Devastation, Death Left By Tornadoes

By The Associated Press
Tornadoes swept over North Texas and Oklahoma with deadly fury, killing at least 50 persons and injuring more than 850 others, officials said. Grim rescuers probing the rubble of flattened homes and two Wichita Falls, Texas, shopping centers said they expected to find more bodies.

Thousands were left homeless late Tuesday afternoon after the swirling winds struck Wichita Falls and Vernon, Texas, and Lawton, Okla., sucking up people and property and tossing cars about, splitting some in half.

Hardest hit was Wichita Falls, where county Red Cross disaster chairman Bob Draper confirmed 33 deaths, and officials said an estimated 2,000 homes were destroyed or severely damaged.

"Many portions of Wichita Falls have been wiped off the face of the Earth," said Josh Fuller of radio station KBID.

An undetermined number of people were believed trapped under rubble of the Sikes and Southmoor shopping centers by the tornado that struck at about 6 p.m., said Department of Public Safety spokeswoman Barbara Henderson. Others were buried in debris from demolished buildings elsewhere in the city, she said.

"The destruction is going to be in the millions of dollars. We got hit hard," said Capt. Bob Edmonson of the police department in Lawton, where officials said at least four died.

Twelve died in Vernon, Texas, and one man was killed 17 miles away in Harrold, authorities said.

"It looks like we have been bombed," said one Vernon resident.

Wichita Falls, Vernon and Lawton are in an area of the Southwest commonly known as "Tornado Alley" because twisters frequently thunder over the rolling hills covered with sagebrush.

Fifteen years ago this month, another killer tornado roared through Wichita Falls, killing seven people and causing $15 million damage.

This storm was at least "three times worse," said Jan Beall, County Red Cross director.

Reporter Joe Tom White of KWFT radio said the twister acted like a powerful vacuum as it passed over the Sikes Shopping Center in Wichita Falls, drawing up people, merchandise and the roof.

Civil Defense Medical Coordinator Dr. James Lee said 500 persons in Wichita Falls would require surgery, hospitalization or extended medical care.

An additional 200 persons were treated at nursing homes by paramedics from Shepard Air Force Base. Most had superficial cuts and bruises.

"We are just trying to clean them up and stitch them up and get them along," said paramedic Glenn Brien, whose Air Force coveralls were spattered with blood.

The Red Cross broadcast urgent appeals over radio station KTRN — the only station still in operation in the community of 96,000 — for blood donors and fuel supplies to operate emergency vehicles.

Ominous black hearses lined up at Wichita Falls General Hospital.

High school ROTC students joined 150 National Guard troops activated by Gov. Bill Clements and other volunteers in directing traffic, guarding downed power lines and patrolling to prevent looting.

Despite the patrols, looters smashed plate glass windows in downtown stores and scooped up booty. One Red Cross worker reported seeing armed homeowners guarding damaged homes.

In a radio appeal, Mayor Kenneth Hill urged residents to "please go home." Churches, theaters and banks opened their doors to offer emergency shelter to the undetermined number of homeless.

Power, water and telephone service was interrupted, and the Civil Defense urged residents not to flush their toilets because water in the reserve tank might be their only drinking water for days.

Wichita Falls lies about 150 miles northwest of Dallas, and Vernon — a town of 11,500 just 10 miles from the Red River that separates Texas and Oklahoma — lies 45 miles northwest of there.

Lawton, a city of 75,000 adjacent to Fort Sill Military Reservation, is 45 miles northeast of Vernon and about 80 miles southwest of Oklahoma City.

"As the storm, started you could see the clouds being sucked into the center of the storm ... the debris and huge pieces of tree limbs and house roofs," said reporter Rocky Scott, who watched the twister's approach from the Wichita County Courthouse steps.

Boost Funds Application

By STUART MORGAN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission passed an amendment Tuesday night adding $310,000 to the application which, on March 13, requested $2.86 million in State Clean Water Bond funds from the N.C. Department of Human Resources.

According to Charles O'H. Horne, Jr., director of Greenville Utilities, the additional money will pay for the extension of water mains to residences in areas where water is presently unsafe to drink due to pollution. "That will improve our application for water funds which has been filed," said Horne.

On April 3 a referendum was passed authorizing issuance of $14 million to finance improvements in the present water system. Some $12 million will be used to construct a new water treatment plant.

The referendum further authorized the issuance of $5 million to finance improvements in the electric system and another $5 million to finance improvements in the sewage system.

In addition, the commission last night was told that the contract work has been completed on the new operations center of the Greenville Utilities Commission. The commission then approved a $60,000 contract for paving that area.

Also during the meeting, Thomas M. Shea, chairman of the Greenville Utilities Commission, presented a resolution of appreciation to J. Ed. Waldrop who acted as chairman of the Citizens Information Committee for that recent $24 million Water, Sewer and Electric Bond referendum.

"His efforts will be rewarded by the service that will be rendered to future generations who will benefit from the facilities to be constructed with those bond funds," Shea said in presenting the resolution.

Later, Horne announced that this month's fuel adjustment billing will be increased due to the recent shutdowns by Vepco (a supplier of energy to Va. and northeastern N.C.) of two nuclear units in Surry, Va., and another nuclear unit in North Anna, Va.

"This month our fuel adjustment billing (a fossil fuel adjustment charge) will be $5 per thousand kilowatt hours, and by May and June it may be up to $5 or $10 per thousand kilowatt hours," estimated Horne. However, he added that the increase would not affect current rates for electricity.

"Because the three nuclear units are down, the total generation is coming from coal and oil," explained Horne. "The charges are based on how much it costs, one, to produce energy or electricity, and two, how much it costs for fuel, etc., to operate the plant."

However, Horne said he has asked an Electricities' attorney to investigate the fairness of paying the high demand charge on those three plants which are not available for service at this time.

"Electricities is an organization composed of 73 cities in the state which fights all of our rate cases," explained Horne.

"We are paying for those plants to be available, but they haven't been," said Horne.

"We feel it is unreasonable for us. We shouldn't have to pay rent for a plant that isn't available," he added. "I feel the stockholders should have to pay for it. I have asked the Electricities if there is any action we can take."

Horne also pointed out that on October 1, 1978, Vepco increased the average cost per kilowatt hour by 1.8 or the average cost per pound for tobacco curing by about 3.75¢.

After passing a proposal approving that increase, to become effective June 1, Horne said, "All we're doing is passing along the federal rate increase approved for Vepco on October, 1978."

Grand Jury Indicts Nick Galifianakis In Scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former North Carolina congressman has been indicted on charges stemming from allegations of South Korean influence buying in the United States.

A federal grand jury Tuesday accused former Rep. Nicholas Galifianakis of perjuring himself in testimony before the House ethics committee last year.

The grand jury also returned an indictment against Korean-born businessman Hancho C. Kim, accusing him of contempt of Congress.

Galifianakis was accused in the indictment of denying under oath that he received $10,000 in cash from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park. The indictment said he received the money through an aide to his 1972 senatorial campaign.

He faces up to five years in prison and a $2,000 fine if convicted.

Galifianakis, 50, a lawyer from Durham, N.C., served in Congress from 1967 through 1972 when he ran unsuccessfully for the Senate.

Kim, a naturalized American citizen, testified before the House ethics committee on May 15, 1978.

The committee was investigating charges that Kim received money from a South Korean embassy official who also worked for the Korean CIA. Kim refused to answer a question concerning his alleged receipt of money from the KCIA agent.

He faces a maximum of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine if convicted of the misdemeanor charge.

A Lanham, Md., resident, the 56-year-old Kim was convicted last year of conspiring to influence congressmen illegally and lying about receiving $600,000 from the KCIA for his efforts.

Galifianakis could not be reached at his Washington or Durham homes and offices for comment, but an associate in his Durham office issued this statement for the former congressman:

"I am deeply disturbed by the events which have transpired today in Washington. I deeply regret any pain or embarrassment which this may cause my family, friends, supporters and colleagues.

"I hope all of you know that I treasure my years of public service to my state and to my country. Despite my personal inclinations, I have been advised by my attorney not to say anything further about this matter.

"This case is now before the courts. I hope you will respect my wishes and the instructions of my counsel and refrain from asking me anything further."

Park and the Galifianakis aide, Barbara Fletcher, testified to the $10,000 contribution during the ethics committee hearings. Both said Park gave the donation to Miss Fletcher in $100 bills.

The indictment says Galifianakis asked Park for the contribution "on or about Nov. 1, 1972," and that Park gave the money to Miss Fletcher two days later.

The indictment also says Miss Fletcher and another Galifianakis aide, Margaret Sugg, discussed the Park contribution with the congressman on several occasions between November 1976 and February 1978.

Solution Faces Flack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Pentagon plan for mobilizing combat troops at the outbreak of war — calling on discharged veterans ahead of raw recruits — is running into flak on Capitol Hill even before receiving final approval from Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

Defense reserve manpower officials said Tuesday that they are drafting legislation under which discharged veterans would be called up in an emergency and sent into combat ahead of new recruits with no prior service — a reversal of current policy.

By law and tradition, veterans who have completed a six-year obligation are the last ones called up in wartime.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told defense officials the plan is contrary to "a fundamental principle of our country" and would require veterans to serve twice "when millions never served once."

"You're not going to get anyone (on Capitol Hill) to handle that," said Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services manpower subcommittee where the legislation would be sent first.

Defense officials told a subcommittee hearing the plan would be a short-term solution to shortages in the reserves and potential problems in mobilizing forces in an emergency.

"We don't see any other solution in the short range," said John Brinkerhoff, a defense manpower specialist. He acknowledged that the plan, which would require congressional approval, faces "lots of opposition."

Watershed Project's Progress Is Inspected

The Pitt County Drainage District No. 3 Commissioners inspected progress of the first phase of the Swift Creek Watershed Project Tuesday.

According to Tim Garrett, acting SCS district conservationist, four miles has been completed on channel work in Swift Creek Main and Fork Swamp Branch.

Bulldozers have completed clearing a construction route along all 22 miles of the Phase One Project, with sediment traps and fish holes being constructed along the way.

Garrett noted interim seeding is being done along the construction route, with permanent seeding of the restored channel slopes also in progress.

According to B. Alton Gardner, district no. 3 chairman, completion of the project is expected sometime in the late summer.

"I think progress has gone well," said Gardner. "We had an awful weather situation for a while, but it looks like a good job's been done so far."

Gardner, Elwood Davenport, Ray Garris and David H. Smith toured the project site, where total costs are figured to be around $2,924,000. The project covers 113,000 acres in Pitt, Beaufort and Craven Counties, with phase two to begin in the summer.

'Thunder Alley'

By The Associated Press

Wichita Falls and Vernon, Texas, and Lawton, Okla., are in an area of the Southwest commonly known as "Tornado Alley" because twisters frequently thunder over the rolling hills with devastating results.

Wichita Falls, population 96,000, is about 150 miles northwest of Dallas, and Vernon — a town of 11,500 just 10 miles from the Red River that separates Texas and Oklahoma — lies 45 miles northwest of there.

Lawton, a city of 75,000 adjacent to Fort Sill Military Reservation, is 45 miles northeast of Vernon and about 80 miles southwest of Oklahoma City.

"Thunder Alley," which includes North Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas seem to have more than their share of twisters each year due to a unique combination of weather factors, according to the National Weather Service in Fort Worth, Texas.

Among these factors are terrain, upper-air wind flows, low-level winds and the influence of the Rocky Mountains.

THREE-DAY COOLING OFF

Please provide some information on the three-day cooling-off law. D. C.

