

Pitt County School Budget Is Approved

By REBECCA BUFFALO

Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education approved a $6,800,000 list of capital outlay needs to be supported by the passage of the $9 million bond referendum, as well as a capital outlay budget of $1,200,000 if the referendum fails, at a special session meeting Thursday.

The $6,800,000 capital outlay list includes $1.9 million for new facilities at Ayden Middle School, with $1 million apiece set aside for new facilities at Stokes Elementary and kindergarten, lunchroom, media and elimination of mobile unit facilities at Sam Bundy School.

Other needs on the list were as follows: a lunchroom for Belvoir, $300,000; an occupational facility for Bethel Elementary, $200,000; a lunchroom and classroom facilities at Chicod, $500,000; classroom and occupational facilities at A. G. Cox, $300,000; media and occupational facilities at Grifton, as well as elimination of mobile units, $200,000; a lunchroom and classroom facilities at Pactolus, $400,000; classroom and band room facilities at North Pitt, $300,000; classroom facilities at W. H. Robinson, $300,000; and classroom facilities at G. R. Whitfield, $400,000.

The capital outlay budget of $1,200,000 was drawn up in case the bond referendum fails to pass. A figure of $700,000 was set aside for replacement of the present Ayden Middle School, with $200,000 for classrooms and a lunchroom at Chicod. Funds for paving, covering walks and demolition totalled $50,000, with $48,000 for vehicle replacement. A total of $4,000 was noted for non-food assistance funds.

Superintendent Ott Alford explained that revenue from the bonds should be enough to pay the architect's fees, if not from the interest of the bonds when sold. The board expressed its commitment to spend the noted money in each community if the bond referendum passes.

Board member Bill McLawhorn of Ayden expressed a wish that strict attention be paid to the construction of new facilities, noting that all of the four high schools had had problems since their construction.

The board also instructed Superintendent Alford to work with City Superintendent Glenn Cox in forming a committee comprised of board members from both ci-

City Council Postpones Rescue Squad Decision

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council voted last night to table action on a request by the Committee for Continually Improving Rescue Service for consideration of autonomous administration for the squad.

The Council, with Charles Vincent opposing, voted to table the matter until the July regular meeting after budget considerations have been weighed and members have had an opportunity to review the results of a study.

Last night's action followed discussion on the committee's request "that an item be put on the next City Council meeting agenda for autonomous administration for the rescue squad." The request was contained in an April 3 letter to Mayor Percy Cox from Dr. Herbert W. Hadley, committee chairman.

In his letter, Hadley thanked Cox and members of the Council "for allowing us the opportunity to present our feelings on the administration of the rescue squad" at the Council's Feb. 8 special workshop session.

Hadley continued, "In addition, we would all like to thank you for the effort you have put forward as outlined in your letter to me of Feb. 14, in which you met with the city manager, Chief of Fire and Rescue Jenness Allen, and Assistant Chief of Rescue Tony Brannon, and at which time you thrashed out some of the sticky problems concerning administration in the two divisions."

The committee chairman added, "However good this meeting may have been, we do not feel that in the long run it eliminates the potential for future discord between these two emergency service divisions."

In writing to Cox, Hadley said that the committee feels that the Council is the only body that can make the administrative change. By taking some action on the matter, Hadley mentioned, the Council would indicate to the committee where it stood on the matter.

Cox explained that in meeting with City Manager Ed Wyatt, Allen and Brannon, it was decided that Brannon would have an avenue open to Wyatt if Brannon received an order from the fire chief that "he (Brannon) felt he couldn't live with." In addition, it was decided that Brannon could be present at budget reviews.

The mayor noted that the city had received a study on fire and rescue operations and "we are still studying it." Cox said that the Council would have to work on the budget "before we can do anything."

Cox said that he would recommend that the Council not take any action last night until the study review has been completed and the Council has been able to "get the facts together."

Vincent said that maybe the Council should decide the matter prior to the budget action.

Council member Mrs. Mildred McGrath said that she did not feel the Council could decide what action to take until cost figures are established, priorities set, and information regarding what services would be available is gathered.

Mrs. McGrath said she did not think the matter should be "put to sleep." Cox said that he was not recommending that.

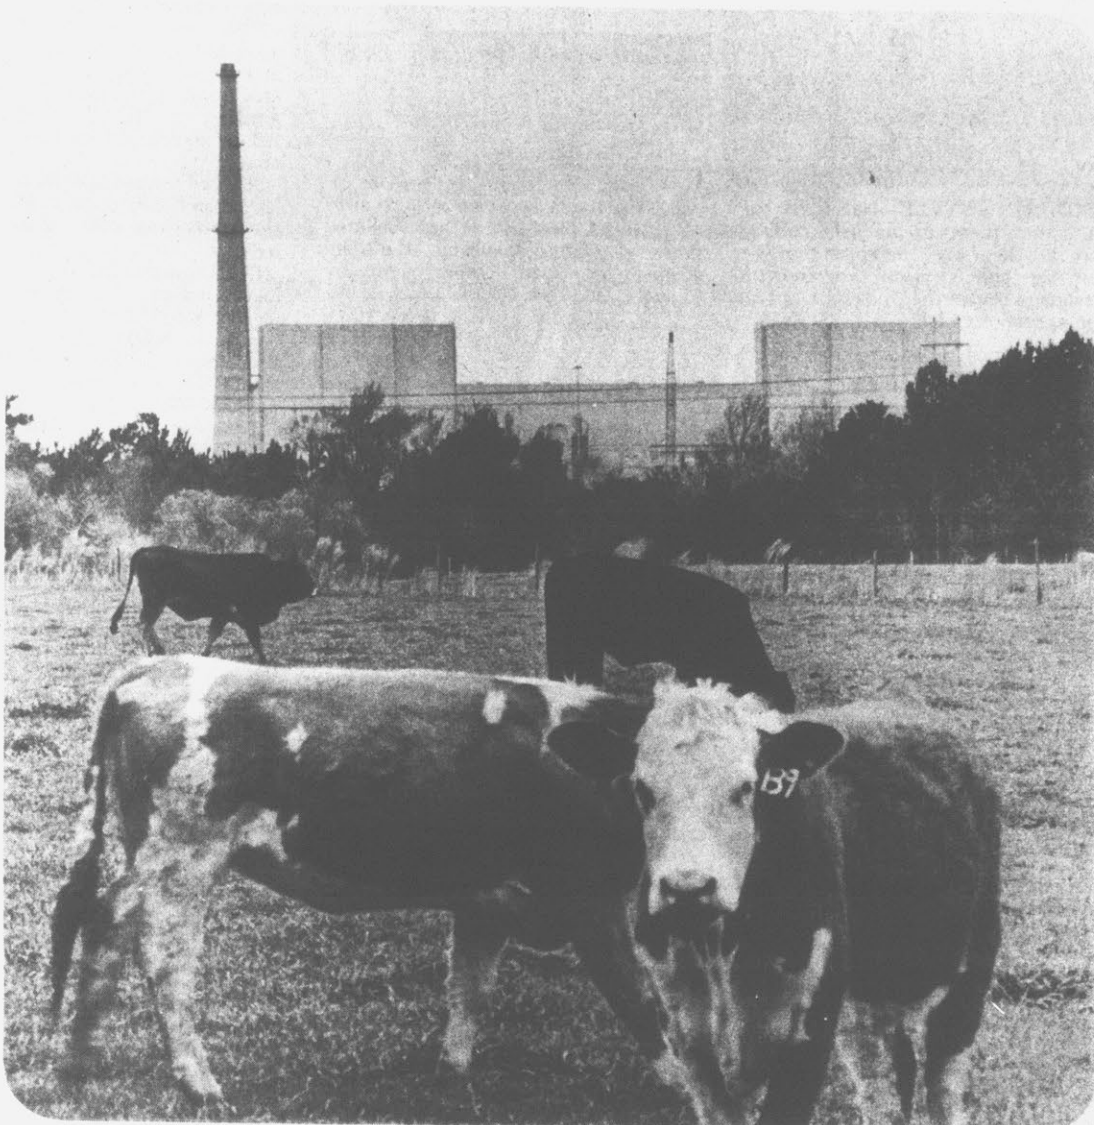

The mayor said at the February workshop meeting that the Council would have to decide on whether to go with an integrated system of fire and rescue or have separate operations.

In other business, Council members voted to rezone approximately 9.45 acres on the north side of Greenville Boulevard S.W. just west of Baker Heights Subdivision from RA-20 to R-6. The request was submitted by J. T. Manning Jr.

Cox informed Council members that a valid petition had been received from residents in the area and three-fourths vote of Council members would be necessary in order to approve the issue.

A resident of the area in which the Manning property is located said that the reason the residents objected to the rezoning was the "congested

Mock Disaster Planned

NOT BOTHERED — Cows grazing in a field near Carolina Power and Light Co.'s Brunswick County plant don't seem to be bothered by its presence. A mock nuclear plant accident will be staged April 27, to test the readiness of state officials to cope with such an accident. Governor Jim Hunt will watch officials at the state's emergency command center in Raleigh and then board a plane for Wilmington to monitor the exercise from on-site emergency headquarters at the New Hanover Court House. Jones Scoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., has called a congressional proposal to steer farmers away from growing tobacco "farfetched."

The statement comes after a Wisconsin representative's letter to a top Carter administration official. In the correspondence Rep. Henry S. Reuss, chairman of the House Banking Committee, suggested that U.S.-financed crop substitution programs for opium and cocaine producers in other countries "could become a model for a rational tobacco policy at home."

Jones, who is chairman of the tobacco subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee, said he thought the letter was merely a gesture. He scoffed at Reuss's idea.

"I think it's ridiculous," Jones said. "There's no correlation between opium and tobacco. Matter of fact, Chairman Reuss is known as a reasonable fellow. I don't know what prompted this outburst."

Jones said the subcommittee explored the idea of crop substitution and found it unworkable. It would take 14 acres of peanuts or 20 acres of soybeans to equal the cash value of one acre of tobacco, Jones said.

"The land's just not there," he said. "I think that's answer enough to Reuss' farfetched idea."

South Africa Impounds U.S. Airplane

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa has impounded the plane it claims the U.S. Embassy used for aerial espionage and has ordered the United States to remove the craft once it is stripped of photographic gear.

Three members of the embassy's military staff have been given one week to leave the country.

The U.S. Embassy refused to comment. But a State Department official in Washington admitted the plane, a twin-engine C-12A, was equipped with a camera and took aerial photographs.

However, he said he would not call the photography espionage.

The State Department refused to comment on the substance of the charges.

Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha leveled the surprise spy charges on the 8 p.m. TV news Thursday. He charged that the plane was Ambassador William P. Edmondson's private aircraft and that it "was converted for use as a spy plane by the installation of an aerial survey camera under the seat of the co-pilot."

"In flight, the device enabled the camera to take pictures of the ground below," Botha continued. "Photographs in our possession reveal that the embassy aircraft was engaged in a systematic program of photography of vast areas of South Africa, including some of our most sensitive installations."

He gave no details but said, "we have the necessary exhibits and will show them if need be."

Botha said it was the kind of conduct that could be expected from the Soviet Union. He demanded an official apology from the Carter administration.

The prime minister did not say how many Americans were ordered out of the country or identify them. But the State Department said three men were given a week to leave: Col. Alvin M. Crews, a defense attache; Maj. Bernd McConnell, an assistant air attache, and Master Sgt. Horace E. Wyatt Jr., crew chief of the plane.

Botha said permission for the embassy to use the plane had been "summarily terminated" and the aircraft must leave the country after South African technicians ensure "all photographic equipment has been removed" so no pictures could be taken on its flight out.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the plane was assigned to Crews, not to the ambassador.

Asked Resign

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Bruce Beasley, executive director of the Mideast Commission, has been asked to resign, the Washington Daily News reported today.

The commission, which represents local governments, requested the resignation by the end of June, the paper said.

Beasley confirmed that he had been asked to leave but declined further comment.

No reasons for the request were listed by the paper.

The commission serves local governments in Beaufort, Pitt, Martin and Hertford counties.

In another development, Mary Long Tankard, acting head of the commission's program for the aged, resigned today. The reason for the resignation could not be immediately determined.

Jenkins Advises State Should Heed Wage-Price Guidelines

Dr. Leo Jenkins, Gov. Jim Hunt's anti-inflation coordinator, said today that while it appears that the rate of inflation will be higher than the seven percent this year, "that is hardly justification for our state to do less than its share in the nation's fight against inflation."

Jenkins, Chancellor Emeritus of East Carolina University and special assistant to Gov. Hunt, made the comment while discussing a proposed seven per cent pay hike for State employees and teachers.

"It's certainly understandable that some public school teachers and state employees have expressed concern about the need to keep their salary increases within the seven percent wage guideline in the nation's anti-inflation program. I sincerely wish the state could do more," Jenkins emphasized.

"What this tells us," he said, "is that we had better work harder to help slow and get inflation under control or be prepared to live with mandatory wage and price standards down the road."

Indicating that the wage guidelines involve some, "regrettable sacrifices," on the part of teachers and state employees, "they are not alone in the inflation dilemma. Moreover, the sacrifices most of us are being called upon to make are small when measured against the unconscionable effects of uncontrolled inflation on those hit hardest by spiraling prices — the poor, those living just above the level of poverty, old people, retirees, and others eking out a living on small, fixed incomes."

To abandon the fight against inflation, Jenkins suggested, would be, "for us to fail these already needy

Hunting 2 Greenville Men; Boat Foundered

CRESSWELL — Searchers continued this morning to hunt for two Greenville fishermen, missing since their 14-foot boat foundered in Lake Phelps near here yesterday.

A third man in the fishing party, Robert Wayne Best, 39 of Greenville, was along the shoreline and taken to a Plymouth hospital for treatment of shock, Washington County authorities reported.

Sheriff's Department spokesmen identified the two missing men as Ranson Danny "Junior" Breedlove, 31 and Wayne Farland Wilson, 27. Sheriff's officers said Best was found along the shoreline between 2:30 and 4 a.m. Thursday after walking to shore. He was taken to a hospital in Plymouth, where he was reported in satisfactory condition late yesterday.

The boat in which the three were riding was found in about five feet of water, "not too far from shore," after searchers spotted the boat's gas tank floating, officers said.

