College Orchestra, Glee Club Feature Concert Here Sunday

Dr. Cuthbert Directs Music Department Show In Theatre On Campus

The East Carolina orchestra, a community organization, and the Varsity Glee Club of East Carolina College will be presented in concert, Sunday afternoon, at 4:00 in the College theatre on the campus.

Walter Noona, junior music major from Norfolk, Va., will be piano soloist with the orchestra as it presents Beethoven's Second Piano Concerto. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the college music department, is conductor of both groups appearing on the program. Jack Willford of Greensboro will be accompanist for several selections on the program.

Organizing Fraternity

A chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational fraternity, is being organized at East Carolina college. In order to be eligible for this fraternity you must be a major in teacher training. Only Juniors and seniors with an average of 2 plus who have demonstrated leadership qualifications in college activities can be considered for membership.

If you are interested in becoming a charter member of the East Carolina college chapter, see Dr. Eva Williamson in Graham 101 or Miss Hazel Clark in Wilson hall office by December 3, 1952.

Childhood Education Members Convene Here Over Week End

Members of the Association for Childhood Education in the northwestern counties of North Carolina met at East Carolina college Saturday, November 15, to participate in a series of discussions and class demonstrations based on the theme "Emotional Growth through Rhythms, Poetry and Dramatic Play."

Mrs. Myrtle Clark of Greenville, regional president, presided during a morning program and business session. Guests were welcomed by Frances Wall, principal of the Training school at East Carolina, and were led in a devotional service by members of the Rocky Mount branch of the ACE.

Sixth Graders Perform Class demonstrations illustrating various teaching procedures were presented by pupils in the sixth grade at the Training school, of which Mrs. Clark is teacher. Mrs. Sue Rouse of Greenville introduced the young participants and the directors of the demonstrations.

Ralph Rives of Enfield, graduate student at East Carolina, directed a play, "Mrs. Magician Makes a Mistake," which was presented by the grade-school children. Choral reading of poetry was led by Dr. Elizabeth Litterback of the college English department, and rhythms were demonstrated by the children under the leadership of Beatrice Chauncey, supervisor of music in the Training school. After the demonstrations, an evaluation of the teaching procedures which they illustrated was made in a general discussion among those present.

Plans Bulletin Plans for the spring edition of the state ACE bulletin, which will be prepared by the East Carolina college student branch of the organization, were made at a business meeting. Consultants who assisted in the discussion included Dr. Eva William-

Free Movies!

The free movies to be shown in Austin auditorium at 7 p.m. during the winter quarter are as follows: December 6—"The Harlem Globetrotters," Saturday night; December 12—"The Wild North," Friday night; December 18—"Calling Bulldog Drummond," Thursday night; January 10—"Singing in the Rain," Saturday night; January 17—"Lone Star," Saturday night; January 24—"Flying Leathernecks," Saturday night; January 29—"Born to be Bad," Thursday night; February 6—"My Forbidden Past," Friday night.

Wesley Singers Elect Officers At Weekly Meet

The Wesley choir, an organization made up of college students and sponsored by the Wesley foundation, recently elected officers at their regular weekly meeting.

The choir is directed by Don Roebuck, of Stokes, a senior in the music department who has been an active member of the Wesley foundation during his college career. Roebuck is also chairman of the Commission on Music in the Wesley foundation and vice president of the organization.

Other officers of the Wesley choir are: vice president, Victor Van Hook of Nashville; secretary-treasurer, Sue Daniels, of Jacksonville; business manager, Hugh Spencer, of Englehard.

The choir is open to all students interested in church music. Regular meetings are held on Monday evenings at 6:30 in the Wright building, at which time rehearsals are held. The choir sings every Sunday at evening worship in Jarvis Memorial Methodist church and recently participated in a special "Service of Worship Through Music" led by Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, head of the music department at East Carolina.

Eaton Attends Meeting Of Geological Society Of America In Boston

Dr. Theodore H. Eaton, faculty member of the department of science at East Carolina college, attended last week end in Boston, Mass., the annual meeting of the Geological Society of America and the Society of Vertebrate Paleontology. He participated in the program by giving a discussion of some of his work in the field of paleontology.

Dr. Eaton has been a member of the college faculty since 1950. Last year his book, "Comparative Anatomy of the Vertebrates," published by Harper and Brothers, was chosen by the American Institute of Graphic Arts as one of the fifty best textbooks of the year. The work includes more than 300 illustrations, mostly line drawings by the author. He has also contributed a number of articles to scientific periodicals.

Local Dramateers Rehearsing Play 'Charley's Aunt'

Members of the Teachers playhouse are rehearsing for a production of the famous farce "Charley's Aunt" by Brandon Thomas. Those who have seen the cast practicing indicate that work on the sprightly and amusing play is progressing satisfactorily.

"Charley's Aunt" will be given in three performances in the College theatre. Nights when students are expected to attend are Wednesday and Thursday, December 10 and 11. A performance for the public will be held Friday, December 12.

John B. King, freshman from Clinton, has the role of Charley. Carolyn Clapp of Greenville takes the part of the Aunt. Percy Wilkins of Benson will play Charley's friend Jack Chesney. Billye Cammady of Clarendon and Ann McCrary of Durham are cast as the "girl friends" of Charley and Jack.

Sam Bundy Addresses Circle K Club Members 'Ladies Night' Meet

"Ladies Night" was observed by members of the Circle K club at East Carolina Tuesday night as club members and their dates attended a banquet at the Greenville Country club.

Speaker for the evening was Kiwanian Sam Bundy, principal of the Farmville city schools, who kept the group in a constant uproar throughout his talk. The topic of Mr. Bundy's talk was centered around the word "if."

Guests for the supper were Greenville Kiwanians John Barnhill and Milo Smith and their wives. Club President Al Harrington also recognized Dr. John Reynolds, advisor, and his wife.

Immediately following the feeding, the group cleared off the Country club floors and held a dance.

Religious Emphasis Week Brings Stoner Here

James Lloyd Stoner, Director of the University Christian Mission of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States, will be on the campus during the observance of Religious Emphasis week January 18-25.

Mr. Stoner was here last Thursday, November 14, having conferences with the committee chairmen of Religious Emphasis week. The committee chairmen are members of the Inter-Religious council which sponsors the week.

Visits Many Campuses Mr. Stoner's work takes him to many campuses throughout the United States to confer with local committees and also serve as director of many of the Missions which are held annually. These Missions were inaugurated by the Department of Evangelism and the Commission on Christian Higher Education of the National Council of Churches and the United Student Christian council. The United Student Christian council coordinates the work of 14 student Christian groups, and the National Council of Churches serves 20 communities with a membership of 31,000,000 persons.

Mr. Stoner attended the public schools in Pennsylvania at Point Marion. He graduated from Bethany college, Bethany, West Va., in 1941 with a B.S. degree. From there he went to Yale university where he received his B.D. degree in 1944. He is an ordained minister of the Dis-

Thanksgiving Program

East Carolina President J.D. Messick will deliver the sermon at the annual Thanksgiving service Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the Austin auditorium.

Under the presidency of Waylon Upchurch, this program will be the first in a series of religious services sponsored by the Inter-Religious council at the college. As director of religious activities at the college, Dr. Robert Holt serves the council as advisor.

All students, faculty and townspeople are invited to participate in the evening of worship, which will include the singing of hymns with George Perry of the music department at the organ.

EC Students Hear Jenkins' Address On Road Safety

Eighteen people who completed a course in Teacher Preparation in Driver Education were awarded certificates Friday morning at East Carolina college. Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina made a brief talk on safety on the highways and presented the certificates.

The course was given Monday through Friday of this week under the sponsorship of the state department of Public Instruction and of Motor Vehicles and East Carolina college with the cooperation of the American Automobile association and the Carolina Motor club.

John Noe, advisor in Safety Education with the State Department of Public Instruction, conducted the 40-clock-hour course. Working with him was Steward Mead of Livingston, N. J., AAA course instructor.

Class members were largely teachers representing schools over a wide area in North Carolina. One came from Maryland, and another represented the Police Department in Burlington.

Those receiving certificates were Ray I. Alston, Apex; Clyde L. Andrews, Raleigh; Ben D. Bowles and W. Willie Bruner, Burlington; Carlton Fleetwood, St. Pauls; E. A. Gans and Mrs. Gans, Hendersonville; Herman H. Gurkin, Hertford; Edward J. Hayes, Huntersville; Jay M. Robinson, Concord; Thurston Little, Freeland; Elwood Mintz, Benson; Ben E. Perry, Edenton; Charles W. Porter, Wilson; Ralph W. Roper, Wilmington; Elam J. Supplee, Dickerson, Md.; Albert F. Wadford, Butler; and Floyd H. Wilson Jr., Concord.

Those enrolled expressed themselves as pleased with the work done at the college under Mr. Noe's direction.

College Science Club Sponsors Annual Sadie Hawkins Day Event

Phillips Releases Information For Winter Term Registration

Registration for the Winter quarter at East Carolina college will be held Monday, December 1, in Wright auditorium, according to Registrar Orval L. Phillips.

