Hostage Says Lebanese Threatening Executions

By RODEINA KENAAN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A captive American said today that Lebanese Moslem kidnappers would kill him, two other U.S. hostages and an Indian at midnight unless Israel released 400 Arab prisoners.

"Our jailers will execute us at midnight," said Boston native Alann Steen, 47, in a handwritten note addressed to the wives of the four hostages and accompanied by a photograph of Steen.

The note and photograph were delivered to the Beirut office of a Western news agency.

Midnight Beirut time is 5 p.m. EST.

"We ask our wives and the American people to put pressure on our government to order the Israeli government to guarantee the liberation of the 400 Palestinian mujahedeen (holy warriors) before midnight," the agency quoted the message as saying.

It was not clear if the kidnappers demanded that the 400 be released today, or if they would be satisfied with an Israeli promise that the prisoners would be freed.

Israel said it would not free the prisoners because of the threat.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said today Israel has received no request from the United States to free prisoners. "Nobody has approached Israel on this issue, and Israel won't take any initiative on its own." He said Sunday Israel would not give in to threats, but that his government is willing to discuss trading the 400 prisoners for an Israeli airman downed in Lebanon.

A six-minute videotape of Steen was delivered early Sunday to a Western news agency in the name of Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine. The previously unknown group abducted him and the three other educators Jan. 24 from Beirut University College's campus.

Reading in a monotone, the weary-looking Steen said: "If our lives are important to America, it must order Israel to release the 400 Palestinians as soon as possible — that is, Monday as a maximum."

Beirut radio stations said two bullet-riddled bodies were found on a street in the capital's Moslem western sector today. Police said later both dead men were Palestinians. Palestinian guerrillas have been fighting

N.C. Legislators Return To Face Budget Battles

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin's $19.6 billion budget proposal and an overpopulated prison system confronted state legislators who returned to Raleigh today for the convening of the 1987 General Assembly.

The session, which legislative leaders say probably will last until early July, was to get under way at 1 p.m.

"In the eyes of some, it will be a comedy, and in the eyes of most, it will be some very serious and interesting business," said Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, who was expected to be elected to an unprecedented fourth term as House speaker.

"I think it'll be a right interesting session," added Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir. "Roads, schools, lottery, pornography. We'll talk about them all."

Legislators arrived at the Legislative Building this morning carrying everything from coffee pots and potted plants to personal computers. Sylvia Fink, principal clerk for the Senate, scurried to get the chamber telephone working and checked Senate stamps to make sure they had the correct date.

As usual, the Legislature's biggest task will be shaping a biennial state budget. Democratic leaders say Martin's spending program, with its emphasis on education, mirrors their ideas.

But while Martin's call for full funding of the Basic Education Program by fiscal 1988-1989 has drawn praise, his call for limited statewide implementation of the Career Ladder Plan for teachers will encounter opposition from the teachers' lobby and some lawmakers.

Another controversial Martin proposal is the issuance of up to $2 billion in bonds to create a pool from which

Dentists Offer Valentine 'Gift' To The Community

They're "Doctors With A Heart," say Greenville dentists Robert Capps and Danny Qualliotine, and the two challenge other dentists and physicians to show they are too.

As a valentine gift to the community, Qualliotine and Capps will open their office at 1012 Charles Blvd. to persons needing free emergency dental work. The two doctors say they hope to target persons who otherwise might not receive dental care.

From 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Capps and Qualliotine will provide emergency dental service free of charge on a first-come, first-served basis.

The project is part of a nationwide doctors' and dentists' movement designed to show appreciation to the community on Valentine's Day.

"We've had 10 good years in practice in Greenville," Qualliotine said. "So we're delighted to show our gratitude in this way."

Eighteen members of the Family Dentistry office staff have volunteered to assist the dentists without pay as their part in this project.

Services that will be offered include dental cleaning, examinations, consultations, extractions, nerve treatments, temporary and permanent fillings, and smoothing broken teeth, as well as other services that can be completed in one visit.

"We hope the people who will take advantage of this offer are those who have genuine needs," Qualliotine said, "but we're going to do what we do with no questions asked."

Capps said, "As fine as public welfare programs are, there are many people who have urgent needs and cannot afford to have them met. These are the people we plan to serve on Valentine's Day."

Any physician or dentist wanting more information on the "Doctors With A Heart" may contact the Family Dentistry office, Qualliotine said.

Memo Shows Bush Was Told Of Arms Deals With Radicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, after insisting for months that it had been dealing only with moderate factions in Iran, acknowledged today it is hard to pin an accurate label on the group with which it established contacts.

"The question of moderates and radicals is a semantic difference in terms," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. "We were hoping for moderates in the sense of elements who were willing to work with us, but you can define moderates and radicals in hundreds of different ways, particularly in Iran."

The administration's earlier assertions about dealing with moderates were called into question by the disclosure of a secret memo, showing that an Israeli official told Vice President George Bush the contacts actually were with radicals.

The memo, prepared by a Bush aide and first reported in Sunday's editions of The Washington Post, states that Israeli Amiram Nir "reviewed what had been learned, which was essentially that the radical group was the group that could deliver."

At a briefing for reporters, Fitzwater was ambiguous about whether the administration would continue to use the term "moderates" in describing its Iranian contacts.

"I'm not going to rule in our out any term," he said. "We'll probably use it, probably, maybe not use it." He said the whole issue over describing the group "doesn't change a thing. The initial reason for the dialogue was to try to establish a relationship with some elements favorable to the United States. Call them moderates, call them whatever."

Fitzwater, Bush's spokesman at the time of the vice president's meeting with Nir, said the information from the meeting was reported to Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, who was later fired from the National Security Council for his role in the Iran arms sales and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Nir also spoke of talks with the Iranians that would lead repeatedly to delays.

"According to Nir, 'The reason for delay is to squeeze as much as possible as long as they have assets'" — apparently a reference to the hostages — the memorandum said. "They don't believe that we want overall strategic cooperation to be better in the future."

Car Bomb Kills 15

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Police said a car bomb killed at least 15 people today and sparked an inferno at a gas station in a Shiite Moslem neighborhood of Beirut.

They said the bomb went off at 2:45 p.m. in a white Mercedes-Benz parked near the filling station in the Rowess district on the southern outskirts of the capital.

Dozens of people were wounded by the blast, police said.

Ambulances and fire engines raced to the scene with sirens wailing. Radio reports said Shiite militiamen blocked off the area.

Militiamen fired automatic rifles in the air to clear the way for ambulances and cars evacuating the wounded, witnesses reported.

Officials Expecting Free Food Program To Receive Funding

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

A program that distributes free cheese, butter and other commodities to 10,000 needy Pitt County residents apparently will continue if President Reagan doesn't veto a bill passed by Congress last week, according to state agriculture officials.

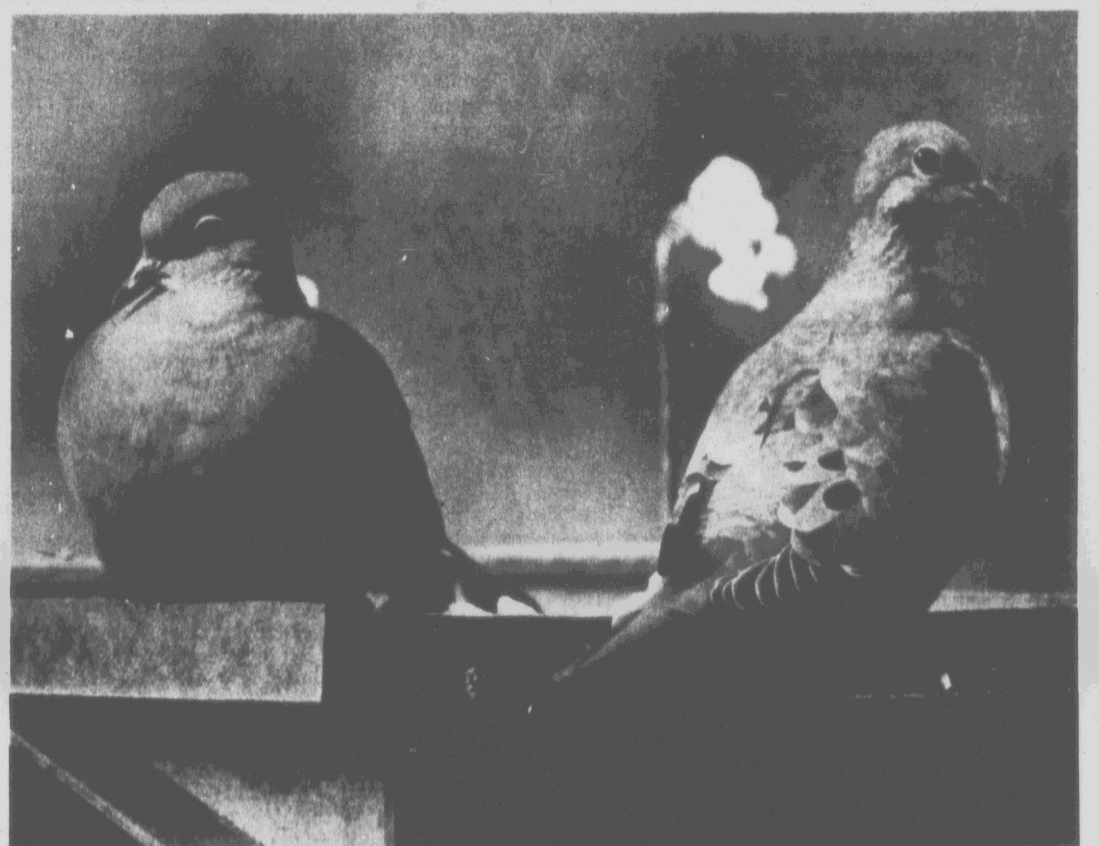

Eligibility specialist Debbie Ryals of the Pitt County Department of Social Services said that information from the state indicates that the president is expected to sign the bill to refund the program early this week.

Pitt County Department of Social Services Director Edward Garrison had received no information on the continuation of the program Friday. He was not available for comment today.

The legislation, which passed the Senate in late January and the House Wednesday, disapproves the Reagan administration's deferral of $28.6 million in administrative funds for the program in 1987, U.S. Department of Agriculture spokeswoman Dianne Durant said.

Bill Ray, food distribution director for the N.C. Department of Agriculture, said administrative funds for the program have been restored, which means

In The Area

Pot Discovered

Pitt County deputies are investigating the discovery of about eight pounds of marijuana — worth about $8,000 in street value — in an abandoned house two miles east of Fountain on Route 1, Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley said today.

Members of the Fountain Volunteer Fire Department turned up the marijuana in a routine search of the building which was to be burned in a practice drill Sunday afternoon, Oakley said.

Firemen search the houses for living things before burning them, according to Oakley.

Committee Meets

The Fireman's Relief Fund Committee of the city of Greenville will conduct an annual meeting on Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the first floor conference room of the Municipal Building to receive the annual report.

Dental Survey

Students in several Pitt County schools recently participated in the North Carolina Oral Health Survey.

Local schools selected for the survey were A.G. Cox, Belvoir, Bethel, G.R. Whitfield, J.H. Rose and Sam D. Bundy.

Pitt County public health dental hygienist Donna Hatcher said the purpose of the survey is to determine how much tooth decay and gum disease exists among children in the state. The results of the survey will provide information for planning health and education programs needed for school children.

The survey, funded by a grant from the Kate B. Reynolds Health Care Trust, was conducted by the Dental Health Section of the N.C. Department of Human Resources Division of Health Services in cooperation with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction and the University of North Carolina School of Public Health in Chapel Hill.

Each child approved was examined for tooth decay and gum disease.

PDCA Meeting

The Down East chapter of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America (PDCA) will meet Tuesday at the Three Steers Restaurant, Memorial Drive.

A paint presentation will be made by Charles Squires of Glidden Paints.

Dinner will be served at 6:45 p.m., with the program following.

The meeting is open to persons affiliated with the painting and decorating of commercial and residential buildings. For information call Charles at 756-1833 (days) or Cathy at 758-6487 (evenings).

Forum Scheduled

Pi Sigma Alpha, the national political science honor society, will have a forum on the "Role of Religion in Politics" Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in room 224 of Mendenall Student Center at East Carolina University.

Panelists include state Rep. Coy Privette; the Rev. Kent Kelly of Calvary Memorial Church; Roger Sharpe, director of the First Amendment Freedom Foundation, and George Gardner of the American Civil Liberties Union. Judge Gerald Arnold of the state Court of Appeals will moderate the forum.

University Women

The American Association of University Women will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Humber House, West Fifth Street.

Dr. Gene Lanier, professor in the library and information studies department at East Carolina University, will speak on "Intellectual Freedom and the First Amendment." For more information, call Maureen Lambe at 756-1667.

GUC Board

The Greenville Utilities Commission board will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the utilities building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington streets.

Lincoln Dinner

The third annual Lincoln Day Dinner sponsored by the Pitt County Republican Party will be held Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton Greenville on Greenville Boulevard.

Phillip Kirk, secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, will be the speaker at the dinner.

Jack Hawke, the state Republican Party chairman, will also attend the dinner.

Thefts Reported

Investigators said five thefts were reported to Greenville police over the weekend.

Officer C.A. Elks said a camera was taken from a car parked at 805 Johnston St. in an incident reported at 3:18 a.m. Saturday, while Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said a purse containing $60 in cash was taken from the Kinder-Care Learning Center at 2236 Stantonsburg Road in an incident reported at 12:10 p.m.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a purse containing 30 cents in change was taken from a car parked at the Rivergate Shopping Center on East Tenth Street in an incident reported at 2:48 p.m., while Officer J.M. Jones said a 1982 model car was taken from a lot at 803 E. Fifth St. in an incident reported at 3:01 p.m. The car was recovered about 8:30 p.m. on the East Carolina University campus.

Laughinghouse said a purse containing $2 in cash was taken from the Unlimited Touch on West Fifth Street Saturday, in an incident reported at 12:57 p.m. Sunday.

Arrests Made

Two men were arrested on drug charges by Greenville police Friday.

Officer A.P. White said Virgil Clayton Leque, 21, of Newport was charged with possession with intent to sell and deliver marijuana in connection with an 11 p.m. incident at the Rafterns on East Fifth Street.

White said Bradley K. Dehmlow, 25, of Newport was charged with aiding and abetting possession with intent to sell and deliver marijuana in connection with the same incident.

Assault Incidents

Greenville police arrested four people in connection with two separate assault incidents reported to the department Sunday.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said Bobby Gene Simpkins, 30, of Lot 5, Shady Knoll Trailer Park, was charged with carrying a concealed weapon (a knife), child abuse and two counts of assault on a female in connection with a 3 p.m. incident at S-1 Wilson Acres apartments.

Officer R.L. Smith said Jeffrey Lee Buck, 24, of Route 4, Greenville, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury about 4:25 a.m.

Smith said Buck was charged in connection with the stabbing of Richard Bruce Williams, 28, of Route 2, Greenville, that occurred about 1:40 a.m. at Carolina East Center on South Memorial Drive.

Smith said Williams was charged with assault and two counts of damage to real property and Jimmy Ray Mayo, 22, of Route 2, Grimesland charged with communicating threats in connection with the incident.

Scout Awards

Susan Warren of Robersonville was presented the Outstanding Scouter Volunteer award for service to handicapped youth by the East Carolina Council of the Boy Scouts of America at the council's recent annual banquet.

Mrs. Warren, an elementary school teacher at Carver Elementary School in Pinetops, has served as a scout leader to handicapped youth for 10 years.

Also recognized were members of Explorer Post 950 and leader Michael Langley. The Burroughs Wellcome Post received a round-up award for 1986.

Lt. Col. Tom Parsons of Greenville, an instructor at Kinston High School, was acknowledged for outstanding leadership in the council's 50-mile hike and Woodbadge training course for adult leaders.

Officers for the 1987 scouting year were also installed. Area residents who will be serving on the board include Jesse Moye of Greenville, vice president of varsity scouting, and Joe Goodson, council commissioner.

