ANECDOTES OF GLADSTONE.

Home and Religious Life of the Greatest of Britain's Premiers.

"Some time ago," says Rev. Newman Hall, D. D., "I was preaching in the north of England and happened to stay at the house of a solicitor who had paid a recent visit to Hawarden merely as a tourist. On his return he entered a carriage in which there was seated a woman with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, which my friend admired. 'Mr. Gladstone gave them to me,' said the woman. 'Oh,' replied my friend, 'how was that?' He was then told that every servant who left the castle with a good character was invited to return and spend a week during the summer. 'I used to be a servant there,' continued the woman, 'but left because I was going to be married. I have, however, just been staying there a week and as I was leaving I met Mr. Gladstone in the garden. He asked me if I liked flowers, and when I said I did he gave me this bunch, which he had in his hand, saying: 'Pray accept them.'"

"Another incident," Dr. Hall went on, "which I had in my mind happened when Mr. Gladstone was chancellor of the exchequer and was told me by Sir Francis Crossley. Sir Francis was one day dining with the vicar of St. Martins-in-the-Fields, to which church Mr. Gladstone used to go when living in Carlton House terrace; it was then that he heard the story from the vicar. The vicar had recently been to see a crossing sweeper in his parish who was ill. Asking him if anyone had been to see him the sweeper replied: 'Yes, Mr. Gladstone.' 'Which Mr. Gladstone?' asked the vicar. 'Mr. Gladstone,' repeated the poor invalid. 'But how came he to see you?' inquired the vicar. 'Well,' answered the crossing sweeper, 'he always had a nice word for me when he passed my crossing, and when I was not there he missed me. He asked my mate, who had taken my place, where I was, and when he heard I was ill he asked for me and when he was told he put it down on paper. So he called to see me.' 'And what did he do?' asked the vicar. 'Why, he read some Bible to me and prayed,' was the reply."—Detroit Free Press.
