

A Startling Fact!

WONDERFUL!

LANG, COST, CASH.

STILL RUNNING

THE -- GREAT COST SALE.

M. R. LANG, GREENVILLE, N. C.

Bang, Dang, Lang

M. R. LANG, GREENVILLE, N. C.

RING OUT THE WELCOME NEWS

DRY GOODS DRESS GOODS

Clothing, NOTIONS, BOOTS AND SHOE

cost for cash at M. R. LANG'S

THE REFLECTOR.

Local Reflections.

The wet weather gave the crops a set back.

Did you list your taxes? If not you are too late.

Cotton Seed Meal for sale at the Old Brick Store.

July gives us five each of Friday Saturday and Sunday.

The New Home Sewing Machine for $35 at Brown Bros.

The Teacher's Assembly has closed. It was a big affair this year.

The New Home Sewing Machine and all parts at Brown Bros.

July 6th.—Ten bushels Black Peas for sale at the Old Brick Store.

Cash given for Produce, Hides, Eggs and Furs at the Old Brick Store.

Want to eat something good? Biscuits at the Old Brick Store.

Cheapest Furniture, Bedsteads and Mattresses at the Old Brick Store.

The boys are saving up their dimes for the Norfolk excursion on the 19th.

The popular house resorts now are soda fountains and ice cream parlors.

There was a hail storm about five miles up the Tarboro road, last Thursday, that did some damage.

Jones Seminary for young ladies have an advertisement in this issue and solicits your patronage.

The most pestiferous nuisance just now is the fly. He is like the sands of the seashore without number.

If you saved over your white Cleveland beaver from four years ago it will be in style again this campaign.

Another cotton blossom was handed in last Friday by Whitman Price, who lives about a mile and a half from town.

The Southern says that John R. Mayo now has the contract for carrying the mails between Tarboro and Greenville.

Every Democrat in the country ought to read the REFLECTOR for the remainder of this year, at least. Tell your neighbor so.

A wren built its nest in a work bench, up at the end mill, within two feet of the planing machine. Its a brave bird to face a racket.

Mr. W. R. Whitehead and Elder Alfred Ross will accept thanks for some apples. The boss was away and we boys made them look small.

There was a washout at Tranter's Creek, on the Washington branch road, last week, which delayed trains a day or two over that line.

Tuesday, July 10th, is the date of the grand family excursion to Norfolk from Kinross by the way of Greenville. And $2.75 is the round trip fare.

The grand excursion to Norfolk from Kinross by the way of Greenville, on Tuesday, July 10th, will be a success in every particular. Fare for round trip $2.75.

Mr. Olen Warren presented the REFLECTOR yesterday morning with the largest tomato we ever saw. It weighs 26 ounces. It is of the Logans' giant species.

Grand family excursion from Kinross to Norfolk, by Stevenson & Harvey, via Greenville, on Tuesday, July 10th. Fare from Greenville $2.75. Everybody should go.

A gold watch chain with a gold cross and heart charms was lost last week on Dickerson Avenue. The finder will be suitably rewarded by bringing same to this office.

You never know what hardship you may be causing by putting off paying a person you owe. Be honest about your debts and don't put a man off with a flimsy excuse.

People down the road rejoice at the mail going through on the train. It adds to their convenience. The REFLECTOR now wants large lists at Ayden, Griffon and Johnson's Mills.

AUCTION SALE.—I will sell at Auction every Saturday, until further notice, beginning at three o'clock, at my store, my entire stock of Hardware. Come one come all. M. J. LATHAM.

The freemen were out on monthly parade Saturday and also Monday celebrating the glorious 4th. There was quite a large crowd in town of the colored people and they seemed to enjoy themselves.

The Board of Commissioners of Pitt county will meet in the Court House next Monday for the purpose of revising the tax list. Any person who has failed to list their taxes can do so at this meeting.

The Scotland Neck Military School will open its fall term Thursday, August 25th. They have room for 150 students. This school issues a beautiful catalogue and its advantages are very good. See ad.

Louisburg Female College is before the public again. The next session will open September 1st. This school has a remarkable record and it will pay you to read the advertisement of it in this issue.

We are requested to announce that a meeting will be held in the Court House to-morrow night for the purpose of organizing a debating society. The young men of the town are expected to be present.

Fifty-six to a car is what the managers announce is all they will take on. We mean the grand excursion to Norfolk on July 19th. Everybody should go and take their families. No crowding, plenty of room. Fare $2.75.

We learn that Beverly Daniels lost two fine cows week before last at Pateolis by lightning. The horses around that town are very near all sick. Something effects their eyes. It has almost become an epidemic.

SOMETHING NEW—I will sell hats, flowers, gauze ribbons, pictures, cases and fancy wares right down at cost. Also a beautiful line of Hamburg lace, etc. Give me a call before going elsewhere and be convinced of the great reduction in prices. MISS FANNIE JOYNER.

NOTICE.—To my customers.—I am closing out my business for the purpose of a change and earnestly request all who owe me to come forward and settle up. I am selling out at cost, and at auction. Please come and pay up, for I expect to move soon. Yours truly, M. J. LATHAM.

Personal.

Miss Nannie Fleming is visiting Miss Letta McGowan.

Rev. R. W. Stancill preached at Mt. Pleasant last Sunday.

Miss Gertrude Chasen is visiting the family of Mr. W. B. Wilson.