Republican Women

The Republican Women's Club recently met to discuss plans for Wednesday's Lincoln Day dinner. The club will meet again March 4.

Plans Approved

Another step toward beginning construction on Martin Community College's $800,000 planned equine arena. Trustees approved final plans for the facility, which were unveiled late last week at a meeting with legislators, county officials and others.

The construction schedule has been divided into three phases, the first of which is the building's shell. One part of the final phase, a lecture hall, is still under study.

The first phase is slated to include the actual arena and laboratory, to be followed by stalls. Architects predict that all phases can be completed by October 31, if construction can begin on schedule about mid-May.

The board also approved paying the architectural associates an extra $3,500 for services beyond the original contract. The increase had already been approved by the N.C. Department of Community Colleges board.

NAACP Celebration

A number of people gathered at Cornerstone Baptist Church Sunday night for a mass meeting Emancipation Proclamation celebration, sponsored by the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP.

"Where Do We Go From Here" was the subject of speaker Morris

Shearin Sr., the vice president of the state NAACP.

The program also included a congregational singing of "Lift Every Voice and Sing," and Greenville City Councilman Ed Carter extended greetings.

Jennifer F. Smith read the Emancipation Proclamation during the program, and music was provided by Voices of Cornerstone.

Special Speaker

The Rev. Bob Buse of Faith Christian Fellowship International Church, Tulsa, Okla., will be the speaker at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Community Christian Church. He is an administrator with the World Outreach Program. For more information, call 756-8191.

Meetings Set

The Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service will hold information meetings on tobacco and swine production in Pitt County communities throughout the month of February.

Community meetings are scheduled at the following times and places: Wednesday, 7 p.m., Bethel

Rotary Club; Thursday, 7 p.m., Ayden Courthouse; Feb. 19, 7 p.m., Farmville Community Center; Feb. 25, 7 p.m., Grimesland Elementary School, and Feb. 26, 7 p.m., Chicod Elementary School.

Notices concerning these meetings are being mailed to tobacco growers and swine producers, according to Pitt County extension agents Mitch Smith and Phillip Rowan.

For further information call 752-2934.

Bidding Period

Farmers who want to bid to enter their highly erodible cropland into the United States Department of Agriculture's 10-year Conservation Reserve Program have from Feb. 9 to Feb. 27 to do so, according to USDA officials.

In Pitt County, only steeply sloping fields of Aycock, Craven, Exum and Wagram soils qualify. Flat fields which require drainage do not meet soil loss criteria and will not be eligible, according to Soil and Conservation criteria. Local SCS offices are offering assistance with determining eligibility.

For more information call 752-2720.

Memo Says Bush Told

The memo, written by Craig L. Fuller, Bush's chief of staff, acknowledged that Israeli contacts with Iran were aimed in part at freeing Americans held in Lebanon. And it provides a view of a more active Israeli role than Jerusalem has acknowledged in the U.S.-Iran arms dealings.

But most vividly it contradicts repeated assertions by President Reagan that the contacts and weapons sales were exclusively with moderate elements of the Tehran government.

"We are dealing with the most radical elements..." Nir told Bush, according to the memo. "They can deliver... that's for sure... We've learned they can deliver and the moderates can't."

Stephen Hart, a spokesman for Bush, would not comment on the memo beyond acknowledging that it is authentic.

In related developments: — Pentagon sources told The Associated Press that the aircraft carrier Kennedy remained in port today in Haifa, Israel, while the carrier Nimitz and its battle group continued routine patrols off the coast of Lebanon.

The sources, who requested anonymity, also said two Marine amphibious groups completed their assignments in the eastern Mediterranean. A group of roughly 1,900 Marines is sailing for the port of Malaga, Spain, where it will make a brief port call before heading back to the United States, said one official.

A second group of roughly 1,900 Marines remains at sea and is steaming east in the Mediterranean to link up with the Nimitz, the source said.

The sources also disclosed that the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk had completed its assignment in the Indian Ocean and was sailing in the central Arabian Sea, south of the Persian Gulf.

—Secretary of State George P. Shultz on Sunday blamed the citizens of Beirut for what he called a plague of abductions in the Lebanese capital. At least 26 foreigners — eight of them Americans — are believed to be hostages of Moslem extremist groups in Lebanon.

"The people of Beirut have a responsibility for their own community," he said on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley." "And they are not exercising it."

—Former CIA Director William J. Casey was involved closely with North in efforts to supply military help to the Contras while such assistance was banned by Congress, according to a report in Sunday's Miami Herald.

The newspaper, citing official documents and knowledgeable sources, said Casey and North traveled to the Middle East and Central America during a period from 1984 to 1986 seeking assistance for the rebels.

—North met several times, including over dinner, with a wealthy Connecticut woman who bankrolled at least part of a pro-Contra lobbying drive, the woman, Barbara Newington of Greenwich, Conn., has acknowledged.

The meetings suggest a close link between North and the efforts of Mrs. Newington's friend, Carl "Spitz" Channell, to put together a costly public relations blitz.

Channell, through a network of conservative groups he controls, financed speaking trips by Nicaraguan rebels and a television ad campaign of at least $1 million that targeted congressional opponents of Reagan's plan to give $100 million in military and other aid to the Contras.

The source of the funds has come into question, with congressional and federal investigators examining a report in the Lowell (Mass.) Sun that North provided profits from Iranian arms sales for the campaign.

Bush aides, speaking on condition they not be identified, told The New York Times in today's editions the information Bush received in the secret memorandum also had been presented independently to some senior Reagan aides through intelligence and other sources.

The memo provides details of a July 29 meeting in Jerusalem between Bush and Nir, terrorism adviser to Shimon Peres, then the Israeli prime minister.

Besides saying the Iranian radicals could deliver, it added that the efforts to reach out to the Iranians had "tactical and strategic" goals.

"The tactical layer was described as an effort 'to get the hostages out,'" the memo said. "The strategic layer was designed 'to build better contact with Iran and to insure we are better prepared when a change (in leadership) occurs.'"

Reagan has insisted repeatedly that dealings with Iran were aimed at establishing contacts with moderates in Tehran. In his State of the Union address Jan. 27, the president for the first time acknowledged a link between the contacts with Iran and the American hostages, saying, "Certainly, it was not wrong to try to secure freedom for our citizens held in barbaric captivity."

Nir has declined to talk to reporters, and Israeli government officials have said they will not react to every newspaper report on the Iran-Contra affair.

Israeli officials have said frequently that their government's role was minor.

Food Funding Eyed

the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program will not be cut off next month.

The program provides surplus butter, cheese, dried milk, honey, flour, rice and corn meal to needy families.

"We feel good about it" being continued, Mrs. Ryals said. "It has helped a lot of people in the community and we are glad it is going to continue."

"We had gotten a lot of calls from people in the community most concerned and upset and wanting it to continue," she said.

The February food distribution in the county will be held Feb. 18 and Feb. 19. This distribution was scheduled to be held even if the program was discontinued. The county had surplus funds and the commodities were available for this distribution.

At a Jan. 27 meeting of the Pitt County DSS, Garrison told the board members the commodities program was "on the verge of being terminated."

Garrison said, "The states won't receive any money, and the N.C. Department of Agriculture said it can't administer the program unless the administrative money is available."

"It looks like the program, unless state funds are available, will no longer be in existence as of January 1987," the director said at the January meeting.

Ray said enough food exists in state warehouses to continue the program through February and part of March. He said the U.S. Department of Agriculture apparently will provide additional food from its Atlanta office.

The administration wanted to defer the administrative funding to provide all federal employees a 3 percent pay raise.

The proposed 1988 federal budget calls for elimination of the food program's $50 million in administrative funding nationwide because the Reagan Administration believes states should share the program's cost. North Carolina receives $1.2 million annually in administrative funds.

"This is a program that has touched a large portion of the community" in the four years of its existence," Mrs. Ryals said after the late January board meeting. "There has been good community response and the program has gone smoothly administratively."

The county commodities distribution, directed by Mrs. Ryals, is staffed by volunteers. Any individuals or civic organizations wishing to assist in the distribution should contact the local DSS at 758-2167.

The car bombing was the first in the Moslem sector of Beirut this year. There have been two car bombings in 1987 in east Beirut.

A car bomb exploded in Christian east Beirut's Zalka district Jan. 30, killing five people, including two children, and wounding 37.

Former President Camille Chamoun was wounded Jan. 7 in a car bombing in east Beirut. Four people were killed, and 35 were wounded.

By police count, at least 113 people died and 658 were wounded in seven car bombings in east Beirut in 1986. Two car bombings in the Moslem western sector of the capital last year killed 36 people.

Reduction

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Dare County officials have scaled back a commission designed to push for the construction of jetties at Oregon Inlet, cutting its membership from 11 to five.

The board of commissioners voted 4-1 for the reduction and changed the name of the panel from the Oregon Inlet Commission to the Dare County Oregon Inlet and Waterways Commission.

GUILTY ABOUT LOOKING BETTER?

You probably feel a great satisfaction when a decayed or damaged tooth is repaired and returned to good health again by your dentist. But what about dental work that's done to improve your appearance? Does this make you feel guilty? It shouldn't. How you feel about yourself depends quite a bit on how you look. That includes how you look when you smile.

If you have chipped teeth, teeth that are crooked or misshapen, this affects your appearance. How about teeth that are too long or too short, or teeth that have wide gaps between them? All of these conditions can be changed by your dentist so your teeth and your smile will look as attractive as possible.

Neglecting decayed or damaged teeth or infected gums is bad for your health. Prompt treatment can save your teeth. Treatment to improve the appearance of your teeth and mouth is also important for your sense of well being. Call my office for an appointment and let's talk about cosmetic dentistry to improve your appearance.

Freed Dissidents Not Convinced Of Policy Shift

By CAROL J. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Newly released political prisoners said they did not know why they and dozens of others have been freed in recent weeks, and hesitated to interpret the leniency as a major change in Kremlin policy.

"I don't even know the content of the order by which I was freed," said Lev Timofeyev, who had been sentenced for sending abroad materials criticizing the government.

He said Sunday that he and 10 other prisoners at a labor camp in the Perm region of the Ural Mountains were given train tickets to Moscow last week.

In Vienna, Austria, Soviet officials today for the first time confirmed that about 50 political prisoners had been pardoned recently by the Supreme Soviet, the Soviet Union's nominal parliament.

The officials said more prisoners would be released soon.

Dissidents in Moscow have said at least 43 prisoners have been released recently and another nine have been moved from prisons to facilities closer to home, usually a first step in the release process.

The series of releases was the most extensive since thousands of political prisoners were freed from prison camps in the 1950s after Josef Stalin's death.

Asked what it meant for human rights activists, Timofeyev replied, "Let us see. Let us hope that this process will be going on and all of us who were in the camps, all of the political prisoners, will be released."

One of those released, Sergei Grigoryants, said a warden at Chistopol Prison, where he was serving a 10-year sentence, showed him a list of 51 prisoners who would be released early.

Another released prisoner, Roald Zelichenok, arrived at Moscow's Kazansky train station Sunday after a 57-hour trip from a prison camp in Turkestan, in the republic of Kazakhstan, where he was serving a three-year term for anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

After a tearful reunion with his wife Galina, Zelichenok, still in blue prison garb and revealing a shaved head under his fur hat, told reporters he was happy to be free but added, "There are still many left behind."

Vadim Jankov of Moscow told The Associated Press he was freed two weeks ago midway through a seven-year sentence for anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda, the standard charge against dissidents.

"The general sense was that a lot of people have positive feelings about this, but are afraid to read much into it," he said.

Human rights activists Andrei Sakharov and Yelena Bonner reported earlier that nine dissidents, including Anatoly Koryagin and Sergei Khodorovich, had been moved from prisons to facilities close to home.

Sakharov, a physicist and Nobel Peace Prize laureate, said the transfer "fits the pattern" authorities follow before they release prisoners.

Raisa Uvarova, mother of two Georgian dissidents, called the AP from her home in Tbilisi on Sunday to report at least four other Georgian human rights activists had been moved from labor camps to the KGB jail in Tbilisi.

Her sons, Tengiz and Eduard Gudava, were among those Sakharov said were transferred last week.

Those contacted after their release and other dissident sources in Moscow said as many as 1,500 Soviets are believed still incarcerated for their beliefs. They said the wave of releases does not appear to be part of a broader pardon.

The releases came six weeks after Sakharov and Bonner returned from internal exile in the closed city of Gorky. The government also released other prominent dissidents last year, including Anatoly Shcharansky, Yuri Orlov, Irina Ratushinskaya and Tatyana Osipova.

U.S. Officials Disagree On Pact Interpretation

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, indicating a further administration tilt toward a broad interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty regarding "Star Wars," says he sees the need to test key elements of the missile defense system.

Shultz defended the broad interpretation Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," while differing with Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger on when to make the deployment decision on Star Wars, formally known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

"The program itself has been designed given the restrictions in what's called the narrow interpretation, and the program's made a lot of progress," Shultz said of SDI.

"But it is clear enough now, given the progress that has been made, that you'd be able to pursue the program much more effectively and perhaps only if a different pattern of testing is permitted," he said, arguing for the broad interpretation.

"No doubt there are things you probably couldn't test adequately under the narrow definition which it's very desirable to test," he said.

Under a strict interpretation, the ABM treaty forbids either side from developing defensive systems or testing them before deployment. A broad interpretation would allow some testing.

When President Reagan announced the SDI program four years ago, he said it should be a research effort aimed at developing high-tech, futuristic defenses against nuclear attack. Proponents of the program said the earliest date for deploying any system would be late in the next decade.

But Weinberger says research has moved faster than expected, and he and other SDI supporters are pushing Reagan to make a deployment decision before he leaves office in two years.

In an interview broadcast Sunday by the British Broadcasting Corp., Weinberger said the United States is not yet ready to make a final decision, but he added that following the presidential decision, the first phase of Star Wars could be deployed "somewhere in the 1993-1994 range."

"Two or three years ago, people were talking about the year 2000. That's just an indication of how much more progress we've made on the research program," he said.

Other administration officials, particularly Shultz, say no such decision is likely soon.

Shultz said Sunday that SDI should not be started "until you are clear and confident about what you — where you're going."

"So that's where we stand. And so there isn't any early deployment decision in the offing," Shultz said.

Shultz said President Reagan's position on early deployment was that "it's not possible to make any such decision this year or next year." Shultz said he was echoing remarks made by Weinberger in the BBC interview.

However, Weinberger's comments in the BBC interview appeared to refer to the actual phased deployment of Star Wars, not the specific decision on early deployment.

"We don't really know," the defense secretary said, when asked about a timetable. "We know we can't do it now. We know we can't do it next year. But we also know that it takes a fair amount of time to plan anything as important and far-reaching as that."

Weinberger repeated his position that "I want to deploy it. I believe the president wants to deploy, just as soon as we can."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., also speaking on ABC on Sunday, said he had not yet decided if the broad interpretation is correct, but he warned the administration should not make that interpretation without first consulting the Senate.

"A unilateral reinterpretation by the president of the United States without consultation with the United States Senate, who ratified the treaty under another premise, and without advance consultation with allies ... I think that would be a very bad mistake," he said.

But Shultz said Sunday the administration would not undertake such a decision without first consulting with Congress and U.S. allies.

Nunn, chairman of the Armed Services Committee and one of Capitol Hill's most respected national security experts, warned President Reagan last week that changing the U.S. view of the treaty "would provoke a Constitutional confrontation of profound dimensions."

The 1972 pact bars either the Soviet Union or the United States from basing anti-missile defenses in space. But it allows each side to have up to 100 ABM missiles around the national capital or a missile site. While the Soviets have land-based system around Moscow, the United States has none.

The ABM pact also limits the type of research and testing of defensive systems, and while some U.S. research efforts had remained ongoing since 1972, there was no large-scale American drive to develop defenses. But the treaty language about research and testing is somewhat ambiguous.

