

DON'T BORROW TROUBLE.

Borrowing is a poor business at the best; but of all the unsatisfactory, nor return for your pains occupations, the worst in the world is borrowing trouble. To begin with, it is based on fancy, crankiness, vaporings, undue nervousness or the mental or moral idiosyncrasies that should have been trained out of the individual long before the years of childhood were passed. There are few people in the world more depressing and disheartening than those who are always seeing some shadow of coming evil.

The world is somber enough even at the best, and it is scarcely worth while to go out seeking for shadows or to conjure up purely imaginary ones. As a matter of course, everybody must die some day, but that is no reason why there should be a constant apprehension and never ending weary lest ill befall them even while they are yet in good health. However hard and wearisome the path of life may be, no one yet made it easier or smoother by worry. It means nothing more or less than paralysis of all the brighter side of many natures.

Of course, those who worry do so because they are very unhappy and concerned about somebody, but it may be easily questioned whether those they are worried about are not made quite as unhappy as the worriers themselves. Take it all in all, philosophyizes the New York Ledger, it may be put down as fundamental rule of life that the old saying about never crossing bridges before one gets to them has as much profound philosophy in it as is possible to put into the same number of words.
