THE HOME PAPER.

Foggy in Lenoir Topic. So far as I know every county seat in North Carolina has a newspaper, doing what it can for the education of the people, the development of the county's resources, trying to elevate the citizens and help them on to greater prosperity. Our home paper has become a fixed necessity, and every citizen ought to feel bound to be a subscriber. County pride, if nothing else, should induce us to stand by our home paper and the man who from sheer indifference fails to support his home paper, is wanting in county pride. I am ambitious enough to want my county to be the equal of any of her sisters in point of intelligence and enterprise, if not in point of wealth; and without a good sound, healthy and enterprising home paper, this intelligence and enterprise must be wanting. Again I am ambitious enough to want my county paper to be the equal of any other county paper, and without a liberal patronage from all our citizens this cannot be. The home paper should make its weekly visits to every family in its territory. We cannot afford to assume the responsibility of rearing a family without providing all legitimate means for education. A good newspaper is a splendid educator, and our children will eagerly read it when they are slow to read anything else, and in course of one or two months they will have done a vast amount of reading that otherwise would have been neglected. I knew a man once with a large family of children well educated, and the man was poor, and being asked how he managed to educate his children he replied: "I kept them well supplied with good newspapers and other literature, and sent them to school what I could, and they educated themselves." The newspapers help to create a thirst for knowledge. There are children to day well-nigh grown that do not know the world is much larger than their father's farm or their own neighborhood. The newspaper enlarges the ideas of our children as well as our own. I know of no place where we can invest one dollar that will yield us such large returns as in our home paper. Then it is a great mistake that people make in subscribing for a paper abroad to the neglect of the home paper. It is simply enriching others while we impoverish ourselves. It is about equal to saying, we have little or no home pride. I have no word to utter against subscribing to papers abroad if we just take our home paper. The first two papers for us to read is our home and church papers then as many more as our inclinations dictate. But one says, I can get a larger paper with much more reading matter for the same price abroad than at home. That may be true, but you cannot afford to be without your home news. Your county pride is at stake and you cannot afford to sacrifice that. Then even if we would all patronize our home paper with a paid up subscription, our hard worked editors could enlarge their papers and give us much more reading matter. Another says, my neighbor takes the home paper, and I read it. Well, that is just stinging to the core, if we are at all able to subscribe for a paper. Some people excuse themselves by saying the editor is of different politics, and therefore we will not take his paper. I insist that that is not a valid excuse, and that we ought to read the home paper for the sake of our home news. If my county paper was of different politics from mine, I would still subscribe to and read it as a home enterprise and agree to disagree with the editor as to politics.

In conclusion I suggest that we all feel it our duty to aid the editor in making a good home paper by sending him items of news from our neighborhood, and those competent or accustomed to writing, contribute now and then to the columns of the paper. We should feel that it is our paper and that in some measure we are responsible for its success.

Cure for Dysentery.

Weldon News. Mr. Ed. Willis, of Brinkleyville, writes that as there seems to be so much dysentery prevailing, an unfailing remedy may be acceptable. Here it is: "Take sweet milk, heat it so hot as can be drunk without boiling, and take from one-half to a pint at a time, repeating the dose as required." This is a simple remedy and with in the reach of every one. Try it.

A Good Remedy.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Regular Correspondence. War on the Bridge.—A New Paper.—Seals Cause More Trouble. NEW YORK, June 20th, 1891. New York and Brooklyn, which have been firm friends for so long many years, are at last in the midst of war. No armed hosts as yet appeared on lofty summits of the Bridge towers nor at the entrances, but the two municipal governments have had a clash and the result is that New York has won the first round. The so-called Brooklyn Bridge which connects New York with its suburb across the East River has always until now been managed by Brooklyn men, though each city was an equal partner. Last week however, the annual meeting of the trustees took place, when the New York men caught the Brooklynites napping, as some were absent, a president was elected from this city. The Brooklynites look upon this as a kind of usurpation, and their defeated ex-president is fighting it as vigorously as is possible. He attempted to hold the office by force but was prevented by the janitors who spent the night in the presidential chair. At last accounts President Wagstaff, the new man, was in entire charge, but the opposition threaten to go to court. Politics is said to be at the bottom of the fight, but it is hoped the bridge will still be left standing. DEVELOPMENT IN JOURNALISM. A new morning paper has appeared upon the scene called the "Morning Advertiser." It is the successor of the "Star" and "Daily Continent," and will be sold for one cent. With the starting of so many new papers one wonders what is to become of the old timers. They have steadily been increasing the number of their pages, while decreasing the price. There is also a decided tendency to smaller sized pages, which naturally makes the reader in handling the paper in cars or crowded places. The small sized pages are much more handy than the old time blanket sheets and are therefore much more popular. New York has now three one-cent morning papers all of which seem firmly established. If the same rate of progress in journalism continues for a few years longer we will, no doubt, have papers given to the public free. SEALS BECOME AN ELEPHANT. Capt. Mullett makes a business of furnishing curiosities. When any dime museum, menagerie, or other aggregation of phenomenal wonders runs short of sea lions, panthers, royal bengals, or other natural attractions he is commissioned to secure them. During a recent visit to Cannes, the Captain met a representative of a European Zoological combine and struck a bargain with him for the capture of thirty sea lions. He went to San Diego, Cal., chartered a vessel and went seal hunting. He captured the thirty seals and shipped them to New York, from Santa Barbara Bay, in care of Edward Degan. They arrived in this city last week and were met in the railroad yard by Capt. Mullett who had arranged with Superintendent Conklin, of Central Park menagerie, to place the animals on exhibition in the pond near the Arsenal. To his surprise, Freight Agent Nichols stuffs refused to let him take the animals away, owing to some misunderstanding regarding the bill of lading, then Capt. Mullett bore out his name, by becoming purple with rage. He told Mr. Nichols that since the company had refused to deliver the sea lions to their owner, the company should rest the responsibility for their well being. He would have nothing more to do with them, but he valued them at $50,000. Since their arrival, three of the lions have died and the railroad company certainly "have an elephant on their hands." THE THIRD PARTY REPUDIATED IN KANSAS.

