Dear Sir ^{and Bro}

Wishing information and knowing the high position you hold I deem it prudent to write you,

The case I refer to is simply this, about about 2 years ago there was an Alliance organized in our vicinity as Grassy Springs Alliance No 907 We met in a small school house until our number was about 25 & for order & convenience we moved to a church about 2 miles from Grassy Springs, its chartered home, but the members of the church objected to our meeting in the church, so now we have got to build a house, we are undivided to where the house shall be built, The magnity wants it built near the church 2 miles from its chartered home, The majority being only two,

While our present membership is about sixty members. The old members including the charter members want it built at its former home, now what I want to know is, has the majority got to rule in this case, And if we was to divide would the old members have to buy a new charter for grassy Spring, as the majority of two could hold the old charter and say that we should buy a new charter if we divided, Is there any justice in that - if there is 25 or thirty could join any alliance and ten miles from home and put it to a vote and move this charter from there, I am not interested myself and am writing you for information for the charter members I've tried to give facts as best I could and await your decision

Respectfully James E. Roberts,
