

Highway Patrol To Guard Truck Convoy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials said late Tuesday that the North Carolina Highway Patrol will escort a convoy of hundreds of trucks through the state today.

A large number of independent truckers in Florida were forming the convoy Tuesday night and were to head north on Interstate 95 Wednesday morning.

State police in each state between Florida and New York have agreed to escort the trucks to their northern borders, where the trucks will be joined by police from the next state.

The state police escort is to protect the truckers from increasing violence and vandalism growing out of the nationwide truckers' protest, officials said.

As a result of the current truckers' protests, North Carolina cucumber farmers apparently are bearing the brunt of the strike. Agricultural officials say they could lose as much as $4 million if the strike continues.

The strike has already cost some of the state's cucumber farmers over half a million dollars. If it continues another week or 10 days, it could mean a loss of about $4 million, according to county agricultural officials.

Sampson County produces about 50 percent of the nation's supply of fresh cucumbers, according to Worth Gurkin, the county's agricultural extension agent.

"I think about 10 percent of the crop has been lost so far from the lack of having trucks," Gurkin said Tuesday. "In another week or 10 days, we will have lost about two-thirds of the fresh-market crop."

Gurkin was basing his loss estimates on last year's cucumber crop that brought $6 million in Sampson County.

Cucumbers must be harvested almost immediately when they are ready. Much of a delay causes them to grow beyond the size that is marketable.

About a 1,000 farmers in Sampson County produce the cucumber crop, Gurkin said. A complete stoppage by truckers would ultimately affect another 1,000 farmers who produce peppers, some 6,000 to 7,000 migrant workers and another 8,000 to 10,000 students who work the fields during the summers.

The cucumber crop appeared to be the only one in jeopardy Tuesday. Irish potatoes were ready for harvest in some areas but growers said they could be left in the field for a time unlike the cucumber.

There were no reports of violence by or against truckers in the state Tuesday, and most wholesale producers said the biggest problem the strike had created for them thus far was a delay in deliveries.

A spot check at several truck stops throughout the state and the state Highway Patrol turned up no evidence of violence connected with the strike.

Many of the wholesalers, however, were apprehensive about the possibility of a national stoppage Wednesday night, saying a complete shutdown of truck movement could run them out of business.

Ed Bagwell, manager of the Dixon Tom-A-Toe Co., Inc., in Raleigh said he received two loads of tomatoes last week when in a normal week he would have received five or six.

"It could be disastrous, really," Bagwell said. "If they all lay down and don't run, this whole industry will be in trouble. We cannot afford to be out very long either."

Trucker Is Killed

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

An Alabama trucker was shot and killed today as violence flared up again in connection with a nationwide protest by independent drivers.

Vegetables were rotting in fields, meat remained in packing plants and motorists lined up for tightening gasoline supplies. Several states beefed up National Guard and police protection for trucks still on the road.

Alabama state troopers said Robert Tate of Birmingham was shot and killed while standing in a cotton field beside his disabled tractor-trailer rig which had jack-knifed off U.S. 72 near Tusculum. The officers said Tate bled to death when a shot fired by a medium caliber rifle severed an artery in his left leg.

State trooper Lt. Roy Smith said authorities were searching for a late-model pickup truck.

Last week a trucker's wife was critically wounded by a sniper while riding with her husband in Alabama.

Police in Utah reported two trucks hit by gunfire today after four such incidents Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

Vow Action To Spur On Synthetics

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders, attempting to show fuel-short Americans some progress on the energy front, today vowed action this summer on bills to boost U.S. production and to develop a new synthetic-fuels industry.

The centerpiece of the legislation is a proposal to pump billions of dollars in federal subsidies into development of coal oil and other synthetic fuels to reduce the nation's 50 percent reliance on imports.

Gasoline made from coal would be chemically indistinguishable from gas refined from oil. It probably would not cost any more at the pump — although consumers would find their tax dollars used to subsidize its production.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., summoning his Senate Energy Committee into a 7 a.m. session to begin work on the bill, asserted: "We are committed to acting on this legislation or a form of it before the end of July."

Meanwhile, House leaders have decided to press for House approval of a $2 billion synthetic-fuels bill before the congressional July 4th recess.

"The synthetic fuel thing is greased. You've never seen such a locomotive," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., who is skeptical about the measure but said that the House leadership has the needed votes already lined up to pass it.

Moffett attended a private session Tuesday with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and other House leaders to make plans for speeding the bill through the House.

The three days of hearings before his Jackson's panel is on legislation sponsored by himself, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd and a bipartisan group of 18 other senators.

In addition to providing full funding for a variety of multibillion-dollar synthetic fuel plants, the bill would also speed federal approval for a variety of major energy projects — including pipelines and new power plants.

Interest In N.C. Oil Hunt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Seven major oil exploration companies have chosen sites off the North Carolina coast as potential locations for oil and gas drilling operations.

Gov. Jim Hunt's office said Tuesday that the sites include more than 350 tracts in an area on the outer continental shelf beyond the three-mile territorial sea.

The land was identified in oil lease nominations released by the federal Bureau of Land Management, and part of tracts ranging from the Virginia-North Carolina line to the southern tip of Florida.

"These tracts have been listed by the companies as locations where they think oil or gas production might be possible," Hunt said in a prepared statement. "We have been working with the federal government on this lease operation for quite some time and will continue to do so in the future."

Toughened Windfall Tax Bill Awaits House Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A toughened "windfall profits" tax is on its way to the full House where anger over long gasoline lines and high fuel prices is expected to lead to prompt approval.

The beefed-up tax, which would cost oil companies about $6 billion more over five years than President Carter's original plan, cleared the House Ways and Means Committee on a 2016 vote Tuesday.

The bill is scheduled for House action next week.

After clearing whatever hurdles it encounters in the House, the tax proposal is expected to face a stiff challenge when it goes to the Senate Finance Committee, which is headed by oil-state Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

In related developments:

—Three congressional committees are considering legislation to promote development of synthetic fuels, such as oil extracted from coal, and other alternatives to foreign oil.

—Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., chairman of a House energy subcommittee, said Tuesday home heating oil may be in short supply in the Northeast this winter that people may have to leave their homes and go to public shelters to keep warm.

—Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal outlined to the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday the Carter administration's proposal to raise $500 million a year by limiting the oil companies' use of the foreign tax credit. Liberals on the committee are expected to press for their own proposal to eliminate the foreign tax credit for oil companies altogether and thus raise an estimated $2 billion a year.

The Ways and Means Committee's "windfall profits" tax bill would raise an estimated $27.8 billion between 1980 and 1984, compared with $21.8 billion under the president's bill.

The revised version would allow the oil companies to keep 17 cents to 23 cents of each dollar gained from oil price decontrol. Those pennies would total about $13 billion in extra oil company profits through 1984.

The committee adopted the president's plan for a special energy trust fund, paid for by the "windfall" taxes, but put off until later a decision on what types of projects the fund will support.

Carter has recommended using the fund to help finance improved mass transit and development of alternative energy sources and to help pay for the fuel bills of low-income Americans.

The committee rejected most efforts Tuesday to tamper further with the proposed "windfall" tax. However, it voted to exempt from the tax revenues contributed by oil companies to state educational funds.

Committee members said that exemption would reduce the revenue raised by the tax by about $700 million over five years. However, some congressional tax experts indicated they believe the figure might be closer to $1 billion.

And by an 18-17 vote, the committee approved a so-called closed rule for floor action on the bill. A closed rule would bar floor amendments aimed at toughening or weakening the tax when it goes to the full House.

Pitt Hospital Board Honors Late Doctor Gradis With Tribute

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board last night paid tribute to Dr. Howard H. Gradis, who died in May.

According to the framed resolution, presented to Mrs. Gradis, Dr. Gradis spent "most of his mature years" ministering to the needs of Pitt County. He had served as a chief of staff of the hospital and was at the time of his death, chief of emergency services at the hospital.

The resignation of Mrs. Helen Moseley Gant as a board member was "regretfully accepted." Mrs. Gant plans to live in Burlington, her letter of resignation told the board.

Board Chairman Harry Leslie said an application for a Duke Endowment-Reynolds Foundation grant for the hospital has been made. The grant of $50,000, if received, would employ a full-time physician to handle administration and interpretation of governmental policies.

The Board went on record approving the placing of $100,000 in a special account to pay for food service facilities to serve the new bed tower. This measure was prompted by a letter from the state concerning the need for declaration of intent to provide such food service before the bed tower expansion could be approved.

Finance Officer Warren McRoy said there was $125,000 in the general fund at the end of last month. He said that the hospital is staying amazingly close to budget with revenues about two percent over and expenses two percent under. The summer to be expected lull in patient-days has not occurred this year, he said.

Approval was given for the following capital expenditures:

- $22,870 for an electronic monitor for the neonatal unit;
- $22,600 for 14 infusion pumps for the neonatal and delivery units; and
- $12,000 for a compactor and $4,000 for expansion of the trash room ($50,000 budgeted for an incinerator will not be spent).

Former Coworker Possibly Saw Bradford Bishop

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Bradford Bishop Jr., the elusive State Department official charged with slaying five members of his family, may have been spotted in Italy by a former coworker, the FBI said Tuesday.

Baltimore agent Lane Bonner said department investigators have interviewed a State Department employee who claims to have spotted Bishop last Jan. 11 in the Italian resort town of Sorrento.

Bishop, who is on the FBI's list of fugitives from justice, has been charged with killing his wife, his mother and three young sons in their suburban Maryland home three years and three months ago.

Bonner said the FBI has been cooperating with Italian authorities since last January to validate the report, which came two weeks after a former American acquaintance of Bishop claimed to have sighted him on a street in Stockholm, Sweden.

The man spotted in Sorrento reportedly was shabbily dressed, while the man seen in Sweden was said to be well-dressed. Both men were said to have beards.

The FBI would not release the identity of the person who claims to have spotted Bishop in Sorrento, saying only that both he and Bishop were assigned to the same State Department office at the same time.

However, a reporter for local radio station WMAL identified the colleague who spotted Bishop in Italy as Roy Harrell, currently a State Department employee in the U.S. embassy in Niger.

In a broadcast made from a long-distance phone call, Harrell was quoted as saying he was 75 percent sure the man he saw was Bishop.

The station quoted Harrell saying he was in a public rest room in Sorrento when another man entered and Harrell said, "Say, aren't you Brad Bishop?"

Harrell was quoted as saying the man replied in English, "Oh, my God, no," and ran out, disappearing into a blinding rain.

Bishop has been the subject of a worldwide search since March 1976 when his family's bodies were found bludgeoned to death in a remote area of North Carolina. Police determined that the slayings occurred in the family's home in Bethesda.

Bishop's blood-smeared station wagon later was found abandoned in Great Smoky Mountain National Park in eastern Tennessee. There were reports of a man fitting Bishop's description being seen on the Appalachian Trail in that area and in other parts of the United States.

Authorities have speculated that Bishop, a professional foreign service officer who had served in Italy, Ethiopia and Botswana, may have left the United States and is travelling on a false passport.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

REFUND OBTAINED

I placed an order with Alden's of Chicago several months ago and got everything except a $20-plus pair of shoes. I have written more than once and called their toll-free number to no avail. Won't you please help me get either the shoes or a refund? T. H.

Hotline called the Customer Service Department of this mail-order firm. J. Ellsworth assured us the matter would be dealt with by the following day. She wrote to you, as promised, telling you that an adjustment had been made May 24 (We called May 31) and your merchandise entered for shipment, but that for some unexplained reason "it was omitted." She, therefore, authorized a refund of $21, which you say you have received.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

WRONG NUMBER?

Recently Hotline gave the name of a nursery in Peoria, Ill. which propagates its own wildflowers, rather than collecting them from the wild. We published the address provided us, which turned out to have the wrong street number.

The correct address is: Winder's Wildflower Nursery, 2925 Peoria Road, Springfield, Ill. 62702. The phone number is 217-523-7223.

We have talked to the owner, Bill Winder, who said catalogs from his nursery are free, not $1, as was reported to us earlier.

Denise Stell Is Bride

SANFORD — On Sunday, June 10, Denise Stell, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Stell of Sanford, and Barry Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Doyle of Wilmington, were united in marriage at 2 p.m. at Jones Chapel United Methodist Church. The Rev. Kenneth Worthington performed the double ring ceremony.

Wedding musicians were Claudia Shoaf of Ayden and Gail

Mrs. Barry Doyle

Schlosser of Goldsboro. Soloist was Mrs. Theresa Yow Pilson of Sanford.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Jim Godfrey of Sanford, wore a white chiffon formal length gown with an empire bodice of silk Venise lace with seed pearls, an English net yoke with a Victorian lace collar, bishop sleeves with net insertion and lace appliques. The circular skirt extended into a chapel length train. Her picture hat of chiffon overlay with silk roses had a waltz length veil and she carried an arm bouquet of stephanotis, Bells of Ireland and orchids.

Beth Bailey of Greenville served as maid of honor and bridesmaids included Virginia Davis of Ayden and Karen Bottoms of Winston-Salem.

Honorary bridesmaids were Sara and Amy Doyle of Wilmington, sisters of the bridegroom.

Tim Doyle of Winston-Salem, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers included Ashley Stell of Sanford, brother of the bride, and Joey Doyle of Columbia, S. C., brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the home of the bride following the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of ECU and is employed as advertising director of Brody's, Greenville, and also teaches painting at Pitt Technical Institute and Walter B. Jones Rehabilitation Center. The bridegroom attended ECU and is employed by J. H. Hudson Construction, Greenville.

The couple is living in Ayden after a wedding trip to Hilton Head, S. C.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal buffet dinner at the Flame Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Horning entertained the bridal couple and families at a cocktail party at their home prior to the dinner.

FDA Says Microwaves Safe

By MICHAEL J. CONLON WASHINGTON (UPI) — Microwave ovens, troubled early in the decade by safety lapses and massive recalls, are enjoying a sales boom. In the view of experts, they are now a safe and sound consumer purchase.

During one period in the early 1970s thousands of ovens of various brands were recalled because of problems involving improper seals that might allow potentially dangerous radiation to escape.

Part of that flurry of activity was caused by safety rules issued in 1971 by the Food and Drug Administration, and some manufacturers' slowness in complying with the new requirements.

Now, "the manufacturers are doing the kind of job that needs to be done," says an official of the FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health.

By law, all microwave ovens made since October 1971 are covered by FDA rules limiting the amount of radiation that can escape from an oven during its lifetime. Basically, the rules require ovens be equipped with devices that turn off the microwaves the moment the door latch is opened.

The industry is enjoying a moderate sales boom. In 1972 only 312,000 microwave ovens were sold in the United States. By 1975 sales reached 1.5 million.

Last year factory shipments hit 2.5 million. Projected sales for 1979 are 2.8 million. By 1980 sales are expected to be 3.1 million a year.

These figures from the American Home Appliance Manufacturers Association in Chicago include both separate countertop units, and microwave ovens that are part of conventional gas or electric stoves.

Retail prices currently range between about $300 and $700, depending on size and special features.

Other microwave oven safety developments, according to the FDA, include:

—Interference with electronic heart pacemakers is no longer a concern. At one time there were fears microwave ovens and some other appliances would disrupt the devices used by thousands of heart patients to assure a steady heart beat. Now, pacemakers are being made with shields that protect them against electronic interference.

—There has never been a documented case of radiation injury from a microwave oven. Injuries reported involved burns of the type incurred in careless touching of a hot surface.

—There is little cause for concern about excess microwaves leaking from ovens unless the door hinges, latch or seals are damaged, or if the oven was made before 1971. In FDA's experience, most ovens tested show little or no detectable microwave leakage," the agency said.

Sometimes simple remedies can solve pesky problems when house cleaning. Here are several you might want to try if the occasion arises.

REMOVING WHITE SPOTS FROM FURNITURE may often times be done successfully. Here are instructions for three different methods that you might try:

1. Rub the white spot with cigar or cigarette ashes, using a cloth that's been dipped in lubricating oil, vegetable oil, shortening, lard or salad oil. Wipe off immediately and repolish.

2. Rub table salt on the white spot, again using a cloth that's been dipped in lubricating oil, vegetable oil, shortening, lard or salad oil. Wipe off immediately and repolish.

3. Put a bit of any opaque toothpaste on a soft damp cloth. Keep in mind that the toothpaste should be opaque, not the gel or transparent type. Rub the white spot for a few minutes. Then wipe the area clean.

FIBERGLASS TUBS AND SHOWERS require proper care if their life is to be prolonged. Remember also that use of an abrasive on a fiberglass tub or shower could spell problems for the remaining lifetime of the item.

Instead use a liquid detergent mixed with water and a soft cloth to remove dirt and film build-up. An automatic dishwasher detergent that has been diluted with water is another good choice.

Remember: no abrasive powders, liquids or scouring pads because scratches will collect soap film and dirt making tubs and showers difficult to clean.

