to the school's library.

NCSA Adopts Broad Approach

WINSTON-SALEM — The performance "modules" of the North Carolina School of the Arts is adopting a broader and more intensive approach to public school information programs this spring. Faculty and student actors, dancers, theatrical designers and musicians from NCSA will conduct clinics or workshops geared to existing arts programs at individual public schools.

Among events scheduled by the module group of the NCSA School of Music will be a March 31 appearance at East of Carolina University, where they will take part in a jazz festival for public school students. This program is sponsored by the professional music fraternity Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia.

Checkmate.
The plastic check that tells everybody you're somebody.

When you want to buy something, it can seem like your check's not worth the paper it's printed on. You have to show a driver's license, credit cards, give phone numbers-sometimes even your thumbprint.

All this is not only inconvenient, it can be downright embarrassing.

That's why NCNB is introducing Checkmate, the plastic check. It lets you use your NCNB Checking Account just as easily as you use a Visa Card.

The Checkmate card goes through an imprinter just like a credit card. You sign your name, get a receipt. And you're on your way. It's that simple.

You can use Checkmate wherever you see a Visa sign, at 2½ million places, all over town, all over the country and even all over the world. What's more, you can also "cash a check" at any NCNB Banking Machine across North Carolina.

So, if you have a Checking Account with us, ask us about adding Checkmate. If you don't have an NCNB Checking Account, come see us. Soon.

NCNB Checkmate. It's the kind of service that you'd expect from the bank that wants to be the best in the neighborhood.

Magic Act Makes Spartans Champions

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Coach Jud Heathcote calls it a "Matchup Zone" and can't explain how it works without a blackboard and lots of chalk.

But it succeeded where all else had failed this season ...it beat Larry Bird and Indiana State, and helped make Heathcote's Michigan State Spartans the 1978-79 NCAA basketball champions.

"We are elated," the Michigan State boss said in the wake of a 75-64 victory Monday night over the top-ranked Sycamores, defeated for only the first time in 34 games.

"I can't describe my feelings."

With Earvin Johnson scoring 12 points and Gregory Kelser nine, Michigan State carved out a 37-28 halftime lead. Then unheralded Terry Donnelly suddenly got hot to help the Spartans score the first seven points after intermission and mount a commanding 44-28 advantage with 17:18 to play.

In their unbeaten, storybook surge to the threshold of greatness, the Sycamores had trailed by as many as 11 points several times and rallied to win. But never had they been down by 16, and never had they faced "Magic" Johnson and "Special K" Kelser. And, hard as they tried to write a happy ending to what had been a fairy-tale season for them and Bill Hodges, their rookie head coach, they never got closer than six.

With 10:05 remaining and Johnson shackled with three fouls and Kelser with four, Bird muscled through the air-tight Spartan defenders to hit a short jumper and make it 52-46.

But a Johnson free throw and a Johnson bucket made it 55-46 and returned the momentum to the Spartans, who never let go of it.

At the end, Bird put his face in his hands as if to hide tears. He scored 19 points, a good game for anyone else but a dreadful night for a man who averaged almost 29 through the season and became everybody's player of the year.

"We would have one man and a half on him when he put the ball on the floor," Heathcote explained the defense of Bird. "We would have a forward on him and a guard come in to help. Our defense worked well tonight. We wanted to force the action and get into an up-tempo game."

Heathcote sounded like he was seriously worried during only one stretch in the second half.

"What hurt us most was Gregory getting in foul trouble," he said "We got cautious and conservative, but the Magic Man put us back together."

Johnson a 6-foot-8 sophomore who may bolt Michigan State to join Bird in professional basktball next season, pumped in a game-high 24 points and Kelser had 19. Donnelly, who seldom gets much attention keeping company with the likes of Johnson and Kelser, hit 5-of-5 field goals, most of them in the second half when Indiana State was making its charge, and wound up with 15 points.

"Wherever he went," said Johnson of Bird, "we had two men on him. When Greg went out we tried to slow it down and take some time off the clock. I hit a couple of baskets, then Greg came back and we got the job done."

Hodges, an obscure assistant a year ago, was philosophical in dealing with his only loss as a head coach.

"The Lord blessed us with a tremendous year," he said. "We have a great bunch of players. They never gave up. I don't think they ever will. Anyone disappointed with the success we have had this year has to be a lesser man than I am. They are a team, a unit, and a family, and I love every one of them."

Michigan State's victory gives the Big Ten Conference a rare basketball coup. With Indiana winning the National Invitation Tournament earlier this month, the Big Ten can rightfully claim to be the toughest basektball league in the country.

"We're very pleased, of course," said Commissioner Wayne Duke. "But we aren't going to beat our chest and boast because we know things like this run in cycles, and something we might say tonight will come back to haunt us."

Bird Takes Defeat Hard

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

SALT LAKE City, Utah (AP) — They were the team that nobody believed — and they died hard.

None took it harder than the year's most celebrated player, Larry Bird, after a strong, aggressive Michigan State team crushed Indiana State for the NCAA college basketball championship Monday night 75-64.

The "Bird," as his Sycamore supporters lovingly dubbed him, put up a creditable fight, lashing out with all of his 6-foot-9, 215-pound strength, but in the end he had his feathers clipped by a swarming Spartan defense.

He scored only 19 points — 10 below his season's average — and hit only one third of his shots from the field (7 of 21), a comparatively poor showing for the man rated the best all-around collegian of the decade.

He was distraught afterward. He shunned the traditional post-game interview.