Permits to register may be obtained at the Registrar's office through Wednesday and fees may be paid at the Business office up until the same time. Dr. Phillips reminds students that the time necessary to complete registration will be considerably less for those who obtain permits and pay fees before registration day.

Clubs Of College Receive Invitation To Be In Parade

College organizations have been invited by the Greenville Merchants association to participate in the annual Santa Claus and Christmas parade Saturday, December 6, at 10 a.m. in Greenville.

B. D. Johnston, parade chairman, states, "In addition to the children with pets, on bicycles, in costumes, etc., we are anxious to have a large number of floats. We invite every school PTA, other school organizations, civic clubs, churches, fraternal orders, Girl and Boy scouts, TB association, Red Cross and all similar organizations of Pitt county and nearby towns, to participate in the parade, and enter a float."

Prizes will be offered for the best floats. First prize is $25; second, $15; and third, $10. Floats will be judged by numbers by out-of-town judges. Numbers may be obtained at the Merchants association office, second floor, City hall, either by coming by or by telephoning 3021 or 2432.

Robinson, Saied Politic

Bob Robinson, president of the East Carolina Student Government association, was elected president co-temporary of the senate of the North Carolina Student legislature in Raleigh yesterday afternoon, and Mitchell Saied, second vice president of the local SGA, was chosen by acclamation sergeant of the arms of the house of representatives.

There are 14 East Carolina student leaders in the capital city participating in the three-day meeting.

Phillips Releases Information For Winter Term Registration

Seniors, practice teachers and transfer students will register from 8 until 10 a.m.; juniors and sophomores from 9:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.; freshmen from 1:30 until 5 p.m. Graduate students will be permitted to register at any time during the day.

Steps to be followed on registration day are:

1. Those who have secured permits to register and have already paid fees should enter the Wright auditorium through the north door. It will not be necessary for these people to stand in the line of people waiting to pay fees.
2. Those who have not secured permits to register and who have not paid fees should enter Wright auditorium through the center door.
3. If application for 19 or 20 hours has been filed and approved secure the approved application from the registration table near the door in Wright.
4. Secure schedule cards from your advisor. New students may secure schedule cards from the registration table before seeing their advisors.
5. Have the instructor of each class sign schedule cards.
6. Go to check-out table.

Baptists Sponsor Sunrise Service Wednesday At 7

A Thanksgiving Sunrise service will be held on the lawn between Cotten and Flanagan buildings at 7 o'clock, Wednesday morning, November 26, for all students and faculty who would like to participate.

The program will afford an opportunity for those who have never attended a service of this type before. Group singing of seasonal hymns, a poem, "Thanksgiving is Something More Than Holidays and Praises," read by Percy Wilkins, a trumpet solo by Clyde Staughan and a vocal arrangement conducted by Ruth Little will constitute the body of the program.

Ann Carawan, devotional vice-president, is in charge of this service which is being sponsored by the Baptist Student union. This service will take the place of the Morning Prayer group which is usually held at 7:30 at the Baptist Student center Monday through Friday.

Fuller Discusses Japanese People In History Class

Impressions of the Japanese people and of Japan under American occupation were presented in a talk made by Lt. Col. Roger G. Fuller, professor of air science and tactics at East Carolina college, before a group of students Monday night.

Col. Fuller spoke to a class in History of the Far East taught by Dr. Lawrence F. Brewster at East Carolina. He drew his material from a recent tour of duty in Japan, and illustrated his remarks with color slides depicting the country and the life of the people.

Col. Fuller laid emphasis on the skills and the industriousness of the Japanese. He noted also the many expressions of gratitude to America for the assistance rendered by this country toward the postwar recovery of Japan.

Messick Participates In Evaluation Program

President John D. Messick of East Carolina college spent Monday through Thursday of this week in Nashville, Tenn., where he is participating in the work of an intervisitation committee which has the purpose of evaluating the standards of Peabody college.

Traditional Dogpatch Chase, Dance On Tap Tomorrow In Wright

The annual Sadie Hawkins day dance, sponsored by the East Carolina Science club, will be held tomorrow night at 8:15 in the Wright building.

Tickets for the dance are priced at 50 cents advance and 60 cents at the "Dogpatch" race will be held. The door.

Prior to the dance a traditional eligible males will line up and be given a "running start" in their attempt to elude their female pursuers. Should a member of the male species be overcome he is considered "captured" for the balance of the day and must attend the dance with the girl who caught him. The race will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m.

The idea for Sadie Hawkins day originated in the comic strip "L'il Abner" drawn by Al Capp. A Sadie Hawkins day is held in Dogpatch, the home of the Yokums, each year and the girls who catch the boys have the right to demand marriage.

The institution has become extremely popular on college campuses throughout the nation during the past several years and now the entire festival is reproduced by many students.

The Science club has taken this day as their project and has appointed the following people to committees connected with the celebration: advertisement, Lillian Haynes; decoration, Waylon Bass; booths, Claude McAllister and Pete Williams; entertainment, Oline Civilis; concession, Beth Estep; and door tickets, Peggy Fires.

Playhouse Group Gives Workshop Plays December 4

The Teachers playhouse will present two workshop productions on December 4, at 7 o'clock at the college theatre. The plays will be "A Sunny Morning," which will be student-directed by Clarence Mooring and "The Valiant," by student director Arthur Posey.

"A Sunny Morning," a modern Spanish play, is the best known of all the plays of the Quinteros. It concerns an aged couple who, years before, had been in love. It is a delightful mixture of sentiment and wit. Donna Laura is portrayed by Jacqueline Phalompin, Don Gorrado by Horace G. King, Petra by Dixie C. Grady, and Juanito by John D. Cannon.

"The Valiant" is the story of a middle-aged man who is being held prisoner for murder. For this crime he has no feeling of guilt. It relates the story of a man who feels completely justified in committing murder. At the last incident before the death penalty the prisoner is visited by a young girl, who believes him to be her long lost brother. The fact of whether a man who is condemned to die could possibly be her brother, creates an emotional dramatic climax in "The Valiant." The cast for the play is: the girl by Jo Ann Lee, the prisoner by Doug Mitchell, Father Dailey by Poe Mooring and the warden by Denny Posey.

Phi Sigma Pi Selects Eighteen New Members For Local Fraternity

Eighteen men students were voted into the Phi Sigma Pi fraternity on the basis of scholarship, leadership and service to the campus community.

They are: Charlie Huffman, "Sig" Haire, Paul Cameron, Roy Creech, Jack Britt, Tommie Lupton, Dwight Garrett, Percy Wilkins, Jim Danks, Walter Noona, Bobby Hodges, Jack Benzie, Waylon Bass, Everett Whitely, Eston Smith, Julian Vainwright, Jimmy Ellis and Jack Cutler.

These men will be brought into the club during the first week of December. "Trial day" will begin December 3 at 7 a.m. and the initiation will continue on through the following day with the beautiful ritual banquet highlighting the events.

James Lloyd Stoner

James Lloyd Stoner, Director of the University Christian Mission of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States, will be on the campus during the observance of Religious Emphasis week January 18-25.

Mr. Stoner was here last Thursday, November 14, having conferences with the committee chairmen of Religious Emphasis week. The committee chairmen are members of the Inter-Religious council which sponsors the week.

Visits Many Campuses Mr. Stoner's work takes him to many campuses throughout the United States to confer with local committees and also serve as director of many of the Missions which are held annually. These Missions were inaugurated by the Department of Evangelism and the Commission on Christian Higher Education of the National Council of Churches and the United Student Christian council. The United Student Christian council coordinates the work of 14 student Christian groups, and the National Council of Churches serves 20 communities with a membership of 31,000,000 persons.

Program Important

Mr. Stoner feels that the interdenominational program of the University Christian Mission is very important for strengthening the spiritual life of students and faculty members. "We are interested in helping students and faculty members discover the fullness of life which comes in knowing Jesus Christ," he says.

He feels that religion is a vital part of the educational process: "Education is more than the communication of knowledge or the cultivation of intellect. It should inspire and give a sense of values. It should teach one to live creatively and wholesomely. Education must help young people distinguish between what is first-rate and what is not. The student who emerges from college without a more complete view of the universe and a Christian philosophy which enables him to meet problems, disappointments and opportunities, is an 'educated dwarf.' The 'whole man' is one who understands the relevance of religion in all areas of personal and social living experience."

Associate Minister

Mr. Stoner was the associate minister in 1942 at the Church of Christ in Spring Glen, Hamden, Conn., and in 1943 became minister there. In 1944 he became associate secretary of the University of Texas YMCA at Austin. He was the first director of the Student Christian fellowship at Bowling Green State university, a pioneer interdenominational work among students started in 1945. At the present time it serves eight denominations and the student YMCA and YWCA. Since 1947 Mr. Stoner

The Buccaneers, back from the "Sunshine state" after dulling some of the Homecoming luster of the Stetson university Hatters, merit the commendations of the entire student body for their outstanding performance against the much larger school from the heart of America's vacation land.