To deter film build-up after a thorough cleaning, wax the sides of the tub or shower with an auto or silicone wax. But for safety's sake—never apply wax to the bottom of the tub or shower.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. David L. Garriss request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Brenda Fay, to Larry Minton Roebuck, on Friday, June 22, at 7:30 p.m. at Calvary Baptist Church.

TEST CARPET SHAMPOO before you start scrubbing away. Be sure the cleaning product is one that will not damage the carpet or attract more soil.

Not all cleaning products are safe to use on all carpet dyes and fibers. That doesn't mean a cleaner is defective or bad; it means only that certain carpet dyes and fibers may not be compatible with that cleaner. So be sure to test a cleaner on a small area of your carpet to see how it reacts.

First, test for colorfastness. Work a small amount of the cleaner—the strength you'll use for the entire job—into an inconspicuous carpet area. Then press a piece of white tissue paper against the wet spot and hold it there for about ten seconds. If any color transfers to the tissue, don't use that cleaner on that carpet.

Carpet cleaner residues are another problem that may affect the wear and look of your carpet. After shampooing, the liquid in the cleaner evaporates, but various chemicals left on the carpet may attract dirt and soil. A powdery, granular residue is not a problem. It can be vacuumed away. But if the residue is sticky, it will attract and hold dirt. A waxy residue is also a problem. It will dull the color, making the carpet look old and soiled.

To avoid carpet cleaning headaches test every cleaner before you use it on your entire carpet. Once you find a satisfactory cleaner, keep a record of the name, brand or ingredients. And choose it again.

Loud Music Disrupts Life

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The house is finally quiet. My husband and two teenagers are in bed, but I am so upset I can't sleep.

Our marriage has been so wonderful, plus we are blessed with two healthy children who have always been well-behaved.

We were an exceptionally happy family until about a year ago. So what's the problem? LOUD MUSIC!

Abby, why must music be played so loud today? The only answer we get from our children is, "Because."

The words exchanged between by husband and son tonight were terrible. My husband asked our son politely to please turn down the stereo. Our son ignored him, so his father turned the stereo off and announced that neither of the children would be allowed to play music again until they agreed to keep the volume at a level that was comfortable for us.

I've never seen my husband so angry. The kids are mad and I'm upset.

Do other parents have this problem? And how do they handle it?

AM-FM

DEAR AM: Yes, many parents have that problem. And they handle it the same way your husband handled it—by exploding and the finally laying down the law.

The upsetting scene could have been avoided had you laid down the law as soon as the kids started playing music at a volume that was disturbing to you.

Loud music is "in," but the price one pays for constantly assaulting his eardrums with loud sounds is impaired hearing.

Pitt's Gifted Students Share 2-Week Institute

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer
WINTERVILLE — For some 65 Pitt County students this summer, the learning process is being continued through a two-week Gifted and Talented Summer Institute at A. G. Cox School in Winterville.

The institute, which will be held for two weeks until June 29, offers a variety of learning experiences for selected students, with sessions each day from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

According to Betsy Leech, county school psychologist, the top five percent of all county seventh and eighth graders were invited to participate in the institute, with roughly half of those able to attend.

Consultants from Pitt County schools and East Carolina University have collaborated to broaden the students' knowledge of occupations, ideas, concepts, people and their world.

Students attend classes in the morning in such areas as natural sciences, cultural arts, English, sociology and anthropology. An "awareness session" is held from 11-12 noon, where different persons from the community share their experiences, with a lunch break afterwards. The afternoon is devoted to tours of such places as East Carolina University, the Greenville Art Center, local businesses, and Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Ms. Leech pointed out that the institute's purpose is to make the teenagers aware of things outside the normal programs offered in school.

"Students should be aware that they can develop their own creativity," she noted.

INTERESTING SPEAKERS, DEMONSTRATIONS
The awareness sessions, which seem to be a big hit with the students, will feature such persons as a hypnotist, a pediatrician, and a glass blower, as well as demonstrations on the potter's wheel and an exhibition with liquid nitrogen.

Tuesday, the students had a chance to participate in a drama demonstration, write their own songs, learn about the medical field and observe a glassblowing demonstration.

Owen Kingsbury of the ECU Chemistry Department held his observers spellbound as he demonstrated the almost lost art of glassblowing.

In a few short motions, Kingsbury twisted a piece of glass over a flaming torch to produce a graceful curved swan. Students placed names in a box, with one lucky one to win the swan in a drawing after the demonstration.

In another room, Dr. James Markello fielded questions on the different areas in medicine, and asked for names of different medical specialties, such as otorhinolaryngologists (ear, nose and throat specialists) and epidemiologists (doctors specializing in the study of communicable diseases.)

'IT'S BETTER THAN REGULAR SCHOOL'

With only two days of class behind them, the students seemed pleased with various opportunities afforded by the Institute.

Trevor Swindell and Barry Strickland, two eighth graders from Bethel Elementary, said that they felt the Institute would be "interesting," noting that the glassblowing demonstration had been especially enjoyable.

Jeffrey Spain of Wellcome Middle, who attended the institute last summer, seemed pleased with the classes, with fellow Wellcome student Mark James saying, "It's better than regular school."

Lynn Page and Michelle Kittrell, two eighth graders from Chicod School, talked excitedly about the drama demonstrations, where students learned to develop their sensations.

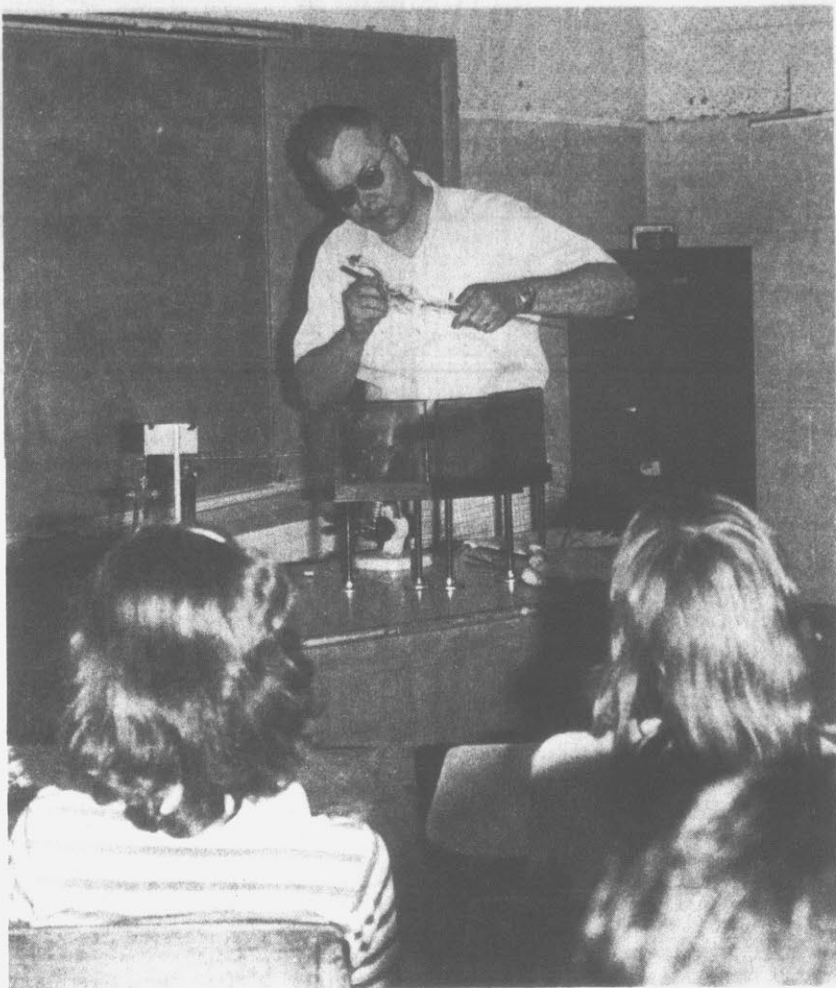

Martha Rollins from Bethel Elementary noted, "I think it's better, these classes are more on our level."

For Gail Evans and Lisa Ann Flanagan from A. G. Cox, one highlight of the institute would be the trip to Washington, D. C., an excitement shared by Martha Britt, Renee Barrett, Sibby Anderson and Carolyn Pearsall.

The students will tour the National Art Gallery while in Washington, as well as the Federal Bureau of Investigation. A highlight will be a visit to the Kennedy Center to see a Cuban ballet production.

David Webb, a student at Ayden Middle, summed up many teenagers' feelings, saying, "I'm looking forward to the end, then I will have done all of these exciting things."

Running For Governor

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Evangeline Grant Redding, who once rode 600 miles strapped to a cross on the back of a pickup truck, said Tuesday she plans to wage a serious campaign for the governor's office in 1980.

Ms. Redding, a black activist and author from Oxford, said she would enter the Democratic primary next spring and would be the first black woman to run for governor of North Carolina.

Ms. Redding held a news conference Tuesday to announce her plans, and said she was campaigning to challenge the state's political leadership and its system of justice.

She delivered a long speech, generalizing her campaign as an appeal to the poor, to blacks, and to the politically disaffected. "I expect this campaign to have a powerful influence on the cultural, psychological, social and political forces of this state," she said.

Ms. Redding, 38, the mother of two children, won publicity in 1977 when she had herself strapped to a cross placed on the bed of a pickup truck and driven from Halifax, N.C., to Birmingham, Ala. She said the trip was made to call attention to the needs of black children.

She criticized Gov. Jim Hunt for not doing enough to help the Equal Rights Amendment gain ratification in North Carolina, and said the Wilmington 10 had been persecuted by the state.

Only Alternative We Have

Long and difficult negotiations have preceded the signing of the SALT II agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union.

At last, however, the agreement has been signed by President Carter and Soviet Leader Brezhnev in Vienna.

The U. S. president returned home on Tuesday evening to speak to Congress, and via television to the nation.

He assured all who listened that there were adequate safeguards built into the treaty to avoid any threat to the military balance this nation maintains with the Soviets.

Our surveillance and intelligence methods are adequate to assure that the Soviet Union doesn't cheat on the agreement, the president said. And the United States is left free to develop mobile missile sites.

SALT II as a treaty must have approval from the U. S. Senate, by a two-thirds majority. Most observers feel that the treaty will have a rough road in the Senate, with many senators now saying they have to be convinced, meaning they first want to know how the folks back home feel.

The real question that arises with us, do we have a choice? Can we, or the Soviets, afford to continue to spend ourselves into bankruptcy developing nuclear weapons which can't cause any more than the complete world destruction we are now capable of.

A treaty between two nations is nothing more than a good faith document, since there is no higher power to enforce it.

Thus it finally rests with the leadership of the United States and the Soviet Union to provide the self-restraint necessary to halting nuclear weapon development.

The SALT II treaty does this, and frankly we don't see any other way to accomplish something that absolutely must be done.

Eye On Area's General Health Care

Last week the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency approved plans for a 144-bed addition to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, and conversion of 20 beds to intensive care.

The agency did, however, express concern over the effect of the project on community hospitals of the 29 county Area VI.

The concern of the agency is proper, of course, but we believe the total reason for the existence of the ECU Medical School is improved health care throughout, the East in particular, and North Carolina in general.

We are confident that developers of the medical school and the hospital will not fail to meet that goal.

Options For N.C. Taxes

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is a simple fact of governmental life like that in the lives of private individuals: we will spend every dime we can get our hands on.

Gov. Jim Hunt said the token tax cut adopted by the 1979 General Assembly demonstrated a principle above all else — that government doesn't have to spend all the money it can get it can return some to the people.

Based on these contradictory observations, it is clear that before North Carolina government reduces spending appreciably, it will have to deliberately reduce its income. For once the dollars are in hand, the temptation to spend them all is overwhelming.

Will the tax cut now enacted into law accomplish this?

Not likely, the experts conclude.

The total tax cut of $78 million over two years is far less than the increased state revenues which are automatically generated by the broad-based state tax structure. That collection system consistently (by virtue of economic growth and inflation) is doubling state income every six years; producing more money at the average of 12.1 percent every year.

Free Hand

Furthermore, the tax cut won't take effect until 1980.

So even while paying homage to a tax cut, the lawmakers were spending with a traditionally free hand in 1979. They know full well that the money will come. So the new $10 billion state budget adds 6,100 new state jobs (that's $61 million); gives hefty raises and bonuses to state employees (that's $150 million); and many millions more in enlarged welfare and health expenditures.

All of these are so-called recurring expenses which must be made at the new and higher levels year after year.

One-time high-cost items included such "essentials" as a $14 million helicopter, an $8.5 million building for the legislators (with a tunnel), the math and science high school, another $25 million for prison construction on top of $57 already committed and being spent, and $40 million (on top of $8 million) for construction work at black universities.

So in perspective, the state's spending record is not nearly so austere as some have suggested.

Should such astonishing growth and income and spending continue? That is a question raised by Charles D. Liner of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill.

BILL NOBLITT

"Controlling the growth of government spending and taxation is perhaps the key issue in government finance today," says Liner in an article published in the newspaper of the Association of County Commissioners.

North Carolina governmental spending (state and local) has increased 209 percent over a decade, a rate surpassed by only five others.

Continue

"But the question for today is not whether past growth in spending and taxation has been justified but whether such growth should continue at the same rate as in the past," Liner proposes.

The tax structure is producing more and more while pressure to spend appears to decline.

Unless the General Assembly takes deliberate action to reduce income, it will continue to increase, doubling roughly every six years.

Liner suggests three options:

A reduction in income taxes and the retail sales tax. The income tax cut ignores the poorest families, and while based on inflated incomes will continue to soar. The sales tax is already quite low. The food tax elimination would cause a loss of $150 million a year.

A second option is state aid to local governments which could reduce property taxes.

A third option is a circuit-breaker property tax relief plan by which state tax credit is given on local property taxes exceeding a certain percentage of family income.

"...North Carolina should be able to both improve government service through increased spending and provide some relief from current tax burdens," Liner is convinced.

flatly denied that implication. In a comment relayed to us from Air Force One, on which she was flying to the Vienna summit with Carter, Ms. Wexler said she left the dinner early "not because of what Sen. Jackson said but because she had a very busy schedule the next day."

The speech was described to Ms. Wexler and Chip Carter at the pre-dinner cocktail party in the Hyatt Regency Hotel as "hard-hitting." CDM Chairman Ben Wattenberg gave the speech that label in a conversation with Ms. Wexler, one of the president's chief SALT salesmen.

Chip Carter walked out about the same time Ms. Wexler did, but we were unable to reach him to learn why. Both Chip and Ms. Wexler had been given a copy of the speech before they went to their table at the dinner.

A footnote: Despite the belief of some officials of CDM (a defense-oriented organization of moderate Democrats) that the walkout was a deliberate signal of White House displeasure, Chip Carter won good marks for "gracious" conduct before the dinner, shaking hands and making small talk with hawkish guests in the forefront of Carter's foreign policy critics. Both Evan Dohelle, Carter's 1980 campaign chairman, and Edward Sanders, another White House aide, stayed for the

THE NATURE OF SIN

What is sin?

The Shorter Chatechism answers this as follows: "Sin is any want of conformity to, or transgression of, the law of God."

We might try an alternative definition. Sin is a failure to conform to the pattern of the universe. Or, to put it another way, sin is failure to be universal.

We are all aware of the physical powers of the universe which we know as the laws of nature. But there are spiritual laws, patterns, and powers also. God has a pattern which covers the whole of His creation, and let us never deceive ourselves that this little world we live in is the whole of God's creation. We can assume that from one end of God's entire creation to the other certain laws are in operation. We must conform to these or suffer.

This rebellion against God's universal pattern is sin. Sin is our impudent determination to be rebellious in a universe characterized by uniformity and peace.

As Reported By Isaiah

WASHINGTON — The first SALT Treaty talks were held in about 750 B.C. As reported by the Prophet Isaiah, they took place between King Hezekiah of Judea and King Sennacherib of Assyria.

The original draft of the agreement read, "All swords will be beaten into plowshares, and all spears into pruning hooks; nation will not lift up sword against nation and neither side will learn war any more."

When the wording of the treaty reached Hezekiah, there was an immediate outcry from his hawk advisors.

"We can't give up our swords. How do we know the Assyrians will not turn their plowshares back into weapons as soon as the treaty is signed?" said one general.

"The throw weight of the Assyrian spears is far superior to ours," another one cried. "This is a trick of the Assyrians so they can launch a first-strike capability against us."

A third advisor to the king said, "I cannot support a SALT B.C. Treaty of this kind. If we turn all our swords into plowshares, the Assyrians will have twice as many land-based plowshares as we have. Each plowshare could be mounted with 10 pruning hooks, and be turned into offensive weapons which would bury every man, woman and child in Judea."

King Hezekiah was impressed with the arguments. He knew there wasn't a chance in Gomorrah of getting the treaty approved by his people, unless there were guarantees that their sword and spear arsenals would remain intact.

He sent word to Sennacherib in Damascus that he wanted a limitation on the number of offensive swords each side could have, and he demanded the dismantling of defensive shields that the Assyrians had developed to deflect Judean steel.