We are indeed sorry to learn of the sickness of Mr. R. C. Flanagan.

Mr. Jesse Speight, of Wilson paid Greenville a flying visit last week.

Miss Olive Joyner, of Baltimore, is spending a while with Miss Bessie Tyson.

Mr. Lloyd Williams, a clever young man of Tarboro, was on our streets last week.

Miss Carrie Arendell, of New Bern, is the guest of Misses Hortense and Rosa Forbes this week.

Capt. J. B. Lloyd, editor of the Farmer's Advocate, of Tarboro, was in town last Thursday night.

Mrs. Sallie Charlotte returned to the city last week from a visit to friends and relatives in the country.

Rev. D. W. Davis, Associate editor of the WATCH-TOWER, was here last Friday and graecot our office with his charming presence.

Rev. J. W. Wildman, of Virginia, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Baptist church at Wadesboro.—Wilmington Messenger.

Mr. W. H. Smith returned from Morehead City Friday night where he had been recuperating. He reports a large crowd and a high time.

Mrs. B. F. Sugg and Jarvis, accompanied by Miss Della Marshall, went over in Greene county last week visiting friends and relatives. Mrs. Sugg and Jarvis returned Monday.

The editor and his family left Friday evening last for Morehead City. He has been in bad health since his return from California and it is hoped the sea breezes will bring him around all right.

A horse ran away on Third street, last Thursday, and came very near running over a little child. It was a narrow escape, we are told, a tree catching the vehicle and stopping the horse only a few feet from the child.

A gentleman who is now actively interested in such enterprises tells us that he is confident there will be both a chewing and a smoking tobacco factory in Greenville before another twelve months. That's the sound we like to hear.

What a turnip? Mr. J. S. Ross, of Ayden, handed us a turnip last Saturday that takes the cake for a large turnip. It weighs seven pounds and a half and is called a purple strap leaf. It created a bit of excitement on account of its size.

A gentleman remarked to us the other day, that his only objection to the REFLECTOR is that it does not come out daily. If Greenville could only support a daily paper we would try to accommodate all our friends wanting. We hope yet to see the old town large enough.

Many other towns have held ratification meetings of the nomination of Cleveland and Stevenson. Greenville ought to be falling into line. There is material here out of which a number of good speeches can be produced. Set a date and let's have a regular jollification time.

Mess. Saml. Schultz and Alex. Heilbroer will in a few days commence to erect the necessary buildings for a tobacco head factory. The factory will be situated near the two tobacco warehouses and they will manufacture a standard article such as are used on all markets.

Steadily Progressing.

The frame of the mammoth Eastern Warehouse has been raised and now the roof is being put in position. The roof will be supported by 13 braces each of which will weigh 2000 pounds. The contractors are assured of having same ready for occupancy by August 1st.

Mess. Joyner & Heilbroer are sparing no effort to make the Eastern a model warehouse with every convenience for planter and buyer, and when they are once installed in their new home you will find them the same popular and accommodating young men, always looking out for the interests of their friends.

None Need Despair.

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 6, 1890.

I take pleasure in stating that Alexander Webb, of Warren county, N. C., used Mrs. Joyner's Remedy with wonderful success. The doctors said his leg would have to be amputated, but seeing Mrs. Joyner's medicine advertised, sent for it and the Wash, and in three months' time he was a sound and active young man. He had been confined to bed and room for two years or more, and I do not doubt it had not been for the wonderful Remedy and Wash, he would have been a maimed man for life. I am, Yours truly, J. D. WEBB.

Lost Found.

The following was received by the REFLECTOR last Friday night and will explain itself:

BAKERBTON, W. VA., June 28, '92.

Messrs. G. E. Harris, C. D. Rountree, J. S. Smith—A young man answering to the description in your issue of the REFLECTOR was seen for a few days last week wandering around Harper's Ferry. Judging from his appearance he was rapidly gaining health and strength, and had increased several inches, which, of course was due to the bracing mountain air of West Virginia. When last seen a fair damsel was by his side. He has gone, and we are glad that he did not take the maiden with him. Hoping you, his friends, will keep a better watch over him in the future and not let him stray up this way again. Very respectfully, "SIV."

Dr. Hall's Lectures.

The Rev. Dr. Hall, who lectured in Elliott's Hall a few evenings ago, returned to Greenville on last Tuesday evening and lectured in the Court House and on the following evening in Elliott's Hall. The subject of the former was "Happy Homes." Indeed a happy subject and will work the careful consideration of our people. The doctor showed how all beings from the lowest form of animal life sought its own home. The fowls of air, the fishes of the sea, the beast of the fields and last, man, the crowning capstone of creation, all intuitively, as it were, sought to build that place of refuge from the cares and perplexities of outside life, known as "Home, Sweet Home."

His lecture was full of interesting and truthful illustrations, interspersed with a sufficiency of wit and humor, making them interesting as well as instructive.

His last lecture, subject, "Our Boy John," was perhaps not so well received by the audience as the two preceding; but the doctor labored under many disadvantages all of which the audience well understood. There was another entertainment billed for the same evening and the doctor made his lecture much shorter than he otherwise would have done, leaving out, as he said, the best part of the lecture much to the regret of the audience. This series of lectures will long be remembered by the Greenville people, and the doctor as a lecturer will always be a welcome visitor.

A Complimentary Party.