After the final whistle sounded, the "Bird," his shoulders sagging and his head bowed, went to the bench and sat down. There he covered his blond head with his massive hands — "hands big as toilet seats," according to DePaul Coach Ray Meyer — and later sobbed into a towel.

Bill Hodges, Indiana State's rookie coach, apologized publicly for his All America star's failure to face the customary post-mortem.

"When you play as hard and as intensely as Larry has, and lose," Hodges said, "you have to have emotion. For Larry, it wasn't just the end of a game. It was the end of a career."

It also marked the dawn of a new career. Now Bird can sign a contract — possibly in the millions — as a pro in the National Basketball Association. The Boston Celtics presently have his rights.

Nearly an hour after the game, Indiana State's sports information director, Ed McKee, emerged from the locker room with a sheet of mimeographed quotes from the dejected Player of the Year.

"They played very tough defense," Bird acknowledged. "The ball wouldn't drop for us and we missed too many free throws ... We gave the best we had. We just didn't hit the shots tonight."

It was a crushing disappointment for a team that was an orphan at the start of the season, figured to finish no better than fourth in its own Missouri Valley Conference. Yet it proceeded to win a record 33 straight games, confounding all the critics and the faint-hearted.

Before the season started the team lost its head coach, Bob King, who suffered a heart attack and Hodges, with no head coaching experience, was thrust into the breach.

The Sycamores, undaunted, began bowling over foe after foe but nobody took them seriously.

"A weak schedule."

"A one-man team."

"The country's largest high school."

Some of the jabs carried sting and even Bird, the All-American, was not saved from abuse. He became inaccessible to the press.

Indiana State continued its unbeaten streak while the recognized powers — UCLA, North Carolina, Duke, Michigan State, Notre Dame — suffered losses.

It was not until late in the season that the team reached the top of The Associated Press poll — grudgingly in some quarters. But they hung on and finished No. 1. They were the only team in the NCAA Final Four which hadn't lost at least five games.

The final game was a physical one. The players wrestled under the baskets. There were bad spills. Bird, harassed on offense by Michigan State's formidable "matchup zone," was a bear on defense with 13 rebounds and a half-dozen steals.

The Indiana State fans were the most vociferous and demonstrative of the tournament, raining the arena with taunts and tissue paper.

Their chief target was Earvin "Magic" Johnson, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, who scored 24 points and harassed Bird all evening.

It was a bad evening for bird-watching. It was ripe for the "Magic Show."

Rampettes Win Track Event

Rose High School's girls' track team remained unbeaten in competition so far this spring as the Rampettes rolled to an 80-51 victory over Wilson Beddingfield yesterday.

Rose won eight of the 13 individual events, and took two of the three relays during the afternoon.

The Rampettes had two double winners. Carol Lee won the triple jump and the 440-yard dash, while Laurie Smith took both of the hurdle events.

The Rampettes travel to Bertie on Wednesday for their next outing.

Rose In Golf Win

KINSTON — Rose High School's golfers rolled to their fifth and sixth victories of the year yesterday, easily downing Kinston and New Hanover.

In a match played at the Falling Creek Country Club, the Rampants finished with a team score of 305, easily outdistancing the Vikings of Kinston, second with 323. New Hanover finished with 341.

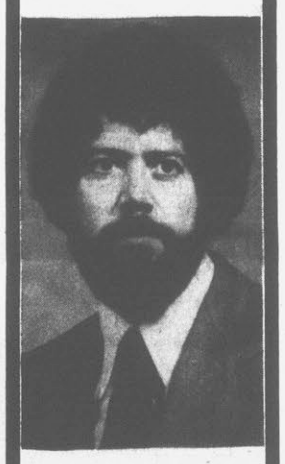

Jack Mann led Rose with a 70, while Greg House had 75, and Mike Moye and Tom Brewer each had 80.

Kinston scorers included Bill Bear, 77; Mike Marshall, 80; Bobby Cray, 80; and Jim Rockenhauser, 86.

New Hanover scorers were Eric Younts, 77; Eddie McCabe, 86; Bobby Harrell, 87; and Anthony Bordeaux, 91.

Rose plays host to Wayne Country Day School on Thursday at Brook Valley.

Johnson, Thrilled Over Title, Hasn't Decided On His Future

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Magic Man, Earvin Johnson, had played with bewitching grace, but there was magic to spare in his smile as he sat down to talk about winning it all.

There was a basketball net hanging like a laurel around his neck, and nothing to do but savor the sweets of Michigan State's NCAA basketball title.

It was Johnson who had scored a game-high 24 points, Johnson who had picked up his flagging teammates in the second half, Johnson who had scored a crucial four-point play, and, most of all, it was Johnson who sent Indiana State to its first defeat in 34 games and the Spartans to their first national basketball championship.

The talk at the post-game news conference was of tactics and missed chances; how the Spartans had defensed Sycamore All-American Larry Bird, what Gregory Kelser's foul trouble had meant to Michigan State.

But there was the Magic Man smiling that it-couldn't-have-been-any-other-way smile.

"The coach gave us a job to do on Larry Bird and all we had to do is go out and do it. He gave us a great game plan," said Johnson, who guarded Bird for part of the game.

Kelser, Johnson's teammate and off-court buddy, picked up his fourth foul early in the second half and the Spartans, hitting on only one giant cylinder instead of two, began to falter.