Being a minister and a concerned citizen, the Emergency Room procedures at Pitt County Memorial Hospital concern me.

One of my church members rode in from Winterville choking on a fish bone. He was told to wait in the waiting room until his turn to see a doctor. He finally swallowed the bone after having choked for nearly 20 more minutes.

Two weeks later, one of my members broke her leg and had to wait in the waiting room for four hours to see a doctor. She was in excruciating pain. Later it was discovered her leg was so badly broken that it required surgery, a steel plate, and literally screwing the bones together in her leg.

What is the problem? Understaffing? Poor utilization of staff? Are there no priorities concerning severity of illness or injury?

The two examples I stated above are only examples of many cases about which I have heard. What can be done to improve emergency room conditions?

Sennacherib, who had stockpiled thousands of swords and shields and had developed a new SS-18 spear which could be launched from a ditch, met with his advisors and worked out a strategy.

"We will tell Hezekiah," he said, "that as part of detente each side will be able to double the number of swords and spears in their arsenals, and both parties will be permitted to develop one more weapon of its own choosing. Even with this we will still have superiority over them."

"What about the plowshares?"

"We will insist at this time that plowshares not be included in the arms limitation agreement. As you know, our new Backfire plowshare will be ready in six months. It will be an answer to their Minuteman pruning hook."

Hezekiah received the Assyrian proposals which he knew would be rejected by the hardliners in his court.

Saints Test Faith

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

GALWAY, Eire (AP) — On the road north from Shannon Airport an arresting litany of the saints tests the faith of the passing pilgrim.

St. Clare's Bed & Breakfast. St. Theresa's Guest House. Holy Innocents Tourist Accommodations: children welcome. St. Francis of Assisi B & B (bed and breakfast) — No Pets. St. Benedict's Seaside Cottage: Rooms by the Day or Week.

Saints preserve us from some of the accommodations being inflicted on the public in their names. One wonders what miracles of the hotelier's art St. Clare performed to have a establishment in a particularly dreary Irish seaside resort named after her.

Hagiographers, those who write the lives of the saints, tell us she was a devout woman who founded an order of nuns professed to the vow of poverty. That may account for it. We know that St. Theresa of Avila, the great Spanish mystic, spent most of her life in those narrow cubicles allotted to members of the Carmelite Order.

St. Benedict, the one called "the tramp of God," scavenged in garbage dumps for food, and another St. Benedict dotted Europe with great monasteries like Monte Cassino dedicated to his rule, which curbed some of the more excessive pious practices like flagellation and hair shirts but for amenities never posed a threat to the Hilton or Hyatt chains.

St. Francis of Assisi, the barefoot beggar who reasoned with Brother Wolf and could not bring himself to crush Sister Worm, may have felt at home with Brother Roach and Sister Flea in the hostel named

A batch of checks valued at $2,200, representing 20 applications and approximately 100 payees for benefit payments for participation in the 1938 agricultural conservation program, arrived today at the office of County Agent R.R. Bennett for distribution to farmers of the county.

Bennett said that $276,379.03, representing 5,287 payees and 1,902 applications, has already been distributed to farmers of the county who participated in the federal conservation program during 1938.

It was explained that checks already received represent about 75 or 80 percent of the total benefit payments farmers of Pitt County were slated to derive from the soil program. The remaining 20 or 25 percent of the checks are expected to arrive and be distributed in the near future.

Concerned Over Institutions

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Concentration of share ownership remains a problem for the stock market, and so long as individuals remain away from the market the problem is likely to remain.

In fact, it might remain anyway, whether or not the individual returns. Institutions — insurance companies, bank-administered trusts, mutual and pension funds — are growing larger all the time.

It means, of course, that they are also acquiring more securities, but that in itself doesn't seem to create the major problems. What concerns many critics are the peculiarities of institutions.

Among them: They are overly conservative; they think alike; they don't push their rights as shareholders; they concentrate on a select group of stocks and, some complain, starve the rest of the market.

In the first quarter this year, figures filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission show institutions handling more than $100 million of assets owned almost half of IBM's outstanding shares.

The same report shows these institutions owned more than 40 percent of Exxon, 42 percent of General Electric and Eastman Kodak, 60 percent of Minnesota Mining, and 50 percent of duPont.

The value of shares held in IBM, now the nation's seventh largest manufacturer, amounted to nearly $22 billion, making it in dollar terms the most widely owned stock of the institutions.

For IBM, this might be a mixed blessing, and probably is the main reason it decided this spring to split its shares four for one.

At roughly $300, reasoned the premier computer maker, its common stock was priced in a range that appealed primarily to those wealthy institutions. And, it would seem, it had enough of them.

What it could use, especially for broad support — for its products as well as its battles with government regulators — was more individual owners. Active owners. Supportive owners.

How better to get them than to cut the price per share to $75?

IBM undoubtedly was also aware that concentration can create other problems. If so many institutions already owned the stock, for example, where would future support come from?

And what might happen if those institutions soured on the stock at the same time, as they have been inclined to do with other stocks.

IBM might not have acted too soon. Following news that many customers were renting rather than buying outright, and that revenues might suffer, some institutions sold heavily. Shares dropped $3.75 last week.

While too many conclusions could be drawn from such a brief period, the action does suggest another trait of some institutional investors, i.e., a tendency to react to short-term rather than long-term factors.

Whatever is the long-term future of the giant computer manufacturer, said some analysts this week, it isn't likely to be determined by what could be a relatively brief change of buyer habits.

Mixed Drinks Approved By Cumberland County

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Moments after the vote totals were in and it became clear that Cumberland County voters had overwhelmingly approved a referendum permitting the sale of mixed drinks, a paper bag burst into flames at county election headquarters Tuesday night.

"Cumberland County has come of age," cheered an excited supporter.

About 39 percent of the county's 53,898 registered voters turned out to decide the mixed beverages referendum and two other issues.

The nearly 21,000 voters who made their choice at the polls were more than twice what Rebecca Clark, superintendent of the county board of elections, had anticipated.

There were 13,121 votes in favor of mixed drinks and 7,769 against.

The referendum carried in 40 of the county's 53 precincts.

The chairman of the Cumberland County Mixed Beverage Committee, John Keefe, said jubilantly, "I don't even drink mixed beverages and I don't own a restaurant. I'm just thrilled. The people of Cumberland County have finally fallen in step with the rest of the state and the nation."

He said he expects a maximum of 10 to 20 establishments serving mixed drinks in the county.

The Rev. Glen Holt, spokesman for Citizens for a Better Cumberland County, a group which opposed mixed drinks, said he would watch very closely to see if "the statistics take place here in Cumberland County as in Mecklenburg County." Holt claimed liquor-by-the-drink there had led to higher liquor sales, more drunken driving and more alcohol-related arrests.

In the other votes Tuesday, a $15 million county-wide school bond referendum was defeated, and the community of Spring Lake approved the sale of wine and beer for off-premises consumption.

tough Jackson speech.

New Teddy Threat

A new threat to Jimmy Carter's second-term ambitions from "non-candidate" Sen. Edward M. Kennedy now looms in the state of Maine, where the Democratic party has quietly adopted delegate-selection rules that could undercut the president — at an early and therefore psychologically dangerous date.

For the first time in modern history, the Maine party will choose its delegates at precinct caucuses held on the same day — Feb. 20 — nine days before the New Hampshire primary.

Kennedy sentiment is strong in Maine. New Hampshire Carter supporters are fearful that publicity from a pro-Kennedy showing in Maine could fuel the Kennedy write-in planned for New Hampshire. At precinct caucuses, Kennedy supporters would simply have to make an appearance and register themselves as pro-Kennedy. The state convention, which picks delegates to the national convention later in the year, must reflect the proportion of pro-Kennedy or pro-Carter sentiment registered at the precinct meetings.

A Reagan Catch

The soon-to-be-announced resignation of New Hampshire Republican party Chairman Jerry Carmen, who is expected to follow up by joining the Ronald Reagan team in the first-in-the-nation presidential primary election, is a major acquisition for the front-running Reagan — and another slap at backers of George Bush.

Rep. James Cleveland, one of Bush's chief New Hampshire backers in the Republican primary battle, led an effort to purge Carmen as state chairman early this year when Carmen's first four-year term as chairman was drawing to an end. Carmen had not intended to run for re-election, but when Cleveland challenged him, Carmen changed his mind, ran and won. The victory was widely interpreted as hurting the presidential campaign of Bush, even though Bush personally had nothing to do with the abortive anti-Carmen operation.

Carmen has not finally decided to join Reagan's primary campaign, but politicians in the Granite State will be amazed if he does not. He has been urged to join both John B. Connally's and Sen. Bob Dole's campaigns, but it is Reagan's wagon Carmen wants to hitch up to. As one of the most knowledgeable organization Republicans in the state, his help could prove fruitful.

Curtis' Reward

President Carter has decided to give former Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine his reward following 14 months of unhappiness as chairman of the Democratic National Committee during Carter's first year in the White House. Carter's glittering offer to Curtis: ambassador to Canada.

Now a lawyer in Portland, Maine, Curtis endured hardship and virtual isolation from the Georgia gang in the Carter White House until he ended his chairmanship in March 1978, and was replaced by Texan John White.

The appointment as ambassador to a country with a new conservative government will not make Curtis popular with the foreign service. He will replace career diplomat Thomas Enders in Ottawa at a time when U.S.-Canadian relations are undergoing economic and political strains. Curtis' apparent qualification for the new assignment is his seat on the U.S.-Canada International Joint Commission.

Protestors Face Trial

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — Anti-nuclear protesters who demonstrated at the site of the Black Fox nuclear plant June 2 will face trial in Claremore, Okla. in a jury term beginning Sept. 4, court officials say.

Some 339 persons were arrested on misdemeanor charges of entry without permission in connection with the protest, sponsored by the Sunbelt Alliance.

The first group of 50 pleaded innocent to those charges Tuesday.

Rogers County Associate District Judge David Box will arraign groups of about 50 persons each through August in connection with the temporary occupation of the Public Service Co. of Oklahoma property near Inola.

An Aug. 29 hearing date was set for presentation of motions and setting of a trial date, court officials said.

Attorney Lewis Pitts represented all but three of the protesters appearing Tuesday.

Court officers said it had not yet been determined whether those charged in the case would face a mass trial or individual trials.

The protest was the second demonstration at the Black Fox plant site. An Oct. 5, 1978 protest resulted in the arrest of 345 persons.

Charges against 131 of the first group were dropped on a technicality. More than 200 others failed to appear and forfeited bail.

"What about verification?" one of them said. "How do we know the Assyrians will not put six blades on one sword?" another asked. "What would prevent them from turning their pruning hooks back into Mirved lances?"

Hezekiah knew he'd have to promise his army something in exchange for a SALT B.C. Treaty. "If you support me on this," he told them, "I will authorize the building of an MX system costing 30 billion sheep. This will enable us to hide our mobile spear throwers underground so the Assyrians will never know where they are. It will be the ultimate deterrent to prevent a surprise attack."

The Judean generals reluctantly agreed and King Hezekiah and King Sennacherib met to sign the SALT B.C. protocols.

It was the first SALT treaty negotiated by civilized people in history, and it has been the model for arms limitation agreements ever since.

in his honor but certainly would raise his voice in righteous anger at the no-pets policy.

Crossing the River Liffey into Dublin's business district, one notices that the beatification rites for tourist accommodations have become more common and varied.

St. Simeon Stilites B & B is located on the top floor of an old brick warehouse, which is appropriate enough since the saint being venerated here spent 30 years of his life atop a pillar chained to a large iron ball to draw attention to his message of the need to renounce the comforts of this world.

St. Helena's Tourist Court should be comfortable enough since the elderly lady who was the mother of the Roman Emperor Constantine lived a life of refined luxury before setting out on her great journey to Jerusalem in quest of the true cross.

Reclining and dining in the company of the saints may shock some people as a terrible irreverence, but as the poet Hilaire Belloc wrote:

"Wherever a Catholic sun doth shine,

There's Always Laughter and Good Red Wine.

Least I've always found it so:

Benedicamus Domino."

Cutback Posed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has announced it will cut Medicaid and welfare payments to states by $831 million starting July 1, unless Congress softens its demand that $1 billion be trimmed from HEW's budget.

As a result of the federal cutback to fight waste, HEW said Tuesday that these Southeastern states could lose the following amounts in millions of dollars in funds from the Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs:

Alabama $3.9; Florida $7.7; Georgia $17.3; Kentucky $12.9; Louisiana $10.6; Mississippi $7.5; North Carolina $10.4; South Carolina $6.5; Tennessee $9.3; Texas $18.5 and Virginia $13.3.

Find Stress Due Machine Pace

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health has found that workers whose jobs require them to keep pace with machines may become sick, lose sleep and drink more.

In a two-month study, 15 randomly selected workers spent eight-hour work days on simulated key-punch machines while technicians checked blood pressure, heartbeat, respiration and pulse. "The stress disturbs the chemical, physical and biological functions of the body, and the results are some forms of occupational diseases," Dr. Michael Smith, chief of the Motivational and Stress Research section, said in discussing the findings.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING
SPARTA, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say Danny Waddell, 30, and Zachary Ward, 75, were struck by lightning Tuesday afternoon. Ward suffered a burn on his foot and Waddell was only slightly injured. Both were treated at Alleghany Hospital. The pair was said to be standing beside a truck when lightning struck a metal fence and jumped to the truck.

Gasoline Restrictions Begin In Eastern States

Fishery Council Meets June 26

ECU News Bureau

The June meeting of the South Atlantic Fishery Management Council is scheduled June 26-28 in the Willis Building at East Carolina University.

Using information from the recent meeting of its Inter-Council Billfish Steering Committee, the Council will continue deliberations on the decision elements and final draft of a fishery management plan for billfish which is of wide interest to recreational anglers along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The meeting will also include a report by Florida Department of Natural Resources Marine Science Bureau Chief, Dale Beaumariage, on the mackerel fall-out studies recently concluded off Ft. Pierce, Florida, by Ocean Data Systems of Wilmington.

In addition, the Council will hear a report on the proposed program emphasis for the fiscal year 1982 of the National Marine Fisheries Service by NMFS Regional Director, William Stevenson.

Another agenda item is the presentation of the terms and implementary legislation of the new US/Canadian Fisheries Treaty and its probable impact in the South Atlantic region.

On Thursday the Council's Shrimp Steering Committee will develop a work plan which will underlie the development of a fishery management plan for shrimp within the 200-mile limit of the waters of the Carolinas, Georgia and the east coast of Florida.

The South Atlantic Fishery Management Council is headquartered in Charleston. Its meetings are open to the public and members of the press.

Dr. John Maiolo of the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology is a member of the Council's Scientific and Statistical Committee.

Gasoline rationing came to New York and Connecticut today and was set for midnight in New Jersey as officials in other states dealt with the eastern swing of the Gas Crisis of 1979 with minimum gas purchases.

Rhode Island hoped minimum gasoline purchases — $5 for small cars, $7 for large models — would discourage "topping off." Massachusetts energy director Joseph Fitzpatrick said minimums were likely in that state as well.

But officials were to decide today whether to begin "odd-even" rationing in Maryland, Washington D.C., and northern Virginia, where minimum sales requirements have failed to shorten lines at pumps.

"I think people have finally adjusted to the fact that this is a gasoline crisis," said Kathy Godzik, spokeswoman for the Automobile Club of Maryland. "It used to be a crunch; now it's a crisis."

Other states like Pennsylvania and Georgia held off on any measures but kept an eye on gasoline supplies and the success of rationing elsewhere.

The odd-even rationing system — which alternates days on which gas can be bought between motorists with odd- and even-numbered license plates — began at 12:01 a.m. in the New York City area, where gas prices were over $1 a gallon in many places.

The plan, announced by Gov. Hugh Carey on Monday, also includes a minimum-purchase requirement, limits sales to drivers with half a tank or less, and requires some stations to stay open on weekends.

Many service station operators were not happy at the scheme, which Carey said would be extended to other parts of the state if needed.

"If the governor thinks we're going to stand around like a bunch of corner cops looking at license plates and gas gauges, he's got something else coming," said Russell Murway, president of the 1,200-member Long Island Gasoline Retailers Association.

While all of New Jersey goes on the odd-even system at midnight, its Garden State Parkway was already rationing gasoline at pumps, the first spot in the East to do so.

Rationing was slated to begin Monday in Texas' three most populous counties.

Elsewhere, Montana's Gov. Thomas J. Lee asked his state's newspapers to carry the hours service stations are open. Florida officials looked for ways to keep people from buying unneeded gasoline — possibly with rules against topping off.

Religious Leaders In Iran Map Future

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and three other religious leaders met and took "far-reaching, history-making" decisions concerning the current political situation, the official Pars news agency reported today.

The report said the four ayatollahs met Tuesday night in Qom, the holy city where Khomeini makes his headquarters, and discussed Islamic issues, the new draft constitution and the referendum that will approve it.