The search for the missing men resumed this morning with helicopters from the Elizabeth City Coast Guard Air Station, the Dare County Sheriff's Department, and the U.S. Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point participating along with Wildlife Protectors and volunteers.

Breedlove, who is married and has two children, is been manager of Your House Restaurant in Greenville since 1975.

Wilson, married and the father of three children, is employed by Sambo's Restaurant in Greenville.

Best, Breedlove's brother-in-law, is employed by Your House.

Pleats Are Perennial Fashion

By BURT BERLINER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The model in the white dress twirled round and round, with hundreds of sunburst pleats rippling in her wake.

It was Marilyn Monroe all over again in that smashing photo from "The Seven-Year Itch." Marilyn standing on a sidewalk grating, pushing her pleated skirt down against the air rushing up from the subway below.

Marilyn's gone but the sensuous swirl of sunburst pleats remains a perennial fashion staple along with mushroom, crystal, release, knife and accordion pleats.

This spring they're back — a versatile blending of elegance with easy care. Subtle enough for the boardroom, sporty enough for a football game.

And you don't have to be needle-thin to wear them, designers say.

"The sunburst pleat provides a wonderfully feminine look for women with all kinds of figures," says Jay Shaffer, vice president of Michael Albert Ltd., a subsidiary of Pat Richards.

"Pleated fashions have rightfully earned their place as an old but flattering style," Shaffer says.

Pleats aren't just old — they're ancient. Back in the days of King Tut, chic Egyptian ladies lounged around in floor-length pleated linen sheaths, tied at the bodice with a golden cord.

The same style was resurrected in the 1930s as the Venetian knife-pleated silk sheath. Women kept them rolled up in a circular box to keep the pleating in good shape.

Then in the '40s, when permanent pleating developed, the "accordion" came along — a wider version of the crystal pleat. Claire McCardell used the accordion extensively — from collar to midcalf hem, tied at the bodice with a spaghetti cord.

"Pleats are nothing new," says Kasper, of Kasper for Joan Leslie, "but they look great, especially straight pleats for a slim look."

Kasper favors synthetics for pleats. "Man-made fabrics are marvelously lightweight for pleating. You get an added dimension and flow but no excess bulk."

Pleats are made when fabric is folded into shape between pleat pattern sheets, then steamed. The material shrinks into shape after "cooking" at about 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

"That's not hot enough to permanently pleat natural fibers," says Shaffer, "but anything hotter would cause natural fibers to disintegrate."

The flattering but practical pleat takes its place this spring and summer next to the plunging necklines, cinched waists and tight skirts revealed recently by the kings of Paris fashion.

"Pleats flatter women's figures, thin or heavy," says Henry Gutman, president of Cedarhurst Classics and Coat Fair Ltd.

'Old-Fashioned' Parents Have Rules

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our 18-year-old daughter has graduated from high school and has steady employment, so now she says she can do as she pleases. She is living at home (free), but she doesn't care what anybody thinks about her actions.

Her "old-fashioned" parents want to know if we have the right to set some rules for her. We have asked her to be home by 1 a.m. when she goes out on a date. (She's been coming home anywhere from 2 a.m. to 4:30.) When we object to her going to her boyfriend's apartment to watch TV for an evening she says we have "dirty minds."

She tells us if we don't "get off her back" she will move out and rent with girlfriends. Of course she is trying to assert her independence, but we think she's overdoing it. Please give us bewildered parents some guidelines.

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Tell your daughter to sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out exactly how "independent" she is. Advise her that when she is able to support herself entirely — and that means pay for her room, board, clothes, transportation, entertainment, travel, doctor, dentist, and insurance — then she may live where she chooses, and by her own rules. But as long as she lives with you, she will have to live by yours.

DEAR ABBY: I'm divorced and miserable. Even though I was the one who asked for the divorce, it was a terrible mistake.

I know there must be thousands of divorced people (men as well as women) who would give anything to get back with No. 1 but they don't know how to go about it.

Abby, will you please ask readers who were divorced, regretted it and got back with No. 1 again to write and tell you how they accomplished it?

I'll do anything!

SORRY IN ST. JO, MO.

DEAR SORRY: All right. Readers? And please let me know how it was the second time around with No. 1.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been making an issue out of our 3-year-old grandson's choice of toys. He enjoys playing with his sister's dolls and his mother's shoes.

My husband says this is an indication that the boy has homosexual tendencies.

Could my husband's suspicions about his grandson be a reflection of his OWN repressed homosexual desires? I wonder because he seems to hate women — particularly me. He attacks sex as though it were a contest. When it's over, he is surly and mean. No love, no tenderness or closeness. I submit but I don't enjoy it.

I am not worried about my grandson, but I am worried about my husband.

Am I justified?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Only a trained psychotherapist would be able to determine whether your husband is projecting his own "homosexual tendencies" to his grandson.

His attitude about women and lovemaking is no more conclusive proof of homosexual tendencies than your grandson's choice of toys.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 29, married and mixed up. All my life I was a fat girl with a pretty face, but a good man fell in love with me and married me.

Two years ago I took off 55 pounds. I love myself thin, but now I've got problems I never had before.

Men started noticing me. I got involved with a man at work who gave me a line I was dumb enough to fall for. ("Divorce your husband and marry me.") Well, I asked my husband for a divorce — confessed everything, and then the other guy backed off. The rat! I felt like two cents. Thank God, my husband forgave me. Then I got involved with a married neighbor who had a reputation for fooling around. In the middle of that affair I started up another, with a salesman, younger than myself, who calls on our office.

Abby, I never had these problems when I was fat. I don't want to be fat again, but the "new me" is so weak and trumpy I can't stand to live with myself. Please help me.

THIN AND MIXED-UP

DEAR THIN: You apparently still think of yourself as the "fat girl no man would want." You need to keep proving to yourself that you're desirable. Get some counseling and become acquainted with the real you. I think you'll like her. (A real "tramp" wouldn't feel guilty.)

DEAR ABBY: How does a 28-year-old man get rid of a 30-year-old woman who refuses to take no for an answer?

I took Alice (made up name) to Aspen for a weekend of skiing because the girl I had planned to take got the flu and couldn't go. The hotel reservations were paid for in advance and I didn't feel like going alone.

Well, Alice took the weekend far too seriously, and now she insists she's "in love" with me even though I never told her I loved her. In fact, I told her up front I didn't want any serious commitments.

As soon as we returned, Alice started calling and writing me love letters. In order to discourage her, I told her I was engaged to a girl in California. (Not true.) She kept after me, so I told her I was gay and went both ways, but she said she didn't care.

Abby, I have absolutely no interest in this woman. I only went to bed with her in Aspen because she expected me to and I didn't want to disappoint her. Any suggestions. She's making me crazy.

STUPID IN DENVER

DEAR STUPID: If Alice reads the Rocky Mountain News, you could be off the hook by nightfall. If not, be a man and tell her that what happened in Aspen did not mean to YOU what it meant to HER, that the chemistry is not right for a lasting love affair, and to cool it. Be gentle — but firm.

ENDURING STYLE—Dating far back in history, pleats are as fashionable today as they were in ancient Egypt. Among the current versions as designers reveal their newest creations for spring are, left, a crystal-pleated

Southwest Sampler Makes Six Servings

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Emma Rylander Law is a kind and merry person who doesn't usually get her dander up. But there's one circumstance that makes her eyes flash: when a recipe goes by the name of Lane Cake — one of America's most famous desserts — and it's a far cry from the original one.

Emma Law knows how a true Lane Cake should taste. Her Southern grandmother, Emma Rylander Lane, invented it at the turn of the century. Now Emma Law has put her grandmother's recipe for Lane Cake in the new "Savannah Sampler Cookbook," written by Margaret Wayt DeBolt (Donning). Any one who wants the original recipe can have it.

Emma Law acted as food consultant for the DeBolt book, a job she is eminently fitted for. Born and brought up in the South, Emma worked there for some years as a hospital dietitian. After moving to New York City, she became well-known in the recipe-testing and food photography field. Since her retirement, she has made Savannah, Ga., her home.

Margaret DeBolt's long experience cooking meals for her family plus her work as a journalist in Savannah spurred her to write about that city and its victuals.

We think you will enjoy the following recipe, which we adapted from the DeBolt-Law book. Of the dish Margaret DeBolt writes:

"Savannah's modern cuisine is enriched by recipes which service families, such as those stationed at Hunter Field and Fort Stewart, have brought back from other locales. The following was first served by an Air Force family when living in the Southwest."

SOUTHWEST SAMPLER
6 cups (about) regular-size corn chips (one and one-half 6½-ounce bags)
3/4 pound cheddar cheese, grated medium-fine
Two 4-ounce cans whole, roasted, peeled green chilies (drained, split and seeded)
16-ounce can tomatoes, drained and coarsely chopped
1 large onion, finely chopped (1 cup)
3/4 pound Jack cheese, grated medium-fine

Finely crush the corn chips — there should be 2½ cups. Spread over the bottom of a well-greased 13½ by 8½ by 1¾-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with the cheddar cheese. Arrange the chilies in one layer over the cheese. Distribute the tomatoes over the chilies. Sprinkle with the onion, then with the Jack cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until bubbly at the edges and hot through in the center — about 25 minutes. Let stand a few minutes, then cut into 6 portions and remove carefully with a wide spatula. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

'In The Dark' Dealing With Nuclear Plant Crisis

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear technicians and officials groped through the crisis at Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island atomic powerplant "in the blind" for days, uncertain exactly what was wrong or what to do about it, transcripts of their meetings reveal. The transcripts of tape-recorded meetings, filling more than 700 pages, were made public Thursday.

Two full days after the accident began March 28, Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie complained, "I don't have the impression that they have a good grip on it. We are operating totally in the blind."

Then, referring to requests from Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh for advice about the possibility of a mass evacuation, Hendrie went on: "His information is ambiguous. Mine is nonexistent, and — I don't know — it's like a couple of blind men staggering around, making decisions."

The five-member NRC met with staff members daily to follow developments in the Three Mile Island incident, which they have called the most serious accident in the history of commercial nuclear powerplants in this country.

The transcripts reveal no major information which was not quickly reported to the public at the time, but they convey vividly the worry and frustration of the officials as they tried to make sense out of fragments of information about a kind of accident they had never imagined.

On March 31, Hendrie said it would be "several days out into the next week" before hydrogen gas in the reactor could become flammable and another week before the hydrogen could become explosive.

The transcript from April 1 shows that while President Carter was visiting the crippled facility, NRC officials were still assessing various turns the situation might take — including a hydrogen explosion — and various responses to ensure the safety of persons in the area — including an evacuation.

Discussing the possibility of a hydrogen explosion, Dudley Thompson, an NRC official, said, "Right now we believe it takes 5 percent of oxygen to become flammable; 11 percent to be a detonation mixture. Right now we think we've got 5 percent. ... But so, for all practical purposes, we've got to assume the mixture is flammable, but I don't think anybody is assuming right now that he thinks it's an explosive mixture."

The discussion then turned to other topics and NRC Commissioner Richard T. Kennedy remarked, "Meanwhile, I'm going to check to see if the president is arriving at the (reactor) site."

There were no suggestions that the hydrogen posed any danger to the president.

In a meeting March 31, Roger J. Mattson, NRC director of systems safety, told the commissioners bluntly: "No plant has ever been in this condition, no plant has ever been tested in ing. Citing other reactor accidents, apparently in non-commercial or foreign facilities, Mattson said, "It's too little information too late unfortunately, and it's the same way every partial core meltdown has gone."

"People haven't believed the instruments as they went along. It took us until midnight last night to convince anybody that those... temperature measurements meant something. By four o'clock this morning Babcock and Wilcox agreed."

Complicating the problem was the discovery in the reactor vessel of a large hydrogen bubble which threatened to block the vital flow of cooling water.

That could have caused overheating and possibly a meltdown of the reactor core, releasing large amounts of radioactivity.

But nobody was sure how the bubble could be removed, and to make matters worse there was concern that oxygen might slowly join the hydrogen to form a potentially explosive mixture. "but you can't rule it out," Hendrie commented that this isn't in any great shape to be was not a likely possibility, rattled at the moment."

Tanzanian Teams Hunt The Missing Idi Amin

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's Tanzanian invaders said today they were sending out commandos to hunt down Idi Amin, but the invasion force of Tanzanians and Ugandan exiles made no move to pursue the remnants of Amin's shattered army as they fled eastward toward the Kenyan border.

Tanzanian military source said commandos were being sent east and north from Kampala, Uganda's occupied capital, into areas still theoretically under Amin's control.

An official of the new provisional government said Amin would be tried for murder and treason if caught. Radio Kampala, in the hands of the invaders, said he "deserves the gallows."

"Amin has killed hundreds of our brothers and sisters," the broadcast said. "All Ugandans who love their motherland must from now on help find Idi Amin wherever he is."

The onetime strongman, last reported at Jinja, 50 miles east of Kampala, replied in broadcasts transmitted from Soroti, 200 miles northeast of Kampala, near the Kenya border.

"We have got our soldiers controlling the country," he asserted.

Amin's troops were reported streaming east toward the Kenyan border in a chaotic rout. Residents of towns along the way said they were looting, harassing residents at gunpoint and stealing cars as they fled.

The new government ordered them to surrender themselves and turn in their weapons "or be dealt with accordingly."

The Kenyan government was reported moving military reinforcements to the border, apparently to prevent an exodus of Amin's troops. One traveler who reached Nairobi today said he saw a Kenyan convoy of about 300 trucks and armored personnel carriers moving toward the frontier.

Yussufu Lule, Uganda's new provisional president, was expected to arrive in Kampala today for the capital's second anti-Amin political rally in as many days. Lule had planned to fly in Thursday but was grounded by bad weather in Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital.

President Is In Solitude

SAPELO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — President Carter is finding near-perfect solitude in a wild-life refuge here where his closest neighbors include snakes and alligators.

Carter had no announced schedule today, and his Thursday activities were hardly arduous.

The White House press office, headquartered more than 30 miles away on Jekyll Island, said only that the president had a lunch of sandwiches and soup after arriving from Washington, and then walked on the beach with wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy.