Before the contest East Carolina's familiarity was very obscure in DeLand, and one could stroll down any avenue and inquire to any one of their Sol-tanned citizens, "Have you ever heard of East Carolina college?" The reply most likely would have sounded something like "You've got me, Mac. But I believe it's somewhere in the Carolinas." Now if you'd made this same interrogation after the EC-vibrated week end, the answer most surely would have been, "Never has our fair city been hit by a more impressive football aggregation and its supporters than this bunch from Greenville, North Carolina!"

There were 70-odd EC students and parents attending the game. The small group, huddled and in unison, exuberated an astounding amount of noise to rate sidelighting stories in two of Florida's newspapers. The little, but loud cluster of Buccaneer backers almost drowned out the 6,000 Homecoming-celebrating Hatters. The clamoring, uproarious Pirate crew really represented the less fortunate ones who were unable to make the trip.

Decorated with the traditional black and white Pirate banners and school buttons the rooters gathered on the lawn of the Putman hotel, where the team was staying, and touched off a dazzling pep rally, led the footballers to the stadium attracting more attention with their diminutive group than Stetson could muster with all their huge throngs. There hasn't been such school spirit and devotion shown since Carolina went to Times Square.

Four of Florida's biggest newspapers carried headline stories of the game with over a dozen action pictures appearing in print. Doubtless to say, East Carolina gained prestige from the 19-19 knot, and the boys truly deserved such a trip in payment for their sweat and toil on the gridiron.

Prominent Audubon Naturalist Initiates Lecture Series Here

Allan D. Cruickshank, staff member of the National Audubon society, lecturer and photographer, initiated Wednesday evening of this week a series of lectures to be given at East Carolina college during 1952-1953 by three leading American naturalists. Local sponsors of the series are the Greenville Woman's club, the city schools of Greenville and the East Carolina college Science club.

Cruickshank presented his film "Below the Big Bend" at 7:30 p. m. in the Austin auditorium. The public was invited to attend, and there was no charge for admission.

The film pictured one of this country's magnificent and spectacular new national parks. The "Big Bend" derived its name from the wide sweep of the Rio Grande river as it outlines the U.S.-Mexican border.

Cruickshank, who is now associated with the National Audubon society, has served as president of the Linnaean society of New York, and is also a full member of the American Ornithologists' union. He has been on the staff of the American Museum of Natural History and has lectured widely on bird and other wild-life subjects.

His photographs have been included in U.S. Camera Yearbook as among the best of the year and have appeared in the National Geographic, Nature magazine, Audubon magazine, Natural History and Life, as well as in leading newspapers the country over. He has been the subject of feature stories in leading periodicals and is the author of two books, "Birds Around New York City" and "Wings in the Wilderness."

Chesterfield Man Here

Leon Earl Davenport has been appointed Chesterfield campus representative at East Carolina college by Campus Merchandising Bureau Inc.

He was chosen from applicants throughout the country to represent Chesterfield. The position will mean experience in merchandising, advertising, promotion and public relations for the student representative.

Rev. Johnson Speaks During Sunday Evening Vespers Of Methodists

Vespers this Sunday at the Methodist Student center will be led by Rev. Harvey E. Johnson, pastor of the Pentecostal Holiness church of Greenville. The discussions, to be held at 6 o'clock, will include interpretations of doctrines and beliefs.

The interest in vespers is continuing at these meetings and attendance has been good. Last Sunday evening an informal discussion of the Bible was held.

A supper is held each Sunday night at the center. Price is 35 cents and all interested are invited.

Commerce Club Meets

The Commerce club will meet on Tuesday night, November 18, in Flanagan auditorium at 6:45. A program is planned and all members are urged to be present.

Holmes Addresses Teachers

"All teachers must see that they are in reality teachers in reading," Dr. Keith Holmes of the East Carolina college department of education told elementary teachers of the North Central district of the state education association at a meeting in Raleigh last Friday.

Dr. Holmes stressed the nationwide scope of problems in the teaching of reading in the public schools, since "all the children of all the people" attend.

Every phase of the school curriculum, Dr. Holmes explained, involves reading. He advocated directing effort toward helping the individual "master essential skills which will promote independent reading habits and make him a more efficient and enthusiastic user of our language and literature."

"Until high school teachers resolve to reapply such fundamental skills to their subject-matter fields and until all teachers use these same skills integratively in all their teaching every day," said Dr. Holmes, "our problem cannot be ameliorated." The problem of "drop-outs" related to reading skills is significant, the East Carolina educator stated. "A few years ago," he commented, "many more boys and girls dropped out of school by the sixth year than leave today." Failure to learn to read correctly was a contributing cause, he stated. Today, he added, great stress is being laid on schools on teaching reading effectively so as to help the child attain success.

Let Us Be Thankful

This issue will be the final one of the East Carolinian before the beginning of the Thanksgiving holidays. Each year at this time the people of the United States hear the same thing about Thanksgiving, the patriotic speeches, the prayers of thankfulness and the traditional turkey dinner. Some of us may get a little tired of hearing these same things year after year but we ought NOT to.

In the crucial era through which our nation is passing we should be ever more conscious of the blessings which this holiday symbolizes. Thanksgiving should truly be everything the name implies. We should count our blessings as a free nation and a free people and realizing how scarce these things are throughout the world, should be doubly thankful.

In many of our home towns a church service will be held to commemorate all that this day stands for. We should consider it a privilege to be able to attend these services on this national holiday and give thanks for the many blessings that we, the American people, take for granted.

We should be thankful for the right to attend the church that we choose, say the things we think, believe the things that we do. Only when a free people loses these intangible blessings do they appreciate them and yet, as Americans and free men, we should be conscious and duly appreciative of these blessings that God has given us.

Keep Up With Possessions

Following up an editorial appearing in this paper two weeks ago about persons picking up articles that did not belong to them, we would like to remind students that they should not let articles lying around all over the campus for long periods of time.

We have received complaints from various sources that students have left books, clothing and other possessions on window sills and in all sorts of buildings on campus. Many times when one may have thought his property has been taken by someone else it might have easily been picked up and put in a place where it would not cause an untidy appearance on our campus.

A person keeps up with all his possessions, he does not have to worry about them. He will find them when he goes to look for them in the future all of us at East Carolina should be more careful about leaving our books and articles all over the campus.

The end of the quarter is about here, and next week will see all the students at East Carolina busy with examinations. This will be the last issue of the "East Carolinian" for the Fall quarter; however, we will print a paper the first week of the Winter quarter. In the past we have been unable to print an edition the first week of the quarter, but being we register on Monday instead of Tuesday the staff of this publication will be able to make the deadline.

Sunday evening in Austin auditorium the first in a series of religious programs sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council at East Carolina will be held. The service will be the annual Thanksgiving program on campus, and the council has as speaker East Carolina President J. D. Messick. We hope to see everyone on hand that evening.

We hope that you have noticed the new "nameplate" of the "East Carolinian." The "nameplate" is the title of the paper at the top of the front page (for those of you who are not familiar with journalistic terms). The staff would like to express its appreciation to John Gordon, instructor of art at the college, who drew up the name.

Do you wish to save time in registering for work during the winter quarter? If you do, all you have to remember is to follow the directions that we have printed on the front page of this paper. Those directions were drawn up by persons who have had enough experience to know what they are talking about. If you follow all the suggestions, you will be able to register in less than five minutes.

The music program on tap for Sunday afternoon in Wright auditorium will feature the College orchestra, the Varsity Glee club and Walter Noona. The concert should draw a big crowd of students and townspeople.

Tony Harris and Paul Casey, former East Carolina students, won first and second prizes, respectively, in the October Suggestion box "Street Naming" contest at Stallings Air base in Kingston.

Functioning this year is the Point System committee of the Student Government association. No student is permitted to carry over a total of ten points for extra-curricular activities, and the committee is investigating the cases of students who have too many points. The system is set up in order to prevent any one person from being overloaded with extra-curricular work and to give more persons a chance to hold office in campus organizations.

Next quarter will see a change in the sports staff of the "East Carolinian." Lloyd Whitfield, who has filled the capacities for two years and a quarter, will be doing his practice teaching. Lloyd will hand the job over to Bob Hilldrup, managing editor at the present time. Bob has been writing sports on this paper for nearly two years, and he served in the capacities of sports editor of the Greenville Daily Reflector during the past summer.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Janice Hardison

Ann Whitehurst

Ann Whitehurst is realizing one secret ambition a few short days before she graduates from East Carolina college. "I'm very pleased to be chosen for the 'spotlight,' she says. "It's something I hoped for, but I never thought it would happen to me." As this issue of "East Carolinian" goes to press, Gloria Ann Whitehurst of Bethel is being numbered among the alumni of East Carolina college.

Ann says that she is spending her most pleasant quarter yet, and she gives a very good reason. A very enthusiastic primary major, she is a student teacher in Miss Eunice McGee's third grade. "I have enjoyed the quarter immensely," she beams. "Just being the children during play activities is a real joy." If she had to choose any particular phase of her work with the third grade as her favorite, she is sure that teaching students music has been her greatest thrill.

Enjoys Music

There is a reason why Miss Whitehurst would enjoy music so much. She came here with every intention of minoring in music, and even when she learned that she couldn't do that she continued studying voice and playing the piano.