The United States had interpreted the treaty in a "restrictive" fashion. But in 1985, after a review, the administration said it would adopt a less restrictive interpretation that would permit Star Wars defensive systems to be tested.

But while it adopted the less restrictive interpretation, the administration never actually put that view into effect.

The view that ABM allows testing was criticized by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and U.S. opponents, who said it would lead to an expensive new round in the arms race as both sides raced to develop defenses.

In response, administration officials said the Soviets have been working on their own version of SDI and the United States was only trying to keep pace.

League Schedules Debates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The League of Women Voters, battling to keep its role as the principal sponsor of debates among presidential hopefuls, announced today that it will hold two pairs of debates in the opening weeks of the 1988 primary season.

League president Nancy M. Neuman said that the first set of debates will be held in mid-February 1988 at St. Anselm's College in Manchester, N.H., right before that state's first-in-the-nation primary.

There will be one debate for the Democratic hopefuls and one for the contenders for the Republican nomination, probably before Feb. 15, 1988, the current date for the primary.

It will be a return visit to St. Anselm's, where the league held its first presidential debate in 1984, a face-off between the Democratic candidates.

The second set of debates will be held in Nashville in the first week of March 1988. The pair of debates that week will come right before Super Tuesday — March 8 — when as many as 17 states have scheduled primaries and caucuses.

The league plans to hold two more pairs of debates later in the 1988 primary season, Neuman said in a news release, one set in a midwestern state and one set in the West.

The league, which sponsored primary and general election primary debates in the past three presidential elections, is fighting to hold onto that role. The Republican and Democratic national committees have agreed to sponsor a general election debate between their candidates in 1988.

Staggering Agenda

Opposition leaders on the right and left have conceded defeat at the hands of Corazon Aquino in the Filipino plebiscite over a new national constitution. Unofficial returns showed a vote of almost 4-to-1 in favor of the new charter. Official final results are several days away but the unofficial count is believed a safe indicator of public reaction.

Communist claims of heavy popular support were squelched. Marcos' supporters who claimed heavy popular support were squelched. The heavy turnout of voters to endorse the new constitution represented a vote of confidence in Mrs. Aquino as well as a demand for national stability.

The new constitution sharply reduces power of the president though extending the term of office to six years. In addition, a bicameral legislature would be restored and the military is banned from political activity (except voting) and expands guarantees on human rights.

Of special interest to the United States is the fact that policy on leasing of bases to American military forces will be determined by the congress.

There have been at least three failed coup attempts since Mrs. Aquino was sworn in as president almost a year ago, including one in late January. Military factions who took a dim view of Aquino policies were involved in each.

The turnout of voters clearly indicated their disapproval of such plotting and was a strong signal of public desire for political stability.

There was one familiar voice of post-plebiscite dissent. It came from distant Honolulu and accused the Aquino government of "massive vote-buying, cheating and tampering of returns". Obviously there are some who did not get the message.

The landslide approval of a new constitution gives the Filipino people time to rebuild governmental institutions that have lost much of their gloss among all but diehard idealists.

That rebuilding will take time and much patience.

Those Communist rebels will have to be reduced to a status of a political party working within rules of the game; land reform is going to have to take shape rather than remain a slogan; the armed Moros are in need of pacifying; there is an economy that requires encouraging and nourishing; private ambitions await cooling.

The agenda is staggering and permits few short-cuts.

Good Sense

Agreements with Jordan, Israel and Tunisia to provide hospital care for Americans in the event of a disaster or terrorist blow in the Middle East are just plain good sense.

Those arrangements were conceived after the 1983 bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon. That disaster saw 241 servicemen killed and a high number of injured personnel. There was no nearby medical facility for their care.

In the succeeding years such facilities have been made available.

As Americans well know (and people who live in the area know even better) the Middle East is a restless arena where almost anything could happen ... not only to military people but to civilians as well.

In event of a major emergency, it is expected Israel would be the primary refuge though resources of other friendly countries in the area might be needed.

Dr. William Mayer, who has been arranging the emergency medical care agreements, underlined importance of the project in reminding that one-quarter of this country's military strength is stationed overseas and some are in vulnerable areas.

Those in Europe and Asia do have hospital facilities within reach but until now there were none in the major tinderbox.

The announced arrangements were overdue.

Government Is A Lot Like College

RALEIGH — When the General Assembly reconvenes in Raleigh today, there'll be a festive spirit in the Legislative Building that can best be compared to the opening of a collegiate school year.

Legislators will crowd into each others' offices, heartily welcoming each other back and recounting summer vacations. The atmosphere is so similar to those first days back on campus that it got this reporter thinking of the many similarities between going off to college and legislative service.

Opening day, with the crowds of families and friends, is like the first day in a freshman's life when mom and dad help unload the trunk, put up the curtains and steer junior towards the library. The freshman legislator arrives full of glory from his recent electoral victory, ready to change the world. Only when classes start do these freshmen realize, as will freshmen in college, how tough it can be.

It's all made tougher by the bountiful social life. Legislators, like college students, like to party, but unlike college students, they are win and dined for free, so they can party every night. The finger food is the same at every lobbyist's reception, but it's free, so legislators dig in and drink up.

College semesters usually start slow. There aren't any tests for maybe a month, so students tend to delay those first few reading assignments. It's the same in the legislature where the first few months are often wasted as few bills are filed and fewer are moved through committee.

Things start to get boring, legislators get homesick and tire of the long drives each weekend to and from Raleigh. All they can talk about is going home, adjourning the session. It's the same in college. In both cases, people have made major efforts to get into the institution, they excitedly anticipated their service and now three weeks later they want to go home.

Maybe it's the food. If there is one place on earth that resembles the South Dining Hall it is the legislative cafeteria. It's not that the food is bad in either. It's that the food is institutional, that it tastes the same every day, that over the period of a week you are faced with only three or four different recipes.

But food in the cafeteria is cheap, and it's close, just like the South Dining Hall. Eating becomes something to satisfy one's hunger, that's all.

Cheap food in college was important because nobody could afford to be there. Nobody can afford to be in the legislature, if you believe the talk of its members. It costs $10,000 to go to college, about the same as winning a seat in the legislature. Legislators and college students then find it dif-icult to make much money. Neither the student's dad, nor the legislature's constituents, think a large allowance is due. So legislators and students start cutting Friday classes to sneak in some extra work.

As the session winds down, the collegiate and legislative lives show off their greatest similarity: the all-nighter.

Late in a semester, all the missed reading assignments and unwritten term papers begin to roost. Many students go days without a full night's sleep as they cram for exams and pound their typewriters silly.

The legislature is the same way. The assembly drags on for four months and hardly anything gets accomplished and then there's an orgy of bill-passing in the last two weeks.

But legislators won't worry about those all-nighters tonight. They'll be at the party for House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

Americans Debate Public's Role

'The broad public has been informed of a great deal about events abroad and the American stake in them. Groups such as the Atlantic Council reach special audiences; the press offers much information to a mass public, and the political debate and especially political campaigns concentrate the dosage.'

cheeky little exercise in special pleading. What is more interesting is the assessment that the public is internationally illiterate and that something organized needs to be done about it.

The broad public has been informed of a great deal about events abroad and the American stake in them. Groups such as the Atlantic Council reach special audiences; the press offers much information to a mass public, and the political debate and especially political campaigns concentrate — often to hype — the dosage. In any event, the availability of information and analysis and viewpoint is not the problem.

The problem, as far as the public's frustrated advisers are concerned, is that while the public is "illiterate" in the sense that it usually flunks the current-events quizzes, it does have views on the large public issues and too often they are its own views and not those of its would-be tutors.

Still, there is a deeper truth at work here, and it is that a contradiction about how democratic a democracy's foreign policy ought to be is imbedded, permanently, in American politics.

The Atlantic Council expresses the traditional current that sees foreign policy as something that experts shape on the basis of their perception of American interests in the world. Hence public opinion is not something that policy should be guided by — although for a dozen years the State Department has had a sociologist aboard to interpret polls to its diplomats — but is something that itself needs to be shaped, tamed, "educated." In this spirit, good elitist outposts such as the Atlantic Council hunt for ways to bring influence to bear on and through the leadership class, which, the surveys plainly demonstrate, is almost always more international-minded, more "liberal" on foreign aid, trade and alliance issues than is the public at large.

But a second American current holds that public opinion, far from being simply a nagging constraint on policy, is the proper, enlightened source of it: the people are a necessary and legitimate adviser to the elite. Woodrow Wilson stirred this current. Jimmy Carter, contending that policy should express the virtues of the American people, rode it into the White House, and out again, leaving a tricky legacy for Ronald Reagan.

Strength For Today

Almost every material or spiritual advance in history has been made over the protest of experts.

Columbus was scoffed at and called a fool. Galileo was prosecuted. In 1848 when a Scottish physician named Simpson introduced anesthesia into midwifery, a Scottish pastor wrote: "Anesthesia is a decoy of Satan, apparently offering itself to bless women; but in the end it will harden society and rob God of the deep, earnest cries for help that arise in time of trouble."

Looking back over history we can see that the "experts" have been wrong at least as often as they have been right. Doubtless there are just as many mistaken people in the world as there ever have been, and we can be sure that posterity will wonder how our experts today could make so many errors. So let us remember to be cautious in our judgments.

Public Forum

To the editor:

On Friday, Jan. 30, I was coming out of a downtown office when I heard an unusual yet a familiar sound. I stopped, counted 10 chimes and thought, "Can it be?" I questioned two passer-by as to whether or not they had heard the chimes. One said, "Say what?" while the other said, "Seems like I heard something."

The courthouse clock chimes had been idle for so long that I assumed it was a part of Greenville's heritage, like many landmarks, that had been erased forever.

I wrote a letter on Jan. 31, but J.B. Smith beat me to the draw. In the Feb. 1 edition of "The Daily Reflector," in our editor's "Sunday Morning Notes," "Courthouse Clock No Longer Silent." My thanks to all of you who participated in the revival of the courthouse clock chimes. Aside from denoting the time, they are so very beautiful and bring back many memories.

A LITTLE HELP — Playing football can be a rough game sometime. However, it you've got good teammates blocking for you, running for a touchdown becomes a lot easier. As young Michael-John Nashton launches a pass

Martin Plugs Festival Fund-Raising Project

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin told 32 business leaders that he's partial to team handball and asked for their continued support in an effort to raise money for the U.S. Olympic Festival, an event that's expected to attract 3,800 of the nation's top athletes to North Carolina.

Martin spoke to the business leaders last week from the Executive Mansion at a luncheon honoring the festival, which will take place in the Triangle and Greensboro.

"What we were doing at the mansion was trying to get people fired up about the festival," said H. Hill Car-row Jr., executive director of the festival's organizing group, North Carolina Amateur Sports. "The governor made some great remarks, we had some testimonials by corporate leaders who have contributed ... As enthusiasm grows, interest in supporting the festival will build."

As a May 31 fund-raising deadline for the festival's $5 million budget draws closer, the luncheon was part of a strategy to remind the state's large corporations that the festival needs money as well as enthusiasm.

About 70 businesses across North Carolina have committed $1.9 million, and NCAS officials said last week that they were confident an additional $600,000 would be raised by May 31, their self-imposed deadline for raising $2.5 million.

The other half of the budget should come from an estimated $1.5 million in ticket sales, which began Jan. 26; $800,000 from a state grant that matches the private donations; and $200,000 from the sale of concession and marketing rights to the festival.

NCAS predicts the festival will pump $9 million into the state's economy as more than 300,000 spectators spend money at restaurants, hotels and other businesses.

"The fund-raising is going very well, the corporations are being extremely generous," said S. Beth Briggs, director of development for NCAS. "We definitely will reach our budget goal."

Charlotte-based First Union National Bank was among the early sponsors of the festival with a $200,000 gift. Several other banks have made smaller contributions since.

"From our view, this national sports festival is embryonic," said Alvin Sale, First Union's senior vice president and director of marketing. "It's only been around a few years, and it's something we think eventually will get a lot of national attention. We're proud to play a role in fostering that."

Owners and operators of McDonald's restaurants in the Carolinas have contributed $250,000 to become a grand patron.

"For the last couple of years, McDonald's has supported the U.S. Olympic Festival elsewhere in the nation," said Mary Kay Eschbach of Raleigh, spokesman for the 235 restaurants in North Carolina and part of South Carolina represented by the contribution.

"In addition to cash, we're providing perhaps an additional $150,000 worth of in-kind services such as tray liners highlighting the festival and TV and radio advertising," she said.

While NCAS has a full-time staff of 24 people and other part-time help, many volunteers have helped prepare for the festival and will help run it.

Weekend Fatalities

By The Associated Press
Six people have been killed on North Carolina roads during the weekend, including a 5-year-old girl who was struck by a car, the state Highway Patrol said Sunday.

Priscilla Raina McCalister died about 2:45 p.m. Saturday in Jackson County, troopers said.

The fatalities bring the highway death toll in 1987 to 107, compared to 156 on this same date last year.

Robeson County Seen As A Cocaine Hotbet

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — There are few signs of flashy, conspicuous wealth in Robeson County that might be associated with a prosperous drug trade, but federal investigators say drug trafficking in the county is a business involving millions of dollars each year.

"We believe today that cocaine trafficking involves tens of millions of dollars in that county," said William Webb, an assistant U.S. Attorney directing a joint investigation with the State Bureau of Investigation.

"Robeson County has got to be, both for its size and the composition of the population, one of the largest areas for cocaine sales I've seen," Webb told the News and Observer of Raleigh. "We've been surprised by the prices. We've bought ounces of pure cocaine for $1,100. That's for the same price or even less than you'd find it being sold for on the streets of Miami."

"We've even made buys of one gram that is pure — uncut cocaine," he said. "Normally, cocaine is cut to 30 percent purity or less. Very seldom in Robeson County do you see cocaine cut below 50 percent purity. They say folks just wouldn't buy it. There's so much coke at such good prices, people can't be choosy."

SBI officials think the county, one of the state's poorest, has become a transit point for drugs because of its location near the coast and on the South Carolina border. Interstate 95, the major route between Florida and New York, and U.S. 74, a major east-west route, intersect in the middle of the county.

But Webb said his investigation suggested that much of cocaine brought into the county was used locally — often by residents of modest means.

"There is a demand for the drug there," Webb said. "We know that street dealers operate openly in some areas of the county. We've made buys from cars near nightclubs where people making buys are actually queuing up for the drugs. You have to stand in line, there's so much demand."

Nine people have been indicted by a federal grand jury since the investigation began last fall. Four of those indicted have agreed to plead guilty.

James "Bonk" Maynor was sentenced last month to serve 19 years in prison and pay $335,000 in fines after pleading guilty to trafficking charges.

Although he filed documents stating his sole income was $250 a week from a job at his father's convenience store, Maynor agreed to forfeit $500,000 in assets in the plea agreement.

"With Maynor, you had somebody who was able to acquire and dispose of somewhere in the neighborhood of a hundred kilos a year," Webb said. "And you had somebody who has no problem giving up half a million in assets."

"While we consider him a major trafficker, he's by no means the largest down there," Webb said. "There are a number that are larger."

Tobacco Opponents Have Guns Loaded

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., says the combination of growing public sentiment against tobacco and Congress' need to find additional revenues means this could be a bad year for tobacco in Washington.

"We knew it was coming," Rose said. "The mood in Congress is not good. I think it's going to be our toughest year yet."

Anti-smoking forces in Congress say one of their key weapons is a new U.S. surgeon general's report that says smoke from other people's cigarettes causes disease, including lung cancer, in healthy non-smokers.

"I think members of Congress are beginning to realize that there are certain rights and freedoms for those who want to smoke, but that there also ought to be some rights and freedoms for those who don't want to smoke," says Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah. Hatch has introduced legislation to ban smoking on airplanes, buses and trains.

Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., last week introduced legislation to double the excise tax on cigarettes from 16 to 32 cents per pack. Several other anti-smoking measures — including efforts to ban tobacco advertising and restrict smoking in federal buildings and on some forms of public transportation — are also expected to be considered by Congress this year.