Topeka (Kan.) Dispatch. Returns received by the Alliance executive committee from sub-Alliances, which were asked to pass judgment on the work done by the Cincinnati convention, are far from encouraging to the People's party politicians. It is known that twenty-five sub-Alliances have repudiated the Third party movement. Fifteen of these have reported to the State Alliance, and ten to the Republican central committee. Cloud county Alliance has adopted the following resolutions: "WHEREAS, The South was not represented in the Cincinnati convention, and WHEREAS, We believe the Third party will disrupt the Republican party to the benefit of the Democratic party; therefore be it Resolved, That we abandon the Third party to return to our past affiliation." These resolutions, it is said, have a double significance, because Cloud county is the home of Senator Wheeler, the only Alliance member of the Senate, and has always been considered a People's party stronghold.

For Over Fifty Years.

It has been said that skillful advertising will accomplish wonders, and this is partly true, for it is no uncommon thing to see various nostrums achieve a brief notoriety in this way. But they do not outlast the notices that herald them. Thus it is that the mercurial and potash remedies are constantly appearing before the public in new disguises. Advertising, however, will not account for the popularity that S. S. S. has enjoyed for fifty years, nor for the fact that it has become a household remedy; nor will advertising account for the thousands of testimonials that the people have given in its behalf. Only the most substantial merit can account for the estimation in which this wonderful medicine is held.

In Canada a man can vote where ever he owns property.

In Canada a man can vote wherever he owns property of a landed sort provided he can reach the polling places in time. This was the ante-bellum way in Virginia. This system, in the larger cities of the United States, has been succeeded by the efforts of the good known as reporters. If dead men could come back and examine the records they would be astonished to find out how many times they had exercised the right of suffrage since being quietly laid away.—Richmond State.

Meddlesome People.

Carriage Blade. Every community, and especially every small town and village, is cursed by this class of citizens. Of course, they do no harm, yet their silly pratings are often a source of considerable annoyance to good people, who attend strictly to their own business. One cause of this is that we have too many idlers. Idleness is the mother of devilry. Let the drones in the busy hive of every day life get to work, and we will see less disposition on the part of the people to busy themselves about things of which they have nothing to do. If Mr. A. desires to conduct his business on a certain principle, so long as he pleases himself what has Mr. Busy-body to do with it? If you do not like his style, don't patronize him, but keep your mouth shut about him and go to some one else; that is his business—you have nothing to do with it. If a farmer goes to buy a horse he does not want your advice. If he does, he will ask you for it. Don't trouble people about their business affairs. If they have not sense enough to look after their own business, why, let them fail—and the sooner the better. If you have nothing else to do, and cannot control your mouth, go down your self (and don't imagine for a moment that you will be missed), the world will be better off and will manage to wag along without you. But a better plan still is to let alone meddling with other people's business. Superstition.

An Outrage in Cambridge, Mass.

The other day the Cambridge police stopped an Irish funeral procession and searched every carriage for whiskey. One Mrs. Cowen of Hingham had died, and her relatives in Cambridge got prepared to accompany her mortal remains to their final resting place. The negroes, however, of the livery men in Cambridge were drawn upon for equipages, and when the procession started from the place where the funeral was held in Cambridgeport it was fully one-half mile long. The long line of carriages had barely proceeded a quarter of a mile, when the horses which drew the first vehicle were rudely seized by the head of several policemen, and the whole line was suddenly brought to a halt. The occupants of the rear carriages thought nothing at first of the stop, as they imagined that something obstructed the way for a moment, but those in the first carriage were very soon undeceived. "Have you got any liquor in here?" asked one of the bluecoats. "Come, Cambridge is a prohibition town, and no liquor can pass through here on Sunday. We have it on good authority that you've got something with which to celebrate this funeral. So shell out." In vain did the mourners protest and call the policemen's attention to the fact that it was a funeral. The policemen had been told to search the carriages, and search them they did. They felt in the matting and under the seats for the whiskey, but not a drop did they find. The men in the carriages were thoroughly incensed, and a fight was only ward off by the self-restraint of some of them. From A to Issard.