By the way, she wasn't too excited about coming to East Carolina when she began her college career in 1949. "It was too close to home," she recalls, "just 13 miles across the river." Now that Ann is ready to leave, she thinks that East Carolina has meant much to her. Her own statement is, "I would never take anything for having had the opportunity of being here."

A graduate of the Bethel high school, Miss Whitehurst has had a very full college career, to say the least. She has been one of the most active members of ACE for four years. Joining the organization as a freshman, Ann became publications chairman as a sophomore. Last year she was secretary-treasurer. Her four year's service has taken Miss Whitehurst to two international conventions, one in Asheville and one in Philadelphia.

Variety of Activities

Ann has been leading music for ACE programs also. "It's been my favorite activity," she says. "I have done more work and have gained more from it." She has also been a member of the YWCA and the Teacher's playhouse, a soprano in the Women's chorus for two quarters, representative for her junior class to SGA and a college marshal. Is it any wonder then, that Gloria Ann Whitehurst was among those from East Carolina recently named to represent the college in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges?"

Yes, hers has been a full four years at East Carolina, but things will be quite different when she goes home again. Until January she will be busy preparing for her marriage to a Bethel boy, and she doesn't plan to begin teaching until next September. She might find time to go back to her stamp collecting, which she abandoned indefinitely when she graduated from high school. She hopes she will have more time for reading, which is her favorite form of relaxation. She is sure she is going to take time to play the piano and sing to her heart's content.

Thanksgiving for Ann Whitehurst is really an end and a beginning. With graduation behind, she will begin to live and to look toward a happy and busy future. The "East Carolinian" is wishing her much luck. She has earned a right to it.

Glancing Through Old Papers

by Phyllis Carpenter

It is always fun to know about the little incidents and other things of interest that occurred before most of us were quite old enough to remember. Several days ago we were glancing through the old files of TECO ECHO printed in 1932. A few of the amusing and informative articles caught our eye and we would like to pass them on to you.

First as we know, this was the time of the depression and prices were low. It was quite amusing to see clothes advertised as: Women's linen suits, $2.98; women's brown alligator shoes, $4.95; silk hose, 98c; and mesh hose, 10c.

Speaking of the depression, there was a small item at the bottom of one page saying: "Yes, the story of the depression is very familiar to us all now, but here is a word you may not have heard. The depression must be over, for the girls at ECTC had ice cream for supper Sunday night, and that is indeed a rarity." Now students, when we complain about the dining hall not having enough vanilla and giving out before we get in line, just remember that at least we have ice cream.

This is about the time of the year that most men drag out their guns, clean them, and prepare for another season of hunting, which is just around the corner. This reminds us of an article on one of the faculty here at East Carolina. Miss Kuykendall, who tried her luck at duck hunting in Kentucky, aimed at a duck and killed a four-pound fish. Don't feel too badly, Miss Kuykendall, at least you hit something, even if it was fish and not fowl. Most of us women can't even do that.

How many of us know how East Carolina obtained the beautiful fountain and circle in front of Wright auditorium? It was presented to the school as the class gift of the graduating class of 1932.

Everyone is taking chances every day of his life. We take a chance riding in a car, we take a chance crossing the street, and in fact, we take a chance in everything we do. Let's have a cheerful attitude about it, though, as this poem will relate to you.

Echoing Chatter To You

by Don Muse

With pre-registration recently completed and the quarter coming to a close a word regarding the general student opinion in regard to pre-registration as it now exists would be appropriate. We would like to suggest that a tentative schedule of the courses to be offered for an entire school year be distributed to each student prior to registration, so he could register with an overall view of the year's work. This procedure would eliminate some of the "last-minute" changes that are now so common.

Some trustees at the University of North Carolina are advocating that the institution should return to a six-day week schedule. The students of one accord have risen to oppose such a change and rightly so. The mental strain of such a schedule imposes hardship.

The chief objection to the present schedule stems from the fact that many students leave the campus on week-ends. The objectors seem to think that these week-end sojourns are reflected in the quality of the week's work. Week-end trips and activities, we think, are a definite part of the social life of students and serve, therefore, as an integral part of any broad and liberal education. We thank you, administration, that we may call our Saturdays our own.

On occasion we have cigarette representatives on hand at the college cafeteria to pass out sample packages of their products. This past week one such representative probably pushed his product more by the smile on his face than by the product in his hand. Being in the midst of a barrage of homework at the time his affable manner gave us more satisfaction than did his cigarettes.

We've heard of one college in the US in which one professor has his classroom furnished in the manner of a comfortable activities consists of discussion in a highly informal manner. Reports indicate that interest in his course runs high and student participation is at a new high. We hope the innovation will spread into more general practice and that classroom work will consequently become more of the pleasure it should be.

Visiting Players View Stunts

Last Saturday afternoon around three o'clock four energetic co-eds decided they would take a little exercise in the basement of the new gym by jumping on the trampoline.

After donning shorts and tennis shoes the girls "took off." Racing to the basement, co-ed one arrived first and jumped enthusiastically upon the trampoline. Co-eds two, three and four were luckily spared part of the embarrassment that co-ed one ran into; for when they opened the door they met a sight to behold? There, in front of them the entire visiting football team behind a cage-like affair supposedly sleeping, but literally peering over the top looking like beasts ready to pounce on its prey!

Immediately four loud screams were heard, accompanied by "Run." Indeed they did run and to the nearest exit.

So ends the woeful exhibition provided by four co-eds to the West Virginia Tech team. An exhibition that neither co-eds or team will forget for a long, long time. (Afterthoughts: We won the game. Could the above have had anything to do with it?)