On Wednesday evening, the 27th ult., a few invited friends assembled at the home of Misses Nannie and Ella King, of Appomattox, Va., Lady Principal of Junison Institute, Marion, Ala., who on her return home stopped a few days in Greenville to visit friends, and who was to leave for her Virginia home on the following morning. The following is a list of those present and their costumes:

Miss Jennie Williams, pink china silk, pearls; Miss Hortense Forbes, cream china silk, pearls; Miss Bessie Jarvis, pink crepe de chine, silver ornaments; Miss Carrie Cobb, pink and cream albatross, diamonds; Miss Nannie King, white silk, natural flowers; Miss Irene Grimsley, pink silk, natural flowers; Miss Rosa Forbes, white silk, no ornaments; Miss Ella Monteiro, white silk, diamonds; Miss Estella Bogart, of Washington, pink chine silk, diamonds; Miss Mollie Rouse, white chine silk, natural flowers; Miss Ella King, pink crepe de chine, rubies; Dr. Chas. Laughinghouse, Mess. J. R. Moye, J. G. Moye, J. A. Andrews, R. Hyman, W. B. James, E. C. Yellowley, W. F. Harding, Robt. Munford, G. B. King, Zeno Moore, Chas. A. Gough, J. S. C. Benjamin, R. C. Flanagan, all in full evening dress. Never has a gay assembly of beautiful young ladies and courtly gentlemen gathered together in Greenville, and every one seemed to vie with each other in making themselves agreeable and helping each other to have a pleasant and happy evening. Just as the band pointed to eleven Miss Nannie King announced that the presence of all were desired in the dining room, where every one repaired without waiting for a second bidding, where was found waiting a table loaded with refreshments of a variety too numerous to mention. After lingering in its presence and worshipping at its shrine for more than an hour the party returned, some to the parlors, some to the veranda, while an occasional couple might be seen cornered off in some quiet and shaded retreat engaged in conversation the import of which never grows old. Thus the moment slipped quickly by and ere any one was aware the hour had arrived when all must take themselves to their respective homes and soon the scene, which a short time before had been one of pleasure and merry-making, was changed, and the participants were resting quietly in the arms of Morpheus. All whose good fortune it was to be present feel themselves deeply indebted to the Misses King for the pleasure of the evening. The fact that they were entertaining is evidence within itself that those who were present could not do otherwise than have a most delightful time. The many friends of Miss Thornhill wish her a safe return to her home and will always look back to her visit as one of the little pleasures which come to relieve the monotony of life, and we will ever be glad to welcome her in our midst whenever she shall choose to honor us with her presence.

The Art Reception.

The fourth annual art reception under the management of Misses Rouse and Bogart was given in their studio in the Skinner building on last Thursday evening. Those whose good fortune it was to be present at any one of the former receptions could well anticipate with pleasure what was in store for all who should attend this time, and to this event many had been looking forward with no little pleasure, and we feel sure in saying that none went away without realizing their every anticipation. The hall was brilliantly lighted and on the walls were artistically arranged specimens of original work done by the pupils and several pieces by Misses Rouse and Bogart. We would like to give a list of the specimens and by whom executed but space forbids. It has been said that "practice and time makes perfect." A more perfect exemplification of this maxim was never shown than on this occasion. The specimens on exhibition were of such a high order that none but the skilled artist could detect them from being equal to that done by the masters. This work reflects credit upon Misses Rouse and Bogart as instructors, and the people of Greenville owe them a debt which money cannot pay. An interesting feature of the occasion was a recitation by Miss Bessie White which was well rendered and elicited much applause. The managers had arranged to have refreshments served in the parlors of Dr. Marquis and Mr. R. Hyman, in the same building, much to the delight of all; and 'till one o'clock there might have been seen lingering around this scene an occasional couple reluctant to leave this spot, ever so much the traditional grotto of fairy-land. We regret very much that this reception closed the art school which has been conducted so successfully for the past four years, and still more to know that the teachers will no longer make Greenville their home. Miss Rouse has accepted a position in the Tarboro Collegiate Institute, while Miss Bogart returns to Washington to assist there the hearts of her host of admiring friends. The refining influence that has gone out from the instruction of these ladies can well be noticed in many homes, and like the ripple on the water will continue to widen and grow as time continues to exist, and in the hearts of the people of Greenville there will always be a tangible feeling of appreciation for the good that they have done.

A Day at Cotswalds.

It was a glorious day. Everybody says so from the small boy who walked ten miles through mud and sun to eat barbeque and see the game, down to the two majestic empires who considered themselves fortunate in being alive at the close of the game. How could it be otherwise for had not the fair ladies and gallant men of the entire neighborhood assembled to throw aside for a day the cares of home and farm and to enjoy one of nature's purest gifts to man—a beautiful day. The morning was spent in delight of tete-a-tete in buggies, pleasant stroll through the breezy grove and by some a game of croquet. When dinner was announced all were more than anxious, and such a dinner, such a spread as only the housewife of Pitt knows how to provide. Several of the home young ladies at once took charge of the Greenville players and declared they should eat so much dinner that they would not be able to play much ball, and they all succeeded with one exception and that was the pretty young lady who had charge of Greenville's big first baseman. She loaded him to the brim and then filled his pockets. After the game she was heard to declare "the more that fellow eats the more he plays." She didn't know Alex, oh, no! not much. After dinner the boys donned their uniforms and at 2:30 game was called. Greenville was first at the bat and scored two runs before the third man was put out. When Cottendale went to bat in their first inning the big dinner began to tell and they scored five runs on a succession of errors by the Greenville boys—the rakescot errors over seen on a ball-field. Cottendale could not bat while Greenville batted hard, but allowed their opponents to fill up runs through errors. Below is the score by innings:

Cottendale,	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Greenville,	5 1 1 1 0 0 1 0 0
	3 3 5 2 2 0 1 1 0-16

PACTOLUS POINTS.