According to a Better Business Bureau handout, the Three-Day Cooling-Off Rule is an FTC regulation that gives consumers three business days to change their minds about purchases of $25 or more. It applies to sales made in the home and to sales agreements made anywhere other than in the seller's normal place of business. The rule does not apply to sales made at the seller's place of business, made totally by mail or phone, under $25, for real estate, insurance or securities, or for emergency home repairs.

According to the rule, salespersons must tell customers of their cancellation rights and the contract must include their right to cancel. Sellers also must supply two copies of a cancellation form. The contract or receipt must be dated and show the name and address of the seller.

To cancel a sale, one copy of the cancellation form should be signed, dated and mailed or hand-delivered to the address given for cancellation any time before midnight of the third business day after the contract date. The other copy of the form should be kept as a record. Proof of mailing date and proof of receipt are important. It may be wise to send the letter from the local Post Office "certified with a return receipt requested." The reason for cancellation does not have to be stated.

Chews Tobacco At Age Four

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Like many others, I never thought I would have to write to you, but something so offended my sensitivities that I felt compelled to write for your opinion.

What do you think of a 4-year-old child who chews tobacco? His parents think it's cute. The little boy always carries a plug of tobacco and chews and spits just like a little old man.

When I told his parents that it could damage the child's health, they laughed and said, "He doesn't smoke it, so it's not harmful."

Can your experts come up with any facts about the possible dangers of chewing tobacco? Especially to a 4-year-old? Maybe they will listen to you.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: The American Cancer Society informs me that there is evidence that chewing tobacco can cause cancer of the lips, tongue, mouth or throat. The parents of that child should be hauled into court for child abuse!

DEAR ABBY: Would you please say something in your column about girls who get involved with married men?

My 23-year-old daughter has entered into such a relationship. The man is handsome, successful and charming, but can offer her nothing but a sleazy after-hours office romance.

(The same old story: his marriage is "empty and loveless" but he can't give up his children.)

My daughter is pretty, intelligent and completely devoted to this man. (She works for him.) It hurts me to see her waste her best years in a hopeless relationship.

Since my information about this affair is confidential, I can't approach my daughter with warnings and "motherly" advice.

Perhaps a word from you might help. She reads your column faithfully and believes in you.

DEPENDING ON YOU

DEAR DEPENDING: A "word" from me isn't likely to help much. What your daughter needs is a word from someone who has been down that road and found that it usually leads to heartbreak alley. If she has read me "faithfully," she will have seen many such letters.

An involvement with a married man is painful, degrading and hopeless at best. But some women have to learn the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think girls who wear glasses come on as sexy as girls who don't?

G. IN PERRY, IOWA

DEAR G.: It depends on their frames.

DEAR ABBY: After many years of marriage my husband began to get careless about his personal hygiene. He'd forget to use a deodorant, or his toothbrush, work hard all day, then join me in bed without showering. He was physically very unattractive.

I didn't nag or scold him. Instead I became the aggressor. I'd slip a cute little poem to him which read something like this:

"Brush your teeth and take a shower
And meet me in the bedroom in half an hour!"

Or, after dinner, I'd lay out his good pajamas and tell him I just HAD to have him, and he'd better hurry up and shower and get to bed before I got out of the mood!

Let me tell you, it worked!
If only women would realize how much more they can accomplish with a little humor and sweet words. Also, men like to be pursued for a change.

My little game has made a big difference in our marriage. Abby. Now sometimes he even writes ME a note. Pass this along.

Project Goal To Reach Elderly Workshop On Stress Set

ECU News Bureau Help for low-income elderly persons who participate in the federal food stamp program is the goal of a current project now underway in the East Carolina University School of Home Economics.

The program, funded with a grant of $11,000 from the N.C. Senior Citizens' Federation, Inc., involves two phases: training sessions for home economics extension agents and others who work in the human services field and a series of hour-long sessions for low-income persons in various settings in eastern North Carolina.

The project is directed by Dr. Vila Rosenfeld of the Home Economics Education department.

Topics discussed at the training sessions are the operation of the food stamp program and nutrition needs of the elderly. At a December session, speakers were Rosemary Mims, State Food Stamp Outreach Coordinator, and Mabel McKnight of the N.C. Senior Citizen's Federation.

A second session, set for April 23 in the Willis Building here, will feature presentations by Gwendolyn Davis of N.C. Central University, Georgia Cannon of the Council on Aging, Dr. Audrey Johnson of the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Social Work, Addie Gore and Sue May of the N.C. Extension Service, and Marilyn Steele, instructor of nutrition at ECU.

The event is open to all interested persons, and will begin at 9 a.m.

The project will conclude with a minimum of 16 one-hour sessions designed for low-income elderly persons on how food stamp users can get the most nutrition from the food dollar.

Traffic Movement Changes

The city has approved a revised thoroughfare plan which takes in to account expected changes in traffic movement anticipated because of the medical complex development on the west side.

The thoroughfare plan serves as a guide for city and Department of Transportation planners in designing and funding major streets in and around the city.

It is, and should be, a continually changing planning device since developments within the Greenville area are constantly changing the thoroughfare needs of the community.

It was clear, though, that development of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the ECU medical school and other medical facilities in West Greenville will mean vastly increased vehicular traffic in that area.

The planners now foresee increased use of Dickinson Avenue, which will require improvements. They envision a realignment of the proposed N.C. 11 bypass and changes in the Arlington Boulevard Extension area.

Revision of the thoroughfare plan by the city was needed. Now, with the ever increasing traffic load, particularly in the medical area west of the city, many of these plans need to be translated into actual thoroughfare projects.

Test For Communities

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The test is at hand for local governmental officials and health care providers who have been arguing that Raleigh and Washington ought to back off and let the communities decide what is best.

That is essentially what two new task force reports in the health field propose.

In both child health activities and in providing primary health care for adults, the reports call for local planning bodies to find out what the problems and shortfalls are, what is available, and what ought to be done to meet the needs locally.

The Primary Care Task Force spelled the approach out in few words: "...needs and feasible solutions to problems vary greatly from county to county. A plan to meet the needs for primary care can best be met through local efforts — efforts tailored to fit the particular locale and developed with full understanding of the area's unique resources, problems and needs.

Local Effort

"Such local planning efforts require a great deal of interaction and cooperation between the private and public sectors."

That philosophy is also echoed in the report of the Child Health Planning Task Force. The primary care report was written by representatives of the Department of Human Resources, the N.C. Medical Society, the Old North State Medical Society, educators and legislators. Dr. James Davis of Durham was chairman. The Child Health Plan was a combined effort by the Department of Human Resources and the N.C. Pediatric Society, co-chaired by Dr. Thomas E. Frothingham, medical school chief at Duke University, and Mint M. Saunders, assistant secretary for children at Human Resources.

Gov. Jim Hunt describes the effort this way: "Both are based on the principle that every North Carolinian should be able to get good health care. Both emphasize that the local community should decide the best way of doing that. Both call for close cooperation between the public and private health sectors."

The plan for children calls for a local committee to draw up plans to provide a "health home" to every child needing that, a system to make sure health care is adequate and continuing, and full use of private doctors or public health clinics as local needs dictate. The plans suggested in the task force report go into details on care for pregnant women, nutrition, parenting, counseling, and the scope of health care before, during and after birth.

BILL NOBLITT

No such broad attempt has previously been made in this state.

A state effort had been launched, however, in providing primary health care. The 1977 General Assembly set up funds to provide such care in public clinics and health departments.

Objection

Objections from private health care providers to such a massive public approach to health care prompted creation of the task force which now calls for development of new plans locally. Evidence of such planning will be required before funds are released from Raleigh for the purpose.

But the nagging question underneath it all is that for many years public health and private health establishments have demonstrated less than a spirit of wholehearted cooperation and willingness to work and plan together in many cases. Likewise, numerous accounts are available of local public health agencies which have not demonstrated an aggressive and cooperative attitude. Local reports of bureaucratic maneuverings and turfing about.

Responding to that proposition, Gov. Hunt says the significant point now is that the public is demanding an end to traditional politicking and infighting between various sectors of the health community. "I believe this is a new sense, an attitude of public concern. It is a heartening thing. Public and private providers have sat down together and worked out an approach — not directed from Raleigh, but local people working together. It is going to be done."

As The Wind Blows

WASHINGTON — I am very unhappy to see that the nuclear accident in Harrisburg has turned into an ideological battle between the conservatives and the liberals in the United States. The conservative forces seem to be rallying their troops FOR nuclear energy while the liberals are ready to go in to the streets to stop any more nuclear reactors from being built.

It seems to be boiling down to one question: Was Jane Fonda responsible for everything that happened at the Three Mile Island plant?

As far as I can tell from reading conservative and liberal columnists, as well as talking to people across the American political spectrum, the conservatives insist we have to pay a price for cheap energy even if it means the danger of an accident that could irradiate a few hundred thousand people.

The liberals hate nuclear energy because they believe in their hearts that the people who are producing it don't know what the hell they're doing.

Of course, the main factor in the argument is how far you are located from a nuclear reactor plant. There are many Americans who live near a plant and are selfish about this country's energy needs. They don't seem willing to sacrifice themselves so that other people, hundreds of miles away, can be assured that their toasters and electric coffee makers will work.

Other Editors Say Uncurbed Abuse

Goldsboro News-Argus)

A North Carolina House of Representatives Committee dominated by lawyers has killed an effort to curb widespread abuse of the "prayer for judgment continued" (PJC) loophole in motor vehicle violation cases.

Under present law, if a judge takes a prayer for judgment continued in a speeding case, no points are assessed against the person's driving record.

As a result, more than 1,000 people per month are getting away without points despite convictions of driving violations.

While the abuse is state-wide, it is far worse in some areas than in others. In recent years there has been no indication it is being abused in our 8th Judicial District.

But the News-Argus revealed three years ago that a Johnston County man who had 28 driving convictions had been favored with prayers for judgment continued rulings in the last 11 consecutive counts.

Lincoln County apparently is among the worst in the state for the abuse. More than 25 percent of the speeding cases tried there in the first six months of last year ended with PJC rulings.

It was this abuse that caused Dr. John R. Gamble, Jr., one of the most dedicated and respected members of the General Assembly, to offer a bill requiring traffic court judges to explain, in writing, their reasons when PJC's are granted.

The bill would have offered a measure of accountability by judges who often dole out PJC's as favors either to defendants or their attorneys.

Dr. Gamble's bill was referred to House Judiciary Committee II. The committee is dominated by lawyers.

Some lawyer legislators do not like to get involved in legislation that could alienate judges they might have to deal with later.

"In fact," Dr. Gamble observed last week, "most of the things they (lawyer legislators) do are done to curry favor with the judges."

That was the case when his bill went before House Judiciary II. The committee did not even discuss it before rejecting it almost unanimously.

Ironically, the only vote in favor of the bill came from a lawyer-legislator, George Miller, Jr., of Durham. Today he's probably the only lawyer in the General Assembly who absolutely could not beat a driving rap with a PJC. But he probably doesn't have any trouble sleeping and shaving.

ART BUCHWALD

The citizens who live near a nuclear plant are not necessarily conservatives or liberals. They just want to live out their lives like everybody else. Unfortunately, they can't appreciate that with any form of electricity there is a tradeoff, and it's impossible to have cheap nuclear power without a few noxious gases, an occasional hydrogen bubble, a meltdown, and possibly an explosion which could make one or two states uninhabitable for 50 or a hundred years.

But this country has thrived on the philosophy of the greatest good for the majority of its citizens. The people who live within irradiating distance of a nuclear plant are only spoiling it for

Public Financing Blocked

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — This was going to be the year of the administration's push for public financing of House and Senate election campaigns but so far, Republican opponents seem to be doing most of the pushing.

They argue the bill is discriminatory and a threat to the two-party system — particularly their share of it. As long as the Republicans maintain their nearly solid front against the measure, it faces a difficult test in the House and a probably fatal Senate filibuster.

