Denmark Was Inhabited 7,000 Years Age. When was man first placed on earth! No one can answer that question. Hugh Miller says that man's habit of burying his dead out of sight makes it very easy to be mistaken on that point. For, because of burial, men's bones may be found among the animals that have lain in the earth for ages. - There is one thing, however, that gives us an inkling of when he came. Certain tools, that only man could have made, have been found buried in caves, in peat beds, and in the bottom of lakes.

Often these are covered by layers of rock, and, by calculating how long it took to make the layers, a guess can be made as to when the tools were put there. Still, it is only a guess, and no one pretends to regard the question as settled, because under some conditions the layers would be made much faster than others. But the bones of certain animals, the nammoth and other great creatures of that time, which have long since died, have been found with these tools. By calculating in what ages these animals lived, and how long it takes a race of animals to die out, a surer result can be arrived at. In a cave in England, buried under a limestone layer from about them. disposition every where of distrust in the verdict of juries. Whenever a heinous crime is committed the case seldom reaches a jury. The people take the law into their own hands and the criminal pays the severest penalty of the law without the shadow of a trial. As much as we should sendence and a contradiction in terms to many advolute the terms to many advolute and many advolute and the Alliance and yet be as true a Democratic fold. There is no necessity for any split between the Democratic party and the Alliance. He who is endeavoring to bring this about, be he at a penocratic party and the Alliance. He who is endeavoring to bring this about, be he at Democrat or an Alliancemen, is an open and the growth and management, and while many are elated over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure and sweet little angel we know thy bring is weet little angel we know the lead over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure elated over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure elated over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure elated over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure elated over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure elated over the crop and many more depressed on account of the failure much as it ought to be discounting tenanced by every liberty loving citizen, yet we are free to confess that there seems to be some instruction. Delays in trials, the failure of juries to convict in the face of evidence and law, the looseness with which many with nesses swear, the technicalities thrown in the way of justice by shrewd attorneys all go to weaken the confidence of the masses in the jury system, and are doing much to subvert the ends contemplated in a trial by jury. Every day furnishes us fresh evidence of this growing evil. Fresh in memory is the Hainess—Hannegan trial just finished at Hampton in Va. It seems that the evidence all pointed to the fact that Haines was the marderer of Hannegan, certainly sufficiently so to have constituted manslaughter and in consequence the imprisonment of Haines. Yet the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. The result has been the holding of indigningting the world of the subvert the halp seem the holding of indigning the string and Eastern North Carolina, but to the whole State as well. The jury, in which it was decided that the cause of the indignation meetings was the disappointment of the prosecuting attorney, it was resolve that they proceed at once to the home of the attorney and give him a genteel thrashing. When however they reached his abode they were met by the muzzle of a rifle in the hands of the attorney's wife who claimed to be a better shot than her husband and left without accomplishing their purpose. This is only one of a thouspunishment.

ABOUT THE EARTH'S HEAT.

es It Grow Constantly Hotter fre Many scientific men are devoting their lives to anding out all that can be learned about the interior of this wonderived about the interior of this won-derful globe of ours. One of the inter-esting problems on which they are en-gaged is the depth and geographical limits of the permanently frozen soil. The British association has collected a large amount of data on this question. It has already told us some curious things, such as the fact that excellent wheat lands north of Manitoba overlie frozen earth that never thaws.

Sometimes geologists find strata of rock that they are able to show must have been buried at a remote age 20,000 feet under the surface. These upturn deges of rock, which some terrible con-vulsion lifted to the air, give us a glimpse of the condition of the interior some way below the greatest depth to which the state of Europe wester in the degree of Europe wester in the description of Europe welter in almost a sale heat, and yet they thousandth part of the distance from the surface to the center of the earth. In the lower levels of some of the Comstock mines the men fought scalding water, and could labor only three or four hours at a time, until the Sutro tunnel pierced the mines and drew off some of the terrible heat, which had stood at 120 degs.

The deepest boring ever made, that at Sperenberg, near Berlin, penetrates only 4,172 feet, about 1,000 feet deeper than the famous artesian well at St. Louis. The result of this imperfect knowledge is that there are more theories and disputes among scientific men with regard to the interior of the earth than about any other problem of physical science. Some eminent physicists, for instance, like Sir William Thomson, have believed that the crust of the earth is at least 800 miles thick. The majority adduce good reasons for be-lieving that the crust is only twentyfive to fifty miles thick. All agree that the temperature within the earth continues to increase as it does near the surface—at the rate of 1 deg. Fahrenheit for about every fifty-five feet of descent. All igneous rocks must be fused at no great depth.

In fact, at this rate of increase, the temperature at 200 miles is 28,000 degs. Fahrenheit, which is Profe Recettl's estimate of the probable tem-perature of the sun. It is improbable however, that this rate of increase is maintained for a great distance, and many physicists believe that at s unknown but not very great depth the increase in honorante cease. One of the most wonderful things in the study of sciences is the fact that the mysteries of one science are sometimes completely or partly explained by aned in some other de-

Greath is Dark Cellars.

That it is not really light, but may be some power usually co-existent with light, which gives the tendency to go upward, is demonstrated by growth in cellars or tark places. In the total absence of light growth is still upward. Recently, in England, there have been made some curious observations on growth in cell mines. Posts driven in the earth often sprout and grow as if they were moted trees planted. Some of these poets, used as props in English mines, a thousand feet below the surface, have sprouted, yet, though in thorough tarkness, the shoots have gone up as perfectly in an upright position as if in full sunlight in the open ground.—Thomas Mechan is Philadelphia Ledger. phia Ledger.

