Playhouse Picks Yearly Project

The East Carolina Playhouse has announced that as its project for the year it will seek to raise funds for the publication of a collection of original one-act plays written by East Carolina alumni and students presently enrolled at the college. Arrangements have been made to publish an edition of two hundred and fifty copies composed of six or seven plays. The announcement was made at the recent performances of the annual freshman plays.

In order to raise the money the Playhouse will accept contributions at performances of its studio productions. No admission fee is charged for attendance at these productions, and the contributions will be entirely voluntary on the part of members of the audience. No contributions will be solicited at any of the major productions.

The Playhouse is now in the process of selecting an editorial board to further its publication plans. Any student wanting to submit a play for consideration should do so at this time, or until the end of the winter quarter, send the manuscript to William Faulkner, president of the Playhouse, or to J. A. Withey, director of the organization.

Bloodmobile Collects Less Than Expected

During the AFROTC sponsored bloodmobile visit October 15 ninety pints were collected, with Cadet George Ippock recruiting the most donations. Cadet Ippock received as reward for recruiting the most donations two steaks from the Silo, and a ride in a T-33 Jet Trainer.

In commenting on the bloodmobile visit, Capt. Vinning said, "We weren't as successful as was hoped, but we feel the weather had something to do with this."

The Pledge service took place on Saturday afternoon in the alumni building at which time 36 members were pledged.

Alpha Delta Pi was founded in 1851 at Wesleyan Female College in Macon, Georgia and became the first secret society in the world for college women, and the Mother of the entire sorority system, thus making it the oldest national sorority.

Among those pledged were Sadie Barber, Pat Cameron, Sylvia Capps, Hazel Collier, Merle Council, Cynthia Cranford, and Lynn Crouch.

Others were Becky Crouch, Ann Drennan, Jaye Finnegan, Helen Fisher, Jane Gidden, Nancy Gwynn, and Carole Hagan.

Others include Norma Harrelson, Nancy Harris, Judy Hearne, Camilla Henderson, Judy Jolly, Nancy Keith, and Sue Kohlar.

Remaining girls were Sue Lassiter, Betty McCauley, Jimi McDaniel, Dottie McEwen, Sandy Moon, Lillian Moye, Nancy Edmonds, Betsy Redding, Faye Sellers, Jean Simmons, Pat Terrell, Dotty Walker, and Camille Wimberley.

Musicians Plan Light Program

Faculty members and students of the college Department of Music will forget Beethoven, Bach, and Brahms and turn to the lighter side of music when they present "Skitz-o-Phrenia" October 29, at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

The entertainment will be staged by the department of music for the benefit of the East Carolina Music Foundation, an organization with the aim of providing scholarships and other educational aid to students. Both students and faculty members along with guest artists from Greenville will supply talent for an evening of fun and frolic.

The program will provide a full-length entertainment, all in the spirit of comedy. Opening number will be the "hysterical" opera "Jack and Jill" featuring members of the music faculty.

Other attractions include college-community singers in a "Barbershop Harmony" number; "Ye Old Timers" of the faculty vs. the "New Sounds" of students in a "Battle of Jazz"; the ECC All-Girl Band; and a group of dancers—good and bad—in "A Lesson in Hula."

Tickets for "Skitz-o-Phrenia" are on sale at the Department of Music, at $1 for adults and 75 cents for students. Patron tickets will be sold to interested people at $5 up.

Congressman Charles O. Porter

Politics Need More Young Men Today, Porter Comments

By BRYAN HARRISON

"Politics is friendship," said Congressman Charles O. Porter in a private interview Monday.

Outlining his philosophy of politics he stated that young people can and should participate in our nation's politics. "Don't over-estimate the difficulties," he stated. "The whole trend now is toward young men in politics."

Confronted with the idea that reluctance of young men and women making a career in politics may be caused by the widespread belief that politics is "shady," he stated, "There are dishonest people in business and the professions, as well as politics. I would say that on the whole my colleagues in Congress are hard working, conscientious men, and above all they are honest, even to a greater degree than I expected."

When asked about student apathy toward government he said, "Apathy toward politics and government is not confined to students. As a matter of fact, students are probably more genuinely concerned over government than the people at large."

"What we need in men in politics to get out and bring government to the people."

"In Europe and South America politics are a student's bread and blood. Here we have not had the issues of the world brought to our very doorstep and as a consequence, we may take them lightly."

Speaking on other issues, the young Congressman, an ardent Democrat was optimistic about a Democratic victory in 1960. "My guess is that Stevenson will get the nomination."

When asked about a Southerner's chance for the vice presidential nomination, he stated, "Kennedy will probably get the nod. He is young and energetic. This is just speculation, of course."

Porter didn't take very seriously the bandwagon for Lyndon Johnson which was making headlines this week. He's a favorite son and Sam Rayburn is pushing this thing for his protégé. I believe Stevenson will secure the nomination."

Porter also indicated that there may be a fight with the Southerners at the convention. Recently Southern Democratic leaders have outspokenly encouraged the removal of Democratic chairman Paul Butler.

"We are striving for another A plus rating this year."

This, Euclid Armstrong, editor of the 1960 Buccaneer, expressed is the goal of the yearbook staff for 1960. The yearbook will contain 416 pages, the largest in the history of the school, and will have several "firsts" within its covers.

For the first time, the Key, official handbook for the college, will be featured. The handbook will be placed in the publications section, along with the Buccaneer, the East Carolinian, and the Rebel.

A Buccaneer Queen has been selected. This girl, selected from twenty candidates sponsored by the honorary, professional, and social fraternities and sororities on campus, will be announced on May 9th when the Buccaneer is issued.

Board Suggests Change

Wells Blasts EC 'Litterbugs'

"If our college is to be judged by the appearance of our campus, then we are in bad shape."

Prior to the student senate meeting Monday night, President Dallas Wells stated that he is appalled by the constant flow of paper cups, cigarette butts, and debris from the soda shops that litter the campus lawns and fountains.

"The students dirty up the place at such a rate, the maintenance crew can't keep up with them," he further stated. "We could have one of the most beautiful campuses in the state, but a lack of interest in the appearance of the grounds, new buildings, and just plain sloppiness are slowly eating up the attractiveness of the college."

In the senate meeting, Wells called for a volunteer committee to undertake the project of a Student Government drive to "clean up and beautify the campus." Not a hand was raised.