President Carter supports public financing of congressional campaigns and recommended it in an election reform message to the last Congress. He left the specifics to congressional draftsmen, but the bills they produced were blocked in the House and scuttled by a filibuster in the Senate.

Administration officials said efforts would intensify to gain approval of a bill this year but they don't seem to have started yet. A campaign finance bill may be ready for the House by late spring. It already is snarled in controversy, not only in the House but also in the Federal Election Commission, which would have to run the system.

Advocates of publicly financed congressional election campaigns say the bill is essential to curb the impact of special interest money in House and Senate campaigns. Vice President Walter Mondale argues that special interest spending has reached "exceedingly dangerous proportions."

Political action committees, set up by business, labor and other interests, spent $31.2 million on congressional election campaigns last year. The biggest share, $18.2 million, went into the campaigns of incumbent members of Congress.

A campaign finance bill now before the House Administration Committee would permit candidates for House seats to claim up to $60,000 in federal aid to match private contributions in increments of $100 or less.

It would go to the nominee of any party, major or minor,

Attitude, Not A Measurement

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In speaking of profits, especially before they're made, descriptors such as excessive, windfall, ripoff, undeserved, and enormous usually reflect an attitude rather than a measurement.

There is no dearth of profit measurements. Precise records are kept for practical reasons, such as determining corporate health, taxes owed, cash distributions to shareholders, funds to be reinvested.

Last year was a good one for profits, with corporations reporting a 17 percent after-tax increase over 1977, according to figures compiled by Citibank. Return on investment was 16 percent, on sales 5.2 percent.

Whether these numbers are excessive is a matter of judgment. They do show an improvement — return on investment in 1977 was 14.9 percent, on sales 5 percent — but few records were set and few even approached.

Since its figures were derived from returns by 2,491 publicly held companies (with after-tax profits of $98 billion on sales of $1.7 trillion in 1978), Citibank's survey is considered authoritative.

It shows that as an industry, petroleum production and refining earned more net income than any other industrial category, some $14.9 billion, a 12 percent increase over 1977's $13.3 billion.

But, as oil company officials anxiously remind the public, big is relative. Their investment is huge, they point out, nearly $104 billion in 1978. From that investment they received a return of 14.4 percent.

Is 14.4 percent large? Not when measured against the 16 percent average of all manufacturers. Nor is it large when matched against the 20-plus percent return earned by many consumer products manufacturers.

The other common measurement, return on sales, sometimes gives a different picture, but mainly because of the varying nature of businesses. Last year the return rose slightly, to 5.2 from 5 percent.

Once again, oil companies fell below the average, retaining 4.8 percent of their sales, a percent almost imperceptibly higher than in the previous year. And 1979? That now becomes the big question.

With price controls being phased out for U.S.-produced crude oil, President Carter has strongly expressed his belief that oil company

Beyond Hate & Hurt

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Out for a walk on a rainy day, I paused for a moment in the small overgrown family graveyard down the road from my house.

The quarter-acre plot overlooking our little lake contains less than two dozen tombstones.

Since I had last been here, Wm. M.J. Selleck, died May 12, 1857, and James Selleck, died April 25, 1859, had toppled over on their faces. They had stood here for more than a hundred years, since the towering shagbark hickories shading the plot were only saplings, and now each was separated from its base and broken in two more pieces.

I hoped that William and James Selleck had been disturbed and brought low in their final rest by the record low temperatures and fierce storms of the past winter and not by the mindless vandalism so common everywhere these days.

My mind dwelled in sadness and revulsion on a recent newspaper picture showing 811 tombstones overturned in the Mount Hebron Jewish cemetery in Flushing, Long Island. A few days later, nearly 700 headstones were toppled at the United Hebrew Cemetery and the adjoining Mount Richmond Cemetery on Staten Island.

Under the headline "DOMINO THEORY OF HATE," a newspaper editorial speculated that all three nocturnal atrocities against the dead may have been committed as some sort of sick revenge for the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

It takes a special kind of meanness, beyond the police blotter terminology "malicious mischief," to knock over 1,500 grave markers for fun and kicks. It takes a special kind of madness, almost beyond the bounds of pity, to vandalize a burial ground as a protest against peace.

The dead at least, you would think, are beyond hate, beyond

Ventriloquism, solos, duets, and acrobatic tumbling was presented last night at the Rotary Club by a sample group of Scoutmaster Lebrun Spence's Boy Scout troop which meets at the West Greenville School. Carl Morris and J.C. Harper sang several duets, and Robert Haddock and J.C. Harper sang solos — all without accompaniment.

Earl Morgan and Carl Morris did the tumbling. Arthur Street, a quiet-looking, typical boy, put on a ventriloquist's act with his dummy "Johnny."

As Lebrun Spence said in introducing the boys, "Give them opportunities and no telling where they will go." The scoutmaster introduced his assistant scoutmaster, Ben Miller, as his "right and left" arm in doing what was being done with their troop. Just boys, at twelve to fourteen years old, they held the rotarians' attention for thirty full minutes. There is many a hostess at "Wits End" wondering what to do for guests who could improve a dull evening with Arthur Street's abilities at ventriloquism.

SEASON OF JUDGMENT

In the 36th Chapter of the Book of Jeremiah is found the account of how Jehoiakim, King of Judah, dealt with the sermons and wise counsel of the prophet, Jeremiah.

This Jeremiah, first because he had a discerning mind and secondly because he was under the commandment and guidance of God, saw that ruin was descending upon his country and that the only way to avoid it was by a thoroughgoing moral renovation.

Jeremiah kept on his preaching and warning, but the king paid no attention. At last certain members of the king's court persuaded the monarch to listen while they read to him some of Jeremiah's words. The king listened — but only for a few moments. Soon he became bored, and snatching the book from the reader's hand, cut the pages with a knife and cast them into the fire.

Shortly afterward, Judah was conquered by the Babylonians. Those who ignore the warnings of God face a season of judgment.

Teamster-Trucking Terms Tentatively Agreed On

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union and trucking companies are getting ready to roll again, ending a nationwide shutdown after reaching a tentative contract agreement that reportedly meets President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines.

"The strike and defensive shutdown (by the industry) are being terminated," chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said shortly before midnight Tuesday as he announced a settlement in the 10-day work stoppage.

"Procedures for return to work will be made within 24 hours," he said.

The new package would provide increases in wages, cost-of-living and fringe benefits estimated at 26 to 30 percent over three years.

Union President Frank Fitzsimmons said he would recommend ratification by the 300,000-member rank and file covered by the pact. "I'm sure they'll be satisfied with this agreement; at least I hope so," he said.

The union said it would take four to six weeks to complete the ratification vote.

The two sides reached their agreement under the prodding of federal mediators in a final marathon round of bargaining that stretched over two days.

The settlement spelled an end to the longest industrywide shutdown in history, a dispute that forced mass layoffs in the auto industry but otherwise caused little damage to the nation's economy.

The dispute began at midnight March 31, when the two sides failed to meet a deadline for agreeing to a new contract. The Teamsters launched strikes against 73 companies, and Trucking Management Inc., the industry bargaining arm that represents about 500 firms, responded with a lockout that prevented union members from working at any of their companies.

Sources, who asked not to be identified, say the tentative settlement gives Teamsters wage increases of $1.50 an hour over three years, plus semi-annual cost-of-living adjustments. Increased fringe benefits are worth another 75 cents an hour, the sources said.

Teamsters now average $9.75 an hour in pay. Fringe benefits bring total hourly compensation to $12.65.

Fitzsimmons declined to say whether the agreement meets Carter's voluntary anti-inflation guideline. Horvitz also sidestepped the subject, saying, "That matter must await the decision of the ratification process."

But J. Curtis Counts, chief industry bargainer, told reporters he believed the settlement falls within the president's guideline.

And several administration officials being kept abreast of the talks concurred that the agreement complied with the guideline.

Asks Grifton Approve Site

GRIFTON — Don Davenport, Pitt County administrative assistant to the County Manager, came before the Grifton Town Board of Commissioners Tuesday to ask for Grifton's approval toward a proposed site for a county solid waste collection project.

The collection site will serve Ayden, Grifton and southern Pitt County residents, allowing them to dispose of trash and garbage without having to drive to Greenville.

The board gave its approval to such a project, whenever the county can obtain such a site for use.

The board also voted to make a circular drive in front of the Grifton Civic Center so as to allow accessibility for students at the WAG Developmental Center.

Some opposition was heard from Jan Haseley, who stated that there had been plans to beautify the area in front of the Center.

After some discussion, the board voted to provide water, sewer and street up to the property line of a proposed site for The Mid East Housing Authority everybody else by griping about having their homes located so near an electrical power-producing system which has brought so much happiness and convenience to their fellow Americans.

Section Eight Housing. The Authority is considering a site in Grifton, but has not yet made a definite purchase.

Several conservative columnists have been quick to point out that no energy system is entirely safe. They cite accident statistics in coal mines, automobile crashes on highways and gas explosions as the price we have to pay for living in the most modern of all industrial societies. They ask what the alternatives are to nuclear power, and then conclude there are none. If someone forgets to open a water-cooling valve, so be it — that's the way the nuclear reactor crumbles.

The liberals keep pointing toward the sun. They are not willing to accept the practicalities of the world we live in. They refuse to believe the assurances of either government "experts" or spokesmen from our great private power companies that nuclear energy is the safest, cheapest and most efficient form of power. They have a thing about mushroom clouds and radioactive drinking water which is hard for most conservatives to comprehend.

I can go either way on nuclear energy, depending how the wind is blowing.

Since Harrisburg is only 100 miles west of Washington, D.C., I admit I was pretty nervous during the crisis. Every morning when I got up I went outside and stuck my finger in the air. If the wind was blowing away from Washington, I was pro-nuke.

But on mornings when I discovered the wind was blowing directly from Harrisburg, I went back into the house and told my wife, "I think Jane Fonda is right."

hurt, too late to join or oppose any protest procession.

Finding a moral in all this, or at least a way out of the graveyard, I hope again the Selleck brothers were felled by some bitter wintry blast and not the wanton wickedness of some graveyard ghouls.

If it was an unseen hand of hate or stupidity that vandalized this gray garden of peace after so many generations had left it alone, I commend to their attention the epitaph Shakespeare wrote for himself, which might be a worthy inscription for the two fathers to hang on the iron gate of the Selleck family plot: "Good friend, for Jesus's sake forbear

To dig the dust enclosed here. Blest be the man that spares these stones, Cursed be he that moves my bones."

The action by Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, leaves her two bills in a virtually unprecedented legislative limbo.

Mrs. Mathis filed the bills Monday night for formal introduction Tuesday. But as the Senate convened Tuesday she asked that her bills not be introduced, citing "crucial negotiations" between UNC and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

UNC President William C. Friday said later he had not asked Mrs. Mathis to withhold the legislation. But Friday said he strongly opposed both bills.

Mrs. Mathis' proposals would offer two ways of generating an estimated $20 million, to be used to make building improvements on the five traditionally black campuses of UNC.

One one would have ordered a 10 percent tuition hike for resident and non-resident students at all 16 UNC campuses, and made other operating budget reductions.

The other would have generated the money by increasing class size — and thus reducing the number of professors — on all 16 UNC campuses.

"That would constitute a material variance in the academic levels," Friday said. "It would be a major change in the middle of the negotiation process. It would undercut a lot of people."

The tuition increase was proposed by Mrs. Mathis earlier in the session and was rejected by an appropriations committee.

HEW has begun steps toward cutting off part of the university's nearly $90 million in annual federal aid, because of the dispute over desegregating the university system and improving traditionally black campuses.

Mrs. Mathis said she was asked not to introduce the bills by Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee.