Pars gave no details of the decisions taken at the meeting.

It reported the meeting was held "following reports that there had been differences of opinion" among the four ayatollahs.

The three who met with Khomeini, the country's top Shiite Moslem religious leader and the leader of the revolution that overthrew Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, were Kazem Shariatmedari, Shahab al Din Marashi and Mohammad Reza Golpayegani.

"The public welcomed the meeting and saw it as a turning point in the current situation," Pars said.

Shariatmedari's office said the meeting lasted 45 minutes and he was "pleased" with what took place. But his aides gave no more information.

Moderate and leftist politicians who are critical of Khomeini's conservative policies regard Shariatmedari as their champion. They are particularly opposed to Khomeini's determination to impose strict religious control on all aspects of Iranian life.

Shariatmedari publicly opposes the holding of government offices by religious leaders. Many of Khomeini's supporters have suggested that he become the first president of the new Islamic republic.

Meanwhile, Justice Minister Assadollah Mobasher quit Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's cabinet, saying he was "too tired" and wanted to devote himself to his work as a writer, translator and attorney.

He is in his 70s and had expressed concern because his ministry had no control over the Islamic revolutionary courts which have been responsible for the execution of 281 persons since mid-February.

Pars reported Bazargan shifted Interior Minister Ahmad Sadr Haj Seyyed Javadi to the justice ministry and named Hashem Sabaghian, 43, interior minister. He had been a deputy prime minister who supervised the revolutionary regime's takeover.

'Confident' Of No Execution

By DAVID POWELL
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Lawyers for Charles W. Proffitt and Robert A. Sullivan, whose death warrants have been signed by Florida Gov. Bob Graham, say they are confident neither man will be put to death as scheduled next week.

Sullivan's attorneys Tuesday asked the Florida Supreme Court to delay the executions scheduled for 7 a.m. June 27. Proffitt's lawyers said they would file a similar request in Tampa circuit court this week.

If appeals fail, the men will become the second and third to die in the electric chair in little more than a month. On May 25, Florida State Prison inmate John Spengelink became the first man executed unwillingly in the United States since 1967. Proffitt, 33, was sentenced to death for the 1973 murder of a Tampa high school wrestling coach. The coach, 23-year-old Joel Medgebow, was asleep when Proffitt plunged a breadknife into his chest.

Sullivan, 31, was sentenced to death for the 1973 shotgun slaying of motel and restaurant manager Donald Schmidt, who was abducted and murdered in the Everglades.

of Willie Jasper Darden Jr., who had been scheduled to die along with Spengelink.
"It's pretty easy to say it's not an imminent thing, but it's difficult for my client to contemplate that they're going to execute him in a week," said Sullivan's lawyer, Roy E. Black of Miami. "He's got to take it seriously. And I do, too."
Proffitt, a slightly-built man, has said he would rather die in a hospital as a guinea pig for research than "cook" in the electric chair.
"I mean, you stick a guy in a chair, he's hot. He can't help anybody," Proffitt said in a 1977 interview.
Sullivan, a former law student, once said if he had to die in the electric chair he wanted it shown on television.
"If people see what they want, they won't want it," the articulate, heavy-set man said in an interview two years ago.
Graham would not comment on his reasons for signing the death warrants. And lawmakers were divided in their reaction.

Child Is Nearly Eaten Alive By Rat Attack

LEBANON, Tenn. (AP) — "She was nearly eaten alive," said the pediatrician who treated Valerie Hearn, a 10-month-old child mauled by rats. "It was more than one rat, it appears. They'd had to be big rats, too."
Dr. Bernard Wiggins, who runs a children's clinic in Wilson County, said the attack that left Valerie in serious condition at a suburban Nashville hospital Tuesday was the worst he had ever seen.

"She had severe rat bites on multiple places of her body — both her hands, her lips, her ears, her nose, her legs and arms, her body, back and shoulders. Her right hand was nearly eaten through. Most of the fat pad in the central area of the hand was eaten out," he said.

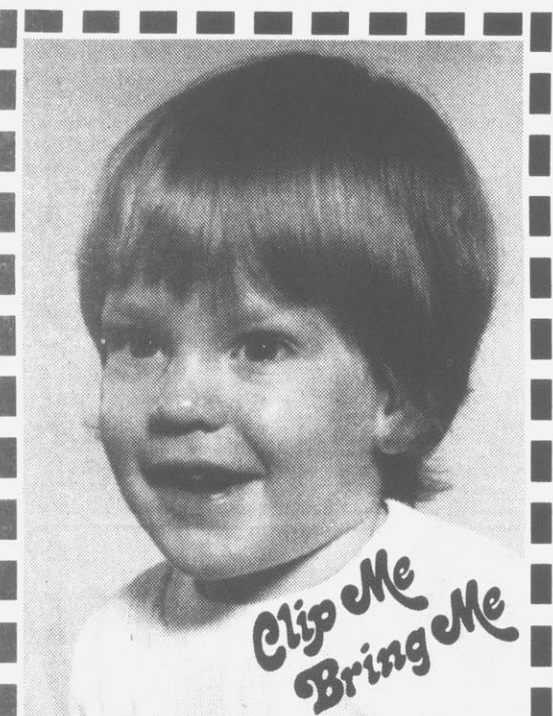

Officials say 19-year-old Carolyn Hearn and her three children lived in a dilapidated downtown neighborhood where Wiggins said he had treated a few rat bite victims earlier.
Joanne Smith, county Human Services Department supervisor, said the other Hearn daughters, ages 2 and 4, would be examined.
Attempts to reach the mother were unsuccessful.

Returned 2 Money Bags

WEYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Robert McDonald, a 31-year-old inventory control manager with a mortgage and two children to feed, was just driving along the road when an armored car dropped nearly $24,000 in front of him.

After a brief bout with temptation, he gave it back.
"My wife and kids, they're all pretty glad I gave the money back," he said. "They said they're proud of me."
McDonald says he was was driving behind the truck Tuesday when its rear door swung open and out spilled two bags.
"I chased the truck for about a half mile," he said. "They wouldn't stop. Someone told me later, they could have shot me. I didn't think of that at the time."
McDonald said he took the bags to a bank branch.
"Between you and me," said McDonald, "I don't think they could have traced the money. Nobody saw me at all. But I realized it isn't mine, you know. I'd like someone to do that for me someday."

Somoza Troops Hit Rebel Positions In Managua

Viet Refugees Are Set Adrift

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Six boats carrying 585 Vietnamese refugees were towed from the east coast of Malaysia into international waters today and sent on their way, a military spokesman announced.

The spokesman told reporters the six boatloads arrived in Malaysia during the past two days and the refugees had not been admitted to government refugee camps, which now hold more than 60,000 Vietnamese awaiting resettlement in other countries.

The boats were towed away from the coast of Trengganu, about 170 miles northeast of Kuala Lumpur, and from Johore, 120 miles southeast of the capital, the spokesman said.

He said the refugees were given food, fuel and other necessities. Refugee officials said the boats were small, wooden, seaworthy, equipped with motors and should be able to be at sea for some time.

It was the second sizable expulsion of refugees this week. On Sunday, 450 were put into a repaired boat and towed away from Kota Bharu, on the north-east coast.

Last Friday, Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad announced that all Vietnamese refugees in Malaysia would be put out to sea and any more arrivals would be shot on sight. This touched off an international storm, and on Monday Prime Minister Hussein Onn withdrew the threat of mass deportation and shooting.

But at the same time Home Minister Ghazalie Shafie told a news conference Malaysia's declared policy since late last year has been to "turn away all new refugees entering Malaysian waters," and it would continue to do this.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza's national guard attacked Sandinista guerrillas in the slums of eastern Managua today in a drive to clear the rebels from the capital.

"It's going very well for us," said a high-ranking government source. "We expect to finish the operation in Managua today."

The sounds of rocket, machine-gun and mortar fire mixed with heavy explosions through the night. The government source said convoys of troop reinforcements left the infantry training school at intervals through the night.

Smoke rose from the barrios on the east side of the city, which the guerrillas had controlled for more than a week.

The rebels of the Sandinista National Liberation Front appeared to have left or been driven out of the western half of the city but were fighting from barricaded positions on the other side of Managua.

The rebels' clandestine Radio Sandino said an attack was imminent on Somoza's heavily fortified headquarters, known as the Bunker, inside the infantry training school. But reliable sources said some guerrillas were pulling out of the capital and possibly heading for Rivas, 30 miles north of the Costa Rican border, which the Sandinistas have vowed to capture and make a capital for the provisional government they named last weekend.

The Sandinistas announced Tuesday night that their forces in the south resumed their attack near La Virgen, south of Rivas. But Maj. Pablo Emilio Salazar, the 35-year-old commander of Somoza's forces in the south, denied the rebel claim in a television appearance.

"We have stopped them at the Rio Pita," said Salazar. "We figure there are now 400 to 600 guerrillas there. We are planning a major offensive."

The Pita River is five miles north of the Costa Rican border.

A Sandinista spokesman in neighboring Costa Rica said there were 600 guerrillas at La Virgen "with the heaviest weapon we have. We have also moved up for the battle all the armored cars and other weapons taken from the national guard."

La Virgen, on Lake Niragua, is 12 miles from the border.

The Sandinista commander in the south, Eden Pastora, told a reporter the guerrillas had overrun several barrios in Rivas and were battling the national guard garrison there late Tuesday.

There was no estimate of rebel casualties in the three weeks since the Sandinistas launched their second offensive in 10 months to try to end the 42-year rule of the Somoza family dictatorship. But reliable sources said 80 national guardsmen have been killed and 215 wounded, two of the guard's four Sherman tanks were disabled in Leon, and only five of its 10 rocket-firing Cessnas were still flying.

Police List 2 Accidents

An estimated $3,700 damage resulted from two traffic accidents investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 2:55 p.m. collision in Arlington Boulevard, 300 feet West of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, involving cars driven by Barbara Gail Maness of Route 2, Greenville, Carl Wilbur Shank of 2710 South Memorial Dr., and Herman Tyson of 307 Roundtree Dr.

Damage was estimated at $700 to the Maness car, $1,000 to the Shank auto and $600 to the Tyson vehicle.

An estimated $700 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5 p.m. mishap on Hooker Road, 30 feet North of the Sylvan Drive intersection.

Drivers of the cars involved in that collision were identified as Charles Lynn Carl of 110 Roanoke Pl. and Harry Herndon McLean III of Route 2, Winterville.

New Arson Unit A Factor In Arresting Of 2 Shelby Men

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Two men were each charged with five counts of murder Tuesday in connection with a fire and explosion that killed five persons, including four firemen, and caused $5 million in damages.

James Edward Jefferies, 32, owner of a clothing store that was leveled by the blaze May 25, and Samuel Guest, 34, were arrested Tuesday morning, Shelby Police Chief J.D. Fish said. Both men were held without bond in the Cleveland County Jail.

State and local officials were assisted in an investigation of the fire by agents of a recently organized arson unit of the federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms division. Donald Zimmerman, deputy assistant director for criminal enforcement for ATF, said the investigation was the first by the unit, called the National Response Team.

Fish and Zimmerman were joined by state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten and Haywood Starling, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, at a news conference called to announce the arrests.

"This shows we mean business when arson occurs," Edmisten said. "This has been a very unique case all around. It's not over by any means. We have announced the arrests for homicide. Quite obviously, more is coming."

The officials refused to discuss the investigation or evidence on which the charges were based. They also declined to elaborate on Edmisten's statement or comment on the possibility of more arrests or the filing of additional charges.

"We collected a substantial amount of suspected physical evidence," Starling told reporters. "We're working now to see if it can be associated with the suspects."

Jefferies owned Geoffrey's Men's Wear, where investigators were reported to have found cans of chemical residue. The store was among the first buildings to burn and was the scene of an explosion that blew out a wall, crushing the five victims in the rubble.

The blaze and explosion also destroyed two dress shops, a book store and a shoe store.

A native of Cleveland County, Jefferies served for two years as administrative assistant for health affairs at East Carolina University before resigning in 1977 to go into the clothing business. Guest, described as a friend of Jefferies, works for a textile company.

Edmisten said he had assigned Deputy Attorney General Lester Chalmers to assist District Attorney W. Hamp Childs Jr. in prosecution of the case.

Killed in the fire were firemen George L. Magness, 44, Donald Melton, 24, Nathan C. Hall, 27, and Floyd P. Sharts, 31, and city gas foreman Max P. Bowling, 45.

Large Turnout At District Meeting

Jackie Jackson, Worthy Matron, Ladies Delight Chapter, Number 10, Order of the Eastern Star in Greenville, gave the welcome address to one of the largest OES meetings for District Six recently at Mount Calvary F. W. B. Church.

District Deputy Josephine Reaves presented tokens of appreciation to the Grand Officers and members in her district. Remarks were given by Grand Officer, Maggie Strong, Katie Hart, Josephine Reaves, Bettie Peterson, Mary Field, District Matron, and Monty Frizzell, past patron of Ladies Delight Chapter 10. Frizzell stated that Bettie Peterson is the youngest grand officer in the state and was a charter member of Branch No. 5, OES.

One of the highlights of the morning session was the presentation of some of the members of Strong's Jewels Branch No. 5, OES. This organization was organized and sponsored by Ladies Delight Chapter No. 10 in 1969 and received its charter in 1970. Worthy District Patron Monty Frizzell stated that the youth organization was named in honor of Maggie Strong, Grand Worthy Matron OES from the state of North Carolina, Prince Hall affiliated.

According to Worthy Patron William Jackson of No. 10, 215

OES members attended the dinner session, prepared by members of Ladies Delight, George Joyner and members of No. 10 were in charge of the dining area.

The evening session included demonstrations, a question and answer period, and the crowning of "Miss Eastern Star" for District Six.

Art Collection Given Library

SAN MARINO, Calif. (AP) — A collection of art, including works by Rembrandt, Van Dyck and Watteau, worth an estimated $7 million has been donated to the Huntington Library, according to its curator, Robert Wark.

The collection was the bequest of the late Mildred Browning Green and her husband, Judge Lucius Peyton Green, and was the largest made to the museum since 1927, Wark said Monday. The gallery also will receive the entire Green estate, estimated at between $2 million and $2.5 million.

Two Local Men At Army Unit Reunion

Two area men, Leon Morris of Greenville and Nick Harris of Ayden were among those attending a recent reunion of a World War II unit, the 461st Anti-Aircraft Battalion.

"It was a good feeling, meeting some of these men again after all these years," Morris said. "I just wish more of us who were with the unit could have been there."

Alden Angeline, in a special article for "The Asheville Citizen" newspaper, gave a full account of the history of the World War II unit.

A synopsis of the account shows that back in September 1942 two train-loads of North Carolina men were sent to Camp Hahn, at Riverside, California, to help complete the manpower quota for a newly organized unit, the 461st Anti-Aircraft Battalion.

Six months later, fully trained and equipped, the Tar Heels, along with fellow soldiers from other states, were sent to England. There, they received further training, and at the same time helped provide protection for airfields and repair depots.

In June 1944, the unit landed on the European continent — at Omaha Beach.

What follows is well known — long months of combat in news events of the year 1944 — breaking out at Normandy, the liberation of Paris, the capture of a vital bridge over the Rhine River.

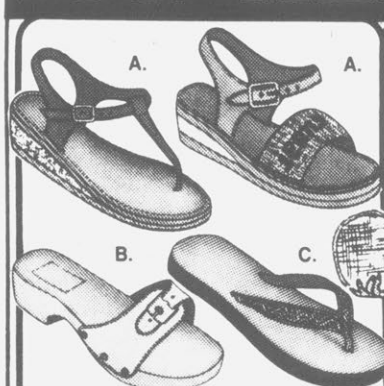

When the end of the year 1944 came, the 461st was in the midst of the Battle of the Bulge. With the arrival of spring 1945, the 461st was one of the units joining up with the Red Army at Torgau on the Elbe River.

Then, the war over, the men of the 461st returned home. In the intervening 34 years, the majority of the wartime members of the 461st had only an occasional contact with former buddies.

"This reunion," Morris said, "gave us a chance to get together again. There were several men in this area who had belonged to the 461st, but one or two of them are now deceased."

Return Of 'Extended' Family Seen

By ROSALIND ROSSI
CHICAGO (UPI) — Michael, a product of World War II and the Depression, spent most of his youth watching or helping his parents struggle to make a living.

As an adult he built his construction company into a thriving business so he could enjoy some pleasures his parents missed.

On weekends Michael heads for the golf course to squeeze in as many holes as weather will permit. His wife, Joan, keeps busy with an endless series of club meetings and visits to a nearby health spa.

Michael and Joan couldn't be described as "strict" parents, but they gave their two children everything money could buy — Ivy League schools, a new car after college graduation and yearly vacations in Hawaii. Somehow, it wasn't enough.