Politics are gradually warming up. The Pactolus people have had their mail but twice this week on account of high water.

Owing to low prices there has been but very few Irish potatoes shipped from here this week.

Misses Apple Smith and Bettie Greene, of Greenville, are visiting the family of Mr. S. I. Fleming.

The carpenters are busy at work building the depot. They say it will be a nice one when completed.

The merry-go-round that has been here for the last few days affords lots of fun for the young people.

Dr. Bagwell was quite sick yesterday. We hope he is better to-day. Hope he will soon be out again.

Miss Vinie Daniel, of Greenville, formerly of Pactolus, is visiting the family of Mrs. Sophia Fleming.

Mrs. R. R. Fleming and Mrs. Dr. Bagwell left last Tuesday for Morehead to attend the Teachers' Assembly.

We have had very heavy rains of late so as to render the creek impassable between this point and Washington.

Mr. C. T. Still, foreman of the W. U. Telegraph Company, was in town a few days this week while putting up the railroad telegraph line from Washington to A. & R. Junction.

We learn that the washout on the railroad at Tranters Creek, which caused the train to be delayed for a few days, had been repaired and the train passed over safely this morning.

We came near having a very serious accident yesterday evening just as Mr. M. T. Spier and Miss Ada Barwick were going to ride. Mr. Spier's horse became Brightened after Miss Barwick had gotten in the buggy and before Mr. Spier could get up the horse dashed away, throwing Mr. Spier some distance and leaving the young lady in the buggy alone.

The horse ran down the street in front of Dr. Bagwell's house and turned and ran back up the street, a distance of one mile into the country to the home of Mr. Spier, where Miss Barwick succeeded in jumping from the buggy and let go the reins which she had been steadily holding and guiding the horse with extraordinary judgment under the circumstances from the time he commenced to run. Fortunately neither party was seriously hurt.

Pactolus, N. C., July 2nd, 1892.

P. P. P. stimulates the appetite and aids the process of assimilation, cures nervous troubles, and invigorates and strengthens every organ of the body. Nervous prostration is also cured by the great and powerful P. P. P. Its effects are permanent and lasting.

If you feel weak and badly, take P. P. P., and you will regain your flesh and strength.

For Rheumatism, Malaria and Syphilis, P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassum) is the best known remedy.

For females in delicate health for indigestion and Dyspepsia, take only P. P. P. It is the best Spring Medicine in the world.

GREENVILLE FEMALE SCHOOL.

Mrs. V. L. Pendleton

Will open a Select School for Young Ladies and Small Girls in Greenville on August 29th, 1892. The full Collegiate Course taught. Terms: The usual prices for tuition in Greenville will be charged.

University of N. C.

Instruction is offered in four general courses of study, six brief courses, a large number of special courses, and in law, medicine and engineering. The Faculty includes twenty teachers.

Scholarships and loan funds are available for needy young men of talent and character. The next session begins Sept. 1st. For catalogue with full information address President Winston, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Land Sale.

By virtue of an order of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt county in case of F. G. James, administrator of G. W. Johnston, against Louis Johnston and Mary Johnston, the undersigned administrator will sell for cash before the Court House door in Greenville on Monday the 1st day of August, 1892, the following described piece or parcel of land, situated in the county of Pitt, and in Greenville township, lying on north side of Tar river, adjoining the lands of Mrs. A. J. Johnston, Miss S. O. Brown and others, containing 70 acres, more or less.

F. G. JAMES, Administrator.

This June 27th, 1892.

You Are Not In It!

If you fail to see the brand new stock of GENERAL MERCHANDISE—that is now being offered by—

W. H. WHITE.

—I have just the article to suit—

EVERY GENTLEMAN, LADY, HOUSEKEEPER, FARMER, BODY ELSE.

If you want anything to wear or anything to eat, or any article to go in the house, call on me. Goods all new, not a piece of old stock in the house.

My prices will be found as low as reliable goods can be sold at.

W. H. WHITE.

Two doors from C. A. White's corner, near Five Points.

RARE BARGAINS!

Bargains are being offered by the low priced merchant of Greenville

C. T. MUNFORD.

Prices are reduced on all Summer Goods in order to close out by SEPTEMBER 1st to make room for Fall Stock. Warm weather coupled with low prices makes them go in a rush.

Those beautiful Embroidered Black Mull Dress Patterns, only a few left, reduced to $2.25.

White Goods, former price 10 and 12, reduced to 7 and 9.

40-inch White Lawn 7 and 9.

A Dress Style Outing 8 and 11.

Beautiful French Taffetas worth 8 and 6.

Scotch Zephyr Gingham 12, worth 20. Best.