The action leaves the bills on file in the Senate clerk's office but not officially before the General Assembly.

Royal said he made the request on his own after consulting with Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green because he believed the presence of the bills would damage the university's negotiating position with HEW.

"I think they'd be in a lot better position to negotiate without it," Royall said.

Mrs. Mathis said she still intends to introduce the bill, but will wait until Royall tells her the time is right — probably several weeks, she said.

Another bill introduced in response to the UNC-HEW dispute, calling for a legislative study commission to examine possible campus mergers or consolidations, was taken up in the House Higher Education Committee Tuesday.

Carter Talks Tough On Oil

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he'll work with Congress or do the job himself as long as the results meet his demand: America's oil companies must use half of any new profits from decontrolled oil prices to search for more oil or gas.

Carter's signal that he might need congressional help to back up the demand he made in his energy speech last Thursday came during a Tuesday news conference in which he also apparently softened his standby gasoline-rationing position to put it more in line with Senate wishes.

Congress has already given frosty receptions to Carter's request for a 50 percent tax on "windfall profits" expected to flow from the phased oil decontrol he's ordered to begin June 1 and to his standby federal gasoline-rationing program calling for purchase coupons based in part on the number of cars a person owns.

Under Carter's decontrol plan, half of all "excess profits" would go into a special fund for development of alternate energy sources and for cushioning the blow of inevitably higher energy prices for poor people.

For the remaining profits, estimated at $6 billion over three years, Carter said, "The nation has a right to expect that all this new income will be used for exploration for new oil and gas, and not to buy timberlands and department stores."

He said he would support constraints imposed by either the executive branch or Congress on the oil companies' use of profits. But neither Carter nor other administration officials would say what actions he might take aside from proposing legislation to Congress.

As for gasoline-rationing, Carter said that before the Energy Department imposed rationing requirements, "my own inclination is to let the states make the first effort to meet reduced consumption standards."

On other subjects brought up at the news conference, Carter said:

—He continues to support the use of nuclear energy despite the recent accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania. "There is no way for us to abandon the nuclear supply of energy in our country for the foreseeable future," he said.

—Progress continues in strategic arms limitation talks, but "there are still a few issues that remain to be resolved — clarifications in the stance of the American negotiators and the Soviet negotiators."

—He knows of no violations of law concerning loans of more than $6.5 million by the National Bank of Georgia to his family peanut business, and he will cooperate fully with federal investigations of the loans.

—He sees no immediate prospect for reinstatement of a military draft. "We are meeting the requirements of the armed forces adequately," he said.

—He does not favor a proposed constitutional amendment under consideration in Congress that would have the effect of nullifying a Supreme Court decision forbidding prayer in public schools. "I think it ought to be an individual matter between a person and God," he said.

—He hopes to submit a balanced federal budget in January but isn't making any promises.

Finally Acquire Dental Facility

SWAN QUARTER, N.C. (AP) — The dedication on Thursday of a new dental facility is seen as the first step in alleviating the problem of inadequate dental care in largely rural Hyde County.

"We can now hope to provide a full range of dental care to the residents of Hyde County," Ann Benson, administrative director of the Hyde Rural Health Corp., said Tuesday.

Ms. Benson said a $50,000 building for the countywide dental health program would be formally dedicated at 4 p.m. Thursday. The building, financed by Edenton pharmacist John Mitchener, will be operated by the health corporation, a private non-profit group.

A certified dentist is expected to move into the 1,400-square-foot building by late summer.

"For the first time in more than 20 years, there'll be a dentist in the county," said Ms. Benson. "Now people won't have to drive 60 miles to another county to get adequate dental treatment."

The last dentist in the county, Dr. Cecil Rhoades Lupton, moved to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in the 1950s to work as a dental surgeon.

"We've had a hard time attracting dentists because we are a small rural area," Ms. Benson said. "The population isn't clustered, there are no incorporated towns and people are just spread out over the county."

The new facility will house three rooms equipped with dental chairs and X-ray units. Additional space will be available for a business office, reception area, an X-ray laboratory and a special audio-visual room for ongoing patient education.

Optician Ad Ban Barred

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State laws prohibiting opticians from advertising eyeglass prices and offering gifts, premiums or discounts to customers are unconstitutional, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Court Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. said he struck down the advertising bans because they interfered with the opticians' constitutional right of free speech.

The ruling is expected to have little practical effect because opticians have been permitted to engage in price advertising since last spring, after an opinion by Millard R. Rich Jr., a state deputy attorney general.

"The main thing the consumer wants to know is that (the decision) is not going to make any difference in the way opticians operate their offices," said John N. Fountain, a Raleigh attorney who represents the N.C. Opticians Association.

The General Assembly is considering a bill that would allow opticians to advertise. The bill has passed the House and is in a Senate judiciary committee.

The case before Dupree involved the Rocky Mount outlet of Wall & Ochs Inc., an optical company with offices in several states. In October 1977, the state Board of Opticians fined the firm and one of its employees, Mildred H. Carr, for placing ads in the Rocky Mount Evening Telegram.

The ads offered eyeglass discounts and gifts and premiums.

Dupree said the legal principles involved in the Wall & Ochs case were similar to those in U.S. Supreme Court decisions striking down bans on advertising for prescription drugs and for lawyers' services.

Those cases concerned the protection of commercial speech, which covers advertising.

Deadly Avalanches Of Air A Threat To Aircraft

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly documented dangers may be lurking for aircraft with the arrival of summer.

These are deadly avalanches of air that roar straight down at 50 to 60 mph, according to a well-known atmospheric scientist.

Termed "downbursts" by Dr. T. Theodore Fujita of the University of Chicago, these descending air waves have leveled cornfields, damaged forests, caused a controversy among meteorologists and may have led to major airplane crashes.

While vertical downdrafts and wind shears have been documented for many years, Fujita reports he has recorded them in greater numbers than had been known previously. He developed the term downburst for the most intense of these air flows, defining this as wind moving downward at at least 12 feet per second.

Fujita, in a National Science Foundation research project, detected 10 downbursts in the Chicago area in a 40-day period last summer.

Downbursts are small, he said, three to five miles in diameter, and last only 10 to 15 minutes. But flying into one can spell disaster.

"In my view the season for downbursts is summer. Early summer through September seem to be the downburst months. The storms are not as big as tornadoes, and some pilots may think they can fly through safely, so I just want to say, 'beware,'" Fujita commented.

Fujita developed his theory of downbursts several years ago and has appeared as a witness in National Transportation Safety Board investigations of aircraft accidents. His work is praised by some meteorologists and other experts but questioned by others.

Ed Slattery, a spokesman for the transportation safety board, said of Fujita: "He first proposed this theory at a hearing in the investigation of a Braniff plane that had its tail torn off at the edge of a thunderstorm. The theory behind it seems quite sound."

Slattery noted that he doubted a downburst played a part in the sudden dive of a TWA New York-Minneapolis jetliner over the Midwest last week because there were no storms in the area. The craft pulled out of the dive at the last minute.

Fujita says downbursts develop in a thunderstorm on a summer day when warm air begins to rise through a cloud. Because of momentum, this air overshoots the top of the cloud, creating a dome in the upper air.

It is very cold at this level and the cooled air then begins to drop, collapsing the dome of the cloud and rushing back to the ground, where the stream of air bursts outward, Fujita says.

"This (research) is one of the few big, exciting new things that's happened in severe weather. His work is very convincing," said Vince Oliver of the National Environmental Satellite Service.

"It's a beautiful example of putting together the evidence and coming up with a conclusion different from what we had thought before. I am still unsure about what produces the downburst, but I am 100 percent with him on what is actually happening," Oliver added.

Allen Pearson of the National Severe Storm Forecast Center in Kansas City said he believes Fujita has "demonstrated one of the hazards of turbulent air around a thunderstorm, and in an average year we get more wind damage from a thunderstorm than we do tornadoes."

Less impressed, however, was Edwin Kessler, director of the National Severe Storms Laboratory in Norman, Okla.

"Dr. Fujita has done some good work, but there are some areas here where I definitely disagree with him. One point I know I disagree with ... is that the downburst originates at the top of the cloud and that the air from the top goes all the way down to the ground," Kessler said.

Dr. John McCarthy of the University of Oklahoma said he has found little evidence of downbursts. "That is not to say these don't exist, but we have not been particularly successful in finding them here."

McCarthy said he and others have been analyzing Fujita's theories for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and feel the crashes he studied could have been caused by horizontal as easily as vertical winds. But Fujita noted that besides the downward winds, wind rushing from the center of the burst turn into cross, head or tail winds that could be hazardous to aircraft.

Fujita's study focused on crashes in New York City and Denver in 1975 and Philadelphia in 1976.

In the Denver crash, Fujita said, a strong tailwind caused a loss of airspeed and the plane lost its lifting ability and simply sank to the ground. In New York, the plane lost speed suddenly, then flew into the downburst's center, which Fujita said caused a wing to strike landing lights on the ground. The Philadelphia plane also flew into the center of the burst and crashed on the runway, he said.

Because of the small size and short duration of these bursts they are rarely noted on radar and most aircraft miss them, he said. In addition, most aircraft avoid taking off and landing — the most vulnerable maneuvers — during thunderstorms.

"Very often there is a close interaction between tornadoes and downbursts, and a downburst can even change the path of a tornado," Fujita said. "It's even possible for a strong downburst to wipe out a tornado or to add intensity to one."

Kidnapping Trial Set

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Two members of a controversial religious sect will stand trial in Forsyth County Superior Court this spring on charges of kidnapping the children of two former members.

Marion Martin Jr., 38, and Norman Wilson, 18, both of Winston-Salem, were bound over for trial in Superior Court after a hearing in District Court Tuesday. The two, both members of the New Hope Deliverance and Miracle Center, were arrested March 13 when they appeared at Winston-Salem police headquarters with two infants who had been allegedly abducted from their mothers three days earlier.

The children were unharmed. Martin testified at the hearing that he is the father of both children. He said he and Robinson peacefully took the infants from the house shared by the two women because the women were drinking and smoking marijuana.

The two women testified that Martin is not the father. They said he blamed them for the arrest of another New Hope member in a separate incident, and they said he told them they would get their children back when that man was released from jail.

New Hope is a faith-healing sect with about 30 adults and 30 children as members.

Martin remained free after posting $10,000 bond. Wilson remained in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

No trial date was set pending arraignment for the two in Superior Court next month.

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Heavy automatic weapons fire was poured into pockets of Ugandan holdouts, silencing them.

The Tanzanians and their Ugandan allies completed their penetration of the city during the night, charging isolated groups of Amin's troops in attacks launched by bugle calls.

Msekwa was reported to have had morning tea with the North Korean ambassador.

Kampalans greeted the invaders as they moved in from the south, swarming over three Tanzanian tanks and decorating them with flowers.

Looting Ugandans were seen at work in the city in the morning, and there were bodies of Ugandan troops who apparently had been beaten to death. Some of the looters tried to share their booty with the Tanzanians, but the invaders told them to return the goods.

The Tanzanians estimated that 25 to 30 Ugandan soldiers were killed during their advance into the center of the city. They said the invasion force suffered virtually no casualties.

Bodies of two whites, a man and a woman, lay alongside a car that had been hit by gunfire.

The Tanzanian forces were trying to stop civilian auto traffic in the city because Ugandan troops were believed trying to flee in cars.

Amin's Radio Uganda continued to broadcast music, but apparently it was using a transmitter outside Kampala. The Tanzanians overran the central broadcasting station in the heart of the city during the night.

How The N.C. Delegation Cast Votes

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 29 through April 4.