"When Greg went out we tried to control the ball and take some time off the clock," Johnson said. "And by doing that we kind of lost the momentum for a little while. So coach told me I had to take charge and do a lot more things on offense ... So I hit a couple of baskets and Greg came back in and we got the job done."

Johnson, a 6-foot-8 sophomore, had barely sat down when he was asked the question that will continue to be asked in coming days. Will he turn immediately to professional basketball or return to Michigan State in the fall?

"Is this my last college game? I still don't know. Am I going to apply for hardship? I still don't know.

Pirates Given Edge In National East

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

It was a wonderful idea for the Philadelphia Phillies to package $3.2 million of owner Ruly Carpenter's petty cash to sign free agent Pete Rose.

On the surface, Rose can add many important elements to an already imposing Phillie lineup which has won three straight National League East titles. There is, however, a fatal flaw in the plan.

Pete Rose can't pitch.

It is an in-and-out mound staff complicated by injuries that casts a long shadow over Philadelphia's hopes for repeating as NL East kingpins. And the team most likely to succeed if the Phillies can't overcome the shortage of arms is the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates came within a whisker of catching the Roseless Phillies a year ago and it could be Philadelphia doing the catching this time around. After those two top cats, Montreal, St. Louis and Chicago are bunched in the middle of the National League East. Then come the lowly New York Mets, whose reaction to two straight last-place finishes has been a stand-pat position, apparently in an effort to find out whether the same mediocre lineup can make it three in a row.

1978 Finish — Philadephia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Montreal, St. Louis, New York.

1979 Finish — Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Montreal, Chicago, St. Louis, New York.

Rose has spent spring training learning the intricacies of playing first base, and Manager Danny Ozark has spent it trying to keep Philadelphia's fragile pitching staff intact. A freak biking accident left Larry Christenson with a fractured collarbone. Promising Jim Wright threw a pitch in an exhibition game and fractured his arm. Dick Ruthven complained of a tender arm that sent shivers up and down the Phillie hierarchy.

Steve Carlton remains the mainstay of the staff with Ruthven (if he's healthy) and Randy Lerch behind him. Ron Reed may leave the bullpen to bolster the starters. That leaves Tug McGraw and Warren Brusstar in relief.

Pennants have been won with a bullpen, and Pittsburgh thinks the addition of Enrique Romo, acquired from Seattle, gives the Pirates the reliever they need to go over the top.

He'll reduce the work load which Kent Tekulve carried almost single-handedly last year. Add Grant Jackson and Bruce Kison, and the Pirates have solid backup pitching behind the starting rotation of Bert Blyleven, John Candelaria, Don Robinson, Jerry Reuss, Jim Rooker, and Jim Bibby.

The attack is constructed around two-time NL batting champion Dave Parker in right field, 38-year-old Willie Stargell at first base and speedsters Omar Moreno (the NL base-stealing leader) in center field and Frank Taveras at shortstop. Manager Chuck Tanner hopes second baseman Rennie Stennett is completely mended from the fractured leg that shattered his 1978 season. Phil Garner or Dale Berra will play third with Bill Robinson or John Milner in left and Ed Ott catching. Free agent pickup Lee Lacy can be a useful handyman.

Chicago figures it made a steal of a deal with the Phillies with the acquisition of catcher Barry Foote, second baseman Ted Sizemore and outfieder Jerry Martin. All will be regulars for Manager Herman Franks' club, coming over in exchange for Trillo, outfielder Greg Gross and catcher Dave Rader.

Bobby Murcer and Dave Kingman flank Martin in the outfield. Bill Buckner, the NL's No. 2 hitter last season, is at first base with Sizemore at second, Ivan DeJesus at short and Steve Ontiveros at third and Foote catching.

Rick Reuschel, Ray Burris, Mike Krukow and Dennis Lamp are Franks' starters and the bullpen is built around Bruce Sutter, who is the NL's best reliever. Donnie Moore, Willie Hernandez, Lynn McGlothen and Ken Holtzman can also contribute.

Montreal has the best young outfield in the league, perhaps in the majors, with Warren Cromartie, Andre Dawson, and Ellis Valentine, and the Expos did some important off-season work patching some other spots, primarily the pitching staff.

Two Teams Tie For Golf Title

Jerry Craver of Golf View Hills in Fayetteville captured low pro honors in a Pro-Ladies Golf Tournament held yesterday at Brook Valley Country Club.

Craver finished the 18-holes with a two-under-par 70.

Leigh Taylor of Greenville Golf and Country Club and Dave Davis of Raleigh Country Club tied for second place with 74's, while Buzz Buzzelli of Morehead City Country Club, Bill Hooper of Gates Four in Fayetteville, Charlie Baker of Washington Yacht and Country Club, and Carl Beaman of Ouaker Neck in Trenton, tied with 75.

Mike Flack of Raleigh Country Club, Bill Howe of Morehead City Country Club and Phil Buzzelli of Minnesott Country Club, tied for the next spot with a 76.

In the pro-ladies division, there was a tie for first place. Host pro Harold Thomas, with a team including Barbara Walker, Lida Hayes Freuler, Evelyn Ward and Eloise Starling, tied with the team of pro Carl Beaman, which included Gloria Beaman, Louise Hill and Sue Banks of Quaker Neck, and Nancy Monroe of the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Both teams had a net 58.

Teams headed by Taylor, Farmville's Tom Braswell, Raleigh Cheviott Hills' Ron Warner and Craver tied for third, shooting 62's. Next was Howe's team with 64, followed by teams led by Rocky Mount Benvenue's Bill Litton, Clinton Coharie's Ed Smoot; Lumberton's Linwood Taylor, Buzz Buzzelli, Davis, Pine Lake's John Raines, Wilson's Grover Bullock, and Brook Valley's Bobby Thomas, all with 65's.