Rose told The News and Observer of Raleigh tobacco is an easy and attractive target for many lawmakers. Buoyed by the health hazards of smoking, lawmakers can look to tobacco as an easy source of revenue. Raising the excise tax to 32 cents a pack would raise $9.1 billion over three years.

A proposal by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., to disallow the tax deduction for tobacco advertising would bring in new revenues totaling $2.3 billion over three years.

While Bradley and Chafee say they will push their bills as measures to promote health, they acknowledge that they will be attractive to some lawmakers as sources of badly needed revenue.

At a tobacco industry retreat last month in Palm Springs, Calif., Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told a group of cigarette company executives that he didn't favor an increase in the excise tax on cigarettes.

"But he couldn't promise them there wouldn't be an increase," Rose said recently. "He said he wasn't in favor of it, but that Congress is hungry for revenue."

"Congress knows we need money and that we've got to pay some debts, and a lot of people are going to be convinced the easiest way is excise taxes," Rose added.

Besides the proposal to increase the excise tax, which also has been introduced in the House, other anti-smoking measures expected to get some attention in Congress include:

— The bill by Bradley to disallow the tax deduction for tobacco advertising and a bill by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., to ban all tobacco advertising.

— A bill by Sen. Rep. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.Mex., to raise the price of cigarettes sold on U.S. military bases to the price on cigarettes sold in civilian markets.

— A bill by Scheuer and Rep. Don Ritter, R-Pa., that would make law guidelines that took effect Friday restricting smoking in federal buildings.

IN THE STATE

Alternative School

GASTONIA (AP) — Gaston County school administrators say they will ask the county school board for $600,000 later this year to start an alternative school for students expelled or suspended from school.

The school would offer counseling and classes for students unable to attend school in the traditional classroom setting, said Ken Ratchford, assistant superintendent of instruction.

Such a school "would at least be a start" in dealing with the hundreds of students expelled each year and the problems they create, said Larry Langson, a district court judge who often presides over juvenile court.

"These kids are just left to roam the streets and it's a pretty substantial problem in the community," Langson said. "This community desperately needs something."

Ministry Monitoring

DURHAM (AP) — There should be Christian organizations that look more closely at the content of television ministry shows and their methods of fund-raising, a Duke Divinity School professor says.

Evangelist Oral Roberts' recent television warning that God may take his life if he is unable to raise $4.5 million by March "exceeds the limits of the kind of appeal that one should be making to support a ministry," said Dr. Paul Mickey, an associate professor of pastoral theology in the Divinity School.

"When we look at television ministries, the question becomes: What are the limitations? And are they imposed by the Federal Communications Commission, local station management or should there be internal spiritual restraints? I think there should be internal spiritual restraints," Mickey said this week.

"Those restraints aren't being exercised when people are manipulated or made to feel guilty about their lack of Christian discipleship or charitable contributions, or, in the case of Oral Roberts, being made to feel responsible for causing his death," Mickey added.

Mickey, who counsels clergy and lay people and speaks regularly on radio and television, said the issues being raised by Roberts' recent remarks could mean it's time for closer scrutiny of fund-raising by television ministries.

Magnum Battling

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Magnum T.A. compares his battle to walk again after fracturing a vertebra in an automobile accident with his battle to become a wrestler, saying daily victories are coming in small steps.

Terry Allen, known in the professional wrestling ranks as Magnum T.A., told The Charlotte Observer this week that he remembers the helplessness of being unable to move as he sat in his Porsche for almost an hour after crashing into a utility pole Oct. 14 in Charlotte.

From the accident, Allen was moved to the emergency room of Charlotte Memorial Hospital where he underwent a 3½ hour operation and clung to life.

"I'm OK," said Allen, a popular good-guy wrestler for the National Wrestling Alliance. "I feel fortunate."

Allen also reflected on the thousands of fans that flocked to the hospital, waiting outside the building, bringing gifts and flowers. Allen estimates he received more than 40,000 letters from fans.

Allen stood up for the first time Jan. 12 at Charlotte Rehabilitation Hospital and walked for the first time Jan. 19.

Winds Damage Property In Henderson County

By The Associated Press
Winds gusting to 120 mph roared into North Carolina Sunday, knocking over a mobile home and blowing the roofs off of several houses and businesses in Henderson County, while two people were killed when their car smashed into a tractor-trailer, authorities said.
"We have had a number of houses and trees that have fallen through roofs of houses — I've lost count," said Dispatcher Tracy Cox of the Henderson County Sheriff's Department. "Yes, we have had a mobile home blown over and a few more with the roofs off, but no injuries."

Cox said he could not put a dollar value on the damage.
The high winds also forced the temporary closing of two interstates in the mountains because of snow-covered roads.
"We've got a mess up here," said N.L. Duckett, a dispatcher with the state Highway Patrol Office in Asheville.
Interstate 26 was closed for nearly an hour in Buncombe County after a tractor-trailer overturned about 9 p.m., Duckett said.
The Highway Patrol said Monday that Mary Pickens and her son Win, were killed on I-26, about 3½ miles south of Asheville, when their car hit into the back of the overturned tractor-trailer. No ages were released on the victims.

I-40 eastbound from Tennessee into North Carolina was closed Sunday night because of stranded tractor-trailers and accidents, Duckett said. About 30 to 35 wrecks had been reported to the Asheville office in a two-hour period, he said.
The Watauga County Sheriff's Department said motorists had abandoned their cars on U.S. 421 and blocked traffic Sunday night, but those cars had been removed.
Grandfather Mountain reported winds of 65 mph Sunday afternoon with gusts to 120 mph. Flat Top Mountain near Asheville reported wind gusts to near 60 mph.

Near Blowing Rock, gusts of wind lifted off a ski chair at Ski Hawknest, shutting down the lift and stranding 38 skiers for over an hour.
The National Weather Service issued a high-wind warning for western North Carolina and a winter storm warning for the northern mountains. A traveler's advisory was issued for the central and southern mountains, and the weather service reported that snow was covering roads, making driving very dangerous.

"This has been like an Alberta (Canada) clipper," said Odell Sluder of the NWS in Asheville. "It's moving really fast."
Sluder said wind gusts of up to 54 mph were reported at Asheville Regional Airport shortly before 7 p.m. Sunday. On the average, though, gusts around 30 mph were reported in the region, he said.
Winds are expected to diminish somewhat by Monday morning when mostly sunny skies and warmer temperatures should prevail. "It's going to be messy Monday morning,"

Sluder said. "It's going to be one of those days when you have to slide on in to work."
The strong wind gusts knocked several trees onto power lines Sunday, causing a handful of power outages in the region. Area power companies reported that most customers had power late Sunday.
Snow accumulations of 1 to 2 inches had been reported.
The bad weather was caused by an intense storm moving eastward across the Great Lakes, which had a cold front trailing southward into North Carolina.

The Only CDs With Art. And State-Of-The-Art.

Is investing money wisely an art or a science? At BB&T, it's a little bit of both.

Because only BB&T offers you the world's best known names in quality merchandise. As well as one of North Carolina's best known names from the world of art.

WELCOME TO THE CELEBRATION — Greeting Charity Ball patrons and guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr., left, Mrs. C.W. Harvey Jr. and Billy Morton. Mrs. Harvey was joined by her daughter, Mary Wesley, center.

AT THE MARDI GRAS — The annual Charity Ball is sponsored yearly by the Service League of Greenville. Among the partygoers are, left to right, Carrie G. Oakley, Mr. and Mrs. Don McGlohn and Mr. and Mrs. Mack Howard.

Annual Charity Ball Has Mardi Gras Theme

Driving down Country Club Drive Saturday evening, the first float of the Mardi Gras was spotlighted on the lawn of the Greenville Country Club — the scene of this year's annual Charity Ball.

The colorful float was covered with crepe paper, balloons and banner. Costumed merrymakers waved greetings to the ball patrons and guests arriving at the club, with lighted torches lining the driveway. The annual ball is sponsored by the Service League of Greenville.

The parade's grand marshal and doorman, at the club entrance, was dressed in a red tuxedo, top hat and colorful sash. Party-goers were greeted by the smiling doorman, as he twirled his fringed umbrella. In the background was a black wrought iron gate, lamppost and blooming azaleas.

The cloak and crown of King Rex, the reigning monarch of Mardi Gras, were on display in the club foyer. Of added interest was an original green, gold and purple embossed Mardi Gras banner. A large arrangement of green, gold and purple flags from the seasonal celebration was draped on the lowbow along with strands of multi-colored throw beads. A Periot doll and saxophone further added to the Mardi Gras decor along with colorful streamers and old coins.

The Mardi Gras queen was reigning in the Fieldcrest Room. She was dressed in a white peau de soie gown, accented by a black velvet cape lined in white satin. She was also wearing a jeweled crown. King Rex, placed in the Grill Room, was dressed in his celebration finery.

The bandstand, in the club ballroom, was decorated as a parade float. Music for the evening and dancing was provided by the Bob Massengale Orchestra. The background and sides of the float were draped in dark fabric, caught up in side swags. Clusters of decorated gold and silver masks were entwined with colorful ribbons, loops and puffs of metallic ribbon. A similar decorated background drape was used.

Individual tables featured tall silver centerpieces. Purple and green ribbons were interspersed with wide metallic lace ribbon highlighted with a nestled silver sparkle light. Silver and white napkin rings, throw beads and programs decorated in green and purple marked places of those attending the Mardi Gras celebration.

Other decorations included a Bourbon Street sign, lamppost and black silhouette.

Ushers and usherettes for the evening were Amy Reese, Betsy Barnhill, Hunter Clark, Redro deBorbon and Scott Kendrick.

Greeting guests in the foyer were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr., Mrs. C.W. Harvey and Billy Morton. Mrs. Wilkerson is president of the Service League and Mrs. Harvey was overall chairman of the ball.

Other chairmen were Mrs. Richard Gavigan, assistant ball chairman; Mrs. Kelly Barnhill and Mrs. Jon Tingelstad, invitations; Ms. Harvey, finance; Mrs. James W. Carter and Mrs. Jasper L. Lewis Jr., programs; Mrs. Raymond MacKenzie, publicity; Mrs. William C. Brewer Jr. and Mrs. John S. Whichard, dinner; Mrs. Bernard Vick, hostesses; Mrs. Howard G. Dawkins Sr., ushers and usherettes; Mrs. Howard G. Dawkins Jr., workshops.

Mrs. Oakley, bandstand; Mrs. Lawton Nisbet and Mrs. William Sneed, driveway and lounges; Mrs. Harroll Weaver and Mrs. Frank Layne, Fieldcrest Room; Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr. and Mary Angela Lee, foyer; Mrs. Wayne Kendrick, Grill Room; Mrs. McDonald Carr, supplies; Mrs. Edward Seykora, clean-up; Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst, Mrs. Larkin Little, Mrs. Thomas Reese and Mrs. Malcolm Howard, table decorations.

Explorer Abandons Effort

By HARRY JOYCE
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

OSLO, Norway — After failing in her bid to become the first woman to conquer the South Pole, the Norwegian explorer Monica Kristensen and three others face a hazardous race against time to reach safety before the Antarctic winter descends in full force.

Under strong pressure from American and Norwegian authorities, Kristensen decided on Saturday to turn back, 275 miles from the Pole. British scientist Neil McIntyre and

MOST PRESIDENTS HAVE FAVORED BEARDLESS LOOK
BOSTON (AP) — George Washington and Ronald Reagan, the first and the latest U.S. presidents, are two of the 27 clean-shaven men among the 39 chief executives in the nation's history, according to researchers at Gillette's Safety Razor division here.

John Quincy Adams was the first president to wear facial hair. He had long, curved sideburns, known as mutton chops. Martin Van Buren wore an exaggerated style of side whiskers that framed most of his face. In the same tradition, Zachary Taylor wore long, straight sideburns. Abraham Lincoln had perhaps the most famous presidential beard, the researchers point out. It differed from the others' because he wore it without a mustache. Ulysses S. Grant was the first president to sport a full beard and his successor, Rutherford B. Hayes, also had a full beard, which was longer and bushier.

two husky drivers make up the expedition.

Kristensen, or "South Pole Monica" as she has become known in the Norwegian media, finally gave up after American authorities made it clear they would not go out of their way to help her if the team needed to be airlifted from the Pole.

She has been pursued by time since the expedition was delayed when her ship, The Aurora, was held up in pack ice as it sailed toward the Bay of Whales, starting point for the attempt to retrace the steps of Norway's Roald Amundsen, who first conquered the South Pole in 1911.

The expedition thus started late, but the team skied 600 miles before the decision to give up was taken. Kristensen estimated she would have reached the Pole by the middle of February, too late to return overland to The Aurora, which would have to leave to escape encroaching pack ice.

The Oslo daily Verdens Gang, which has the exclusive rights to coverage of the expedition, said Kristensen, 36, decided to give up after leaders of the United States Antarctic Program said they might not be available to evacuate her by air.

In a message transmitted Saturday, Kristensen said: "Don't worry about us, we're in reasonably good humor and we'll manage to get to the Bay of Whales by Feb. 28." The end of February is the last day on which the boat will be able to leave Antarctica.

Verdens Gang said Kristensen feared the Americans would carry out a threat to refuse to airlift the team of 22 huskies that has pulled the expedition, forcing her to kill them. "Although she doubted it, Monica could not take the chance the Americans were serious in their threat to shoot the dogs," Verdens Gang said.

Does Drunk Driving Check Deprive Rights?

DEAR ABBY: Name a place where an anonymous phone call results in the dispatch of police officers to detain and harass citizens in the absence of probable cause, a sworn complaint or an arrest warrant. Chile? The Soviet Union? Nope. Marion, Va.!

"Concerned Teen-Ager" and the other well-meaning but overzealous founders of R.A.I.D. (Report All Intoxicated Drivers) in Marion, Va., have given us a good example of what happens when people believe their noble ends are justified by any means.

Abby, everyone wants to reduce drunk driving, but it shouldn't be at the expense of our hard-won constitutional rights. I'm sure the people who live under a dictatorship would gladly trade our drunk-driving problems for the hardships they have to endure. — CONCERNED BUT SANE

DEAR CONCERNED: Since when is it "harassment" for a police officer to check out a report that there's a drunk driver in the area? If the driver is not drunk, the inconvenience of being stopped is petty compared to the tragedy that could be caused by a person driving while under the influence. You mention constitutional rights: What about the "constitutional rights" of innocent people to be protected against drunk drivers?

In addition to Marion, Va., according to Brad Hartford, the town of Glenvil, Neb., has a program called REDDI (Report Every Drunk Driver Immediately). Hooray for Nebraska!

DEAR ABBY: I work as a security guard, and due to the nature of my job, I am not permitted to accept gifts from the employees of stores I am hired to guard. However, one woman — I'll call her Jane — gave me a Christmas gift even though I had told her emphatically that I was not permitted to accept gifts. She was very persistent, saying other guards had accepted her gifts and she would be very hurt if I didn't because she had spent so much time and effort selecting it. I finally agreed to accept it on the condition that I could do anything I wanted with it — keep it, trash it, give it away — as long as I didn't give it back to her.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Well, I accepted Jane's gift and without unwrapping it, I gave it to another employee (Dan) and told him it was from Jane. Of course Dan thanked Jane for the gift, then Jane became angry and told me off. Now Jane refuses to forgive me. Was Jane wrong? Or was I? — ALLENTOWN, PA., GUARD to have forced a gift on you knowing you were not permitted to accept gifts. You were wrong to accept it, and wrong again for giving it to Dan saying it was a gift from Jane. If you lost Jane's friendship, you haven't lost much. And in the future, stick to the rules or it could cost you your job.

DEAR GUARD: Jane was wrong

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for 20 years. It's the second marriage for both of us. She has two sons from a previous marriage and I have two daughters from my first marriage — all are adults. Recently we made out our wills. I think we should look over each other's wills — if only to change them to each other's satisfaction.