GIRLS WITHOUT SENSE.

A Man Who Thinks Young Women Should

"Propriety and modesty and reserve are all right in their proper places," said a sensible, outspoken man the other day. But there is such a thing as carrying even the cardinal virtues too far. I was out yachting with a party of invited guests and a little ac-cident happened that might, but for the presence of mind of certain members of the company, have been a very serious affair. As it was, no harm was done, beyond a few bruises and scratches; but there were some exhibi-tions of feminine peculiarities which were quite new to me, and which made no little impression on me, as well as on a number of the members of the

"Something happened to the steam apparatus, and a pipe got out of order. At once the steam came rushing into the saloon and toward the staterooms. Several of the men rushed through the almost blinding vapor to the rescue of the ladies. The first and second came out all right, although they were just taking their beauty sleep, as it was half past 11 in the evening. The third stateroom was occupied by a rather quiet young woman, and when we rapped and pounded at the door, she seemed to think that we came on some errand of evil.

In spite of all our explanations and entreaties that she open the door, she only screamed: 'Go away! Go away!' Shouts of 'Fire!' and 'We will all be burned to death!' didn't seem to have the least effect on her, and at last the host, angry and disgusted, put his shoulder against the door, forced the lock, rushed into the room, and, seizing a large cloak and blanket, carried the young woman, screaming and angry, to a place of safety. By this time the steam was something dreadful; our very lungs were almost scalded. I had more than half a mind to suggest leaving the girl to take her chances with life, but she was a relative of the host and I didn't like to say such a thing. Besides, it wouldn't be nice, you know, to leave the girl to be steam cooked in a stateroom. I finally concluded that she must be out of her senses and would be all right next day. "But judge of my astonishment when, on meeting her the next morning, I spoke of the accident and expressed a hope that she had suffered no inconvenience, she deliberately turned her back to me and stood looking at a bit of brie-a-brac on a shelf. I had shown her some attention and really had admired her very much, but my admiration turned to absolute disgust at her conduct and I have since let her alone severely.

"This she evidently was not prepared for, and is, I understand, deeply grieved, and feels hurt that I do not renew my devotion to her. But really I cannot do it. It seems to me that a woman who can be as silly as that in trusted in the many perplexing and trying affairs of life. There is need of a great deal of practical good sense and reason in the complex details of domes-tic affairs, and it seems to me that every woman and girl should be taught something of the necessities of en encies, and above all should have a little good common sense ingrained into her mind from her youth up."-New York Ledger.

The slow absorbtion of many poisons hanges in some more or less modified form the complexion, but arsenic and ammonia show their effect about as calchly as any. The popular belief that arsenic clears the complexion, has fed many silly women to kill themselves with it in small, continued dos

Pastor First Baptist Church, Durham, N.C., writes:

The night after we got to Blowing Rick (N. C.), my wife was taken down with a fever, with every indication of its being typhoid. I called in the physician but he did her no good, and on the third night, at midnight. I began giving her Germetuer every two hours. Soon she fell asleep, began perspiring, and awoke mext morning without any fever. The Germetuer did it. We started home that day, still using Germetuer, and Mrs. White improved all the way, and has no fever since,

State S. S. Evangelist for Georgia, states:
My daughter had a slow fever for several days, and the symptoms all pointed to a protracted case of typhoid fever.
We used the usual remedies for several days with but little if any benefit. We then tried the Royal Germetuer, and nothing else. The second day after its use there was a clear remission of the fever, and on the third day she was able to sit up. After that she continued to improve steadily, and now is entirely restored. We attribute these happy results to the use of Royal Germetuer.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve an | Electric Bitters, and have Salve an I Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and w stand ready to refund the purchase pric if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. J. L. Wooten, Druggist.

Merchants who permanently adcertise create the impression of strength and of soundness. People at least feel that those who keep their names before the public are solid and substantial .- Dry Goods Chronicle.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

CARTERSVILLE, April 25, 1886.
This will certify that two members of my immediate family, after having suffered for years from Nicustrual Frregularity, being treated without benefit by physicians, were at length completely cured by one bottle of Bradfield's Yemale Hegulator. Its effect is truly wonderful. J. W. STEANGE. Book to "WOMAN" mailed FREE, which contains BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., ATLANTA, GA. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Germetuer Cures Fevers.

As responsible intelligent men we make the statement, that after long experience and ample test, we believe Germetuer will break any case of ordinary or Typhoid Fever within twelve hours from first dose. Our belief is based on such testimony as we offer believe.

REV. T. C. BOYKIN, State S. S. Evangelist for Georgia, states:

State S. S. Evangelist for Georgia, states:
My daughter had a slow fever for several days, and the symptoms all pointed to a protracted case of typhoid fever.
We used the usual remedies for several days with but little if any benefit. We then tried the Royal Germetuer, and nothing else. The second day after its use there was a clear remission of the fever, and on the third day she was able to sit up. After that she continued to improve steadily, and now is entirely restored. We attribute these happy results to the use of Royal Germetuer.

REV. J. L. WHITE, astor First Baptist Church, Durham

Pastor First Baptist Church, Durham, N. C., writes:
The night after we got to Blowing Rcck (N. C.), my wife was taken down with a fever, with every indication of its being typhoid. I called in the physician but he did her no good, and on the third night, at midnight. I began giving her Germetuer every two hours. Soon she fell asleep, began perspiring, and awoke next morning without any fever. The Germetuer did it. We started home that day, still using Germetuer, and Mrs. White improved all the way, and has no fever since,