A total of 30 teams competed.

DePaul Nips Penn In OT

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — DePaul's Blue Demons had it, then they didn't.

"We made too many mistakes," said Coach Ray Meyer, "and let Penn get back into the game."

Those mistakes turned a rout into a bout Monday night, and the Blue Demons had to fight for their lives in order to post a 96-93 overtime victory over the Quakers in the national third-place game at the NCAA basketball playoffs.

"We had 15 good minutes at the start of the game," said Meyer, whose team led by as many as 23 points late in the first half. "But we made so many errors at the end of the first half that we put them back in it."

Tony Price did most of the damage for the East Regional champions, scoring 21 of his 31 points to chop DePaul's once-mountainous lead to 11 at the half, 54-43.

Then some more desultory play by the West champions made it even more interesting. Suddenly, Penn had caught up to DePaul and the teams were tied at 85 at the end of regulation, thanks to a shot by James Salters with 11 seconds left.

DePaul, though, woke up in the overtime period with high scorer Mark Aguirre hitting eight of his team-leading 34 points. Aguirre scored six of his points in one flurry to give DePaul a 94-89 lead and the ultimate winning point with 26 seconds left.

We didn't feel like playing for third place, I guess, " said Meyer. "We struggled through it, but we are happy to go home on a winning note."

Knights Gain First Victory

Greenville Christian Academy picked up its first win of the season after two losses yesterday, gaining a 12-2 victory over Goldsboro.

Goldsboro scored first, getting a run in the top of the first. Stokes walked and scored on a hit by Barron.

Then, Greenville came back with two runs in the first to take the lead for good. George Griner singled and David Hollingsworth walked. Richard Smith singled both runners in.

The Knights got two more in the second. Chuck Allen singled and Jim Laney walked. Troy Hudson then singled both in.

Greenville went on to score one in the third, two in the fourth, four in the fifth and one in the sixth before the game was halted by the ten-run rule.

Smith and Hudson each had two hits for GCA, while Bed Haddock added two.

Chuck Allen hurled a one-hitter at Goldsboro, walking seven and striking out 17.

Greenville plays host to Falls Road today.

The GCA girls also opened the softball season yesterday bowing to Goldsboro, 18-5. Details were not available.

Our Key Account wins you all kinds of Prestige.

A Key Account at First Federal is a spending account. And so much more. Because with a Key Account, you get Prestige. A Prestige Card, for instance. Use it with your personal code and set one of our 24-hour Prestige Machines to work.
It hands you cash from your Key Account, makes transfers between your Key Account and your checking or accepts your loan payment or mortgage payment. Whichever, you get a receipt on the spot.
There's Prestige for you out of town, too. Show your Prestige Card for up to $200 emergency cash at thousands of Card locations around the country. They'll also okay you check-cashing privileges.
Your Key Account is even more. It's Telephone Transfer of funds. It's 5% annual interest, compounded daily. It's a monthly transaction statement, a quarterly interest notice. It's also no-fee travelers checks, free notary service.
The nicest way to make money is to get a lot of Prestige. And you deserve both.

Launch 2 New Family Shows

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS and ABC launch new family shows this week, trying for instant audience by planting the newcomers in the time slots vacated by temporarily laid-off family hits, "The Waltons" and "Eight is Enough."

TV could certainly use some more good family shows; unfortunately, these new entries aren't very good.

ABC's effort is "The Mackenzies of Paradise Cove," born of the made-for-TV movie about a tough-skinned but kind-hearted fisherman who adopts a bunch of kids when their parents die in an accident.

Tonight's debut episode (it moves to Wednesdays next week) is certainly pretty to look at, if not much more. The series is filmed in Hawaii, and some of the scenes are almost enough to sustain the material. Almost.

Clu Gulager plays our hero, Cuda Weber, "a crusty, free-spirited operator of a fishing boat," as the network publicists describe him. I think Gulager is a graduate of the Brian Keith school of acting, where actors are taught to grunt through their noses and talk without moving their lips.

Of the orphans (there are five), all I can say is, the younger, the more tolerable. The oldest of the five are twins, Kevin (Shawn Stevens) and Bridget (Lory Walsh), a pair that behave like no 17-year-olds I've ever heard of.

CBS' entry, Thursday night, is "The Chisholms." If your kids are reluctant go to bed, put them in front of this for a few minutes. They'll beg for beddy-bye. They'll even brush their teeth.

The story is about the Oregon trail and one brave family that survived the long, arduous journey. The opening chapter shows us the Chisholms in Virginia and tells us why they opted for the Conestoga route. Their cornfield was somehow lost to their enemy-neighbors, and off they go.

Robert Preston, heading the clan, plays a Bible-quoting farmer-moonshiner who has an unexplained fascination with snakes. When his daughter-in-law dies, Preston gets mad at the preacher because he used too much from Psalms at her funeral.

So, he chases the preacher out of town with a rattlesnake. I don't know why.