HOUSE
PANAMA — The House adopted, 272 for and 117 against, an amendment eliminating $2.5 million in military aid to Panama. The vote came during debate on HR 3173, a foreign military-aid bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., sponsor of the amendment, said that under the new Panama Canal Treaty the Panamanian government next year would receive at least $65 million in canal tolls. Partly because of this "new direct income" it no longer needs U.S. military aid, he said.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wisc., an opponent, said the amendment would harm U.S. security, because loss of U.S. military aid would make it difficult for Panama "to fulfill its obligation in the joint defense of the canal."

Most of those voting "yea" were either conservatives who disliked the new treaty or members who objected to the repression of human rights by the Panamanian military dictatorship.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

OCS COMMITTEE — The House voted, 194 for and 172 against, to extend the life of the Select Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf through June 30, 1980. The annual budget not counting staff salaries is about $300,000. Originally the panel was created on a temporary basis, to write a law governing the development of offshore oil and gas resources. In its extended life, it will conduct oversight in an effort to see the law fully implemented.

Rep. Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., a supporter, said that "if we are going to have an accelerated program to insure development of any energy potential from the Outer Continental Shelf...we need the OCS committee...to make sure that those processes are not foiled by the bureaucracy."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz, an opponent, noted that other House committees already perform the proposed OCS committee mission. He added: "If members want to save the taxpayers some money and put an end to a committee that has done its job...they will vote against the select committee."

Members voting "nay" were opposed to continuing the select committee.

Jones, Fountain, Andrews and Hefner voted "yea."

Whitley, Neal, Preyer, Rose and Broyhill voted "nay."

Martin and Gudger did not vote.

OPEC AID — The House rejected, 175 for and 222 against, an amendment to eliminate foreign aid to members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). The amendment was proposed to HR 3324, the fiscal 1981 foreign aid bill, which was headed toward final passage. OPEC nations, which recently increased the price of their oil by at least nine per cent, would get $100 million in direct and indirect non-military aid from the bill.

Rep. Joseph Minish, D-N.J., a supporter of the cut, said "it is about time that the U.S. put a halt to OPEC's greedy price gouging and profiteering...it is totally contradictory that we cite OPEC as a major cause for the inflation we face today and then turn around and give those countries" foreign aid.

Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., an opponent, said: "We have members...weep tears about the gouging of the American people. I suspect the same members are fervently in favor of decontrolling the price of U.S. crude oil and gasoline, which would, of course, further gouge the American people."

Members voting "yea" favored eliminating U.S. foreign aid to OPEC countries.

Fountain, Neal, Rose, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea." Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Hefner and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE
RENEGOTIATION BOARD — The Senate failed, 28 for and 56 against, to keep alive the Renegotiation Board. The agency, which went out of business a few days before this vote, for the past 25 years has recaptured what it judged to be excess profits earned by defense companies on government contracts. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2283 (see vote below).

Sen. William Proxmire, D-

Wisc., a supporter of the agency, said it brings in ten dollars for every dollar it costs. He termed it "ironic" that congressmen "who want to see the federal budget balanced are also going along with the movement to abolish" the board.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said: "Two of the best days this country has had this year were the two days it snowed (in Washington). Nobody could get in here to do anything....It is about time we start...reducing bureaucracy, balancing the budget...."

Senators voting "nay" were opposed to keeping the Renegotiation Board in existence.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D, did not vote.

WAGE COUNCIL — The Senate passed, 62 for and 22 against, a bill (Hr 2283) extending the life of the Council on Wage and Price Stability for another year. The bill, which increases the council staff from 39 to 233 and sets an annual budget level of $8.48 million, was sent back to the House for final congressional action. The council, an arm of the White House, oversees President Carter's wage and price guidelines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., a supporter, said "we should not kill the only agency we have...to fight inflation."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., an opponent, said: "An enlarged role for the council will bring more changes, rules, regulations and reports...when the business community is already reeling" from previous council actions.

Senators voting "yea" favored extending the life of the council.

Helms voted "nay." Morgan did not vote.

Cancer Crusade Plans Mapped

Volunteer chairmen involved in this year's Pitt County Cancer Crusade met this week at the home of the campaign chairmen, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Brewer, to discuss distribution of the crusade's educational packages.

Inez Martinez and Mary Ann Gray, president and coordinator, respectively, of the Pitt County Cancer Crusade, emphasized to the volunteers that the distribution of cancer educational material is just as important as collecting donations.

It was pointed out that this year's Cancer Crusade slogan, "You Do Make A Difference," was chosen to encourage people to be alert and recognize their own symptoms and have annual health checkups.

Activities scheduled during the upcoming campaign include the Walter Hagen Golf Tournament on May 18, a celebration banquet on May 1, and a swim meet early in June.

The main solicitation efforts this year will be centered around Cancer Crusade Day on April 22.

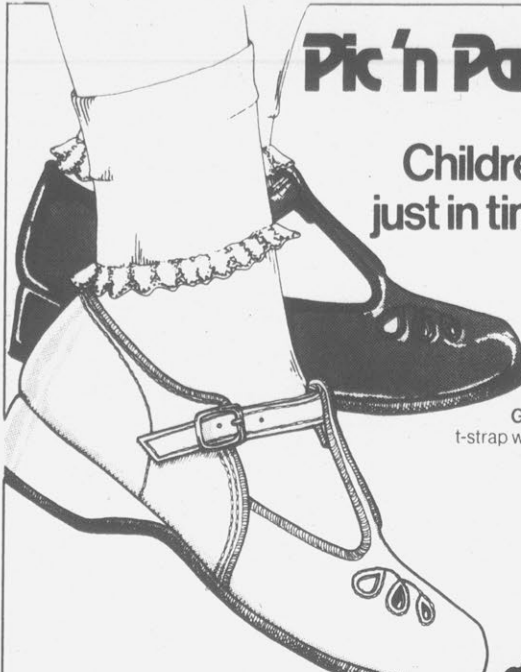

Crusade officials reported at the meeting that volunteers are still needed to help with campaign activities in the Fountain, Swift Creek and Grimesland townships.

Various local chairmen who are serving this year include: (residential) Mrs. Martha Ferrell and Mrs. Thelma Moore; (area) Mrs. Julie Surles, Mrs. Betty Bailey, Mrs. Margie Nobles, Mrs. Connie Dilday, and Mrs. Sue Pennington; (business) Van C. Fleming Jr.;

(medical profession) Dr. Jack Welch; and (special events) Dr. Wallace Woolles for the golf tournament and Ray Martinez for the swim meet.

Township chairmen include: Winterville, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Waters; Ayden, Craig Quick; Grifton, Mrs. Walter Foss; Arthur, Mrs. Ann Jones; Belvoir, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carroll; Bethel, Mrs. Frances Young; Carolina, Mrs. Hazel Cherry; Chicod, Mrs. Mary Dixon; Falkland, Mrs. Marguerite Grant; Farmville, Mrs. Bernice Newton; and Pactolus, Mrs. Wanda Oakley.

Advises Ponder Downstalk Plan

Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Gaylon Ambrose suggests that each farmer consider all the factors in deciding whether or not to harvest the four bottom leaves this tobacco season.

Ambrose noted that demand for downstalk tobacco is weak, with little hope of price increases for priming grades. If farmers will reduce the amount of downstalk tobacco on the market floor, the Flue-Cured Cooperative Tobacco Stabilization Corporation will have a better chance in selling off some of the large inventory of P and N grades from previous years' purchases, according to Ambrose.

Farmers should also consider the effect of not harvesting the bottom leaves on their net revenue, said Ambrose. Yields and gross income will be reduced, but the average selling price may be increased if the bottom leaves are harvested.

If the bottom leaves are not harvested, average production costs will increase. If additional acreage is planted to make up for the weight of the primings, variable production costs associated with this acreage will increase total cost. Additional barns, equipment, and labor necessary to handle more tobacco in a shorter period of time will also contribute to costs.

Harvesting and curing costs per pound are usually higher for downstalk tobacco. This cost reduction will help Ambrose suggest that a farmer estimate his gross income and production costs from selling the entire plant versus selling the upstalk tobacco.

According to Ambrose, if a farmer has been selling his downstalk leaf for well above the market average, he may lose money by not selling it. However, if a farmer's primings usually sell below the average price, he would probably make more money selling only upstalk tobacco and leaving the lower leaves in the fields to rot.

"Unfortunately, the quality of the lower leaves is often dependent upon the growing season," said Ambrose. "So a farmer may have to wait to harvest time to decide whether it is profitable to harvest those leaves."

It has been noted, Ambrose says, that the poorest primings come from crops where the growing season is best for the highest overall yield. Therefore, a farmer should be able to meet his quota without harvesting the primings.

If a farmer should fall short of meeting his quota, he may carry over the unused quota or fall lease it. Also, with lower 1979 effective quotas in most counties, lease prices will be higher, squeezing the profit margin on downstalk tobacco. The lower effective quotas will also relieve pressure on existing labor, equipment and barns.

Ambrose points out that buying additional barns in order to cure more upstalk tobacco may be a risky venture, since the decision to harvest lower leaves may change from year to year.

"Incurring such a long term debt to accommodate a short run decision could be risky," he noted. "A farmer could be eventually forced to produce tobacco for a small potential profit just to make payments on the debt or even worse, be forced to produce tobacco at a loss to cover the debt."

Marvin Case Goes To Jury

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin's lawyer tearfully urged a judge to give the former showgirl half of Lee Marvin's millions, crying out: "I implore this court to treat her fairly."

Marvin Mitchelson was the last lawyer to speak in final arguments as the Hollywood-style courtroom drama of love and money neared its crucial last act Tuesday.

His comments came at the end of nearly six hours of summations in which Marvin's chief attorney, A. David Kagon, said the actor never promised Miss Marvin a share of property and insisted that she is entitled to nothing.

"One of the reasons people don't get married," Kagon said, "is that they don't want the responsibilities and obligations."

The last words in the landmark case were left to Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall, who said he will ponder some 8,000 pages of testimony before issuing a written ruling.

Marshall, who said he hopes to rule early next week, must decide whether Miss Marvin is entitled to half of the fortune Marvin made during the six years the actor and the former showgirl lived together as lovers. Miss Marvin's suit asks specifically for $1.8 million.

"He took both halves and we want our half back, or part of our half back," Mitchelson told the judge.

He stressed that Miss Marvin had loved the actor and was devoted to him during their affair.

"Michelle has broken down a few times on the stand here and shed a few tears," he recalled. "That was not an act. It's obvious she was in love with this man and would have done anything in the world for him and hated to lose him."

At day's end, Miss Marvin, 46, quietly wept once more as Mitchelson recalled her former role as helpmate to the 55-year-old actor.

"Just think of how many times she comforted him, and I don't mean sexually," he said. "Think of how many times she held his head up, how many hangers he had, how many times she got him off a barstool."

The white-haired Marvin stared glumly at Mitchelson as the attorney's voice rose to a crescendo in the crowded courtroom.

"Fairness is what this is about," Mitchelson said, his voice breaking. "I implore this court to treat her fairly. She gave something to this man. She helped him acquire this property. She deserves something."

Uniform Sentencing Plan Meets Criticism

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lawyers and laymen criticized Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed uniform sentencing bill in a public hearing Tuesday, charging it would mean even longer prison terms and do away with the discretion of judges in levying sentences.

Several groups said they agreed with the concept of putting crimes in categories and establishing uniform sentences for each, as the bill proposes. But they said the proposed sentences for crimes included in the bill were too long.

Collins Kilburn, lobbyist for the N.C. Council of Churches, said his group had major reservations about the bill.

"We're afraid the bill will lead to longer sentences than there are now."

He said state corrections officials believe it will increase the state's prison population by 2,000 inmates.

Under the bill, which is now before a House judiciary panel, a judge would be expected to issue the sentence corresponding in law to the category unless he showed in writing that there were mitigating or aggravating circumstances.