"They have been in the house the rest of the afternoon, reading and resting," the sparse announcement concluded. "They have no special plans for this evening."

The Carters are staying in a well-preserved 19th-century plantation manor house where President Calvin Coolidge once sojourned. The spacious residence, which looks something like the White House plopped in the center of a coastal forest, is owned by the University of Georgia Marine Institute.

The press office said the Carters are renting the place, but has been unable to provide a dollar figure. Deputy press secretary Rex Granum said simply that the Carters were paying "the going rate."

The president came here principally to fish with his wife and two old friends, Brunswick, Ga., optometrist Carlton Hicks and attorney James Bishop.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere's troops and Ugandan exiles fighting alongside them overran Kampala Wednesday after a slow march up through southwest Uganda, setting off frenzied celebrations and looting.

Four African governments recognized Lule's provisional government on Thursday. Nyerere, who is sponsoring the new cabinet of anti-Amin exiles, was the first, but within hours his allies ruling Zambia, Botswana and Mozambique endorsed the new regime.

Group To Join Vote-Watchers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Americans plans to fly to Rhodesia Saturday to join other international observers of that nation's black-majority elections.

The U.S. group, sponsored by the American Conservative Union, will join about 60 other persons from Australia, Britain, Canada, France and West Germany in watching the Tuesday-through-Saturday elections. Critics of the election have contended it is a fiasco because it will keep power in the hands of white Rhodesians. It was that criticism which led the House of Representatives to vote against sending an official delegation to monitor the polling.

Ponder Ways Of Delivering Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is considering two ways of getting crude oil from Alaska to the Midwest — by domestic pipeline or by sea.

Spokesmen for the Northern Tier Pipeline consortium told the Energy Department Thursday that the best way to move the oil would be by a 1,500-mile pipeline stretching from Port Angeles, Wash., to Clearbrook, Minn. But lawyers for PACAT, Inc., said they would construct a 270-mile pipeline across Guatemala and transport the oil by sea to the Gulf Coast for distribution northward. Thursday's hearing was to help the administration develop recommendations for a decision on the project. Federal clearance is needed for the Northern Tier project to cross federal lands.

Major Event In Swan Quarter

Opening of a new dental clinic might not seem major in areas where dental service is available; in Swan Quarter however, it is a major event.

Hyde County hasn't had a dentist in 20 years which meant its citizens had to travel to other areas for dental care.

A $50,000 building was dedicated Thursday in Hyde County and spokesmen for the Hyde Rural Health Corp. said a certified dentist is expected to occupy the clinic this summer.

Mrs. Ann Benson said it was an exciting time.

"We've had a hard time attracting dentists because we are a small rural area."

Hyde, and a number of other areas of the state are small in population, but they are ideal places to live if you shun the bright lights and problems of the cities.

Good dental and health care are needed in a sparsely populated area just as anywhere else, and it is good to see areas like Hyde County doing what is necessary to attract qualified health professionals.

Agreement Keeps The Trucks Rolling

The nation can breathe a guarded sigh of relief with the tentative settlement of Teamsters union and trucking industry contract differences.

Though the money questions seem to be agreed upon, there are some other issues which have to be settled. Hopefully they will be and the contract will be ratified.

The administration seems satisfied with the settlement as it pertains to inflation guidelines and the settlement will keep the trucks rolling with the essential goods that they supply.

Imagination Is The Key

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — With flair, originality, imagination and leadership as the essential ingredients, North Carolina's public television network could soar into national prominence.

Lacking those attributes, says a national expert, the state program will continue to be just another governmental program without distinction.

New Directions
Gov. Hunt pushed for planning and action to bring North Carolina up to many other states in the quality and content of public television production. He would like to see local programs sharply improved, and this state takes its place alongside many others, (including South Carolina) which turn out regularly scheduled high quality programs on the national network.

The change in administration is designed to accomplish that aim. Evans, a Durham native, graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and of Yale University School of Law, a former staffer and then member of the Carnegie Commission on public television and presently president of the Revson Foundation in New York, was involved in talks with Hunt about this goal early on.

munications — we can harness the future.

"If ... And that is a big IF. Otherwise, it can be an ordinary governmental agency," Evans feels.

But taking that national lead can help attract the talent, the public support and the money from federal, foundation and corporation grants to accomplish the aims, Evans added.

BILL NOBLITT

The advanced technologies will be rapidly coming into use: cable television, satellites, video disc recorders, two-way communication between the viewer and the transmitting site, electronic delivery of printed material into the home.

Cable is already in nearly 20 percent of the homes nationwide, and should reach 25 and 30 percent in the next decade.

The Future
That penetration, says Evans, is the milestone for cable becoming "a viable medium" apart from regular television transmission through the airwaves. It can mean development of laser-fused glass lines capable of providing wide variety of programming available at the time the viewer wants to see it. It can lead directly to two-way communication, making possible educational projects with teacher and student in contact; live-action public opinion polls; statewide "town-hall meetings" on vital topics.

A public television satellite already in place has sharply increased the exchange of information nationwide, and will expand this activity for public television systems in coming years.

Interaction television, Hunt thinks, is one of the most exciting prospects. It could bring advanced medical techniques to rural areas; keep isolated communities in touch with cultural and educational developments; mean a lot to his hopes of seeing North Carolinians remain in rural areas and not feel a need to cluster to urban sections.

has paralyzed U.S. energy policy for years.

"The question is no longer whether or not we decontrol domestic oil prices," he said Tuesday. "What we must do now is impose a windfall profits tax on the excess unearned profits of the oil producers."

By congressional estimate, higher prices could produce $25.2 billion more for the oil companies over the next three years.

Carter's strategy is to increase pressure for congressional action by moving first on decontrol. Without the tax, Carter said, decontrol would lead to a "wholly unjustified giveaway to the oil companies." And Congress would have to take some of the political heat for that.

Carter contends he already has done the hard part. His decontrol order means a gallon of gasoline will cost more, 4 or 5 cents by 1981 according to administration figures, 15 or 20 cents according to Jackson's.

Strength For Today

ASBESTOSISM
A student was asked upon entering college some years ago to indicate his religious preference. He wrote down "Asbestosism."

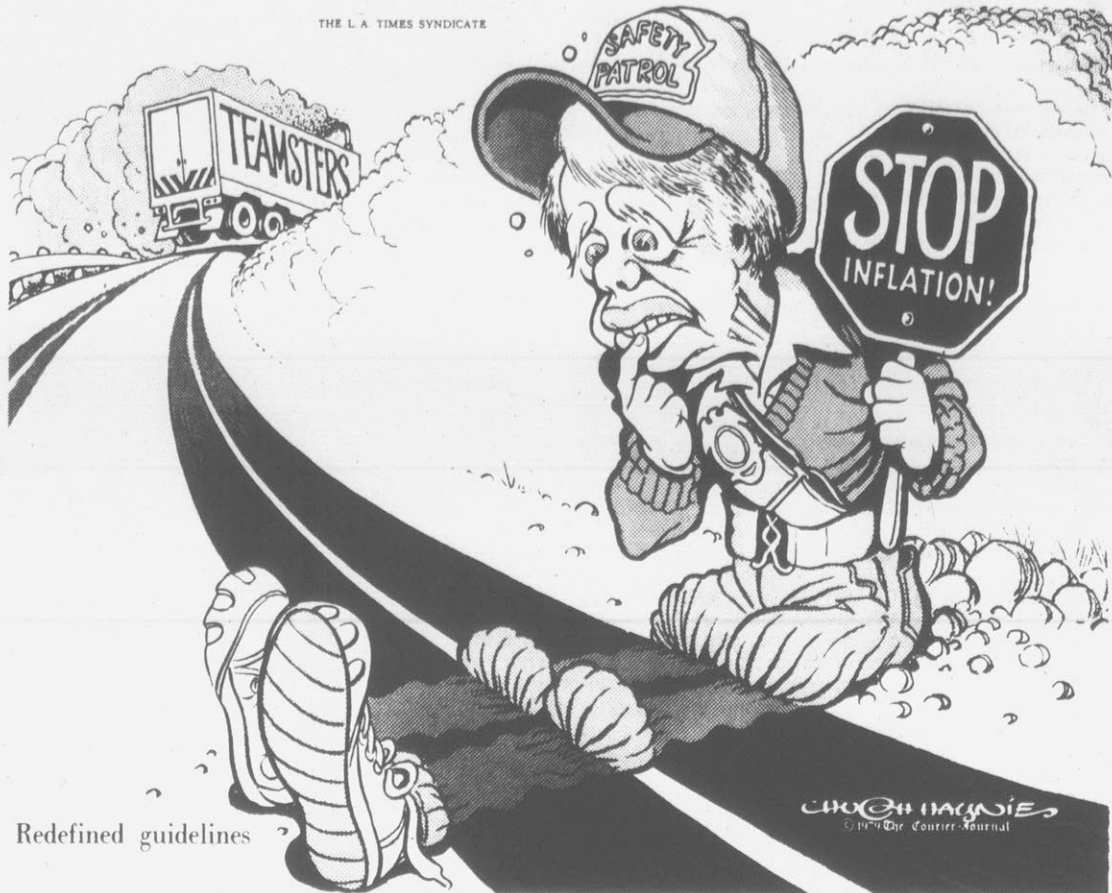

This is something more than a humorous quip. By "Asbestosism" the student meant the use of religion for only one purpose — to escape the punishment of hell described in the Bible as fire and brimstone.

This may be a part of religion, but it certainly is not the whole of it. Bible readers have never agreed on what the reference to fire and brimstone really means. Some take the statements literally. Others maintain that the flames of hell are a symbolic representation of the continual and agonizing remorse the unsaved must endure throughout eternity.

But Christianity is more than a scale of rewards and punishments. Its essence is the spiritual triumph which is possible for every one of us to achieve.

True, We Did Dance

WASHINGTON — In Margaret Trudeau's discreet book, "Beyond Reason," she reveals that she fell in love with another man when she visited New York with her husband, Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, to attend the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament. Without naming the person, she describes him as a Southern gentleman, who was tremendously handsome, charming, a terrific dancer and a passionate person.

Since I was at the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis party that year, I feel I owe it to the people of Canada to issue an unequivocal denial that I was the chap who played a role in breaking up the Trudeau marriage.

It's true that Margaret and I did dance that evening, and while she may have been smitten with my savoir-faire, I did nothing to encourage her to think there was the slightest chance of our having a more intimate relationship.

Friends who know about my personal indiscretions will testify that I have never made a pass at the wife of a head of state in all the years I have been playing tennis.

There are many reasons for this. One is that I know how easy it is for a woman who has to attend one official function after another to fall hopelessly in love with somebody like myself. But I am also aware that she is not falling in love with me but with my tremendous serve and my defensive lob.

It's hard for many women to believe that off the court I am just like anybody else, and while they fantasize

Other Editors Say Grits On Trial

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

While it took President Jimmy Carter to provide the national focus, Southerners have known all along that a breakfast without grits really hasn't achieved its mission.

Thus, one can easily understand why a gentleman in Montgomery, Ala., by the name of John Bradley, took the matter quite seriously when a restaurant in his town left off his grits one morning last November.

Declaring that a breakfast without grits really isn't a breakfast, Bradley refused to pay the full bill.

Of course, the restaurant didn't agree and charges of violating a city ordinance were filed against the patron for failing to pay a food bill.

The result was that Bradley was tried, convicted and fined $50 in Municipal Court.

That didn't defeat the dauntless grits enthusiast, though, and he appealed his case to Circuit Court.

There Bradley found a true champion of grits apparently, because the judge instructed the jury to rule in Bradley's favor.

Despite the fact that Bradley had to pay his attorney far more than would have been the cost of the $2.94 breakfast, that Alabama grits lover had the satisfaction of winning his four-month legal battle in which the cause of grits was championed and won.

No, you just can't take too many liberties with the old Southern standby known as grits. And just think. If there's any left over from breakfast they're equally delicious when fried for supper.

During World War II it was recalled that many a misunderstanding developed in military mess halls over just how one prepared grits for consumption. Indeed, there were often overtones from the Civil War between Northern recruits and those from the South.

Seems that when grits were served at Southern bases, the Yankee types would (horror of horrors!) put milk and sugar in their grits, thinking it was cereal; while their Southern counterparts would put salt, pepper and butter (for lack of red-eye gravy) on theirs.

Thus they would sit across from each other at the tables and jeer over the fact that the delicacy was being grossly abused.

Well, to each his own.

about my vicious backhand and unbelievable drop shots, I still put on my sneakers one foot at a time.

It's true that while we tangoed Margaret did reveal to me that all was not going well in Ottawa between her and Pierre. But I thought she was talking about tennis. Many women who play tennis find their husbands are not up to the game, and they tend to look for happiness in someone with a faultless overhead.

A smart player will not be taken in by this flirtation. The stakes are too high. If I ever decided to have a fling with the wife of a head of state, it could be so time-consuming that I might easily let my volley shots go to pot.

Many people have asked me, "Well, if you weren't the person at the RFK party, then who was it?"

It's hard for me to say. There were at least 200 people at the party. 50 of whom could fit the description. The Southern gentleman part of it is a red herring, because most Canadians think anything below the Canadian

40 Years Ago Today

April 10, 1939
A record membership of 69,382 for the Parent-Teacher movement in N.C. was reported today by Mrs. J.C. Parker of Fountain, chairman of the State Membership Committee.

Mrs. Parker told the delegates attending the 20th annual Congress of Parents and Teachers that membership was up six percent, or 3,500 higher than last year. Numerous conferences on education were also held during the convention.

Dr. Clyde Erwin, state superintendent of public instruction, told the conference on parent education that "undoubtedly the Parent-Teacher Association is one of the most powerful influences in the development of an education program in this state. I am very grateful to you for the splendid manner in which you have cooperated with the state education department."

One of the greatest needs in public education, Erwin said, is for better understanding on the part of parents as to what is going on in the public schools.

Having It Both Ways?

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the department of having it both ways, Congress bows to no one. Consider, for example, the dispute about oil prices, profits and taxes.

President Carter is lifting oil price ceilings beginning June 1, and wants Congress to approve a tax on windfall profits that result from the move.

Congressional critics contend Carter is going at the problem backward, by acting on prices first and taxes later. But when the president proposed to put the tax first, Congress said no.