Life on the Oregon trail may add some spice to this family, but judging from the opening segment, I don't think so. The Chisholms are too boring for even hostile Indians to fool with.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAR. 28, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Start putting those new ideas in effect at this time but make sure you have a definite plan of action. Contact those persons whom you would like to be associated in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to discuss your ideas with associates but do so tactfully. You can win the favor of a higher-up at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Let trusted friends know what your true goals are but soft pedal your motives. Strive for more rapport with co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you contact good friends and talk to them logically, they can be of great help to you now. Avoid a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can easily convince a higher-up to go along with a plan you have in mind. Strive for more rapport with mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go to new sites and make new contacts so that you can get the information you need. Think along happier lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to use a more modern system to handle your responsibilities properly. Show others that you are generous.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A new project you have in mind should be studied more before putting it in operation. Think along more productive lines.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handling your work more efficiently will bring you more benefits now. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have fine talents that need expression now. Make the evening a happy one but take no risks with your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can accomplish a great deal in your line of endeavor at this time if you apply yourself more. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to establish more rapport with regular allies so you can advance in career matters. Take needed health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A new plan you have in mind could bring added income in the future. Consult a financial expert for advice you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have an abundance of vitality and will be fascinated by new ideas that could lead to a prosperous future. Provide as fine an education as you can and give good training in spiritual matters. A fine sport here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Rock Star Said Planning Wed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — British rock star Eric Clapton may marry girlfriend Patti Boyd when he is in Tucson this week for a concert, a Tucson newspaper says.

The Tucson Citizen quoted the Watts Agency, a London public relations firm, as saying Clapton was planning the wedding.

"It's time for me to take the big drop," Clapton was quoted as saying as he departed London to start an American tour with the Tucson concert Wednesday night. "... Patti is already waiting for me in Arizona for me to come to the altar."

Clapton manager Alphi O'Leary, who arrived in Tucson on Sunday, would not say when or where the wedding would be and would not confirm the report that the rock star planned to marry in Tucson.

Ms. Boyd was divorced in 1977 from George Harrison, former member of the Beatles.

Harold Stassen Opens Campaign

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Harold Stassen says 1980 is "going to be my turn."

He launched his New Hampshire campaign Monday for the Republican presidential nomination, which he has sought in every primary campaign since 1948.

"There is an urgent need in America for what I can provide and this time I think I'll get the chance to prove it," he said.

The 71-year-old Stassen, a lawyer and former three-time governor of Minnesota, called for unity within the GOP but chided other GOP aspirants for "trying to turn the Republican Party into the conservative party of America."

Eleven other GOP aspirants have been campaigning in the state, some since January 1978.

Besides Stassen's losing streak as a presidential candidate, considered the longest in American politics, his political career includes two unsuccessful bids for governor of Pennsylvania, mayor of Philadelphia and a U.S. Senate seat from Minnesota.

On days when finesses aren't working, a little subtlety might achieve results that could not be equaled by straight power plays.

North-South wasted no time in getting to the spade game. At a different vulnerability, West might have been tempted to enter the auction with a takeout double, but under the existing conditions, any action by him would have shown a marked disregard for monetary considerations.

West led the king of hearts and East followed with the seven—a mildly encouraging card. West continued with the ace and, when the queen dropped, he led a third round of the suit.

It was plain to declarer that the success of the contract hinged on the location of the king of diamonds. If the finesse was "on," there was nothing to the hand. Declarer toyed with the possibility of a strip and end play. If trumps were evenly divided, declarer could ruff a club, draw two trumps ending in dummy, and then lead the fourth club, sluffing a diamond. If West had to win the fourth club, he would be forced to concede the contract. But finding that specific lie of the cards was asking for too much.

Declarer hit upon a more direct way. Instead of ruffing the third heart, he discarded the six of diamonds. That play could not cost, for the low diamond was a loser anyway. But the psychological effect of a particular discard is very definite.

If declarer shows no interest in holding a certain suit, the defenders will often lead that suit. Whether it is right or not to do so is not the point at issue, but we know that defenders have a marked tendency to hasten to try to cash tricks in a suit declarer is sluffing. West duly shifted to a diamond and the contract was made, and South could take gratification in the fact that he had induced a defensive error.

Note that if West exits safely instead of shifting to a diamond, declarer is no worse off than if he had ruffed the third heart. He can still take a diamond finesse for his contract.

N.C. House Bills Are Sent To Senate

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state House has sent the Senate measures removing most usury limits on loans to churches, limiting the use of unmarked Highway Patrol cars and calling on Congress to block offensive motion pictures and television shows.

The bills were among a group minor legislative proposals overhwelmingly passed by the House in a brief meeting Monday night, opening the 11th week of the General Assembly session.

A resolution, approved on a 91-16 vote, asks Congress "to take steps, consistent with First Amendment rights, to discourage the showing of motion picture and television films depicting excessive crime, violence and immorality."

It was introduced by Rep. Byron Haworth, D-Guilford, and said TV and movies sometimes "justify and glorify" offensive acts.

Haworth said a child will have witnessed 11,000 murders on television by the time he graduates from high school.

He was opposed by Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, who operated a television station for 10 years.

"It's because the American people vote, by their watching habits and preferences, that it's on the screen," Campbell said. "I don't know how you attack this problem, but it's not through big brother."

Patrol Cars

The limit on unmarked patrol cars would be tightened under a bill approved on a 105-2 vote and sent back to the Senate for concurrence on an amendment.

The patrol is currently limited by law to having no more than 21 percent of its fleet in unmarked cars, and the bill would change the limit to 17 percent.

Church Loans

Church loans would be easier to obtain, supporters said, under a bill that eliminates special banking laws regulating loans to religious and other non-profit organizations.

State law now limits interest rates to 9 percent on loans to those groups.