A spokesman for the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers said the bill would limit the discretion of judges. "It is a step toward assembly-line justice," said Joy Hamilton, the academy's executive director.

Superior Court Judge James Pou Bailey spoke in favor of the bill but said legislators should be aware it will mean more expenditures.

"I would ask the legislature if they believe the bill is good and they pass it, they should do so with the knowledge that it will cost money." But he said he had no estimate of the expected increased cost.

In other legislative developments Tuesday:

Bottle Bill

A House panel got its first look at a controversial bill that would require a 5-cent deposit on drink containers and sent the measure off to a subcommittee.

Proponents told the committee the bill would bring an end to the unsightly roadside litter dotting the state's landscape. But opponents said it would drive the cost of the drinks up and put people who make containers out of work.

The bill, which was introduced by Rep. Dave Diamond, D-Surry, would require a 5-cent deposit on drink containers that hold 16 ounces or less, including aluminum cans, plas-

Feeder Pig Sale Is Brisk

A total of 17,332 feeder pigs were sold on 13 state graded sales during the week of April 2, according to the Market News Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Prices were lower by $8.40 to $8.90 on 40-50 pound pigs and $3.20 to $4.80 on 50-70 pound pigs. U. S. 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $103.22 per 100 pounds with No. 3's $93.25; 50-60 pound 1-2's averaged $94.91, No. 3's $83.52; 60-70 pound 1-2's, $83.03, No. 3's $74.10; 70-80 pound 1-2's $73.35 per 100 pounds, with No. 3's, $66.49.

Small Engine Repair Course

Pitt Technical Institute will offer a course in small engine repair Thursday, April 12, 7 p.m. The class will meet each Thursday from 7-10 p.m. in room 23 of the Administration Bldg.

tic and glass bottles. It would apply to all kinds of drinks except vegetable juices and dairy products.

The deposit would be refunded when the empties are returned to the retailer selling the drink or a redemption center.

Small retail store owners oppose the bill because it would mean they would have to store the returned containers until they could hand them over to distributors. Distributors oppose it because they would have to collect the empties from retailers, paying 1 cent for each.

Banks

A bill revising the state's banking statutes, and including a requirement that the names of the bank stockholders be public record, won tentative House approval with little debate.

The bill is a major rewrite of banking laws, and would double the amount of loans a bank official could receive from his bank.

The requirement that lists of shareholders' names be kept on file with the Banking Commissioner — which is part of the current law — drew fire in a public hearing earlier Tuesday.

John Jordan, lobbyist for the banking industry, told the Senate Banking Committee that provision and another bill requiring a majority of public members on the state Banking Commission constituted an "attack on shareholders in state-chartered banks."

The other bill, requiring the regulatory commissions for banks, savings and loans and credit unions to be composed of a majority of persons without ties to the industry they regulate, has passed the House and is before the Senate.

Loans

The House gave final approval to a Senate-passed bill clearing the way for savings and loan associations to make graduated payment mortgages. Those are loans in which the monthly payments are lower in the first years of the loan and increase in size after three or five years.

The bill allows savings and loans to charge penalties on interest that goes unpaid during the early years of the loan, a change S&L's said was needed before they could offer the graduated mortgages.

Private Schools

The Rev. Kent Kelly of Southern Pines, a leader of fundamentalist church schools seeking bills that would remove most state regulation of their schools, said he didn't like the makeup of a House subcommittee named to study the measures.

Two bills, deregulating the fundamentalist schools and other private schools, have been approved by the Senate and referred to subcommittee by the House Education Committee.

The bills are opposed by state education officials.

Sunset

A bill that would extend the life of the state Board of Watchmaking and Repair was approved by the House State Government Committee and sent to the full House.

The bill is aimed at reviving the board despite a sunset commission recommendation that it be allowed to expire this July, as scheduled under 1977 legislation.

The watch repair regulatory board is supported by watch repairmen, and has become the focal point of debate over the entire sunset process.

New Bills

A bill rewriting the state's law on health maintenance organizations, making them easier to establish, was filed by Rep. Ted Kaplan, D-Forsyth.

An HMO is an alternative to health insurance, in which a person pays regular a pre-paid fee for doctors' care and health services.

VIR: A Very Important Reason For Choosing GE's New Color Console TV

These two beautiful 25" diagonal color consoles have G.E.'s Emmy Award winning VIR color system and single-knob tuning system for brilliant color television performance. Here's how the "broadcast controlled" VIR color system works:

Sophisticated, computer-like circuitry built into the set monitors the broadcaster's own color reference signal, called VIR, now transmitted with many programs. Then uses it to adjust color and tint—60 times a second for the entire color picture. So flesh tones are life-like, and background colors are brilliant. On a G.E. VIR set, a small red light indicates when you are receiving a program broadcast with the VIR signal. If you prefer color intensity and tint levels other than those established by the VIR signal, personal preference controls allow you to make the necessary adjustments. These sets also feature the room light sensor. It monitors room lighting conditions and automatically regulates color intensity, contrast, and brightness—in balance—to keep the picture bright as room light changes. A custom picture control lets you manually set the desired level to satisfy your own personal preference. Of course, both sets also have a 100% solid state chassis for long set life, reliability, and lower energy consumption than comparable sets with vacuum tubes. Another big plus is modular chassis design, which reduces the need for in-shop service and permits prompt service diagnosis and fast repair right in your home.

The set-and-forget volume control lets you set the volume at the level you prefer and never adjust it again—even when you turn the set off or on. The line voltage regulator eliminates picture size change caused by normal AC power variations. The Cable-Ready® antenna connector allows easy antenna hook-up. #54544,45 $589⁹⁷

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, despite some strength in individual issues responding to first-quarter earnings reports.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped .08 to 878.64 in the first half hour.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the good results shown by the handful of companies that have posted their first-quarter earnings so far helped the market advance on Tuesday.

United Technologies, for example, reported a 33.8 percent earnings gain. United Technologies shares, up 1 on Tuesday, added another 1/4 to 40 today.

The market also benefitted Tuesday from word of a tentative agreement between the Teamsters union and the trucking industry, which has been struck since April 1.

But brokers said increased talk of an impending economic slump apparently dampened buying interest somewhat today.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.02 to 878.72, its highest close since it finished at 897.09 last Oct. 13.

Advances outnumbered declines by an 8-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 31.90 million shares against 27.23 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index gained .30 to 58.18.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .43 at 181.53.

Rampants Trim Bruins By 7-1 Score

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
BLACK CREEK — Rose High's Rampants, playing their best baseball game of the season, came out with their bats blazing yesterday afternoon and blasted Beddingfield 7-1.

Rose had seven hits in the game, and two of them went for extra bases, including a slumping home run by Ronnie Chapman.

Mike Williams went the distance against the Bruins, who came into the contest with only one loss in eight starts. He held them to just two hits and narrowly missed getting a shutout when a Rampant error in the seventh allowed the home team to score.

"This is the best game we've played so far," Rampant coach Ronald Vincent said after it was over. "We were very aggressive with the bats and we made the defensive plays we had to."

Vincent said, "It was good to see us swinging the bats aggressively. We had seven hits and several more line drives we hit well."

The coach also praised the work of Williams, who struck out six while walking four. "Williams threw the ball real well. They (Beddingfield) are capable of hitting the ball real well."

Beddingfield used a pair of hurlers, starter Keith Whitley, who pitched four innings and gave up all seven runs, and relief man Doug Godwin, who hurled the remaining three frames without giving up a hit.

Only three of Rose's runs were earned. Whitley's record fell to 1-1 with the loss, while the Bruins are now 8-2 overall and 2-2 in Division I.

Mark Shank and Will Sanderson scored the first two Rose runs in the top of the opening inning. Both got base hits and Sanderson stole second. Shank scored on a passed ball and Sanderson went to third. He came in on an infield out by Will Barrett.

Barrett led off the fourth with a single, going to third when the Bruin center fielder misplayed the ball. Williams hit a fielder's choice to third, but Barrett scored when the ball was erred. Courtesy runner Robert Morehead stole second, moved to third on Joey Mattheis' sacrifice, beating the throw and he scored on an error.

Sanderson walked in the top of the fifth and Chapman followed with a shot over the fence in right field. "He hasn't been hitting all that well," Vincent said of the homer, "but he tattooed that one. When we came out before the game, I didn't think anyone could hit the ball out of here."

Skip Topping followed the home run with a single and Morehead, running for him, stole second. Barrett was hit by a pitch and Williams reached on an error to move Morehead to third. He scored on Junior Neal's infield out, a slow roller down the third base line.

The Rampants, who played excellent defense, Vincent said, allowed runners to reach third on three occasions, but didn't give up a run until the bottom of the seventh.

Graham Whitley started things off when he doubled to right field, the second Bruin hit of the game. Williams then lay. Williams struck out the final batter.

The Rampants are now 7-1 overall and 4-1 in Division I play. They will play at Bertie Thursday afternoon in another conference encounter.

Wild Richard Gets Win

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

At 6-foot-8, J.R. Richard is the tallest player in the major leagues.

He also is the "wildest." Not in the sense of wild and crazy. Richard, despite his size, is quiet and soft spoken.

But wild in the sense of wild pitches. Oh, is he wild!

Richard, in fact, established himself as the wildest pitcher in modern baseball history, throwing a record six wild pitches in a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night.

"Maybe some of them (the six wild pitches) should have been stopped," Richard said after his scatter-armed performance against the two-time National League West champions. "But catching me isn't easy sometimes."

Richard, who set a National League record for right-handers with 303 strikeouts last year, is too strong to hit frequently. He struck out 13 and allowed only six hits.

The six wild pitches broke the modern mark — since 1900 — of five set by Charles Wheatley of Detroit in 1912 and equalled by Larry Cheney of Brooklyn in 1918. John Ryan of the 1876 Louisville team holds the all-time record of 10 wild pitches in one game.

In other National League games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 7-3, San Francisco downed San Diego 4-2, Atlanta topped Cincinnati 6-4, St. Louis whipped the Chicago Cubs 7-0, and Montreal outlasted the New York Mets 3-2 in 14 innings.

Phillies 7, Pirates 3

Pete Rose, who cost the Phillies $3.2 million for a four-year contract during the off-season, began paying dividends against the Pirates. Rose ripped two doubles and a single, walked once and scored once, while advancing two places on baseball's all-time career list. The two doubles lifted Rose's career total to 504, putting him ahead of Charley Gehringer for eighth place, and his four at-bats increased his total to 10,210, passing Tris Speaker for eighth place on the all-time list.

Giants 4, Padres 2
John Tamargo, the Giants' No.3 catcher, was the hero, blasting a two-out, two-run pinch homer in the bottom of the ninth inning, breaking a 2-2 tie. But it was Willie McCovey, the Giants' 41-year-old elder statesman who was given the most applause by the crowd of 56,196, the largest opening-day attendance for the Giants in Candlestick Park history.

McCovey, who singled preceding Tamargo's game-winning shot, received three standing ovations — during the pregame introduction of players, when he came out to pinch hit and when he was removed for a pinch runner. McCovey has three pinch hits in three attempts this year.

Cardinals 7, Cubs 0
St. Louis used the long ball and the combined seven-hit pitching of Bob Sykes, Darold Knowles and Tom Bruno to beat the Cubs in a game delayed by rain for 53 minutes at the start of the seventh inning.

The Cards' runs came on two-run homers by Lou Brock and George Hendrick, a two-run triple by Tony Scott and an RBI triple by Keith Hernandez. Expos 3, Mets 2, 14 innings Montreal broke a 2-2 tie in the 14th on Jerry White's pinch single and Andre Dawson's RBI triple.