A Cow Wrecked a Train and Killed Three Men.

A serious wreck occurred on the Western North Carolina Railroad Saturday about 12 o'clock, near Cooper's station, east of Asheville. A work train had been engaged about a mile from Cooper's in repairing the road bed. At 12 o'clock the train and men started for Cooper's, where the "shanties" occupied at night by the workmen were on the side track. There were six flat cars to the engine, which was pushing the train towards the station. The train was moving at a reasonable rate of speed when at a point on a sharp curve near Cooper's, a cow ran on the track just in front of the moving cars. The cow could not be seen by the engineer, and in a moment she was struck by the car in front. The car rolled the body along for a short distance, when it left the track, carrying the other cars of the train into the ditch in every direction. One man, Ed. Crawford, was found dead. Logan Hill was fatally hurt and died in an hour. Will Hooper was badly bruised and was brought to this city, where he died yesterday afternoon. Five others of the force on the cars were bruised slightly. The dead men were all colored. Crawford was buried at Cooper's. Hill's body was sent to Statesville, and Hooper's remains were taken to his home at Coanover.

FOURTH OF JULY RACES.

The people of Raleigh and the people of the State generally will have been fully informed, by posters and the Press, that the Fourth of July will be celebrated there by the finest race ever held on the Raleigh track. These races are gotten up by gentlemen interested in the turf, not so much from devotion to fast racing, as from a spirit and purpose to improve the breed of horses so as to prove that the stock in North Carolina is inferior in speed and endurance to that of no other State. This has had proof already in the performance of Mr. Batchelor's horse Pamlico; and the fine stock of Capt. E. P. Williamson, and other gentlemen here, and elsewhere in the State give promise that Pamlico will not wear his laurels with incontestable rivalry. Entries will be made from Wilmington, Winston, Tarboro, Oxford, and perhaps other places, and in such excellence as to give promise of a day of unusual animation and excitement, for owing to the number of horses, the races will succeed each other with as little delay as possible. They will be conducted also on a high principle, so that fairness will rule, exact determination of qualities reached, and spectators spared the humiliating tricks of the professional Jockey. The race is to be a renewal of racing in its best days in North Carolina the object being the same, to present an occasion of animating sport, with the ultimate object of proving what perfection can be attained in the aim to improve the breed of the horse, the noblest and most useful of all animals.

If you do not like his style, don't patronize him, but keep your mouth shut about him and go to some one else; that is his business—you have nothing to do with it. If a farmer goes to buy a horse he does not want your advice. If he does, he will ask you for it. Don't trouble people about their business affairs. If they have not sense enough to look after their own business, why, let them fail—and the sooner the better. If you have nothing else to do, and cannot control your mouth, go down your self (and don't imagine for a moment that you will be missed), the world will be better off and will manage to wag along without you. But a better plan still is to let alone meddling with other people's business. Superstition.

Moyle's Mill Items.

Our farmers are losing no time, nearly all of them are through chopping cotton. Mr. Bently Harris, of Farmville, is very sick with typhoid fever. Everybody complains of having grass. Yes, the rains continue to come and grass keeps on growing. Little Joshua Tarrage says he thinks there will be a plenty of hay in this county another year without having any to buy. We have learned from a reliable source that a bear was killed in Greene county about two weeks ago and not many miles from here. We walked over to see Ed. Flanagan's tobacco one day this week, and let me tell you it was fine, hard to beat. A gentleman of the traveling fraternity was traveling the road one day this week in the direction of Greenville and told us that Moses Tarrage had the prettiest cotton he had seen between there and Goldsboro, a distance of thirty-five miles. The colored people are building a Free Will Baptist church near this place on Mr. W. H. Moore's land. May they prosper in their good work. Our crops are looking very well, some of them look remarkably well considering the late spring. Wholetberries are ripening very fast now. There is a fine crop of them. The berry crop is sufficient to keep the loafers from starving for some time. BLUE BIRD.

State News.