Fickleness

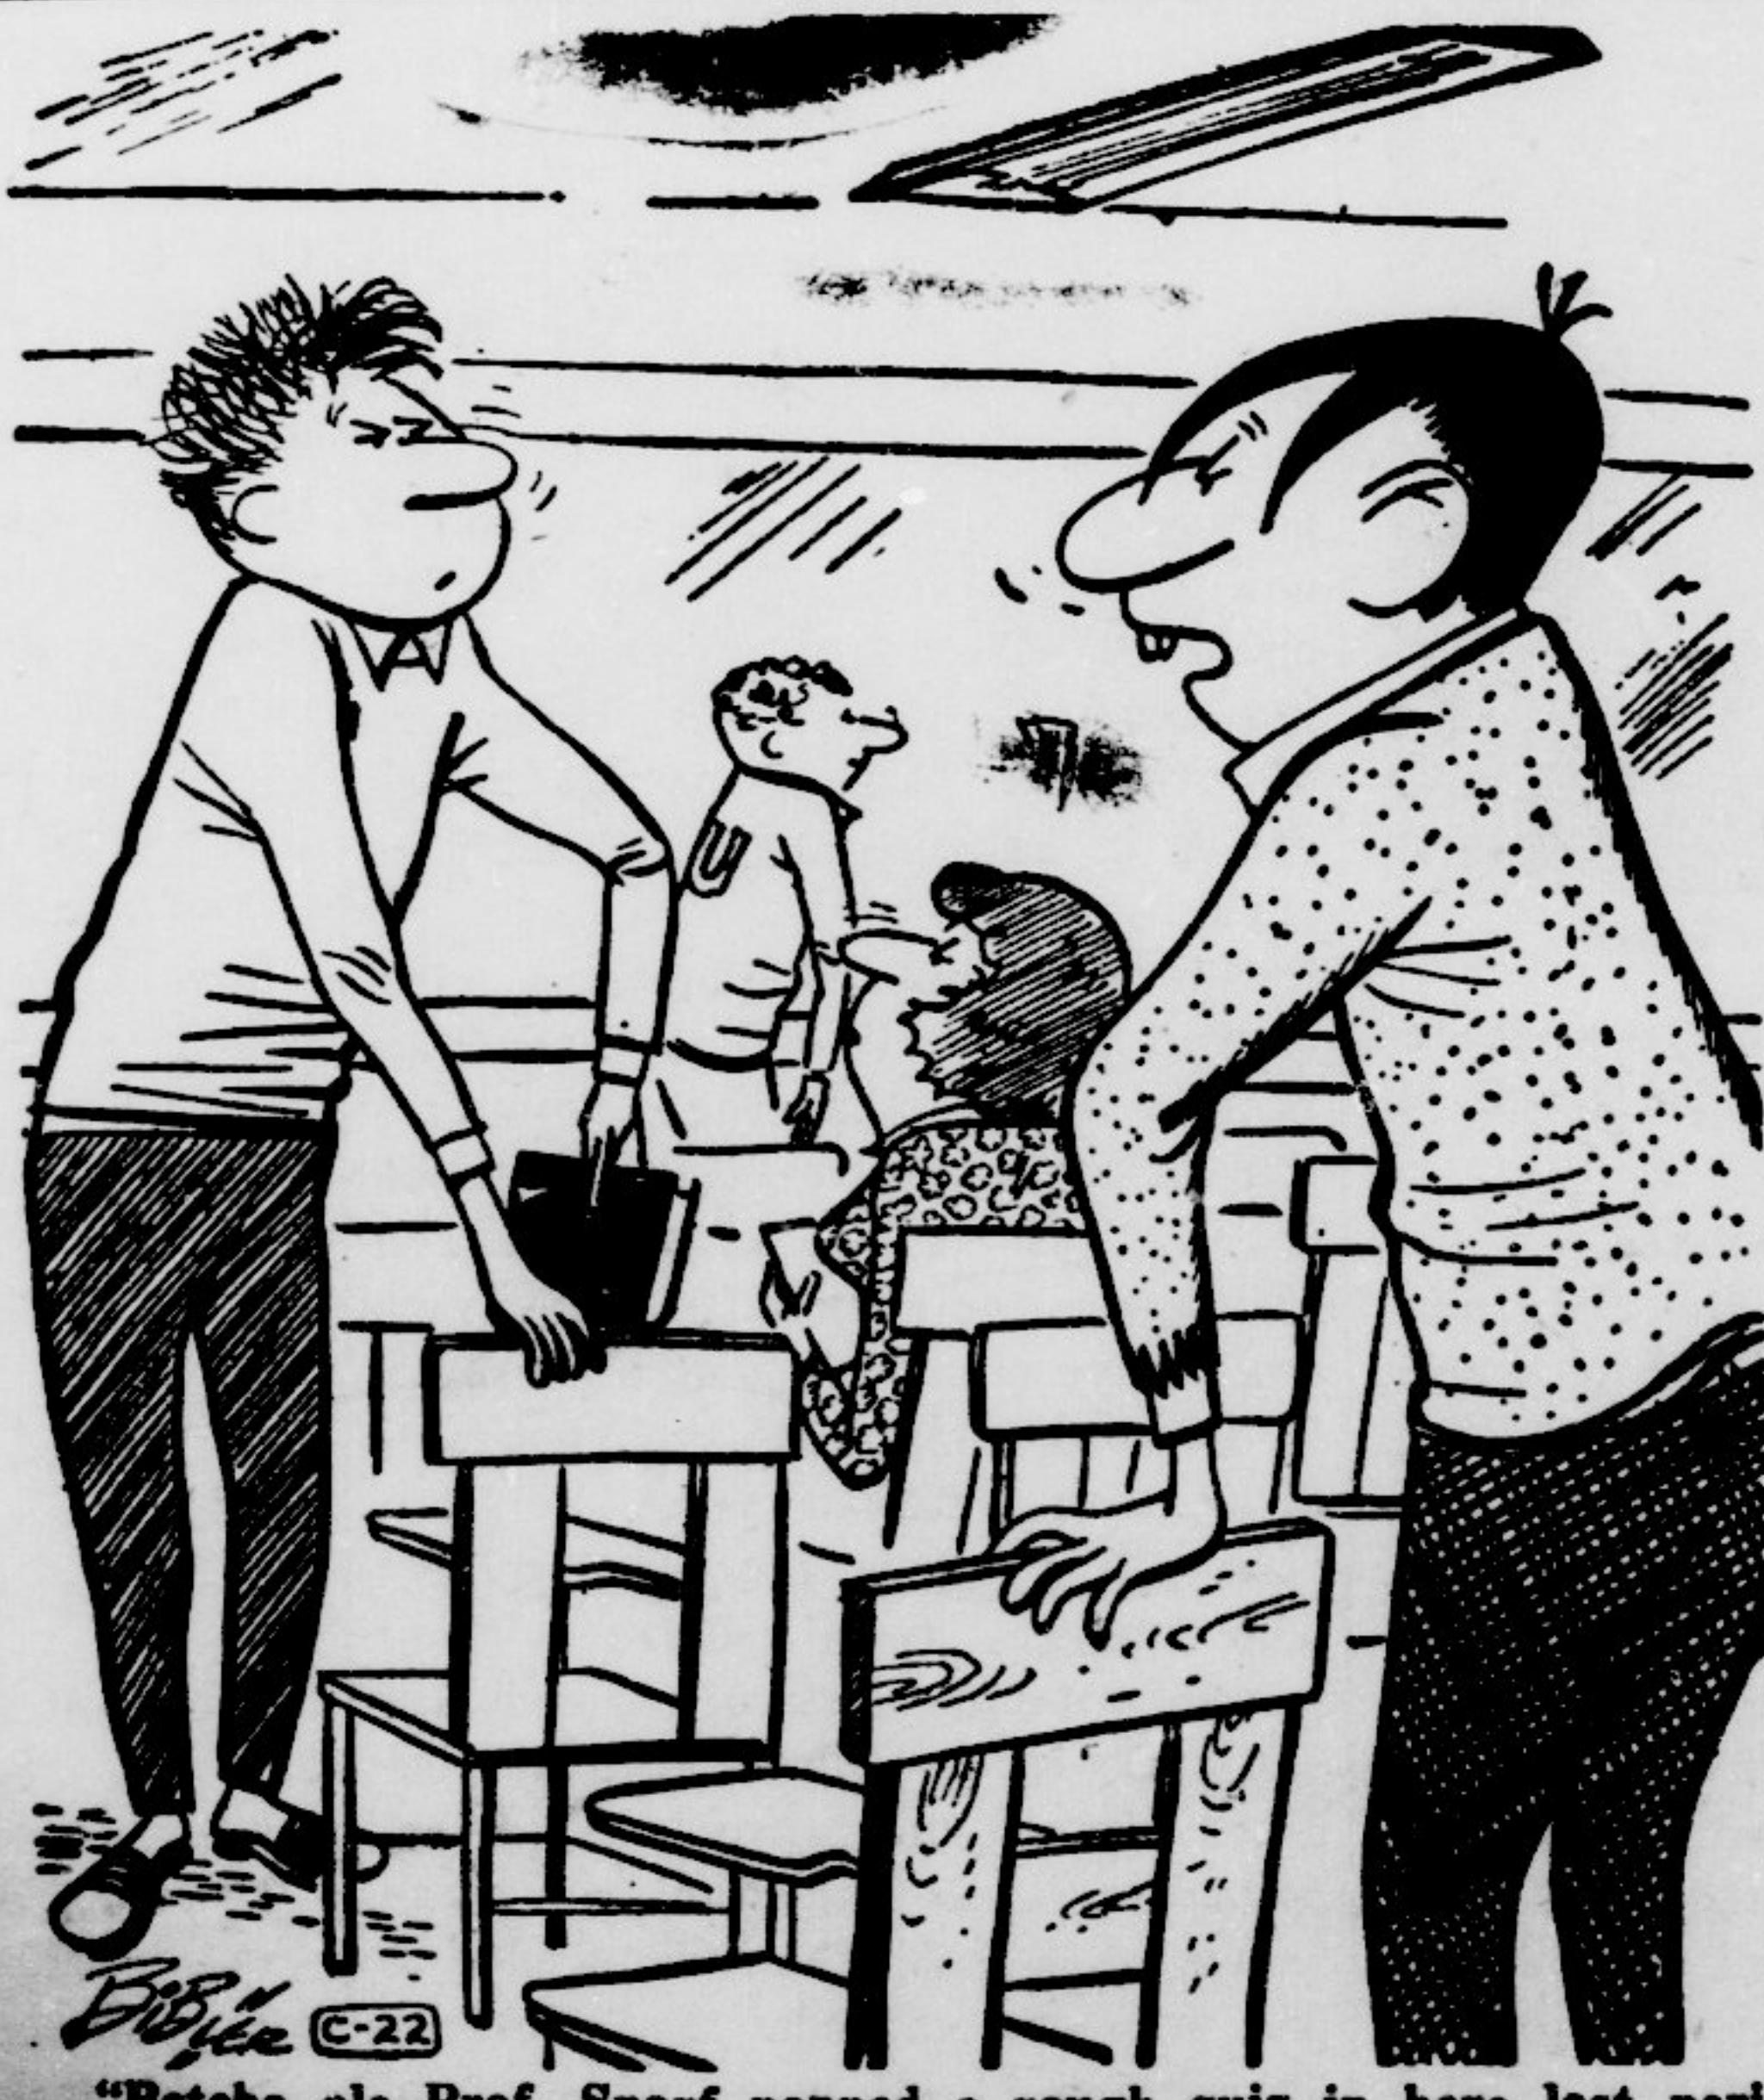

I love him little, I love him much,
His idle talk, his gentle touch,
I can't make up my poor old mind
The way I feel is hard to find.
Sometimes he makes me very sick
Sometimes he makes my poor heart tick.
But I'm a girl, after all, and many times I guess I'll fall
For one I think is simply divine, only in the end to find
He's just another boy I've met,
And there are plenty more in this world yet!

Forty Years Ago

November, 1912

The college dining room purchased some turkeys for Thanksgiving. R. L. Moore furnished 15 gobblers weighing 208 pounds and, at 16 cents per pound, coming to $33.28. L. M. Savage sold them 12 weighing 104 pounds (not quite as plump as Mr. Moore's) at 15 cents per pound which came to $15.60.

That's a lot of turkey for the money and what a delightful pre-Thanksgiving dinner it gave to the students who were leaving for the holiday.