Yet, the President states that this is one project which will be achieved. "The student themselves will take the responsibility of making our campus better looking."

Calling on the students at large, he asks for their support. "This is a constructive idea, one which the student body should participate, including fraternities and sororities."

The idea will come up again in the next Senate meeting.

Visitors See EC Radio-TV Studios

The North Carolina Association of Broadcasters convened this past Tuesday in the Joyner Library to discuss all aspects of television and radio broadcasting either as a vocation or avocation. A large number of school administrators, teachers, high school and college students participated in the "Broadcasting Day," the first conference of its kind to be held on the campus.

Sponsoring the event were the Radio Club and Television Guild of the campus and the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters. Jack Hankins of Station WELS, Kinston, president of the State Association of Broadcasters; Rosalind Roulston, director of radio and television; and Dr. Corinne Richert, director of closed-circuit television at the college made the over-all plans for the day.

The agenda of the day included a tour of the broadcasting facilities in operation in the library and Austin Building, the operations of the tape-recorded program service of the college, and teaching by closed circuit television.

The Television Guild presented a short comedy, three character play, "Boor" by Chekhov. The cast was Alice Coriolano, E. T. Rogers, and Elizabeth Smith. The play was televised and those interested actually had a hand in televising the play in the second presentation.

The over-all purpose of the "Broadcasting Day" was three fold according to Miss Roulston: to acquaint participants with the professional broadcasting facilities of the college, to discuss possibilities for professional education in radio and television at the college, and to explore ways in which the college can increase its service to people in its area through broadcasting.

New Group Joins Interreligious Council

East Carolina College will have a new Church represented on its interreligious council starting this quarter. Mr. leveland Bradner, coordinator, of religious activities, has asked that a representative from the new Informal Christian Science college organization become a member of the interreligious council.

Elections chairman Jim Trice has announced that in a runoff election last week, Bill Crisp defeated Nancy Coggins for the office of freshman Senator. Crisp received 61 votes, while Miss Coggins received 56.

Freshmen officers elected earlier are David Rock, president; Bryce Cummings, vice president; and Ann Smith, treasurer.

Senate To Authorize By-Law Modifications

Actual student control of the college publications may be a reality in the near future.

A proposed change in the by-laws of the constitution where an 18-member student controlled Publications Board would replace the present 10-member Board was recommended to the Student Senate Monday night by the Board itself.

James H. Tucker, Director of Student Personnel, speaking for the Board, stated that the present Board, which contains only three students, would add eight new members, all students.

This would place ten students on the board plus eight faculty and staff members.

Senators Barney West, Pat Biggs, and Vice President Jimmy Owens offered to make the proposed changes in the by-laws and submit them to the Senate next week.

The present board includes the three editors of the publications, the three advisors, Dr. Messick, Dean Jenkins, Dr. Tucker, and Dr. Prewett. Added to the board would be the business managers of the publications the chairman of the handbook committee, the President of the student government, and two students elected by the Senate.

The decision to change the set-up of the board came from a recent

'My Three Angels' Promises Top Entertainment For Patrons

By PAT HARVEY

"What is that (nonchalantly) . . . week, it's a snake (upset) . . . is it poisonous? (inquisitively)", states Lynn Glassford as she meets Adolph, "The Three Angels" pal, in a rehearsal of the East Carolina Playhouse's first major production of the year, which is scheduled to open November 5 in McGinnis Auditorium.

Brewer Directs "My Three Angels," a hilarious comedy about convicts who have hearts and brains, is expected by the director, James A. Brewer, to be received with enthusiasm by the McGinnis patrons. Half of the actors are performing their first ECC play and one of these newcomers is an experienced actor. Mr. Brewer, faculty member and the director, is playing the part of one of the angels . . . a convict. Last year while at the University of Southern California, Mr. Brewer performed in the same part.

Angels Actually Convicts The three angels are actually three convicts, who begin the play doing manual labor on the roof of the Ducootel house. But, by the end of the first act, they are the recipients of the household's attention as the family drinks a toast in their behalf.

Jim Roper, who was last seen as the older son in "Death of A Salesman," and Ed Barclift complete the slate of angels. Filling the roles of the Ducootel family father, mother, and daughter—are Dan Yanchisin, who recently directed "Why I Am A Bachelor," one of the freshman plays; newcomer Lynn Glassford, and Leigh Dobson, an experienced ECC actress who last year was acclaimed highly for her memorable performance in "Death of A Salesman."

The remainder if the cast are Bill Faulkner, a mean, old man; Jane

Berryman, an unorganized, old weak; William Bowen, a weak, young man, and Ken Harris, a confused, young lieutenant.

Included on the technical staff for this production are Bill Faulkner, lights; Elizabeth Smith, house; Leigh Dobson, make-up; Rose Marie Gorn-to, scenery; Jane Berryman, publicity; Pat Roberts and Shelby Jean Grady, costumes; and Pat Harvey, secretary.

"My Three Angels" was made into a motion picture in 1954 and starred academy winner, Humphrey Bogart; Aldo Ray, and Peter Ustinov.

The Playhouse's next production will be "Diary of Anne Frank," popular 1955-58 Broadway play which starred Susan Strasburg.

Rehearsals Begin For 'The Messiah'

The first rehearsal of the chorus that will sing "The Messiah" December 13 at East Carolina College will be held in the Austin auditorium tonight from 6:15 to 7:15, and will continue each week at the same time until the presentation in December.

The chorus is open to all students and faculty and staff members, and also to anyone in the community who is interested in singing. Those who have never sung in "The Messiah" before are also invited to join the chorus. Sections will rehearse separately several times; so there will be no difficulty in learning parts.

Soloists for "The Messiah" will be chosen early in November. Soloist auditions will be held before an audition committee on dates to be announced next week.

This will be the ninth presentation of "The Messiah" to be given on the campus. It will be presented in Wright auditorium on December 13 at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang of the college music department will conduct the performance again this year. It is planned to have the East Carolina College Orchestra provide the accompaniment for the chorus.

Accompanists for the soloists will again be Mrs. Eleanor Toll at the piano and George Perry at the organ. All persons interested in singing in the chorus should come to Austin auditorium at 6:15, October 22.

board meeting in which there was a general opinion expressed that the publications themselves, including The Key, the student handbook, deserved better representation.

Although no poll has been taken, there appears to be little opposition to the proposed change and the motion should carry easily at the next Senate meeting Monday night.