Ginghams worth 10 to 12, now selling at 7 and 8. Bleached and Unbleached Domestic at any price. All our fine Summer Woolled Dress Goods at your own price. All of our Summer Clothing to be sold at cost. Don't forget our Sample Notions, such as Shirts, Suspenders, Collars, Cuffs, Handkerchiefs, Neckwear, Gloves, Mitts, Fans, Umbrellas, &c. A large lot of Sample Shoes and Slippers at factory prices, there 8 and 6.

To our many customers we say inspect our goods before buying.

Respectfully,

C. T. MUNFORD,

Opposite Old Brick Store. GREENVILLE, N. C.

A High-Toned Smoke

Suited to the Taste of every Man, and Ladies Do Not Object to Them.

FIVE Mild, Pure and Sweet Smokes FOR TEN CENTS.

WHOLESALE TOBACCONIST,

39, 41, 43 Roanoke Avenue, NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

POTATOES.

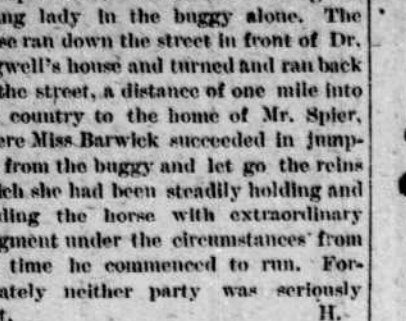

—SHIP TO— OSCAR FROMMEL & BRO.

13th, GRACE AND WASHINGTON AVES. West Washington Market, NEW YORK.

REFERENCE: Truckers in New Bern and Washington, N. C. Greenville, S. C. J. A. Andrews, and the leading merchants of Pactolus: J. R. Davnport, B. E. Fleming, J. J. Satterthwaite, Local Representatives.

C. T. & S. K. CORDON, General Agents for Eastern North Carolina

SHOES, DRY GOODS, NOTIONS.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW.

There is a great deal of satisfaction in leading and we are still in that position. Rivals attempt to follow our methods but find that we lead them a merry chase and they finally give it up or come to grief.

Elegance and durability, coupled with low prices, is what has placed our Shoes, Dry Goods and Notions in the lead.

BROWN BROTHERS.

JNO. S. CONGLETON, COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND BUYER OF Country Produce

Bring me all of your Chickens, Eggs, Ducks, Turkeys and Geese, and I will give you the highest market price for them and pay in spot cash.

If you have anything to ship I will attend to it for you on a small commission. Call and see me.

JNO. S. CONGLETON.

Stoves, Tinware, Paints, Oils.

S. E. PENDER & CO., MANUFACTURERS OF TOBACCO FLUES.

We are now ready to supply Tobacco Flues to the farmers who have placed their orders for them.

Don't Buy a Cook Stove until you have seen ours. We still handle the famous ELMO Stoves and the LIBERTY. They are low priced stoves and have never failed to give satisfaction.

Repairing promptly done and guaranteed.

S. E. PENDER & CO.,

June 15th, 1892. Greenville, N. C.

ESTABLISHED 1883.

J. A. ANDREWS, Headquarters for the following lines of Goods:

Car load Moss Pork, 100 Boxes Crackers.

Car load Rib Side Meat, 100 Boxes Tobacco.

Car load Flour, all grades, 50 Boxes Starch.

Car load White Seed Oats, 50 Barrels Pot or Rico Molasses.

100 Cases Star Lye, 25 Barrels Stick Candy.

100 Cases Horsford's Bread Powders, 25 Barrels Gall & Ax Snuff.

100 Cases Soap, 25 Barrels Railroad Mills Snuff.

100 Cases Brandy Cherries and Peaches, 25 Barrels P. Lorillard's Snuff.

Full line Case Goods. Paper Sacks, Cigarettes, Cigarette, &c.

GREENVILLE, N. C.

G. E. HARRIS,

—DEALER IN—

HAY, GRAIN & FERTILIZERS

GREENVILLE, N. C.

L. W. DAVIS,

—MANUFACTURER FINE—

Havana .: Cigars.

WHOLESALE TOBACCONIST,

39, 41, 43 Roanoke Avenue, NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

POTATOES.

—SHIP TO— OSCAR FROMMEL & BRO.

13th, GRACE AND WASHINGTON AVES. West Washington Market, NEW YORK.

REFERENCE: Truckers in New Bern and Washington, N. C. Greenville, S. C. J. A. Andrews, and the leading merchants of Pactolus: J. R. Davnport, B. E. Fleming, J. J. Satterthwaite, Local Representatives.

C. T. & S. K. CORDON, General Agents for Eastern North Carolina

YOUR CASE IS NOT HOPELESS

Electro House

AIDS NATURE IN NATURE'S OWN WAY.

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING TO INVESTIGATE.

ATLANTIC ELECTROPHONE CO.

1408 New York Ave., Washington, D. C.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING.

COCOA

LABELLED 1-2-3. TINS ONLY.

MANHOOD!

How Lost! How Regained!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

KNOW THYSELF.

OF SELF-PRESERVATION. A new and only Gold Medal Prize Essay on the subject of PHYSICAL VITALITY, BROODS OF YOUTH, EXHAUSTED VITALITY, SEXUAL DEBILITY, NERVOUS DEPRESSION AND WEAKNESSES OF MAN. 20 pages, cloth, 12c. Invaluable prescriptions. Only 10c. by mail, enclosing stamp. Descriptive prospectus with double amount. FREE! SEND 10c. to the Editor of THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, 1000 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Invaluable and FREE! SEND 10c. to the Editor of THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, 1000 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Invaluable and FREE! SEND 10c. to the Editor of THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, 1000 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

A Family Affair

Health for the Baby, Pleasure for the Parents, New Life for the Old Folks.