"Betcha ole Prof. Snarf popped a rough quiz in here last period—this room smells like th' boy's gymnasium."

TIMELY TOPICS

By Bob Hilldrup

The regular football season has now been completed on a very favorable note. There was a goodly crowd present for the final game of the season with West Virginia Tech, but it's too bad that all could not be seated. There are so many things that our school needs to add to its rapidly growing student body that it seems rather useless to add another, but if the time ever comes it would be great to see the stadium enlarged.

With football on the upswing here, East Carolina could consistently draw crowds of 10,000 or better if only adequate seating facilities were to be had.

Speaking of the crowds: The seating arrangements at the games this season have been well handled by members of the EPO service fraternity. Though the name "fraternity" is one that is disliked heartily by this column, we must say that these boys have done a good job with this project.

Many, many compliments have been heard concerning the performance of the AFROTC Drum and Bugle corps and the Drill team at the half of Saturday's game. When the participants first came out on the field a group of Marines on the sidelines cheered derisively, but as the formation progressed they came to admit that for "college boys" they looked mighty good.

"Clean-up week" has come and gone, but that's no reason to discontinue our efforts to beautify our campus. When 2,000-odd students get to roaming around a confined area there is bound to be a lot of odd trash flung to the winds; but just the same, with the school pride that is obvious here, let's try to be a little more neat.

A few closing comments from our sister school's paper, the Appalachian: Little Miss Muffet decided to rough it in a cabin quite old and medieval. A rounder espied her and plied her with cider. And now she's the forest's prime evil.

Ned: Is that girl's dress torn, or am I seeing things?
Ted: Both.

If anyone who has a shady joke he would like to have printed in TIMELY TOPICS, the author will be glad to accept it if the following directions are followed. POT POURRI

by Emily Boyce

A recent health checkup showed that surprisingly enough kissing is usually safe. That is, from the standpoint of good health.

It's safer for the man if the girl wears lipstick. The two second kiss is safer for both than the lingering first. Almost all the germs that are transferred by a kiss are the type that don't cause sickness. These are the findings reported by Alton L. Blakeslee which were published in a magazine, Drug and Cosmetic Industry.

A special tribute was paid to the male volunteers for the study, who "would rather kiss a blonde," but in the interests of science pressed their lips against plates of nutrient agar on which germs could grow, or against sterile glass slides.

If a woman was wearing fresh lipstick, the number of germs on her lips was much less than without lipstick. As for duration of a kiss, "The regulation Hollywood ten-second kiss transferred about twice as many germs as a short, two-second affair."

Recent smoking seemed to lower the bacterial count somewhat. Dry lips gave a purer kiss than moist. The effect of alcoholic drinks before a kiss was inconclusive. Beer appeared to raise the germ count, hard liquor to lower it.

Bad breath was accompanied by high germ counts. There is a real threat of a kiss of death if the kissed partner has diphtheria, acute TB, scarlet fever or such ailments. The study didn't give tips on how to recognize such persons, if they weren't hospitalized.

The study was concluded with this statement, "Kissing can be not only a pleasant but a harmless pastime if ordinary lip hygiene is practiced; irrespective of the frequency or how long the contact lasts."
Well!

Since the above space is devoted to the kiss we shall continue:

A kiss is a peculiar proposition. Of no use to one, yet absolute bliss to two. The small gets it for nothing, the young man has to lie for it, and the old man has to buy it. The baby right, the lover's privilege, and the hypocrite's mask. To a young girl, faith; to a married man, hope; and to an old maid, charity. V.J. Skipper.

SPORTS ECHO

BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

Well, it's all over but the shouting—the football season, that is. And what a season it was as two fine gentlemen directed the East Carolina Pirates to new heights among the nation's football circles. Coaches Jack Boone and Clyde Biggers deserve paramount praise for the part they played in pushing the Pirates to records that no doposter would bet on.

However, it was not the work of these two newcomers alone that accounted for the successful grid season completed here Saturday night as the Pirates walloped West Virginia Tech 34-7. There were 60 other guys out at the practice field every afternoon and their spirits were not to be beaten.

Particularly can nine seniors be proud of the mark set by the 1952 Buccaneers, for they were here in 1949 when the college began to take a wide interest in better athletic teams. They watched it grow into an almost finished product, and it was through their efforts that the goal was reached.

Those seniors are: Bill McDonadd, Dennis Smith, Sandy Siler, Frank Madigan, Lyn Grissom, Illard Yarborough, John Painter, Dwight Shoe and Jack Benzie.

Perform With Perfection

All performed to perfection against West Virginia Tech in an effort to provide local followers with a performance not to be forgotten and an exhibition that they will always cherish. How can one forget their caliber of play?

Currently, interest is turned toward rumors that say East Carolina will be the recipient of a bowl bid. Those mentioned include the Cigar bowl in Tampa, Lions bowl in Salisbury and Pythian bowl in Roanoke, Va. However, officials are waiting for the outcome of the Lenoir Rhyne-Catawba battle on Thanksgiving day which will determine the North State champions.

And now comes a momentous occasion in the editor's life as he is aware that he is writing his final column for a truly great newspaper, which upholds the principles of democracy and freedom of the press, ever striving to give the student's viewpoint. I now bow out of the picture of a wonderful four years spent on this staff as a worker and a cooperater and turn over this sports page to Bob Hillrup.

I feel that this paper has been my college life—without it to worry about and work for I believe I would have gained little from my college life. This type work has been most enjoyable and more beneficial than any academic subject. I regard it as my education and will always cherish deeply the wonderful years spent in this big office with paper and cigarette butts on the floor... signs of a true newspaper office. It will be hard to forget the headaches and pains suffered when attempting to select an Athlete of Week, the times we have ripped pages out of the typewriter—striving for perfection.

And Having Writ—

I am completely aware that at times I have caused pains of discontent and have stepped on the toes of truly great friends. I have said a few things in this column that I regret and sincerely wish I had never written. I offer my humble apologies and forget such memories, rejoicing in such memories as working with a wonderful editor, Tommie Lupton. To Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, I wish to express my deep appreciation and sincere gratitude for his wonderful cooperation in supplying information. He is a wonderful guy, who would do anything in the world to assist a troubled student.

Thanks also to Porter, Boone and Biggers for their work and adding immensely to my college career as a journalist. To Sherman M. Parks, our printer, who has so willingly accepted my plea when I missed the deadline—thanks!

And now with these final words I leave behind four years of work that has brought me numerous, unforgettable friendships and experiences and turn this page over to one Bob Hillrup.

WAA Group Places Second In Volley Ball Tournament

Twelve girls, representing the Women's Athletic Association, and two advisors went to Greensboro, Saturday, to represent East Carolina college in the Play day exercise at Greensboro college and to participate in the volley ball tournament.

At 11:45 A. M. the East Carolina vs. Greensboro college game started, and after a hard fought game East Carolina came out on top 25-14.

Immediately after the East Carolina-Greensboro game the locals engaged Atlantic Christian. The Christians had previously downed Salem college. In this contest the EC girls emerged victorious once more by a score of 22-18.

As a result of this second victory the Pirate girls took the court against the Woman's college team in the finals but were downed by a 28-15 count. The loss placed East Carolina in second place for the tournament.

Colleges represented were Atlantic Christian, Greensboro College, Elon, High Point, Meredith, Salem and Woman's college.

The participants from East Carolina were: Captain Barbara Tilley, Annie Wilson, Barbara Geyton, Grace Smith, Janet Hodges, Sadie Patterson, Jean Brake, Dot Howard, Jane Eason and Mary Alice Fields.

Advisors to the local squad are Miss Nell Stallings and Miss Margaret Tiff.

Athlete Of The Week

After much consideration, we found it necessary to have two athletes of the week, two indispensable grid machinists who have made the Buccaneer football machine a smooth, harmonizing unit that reached a new high in North State football circles.

Sandy Siler and Illard Yarborough share the spotlight this week for their terrific performances against the West Virginia Tech crew. Both boys came into their own Saturday night with exhibitions that weighed heavily in the 34-7 devastation of the Tech team.

Sandy, hailing from Siler City, stands 6' 1/2" and tips the scales at 195. A senior, he will certainly be missed next year. Sandy had his share of misfortune this season, and he just couldn't get back in the groove.

He did a terrific job against Stetson and was just getting started as the season ended. A well-liked person around the campus, Sandy has made quite a reputation during his four years at East Carolina. Congratulations, Sandy Siler, and best of luck to you after graduation.

Hampered by an injured knee most of last season, Illard Yarborough had been kept under the weather; but needless to say, he has been superb throughout the '52 campaign.

A senior from High Point, Illard has moved his 180 pounds through and over some of the best football teams in the South. An exceptionally fast-moving halfback, Yarborough has a tendency to bowl the opposition over like pins in an alley. The popular six-footer has been a terrific asset to the Pirates and his amiability makes him a very nice guy to know.

Illard Yarborough, even after you have graduated there will be many who'll remember the flashy number "17" slashing through the opposing lines and lacerating their defense, morally as well as physically. Power to you, Illard, and on behalf of the student body thank you for your magnificent contribution to East Carolina.

