September 11, 2001 Four planes crashed. Terrorist stole OUR planes, with OUR citizens in them, crashed them into OUR buildings, killing more of OUR citizens. Now I am in a state of shock. Not as much so as the family and friends of those who were killed, injured, or still missing. Living in the most powerful and rich nation you never expect something like this to happen. Maybe we are not as powerful as we think. Maybe we are not as invincible as we think. Could this lead to World War III? If it does I can foresee these days being our very last. Our whole nation grieves. President Bush said that our steel buildings may collapse but the nation will not. Maybe we should stop and realize how valuable we really are. Having a strong government that will not collapse offers little if any comfort to those who feel the direct impact of the attack yesterday. We will take action upon what happened but I pray we will not take more lives of those who were innocently going about their daily activities.