Hires' Root Beer

THE GREAT TEMPERANCE DRINK

It is a family affair—a requisite of the home. A 25-cent package makes 3 gallons of a delicious, strengthening, refreshing beverage.

Don't be deceived. It is the only root beer made with pure water and the genuine Hires'.

WILMINGTON & WELDON R. R.

and BRANCHES. Condensed Schedule of TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

No. 14, No. 78, No. 49

Apr. 19th, 1922. Daily Fast Mail, daily ex 40u

Lv Weldon 12:30 pm 3:45 pm 4:00 am

Ar Rocky Mount 1:40 am 6:56 7:47

Ar Tarboro 1:18

Lv Tarboro 12:58 am 6:10

Ar Weldon 2:18 pm 7:00 pm 8:17 am

Ar Selma 2:29

Ar Fayetteville 5:30

Ar Goldsboro 8:45 7:40 9:00 am

Lv Warsaw 3:14 3:40 4:00

Lv Magnolia 4:27 8:40 10:14

Ar Wilmington 6:09 9:55 11:45

TRAINS GOING NORTH

No. 14, No. 78, No. 49

daily daily daily

Lv Wilmington 2:10 am 9:15 am 4:00 pm

Lv Magnolia 3:57 10:57 5:59

Lv Warsaw 4:33 11:11 6:25

Lv Fayetteville 4:43 12:08 6:56

Ar Selma 5:11 11:08

Ar Weldon 6:14 am 12:20 pm 7:25 pm

Ar Rocky Mount 5:37 10:41 8:21

Ar Tarboro 6:18

Lv Tarboro 12:58 am

Daily except Sunday.

Train on Scotland Neck Branch Road leaves Halifax 4:22 P. M., arrives Scotland Neck at 5:15 P. M., Greenville 6:52 P. M., Kingston 8:40 P. M., returning leaves Kingston 8:13 A. M., Greenville 9:45 A. M., 8:25 A. M., arriving Halifax 11:00 A. M., Weldon 11:25 A. M., daily except Sunday.

Trains on Washington Branch leave Washington 7:05 A. M., arrives A. & R. Junction 8:40 A. M., returning leaves A. & R. Junction 7:05 P. M., arrives Washington 8:45 P. M., Daily except Sunday.

Connects with trains on Albemarle and Raleigh R. R. and Scotland Neck Branch.

Local freight train leaves Weldon Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10:15 A. M., arriving Scotland Neck 1:05 A. M., Greenville 5:30 P. M., Kingston 7:40 P. M., returning leaves Kingston Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 7:30 A. M., arriving Greenville 9:55 A. M., Scotland Neck 2:25 P. M., Weldon 5:15 P. M.

Train leaves Tarboro, N. C., via Albemarle and Raleigh R. R., daily except Sunday 8:00 A. M., Sunday 8:00 P. M., arriving Wilmington, N. C. 7:18 P. M., 4:20 P. M., Plymouth 8:30 P. M., 5:22 P. M., returning leaves Plymouth daily except Sunday 8:00 A. M., Sunday 8:00 P. M., arriving Tarboro, N. C. 10:40 A. M., 11:20 P. M.

Trains on Southern Division, Wilson and Fayetteville Branch leave Fayetteville 7:30 A. M., arrive Rocky Mount 12:15 P. M., returning leave Rocky Mount 12:15 P. M., arrive Fayetteville 10:15 P. M., Daily except Sunday.

Train on Midland N. C. Branch leaves Goldsboro daily except Sunday, 6:00 A. M., arrive Smithfield, N. C. 7:30 A. M., returning leaves Smithfield, N. C. 8:30 A. M., arrive Goldsboro, N. C. 9:30 A. M., 11:45 A. M., daily, except Sunday.

Train on Nashvilles Branch leaves Rock Mount at 5:15 P. M., arrive Nashville 6:55 P. M., Spring Hope 8:30 P. M., returning leaves Spring Hope 6:00 A. M., Nashville 8:35 A. M., arrive Rocky Mount 9:15 A. M., daily, except Sunday.

Train on Clinton Branch leaves Warsaw for Clinton daily, except Sunday, at 6:00 P. M., and 11:15 A. M., returning leaves Clinton at 8:20 A. M., and 3:10 P. M., connecting at Warsaw with Nos. 41, 40, 23 and 78.

Southern train on Wilson & Fayetteville Branch No. 51, Northbound is No. 50, daily except Sunday.

Trains No. 27 South and 14 North will stop only at Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro and Magnolia.

Train No. 73 leaves close connection at Weldon for all points North daily. All call via Richmond, and daily except Sunday via Bay Line, also at Rocky Mount daily except Sunday with Norfolk and Carolina railroad for Norfolk and all points via Norfolk.

JOHN P. DIVINE

General Sup't.

W. M. WILSON (Gen'l) Passenger Agent.

AN ARROW HEAD.

I found it in a field near the river. Between the furrows of the corn. This relic of a race known to me. Types of their skill and beauty.

And one again I secured to bear From yonder grove of ancient oaks Their lusty voices starting clear. As, on the soil, lay scattered there.