Bills have been proposed in the Senate and the House to take away the power Congress gave Carter in 1975 to lift price controls, but there's little chance the bills will become law.

Price controls are mandatory through May 31, then are left to the president's discretion until September 1981. They now hold the cost of domestic oil to about $9.50 a barrel, while some foreign producers have pushed their prices to nearly twice that level. By lifting controls, the administration seeks to increase domestic production and promote conservation.

Opponents, led by Sen.

Henry Jackson, D-Wash., argue that decontrol will aggravate inflation, enrich the oil industry and yield little new production. "We simply cannot afford decontrol now," Jackson said in proposing price controls be made mandatory until Oct. 31, 1981.

Jackson also said any decontrol move should be tied to a tax on the profits the industry will reap from higher prices. Carter is putting decontrol first, since he has that power, and urging Congress to enact a windfall profits tax, since he cannot do that by himself.

"That is simply backward," Jackson said.

But Carter has a readymade comeback. He's already tried it the other way around. His original energy program included a tax plan that would have raised the price of domestic oil to world market levels within three years, with the revenues to be rebated to all Americans.

Congress rejected that.

Carter contends that his decision to decontrol oil prices will cut the knot that has paralyzed U.S. energy policy for years.

"The question is no longer whether or not we decontrol domestic oil prices," he said Tuesday. "What we must do now is impose a windfall profits tax on the excess unearned profits of the oil producers."

By congressional estimate, higher prices could produce $25.2 billion more for the oil companies over the next three years.

Carter's strategy is to increase pressure for congressional action by moving first on decontrol. Without the tax, Carter said, decontrol would lead to a "wholly unjustified giveaway to the oil companies." And Congress would have to take some of the political heat for that.

Carter contends he already has done the hard part. His decontrol order means a gallon of gasoline will cost more, 4 or 5 cents by 1981 according to administration figures, 15 or 20 cents according to Jackson's.

Housework Has Significance

By GAIL MICHAELS
While other serious researchers have been devoting their time and energy to such important issues as the development of ice sculpture in Siberia and the effects of tradewinds on the migratory patterns of anchovies, I have been studying housework. In addition to analyzing its components in minute detail, I have taken pains to look at the overall picture. And I have found that housework not only has social significance, it has religious significance as well.

I first began to suspect this when I had enough data to divide housework into two categories: (1) those chores that follow a propagation principle and (2) those chores that follow a reversion principle. Perhaps it sounds complicated, but it's not. The chores that fall into the first category are simply those which involve materials that breed. I soon found that trash, crumbs, and dust balls are far more obedient than humans to the biblical dictum, "Be fruitful and multiply."

Moreover, these seemingly inert organisms are far more efficient at reproduction than we. As far as I can tell, their reproductive cycle does not depend upon mating, and reproduction takes place with prodigious speed. A housewife can leave a soup can in an empty trashcan overnight, and by morning it can produce a potato chips bag, a cookie bag, 3 apple cores, 2 pounds of coffee grounds, a chicken leg, and an ooze of unknown origin that penetrates the garbage bag and hardens all over the bottom of the trashcan.

Garbage is never far from the top, but the most prolific organism in the house is dirty laundry. My laundry room makes me feel like the miller's daughter in Rumpelstiltskin. I leave a shirt and a sock there overnight, and the next day there's a quarter of a room of clothes. If I leave it one more day, half the room is filled. In one more day, the entire room is full of dirty laundry, and when I observe how much of it is Meg's, I really border is south. Also, Margaret could be disguising the man with whom she fell so madly in love. For all I know it might have been Buddy Hackett or Rosie Grier or Howard Cosell.

I do recall that during one fox trot Margaret asked me, "Who is that beautiful senator sitting with Ethel Kennedy?"

"That's Jack Javits of New York," I told her. Yet when I think back on it, I don't believe Jack and Margaret said two words to each other all night.

The revelations in Mrs. Trudeau's book came as a surprise to all of us who have had anything to do with the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament. Because the party precedes the tournament and is held on a Friday evening, Ethel Kennedy has a strict rule that anyone playing in her tournament has to be in bed with lights out by midnight.

I can understand why many people would suspect that I was the great love in Margaret's life, as it seems likely that she would fall for the top-seeded celebrity in the tournament. But anyone who knows how much I love tennis will tell you that if I have the choice of a romance with the wife of the Prime Minister of Canada or being in top physical shape to play the next day, I will always be asleep by 11 o'clock.

closet, and two hours later it looks as if it's been sitting in the dryer for two weeks. I can make a bed, and within ten minutes the spread starts wrinkling. By the end of the day it look as if an ostrich has been nesting on it.

My own approach to these chores has always been to ignore them. After all, black silver looks modern, the wrinkled look is in, and my sheets need to air during the day. But recently my daughter informed me that these tasks, too, have their place somewhere in the Judeo-Christian tradition. She came home from the synagogue where she attends nursery school and announced, "We celebrated Purim today. I was Queen Vashti."

My curiosity forced me to betray my ignorance. "Who is Queen Vashti?"

"Oh, she was a terrible queen," Meg exclaimed. "She was unkind. She didn't care for anyone. And she didn't even make up her beds."

Before I submit this research to a theological journal, I've got to find out one thing. Is not making the beds a mortal or a venial sin?

Wends, the Svears, the Vikings and the Volvo.

By a vote of 259-6, the Rikstag, the Swedish Parliament, has passed a law that starting July 1 parents may not strike their children or treat them in any humiliating way.

Spanking is against the law, even a whack or a slap. So, too, is sending little Birgit to bed without supper, dusting the rompers of darling Dag, cutting off Olaf's TV rights, confining Pia to her bedroom and similar humiliations against impending posterity.

Mom and Dad could wind up in family court by way of the police station for opening little Gustav's mail and getting an advance peek at his porno publications. The law prescribes no specific penalties for parents caught red-handed assaulting the sensibilities of the new untouchable generation, but complaints will be handled by police and social workers with referrals to family court.

Parents better keep a civil tongue in their heads while Junior is out plowing up the petunia bed with his 10-speed bike and Gerta is spiking the blue cheese dressing with marijuana or they'll wind up on the business side of subpoena or at best the sharp side of a social worker's tongue.

Apparently the gloomy Goths, who already have the most permissive society and the highest suicide rate in Europe, are willing to sacrifice the sanity of this generation of parents to bring sweetness and light to a future pedagogical paradise. Aquavit sales should soar.

Those who devised the anti-spanking ban look upon it as a law that will change attitudes about child raising and heighten public consciousness to the innate rights of the child.

Toward this end, the Ministry of Justice is planning a big public relations campaign that will include videotapes for children, informing them of their legal rights, and brochures for parents detailing their obligations, with chapter heading like: "Can You Bring Up a Child Without Slapping Him?" and "Of Course You Have the Right as a Parent to Get Angry and Show It."

The latter chapter is still on the drawing board so there is speculation in the streets and abandoned woodsheds of Stockholm on just how far a parent can go in showing anger without running afoul of the law. Maybe cutting off a kid's legal allowance or bad-mouthing him in front of his mouthpiece. Refusing to talk to him is out, however, even if what you say may be held against you.

FCC Agrees

No Discriminating

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission agrees with its staff that several southern television stations did not discriminate against black colleges by not televising their football games.

The FCC ruled unanimously Thursday against a complaint filed by a citizens' group that wanted it to revoke the licenses of some NBC-affiliated stations in Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas.

Environmentalists Are Pushing Refinery Rules

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina environmental officials are pressing ahead with efforts to draft regulations for oil refineries to hasten processing of a proposed $350 million facility in Brunswick County, a state official said Thursday.

The regulations are expected to be enacted by the end of the month.

"We are going to try to have the regulations ready to be put into effect by April 30 so we can move on this and process the Brunswick permit," said Edward Gavin, an enforcement officer for the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

Howard N. Lee, secretary of the department, agreed, but denied the project is forcing any shortcuts.

"We certainly are pushing it as fast as we can both so that we can protect ourselves and because we think the Brunswick facility is a good thing,"

Lee said.

But he said, "Even if the Brunswick project pulled out tomorrow, I'd still want to push those regulations through."

Some state environmental groups are concerned that the April 30 target date will not allow sufficient time for public input on the regulations.

The Crown Central Petroleum Corp., a Maryland-based firm, and two other companies have announced plans to build the refinery on the Cape Fear River. The refinery would have the capability of producing more than 150,000 barrels of oil per day.

A number of state and federal permits must first be obtained by the companies.

Under the regulations being considered, an additional permit would have to be obtained from the natural resources secretary. The secretary would decide whether to issue the permit only after examining what impact an oil refinery would have on water and air resources, wildlife, fisheries, parks, forests and other recreation areas.

The second of two public hearings on the proposed regulations was scheduled for 7 p.m. today at the Cape Fear Technical Institute in Wilmington.

Dr. John Costlow, director of the Duke University Marine Laboratory at Beaufort, said he thought the state was rushing the regulations.

"I think they are in a hurry and have done many things in the regulations that are exemplary of this," Costlow said. "There are a lot of good things in the proposed regulations, but I think there are some weak areas as well. I would hope that due consideration could be given to the full document and I don't think it can be done by April 30."

Afraid Tight Gasoline Supply Through 1979

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Petroleum industry sources say they are afraid the tight gasoline supplies of recent months may continue through the rest of this year.

The fears stem from continued high demand, despite efforts to encourage conservation, and the fact that gasoline inventories are running substantially below last year's levels.

"It's not precarious now, but how they'll get through the summer like that is hard to imagine," said Mark Emond, editor of the Lundberg Letter, a Los Angeles-based newsletter that covers the gasoline industry. "The problem with gasoline is getting through August."

According to the American Petroleum Institute, an industry group, the supply of gasoline last week was 235.5 million barrels, compared to 264.1 million barrels a year ago and down from 242.7 million barrels a week earlier.

The industry tries to build a large inventory of gasoline before the start of the peak summer driving season, and then uses gasoline from that inventory, plus newly made gas, to supply consumers during the summer.

The supply usually peaks about this time of year, but it hit 265 million barrels the week of Feb. 16 and has been declining since.

Industry spokesmen downplay comparisons with last year, saying supplies were unusually high. But even so, supplies ran short last year because of unexpectedly high consumption.

"The thing that's worrying them is obviously the demand,"

said one source. "People are out there driving."

Most of the nation's oil companies have limited their dealers to about 90 percent of the gasoline they got last year, even though demand is up about 4 percent.

Emond added that further cuts in allocations could be a bad sign. "If they cut allocations again, it will mean they view the summer with alarm," he said.

Lost Five Children As Fairmont Home Burned

FAIRMONT, N.C. (AP) — Kary Jackson, in whose home five children perished in a fire, said the fierce flames prevented any rescue attempt.

"It happened so fast and scared me so bad," Jackson said from his hospital bed Thursday, one day after the fatal blaze.

The fire gutted the wood frame home at Fairmont in Robeson County.

The fire apparently erupted while Jackson, 24, was working on a lawn mower in his living room about 10:20 p.m. Wednesday, said Detective H.C. Edwards of the Robeson County Sheriff's Department.

The lawnmower exploded, showering him and the living room of the five-room house with burning gasoline, Edwards said.

"The flames got all over me," Jackson said. "I couldn't reach my children because the flames were between us."

Jackson was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday at Southeastern General Hospital in Lumberton with third-degree burns, a hospital spokesman said.

The mother of the children, who ranged in age from three months to five years old, told investigators that she ran out of the house and that her husband jumped out a window. She said rescue attempts failed because of the intense flames and smoke.

"I liked to blistered my face trying to put out the fire," said a member of the Fairmont Rural Fire Department. "The wind wasn't bad, but it took us 20 minutes to get it cooled down enough to where we could get in and get the kids out. They were burned beyond recognition."

Mrs. Jackson, 21, was treated for shock at the hospital.

The family lived in the White Pond community south of Fairmont near the South Carolina border.

The children were identified as Sandra McCrimmon, 5, Barbara Ann and Betty Ann Jackson, both 4, Joyce Mary Jackson, 22 months and Mary Ann Jackson, 3 months.

Hit-Run Case

Chief Glenn Cannon said police are continuing their investigation of a hit and run incident here Wednesday night that injured a 28-year-old Route 4, Greenville man.

Cannon said Nathaniel Charles Brown was injured when struck by a car about 9:50 p.m. on Tenth Street, 480 feet East of the Dickinson Avenue intersection.

Brown told officers he was crossing the street when a fast-moving car approached and he was unable to get out of the way.

Seven Coast Guard Planes Hunt Overdue Clipper

Claim Shooting Two Americans

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An outlawed leftist group claimed responsibility today for slaying an American serviceman and critically wounding another in the Aegean port city of Izmir, the semi-official Anatolia news agency reported.

The agency said the Turkish Peoples Liberation Front, blamed for the kidnap-murders of an Israeli diplomat and three NATO technicians in 1972, claimed in telephone calls to newspapers to have carried out Thursday's attack.

The slain American has been identified by American Embassy officials as Master Sgt. Edward E. Claypool, 43, of Richards, Mo., who is survived by his wife and four children. His companion, Staff Sgt. Jeffrey P. Vail, 30, of Myrtle Beach, S.C., was reported in "stable condition" at the Aegean University Hospital.

Embassy officials said Claypool was to have left Turkey in two weeks upon completing his tour of duty at Turkish-U.S. Logistics attached to the 6th Allied Tactical Air Force of NATO headquarters in Izmir. Vail had arrived in Turkey on a similar assignment a month ago, they said.

Necdet Calp, provincial governor of Izmir, Turkey's third biggest city with a population of one million, said police continued an intensive hunt today.

Four gunmen opened fire on the Americans from a moving car near the entrance of a local international fairgrounds in a crowded sector of Izmir late Thursday afternoon. Claypool died instantly and Vail underwent emergency surgery. Both were in uniform, returning to their quarters.

The assault on the Americans was the first since a leftist gang kidnapped three U.S. servicemen and released them unharmed in 1971.

Accept Loss Due Thefts

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — As many as 5 percent of the Cablevision of Greensboro customers are not paying for the service, but company officials say they don't pursue prosecution because of the cost.