Is this unusual? And what do you think of the idea? — NO CITY OR STATE, PLEASE

DEAR NO CITY: I don't know how "unusual" it is, but I think it's a good idea. It's sort of an adult version of "I'll show you mine, if you show me yours."

DEAR ABBY: In reference to Clara, the single person who travels with her sister and the sister's husband: You erred in telling Clara that she should pay only one-third of the hotel room cost.

Since she and her two dogs are three-fifths of the total occupants of the room, she should pay three-fifths of the room bill!

Besides that, any guy who has to travel with his wife and her sister, plus two dogs, should pay for an additional fifth. And drink it! — HOWARD B. ANDREEN, CAMARILLO, CALIF.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground today in a continuation of the profit-taking that set in late Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 9.28 to 2,177.59 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 5 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 461 up, 666 down and 443 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 20.13 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Analysts said there was nothing dramatic in the news to account for the market's softness.

But they noted that the runaway advance in stock prices since the start of 1987 had lately showed signs of losing momentum.

That was enough, market-watchers said, to encourage traders to cash in some of their gains, hoping perhaps to reinvest the proceeds at lower prices in a few days or weeks.

In the first 26 sessions of the year, the Dow Jones industrial average chalked up 20 gains and just six losses.

Among today's early volume leaders, General Motors slipped 1/4 to 75 1/2; International Business Machines 1/2 to 135 1/4, and American Telephone & Telegraph 1/4 to 23 1/2.

Diamond Shamrock rose 1/2 to 15 in active trading. The company, which is planning a restructuring, rejected a takeover bid by financier T. Boone Pickens Jr.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .64 to 159.29. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .15 at 316.88.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 14.62 to 2,186.87, reducing its gain for the week to 28.83 points.

Crisp
 Mrs. S.M. Crisp, 87, died today at her home, 1201 E. Fifth St. Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Wilkerson Funeral Home.

Garris
 AYDEN — Mr. Guildford Garris of 300 W. Sixth St. died Sunday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His funeral will be conducted Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Norcott Memorial Chapel, Ayden, by Bishop W.C. Dorcht. Burial will be in the Grifton Cemetery.

Mr. Garris was born and reared and lived most of his life in Ayden. He was a member of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are one son, Guildford Garris III of Goldsboro; one daughter, Miss Patricia Ann Garris of Goldsboro; two sisters, Mrs. Maybelle Jackson and Mrs. Bertha G. Raspberry, both of Kinston, four grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

The body will be at Norcott Memorial Chapel from 6 p.m. Tuesday until one hour before the funeral. Family visitation at the chapel will be from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday, and at other times the family will be at 805 Williams St., Kinston.

Holmes
 BALTIMORE — Mrs. Lucinda Holmes of 3133 Jeffrey Road died Sunday. Arrangements are incomplete.

Jenkins
 VANCEBORO — Amanda Gail Jenkins, 11, of New Bern, died Sunday in Craven County Hospital.

Her funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 11 a.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal Church by Rev. Kenneth Townsend and Rev. Ed Sharp. Burial will be in Grahamville, S.C., on Thursday.

Miss Jenkins was a native of Craven County and a student at Brinson Elementary School at James City. She was formerly a student at Lifegate Christian School near Chocod.

Surviving are her father, Robert E. Jenkins of the home; her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Cumbee of Vanceboro; her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins of the home; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jones of Vanceboro, and her great grandparents, Charles W. Carter of Cuero, Texas, Mrs. Mattie Toler of Vanceboro, and Mrs. Lillie Bennett of Edwards.

The family will receive friends at Wilkerson Funeral Home in Vanceboro from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that contributions be made to St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Vanceboro.

Keel
 GRIMESLAND — Mr. Walter Frank Keel, 61, died Saturday in Beaufort County.

Graveside services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Mack Smith Cemetery on N.C. 43 near Vanceboro by the Rev. Ralph Rawls, Sr.

Surviving are his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bunch of Lewiston; three brothers, Jimmy Keel of Ahoskie, Allen Keel of Jacksonville and Earl Keel of Tarboro, and two sisters, Mrs. Eva Bland and Mrs. Dora Mae Smith, both of Plymouth.

The family will receive friends at the gravesite 30 minutes before the service.

Ward
 Mrs. Hester Gist Ward, 79, died Saturday in Greenville Villa Nursing Home.

Her funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Revs. E.T. Vinson and Percy Upchurch. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

A native of Florence, S.C., she moved to Badin in 1917 and attended the Badin schools. She was a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College and taught school in Winterville and Fountain. She moved to Greenville in 1952 and was a member of Memorial Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband, Claude D. Ward; a son, C.D. Ward Jr. of Greenville; a sister, Edith B. Gist of Goldsboro.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and at other times will be at the home, 101 W. Berkshire Road.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to Memorial Baptist Church or a favorite charity.

Hostage Reports Death Threats

Shiite militiamen sporadically since 1985.

The others abducted with Steen are Robert Polhill, 53, originally of New York City; Jesse Turner, 39, of Boise, Idaho, and Mithileshwar Singh, 60, a native of India and resident alien in the United States.

Israel said it was willing to discuss a proposal Saturday by Nabih Berri, head of the Amal militia and Lebanon's justice minister, to trade the downed Israeli airman for the Arab prisoners. Under the proposal, all 26 foreign hostages in Lebanon — including eight Americans — also would be released by extremist groups.

But Peres said that Israel "cannot and will not act according to an ultimatum" and would not bargain through the media.

The kidnappers have never specified what prisoners they want released. An Israeli military officer said last week some Arabs were being held in Israel, and others were detained in southern Lebanon by an Israeli-backed predominantly Christian militia.

On the tape, Steen warned against any U.S. military action in Lebanon. "We also tell America that if it commits any stupidity, we will be prone to be killed," he said. "Besides, Americans in the whole world will be the victims of our administration's stupidity."

Another group of hostage-holders, the Revolutionary Justice Organization, delivered a statement Sunday to the Beirut newspaper An-Nahar, accompanied by a photograph of American hostage Edward Austin Tracy. The group claimed Oct. 21 it had kidnapped him.

The statement said the United States planned an air and sea landing in Moslem west Beirut to seize prominent leaders of Hezbollah, a group of pro-Iranian Shiite extremists, and swap them for foreign hostages.

The United States moved a naval battle group into the eastern Mediterranean off Lebanon after 11 foreigners were kidnapped in west Beirut in January.

But U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, interviewed in Washington on Sunday by the British Broadcasting Corp., said the maneuvers were "not bellicose." He added that "as the situations get somewhat more critical... then the presence may increase."

The Revolutionary Justice Organization also claimed in its statement that missing hostage negotiator Terry Waite had carried a transmitter to pinpoint suspected terrorist hideouts for the American military attack.

Since Waite, an envoy of Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, disappeared Jan. 20, there have been rumors he is being held against his will. The Church of England has said it cannot confirm that or any of the conflicting reports that he is under arrest, was shot in an escape attempt, or was seen in west Beirut or east Lebanon's Bekaa valley.

"The rumors of a bugging device seem to us to be one of the most unlikely of all," said John Little, a church spokesman.

Waite was last seen leaving his Beirut hotel, apparently to meet with the captors of two Americans.

The U.S. State Department on Jan. 28 ruled Lebanon off-limits to U.S. citizens and said violators could face up to five years in prison.

Legislators Return To Work

local governments could borrow at low interest for school construction. Opponents say poorer counties could not afford to participate.

While the opening day of a session usually is devoted to ceremony, Martin said last week he expected introduction of emergency legislation addressing the prison crowding problem.

Depending on which standards are applied, North Carolina's prison system exceeds capacity by 1,200 to 4,500 inmates. Federal authorities have threatened to seize control of the system unless the state acts.

Another major issue will be economic development, with the Martin administration and a commission created by Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan offering programs to stimulate growth and create jobs.

"I think economic growth is going to be a very big issue," said Rep. Al Lineberry, D-Guilford. "The unemployment rate nationally now is just about what it was in 1980. We've gotten this far going into debt and we can't go into debt any more."

As the General Assembly prepared to begin work, the Greensboro News & Record reported survey results showing that its membership is older, wealthier, better educated and includes a higher percentage of men than the state's population.

The survey shows that while 56 percent of the state's adult population is younger than 45, just 26 percent of the legislators fit that category. Where 29 percent of the state's population is 56 or older, 43 percent of the General Assembly is older than 56.

While 82 percent of the families in the state have annual incomes of $30,000 or less, according to the 1984 state Statistical Abstract, nearly 60 percent of the legislators have family incomes that exceed $50,000, the newspaper reported.

Of the 99 legislators who responded to the survey, 8 percent said their family incomes were $30,000 or less, while 21 percent listed family incomes of $100,000 or more.

Women account for 51 percent of the state's 6.2 million residents, but only 14 percent of the legislators. Only 9 percent of legislators are black, while 23 percent of state's population is black.

While 13 percent of the state's adult population graduated from college, 78 percent of the General Assembly claims a college degree, the newspaper said.

The 1987 legislature, which opens today, will include fewer legislators lost in the corridors of the 24-year-old marble and cinder-block Legislative Building.

Where the 1985 session brought the Legislature one of the most vivid changes in political environments since Democrats swept nearly all Republicans away in 1977, this year's session will be close to a mirror image of the session that preceded it.

In fact, the turnover in the 170-member General Assembly — just 32 members starting their first year in the House or Senate — is the smallest since before 1971, the year the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research used to start tracking the strength of incumbency.

There are seven new senators — the fewest since 1979 in the 50-member Senate. In the 120-member House of Representatives, there are just 25 first-term representatives.

Lawyers continue to be the dominant profession as approximately 25 percent are from that profession. Twenty-four percent of the 1985 session came from the ranks of lawyers, though their numbers in the General Assembly are considerably less than 16 years ago when lawyers accounted for 40 percent of the members.

Back in 1971, farmers accounted for 12 percent of the membership — this year just 7 percent.

Baptist is the dominant religious preference of legislators — 38 percent. Of the remainder, 28 percent list Methodist, 16 percent Presbyterian, 4 percent Episcopalian with the remaining 14 percent including Catholics, Lutherans and Jews.

The greatest share, 39 percent, of legislators describe their political philosophy as moderate. Thirty-one percent classified themselves as conservative, 15 percent as progressive, 2 percent as ultra-conservative, 2 percent as populist and 1 percent as liberal. Ten percent chose "North Carolina Regular," a label coined by Sen. Terry Sanford during the 1986 Senate race when Republicans tried to cast him as a liberal.

MASONIC NOTICE

Bright Star Lodge No. 385 will hold a stated communication Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Galloway Cross Road.

Card Of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Ward and family thank each and everyone for their cards, flowers, donations, visits, calls and prayers you are extending during Mrs. Ward's illness.

May God richly bless you.

"MY FRIENDS LAUGHED
 When I Made Funeral & Burial Pre-Arrangements!"

"They really liked me — until one of our friends died unexpectedly. They quickly learned about the difficult decisions... the paperwork... and the costs survivors must struggle with. Pre-Arrangement could have spared the family most of those anxious decisions, and so much of the paperwork and expense involved — all at a time of deep emotional stress. My friends don't laugh about pre-arrangement anymore — they've learned what a caring, comforting thing it can be for families."

Reid Lifts Heels Past Cavs

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Freshman J.R. Reid says third-ranked North Carolina doesn't have to rely on any one person in the clutch, but when the Tar Heels found him late in the overtime against Virginia Sunday, he came through.

Reid completed a three-point play with 1:36 remaining in overtime and the third-ranked Tar Heels held off Virginia for a 74-73 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

"I think with the athletes we have on this team, we don't have to look to any one person for scoring," said Reid. "I'm not really eager to shoot, but when any good player gets to crunch time, they want to get the ball. I'm more eager to get rebounds."

Reid added 14 rebounds as Coach Dean Smith gained his 17th consecutive 20-win season and 599th career victory, all at North Carolina. The Tar Heels are 20-2 and have not lost in nine conference games.

Reid, who finished with 21 points, hit two free throws with 57 seconds left in regulation to give North Carolina a 69-67 edge, but two free throws by Mel Kennedy with 33 seconds left tied the score.

North Carolina worked for the last shot, but Kenny Smith missed his driving layup and Reid couldn't control the tap.

The Tar Heels missed their first six shots from the field in overtime, but Virginia failed to capitalize and committed two turnovers. Scott Williams hit both ends of the one-and-one with 2:27 left to break the tie, but Mel Kennedy hit a follow shot at the 1:55 mark to tie the score again.

It was Kennedy who fouled Reid on his jumper inside the lane. The 6-foot-9 freshman added a free throw to put the Tar Heels on top to stay.

"We had some good shots in overtime, but we didn't make them," Smith said. "We did get clutch foul shots from Scott Williams and a big three-point play by J.R."

Curtis Hunter committed a turnover to set up John Johnson's basket for Virginia with 47 seconds left.

Hunter also had a chance to clinch the victory, but he missed the front end of a one-and-one.

After a timeout, Virginia's Richard Morgan attempted a jumper over the 6-11 Williams, but the ball glanced off the left side of the rim.

"Kenny (UNC guard Smith) came out to cut him off but Morgan cut back and still got it," Coach Smith said. "Scott Williams was supposed to be in a zone and come out and bother the shot."

Virginia coach Terry Holland said the loss was doubly disappointing because his team had the last shot.

"...You'd like to think that you could go ahead and take advantage of that," Holland said. "North Carolina played excellent defense and took away most of our options."

Joe Wolf scored 16 points before fouling out and Smith added 12 for the Tar Heels. Lebo scored 10 before he also fouled out.

Andrew Kennedy led Virginia with 19 points, while Mel Kennedy added 18, John Johnson 16 and Tom Sheehy 10 for the Cavaliers, 14-7 and 4-5.

Chambers Leads West Past East

SEATTLE (AP) — Tom Chambers felt like he had something to prove, and the NBA All-Star Game was the perfect forum.

Ignored by the voting fans and Western Conference coaches alike, the Seattle SuperSonics' forward got into the game only when Houston's Ralph Sampson was sidelined by injury.

"That was a big motivational factor for me," the 6-foot-10 Chambers said. "I wasn't out for revenge or anything like that but I wanted to show that I belonged in the game."

Chambers scored 34 points to win most valuable player honors as the West beat the East 154-149 in overtime Sunday at Seattle's Kingdome.

The West's Rolando Blackman sent the game into overtime with a pair of free throws with no time left in regulation play. In the overtime, Blackman and Chambers each scored four points as the West won for only the second time in eight games.

The game appeared over when the East's Moses Malone rebounded in a missed Kevin McHale baseline shot with three seconds left.

But Isiah Thomas fouled Blackman, who was driving the baseline, before time could run out.

"My award wouldn't have been possible if Rolando had missed one of those free throws," Chambers said.

Blackman finished with 29 points and was second to Chambers in the MVP voting by a national media panel. Chambers received eight votes, Blackman six and Malone one.

Blackman claimed he didn't feel any pressure when attempting the game-tying free throws, even after Thomas told the Dallas Mavericks forward that he was going to choke.

"I just tried to remain calm and comfortable," Blackman said.

"Rolando is a real pro," Thomas added. "I tried to distract him but it didn't work."

In the highest-scoring All-Star game in history, James Worthy of the Los Angeles Lakers chipped in with 22 points while teammate Magic Johnson had 13 assists, giving him an All-Star record total of 92, six more than Bob Cousy.

The previous highest combined score in an NBA All-Star game was in 1984 when the East beat the West 154-145 in overtime at Denver.

Malone had a 27-point, 18-rebound performance to top the East. In his final All-Star game, 36-year-old Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers had 22 points for the East. Erving, who will be 37 in two weeks, has announced he will retire at the end of the season.

West Coach Pat Riley of the Lakers said Chambers was a good choice for the MVP award. Riley named Chambers as a starter last week after Chambers was picked for the

Smith Says He's Happy At Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn basketball coach Sonny Smith said he expects to be contacted about a coaching vacancy at East Carolina, but he emphasizes that he's satisfied at Auburn and is not actively looking for a new job.