"In other words," said House Banking Committee Chairman Rep. Charles Holt, D-Cumberland, "they can't get a loan now because no one's making loans at 9 percent."

The bill would bring loans to non-profit groups under a general business loan law enacted earlier in the session. It sets a maximum interest rate limit of 12 percent on amounts less than $25,000. There would be no limit on loans of larger amounts.

Drunk Driving

A bill to be introduced in the House today is aimed at encouraging drivers to take the alcohol breath or blood tests when asked by a law enforcement officer. Refusal to take the test now results in an automatic six month suspension of a drivers license.

The bill, filed by Rep. Gus Economos, D-Mecklenburg, would raise the suspension time to 12 months.

S&L's

The House enacted a measure that will tighten the requirements for establishment of new savings and loan associations. The bill, passed earlier by the Senate, requires that future requests for state charters show "reasonable demand and necessity in the community to be served by its establishment."

Absentee

The time limit for casting absentee ballots with local elections boards would be cut in half, from 60 days to 30 days, under a bill approved unanimously by the House and sent to the Senate.

Its sponsor, Rep. John Brown, R-Wilkes, said there was concern in his county about the large numbers of persons voting by absentee ballot.

Primary

The House is expected to take up today the question of when North Carolina should hold its presidential primary next year.

A bill before the House would move the primary from its scheduled May date to early March, giving North Carolina one of the nation's earliest presidential primary elections. The bill would keep the primary election for state offices — governor, senator, congress and other offices — in May.

Restrooms

A Republican legislators has introduced a bill that would require some service stations to make available public restrooms.

Sen. William Redman, R-Iredell, introduced a bill requiring restrooms to be available at any service station located within one mile of an interstate highway exit.

12-Item Agenda For Planning Commissions

Twelve items of business are scheduled for consideration by the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning Commissions at their 8 p.m. meetings Wednesday at city hall.

Old business on the joint agenda includes: request of J. T. Williams for rezoning .15 acres in Azalea Gardens Mobile Home Park east of Brook Valley from RA-20 to R-6Mobile Home; request of Larry Whitlow to rezone 1.2 acres on the north side of NC 33 across from Pinewood Cemetery from Highway Commercial to Office and Institutional;

Preliminary plat of Tucker Farms Subdivision north of US 264 Bypass between Memorial Drive and Red Oak Shopping Center; and preliminary plat of Harry A. Hardee, located on the west side of Evans Street Extension at Bell's Fork Road.

New business scheduled includes: request of T. Jack Warren and Carl Darden (agent) for rezoning some 40 acres at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and State Road 1529 from RA-20 to Industrial;

Preliminary plat of Stonesthrow Subdivision north of NC 43 across from the hospital property and State Road 1202; and the preliminary plat of Shenandoah Subdivision north of US 264 Bypass between Memorial Drive and Red Oak Shopping Center.

In addition, attendance at the 22nd annual North Carolina Planning Conference will be discussed and a presentation will be made regarding billboards in the Downtown Commercial Fringe zone.

The Greenville board will consider: final plat of Sharon Subdivision on Griffin Street; final plat of Bryton Hill Subdivision near River Bluff Drive; final plat of Fairlane Farm Subdivision on the west side of Hooker Road; and (new business)

Preliminary plat of Section III of Wilcar Subdivision west of N. Green Street at the intersection of Green and Industrial Boulevard; and preliminary plat of Wilcar Subdivision, Section IV located west of NC 13 and south of Greenfield Terrace.

Didn't Expect To See His Son Alive Again

BY JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP) — After 14 years, Jack Garwood said he never believed he would see his son alive again until he could "reach out and touch him."

When the moment finally arrived, the elder Garwood — forgetting for a while the desertion charges his Marine son faces — summed up the reunion in one word: "Beautiful."

Pfc. Robert Garwood, accused of desertion in time of war, returned to the United States on Sunday for the first time since 1965 and was joined at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center in an emotional reunion with his family from Greensboro, Ind.

At a news conference Monday, Garwood's father and one of his three brothers described the meeting.

"We just looked up and hugged each other something fierce. It was beautiful," said the elder Garwood, adding that there is "no way" his son deserted. "I just know he never did anything that wrong."

Several American POWs have charged that Garwood helped the North Vietnamese.

Don Garwood, Robert's 30-year-old brother, said: "I just sort of stood there. And then we came together. It started raining in the room. We both assured each other we'd never be separated again ... He asked me if I loved him and if I believed in him. I told him, 'yes.'"

The 33-year-old Marine's attorney said he was convinced his client was a prisoner of the Vietnamese, not a collaborator.

"He was kept there against his will," said Dermot G. Foley of New York. ".. He did try and request to get out and the fact that he's here today — to put it in plain English — he outwitted them."

School Fire Likely Set

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Investigators believe a fire that heavily damaged Lumberton Senior High School early Monday was deliberately started.

Investigators sifting through the rubble at the 13-year-old school discovered that a window in the principal's office had apparently been pried open. Officers found a crowbar and empty gasoline containers in the school's records room.

A school official estimated there was $500,000 to $1 million in damage from the blaze. The SBI has been called in to aid in the probe.

The fire apparently broke out in the main office area shortly after midnight Sunday and spread through the east classroom building. Firemen did not bring the fire under control until about 4 a.m.

Two firemen were treated at Southeastern General Hospital for smoke inhalation, two others received cuts from broken glass and another was burned when hot tar dripped on him from portions of the melting roof. No one was hospitalized, however.