Parents like Michael and Joan may be part of the reason Americans are returning to a stronger family unit, says Dr. Harvey White, a family therapist, psychiatrist and author of the book "Your Family Is Good for You" (Random House $8.95). White also serves in the department of psychiatry at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City.

He looks for a "renaissance" of the family within the next 15 years and, perhaps, a return to larger families.

"Each generation solves the problems of its parents," White said in an interview before the first meeting of the newly formed American Family Therapy Association. "Unfortunately, each generation is faced with a new set of problems."

He said he expects a return to a stronger family unit, partially as the reaction of a generation that grew up with little parental contact. They may be modeled on the structure of the 1800s and early 1900s when families shared tasks and formed a close-knit unit, White said. Some refer to the unit of that period as the "extended family" because as many as four generations worked and lived together. Grandparents ruled as matriarchs and patriarchs and were consulted for the wisdom of their years.

"We lost that sense of sharing because of World War II and the dread of events from the Depression," White said. "During the Depression, people felt each other as an economic burden ... With the war, people were faced with devastating images — with the Holocaust, the A-bomb."

"The next generation wanted to enjoy themselves because they saw their parents so depressed. The GNP (gross national product) suddenly became something we cared too much about. Affluence was the be-all and end-all."

The family of that time was reduced to its nuclear core — just the parents and, often, only two or three children (2.3 children, according to commonly quoted statistics). Parents who sought to enjoy their hard-earned wealth often had little time to instill moral or spiritual values in their children, White said.

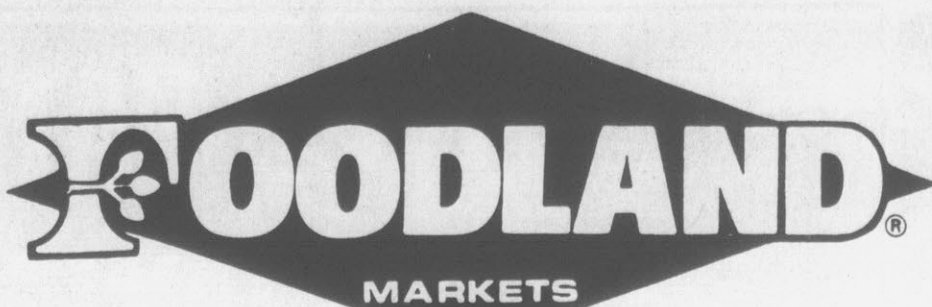

"In the nuclear family, the family with little togetherness, people parked themselves in front of televisions, with newspapers or on golf courses or at bridge clubs and thought that just because they had a nuclear family they didn't have to do anything to make it work."

A Crooked Smile Results In Suit

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A Colorado woman has filed suit against a plastic surgeon, claiming his repair work left her with a crooked smile.

Carol Holloway filed the suit against Dr. Alfred Speir, claiming surgery he performed on her after an auto accident in 1976 was negligent and deviated from standard care exercised by physicians in the field. As a result, Ms. Holloway, 26, of Woodland Park, contended in her suit that she has a marked facial asymmetry which gives her a "crooked look" about her mouth when she smiles or talks. Dr. Speir said he had not heard from Ms. Holloway since her accident until her suit was filed last week in District Court.

NEWBORN GERENUK — The legs were a little wobbly, but a newborn Gerenuk was up and moving about less than an hour after its birth Monday. The little creature, its 18-inch frame mostly ears and legs, didn't stray far from mama's watchful gaze. The birth at Busch Gardens in Tampa, Fla. is the first result of a breeding program begun last November at the 300-acre park. There are only four zoos in the country which keep the delicate animal. Town Wheels Turn Slowly BLACKSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — The wheels of democracy turn slowly in the tiny town of Blacksville, if at all.

There hasn't been a municipal election since 1973 and town officials stay in office by default even though the town charter calls for an election every two years.

The town council is supposed to meet twice a month, but often doesn't.

"We can't hardly have a meeting. Nobody comes," complained Grace Harker, who has been town recorder of this Monongalia County coal town — population 260 — for 17 years.

When council meetings are held, they are almost always short.

"They don't last long unless we have an argument, but most of the people in Blacksville are too tired to argue," she said.

When they do, it is usually about the water system. And Mrs. Harker, 70, is right in the middle. As town recorder, she does the collecting and billing.

Public service stirs little interest.

"Nobody wants these offices up here. They don't pay anything," says Mayor C.R. Harker, 74, who is married to the town recorder. He and his wife are each paid $25 a year, but the five councilmen serve for nothing.

So instead of holding an election, the councilmen, mayor and town recorder merely remain in office another term.

There was supposed to have been an election June 5 but no one was nominated, "so we all just went back into office," said Mrs. Harker.

"They're supposed to have an election, but nobody wants to run," said S.J. Angotti, who is paid $100 a year to look after the town's legal interests.

"They don't print out a ballot or anything — they just hang in there," he said, talking about the incumbents.

Angotti said he tried to interest local people in holding political conventions to nominate people to run for office but no one showed up at the conventions.

Bill Harrington, deputy secretary of state, said the situation seemed similar to one recently in the town of Coalton. The secretary of state's office finally supervised an election there.

Mrs. Harker said all this is going to change soon. The Morgantown, W.Va., water system is expected to extend its lines into Blacksville within the next two years.

"Then I'm going to get out," she confided. "I'm tired. I'm tired of all the rat-racing around for poor pay and lots of headaches. Serving the public is no easy job."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today in a replay of Tuesday's trendless session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up .17 to 839.57 in the first half hour.

But losers took a slight lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said trading interest was dampened by energy worries, weakness in the dollar and uncertainty about where the economy was headed.

The dollar took a sharp drop Tuesday in foreign exchange, and gave more ground today in European markets.

Gasoline rationing plans based on odd-and-even-numbered license plates, meanwhile, were being put into effect in several areas of the country.

Today's early volume leaders included Amerasia Hess, unchanged at 42 1/2; American Telephone & Telegraph, down 1/4 at 58 1/2; and Louisiana Land & Exploration, off 1/4 at 31 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average finished at 839.40, unchanged from Monday's close.

Advances slightly outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 30.78 million shares against 30.97 million the day before.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .02 to 57.58.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .89 to 195.84.

Juveniles Face Damage Counts

FARMVILLE — Two juveniles, seven and nine years old, were charged last night with the damage done to the A. C. Monk Home Avenue storage facility Sunday morning, May 6.

Police Chief Ron Cooper said the two children charged were caught later the same morning inside Bundy School here and charged with breaking and entering. The two, in the presence of their uncle, told police they started the locklift inside the storage facility "just playing," and that the damage was done when they could not control the machine.

July 10 Hearing For Wayne's Will

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A probate hearing has been scheduled for July 10 on actor John Wayne's $6.85 million estate, which excludes his third wife and a son-in-law.

According to a 27-page will filed Tuesday in Orange County Superior Court, the legendary film veteran's estate includes $1 million in real property, $5.75 million in personal property and $100,000 in income from his holdings.

Wayne died June 11 of cancer.

The actor's attorney, John S. Warren, noted that although Wayne's wife, Pilar, was not included in the will, she was provided for in a 1973 separation agreement.

In addition to Mrs. Wayne, Donald La Cava, the husband of the actor's eldest daughter, Toni, was excluded from the will. La Cava also will be unable to collect his wife's portion upon her death, Warren said.

Warren declined to say why Wayne made that provision.

The will provides for a special bequest to his two children under 18, in the amount of $5,000 multiplied by the difference between 21 and the child's age at Wayne's death. This provision applies to John Ethan, 17, who will get $20,000, and Marisa, 13, who will receive $40,000.

Also, when Wayne's three youngest children - John Ethan, Marisa and 23-year-old Aissa - reach age 30, they will receive one-half the principal in their trusts, then at age 35 they'll get the remainder. It was not known how much was in each trust.

Wayne has four children over age 35. They are Michael, 44; Toni, 43; Patrick, 42, and Melinda, 41.

Each of those four was bequeathed a trust sum, which will go to the qualified spouse upon death. The only exception was that the trustees continue to administer Toni's share, which will go to her children after she dies and they reach age 21.

Hospital Bd....

Hospital Director Jack Richardson reported that a meeting between the building committee and the architects working on the bed tower project will be held Friday. If all goes well, bids dates could be in September or October, he said.

Rick Gilstrap, assistant administrator, reported that the Ambulance Department, which was for the first full fiscal year not subsidized "just about broke even." He said trips should be "down in number" some this year once the hospital has its own catscan machine and trips don't have to be made by ambulance to Eastern Radiology. The neonatal ambulance has been delivered and should be in service within the month, he said.

Nursing Director Jean Owens reported that the staff of nurses is at an all-time high - 218. Some 33 nurse interns are also working, she said, and several graduate students in nursing are conducting helpful research projects in the hospital.

Medical School Dean Dr. William Laupus reported on the HSA meeting during which approval was given for the bed tower. He said that "the last big faculty addition group" will begin work here this summer, with several new specialties thereby being brought to the area - including an expert on infectious disease and a pediatric allergist.

Reorganization of the administrative staff was discussed and a chart passed around, but no action was taken.

New Award For Station

The Associated Press Broadcasters presented its top national award to WITN-TV, Washington, at the ninth annual meeting of the Broadcasters group held recently in New Orleans.

In making their selection, the judges cited Television Seven for its overall cooperation, saying "WITN-TV has been consistently North Carolina's leader in providing strong, fresh material to the Associated Press... from in and beyond its coverage area."

Presentation of the award was made by Peter Martin at the annual awards luncheon. WITN-TV was selected from a total of 165 broadcasters nominated for four national awards from the total Associated Press Broadcasters membership in the United States.

An engraved plaque was accepted by Roy Hardee, Vice President-News for WITN-TV. "This is indeed a honor for all of us at Television Seven and would not have been possible without the cooperation of a dedicated news gathering team," Hardee said on accepting the award.

Trade Agreement Can Boost Tobacco Export

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — An international trade and tariff agreement pending in Congress could mean a multi-million dollar increase in tobacco exports for North Carolina farmers, according to agriculture spokesmen.

In Washington, J. C. Frink, deputy director of the tobacco and cotton division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture foreign service, says the trade package, called the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, will reduce the tariff on tobacco exported to the European Common Market by 33.3 percent.

Frink says this could mean an additional $75 million annually in U. S. tobacco exports.

"It's probably the best thing that has happened to U. S. tobacco exports in this decade or longer," Frink said. "It's a concession which we needed badly for years and the trade negotiators finally pulled it off."

In Raleigh, John Cyrus, chief of the tobacco affairs section of the N. C. Department of Agriculture, said he expects North Carolina farmers to receive about two-thirds of the expected additional $75 million.

"Of the total United States tobacco exports, about 60-65 percent is North Carolina tobacco," Cyrus said. "We feel like these trade advantages will be a big plus to North Carolina tobacco farmers."

Cyrus noted that under the trade agreement, tariff reductions on tobacco also are gained by Australia, New Zealand and Finland.

The trade agreement will not take effect until it is ratified by the legislative bodies of the 41 nations involved. Chances that it will win congressional approval are good, according to Joe Kinney, legislative aide to Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N. C.

Niekro Springs Back After Beating To Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer
After getting beamed by a pitch last Friday night, Phil Niekro laid low between starts. "I just stayed in bed for three days," said Niekro, who was hit in the head by Craig Swan in last weekend's game with the New York Mets. "I didn't do anything at all, just rested."

Then it was business as usual against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Looking as good as new, Niekro beat the Phillies for the sixth straight time Tuesday night, with a 10-4 decision. "It always seems I pitch well against Philadelphia, and I really don't know why," said Niekro, who hasn't lost to the Phillies since August 31, 1977 and holds a lifetime mark of 22-12 over his National League East Division rivals.

The Braves have followed Niekro's lead, holding a 12-5 record over the perennial Eastern powerhouse the last two seasons.

In other NL games Tuesday night, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the Montreal Expos 3-2; the Houston Astros defeated the New York Mets 3-1; the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the San Francisco Giants 9-4; the Chicago Cubs trimmed the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 and the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the San Diego Padres 7-2.

Billy's Debut Is A Losing One

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Billy Martin picked a bad night to come back home to Yankee Stadium. Only two American League home teams were winners Tuesday and Martin's Yankees weren't one of them.

The fiery Martin took over the defending World Champions from Bob Lemon, the man who replaced Martin when he resigned last July, and also coached third base as Toronto edged New York 5-4. The Blue Jays were one of five victorious visiting teams in the AL Tuesday.

Elsewhere, Detroit won in Boston for the first time after 12 successive losses at Fenway Park, 10-4 in 14 innings; Baltimore won its fifth straight game, a 6-4 verdict at Cleveland; Texas edged California 2-1 at Anaheim, and Seattle won in Chicago 7-2. The only home teams to win were Oakland, a 6-5 winner over Kansas City, and Milwaukee, which out-slugged Minnesota 10-9.

"Just being back in uniform is great," Martin said. "You don't realize how much you miss the game until you're gone for as long as I was." Martin also had kind words for the Yankee fans.

"They're great fans," he said. "I wish we could have given them a victory. I've been a Yankee fan all my life; maybe that's what we have in common."

The Yankees weren't much more effective under Martin than they'd been recently under Lemon. Light-hitting Luis Gomez broke a 3-3 tie when he drove in his first two runs of the season with a bases-loaded single in the sixth inning.

New York almost won it in the bottom of the ninth. Thurman Munson led off with a

Putting Winners

The Aces defeated the King Putters and the Top Ten sank the Ace Machines last night at the local Putt-Putt course.

Junior Knox, with a 55, Johnny Johnston with a 65, and Barbara Logsdon with a 62 were low for the Top Ten (3-1). The Aces (3-1) were led by Jimmy Allen with a 64, Frank Fuller with a 65, and Gene Frazier with a 66.

Art Grapel led the King Putters (0-4) while Eddie Robinson and Carl White led the Ace Machines (2-2) each with a 65.

bloop single to center and Graig Nettles, who had a two-run homer earlier, drove a fly ball to deep right field.

"It was hanging up in the air," said Toronto right fielder Joe Cannon, who was inserted as a defensive replacement the inning before. "I got back as far as I could and got lucky and brought it down. I was really trying to keep it from going out; I think it would have hit the top of the fence."

"It was a good shot but I'm proud of the way I timed my jump."

Martin was proud of the effort his Yankees gave. "I'm never happy after I lose a ball game," he said, "but we hit the ball hard and executed well."

Toronto's victory deprived Tommy John, 10-3, of becoming the first 11-game winner in the majors. It was the third straight time he had failed to win his 11th game.

"Two checked swings, one anteaater to the infield and five bloopers," was how Martin described the Blue Jays' key hits off John, neglecting to mention the ace left-hander walked six and uncorked two wild pitches.

Tigers 10, Red Sox 4, 14 innings
"They're an awful good club to keep beating in this park," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. He was right.

Detroit, which lost 9-8 to Boston Monday night in a game that ended at 1:12 a.m. Tuesday, erupted for six runs in the 14th, two on Steve Kemp's single and another pair on Lance Parrish's double.

Orioles 6, Indians 4
A pair of eighth-inning walks, followed by Billy Smith's single, drove in the run that gave Baltimore its fifth victory in a row and its 11th in 12 games. The Indians were the victims of Eddie Murray's tie-breaking homer in the seventh and tough relief pitching by Tim Stoddard, who held Cleveland in check over the final four innings.

Rangers 2, Angels 1
John Henry Johnson struck out 10 Angels in five innings before leaving with tightness in his right leg. Jim Kern finished up a five-hitter. "I was loose and having a good time," said Johnson, 3-8, who was making his first start for the Rangers after being acquired from Oakland last week.

Mariners 7, White Sox 2
Seattle scored a pair of unearned runs in the fourth to spark its third straight victory and 12th in 19 games.

Snow Hill Tops Rodriguez Here Friday

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team handed Williamston its first loss of the season last night, gaining a 9-6 victory.

The win snapped a four-game losing streak for the Snow Hill team and boosted its record to 3-4. Williamston is now 6-1 on the year.

Williamston started strong, scoring three runs in the top of the first inning. Anthony Latham singled and Toby Holliday followed with a hit. Trent Ange reached on an error in the bases. Joseph Holley singled in Latham, and Eldred McQueen singled to score Holliday and Ange.

Snow Hill came back with a run in the bottom of the first. Billy McLawhorn walked and Jimbo Fulghum was hit by a pitch. Philip Gordon singled, scoring McLawhorn.

The second saw Snow Hill post three more runs for a 4-1 lead. Kevin Korpi singled and moved to third when the ball was errored. Both McLawhorn and Fulghum walked, loading the bases. Al Murray then cracked a double, scoring all three runners.

Williamston tied it up with one in the third. McQueen walked and stole second. He scored on Wade Brabble's single.

The fourth saw Snow Hill put the game away, adding three for a 7-4 lead. McLawhorn reached Mike Heath, acquired in the trade for Johnson last week, hit his first two major-league homers to lead the A's to victory. Mitchell Page, Wayne Gross and Dave Revering also homered for Oakland, which managed an unorthodox triple play in the sixth.

