

OFFICE FURNITURE.

Artistic Furniture adds much to the beauty of a doctor's office, as well as adds much to the doctor's comfort, and helps him to do better work. Indestructible Metal Furniture is both artistic and practical. It is also light, cleanly and cheap.

These pieces are of special design as suggested by Dr. Edwin Pynchon, Professor of Rhino-Laryngology and Otology.

Fig. 1. Illustrates the Chair for the Patient. It has an extra wide back and gives a range of elevation from 19 inches at low point, to 26 inches at high point, being thus suitable for the smallest child or the largest adult. The back is made absolutely vertical, so as to compel the patient to remain within easy reaching distance. In ear work, by swinging the patient about, either ear can be treated with equal facility.

Fig. 2. Illustrates the Stool for the Operator. The Stool has the same base as the chair, though the seat is smaller, only 12 inches in diameter. In the stool the qualification of high elevation is equally as valuable as in case of the chair, though, while the chair is heightened in direct ratio to the diminution in size of the patient, with the stool the reverse is true, and its greatest height is required with the tallest and longest legged patient, so that the operator can sit, if necessary, over the knees of the patient, and can thus at all times keep within easy reach of the patient's head. As the stool has no back, the operator, so to speak, mounts and dismounts from behind.

Fig. 3. Illustrates the Cuspidor Holder. This device will be found to be a cheap and practical substitute for a Fountain Cuspidor, as it holds the spittoon at a proper height for the convenient use by the patient. It is also a valuable article of furniture in HOSPITAL WARDS AND SICK CHAMBERS.