Boone's Underrated Senior Halfback

Illard Yarborough, senior halfback, will be seriously missed when the 1953 grid season rolls around. He was a leading ground gainer this year as he charged through the opposition's defense and faked his way through the secondary to score six touchdowns and set up numerous others.

Bowl Rumors Still Developing

One would think bowl bids were a dime a dozen around the North State conference as speculation continues to mount concerning the teams that will be playing in a post-season game.

Local rumors have it that East Carolina has been mentioned for at least four bowls, but one of these has already picked its participants. The Tangerine bowl was knocked out of contention when announcements from Orlando revealed that East Tennessee Tech and East Texas Tech will oppose each other in the NCAA-sanctioned bowl.

Other possibilities are the Lions bowl at Salisbury, taking the place of the Pythian bowl, which has already selected West Chester Teachers from Pennsylvania as one club for a December 13 contest. Officials of the yearling classic would like to match the North State champions against them, but that will not be decided until Thanksgiving day, when Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba play.

The Pirates, which have just completed one of the most successful grid seasons with a 6-2-2 record, are also serious contenders for a bid to Tampa December 13 for the Cigar bowl. Tampa university, conquerors of Appalachian 19-0, has already been named as the host club.

The Pythian bowl at Roanoke, Va. would also like to have a North State team on hand for its December 13 battle, preferably the loop cham-

Sandy Siler Sparkles In 34-7 Triumph Over Powerful Bear Eleven

East Carolina's Pirates closed a brilliant, long-to-be-remembered regular season Saturday night on the local grid field as they mauled the visiting West Virginia Tech Golden Bears, 34-7, before a near capacity crowd of 6,500.

With three bowl scouts watching, the Bucs completely overpowered the mountaineers as they drove to four scores in the first half and added one for good measure in the second.

Siler Terrific

Senior Quarterback Sandy Siler turned in one of his best performances as he passed for two TDs and generated the Pirates to another. ECC scored first and early after they took the opening kickoff. Several long gains, including a 37-yard Siler-Gay aerial, placed the oval on the Tech 5. Illard Yarborough took a Siler pass over from there and Hawk Grissom's conversion made it 7-0.

A spectacular play late in the same quarter gave the Boone-men their next touchdown. Tech's Walt Rayko kicked from his eight to his 35. Toppy Hayes took the short kick from there and streaked down the right sidelines untouched to score. Grissom exercised his "true toe" and the Bucs led 14-0.

Shoe Pulls Great Play

The play of the game turned into the third ECC score. Early in the second period, Dick Cherry rifled a pass from his 36. Dwight Shoe out-fought two defenders for the ball and pulled away to run the additional 40 yards to paydirt.

Siler passed for the last TD in the half. Commencing an 85-yard drive, he flipped a 22-yarder to Gay for the 27-0 reading. Grissom kicked his only miscue of the night.

Tech scored in the fourth stanza after a scoreless third period. The Buccaneers came back quickly on a sustained drive after the kickoff. With Siler doing the ball-handling and Claude King most of the running, the Bucs pushed to the four from where Yarborough added the final tally in the 34-7 affair.

Williamson Meets Meadows In Ring Slugfest Tonight

Crowell Williamson, East Carolina's most prized boxer back in 1950, when the Pirate pugilists engaged in intercollegiate boxing, returns to the ring again tonight in Kinston when he squares off against a former college star and teammate, Pete Meadows, at 8 o'clock in Grainger stadium.

A native of Columbus county, Williamson is a senior and a 150-pound middleweight, notorious for his boxing abilities among the South's leading colleges. Under the tutelage of Johnny Long, former East Carolina college boxing coach, Williamson brought this college a great deal of useful publicity with his feats going as far South as the University of South Carolina and as far North as Madison Square Garden in New York City.

Meanwhile, Meadows is a former East Carolina student who did not get a chance to show his stuff in the boxing ring while here. The Kinston boxer transferred here from Edwards Military Institute with intentions of entering the ring.

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER!

They're made better to taste cleaner, fresher, smoother!

Ask yourself this question: Why do I smoke?

You know, yourself, you smoke for enjoyment. And you get enjoyment only from the taste of a cigarette.

Luckies taste better—cleaner, fresher, smoother! Why? Because Luckies are made better to taste better. And, what's more, Luckies are made of fine tobacco. L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco.

So, for the thing you want most in a cigarette... for better taste—cleaner, fresher, smoother taste... Be Happy—Go Lucky!

COLLEGE STUDENTS PREFER LUCKIES IN NATION-WIDE SURVEY!

Nation-wide survey based on actual student interviews in 80 leading colleges reveals more smokers prefer Luckies than any other cigarette by a wide margin. No. 1 reason—Luckies' better taste. Survey also shows Lucky Strike gained far more smokers in these colleges than the nation's two other principal brands combined.

The clamor ceased, the smoke cleared and in utter destruction lay the woeful remains of the West Virginia football plant. The explosion occurred between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. Saturday night, November 14. The devastation lasted for sixty minutes and culminated only after the official in the striped shirt sounded the "all-clear" on his whistle.