Happenings Here and There as Gathered From our Exchange. Southport Leader: On last Thursday Mr. Geo. Pinner's little son, Orlie, while playing, fell from the piazza to the ground, breaking his right forearm. Dr. Watson set the bone and the little fellow is getting along nicely. Lenoir Topic: Talking about old baskets, Mr. N. A. Powell owns one made of straw by his grandfather in 1801, from which he sows wheat every fall. —The Lenoir Lenoir railroad has been graded for a distance of seven miles from Lenoir, and cross ties are being got out all along the line. —Wheat is in the main good and is ripening. A little will be cut this week, a good deal next week, and with the week after harvest will be full upon us. Durham Sun: Sam, the decided brute-like grinder of our power press, is the possessor of a small steam engine, which he delights to manipulate in his leisure moments. Yesterday afternoon he had it steamed up, when Bob Beavers came in and undertook to see how it worked. He was not satisfied about how the steam worked and in making his examination the steam blew out, striking him on the forehead and around the eyes, scalding him very much. He will have a sore face for several days. It was quite fortunate that it did not hit him in the eyes and on the balls. Wilmington Star: Mr. Frank L. Meares, of the reserved corps, W. L. I., having been tendered the appointment of Assistant Inspector General of the N. C. State Guard, with the rank of Captain, has accepted the same. The appointment has been confirmed by the Governor, and Capt. Meares will at once enter upon the discharge of the duties pertaining to the office. Mr. Meares served as an active member of the W. L. I. for seven years, from the ranks to Captain, and has since been on the reserved corps, ever ready to respond to the call for duty. His appointment will gratify his many friends and give pleasure to his comrades of the Guard. Hickory Press and Carolinaian: Last Monday evening while a negro boy was driving Mr. Loughrans horse, what might have been a serious accident occurred. The horse became frightened at a train and ran down the street, jumping over the horse came frantically down Morgan street and turned the corner. He was under such headway that when he tried to turn into the square he ran on the side walk. His feet slipped on the rock pavement and he fell on his side with his head and fore feet inside the door of Allen & Bowles store. Mr. Bowles who was sitting in front of the store barely escaped the falling horse, the chair being crushed. Louisburg Times: A short time ago the editor of the Times requested Mr. J. K. Spencer, one of our leading tobacco farmers, who lives about two miles from town, to give us a statement of his crop for last year. He has kindly done so, and we give it to our readers: He cultivated himself 12 acres, which he raised 13,822 pounds of tobacco, for which he received, "clear check," $2,071.35. Counting his own crop with his tenants he had 60 acres in cultivation, on which was raised 58,061, and it netted him $8,138.82, after deducting warehouse charges, &c. Now if all the farmers could be as successful with tobacco as Mr. Spencer, they would soon get in such a good fix that they would never again even dream of the sub-Treasury bill. Morganton Herald: Large quantities of brick are being hauled to the Hospital to be used in the erection of a large new dining hall. The old dining rooms will be divided up into cells, thus furnishing room for an increased number of patients. These improvements are all to be made from a fund saved by the Hospital authorities from the appropriations for the past two years, which the last Legislature authorized the directors to expend in this way. When it is considered that this institution was run on a smaller outlay per capita than any similar institution in the country, and that a great many other expensive and substantial improvements were effected in the last two years, in addition to those now in process of completion, the masterful management of the affairs of the Hospital is apparent. Statesville Landmark: On the fourth Sunday in May two or three chaps who were just breaking out with measles went to preaching at Trinity church in Concord township. As a consequence, measles has broken out in 53 families which were represented at church that day and the wheat harvest is being seriously interfered with. —A discolored white woman of the name of Shoemaker, who lives about a mile and a half south of town, was shot from ambush while standing on her porch last Thursday night engaged in conversation with some visitors. The gun was loaded with shot and the woman caught a considerable part of the charge in an arm and leg. —A man in north Irredell (name forgotten by the informant) climbed a tree in his yard a few days ago to take his bees, and in sawing off the limb on which they settled he so shook it that the whole swarm settled on the man and went to work on him. Dr. J. E. King stayed by him all night and saved his life with difficulty.

Meddlesome People.

Carriage Blade. Every community, and especially every small town and village, is cursed by this class of citizens. Of course, they do no harm, yet their silly pratings are often a source of considerable annoyance to good people, who attend strictly to their own business. One cause of this is that we have too many idlers. Idleness is the mother of devilry. Let the drones in the busy hive of every day life get to work, and we will see less disposition on the part of the people to busy themselves about things of which they have nothing to do. If Mr. A. desires to conduct his business on a certain principle, so long as he pleases himself what has Mr. Busy-body to do with it? If you do not like his style, don't patronize him, but keep your mouth shut about him and go to some one else; that is his business—you have nothing to do with it. If a farmer goes to buy a horse he does not want your advice. If he does, he will ask you for it. Don't trouble people about their business affairs. If they have not sense enough to look after their own business, why, let them fail—and the sooner the better. If you have nothing else to do, and cannot control your mouth, go down your self (and don't imagine for a moment that you will be missed), the world will be better off and will manage to wag along without you. MOREHEAD.

One of the most delightful places to the lovers of the seaside resorts is Morehead. While this is true, the trouble of getting there from this point in former years has been so great and the trip so tiresome because of the many changes to be made, that the number who would go from here was at no time large. But things have changed, and a ride of less than six hours with only one change takes you to that delightful resort. The splendid schedule which the W. & W. road recently put into effect, as published in a late issue of the REFLECTOR, is all that could be asked for—except if a better coach was put on it would be somewhat more comfortable for the passengers.