"It was a good game, I thought," said Montreal Manager Dick Williams, reflecting on the four-hour marathon. "We owe ourselves a beer. We earned one."

EARLY PRACTICE
FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Stan Morrison, Pacific basketball coach, was incensed enough to order a 7 a.m. practice drill for his players after they lost to St. Mary's.

Rick Paulsen, the leader in practical jokes on the squad, said he would bring a sleeping bag to the gym to be sure of reporting on time. The other players followed suit, arriving with sleeping bags, bean-bag beds, mattresses and blankets. Top scorer Terence Carney slept on the hardwood floor.

Caldwell Wins Second

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Not only is Mike Caldwell after Ron Guidry's Cy Young Award, it looks like he's out to make people forget Guidry as well.

The Milwaukee left-hander, runnerup to Guidry in last year's Cy Young voting, hurled a five-hitter Tuesday and stretched his string of scoreless innings to 17 as the Brewers blanked the Boston Red Sox 3-0.

Meanwhile, Guidry also was staked to a 3-0 lead but he and New York relief ace Rich Gosage failed to hold it, although the Yankees rallied to nip the Baltimore Orioles 7-6.

Robin Yount supplied a homer and sacrifice fly as the Brewers won their home opener before a crowd of 54,392.

In other AL action, the Minnesota Twins trounced the California Angels 8-1, the Texas Rangers whipped the Cleveland Indians 5-0, the Toronto Blue Jays crushed the Chicago White Sox 10-2 and the Seattle Mariners downed the Oakland A's 4-1. The Detroit-Kansas City game was rained out.

Yankees 7, Orioles 6
Reggie Jackson's two-run pinch homer in the eighth inning and a solo blast by Graig Nettles rallied New York after the Yankees blew a 3-0 lead in the seventh inning. Jackson connected off rookie reliever Sammy Stewart, slicing an opposite-field drive into the left-field bleachers following a pinch single by Jay Johnstone.

Nettles, who singled and scored on a triple by Bucky Dent in the fifth and singled home one of two New York runs in the sixth, then homered for a 6-4 lead. Thurman Munson singled home what proved to be the winning run in the ninth after Dent opened with a double. The Orioles scored twice in the bottom of the ninth.

Twins 8, Angels 1
Veteran Jerry Koosman shut out California for seven innings in his American League debut in the first meeting between the Twins and Angels since the Rod Carew deal. Carew grounded out twice and walked three times for California while Ron Jackson hit a two-run homer and Ken Landreaux delivered an RBI single for Minnesota.

Koosman, who spent 11 seasons with the New York Mets, outdueled Frank Tanana, allowing eight hits, walking four and striking out five in 72-3 innings.

Rangers 5, Indians 0
Al Oliver drove in three runs with a pair of homers into the teeth of a 38-mile-an-hour wind as the Rangers opened their home season behind the seven-hit pitching of Doyle Alexander and Jim Kern. Oliver tagged Rick Wise for a solo homer in the first inning and added a two-run shot in the third.

Blue Jays 10, White Sox 2
Bob Bailor drove in three runs and Rick Bosetti, John Mayberry and Dave McKay each knocked in two while 20-year-old pitcher Phil Huffman made a successful major league debut as Toronto spoiled the White Sox' home opener. Huffman scattered seven hits in six innings and allowed one run.

Mariners 4, A's 1
Bruce Bochte hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning to power Seattle past the winless A's. Bochte's game-winning blow came after Julio Cruz doubled with two out and Dan Meyer singled. Glenn Abbott pitched 72-3 strong innings for the Mariners, giving up six hits, including Wayne Gross' seventh-inning homer.

Nuggets, Suns Take Openers

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

So who needs George McGinnis?

Apparently not the Denver Nuggets. Center Dan Issel outplayed Los Angeles' mighty Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Tom Boswell contributed 19 points as a starter in place of the injured McGinnis as the Nuggets defeated the Lakers 110-105 Wednesday night in the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff mini-series.

Denver can wrap up its best-of-three first-round series with a victory at Los Angeles Friday night.

In Wednesday night's other playoff game, the Phoenix Suns beat the Portland Trail Blazers 107-103. The second game of that series will be played in Portland Friday night.

The two Eastern Conference series get under way tonight, with the New Jersey Nets at Philadelphia 76ers and Atlanta Hawks at Houston Rockets.

Issel led the Nuggets with a season-high 30 points, including a three-point play that gave Denver its biggest lead at 85-67 with 4:52 left in the third period.

Los Angeles got its fast break going and outscored the Nuggets 23-8 to close within three, but could come no closer as David Thompson hit a free throw and Issel and Charlie Scott contributed baskets to push the lead back up to eight.

McGinnis suffered torn ligaments in his left ankle March 30 and has not played since. He was reactivated by the Nuggets in order to become eligible for the playoffs, but isn't expected to play until the late rounds, if at all.

"If there was a key statistic, I'd say it was rebounding," said Denver Coach Donniss

Walsh. "We beat them 45-37 on the boards, even without McGinnis. Issel played Abdul-Jabbar as well as anyone can, keeping him occupied the whole game, and Boswell gave us a big lift inside."

Lakers Coach Jerry West said his team dug itself too much of a hole. "We played very well the last 18 minutes, but we buried ourselves early," he said. "I think we'll play better at home on Friday."

Phoenix led by 10 midway through the first period before Portland rallied to close within one at 102-101 with 1:15 to go. A basket by Paul Westphal and a free throw by Walter Davis gave the Suns a four-point lead, and a basket by Portland's Ron Brewer was offset by a basket by Davis in the closing seconds.

Westphal led the Suns with 28 points and Davis had 25, with Davis getting 11 points in the fourth quarter and Westphal 10. Rookies Ron Brewer and Mychal Thompson were high scorers for Portland with 26 and 22 points, respectively.

Phoenix shot 56 percent in the game to Portland's 48 percent, making up for a 45-30 rebounding deficit.

A-G Tops Firebirds

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton gained a 10-5 softball victory over Southern Nash yesterday.

The Lady Chargers pushed over four runs in the first and added a like number in the second. Their other two came in the fifth. Southern scored twice each in the fourth and fifth and got another run in the sixth.

Evelyn Artis was the winning pitcher. Shanda Brock led the A-G hitting with four, including a solo homer in the sixth. Marie Lewis added three hits. S. Hardy and B. Brown each had two for the Firebirds.

Ayden-Grifton is 3-4 and plays host to Greene Central today.

Gail Cates got the win. Lisa Hardy and Angie Roberson each had three hits for Conley, while Lexanne Keeter had two.

Conley is now 7-2 overall and 5-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. They play at Farmville Central on Thursday.

A 'Volcano War' Held Possibility

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Now comes the chilling possibility of "war by volcano."

It could be done, says John Gribbin in a frightening new book. Just pop an atom bomb down the throat of a volcano and stand back.

The idea sounds far-fetched, but Dr. Gribbin says in "This Shaking Earth" it "is now being discussed openly as a serious possibility by some politicians and futurologists."

This is true even though American or Soviet cities, for instance, are nowhere near active volcanoes. The reason is that a massive eruption like the one which pulverized the island of Krakatoa in 1883 spews so much dust high into the stratosphere that the earth's entire climate is changed.

"If an explosion on the scale of Krakatoa could be triggered, the extremely widespread effects might be seen to work to the advantage of certain states," Gribbin says.

"Cooling at high latitudes, severe winters and so on would hit the developed northern nations much more severely than those of the Third World." So the idea of "nuclear blackmail of the rich nations by the poor" using volcanic war must be taken seriously.

This spine-chilling notion is a small part of "This Shaking Earth," just published by Sidgwick and Jackson. The richly illustrated book is a plain man's guide to volcanoes so terrible they "inspire an almost religious awe" and to earthquakes of unimaginable power.

A big earthquake like the one which hit Alaska in 1964 "strikes with the force of a 200,000 megaton nuclear explosion, 400 times as powerful as the combined blast of all nuclear devices ever let off," Gribbin says.

Gribbin is certain an earthquake is going to devastate southern California sooner or later.

"For those living there now, the name of the game is simply Russian roulette," he says.

"The natural reaction — the logical approach — would surely be to keep well away from the regions of the earth where such events take place. But that is not the way of mankind."

He fills a chapter with eye-witness accounts of history's biggest quakes, and they make grim reading. He gives details and "top 20" lists of the worst earthquake and volcano disasters and provides a graphic explanation of "plate tectonics."

This theory demolishes the idea that the solid earth is really solid.

Instead, says astrophysicist Gribbin, author of many books and articles on earth science and climate, our globe is really a series of rafts, floating "plates" which carry whole continents on a slow but inexorable journey around the earth's surface.

When these plates collide or grate together, they rend the earth with quakes or "ring of fire" volcanoes. And according to Gribbin, "no area on earth is utterly immune from earthquakes."

His list of the world's greatest quakes is topped by the 1976 catastrophe which destroyed Tangshan, China. It "may well have been the greatest disaster in human history," he says. Second worst was another Chinese quake 420 years earlier which killed 800,000 people.

The worst volcano, he says, was the explosion of the Greek island of Thera about 450 B.C. It blasted most of the island to dust — the remaining bit is called Santorini today — probably originating the "lost continent of Atlantis" legend. Thera's force was so great it almost certainly destroyed the Minoan civilization of Crete, halfway across the Mediterranean.

The power of any volcano, smaller or bigger than Thera, makes it dangerous to tamper with even for peaceful purposes. When men tried it not long ago, he says, they almost obliterated Iceland.

In 1973, Icelandic and American authorities proposed a small blast to divert lava from an erupting volcano into the sea and away from the town of Heimaey.

"It was only at the last moment," literally with minutes to go, that two scientists realized even this "modest attempt at volcano control" might touch off an explosion they later calculated could have simply wiped Iceland off the earth.

Giving Away Millions Is A Headache

By ED LION

CHICAGO (UPI) — MacArthur Foundation directors have a problem right out of the stuff dreams are made of — how to spend an estimated $35 to $40 million a year.

They're learning it's not all that easy.

John D. MacArthur was one of America's richest men when he died last year at age 80. The crusty son of a minister forged his fortune in the insurance business and in his later years ran his empire from the corner of a Florida motel's coffee house.

MacArthur willed his Chicago-based Bankers Life and Casualty Co. insurance firm — worth an estimated $750 million — to a philanthropic foundation in his and his widow's name.

Under federal law, a foundation must give away 5 percent annually of its assets in the previous year. When a team of auditors is finished examining the worth of Bankers Life, that may amount to about $40 million a year.

"It's really difficult to find effective ways of spending," said MacArthur's son, John R. MacArthur, 58, one of the six directors. "It's easy to spend money wily nilly and fritter it away. But it's hard work to find ways for it to have the maximum effect."

And a dispute — pitting the billionaire's son against other directors — appears to be emerging on the foundation board.

With all his business adroitness, the elder MacArthur acknowledged the difficulty of spending his huge fortune and left no specific guidance on how the money should be spent.

"I'll do what I know best and make it (money)," he once told an associate named as a foundation director. "You guys will have to learn how to spend it."

MacArthur's son, a millionaire in his own right, said, "The purpose paragraph of the foundation does not have any restrictions. There's a wide open field. And it takes a lot of thought."

William T. Kirby, the elder MacArthur's longtime personal lawyer, said being a foundation director is the challenge of his lifetime.

"It's a chance to really help humanity," he said. "And John did not want to run things from the grave. So it's a big job."

Paul Harvey, nationally syndicated radio commentator who was sponsored by Bankers Life, also serves as a foundation director. He calls it "a thrilling challenge."

Unsolicited requests for funding already have poured into the foundation. Harvey said he alone has received thousands of requests which are being catalogued.