Darrell Porter singled and George Scott was hit by a pitch. Al Cowens then grounded to third baseman Gross, who tagged Porter and threw to second for a force out. Scott ran over second baseman Mike Edwards and interference was called, accounting for the third out.

on a fielder's choice, with Fulghum singling. A wild pitch scored McLawhorn, and Murray polished off things with a two-run homer.

Williamston closed back to within one by scoring single runs in the fifth and sixth innings, but Snow Hill added two in the seventh to salt it away.

Murray led the Snow Hill hitting with three, while Korpi added two. McQueen had three and Holliday two for Williamston.

Strong Field For Canadian

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus and Hale Irwin top the strongest field ever assembled for the Canadian Open Golf Championship, an event that grows in stature and prestige on an annual basis.

"It is a national championship," Nicklaus said. "Any national championship is of very considerable importance." And the event, which gets started Thursday, holds a special lure for Nicklaus. A victory would be of more than normal importance for the man who is struggling through the poorest season of his matchless career.

First of all, he hasn't won this season. He needs to win to restore the confidence that has begun to erode in an erratic, unproductive season.

Secondly, he'd particularly like to win on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course, a 7,050-yard layout playing to a par-71 which Nicklaus designed in the Toronto suburbs.

And, finally, the Canadian Open is one of the few important titles that has eluded him.

He comes into the tournament, which carries a $350,000 purse, on a mild upswing and needs a strong, positive performance to set him up for the two remaining major titles of the year — the British Open and the American PGA.

Nicklaus had a strong 68, one of his better efforts of the year, in the final round last week in the U.S. Open. But it was too late to lift him into contention.

A struggling 77 in the second round took him out of that one. Watson, too, seeks to rebound. The game's outstanding performer over the last 2½ seasons, failed to qualify for the final two rounds of the U.S. Open. It was the result of erratic driving.

With a $63,000 prize going to the winner, a Watson victory could make him the first man to go past $400,000 in single-season winnings. He's collected $353,000 and four titles already this year.

Handicap Hasn't Stopped Hudson Too Tall Tries Pro Boxing

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
During the summer of 1973, Richard Hudson was a student at N.C. State and looking forward to participating in football on the Wolfpack team that fall.

Instead, Hudson found himself in a rehabilitation center in Winston-Salem, paralyzed from the waist down. During that summer, an auto accident left him a "key-11" paraplegic.

For most athletes, it would have been a jarring blow, an end to a career.

But for Hudson, it was just another challenge, one he has more than overcome. And he has set an example for other people, both athletes and non-athletes alike.

The Tarboro native has been living in Greenville since 1976, except for a brief period in Chapel Hill, where he earned a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling. After his accident, he finished his undergraduate studies at St. Andrew's, earning a degree in literature.

While in the rehabilitation center in Winston-Salem, a physical therapist got him interested in wheelchair competition of sports.

"I've always enjoyed weightlifting, and I kept that up after the accident," Hudson said. "I guess it was just natural that I would go into wheelchair sports."

In 1974, Hudson decided to enter the National Wheelchair Games, held that year in Spokane, Washington. "The only thing I competed in was weight lifting. I set my sights a little too high. You have to set a starting weight and I didn't make mine."

For the next couple of years, Hudson worked on weightlifting and added the shot put to his abilities. In 1977, he returned to the national games and came away a winner, taking first place in the light heavyweight division in weightlifting with a bench press of 380 pounds, and a national record toss of 28 feet, 10 inches in the Class 4 shot put.

"Class 4 is the second level for paraplegics. Class 5 is for those with the least handicap, and Class 1 is for those with the most. Most of the Class 5's don't use wheelchairs."

In 1978, Hudson was again a winner in the shot put with a toss of 28-3, and finished second in the weight lifting with a 375-pound heave.

This past weekend, he participated in the 23rd annual games, and again came away a double winner.

"You get three shots at weight lifting, and I 375, 385, and then 390 to win that title. In the shot, I threw 8.9 meters, about 29-2, and both of these were my personal best."

Hudson, however, no longer holds the national record in the shot. That now is 8.97 meters.

With five national championships over the past three years, Hudson is also turning to international competition. This past

November, he participated in the International Games in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, winning the weight lift with a 170-kilo heft (374½ pounds), and a shot put heave of 27 feet, 11 inches.

Here in Greenville, Hudson is one of the founders of the "Steelwheels," a wheelchair basketball team, which he hopes to take to regional competition this year.

While unemployed now following his graduation with his master's degree, Hudson is seeking a job in rehabilitation.

"I just want people to know that being confined to a wheelchair isn't the end. There are a lot of things people can do. Right now, the Steelwheels in the only team sport available in Greenville, but I'd like to see other things."

"My future, I guess, will be determined by where I can get a job. But I'd like to stay in Greenville and continue with the Steelwheels."

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember the idle rumors in the 1960s proclaiming those dream fights — Jimmy Brown vs. Sonny Liston or Will Chamberlain vs. Muhammad Ali?

Would you believe Ed "Too Tall" Jones vs. Larry Holmes?

It's not quite as far-fetched as it might sound — but don't start lining up at the ticket booth just yet, either.

Brown, once the terror of the National Football League, wound up grimacing at us from movie screens. And Chamberlain, once the scourge of the National Basketball Association, turned his attention to volleyball.

But Jones, until now a defensive end with the Dallas Cowboys, says he has had it after five years of pro football — he never liked it to begin with — and at the age of 28 is pursuing his first love, boxing.

Holmes, picking up a little free publicity for his Friday night heavyweight title fight against Mike Weaver at Madison Square Garden, attended the news conference Tuesday at which Jones, a 6-foot-9, 270-pounder with mammoth hands, announced his intention to become the heavyweight champion of the world.

That was pretty big talk from a guy whose only previous boxing experience was limited to the Golden Gloves while in high school. But Jones pointed out: "I never lost a fight and none of 'em went past the first round."

Jones said he figured it would take about two years for him to be good enough to take on a contender and that his whole ring career probably would run no longer than six years. Boxing, he said, is "where my heart lies. At 28, I don't feel I'm too old."

I Say, Norm, Good Show

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Norman Sloan, whose 1974 North Carolina State basketball team won the 1974 NCAA championship, will coach the English team in the 1980 Olympics.

N.C. State officials said Tuesday that Sloan agreed on Monday to take the job while he was conducting a basketball clinic in England.

Ed Seaman, sports information director at N.C. State, said Sloan will begin working with the British Basketball Association team in February.

"He'll still be the full-time head coach at N.C. State," Sloan said. "It won't affect his duties here at all. It will be basically a summertime job."

Sloan is considering bringing the British team to Raleigh for about five weeks of practice, Seaman said. Sloan, who returns to Raleigh from England Thursday, was not available for comment.

But Peter Sprogis, development officer for the British Basketball Association, said the hiring of Sloan was a move to upgrade England's Olympic basketball program.

"We want to get one of the qualification places for next year's Olympic Games, and with Norman Sloan we hope to get the chance," he said. "The qualification meeting is in Switzerland in May 1980, and we hope to be coming over to North Carolina State the month before for a training stint."

Sloan's 1974 national championship team had a 30-1 record. His lifetime record, including 13 seasons at N.C. State after stints at Presbyterian College, The Citadel and Florida, is 457-256.

Exchange 9, Pepsi-Cola 4

The Exchange kept its slim title hopes alive and eliminated Pepsi-Cola from the Tar Heel Little League race, 9-4, yesterday.

The Exchange is now 7-6, while Pepsi fell to 6-7.

Exchange grabbed the lead with two in the first. Tim Clark walked and Steve Childers doubled. Billy Michel doubled to score both runners.

In the second, the Exchange added six more to wrap it up. Doug Bray and Robert Joyner both walked and Dale Hudson singled. Clark singled in Bray and Childers reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Joyner. Michel was hit by a pitch, bringing in Hudson, and Monte Atkinson was also hit, scoring Clark. Joe Hobgood walked to score Childers, and a wild pitch brought in Michel.

The other Exchange run came on a Michel home run in the fourth.

Pepsi got its first three in the third. Robert Fornville was hit by a pitch and Joey Hallow walked. Paul Sullivan reached on a two-base error, scoring Fornville. A passed ball let Hallow in, and a wild pitch plated Sullivan.

The other run scored in the fourth.

Michel, Atkinson and Hudson led the Exchange hitting with two each, while Hudson held Pepsi to just one hit, a fourth inning single by Clay Young.

Lions 9, Optimists 0

The Lions won the North State Little League championship yesterday, defeating the Optimists, 9-0, on a one-hitter by Patrick Rand.

The lone hit off the Lion hurler came in the second inning as Gary Scott got a lead-off single.

The win boosted the Lion record to 11-2 on the year, while the Optimists, the last team left that could have caught the Lions, dipped to 8-5.

The Lions got all they needed in the first second inning. Burt Aycock walked and Michael Duncan reached on a fielder's choice. Mike Taylor doubled to drive in Aycock.

Two came in the third, with Tony Taylor hitting a solo home run, and two more scored in the fourth. William Ward hit a solo homer in the two-run fifth, and the final two came over in the sixth.

Tony Taylor led the Lion hitting with four, while Mike Taylor had three and Ralph Harper had two.

Senior Babe Ruth

Farmville 12, North Pitt 8

Farmville gained a 12-8 win over North Pitt in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night.

Farmville advanced its record to 3-3 with the win, while North Pitt fell to 1-5.

Farmville grabbed the lead in the first inning, scoring three times. Tim Garing reached on an error and both David Joyner and Tony Eason walked. Alan Corbett doubled in two runs, and Greg Oakley was hit by a pitch, reloading the bases. Mike Tugwell reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Eason.

North Pitt tied it up with three in the third. Bell reached on an error and Beacham walked. Hines doubled in Bell and Beacham scored on House's sacrifice fly. Holmes reached on an error, scoring Hines.

After regaining the lead with five in the bottom of the fourth, Farmville saw North Pitt cut it back to 8-4 with one in the top of the fifth.

Farmville then scored three more in the fifth to insure the win. Larry Jones walked and Garing singled. Joyner got a hit, loading the bases. Eason singled in two, and Joyner scored on a sacrifice fly by Corbett.

Farmville added one in the sixth, while North Pitt came back with four in the seventh. Eason, in hurling the win, allowed only one hit, walked seven and struck out 13. Corbett led the Farmville hitting with three, while Tugwell had two.

Ayden-Grifton 5, Univ. Kiwanis 1

Ayden-Grifton won its first Senior Babe Ruth League game of the year last night, downing the University Kiwanis, 5-1.

Ayden-Grifton is now 1-4, while the Kiwanis fell to 3-4.

Ayden-Grifton got its first run in the first. Wayne Newton walked and so did Vic Setliff. Brady Quinn reached on a fielder's choice, as did Ed Coley, the latter scoring Newton.

Three more came over in the second for a 4-0 lead. Clayton McLawhorn walked as did Mike McLawhorn and David Taylor, loading the bases. Joey Pierce reached on an error, scoring Clayton McLawhorn, and both Mike McLawhorn and Taylor scored on the same passed ball.

The other A-G run came in the fourth.

The lone Kiwanis run came in the fifth. Charles Daise reached on a fielder's choice and scored on a hit by Mac Stokes.

Ayden-Grifton got only two hits, but they were enough, as no one got more than one for either team.

Prep League

Green. Hardware 10, Auto Specialty 8

Greenville Hardware protected its Prep League lead with a 10-8 win over Auto Specialty last night.

The win boosted Greenville Hardware to 7-2 in the league, while Auto Specialty fell to 4-5. Dr. Pepper, 3-6, was eliminated from the title picture by the Hardware win.

Greenville Hardware scored two in the first. Toby Fischer singled and moved up on an error. Billy Godley walked, and Richard Pace doubled in both runners.

After Hardware scored three more in the second, Auto Specialty came up with three in the third. Bill Messick walked and stole second. He scored on Michael Smith's single. Smith stole second and moved to third on an out, scoring when John Rararis singled. He stole up and scored when Walter Perkins singled.

Hardware added three more in the fourth, then got what proved to be the winning run in the fifth. Todd Jordan walked, as did Fischer. Timmy Norris singled in Jordan for a 9-3 lead.

Hardware added one in the sixth, while Auto Specialty got one in the fifth and four in the seventh.

Fischer led the Hardware hitting with three, while Pace and Curtis Hendrix each had two. Smith, Rararis and Mike Kinley each had two for Auto Specialty.

Babe Ruth

Pepsi-Cola 16, Wachovia Bank 8

Pepsi-Cola romped to a 16-8 victory over Wachovia Bank in the Babe Ruth League last night.

Pepsi pushed over two in the first inning. Mike Holloman walked as did Ricky Owens and Ike Smith, loading the bases. Billy Brannigan singled, scoring both Holloman and Owens.

Wachovia came back with two in the bottom of the first. Ed Frazier reached on a fielder's choice and Troy Hudson doubled him in. After Mike Tucker walked, Raynor Casey singled in Hudson.

Wachovia added one in the second and two in the third for a 5-2 lead, but Pepsi exploded for seven in the fourth to move ahead for good.

Brannigan reached on an error and scored on a double by Frank Norris. Terry Smith walked and Allen Dickens singled in Norris. Lance Searl walked, and a hit by Holloman brought in Smith and Dickens. Ike Smith then cracked a three-run homer.

Pepsi added four more in the sixth and two in the seventh, the latter on a home run by Ike Smith.

Wachovia got two in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Holloman, Owens, Smith, Brannigan and Norris each had two hits for Pepsi, while Hudson had three and Casey, two, for Wachovia.

Home Savings 9, Coca-Cola 0

Scott Galloway hurled a no-hit shutout at Coca-Cola for Home Builders last night as the Builders took a 9-0 Babe Ruth League win.

The victory kept the Builders alive in the title race with an 8-3 record, while Coke fell to 4-6.

Although the game was called after six due to curfew, Galloway just missed a perfect game. Mitch Brann led off the contest by reaching on an error, and except for a sixth inning walk to Jimmy Jones, was the last may to reach.

The Builders got all they needed in the second. Horace Barrett singled and scored on Lloyd Jackson's triple. Danny Woods and Ashley Ferrell were both hit by pitches, loading the bases, and a single by Galloway brought in Jackson for a 2-0 lead.

Builders added one in the fourth, and six in the fifth.

Barrett led the Builder hitting with four, while Chuck Allen had two.

GOLF CHOKES

NEW YORK (AP) — Feminine golf star Hollis Stacy says that when you choke up in a big tournament, you go to sleep and forget that you are even playing in a tourney.

But other feminine golfers have different ways of saying it. They say you take the "big apple," you start playing with a "choke stroke" and that you play "Sandy Andy" when you should be playing "Dirty Birdie."

Bittersweet Return For Martin

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'll probably be a little nervous," Billy Martin was saying Tuesday evening as he put on the dark blue cap with the familiar NY on the front. "I'm always nervous when I get ready to go to work."

Billy Martin was about to go back to the job he loves best — managing the New York Yankees.

It was a bittersweet return. The popular Martin received a two-minute ovation from the crowd of 36,211 — the advance sale was 15,000 until Martin was named Monday to replace Bob Lemon, the man who replaced him last July — but the Toronto Blue Jays put a damper on the celebration with a 5-4 victory over the slumping two-time world champions.

"Just being back in uniform is great," Martin said. "You don't realize how much you miss the game until you're gone for as long as I was."

was tempered by a measure of disappointment when the lowly Blue Jays trumped 10-game winner Tommy John with the help of two-run singles by John Mayberry and Luis Gomez, the latter's first two RBI of the season.

"You're never happy after you lose a ballgame," Martin said as he slumped wearily in the chair behind his desk. "I'm not a good loser, so I'm not in the happiest mood right now."

He was greeted by about a dozen autograph-seeking youngsters and dozens of media representatives when he arrived at Yankee Stadium. He went around the clubhouse shaking hands with the players, hugging center fielder Mickey Rivers, and trading good-natured obscenities with catcher Thurman Munson. "I'm the same Billy Martin," he said, brushing off comments by Steinbrenner that he was a different person from the haggard, uptight Martin of a year ago, that he had changed and matured. "I'll still be me. Maybe he sees something I don't see."

And it was a tough loss, especially when Toronto rookie Joe Cannon climbed the right field wall to haul in Graig Nettles' bid for a game-winning two-run homer — Nettles reached the seats with a two-run shot in the third inning — after Thurman Munson opened the ninth with a single.

Martin was pleased with the Yankees' 12-hit attack against winner Phil Huffman and reliever Tom Buskey — including Nettles' homer and four doubles — the way they ran the bases and the pitching of John, despite a yield of 10 hits, six walks and two wild pitches.

didn't have time to brief regular coach Mike Ferraro on the new set of signals. The fans cheered as he trotted out there in the ninth after inning.