Terry Hicks, regional manager of the parent company, American Television and Communications Corp., said laws against such violations are too weak.

Officials said most cable abuse is found in apartment complexes where private connection is easiest. Hicks said the hook-up in many apartments is accomplished simply by throwing a switch.

The company plans to start a random survey of households on the 450-mile system within two weeks to determine the extent of the theft. A company audit 15 months ago indicated the theft problem was serious.

Hicks said the company has begun to tighten security at apartment complexes. The company now locks the switching boxes in areas where theft is particularly blatant and installs tap locks, which are shielding devices to prevent unauthorized hook-ups, he said.

In cases of theft, Hicks said, the company considers prosecution. However, the law serves to deter prosecution, he said. "The legal fees of prosecuting often exceed the fine," he said.

In addition, the company has to find a witness who is willing to testify that he saw the defendant connecting a set into the system, Hicks said.

The violation is a misdemeanor and carries a sentence of up to 60 days in jail or a $300 fine.

Placed 3rd In Billiards Event

ECU News Bureau

After losing the opening round of the Association of College Unions-International Billiards Tournament held April 5-7 at the University of Michigan, 10th seeded Michael Kearns of East Carolina University compiled a dazzling come-from-behind effort to finish third in this national collegiate event.

A total of 15 players participated in the men's division. Each player had previously won a regional ACUI tournament and were champs in their respective schools.

Kearns qualified for the tournament by winning the regional (Ky., N.C., S.C., Va. and Tenn.) championships in Knoxville last month and the ECU campus tournament in November.

He was sponsored by ECU's Mendenhall Student Center.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard sent seven long-range aircraft into an area 240 miles east of the Virginia coast in its computerized search of the Atlantic for the schooner Pride of Baltimore and its crew of 11, four days overdue in Norfolk, Va.

Baltimore City officials said the crew, which includes a seasoned captain, Charles Whitcomb, 52, eight men and two women, most of them in their 20s with some sailing experience, may have tried to avoid a weekend storm off the Carolinas and headed out to sea.

They predicted that the wooden replica of an early 19th century Baltimore clipper — which has been overdue before, sometimes as long as 10 days — would arrive at Norfolk today.

Nevertheless, Coast Guard officials decided to use the computer and to broaden the search for the 136-foot wooden, two-masted topsail schooner.

Early today the computer "spit out a search area" off Cape Henry, Va., northwest of Bermuda, said First Class Petty Officer Andres Bolinaga in Portsmouth, Va. The planes are surveying a 425,000-square mile area "as close in as 120 miles and some further out than the 240-mile average," he added.

Bolinaga said "pre-determined factors" were fed into the computer based on "Coast Guard tests of different vessels." He acknowledged that the Pride "is a little larger than usual for a sailing vessel we search for."

While Thursday's search involved only one Coast Guard airplane, which scanned the Atlantic from Wilmington, N.C., to Norfolk, today's effort will involve "many, many planes," Bolinaga said. "We'll use Coast Guard, Air Force and Navy planes, plus anything else we can get our hands on.

"As to where it (the ship) might be now — I wouldn't care to guess," he added.

"The computer will take all the facts, whirl it around in its electronic mind, add the winds and currents, and it will spit out areas of probability," Bolinaga said.

The vessel is on the last leg of a 7,000-mile winter cruise to the Caribbean. It left its home berth Oct. 19 and was due to dock at the Port of Baltimore Saturday.

It was to arrive in Norfolk Tuesday, but when it hit heavy northwesterly winds Sunday, it was sent perhaps 200 to 300 miles offshore, said Thomas F. Norton, director of Operation Sail, Inc., the company that operates the vessel for the city.

Norton said the "prudent" thing to do when faced with strong winds, such as those encountered by the Pride, is to sail offshore.

"I'm really not surprised they haven't found it. Have you ever tried to find a ship from the air? It's a big ocean. I suspect they'll find her if they go far enough offshore," Norton said.

The vessel has an 85-horsepower engine used for docking, but the smallness of the engine left the schooner vulnerable to changes in wind direction. In addition, its small radio may not have picked up Coast Guard messages sent on distress frequencies to ocean-going vessels, urging them to be on a lookout for the schooner.

The Pride was built by the city during the Bicentennial as a goodwill ambassador and was commissioned in April 1977.

Because the vessel has been overdue before, the city is considering buying a $4,500 high seas telephone monitor which would allow onshore communications with the ship, Norton said.

The city never installed a high-powered radio because the vessel had "very good navigational equipment," he added.

Hunt Owner Of Mystery B-25

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A World War II-vintage bomber, suspected by South Carolina police of being involved with drug smuggling, is at the Burlington Municipal Airport undergoing repairs.

A South Carolina sheriff said the Federal Aviation Administration has been unable to identify the owners.

Sheriff Ralph Freeman of Chesterfield County said a man he identified as Jim Collier of Guilford County claimed to represent the owners and presented false registration papers.

Collier could not be reached for comment today.

Collier denied earlier that he was involved in any illegal activity. He has not been charged, Freeman said.

The B-25, similar to the 16 planes that participated in the first American raid on Japan in April 1942, first attracted attention when it was discovered empty and unattended on a pasture landing strip in McBee, S.C., on March 12.

Freeman said a search of the plane yielded no evidence of drugs.

After a stakeout, a man arrived in McBee claiming to represent the owners, Freeman said. The sheriff said he asked for the registration papers and was given false papers March 31.

After being challenged about the papers, the man said that he had sent them to the FAA registry, Freeman said. However, the FAA said it had never received any papers and is still seeking the owners, Freeman said.

Freeman said the FAA found that the plane was sold by a California company but that the federal agency had been unsuccessful in contacting anyone concerning the sale.

Scout Is Honored By Ruritan Club

WINTERVILLE — Michael Wayne Joyner, a member of Boy Scout Troop 550, was awarded the "Outstanding Scout of the Year" award Tuesday at a meeting of the Winterville Ruritan Club.

Joyner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Joyner, has served his troop as an assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, senior patrol leader and is now a member of the troop's Leadership Corps. He was also the first member of the troop to earn the Eagle rank.

Joyner, a junior at D. H. Conley High School, is a Brotherhood member of Croatan Lodge No. 117, Order of the Arrow, and serves as chief of the Chapter. He has participated in the Brown Sea Double Two leadership at Camp Bonner, and since earning his Eagle, Michael has completed necessary work to receive his third palm.

Joyner participated in the planning and landscaping at A. G. Cox School for his Eagle service project. At Conley, Joyner is a member of the JROTC and the Track Team.

The Ruritans also awarded the President's Club Cup to member Leck Keeter, who serves as a national director. The cup was given in honor of Keeter's efforts in organizing the Oak City Ruritan Club, enrolling five new members in the Winterville chapter, and organizing the May 19 Winterville Clean-Up Day.

Would Retaliate If Merger Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal workers would "do everything possible" to defeat any member of Congress who votes for merging their retirement plans with Social Security, says the head of the National Federation of Federal Employees.

James M. Peirce told a study panel Thursday that members of the union totally oppose such a merger, which many experts say is inevitable. The Universal Social Security Coverage Study Group, which held Thursday's hearing, will issue a report by December on the desirability of bringing the 8 million uncovered federal employees into the Social Security system.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning for most of the East coast. Sunny weather is due for the Plains and the West. Cold weather is persisting in the northern Plains but most of the country will share mild temperatures. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
A flash flood watch is in effect today for the mountains, Eastern slopes and foothills and the southern Piedmont.

A slow-moving cold front now over the Mississippi Valley has spread heavy rains over sections of western North Carolina during the night. Rain with scattered heavy thunderstorms will be a threat over the entire state today, but the flash flood danger will be the greatest over the watch area where rains over the past day or so have saturated soils so that rapid runoff will occur in heavy rains.

Yesterday most of the rain in the state was confined to western portions, although scattered light showers did develop over most areas of the state. Heaviest precipitation reported over the past 24 hours has been 1.4 inches at Asheville.

High temperatures yesterday ranged from 60s in the mountains to low 80s in the southeast. Fayetteville with an 80 degree reading was the warmest official weather station in the state.

Some thunderstorms today may be heavy and have strong, gusty winds.

Small craft advisories are in effect for the North Carolina coast and soundas winds will be increasing during the day. Rain will be moving across the state during the day and should reach the coast by late morning. Highs today and Saturday will be mostly in the 70s except 60s in the mountains. Lows tonight will range from the upper 40s to mid 50s in the mountains to 60s near the coast. Kerr Lake level is 307.8 feet.

There may be a break in the shower activity on Easter Sunday, but showers could return to the state Monday and Tuesday. Highs Sunday through Tuesday will be mostly in the 60s except low 70s for the southeast.

TRIAL SERMON

Larry Walston, brother of the Rev. Hue Walston, pastor of Sycamore Missionary Baptist Church, will give his trial sermon at the church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday morning worship services will be held at 11 a.m.

Boaters Warned

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A report issued by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission included a warning to boaters who drink.

The report revealed that in one-third of last year's fatal boating accidents, the victims tested had a blood alcohol level of about .10 percent. An automobile driver with a level that high is considered to be driving while intoxicated.

Fifty boating deaths occurred last year, compared to 60 in 1977, the report said. Carteret County had the most accidents and fatalities reported in the state — 14 accidents and six deaths.

The Wildlife Resources Commission said the major causes of fatal boating accidents last year included:

- Anchoring the boat from the stern or letting the stern of the boat face oncoming waves.
- Sudden movements, such as standing, in small boats.
- Operator inattention.
- Disregard of weather conditions.

The commission said that in addition to loss of coordination and reduced reaction time, alcohol consumption increases the rate of body heat loss in cold water.

College Now Trade School

KITTELL, N.C. (AP) — The campus of a financially plagued college, now turned into a trade school, has begun receiving its first students.

The Kittrell College campus, which has been closed since 1975 because of financial problems, is now the site for a Job Corps program.

Erskine D. Hawkins, director of the Kittrell Job Corps Center, said that as many as 66 students will be enrolled.

The center, which operates with federal money, is run by the Southeastern Training Corp. of Atlanta. Students will be able to take high school equivalency courses, mathematics, reading and other academic courses, and receive vocational education. Courses to be taught include carpentry, masonry, painting-plastering, nursing aide and bookkeeping.

Hawkins said the school will also help students prepare for and enroll in college.

The center will operate under a $1.2 million budget the first year.

Hawkins said about 90 percent of the students will be from North Carolina. The remainder will come from other Southeastern states, he said.

To be eligible to attend an applicant must be a high school dropout between the ages of 16 and 21. The center has a capacity for 150 men and 100 women.

Miss Catharine White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.A. White, 1905 E. Ninth St., and Miss Alicia (Josie) Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Keller, 422 W. Fourth St., served this week as pages in Governor Jim Hunt's offices in Raleigh.

Both White and Keller are eighth grade students at E.B. Aycock Junior High School.

Fiddlin' Champ To Defend Title

UNION GROVE, N.C. (AP) — Tim Smith of Sparta is nothing less than the world champion fiddler.

The 23-year-old out-fiddled everybody else to win that title last year at the 54th annual Old Time Fiddlers' Convention, and he'll be defending his title at this weekend's fiddlin' on the farm of J. Pierce Van Hoy.

The annual three-day bluegrass music festival got under way Thursday and will run through the early morning hours of Sunday when the next "world champion" will be crowned.

Smith considered sitting out the competition this year, but he decided to defend his title.

"Whether I win or lose," he said, "I've come back." And he's armed with his fiddle and an original composition called "Union Grove Stomp."

The fiddlin' convention, which draws a predominantly youthful crowd, sprawls over the wooded hills of Van Hoy's farm. The farm becomes a self-contained community during the convention.

After paying admission, fans can buy food, beer and trinkets, and listen to an endless stream of string bands. The hills are covered with tents, and Van Hoy accommodates his paying guests by renting rows of portable toilets.

Doctors and nurses hired by Van Hoy staff a temporary infirmary at the convention site.

As in past years, the Iredell County Sheriff's Department has set up a temporary command post at a school a couple of miles from the convention site.

Last year, more than 100 persons were arrested, mostly on drug charges, according to Lt. G.L. Griffin, who is in charge of the command post. The death of one man was attributed to a drug overdose.

"We have a communications center, breathalyzer room, a magistrate on duty, a State Bureau of Investigation lab, photographing and fingerprinting areas and a prison bus," Griffin said.

District Meet

The chairman of the Pitt County Republican Party urged all delegates and alternates to attend the District GOP Convention, set for Saturday, April 21 at 2 p.m. at the Pitt Courthouse.

Jim McIntyre said during the recent county GOP meeting that the purpose of the convention is to elect officers to serve the 21-county First Congressional District.

Plans were discussed by the county members for attendance at the State Convention, scheduled for May 18-19 at the Raleigh Civic Center. McIntyre invited all interested Republicans to attend the regular monthly meetings of the county organization, held the second Monday of each month at Home Savings and Loan on Arlington Boulevard.

Hailing An Anomaly Of Easter

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Christians this Sunday celebrate their faith in a strange paradox — that the world crushes true goodness, yet it supremely endures.

That is the anomaly of Easter, considered the one clear-cut warranty in all history that right finally wins over wrong.

It is "a beam of light in vast darkness," says the Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, "shone forth in love of people."

They are "drawn to it in hope."

As believers see it, Jesus, the utterly good and true person, mirroring within humanity the life-giving love and generosity of God himself, was cut down by a spurning, errant mankind.

Total goodness was killed, it appeared, stamped out by human wrongness.

That was the surface evidence, that injustice had prevailed, and this remains an immediate impression in much that happens in the oppressions and abuses of the modern world.

It seems a depressing state — the strong trampling the weak, the corrupt exploiting the innocent, the tyrants victimizing the brave, children going hungry. Disasters, wars and disease take their toll, and it looks as if death and decay have the final say.

But "they will not win in the end," says the Rev. Dr. Carl E. Braaten of the Chicago Divinity School, adding that the guarantee that it won't be proclaimed in the resurrection.

That event contradicts the ordinary view. It assures that, despite the horrors, goodness does succeed. It says that even though the best suffers the worst the world can inflict, rightness triumphs in the end.