Over this new route quite a party left Greenville last Wednesday to spend a few days by the sea; to take in the Teachers' Assembly, to hear Talmage, to feast upon the gliding or rippling waters in white winged fleet, and to get rid of the winter's accumulation of dust by a plunge in the mighty Atlantic. At a glance the reader can see that the pleasures of the seaside are numerous.

When we all arrived it was found that Greenville and Pitt county had a large delegation at Morehead. We can now recall the names of Prof. John Duckett, Prof. C. H. James, Maj. J. C. Latham, Rev. A. D. Hunter, Col. Harry Skinner, Messrs. R. L. Davis, J. R. Davis, D. D. Haskett, C. M. Bernard, R. R. Fleming, B. S. Sheppard, Gaskins, Kilpatrick, Johnson, W. R. Whitchard, Jr., D. J. Whitchard, Mrs. Gov. Jarvis, Mrs. Leon Albritton, Misses Ione May, Fannie Johnston, Bettie Johnston and Anna Spain.

The crowd at Morehead was simply enormous—the largest ever known there—and the mammoth Atlantic Hotel was crowded to its utmost capacity, so that to accommodate the vast throngs of extra cots had to be placed around in the rooms and parlors. Let us add here in passing that this hotel could not be better managed than by the Foster Bros. It was a wonder to us how they could stow away train after train load of people as they would arrive. But they did it, and the way they fed such a multitude was no less a wonder. Considering the immense crowd and the low price of board—$1 per day to those holding teachers' membership certificates—no one had ground for making complaint. Of course when the house is not so crowded, as will be the case when the Assembly is closed, and the rates raised to the regular price of $2.50 per day the fare can be more or less improved.

Wednesday the Teachers' Assembly convened, the opening address being delivered by Dr. G. W. Santerlin, State Auditor. This was before our arrival. Thursday morning we listened to the address of the President, Prof. C. D. McIver. He spoke on the organization of the Assembly and its work; how it came to be organized, what it had accomplished and something it could do in future. It was an excellent address. He bestowed much praise upon Maj. E. G. Harrell, whom he said had done more for the success of the Assembly than any other person connected with it.

Maj. S. M. Finger, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, exhibited a chart prepared by himself and gave a lecture on the "Course of Study for a Four Months School." He said the law required that the public school term be at least four months and, supposing that in few instances are they kept open for a longer time, he had mapped out a course of study for four months of each year, beginning at the age of 6 and closing at 17, and said any boy or girl, in the hands of a competent teacher, ought to go through each course within the four months allotted to it. Portions of this course of study were discussed by several members of the Assembly, Prof. Duckett being among those who spoke.

Thursday night the world famous Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage arrived and delivered a lecture. He began at 10 o'clock and spoke for an hour and twenty minutes. His theme was "Big Blunders," many of which he pointed out. While his lecture was good and contained many good things, it failed to come up to our expectation. He is a great man, has a great reputation, possesses a strong, powerful voice, talks very plainly and simply, but has poor delivery and lacks many of the attributes that go to make an orator. In fact, he cannot be justly classed an orator. When we learned that he received $500 for this lecture, we could but think there are numbers of men who can make a better lecture for much less money. Still we were glad of the opportunity of hearing the distinguished divine, for one can always the better enjoy reading after a man when they have both seen and heard him.

Friday night Hon. W. T. Harris, U. S. Commissioner of Education, made an address before the Teachers' Assembly. It will be seen that Secretary Harrell had exerted himself to get several distinguished men to appear before the Assembly.

Friday night there was quite a German at the Atlantic Hotel which was participated in by twenty or more couples.

Saturday morning this scribe embarked homeward, though it seemed a pity to pull away from the delightful breezes of Morehead and drop at Greenville where the thermometer is playing hide and seek around the 90 post. But the REFLECTOR reader holds the oldest claim on us, and had a right to expect us back at our post, so in the language of Talmage "we are here."

A writer from Edgecombe county complains to the recent published statistics in that paper of the tobacco crop in the several tobacco growing counties of the State. The writer has probably fallen into the error of taking the figures to be a census of the crop of 1890 and set out to show that the tobacco crop of Edgecombe for the year was three times as large as the figures made it. Our impression was that the census which was taken last year, was for the crop of 1889 and not for the year in which the census was taken. This being the case it hardly needs proof that the tobacco crop of that county for 1890 was three times as large as the previous year. Certainly it was so in Pitt, and though the figures as returned in that census are not by us at this writing we believe the tobacco crop of Pitt county for 1890 was five fold greater than it was in 1889. And the acreage for 1891 is perhaps double what it was in 1890. These eastern counties are coming to the front in tobacco culture.

Last Friday North Carolina was again called upon to give up one more of her noble sons, Ex-Gov. David S. Reid at his home in Reidsville. He was eighty-eight years old. His career was an eventful one and one of much good to his native State. At the age of 30 he was admitted to the bar. He was State Senator six years, member of Congress four years, from 1843 to 1847. In 1848 he was nominated by the Democrats for Governor, but was defeated by a small majority. In 1850 he was again nominated against his will and was elected the first Democratic Governor of North Carolina. He led his party to victory in this State. He lived to see that party almost overturned in the days of reconstruction, and he lived to see it again triumphant and the champion of free suffrage and the rights of the people, doctrines to which he was unconditionally committed. Since the war Gov. Reid has not been much in public life. He died as he had lived, beloved by his countrymen.