Its passage would insure student control of publications which include The East Carolinian, The Buccaneer, and The Rebel.

Members of the present Board include Kathryn Johnson, editor of the East Carolinian; Drs. Edgar Hirschberg and Clinton Prewett, advisors; Euclid Armstrong editor of the Buccaneer; Drs. James Poindexter and Sam Dry, advisors; Dan Williams, Rebel editor; Ovid Pierce, advisor; Dr. John D. Messick, Dr. James H. Tucker, and Dr. Leo Jenkins.

Speaking of the proposed change, Student Government President Dallas Wells stated that it was an idea of the administration and it reveals on their part a "willingness to let the students control their own affairs."

President Wells called on the Senators to vote for the passage of the proposed change and to elect only qualified students to serve on the board.

Publications Board Adds More Student Members

Last week the Publications Board of the SGA made a move which will give students more authority and result in a more democratic method of selecting student editors for the three campus publications.

The all-powerful Publications Board (all-powerful in that they alone select the editors) has heretofore been composed of eight faculty and administrative members and only three students, the editors of the three campus publications.

Each year, this body, so heavily laden with non-students not only decides important issues in the publications field, but also elects the student editors.

The board unanimously voted last week to increase the student board membership to ten, giving the student voice a majority of two.

Added to the board will be the president of the Student Government Association, the editor of the student handbook, The Key; the business managers of the three publications, and two students selected at large by the Student Senate.

Not only will students have a larger vote in deciding issues and selecting the editors yearly, but the two students selected at large by the Senate will be able to inject the opinions of the general student body concerning publications.

This is indeed a step forward in the direction of more self-government. We urge the Senate to choose wisely in the selection of their additions to the Board. We also encourage anyone interested in the posts to contact SGA President Dallas Wells. K. J.

Safety Missed In Rawls

After editorials, committee work, and fire drills to insure safety of this campus community, we find a breach of the fire safety policy in Rawl Building.

There are no ash cans for the disposal of cigarette butts in the building. Smokers either grind their cigarettes into the floor of the recently constructed building or throw them into the cardboard boxes which have been placed in the halls for the disposal of paper and other trash. And even in a fire-proof building this is dangerous. Besides that, a floor laden with cigarette butts does not benefit this new classroom building.

We hope that this situation will be corrected immediately! K. J.

Rain? Here?

Sororities Move Forward Quickly

By TOM JACKSON

Wow, there goes another one. Word just came in. Pi Kappa sorority has gone national with Alpha Delta Pi. How many does this make? We've lost count already.

East Carolina's sororities are to be congratulated on their speed in getting organized and going national since they were approved last year. Have to admit they were a bit faster than fraternities. But then the fraternities "paved the way" for them in a sense.

Last week it rained here in Greenville as most of you know, but there are a few individuals who apparently don't admit that it ever rains. Or if they recognize rain they fail to admit that it makes mud.

For these individuals who don't recognize it, we'll pause here a minute to explain the meaning of mud. It is spelled M-U-D and is composed of dirt and water. Quite frequently it can be found in varying quantities on the ground around campus during and after the Greenville rainy season.

One of East Carolina's primary sources of mud is over on the Umstead Dorm lawn. Each time it rains the water ponds over there and as it dries out leaves a sea of mud completely surrounding the dorm.

Anyone who doesn't live over there should go over the next time we have a rain and try to get from the parking lot to the dorm. It's quite an experience. Kind of like playing hopscotch in a bed of quicksand.

Maybe the college authorities who are in charge of cement walks should go over and play around in that mud for a while. Then perhaps they would realize the need for a walk, bridge, or some other form of dry footing between the parking lot and the dorm.

The boys in Umstead would probably cover their feet with kisses if they would give them just a little walk. Even a swinging bridge, or a log, or stepping stones would help.

Why doesn't someone think of a use for the terrace over between the winds of the old chow hall. It's a very pleasant place; nice lawn, brick terrace, and even a fountain.

We understand it was intended originally as a terrace for a soda shop, but somewhere along the line it was discontinued and forgotten.

'Social Drinker' Causes Accidents

It is not the reeling drunk, but the respectable "social" drinker — the person rarely, if ever, visibly intoxicated — who is the worst killer on American highways.

This conclusion, based on accident statistics, is reported in an October Reader's Digest article, "Driver Had Been Drinking," by Paul W. Kearney. More than half of all highway deaths involve motorists not listed as "drunken drivers," but given the milder police symbol of HBD — "Had Been Drinking."

A growing body of evidence and opinion indicates, Kearney writes, that medical standards are measuring driver drunkenness (.15 per cent of alcohol in the blood proves intoxication; from .05 per cent up may suggest it) are far too liberal. Driving skill actually begins to slip measurably after more than one drink — or at about one fifth the level our courts consider intoxicating. Seven world medical authorities said at the Symposium on Alcohol and Road Traffic at the University of Indiana in 1958: "A blood alcohol concentration of .05 per cent will definitely impair the driving ability of some individuals . . . at a concentration of .10 per cent all individuals are definitely impaired."

The typical drinker reaches the .05 per cent level with two ounces of whiskey taken within an hour. If he takes four more in the next two or three hours, he probably will reach the .15 per cent level. But even at the lower point, a driver will have difficulty deciding what to do in an emergency involving judgment. Although hand and foot reaction time may still be good, he will take much too long deciding how to react. Also, he will develop an insouciant, "so what" attitude.

A visitor from abroad, preparing to return to her homeland, bought a television set to take back to her family. "Can't you buy a TV set in your own country?" she was asked. "Oh, yes, but American programs are so much better than ours." (The Reader's Digest)

Dollars, Dollars

Today's Problem: Our Own Economy

By DERRY WALKER

Thirty years ago this month, the bottom fell out of American's pocket-book. The stock market crash set off a blast that shattered nearly every bank and shattered every budget.

Businessmen . . . brokers, bankers, hardware salesmen, ditchdiggers, millions of people came home from their jobs because they no longer had jobs. Ex-millionaires put bullets through their brains, factory workers stood on street corners, housewives began to put up preserves, and Americans got hungry.

Baseball spurred new growth; youngsters were crowded off sandlots across the country by grown men who had nothing to do but play to pass away the time, and play to keep their minds off their troubles.

