

A detailed black and white illustration of a long, slender, curved object, possibly a medical instrument or a biological specimen. The object has a bulbous, rounded base at the bottom, which tapers into a long, thin, curved shaft. The shaft is slightly irregular in texture, with some small dark spots or indentations. The tip of the object is very thin and curves upwards and to the left. The overall shape is reminiscent of a long, curved needle or a biological structure like a nematode.
