The REFLECTOR has received from Hon. R. B. Lacy, Commissioner, the eighth annual report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the State for the year 1894.

Washington officials report that for four months past there have been more emigrants from this country to Europe than immigrants to us. That is good, and we hope the emigration will continue. There is more European scum in the United States than we have any use for.

The high-handed measures resorted to by the Fusionist in the Legislature to insert Democrats and fill their places by Populists deserves the condemnation of every man who has any respect for justice and law, and unless we are mistaken they are receiving this condemnation pretty generally. Nobody ever met which was more regardless of every established custom of Legislation.

Words of Wisdom.

You can generally tell how much love there is in a man's heart by the way he opens his mouth.

Prospering in a worldly way is very apt to make men stop praying that they may be pure in heart.

There are people who never hear any music that suits them, except when they are playing first fiddle.

One of the first covenants that every young man ought to make with himself is that he will never run in debt.

Every sin has a dagger in its hand with which sooner or later it will strike, no matter how harmless it may look. Ram's Horn.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Special Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25, 1895. Secretary Gresham will submit some very interesting documents to Congress in response to the resolution adopted by the House, calling for information concerning the expenses of the Behring Sea commission, appointed by President Harrison, and the cost to the United States of carrying out the joint treaty between the United States, Great Britain and Germany to maintain the government of Samoa. These documents will show that members and supporters of the Harrison administration are in no position to criticize the foreign policy of the present or any other administration.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, introduced his financial bill in the Senate this week just as an ordinary bill is introduced, although he had hoped that it might have had the endorsement of the finance committee before it was formally brought to the attention of the Senate. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue in his discretion bonds at 3 per cent, up to $500,000,000; provides that the tax on national bank currency shall be one fourth of one per cent, and that they may issue currency up to the par value of the bonds deposited by them; also, for the unlimited coinage of silver, the government to retain as seigniorage the difference between the market value of the bullion and the face value of the money coined. Senator Smith, of New Jersey, also introduced a financial bill, which merely provides for the issue of bonds and the establishment of a non-partisan monetary commission, to investigate and report to Congress next December. There is no apparent change in the financial situation in the House, which has lately been looking to the Senate, if not for guidance, at least for a pointer.

The income tax won easily in its first legal contest. Judge Hagner, sitting in the equity branch of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, refused to grant an injunction asked for to prevent the collection of the income tax, and decided the tax to be valid. Appeal was noted.

The Long-Handled Dipper.

Among the last letters written by Dr. Holmes was one to Charles Follen Adams, acknowledging the receipt of his dialect poem: "Dot Long-Handled Dipper," in which the genial autocrat said: "I thank you for the fresh draft from this long-handled tin dipper which you have made a rival to the 'Old Oaken Bucket.' Some of my best drinks when I was a boy of fifteen at Andover were from a cocoanut dipper, but that was not destined to immortality like the more fortunate receptacles. I have always had a great liking for Yawcob and his young hopeful, and I hope they will long continue to make the world happier by their domestic history and family portraits."