A sack of Bull Durham and some small papers constituted a smoker's tools for this habit. Little machines that rolled cigarettes out of the tobacco in sacks were popular; the cigarettes made that way looked almost like the real thing, but they didn't taste like it.

We have enough to eat today. Jobs are more than abundant compared to those that were available then. The unfortunate can be cared for in most cases. Bread lines are now for the destitute, the beggar, the incapable.

The problem we have today gives us none of these pains . . . at least not so unmercifully. Most subtle and just as disastrous in the long run, inflation can empty our pantries and shove our working men into the streets.

More and more crisp bills are needed to feed our faces, warm our backs, and fill our garages with horses and chrome; more it takes and yet we make no more, and he who made a comfortable living yesterday is pacing the bedroom floor at 2 a.m. today.

This is what will defeat us as a nation if we are ever defeated. Russia knows that a nuclear war would be senseless; we would only destroy each other. So Russia waits. She waits to see if we will defeat ourselves with our own economy. That way she wouldn't have to fight; she could just wait until the country fell to its knees as it did thirty years ago during the depression; if America fell to its knees again in such a manner, Russia would merely have to walk in and take over.

No, there will be no more war. The only fight we'll have to win to remain in existence is the battle of the bulging dollar . . . the dollar with a lot of fat and a little lean.

Commission Breaks Up Quiz Show Racket; But Only The Public Loses

With a final fling of testimony from the Federal Trade Commission which regulates advertising practices, congressional investigators are closing down their hearings into television quiz show rigging.

Columbia Broadcasting System announced last week that they are going to put an end to all television shows involving big cash awards or expensive prizes. National Broadcasting Company said they were going to implement every conceivable safeguard to see that such rigging will never take place again.

Actually, who was the loser in the whole rigged set-up? The viewing public may have been fooled, but they were well entertained. The advertisers were pleased with the results the show brought. Workers on the show got fat on increased salaries as their shows skyrocketed to fame. And the contestants on the show were well paid for their acting parts before the camera.

Perhaps the one point in the entire investigation which shocked the American public most was the remark by one of the officials from the now defunct "Twenty-One" show that the noted Charles Van Doren had accepted aid. In 1956-7 Van Doren won $129,000 on the show.

Charles Van Doren is the son of Mark Van Doren and the nephew of Carl Van Doren, notable names in the literary and academic circles. After he won the large amount of money on television, Charles became as famous as the other two Van Dorens. He was considered one of America's brightest minds. Then a professor at Columbia University, he was given a $50,000-a-year post with NBC.

In testimony before the New York County grand jury last year Van Doren denied getting help while a contestant. He repeated this later by telegram to the Washington subcommittee.

However, recently when a House subcommittee sought Van Doren to serve a subpoena on him for appearance for questioning, he was most reluctant. He left his home and only under great pressure did he return to accept his subpoena.

Since officials and other contestants had just sworn that "Twenty-One" was definitely rigged, Van Doren's reluctance to answer to the subcommittee gave a very bad impression.

As long as television continues to entertain, the public will not lose faith in it. But the public has lost faith in a man to whom almost every television viewer looked up . . . a man with a fine background full of tradition . . . a supposedly brilliant young American, . . . a college professor at one of our greatest universities.