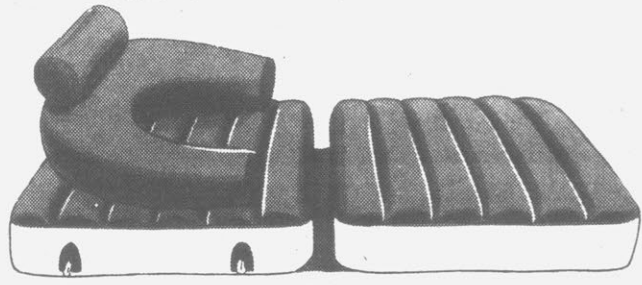

Harvey Hendrick hit 11 homers for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1928, the most ever for a Dodger third baseman in Brooklyn.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 7 through June 13.

HOUSE
PAY RAISE — By a vote of 186 for and 232 against, the House defeated a bill (HR 4390) providing $953 million for congressional operations during the next fiscal year. Essentially, this was a vote to reject a 5.5 percent pay raise proposed this year for congressmen and 15,000 other federal officials. There was no direct vote on the raise because it's supporters used parliamentary tactics to avert one. The bill will return to the House floor, most likely without the pay-raise provisions.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., a pay raise supporter, said: "Since 1969, the raises Congress has begrudgingly allowed itself have lagged at least 14 per cent behind the increases in the cost of living. Do we not belittle ourselves and our institution if we perpetuate and aggravate that disparity?"

Rep. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, an opponent, said: "The rate of inflation is one reason to give more emphasis to not having a pay raise for Members of Congress.... It just is not going to set a very good example for the public if we are not willing to bite the bullet here and now."

Virtually all members voting "yea" supported the bill and thus the pay raise.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Richardson Preyer, D-6, and Charles Rose, D-7, voted "yea." Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, W.C. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."

SCHOOL PRAYER — The House adopted, 255 for and 122 against, a legislative amendment in favor of prayer in public schools. The measure seeks to counter the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that school prayers violate the constitutional separation of church and state. It was attached to a bill to establish a U.S. Department of Education. The bill (HR 2444) was headed for a final vote.

Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., the sponsor, said: "We are a people who pray, and prayer should be a part of school life so that it can be a more important part of each child's life."

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., an opponent, said: "Let us get on and decide whether we want to establish a Department of Education and leave the question of prayers in the public schools to the proper forum and to a more fitting occasion." Members voting "yea" favor prayer in public schools.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea." Preyer and Rose voted "nay."

Jones did not vote.
RIGHTS COMMISSION — By a vote of 130 for and 168 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut the budget of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. The amendment sought to lower the agency budget in fiscal 1980 from the $14 million figure approved by the Judiciary Committee to the $11.37 million level requested by the Administration.

The commission was set up 21 years ago to monitor and advise Congress on race discrimination. Its jurisdiction recently was expanded to cover discrimination against the aged and handicapped.

Rep. James Sensenbrenner, R-Wisc., the sponsor, said the commission's budget "has almost doubled" since 1973, and that "this bill should be amended downward to reflect the austere times we are living in."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., an opponent, said the amendment "is a signal of retreat...to black Americans, to brown Americans, to the aged, to the handicapped...."

Members voting "yea" wanted to cut the U.S. Civil Rights Commission budget.

Fountain and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner and Guderger did not vote.

SENATE

RHODESIA — The Senate voted to resume U.S. trade with Zimbabwe-Rhodesia. This happened on a vote (52 for and 41 against) to kill language that would have enabled President Carter to continue the existing embargo until at least Dec. 1. The vote came during debate on a defense bill (S 428) later passed and sent to the House.

The bill would, in part, soon end the U.S. economic boycott. The termination language would supplant previous congressional and presidential actions on Rhodesian trade.

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., a supporter of resuming trade, said the Senate should "not hesitate in lifting the sanctions out of fear or nervousness about what other black African nations will do. They may say one thing in public but they say something entirely different in private."

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., said: "If senators vote to lift the sanctions, they are going to hand black Africa over to the Soviets."

Senators voting "yea" want the U.S. to stop using a trade embargo to penalize the Zimbabwe-Rhodesia government.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

SNAIL DARTER — The Senate declined, 43 for and 52 against, to exempt the Tellico Dam in Tennessee from the Endangered Species Act. Because it is said the dam would destroy the habitat of the snail darter, a threatened species, its well-advanced construction is blocked by the act. The vote came during consideration of a bill (S 1143) extending the act for three years.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., sponsor of the exemption move, said: "The dam was begun in 1967, six years before the Endangered Species Act became law. The snail darter species...was not discovered in the Little Tennessee River until 1975, eight years after the project had begun."

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, an opponent, said Congress should allow applications for exemption to be considered by a special executive branch committee set up last year for that purpose.

Senators voting "yea" want construction of the Tellico Dam completed.

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now likely to feel impelled to spend more money than you can afford but it would be wise not to do so. Follow the advice of one who understands finances very well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more practical and stop spending money foolishly or you will regret it later. Show more consideration for others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take steps to improve your appearance before attending an important social event later in the day. Be poised.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Consult an expert in your line of endeavor before going ahead with a plan you have in mind. Know where you are headed.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can come to a better understanding with family members at this time. Don't neglect to pay your bills on time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to use orthodox methods if you want to get ahead faster in the business world. Take no risk with securities.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You may want to engage in new interests now but make sure you study them well. A new friend can be helpful to you now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Fine day for contacting good friends and good things can result. Know exactly where you stand with an associate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't try to resist ideas of associates with fixed ideas, but cater to them for best results. Take it easy tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to study a new project you have in mind. Listen to what a fellow worker has to say and gain the benefits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to spend too much money where pleasure is concerned at this time. Show more affection for your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study conditions not to your liking at home and do whatever you can to improve them. Take needed health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy at regular routines early in the day for best results. Use extreme care in motion and avoid possible mishap.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be most capable in activities of a practical nature, so direct the education along lines of banking and business for best results. The spiritual values should be taught early in life to insure a well-rounded life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Paris Taxi Drivers Survive In A Violent World

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — "Watch this," said the cab driver. She gave a low whistle, and from the floor beside her a Doberman pincher uncurled, leaped on the seat and terrified her passenger with a steady, menacing glare.

"With Dingo, I have nothing to fear," she said. "Don't take it personally, but if I said 'Shal!' he would tear you to pieces."

Not all Paris drivers feel that confident. Three have been killed in robberies in the past year, and when a 42-year-old woman driver was robbed and strangled in a Paris suburb earlier this month, Paris' 14,350 chauffeurs went on the war-path.

Claiming the police do nothing to protect them, they went on strike for seven hours, covered their roof lights in black as a symbol of mourning and formed a 1,000-taxi cortege for their slain colleague Elise Baradat.

Dingo's owner, one of 1,200 women driving cabs in Paris, trusts her dog so completely that she plies the toughest streets of Paris at 2 a.m. The law forbids cabbies to carry clubs, let alone firearms, in their vehicles. So attack dogs have become the most favored defense.

A New York cabbie might envy his Paris counterpart, since violence here is nowhere near the U.S. level. Since 1946, 36 drivers have been killed — a comparatively low rate.

But the cabbies say attacks are on the increase. There were three in the Paris area in one recent week. In one, a driver was slashed repeatedly while fending off an assault by a 16-year-old schoolboy.

Many cab drivers would like an armor-plated glass partition between themselves and the passenger, as in London and New York. But the average Paris cab, a small European car, is too cramped.

"If I put a partition in here you'd have to leave your legs outside," says one driver. He carries a corrugated iron bar under his seat for self-defense. "By law I'm not allowed to have this. But if the police can't protect me, I'll do it myself."

Drivers say they are not even allowed to carry a wrench or screwdriver in their glove compartment unless it is in a padded pouch.

Nor is there any system for safeguarding money. The driver spends up to 10 hours on a shift, and when he knocks off, his pockets are stuffed with hundreds of francs.

"The worst thing you can do is tell a suspicious looking customer you can't take him because you've finished your shift," says one cabbie. "That way he knows you're loaded with money. It's an invitation to robbery."

Some cab drivers have experimented with warning lights on their roofs that flash in emergencies. But too often, attacks occur on deserted suburban streets, where no one is about to answer the call.

One company is installing a radio linkup which, when activated by a pedal beside the accelerator, summons other cabbies to the scene.

The drivers say police should set up control points at each of Paris' dozens of exits and note the identity of any late-night passenger heading for the suburbs.

ECU News Bureau
Opportunities for advanced study, research and performance have been awarded several members of the East Carolina University faculty this summer.

The National Endowment for the Humanities will sponsor Dr. Philip Adler of the history faculty in a term of study at the University of California at San Diego.

Alder is one of several participants selected for a special seminar on radical political and social movements of the 19th and 20th centuries.

Dr. Edgar Heckel of the chemistry faculty has been awarded a visiting research professorship at the Hahn-Meitner Institute for Nuclear Research in Berlin, Germany.

He will collaborate with other researchers in an investigation of the flash photolysis of sensitizers which initiate the polymerization of monomers.

Two members of the ECU music faculty have been invited to participate in summer programs. James Forger will perform at the World Saxophone Congress at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., accompanied by ECU faculty pianist Donna Coleman.

Their program will include two world premieres of saxophone compositions, works by John Lennon of the University of Tennessee and Alan Leichtling of ECU.

Forger will also be guest lecturer and recitalist at Ithaca College, N.Y., and participate in a seminar with Laurence Teal of the University of Michigan and Steven Mauk of the Ithaca campus.

David Hawkins, an oboist, will be a visiting faculty member at Washington State University, Pullman, Wash. He will conduct an extended workshop on oboe performance and appear as oboist with the Washington State Faculty Woodwind Quintet.

JC Trailer In Readiness

The Greenville Jaycees now have a big concession trailer in readiness for summer use in helping to raise funds for Jaycee projects, according to Don Fleming, vice-president of the Jaycee Ways and Means Committee.

"The trailer is probably the most completely equipped of its type in the area," Fleming said. It will offer a big variety of refreshments including cotton candy, candied apples, pop corn, slushies and fountain drinks, hot dogs and coffee."

Fleming added that the concession trailer, recently refurbished and repainted, is a converted mobile home unit that is 20 feet long. "We purchased it from a carnival group," he said.

The first public appearance of the concession trailer is scheduled for the fourth of July celebration in the Town Common area.

"In addition to our use of the trailer," Fleming stated, "we plan to make it available to other clubs in the area who have a need for it."

Fleming added that it is hoped the sales generated "will help the Jaycees in carrying out fund raising for projects that we are undertaking through this and other fund raising means."

LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER — Luther Jacobson, 35, is the Coast Guard keeper of the Hillsboro (Fla.) Inlet lighthouse, 15 miles North of Port Everglades. It was built in 1906. Jacobson who lives with his wife at the base of the lighthouse, said if the Coast Guard stops operating the lighthouse it will become a National Monument which will keep bulldozers from coming in and putting up a high rise. OSU Back To The Grassroots

By MICHAEL B. LAFFERTY
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's back to the grass roots at Ohio State University where workmen are completing a $50,000 underground laboratory that scientists will use to watch grass grow.

"The most important part of the plant is the root and that's the part we know least about," said OSU agronomist Dr. Keith J. Kernock, who will be in charge of the lab. "Scientists only have a general idea now when and how much to fertilize."

Kernock said the lab, called a rhizotron, will be used to learn how much cold, heat, fertilizer, water, mowing and other practices make grass thrive.

The lab, which opens early next month, is Kernock's brainchild. He said its proper name is a rhizotron-lysimeter and it is perhaps the only one of its kind in the world because the lab is equipped to accurately measure how much water is being utilized by the plants.

Despite a plethora of pamphlets, gardening books and video advice on how to treat your lawn, Kernock said there is relatively little exact information about how turf grass develops, especially the roots.

Kernock said more detailed growth information is needed by golf course managers and groundskeepers, as well as by a few fanatical homeowners who are all part of Ohio's $300 million turf grass industry.

Kernock says $15 billion is spent on lawns each year in the United States.

He said watering and fertilization can be made to work better by knowing when and how much to put on.

The rhizotron is a space-age name, but the idea is simple. Scientists walk underground into a long hallway in the lab and observe the roots of grass growing on the surface in 30 glass-fronted compartments. The lab has time-lapse microscopic photography equipment. On the surface is a complete meteorological station used to keep tabs on wind speed, direction, rainfall, humidity and other weather factors.

Kernock said the lab will help homeowners. He said some gardeners overwater their lawns and others overfertilize, especially in August when there isn't enough rainfall to support the extensive leaf growth the fertilization stimulates.

Kernock's lawn fertilization tips: apply nitrogen to your lawn in June and at the end of August at the rate of about three quarters of a pound per 1,000 square feet. Then apply 1½ pounds in October and another 1½ pounds next spring.

Two Move Up In Ass'n Roles

ECU News Bureau
Two members of the East Carolina University faculty recently assumed leadership roles in professional organizations.

Dr. Jerry Tester of the industrial and technical education faculty was voted president-elect of the N.C. Industrial Arts Association at the NCIAA annual convention in Winston-Salem.

The association's membership comprises teacher educators, public school teachers and industry representatives.

Dr. John Eatman of the ECU School of Business was appointed associate editor for computer applications for the "Operations Management Newsletter."

The newsletter, published five times yearly, serves as a source of current information in the general area of operations management for industry leaders and educators.

Fleet Champions

Three area men have been named Fleet Champions in the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association's 40th annual State Truck Rodeo held in Wilson recently.

Hassell Ebron of Bethel is Central Soya fleet champion in the tank class.

Chester R. Dunn of Greenville is fleet champion in the five-axle van class.

Joseph M. Madica of Robersonville is fleet champion in the flat bed class.

All three have Robersonville as a terminal.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — LOVELY ROSES GIVE VIVID ACCENT TO TINY GARDEN.

Today's Cryptquip clue: W equals T

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:

2 ♥ 4 ♦ Pass Pass
4 ♥ Pass 5 ♥ Pass
6 ♥ Pass 5 ♠ Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠.

The time for pessimism is when you are declaring a contract that appears to be a cinch. That is when precautionary measures should be taken to protect against the whims of distribution.

While South's opening bid might be a whit light in terms of high card count, he certainly cannot be faulted for opening with a demand bid on a hand that contains only two or three losers. West tried to muddy the waters with preemptive action—even if he were doubled, the loss could not be severe, and his tactic would make it more difficult for the opponents to reach their best spot. South chose to go for game rather than double for penalties, and now North made the key bid by raising to five hearts on the strength of his good trump support and singleton in the opponents' suit. South, of course, bid the slam cheerfully. West led the king of clubs, ruffed by declarer. A careless declarer would have gone down in short order. He would lay down the ace of diamonds, preparing to ruff diamonds in dummy. Unfortunately, East would ruff and return a trump, and declarer, who has three diamond losers to take care of, would be left with only two trumps in dummy.

This declarer, however, recalled that West had preempted with four diamonds, and considered it well within the realm of possibility that West might have an eight-card suit for that action. He therefore abandoned the idea of trying to make all the tricks and instead elected to make sure of twelve tricks. At trick two, declarer led the deuce of diamonds!

That gave up a diamond trick but secured the contract. There was nothing the defenders could do to prevent declarer from ruffing his two other losing diamonds in dummy. When that task was completed, declarer drew trumps and was left with nothing but winners in his hand.

Hats off to South for finding an unusual safety play which, we venture, would have escaped the notice of many experienced players.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of DOUBLES for penalties and for takeout. Laws Avoided By 'Talk Parlor'

By PATRICK BRESLIN
Associated Press Writer
DOVER, Del. (AP) — On a stretch of U.S. 13 south of here, nestled between a motorcycle shop and a fast-food stand, sits a small gray house where women take off their clothes and talk to men.

At least, that's how this "conversation parlor" explains its business. Similar establishments have sprung up across the country as a way around laws limiting massage parlors and prostitution.

Delaware's law, which flatly prohibits a massage by a person of the opposite sex except by such persons as doctors, chiropractors or barbers, is one of the nation's toughest.

But Delaware is by no means unique. Consider what happened last April in Fairfax County, Va., when a new law was adopted requiring massage parlor operators to have a $2,100 annual license.

"The massage parlors closed," said Dennis Sobin, editor of The Adult Business Report, a Washington monthly newsletter. "But in their place, and curiously enough with the same owners and same personnel, they had relaxation centers, or counseling centers, or escort counseling."

Sobin said his clipping service shows there are 26 "nude modeling studios" in Houston, a "VIP Escort Service" in Greensboro, N.C., and a "Paradise Relaxation Center" in Richmond, Va.

In Washington, he said, he watched the "Adam and Eve Massage Parlor" change its name to "Adam and Eve Modeling Studio."

"It's the cheapest way," Sobin explained. "I'd do it if I were in business. Why fight City Hall?"

One young patron leaving the conversation parlor here — who asked not to be identified — left no doubt as to its business.

"It's just a whorehouse," he said. "I paid 40 bucks for a conversation with a nude woman, and the first thing she said was, 'For $30 I'll kiss you, and for $40 I'll make love with you.'"