The visiting committee appointed by the Governor to visit the State University and report its condition and work, made a very satisfactory report. They state that the University is in a good condition, and probably doing the best work in its history. It is very gratifying to know that all our institutions of learning are doing so well.

The Republicans of Ohio met in convention last week and put out their high tariff man, McKinley. As the tariff is his pet hobby and as he was the author of the infamous measure which is known throughout the whole country as the McKinley Bill, it is very probable that the tariff will be made the issue in the campaign. The Democrats will probably nominate Gov. Campbell. The election is four months off and it is impossible to tell what the result will be. The Democrats have nothing to fear from a long campaign, for the more the tariff is discussed and the better the people understand it the better are the chances of the Democrats. Gov. Campbell has made a good Governor and ought to rally the full strength of the Democratic party, but there may be some soreheads who will not support him. Mr. McKinley was beaten in his own district last fall for Congress, and going into the campaign just having been beaten on the issue which he will make, ought to throw the odds decidedly against him. If the Democrats will rally their full strength they can carry the State and legislature and send a Democrat to the United States Senate in the place of McKinley.

The Force Bill is not yet altogether dead. There are a few in the Republican party who intend to make it an issue in 1892. The Democrats can wish for no better issue. That and the McKinley Bill were the leading topics in the last campaign, and the Democrats came off victorious. The silver question will in all probability be settled before the next campaign, and that will leave the tariff and the Force Bill as the two main topics. They are both excellent tools for the Democrats to hew down the Republican remains with.

A few weeks ago a Mr. Grosvenor, a well known man and Republican politician of Ohio was appointed by the President to visit Europe in regard to foreign immigration and investigate the matter of so many outcasts of other countries coming here. He was very much in favor of restricted immigration if we may judge by what he said in regard to the State of Wisconsin. His sayings were reported in the Washington papers, and they greatly exasperated the voters of that State. He saw at once that the Republicans would lose ground in Wisconsin, so he came out and flatly denied what he had said. But he was not to have it all his way here. The papers showed him up, and the administration called for his resignation, but promised him something better. The affair, however, shows what kind of a man he is. It shows that he will swallow his own words even when they are true rather than for his party to lose a few votes. But in this he only voices the sentiments of the whole Republican party. It was this fear of losing votes that caused the administration to call for his resignation, and it is this same fear that causes the leaders of the party to say that we need no new immigration laws but only the enforcement of the present laws. But this, the Republicans will not do, for the new comers are mostly Republicans.

Some narrow sighted newspaper man said when Chief Justice Fuller was invited by the bar of Richmond for the purpose of trying to get him to be a candidate for the Presidency. But this opinion was far fetched. Mr. Fuller has no Presidential aspirations. Besides he would not think of opposing Mr. Cleveland if he thought Mr. Cleveland had any Presidential aspirations. In fact he does not want to be President.

The long dispute about the Behring Sea seal fisheries has at last been settled. If they had waited much longer there would probably have been no use of settling it, for the seals would have been a thing of the past. The British Government has agreed to prevent the killing of seals till May 1895. The United States also agrees to the same, but is allowed to kill 7500 seals during the time. They both agree to enforce the law, and parties of either side who violate this treaty are to be delivered when taken to the nation to which they belong for trial and punishment. We hope the matter is settled for good.

The Force Bill is not yet altogether dead. There are a few in the Republican party who intend to make it an issue in 1892. The Democrats can wish for no better issue. That and the McKinley Bill were the leading topics in the last campaign, and the Democrats came off victorious. The silver question will in all probability be settled before the next campaign, and that will leave the tariff and the Force Bill as the two main topics. They are both excellent tools for the Democrats to hew down the Republican remains with.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, June 19, '91.
Secretary Foster received a most unexpected set back this week. He had made all of his arrangements to attend the Ohio republican convention as the chief representative of the administration and manager of the Sherman Senatorial side show. It was on the cards for him to have secured the passage of a resolution endorsing the administration, so worded as to practically commit the convention to Harrison for '92, thus shutting our Ohio's "favorite son"—McKinley—who if he can be elected Governor fully intends entering the lists against Harrison or anybody else that may appear. And in addition to that Senator Sherman expected his assistance in the passage of a resolution that would have placed Sherman astride the shoulders of McKinley.