"Some of them are really heart-rending," said MacArthur's son. "I got one from a woman who asked for funds to help three geniuses — her children."

But much planning about the ultimate direction of the foundation still has to be worked out. Only $600,000 has been disbursed so far in grants.

Because the foundation only gained actual control of Bankers Life last year, Kirby said a fraction of the 5 percent donation requirement must be spent this year.

Directors recently agreed unanimously to establish a "brain trust" — in which top people in various fields would receive five or six-year grants and thus have the freedom to follow the fancy of their minds. Specifics still must be formulated.

"How could Einstein write a grant application for his theory of relativity before it was discovered?" asked MacArthur. "With this type of program top chosen scholars in all the fields could get funding. Then they wouldn't have to worry about mundane things. Who knows how many Einsteins were lost to us because of institutional impediments? The program could help nurture other geniuses."

"This is an unconventional way to give out money. But if you want to change the world you have to change the way you do things."

Other possible funding areas are culture, government efficiency, health and animal welfare. But directors appear to be split.

MacArthur said he wants about 80 percent of the foundation funds devoted to the brain trust. He said other directors were hesitant about such an extensive program.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: D equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Nicaragua's Fighting Up

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ISIDRO, Nicaragua (AP) — Fighting was reported in half a dozen cities in northern Nicaragua as the Sandinista guerrillas stepped up their war against President Anastasio Somoza.

Among the cities were Esteli, El Sauce, Leon and Condega, but the national guard, Somoza's 10,000-man army, said the situation was under control Tuesday and that 64 guerrillas were killed in three days of fighting along with seven soldiers and nine bystanders.

The guard also denied the guerrillas controlled Esteli, as witnesses claimed, but sent reinforcements and jeeps packed with machine guns and other weapons to the embattled city 18 miles north of San Isidro. The guard also sent a front-end loader, presumably to knock down six-foot barricades the guerrillas were erecting.

The Red Cross said the guard made several forays out of its encircled Esteli compound with an armored vehicle Tuesday night, and that its cannon could be heard firing.

A Red Cross spokesman also said the government agreed to allow a Red Cross supply convoy into Esteli early today and that the Red Cross would try to evacuate all residents who want to leave.

Refugees from the fighting said the guerrillas were better armed and organized than during the two-week September uprising in which an estimated 1,500 persons were killed before four northern cities were recaptured by the guard.

"It's starting out just like it did in September. We left a war behind," said Ruben Blandon, who fled Esteli along with several hundred other persons.

Campaign slogans are pouring in: "Bessie — she won't steer you wrong" and "Bessie is for the legalization of grass."

for this village. As he spoke, gunfire and occasional heavy explosions could be heard in the mountains toward Esteli.

The refugees said snipers were firing from three locations along the 18 miles of highway that separate Esteli and San Isidro but added that the national guard was patrolling the highway as far as the Esteli garrison.

A Holstein Is Running

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — A young female named Bessie, who is said to favor the legalization of marijuana, is running hard as a write-in candidate for the title of Miss Auburn.

Bessie is really a black and white Holstein cow owned by Auburn University. She's being promoted as a candidate against five coeds in this Thursday's election for Miss Auburn.

It seems that the brainchild of students Betsy Butgereit and Mike Sellers has caught on with their other students, who say they'll vote for Bessie because she's "the only friendly one" in the herd.

"They're going wild," said Miss Butgereit. "People call constantly just wanting to help put up posters."

New support is coming in daily, she says. The Block and Bridle Club, an agriculture society, agreed to vote as a bloc for the demure Bessie, and Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity has "Bessie" painted in large letters across their frat house windows.

Campaign slogans are pouring in: "Bessie — she won't steer you wrong" and "Bessie is for the legalization of grass."

Opening lead: King of ♠.

There are certain leads that some bridge players consider anathema. After the opponents have wrapped up a rubber, how many times have you heard someone say: "I couldn't lead a spade—I had the king (or the ace, or something equally tainted)." We belong to the school which believes that, if it is obvious that a spade lead is required to beat the contract, then a spade should be played regardless of what we hold in the suit.

True, there are certain holdings which, ideally, you want played up to your hand. That is especially true of an ace-queen combination. But there are hands where you just cannot afford the luxury of waiting for partner to gain the lead. Consider this hand.

With his distributional strength, North might have considered going straight to four hearts once his partner could enter the auction, vulnerable, at the two-level.

Fortunately, South was not shy.

West led the king of spades. Dummy played low and East and South contributed the three and the six. In an attempt to get East on lead for a diamond through declarer, West shifted to a low club.

Declarer won the ace, cashed the ace of hearts and then finessed the jack of spades. He discarded a diamond on the ace of spades and lost only a trick in each red suit, in addition to a spade, to make his contract.

West's claim that it was impossible to lead from the ace-queen of diamonds was unwarranted. When declarer allowed the king of spades to hold, it was obvious that he held at least two spades, and probably no more—with three he might have won the ace. Therefore, declarer could obtain a discard on the ace of spades.

What useful discard could he get? A club suit would not help him, for there was a singleton in dummy. Only a diamond discard could prove useful. If East held the ace of clubs, he would always get that trick to defeat the contract. Therefore, it was imperative to shift to a diamond in case East held the king of clubs. After all, it was not too much to expect one card from East for his raise.

Very Little Change In Rating Data

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been this way now for two months and, in ABC's case, more than three months, with little sign of change in sight. ABC, with six of the week's Top 10 prime-time shows, was in first place in the ratings, CBS second and NBC a distant third.

For ABC, the week ending April 8 was the network's 13th in a row in first place in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings. NBC, with its best lodged in 17th place in the ratings, was last for the eighth consecutive time.

The steady, week-to-week configuration is a factor of ABC's strength at the top and NBC's representation at the bottom of the ratings. NBC, for the most recent period, had three of Nielsen's five least-watched shows.

ABC's top show, as it has been eight times this season, was "Laverne and Shirley," with a rating of 33.7, followed by "Three's Company" and "Happy Days."

CBS made it close with four programs in the Top 10, including No. 4 "60 Minutes" and "All in the Family" in sixth place.

ABC's rating for the week was 18.6, slightly better than CBS' 18.6 and a good bit better than NBC's 15.7.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 18.6 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to ABC.

Nielsen says the rating for "Laverne and Shirley" means of all the homes in the country with TV, just over a third saw at least part of the show.

NBC's best wasn't something the network could count on in weeks to come. The troubled network's top show was the second of four chapters in the "Jesus of Nazareth" miniseries — a rerun at that. It was ranked

IRS Cautions Ask Credentials

GREENSBORO — Taxpayers
should ask to see the credentials of any individual claiming to be an Internal Revenue Service employee, the IRS cautioned.

From time to time, individuals pose as employees of the IRS to ask sensitive tax questions or to collect money for what these impostors refer to as unpaid taxes.

In almost every instance, taxpayers who owe money will receive written notification before being contacted in person by the IRS. In addition, every IRS employee who makes public contact carries distinctive identification and is required to show it when conducting official business.

Taxpayers who are unsure of the identity of the person presenting the IRS credentials or suspect non-standard procedures should call the IRS office in Greensboro, 378-5266.

Broadcast Waves May Be Hazard

By B. J. McFARLAND
 PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Is it possible that Howard Cosell, Walter Cronkite, or other broadcast personalities may be hazardous to your health? Not in themselves, but via the airways of radio and television they use to talk to you. Scientists at the University of Oregon are trying to determine if there is a correlation between human exposure to radio waves and the incidence of human cancer.

To help researchers answer the question, the federal Environmental Protection Agency has given $55,983 to the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center (medical school) for a two-year study in the Portland metropolitan area. The study is directed by Dr. William Morton, professor and head of the division of environmental medicine at the medical school. He hopes to learn whether there is any correlation between human exposure to non-ionizing radiation, such as that emitted from radio towers, and the incidence of and mortality rate for cancer.

"Chances of our finding a specific relationship right now are relatively slim," Morton said, "but they do exist. It would be worth risking a little capital to find out."

Morton for the past six years has been studying the distribution of cancer in Oregon, and he has been involved in several studies that explore the relationship of occupation, life-style and environment to cancer.

In one study, he discovered that cancer of the endometrium (the body of the uterus in women) seemed to be concentrated in the West Hills residential area near downtown Portland. That area also happens to have a high concentration of radio towers atop the hilly terrain of that neighborhood.

Morton speculates that radio waves may contribute to the risk of getting the disease.

Other cancers that might be radiation related, he mentioned, are leukemias, lymphomas, and cancers of the breast, pancreas and lung.

"It has been demonstrated elsewhere," he said, "that radio-wave exposure is cumulative. There are three unpublished reports on the increased incidence of cancer in workers in radar installations."

The Environmental Protection Agency has said no known health effects have been attributed to radio-frequency emissions at the levels found during a 1977 EPA survey in Portland.

However, Morton said that as the use of non-ionizing radiation increases, it will be vital to detect what effects the radiation might have on human health. Heavily involved with radiation is the communications industry, from telephone companies to TV stations.

"The question," said Dr. Morton, "is not that we would abolish the industry, but simply that we would learn the limits of what's consistent with healthy life, and then develop control mechanisms. We have to find out what those limits are."

Cart Theft Is Often Invited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eighty percent of all cars stolen each year were unlocked at the time of theft, says J. Dean Cassidy, an insurance company executive. In half that number, Cassidy says, the key was still in the ignition.

The senior vice president of The Continental Insurance Cos. advises drivers to take their registration cards as well as their keys with them unless the law requires the cards to be left in the car.

Cassidy also suggests owners scratch their initials in a hidden place on the car, or drop a piece of paper with their name and address on it into the window channel so the vehicle can be identified even if its appearance has been changed by thieves.

RIVER CLOSED
 PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Officials have closed the Elbe River to international freight traffic after continuing rains raised the river more than 9 feet above normal, the government says.

CARRYING CRUDE OIL
FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI) — Transatlantic tankers carrying crude oil from the Mid-East and Africa are too large to enter most Gulf and East Coast ports, according to Mel C. Griffin, district superintendent for the Seaway dock here. To get their oil to shore a new technique called "lightering" is used. About 100 miles offshore the oil is transferred onto smaller tankers for delivery to port.

Cheese Tips

There are two basic kinds of cheese - natural and processed. Natural (such as Cheddar or Swiss) is solid cheese, firm in texture and it will continue to "ripen" or grow in sharpness. Processed cheese starts with natural cheese which has been shredded, mixed with an emulsifier and heated to pasteurize it (to provide uniform product and to stop curing or ripening). Milk whey solids or water may be added to processed cheese products, with the softness indicating the degree of moisture added.

Nutrition: Natural cheese provides more nutrition to the pound and is more flavorful, but processed cheese is lower in calories and many people enjoy the milder flavor. (Cheddar, 115 calories per ounce; processed American cheese, 105; processed cheese spread 80) Both natural and processed cheese are excellent sources of calcium (1 1/2 oz. Cheddar = 1 cup milk) and protein (1 oz. Cheddar = 1 egg or 1 oz. chicken or beef).

Care: Refrigerate cheese (tightly wrapped) but allow cheese (except soft cheeses such as cottage or cream cheese) to come to room temperature before serving for full flavor. Cheese may be frozen for longer storage, although some varieties become crumbly. Grate dried ends of cheese and use in cooking.

Cooking: Heat cheese at low temperatures just long enough to melt - high heat toughens it. If your recipe calls for one cup cheese, use four ounces (1/4 pound) of Cheddar or Swiss, or three ounces of grated Parmesan or Romano.

Choose from a delicious array of natural and process cheeses...many of them straight from our own cheese plant and others from quality cheese producers in the U.S. and abroad. Kroger Sav-On's the place to choose your cheeses.