Classes at the school were cancelled for Monday and Tuesday.

Maybe 75 Percent Tried Marijuana

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — At least 75 percent of all high school students in North Carolina have probably tried marijuana and about 55 percent use it regularly, according to a Durham vice squad officer.

Sgt. Ronnie Jarmon said drug pushers sell to teen-agers at schools and on street corners. "They'll sell to anybody," Jarmon said. "After all, they're out there to make money, so why should they care who they sell to?"

At Durham's elementary schools, Jarmon estimated that 5 percent of the students have smoked marijuana at least once. Durham County school superintendent Frank Yeager said he knew of no case in which marijuana has been sold at any county elementary school.

Jarmon estimated that 45 percent of the students at junior high schools have smoked marijuana at least once. He said 35 percent are probably regular users, smoking pot at least once a week.

Jarmon's figures could not be backed up by arrest records or school suspension reports, and school officials said they know of no major drug selling problems in the schools.

Officials added that they had no figures to support or refute the accuracy of Jarmon's figures.

Yeager said he was aware of six instances during the current year in which marijuana was sold on junior and senior high school campuses.

In most cases, Yeager said the sellers were former students who had dropped out of school, and the transactions usually took place before schoolor during lunch.

INSTALLATION SET

An installation of officers and presentation of the charter of P. J. Norfleet Post No. 160, American Legion, will be held Wednesday, March 28, 8 p.m., at Post No. 39 American Legion bldg., St. Andrews St. Greenville. The public is invited to attend, according to Ernest Brown, acting commander.

Resigned Over Charismatics

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Four ministers at High Point's largest church have resigned, apparently due in part to the growth of the charismatic movement.

Two of the ministers of the 2,868-member Green Street Baptist Church said their resignations were indirectly related to a set of resolutions drawn up by the church 's Board of Deacons in response to the growth of the charismatic movement in High Point.

The resolutions, approved by the congregation earlier this month, say the church is not part of the movement and that church members should avoid participating in religious meetings at which beliefs inconsistent with Baptist doctrine are presented.

The final resolution says that any member who cannot live by the guidelines "shall not do anything to hurt and divide this church but quietly seek fellowship elsewhere."

It was not clear whether the ministers supported the charismatic movement directly or whether the resolutions were interpreted to be too restrictive.

The Rev. E.W. Price Jr., who has been pastor at Green Street for 22 years, was not available Monday to comment on his resignation. The other pastors who resigned are the Rev. James A. Purvis, minister of youth; Dr. James R. Davidson, minister of music, and the Rev. Melvin Anderson, the church's business administrator.

Anderson and Davidson said their resignations were indirectly linked to the resolutions, but they would not specify how.

The charismatic movement is a fundamentalist Christian movement that emphasizes the role of the Holy Spirit in the worship service and in the daily lives of church members.

Three Giving Presentations On Apirl 2

Three students from the East Carolina University Department of English Writing Program will give a presentation, "Southern Women: Three Lives" Monday, April 2, 8 p.m., in the Media Center of Joyner Library.

The presentation will deal with the lives of three North Carolina women. Two of the students, Mimi Cowan and Diane Paquette, chose to investigate the lives of their grandmothers, presenting their findings through audio-visual media.

Another student, Karen Brock, will read an edited version of "The Autobiography of Annie Elizabeth Miller."

Under the guidance of professor Sally A. Brett and financial support of the Modern Language Association and the Fund for the Improvement of Post Secondary Education, the presentation will satisfy course requirements. The public is invited to attend. Admission is free.

Teamsters Seek To Bar Strike-Halt

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union, reportedly armed with overwhelming strike authorization from its rank-and-file, is taking unusual legal steps it hopes will stop President Carter from halting a possible nationwide trucking strike next week.

The union asked a federal judge Monday for permission to question government officials in hopes their answers will prove that Carter cannot use the Taft-Hartley Act to order workers back to their jobs should the union order a walkout after midnight Saturday.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court here, the nation's largest union raised the threat of a strike by up to 300,000 drivers and warehouse workers within a week.

The suit said it "appears unlikely" bargainers will settle on a new agreement by Saturday, when the current pact expires, in part because of government interference in the talks, which were resuming today.

Without an agreement by Saturday or "reasonably soon thereafter," the union said, "some form of economic recourse will be resorted to by the parties" — a strike or an industry lock-out.

The suit was filed as scattered union locals around the country reported their members had overwhelmingly voted this weekend to allow leaders to call a strike.

Union officials here said they had not yet completed the tally, but expected a lopsided vote favoring strike authorization. Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons said a decision on whether to strike would be made later this week.

Administration officials say Carter almost certainly would use Taft-Hartley, under which the government can ask a federal judge for a back-to-work order if a strike "imperils the national health or safety."

The administration views the contract talks as a key test of Carter's largely voluntary anti-inflation program, which seeks to limit wage increases to 7 percent a year.

Bargainers for the Teamsters have demanded wage increase of about twice what Carter's guidelines would allow, while industry negotiators have offered a pay boost of 6.5 percent in the first year of a proposed three-year pact. A typical Teamster trucker makes slightly under $10 hourly.

The suit charged that continuing government threats and pressure aimed at forcing the union to settle within the guidelines are responsible for the lack of progress in the talks.

Anticipating a strike, the government has been collecting information it could use in court to prove that a Teamsters strike meets the emergency conditions under Taft-Hartley.

The union's suit, however, asks for the right to question four government experts who are collecting that information. Testimony from the four is being sought, the union said, to prove that a strike would not imperil the nation's welfare.