'Twas bent or better stirred their blood To leap impatient with desire! 'Twas pleasure drowned them like a flood, Or passion burned them like a fire.

And looked where this first was found, Small it is, some Indian's eye. Discovered, feeding on the ground. A weary minstrel of the sky.

Then sang an arrow through the air Its melody of fate and wrong. Until it reached its mark—and there Closed with the bird's brief burst of song.

Both singers dead and where they fell— For years deserted and unknown, Until this imperishable stone!— Frank D. Sherman in Youth's Companion.

SNIDER.

Snider was a baddish sort of boy aged twelve, whose home was on the very bank of the Mississippi—so near to the water that when his active imagination or conscience would let him sleep he had been known to get out of bed in the dead watches of the night and plunge into it as a diversion and a solace. He had the mighty river as a playmate and almost worshipped it, without being aware that he did so. For the Mississippi is a wonderful thing both by night and by day to those who achieve familiarity with it, and Snider was a nature worshiper within reasonable limits—the limits of a savage or a boy of twelve.

Snider's playmates were boys and girls of two races, the red and the white, and he expressed a slight preference for the white on week days, and the red on the Sabbath, for being a baddish boy, he played all day Sunday, and it is hard to get along harmoniously all day with the little white boys, but he permitted to play on that day. The red people, great and small, looked on Snider as a sort of phenomenon, and everybody knows it is very soothing to the nerves of all ages and sexes to be treated deferentially. To have harmed a hair of Snider's head would, in the opinion of the least of Chippewas, have been the worst kind of "had medicine."

Snider's sire held the orthodox Western view that "Injuns is pizen," and did not approve his son's familiarity with the aborigines, but this did not seriously interfere with the boy's plans, for it was not regarded as strictly necessary that he should consult his parents as to his goings in and comings out of the woods.

Snider and his Indian playmates had in their intercourse constructed a "blend" of English and Algonquin that was unintelligible to other mortals than themselves, and frequently used it to express sentiments regarding their progenitors that would have made things pretty stormy for them had their elders, into whose teeth he hurled it, known what was said.

Snider's best friend and "steady company" was an Indian maiden of ten, whose name in English would be freely translated Red Leaf, but which in her native tongue could be spelled only by a combination of letters that would look very discouraging to civilized people. Red Leaf's mother had no warrior she could call her own, and this detracted from her popularity with the tribe, for its male members were expected to divide the produce of the chase with her, and gratitude was not her strongest characteristic. Her husband's scalp was blowing about like a dry rag in some Sioux warrior's tepee, he having been killed in battle seven or eight years before Snider formed the acquaintance of his daughter. The lady's name might have been "Red Leaf" in English, although it is quite likely she had adopted or been given this bitter title at a later date than her marriage.

Alkali always greeted with a friendly "How how" the coming of Snider, for his pockets usually contained something edible from his home larder, and like a trifle of tobacco from his father's hoard. It is not improbable that Snider was in a measure responsible for the annual and protracted visits of this particular band of Indians to the neighborhood, for in addition to adding a trifle to the comforts of the company he had, on occasion, been introduced into securing whiskey for them, though at the earnest solicitation of Red Leaf he had many times declined this sinful act of accommodation.

"It is not good to live," she said, "when the warriors have taken the lord's water."

But Snider had other sources of amusement than the congenial society of the Indian maiden. One of these was the casting of stones at wayfarers from ambush. It chanced one day that he cast a stone into a passing immigrant's covered wagon and struck a babe on the head, making a cruel wound, and it chanced also that the child's mother, in dragging Snider from his concealment in the high grass and dragging him to the wagon, first to show the villany he had done and next to swing him soundly. But when Snider had seen the wound he was so subject, so remorseful, so anxious to be smitten hip and thigh and made a terrible example of that the immigrant and his wife, and the baby to boot, forgave him with all their hearts.

Others had seen his evil deed, and the news of it went speedily to his father, so that Snider was a bruised and battered little imp when his father sent him supperless to bed that night. He resented his punishment with bitterness of spirit, reasoning that, having made peace with the immigrants, outside parties had no right to disturb the statu quo.

His father's punishment made it hard for Snider to sleep, and being a quiet, motherless little fellow, he lay upon his pillow and thought of the dark waters of the river and the smoky tepees where the Indians were asleep, and how they, at least, always received him gladly, then he rose up and stole out of the house, after filling his pockets with biscuits and some going to be an Indian.

The news did not reach his father as he supposed, but snuffed his pipe and went to bed, and Snider, after a long day, fell fast asleep.

THE GLASS SNAKE.

The so-called glass snake does not break to pieces at the sight of an enemy, as is commonly supposed, but, like some lizards, throws off its tail in an effort to escape. There are several lizards which, when attacked, for instance, by a bird or predatory animal, will throw off their tails, and the tail falling up and down, the lizard, firm clay fell on the box in the sour earth that had been set aside for a graveyard. And few waited to see the little mound rounded up by the worms. They had other things to do.—Seneca E. Truesdell in Buffalo News.

Female Weakness Positive Cure.

To the Editor:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the thousand and one ills which arise from deranged female organs. I should be glad to send you a copy of my remedy FREE to any lady who will send their Express and P. O. address.

Yours respectfully,
DR. A. M. BUCHHEI,
Utica, N. Y.

THE COMMON SNAKE.