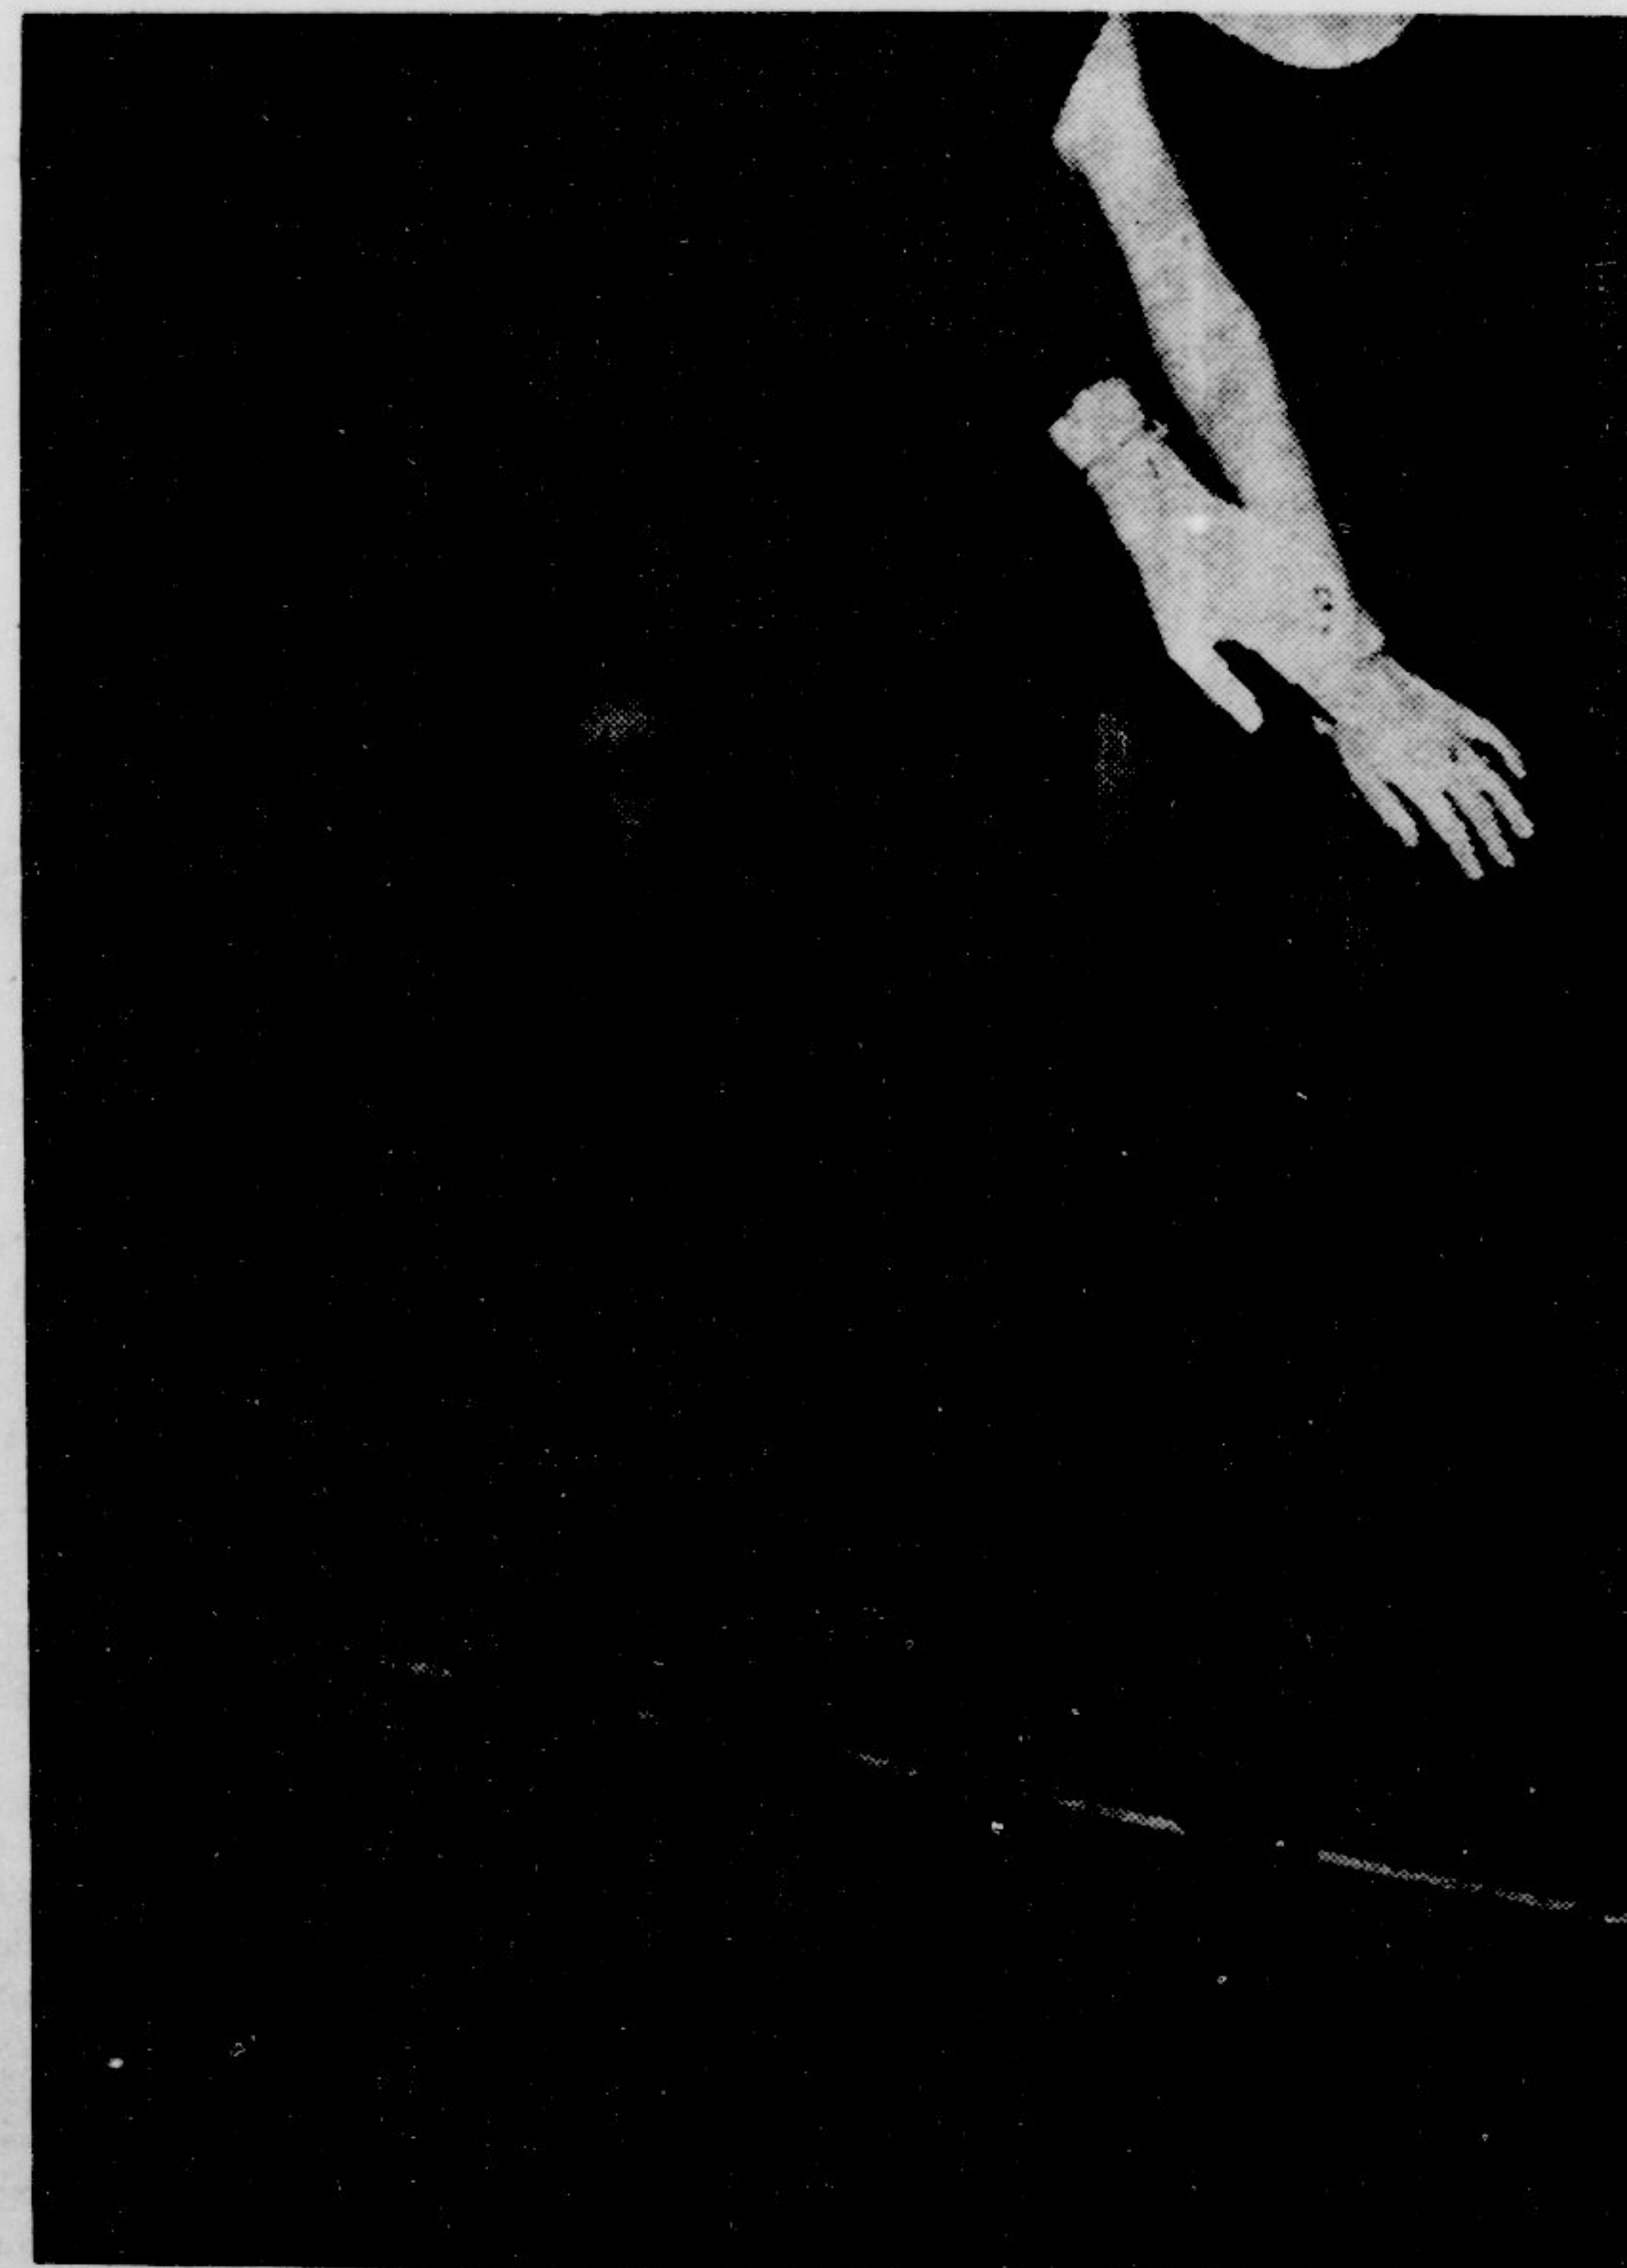

Next month when he appears for questioning, Van Doren will have a lot of explaining to do to the subcommittee and to the television-viewing public before he can raise his head again.

The public can forgive the networks for duping them. It will be easy to forgive all the "little people" who took their chances and earned big money on the rigged shows. But it will be much harder to forgive Charles Von Doren or the famous Van Dorens. K. J.

Passing The Bond Issue Will Insure ECC Money For More Improvements

Citizens of North Carolina have the opportunity to vote October 27 on a state-wide bond issue which, if approved by the voters, would insure East Carolina College $1,490,000 for the specific improvement projects.

Point number one in the nine point bond issue calls for the issuance of $18,891,000 State Education Institutional Capital Improvement Bonds of the State of North Carolina for capital improvements at the State's educational institutions and agencies.

If this section of the bond issue is passed the amount of money specifically earmarked for this college will be put to the following uses:

$189,200 for an addition to the campus heating plant.

$50,000 for improvement of the campus electrical system.

$96,800 for an addition to Graham Building.

$334,000 for a new wing to be added to Flanagan Building.

$78,000 for an addition to the infirmary.

$117,000 to renovate two men's dormitories, Slay and Umstead, to be used as women's dormitories.

$625,000 to off-set one-half of the cost of a new dormitory for 500 men students.

None of the items on the above list are luxury items. All are needed by this college to do the job it is supposed to do. Every one of the items is for improvements which were requested of the legislature this year, but were not appropriated because of the lack of state funds for this biennium.

Unless section one of the bond issue is passed, ECC, along with several other schools and institutions, may have to wait as long as two years to obtain money it needs so badly.

We hope that apathy and disinterest will not prevail and North Carolinians will go out and vote in favor of this money for education. For two long we've been almost at the bottom as far as the amount of money given to education is concerned. K. J.

Withey To Direct New Bern Drama

