Good Advice From a Humor.st.

To young men Bob Burdette says: You take a basin of water, place your finger in it for twenty-five or thirty seconds, take it out and look that hole represents about the impression that advice makes on a young man's mind.

Don't depend too much on your family-the dead part, I mean. Victoria can trace her ancestors back in a direct line to William the Conqueror. If you can not get farther back than your father you are oetter off. Your father was a better man in his time than old William. He had better clothes to wear, better food to eat, and was better housed.

I love a young man who ask him for it; it amounts to the in life. same thing in the end. It is always better to astonish a man than to bore him.

Remember that in the morning of life comes the hard working days. Hard work never killed a man. It's fun, recreation, relaxation, holidays, that kill. The fun that results in a head next morning so big that a tub could hardly cover it is what kills. Hard work never does.

Those who come after us have to work just as hard as we do. When I shovel snow off my sidewalk, if, perchance, I take a threequarter piece off my neighbor's walk, I put it back, because if I didn't I should be doing him an injustice.

You can't afford to do anything but what is good. You are on dress parade all the time.

Don't be afraid of pounding persistently at one thing. Don't be afraid of being called a oneidea man or crank. If you have an idea you have one more than most men have. It takes a smart man to be a crank.

A novel idea in road building is that advanced by the Signal, a newspaper published at Du Pre, Mississippi. The Signal idea is that the way to stimulate intensive farming and double and quadruple farm values throughout the South is to build a system of dummy roads, four to radiate from every county seat. This, it is argued, is a cheaper, more practical and Progressive Farmer: About more useful system than the far $2,000,000 were spent in North more expensive macadamized roads. About Advertizing.

In no great while spring will be coming down on us, and with the change of season will come changes in wearing apparel and changes in atyle. In order to make these changes people must have goods and the merchants will be expected to supply these wants. Money is not the most plentiful article in the country and people will buy cconom ically. They will be on the lookout for bargains and the merchants who hold out the greatest inducements will catch the trade. This is the time of all others when the merchant should advertise and do so judiciously. Keep constantly before the reader in an attractive and intelligent way that tells what you can offer.