In the upper reservoir at Mountain View cemetery are planned a large number of German carp—the fishes now ranging in size from four to seven inches in length. The reservoir borders Blair park on the west, and the manager at the park consists of a big Tom cat. Tom is an expert fish cat. He creeps along the margin of the reservoir, and when a carp pokes up its nose into the grass at the edge of the lake to feed, Tom deftly pulls his carpish out and eats him. This is a true cat and fish story, and no diagram is considered necessary to prove it.—Oakland Times.

Why Men are Different.

"But you are not a coward—white people are different," Snider resumed his seat.

"Would Alkali like me for a son?" he said, after a period of silence.

"Alkali does not even love pleasant days. She says Red Leaf is not good except to eat when there is little to be had and to gather sticks for the fire. Her heart's very bad," said the faithful daughter, with much frankness.

"I shall never return to the lodge of my father," said Snider, resolutely. "I can live in the woods alone. Kawa Nechee caught Manitou." This last expression is supposed to mean, in the language of the aborigines, "God cares for the poor Indian."

Why Men are Different.

Without further remark they arose from the council fire and went toward the river. Without being realized by either it was the god of both, being the greatest natural object with which they had acquaintance, and both being utterly without other than natural religious sentiment.

The moon came out and lit the mighty stream with a weird and uncertain light. The spring froth had not wholly subsided, and the water was covered with "wrecks and strays and castaways." It lashed its banks and whirled away into the darkness like a tortured snake. They looked and said nothing for a long time, and then Red Leaf began hastily to dress herself of her clothing.

"There are camps on the island," she explained. The island was half a mile distant, and a strong current rolled between the two children and the nearest point.

They would never have expressed it, but they were about to interrupt the god Dagon whether he "speaketh the young men when they say" or the god of the Christians be said to do.

THE MERRY MAN.

Red Leaf and her mother, Minnabasca, Wagona and other Indian maidens have been described by literary people who have employed terra cotta or bronze models; but Red Leaf, alas! was a genuine Indian girl, with all the mental and physical characteristics of her race. As she emerged from her mother's tepee, on observing the face of Snider peering in, would be as good opportunity to describe her as any likely to be obtained. Her hair was long, black and coarse, and at the part was a streak of yellow pigment.

This hair hung down over her swarthy and not always clean cheeks in such a way as to make her forehead a tolerably correct triangle. Her eyes were almond shaped and wonderfully dark and deep, with an unusual amount of fire and intensity of natural ferocity about them that made a stranger look a second time before he remembered that the savage heart behind might devise. Her mouth was large, but the handsome white teeth within made it a rather pleasant feature. Like all growing children, her shoulders, arms and body were slender and boy. Her raiment, seldom parted with by night or by day until it fell from her person piecemeal, consisted of a single celio garment, "toggled" together as only savages know how to do dressmaking, torn and mended in many places, torn and unended in many others. Shoes she had none; headgear she wore she had despised.

The personal appearance of Snider, in opinion one grave should suffice for the battered little bodies, and it was so. "Injuns may be pizen," he remarked, "but this little girl must be very fond of my Snider to let him swim in the river with him in high water. If there's any resurrection for one of them, there is for the other, and I think may be they'll like to tie together on that day." As he heard speaking the first clod of the hard, firm clay fell on the box in the sour earth that had been set aside for a graveyard. And few waited to see the little mound rounded up by the worms. They had other things to do.—Seneca E. Truesdell in Buffalo News.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few years ago an advertisement appeared in the papers stating that for the sum of one dollar a recipe would be given for the permanent cure of stammering. When the dollar was sent the receipt was returned, which simply read, "Keep your mouth shut." Another instance of this kind was where an advertisement offered for a warty cure a receipt would be given for catching all the fish in any given body of water. When the fifty cents was sent a receipt would be returned telling the victim "to dip all the water out and then pick up the fish."

Another form of fraud is perpetrated by means of advertisements so worded as to mislead the public. Persons answering them think that for twenty-five cents they can have a watch or some other valuable article when, in fact, they merely get some illustrated catalogue. An extensive fraud has been carried on by certain persons claiming to be commission merchants or produce dealers who send their circulars and price lists offering prices higher than the market, when, in fact, they have no commission house, and produce of any kind is not on hand. The goods are shipped to them and received and sold at any price obtainable, no return whatever being made.

Some time since appeared a very glowing advertisement of a book exclusively for young, unmarried people—both gentlemen and ladies—the price of which was five dollars. For the five dollars a very cheap edition of the Bible was sent. A fine time-worn copy of the Bible would be advertised for $1. The sender would expect a watch in return, but he would get a sun dial. Great frauds have been carried on by the proposed publication of hand-some-illustrated books, for which photographs of prominent men were solicited. It was added that to have the necessary copper plates engraved would cost $16.75. A surprising large number responded with photographs and money, but no books, of course, were published.—Washington Star.

THE MERRY MAN.

Some of the many schemes that are devised to humbug the unsuspecting public, and it seems the greater the fraud the greater the returns to the swindler. Nearly all of these schemes make use of advertisements published in newspapers and of circulars distributed through the mails. Without these means the public would not be reached, and for this reason the law has been enacted prohibiting the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes. But it is to be borne in mind that unless complaints are made to the postoffice department these frauds are carried on without any knowledge of their existence and no investigation is instituted.

One of a few instances of these frauds a few