Highlighting the 250th Birthday Anniversary of New Bern, North Carolina, will be a historical drama, "The Third Frontier," written by Kermit Hunter, renowned author of historical dramas, and directed by Dr. J. A. Withey of the college faculty. The celebration, which will be the greatest in the history of New Bern, is scheduled for a two week period, June 11 thru June 25, 1960. "The Third Frontier" is the frontier of the future, New Bern as a growing, moving and progressing city. All three of the frontiers are made very prominent in the drama—the first being the Swiss, the second the palace, and the third the future. "Keeping democracy alive, keeping the city alive and growing, uniting our past and present and future." Dr. Withey, director of the E.C. Playhouse, announced that tryouts for some of the parts in the drama will be conducted sometime around the beginning of next year. "It is my hope that a number of people, working in the playhouse, will be trained enough to participate. This production will be done on a professional receiving pay," he explained. In addition to directing this drama, Dr. Withey also has tentative plans for the playhouse this summer. "We are trying to get a summer playhouse started during second session summer school. Students could sign up for between one to five credits per session but these credits would be flexible to allow more students to participate in the playhouse, commented Dr. Withey.

Women's Judiciary To Occupy Quarters In Wright Building

The Women's Judiciary will be moving into a completely remodeled office sometime in the near future. The Judiciary, now meeting in Austin, will move its headquarters over to room 205 in Wright. The new office includes a pine-paneled conference room and also a waiting room for the students.

Sadie Barber, chairman of Women's Judiciary, has reported that the SGA has given the men's and women's branches a joint amount of $549.42. She further stated, "We are very grateful for this money, and are now planning to use it to buy furniture for the new office."

The purpose of Women's Judiciary is, as Miss Barber explained, "to uphold the standards of the school, but our purpose is mainly to help the girls with any problem which they might have. We are always ready to listen to anything they might want to talk over with us."

The board meets each Tuesday evening at 6:30. At this time cases which have been referred to the Judiciary by the various house committees are reviewed. As indicated in the Key, the Judiciary "handles and interprets major offenses."