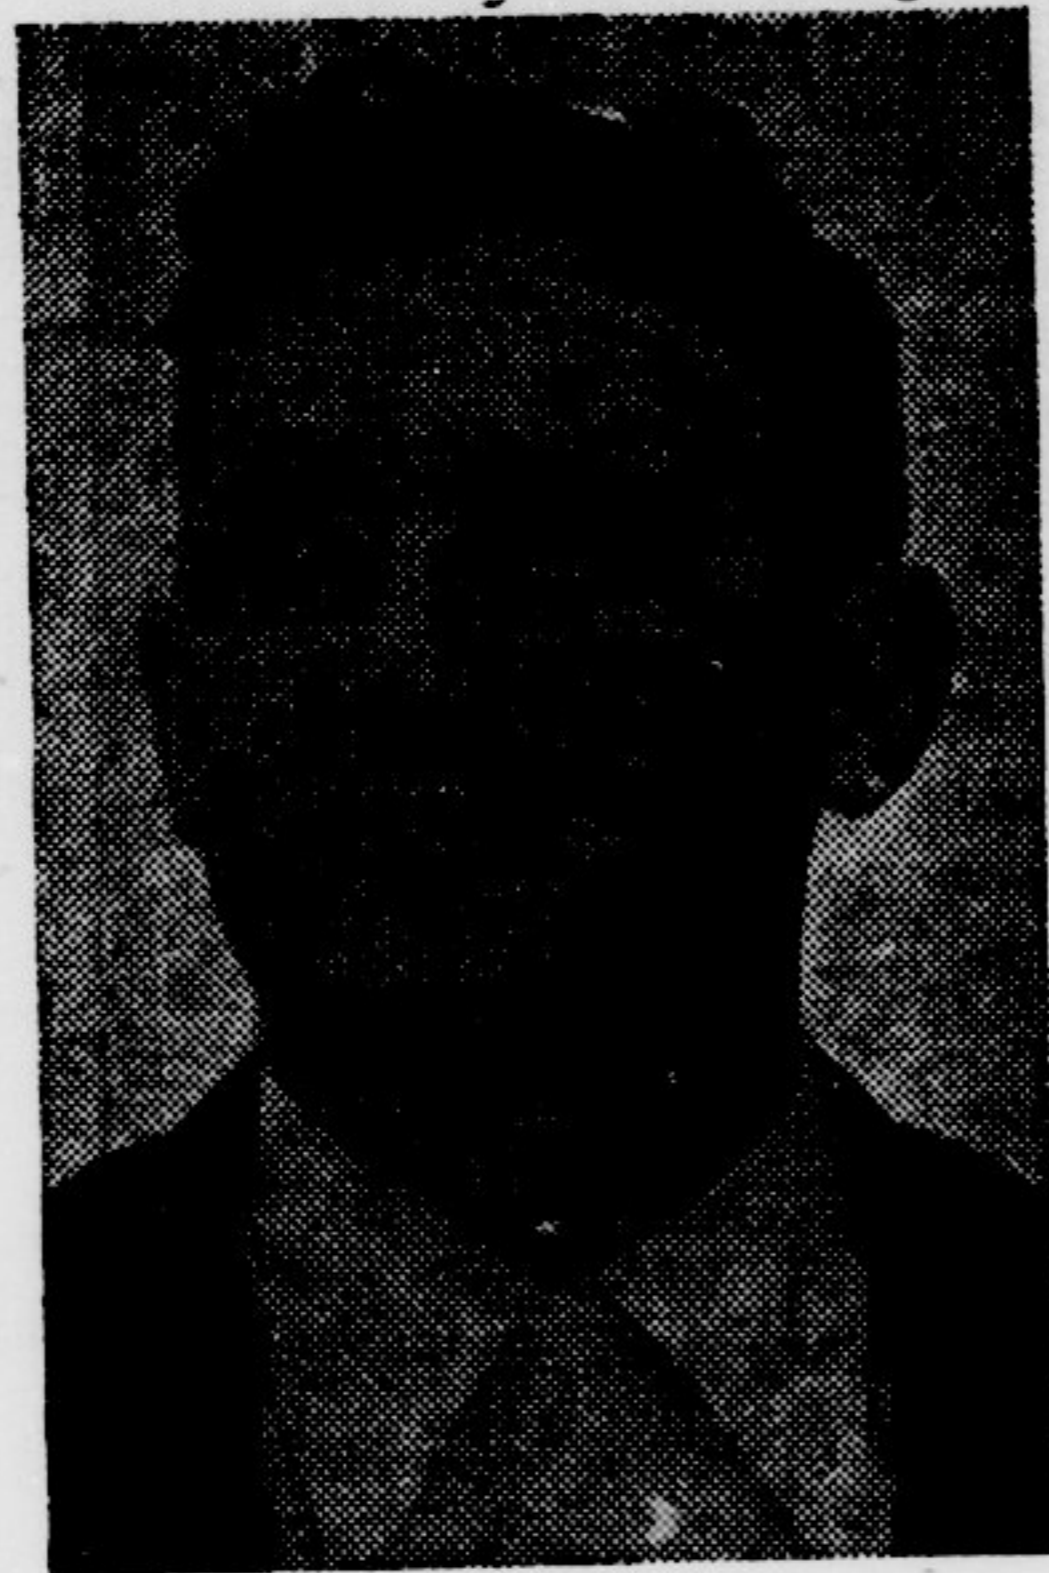

The immediate damages were estimated at "34" sections completely demolished with only "7" fragments from the blow saved by the West Virginians. The cause was thought to have been the results of a "Herculean-like" generated power that had to be released; the potency was known to be there, and it was only a matter of time until the explosion was destined to discharge. Sorry, it had to be West Virginia Tech, but it just goes to show you that you can't play with dynamite.

Well, as far as we know, the 1952 football season has drawn to a close. Until the next curtain call in 1953, we extend our compliments to the gridgers for their terrific showings. Their un-dying determination, heart and physical ability made a formidable dent in the football prestige in the south. Under the direction of Coaches Boone and Biggers, your 1952 debut will long be remembered after the stage is cleared and deserted.

Mates, the course ye navigated t'was a bit story at the first, but ye soon sea-fared to smooth-sailing with the likes of gallantry worthy of all ye mariners and swabs who have voyaged the intriguing brines. The treasures of the six-count vessels ye privateered have made ye famous of reputation, and feared by every hulk that scuds the blue waters of the North State sea. Ye are truly a great ship with a great crew, and me lid goes off to ye everyone!

North State To Pick Outstanding Gridder At Annual Fall Meet

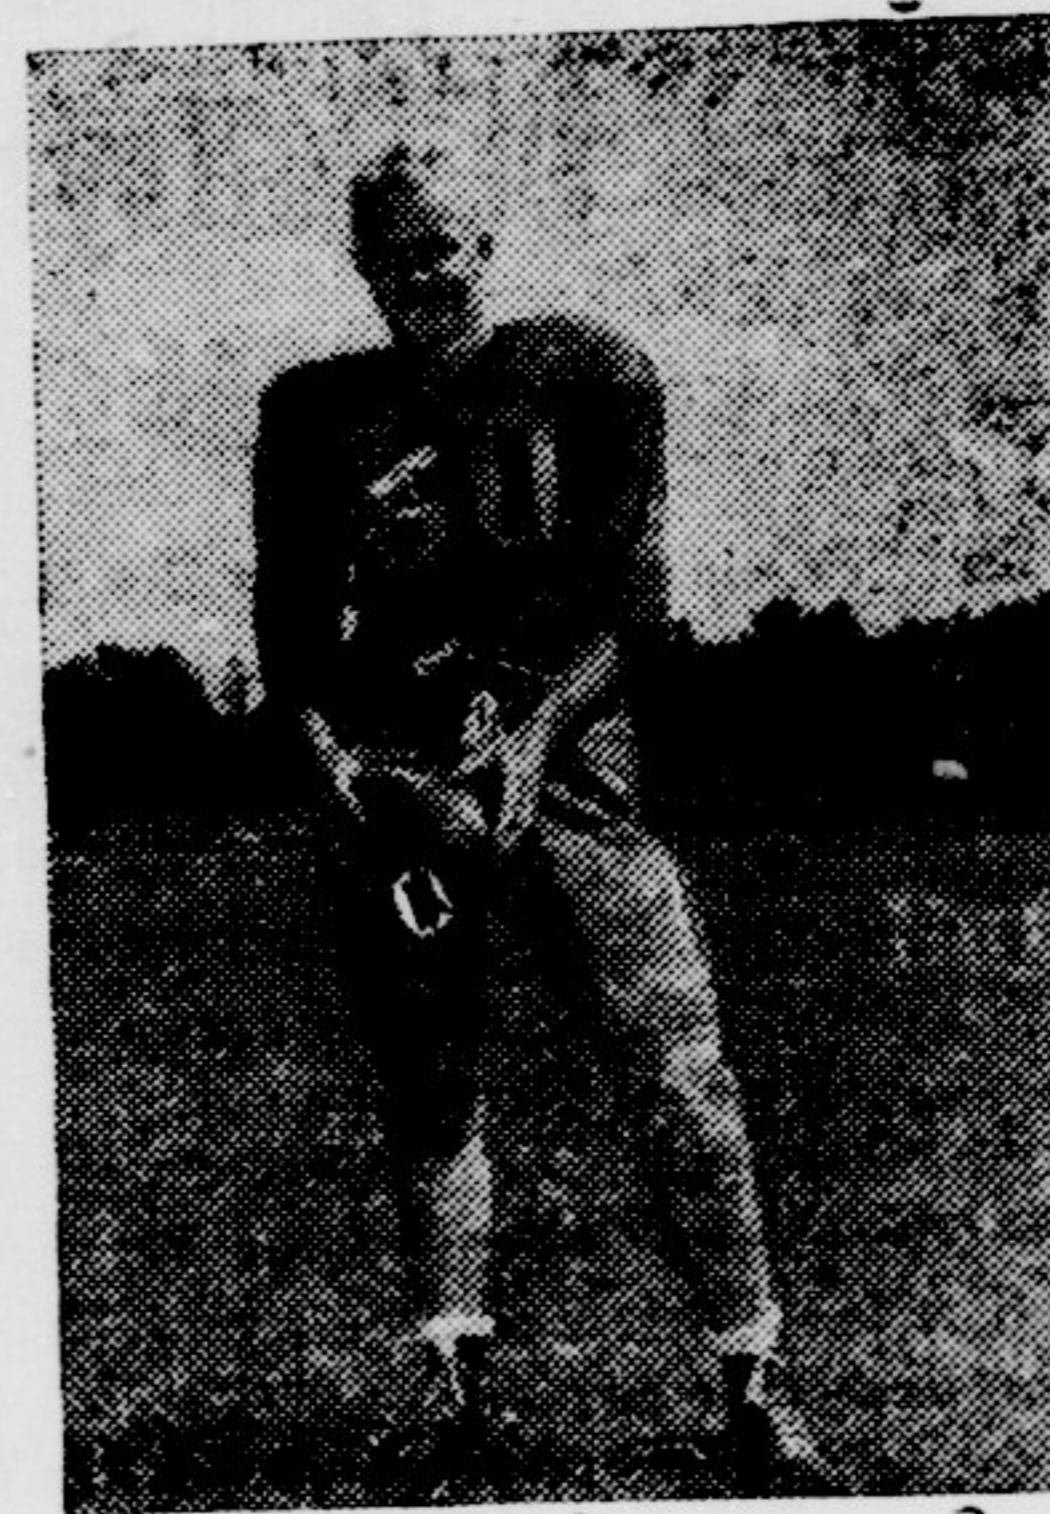

The North State conference's most outstanding football player will be honored at the annual banquet of the American Business club in High Point, December 9.

In conjunction with the banquet, the conference will hold its annual fall meeting on the same date. Dr. David E. Faust of Catawba college, secretary of the conference, said.

For the past several years the High Point club has made its award. Steve Trudnak of Lenoir Rhyne was the recipient a year ago.

The conference meeting will be held at the Sheraton hotel with coaches gathering in the morning and the business session scheduled for the afternoon.

Siler Can Throw

This is the man who led the Pirate gridgers to a 34-7 win over West Virginia Tech as bowl officials watched. Sandy Siler from Siler City is a brilliant quarterback who had his best games last—against Stetson university and the Golden Bears.

December 6 in a North State conference game, and return home for a battle with the defending loop champions, Lenoir Rhyne, on the 15th.

Carolina Cagers Added To Pirate Basketball Card

East Carolina's cagers continued drills this week as the athletic department announced that the University of North Carolina has been scheduled for a contest here January 6 marking the dedication of East Carolina college's new physical education and health building.

The meeting between the two schools will mark the first time athletic teams between the two institutions have met. The Tar Heels, members of the Southern conference and one of the top teams in the Big Four, are under the direction of a new coach this season with Frank McGuire, former cage mentor at St. Johns, drilling the Chapel Hill five. Howard Porter's cagers will open its 18-game schedule at Guilford on and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."