"I'll probably get a call. I don't think anything will happen. I can't anticipate anything happening. I'll listen if they call. Like I said the other day, it doesn't cost anything to listen," Smith said prior to No. 20 Auburn's 75-71 loss to Georgia Saturday night.

Smith said he does not plan to make any career move.

"I don't even know who the athletic director is at East Carolina," he said. "I've got a good job now. My top priority is get this team back on track and back in the NCAA Tournament."

East Carolina Athletic Director Ken Karr has put Smith and former Maryland Coach Charles "Lefty" Dreisell on his wish list to replace Charlie Harrison, who has resigned effective the end of the season.

Karr told a North Carolina newspaper that he would contact Dreisell early this week and would ask Auburn Athletic Director Pat Dye for permission to talk with Smith.

Elliott Claims Busch Clash Win

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bill Elliott wouldn't admit the obvious, that he has the fastest car at Daytona International Speedway.

The track record-holder charged from sixth place to pull away for a relatively easy victory Sunday in the ninth annual Busch Clash.

"Six places isn't all that far back," Elliott said. "And there were a lot of those guys (he passed) having trouble. Passing them don't mean all that much."

Elliott actually started from the pole in the 10-car field after drawing that position Thursday in a blind draw. But a three-car tangle at the start of the first lap caught Elliott napping and put him into a bit of a hole.

"I looked in my mirror and saw a couple of cars across the track and I thought they might have blocked the track," Elliott said. "I thought they'd restart the race and I kind of got out-throttled by a couple of guys."

Caution laps don't count in this $210,000, 20-lap, 50-mile sprint for the previous season's pole position winners. By the time the green flag came out again, Elliott was running sixth, far behind leader Darrell Waltrip, who appeared to be extremely strong.

Waltrip built a lead of about 10 car lengths while Elliott was quickly moving up through the field.

By lap four, Elliott's Ford Thunderbird was third, tucked in right behind Geoff Bodine's Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS. The two of them then worked together for a couple of laps, chopping into Waltrip's lead.

Elliott zoomed by Bodine into second on lap seven, then caught Waltrip and passed him coming off the fourth turn on lap eight. He led the rest of the way.

Bodine managed to pass Waltrip, his new teammate on the Hendrick Motorsports team, one lap from the end to wind up second, about one car length behind the flying Elliott.

The winner took home $75,000 after averaging 197.802 mph, breaking the Clash mark of 195.865 set last year by Dale Earnhardt.

Daytona Trials Cause Guessing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There's a big guessing game going on about how fast the winner of the pole position for Sunday's Daytona 500 will go today in the rain-delayed first round of qualifying.

But engineers from Goodyear, the exclusive supplier of tires for the NASCAR stock car series, already know what the new Daytona International Speedway qualifying record will be.

The figure they came up with is 209.7 mph.

"We plotted the Daytona 500 pole position speeds for the last seven years on a simple, straight-line graph," Tom Brown, one of the Goodyear tire engineers working at the track, said. "The pole speed has gone up steadily every year except last year, when the weather was unseasonably warm and the cars ran a smaller carburetor."

"If you completely ignore the fact that NASCAR engine builders have found more horsepower over the winter, that every front-running car has been in the wind tunnel once or twice in the last month, that the cars are 200 pounds lighter this year (5,500 pounds) — if you ignore all that and simply look at our graph — you would predict a pole position speed for the 1987 Daytona 500 several miles per hour faster than the 1986 speed."

They came up with the figure just under 210, which goes along with predictions by such insiders as three-time Winston Cup champions Darrell Waltrip and Cale Yarborough.

Bill Elliott, the favorite to win the pole for the third straight year in his sleek Ford Thunderbird, set the track record of 205.114 mph in 1985 and had the fast lap of 205.039 last February.

The opening qualifying session was postponed from Saturday until today because of intermittent rain which also shortened practice sessions on both Friday and Saturday.

"Still and all, we should be ready (on Monday)," said Elliott, who showed his expected power by winning the Busch Clash on Sunday.

"The pole speed probably won't be as fast as some people expect, but it's definitely going to be fast."

Big Final Round Lifts Pavin To Win

HONOLULU (AP) — Corey Pavin knew he needed something special in the final round of the Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

Entering Sunday's fourth and final round at the Waialae Country Club, Pavin trailed leader Craig Stadler by six strokes.

"I knew I had to do something great to have a chance," Pavin said.

Pavin found greatness, shooting an 8-under-par 64 to tie Stadler at 270, 18 under par, and force a sudden death playoff.

Stadler and the other third-round leaders couldn't crack 70 over the final 18 holes.

"We left the door open for someone to shoot a good round, and Corey did it," said the disappointed Stadler, whose 2½-year non-winning string remained intact.

The playoff for the $108,000 first prize started on the 14th hole, where both players matched par.

On the second extra hole Pavin and Stadler reached the green in two shots, with Pavin's ball landing about 20 feet from the cup and Stadler's about 15 feet.

Pavin, winner of this tournament last year, knocked the ball in for a birdie and it was Stadler's turn. His putt came up short and faded to the right.

"Things were just going my way," Pavin said. "Craig could have made that putt on 18 as easy as anything."

Stadler, playing almost an hour behind Pavin, came to the par-5 18th in a tie for the lead and had a 6-foot birdie putt to win it outright. But he missed.

Pavin, who won the Bob Hope Classic three weeks ago, became the first two-time winner of the season.

The sixth victory of his four-year PGA tour career pushed Pavin's tour-leading earnings to $307,040 in only five starts this season.

Pavin became only the second man to successfully defend his Hawaiian Open title (Hubert Green in 1978-79 was the other) and was the first player on the tour to successfully defend a title since Jim Thorpe in the Match Play Championship last year.

Stadler, who played the last round in 70 in the warm, sunny, weather, collected $64,800.

Paul Azinger, who scored his first tour victory in Phoenix last month, was in the race until the last few holes.

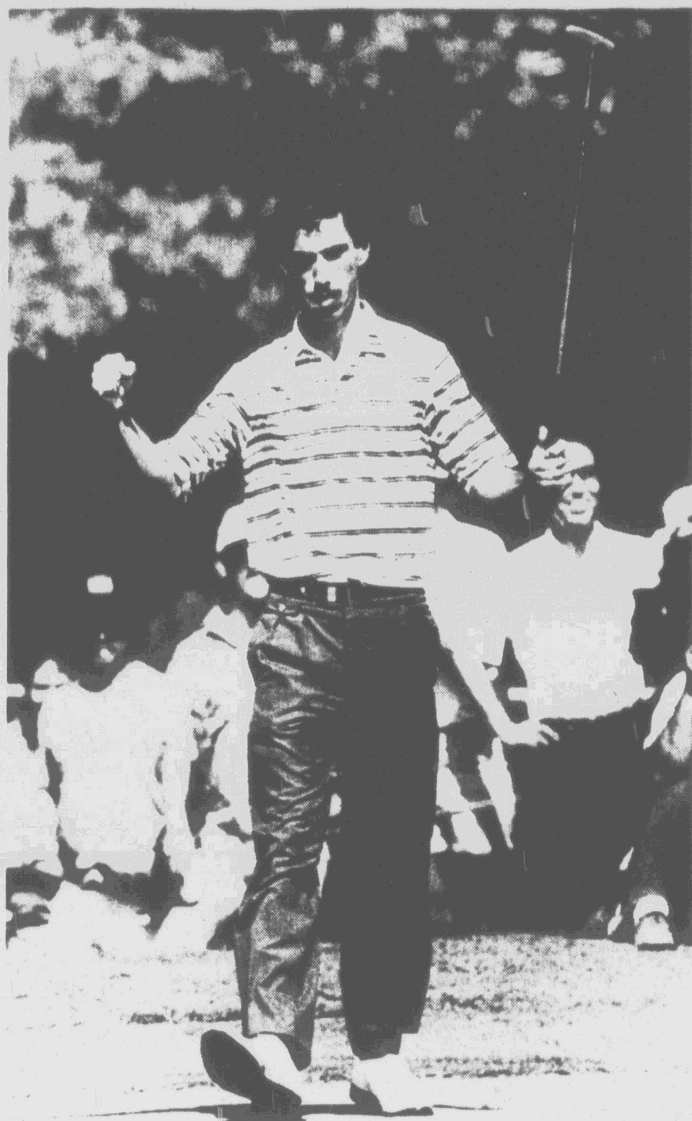

He dropped out of a tie for the lead when he bogeyed the 17th from a bunker, lipping out a three-to-four foot par-saving putt.

Azinger had an eight-foot birdie putt on the 18th to join the playoff, but again saw the putt slide by.

"I had my chances," said Azinger, who was third alone at 271 after a closing 70.

"I hit good shots coming in, but over the last few holes the putts just wouldn't go in. That's the way it goes."

Lanny Wadkins and Larry Mize were next at 272. Mize had a closing 67, Wadkins a 68.

Hall Of Fame Next For Lopez After Win

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Nancy Lopez says she never fully appreciated what it takes to make the LPGA Hall of Fame until a couple of years ago when she attended a ceremony honoring members in Sugar Land, Texas.

"For so long, I felt the criteria was so tough that they needed to change it," she said. "But after being there and watching some of the players who have made it, I said to myself, 'Maybe it really is worth it.'"

The requirements: 10 years consecutive membership in the LPGA along with 30 tour victories, including two different majors, or 35 wins with one major, or 40 victories with no majors.

But after Lopez shot a 74 and withstood a challenge by Kathy Baker to win the $200,000 Sarasota Classic by three strokes Sunday, the only requirement that stood between her and induction was the 10-year membership rule.

She will be the 11th player to qualify, and the first since JoAnne Carner in 1982.

"You think about this day and strive to get to it, but you wonder if it'll ever come," said Lopez, 30 years old. "This is special. To get into the Hall of Fame where there are so many great players is an honor."

The triumph was the 35th in 11 professional seasons for Lopez, who will become eligible for entry into the Hall in July. The triumph was gratifying, too, because it came on the same Bent Tree Country Club golf course where she earned her first pro victory in 1978.

"I remember that first win. I had a short tap-in (to finish) and didn't think I was going to be able to get the putter back," Lopez said. "It was very emotional. My mother had just died in September 1977 and never got to see me win. This brings back a lot of memories."

Lopez, winning for the first time since returning to the tour late last year after having a baby, finished the tournament with a four-round score of 7-under-par 281. She won $30,000 to boost her lifetime earnings to $1,743,244.

The 2-over-par 74 on the final day was uncharacteristic for Lopez, who shot 68 Saturday. She started with a five-stroke lead over Bakr and Cathy Morse and nearly lost it with a two-bogey, no-birdie round.

Baker, who shot 72 and finished in a tie for second place with Anne Marie Palli, pulled to within one stroke with five holes left. A bogey on the par 4 14th hole broke her momentum, however, and Lopez matched par the last four holes to complete the victory.

"I wanted to give it a good go today and I'm pleased," Baker said. "I got within one, but I was very aware there were five holes left."

"You could hear the crowd start buzzing when it got close," she added. "It wasn't a runaway, and that's good for the tour."

Baker and Palli, who shot a 69 in windy conditions, finished with 72-hole scores of 4-under-par 284. Heather Farr (70) and Chris Johnson (72) were next at 285, followed by Jody Rosenthal (70) at 1-under 287.

Mindy Moore, Ok-Hee K and Juli Inkster were at even par 288, while 1986 Player of the Year Pat Bradley shot 76 Sunday and dropped to 292.

Alford Leads Indiana To Win

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Guard Steve Alford scored 30 points Sunday, including 16 of Indiana's 22 during an eight-minute first-half streak that carried the No. 2-ranked Hoosiers to an 83-67 Big Ten Conference basketball victory over Michigan.

With Alford scoreless the first nine minutes of the game, the Hoosiers struggled and never led by more than two points.

But Alford hit five of his next seven shots, including a pair of 3-point goals, and the Hoosiers raced to a 41-29 halftime lead.

Indiana, 10-1 atop the Big Ten standings and 19-2 overall, quickly built the lead to 17 points early in the second half, and Michigan never came closer than 10.

Center Dean Garrett added 13 points, all but two in the second half, and forward Daryl Thomas finished with 11 for Indiana. Michigan, falling to 6-5 and 15-8, was led by Glen Rice, Gary Grant and Garde Thompson with 13 points apiece.

Alford's 30 left him 15 points short of the Indiana career record of 2,192 by Don Schlundt from 1952-55.

Alford, the Big Ten leader in 3-point shooting, hit his fourth long-range shot after Antoine Joubert brought the Wolverines within 10 points six minutes into the second half. That started a 16-4 spurt as the Hoosiers pulled ahead 72-50. Indiana took its biggest lead at 80-56 on another basket by Alford and the Hoosiers coasted the final four minutes.

Alford, coming off a career-high 42 points against Michigan State on Wednesday, missed his only shot during the first nine minutes against the Wolverines.

After Alford put the Hoosiers ahead to stay 17-15, Indiana built the lead to 11 points as Grant picked up his third foul and departed with 4:32 left in the first half.

Michigan closed within seven points, but Alford's second 3-point goal put the Hoosiers on top 37-27, and they led at halftime by 12 points.

Texas Christian.....55
Texas A&M.....50
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Carven Holcombe and Tony Papa

scored 16 points apiece to lead 15th-ranked Texas Christian to a 55-50 victory over Texas A&M Sunday in Southwest Conference basketball.

The Horned Frogs increased their league lead to three games, improving their record to 10-1 in the SWC and 19-4 overall. Texas A&M lost its fifth straight game, falling to 4-6 and 12-9.

Despite a big gap in shooting and rebounds, TCU didn't put the game away until the final minute of play when Larry Richard made a free throw and Holcombe scored on a fast break for a 55-48 advantage.

The Aggies jumped off to an early 8-2 lead, but TCU made a 17-2 run for a 19-10 advantage and was in front 30-25 at halftime.

Midway in the second half, A&M ran off seven straight points to take a 42-41 lead, but Richard's field goal put TCU back in front 43-42, and the Frogs led the rest of the way.

Papa, a 6-9 senior, set a career mark with his 16 points, while Holcombe was just under his season's average of 17.5. Norman Anderson added 10 points and Richard pulled down 17 rebounds.

Keron Graves came off the bench to lead A&M with 16 points, nine on 3-point shots.

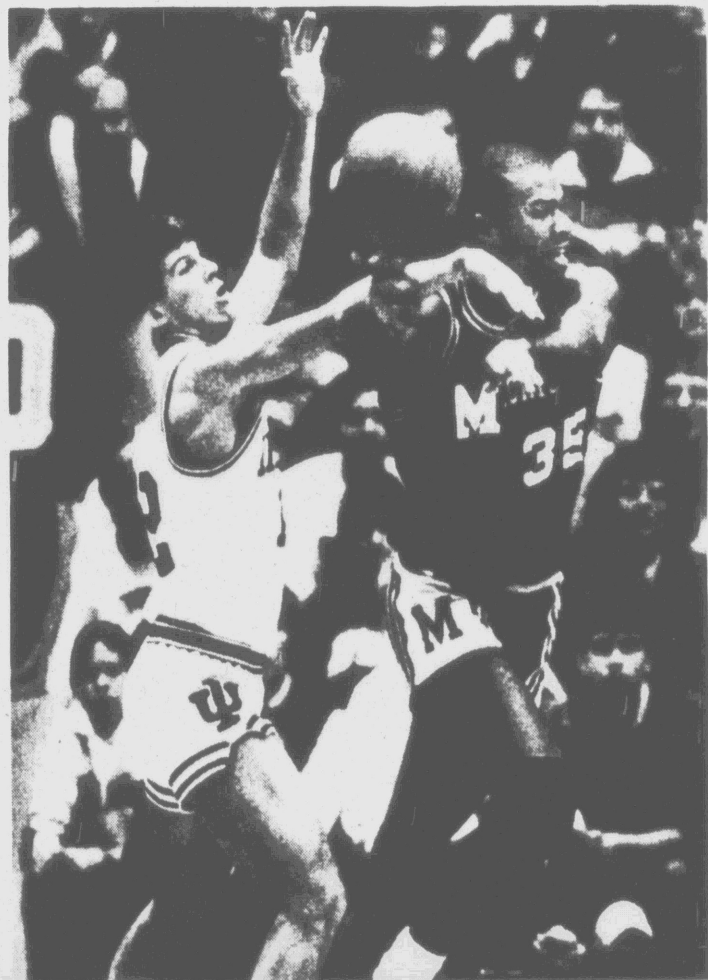

TCU used a tight zone defense that limited A&M's top scorer and rebounder, Winston Crite, to six points and two rebounds and forced the Aggies to rely on outside shooting.