Miss Barber also stressed that if the girls are in doubt as to what constitutes a "major offense," they can refer to the handbook, where all offenses are listed, along with the penalties. Other members of Women's Judiciary besides Miss Barber are Nancy

Brown, vice president; Bonnie Burch, secretary; Becky Coley, treasurer; and Gail Cahoon, member-at-large. The other seven members are the presidents of the various girls' dormitories on campus.

Bucs Meet Newberry Saturday In Non-Conference Tilt

Cats Power Crushes Bucs In Second Half

By ROY MARTIN

East Carolina's Pirates had their first taste of defeat in conference play last Saturday night, when they were defeated 34-14 by a fired-up Western Carolina eleven on the Cata-mount's home field.

The loss dropped the Pirates out of the North State Conference lead, and into a two-way tie with Appal-achian. Both teams hold 3-1 confer-ence records.

West Carolina, sensing the im-portance of the contest, and fired-up to a high degree, bulled through East Carolina defenses, which in the past had created an enviable record of de-fensive strength.

WC's All-Conference quarterback, Bob Cooper held the spotlight most of the night with his strong passing arm. Cooper, a triple-threat per-former, passed for a total of 141 yards.

East Carolina won the toss and elected to receive. Pirate quarterback Ralph Zehring hauled in the boot, and returned it to the EC 33 yard line. Zehring then threw a 25 yard pass to James Speight which started a drive to the Cata-mount 30 yard line. The Pirates were unable to progress any further and the Cats took possession.

On the first play from scrimmage, Cooper rolled out to pass and it was intercepted by EC's Ralph Zehring, who scampered 13 yards to the WC 45 yard line. Zehring then threw to Dave Thomas for a first down, and Glenn Bass went 22 yards for another first down. James Speight then culminated the drive by going off-tackle for six yards and the first Pirate tally. Jerry Carpenter made good the conversion, and the score was 7-0.

After the first Pirate tally, West Carolina began their march. Cooper punted to East Carolina, and the ball rolled out of bounds on the ECC three yard line. The Bucs were forced to kick and WC took over on the East Carolina 47.

The Cats drove to the Pirate three yard line, and halfback Tom Broad-water cracked over for the touch-down. Cooper then hit Broadwater with a pass for the extra point and the Cata-mounts took the lead 8-7.

In the second period, WC again drove into East Carolina territory. Tom Broadwater again shone when he raced 19 yards, and raised the score to 14-7 in favor of the Cata-mounts.

In the waning moments of the second quarter EC climaxed a 66 yard drive with a touchdown, and tied the score 14-14.

West Carolina exploded in the second half for three touch-downs and one two-point extra point. Coop-er scored the first touchdown on a quarterback keep. Tobe Childers passed 23 yards to Jimmy Bryant for the second tally, and the Cooper-

Broadwater passing combination ac-counted for the third score.

The loss to West Carolina left the Pirates with a 4-2 over-all record, and a 3-1 record in North State Con-ference action.

Locals Out To Avenge 34-14 Defeat By WC

By LEONARD LAO

Out to avenge their first confer-ence defeat by a highly regarded Western Carolina eleven, 34-14, Coach

BILL CAIN . . . playing his last year as a Pirate. A Rockingham native, Bill is co-captain of the club along with Ed Emory.

Jack Boone's football aggregation travels to Newberry, S.C. this Satur-day to do battle with the Newberry Indians, a non-conference foe.

Newberry, holding a 3-2 won-lost record to date, are in the Little Three Conference along with Wofford and Presbyterian Colleges. But their won-lost record is misleading, for the losses came at the hands of two foot-ball powers, The Citadel and Lenoir Rhyne, which is by no means a dis-grace.

Coach George Tucker, who scouted Newberry, has very much respect for the squad. His reports show that the Indians have a wide open offense. They run from a double wing as well as a single wing. The South Caro-linians have a very explosive back-field led by fullback Seastruck, who scored four touchdowns in a winning cause against Troy State College of Alabama. There is little doubt in Coach Tucker's mind that Seastruck is the Indians' bread and butter man. Another dangerous man in the In-dian backfield is Bobby Walters, a 140 pound quarterback from Sum-ter, S.C. One of the finest passers in his conference, Walters could mean big trouble to the Pirates.

The Newberry squad is assured not to run out of manpower, for they use a platoon system. The Indians have three teams, all capable of giving opposing coaches sleepless nights. Depth is definitely no problem in the Newberry camp.

The Indians do not have an ex-ceptionally heavy team, but what they lack in weight they certainly make up in speed. As Coach Tucker states, "Those boys are really look-ing forward to this ball game. In order to beat them, we must play our best game of the season. We can't let the loss to Western Carolina dis-courage us."

Injured in the WCC game were end Bill Cain and guard Bob Greg-son. Cain should be ready for action against Newberry, but Gregson is expected to be sidelined for at least two weeks. Other than that, the Pi-rates will be in top physical form. Expected to carry the ground game for the Bucs will be the "touchdown twins," James Speight and Glenn Bass. Pirate quarterback Ralph Zeh-ring can also spell trouble for the Indians with his dangerous passing arm. Starting at the fullback slot should be Mac Thacker.

The forward wall will probably be the same with Cain and Dave Thomas at the ends, tackles Vernon Davis and Ed Emory, Wayne Davis and Jim Gordon at the guard positions, and Lynn Barnett at center.

Victor Borge, who had just bought a chicken farm in Connecticut, was asked if he knew anything about raising chickens. "No," he answered, "but the chil-dren do." (The Reader's Digest)

PIRATE'S DEN

By JOHNNY HUDSON

A true test of a really good team is their ability to come back after losing a game. East Carolina will get just that opportunity Saturday when it runs up against a strong Newberry outfit.

Many ECC followers were disappointed with the way the Western Carolina game went, but it was just one of those nights. Western Carolina was "up" in the highest form and it would have taken more than a North State club to whip them Saturday night before their large homecoming following.

Team Is a Good One

East Carolina battled the Cats on even terms during the first half but were never able to get position in the final half. Forced deep in their territory most of the final thirty minutes, the Pirates got off only nine rushing plays in the entire second half. Their backfield duo of James Speight and Glenn Bass never had a chance to show their speed on the muddy turf.

The Pirate contingent of 1959 is a good one — better than in past seasons — and won't fold following their first conference loss of the season. Coach Boone's club is a strong one and won't get beat by a weak team. ECC fans can rest assured that Western Carolina has all the ingredients of a good football team.