Through Easter, "we learn that the victim of public violence becomes the victor for the sake of the violated," Braaten writes in the Lutheran Church in America magazine, The Lutheran.

Yet the pains, the cruelties and unjustified suffering continue, giving many the hopeless view that it's all a dismal procession of brute facts, terminated in the final blow of dying.

That's the "ordinary view of reality," writes a United Church of Christ theologian, the Rev. Dr. Ronald Goetz, but it is "not the whole ... not the totality of things."

"The world is not what it seems," he adds.

"The resurrection of Jesus ... reveals to us intimations of the love and life of God which burst the bounds of all our world views — revealing the triviality of all our doubts, grounded as they are in our all-too-worldly, all-too-limited view of reality."

To Christians, the resurrection opened a wider window on the real, on an underlying truth not obvious in regular processes. "It is here and yet not here," the late philosopher Paul Tillich put it — a reality "between the facts" of history.

Will Speak For Revival

The Philippi Christian Church on Farmville Blvd. will hold its annual revival Monday, April 16 through Friday, April 20. Services will be held nightly at 7:30 p.m.

REV. Z. D. HARRIS

churches, ministers and congregations will participate: Monday, the Rev. C. L. Gardner, Selvia Chapel Church; Tuesday, the Rev. Moore and Cornerstone Church; Wednesday, the Rev. Luther Brown, York Memorial Church; Thursday, the Rev. W. L. Jones, Mt. Calvary Church; Friday, the Rev. B. B. Felder, Sycamore Hill Church. The public is invited to attend.

Music Festival Slated May 5

MOUNT OLIVE — The Annual Music Festival at Eagles Nest Conference Center near Mount Olive will feature gospel music from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Saturday, May 5. Admission is free.

Featured groups will include the Heaven Bound from Kinston, the Gospel Chargers, the Watchmen, the Son Life Singers, the New Life Singers, and the Prescott Family and the New Creations.

Picnic lunches are welcome, and barbeque plates will also be available for $2.50. Ample parking will be available and seating will be arranged on the grounds.

Pastors Prepare Sunrise Service

The Greenville and Pitt County Pastor's Conference will sponsor its annual Sunrise Service Sunday at 6 a.m. at Mount Calvary F.W.B. Church.

The Rev. Luther Brown will deliver the sermon, accompanied by his choir, ushers and congregation. Holy communion will be observed after the sermon.

A fellowship breakfast will be served after the service. The public is invited to attend.

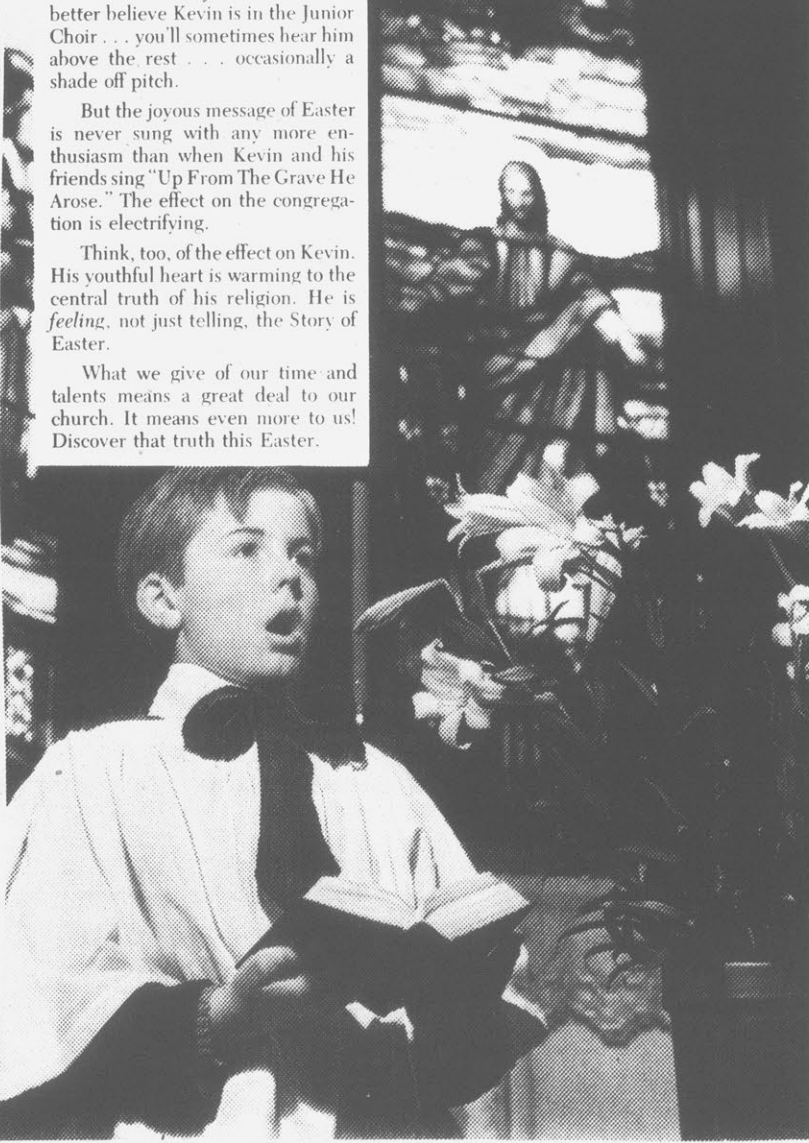

Up From The Grave He Arose

Kevin's in the Junior Choir. You better believe Kevin is in the Junior Choir ... you'll sometimes hear him above the rest ... occasionally a shade off pitch.

But the joyous message of Easter is never sung with any more enthusiasm than when Kevin and his friends sing "Up From The Grave He Arose." The effect on the congregation is electrifying.

Think, too, of the effect on Kevin. His youthful heart is warming to the central truth of his religion. He is feeling, not just telling, the Story of Easter.

What we give of our time and talents means a great deal to our church. It means even more to us! Discover that truth this Easter.

ty and county, as well as representatives from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners in working toward promotion of the bond issue.

Superintendent Alford asked for support from both local television and newspapers in getting out the word on the bond issue, and also asked for help from local advisory councils in promoting the issue.

Several persons came to the Thursday meeting in the interest of the issue of the county teachers having Easter Monday as a holiday.

The board had instructed Superintendent Alford to check with the State Department of Public Instruction and the state Attorney General's Office at its April 3 meeting to see if the board could be allowed to add on extra hours for a certain number of days or declare June 18 a teacher workday to make up for lost days during the snow.

Superintendent Alford presented letters from both the State Department of Public Instruction and the Attorney General's office Thursday, both of which said in effect that the board had no legal right under G. S. 115-157 to take either action.

The board then voted to "reluctantly stay within the law" as stated by board member Dr. Tom Patterson.

However, the board instructed Superintendent Alford later in the meeting to check with the State Board of Education Friday morning to see if it would be permissible to declare one of the snow days a teacher workday, and if so, to allow teachers to have a vacation Easter Monday. Students have already been granted the day as a holiday.

In other business, the board approved a list of teachers for career status, and heard a request to form a committee to study the proposed county-city merger question as asked by League of Women Voters member Pat Dunn. A request to hold a summer lunch program by Director of Food Services Donna Ware was tabled until the May meeting for further study.

After an executive session, the board voted to approve another four-year contract for Superintendent Alford, with similar contracts for Assistant Superintendents Kathryn Lewis, Leck Keeter, Bernard Haselrig, and Associate Superintendent Tom Craft.

amount of people per acre" that could result. The spokesman said that the residents feel the neighborhood complies with at least R-9 zoning.

Bobby Roberson, the city's planning director, explained that under the R-6 residential designation, multi-family and duplex development is allowed, while only duplex development is allowed in R-9.

Manning contended that the R-6 zoning would conform to the corridor study conducted in the area. He said that the R-6 zoning represented "good planning technique" and he added that single-family as well as multi-family development is allowed. The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended the rezoning, he noted.

Manning said that the property is in a "holding pattern" and would remain in that situation until city sewer services are obtained.

Mrs. McGrath asked Manning if he would agree to raising the zoning classification to R-9 but Manning said that he did not want R-9.

Mrs. McGrath said that she realized the neighbors were concerned but she added that Manning did have a right to develop his property. She offered the motion to approve the recommendation of the planning board to rezone the property.

The Council approved an ordinance creating a Beautification, Clean-up and Litter Control Committee for the city and appointed nine regular members and two ex-officio members to serve.

Named to serve three-year terms were Joe Hallow, Dr. Paul Mehne and David Barnhill, while Mrs. Lynn Dodson Whitley, Ms. Gray Smith and Wilson McDowell were appointed to two-year tenures. Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, the Rev. Bill Hadden and Dr. Trenton Davis were named to one-year terms. All of the members will be eligible for reappointment.

In addition, the Police Department and Chamber of Commerce will designate one person each to serve in an ex-officio capacity on the new committee.

Mrs. Sis East, a member of the Planning Commission, pointed out that the city did not have any ordinance dealing with litter control and beautification until now.

Other action taken by the Council included:

— Appointment of City Engineer Ron Sewell to the Environmental Advisory Commission;

— Appointment of Danny Montford and Susan Artino as the East Carolina University students representatives on the Human Relations Council;

— Appointment of Dr. Patricia Daugherty to the Land Development Ad Hoc Committee;

— Rezoning of property located within the N. Green Street-Pactolus Highway area from RA-20 to Unoffensive Industry, Highway Commercial and R6-Mobile Home;

— Adoption of an ordinance amendment regarding the transfer of control for Greenville Cable TV Inc., adding Pitt County to the franchise area;

— Adoption of a resolution declaring the results of the special bond referendum held on April 3 regarding the approval of $24 million Utilities bonds;

— Approval of a request by Mrs. Geneva Harrison to place a mobile home at 152 W. Gum Road for use as a personal residence;

— Approval of a request by J. T. Williams for rezoning, from RA-20 to R6-Mobile Home, of approximately .15 acres east of Brook Valley;

— Appointment of City

Manager Ed Wyatt as an alternate commissioner of the North Carolina Municipal Power Agency No. Two;

— Approval of a contractual services agreement with the Chamber of Commerce for services involving the city's annual report, establishment of a city radio program once a month, scheduling of press conferences, preparation of press releases, development of brochures and pamphlets, public relations assistance, and other areas;

— Approval of a recommendation by the Traffic Commission to prohibit parking, from 1-8 a.m., on Sixth Street from Elm to Maple, and on Elm from Tenth to Sixth Streets;

— Denial of a request by John A. Vanwagen Jr., submitted to the Traffic Commission, to eliminate parking on the south side of the 100 block of E. 13th Street;

— Authorization to submit a planning grant to the N.C. Department of Transportation for transportation planning activities for 1980;

— Authorization to enter into a contract with the N.C. Department of Natural Resources, Division of Community Employment, for an $18,803 CETA grant for April 1 to Sept. 30; — Approval of a request by the Greenville Utilities Commission for the grant of an easement across the city's Public Works property off W. Third Street;

— Granting of an application for a one-year on-premise beer privilege license to Tripp's Bypass Service center, 719 Memorial Drive;

— Renewal of a list of local beer and wine privilege licenses;

— Approval of a request by Greenville Marble and Granite Works to erect two crypt tombs in Greenwood Cemetery;

— Awarding of a bid submitted by Whitehurst & Sons Fence Co. of Greenville in the amount of $21,402 for fencing at Evans Park, West Greenville and Moyewood (Eastern Fence Co. offered a bid of $24,995);

— Scheduling of two rezoning requests for public hearings at the May 10 regular meeting; and — Adoption of a resolution declaring the railroad weighing scales at the site of the new Public Works facility as surplus to the city's needs and authorizing the sale of the scales by private sale.

Raiders Strike Guerrilla HQ

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Rhodesian commandos in a daring two-hour raid inside Zambia's capital destroyed the office-residence of guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo and two other guerrilla headquarters before dawn today.

A spokesman for the British government in London said the raid would make a Rhodesian peace even more elusive.

Hospital sources said at least 10 persons were killed and dozens wounded. They said most of the casualties were guerrilla guards. The Zambian government confirmed there were casualties but did not say how many.

Nkomo, co-leader of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance fighting the white-dominated Rhodesian government, was not in the building at the time, Western diplomatic sources said.

Later today he appeared at a rally at the destroyed headquarters along with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda. Zambia ordered the immediate call-up of all able-bodied men with previous military training.

Nearly residents said the attack started with heavy automatic weapons fire and ended with explosions from inside the building.

Lusaka was calm after today's raid, but many foreign embassies advised nationals to stay indoors and not to leave the city until the situation settled down.

In Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, the Rhodesian military command confirmed the raid by its ground forces but gave no details.

Nkomo and Patriotic Front co-leader Robert Mugabe have vowed to sabotage Rhodesia's national elections next week, and Rhodesia's biracial transition government has been bombing Zambian guerrilla camps to immobilize the terrorists.

The elections will install Rhodesia's first black-majority government. The guerrillas oppose the election on grounds whites will continue to dominate Rhodesia because of constitutional checks.

The provisions give whites, who make up less than 4 percent of Rhodesia's 6.7 million population, control of the military and judiciary and guarantee them 28 of Parliament's 100 seats.

Kinston Eagles Nips Pirates By 4-2

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

KINSTON — For East Carolina University's Pirates, it was a chance to get in some baseball for fun, away from the pressures of victory.

For the Kinston Eagles, a farm club of the Toronto Blue

Jays, it was their final warmup prior to opening the season.

When it was over, Kinston had gained a 4-2 triumph, but the Pirates admitted that who won really didn't matter.

Even head coach Monte Little and associate coach Hal Baird got into the action. Little twice batted in the game, hitting a long fly to deep right center, and popping up to the infield.

Baird came on to pitch one inning of relief, retiring the Eagles in order on a freak grounder and two fly balls, the latter of which left fielder Butch Davis made an outstanding shoestring catch on the run to prevent a hit.

The Pirates had their trouble at the plate against the pro pitching, not getting a hit until the sixth inning, and ending up with only three. Both of the East Carolina runs came without benefit of hit.

Kinston's runs were all single affairs, with one of them unearned. East Carolina's Alan Gay started the game and was tagged with the loss. He gave up four hits, walked two and struck out two in three innings against the pros.