He said the woman explained that the initial $40 goes to the "house," and she makes all her money on prostitution. The $30 "kiss," he said, was slang for oral sex.

"There was no conversation at all," he said.

Sgt. Richard Strycharz, head of the State Police vice squad, was asked about the conversation parlor and said, "All they did was change their name to something else."

However, authorities admitted to difficulties in moving against conversation parlors and similar establishments.

Deputy Delaware Attorney

General Timothy Barron said there is nothing illegal about selling nude conversations: "It just falls under the protections guaranteed under the First Amendment of the Constitution pertaining to the freedoms of speech, and you cannot proscribe speech, whether or not it pertains in the nude."

And Strycharz added: "There's no law saying that a woman cannot talk to you either topless or completely nude. It can be described as an art form, which is protected by the First Amendment."

Before Delaware's law took effect, there were about eight massage parlors in the state, said Susan E. Wheeler of the Commission on Massage Establishments and Adult Book Stores. There are no massage parlors now, but there are about eight conversation or relaxation studios, she said.

All of those establishments were in the populous northern section of this small state. But last month "First Choice" became the first conversation parlor in the more rural southern area, opening just outside the state capital of Dover.

A reporter who telephoned First Choice was told by a woman who answered: "Dover has nothing. It's really boring here. Most people who come here are lonely ... I think men need a place for relaxation." Most neighbors and businessmen around First Choice were not sure what happens inside and did not know it involved nude sessions.

"The title 'conversation house' has thrown people off the track, and they really don't know what it is," said Dennis Deakins, who lives in a housing development near the business. However, Walter Dacheux, night manager of a nearby restaurant, said: "I can't imagine all they do is talk to you."

So far, there has been no organized protest against First Choice, noted neighbor Sallie Betts, adding: "It's a joke right now."

But her husband, Jim, said, "It's blatant enough that I think the authorities should have checked it by now."

Sgt. Strycharz would not comment on whether State Police are watching First Choice, but he added: "The question is, who would pay X amount of dollars to talk to a woman in the nude, you know? I can't see anyone paying $40 to have the presence of a nude woman to talk to me, and I'm not sure that she could solve my problem."

Sociologist Outlook Up

ECU News Bureau
A generally favorable employment trend for sociology graduates is reported in an article by two members of the East Carolina University sociology faculty.

Dr. John Maiolo and Christa Reiser discuss the findings of their recent survey of the employment of sociologists in North Carolina private enterprise in the current issue of "Southern Sociologist".

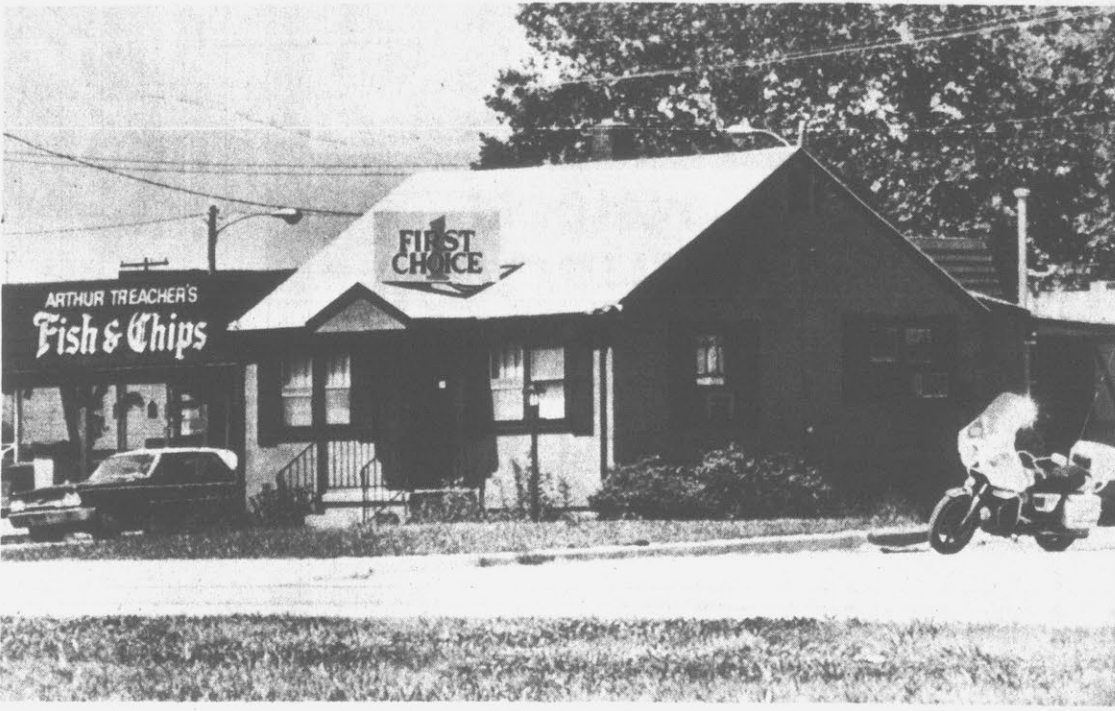

They found that private industry was hiring undergraduate sociology majors in personnel-related jobs, production and sales/marketing.

In addition, the private industries surveyed in the Maiolo-Reiser study showed interest in applicants with the master's degree in sociology.

Of the 179 firms sampled, each with 100 or more employees, nearly seven percent more than those currently employing sociologists saw a future need for students with training in sociology.

Dental Needs Begin Early

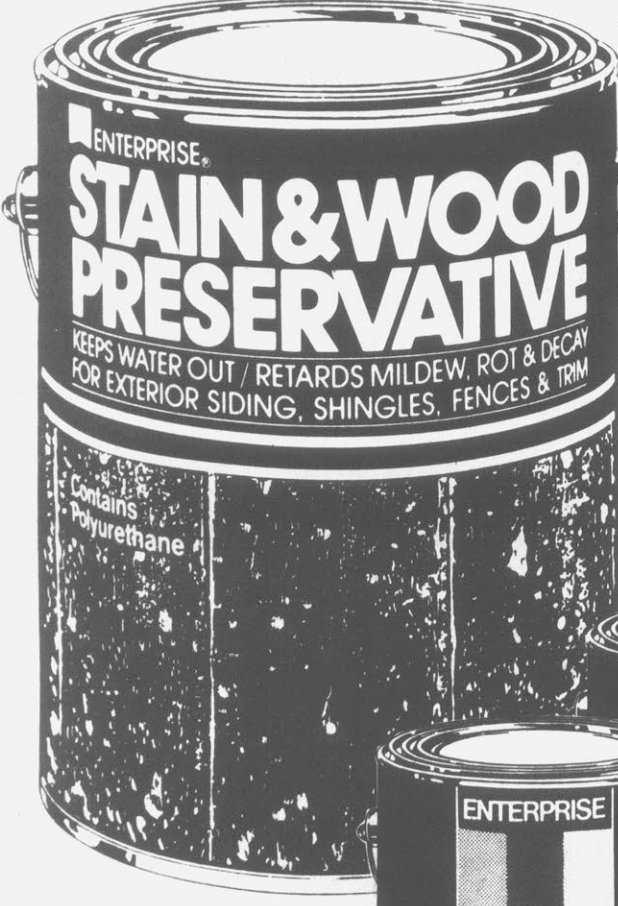

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Good dental care should start in infancy, says a publication of the National Institute of Dental Research. "Good Teeth for You and Baby" recommends cleaning the first tooth when it appears, wiping it with a clean wash cloth or gauze pad to prevent decay and gum disease. As more teeth emerge, they should be brushed gently and daily with a soft brush, the publication says. It recommends starting children off with their own soft brush and fluoride toothpaste when they are about 2½ years old and all their baby teeth are in.

FIRST CHOICE — The first "conversation parlor" in rural Delaware, "First Choice", sits among fast food restaurants and gas stations on a dual highway that passes in front of residential development near Dover, the capital city. (AP Laserphoto)

Pre-Register LCC Students

KINSTON — Pre-registration has already begun for the fall quarter at Lenoir Community College, according to Mrs. Joan Callaway, director of admissions and testing.

Pre-registration for the quarter, which will begin September 5, will be held through August 17. Day students may register from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. Night students may pre-register at the Evening Office in the Main Building from 3-5 p.m. and from 6-9 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Persons seeking financial aid are reminded that they must pre-register for the fall quarter by July 13 if they want to have their funds processed and ready for use by Sept. 5.

Interested persons should contact Mrs. Callaway for dates of placement testing as soon as possible by calling 527-6223, extension 245.

Cavett Brings TV Great Baseball Stories

Hear Radio As It Used To Be

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — You can join Eddy Arnold on the radio Sunday night, in a sense, "make the world go away."

Arnold, the smooth singer known for songs like "Make the World Go Away," is co-host of an NBC Radio Network show that sets aside stars of today's world while resurrecting some of the best-loved entertainers of old radio.

The show's producers went into the archives to get excerpts of radio shows by Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Mary Martin, Jimmy Durante, Groucho Marx and others. Arnold and veteran announcer Ed Herlihy narrate the hour-long show around the tapes.

"The show will appeal to people who remember this kind of thing," Arnold said in an interview. "To people who have never heard it, they will listen to hear what radio was really like."

"People are going to perk up and say, 'Is that the way they did it?'"

During the show, Crosby sings "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" and joins the Andrews Sisters in "Don't Fence Me In." He also sings with Miss Martin and later joins Hope in a comedy routine.

Others on the show include Nelson Eddy, Charles Boyer, Bob Burns, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. Al Jolson, Dinah Shore, Spike Jones, Nat King Cole, Victor Borge and Larry Adler.

"I remember all those people," Arnold said. "I loved hearing the jokes and that kind of thing. I thought the show was great."

Arnold does not sing on the show, which will be broadcast at various times Sunday night, depending on the station carrying it.

Now 61, he still is an active performer, doing concerts and singing with symphony orchestras. And he still puts out records, but nothing as successful as his past hits like "Cattle Call," "Bouquet of Roses" and "Any Time."

Pop music, as a whole, he likes.

"I like some of the rock — the light rock," he said. "I like Neil Diamond, Barry Manilow, John Denver, that kind of thing."

He cited "You Needed Me" by Anne Murray as one of his favorite recent songs.

"As far as rock concerts, I don't go. It doesn't touch me. I want to hear the melody and the words. It's so loud it hurts my ears."

He likes disco a little better. "It's better than rock — more contagious. At least I can hear the melody. I like the beat and everything. People have fun with their dancing and people need to have fun and enjoy being together."

TV News For Deaf

ECU News Bureau
A regular television news broadcast for deaf viewers is being produced with the aid of several staff members of the East Carolina University Program for Hearing-Impaired Students.

Manual interpreters from ECU are interpreting the 7:25 a.m. news broadcast over WNCT-TV (Channel 9) each weekday morning.

The signed news program was begun as a cooperative project during May, in recognition of National Speech and Hearing Month, said Micheal Ernest, director of the ECU program.

"WNCT mailed direct notices to many deaf persons in eastern North Carolina, alerting them that the signed news broadcast would be offered," Ernest commented. "Audience response was very favorable."

Because the WNCT management wished to fulfill a long-standing need in the area and because the initial response was receptive among members of the deaf community, the station and Ernest's staff decided to continue interpreting the morning news on a permanent basis.

Interpreters translate the spoken newscast into American Sign Language (Amesland), using a combination of manual interpretation and finger spelling.

ENVOY TO MOSCOW
TOKYO (AP) — Chinese Vice Premier Li Xiannian says his government will send a vice foreign minister to Moscow to discuss improvement of Chinese-Soviet relations, Japan's Kyodo news service reports from Peking.

Opened Door In Country Music

THE FIRST — Historians have determined that Roba Stanley Baldwin was the first female to record a country music song...paving the way for future recording stars like Loretta Lynn and Dolly Parton. Mrs. Baldwin, 71, holds one of her early recordings. (AP Laserphoto)

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Roba Stanley Baldwin, recently assigned a place in history as the first female soloist to cut a country music record, now shares a problem with millions of less celebrated people.

"I can't carry a tune too well," she confessed.

Historians recently discovered that her 1924 recording of "Devilish Mary" was the first recorded country music solo by a female.

"It's all very thrilling," the chipper Mrs. Baldwin, 71, said in a telephone interview from her home in Gainesville, Fla. "I just can't believe all this is happening to me. I'm still floating on clouds."

As teen-age Roba Stanley, she recorded "Devilish Mary" in Atlanta, as well as eight other songs, before marrying a year later and giving up music to concentrate on her family.

"I was too young to realize what this was all about," she recalled. "But I was thrilled about it. I can remember it like it was yesterday. We sat in a big house and there was a big room like a barn. The record was put down on a big piece of wax."

She played the guitar as a youngster, but that, too, took a backseat to taking care of her husband and raising three children.

"I tried to play not too long ago, but my fingers just wouldn't let me," said Mrs. Baldwin, who spent most of her adult life in Miami.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Cavett, he of the nimble wit, stands before the cameras with a baseball glove on his left hand.

"PBS is not known as the sports network," he says, "so it's possible that you may not be familiar with this object that I have in my hand..."

It was a gentle jab, a kindly elbow to the ribs of public TV for its reputation (though fading) as being narrow, inaccessible and elitist.

Actually, PBS can have fun, as Cavett often proves on his nightly "Dick Cavett Show" on PBS. He proves it again this week when three nights (Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday) are dedicated to baseball.

Cavett's panel of guests is, as he put it, "a sort of baseball Olympus" — Mickey Mantle, Leo ("The Lip") Durocher, Henry Aaron and retired umpire Tom Gorman.

The spinning of yarns by baseball old-timers is one of America's richest entertainments, whether it occurs on a splintery bench in some backwater ballyard or on the pages of a ghost-written, autobiographical tome filled with outrageous, colorful lies.

But this particular bit of baseball repartee is especially rewarding. Cavett, the skinny intellectual, surrounded by these baseball men, elitists themselves in a world of flying spikes and cuss words and tobacco juice.

It is Cavett's show, but it seems more like a gallery tour; Mantle, Aaron, Durocher and Gorman are the guides, Cavett the tourist.

Such as:
Durocher telling of his days with the Gashouse Gang (St. Louis Cardinals, 1934-37) and the time Dizzy Dean went into the Chicago Cubs' clubhouse and told the Cubbies how he intended to pitch them that afternoon, an outrageous display of self-confidence.

"Of course," says Mantle, "nobody could hit Diz."

Or the famous shin-kicking match between Durocher and former umpire Jocko Conlan, back when Durocher was coaching the Los Angeles Dodgers. Durocher tells that when he would argue with umpires, he'd try to maneuver them over to the baselines, which were made of lye.

Durocher did that so he could "kick the lye with my shoe on their pants. If they don't get it off, it'll burn a hole in there." On this particular night, Durocher continues, he missed the baseline and kicked Conlan in the shin.

"And he kicked me ... and I kicked him, and he kicked me. I finally realized, I'm getting the worst of it. He's got shin guards on."

It's a wonderful tour, with stops at some of the greatest baseball stories ever made. I recommend it to those who don't ordinarily watch PBS as well as to those who don't ordinarily care about baseball.

This panel ought to win fans for both institutions.

Friday Night Clarinet Recital

Laurie Nicholson, a senior clarinet student in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will perform in recital at 8:15 p.m. Friday, June 22 in the Fletcher Recital Hall.

Featured in her program will be Aaron Copland's "Concerto for Clarinet" and William Bergsma's "Illegible Canons For Clarinet and Percussion."

Ms. Nicholson will be accompanied by Alisia Wetherington and assisted in the Bergsma work by percussionist Jack Stamp. The public is invited to attend and the concert is free.

Performers Cancel Show

CHARLOTTE — Peaches and Herb, scheduled to perform at Carowinds on Wednesday and Thursday, July 4 and 5, have cancelled.

England Dan and John Ford Coley will perform on Thursday, July 5. Another entertainment will be booked for Wednesday, July 4 and will be announced at a later date.

WAYS CENTER-CUT CHUCK ROASTS

Only the most misunderstood and promotioned cut of beef in the meatcase is the chuck roast... the ideal Sunday dinner family favorite! There's blade, round-bone chuck... English cut... arm pot roast... and many more. Your best bet is to trust your meat man... you're a Kroger shopper, you always can! Because chuck roasts are always center cut-with less bone, more taste than first cut and of course better textured, naturally tender and flavorful. Kroger chuck roasts are always cut right-but now you know why they're always a real bargain!

For price . . . for value,
Kroger means better meat.

In the Kroger Sav-On garden most of our fresh fruits and vegetables are in bulk displays as opposed to pre-packaged, as many stores have. You can choose one green pepper or 5, one lemon or a dozen, and YOU pick and choose the one you want. Then take your choice to the "Gardener" for weighing and pricing. Your Kroger Sav-On "Gardener" will be pleased to answer your questions about any of the hundreds of fresh fruits and vegetables we have here for you.