The Horned Frogs hit 22 of their 44 field goal attempts for 50-percent shooting, while A&M made 20 of 56 for 35.7 percent. TCU also controlled the boards with 43 rebounds to only 23 for the Aggies.

Kansas.....70
Notre Dame.....60

Danny Manning had 28 points and sparked a quick getaway that propelled Kansas, which scored 21 of the game's first 23 points. The victory was the 100th at Kansas for Coach Larry Brown.

Manning added 40 more points, a career-high, to help Kansas take control down the stretch. The Jayhawks, 18-5, extended their homecourt winning streak to 46 games over the weekend. Notre Dame tied it 55-55 with 3:06 left, but Manning hit nine of Kansas' next 10 points to put the game away.

Mayotte In Shape, Defeats McEnroe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — This time, Tim Mayotte was in shape.

Mayotte credited his victory over John McEnroe in Sunday's final of the $465,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championship to the work he has done off the court the last 2½ months.

"I lifted weights, swam, rode a bike," said Mayotte after his 3-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1 triumph over McEnroe. "I played limited tennis."

Mayotte described commitment to conditioning as a prerequisite to becoming a great tennis player.

In 1986, Mayotte reached the final of this event but had to default the title to Ivan Lendl because of pulled stomach muscles suffered in a semifinal victory.

"I was so disappointed last year," Mayotte said. "I thought I was playing the best tennis of my career. I lost a lot of momentum because I couldn't play."

He noted that the world's top players, Lendl and Martina Navratilova, were advocates of off-court training.

"You have to go to the gym and lift (weights), do road work. It's a better way to become a great tennis player than playing."

McEnroe didn't exactly agree with Mayotte.

"I don't feel like running miles," he said. "I'm making progress. I'm better off (physically) than I was six months ago."

But he didn't completely dismiss the theory. He said he wanted to wait and see how well he played in tournaments the next few months.

"I don't need to lift weights. I don't need big biceps," McEnroe said.

But he conceded: "I've got to get stronger. Strong guys are coming into the game. So I'll certainly have to work on something off the court. Maybe he (Mayotte) was better physically."

Mayotte, 26, erased a bitter memory with his triumph over McEnroe, who held a 5-0 lifetime edge over him before Sunday.

Mayotte admitted that he tried without success to put last year's misfortune out of his mind.

"But there was a little voice telling me to get to the final again," he said.

game by Commissioner David Stern.

Chambers' 34 points matched the third-highest total in game history. Wilt Chamberlain scored 42 points in 1962 and Rick Barry had 38 in 1967. George Gervin scored 34 points in 1980 and Erving had 34 in 1984.

"It's a testimony to Tom Chambers," Riley said. "He just didn't score 34 points, either. He went out there and played some pretty good defense. He did a great job. He had a great game and he deserved it."

Chambers' performance may help erase a reputation for being a selfish, one-dimensional player interested only in scoring. On three occasions Sunday, he was on the floor scrambling for loose balls.

"I hope this brings me a little bit of respect," he said. "I also hope it gives the Seattle SuperSonics a little bit of respect, too."

In his sixth NBA season, Chambers still is looking to play on his first NBA winner. The Sonics have a 25-22 record at the All-Star break.

"Today I'm the best in the world," Chambers said. "It's unfathomable, me Tom Chambers, can be that. It means everything. I'm as excited as I can be."

FOCUS

Snuff The Puff
 Beginning this week, about 900,000 federal employees will no longer be allowed to smoke on the job. Americans are among the world's heaviest cigarette smokers. If all the cigarette packages smoked by Americans in one year were laid end to end, they would circle the Earth 20 times! A pack-a-day smoker inhales one-half cup of tar in a year and 400 milligrams of nicotine in one week. That amount of nicotine would kill a person instantly if consumed at one time.

DO YOU KNOW — What government office issues health warnings on cigarette packages?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — "Bloomers" were baggy pantaloons worn under a short skirt.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY Feb. 10
GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's an excellent day for you to look about your dwelling and become more aware of just what is needed to tone it up so that you are more comfortable there.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Have a discussion with kin and you can establish greater harmony. Show affection toward all.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Have a long talk with regular contacts and gain greater efficiency in the future. Be sure to drive carefully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Study your monetary situs well and know the best way to improve it. Take no risks with your reputation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Use your own methods in going after what you desire and get the right results.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Add to your outside activities now and gain greater prestige with the public. Get your talents to the attention of bigwigs.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Find more intelligent ways to add to your present activities. Make new allies who can be helpful in the future.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): A good friend can show you how to become more successful by using some methods he, or she, employs.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Make plans to take that trip that will gain you what you most desire. Your intuition is working well now.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be sure to keep the promises you have made and make arrangements to improve your credit.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Be less objective with your partners and show more warmth and understanding.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Use more standard methods at your job and don't try to be overly modern at your work.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Show your mate and other close ties how important they are to you. Be more affectionate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very much attached to family, home and country, so be sure to encourage this one who will be an exemplary son or daughter. Much ability here for merchandising. Success in this can come quite easily. Make sure to praise your child for work well done.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

 1 ♥ Dbl Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—There is no scientific solution to this problem—point count won't help you. Partner might have nothing other than four low spades. However, if he has a five-card suit, or even the queen, it might be enough for game. We would gamble on four spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠6 ♠AQ84 ♦A73 ♣A10542
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
 3 ♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Partner sounds like a broken record. He must have six very good spades, or perhaps a seven-card suit. The one bid you shouldn't make is three no trump—if partner has a broken suit, the defenders might get five tricks before you can establish nine. Our vote goes to four spades, even though you have only a singleton.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠A103 ♠A982 ♦KQ7 ♣J43
 Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
 A.—With a flat 14 points, you have more than enough to assure game but not enough for slam. In addition, it would be a mistake to probe for a 4-4 heart fit since you do not have a ruffing value. Simply raise to three no trump.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ954 ♥7 ♦AJ102 ♣K93
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Regardless of the methods you are using, you should bid three clubs. Partner has now been advised that you have five spades, four diamonds and three clubs, and hence a singleton heart. How comforting it is to be able to convey such a mine of information with one bid.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AJ73 ♥1092 ♦Q83 ♣632
 Your partner opens the bidding with a demand bid of two diamonds. What do you respond?
 A.—Normally, you need at least an ace and a king for a positive response to your partner's forcing two-bid. Here, however, we feel your queen in partner's suit should be upgraded. We attach so much importance to confirming a fit as early as possible, that we would opt for three diamonds.

A Reflector Review

'Platoon' Is Short Of Being Ultimate Film About Vietnam

"Platoon," the new war movie about Vietnam, has been very much in the news for the past couple of weeks. Critics, Vietnam veterans and the general public have expressed sharp, often controversial differences of opinions on the merits of the film.

In general, most film critics have hailed it in glowing terms — one has even labeled it "the ultimate movie" on Vietnam.

On Thursday night, "Platoon" opened at the Buccaneer in Greenville for a special showing to an invited audience, including a substantial number of men who served in Vietnam. The regular showing began Friday.

This reviewer, a Regular Army soldier who served in Vietnam in 1965 and 1966, served a tour of duty based in the relative safety of Saigon with Hqs. MACV. The reality of the war in normally safer areas is a reality far different from that depicted in "Platoon."

Oliver Stone, who wrote the script and directed the film, was himself a field veteran in Vietnam. From all accounts — whether in articles, books and firsthand from friends who served in the arenas of jungles and villages, Oliver's presentation of the basic circumstances are correct. There's the fact that most of the men who did the dirtiest fighting and suffered most casualties were poor whites, black and Hispanics — men with little education and no influential friends to get them better assignments.

And there's also visual confirmation that for the first time American soldiers in wartime developed a special code of dress — long hair, bodies adorned with tattoos, love beads and bracelets, and with an inclination to smoke pot — in short, a flamboyant lot that disturbed the occasional higher-up who bothered to go to the scene.

The most disturbing factor depicted, and one still difficult to fathom, was the deadly infighting growing out of hatred within the ranks, an unwillingness on the part of seasoned soldiers to compromise instead of venting their lethal anger on one another to the extent of cold-blooded murder.

One of the most horrifying aspects of the Vietnam war was the cruelty against Vietnamese civilians. Granted that in the war, particularly along the areas abutting the Cambodian border and the Ho Chi Minh trail where "Platoon" is set, frightened, weary soldiers, not being able to communicate with the people, could easily become trigger happy on the least suspicion and shoot rather than take chances.

In this film, one brutal scene of the murder of civilians before they had a chance to prove guilt or innocence was motivated by an atrocity against one of their men. Nonetheless, I find the extent to which the soldiers readily gave in to their lust for vengeance, was, hopefully, exaggerated for heightened dramatic effect and was not a valid depiction of the average soldier.

Other things in "Platoon" that bothered me: Admittedly, the use of profanity by men isolated from civilization does become widespread. In "Platoon," the dialogue of all except one soldier (the college trained boy who imagines letters to his folks), is persistently limited to about 16 choice expletives. This I find a totally degrading attribute.

From the viewpoint of understanding the film, Stone is guilty of a major flaw. From beginning to end, it is all at one level, one tone — one relentless battle scene after the other, with seldom a scene to balance things out. Evidently, he was intent on conveying the chaos and confusion of battle, with emphasis on night probes and operations. It is, however, dramatically unsound to attempt to transfer any sense of overwhelming non-stop confusion to film (or literature) without creating a numbness on the part of the viewer or reader. For me, that has greatly lessened the power of what could have been a memorable film rather than one that constantly clutches at one's guts.

"Platoon" does succeed brilliantly on some counts: The photography admirably uses telling close up shots of men's eyes and faces, along with some excellent footage of night battle scenes; and the actors, from lead roles starring Tom Berenger, Willem DaFoe and Charlie Sheen right on down the line to secondary players and the Orientals performing as villagers — men, women and children — are very close to being matchless.

Eventually, the clearest message conveyed in "Platoon" is that wars do not lead to victory, but only to cruelty, tragedy and a vast, senseless waste of human lives and resources.

"Platoon" is gruesome, powerful and ugly — but definitely not "the ultimate movie about Vietnam." A balanced, more perceptive film about America's tragic involvement in that war is yet to come.

It is not suitable for children or young people, nor for the squeamish. For others, "Platoon" is a movie to be seen and pondered.

Miniseries An Artistic Gamble

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The millions of Americans who tune in next Sunday to the opening episode of ABC's hotly debated miniseries "Amerika" are bound to be surprised when confronted with an often leaden, occasionally thought-providing film oddity.

The scarcity of violence and action may puzzle viewers who have heard for months of a miniseries about a Soviet takeover of the United States. They may expect to see a revolution, but there isn't one.

"Amerika" is ponderous and bleak, alternately subtle and zealously oafish. It is at times moving. There are moments of awkward amateurism mixed with scenes of cinematic sophistication.

Because of last-minute editing, only the first six hours of the 14½-hour miniseries were available for review, but they revealed a rare artistic gamble for television.

Publicity about its provocative political premise is not enough to sus-tain 14½ hours. The cast struggles bravely to carry the story, but there just isn't enough plot and characterization for an entire week of two-hour episodes.

That's too bad, because it includes some nice work, like the no-dialogue sequence in the third night when downtrodden political exiles trudge into fictional Milford, Neb., and are taken in by previously apathetic townspeople, an apparent metaphor for immigration.

The miniseries opens with an extreme closeup of Kris Kristofferson's gaunt face as he grunts hesitantly in voiceover: "It's winter. It's hard to keep track. I need to write this somehow, to try to hold on. When I had my freedom — free ... free ... If you say it over enough, it begins to sound, mean ... nothing."

Cut to scenes of a performance in a church of an outlawed play, "The Fantasticks." The American actress (Mariel Hemingway) meets later with her lover, a worldly KGB colonel (Sam Neill) under whose protective auspices the play went on, uninterrupted by violence.

In Milford, we meet the Milfords, a formerly prominent family reduced to squabbling in their rundown farmhouse on their remaining 50 acres of land. Kristofferson plays their imprisoned son and brother, a one-time presidential candidate.

Snowstorm Lashes Northeast, Great Lakes

By PETE BROWN
Associated Press Writer
A snowstorm blamed for one death raked the Northeast today after battering the Great Lakes with snow and gusts to 86 mph that downed power lines, closed roads and leveled a seawall on Chicago's Lake Michigan waterfront.

Blizzard warnings went up today over southern New England and New York's eastern Long Island, with up to 16 inches of snow and gusts to 50 mph forecast. Snow driven by 40 mph gusts fell from North Carolina to New England. Snow also fell today from the Great Lakes to the Ohio River Valley.

Up to 5 inches of snow was expected over much of the rest of the Northeast.

"Right now it's clear, but the roads are terrible. The truck drivers aren't moving," said Betty Fladd, a cashier at a truck stop along Interstate 90 near Erie, Pa., which had 8 inches of snow and gusts to 35 mph early today.

"It's going to be pretty bad just about all day," said Jim Gurka, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Boston, where motorists were urged to stay off the road to help snow crews get to work.

Snow, ice and high wind closed schools today in Ohio and in West Virginia, where up to 6 inches of snow was expected overnight. The University of Akron, Kent State University's main campus, and Case Western Reserve University in Ohio also closed.

Flights to the Cleveland area, which received up a foot of snow, were diverted Sunday because of poor visibility at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport, but the situation eased and flights were again arriving early today, said operations manager Al Munnerly.

Howling winds gusting to 50 mph and a freak water surge in Lake Michigan breached seawalls and forced the closing of all 15 miles of Chicago's scenic Lake Shore Drive on Sunday.

Residents of a 100-unit lakefront apartment building were evacuated late Sunday after water in the basement knocked out its utilities.

Thirty miles of highway along Lake Superior in Michigan were also closed, and flooding along Lake Erie shut a stretch of Cleveland's shoreline drive.

Chicago's Mayor Harold Washington was splattered by 10-foot waves during a visit to one hard-hit neighborhood.

"We had a brick wall between our building and the lake, but it's gone now," said lakeshore apartment dweller Len Gambino. "I can't walk out into the courtyard. The lake is no more than 20 feet away."

Kristen Hazel, another lakeshore resident, said, "It's incredibly windy, unbelievable. It sounds like there's something booming out there, like the walls are cracking."

A pedestrian's death in Michigan was blamed on blowing snow and fog, and a state Highway Department worker was critically injured near South Bend, Ind., after being hit by a truck while replacing a "road closed" sign that had blown down.

The storm caused scattered power failures in Illinois, Wisconsin and New York. Wind gusting to more than 70 mph knocked out power to 72,000 customers in Michigan. Service had been restored to all but 19,000 by late Sunday.

Stretches of Interstates 26 and 40 in North Carolina and Tennessee closed Sunday, I-40 because of stranded tractor-trailers and as many as 35 accidents in two hours period, said

North Carolina Highway Patrol dispatcher N.L. Duckett.

Winds were clocked at 65 mph on Grandfather Mountain in North Carolina with gusts to 120 mph Sunday. Flat Top Mountain near Asheville had gusts near 60 mph.

A fallen power line caused a natural gas leak Sunday at a nursing home in the Detroit suburb of Southfield, forcing the evacuation of about 100 residents.