With one down in the first, Benjie Perez singled to center and Jesse Barfield reached on an error. Then, after a strikeout, Bob Silverman doubled to left, scoring Perez.

The third saw the Eagles score their second run. With two away, Barfield doubled to left center and John Crawford walked. Silverman delivered his second run-scoring hit, a single to right, scoring Barfield.

In the fourth, against Rick Ramey, the Eagles got a third run. Pedro Hernandez singled up the middle and Mike Coyne followed with a hit the same way, moving Hernandez to third. Eddie Dennis grounded out, scoring Hernandez.

After starting and winning pitcher Rafael Santana held the Pirates hitless for three innings, Jesse Flores picked up the next two, but gave up the only runs the Pirates got.

The scoring came in the fifth. With one out, Jerry Carraway reached on an error and Bob Neff and Mike Sorrell both walked. A wild pitch scored Carraway, and Neff came in when Billy Best grounded to second.

The first Pirate hit came off Mike Cuellar, the son of former big-leaguer Mike Cuellar. Macon Moye greeted him with a single to right to open the sixth. Carraway and Sorrell also singled off him in the seventh, but Randy Wiens, who came on for the final two innings, held the Bucs in check, not allowing a baserunner.

The other Eagle run came in the seventh. Barfield opened up with a double off Bobby Patterson and Al Castillo reached on a hit to deep short. Then, with two outs, Hernandez singled up the middle to score Barfield.

Barfield, Silverman and Hernandez led the Kinston hitting with two each.

"We just had a good time," Little said afterwards. "This was a good thing for everyone concerned. We had fun. It was totally enjoyable."

The Pirates get back to more serious activity tonight, traveling to meet Campbell at 7:30 p.m. in Buies Creek, then return home Saturday night for a 7:30 game against Pembroke. The two meet again in a Sunday doubleheader, set for 1:30 p.m.

East Carolina Winds Up Spring Practice

Quarterback Leander Green directed an efficient Purple offense and led his squad to a 34-7 victory over the Gold in a Ficklen Stadium scrimmage which concluded East Carolina's spring football practice last night.

The workman-like Green ran and passed well in the effort, one which saw halfback Sam Harrell and Mike Hawkins score twice each. Harrell crossed into the end zone from five and 24 yards away, while Hawkins scored on a nine-yard run and on a 24-yard pass from Green. Henry Trevathan ran 17 yards for the other touchdown for the Purple. Bill Lamm kicked four extra points and a run failed following the final touchdown.

Anthony Collins of the Gold led all rushers with well over 100 yards for the nine, including an 83-yard touchdown run. He had another long touchdown run called back by penalty. Aaron Stewart directed the Gold attack.

Defensively, Pirate coach Pat Dye singled out Noah Clark, a defensive tackle for the Purple for his outstanding play.

"The big thing is that a lot of young people got a chance to play and play a lot," Dye said. "I hope to look at the film and see some good things."

"I thought that Leander threw the ball well and Collins really put on a show. Sam Harrell had some fine runs, too. Noah Clark was all over the field defensively. I thought Rodney Allen punted well. I know he got off a couple of long ones and put several down close to the goal line."

Following the drill, Dye complimented the squad on its effort of the spring, saying that he didn't think that they had had a bad practice during any of the 20 days of work.

The Pirates open the 1979 season on September 1, playing host to Western Carolina in a 7 p.m. game.

Lady Pirates Attend Relays

East Carolina's women's track team will travel to Chapel Hill Saturday to participate in their first in-state meet of the season, the North Carolina Relays.

This will be the first competition for the Pirate women against in-state foes North Carolina and N.C. State, who could be strong challengers to the state title, won by East Carolina last spring.

This will also be the first competition for several of the Pirate women. Coach Laurie Arrants has been utilizing a small traveling squad previously, but said she plans to take the entire team to Carolina.

"We will take the whole team to the relays, looking for as many place points as possible," Arrants said. "Everyone is healthy."

Rose Rips Bertie, 12-3

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
WINDSOR — Last season, when the Rose High baseball team made its annual trip to Bertie, the Rampants were treated to a no-hit performance by Falcon pitcher Marty Evans. Rose returned to Windsor yesterday and Evans once again took the mound for Bertie. The Rampants had revenge on their minds, though, and leadoff hitter Mark Shank quickly dispelled any thoughts of a repeat performance with a single up the middle.

The Rampants blistered Evans, who only lasted one inning, and went on to take an easy 12-3 victory over the Falcons to raise their record to 8-1 overall and 5-1 in Division I.

"We're really swinging the bats good," Rose coach Ronald Vincent said after watching his team bang out 10 hits, including two doubles. "Evans is the guy that no-hit us last year and our guys really got psyched up and really hit the ball on him."

It was a most difficult day for the Falcon lefthander. In his inning on the mound, he gave up four hits and six runs. He had a whopping total of five wild pitches, and after moving behind the plate in the second, gave up a passed ball.

Rose had a field day as wild pitches and errors accounted for all but two of the Rampant runs. The Falcons, who are now 2-8 overall and 1-5 in the conference, committed nine errors and had three more wild pitches from relief man Steve Hoggard.

Rose scored three runs in the first, all on wild pitches, and four in the second, but got a little lackadaisical, Vincent said. Errors in the second and fourth innings helped the Falcons score their three runs.

"We got a little lackadaisical on defense in the first few innings after we got the lead, but we came back and played a lot better at the end," Vincent noted.

Lindsey Winstead went the distance for Rose, giving up nine hits, but just one earned run. It was his fifth win against no losses. "Winstead pitched a good game. He mixes his pitches well and he and (catcher) Skip Topping really work good together."

Vincent commented that his team continues to hit the ball well after getting off to a slow start. "Coach (Robert) Caraway has been working with the hitters and I give him a lot of credit. We look like a different team now."

Shank and Will Sanderson both got hits to start off the first for the Rampants. Shank scored on a pair of wild pitches, but Sanderson, after stealing second, was gunned down at third by Falcon catcher Alan Hoggard.

Ronnie Chapman walked and stole second and third. He scored on a wild pitch. Topping also waited out a walk and courtesy runner Robert Morehead went in for him. He stole second, went to third on an error by the catcher and scored on another wild pitch.

In the second, Joey Mattheis led off with a hit to left and moved up on a wild pitch. Junior Neal reached on an error on the Falcon third baseman. Mattheis scored on a double steal and Neal followed him home on a pair of Bertie errors.

Mike Campbell then doubled to left and moved to third on Shank's infield out. Sanderson singled him in, advanced on Chapman's infield out and scored when Topping reached on an error.

The Falcons got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the inning with a pair of runs. Richie Speller reached on an error and Kenny Cherry got an infield hit. Clark White singled in Speller and Cherry scored on Tim Mizelle's infield out.

Both teams scored single runs in the fourth. For Rose, Shank singled, stole second, moved to third on an error and scored on Sanderson's infield out. Bertie's Cherry reached on an error, went to second on Mizelle's single, made it to third when Watson White reached on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly by Joseph Holley.

Rose scored again in the fifth as Topping walked, courtesy runner Morehead moved up on a wild pitch, stole third and scored on another wild pitch.

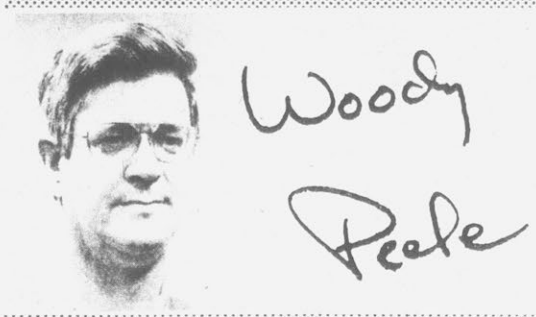

The final three Rampant runs scored in the seventh. With one away, Topping doubled to right field. Charles Daise came in to run for him and stole third and scored on an error.

Morehead, playing center field, walked and moved to third on a base hit by Williams. He scored and Williams went to third on an error. Williams came in when Neal reached on another error.

The game broke a season-long hitting drought for Williams, who was 2-4.

The Rampants will now get ready to play in the Rose-Pitt County Tournament next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Panthers Bow To Southwest

PINETOPS — Southwest Edgecombe rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to erase a North Pitt rally and take a 6-5 victory over the Panthers in baseball yesterday.

North Pitt took the early lead with a run in the first. Ronnie House reached on an error and stole second. Tim Corey reached on an error moving House to third, and Victor Evans sacrificed him in.

The Cougars rallied for two in the bottom of the inning. Jeff Ellis walked, as did Leonard Mayo. James Corbett singled in Ellis and Mayo stole third, scoring when the ball was misplayed.

Both teams added single runs later in the game: North Pitt in the fifth and Southwest in the sixth.

Then, in the top of the seventh, North Pitt scored three to take a 5-3 lead. William Beacham reached on an error and Carl Knight walked. Jeff Hines singled in Beacham, and a double by House scored both Knight and Hines.

But Southwest came back with three of its own in the bottom of the inning to win it. Norwood opened things up with a home run, closing the gap to one. Ellis then walked and scored when Mayo tripled. Corbett reached on an error, scoring Mayo with the game-ending run.

Corbett led the hitting, getting three.

North Pitt is now 5-5 overall and returns to action Wednesday in the Rose-Pitt County Tournament.

Bertie Tops Rampettes

Bertie High School rolled to a 15-11 softball victory over Rose High School yesterday.

Lietzke Surprised By His Play As He Leads Masters By Stroke

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke was amazed. "It's very surprising," he said Thursday after becoming a reluctant leader in the opening round of the 43rd Masters Golf Tournament with a 5-under-par 67.

"I don't have the confidence in my shots to win the tournament," Lietzke said. "I don't know where the shots came from today, but maybe it's the start of the confidence I need."

The 27-year-old Tucson Open winner confessed to being in a trance when he put together four straight birdies on the back side of the picturesque 7,040-yard, par-72 Augusta National Golf Club course to forge ahead of the select international field of 72 players.

"I was in a trance until the 17th hole," he said. "I had a 5-foot putt there to break it. If I had made it, I very well could have birdied the 18th."

Instead, he settled for a par at 17 and then got his only bogey of the day at 18. It left him little daylight, looking over his shoulder at two of the top shot-makers in the game — Tom Watson, the favorite and Player of the Year in 1977 and 1978, and Jack Nicklaus, showing signs of overcoming perhaps the worst slump of his career. Watson, leading money winner this season, was tied at 68 with three unexpected first-round contenders — Leonard Thompson, Joe Inman and Ed Sneed.

Despite ideal weather, Nicklaus, who had a 69, labeled it "the kind of course you could not take a run at" because of difficult pin placements.

"There were seven holes today where if you put the ball on the wrong side of the hole, you could putt it right off the green," the five-time Masters champion said. "My putting was okay, I just didn't make much."

The 69 left Nicklaus in a tie with former U.S. Open winner Lou Graham, young pros Andy Bean and Craig Stadler and the 1970 Masters champ, Billy Casper, who at 47 said he "struck a blow for the old folks."

Veteran Rod Funseth, who surprisingly tied for second here last year, and Ray Floyd, winner of last week's Greater Greensboro Open, were in a group at 70. South African Gary Player, the defending champion, was one of eight players in at 1-under 71.

Hale Irwin, often a contender but never a winner in the Masters, had a 72, while Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw and Lanny Wadkins were in a large group at 73.

Arnold Palmer, a four-time Masters champion who used this tournament to become the game's most popular player, recovered from a double bogey and three bogeys on the first five holes to record a 74.

Junior High Baseball

E. B. Aycock pitcher Roger Williams hurled his second one-hitter of the season as the Jaguars defeated Washington 8-2.

Williams, Marshall Rand and Bill Kittrell each had two hits for Aycock, now 5-0 on the season. Williams struck out 13 batters in the game.

CHICOD — Chicod split a pair of junior high school games with Maury yesterday.

In the girls' softball game, Maury took a 16-6 win. Detrius Sheppard led the Maury hitting with three, while Della Jones added two.

In the boys' baseball game, Chicod emerged with a 16-1 romp. Ricky Brown had three hits to lead the Chicod hitting, while Eddie Roberson added two, a double and a triple; and Robert Carter had two. T. Maye had two for Maury.

FARMVILLE — Farmville Middle School split a pair of games with Snow Hill, losing the softball game 14-6, but winning the baseball game 11-6.

Gary Hobgood pitched the baseball win and had three hits for Farmville. Doug Whitley was 2-3 with a home run for Snow Hill.

AYDEN — Four batters went 3-4 at the plate for Ayden Middle School in a 7-2 baseball victory over G. R. Whitfield yesterday.

Robinson, Milner Help Pirates Hand Cardinals First Loss, 3-1

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
For Don Robinson, it's a matter of control. For John Milner, it's a matter of self-control. Robinson, whose wildness cost him a chance at a victory last weekend, was razor-sharp on the mound for Pittsburgh Thursday night.

And Milner, once an unhappy starter on the mediocre New York Mets but now a satisfied reserve with the Pirates, made the most of a rare opportunity.

Those two performances helped the Pirates halt a three-game tailspin and turn back the previously unbeaten St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

In the rest of the National League, the Mets shaded Philadelphia 3-2, Atlanta clobbered Los Angeles 10-2 and San Francisco edged San Diego 4-3.

"Giving up no walks is a lot more gratifying than getting nine strikeouts," said Robinson, who did both against the Cards. "I gave up seven hits and if I walked a couple it would have been like giving them nine."

"The walks cost me a chance for a win last Saturday," when he was gone before the Pirates edged Montreal 7-6. "I walked some guys and I hit one with a pitch. You can't do that. You have to keep them off the bases."

Mets 3, Phillies 2
The Phils had plenty of punch against Pat Zachry, but not when it counted. The Mets' slender right-hander survived a 12-hit barrage by squeezing out of one jam after another. His biggest feat was getting Pete Rose out four times with Phils in scoring position.

Last year he showed more than enough feeling. When he gave up a single during Rose's hitting streak, he took out his frustration by kicking a dugout step and kicking himself right out of the second half of the season with a broken bone in his right foot.

The most damaging hit off Zachry was Garry Maddox's home run.