But all plans are now off. Secretary Foster did not attend the Ohio convention. Why? Because Senator Sherman sent him word by a trusty personal messenger not to come, as his presence would only irritate the Foraker men who had obtained control of the convention. It was then suddenly discovered that the business of the department was so pressing that Secretary Foster would be compelled to defer his intended visit to Ohio to look after some private business until Thursday, and was so announced to the "dear public" which is always assumed to be gullible enough to believe anything if it is said by a man in an official, but at the Treasury department they know that Mr. Foster's grip sack was all packed and all arrangements made for his trip when he received a telegram telling him not to come and that an explanation had been sent to him by messenger and they know that when that messenger arrived the next day he was for two mortal hours closeted with Mr. Foster in his private office, to the exclusion of everybody even his private and confidential stenographer.

There are rumors here of a combination between McKinley and Foraker, the object of which is to make Foraker Sherman's successor in the Senate and McKinley the Presidential nominee of his party next year, provided of course that the republicans can elect McKinley Governor and control the legislature this year. It is believed here that it was this combination that forced Ex-Representative Grosvenor to resign his recent appointment as chairman of the Treasury commission, which is to make a delightful summer tour of Europe for the alleged purpose of investigating immigration. There has been a more or less bitter feeling between Foraker and Grosvenor ever since last year. Democratic prospects for next year are certainly very encouraging as seen through the eyes of visitors to Washington, and the man who predicts democratic success in such states as Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin is no longer regarded as a political "rainbow chaser", as he was not so very long ago, and republicans from those states have by the score recently admitted that they considered them doubtful.

Representative Oats, of Alabama, proposes like Mr. Mills to turn author, and he is now here for the purpose of verifying dates etc, in a volume of war reminiscences which he has written, the official records being all on file in the War department.

I was told to day that Commissioner of Pensions Raum, with the assistance of the pension attorneys, had made himself solid with the administration, and that in consideration of he and the pension attorneys having agreed to swing the G. A. R. into line for Harrison that gentleman had agreed to forget all the damaging charges of Raum and allow him to continue in charge of the Pension Office. This deal gives Mr. Harrison the active support of the National Tribune, Lemons' paper, and also of a new soldier's paper which is to be started at Chicago by the pension ring. If true, it may in the end turn out to be dearly bought support.

Ex-Congressman Grosvenor has been appointed special World's Fair Commissioner in charge of foreign exhibits, as a salve for being forced out of the immigration commission. As the salary is the same and both places include a trip to Europe at Uncle Sam's expense Grosvenor isn't shedding many tears.

DAVIS MONUMENT MEETING.

GREENVILLE, N. C., June 18, '91.
Pursuant to the call of Gen. J. B. Gordon many citizens assembled in the Court House here to-day to devise means of assisting in the erection of a monument to the memory of Jefferson Davis.

Maj. Henry Hartling was elected permanent chairman and F. G. James secretary.

Patriotic speeches were made by several citizens and by Capt. Swift Galloway of Goldsboro and Maj. Withers, of Georgia.

On motion a standing Committee consisting of three ladies and three gentlemen was appointed to solicit funds. I. A. Sugg, E. A. Moye, A. L. Blow, Mrs. Gov. Jarvis, Miss Sue McCluer and Miss Jennie Williams.

Mr. J. C. Cook and Capt. John King appointed special committee to solicit funds around Falkland.

F. G. James was elected Treasurer.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the confederate soldiers and the sons of those soldiers in Convention assembled at Greenville, N. C., the 18th of June 1891, pursuant to General orders from the Commanding general, send their greeting to John B. Gordon and promise their best endeavors to further the objects of his command, and a hope that a monument shall be raised to Jefferson Davis commensurate with his unparalleled services and sufferings for the people of the South.

On motion Mr. G. B. King was requested to address this association in the Court House here at 3 o'clock p. m., on Saturday July 4th. Mr. King has accepted and all may expect an eloquent address.

Other talented speakers will also make short speeches on that day. All old soldiers and their descendants are invited to be present.

All persons desiring to contribute to the Jeff Davis Monument fund are requested to pay to either member of the standing committee, or to the Treasurer, H. HARDING, F. G. JAMES, Sec. Chairman.

WEEKLY WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

For the Week Ending Friday, June 19th 1891.

CENTRAL OFFICE, RALEIGH, N. C.
The reports of correspondents of the Weekly Weather Crop Bulletin issued by the North Carolina Experiment Station and State Weather Service for the week ending Friday, June 19th, 1891, show that the weather during the entire week has been the most favorable experienced for a long time. The temperature has been considerably in excess, sunshine abundant, and towards the latter part of the week occasional showers have prevailed generally. In consequence crops have made marked improvement. Grass is getting under control, somewhat, though still very abundant. The wheat harvest now progressing has prevented farmers from devoting much time to the cultivation of crops. Farm labor is reported difficult to obtain. Of crops generally, cotton shows the least improvement; it is not all chopped yet, and stand continues poor. Tobacco has made a fine start. The wheat harvest will probably be completed next week; the yield will be a good average and of excellent quality. Another favorable week will enable farmers to bring their work nearly up to date, and will give a better outlook to the crop prospects. The condition of crops averages about the same now in all districts.

ANNE BISSELL.

By AUGUSTA LARNED.

