Licenses for Doctors-Free Concerts for the Poor-A Novel Amusement

Regular Correspondence,

New York, Feb. 27th, 1891. On and after July the first, 1891, the would-be physicians of the State of New York must submit to an examination by the Board of Regents and must receive a license before being allowed to practice. Heretofore the graduate of any chartered college could immediately begin to sectice anywhere he saw fit. All that was needed was a diploma obtained in regular manner. The older doctors claim that this p'an worked to the discredit of the profession and hence they have labored hard to remedy it. After a number of years county. of effort and struggle between the different schools of medicine the matter has been settled by establishing three distinct boards of seven members each. One board is composed of allopathists, another of nomeopathists, while the third is eclectic, each attending to the candidates of its own school, but all under control of the Board of Regents. An examinatisn fee of $25 will be charged, and doctors coming from held in that city next fall. Every moth, canker worm and tent caterother States must also qualify before

Tinsley's Special Bright Tobacco Fertilizers.

This is the richest, highest grade Fertilizer offered for sale in the State. It is especially prepared for the culture of Bright Tobacco, and there is no guano sold in the State which stands so well. We can only refer to the parties in this vicinity who used it last year. They have all notified us that they will use it again this year. Call to see us and get the analysis and book of testi-

Capital Tobacco Fertilizer.

This is a brand of Fertilizer which though new to this vicinity, hasan established reputation in several other States as being unexcelled as a fertilizer for the production of fine Bright Tobacco. It is especially prepared for the culture of Bright Tobacco and as we have sold it several years before we unhesitatingly recommend it as being as good as the best.

Pocomoke Guano.

Is well known all through Eastern Carolina as one of the best producing fertilizers for all crops ever offered for sale. It is a very rich high grade guano, made out of the best material, and has never failed to give entire satisfaction. The manfacturers offer 10 premiums, aggregating several hundred dollars, for the most cotton raised on a single acre of land with Pocomoke Guano. Call and get their book of testimonials with directions as to how to compete for these premiums.

Beef, Blood and Bone.

Is a brand which has never been offered for sale here before. But we know it to be a first-class standard fertilizer, as we have sold it before. It is made by a house which stands at the head of the list for making honest, high grade fertilizers. As its name signifies it is composed mainly of animal matter, flesh, blood and bone, scraps which they obtain from the large slaughter houses of the West. We have a large supply of

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS.

For the second best five pounds we will pay a cash premium of Fifteen Dollars. For the third best five pounds we will pay a cash premium of Ten Dollars. This offer is open to all of our customers using any of the guanos sold by us, whether they buy direct from us or through some of our sub-agents or dealers. The plan of awarding the premiums will be announced hereafter in this paper.

Ten Per Cent. Reduction.

In order to make room for our Spring Stock, commencing Monday, Feb. 2 od, 1891, we will for CASH make a discount of ten per cent. on the following stock:

Clothing of all kinds, Suits, Extra Coats and Vests, Overcoats and Pants. All Winter Weights of Pant Goods, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Underwear, Shawls, Ladies' Dress Goods, consisting of Henricitas, Cashmeres, Alapacas and all winter styles of Calloos. Also a nice line of Ladies' Woolen Hosiery, Also a few nice styles of Carpeting, and a large assortment of Boots.

We do not throw this cut as a bait, but a bona fide offer, which we shall keep open for about 30 days. We are induced to make it simply because we need the room for our Spring Stock, and besides we had rather sell the goods for CASH NOW at this discount than to carry them until next season and then get our present marked prices. Everyone is at liberty to examine the marks on each article and see that we carry out this proposition in good fath. We invite you one and all to take advantage of this offer without delay, or else you may miss a bargain in something you need by being too late.

Monday we were shown an account of cotton sales made by Cobb Bros. & Gilliam, at Norfolk, on Feb. 27th. Fifteen bales brought 9 cents and ten bales brought 84 cents. That was good sales, as the Norfolk mar-ket was only quoted 8 13-16 for mid-cling cotton on that day.

A Specialty.