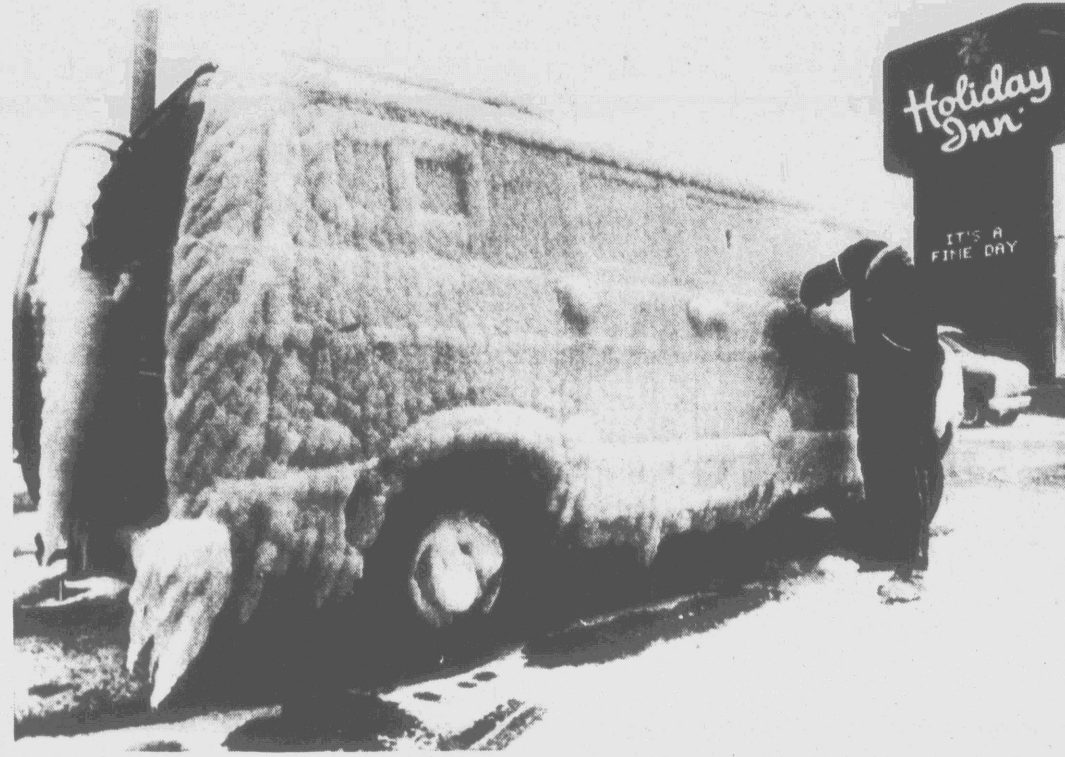

"The arcing wires sent a jolt down and triggered a hole in the gas line," said Fire Cmdr. Marcel Charette said. Building sprinklers put out a small fire that could have blown the building up, he said.

A Coast Guard helicopter rescued at least six ice fishermen from a floe in Lake St. Clair's Anchor Bay that broke loose from the shoreline, said Petty Officer David Klein.

"The (recent warm) temperatures work on the ice from the top down, current works on the ice from the bottom up and the heavy wind gives it the push it needs to move," he said. Around sunrise Sunday, a wind gust to 86 mph knocked down trees at Janesville, Wis., and gusts to 69 mph downed billboards at Grand Rapids, Mich. Gusts of more than 50 mph raked parts of Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa.

Record high temperatures continued Sunday in the West, with highs in the 70s and lower 80s over California and southern Arizona and readings in the 50s over the Great Basin and Northern Rockies.

ICING ON THE VAN — Jim Hendrick of Marysville, Mich., uses a tire iron to chip heavy ice off his van after parking the vehicle overnight along the shore of Grand Traverse Bay at Traverse City, Mich. Winds in excess of 55 mph pushed high seas onto the shoreline, coating the van. Hendrick found a car wash and, with plenty of hot water, cleaned most of the ice off. (AP Laserphoto)

Confusing W-4 Prompts A Flood Of Criticism

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you notice a big drop in the federal tax withheld from your checks this year, the good news may turn sour 12 months from now.

A sharp increase in take-home pay — assuming you have not had a major pay raise this year — probably means you need to adjust your withholding, to tell your employer to take out more from each check. That could be your first introduction to the new, much-criticized W-4 form.

Every taxpayer is required to file the new form by Oct. 1, but anyone who waits that long could find too little or too much has been withheld for most of the year. Too little could mean an additional penalty; too much would be giving the government an interest-free loan.

So far, according to the Internal Revenue Service, only about 20 percent of employees have filed the new form, which is virtually the same as new workers have been filing for the last 20 years. The big difference is in the more-complicated instructions and the longer worksheet that taxpayers will use to determine what to put on the form they file. It incorporates changes the Internal Revenue Service considered necessary to make withholding for most people much closer to actual tax liability.

Those changes have been enough to set off a flood of letters and telephone calls to members of Congress. Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., chairman of a Senate Finance subcommittee that oversees the IRS, read IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs a sampling at a hearing on Friday:

"I graduated from the University of Tennessee in business administration with heavy concentration on accounting," read one. "I graduated from the University of Tennessee Law School. I have been in business 30 years. I can't figure the thing out."

"We Wanted To Expand, Diversify And Have A Steady Cash Flow. Perdue Has Done All Three For Us."

"I have three sons who want to stay on the farm, so we had to find a way to overcome the instability of tobacco and row-crop farming. We needed a new, steady source of income we could depend on, so we could keep on farming.

"Our Perdue broiler house has proven to be the answer for us. Growing chickens is steady, dependable, gives us the cash flow we need, and it's not affected by dry weather or government programs. We're building our second Perdue house now.

"I know a lot of my neighbors are skeptical of poultry companies, but Perdue is different. We knew nothing about raising poultry when we started. Perdue worked with us every step of the way. Perdue has done exactly what they said they would and we are well satisfied. Perdue is a big outfit, with solid programs, good service and they're here to stay.

"The cash flow from our chickens helps us keep growing tobacco, corn, soybeans and wheat in our fields. Our chicken income also got us out of the financial squeeze we were facing.

"Last year we had a 25¢ assessment off the top of our tobacco crop and a drop in support prices that cut deep in our profits. We'll also keep on growing corn, although it's hard to make any money growing it. The more acres you have, the more money you lose. Soybeans are a tad better, as is wheat. Rowcropping is so dependent on weather and farm programs. There are so many things that can work against you.

"But we're farmers who want to stay on the farm. Our decision to build a Perdue broiler house and go into the chicken business was one of the best things we've ever done. I only wish we could have started five, ten years earlier."

Give yourself a raise—raisin' with Perdue.

Panelists Debate Handling Of U.S. Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel, citing a recent string of disastrous spy cases, is calling for major changes in the way the nation protects its secrets.

The report by the House Intelligence Committee said U.S. spy agencies have become almost lackadaisical about guarding the nation's most sensitive secrets.

The committee, using terms far harsher than those used by its Senate counterpart in a similar report last year, found "a litany of disaster" and called for major overhauls reaching deep into the counterspy bureaucracy.

"The committee does not believe that the U.S. intelligence community can go ahead on a business-as-usual basis in the wake of these espionage disasters," said the report issued last week, which was the result of a series of hearings and interviews last year.

While the report details many of the same shortcomings cited by the Senate Intelligence Committee four months ago, its tone is far more pessimistic, citing a "disturbing lack of judgment," "staggering, long-term damage to national security," and "serious management failure" in various intelligence areas.

"Our hope is that the criticisms will be taken as drawing attention to something that needs to be improved," said Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the new chairman of the committee. "We hope the executive branch will clean up its act."

President Reagan began implementing a series of counterintelligence defenses in November that stemmed from a long study by the National Security Council staff. The changes included stationing Pentagon investigators inside large defense plants, increased spending on communications security and improvements in handling of defectors.

But Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., who was chairman of the House panel while it was conducting the study, said those and other recent improvements are not enough.

"The reaction of the intelligence community to the spy cases was very inadequate," Hamilton said. "Our report took into consideration those steps, and we think they are not sufficient."

Among the panel's findings were: —Carelessness in hiring for sensitive intelligence posts. It cited the case of Edward Howard, who seriously damaged the CIA's operations in Moscow by giving secrets to the Soviets despite evidence he had "an extensive history of using hard drugs." Naval intelligence analyst Jonathan Pollard, who spied for Israel, was hired even though he had boasted to friends of his work for the Mossad, Israel's intelligence agency.

—Failure to take seriously the implications of the arrests of 27 U.S. citizens for spying from 1984 to 1986. In one instance, Navy officials underplayed the significance of the Walker spy ring during a secret session with the committee, while other government officials were publicly, and more accurately, describing the extreme gravity of the case.

—A relaxation of strictures that should govern the most highly classified information. "There seems to be a widespread attitude within some U.S. intelligence agencies that once an employee has been granted a Top Secret clearance ... strict adherence to the 'need-to-know' principle is not required," the panel said.

—Relatively indiscriminate issuance of security clearances. Of 200,000 applications for Top Secret status in 1984, only 1 percent were denied. Currently, more than 5 million Americans hold some level of security clearance. "The chances of a few spies having received clearances among so many are high," the report states.

The previous Senate report, while pointing out areas in which improvement was needed, concluded: "As a result of significant improvements in recent years, the nation's counterintelligence structure is fundamentally sound."

Sen. David Boren, D-Okl., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said part of the problem may be due to a single-minded effort over the past eight years to restore the dominance of the United States in the area of intelligence gathering.

While it was spending more to upgrade its ability to gather secrets, the United States gave less emphasis to protecting its own secrets, he said.

"We've experienced some disasters. ... Counterintelligence to some degree was neglected while we were rebuilding."

Boren added, however, that the large numbers of recent arrests for spying may indicate not only a growth in the numbers of spies, but improvements in catching them.

"That will pay dividends down the road," he said. "It will have a chilling effect" on the willingness of Americans to sell government secrets.

Liberace Fans Say Forget AIDS Probe

By FRED T. SHUSTER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liberace's grieving fans filed past his tomb, leaving flowers, shedding tears and condemning the investigation into whether the pianist died of AIDS.

"I think they should just leave him alone," said Joyce Pearl, 61, of Glendora, Calif. "That was his personal life. He hurt nobody. As far as I'm concerned, he's still number one."

The tomb, at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in the Hollywood Hills, stands between a pair of small, flowering pear trees trimmed to resemble the pianist's trademark candelabras.

On the marble face, Liberace's oversized signature, complete with candelabras and grand piano, is reproduced in polished brass. The names of his mother, Frances, and his brother, George, are also inscribed.

Shortly before his death, the singer gave a copy of his signature to Forest Lawn officials so it could be reproduced on the vault, said Dick Fisher, cemetery spokesman.

Liberace died Feb. 4 at his Palm Springs home. A doctor said death was due to heart failure caused by an inflammation of the brain. The Riverside County coroner, however, ordered an autopsy to determine whether Liberace died of AIDS or other contagious disease.

A coroner's official said medical records showed Liberace had been exposed to acquired immune deficiency syndrome but it was unknown if he had actually developed and died of AIDS. Tests results were expected later today.

"It just made me sick when I heard all this digging up dirt," Edie Petersen, 67, said Sunday. "I resent anyone going into anyone's private life."

"They should let the man rest in peace. I don't care what he had," said Aude Pace, 54, of Los Angeles, who had tears in her eyes. "That's his private business. They should just close the case."

Liberace's body was entombed Saturday after a brief, private service attended by about 30 friends and relatives in the cemetery's Courts of Remembrance. Nearby are the remains of actors George Raft and Charles Laughton and comedian Freddie Prinze.

Next to the tomb stood a heart-shaped wreath of red roses. Small clusters of fans quietly passing by the tomb took pictures and left floral bouquets.

Bold Move For Minister

WILLIAMSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — A minister who passed out condoms to his congregation during a weekly service said the national publicity of his plans had already helped enlighten people about the spread of AIDS.

"More than my wildest dreams were accomplished before today even got here," the Rev. Carl F. Titchener said Sunday after his sermon at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Amherst.

The minister spoke to an overflow audience of 250 and was greeted four times with applause, including a standing ovation.

"We have the two leading health officials in the United States warning us about a plague and we don't know how to react, how to talk, because we are still squeamish," he said.

Outside the church, about 10 people marched in freezing rain to protest the action. One of their placards read, "A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing." Two-thirds of the way through his talk, Titchener and six ushers dispensed about 125 boxes, each containing three condoms.

He urged television stations to accept advertising for the devices, which U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop has said is the best way to halt the spread of AIDS aside from sexual abstinence. Acquired immune deficiency syndrome can be transmitted by sexual contact.

"When you go to bed with another person, you go to bed with that person's sexual history," the 56-year-old minister said. "When you go to bed with that partner, you also go to bed with the sexual histories of all of his or her sexual partners."

In his talk, he said sex education should be taught more openly and chastised the government for not promoting information about AIDS more forcefully.

ing 752-4137, extension 280. This 9th Day of February, 1987 City of Greenville, NC
THE TOWN OF GRIMESLAND, NORTH CAROLINA
NOTICE OF SPECIAL BOND ELECTION
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special bond election will be held in the Town of Grimesland, North Carolina, on March 17, 1987, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said Town the questions whether they shall approve or disapprove (1) the indebtedness to be incurred by the issuance of bonds of said Town of the maximum principal amount of $200,000 and the indebtedness shall be secured by a pledge of the Town's faith and credit, and (2) the levy of a tax for the payment of such bonds, and (3) the bond order entitled, "BOND ORDER AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF $200,000 OF $100,000 SALES TAX BONDS TO THE TOWN OF GRIMESLAND", adopted by the Board of Aldermen and authorized by the Board of Commissioners of said Town.

The $200,000 Sanitary Sewer Bonds are authorized to pay capitol, construction and installation of necessary machinery and without the Town, including the acquisition, construction and installation of necessary machinery and equipment and the acquisition of land or rights-in-land required therefor.

The ballots to be used at said elections shall contain words, "SHALL the order authorizing $200,000 of bonds secured by a pledge of the faith and credit of the Town of Grimesland to pay capital costs of providing the Town, including the acquisition, construction and installation of necessary machinery and equipment and the acquisition of land or rights-in-land required therefor, be levied for the payment thereof by approved?" with squares labeled "YES" and "NO" beneath or beside which words in which squares the voter may record his choice.

In the event a majority of the qualified voters at said election vote to approve the order, the incurring of indebtedness and the levy of a tax related thereto, said bonds shall be issued and taxes shall be levied for the payment of such bonds.

The polls for the election will be held at the Board of Elections at the hour of 6:30 o'clock, A.M. and will close at the hour of 7:30 o'clock, P.M. The polling place for the election will be held at the Town Hall in Grimesland.

The registration records for said election will be kept open at the office of the Pitt County Board of Elections, on 201 East Second Street, in Greenville, from 8:30 o'clock P.M., until 5:00 o'clock P.M., each weekday, through February 16, 1987. Voters may also register at the Grimesland Town Hall, on February 10, 1987 from 9:00 o'clock A.M. until 1:00 o'clock P.M.; on February 11, 1987 from 9:00 o'clock P.M. until 7:00 o'clock P.M. Additionally, the Registrar and Judges of Elections may register voters through February 16, 1987. The Registrars and Judges may be reached through the Board of Elections at the address set forth above. The last day of registration for the special election shall be February 16, 1987.

A pre-proposal and order of the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Grimesland.

We admit that stocks, bonds and mutual funds offer one possibility we're not allowed to offer.

No one has ever lost a dime in a First Federal account. Which is a whole lot more than you can say about Wall Street investments.

Even better, the various First Federal accounts offer most of the flexibility of Wall Street accounts, too. Come in, and we'll discuss accounts which offer long or short term yield, high interest, even tax planning options—almost any financial feature you're likely to need. All guaranteed. Because First Federal accounts are insured against loss to $100,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC).

Why play games? Play it safe, play it smart with First Federal and get the investment with the right financial features for you without playing the Wall Street poker game. Earn a guaranteed high return without risk.

Say good-bye to Wall Street. And hello to First Federal.