CHAPTER IV.

Granther Bissell was again pottering about the garden, and the doctor and Anne were trying over a new song in the parlor, where Anne had put down her last brush to play the accompaniment. Neither of them minded the broken key nor the horrible dissonance it made when they got into the full musical flow. Presently Mrs. Bissell came down from the attic chamber where she had been sleeping. She came to the balustrade to steady herself and keep from falling, and tottered into the little parlor as pale as ashes. The doctor turned round and caught her by the arm just in time to save her from falling. He put her gently on the sofa. "What is the matter, Mrs. Bissell," he asked, "are you ill?" Anne rushed to her mother's side, and put her arm under her head. "No," gasped Mrs. Bissell, "it isn't a faint or anything that I have eaten that has disagreed. Anne, my child, I have been robbed of my interest in money, all my hard earnings and savings of a year, to meet the payment of the mortgage, and a hard sob broke through the words that seemed to rend her throat.

ess on such an occasion, and now he had been away toaming it for a week, and of course granther was too old even to take it all in! Anne shouted at him until she was hoarse to try and make him understand, and then he went about slinking his head and talking to himself for half a day. The doctor came home early in the evening from Applegate, rather stamped by the result of his expedition. He had found an officer, and had succeeded in searching Bridget's sister's home, but without avail. The act had brought a title of indignation on his head, not only from Mrs. Rooney herself, but from the neighbors, who were ready to hoot him out of town. Bridget's sister, it appeared, was a highly respectable person, and had been a member of some of the best families in the county. The doctor was threatened with a shower of bricks and a hot water douche if he remained another fifteen minutes in Applegate, and he was glad to beat a hasty retreat by the first train. Nothing daunted, however, he pushed the investigation into Bridget's trunk that night by aid of one of the Littlefield constables, but nothing was found there, but the poor girl's belongings, and Bridget went out of the house at midnight sobbing violently, and vehemently declaring it was a wicked man who had taken away a poor girl's character when there was not a particle of proof against her.

CHAPTER V.

She found her mother sitting in the arm-chair hot upright.

Anne was obliged to help get the dinner, to burn her pretty cheeks over the cook stove, and to wash the white hands with dishwashing. Miss Carver came to the kitchen as often as possible to see the autumn tinned princess in her fallen state. Anne turned her back on her brusquely, for she disliked dishwashing, and greasy pots and kettles filled the air with a disagreeable odor. Anne was excited over her enemy, who, in her hypocritical voice, assumed that Anne was very fortunate to have the opportunity to learn housework, which, in her position in life, would prove painful. There was no time now for piano practice, and she had to get up at five o'clock in the morning to get ready for the day. Anne was excited over her enemy, who, in her hypocritical voice, assumed that Anne was very fortunate to have the opportunity to learn housework, which, in her position in life, would prove painful.

the hollow of her hand. "Will a body never know what folk will do when they think themselves safe from getting found out, and he came to us a perfect stranger, and we did take up with him and trust him to beat all. It all comes back to me now as clear as daylight. He was up chamber a good while that day when he was sick, and the old man and granther were in a doze. He wouldn't have noticed what the doctor was doing there round the bureau. "Don't talk that way," cried Anne, getting up with fury and flinging herself round the room. "It's vulgar and low. I tell you this, granther, and I'll stake my life on his honesty. "Now, Anne, you needn't go into hysterics. Didn't he say he was poor that day he came, that he was starved out of Kettletas? I forgot all about it when I seemed to have been in a doze. He was sent home and fell for the first time, and as for his giving me the bill, it was all a mistake. He was in a hurry and forgot himself and pulled out the wrong one. I can't keep him here any longer, Anne. I don't know in Europe any more, or even how to look him in the face. I must make some excuse to get him out of the house. "Anne felt it was time to clap on the screws, and exercise the full force of her daughterly authority. "You needn't say any such thing, Mother Ellen. You do mean to ruin his prospects for life. You don't want old Carver and the Widow Harkaway to trumpet this little thing from one end of Littlefield to the other. All that talk about his being starved out of Kettletas was a joke. His mother is traveling in Europe, and he has drawn the hundred dollars saved from my school teachings out of the bank, and you are to pay it on the mortgage. I put it by to get a new cloak and furs next winter, but now I shall make the old thing answer. You must keep him here, and act as if nothing had happened, and I'll pledge my life he will clear himself in time. I shall start to-morrow morning on a visit to Uncle Hiram, at Bell's Cove, and if he doesn't clear himself and come out bright and shining like the sun, I will not come back to Littlefield so long as he stays in town. "But suppose I should speak to him and he should try to lie out of it?" asked Mrs. Bissell, now submissive to her girl's will. "Oh, dear, I did like him so much. I trusted him as if he had been my son, and, Anne, I am so sorry for you. "Anne did not ask why her mother was sorry for her, but she intensified her autocratic tone, knowing that she was well under her thumb. "You must not think of speaking to him, mother. You must treat him exactly as if nothing had happened."