They all noticed him, even in the flurry of settling into their places, adjusting hand luggage and attending to the requirements of children. The conductor brought him in with great care, as one would handle fragile china, and settled him in a seat on the left hand side. A brukeman followed with hand luggage, and the two men bestirred themselves to make their charge comfortable, lowering the blind to keep the sun from his eyes, folding a railway rug over his knees, and unlocking and turn ing the seat in front in case he should wish to put up his legs.

When the conductor and his satellite had betaken themselves to their various vocations in other parts of the train, the invalid turned his face to the window and his follow presengers took note of him. His height was medium, but seemed greater by reason of pallor and emaciation, his eyes had circles under them, and the droop of his figure indicated physical weakness. Evidently a man just out of a serious illness and hardly yet in a condition to travel. At least such was the dictum of the lady on the opposite side, given with emphasis to a girl on the same seat.

"I wonder his people allow him to go about alone," she commented. "It seems positively brutal. He can hardly mself upright, and I'm sure the very look of him will keep me racked with anxiety as long as I sit here. He may give up the ghost at any moment."

The girl glanced across. "Perhaps he hasn't any people," she suggested, "or is on his way to them." Then she added sympathetically: "Poor man! he does seem dreadfully ill. I wonder who he can be?"
So did the elder lady—so much, in fact, that, being of decided character and prone to get that which she wanted, were it only information about her fellow creatures, she put questions to the conductor the instant he returned to her vicinity. The facts elicited were few, but they served to deepen her interest and at the same time to divert her thoughts into a more personal channel. The sick man was a Dr. Royal, and on his way to his people somewhere in the mountains of Virginia. He had been badly damaged in a New York railway ral weeks before, and, although he had escaped with life and limb, it would probably be many months before he would be his own man again. So much the conductor disclosed, in a burst of unofficial confidence which he was made keenly to regret by having to combat womanly fears and prognostications, and also to pledge the honor of a railroad man that no accidents of any size or description had ever occurred in the past, or would be likely to occur in the future, to any train under his administration. Meanwhile Dr. Royal sat quietly in his place, with his knees well covered and his traveling bag beside him. At intervals he would gience at his watch and administer to himself medicines from bottles which he manipulated with emaciated but steady fingers. From time to time the conductor would come to him with offers of service, but he appeared averse to giving trouble or making a stir in any way, and, on the whole, kept himself so quiet that the interest of the other passengers waned, although each newcomer would treat him to a stare of sympathetic or stolid curiosity, according to each individual nature. And so the day wore on, eventless, into afternoon. "Gibson's Landing!"

The brakeman dashed open the door of the rear car and sent his voice along the aisle. Nobody evinced other than passing interest, and it was apparent that the information concerned nobody present. The door closed with a bang, and the brakeman stepped back to the platform of the forward car. The engine gave a premonitory toot toot, the train rolled forward a little way and then came to a standstill. The invalid lifted himself and leaned on the window frame. Away in front he could see the dingy red round of the water tank, and so satisfy himself as to the cause of the decisive movements, or all taken to-gether, which caused the beholder, indelay. He let his eyes wander listlessly here and there over the prospect spread

It presented the rather poverty stricken a stretch of hills in the background, clothed with forest for the most part, but diversified by cliffs and the jutting forth of grante bowlders. At one point, nearly opposite the sick man's window, a red clay road circled and sidled down the hillside to the river at its foot—its objective point, apparently, a small ferry house upon the bank. The embankment house upon the bank. The embankment on which the track lay was lifted above the low grounds, so that the view was unobstructed to the river, the landing, and the hills beyond.

On the low grounds the corn stalks stood in straggling rows, upright or inclined at various angles according to the with the cold pleasure, and the furrows, unwingted with overplus of moisture, howed long slusby puddles half hidden, and revealed by tangles of cockle burns, Spanish needles and frostbitten pumpkin

Dr. Royal looked about with dissatisfied recognition in his glance. Six years had not appreciable change in the aspect of Unper Vinginia, he thought. The soil was as good—witness the crop of weeds—the system of cultivation as inadequate, and the general look of things as peacefully thriftless as ever. Had be the life of with eyes in the back of his head and a focus through the opposite window his opinion would have been fully borne out by the dilapiation of the publisher near the station, the stretch of broomsedge and sassafras covered land around, and the joyous improvidence of a couple of negro boys who, with apples to sell and a trainful of the back of his additional evitation to business by a dog fight.