Pirates Drop to Second

Saturday's loss by East Carolina left the North State Conference more mixed up than a jig-saw puzzle. Four teams — and only four — were still very much in the running for the title following the final dust of Saturday's battles.

Lenoir Rhyne merged into first with their one-sided victory over Guilford. Appalachian took an easy verdict over Catawba to claim a tie with East Carolina for the second spot. Western Carolina — also with only one loss — is in the third spot.

The big game this week will pit the Bears against Western Carolina at Cullowhee. East Carolina will take on non-conference Newberry before sharpening their attack for successive invasions by Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne.

Many Records May Fall

Even though losing Saturday, the Pirate club was still near the top in many departments and moved closer to one of their better seasons. Their 14 points against WCC gave them 164 for the season — two more than their entire season total of 1958.

Glenn Bass has already scored as many touchdowns as last year's leader, Bobby Perry, and is only six yards short of his leading rushing average. James Speight is also having a banner season and should best his 1958 total this week against Newberry.

Sky king, Ralph Zehring is well on his way to his best season as a Pirate regular. He has been firing at near 50 per cent accuracy and has already carried the Bucs to five touchdowns through the air.

The season is just halfway over for the locals and they still have a hard row to hoe, but many records are in sight of this club. They have their work cut out but it is always more challenging when the road ahead is tough.

Predictions of the Week

East Carolina made up wrong for the first time last Saturday, but look for the Bucs to be back in the winner's circle this Saturday — say by 10 points over stubborn Newberry.

Carolina over Wake Forest by 12; Haven't picked the Deacs right yet so why change luck.

Duke over State by 8; Blue Devils finally get a chance to win another game.

Appalachian over Carson Newman by 30; Apps warm up for ECC tilt. Elon over Catawba by 12; Charlie Maidon carries Christian to first loop win.

Western Carolina over Lenoir Rhyne by 6; This is the one I would really like to see.

Other games:

- Georgia over Kentucky
- Mississippi over Arkansas
- Syracuse over West Virginia
- Yale over Colgate
- Northwestern over Notre Dame
- Ohio State over Wisconsin
- LSU over Florida
- Baylor over Texas A&M
- VMI over Davidson

EC Freshman To Battle Strong Fork Union

By ROY MARTIN

East Carolina's freshmen football-ers travel to Fork Union, Virginia, October 30, where they will do battle with a strong Fork Union Military Academy eleven.

In previous games, Fork Union has shown an unusually powerful team. They have easily beaten the Univer-sity of Virginia Frosh by a score of 52-0. They also romped over the Wil-liam and Mary freshmen to the tune of 42-0.

Coach Gary Mattock's charges are in good physical shape, and should be ready to give the Virginia military men a tough time of it when the "Baby Bucs" invade Fork Union.

Going into the Fork Union encoun-ter, the frosh record stands at 2-2. Their wins were over Frederick Col-lege and Chowan College. They have been defeated by The Citadel fresh-men and their last defeat came at the hands of Frederick in a return engagement last Saturday night in Portsmouth, Va.

The "Baby Bucs," who defeated Frederick September 24, in College Stadium, were overcome 13-6 by a fired-up Frederick squad, which was greatly aided by crucial breaks.

The Frederick eleven dominated the first half of play. The Lions marched 70 yards for their first tally in the first period. The Frede-rick squad scored on an off-tackle maneuver from the Pirate five yard line, culminating the drive.

Early in the second quarter, Jerry Ellis, Lion quarterback, rolled out and threw a long pass to John Caddie near the end one. Pirate defenders, attempting to break up the play, de-flected the ball into the hands of a Frederick lineman in end one for the second tally.

The second half of play saw quite a different picture. East Carolina completely ruled the action. The Bucs allowed Frederick to take possession of the ball only three times the en-tire second half.

East Carolina took the second half kick-off on their own ten and drove to the Frederick three, where they met a stone wall of Frederick de-fenders. Frederick took possession on the fourth down, and they too were unable to move the ball.

This type of action went on until the third period, when ECC quar-terback Carey Parker hit end Wayne Woolard with a long pass for the lone Pirate score.

Paul-Wainwright Win Table Tennis Tournery

Thomas Paul and Thomas Wain-wright captured the College Union's Fall Quarter Men's Doubles Table Tennis Tournament in play held Oc-tober 15. The left-handed drives and kill shots of Paul, and the steady right-handed forehand drives of Wainwright defeated the team of Roger Bullock and Ike Aiddick 21-18, 15-21, 21-13, 18-21, and 21-11.

In the fourth game Paul-Wain-wright led 18-12, when the under-spin chop defense of Riddick forced Paul into a series of errors which gave the losers 9 straight points, and the game. However, in the fifth game, Paul and Wainwright played more cautiously, and forced Bullock and Riddick into returning balls high enough for them to smash, and took the championship 21-11.

Bullock's well placed block shots and Riddick's tricky spin defense had upset last year's winners, Zuill Bai-ley-Norman Kilpatrick 21-18, 16-21, 21-13 in the round-robin play lead-ing up to the finals. In this match Kilpatrick was unable to use his forehand drives, and Bailey had trou-ble controlling his push shots.

Other top matches were Paul-Wainwright's defeat of the team of Bobby Hutchins-Albert Davis, 19-21, 21-10, and 21-15, Charles Munn-Ed-die Barcliff's win over Hubert Leg-gett-Nelson Tugwell, 21-18, 19-21, 22-20 in the tourney's closest match, and Leggett-Tugwell's 21-17, 20-22, 21-19 win over Barney Stratton and Alfred Bremer.

Second place in group "B" was

Mens Singles Set

The Fall Quarter College Union Men's Singles Table Tennis Tourna-ment, open to all E.C.C. students, is scheduled for Thursday, October 29, at 6:30 P.M. in the C.U. Recreation Area. All matches will be best of three games, except the semi-finals and finals, which will be best of five games.

A Consolations tourney, open to all players losing their first match-es, will be held along with the regu-lar event, so as to give players enter-ing more matches. As last year's two top players will not be entering the tournament, competition will be even-ly balanced, and players interested in entering may sign up in the Col-lege Union.

The family on vacation had been driving for hours in the high Rockies west of Denver, climbing and turn-ing, climbing and turning, around more and more precipitous curves, when the youngest son volunteered: "Mommy, this is the most miserable fun I ever had in my whole life!"