Farmville In Tennis Victory

PIKEVILLE — Farmville Central nipped Charles B. Aycock, 5-4, in a protested tennis match yesterday.

The protest came prior to the start of the match when Farmville Coach Don Dempsey rearranged his lineup.

According to Dempsey, he turned in his original lineup, only to see the Aycock coach allegedly "stack" his lineup afterwards to his own best advantage. Dempsey said he then "changed his mind" on his lineup, and Aycock announced its protest.

Farmville won three of the six singles and two of the three doubles to take the match.

Now 5-2, the Jaguars play host to Greene Central on April 24.

Summary:
Tim Sparks (A) defeated Lonnie Pierce, 6-4, 6-2.
Mike Ussery (A) defeated Mark Owens, 6-2, 6-2.
Roy Richardson (FC) defeated John Turner, 6-2, 6-3.
David Dunn (FC) defeated Charles Brooks, 6-1, 6-1.

Steve Morgan (FC) defeated Bo Daughtry, 6-2, 6-2.

Defenders have become a lazy lot. They have so many signals going for them that they use them as crutches and forget all about common sense. See what happened on this hand.

The auction was highly competitive, and everyone guessed correctly. East-West can make only five spades if the opponents get off to a club lead, so even if six diamonds was defeated three tricks, the sacrifice would have been worthwhile. East doubled because he felt that his side could not make six spades.

West made the routine opening of the fourth-best of his partner's suit. Declarer ruffed and led a low diamond to the ace. Even with East's double, the wisdom of declarer's play is debatable. East had jumped to four spades and competed even further, so if anyone was likely to be short in diamonds, it would seem to be East rather than West. The play of the king of trumps at trick two, therefore, is superior, and as the cards lie, it would have brought in all thirteen tricks.

On the ace of diamonds East carelessly discarded a low spade—a high heart, or even a high spade, would have been a sounder choice. Declarer led a diamond to the jack and West's queen, as East contributed another spade. Now West, afraid to lead from his king of hearts and thinking that his partner's low spades were suit preference signals for clubs, shifted to a club. Declarer won, drew the outstanding trump and then ran off clubs to make the rest of the tricks and his slam.

West's failure to shift to a heart was a major atrocity. Only one trick was needed to defeat the slam. If East held the ace of clubs, he would be sure to make that trick—there was nowhere declarer could get rid of his club losers. But if East held the ace of hearts and nothing in clubs, there was every possibility that dummy's club suit would provide a parking place for all of declarer's heart losers.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Similar Shows, Just Chance Involved

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's no shock when two or more networks come up with programs that are similar, sometimes very, very similar.

It is unusual, though, to find high quality in each of the like products. Remember the three versions of "Animal House"? None was exactly art. CBS yanked its copy after a solitary showing. NBC's just bit the dust and ABC's version isn't carrying the network.

But here's a new twist in the art of creative coincidence—a pair of look-alikes that are good, each packing its own share of inspiration and integrity, in spite of sharing a unique theme.

A few weeks ago, CBS aired a TV movie called "No Other Love," a story about a marginally retarded couple who fell in love and wanted to marry. They fought the objections of family and friends and overcame.

Tonight, ABC offers a story about a young retarded couple who fall in love, want to marry, then overcome the objections of family and friends.

Joanna Lee, who wrote ABC's version, "Like Normal People," is angry because she feels CBS borrowed from her idea. "I was in existence for several years, even before Miss Lee started hers. 'My impression,' he said, 'is that she didn't rip off, and we certainly didn't rip her off. It's just one of those things."

Miss Lee says she's afraid viewers will read about her movie and say to themselves, "I've seen that. I don't need to see that again." Maybe. But if they do watch, they'll find it a nice little experience.

"Like Normal People" is based on a true story, that of Roger Meyers and his wife, Virginia. They meet in a progressive home for retarded adults, but one of the founders of the place doesn't seem so progressive when Roger and Virginia decide to marry.

He threatens to throw them out of the project, and is generally obnoxious. "Any talk of marriage between retarded people is a social obscenity," he screams.

Our hero, a right thinking counselor, discovers the old man has a severely retarded child and is afraid of the prospect of a retarded couple producing more handicapped children.

The conflict is resolved when Roger and Virginia are conveniently led to see the light. The counselor (Zalman King) convinces Roger that having babies isn't as easy as it looks on TV, Roger agrees, and a suitable operation is performed. It's good stuff—touching, warm, and all that, even if some of its thunder was muffled by the earlier CBS movie. I recommend this, even if you saw the other one. After all, there's not enough good television around to waste any.

Financial Institutions Bill Reaches Senate Floor

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislation that would require a majority of consumers on state boards regulating banks and other financial institutions advanced to the Senate floor Thursday in a weakened form.

Supporters of the House-passed measure reluctantly accepted a compromise amendment in the Senate Banking Committee, rather than see the measure killed by the panel.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake, would affect the state Banking Commission, Savings and Loan Commission and Credit Union Commission, requiring that working bankers be in a minority on each panel.

The committee approved the bill on a voice vote after first adopting an amendment that would allow stockholders whose holdings constitute less than one-half of one percent of a bank's assets to be appointed as members of the commissions' public majority.

The measure requires that five members of the Banking Commission be working bankers and seven be public members. Similar public-member majorities would be required on the savings and loan and credit union regulatory commissions, now dominated by the industries they regulate.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, offered the amendment. "I think it would eliminate the stigma of being a stockholder in 98.44 percent of the cases," he said.

Mrs. Cook said she was not opposing the amendment in an effort to stave off opposition to the entire bill. "I'm learning the fine art of compromise," she said.

But John Jordan, lobbyist for the banking industry, still opposed the measure. "It just makes the banks look suspect and we don't think it's justified," he said.

In other legislative developments Thursday:

Open Meetings

For the second time in a week, action on the bill revising the state's open meetings law was delayed on the Senate floor when it was sent to the Senate Ways and Means Committee for consideration.

The referral to committee came after the Senate turned back three amendments that would have further weakened the already diluted version of the original bill. The bill has already been approved by the House.

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, called for the bill to be referred to ways and means, because it contains two provisions that could cause governmental bodies to spend money.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, whose committee sent the bill to the Senate floor originally, said he expects it to be back on the Senate floor next week for final action.

Merit Selection

The controversial constitutional amendment that would replace the current popular election of merit judges with a nominating and appointment system, called merit selection, was introduced by Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg.

In a news conference, Gov. Jim Hunt renewed his pledge of support for the measure.

Hunt said revising the system of selecting trial judges was a key part of his crime control package, but that he was less than enthusiastic about provisions including the state Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

Lethal Injections

Two doctors filed a bill that would replace North Carolina's gas chamber with an injection of lethal drugs.

"It's more humane," said Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, one of the legislators who filed the bill. "This is a much more modern-society type of approach. It's the way I'd want to be killed if I wanted euthanasia."

Gamble is a physician and Rep. John Varner, D-Davidson, who filed the bill with him, is a retired psychiatrist.

Two states, Oklahoma and Texas, currently have laws requiring lethal injections of drugs as their form of administering the death penalty, Gamble said.

Gamble said his bill would involve the intravenous injection of two drugs. One, a barbiturate, would put the condemned person to sleep and death would ensue. A second drug would be a muscle-relaxant and would paralyze the victim's respiratory muscles and cause death.

Death would ensue about two minutes after the condemned person drifted off to sleep, Gamble said.

Taxes

The chairmen of the House and Senate finance committees named a subcommittee to sort through the various tax cut proposals and come up with a single tax package.

The subcommittee has been nicknamed the supersub.

The finance committee chairmen, Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, and Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, named themselves to the panel.

Other House members are Reps. Tom Ellis, D-Vance; Dan Liley, D-Lenoir; Dave DeRamus, D-Forsyth; Charles Holt, D-Cumberland; and Allen Barbee, D-Nash.

Other Senate members are Sens. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg; Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir; J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie; Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania; and James Speed, D-Franklin.

Balanced Growth

The Senate, after more lengthy debate, gave its final approval to Gov. Jim Hunt's balanced growth policy bill after weakening it again. The bill encourages establishment of growth areas in each county. The measure must now return to the House for concurrence.

Elections

The Senate voted unanimous approval of a bill that would, under certain circumstances, require state and local officeholders to resign their jobs when seeking election to another post.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, would require officeholders who run for another job to resign if their current term does not expire at the same time they seek the new post.

Lawing said the bill would have forced Insurance Commissioner John Ingram to resign when he ran for the U.S. Senate last year. It would not apply in the case of someone seeking reelection to the office they currently hold, or seeking higher office as their term expires.

More To Aging Than Arthritis

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A sociologist at Duke University Medical Center says there's more to growing old than arthritis.

Dr. Erdman B. Palmore, a senior fellow at the Center for the Study of Aging and Human Development, has published an article listing the advantages of the sunset years.

And he also lists the advantages to society from its aged.

In the April issue of "The Gerontologist," a professional journal, Palmore cites nine benefits of aging for the individual and five benefits society receives from the aged.

"Most people seem to have difficulty thinking of any advantages of aging," said Palmore in the April issue of "The Gerontologist," a professional journal.

"This is true of gerontologists as well. The leading texts and journals are filled with the problems of aging but have little or no mention of any advantages," he said.

Palmore said he wrote the article to compensate for the negative view most people have about aging. He said he feels it is time to "accentuate the positive."

"The advantages to society include the facts that aged are more law-abiding, are more politically active, tend to increase their participation in voluntary organizations, tend to be better workers and are better at certain kinds of visual perception," he said.

He said benefits to the elderly include less criminal victimization, fewer accidents, Social Security and other pensions, Supplemental Security Income and lower taxes. Others are Medicaid, free services and reduced rates, freedom from child rearing and freedom from work.

"The aged are better citizens also in the sense that they vote more frequently, are more interested and informed about public issues, contact public officials more often and more often serve in public office," Palmore said.

Nancy Berg, a rising senior at D. H. Conley High School, will serve North Carolina Future Business Leaders as vice president for the coming year.

Some 27 student and faculty members from Conley School attended the 15th annual Leadership Conference of the NC FBLA, held in Winston-Salem Apr. 5-8. Mrs. Mary Thompson, District 1 Board member who is the Conley chapter adviser, received an engraved silver tray for her work on the board.

A highlight of the Saturday night awards assembly was the presentation of four $500 scholarships named in honor of Dr. James L. White of East Carolina University. It was pointed out that Dr. White began the first state FBLA chapter 25 years ago and that he is known as the "Father of FBLA in North Carolina." Dr. White made the presentations.

The Conley chapter for the sixth consecutive year was awarded a Gold Seal Chapter Award of Merit. Two Conley

Bostonians Rally To SOS Call

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — For most of the last century, while George and Martha Washington hung sedately in the back hall of the Museum of Fine Arts, the Athenaeum sat in quiet obscurity as a last remnant of the proper Bostonian.

Now, George and Martha are the center of a spirited brouhaha over where they will reside for the next century or so, and the Boston Athenaeum is suddenly in the undignified position of having its finances aired in public.

The paintings were done by Gilbert Stuart, and the one of George is among the most familiar in existence. Because the left side and the bottom are unfinished, it looks as though the somber-faced president is rising from a cloud. Copies of the portrait hang in classrooms across America.

The Athenaeum loaned the pair to the museum in 1876. For the first 100 years, they hung in a hallway until the museum moved them to a more prominent spot upstairs during the Bicentennial.

Last week, both the paintings and the Athenaeum emerged from the shadows when word leaked out that the private library on Beacon Hill was selling the portraits to the National Portrait Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington for $5 million.

On Wednesday, four politicians and two newspaper publishers stood beneath George's picture in the mural-covered rotunda of the museum.

As five television cameras rolled, 10 newspaper photographers snapped and 40 reporters scribbled, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., stepped to a microphone and announced "the SOS campaign — Save Our Stuarts."

Mayor Kevin H. White added it would be a big public fundraising drive to keep the pictures in Boston. He said he wanted the Athenaeum and the Smithsonian to hold off on the deal for six months.

All of this is painful for the Athenaeum, a dignified place that takes pride in its tranquility and reserved ambience of old Boston.

The private library is one of the few in the country that is supported only by the donations of its 1,049 members. These people, called proprietors, own shares of Athenaeum stock, and they, their guests and outside scholars are the only people allowed to use the library.

The shares cost $300, but they are passed from father to son like family heirlooms and rarely come up for sale. In what's left of Boston's old-guard society, owning one is as important as going to the symphony, having a Harvard degree or being able to talk about jibs and spinners.

The Athenaeum, founded in 1807, was once Boston's major art museum and only library. When the Museum of Fine Arts was started, the library loaned it some of its best paintings and sculpture.

But inflation has eaten into the library's income, and it was discovered that its 130-year-old building needed about $1 million worth of repairs. And the library needed cash.

"The majority of people who use the Athenaeum are outside scholars," said Rodney Armstrong, the library's director. "We have our little family of members, but that's a very limited group to appeal to for funds."

So the Athenaeum's trustees, whose names read like a roll call of Brahmin Boston, voted to sell the art on loan to the museum.

The museum got first pick, and it purchased nine works for $1,225,000. But, according to Armstrong, it said it was not interested in the Washington portraits. He strongly denies reports that the museum offered $1 million for the pictures.

The Athenaeum delayed selling George and Martha, because the trustees hoped the other art would bring in enough money. But it didn't, and last year, the library had a deficit of $147,000.

So the trustees accepted the Smithsonian's offer.

"We really have no alternative," said Armstrong. "It's a very sad thing. It's painful to everybody."

Mayor White, however, said the Athenaeum's action is the equivalent of the Louvre selling the Mona Lisa to the Arabs.

The city went to the state Supreme Court to temporarily block the sale, but no hearing has been set. Its lawyers argue that the $1,500 used by the Athenaeum to buy the paintings from Stuart's destitute widow was raised through public subscription and therefore is a public trust.

Armstrong rejects this argument.

Half the money, he says, was put up by Athenaeum members, and the rest came from cash left over from a fund to build a statue of Washington in the Public Garden. This cash was turned over to the library in 1831 with no strings attached, he says.

Volunteer firemen from the county completed almost 3,000 hours of fire fighting training offered through the community college. The classes are offered tuition-free to volunteer firemen by the Community College system on a statewide basis.