Guitar Lessons Are Offered

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Dept. offers a new session in guitar lessons beginning Thursday, March 29. Three levels of instruction are available: Guitar I at 6:30 p.m., Guitar II at 7:30 p.m. and Guitar III at 8:30 p.m. Each level will be for 45 minute sessions on Thursday for 10 consecutive weeks. Cost is $2.50 per lesson or $25 for the ten weeks. Classes meet in Room 125, Rose High School. Instructor is Billy Stinson.

Interested persons are to call 752-4137, ext. 263 or Billy Stinson at 756-7155 for more information.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today on the news of a smaller price increase than had been feared from the oil-exporting nations.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 4.33 to 859.15 by noontime.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 5-3 margin in the mid-morning tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, at a meeting in Geneva, today set a price increase of 9 percent.

In addition, they agreed to allow members to add surcharges as warranted by market conditions.

The increase was considerably less than some of the proposals made when the OPEC meeting convened on Monday.

Gulf Oil led the active list, off ¼ at 26½. A 150,000-share block traded at that price.

UV Industries rose ⅞ to 35⅛. Shareholders voted Monday in favor of a plan to liquidate the company.

National CSS, subject of a $48-a-share takeover bid by Dun & Bradstreet Cos., jumped 12½ to 46 on the American Stock Exchange.

Riley Co. climbed 5 to 46¾ on the Amex. The company said it was holding preliminary acquisitions with an unidentified concern about the possible acquisition of a controlling interest in Riley.

The American exchange's market value index gained 1.58 to 178.35, while the NYSE's composite index picked up .25 to 57.01.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 12.14 million shares by noontime, against 11.15 million at the same point Monday.

Ask Court Order To Hire Women

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Attorneys for the U.S. Justice Department have asked that the Philadelphia Police Department be ordered to hire one woman for each man hired until 40 percent of the members of the police force are female.

In papers filed Monday in U.S. District Court, government attorneys also requested the court to order the police department to begin a recruitment program for women to ensure that the hiring goal is met. The 40 percent goal would equal the proportion of females in the Philadelphia adult work force, according to the documents.

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's Arab foes meet here today to try to agree on action to sabotage his peace treaty with Israel.

Electric Power Problem Hit Campus

The East Carolina University campus experienced power problems Monday night, including several elevator stoppages in dormitories, when an electrical distribution cable on campus failed.

James Lowry, director of maintenance and operations at ECU, said that the blow-out of a feeder cable between two sectionializing switches in the Tenth Street area caused the whole campus to go on a "single-phase" power situation.

According to Lowry, the cable failure resulted in everything "kicking out immediately" on campus but the actual black-out time involved only a short period since the single-phase system was initiated within a few seconds.

With single-phase operations, he explained, some of the campus has two thirds of normal power, some areas have all of the lights burning and other areas a third of the normal situation. He said there is a sufficient amount of power to "keep things going" under the back-up system.

Lowry, who said that he was not certain of the exact time of the cable failure, noted that the dormitory elevators operate on three-phase motors and the cable problem resulted in a halt of elevator operations. Some students were in the elevators when they stopped, he said, but were aided by campus police and the Greenville Rescue Squad. The main problem involved the inconvenience to students, he added.

The spokesman pointed out that the campus remained in a single-phase power situation until the completion of the scheduled play at East Carolina, "Dear Liar" at Wright Auditorium. He said that the play was delayed for a period of time due to the cable failure.

Lowry, who said that the problem was corrected by 11 p.m. last night, said that a section of the cable will have to be replaced.

"Everything is back in shape this morning," he said.

FRESH FIGHTING

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Heavy fighting broke out today between Turkoman tribesmen and government forces over land rights in the northeastern city of Gonbad-E-Qabous, and at least eight persons killed and many wounded, reports reaching Tehran said.

OPEC...

increase in the price of OPEC oil would raise U.S. gasoline and heating oil prices 6 cents a gallon. But the precise impact of a price rise on inflation rates is difficult to pinpoint because "the times when OPEC raises prices in general are times when the world economy is booming and inflation rates are rising," according to Leon Taub, an analyst for the New York consulting firm of Chase Econometric Associates Inc.

John Mugno, an analyst for Citibank, estimated a one-shot, 25-percent OPEC increase might raise the U.S. inflation rate this year by one-half of a percentage point.

One place where OPEC actions have been easily observed is at the American gasoline pump. OPEC's 5 percent increase in January was expected to add about 3 cents a gallon to retail gasoline prices, while the surcharges were figured to mean another 1-cent boost.

But prices have jumped by more than a dime a gallon in the past year, partly due to a sharp increase in demand for hard-to-refine unleaded gasoline and partly to a change in federal price rules allowing refiners to pass on increased processing costs to consumers.

The average retail price of a gallon of regular leaded gasoline at a full-service filling station jumped 3.68 cents this month to 73.25 cents.

About A Million U.S. Runaways

NEW YORK (AP) — There are about 1 million runaway youngsters in the United States at any given time and from 30 percent to 60 percent of them are actually "throwaways," Parents magazine reports.

In its April edition released on Monday, the magazine said that in U.S. society, children, like soda bottles or automobiles, are often discarded by their parents, and are not runaways but "pushouts ... youths who are told to leave home."

The magazine quoted Dr. James Gordon, of the Center for Studies of Child and Family Mental Health in Maryland, as saying that most runaways leave home because they "feel they've been kicked out."
